NEWS ABOUT HOME.

"A chief's among ye, takin' notes,
An' faith he'll prent it!"

TOWN TOPICS.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wade, of Brussels were in town during the week.

Rev. A. E. Smith, of Brussels occupied the North St. Methodist Church pulpit on Sunday last, both morning and evening.

Mrs. Hayhurst, of Palmerston, is visiting her father, Mr. Samuel Platt, of this town, and enjoying herself in the company of old friends.

A number of new books have been placed on the shelves of the Mechanics' Institute. They will be followed shortly by an additional lot.

Mr. John Campbell, of the "Teacumseh House," Brussels, and one of the best fellows in the world, was in town on Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. McFarlane, the pound-keeper, is after the cow-owners who violate the cow-by-law. He cautions them in another column, and a word to the wise should be sufficient.

Mrs. Haalut, of Michigan, visited the Cadets of Temperance, at their lodge rooms, on Tuesday evening last, and expressed herself as highly pleased with the working of the institution.

Quitting.—The return contest of Colborne against Goderich, will come off on the 9th inst., in Goderich. Lovers of the game will see a big tussle this time, as both sides are practicing night and day.

SENT UP.—Elias Mihm, of Grey township, was tried before Judge Tomes on Monday, for obtaining a pair of shoes from Robt. Willis, of Seaforth, by false pretences. He was found guilty and sentenced to two months.

THE CATCH.—We are informed that the catch of fish this year has been exceptionally good. Day after day large draughts are being made, and our hardy fishermen feel gleeful as they empty their well-filled nets. So great has been the catch this year that the market has been glutted.

Persons handling bank bills should be careful not to take any $2 Dominion notes from No. 145,000 to No. 146,000, nor any $1 Dominion notes from No. 355,001 to No. 356,000, as the Government has refused to redeem them, they being part of the lot stolen from the Receiver-General's office in Toronto some time ago.

If you have warts on your hand, rub each of them with a bullet, and load a gun with the bullets. Then watch until a vagrant cow opens their front gate of your yard with her horn. Aim carefully at the cow's head and fire. If all the bullets go into her head it may not cure the warts, but it will be a good thing for the neighborhood.—[Ex.]

Mr. H. A. Long, of 59 Charlotte street, Glasgow, Scotland, writes a long letter to the Brace Herald, in which he gives George Francis Widdows Hobbs (the ex-monk) a terrible going-over, concluded with this sentence:—"I can only think of him with horror, and myself with loathing that I ever gave such a person the hospitality of my roof."

The forthcoming numbers of the Canadian Illustrated News will be of unusual interest, in connection with the fearful calamity which has fallen upon London, Ont. Immediately upon receipt of the news of the accident to the Victoria, a special artist was despatched to the ill-fated city, and the first instalments of a series of sketches from his pencil will appear in the forthcoming number (June 4th). Considerable energy and enterprise has been displayed in the effort to give true details to the public within so short a time after the fatal occurrence, but the journal will reap its reward in the increased interest with which its coming numbers will be read by all.

GODEFRICH CRICKET CLUB.—At a meeting held on Tuesday evening, in Curries' Hotel, for the purpose of organizing a cricket club in town, Major H. Cooke was called to the chair, after which the following officers for the ensuing year were elected: President, Col. A. M. Ross; Vice-President, C. R. Dunsford; Sec.-Treas., J. W. Small; Managing Committee, Major Cooke and J. Currie; Ground Committee, T. H. McDermott, W. Proudfoot and T. Armstrong. The club will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings and Saturday afternoon for practice on the cricket grounds. Membership tickets for the season will cost $1. We understand that the club intend to go to considerable expense in fitting up the ground, and we trust they will have a successful season.

PRACTICAL JOKING.—Travelling on the train going north the other evening, were a Mornington clergyman and a Listowel lawyer. The clergyman is one of the most genial men in the world, and is very fond of flowers—a variety of which he was taking home. The lawyer thought it no harm to appropriate some of them. He then dozed off to sleep. The minister had kept both eyes open all the time, but said nothing about the flowers. The lawyer wore a rather nobby cap, which attracted the parson's attention, and in the twinkling of an eye it was transferred to the lawyer's bag beside him. When the lawyer awoke he had reached home and discovered that his headgear was missing. He raised a tremendous row and threatened all sorts of things; but on opening his bag in the morning he came to the conclusion that the parson had the best of the joke after all.

Mr. James Thompson, formerly Town Clerk of Goderich, and now of Dakota is in town, looking hearty.

WILD FLOWERS.—A couple of prizes will be given to boys or girls making the best and freshest collection of wild flowers. For particulars apply to T. McGillicuddy, SIGNAL office.

The procession of Shelby, Pullman & Hamilton's show was the attraction on the Square on Thursday morning. Crowds were attracted to the town by the display, and from early morning the back townships sent in representatives to see the "elephant," Shelby, Pullman & Hamilton's is a good show, and is well patronized wherever it appears.

The fire brigade tender their best thanks to the inhabitants of Salford, for the donation of $23.50 given them a couple of weeks ago, in recognition of their efficient services at McIntyre's fire.

The fine shower on Tuesday evening made vegetation to take a leap forward. The cow-pasture around the Court House is beginning to look well, and the bovines will soon commence to give a superior quality of lactical fluid in consequence. A facetious correspondent on Monday last requested us to ask the authorities to allow the watering cart inside the chains to revive the pasture, as the cows were suffering because of the recent drought. The timely shower of Tuesday evening, will, however, do for the present in refreshing the pasturage on the Court House Square.

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS.—Bro. David McKay for some past Recording Secretary of Huron Lodge No. 62, I. O. F., Goderich was on Thursday, of last week, on the occasion of his seven-year jubilee, his connection with the Lodge, preparatory to his departure for the United States, presented with a handsome clearance diploma and the following address:

HURON LODGE, No. 62, I. O. F.
To Brother David McKay.
DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—As you are about to leave us for another sphere of duty, and as this is probably the last Lodge meeting that we will have the pleasure of meeting with you for a long time, we take this opportunity of expressing our unfeigned regret at your removal from amongst us. Although a young member of this Lodge, your progress since your initiation has been rapid. Your genial and courteous manner, and the faithful and efficient discharge of the duties devolving upon you as Recording Secretary, bespeak for you as rapid an elevation to the highest honor as a Lodge can confer upon a member. In consideration of this we have caused the diploma accompanying this to be prepared for you, which we hope you will accept not for its intrinsic worth, but as a memorial of the kind feelings which exist between you and your brethren in this Lodge, whose best wishes will accompany you to your future home.

Signed on behalf of the members,
GEORGE STEVES,
HARRY BOLTON,
CHAS. E. SLIGHT.

A bell now hangs in St. George's Church.

Goderich quilters beat Colborne on Thursday of last week, by 29 points.

SPORTING.—A well-known limb of the law amused the boys greatly the other day while after a wild duck. The disciple of Blackstone blazed away at his game, round after round, but when he endeavored to reach the duck the fowl eluded his grasp. The persevering student finally got the bird, after putting so much shot into it that it could hardly float.

FOR TORONTO.—Mr. W. Baillie, for some months past employed on THE SIGNAL, leaves by early train this (Friday) morning to take a position on the editorial staff of the Toronto Globe. Mr. Baillie is an excellent printer, a competent writer, and possessed of parts which will enable him to cut his notch well up on the journalistic tree. Our best wishes go with him.

THE RAILWAY QUESTION.

What Tim Mahoney Thinks of the New Scheme.

A SIGNAL reporter met our well-known townsman, Tim Mahoney, at "Curries" the other day, and asked that talented Hibernian for his opinion on a second line of railway to Goderich. Tim took his dudeen from his "gob," and after looking reflectively at the ashes for about a minute, delivered himself as follows:—

"Is it the railroad ye want to know about. Badad we want it, an' want it it had. I waz down beyant at the station, the uthder day, mesilf an' sum at the bys—to see at we cudn't git a job an' the gravel thrain, and sez I to the bys, sez I "Bys its axudher line av road we want to make things lively, for the devil a ha'port is to do at all, at all, wid the Grand Thruuk holdin' both ends av the stick, all alone. And the bys sez, what I sez waz gospel thruth, 'an' we mus' hav' another line, or the town 'ud go to the —, well, it 'ud go further than the price av Paddy's pig, but, parhays ye niver heard the story. We see, Paddy an' Biddy waz map and yefe, an' betune them, they owned a pig, that they waz raisin' to pay the rent. Well, one mornin', bright an' airly, Pat druv the pig to market, an' afore long sold it for a purty good price. After gettin' the money into his hat, he started for a shebeen to enjoy himself wid the bys, and afore he knew where he waz, he waz as full as a tick, an' his money waz spent. Fwhin he went home, Biddy axed him about the price av the pig, but he stumped his fut on the flure, wid a big noise, an' sez, 'How dar ye ax mich a quisthoun; niver mind about the pig, or where it went. And that's the waz, wid the Council members, Ave ye ax thim what about another loine, they'll stomp their fut an' say, 'niver mind about the pig or where it went.' This weather is terrible for late; it makes one as dhray as a box of tindher."

And thus saying, Tim fixed his toilet by the aid of the mirror which stands behind Curries' bar.

THE HOLY BONDS.

Marriage of Mr. David McKay, late Deputy Postmaster at Goderich, and Miss Mary Marlin.

Mr. David McKay, for over seven years Deputy-Postmaster of Goderich, was married on the 1st inst., to Mary, second daughter of Captain Marlton, formerly of Goderich.

The ceremony was performed by the Venerable Archdeacon Ayleson, at 10 a. m. The guests were relatives of the bride and groom, with the exception of Mr. James Mitchell of the Star, and Mr. Andrew Kirby, mail clerk.

The bride was tastefully dressed in brown silk, with bouquet of lilies of the valley in her corsage. The bridesmaid, Miss Lizzie Cattle, the bride's cousin, looked lovely in her white dress of India moustin, with carnal cash and flowers like the bride. The groomsman was Mr. Willie Gooding, a cousin of the bride.

The presents were numerous and handsome. Mr. A. Dickson, Postmaster, the bridegroom's uncle, presented the bride with a $20 gold piece. Mr. Archie McKay, brother of the bridegroom, made the bride a valuable present of a Japanese writing desk; a handsome silver butter cooler, the present of Mr. Willie Gooding, groomsman, the bridesmaid giving a handsome tortoise shell card case, silver cake basket, richly chased, the gift of the bride's mother; handsome napkin rings of silver, beautifully chased, the gift of Mrs. Cattle; very pretty silver and gold card-receiver, by Mrs. Henry Dickson, a lovely lace collar by Miss Dickson, beautiful heart shaped gold locket, the gift of Miss Rita Carey; beautiful and novel silver pepper and salt stand, by Miss Maud Marlton; fancy bracelet, by Miss Christie McKay; ornamental bead work, by Miss M. Dickson; toilet set presented by Mrs. Johnston; skate of Ireland; Majolica vase, by Miss Skimmings; handsome wisp holder of macrame ornamented with blue ribbon, and holding a wisp, by Miss Hands; Dresden china shepherdess, by Miss Zeda Marlton, and perfume bottle, gift of Master Albert Carey.

The happy couple have the best wishes of all our citizens, and we hope their lives will be one unclouded life of happiness.

They left by the noon train for their future home in Dakota.

I. O. F. ANNIVERSARY.

Eleventh Birthday of Huron Lodge No. 62—supper to Bro. David McKay.

On Monday evening last Huron Lodge, No. 62, I. O. F. celebrated its eleventh anniversary by the holding of a supper at the International Hotel, which also took the shape of a farewell to Bro. David McKay, for some time past Recording Secretary of the Lodge. Mr. McKay is well known in Goderich, having for nearly eight years occupied the onerous and responsible position of Deputy-Postmaster of the town, and such being the case, it was not to be wondered at that many others besides the members of the order gathered around the festive board to give him a good "send-off."

The chair was taken by Bro. F. W. Johnston, Past Grand, and Bro. Harry Bolton occupied the vice-chair.

After justice had been done to the excellent spread prepared by Mr. Hendricks, the genial host, the chairman proposed "The Queen," which was duly responded to by a band playing "God Save the Queen."

Then followed "The Prince of Wales and Royal Family," and "The Governor General," which were duly honored.

Song, "Fair Canada," by Mr. Robinson. After which the chairman proposed the "Guest of the Evening." In introducing the toast, the proposer said they had met to-night to celebrate the eleven-anniversary of the institution of Huron Lodge No. 62. He had been for many years a member of the lodge, and considered that he had received both pleasure and profit from his connection with it. They were also met together this evening to do honor to a brother member who was about to leave them. Bro. McKay would take with him from Goderich a passport which would recommend him to the good offices of Oddfellows wherever he went. He had been a good and faithful brother of the Order, and bore in the testimonial which had been presented to him at the last meeting, a character above reproach as a true and trusty Oddfellow. In his business relations with the public in Goderich his conduct had been marked by courtesy and uniform kindness to all with whom he came in contact, and in the time to come many of us would miss the kindly, happy face of David McKay. Bro. McKay was going to a strange land and among a strange people, but those who knew him best had no fears for his future success. In conclusion, the speaker wished him every success and happiness in his future home, and trusted that he would long be spared in his usefulness.

Song by Bro. Cleucas. Master Kirby and Deputy-District Grand, also paid tributes to the brotherly, social and business attributes of the guest.

Mr. McKay, on rising to respond, was enthusiastically greeted. He was surprised as well as pleased at the magnitude of the gathering this evening. When he was told of the dinner to be given, he expected to meet a few friends and have a pleasant time, but the extent of the turn-out, he had had his best to learn from him. Since becoming identified with the Oddfellows of Goderich he had always endeavored to be true to the obligations of the Order. In his relations with the public in Goderich for the past seven years and six months, he had striven to do his duty, and he felt that his efforts to do right had been in the main appreciated. A person not engaged in post office work could have no idea of the trials and annoyances to which employees were subjected. One needed sympathy of manner and the patience of Job to be able to stand the importunity of the young and the anxiety of the old respecting mail matter. The officials were instructed by the Department to be courteous and obliging to all, and although often severely tested, he felt conscious of the fact that, though he might have failed, he had done his best to "kill the bill." He thanked all those present for their manifestation of good will, and closed by saying that no matter where his lot might be cast, he would never forget the good old town of Goderich. (Cheers.)

"The Army and Navy" was replied to by Messrs. Ball, Bolton, Babb and Roberts.

Song, "Larboard Watch," by Messrs. Rothwell and Robertson.

"Of State Societies,"—replied to by Mr. Ridley for the Masons, and Mr. Saunders for the Foresters.

Song, "Good Old Friends," by Mr. E. VanEvery.

"The Legal Profession" was coupled with the names of Messrs. Archie McKay, W. Dickson, "Duke" Small, L. Dancy, J. H. Best and P. Carrol, jr. The remarks by the first named were exceedingly "rich," and brought down the house.

"The Orphan Mule" was graphically recited by Mr. Chas. Andrews.

"The Commercial Interests" was replied to by Messrs. D. C. Strachan, A. S. McGaw and A. Dickson.

"The Ladies" received justice at the hands of Messrs. Matthews, Slight and Stiven.

"The Press,"—Messrs. Mitchell, D. McGillicuddy and O. Carey.

STORM SIGNAL CODE.

Explanations and Directions for the use of Lake Navigators.

An illustrated storm signal code has been issued by Mr. C. Carmel, Superintendent, of the Magnetic Observatory, Toronto, for use in connection with lake navigation. The text of the circular is given below, and to make it intelligible the following description of the illustrations is appended:—No. 1 is a cone suspended with apex downward; No. 2 is a cone suspended by the apex; No. 3 is a drum with a cone suspended from it with the apex downward. No. 4 is a cone hanging by the apex, with a drum suspended from it. The night signal, corresponding to Nos. 1 and 3, is two lanterns hanging, one vertically over the other. The night signal corresponding to Nos. 2 and 4, is two lanterns hanging side by side, and a little distance apart. The following is the text of the circular containing the directions issued to mariners, by the meteorological office.

Fig. No. 1. This signal if displayed on Lakes Erie and Ontario indicates "moderate gale" is expected probably from the eastward." If displayed on Lake Huron and Georgian Bay, indicates a "moderate gale" is expected, probably from the southward."

Fig. No. 2. If displayed on Lakes Erie and Ontario, indicates "moderate gale" is expected from the westward." If displayed on Lake Huron and Georgian Bay indicates "moderate gale" is expected, probably from the northward."

Fig. No. 3. If displayed on Lakes Erie and Ontario, indicates that a "heavy gale" is expected, probably at first from the eastward." If displayed on Lake Huron or the Georgian Bay, indicates "heavy gale" is expected, probably at first from the southward."

Fig. No. 4. If displayed on Lakes Erie and Ontario indicates "heavy gale" is expected, probably at first from the westward." If displayed on Lake Huron or Georgian Bay, indicates "heavy gale" is expected, probably at first from the northward."

The cone when hoisted by itself indicates that it is expected that the wind will attain a velocity of 25 miles per hour but will not exceed 35 miles, and it is not intended that an ordinarily well-found vessel should stay in port, but simply as a warning to mariners that strong winds are expected from the quarter indicated.

The drum will always be hoisted when the velocity of the wind is expected to exceed 35 miles per hour.

The night signal corresponding to Nos. 1 and 3 is two lanterns hanging perpendicular.

Night signal corresponding to Nos. 2 and 4 is two lanterns hanging horizontally.

Note I. Mariners will be able to obtain further information from drum agents, or by consulting the daily publications.

Note II. Mariners must always bear in mind that the storm signals are merely cautionable and do not necessarily mean that a storm will occur at the place where the signal is displayed, but that one is expected either there or

A LIFE FOR A LIFE.

BY MISS M'LOCK.

CHAPTER XXXV.

HIS STORY.

MY DEAR THEODORA, I did not write, because I could not. In some states of mind nothing seems possible to a man but silence. Forgive me, my love, my comfort and joy.

I have suffered much, but it is over now, at least the suspense of it; and I can tell you all, with the calmness that I myself now feel. You are right; we love one another; we need not be afraid of any tribulation.

Before entering on my affairs, let me answer your letter—all but the last word, "Come!" My other self my better conscience, will herself answer that. The substance of what you tell me, I already know. Francis Charteris came to me on Sunday week, and asked for Lydia. They were married two days after—I gave the bride away. Since then I have drunk tea with them at his lodging, which, poor as it is, has already the cheerful comfort of a home with a woman in it, and that woman a wife.

I left them—Mr. Charteris sitting by the fire, with his boy on his knee; he seems passionately fond of the little scapgrace, who, as you said, is very picture. But more than once I caught his eyes following Lydia with a wistful, grateful tenderness.

"The most sensible, practical girl imaginable," he said, during her momentary absence from the room; "and she knows all my ways, and is so patient with them. 'A poor wench,' as Shakespeare hath it. 'A poor wench, sir, but mine own!'"

For her, she busied herself about house matters, humble, silent, except when her husband spoke to her, and then her whole face brightened. Poor Lydia! None familiar with her story are likely to see much of her again; Mr. Charteris seems to wish, and for very natural reasons, that she should begin the world entirely afresh; but we may fairly believe one thing concerning her as concerning another poor sinner—"Her sins, which were many, are forgiven, for she loved me."

After I returned from them, I found your letter. It made me cease to feel what I have often felt of late, as if hope were knocking at every door except mine.

I told you once never to be ashamed of showing me that you loved me. Do not be; such love is a woman's glory, and a man's salvation.

Let me now say what is to be said about myself, beginning at the beginning.

I mentioned to you once that I had here a good many enemies, but that I should soon live them down; which, for some time, I hoped and believed, and still believe that it would have been so, under ordinary circumstances. I have ever held that truth is stronger than falsehood—that an honest man has but to sit still, let the storm blow over, and hide his time. It does not shake this doctrine that things have fallen out differently with me.

For some time I had seen the cloud gathering; caught evil reports flying about; noticed that, in society or in public meetings, now and then an acquaintance gave me the "cold shoulder." Also, what troubled me more, for it was a hindrance felt daily, my influence and authority in the jail did not seem quite what they used to be. I met no affront, certainly, and all was tolerably smooth sailing till I had to find fault, and then, as you know, a feather will show which way the wind blows.

It was a new experience, for, at the worst of times, in camp or hospital, my poor fellows always loved me—I found it hard.

More scurrilous newspaper paragraphs, the last and least obnoxious of which I sent you, lest you might hear of it in some other way, followed those proceedings of mine concerning reformatories. Two articles—the titles, "Physician, heal thyself," and "Set a thief to catch a thief" will give you an idea of their tenor—went so far as to be actionable libels. Several persons here, our chaplain especially, urged me to take legal proceedings in defence of my character, but I declined.

One day, arguing the point, the chaplain pressed me for my reasons, which I gave him, and will give you, for I have since had only too much occasion to remember them literally.

I said I had always had an instinctive dislike and dread of the law; that a man was good for little if he could not defend himself by any better weapons than the verdict of an ignorant jury, and a specious, sometimes lying, barrister's tongue.

The old clergyman, alarmed, "hoped I was not a duellist," at which I only smiled. It never occurred to me to take the trouble of denying any such ridiculous purpose. I knew not how when once the ball is set rolling against a man his lightest words are made to gather weight and meaning, his very looks are brought in judgment upon him. It is the way of the world.

You see I can moralize—a sign that I am recovering myself; I think, with the relief of telling all out to you.

"But," reasoned the chaplain, "when a man is innocent, why should he not declare it? Why sit tamely under calumny? It is unwise, nay, unsafe. You are almost a stranger here, and we in the provinces like to find out everything about everybody. If I might suggest, and he apologized for what he called a friendly impertinence, "why not be a little less modest, a little more free with your personal history, which must have been a remarkable one, and let some friend, in a quiet, delicate way, see that the truth is as widely disseminated as the slander? If you will trust me—"

"I could not choose a better pleader," said I, gratefully: "but it is impossible.

"How so? A man like you can have nothing to dread—nothing to conceal."

I said again, all I could find words to say:

"It is impossible."

He urged no more; but I soon felt painfully certain that some involuntary distrust lurked in the good man's mind, and though he continued the same to me in all our business relations, a cloud came over our private intercourse, which was never removed.

About this time another incident occurred. You know I have a little friend here, the governor's motherless daughter, a bonnie wee child whom I met in the garden sometimes, where we water her flowers, and have long chats about birds, beasts, and the wonders of foreign parts. I even have given a present or two to this, my child sweetheart. Are you jealous? She has your eyes!

Well one day when I called Lucy, she came to me slowly, with a shy, sad countenance, and I found out after some pains that her nurse had desired her not to play with Dr. Urquhart again, because he was "naughty."

Dr. Urquhart smilingly inquired what he had done?

The child hesitated.

"Nurse does not exactly know, but she says it is something very wicked—as wicked as anything done by the bad people in here. But it isn't true—tell Lucy it isn't true."

It was hard to put aside the little loving face, but I saw the nurse coming. Not an ill-meaning body, but one whom I knew for as arrant a gossip as any about this place. Her comments on myself troubled me little; I concluded it was but the result of that newspaper tattle, against which I was gradually growing hardened; nevertheless, I thought it best just to say that I had heard with much surprise what she had been telling Miss Lucy.

"Children and fools speak truth," said the woman saucily.

"Then you ought to be more careful that children always hear the truth." And I insisted upon her repeating all the ridiculous tales she had been circulating about me.

When, with difficulty, I got the facts out of her, they were not what I expected, but these: Somebody in the jail had told somebody else how Dr. Urquhart had been in former days such an abandoned character, that still his evil conscience always drove him among criminals; made him haunt jails, prisons, reformatories, and take an interest in every form of vice. Nay, people had heard me say—and truly they might!—apropos to a late hanging at Kirkdale; that I had sympathy even for a murderer.

I listened—you will imagine how—to all this.

For an instant I was overwhelmed; I felt as if God had forsaken me, as if His mercy were a delusion. His punishment never-ending. His justice never satisfied. Despite my promise to your father, I might in some fatal way have betrayed myself on the spot, had I not heard the little girl saying, with a sob, almost—poor pet!

"For shame, nurse! Dr. Urquhart isn't a wicked man; Lucy loves him."

And I remember you.

"My child," I said, in a whisper, "we are all wicked, but we may all be forgiven; I trust God has forgiven me;" and I walked away without another word.

But since then I have thought it best to avoid the governor's garden; and it has cost me more pain than you would imagine—the contriving always to pass at a distance, so as to get only a nod and smile, which cannot harm her, from little Lucy.

About this time—it might be two or three days after, for it was work-hours I little noticed how time passed—an unpleasant circumstance occurred with Lucy's father.

I must have told you of him, for he is a remarkable man; young still, and well-looking, with manners like his features, hard as iron, though delicate and polished as steel. He seems born to be the ruler of criminals. Brutality, meanness, or injustice would be impossible to him. Likewise, another thing—mercy.

It was on this point that he and I had our difference.

We met in the east ward, when he pointed out to me in passing that announcement on the centre slate of a boy to be whipped.

It seems ridiculous, but the words sickened me. For I knew the boy knew also his offence; and that such a punishment, would be the first step towards converting a mere headstrong lad, sent here for street row, into a hardened ruffian. I pleaded for him strongly.

The governor listened—polite, but inflexible.

I went on speaking with unusual warmth; you know my horror of these floggings; you know, too, my opinion on the system of punishment, viewed as a mere punishment, with no ulterior aim at reformation. I believe it is only blinded human interpretation of things spiritual, which transforms the immutable law that evil is its own avenger, and that the wrath of God against sin must be as everlasting as his pity for sinners—into the doctrine of eternal torment, the worm that dieth not, and the fire that is never quenched.

The governor heard all that I had to say; then, politely always, regretted that it was impossible either to grant my request, or release me from my duty.

"There is, however, one course which I may suggest to Dr. Urquhart, considering his very peculiar opinions, and his known sympathy with criminals. Do you not think it might be more agreeable to you to resign?"

The words were nothing; but as he fixed on me that keen eye, which, he boasts, can without need of judge or jury detect a man's guilt or innocence, I felt convinced that with him too my good name was gone. It was no longer a battle with mere side-winds of slander—the storm had begun.

I might have sunk like a coward, if there were only myself to be crushed under it. As it was, I looked the governor in the face.

"Have you any special motive for this suggestion?"

"I have stated it."

"Then allow me to state that, whatever my opinions may be, so long as my services are useful here, I have not the wish or intention of resigning."

He bowed and we parted.

The boy was flogged. I said to him, "Bear it; better confess"—as he had done—"confess and be punished now. It will then be over," and I hope, by the grateful look of the poor young wretch, that with the pain, the punishment was over; so that it did not harden him, but, with a little help, he may become an honest lad yet.

When I left him in his cell, I rather envied him.

It now became necessary to look to my own affairs, and discover, if possible, all that report alleged against me—false or true—as well as the originator of these statements. Him I at last by the merest chance discovered.

My little lady, with her quick, warm feelings, must learn to forgive, as I have long ago forgiven. It was Mr. Francis Charteris.

I believe still, it was less from malice premeditated, than from a mere propensity for talking, and that looseness and inaccuracy of speech which he always had—that, when idling away his time, in the debtors' ward of this jail, repeated, probably with extempore additions, what your sister Penelope once mentioned to him concerning me—namely, that I was one about to be married, when the lady's father discovered a crime I had committed in my youth—whether dishonesty, duelling, seduction, or what, he could not say—but it was something absolutely unpardonable by an honorable man, and the marriage was forbidden. On this, all the reports against me had been founded.

After hearing this story, which one of the turnkeys, whose children were down with fever, told me while watching by their bedside, begging my pardon for doing it, honest man I went, and took a long walk down the Waterloo shore, to calm myself, and consider my position. For I knew it was in vain to struggle any more. I was ruined.

An innocent man might have fought on; how any one, with a clear conscience, is ever conquered by slander, or afraid of it, I cannot understand.

With a clear heart, and truth on his tongue, a man ought to be as bold as a lion. I should have been; but—My love, you know.

This Waterloo shore has always been a favorite haunt of mine. You once said, you should like to live by the sea; and I have never heard the ripple of the tide without thinking of you—never seen the little children playing about and digging on the sands without thinking—God help me! if I keep silence, it is not because one does not feel the knife. "Who would have thought the old man had so much blood in him?"

Let me stop. I will not pain you, my love, more than I can help. Besides, as I told you, the worst of my suffering is ended.

I believe I must have sat till nightfall among the sandhills by the shore. For years to come, if I live so long, I shall see as clear and also as unreal as a painting—that level sea-line, along which moved the small white-sailed ships, and steamers, with their humming paddle-wheels and their trailing thread of smoke, dropping one after the other into what some one of your favorite poets, my child, calls "the under world."

There seemed a great weight on my head—a weariness all over me. I did not feed anything much, after the first half hour; except a longing to see your little face once again, and then, if it were God's will, to lie down and die, somewhere near you, quietly, giving no trouble to you or to any one any more.

You will remember, I was not in my usual health, and had had extra hard work, for some little time.

Well, my dear one, this is enough about myself, that day. I went home and fell into harness as usual; there was nothing to be done but to wait till the storm burst, and I wished for many reasons to retain my situation at the jail as long as possible.

But it was a difficult time: rising to each day's duty, with total uncertainty of what might happen before night; and, duty done, struggling against a depression such as I have not known for these many years. In the midst of it came your dear letters—cheerful, loving contented—unwontedly contented they seemed to be. I could not answer them, for to have written in a false strain was impossible, and to tell you everything seemed equally so. I said to myself, "No, poor child! she will learn all soon enough. Let her be happy while she can."

I was wrong. I was unjust to you and to myself. From the hour you gave me your love, I owed it to us both to give you my full confidence, as much as if you were my life. I had no right to wound your dear heart by keeping back from it any sorrows of mine.

Forgive me, and forgive something else, which I now see was crueler still. Theodora, I wished many times that you were free; that I had never bound you to my hard lot, but kept silence and left you to forget me—to love some one else better than me—pardon, pardon!

For I was once actually on the point of writing to you, saying this, when I remembered something you had said long ago—that whether or no we were ever married you were glad we had been betrothed—that so far we might always be a help and comfort to one another.

For, you added, when I was blaming myself, and talking as men do of "honor" and "pride"—to have left you free when you were not free, would have given you all the cares of love, with neither its rights, nor duties, nor sweetness; and this might—you did not say it would—but it might have broken your heart.

So in my bitter-strait I trusted that pure heart, whose instinct, I felt, was truer than all my wisdom. I did not write the letter, but at the same time, as I have told you, it was impossible to write any other, even a single line.

Your last letter came. Happily, it reached me the very morning when the crisis which I had been for weeks expecting occurred. I had it in my pocket all the time I stood in that room before those men. But I had best relate from the beginning.

You are aware that any complaints respecting the officers of this jail, or questions concerning its internal management, are laid before the visiting justices. Thus, after the governor's hint on every board-day I prepared myself for a summons. At length it came, ostensibly for a very trivial matter—some relaxation of discipline which I had ordered and been counteracted in. But my conduct had never been called into question before, and I knew what it implied. The very form of it—"The governor's compliments, and he requests Dr. Urquhart's attendance in the board-room," instead of "Doctor, come up to my room and talk the matter over"—was sufficient indication of what was impending.

I found present, besides the governor and chaplain, an unusual number of magistrates. These, who are not always or necessarily gentlemen, stared at me as if I had been some strange beast, all the time I was giving my brief evidence about the breach of regulations complained of. It was soon settled, for I had been careful to keep within the letter of the law, and I made a motion to take leave, when one of the justices requested me to "wait a bit—they hadn't done with me yet."

These sort of men, low-born—not that that is any disgrace, but a glory, unless accompanied with a low nature—and "dressed in a low brief authority," one often meets with here; I was well used to deal with them, and to their dealings with the likes of me—a poor professional, whose annual income was little more than they would expend carelessly upon one of their splendid "feeds." But, until lately among my co-mates in office, I had been both friendly and popular.

Now they took their tone from the rest, and even the governor and the chaplain preserved toward me a rigid silence. You do not know our old mess phrase of being "sent to Coventry." If you did you would understand how those ten minutes that, according to my orders, I sat aloof from the board while other business was proceeding were not the pleasantest possible.

Men among men grow hard, are liable to evil passions, fits of pride, hatred, and revenge, that are probably unfamiliar to you sweet women. It was well I had your letter in my pocket. Besides, there is something in coming to the crisis is of a great misfortune, which braces up a man's nerves to meet it. So when the governor, turning round in his always courteous tone, said the board requested a few minutes' conversation with me, I could rise and stand steady to meet whatever shape of hard fortune was before me.

The governor, like most men of non-intrusive but iron will, who have both temper and feelings perfectly under control, has a very strong influence where ever he goes. It was he who opened and carried on with me what he politely termed a "little conversation."

"These difficulties," continued he, after referring to the dismissed complaint of my straining the rules of the jail to their utmost limit, from my "sympathy with criminals," "these unpleasantnesses, Dr. Urquhart, will, I fear, be always recurring. Have you reconsidered the hint I gave to you some little time ago?"

I answered that it was rarely my habit to take hints; I preferred having all things spoken right out.

"Such candor is creditable, though not always possible or advisable. I should have been exceedingly glad if you had saved me from what I feel to be my duty, however painful—namely, to repeat my private suggestion publicly."

"You mean that I should tender my resignation?"

"Excuse my saying—and the board agrees with me—that such a step seems desirable, for many reasons."

"Dr. Urquhart must surely be aware of them."

A man is not bound to rush madly into his ruin. I determined to die fighting, at any rate. I said addressing the board:

"Gentlemen, I am not aware of having conducted myself in any manner that unfits me for being surgeon to this jail. Any slight differences between the governor and myself are mere matters of opinion, which signify little so long as neither trenches on the other's authority, and both are amenable to the regulations of the establishment. If you have any cause of complaint against me, state it, reprove or dismiss me—but no one has a right, without just grounds, to request me to resign."

The governor, even through that handsome, impassive, masked countenance of his, looked annoyed. For an instant his hard manner dropped into the old friendliness, even as when, in the first few weeks after his wife's death, he and I used to sit playing chess together of evenings, with little Lucy between us.

"Doctor, why will you misapprehend me? It is for your own sake that I wish, before the matter is opened up farther, you should resign your post."

After a moment's consideration I requested him to explain himself more clearly.

One of the magistrates here cried out with a laugh, "Come, come, doctor; no shamming. You are the town's talk." And another suggested that "Brown had better mind his P's and Q's, there were such things as actions for libel."

I replied if the gentlemen referred to the scurrilous allegations against me which had appeared in print, that they might speak without fear; I had no intention of prosecuting for libel. This silenced them a moment, and then the first magistrate said:

"Give a dog a bad name and hang him, but surely, doctor, you can't be aware what a very bad name you have somehow got in these parts, or you would have been more eager to draw your neck out of the halter in time. Why, bless my soul, man alive, do you know what folk make you out to be?"

"This discussion is interrupting foreign to the matter in hand," interposed the governor, who, I felt, had never taken his sharp eyes off me. "The question is merely this: that any officer in authority among criminals must of necessity bear an unblemished character. Neither in the establishment nor out of it ought people to be able to say of him—that—"

"Say it out, sir."

"That there were circumstances in his former life which would not bear inspection, and that merely accident drew the line between himself and the convicts he was bent on reforming."

"Hear, hear!" said a justice, who had long thwarted me in my schemes, having a conscientious objection to reforming everybody—including himself.

"Nay," said the governor. "I did not give this as a fact—only a report. These reports have come to me such a height, that they must either be proved or denied. And therefore I wished, before any public inquiry became necessary—unless, indeed, Dr. Urquhart will consent to the explanatory self-defence which he definitely refused Mr. Thorley—"

And they both looked anxiously at me—these two whom I have always found honest, honorable men, and who were once my friends, or at least friendly associates—the chaplain and the governor.

Theodora, no one need ever dread lest the doctrine of total forgiveness should make guilt no burden, and repentance pleasant and easy. There are some consequences of sin which must haunt a sinner to the day of his death.

It might have been one minute or ten that I stood motionless, feeling as if I could have given up life and all its blessings without a pang, to be able to face those men with a clear conscience, and say, "It is all a lie. I am innocent."

Then, for my salvation, came the thought—it seemed spoken into my ear, the voice half like Dallas's, half like yours—"If God hath forgiven me, why be afraid of men?" And I said, humbly enough—yet, I trust, without any cringing or abjectness of fear—that I wished, before taking any further step, to hear the whole of the statements current against myself, and how far they were credited by the gentlemen before me.

The accusations I was informed, stood thus: floating rumors having accumulated into a substantive form—terribly near the truth! that I had, in my youth, either here or abroad, committed some crime which rendered me amenable to the laws of my country; and though, by some trick of law, I had escaped justice, the ban upon me was such, that only by the wondrous life which I myself had vowed to having led, could I escape the fury of public opinion. The impression against me was now so strong, in the jail and out of it, that the governor would not engage even by his own authority to preserve mine unless I furnished him with an immediate, explicit denial to this charge. Which, he was pleased to say, if it had not been so widely spread, so mysterious in its origin, and so oddly corroborated by accidental admissions on my part, he should have treated as simply ridiculous.

"And now," he added, apparently reassured by the composure with which I had listened, "I have only to ask you to deny it, point-blank, before the board and myself."

I asked, what must I deny?

"Why, if the accusations were not too ludicrous to express, just state that you are neither forger, burglar, nor body-snatcher; that you never either killed a man (unprofessionally, of course, if we may be excused the joke) for professional purposes, or shot him irregularly in a duel, or waylaid him with pistols behind a hedge."

"Am I supposed to have committed all these crimes?"

"Such is the gullibility of the public; you really are," said the governor, smiling.

On the indignation impulse of the moment, I denied them each and all, upon my honor as a gentleman; until, feeling the old chaplain cordially grip my hand, I was roused into a full consciousness of where and what I was, and what, either by word or implication, I had been asserting.

Somebody said, "Give him air; no wonder he feels it, poor fellow!" And so, after a little, I gathered up my faculties, and saw the board sitting waiting; and the governor with pen and ink before him.

"This painful business will soon be settled, Doctor," said he, cheerfully. "Just answer a question or two, which, as a matter of form, I will put in writing, and then, if you will do me the honor to dine with me to-day, we can consult how best to make the statement public; without, of course, compromising your dignity. To begin. You hereby made declaration that you were never in jail never tried at any assizes; have never committed any act which rendered you liable to prosecution under our criminal law?"

He ran the words off carelessly, and paused for my answer. When none came, he looked up, his own penetrating, suspicious look.

"Perhaps I did not express myself clearly? And he slightly changed the form of the sentence.

"Now, what shall I write, Dr. Urquhart?"

If I could then and there have made full confession, and gone out of that room a prisoner it would have been, so far as regarded myself, a relief unutterable, a mercy beyond all mercies. But I had to remember your father.

The governor laid down his pen.

"This looks, to say the least, rather strange."

"Doctor," cried one of the board, "you must be mad to hold your tongue and let your character go to the dogs in this way."

Petty Worriers.

What a blessed thing it is that we can forget! To-day's troubles look large, but a week hence that will be forgotten and buried out of sight. Says a writer: If you would keep a book, and daily put down the things that worry you, and see what becomes of them, it would be a benefit to you. You allow a fly to settle on you, and plague you, and you lose your temper, (or rather get it), for when men are surcharged with temper they are said to have lost it; and you justify yourselves for being thrown off your balance by causes which you do not trace out. But if you could see what it was that threw you off your balance before breakfast, and put it down in a little book, and follow it up, and follow it out, and ascertain what becomes of it, you would see what a fool you were in the matter. The art of forgetting is a blessed art, but the art of overlooking is quite as important. And if we should take time to write down the origin, progress and outcome of a few of our troubles, it would make us so ashamed of the fuss we make over them, that we should be glad to drop such things, and bury them at once in eternal forgetfulness. Life is too short to be worn out in petty worries, frettings, hatreds and vexations.

Newspaper Laws.

We call the special attention of postmasters and subscribers to the following synopsis of the newspaper laws:

1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning a paper does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publishers for payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrearsages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether it be taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made.

3. Any person who takes a paper from the post-office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the paper.

4. If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post-office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper and periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncollected for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

ART IN ONTARIO.

Savages paint upon their naked bodies; the barbarian cares to decorate his person only. The more civilized are supposed to look to comfort mainly in covering their bodies, but take full pleasure in adorning their abodes, decorating the walls of their houses, and beautifying their gardens.

During the past quarter of a century art has made great progress in Canada. Indeed, before the last decade, our artists were few and raw. Cheap wood cuts, an occasional steel engraving, and a few glaring daubs, chiefly served as ornaments to the Canadian parlor.

The Ontario Society of artists is not an old institution, but since its organization it has done good work. It has fostered a taste for art not only amongst those who handle the brush, but also amongst the general public.

The first of the revised New-Testaments arrived at Ottawa on Monday of last week. A very hopeful letter from Sir John, on matters and things, appeared in the Mail on Tuesday.

Another full-fledged Canuck knight has been added to the list. The Marquis of Lorne is gaining an unenviable reputation as a builder of tinsel titles.

A ridiculous Bill has been introduced in the Michigan Legislature, imposing a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for a year on any person publishing an account of a murder or hanging.

THE "NEW BROOM."

Some people who can find no other argument against the straightforward position which we have taken in the railway subject, apply to us the epithet of the "new broom," which proverbially sweeps cleanly.

But admitting the assertion to be true that we are a "new broom," and accepting (with all due modesty) the delicate compliment conveyed in the statement that we sweep cleanly; and even permitting, for the nonce, the prediction sought to be made by the application of the "new broom" to us,—that we will soon be worn out in the good work of endeavoring to lift Goderich out of the slough of despond,—to go by unchallenged, where is that man so great a fool as to allow his new broom to wear out before he makes use of it?

True, if old brooms were in high commercial demand, if filth-begirt and spiler-travelled houses were eagerly sought, if ruined and depopulated towns were a pleasant thing to contemplate, then, say we, speak contemptuously of the "new broom"; but, until these things be the desiderata, we will beg to differ with the sages who, without understanding the proper application, pin their faith to old saws, for lack of common sense to frame ideas for themselves.

There is a class of people in the community whose prosperity we regard with alarm, and whose field of operations it has been and shall be our particular care to lessen, and if possible entirely remove. And this class of people is that one whose mortgage percentages are increasing just in proportion to the inability of their mortgagors to pay; a class which fattens and grows rosy upon the decay of the town, and whose conscience is bounded in only by the extremest limits of statutory law.

But there is a "new broom" at present in course of evolution, which will be produced some time about New Year's Day next, and which—being a "new" one—will do such an amount of clean sweeping as will cause some of these gentlemen to think that an African simoon in all its vigor had been imported here for their special benefit.

—The Watford Advertiser man says, "It's hard on the butter,"—meaning the heat of course. Well, our impression is that "It's soft on the butter." Send us a little Watford weather.

—The first of the revised New-Testaments arrived at Ottawa on Monday of last week. A very hopeful letter from Sir John, on matters and things, appeared in the Mail on Tuesday.

Another full-fledged Canuck knight has been added to the list. The Marquis of Lorne is gaining an unenviable reputation as a builder of tinsel titles. The thing is a humbug, pure and simple, and the annual displays of investiture are as absurd as the granting of diplomas by Bogus Buchanan, of Philadelphia.

A ridiculous Bill has been introduced in the Michigan Legislature, imposing a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for a year on any person publishing an account of a murder or hanging. We wonder if the gentleman who is introducing the measure is impelled by purely personal motives. Can it be that he meditates committing murder, and accepting the legal consequences, and yet would not like the world outside of his own section to learn that he had done the deed, and been hanged for the offence.

—Smith and Brown are not uncommon names. We usually find them side by side with Jones and Robinson; and the quartette is often mentioned in one breath. Under these circumstances one would think that amicable relations would exist between them, especially the former two. But such is not the case. Smith and Brown are Canadian litterateurs, of no mean order, but this does not hinder them from being eternally at loggerheads.

Notwithstanding this denunciation on the part of Brown's paper, a goodly number of newspaper men will touch glasses at Smith's banquet, and drink to the health and safe return of one of the best writers in Canada—for it is in token of his services to Canadian journalism that the banquet is tendered.

"The humming-bird is around"—Watford Advertiser. And so is the woman with the print dress, and the organ grinder, and the hot weather, and the small boy who resides in the water about eight hours out of ten, and the mosquito, and the girl that wants you to feed her on ice-cream, and a hundred other evidences of summer.

—While we pay but little heed to omens, we do not wonder that the Queen, who is said to be rather superstitious, feels much moved at the loss of the Victoria. It seems but a short time ago since the Princess Alice, laden with excursionists, was sunk in the Thames, and not long after Her Majesty's second daughter, in whose honor the ill-fated steamer had been named, died of an illness caught by attending her sick child. Does Her Majesty feel in the loss of the Victoria, named after herself, a presentiment that her time, too, is at hand? The coincidence is a strange one, but we trust the analogy will not be completed.

—The strike among the cotton-spinners of Cornwall is at an end. All hands have returned to work, and we learn that the utmost cordiality prevails. In these things are made cordial after the strike, but if our recollection serves us, and we think it does, when we were engaged on the big "strike" of 1872, we had the "cordial" business during the strike, for want of something better to do, and when the trouble was over, had the extreme felicity—and it was extreme in every sense of the word—of settling the score. They do things different ly down at Cornwall. Aunty Scott must have a summer resort somewhere in this locality.

—They have a haunted house in Montreal, we are told, and the spirits, have been having a high old time lately. The report does not give a full description of the house, but as we do not believe in the old-fashioned ghosts, as described to us in our nursery days, and as we are also loth to discredit the authenticity of the story from Montreal, we will meet the matter half-way, by taking it for granted that the haunted place is a saloon, that the "spirits" are there with the knowledge and consent of the License Inspector, and that said "spirits" are haunted by droughty mortals—who thus invert the time-honored theory of our fathers, that the spirits haunted the mortals.

—Rumor in high English circles hath it that Lord Rowton, erstwhile Mr. Montague Corry, formerly confidential secretary of Earl Beaconsfield, will shortly wed the Princess Beatrice. The Princess might go farther and fare worse. Lord Rowton is a clever man, and having had the advantage of being trained by one of the greatest political strategists, may yet make his mark as a statesman. He is incomparably superior to a petty German Prince with a lengthy pedigree, a long name and an empty purse. And when they are wed, it is to be hoped Beatrice will faithfully perform her marital vow to "love, honor and obey" her liege lord, and not be galavanting over creation when she ought to be at home attending to her wifely duties.

—The Marquis of Lorne, it is now said, will, after his Manitoba tour, close his career as Governor-General of Canada. If this be so, we have doubtless seen the last of the Princess Louise. Princesses of the blood royal were not to be found in this colony, and the daughter of the British Queen doubtless must have felt lonesome hedged about as she was by barriers of court etiquette from the more social enjoyments of Canadian life.

Customs Examination of Baggage.

DEAR SIR,—I have taken this communication from the Toronto Mail. It is from Consul Howells, and its notes agree with my views entirely; and, as I am placed in the same position from almost all parties taking baggage to the United States, I would ask of you to publish the article in your paper, as endorsed by me fully. Respectfully, JOHN HERRARD, U. S. Commercial Agent, Goderich, June 1st, 1881.

To the Editor of The Mail. Sir,—With your permission I would call attention to a common mistake, which often gives others as well as myself unnecessary trouble. It is supposed by many that, as consul of the United States, I have authority to direct United States collectors of customs to omit the examination of the baggage of persons crossing our frontier, or that they will do so at my request. Therefore I am frequently called upon to furnish travellers with letters to collectors, requesting them to favor the bearers of such letters. Persons making this request of me ought to reflect that collectors are presumed to be fair men, competent to discharge their duties. Correct and well-mannered people will usually find our custom house officers accommodating and obliging to the limit of their duties.

Ben Miller. MILL RUNNING.—The Ben Miller flour- ing mill is running once more, and bids fair to do a good business during the ensuing season under the management of Mr. Pfammer.

Tarnberry. We are under the painful necessity of chronicling the removal of one of our oldest residents by the hand of death. On Wednesday last the wife of our re- spected townsman, Mr. Edward Tind- all, succumbed to that fatal disease— consumption. Deceased was a sister of Messrs. McClymont Bros., of Wingham, and daughter of Mr. McClymont, of Stanley.

Milburn. FIRST AGAIN.—Mr. K. Bean, is at the head of his neighbors by shearing his fine black flock of sheep on Monday last.

Quorra.—This game is becoming the rage nowadays. Two of our players have been challenged by two Garbrade cham- pions, to a contest, which has been ac- cepted. The game will take place at Milburn, at four p. m. on Satur- day.

Aburn. The band boys realized about $30 on the 24th of May.

Mr. Andrew Arthur fell from a wag- on on Friday last, while drawing out manure, and broke his arm. Dr. Hutchi- son was called and reduced the fracture. It will be some time before he will be able to get to work again.

Messrs. S. and C. Scott have sent 125 pigs to Bluevale to use up the whey from the cheese factory there which they have bought. Mr. C. Scott is there looking after them.

Dr. Hutchison has now settled in our midst, and has his office in Hilliard's block. The Doctor, will, we believe, do a good business, being well known and extremely popular.

Goderich Township. The following is the result of the monthly examination of pupils attend- ing school S. S. No. 1 Goderich Town- ship, for May.

Senr. Fourth class, 1st, Mary Rusk; 2nd, Alice Andrews. Jun. division, 1st, Harriet Andrews; 2nd, Agnes Orr. Third class, 1st, Debora Bell; 2nd, Min- nie Breckenridge. Second class, 1st, Willie Munroe; 2nd, Claud Munroe.

SCHOOL PICNIC.—The annual picnic in connection with the above school will be held in Mr. Polley's grove on Friday afternoon, June 10th. Friends are cordially invited to come, bringing baskets with them.

A few of the members in connection with St. Stephen's church held a picnic in the garden of Mr. Hart, on Tuesday last, which took the shape of a formal farewell to the Rev. Mr. Miller, former- ly incumbent of the church. Thanks to the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Hart a most enjoyable time was spent. Boating and other recreations were indulged in, and full justice was done to the sumptuous repast served by the ladies on the oc- casion.

Mr. Miller, who is retiring from the incumbency of St. Stephen's church, goes to reside in Hamilton, and is suc- ceeded by Rev. Mr. Matthews, formerly of Clinton.

Nile. CROPS.—The crops in this vicinity look very well. We need more rain.

SICKNESS.—We are glad to see Mr. May around again after his severe ill- ness.

PIC-NIC.—A union picnic will be held at the Point Farm, on the 10th, on Satur- day 4th June, by public schools Nos. 1, 6 and 11, Ashfield, and No. 5, Colborne.

EDUCATIONAL.—The following are the names of the pupils of the Nile school who obtained the highest marks for de- portment, punctuality and good recita- tions for May. IV class—1 E. Kerr, 2 T. Hogan, 3 T. Sheppard, 4 E. Mallowgh, 5 S. Smith. III sen.—1 D. Mellwain, 2 S. Black, 3 S. Baillie, 4 J. McKnight, 5 E. Garner, 6 K. Drew, 7 L. Dodd; III jr.—1 E. Girvin, 2 M. Hogan, 3 R. Black, 4 E. Stewart, 5 H. Ryan, 6 M. Snow, 7 G. Jackman, 8 C. Elliott, 9 W. Glenn, 10 R. Echlin, 11 M. Stewart; Junior Department, Miss Ralph, teacher. II class—1 W. McVittie, 2 W. Carter, 3 G. Childow, 4 A. Bunting, 5 E. Bunt- ing; I sen.—1 R. Kerr, 2 A. Mellwain, 3 F. Jackson, 4 M. Baillie, 5 R. Hutch- ins, 6 F. Glenn, 7 C. Young; I jr.—1 A. Kerr, 2 W. Drew, 3 F. McNee, 4 A. Mc- Knight, 5 J. Childow.

Leeburn. A large garter snake over four feet, ten inches long was killed in this neigh- borhood last week.

PERSONAL.—Mr. James Strachan, of Leeburn took part in the quoting match between Goderich and Colborne last week.

BAH! BAH!—There was a great rush of the natives of Milburn and Leeburn down Butternut Row, with their flocks of sheep to the washing and shearing last week.

DOING THEIR DUTY.—Our township fathers led by their 510 lb team, were in- specting roads, bridges, culverts, ditches &c., on the 27th inst., and letting jobs for repairing them.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Mr. Jas. Taylor raised a driving shed on Thursday, May 26th. On Saturday, May 28th, Mr. Foley had a large stable and driving shed over 60 feet in length raised. At Fol- ey's the raising the captains were Robert Dulmage and William Rome, the latter's side being the winner.

TEMPERANCE PICNIC.—Leeburn Lodge on the 24th of May, on the Butternut Row, so well known to lovers of nature and Leeburn cavaliers. A large number of friends of the Lodge were present. Ball playing and quots were all the go. Swings were also erected in the grove, and a few of the bachelors made them- selves useful by swinging the ladies— which was hard on their hands although not on their hearts. A sumptuous re- past was served by the ladies at four o'clock, under the shade of the tall beeches, the craving of thirst being cooled off by lemonade and coffee. The gathering broke up at seven o'clock in the evening, all being well pleased with the afternoon's enjoyment.

Bayfield. A BAD BITE.—Our respected Recty, Mr. John Eason, had a slight encounter with a member of the canine species a few days ago and seems to have got de- cidedly the worst of it. He was passing along the streets in his usual quiet way when a neighbor's dog sprang at him and seized him by the leg, inflicting a severe wound. He had the wound can- terized, and although it was intensely painful for a few days and laid him up, he is now recovering and is able to at- tend to his ordinary duties as usual.

FISHING.—There have been more fish caught from the river and harbor here, this spring, than was ever known before in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. For some weeks after the fishing season came in, they could be pulled out almost as fast as the line could be thrown in, and scarcely a day passed round but fisherman would be here from Seaforth, Clinton, and other neighboring towns, and mostly all went away with bags full. The fish mostly caught were bass and perch. On one or two occasions fish weighing from two to four pounds were pulled out. The season for this sort of thing is now pretty well over, however as the fish have mostly gone out into the lake, and even the most ardent fisher- man who can now consider the job "sport," must have the patience of Job or something more.

A BAD ACCIDENT.—One day last week Mr. Paul Cleave, Councilor, of this village, met with a very dangerous and painful accident. He was driving down the hill to Thompson's mill with a span of horses and riding upon a wagon without any box, but just sitting on a spring board resting on the front and rear bolsters of the wagon, as is very common. When about half way down the hill, which is very steep and rendered doubly dangerous by being lined on either side with saw logs, one of his lines broke, and the horses started off at a break-neck pace. Mr. Cleave was thrown forward on to the front of the wagon and got his feet fastened in the "hounds" and with his head and body hanging down backwards, he was dragged in this way over the road for a considerable distance. Fortunately for him, the tongue of the wagon got broken, thus relieving the horses from it. They ran to the mill, where they were stopped by the miller, who at once went in search of Mr. Cleave. He found him lying by the roadside in a pool of mud, where he had been thrown, and unconscious. He was at once con- veyed to the house and medical aid sum- moned. His injuries were found to be serious but not dangerous. There was a long deep wound on the calf of his leg and several bad cuts on his head, and he is otherwise bruised and injured. We are glad to learn that although he is not yet out of danger, there are good hopes of his ultimate recovery. —[Expo- sitor.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.—Among the principal attractions were the rowing and tug races and the tug of war. The yacht race was very closely contested, there being only two seconds between the first and second boats. The tug race elicited much amusement, as the boys and their tubs were sure to topple over before getting far, and then they would have to return to shore and get a fresh start. The tug of war after a very hard struggle was won by the fishermen, who, however, had on their end an extra man, and who came to their work with their hands well seasoned with alum and rosin, in which devices their opponents were not so well skilled, and had to supply muscle for artifice. The following is a list of the successful com- petitors: Best calisthumpians—1st, J. Ferguson; 2nd, Alex. Shaw. Running hop step and jump—1st, H. Pollock; 2nd, J. King. Standing hop step and jump—1st, H. Pollock; 2nd, J. King. Standing jump—1st, H. Pollock; 2nd, G. Looby. Putting the stone—1st, R. Armstrong; 2nd, G. Looby. Men's foot race—1st, H. Pollock; 2nd, J. King. Hurdle race—1st, H. Pollock; 2nd, J. King. Tub race—1st, A. Elliott; 2nd, J. Erwin. Rowing race—1st, J. Falkenter; 2nd, J. Ferguson. Trotting horse race—1st, R. Pollock; 2nd, S. Eggleston. Running horse race—1st, R. Erwin; 2nd, R. Dalgatty. Yacht race—1st, C. Dresser; 2nd, H. Dresser. Tug of war—the fishermen. This concluded the sports of the day. Every-thing passed off harmoniously and pleasantly, and all present seemed to be satisfied that they had spent a very pleasant day in Bayfield.

A handsome five year old robin, be- longing to Rev. P. J. O'Shea, was stolen from the residence of the rev. gentleman Seaforth, during his absence at church on Wednesday last week.

Mr. Moses Springer, who has ever since Confederation represented the North Riding of Waterloo in the Ontario Legislature, has resigned his seat with a view to accepting the Shrievalty of the county.

The Detroit, Mackinac, and Marquette Railroad Company NOW OFFER FOR SALE OVER 1,300,000 ACRES

Of the Choicest FARMING and TIMBERED LANDS in the Northern Peninsula of Michigan,

Destined to be the best wheat-producing region in the world. These lands are situated in the counties of Chippewa, Mackinac, Schoolcraft, and Marquette, and embrace many thousands of acres of the best agricultural lands in the State of Michigan.

Among those in the counties of Chippewa and Mackinac are tracts of what are known as the "burnt or cleared" lands. These lands offer many advantages over the prairie lands of the West, as the timber lands adjoining insure a supply of fuel at little cost. The soil being a rich clay loam of great depth. The timber remaining upon the land being generally sufficient for the settlers' use in building and fencing.

These partially cleared lands are now offered at the low price of from $4 to $4.50 per acre, one-fourth cash, and the remainder at purchasers' option, at any time within nine years, with interest payable annually at seven per cent.

Roads are being opened through these lands, and no better opportunity has ever been offered to men of small means to secure a good farm, and intending purchasers will be wise by availing themselves of this chance before prices advance, as the lands are being rapidly taken and settled upon.

The lands more immediately on the line of the Detroit, Mackinac, and Marquette Railroad from the Straits of Mackinac to Marquette are more heavily timbered, and are almost un- versally good agricultural lands, leaving splendid farms when the timber is removed.

The iron and lumber interests of the upper peninsula are of such magnitude as to call for all the charcoal and lumber that the timber and wood upon the lands will produce—this will enable the settler to make good wages while clearing the land.

Lumber Mills and Charcoal Pits will be built at various points along the line, and Furnaces are now being erected along the line of the road at Point St. Ignace.

The great demand and good prices for labor, both in winter and summer, make these lands particularly desirable as homes for the poor man. The lands adjacent the Railroad are offered at prices from $5 upwards, according to location, value of timber, etc. The lands are at your very door, and are being rapidly settled by Canadians.

For pamphlets, maps and other information, address, W. O. STRONG, Land Commissioner, 30 Newberry and McMillan Building, Detroit, Michigan.

The Poet's Corner.

In the Last Few. She sits, bent o'er with wrinkled face. Poor and forlornly old, no grace...

The Poet and the Editor.

While Col. Bangs, editor of the Argus, was sitting in his office one day, a man whose brow was clothed with thunder entered. Fiercely seizing a chair, he slammed his hat on the table, hurled his umbrella on the floor, and sat down.

"I think you have." "Let me read you one more verse. I wrote: 'I'll tell the flying echoes as they roam along the hills. And I feel my soul awoken to the ecstasy that thrills.'"

Novels and Novel-Writing.

The author of "John Halifax" thus tells her experience and practice:—"How do you write a novel?" has been asked me hundreds of times; and as half the world now write novels, expecting the other half to read them, my answer, given in plain print, may not be quite useless.

The Art of Composition.

Even Gladstone has bemoaned the trouble his graceful periods cost him. "Every one," he once said bitterly, "writes better, because he writes faster than I."

A Salopian parish clerk seeing a woman crossing the church-yard with a bundle and a watering-can, followed her curious to know what her intentions might be, and discovered that she was a widow of a few months' standing.

When is wine like tobacco! When is a pipe.

"How do you like the Episcopal service?" asked Jones. "Never heard it," replied Fog. "It was quite early, and so I began reading the service. I didn't read far though before I found that it would never do for me. So I came out."

And People in Canada say about Scott's Emulsion Of Pure Cod Liver Oil WITH Hypophosphites of Lime & Soda AS A REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION AND WASTING DISEASES

Belleville, Ont., Nov. 5, 1880. Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE.—I have used and prescribed for some time Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, and find it an excellent preparation, agreeing well with the stomach, easily taken, and its continued use adding greatly to the strength and comfort of the patient.

Belleville, Ont., Nov. 19, 1880. Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE.—Dear Sirs: I feel it a duty I owe not only to you but to the community, to make the following statement: About three years ago my eldest daughter was taken with a severe cold, which settled on her lungs, and notwithstanding all that her medical attendant could do, she got worse and worse, and appeared to be in the last and hopeless stage of consumption.

Flora, Ont., July, 1880. This is to certify that my daughter has had Lung disease for some time, and very much reduced in flesh, and had not strength enough to walk across the street in all complaints incidental to Females. The Ointment is the only reliable remedy for Bad Legs, Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers, of however long standing.

THE GREATEST WONDER OF MODERN TIMES!—The Pills Purify the Blood, correct all disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels and are invaluable in all complaints incidental to Females. The Ointment is the only reliable remedy for Bad Legs, Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers, of however long standing.

Turnout.—Take a fine large white-fish, steam till done, take all the bones out, and sprinkle with salt and pepper; take a quart of milk, quarter pound of flour, a bunch of parsley, and three large slices of onion; put over the fire, and stir till it comes to a thick cream; take off two eggs, quarter pound of butter, strain through a sieve; put in a baking dish a layer of fish and a layer of sauce alternately until the dish is full, the sauce being on top; then sprinkle with bread crumbs; bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

SPANISH PICKLED ONIONS.—Cut onions into slices, put a layer of them into a jar, sprinkle with cayenne pepper and salt, then add another layer of onions and proceed as before. Proceed in this way until the jar is full, and pour cold vinegar over all till covered. They will be fit to use in a month.

RUSSIAN SALAD.—Cut up raw apples, and every kind of available vegetables into small slices, and lay them in a shallow dish, with salt, a little vinegar and pepper; and the best oil. The dressing must thoroughly saturate the mixture for twelve hours, and then this salad will be not only a new but a good dish.

INK SPOTS.—If soaked in warm milk before the ink has a chance to dry, the spot may usually be removed. If it has dried in rub table salt and drop lemon juice upon the salt. White soap diluted with vinegar is likewise a good thing to take out ink spots.

KISS PENDING.—Scald one quart of milk and dissolve six tablespoonfuls of corn starch in cold milk add the yolks of three eggs and stir into the scalding milk put the whole into a dish and let it stand and cool. Take the whites of the eggs, beat with one cup of sugar, put on top and set in the oven, to brown.

THE QUEEN OF PUFFINGS.—One pint of bread crumbs, pounded, one quart of milk, yolks of four eggs, one-half cup of sugar, and the grated rind of one lemon. For flavouring, take four tablespoonfuls of white sugar, whites of four eggs, and the juice of one lemon.

HAM BALLS.—Mince very fine cold, cooked ham—that which has been boiled is best, although fried ham will answer if not too salt; add an egg for each person, stir in a little flour and make into balls. Dip into an egg and then in grated bread and fry until of a nice brown.

POTATO STRIPS.—Pars, cut in long even strips; lay in cold water for one hour; dry by spreading them upon a towel and pressing another upon them. Fry to a light brown in salted lard. Shake off the fat in a hot colander. Line a deep dish with a napkin and put in the strips. They should not be crowded in frying, but each should be distinct and free from the rest.

VEAL CHOPS WITH TOMATO SAUCE.—Trim and flatten the chops. Dip in raw egg, then in cracker dust, and fry, rather slowly in lard and dripping. Open a can of tomatoes, and drain off the liquor into a sauce pan with a sliced onion and stew ten minutes. Strain out the onion, return the juice to the fire; thickened with a great spoonful of butter, worked up in a teaspoonful of corn starch; pepper and salt. Boil up sharply, and when you have laid the chops upon the dish, pour the sauce over them.

CANNING RHUBARB.—Permit me to tell your readers how to can rhubarb—pie-plant—as I have never seen it among the recipes given. Prepare sauce as for pies and pack into glass cans, covering with cold water, taking care to get all the air out, and then put the cover on as tightly as possible. I have just used some which kept nicely, being nearly as fresh as new, though not quite so sour, as some of the sourness soaks out in the water, which of course is not used. The pies are made the same as from fresh pie-plants.

Education in the Home.

There is a process of education constantly going on in every dwelling which care and thought can make an unspeakable advantage, and at the same time contribute to make a happy home. To keep objects of pure and high interest before the children's minds, in a natural and suitable way—to have them supplied with such books as will occupy and interest—to talk not so much to them as with them about objects—to take note of and encourage any advances they make, and to direct the flow not of a part, but of the whole of their life—physical, mental, moral, without apparent interference or violence; this happy art—to be sought, prayed for, labored for—unhappy home. The tastes of children are naturally simple. Your child's wooden gun cut with your own hand perhaps, and made a link of connection between your little boy and you, may be more to him, more influential over his character, more potent in binding his heart to you while living, his memory to you when dead, than a costly gift that you ordered at the store. And when you, living and loving, and natural in life before your children, and with them, bend the knee in their midst, and speak to God of them and of yourself, there is a powerful restraint being put on natural evil, there is a pleasant type of heaven where the whole family that is named after Jesus shall be gathered together.—[Dr. John Hall.]

How Women Should Dress. An American authority says: "No lady need be ashamed to dress plainly or cheaply; she can, with the help of the modern guides to dress, appear like a lady on very little money. She can lay down three rules for herself: Never to pretend to anything, never to wear false jewellery, and, affirmatively, always to be neat. A young girl with a white muslin and a fresh flower is dressed for a queen's ball. A lady of maturer years, in a well-fitting dark suit, real jewellery or none, and her own hair—all the better. True womanhood includes all the delicate refinements that overflow in the perfect glove, the well-fitting shoe, the pretty stocking, the neat frills, and becoming bonnet. The American women, to do her only justice, is a neat creature by instinct, and, if she occasionally gives too much thought to dress, she is still to be admired and commended for her daintiness."

Golden Cleanings.

There are two kinds of mercies—mercies in hand and mercies in hope. Pence does not dwell in outward things, but within the soul.

The greatest fault is to be conscious of none.—[Thomas Carlyle.] Occasions of adversity do not make a man frail, but they show him what he is. Impossible things are always being done, else the world had been all wilderness by this time.

As a river is deep; so are the mercies of God great, neither can the bottom of them be sought by any man. God will not refuse the poor offerings of poor people; but he will not accept the poor offerings of the rich.

It is needful to trust as well as to pray—to believe that strength will come, as to reach out the hand of faith to receive it.

Some men think that the business of churches must be done by strategy, tricks and cunning. They say we must fight the devil with fire. But the devil is used to fire and it won't hurt him half as much as it will you.

Many girls when they marry know nothing at all about the science of love, or man's nature. They wish and expect to be everlastingly made love to and worshipped without being taught the way to command that love and worship, and when they do not get it, they turn into bitter disappointment against their husband for not being what their childhood fancy pictured them, blaming them instead of questioning their own common sense which would tell them that to gain love it must be won bravely and deservedly, won in the daily battle against self.

Ever and anon, in these days, the community is startled and the Church saddened by the revelation that some one who had stood high in the confidence of the one, and in the membership of the other, have been guilty of extensive embezzlement of money which did not really belong to them, and the question is proposed, how such things are to be accounted for. Now, in the outset, it is pertinent to remark that such things are not by any means new or unheard of. They may be more frequent now than they were formerly, and because of the efficiency and almost omnipresence of the agents of the daily press, they may be more widely published than in any former age in the Church's history. But such cases, unhappily, have existed from the beginning. There was a Judas among the twelve, and from the days of the disciples until now, there has been an uninterrupted succession of that dishonest apostleship. We are not to suppose, therefore, that any new things has happened when those who are connected nominally with the Christian Church fall into such evil ways. Neither are we to judge of the Gospel and of the church from them. We take our estimate of the worth of Christ's teachings from Christ Himself, and not from Judas; and we ought to test the Church, not by such exceptional instances, but from the general effect produced by its presence and working on the history of the world, and on the community around us. The value of the fruit tree is evidenced by that which hangs upon its branches, not by that which falls, worm-eaten and decayed, to the ground.

A Thought for Middle Life. It is the solemn thought connected with middle life that life's last business has begun in earnest; and it is then, midway between the cradle and the grave, that a man begins to marvel that he let the day of youth go by so half enjoyed. It is the pensive autumn feeling; it is the sensation of half sadness that we experience when the longest day of the year is past, and every day that follows is shorter, and the light fainter and the feeble shadows tell that nature is hastening with gigantic footsteps to her winter grave. So does man look back upon his youth. When the first grey hairs become visible, when the unwelcome truth fastens itself upon the mind that a man is no longer going up hill, but down, and that the sun is always westering, he looks back upon things behind. When we were children we thought as children. But now there lies before us manhood, with its earnest work, and then old age, and then the grave, then home. There is a second youth for man, better and holier than the first, if he will look on and not look back.—[F. W. Robertson.]

Catalogue of Dickens' Works. Oliver Twist, who had some very hard Times in the Battle of Life, and having been saved from the Wreck of the Golden Mary by Our Mutual Friend, Nicholas Nickleby, had just finished reading A Tale of Two Cities to Martin Chuzzlewit, during which time the Cricket on the Hearth had been chirping merrily, while The Chimes from an adjacent church were heard, when Seven Poor Travellers from Mugby Junction commenced singing A Christmas Carol. Barnaby Rudge then arrived from the Old Curiosity Shop, with some Pictures from Italy and Sketches by Boz, to show to Little Dorrit, who was busy with the Pickwick Papers, when David Copperfield, who had been taking American Notes, entered and informed the company that the Great Expectations of Dombey and Son regarding Mrs. Lirriper's Legacy had not been realized, and that he had seen Boots at the Inn taking Somebody's Luggage to Mrs. Lirriper's Lodgings in a street that has No Thoroughfare, opposite Bleak House, where the Haunted Man, who had just given one of Doctor Marigold's Prescriptions to an Uncommercial Traveller, was brooding over the Mystery of Edwin Drood.

The road to matrimony is a bridal path. "There," said a charming lady, with a naive expression that made her face radiant, pointing to an ebony case of antique china, "that is my brickbat cabinet."

"Appointment" and "interment" is a rhyme sent in by a poet "this morning," writes a Western editor. "If he will kindly make the former," he adds, "I will guarantee that he will get the latter."

Master J. Stratton, of Clinton, is the possessor of a pair of turtle doves, the hen of which is sitting on four eggs. It is a very unusual circumstance for a bird of this kind to lay more than two eggs before sitting.

ZOPESA FROM BRAZIL.—As a result of the new commercial enterprise just assuming importance through the introduction of Zopesa, so justly celebrated where it is known for the cure of Indigestion. The company have opened a laboratory in Toronto. Zopesa comes to us highly endorsed and recommended, its wonderful affinity to the Digestive Organs, its certainty to relieve and cure Dyspepsia and Constipation, makes this remarkable compound a necessity in Canada. How to Get Rich. The great secret of obtaining riches, is first to practice economy, and as good old Deacon Snyder says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills, but now I have 'struck rich.' Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters, and only costs fifty cents a bottle." Sold by F. Jordan.

Nature, after all, is the great physician. She hides all the secrets of health within her broad, generous bosom, and man needs but to go to her intelligently for his every need. The discovery of the great Cough Remedy, GRAY'S SYRUP OF RED SPRUCE GUM, is an apt illustration of this. As a cure for Coughs, Colds, Loss of Voice and Hoarseness it stands unrivalled, while its low price and readiness of access places it within the reach of all. Try it and be convinced. All chemists keep it in 25 and 50-cent bottles.—ad

IRISH TROUBLES.

Alarming State of Public Feeling.
A Large Body of Peasants Collecting at Clogher and a Sanguinary Fight Expected.

LONDON, May 28.—Accounts from Ireland indicate that notwithstanding the strong forces at the disposal of the sheriffs, the service of writs and the collection of rents is practically ended, owing to the determined resistance of the people. It is reported that the Land League is resolved if the policemen who use the census papers to get at the names writing of the senders of threatening letters are not dismissed, to call upon the farmers not to fill up the agricultural returns annually called for by the Registrar-General.

Herdean Moore, recently arrested on suspicion of the murder of Wheeler and discharged for lack of evidence, has been re-arrested under the Coercion Act,
on a steamer about to sail for America.
LONDON, May 28.—The Times Dublin
special says the Gazette contains no proclamations directly relating to the Land League.

NEW YORK, May 28.—The World's
cable says if the Land League orders a general strike it will not be obeyed except in the districts where no rent has been paid for a year past and where evictions are keeping alive the agitation.
The latter class of tenants everywhere say they prefer the new Land Bill to Parnell and no Land Bill, and though the Leaguers are making desperate efforts to keep up the agitation, they are not meeting with much success. Of late the League executive circulated appeals purporting to have been written by leading prisoners in Kilmahina; but Father Garrigan, of Mullingar, himself an agitator, knuckled their tricks on the other day, by saying that Kilmahina was no dungeon or jail, since the only hard labor inflicted on the imprisoned Leaguers was "eating roast beef." The League funds are running dry. Subscriptions from Ireland are falling off every week, and the only hope of the treasurer is the sympathy of the Irish in America.

LONDON, May 29.—The opinion is almost universal throughout the kingdom that the condition of affairs in Ireland was never worse than now. The delay in Parliament on the Land Bill and the daily enforcement of evictions and arrests under the Coercion Act have exasperated the people to an almost unprecedented extent. Incendiary fires are numerous. Conflicts with the authorities, frequently resulting in serious injuries and lamentable destruction of property, are increasing. There is violent excitement in Clogher, caused by preparations for evictions in that neighborhood. The process-server and the police and military are now confronted by a body of peasants, whose numbers are increasing hourly. A sanguinary fight is expected between emissaries of the law and the people. The House of Commons remained in session until 5 o'clock this morning, there being a conflict between the Secretary of State for War and the Irish members, who obstructed the army estimates.

It is reported that the Government have resolved to meet the possible rejection of the Land Bill by the House of Lords, not by dissolution of Parliament, but by an autumn session. There are strong influences at work among the moderate peers to induce a majority to accept the measure.

A Dublin correspondent states that it is a notorious fact that all the recent disturbances occurred in the richest agricultural districts, where the farmers are well off. To speak of these people as objects of compassion and down-trodden rack-rented victims of landlord cruelty is untrue.

DUBLIN, May 29.—Dempsey, a farmer, who took land from a tenant had been evicted, was fired at from behind a hedge in county Galway and killed.

LIMERICK, May 29.—The Magistrate
in charge of the military and police expedition sent to execute evictions on people who have taken refuge in the castle has been suspended for neglect of duty.

There will be no formal appointment
to the secretaryship of the Land League.
Quinn will discharge Brennan's duties.

A bailiff went to serve writs on the property of Hutchins, near Mallow, county Cork, on Saturday. Some women seized him, destroyed the writs, stripped him naked and threw him into the river. They caught him as he came out and thrashed him with furze. The man was more dead than alive, and they then tarred, feathered and hunted him through the country. A large party of police went from Mallow to rescue him
but were unable to find him.

Dempsey, who was fatally shot, in the county of Galway, was walking quietly to chapel, accompanied by his two children. He fell almost within a stone's throw of the chapel. Dempsey compromised a quarrel with the Land League, after he surrendered his farm. The crime was committed in broad daylight, when the roads were crowded with people hastening to mass.

It is reported that the British Government have resolved to meet the possible rejection of the Land Bill by the House of Lords, not by dissolution of Parliament, but by an autumn session. Strong influences are at work among the more moderate peers to induce the majority to assent the measure.

C. R. M. Talbot, Lord-Lieutenant of Gloucestershire, has represented that county in the British House of Commons continuously for upwards of half a century.

THE LONDON DISASTER.

A few facts of interest gleaned from the Papers.

The following is from the Advertiser:
In conversation with the Commander of the Victoria, he said that he felt very thankful for the sympathy extended him by the citizens. On the other side he was glad to see the after-concentration of the matter resulted in him being acquitted
of any criminal negligence in the matter.
Had he been made aware of the state of things below, he would have known better what to do. The messengers from the engineer never reached him, with one exception. That was a young lad of fourteen, whom he himself had sent to the engineer to ask if there was any danger. The reply came back, "There is great danger unless the boat is righted." Immediately on knowing this he asked several persons see if they couldn't move the people. Some one or two undertook to see after it, but very soon afterwards the disaster occurred.

A RESCUER LOST.
T. E. O'Callaghan, who was on board the Victoria with his sister, says that among those who worked hardest was one young boy about ten years of age, who was entirely naked, and a young man with only a checked shirt on. They seemed to save a great number. But what was his horror to learn, on enquiring a while after, that the brave
little boy was himself pulled out corpse!
Mr. O'Callaghan could not wait to learn his name, being himself an active worker, but he says he felt worse about this one brave little fellow than any one can tell. It is impossible to learn how many other such cases there were, but it is probable there were quite a few who sacrificed their own lives to save others.

NOT EVEN WET.
H. Finch was on the lower deck at the time of the accident, standing beside Mr. McBride. When the boat turned over he found himself on the side which was out of the water, thereby escaping without even getting wet. Afterwards he assisted in saving a large number.

THE FOREST CITY CREW.
Among those who are deserving of especial notice for gallant conduct must be mentioned the crew of the Forest City Rowing Club, who, at the time of the accident, were "spurring" to make up the few lengths which separated them from the steamer. Immediately on seeing the accident, H. Nicholls and M. Reidy sprang overboard, and each took a "lady" passenger to the shore.
Easily undressing they continued to exert themselves as long as there was any chance of saving life. Guy Parks and John Cousins remained in the shell, and were the first to carry a boat load of women to the shore. They say that they had a hard time to prevent good swimmers from jumping into the boat.
However their shell escaped from tipping over they cannot tell, as in one load they had five women aboard.

A SAD SCENE.
A melancholy incident occurred at St.
Thomas, on Monday night, under circumstances that were at once pitiable and justifiable. A bereaved and partially demented father, who had suffered the loss of his children in the terrible disaster of the 24th, made his way to St. Thomas from London and had to be arrested in order to guard against injury to himself. He was, of course, most kindly treated, but the poor man could not be made to understand anything.
His friends in London have been communicated with, and it is hoped that his reason may not be entirely de throned.

STROKE.—A case of sunstroke occurred in this vicinity on Friday 27th inst, which resulted in the death of a little daughter of Mr. F. McLennan, named Mary Ann, and aged five years.

CROPS.—With the exception of a few fields of fall wheat, all kinds of grain are looking exceedingly well, and should future weather be favorable, a good harvest may be looked for in this part of the county.

QUICK WORK.—Two baths 50 x 56
feet were raised by one gang of men, on the farms of Messrs Jno. and Alex. Mc-Intyre, on Friday afternoon 27th ult.;
the time occupied in raising both baths
after the bents were put together, being only a little over an hour.

DISAPPEARED.—Since the recent outrage on the tramp, all of that fraternity have entirely disappeared from this neighborhood. Doubtless they think that it is not a safe part of the country for travellers of their description. We say "good riddance to bad rubbish."

United States Steamboat Laws.

In view of the terrible steamboat disaster in Canadian waters, where more than 200 lives were lost, Secretary Windom has determined upon a vigorous enforcement of the steamboat laws.
He has therefore issued a regulation requiring supervising inspectors to report daily to the supervising inspector-general of steam vessels upon the steamers visited by them, and instructing them in making such visits to inquire of the licensed officers as to the general condition of the vessels, the safety of their hulls and boilers, the efficiency of the life-boats and other life-saving apparatus, and to pay special attention to the precautions against fire. Special reports are required in case it is discovered that local inspectors when granting licenses have failed to exact all the requirements of law as to the equipment of steamers.
The department is of opinion that every passenger and ferry steamer should be visited several times in the interval covered by its inspection certificate. Neglect or refusal to make any return or report required by law of congress or regulation of the department is punishable by a fine of not more than $1000, nor less than $100. Three of the officers failing to make the daily report referred to have been called upon by a letter from Secretary Windom to explain their neglect to comply with the order, and informed of the penalty they have incurred thereby.

About 6 p.m. on Saturday, a man was accidentally killed. He had just grainstore at Clondegoy station, occupied by S. C. Hersey, grain dealer of Lucan,

The fire, it is supposed, was caused by a spark from a passing engine.

No sensation is caused in Lucan by the proceedings now going on before the law officers in Detroit for the extradition of the Feehley brothers. The majority of people here hesitate not to say that the whole matter will end in a farce. Some two or three witnesses left Lucan
this evening for Detroit, to give evidence.

Dr. Pettigrew of Campbellford, on returning home Saturday, learned from his little daughter that Richard Bon-castle, a wealthy farmer living near the village, and of whom he was jealous, had been at his house during the greater ceeded to Bonycastle's house and fired two shots at him from a revolver. The first missed its mark and the second grazed Bonycastle's head, plunging up the skin. Dr. Pettigrew was then disarmed and taken to Cobourg gaol.

Departure of Provost Whitaker.
The departure of Provost Whitaker
from Toronto for Europe took place Monday afternoon by the train leaving the Great Western depot at 3:30 o'clock.
There was an immense gathering to see the last of the Venerable Archdeacon, who with his family was extremely affected.

The waiting-room and the platform were crowded with a numerous body of ladies and gentlemen, nearly all of the clergy of the city and many from the country, without respect to their religious opinion being in attendance. At their head was Rural Dean Boddy, who was accompanied by Canon Traynham and the Rev. W. Crompton as representing the diocese of Algoma, of the principal supporters in every way.

Amongst the ladies present were Hon.
Mr. Allan Messers, S. B. Harman, C. J.
Campbell, E. D. Barwick, W. H. M.
Murray, John Catto, Lewis Moffatt,
Frank Wooten, John Hague, James Henderson, John Young, Elmes Henderson, S. G. Wood, and nearly all the students of Trinity College.

The Provost shook hands with each individually, adding a few kindly words in return to their good wishes.
As the train departed the depot
he appeared on the rear platform of the car, and was greeted with three hearty cheers as a send off.

Ex-Grand Sovereign Bowell and the Orange Order.
OTTAWA, May 31.—The Free Press today publishes the following: "At the coming Grand Orange Lodge of Western Ontario there will be some lively business on the board, in which the Hon.
Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs,
will figure largely. John G. Moore
Mr. Bowell's brother-in-law, and manager of the Belleveille Intelligence for quite a time, was Treasurer of the Grand Orange Lodge of Western Ontario for a number of years, retiring several months ago without giving an account of his stewardship as is customary on such occasions. The amount of money known to be in the treasury was $2,000 or thereabouts. Mr. Moore departed for Winnipeg, and he must have had. The Treasurer declined to pay any attention to the calls made upon him for a refund of the cash belonging to the Grand Orange Lodge of this section, so the officers turned their eyes ward the bondsman, the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, ex-Grand Sovereign of the Orange Association of British North America, and now a resident of Belle-veille. It now turns out that there was a great laxity in not having the bonds registered at the proper time on account of the high official position in the Order held by one of the bondsmen. This is where a great mistake has been made so far as the Grand Lodge is concerned, for the Minister of Customs declines any responsibility in the matter, and altogether it is too bad that the Eastern Branch of the Orange Society will have to whistle for the lost wealth belonging to it.
