CHAPTER XXXV.

EIGHT o'clock, then, she said; and Geoffrey, thanking her, left the house.

She flew up to Cottie, who was standing by the window; but she moved away and blushed as if detected in a guilty act.

"Has he gone?" she asked in a low voice.
"Yes, he's gone, my dear," replied Mrs. Sefton, piteously. "But he's coming here again—to dinner—at eight."

Cottie caught her breath, and her hand went to her heart.

"Coming—again!" she breathed, her bosom heaving. "Oh not again!"

"Yes, my dear, he is! I don't know what made me ask him. I got so confused and bewildered—and he looked so ill and so thin! But, oh, dear! how handsome he is! I don't wonder at any woman—My dear, my dear, forgive me!"

"I need not see him," said Cottie. "I will not come down."

Mrs. Sefton jumped at this way out of the difficulty.
"No, dear. I can say you have a headache. You can keep out of his way while he is here. He will only be here a few days."

"A few days! Is he going to stay here?" breathed Cottie, turning away.

When Mrs. Sefton left her, she fell to pacing up and down the room. No, she would not see him. She would let him go back to Eva Rashleigh, whom he ought never to have left. Having failed in her search for her—Cottie—she would soon forget her, soon he consoled in his love for the beautiful Eva. But as the hours went by, the longing to see him again stole upon her and filled her with feverish unrest; and at last, almost desperately she resolved that she would join the dinner-party. It was most unlikely, almost impossible, that Geoffrey, the simple-minded, unobservant Geoffrey, would recognise in the fashionable dressed young lady the rough, unkempt boy with whom he had lived for so many months in the Australian wilds.

It was a daring experiment; but the thirst in her heart, the craving to see him, to hear his voice, mastered her prudence, and she rang the bell at the dressing hour, and when the maid came, told her that she would dine down-stairs that night.

For the first time the maid found her young mistress exigent as to her dress and jewellery. The bed was strewn with exquisite evening costumes, the jewels and girlish ornaments which Mrs. Sefton had given her were spread upon the dressing-table.

"I want to look my very best to-night, Selina," said Cottie, with a nervous laugh and a quick gesture of her small hands, brown no longer, but white as the driven snow, and soft as the breast of a dove.

"I think I'll have the pink—but there's the black lace—but no, the pink's better—that faint pink; and there's that Alençon lace Mrs. Sefton gave me; will you put that round the bodice. And the pearls—yes, the pearls. But, after all, the black lace—No, it shall be the pink silk."

"Pink is your colour, Miss," murmured the patient and devoted Selina. "I'd wear the pink, miss. It isn't every lady who can carry the colour; but it goes beautifully with your hair and eyes."

When the dress, with its costly lace, was on, Cottie surveyed herself in the glass, eagerly, anxiously, and turned to the girl who was gazing at her admiringly.

"Shall I do? Is it right? What do you think?"

The maid gave a little gasp, and "Oh, miss!" was all she could say.

Cottie took up her fan and went to the door; but there she paused and pressed her hand to her heart. Even now she was, to tell the absolute truth, scarcely accustomed to her female attire; and the thought that Geoffrey was near to her, that she was going into his presence, made her feel like the boy Ronnie; and she looked down at her exquisite dress, at the nuance of shimmering silk and fleecy lace, as if she were masquerading in woman's attire. The colour left her face, and her eyes closed; then, with an effort, she called upon her courage and went down-stairs.

Some of the guests had arrived—there were not many, for it was a small party—and with a sense of relief mingled with disappointment, she saw that Geoffrey was not there.

"Oh, my dear, how beautiful you look!" murmured Mrs. Sefton when Cottie could get to her. "He is not here; perhaps he will not come."

Geoffrey Bell, and Geoffrey entered. Cottie could scarcely suppress an exclamation. Was this Geoffrey—this tall, thin man with the pale face and dark, restless eyes; this distinguished-looking man in the severe simplicity of evening dress? She stared at him, breathless, with conflicting emotions—the most prominent, alas! being that of passionate, wistful love. She stood, unconsciously moving her fan to and fro, statuesque in her little and graceful beauty—a beauty that would have attracted attention in a bevy of court beauties. Her heart was beating, throbbing in an ecstasy of pain, but she looked calm, and even cold, as she waited for Mrs. Sefton to bring him to her.

It came at last. He came up beside Mrs. Sefton. With the grave, almost preoccupied look on his pale, handsome face, he had all the appearance of a man who was there against his will, and whom nothing or anybody could interest.

"This is my ward, Mr. Bell—Miss Constance Sefton," said Mrs. Sefton in a low voice, which she tried to keep steady. "Constance this is a friend of mine—from—from Australia."

Geoffrey raised his eyes and met Cottie's. For a moment he remained motionless, as if he were struck dumb by some sudden emotion. What little colour his face had, deserted it, and he stood looking at her with a strange, in-ent regard which would have driven the colour from her own face and made her quail if she had been a man. But she was a woman, and, summoning all a woman's strength, she forced her eyes to meet his with a calm, even placid regard.

Geoffrey bowed—at last—and stood beside her with his hands behind his back; they were gripping each other in a tight grip.

This girl, this beautiful girl, so calm and statuesque in her loveliness, so imperial in her grace, was like—yes, was strangely like Ronnie!

He stared before him incapable of speech, incapable of movement. Cottie felt as if she were choking; but at last she found her voice.

"Are you staying long in Brighton, Mr. Bell?" she asked.

The words sounded foolish, ridiculous in her own ears; but she knew that she must speak or shriek aloud. At the sound of her voice Geoffrey started and turned his eyes upon her like a man moving in a nightmare.

"I beg your pardon," he said, almost hoarsely. "What did you say?"

She opened her lips as if about to repeat the question, when Mrs. Sefton came up to them. She was hot with confusion and embarrassment, and, in her embarrassment, did that which, of course, she had carefully resolved not to do.

"Will you take my ward in to dinner, Mr. Bell?" she faltered and stammered.

Geoffrey offered Cottie his arm. She shrank back, the color left her face; then, with a glance of pathetic reproach at poor Mrs. Sefton, she laid her fingers upon his arm.

As she did so, Geoffrey winced, almost as if her touch had hurt him and looked in a bewildered fashion at her face—its profile was turned towards him—then with something like a sigh he led her towards the door.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Cottie had the greatest desire to burst into tears, to scream, to snatch her hand from Geoffrey's arm and fly to her own room. But she was not only a woman now, but she had also learned a great deal since she had been under Mrs. Sefton's care. Good society puts a polish upon us; the wearing of handsome and becoming clothes and costly gowns, a course of theatres and concerts and picture-galleries, of dances and receptions, all go to form an armour behind which we screen ourselves when we are threatened by emotion.

How was Geoffrey to know that the exquisitely beautiful girl whose fingers rested so lightly upon his arm was quivering like a harp swept by a strong and master-hand? How was he to know that her heart was beating so wildly that she felt as if she were going to faint? To him she seemed the most calm and self-possessed of young ladies, one who evidently regarded him as an ordinary man who would take her in to dinner, and who might or might not amuse her during the courses.

As for him, his heart was thumping heavily enough, his brain was in a whirl, so that he stared stertorily before him with what might have looked to a casual observer a ferocious, not to say a sullen, expression. His face still retained this expression when he had found their seats and was fumbling with his serviette, while Cottie leaned back in her chair with an air of the most perfect ease and almost listless languor.

The poor fellow felt as if his fancy were tricking him into a kind of madness. This beautiful girl was so like Ronnie, not only in face, but in voice, that it seemed to him as if it were Ronnie himself masquerading in a lady's dress. Of course, it was absurd, it was ridiculous; but the resemblance had literally taken his breath away, and had left him still confused and bewildered.

Now, it was a long while since he had formed one of a dinner party—though of course he had eaten his meals at the Hall with the due observance of civilised customs—and for a moment or two he sat staring at his soup and turning over his spoon in an absent-minded way.

He was almost afraid to glance at the lovely face beside him, lest the resemblance to Ronnie should strike him again with its first force and deprive him of the power of eating his food; but he knew that he could not sit there throughout the whole dinner, eating like an automaton and silent as a mute; so at last, with a sidelong and half-fearful glance at her, he said, in a voice that sounded noticeably husky in his own ears:

"I suppose you like Brighton very well, Miss Sefton?"

Cottie had been watching him, as women can watch without seeming to look at the object of their attention. She had been noting that, notwithstanding his pallor and thinness, he was still very handsome—the best-looking man she had ever seen, she thought, with a swift rush of pride; indeed, both his pallor and his thinness accentuated that air of distinction which she had noticed the first time she had seen him in company with the other disjuncts. He was the most distinguished man in the room that night, though there were one or two of good birth and high breeding.

Worst Case Of Eczema
Cure only came when doctors gave up and DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT was used.

Mrs. Wm. Miller, St. Catherine's, Ont. writes:—"My daughter Mary, when six months old, contracted eczema and for three years the disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst that had ever come under my notice, and she apparently suffered what no pen could ever describe. I had three different doctors attend her all to no purpose. Finally I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment and to my surprise she was completely cured of that long standing disease. That was four years ago when we lived at Cornwall, Ont., and as not a symptom has shown itself since, the cure must be permanent."

The record of cures which Dr. Chase's Ointment has to its credit have placed it alone as the standard cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease. Do not be satisfied with imitations or substitutes, 60 cents a box at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

"And why do you go there?" I asked, when the friend with whom I was shopping insisted on looking for her spring suit in a shop in a distinctly out of the way corner of the city. "Do they have such exceptional nice things there?"

"Just about the usual run," she answered. "That isn't why I go there. The reason I trade with these people is to show my appreciation of them. Don't you know they are the first firm in this city to establish a pension system at their own expense? When a woman who has worked for them most of her life gets too old to be of much good, instead of turning her off to starve, or go to the poor house, the way most firms do, they retire her on a pension. That's why I never lose an opportunity to trade there if they have anything I can possibly buy."

You, my friend, the reader, probably are not an employer of labor, so you cannot make the hours of labor shorter or the pay better, or conditions easier by your mere fiat.

If you are a woman, you are not a voter, so you cannot do anything to better labor conditions by your vote. But there is one way in which you can help to better them, and that is to encourage by your patronage and your expression of approval those firms who have the reputation of not being harsh, exacting and unjust to their employees.

There are many shops in this supposedly enlightened country where the shop girls are absolutely forbidden to sit down during the day's work. In some of these places seats are provided because the law demands it, but the law is neatly circumvented by a penalty in case the girl makes use of this seat.

Another way to help the working girl is to be careful never, unless it is absolutely necessary, to do any shopping Saturday afternoons in the shops that are kept open all day Saturday during the summer months, and to try to make all your summer Saturday afternoon shopping so infrequent that the shops which now close only during June, July and August may see their way clear to add May and September.

These are but a few suggestions. The particular industrial conditions about you ought to give you many more ideas along the same line. When kindly and humane and just treatment of employees pays, employers everywhere are going to adopt that policy.

And yours is the responsibility of helping to make it pay.

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach. A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—the great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.

Chantilly lace, or the silk lace of Spanish shawls, is an effective fancy for straw hats.

Very distinctive are the conventional designs on some of the new lisle thread stockings.

An exquisite Chantilly scarf for evening wear has some of the design outlined with gold thread.

Chameleon is the fitting name given to the two-toned tartans which are so popular this spring.

Side closings of waists and coats are a pronounced feature, not only of gowns but of suits.

Smart little coats of plain color are worn with checked, striped or changeable voile, or silk.

Bar pins for the neck are to be worn a great deal. Larger ones are seen as the season advances.

Lingerie ribbons this season are wider than usual, so that when tied the bow is of considerable size.

As in foulards and other silk materials, the polka dot is a favourite in the mixtures of silk and cotton.

Belts are in many cases in direct contrast to the coat and also contrasted with waist and skirt in gowns.

It is better instead of lining a shirtwaist of soft silk to wear under it a separate lining of thin lawn.

Canopy parasols look much as though two square parasols had been placed cat-a-corner, one on top of the other.

In the linen tailormade the embroidery that looks like rat-tail braid is a great deal used and effectively.

Curtains of cross-bar muslin are extremely pretty when stencilled with a border across the ends or ends and sides.

More than ever is a soft wrap of charmeuse or chiffon seen as a graceful accompaniment of the afternoon or evening gowns.

Foulards have attained a wonderful degree of popularity, and this, it seems, without jeopardizing their fashionable status.

Immense straw colored hats are given a highly favored facing when a wide band of black velvet is placed as a contrasting ring.

That Dodd's Kidney Pills cure even inherited Ill-health.

Charles Dayon suffered from early youth but the old Reliable Kidney Remedy banished his ills and made him strong.

St. George, Man., May 13.—(Special).—Yet another case in which ill-health inherited from parents has been vanquished by Dodd's Kidney Pills is that of Mr. Charles Dayon, a farmer well known in this neighborhood.

"I suffered from a number of ills from an early age," says Mr. Dayon, who is now thirty-two years old. "I inherited my trouble from my parents. I was weak, nervous and run down. I suffered from Backache and my muscles would cramp. I had a heavy dragging sensation across the loins. I was always thirsty; I had great difficulty in collecting my thoughts, and my memory was failing me."

"I was altogether in a bad way when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills but they helped me almost from the first box. They gave me strength and helped me so much in every way that I am satisfied a little longer treatment will make me a well man."

Mr. Dayon's symptoms were the symptoms of Kidney Disease, and Dodd's Kidney Pills cure every form of Kidney Disease no matter what stage it is in or how it is contracted.

Patricia Royal is a rich and handsome tissue fabric of wool and mohair with a lustrous finish and a somewhat crepe texture.

Many white muslin or sheer linen frocks are in the stores for the warm days, and the noticeable feature is the skirt in two or three tiers.

In some fancy tailormade pockets are a mass of scotchings, and the coats are long enough to allow a place below the waistline.

Comets Absorbed by the Sun.

It is the fate of all comets that have tails to lose a portion of their substance every time they visit the sun. The particles given off are lost to the comet beyond recall, and are picked up by the first planet that chances to come along. But the more substantial part which constitutes the head of a comet may retreat from the dangerous proximity of the sun and wander through the ether of space for thousands of years without suffering further loss of substance. It may be possible, therefore, for a non-periodic comet, one that has not been "captured" by the solar system, to visit other suns than ours and shed their substance in remote regions of the stellar universe, hence the life of a cometary wanderer may be a matter of millions of years. But in the case of a periodic comet the situation is entirely different; their fate is sealed; they are destined to suffer shipwreck and gradual absorption of their substance by the sun or his family of planets. Lexell's comet of 1770 was probably wrecked by Jupiter; Enck's comet, which is due to appear again in 1911, if there is anything left of it, is being drawn into the sun itself through the joint influence of Jupiter, Mercury and the "resisting medium" which surrounds the sun; Biela's comet divided into two before our eyes and then broke up entirely, while the great comet of 1892 gave indications that it was about to break up into four parts.

HOW TO GROW IN WEIGHT.

Thin people usually eat plenty. The digestive organs, perhaps from weakness, sadly fail to do their work, and now body weakness results. Thin people are usually nervous, theyidget a lot, are restless, lack repose. This wears them thinner. Thin people often do a lot of work, but they do it by wearing out their nerves. When the collapse comes it is awful. You ought to know how easy it is to help digestion and renew the blood. Ferrozene (Blood Food). Ferrozene (Blood Food) is a swift action system renovator that quickens all the activity of the body's functions. It fortifies the entire nervous system. A strong nervous system helps the stomach, makes it do good work; it makes it digest better. That is exactly what thin people need to make them stronger and increase their weight. Ferrozene (Blood Food) does this, it gives vigor and buoyancy of spirit, which simply means cheerful good health. When you take Ferrozene (Blood Food) you can do lots of things, and at the same time gain in weight. Not that kind of fat that Cod Liver Oil makes, that wears off quickly, but the kind of weight that is accompanied by color and strength. Thin people know this. You cannot keep thin if you use Ferrozene (Blood Food). Take even a single box and weigh yourself, then you will know and rejoice. Price 50c, per box.

HOW CAN WE COUNTER-ACT THE INCREASED COST OF LIVING?

A second's reasoning will supply the answer. Beef and pork are dear and getting dearer all the time, and the cost is out of proportion with their food-value.

EAT MORE BREAD.

There is more nourishment in a shilling's worth of bread than a shilling's worth of beef or pork. But the problem is not done with yet. The shilling's worth of bread is not always the same value. Breadmade from contains more nourishment than any other, because it contains the greatest amount of gluten, the health-giving nutriment of wheat.

"Every Inch a King!"

These words of Shakespeare fit King Edward aptly. He lived a King and he died a King, as the leader who knew and can, as Carlyle put it.

His sentiment in life was strong in death. As a leader he knew what to do, how to do it well, and he did it. He lived up to his standard, and in death his standard was still excellent.

His ideal was service; courageous, faithful and meritorious.

COURAGEOUS.—Face to face with death he was courageous and preserved the even tenor of his kingly ways. As he died so he had lived. In life he instituted the Edward Medal as a kingly reward for heroism performed while men and women were pursuing the common rounds and the trivial tasks of the work-a-day world.

FAITHFUL.—He instituted the Imperial Service Order for civil servants who had performed long and faithful or meritorious service to the Empire in any part of the world.

MERITORIOUS.—He instituted the Order of Merit. In this high and distinguished order neither birth nor wealth tells. Merit alone is monarch. In the list you find Kitchener, the soldier, Fisher, the sailor, Morley the author, Rayleigh the scientist, Lister the surgeon, Alma-Tadema the painter, and Nightingale the nurse.

Facing life, King Edward encouraged courageous, faithful, meritorious work.

Facing death, he said: "I shall not give in. I shall go on. I shall work to the end."

And at the very last he said: "Well, it is all over; but I think I have done my duty."

BIG SNOW STORM.—Capt. Keen, of the Prospero, reports that a big snow storm raged at Griquet last week. It began Tuesday night and continued until Thursday. Over four feet of snow fell on the levels, and the hills were covered with it.

Tucker in the Chair; or Rather on the Chair.

TIM SHANNAHAN.

Mrs. Tucker arose, that is to say, she stood up, took a mouthful of water from the jug, and began. "Mr. Chairman, the matter, or rather the subject matter, before the chair is, I understand, that well worn and played-out 'soaker for votes,' the down-trodden fisherman. We have read with tear bedimmed eyes and watery noses of the great hardships endured by the fishermen of this country, and we know that many are the troubles they have to endure; but at the same time I am of the opinion that they are greatly overdrawn. We can take a look at the workman of this town and if you compare his conditions with those of his fellow man in the out-harbor, you will come to the conclusion that the man in town's got no snap (hear, hear, Mrs. Tucker sneezes and swallows a quart of water). Yes, as I was saying before, I knocked off, this played-out cry of the hardships of the out-harbor man is barked, bellowed and stewed by politicians when seeking election. They point to the St. John's man as the one having the cinch; but let us look into the matter and what do we find? We find, gentlemen, the everyday workman in the city hardly able to scrape up enough to keep him out of debt." (A voice bawls out, "What about the men who build houses and rear big families out of a day's pay?") Mrs. Tucker continued: "What about them? Yes, sir, I ask what about them? Go up on the higher levels, where most of these houses are built, and what will you find? Mortgages hold sway, and any of them that are paid off, the man who built them is dead, good and dead—blown by draughts to a better world." (Mrs. Tucker calls out for half an apple she left unfinished last Xmas). Gnawing she proceeds: "The out-harbor man has everything he uses—hooks, lines, twines, flour, molasses, kero oil—duty free. His house is his own and he has no Municipal taxes to pay, while the St. John's man is taxed on coal and house rent, and every twist and turn he makes means money. (Have it out of you.) You can't get a lend of a match in the neighborhood and no one does a turn for nothing. This bawling and shouting of knocking down the out-harbor man is doing a lot of harm. Talking about the picnic to be found in St. John's often induces people to give up their homes in the out-harbors to come here, and when they do come here, what do they find? (A voice in the rear, "That they struck an iceberg.") Yes, gentlemen, that's the word, an iceberg; a jading, draggy living, a hand to mouth existence in trying to be grand—trying to keep up with some half fool that lives on the opposite side of the street. Oh, how I sigh for the day of the boiling rounders, the shiny caplin and the good old sanded floor. I can smell again the coming of the northeaster and watch the billows dash, as they often dashed before, up against the stage head. I can see again—" "Shut your trotter," bawled the woman next door, and the meeting adjourned.

TIM SHANNAHAN.

To the Municipal Electors of St. John's

Fellow Citizens,—As the period for which the present Municipal Council Board was elected expires shortly and you will be asked to make a selection for a new term, I take occasion to announce that I have decided to appeal to you for a renewal of that honour so kindly conferred on me four years ago.

During the time I have served as a Councilor for my native city I have endeavoured, from first to last, to conform to the wishes of the people in so far as this was possible to do, and I earnestly hope that my record all through has been such as to merit and obtain this renewal I now seek.

If so I shall continue as in the past to devote my attention towards the furtherance of the civic welfare of each and every citizen and to bring about all necessary improvements that are at all possible to accomplish.

A close and constant application to the study of our civic problems is one of the chief essentials to make for that progress we all desire, therefore it shall be my earnest aim to keep pursuing such a course until our Municipal needs in all respects are dealt with most effectively.

Whilst having a seat at the Council Board I have always recognized it as my duty to attend to the requirements of the people over all sections of the city and to in every way advance the respective claims of each particular portion. This policy shall be continued by me as actively as ever, for I recognize that the claims of each and every citizen and each and every locality should receive the fullest consideration and that all be given the most ample share of whatever benefits are awarded.

I shall at all times be only too happy to personally meet any of my civic constituents who may wish to point out or discuss with me any matters they are interested in and to pay alike the closest attention whether coming from the highest or the humblest of the people, for I believe that it is mainly by such intimate association with my fellow citizens that the best satisfaction can result.

In this appeal I respectfully solicit the valued influence and support of all willing to endorse my candidature and to express my very high appreciation of such help not alone to the kind friends who volunteered me this before but to the many new friends who have been good enough to express their approval of my record as a Councilor.

Before concluding I wish to add that I seek a renewal of this honor as much by reason of the request of representative civic residents all over the city, who have tendered me most encouraging promises of support, as well as from a desire on my own part to enter the contest because I realize that the experience gained during the past four years would aid me greatly in my endeavour to help carry out the best ideal suggestions for the improvement of our city.

With a further expression of thanks to all my friends and fellow citizens who have very generously tendered me that help which I esteem so highly, and trusting to again have the honor to meet with success, I remain,

Your most obedient servant,
JAMES T. MARTIN.
St. John's, N. F., May 14th.

The Givings Out.

We observe by the Morning News of April 28th an extract from the London Times, which reads as follows:—

"Seeds for Newfoundland.—Messrs. James Carter & Co's have just received a telegraphed order from the Minister of Agriculture and Mines at St. John's, Newfoundland, for 15,000 packets of seed of one of their 'pedigree English Swedes, for distribution among farmers in that colony."

Farmers and others can purchase in the ordinary way one ounce of Carter's pedigree English Swede seed for two cents. Are there any people in Newfoundland so poor, and so wanting in independence, that they would accept these seeds from the Government free, when they can buy them so cheaply?—The People.

The S. S. Prospero, Capt. Abraham Keen, arrived here off her first trip to the Northward this season, at 4.30 p.m. yesterday. She met no ice and had very fine weather the whole trip. She brought about a half cargo, including a number of seal pelts and these passengers:—

Messrs. Bussay, Hellier, Pearce, Evans, Adams, Breen, Louanger (2), Bryan (2), Hynes, Hodge, Davis, Saint, Gardner, Rendall (2), Coombs; Messdames Wood, Louanger, Bryan, Blackwood, Saint, Winsor, Hyde, King, Ash, March; Misses Haddon, Scott, Tucker, Strathie, and 60 in steerage.

Cures Children's Crampy Colics.

At this season of cold searching winds and changeable weather, children will catch cold, will contract cramps, bronchitis and sore throat. The experienced mother knows of nothing half so good as a rubbing of chest and neck with Nerviline—rub it in well, lots of rubbing won't hurt. The influence of Nerviline is simply wonderful—swollen, inflamed tissues are soothed and healed, coughing is promptly allayed, hard strong phlegm is loosened and every trace of cough and cold disappears. Nerviline is so safe to use, so powerful, so penetrating—makes such a good all-round household remedy for colds, neuralgia, lumbago, soreness and stiffness—how can you afford to be without a large 50c. bottle? Get Nerviline to-day; it's mighty useful in the home and keeps the doctor's bill small.

Minnehaha Safe in Port

Special to Evening Telegram. FALMOUTH, Eng., May 13. The steamer Minnehaha arrived safely in port here this evening under her own steam. Three weeks ago she ran ashore on the Scilly Islands and hung there until Wednesday, when she was floated. In lightening the steamer, so that she might be saved, a large portion of her valuable cargo was jettisoned.

Private Laying-in-State

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, May 13. The Duke of Connaught, King George's uncle, accompanied by the Duchess of Connaught, arrived in London this evening from their African trip. They were met at the station by the King and Queen Mary, and the Royal Party, immediately drove to Buckingham Palace, where the body of the late King lies. King Edward's coffin was temporarily opened to give his brother a last view of the body. The casket rests in the centre of the room which presents the appearance of a richly adorned private chapel. The chairs of state from which past sovereigns witnessed so many brilliant scenes have been removed and an altar has been erected. Only members of the Royal household and the intimate friends of the late King will be admitted to this private lying-in-state.

Expulsion of Jews.

Special to Evening Telegram. KIEV, Russia, May 13. The expulsion of Jews residing illegally in Kiev will be resumed to-morrow. In some instances a delay has been granted to permit a settlement of their affairs, but all of those marked for expulsion must leave the city before June 14. The order of expulsion was issued as a result of an agitation which began in the Duma and originally provided that the expulsion should take place on April 23rd last. Subsequently the order was suspended by Premier Stolypin to permit a further examination of Jewish claims of residence. The order applied to other cities and towns where Jews are residing without the pale and local commissions were appointed to revise the list of those affected by the order with the expectation that a large proportion would be allowed to remain undisturbed. The Jews remaining in Kiev will be allowed to occupy the summer houses outside the city only through special permission granted in individual cases.

The Late Miss M. Kelly

Those acquainted with the retired but charitable character of the life of the late Miss Mary Kelly, eldest daughter of the late William Kelly—3 foremost business man of Water St. of the past generation—are aware of the interest she took in promoting the success of works of benevolence, and many a trib of their heartfelt sympathy will go out to the gentle and intellectual Rev. Mother, Mary Joseph, of Littlefield Seminary, now deprived of her only sister, and the last surviving member of her family. This deceased was one of those who shunned the glare of publicity, and her good deeds in the cause of religion and education were practised in the quietude of private life. She was a devout churchworker, and placed her opportunities liberally at the disposal of charitable calls.—com.

'FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN'

YEARS OF ILL-HEALTH CURED

"Like many another woman," writes Mrs. J. H. Hilliard, of Ashland, N.Y., "continued weakness caused by poor stomach and constipation led me to believe I would always be sick. It was Mrs. Ryan, my neighbor, who advised me to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and it was the means of teaching me 'It is never too late to mend.' I am rather a small woman, always pale, except when my skin became a muddy yellow. I never had much of an appetite because my digestion was never very good and still worse my system was seldom regular. Mrs. Ryan had become healthy and well with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and kept telling me that they would fix my system so it would work well too. Certainly Dr. Hamilton's Pills must have made right all that was wrong, because I weigh ten pounds more than ever before and feel fine. If you could see my rosy color, and watch how quickly I do my housework, I am sure you would think just as much of Dr. Hamilton's Pills as I do. They are a real fine medicine for woman and like as not would do a man just as much good too."

King Edward and a Brave Girl.

Medal for Saving Her Mother's Life—Fight With a Bull.

It was announced in the London Gazette recently that the king has awarded the Edward Medal of the Second Class to Miss Hannah Hugill, aged fifteen, of Great Busby, Yorkshire, for an act of bravery which saved her mother from severe—possible fatal—injury.

Mrs. Hugill, on going into a field at Court House Farm, Great Busby, with her daughter to bring in some cows, was attacked by an infuriated bull, which commenced to gore her. Her daughter, Hannah, who had been left at the gate, about a hundred yards from the place where her mother was attacked, came to her aid and, recovering the fork from under the bull, used it with all her strength, diverting the animal's attention.

The mother and daughter then succeeded in making good their escape from the field, though the mother was again attacked while crossing the fence.

Broom for the Stomach

Parsley Good to Purify System—Value of Vegetables.

The French have a saying that "parsley is a broom to sweep the stomach." Lettuce is a nerve food; Radishes build tissue and are rich in phosphorus, also in iron.

Horseradish contains a higher percentage of sulphur than all the other vegetable roots, spinach ranking next in value. Spinach also contains a large proportion of iron.

A mayonnaise dressing with lettuce is especially desirable for thin people, but for over plump French dressing is to be recommended. The action of vinegar on the digestive organs, however, is not to be considered. The acid of lemon juice is preferable.

While apples are a most excellent fruit for brain building, which phosphorus aids in, the humble pumpkin, desecrated to the uses of pie and jack o' lanterns, holds the prize. Pumpkin rates 2.79 in phosphorus, while apple is but .45.

When in search for this special element take up a pumpkin diet. But as winter squash would stand the same analysis, it can be used as a vegetable in many varieties and thus the needed phosphorus supplied. Cucumbers rank next in phosphorus value to pumpkin, being 2.08.—From the Vegetarian Magazine.

City Council.

A full Board was present at last night's meeting.

The Colonial Secretary asked to have the day named for the City Council election. It was decided that the 17th of June be nomination day and the 27th polling day. It is thought that those dates will not interfere with the celebration of Empire Day.

The Road Inspector will attend to Golf Avenue on the request of R. E. Crocker.

A. W. Martin will give land to Council to widen the street, provided the Council erects a fence there.

The men taking the list of voters asked for an increase of pay. Enquiry will be made.

W. T. Scully will be given water and sewerage extension to his motor house at $6 per year.

The Horwood Lumber Co. wrote the Council in connection with the sewer at the rear of their premises. They will be asked to help defray the expense that will be incurred there.

Messrs. W. Bowman, New Gower Street; F. Nangle, Duckworth Street, and the T. A. & B. Society were given permission to make repairs to houses. Jno. Clouston was allowed to make repairs to fish store.

J. Hennebury will extend his coo- perage on Boncloddy Street.

Peter Power will not be allowed to build a porch at his house, Brazil Street.

Bishop & Sons, Ltd., will paint their building and be allowed to erect scaffolds.

T. Cornick will erect a fence at Golf Avenue.

G. T. Carty will look up the records in order to reply to the question about a fence on Bond Street.

Mr. T. Pippy will be allowed to erect a garage.

J. Deer will be allowed to build a workshop and instal a gas engine.

Improvements are allowed at the houses of Mrs. Turner, Freshwater Road; Mrs. O'Leary, New Gower St., and Mr. Pike, Hamilton St.

The Solicitor will report on land at Promenade asked for by the R. N. Co.

The Park policeman will take up his duties on Monday next. The Park Committee will also consider the question of sewerage for the Park during the week.

After the passing of the weekly reports, etc., the meeting adjourned.

Writes of Death at Sea's Bottom.

A Japanese Navy Lieutenant Takes Sole Blame for Loss of Submarine and Men.

Death news from the bottom of the sea, showing a degree of heroism and self-humiliation seldom encountered, even in naval circles, is accounted in a translation published in the London Times of a message written by Lieutenant Tsutoma Sakuma, who was in command of the Japanese submarine No. 6 when it foundered last week while manoeuvring in Hiroshima Bay, all on board being lost.

In the message, which was found in the conning tower of the submarine when it was brought to the surface, Lieutenant Sakuma explained that he alone was to blame for the disaster to the craft and the death of fellow officers and men. He describes in detail the heroic and almost superhuman efforts that he and the doomed men with him made to save the submarine and their own lives. The message was as follows:

"It is with the deepest regret that I write this message to describe the loss of this boat, with my fellow officers and men, due to my own fault. I would here specially mention that all steps have been taken to raise her, my comrades and men working earnestly and calmly till the end. I ordered the ship to dive with the engines running; but, as I found she went down too far, I tried to shut the valves which admit the sea water to the ballast tank, but unexpectedly the chain working these valves broke, and I was left helpless, unable to control the boat.

"Meanwhile the tanks were filled with water, and the boat went down at an incline of 25 degrees. After striking the bottom the water began rushing in, the switchboard was immersed in water, all electric lights went out, the fuses burned away, and the boat was filled with poisonous gases, so that we experienced the greatest difficulty in breathing. Under these conditions we worked our very utmost with the hand pumps to empty the main ballast tank, which, I believe, we succeeded in doing, although we could not read the gauges owing to darkness. No electric current was available, as I mentioned before, and our last hope of rising to the surface lay in working the hand pumps only.

I write this in dim light coming from the conning tower—11.45 a.m. "I earnestly beseech His Majesty to grant me forgiveness and to succor the families of my comrades and men who have lost their lives in this perishing boat. This is my only wish—12.30 p.m.

"It is with the utmost difficulty that I can breathe, though I am sure we must have blown out the gasolene entirely from the tanks. I cannot continue any more.—12.40 p.m."

You Cannot Forget Your Corns.

They pain too much. Perhaps you have tried this, that, and the other remedy—you still have them. You do not experiment when you use Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. ## Compositions

By ALFRED H. ALLEN.

FIRST SONATA IN D MINOR
For Organ.

"Organists may be recommended a Sonata in D Minor by Alfred H. Allen. This is an extremely well-written work for one who is evidently an expert organist. In the prelude the composer employs the rarely used seven-four alternating with three-four, tempo. His counterpoint flows naturally and without effort. There is an excellent fugal section in this movement. The Intermezzo is melodious and simple in construction, an Allegretto Scherzando in the middle affording effective contrast. The Finale worthily concludes the Sonata."—Morning Post (London).
"A Sonata in D Minor, by Alfred H. Allen, contains something more than sound workmanship, and the light Scherzo affords excellent contrast to the stately opening movement and the elaborate Finale."—Athenaeum (London).

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

BLESSED ARE THEY THAT MOURN
Motet For Chorus and Organ.

"Alfred H. Allen's motet, 'Blessed are they that Mourn,' is the work of an excellent musician, and deserves to be known."—Morning Post (London).
"This is an interesting work, sincere in expression and technically well devised. The influence of Brahms is somewhat strong; but Mr. Allen has a good deal to say for himself, and he says it in a manner that is thoroughly musically. The motet should be a welcome addition to the repertoire of church choirs with ideas above Dykes and Barnby."—Oxford Magazine.

ROBIN HOOD FLOUR

IS DIFFERENT

IT HAS ROUSED THE CURIOSITY OF THE WHOLE WEST

"Do you really think" one housewife will say to another "that this new flour can be better than the flour we are using?"
"Madam, there is no doubt about it. But there is just one way you can be convinced. You must use it yourself."

Our claims will not satisfy you, but we back up our claims in such a way that you will lose nothing by trying Robin Hood.
Your grocer will tell you about our guarantee which gives you back your money if you are not satisfied.
