Best Nerve Specialist in England Was Consulted

But Nervous System Failed to Respond to Treatment Prescribed.

Nervous disorders frequently result from injury to the nerves in accidents or because of the shock to the system.

The writer of this letter was injured in a mix-up with some colts, remained unconscious for three weeks, and in spite of continued treatment in hospital could not obtain restoration of the internal nerves which control the action of the digestive and other vital organs. He travelled to Europe and consulted England's greatest nerve specialist. Relief was only temporary, in spite of many treatments used.

His letter gives the facts briefly and tells how he was finally cured by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Can you imagine any more severe test of this great nerve restorative?

Mr. Henry F. Venn, Cefu Ranch, Malakwa, B.C., writes: "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has restored my nervous system and given me new health."

CHAPTER XV.

The Teeth of the Tiger.

From his hiding place he could see their faces, but he could imagine the joy and rapture that glowed in them, and the mental vision tortured him as acutely as if he had actually seen them. He longed to fling himself between the two and tear them apart, and his limbs writhed in impatient rage, so that the branch which he held shook and trembled.

Presently he peered round the tree and saw Cyril gather together his painting materials—Norah helping him with a proud tenderness displayed in her every movement and glance—and then he watched them as they walked slowly away, side by side, their eyes meeting, their hands touching. Once, as they were nearly out of his sight, he saw Cyril bend his head and kiss her, and at this, the last straw as it seemed, Guildford Berton flung himself on the ground, face downward, as if to shut out his remembrance.

Five minutes passed, and then, as if with an effort, he got up and began to pace up and down.

"Let me think!" he muttered. "Let me think!" and he pressed his hand to his forehead as if with an effort to gain composure. After a time calmness seemed to come back to him, and, with something of his usual impassive manner, he sat down at the foot of the tree, and, with his hands tightly clasped, sank into deep thought.

Lord Ferndale had said to Norah that he did not understand Guildford Berton. Few people did. He was a mystery to all save himself, and that a young man, generally accounted clever, should give up his profession—in which he had shown promise of distinguishing himself—and bury himself in a country village, seemed to all who thought of it the wildest folly.

But Guildford Berton was no fool.

Even at this moment he was wise enough to crush down the mad passion which was always ready to rise, like an evil genius, and master him, and to review his position.

"Am I going to lose?" he muttered. "After all! I was winning, slowly, but surely! Slowly, inch by inch, I was getting that proud old fool under my thumb. Sooner or later his vagabond nephew, the viscount, would have sold his birthright, and the earl would have made me his heir! Then this girl turned up. But I had reckoned on that. She is a woman, and to be won, and I would have won her! Yes, I feel it! Slowly and surely I would have gained the ascendancy over her, as I have gained it over her father. Everything was in my favor. She would have been thrown into my society every day. I would have won her. I, the steward's son, would have been the husband of an earl's daughter! I should have ranked as an equal in the place where my father was servant! But now—he looked at the spot where Cyril had sat, and gnawed at his lip—"now, this wandering vagabond, this scamp, steps in between me and her!" His hand opened and shut convulsively. "He will marry her in spite of her father, and all that should have been mine will be his! All! Even Norah!" The word dropped from his lips with an intensity which seemed to startle even himself. "Yes, I am a fool," he muttered. "I—I love her! That is my mistake! It is that which has made me weak and set my brain on fire! I love her! But for that I could be cool and play the game carefully, but—but my love confuses me—drives all the thoughts out of my head!" He sprang up and paced up and down.

"And she, she hates me, or is near to hating me! And I feel it whenever I am in her presence; I read it in her face, in her voice when she speaks to me! And she will marry this artist fellow, who comes from no one knows where, and I"—he ground out an oath—"I suppose I must give it all up, go back to London, and begin the old hateful life, made all the more hateful by the thought of all I had hoped to gain, all I have lost! No, by Heaven!" he exclaimed, raising his hand as if he were actually registering a vow. "I will not! There is time yet! I set my brain against yours, Mr. Cyril Burne, and I will fight to the last—the last!"

Footsteps in the bracken startled him at this moment, and, thinking it was Cyril or Norah coming back, he was preparing to return to his hiding-place, when he saw that it was Becca South.

He muttered an imprecation, but, resuming his usual impassive manner he went to meet her with a forced smile on his dark face.

Becca pulled up a few paces from him, and looked aside, as if she were not in the best of humors, and her first words were spoken in a piqued and injured tone.

"I didn't expect to meet you," she said.

"Well, Becca," he retorted, taking her hand, after a slight struggle, and kissing her. "Unexpected pleasures are all the sweeter. What is the matter now? In one of your tantrums?" and he smiled down at her with affected good-humor.

"No, I'm not," she said, shortly, but walking by his side as he moved away from the glade; it was just possible Cyril or Norah might return. "But I was keeping away from me! You're keeping away from me!" and she began to pout and flash her black eyes upon him.

"Now, Becca," he said, fighting with his impatience and speaking in a soft, persuasive voice, "do try and not be silly. Keeping away from you! Why, you silly child, I should like to be with you always."

"And why aren't you?" demanded Becca. "Why can't all the world know we're engaged?"

He cast a glance around, as if he dreaded that the trees would carry her words to human ears.

"I'm tired of this playing at hide-and-seek. You're ashamed of me, Mr. Berton!"

WOMAN GIVEN TWO DAYS

To Make Up Her Mind for Surgical Operation. She Refused; Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"One year ago I was very sick and I suffered with pains in my side and back until I nearly went crazy. I went to different doctors and they all said I had female trouble and would not get any relief until I would be operated on. I had suffered for four years before this time, but I kept getting worse the more medicine I took. Every month since I was a young girl I had suffered with cramps in my sides at periods and was never regular. I saw your advertisement in the newspaper and the picture of a woman who had been saved from an operation and this picture was impressed on my mind. The doctor had given me only two more days to make up my mind so I sent my husband to the drug store at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and believe me, I only took four doses before I felt a change and when I had finished the third bottle I was cured and never felt better. I grant you the privilege to publish my letter and am only too glad to let other women know of my cure."—Mrs. THOS. MCGONIGAL, 9423 Hartville Street, Phila., Pa.

lay near the little blue phial.

"Not just yet," he said. "Don't be afraid, you shall have it back presently."

"What do you want it for?" she demanded.

He could not have given her the only reason: that anything belonging to Norah was precious to him.

"For nothing," he said, lightly. "You shall have it back to-morrow. Now, don't bother, Becca," and he drew her arm within his and put back a tress of her black hair behind her ear in a caressing, lover-like fashion; and Becca ceased to think any more of the photograph of the sad-looking woman she had "picked up on the stairs."

CHAPTER XVI.
Eve's Daughter.

NORAH left Cyril and walked homeward almost entirely happy. The only bar to her perfect happiness was the fact that she could not go straight to the earl and tell him all that had happened.

She had a natural detestation for secrecy and deception, and she thought, with a sigh, how delightful it would have been if her mother or the faithful Catherine had been alive, to go to either of them and pour out her heart.

For it seemed to Norah, as she went through the sunlit woods and over the velvety lawns, that she was the most fortunate girl in all the world. There had never been another man since Adam was created like Cyril, and she stopped now and again, that she might recall his image and think of all he had said.

And it seemed to her that he had spoken, as he looked and behaved, like a hero. He had said that she might have married some man with a title; but to her he seemed the noblest of men, and it was just in harmony with his character that he should wish to wait until he had made a name before he went to her father and asked for her.

He had said that he would rather be a self-made man than a belted earl, and she agreed with him. Agreed with him! If he had declared that the moon was made of green cheese she would have assented.

Yes, she was happy, with the happiness which comes to a girl who has won the heart of the man to whom she has given her first—her best love.

She wondered how long it would be before she should see him again, how long before he would come and demand her hand of the earl.

She had said that if the earl refused it would make no difference to her; and under the great oaks she repeated her vow. Nothing should separate her from her hero, her lover.

When she reached the house she saw several carriages standing outside, and heard voices in the drawing-room. It seemed full of people to her confused sense, and she stood for one moment looking round her; but the next, Lady Ferndale came forward and embraced her.

The Proud Prussian Guard Beaten

By the Army of Sportsmen Curtin Saw Drilling in Hyde Park.

In Sadness and Hopelessness the Return to Potsdam of Broken Battalions of Guards Surpassed all Other Sights of War — American Writer Saw That Kaiser's Best Troops Realized They Had Met Their Masters at Contalmaison — Hidden in Lumber Wagons, But German Public is Beginning to Realize Fate of Their Best Troops.

D. Thomas Curtin, an American writer who spent ten months in Germany, but who was only allowed to write what the censor directed, on his return has been revealing the war conditions in the land of the Hun. Various circumstances enabled Mr. Curtin to witness a sight strictly forbidden to the German public—the return of the wounded from the front. In this his second article on his ten months' stay in Germany he describes the return to Potsdam of the wounded of the Prussian Guard after their encounter with the British at Contalmaison and the efforts of the authorities to hide them from the people. Of this he writes as follows in the London Times:

The 4th of August is the anniversary of what is known in Germany as "England's treachery"—the day that England entered the war in what the German government tells the people is "a base and cowardly attempt to try and beat her by starving innocent women and children."

On that sunny and fresh morning I looked out of the railway carriage window some quarter of a mile before we arrived at Potsdam and saw numerous brown trains marked with the Red Cross, trains that usually travel by night in Germany.

There were a couple of officers of the Guard Cavalry in the same carriage with me. They also looked out. "Ach, noch einmal" ("What more of them?") discontentedly remarked the elder. They were a gloomy pair and they had reason to be. The German public has begun to know a great deal about the wounded. They do not yet know all the facts, because wounded men are, as far as possible, hidden in Germany and never sent to Socialist centres unless it is absolutely unavoidable. The official figures which are increasing in an enormous ratio since the development of England's war machine, are falsified by manipulation.

And if easy proof be needed of the truth of my assertion, I point to the monstrous official misstatement involved in the announcement that over ninety per cent. of Germans wounded returned to the firing line. Of the great crush of wounded at Potsdam I doubt whether any appreciable portion of the serious cases will return to anything except permanent invalidism. They are suffering from shell wounds, not shrapnel, for the most part, I gathered.

Broken Men.

As our train emptied it was obvious that some great spectacle was in progress. The exit to the station became blocked with staring peasant women returning from the early market in Berlin, their high fruit and vegetable baskets empty on their backs. When I eventually got through the crowd into the outer air and paused at the top of the short flight of steps I beheld a scene that will never pass from my memory. Filmed and circulated in Germany it would evoke inconceivable astonishment to this deluded nation and would swell the malcontents, already a formidable mass, into a united and dangerous army of angry, eye-opened dupes. This is not the mere expression of a neutral view, but is also the opinion of a sober and patriotic German statesman.

I saw the British wounded arrive from Neuve Chapelle at Boulogne; I saw the Russian wounded in the retreat from the Bukovina; I saw the Belgian wounded in the Antwerp retreat and the German wounded in East Prussia, but the wounded of the Prussian Guard at Potsdam surpassed in sadness anything I have witnessed in the last two bloody years.

Your Neuve Chapelle wounded were, if not gay, many of them brittle and smiling—their bodies were hurt but their minds were cheerful; but the wounded of the Prussian Guard—the proudest military force in the world—who had come back to their home town dejected and humbled—these Guards formed the most amazing agglomeration of broken men I have ever encountered. As to the numbers of them, of these five reserve regiments but few are believed to be unhurt. Vast numbers were killed, and most of the rest are back at Potsdam in the ever-growing streets of hospitals that are being built on the Bornholtfeld.

One of the trains had just stopped. The square was blocked with vehicles of every description. I was surprised to find the great German furniture vans, which by comparison with those in England and the United States look almost like houses on wheels, were drawn up in rows with military precision. As if these were not enough, the whole of the wheeled traffic of Potsdam seemed to be commandeered by the military for the lightly wounded—cabs, tradesmen's wagons, private carriages—everything on wheels except, of course, motor cars, which are non-existent owing to the rubber shortage. Endless tiers of stretchers lay along the low embankment sloping up to the line. Doctors, nurses, and bearers were waiting in quiet readiness.

The passengers coming out of the station, including the women with the tall baskets, stopped, but only for a moment. They did not tarry, for the police, of which there will never be any dearth if the war lasts thirty years, motioned them on, a slight movement of the hand being sufficient.

"Move On."

I was so absorbed that I failed to notice the big constable near me until he laid his heavy paw upon my shoulder and told me to move on. A schoolmaster and his wife, his rucksack full of lunch, who had taken advantage of the glorious sunshine to get away from Berlin to spend a day amidst the woods along the Havel, asked the policeman what the matter was.

Determined not to be baffled, I moved out of the square into the shelter of a roadside tree, on the principle that a distant view would be better than none at all, but the police were on the alert, and a police lieutenant tackled me at once. I decided to act on the German military theory that attack is the best defence, and stepping up to him, I stated that I was a newspaper correspondent. "Might I not see the wounded taken from the train?" I requested. He very courteously replied that I might not, unless I had a special pass for that purpose from the Kriegsministerium in Berlin.

I remembered a large window in the first and second class dining room in the station, from which a very close view of the tragedy could be gained. I knew that there was no train back to Berlin for an hour and a half. I took a ticket, handed it to the uniformed woman, who deals with them as in England, and explained to the soldier and Unteroffizier who stood by her that I would like to go into the dining room to read and get something to eat. I walked straight to the window of the dining room and ordered butterless bread and Dutch cheese—the universal and almost standard midday diet of Germany to-day—and was glad that my Berlin ticket served. My ruse succeeded. I saw everything and unobserved.

By this time the wounded were being moved from the train. The slightly wounded were drawn up in double ranks, their clean white arm and head bandages gleaming in the noon day light. They stood dazed and dejected, looking on at the real work which was just beginning—the removal of the severely wounded.

Wounded in Furniture Vans.

Then it was that I learned the use of those mammoth furniture vans. Then it was I realized that these vans are part of Germany's plan by which her wounded are carried—I will not say secretly—but as unobtrusively as possible. In some of the mammoth vans put 12, into others 14; others held as many as 20.

The Prussian Guard had come home. The steel corps of the army of Germany had met at Contalmaison the light-hearted boys I had seen drilling at Hyde Park last year, and in a furious counter-attack, in which they had attempted to regain the village, had been wiped out.

These were not merely wounded, but dejected wounded. The whole atmosphere of the scene was that of intense surprise and depression. Tradition going back to Frederick the Great, nearly 200 years ago, had been smashed by amateur soldiers. The callow youth of 18 who served my lunch was muttering something to the barmaid, who replied that he was lucky to be in a class that was not likely to be called up yet.

The extreme cases were carried at a snail's pace by bearers, who put their feet down as carefully as if they were testing very thin ice, and who placed the comfortable spring stretchers in the very few vehicles which had rubber or imitation rubber tires. This was done with military precision and great celerity. The evacuation of this train was no sooner finished than another took its place, and the

A Child Hates Oil, Calomel, Pills For Liver and Bowels

Give "California Syrup of Figs" if cross, sick, feverish, constipated.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "innards" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a spoonful given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

same scene was repeated. Presently the great furniture vans returned from having deposited their terrible loads, and were again filled. One van was reserved for those who had expired in the journey, and it was full.

What the Guard Means.

The Guard had its garrison chiefly in Potsdam, but also partly in Berlin, and represents the physical flower of German manhood. On parade it was inspiring to look at, and no military officer in the world ever doubted its prowess. Nor has it failed in the war to show splendid courage and fighting qualities. English people simply do not understand its prestige at home and among neutrals.

The Guard is sent only where there is supreme work to be done. If you hear that it has been hurled into charge you may rest assured that it is striving to gain something on which Germany sets the highest price—for the life-blood of the Guard is the dearest that she can pay.

In the battle of the Marne the active regiments of the Guard forming a link between the armies of Buelow and Hansen were dashed like spray on jagged cliffs when they surged in wave after wave against the army of Foch at Sozanne and Fere Champenoise.

Germany was willing to sacrifice those superb troops during the early part of the battle because she knew that von Kluck had only to hold his army together, even though he did not advance, and the overthrow of Foch would mean a Teuton wedge driven between Verdun and Paris. One year and ten months later she hurled the Guard Reserve at Contalmaison because she was determined that this important link in the chain of concrete and steel that colled back and forth before Bapaume-Peronne must remain unbroken. The newly-formed lines of Britain's sons bent but did not break under the shock. They were outnumbered, but, like all the rest of the British, that the backs from the front German soldiers have told me about, these fought on and on, never thinking of surrender.

I know from one of these that in a first onslaught the Guard lost heavily, but was reinforced and again advanced. Another desperate encounter and the men from Potsdam withered in the hand-to-hand carnage. The Germans could not hold what they had won back, and the khaki succeeded the field grey at Contalmaison.

The evacuation of the wounded occupied hours. I purposely missed my train, for I knew that I was probably the only foreign civilian to see the historic picture of the proudest soldiery of Prussia return to its garrison town from the greatest battle in history.

Empty trains were pulled out of the way, to be succeeded by more trains full of wounded, and again more. Doctors and nurses were attentive and always busy, and the stretcher-bearers moved back and forth until their faces grew red with exertion.

Without Hope.

But it was the visage of the men on the stretchers that riveted my attention. I never saw so many men so completely exhausted. Not one pair of lips relaxed into a smile, and not an eye lit up with the glad recognition of former surroundings.

It was not, however, the lines of suffering in those faces that impressed me, but that uncanny sameness of expression, an expression of hopeless gloom so deep that it made me forget that the sun was shining from an unclouded sky. The dejection of the police, of the soldier onlooker, of the walking wounded, and those upturned faces on the white pillows told as plainly as words could ever tell that the Guard had at last met a force superior to themselves and their war machine. They knew well that they were the idol of the Fatherland, and that they had fought with every ounce of their great physical strength, backed by their long traditions. They had been vanquished by an army of mere sportsmen.

My thoughts went back to Berlin and the uniformed scuffings at the British army and its futile efforts to push back the troops of Rupprecht on the Somme. Yet here on the actual outskirts of the German capital was a grim tribute to the machine that Great Britain had built up under the protection of her navy.

In Berlin at that moment the afternoon editions were fluttering their daily headlines of victory to the crowds on the Linden and the Friedrichstrasse, but here the mammoth vans were moving slowly through the streets of Potsdam.

To the women who stood in the long lines waiting with the potato and butter tickets for food on the other side of the old stone bridge that spans the Havel they were merely ordinary cumbersome furniture wagons.

How were they to know that these machines contained the bloody story of Contalmaison?

FLUCTUATIONS OF BATTLE.

The Eastern drama has reached a stage of compelling interest. While there is ground for lively satisfaction in the situation before Monastir, it is altogether too soon to speak confidently of that presented by Roumania, but we are encouraged to do so by the knowledge of the close interrelation of the two fronts. Mackensen has been stopped in Dobruja, but not yet driven back, and in any case what happens in this region is of itself of little importance. We are forced to admit that in Transylvania Falkenhayn is still victorious, and exerting a steady pressure which at any moment may burst its confining bounds and pour his troops in a triumphant flood over the Rumanian plains. The fighting is now proceeding in the all-important passes, the keys to Roumania. The defenders need only hold them; the invaders must break through completely and in force to be successful. Their apparent failure up to the present must not be taken too sanguinely; we must remember how rapidly the subjugation of Serbia proceeded when once it was thoroughly under way.

But there are no doubts about the extent of the Serbian victory south and southeast of Monastir, and we cannot doubt also that it will have great effect upon the Rumanian operations. The whole German-Bulgarian line has been driven back, if not broken, and village after village south of the town has fallen to our Allies. Kennell seems at last to have been evacuated, and as several of the places mentioned lie westward of it, an encircling movement is obviously being carried on. Four miles now from Monastir, the victorious forces should be able to take it before many days elapse. The chief hold-up is likely to be just east of it. When we hear Novak mentioned in the messages we shall know the town is doomed. The great importance of Monastir will become apparent as soon as it falls. It will open the way for a combined advance by the Serbians and, up the Vardar valley, by the French, which ought to go all the way to Uskub.

The British continue the nibbling process in the Struma region, but there is still a very strange silence concerning the great centre, the French forces on the Vardar. Probably this is Sarraill's trump card. He may be waiting for sufficient preliminary successes on the wings before he plays it. The natural obstacles that confront it are for the present perhaps too great to be attempted, but certain it is that nothing like the full power of the Allies' command has yet been exerted in Macedonia. Can it be that all the criticisms levelled at their inertia are to be confounded some time by a master-stroke that will reveal a brilliant strategy below this series of seeming blunders? It may be, or it may not, but time will tell. Such at any rate are the exigencies of the situation that something big and decisive seems imminent.

Count Apponyi has been talking again, and assumes naively that when Roumania is crushed peace will begin to be discussed. It is not hard to agree with him, for the date he gives reminds us a little of the Greek Kalends. Pull a guinea-pig's tail, etc. It is true that the smashing of Roumania would be a very serious matter for the Allies; it would find and roll up Russia's flank and might even win the war in the East for Germany. But it is hardly possible now, and the Count is wrong in his general estimate of the situation. The boot is on the other leg, and it is Germany and not the Allies that is losing her last bolt in Roumania. For us failure to succour Roumania would spell a great set-back and much prolonged delay; for Germany, failure to crush her means nothing less than disaster, the irretrievable, hopeless loss of her cause.

Lady Morris' Address Yesterday.

Tells the W.P.A. of Her Visit to England.
 Speaking to the Women's Patriotic Association yesterday, Lady Morris delivered a most interesting address on the subject of her visit to England and her experiences there during the past year. Arriving in England in September, 1915, Lady Morris immediately got in touch with the Newfoundland Contingent Association, the Executive of which consists of Mr. Steele-Maitland, Chairman; Hon. C. A. Hanson, Acting Treasurer; Mr. Henry Healy, Secretary; and Miss Mrs. E. R. Morris, Lady Morris and Miss Knox the Lady Secretary. Lady Morris spoke in high terms of praise of the work of the Association, of which the Committee met regularly; she made particular reference to its services in connection with our wounded at Wandsworth Hospital.

She herself visited the hospital weekly from October till May, generally on Sundays and often accompanied by Mr. E. R. Morris. The 3rd London General Hospital at Wandsworth has become a household word with Newfoundlanders. It was under the direction and control of Col. Bruce Porter, the well-known and beloved physician, and since his departure to Salonika, under that of Sir Alfred Pearce-Gould, another celebrated doctor. Most of the soldiers received there are our own Newfoundlanders or their friends the Anacs. The building is an immense one, formerly an industrial school, situated on the open Wandsworth Common. It has a very fine medical and nursing staff. At first the great majority of our men who entered the hospital were from Gallipoli, suffering from the Gallipoli sickness, as it is called. Continuing, Lady Morris told in vivid language how she happened to be at Wandsworth Hospital on the 6th of July and there learned of the great action of the 1st and the losses to the battalion. Her horror and amazement could be imagined when she heard the news and saw the corroboration of it in the numbers of the boys there, many of them familiar faces to her, and the shock of the battle still in their eyes. With mingled pride and sorrow she heard the story from them, and passed from one ward to another greeting the sufferers in turn. She met all counts of time, and broke all the rules of the institution, she was told, by overstaying the allotted time in her work of sympathy.

Other hospitals besides Wandsworth received our wounded, and she visited 15 of them at St. Thomas'. Everywhere the nurses could not say enough in praise of the cheerfulness, gratitude and winning ways of our boys. She explained how difficult it often was exactly to locate some of the wounded, and gave some illustrations as example. She made touching reference to the marks of love and honor with which such of the men, fortunately few, as died in hospital were laid to rest. The speaker then passed on to an account of the Convalescent Homes, mentioning particularly the beautiful home provided at Brooklands by the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Locke-King. The whole of their fine house, with the exception of a couple of living rooms, and the spacious grounds, have been given up to the accommodation of convalescent soldiers from overseas, and Mrs. Locke-King devoted her whole time to the grateful occupants. Following discharge from convalescent homes, soldiers are usually given furlough, and their wants at that time are supplied by Clubs, which Lady Morris proceeded to describe. That in which Newfoundlanders is especially interested is the Peel House Club, at the opening of which she was present. The Club is part of a gift to convalescent soldiers from Sir Edward Henry, Commissioner of Police, and its great success is due mostly to the efforts of Mrs. Moncrieff, sister-in-law of Sir Ian Hamilton, and Hon. Mrs. Graham Murray. The Club is splendidly equipped with every convenience and comfort, and many ladies high in the land consider it a privilege personally to minister to the wants of the brave patients.

Lady Morris referred also, in this connection, to another club, the Ocean, inaugurated in connection with the Victoria League, on the Committee of which she represented Newfoundland. This club is contained in a house, the gift of Mrs. Spencer Clay, in Berkeley Square, London. It is beautifully situated, and fitted out for the accommodation of Overseas soldiers. Its Committee contains many distinguished names.

Concluding a most interesting and instructive address, Lady Morris spoke of the strangely intense love all the Newfoundland boys have for Scotland, whither they almost invariably ask to be sent when possible. Whether it was the beautiful scenery, so like our own, or the kindly Scottish people that appealed to them she could not say, but certain it was that the change from the mud and rain of Salisbury Plain to the lakes and valleys of Fort George was a delightful one to our lads, and has endeared Scotland to them ever since. She paid a particular tribute to Ayr and Newfoundland's ceaseless association with it, and closed her address, which was followed with the keenest interest and closest attention, with the words: "As the proud mother of a Newfoundland soldier, I say to you, in the words of General Hunter Weston, 'Newfoundlanders, I salute you.'"

Incandescent Gas Lighting.
 The remarkable economy of the incandescent gas lamp is by no means either its chief—or even an important—claim for popularity. It meets better than any other source of artificial light the requirements of ideal light.

In the color of the light produced it is far superior to any other illuminant in general and universal use. The investigations of acknowledged authorities indicate that for the approximation of artificial daylight the gas mantle has at least one and one-half times the value of the carbon-filament electric lamp. The quality is highly desirable, indeed absolutely essential where the approximation of daylight color values is important. For lighting shops, displaying haberdashery, suitings, gowns, millinery, etc., the incandescent gas lamp is not even remotely approached by any other incandescent lamp.

Of all the manifold advantages of gas light, perhaps the most important is its favourable effect upon the eyes. The development of the incandescent electric lamp with its intense brilliant and glaring filament has been accompanied by hitherto unheard-of prevalence of eye troubles and diseases which are forcing themselves upon the attention of the medical fraternity. This is resulting in a greater appreciation of the soft mellow quality of gas light and is rapidly enlarging its field of use.—July 23, 1916.

Are There Misgivings at Berlin?
 (New York Su.)
 From Berlin by way of Stockholm comes a speculation that official Berlin fears that the war is lost, because the munition output of the Entente Allies is greater than that of the Teutonic allies, and because the latter are at a serious disadvantage as regards reserves of men. The Germans, it is said—the authority is anonymous but vouched for as well informed—believe that they can hold on the western front for another year, but in the end must give way. Accordingly they will prosecute the war hereafter in such a manner as to wring from the enemy a peace settlement in the nature of a compromise.
 All this is plausible, and it may be asked whether the Kaiser's address to his army on the Somme does not reflect the impression, in spite of his pious invocations, that the Berlin informant seeks to convey. There is the color of discouragement in the Kaiser's assurance to his troops that "from all German regions you stand like a metal wall of German sense of duty and self-devoted valor, fighting to the last breath"; also in the allusions to "French insolence and British stubbornness," and to the fact that "the German people stand in a tenacious struggle against half the world and against a manifold superiority of numbers."
 Very different is the tone of this salutation from that of early bulletins of victory, in which vainglory and confidence in the war's issue were conspicuous and the aid of the Almighty was counted on. The new form of address seems to anticipate the necessity of preparing the German people for an awakening from their dreams of conquest and expansion.
"Sunset Glow."
 North Sydney, Nov. 14.—One of the finest sailing vessels yet to enter this port is now at the terminus wharf here loading flour for Belleoram. Nfd. She is the "Sunset Glow" a splendid three master of 297 tons register, recently built in the well known McGill yard at Shelburne, for Harvey & Co., St. John's, Nfld., and is now enroute from Shelburne to Harvey's branch business at Belleoram. The construction and outfit of the craft are of the highest standard and she is classed A-1 at Lloyd's for 12 years. She was metal sheathed on the stocks and has besides all the modern appliances including hoisting outfit for handling cargo, sails and weighing anchor, etc. She will engage in the fish carrying business between Newfoundland and Mediterranean ports.
 The schr. Moran also owned by Harvey's sailed yesterday with 1,200 barrels of flour, which she will discharge at Rose Blanche and Belleoram.

War News.

Messages Received Previous to 9 A. M.

SERBIAN OFFICIAL.
SALONIKA, Nov. 16.
The Serbian official issued to-day says: We continued to pursue the enemy yesterday on the left bank of the Cerna. Supported by fresh troops the enemy made a strong stand on the line Ivesh-Yarashook, which had since been fortified. After determined fighting we succeeded in breaking seriously this line at several points, and the villages of Chagol, Balidast, Negerochani and Yarashook Monastery have been wrested from the enemy. On the right bank of the Cerna the enemy has been compelled to abandon his principal line of defence and retire in the direction of Monastir. The Bulgars have been driven from the villages of Eakri, Gout, Jegri, Sedno-Jegri and Don Jegri, as well as from the town of Kenali. We have taken 500 Bulgar-German prisoners and captured several machine guns and other war material.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL.
PETROGRAD, Nov. 16.
An official announcement made public here to-day records a Russian victory over the Turks in the vicinity of Sulzabad in Persia, 150 miles southwest of Teheran.

PARIS OFFICIAL.
PARIS, Nov. 16.
North of the Somme the enemy did not renew his attack against our front. South of the Somme we attacked during the night the eastern part of Pressoire occupied by the enemy, but where French elements still resisted with admirable energy. Thanks to this tenacity and magnificent resistance we threw the Germans from the village after a fierce struggle and under a fierce bombardment. Pressoire is again entirely in our hands, and the gains of the 7th of November are maintained everywhere. According to information, the Germans employed troops belonging to three different divisions. Heavy losses are the only result of this serious enemy failure.

ONLY A FORERUNNER.
LONDON, Nov. 16.
General Maurice, chief director of military operations at the War Office, in an interview with the Associated Press to-day, predicted the British gains in the Ancre Valley were only a forerunner of further equally important advances which will be made on the western front during the winter months. Our success on the Ancre, he said, means we are not going to give the enemy much rest this winter. It means that whenever the weather will permit we are going to attack and subject the enemy to unnecessary pressure during the winter so as to prevent as far as possible the Germans from establishing themselves in new positions.

VIOLENT ATTACK ON ROMANIAN LINES.
BUCHAREST, Nov. 16.
The Rumanian War Office states that a violent attack on the Rumanian lines in the district northeast of Campolung was repulsed with heavy losses to the assaulting forces. Conditions along the Danube are reported unchanged.

TRANSPORT SUNK.
BERLIN, Nov. 16.
The following announcement was made to-day by the Admiralty: A German submarine on Nov. 15th, 80 miles west of Malta, sunk with a torpedo a hostile transport steamer of about 12,000 tons sailing under a convoy of destroyers and patrol boats.

EVIDENTLY THE SAME ANNOUNCEMENT.
BERLIN, Nov. 16.
(By wireless despatch.)—The cable despatch from London evidently referred to the same announcement as that from the German Admiralty. Discrepancies as to the date and place of the occurrence probably are due to errors in transmission. The date given in the wireless despatch, Nov. 15th, is probably incorrect. Ordinary reports of operations by German submarines in the Mediterranean do not reach Berlin until a week or more after the events to which they relate have occurred.

NEWSPAPER COMMENT ON AMERICAN PROTEST.
LONDON, Nov. 16.
Commenting on the announcement from Washington that instructions sent the American Charge d'Affairs at Berlin to take up with the German Government the matter of the deportation of Belgian civilians into Germany the Manchester Guardian says: "The plain man will think this amounts to a protest," adding "if such a measure is conveyed to the German Chancellor we welcome it not because any change in German policy will likely follow, but because it is at any rate a declaration that these latest German offences concern not only the Powers at large but America also, and by inference the whole of humanity." While short informal judgment on some of the German abominations in the conduct of the war, the Guardian says: "America is doing good service to the cause of humanity and is giving powerful reinforcements to the cause of the Allies, who are pronounced, however, informally, her opinion on German conduct of the war."

O'LEARY DEFEAT HENLY.
LONDON, Nov. 16.
J. O'Leary, Irish Nationalist and adherent of Redmond, has been elected to the Commons from the West Division of Cork County. O'Leary had a plurality of 117 votes over the number cast for his chief opponent, Frank (See 9th page.)

Charge It.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Do you have any charge accounts?
I can just imagine the horrified
look on the faces of those of my friends as they mentally answer,
"NO!"

And I know just how they feel. A charge account ought not to make one extra-pleasant. It costs
no less to pay for things a month

later than when you buy them.
But somehow it is apt to make one a little less watchful about money, unless one is very strong-minded.
I once protested that I could be impervious to the dangerous influence of "Charge It," but at the end of a year I realized that I had several things in my possession that I would never have thought if I had had to take the actual money out of my purse instead of saying "Charge It."

We All Carry One Charge Account.

How unfortunate it is that most of us, even my horrified reader friends who are so sure they never would, must, why nilly, carry one very big,
very important charge account.

I refer to the charge account in health which we all carry with Dame Nature.

I have a friend who for many years boasted of her wonderful digestion and laughed at the ordinary precautions which most people take.

She ate her meals any old time.
She thought nothing of taking a bath directly after eating.

She thought nothing could hurt her.
She frequently bolted down a meal and ran for a train.

And when people said, "this or that was bad for her" she said, "Nonsense."

C. P. EAGAN,

DUCKWORTH STREET & QUEEN'S ROAD.

I've never had a bit of indigestion in my life."

About a year ago this woman began to suffer from indigestion. It grew steadily worse. Ordinary remedies did it no good. Last week she went to a sanitarium.

You see, she is paying a long, long charge account with Dame Nature.

If each indigestion had been paid for at the time, there would have been fewer. But she charged them and now she finds the account an embarrassing one.

Pay Cash For Indiscretions Has Advantages.

People who live on their nerves are running up long accounts in the same way.

People with delicate health do have to pay for their indiscretions at once, and I think that is why they often out-live strong, healthy folks.

When you take a vacation, when you relax, when you let up on yourself, you are paying something on account.

And remember, Nature is always a more lenient creditor to those who show their good intentions in this way.

Minard's Linctum Co., Limited.
Gentlemen,—In July 1915 I was thrown from a road machine, injuring my hip and back badly and was obliged to use a crutch for 14 months. In Sept., 1906, Mr. W. R. Outridge of Lachute urged me to try MINARD'S LINCTUM, which I did with the most satisfactory results and to-day
I am as well as ever in my life.

Mr. W. H. Jones Addresses St. Thomas's M. B. C.

The weekly meeting of St. Thomas's Men's Bible Class was held last night. There was a good attendance.
Mr. W. H. Jones gave an address on "The Wonders of the Bible." He showed in what a wonderful way the Bible had been written and preserved for us, and what wonders it had done for individuals during the centuries, citing instances of some he personally knew of. The address was very encouraging and greatly appreciated.
The meeting closed with a short but splendid address by the Rector, in which he asked all present to strive to do better and take greater advantage of the privileges we possess in having such opportunities of prayer and Bible study. The Class meets every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, and all men are cordially invited to attend.
The subject next week will be "The Ragged Army."

Laborers Get Another Increase.

Yesterday the Employers' Protective Association held a meeting in the Board of Trade Rooms for the purpose of discussing the high cost of living in relation to workmen's wages. It was decided that after Monday next that members of the Longshoremen's Union will receive a fifteen per cent.
increase on their weekly earnings.
Considering the fact that the agreement between the Union men and the employers at the present rate of wages does not expire till April next year, the increase will no doubt be appreciated by the workmen of St.
John's. President McGrath of the Longshoremen's Union has been notified of the increase.

FISH STEAMER TORPEDOED.

The S. S. Barbara, mentioned in a despatch yesterday from London to have been sunk, supposedly by a German submarine, was on her way to this port from Barry, England, which she left on November 8th. She was chartered to load codfish here for Mediterranean ports.

Sensation of Being Shot

British "Non-Com" Describes Agonizing Wait for Medical Assistance.

A non-commissioned officer in the British Army has written the following sketch of what he felt when he was caught in machine gun fire and of the care bestowed upon him by the army surgeon who came to his assistance:

"I don't know," he says, "what most men feel like when they are wounded.
What I felt like was that I had been hit by a tremendous iron hammer, and then twisted with a sickening sort of wrench so that my back banged on the ground and my feet struggled as though they didn't belong to me. For a second or two my breath wouldn't come. I thought 'this is death' and hoped it wouldn't take long. By and by, as nothing happened, I thought I couldn't be dying. I tried to turn on my side, but the pain stopped me dead. There was nothing to do but to lie still on my back. After a few minutes two men in my platoon crawled past at a few yards' distance. They saw me and seemed to be laughing, but they didn't stop. Probably they were wounded. I could have cried at their being so cruel.

"It's being cut off from human beings that's as bad as anything when one's wounded, and when a lad wriggled up to me and asked what was up I loved him. I said, 'Not dying, I think but pretty bad,' and he wriggled on.
What else could he do? Then I raised my knees to ease the pain in my stomach, and at once bullets came over; so I put them down.

"It didn't bother me much when the Germans began shelling the trench about eighty to 100 yards behind me—with heavies. One heard them starting a long way off, and coming toward one with a glorious rush, like the swift rustling of enormous and incredibly powerful pistons. Then there was a thump, and I was covered with earth. After about the thirtieth thump something hit me in the stomach and took my wind. I thought,
'Thank Heaven, it's over this time,' but it was only an extra heavy sod of earth."

VAIN GERMAN ASSAULTS.

PARIS, To-day. The German attack on Abincourt and Pressire on the Somme front yesterday was an attempt to break through the French lines, over an extent of two and a half miles. The attacking force consisted of a division and a half in the morning, and a division and a half in the afternoon, its whole strength being directed against two villages. The division was formed of select regiments, chiefly Prussians, of whom some were Gelards and Hanoverians. Six successive waves swept down upon the villages between 7.30 o'clock and 10.45 in the morning. Before the afternoon had ended Pressire had been attacked two times. It was reported in the course of these attempts that they are now rendered vain by the French operations last night. Some regiments engaged lost 60 per cent of their effectives.

NO ADVANCE IN LEATHER.

CHICAGO, To-day. Five hundred members of the National Association of Tanners at the annual convention here to-day said there would be no advance in shoe leather unless the Government at war make too high a demand on the surplus stock now in the hands of the tanners and shoe manufacturers. Hides and skins, however, are declared to be scarce.

WAR REVIEW.

LONDON, To-day. The situation east of Gorizia is made somewhat obscure by the varied claims of the Vienna and Rome war offices, both of which record successes for their respective armies. Vienna asserts that the Austrians captured another Italian trench in this district together with 20 prisoners and two machine guns, while Rome records the occupation of trenches evacuated by the Italian Tenth Army. In the Adriatic the Entente troops continue to press the Teutonic Allies in the Cerna River region, according to the Serbian war office, they have seriously broken their lines both east and west of Cerna, southeast of Monastir, capturing four additional villages east of the river, and on the west side are driving them back from several additional points towards Monastir. Berlin admits that on the Cerna River the Bulgarian-German forces have left the old and occupied newly prepared positions. To the east the British have taken the town of Karalaka on the east side of Lake Tahnos. The Austro-German armies in the Transylvanian theatre in the Alt and Jull Valley have forced the further retirement of the Rumanians and also made progress in the Rotherthurn and Szurdok Pass regions, taking 1,300 men prisoners. On the west Moldavia from the Russian attacks east of the Putra Valley were put down by the Teutonic Allies, as also was an offensive in the vicinity of Oltuz Pass. While Berlin asserts that there have been only minor engagements in Dobruja, Petrograd reports the Russians made further progress southward and that the Teutonic Allies continue to retire burning villages behind them. There is a denial from Berlin

ASKS U. S. A. TO INTERVENE.

WASHINGTON, To-day. An appeal for active intervention by the States to stop the deportation of Belgian workmen into Germany was presented to the State Department by E. Havenith, Belgian Minister. "The Belgians," Havenith said, "are practically being compelled to fight against their own country contrary to the laws of nations and of humanity."

DEUTSCHLAND OFF AGAIN.

NEW LONDON, Conn., To-day. The Deutschland, the German submarine which arrived here on November 1st, slipped out of the harbour at an early hour to-day bound for Bremen. She left the State pier at 1.30 p.m. and was towed down the harbor by two tugs.

FOOD RESOLUTION CARRIED.

LONDON, To-day. The Commons without a division yesterday, carried the resolution introduced by William Ewins, Unionist, prior to the statement of the question of food supply by Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade. The resolution follows: "In the opinion of the House it is the duty of the Government to further methods and organization to increase and conserve the national food supply and diminish the risk of shortage and the serious increase of prices in the event of the war being prolonged."

ROQUES PRESENTS ALLIES DEMANDS.

LONDON, To-day. Details of the demands made upon King Constantine of Greece by General Roques, French Minister of War, as proofs of the monarch's friendliness toward the Entente are given in a despatch from Athens. According to this despatch General Roques has given a memo regarding the demands to Premier Lambros, to whom he was referred by King Constantine. It is stated that the memo calls for the use of Greek railroads by the Allies, the surrender of a quantity of artillery, the expulsion of a number of supposed German Agents, and the occupation of a specified neutral zone by French troops.

DEUTSCHLAND MAKING A NEW HISTORY.

NEW LONDON, Conn., To-day. Seven members of the crew of one of the tugs which accompanied the German submarine Deutschland from New London early to-day on her return trip to Bremen, were drowned when the submersible and tug collided in the race about twelve miles from this port. The only person on the tug saved was Capt. Fred Hirsch of the German interned liner Neckar. The tug wrecked went to the bottom. The Deutschland returned to her dock at 5.15 a.m. The officials declined to discuss the accident or to tell the extent of the damage inflicted on the submarine. The tug and submarine came together in a relatively smooth sea, when it was apparent that the tug was fatally rammed. The crew jumped overboard. Capt. Hirsch swam to a life preserver thrown out by the Deutschland's crew. The Deutschland dived out of her pocket at the pier of the Eastern Forwarding Company at 1 o'clock this morning accompanied by the tugs T. A. Scott and the Alert. She carried on her homeward dash a cargo valued at $200,000 and consisting of nickel, rubber and silver bars. The trip down the harbor was without incident and when last seen by a news-press launch the submarine was plunging through a smooth sea at the rate of 12 knots an hour headed for Montank Point. The newspaper launch returned here after following the submarine several miles.

BAN ON IMPORTED JEWELLERY.

LONDON, To-day. The King yesterday signed a proclamation prohibiting the importation of Jewellery and all gold and silver manufactures except watch cases.

A NEUTRAL ZONE IN GREECE.

LONDON, To-day. General Roques, French Minister of War, has informed the Greek Government that General Sarrajl has sent troops to maintain a neutral zone along the frontier of old Greece, according to a despatch to the Times from Athens. The despatches say that Premier Lambros acquiesced in principle to this step. It adds that the Allies only propose to use a section of the Greek railroad for a supply service to Salonika.

DAILY NEWS CUTS DOWN ITS PAGES.

LONDON, To-day. In order to assist the Government's efforts toward a maximum economy in the use of shipping, the London Daily News announces that it will cut down the size of its issue to six pages. It is expected that other papers will follow the suit of the Daily News.

GERMANS LOST MANY TORPEDO BOATS.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to Reuters' Telegram Company from Petrograd says the Admiralty staff has issued a communication announcing that in accordance with the latest information of the recent German attack in the Gulf of Finland, and comparing the number of explosions heard in the fog with the reports from Russian warships engaged, it is possible to affirm that the Germans lost between six and nine torpedo boats. This suggestion, the communication adds, is confirmed by the examination of the wreckage, which also shows that the destroyed vessels were of modern type and the biggest vessels in this class.

NO SEPARATE PEACE FOR RUSSIA.

PETROGRAD, To-day. The Minister of Foreign Affairs has sent telegrams to all the Russian representatives in Allied countries declaring Russia's firm determination not to make a separate peace under any circumstances, says a semi-official news agency.

Reported Missing.

It was reported at the Police Station last night, that John Cummings, a seaman of the S.S. Nascopee, was missing and that it was supposed he had met his death by drowning. This morning Sergeant Noseworthy and a couple of policemen brought a supply of jiggers to Harvey's wharf where the Nascopee is moored and dragged the bottom, but found nothing in the nature of a human form. The seaman was last seen going ashore at 8 o'clock last night, and since then he has not showed up on board. However, his disappearance is not causing any anxiety to the officers of the ship, as they believe he is only remaining ashore with friends for a few hours to break the monotony of sea life. The drowning theory is considered to be a myth and what led up to it is that Cummings' cap was found near the edge of Harvey's wharf, though it was later ascertained that his cap was seen blowing away from his head by two workmen of the premises in the early part of the evening.

McMurdo's Store News

FRIDAY, Nov. 17, 1916. To-day we make the announcement that we have just placed upon the local market two new brands of Talcum Powder, Lazell's Japanese Honey-suckle and Lazell's Sweet Pea Talcum. If these were ordinary talcum powders they would be hardly worth mentioning in this column, for new talcum powders are almost as thick as autumnal leaves that strew the brook at "Vallombrosa," and most of them wither in reputation just as fast. But Lazell's Talcums—all of them—are all extremely dainty in odor and insupportable in texture, and these two new ones are good examples of this class. Japanese Honey-suckle and Sweet Pea Perfumes (Lazell's) both have a considerable reputation, and the powders give faithful reproductions of their respective odors. Price (each) 25c. a tin.

Annual Meeting of the W.P.A.

The Women's Patriotic Association held its annual meeting in the British Hall yesterday. Lady Davidson presiding over a very full attendance. The distinguished President laid emphasis in her opening address upon the need of comforts for our men in the trenches: Mittens in particular cannot be too generously supplied. She spoke in high terms of the work done by Mrs. C. P. Ayre, and those who assisted her in the collection and preparation of sphagnum moss for dressings and other medical purposes. In addition to the report of the Hon. Secretary, Mrs. (Dr.) Macpherson, statements were read of the various committees by Lady Horwood, Mrs. Emerson, Mrs. D. Baird, Mrs. Clift, Mrs. Browning, Mrs. Cashin, Mrs. Job and Miss Hayward. The Secretary's report showed that since January last and up to June the following shipments had been made to the Regiment: 17,790 pairs of socks, 4,234 shirts, 1,320 mufflers and 2,960 pairs of mittens. For the Packing and Shipping Committee Miss Hayward reported that during the year ending September 1st last the outport branches of the Association had forwarded 14,750 pairs of socks, 791 pairs of mitts, 140 pillows, 77 pillow-slips, 60 handkerchiefs and 1,567 shirts. Altogether in the last two years no less than 62,685 pairs of socks have been sent across to England, a splendid record.

In addition to this regular business, addresses were delivered by Lady Morris and Surgeon-Capt. Paterson. A resume of the former appears to-day in another column. At the conclusion of the meeting votes of thanks were passed to the Furness Witty Co., who forwarded goods free of charge; to Mr. Sheard, of the Seamen's Institute; to Mr. White, of the Nfld. Clothing Co., who assisted in the packing of the parcels; and to Mr. Reg. Harvey who gave his services as shipping clerk.

DO YOU KNOW RILEY?

James Whitcomb Riley, of whom Mary E. Wilkins Freeman said: "One might as well try to make a home attractive without flowers as without the grace of James Whitcomb Riley's verses."

Of whom Booth Tarkington said: "He was the first and the foremost distinctively American poet and at the time of his death he was the greatest American."

And of whom a Poet has sung: "The world was gettin' dreary, there was too much sigh an' frown in this vale o' moral strivin', so God sent Jim Riley down."

An' he said: "Go there an' cheer 'em in your good old fashioned way. With your songs of tender sweetness, but don't make your plans to stay 'cos you're needed up in Heaven, I am lendin' you to men."

Just to help 'em with your music, but I'll wait you back again."

An' Riley came, an' mortals heard the music of his voice. An' they caught his songs o' beauty an' they started to rejoice; An' they leaned on him in sorrow, an' they shared with him their joys An' they walked with him the path-ways that they knew when they were boys.

But the Heavenly angel missed him, missed his tender, gentle knock of making people happy, an' they wanted Riley back.

Here are his Poems:— Riley Child Rhymes—A collection of the favorite child-rhymes, including "Little Orphan Annie," etc. Riley Love Lyrics—The favorite passionate and tender love poems, including "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," etc.

Riley Farm Rhymes—The many poems by Mr. Riley in which is mirrored his love of the great outdoors. Riley Songs of Cheer—A collection of the favorites of Mr. Riley's poems of gladness, content and consolation. Riley Songs of Summer—The loveliest and best-loved poems about summer and the out-door summer land.

Riley Songs of Home—A collection of the best-loved songs, sounding the note of fireside joy, and homely philosophy. Riley Songs of Friendship—Half a hundred poems here—including favorites that voice in homely fashion the poet's greetings.

Another Big Recruiting Meeting Last Night.

CROWD ADDRESSED BY LIEUT. ERNEST CHURCHILL AND HON. J. ALEX. ROBINSON, P. M. G.

Another big crowd assembled in Baird's Cove last night and were addressed by Lieut. Ernest Churchill, a returned invalided veteran, and the Hon. J. Alex. Robinson, P. M. G. In a strong clear voice that could be plainly heard and understood by the big crowd Lieut. Churchill in a soldier-like manner related his experiences at Caribou Hill, where the late Capt. Donnelly, Lieut. Ross and their men did such great work and captured and held the hill under great difficulties. Lieut. Churchill, commanding fifty of our boys, many of whom have since laid down their lives, advanced to the assistance of Captain Donnelly and by their efforts were successful in beating off the counter-attacks of the Turks. There are a number of young men who spend their time at the Nickel and other places of amusement and are now looking forward to the opening of the rink, when the great and glorious British Empire is calling for men and still more men. "Remember," said he, "the boys that are gone were every bit as good sports as you are." To the young men in the outposts he urged to give up their cosy corners near the fireside and come forward and bait their hooks to catch the German War Lords.

The Postmaster General in addressing the gathering congratulated the previous speaker on his soldierly and magnificent address. "Young men of Newfoundland," he said, "how can you remain at home when so many of your countrymen have gone forth to fight for and protect your mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts? Don't think because the city is again lighted up that the danger is passed, for if the Hun should triumph every man between the age of 18 and 55 would become a German conscript and would be compelled to fight for the Prussian war lords, whether he liked it or not. If at this moment there should be a cry from a person in distress in the harbour yonder this great crowd would surge forward to his or her assistance. You would not hesitate, but would jump into the icy cold water and in all probability would sacrifice your own life in an attempt to save another's. Knowing that to be true, how can you resist the great call of your country, who needs your assistance to protect your fathers, mothers, wives sisters and younger brothers from falling into the brutal hands of the barbaric Hun?" In concluding his address, he called to the young men to come over to the recruiting station. If they would take a man of 55 he would be willing to enlist himself.

The T. A. Band assisted in the parade and played several patriotic airs. Those to enlist were:— J. B. Powell, Cupids, C. B. T. Rostor, Cape Broyle; Jas. Ryall, W. J.

A BLOOD-FOOD NOW MANUFACTURED THAT ACCOMPLISHES MARVELS.

Lots of people that were thin and miserable for years have, recently been restored by this simple treatment. All you have to do is take two little chocolate-coated tablets with a sip of water at the close of each meal.

The tablets which, by the way, are called "Ferrozone," are in reality a perfect food for the blood. They contain exactly those elements your blood lacks when it becomes thin, weak, and unhealthy.

This is just the time to use Ferrozone; it excites splendid appetite, gives digestion splendid aid, supplies nourishment for all weak organs. At once you feel buoyant and strong.

Nutritious blood courses through your veins, supplies strength, makes you tingle with almaton and ambition. No more headaches.

None of that tired languor. You feel like doing things because Ferrozone completely renews and strengthens your whole system.

No medicine on earth gives such quick, lasting benefits as Ferrozone. It has raised thousands from downright weakness, brings robust health simply because it contains the fortifying elements that run-down systems require.

One week after using Ferrozone you'll feel like new, you'll appreciate what real robust health means. In a month you'll scarcely credit the push your vigor and spirits have received. Ferrozone is more than a tonic because its work lasts, its benefits remain and are not temporary. It restores health where other treatments fail, and should be used by every man woman and child. Try it, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all dealers or by mail from The Cattarhozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? When a cough starts there's no telling where it will end. "Victory for Germany an Impossibility"
—Brusiloff.

London, Nov. 10.—Russia will save Rumania from the Teutonic menace this autumn and winter, and next spring will have the strongest army she has had since the war began, General Brusiloff told Stanley Washburn, the Times correspondent, at Russian headquarters on the Carpathian front yesterday. General Brusiloff commands all the Russian armies that made the great sweep into Galicia in the summer.

"I speak with authority when I say that from the common soldier up, the united sentiment of Russia is that Rumania should be protected, helped and supported in every possible way," said the Russian commander.

"The Rumanians must feel faith in the great heart of the Russian people," General Brusiloff continued. "They must know that in the efforts we are making to save them this sentiment is the dominant factor, not merely a question of our own self-interest to protect our flank left."

"Rumania is now feeling for the first time the pressure of war and the bitterness of defeat, but Rumania must realize that defeats are not incidents of a greater campaign. Behind her stands great Russia, who will see that her brave little ally who came into the war for a just cause does not ultimately suffer for daring to espouse the cause for which we are all fighting."

Enemy Has no Chance.
"Personally, never since the beginning have I believed that the enemy had a chance of winning. While they are able to continue successful offensives it is difficult for them to realize that they are not approaching a successful peace."

"This summer's operations mark a definite period of defeat. That period dates from the time when the Allies, co-ordinating their programmes, seized from the enemy the capacity for continuing the offensives and dictating their strategy to us."

"From the beginning of the operations this summer on the Russian southwestern front the enemy has lost control of the situation. In spite of his superhuman efforts to regain the initiative, he has utterly failed to do so. Again and again on this front the enemy's design to block our plans and throw us back on the defensive has been ruined by the valor and fortitude of our heroic troops."

"Simultaneously our brave allies on the west were beginning a summer's campaign which must by now have demonstrated to the German high command that with all its material, it can construct no defences which the French and British cannot surely, if slowly, destroy. Italy, too, has had successes."

Russia Strongest Next Year.
"If there remain any Germans who are still hopeful of their cause, let them realize that to-day when the Central Powers already have lost the initiative and are finding difficulty in refilling their ranks, Russia has not yet reached the zenith of her power."

"Surely, no intelligent German can expect victory. It is simply a question of how long they are willing to continue the war, or of which end is absolutely foreshadowed to-day."

"Russia's full power will only be approached next year, when we shall have the largest and best army since the beginning of the war. Even this year we have been obliged to conduct our offensive with an inferiority of material and heavy guns. Next year we shall have material in equality with the enemy and a superiority in human resources which will steadily increase as long as the war endures."

"The morale of the Russian people has been slowly rising for two years. It is my absolute personal conviction that if it were possible to take a vote of the entire population, 99 out of 100 Russians-to-day would demand the continuation of the war to a definite and final victory regardless of its price."

"Our new levies each year are equal to the best troops. I believe they are far superior to anything which the enemy can find to send against us in next year's campaign."
German Efforts Doomed.
"The recent temporary reverses of Rumania must not be considered as having the slightest significance. The enemy's trifling advance in the Dobruja, though a regrettable incident, will have no bearing upon the greater issues of the war."
"It would have been serious had the Germans been able to pierce the Carpathians and enter Rumania, but I believe this last attempt of theirs is doomed to perish as all other attempts of the summer campaign have perished."
A fetching white rabbit fur cap for a small child has stole on.
The wonderfully fine gold mesh bags are among the prettiest.

Weekly Meeting of City Fathers.

The regular weekly meeting of the Municipal Council took place last night. The Mayor presided and all the Councillors were present.

Tenders were received for the supplying of oats. Several dealers, who were notified, expressed their inability to quote. Mr. George Neal, who deals extensively in oats, stated he was not in a position to quote at present. Harvey & Co.'s tender to supply 1,000 sacks of black oats at $3.95 per sack, was accepted, as it was the lowest.

Tenders were opened for plumbing under the Small Homes Sewerage Act. A. Miller's tender being the lowest, was accepted.

The Gas Co. wrote that owing to the increased cost of coal, incidental expenses and abnormal conditions generally they cannot continue to supply street lamps after the end of the year at the old rate and suggested that a new contract be then drawn up. The old contract of ten years lapsed last July. The Council are prepared to enter into a new contract at the beginning of the year; meanwhile the Gas Co. will be asked to submit new rates.

Residents of Flower Hill and Clifford Street asked for a tank to replace the one removed recently. Referred to the Engineer.

William Moores was refused permission to build dwelling in Warberry Street.

Permission was asked by Jno. Hayes to build a shop on Pleasant St. Plans will have to be submitted.

C. J. Fox again wrote re Long's Hill. Matter deferred.

Messrs. J. E. Savage and R. Long, who had coal washed away from their residences a few days ago when a breakage in the main pipes occurred on Signal Hill, claimed the value of three-quarters of a ton each. Referred to the Solicitor for report.

Permission to extend wharf was asked by Ayre & Sons. Referred to Engineer.

The Nfld. Knitting Mills wrote asking if they could install automatic fire protection service. Engineer will report on same.

On behalf of a number of city employees, A. Mercer asked for rubber boots. Request refused.

W. White, Southside, complained that sanitary cars did not call there to remove ashes. Deferred.

On the approval of the Medical Health Officer, J. R. Johnston was given permission to buy a stable St. Plans will have to be submitted.

After the reading of the Engineer's and Road Inspector's reports the meeting adjourned.

Listen for the Bronchial Wheeze When You Breathe Deeply.

It means that disease will soon attack the lungs. Wheezing is distressing to the sufferer and annoying to his friends. Nothing half so certain as bronchitis and throat trouble as "Cattarhozone"; it gives instant relief and cures even the worst cases. Bronchitis fairly flees under the magic influence of Cattarhozone which cures so thoroughly the disease never returns. Other remedies may relieve, but Cattarhozone cures bronchitis, catarrh, and throat trouble for all time to come.

Beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Cattarhozone which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months treatment costs $1.00; small size, 50c.; sample size, 25c.

A Correction.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I notice in your columns of Saturday last that a G. W. Goolie, of Carbonear, is reported as missing in a Canadian casualty list.

This is meant for G. W. Foote, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Foote, of Foote's Hotel, Carbonear. He enlisted at Sydney, went in training at McNab's Island, was promoted to Sergeant and went to France with the N. S. Highlanders, and is now a prisoner of war at Dulmen, Germany.

I remain, very truly yours,
HARRY FOOTE.

ORNAMENTAL STREET LAMP.
There is a fine electric lamp, situated at the junction of Victoria and Gower Streets, but it has become noted for the countless times it has not been lit. The thoroughfare referred to is an important one and should have a light there at night, or what's the use of a lamp there? We direct the Reid Co.'s attention to the matter.

Your Boys and Girls.

Every mother of young children should look carefully after the heat of the house. She should have a thermometer fastened outside the window, not where the sun will shine on it all day, but in an unprotected place where the winter winds will strike it. By this she can tell how warmly to wrap up the youngsters or whether it is a fit day for them to play anywhere except in a protected sunny place.

A very young child ought not play out-of-doors very long if the thermometer is below zero, because little feet will get chilled unless great care is exercised.

Provided a child of four or older is well wrapped up and the sun is shining a brisk walk or play can be enjoyed at almost any low temperature provided the body keeps moving and the door permits.

THE STATESMEN.

Oh, what's the use of statesmanship, with all its advertising? Expenses never lose their grip, and costs are ever rising. We've listened through a long campaign to a statesman's endless chatter; they've tried to make all subjects plain, save those that really matter. Why do we find this life so hard? Why are we always busted? With statesmen evermore on guard, our bills should be adjusted. The statesman in your neighbourhood will hand you countless pledges, but when it comes to making good, that statesman always hedges. The statesman talk of abstract things, of bogeymen alarming; they lend imagination wings, and make their discourse charming. But still the price goes up and up, on all we must be buying, and for a chance to dine or sup, we hear the children crying. The statesman talk their empty truck, and make the welkin quiver, and while they feed on roasted duck, we fill ourselves with liver.

Everyday Etiquette.

"I want to entertain some friends who are unmarried. Is it necessary to have a chaperon?" asked a bachelor of his sister.

"You should certainly ask a married woman to act as a chaperon and it is well to ask her husband also. You should also escort the chaperon to the table," replied his sister.

A REQUEST From the Trenches.

Numbers of letters from those of our boys fighting in France contain the request that a small quantity of good tea be sent them for their private supply.
