A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XII.

The women, even the titled ones, were dressed quietly enough; but Carrie caught the gleam of diamonds and felt still more strongly that Maida was right.

As the Carrington party entered, Lady Glassbury came forward to meet them.

"So glad to see you," she said in her frank way. "So sorry we were both out." Then she stopped short and stared at Maida. "Why—It is Miss Carrington, isn't it?" she exclaimed, not loudly, but with evident amazement.

"Yes," said Maida. "It is very kind of you to remember me, Lady Glassbury."

It was the right thing to say, and even in that trying moment Lady Glassbury appreciated it.

"Remember you! It would be quite impossible to forget you, my dear. But I don't understand—How foolish of me not to recognize the name—to connect—And this is your sister? I am so glad."

She looked round, as she shook hands with the men, for Heroncourt. He had not come down yet—he never appeared until the last moment—and she wanted him to help her out.

"Come and let me introduce you to some friends—and neighbors of yours," she broke off, and she led them up to the first group.

The women turned with that well-bred assumption of not having seen the entry of the Carrington party, and the introductions were being made when Heroncourt came into the room with the air of leisurely self-possession which always characterized him. Like most men, he disliked a dinner-party, and there was just a suspicion of boredom struggling with a repression proper to a host on his handsome face.

He saw that Lady Glassbury had lost her usual equanimity about something, and went up to her.

"How do you do, Mr. Carrington—and you, Mr. Spinner?"

Then he moved from Mr. Carrington's flushed face to the ladies. Before he could address them a low cry rose from Carrie's parted lips.

"Why—it's you!" she exclaimed.

He looked at her, then swiftly at the tall, graceful girl in the black lace by her side. For a moment he stood speechless, the color rising slowly to his tanned face. On Maida's face the rose faded for a moment.

to white, then slowly ebbed back again.
"Miss Carrington!" he said as calmly as he could, and he held out his hand, and Maida gave him hers. Neither spoke, and it was Carrie's voice that came to their relief.
"Are you Lord Heroncourt?" she said in her frank, girlish way.
"That's my name right enough," he said, smiling gravely at her. "But you—I didn't know."
"We none of us knew!" broke in Carrie; then she laughed. "And so you are the gentleman—you are Lord Heroncourt? Oh, it is like a scene in a novel, don't you know?"
"I know," he assented, promptly. "You shall explain how it happens that you—you—"
"That we are we!" she flushed for him. "It's quite easy to explain. We have never been anything else but ourselves."
"And I have never been anything else by myself."
"Oh, yes, you have. You have been the 'Mysterious Stranger,'" broke in Carrie, her green-eyes dancing. "To think that you were Lord Heroncourt all this time, and we didn't know it!"
"Dinner is served, my lord," announced the solemn butler, and Heroncourt reluctantly hurried away to take in Lady Walmington.
Maida fell to Sir Edmund. She had been astonished at the dramatic discovery of her unknown knight's identity, and her heart was beating with something other than surprise. Had she been thinking of him? she asked herself. Why should the mere fact of his proving to be Lord Heroncourt send the blood rushing through her veins? She fought against the subtle emotion and forced herself to raise her eyes and look at him calmly, and found his eyes fixed upon her with a strange expression in them. He smiled and looked away again, turning to a stranger expression in them. He smiled and looked away again, turning to a stranger expression in them. He smiled and looked away again, turning to a stranger expression in them.

pokey damp hole—but you'll see for yourself—

There was plenty of talking; but Heroncourt was for the most part silent. Every now and then his eyes wandered to the lovely face of the girl who had treated him so coldly, and his mind was going back to the night he had first seen her. What did it mean; from the dainty lodgings in Bloomsbury to the brand new splendours of the Towers?

Carrie was seated next Lord Glassbury. It was the first time she had wittingly—met an earl, and for the first few minutes she regarded him a trifle shyly; but no man or woman had succeeded in being long shy with Glassbury, and very soon he and Carrie were laughing like school-girl and school-boy.

"I say," he said, almost loud enough for Maida to hear, "what a beautiful girl your sister is, Miss Carrie. We don't grow 'em like that in these parts. Wish we did. Do you know, I've got an idea that I've met her before, but for the life of me I can't think where."

"It's very likely," said Carrie, demurely, "but you couldn't have been very much impressed by her if you've forgotten her, could you?"

"That's one to you!" exclaimed his lordship, with a laugh that made the glasses ring, and surprised Carrie, who had always understood that to laugh so loudly was bad manners.

"You're an awfully sharp little girl. I am just your height, Lord Glassbury—I noticed that I could see the top of your head when I came in," said Carrie.

"Where I comb my hairs over my bald spot; least, it's not quite bald. It's thinkin' so hard."

"Do you think that the sailor's parrot was bald, Lord Glassbury?"

"The sailor's parrot! Good Heavens! what's that to do with it? Oh, ah, I see! He couldn't talk, but he thought a lot. Hah! hah! Good, good, very good! Look here, Miss Carrie, you must come over and see us. Come and see my pigs—"

"As a frightful example, do you mean?" enquired Carrie. "I never saw so many things to eat in my life as there are here to-night. I'm bored to death of saying 'No thank you!'"

"Then say 'Yes, if you please,' for a change," suggested Glassbury, reaching for her glass.

ing for a bon-bon box in the centre of the table and upsetting a couple of glasses in the endeavour. "This is more in line, I'm sure."
"No, thank you; I have eaten sweets since I was a child. Oh, they're chocolate almonds! I must! I must! Oh, look at Maida looking at us. Don't laugh, please, Lord Glassbury, or I shall be sent to bed without my supper—"

"Do you mean to say that you'll eat supper after this?" he cried.
"Oh, yes; I'm not so strong as I look, and all the doctors say I must be kept up and not be contradicted. I always take gingerbread nuts to bed with me, so that I may have something to look forward to when I wake up."

It wasn't very brilliant, but it delighted the simple, boyish-minded Lord Glassbury, and before the meal was over, he and Carrie were the very best of friends, and felt as if they had known each other for years.

The dinner seemed interminable to Maida, and unusually long to Heroncourt, but at last Lady Glassbury rose, and the ladies followed her into the drawing-room. Heroncourt, when he had closed the door on them and got back to his place, leant forward and addressed Mr. Carrington.

"Have some claret, Mr. Carrington? A cigarette—we smoke here—I'm a bachelor, you know."
Mr. Carrington filled his glass. His face was rosy red, his eyes were glistening with pride and satisfaction. Not until this moment had he fully realized all that his newly acquired wealth meant. He was seated at the table of an earl, with noblemen and landed gentry all round him.

"Thank you, I don't mind if I do, my lord. As I was saying—he turned to Lord Walmington—"It was done in an hour, as you may say. I'd been watching the thing for months, it's true; but it was done in a moment. The Roaring Jane was worth nothing when I bought her. She's worth now—well, it is not for me to say; but you know the price the shares stand at. And you can't get 'em at that. For a very good reason, my lord!—and he tapped his breast-pocket and laughed triumphantly.

Then Heroncourt understood how the change from Coleridge Street to Margton Towers had come about.

"The men did not sit long, and the moment they entered the drawing-room Heroncourt went up to Maida.

"This room is hot, Miss Carrington," he said. "Will you come into the conservatory? There are some palms and things there—"

She rose, perfectly calm and with her serene step on, as Carrie called it, and as he drew the curtain aside to let her pass:

"I want to congratulate you," he said in his direct fashion.

"You mean because my father has become suddenly rich? Thank you, Lord Heroncourt!" she responded.

"I didn't know that you were at the Towers," he went on, "or I should have called before. Miss Carrington, are you sure that you have quite forgiven me for—for that night?"

"Quite," she said, with her rare smile. "Indeed, I had almost forgotten all about it—ah, but that is ungrateful!"

Questions.

- Can you put the spider's web back in its place that once has been swept away?
- Can you put the apple again on the branch which fell at our feet to-day?
- Can you put the ily cup back on the stem and cause it to live and grow?
- Can you mend the butterfly's broken wing that you crushed with a hasty blow?
- Can you put bloom again on the grape, or the grape again on the vine?
- Can you put the dewdrops back on the flowers, and make them sparkle and shine?
- Can you put the petals back on the rose? If you could, would it smell as sweet?
- Can you put the flower again in the husk, and show me the ripened wheat?
- Can you put the kernel back in the nut, or the broken egg in its shell?
- Can you put the honey back in the comb, and cover with wax each cell?
- Can you put the perfume back in the vase, when once it has sped away?
- Can you put the cornsilk back on the cob, or the down on the catkins say?
- You think that my "questions" are trifling, dear? Let me ask you another one.
- Can a hasty word be unsaid, or a deed unkind, undone?

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A PRETTY "PARTY" OR "BEST" DRESS.

2080—One could make this of dimity or dotted Swiss, of lawn or batiste. It is also nice for crepe and albatross, challie and lawn. In wash silk, with a finish of smocking, it will be very pleasing. The lines are simple and very little trimming will be required.

Lace edging and insertion, or bands of embroidery would make a pretty finish. Flouncing or bordered goods could be used for this model.
The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 1, 2, 3 and 4 years. It requires 2 3/4 yards of 27-inch material for a 4-year size.
A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A PRACTICAL, CONVENIENT MODEL.

1425—Ladies' House Dress, with Long or Short Sleeve.

For utility, comfort and convenience, this design has much to commend it. It closes in coat style, with the centre fronts overlapping. This assures easy and practical adjustment. An ample pocket is arranged over the side front. The waist is finished with a neat collar, and with cuffs for sleeve in short length. The long sleeve is dart fitted. The dart fulness may be cut away and the opening, thus made, be finished with a facing and underlap for buttons and buttonholes or other fasteners; then the sleeve may be turned back over the arm when desired. The Pattern is good for ging-ham, percale, lawn, seersucker, sois-ette, madras, dimity, drill or linen. It is cut in 7 sizes: 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6 1/4 yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Our Baseball Column.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

NEXT WEEK.

The Baseball season's nearly here and almost ere we know it the cheers of fans will smite the ear. With "Hold that ball" or "Throw it," with praise or blame each athlete's name will set your almost looney. Like "Run it, St." "Dat 'a boy," or "Hit it out, you Cooney."

Charley Quick to the bat will come and sneer at Pitcher Brown. While for a space thro' air will thrum Names to make poor Punky frown. To Shortstop McLeod Quick will send A grounder swift and hard, While McLeod chucks it to his friend First Baseman Doc Pritchard.

FAMOUS PITCHERS AND WHAT THEY SAY ON TRYING TO OUT-GUESS THE BATTER.

Christy Mathewson:—"I practically never try to outguess the batter. I used to be interested in such studies, but to my mind they're a fake. The science of mathematics doesn't bear them out. Outguessing the batter is a bad business and I gave it up long ago."

Walter Johnson:—"I try to outguess the batter a good deal of the time. I should say, offhand, about a quarter of the time. I think most pitchers try to outguess the batter, but I can readily understand why the greatest batters don't try to outguess the pitcher."

Carew (B.L.S.):—"I don't bother with such things. Some pitchers may, but I have never found it useful. My theory is not to try to outguess the batter, but to put so much stuff on the ball he will have hard work to hit it."

Cooney (Red Lions):—"I never tried to outguess any batters. I just pitched. But most pitchers do try to outguess the batters, I believe."

Britt (Wanderers):—"I spend practically all the time trying to fool the batter. The good pitcher is the one who is most successful at giving the batters something they are not looking for. I would easily rank this talent as first in a pitcher's assortment."

Hall (Cubs):—"Out of 100 balls or strikes that I pitch 60 are with the deliberate intention of trying to fool the batter. The combination of pitching to a batter's weakness and giving him something for which he is not prepared make up practically all of pitching art."

YOU SAID IT!

What sometimes passes as IRONY OF FATE is very often IVORY OF PATE.

JUST WAIT.

Just wait till you see Brazie-McGrath's new backstop—in action. Note only can he hold their pitchers' speediest offerings but his awaiting is simply superb.

And the Worst is Yet to Come--

FAMOUS BATTERS AND WHAT THEY SAY ON OUTGUESSING THE PITCHER.

Honus Wagner:—"Outguessing the pitcher, that's a hard proposition. Once in a while I will figure that a curve is about due or maybe a fast one, but not often. Most generally I aim to be ready for whatever comes. That's the only way in the long run."

Tyras Cobb:—"The pitcher's thoughts are his own. I am no mind reader, I don't know what he is thinking about and I don't care. It doesn't matter to me whether he throws a curve or a fast one, as long as he gets them over the plate where I can reach them."

Gloster (Cubs):—"If I had to depend upon my ability to foresee what the pitcher had in mind I would have been lucky to bat above .200 last year. There may be batters who help their average by this kind of guess-work, but I have no such ability myself. I have the notion that when I am at the plate the main thing for me to do is not to hypnotize the pitcher but to hit the ball."

Hiltz (Red Lions):—"Most good hitters are players who can hit anything and don't try to guess."

Harnett (Wanderers):—"Outguessing the pitcher looks like deep water to me. The odds are too heavy against it. The pitcher himself doesn't know till the last minute what he is going to throw, so how should I know?"

Channing (B.L.S.):—"A regular League player shouldn't have any batting weakness. He ought to be able to hit the curves as well as speed. So what's the use of pitchers trying to fool him?"

FAVORED.

The idea of playing baseball after supper has met with the general approval of both fans and players. It is likely the games will be run off each Tuesday and Thursday. The opening game will be played next week.

A SOUL IN REBELLION.

Everywhere I go people repulse me. No one seems to have time or kind sentiments for me. Yet I am not ugly. And I was once well liked in all places. Until I spoke out and told people what I will not utter--

I am not at all attracted by Max Carey's curve ball. Nor would I give a hoot in Halifax if he never showed me another. For once with the bases full and none out, McGrath sent for Carey. And he went on, and retired the side without scoring. And I had a $2 bet that the Irish would lose. Why should I be enthused about Carey?

Sometimes I marvel at my own coldness towards A. Hiltz. I try to make my stern nature riot in cheers for the Canadian Peach. Not a ripple. What do I care how he hits? I wish he wouldn't hit a single ball this season. One time he walked; then stole second and third; then he stole home while the pitcher was thinking. I lost much money on that occasion. No! I'm not wild about Cobb--I am wild at him.

I care not that Punky Brown is speedy. What does it get me that Punk can peg 'em so fastly? That the batters strike at the swish and the echo? Once in a practice game I faced Punky Brown. And the son-of-a-gun hit me. Ever since then I have wished for a night, a black alley. A rock in my hand and Punky Brown approaching. Do you blame me?

I am not thrilled by the frequent baseball poems that appear in your column. What! thrill me, those tables? When I was very small, my grandpa used to amuse me with legends originally penned by one Mrs. Goose. I am thinking Mrs. Goose could write baseball as well as your scribe does.

WATCH THE COLLEGE CUBS.

Tying with the Shamrocks in enlistments from their rosters are the plucky little College Cubs. With their team shattered to pieces a month ago, yet, with grim determination Manager Collins and Captain Clouston decided that the purple-and-white were not to be eliminated from the diamond this season. Despite the fact that all are youngsters they are likely to have the classiest line-up of any of the clubs, and it looks as if they will make someone step lively before the season is through. A strict censorship is being maintained regarding who is to play for them, though it is known that Hall will twirl and Clouston will backstop, while occupying their old infield positions will be Demon Duggan and Gerald St. John. Harry Lehr is on his way back from college and will be here for the opening game. Mgr. Collins will control the destinies of the Club from the bench this year, though if necessary this doughty old warrior has signified

Now, in war all things are fair From death no hero flinches. But when you run a baseball club You simply die by inches.

Masons to Celebrate Bi-Centenary.

The members of the various Masonic Lodges in the city will hold a joint church parade to-morrow afternoon, attending Divine Service at the Church of England Cathedral for the purpose of celebrating the bi-centenary of the foundation of the Grand Lodge of England, at which gathering Ancient, Free and Accepted, Masons met for the first time in London. District Grand Chaplain, Rev. Canon G. H. Bolt, M.A., will preach a sermon suitable for the occasion. On Monday night the brethren will meet in the Temple when an address will be delivered by the District Grand Master. At this gathering a collection will be taken up in aid of the Freemasons War Hospital in London.

Won Archbishop's Gold Medal.

At the distribution of prizes at the Academy of Mount St. Vincent, Halifax, Miss Catherine Harris, daughter of Mr. James Harris, Department of Public Works, won the silver medal presented by the Archbishop of Halifax for General Excellence. This young lady, before leaving St. John's last September, was a pupil at the Convent of Mercy, Military Road, where she won the Archbishop's gold medal, and also the gold medal presented by Rev. Father Rawlin. We congratulate Miss Harris upon her continued success.

I. W. A. to Import Coal

At the regular weekly meeting of the Industrial Workers' Association held last night in the L. S. P. U. Hall, the attendance was very large. After some discussion it was decided that the present rule governing qualification for membership remain as at present. So in future all persons who earn their living by manual work are entitled to join.

The Co-operative Committee reported that a cargo of coal could be procured at 1.50 a ton cheaper than the selling price now ruling. They were given instructions to close the contract and open a list of those who wished to buy quantities of the coal.

The Committee recommended that coal and freight rates should also come under the control of the Board of Food Control when it is appointed.

A letter to the Premier relative to food control was ordered to be read. The letter will be for publication on Monday.

Seventy new members signed the roll last night bringing the total strength to 402.

Fads and Fashions.

Bathing suits are made on the lines of the chemise frock. Gingham to be effective should be combined with white plaid. Foulard and mousseline make a good combination in a dress. A purple hat is very pretty when worn with a gray gown. Nautral colored pongee does away with the starch portions.

Coalition Arranged.

Between Football and Baseball To Aid The Red Cross.

We understand that negotiations have been finalised whereby the Football and Baseball Leagues will amalgamate for the season. The principal object of the coalition is to reduce the running expenses of playing both schedules, and in view of the fact that the entire proceeds of the games of each Association are to be devoted to the Red Cross. Fund a considerable saving can thus be effected and the donations from both Leagues greatly augmented. It is proposed to play Baseball two nights a week (which is quite feasible now that the Daylight Bill is in operation) and Football another two evenings. The executives of both Leagues will likely meet to-night to complete all details.

SATURDAY, June 23rd, 1917.

A LESSON IN LEGISLATION.

Yesterday Mr. Morris handed down a judgment in the Magistrate's Court in which he convicted a defendant of a breach of the Prohibition Act and imposed the minimum fine of $100.

The breach consisted in selling some bottles of Beef, Iron and Wine, a patent medicine manufactured locally, with which the purchaser managed to make himself badly intoxicated. The case is recognized to have been a test one. We hope the test will have its proper effect, for it should serve to lay bare several defects in the Act, which could easily have been foreseen and prevented, and a shameful neglect on the part of the Executive, which is wholly inexcusable. In simple justice to the defendant, with whom we sympathize, the fine should be paid by the officials who constitute "the Governor in Council." They are the real guilty parties.

Section 4 of the Prohibition Act prescribes a fine, ranging from $100 to $500, upon anyone who "sells, after the 1st day of January, 1917, any intoxicating liquors." Section 7 defines intoxicating liquors as "all ale, wines, malt, brewed or spirituous liquors containing two per cent. or upward of alcohol in volume, except such drugs and medicines as may be excepted by the Governor in Council, and wines for sacramental purposes." It is clear that so far as this case is concerned the Act is not at fault. It was necessary to prohibit generally the sale of all "two per cent. and over" alcoholic liquors in order to include all beverages which it was intended to prohibit. But this would have included many other commodities which it was most necessary that the public should be allowed to buy and use, and so this discretion was left to the Executive. So far as we know, they have completely neglected their obvious and imperative duty. What is the result? Technically, every druggist or grocer who sells, say, methylated spirits, is breaking the law! Technically, every household having in his or her possession any such spirits imported after January 1st of this year is also breaking the law! Could absurdity go further?

But the Act itself is faulty. Section 7 allows the Governor in Council to except "drugs and medicines." Why this particular limitation, which only creates trouble? Why not "liquors," simply? If, to take the example given, methylated spirits are not a drug or medicine—and the matter is open to doubt—they cannot be excepted and, until the Act is amended, they are prohibited from sale! And there are many alcoholic liquors which are certainly not drugs or medicines, but which are bought and sold every day.

Another peculiarity is discovered on a close examination of the Act. No one will deny that the creature who bought this stuff, with the plain intention of testing its intoxicating qualities, and who tested it so successfully, was more guilty than the woman who supplied it. Yet he has gone scot free, and unless the preparation happens to have been manufactured this year, he must go scot free. The Act makes it illegal to sell intoxicants; it leaves it permissible, except under unlikely conditions, to buy as much as the buyer likes. No whiskey, for instance, is manufactured here. It is unlikely that any has been imported this year. Consequently, anyone can buy as much whiskey as he pleases with impunity. The obvious purpose of the Act was to stop the traffic in liquors. Traffic is two-sided, and until both parties, who are equally guilty, are made liable to punishment, there is the more likelihood of its going on.

We have treated the subject at this length because it points a useful moral. We make a great fuss here, as they do everywhere else, about electing legislators, with reference to every quality they possess except the one necessary to their real duty, which is to make laws. Our statute book is full of laws which abound in imperfections and absurdities. They are made to meet certain requirements and almost always without regard to the host of possibilities that exist within the four corners of their literal interpretation. The chaotic state of the law relating to magistrates, brought into prominence by this very question of prohibition, is a good instance. We noted another, small but typical, in the matter of pit-props recently. Everywhere except where an English precedent can be followed exactly the same thing applies. If our House of Assembly wishes to do the country a real service, let it stop talking random nonsense for one afternoon, take this important enactment in hand and amend it to meet all possibilities so as to leave no loophole whatever for uncertainties and injustices.

A Costly Joke.

Yesterday afternoon a certain business man left his automobile on Water Street while he went into a restaurant. During his absence two well known sports came along and, after expressing their admiration for the car, one of them got in and sat on the driver's seat while the other, intending a joke, cranked the machine and soon it was set going, making a bee line across the street and into a shop window. The would-be driver, who did not know how to manipulate the brake, fortunately jumped clear. The damage done to the car and store amounts to a considerable sum. Summonses have been issued against the sports and they will likely have to pay heavily for their joke in court early next week.

McMurdo's Store News

SATURDAY, June 23, 17. Strictly Prime Timothy Hay Seed is so called because it consists only of the highest grade of selected Timothy. It is remarkably free from weeds and other adulterations and can be depended upon, other things being equal, to give better crops than any other grade. We have never imported any other grade than this, and we are the only importers in Newfoundland of "strictly prime." The uniformly good results which our customers have obtained from this grade speak for themselves. Prices on application.

Serious Charge.

A young man, who has been doing a peddling business in the country the past three years, mainly with headquarters at Grand Falls, was arrested under warrant last night charged with obtaining money under false pretences. The accused is remanded in custody; meanwhile the police are looking up evidence into the case at the inland town.

Obituary.

The angel of death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Clooney early Friday morning and took from them their bright little daughter, Alice, who up to a day or two before was in the best of health. She was a pupil of the Mercy Convent and although only six years of age showed signs of being a bright child. She was a little favorite with her class-mates as well as all who knew her. To her parents her death came as a terrible blow. Although everything possible was done to save her, God willed otherwise. May He in His mercy comfort them and help them to bear their loss with resignation to His Holy Will.

Your Boys and Girls.

The "stand up straight" warning is heard to-day just as it was heard years ago by your grandmothers. Straightness of back is important not only to the carriage but also to the health. The child who is allowed to huddle into comfortable but slouchy postures, or to lean far over her books when studying, is not only ruining her future posture in womanhood but is running the risk of spinal curvature, narrow, consumptive lungs, constricted digestive organs and other ills.

There is much more chance also of the little girl's growing taller if her back is kept straight. If the back is held habitually straight even a short woman, looks several inches taller than she really is. This straightness of the back includes the vertebrae at the neck. If the shoulders are held rigidly back and the neck shoots forward from the fifth vertebrae, as so many necks do, the carriage will be anything but graceful.

When she writes or reads she must not huddle forward in her chair, she must be made to sit erect. For this reason children should not be allowed to read in very large chairs, for in order to bend the knees over the front edge of the chair an utterly wrong position of the spine is taken against the chair-back.

John Bull Would Pay War Debt With Fish.

A plan to make the fishing resources of Hudson Bay and the whole of the South Seas help to pay off the huge debt with which the British Empire will find itself burdened at the close of the war, has been launched in London through the formation of the Empire Resources Development Committee, with Sir Starr Jameson, the organiser of the Jameson raid, as chairman.

The plan is to put the work in the hands of captains of industry whose potential wealth. This state would back the enterprise, would enlist the work of experts, who would seek out the most valuable resources of the empire and exploit them for the benefit of the people.

Use for the state, after the war, of the fishing fleet now engaged in mine-sweeping is one of the novel suggestions of Alfred Bigland, member of the House of Commons and a leading business man who has travelled extensively in the United States.

"We should tap," said Mr. Bigland, "the fisheries in the Pacific Ocean, bordering on British Columbia; in the mouth of the St. Lawrence, and in the waters around Newfoundland and Labrador. We would become the purveyors of fish in all forms almost to the whole world.

"Already Newfoundland is sending on an average of 300,000 tons of cod to the Mediterranean and neutral countries. There is practically no limit to the quantity, and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already offered to refrigerate plants to bring fish from Prince Rupert Island to Liverpool at two cents a pound, which would be reduced still further on government contracts.

"After the war, if the government allowed it, all the vessels now used in the North Sea for mine-sweeping and other purposes, could be used to form the nucleus of an empire fishing fleet.

"Cold storage houses should be built in towns all over the land, and profits from the sale of fish caught by the state fleet should go into the state treasury. The fishermen would be paid according to the size of the catch, with a guaranteed minimum."

Mr. Bigland said that he believed that four times as much fish might be sold in this country as was sold before the war, and that the state might make a gross profit of $180,000,000 a year.

PRO-GERMAN GREEKS DEPORTED

ATHENS, To-day.—The deportation from Piræus of a large number of prominent Greeks, including Demetrios Gounaris, former Minister of Justice and Communications in the Zaimis Cabinet; General Doumanis and Col. Metaxas, was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators. With the exception of the officers who have been transferred to Peloponnesus, all the pro-Germans now under surveillance must remain in their homes. Notable among these persons are former Premier Dragoumis, Skouliodis and Lambros.

ST. QUENTIN REFUGEES REACH PARIS.

PARIS, To-day.—Inhabitants of St. Quentin, who were expelled by the Germans, have arrived in Paris, having travelled by way of Belgium, Germany and Switzerland. The late arrivals say the town was finally evacuated by the last civilian population on March 18th, after a long period in which they suffered from lack of food, the supplies from the relief commission having been entirely suspended for that region and other parts of Northern France. The refugees subsisted during their passage into Belgium and through Germany on soup made from dandelions and nettles. The refugees declare the Germans connected all the cellars of St. Quentin with one another and also have dug communication channels under ground from the cellars of the town to those of several villages some distance away.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL.

PETROGRAD, To-day.—The following official statement was issued to-day: There have been fusillades and aerial operations in Western Russia and on the Roumanian front. On the Caucasus front west of Kalkit our detachments attacked a Turkish position on one of the northern heights of Jamur Ridge. All the defenders were bayoneted with the exception of a few men who succeeded in making their escape. North of Serzecht, after a minor engagement with Kurds, our troops occupied the summit and continued to advance. Capt. Kruten, who in the course of numerous air fights had brought down six airplanes, was killed while descending at an altitude.

FOOD CONTROL IN CANADA AND UNITED STATES.

WASHINGTON, To-day.—Food control in the States and Canada will be made as nearly alike as the conditions of the two countries will permit, and in many respects will amount almost to a joint control. It was said to-day after a conference between Herbert C. Hoover and W. J. Hanna, just appointed Canadian Food Controller. The food laws already enacted in Canada, Hanna said, closely approach the administration's food legislation pending in Congress. The purpose of his trip to Washington was to permit him to study the American programme so that Canada might follow it as closely as possible. In most respects, Hanna, explained, the United States and Canada have identical food problems. Both are exporters of grain and both this year will have smaller crops than normal.

BARON RHONDDA TAKES ACTION.

LONDON, To-day.—The United States and Britain, working together on the food supply problem, can smile at the German threats to starve England, Baron Rhondda, the new Food Controller, declared to-day during an informal talk with newspaper correspondents in regard to the food situation. Baron Rhondda said he wished to work in the closest co-operation with Herbert C. Hoover, American Food Administrator, they should keep in constant touch with each other in dealing with food problems; and added that he proposed to do away with all food speculation in the country. He asserted that speculation in home foodstuffs, notably grain produce, had already been eliminated and that all speculators must go further than that. He continued he would reduce the number of middlemen to the lowest limit.

ACTIVITY IN MACEDONIA.

SOFIA, To-day.—The War Office statement to-day says: North of Monastir the enemy artillery was active and very violent in the Corna Bend, Bulgarian detachments penetrated enemy trenches and brought back Italian prisoners. East of the Corna along the Struma there have been very active reconnaissances.

THE ONLY WAY WITH ANARCHY.

PETROGRAD, To-day.—A group of anarchists having recently seized the country house of General Durnovo in the suburb of Vibork, the Minister of Justice Perdvelzeff to-day ordered its evacuation. In opposition to this order thousands of workmen from half a dozen adjacent factories surrounded the house, many armed with rifles. Their spokesman declared they would defend the anarchists against the Government and that bloodshed would follow if force were employed to oust the occupants from the buildings. Delegates from Kronstadt attended the meeting of workmen and declared that on the first appeal to armed intervention detachments of sailors from Kronstadt fortress would be summoned to aid the anarchists. Flags carried by the demonstrators were inscribed: "Down with Capitalists, enemies of the people. Long live the Social Republic." After the publication of the appeal by the Soldiers and Workmen's Delegates to the working population of Viborg, the Provisional Government warned the anarchists that force of arms would be invoked unless those holding General Durnovo's house immediately elected to obey the evacuation order.

DEATHBED REPENTANCE.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.—The Dutch Catholic newspaper Tijd prints a programme that was issued as a result of the meeting of Catholics in favor of peace held last Whit Sunday at Graz, Austria. The programme contains twelve paragraphs which demand that an end be put to the senseless extension of military power on land and sea. Credits for military objects, it is said, should be granted only where they are needed for maintaining internal order. Racial conflicts of one nation with another must cease, the natural right of every people to develop should be undisturbed and the preservation of its own language and civilization guaranteed, the program declared.

DIFFICULTIES IN THE WAY OF REPRISALS.

LONDON, To-day.—Public agitation for the adoption of air reprisals against German cities as a reply to the recent Zeppelin airplane raids on Britain has been the subject of several private conferences between military and political leaders here. The hope was expressed at these meetings that the public clamor would not override saner strategic considerations, and that an elaborate system of reprisals would be postponed until the assistance of American airmen is available. German air raids, said an official to the Associated Press to-day, were comparatively easy to perform, because they were largely over territory in German possession, or across the sea, where enemy airmen could travel unseen and unopposed. On the other hand British airmen on an expedition of reprisals must carry a load of bombs over a route that from the start crosses hostile territory. Throughout the flight our airmen must run the gauntlet of land guns and air fighters. The most expert airmen would be necessary for such ventures. The percentage of losses would be large and the strain terrific on the fliers, and the element of surprise largely would be lacking against the enemy. Thus it becomes a question whether the number of skilled pilots and powerful machines required could be spared without impeding the far more important military operations. Although the British Army Flying Corps has a tremendous number of airplanes and maintains aerial supremacy on the battle front, it must be remembered that airplanes in recent months have been devoted exclusively to military operations. The diversion of even a small number of these "eyes of the army" would create a serious problem.

TO INCREASE FRENCH MERCHANT MARINE.

PARIS, To-day.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day passed a resolution placing the urgent work of increasing the French merchant marine under the control of a department. During the debate many members spoke of the various dangers to the country's food supply as a result of the insufficient number of merchant ships.

SUFFRAGE REFORM IN HUNGARY.

LONDON, To-day.—A despatch to the Central News from Amsterdam says the new Hungarian Premier, Count Moritz Esterhazy, and his Cabinet met the Hungarian Diet at Budapest for the first time officially yesterday. In a temperately worded speech Count Esterhazy declared that the Government's foremost desire was to reform the suffrage, and in the event of the present majority in the Diet falling to co-operate in effecting this reform the Diet would be dissolved and new elections held. The Premier added that the Hungarian Government would remain faithful to its alliance with Germany, Bulgaria and Turkey. Our military situation is favourable, said Count Esterhazy. Our knowledge of our military and economic strength permits us without any appearance of weakness to re-affirm our willingness and readiness to conclude a peace which will be acceptable to our adversaries.

INSISTS ON RESIGNING.

PETROGRAD, To-day.—It is announced that Admiral Koltchak, Commander of the Black Sea Fleet at Sebastopol, has telegraphed to the Government insisting that his resignation should be accepted.

STORY FALSE.

PETROGRAD, To-day.—"Base of America Flotilla in British Waters."—On being questioned to-day with regard to the report which was published in the United States yesterday that an American destroyer is believed to have rammed and sunk a submarine, Vice-Admiral Sims, American Naval Commander, said the story is absolutely false.

LOST HIS LIFE IN ZEPPELIN.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.—Capt. Eichler, formerly Commander of the Hamburg-American Liners Imperator and Vaterland, perished in the destruction of Zeppelin 48 over England last Sunday. According to the Leipziger Neueste Nachrichten, Capt. Eichler was the leader of the airship squadron of which L. 48 commanded by Capt. V. Scheutze, was the flagship. Capt. Eichler took part in many raids against England. When L. 48 was shot down in flames all aboard were lost.

LEXIE CAUSED TROUBLE AT SEBASTOPOL.

PETROGRAD, To-day.—Thursday, the Government declares that no official description of the outbreak at Sebastopol will be published for two or three days, but it is believed the worst is over. It is expected that delegates from the Petrograd Council of Workmen and Soldiers' Deputies, together with the Minister of War and Marine Kerenski, will start for Sebastopol to-night. The outbreak appeared to have been organized by followers of the agitator Lenin, backed by extremists from Kronstadt, who arrived at Sebastopol about a week ago. These emissaries took advantage of the absence at Petrograd of the responsible leaders among the sailors of the Black Sea Fleet, and accused the officers of conspiring to restore the old regime. The majority of the sailors, with some of the officers, are said to have supported the Lenites.

VICTORIA ELECTION.

VICTORIA, B.C., To-day.—Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance in the Brewster Government, was re-elected to-day by a majority of 159.

EMINENT GENERAL KILLED.

LONDON, To-day.—Announcement has been made that Lt.-General Robert G. Broadwood has died of wounds received in action. He held numerous important commands-in-chief, notably in South China and Africa. He fought with the Dongola Expeditionary Force in 1896, in the Egyptian War in 1898 and in South Africa in the Boer War.

INCREASING THE BEER ALLOWANCE.

LONDON, To-day.—According to this morning's newspapers the Government's reduction in the annual output of beer of 10,000,000 barrels, decreed last February, proved too drastic. There has been a deficient supply in the munitions areas during the recent hot weather, which condition, added to the prospective difficulty in rural districts at harvest time, has influenced the Government to allow an immediate increase of 33 per cent. in the barrelage of beer.

WASHOUTS UP NORTH.

As the result of Wednesday's rain storm a number of bridges along certain important roads leading to the Bonaville railway, have been washed away. The Postmaster General received a message from the Postmaster at Plate Cove, B.B., stating that the big bridge spanning Plate Cove River had been swept away. This bridge is of the greatest importance to several settlements lying east of Plate Cove, as passengers who intend connecting with the railway have to pass over this route.

Sunrise in Russia.

The most encouraging news that has come out of Russia since that country fell into chaos is the firm alignment of the Peasants' Congress with the cause of sanity and honor. What has been needed in Russia from the first has been action by the forces which are out of sympathy with the riot of sentimentality and worse than the revolution let loose. The Workmen and Soldiers' Council has been able to debauch the situation because it was made up of determined men who saw their goal and had neither scruples nor any other inhibitions, while the other factors were anxious above all to avoid trouble. But there has never been any reason to suppose the Council was Russia or represented Russia. Even if it represented the working classes, the workmen in Russia are a minority; it is not an industrial land; the real "proletariat" to use the word in the Socialist sense of the masses, are the peasants. How far it represented the soldiers has never been ascertained, for despite the fact that soldiers elect delegates to it, large parts of the army and navy have shown not only displeasure but indignation with it. The natural affiliation of the soldiers is with the peasants, not with the workmen. The quick and hearty response the soldiers have made to whoever has set the real situation before them has been a clear proof that they are only misled and are right at heart. It has been surprising to see how novel a statement of the obvious facts, the ABC of the situation, has been to them, and how promptly they have responded to it. The difficulty has been the immensity of the mass to be reached, and his constant exposure to counter-argument by the dark forces. The service Kerensky has performed in this direction has been enormous. Now come the peasants. In the early days the unrest that followed the overturn of the throne there were agrarian outrages and evidences on the part of the peasants of a disposition not to wait for the slow process of reform in the land system. The Peasants' Congress, however, has been meeting in Petrograd for weeks, and from the first it has shown an anxiety to learn which is the right side and take it with a canny disposition to look askance at the sentimental exuberances that have intoxicated a part of Russia. Gradually it has been feeling its way toward the conclusion it reached yesterday. A few days ago, with one decisive blow, it settled the arduous and plausible propaganda in favor of publishing the "Treaty of Brest-Litovsk." On day 29 it thundered its denunciation of the fraternization with the enemy that has been demoralizing the army, and Kerensky was able to report on his return from the front the other day that "fraternization with the enemy has completely ceased."

The congress took still stronger ground yesterday. There is no reason to believe that Kerensky is adopting the "no annexations, no indemnities" policy, for that is the declared policy of its Government; and it took a significant step forward by interposing the humiliating word "humiliating," so as to declare for "no humiliating annexation or indemnity." But the momentous thing it did was to declare:

The Congress considers that it is its duty energetically to defend its country, recalling before no sacrifices in order to sustain the fighting strength of the army; and the struggle for the safety of the peasant and the Russian people. The Congress summons the army to submit itself to discipline, and defend revolutionary Russia of peasants and workers. It grants its benediction to this way, and will not forget the blood which has been shed. Here speaks the real power of revolutionary Russia. It speaks to the men who were drawn from its ranks, and silences the voices of the pacifists from the cities. Its tone of authority is justified by its position. German wheedling has not deceived it; it has seen that the "humiliating" of the Russian people is in danger, a thing which the Socialists have been working with might and main to cover up, and Kerensky instantly followed it, and the declaration by ordering that it be read to all ranks of the army and navy, so that every soldier and sailor may hear the voice of his father and brother. When the prodigal hears that voice he will shake off the sirens and do his duty. He cannot do it too soon. As the Germans massed against the British and French forces taken from the Russian front, so now the Austrians have hurled against the oncoming Italian forces taken from the Russian front. The slain soldiers of the former nations which have been leading for the bewilderment of the Russian soldier, listening to witch music and following marsh lights, as surely as do the fallen of France. Kerensky, the tireless Trojan on whose shoulders fell the gigantic task of saving Russia from ruin, feels and says that the stampede to the abyss has not stopped; and now it is the task of every patriot in Russia to co-operate with him in stiffening the fluid army again and turning it as soon as possible toward the rescue of those nations which have been leading for it while it lay idle.—N.Y. Philadelphia Ledger: Pity the plight of the brave Sergeant Dennis McGrenery of our town! He enlisted in the 1,200 of the "Princess Pats," and after Ypres and the Somme was one of fifty-four survivors. Last fall, on furlough in Ireland, he married a colleen. Sent to Canada to recover from the effect of poison gas and shell fire and finally mustered out as unfit, two months ago he is now in this city seeking vainly to procure a passport to get back to Ireland and his wife. But the State Department refuses, on the ground that he enlisted in the British army; while the British point of view is that he is an American, whose appeal must be to his own Government. There should be some species of Anglo-American agreement to let this man go where a wife makes home for him. He deserves the best at the hands of both nations. He has been America's soldier in serving the cause that once was Britain's and is now that of her newest and dearest ally as well.

Those Wonderful Quivers.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A famous playwright once said that if any one would give him the thirty seconds of thrill that have to be at the heart and climax of every good play he would write the play around it and divide the proceeds.

I thought of that the other day. The Authorman had been reading a life of Patrick Henry and came to his famous speech.

The Authorman who had been silent over his book while we had been chattering suddenly kindled into life at that passage. "Listen," he broke in, "Doesn't this start your blood to coursing?" and then he declaimed aloud:

"Why stand we here idle? What is it that the gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear, or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery. Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death."

A Quiver That Came Across A Century.

When he finished the Cynic cried "Bravo" in a voice whose tremor paid the most eloquent of tributes to the dead orator's eloquence and Molly cried:

"Doesn't that make the loveliest quivers go all over you?"

And we one and all agreed that it did.

We Can Get Them For Nothing At The Public Library.

Just think of it, those very quivers for which the playwright was willing to pay so highly we can really get right out of a book from the public library.

There they are, those wonderful quivers that light up the common-places of our existence like a lightning flash, waiting for us between hundreds of book bindings.

Get the book that tells how Florence Nightingale stood twenty hours at a stretch watching the wounded soldiers being brought in.

And He Could Only Work For Three Minutes.

Get the biography that tells how Francis Parkman struggled against the handicaps of eyes so feeble that he could only work three minutes at a time, and in spite of it wrote volume after volume of immortal history.

To feel one of these quivers of admiration is to be for a moment on one of the mountain tops of existence. We must, by the nature of things, live in the valleys or perhaps at best on the plateaus, but it is good for the heart and soul to go up on the mountain tops once in a while.

BONES.

Bones are a species of hidden staging over which the human body is draped. Some people have more bones than others and are obliged to be padded in a liberal and profuse manner by the merchant tailor. One of the cruelest edicts ever put forth is that which now prevents a lean customer with overcast bones from being padded in several protruberant joints and sent home to his family looking thirty pounds heavier.

Charged with 11,000 amperes of raw electricity.

There are several hundred bones in the human body, all of which can be reached with perfect ease by the sciatic rheumatism or the self-percolating grip. Some of these bones serve a good and useful purpose and should be retained where they are at present, while others are of no use whatever and are kept largely for their sentimental value. Among them are the bones of the neck, which have driven many a proud society leader to the high collar with a stiff yoke. Then there is the crazy bone, which is charged in early youth with 11,000 amperes of raw electricity and grows stouter with age. We would like to ask if there is any reason why medical science should remove the harmless, recumbent form of a decadent appendix and still leave the crazy bone

Mrs. M. A. Connell arrived from the General Hospital, St. John's, by last night's train. She was accompanied home by Mr. Robert Brazil who went over for that purpose.

The yacht Ariadne arrived from St. John's on Tuesday night. She sailed this morning on a cruise north.

The Union Co.'s coal barge, lately purchased from the Harbor Grace Coal Co., was towed to Catalina yesterday by the steamers Wren and Progress.

Mr. Richard Granville went to St. John's yesterday evening to enter the hospital for treatment, he having been very sick of late. The sad news was received in town this morning that our old neighbor had passed away at the hospital last night. We tender our sympathy to the aged widow, his son and other relatives. Mr. Granville had followed the sea in early life, but of late spent his time on the land, farming, etc.

Last night's downpour of rain was a welcome guest to the farmer. Crops are looking well, and the prospects are bright for a good season.

Miss H. Adams, who has been here from St. John's on a visit to her parents, left yesterday to again take up her work there.

Caplin were scarce the last few days and codfish is not as plentiful as the fishermen would wish. They are hoping, however, that when caplin again strike the shore better catches of codfish will be secured.

Mrs. Mark Sellars went to Bell Island on Sunday last to spend a few days with her daughters and other friends there.

WEEK-END NOTES.
(L. C. M.)

At one of our large central churches last Sunday evening the pastor took for his subject the unusual, and almost novel topic of Holidays. At first hearing, such a topic seemed out of place, but as the rev. speaker opened up his discourse and established his points and applied his illustrations the subject presented a very different position, and when he had concluded his discourse he stood fully justified for his seeming digression from the beaten path of the law and the gospel.

The topic itself suggested to me sufficient for this week's notes, and if what my notes contain will be as clear and as lucid as was the sermon referred to then there will not be any disappointment among the readers.

To those of us who belong to the older school, and who have been in constant harness for over half a century, the idea of a holiday looks like dissipation and extravagance. That is to say when we consider the conditions which prevailed in the industrial world fifty, and even forty or thirty years ago, it seems impossible that a change could take place to such a degree as now exists. Anywhere from ten to fifteen hours a day was then the rule and the overtime counted at the same rate as regular time; while the boys and apprentices got little or nothing. As for the clerks in the shops, they worked three months in the spring and three months in the fall till ten and half-past ten at night, and often till eleven o'clock; and the same rule applied to the book-keepers and the office staff in general. It was the custom and rule of the times to do so, and nobody raised any objection whatever. All were alike and master and men worked equally late and equally early. Holidays, outside of those established by the Church calendar, were unknown, and Regatta day stood out as the one great carnival of the summer season. Men only lived, or seemed to live, to toil; and the main thought of life was how to get a living; and the average man was grateful to get work to do, and very grateful to get meagrely paid for it. The rate of pay for labour and tradesmen in general was as follows, and any who got constant work were considered fortunate indeed; but not many got it, and our winters were usually seasons of prolonged idleness.

Rates:—Labouring men, three shillings, or sixty cents a day; Watchmen, three and six pence, or seventy cents a day, their week consisting of four days and three nights for one, and three days and four nights for the other; Carpenters on the firm, and generally known as handy men, five shillings, or one dollar a day; Captains, ten pounds, or forty dollars a month; Mates, seven pounds, or thirty dollars a month; Second Mates or Boatwains, five pounds, or twenty dollars a month; Cooks and Stewards, four pounds, or sixteen dollars a month; Able Seamen, three pounds ten, or fourteen dollars a month; and ordinary seamen, three pounds, or twelve dollars a month; House Carpenters, six shillings, or one dollar and twenty cents a day; Coopers, six shillings and six pence, or one dollar and thirty cents a day; Sailmakers, five and six shillings a day; and Riggers, four and five shillings a day. There were three classes of tradesmen who always got decent wages, viz: the shipwrights, masons and the moulders, each of them received ten shillings a day which at that time was good pay. The moulders usually worked on piece work but, they averaged three dollars a week. There was one man at the foundry who did not get very fair pay, it was the man who tended the furnace, and who was known as a smelter, he put in twenty years for thirty-five shillings a week.

For fifty years I have been in touch with these industries, and know exactly what the conditions have been through all that time, and the great change which has taken place is far beyond anything that was ever expected or anticipated by our forefathers. They all felt that their pay was too small and that a better day ought to be in store for their children, but they were not as expectant as to look for the liberal wages which are now paid. However, these better days are now upon us, and those who for long years toiled for bread only, now have a better chance, and men are finding that life is not altogether confined to daily bread.

Comparing the foregoing conditions with the present, we see what an advance has been made, and how much we have to-day that our fathers did not have. They dreamt not of holidays in the sense that we do. Sometimes they had holidays because they could not get work to do; but the thought of a regular holiday in the week, or in the month would have been looked upon as the height of madness. But now holidays are part of life, and every stage of industry grants them more or less. The long over hours of the past will never again be in vogue, the conditions of life do not demand them. There is now more time for rest and recreation, and the workman who puts in eight, or nine or ten hours regular work daily, is in better fettle for this regular work than if he were employed late into the night. Much of the late hour system of the past was a mistake and was inflicted upon the working classes simply because those in charge did not use their brains and properly divide their work and arrange it in systematic order. I have had to work all night for many a vessel that lay in the harbour days and days after the date that we were told she had to sail. This could have been avoided if common judgement had been used, but as before stated, the conditions of life were different and men were the victims of those conditions.

THE SPEECHMAKER.

They call upon me, now and then, to make a speech on this or that; I rise before my fellowmen, and I shoot some wisdom through my hat. A glow of pleasure most men feel when they hand out profound remarks, for every fellow likes to splat, as every dog enjoys his bark. And ten men out of every nine, go on and on, they like it so, till palated hearers wilt and pine, and wish they had some eggs to throw. When I begin I note the clock, which has all time at its command; I keep on squinting as I talk, and mark the moving minute hand. I watch the clock with baleful eye, I stand where I can see its face, and when ten minutes have gone by, I put my tongue back in its place. My lungs would like, like everything, to labor on, but they must cease; I tie my larynx with a string, and put them all in my valise. So I am often asked to rise and thrash the issues of the day, for people know I am too wise to keep it up till they are gray. They know I always watch the clock, and when the proper hour has come, I grab my hat and take a walk, and seal my lips with chewing gum.

Drinking Tea Upset Nerves

Mr. Burroughes Compares Canadian Customs With Those In Old Land, and Tells How Nerves Were Set Right.

Orillia, Ont., June 23rd.—"How to be well and strong?" is the question many are asking at this time of year, and in this letter you will find the answer.

It tells something of the blood-forming, nerve-regulating influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great restorative which is causing so much talk here just now.

Nature's way of curing disease is by building up the vitality of the body, and this is exactly what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does. The blood is made rich and red, and it nourishes the exhausted nerves back to health and vigor.

The experience of Mr. Burroughes as described in this letter is similar to that of hundreds of others in this community who have recently put this well-known food cure to the test.

Mr. George Burroughes, 23 Peter street, Orillia, Ont., writes: "A few years ago, after coming out of this country from England, the change of customs seemed to affect me very much. In the old country the habit of drinking strong tea was prevalent, and after arriving here I suffered very much from nervousness. If I put my arm down on the table it would shake very noticeably, and while performing my work I would easily tire, and want to sit down and rest. I have since recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I secured some and took a treatment. It built me up and made me strong and healthy. I have not had a trace of the nervousness since. I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment also, and find that it heals the skin very quickly. In fact I find all of Dr. Chase's medicines good."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all druggists, Edmondson, Eates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Everyday Etiquette.

"I am to visit at the home of a wealthy school friend. Will you give me a few suggestions as to table manners?" asked Susan.

"Seat yourself from the left side of the chair and arise from the same side after the meal is finished. Sit erect; do not lean against the back of the chair, nor rest your arms or elbows on the table. Do not spread out the napkin to its full extent; leave it folded through the middle. As you are to be a guest for more than one meal, note the disposition of the napkin made by your hostess and follow her example. Never cut salad with the knife, but break it with the fork, using a piece of bread or cracker to assist the fork if necessary," advised her older sister.

"Potato Pen" is New Discovery.

Kansas City Man from Chance Inspection of Cellar Potato Pile Invents Outdoor System of Planting to Increase Crop.

Burlington, Vt.—Forty-two bushels of potatoes for the season of 1915 from a plot of ground only 8 feet square, or an equivalent of over 28,000 bushels to the acre of ground space used, was the feat of H. E. Hendricks, a resident of Kansas City, Mo., says H. M. George in the Free Press.

This achievement was made possible by the use of an entirely new and original method which has generally introduced, promises not only to revolutionize the potato growing industry throughout the world but to solve the problem of an unending source of cheap food supply for the nations of the earth.

Mr. Hendricks had often watched the potato pile in the cellar in which every spring sent out its shoots through every possible crack and crevice. Sometimes these sprouts would crawl out along the floor a distance of seven feet in order to reach the light. From this beginning he conceived the idea that if this pile was removed out into the open and given soil and fertilizer, the potatoes would grow and multiply.

Three years ago he built what he called a "potato pen" which was nothing more or less than a huge potato hill, the sides of which were supported by a loosely constructed inclosure, built after the fashion of an old rail fence. Within this inclosure, only 8 x 8 feet in size, he planted his potatoes in thin layers of dirt and dressing, piling one layer on another until the pen was eight feet high. The "potato pen" became a mound of green. He had found that his potatoes not only grew better than they did in the cellar but that during the growing time he was able to harvest 40 bushels of as fine potatoes as are grown anywhere. The following year he got 32 bushels in the same sized pen, and last year the total of 42 bushels.

Up to this time Mr. Hendricks has conducted his experiments unknown to but a few of his intimate friends and associates, but owing to the present food shortage, and the nation-wide campaign to speed up food production, he decided to give up his discovery for the free use of people everywhere.

The details of the construction and management of these "potato pens," as described by Mr. Hendricks, outline a plan by which anyone having access to a plot of ground no larger than a flower-bed can raise all the potatoes needed for an average family for a whole year. The potato pens may be built eight feet wide by any length, just so they are built strong enough to keep the sides from spreading. Most any kind of good stout material can be used. If light lumber or boards are used the pen may be braced through the center with wires. Rich earth must be on hand in sufficient quantities to fill the pen to the top.

The potato pen is built 6 x 8 feet, inside measurement, and is 6 feet high. The pen is built as each layer is placed and planted. You can use 1 x 4 inch boards for the ends and sides, leaving a 2 1/2 inch space between the boards for the potato sprouts to come through. Start the pen with a six inch layer of dirt. Then mark off the plot a foot apart each way, allowing six inches of space for dirt all around between the outer row of potatoes and the inside of the pen. Plant a potato seed at every cross line or intersection of the plot, eight hills to the layer of dirt. Then put an inch or two of dressing over the potatoes and sprinkle good with water. Then lay six inches more of dirt, mark off as before, plant, use dressing and water again. Repeat this operation with enough layers to fill the pen to the top. To keep the dirt from falling out of the pen as the layers are placed, draw up old straw or hay against the cracks and crevices.

As the pen rises, place on the fourth layer of dirt in the center of one side, about two feet above the ground, a "moist tester." This is made of any piece of timber about the size of the arm, a piece of 4 x 4 inch by 3 feet long, placed so it will protrude from the pen about a foot. After the potatoes have been planted three weeks loosen the tester, pull out and run your hand in to determine the moisture. By so doing you will know how much water to use on the pen. After the tester has been once removed this can be repeated once or twice a week. Watch the tester and keep the dirt in proper condition.

The pen should be near a water supply so that it can be well watered during dry weather. It should be watered from the top about twice a week unless rainfall is sufficient. The "moist tester" will always enable the grower to determine the proper moisture conditions. The top layer of dirt should be sloped gently toward the center so the ground will absorb and not shed rain, but care should be taken that mud be prevented from forming on top and baking to a crust. When the earth is dry the mound should be sprinkled on the top and sides.

The potato vines will grow to the top and sides of the pen (the nearest way to the light), emerging through the crevices and concealing the timbers with a coat of green. When the potatoes are matured the pen may be taken down the potatoes rolled out of the thin covering with a rake, and the material, dirt and dressing saved and used again and again.

Potato pens may be started as early and as late as possible, giving potatoes 90 days to mature, except the early ones. The usual time of planting potatoes in the North is from March to June, but under this method the potatoes may be planted much later than is possible under open field conditions, where the factor of hot, dry weather must always be taken into consideration. With irrigation and every possible condition of good potato growing—moisture, ventilation and drainage—always under his control, the grower is practically certain of his crop.

Camping-Out Supplies

We make special mention here of our MEAT DAINTIES — Delicious Wafer Sliced Ham and Bacon, and other Cooked Meats.

The reputation of these goods is unsurpassed and the manner with which they are served gives us first place in this class of food products. The increasing demand is also an unmistakable indication of their general popularity.

All our meats prepared for retail are carefully pared and covered with specially made parchment, and are sliced by expert cutters; handled on a marble top counter, wrapped in waxed paper, and weighed sixteen ounces to the pound.

We carry all kinds of CANNED FRUIT and SUMMER DRINKS, also Cocoa and Milk, Coffee and Milk, Chocolate and Milk, and Condensed Milk and Cream. All these goods are of the most superior quality, and camping supplies made up by us cannot fail to suit the most delicate appetite, and should be absolutely satisfactory.

GERMAN ADMISSION.

BERLIN, June 22. The German official issued this morning admits the French troops in the region of Vauxaillon in a fierce fight recaptured the sections of trenches taken from them in the recent fighting. It says, however, in the Champagne, south of Moronvilliers, the Germans took a French position and held it almost in its entirety despite fierce counter attacks.

REPULSE GERMAN ATTACKS.

PARIS, June 22. Heavy attacks by the Germans north of the Aisne have been repulsed by French troops with severe casualties, according to an official statement issued to-night.

FRENCH LINES ATTACKED.

PARIS, June 22. After violent artillery preparations last evening, Germans attacked the Teton heights, to-day's official statement says. They penetrated advanced French posts, but were ejected after sharp fighting.

RUSSIAN SAILORS CAUSE TROUBLE.

PETROGRAD, June 22. There have been disorders among the sailors of the Black Sea Fleet at Sebastopol, on a visit to which the naval members of the American mission to Russia started on Monday. So far there have been only confused reports as to the scope of the trouble with the sailors. The fleet says the disorders are connected with the retirement of the commander of the fleet, Admiral Koltchak.

SUCCESSFUL BRITISH RAIDS.

LONDON, June 22. We made successful raids last night southeast of Quant and in the neighborhood of Neuve Chapelle and Armentieres, says to-day's official statement. Casualties were inflicted on the enemy and we captured prisoners.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, June 22. The War Office statement to-night says: A British raiding party was repulsed during the night, east of Epiez. The enemy left several of their dead on our wire entanglements. A few wounded Germans were made prisoners. An attempt to capture one of our posts near Guilleminth in the same neighborhood also failed. Work in connection with our artillery was continued by our airplanes yesterday. Despite bad weather, good results were obtained. In an air fight one German airplane was brought down and six others were driven down out of control. Three of ours are missing.

LIBERTY LOAN SUBSCRIPTIONS.

WASHINGTON, June 22. Subscriptions to the Liberty Loan have surpassed the highest estimate of treasury officials. It exceeds three billion dollars.

NO CONFIRMATION OF REPORT.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 22. No confirmation could be found to-day of the report that a British steamer had arrived near here with a large number of Germans, taken from a destroyed sea raider. Federal agents professed to have no knowledge of such a steamer and pilots declined to make any statement because of Federal Censorship regulations. The report was said to have been brought ashore last night by Government agents who visited the steamer, but this has not been confirmed.

DUTCH MINERS ON STRIKE.

LONDON, June 22. A despatch from Amsterdam says that ninety per cent. of Dutch miners

FAVORS SEVERANCE OF RELATIONS.

MEXICO CITY, June 22. Every possible pressure, including financial offers, is reported to have been brought to bear by the Germans and pro-Germans to stop the campaign of El Universal for the severance of relations between Mexico and Germany. The campaign continues to be the main topic of conversation here. The El Universal says editorially that in the flood of comment which its stand has evoked, no paper or person has taken a pro-German stand or proposed that Mexico should ally herself with the Central Powers.

RELIEVING HOSPITAL PRESSURE.

British Headquarters in France, June 22.—American doctors, nurses and enlisted men have within the last fortnight taken over six of the British great general field hospitals, relieving the British staff for duty near their front. The Americans have been much impressed by the cordiality of their welcome and by the thoroughness and effectiveness of the British hospital system. So smoothly have the transfers been made that the Americans have taken up their new work without even a moment's upset in the routine of the various hospitals.

KING CONSTANTINE.

THUSIS, Switzerland, June 22. Former King Constantine arrived here yesterday evening by train with a suite of thirty persons. The railway station was guarded by troops to prevent manifestations. The reception given the deposed monarch was sympathetic. An officer commanding a detachment of frontier troops saluted Constantine on his arrival, after which the party went directly to a hotel.

SUCCESSOR TO HOFFMANN.

BERNE, June 22. The election of Gustav Ador, President of the International Red Cross, to succeed Dr. Hoffman, who resigned as member of the Federal Council following his attempt to open peace negotiations between Russia and Germany appears assured. Proposed by the Liberal party his candidacy has been approved by the Radical democratic group representing the large majority in the Federal Chamber. The election will take place June 26.

FAILED IN HIS ATTEMPT.

AMSTERDAM, June 22. Count Henry Clam Martino, Premier of the Austrian Cabinet, which recently resigned, failed in his attempt to construct a Ministry. According to a despatch from Vienna the Count has asked Emperor Charles to invite someone else to form a Cabinet.

SOLDIERS' DISCOVERY.

With the British Armies in France, June 22.—While excavating in the vicinity of the battered remnants of the Hindenburg line, British soldiers struck a strange object which proved to be the tooth of a mammoth. The discovery caused great excitement among the troops who flocked to the place regardless of the danger and drawing shell fire from the Germans. The skeleton of this pre-historic monster has now been definitely located and the gradual exposure of it is proceeding under a scientific party. It will be a decided novelty in natural history research, this up-digging of a mammoth in the very fore-front of the war.

INTERESTING.

AMSTERDAM, June 22. A despatch from Vienna says that Archduke Maximilian, brother of Emperor Charles, has been betrothed to Princess Françoise, second daughter of Prince Conrad Hohenzollern Schillingurst, ex-Governor of Trieste.

THE BELGIAN MISSION.

WASHINGTON, June 22. The Belgian Mission was received to-day in the Senate Chamber with great demonstration. The address by Baron Moncheur, the head of the mission, expressing the Belgians' gratitude for America's aid and sympathy was punctuated with frequent applause. Afterward all the Senators were introduced to the members of the mission.

BANK MERGER.

NEW YORK, June 22. It is reported the Royal Bank of Canada has acquired the controlling interest in the Merchants' National Bank of New York. The price is said to have been in the neighborhood of $1,350,000. The object of this connection is understood to have been to enable the Royal Bank to profit by the deposit of accounts in the New York institution.

Estimates Remain Stationary.

No Progress Made on them Yesterday — Three Hours' Speech by Opposition Leader.

Practically all the time of yesterday afternoon's sitting of the House of Assembly was occupied with a long speech by the Leader of the Opposition. After several petitions were presented, Dr. Lloyd moved the adjournment of the House for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Colonial Secretary to a statement that appeared in the Daily News yesterday morning to the effect that the Colonial Secretary had written the Mayor, intimating that the financial sections of the new City Charter would be passed this session and also the clause relative to Workmen's Homes if time permitted. He (Dr. L.) said that he was a member of the Select Committee and no such decision had been arrived at. He was amazed on reading the report in the News; it was an incorrect statement of the position and a reflection upon the House. He asked the Colonial Secretary for an explanation. Mr. Bennett said he read the report with equal surprise to Dr. Lloyd. The Premier and Mr. Higgins also spoke similarly, all three disclaiming any knowledge of the affair and were at a loss to know where the report originated, the last-named gentleman emphasizing particularly the fact, as Secretary of the Select Committee, that nothing passed in any official way to the Council. Mr. Higgins thought that what might have given rise to the report in question was a statement made by the Mayor at the Council meeting, that certain sections were being considered. Dr. Lloyd accepted the explanation and the incident was closed. Continuing, he scored the Government for not having the Departments of Justice and Agriculture and Mines represented in the House, and for not having a salary voted for the Department of the Prime Minister as well as the other Departments.

He pointed out that no declaration had yet been made as promised by the Premier, as to whether an election would be held this year, and said that the Opposition intended to vigorously oppose any attempt to extend the life of Parliament. The Colonial Secretary, he continued, had violated the Placeman's Act by accepting payment as Chief Censor and had no right to retain his seat in the House on that account. He then referred to the Prohibition Law, criticising the Prime Minister's Department and Governor in Council for sanctioning it not having exempted, as provided for under the Act, certain Patent Medicines and Household Remedies. Beef, Iron and Wine was looked upon as exempted. He brought this matter before the House because of a decision in a test case handed down by the Court yesterday, wherein a widow doing a small business was fined $100 for selling Beef, Iron and Wine. Hundreds of similar illegal acts were going on daily in the city, owing to the dereliction of duty of the Executive Council, and in any case why a poor woman should be so cruelly persecuted and experimented on in this fashion he could not see. Education, pit props, the political expediency of the Government to serve their own ends and other matters were dealt with by Dr. Lloyd.

Mr. Targett followed, protesting against a calling off of an election and advocating an increase in the vote for Old Age Pensions.

Mr. Hickman began to speak when the Committee rose.

The Volunteer Force Extension Bill and the Bill respecting the Estates of Volunteers and Reservists passed Committee stage, after which the House adjourned till Monday next.

AMBULANCE CALL.—Ambrose James, aged 19, suffering from appendicitis, was conveyed to the General hospital last evening.

TRAP BERTH CASE.—Another trap berth case between Messrs. Garland and Lewis, perpetual rivals, will be heard in the Magistrates' Court this afternoon.

A HANDSOME AMOUNT.—The proceeds of the Peddlers' Parade, held in the C.C.C. Hall on Thursday night amounted to $452, which is a fine sum to be handed to the Khaki Guild Fund.

CAPLIN PLENTIFUL.—Caplin are plentiful at Carbonate and four Lunenburg bankers baited there during the week, though very little has been done to date there with codfish.

FOREST FIRES.—We learn from passengers who arrived from across country that a number of forest fires are raging in the vicinity of the West Coast. Something should be done immediately to check this annual waste of valuable timber.

DIPHTHERIA SPREADING.—A little girl 11 years of age, was removed from her home Pleasant Street to the hospital yesterday suffering from diphtheria. During the week five cases of diphtheria and two cases of scarlet fever were reported to the health officer.

Our Volunteers.

The following recruits signed the roll—at the headquarters and Water Street Recruiting stations yesterday:

FOR THE ARMY.
Patrick Maher, St. John's.
John W. Button, New Metrotrac, T.B.
James Barrett, Fleur de Lys.
A. Pond, Foster's Point, T.B.
Albert Watkins, Portugal Cove.
Michael Hynes, Portugal Cove.
A shooting squad under Corporal Coughlan visited the South Side rifle range yesterday and notched up some good scores.

Not a single recruit offered for the Forestry Company yesterday.

The Foresters now in training have done excellent work in grading the Parade Ground under the direction of Major Sullivan.

In making cake that requires beating, beat the yolks of eggs and sugar together until very light; time can be saved by stirring the eggs and sugar just enough to moisten the sugar and allowing this to stand for a time.

Good Hosiery, Cheap.

You know yourself that this is difficult, as you have been shopping all over the town lately for many kinds of Hosiery. But then you were buying Cashmere and perhaps heavier wool Hosiery, and these are very high in price. But now we think we can begin to speak to you about Lisle Thread Hosiery, Cotton Hosiery and Half Silk Hosiery.

We Show Excellent Values in These.

On to-day's purchasing we should have to charge higher prices, but we are fairly well protected for some time and we are protecting you.

As a Beginning

We still offer WOMEN'S BLACK THREAD HOSE, first quality and fast dye, at 15c. pr.; and have other good values too numerous to mention. We have a special range of CHILDREN'S FINE RIBBED LISLE HOSE, in Black, Tan, White, Pink and Pale Blue; all sizes.

The War Pilot.

By A BRITISH AIRMAN.

Flying in war time is a grim business. There is precious little that is "breezy" about it, and, to tell the truth, the war pilot is not a "breezy" fellow.

If you are interested in the type, study the faces of any pilots you see. There are the alertness and quickness natural to the man who takes up flying; and there is also a certain hardness. Small wonder if, after three hours or so over the lines, his jaw should feel like iron.

All the way, from the start to the return, the pilot's condition is one of incessant movement. Both feet and one hand are engaged in flying. Quick, neat movements, continually correcting, even on a calm day. That is flying. Ears listening to the engine and for the "crack, crack, crack" of a Hun attacking.

Eyes moving continually over the instruments relating to speed and height and engine revolutions, over the earth, the other machines of the "formation," and round and round, high and low, and especially backwards, first one side and then the other, let a Hun be a diving on the tail. And in the midst of it all, suddenly, "Archie" (anti-aircraft) shells bursting around in groups of six. "Archie" is a greater strain on the nerves than fighting.

"It takes 15 seconds," says a pilot, "for the anti-aircraft gunner to get a sight on you. Consequently you have to dodge, and to do something different, every 15 seconds."

And there is plenty of fighting, too, for the British pilot always attacks, where the Hun, unless in greatly superior circumstances, almost always puts his nose down and runs for protection first.

A Wild Game.

An aerial fight is a wild game. See a man dive 4,000 feet on to his prey, perhaps at the rate of 180 miles an hour. Does he feel exhilarated? No, his heart is thumping too hard from the sudden change of atmospheric pressure. See the rapid manoeuvring, with no time to think, where one, pitted against three, is yet the victor. Then think of the flight home that follows, with control cables holding by their last strands and only half the engine's cylinders working.

Such things are common. That is the time to get home, sure enough; but British pilots have turned and fought in such conditions, because their principle is attack.

Perhaps as the formation returns to its aerodrome there will be one or two pilots who are off duty, watching the landings. The power to land a machine well under all conditions is the greatest test of the pilot, and consequently flying folk are never tired of watching landings.

"All back?" "No." "Who's missing?" "Oh, poor old —" "Really? How?" "Shot down as soon as we got there." "Oh, dear; any chance for him?" "Don't think so; we saw his machine fold up." "Any luck yourselves?" "Archie very bad this morning at —" And so on—a tale of loss and gain, which is yet steadily ensuring victory.

No "push" can be successful without aerial success, and no aerial success can be attained without taking risks. The side that takes the greater risks is likely to have the longer casualty list. This is the pilot's share in victory.

But after six months or so nerve begins to go. It is really a question of nervous fatigue brought on by overstrain. Probably no man living could fly four hours a day all the year round, even in peace time. But when the signs of that overstrain begin to show the pilot is sent home at once on lighter duty for a rest.

Is the war pilot afraid or not? Who knows? One pilot replied, "Yes, I am frightened to death all the time—but somehow, not a bit afraid!"

A Hun pilot gets the Iron Cross, first class, automatically, after less than fifty hours' flying in France! Perhaps that is due to our principle of attack. It is not so easy for a British pilot to get even a Military Cross, much less a D.S.O. or a V.C.; the standard is so much higher.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. Supply Ship Jupiter There With Wheat—Crossed Without Convoy, Says Washington—Her Supplies for the American Army that is to Follow.

Paris, June 6.—The Minister of Marine announced to-night that American warships have anchored off the French coast, and adds: "The French Navy greets with joy on their arrival these new brothers in arms who under the flag of the great American republic, have come to participate until final victory in the struggle against the common enemy."

At the same time the Matin announces that a large American transport containing wheat for American troops which are to come later has crossed the Atlantic under the protection of an American warship. The transport is now being unloaded at a French port.

Preparations are being made for the reception of American troops, the newspaper says further. A number of bases similar to those of the British army have been organised. Camps have been laid out for infantry and artillery and aviation parks have been established for American aviators. None of the American officers is bringing his family.

The Matin says the arrival of the transport means that the provisioning of the army is well under way before the arrival of the troops, and that accordingly the American forces will make no call on the French stock of food.

Rejoice at the Jupiter's Arrival.
 Washington, June 7.—The Navy Department to-day announced the safe arrival of the big United States naval collier Jupiter, with 10,500 tons of wheat and other supplies, at a port in France. The Jupiter is nearly as large as a battleship and stands high out of the water. Despite this she went by herself unaccompanied by a convoy. Naval officers breathed a sigh of relief when they were notified of her safe arrival.

The Jupiter is one of the navy's largest colliers. She was the first electrically propelled steamer ever built and her performance was so good that it led to the adoption of electric drive for all new battleships and battle cruisers, the American navy being the only one in the world to adopt this type of propulsion. The Jupiter was built at Mare Island navy yard, San Francisco, and she has high speed which would enable her to escape submarine attacks under any but unusual circumstances.

Secretary Daniels did not specify what supplies besides wheat the big ship carried.

Secretary Daniels and officials of the Navy Department declined to-night to comment on the report from Paris that "American warships" had arrived off the French coast.

THE EYEBROWS AND SPORT HATS

The eyebrows must have their share of attention in honor of the new summer coiffure and the severe style of millinery now worn. If the brows refuse to lie straight and smooth, no matter how carefully they have been brushed, just put the tiniest speck of mullage on any upstanding rebellious hair and you will have no more trouble.

To give dark eyebrows an attractive lustre, dip the fingers in red wine and apply, brushing afterwards with an eyebrow brush. You will find it convenient to keep a wee vial of good wine on your toilet table.

If, after you shampoo, your hair seems too dry, brush it with a steady firm stroke to bring out again a little of the oil. If this is not sufficient, rub a very tiny drop or two of olive oil into the scalp and brush the hair again.

Dress your hair in the most becoming way. Fashion decrees just now that it should be worn close to the head, in many cases very severely, but in others, as a contrast to the severe headgear, it is permissible to temper the "sport" style with little ringlets and carelessly escaped locks which are softening and very bewitching.

While your hair is drying, you can use the time for careful attention to your nails. Now that summer is upon us the wearing of gloves is not always as necessary as it was in the cold days of the spring, so the nails must be kept particularly well at this time.
