STOP LOOK and LISTEN
 before purchasing a baking powder that may possibly contain injurious ingredients. Many food scientists claim that baking powder containing alum is unsafe for use in food. The mere fact that some brands of baking powder have the words "No Alum" on the label is not sufficient proof that they are what they are represented to be. Our chemists find a good many have "No Alum" on the outside but large quantities of it inside.

The Old Marquis

OR,

The Girl of the Cloisters

CHAPTER XXXVII.
 THE SECRET OUT.

"As the heir to the head of the family," he said, slowly, "it is my duty to make the truth known. Miss Drayton has spoken the truth. This young lady is—not my cousin's wife! Lela rose and confronted him.

"You lie!" she breathed. Then, with a swift movement, she turned to the marquis. "My lord, you—you are a man, while he—he—" She pointed her finger at Clifford Revel with a rebuke. "You will protect me? This man who says that I am not Lord Edgar's wife was present at our marriage? He—he arranged it! It was he who suggested it! Oh, my lord, as there is a heaven above us he speaks falsely! He knows that my darling is there helpless and—ah, dying—or he would not dare—My lord—my father—for you are my father—protect me from them!" and she fell swooning on the marquis's breast.

He trembled and his lips moved spasmodically; then he turned to the girl who stood side by side.

Clifford Revel shook his head wearily.

"This is very painful," he said in a tone of emotion. "This young lady thinks that she speaks the truth, but—"

"Go on, sir!" said the marquis, sternly.

"But she has been deceived. Heaven knows that I would remain silent if I could. But she has forced me to speak out. She says that I was present at her marriage with Lord Edgar—that I planned it. My lord, you will understand and appreciate my position when I tell you that the marriage was a mock one."

The marquis started, and Lela raised her head.

"A mock one," said Clifford Revel, with a feigned reluctance. "It was performed by a man procured and bribed to personate a clergyman, and it—deceived her."

There was a low, anguished cry from Lela, and her head fell upon the marquis's breast again.

"You understand, my lord?" said Edith Drayton. "You have heard this tale of villainy—Clifford Revel started—"you have but to hear my share in it. Mr. Clifford Revel, the next Marquis of Farintosh, could explain it better than I can. He could explain how he has succeeded in enfolding me in his specious nets—from those nets I now free myself!" She turned to Clifford Revel. "This man who planned this false marriage did so for two reasons: the first, that there might be no fresh barrier between him and the Farintosh title; the second, because he—loved me!" Her white face twisted into a smile. "I permitted him to think that I was to be won when he had obtained his ambition. I now tell him that, though the prize he has schemed for lies so near his grasp, I loathe and detest him."

Clifford Revel started and moved forward, but she raised her hand.

"That I have hated him from the moment he bared his guilty soul to my view; that, rather than become his wife, I would have left the world he has made almost unendurable.

I tell him this that he may know, once and for all, that though he has succeeded in gaining his end so far, he has not and never had the slightest hold upon my consideration."

With gleaming eyes he stared at her, his lips quivered, his hands, clinched at his side, shook.

"You—you have betrayed me!" he said. "Was not that enough? Why should you stoop to insult me?"

Edith Drayton looked at him steadily.

"Because I love the man whose life you have ruined, have destroyed," she said, calmly.

Clifford Revel seemed bewildered.

for a moment, as if he could not realize the truth; then he drew a long breath, and smiled—and awful smile.

"And I never guessed it," he muttered. "Well, Miss Drayton—and the smile grew into a sneer of triumphant malignity—"for your sake I wish that my unfortunate cousin may recover. I think—and he looked around—"I will withdraw from this scene in which I have played but a poor part. My lord, I wish you goodbye. You have paid me the compliment of treating me with great consistency, but I think you will acknowledge that I have returned it, and with full measure."

The marquis said not a word, but met the taunting eyes with a direct gaze of his own fierce and haughty ones; and Clifford Revel left the room.

The marquis stood leaning upon his stick, his head bowed; he had quite forgotten Lela in the moment of his bitter reflection that the man he hated would be the heir to Farintosh after all! that Lord Edgar lay dying—then, he thought of the miserable girl whom this Clifford Revel had destroyed as surely, in a sense, as if he had taken her life, and he turned to her where she stood, her face covered with her hands.

"My girl," he said, not unkindly, though his face was stern, "you have heard what that—that villain said. Liar as he is, I think he has spoken the truth, because the foul deed is just such as he would delight in performing. You see, my prophecy of the misery that would follow your friendship with my son has been fulfilled."

"Then I am not Edgar's wife?" said Lela, in a hollow voice, her hands dropping to her side, her white face turned to him.

"I fear not," he said. "Would to Heaven that I could say otherwise; but I fear not."

She drew a long, quivering breath.

then, with a slow step, moved to the door.

The marquis looked at her with a stern pity. His heart had grown softer during the last few months; it had almost melted in his bosom when she had thrown herself upon his breast and prayed him to protect her, when she had called him her father; it was terrible that she should go out ruined, helpless, penniless and homeless.

"Stay," she said, "where are you going?"

She looked around at him with weary surprise that he should ask the question.

"To Edgar," she said, dully.

Edith Drayton, who had been standing, disregarded by the others, turned crimson.

"Lela!" she said, coldly, "you can not do that. You have been cruelly used; but the world's opinion—"

With a suddenness that startled even the marquis, Lela turned upon her; her slim figure seemed to grow taller and take to itself an imperial dignity.

"How dare you speak to me!" she said, holding out her hand as if to indicate the gulf that yawned between them. "You, who pretended to be my friend, and knew of what had been done to me! You tell me I must not go and watch beside him whom I have deemed my husband, who, even now, deems me his wife; you would hint at shame! You, whose lips have made the shameful avowal of the motive that led you to conspire against me! You, Edith Drayton, would separate us even in death—ah, in death, not because you care for my fate or my reputation, but because you love him! I—who am utterly undone, who have no hope in life left, I, the target at which such as you will be free to shoot the arrow of scorn—am going to the man who in the sight of Heaven was and is my husband. And who shall prevent me?" And with a gesture that made the marquis's cold blood run with swift admiration and emotion she raised her arms to heaven.

Edith Drayton shrunk back, white with rage and jealousy.

"My lord," she panted.

"Silence," said the marquis. "It's for me to answer that question. Girl, I could prevent you, but I do not! Go!"

Without a word, but with a glance of grateful humility toward him, Lela glided out and entered the next room.

Edith Drayton hesitated for a moment, then the marquis, with a low bow more scathing than any words, limped forward and opened the door, and with bent head she passed out.

The doctor looked up as Lela entered; a nurse had arrived in the interval, and the motionless figure had been put in the bed.

"You have come back, Lady Fane?" he said, in a low voice.

She bowed her head.

"I have come to nurse—my husband," she said, with a quiver of the lips, as she laid her hand, soft as a snow-flake, on Edgar's.

The Path to Health

For many thousands of women the Path to Health has certainly been through Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When this great remedy was first introduced, and for many years after, skeptics frowned upon its curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by it has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands—doubt and skepticism have been swept away as by a mighty tidal wave, until today this purely vegetable medicine is recognized as the greatest remedy for woman's special ills in the world. This is because it is a wonderful tonic and reconstructor which acts directly and favorably upon the feminine organization and is a specific for that purpose.

Deadly Mystery Ship.

IDENTITY OF THE "VICTORY" OF THE MERCANTILE MARINE.

One of the secrets of the war against the Hun submarines—the identity of the deadly mystery ship Q5—was revealed this week at the ceremony of unveiling a tablet in the saloon of the tramp steamer Lodorer, lying in the Thames off Greenwich, with a cargo of sugar on board. Owned by Holder Middleton, and Co., the Lodorer was, up to October, 1915, an ordinary tramp steamer, but on that date her destiny changed, and onward till the signing of the armistice she was foremost in the most brilliant feats performed by the mercantile marine in the history of the war—feats which hand her down to history as the "Victory" of the mercantile marine. The tablet is a plain brass one recording the vessel's name, the name of her owners, and the fact that she was engaged in anti-submarine work for over two years. Then follows the name of her commander, Gordon Campbell, V.C., and the officers and men who served under him—all of whom gained distinction which are recorded on the brass. Vice-Admiral Sir A. Duff, in unveiling the tablet, said over 180 mystery ships had been employed, and apart from the submarines sunk, their moral effect was very great.

British Fleet Ready for Sea.

A WARNING TO GERMANY.

Spartacans Resuming Activity ---
Trial Trip of Dirigible R-34 ---
Procrastination by Plebiscite.

A HINT TO GERMANY.

LONDON, June 19. The Graid Fleet has again been placed on a war footing and is ready to sail for German waters at a moment's notice.

RECOMMEND NOT SIGNING.

BERLIN, June 19. The German peace delegates have drafted a memorandum recommending that the cabinet refuses to sign the Peace Treaty, according to a Weimar despatch to the Zeitung Am Mittag.

AIRSHIPS READY.

LONDON, June 19. Should Germany refuse to sign the Peace Treaty the flight of the R-34 will be eastward instead of westward. Airships which are now engaged in a demonstrative flight over Germany will return to their bases to-night and remain there until the German decision is announced. "Bombs and machine guns were unnecessary in the present flight," said an officer. "Should they have to go eastward again, however, those things may be needed."

SPARTACAN OUTBREAK AT WEIMAR.

WEIMAR, June 19. The arrival of the German peace delegates here early this morning was signalled by machine gun fire due to an attack on the castle where members of the government are quartered, by Spartacan and Communist prisoners. Officials refuse to give any information concerning the attack.

RESIGNED TO THE INEVITABLE.

BERLIN, June 19. "Sign the Treaty and be through with the agony" is the gist of the comment of the Berlin people to-day. After the wrath provoked by the indictment contained in the covering note of the Allied answer, Berlin residents seemed to have resigned themselves to the inevitable. "Rather end with terror than terror without end," was the way one put it.

PROVISIONS FOR GERMANY.

DEAL, June 19. Eight American steamers with provisions for Germany which were detained here for a few days have proceeded to German ports.

NORTHCLIFFE PROGRESSING SATISFACTORILY.

LONDON, June 19. Lord Northcliffe, who underwent an operation yesterday, was progressing satisfactorily, his physicians stated.

BEHAVING SPLENDIDLY.

EDINBURGH, June 19. Unless the wind abates to-day the Dirigible R-34, which is out on an extended flight, will not return to her base here until Friday morning at 11 o'clock. This morning her commander reported that she was 130 miles off the Scottish coast in a heavy wind, but with his craft behaving admirably. The commander of the dirigible was ordered to cruise over the North Sea until conditions for landing became better.

WILL DECIDE SATURDAY.

BERLIN, June 19. The German National Assembly will make its final decision on the Peace Treaty on Saturday, according to private advices received here from Weimar. In all probability, it is said, the Assembly will decide in order that a plebiscite be taken.

ITALIAN GOVERNMENT DEFEATED.

ROME, June 19. The Italian Government met with defeat in the Chamber of Deputies to-day, when the Chamber rejected a motion of confidence in the Government by 259 to 70. Premier Orlando had demanded that the Chamber meet in secret session to hear explanations regarding the former policy, and made it a question of confidence in the government.

A EXTENDED CRUISE.

EAST FORTUNE, Scotland, June 19.—The British dirigible R-34 carried no bombs or ammunition when she left here Tuesday for an extended cruise over the North Sea. A strong wind prevented her landing to-day. She was ordered to remain over the sea until the wind abates. Colonel Hunt, Commanding the camp at East Fortune, said to-day that if the ship returns on Friday morning it will take until Monday to get her into shape to start for a long flight, even if no repairs are needed on her engines. The Colonel added, by Monday we should be ready to start either way, east to aid the fleet if the Germans do not sign, or west to America if they do.

FOCH PREPARING.

PARIS, June 19. Marshal Foch is forming on the front against the Germans from the Rhine to the Danube, L'intransigent says it is informed. The Allied Commander in Chief, it is added, will henceforth extend his command over the Czech-Slovak-Roumanian and Polish armies.

UNDER ORDERS.

EDINBURGH, June 19. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency) — The British Fleet is under orders in view of the possibility of the Germans not signing the peace terms. All leave has been stopped and stores and ammunition have been taken aboard, and the fleet is ready to proceed to sea on the shortest notice. The fleet indeed is again on a war footing.

QUESTIONS SOLVED.

ROME, June 19. Premier Orlando in his address to Parliament to-day on the peace situation said: "The various economic and financial questions concerning Italy have been solved or are about to be solved."

A Fighting Member.

Legless Man in British House of Commons.

Major Cohen, who lost his legs in battle, made his maiden speech in the British House of Commons recently. He had the front corner seat on the Treasury side, next to the cross-benches. A composed, portly man, perfectly groomed, he showed no trace of his honourable affliction, for the modern maker of artificial limbs has become very expert in his craft. Spats adorned the major's boots.

Major Cohen craved the indulgence of the House for permission to speak seated. The Speaker accorded it instantly with a wave of the arm, and hearty cheers from all parts of the House showed that members were of one mind on the matter. Major Cohen spoke quietly, briefly, and well. The subject was amendment to the address expressing dissatisfaction with the pensions given to disabled sailors and soldiers. He said he took an interest in the subject, for he was a disabled soldier himself. (Sympathetic cheers.) He made a touching allusion to the friendly courtesy extended to him by the Speaker and all the members.

"I do not regard it as personal to myself, but as showing a general sympathy for disabled men. I am in favor of a scheme for apprenticing disabled men to private firms, leaving the men to choose their own trades. You cannot expect employers to pay them during the apprenticeship, but the state might very well do so.

"I refer more particularly to the partially disabled man. I myself am graded by the Pensions Department as 100 per cent. disabled. But I think there are still some things I can do. (Hear, hear.) A man of my kind can take up tailoring, or cobbling, or typewriting. My constituents have solved the problem for me. I recognize that every totally disabled man cannot become a member of Parliament. But he can do something. He does not want to sit at home with nothing to do and nothing to look forward to but the drawing of his pension."

A cheer of friendly approval followed the speech. Mr. Will Crooks crossed the House to congratulate the new member, and others followed the example.

Supply Problem.

We can solve all of them, from the 2½ gallons per minute proposition for the bathroom, to the automatic storage system providing 1000 gallons of hot water per hour for hotels and large establishments. We can greatly improve existing systems by providing copper-coil heaters with automatic control auxiliary to your coal range hot water tank, and insure a constant supply of hot water at all hours. Just One More Question.

"Do you happen to be going far, sir?" said the inquisitive traveler to the man in the corner after having reduced everyone else in the compartment to silent frenzy.

"Oh, no, only to Scotland," replied the other, sarcastically. "I am a commercial traveler. My age is forty-six. I am married. My name is Thomas Brown. I have a son of nineteen. He is in the Blankshire Butts. My father died last July. He was on the stock exchange. My mother is still living. I have a sister with red hair. Our charlady's name is Jane Briggs. Is there anything else?"

The inquisitive man hesitated. "What oil do you use for your tongue?" he inquired slowly.—London Times.

Miss Information.

Prince to Visit Canada.

To Open New Parliament House at Ottawa.

With the approval of the King, the Prince of Wales will visit Canada during the year. According to an official statement, it is expected that His Royal Highness will leave England in August, in order formally to open the new Parliament Building at Ottawa. The Prince of Wales, who spent a considerable time with the Canadian troops in France during the war, was a guest at a dinner given by the Canadian Club during the week to honour Lieut.-General Sir A. Currie, commanding the Canadian Army Corps. Responding to the toast of the Royal Family, His Royal Highness said he was glad to take the opportunity of saying that he was going over to Canada very soon. (Loud cheers.) He hoped to sail in less than three months time. He was looking forward to the visit very much, as he was sure he would see many old friends again and he hoped to make many new friends as well. It was true that he would be setting foot on soil that was new to him, but somehow or other Canadian soil would not seem strange because he had wandered over all the battlefields of Flanders, which were the scenes of the exploits of the Canadian battalions, and the memory that their gallant dead rest there would seem to have a just claim to be regarded as the very soil of the Dominion itself. The message therefore he had to send to all ranks of the Canadian corps who were still on this side of the Atlantic, was a very simple one, and it was—Au Revoir. (Cheers.)

This will be the first official visit paid by the Prince to the British Dominions overseas. It is interesting to recall that the King in July last, addressing the Dominion and Indian members of the Imperial Conference, stated that, after the war, the Prince would visit the overseas States of the Empire.

The Prince's New Office.

Installation Ceremony at St. Paul's.

With all the pomp of knightly circumstance, the Prince of Wales was, in St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday, installed as Grand Master of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, the Order which is peculiarly associated with the King's Dominions overseas. The Knights Grand Cross, having assembled in the little chapel of the Order, stately with banners of the living and memorials of the dead, the Grand Master took his seat in the stall next that of the Sovereign.

Booted and spurred, as a proved knight should be, the youthful Grand Master wore khaki under his "mantle of Saxon-blue satin, lined with scarlet, silk and gold, with two tassels of the same colours, and having on the left side the Star of the Order." He was preceded by the Duke of Connaught, similarly robed except for the regalia of the Grand Master.

While the congregation sang "For all the saints who from their labour rest," the Knights Grand Cross marched in slow procession from the western door to the choir. They included men whose names became familiar during the war—for instance, General Monash, General Currie, General Birdwood, Admiral de Robeck, Admiral Burney, Lord d'Abernon, Sir George Buchanan, Lord Finlay, and Lord Inchcape. The veteran was Sir Evelyn Wood, whose creation dates from 1882, and not much younger than him in the Order was Lord Grenfell (1892).

Daughters as Sightseers. In the nave was gathered a large company of Knights of St. Michael and St. George and their ladies, and a number of daughters so eager to see the stately ceremonial that they stood on chairs during the procession.

After a simple service read by the Dean of St. Paul's, the knightly company engaged in a "commemoration of the departed."—Daily Mail, June 3.

MILLEY'S.

Airman Spy Trial.

Secret Ink in Sweetheart's Handkerchiefs.

Probably the first airman to be court-martialed on a charge of treachery will be Corporal Paul Teulat. His case is a strange one, and especially interesting as showing the anxiety of the Germans to know the spots in Paris where their Big Bertha shells fell.

In May last year Teulat was obliged to land behind the German lines and was sent to one of the prisoners' camps formed by them for recruiting spies and traitors. The Huns first threatened to shoot the young airman, and then offered to release him if he would supply information concerning the results of the shelling of Paris. They said handkerchiefs would be sent to him which he was to soak in water in order to obtain secret ink with which to write his reports. The latter were to be forwarded through a French prisoner interned in Switzerland.

In the autumn of last year the attention of the French Intelligence Department was attracted by a letter from this prisoner to a telephone girl in the Seine Department, saying he was sending her a parcel of scent and handkerchiefs. What seemed curious was that she was recommended to "handle the handkerchiefs carefully."

The parcel was traced to Corporal Teulat at Bourget, who explained that the girl was his fiancée and "innocent." He had given her address to the Germans for the purpose of forwarding instructions, and his explanations enabled the authorities to trace the origin of a number of reports in invisible ink passing through the Swiss post.—Daily Mail.

Pleasure in Work.

We do best the things we like to do. We all like to work. We may deny the charge with mock-modesty for ourselves and for others with emphatic belief, but psychologists and physicians are unanimous in testifying that every healthy human animal craves action as it craves food.

The instinct of creative craftsmanship is as deep and genuine as the instinct of hunger. Men will make gardens, build strange and intricate designs in whatever material is available, construct and operate model machines and cheerfully exert muscles and mind to their utmost power rather than endure idleness.

The machine, in taking away one element of creative craftsmanship introduced another, higher, more intricate and ultimately more pregnant with pleasure. This is the element of organized team work. The play of diamond or gridiron make greater mental and physical exertions than any gang of machine workers. Men will exert themselves at repugnant toil all the week for a chance to share in such pleasurable exertion during an afternoon.

Modern big business is the most interesting of games. The problems of world resources, markets, finance and management offer incomprehensible field for splendid team play. Craftmanship and play is found in management to-day, and this no matter what physical and nervous energy is needed.

Labor demands a share in the team play. It is going to help plan the work of the world. This is one important but often unnoticed side of the labor problem.

Putting these elements into industry will multiply pleasure and productivity and change the labor to the play problem. Sharing planning and profits among producers takes most of the pain and waste and struggle out of industry.

This is one of the things toward which the world is now almost blindly struggling.—Vancouver Sun.

Side Talk by Ruth C.

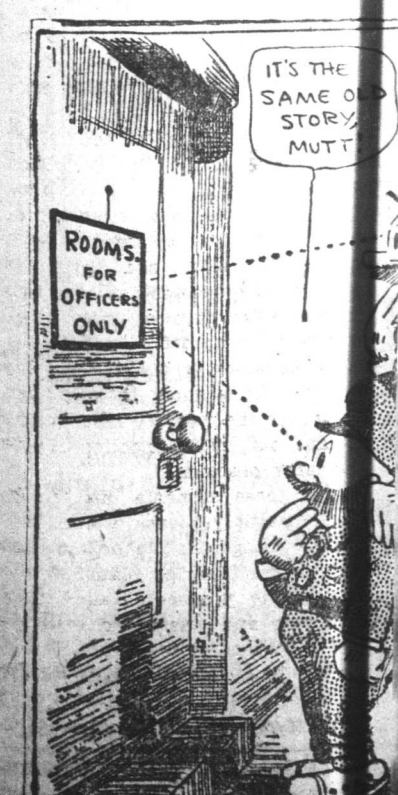

WHY WE RESIST THE psychology of people who dislike improvements and either never try them or, having tried them, set their faces against being convinced that they are helpful? I never can quite understand it though sometimes I find a trace of it in myself. For instance, after everyone else in the world has had a fountain pen for years, I have just been converted to one. Having been converted I am devoted. Yet all through college when others used fountain pens I preferred a pencil (and as a consequence was often unable to read my own notes.) All through my newspaper work and the big correspondence which I have long handled I wasted time and effort in pen dipping. Why on earth did I do it?

We are apt to feel that it is the old folks who are always against innovations but I think it is more a matter of temperament than age. I know a young woman who will never try anything new. She uses a hot water bottle a great deal and I suggested an electric pad to her and she showed her mine. "It seems all right," she said doubtfully. "But triumphantly" if it were a really good thing why wouldn't everybody who had electricity use it?"

"If They Are Good Why Doesn't Everyone Use Them?"

I might tell her that the answer to that is that there are so many people just like her in the world who cling with narrow minded distrustfulness to the old and never give any new thing a chance till it too is old. Or I might ask her what would have happened to all the conveniences she enjoys in her house, electricity, hot water, heat, plumbing, etc., etc., if others had said when their inventors were trying to get people to try them, "If they are any good why doesn't everybody use them?"

You Can Prove But Not Convince. But it wouldn't be of the slightest avail for she is one of those people

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHY WE RESIST THE NEW.

RUTH CAMERON

What is the psychology of people who dislike improvement and other things? I never can quite understand it though sometimes I find a trace of it in myself. For instance, after everyone else in the world has had a fountain pen for years, I have just been converted to one. Having been converted I am devoted. Yet all through college when others used fountain pens I preferred a pencil (and as a consequence was often unable to read my own notes.) All through my newspaper work and the big correspondence which I have long handled I wasted time and effort in pen dipping. Why on earth did I do it?

We are apt to feel that it is the old folks who are always against innovations but I think it is more a matter of temperament than age. I know a young woman who will never try anything new. She uses a hot water bottle a great deal and I suggested an electric pad to her and showed her mine. "It seems all right," she said doubtfully, "But," triumphantly "if it were a really good thing why wouldn't everybody who had electricity use it?"

"If They are Good Why Doesn't Everyone Use Them?" I might tell her that the answer to that is that there are so many people just like her in the world who cling with narrow minded distrustfulness to the old and never give any new thing a chance till it too is old. Or I might ask her what would have happened to all the conveniences she enjoys in her house, electricity, hot water, heat, plumbing, etc., etc., if others had said when their inventors were trying to get people to try them, "If they are any good why doesn't everybody use them?"

You Can Prove But Not Convince But it wouldn't be of the slightest avail for she is one of those people whom argument only makes more set. You can prove a thing is true so far as any thing they have to offer to the contrary to them but they still believe it. And speaking of age this woman's mother is very open-minded. She is always ready when she can to "try anything once." This same woman will not admit a gas stove is more useful in certain lines or any quicker than a coal stove. She happens to have one in her apartment but she wouldn't care if she never saw one she says. I notice, however, that if she wants hot water in a hurry she heats it on the gas stove.

One Part Liking To Be Odd

I suppose after all the psychology is not so difficult to analyze. There is one part obstinacy in it and one part natural conservatism, one part the habit of a closed mind and perhaps one part of liking to be odd. I can remember with what a superior air I used to say, "Oh yes, I've had a fountain pen offered me several times but I really prefer the good old fashioned pen." Fortunately it is usually ourselves we rob the most by this state of mind. Yet can one rob one's self without robbing others?"

One of the earliest habits to teach a child is to brush its teeth night and morning.

The After-Dinner Speech

(From the Thrift Magazine.) The after-dinner speech, like lightning or a flat tire, often strikes at the most unexpected moment. To most men it is a trying ordeal to stand before a vast audience of up-turned shirt-fronts and perpetrate a speech whether one's extemporaneous remarks have been carefully prepared in advance or not.

It is always well to go thoroughly armed for such dangers. To this end the following outline has been prepared for use in case of accident: Begin by saying, "Unaccustomed as I am"—then say, "This reminds me of a little story about an Irishman named Pat." If possible tell one that has no bearing whatever on the occasion.

Tell a story about a Scotchman named Sandy. Don't fail to call him the canny Scot, and as nearly as possible, use the same dialect employed in relating the story about Pat. Wait several minutes till the laughter has died down and then tell the one about Sambo stealing chickens that your grandfather used to relate. Introducing it by saying, "I am reminded of a little story I just heard this afternoon."

It is now time to drag in the subject of your address. Do this by saying, "The subject I have been called on to discuss this evening reminds me of a little story I once heard about an Irishman named Mike." In relating this anecdote be sure to use the term "be gorry" several times. The audience will thus know at once that you are still continuing your story about 'Sambo and the chickens.

Apologize for having taken up so much time. Try desperately to take a drink of ice-water from an empty glass. Say in a soft, subdued voice, "I thank you. Perspire eloquently. And then sit way down.

WAKIN' UP O' MORNINGS.

Wakin' up o' mornings for another happy day. Another round o' laughter an' another whirl o' play; Another time o' smilin' from the dawn till dusk descends, Another day o' laughter an' another day o' cheer With the mother an' the baby an' the children smilin' near.

Wakin' up o' mornings for the gracious gifts of God. An' a round o' glad surprise as along life's way I plod To see some new-born blossom shining gaily at the door An' to hear the baby rattling something never said before.

Wakin' up o' mornings to an ever changin' scene To find some thrill o' gladness that before has never been; To live the old joys over an' to come upon the new.

An' maybe find some little dream o' slyendor comin' true.

Peace Pens.

That there will be the keenest competition for the pen or pens used in signing the great Peace Treaty goes without saying.

The ex-Empress Eugenie possesses one of the most historic peace pens—that used at the signing of the Treaty of Paris in 1856. This pen is formed of the quill of a golden eagle's wing, richly mounted with diamonds and gold.

When the Anglo-American and Franco-American Treaties were signed, President Taft was presented with the gold pen with which the signatures were inscribed on the various documents; while the pen with which the Treaty of Vienna was signed is preserved in the family of Viscount Bangor. Mr. Ward, who afterwards succeeded to the title, was private secretary to Lord Castlereagh at the time of the signing of the Treaty, and managed to gain possession of the pen.

In the Berlin Museum may be seen two historic pens—that with which Queen Louise of Prussia signed her last will and testament, side by side with the pen used by William I. of Prussia in his famous letter to Queen Augusta, informing her of the victory of Sedan.

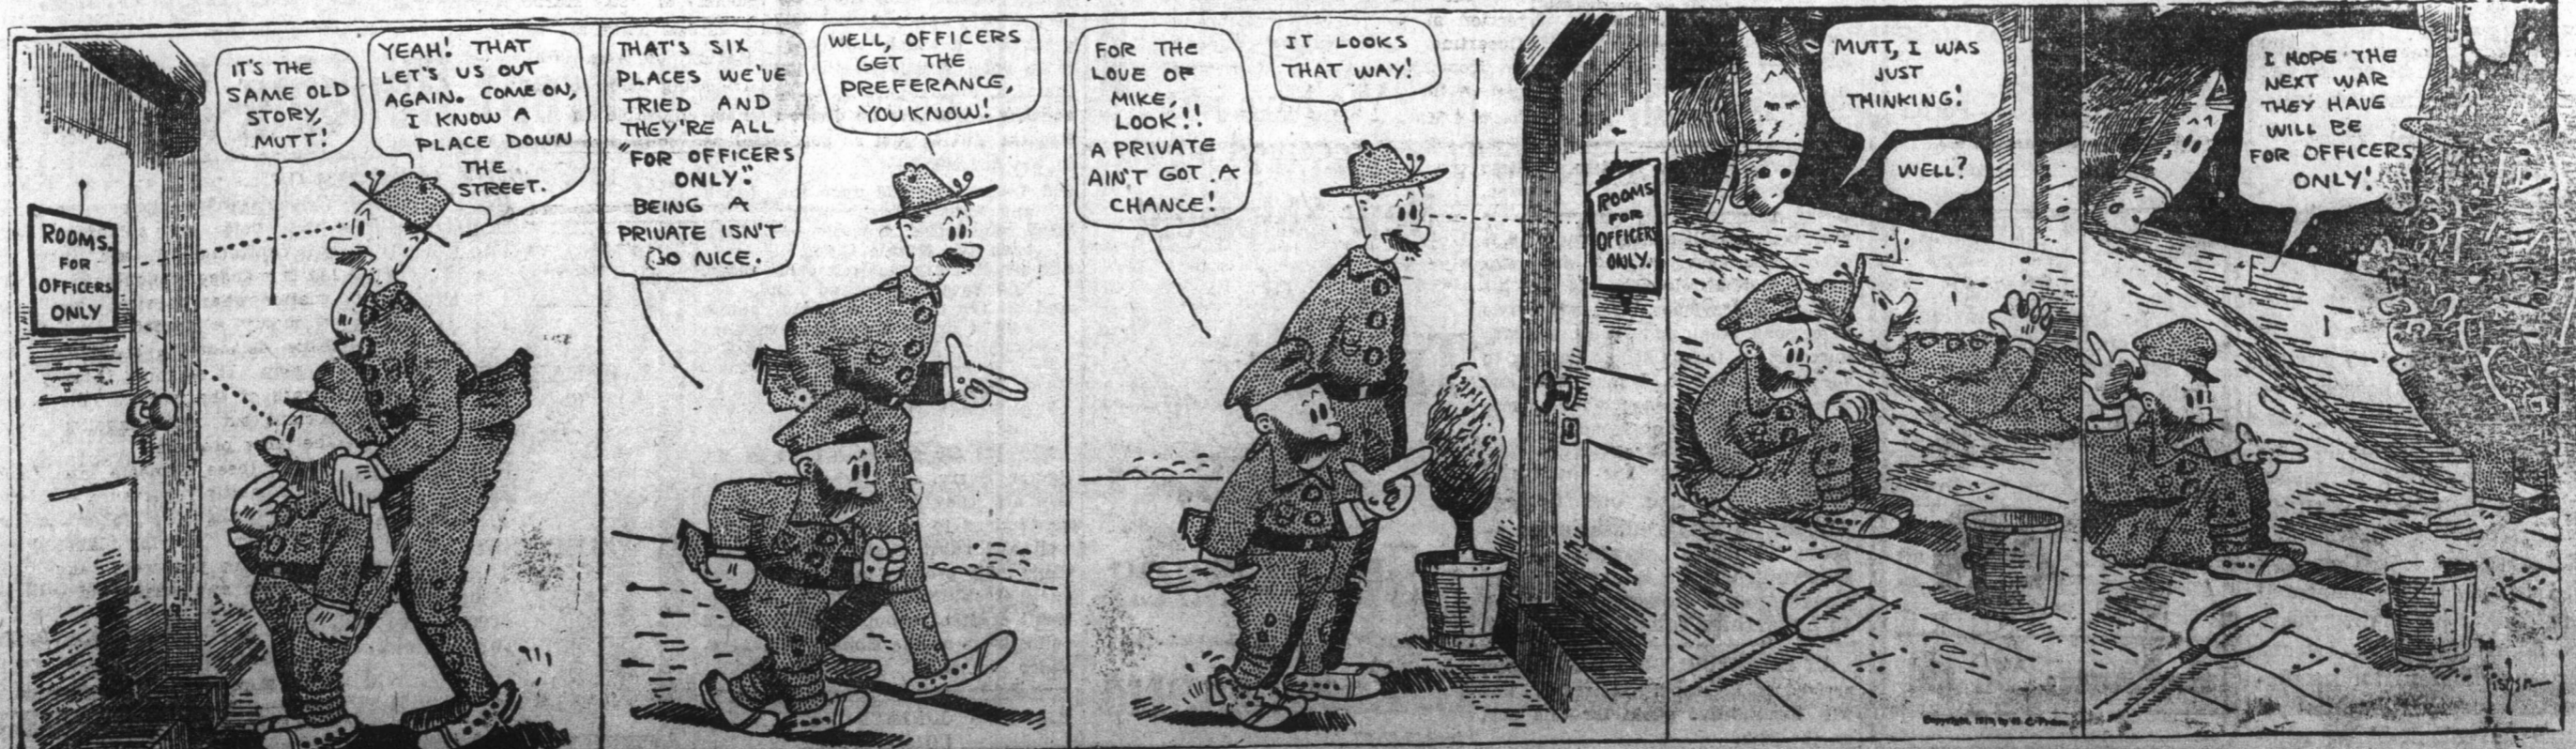

Among other historic pens may be mentioned that used by Charles Dickens just before his death, and which was sold in an auction-room for £19.10s., although £40 was paid for the well-worn gold pen used by "Boz" for many years. The quill pen used by Wellington when writing to Queen Victoria in 1844 brought only five and a half guineas, while one of Sir Walter Scott's pens, selected by Lord Dalhousie in 1829 from the novelist's writing-table at Abbotsford, only realized three guineas more.

Heaven—Via Aberdeen.

(From the London Chronicle.) A chaplain lately returned from a base hospital tells of a dying Scottish soldier whom he was called up to see in the night.

The soldier assured the padre that he had arranged all his earthly affairs, thanked him for his ghostly ministrations, and ended by saying that there was one question he would like to ask, and that the padre promised he would do his best to answer. "Well, sir, ye've made me sure that I shall go to heaven; but wud it no be possible for me to pass through Aberdeen on ma way?"

Germany Defiant.

That the Allies are taking measures for a ready concentration of troops, preparatory to making an advance into the heart of Germany, need not occasion surprise. It has long been known to military observers that a show of force is the only thing calculated to bring the Germans to their senses and compel their delegates to sign the Peace Treaty. Germany being the exponent of the mailed fist and iron boot, can only be made see reason by an application of the methods with which she is familiar, and a military demonstration by the Allied forces, before the German people, will have the effect of showing them the futility of further refusal to conclude peace. Germany is defiant, because she is under the impression that the Allies have no material left in France, wherewith to begin an invasion. Only when the inhabitants see with their own eyes the march of the Allied soldiers through their country, will they be turned from this belief, and anticipating that such a display will be necessary, the Commander-in-Chief of the Allied armies, Marshal Foch, has issued orders for instant preparation of the divisions selected for whatever new operations may be found necessary. Faced with the bitter alternative of a renewal of hostilities, in the event of a persistent refusal to sign the treaty, Germany will doubtless climb down from her present haughty position and instruct her representatives to accept and autograph the peace document.

The counter proposals submitted by the late enemy, the text of which was not published in detail, were, in essence, a virtual rejection of the Allied terms. The reply of the Peace Council to these counter proposals, was, in effect, a refusal to consider them, though one or two minor modifications in the original treaty conditions were made. In the counter proposals, the Germans, instead of suggesting a revision, practically demanded a brand new Treaty, and assailed the territorial settlements, made by the Council, in all directions, a claim being made that no frontier changes should take place without the consent of the populations, these being, so far as the European frontiers were concerned, mainly German or friends of Germany. Typically German this. Further in the counter proposals submitted, Germany repudiated the manner in which the League of Nations was organized, but notwithstanding, had the audacity to ask for a mandate to govern her last overseas possessions. Other proposals suggested, particularly that of financial reparation, were of the Prussian brand. As monetary compensation against the Allies' bill for damages and loss, Germany offered to pay five thousand million dollars in eight years and approximately twenty thousand million in an indefinite period, in other words as may be convenient. Taken altogether the counter proposals were nothing more or less than a catalogue of the injustices of the Allies' terms, and had they been agreed to by the Council it would have been a case of heads I win, tails you lose for the crafty Huns.

A very significant happening, and one which shows how seriously the authorities in Britain regard the situation, is the postponement of the trans-Atlantic flight of the dirigible airship R-34, which was to have taken place to-day, the cause for the delay being that it is deemed wise to put off the event until Germany decides whether or not she intends to sign the Peace Treaty. Tomorrow will tell the tale, and should the German nation again take up the sword, there will be no halt, this time, until submission is made in the great Hall of Berlin. The wrongs of humanity must be righted, and should Germany refuse to accept the fourteen points of agreement, there is still at the Allies' disposal the fifteenth point of compulsion—the bayonet.

"A Great Feat!" "Advocate" Chesterfields.

United States Newspapers Praise Darling Flight of Alcock and Brown.
NEW YORK, June 18.—New York morning newspapers are unstinted in their praise of the great accomplishment of Captain Alcock and Lieut. Brown.

The Tribune says: "The Atlantic is now conquered. What next? Secretary Daniels is talking about conquering the Pacific. After that the record making aviator will weep, like Alexander, that there are no more worlds to conquer."

The Herald says: "Great Britain, with her Vickers-Vimy bombing plane flying from Newfoundland to Ireland without stopping, has set up another marvellous record of the air."

"Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown deserve unlimited praise for their daring in starting across an unmarked sea in an airplane, and of course, their success will bring them much material reward. But to the science of aviation, still in the incubator, will fall the greatest benefit."

The Times calls it, "a great feat," and says it ranks among the greatest human achievements, and not merely as another highest mark of British sportsmanship."

The Sun says: "When flying to Europe has become a routine incident of every day life, as it soon will be, the names of Alcock and Brown will gleam bright in the records of man's progress in mastering the elements."

The World says: "The flight of Alcock and Brown across the Atlantic was a splendid feat. In the scientific skill and pure sportsmanship, in physical endurance and indifference to danger, it has never been surpassed in the records of aviation. For all time they have won the honor of being the pioneers to bridge the ocean from Newfoundland to Ireland."

Grotesque Report.

Dear Sir,—I am just in receipt of a letter from Mr. William Barbour, of Nain, Labrador, dated February 14th, containing the following information regarding the sickness on that Coast and more particularly referring to the settlement of Okak:
"Okak: Men all dead, only sixty children and women alive, and two young boys. Lots of the bodies were eaten by dogs as nobody could get out to bury the dead."
"In Hebron there are only five women and 11 men alive. The Missionary's house at Okak was burnt during the winter."
Yours truly,

Sunkist Marmalade a Quality Product.

The manufacturers of Sunkist Marmalade will never attempt to meet the prices quoted on some Marmalades, for some will always be too cheap. Sunkist quality could not be maintained on a lower price to-day. In figuring the cost of Sunkist Marmalade first, the best marmalade that it was possible to make was made and then the price was determined. If you could visit the Sunkist kitchens you would see at once that quality takes the precedent over price.

When you enter these kitchens you see scores of women tending small kettles in which the Marmalade is cooking on individual stoves. In each kettle is only a small quantity of Marmalade—only forty pounds, to be exact. You see the women cooks watching and stirring the contents continually, just as they would do if they were making marmalade at home. You don't see here the great seven-thousand-pound cooking vats that you would see in a cheap marmalade factory.

You see the ingredients combined in certain proportions according to an old Scotch recipe—just the rich, pure juice of the Oranges, a little grapefruit or lemon juice, pure sugar and the shredded peel. You see no adulteration, no glucose, no glycerine, no gelatine or other fillers, because there is no place for them in the Sunkist Quality Products. Sunkist Orange Marmalade, Sunkist Orange Jelly, Sunkist Grapefruit Marmalade will soon be for sale by the leading St. John's grocers. Orders for the Trade now being booked by P. E. Outerbridge, Sole Agent.

"A Great Feat!" "Advocate" Chesterfields.

Come to think of it, wasn't the Honorable Alexander W. Meves, Editor of the Advocate, once a book-keeper with the Standard Manufacturing Company, Limited, from which position he went direct to the editorial chair of the paper which he now directs in the interests of the fishermen, about whom he knows so little: and wasn't Mr. Geo. F. Grimes, staff contributor and star writer of the Advocate, also the exponent of Bolshevism, and F.P.U. member for Port de Grava, a clerk at Hon. Geo. Knowling's, before he was selected to become dry goods expert for the Union Trading Company, and while the National Government lasted held down a job on the Food Control Board. He, too, knows quite a lot about the fishermen. Then there is that encyclopaedia of fishery knowledge, Mr. R. Hibbs, prospective F.P.U. candidate for St. Barbe District, and last, but not least, of this literary quartette is Mr. John Scammell, another gentleman with parliamentary ambitions, who is slated for Burgeo and LaPolla, and who is famous for his knowledge of the fisheries and the fishermen. His ultimate fate is political burial in the "Channell bog," to which the Advocate scribe Critick made reference yesterday.—Com.

May be Refloated.

Hon. Tasker Cook and Surveyor Clark returned from the scene of the stranded "Fern" by the s.s. Wren. The steamer is ashore at Knight's Cove Point, about 1 1/2 miles from King's Cove, and there is a possibility of refloating her, if the weather conditions hold favorable. The deck cargo of 360,000 feet of deals has been salvaged and piled at King's Cove and the work of removing the balance of the 840,000 feet, which comprised the cargo, from the hold is now in progress. This is expected to take about ten days, when it is believed she can get off the rocks. The engines and boilers are intact and as far as can be judged at present, the ship is not extremely damaged. The crew will be paid off in a few days and come on here. The tug Ingraham is at the wreck assisting in the salvaging operations.

Regatta Revival.

The Harbor Grace Volunteer Fire Brigade are now making a move to start their annual Regatta, which has not been held since the commencement of the war. This popular day of amusement has been held at historic Lady Lake under the auspices of the Brigade since the early sixties of the past century, and is the one great day in which all our people meet upon the level—the poor and the rich, taking part in a spirit of equality. We have no doubt that the Regatta will be just as successful as in the day when—
Old Toussaint stood upon the beach and unto them he cried: "Pull ahead the Weasel and keep back the Minnie Cude!"
Stephen Hartery was our commander, Ned Vass was second hand. And all the rest were bold young youths brought up in Newfoundland.

New Schooner.

The 128 ton schooner, built by Mr. Baxter Barry, at Alexander Bay, is now all ready for launching. She is pronounced to be a splendid model, well and substantially built, and no doubt will prove a good addition to our mercantile marine fleet. Another small craft of about 30 tons is also being built at the same place, Alexander Bay, B.B.

New Relief For Constipation,
"LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.

So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandra leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.

Church Lads' Brigade.

During the week the "Old Comrades" held their regular meeting, at which good progress has been made, some ten new members joining the roll. A deputation was appointed to wait on the Lt.-Col. Commanding to arrange for the participation in camp of any old comrades who wish to attend for a day or two, and Co.-Sergt. Major Peckham has volunteered to take charge of the canteen at Topsisall, selling refreshments and confectionery in aid of the camp expenses. The deputation interviewed the Colonel's representatives last night which will result in a room being set apart entirely for the Old Comrades' use. At the meeting a sum of fifty dollars was voted toward camp expenses of the Brigade. Last night the Lt.-Col., R. F. Goodridge, was unavoidably absent from duty by reason of the Royal Nfd. Regimental ball, but the lads proceeded countrywards under Lieut. A. S. Lewis, with Bursell's bugle band in charge of Lance-Corp. Johnson, acting bugle band-master, and officers Fletcher and Lieut. Miles. The band were busily engaged in the band-room practising. Lieut. Emerson was present, putting in good work with the educational department. Sergt. Dewling, M.M., in the absence of Lieut. Reeves, R.A.C.M., was also "going strong" preparing the Ambulance Division for an exhibition of their work at the coming Shannon Munn Orphanage Garden Party. The Brigade headquarters has had a visit recently from Bandmaster Harold Martin, of Wabana's famous musical artists—the band of J. Co., C.L.B. All ranks were glad to see him as he was an ex-member. We congratulate him on "carrying on" in the Iron Isle, and we note he ordered some twenty new band caps for the band. The Col. Commanding, during the week had an interesting letter from Robinson's, West Coast, applying for permission to organize a C.L.B. Company there with forty recruits, and the matter has his consideration. No doubt other parishes are going to organize also, as it would be a good thing for "young Newfoundland" to have the benefit of the C.L.B. training, as it is so much help to them in various ways. Many of the returned soldiers and sailors are only too glad to lend a hand in the movement, which has proved its merits in the companies at present existing. Last night 63 lads signed their names on the notice board to go to Topsisall camp, and all employers are asked to try and arrange so that the lads can spend their vacations in the "Big Camp of 1919"—the Peace Camp at Topsisall.—Q.

Wedding Bells.

CHAPEL—ANTLE.

At the Anglican Cathedral, on Tuesday afternoon, a very pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. J. Brinton, when he united in matrimony Annie, daughter of Mrs. Mary and the late Mr. Jacob Chafe, to Mr. Edgar Antle of the Reid Newfoundland Company's office. The bride looked charming in a dress of cream Habutal silk with bridal veil, and was attended by her sister, Miss Florence Chafe who was attired in a dress of Saxe Blue Duchesse satin with hat to match. After the ceremony the young couple motored to Bowring Park where an excellent reception was held which was enjoyed by the immediate relatives and friends of the family. At 10.30 the happy pair motored to Topsisall where the honeymoon will be spent. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Antle many years of happiness.—Com.

Diamond of Death.

CENTURIES OF TRAGEDY BEHIND ILL-STARRED JEWEL.

Murder, suicide, madness, and other misfortunes have pursued the owners of the famous Hope blue diamond. The evil influence of the diamond (which weighs 44 1/2 carats) is said to date from the time when Europeans stole it from a temple at Burma. Its victims have been many and various, and so evil is its reputation that on the occasion of its last sale but one it sold for only £16,000, or £9,000 less than its accepted value. The great stone, which flashes with the combined beauty of a sapphire and a diamond, was brought from the East in 1688 by Tavernier, the great traveller. He sold it to pay his debts, and, returning to the East, died of fever. Mme. de Montespan died the decline of her favour in the eyes of Louis the XIV, who bought the stone, from the day when she persuaded Louis to let her wear it. Fouquet, a financier of the time, borrowed the diamond to make himself fine for a great fete. Soon after he lost the royal favour and was imprisoned. No one needs to be told of the misfortunes which befell Marie Antoinette. She selected the Blue Diamond from the Crown Jewels for her own wear and died on the guillotine. The Princess de Lamballe also borrowed the jewel. She was done to death by a mob. William Fals, of Amsterdam, who cut it, was ruined, and Francis Beaulieu, who secured the gem in the French Revolution, died of starvation. For many years the jewel disappeared altogether, and then it came into possession of Mr. Thomas Hope, the wealthy banker, whose daughter was the mother of Lord Francis Pelham Clinton Hope. Lord Francis Hope, the next owner, had an unhappy matrimonial adventure, marrying Miss May Yobe, the American actress, and afterwards divorcing her. In 1901 the blue diamond was sold. M. Jacques Colot, who bought it, after selling it to the Prince Kantovski, a Russian, lost his reason, and died by his own hand. It was lent by Prince Kantovski to Lorena Ladue, a beautiful actress at the Folies Bergere, and he shot her from a box the first night she wore it. Two days later the Prince was stabbed. The next owner, a Greek, was thrown over a precipice and killed with his wife and two children. It got to Constantinople, and the favorite of the ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid, Salma Zubayba, was wearing the blue diamond, on her heart when the Young Turks broke into the palace, and she was shot dead by her master. Mr. Habib, the next owner, an Armenian, was drowned at Singapore. The diamond came to the hands of Messrs. Cartier, the New York jewellers, who sold it to Mr. Edward McLean for £32,000. When Mrs. McLean heard of the tragic history of the diamond she persuaded her husband to refuse to complete the bargain. Messrs. Cartier thereupon sued Mr. McLean, and the latter ultimately took delivery of the stone for £36,000, in January, 1912, and presented it to his wife. A few months afterwards Mr. McLean's mother died after an attack of pneumonia, and now his son, the idolized heir to millions, is dead, too.—News of the World.

An ingenious Socialistic device is now under discussion in the Berlin Town Council. In order to give the poorer classes a chance to buy some of the very high-priced foreign food flour to enter the Socialists propose a sliding scale of prices in accordance with the purchaser's income tax. People with an income under £150 are to get the goods at two-thirds of the official price, those between £150 and £250 are to pay the official price, those between £250 and £600 an additional fifth, those over £600 pay half as much again.

Sow Fasted Three Months.

That a pig can retain life for three months without nourishment has been demonstrated to Uriah Pendleton of Mulmer. Last December Mr. Pendleton was puzzled over the mysterious disappearance of a sow. He had ceased to think of his loss when a couple of weeks ago the sow reappeared in the backyard. She weighed 450 when she vanished, but came back a skeleton, every bone being discernible. The sow had forced her way into a small passage between the remains of a stack which had been cut down sheer and the new stack built over it, and was unable to get out. There she remained for three months and six days without anything to eat or drink other than what nourishment could be obtained from the straw within reach. The animal is picking up, and has already put on considerable flesh.

Stole Thirty Autos in Four months.

London, June 10.—For four months Sidney Merideth, an attractive musician of twenty-two, dressed like a prince and threw money to the wings in fashionable hotels on the £2,000 to £2,500 a week he acquired thru the daring theft of automobiles in London. He finally came to grief however, and has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Merideth has a thorough driving knowledge of cars, and this, with his appearance, was his stock-in-trade. He would not attract attention as he climbed into a big car, standing in front of a club or hotel and drove away, and he confined himself largely to this method. He confessed, the police say, to stealing thirty machines in the four months he operated.

Merideth is accredited with saying that he sold each car quickly to a syndicate of wealthy men, whom he believes often made from 400 to 700 per cent profit after repainting the machines and otherwise changing their appearance. He declined to divulge their identity.

BILL TO BRING WILLIAM BACK.

By hook or by crook the Pan-German Union is bent on saving what is left of William II. It has addressed to the Conservative and National factions of the National Assembly an urgent prayer that they immediately formulate a Bill that shall make it possible for William Hohenzollern to return to Germany as a private citizen.

"By abdicating he by no means forfeited the rights of German citizenship," they say. "He may therefore claim the protection of the German Government as much as any one of his former subjects." The Pan-Germans also demand that the Bill shall of Wireless.

The world has now grown so accustomed to the wonders of wireless that it accepts without question, and without surprise, any claims that may be put forward as to its achievements. And it seems positively ungrateful not to express some gratified astonishment at the speech in which Mr. Godfray spoke of the future of wireless telegraphy, and of some of its developments during the war," says the Daily Telegraph.

It is a large number of vessels, and no one was fitted with wireless installations, which completed during the day over a distance of some 200 miles with wireless, and during the night some 500 miles in the neighborhood of 500 miles. To-day these distances were travelled at least, so that a passenger travelling across the Atlantic never, he thought, again be touched with one or the other of the coast.

He would be able to attend to his affairs with almost the promptitude and ease as he were he but a few miles from the office of business.

He would in future be able to send and telegraph either to sea or to the coast without possibility of interference. It would also be possible to equip a ship with an apparatus which would give its exact position in dense fog. It would not only be able to find the approach of another ship, but it would also learn approximately and near enough for its purpose the distance of that ship. In some way the whole of the coast would be equipped with apparatus which would give a ship at sea its position. Wireless has already done much in saving lives; this further great invention would go far towards eliminating the greatest perils which men travelled at sea encountered in the form of fog and intense darkness.

"I Am So Weak and do Not Seem to Gain Any Strength"

"It takes time you know."
"Yes, but I am getting tired of having people trying to encourage me that way."
"You are too impatient."
"Perhaps so, but when will I ever get strong if I do not gain a little every day?"
"Have you tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?"
"No, I have not, but so many have told me about it that I have a notion to give it a trial."
"I certainly would try it if I were you, for it certainly helped me wonderfully when I was so weak and nervous last spring. And, besides, I could tell you of a dozen women who have used it when they were like you are, and soon got strong and well."
"Nurse was reading me a letter published in the paper from a Mrs. Conrad Smith of Milverton, Ont., and she also told me of other cases she has known about."
She says she never ran across anything which helps women so much to gain strength after child-birth.
This is Mrs. Smith's letter:
"Two years ago last spring I was run down, had nervous prostration, and was in a terribly nervous condition. I could not sleep or eat, could scarcely count the nights that I passed without sleep, and if I did eat, had sick headaches and vomiting spells. My limbs would swell so badly that it hurt me to walk. I would jump up in bed, awakened by bad dreams. In fact, I was so bad, I thought I could not live, and started to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food without much hope. It was not long before I began to improve under this treatment, and I can truthfully say it has done me a world of good. It took some time to get the nervous system restored, but I kept right on using the Nerve Food regularly, and gradually gained in health and strength. I have a fine baby now. He weighed 12 pounds at birth, and though my friends were anxious after the condition I was in, I got over that fine, and now weigh 120 pounds. Before using the Nerve Food I was a mere skeleton."
For your protection the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, are on every box of the genuine Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50c a box, $ for $2.75, all dealers, or Edman-son, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Why Corns Hurt

Note this diagram picture of a corn. Note its conical shape. The cause of the corn is pressure. And pressure makes it hurt. The point of the corn is pushed into the nerves. Applying a Blue-jay plaster instantly removes the pressure. Note the felt ring (A) in the picture below. The ring gives barefoot comfort in the tightest shoe.

But that is temporary. One should not continue a ring. The corn should be quickly ended.

The bit of B&B wax in the center of the ring does that (marked B in illustration below). In two days, usually, the whole corn disappears. It stops the pain, then ends the corn. And it wraps the corn so the action is undisturbed.

Then the action of the B&B wax is centered on the corn. Held there by the rubber coated adhesive tape (C) which wraps comfortably around the toe. Healthy tissue is not affected.

These are the reasons why millions of people have adopted the Blue-jay method. Keeping corns is folly when this easy way can end them. Treating them in cruder ways is inexcusable.

For your own sake, convince yourself by applying Blue-jay to one corn.

Experience of Nfld. Soldiers Who Were Captured by Germans, April 14th, 1917.

During the April offensive, 1917, at Arras, on the Western Front, a battalion was en route for Arras to take up position for their first and second lines. It looked very suspicious, but however, we continued to advance, and had gone about eight hundred yards, when we received the order to dig in. There was not an officer left in my company then. The regiment on our left had advanced too, and had taken up their position in a trench about forty yards in length. There was about three hundred and fifty men in this small space, while there was an interval of at least ten yards between everyone of our men. If these men had connected up with our men, the misfortune of what I am about to tell would never have happened. By this time our boys had very little ammunition left, and we were expecting Fritz to counter attack in a short time, when suddenly there was a confusion on our left, men with their hands up, and more throwing down their weapons. We could not tell who it was at first, but some of the boys said the Germans were surrendering, but we soon found out who it was. It happened in this way: We were just beginning to feel at home, and the most of the boys were smoking, when these words were distinctly heard, "Hands up, ye English swine!" Then we knew it was all up, as it seemed like a million Germans had come from nowhere, and we were completely at their mercy. There was about four hundred captured—three hundred and ten Englishmen and ninety Newfoundlanders. We were taken to a village about two kilometres behind the enemy lines. In this village we were closely questioned by the German officers, but our men kept silent. The German staff, however, knew more about our guns and positions than we did, and told us that we were just off the Somme, and had been in training for the advance for about a month. Some of the German officers could speak good English. Some of our men were roughly addressed and some received some black bread from a kind-hearted French lady, who was a civilian prisoner. About noon our mounted guards arrived. They were composed of Uhlan Cavalry, the most evil looking animals ever seen in history. We started on our march, and did not know where we were going. Some of the boys were feeling pretty bad; some had had wounds, and all of us had not tasted food for about twelve hours. We marched all that evening until about eleven in the night, when we reached our destination. By that time half of us were falling from weakness, but it was of no use; you would only get a kick in the ribs and be called a lazy English swine. We were put in a large prison in the town of Douai where there were about a thousand Australian prisoners already. We were kept in this place for four days. In the mornings we got half a pint of what they called coffee, or in other words sand water and one small piece of black cake or pig iron; at noon we received about the same measure of soup or in other words a pig stew. After the fourth day we were put on the train for Germany, so we were told. The next day we landed in Fort McDonald in the town of Lille, and here began our trouble. There were about two thousand prisoners in this hole. Two hundred of us were put in a room about forty by twelve feet in which there was but one large window. The floor was of concrete and was very damp, and the help of a rotary plow was required to clean the insects off the floor. We had to get down and sleep on this, with our steel helmets for a pillow, and also for a dinner plate, wash basin, and seat. If you had a drop of soup to wash with you would be in luck, for to drink this soup you would need the digestion of a dozen mules. We were told here that we were not prisoners of war but prisoners of respect. Very pleasant news. I may add that the men who entered this place at first were in good health, but when they came out they were more like living skeletons. We were next put on a cattle train and placed behind the German lines, and some of the boys were put in as far as the German second line, carrying shells up to their field artillery. The party that I was in was composed of fifty Nflds., and about 250 others. We were put in a building which was said to be a French gentleman's house, but it was not finished. There were five medium sized rooms in this house, with no windows, also damp concrete floor, and as previously stated you would need the help of a rotary plow to kill the insects. There was a barred wire fence around this prison and a sentry posted at every ten yards, so escape was impossible. There was also a small prison, or in other words a rat's cage, inside this fence. It consisted of three cells 2 ft. by 2 ft. You could not stand up or sit down in these cages. One poor chap got put in for three days for picking up an empty egg shell. We had to go to work from half-past five in the morning until six in the evening, with half an hour break at noon. The first three days we got a steel helmet full of mangel water between seven men; that was about a quart of what the Huns called soup for seven, and two hundred and fifty grammes of black bread—that is about half a pound. These were our day's rations. We had to work Sundays, rain or shine with no overcoats, and if you stopped to straighten your back, you would get the butt of a rifle laid across it. These are not lies, but a candid fact. It was very warm about this time in France and every day, ten or twelve men would fall weak, but would be immediately put on their feet and a shovel or pick put roughly in their hands, with a kick or two. This lasted for about three months without any pay, or in other words we were a little worse than slaves. We were not registered then, so they did not care what they did with us. About the middle of July we were withdrawn about thirty kilometres further back. Here we received better treatment, and even the German doctors said that if the prisoners were not treated better, they would be responsible for them. About the last of November we were sent to Germany where we got treated better, and received our parcels from the British Red Cross for which we were more than thankful. Some of the boys had good times and some bad, but any way the most of them came through it, but no thanks to the German barbarians. The most of us got away from Germany just before Christmas and came to England.

There are lots of people who may not believe this, on account of the healthy look of the prisoners returning, but the men who have been through it, would tell you just the same as what I have stated.

London's Welcome

TO COMMANDER OF N. C. A.

When, this week, Commander Read and his gallant colleagues, arrived in London, they were greeted with true British cordiality, in which there was a strong American admixture. The news that the airmen were reaching Paddington on the 4 o'clock train from Plymouth brought a tremendous crowd of spectators to the station. The platform was thronged with American service-men and officers of the British Air Force. A cordon of marines kept a space clear for Rear-Admiral S. S. Robinson, U.S. Navy, and his staff and other people who were to attend an official welcome to the Atlantic flyers. Mr. Hawker was with the group, looking extremely well and happy, and so was Mrs. Hawker, who carried a small American flag. In the background a big Army lorry, packed with American Y.M.C.A. girl workers, gave a picturesque touch to the scene. As soon as the train steamed in, the air was filled with tremendous cheers. The Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes were waved, and the noise was indescribable when Commander Read was recognised. No sooner had the train stopped than the airman was greeted by the American officers. With a terrific shout the "Sammies" broke ranks to get at their idol. Tumbling over one another with excitement, and unceremoniously brushing aside the senior officers, they made a straight dash for the captain of the NC 4. He was collared by a half dozen husky boys and lifted bodily out of the carriage. A moment later he was lifted on their shoulders and borne away at the double. At the end of the platform his escort halted, and an enormous crowd gathered round. All his compatriots seemed bent on shaking hands with Commander Read. Then a big American officer, who was equipped with a megaphone, called for silence. "Three cheers for Commander Read," he cried, and the response was deafening. "Three cheers for Hawker," was his next injunction, and Commander Read joined heartily in the outburst that followed. It had been arranged that Commander Read should be taken to the Royal Aero Club in Mr. Hawker's car, but this did not please the Yankee soldiers. They had not finished with their hero yet. The escort again started off at the double, still carrying the airman shoulder high. Right up London-street they took him, followed by a dense crowd. Mr. Hawker, who followed, was then noticed, and before he could say a word he was lifted up and carried after the American. With difficulty, Hawker managed to get abreast of Commander Read, and prevailed upon the party who surrounded him to return to the station. After a struggle Commander Read managed to climb into the back of Hawker's car, and a R.A.F. officer got in with him. In the front Mrs. Hawker was sitting, and in a moment her husband managed to liberate himself and took the wheel. "We are going to take Commander Read to the Aero Club," he said. "I'm afraid you all can't come in the car, because it won't stand it. But you can go along and cheer him." The procession then started off. Several hundred American soldiers formed the advance guard, waving flags and singing songs. Behind followed a long string of gaily decorated motor-cars and more soldiers. Both Hawker and Read were received with the utmost acclamation all along the route. Commander Read, a slight, well-set up man, whose hair is tinged with grey, was obviously embarrassed by the warmth of the welcome. On arrival at the club, the airmen were carried in triumph upstairs. Even then the crowd was not satisfied. They remained outside called for Commander Read and Hawker and others, until each in turn had to come to the balcony and say a few words. "I don't know what to say to you people," said Commander Read. "This is the biggest thing I have ever seen. All I can do is to thank you very much." "Thank you very much, indeed," was all Mr. Hawker said, and then he disappeared. "A great thing has been done," remarked Admiral Plunkett, of the U.S. Navy, "but there are going to be many more. But I say to you that we share with England the honour of having crossed the Atlantic; for if their man had taken our route and had our destroyers he would not have failed." (Loud cheers). Commander Towers, of the NC 3, and Commander Bellinger, of the NC 1, also made short speeches before the crowd dispersed.—News of the World.

Nursing Mothers!

When the supply of milk is deficient in quantity and poor in quality, "OVALTINE" will be found particularly beneficial. Not only does "OVALTINE" directly stimulate and ensure an adequate flow of milk, but it is also exceedingly nourishing and strengthening, thus helping the mother to stand the strain which nursing throws on the system. It is also advisable that "OVALTINE" should be regularly taken by the mother for a month or more before the birth; a rich store of strength and vitality is created and a good supply of milk ensured when the baby is born.

were in retreat. Our party, bearing white flag, advanced to the fort to deliver a written message requiring surrender. The garrison hoisted a flag and opened fire. Our guns made a breach in the walls, and the fort finally reduced by a flanking and frontal assault. The garrison fought bravely, but most of them were killed or captured. Special measures were taken to save the mosque and bazaar. It was believed that the Afghan king considered the Baldak fort impregnable. Drops Eggs 700 Feet, Not One Broken.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 23.—"Eddie" Stinson, flying 700 feet in the air at a speed of seventy miles an hour, today dropped a crate of eggs on the Atlantic City Airport without smashing one of them.

The eggs were tossed over the side of the plane by W. L. Watkins of Seattle, inventor of a parachute used in the demonstration. The wind carried the parachute and its burden 300 paces from the point over which they were released. An automatic device released the crate when it reached the ground. The eggs were sold as souvenirs, bringing 25 cents apiece.

Commercial aviation has reached the stage where airways of the world have been actually laid out. It was stated at to-night's session of the second Pan American Aeronautics Convention. Many practical demonstrations in the last years were reported to have surpassed even the fondest expectations. As an example of the commercial accomplishment of the year, Secretary Augustus Post recalled that to-morrow marks the first anniversary of the air mail service in this country. Facts and figures given in the records established in this service were the basis a message of congratulation sent to Otto Praeger, Second Assistant Postmaster General, who is in charge of the air system.

"One practical demonstration of what the air service has accomplished, is that to-morrow the same planes, propelled by the same motors which hopped into the air at the beginning of the postal service a year ago between Washington and New York, will turn the trick again to-morrow," Mr. Post told the convention. "One airplane has been in the air 104 hours, flying 10,176 miles, and has carried 678,336 letters, costing only 66.80 an hour, while the second plane has been in the air a total of 222 hours, flying 15,018 miles, and has carried 485,120 letters, costing $48.34 an hour. This is truly a marvelous accomplishment, when it is considered that they flew on schedule daily, and in all sorts of weather."

"Another striking lesson from the air mail service is that the element of danger that exists in the training of aviators in military and exhibition flying, is almost entirely absent from commercial flying. Mr. Praeger, in reporting on the service for the year, says the record of the air mail service, which includes flying in altitudes as low as 50 feet during periods of marked low visibility, does not show a single plane carrying mail that has fallen from the sky, and there has not been a single death among the men carrying mails. The record with respect to accidents will compare favorably with that of any mode of mechanical transportation in the early days of its operation.

"Transportation by airplane is ordinarily twice as fast as by train, and in distances of 600 miles or more, no matter how excellent or frequent the train service, the airplane mail, at the higher rate of postage, should equal the cost of its operation. Where the train service is not as frequent or fast as it is between Washington and New York, our plane operations should show an immense profit on all distances above 600 miles."—N.Y. Times.

The Potential Cause.

(From "The Review.") A high British authority recently expressed his deliberate conviction that of the social unrest now prevalent throughout the world, eighty per cent must be ascribed to the fall in the purchasing power of money. However this may be in general, it is safe to say that the dissatisfaction which is taking shape in the formation of the Middle Classes Union in England is mainly due to this cause. When the money unit falls in value—and the fall which we have been experiencing in the last few years is beyond all precedent—the adjustment which in the course of time restores normal relations is nowhere so slow as in a large section of what may be called the middle classes. In the case of the wage-earner there is a painful interval, but on the whole the time of his suffering from the dislocation of prices is not apt to be very long. Salaries are far slower than wages to respond to the pressure; and incomes from interest-bearing investments do not respond at all. The government official, the college professor, the permanent employee of almost any firm or private corporation, has to pull through as best he can on his old salary, or a salary but little increased, while the prices of everything he needs for himself and his family have gone up to unheard-of heights. The hardship is truly a grievous one, and the wonder is that the complaining is not louder and more insistent than it is. It must be remembered, nevertheless, that the forces of adjustment, though slow-working in this domain, are yet constantly operative—that the grievance, however serious, is not of a permanent nature. Whether by any scheme of automatic adjustment, such as that proposed by Professor Irving Fisher, relief could be obtained without incurring troubles more serious than those it removes is one of the interesting questions of the day.

PENNEY-DUDEE

At Carbonear on Wednesday, June 18th, Miss Emma Louisa, daughter of the late Captain Josiah Penney, was united in the silken bonds of matrimony to Lieut. Stanley Carter Duder, R.N., eldest son of Charles R. Duder, Esq. of this city and grandson of the late Sir F. B. T. Carter, at one time Premier and later Chief Justice of Newfoundland. The ceremony, which was performed at the residence of the bride's sister, Miss Grace Penney, was conducted by Rev. A. V. Robb. The bride wore embroidered Georgette, over satin and carried a bouquet. The bridesmaid was Miss Annie Taylor, the groom being supported by Mr. Edward Duff, late of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and Judge Penney was father giver. Following the ceremony a luncheon was served, at which the bride was toasted in most felicitous terms by the officiating clergyman, the response being made by the groom. Other toasts to the bridesmaids, guests and hostesses were also drunk. The wedding party left at 5.30 p.m. for Holyrood where after spending a short honeymoon they will proceed to Botwood, from which port Lieut. Duder will sail in command of a vessel belonging to the Anglo Newfoundland Development Co. The wedding presents were numerous and costly, and included several handsome cheques. To Lieut. and Mrs. Duder the Telegram extends every good wish for all the joys and fair fortune that the future holds in store.

BERTEAU-EVANS.

At the home of the bride's parents, 131 Casey Street, on Wednesday, June 18th, at 3 p.m., Mr. Edward L. Berteau, of Deep Brook, N.S., was married to Miss Nina Evans. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. B. Bugden, Pastor of Wesley Church, the bridesmaid being Miss Agnes Evans, sister of the bride, while Mr. Stanley Garland supported the groom. After the ceremony, lunch was partaken of at the home of the bride, and at 5.30 p.m. the happy couple motored to Waterford Bridge to take train for Holyrood, where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride received many costly presents, and it is the wish of all that they may be spared to enjoy many years of happiness.—Com.

"Britons All Are We."

Mr. A. Graham, author and composer of the new patriotic song, "Britons All Are We," has our thanks for an advance copy of the splendid piece. Upon examination and practice we find it to be highly spirited in wording and musical accompaniment, and every lover of good music should obtain a copy for his collection of the very best songs.

The words are: "We're a small conglomeration of the people of this earth, And as heterogeneous bunch as you will meet. But we fly the British flag, and welcome the blooming rag. So we fight in both the army and the fleet."

CHORUS. Fly the flag, boys, wave it aloft! The emblem of freedom for all. Britanija's brave sons will handle her guns, And conquer great tyrants, or small; So hoist the flag, fly the rag; Hoist the flag, fly the rag, for Britains all are we! There are three other verses, each as jolly and free in tone, even improving as they proceed.

Open Tennis Season.

Weather permitting, the Mtd. Lawn Tennis and Croquet Clubs season will open this afternoon at 2.30. Mrs. A. Reid, wife of the Vice-President, will serve tea and a large gathering of members is expected, as it is hoped to make quite a day of it. A number of the officers of H.M.S. Cumberland will be present. The grounds have lately been improved and are now in splendid condition, so that some interesting play is looked forward to. Applicants for membership may apply to Mr. F. R. Emerson, Bank of Montreal Bldg.

ICEBERGS OFF ST. PIERRE—A message from St. Pierre yesterday stated that a number of icebergs were in that vicinity, including a very large one about seven miles off Gallantry Head.

JUNIOR BASEBALL LEAGUE.

We understand that a junior baseball league is being formed, which though not affiliated with the senior league will nevertheless be under its auspices more or less. We understand there are five entirely separate teams all composed of youngsters, and they propose to play a regular schedule on Wednesday afternoons. The admission fee will be 5 cents with no extra charge for the grand stand. The proceeds will be devoted towards the purchase of new outfits for the kids.

FIGHT HARD, MY BOY.

Fight hard, my boy, and never head the breaks; when they're against you the harder try. The sun must gleam some day through darkest sky and victory is hollow till it wakes within the soul the sense of ne'er-say-die! The Lions, my boy, had plumbed the depths; yet see, when in their heart of hearts they'd ne'er-say-die, but fought each day with heads erect and high, they turned defeat to dazzling victory; the sun burst through a saurine, dark sky.

ISN'T IT SO?

Let the pedestrians pedal from St. John's to the Goulds, but the longest walk in the world is from home-plate to the bench—following a strikeout. SMITHY!

A TIP TO "NUTS".

With men on the bases, Ellis will have to forego this elaborate windup of his. The Cubs took every advantage of it Wednesday and were safely on the third sack each time without the least danger of being caught.

DO YOU KNOW?

That Wednesday was the first and only time in the seven years of League baseball that the Lions won their opening game. Looks like a good omen.

SURE THING.

What passes as Irony of Fate is often merely Ivory of Fate. YOU SAID IT—BO!

In order to pitch a no-hit game it is necessary to put a lot of stuff on the ball. But what doth it profit a man to put a lot of stuff on the ball and fail to get next the official scorer?

The 'Arnish' Launched

ANOTHER FEAT BY MR. CARTER. J. H. Carter, of Summerside, Bay of Islands, has again added to his reputation as a master of the art of rescuing distressed ships.

The schooner "Arnish" of about 500 tons, struck last fall on her launchway. Seven separate attempts were made to pull her off last fall. The steamer Priestman and Brunswick made a number of attempts to tug the vessel off and smashed up several cables in the attempt. Blocks were built and pulleys and tackle tried time and again without success.

At last the owners found that 'Herb' Carter was free to tackle the job, and lay back free of worry knowing that 'Herb' would find a way. Once more Mr. Carter has justified his reputation, the Arnish gliding off steady as a rock, on Saturday at 10.30 p.m., the launch proceeding without a hitch in the presence of a large crowd of cheering spectators from St. George's and Curling. E.S. Brunswick ably commanded by Capt. Tom Butler pulled on the tackle and afterwards lowed the Arnish to the wharf at St. George's where she will be spared and rigged. The "Arnish" proved to be tight as a bottle when launched, a tribute to the excellent workmanship of her builder Mr. Arnold Cluett of Belloram, to the caulking of Mr. Wm. Ruth, master caulker, of Summerside, Bay of Islands, whose caulking is far famed on this coast. The Arnish sat most gracefully on the water and many were the remarks on the beauty of her lines, excellency of material and workmanship. She is considered by those well able to judge the best vessel in the country. Among those present at the launch were Bishop Power, St. George's, W. H. G. Phillips, Curling, Thos. Power, Curling, David Barry, Curling, J. A. McLellan, St. George's, A. Morgan, Harbor Grace, John Delaney, St. George's, H. Mohn, Norway, Mr. O'Reilly, St. George's, Magistrate MacDonnell, St. George's, Benjamin Tulk, St. George's, J. Flett, Curling. The owners are to be congratulated on the possession of an exceptionally fine vessel and Mr. Carter on a very successful launch under difficult conditions. Mr. Carter was ably assisted in building the new launchway and finishing off the vessel by Mr. Gus Davis of Summerside and Mr. Pilley of St. George's. The "Arnish" is none the worse for her mishap, and although caught hard on the cross-stays of the first launchway, remained on an even keel from first to last—Western Star, June 18.
