What if Your Home Burned To-Night?
Would to-morrow and the years to come be clouded with remorse by the loss of treasures that nothing can replace?
Photographs, heirlooms, gifts, personal letters and mementoes—could you state their value to you in dollars and cents?
If fire suddenly came to-night, where would you find your silverware, jewels, rare collections, your inventory of household goods, and such private papers as you keep at home?
How about the days, weeks or months that your house is shut up and empty while you are out of town? Suppose fire should visit it then?
Keep your valuables in the SAFE-CABINET installed in your own home, where it will be instantly accessible and convenient to use.
There are sizes of the Safe-Cabinet specially suited for home use. The Safe-Cabinet can be fitted with plain or lock drawers and shelves. Call or write for particulars.

FRESH MEATS
If meat consumers were overcharged 20c. per lb. for Fresh Meats for several years past, and especially so during nine months of last year, some person or persons are responsible.
Blame the Right Man.
Your supplier, the one who sold you the meat, is the guilty party. When Fresh Meats cost less than 15c. per lb. the consumer had to pay right up to 50c. Not so to-day. Why?
Horwood's Meat Rooms
are now well stocked. It's there you can buy Fresh Meats of the very best quality NOT FROZEN. His prices are within reach of the working man, his customers are treated right. No discrimination. Patronize him and help to keep the PRICE DOWN.
We will sell to-day and to-morrow small pieces and odd cuts at 10c. per lb.

Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XVIII.

CHAPTER XIX.

The next few days passed on leaden feet; days which to Eva seemed laden with the heavy scent of exotics and the sound of weeping; days which finally ended in a procession to the little churchyard whither Ralph Winterdick was followed by his last resting-place by half the county, and a long service, during which people stared with curious sympathy at Philip and his wife.

And then the blinds were drawn up once more at the Highway House, and life went on again as if there were no empty chair at the head of the table, no empty place in the hearts of the dead man's wife and son.

To Eva these days had been endless torture; she had been left to herself a great deal, and time had hung heavily on her hands. There was nothing for her to do in the house. Philip was always engrossed with business and lawyers, and even had it been otherwise he would not have wanted her; Mrs. Winterdick did not want her either.

So Eva was thrown very much with Tom Calligan, and indeed without him she felt that many times she would have gone mad.

But he was always cheery and kind; when he came into the room where she was she felt somehow the better for his presence; when he left her again she felt her spirits falling once more into their old hopelessness.

"You and Philip ought to go away again now for a week or two," he said to her once. "You both look as if a breath of sea air would do you good."

"Philip would not care to go," Eva said simply.

She looked steadily at Calligan as she spoke; she had quite got over the feeling now that she must always turn her face away whenever she spoke of her husband.

No Appetite

Nervous exhaustion leads to distaste for food. The nerves of the stomach are weak, digestion fails and you become generally upset and out of sorts.

The secret of complete restoration is in getting the nervous system fully built up.

Mrs. R. Cheney, 208 Richmond St., Chatham, Ont., writes:

"I was troubled with indigestion, which caused me many sleepless nights. I would be in terrible distress at times, and would get no relief for two or three hours. For sixteen months I ate nothing but Shredded Wheat biscuits, as I dare not eat anything else. I did not know what to do, as I had tried so many different remedies, as well as doctors' medicines, without gaining permanent relief. Finally I got some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and while on the second box noticed that I was improving. I continued the treatment until I am now fully restored, and have returned to my regular diet. My husband has also taken Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results, so we are glad to recommend it to others."

treat any woman in this fashion . . . Phil, for heaven's sake . . . Philip turned on his heel. "Mind you own confounded business," he said savagely. "And talk about something you understand."

He was gone, with a slam of the door. Calligan shrugged his shoulders; he supposed he had done it now; well—it would have come sooner or later anyway; he could not have stood by much longer and tolerated things.

He wondered what time there was a train to London; London and a bachelor flat seemed the two most uninviting things on earth at that moment; he dreaded saying good-bye to Eva.

As he went up to his room to pack his bag he met her on the stairs; she was dressed for walking.

"Wouldn't you like to come with me?" she asked him half anxiously, half in fun.

Calligan answered at once that there was nothing he would have preferred, but that he had had an urgent summons back to town and had got to catch the next train.

He was not looking at her as he spoke, or he would have seen the sudden bitter disappointment in her eyes. "Oh, you're not really going?" she said.

"I'm afraid so; I've been here an unconscionable time as it is."

He glanced at her and quickly away again. There was so much he wanted to say; words came tumbling over one another to his lips, but he drove them back; he went on a step.

"Well—I shall have to be going."

He rushed on, and Eva went slowly downstairs.

She crossed the hall and stood at the front door, looking into the sunny garden with unseeing eyes.

She had got to be left here alone with Philip and his mother, and neither of them wanted her. It seemed a nightmare prospect. Calligan alone had made it bearable. His cherry personality had done more for her than anything else could have done. She could not picture her life here without him.

Philip lounged into the hall. He saw his wife standing there and spoke to her.

She turned. "I was . . ." There was a little pause. "Why is Mr. Calligan going away?" she asked them, shrilly.

Philip looked amazed. "Calligan going away! I didn't know he was going."

He had forgotten about their little breeze of a few moments earlier; he was feeling ill and irritable in these days, and often said hasty things for which he was afterwards bitterly sorry.

"Where is Calligan," he asked quickly. "I'll stop this. Of course he's not going."

But Calligan went. He stuck to it that he had had an urgent business call; he argued with Philip all the time he was packing his bag. He was beastly sorry, he said, but he really must go.

Philip was scowling fiercely. "Look here," he said at last, "is it because of anything I've said? 'Pon my word, I didn't mean it if I was ruder . . . I'm all upside down these days. There was something, pathetic in the ashamed admission."

"It's nothing you've said, sonny," Calligan assured him cheerily. "I've got to go, that's all . . ."

"But why, tell me why? You've never had a day's business in all your life, so it's no use trying to swank me."

Calligan laughed. "I'm not going to, but there is a reason all the same, and a very real one."

"Tell me what it is, then."

But Calligan only evaded an answer. He wondered how Philip would like it if he took him at his word and told him: "Because I love your wife—that's why . . . And how what have you got to say?"

Telegram from Trains.

Being suspicious of the conduct of three passengers, the guard of an express train wrote a note asking for the police to meet the train on its arrival at its destination.

He threw the note out of a window as the train dashed past a station, and it was picked up, telegraphed to London, and at the end of the journey the police were waiting on the platform, writes G. Z. Crook, in a London paper.

This is a very old, though little known, form of sending telegrams from express trains, and it has frequently been used in the capture of criminals.

Rather more than three months ago a ticket collector noticed what a striking resemblance one of the passengers bore to a much wanted criminal whose photograph had been published in the newspapers.

The train's next stop was London, a hundred miles away, and the ticket collector scribbled a note and threw it out of the train.

Two detectives were sent to the station in response to the telegram, and they recognised the passenger as he stepped on the platform as one of the cleverest thieves in England.

Emergency telegrams of this nature usually thrown from the last compartment of the train after the guard has, by waving his hankerchief or flag, drawn the attention of the stationmaster or signalman ahead of him.

Each message must be weighed, otherwise it would probably be lost in the rush of wind caused by the speed of the train. As a rule the note is enclosed in a bundle of papers, and great care must be exercised in throwing it out of the window.

Danger in Throwing.

A well-known yachtsman arranged to throw a parcel containing a present for his niece as the train passed by the station where she lived, the niece was on the platform, and, as the train comparatively light—came flying out of a window. It struck the girl on her leg and fractured the bone.

It is not only in cases of crime that telegrams are sent from express trains. During the summer a woman passenger was seized with serious illness on the return of the Cornish Riviera express to Paddington. The guard searched the train for a doctor, but could not find one.

He therefore threw a telegram on the line asking for medical assistance at Paddington, and going to the compartment where the patient was lying consoled her by saying that he had telegraphed for a doctor.

Later the guard again went to the compartment. The afflicted passenger seemed greatly puzzled. "How did you manage to telegraph?" she asked. "The train has not stopped anywhere."

But just then Paddington was reached, and there was not only a doctor but also a nurse and an ambulance waiting to relieve the sufferer.

Dyed Her Stockings and Skirt to Match

Every "Diamond Dyes" package tells how to dye or tint any worn, faded garment or drapery a new rich color that will not streak, spot, fade or run. Perfect home dyeing is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes—even if you have never dyed before. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. For fifty-one years millions of women have been using "Diamond Dyes" to add years of wear to their old, shabby waists, skirts, dresses, coats, sweaters, stockings, draperies, hangings, everything!

POINCARÉ'S POLICY.

PARIS, Jan. 19. Raymond Poincaré, President of France, during the war, and now Minister with the French Chamber of Deputies unanimous, he served notice on Germany that so long as he held office he would not fulfill the obligations entered upon at Versailles, and expect no leniency. "The Versailles Treaty binds us to our Allies, it binds Germany to us and it is carried out," he said. Those are his final words before leaving office after replying to various questions. His pronouncement ended up the whole programme of Government.

NO ELECTION YET.

GLASGOW, Jan. 19. The Chamberlain Government is in the House of Commons, and dispelled any idea of an early election by telling the members of Scottish Unionists that the Government had decided that until the establishment of the Irish Government and its equipment were completed there would be no thought of a general election.

MACKENZIE KING OPPOSED.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19. Thirteen members of MacKenzie King's Cabinet were elected by acclamation to-day. The Premier himself is opposed by J. Armstrong, defeated Conservative candidate in the same riding in the elections last December. All Maritime Provinces and Quebec Ministers were returned unopposed.

RESPONSIBLE FOR HIS WIFE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 19. By the judgment of the Superior Court to-day a man is held jointly responsible with his wife if the wife sells liquor without a license from premises where he is presumed to be domiciled, no matter if he is aware of the infraction of the Quebec Liquor Act. James Ingram, a sailor, was sentenced to one month in prison while on the high seas because his wife sold liquor. On his return he was sent to prison and applied for habeas corpus on the ground that he has not been tried, but the Superior Court sustained the sentence.

Happy Parents Pour Out Their Thanks To Tanlac.

BLANCHE BLAIR

THAT Tanlac is a wonderful medicine for delicate children is conclusively proven by the remarkable results accomplished in the cases of the three children shown in this picture.

Little Blanche Blair, of Providence, R. I., age 13, gained 10 pounds; Regina McCabe, at right, age 9, of Scranton, Pa., gained 15 pounds; little Richard Leary, Jr., of Philadelphia, who was very delicate, is now in fine, robust health. The statements made by their parents are as follows:

Mr. A. M. Blair, residing at 20 Atwood street, Providence, R. I., said: "We are just so happy over the change Tanlac has made in our little girl that we can't do or say enough to show our appreciation. She had lost nearly 20 pounds in weight and looked so frail and weak that her mother and I were both almost worried sick over her condition. Since taking Tanlac, she has already gained 10 pounds, her color is better than it ever has been and she looks and acts like a different girl."

Mrs. Catherine McCabe, 414 Dickens Ave., Scranton, Pa., said: "The flu left my little Regina in such a bad condition that I have no idea she would be with us. She hadn't been for Tanlac. It is a mystery to me how she lived on the little she was eating and was so lifeless she never even cared to play with the dolls and toys she got at Christmas. Since taking Tanlac she is as hardy and well as any child could be and has gained 15 pounds in weight. I will always praise Tanlac for restoring our little girl's health."

Richard Leary, 2342 Palethorpe St., Philadelphia, said: "There is no doubt in my mind but that Tanlac saved my little boy's life. For two years, I wouldn't have been a bit surprised to have seen him drop off at any time. He had stomach trouble and many a time the gas pressed up into his chest until his heart palpitated so I thought sure he couldn't breathe but a few more gasps. But Tanlac gave him back to us strong and well and we will praise it to our dying day."

NOTE—Tanic Vegetable Pills are an essential and vitally important part of the Tanlac treatment. You cannot hope to get the most satisfactory results from Tanlac without first establishing a free and regular movement of the bowels. Tanlac Vegetable Pills are absolutely free from calomel and are sold on a positive guarantee to give satisfaction.

Tanic is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

virulent bacteria, and we are inoculated with billions of these to prepare for the possible advent of the "wild" specimen.

The Scavengers.

But the great majority of bacteria feed on decaying matter. They are the scavengers of the earth. People rarely reflect what becomes of the vast litter of dead animals, leaves, bits of paper, flowers, straw, etc., that is strewn over the face of nature every year. You must thank the ubiquitous bacteria. Bodies would not even decay without their aid. Then there are the still pleasanter bacteria which attend to fermentation. The "bees," with which so many people are now making what by a very serious stretch of language they call wine, are clumps of bacteria yeast, and molds—three families which are very closely related. They play a great part in brewing, wine-making, and a hundred other things. It is a distinct type of bacillus that gives its flavour to your favourite cheese.

The First Living Things.

But of late years we have discovered other bacteria which can feed on inorganic matter, and these are in a sense the most interesting of all. They are the simplest organisms known, and they suggest to us the first living things that appeared on the earth. Myriads of them help agriculture by fixing nitrogen (from air or from manure) and so enabling the plants to absorb it. Whole colonies of them live amicably in the roots of plants like beans and co-operate with the plants. Bacteria do not normally die. The living body splits into two living bodies, and so the chain goes on. Some divide thus every half-hour, and the reader who cares to do a little arithmetic will see that this means that in twenty-four hours one bacillus (a rod-shaped bacterium) will be multiplied into several billions! The rate of increase is not phenomenally rapid in itself, but it is enough to sustain this prodigious population, in spite of man's inroads upon it.—John O'London's Weekly.

Skipper Deserted Crew.

Messages cast up from the sea, believed to have been written by members of the crew of the freight steamship Frederick Louisburg, N.S., on January 15th, 1916, figured in a Supreme Court action at New York brought by relatives of the Frederick Steamship Company. They seek to recover $7000,000 for lives that were lost. Charles W. Morse, is among those involved in the suit.

A bottle containing ten sheets of paper, each with a message signed by one of the crew, was found on one of the Orkney Islands, North of Scotland. All but one was written in Spanish and that was in English. It reads: "We are sinking in mid-ocean and the captain has deserted us. There are ten men left behind. The steward of the ship, Faithfully your, George Matthews. Good-bye."

Translation of another said the men had been left on the ocean and that there "had been means to save them all but for his fault. We ask to be avenged upon this man."

The other messages were farewells to relatives.

The Frederick left New York in December 1915, for Archangel. She stopped at Vineyard Haven, Mass., Portland, Maine, and at Louisburg, N.S., where she coaled.

George McDermott, of New York, testified he had signed as a steward for the voyage but refused to sail because he believed the vessel was overloaded and unseaworthy. He said her cargo consisted of railroad iron, barbed wire and auto trucks.

The complainants in the action charge the vessel's owners and operators with conspiracy "for the purpose of making profits by purchasing the steamship Frederick, which at the time of its purchase was old, worn out and totally unfit for use as an ocean-going vessel."

The complainants include Mrs. Marie Robbins, widow of the captain who took the vessel to sea after two other masters had refused the job.

Bacteria—Pleasant and Unpleasant.

The romance of bacteria is not the most interesting part of the vast system of discoveries which we call modern science. It was probably in 1683 that a few larger specimens of that wonderful population first dawned upon a human eye. Some of them are about one two hundred and fiftieth of an inch in diameter—they run down to one twenty-five thousandth of an inch, or less—and the first lens of any power would glimpse them. But until the middle of the nineteenth century they remained vague and ghostly forms, on the very edge of the range of the microscope, known only to a few enthusiasts in every country.

A Million a Drop.

It was about 1870 when the serious study of bacteria began. In this short period a half a century we have traced, classified, and studied a living population beyond the dreams of any earlier naturalist. In very choice specimens of sewage water there may be as many as twenty million "microbes" to the cubic centimetre—say, a million to each drop. In some of our laboratory cultures they may be far denser than this. These are "congested areas" but, as everybody knows, they teem over a very large part of the earth. They float in the air, they fill the soil, they swarm in most fluids; and they beyond the power of counting in our ditches and ponds and sewers and refuse-heaps.

Analyzing the Ice-Cream.

The general public is apt to run now to the opposite extreme, and think that the earth was a brighter place to live in before we knew anything at all about these fearful hordes. What is life, in the summer, without an ice now and again? Yet this horrible person, the bacteriologist, comes along and tells you, soberly, that there are few things which bacteria love better than ice-cream. Some years ago—things a little better to-day, we hasten to add—one of them analysed specimens of London ice-cream. With unconscious humour he pronounced it "not inferior to London sewage;" and London sewage has a good average of five million bacteria to the cubic centimetre.

The public shudderingly wonders whether it is actually introducing these bacteria into its sacred anatomy. Well, the truth is that each each of us has billions of bacteria inside him, and they are so useful that it is doubtful if we can get on without them. There are six different tribes of them in the mouth, and those we could very well do without. There are other tribes in the nose—you shoot out a whole village or two whenever you sneeze—and the air and food passages.

But the main body, the billions of useful bacteria, are in one of the lower sections of the alimentary canal, the colon. Particles of vegetable nourishment which are enclosed in cellulose cannot be digested in the stomach. The acids will not dissolve cellulose. All this part of our food passes on to our bacteria department to be broken up and made available.

So microbes are, like Mr. Shaw's plays, "pleasant and unpleasant;" and, like the plays, the great majority are pleasant, or at least useful. Not only these swarms in the lower regions of the body, but the vast majority of the swarms in nature, serve a useful purpose. Bacteria belong to the plant world. There used to be much dispute as to whether they were plant or animal in nature, but it is now the custom to hand them over to the botanist. But they have none of the green matter (chlorophyll) by means of which plants are able to live on inorganic chemicals, and they are therefore compelled, as a rule, to live, like animals, on organic substances.

Hence the peculiar character of the bacteria. Many of them are parasites on the living bodies of animals, and these are the unpleasant microbes. It is probable that every infectious or contagious disease is due to them, though they may be so small that in a few cases the microscope has not yet discovered the "germ." They generally make mischief by producing poisons in the blood. To-day medical science is triumphantly meeting this danger by methods which we have described in a previous article. It "tames" the Nearly one million people live in Montreal and suburbs. More travellers and tourists pass through, and stay there, in one month, than stay in any other Canadian city in six months. It is also the coming Convention City of Canada.

Yet there are less fireproof hotel bedrooms in Montreal than in one hotel—The Biltmore—New York. Less than one thousand, in fact, whereas Cleveland has 3,000, Buffalo 3,000, although neither Buffalo nor Cleveland are ocean ports or railroad terminals.

Then, remember, that the Hotel will be operated by the United Hotels Company of America. This company has made a financial success of every hotel it has managed. It turned the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, from a losing proposition into a profitable enterprise for investors.

Consider these facts, therefore, in the light of making an investment in the 8% Convertible Debentures of The Mount Royal Hotel Company, Limited, at par and interest, carrying a 30% Common Stock Bonus.

For our part we have thoroughly investigated every phase of this investment and unreservedly commend it.

Origin of "Lloyds."

The origin of "Lloyds" goes back to a time when the coffee-house played an important part in the social, literary and financial life of the period. In 1688, a house kept by one Edward Lloyd in Tower Street, became the meeting-place of a sort of London shipowners and directly interested in shipping matters. Tower Street coffee-house was a convenient centre for those business took them into the neighborhood of the docks, and communication was quite sufficient. Business was changing, and the maritime interests were shifting. Soon the patrons of the Tower Street establishment began to move to the commodious premises in Lombard Street and began to issue, for the notice of the shipping fraternity, a list of shipping movements. This list has been continued without interruption down to the present time. Rooms, as seen to-day, are comfortable, and humdrum looking. It is strange to reflect how the dramas and tragedies of the maritime world were intimately connected with the business transacted within its walls. The romantic element in the life of the "Lutine" bell; which was from the wreck of the French frigate "Lutine," and which is always rung when an announcement is to be made regarding a greatly overdue vessel. Probably the oldest marine insurance policy in existence is one preserved at Lloyd's, dated January 20, 1689, on goods consigned from Lisbon to Venice by the ship "Golden Fleece." It is perhaps not generally known that a case contested by Lloyd's underwriters originated the agitation which resulted in the abolition of the slave trade; the publicity thus given to the trade causing a strong feeling, upon which Wilberforce and his supporters were able to found the movement. No review of the history or scope of "Lloyds" would be complete without reference to the system of signalling stations throughout the world by which the movements of shipping, reports of casualties and so forth, are constantly communicated to London. The work accomplished by "Lloyds" for the complicated machinery of British ocean-borne trade has been stupendous.

| 1 envelope Knox Gelatine | 2 cups grape fruit juice and pulp |
| 1/2 cup cold water | 2 tablespoonfuls lemon juice |
| 1 cup boiling water | 1 cup sugar |

Soak Gelatine in cold water five minutes, dissolve in boiling water and add sugar. Strain, and when mixture begins to thicken add remaining ingredients. Do not pour into molds that have been dipped in cold water until jelly is ready to set in order to avoid setting of pulp. Cut in cubes and arrange in baskets made from grape fruit skins. Garnish each with a teaspoonful of red Bar-le-duc preserve.

NOTE.—Knox Acidulated Gelatine, which comes in a blue package, contains an envelope of lemon flavor which takes the place of lemon juice—saving time, labor and expense.

"Titles" Debated by M. C. L. Institute.

BIGGEST ATTENDANCE FOR YEAR HEARS INTERESTING DISCUSSION.

The Newfoundland legislature should not petition the Throne to the effect that no further titles be granted in this Dominion, in the opinion of the Methodist College Literary Institute. The subject was fully and freely debated at last night's session and then decided by vote, a small majority going for the Negative view. The debate was perhaps the most interesting, in point of speeches made, so far, this season. Eleven speakers from the floor, in addition to the six set speakers, in turn mounted the figurative tribune and expounded their views on the subject.

The set speakers were: affirmative, Rev. C. H. Johnson, Hiram Young and H. M. Wilson; Negative, R. F. Horwood, Clarence Scott and Capt. A. Kean (substitute); and from the floor the following: James Bowden, William Drover, A. E. Hayward, A. Moores, C. F. Garland, Chesley Bowden, Leslie R. Curtis, Harry J. Wyatt, Wilson Clark, Thomas Roper and J. R. Smallwood. Of particular interest were the ingenuity of Mr. Curtis and the wit of Mr. Wyatt, as the leader of the affirmative pointed out. The presentation of the affirmative's case was half ridicule and half seriousness. Some of the speakers preferred to simply ridicule the idea of knighthood and nobility (the kind that is awarded.) Others, taking it seriously, pointed out the evils and corruption wrapped up in the custom.

The Institute was concerned more with knighthoods than anything else. Hereditary nobility did not apply here. Another point was that such titles as "Doctor," of any particular degree, "Professor," and such titles of learning, for which the holders had to pass examination, did not come into this debate. The only kind of title meant here was the kind that the King would bestow upon recommendation, on any Newfoundland citizen. The affirmative side felt that we were living in democratic days, when theoretically every citizen was as good as any other citizen. It was to perpetuate the pernicious "caste" system to bestow titles. It was the privileges which went with the title that made it obnoxious. Titles were not awarded any longer for merit or worth. That day had passed long ago. Titles were now given thru political pull or by purchase. The best and purest and noblest men did not get the titles. It was largely the mediocre ones who received such honors. The men of science, literature, art and statesmanship who had done most for the Empire did not receive titles. Such scientists as Huxley, Spencer, Darwin, Buele, Adam Smith, Ricardo, Hobbes; Locke, Home, Stephenson, Watts and so on admitted, and such great lords of the language as Shakespeare, Cowper, Milton, Pope, Johnson, Rossetti, Goldsmith, Kipling, Ruskin, Morris, and the others, had never been titled men. Yet they were men of real worth and true merit. Such statesmen as Mr. Pitt Gladstone, Balfour, Asquith, Lloyd George and others had never been titled. They were plain "Misters," unless it be their titles of learning, such as "Doctor," "Professor," etc.

"Honor and shame from no condition rise; Act well your part: there all the glory lies."

"Worth makes the man, the want of it the fellow."

Look around, even here in Newfoundland, the affirmative urged. Did anyone mean to imply that the best, the greatest and the noblest Newfoundlanders were titled? Were the ten or twelve knights in our midst the best, the cream, of the 250,000 of us? Even the knights themselves would not claim such a thing.

The Negative side agreed with the Affirmative heartily in believing that hereditary titles should be abolished. They could not agree that the others also be abolished, however. Men needed stimulating incentive. Honor, as badged by knighthoods and other titles, spurred men on to achieve. There had to be a system of rewards, or effort and endeavour would die. Even in a game of athletics there had to be a prize. So in the game of life. The Negative maintained that no such petition should be sent unless it could be shown that the presence of such titles in Newfoundland had worked injury to the country. The affirmative side had to show that the people were demanding that such a petition be sent. In any case, they thought, it would be a piece of impertinence to petition the Throne to that effect. The Canadians had petitioned to have titles abolished in Canada, it was true. But they would soon repent of having done so, the Negative thought. It was admitted by the Negative side that there were abuses and evils in the giving of titles, and that unworthy men received them. But at the same time, they argued, there had to be some system of giving honorary reward. They pointed out that if this petition were sent, it would mean that the really worthy men would not receive such rewards.

The sentiment of the Institute was plainly that either of two things would have to be done; either titles would have to be purged or they would have to be abolished. It was with such a thought in mind that the Institute voted, by a small majority, not to petition the Throne as suggested in the resolution.

Present at the debate was Thomas E. Kelly, a visitor. Mr. Kelly expressed himself as deeply pleased with the debate, and advanced the wish that the Institute continue to hold the influential place in the community which it has for fifty-five years enjoyed. He had been carefully reading the reports of the Institute's debates, but this was his first actual attendance. It would not be his last.

The subject of next week's debate is that of Nationalization of the fish business of Newfoundland, and the best debate of the season, before or to come, is then expected.

Canine Theology.

That a dog is a most religious animal in his special position; no man can doubt. Religion means the exhibition of loyal reverence and love on the part of the inferior dependent creature toward the superior being on whom he depends; and nowhere amongst human beings, in all the churches, or in all the lives of the saints, can we find a more perfect love to the Supreme Father in Heaven than a dog shows to a kind master or mistress. And observe here, particularly, two immense advantages on the side of the pious dog. In the first place, he sees God bodily before him, as distinctly as the hare which he hunts. He is not troubled with any misty or vague dreams, or vexed with any perplexing problems of Calvinistic or any other theology; he is perfectly happy in his worship, as pleased with God as with his dinner; and this is more than can be said of many good worshippers in the human shape. Again, he not only worships untroubled by atheistical doubts, pantheistic vagaries, or Athanasian creeds, but his devotional practice is as significantly simple as his perceptions are true. In the religious world of unreasonable beings, nothing is more common than nonsense; contradictions of all kinds pass unquestioned by a blind faith, and the most plain sense is translated into absurdity by the magic touch or the bewitching word of an insouciant dreamer, with a mitre or a tiara on his head. Wood Money.

Wood does not occur to many of us as a substitute for gold, but a Swiss newspaper insists with logic that in many countries the substitution has been made. Recalling the brilliant ante-war guaranteeing of note assets with gold deposits, the Swiss journal remarks: "In most European countries the paper currency is now based not upon gold, but upon wood. The wood is changed by busy hands into paper, from which beautifully colored bank notes are manufactured. Gaudy certificates, bearing many ciphers, are the money of to-day, which is being turned out in floods." When one recalls the vast forest resources of Russia, he may begin to wonder how far upward the billions of Russian paper money already issued may mount. Some financiers should suggest to printing press governments the superior advantages of American wampum over wood shavings as a handy medium of exchange.

The Labor Situation.

Yesterday in discussing the existing situation, as regards labor, we gathered from the then presented conditions that there was an easing up of the difficulty of finding employment for the extraordinary number of men out of work in the city. We were then quite ready to believe that a way out had been discovered, and were consequently delighted to pass the good word along. To-day unfortunately we have ascertained that further complications have arisen, and that neither Government, Municipal Council or Citizens Committee are prepared to attack the problem in a manner which commands the entire approval of those most interested in finding the wherewithal to support themselves and families during the present depression in labor circles. The Civic authorities take the position that it is not within their province to engage or contract for relief work. They have no power under their Charter to do so. Their main duties are to conserve the best interests of the ratepayers of the Municipality, by cutting down expenditure, excepting in so far as disbursements on improvements are absolutely necessary. They further claim that the impending problem is a distinctly district matter, involving both St. John's East and West, and that the Government should come to the rescue. In the meantime the Council would not withhold such assistance as could be given by the use of their Civic staff and machinery, but the Mayor definitely announced that he would not assume any responsibility.

The Citizens Committee, appointed at Government House some time ago, for the purpose of investigating labor conditions and making recommendations as to the best means of arriving at some definite arrangements for the inauguration of relief work, to tide over temporary embarrassment, discussed the widening of the South Side Road, which would give employment to some two hundred and fifty men, but similarly to the Council they did not wish to accept the responsibility of superintending or supervising the work. However, last night, matters having reached a critical stage, it was considered best at a meeting of the Unemployment Committee to undertake charge of the South Side Road extension, work to start to-morrow. Thus an extra two hundred and fifty men have been provided for, and the crisis will be somewhat relieved. We congratulate the Committee on this decision, and hope that they will be able to make provision for the large number yet unemployed, which is said to be some seven hundred. The Government take the stand that it is the peculiar work of the City Council to conduct all road building and repairing, and that all monies allocated by the Executive should be handled under the Council's supervision. Thus there are three parties engaged in an effort to arrive at a solution, of the unemployment equation, neither of which appear to be in agreement with the other. Meanwhile Nature has provided temporary employment at least, for those who are not among the fortunate five hundred. The snow banks and drifts blocking all the important thoroughfares, and impeding vehicular traffic should be removed at once. The approaches to all the cemeteries are also filled up, and these above every other should be instantly cleared. This, while not giving any lasting labor would at least tide over the men so employed for a period, and however brief would help in a measure to alleviate some of the distress prevailing. We commend the suggestion to those in authority. The Prime Minister is due to arrive in St. John's shortly. One of his very first actions will have to be the consideration of the subject so vital to the laborers of both the East and West districts, and to quickly arrive at some conclusion which will have solid results.

Twenty Years Ago To-Day.

(Evening Telegram, Jan. 20, 1902.)
The British Society held its annual meeting. The report of the Secretary-Treasurer showed $1,000 in bank to the credit of the Society.
A cold wave swept over the country. At Clarendville the thermometer fell to 16 below zero. In the city the glass stood at 10 below zero.
Newfoundland Nall Factory declared a dividend of 7 1/2%.
Seven American vessels reported in Placentia loading frozen herring.
S.S. Regulus arrived in port with a load of coal for the sealing steamers Diana and Leopard.
Mrs. Carrie Nation, a noted temperance leader, whilst flourishing a new hatchet at Topeka, Kansas, slipped and severed the big toe of her right foot.
Lord Kitchener confirmed the death sentence on the Boer Commandant Scheepers.
Chilpancingo, the capital of Guerrero, Mexico, is reported in ruins as the result of an earthquake.

St. Mary's Hall.

SCENE OF VERY ENJOYABLE EVENT.

On Wednesday night a most enjoyable Social was held under the auspices of the St. Mary's Helpers' Entertainment Committee. There were about 170 persons present and the unanimous decision was that the affair proved successful beyond the highest expectations. At 8.30 there was a short programme of music, etc., which brought before the audience some of St. John's well known performers. The various items were:—
Selection—C.L.B. Orchestra.
Song—Miss Mary Eagan.
Song—Mrs. C. F. Garland.
Recitation—Mrs. H. Outerbridge.
Selection—C.L.B. Orchestra.
Song—Miss Olive Major.
Song—Mr. J. Canning.
Encores were generously responded to and all were sorry when this part of the evening's programme had ended. Next in order came dancing to the splendid music supplied by the C. L.B. Orchestra. The young folks "tripped the light fantastic" until about 11 p.m. when supper was served, after which dancing was resumed until after midnight. When the company left for home the elements were in furious mood, but did not daunt the merry-hearted lads and lassies who trudged through the snow drifts, and meanwhile realized the truth of the poet's words, "There is joy in remembrance"—for the little inconvenience was worth while in view of what had been so thoroughly enjoyed previously. The St. Mary's Helpers (whose object is to raise funds for the relief of persons in need) are very grateful to the many friends who assisted in this undertaking, and hope to solicit a repetition of their valued help at a later date. Thanks are especially due the members of the C.L.B. Orchestra, who gave their services free of charge. Come again all.

St. Andrew's Society.
The celebration in connection with Burns' Anniversary takes place on Wednesday next at the C. C. C. Hall. The C. C. C. Full Band has been engaged for the occasion and everything is being done to make this the event of the season. Tickets: Double, $3.00; Gent's, $2.00; Ladies', $1.50, which includes supper, ice cream and refreshments, can be had from members of the Committee and at all the stores. Dress optional. Jan 20, 21, 22.

ADDITIONAL PASSENGERS.—The following additional passengers are leaving on S.S. Fortia for the Westward at 3 p.m. to-day:—Mr. Pettie, J. Allison, D. Hicks, Chas. Goss, Jos. Inkpen, S. Bari, H. Miss Grant.

The Political Situation.

HOUSE MAY OPEN SHORTLY.
The Premier will arrive home on S.S. Sackem, due here to-day from Halifax. He will probably open the House next week, so that the Humber project may be discussed. Public sentiment is divided on this question, but it is impossible to express any definite opinion until the agreement with the Government is made known. It is reported that the project will not be introduced as a party measure, and a hot debate is expected when it comes before the House.

The Tariff Revision Committee has not yet been appointed, but this matter will receive the early attention of the Premier. It is generally believed that the House will adjourn after the Humber project has been discussed. An Executive Councilor told the Telegram to-day that this would be necessary, as there is no other business ready to bring before the Assembly.

Many wild rumours are in circulation concerning the Humber project. It is said that both the Opposition and Government parties are divided on the question, but nothing definite can be gleaned from members of either party.

War Memorial.

BANK OF COMMERCE ERECTS PLAQUE.
A bronze memorial plaque has recently been erected in the Bank of Commerce. The tablet, which has been placed on the wall, over the door leading to the Manager's office, bears the inscription "In memory of 1701 members of the Canadian Bank of Commerce who served in the Great War 1914-18." The names of those members of the St. John's branch who served are also inscribed on the plaque are:—Lt. L. J. Duley, Capt. G. M. Emerson, O.B.E., Lt. B. Godden, Sgt. E. J. King, Lt. P. A. Knight, Pte. H. E. Oakley, Lt.-Col. L. Tucker and Corp. A. M. Wilson. Of these, a Lieut. Duley, Lt.-Col. Tucker and Corp. Wilson were killed in action. With the exception of Lt. Godden, Sgt. King, Pte. Oakley and Corp. Wilson, who served with the Canadians, all those whose names appear on the plaque were in the Royal Newfoundland Regiment. Plaques similar to this have been erected in every branch of the Bank.

Snow Clearing.

The matter of snow clearing where the street railway runs has not yet been decided upon. The Reid Co. have several horses and a number of men along Water Street this morning removing some of the snow piled up by the sweeper. The Council also have their horses and men engaged removing the snow at the junctions of Cross streets and also from the entrances to the caves. The Employment Bureau also sent a few men to work in urgent need of work to remove the snow from the South side of Water Street. The Bureau is hoping to make arrangements with the Reid Co. to employ a number of men clearing the street railway track, and it is expected that some men will be sent to work this evening. The street car service along Water Street is at present only using the track on the North side.

Money for Relief.

To meet the demands of urgent cases of destitution in the city, the sum of $2,000 has been allocated by the Government, and has been placed at the disposal of the Dorcas and St. Vincent de Paul Societies, each getting $1,000. The names of those in urgent need are now being taken so that relief may be given immediately.

Interred at Belvidere.

The funeral of the late James J. Tobin took place from his late home, corner Duckworth and Holdsworth Street this afternoon. A large number of prominent citizens attended, as well as a guard of honour of the officers of the R.I.B., of which Society the deceased was one of the oldest members. Mr. Andrew Carnell had charge of the funeral arrangements. Prayers for the dead were recited at the R.C. Cathedral, after which interment took place at Belvidere.

Board of Trade Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade takes place on Tuesday evening next, when the reports for the year will be received and the election of officers held. Nons of the officers to be filled will be contested, so that those nominated a short while ago will form the official staff.

Traffic Blocked.

All over the city traffic is practically suspended because of the snow drifts. Especially in this so at the junction of Long's Hill and Harvey Road, where horses are compelled to take to the side walk. Apparently no effort has been made to have this snow cleared away yet.

HIS DIARY.
January 19th.—A fierce blizzard such as we have not had these many months. The streets covered with snow to the neck almost, and no electric or steam coaches to move. I to the office, wearing my new breeches, and set there only with the greatest difficulty. Few to be seen on the streets. News comes of the unemployed, they asking for work, and the Government want the City Council to supervise it, which they will not do, and rightly so. In the afternoon, to the pictures, which I have not done this long time, and greatly wearied by them, being the most foolish things. Home and to do a little work. So to bed.

The Unemployment Situation.

SOME WORK BEING FOUND.
The Carbonar train which left this morning took out two hundred and fifty men, which were engaged a couple of days ago to work on the railway line near Seal Cove. Arrangements have been made to start work on the Southside Road to-morrow morning, and the Employment Bureau have issued tickets to 100 men. The Citizens' Committee met last night and discussed the arrangements in connection with this work. It is understood that for the present two Government inspectors and two from the Municipal Council will look after the work, with Mr. J. Davey as general superintendent, acting until another appointment is made.

Clearing the Line.

'CARBONAR LOCAL MOVING.
The work of clearing the snow from the railway line began to-day. The regular Carbonar local left town this morning and was preceded by a plow special. Fair progress was made during the run. It has become very mild in places along the line and rain is falling.
An express left Port aux Basques to-day with the Kyle's mails and passengers.
The Meigle leaves St. John's this afternoon with the mails and passengers that would have gone on Thursday's express.
The Rotary plows will work along the line to-day.

Interviewed Sealing Owners.

The sealing owners were recently interviewed by Major Cotton in connection with the location of seals from the air during the coming season. No definite arrangements have been made as the sealing owners are unwilling to incur any expense in the matter owing to unsettled market conditions. The Government may be approached on the subject.

NO HOCKEY BEFORE WEDNESDAY.—Owing to ice conditions at the rink and the fact that the requisite number of practices have not yet been obtained by the league teams, the first hockey match will not be played before next Wednesday.

The Holy Cross Dramatic Troupe will present that famous Comedy Drama "Hickory Farm" in the Holy Cross Schools next week. A short concert consisting of Vocal Selections, Irish Jigs and Reels, etc., will precede the performance. The dates are: 25th, 26th and 27th.—Jan 20, 11

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

POPE BENEDICT SAID TO BE DYING.

Last Sacrament Administered.
ROME, Jan. 20.
At 12.30 o'clock to-day, it was stated that Pope Benedict was in a dying condition. The last Sacrament has been administered. It was definitely stated this morning that the Pope was suffering from pneumonia. His condition, which yesterday was described as not giving cause for alarm, took a sudden turn for the worse through the night. An official bulletin this morning, read, "His Holiness passed a sleepless, agitated night. Inflammation reached the right lung last night. Respiration is difficult." The Eucharist was solemnly carried to Pope Benedict at 11.30 o'clock, and in the presence of eighteen cardinals, the Holy Sacrament was placed in the Palatine Chapel.

CANADIAN CHAMPION.
ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 20.
John Moore, New York, is the Canadian outdoor skating champion for 1922, accumulating a total of 70 points for two days skating. The best time for the 440 yards event was 39 1/2 seconds. Most events for the closing day were run in a blizzard, and no records were broken.

INJUNCTION DISALLOWED.
HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 20.
The Nova Scotia Supreme Court has disallowed an injunction restraining Coal Companies from reducing wages pending the outcome of conciliation proceedings. The court had previously suspended the injunction, and the Companies put the wage reduction of 25 to 30 per cent into effect.

ACCLAIMED EVERYWHERE.
BANGALORE, INDIA, Jan. 20.
The Prince of Wales reached here Wednesday from Madras. The town was profusely decorated, and great crowds everywhere attended the numerous ceremonies. The Prince left in the evening for Mysore.

AFRAID OF COMPETITION.
NEW YORK, Jan. 20.
Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, will call a meeting of the Presidents of International Unions of United States to plan action to check what is termed "the alarming growth" of rival labor organizations, it was announced last night.

AUSTRALIA DON'T WANT THEM.
LONDON, Jan. 20.
Victorian State members are dissatisfied at the refusal of the Federal Government to permit the landing of six German engineering experts to supervise the erection of coal briquetting machinery at Morwell, says a Reuter despatch from Melbourne. The machinery, it is added, was recently purchased in Germany.

PENDING COAL STRIKE.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.
Warning of an impending general strike in the country's coal industry was given yesterday by Secretary Hoover, who declared that the public should know what to expect, when national agreements, covering wages and working conditions of miners expired April 1. "The strike appears to be set for strike in the Bituminous coal regions, about the last of March."

SEDITIONISTS ARRESTED.
CALCUTTA, Jan. 20.
Fifty persons were arrested by police forces, which dispersed three meetings held in the prohibition area here.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 20.
Street car motormen and conductors of Mexico City have declared a partial strike in sympathy with the bakers, whose absence from their ovens since Tuesday has put the Capital on short bread rations.

FURTHER THAN MADEIRA.
BERNE, SWITZERLAND, Jan. 20.
Former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary and his wife Zita will be deported to an island, much more remote from Europe than Madeira, to which they are now exiled, if there is any further attempt at the restoration of their throne in the States former the former emper. Zita who is now here at the bedside of her son Robert, has been so informed by the Swiss Govt, which transmitted to her a statement made by the British, French and Italian Ambassadors.

The Brothers Wade.

NOT SHIPPED ON VICCOLA.
The relatives, at Logy Bay, of two brothers, John and William Wade, supposed to be living in Sydney have been for some time past making enquiries as to their whereabouts. It being supposed that one or both had shipped by the schooner Viccola which was lost about a month ago whilst on the passage from Sydney to this port with a coal cargo. The Minister of Shipping who has been making enquiries has received the following message from Mr. M. J. Ross, Shipping Master at North Sydney:—"I have word from the Shipping Master at Sydney informing me that he has no record of John or William Wade being shipped at that port. Neither have I any record on my books of the said names being shipped from North Sydney."

Will Change be Necessary?

ALTERATIONS IN ARMS VERY EXPENSIVE.

LONDON. (Associated Press)—The question has been raised whether the designs of the Union Jack and Royal Coat of Arms of Great Britain will have to be altered if Ireland becomes a free state within the empire. The Union Jack has the cross of St. Patrick superimposed upon the cross of St. George and St. Andrew. The Royal Coat of Arms has the Irish harp in one of its corners. At the college of Arms in London, it was stated that certain modifications were under consideration, and that if any action were taken, it would be done by the King in Council. No parliamentary action will be necessary. Heraldry experts say that alterations in arms are very expensive, and that there was a demand for the golden harp on the royal standard should be changed to green. It was then estimated that the alteration would cost at least £200,000. To remove all references to Ireland from the present Union Jack and Royal arms would be a very expensive. One authority said that it would not be correct for England, the predominant partner, to leave Ireland out of account in the national flag and the royal arms, unless and until Ireland herself demanded it.

Refused Reduction of Wages.

SWEDISH EMPLOYMENT WILL NOT AGREE. STOCKHOLM. (Associated Press)—Errors by employers in various trades to agree with their employees on a reduction of wages have failed, and employers notified trade unions comprising about 350,000 men, that the collective agreement, now in force, would be abrogated in the building, engineering, wood, iron and textile trades. New collective agreements on the basis of reduced wages were offered, but the unions declined a collective agreement. Manufacturers contend that present wages in Sweden make it impossible for them to sell Swedish products abroad.

Easier Than Reno.

THREE ONLY ALLOWED EACH PERSON. RIGA, Latvia (Associated Press).—Three divorces to any one person are considered the limit. In Soviet Russia, according to Parley Christensen, of Chicago, candidate for president of the United States on the Farmer-Labor party ticket in 1920, who recently spent a month in Moscow, Mr. Christensen visited several Bolshevik courts. "It is fairly easy to get a divorce in Soviet Russia," said Mr. Christensen when in Riga, "but I understand the limit is three for each person. If a man or woman has applied in the divorce courts more than three times, he or she has a very difficult time. I visited one divorce hearing. It was extremely simple. The pair were separated in half an hour. On arrival in the court room, the man and woman were separately questioned by the judge. He then got them together and tried to persuade them that their divorce could be patched up, and they might live together. They couldn't see that way, so the judge took them to another room to sign papers dissolving their marriage. Mr. Christensen also visited a number of "People's courts" corresponding to police courts in America, where persons are held for minor offenses. Most of the judges, he said, were dressed in rough clothing, including brown flannel shirts. "In general," said Mr. Christensen, "I was amazed at the fairness of these courts."

Statue of Pope Unveiled

CHURCH AT CONSTANTINOPLE. CONSTANTINOPLE. (Associated Press).—A statue of Pope Benedict XV has just been unveiled in the palace of the Holy Ghost here, as a mark of gratitude of the people for the charitable attitude the Pope maintained during the war. The statue headed the list of subscribers, which included the Heir Apparent, Mehmed Efendi and the imperial household.

Greek Refugees for Cyprus.

LARGE ADDITION TO POPULATION OF ISLAND. CONSTANTINOPLE.—Fifteen thousand Greek and Armenian refugees are being sent from this city to the island of Cyprus, in ships provided by the Greek government. Twenty thousand other refugees are awaiting transportation, but the French authorities are persuading Christians to go, as they have secured formal guarantees that the Turks will respect their lives and property. Stafford's Phorone, best for coughs and Colds, 35c. per bottle.

Carpentier Won in Fourth Round.

Australian Showed up Well in Early Rounds—O'Neil's Bay Carpentier Never Looked Better.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Georges Carpentier 170, to-night knocked out George Cook, 188, the Australian, in the fourth round.

In the opening round Carpentier was the first to lead, scoring with both his left and right without a return. Cook tried for a right swing but missed. Considerable fighting followed in which neither man had any marked advantages. Cook took a heavy blow on the ribs, but himself scored well toward the close of the round.

Both men sparred cautiously at the beginning of the second round. Carpentier landed a left hook to the jaw and easily evaded an attempt at a counter. The Australian had the better of the fighting which ensued and twice sent home hard lefts which surprised Carpentier, who continually failed to find openings for his right.

Up to the third round the bout appeared to be going in favor of the Australian. In the third Carpentier landed a light left to the chin, but at close quarters Cook fought hard. Carpentier's best work seemed to be at long range. Near the end of the round the Frenchman scored well with lefts and rights to the head and body and it was easily his round. The Australian caught Carpentier with a blow to the jaw after the bell had sounded and was cautioned by the referee.

Early in the fourth round the fighting was mostly at close quarters. Carpentier twice landed lefts on the head and Cook dodged to the chin. The Australian then rushed Carpentier but only to meet with a straight left to the chin and a right to the jaw which floored Cook for the count. He was up on one knee when the referee Jack Smith finished the count of ten but was too late.

There was considerable betting prior to the fight with Carpentier the favorite at 5 to 2.

Carpentier's decisive victory is looked on in sporting circles as definitely disposing of recent reports that the European champion was in poor physical condition. Cook put up a game fight for three rounds, but the superior ringcraft of the Frenchman, combined with his carefully-trained condition, soon told.

Ringside observers declared Carpentier had never appeared more fit and vigorous, and had never exhibited greater skill, although he knocked out Joe Beckett, the English champion, in a much shorter period of fighting than he required to put Cook away.

Tickets can be had for Burns' Night in the C. C. Hall, Jan. 25th, at E. J. Horwood's, Royal Stores, J. J. Strang, St. John's Meat Co., Jas. Baird, Ltd., Ayre & Sons, Ltd., Henry Blair's, R. E. Innes & Co., Ltd., Bowring Bros., W. H. Davidson's, and any of the Committee.—Jan 18, 31, w.f.s.

Effect of Prosperity in Egypt.

Writing in an English paper from Alexandria, Egypt, Iris Saphia says: Probably nowhere else in the world can such contrasts be seen between the old and the new state of affairs brought about by the war as in Egypt. This is almost entirely due to the enormous prices that have been realized for Egyptian cotton.

It is safe to say that almost every one of Egypt's eleven million sons and daughters is, directly or indirectly, connected with the cotton-growing industry in one way or another. The great majority are either large agricultural landowners or tenants, or else members of the barefooted, blue-spirited army of peasant workers who are hired to devote eleven months out of every year of their lives to ceaseless toil in the cottonfields.

Since the early days in the British occupation the large landowners have been in the habit of sending their sons to be educated in Europe. One is, therefore, accustomed to seeing the younger generations expend the accumulated wealth of their fathers on newly acquired pleasures and pastimes.

But owing to the enormous prices obtained for cotton within the past few years the smaller landowners, or fellahs, have also been able to extort rents or to sell their annual crops for sums hitherto undreamed of. And it is this class which now constitutes Egypt's nouveaux riches.

Very few of them can read or write and many have never travelled from their native villages beyond Cairo or Alexandria. Their efforts to get the most out of their newly acquired wealth are many and varied.

Among the dahabiehs, or houseboats, on the Nile at Cairo there are certain floating palaces moored beside the more modest craft if the ordinary residents along the banks of the river. These belong to the newly-made rich fellahs.

The taste of some of these gentry may incline towards river craft. Although he may own all sorts of motor-boats and steam launches, he prefers to pass continually up and down the river in front of the other dahabiehs, enthroned like an ancient monarch in a state barge propelled by ten persons and uniformed in scarlet jerseys, with the name of his dahabieh emblazoned across their chests.

Another may live farther along the river. His taste runs to horses—fast trotting ones. And the modern Jehu may be seen at all hours if the day thundering along at top speed in a trotting-car behind a new purchase.

During the summer the Alexandria houses are rented at most exorbitant prices to those folk, to whom money is no object, and in the Cairo season the Nile dahabieh proprietors demand what rent they like, and usually succeed in getting it.

A good many of the elders still keep to the loose robes and turbans of their forefathers. Their clothing is of the very best cloth and finest quality silk, but the taste of their sons in the matter of European attire is startling. Their preference is for suits and overcoats of wonderful colors, made from materials especially manufactured by enterprising manufacturers for export to the Egyptian market.

Hedge-sparrow blue suits and draught-board checks find great favor, especially when worn in combination with aggressively brown boots of vivid hues.

Indian Feud Revived.

The latest killing in an Indian feud generations old is charged against John "Redbird" Beauregard, who was lodged in jail at Washburn, Wis., where he is held for the slaying of an aged recluse in the northern Wisconsin woods. Chiefs of two Indian tribes have been successive victims of the feud. Mealey is said to have taunted Beauregard that the latter was "not man enough" to avenge his father's death, which was one of a long list in the feud. "Redbird" served a term for the slaying of an Indian named Mitchell, one of the elder Beauregard's bitterest enemies, and after his release led the life of a hermit in the shack where Mealey was slain a week ago.

The Trusty Sheep-Dogs.

The sheep-dogs of Scotland are guides and defenders not only of the sheep flocks, but also the children of crofters. Were it not for these shaggy, intelligent fellows, born sheep-dogs of the weak and defenseless, it would be unsafe for the children to go far from the lonely and isolated crofts in the outlying districts. The schools are far distant and it is a long, rough journey across the moor from home to school and back again. And so the sheep-dog goes along with them and safe-conducts them to and fro. Moreover, he must carry the books for them, for the little folk would be unequal to the task of carrying any extra weight in the long tramp. Over the dog's back the books are slung and no one need worry for the safety of the children or their belongings. The sheep-dog knows his duty and is proud and eager to do it.

The rural libraries established by the Carnegie Trust, are also using the dogs in distributing books among the homes of the crofters. In fact, it would scarcely be possible for the inhabitants' white crofts are so far from the library centers to share in this great Carnegie benefice, were not the sheep-dog to act as librarians. Good literature for the elders as well as the children is despatched and returned on the sturdy backs of these reliable dogs.—Our Dumb Animals.

Sailor Superstitions.

Time was when sailors would not think of sailing without a charm or pocketpiece of some kind to ward off bad luck. Wind beads were a favorite and in nearly every port were maidens to sell them. Tattoos were considered essential for bon voyage, especially the butterfly on the shoulder pre-dominating for good luck. A pig tattooed on the foot was assurance the man would never drown. Sailors used to say not a man is known to have drowned if he possessed this significance of charm against fate.

Household Notes.

Only stewed fruit should be given to the child under two years of age. A pinch of mace adds flavor to cream of beet, spinach or lettuce soup. A few roasted walnuts and a little onion give variety to potato salad.

Gingerbread served with flavored whipped cream makes a delicious dessert.

Potato salad is nice made with twice as much potato as apple, cut in cubes.

An egg slicer is handy for slicing cold potatoes for creaming or for salad.

Fricassee is often garnished with small baking powder biscuits, cut in halves. Cabbage and peanut salad is a pleasant change from the lighter salads. Hamburger cakes are delicious dipped first in batter, then in crumbs.

To make hard sauce excepting good, add ½ cup of stoned and chopped dates.

Slice bananas on lettuce, cover with mayonnaise and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

CAN JEALOUSY EXIST WITHOUT LOVE?

My letter-friend who was interested in the habit of little jealousies controlled, wants to know what about the old question of whether jealousy can exist without love, mean that the love that goes with it depends on just what is meant by jealousy.

In my big dictionary I find this definition of the word jealous: "Apprehensive, uneasy through fear that interest, affection or the regard as belonging to one is being transferred to another; pained by preference given to another."

It is fairly plain to be touched. One does not love the party from whom one receives this affection? Suppose it would be possible for one because one's vanity would be hurt, and I believe that this kind of jealousy does exist. But I do not think it is either so common or so poignant as the other kind.

To go further into the familiar controversy—where jealousy and love exist together, does a great jealousy mean that the love that goes with it is no greater than the love that has no jealousy?

Here of Self-Love Than Love in Jealousy.

I doubt it. "In jealousy," says Rochefoucauld, "there is more of self-love than love to another." The highest and greatest love would wish the happiness of its object more than anything else on earth, even if that happiness should be found in the love of another.

I can hear the cynic asking if such a love ever really existed. I suppose he means between the sexes. Surely mothers have often loved that way.

Mothers Often, Lovers Once in a Blue Moon.

And I have faith to believe that husbands or wives sometimes have. I do not mean that one would not suffer intensely to see someone else put in one's place. But might not one rise above the suffering to a height from which one could feel that all was well if the loved one was happy?

There is a wonderful little poem by Sara Teasdale which describes such a condition. I think it is one of the most poignant little lyrics ever written. I have often wondered how the lost love poems of Sappho could be any more wonderful. I hope some of my readers friends will love this as much as I do—I quote from memory:

"When love comes stinging to his heart That will not wake for me. I think that I shall know his joy By my own ecstasy."

"But when he bends above her lips, Rejecting for his sake, My soul will sing a little song, But oh, my heart will break!"

A Fish Protected by Government.

The memory of "Pelorus Jack," the now defunct sixteen-foot aquatic animal of the dolphin species, until lately so popular among travellers passing between the north and south islands of New Zealand, is a well known fact, according to a writer in an English periodical.

For many years the fish was a great attraction to both passengers and crew of steamers on the run from Wellington to Nelson. Off the entrance to the Pelorus Sounds "Jack" was eagerly looked for by all on deck, and it was only on rare occasions that he caused disappointment. Usually about three or four chains away, he would make his debut by a leap out of the water, and in a few seconds would be racing along under the bow of the ship, keeping even pace, and actually rubbing himself against the sides alternately. At times he would only favor us with his company for a few minutes, but one moonlight night I watched him gamboling at the clear phosphorescent water for nearly twenty minutes.

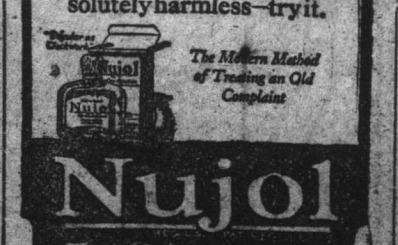

"Pelorus Jack" was esteemed such an attractive asset that the New Zealand government granted him protection by special Act of Parliament, especially in the face of a wanton act of folly on the part of a wanton act of a person who fired at him from the deck of the Jaluna, which ship he never after favored with a visit. It is said by many sailors that he would distinguish the different steamers by the sound of their crows.

THE EVIL ACT.

John Jasper drove his touring car and overtook a man who looked as though he'd traveled far—a footsore also-ran. "Get in and ride," John Jasper said. "I will," the hobnob slumped. John Jasper on the head, and took his purse and skipped. Along that road a thousand boasts are chugging every day; and pilgrims who have lost their goals on foot proceed that way. But now no driver stops his wain to give the bos a lift; he figures it would not be same, since Jasper's dome was bifid. A hobo with a wicked heart knocked Jasper's brow awry, and now the drivers speed the cart and pass the pilgrims by. The limping strangers by the score toll up the thoroughfare, and they can catch a ride no more, there are no seats to spare. And some are old and broken down, and some are young and frail, and all must suffer for the clown who swiped John Jasper's kale. A thousand feet with aching corns toll onward day by day, and auto drivers, with their horns, demand the right of way. And thus one evil act extends its influence abroad; the comfort of a legion ends because John lost his wad.

Wide bell sleeves appear on coat suits cut on box lines. Narrow braid or embroidery defines the low waistline. Printed silk crepe is used for sleeves of dark gowns.

Grim Stories From West Africa.

W. Alan Lethbridge, in his new book "West Africa," gives a clear and interesting account of the West Coast colonies as they are to-day, of their "heat and horror," of their immense wealth, and of their strange medical problems. Wounds in the white man will not heal there and no white child may be born. Nor has the secret of tropical fever been mastered, though Sierra Leone is no longer "the white man's grave."

He has some grim stories to tell—one, which is now of the haunted castle at Elmina, where no one sleeps without a quail. It appears that a party of three men and one woman were playing bridge very keenly in the tropical night. "Of a sudden the lady put her hands to her eyes as though dazzled." Asked if anything were the matter she denied anything wrong and continued playing. Then again she clapped her hands to her eyes, gave an exclamation, and fainted dead away. What she had seen she could not or would not say, but the tradition is that a headless woman walks the castle.

Nor does Mr. Lethbridge reject the power of native magic. He vouches for one strange story; that at a point in the Niger delta in a hut near a store were a number of native workers, under medical supervision. Their headman said it was "no good place."

"One morning a Kroo boy was reported dead; a post-mortem revealed no apparent cause of death. Next morning two men had departed this life and again post-mortems revealed nothing. On the third morning four men were dead and there was something like a panic."

All the men were at once removed and a fresh batch brought up to be placed in "the same sinister house."

They too died in the same mysterious way, and it was decided to burn down the hut. "Then something fell to the ground and was seized by the headman who rushed up to the doctor shouting, 'Here be plenty bad thing, sah! Fi! Fi! Fi! all men, sah!' He held at arm's length two human finger bones which had been tied together with a bit of native twine in the shape of a rough cross."

When this Ju-Ju was disposed of the deaths ceased. The Niger, delta is not a place for lonely white men to take walks in the gloaming; an instance is mentioned of one "youngster" who did so and "two days later his mutilated corpse was found waterlogged in the sinister mangrove swamp. Nor is it a place to be buried in; we are told that in digging graves the water is reached and the mourners

Raid Engineer's report the dump was filling in the River, diverting the stream, creating a danger of it getting choked by ice and consequently damaging the Company's railway bed, for which the Council would be held responsible. The Council is not using the dump at present and private citizens will be prohibited from using it.

Councillor Outbridge brought the following matters before the Council: (1) The necessity of more lights from Cavendish Square to Cochrane House and from Cochrane House to the head of Cochrane Street; (2) The condition of the lane just West of W. P. Shortall's, Water Street, which overflowed at each rain storm and flooded Mr. Shortall's cellar; and (3) The matter of horses and carts being parked in front of W. R. Gobbie's and other places along Water Street. These matters will be discussed at a special meeting.

The Sanitary Supervisor submitted his annual report, in which he offered several suggestions, including the building of new sanitary stables, the widening of street crossings, public underground lavatories, and a place for the dumping or disposal of city refuse.

The report along with the City Engineer's dealing with the watering of vessels was deferred to a special meeting, which will be held Tuesday next, when the matter of arrears, which amount to $130,000.00, covering a period of 30 years, will also be discussed.

WILL BUY STONE.

The Mayor called attention to a rumour which was to the effect that the Council positively refused to purchase broken stone from the Committee on Unemployment. Such is not the case as the Council informed the Committee if such was required and provided the stone was suitable and the prices right the matter would receive the consideration of the Board.

ARBITRATIONS CONSIDERED.

George W. B. Ayre, Solicitor, on behalf of his client, P. Mallard, 15 Pleasant Street, asked compensation to the amount of $100.00 for alleged damage to premises through overflow of defective gully on this street. The matter was referred to the Solicitor.

A letter was received from W. G. Rendell, asking if cancellation board, to adjust claims in connection with leaseholds, as provided for by Section 96 of the Municipal Act, 1921, had been appointed. It was decided the Government be communicated with, with a view to having this Board immediately appointed.

C. J. Fox wrote in reference to the Summers Arbitration, asking if it was the intention of the Council to proceed with same. If not he would be compelled, on behalf of his client, to take some other steps to have the arbitration gone on with. The City Clerk was instructed to arrange matters to the satisfaction of Mr. Fox, and to call the arbitrators together as soon as possible.

PLANS PASSED.

The following plans were passed, subject to the approval of the City Engineer:—D. J. Pearce, (annex Hamilton Avenue; B. J. Miller, (Bungallow Hill) of Chps—provided the material used in the construction of this building is in accordance with the Municipal Regulations, as the locality referred to is in the Fire Zone.

IMPROVEMENTS DISCUSSED.

The following matters were discussed, and deferred to a future meeting: (1) Necessity of placing an additional light on Gower Street.

(2) Necessity of placing surface drains on George Street, near Beck's Cove to offset overflowing during rainstorms.

WILL COLLECT ARREARS.

Considerable discussion took place as to the amount of arrears of City Taxes appearing on the books of the Council, and it was decided the matter be taken up at a Special Meeting, and that, in the meantime, the City Clerk prepare a list of names and amounts owed by delinquents in this respect. The Council intends that all persons indebted to the City, who are able to pay their just taxes, but who shirk payment, be exposed. During the past few days, a number of writs have been issued against parties in arrears to the Council, and it is certainly time that people be made realize their responsibilities as citizens.

The annual report of the Sanitary Supervisor was tabled, but discussion of same was deferred to a future meeting.

Applications were read from E. R. Peters, David England and James Kirby for positions in connection with the Municipal staff. As there are no vacancies at present, the applications were ordered filed.

Application of T. P. Davis to erect shed rear of his premises, 42 Prince of Wales Street, was referred to the City Engineer, who if he approves of same, may issue the usual permit.

Reports of City Engineer, Health Officer, etc., were read, requisitions for various departments accorded to; pay rolls and bills presented ordered paid, after which the meeting adjourned.

AFTER A FIRE

The first question asked, HOW MUCH INSURANCE? NONE. Poor beggar, ruined for life. You have heard it. It is no use looking for sympathy for it is only found in the Dictionary. Are you content to take the risk of losing your life's savings for the sake of a small sum of money payable yearly? Average one dollar a month for $1,000.00. Is it worth it? We represent THE CONTINENTAL INSURANCE CO. of New York. Assets $40,857,877.57. A particularly strong Fire Company. Other companies talk Service—we GIVE Service. STUDEBAKER!

Almost touched $90 this week, from last week's Low of $78 and October Low of $69.
 Some New York brokers predict par $100 on expectation of increased dividends soon, but we do not advise purchase just now.
 In fact, short commitments at current rates should make at least a five-point profit. The issue is sound but we believe it will sell lower. Traded at $12 per share.
