Lady Wyverne's Daughter.

CHAPTER III.

It was a beautiful, bright June morning; all nature was gay and animated. A gentle breeze wafted the fragrance of the flowers and the singing of the birds; there was no cloud in the bright blue sky. The chestnut-trees were all in bloom; from over the meadows there came a perfume of hawthorn and fresh-mown hay, the tall trees in the park seemed thrilling with new life. It was a morning that made every heart rejoice; it seemed impossible to think of sorrow, or sadness, or death.

Inez and Agatha Lyrne sat in the little room known as Lady Lyne's boudoir. It was a charming room, and the long French windows opened on to the garden. There was a glimpse of landscape that looked like a vista of fairyland—the tall, stately cedar, the green lawn, and the dark woods beyond. White and red roses grew by the window, and filled the room with their exquisite fragrance.

Agatha had never used the apartment; but before Inez had been in the house a week, Lord Lyne had it most sumptuously furnished and fitted up for her use. It was a very nest of luxury; it might have been expected that the occupant of such a room would be young and beautiful; it was only meant for such. The soft, thick, white carpet whereon the roses lay so life-like and real, that it seemed as though they had just been dropped there; the delicate rose silk hangings, the few rare pictures, a marble vase holding a vase of glowing crimson flowers, the elegant books, the pretty lounging chairs—all were for the young and beautiful, to whom luxury seems by right to belong.

They were a charming picture, the beautiful Andalusian girl and her sweet English sister. Miss Lyne had summoned Agatha to a council of war, and had decided to hold it during breakfast, so as to save time. The pure sunbeams did not fall upon many prettier scenes—the fair, fresh faces of the sisters, the delicate china, the blooming flowers; and they lingered over the table, for they had much to say.

"What is this wonderful cousin of yours like, Agatha?" asked Inez, half impudently. "Tell me something about him. Is he short or tall—wicked or good—clever or stupid?"

"Oh, no," cried Agatha, almost breathless from surprise at the catalogue.

"No—what?" said her sister. "Not stupid, do you mean? I am glad of it, for really you must excuse me for saying it; I do think a certain kind of slow stupidity characterizes you cold English. I hope he has plenty of faults. I cannot endure an insipidly perfect man."

"Philip is not insipid," said the little sister, somewhat indignantly. "Papa always said that he would make a great statesman."

"What is he like, Agatha? Describe him to me," said Inez.

"I do not know," replied Agatha. "He is tall, like papa. I never thought whether he was handsome or not. He has large dark blue eyes—they are clear and full of truth; I always used to say I could read his thoughts in them. His hair is like mine—a kind of golden brown."

"Never mind his hair and eyes," interrupted Inez. "What is his face like? Tell me, if you can."

Agatha looked half perplexed, then her face brightened.

"Do you remember," she said, "that portrait of Sir Lancelot—that you admired so much? You know the one I mean—where he is talking to Queen Guinevere; and his lips wear the smile that one sees on the face of a child."

"Yes, I remember it," said Inez. "Well, Philip is like that," said Agatha. "I know he is very brave and very firm; yet he is gentle and kind in his manner. I do not believe that the shadow of an untruth ever crossed his mind."

"Pas si mal," murmured Inez. "Now let me hear his faults," she continued.

"I hardly know them," said poor Agatha, quite distressed at this long catechism. "He is not bad-tempered; but I think he is passionate, like all the Lyrnes. I do not think he could have a moment's toleration for anything mean and deceitful. He is haughty, too; and I do not believe he would ever pardon an underhand action."

"That is all you know about him," said Inez, smiling again when her sister came to a full stop.

"That is all," said Agatha. "Papa liked him very much."

"So it seems," replied her sister. "Lord Lyne has asked permission to see us this morning; I, for one, do not feel inclined to comply with his request. Fancy, Agatha, how he will look at us, speculating in his own mind which he shall honor by asking to be Lady Lyne. He had better not ask me. I feel something like a Circassian slave, going to the highest bidder. My father must have been mad to have made such a will as that."

"Hush, Inez," said Agatha; "remember he was your father."

"How full you are of 'good' notions," replied Inez, with something like a sneer. "I say again—and you know I am right—that the will was unjust to us and to Lord Lyne, but we will not quarrel about it on such a morning as this. Come out, and let us sit under the cedar-tree; bring your books and work. If my lord wishes to see us, let him find us there."

CHAPTER IV.
"Now," said Inez to her sister, "if Lord Lyne likes to join us here, he may. I could not endure the idea of a formal interview in the library. I dislike almost everything that is stiff and ceremonious."

"You will find much to dislike in England, then," replied Agatha, with a smile; "but if you have patience to look for it, underneath that stiff, formal manner, that you say characterizes us, you will often find a warm heart and a kindly nature."

If Inez Lyne had wished her cousin to be struck and captivated at first sight, she could not have chosen a more picturesque place for the interview than the shade of the great cedar-tree. The sunshine, sparkling through its branches, fell upon the fair faces of the two girls, that contrasted so vividly with the heavy mourning dresses they wore. The sunbeams lit up the magnificent beauty of the Andalusian, while they seemed to fall like a blessing upon the graceful head of her gentle sister.

"Read to me, Agatha," said Inez. "I want to dream this beautiful morning."

"I have brought the 'Idylls' with me," replied her sister. "Which will you have?"

"Read where you will," replied Inez. "Anything except 'King Arthur's Pardon.' I do not want to hear that just now; it is too mournful."

Agatha chose Enid. She had a singularly musical voice, clear and sweet; a voice that was not, perhaps, capable of expressing any great amount of passion,—tragedy would never be her forte,—but it was soft and soothing. It seemed to chime with the rippling of the little fountains and the song of the birds.

It was a very beautiful picture upon which Lord Lyne stood to gaze. He had been with one of the keepers round the park. He was returning to the house somewhat tired with the long walk; but as he drew near the cedar-tree he saw the black dresses, and knew that he was at last in the presence of the two girls—one of whom must be his wife. Mingled with the drowsy hum of the bees and the faint ripple of the water, there came to him the murmur of the sweetest voice he had ever heard. As he drew nearer he stood to listen, and then he distinguished the words. He heard the beautiful story of Enid invested with new grace and new charms from the voice that told it,—clear and distinct, and full of pathos and sweetness, that found its way straight into his heart, and made wild havoc there. It awoke new feelings, new thoughts; it seemed to unveil the closed fountain of love and tenderness that flowed at its bidding. Lord Lyne was not the first who had fallen in love with a voice. He wondered what the face was like that went with it. He stepped forward gently; and there, just lit up by a slanting sunbeam, he saw a fair sweet face, with gentle, modest eyes and smiling lips; a face to love and to trust; a face without passion, but full of tenderness; without genius, but full of thought; a face that a man would never rave about, but would love until death took it from him. He saw the golden brown hair that was like his own; and then he knew that the reader of the poem was his cousin, Agatha Lyne. He had not recognized she was away, visiting some friends. He could hardly believe that the graceful girl before him was the same little cousin with whom he had played, and who had kissed him years ago, and said she would be his little wife. How sweet, and gentle, and serious she looked.

CHINESE BANDITS. SHANGHAI, May 7. One United States citizen was killed by the bandits who held up the Shanghai-Pekin express train near Shantung border and carried off one hundred and fifty passengers as prisoners early yesterday, but all the women passengers, including Miss Lucy Aldrich, sister of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., have been released. The men held are said to be in grave danger. The bandits have notified the authorities that all the men among the foreign captives would be killed unless troops were withdrawn. The troops are pressing the bandits on all sides.

Produce and Provisions.

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)
CODFISH—The exports to the foreign markets this week amounted to 21,960 quintals as follows:—
 From Onports—By schr. "General Gough" from George Harris, Ltd., 4,580 quintals from Harbor Breton to Oporto.
 From St. John's—By schr. Buelah May from J. Borrero 4,800 quintals to Lazo & Co. to Seville. By S.S. Digby to Liverpool 5,249 quintals to Agents from Baine Johnston & Co., T. Hallett, George M. Barr, Nfld. Atlantic Fisheries Co., Job Bros. Ltd., A. H. Murray, Harvey & Company and A. E. Hickman, Co.
 By S.S. Silvia 2,559 quintals to New York for transshipment to West Indies from Bowring Bros., Ltd., James Baird, Ltd., Harvey & Co., A. E. Hickman, Co., Job Bros., Ltd. and R. Tobin.
 By S.S. Rosalind 3,212 quintals to New York and Halifax for West Indies from James Baird, Ltd., George M. Barr, T. Hallett, A. E. Hickman Co., Job Bros., Ltd., A. H. Murray, Nfld. Atlantic Fisheries Co., J. M. R. Tobin and Harvey & Co.
 The Havana market has further declined, but as business conditions in Cuba are good a revival of the fish demand is most likely. Their sugar crop is good and they are getting big prices. Porto Rico market shows a slight advance this week, but even at this advance the profits are small. The consumption there is quite large and stocks on hand are being fast absorbed. The other West India markets are poor and the receipts have been too large for the rate of consumption. In Brazil very small profits are being made and exchange is still very poor. The European markets are not improving much except in Italy where the demand is good for prime fish. Heavy sacrifices are being made on the Newfoundland and Norwegian old stocks there in cold storage. The high class fish that the Italians want just now is very scarce and will be till the new fish comes.
COD OIL—There are no new developments in the cod oil market. Offerings are light and sales are confined to small lots in barrels in New York at 68 to 70 cents per gallon. In the local market it is difficult to make sales of 1923 oil at sixty cents. The exports since last week were 46,843 gallons from Messrs. Bowring, Job and Ebeary to America and Great Britain.
COD LIVER OIL—The demand on the spot in New York is good in spite of the coming warm weather. Norwegian is coming in by small lots and selling readily at $23 to $24 non-freezing in barrels. The local transactions are at low ebb and about the price of common oil is the best offer. This week P. Templeman sent 2,128 gallons to Liverpool by the S.S. Digby.
FLOUR—Wheat fluctuated back from 120 to 115 this week at Chicago. Flour does not follow these changes in the local market and is still quoted at $9.00 per barrel wholesale for leading brands and $8.50 to $8.75 for under grades. The imports are again increasing and the total this week amounted to 2,800 barrels by the S.S. Canadian Sapper and S.S. Silvia. The imports to date since New Year are 69,327 barrels as against 65,000 this time last year.
PORE—The foreign market is about the same as last week, but there is a drop of $1.00 per barrel in Fat Back and S.C. Clear, and fifty cents in Spare Ribs. Ham Butt remains the same at $30.00. The imports this week were 1,000 by the Silvia, Sapper, Sable and Digby. The imports to date are 7,539 barrels as against $27.00 S.C. Clear; $30.00, $27.00 Spare Ribs per barrel wholesale.
BEEF—The beef market became a little easier this week. In the local

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Now Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Washington, D. C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. My system was all run down for two years after my little girl was born. Then I read of your wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 97 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run down. You may use this testimonial for I am only too glad to let suffering women know that the Vegetable Compound did for me."—Mrs. Ida Hawtry, 1629 Penna. Ave. S.E., Washington, D. C.
 Such letters from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

market the decline is fifty cents per barrel on all grades. The quotations to-day are $27.00 for Bos. Flank, $21.50, Family Special and $20.50. Boneless. The imports for the week were 531 barrels by Silvia, Sapper and Digby. The prices are now favorable for fishery supply and one dollar to two lower than last spring. The total imports are 7,354 barrels as against 9,000 last spring.
 Molasses—The market has again advanced and the local quotation to correspond with the price at Barbados has gone up to 95 cents per gallon for Fancy and 80 cents for Choice in the punchon wholesale. This means one dollar for cash and probably $1.05 to $1.10 on account. As large sales have already been made at Barbados, it is not likely that we shall see any decline. The "Over the Top" arrived this week from Barbados via Halifax with 322 puncheons, 57 barrels and 30 half barrels.
SUGAR—The price of sugar advanced again this week in the foreign market and the local quotation for white American granulated is now $11.00 per 100 lbs. The Cuban crop is now estimated to be 2,750,000 tons. As the season of the greatest demand is now at hand and sugar is going into consumption almost as fast as it is manufactured, further advances are quite likely. The imports this week were 1,801 sacks. Some experts say that the Cuban crop is four million tons and that prices are being forced up without justification.
POPPAPOS—The market here and in Canada is steady under a revived enquiry. The P.E.I. and other Canadian markets hold big supplies, which are more than sufficient to cover the demand till the new stock arrives. The prices in Canada are $1.05 to $1.30 per 90 lb. sack, according to quality. In the local market these are $3.00 to $4.00 per sack of 180 lbs. Home-grown from $2.80 to $3.50 per barrel. The imports this week were 1,001 barrels.
HAY—The Canadian market is quiet. There is no business reported on English account yet this spring, but a few old car loads have been shipped across the border to the United States recently. A little movement is reported in Montreal for local account at $14.00 per ton in car lots ex track for No. 2 Timothy.

The imports this week were 1,801 sacks. Some experts say that the Cuban crop is four million tons and that prices are being forced up without justification.
POPPAPOS—The market here and in Canada is steady under a revived enquiry. The P.E.I. and other Canadian markets hold big supplies, which are more than sufficient to cover the demand till the new stock arrives. The prices in Canada are $1.05 to $1.30 per 90 lb. sack, according to quality. In the local market these are $3.00 to $4.00 per sack of 180 lbs. Home-grown from $2.80 to $3.50 per barrel. The imports this week were 1,001 barrels.
HAY—The Canadian market is quiet. There is no business reported on English account yet this spring, but a few old car loads have been shipped across the border to the United States recently. A little movement is reported in Montreal for local account at $14.00 per ton in car lots ex track for No. 2 Timothy.

market the decline is fifty cents per barrel on all grades. The quotations to-day are $27.00 for Bos. Flank, $21.50, Family Special and $20.50. Boneless. The imports for the week were 531 barrels by Silvia, Sapper and Digby. The prices are now favorable for fishery supply and one dollar to two lower than last spring. The total imports are 7,354 barrels as against 9,000 last spring.
 Molasses—The market has again advanced and the local quotation to correspond with the price at Barbados has gone up to 95 cents per gallon for Fancy and 80 cents for Choice in the punchon wholesale. This means one dollar for cash and probably $1.05 to $1.10 on account. As large sales have already been made at Barbados, it is not likely that we shall see any decline. The "Over the Top" arrived this week from Barbados via Halifax with 322 puncheons, 57 barrels and 30 half barrels.
SUGAR—The price of sugar advanced again this week in the foreign market and the local quotation for white American granulated is now $11.00 per 100 lbs. The Cuban crop is now estimated to be 2,750,000 tons. As the season of the greatest demand is now at hand and sugar is going into consumption almost as fast as it is manufactured, further advances are quite likely. The opening game of the 2nd round of the Inter-Club Billiard Tournament between the Masonic and B.L.S. Clubs takes place to-night in the B.L.S. The B.L.S. was about 500 points behind on the first round, and now that the games are being played on their own tables a lively and interesting series of games should follow. The Irish team feel confident that they can reduce the Masonic lead and win out by a comfortable margin. "THE NIGHT CAP" A SPLENDID SHOW.

Of all the plays so far produced by the Casino Stock Co. last night's performance of "The Night Cap" ranks amongst the best. The Night Cap is a mystery play and the interest of the audience never flags until the final curtain, and last night's audience are loud in their praise of this thrilling presentation. The players who are now all well known to the St. John's audiences, are winning new laurels at each new performance, and that the people appreciate the class of shows that Mr. Bentley is producing is a well known fact. Not only is the acting of the Casino Stock Co. the best that St. John's has ever seen; but the stage settings for each show are specially made, and as they were perfect in all previous shows, so were they for last night's performance. "The Night Cap" is a show that we recommend you to see, and what is more, we guarantee that you will not be disappointed. It will run for the balance of the week at the Casino.

Popular Official Resigns.

We regret to learn that Mr. W. H. Pike has resigned his position as despatcher at Bishop's Falls, as he was so capable of giving satisfaction to his operators and agents, and every operator and agent will surely miss him on the line. He has been despatcher at Bishop's Falls the last seven years being in the old emergency despatcher office for three years and therefore was senior despatcher at that place. The Superintendent will miss him considerably as he was more than attentive to his work and won esteem and good understanding from every operator along the line. All wish him good luck and prosperity in his undertaking.—Operator.

Dear Sir—Some time ago I advertised in all the St. John's papers, asking for stories and reminiscences of the Regiment and 29th Division. The response has not been encouraging, and another appeal is being made by the G. W. V. A. Now that the elections are over I hope that ex-Servicemen will find time to answer the appeal as the authors of the Divisional history wish to have all copy in their hands before the end of June.

The Outlook is Dark.

FOR THE COMING FISHERY.

Now that the excitement incidental to the Election contest is subsiding and people's minds are given time to turn to other considerations the first thought that naturally intrudes itself on public attention is, What of the coming fishery? On this depends the whole commercial fabric of the country and the Humber-Deal or any other Deal will at best be only an auxiliary and a sideline industry. The Government used it as an opiate to stultify and delude the minds of the electorate and they evidently succeeded in inducing the voters to believe that it would be the panacea for all our commercial ills. We fear that in this there will be a rude awakening. Supplies for the fishery must be now and always will be in this country the great problem. At the present time the merchants who heretofore carried on this work and kept the industry going have very little heart to give out supplies. They see the menace of Coker-ten looming in the distance as threatening as ever, and if they invest their money in issuing supplies they know not what kind of legislation that this man of mad whims may enact that will again hamper them and bring down financial ruin upon their heads as he did in 1920. There is a threatened scheme called Nationalization of Fish in the back of his head, and as he will again hold the whip over the heads of the Government he will compel Squires to bow to his will as heretofore. His policy in the future as he takes all the risks and give out supplies and in the end of the voyage having risked nothing himself or his Union to step in and say in effect: "I am glad that you kept my fishermen going. I will now step in take charge and control the sale and the price of your fish." There is no self-respecting merchant going to stand for that and the probability of such occurring is the factor that will we fear make it impossible for the fishermen and planters who have no means of their own to get supplies this season. The outlook, therefore, is more gloomy today in Newfoundland than ever it was in our time. We know of several planters who have since the election decided to sell their schooners and fishing plant and clear out of the country. They see nothing but hard times and disaster ahead. There were hundreds of young men in the city and outports who were only waiting the result of this election to decide as to whether they would remain in the country or go away to the United States. They see no hope of making a living here in the future now that the Government has again been elected. The next sailing of the Red Cross boats will see a bigger exodus than ever. The old people tell us it reminds them of the sixties. In '64 the shops and houses on Water Street began to be vacated one by one, and by '68 you could get the best tenements on Water Street for paying only the ground rent. What came about by the operations of Nature and the failure of the fisheries then is now being brought about by bad Government; that is the only difference. The stores are becoming vacated one by one and the people are so disheartened that they are getting out of the business and leaving the country to save what little they have left. It is truly a gloomy outlook for poor old Newfoundland.

Spring tonics often and rightly take the form of alterative or blood purifying medicines, and mixtures containing Sarsaparilla, Mandrake, Burdock, Potassium, Iodide, etc., are typical and valuable blood purifiers and spring medicines. Such a remedy is Gault's Blood Purifier, which is designed specially for the purpose of cleansing the system of those waste matters which can scarcely fall to accumulate in the blood and intestines during the winter. Gault's appears to us to be one of the best formulas for a spring medicine that we have seen, and we recommend it with some confidence to those who feel heavy and languid during the spring as a cure for this condition. ONCE UPON A TIME.
Once upon a time there was laughter everywhere
And everything I looked upon was new and wondrous fair.
The world was trimmed with butter-cups and daisies, and the breeze sent the daisy ships above me fairly dancing on the breeze;
And I possessed an orchard with full forty trees to climb.
And I wore a little sailor suit, once upon a time.
Once upon a time, though you'd never guess it now,
I had a dimple in my chin and curls upon my brow
And fairies used to play with me and show me where they hid
And I could share in all their games and everything they did.
I knew the pictures in the books and every nursery rhyme,
I used to ride a rocking horse, once upon a time.
Once upon a time I had a dog to follow me
And we'd run off together just as happy as could be.
I used to know the summer birds and where their nests were made
And I could handle frogs and snakes and never was afraid.
I was as rich as any king with just a shiny dime.
And I possessed a ball and bat, once upon a time.
Once upon a time—oh dear, how far away it seems!
I played the very game you play and dreamed your lovely dreams.
But now I look so old to you, who are so very small.
That you can't quite believe that I was ever young at all.
Yet you shall learn, as I have learned, when you have passed the prime How very rich and glad you were, once upon a time.

"WHY"—A KEY TO SCIENCE AND INVENTIONS.

I can never hear a child rebuked by a nervous, tired mother for asking "why" without feeling that a great mistake has been made. That is, if the "why" is not the mere careless question from which the child's mind will flit to other matters before the parent has a chance to frame an answer. When the "why" is the expression of real interest, an active and inquiring mind, it is one of the biggest words in the universe. Curiosity, Greatest Force in World. There is no greater force in all the world for progress than curiosity. "Why" has stood behind almost all the great changes in the history of the world. "Why" and "What would happen if" have stood behind all the great discoveries in the world of science. Newton wondered why the apple fell. Faraday wanted to know what would happen if... "Should the dynamo and motors which have come into being as the outcome of Faraday's experiment be stopped this evening," says Harvey Robinson, "the business man of today might, as he trudged home past lines of dead cars, through dark streets, to an unlighted home, engage in a little creative thought of his own and perceive that he and his laborers would have no modern factories and mines to quarrel about if it had not been for the strange, practical effects of the idle curiosity of scientists and inventors and engineers."

Reason Behind All New Discoveries.

Behind the faces of all things are reasons for them, and he who has an interest in these reasons will never find the dull and stupid. It is often a fascinating thing to search for the reasons of things you have always considered obvious. For instance, why do we think of one odor as bad and one as good? Why should we all unanimously agree to like the one and dislike the other by instinct? Presumably it is because the odors that we call bad are associated with decay and the life instinct of the race has taught us to avoid them, while the odors that we call good are associated with fruit in nature's production of food—the flower.

A Result of Inquiry.

A woman who has just written a most successful series of stories about Santa Claus was asked how she happened to write them. She answered: "I was hearing the opera 'Coe d'Or,' in which fairly tale a jolly old kind rides away to war on a hobby horse. The old king looked like Santa Claus and it occurred to me to inquire into the life of this Santa Claus person outside his stock Christmas stunt. Whereupon I wrote the first story, the life of Santa Claus, tying him with Mother Goose characters." That story brought her her first big literary success. How did she get her start? Because "it occurred to her to inquire."

Better to Explain the "Why."

If a child asks "why" automatically and does not attempt to assimilate the answer, it deserves to be ignored or rebuked.

If it asks "why" because it really wants to know, it surely deserves to have you exert all the patience and painstaking you can possibly afford.

Remember, when you are impatient, what Robinson says about curiosity: "History, namely change, has been mainly due to a small number of seers—really gropers and monkey-men—whose native curiosity outran that of their fellows and led them to escape here and there from the sanctified blindness of their time."

It is certainly remarkable what they can do in the movies. The other night we saw the heroine plunge into a stream to rescue her poor old father and the next picture showed her on the bank in the same frock, all nice and dry. Her hair was not even mussed.

Wilson Back in Ring in Chicago Bout.

CHICAGO, April 23—Johnny Wilson, middleweight pugilistic champion of the world, except in 10 states which ignore his claim and recognize a varied assortment of champions, will make his Chicago debut to-night.

It will be Chicago's third showing of champions in the revival here of the sport, which has become known as "bootleg boxing" because of the drastic Illinois anti-prize fight law. The promoters evade the legal measures by means of injunctions which for a night restrain all peace officers from enforcing the law. Meanwhile opponents of the sport are hard at work at Springfield trying to force through a bill to legalize and regulate boxing.

Wilson to-night will enter the ring after a long lay-off marked by constant bickering, accusations, claims of illness and then silence on his part. It will be his first start for a purse of any size under his new manager who paid the record sum of $60,000 for his contract. Since he won the championship and then failed to defend it, the numerous State governing bodies have withdrawn recognition of Wilson and have permitted other middleweights who campaign actively to assume the honor.

Help for Housewives.

It is no use trying to hurry over the annual spring cleaning. Thoroughness must be the housewife's motto, if the job is to be done properly.

Take, for instance, the polishing of your furniture. If furniture cream, or other similar preparation, is applied to sanded oak or mahogany it will never polish them properly.

Each article of furniture should first be wiped over with a cloth wrung out in warm soapuds to which a few drops of ammonia have been added.

Ink stains, and other marks on polished furniture, can be removed by rubbing well with a solution of warm water and vinegar—one teaspoonful of the latter to a pint of the former.

When cleaning windows and mirrors, dip a chamois leather in water to which a little ammonia has been added and polish with another leather.

After short curtains have been washed it frequently happens that the brass rods or wooden sticks on which they are hung will not go through them easily. This may be remedied by placing a small tumbler over one end of the rod or stick. It will then

California's First Eucalyptus Trees.

The introduction of the eucalyptus tree into the United States came about almost accidentally through the suggestion of Bishop William Taylor, at whose home in Alameda, Calif., the first trees planted are still growing. The bishop had been sent to Australia as a missionary, his wife remaining in Alameda. In 1849, he sent home to her in a letter some seeds of Eucalyptus (the seeds are even smaller than a grain of mustard) and asked her to plant them. Mrs. Taylor started the seeds in the greenhouse

A Quick Relief for Headache.

A headache is frequently caused by badly digested food and acid resulting therefrom absorbed by the blood. It turns irritates the nerves, causes painful symptoms, headache, neuritis, vertigo, etc. 15 to 30 drops of Mother Selger's Syrup will relieve the headache and induce restful and healthy sleep.

This Preacher Believes in Church Advertising.

Rev. E. V. Stevens, pastor of the First Christian Church, of Eugene, Oregon, advertises and pays for his advertising, and has built up a wonderful regular attendance. This is what he has to say on the subject of church advertising: "I was taking the pastorate of a badly divided, discouraged and dying church. They were heavily in debt and had lost all hope of ever coming out of what seemed to them an utter, hopeless condition. One of the first things I asked of that church was the privilege of spending a certain sum of money for advertising. True, it was money they did not have, nor did it seem possible for them to get the money to spend in this way. I was repeatedly refused the appropriation, until I promised them that if they would try the experiment for a period of three months, and if after that experiment they found that it had not been successful, I would personally pay the entire bill. You can well imagine the result that came, for by the close of the three months not only had the advertising paid for itself several times, but the church had been filled with interested people, and the years of prosperity for that church had begun. The strange part of this matter of advertising to me is, that there should be any objection to it, when we remember that the church has been advertising practically during all her history. Church bells, tower chimneys, steeples, and physical equipment were the methods of advertising in the past, and many who have accepted these ancient methods without a word, criticize the modern plans of church publicity."—Newspaperdom.

Steel That Cuts Steel.

Not so very many years ago people were taught to believe that steel was ninety-nine parts iron and one carbon of charcoal. But to-day all sorts of other ingredients are added to the molten brew, and the result is steel of a hardness and toughness, hitherto unknown. Besides carbon, the principal ingredients used in making modern steel are nickel, manganese, chromium, tungsten, molybdenum, and vanadium. Manganese increases the strength of steel and makes it extremely hard, so that it can take a wonderful cutting edge and keep it.

If you increase the amount of steel becomes so hard that it is unworkable. With a proper proportion of manganese a steel can be produced that will cut ordinary steel. Manganese steel is used for axes, picks, drills and for tramway points where the wear and tear is very heavy. Tungsten, which is found in Cornwall, acts in similar fashion to manganese and a small quantity of chromium produces a steel so tough that it will stand tremendous shocks. Chrome steel therefore is used for armour plates and for armour-piercing shells. Nickel steel is strong and light, and therefore admirably adapted for ship's propellers, and for machine tools, and for all articles that must withstand heavy wear and tear. The last three materials mentioned all make fine steels but are too rare and costly for common use. Sheffield still makes the best steel in the world. Its virtues are attributed partly to the secrets known only to its manufacturers, and partly to the waters used for tempering it. Sheffield water comes from the high moors and has flowed through miles of heath and bog, limestone and chalk. These have treated it by natural means in a way impossible to reproduce artificially. The Sheffield manufacturer uses iron and steel brought from many different places, such as Sweden, Norway, Canada and Spain, and then blends these with native ore in a way which has so far defied competition.

Miss Boisseneau Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"About three years ago I was bothered with pimples on my face. The pimples were hard and small and festered, and my face was disfigured for a while. My attentions caused me to lose my work hours as a time as the irritation was so great."

"I tried different remedies but without any relief. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after the first application I could see an improvement. I continued using them and was completely healed after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Miss Rose Boisseneau, 12 Bellevue Ave., Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Turquoise Mines.

Much as we may read of it in fairy tales, a great deal more than the use of magic words is required to open the vast rocks and caves of precious stones that abound in many quarters of the globe. Prehistoric Mexican miners, for thousands of years before Columbus opened up traffic routes to the great continent, built enormous dikes against the mountainous rocks in which veins of turquoise were known to exist, to disintegrate the rock and yield up the precious stuff to the light of day. These great turquoise mines have existed since the dim ages in the depths of two great hills, called Mount Chalchihuitl and Turquoise Hill. On the side of the former are a number of ancient caverns, called by the early prospectors "wonder caves," or "mystery caves," which were worked by them for hidden gems. One of these pits is 150ft. deep, 200ft. across the rim, and 100ft. wide at the other end. The extent of the mining which took place may be judged from the vast dumps of waste material, which still cover an area of about twenty acres. As is always the case in these mines, a great bulk of the material is so mixed up with the rocky matrix as to have no value, but every now and then a suggest is found that is big enough to yield a fine gem.

Eczema Covered Arms of This Healthy Child

Mr. Alex. Marshall, Sprucedale, Ont., writes—
 "When my little son was three months old he broke out in sores on his chest and arms. We did all we could to heal those terrible sores, but nothing did him much good. Finally I ventured on a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and kept on using it. At last we were rewarded by the steady healing of the sores, and finally he was completely relieved of them. He is now three years old, and has had no return of the trouble since."

Gold Mining on the Labrador.

As there is likely to be a considerable rush of miners to the Labrador this summer, we think it worth while to draw attention to the fact that the part of Labrador (Le-Breard) where the prospective mining will be, belongs to the Dominion of Newfoundland, and is not a part of Canada in any shape or way, and as such, is subject to all the laws, regulations, and Customs Tariffs of that Colony, which is self-governing and entirely separate from the Dominion of Canada. We think this should be widely known, because those who are making arrangements to take their supplies from either Canada or the States will have to pay the high Customs duties of at least 50 per cent on the cost of the goods on their arrival on the Labrador Coast. It is not generally known that St. John's Newfoundland, is a large city with up-to-date modern stores, severally turning over millions of dollars annually; where steamers and ocean going vessels are fitted out, and where suitable vessels, with and without power, and mining supplies of every description can be had at competitive prices which are not subject to any duty whatever on the Labrador—which would effect a considerable saving to the miner. In St. John's also first-hand information can be had as to the waters, coast, and suitability of supplies, from men who have made their living on the Labrador for years. To most men the Labrador is an unknown quantity, but Newfoundlanders have carried on a big trade and fishery there for the past hundred years, and what is known about that country, is known in Newfoundland.—F. H. Knowling, St. John's, Nfld.—Montreal Star.

There are 4 grades of roofing felt selling in Newfoundland, "BARRETT'S" is guaranteed the highest grade.

"Barrett's" 1, 2 and 3-ply felts have been in use in Newfoundland for more than 50 years.

The best roof known in America is a "Barrett" roof, "Barrett's" felt ONLY is used in putting on a "Barrett" Roof. Ask any Architect.

"Barrett" 1, 2 and 3-ply felts are really made of felt saturated with genuine coal tar—the 2 and 3-ply felts have a layer of coal tar pitch between each ply

"Barrett's" felts are made to give good wear, therefore they cost more than roofings made of paper saturated with diluted asphalt.

If you use "Barrett's" felt instead of common felt, a new roof covering for your house may cost you $2.00 more for the whole roof

Roofs covered with "Barrett's" felt are secure, the extra cost of one or two dollars (for the entire roof) is money well spent.

Which felt do you intend to use?

Architects, Builders and Contractors prefer "Barrett's" Felt.

That's the Way of It!

Three fishers went gaily out into the North.
 Out into the North ere the sun was high,
 And they chuckled in glee as they sailed forth
 Resolved to capture the trout or die.
 For men will fish, and men will lie
 About the trout they "caught on the fly."
 Their Sunday school lessons scoring.

Three fishers lay under the trees at noon,
 And "blamed" the whole of the anny race,
 For ne'er a nibble had touched fly or spoon,
 And each sighed as he wet the hole in his face.
 For men will fish, and men will lie,
 And the way they catch trout when nobody's nigh,
 Is something to tell in the morning.

Three fishers came into the town at night,
 And their "speckled beauties" were fair to see;
 They talked of their sport with keen delight—
 'The envy of all the fraternalite.
 But men will fish, and men will lie,
 And what they can't catch they're sure to buy,
 And never repent in the morning.

By a unanimous vote "Quarantined" has been declared by theatre goers a huge success. One more chance to see this great comedy at St. Joseph's Hall on next Monday night, May 14th, Place St. Joseph's Hall. Price 50c. and 30c.—may 10, 12, 14

Star Dance.

AN UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS.

The Star of the Sea Ladies' Association, held a successful dance in the Society Rooms last night, upwards of 150 couples attending. The Ladies' Auxiliary prepared an excellent supper for the occasion, which was done full justice to by all. The dance music was furnished by the Star Jazzola Band, and the dance was greatly enjoyed.

Hawke's Bay Industry.

The Hawke's Bay Trading Company is employing quite a number of men and there is every prospect of the steady shipment of pit props this summer. All men coming to the Bay are given employment and the large supplies at the store, headed by the Edmund Donald in the late fall are being drawn upon by men arriving with horse and dog teams from all parts of the Coast.—Western Star.

Big Attraction.

audiences attended the Star Movie last evening, and enjoyed the excellent program. It was so varied as to suit all tastes in the picture part of the show. In "Shattered" had a role for which she was admirably suited, whilst in "The Birth of a Nation" she was the closest attention. The picture was most pleasing in its execution, being obliged to sing an encore, whilst Miss Eva well as has been said there is "Eva," and when it comes to the answer is that "None Others" is a class to herself. The C. G. during the Entertainment and popular and in no small measure contributed to the enjoyment of the evening. As will be seen for there is another special in the person of "Sergeant" will be seen in a Buck and step dance. Sergt. is generally unknown to our people and as this is his first big appearance, who have seen him, speak of his ability, he will be doubt be greeted with applause. The entertainment is one that all should see, as apart from itself the object of it is for the benefit of the Catholic Cadet, to-morrow that big "The Devil" is the attraction. The Management and they have booked the biggest, "Blood and the film's greatest sen-

FINE CREDIT.

There's nothing wrong with Bulstrode Bore, his heart is lead and true; he runs up bills in every store, and pays the m w h e r they're due; the merchants know to the floor when Bulstrode looms in view. Good credit is an asset great, the which we all should share; it ornaments the humble skate like diamonds in his hair; the man who always pays the freight is boosted everywhere. Yet it may prove at times a trap that leads to frightful scenes, for it may lead the heedless chap to live beyond his means, to feed fried oysters in his map, when he should live on beans. And so I view this Bulstrode wight, and fear what may betide; he buys up everything in sight, no luxury's denied; his seven aunts, in silks, bedight with him in splendor ride. All this is well while he is hale, without a wart or wen, while he can draw abundant kials to pay his bills again; but some day health or job may fail, and what will happen then? Good credit is a fairer crown than monarch ever wore, it gives you standing in the town—yet were I Bulstrode Bore I'd try to pay the money down, and have things charged no more.

What Women Lose By Dingy Teeth

—Why do it?

Dingy teeth rob women of a major charm. Not beauty only, but that added grace which lies in the open smile.

Millions of women have found a way to whiter teeth, also to better protection. You meet them everywhere today—with teeth you envy, maybe.

Will you not learn how they get them—by this delightful test?

Due to film

That viscous film you feel on teeth is what clouds them, and it often wrecks them. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to that mighty film.

Ways to end it

Tooth troubles were increasing until very few escaped. So dental science sought for ways to fight that film. In time two ways were found. One acts to curdle film, one

What must be done

Research also proved two other things essential. So Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids. Old-time tooth pastes, it was found, seriously diminished those great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and scours it without harming the enamel. Its polishing agent is for softer, smoother enamel. Never use a film comb which scratches the enamel.

Use Pepsodent for ten days. See for yourself what it does. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Then decide by what you see and feel. Judge what is best for you and yours. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.
