A QUEEN UNCROWNED
—OR—
THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER II.

As he descended the stairs, he heard somebody blustering in like the god of the wind; and then a cherry, boyish voice exclaiming, as its owner stamped and shook the rain off himself:

"Blow ye winds, and crack your cheeks! Poor Frank's a-cold! I say, Mother Grizle, why didn't you let me in when I knocked first, and not keep me here in the rain till I'm a sight to see, not to hear of? What, with mud and rain, I'm a picture to look at—ain't I? Talk about drowned rats! If you want to see one, just cast your eyes on me, my friends! Hello, little black eyes! How d'ye do? No; don't come near me! I'm a living cataract—worse than Ulline's uncle, and he was a cross between a man and a river! But I forgot you don't know German; so it's not likely you ever heard of the rent. Get us something to eat, Grizle. Haven't had a blessed mouthful since early morning. I'm a stone! Where's the Kilt, and the Balm, and Old Tom these times?"

"They ain't home," said the voice of the woman, Grizle, in surly tones, as she stiffly moved through the room. "Orrie, get out of that, and go to bed. You ought to have been here long ago."

"I'd rather sit up," said Orrie, sharply. "Oh, let little bright-eyes stay," said the new-comer. "I like to look at her. Many customers stopped here lately, Grizle?"

"No," said Grizle, curtly. "Who'd stop here when they could go on?" "Ah, that's true enough!" said the boy; "it's not the most enchanting looking bower of repose I ever saw, and the public generally are not likely to be captivated by it. But a storm-stayed traveller might drop in now and then—on the principle of half a loaf being better than no bread."

"How did you come to be caught in the storm at this hour of the night, Master Frank?" said the woman, rattling dishes on the table. "Well, I am on my way home from New York; and, as I was in a hurry, I thought the storm wouldn't amount to much, and that I could ride through it, until I got to Fontelle; but I found my mistake before long, and would have stopped at the Mermaid all night only I knew it would be impossible to awake old Bob Rowley; so I just rode on till I came here. And here I am—what's left of me, I mean; for I got more than half-washed away by the rain!"

"What took you to New York now?" said the woman. "There, sit down, and take your supper, if you want it." "Oh, Jack sent me, of course. I'm ordered about up there, as if I wasn't of the slightest consequence to anybody. Deuce take Jack, I say!" exclaimed Master Frank, with his mouth full.

"Amen!" said a voice, that made the woman start and the youth jump up from his chair. "And the next moment the young stranger pushed open the door at the foot of the stairs, and coolly walked in."

The keen, piercing, hawklike eye of the woman was bent upon him for an instant; but his face expressed nothing but his usual careless sang-froid, as he met her gaze, and then glanced, with easy indifference, at Master Frank—a bright-eyed, fair-haired, fresh-faced lad of sixteen or eighteen.

"The noise at the door aroused me," he said, as if in explanation, "and not feeling like sleeping, and my fire having gone out, I thought I would come down here. I hope I have not startled you."

"Startled me!" said the youth, slowly returning to his former occupation. "You've scared me out of a year's growth—shattered my nervous system all to smash!"

for want of a better name, I suppose. But, what do you know about the De Veres?" continued Master Frank. "Well, I believe I claim kindred with the family," said the careless stranger. "My name is Disbrowe, the Honorable Alfred Disbrowe, more commonly known as Captain Disbrowe, of his Most Gracious Majesty's Horse Guards."

"Hey!" said Master Frank, dropping his knife and fork, and staring at the young and handsome gentleman. "It ain't possible, is it?" The stranger smiled, and bowed slightly. "And you're the Honorable Alfred Disbrowe, brother of Lord Carnarcliffe?" exclaimed the boy. "And nephew of Robert De Vere Esq. of Fontelle?"

"Yes, I have that honor," said the stranger. Up sprang Frank from his seat; and darting over, he caught the young Englishman's hand and shook it heartily, saying, with a delighted shout:

"Hooray! at this ain't an uncommon streak of good luck, my name's not Frank! Good gracious! just to think of it! Why, it's the most unexpected and knock-down rencontre that ever anybody heard of since they were born!" said Frank, shaking the Honorable Alfred's hand as if it had been a pump handle, in his surprise and delight.

CHAPTER IV.

The young Englishman glanced toward his slightly uncourteous hostess to see what effect this announcement had on her; and saw her standing, looking steadily into the fire, with the strangest expression of mingled triumph, delight and exultation, added to another inexplicable look—as if a domineering prospect of some sort had suddenly been opened before her. Her evil face had so strange a fascination for him at that moment, that, unheeding Frank De Vere's boisterous greeting, he kept his eyes on her, and asked:

"What picture do you see in the fire, my worthy hostess, that seems so strongly to rivet your attention?" "I saw," said the woman, pointing to the glowing coals, "a pit there, so black, so bottomless, that if it opened visibly before you now, you would shrink and recoil from it in horror."

"Possible!" said the young man, in his careless tone. "Well, and what of it? Did you see nothing else?" "You—you were at the bottom of it! But you were not alone. I saw some one falling down, and down, and down into that dark and loathsome gulf; and he, fallen and degraded in their scornful pride, in the very slime at your feet, sprung alike by God and man, and that one was—"

"Well," said the young man, starting a little from his nonchalant manner by the suppressed passion that throbbled like a rising tide in her face and voice. "Jack De Vere!" she said, raising her voice almost to a shriek, with a last malignant glance, she turned to leave the room.

"Don't mind her. Captain Disbrowe!" exclaimed Frank, indignantly; "she's crazy one-half her time and not very sensible the rest. Nobody minds what old Grizle Howlett says."

"Who is this Jack De Vere, on whose destiny I am to have so dismal an effect?" inquired the soldier, resuming his indifferent manner. "Oh, a cousin of ours, of course; one of the De Veres of Fontelle."

"Is he at Fontelle now?" Frank nodded and laughed, and the laugh was shrilly echoed by the elfish sprits, Orrie, who still crouched in the chimney corner. "Then I shall see him to-morrow!" "Yes; you'll see him to-morrow," said Frank, still laughing, and seemingly immensely tickled by some inward feeling.

"What are you laughing at?" said Captain Disbrowe, with a puzzled look. Frank opened his mouth to protest he never was more serious in his life, but in the effort another roar escaped him.

"Well, this is rather droll," said the young Englishman, "laughing over such a solemn matter as the extinguishing of Mr. Jack De Vere and Captain Alfred Disbrowe, when—"

"Orrie!" called the harsh voice of Mother Grizle at this moment, "get up and go to bed."

What! Shall We Sow Wheat in Our Neighbour's Field?

Johan Bojer, in his great story, "The Great Hunger," told of a man who sowed wheat in his neighbour's field "that God might prevail."

It looks as if Europe had got to do something of the same kind if there is to be any peace or any business for Europe.

Money for Germany?
Consider this remarkable article by M. Henri Bidou in the Paris Figaro, in which he discusses "the proposed loan of 800 million gold marks ($40,000,000), which, he explains, is intended to remain in Germany in order to strengthen her credit, and continues:

"People will say, 'What! Eight hundred millions of fresh money for Germany! Is that what you call reparations for France?' It must be recognized that the paradox is a hard one, but it lies at the very root of the reparations question, and it will never be dislodged from that place. Yes, reparations begin with assistance to Germany—and Germany will probably do her best to confine them to that. What is more, reparations are entirely based, when analysed, upon an excess of German exports, that is to say, upon a dangerous German prosperity."

"There is no known way of getting out of that. And, finally, reparations have necessarily to be coupled with certain advantages for Germany. For it is practically impossible to force a great State to pay heavy penalties for 25 years or more if it has not something for doing so. These truths are extremely disagreeable and unpalatable. They offend justice and the feeling of what is our right. But they are truths. What is the good of hiding them? The most reasonable thing about Mr. MacDonald's thesis is that the good will of Germany, if necessary—not because we have got away from the Treaty of Versailles, but in order to execute this Treaty."

Unpleasant Truths.
The Times Paris correspondent, discussing this article, says "he explains to his countrymen some of the more unpleasant truths concerning payment of reparations. One cannot but regret that such articles have been comparatively so rare in the Paris Press during the past years, for if they had been more common there they would have been a less general failure here to understand the subject."

"M. Bidou begins by saying that illusions are common as to the effect which payments under the Dawes plan would have on the French Budget. He estimates that the annuity which France would receive if the plan were carried out would be only $100,000,000."

WOMAN SUFFERED FOR MONTHS
Weak and Nervous. Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Webbwood, Ont.—"I was in a very weak and run-down nervous condition, always tired from the time I got up until I went to bed. Sleep did not rest me at all. My sister recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and others told me about it, but it was from my sister's advice that I took it. It did not take long until I felt stronger, headaches went away and my appetite came back to me. I am a farmer's wife and have many things to do outside the house, such as milking, looking after the poultry, and other chores. I heartily recommend the Vegetable Compound to all who have the same trouble I had, for it is a fine medicine for women."—Mrs. LOUIS F. ELIASER, Hillcrest Farm, Webbwood, Ont.

LAW ABIDING.
"I am strictly law-abiding," said Japs Bunchshaw, "and I'm bold in denouncing and deriding all who knock the statutes cold. I detest the lawless crissers who despise their boot-leg Moose;" but he buys illicit bitters whenever he may choose. He's a villain who will peddle the verboten wine or gin, and the cop deserves a medal who will run the catfish in. Oh, the buyer of the bitters tells his law-aiding tale, and of righteousness he twitters while the seller goes to jail. And the bootleg graik would wither like a plant when blasts are raw, but for purchasers who blither of their high respect for law. There are people law-abiding, whose complacency is vast, and we hear them sternly chiding those who drive their cars too fast; and they'd send the gents who gamble to a cell with moldy straw; always, always, as they ramble, they are standing up for law. Legal brickbats they are bouncing on the heads of all who err; lawlessness they are denouncing till the air is filled with fur. But when to their clubroom cosy in the evening they are drawn, they, to make their vision rosy, order up the damJohn. Old Japs Bunchshaw has a locked which he visits thrice a day; and there wine, which is a mocker, drives his fantasia far away. Having swigged, he goes sagging to the haunts of thirsty men; "let us all be law-abiding," we can hear him preach again.

King Reviews Great Armada-- Thrilling Naval Pageant.

(News of the World.)

In the historic waters off Spithead, the scene from time immemorial of such spectacles, the King the other day reviewed the most powerful Armada which has ever been gathered together under the White Ensign.

It was a thrilling and inspiring sight as the Royal Yacht, with his Majesty, the Prince of Wales, and the Duke of Connaught on the bridge, steamed through the majestic avenues formed by the Fleet while the ships' hands played.

This wondrous assemblage of naval might included one hundred and ninety ships manned by thirty thousand officers and men.

The vessels were anchored in ten lines of ten miles each, and when illuminated at night presented a picture of unforgettable beauty. The chief delegates of the nations taking part in the Allied Conference were aboard the Enchantress, where they had an opportunity of talking high politics with the Prime Minister and other members of the Government.

OUR SURE SHIELD!

The Gallant "Lizkie" at Head of the Fleet.

For the first time for a decade the famous anchorage off Spithead was the scene of a mighty concentration of war craft when his Majesty the King reviewed the Atlantic and Reserve Fleets. Two hundred warships extending in ten lines and totalling over 40 miles in length, were drawn up outside Portsmouth Harbour. For the most part these vessels represented the new Navy. Many of them were veterans of Heligoland and the Dogger Bank and Jutland, but very few were survivors of the last historic Royal review on July 13, 1914. The readiness of the Navy in all eventualities was strikingly exemplified then, for instead of dispersing to peaceful stations as this Armada afterwards did, the Grand Fleet steamed forth into the grey mists of the North Sea to meet the Teuton naval menace.

Thoughts of the happenings of ten years ago were uppermost in everyone's mind as one passed down the lines of this awe-inspiring array, and one felt as confident as ten years ago that the Royal Navy is our sure shield.

Portsmouth was en fête during the Royal visit. His Majesty the King, accompanied by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught, passed the night on the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert, where they were joined by Prince Arthur of Connaught. The weather was threatening during the morning, but towards noon there was brilliant sunshine, which synchronised with a burst of colour throughout the Fleet when on a given signal the vessels were dressed over all with flags. Between nine and ten o'clock the King and the Prince came ashore and visited the famous old Victory, now lying snugly in dry dock. The Prime Minister, Mr. McDonald, the Home Secretary, Mr. Henderson, and the Lord Privy Seal, Mr. Clynes, were also among visitors to Nelson's old flagship. The review area was cleared of unofficial craft from 1 p.m. and at 2 p.m. the Victoria and Albert, with the King on board, sailed forth from Portsmouth Harbour for her tour of the Fleet. There were thousands of people afloat in all manner of craft, and huge Crowds at all Yantage Points along the shore watched the progress of the Royal yacht, which was preceded by the Trinity House yacht, the Patria. The Lords of the Admiralty followed in the Enchantress, and other craft conveyed Government and official guests, who included among their number many overseas visitors. Circling overhead was an aerial escort, typifying in that assemblage of maritime strength that mighty new power which is making such breathless progress and which already plays an important part in naval defence. As the Royal yacht approached the end of the review lines the Navy's greeting to his King rang out, hundreds of guns thundered, and momentarily the smoke which belched forth from those grim muzzles obscured the dull grey hulls of the warships. Then when the screen of smoke lifted, the Victoria and Albert entered the lines abreast of the Queen Elizabeth, the flagship of the Commander-in-Chief, Admiral Sir John De Robeck, and the light cruiser, Curacoa, which carried the pennant of Rear-Admiral T. D. Gilbert, commanding the second light cruiser squadron.

The crews of the vessels were manning the sides, and there were shining cheers as the King, in a prominent position on the yacht, stood with his hand raised to the salute.

STRANGE NEW TYPES.

The Victoria and Albert took a westerly course along the lines, passing first of all the Barham, Warspite, Valiant, and Malaya, all sister ships of the Queen Elizabeth, which acted as a squadron in support of Admiral Beatty in the earlier phases of the Battle of Jutland. Then came the Royal Sovereign class, consisting of the ship of that name and the Royal Oak, Revenge, Resolution, and Centurion, all of which were in the main battle line at Jutland. These are the monsters of the Armada, all except one carrying 15-inch guns. The only battle-cruiser in the line was the Tiger, another ship with a distinguished war record, notable for her feats at the Dogger Bank and Jutland engagements. These capital ships were an imposing sight, conveying the impression of war-like menace and aggressive power. To the layman, however, they were familiar types to which he had grown accustomed during the war, but further along the great avenue some remarkable and strange craft were encountered, forerunners of the warship of the future.

Two of the most weird of these were the Hermes and Argus, the aircraft carriers. The Hermes is a Nightmare Ship, grotesque and apparently mismatched compared with the lines of her graceful sisters. An odd funnel and superstructure seems to have been implanted all awry on one side of the large deck.

But there is method in this seemingly made piece of naval architecture, for the long flat sweep fore to aft is designed as an alighting ground for aeroplanes. The Argus is a "hush hush" ship of great speed, which has also been adapted for aeronautical purposes.

The absence of funnels and other deck superstructure render this ship an admirable taking-off and landing platform for aeroplanes which are carried on board for reconnaissance and other duties. The submarines, too, were the object of keen interest, by reason of their curious appearance, and the mighty M3 swam sternwards with the wicked menace of her 12-inch gun. This craft is one of the most heavily-armed submersible boats in the Navy, and her big gun can be fired while the vessel is 20 feet below the surface, showing to her enemies only the muzzle and the periscope above water. The E class of submarines, too, were of novel type, their high bows, which render them more seaworthy on the surface and superior in diving, being prominent. This class is capable of high speed, thus enabling them to work in company with the Fleet. Away to the south, on the outskirts of the Fleet, off Ryde Pier, lay the destroyer Ureula, one of the reserve fleet flotilla. It was commanded by Lieut.-Commander R. G. Bowes-Lyon, brother of the Duchess of York, and on board was the son of the King, Prince George, who was serving as one of its officers. Light cruisers, destroyers, repair ships, mine-layers, target service vessels, and mine-sweepers stretched out in long lines as far as the eye could see, and the whole array, gaily clad in bunting and alive with cheering crews, was surveyed in his Majesty's tour through the lanes of ships which lasted nearly two hours. As the Royal yacht emerged from the review lines and headed again for the harbour a squadron of aeroplanes saluted and dipped gracefully. Other aircraft in the meantime performed daring stunts over the Fleet and near the shore, to the evident enjoyment of their vast audience. These included three "Flycatchers," single-seated deck-landing fighting biplanes, with a speed of 150 miles per hour. It was a memorable spectacle of naval might and efficiency and none were more impressed than a party of 150 naval veterans who were the special guests of the Admiralty in a naval tug. To them the contrast between the past and present must have been even more striking and significant than to the present generation.

At the conclusion of the review the King proceeded from Portsmouth Har-

U.S. Airmen Will Leave Greenland To-morrow

British Premier Cannot Promise Further Reduction of Armaments—Atlantic City in the Grip of the Storm.

MACDONALD COULDN'T PROMISE.
GENEVA, Aug. 26.—Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain to-day declared to the League of Nations that although Great Britain was constantly seeking to reduce her armament expenditures, she could not pledge that present or future British Governments would not exceed the current outlays. His statement was made in answer to the League's request that all countries attempt in future not to exceed their armament expenses for this year.

U. S. AIRMEN WILL FLY TO LABRADOR TO-MORROW.
Aboard U.S.S. Richmond, Aug. 26.—Lieuts. Smith and Nelson, army world aviators, have notified Rear Admiral Magruder, Commander of the convoying squadron, that they expect to leave Thursday on their flight from Greenland to Labrador after changing engines. The discovery, late Sunday night, of the missing Italian seaplane, piloted by Lieut. Locatelli, and the rescue of its four occupants after more than eighty hours on the bleak waters of the North Atlantic came in dramatic fashion. The Richmond, flagship of Rear Admiral Magruder, commanding the convoy squadron of the United States world fliers, was putting out to sea for the night after a fruitless all day search along the Greenland ice pack, when at 11:30 p.m. stock flares were seen. Immediately there was renewed activity aboard and the course was changed in the direction of the lights, which reappeared at intervals. It was after midnight when the plane, bobbing on the water, was picked up by the Richmond's searchlight. As the Richmond drew near the seaplane four men were seen in the cockpit. A line was thrown to them, the plane hauled astern and the fliers were taken off. They were suffering only from fatigue and sea sickness and were soon restored after partaking of hot coffee and sandwiches. The wings and steering apparatus of the seaplane were damaged and it was decided to destroy the craft.

GERMAN NATIONALIST OPPOSITION MEETING.
BERLIN, Aug. 26.—In official quarters it was stated that the leaders of the middle parties in the Reichstag appear to be less apprehensive to-day over the fate of the Dawes Bill when they come up for final vote on Thursday. It is declared there has been a visible melting of Nationalistic Opposition during the past forty-eight hours.

EIGHTY MEN IN DESPERATE FLIGHT.
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 26.—Eighty men faced death aboard the stranded Government dredge Solorar in a mountainous sea half a mile off shore as the result of being swept from their inlet moorings early to-day by a rain and wind storm which struck this city with unusual intensity, crippling traffic, uprooting trees and fences, overthrowing beach patrol tents, tearing down telephone wires, flooding streets and heaving discomforts on pedestrians. All efforts on the part of the coast guards to reach the side of the stranded dredge failed this morning because of the impassable breakers that were sweeping shoreward by the sixty-six mile gale driving a sheet of rain before it. Not a word could be gotten to or from the marooned men. About 11 a.m. the dredge was listing heavily seaward as if ready to topple over and a desperate effort was made by an inlet tug to reach her and throw a line aboard. The effort was suc-

REEL TO HAVE FOX SHOW.
CHARLOTTETOWN, Aug. 26.—A live fox and fur show open to the world is to be held in Charlottetown in 1925, according to a decision reached here yesterday at the annual meeting of silver and black fox breeders association of Prince Edward Island. The meeting expressed the opinion that inasmuch as the island was the cradle of the fox industry, its capital city was the proper place for the holding of such an exhibition at which it is expected there will be several thousand animals on show.

ATTEMPTED TO ESCAPE.
QUEBEC, Aug. 26.—An attempt to escape was made yesterday by Giuseppe Serafini but it was frustrated, stated Charles Lanctot, K.C., Assistant Attorney General of the Province, to-night, when questioned regarding the report emanating from Montreal to the effect that Serafini had secured temporary freedom. Mr. Lanctot stated that he could not give anything further for publication, but added that an investigation was now going on.

A despatch from Montreal to-day declared that Serafini, who is in Bordeaux Jail, under sentence of death in connection with the Bank of Hochelaga holdup April 1st last, and the death of the chauffeur of the Bank collection car, Henri Lerooux, had attempted to escape from prison yesterday by sawing the bars of his cell, and that after a few minutes freedom he was recaptured by the prison guards.

127 MILES AN HOUR AT BROOKLANDS—MOTOR CAR LIKE A THUNDERBOLT—PRE-WAR VETERAN WINS BIG RACE.

Racing at Brooklands recently was a pean of speed. One motor car, the Leyland-Thomas eight-cylinder, driven by Mr. J. G. P. Thomas, broke all records with a burst in which it touched 127.28 miles an hour over a lap of two and three-quarter miles. Even then it only gained second place, the race going to the Sunbeam six-cylinder Blue Bird, driven by Capt. M. Campbell, which completed the 5 1/4 miles at 103 1/2 miles an hour.

The Leyland-Thomas was so heavily handicapped that in one race of three laps Mr. Thomas was not allowed to start until the first car had completed nearly a quarter of the race, but he finished second to a machine which had started 1 min. 20 sec. ahead of him.

A Roar and a Rush.
Save for its colours—blue and white—the Leyland-Thomas is like nothing so much as the popular conception of a thunderbolt; a roar and a rush, and that which a moment before was a speck in the distance has disappeared in the opposite direction. But the best idea of its speed is gained from a high stand when Mr. Thomas is driving all out. It sings past cars doing a mere crawl of 20 and more miles an hour as if they were stationary.

The big race of the day, for the Brooklands President's Gold Plate, valued at £100, was won by almost the last of the old brigade of racing motor cars, a veteran Lanchester 4-cylinder of 16 years, which goes by the name of "Softly-Catch-Monkey," is driven by Mr. A. Bellingham-Smith, and raced at Brooklands before the war. Coloured like a wasp it showed that it had a sting under its bonnet to the tune of 88 miles an hour for 5 1/4 miles.

The Jersey Fashion.
One of the new brigade, the Austin "four," driven by Capt. A. White, which had given it four seconds start, chased it home, to be beaten by "a neck."

At least, that would have been the verdict on the other kind of race course, and at Brooklands they follow the customs of the Turf very closely. There are bookmakers along the rails, shouting the odds in each race, the starter in his box and the judges in theirs, while there is the paddock, where the races have as many admirers as horses paraded in the ring. There are racing colours, too, but they are worn by the cars instead of by the drivers; the latter have a decided liking for Fairisle jerseys of varied hues. The only competitor who did not wear one was Major L. Roper, M.P. Perhaps that was why he did not win a race.

WOMEN ATHLETES.—BRITISH BEAT FIVE OTHER NATIONS.—MANY RECORDS BROKEN.
The biggest and most important meeting yet promoted in women's athletics took place in the presence of about 25,000 spectators at Stamford Bridge, when teams representing France, Belgium, Italy, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, and Great Britain competed with each other in a series of flat and field events on the points system, the result being a decisive victory for the home country.

Very early in the proceedings women's records began to fall, the first being that for the 1,000 metres run, which was won by Miss E. Trickey, one of our representatives, in 3 min. 1-5 sec. as against her own British record of 3 min. 32 sec., and the world's record of 3 min. 12 sec. held by a French girl, Mile. M. Breard.

Her effort expended on this splendid performance undoubtedly handicapped Miss Trickey later in the one-kilometre walking race, in which she was beaten into third place by Mile. Regal, France, and Miss Keeling, Great Britain.

Miss Mary Lines, Great Britain, won the running long jump at 18 ft. 7 1/2 in., as against the world's record of 16 ft. 5 in., by the Czechoslovakian, M. Mejlikova, and the British record of 16 ft. 5 in., by Miss Lines herself.

Miss Lines, whose popularity with the crowd was amply demonstrated, also beat the world's record in the first heat of the 120 yards hurdles race, which she won in 17 3/4 sec., the previous best being her own of 18 2/4 sec., and subsequently she won the final in 18 1/4 sec.

Miss Lines Wins 3 Events.
Later Miss Lines completed a wonderful triple performance by winning the final heat of the 350 metres race in the British record time of 34 1/2 sec., as against the previous best of 35 2/4 sec. by Miss V. Palmer, of the Kennington, A.C., time which was beaten by Miss Palmer herself yesterday, when she won her preliminary heat of the same event in 34 3/4 sec. The world's record is 33 9/10 sec., and was done by an English girl, Miss I. W. Edwards, only a couple of weeks ago, in Brussels.

Mile Groszlimond, Switzerland, won the javelin throwing at 166 ft. 9 1/2 in., beating her own world's record of 154 ft. 2 1/2 in.

In throwing the discus also, world's record, which stood at 88 ft. 3 1/2 in., by Mile. G. Tembourret, France, and British record, which was Miss Birchborough's, 62 ft. 1 1/2 in., were beaten by a Frenchwoman, Mile. V. Morris, who won at 98 ft. 9 in.; and in the 600 metres relay race, which was won by Great Britain, represented by Misses V. Palmer, I. W. Edwards, L. F. Gamble, and R. E. Thompson, world's record was once more beaten, the quartette going 1 min. 18 2/4 sec., as against 1 min. 21 3/4 sec. by a London Olympiad A.C. team.

Record Night Jump.
The world's record high jump, held jointly by Mrs. S. C. Elliott-Lynn, Middlesex Ladies' A.C., and Miss E. Stine, America, at 4 ft. 10 1/2 in., was beaten by two girls and equalled by a third, Mile. E. van Truyen, Belgium, winning at 4 ft. 11 1/2 in.

The international team placing, as the result of the various events, were as follows: Great Britain, 51 points; 1; France, 31 points; 2; Belgium, 15 points; 3; Czechoslovakia, 15 points; 4; Switzerland, 7 points; 5; Italy, 2 points; 6.

DEMPEY'S NOSE TO BE REMODELED.
LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 26.—Whoever opposes Jack Dempsey in the next battle for the heavyweight ring championship will have an opportunity to test his marksmanship on a nice new nose.

The world's champion to-day went into retirement with a bandaged face after being to floundered of having one's nose rebuilt to suit the camera-man. Since Dempsey has been publicly connected with the motion picture industry all summer, there was no way out of it, and, accordingly the plastic surgeon was given permission to cut away a piece of the boxer's left ear and put it where it would make his nose look like Valentino's.

It will be a week, the doctor said, before the new nose can be unveiled.

Mrs. Davis Recovers Strength.
The following statement contained in a letter from Mrs. Alice Davis of Jamestown, N.Y., should bring hope to other women who are in the same condition she was. She says, "I was nervous and weak with pains in my back, no ambition, and utterly discouraged, and could not sit up all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health and strength so I am now running a rooming house and do all the work." Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is pre-eminently successful in overcoming such troubles and it will pay and suffering women to try it.

NICHOLSON-ANNAND.
(Morning Chronicle, August 23rd)
Of exceptional interest to Dalhousians was the marriage at Port Massey last night of Jean Annand, B.A. (1923), daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Annand, and granddaughter of the late Hon. William Annand, and J. R. Nicholson, B.A. (1921), son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Nicholson, of Newcastle. Mr. Nicholson, who is now practicing law in Vancouver, the partner of J. A. Russell, Dalhousian 1887, and Miss Annand, who was teaching in St. John's, Newfoundland, some time ago decided that their wedding should synchronize with the Dalhousie Re-union. Nearly every member of the wedding party was either a graduate of Dalhousie, or a student at the present time, and the church was crowded with Dalhousians who were attending the re-union. Both the principals of the wedding were very prominent in university circles during their time in Dalhousie. The groom won the Governor General's medal in 1921. He was, during his college career, manager of the hockey team, and also of the Gazette, and both bride and groom were prominent debaters.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, F. W. Annand, was gowned in princess satin with silver lace, with the usual veil and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses with trailers of sweet peas, and was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Gwendolen Thompson and Miss Madeline Mader. They wore dresses of maize georgette with picture hats and corsage bouquets of sweet peas.

The groomsmen were Charles Lovett Beasley, Roderick Frazer, cousin of the groom, presided at the organ, and Mrs. Belle Wilson sang during the signing of the register, "Beloved It Is Thou." The ushers were Robert Scott and Ivan Mader. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. R. W. Ross, Pastor of Fort Massey Presbyterian Church.

At the conclusion of the ceremony there was a reception at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. I. Mader, Morris St., at which only the immediate friends and relatives were present. Assisting the bride in receiving were Dr. and Mrs. A. I. Mader, Mr. and Mrs. Annand, and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Nicholson.

Mrs. Mader was gowned in black satin. Mrs. Nicholson's frock also being of black satin. The flowers used to supply the decorations to the rooms were snapdragons, sweet peas and roses. After a short stay in Newcastle, where they will visit the groom's par-

Meeting at Greenell Hall

PLAYGROUND ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED.

Last night's meeting at the Greenell Hall was from all viewpoints a decided success. Its object was the formation of a Playground and Recreation Association. The attendance at the meeting was good, and included many gentlemen prominent in church and state. A few ladies were present. At eight thirty o'clock the meeting was opened by Mr. J. W. Morris, President of the Rotary Club, who said that when Rotary was introduced here two years ago it was found necessary to introduce a Boy Life Survey which affected 4000 boys. After defining the purpose of Rotary to his hearers, he said that the need for properly supervised playgrounds was very great, and hoped that the citizens present would do all possible to help the club in its high aims. Mr. Reuben F. Horwood was elected chairman of the meeting. Thanking the citizens present for the honor he said that he was glad to be a member of an organization that was doing such good for the children of the city by establishing a place where the children could enjoy innocent recreation. The first speaker, Mr. J. Alex Robinson, dwelt on the educational side of the project. He quoted an incident where he had seen little children playing in the mud and filth of the streets. He described it as a place of horror. Thanks to the Rotary Club this state of affairs will not long continue. A playground where children are innocently amused is the fitting place of character. He said he was very proud to see the Rotarians engaged in such noble work.

Rev. Fr. Pippy was present as the special representative of his Grace Archbishop Roche. He read the following letter from his Grace:—
My Dear Father Pippy,

Mr. J. F. Meenan of the Rotary Club, whose members are promoting a movement for the formation of a Children's Playground Association, has asked me to send a representative to a public meeting which is being held to-night, and I would be glad if you would go there in my behalf.

The movement, in my opinion, is one that means very much for the moral and physical uplift of thousands of our city children, and should command their support of citizens generally. I think it is impossible to overestimate the advantages that would accrue to our children if facilities were given them for more healthy recreation in more healthy surroundings under capable and competent supervision.

Personally, I am prepared to do anything I can to help to forward the movement, and I would ask you to assure the meeting of my sympathetic interest in the project.

Sincerely yours,
FR. P. ROCHE,

Archbishop of St. John's.

Father Pippy said he agreed with his Grace's views on the matter and expressed his hearty approval of the work being done on behalf of the youth of the city, and he urged all present to unite with the Rotarians in their noble work.

The chairman then read letters from Mr. R. G. Rendell and other citizens who regretted that their full support was assured the Rotarians.

The Prime Minister, Hon. W. S. Monroe, who next spoke said he was glad to be able to attend such a meeting. He stated that when he came to the hall he had not intended to speak, but on finding himself on the platform he said that he could not help giving his views on the subject. He was sure the children of St. John's would benefit greatly by the work of the Rotarians, and assured the Association of his earnest support.

Rev. R. J. Power followed, and said it was his earnest hope that the citizens of St. John's would do all they could to help the Rotarians out. He said that those present who were parents knew and would appreciate the value of the work being done by the Club. He assured the Rotary Club his earnest support in their undertaking.

The chairman now reminded the citizens that it was necessary to nominate a Secretary. Mr. A. H. Salter was asked to act in this capacity, but said he found it impossible to do so and Mr. P. E. Outeybridge was then elected.

Mr. Richard Barton who spoke next said it had been decided to reduce the five membership fees to two, Associate and Voting membership. He said he hoped this would enable every citizen to join the Association. At considerable cost the playground apparatus at Bannerman Park had been installed, and he stated that over one hundred children used the horizontal bar in one day as well as the other apparatus. He also told of a visit to Victoria Park which he made with Dr. Burke, and the children asked him to install apparatus like that in Bannerman Park. Playground apparatus cost money, and if the movement is to be continued money was necessary.

Mr. George R. Williams next read the resolutions approving the Association which were carried unanimously. He said that many of the good times enjoyed by the children of the city were due to the kind efforts of the Rotary Club. On Christmas Eve last they were given a treat in the Greenell Hall and also a free movie show, all through the kindness of the Rotary Club. He said a special word of praise was due the ladies in connection with the Child Welfare Association.

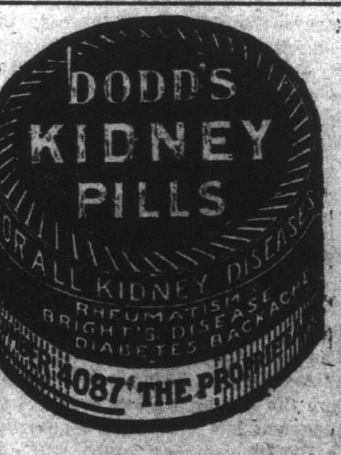

Membership cards were given to those present. These, with membership fees, are to be handed in later. A thorough canvass of the town is to be made later on. The chairman said that membership fees extended to one year, and that if the work is to be kept up funds are necessary.

Hon. W. J. Higgins said that the children of the city were now enjoying privileges, thanks to the Rotary Club, which he did not enjoy when he was a boy. He stated that he was present in two capacities, personal and official, and in the latter, he was very well acquainted with juvenile delinquency in the city which he felt would be greatly diminished under the efforts of the Rotary Club.

The chairman then read the names of ten gentlemen, who kindly consented to act as a committee.—Dr. Roberts, P. E. Outeybridge, Hon. W. J. Ellis, L. C. Outeybridge, Geo. R. Williams, Cyril J. Cahill, M.H.A., Joseph Peters, C. C. Duley, Dr. V. P. Burke and Hon. S. Milley.

In bringing the meeting to a close, Chairman Horwood thanked those present for their kind attendance as the weather he said was very conducive to outdoor enjoyments but nevertheless those present had given their whole-hearted support.

Wedding Bells

HAMILYN-MUIR.

A very pretty wedding was performed on Tuesday evening, Aug. 26, at 8 p.m., at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Ritchie, Fairview, Nansimo, when their only daughter, Vera Muir, became the happy bride of Ralph Beris Hamlyn. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Hugh Nixon, of Wallace Street Methodist Church, in the presence of some forty guests, all relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom.

The home of the bride was beautifully decorated for the occasion, a large wedding bell completing the arrangement in the drawing room, under which the ceremony was solemnized.

The groom was assisted by Mr. James Philip Allison, while Miss Elsie Meacham acted as bridesmaid. The bride was tastefully dressed in a pearl grey silver chene with rose trimmings, while the bridesmaid's dress was equally becoming, being composed of sand-colored silk canton with mauve trimmings.

The groom's gift to the bride was a travelling suitcase; to the bridesmaid a pearl necklace, and to the groomsmen a beautiful pearl stickpin. The season in which the bride is held was clearly indicated by the large number of costly and useful wedding presents received.

The wedding being over, the guests sat down to a wedding dinner in the large dining room where Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie had gathered and prepared the best of the land, and where a sumptuous wedding repast was enjoyed and appreciated by all, which was concluded by a number of toasts and good wishes proposed to the bride and groom. The happy couple, who carry with them the best wishes of their many friends, will make their future home in the district of Nansimo.

"The Prodigal Son" at the Nickel

English Version of Hall Caine's Novel of Ireland is Filled With Action and Intense Drama.

Unusually intense and vivid drama with stirring situations following each other in rapid succession is the outstanding characteristic of the English-made production of Hall Caine's popular novel, "The Prodigal Son," offered by Stoll Film Company, Ltd. It is a story of brother against brother, and sister against sister, with almost all of the action laid in Ireland, where many of the scenes were filmed. It is marked by the ruggedness and vigor of the inhabitants of that far north country. The Icelandic exteriors are striking, and many of them beautiful, and there is the charm of the quaint customs of that country. The action also shifts to England and France, where the scenes were filmed, resulting in unusual, sometimes striking, and of course authentic backgrounds.

The cast, which consists of unfamiliar players, all give good performances, the types being for the most part well selected. We understand the picture was cut from a much greater length, and as a result it moves along at a rapid pace. Almost immediately we are plunged into an unusually dramatic situation and you wonder how this temper can be kept up. But it is maintained for the greater part of the film, one tense situation following another rapidly, with an entire absence of padding. The continuity is consistent and there are no unexplained gaps.

Miss Marjorie Hutchings' beautiful Contralto voice was heard to excellent advantage last night. To-day she will repeat the same renditions.

MY WATCH.
I have a watch, a faithful watch which keeps good time for me; And it has lived a goodly life, from all corruption free; It has not ticked in evil ways, and I Why they should sadly shake their heads in every jeweler's store. Why do they, one and all declare when 'er my watch they've learned "Good sir, this is a dirty watch, and you should have it cleaned?"

I had it cleaned a month ago, and then the mainspring broke; I took it to another man, who peered before he spoke; And squinting at its tender works and poking here and there, He took the glass from out his eye and whispered: "I declare, It's been full twenty years or more since you have had it cleaned!"

He gave my watch a bath, I think; at least, for that I paid; Then something else went wrong with it and to a store I strayed; The watchman there was most polite, he hummed and hawed a bit; He jiggled this and jiggled that while diagnosing it; He called his first assistant in, I saw them both confer, And then the two of them exclaimed: "Your watch needs cleaning, sir!"

Think not I doubt the jeweler. His feelings I'd not hurt. I merely wonder where it is my watch gets all the dirt; I wear it on my breast all day, and when I go to bed I place it with solicitude beneath my drowsy head; I guard it with parental care from all that may occur. But still the experts say to me: "Your watch needs cleaning, sir!"

Our Grand Falls Budget

(By PHILIP SPAYCOE.)

There are so many things for me to write about this week that I scarcely know where to begin. Before I tell you any of the news of the town, I want to let you know that my best friend was delighted to see my notes in the paper last week. She was glad to see my name in print, but she tells me that she found a whole lot of mistakes in spelling, in these notes. In fact, she has tried to tell her that these mistakes were made by the printers and proof-readers. However, she says she is going to revise this before I send it in so, if there are any mistakes in this budget, the printers and proof-readers will hear of it. She is a very particular girl; that is why she has chosen me. If the printer, who sets the type for this budget, has any best interests at heart, he will be more careful in future.

An enjoyable outing to Botwood was held last week by the staff of the Exploits Valley Royal Stores. The married men went to the unmarriageable children with them; the unmarried men, and the ladies of the staff took their sweethearts. The party went down by special train, and all spent a very pleasant afternoon. A feature of the programme was a football match between the ladies of the office staff and a team made up of ladies from the various sales departments. It is reported, however, that the game was very rough. The Ladies' Football Association football sixes, but before the game was well advanced, it developed into a somewhat rugged form of rugby. The office staff won by a corner. The referee was cornered on more than one occasion, when called upon to make a decision. I think he showed great tact in dealing with the problems that confronted him during the game. I am wise, myself, in the ways of women, and I take much pleasure in offering him my heartiest congratulations. His modesty alone prevents me from telling you his name.

Some of the wisecracks around here tell me that bobbed hair has come to stay. If they are correct, I shall be disappointed. I had planned to go into the hair-growing business, and had almost completed my patent for an elastic that would grow hair while you wait. I had not arrived at the definite length of the wait; that was a little detail that would be worked out later. I must tell you how I came to consider this new way of making money, because the proposition still looks good to me. I have watched Dame Fashion closely during the past few years, and if she is still as fickle as I have found her to be during that time, she may, at any time, order that the girls wear their hair long again. Her decree is likely to be issued overnight. Just think of the rush that will be made to my emporium! Don't crush ladies; one at a time please.

I cannot find many persons to discuss the new Liquor Bill with me. There are lots of men in this town who are at all times ready to discuss a bottle of good liquor, and more especially, if they can be told in a whisper, that it came from St. Pierre. However, I do not think that our citizens, on the whole, have any serious objections to the measure. It is not likely that there will be a dispensary here, although the population may be large enough to warrant it. There are other points to be considered, and I do not think for one moment, that the Anglo Newfoundland Development Company would consent to have this model town turned into a beer garden. Personally, I do not think the opening of a distributing centre for liquor, at Grand Falls, would be in the best interests of this community. Our town is prosperous, and our young men are rich as far as money goes. They may not be so rich in will-power, if such a centre were to be established in our midst.

I am pleased beyond measure to learn that the Government has voted the sum of two million dollars for the building of roadways. This, to my mind, is a step in the right direction. It will help to develop some of the latent resources of the country and, incidentally, will bring an increase of tourist traffic. There are lots of beautiful spots between here and Badger that can only be reached now by a mucky trail, that runs parallel to the line of railway. If we had a good highway between these places, we could offer the prospective tourist a nice motor drive of about seventy-five miles, from Botwood to Springdale. There is a good road from Badger to Springdale now; there is also a good road from here to Botwood. All we need is a link of about eighteen miles to join the two. I would not advocate this as an absolute necessity, but I am sure that such a roadway would bring untold benefits in its train. I hope to live to see my dreams of such a beautiful motor drive come true. The real estate agent of some future day may, perhaps, try to deface our beautiful landscape, should these dreams come true, but there will be lots of good scenery left.

The best motor car in town is owned by Mr. Harry Ball. It is what the little boys call "a peachy car." I would not give you the name of it, only that I do not get anything for advertising motor car agencies. It is a very smooth-running car, and Harry is a very careful driver. No, I do not get anything for saying this about Harry. I cannot afford to drive in motor cars, and I am content to get a lift now and then from Naddy Waugh, a very much esteemed friend of mine. He has a dim-bulbive charger that lives on hay and oats, and when his tray is not fully loaded with trunks and other pieces of baggage, he gives me a ride. I usually prefer to walk, however, because walking stimulates thought.

The big chimney, of which I told you last week, is now working its tall head above our town, to quote in part a phrase used in the headlines of a political dodger, issued last spring. This chimney, well, when completed, stand about sixty feet above the acid tower. Those of my readers who have visited our town and have seen the acid tower will feel giddy when they read this. Can you blame me for calling our chimney a skyscraper? I have been invited to go up to the top when it is finished. The inducement offered me was the view of the surrounding country, but that is not quite enough for me. Any way, I never cared very much for the bird's-eye-view that so many people rave about. However, I may accept the invitation and go to the top in the elevator. I may even get courage enough to scorn the base degrees by which I ascend, and come down on the outside in the boatswain's chair. What a thrill for the future Spaycoes, to hear everybody talk of the bravery of their ancestral amateur steeplejack!

The building of a home for Notre Dame Council, Knights of Columbus, was started here a little while ago. It will be a wooden building, with a concrete foundation. The wall has already been completed, and the work of building the home was begun on Saturday last. Mr. B. Bowering is the Contractor. He already has a very fine building to his credit in this town, as it was he who built the beautiful Methodist Church here. The Knights of Columbus Building will have a large Council Chamber and modern club rooms, and it is expected to be ready for occupancy before the end of the present year. The Council here has upwards of one hundred and fifty members, and its numbers are steadily increasing. The new home is being built on Church Road, almost directly opposite the presbytery.

The St. Andrew's Club won the championship in the league football series here this year. Every game they played, but one, resulted in a win for them. This one was a draw. The cup will be presented to the club in due course, and I presume the players will be given gold medals. The Church Ladies Brigade won second place, and I suppose their team will get silver medals. I hear that the St. Andrew's players are going to St. John's next week to play a game with their sister club in that city. It is the opinion of football fans here that our boys will bring home the bacon. That is slang for another win. Here's luck to them.

The game of baseball does not appear to be so popular here as it was a few years ago. Still, there are quite a few of the old players on the diamond this summer. "Pop" Dean is just as enthusiastic as ever. I hear that Albert Greens, another enthusiast, has forsaken the game for football. That is to be regretted, because you get full value for your money when Albert coaches his team. Although the cost of living has been considerably reduced during the past two years, I have been told that the rate for board at one of the hotels here is the same as it was three years ago. I can scarcely believe this, although the man who told me is a permanent boarder at the hotel, and he ought to know better than I. It is a wonder to me that the boarders will continue to pay the old rate.

The local branch of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks will give a picnic to the children of this town on Saturday next. All children over five and under twelve years of age have been invited. The picnic will be held on the athletic field, where an interesting programme of games will take place under the direction of the committee in charge of the event. The Elks are to be commended on their public spirited action, and I hope their efforts will be crowned with success.

I have been very much amused over the attitude of some prohibitionists toward the new Liquor Bill. I am a total abstainer myself; in fact I have been one all my life. Still, I do not think that the ancient rights of a self-respecting, temperate, normal citizen should be disregarded because some people drink too much. The assumption of the ultra-prohibitionist seems to be that our people have not the intelligence enough to govern themselves in the matter of a habit of beverages. I believe that virtue and decent living are better developed by training, discipline, and character, than by any prohibitory laws that our legislators put on our statute books. After almost a decade of prohibition, so called, the evils of the excessive use of alcohol have been increased instead of lessened. Let us hope that the new law will be a more workable experiment. "Experiment" is the fittest word I can find to use in this connection. If it will be the means of doing away with that class of "honest tradesmen," called bootleggers, it will have served some good purpose.

I hear to-day that the Mount Cashel Band will not be coming this year. That is a pity, and I am sure this news will be received with regret by our music lovers. I have been told that the cost of financing such a trip is too great; besides, it would be difficult to secure accommodation for so many in the hotels here. At present all the hotels are practically filled. The footballers will, I think, live in their special car during their visit. By the way, their train is due now, so I must bring these notes to a close and hasten to meet some of my old friends.

MAKERS OF 'FRID CATS.

I spent a day at a popular bathing resort not long ago. And while some of the others in the party went bathing, I sat on the verandah of the public casino and watched the crowds, an absorbing pursuit at such a place. I saw much to interest and amuse me, but there was one incident that exasperated me almost to the point of interference and that was one woman's way of dealing with a child of six who didn't want to go into the water.

The First Lesson.

Later when he was old enough to play ball she used to play with him in the water, tossing the ball just a bit beyond his reach so that he would have to wade out a bit to get it back. And again they would play ring around a rosy with the "all fall down" finale, so that the boy became accustomed to floundering about in the water as a part of his play.

When he wanted to learn to swim my friend had him get down on his knees on the sand facing the shore, and then back out into the water, pushing him along on his hands till he was nearly out to his shoulder, his legs floating behind him, and she would tell him to strike out for shore. This is an excellent way to learn to swim. It is the fear of getting one's head under water that most everyone finds so hard to overcome, and this way, you know that the minute you feel yourself sinking you can put your hand down and touch bottom. Thus you have confidence in your ability to take care of yourself instead of depending on some one's promise to hold you up.

Do Them Good!

If the woman who insist on ducking her babies, protesting and screaming into the waves, would think for a minute how they would like to have someone bigger and stronger than themselves grab them, drag them out beyond their depth and duck them under, they wouldn't be so quick to subject their helpless children to such an ordeal.

Corset Disease Disappears

BERLIN, Aug. 23 (A.P.)—One of the few diseases in Germany that have shown a decline in recent years is chlorosis, also known as "green-sickness." According to Prof. Rudolf Lenhoff, the practical disappearance of the disease is to be directly ascribed to the discarding of corsets by women.

Airplanes Hunt Fish

FELIXTOWN, England, Aug. 12 (A.P.)—Three government flying-boats are patrolling various parts of the North Sea trying to locate fish. Their principal objective is the herring and it is believed that by spotting the shoals and advising various trawling stations the trawlers will be saved much time.

School lunches are made more satisfactory if they include a hot dish or drink.
