A Word to Our Exchanges

—The issue of the Bridgetown MONITOR for February 12th, contains the announcement of the transfer of the ownership of that excellent paper to a joint stock company. It is understood that the Company is composed of leading men of the Liberal party and that the MONITOR thus becomes a party paper.—Berwick Register.

With reference to the above clipping from the "Register," we wish to say that a number of very complimentary references to the MONITOR have appeared in our exchanges for all of which we are very grateful, and hope to continue to merit them as they have been well merited in the past.

But, several of our exchanges have apparently failed to observe in the "Foreword" of the new management that it is the intention as there expressed to conduct the paper on the same broad and independent lines as have characterized it in the past. Will the Register and other exchanges kindly make a note of this.—Ed. Monitor-Sentinel.

—The thoughtfulness of King George in conferring the honor of Knighthood upon Dr. George Turner will be universally commended. Some years since Dr. Turner was charged with the work of endeavoring to ascertain the cause of the rinderpest which was destroying the lives of many of the cattle of South Africa, and he was remarkably successful in his treatment of this disease. He afterwards undertook a similar work in connection with typhoid fever, and was able to reduce very materially the number of deaths by this prevalent disease. Then he gave himself to the study of leprosy which has a foothold in the same country. Relieved of this duty by the Government under which he had been working, by reason of advanced age, he pursued his investigations on his own account, losing the use of his left hand by contracting this distressing disease. This led to his entire seclusion from society, but did not deter him from continuing his researches. The honor of Knighthood comes late, but it is well-deserved, and the name of Sir George Turner will stand alongside of those many never to be forgotten heroes, who have given their lives as a sacrifice for the welfare of humanity. Such examples are worthy of emulation as well as of gratitude and honor.

—The young bank teller, Trefry, who obtained $4600.00 on forged certified checks from the New York Branch of the Royal Bank, was soon caught in the pit which he had dug for others. After having had a gay time, under an assumed name, in London, Paris, Amsterdam, and Monte Carlo, spending his ill-gotten gains in dissipation, and under pretense of great wealth, he returned to New York with several young persons, who if we may judge from report were not much, if any, better than himself.

But, getting short of funds he concocted a scheme by which he hoped to secure more. Telling two companions one evening that he was unable to get into his own room, he asked the favor of being permitted to occupy their room with them for the night. The next day he laid a charge against them before the police of stealing jewelry which he had purchased in Amsterdam and carried in his satchel. During the investigation into this charge, the police suspected that he was the person for whom they were looking as the utterer of the forged note. One of their number was detailed to keep his eye upon him, and being convinced that Joseph Wood, the name which the young man had assumed was fictitious, he said to him, "Trefry, you are wanted." Trefry replied, "I thought I would be," and was placed behind the bars.

Too frequently in these days, our attention is arrested by instances of similar sad folly and downfall. Only last week in Montreal three boys were entrusted by working men, as was their custom with their checks to the amount of some $3000.00, to be cashed for them at the Bank. The boys drew the money, furnished themselves with expensive outfits, divided the balance between themselves, and were leaving in the train for parts unknown, when they were arrested and made to answer for their misdeeds. What a blot upon their life record! What an impediment to their success! The hope is that other boys and young men will take warning by the bitter ending of such cases of dissipation and dishonesty.

An English gentleman appointed, not long since to a Governorship over one of the British possessions in the far East, in counselling some young people, said he had in his possession a little leather covered book containing the accounts of his grandfather who laid the foundation of the successful business in which he, the grandson, was engaged, and he valued it very highly, chiefly because it contained on the fly leaf, the prayer, "God keep me and this book honest."

What About Our All-night Telephone Service?

Some weeks ago the people of Bridgetown were assured that the all-night telephone service was to be added to the Bridgetown Exchange, but of late nothing has been heard of it. Why this long delay? Middleton has it! Kentville got it after an appeal to the Public Utilities Commission. What must we do? Perhaps the District Superintendent, Mr. Freeman, of Middleton, who has always responded promptly to our wants and rights, can give us a word regarding this long-sought privilege.

Illustrated Lecture

The second of this series of lectures was given in St. James' schoolroom last Wednesday evening, the subject being "Medical Missions." After some introductory remarks by the Rector, about four dozen pictures were thrown on the screen, depicting this interesting phase of mission work in China, Japan, India, Persia, Egypt, and Palestine. The connecting readings, as the pictures themselves, showed very clearly what a splendid handmaid the science of medicine is in spreading the gospel, the treatment of bodily ills often affording an opening for the treatment of the soul.

The third lecture of the series will be given this (Wednesday) evening, commencing at half-past seven, the subject being "Work among the Eskimo." Silver collection to defray expenses and assist the work.

Comments of Contemporaries
(Bridgewater Bulletin.)
The Bridgetown Monitor has passed into the hands of a joint stock company. This paper is one of the best in the Annapolis Valley.
(Middleton Outlook.)
A change is announced this week in the Bridgetown Monitor. It is now owned by The Monitor Publishing Co. Limited, composed of a number of leading men of the County.
Under the direction of Mrs. Piper the Monitor has been one of Nova Scotia's brightest weeklies. She together with Miss Piper, have proved that in the newspaper field women are fully the equal of men.
(Windsor Tribune.)
With the current issue the Monitor-Sentinel of Bridgetown, entered upon a new era in its history. It has passed into the possession of a joint stock company to be known as the Monitor Publishing Company, Limited. Previous to its sale the paper has been published under the management of Mrs. M. K. Piper, widow of the former proprietor. Under her management the Monitor-Sentinel has ever been a welcome visitor into the homes of its constituents. In retiring from the field of journalism, Mrs. Piper has the best wishes of the press generally. To the new company, the Tribune extends fraternal greetings, and best wishes for continued success.
(Truro News.)
The Bridgetown Monitor-Sentinel has been sold by the owner and editor, Mrs. M. K. Piper, to The Monitor Publishing Company, Limited. Mrs. Piper certainly made a success of this fine weekly journal. The few owners say: "The paper will be continued upon the same broad and independent lines which have characterized its history and contributed to its increasing success. We wish the new management even greater success than what fell to the lady editor, who for years has so well managed the paper both as a business proposition and as an exponent of healthy public opinion in the Annapolis Valley."

Coasting Accident
Noble Wheelock, son of Arthur Wheelock of Clarence, had the misfortune to fracture his leg last evening while coasting. With a number of other young people he went out in his father's field after tea and was making the first run when the sled by a sudden unexpected turn threw the occupants against an apple tree resulting in this painful accident. The fracture was half-way between the knee and ankle and was cared for at once by Dr. Armstrong.

Blizzard at Westville

Westville, N. S., Feb. 19.—Westville is in the grip of the worst blizzard it has ever experienced for many years. For forty-eight hours snow has fallen, driven by a gale of almost hurricane force. So badly blocked are the streets that practically everything is at a standstill. Social events are called off, street cars did not run until nine o'clock tonight, trains were from one to three hours late and the Drummond and Acadia colliers were scarcely able to operate today, and cannot work tomorrow. The funeral of John Horne, who was found frozen to death in the bush alongside the New Glasgow Road on Sunday, could not be held on account of the storm. Dr. Geo. W. MacKeen performed a post-mortem examination upon the body of the said John Horne, as there had been various rumors afloat as to the cause of his death. Dr. MacKeen, assisted by Undertaker H. A. MacQuarrie, made a thorough examination of the body. He reported that he had found no indications whatever which would warrant any other condition as to the cause of death than that expressed in the terms of the verdict rendered by the Jury at the inquest held Sunday afternoon, viz., "That John Horne came to his death by exposure."
