NO ELECTION FOR PRESENT, SAYS OTTAWA

Political Atmosphere Has Taken Another Tone Since Last Saturday.

STATEMENT THIS WEEK

Sir Robert Borden May Soon Have Something to Announce.

By a Staff Reporter.

OTTAWA, May 5.—The political atmosphere has taken another tone this evening and there is to be no election. The cabinet met this morning without Premier Borden being present, and the political prophets have agreed that the conclusion reached was not to have an election. But one sign reader of some authority says: "Don't be too sure. You may see parliament dissolved within forty-eight hours and the elections over before June 23." But in any event there seems to be good ground for saying that the election that was so certain last Saturday, night, as set out in The Sunday World, is off for the time.

Protests against an election were sent to Sir Robert Borden and published in some of the papers. What effect these protests had on Sir Robert is not known, as he has been confined to the house since Sunday. The answer made to these protests by Conservatives who favor an election is that the prime minister is the best judge and the only judge of necessity for an appeal to the people, and that many of his best supporters and therefore the ones who had the best right to advise him favored an election, and had made their arrangements accordingly.

Statement This Week.

Some kind of a statement may be expected from Sir Robert Borden this week, as the whole country has been completely wrought up over it. One Conservative said tonight the public who did not see the need of an election would change their minds if Sir Robert Borden took the country into his confidence and told of the difficulty of carrying on the war, let alone the government of the country, under the conditions that prevail now and that have prevailed for the past year. Another ringleader said that the Liberals would be greatly disappointed if an election is not called, as they had founded high hopes on carrying the country at the present time. Now they may have to wait for two years. Quite a number of Conservatives, especially those from Quebec, were opposed to an election this year.

Much Uncertainty.

The majority of ministers from Ontario are said to have favored an election. Hon. Robert Rogers spoke in Montreal in favor of an election. As things go tonight an election may still be held in June, perhaps in the fall; or parliament may meet again in December.

The pressing questions are about the internal affairs of Canada, not the war; about the railway situation, about banking, about helping the great and varied interests of the country to adjust themselves to the war conditions, and only a strong government with a free hand and the confidence of the electorate can deal with it on progressive lines. A prolonged truce may only breed atrophy in many directions. What is certain to happen within the next few weeks is a lot of nervous thinking among Canadians how the country can be best pulled together. They have to think about Canada and her people, as well as about the war, and the need of an election may then be more impressive.

Canada's Own Prima Donna.

The morning at the Princess Theatre went on sale for next week's engagement of Miss Christie MacDonald, Canada's own prima donna, who comes with a specially selected company in Victor Herbert's musical opera, "Sweethearts," one of the best of musical plays.

Col. Lord Brooke in Command Of Ontario Infantry Brigade

Chief A.D.C. to Sir John French Will Take Charge of Men in the Second Canadian Contingent.

MONTREAL, May 5.—Col. Lord Brooke, chief A.D.C. to Sir John French, is to take command of the Ontario Infantry Brigade, with the Second Canadian Expeditionary Force, so Major-General Sam Hughes, minister of militia, announced tonight at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal. Major-General Hughes stated that this appointment was the outcome of cable communications with Lord Kitchener and Sir John French.

It is understood that Col. Septimus Denison, temporarily in command of the Ontario Infantry Brigade, will go with the brigade to England, and there hand over the command to Lord Brooke, who will be in charge during the training, as well as when the brigade goes to the front. Col. Denison is not in good health.

Col. Leopold Guy Francis Maynard Greville, Lord Brooke's M.V.O., the eldest son of the Earl of Warwick, has devoted his life to military work. He served several months in 1914 as camp commandant at Petawawa, where many thousand Canadian troops passed thru his hands.

British Near Zonnebeke Exposed to Severe Test

Garrison of "Bastion" Firm Under Fire From All Sides and Persistent Attacks, While Troops on Left Were Pressed Back.

LONDON, May 5.—The British "eye-witness" writes: "A great deal has been said of the troops on the left (Canadian division), which saved the situation on April 22-23, but the services rendered by the British infantry farther east were no less remarkable. The area to the north and east of Zonnebeke, representing a narrow horn of the salient, formed a kind of bastion. Thruout the fighting this garrison held firm under a raking artillery fire from all sides, and under repeated assaults, which were delivered with so much determination that the enemy more than once reached the trenches before they were beaten back.

"Not only was this so, but while our men in this quarter were engaged in repelling attacks in front, they knew all the time that the troops on their left were falling back. The test was as hard as any soldiers can be asked to endure."

ANOTHER GRANDSON OF GLADSTONE IS MISSING

Lieutenant in British Flying Corps Lost in Scouting Trip

LONDON, May 5.—Another son of Gladstone is mentioned in the latest casualty list. He is Lieut. Charles Gladstone of the flying corps and is reported as missing. W. G. C. Gladstone, member of parliament for Kilmarnock, another grandson of Gladstone, was shot and killed by a sniper last month.

ANOTHER TRAWLER SUNK BY GERMAN SUBMARINE

Brings Number Put Under Water Since Sunday Up to Fifteen

LONDON, May 5, 11:30 p.m.—To the nine trawlers, the sinking of which by German submarines was reported today, another victim was added tonight. A Norwegian steamer landed this evening the crew of the trawler Spectre, which was torpedoed forty miles off Peterhead. This brings the total number of trawler victims of German under water boats since Sunday up to 15. The submarines seem to be making a determined effort to prevent England from procuring fish in the North Sea.

BRITAIN MUST ALWAYS KEEP RECORD CLEAN

Premier Aquith So Declares Regarding Proposed Reprisals Against Hung.

BONAR LAW'S ATTITUDE

He Would Disregard Any Convention Which Prevents Final Success.

LONDON, May 5, 10 p.m.—"When the proper time comes due reparation will be exacted on those—whatever their position or their antecedents—if it can be shown that they have violated all the rules and usages of civilized warfare," said Premier Aquith in the house of commons this evening during the course of a debate on the treatment of British prisoners by Germany. He added that a careful record of events was being kept and of evidence which could be obtained in order that, when the proper hour came, proper punishment might be meted out.

The premier referred to the question of the neutral intervention of prisoners, which has been considered. Switzerland, he said, was the only country where it could be done, and there were insuperable difficulties in the way of carrying out the proposals. "The duty of this country," concluded the premier, "is to preserve a clean record."

Law Urges Reprisals.

The question had been brought up by Lord Robert Cecil, who said he had received letters from officers who had been subjected to special confinement by Germany because of the special treatment accorded German submarine officers by Great Britain. The British officers declared that they were locked up separately in cells, twelve by six feet, and were not allowed to smoke.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition, hoped that the country would no longer pay any attention to any convention which would prevent the war from being brought to a final conclusion. It was worth considering, he said, whether at the risk of losing the wounds of many of the officers, they should confiscate every German article throughout the British Empire.

GERMANS SUFFERED HEAVILY WHEN GAS WAS BLOWN BACK FRENCH MAKE STEADY GAINS

Foe, Under Cover of Gas Gain Footing on Hill 60

Fumes Were "Excessively Used and Were Favored by Weather Conditions"—Hard Fighting is in Progress.

LONDON, May 5.—(10 p.m.)—The following official communication was issued tonight by the British War Office: "The general situation remains unchanged. Fighting is in progress on Hill No. 60, southeast of Ypres, on which the Germans attained a footing this morning under cover of poisonous gases, which were excessively used and were favored by weather conditions. "A feeble attack, also preceded by an extensive use of poisonous gases, was made east of Ypres, and was easily repulsed, our artillery inflicting severe loss on the enemy. "In the neighborhood of Ginchy the Germans exploded a mine, and again employed poisonous gas. Four men were poisoned, but otherwise the enemy's efforts in this direction failed completely."

ALLIED FORCES SEIZE SEVERAL NEW POSITIONS

Number of Strategic Points Occupied on Gallipoli Peninsula Monday.

TURKS LOSE HEAVILY

Combined Fire of Fleet and Machine Guns of Armies Decimate Ranks.

PARIS, May 6.—News from Mytilene received by the Havas Agency, by way of Athens, says that Turkish prisoners who have arrived at Tenos admit that the Turkish army has suffered enormous losses from the combined fire of the guns of the fleet and the quick firers of the expeditionary forces.

The allies, according to reliable information, occupied a number of strategic positions on May 4 and the land forces continue to receive reinforcements daily.

Three Ridges Carried in Rush. Three ridges at Sari Bair were carried in one rush, according to statements of wounded British soldiers as given in a Cairo cable.

The Turks opened a terrific, concentrated fire at the beginning and the landing forces suffered severely from shrapnel, machine gun and rifle fire. The wounds of many of the British are, however, slight. "We lashed the Turks on the end of our bayonets and hurled them over our heads," said one British soldier.

Panic in Gallipoli. Panic reigns in the interior of Gallipoli peninsula and the inhabitants are showing fear of an overt move on the Asiatic shore, according to Athens cables.

The Turks, says a Sofia despatch, are showing fear of an overt move on the part of Bulgaria. Turkish troops, (Continued on Page 2, Column 7.)

Horrors of Struggle in Mists of Poison Belt Depicted by Eye-Witness—French Have Removed German Wedge by Advance of Thousand Yards.

LONDON, May 5.—The British official "eye-witness" in a long account of the engagement of the last few days in the Ypres region, records that the Germans have continued the use of asphyxiating gases, but with less success than on the first occasion. Despite the use of gas by the Germans, the narrative says, the French have made continual advances east of the Ypres Canal, south of Pilkem, the result of which was to remove the wedge occupied by the Germans in the French line between the canal and the Ypres-Langemarck road, a gain of over 1000 yards. During this advance a large number of German prisoners were taken.

Fumes Blown Back. While the French continued their advance in this section, it is asserted that the Germans attacked the British south of Neuve-Chapelle, and at Hill 60, in both cases using gas. In the latter attack, however, owing to a change in the wind, the fumes were blown back toward the Germans, who are believed to have suffered, as no attempt to advance was made by them. Similar tactics are said to have been adopted by the Germans in their attack north of Ypres last Sunday. "About five o'clock in the evening, the eye-witness says, a dense cloud of suffocating vapors was launched from their trenches along the whole front held by the French right, and by our left from the Ypres-Langemarck road."

CHINA WILL MAKE APPEAL TO POWERS

Japanese Ultimatum is Expected to Reach Peking Today.

CHINA HOLDING FIRM

Revolution Would Probably Follow Surrender to Mikado's Demands.

LONDON, May 6, 2:22 a.m.—The legation here has notified all Japanese to prepare to leave the capital within twelve hours, says The Daily Telegraph's Peking correspondent. "Telegrams are pouring in from every part of China foreshadowing hostilities. An ultimatum by Japan is expected by the latest on Thursday. I learn from the highest quarters that a Chinese surrender is out of the question, as the revolutionaries who honeycombed the country would rise immediately with an army, precipitating the fall of Yuan Shih Kai's government."

Appeal to Powers. "I am authorized to declare that the Chinese Government will make a direct appeal to Great Britain, Russia, France and the United States immediately an ultimatum is received." The Times' Tokyo correspondent telegraphing under date of Tuesday, says the cabinet has decided to send an ultimatum to China, but that before it is sent there will be a final cabinet council in the presence of the emperor.

The correspondent adds that the general feeling in Tokyo is that the emperor will submit at the last moment, in view of the hopelessness of her military condition.

Japan's Preparations

TOKIO, May 5.—The deliberations between the Japanese officials concerning the situation between Japan and China continue. The emperor will preside tomorrow at a cabinet council. No official announcement was forthcoming today concerning the situation. A big fleet of warships is taking on supplies at Saesoo, the Japanese in the Province of Shantung are concentrating at Tsintiao and those in Manchuria are preparing to take refuge in the railway zone.

Ypres Salient Still Scene of Tremendous Assaults by Enemy—Feeble German Attack Easily Repulsed—French Capture Trenches and Advance in Alsace.

Special Cable to The Toronto World.

LONDON, May 5.—Hill 60, on the British front in Belgium, was the scene of most intense fighting today thru the gaining of a footing there by the Germans thru the use of poisonous gases, facilitated by a favorable wind. The British detachments defending this position are putting up a stubborn fight, and a battle is still in full progress at this point. Poisonous gases were also employed in the neighborhood of Ginchy, where the Germans also exploded a mine. Four men were poisoned, but the enemy gained no other advantage from the operation.

The British War Office in addition to the foregoing also reported tonight that east of Ypres a feeble German attack, which was also preceded by the use of deadly gas, was defeated without much difficulty, and the enemy suffered severe losses from the fire of the British artillery.

French Take Trenches. The French War Office reports the capture of a line of trenches some time last night, and their troops were thus enabled to push their lines forward between Lizerne and Hetsas. No counter-attacks were made here by the Germans. The French armies are (Continued on Page 2, Column 1).

WORK IN FULL SWING ON BLOOR VIADUCT

One of the Longest Cableways on Record Used by Contractors

GOOD PROGRESS MADE
One Abutment Completed and the Others Under Construction.

Whatever may be said of the building conditions generally, the Don valley these days is the scene of the greatest activity. The 223 workmen employed on the big new Bloor street viaduct are on the jump from morning till night, and thousands of citizens have taken advantage of the opportunity to see a big modern construction plant in full operation.

That long cable-way, said Engineer Black to The World yesterday, is one of the longest straightway lines that I know of. It is 1260 feet in length and the load that you see swinging along it today weighs 2 1/2 tons, or without the buckets, 1 1/2 tons. The eastern end of the tower to which the big cable is attached is nearly 100 feet high, and the cables along which the run of the buckets of earth taken from the bowels of the earth 40 feet down, are eighty feet above the ground. The regularity and precision with which the big bucket is raised and lowered by machinery and sent spinning forward and backward to and from the dumping ground is little short of marvelous. The earth taken from the pier excavations on the east bank of the Don now is dumped over the westerly bank in the rear of Castle Frank, the residence of A. E. Kemp, M.P.

Excellent progress is being made with the main supports. Abutment A is finished, work is well advanced on C and on B and F work will begin the latter part of this week. Time and labor-saving machinery plays an important part in this contract, and to see the big cranes pick up and elevate to the top of the concrete mixer 50 feet high, from 30 to 40 bags of cement, each weighing 100 pounds, gives some idea of the class of machinery in use on the Bloor street viaduct.

Huge Excavation. Immediately under the east bank of the Don and directly west of the Broadway-Danforth corner, less than 80 rods away, but hidden from view at that point, a big steel shovel has been gnawing away at the bank for the last six weeks, and will be there for some time to come. An overhead runway for the passage of the little dump cars has been built to overcome the difficulty of getting over the C. F. R., which skirts the river bank here, and by an ingenious contrivance of hauling and dumping the dirt is spread over the valley on C. N. R. lands, displacing of the earth and making level at the same time.

STOUFFVILLE FARMER SERIOUSLY INJURED

William St. John Thrown Under Wagon Wheels When Horses Bolted.

While William St. John, a farmer living about a mile out of Stouffville, was driving into town yesterday with a load of hogs, the team from some cause became frightened and tried to run away. In an effort to stop them, Mr. St. John was thrown under the wheels of the wagon, sustaining serious injuries. His right leg was broken, his shoulder severely bruised and wrenched and face cut. The driver was unconscious for over 12 hours after the accident, and yesterday was in a measure recovering. Doctors Sangster, Dabbs and Freck held a consultation. There was considerable improvement in the evening, however, and the doctors are confident that Mr. St. John will recover.

The Stouffville Bowling Club have elected a strong board of officers, and are this season planning for one of the best "greened" in the county. Mr. D. Glendinning, an employe in the local furniture factory was badly injured yesterday by falling from the top storey of the building under the name of the club. Nobody saw the accident and it is not known just how Mr. Glendinning lost his balance. The injured man was at 82 Lansdowne avenue, and medical aid summoned. His condition is regarded as very serious.

NORWAY RATEPAYERS TO MEET THIS EVENING

Intend to Take Action Towards Having the Morley Avenue Nuisance Quelled.

Some action regarding the odor from the Morley Avenue sewage disposal works will be taken tonight at the meeting of the East End Ratepayers' Association, to be held at the parish house, Norway. The residents in the neighborhood claim that the smell is worse this year than last, and are determined to have it completely eliminated in the immediate future. W. R. Bullock, president of the association, said to The World last night: "Promises have been made during the past two years, yet the trouble is with us yet. West Toronto has been unbearably burdened from their various smells and annoyances and there is no reason why East Toronto should suffer."

ETOBICOKE TOWNSHIP

Following the presentation of a petition asking for the division of School Section No. 12 to the Etobicoke Township Council, those opposed to the change are circulating a counter petition, and a special meeting of the council will be held today to discuss the matter. About seventy pupils attend the two schools, one of which is north of the G.T.R. tracks and the other is held in the new Baptist Church on the Lake Shore road. The exponents of separation propose that the section be divided by the railway tracks. The opponents contend that there is dissension between the school trustees, that separation would entail unfair taxation, and that two schools can be better and more economically conducted by one board.

NEWMARKET

North York Conservatives will hold their nominating convention in Newmarket within ten days. This was decided upon at a meeting of the executive a day or two ago, but the exact name has not yet been set. No other name than that of the present member, J. A. M. Armstrong, M.P., is suggested.

WYCHWOOD

The annual meeting of the Hillcrest Conservative Association will be held in Alcina Hall, Alcina avenue, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, when election of officers will take place and other business transacted. All Conservatives are invited to attend.

Kidney Disease Cured Sworn Statement

Of Mr. Wesley Maxwell, Who Gratefully Gives All Credit to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It is one thing to make big claims for a medicine and quite another thing to produce irrefutable evidence that it actually cures in serious cases. We prefer to let the cured ones speak for themselves, and that is why you find in almost every newspaper the report of someone who has been cured by the use of Dr. Chase's medicine. Today we present the sworn statement of Mr. Wesley Maxwell. When a man goes to this trouble in expressing his gratitude there can be no question of the benefit he has received. Mr. Wesley Maxwell, Orangeville, Ont., writes: "I have been using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I must tell you that before I started using them I could only make water with the greatest difficulty, and had very severe pains in the back. I am completely cured now by the use of these pills. Before that I used a lot of doctors' medicine without any benefit that I could see, I am thankful for being cured, and can recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills very highly."

Childish Courtesy

If you expect your grown children to be mannerly and courteous, you must expect such conduct from your babies. As soon as a child enters the world its education begins.

Children should be taught to greet their playmates quietly and politely. There is no need that children should behave at table in a slovenly, greedy or selfish manner.

The child who shrieks and screams, who argues and contradicts is an evidence of the home atmosphere. Children are like little mirrors; they reflect all that surrounds them.

Care Is Necessary to Keep Eyes Clear and Beautiful

By LUCREZIA BORI,
Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

ALL of us want big, clear, beautiful, sparkling eyes—the kind that the heroines of all the novels seem to possess. It is beyond your power to change the size of your eyes—though I have read that it is possible if you subject yourself to a surgical operation—but you can always improve their clearness, brilliancy and expression.

Even if your eyes are dull, expressionless and faded in color, you can—efficiently, care and patience—restore them to their normal condition.

You cannot, however, depend upon a jar of ointment or a bottle of lotion to accomplish this transformation. You must get right down to the bedrock of health and then, afterward, treat the surface.

An eye to be beautiful must have a clear white setting for the iris, and if your liver is not working properly, it will be tinged with yellow. The minute you notice this symptom seek the advice of a physician and obtain a remedy for the condition that causes it.

A Helpful Exercise.

Here is an exercise that will help this organ to regain its activity:

Stand with your heels together, stiffen your knees and place your hands on your hips. Now, without bending the knees, bend forward at the waist until the trunk is at right angles with the rest of the body. Under the waist in a circle, move the torso in a circle. When half the circle has been described you will be bending backward at the waist, and when the circle is completed you will have resumed your original position.

Continue this exercise for five or more minutes—and try to increase the length of time each day. If possible, exercise both morning and evening.

At this season of winds and strong sun, the lids and eyeballs are usually sensitive and reddened when exposed to the glare. If this irritation is allowed to become aggravated it will affect the health of the eye as well as its appearance. A very simple remedy will be of help in this case.

Buy a bottle of solution of boric acid and a medicine dropper and wash the eyes each night and morning with the lotion. It is a good idea to use this treatment every time the eyes have been exposed to the wind and sun.

Two Eye Aids.

If the lids are inclined to redden and flake, apply an ointment made of the following ingredients:

Petroleum..... 1/4 dram
White wax..... 1 dram
Oxide of zinc..... 1 1/2 grains
Yellow oxide of mercury 1 grain
Oil of lavender..... 8 drops

To mix this ointment properly, place the petroleum and wax into a china or glass cup, and set it in a basin of hot water. The oxide of zinc and zinc are then placed in another cup and are blended by stirring with a bone or glass spoon—metal must not touch them. The first two ingredients are then poured over the second, stirring constantly, and just before the cream congeals the oil of lavender is added.

A little vaseline applied to the lids every night is also an excellent remedy for redness of the eyes.

It is no doubt unnecessary for me to repeat what you should all know so well—never read with your own shadow falling on your book, while in motion on a train or while rocking in a chair. Have the light so that it falls over the left shoulder; stop reading when the eyes burn or feel tired, and if your forehead becomes wrinkled when you read, consult an oculist—you probably need glasses.

It may hurt your vanity to wear glasses, but surely no one considers red or weak eyes pretty to look at. Let's it far better to wear them for awhile—thus taking the "stitch in time."

Camphor eye-wash will increase the brilliancy of the eyes and will allay any inflammation which happens to be there. It is a mixture of:

Camphor water..... 3 ounces
Powdered borax..... 9 grains

It is safest to filter this through a piece of coarse, brown paper, so that not the tiniest grain of the powder will remain to irritate the eyes. Drop this lotion into the eyes night and morning.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Training, the Magic Lever That Changes All Habits

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins)

HABIT is the adaptation of living endeavors to use. It is the elasticity of vital stuff as exemplified in Mahomet's going to the mountain, when the mountain did not budge for the prophet. Since sticks and stones and dead men's bones will not bend by themselves, you must bend them to your will—or walk around them.

Sensation bows before the will, the will knuckles to judgment and intellect, and all are auxiliary to a higher force. Habit alone bows to sensation, but it also approximates to itself all things above sensation.

Habit is perfect practice. Repeated trials may be full of failure, but ultimately they are successful habits. Montaigne showed that habits are second nature, but they are also first nature because instincts are efficiently inherited, ready-made habits.

"Ease leads to habits, triumph to ease: So lives he by rule who lives himself to please."

Neither in the investigation of human habits nor in that of animal and plant habits has there ever before been any experimental attempts to test the effect of previous habits upon new ones. Prof. John B. Watson of Johns Hopkins University and his students have made the beginning of such researches.

Habit and Tricks.

Prof. Yerkes of Harvard found that the previously formed habits of the dancing mouse interfered seriously with its power to learn new habits. The popular platitudes, "You cannot teach an old dog new tricks" and "A new broom sweeps clean, but the old one knows where the dirt lies," are thus confirmed by modern science.

In a labyrinth or crystal maze, familiar to those who go to Coney Island and similar resorts, the mouse not previously trained does not make its first correct trip until about the 25th trial. Those previously trained, however, quickly find the correct byways and exit every time after six or seven attempts. This proves that men will learn how to run a new invention more quickly if they have hitherto worked on an analogous one.

Experiments with trained and untrained pigeons, in a given maze, along with pigeons which had been previously trained in another task, show that the untrained animals learned as quickly as those trained in two other tasks. Moreover, the errors are greater for those with habits previously formed than for those without such habits.

Disadvantages of Habits.

Another truth thus established is that trained animals avoid useless excesses and wasted efforts, while untrained ones do not. In other words the more that is learned the less exertion with which new things are learned. It is evident also that habits once acquired interfere with the formation of new habits. For instance, squirrels trained to open one sort of a cage are at a disadvantage as compared with untrained animals when coaxed to try and learn to open a new box.

Possibly these experiments may clear up the experience met with not long ago when a group of the world's greatest biblical scholars gathered to edit a new translation of the Bible. One newspaper editor, who admitted that he had never made a careful study of the Bible, was the only non-authoritative member of the scholarly group. It turned out that his work surpassed in efficiency, wisdom, knowledge and skill that of all the others.

Advice to Girls

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a married woman and unhappily married. Just lately another man has entered my life. As I have always feared, he has told me he loved me, and I certainly do love him, but would not let him take it for granted. He is a nice man, and says he would not cause trouble between my husband and me for anything. He is a middle-aged man, and has showed he cared for me for over a year, but has been very careful. I would rather be in his company than my husband's, although my husband is a good man and has no bad habits, has plenty of money, and furnishes me a good home, but he is strictly a business man. His whole pleasure in life is to get money to enjoy life with. I respect my husband, but I don't love him, and am afraid never did, but I can hardly do my work for thinking of this other man. Is it wrong for me to accept little attentions from the man of my heart as long as I don't care for my husband?

A SAD HEART.

YOU are playing with fire. You alone can save yourself from disaster. Drop the love affair you have entered upon. Interest yourself in your home and your surroundings. Help some one who needs help, and try to return your husband's kindness. Keep your own self-respect, no matter how much you suffer at first, and you will come out all right.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am employed in a railway office, and am very helpful. I see a girl every day, but am too bashful to speak to her. I am sure she is my ideal, for she suits my type about as much as she can. Please advise me.

L. R. L.

YOU seem to know some one who is acquainted with the girl you so much admire. Why not ask for an introduction and make the girl's acquaintance?

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

There are several of us young folks that always go together, and among us a young man who is always the soul of the crowd. We like to have him with us because we know that we will have a good time and lots of fun.

But, oh, he is such a liar we cannot depend on him for a thing, and, being stung as we are, there is none of us that feels at liberty to talk to him.

He is a great reader, and always reads your articles, Annie Laurie, and we thought that if you would write on the liar that perhaps he would read it (in fact we would see that he did), and it would set him to thinking and open his eyes to his one great fault. Please help us out.

S. O. S.

THE man or woman who habitually loses all consideration from even friends. No one can tolerate the presence of one who deals in untruths. Your letter shows how the bad practice of lying affects the society in which the foolish offender lives.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest and will reply to them in these pages. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

NOVELS IN A NUT-SHELL

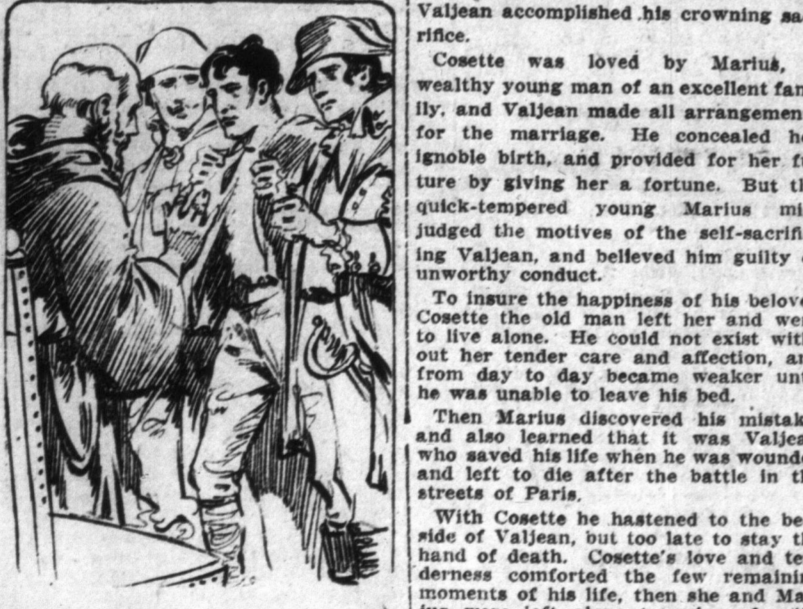

Victor Hugo's "LES MISERABLES" Condensed by AUGUSTA SHELBY

JEAN VALJEAN was a poor, hard-working, French peasant, and because he stole a loaf of bread for his starving children he was condemned to serve five years in the galleys.

He attempted to escape, but was recaptured, and his term of punishment was lengthened to 19 years.

Jean Valjean was of a naturally sympathetic, lovable nature, but the privation and cruelty of the life in the galleys changed him into a brutal, sullen and inert being.

Finally his term of service ended. He was released from the galleys, and was compelled to beg from door to door. His forbidding countenance and ragged clothing made all fear him until he came to the home of the good Bishop of D...

The Bishop Gives Jean Valjean the Candlesticks.

Here he received food and shelter, and the aged bishop, a saint, who shaped his life in literal obedience to the divine command, spoke words of encouragement and sincere affection to the unappreciative Valjean.

For the first time in many years Jean Valjean went to sleep in a bed. But, unaccustomed to such a luxury, he awakened in the middle of the night, and rewarded the bishop's kindness by stealing his silver candlesticks.

He was unable to escape, however, and was brought back to the bishop by the police. The God-like man then saved the culprit by declaring that the silver had been a free gift from him to Valjean.

This marked the turning point in the life of Jean Valjean. Touched to the heart, henceforth he believed in goodness and made it his only law.

His future life was a series of self-sacrifices and kindnesses to others. This resulted in a moral growth which made him the strongest of characters.

In time he became a wealthy manufacturer and a noted philanthropist, enjoying the respect and love of his townsmen, who finally chose him mayor.

Among Jean Valjean's many charitable deeds he befriended Fantine, a grisette, who was abandoned by her lover and forced into a life of degradation to support her child, Cosette.

The peace of Valjean's life was then interrupted by Javert, a relentless detective, who recognized the ex-convict, and arrested him. At this time Fantine died, and Valjean fled to evade Javert. But wherever he wandered Javert discovered his hiding place, and he was always forced to go on.

In the end, Jean Valjean surrendered himself to save another man who was mistaken for him, and was returned to the galleys.

He managed to escape for the second time, and found Cosette living at an inn with the cruel, sordid Thénardiers, with whom her mother had entrusted her.

He adopted the child, and she grew to be a beautiful, loving girl, the comfort and joy of his life. For her sake Valjean accomplished his crowning sacrifice.

Cosette was loved by Marius, a wealthy young man of an excellent family, and Valjean made all arrangements for the marriage. He concealed her ignoble birth, and provided for her future by giving her a fortune. But the quick-tempered young Marius misjudged the motives of the self-sacrificing Valjean, and believed him guilty of unworthy conduct.

To insure the happiness of his beloved Cosette the old man left her and went to live alone. He could not exist without her tender care and affection, and from day to day became weaker until he was unable to leave his bed.

Then Marius discovered his mistake, and also learned that it was Valjean who saved his life when he was wounded and left to die after the battle in the streets of Paris.

With Cosette he hastened to the bedside of Valjean, but too late to stay the hand of death. Cosette's love and tenderness comforted the few remaining moments of his life, then she and Marius were left alone to grieve for the noble man who had given his all that they might be happy.

Nine Household "Just as Goods" for the Saving

By ANNE MARIE LLOYD

THERE are many preparations and articles which housewives buy, for which home-made substitutes are just as good, and cheaper. Here is a list of "substitutes," each representing an economy:

For two eggs substitute a dessert-spoonful of vinegar in a gill of milk when cake making.

Finely chopped suet is an economical substitute for butter in pastry.

An economical substitute for furniture polish is made out of a tablespoonful of methylated spirit, sweet oil and vinegar mixed.

Fine sifted ashes make an efficient substitute for emery paper or polish when steel fire-irons, etc., have to be cleaned.

Five cents worth of permanganate of potash crystals dissolved in warm water make a good substitute for expensive floor stain.

A thick paste of flour and milk is a cheap substitute for an egg when cooking fish.

An economical and efficient deodorizer in a sick room can be made out of a pint of vinegar-bolled with one ounce of myrrh.

A cheap and quite as good baking powder substitute can be made by mixing thoroughly four ounces of finely ground rice, four ounces of carbonate of soda, and three ounces of tartaric acid. Put through a wire sieve twice, and then in airtight tins for use.

An excellent substitute for a paint cleaner is to save tea leaves for a few days, put them in a pail with a pint of hot water, strain, and use the "tea" for paint cleansing.

For knife powder substitute coffee grounds, dried, with a pinch of carbonate of soda.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the novel, "Diary of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

Facing the Discovery.

I DON'T suppose in your present frame of mind, you can realize what an absurdity it is for me to stand here arguing in this ridiculous way when my desk is simply laden with work and screaming for attention."

LEONA DALRYMPLE. "If your desk is more important than your wife—go back to it."

"How do you do?" I said slyly. "We're off the track again."

"Don't be so coarse and flippant," said Mary. "That's a man's way when you corner him with something he absolutely cannot refute, he either grows insulting or coarse or flippant and he sneers—and—"

"Boosh!" I said. "If you can tell me what else I'm expected to say to you about Joan's letter, I'll say it. Then I can return to business and you can get your dishes done."

Mary Accuses Peter.

"You mean I've been neglecting my work?"

"I mean you've been brooding in a very foolish way all morning."

"I had reason to brood."

"I can't see it."

"Naturally not."

"You might explain—"

"It's simply this," said Mary with a shower of tears. "I could tell by that letter that things had gone a great deal further with Joan than I thought. If you loved her—why didn't you divorce me and marry her?"

"Oh, Mary, Mary," I sighed, "didn't we thrash all that out ages ago? Didn't we decide that I had been less committed to any real feeling for Joan than you had for Hugh Jaynes? Didn't we?"

"But Hugh Jaynes isn't writing letters to me."

I felt that we had traversed the circle once more and that I was facing a stone wall. Wherefore I said absolutely nothing. The silence must have gotten upon Mary's nerves, for after an interval that seemed longer than it really was, she spoke.

"When did you get the letter?"

I told her rather coldly.

Was It Imagination.

The expected happened. Mary's memory is good. She pieced two of them together and made four of them instantly.

"Peter!"

"Yes?"

"You said that letter was a business letter—said a most important one."

There, nudging me to the tree of guilt, was the lie that had honestly been bothering me a lot. Could I ever hope to explain to Mary what had lain behind it?

"Yes," I said honestly, biting my lips. "I did say that I'm sorry."

"If you lied then, how am I to know that you haven't been lying to me all the time? This isn't the first letter you've been answering them, too—and—oh, Peter!"

I thought rather hard for several seconds.

"Mary," I said, "I'd like you to make a heroic effort to understand, if you can. That night when you caught me reading Joan's letter—"

"I remember now you had a very guilty look on your face."

"You remember nothing of the sort," said I, indignantly. "Your imagination's at work."

"Oh," said Mary, and hung herself face downward on the bed.

Diary of a Well-Dressed Girl

By SYLVIA GERARD

Making Over an Old Frock for Afternoon Wear.

FOR the next two weeks I'll be trotting to the dressmaker's, and Mrs. Mathon will be remodeling my frocks here at the house.

Easter is treading close on our heels, and with all the weddings "coming off" in a heap, I'll need a pretty extensive outfit.

Fortunately, the materials of my last season's dresses will serve as the foundations for my new ones, and with the addition of a few yards of chiffon, net, taffeta or lace they can be transformed into something smart and attractive.

Mrs. Mathon suggested that I make over my sand-colored crepe de chine for a practical afternoon frock which can be worn on the street or to a dance.

I managed to match the crepe in chiffon and also bought two more yards of the silk, from which to cut bands for trimming.

The frock is to have a foundation with a tightly fitted bodice and a skirt as full as the material will permit.

The over-bodice of chiffon will be perfectly plain with the exception of a few gathers above the waist line.

A bib-like section of the crepe de chine, piped about the edges with narrow folds of the silk, will relieve the severe plainness of the bodice. This will extend up to meet a high, snugly fitted collar of the crepe finished with a frill of chiffon.

Attached to the collar at the back there will be a cape of the crepe de chine which falls rather full below the waist. The sides are to be stitched to the skirt over the hips.

This cape-back is a close rival to the panel and plastron backs, which are the feature of many of the smartest spring frocks. I shall imagine myself Sir Walter Raleigh.

I want long bishop sleeves of chiffon, having cuffs formed of a double frill of the same material with a picot edge. I tied through the centre with narrow bands of the crepe de chine. I am rather tired of the dropped shoulders—I have them in so many of my frocks—and will insist that these sleeves be set-in at the normal armholes.

Smart Frock of Sand-Colored Chiffon and Crepe de Chine.

thin crinoline; dance frocks have thick cords covered with silk or satin about the extreme edge of the hem, and in many instances a thin, flexible wire is used.

I'm wondering if this is the forerunner of the hoop skirts? Do you suppose by next season we'll be wearing them?

The Good-Night Story

THE MAGIC TABLECLOTH By Vernon Merry

A LONG time ago there lived an old woman who had an only son. The lad was very good to his mother and did everything he could to help her.

One day she sent him out to the storehouse to get a bowl full of flour, so that she could bake bread.

Just as the boy was about to enter the house with the flour the Northwind came along and blew it away.

Then the boy went back for another bowl of flour, and again the same thing happened. When the wind had robbed him a third time he became angry and decided to go to the Northwind and demand the flour of which he had been robbed.

He traveled a long, long time, for the dwelling of the Northwind was far, far away.

At last he reached the Northwind's house and went in. The Northwind greeted him and asked what he wanted.

"I would like you to return the flour you took from me. We have very little left, and when it is all gone we must starve."

"Now that's too bad," said the Northwind. "I have used all the flour, but I will give you a tablecloth which will provide you with all the meals you need. All you have to say is 'Cloth, spread yourself with my favorite dishes!'"

The boy felt hungry after his long journey so he said: "Cloth, spread yourself with my favorite dishes," and instantly the cloth was covered with meats, vegetables and desserts.

The boy ate until he was no longer hungry, and then folded the cloth and started home.

The widow was overjoyed to see her son again, and when he gave her the gift of the Northwind she wept tears of joy, for she knew that they would never be hungry as long as they lived.

Shirkers

Colonel Currie of the 48th writes from the trenches asking that the path of duty be pointed out to the shirkers at home. It should not be necessary, and we believe it is not so necessary, here in Canada, as in some other parts of the empire nearer London.

This is what lies behind the feeling that some form of conscription must be put in force in England before the war is over. Hundreds of thousands of young men from 19 to 25 years of age, with no apparent ties or responsibilities to keep them at home, go about the big centres of the old country enjoying themselves, crowding the theatres and music halls, filling the restaurants, thronging the seaside resorts, and either oblivious to the great events that are coming to pass within a few hundreds of miles of them, or careless of the place they occupy in the national economy.

There is a true instinct behind the practice which many young women have adopted of sending a white feather to the shirkers. But the greatest discrimination should be exercised in such cases, to make sure that no one accused of shirking justly deserves the reproach. There are many who would go who are prevented by some disability not evident to the casual observer. This is a war in which only the fittest and the best, the hardy and strong, they who can endure fatigue and exhibit the greatest amount of recuperative power, are of any use.

Of these there is no complaint. Often they display the greatest spirit, and the keenest anxiety to take their share of the burden. They are a reproach to the able-bodied and healthy, who have nothing to do but enjoy life, and who owe it to their country and to themselves to take their share of maintaining the liberties to which their fathers gave their lives and labors without stint.

Hearsay Evidence

A man named Salt, a material witness in the investigation now going on at Winnipeg into the case of the parliament building, left some time ago for the United States, where he intends to remain until the commission has finished its work. Chief Justice Mathers of the commission has, therefore, allowed Salt's brother to testify to statements made by the missing man reflecting upon the provincial architect, although not made in the hearing of the latter. Such testimony, of course, would be merely hearsay evidence and inadmissible in a court of law.

There is no doubt that the testimony thus admitted would influence the judgment of any ordinary seeker after the truth, yet from a strictly legal standpoint it is altogether incompetent. Are the rules of evidence, as administered by our courts, contrary to common sense? It is reasonable that Chief Justice Mathers should be forbidden to hear or consider testimony in court which he deems well worthy of consideration, as the chairman of a commission, and the judges...

JACK CANUCK ROBS THE EAGLE'S NEST

prevented by the law from getting at the truth? Generally speaking every tribunal should get first-hand evidence, but where a witness has been spirited away should not his declarations be competent?

The ruling at Winnipeg may, however, carry connotation into many quarters if it is generally followed by royal commissions in Canada.

"Willie! Willie!"

When the Gulfstream, a United States steamer, was speeding thru the English Channel, she flew Old Glory at her mast-head. Whereupon a German submarine came up and torpedoed her. Captain Alfred Gunter died of heart disease. It is enough to make any good American die of heart disease to see Old Glory treated in this summary fashion. But the rest of the world is wondering whether the other good Americans will do anything else besides dying of heart disease. President Wilson has already threatened to hold the Kaiser to the strictest account if he did anything exceptionally naughty.

He reminds one of the lady with the incorrigible boy, who consulted a friend as to what steps should be taken to bring the young limb to order. The friend asked if she had scolded him, and she replied that she had. What had she said to him? was asked. She replied that she had said "Willie," "Willie," very severely. The president has been saying "Willie, Willie," very severely, but Willie is still incorrigible. In fact he seems rather to grow worse. Mr. Wilson ought to go into the presidential garden and cut a switch.

For Our Soldiers in France

Among the many schemes that have been proposed for the benefit and comfort of Canadian soldiers at the front none holds more promise of securing these ends than that just inaugurated by Mrs. William Douglas of London, England, who is herself Canadian-born. Mrs. Douglas, who has lived many years in France, has secured a very suitable house in Dieppe, the French seaport on the channel, for the purpose of receiving and caring for convalescent soldiers on their discharge from the hospitals and of entertaining other soldiers on short furlough. The idea is to provide home-like surroundings where they can recuperate and return to active service cheered and strengthened for their arduous duties.

The establishment will contain a refreshment canteen and reading and recreation rooms, stocked with papers, magazines, games, writing materials, musical instruments and other means of enjoyment. For the refreshments and the use of the home and these rooms minimum charges will be made. This scheme also includes the gratuitous distribution of refreshments and comforts to the wounded passing thru the neighboring railway stations, and, if permitted, the visitation of the sick and wounded in the nearest hospitals. Many ladies have already volunteered for service and are paying their own expenses. Mrs. Douglas, who recently visited Toronto, had her project...

British Minister Sends Prisoner to Face Extradition at Panama.

Proud of Canada's Exhibit and of Her Famous Train.

"It was a pleasure to be able to say 'I am a Canadian' and to know that our Dominion's exhibit was the best within the grounds."

Mr. J. W. Erish, a well-known insurance man, who makes his home at Lacolle, Que., thus expresses himself on his return from the Panama Pacific International Exposition.

Mr. Erish, who was in New York, and from there to South America, by appealing to British representatives in different quarters he was apprehended in company with a woman at Guayaquil, and is now on his way to Panama to be extradited. A provincial officer will leave shortly to bring him back for trial.

Ott left the city quite suddenly, presumably on a honeymoon tour, and when the company received returned cheques from the Union Bank they were discovered to be forgeries. Seven cheques cashed in on April 17, totaling $5000, and all had been cashed by Ott.

The Pinkertons learned that he had assumed the name of Schomberg in New York and had bought tickets for Colon, Balboa and Chile. The attorney-general cabled the British minister in Panama, asking the arrest of Ott, and the minister had had sailed for Valparaiso on S.S. Llanes calling at Guayaquil, Ecuador. The British minister at Quito was notified, and shortly afterwards word of the arrest came thru.

Extradition papers had been prepared and forwarded to the under-secretary of state at Ottawa, and these are now on the way to Panama.

Remains of Gallant Officer Who Died of Wounds, Arrived Yesterday.

MILITARY FUNERAL

Burial Takes Place at Mount Pleasant Cemetery With Full Honors.

The remains of Captain Darling of the 48th Highlanders, who died of wounds in a London hospital on April 19, reached Toronto yesterday and will be interred this afternoon in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The gallant Toronto officer, who was wounded in the trenches on March 23 when fighting with his regiment, will be buried with full military honors.

Today's Funeral. Following a private service at the house, the body of Captain Darling will be taken to St. James' Square Presbyterian Church, arriving there at 2.30. The service, which will be very brief, will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Robertson, assisted by Rev. Dr. Strachan. The cortege will move off at 3 o'clock. An escort of 100 men will precede the carriage conveying the remains of the dead officer. Following the gun carriage will be Captain Darling's charger, two carriages for the relatives, chief mourners, including the lieutenant-governor of Ontario, and the officers of the 48th Highlanders, followed by the rank and file of different corps. The procession will move along Gerrard to Yonge street and then north to the cemetery. After the burial service, the escort will fire three volleys, the buglers will sound "The Last Post" and the pipers will then play "Lachar No More."

Prior to the removal of the remains to the church a private service will be held at 2 Dale avenue. The pallbearers will be Captains Chisholm, Wright and Allan and Lieutenants Greig, Case and Greig.

MINISTER WIELDS VETO VERY FREELY

Hon. W. J. Hanna Scores Six Licenses Off Year's List.

MORE TO FOLLOW

First of Several Cases Heard Yesterday by New Commission.

Hon. W. J. Hanna freely exercised his veto power on licenses granted in the province immediately prior to the assumption of office by the new commission. Six taverns in different parts of the province have been lopped from the list and more may follow. It is understood that there are many yet standing, against which serious protests have been filed, and these are now under consideration. In the case of those where privileges have been cancelled three are new and the others are notorious or strongly advised against.

The list of those vetoed reads as follows: T. E. Reilly, Richmond, Carleton County (new); Payne, in North Essex, source of the "feather party" scandal, where a gay party caused public indignation; W. C. Neundorf of Essex, cancelled because of repeated convictions; W. E. Wyatt of Todmorden (new); Rawn of Atikokan, Rainy River, a notorious summer hotel; James Palanovic of Cochrane (new).

First Public Session. The commissioners took the oath of office yesterday at the hands of Mr. Hanna and after an all-day conference held their first public session at 4 o'clock. The members present were J. D. Flavelle, W. S. Dingman, John A. Aycarr and George T. Simin, and Eudo Saunders was officially appointed solicitor and secretary to the board. The minister briefly addressed the new members, outlining their responsibilities and explaining the act.

Already business is beginning to pile up for disposal. James Haverson, K.C., spoke at length as the first counsel to appear, and urged renewal of license to the Canada Railway News Company at Cobourg. He claimed that the local commissioners had removed this for the year without any apparent reason and had presumably granted it to a newcomer. He referred to the law-obscuring history of the company, and maintained that their license had never caused complaint in the past.

Chairman Flavelle stated that the decision would be given before long, and that several other matters would be dealt with in the same connection. Mr. Dingman observed humorously that the board was already in receipt of a letter from a railway company protesting against the granting of licenses to news companies.

The board will hold regular sessions for several days. Proud of Canada's Exhibit and of Her Famous Train. "It was a pleasure to be able to say 'I am a Canadian' and to know that our Dominion's exhibit was the best within the grounds."

Mr. J. W. Erish, a well-known insurance man, who makes his home at Lacolle, Que., thus expresses himself on his return from the Panama Pacific International Exposition. Mr. Erish, who was in New York, and from there to South America, by appealing to British representatives in different quarters he was apprehended in company with a woman at Guayaquil, and is now on his way to Panama to be extradited.

Fortune Teller Fined. Sentence was passed by Judge Coatsworth yesterday in the case of Georgina Chilton, Queen of the Royal Gipsies, who was convicted of fortune telling on November 26, 1914. After reading a long judgment, based on the evidence of Miss Levitt, the policeman, who as Miss Smith, paid $1 for the information that she would marry a man whose initials were S.H., within the year his honor fined the woman $25 or one month in jail.

PLAN ULTIMATUM ON WAR OF PIRACY

Washington Officials Would Adopt Strong Course Against Germany.

WILL CITE OFFENCES Practices of Submarines on High Seas Against Neutrals Must Stop.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 5.—There is every reason to believe that the United States will present to the German Government its views and intentions regarding the general naval policy of Germany as affecting neutral American rights and interests, groupings in these representations the offenses already committed by German submarines and seaplanes, and seeking to end the menace to American rights involved in the practice. This course will be followed if present action, rather than the procedure generally prophesied of presenting more bills for damages and a demand for an expression of regret, uncoupled with any assurance of a betterment of conditions. The negotiations in this event will be broader, more fraught with danger, perhaps, but containing a real and substantial effort to secure to American citizens these undeniable rights of which the note of Feb. 4 spoke so impressively. The situation will be approached, then, not as one consisting merely of three separate, unfortunate and more or less accidental happenings, which can be settled and leave the air clear, but as an international complication born of a disregard for or a misunderstanding of American rights. It must be admitted that this forecast of the action to be taken by the United States as a result of the German violations of American rights is made without any decision having been reached by President Wilson.

Curling Reminiscence

A copy of a February number of The Brampton Conservator of 1883, displayed here for inspection yesterday, has a half-column story of a nip-and-tuck game of curling between opposing types of that town, Banner v. Conservator and Times, these being the papers then doing business. The combination skipped by Dave Blair won by 14 to 11, and who do you think piloted the opposing side? Bert Nichols. That was 32 years ago, and on any winter's day at the Granite Club he is still a black-headed boy leading for one of the Rennie's. Can you beat it? His other players were A. P. Dick, C. Maguire and J. Bunting, and for Blair, W. W. Tye, Sam Charters and Joe. Moore.

Trotting Horsemen Were Reinstated

NEW YORK, May 5.—At a meeting of the board of review of the National Trotting Association here today, S. A. Proctor of Toronto and H. H. James of Hamilton, Ont., were reinstated, after it was shown that their failure to pay their entrance fees at Detroit and Columbus was because of war orders issued by the Canadian Government regarding horses. The board had before it more than forty cases, which it took up for consideration out all tangles before the opening of the season. Vance Nuckols of Cleveland, a widely-known driver of trotting horses, was fined $100. The fine was the outcome of an investigation of trouble at a race meet in Rockport, O., last year, when Nuckols refused to permit the judges to substitute a driver for his horse Andral. At the time, he was suspended, reinstated and suspended again the same day. Upon payment of the fine assessed today, Nuckols was reinstated. E. Emory of Wisconsin, Maine, and J. Fortner of Dryden, N.Y., were expelled on charges of driving a horse under other than its registered name. Perley L. Smith, Portland, Maine, was expelled, and W. A. Nelson and Jerry Smith were suspended on charges of racing a horse under other than its registered name in Massachusetts. Walter Jenkins, Findlay, O., expelled.

TERRIBLE STRAIN WAITING TO FIGHT CATTLE RECEIPTS WERE VERY LIGHT

Toronto Man Says No One Can Imagine What It Is Like.

Many of His Old Friends Have Lost Their Lives.

William Dutton of the Robert Simpson Company, Toronto, has received the following letter from Oliver Beaumont Taylor of the British Expeditionary Force, now in Belgium:

"My Dear Dutton, I received your most welcome and very interesting letter on the 12th, as I came out of the trenches for a rest and a clean-up. It pleased me to know that you were all well and quite busy in the store (Simpson's). With regard to the Toronto World, I have not received it yet, but I must say that I appreciate your thoughtfulness. It is very kind of you and I can assure you that I shall welcome the Toronto World with a full heart when it comes.

"I see by your letter that you have been following up my regiment through our fighting and hardships. No one can imagine better than the one that has been thru it what it is like. The eye strains, the nerve strains, the nervous of the night are terrible to endure; sometimes, imagine, worse than being in close conflict with the enemy. I don't wish to dwell on this subject, as I can presume that you can analyze the accounts I send you to your own understanding. One thing that I may say is that I wish it was all over, and I was back to beloved Toronto and had resumed my job. I am just yearning for a sight of the old faces again.

"Just quite recently I came across my old regiment and saw just as few of my old comrades left. Many of my old regiment re-enlisted for the war, but have paid the grim toll of war. One comrade, a sergeant who wanted three days to complete his 21 years for his life pension had to come out at the beginning of the war, and in the first fight that he entered he was killed. It was hard luck, considering the time that he had served to attain his life pension. Then I had a cousin who was a regimental sergeant-major killed at the battle of the Aisne. He had 20 years' service, a wife and three children. Another old school comrade, who enlisted when a boy and had 22 years' service, was killed carrying a despatch. According to the accounts I read in the papers of his death, he was wounded in the head and in the back, he managed to crawl to his destination and deliver his despatch. He died almost immediately after the receipt of his duty in the arms of the officer receiving the despatch.

"Well, I think that I shall close now, as I have to get ready for duty, but hoping that this will reach you safely and find you in the best of health. Give my best regards and best wishes to M. and all the men. Ever yours sincerely,

"O. B. Taylor."

APPEALED AGAINST REDUCTION OF COSTS

Mr. Justice Middleton Reserved Judgment in Action of D. S. McMillan—Today's List.

At Osceola Hall yesterday Mr. Justice Middleton was engaged in hearing the appeal of D. S. McMillan, a solicitor of Saratoga, in an action against the taxing officer, in the action bill of costs presented to Rev. Father P. J. Gnam for services in the priest's action against Bishop Fallon and Archbishop McNeill. Rev. Gnam sought to recover against the bishops for their action in denying him the right to exercise the duties of a Roman Catholic priest. The action was dismissed with an appeal to the appellate court. Mr. McMillan presented a bill of $1434.91 in the action against Bishop Fallon and one of $1134.97 against Archbishop McNeill. The taxing officer refused to allow the bill, and the appellant sought to have the bill reduced. The appellant's counsel, Mr. J. H. Gnam, had already made his client $460.99. After hearing the argument his lordship reserved judgment. The first appellate court list for today is: Bell v. Smith; Vansickle v. James; Reunne v. Windsor.

NEW OVERSEAS CLUB WILL BUY AEROPLANE

Thousand Dollars Has Already Been Collected by Members of Toronto Branch.

Toronto branch of the Overseas Club held their first meeting in the Sons of England hall last night. This club is under royal patronage and has the approval of both the British war office and the colonial office. A. S. Farr, secretary-treasurer, said that similar branches were starting all over the British Empire, and that the object of each branch was to raise funds for the purchase of a warplane, which would be used in the bearing the name of the city that made the presentation. He said that the cost of a Vickers gun biplane of the type in use by the British Government was approximately $11,000. Richard Niven, J.P., president, said that the appeal was a meeting with a response worthy of such a cause, and that already $1,000 had been subscribed.
