OLDEST MAN IN CANADA, AGED 118, AT KINGSVILLE

Henry Washington was Born in Kentucky in 1796.

IN CANADA FOR 70 YEARS

Crossed From Detroit to Windsor in a Stolen Boat.

[Special to The Advertiser.] KINGSVILLE, May 8 .- Henry Wash. ington is the oldest living man in Canada today, if not in America. He is 118 years of age, and resides at Kingsville, Ontario. He is the only colored man who ever lived in that

He was born in Mason County, Kentucky, in the year 1796. His parent were slaves on a hemp, flax and cane plantation on which about seventy-five slaves were employed. When he was four years old his father was sold at auction for $1,900, and shipped to New Orleans. He also had a full sister, who was sold later at a price he does not know. His master afterwards married his mother to another negro. Seven children were born and they were all raised in a one-roomed log hut, located on the plantation. As early in life as he can remember, he thinks about the age of four years, began working on the plantation. He remained on the same place, helping to enlarge and clear it, until he was forty-six years old, during which time he was offered for sale on two different occasions. Once he remembers, $2,000 was bid for him, but his ster held him for a higher figure. Beat His Master and Skipped.

In the year 1842 he was governed eniefly by the son of his old master, and along with the other slaves he was subjected to great cruelty. So prevoked was he, that one day he pounced upon the younger master, took his gun from him, and gave him a severe beating. Deeming it best to "make himself scarce," and joining a slave from a nearby plantation, they escaped in the night, and turned their faces northvards towards Canada

Vaccination.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: The following information just to hand smallpox is being perpetuated by the practice of vaccination: "Dr. Robert Hall Bakewell, a former vaccinator-general of the Island of Trinidad, has partially explained the influence which vaccination yields in spreading the smallpox. 'It seems six people in a small hut, in five or six places each (says Dr. Bakewell), you will most in the public mind. have at the end of a fortnight a number of scabs equal to a mild attack of discrete smallpox, and that an unprotected to contract smallpox from these cases.' Dr. Bakewell observed that in the best the most smallpox, and this led him to fear 'that in some instances wholesale there was the natural increase, spread smallpox among those who retirely free from smallpox until an energetic vaccinator, newly appointed, vaccinated upwards of a hundred in the course of three or four weeks Smallpox then broke out."

Whilst writing, let me quote a doctor's confession, made last month at the annual meeting of the British Anti-Vaccination League. Dr. Pugh said his conscience was very heavy, for he had been a great sinner in regard to vaccination. He gave an account of the vaccination of European and Chinese emigrants to Honolulu and many other places. In one case, although the operations were performed in the most hodox, cleanly and perfect fashion, aided by two fully certified English nurses, of 1,400 vaccinations the vast majorbecame septic, and 19 died on a 54 days' trip, and he got a bonus for having so few deaths. He could have certified that vaccination was the primary cause. but what was the use. If he had put his foot down, he would only have been regarded as a fanatic, and it would have led to nothing. He, therefore, certified for septicaemia, but he had told the doctors that the people were killed by this confounded waccination. That was last year. In 1911 he had similarly 56 deaths among 700 emigrants, including 700 children among whom measles and whooping broke out, but the majority of eaths were due to septicaemia after vacination, otherwise there would not have been anything like that number of deaths. He quoted other similar cases, and asked If it could be wendered that after all bis experience he was full of conscientious ob-lection to compulsory vaccination." Will Dr. Hill, in the face of this, dare to say that the vaccination fatality rate is one per million? Yours truly,

In the urban districts of the county, the ratio was 100 males to 112 females. city of London there were 2,500 more females than males.

Many Remedles Offered. What was the cause? There were at sorts of remedies offered, rural mail, rural telephones, good roads, better transportation, co-operation between grower and consumer, lower tariff, better railways, deeper canals, agricultural credits. One or all of these were good, yet there was to complete cure, the speaker thought, in any one of them, or perhaps all of them. There was something deeper. The thing that must be done was to go back and that must be done was to go back and Turnbuil), and C. G. Jarvis to "Nemesis" deal with the boy and girl on the farm. (Applause.) AGED CARVER'S MASTERPIECE

At 64 Mr. Hawthorne Is Evolving His Choicest Work.

Wood-carving has become almost a lost art of late years, yet there is in London a master craftsman, although his work is practically unknown, except to some few highly-interested in his handiwork. Working by day as a stone cutter, and putting in his evenings drawing designs for prospective panels, William R. Hawthorne still pursues t'e art that lured him in childhood, and exhibits a great cabinet clothes-press as the accomplish. ment of his sixty-fourth year.

Not even in the stately minsters and baronial halls of older Europe, with their century-old panellings, and carven wainscottings, is there to be found more lifelike designing than that which characterizes every article that the aged carver has worked upon. And, strange to say, he insists that never in his life. has he had le sons in the craft, nor has he ever seen another craftsman working. As a boy, his chisel was his constant companion, and he experimented in every kind of wood that he could lay his hands upon in his native Northamp tonshire, England. The early crudities were beginning to take more finished form, but there seemed no market for the wood-carvings of an obscure Eng-

Came Here In 1869.

A trade was a necessity, and the boy wished to engage in work somewhat allied to his hobby. Stone-cutting offered the desired opportunity, Shortly after, in 1869, the family moved to Canada, settling in London, where Mr. Hawthorne has since resided. Today he is recognized as one of the best stonetime she had been partially crippled. She cutters in the city, notwithstanding his advanced age.

Of all the many evidences of the carthe Blind. Mr. Marentette, her father, is ver's genius with which he has filled his little home at 650 Oxford street, there are few, if any, that are not the product of the long winter nights of the last few Mrs. Emma Riggs, aged 61, a resident years. Rheumatism has of late made it to execute in his favorite material, wild cherry, during the coming winter.

Two Magnificent Pieces.

Two pieces of magnificent conception and beautiful execution at once arrest the attention of a visitor to the humble little home. At first sight, a book-case, delicately carven, and representative of six months' patient and loving labor, s the outstanding article in the room. Built in two sections, the lower four feet high, and the upper three feet and a half high, it is fitted with four panels, the two lower being heavy square doors, the right a design of surrounded by English band of oak leaves and acorns, and the left a similar design of geranium leaves. The upper panels are a marvel of de-In the form of latticed windows, with English ivy and wild morning glery vines creeping over them, they are at once the work of a master craftsman, and as lifelike an utterance of nature as can be secured in wood Accomplishment of Dream.

The second piece, the cabinet clothespress, referred to before, is of such magnitude that a first glance cannot carry any conception of the immense amount of labor expended in making it, as it is one of the finest pieces of wood-carving that has been accomplished in any country in any age. It is the consummation of dreams that the carver held for years, and it seems strange that he should evolve his masterpiece, when at an age when most men would have given up all hope of accomplishing their desires. The careful labor of an entire year was necessary to its successful consummation. It is in the intricacy of design on the door panels on each end of the cabinet that the full genius of the man is most apparent. Executed in oak leaves and acorns, the design is conventional, but there is such a lifelike look about the leaves and the little acorns, that it is necessary to feel them to assure yourself that they are really carven imitations. The front of the cabinet is executed in three panels, one square, of hawthorn leaves, an oval of clematis, and another square, executed in a design of ox-eye daisies. The five-inch band on the base, executed in the oak design so favored by the carver, is an exquisite piece of craftsmanship, not a mark of tool showing.

Carved From Solld Plank.

The beautiful finish secured is also a matter for marvel. Nothing but the tools have touched the wood. The panels are carven from the solid cherry plank. They have not been touched with sandpaper or scraped with glass. No varnish has been used to produce a relief effect, but the finished work has just received a natural stain And the effect-it is beyond conception. Not even the old cathedrals of Mexico, with the beautiful carvings reminiscent of the Spaniards, can offer anything to surpass it.

Delicately carven boudoir cases abound n an infinity of forms, and in all of them s that characteristic life-likeness of design that marks the hand of a master craftsman. But there is one piece of work that has a double significance. a piece with which the carver and his family will never part. It is the Hawthorne heirloom, a picture frame carved from a solid cherry plank fourteen inches wide and twenty-four inches long, with portraits of the family sunk in a panel of minute design, executed in hawthorns. There are 119 leaves, 47 blossoms and innumerable stems and thorns, all traced in an intricacy of detail that defies description, and that yet seems far from over-crowded. Yet to Accomplish Finest Work. LONDON, SATURDAY, MAY 9. AN IMPORTANT CIVIC PROBLEM.

THE objections to level crossings are becoming constantly more apparent, and it was an irreparable mistake (except at great expense) when anything was allowed to stand in the way of the elevation of the Grand Trunk tracks. That error will be a very expensive one in the future.

A capable and educated British workingman, protected by modern laws, minimum wage schedules, sickness insurance, employment bureau, housing regulations etc., will think twice before he comes to live under the eighteenth century rule of the Whitney's and Hanna's.

As soon as Mr. Asquith has home rule out of the way, there is going to be some startling land legislation over there, also, in the interest of tenant farmers and agricultural laborers. Great Britain will try to keep the people on the land as France and Germany succeed in doing to a very considerable extent. The democratic educational system and adthrottled by the Lords but promised for the near future, must be expected.

We need modern men to govern Ontario if, we are to attract not the unemployables but the ambitious to our land. Ontario ought to be a paradise for the farmer and the artisan. We have both us the way, but our Government is a balky animal, too dull and stubborn to

COMPENSATION FOR LIQUOR

THE new Quebec license act, which sion fixes the rate to be charged to came into force on the 1st of May, novel in Canada, and which may have an of Toronto-or any similar case-the effect more far-reaching than at first appears. Provision is made for reducing licenses in the municipalities. but any dicense-holder who in consequence of such reduction is put out of business, will be entitled to an indemnity, not exceeding $5,000, and in certain cases not absolute control of the city for the more than $3,000. But suppose some day the province went a step further, and enacted provincial prohibition. Then nobody would be left in the business to be taxed for purposes of compensation? The precedent having been established it will be necessary to pay all who have been law-abiding license-holders. Two alternatives would seem to follow. The Provincial Government will have to begin at once to collect money from those in the which compensation shall be paid; that is, it will have to insure the business of license-holders. If this is not done then the province will have to put up the money, whenever it undertakes to enact prohibition.

The matter of indemnity for the loss of license is not, therefore as simple as it looks. There has been in Quebec, as in all the other provinces, a growing sentiment in 1-vor of prohibition. Many of the (tholic clergy, especially the high dignitaries of the church, have been active in the temperance movement. It is bound to become stronger with every passing year; and it is quite within the bounds of probability that Quebec may be the first province to adopt prohibition. The present Government has doubtless indorse it. So the dispute involves a difference of opinion between men, who are equally entitled to speak with vention of a similar state of affairs in authority. When experts disagree it is not easy for laymen to decide. And yet the decison rests with the layman after all. Now, while the general object in view by both Government and municipality is the same, namely, to supply heat and light as cheaply and as effectively as possible, yet there are some things which bulk more largely in the view of one than of the other. It is quite natural that to the provincial commission the best evidence of success is the extension of the system by cheapening the supply to consumers They want to keep the rates charged as low as possible. On the other hand the municipal authorities have to consider not only the consumer, but the general taxpayer. They are looking out for low taxes as well as low charges for the people who use hydro. It is a good thing to provide our facvanced liquor legislation, not long ago tories with cheap power, and our houses with cheap light. But there is no advantage if the tax rate has to go up. Even the consumer of electricity does not profit if he has to pay more taxes. While the non-consumers -and these are not few in numbernot only have to bear an increased Australasia and the Old Country showing burden, but get no benefit from low rates for electricity.

> So far as the Toronto dispute is concerned we have nothing to say. But say whether an applicant must give a prethe point we wish to emphasize is that while the municipality has to foot all the bills, the Government's commisdespot may be the wiser, and the despotism may be in the best interests of the party governed. IS THIS FAIR?

T F Toronto has a hydro power deficit as a result of lowering the rates. as the local management claims, the whole province will have to pay the amount. Mr. Beck has given his word that the provincial commission will be wholly responsible in the case of a Toronto deficit, and if the predictions of Mayor Hocken and others were realized, London, Brantford, Hamilton and all the other municipalities would have to pay the piper. Assuming there will be no deficit, is this a safe principle to lay down?

Mother's Day

Tomorrow is Mother's Day. Have you planned to make it a bit brighter day for YOUR Mother? Thousands of white carnations will be worn in honor of Motherhood - of Mothers living, and of Mothers who have passed away. It is sweet to remember those who are now sainted-those whose journey upon this earth is over-but whose gentle presence and influence for good yet remain in the hearts of those left behind as the sweet breath of flowers lingers upon the air.

But what about the living Mothers? They have suffered and toiled for us in the past; they are suffering and tolling for us every day. How tenderly we should think of them, and seek to make them happy tomorrow, when Motherhood is being honored far and wide over the earth. If you are away from Mother, go home if you can. She is lonely for you. If you cannot go to see her, write her a long, tender letter. If your Mother is with you, cherish her as the dearest possession of your life.

And not only tomorrow, alone. Every day should be Mother's Day. Kate Douglas Wiggin says: "Most all of the other beautiful things in life come by twos and threes, by dozens and hundreds. I'll hang my harp on a willow tree, I'm off to the wars again, My peaceful home has no charm for me The battlefield no pain; The Lady I love will soon be a bride, With a diadem on her brow. Oh! why did she flatter my boyish pride She's going to leave me now.

She took me away from my warlike lord, And gave me a silken suit, thought no more of my master's swords When I played on my master's flute; She seemed to think me a boy above Her pages of low degree;

If, a few years ago, anyone had suggested colored lingerie to the conservative Englishwoman she would have blushed with horror, and shrunk from even the idea of combinations, shirts, corsets, and petticoats of pink or blue or yellow. The flesh-pink shades in crepe de chine are still most in vogue because these allow for the carrying out of the transparent effect so sought after in the new costumes, pale blue is, however, almost equally popular, and delicate yellows are also shown in shirts and camisoles to wear under the new pale yellow blouses. > The committee was much opposed to the proposal to adopt the Dominion Bowling Association rules and to the merger of all Canadian bowling associations into one central body to conduct all tournaments and district games. The proposal rules which are identical with the Scatch rules, which are identical with the Scotch Bowling Association's rules, were gone into quite thoroughly and the opinion was that they were not practicable for Canadian tournaments. The scheme of amalgamating into one central body to govern Canadian bowling was strongly objected to because it would have the tendency to do away with the present district tournaments and might also seriously interfere with friendly games in that its system of conducting bowling much the same as the Ontarlo Tankard in curling would demand more outside games and take up a greater amount of the bowlers' dian tournaments. President Tener Believes It Best, But Weather Has Been Bad.

[Canadian Press.] New York, May 9 .- President John K. Tener, of the National League, who conferred here yesterday with Secretary John Heydler, issued a statement last night in defence of early opening dates. He believes that the long season provides a truer test of the playing strength of the teams, and if weather conditions force postponements early in the season, the fans are all the more grateful for double-

He had been wearing a specially made brace to support his back until about three weeks ago, and wanted a thorough examination of the old injuries before attempting to don his baseball togs again.

The physicians said they found that Coombs is in fine condition and weighs 188 pounds.

Will Enliven Journey - Arab Patrol to Parade Streets This Evening.

The Mocha Temple special which will leave the Grand Trunk station at nine o'clock Sunday morning, carrying the Western Ontario delegation to the conference of the imperial council of the Mystic Shriners at Atlanta, Georgia, will be in charge of a Shriner crew. Conductor E. McKenzie will hold the reins of power, Engineer Wil-liam Campbell will be at the throttle, and Brakesman J. Culley will be on the job. All are Shriners. This crew will take the train as far as Detroit, where another Shriner crew will climb aboard for the remainder of the trip to Atlanta.
Solid Pullman Train.

The special will be composed of three Pullmans and a baggage car, and will be one of the most sumptuous trains ever sent out of London. A number of Shriners from Ingersoll, Chatham, and other Western Ontario points, who are members of Mocha Temple, will join the local delegation here, and at Detroit the special cars carrying the Saginaw and Grand Rapids representations will be attached. The special will run through to Atlanta with only one or two stops, and is scheduled to arrive in the Georgia capital at 4 c'clock Monday afternoon

The famous Arab Patrol of Mocha Temple will be the big feature of the Western Ontario contingent. The patrol under the command of Lieut.-Col. A. E. Somerville, captain-general, has been drilling hard for the past few weeks, and is in great shape. The patrol will parade tonight to give citizens a chance to look over the corps that will be the pride of Ontario at the great Georgia Shrine meet. It is estimated that 60,000 Shriners from all over the country will be in Atlanta next week, and the London patro! will not take a back seat from any of them.

Ah, Here We Are Again. Charles Alford's famous hautboy or chestr will also be another feature of the London contingent. Chief Hautboy Alford has his musicians rounded into shape, and they will keep things lively going, there, and coming. For the benefit of the uninitiated, it may be explained that the hautboy is that weird musical (?) instrument commonly used in midway shows. Its awe-inspiring and spine-splitting strains can be compared only to the wail of the bagpines, but it is said to be infinitely more nerve-racking in its effects than the Scottish national instrument.

More than a hundred Shriners will leave London tomorrow. They have arranged for a royal time; they anticipate royal time, and they will have a royal time or bust their galluses in the at-

WILL ISSUE SUMMONS

Grand Trunk Taking Action to Prever Disregard of Crossing Gates.

Instructions have been issued to Grand Trunk watchmen in the city to secure the names of those who walk under crossing gates while the latter are down. The name taking will be followed by the swearing out of warrants charging those who disregard the gates' warning with trespass on G. T. R. property.

This action follows the number of deaths that have occurred on level crossings when the company's servants claim the gates were lowered. The railway company is not vested with authority to cause the arrests of the guilty ones, but tres-passes charges can be laid, and it is the intention to minimize the level crossing danger as much as possible.

Their Adoption Here Would Cut Down Annual Toll of the "Deadly Levels."

IMPOSSIBLE TO PASS THEM

Small Dog Cannot Get By Steel Bars When Gate Rests on Ground.

Recent tragedies on London's deadly level crossings, hav resulted in a suggestion for the adoption here of the European system of level crossing protection. Level crossings in the Old Country are almost an absent quantity, but the few there are, are protected by gates, past which it is almost impossible for a pedestrain to go.

Instead of the ordinary gates that are now in use, and under and around which a person has no difficulty in going, the English method is to have each gate extend completely across the street and one at the top, connected with steel or fron rods. These rods are set at sufficient distance from each other to effectively prevent any person, or child, or even a dog, from getting through while the electric chair at Sing Sing. the gates are down,

The persons who remain outside while the gates are down, do not get hurt, but those who slide beneath them and hasten across are the think for itself. Such a gate as is used in practically all European countries, absolutely prevents any person from crossing until the gate is raised. R. E. A. O. Has Suggestion to Secure Adjustment of As-

The Real Estate Owners' Association has evolved a plan to secure an adjustment of excessive assessment by the purchase, by the city, of any property on which the owner has filed a court of revision protest against over valuation. At its meeting last night, the association "resolved" on this question, and also on the excessive tax rate program, asking for a statement as to how the city's money is being spent by the board of education

The resolutions follow:

That whenever an owner of real estate isputes the valuation placed upon his property by the assessment department and offered to the court of revision for redress, "We think that body should at once secure an option of purchase from such appellant, and whenever an owner is found willing to sell his holdings for less than the assessment, that the city is in honor bound to purchase such real estate, sequre a purchaser, or, at least, adjust the assessment to owner's valuation. As we fail to see any greater injustice that can be inflicted upon any realty owner than to levy taxes upon real estate valuations that are excessive and out of proportion to the earning or selling value, and the owner is powerless to release himself from such burdens; "Resolved, that in view of the fact that takes almost nine mills of the citizens' taxes to pay for the schools of the city we believe that the citizens have a righ know where the money is being spent; we believe that far too much is now going in salaries, and we, therefore, request the local press to publish the full list of all those connected with the schools, and the amount of salary paid to each in-order that every ratepayer may have an opportunity of judging whether the trustees have rendered the service it is exected they should give the electorate."

How to Neutralize Dangerous Stomach Acids

Few people besides physicians realize the importance of keeping the food contents of the stomach free from acid fermentation. Healthy normal digestion cannot take place while the delicate lining of the stomach is being inflaned and distended by acid and wind—the result of fermenting food in the stomach. To secure perfect digestion, fermentation, must be stopped or prevented and the acid cure perfect digestion, fermentation mustbe stopped or prevented and tae acid

a teaspoonful in a little hof or cold recommend bisurated magnesia because it is pleasant to take, has no disagreeable after-effects and instantly stops fermentation, neutralizes the acid and makes the sour acid bland, sweet and easily digested.

To Cure Catarrhal Deafness and

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected a complete cure after all else has failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of stored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrh, or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The pre-scription can be prepared at home, and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz, Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it a quarter pint of hot water and 4 oz. of moist or granulated hot water and 4 oz. of moist or granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one table-spoonful four times a day.

The first dose promptly ends the most distressing head noises, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are quickly overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh; therefore, there are but few people whose hearing cannot be caused by catarrh; therefore, there are but few people whose hearing cannot be restored by this simple home treatment Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness, or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial There is nothing better.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it, or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the international Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine street, Montreal, P. Q., who make a specialty of it.

BERLIN AND GALT WELCOME THE DUKE

Place. Berlin, May 9.-Ideal weather conditions prevailed this morning for the re-neir royal highnesses the Duke of Conpaught and Princess Patricia, who arived at the G. T. R. station from New Hamburg, where they spent the night. The city is wearing its holiday attire and between 20,000 and 25,000 citizens of the twin cities greeted the royal party as it passed through the streets to the city hall. The guard of honor was composed of two companies of the 29th Regiment Galt, the Waterloo cadets and the Boy couts, which were inspected by the duke immediately after his arrival.

At the G. T. R. depot, Mayor E. D. Euler presented the duke with an illuminaddress, which tendered a sincere and loval welcome to the Governor-General, and expressed the city's pleasure at having the opportunity to show his omes of the people, an indication of hrift of character. Following the presentation of bouquets om the city, the Sons of England and he Daughters of the Empire, to Princess Patricia, the members of the various stantial increase of ten to fifteen per after which the ducal party proceeded to marked decrease, probably fifty per Victoria Park, where a tree was planted near the Victoria monument. Promptly at 2:30 o'clock. the royal train drew into the Grand Frunk station and the ducal party was greeted by Mayor Buchanan and mem-bers of the town council. After the duke had inspected the guard of honor of the Twenty-ninth Regiment, the party pro-ceeded in automobiles to Victoria Park, where a thousand school children sang the National Anthem. A guard of honor from the collegiate institute cadet corps was on duty here. In the address of welcome by Mayor Buchanan the duke was assured that nis visit would strengthen, if that were ossible, the loyalty of the people of this community to his majesty the King and he British Empire. After prominent citzens had been presented, the duke planted an English oak tree, and the party returned to the station in time to prompty entrain at 3:30 for Brantford, their last stop for the day.

BRANTFORD READY TO

City Has Been Cleaned Up and Decorated-Visit Mohawk

[Canadian Press.] Brantford, May 9.-This city is en stores and many private residents have pear trees as soon as the leaves unfold the centre of attraction so far as decorations are concerned, but there has been no niggardly hand. For the past three days a "clean-up campaign" has been under way, the services of the school children being requisitioned for the final "field day," and as a result Brantford never looked neater.

From the early morning hours there poured into Brantford a large number of visitors, hundreds coming from the Six Nations reservation. His Royal Highness being an honorary chief of the Confederacy, receiving that honor when, as Prince A thur, he visited the reserve on October 17, 1869. He was again a guest at the reserve on February 15, 1913.

An elaborate program has been prepared for the entertainment of the duke and party on their arrival here at 4.30 this afternoon. At the station they will be met by the mayor and council, with about thirty-five other invited guests and some hundreds of "the common people," the Dufferin Rifles, the Collegiate Cadets and the Boy Scouts, the latter 150 strong, under command of Commissioner McFarian. After the presentation of an artistic, hand painted address, the party will leave for Agricul-tural Park, where they will watch the Brantford-Hamilton ball game for a few minutes. They will then drive to the Bell homestead where Prof. Alexander Bell constructed the first telephone, and thence drive to the Mohawk church, the oldest Protestant church in Upper Canada, which has among its possessions a Bible and communion service given to the Six Nation Indians by Queen Anne and brought by them when they left their New York State home to remain under the British flag after the American recolution. From there a tour of the city will be made and the visit will be wound up with afternoon tea at the Golf and Country Club, the train leaving here at 6.30,

AGE WHEN MARRIED

This May Cause Her to Lose Annulment Suit in Court.

TORONTO, May 8.-Application was made to Mr. Justice Middleton at Osgoode Hall today by the Attorney-General for an order dismissing the action of Mrs. Robert J. Aull, Jun. (nee Reid), for dissolution of her marriage at Cobourg last year, on the ground that it had been contracted without the consent of her parents, which was necessary, as she was under age.

The Attorney-General contends that Ontario courts have no jurisdiction in the matter. The point has been raised before in similar action, but has never been if decided. Now it is made the paramount issue and is further complicated by the fact that the young lady was ver 18 years of age and under 20 at The act expressly stated that one of the contracting parties must be below the age of 18 to enable the courts to declare marriage null and void, in a case where no consent has been given by the parents or guardians of

An Easy Way to Gain Ten to Thirty Pounds of Solid, Healthy, Permanent Flesh.
Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say. "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good, nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fatmaking elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken, run-down tissues and build them up. The thin person's body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. The best way to overcome this sinful waste of flesh-building elements and to stop the leakage of fats is to use Sargol, the recently-discovered regenerative force that is recommended so highly by physicians here and abroad. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and notice how quickly your cheeks fill out and if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces, as stated on the guarantee in each package. It is inexpensive, easy to take, and highly effi-

Caution .- While Sargol has produced emarkable results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken unless you are willing to gain ten pounds or more, for it is a wonderful fiesh-builder.

One Extra Tire

One Can Get Four Goodyears, with All-Weather Treads, for What Some Charge for Three Today's great question among tire users is—What is the proper price?

Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires used to cost one-fifth more than others. Yet they gained top place because of extra merit.

Now 18 American and Canadian makes cost more—up to one-half more. Of several makes, three tires will cost as much as four No-Rim-Cuts.

Are They Worth It?

Are they better tires? They can't be. We have tried for years to improve these tires—have spent $100,000 yearly on research and experiment. Yet we've found no way-nor has anyone else

-to show lower cost per mile. Do they lessen trouble? That is unthinkable. Not one contains our No-Rim-Cut feature.

which has ended rim-cutting entirely. Not one gets, as ours do, the "On-Air" cure. This extra process adds tremendously to our own costs-to prevent wrinkled fabric, the main cause of blow-outs. Not one does what we do to prevent loose treads. Our method is patented.

JOOD YEAR No-Rim-Cut Tires

All-Weather Treads

And no other maker offers anti-skids which compare with All-Weather treads. You can see this at a glance. The All-Weather tread is double-thick, tough and enduring. The blocks are deep-the edges are sharp. Wet roads are grasped with resistless grip. Yet the tread is flat and smooth and regular. It runs like a plain tread on dry roads.

Vast output has brought Goodyear prices down. We have modern factories, new equipment. The same scientific methods and equipment of our great Akron plant are employed in our Canadian factory at Bowmanville, Ont. Our experts are efficient.

We are giving you the benefit of Goodyear popularity. When we made fewer tires, it was Goodyears that cost the extra price.

Get the best tires made, but get them at Good-Skimped tires are costly at any price. But it also is wasteful to pay $5 to $15 per tire more than we now ask you. Any dealer will

"But you can rest some, Molly. Sun-days, people can go to the country and lie in the grass and dream and make plans and smoke."

"With the rain falling steadily," said she, "and the ground soaked through."

"It doesn't rain every Sunday, Molly."

"Every Sunday you plan to go anywhere it does." Besides, what about car

"That wouldn't be more than twenty cents, anyway," argued Algernon. "You could take the subway to the park."

"That would only take a man, his wife and two children out there." What would bring them back? And there are generally more than two children. And then, too, what would they do about lunch? The children would get hungry—"

"But, great Scott, Molly, I'm not talking about Brigham Young and his progeny!"

"That's just my point. You're talking about a bachelor, and no bachelor is poverty-stricken."
"I don't see how you make that out," protested Algernon.
"You will when you are married," said

"You will when you are married," said she.

"When I am married I may have poverty, but I'll have love, too."

Algernon's jaws snapped. "Hang the money!" said he. "That's why poverty is so hard on people. They are thinking of money, money all the time, and so don't give themselves a chance to get any fun out of poverty."

"Fun out of poverty." she laughed. "Water out of a stone."

"Elljah or Moses or Job. one of those old ducks, got water out of a rock," said Algernon "They had the brains, that's why."

"If your brains were as effective as his, whoever did it, they would bring you in money," said she, "and then you wouldn't be poverty-stricken." Algernon tried to look under the big hat, laughing. "Money, money, money, is that your one refrain, Molly?" he asked. The girl shrugged. "You try money for a time, and you won't be so joyful over the thought of the wild hitarity you can get out of poyerty. You will have as higher of the wild hitarity was higher out of poyerty. You will have as higher out of poyerty. get out of poverty. You will have as big a kick coming as I have. And I am going to kick so hard I won't have any more of it if I can help. Joe, I wonder what you would say if you knew what I am trying

"I know what you are trying to get," returned Algernon quiety. "But I don't see how you are going to do it, unless you explain things to him."

Molly blushed and shook her head. "Confession, like medicine," said she, "should only be taken after meals."

"Even then it's ant to gray if it's too." Even then it's apt to gag if it's too big a dose," said Algernon grimly.

The car was barely creeping along the sun-kissed highway, the sound if its en-gines drowned in the shrill hum of the crickets in the fields on either side of the road. Molly had forgotten the fact that the present conversation was anything exceptional, that she and Algernon were comparative strangers, and Algernon had made his first appearance in an informal way that was unusual, to say the least.

She laughed now a bit angrily. Arguments with one's conscience were bac enough, without being forced to have one with a long-legged, good-looking boy whose eyes she for some reason preferred to avoid. "Joe." she teased, trying to lighten the subject, "should I be too big

"I shouldn't want to to play with my love, Molly, as if it were a jig-saw "But my love is true, Joe-for his Algernon grunted and said nothing for some time, his eyes on the road before him. "What do you plan to do?" asked Algernon. "Have him run away with She nodded. "I shall tell him it is a joke. Joe."

"A joke! I hardly see the humor in it.
He will think you love him, and when he

"He will be married to me," and she

"How can you square yourself with him afterward?"

"The same as so many of you men do who marry girls for their money."

"Not men," contradicted Algernon. "An expensive suit of clothes and a high silk but that's all a hit unblettered probably. expensive suit of clothes and a high silk hat, that's all, a bit upholstered, probably, but no man about it."

They were near the gates of Castle-Crags. Through the trees they could see the stables and farther on catch glimpses of the chimneys and gables of the house itself. Algernon kept his eyes on the wheel and said nothing.

"Don't you see?" she asked sharply.

'Yes." said Algernon, "I see. He would be a cad if he threw-you over. But you are such a cynic, Moily. I should think, believing as you do, that you would hate to take the chances of a man not being a cad."

"You would have me give up all hopes of this," with a gesture embracing her clothes, the car, the wide gates and the pleasant vista of winding driveways and well-kept lawns, "for the questionable possibility of discovering that another man is a cad. Stop the car and let us argue this out. Stop the car, I say."

Algernon reddened uncomfortably, but he stop:ped the car, more to give her time to regain her self-control than from any intention of arguing it out with her.

"You flatter me," murmured Algernon.
"I do, indeed. Go on. I am sick of this discussion. I shall do as I please."

As they drew up at the terrace steps.

As they drew up at the terrace steps, the parlormaid came to the door and called out cheerfully that Mr. Hancock had come in the motor boat and said he would be waiting for Mrs. Todd when she returned. Molly nodded, and let Algernon help her from the car.

He gathered up her bundles to take them to the house, but she insisted on carrying them herself, and as he laid them in her arms, he whispered to her not to forget the papers.

"Publicity will spoil your plan hopelesslly, Molly," he warned her. "Don't let there be too much gosslp until you pull the thing off."

"This is my plan," returned the girl coidly, "mine, do you understand? I do not care to have it interfered with."

Startling Statements Made by South Woodslee Health Officer.

WATER BAD AND AIR FOUL

Hold a Conference in Toronto.

TORONTO, May 8.—At foday's con- $13,704, and all other claims $20,754. ficer of South Woodslee, Essex County. made some rather startling statements regarding conditions in rural schools. He declared that the death rate and tuberculosis rate were highest among school children and teachers, an evidence of defective conditions in the schools. Bad ventilation, uncleanliness, bad water and lack of air space per scholar he held to be responsible for this condition of affairs.

Dr. Hall, of Chatham, is the new president of the association and with him as vice-president is Dr. Macpherson, of Peterboro. The convention committee is composed of Dr. J. S. McCullough, provincial officer of health; Dr. Bentley, of Sarnia; Dr. Speirs, of Burlington, and Dr. Bertram, of Dundas.

Knowledge and Ignorance.

False knowledge and ignorance were said to be the greatest factors in the hindering of the child's health, as set forth by Dr. W. E. Struthers, chief medical inspector of Toronto schools, in a paper which he read. "It is a most astounding thing to learn the extent of prejudice and superstition in regard to health matters among even well-educated people," he said. "It would appear that the majority of people when considering their health or ailments, leave the realm of common sense to enter a mysterious realm of magic, folklore and superstition. There are so many self-evident, sane practical things to attend to in childdevelopment that we can easily rest DEATH OF GRIMSBY satisfied to set aside fads, pet ideas, and set theories. Simple Rules Neglected.

"It is not the children of the ignorant, the intemperate, the vicious, or the 'too busy' only, who suffer from parents lack of knowledge of even the rudimentary truths of physiology and hygiene, but also the children of well-to-do and well-educated the outstanding and ordinary laws of ago on the farm where he died and the human body are today so per-where the first peach orchard in Canviolated, that it must be assumed that the belief is general that no penalty will follow, and that such violation can continue with impunity."

Clean Habits Essential. Continuing to retail the matter of health in connection with the school, "Personal and general hygiene should have a far more prominent place on the school curriculum. Clean and right life habits will mean more for a child in life than a smat-tering of art and music. There should be more intimate relations between the parent, the school teacher, the school nurse, the school dentist, and the school physician in the social life of the community as well as a more active co-operation in the school

Guard Milk Supply.

"In numerous instances pure milk is delivered to the home where conditions are such that it is soon contaminated, causing diseases that result in serious illnesses and in many times death," said Dr. McKillop, M.O.H. for St. Thomas. Continuing to explain how necessary is great care in the delivery of milk, he said: "Milkmen of the right stamp should be encouraged, as it is our experience that most of them de-sire to do the right thing, and are willing to adopt all new improvements. Herds should be periodically examined in view of the recent development of

Bloom of Youth Now Easily Attained

You no longer need to "doctor" that allow, freekled, blackheaded, rough You no longer need to "doctor" that sallow, freekled, blackheaded, rough, blotchy, pimply or over-red skin. You can remove it, instead—eas'ly, painlessly, inexpensively. By a new scientific process, which anyone can use without assistance, the dead and near-dead surface skin, with all its imperfections, is gently, gradually absorbed—and a radiantly youthful and beautiful complexion comes forth! Go to your druggist, get an ounce of pure mercolized wax; at night apply enough of this to completely cover the face; don't rub it in. Next morning remove the wax with warm water. The result after a few days is astonishing. You wonder why this secret wasn't discovered long ago.

He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try

GIN PILLS. They relieved the pain. I took two boxes and went back to the specialist. He said the stone was smaller but he could not remove it although he tried for two hours and a half. I returned home and continued to take GIN PILI,S, and to my great surprise and joy, I passed the stone.

GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world and because they did me so much good, I will recommend them all the rest of my life".

Gin Pills

Larder Lake, Ont., March 26th. "I had been suffering for some time with my Kidneys and Urine. I was constantly passing water, which was very scanty, sometimes as many as thirty times a day. Each time the pain was something awful, and no rest at night.

I heard of your GIN PILLS and decided to give them a trial at once. I sent my chum 60 miles to get them and I am pleased to inform you that in less than six hours, I felt relief.

In two days the pain had left me entirely. I took about half a box and to-day I feel as well as ever and my kidneys are acting quite natural again". SID. CASTLEMAN.

"Over a year ago I was taken terribly sick with unbearable pains in the Kidneys, so called in a Doctor, and he said at once that I had a Stone in the Kidney, and all he could do was to give me ease by injecting morphine. He said there was no cure but an operation. About two months ago I got a box of GIN PILLS and took one and two at a time, and then another box. A week ago the Stone passed from the Kidney to the Bladder. Two days ago it passed away altogether. I have taken no other medicine but GIN PILLS, and it is through them that I am free from that stone"

Miss Jeanette Killmaster, pianiste, the visiting artist for the final evening concert of the Music Club in the Normal School on May 12, is well and favorably known in Toronto. The Globe has the following to say of a recent performance in that city: "Her execution was magnificent in her stirring rendering of Liszt's tremendous arrangement of the Polonaise, from Tschaikewsky's epera, "Eugen Ovegin. It is a work that abounds with heavy octave passages, and taxes the resources of both the instrument and the performer. Miss Killmaster, in this heavy piece, proved herself in addition to an exceptional executant, a pianiste with a fine romantic rhythmical gift." HORSE: IS INJURED

Jack McCoombs, Maple street, an em-ploye of Scandrett Bros., was painfully cut and bruised, although not seriously injured, when he was knocked down by a horse driven by James McCartney, near the corner of Richmond and King streets yesterday. Outlook Rosy for Greatest Event of Its Kind in History of City.

Preparations are going steadily ahead for the London Old Boys' reunion which is to be held during the week commencing Sunday, Aug. 2. The various committees are being rounded into shape, and the membership campaign is doing much to swell the ranks of the association. Membership tickets be obtained from Secretary Ed-Children thrive and grow

This is to be held shortly to further the arrangements.

From present indications, the 1914 reunion will be the greatest event of its kind ever staged in London, notwithstanding the temporary setback that was given it a couple of months ago, following the action of the city council in refusing the use of Covent Garden Market for the carnival shows. There is now, however, peace and harmony in the ranks of the association; a capable set of officers and committee chairmen has been chosen, and there is absolutely nothing to prevent the home-coming from being a tremendous success.

Shows in Queen's Park. All the shows-and the Washburn aggregation which is under contract to supply them has thirty cars of equipment and effects—will be placed in Queen's Park. There will be grand parades, free open-air exhibitions, bands galore and everything that goes to make up a real reunion, the program opening on the first day of the week with a go-to-church Sunday for all the old boys and old girls, the stay at-homes and the visitors. Reports from all over the country ndicate that London will entertain more of her sons and daughters than ever before. In many cities, from New York to San Francisco, enthusiasm is being stirred up for the great homecoming, and the old town will be a blaze of color, light, music and good cheer during the week of Aug. 2.

Officers Working Hard.

Nothing will be left undone by officers of the association to make the 1914 reunion a memorable affair. Galt, Manchester of Canada, Throbbing With Business; Output of Industrial Machinery Is the Biggest in Canada

Town on the Banks of the Grand River, One of the Most Important Cogs in the Communal Life of the Dominion--Stands In Front Rank in Every Respect

Galt's Industrial Progress Is Marked by Sane and Safe Methods Which Have Placed Her High In Financial Standing.

Galt, May 8.—There are communities where there is a lot of bustle and no hustle, there are still other communities where both bustle and hustle are to be found, and finally there is the ideal community where there is hustle without bustle. A visitor to the city of Galt, the capital of the county of Waterloo, and one of the chief cities of this province, is immediately impressed with this atmosphere of effective activity without waste of energy. To use, what is in this instance a very apt and happy slangism, there is no "four-flushing" about the city of Calt. You realize at once that there is a lot being accomplished without needless excitement or fuss, that after a quiet and steady fashion more is being done than in places of greater pretensions, where the "boosting" is so clamorous for attention that one misses much of the real worth. Galtites do not talk much about themselves. They do not need to. Once you have spent a few hours in the city, you realize that Galt is its own advertiser. That the goods talk better than the man who is selling them, is an axiom in the commercial world, and this certainly applies to the capital of Waterloo and one of the leading manufacturing centres of Ontario, or for that matter of Canada.

Scotch the Backbone. The backbone of Galt has been since its birth and still is Scotch, and this steadiness and care. Skyrocketting no doubt accounts in a large degree for the sane, safe steady methods of doing business for which the commun. ity is noted. Scotch thrift, scotch shrewdness, scotch pertinacity and stick-to-it-ativness have all gone into making of most of the industries, great and small. Steadily year after year these numerous great concerns have been extended and expanded. This is one feature worthy of notice. that applies pretty largely to all the

The knitting factories of Galt, Turnbull & Co. and the Galt Knitting Co. are amongst the largest and most celebrated in the Dominion. The skilled artisan population is far larger than that of any other town in the country. New industries are adding from year to year to the number and importance of the town's busy workshops. It has been the happy story of success with all of them, and today they are more prosperous than at any other time in their history. The natural location of Galt, the local facilities available and other helpful conditions combine to insure the future status of the town as the "Manchester", "Sheffield" and other appropriate designations, of Canada. appropriate sociated with the three "Gs." Goderich. Galt, and Guelph. Of Galt particularly (once known as Shade's Mill), was the great Scotchmen, a help in those early days when it was getting a start. Galt was born in Irvine, Ayrshire, Scotland, in May, 1779. As his father was the captain of a West Indiaman, Galt was reared and educated at Greenock. The impress of his mother, a shrewd and observant woman, was shown early in the character of the boy. He was a great lover of nature and books and displayed unusual ability along the lines of music and verse making. Before he was out of his teens his desire to travel and "see things." as he expressed it, had caused him to take long tours afoot, sometimes as distant as across the borders into the northern English counties It was intended Galt should enter the mercantile life, and he was placed in an office to train for that purpose, but at the age of twenty-five he decided to try his luck in London. However, he had little success there, although he tried his hand at both literature and business, and with the wanderlust always coursing through his veins he finally threw up the idea of making a name and a living in London and started out on the travels which were to win for him an undying fame. Blenheim, Palerma, Gibraltar, were the first places he visited, and at the latter place he met Lord Byron, with whom he visited. Sardinia and Malta, Greece and Syria were also toured and three years after leaving London he returned and Issued two books, "Voyages and Travels" and "Letters From the Levant," both of which met with considerable success, and immediately following which he married the daughter of Dr. Tilloch, a well known jour nalist of that time. From that time his travel on books and novels had a ready sale, and although he made several trips in connection with mercantile affairs to Europe he definitely decided to make literature his great life work. However, his attention had been directed towards Canada by letters from the new land, and in 1823 Lord Goderch (chancellor of the exchequer), suggested that he make inquiry into the resources of Upper Canada. From this suggestion and the subsequent inquiry grew the famous Canada Company, and John Galt was made one of the commissioners of the valuation of land. Salling on a man-of-war, Galt reached Ontario by way of New York, Buffalo, Louistown, Niagara Falls and Toronto, then called York. The outcome of this trip was the deeding to the Canada Company of a large tract of land in Upper Canada, and Gait was sent out to make arrangements for developing operations. After officiating at the founding of Guelph he went to Galt on April 22nd, 1826. Galt had been named after him by an old Scottish friend, the Hon. William Dickson, some years before the origin of the Canada Company. At that time the town of Gait Lad eighty inhabitants, a postoffice, one store, a tavern, a grist mill, a saw mill, a cooper's shop, a distillery and ten dwelling houses. Although the place had been named Galt, as already stated, the people continued to call it Shade's Mill, but the pleasing manner of John Galt made him so popular that the villagers, by general consent, agreed to call the town after him in the future. At that time Galt was about forty-eight years of age, and a man of striking personality. Physically he was of herculean frame, in full vigor of health. His hair was jet black, his eyes small and piercing, his nose straight, a long upper lip and finely-rounded chin. In conversation he was animated and attractive. As a writer he attained to considerable fame, but long after his books have been forgotten he will be known as the man who out of the wilderness of Ontario founded and developed three of the most progressive cities of the province, not the least of which is Galt.

Galt, May 8.—The Galt of today is the pride of its resident. He is conscious of its recognition abroad as one of the most substantial and prosperous towns in Canada, with interior beauty spots and a wealth of picturesque surroundings making it one of the prettiest towns in the Dominion. The Galt of to-day is a community of well-to-day people. On all sides are striking evidences of the industry, thrift, taste and culture of its people. It does not know what slums are, and there never is any cause for absolute destitution within its limits. A vacant, habitable house is a rarity and you have to hurry up if you desire to take a look at it before the new tenants move in. There is a remarkable absence of vice and crime, as the police records show very clearly. Never a "drinking town," under local option its reputation in this respect has been signally enhanced during the past five years. Galt is a city of churches, schools and parks. It's educational institutions rank very high, and it is remarkable for activity in religious, philanthropic and fraternal life. Under the most up-to-date municipal machinery all its civic affairs run smoothly. Good useful men constitute the council, which works in perfect accord with an aggressive board of trade. A strong public sentiment favors progressive civic measures and supports anything calculated to conserve and advance the public good.

Wilson's Characteristics. The simple fact is that the President is not only a many sided man but a man of contradictory qualities. The Democratic party has had its Hills and Gormans, its Jacksons, Jeffersons, Tildens, and Clevelands; its machine-builders, its spoilsmen, its dictators, and its lofty patriots; but never before has it seen all these characteristics combined to such superlative degree in a single man. When these talents are rolled into one ndividual we may look out for differences not easy to be reconciled, and we shall find them aplenty.

Contradictoriness sometimes resembles especially the little sticklers for consistency-have been greatly troubled by Woodrow Wilson's treatment of the party platform. Congressional committees do a little winnowing, and Congress holds a ratification meeting once in a while-that is their function. Meanwhile the country applauds. Even Congress, up till the tolls trouble, has leaned through the hoops with precision if not with grace. For a year the spell of that cocksureness has been upon the nation, and yet, when he was reading his tolls message, it appeared to depart. At first he seemed to have all his old accomplished ease of bearing. He stepped lightly to the reading-desk, affable smiles wrinkling his features as he reached up and shook hands with the Speaker and the Vice-President, then turned to face the front and paused. His hair had grayed perceptibly since the first time he had stood there, and deeper shadows were chiseled in his cheeks; but his voice as he began to read, one would have said, was entirely unchanged; there was not a break nor a hesitant word, yet toward the end a strange note entered—a note of pleading that was almost pathos, noticeable particularly as he said: "I ask this of you in support of the foreign policy of

I can not pretend to know, but it seemed that the humility of his language was the humility of his heart, a correspondence, by the way, not always to be observed n his utterances.

His sudden and bewildering changes of policy then come in for treatment in these paragraphs:

In his campaign he was for free tolls for our coastwise ships; in office he urges their repeal. He tells certain ladies that he can not further even slightly the cause of equal suffrage because the platform is silent upon it! Yet within a few weeks backward or forward of that possibly disingenuous utterance he recommends presidential primarles, upon which the platform is silent; an Alaskan railroad, upon which which the platform is not only silent, but against which as an article of the Progressive program he inveigled as a candi date with what seem the most bitter and lunfair sentences he has ever uttered.

Has Reversed Himself. But the President has reversed himself n matters of personal policy as well. He said that the door of the executive office should be always open. It is habitually closed, and the hardest to get open of any president's door in the memory Washington. He said that pitiless publicity should be the rule. There never was a president who so shrouded his plans in mystery, never an administration which so carefully guarded its workings from the public view. How much he tells his cabinet members is not of record. How little he tells the senators of, for instance, the committee on foreign relations, is sometimes conspicuously evident.

His policy of secretiveness is really extraordinary, and carried out to an extraordinary degree. Not long ago, says the writer, Senator Shively, of Indiana, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, rose to defend the Mexican pol-icy of the Administration against the attack of Senator Fall. The latter had brought facts in great numbers to bear upon the question; but the senator from Indiana brought few, and those weak and faltering. It was rumored that he had received no information from headquarters! Not less significant is the fact that none of the President's closest supporters in Washington appear to have been informed definitely upon the present Japanese situation nor what it is that Japan really wants. In brief:

Why the Secretiveness? Such furtive secrecy from an administration which continually proclaims that it has nothing to conceal is in itself a

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Shock and Overwork caused Nervous Breakdown-Never found anything to compare with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a Restorative.

Miss Innes is widely known in New York, Toronto and other large centres as a Teacher of Dressmaking and as author of the most complete work on this subject: 'Scientific Dressmaking and Millinery." This book has been ordered by the government for use in Women's Institutes throughout this province, and is being put into practically all Public Libraries. The experience which Miss Innes has had with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is told in such an interesting manner in her letter that we shall quote it in full.

MISS I. INNES

Miss I. Innes, 245 Huron St., Toronto, writes:-"I have a strong constitution and do not neglect the health as many do whose strenuous lives of overwork lead to breakdown of the nervous system. Consequently when, on receipt of a telegram announcing the death of a brother who was very dear to me, the nerves failed me, I went to my doctor and his prescription acted beautifully and restored the nervous system for a time. Again in New York I felt the need of a tonic and had the doctor's prescription filled but to no avail, and just here I want to emphasize the necessity of going to a reliable druggist who you know will use only the best and purest drugs. I was benefitted to some extent by trying a prescription which is used extensively by stock brokers on Wall Street, where fortunes are made and lost in a day, and the nerves give way under the enormous strain.

This helped me but I am writing this letter to say that nothing I used could for a moment be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This treatment restored my exhausted nerves, gave me new vigor and energy, and banished the many distressing and disheartening symptoms which only nervous people will understand.

I know there are authors, journalists and business men with whom I come in contact daily who should know about this great nerve restorative. I know there are women in the home straining the last nerve to make the best use of the income in these times of high prices and whose nerve cells have been sapped by worry and anxiety until they live in misery and do not understand the reason. It is because I know this that I want to tell these nervous, worn out people about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. From my own experience I know just how they feel and just as certainly know that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will prove a wonderful blessing to them."

Attempting to undermine a Mexican [will be some fun tonight; conspiracy would naturally seem to be a good deal like putting one's hand into a revolving electric fan; and yet, as one writer describes an actual effort of this sort in the Springfield Republican, it appears only a little more dangerous than mere existence in Mexico now is. One day last summer Mr. Nathaniel Greene Pendleton Jun., was in Mexico City awaiting anything that might prove entertaining and dangerous; but so so that he found it hard to fill the pages of his diary. I was all afire in, an instant—anything to relieve the monotony. The thrill of adventure had caught my heart. I called insistently for more details, but Jorge refused flatly to say more except that we were to surround the place or house with a picked bat-talion of General Blanquet's and the four of us were to force the door and demand a surrender. After I had remarked that doomed men usually put up a good fight, his countenance sud-denly fell, and he remarked: "Well, well, I didn't think of it before, but you are an American, and it's all off as far as you are concerned." Shot at by Friends. Such a remark, of course, ended all hesitation. American courage had to be vindicated, and plans were made forthwith. They were armed to the incisors; they were to proceed swiftly and silently to meet Duhart, who would give them the number of a mysterious but very efficient automobile which was to figure largely in the night's raid. All this was done. The plot then uncoiled steadily and sibil-

The car was in readiness when we arrived, and Duhart ordered the first stop to be the National Palace. As we drew up to the massive, broad, low building, the guards came to attention and we passed into the interior to the private affice of the Minister of War. De Zayas and I remained outside while Pedrito, as Jorge was wont to call him, entered the private office of his ex-cellency and held a whispered conversation. In the meanwhile I was given ample opportunity of examining the interior of the structure. It seemed to be built very much upon the plan of a barracks. There was an immense rectangular court about which the offices were distributed in "stoops."

Pedro came out soon and we set off at full speed through La Reforma to his fugitives skidded around the corner of a house. There seems to be almost no side street. Returning to our machine under the additional weight of cartridge-belts, we were whisked away toward the Calzada de la Piedad, a long avenue which leads out of town to the suburb of La Piedad. At an appointed spot

we picked up two of Duhart's secret-service men and proceeded without delay toward the prospective scene of Signalling for Action.

After a brisk twenty-minute run, we arrived at the public square. The narrow streets were full of men, and typical Mexicans, at that. With large sombreros and high-heeled boots and ajas about the waist concealing the raditional punales, they presented a sight altogether picturesque and ineresting. We soon perceived that here were quite a few cars with oc-cupants of questionable character enering and manouvering about the arge, open square. Suddenly a large imousine, which had been following had stopped, and a shadow passed across the glare of the great searchight. They were evidently making signals. To reply with our lights was impossible, and we waited. The limouine was again started and soon overtook us as we were speeding along the Calzada in the direction of the city. As they passed quite close, we discerned two or three figures in the rear of the car who seemed intent upon learning our identity without betraying their own. Duhart whispered feverishly, "A ver el numero," and we all craned our necks to see the licensetag on the back as she glided by. Lo! in that precious instant the number 69

Anywhere In a Week.

"A few months ago I was dining with a friend who, while interested in aviation, thought that the limits of the practical uses of the heavier-than-air machine had been almost reached," says Mr. Claude Graham-White, in the Daily Graphic.

"'You'll never,' he declared, 'no matter what engine-power you have, get a greater speed out of an aeroplane than 100 miles an hour. The resistance of the air is too great.'

"We disagreed. 'I firmly believe,' I told him, 'that in under a quarter of a century there will be no part of the globe inaccessible to the aeroplane, and that on Journey, whatever the distance, will occupy more than eight or nine days.'

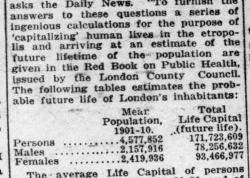

United States Week-End Air Express. "That evening is recalled to my mind now," adds Mr. White, "because Mr. Rudyard Kipling has recently told us that "The time is near when men will receive their normal impressions of a new country suddenly and in plan, not slowly and in perspective; when the most extreme distances will be brought within the compass of one week's-one hundred and sixty-eight hours'-travel; when the word 'inaccessible,' as applied to any given spot on the surface of the globe will cease to have any meaning.'

"I am entirely with Mr. Kipling. "In 1934, that is to say, it will be possible to leave London on Friday afternoon in a luxurious aerial Pullman, where one can eat and sleep in comfort, and reach New York the following morning. One would leave America on Sunday afternoon and be in town on Monday morning, with no more inconvenience than going to Paris or Scotland for the week-end now."

Stoking Up! "It would seem that men have lost the power of putting away the stress and strain of the hustling working day," says the Sydney Sunday Times. "The 'rush' habit has become more than a mannerism; it has reached the dignity of an obsession, and is as difficult to shake off as the drug habit, and just as pernicious in its effect upon our system. "We don't dine now, we merely 'stoke up,' and in so doing light the fire of that terrible demon, Dyspepsia. Moreover, the epicure has become as rare as an omelet of great auk-eggs. Surely we are not degenerating back into the stone age, when the 'piece de resistance' was carved with a flint hatchet?"

Are Enormous:

Bluntly-because no car on the market reveals equal value. Because, for instance, no other car in the world at this price has a full floating rear axle equipped even to the hubs with Timken bearings.

Because this axle could not be made better, no matter how much we were willing to spend, or you were willing to pay. The same thing is true of Studebaker-Wagner starting and lighting—the cars of highest cost may show its equal—but they cannot show its superior. The same thing is true of the proportion of parts actually manufactured in the parent plant—the costliest may make as good a showing, but none of them can show more. The same thing is true of the accuracy of the processes which enter into the manufacturing—they may be equalled in the costliest cars, but they are not surpassed. We repeat, with added emphasis—the sales of this $1375 FOUR are enormous becaue no car on the earth reveals equal value.

RASH COVERED CHEST AND BACK

Itching and Burning Pimples Spread. Clothing Irritated. Used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Well in Three Weeks.

High River, Alta. - "My baby was a offerer from an itching and a burning on chest and back. The trouble began with a fine small rash and got quite a size. The pimples spread until his whole chest and back were covered. Some of them festered and on some the top looked clear. He was fretful and cross and was always rubbing. His clothing irritated him. The trouble caused itching, burning and loss of sleep. His chest and back grow worse and worse; they were a mass of itching pimples. The trouble had lasted two or three weeks and we tried remedies but they failed. Cuticura Soap and Ointment afforded relief in about ten days. I washed the eruption with hot water and Cuticura Scap four times a day, then used the Cuticura Ointment and in three weeks he was well again. He owes it to Cuticura Soap and Ointment."

All the time, day and night, the man-nurse, with the fine gentleness of a wo-man and his strong arms and coaxing voice, contested inch by inch the advance of disease and death, ceaselessly vigilant, automatically precise, concentrated, self-forcetful comprehensive thinking of forgetful, comprehensive, thinking of everything, and doing all with a smile and a humorous word.

His long, idle life, lived in the open air, without excess of any kind had given him a store of energy and a reservoir of strength on which he now drew, steadily diminishing the supply. There was talk, of course, at Askatoon at first—ugly, unstinted talk; for there were days sleigh or his wagons, and Nolan Doyle and Norah Brennan were alone in the house, save for the two bed-ridden people-and Another; and the talk became a scandal, which at least materialized in the definite proposal of tar-and-feathers for Nolan

They came to the door of the shaded sick room at a moment when Nolan Doyle was holding the paralyzed woman in his arms like a child-and a very heavy child at that and Norah was freshening the pillows. The pious sky-pilot saw the woman put gently back on her bed, whispering blessings on the head of "Nolan dear," heard the whimsical replies of the man-nurse, saw the face-how thin and worn it had become!-met the dark eyes with the soft, slumbering fires, saw the girl on the other side of the bed with that look of single purpose which sick-bed watching, more than anything else, gives to the faces of those who fight death and decay for others, and into his lean soul there entered a new understanding of human nature, the first glimpse of a real revelation of humanity

In the other room Nolan Doyle satthe bewildered preacher: "I've had letters from some of your flock, I'm thinkin'. Here's wan of them-read it. It comthis mornin'.

The preacher read a letter of a dozen lines, which brought the blood of shame to his fat face. He was not wholly a hypocrite; he had a good heart and an

The Sunday following, having judicious ly set the rumor flying that he would preach a special sermon, on a special subject of local importance, he found a congregation that filled the church to the doors; and when he stood up to preach, it was so still that only the roaring of the fire in the huge stove could be heardtypical of the flame of the spirit, as he very obviously said, when he gave out his text, which was: "Judge not, that ye be not judged."

The sermon was very fully reported in the local papers, and the story he had city"—a village of one thousand people is a "city" in the West—"and there's prairie kelly, a lad of life and fame—wint to the sensational parts of it were copied in the sensation in the sen cities on the Mississippi and ports in the

(THE END.) CHANCE MISHAP AND MAID'S QUICK WITS ADD TO HER BEAUTY

Lady Warwick, while driving in the park recently, met with a minor accident which resulted in a gash on her right cheek. Rather than encounter curious eyes, she remained for days in the seclusion of her home.

One day a faithful mald discovered the healing scar had assumed, vaguely, the appearence of a butterfly. Obtaining Lady Warwick's permis-

Granted that the singer is possessed of a sense of the beautiful, an appreciaion of the great and a well developed intellect, he must then acquire a vocal sechnique capable of giving expression to every shade of emotion which he recognizes in the work he intends to present. Without this, all interpretative efforts are futile.

No Short Cuts. In this speed age singers expect to arrive at perfection by short cuts. They are med to disappointment. Every art has its drudgery. Every form of expression ealls for a technique that must be acquired by long and diligent study, none more so than music, and while the abor attached to the study of the vocal-Ist's art is not so wearisome as that of the instrumentalist, a greater degree of perfection is necessary. The voice is an infinitely more perfectly adjusted instrument than any contrivance made by hands and is capable of a far greater range of emotional expression. Therefore, in order to do justice to the possibilities of the human voice, a technique brought to the highest state of perfection is absolutely necessary. Technique and Temperament.

Technique is the handmaid of temperament. Temperament is the appreciation of those spiritual qualities, revealed by the composer, which find an echo in the soul of the singer, love, hatred, truth, deceit, tenderness, harshness, contentment, yearning, hope, despair, humor, fervor, with all their innumerable degrees and shades. The artist, therefore, who possesses the capacity for all these different emotions is truly wonderful. He is able to recognize at once, the spirit which prompted the writing of the composition, and in turn is able to deliver its message to his audience. The few truly great singers are of this kind. of the finest natural parks in the whole

A sort of "marital malaria" seems to have seized upon the young engineers at work upon the great dam at Keokuk, Ia. Apparently they have captured all the marriageable women of the place, which shows that a knowledge of engineering is not a drawback to constructive enterprise in the domains of Cupid. A subscriber calls our attention to the following clipping from a popular weekly bear-

"In Keokuk, Ia., an enterprising firm of capitalists built a dam across the Mississippi River and set the peerless Daddy of American waters to work running the trolleys, lighting the streets and turning the washing machines in a hundred cities and towns. It was a tremendous job of work which involved the wiping out of farms and villages and railroads, the rearrangement of a hundred square miles of scenery.

"For one thing it brought great numers of young engineers to Keokuk. They had worked all over the world on water lowers, usually in spots well concealed civilization and well insulated from feminine charm. Then they came to the Keokuk job, where fifteen minutes from the roaring rapids were the homes of Iowa's finest families, full of young women ready and willing to admire the wild, free life of the engineer. The result was over a hundred weddings in wo years, and when the dam was completed and the young engineers moved on, they took with them the young women of Keokuk en masse.'

In the interest of scientific accuracy we have investigated the above story and are informed that the exact number of weddings celebrated in Keokuk traceable to the dam is 68, up to the present time. Evidently engineers are proficient enough in this branch of engineering work to need no instruction from technical jour We sincerely trust that in this important aspect of dam construction there may be no failures and no suits for dam

During my first year in efficiency work along mechanical lines I collected every catalog, magazine and reference references to all my catalogs, magazines and scientific books, also to all own but had seen or knew contained information that I wanted, writes an efficiency expert in the current Amerian Machinist.

Before the end of the first year I found that reference to anything which did not possess was useless as I had no time to go to the library. On account of these troubles I hanged my scheme and the following method is now working satisfactorily: 1. A set of index cards contains references to all of my books in detail, this telling me just what book conains the information I want. 2. All magazine references are elim-inated from the index cards and the information is clipped from the magazine or catalog. If two articles conflict on opposite sides of the page, or if the information is a very small part of the article, or if the article suggests something to me, then I make brief notes instead of clipping. 3. I take the clippings and notes on any one subject, compare them with one another, and with any previous ones on the same subject. The reliability must be considered and also a watch kept for contradictions and repetitions. After these points have been considered, the information is made as clear and concise as possible and typewritten for filing in a loose leaf notebook with previous informa-

My system has the following advantage which I have not seen in any other one system; it keeps up the quality and keeps down the quantity.

I look over all the new books, compare them with my present data on the index cards, in the file and note books before being. This eliminates useless repeition. I keep lists of the books I have examined. On one side are the books I want and on the other ones I do not want. These are in alphabetical order. I reduce all the valable data in the magazines to a handbook form with personal comments and suggestions. All repetion and contradiction are eliminated. In this shape is is ready for quick work.

AWFUL NIGHTMARE OF LONDON CITIZEN I was leaning against a telegraph pole, idly cutting up some tobacco, when foreign-looking gentleman approached with the evident intention of speaking to me. -I got three matches out of my vest pocket in readiness for his request. But he shook his head politely. "I need no matches, I thank you,—but as you seem to have some time on your hands, I come to you for information. You see," he added in explanation, "I have just arrived from the Planet Mars-" stood upright, so did my hair; his remark startled me, "You have just arrived from the Planet Mars-" I repeated, my eyebrows climbing into my hair.

"TELL ME ABOUT THE IRISH QUESTION,"

SAYS VISITOR FROM THE PLANET MARS---

"Why, certainly," he said, smiling. I made a magnificent leap to the lowest spike on the telegraph pole, and from thence climbed rapidly to the top. The Man from Mars seated himself on the other side of the crossbar without going through the formality of climbing and went on soothingly. "I hope you will give some information." of course, I was dreaming—though I did not know it at the time.) I hastened to assure him that any information I had was at his disposal, and he said, want to know all about the Irish Question." I gasped. Should I start at the beginning, somewhere around 1886, or with the situation as it now stands? QUESTION ONE.

The Man relieved my embarrassment. "Tell me why the Conservative papers in Canada are so aggressively hostile to Home Rule," he suggested. "I have a vague idea that the Home Rule Bill is designed to give to Ireland what Canada and all of her provinces already possess—autonomy."

Certainly," I said with a sigh of relief, "but the Opposition is on religious rounds—the majority of the people in Ireland are Roman Catholics—and—"

"Oh, I see that," said the Man, "but how about Quebec?" "I pass," I said, "but the Conservatives say-"Yes," said the Man impatiently, "I know what they say. But if all the Roman Catholics are Home Rulers, and all the Protestants—"

A NIGGER SOMEWHERE. "But they're not-not by any means," I broke in eagerly. "Well, it must be that there is some nigger in the wood-pile. I know that the Bill was well received by all parties at first. Tell me this: Sir Edward Carson objects to the measure. That is plain. Therefore he objects to the way he and the rest of Ireland are being handled. He also objects to the Irish governing themselves. How does he want to be governed? By the Suffra-

"Therefore," I hesitated, and then took the plunge, "he would logically deny the vote to any but the Conservatives." "You are threatened with intelligence-" said the Man. "Now take it the other way. Would he object to Home Rule for Scotland?"

"I don't think so," I said "You see, that would not be a religious question. fancy both Scotland and Wales could get Home Rule without much opposition." Then the Man laughed. "Then it practically amounts to Home Rule for England, doesn't it? The Conservatives will allow any little community to govern itself, but England must have the assistance of Ireland. That is England must be governed to a certain extent by Rome." I was thunderstruck at the Man's lack of logic. I said, "No," half a-dozen times, very quickly, "you are quite wrong. WHO RULES ENGLAND. "How?" asked the Man, politely, "I read in the Conservative papers that Redmond rules Asquith, that the Pope of Rome rules Redmond and that Asquith is at present ruling Britain. It is quite plain to my mind that the Pope of Rome has more power at the present time in Britain than he would if he merely had his finger in the Irish stew." "You don't understand," I said frantically. "I'm afraid I don't," agreed the Man. "If the Conservative papers are right, the Empire is at the present time being ruled by the Pope through Red-Asquith proposes to limit Redmond's rule to Ireland—and the British Government is to rule the Irish Government. (I have worded this premise rather loosely, but the fact is well understood .-- ")

My head was in a whirl. Perhaps the fact that I was asleep had something to do with it, but I felt all tangled up. Here I was, sitting on the top of a telegraph pole with a man who was proving to his own satisfaction, and convincing me against my will that Sir Edward Carson was fighting tooth and nail to prevent the curtailment of the Pope of Rome's power over the feat of the miners. That's why you don't know that in the eleven years, while the much heralded work at the Panama Canal was producing 295,323,-000 cubic yards of earth-and all of the excavating was being done on the surface—the coal miners of West Vir-ginea were getting out of the bowels of the earth 542,949,446 cubic yards. Think of it! When the engineers of the Panama Canal, in 1903, began their work, they made a careful survey and found that approximately 195,323,000 cubic yards of excavation was necessary. This was regarded as a stupendous undertaking and was commonly spoken of as the largest excavation job the world has ever seen. Laborers were imported to the Canal Zone, and column after column was written showing how marvelously these laborers were "making the dirt fly" under the direction of the most expert engineers the world has ever seen. But the 195,323,000 cubic yards, the original estimate, were not all that the Panama Canal laborers were to dig after they had started. On account of the slides in Culebra cut; another hundred million cubic yards were to be added to their work. This made 295 .-323,000 cubic yards, which were dug in eleven years.

Under conditions far more difficult, the coal miners of West Virginia did that I could find. The catalogs were an amount of excavating in the same eleven years that made the digging ineleven years that made the digging inlogical order, and the index contained cident to the Panama Canal look like child's play. The work of these West Virginia miners has never been heraldmagazines or books which I did not ed to the world. The general public has paid little attention.

But the fact remains that the men who work underground in the mines of West Virginia have done a vastly bigger job in the digging line than the men who work in the open on the Panama Canal!

WHY FOREMEN ARE SCARE.

We often hear how difficult it is to find foremen of high quality for yarious shops. Apprenticeship is the remedy, but not until foremanship is unstood, not until the foreman is paid at least as much as an active pieceworker in the shop will this condition be remedied. Foreman-ship does not attract the best shop nen today, comments a writer in the American Machinist.

Someone asks what apprenticeship should be. The apprentice problem is very simple. For the shop it should be the old-time apprenticeship brought down to date, changed, and meet present conditions.

First is the training of the hand, eye and judgment in the shop by men who have no other duties. The course should be short, active and thorough to render the boys good, quick, accurate and intelligent workmen, and good Second is mental training coincident with the manual development. This means night schools or day schools conducted by men who understand the shops and who can show the boys how to educate themselves. These schools are to unfold the reasons for every-thing done in the shop and to lead the boys to look back at preceding processes and ahead to the processes DR. A. W. CHASE'S 25C. CATARRH POWDER 25C.

France to assent to the Algeciras Con-

A Ten Years' Test.

"That is the vital principle of the entente. That has made it thrive and grow with the years. That has enabled it to withstand all strains from within and from without. That leaves it deep-rooted today, with the promise of fresh growth and fresh developments to come. For ten troubled years it has stood the test. It has been exposed to many searching ordeals. Open assault and furtive sap, brutal menace and subtle intrigue have not been spared against it. All has been in vain. The entente, expanded and supplemented by the Anglo-Russian agreement, remains the bedrock of their whole international policy and an essential bulwark of the world's peace.

What the Entente Has Done. "The Angle-French agreement had not been signed a year when the first efforts were made to destroy it," says the Times "Scarce had the news of Russia's final defeat at Mukden reached Europe, when the German Emperor hurried to Tangier to make ostentatious proffers of protection to Morocco. Russia, for whose Asiatic adventure Germany had had nothing but encouragement and praise, was nanifestly unable to give her French ally effectual support. From complaisance for he pacifists France herself had neglected her means of defence. "Prince Bulow, who had declared a few nonths before that the entente did not ourt German interests, now discovered hat France had insulted Germany by neglecting to supplement the communication of the arrangement which she had made to the German ambassador before It was signed by an official notification after it had been signed. The whole German press was mobilized to threaten France, and all the strength of German diplomacy was exerted to insure scarifice of the statesman who had triumphantly shattered the cherished tradition of the Wilhelmstrasse, that friendship between France and England was inconceivable. The bonds of the entente were drawn closer than before, and the way prepared for its necessary and logical completion by the conclusion two years later of our agreement with Russia.

Equilibrium of Peace.

"From that time forward the triple alliance has found its counterpoise in the balance of power. It is the equilibrium thus established which enabled France to emerge unhumiliated from the dubious Intrigues into which she was lured under the Monis and Caillaux Ministries, and to sustain with tranquil dignity the challenge of Agadir. It is this which has made it possible for other powers to see the formidable question of the near east opened in Bosnia-Herzegovnia, in Tripoli, and in the Balkans without rush-

Two Balanced Groups.

"The division of the great powers into wo well-balanced groups with intimate relations between the members of each, which do not forbid any such member from being on the friendliest terms with or sudden outbursts of race hatred. All sovereigns and statesmen-aye, and all nations-know that war of group against That knowledge brings with it a sense of responsibility which chastens and restrains the boldest and the most reckless. But they know, too, that to secure the Parsonstown reflector, built by Lord their own group and to induce them to share the responsibility and risks such a conflict, any power and powers which may meditate recourse to arms must first satisfy those other members that the quarrel is necessary and just. They are no longer unfettered judges in their own cause, answerable to none but to themselves.

A Cardinal Factor. "That the Triple Entente bears the character we have ascribed to it, and has been for some years one of the twin pillars on which the peace of Europe and of Asia rests, is proved.

"The balance of power is now the cardinal factor in the raicy of the Old World. We owe it and all the developments it may bring to the entente which is ten years old today."

inch reflector which has long been under construction for the Mount Wilson Solar Observatory will also be ready for use The Canadian telescope will, however, be a much more efficient instrument than Lord Rosse's. Not only will the mirror be much superior, but the mounting will enable the telescope to be worked to the full advantage. The Parsonstown reflector has an altazimuth, not an equatorial mounting, and is operated under such difficulties that comparatively little use has ever been made of it.

The New Telescope Contracts for the new telescope have lust been awarded to J. Brashear for the mirrors and other optical parts, and to Warner & Swasey for the mounting. The disk for the principal mirror will be made by the St. Gobain glass works, in Paris, but all the grinding and figuring will be done in the United States. The total cost will be nearly $100,000. Inasmuch as the instrument is intended primarily and notoriously for work of no immediate practical benefit, viz., the spectrographic measurement of radial stellar velocities, this sum represents a very notable contribution to pure science on the part of a Gov-

The telescope will have a parabolic mirror of 72 inches clear aperture and 30 feet focal length, with a central hole 10 inches in diameter. The mounting is to be similar to that of the Ann Arbor and Melbourne reflectors, with a skeleton tube at one side and nearly midway between the bearings of the long polar axis, the balance being restored by the declination motion mechanism and by counterweights at the other side. Both polar and declination axes will be carried entirely on ball or roller bearings and a complicated system of counterweighted roller for relieving the friction. The construction will also be simplified in other respects, e. g., all fine circles will be omitted, as will the slow motion arm in right ascension. It is characteristic of twentieth century tech- stantly being received by the Pinkhem nique in astronomy that, although the Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., new telescope will have a full set of oculars for visual observations, no program of visual work is contemplated. Nowadays the camera takes the place of the human retina. The main purpose of the instrument will be the measurement of motion in the line of sight of stars fainter than the fifth magnitude; a task beyond the light-gathering power of nearly all existing telescopes. For such work the telescope will generally be used in the Cassegrain form; the light from the main mirror, converging toward a focus, will be received by a second hyperboloidal mirror of about 19 inches aperture and 10 answered by a wofeet focus, placed about 28 feet above the main mirror. The light passes thence down through the hole in the main mirror, and the star images are formed about three feet below the latter. Here the spectrograph will be placed. For the faintor stors o flow dispersion the spectrograph will probably be placed at the prime focus. An investigation of the atmospheric conditions in different parts of Canada is now in progress, to determine where the telescope will be located.—Scientific
