MACDONALD WOULD MEET POINCAIRE HALF WAY

British Premier Sends Personal Letter to Head of French Government.

REPLY IS RECEIVED

Answer From Poincare Indicates Willingness To Reach Better Understanding.

Associated Press Despatch. London, Jan. 30.—Prime Minister MacDonald recently sent a personal letter to Premier Poincare in which he expressed a desire for a settlement of the differences between Great Britain and France and for a complete Anglo-French understanding, and M. Poincare replied sympathetically, according to statements printed this morning by the Daily Telegraph and the Daily Express.

By this action the new head of the British government picked up the thread of Franco-British relations at the point where it was broken after the interview between Mr. Baldwin and Premier Poincare in Paris last autumn, says the Daily Telegraph. It adds that the letter was despatched in accordance with the traditional methods of diplomacy and his preference for more direct means of negotiations.

The letter written as soon as Mr. MacDonald was installed in Downing street was delivered through Lord Curzon, the British ambassador at Paris. It informed M. Poincare that the new government had been organized, say the newspapers, and remarked with perfect candor that relations between the two countries for several well understood reasons had ceased to be as friendly as formerly, and that public opinion in Great Britain viewed the French policy with a certain degree of suspicion, being somewhat nervous about what might happen in Europe.

The prime minister then, according to the Daily Telegraph, expressed a willingness "to meet Poincare half way in an attempt to achieve a final, complete and clear settlement. He also voiced the hope that the French government in the same conciliatory spirit would be ready to discuss all outstanding questions.

M. Poincare's answer, asserts the newspaper, with a calm and anxiety, left the approach had not been very well received. But its answer was sympathetic, giving rise to a hope for a better atmosphere for a discussion of troublesome issues between the two nations.

The Daily Telegraph learns that the letters are likely to be published soon.

PREMIER GOES TO SCOTLAND.

Associated Press Despatch. London, Jan. 30.—Premier MacDonald has gone to Scotland for the purpose of solving the difficulty he is experiencing in providing Scottish law officers for his administration.

Russlyn Mitchell, who, unlike several other Clydesdale Labor candidates, unsuccessfully wooed the electorate in the last two elections, and was defeated on December 6, 1923, in Central Glasgow by Sir William Alexander, has been mentioned frequently for the position of Lord Advocate of Scotland. Mitchell, however, is not a barrister but only a solicitor and in this way is regarded as not qualified for the office.

On similar grounds of non-qualification there is no Scottish Labor member of the House of Commons eligible for the position of solicitor-general of Scotland.

Labor circles do not favor the suggestion that the government should introduce special legislation enabling the administration to make appointments to these offices with the material ready at hand.

NOVA SCOTIA MINE STRIKE NEARS END

Negotiations Will Be Continued at Head Office of Steel Corporation.

WILL COMPROMISE

Canadian Press Despatch. Glace Bay, N.S., Jan. 30.—Following yesterday's adjournment of the wage conference between representatives of the striking coal miners of the United Mine Workers District No. 26 and the British Empire Steel Corporation, there is a more hopeful feeling today in local circles. The adjournment here is not regarded as a break but rather as a transfer of the issue to Montreal, where it is hoped a decision will be reached by the British Empire Corporation directors on which a satisfactory settlement may be based.

While the mine workers are understood to be "standing pat" for a 20 per cent advance it is no secret that an offer below this or even one affecting the low paid men only would not likely be rejected. Should such an offer be made, and it is understood here that President Wolvin is considering one, news of a settlement may be expected before the end of the week.

The new license plate numbers start at 130,000 for passenger cars and at 17,051 for trucks. The colors are black letters and numbers on a yellow background. This is but the first shipment and further consignments are expected from time to time as they are needed.

BOARD FAILED TO ACT, ENGINEER DECLARES

Mayor Takes Preliminary Move, However, To Improve Sewerage at Pottersburg School.

City Engineer W. R. Near stated that the board of education received a report last year pertaining to the sewerage facilities necessary and the cost thereof for the Pottersburg school, but that nothing further was done.

As a preliminary move for action in this instance, Mayor Wenige opened negotiations this morning with the school authorities, and renewed consideration is anticipated. A temporary connection could be made, necessitating however, the engineer believes, an addition to the school to permit the installation of new plumbing fixtures. It would be possible to drain the first floor of the schoolhouse but not the basement, as would likely be desired by the educational authorities.

REFUSES TO BELIEVE HER CHILD DROWNED

Mother of Jack Challis Thinks It Is Some Other Child.

Danger in Work May Force the Firemen To Abandon Hunt.

"My son has not been drowned, I can't believe it, and I won't believe it until I see the body myself," exclaimed Mrs. Albert Challis, mother of Jack Challis, 7-year-old school boy, who Monday morning fell in the Thames River below Victoria Hospital, to The Advertiser today.

Because she had warned her son on many occasions to keep away from out of the river within a radius of several hundred yards from the exact spot where the boy fell through the ice. If the present thaw continues firemen think they will have to abandon the search. The ice is becoming so soft they work with great danger to themselves.

Meanwhile firemen continue their search for the boy's body. They worked until late last night aided by searchlights attached to hydro wires running parallel to the river.

Huge chunks of ice have been cut out of the river within a radius of several hundred yards from the exact spot where the boy fell through the ice. If the present thaw continues firemen think they will have to abandon the search. The ice is becoming so soft they work with great danger to themselves.

Protest Appointment of ex-Ald. Childs and Ask Action.

APPROACH COL. COLES

Members of the local command of the Great War Veterans' Association protest the recent appointment of ex-Ald. H. J. Childs as issuer of automobile licenses for London and district.

Feeling that this post should have been given to the association, they are requesting Col. W. G. Coles to take up this question with the provincial department of highways. In view of the fact that Harry Wray, president of the local G. W. V. A. is ill in Victoria Hospital, certain of the members decided this morning to approach Col. Coles in the meanwhile, understanding that there would be still time for the government authorities at Toronto to stay the appointment until their official protest was heard.

SINGLE DAY GETS 160,000 VOTES FOR LONDON MAN

Finds Subscriptions Come Easily and Friends Anxious To Work.

CANDIDATES CLOSE

Advertiser $20,000 Contest Gains Momentum in City and Country.

"Well, I just cleaned up 160,000 votes in subscriptions yesterday." The speaker was a big ruddy-faced man who is known on every street in London. He was nominated as a candidate in The Advertiser's $20,000 Circulation Contest last week, and yesterday when he strode into the office he was breathing optimism in every gesture.

"Going strong? Well, I should say so!" he cried. "I'm getting subscriptions to The Advertiser everywhere I go, my friends are all out working, and someone is going to have an awfully tough time to keep me from driving around in that big sedan before I'm through. My wife thinks I should take the $2,000 cash, but I'm after the car. You watch me!"

New candidates are entering the field every day, and in the out-of-town districts they are forging ahead with just as much vim and success as the man who spoke the above. They are all running neck and neck at the present stage, and it is going to be a pretty close race before the eleven automobiles, the chests of silver and the cash prizes are all distributed.

FUR PRICE DECLINE CALLED TEMPORARY

Local Dealers Expect Fur Boom in U. S. Will Be Reflected in Canada.

The decline in fur prices recorded here during 1923 will not last much longer according to local dealers. A reflection of the fur boom in the United States is anticipated before spring and already substantial advances in prices have been evidenced.

In three months the advances have ranged from 5 to 30 per cent in commonly-used furs. The increases in fox furs are from 10 to 20 per cent higher, while opossum and ermine fetch 20 per cent more than they did in September last.

"Depression in the fur market reached its lowest point in December," a local merchant said. "We expect advances every day from now on."

Ten witnesses will testify for the crown in the Topping murder trial, it became known today. Sheriff Graham has already served the witnesses with subpoenas.

Among the witnesses who will tell of the shooting of Miss Geraldine Duxton by Topping are Constable Walter Harpur, Dr. Homer Black, Mr. and Mrs. George Cook, Miss Viola McNaughton, and Inspector Thomas Nicks. Other witnesses known to have been summoned are: Dr. Robinson of the Ontario Hospital who will testify as to Topping's sanity; H. C. McBride, architect, who made a plan of the Cook home where the shooting occurred; Governor Byron Dawson of the county jail; and A. J. Wharton, head turnkey at the jail.

A greater number of Cadets were enrolled in Military District No. 1 during 1923 than in any other period since 1914. Brig-Gen. W. B. M. King announced today the total strength is 8,352 from the counties of Kent, Essex, Middlesex, Huron, Bruce, Waterloo, Oxford, Lambton, Perth and Wellington.

'Gimlet Eye' Butler Wins In a Walk In First Clash With Political Leaders

Philadelphia Director of Public Safety Gives Ward Bosses Piece of Mind.

MAYOR BACKS HIM

Threatens To Resign If Interference From Political Groups Allowed.

Associated Press Despatch.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 30.—Brig-Gen. Smedley D. Butler, known as "Gimlet Eye" Butler, director of public safety, has emerged victorious in his first encounter with a group of politicians who sought to interfere in behalf of a police lieutenant demoted because of alleged inefficiency during the director's latest offensive against vice and crime.

In his terse and emphatic manner, General Butler yesterday told the politicians that he was boss of the police and that any sign of political interference would result immediately in his resignation and return to the marine corps. After a conference with Mayor Kendrick regarding the matter, the general announced today that the mayor had upheld his action. "The mayor's a good boy," he said. "He's right back of me in this rotten job."

Canada Accepts U.S. Invitation

Associated Press Despatch.

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 30.—President Coolidge's invitation to the Canadian government to discuss the St. Lawrence waterway preliminary to signing the treaty between the two nations has been accepted, according to an announcement made yesterday at general headquarters of the Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association here yesterday.

The Dominion government is quoted as prepared to resume the discussion with Washington in response to the president's invitation following an official demand made by the province of Ontario.

EAST CITIZENS WILL PROTEST 'TECH' AS HIGH

Mass Meeting Planned Thursday To Discuss Contemplated Action of Board.

Citizens of London East are planning to hold a mass meeting in Rectory street school on Thursday evening to voice their protest over the contemplated action of the board of education in trying to make the Technical School answer for a college for London East.

The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Mothers' Clubs of East London, provided there is no objection to them having the use of Rectory street school for the purpose.

Mrs. Sinclair of the Rectory Street Mothers' Club stated that there was sure to be a good attendance on hand, and that the session would be open to all interested in the schools of the district.

"We want to move fast in this matter," she stated, "in order that we can make ourselves heard before Dr. Merdiant and his committee get the thing all settled. If we allow London East to be put off with a portion of the technical school as its college, we will be asked to stay there for years to come, and the thing is not at all satisfactory to the residents of the east."

Inspirational Verse Used To Aid Cadets In Rifle Meet

As an inspiration for cadets taking part in musketry competitions in this district, military headquarters has included a rather novel item in the weekly militia orders. It is a piece of verse recently posted during a boxing tournament at one of the Royal Air Force depots in England.

In printing them for perusal by cadets, Brig-Gen. W. M. B. King stated he believed they were singularly appropriate for young lads to read.

The verses are as follows:

THINK AND WIN.

If you think you are beaten—you are.

If you think you dare not—you don't.

BRIG-GEN. S. D. BUTLER, director of public safety in Philadelphia, has won his first clash with interfering politicians, who took exception to his methods of stamping out crime in the Quaker City.

HAYDEN BRANDS ACT 'SMALL STUFF'

Denounces Criticism of Engineer Making Repairs Without Necessary Sanction.

At yesterday's session of the board of works, certain questioning developed as to the manner in which minor contracts were let without the direct knowledge of the chairman, Ald. John Greer.

Ald. Ed. Hayden today characterized this criticism as "small stuff" and defended the action of City Engineer W. P. Near, who tendered to the committee an explanation of his procedure.

While a regulation exists compelling the calling of tenders for all contracts above $200 or $250, the engineer explained that when certain minor repairs to machinery were undertaken it was estimated that this work would cost about $155.

It developed, however, upon investigation as the work proceeded, that other repairs were imperative, bringing the total cost above the $250 mark.

Ald. Hayden feels, however, that this or similar transactions are entirely unnecessary. The engineer is striving to do his duty and undertake the work of his department just as economically as he can, he maintains.

POLICE OFFER LODGINGS TO REAL "DOWN-AND-OUTERS"

A lodging for the night may be obtained by any down-and-out at the police station if he can prove that he has not the wherewithal to obtain quarters any other place. NOVA SCOTIA HOUSE WILL OPEN ON FEBRUARY 14

Canadian Press Despatch. Halifax, Jan. 30.—Announcement was made yesterday that the Nova Scotia legislature would assemble at Halifax on Feb. 14.

WOULD NOT MEDDLE.

Mayor Wenige cautions the council not to meddle with the internal affairs of the Firemen's Union. It is his conviction that it is nobody's business who holds a membership in that organization, just as long as the general efficiency and economy of the department is not impaired.

SWISS PROVE EASY TASK FOR SPEEDY CANADIANS

Third Victory For Dominion Team Is Scored at Chamoni Today.

SCORE 33 TO 0

Superiority of Canuck Sextet Over European Combination Is Demonstrated.

Associated Press Despatch.

Chamonix, Jan. 30.—Defeating Switzerland by 33 goals to 0 today, Canada's hockey representatives at the winter sports of the Olympic games brought their string of victories over European teams to three. The overseas players have scored 35 goals while their opponents have failed to find the net on one occasion.

Against Czechoslovakia the Canadians scored 30 goals, Sweden was vanquished by 22 clear goals, and today the Canadians displayed marked superiority in their overwhelming victory.

Having defeated all the teams in group two, the Canadians will now meet the winners of group one. It is expected the United States will eliminate the other teams in this section, although it is probable that the British sextet will give them a hard tussle for the honor of playing the Canadians.

Smith will play the next point. Watson and Smith combined splendidly and were responsible for the next two goals.

Canada scored eight goals in the first period, eleven in the second and fourteen in the third. The Canadian wings, Watson and McCaffrey, were the most prolific scorers, but every member of the team, with the exception of Cameron, scored the Swiss net. Cameron, nearly frozen from his enforced idleness between the Canadian posts, took short excursions down the ice to get his blood in circulation.

Savoie, the Swiss goalkeeper, was peppered with bullet-like shots throughout the three periods today. On coming off the ice he said with a grim smile he would about as soon face a machine gun as a hot one off Watson, Munro or McCaffrey.

U. S. For the Finals.

Canada's sweep through group two has been sensational, the scores in each of the three games testifying to the overwhelming superiority of the players from the dominion. The Canadians are breaking the record they made in the 1920 Olympic games. In these games Canada defeated Czechoslovakia 15 to 0 in the first of the elimination series. In the semi-finals the Canadians won from the United States 2 to 0 and in the final defeated Sweden for the championship, 12 to 1.

The U. S. is in group one this year and is favored to meet Canada in the finals.

OFFICIAL SAYS ENGLAND IS OUTLET FOR WHEAT

Trade Commissioner Watson Claims Acreage Greatly Reduced Since War.

In claiming that the greatly reduced acreage under wheat in England since the war affords an outlet for Canadian wheat, Harrison Watson, trade commissioner in England, gives the following interesting figures and facts:

"To those who follow agricultural matters, it will be known that farming generally, and grain growing in particular, have since Canada defeated Czechoslovakia 15 to 0 in the first of the elimination series. In the semi-finals the Canadians won from the United States 2 to 0 and in the final defeated Sweden for the championship, 12 to 1.

The land returned as arable in 1923 showed a decline of 129,999 acres, and as the report points out, brings back arable cultivation to practically pre-war conditions, and in this connection it publishes the subjoined statement of the arable area in England and Wales: 1912, 11,335,000 acres; 1913, 11,058,000 acres; 1914, 10,933,000 acres; 1923, 11,181,000 acres.

LABORITES DENY SOVIET RECOGNITION HALTED

PARTY ORGAN IS INCENSED OVER RECENT REPORTS

London Daily Herald Declares Question of Soviet Recognition Has Been Settled.

SCORES OPPONENTS

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Jan. 30.—The Daily Herald says this morning that no hitch whatsoever has developed in the government's preparations to recognize Soviet Russia, that the matter has already been decided, and that reports to the contrary deliberately misrepresent the ministry's intention. "Thus does the Laborite newspaper seek to ally itself with the Soviet good deal of impudence in the Labor ranks about the impending recognition," it attributes the alleged misstatements to the Conservative and Liberal papers and expresses surprise that the Labor people should believe the reports. It also adds as ridiculous stories to the effect that a mission of investigation is going to Moscow prior to recognition, saying that nothing of the sort is intended.

RESPECT LABORITES.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Jan. 30.—The speakers on both sides in the by-election in the city of London to fill the vacancy caused by the elevation of Sir Frederick Hanbury to the peerage are quite respectful to the Labor government, the worst thing said against it so far being that it is a "wild elephant between two tame elephants." Sir William Joynson Hicks, leader of the late Baldwin administration, yesterday characterized it as a cat and mouse government.

"The poor prime minister," Sir William said, "cannot see his head out of the hole without finding a Liberal cat on one side and a Socialist cat on the other."

Sir William Vansittart, Bowater, paper manufacturer, a former Lord Mayor of London, is the Conservative candidate, and Henry Bell, a prominent banker, is the Liberal candidate. The constituency, which is divided into two parts, is the City of London and the City of Westminster, being the other member, has been regarded as one of the safest Tory preserves in the whole United Kingdom.

SAVINGS CO. SUIT IS LIKELY ENDED

Member of Local Law Firm States Further Action Not Decided Yet.

Dismissal of the appeal of minority shareholders associated with the Dominion Savings and Investment Company here to appoint the Canada Trust and Huron and Erie Companies trustees, at Toronto yesterday, will probably end the action unless solicitors representing the Dominion Savings decide otherwise. Members of the firm of Gibbons, Harper & Braden, representing the company, said this morning nothing would be done for the time being.

The case was heard before the first division appellate court at Osgoode Hall yesterday. The shareholders' counsel appealed the decision of Mr. Justice Middleton, by which the Canada Trust and the Huron and Erie Society were replaced as trustees by the Trusts and Guarantee Corporation of Toronto. The appeal was dismissed without calling counsel for the Dominion Savings.

CITIZENS MARCH IN SLUSH TO POINT OF DAILY LABOR

Two British Officers Slain

Associated Press Despatch.
Jerusalem, Jan. 30.—Two non-commissioned officers from the Duke of Wellington's regiment, who had been left in Jaffa to purchase goods were murdered by a mob near Ramleh Monday night. The men, Sergeants Walker and Dunn, were returning to Jerusalem in an army automobile when they were held up and slain after a quarrel.

WARNS OF DANGER IN KEEPING CATS

George Tustin Urges Citizens With Children To Take Precautions.

"If you can't keep your cat scrupulously clean, send it to the Humane Society to be destroyed," is the advice of George Tustin, inspector of that association.

There are more than 25,000 cats in London, Mr. Tustin explained, "about half a cat per individual." Cats spread more disease than any other known type of animal. Many cases of diphtheria are caused by cats.

The root of the trouble is that all children desire kittens, but after a certain period when the kitten grows up is discarded. His only means of existence is then the garbage pail and rubbish heaps. There he becomes covered with germs of all descriptions. Good-hearted citizens, seeing a cat on the street, frequently adopt it and run the risk of having their children infected.

With babies up to three years in the house cats should never be allowed. Persons ignorant of the danger involved by associating with them often let their children play with pussy, and when the child is put to bed with a disease they are at a loss to understand where the disease was contracted.

MINISTER HAS NO UNION HOURS, HE WORKS 7 DAYS

One City Clergyman Attended 643 Meetings in 1923—All "in the Same Boat."

HOLIDAYS, OF COURSE

"Lo! the poor minister." He works seven days a week and he belongs to no union which sets nice agreeable hours for opening and closing and holidays. It should be strictly understood at the commencement of this story that no murmur of complaint has ever been heard from any member of the local clergy, but nevertheless, the fact remains that the old custom of monthly or weekly visits from the rector or minister is going the way of a good many old-fashioned and beloved institutions in these modern days of hurry and bustle and machine-made meetings. And this is simply because your minister has no time.

The number of meetings clergyman are forced to attend has grown to staggering proportions. One minister reported to his congregation at a recent annual gathering that he had attended 643 meetings during the past year, and in consequence he had not been able to make the least of his own services every Sunday. A minister regards as the first duty of his office. This figure is taken at random. Other clergy of the city may have attended a greater number of meetings, and some may have attended less, but the monthly average for such men runs into a large figure.

One Thousand Visits.

The rector of one of the larger churches of the city reports that he has made one thousand visits among his congregation during the year. In addition to this he has conducted at least four services every Sunday, with mid-week services at certain seasons, and he attended the required number of meetings. There are meetings of the Ministerial Alliance to which practically all clergy belong, although all do not find time to attend, meetings of his own denominational association, meetings of the social service council, meetings of the large council of the church, and meetings of the executive of his own congregation, denominational meetings which cover the city and the outlying district, meetings of the Bible society, meetings of the Y. M. C. A. and meetings of the Y. W. C. A., special missionary meetings and conventions, meetings of the Religious Education Council and meetings of special committees.

In addition to all this, he is in common with a number of other clergymen of the city, he delivers lectures at one of the city educational buildings, prepares his sermons, and attends the weekly meetings of his congregation—and these latter take place every evening. And nearly all accede to requests for special addresses from Mothers' Clubs and other organizations.

All in the Same Boat.

This is not an exceptional, but an average case. All clergy are in the same boat. Some have duties in one direction, others in another direction. They perform hospital duty, and visit the various local charitable institutions. In addition to all this, they perform funeral rites, and one or two have the added duties of chaplain in addition to duties with their own congregations.

"From these few facts it would appear that there is a harder worked man in the community, if he performs all his duties, than the minister himself."

"When do we do our reading and services?" one said. "I said this morning, 'well, we cram a little in every now and then, and then, of course, we have holidays every year which can be used for this.'"

So, the poor minister, he works seven days a week and never gets a holiday.

CALLS FOR INVESTIGATION INTO U. S. AIR SERVICE

Associated Press Despatch.
Washington, Jan. 20.—A sweeping investigation of the United States Air Service was demanded in the House yesterday by Representative Nelson, Republican, Wisconsin, who declared he was informed that "the same conditions which existed during the war now exists and that the same firms who participated in the loss of more than $500,000,000 of the people's money are still getting the contracts under the same conditions and provisions they got those previous contracts."

Fickle Fashion Decrees And Old Pug Disappears

Popular Dog of Yesteryear Has Now Almost Become Extinct.

NO INTEREST TAKEN

Some Believe Lack of Brain Power Brought His Downfall.

"Where is the pug of yesteryear?" was the question put to a local dog fancier today. The query, relating to dogs, not noses, elicited the information that pug-dogs have almost entirely disappeared from these parts owing to the fickleness of the public taste.

In fact, any dog listed under the category of "pug" has been out of luck for many a year. Roman and aquiline noses are the rage so far as four-footed creatures are concerned and animals of the turned-up proboscis have been virtually rendered extinct.

"Nobody takes an interest in pug-dogs any more," Inspector George Tustin of the Humane Society explained. "There are three distinct kinds of pug-dogs, the ordinary pug, the hunter and the whippet. All three have seen their day in London. We never see a pug from one day to another any more."

In spite of his tilted nasal organ, the pug is a well-constituted dog-fancier's dog. He can stand the rigors of Canadian climate valiantly, and his total disappearance can be ascribed to no other reason than that he has fallen in public favor.

The whys and wherefores of this condition are unknown, particularly when it is realized that a pug dog is one of the cleanest, easy to manage varieties in the world. It has been determined, however, that pug-noses in animals, indicate lack of brain power. This may have something to do with the unpopularity of the species.

SIDNEY AND CLARENCE BOTH IN GOOD HEALTH

Prisoners Held on Murder Charges Ready For Trials Next Week.

Sidney Murrell, who will be tried for murder at the court house next Monday afternoon is gaining in strength, and is in good health, and his co-defendant, Clarence Topping, is up and around, and his wound having completely healed.

Clarence Topping is once more the Strathroy youth who will be tried for the murder of Miss Geraldine Durston refused to eat last week and was fed through a tube. He is in good health once more and quite tractable, it was learned today.

CLERGYMAN ALLOWED TO REMAIN ON SLEIGH

Rector Solves Problem of Slush and Rides Merrily On.

Ministers of the gospel are usually looked upon as being the most sedate of individuals, but there is one Anglican clergyman in London who is not above stealing a ride on a farrier's sleigh.

This gentleman of the cloth was having a hard time trudging through the slush on his way home this morning, and lost no time in plunging out on the road and grabbing for a passing bog sleigh.

The farmer showed his surprise at such action on the part of the minister, but he was not opposed to it, but decided to let him keep on riding.

PAVEMENT PLANS ARE NEARING COMPLETION

Engineer Will Explain Proposed Work on Wellington Street.

Plans for the proposed pavement on Wellington street, south from Horton street to the Wellington bridge, are being rapidly completed by the city engineering department.

A mass meeting of the ratepayers to be affected by this work will be called at the opportune time, when the city engineer will explain the proposal, the cost, etc.

The plan now calls for a 16-foot boulevard down the center of the street, with a 20-foot pavement on either side. The street railway line would naturally operate down the center of the boulevard.

SIR ADAM ASKED TO HEED PLEADING OF THE MAJORITY

Young Blue Boys Don Want Paint Following Two Appointments.

ISSUE INSTRUCTIONS

Sir Adam Beck is receiving a supplementary code of instructions from those within the local Tory encampment, who state that they are frankly disgusted with the manner in which the patronage list has been handled since the day of victory.

And a resolution was passed, it is reported today, requesting the member for London to "pay more attention to the wishes of all the members of the executive committee and less to one or two individuals."

A murmur of dissatisfaction during recent weeks developed into a mighty roar when ex-Ald. H. J. Childs was given a recent appointment, and a day or two later another appointment was made to an outsider that aroused the faithful out in Ward 3.

The insurgent wing at the party headquarters—the younger Tories—has gone on the warpath as a result, and big doings are promised for the annual session. They threaten to replace the personnel of the officers and executive committee with a brand new line-up, and an informal gathering to consider the question in further detail will be called. The date and place will remain more or less of a secret until after the meeting.

Sir Adam has been hearkening to the voices of one or two, it is charged by the insurgents, who assert that certain appointments have been made without the approval of the majority. The general impression appears to be that Sir Adam has been receiving recommendations from certain persons rather than the understanding that they represented the wishes of the greater number.

TAYLOR IS CONFINED IN ONTARIO HOSPITAL

Brought Here From the United States Man Found To Be Insane.

Thomas Taylor's claim that he was sane and could take care of himself was disproved by the jail physician this week, and despite a strenuous plea Taylor was this morning ordered confined in the Ontario Hospital.

The man was brought to the C. N. R. depot by United States Immigration officials. He said he went voluntarily to an insane asylum at Pontiac, Mich., and when released was brought to Canada because he claimed to have once lived here. No relatives could be found and who would take care of him, and he was forthwith ordered to the local asylum.

Although suffering from an acute malady, Taylor courageously offered to secure employment "within two hours" if the court would let him go. Magistrate Graydon thought it unwise to admit the man's request, however. Taylor is an expert mechanic and said he could make $10 a day with ease.

Under police observation, he was found to be laboring under illusions and his case was pronounced incurable by the jail physician.

CIVIL SERVICE FUTURE KEEPS OTTAWA STIRRED

Much Talk in Governmental Circle of Drastic Cuts For Economy.

SUPERANNUATION PLAN
Believe Proper Scheme Would Greatly Reduce Size of Staff.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Jan. 29.—What will be done with superannuation in the civil service?

The call to deputy ministers and the civil service commission to meet the government on Friday to discuss civil service economies has sent a flutter of excitement through all the government offices with questioning as to what is likely to be the outcome. Will there be drastic cuts in the civil service? The question is asked on all hands, but coupled with it is the further query as to what the intentions of the government are in regard to the institution of a proper scheme of superannuation.

In the view of a number of civil servants it is here that one way out of present difficulties may be found. A proper superannuation scheme and further additions to existing staffs for a definite period would be claimed in some quarters, form a remedy for much of the over-staffing which at present exists.

A special committee of the House of Commons which investigated the civil service last year recommended a superannuation scheme as removing "one of the greatest deterrents to efficiency and curtailment of staffs in many of the departments of the public service."

The superannuation scheme which most found favor with the civil service commission was based on these principles:

1. Employers and employees both contribute to the scheme, the entire cost being borne approximately equally by both.
2. Benefits include allowances on retirement after attainment of a stipulated age with allowances to widow and minor children in the event of death of the employee during service or after retirement, the widow's allowance being only one-half of the employee's allowance.
3. Allowance to the employee on retirement from disability regardless of age.

4. Provision for the return of the employee's contribution without interest in the event of his voluntary retirement after a minimum period of service has been rendered.

Apart from superannuation schemes, there are suggestions of the possible merging of some departments with a view to economy in staffs. Whatever the outcome of Friday's conference, the call has given rise to considerable anxiety in public departments.

AID FOR CANADIAN FARMERS PLANNED

Effort To Supply Crop Conditions, Marketing May Be Undertaken.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Jan. 29.—Means by which Canadian farmers may be brought into direct touch with the Dominion bureau of statistics and tap its information regarding markets and crop production were discussed here today in a conference between federal authorities and a delegation comprising representatives of all departments of agriculture in Canada, the board of grain commissioners, and the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association. The delegation tonight met the prime minister in informal conference.

An effort will be made to supply to farmers data concerning crop conditions, marketing and other matters affecting them, to insure profitable operation of farms and marketing of farm products.

MORE AND BETTER SEWERS WANTED BY POTTERSBURG

Citizens Demand Improved Lights, Schools and Street Railway Service.

The need for improved street railway service for Pottersburg and district was stressed at a regular meeting last night of the members of the Pottersburg Community Club, attended by Mayor Wenige, Ald. Frank McKay and Ald. Ted Warren.

While the mayor was confident that several additional miles of trackage were due the city from the street railway company, he would not commit himself as to the possibility of any extension for Pottersburg, or in fact, any section of the community until after March 8 next, at the least, when it will be definitely determined whether the city is going to purchase the road.

Better lighting for Hale street and district was urged last night, while the lack of adequate sewerage facilities, and an alleged improper sanitation for the Pottersburg public school was scored.

Will Make Inquiry.
Mayor Wenige promised to make inquiries today in connection with the situation involving the school, while members of the council in attendance expressed frank surprise to know that all the residences were not served with sewers.

Ald. McKay explained that the proposed sewer extensions were under consideration, however, and a mass meeting would be called in the near future, when the city engineer would explain the plans, cost, etc., to the residents to be affected.

The ratepayers will petition formally to the city council for action pertaining to their request for a danger signal at the C. N. R. crossing of the Stratford line at the corner of Dundas and Hale streets.

Members related personal experiences of narrow escapes from accidents, and reason of the fact that there is neither signal well nor crossing watchman. The visiting legislator stated that they would take this question to the Ontario Railway Board after due consideration when the petition was presented.

Bell Out of Order.
One ratepayer stated that the danger bell at the corner of Hale and Trafalgar streets had been practically out of commission all last summer. A formal complaint in this connection will also be registered.

Mayor Wenige and both members of the council sympathized heartily with the request for better lighting. Ald. McKay concurred with Mayor Wenige that there was need for more improvement throughout the city, but more particularly in Pottersburg and surrounding districts.

"The entire lighting system must be improved," the mayor stated, "Our expenditures in this regard have not kept pace with other items. In 1912 about $29,000 was expended in this direction, and by 1921 the expense had increased to only $31,000. Not a fair increase by any means."

The members of the association were unanimous that Pottersburg and the district to the south, rapidly growing, was deserving of improved street railway service.

Reference was made to a two-minute compulsory halt at Pottersburg by every car, a loss, it was charged, of about 3 hours a day, that could be avoided by extending the line in order to make a loop with the Hamilton road. A two-way service was also possible in the near future, reasoned the members.

Wenige Doubtful.
Mayor Wenige would not commit himself on this score. "Not that I am afraid," he stated, "but I do not feel that an opinion would be of value at this juncture until we see what is going to be done. Personally I can't see where the city is going to take the road over, but we will not know definitely until after March 8."

Replying to a question in the audience, the mayor thought that the company would undertake extensions if granted an extension of franchise. He agreed with another member that increased service for East and South-east London was imperative if the industrial area was to be "sold" to industries.

Last night's gathering was very well attended, and many valuable suggestions were advanced by the members. Robert Beatty, president, presided, with J. C. White, secretary, assisting.

DURHAM CHURCH HOLDS RECORD ANNUAL MEETING

Special To The Advertiser.
Durham, Jan. 29.—Durham Presbyterian Church on Monday night held the largest-attended annual meeting for some years. Rev. W. H. Smith, B.A., the pastor, was in the chair. All the various organizations of the church were found to be in a flourishing condition. The amount raised for all purposes was $6,347.70, and while this was a slight decrease over 1922, several funds, such as the Russian famine fund, etc., helped to swell the contributions of the latter year.

The newly-elected managers were: Messrs. J. C. Smith, Thos. Turnbull, J. McEwen, S. D. Croft.

The salary of the pastor, Rev. W. H. Smith, was raised $200, making it now $2,000. A social hour was spent and light refreshments served.

WOMAN'S SLAYER ATTEMPTS TO END LIFE AFTER CRIME

Emma Gordon Shot Down in Toronto Street by Former Lover.

FOLLOWS ARGUMENT

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Jan. 29.—Benjamin Gottlieb, aged 39, a former resident of Rochester, New York State, when walking along the street here tonight shot down and killed a woman known as Emma Gordon, aged 25, with whom it is reported, he had formerly lived. It is said he had then put a bullet in his own skull. His recovery is doubtful. He was enraged, it is said, by the woman's refusal to return to him.

Gottlieb was removed to the General Hospital, where the bullet was extracted, while the body of the woman was taken to the morgue, where an inquest will be opened tomorrow.

Little is known about Gottlieb, but Emma Gordon was known to the police here. It is said that Gottlieb and the woman had been living together for some time here. Last summer they were to have married but, at the last moment, the match was broken, and the two went their separate ways, the woman to some friends in the north, the man to his parents in Rochester, N.Y.

Gottlieb returned to the city recently and while walking along the street met the woman. There was an altercation, probably over the separation of last year, and Gottlieb took the automatic from his pocket and fired. The bullet entered the woman's temple and she fell dead. Gottlieb then turned the weapon on himself and fell beside her.

The police believe that the name of the dead woman is Emma Foubert, and that her home had been in Smoky Hill, Ont. A letter was found on her body addressed to Miss E. Foubert, Smoky Hill, Ont.

LATE JUDGE DICKSON'S WILL OVER $55,000

Second Document, Unfinished, Found—Application Expected in Near Future.

It is understood that application will shortly be made to the Court of Probate of the will of the late Judge L. H. Dickson of Goderich, who died suddenly in his office in the Court House here on December 17th last.

The late Judge's estate is valued at $55,000, consisting largely of stocks, life insurance and real estate. His widow is to receive a life interest in the estate, and on her death the property passes to his only daughter, Dorothy K. Dickson. In addition to this both the widow and daughter of the deceased receive substantial sums by way of life insurance.

A tragic incident in connection with the death of Judge Dickson was the finding of an unfinished will which he had evidently been preparing a few hours before death intervened.

The Canada Trust Company of London, is the executor named in the unfinished will and also in a previous will which is being probated. The company's officers feel that their institution has been unjustly honored. This is the second case in the last few years where a Surrogate Court Judge of western Ontario has named The Canada Trust Company as executor; the other case being that of the late Judge Ermatinger of St. Thomas.

The duties of the late Judge Dickson included reviewing executors' work in the Surrogate Court, and his experience there evidently led him to believe that a reputable Trust Company proves the most desirable executor in this connection also, the unfinished will mentioned particularly that proceeds of the estate were to be invested only in the choicest securities, including Government Bonds and securities of The Canada Trust Company.

Jenkins; chairman of the department of home religion, Rev. W. L. Armstrong; the teacher-training department, G. A. Hoffer; and Y. K. Greer; missionary department, Rev. A. G. Clarke and John Holman; temperance department, Rev. Matthew Kelly.

Report Pleases.
Last night's attendance was made up largely of department heads and workers of Sunday Schools and several local clergy. Complete satisfaction was evinced with regard to the report of the secretary, Mr. O. D. Newton, who summed up in a comprehensive manner the amount of work which is being carried on in the churches by the various departments of the Religious Education Council. This work includes the E.T. and C.G.I.T. groups, both of which are organized in practically every church, and carried on under the Girls' and Boys' Work Boards. The Children's Work Board, although it is not organized similarly to these with a full-time secretary, also functions extremely well, a great deal of work being carried on among the younger children of the city, both those who are connected with Sunday Schools and those who are not (the latter by means of summer camps, and the like).

The institute began at 6:30 with a supper, which was followed by an open discussion on the present-day methods of religious education, led by Rev. W. R. McIntosh and Rev. C. W. DeMille of Toronto, the general superintendent of the Ontario Religious Education Council. Practically all present entered into a frank discussion of what methods may be used which might be discarded in favor of a new and more efficient system.

Rev. Mr. DeMille, in a later address, and one which concluded the session, referred to the Sunday Schools as the vital force of the entire church. He mentioned the fact that while lodges and similar organizations were sometimes hard put to keep regular attendance, there were 60,000 persons acting as Sunday School workers gratis throughout the province. Mr. DeMille spoke with the greatest enthusiasm and energy, and was being carried on in this city, and mentioned particularly the system of Bible memory work which has been introduced in the public schools.

The second speaker at the evening session was Rev. E. W. Jewitt, director of religious education at the First Methodist Church. One of the real problems of the city is the Sunday Schools of a city this size. Mr. Jewitt said, was to get hold of the young men and women who come from smaller towns and settlements, and who, though they might have been identified with the Sunday School all through childhood, were often prone to neglect it on coming to the city.

Mr. Jewitt attached real importance to the young men's and young women's Bible classes and to the home department of the Sunday Schools.

Rev. Mr. DeMille, in a later address, and one which concluded the session, referred to the Sunday Schools as the vital force of the entire church. He mentioned the fact that while lodges and similar organizations were sometimes hard put to keep regular attendance, there were 60,000 persons acting as Sunday School workers gratis throughout the province. Mr. DeMille spoke with the greatest enthusiasm and energy, and was being carried on in this city, and mentioned particularly the system of Bible memory work which has been introduced in the public schools.

The second speaker at the evening session was Rev. E. W. Jewitt, director of religious education at the First Methodist Church. One of the real problems of the city is the Sunday Schools of a city this size. Mr. Jewitt said, was to get hold of the young men and women who come from smaller towns and settlements, and who, though they might have been identified with the Sunday School all through childhood, were often prone to neglect it on coming to the city.

North Bay, Jan. 29.—John Primak, the foreigner who ran amuck on the 600-foot level in the Dome Mine last Tuesday night, who awaits trial on a charge of murdering Mike Barney, whom he smashed over the head with a shovel, is now held responsible for the death of another man, Pete Zeman, the owner of small garage, who had influence with local council men that enabled them to avoid the regulations, and it would be better, he said, if the enforcement and inspection of such places were under the Dominion authorities.

DENNY BROOKS

A STORY OF COURAGE.
By ELENORE MEHERIN.

CHAPTER LXXXIII.
The Night's Havoc.
The night became a tumult, the mountains shouting the loud, terrific boom, blasting the darkness as with flame.

Denny ran madly, aware of others pelting through the mazy shadows—unreal, frightened, as men pitched suddenly to the end of the world.

Hoarse, excited voices opened the heart of terror. "What was it? Dynamite? Where?"

Denny ran on, a frenzy lighting up his mind. "The dam! Good God! Is it the dam?"

All at once the cliff thundered "The dam!" Lights flashed, men hurried against him, cries split frantically. "The dam! Blown up!"

He reached the gorge. And for a century stood paralyzed, staring while the water burst through the dam, leaping like a white fiend into the pit.

Into the pit where for three months the men had been excavating; into the pit that was all but ready for the erection of the permanent dam.

And now this cofferdam, this great feign they had built to keep the water away from the permanent site, was blown apart, and the imprisoned water free, tumbled mightily into the gorge.

The century passed in a moment. Thought rushed back with a blow of pain. "Stop it! The water must be stopped!"

Those 5,000 sacks of cement that were ruined would do it. Denny was suddenly possessed, snapping out orders, marshaling the men. The futile, agonizing work began.

Hours, the weird procession plowed through the darkness, some of the men running to the shed with wheelbarrows; others in groups of two picking up the sacks, carrying them to the gorge. When the gray, metallic dawn paraded the night, the sacks of cement, three deep, were piled into the huge gap torn by the dynamite.

But the excavation was filled with water, loose rock, tons of dirt and mud. With a cold sickening at the heart, Denny surveyed the ghastly crime of the night. Figures wheeled with harsh ache through his thought. "Work of three months ruined! Oh, Lord! A hundred thousand, anyway—$100,000!"

A clammy faintness went creeping over him. Mechanically he mapped out work for the men. Set them in relays. Water must be pumped out.

Through the frightful morning, the frantic afternoon, he stayed on the job. With each hour in his calculations the damage proved greater. Weights that turned with a heavy torment sank hotly in his mind and in his heart.

Who could have done it? Now he put from him the face of Pedro Francia. Was it likely the men could be such a demon of revenge? And after the scare they had given him? Supposing, of course, it was Pedro who turned the hose on the cement and then had come sneaking back for his pistol. Was it likely Pedro would set dynamite against the dam?

But since the shed had been entered and the cement watered, Denny had placed night watchmen all about the camp. Two he had placed at the cofferdam. He sent for them. They had a gas across his forehead where a rock had struck him and knocked him unconscious. The other was unhurt. They had seen no one. They had not fallen asleep. In fact, they had shouted to each other not more than fifteen minutes before the explosion occurred. They went on at 10 o'clock; the dam blew off at 3. In those four hours no one had prowled about the gorge. They had seen no figure moving—none.

Denny went himself over the site, searching for some clue that might fasten the outrage somewhere. He found nothing. But he looked into the pit where the pumps churned mud and boulders; where branches of dead trees bobbed listlessly on the murky water. Never in his life had such a vast, sinking depression claimed him.

It was 9 o'clock that night when he finally gave up. He had drunk gallons of coffee, but eaten almost nothing. Katy had a supper waiting. It had been a day of anguish and prayer and impatience for her.

If ever in Katy's life she had rallied wildly against the fate that kept her chained to the cabin it was in those hours, when she knew a storm broke loose on Denny and she couldn't walk at his side. "Eat just a little, Denny," he said, with his elbow on the table, his fists pressed against his face, all the young sparkle gone from the bonny eyes. She saw his lips draw tightly. Tears rushed to her throat.

"Won't it all right, Denny?" He was afraid to speak; afraid to release for a moment the furious self control. Katy kept on with her questions. He must talk—must. Then he would feel better.

"Oh, God knows, Katy," he cried, impatiently. "Like as not it's all gone to smash. This puts them in the hole about $150,000. Each time he repeated these figures to himself an appalling heaviness seemed pressing him against the wall, closing the breath from him. What would Berne Melrose say?"

As he crossed from the kitchen to the space partitioned off as his room, he saw his suitcase in the corner. It was open, half packed. "What were you doing with this, Katy?"

"Well, you were going to the city today, Denny, don't you know? I didn't take the things out because I thought you might go tomorrow."

"Humph! Funny," he thought distantly as though he were but a spectator at his own affairs. "I was going to the city."

He had forgotten completely. He had sent no word, Petra would have waited. She must have grown angry when he didn't come. Three weeks ago he had disappointed her, too.

That was the night he and Norman had waited in the shed for Pedro Francia. But then he had sent her a telegram. Well—he went over and closed the suitcase. It wouldn't matter. He'd explain. After a little she'd understand.

At noon the next day Berne Melrose came into camp. He brought with him James Dunlap, Chishborough and two members of the irrigation board. The farmers were in an excited, belligerent frame of mind.

Chishborough, retained as consultant, went with Denny to the site. "That's good," he commented, noting the sacks of cement. The men were repairing the cofferdam. "What do you make of it, Brooks? Dissatisfied laborers?"

"Pretty big job for a few Mexicans to pull off, isn't it? I don't know. I'm completely baffled."

Dunlap and Melrose joined them. Melrose swung along, fists doubled, saying, "This is bad. This is hell.

This is a devil of a fix we're in." Dunlap, with his shiny face rather white, cocked his eyebrows. "You've had all kinds of troubles with the men, Mr. Brooks?"

"Comparatively little, Mr. Dunlap." "Carelessness, then, I suppose? You've used some dynamite, or blasting? I suppose some one carelessly left the dynamite near the dam?"

Denny's nerves were raw. He flung back at the lawyer: "You're mistaken, Dunlap. There was no dynamite left around."

"How do you account for it?" "I don't account for it. It happened. That's all I know."

"No offence at all, Mr. Brooks—just a suggestion. You understand we have to investigate this. We have to find the criminal, no matter who that criminal happens to be." The whispering voice curled softly. "Naturally our people must sit this to the bottom. Naturally they want to know why they should pay an added burden of two dollars, maybe two and a half, an acre. Quite a sum for the man with 500 acres to water. You don't object to our investigation, Mr. Brooks?"

"Object? Find the fellow who did this, Dunlap, and I'll let you know and him know how much I object." Denny tried to master a rising fury against the attorney. He had a goading desire to lean on him and twist his neck.

"Well, then, we'll dismiss the carelessness. If there was dynamite left around, you would have known of it."

"I most certainly would have known of it!" "I understand, Mr. Brooks, that you suspected a Mexican of breaking into the shed?"

"I did, before this happened." "Now have you some other explanation?"

"Now I have no explanation whatever." "But after the cement was watered, wasn't there some discontent among the laborers? You gave a speech, I understand, then you referred openly to your Mexican workers as 'greasers'."

The blood poured in a boiling surge to Denny's head. He reached over and gripped Dunlap by the coat, shaking him. "Are you trying to discredit me, sir? Are you? Out with it. What's your game?"

Denny felt Chishborough step between them, felt a hand on his arm. "Don't get excited, Brooks."

Dunlap laughed harshly. "No offence, Mr. Brooks. That's all right. I understand your position. Naturally, it's a little hard on you. Naturally, you hesitate to place responsibility. But, of course, you understand my position, too. Nothing personal at all; just common fair play to our people to put the blame wherever it may belong."

Chishborough stepped in with a curt "Insinuation won't help your investigation, Mr. Dunlap!"

Denny felt as though he had been plunged in acid. He was in this frame of mind when he went to the post-office. There was a night letter from Petra. He read it, his face blanching. Then he took the end and ripped it savagely in two.

BOY'S BAD COLD TURNED TO BRONCHITIS

The frequency with which bronchitis develops into pneumonia is appreciated by very few mothers. The danger of pneumonia is probably well understood too, but how many mothers take into consideration that a neglected attack of bronchitis frequently leads to this dangerous disease?

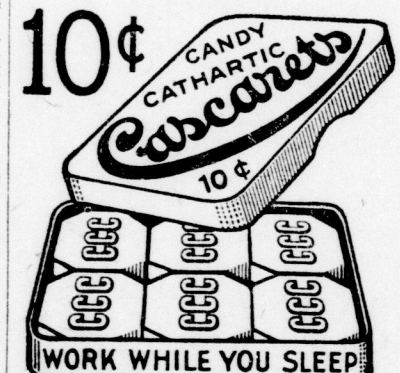

We would advise all mothers to give their children Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup the first moment they show any symptoms of a cold or cough, as by doing this they may save them from an attack of bronchitis or pneumonia.

Mrs. Lawrence Quick, Sandwich, Ont., writes: "My little boy, 6 years old, had a bad cold which turned to bronchitis. I tried everything I thought would be best for it, but did not see him getting any better."

CITY FATHERS SEEK WAY TO FINANCE NEW GARAGE

Board of Works Takes Up Many Problems At Meeting.

FAVOR NEW DISTRICT

Would Open New Section in Southwest of L. and P. S. R.

Further technical misbehavior on the part of the 1923 city councillors was "uncovered" at yesterday's session of the board of works, when the opinion was submitted that the City Engineer James Bell had been too imperative for them to take prompt action on the financing of the "civic garage" and storeroom, now under course of construction.

The total cost was roughly estimated at $25,000, and the committee recommended that request be made in the city of London bill for official sanction of the act of the councillors of last year who ordered the outlay.

City Engineer Near reported that the work was well under way, and that while their action might be termed unorthodox it was mighty good business.

May Raise Estimates.

City Clerk Baker explained that the council was bound to either provide for this expenditure in their estimates or else seek permission from the Ontario Legislature, through the medium of the city of London bill. In reply to Ald. Towse, as to what would happen if this authority was denied, he stated that the members of last year's council would likely be liable.

City Engineer Near related that the question had been considered by the council last fall, and it was thought that everything had been agreed as to the financing of the proposition. He explained that City Treasurer Bell had given assurance that it would not be necessary to sell the debentures, and that the financing could be done by the department.

The engineer did not favor placing the amount in the estimates, pointing out that in such an event the cost would be borne by all the ratepayers in the city, and that it was intended to meet the cost under the local improvement arrangement.

May Proceed.

It was also pointed out that the council could proceed without further local provision, and that the action was taken by some ratepayer, everything would be all right.

"It seems to me that the acts provide," said Ald. Haydon, "that almost anything that we can do can be done if any person takes objection."

Engineer Near blamed the act in this regard, comparing it with the public utility act, which states, "which no one seems sufficiently interested in to amend, while the public utilities have been modernized to enable them to make progress."

The committee recommended the approval of the Riverview Heights subdivisions, sanctioned by the town planners, being the first section of the river and west of the L. and P. S. right-of-way.

To Purchase Cleaner.

Upon suggestion from Ald. Allan Towse, the committee directed the city clerk to seek from the department of highways a cost of $100 each, if they would be unsuited for city work. It was recommended to the finance committee that these should be sold by the fire chief.

Estimates were presented, but referred to a special session a week hence.

A bill from the county authorities, $19,250, for maintenance of suburban roads during 1923, was passed for payment.

Tired, Nervous Mothers

are the direct cause of much unhappiness in our homes, their condition irritates and wears upon the husband and often ruins a child's disposition. This condition of the mother is often due to the fact that she makes her household duties and bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves. Every woman who finds herself in this condition should remember that statistics prove that 98 out of every 100 women who suffer from female ills are helped by Lydia E. TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, strained and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge with the tea and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrant.—Adv.

WILL ASK CITY CHANGE SYSTEM OF RELIEF WORK

Deputation Representing Social Service Will Wait On No. 1 Committee.

A committee representing the London Social Service Council will wait on number one committee of the city council tonight in order to urge a change in the present system of relief work in the city. The visit is the outcome of a meeting of the council held yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. to consider some means of co-ordinating the general relief work of the city.

At a meeting held last Thursday the committee of the Social Service Council decided that the work could be made more effective if all the relief bodies in the city organized under one central executive, and that much overlapping at present existing could be prevented. There are eleven bodies in the city and there are committees in charge of each zone.

It was felt that some of these zone committees were not functioning with full force, and some changes in the personnel was desirable.

The chief criticism to the co-ordinating of the city relief work and the work of the Social Service Council was taken by some members who stated that a change in the present bylaw, whereby the city relief officer is in the city, would pay out the city's money for this purpose, was necessary. They thought the city treasurer should be empowered to pay money on any order of the authorized person at the Social Service headquarters.

Alderman Douglass, who presided, agreed that this would mean a change in the present bylaw, and after a long discussion it was decided that the committee referred to should wait on the number one committee of the city council and place its problem before it. T. D. McCullough, secretary of the Social Service Council, will be suggested as the head of the new relief organization, and as the logical person to be authorized to make out orders for payment by the city treasurer.

The meeting was held in the city hall between 8,000 and $4,000, set aside in the estimates for 1924 for this work. He declared he was in sympathy with the movement to consolidate the relief work of the various societies in the city, and thought this would mean a great saving in expense and work. Alderman Douglass was in favor of a more systematic method of dealing with city relief. He believed, however, that the present system, whereby the relief officer is in the city, authorized person to pay out the city's money to any relief project, was the best arrangement.

Following action by all relief bodies with full co-operation, was the plan of organized work arrived at by the committee, and the appeal to the council is to further this object. Each body will report on all cases for relief coming to its notice, and headquarters will thus have the whole relief system under one roof and prevent overlapping. The committee chosen to wait on number one committee of the city council consists of Messrs. Calder, Mrs. Goodman, Miss Dunlevy and Miss Widenbaum.

It is reported also that the grocers have secured a sufficient number of names to carry their early closing bylaw at tonight's session of the finance committee. The support of at least two-thirds of all is required, and while no name was lacking yesterday, this will be secured tomorrow, according to Ald. Drake's report.

BRITAIN WAS BEST U. S. CUSTOMER DURING 1923

Report Shows Canada Improved Trade Relations With United States.

Associated Press Despatch. Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—Great Britain was again the best customer of the United States in 1923, it was shown today in commerce department figures for the 12 months ending December 31, but Canada recorded marked improvement in its trade relations with the United States.

Exports to Great Britain were $882,333,850, against $855,825,991 in 1922. United States imports from Great Britain were less than half of the exports, amounting to $404,114,419 in 1923, as compared with $356,567,428 in 1922. Canada was a close second to Great Britain, taking $651,520,821 of exports, and being the source of $415,981,082 of United States imports for the year. In 1922, exports to Canada were $576,636,790, and imports were $364,024,797.

Huron & Erie Debentures issued to Canadians increased $860,450, while Sterling Debentures show a gain of $562,850. At the close of 1923, debenture investments totalled $13,730,000. Savings deposits stood at $6,116,000, being an increase of $4,890,000. Net profits for the year were $570,036, an increase of $4,488 over the preceding year. Assets are up $1,655,000, and now total $26,822,000. To the reserve fund there has been added $150,000, bringing the total of that fund and the paid-up capital to $6,550,000.

There is a noticeable increase of $1,538,000 in first mortgage investments, which reach a total of $18,231,161. In this connection the directors of the Huron & Erie are pleased to announce that the company has made a record year for the year, either directly or indirectly, other than office premises. That announcement is the corporation's published financial report by the very definite statement that, as in other years, the few hundred shares of stock in its possession during 1923 were sold outright to individuals who had no connection of any nature with the company, and that the company had allowance for actual losses and the corporation has, as in the past, made ample provision for possible losses.

Liquid Position High. Following an established practice, the liquid position of the corporation has been maintained at a high point. Liquid assets, such as readily negotiable government and municipal bonds and debentures and cash on hand and in banks, were equal to 89 per cent of savings deposits.

The Canada Trust Company, under the control and management of the Huron & Erie, likewise has experienced outstanding success in marketing its guaranteed mortgage and trust certificates. At the close of 1923, funds invested by the public totalled $1,247,231—an increase of $1,464,587 in twelve months. The assets of the estates under administration show a gain of over half a million dollars, $25,000 was transferred from profits to the reserve fund, which now totals $725,000—being equivalent to 72 1/2 per cent of the paid-up capital. The net profits for the year—$103,278—were $1,294 greater than for 1922. Total assets have advanced from $13,218,000 to $15,253,900—a gain of $2,035,900.

The past year has been recorded in Canadian history as one of financial crisis—of the question of the security of savings deposits. The company provided a topic for conversation in home, factory and office. Throughout the whole period the Huron & Erie and the Canada Trust Company stood firm as a rock. The splendid reports now being published will undoubtedly strengthen and increase public confidence in these institutions which throughout the past 60 years have established for themselves an impregnable position as safe depositories of savings and investments of the public.

ART SOCIETY CHOIR GIVES BRILLIANT MUSIC RECITAL

Auditorium At Collegiate Is Filled To Hear Talented Artists.

MISS VRELAND SINGS

Perhaps never before has the Musical Art Society Choir been so nearly a perfect instrument as it was last night in a brilliant recital at the Central Collegiate Institute. Under the skilful baton of A. D. Jordan every section of the choir spoke truth and beauty, and the ensemble was heard as one voice. It was the first occasion on which the choir has appeared before the public this season, and speaks of long weeks of close study under able direction. To hear it, music lovers from all over the city came to fill the auditorium at the Collegiate, and expressed their appreciation of the program offered by energetic applause.

But the choir was by no means the only attraction of last evening. Its numbers were interspersed with solo numbers by Miss Jeannette Vreeland, a New York soprano, whose tones are rich and full in the lower register, and whose voice is so finely trained in stage presence. She is as dignified as the art which she interprets.

Miss Vreeland opened her program with a little group of songs which served to warm up her voice for the beautiful aria which followed, "Vissi d'Arte," from Puccini's immortal opera, "Tosca." In this number she first showed her dramatic power, the wide range of her voice and her power as a singer. Perhaps it was her best, as it was her biggest number of the evening. Miss Vreeland's upper tones are inclined to be thin, but her voice is so finely trained and her understanding of what she sings so thorough that her audience misses the weak places and listens in delight to her numbers.

Three beautiful songs, "La Lettre" (Aubert), "Villanelle des Petits Canards" (Chabrier) and "Chere Nuit" (Bachet), formed a second group on the program, while the third group included such interesting numbers as "When Celia Sings" (Moir), "Fair Tales" (Wolf), "A Memory" (Ganz) and "The Rink" (Laurie). Although the Tosca Aria stood out on the program as the most brilliant number of the evening, Miss Vreeland sang some of the softer, sweeter songs with the same skill and understanding. The choir opened the evening with Arne's "Rule Britannia" sung with patriotic fervor and precision. And then broke into the lovely Benet "The Rink" and "The Triumph of Orpheus."

One of the finest ensemble numbers was Tschakovsky's "O Best Are They" in which every section of the choir was heard in exquisite choral work. Taneyev's "Sunrise," a beautiful piece of muted work, followed and then Bantock's "On Himalaya." Stanford's "The Wind" and "Holms" "Swansea Town" and the final brilliant effort of the evening, Benedict's "Hunting Song."

The program altogether was excellent and the choir should be congratulated on its presentation.

SOCIAL SERVICE UNITY IS SOUGHT

Rev. Dr. W. F. Patterson Advocates Sterilization of All Incompetents.

WILL SOON REORGANIZE

Canadian Press Despatch. St. John, N.B., Jan. 29.—"Social science must supply the remedy for the menace to society through increase of the unfit, and there is no remedy except compulsory sterilization of the unfit," declared Rev. Dr. W. F. Patterson, principal of Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., addressing the Dominion Social Service Council here today. The Christian spirit alone was not sufficient to meet the world's needs, said Dr. Patterson. Social science was a guide to Christianity in determining right from wrong, but science without the Christian impulse, on the other hand, made possible the great war, and would plunge the world into other wars.

Decision to reorganize so as to provide for unification of endeavor was reached by the council this morning. TREASURER MAY REVISE ONTARIO'S SYSTEM OF TAXES

Contemplated Changes Will Not Be Made Public Until Budget Speech.

MANY COMPLAINTS

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Jan. 29.—Provincial Treasurer Price has in mind the revision of Ontario's system of taxation upon lines somewhat broader than heretofore attempted, with the end in view of more equitably distributing the incidence of the various levies made under provincial authority.

While the speech from the throne will undoubtedly deal in some manner with a proposal of such general importance, the real meat of the tax revision program will not be made fully public until the provincial treasurer delivers his budget speech. Throughout the province there has been considerable discontent with the operation of the amusement tax laws and it is complained from some in rural and semi-rural communities that inspectors have made a practice of levying this tax upon a wide variety of entertainments which should reasonably enjoy exemption.

In some localities even public school Christmas entertainments were subjected to the amusement tax levy, with the result that last year in some places these festive gatherings were abolished or curtailed.

Nominally the provincial treasurer has sole authority to decide upon such events as shall be subjected to exemption, but in practice it has been found that certain inspectors take this duty upon themselves. The last copy of the public accounts of the province shows that in salaries of collectors and officials, contingencies and printing a total of $43,761.18 was spent, while the revenue received from this source was reported as having been $1,362,072.44, leaving a net revenue of $1,318,311.26.

INDIAN WIFE FAILS TO SAVE HUSBAND

Battled Unsuccessfully Against Blizzards in an Effort To Reach Help.

Canadian Press Despatch. Regina, Sask., Jan. 29.—Unsuccessful efforts of a squaw against a driving blizzard and bitter cold to save her husband from freezing, are described in a report by Corp. Wm. M. Jennings, Turtford, Sask., received at provincial police headquarters today.

The report dealt with the death of John Metchowin, bush Indian on a trail near Bright Sand, January 15. With the squaw unable to speak English, the police had to turn to Rudolph Hansen, a Bright Sand settler, for details.

Metchowin, Hansen said, with his squaw and Peter Scarlet, another Indian, arrived at Hansen's house late in the afternoon of January 14. Shortly after sundown they continued on their way to the reservation in the face of a blizzard. Scarlet returned after a few minutes.

At 4 o'clock the following morning the squaw pounded on the door and entering, fell senseless. Later she recovered and directed Scarlet and Hansen where to find her husband. His body was located on the trail three-quarters of a mile distant. Beside the body were a few green sticks, the woman's effort to light a fire after she was unable to carry her husband any further.

The Right of Self-Determination

Dorothy Dix

Tells Story of Thomas, Tyrant, and Martha, His Wife

When Full Duty to Children Has Been Done, Wives, Like Small Nations, Have the Right of Self-Determination—They Can Quit on the Job, If Their Husbands Have Been Tyrants All These Years.

Martha was a pretty, warm-hearted, romantic young girl, full of high spirits and the joy of living. When she was twenty she fell in love with Thomas, who was an exemplary young man and married him.

It seemed an ideal match. One of those "and-they-were-married-and-lived-happily-ever-afterward" kind of the story books. Martha came a notable housewife. She was thrifty and economical. No house was more spic and span than hers. No man sat down to a better dinner than did her husband. And when the babies came no children were cared for more tenderly, none reared with more loving wisdom than hers. And through it all Martha kept herself up. No matter how she was cross and surly, she was always neatly and tastefully dressed. No matter what the stress under which she lived, she always turned a cheerful face on the world. No matter how hard she worked, she always found time for reading.

Thomas prospered, as he was bound to do with such a helpmeet. He was sober and moral and, to all outward seeming, a model husband. But he inflicted on his family all the meanness of a little and mean nature. In his home he was a grinding tyrant, who delighted in showing his power by denying his wife and children every pleasure and thwarting their every plan.

He was stingy to the point of miserliness. He raged like a mad man when the household bills came in, and every cent for any extra expenditure had to be coaxed and cajoled and jolted out of him. He was cross and surly and grouchy. He would spend days in a frozen silence in which no one dared to move a step for fear of further offending him, and he sent the domestic atmosphere down to zero. The sound of his key in the door at night still the prattle on the children's lips, and sent the cat scurrying to the cellar. And the family looked forward to Sundays and holidays, when the head of the house would be at home, as days of dread and doom.

It did not take much knowledge of the real Thomas to dissipate Martha's ideal of the lover she had married. It did not require many years of browbeating and parsimony and injustice to kill her love for him. But by that time Martha had given hostages to fortune, and she had the grit and the courage to carry on for the sake of her children. She stood between them and their father. She got things out of him by hook or crook for them. She softened their lives as much as possible by her boundless love and service. She literally offered herself up to them as a living sacrifice. They left home and got away from father as soon as they could. Some of them are married and have homes of their own. The others are settled in business. But they are all away from father, where they can live their own lives in their own way.

And Martha wants to go, too. She also desires a little freedom, a little peace, a little happiness. But when she tells her children that she wants to leave the man that they fled from, they are horrified.

They tell her that she will disgrace them. They say that people will talk. They say that if she has stood living with father for twenty-five years, they don't see why she can't stand it until the end. They think it shameful for people who have been married so long to separate.

These selfish young people, to save their own faces and to avoid the unpleasantness of having family affairs gossiped about, are eager to sacrifice mother. They are not willing to live with father, but they have no hesitation in dooming their mother to that fate. And when they say that, because she has endured twenty-five years of marriage with him, she should suffer it on to the bitter last of her life, they are talking foolishness. They might as well say that a prisoner who has been in jail for twenty-five years should refuse freedom. They forget that mother has served out her term at hard labor.

Nevertheless, Martha is bewildered about what she should do. She does not know whether she should listen to life calling to her or to her children. She is only forty-six years old, strong and vigorous of mind and body, with many years left before her in which to be happy or miserable. Which shall she choose?

I say she has the right of self-determination. She has done her full duty to her children. She has no duty whatever to the man who has shamed her no kindness, no tenderness, no consideration. That from her from every obligation to him, and if she is wise, she will take what is left for her of life and do with it as she chooses, and at least be free from the daily harassment of living under the same roof with a man she has come to loathe and despise.

There are many Thomases in the world, but, believe me, the number would be small if every man realized that Patient Martha was going to give notice and quit as soon as the children are grown, unless he made the wife job attractive to her.

Trader Gets Into Mischief and Steals the Man-Bird's Screws

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Trader the Wood Rat was finding the great man-bird's work interesting thing he had ever visited. The men who worked on it by day were repairing it. They had taken off the broken wing, and they had taken apart some other parts of the great machine. One night Trader discovered in and around the great man-bird many queer, hard things, which were wholly new to him. He knew they were hard and not good to eat because he tried them with his teeth. Some were bright and shiny, and some were not, but all were very interesting. Trader's big, dark eyes sparkled as he looked at them. He would take them home to play with.

Now, these things were nuts and washers and screws and other small parts to be used in repairing the aeroplane. Because that was such a lonely spot and there was no one likely to meddle with things, all the small parts had been left lying about when the men began their work at the end of the day. Some were in small boxes which had been left open. Some were in the aeroplane.

Trader first picked out the shiniest pieces. These were the new parts that had been brought. One by one he carried them over to his home. All night long he worked. He emptied one small box of screws. They were bright, shiny screws, and they delighted Trader's heart. But Trader is not a thief like Robber the Brown Rat. He emptied that little box of screws, but in their place he put a lot of pebbles. He was trading. He was trading pebbles for screws.

Back and forth, back and forth between his home and the great man-bird Trader travelled all night long. He not only emptied that little box of screws, but he emptied another small box of nuts and washers. This box he also filled with pebbles. It was a busy night for Trader. It was a very busy night.

With the coming of daylight Trader remained at home. You know he doesn't like to be abroad in daylight. In his home he gloated over his new treasures. He was trading them and playing with them. When at last he curled up to sleep he dreamed of these treasures and of other treasures yet to be obtained.

What he didn't dream of was the trouble he had caused. At first those screws were not missed. Then one of the men at work on the great man-bird needed some of those screws and went to get them. Such a funny look as passed over his face when he picked up that little box.

"What kind of a joke is this?" he demanded.

The aviator, the friend of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse, who was at work on another part of the aeroplane, looked up. "I don't know any joke," said he.

"Then why is this box filled with pebbles instead of screws?" demanded the other man.

Just then another of the workmen wanted a nut, and in his turn he found nothing but pebbles. He couldn't go on with his part of the work without a nut, and no nut was to be found.

Every one stopped working and began to hunt for those screws and nuts, and, of course, they hunted in vain. What had become of them was a mystery. They had been there one day before, and now they were gone.

(Copyright, 1924, by T. W. Burgess.)

The next story: "The Puzzled Workmen."

When Lady Elizabeth and Lady Mary Byng left London early last night, spending the day with Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Smith at the "Tudor Lynn" South London, they left with happy memories of the city they had visited. Lady Elizabeth was amazed at the size and beauty of London. She had no idea, she said, that little London was so large. Nieces of Baron Byng of Vimy and Lady Evelyn, who came with them in October, they have been spending the winter months. Lady Elizabeth and Lady Mary were especially interested in the War Memorial Hospital for Sick Children. And yesterday they visited the hospital, making a personal call on many of the small patients. Before they left the institution they inscribed their names in the visitors' book.

London had another special interest for the young guests, for while visiting at Rideau Hall in Ottawa last September, with their father and mother, the Earl and Countess of Strathford, they had as a fellow guest, Mrs. Nichol of Victoria, B. C., wife of the Hon. Mr. Nichol, and formerly Miss Quila Moore of this city.

Interested in Government. Yesterday's visitors, although they are but girls in their early twenties, are keenly interested in the affairs of the Empire and chatted intelligently about the new MacDonald-Labor government. In the old land, they are very close friends of the royal family and have been educated in the same sensible way as the royal Mary and the daughters of the royal George. They learned how to type so that she might relieve a man for service in France.

Absolutely. Lady Elizabeth and Lady Mary are keen sportswomen. They love to ride to the hounds and are enthusiastic of the hunt and golf players. Their love of sport has come with them to Canada and they have become proficient in the art of skiing and tobogganing. They are in love with Canada and are now spending their second winter here. Mrs. E. B. Smith entertained at a buffet luncheon at the Kennels in their honor. The guests, who were guests at the early part of the afternoon playing Mah Jongg, Mrs. Smith received in a handsome gown of black and white, while the guests of honor wore smart frocks. Lady Elizabeth in a navy blue tailored costume made with cape effect, and Lady Mary wearing a simple navy blue gown with lace and red trimmings. The large rooms at the Hunt Club were effectively decorated with pale golden daffodils for the occasion. A few games of Mah Jongg had been enjoyed. The guests of honor were motorized to "Tuelly" where they were entertained at the tea hour.

Luncheon Guests. Among the guests were Mrs. Wia Hendrie of Hamilton, the Hon. Mrs. Shuttlesworth King, Mrs. Harley Brown, Miss Margaret Brown, Mrs. Charlie Hunt, Miss Allen, Miss Miss Audrey Farncombe, Mrs. Gordon Hunt, Mrs. John I. A. Hunt, Miss Wescott, Miss Annie Macbeth, Miss Marion Beck, Miss Doris Bolton, Miss Kathleen Cronin, Miss Little, Miss Margaret Scutcher, Miss Donna Waller, Miss Kittermaster, Mrs. Harry Carling, Mrs. (Major) Hunter, Miss Ruth Robinson, Mrs. Frank Ware, Mrs. Victoria, Mrs. Hemmatt, Mrs. C. The automobile has appeared in small numbers in Yucatan, but their introduction has made, but their decrease in the antiquated vehicles which have been generally used in that country, which are drawn by horse and mule. These are of four kinds. They are the carreta, the coche, the volan, and the volante. The first is a heavy, two-wheeled truck, the second, a rather light, four-wheeled rubber-tired, rigid-topped carriage for use in cities and towns; the third, a heavy two-wheeled, rigid-topped carriage with body supported on heavy leather straps, for travel on the rocky country roads; and the fourth is a very heavy four-wheeled vehicle, somewhat like a victoria, but with the body supported on heavy leather straps, used for rough travel in the rural districts.

Leap Year Charity Ball To Aid Soldiers' Children

Proceeds Will Go Towards Providing Bursaries and Overseas Scholarships For Soldiers' Sons and Daughters.

The members of the joint committee of the Princess Patricia and Campbell Becher Chapter, I.O.D.E., are busy making further plans for the charity ball, which is being held Feb. 24th, in the Winter Gardens. The proceeds of the ball are to be used to raise the quota of these chapters for the National Educational I.O.D.E. War Memorial. If each member of every I.O.D.E. chapter in Canada, contributed $10 towards this national fund, the total objective of the memorial, $500,000 would be raised. The donations from the chapters are being collected by the local chapters. The $500,000 fund is to be used in three ways: first towards bursaries for sons and daughters of deceased and totally disabled soldiers, who will be placed in Canadian universities. Twenty-six students were sent to Canadian colleges this year through this fund. Second, to be used for overseas scholarships, with the understanding that the student returns to Canada to teach, and graduates of Canadian universities have already received a year's tuition in English universities, and are now teaching in Canadian colleges. The third method is the placing of the war memorial pictures in the Canadian schools. These sets of pictures, three hundred in all, have been copyrighted by the I. O. D. E. Each collection contains 18 pictures, the total amount of procuring and distributing amounting to $40,000. Three hundred of these sets are being placed in Ontario schools, and London is to receive three.

DISTRICT PRESIDENT ADDRESSES INSTITUTE

Interesting Topic Presented At Meeting of Women's Organization.

Special to The Advertiser. Tillamook, Jan. 29.—The regular meeting of the local Women's Institute was held in the Baptist Sunday school room this afternoon with a very large attendance. Mrs. V. A. Sinclair occupied the chair and a splendid address was given by the district president, Mrs. (Dr.) Downing of Ottaville, on "How Canada Is Governed." Mrs. Adam Inch of Hamilton gave a short address and conveyed greetings from the South West worth Institute, the pioneer organization of the province. A splendid musical program was rendered and arrangements were completed for the concert to raise funds for the soldiers' memorial. Died in Detroit. The funeral of the late J. W.

Forbes, aged 56 years, who passed away at his home in Detroit on Sunday, after a very short illness, was held from the home of Mr. Wm. Gaskin to the town cemetery for interment. King Hiram Masonic Lodge, No. 78, A. F. and A. M., conducted the services at the grave. The late Mr. Forbes was a member of Highland Park Lodge, No. 463, and two brethren from that lodge acted as pallbearers, along with Bros. Dr. McQueen, H. Johnston, S. Hogarth and T. W. R. Taylor. The late Mrs. Forbes was buried here, about four months ago.

"Public" Works.

According to a cartoon in the Toronto Globe, Toronto is waiting for Ottawa to build a bridge in connection with its harbor improvements.

It is largely a local undertaking, and the advantage will accrue to Toronto. It takes a lot of reasoning to show why public money, gathered from Vancouver to Halifax, should be used for such a purpose.

The same rule applies to many things which have for a long time passed under "public works."

A great deal of the expense has been for plans that were largely local in their purpose, and the only way in which they could be classed as public works was because the public provided the money.

Claiming the North.

Secretary Denby of the U. S. navy announces that the big airship Shenandoah is going to make a trip to the north to photograph—and presumably claim—lands that are adjacent to that section of United States.

There would be no particular harm in the trip, but the Washington authorities would be well advised if they were to state quite definitely to their neighbors of the north what they have in view, why they want more land in the north, and what right they have to expect that they can go ahead and lay claim to it.

Canada extends about as far north as it is possible to go, and Canadian jurisdiction has been well established in that country.

The time for explaining is before the trip starts, and there should be the utmost frankness on the part of Washington, and a willingness to state just what she has in mind.

Stolen Property.

A necklace of pearls, formerly the property of the royal household in Russia, has been sold in New York for a sum not far removed from half a million dollars.

The family to which it belonged have all been murdered and their jewels stolen.

It would be interesting to know how the stolen property of a murdered family can be sold in polite society.

$100,000 for $100,000,000.

Washington is trying to find the particulars in connection with a loan of $100,000 to the former secretary of the interior, Albert B. Fall, for the granting of very valuable oil concessions in California.

Mr. Doherty, who secured the lease, made public property of the fact that he considered it possible to make $100,000,000 out of the deal, involving as it did territory held in reserve by the U. S. government as a naval oil reserve.

The scandal—and it is a scandal—will not make good material for the Coolidge campaign, and the Republicans are passing an uneasy time waiting for the outcome of the action by the senate and the courts.

It is one of those cases that cannot be "explained." Mr. Fall was a public man, dealing with property that had been held in public trust during the terms of Presidents Wilson, Taft and Roosevelt.

The $100,000 handed to him without security and without interest is looked upon as a bribe made to secure the oil concession.

A scandal of this sort is just what the Democrats were looking for, and apparently it arrived in plenty of time for the presidential election.

Some Changes Needed.

It is a hard matter for a city council to do the thing it should do. Consider the financing of the civic garage and storehouse. London has a lot of equipment used in carrying on public works, and it was scattered; no place to check it up, make repairs and have a system that would operate to prevent loss.

So the 1923 board of works decided to build such a place, the estimated cost being about $25,000. Now it is discovered that the council had no authority to do the work, and once more the blame comes out that the members may be liable for the cost themselves.

It might be well for those using this threatening phrase to state that there is nothing in it. It is on a parallel with operating for appendicitis on a man suffering from toothache.

The Municipal Act should be made workable on this point. This storehouse needed financing, and there are two ways to get money: (1) put the amount in the estimates, or (2) issue debentures.

This storehouse was not a local improvement such as a pavement that could be charged on a frontage basis, therefore no debentures could be issued. Neither was it of general interest because it was to house equipment used in the carrying out of local improvement contracts. It was just in between the two, and there was no place for it to go.

Yet, for all that, it is a necessary work, and the board of works of 1923 were right in going ahead. But if some ratepayer with a penchant for technical points chose to take up the case, he could no doubt puzzle the board of works by asking them to quote chapter and verse telling why or how they could do this work.

The point should be made clear, and besides the public is not impressed nor are aldermen alarmed by the cry that they will be liable for the cost of the work themselves.

The Municipal Act needs a little shaking up to make it possible for aldermen to do the things they should do and impossible for them to do the things they should not do.

The Income Tax.

The movement, started in St. Thomas, for doing away with the municipal income tax, and likely to be taken up elsewhere, is bound to enlist a following because there is some reason to object to paying two taxes on the one income.

Two courses are open, (1) to cut down the expense so that taxation will be less; or (2) to cut down the taxes so that expenditure will have to be less.

For some years all our spending bodies have been casting about for new ways to bring in more revenue. Cities have indulged in this by taking as many things as possible out of the general rate and putting them on as special frontage or service charges, and yet allowing the general rate to remain as high as ever.

The provincial governments have reached out for amusement taxes, for taxes on real estate transfers, and all manner of things. The federal government has touched incomes, business in nearly every way.

Once a source of taxation has been exploited and has proved its ability to yield a revenue, it is a hard matter to pry that source away from the collector of taxation. The cry for more revenue to provide for more expenditure goes on, and the known source has got to keep on providing.

The quest for more revenue and new revenue has run its race. The way to reduce municipal income tax is to take away the need for it. Were it reduced on any other basis it would simply mean shifting the tax to some other landing spot.

Children, Beware!

A special menu for children will be used on the dining cars of the National Railways. It will be an up-to-date contrivance with a chart at the side showing what children should eat in order to grow like the National earnings.

But the average youngster never gets inside a dining car. There is still enough thrift in the land to pack salmon sandwiches, bananas and the odd piece of cake in a shoe box, the eating starting about the time the train starts to move.

And it will take a lot of finely designed menu cards to batter down this last remnant of national thrift that makes a railway ticket possible.

Cannot Be Justified.

Toronto Globe pictures Premier Ferguson as having to scrub up the legislature after it being used by Hon. E. C. Drury.

The Toronto paper should go ahead and specify what it means by all the dirty footprints Mr. Ferguson is trying to scrub off.

The inference that Mr. Drury left a record that Hon. Howard Ferguson is called upon to clean up is an insult to Mr. Drury that has no substance in fact.

Note and Comment.

By offering a peace prize Mr. Bok appears to have set himself up as a target for everything outside of a sixteen-inch shell.

Regina Leader says the Manufacturers' Association was wrong in saying "Our taxes are staggering." The western paper contends it is the taxpayers who are doing the staggering.

The young lady going to Technical School today learns to cook and sew; the young man's hand is trained so that he can build a house. Now, then, if Cupid can find time to walk around the building all should be well.

Two young Toronto men are in court over a shooting charge. They were keeping company with the same girl and had a fight to see which was the better man. The young lady, not the court, should be able to settle this question.

HYMNS OF HATE.

I Hate Bachelors.
They're usually such nasty guys;
They smooth their hair and roll their eyes;
They go on sprees and criticize
The marriage pact.
And when I flirt with maidens fair
They order me to "take the air."
And just because I'm wed they dare
To crab my act.

I Hate Husbands.
The henpecks who avoid all strife;
The peepers of married life;
Who always call their wives "the wife."
Or "meet the Missus."
They do housework without a sigh
And by their high example, try
To make my wife believe that I
Should wash the dishes.

I Hate Sheiks.
They wear such gorgeous, natty clothes
That make mine look like—goodness knows!
They manicure their hands and toes
And swank about.
The girls all claim they never fall
For any of these sheiks at all.
Yet at each dance and every ball
They cut me out.

Love built a little bungalow
To please his Lady Fair,
And planted a young columbine
And planted violets there.
And then a little balcony
He built beneath the oak
Where she could hear the oriole
The moment she awoke.

Complete it stood, within, without—
No detail he forgot.
In June a hundred roses bloomed
About the tiny lot.
Aglow with pride he gave her all,
And said, "It's yours, my star."
She sighed and whimpered,
Where is the motor car?"

London Man Believes That an Injustice Was Done to the Secretary of the Miners.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—A more daring disregard of the liberty of the people of Canada could not be imagined than the trial and conviction of James B. MacLachlan, former secretary of District No. 26, U. M. W. of A.

MacLachlan was tried, convicted and sentenced to two years' imprisonment in Dorchester Penitentiary, on the trial taking place at Halifax, N. S., contrary to the meaning of the British North America act, which lays down that the trial must take place at the scene of the offence.

MacLachlan should have been tried at Glace Bay, N. S., hundreds of miles from Halifax, and had he been tried there, he would have been found "not guilty."

Are the people of Canada going to allow their liberty to be thus trampled upon without any protest?

I do not wish to enter fully into details of the case, except to show that a great injustice was done to this man, and that an injury to one is an injury to the whole.

Yours truly,
LOVER OF JUSTICE.

Old Member of Fraternal Society States His Experience in the Matter of Rates.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—Having noticed several letters in your valuable paper regarding the increase of insurance rates in fraternal societies, I would like to state some facts in connection with my case.

About 34 years ago I became a member of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, and have since paid all demands on me for insurance rates and lodge dues. About ten years ago our insurance rates were raised, and we were given to understand that these rates would place the order on a solvent basis, and that no further increases would be required.

I am on the verge of 70 years of age, and as insured for $2,000. This will now cost me $140 a year, which I am unable to pay, therefore, I am forced to drop out, and my family, whom I was trying to protect, will lose this money.

According to the laws of this order, when a member arrived at the age of 70 he could draw a percentage annuity of his insurance. This has now been wiped out.

Why this order is charging over twice as much as other friendly societies I cannot understand, and there is no guarantee that their rates may not be further increased.

Surely this should be a warning to the young men not to make such a venture as we old members have as they have no guarantee that they would not be treated in the same manner.

THE UNEXPECTED TRIAL.

But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed.—Luke x., 33.
The Samaritan who rode down from Jerusalem to Jericho had nothing to do in the morning but follow that highway and take care that his beast did not stumble or hurt itself, or get tired out so that it could not finish the journey.

He was just a "solitary horseman," and all that he needed to do was to have a good seat in the saddle and a light hand on the bit.
But at noon, when he came to the place where that unknown victim of the "hold-up" gang lay senseless and bleeding beside the road—then, in a moment, the Samaritan's duty changed, and God called him to be a rescuer, a nurse, a helper of the wounded.

Read the lives of the heroes of faith, and you will find that they are all like this.

They set out to perform, not one task only, but anything that God may command.
They accept Christ's commission, and set sail upon an unknown ocean with sealed orders.
That takes courage.

It is a risk.

But for the spiritual as truly as for the temporal life the rule is, "Nothing venture, nothing win."
And is it not infinitely nobler and more inspiring to enter upon a career which runs so close to God that he can speak into it and fill it with new duties at any moment than to make a contract to do a certain thing for a certain price, as if God were a manufacturer and we were his mill hands?

It seems to me that this is the very proof and bond of friendship with God, this calling of faith to an unlimited and undefined obedience. (Copyright, 1924, by The Republic Syndicate.)

CAN EUROPE HOLD TOGETHER?

Chapter XX: Is Russia Coming Back?

This series of articles is a simple but accurate explanation of world conditions, from the point of view of a distinguished specialist. These articles are the result of his most recent tour of Europe, made especially for securing the data—a trip on which he visited sixteen countries, talked with the premiers of half of them and the finance ministers of twelve, and in field observations secured a mass of facts. Mr. Sinclair says finance and economics can be told so simply a child can grasp them. His articles prove his claim.

By JOHN F. SINCLAIR.

I saw Alexander Kerensky in July. He is the editor of a Russian daily paper in Berlin, where 400,000 Russians now live. Still a young man, in his early forties, possessing all the fire and enthusiasm of youth, he has become one of the most interesting personalities in Europe.

"I do not know how long the present government of Russia will last," declared this former premier of Russia, "but I do know that Russia will live. She has not yet started to write her name on history's page. Russia will come back."

Before the war, Russian exports exceeded imports. In 1913 her exports totalled 782 millions of dollars and her imports totalled 707 millions of dollars. You see she had no problem involved in paying her way. More than half of all her exports in that year were foodstuffs. From 1914 to 1917 she imported more than she exported. Since that time both her imports and exports have dwindled almost to nothing. Russia since 1917 has not been a factor in international trade. As a result, prices of grains have greatly increased on the world market, and the American and Canadian farmers have thereby received higher prices for their products. The return of the Russian grain to the European market from this year on, as now, seems very probable, can only spell lower prices to the farmers of America and Canada.

She has many problems to solve. One of the most serious of them is that of transportation. Before the war, the old imperial government gave 500 million dollars a year from the national treasury to assist the railroads and to keep the railroad rates down to a low figure. Now after the wreck of war and revolution, the department of transport in 1922 asked the department of finance for 33 million dollars and received 15 million. Still the railroads attained 33 per cent of their pre-war transport in 1922. The program for the next three years calls for 508 new locomotives and the repairing of 1,800 old ones. Both freight and passenger service are greatly improved over what they were two years ago, but conditions are very serious.

Trusts Run State Industries.

The state-owned industries of Russia are now operated and managed by so-called "trusts," of which there are 459, covering 4,425 shops employing 818,000 workers. These trusts are directly responsible to the supreme council of national economy. The entire profit of each trust is turned over to the state treasury, but the state, as such, is not responsible for the debts and obligations of the trust. The trust is responsible for its obligations only to the limit of its capital. Each trust is managed by a board of directors, appointed by the supreme council of national economy, which interferes very little with detail operation. For the year 1922 most of the trusts in the lighter industries show a profit, while those in the heavy ones, like iron and steel, show a loss.

Seventy millions of dollars' worth of products were taken from industry by the government in the first half of 1922, for which no compensation was given. Not until October, 1922, did all government departments pay for all the goods that they ordered. This meant a very severe strain on certain of the trusts. The lighter industries began to improve first. The trusts handling cotton, woolen, sugar, furs, rubber, brass, paper, tobacco, matches, chemicals and leather, are today showing a profit on the national books. No great credit problem is involved in the handling of these. Russian matches are being exported and are under-selling those produced in a pound line 1923. Cotton production is now about two-thirds of pre-war production. Still Russia must import 35,000 tons of cotton for 1923, and also 5,000 tons of wool. The lighter industries are coming back. It is the heavy ones that cause the real problem.

Of the 274 men now on the highest boards of the department of government industries, 204 have had university education. Before the revolution 75 of this number were technical engineers, while another 51 of them were managers in private industries.

Steel Production.

In the coal industry production has increased during the past year from 25 to 35 per cent of the pre-war production. The iron and steel industry is in the worst shape, with less than 10 per cent of pre-war production. The belief in Russia is that these industries will be the last to revive, for the credit problem with them has not been satisfactorily solved.

This brings us to the government budget.

In 1913 it took 150 millions of dollars to run the government of Russia, and there was no deficit. In 1923 the expenses are expected to be 575 millions of dollars, and the income 480 millions. The difference, 95 millions, is made up by the government issuing new, unsecured paper rubles. In 1920 Russia raised less than 100 per cent of her expenses. In 1921 this was increased to 45 per cent. In 1922 she raised 60 per cent of her expenses, and in 1923 she expects to raise 85 per cent. Beginning with 1925, the commissioner of finance expects to make his receipts balance with his expenditures. Until then Russia will continue to issue new paper money (rubles) just as she has since the revolution, and the paper ruble will continue to go down in value. In 1913 an American dollar would purchase two rubles. Now it will purchase 180 millions of them.

At first the Soviet government deliberately debased the currency, so as to eliminate money as the medium of exchange. It now sees the fallacy and the utter futility of such a policy. Here again Russia has completely changed fronts. The government of Russia is giving to no problem more study than that of money and credit. Recently it secured the services of Professor Gustav Cassel of Sweden to act as financial adviser. Professor Cassel is recognized as one of the greatest authorities in the world on the whole subject of money and credit. As a result, the State Bank of Russia has been reorganized, with a paid-up capital and surplus of 30 million dollars. It has now 220 branches scattered throughout Russia.

Believe Now in Gold Standard.
"Yes, we believe in the gold standard. The State Bank of Russia in issuing its new money is proceeding on that basis," declared Mr. Scheiman, president of the State Bank. "The law under which we are organized requires us to carry 20 per cent gold reserve against our total bank notes issued and outstanding. We have today 40 per cent, or twice our legal requirements. The new Russian money, the czernovetz, is equal to 10 gold rubles ($5.15), and is the best secured currency in Europe today."

On Aug. 16, 1923, the State Bank of Russia had issued and outstanding $81,000,000 in new czernovetz money notes. This amount is secured by $26,000,000 in gold reserve. This is a gold reserve equal to 44 per cent of the notes outstanding. The new czernovetz is now quoted on the London market at a higher figure than the English pound sterling.

"Mr. Scheiman, you will give me gold if I present a czernovetz to your bank for payment?" I asked. "No, we will not part with our gold. But I will give you dollars or English pound sterling for your czernovetz. That should be satisfactory." Of course, Russia's paper money outstanding in 1913 was worth $25 millions of dollars, and she had nearly 600 millions of dollars in gold to back it up. Today she is far down the economic and financial scale. But the problem is less to determine how far down she is, than to see if, economically and financially speaking, she is moving in the right direction. Her record since March, 1921, shows that she is. She is recovering her financial position.

Russia, the rich child of nature, has been forced to play a lone hand during the past six years. Gradually she has come to realize that her salvation would not come from without, but from within Russia. That she is on the road to economic and financial recovery within her country, there can be no doubt. She has resolutely set to work to bring her government expenses within her receipts, she has re-established the gold standard in order to rebuild her shattered machine of international finance. Her success along these two lines during the past two years has been very striking. Russia is coming back.

I left Russia with one thought uppermost in my mind: Russia is now far more able to live without Europe than Europe is to live without Russia.

London Juniors' Defeat Means Two Group Titles For Woodstock

WOODSTOCK KIDS WINCH GROUP BY WINNING, 8 TO 4

London Juniors Go Under Before Red and White Attack.

FIRST PERIOD EVEN

Work of Moore and Robson For Losers Is Outstanding.

Special To The Advertiser.

Woodstock, Jan. 29.—Woodstock O. H. A. Juniors clinched their group by handing London an 8-4 drubbing here tonight. If the losers had been able to hold the Red and White, who went on a goal-batting rampage at the beginning of the second, the count would have been a tie. It turned out the locals brought across their victory within the first five minutes of play in this period, when they ran in four. The score board read two all at the end of the first, and both teams netted the same number in the final canto.

London took the offensive at the commencement, but the excursions were checked, and after five minutes Smith broke through and tallied. A minute later Goyer batted the disc to the London goal post, from where it glided into the twine. Rooson soon scored for London, and the locals let loose with attacks which kept Tozer on his prayer bones. Monahan's counter came with four minutes to go and the count was tied. The Londoners were dazed at Woodstock's rally to open the second, and before the spell passed away the score board was reading 6-2, and remained that way until the end. A parade to the penalty box featured the final act. Moore, Barrett, MacMillan, Goyer and Jimmie Smith all being sent to the end. MacMillan netted the first tally about the middle of the canto, and then the Londoners broke through for a couple, Robson counting on a volley from center, which caught MacMillan snoring, and MacMillan ticked the twine on a shot outside the local defence. Jemmett's goal with two minutes left resulted from a nice combination with Whitehead.

The lineup: London—Goal, Tozer; defence, Moore and Robson; center, Barrett; Adams, MacMillan and Monahan; subs, Bamby, Howard and Biggs. Woodstock—Goal, Murdoch; defence, Pascoe and McCartney; center, Jemmett; wings, Smith and Goyer; sub, Whitehead.

Referee—J. Richardson, Ingersoll.

Lockey Mount, for "Sand" Woods, a utility man who can fill any of the infield or outfield positions. Eldridge, the left-hand clouter, who was secured in a tangle for Dolly Gray, refuses to report at all, and the deal is off. Eldridge will likely remain with Rocky Mount and Gray is again the property of the Hamilton club, but West will likely find another spot to place him.

There is some doubt as to Ted Kaylor returning to Hamilton after all. Wetzel announced a few days ago that he would bring Kaylor back, as he is a good hitter and has all ways been well over the 300 mark in the M.-O. League and generally manages to be up around the top of the list for driving in runs. But Wetzel is dickering with the Galveston club of the Texas League for Charlie Bettie, who is also a great slugger and considered a faster fielder than Kaylor. If Bettie is secured, Kaylor will be sold or traded.

Wetzel has received applications from Walter Malmquist and Clehlow, two former players who are free agents, looking for a chance on the Hamilton team, but it is not likely that either will be signed, as Wetzel is bent on getting young players.

"Bill" Whaley, former Bay City outfielder and pitcher, who was a favorite in the M.-O. League for a number of seasons, will toll in far off fields this coming season. Reporting back last fall to the St. Louis Browns, Bill was figured to cut some ice with the team, but Manager Sisler upset all expectations last week when he negotiated a deal that sends the former Mint star to Los Angeles. With Whaley were traded Cedric Durr, substitute first sacker; Wayne Wright, Charles Root, pitchers, and "John" Billings, catcher. They were traded for George Lyons, pitcher, and Tony Rego, catcher, star battery of the Angels' team.

There seems no reason why more pitchers cannot be developed if more time were paid to them. Young pitchers of Woodstock were picked up over night, and was mighty handy for Woodstock for the one season.

Pitching is the hard thing to get in amateur baseball just as it is in the professional pastime. Hurling is the one big outstanding feature, and if there isn't pitching there isn't much of a ball game.

Baseball is different than almost any other game in this respect.

Woodstock and St. Thomas are waging a verbal warfare over amateur baseball. St. Thomas accused Woodstock of "cold feet," and then accused the locals of "hot feet."

Woodstock says nasty things about St. Thomas and the "arabitis" they were afflicted with before Jan. 1. The St. Thomas man returns the fray with more bombs, a few of which follow:

"He credits Secretary Stan Reid of London with having resigned because there was too much St. Thomas in the loop," and cruelly claims that the St. O. B. L. could easily beat St. Thomas on a "Baseball League." We do not pretend to know so much about Mr. Reid as this Woodstock pen-pusher. We do not know why Mr. Reid resigned, but we do know that London took the offensive at the commencement, but the excursions were checked, and after five minutes Smith broke through and tallied.

A minute later Goyer batted the disc to the London goal post, from where it glided into the twine. Rooson soon scored for London, and the locals let loose with attacks which kept Tozer on his prayer bones. Monahan's counter came with four minutes to go and the count was tied. The Londoners were dazed at Woodstock's rally to open the second, and before the spell passed away the score board was reading 6-2, and remained that way until the end.

A parade to the penalty box featured the final act. Moore, Barrett, MacMillan, Goyer and Jimmie Smith all being sent to the end. Calls Gans-Nelson Fight Greatest Go Ever Staged Rickard Recalls Unfair Tactics Used by White Man Against Negro.

WARNED REPEATEDLY

First Taste of Promoting Started Tex On Road To Present Success.

By TEX RICKARD.

When George Siler appeared in the ring that September afternoon, eighteen years ago, and called Joe Gans and Bat Nelson to the center for final instructions, I was a much relieved man. The fight now was a certainty. I could sit back and see every blow without another worry about the preliminaries.

I was really interested in the fight itself as much as in the promotion. I wanted to see every blow.

Just as Gans was about to pull on his gloves we passed up a telegram to McDonald who in turn gave it to him. It was from Joe's old mother in Baltimore and the wording became historic. One phrase of it is today a by-word in sport. It read:

"Joe: The eyes of the world are on you. Everybody says you ought to win. Young Jimmie Jackson will tell me the news, and you bring home the bacon."

Another telegram that caused a big laugh was from John L. Sullivan: "Story I can't be at the fight. It ought to be a corker. My regards to all, especially the Sullivans."

Larry Sullivan was Gans' financial backer and took an active part in the darkie's corner. He was also master of ceremonies.

In presenting the fighters to the crowd the announcer warned against disorder, declaring that there were three hundred armed deputies in the crowd; if called on they would mean business. He was right, too.

That crowd was a picturesque assemblage. There were miners, cowboys, bootblacks, distinguished men from all cities and fully three hundred women.

From the start these women appeared to be in sympathy with Gans. In fact he was the favorite of most everybody before the fight had gone ten rounds.

Never Anything Like It.
Gans started it by jabbing Nelson with his left twice in rapid succession. The crowd roared and found him saw what I regard as the greatest fight ever held in America. For sheer grit and endurance I have never seen anything like it—never excepted to. It must not give me a thrill like the Dempsey-Firpo fight, for example, but for real fighting the Gans-Nelson affair stands out.

For just a minute Nelson attempted to box with Gans. His efforts were ridiculous. He might as well have attempted to box a shadow. Gans fairly peppered his face with jabs and hooks.
