Double Drowning Accident. A double drowning fatality took place on the South Line, Brant, on Sunday afternoon, which has cast a gloom over this locality. Five boys, Ben. Swandt, Norman Juergens, Leander and Albert Poechman and Martin Kirstine, went down to the river last Sunday afternoon Poechman, and after enjoying themselves for a time ney decided to go home. Three of the boys, however, changed their minds and went in for another dip, leaving Ben Swandt dressing on the bank. They were only in a ew minutes when two of them, Leander Poechman and Martin Kirstine, got into deep water. Seeing their danger, Norman Juergens, who was a fair swimmer, at once went to the rescue, calling at the same time to Swandt to help him get the boys out. Norman grabbed grounds for show purposes at a reason Kirstine and brought him to shallow water, where Swandt was waiting to take the boy ashore. Norman then swam back to rescue his other companion, but when he got near him, Leander losed upon him with a drowning man's grip, robbing Norman of the use of his arms. They both went down and were never seen again to rise. Of those who go to camp, but a small proportion ever go out a second or third year. Advertisements were inserted in some of the papers calling for men to be given work for two weeks, and when they applied, they found that they were wanted to go to camp with one or other of the outside regiments. As a remedy for all this some officers favor a system of universal training, by which all men of suitable age and physique should be required to attend the militia training camp for at least three years. Better try this on. That would bring this whole militaristic

Too Many Holidays.

Toronto Saturday Night.

The craze for proclaiming holidays seems to have struck us with renewed vigor. For a good many years we managed to struggle along very nicely with out celebrating the birthday of King Edward that monarch having the good during the long reign of his honored mother. Now, however, it appears that Minister may, after due consideration of the circumstances, authorize the pay. As the Toronto Telegram points out, flunkeyism is overdoing this holiday The necessary forms will be furnished on application to the Veterinary Directer, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. verish folks whose loyality breaks out in Mary's Funds and George's Funds have their way. As a matter of fact we are overidden with bank holidays as it is. The hours and days of banking are short Records of dairy cows are always of enough without deducting any more, for interest, not only to the owner, who is banks and other marts of trade cannot anxious to increase the yield, but also to be closed without interfering seriously neighboring dairyman, who desire some with the general business of the counstandard whereby to check the product- try. How They did it

While visiting the new town of Matheson, the Toronto Board of Trade lifted the mortgage of a church. The event came about in this way-During the ng themselves, coward fashion, behind visit, a number strolled into the handsome little church, which is used by all yield from or two extra good cows in the the Protestant podies in Matheson as a herd; such for instance, as a seven-year- church edifice. Somebody made a sugold grade cow near Woodstock, Ont., gestion that they take up a collection for old grade cow near Woodstock, Ont., that gave last month 2,161 pounds of nilk testing 3.3 per cent. of fat, thus giving over 73 pounds of butter fat in one month, almost double the good average yield above noted at Birnam.

Small Attendance at Camp.

The military camps this year were not very well attended, and not two-thirds of the volunteers are in camp. The companies were mide up, in some instantial pounds of the church. This was started simply as a small tribute to the place of worship. Quite a collection was made, and while this was going on some resident of Matheson remarked that this would be a very appropriate lift towards their thurch debt. This was the first intimation that the visitors had, that there was any debt. They asserted that the amount was $500, and then the collection began in earnest. Bills came where silver had been placed in the first collection, and within ten minutes the entire debt was raised, and some $23 over, which was made a donation to the young student pastor.

Our Confidence ustified.

If the name Eastman had not been behind them, we would have been afraid that there was something beside the price that was cheap, when the Brownie Cameras first came out. At the experimental farm they say everything is favorable and there is no cause for alarm. Rain would be welcome, especially on the highlands. The wheat is heading out pretty well, and the present indications are that the harvest will be a few days earlier than in some places the plant is spotted at of moisture.

Undesirable Holiday.

The Imperial Conference, now sitting in London, acting, there is reason to be lieve, out of deference to the King's wishes, has declared in favor of the celebration throughout the Empire of the anniversary of his Majesty's birth, the 3rd of June. So far as Canada is concerned the proposal is wholly objectionable. During the life of two generation the 24th of May has been observed in this country. This observance has been maintained, partly as an acknowledgement of personal worth, but mainly because the day comes at a most opportune season. It marks the opening of the period of warmth; it occurs after the rush of spring seeding is over, and before the pressure of cultivation of hoe crops begins; it is an ideal first summer holiday for both country and town. June 3rd fills none of these require ments. It is too late for a first summer holiday; it crowds upon the first of July; it breaks in on the school work on the eve of examinations; it comes at a time when hoe crops are in most urgent need of attention.-Weekly Sun.

The Town Tightwad.

The tightwad has a pile of wealth in safety salted down; he's gathered in the scads by stealth from every end of town He's loaded down with bonds and stocks and mortgages and deeds; and when he takes his daily walks, some victim's bosom bleeds. The man who gets with in his mesh no mercy need implore; he'll always have his pound of flesh, and look around for more. To add a dollar to his stack, he'd risk his granite head; he'd turn the widow from her shack, the sick man from his bed. I'd rather gnaw at husks and stones, or grovel in a den, than have a pile of shining bones that's wrung from needy men. When you have lost your wad of dough, and all your plans are wrecked, you then may to the poorhouse go, and keep your self respect. But if you torture folks in debt though all your grinding years, and rake in dollars moist and sweat, and blood, and woman's tears, you'll learn to hate yourself some day, when death is drawig nigh; and when they file your bone away, no soul will heave a sigh.-Walt

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON. JULY 9.

Lesson II.—The suffering servant of Jehovah, Isa 52. 13 to 53. 12. Golden Text, Isa. 53. 6.

Verse 13. My servant shall deal wisely-The idea contained in these words is, that the suffering servant is to carry forward his prudently as to be sure of success. This is implied in what follows. Humiliated as he is, and afflicted, his ultimate exaltation is to vindicate the purpose of God in his suffering.

14. Many were astonished reason was, that his visage was so marred. The sight of physical torture and weakness in a minister of Jehovah was incomprehensible.

15. Shall he sprinkle many nanamely, that a sufferer is able to triumph so gloriously. The prob-lem of pain is the acute problem of the ages. The unseeing eye can discern no utility in suffering. So kings shut their mouths, and the nations stand in awe before the everlasting glory of the crucified Ga-lilean peasant, risen and exalted on high.

1-3-The central thought is found in the opening words; unbelief has been unable to accept the suffering Servant, or to see the strong arm of Jehovah's power and purpose revealed in him. He came with no regal pomp of a conquering Messiah. Dying upon a cross, he was a stumblingblock to Jews and foolishness to Greeks. All this is represented by the prophet as already past, because he views the future as already accomplished.

2. A tender plant...a root—Not a noble tree, but a lowly thing struggling in dry soil. This humility and obscurity of the servant, as he grew up in the presence of Jehovah, awakened in his people no admiration. This is the confession of a "universal human habit, the habit of forgetting, in our sense of the ugliness and helplessness of pain, that it has a motive, a future, pain, that it has a motive, a rational and a God."

3. He was despised—Not only were his people not attracted to him. They repelled him. They looked for a mighty revelation of strength, triumph over sorrows and grief. So they resented it, that One who claimed to be the minister of Jehovah should not rise above the common lot of suffering.

4-6-He hath borne our griefs-This is the sober second thought concerning the suffering Servant. The first judgment was the common one, that his afflictions were a di vine punishment-he was smitten of But now it is apparent that ne was wounded, not for his own, but the transgressions of the peo ple. There is no more pronounced statement in Scripture of the sub stantial character of the death of our Lord. It is a striking picture f the sinless One, bearing the burden and responsibility of the sins of men, in order to deliver them.

Flowers in a sick-room should have the water changed daily, and if they are hard-stemmed like lence for he knows that his sufferchrysanthemums they should have their stalks wiped to remove any Compare the cases of David, Heze-

So stupid were the people who judged him, that they accounted a malefactor's death, though he had done no violence, and they could find no fault in him at all.

10-12-We now return to the rootidea, that all this proceeded out of the good pleasure of Jehovah. This accords with the teaching of Jesus himself, that his suffering at Jerusalem was the climax of an eternal purpose, and not merely the chance result of the machina-tions of a perverse generation.

10. Offering for sin—Compare Num. 5. 7, 8, and Lev. 5. 14-16; 6. 1-7. Christ's death makes possible 1-7. Christ's death makes possible the forgiveness of our sins; for, since death is the penalty for sin, and faith makes us one with him, he can and does die in our stead, our Father, setting us free. Our Father, against whom we have sinned, sees the travail of the soul of his Son, and is satisfied (11).

11. Shall my righteous servant justify many—Recalling the words of Paul :"That he might himself be just and the justifier of him that hath faith in Jesus." The death hath faith in Jesus." The death of the righteous Christ is God's righteous reason for reckoning as righteous the unrighteous sinner.

12. He shall divide the spoil with the strong—Again recalling Paul's words: "Him also hath God highly Though despised and re jected of men, he is honored of God, and that, not because of any signal victory, but because he bare the sin of many in willing sacrifice.

HIS OWN QUARTER-DECK. Jack Hired a Stage-Coach All to Himself. Nowhere are the lines of rank more sharply drawn than in the navy. On board ship Jack never dreams of crossing the mark, but off service the personal ego some-times reasserts itself, and did even in the old days. In "Naval Yarns" W. H. Long cites an in-stance of this which happened more than one hundred years ago. On the return of Admiral Rodney the British seamen received their force British seamen received their first instalment of prize-money, amounting to eighty pounds per man.

One of the London seamen hired the London stage-coach to take the trip to London with his lady. In those days there were not many public conveyances, and Jack took the whole coach for himself and companion. Just as the vehicle was about to start, a naval officer came up and requested the coachman to open the door.
"The coach is full, sir," said the coachman, touching his hat.

"How can that be? There only two in it."

"True, your honor. One of the crew of the Magnificent has engaged the coach for himself

"Oh, if that's the case let me see him, and I'll soon settle the mat-ter," responded the officer, who nim, and I'll soon settle the ster," responded the officer, opend the door and tried to ter. Jack stopped him.

officer. "You must give me a berth on board for London."

"This is my ship," insisted Jack, and nobody shall come on board lest I says the word.

"Lieutenant Goodwin wants to take a berth in your cabin," interposed the coachman.

He never axed me into his cabin aboard the Magnificent. Howsomever, he may go on the deck if he likes. Hope he'll look out for you and see that you're steady at the helm, and don't serve us the same trick one of you landlubbers did three years ago, when he ran foul of a landmark and pitched us overboard.' The lieutenant took Jack's reply in good part, mounted to the top of the coach, and was rolled on to London.

LOVELY LISBON.

One of the cheapest cities in the world to live in is Lisbon, Spain; and it's a city worth living in, too, with its blue skies and quaint streets. Palms grow in the public gardens, and bananas in the centre of the city. Lisbon is a fine place to spend a holiday. You may live at a decent hotel at an inclusive Lisbon is a fine place charge of about 75c a day. Of course there are drawbacks. You may go to bed at a reasonable hour, hoping to get sleep; but up till one o'clock at the earliest, there is a constant turmoil in the corridors. and the row starts about six in the morning again. And the moments when human activities are at rest are adequately filled by the noctur nal music of innumerable cats and the scurryings of rats.

PAUPERS AT AUCTION.

The "culture of the Finlanders is not incompatible, it would seem, with an institution that savors strongly of the old slave markets of ancient Rome and the Orient of more recent days, comments the London Standard. The Finnish poor law system puts up able-bodied paupers at auction, displaying them in the market-place, where they are examined by employers of labor desirous of finding cheap workmen. The bidding works downward, the authorities handing over to the lowest bidder the chosen pauper, for the person acquiring the right to his labor receives an allowance from the authorities upkeep, the amount being that of the 'lowest tender.'

A NIGHT WITH THE GERMANS IN THE METROPOLIS.

LitTe Fatherland in the Middle of the Capital of the British Empire.

Sometimes, on a Sunday night, when the wander spirit seizes me, and I long to shake the English dust from my feet and go abroad for a time, I stroll along to a foreign club in the vicinity of Fitzroy Square, says a writer in Pearson's Weekly. I am the only Englishman present. It is the haunt lishman present. It is the haunt of Germans-the young, the old, and the middle-aged.

There, in London's heart, in the middle of the capital of the British Empire, within fifteen minutes' walk of the British House of Commons, I sit with a stranger's feeling, with that curious sense of insecurity that comes to the average traveller in a land thousands of miles from his own. Stout, heavy-faced old settlers thunder out "Hochs" near a gar landed bust of the Kaiser as the landed bust of the Kaiser as the praise their lager beer jugs and applaud Wagnerian music. The motherly frau sips light wine, munches a liver sausage sandwich; young Fritz, a hairdresser from the Black Forest, pounds his way across the room to a demure fraulein with corn-colored hair and his gray room to a demure fraulein with room to a demure fraulein with corn-colored hair and big grey the villages eyes, to suggest a plate of sauer-kraut and black bread; and a wait-kraut and black bread; and a wait-kraut and black bread; and a wait-kraut strange bass is the er, whose home address is "some-thing-strasse, Berlin," shakes his head as I give my order, and says: "Eengleesh me not speak."

WHEN LONDON SLEEPS.

About the time when you true orn Britons are retiring to the club wakes up—that is to say, the chairs and little tables are pushed near the wall so as to give space to the dancers. With the space to the dancers. With first stroke of midnight comes first bar of the opening waltz, and dancing is kept up for is a sight which ought to be seen by all who scoff at "this talk," as they put it, of a probable invasion.

The Germans are not coming; they are here, a sufficient number, at any rate, to prove of very materassistance to their compatriots. Where the club is situated is one of the most congested districts in all London, and nearly all the residual dents are German-waiters, tailors, bakers, hairdressers, and servants, nurses and governesses, liv-ing cheaply until they find berths. The German language is over every shop door and window. German faces stand out white and eag-er in the darkness of the gloomy doorways. There are German cafes innumerable—all crowded; there are German lodging houses in dozens-all packed.

The preacher at the street corner here addresses his hearers in the German language, and the little ring of Christian workers sing the hymn in the same tongue. nymn in the same tongue. If you inquire your way of a settler who is ill-informed as to the district, he shakes his head, and says: "Nein," which means "No." The next man you meet, should he know the place you are seeking, will not say "Yes," but "Yah."

SPIES-NOT GOOD SORTS.

Germans-Germans everywhere. They are all well-dressed, and most of them are in work. If they can't get a place where wages are paid they offer their services for board and lodging with an opportunity to learn the English language

And Englishmen are only too willing to find them employment. We welcome them. We marvel at their quickness in picking up our vowels and our verbs, and we feel flatter-ed at their intense interest in the geography of our country. You can hear Londoners describing these Germans as "good sorts!" men of manners and culture, whose politeness it a pattern to be copied-whose enthusiasm about England and the English is conclusive proof of their friendliness towards Surprise Party.

Rev. Mr. Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson received an unexpected visit from the members of Zion church on Saturday night. The following address was read by Mrs. Atchison, President of the Ladies' Aid, on behalf of the church; Dear. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson:

We, the people of Zion, feel that we cannot let this, the eve of your departure, pass without in some way acknowledging your untiring devotion to us. Youhave not only labored amongst us for our spiritual good, but you have worked most earnestly for the benefit of our church, and you, Mrs. Ferguson, have given your time and labor, and helped us to attain that which we would never have undertaken, but for you. You entered into the work so heartily, and with such a cheerful spirit, that it seemed to make the work a real pleasure for the rest of us. We ask you to accept this purse, not for the amount it contains, but as a slight token of our appreciation ot what you have done for us, and we feel thankful that the distance is not so great, but we may hope to see you again from time to time

Signed on behalf of the Ladies' Aid. Mrs. Wm. Atchison, Pres. Mrs. T. Wilson, Treas.

After refreshments had been served an hour or two was spent in a pleasant chat. The party broke up about half past eleven o'clock with prayer by the pastor.-Hepworth Progress.

Rev. Mr. Ferguson is the new pastor of the Mildmay Methodist Church, and intends moving shortly to this village.
