Paine's Celery Compound Saves a Life after failures with other Medicines.

Mr. McMullin says: "Paine's Celery Compound Worked Miracles for Me."

The Only Safe Medicine for Sick and Diseased People

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.

Gentlemen:—For over four years I have been in poor health, and received treatment from two doctors besides using seven kinds of patent medicines. I also sent to New York and got a month's treatment of a special medicine, but no good results came from it. I was run down, suffered terribly, could not rest at night, and every morning had a severe pain in my back, dizziness in my head, and vomited bitter, green matter, and had no appetite. I heard of Paine's Celery Compound and decided to give it a trial, and am happy to report that it worked wonders. The pains are all gone. I rest well at night, my appetite is good, and my health is now splendid. Paine's Celery Compound has worked miracles for me. I recommend it to all sick people as the best medicine.

ROBT. McMULLIN, Camden, N. S.

Death and Destruction.

St. Catharines, Ont., Sept. 26.—A cyclone struck this city shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon and death and destruction followed. The regulation funnel-shaped cloud, accompanied by a water-spout, struck the city on Welland avenue and travelled from that point to the southern limit of the city. The armory of the local volunteer company was practically demolished. Falling chimneys crashed through the roof of the collegiate institute, narrowly missing a company of students who were in the building. The cigar factory lost its roof. Packard's electric works were badly shaken up and one storage warehouse was demolished. Ratcliffe's tea house was completely disappeared. The St. Catharines House was badly wrecked. In the district extending from James street east to Queenston street the havoc was great. The storm struck Merriton, three miles from here, with terrible violence and from that place three deaths are reported with many injuries.

The Lincoln Paper Mill was unroofed and badly wrecked, as was the power house of the Acetylene Gas Works. There were forty pupils in the public school which collapsed and many were badly injured. Frank Moffatt, one of the pupils, was killed. Mrs. John Bickley was killed in front of her house, a flying piece of lumber striking her on the head.

TOSAWANDA, N. Y., Sept. 27th.—The tornado which wrought such terrible havoc across the border, in St. Catharines and Merriton, struck this city with terrible force at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. The amount of damage done will exceed $100,000. Many people are homeless and several are now under the care of physicians as a result of injuries sustained during the visit of the wind. The injured are: John Mousie, arm and leg broken, may die, Mr. Augusta Hirnann, hurt internally and is very low, Mrs. Charles Peters, Mrs. Henry Petersan, the Peters baby badly bruised by flying timbers. Emma Eberle badly cut by flying glass. Mrs. Emma Lyons, seriously injured by falling glass. George Post, bruised and cut. Mrs. Fred Krus struck on head by timber, seriously injured. Carrie Post and Charles Aronoff, gut and bruised. Jacob Lyons, arm sprained. Many others were hurt by flying timbers and falling glass.

Man Of Many Wives. BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Two indictments charging him with bigamy were read to Charles W. Woodruff in the Supreme Court to-day. He pleaded not guilty and was sent back to jail in default of bail. Woodruff, who is said by the police to have been fifty times married, at fifty-three years of age shows the effects of his adventurous life. The indictments against him were found in 1890, when in one short month he married three women. The first of these was Annie Schettner, now wedded happily. Woodruff married her at eight o'clock in the evening, and at ten made an excuse to leave the house to make some arrangements for the wedding journey. At the same time the bride's two diamond rings, her watch and $40 in money disappeared. Woodruff did not leave Buffalo, but established himself as a theatrical manager and advertised for young women who desired to go on the stage. Louise Scott responded, and they were married within a week. He left her almost immediately, and met the woman who became his third wife in an elevator. She was Mrs. S. A. Samle, a customer. She fell in stepping out of the elevator. He helped pick her up, introduced himself and they were married within an hour. She, too, lost her jewelry. Woodruff left Buffalo and spent quite a while in St. Louis, where he was employed as superintendent of the baths in the Planter's Hotel. Pictures of a dozen St. Louis women were found in his trunk when he was arrested here, and the police say he was married to several of them, but cannot now furnish the names. In New York he was "Professor" C. W. Woodruff; in New Mexico he was a mining expert; in California an engineer. Returning to Buffalo in 1897, in spite of indictments which he knew were against him, he married Loretta Dart at Fort Erie. He deserted her, but came back again two months ago and was living quietly at a Pearl street boarding house when arrested. He believes he will be acquitted, because none of the three women named in the indictments wishes the notoriety attending an appearance against him in court.

The I. C. R. Disaster.

Pictou, N. S., Sept. 29.—Wednesday's terrible disaster on the I. C. R. near Westville was even more serious than at first reported, and resulted in the death of six persons and serious injury to several others. The dead are: Michael O'Brien, of Antigonish, driver of special, unmarried aged 40. D. W. Henderson, his fireman, of Stellarton, married, aged about 24; son of Don Henderson, of the railway mechanical department at Stellarton. James Sproule, driver of the miners' train, aged about 64, married, belongs to Pictou Landing. J. McKenzie, his fireman, married aged 35; belongs to Pictou Landing. Martin McDonald, Lyons Brook. Martin A. Cameron, aged about 20, son of Hugh Cameron, of Scotch Hill.

The injured are: Blackmore, a miner, jaw broken in two places. John W. McDonald, aged about 29, son of John McDonald, riggers, Pictou; limbs broken and had concussion of the skull; he will probably die. Clifford McMillan, a young man, son of Dan McMillan, I. C. R., and nephew of Rev. John McMillan, Halifax, who was en route to New York, had his leg broken and his head badly cut. The scene at the wreck was one never to be forgotten. The two once powerful engines now in a mass of unrecognizable from the passenger cars and splinters, the mangled remains of the unfortunate victims lying by the wreck with knots of relations watching over them, was a sight which would make a strong man quail. The engine of the passenger special ploughed through the other engine, crashed into the tender. Both are locked together in an indescribable mass of twisted and destroyed metal, while the rails are warped and the track torn as if by a hurricane. The destruction of property was terrible and the condition of the dead horrible.

The question is, How did the accident occur? This is hard to get at. Operator Mosey was night man at Stellarton and the working train was given correct orders by him. The operator at Westville gave his special train orders and it is reported the orders were to cross at Acadia nearly a mile this side of Westville, but whether this is true or not could not be verified. "Someone has blundered" is all that could be got from any of the officials at the station.

Conductor Gordon received slight injuries about the head, but was able to walk back to Stellarton to give the news of the accident. He was in the act of taking up tickets when the smash occurred. The supposition is that the crew of the special train saw steam at the Acadia station and took it to be the steam of Gordon's special. This is a customary place for trains to cross, but it is usual for a train hand to give a signal when the working train is up the Acadia siding. This was not the case yesterday, and perhaps accounts for the accident. An I. C. R. employe told your correspondent that it was the worst accident in the history of the I. C. R., and had it occurred on any other special excursion day of the exhibition it would have been the most disastrous ever heard of in Canada.

Ten years ago last spring Engineer Sproule had a most miraculous escape of his life. His engine at an early hour was waiting at the Stellarton station. He jumped off and went into the office for orders, and as soon as he got inside the door his locomotive exploded, killing three men and considerably damaging the station house.

Refused to Leave Fashoda.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—The newspapers here are indulging in expressions of joy at the manner in which Major Marchand has checkmated England.

The Echo de Paris hints at the probability of a European conference upon the matter of France's occupation of Fashoda and says there is a feeling of overwhelming confidence that France will now be able to dictate terms. It is admitted however, that Fashoda might be relinquished for substantial compensation.

The Gaulois this morning publishes an interview with the Minister of the Colonies, M. Trouillot, in which he is quoted as saying it is not true Major Marchand has been abandoned. Up to the present, the Minister added, the French Government has only heard the British version of the major's occupation of Fashoda, and no steps will be taken in the matter until the French officer's reports are received.

The Minister further remarks that no essential point had been secured in the avoidance of a collision between the French and British troops, and that it was here, and not on the Nile that the question of Fashoda and other matters hinging on it, would be settled.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Cairo correspondent of the Daily Mail says: Major Marchand has admitted, in conversation, that the arrival of General Kitchener saved him from annihilation by the Dervishes.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Daily Telegraph's Cairo correspondent says: "It is reported that Major MacDonald has reached Lado, where he has located the Mahdi's tomb, and that the body was destroyed. An enthusiast, it is said, secured the Mahdi's head and is sending it to the Royal College of Surgeons, in London."

The correspondent adds that Major Marchand's position is absurd, and that the natives ignore him. Marchand may have been at Fashoda for some time. His family received a letter from him in June last, dated Dec. 1, last year, on the banks of the Sobh River, in the old Bah-el-Ghazal province of Egypt, saying that he was about to embark on the Sobh River for Abyssinia. He might easily reach Meshra-er-Rak, in the northern part of the province, early this year, and the distance between that point and Fashoda was covered by Dr. Junker, in 1889, in twelve days.

If there is any serious controversy between England and France it is not likely to be confined to the question of the occupation of Fashoda. The fact is that fully two years ago M. Liotard, now the Lieutenant-Governor of the upper Mohang, or Ubanghi, as the French write the name, had already established a strong post at Tambura, in the heart of the rich Bah-el-Ghazal province; and in the same year (1896) he was joined by Marchand with fifteen or twenty whites, nine of whom were French army officers, and 500 Senegalese tirailleurs. Over this region which Lupton Bay governed for Egypt till he yielded to the Mahdi, these Frenchmen have been travelling in all directions, doing a good deal of excellent exploratory work, and making sojourns in a considerable number of important river towns, with a view undoubtedly to acquiring a permanent influence there. The Bah-el-Ghazal province joins the French administrative district of the upper Mohang, and France regards Egypt's old possession as a proper continuation of the "Hinterland" of the French Congo. Now for the first time Egypt is in a position, as far as the natives are concerned, to re-establish her rule over the lost province.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hamblin, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and am now well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise. This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. 50 cents and $1.00, at any Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed."

Sixty-Two Children.

A remarkable tale of human fecundity is told by the London Daily News. An Italian peasant woman named Granata, married at 28 years has borne 62 children. She began with a single daughter, followed by six boys at a birth, then by five more, and these by triplets twice and four at a birth. After this she limited herself, like ordinary women, to single babies and twins, but wound up with four.

Pies.
 When I was but a little maid
 Of years not more than five,
 I made mud pies beneath the trees,
 The happiest child alive.
 I molded them with fondest care,
 I shaped them one by one,
 Then crimped the edges prettily
 And baked them in the sun.
 Since then a many years have flown
 And still I'm making pies,
 Although a difference I own
 In methods and supplies,
 And husband now and children all Look with reproach at me
 If thrice upon the festal board
 Each day no pie they see.

Ah me, why was my childish play
 Not nipped while in the bud!
 Why did I try my practice hand
 Upon those pies of mud?
 For I have now so crusty grown,
 Yet none do realize
 That I'm a martyr to the cause
 Of pies, pies, pies.
 —Anna E. Treat in Good Housekeeping.

IN THE AUTUMN.
 BY WILLIAM LEIGHTON.
 Where are the flowers that blossomed
 So fair in the bright days of spring;
 Where are the swallows that skimmed
 O'er the land
 So gaily on glimmering wing?

Where are the green leaves that whispered
 Such marvellous melody?
 And the wandering zephyrs that sighed
 Forth their soul
 In odorous kisses to me?

Where is the friend of my bosom?
 Why cometh he not to my cries?
 So weary am I for the clasp of his hand!
 So faint for the light of his eyes!

Ah! once more the blossoming roses
 Their delicate bloom will unfold;
 The swallows will skim o'er the sunshiny
 Land
 On their glimmering wings as of old.

The trees will stretch upward to heaven
 Their beautiful branches green;
 And the slumbering zephyrs will waken
 And sigh
 Their mystical music between.

And the passionate kiss of the summer
 Will thrill to the heart as of yore;
 But the friend that walked with me in Days that are gone
 Can never come back to me more.

AT THE LAST BUDGE CALL.

BY JACK BENNETT.
 Scatter the rose petals over my breast—
 Kiss me good-bye.
 Dimly the lance-pennons dance in the West.

On the sky:
 Faintly the note of the bugle floats down
 Over the hill-top and over the town—
 Scatter the roses we twined for your Crown,
 You and I.

Scatter the rose-petals over the wall,
 Fluttering down;
 Kiss me once more farewell as they fall
 From your gown.
 I will ride on to my place in the line;
 You will soon find other kisses than Mine;

You will forget in the laughter and wine
 Of the town.
 Scatter the rose-petals over the grass;
 Daylight is done.
 I have been dear for a day that will pass
 With the sun.

When I ride home with a shaft in my Heart,
 Flat on my back in a carrier's cart,
 You will scarce pity, or so much as Start—
 Save in fun.

Scatter the rose-petals over my grave
 Down by the stream.
 Tell them that ask I was loving and Brave
 As they seem;

Tell them you loved me once, lass, for A day,
 Tell them you kissed me when I rode Away;
 Tell them I keep your kiss, under the Day,
 In my dream.

HOMESICK.
 MOLLIE J. DONAHOE.
 I am hungry, hungry, just for a sight
 Of meadows lying in sunshine bright;
 And a little brook that ripples through
 With flowers above it yellow and blue.
 I long to stand at the bars and wait
 While the cows come down to the pasture Gate.

The sleek brown Jerseys that, all the day,
 Crop the clover heads away.
 I am longing, longing just to see
 The hills I climbed when young and free;
 I have not roamed for many a year
 Among the nut-woods growing there!
 The eager, restless, glad boy feet
 Have long grown old in city street,
 But oh, what joy 'twould give the man
 To tread those dear old hills as then.

My heart cries out at night and morn
 To see the fields of wheat and corn
 That billowed o'er like green-gold seas

Before each wayward Summer breeze.
 To see the orchard's rich, sweet tints
 Shading the bee-stands along the fence.
 I long to lie in restful ease
 Beneath those rough old apple-trees.

Oh, could I only see once more
 The white farmhouse with open door;
 The rose and pink and hollyhock,
 That grew along the flagstone walk;
 And sit upon the cool side porch,
 Behind the passion vine's green arch,
 And feel that this was home for me,
 How sweet and glad my life would be!

The world is wide, and every man
 Has his ambition, dream or plan;
 But these at best are empty things,
 And e'en success its trouble brings;
 So, when our lives seem full of care,
 We dream of scenes that once were fair,
 And, weary-hearted, sigh to know
 The happy days of long ago.
 —Waverley Magazine.

Hardy Climbing Vines.
 As a rule, planters are inclined to pay more attention to the climbing vines grown from seeds, known as annuals, than to the hardy sorts, slower perhaps,
 in the earlier growth, but much more satisfactory when permanent effects are desired. When walls of buildings or boundary lines are to be covered, or when an unsightly view is to be shut off, nothing surpasses the hard climbing vines
 for the purpose, and they should be more generally used on farm grounds than they
 are. While many of the climbing vines
 for the purpose, and they should be more generally used on farm grounds than they
 are. While many of the climbing vines
 for the purpose, and they should be more generally used on farm grounds than they are.

The clematis combines beauty of foliage with size and variety in color of bloom unsurpassed by any other climbing vine. The several varieties are easy to grow, needing only deep, rich soil, well manured, plenty of water during the blooming season, and the base of the vine mulched with coarse manure during the winter. This treatment is especially necessary with the Jackmanii, or large flowering type: the blossoms of this class are large, usually with five petals, and with a wide range of color. Henryii has large blossoms of creamy white; Jackmanii, deep purple blossoms; Rubella, blossoms of velvety purple; Star of India,
 reddish purple blossoms, and Seiboldii, bright blue blossoms. These are among the best varieties of the large flowering class.

Clematis flammula belongs to the small flowering class, and is one of the oldest and most hardy climbers. The foliage is attractive, the blossoms pure white, fragrant and borne in dense clusters,
 from July to October. Clematis panicu-lata is a comparatively new sort, from Japan, perfectly hardy and a decided acquisition to our list of hardy climbers.
 The plant makes a rapid growth, and produces a quantity of pure white flowers from July to September. It is the most profuse bloomer among climbing vines, and peculiarly suited for planting on farm home grounds.

For foliage effect only, no climber equals Ampelopsis vitifolia, or, as it is more commonly known, Boston Ivy. It is a favorite climber for growing on churches or walls of any buildings, clinging firmly to any rough surface; the foliage is pretty shade of green, changing to brown and scarlet in the autumn. Our own Virginia creeper, or American ivy (Am-pelopsis quinque folia), while rather gross in its habit of growth, is especially useful where rapid growth and dense shade are desired. A strong vine will grow twenty-five feet in a single season, and in two or three years will cover a verandah of large size. The foliage is broad and green, changing in the autumn to a handsome shade of brown, the branches bearing clusters of dark blue berries in the fall.

The honey suckle family gives us a variety of foliage and flower effects which make it most desirable. The varieties here mentioned succeed in any good soil.
 The best varieties are Hall's honeysuckle, blooming all summer, the blossoms being fragrant and of a pleasing yellow and white shade. Honeysuckle scarlet trumpet, which also blooms all summer, has long trumpet-shaped deep crimson blossoms with a lighter throat; the blossoms are borne at intervals during the summer and in great profusion. Honeysuckle sweet-scented monthly is one of the most satisfactory of the class, producing throughout the summer large trusses of sweet scented red and yellow flowers. All of the varieties named are entirely hardy and nearly evergreen.

Wistarias are rapid growers, strong and heavy requiring some substantial support;
 for training over trees and walls they are unsurpassed; the Chinese varieties, white and blue are the best, blooming in May and frequently producing a second crop or blossoms in the late summer. The trumpet vine, Dutchman's Pipe and Akebia Quinata are also desirable climbers, hardy, easily grown and worthy of general cultivation. All of the rather gross growing and rapid climbing vines require sharp pruning each spring before the growth starts to produce the best results and, of course, require strong supports and when young some training.
 Given this care, they will do much toward adding to the attractiveness of the home grounds, whether of large or small dimensions.—K.

E. G. SCOVILL, Agent Pelee Wine Co.,
Dear Sir—My wife has been afflicted with nervous prostration for several years, using every kind of medicine recommended, but obtaining no relief until I procured some of your Pelee Wine, which I administered to her, and she has had the desired effect. It is the greatest tonic of the age, I think too much cannot be said in praise and no house should be without it. We have recommended it to several suffering from the grippe debility, with like good results.
I am, yours gratefully,

Why He Didn't Bid Up.

There was a red flag out in front of a farm house up in the Swift River region in Oxford the other day when Burns was driving past the place. He can never get by an auction sale. There is something about a bargain at vendue that strikes him just where he lives. So Burns hitched his horse and stopped on the outskirts of the crowd. He remembered that at the last auction he attended he bought two pod augers and an ox yoke, and this time he steeled himself lest he might commit similar egregiousness. In fact he concluded that he would not bid at all.

But when the crowd got well waked up over a Jersey heifer, Burns chipped in a bid or two, and finally got to going hard against a red-whiskered man who carried a whip in his left hand and expectorated violently after every bid.
As the contest waxed somewhat energetic, Burns reached for his pocketbook. His fingers ran down and down into his trousers pocket until they slid into a good big hole. The pocketbook was gone. You, who have found holes in your pockets where wallets ought to be, can, in some measure, appreciate Burns' feelings.
He stopped bidding, and while the red-whiskered man, still expectorating, was paying down an installment on the heifer, Burns pushed forward through the crowd and got the auctioneer's ear. The auctioneer listened intently. Then he arose erect once more and in his professional drone commenced:
"This gentleman informs me that he has lost a pocketbook containing the sum of $200. He offers a reward of $10 for its return. Now—
"I'll give twenty," broke in a voice in the corner.
"Thirty," cried another.
"Thirty five," came the determined tones from the red-whiskered man.
"That was beyond what I could afford," says Burns, "and so I came away and left them bidding on it."—Lewiston (Me) Journal.

A Fifteen-to-One Chance.

An amusing story is told of a patient in one of our London hospitals in whom the sporting instinct was well developed. His ward was visited, in the usual course, by the surgeon, with a retinue of fifteen students. The surgeon described minutely the nature and extent of the disease from which the patient was suffering then, turning to the first of the students, he asked:
"Now, Mr. Sawyer, would you operate in this case?"
"No, sir, I think not."
One after another the fifteen students gave the same negative answer to the question.
"Well, gentlemen," said the surgeon, "I'm sorry to inform you that you are all wrong. I'm going to operate."
"Not if I know it, mister," said the invalid. "Fifteen to one again it. No chance." "Ere, miss, give me my togs—I'm off."

Familiar.

Living in Hawaii is not without its disadvantages, if a story told in the Family Herald may be believed. The natives have little idea of respectful deference, and insist on calling their employers by their Christian names. One lady, who upon her arrival was at once addressed as Jennie by the men servants, expostulated with her sister for allowing them to become thus familiar. She was assured that every effort had been made to induce them to say Mr. and Mrs., but this they steadily refused to do.
"No, no," they said, "too many Smiths, too much Jones—you John and Lisias."
One Englishwoman was determined that her servants should never address her in the familiar fashion that other white people had allowed to become common. She therefore instructed her husband never to mention her name in their hearing.
One day this lady had some visitors, and to their great delectation the cook put his head inside the door, and asked sweetly:
"My love, what vegetables do you want to-day?"
After that the Englishwoman was content to be called simply Mary.

Rare Off-Hand Speeches.

A group of literary men were discussing the other day the rarity of spontaneous eloquence of wit.
"I was at a dinner once in New York," said one, "and was seated next to Maj. Hay, who, you know, had been Lincoln's secretary. Somebody making a speech exclaimed:
"In genius eloquence the words came hot from the heart. No nobler speech was ever uttered in America than Lincoln's address at Gettysburg and I am assured it was wholly spontaneous. He had not given it a thought before he rose to speak."
"While he was delivering it," said Maj. Hay to me aside, "I had the fifth copy of it in my pocket."
"I, too, remember a dinner in New York," said another, "at which all the foremost men in journalism and literature were present. The speech of the evening was made by George W. Curtis. It sparkled with wit and apt allusions to the men present, evidently inspired by the moment. Once he stopped, interrupting himself, and exclaimed:

"I see my friend, Judge D., looking at me doubtfully, but I must remind him that he too—going on with some brilliant rally that brought down peals of laughter. As we rose to go out I said to the editor of a Boston paper:
"Who but Curtis could pour out so promptly wit like that?"
"Impromptu?" said the newspaper man. "I had proofs of all the speeches given to me this afternoon to send to Boston to-night. Let us look at his." We looked, and there it was, word for word, even to the "I see my friend, Judge D., looking at me doubtfully," etc.

"I knew Artemus Ward," said a third man, "when he was a reporter on the Cleveland paper. One evening in the office he told a story, apparently a mere trifle, the flash of a moment.
"Broome," said the chief, "how can you say such clever things offhand?"
"Offhand?" muttered Broome. "I told that to myself fifteen times this afternoon." Ten years afterward I heard him tell the same story to a brilliant London audience, without the alteration of a comma.
"Even to make a good joke," remarked a listener, "work apparently is needed as well as genius."

Gordon's Funeral Service.

KHARTOUM, Sept. 21.—On September 4 the Union Jack and the Egyptian Crescent were flying in the desert breeze above the ruins of the Residency of Khartoum, half a dozen paces from the spot where Gordon died.
The Sirdar, accompanied by the divisional generals, the brigadiers, and their full staffs, together with detachments from all branches of the Anglo-Egyptian army steamed up the Blue Nile to the ruins of Khartoum early in the morning and landed at a masonry stage on the river bank opposite the Residency.
Gordon's old palace, though gutted in still intact in its foundations. On the summit of the dismantled walls two flag-staffs were raised, and detachments of representative troops with the band of the 11th Sudanese Regiment, the drums and pipes of the Grenadier Guards, and the fifes of the Highland regiments, formed up reverently round the historic spot—the gunboat "Malik" being made fast to the quay behind the Residency. In the centre were the Sirdar and his full personal staff, on the right the divisional generals and their staffs, and on the left a detachment of officers and sappers of the Royal Engineers—Gordon's old corps. The background was composed of the picturesque ruins of Khartoum, and which were growing wild palms, acacias and lemon trees.
At 10 o'clock the Sirdar gave the signal and amid the crash of the first saluting gun and the opening strains of the British National Anthem Bimbashi J. K. Watson personal aide-de-camp to the Sirdar, and Lieutenant Staveland unfurled the Union Jack. Bimbashi Badr Effendi, Egyptian aide-de-camp to the Sirdar and Major Mitchell next hoisted the Khedivial Crescent. Amid the booming of the 21 gun salute and the rolling strains of the British and Khedivial national anthems could be heard the shrill cries of the crowds of natives and slaves exulting at their emancipation from cruel serfdom.
Then the music changed. The Highland pipes wailed out a dirge and the fife of the Grenadier Guards played a "Dead March" in memory of Gordon and of the fallen heroes in the recent battle. The chaplains to the forces—the Rev. J. M. Simms (Presbyterian), the Rev. A. W. B. Watson (Anglican), and the Rev. Robert Brindley (Roman Catholic)—read appropriate passages of scripture and prayers.
The religious service was followed by the firing of 15 minute guns.
The impressive and touching ceremony was brought to a close by the Sirdar calling upon the troops to give three cheers for her Majesty the Queen Empress and the Khedive. The cheers were given with the heartiest good will.
What may be considered as the sad side of the ceremony was then begun. The fife played the "Dead March," the bagpipes wailed a lament, and the band played the hymn "Abide with Me."
When the solemn music ceased, all the general officers stepped forward and congratulated the Sirdar, and half an hour was subsequently spent in visiting the chief historical points of the ruined city, notably the delapidated remains of the steps on which General Gordon was killed.
The Sirdar then re-embarked and returned to the camp. He was cheered to the echo again and again by the assembled troops.
Slatin Pasha is with the cavalry who went in pursuit of the Khalifa.
The following method of keeping butter cool is given by an exchange. Get a common flower pot and large saucer, fill the saucer half full of water and set the dish of butter upon it. Then cover butter and saucer with flower pot. Close the hole in the bottom of the flower pot with a cork, then dash water over the butter-pot every time it becomes dry. If set in an airy space a small dish of butter for the table can be kept cool and firm without ice.—Ex.

A Rich Man's Wise Rules.

Baron Rothschild, the head of what is reputed to be the most powerful family in European financial circles, is said to have posted in his bank in London the following rules for the guidance of his clerks:
Shun liquor; dare to go forward; never be discouraged; be polite to everybody employ your time well; never talk business lies; pay your debts promptly; be prompt in everything; bear all troubles patiently; do not reckon upon chance; make no useless acquaintances; be brave in the struggle of life; maintain your integrity as a sacred thing; never appear something more than you are; take time to consider, then decide positively; carefully examine into every detail of your business.

The range cattle feeders of the west seem determined to get their stockers (this fall for much less money than was paid last year. Last year stockers, as a rule, were not in as good condition as they are this year, owing to the pastures being better. In that case they will be worth more for feeding purposes. In addition to this, stockers are not so plentiful as last season, and feeders may find it difficult to get their supplies at the lower prices determined upon.

As far as can be learned at the present time, prices for apples are likely to be good this season. The outlook in the United States for a big crop is not so all bright. In fact it is doubtful if the 1898 crop will be much larger than that of 1897, which was below the average. In Canada a small crop is predicted, though it is likely to be larger than last year.—Ex.

THE PLEBISCITE.

The vote of Thursday last, although not as large as was hoped for by the Temperance people is in no way discouraging to them. From the returns it is apparent that there will be a majority for Prohibition of about twenty thousand. The vote shows a falling off from the previous plebiscite taken in several provinces, but the conditions at that time were altogether different. That vote was taken at a general election which accounts for the reduced vote. Seven out of the eight provinces in the Dominion gave a majority in favor of the question. In Quebec, where there was a strong organization of those interested in the liquor business, and where every effort was made to bring the revenue question to the front, there was, owing to these circumstances, a large majority against Prohibition. In the large cities of Ontario where the arguments that enforcement of the act was impossible, and the loss of revenue without any reduction of the tariff, were used, there was also a majority against the question. But in the rural districts of Ontario the vote was the opposite. The Province of British Columbia, which was expected, would give a vote in the negative, gave a majority of over seven hundred for the passing of a Prohibitory Act. The Maritime Provinces gave good majorities in favor of Prohibition. Taking everything into consideration the vote was as large as could be expected. With Quebec strongly against the enactment of a Prohibitory Law and the rest of the Dominion in favor of it, the people will wait, with no small degree of interest, the course the Government will pursue in the matter.

The Queen of Denmark, who is closely related with some of the crown heads of Europe died on Tuesday morning.

Sir John C. Allan, late Chief Justice of New Brunswick, died at his home, Fredericton, at an early hour Tuesday morning last. He had been in failing health for the past five years and his death was not unexpected. He was in the 81st year of his age.

Hon. M. C. Cameron, Lieut. Governor of the Northwest Territories, died Monday morning.

ST. JOHN LETTER.

The Fair that closed here a short time ago, with all its Fire works and vaudevilles and other special attractions, was a tame affair in comparison with the old "country fair" of a good many years ago. Such a fair, with its dozen steers, as many sheep two or three shoats, a half dozen Cochon chins fowl, a few bushels of homegrown and prize of socks and yarn mittens, was a great event, and especially great if a vendor of gingerbread and cider found his way to the grounds. It may be that the old time country fair would seem very tame to us now but it was thought a very brilliant function away back in the fifties.

County fair! Event auspicious!
Heralded both far and near
In our guileless rustic circles
As the climax of the year!
Joyfully we hail thy coming;
Never with thy charm can vie
Marble-palaced expositions.
Though their temples kiss the sky.
Dearer far the signs that tell us
County-fair time's drawing nigh.

J. A. Gorham, of Gorham's Bluff, sent to the city last Wednesday the carcass of a Tamworth pig that weighed 676 pounds.

The death of Sir John Allen, though not unexpected, was the cause of much sorrow in the city.

A dog fight on Prince William street last Wednesday drew together 103 excited spectators.

Three English pheasants are to be placed in the city park.
Less than one-half of the voters of St. John city and county were at the poll last Thursday. Of those who were present two-thirds voted for Prohibition. A Sabbath quiet prevailed in the city all day.

The gigantic proportions of human vanity are well illustrated in the personal columns of some of our city newspapers. Eighty pounds of trout and 180 pounds of deer were harvested by a city sportsman at Bonny River a few days ago.

Five persons were arrested in the city for drunkenness last Thursday though all of the bar rooms were supposed to be closed.

A man fell from one of the upper stories of the Mispec Pulp mill to the ground a distance of forty feet, last Friday. He struck on his head, and strange as it may seem, is still alive and may recover.

A party from New York and Buffalo arrived in the city last Friday en route to the North Shore where they hope to capture a moose or two.

It is expected that the Mispec Pulp mill will be in operation about the middle of January. It will give employment to some 150 men.

More country merchants are in the city than during the exhibition and the wholesale merchants about the wharves are very active.

A very extensive business has been built up during the last two or three years by the St. John Desk and Soap Company whose office is at 34 Dock street. They manufacture beautiful secretary writing desks, easy and rocking chairs, Madams Allen's Piano and Furniture Polish (the recipe for which cost them $2000) and control the sale in Canada of Madame Allen's famous toilet soaps and hundreds of other articles of utility and taste, including high class writing papers and envelopes put up in elegant boxes. Their goods are all sold through agents, young men and young women, boys and girls who receive for their services, such premiums as gold and silver watches, bicycles, tassets, and a hundred other articles of greater or less value according to the amount of their sales. No capital is required, and a postal card addressed as above will be promptly answered with all the information needed by a new agent. Young people by giving a few evenings in the week to this business can provide themselves with many articles of necessity and luxury without the expenditure of a dollar. The commercial standing of the St. John Soap and Desk Co. is first class.

Since last week there has been no change in prices of flour and oatmeal. Government is quoted at $2.05, best American partridge 16 1/2 cts., best Canadian 17 1/2 cts., common grades 16 1/2. Economy mass shell sells at 85 per half barrel. Pure lard is quoted at 8 cents in tubs, 8 1/2 cents in pails and 9 cents in tin. Stocks of molasses are low and prices will go higher. Barbados is quoted at 28 and choice P. R. at 32 cents. Granulated sugar is quoted at 42 and extra C at 33 and 37-8 cents. Eggs are in fair supply at 11 and 12 cents.

EDWARD EDWARDS.

St. John, Oct. 1st.

A Great Treasure.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The Cairo correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: "It is stated on good authority that General Kitchener intends to retire from the Egyptian service. He regards his work as completed, and will return to England with the middle of October. It is rumored that his eye-sight is affected."

Upon arriving at Fashoda the Sirdar shook hands with Major Marchand, and they dined together the same evening. Major Marchand lacked supplies. A story is current that he has left Fashoda. He received help from a local chief who is now our adjutant.

"It is stated that the Khalifa's treasure, £10,000,000 in value, which was hidden in the desert, has been found, and forwarded here. Lord Edward Cecil will take Fashoda despatches to London."

"The British Government has offered £12 sterling to each reserve or time-expired man who is willing to re-engage with the expedition."

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The newspapers of the country are clamorously demanding that the Government take the public into its confidence in regard to the Fashoda affair, having been informed that General Kitchener's report has reached the Foreign Office, and that it shows interesting developments. They appear to be deeply disappointed that diplomats are to have the settlement of the question.

The Foreign Office has issued a formal refusal to make public any further details of the affair, some of which, however, are leaking out.

The Sirdar, according to these, after Major Marchand refused to fire the French flag, formally announced that he had come to raise the Egyptian flag, but before doing so, desired to know whether Major Marchand wished to enter a protest. The Frenchman replied in the negative, and the Sirdar then planted the Egyptian flag alone—not the Egyptian and British, as at first reported—500 metres from the French flagstaff.

Negotiations relative to the matter were begun at Paris to-day, the British Ambassador, Right Hon. Sir Edmund J. Monson, calling upon M. Delcasse, the French Foreign Minister.

The Chinese Oracle.

PEKIN, Sept. 28.—An imperial edict was published on Tuesday practically rescinding the emperor's reformatory measures.

It also orders Chang Yen Yuan, the Cantonese enemy of Li Hung Chang, to be confined for the present, but absolves him from all complicity in the alleged plot to murder the Emperor.

CHEROO, Sept. 28.—The British fleet has left Ta-Ku, proceeding for Wei-Hai-Wei. Vice-Admiral Sir Edward H. Seymour, commanding the China station, has returned here. It is rumored that the designs of the Dowager-Empress have been entirely successful.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—A despatch to the Times from Peking says: Su-Yung-Yi, the negotiator of the Gerard convention of 1895, who was subsequently dismissed at the instance of Great Britain for breach of faith, has just been restored to membership in the Tsung-Li-Yamen.

A special despatch from Shanghai says it is reported that Great Britain, United States and Japan are disposed to question the constitution of the Government as open to usurpation.

The family of Li Hung Chang, fearing the populace, have gone to Fort Arthur to be under the protection of the Russians.

Indiana Bank Robbed.

ELORA, Ind., Sept. 27.—This morning the safe of the Farmers' Bank was blown open by robbers, who secured close to $12,000 and made good their escape. Cashier William Lenon, who was aroused by the noise of the explosion, appeared on the scene while the robbers were still at work. He was shot and it is believed will die.

A posse of citizens followed the robbers for some distance, but they got away on a hand-car. Bloodhounds are now on the trail. There were two terrific explosions and the bank building was almost wrecked.

A Night of Terror.

PAISA, Ill., Sept. 30.—Last night was a terrible one for the people of Paissa. Two thirds of the residences were unoccupied. In some cases all the residents of an entire block spent the dark hours in one house, armed, terrorized and awaiting attacks expected to be made on their homes by the negroes imported from Alabama.

All night the striking union miners reinforced by brother miners from other towns, armed with shot-guns and rifles, patrolled the streets, and in some cases lay on houses and in alleys awaiting the coming of the blacks from Springdale and Penwell stockades, the blacks having announced their intention to march into the city and drive out the whites. But the deputy sheriffs were successful in keeping the negroes under control and within the stockades. To-day, in response to Sheriff Coburn's urgent appeal, Battery D of Galesburg and two companies of Hamilton's Sons of Veterans were on the way to Paissa to protect the lives of citizens and their property, but under no consideration to assist the mine owners in operating the mines with imported labor. Many visiting miners, heavily armed, arrived here to-day, and later, with two hundred local miners, left the city for Shelby county, three miles east, to intercept a Baltimore and Ohio train set to arrive at Paissa at 6 o'clock. On the arrival of troops in Paissa it is intended to have all the citizens disarmed by the militia. Sheriff Coburn a writing for troops last evening reported one black killed in Wednesday's riot and several wounded.

Mayor Penwell, son of Operator Penwell, spent last night inside the stockade. He said he was afraid of being mobbed by the miners, and that for fear of his father and mother had left the city.

St. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Paissa, Ill., says: Two hundred Paissa miners held up a Baltimore and Ohio train at the line of Shelby and Christian counties at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The train was carrying sixty imported negroes for work in the Paissa mines. At the point of guns the miners compelled the negroes to unload, started to march them to Tower hill to ship them back to Washington, Ind. The miners had handcuffed over their faces when they held up the train.

Sheriff Courtwright is set to be on the way to Tower hill with a posse to release the negroes. A clash between the miners and deputies is expected.

Fatal Japan Storm.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—The Gaelic brings news of a terrific storm which swept over Japan on Sept. 6. The wind did great damage to shipping. Rivers soon became raging torrents, flooding many sections. A summary of the loss of life and property follows: Deaths, 250; houses swept away, 164; houses overturned, 1,195; partially wrecked, 11,460; houses inundated, 5,597; river banks broken, 78.

The heaviest loss of life occurred in the prefecture of Kowtu, while the Aichi prefecture suffered the greatest loss of property.

Ex-Japanese minister to the United States, Hoshi does not believe there will be an Anglo-Saxon alliance, and further says that neither America nor England will dare take the Philippines without reference to Japan, and that if it were done that would be the moment to move.

Volcanic Eruptions

Are grand, but skin eruptions rob life of joy. Bucklen's Arnica Salve cures them, also Old, Running and Fever Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Felons, Corns, Warts, Cuts, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Chapped Hands, Chillsains. Best Pile Cure on earth. Drives out Pains and Aches. Only 25 cts. a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by all Druggists.

Stoned on the Streets of Peking.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The British foreign office to-day received a despatch from the minister at Peking, saying that Mr. Mortimer, a member of the British legation, on returning home yesterday, with a lady, was insulted and attacked by a mob, which stoned and overpowered him with mud. Later in the day, the despatch adds, some American missionaries were similarly attacked, as was the Chinese secretary of the United States legation. The latter's ribs were broken. Sir Claude M. McDonald, the British minister at Peking, reports that there is a dangerous feeling abroad. Steps have been taken to call the attention of the Chinese Government to these outrages.

Feathers to Stockings.

Economical Suggestions for Women and Girls.

The hat and bonnet, with its trimmings of feathers, ribbons or velvet, the silk neck scarf and tie, the cape, jacket, blouse, waist, skirt, sash and stockings, all are outward articles of feminine attire costing considerable money, and demand close attention, so that daily neatness and good taste be maintained from day to day.

When articles of every day wear such as we have mentioned become faded and dingy, they are usually cast aside by the inexperienced and careless, who forget that the garments are still whole and yet serviceable. A few economical suggestions at this time will be useful.

Thrifty, wise and economical women and girls know just what to do when confronted with such a problem. They have a full knowledge of what can be done with the wonderful Diamond Dyes, those marvellous money savers, and they act accordingly. They use fast black Diamond Dyes prepared specially for feathers, which give a deep, rich and lasting black, making the feathers equal to new ones. Their silk ties, scarves, sashes, and gloves are quickly made new creations by the Diamond Dyes. The faded jacket, cape, blouse, and stockings are magically transformed to suit the taste of the wearer.

Wise women know well that failures are impossible when the popular Diamond Dyes are used, as the manufacturers provide a special black dye for feathers, and special dyes for silk wool, all cotton, and for every make of mixed or union goods.

Christopher Columbus.

HAVANA, Sept. 26.—The remains of Christopher Columbus, which this morning were removed from their niche in the cathedral preparatory to their shipment to Spain, had lain in their late resting place since Jan. 15 1796, when they were brought from San Domingo, that island having been ceded to France by Spain. Since the date mentioned the remains had lain in an open niche in the wall of the presbytery of the cathedral, a yard and a half above the ground, between a pillar supporting the main arch and the choir.

In 1892 there was placed in front of the niche a slab of doubtful artistic taste representing in relief a bust of the great admiral and bearing this inscription: "Restos y imagen del grande colon mil siglos durad guardados en la urna y en la memoria de nuestra nacion" (the remains and image of the great Columbus lie a thousand centuries preserved in this urn and in the remembrance of our nation.)

At the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the new world by Columbus the Spanish cortes included in the Cuban budget large sums for the purpose of erecting a fitting monument symbolizing the travels of the discoverer to be placed in the most conspicuous place in Havana and the construction of a mausoleum to hold his ashes. This mausoleum, the work of the Spanish sculptor Melida, was brought to Havana and placed upon a base erected in the centre aisle of the cathedral close to the main door.

The monument, the work on which was entrusted to the sculptor Surilla, has not come, and probably never will come to Havana. It was to be paid for by an appropriation included in the budget of the island, but circumstances have overthrown the plans made on the occasion of the celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America, and it is probable that both the monument and the mausoleum will be placed in a fitting place in Spain, where they will be looked upon as one of the treasures of the Spanish nation.

Welsford, has just received a fine, new line of the celebrated B. Laurance Spectacles and Eye glass in Gold, Gold-filled and nickel frames. Mr. Woods keeps a perfect line of test lenses, and can guarantee perfect satisfaction to any person who require perfect aids to vision.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.—War or no war I am still in the front rank in fitting trim, having lately secured the services of Mr. J. A. McKinnon, a late graduate of Mr. J. Mitchell's cutting school of New York. I am now fully prepared to give my numerous customers a first class fit, workmanship unexcelled, style

perfect, and prices that will astonish you.
I respectfully invite you to call and inspect my large stock, no trouble to show goods and give you quotations at Joseph

Walker's, Merchant Tailor, second door above People's Bank, Queen Street, Fredericton, West End.

WANTED.—The Cambridge correspondent who loves darkness better than light because his ways are evil.

OATS.

SCHOOL MEETING.—The annual school meeting of District No. 3 will be held in the Grammar School Building on Saturday next, the 11th inst., at 10 o'clock, a. m.

DIED AT YOUNG'S COVE.—Word was received here on Monday of the death of Mrs. Arthur Wiggins, of Young's Cove, on Monday morning.

THANKSGIVING DAY.—The Government will be held on Thursday, November 24th.

JULY WEATHER.—On Monday afternoon the thermometer reported 84 in the shade on Main street.

DEATH OF A CHILD.—Charles A.,

youngest child of Lizzie and David Bradley, jr., of St. John, died on Thursday last, aged 9 months and 5 days.

COMING TO QUEENS.—The Hon. Mr.
Foster, Minister of Public Works, and
Hon. A. G. Blair, Minister of Railways and Canals, will address a meeting, either at Cody's, or Chipman, on Thursday the 13th inst.

TO RACE AT HALIFAX.—Mr. Harry Vale, champion oarsman, of Gagetown, will row a race for $150 a side with John Bradman of Halifax, on the 19th inst. at Bedford Basin.

SUSSEX EXHIBITION.—There will be a three days' exhibition held at Sussex on the 4th, 5th, and 6th insts. Governor

McClellan and several members of the local government will attend the opening.

NOTICE.—All members of Agricultural Society No. 70, are requested to meet at Hall, Upper Hamstead, on Thursday the 6th inst., at 8 a. m., to assist in shingling the Roof of Hall.

APPLE BLOSSOMS.—There has been left on our table a fine bunch of apple blossoms

which were picked off a Gravenstein tree in Mr. H. B. Hall's orchard. The tree on which the blossoms were, also contained a large number of apples. This is a rare thing to see apples and blossoms on the same tree at this time of year.

DRIVING ACCIDENT.—Mr. and Mrs. J.
A. Edwards, of the Queen Hotel, Fredericton, were injured in a driving accident

Thursday afternoon, being thrown out opposite Estey's mill. Both were painfully bruised. Mrs. Edwards sustained a slight cut upon the head and suffered a severe shock. Mr. Edwards was cut upon the left cheek and very severely bruised upon the shoulder.

GOOD CROPS.—Not for many years have the farmers of Charlotte county reaped such bountiful harvests as have been produced this year. The hay crop was exceptionally good, though dull weather interfered somewhat with the gathering of it. The acreage sown in potatoes was somewhat smaller than usual, but the yield has been very great and the quality excellent. Rot has not affected the crop to any considerable extent. Last year the town of St. Stephen imported twenty thousand bushels of potatoes, but our farmers can supply all demands this year. All other crops have yielded well.

—St. Croix Courier.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY MEETING.—At a meeting of Agricultural Society No. 70, on Saturday Oct. 1st, preparations were made for holding the annual exhibition. Messrs. F. J. Pundy, Fred E.

McDonald and George J. Worden were appointed Judges on Classes 1, 4, and 5.

Mrs. T. Sherman Peters, Mrs. J. A.
Stewart and J. Frank Tilley on Classes 2 and 3. Messrs. Chas. Carpenter, Stephen

Hamm and John McD. Belyea on Classes
6 and 7. S. H. Crawford was appointed Superintendent of the Building and R.
E. Gaunce, Superintendent of the Stock and Grounds. Exhibition is to be held on Thursday the 13th inst., and Exhibitors should have their entries in not later than the 7th inst.

TRAVEL DULL.—It is reported that the travel on the river is very dull for this time of the year and also that freight is very scarce. It is rumored that the str.

Victoria will be withdrawn from the Fredericton route and that the Olivette will take her place. The Aberdeen will supply the Gagetown route.

A FATAL FIRE.—A fire occurred at St.
Charles, eight miles west of Richibucto,
Sunday at noon, causing the loss of a house and contents and two lives. The house was owned by Martin D'Aigle, at present in the United States, and was occupied by his father, his two sons, two daughters and a grandchild aged three years. The fire originated under the floor near the kitchen stove. The child was first removed from the building, and while the others were assisting the old man, Martin D'Aigle, to escape, the child wandered into the house again and perished. Martin D'Aigle was badly burned and died last evening at the residence of his son, Melem D'Aigle, merchant and postmaster at St. Charles. He was aged eighty-five years.

IT WAS SUICIDE.—The quiet locality of Bird Settlement has been disturbed by the suicide, while in a fit of despondency of Jennie Brown, daughter of John L.
Bird. The unfortunate young woman was only 25 years of age and had been married about eight years. Her husband made his home at Carleton and they had two children but her married life was most unhappy and two years ago she returned to her parents. Since then she lived as a domestic in the family of Mr.

J. J. Weddall and for some months past she lived in the family of Mr. Fred Smith, the manager of the W. U. telegraph office. She always seemed most conscientious in the performance of her work and was reserved in her manner.

On Saturday last she was given a passage to her home with Mr. Geo. Urquhart, and on the journey seemed to be in great trouble and several times burst into tears.

On Saturday afternoon her parents were absent from home and she frequently expressed the wish that they would return.

About eleven o'clock Sunday night they were aroused by a noise in her room. She was in great agony and told them she was poisoned with strychnine. Dr. Morehouse was summoned but before he arrived she was dead. Her parents and family have the sympathy of their many friends.—Reporter.

PERSONAL.

ilton paid St. John a visit on Saturday.

Mrs. Harvey Weston and family spent Sunday at Upper Gagetown.

Miss Maggie Maxwell went to St. John on Monday.

Mr. Mitchell paid a visit to Fredericton on Friday.

THE PLEBISCITE.

With the Exception of Quebec
Every Province Gave a Majority For Plebiscite.

Thursday was a very quiet election day here. The voters arrived at a fairly early hour and after polling their vote left for their homes. A good vote was polled from the upper end of the parish. J. P.

Bulpea acted as deputy returning officer and Fred Ebbett as clerk in the Gagetown booth. There was only one ballot spoiled in this parish, that one being marked on the place intended for the x with the word "no." The vote was not quite as large as was hoped for here but was considered very good under the circumstances.

On the evening of the 29th a large number of the prohibitionists of Gagetown, and several from the surrounding parishes assembled at the Temperance hall to ascertain the results of the days voting
as far as these could be ascertained.
While the returns were coming in, lively stirring temperance songs were sung by a group of the best singers who gathered around the organ, while Miss Ella Simpson fingered the instrument. Some of the pieces were "The Army of Temperance is Gathering Its Men," "We Are Going to Have a Plebiscite," "Misses Dotie and Bertha Belyea sang as a duet

"Homes There Are of Want and Sorrow." Sometimes the whole audience joined in singing the chorus of such pieces as had a chorus. Addresses were delivered by the Pleb. Ass., Mr. R. T. Babbitt, Mr.
Cecil McLean, Vice Pres., Mr. George
Wilson, and Rev. Neil McLaughlin. Mr.
McLaughlin in the course of his address spoke in a complimentary manner of the wise choice that was made in the selection of president of the Plebiscite Association and moved a vote of thanks to the president for the admirable manner in which he planned and organized and taught and toiled throughout the campaign. The vote was unanimously carried with a ringing speech. When the result of the polling in the Maritime Provinces as far as heard from were being read three rousing cheers rose from the audience; and well it might be so, for the results exceeded anything dreamed of.

It was very gratifying too to find that the number of anti-prohibitionists in the parish of Gagetown dwindled down to fourteen, while one hundred and twenty three voted for prohibition. Gagetown parish is a sober community yet it was feared a large number would vote in the negative, but the better element within men prevailed and with the exception of fourteen all voted in defence of home sobriety, morality, righteousness and liberty.

The following is all the returns that we can get, at this hour, for this constituency:

	Yes	No
Gagetown	109	14
Chipman	174	20
Johnston	150	19
Hamstead	135	10
Armstrong's Corner	101	74
Broad Road	32	58
Gladspring	116	17
Blissville	119	4
Barrow	229	16
Sheffield	105	1
Glassville	80	6
Cambridge	156	8
Wickham	79	0

St. John city gave a majority of 1,464 in favor of the question, the vote being 3054 Yes, 1693 No. Nearly all the large cities of Ontario and Quebec gave majorities against Prohibition. Toronto voted 3254, against; London, 962; Hamilton,

297; Montreal, 2,000; Quebec, 4,100 and Ottawa 790.

The following is the latest returns:

MONTREAL, Oct. 1.—The standing of the provinces by majority at noon was:

Ontario, for, 18,162; Quebec, against,
36,353; Nova Scotia, for, 18,404; New Brunswick, for, 16,735; Prince Edward Island, for, 6,555; Manitoba, for, 3,154;
Northwest Territories, for, 2,024; British Columbia, for, 777.

Total for, 53,315; total against, 36,353;
total majority for, 17,462.

MONTREAL, Oct. 1.—As returns from Quebec come in the majority in favor of Prohibition grows. The province having nearly doubled her majority since yesterday, being now about 14,194, and as there are many constituencies still to complete the probability is that the majority will be considerably augmented.

Returns from British Columbia also show an increased majority, now being placed at 777. Manitoba, however, seems to have fallen off considerably, the majority for being 3,154.

Late returns from the Territories also show a reduced majority, being placed now at 2,024, while in the province of Quebec delayed returns pile up the ma-majority against prohibition, which is now calculated at 36,353, with several unimportant districts to be completed.

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—Returns from the plebiscite are coming in slowly. The majority in favor of prohibition is now about 25,000. Full returns are missing from many counties.

WANTS PROHIBITION PASSED.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 3.—The following resolutions were adopted this evening at a meeting of the Halifax County Prohibition League:

Whereas, by the Plebiscite act passed by the parliament of Canada at its last session there was submitted to the vote of the electors the following question:

"Are you in favor of the passing of an act prohibiting the importing, manufacture or sale of spirits, wine, ale, beer, and all other alcoholic liquors for use as beverages?"

And whereas on the 29th of September the said question was submitted to the electorate of Canada; and

Whereas, a very large majority of the votes polled on that day were in the favor of the passing of such an act: therefore,

Resolved, that we call upon the government and parliament of Canada to pass a prohibitory law, and thus give effect to the voice of the people expressed at the polls.

THE WRONG NOTE.

When I left the train at Elmwood and found that no one was there to meet me, I was surprised. Twice I walked around the station, vainly peering into the gathering darkness in search of the Torrington trap. I was nonplused, for I saw nothing but a rickety public hack, and a rickety horse and rickety driver impugning me to become his fare. Loath to believe my eyes, I sought the station agent.

"Wasn't Mr. Torrington's carriage here to meet this train?" I asked.

The man shook his head. "It was down for the 3 o'clock," he replied. "Took a gentleman off."

This announcement served to increase my perplexity. Here I, having been formally asked to spend Sunday at a house and having formally accepted, was compelled to make my way thither in a public conveyance, while another had been met at the station and carried off in comfort. Over this unusual condition of affairs I puzzled my brain on the drive over to Torrington's. The discount of my position was heightened by the increasing darkness, for the rickety horse made no very good speed, and I realized that the dinner hour was rapidly approaching. But at length we rattled through the gates and up the drive to the house.

Maria Torrington greeted me on the veranda—which was so ill lighted that I could hardly see her face—yet it struck me that there was confusion in her tone. "I'm very glad to see you," she said. "It's a surprise indeed."

"Surprise?" I said. "You knew I was coming."

"Er—yes," she murmured hesitatingly. "But it is so late we had given you up. You must hurry for dinner. Hobson show Mr. Bottomley his room."

Here a tall figure loomed out of the darkness into the foreground, and before I could follow the servant who had taken my bag, my hand was seized, and a heavy voice said: "Hello, old man! Glad to see you."

"Why, hello, Brooks!" I exclaimed. "I am glad to see you."

"Glad to see you—glad to see you," I repeated as I followed Hobson into the hall and up the stairs so my room.

Glad to see Dick Brooks! Glad to see the man with whom I had been racing for two years for the fair prize below! When the servants had gone and I was alone I stamped the floor vigorously and tore open my bag with such violence as to send the contents scattering in every direction.

This thing was getting unpleasant. I could overlook the lack of hospitality in allowing me to make my own way to the house; I could forget her evident surprise at my coming after I had been formally invited by her mother and had as formally accepted, but I could not forgive her asking Dick Brooks and myself at the same time and driving him home in triumph, as it were. I was angry—so angry that I crumpled three ties in dressing and started down to dinner with tan shoes on, and when I finally entered the drawing room to find the family awaiting me I remembered that I had forgotten to brush my hair and was conscious that it was all standing out at the back. It seemed that I flustered and disheveled I was making a very poor showing in comparison with the immaculate Brooks.

"I am very glad to see you," said Mrs. Torrington cordially. "It's a special pleasure as we understood you weren't—Maria glanced sharply at her mother, and the kindly woman stopped, flushed and added: "As we were afraid you weren't coming." The train must have been late. But come."

I shall never forget the dinner that followed. It seemed as though there was a pall over the little company, or rather over all but Brooks. He is a clever fellow, I admit, and seeming to realize that the rest of us were embarrassed and hampered by some secret which could not be his he proceeded to make the best of things and to bear the brunt of the conversation.

Once our host ventured to inform me how pleased he was that I had come after all, whereupon his daughter interrupted and effectually silenced him by asking whether I had been playing much golf of late.

But at length it was over, and Mr. Torrington cornered my clever rival over coffee and cigars, while I slipped away and, though it was late in October and a stiff breeze was blowing from the sea across the bleak meadows, cracking cheerlessly through the dying leaves of the trees, I succeeded in inducing Maria to take a walk on the veranda.

"Now tell me why there is all this surprise on the part of you and your family," I said, once we were out of hearing of the mother, the small brother, the father and the shining rival.

"I think we had cause to be surprised," she said coldly.

"Cause," I replied. I received a note from your mother on Thursday asking me down for Sunday. I accepted."

"You declined," she said in a tone that brooked no contradiction, "and so I telegraphed to Dick to come down. See what a position you placed me in. I couldn't let him know that he was second fiddle."

We had stopped walking, and she stood facing me in the light of the window. Her glance was one of deep reproach. "We are always glad to have you, as you know, but this time it is just a little embarrassing."

"But I accepted," I maintained stoutly.

"Your note said plainly, 'I regret that another engagement prevents me.'"

"Why, Maria," I said, "it was my fault and until this minute it never occurred to me. I got your mother's note on Thursday, had an engagement to meet a lawyer late this afternoon to try to settle a case I am concerned in. As I couldn't attend to the business and catch the last train out I determined to try and postpone the matter. So I wrote two notes—one accepting, the other declining the invitation. I took them both down town next day and as the attorney consented to my postponing the meeting I mailed the acceptance."

"You mean you got them mixed and sent the wrong one," she said. A half smile lighted her face for an instant, to give place to a settled look of displeasure. "And I wired to Dick Brooks."

I laughed quietly.

"What are you laughing at?" she asked.

"Brooks must be puzzled over you having us down here together."

She resented this interference as to our mutual relations by turning sharply, and, carrying herself with exaggerated erectness, she entered the house, with me following crestfallen at her heels.

Brooks was puzzled—so extremely puzzled that he hardly said a word at breakfast, but was quiet and thoughtful, an unusual mood for him. I could see that he had an important piece of engineering on hand and tried to block his schemes, but despite my subtle moves he succeeded in inducing Maria to take him out to the pond and show him the trout.

For a time I chafed in the library under Mrs. Torrington's verbose recital of the difficulties of securing funds for a certain deserving hospital, and at length, unable to bear the restraint longer, rather abruptly ceased myself to take a stroll about the place.

My steps carried me in the direction of the pond, down the drive, over a stretch of land, through a grove, till I was halted at the sight of two hats protruding over the top of a bush a few yards away.

"Maria," I heard Brooks say in a tone more earnest than I had deemed him capable of assuming, "I have waited now for a year for an answer. Sometimes my hopes have been raised—raised only to see you shower kindness on that fellow."

I whistled to the collie that had been bounding along near by, and when Maria Torrington and her companion stepped hurriedly into view I cried "Hello!"

Brooks looked foolish and replied "Hello!" Then he began stirring the dead leaves with a stick.

For a moment all of us must have looked foolish, for as Maria, her face crimson, stared blankly at the distant tree top I leaned over and fell to patting the shaggy dog.

The silence was broken by the girl. She had completely recovered her composure, and fixing her eyes on me, said, "Harry, as you have doubtless heard, Dick—Mr. Brooks—has just asked me to marry him."

"Asked for the thousandth time," muttered Brooks. His clean shaved face was turning red from the tip of his chin to where the hair divided. A man seldom objects to having it known that he is attentive to a woman, but to have her blazen it forth to all the world, and to his worst rival in particular, and in his presence, is not so agreeable if he occupies the position of one rejected. I could not hide a smile at his embarrassment, but my amusement was of short life.

"And you have also asked me," Maria Torrington went on with a coolness that would have astounded me had I not known her.

I had seen her sail a catboat across the bay in the teeth of a gale, one small hand, firmly grasping the tiller, the tugging sheet making great welts in the other, her body leaning so far out to windward that the spray dashed over her repeatedly, and even then she had laughed and given me directions where to sit to balance the boat best. I had followed her in mad gallops around the country. I had seen her coast recklessly on her bicycle down steep hills when I deemed it wise to use a brake. So I was not surprised at this caprice and bowed.

"Yes," I said stupidly, "asked you frequently."

"I like you both very much," she said, fixing her eyes on Brooks, who was still fumbling his stick among the leaves.

It hardly looked fair that she should look so kindly on my rival, so I called her eyes back to me by asking:

"Can't you choose between us?"

"No," she replied after a moment of thoughtful silence. "I've tried very hard to, but I can't. A plan of choosing was suggested to me by your unexpected coming."

"We are both to go away and stay away," growled Brooks.

"One may come back."

"If" Brooks started eagerly toward her. But she raised her hand in warning.

"I don't know which," she said.

"There is an old saying about marriages being a lottery. I propose to increase the chances. If you two consent, I shall carry out at once the scheme that I have got up after long and careful thinking."

"Are we to toss a penny?" I asked.

"No. This afternoon I shall write two notes, one an acceptance the other a refusal. They will be put in plain envelopes, mixed up, directed and mailed. The one of you who receives the refusal shall—"

"Commit suicide."

Brooks gloomy countenance gave credence to a suspicion that in event of his receiving the wrong note he would resort to self destruction. The girl, however, speedily crushed all hopes of such escape from suffering.

"You shall not," she cried. If you do, I shall never speak to either of you again."

"Rather life, then," said I.

Brooks bowed his assent to my observation.

There was a long silence, and then Maria looked from one to the other of us and said earnestly:

"You'll agree to my plan, won't you?"

"There is nothing else that we can do," said I.

"Nothing," repeated Brooks. "In fact, the scheme rather appealed to me, for of late things had not been going so smoothly as I could have desired."

It had seemed at times as though Brooks was drawing away from me in the race. Now a chance had been offered. Once for all the question would be settled.

Then my luck was usually good. But the plan was not so agreeable to my rival. Doubtless he felt that he had the advantage of me and in entering into such a game was gambling to obtain what was already his own.

He had no other course but to assent, however, and he did it with a rather bad grace.

"It seems hard," he said to Maria, "but you will, and I obey."

"It is agreed then?" said she.

Brooks and I bowed. The three of us walked back to the house in silence.

I was up early next morning at my rooms in town. I had calculated everything to a nicety.

The postman would reach the house at 8:10 o'clock. The train for Elmdale left at 9 o'clock. Provided that the contents of the note that I expected proved satisfactory I would have time to breakfast and reach the ferry. Should the note prove to be wrong I certainly would not need any breakfast and much less to catch a train.

I had been awake at dawn. Excitement had driven sleep from my eyes, and the dragging hours gave me more than ample opportunity to figure out my chances.

I revolved over and over again in my mind the history of my acquaintance with Maria Torrington. I reviewed my own life and picked out incidents in it in which luck had played a part, and I found such a balance in my favor that I was almost convinced that it was useless for me to worry over the outcome of the game of chance I was playing.

Having brought myself to a state of comparative confidence, I began to pack a couple of bags full of clothes, for I had made up my mind to make a long stay at the Torrington house while I was about it.

As I stuffed my golf things into a portmanteau I pictured Maria and myself plodding over the links together.

As I folded up my riding clothes I thought of the gallops we were to have, and I broke into song, and as I sang I forgot all about the note that was then on its way to me and worked away as cheerily as though it were but the matter of an hour till I was speeding to her.

But a loud knock at the door called me back to realities, and when the hall boy held out to me a square envelope addressed in a small, angular hand I realized that perhaps after all my joy had been premature—decidedly premature. The note was brief, so brief that in an instant I comprehended its contents, sank into a chair, and, tossing the paper from me, repeated the fatal words:

"Miss Torrington regrets that owing to another engagement she cannot accept Mr. Blank's kind invitation to become his wife."

Why had I ever consented to risk all on a mere throw of dice? Why had I tried to win by a gamble which other men worked, waited and suffered for years to obtain? It would not have been so had had Harkinson, who had been out of the game a year, won her. But that snob Brooks! He would never have an opportunity to gloat over me. I would go abroad. I would exile myself rather than witness one minute of his triumph. I would take the very next steamer—

No! After all it would but add to the satisfaction of my rival to have me eating my heart out in some foreign city. Far better to stay right here in New York, to work and become famous, to bring home to the girl a full sense of what she had lost by her foolish lottery.

But why should I waste my life in dull office drudgery? Why should I, with a solid income inherited from industrial forefathers, throw away the good things of this life for an empty bauble for the sake of a petty revenge on a silly woman? Silly woman? A bold woman who had repaid my homage by gaming with me.

Would a true hearted girl, a girl worth having, have played with a man's love as she had done? She was a flirt—an informal flirt! How lucky was I in getting the wrong note! How fortunate!

I sprang from my chair and damped around the room, singing a snatch of a song. A bag, half packed for the journey, caught my eye, and in a frenzy of joy I kicked it and sent the contents flying over the floor.

A knock at the door interrupted the celebration of my good fortune. It was the hall boy with a telegram.

I opened the dispatch and read: Dreadful mistake. Letters got mixed. Sent you wrong note. Come. MARIA. —New York Sun.

The Egyptian Expedition.

CAIRO, Sept. 25.—Gen. Kitchener, commander-in-chief of the Anglo-Egyptian expedition, has returned to Omdurman, having established posts at Fashoda and on the Sobat river. The troops did no fighting except with a Dervish steamer on the way south, which was captured.

SAKIM, Egypt, Sept. 25.—The only organized remnant of the Khalifa's army was defeated, and its last stronghold, Gedaref, captured, Sept. 22, after three hours' hard fighting, when an Egyptian force numbering one thousand three hundred, under command of Col. Parsons, routed three thousand Dervishes, of whom five hundred were killed. Three British officers were wounded and thirty-seven Egyptian soldiers killed and fifty wounded.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The Daily Telegraph's Cairo correspondent, telegraphing today (Monday) says: "Gen. Kitchener found the French at Fashoda. He notified Major Marchand that he had expressed instructions that the territory was British and that the French must retire, and offered them passage to Cairo. Major Marchand absolutely declined to retire and ordered to do so by his government. No fighting occurred. Major Marchand was given clearly to understand that the British insisted upon their claims, and the rest has been left to be settled by diplomacy between the respective governments."

Gen. Kitchener sent a long official despatch to London, hoisted the Union Jack and the Egyptian ensign, and left as a garrison the eleventh and thirteenth of Sudanese battalions and the Cameron Highlanders to protect the British "flag."

A Flucky Dervish.

A scene at the battle of Omdurman was as follows:—At last the enemies firing slackened; only the last few life-dying fanatics buried themselves into the storm of bullets. Macdonald seized the exact moment to advance. The sparse remnants of the enemy gave way and fell back, and the Union Mahdian belonged to the history of the past. In this advance the 3rd Egyptian brigade, who as amply vindicated their courage as the blacks, by their fine discipline, captured the Khalifa's standard. About fifty dead bodies were grouped around it. Finally not more than three of its intrepid defenders were left, and they linked arms that they might die together fighting. Two of the three were shot, whereupon the one survivor flourishing his spear, advanced against a thousand rifles. It was an inspiring spectacle. The British officers forbade anyone to fire upon the solitary warrior. I can only hope that the splendid fellow escaped. The attack was finally crushed and the moment came for the cavalry to complete the enemies' destruction. The British on the left and the Egyptians on the right charged. I saw long lines of the latter sweeping and piercing, and hacking over the plain; but even now they were doggedly resisted. The accompanying horse battery lost two guns, the horses being killed, though afterwards the guns were of course recovered.

A newspaper down in Maine, in telling of the death of a man through being struck by a railway train, adds that "it will be remembered that he met with a similar accident a year ago." It is to be hoped that the habit which he appears to have contracted will not become chronic.

Farm and Household.

Preparing Corn for Winter.

There are two ways in which corn is prepared in the household for winter use which are eminently successful. It is hardly wise for anyone to attempt to can corn at home, as it requires to be cooked with greater heat than boiling water. Occasionally canned corn keeps where it is put up at home, but such cases are exceptional and not the rule.

Old-fashioned dried corn was always excellent, as is the hulled corn which farmers prepare, when it is properly made. We publish three rules furnished by correspondents. Mrs. M. J. H., of Lion, N. Y., sends the following recipe for drying sweet corn in the old-fashioned manner: "The corn should be taken when just suitable for eating and boiled ten or fifteen minutes—long enough to set the milk. When cool take a sharp knife and cut through every row of kernels (they dry sooner and soak more easily when used), then shave the corn off the cob, spread it on plates near the stove or in the heating closet and let it dry, being careful not to let it brown. It will dry in two or three days. Put the corn in glass jars and it will keep for two years. When you wish to use it soak it in warm water for a couple of hours, then boil in milk, adding a little butter."

Mrs. S. S. H., of Meadville, a Pennsylvania housekeeper, sends the following recipes, which are slightly different: Select fresh ears when they are sufficiently ripe for the table, preferably those you can pick from the stalk. Free them from husk and silk, and then with a thin-bladed sharp knife cut the grains from the cobs. Spread thinly on plates and put in a moderately warm oven. Stir frequently until dried. It will require from twenty-four to thirty-six hours to complete the drying.

"Or with a sharp knife, after preparing as before, split each row of kernels lengthwise of the ear and gently press out the milky pulp. Spread on plates and proceed as before. It is genuine, old-fashioned dried corn it should be prepared immediately after plucking from the stalk and never cooked before cutting from the cob."

Agricultural Brevities.

Most of the wheat flour imported by the island of Porto Rico is received from the United States.

Apropos of the question whether the potato bug eats the tubers or not, Royal New Yorker says a number of its readers have stated positively that they have known the potato bug beetle to eat the tubers.

Professor Kedzie reminds farmers that their most valuable mine of potash is the clay and loam of the farm. Every soil contains potash, but the clay is especially rich in it, and by the slow chemical changes, promoted by tillage, potash is constantly set free for the use of plants.

"A quick change in farming" is noted by Orange Judd Farmer in the statement that good farms near cities have advanced from 5 to 25 per cent in value when reached by an electric railway. The increased demand for farms comes from the city residents who wish to enjoy country life or to raise fruits, vegetables, poultry, etc., for the nearby market.

Jelly Making.

All the vessels and utensils used in preparing and cooking the fruit must be earthen, stone, granite or wooden ware. The use of one tin pan or even an iron spoon, may give a tang to jelly although every other condition is perfect. To keep the natural flavor of fruit dominant the purest sugar, either loaf or granulated, is indispensable.

Boiling the fruit juice and sugar together longer than is necessary thoroughly to combine them, makes jelly darker colored, and pungent flavored. For that reason the sugar must be heated in the oven, and added to the fruit juice after it has been boiled, uncovered, a sufficient length of time. Melted paraffine wax is the best protective for the top of jelly, and it must be stored in a cold, dry room.

Peach Jelly.—Peaches will not make a jelly firm enough to retain its form when removed from the mould, but it is one of the most delicious flavored sweets for cake or puddings. Rub the down from the fruit and halve; remove one-third of the kernel and slice among the fruit; cover to one-third their depth with water; cover the kettle closely and boil, or better yet bake in a hot oven till soft, no longer. Drip through a jelly bag; allow three-fourths of a pound of sugar for every pint of juice; boil the latter steadily, skinning when necessary, for twenty-five minutes; add the hot sugar, stir until dissolved and as soon as it boils remove from the fire and pour into wet jelly glasses.

Plum Jelly.—In point of color, violet red plums are preferable to blue. Wipe the fruit, pierce each one twice with a silver fork, cover to one-fourth their depth with water, cover closely and cook slowly until soft. Proceed as with peaches, allowing one pound of sugar for every pint of juice.

Crab-Apple Jelly.—The large red Siberian crab-apples make a perfect meat jelly; the yellow varieties a choice one, but it is not as rich in color or flavor as the former. Rub dry or wash the fruit, re-

A PERFECT SNAP

We are now manufacturing a Ginger Nut, or Snap, which all who have seen them call the most perfect ever placed upon the market.

Our Fig Bars

are Faultless—equal to, or better than, any ever made or imported. With every confidence of your approval, we offer these two lines for your criticism.

Marmalade—All that was said regarding suitable vessels and utensils, kind of sugar and careful preparation of fruit to be used in making jelly, applies with equal force to marmalade, and indeed to all modes of putting up fruit. While marmalade is only another name for jam, made from the larger fruits, it is far more delicate and wholesome than jam proper because both the seeds and the skins of the fruit are rejected.

Peaches, plums and crab-apples make excellent marmalade. Fruit a little under or just ripe, gives the finest results, but over-ripe, knotty, or speckled fruit can be utilized in this way better than in any other. Prepare peaches and plums as for jelly, crab-apples must be cored, then rubbed through a colander, or coarse sieve to secure the pulp as well as the juice. Use three-fourths of a pound of sugar for every pound of peach pulp, and "one pound for pound" of the other two fruits specified.

A porcelain lined preserving kettle is preferable to granite ware, because it is heavier, and therefore, less liable to scorch and cause the fruit to adhere (the danger that threatens marmalade from first to last, and must be prevented by constant stirring with a wooden ladle). Cook the pulp steadily for half an hour; add the hot sugar, skim off the white froth that rises and continue cooking until a little cooled in a saucer can be slowly turned upside down without running off. Pour in marmalade pots or bowls, and when cold treat the same as jelly.

Quince marmalade—Cut out and reject the blossom ends; pare, quarter and core, dropping the fruit into clear water to prevent discoloration. Cover the parings and cores with cold water, and cook slowly for two or three hours, and strain through a jelly bag, squeezing at the last to obtain all the pectine possible. Drain the fruit, weigh and allow three-fourths of a pound of sugar for every pound of fruit. Stew the fruit in the liquid from the parings until it is soft enough to rub through a colander; return to the kettle with the hot sugar and cook until it is firm.—N. Y. Observer.

How to Check a Cold.

A cold, as nearly every intelligent person knows, is the result of the stoppage somewhere of free circulation of the blood, to which one is first sensitive by a feeling of chill.

So slight is the chill oftentimes that not until the preliminary sneeze comes is the victim aware that he or she has been in the track of a draft or that the temperature has changed.

The usual notion is by going indoors and changing to heavier clothing or retreating from the moist atmosphere, the danger is averted. These precautions are all well enough, but the first and most efficacious measure should be to restore the quick flow of warm blood through every vein, and so by heat counteract the little chill.

One, and perhaps the simplest method of doing this has been learned by men who stand on sentinel duty, who are obliged to suffer more or less exposure in winter or who scorn the comforts in cold weather of overcoats, overshoes or umbrellas.

Their method is, when the temperature of the body or extremities is lowered or a sudden chill or quick change from warm to cold atmosphere is endured, to inhale three or four deep breaths, expand the lungs to their full extent, holding every time the inhaled air as long as possible and then slowly letting it forth through the nostrils.

In doing this the inflation of the lungs sets the heart into such quick motion that the blood is driven with unusual force along its channels and so runs out into the tiniest channels. This radiates a glow down the finger tips and toes, and sets up a quick reaction against the chill. The whole effect is to stir the blood and set in motion as from rapid exercise.

The general tone of the reports from the portions of the United States where the fall wheat threshing is completed are disappointing. This, however, is not because of extremely light yields, but because the yields are so much less than had been expected. The general fine appearance of the wheat fields before harvest seem to have caused too great expectations.—Ex.

At a public sale of Hackneys held recently in Scotland $420 each was the average price for a good horse. The high-knee actors are in great demand all over England especially in the cities. The Scotch farmers go in for high quality regardless of the service fees of $25 to $30. There is a pointer in this for Canadian breeders.—Ex.

Sept. 28.—There was a pie social held in the Temperance Hall on Monday evening in aid of the Baptist church building fund. The sum of over $13 was realized. Bradford and Allen Currier have completed the work of putting a steel ceiling in the Baptist church. The church when completed will be a credit to the place and also to the workman as this is the first work of the kind that has been done here.

To EDITOR QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE.

Mr. Editor: "Ajax" still lives, although many think him about dead. I have been attending some of the best Fall Fairs in Canada, and I am not done yet. There are forty six fall fairs held in the Province of Ontario annually. Many of these are high class fairs, showing all the most important articles of our own Canadian hand. At all these fairs, special attention is paid to visitors by providing dining halls and refreshment booths, check rooms for bicycles, valises, cloaks, etc., police and fire protection, in fact everything that will tend to make their visit pleasant and profitable. The Aylmer fair which has just closed, has attained a wide and substantial reputation throughout the Province of Ontario. During my travels up here I have seen nearly a thousand sheep in one flock and two hundred head of cattle in one field. Toronto has been well named the "Queen City of the West." I will give you an idea of some of the places of interest to visit should you come to Toronto. There is, to begin with, the Lieut. Governor's residence, Parliament buildings, Old City Hall, New City Hall and Court House. Foresters Temple, Prov. Lunatic Asylum Stanley Barracks and Fort, Osgoode Hall, Queen's Park, High Park, Water works, Reservoir and park, Horticultural gardens, University buildings, School of Science and Observatory, Victoria University, McMaster's Hall, Normal School Metropolitan Methodist church, Post Office, St. Lawrence Hall, Knox College, Trinity University, Upper Canada College, General Hospital, Public Library, Massey Music hall, Victoria hospital, Hanlan's Point and Island Park, City Fire Halls, Custom House and many others of interest. A ride of ten miles on the electric cars to Long Range park on the shore of Lake Ontario is a beautiful place to spend a day. Great facilities for boating and fishing in Toronto Bay. A good days sport can be had boating on the Don and Humber river. These are small rivers but abound with thousands of fish, a good place for fishermen, I remain, Yours truly,

Toronto, Sept. 25th.

Cody's Station.

Old Blunder Bush would like to robe himself in a shield of Christian morality and so wonder when Satan likes to appear as an Angel of Light, but as "the leopard cannot change his spots" neither can this brute creature hide his hog nature. It is against the law of the municipality for swine to run at large, but as "The Wild Boar" is rather a vicious animal, the proper authorities dread the task of capturing one, who has not been refined by the civilizing influence of honest neighbors.

His notions are curious. He knows my former remarks fitted his ungainly intellect and he therefore had some small reason to murmur about the "Indians" and "Sagway." His ideas of right are scandalous, and his power of interpreting English is everything but correct. The poor "Nabal," who is assisted by "Belial" and his crew of degenerating "Injuns," seems to take great pleasure in concocting false accusations of theft and "foul-indebility" against their SUPERIOR, and ONE, who never tried to pay them at the rate of seventy cents for a dollar. His assertion about my "literary kleptomaniac" is untrue, and does not find credence save in the crevices of his deranged brain, where all the filth and folly of years past have been allowed to accumulate, and, as I before said, which now "gives off an odor worse than the perfume of the Polecat."

"His braggar life" is such as to pollute the neighborhood with the contaminating "yarns" spun out for the amusement of those who are so unfortunate as to broach the subject at his leisure moments. He does not seem to realize the awful position he occupies, but rather glories in his infamous depreciation of doing that which is void of common sense or human decency. This, the sum of creation seems to illumine his bought brain with the golden specks of nonsense produced by mental exertions of a tribe of "coons," who are the instigators of prolonging the argument between myself and the "The Brute of Johnston" who wishes to show his great powers of oratory. Then, Mr. Editor, however upright your Johnston correspondent may appear he does not have enough of manhood left to acknowledge his faults or make known his identity. I am willing, at any time, to tell my name, and, I therefore challenge him to reveal his name to the public, otherwise he is a coward and a traitor, one who is a curse to society and a menace to civilization, and you should not insert any more of his mongrel exclamations without he allows you to publish his name.

Sept. 30th.

Hamilton's Mountain.

The cold and icy "Hand of Affliction" has again entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McCutcheon of Olinville. This time the bereaved family has been called upon to part with a bright little girl, Agnes, by name. She was 3 years and nearly 9 months of age, and her gentle, artless talk won for her a host of admiring friends. On the morning of the 21st inst. she was playing near a fire out-of-doors, when in some mysterious way her clothes caught fire and in a few minutes she was enveloped in flames. Her sister, Effie, made a gallant effort to extinguish the devouring elements, and at last succeeded in checking their onward career by deluging the child with water. Their screams of terror soon attracted the attention of other members of the family and ere long the burned child was being carefully provided for by her loving parents. The assistance of a doctor was hastily summoned and when their family physician heard how bad the child was burned he knew that human aid would be of no avail, as she was literally roasted across the back just below her shoulder-blades. "Dear little Agnes" never murmured or complained but when asked how she would reply "My back is better." Several times during the afternoon she called for and ate some food, but as the night wore away she grew restless, and near noon of the following day "her young spirit winged its early flight to Him who gave it." One cannot tell how she must have suffered, or what a load of sorrow rolled over the breast of each member of this home as they, for the last time in this world, gazed upon the mortal remains of "a bright emblem of happiness" who had been called to "The Better Land" in the bloom of health and life. The burial took place on Saturday. The services were conducted by the Rev. J. B. Gough. Next day in the funeral sermon he pointed out the real necessity of leading a Christian life. He spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family and trusted they would be found worthy of being reunited with one who is "Not lost but gone before."

WILBER D. HETHERINGTON.

Sept. 28th., 1898.

Chipman.

The vote cast last week here in favor of prohibition was greater than was anticipated by either advocates or opponents of the Temperance cause. At the close of the poll there were found to be 170 in favor of prohibition while only 20 were opposed to the measure.

More than half of the whole number of voters on the list declared themselves in favor of Prohibition. McLean's mill is doing splendid work in sawing since the stroke has been shortened and the friction caused by the pin of the fly wheel lessened.

As a matter of simple justice, it may be stated that the remarks contained in one of the Chipman items a fortnight ago were not intended as construed by some into a reflection upon the representative in the McAlaney estate. On making further inquiry we were pleased to learn from a gentleman who is in a position to know, that no blame whatever attaches to the individual who has had the management of the property in question.

The grain crop is pretty well all threshed out now which is partly due to the shortness of the crop and also to the large number of new machines purchased this fall.

Among other new machines that manufactured by Emmerson and Fisher does excellent work. It is one of those machines operated by Messrs Parkhill and Melnis of Red Bank that is now working early and late in the neighborhood of Briggs' Corner where these popular young men have given eminent satisfaction.

Mr. Willard Dennings who has been studying at Acadia College during the past two years has been visiting his home at Gaspereaux. Mr. Dennings occupied the Baptist pulpit yesterday very acceptably and today starts for Acadia College. Sheriff Reid arrived here by the May Queen on Saturday evening and this morning returns homeward with the halibut boxes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Dunn with their family also came up on the May Queen on Saturday and spent the Sabbath with friends here. The gunning season always attracts a large number of sportsmen from the city to this section where the woods are fairly alive with game of all kinds, it being common to see deer in the same pasture as cattle and a dozen caribou are frequently met with in a single herd. This season is opening with brighter prospects than ever.

Cumberland Bay

Oct. 1.—We are glad to have some more warm weather, as it has been very cold for the past week.

The Sewing Circle of the Baptist church held its annual sale and supper in the Orange hall on Sept. 28th. Proceeds goes toward debt on the church.

Miss Leonore Barton has charge of the school in the village and is well liked both by pupils and their parents. Miss Edna Granville of St. John is visiting Mrs. John Granville and is the guest of Miss Violet.

Mrs. Duncan Bailey of Bailey's Point is spending a few days with her sister Mrs. Asa L. Smith.

Miss Clay accompanied by her sister Cora returned home from St. John last week.

A very enjoyable evening was spent last week, at the home of Mr. Wm. Barton when games and a social dance was indulged in till the wee small hours.

Capt. E. C. Elkin and Mrs. Elkin of St. John, spent Sunday with Robt. Elkin Esq.

Miss Ambrosine Barton who has been spending the summer at Briggs' Corner has returned home and her many friends are glad to see her back again.

Lower Salmon Creek.

Oct. 1st.—The familiar sound of horse bells, both early and late remind us that the pleasant summer has drawn to a close and we are passing again into the cold day of winter.

Mr. H. P. Baird lost a valuable horse on Monday last while threshing at Mr. J. Barnes's barn.

A Gospel Temperance meeting was held in the Presbyterian church at this place, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 28, by the Band of Loyal Crusaders. The programme consisted of recitations, singing and addresses by Rev. D. McD. Clark, Rev. W. E. McIntyre and Mr. W. Dennings.

Miss Maud Higgins who has been spending a few weeks at her home, left here on Thursday morning, for Boston, accompanied by Miss Ida McNeil of this place. We wish them every success on their journey.

Mr. Willie Porter of Boston, is visiting his parents here.

Mr. John Vincent of Worcester, Mass, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. McNeil on Sunday last.

Mrs. Jas. Darrah, Mr. and Mrs. John Harper, Miss Lizzie Harper and Miss Alice Stevens, spent last week in St. John.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Grey of Mass., who had been visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. McAfee, of Briggs Corner, started for home on Thursday, Sept. 22nd, accompanied by their niece Miss Dennis Higgins. They were also accompanied as far as St. John, by Mrs. W. J. Higgins.

To EDITOR QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE.

Dear Sir: A subscriber noticed in your last issue in the Cambridge notes a paragraph having reference to a couple of young men—one from Upper Jemseg, the other from Lower Cambridge—having spent Sunday at McDonald's Corner, the said paragraph ending with the words: "What next?"

It may be that we will hear of the Cambridge correspondent next—perhaps asleep in some man's barnyard; or with his foot in a felt boot, or at near McDonald's Corner, or perhaps near a Flower garden, near the Lower Cambridge Church as he has been carrying branches of two-lip and passy blossoms during the past summer months. It may be that the said gentleman will next be able to attend his duties as S. S. Tescher at McDonald's Corner this month, if he don't burst in the meantime. B.

Mouth of Jemseg.

Oct. 4th.—The grain crops are not as good as people anticipated throughout the parish, there being a considerable amount of light grain. Also the farmers are finding the potatoes hardly an average yield, they being nearly one third rotten.

McLaughlin Bros., have been kept busy during the past few weeks threshing. They say grain is not as good as it was last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Purdy of Upper Jemseg, left by Str. Victoria on Saturday for a few weeks visit to Boston.

Miss Anna Foshey has gone to Nova Scotia for a visit.

Mrs. Sarah Wright who has been spending the past few months in Boston is expected home in a few days. There will probably be a good number of the rate payers attend the school meeting next Saturday as there seems to be a large routine of business to be transacted.

Rev. Joseph B. Gedney of Iowa, U. S. A., once a native of this place was expected here in September to visit his relatives, but has never yet appeared. His friends are anxious and would like to know something of his whereabouts. Any person having seen or heard anything of the Rev. Gentleman will greatly favor those concerned by answering through the columns of the GAZETTE.

Cambridge.

Oct. 4.—A barn belonging to Mr. G. Thorne was destroyed by fire on Friday, the 30th ult. Two of his small children were playing in the barn at the time and it was accidentally set on fire by them. There was no insurance.

Mr. James Macdonald, jr, who has been in Boston for the last year, returned home last week.

Mr. Edward Coes, who was so badly injured a few weeks ago, is able to be around again.

Mr. Budd Colwell of Jemseg, came over on his wheel and spent Sunday at or near the Narrows.

Mrs. Henderson and son of the North End are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. McAlary.

Rev. John Hughes occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church at the Narrows on Sunday evening.

Rev. Mr. White, an evangelist is holding special meetings at Macdonald's Corner.

Mr. Harry Gilchrist left on Friday for Chicago Dental College. His many friends wish him success in his undertaking.

Messrs Smith and Harrison of St. John are spending a few days on the meadows in front of Lower Cambridge shooting ducks.

Mrs. Geo. L. Colwell left on Friday for Sussex to be present at the F. C. B. conference.

Mr. J. Albert Greene, who has been spending his vacation with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Flower, returned to his home in Boston on the 29th.

39-1yr. Troops For Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27—A comprehensive programme for moving troops to Cuba has been outlined by the War Department and its initial features have been decided on. It is the result of directions given by the President on Sept. 19 to the effect that details of troops be made for Cuba. Acting on those directions Major General Miles outlined a plan for sending two divisions to Cuba, the first under command of Major General Wade to leave in October, and the second, under Major General Fitzhugh Lee, to leave in November. Each division is to embrace about 6,000 men, so that the plan is to have some 12,000 troops in Cuba, or on the way there with in the next sixty days. It is not contemplated, however, that any large number of that force shall be assembled at any one point in this country or in Cuba, the desire being to keep them scattered, as they can thereby be handled to better advantage.
