A Terrible Tangle.

CHAPTER XIV.

A STRANGE GUEST.

Ottershaw flung this note into the fire, and viciously used the poker to crush it more surely into the blaze.

He was conscious of a great wrong to his mother, and yet the trick of wandering to himself was too strong to let him act rightly or honestly in his matter.

He was conscious of a great wrong to his mother.

"Why should she interfere in this wretched business at all?" he asked himself, bitterly, "and why bother me with it, especially at this time? Hang the Hammonds! They have plundered my mother all these years, that is pretty sure, and they have no sort of claim on her. She is really much too sentimental. I shall put my foot down on this, once and for all."

At this moment his servant entered the room, speaking quickly:

"I beg your pardon, my lord," he said, "but there's been that young man here again several times to-day—that one as I described to you yesterday, my lord."

Ottershaw swept around to say something sharp to the man, but the servant went on speaking quickly.

"I would not bother you, my lord."

"The Only Cure for Piles"

Writes Mr. Taylor in Telling His Experience With Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Because Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost immediate relief from the dreadful itching, burning, stinging sensations of piles, it is well worth the attention of everyone suffering from this annoying disease.

In most cases, even after years of standing, Dr. Chase's Ointment makes a thorough and lasting cure of itching, bleeding and protruding piles.

Mr. Maxwell Taylor, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes: "To all sufferers from piles in any form I would recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as the only cure. Over a year ago while in Boston I became afflicted with a dreadful itching. I went to a doctor, who gave me some ointment, which made me no better. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and by the use of two boxes I was entirely cured. You may publish this statement in order that other sufferers may profit by my experience."

Dr. Chase's Ointment can better prove its value by the relief it affords than by all the words we could use in its praise. 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Mr. M. Taylor.

Some chord of pity was touched in Ottershaw's heart for a moment. He went forth and stretched out his hands.

"I am glad to see you, Malcolm," he said; "why have you not been to see me before?"

The other man laughed, put his hand for an instant into Ottershaw's, and then drew it away.

"I know my world," he answered, dryly and bitterly, "and I have had the decency to keep myself and my miserable condition well in the shade. I should not come to you now, Ottershaw, only I want money. I must have money somehow. Not for myself," he added, swiftly, "Bless you, man, you would be only throwing it away; I want money for somebody else."

"Sit down," said Ottershaw, "and take your own time; tell me everything. I won't promise whether I will help you or not, but I will listen."

"That is a concession, anyhow," said Malcolm, with a little laugh.

He sat down and unbuttoned his shabby overcoat, then he fixed his eyes on Ottershaw.

he said, "but it seems he's in great want. There's something about him like a gentleman, my lord, although he looks so poor. He begged me to give you this."

Half sullenly Ottershaw took a scrap of paper, on which was written: "Will you see an old college chum, or are you too proud to take the hand of a man who has fallen in the gutter?"

Underneath was scribbled a name that made Ottershaw's brows contract. It was the name of a young fellow who had been his chum and yet his rival at Oxford. A man of brilliant attainments, one for whom everybody had prophesied a magnificent future, and who had disappeared mysteriously a few years before, leaving more than whisper of dishonor and disaster to float like a pall over his disappearance.

Ottershaw had often thought about him, had even wondered what had become of him. He was in no mood for charity or gentleness this night, yet at once an instinct moved him to see this man.

"You can bring him up," he said to his servant, "and let us be alone."

A little of his oppression and unpleasant thought went from Lord Ottershaw as he stood waiting for his unusual visitor to enter. Indeed, it gave him a transitory sense of satisfaction that this man who had so outshone him in the past should creep to him now, apparently about to beg for bread. He felt so humiliated by Elizabeth's scorn of him that even this mean sentiment had placed with him. But this did not linger as the visitor was shown in.

It was not more than six or seven years before that he and Ottershaw had been at Oxford together, yet the creature who stood in the doorway might have seemed at first glance to have lived at least half a century.

No need for Ottershaw to ask the real reason of his old chum's social debasement—he read it in the drooping head, the trembling hand and the shrunken figure. A confirmed drunkard stood before him.

Some chord of pity was touched in Ottershaw's heart for a moment. He went forth and stretched out his hands.

"I am glad to see you, Malcolm," he said; "why have you not been to see me before?"

The other man laughed, put his hand for an instant into Ottershaw's, and then drew it away.

"I know my world," he answered, dryly and bitterly, "and I have had the decency to keep myself and my miserable condition well in the shade. I should not come to you now, Ottershaw, only I want money. I must have money somehow. Not for myself," he added, swiftly, "Bless you, man, you would be only throwing it away; I want money for somebody else."

"Sit down," said Ottershaw, "and take your own time; tell me everything. I won't promise whether I will help you or not, but I will listen."

"That is a concession, anyhow," said Malcolm, with a little laugh.

He sat down and unbuttoned his shabby overcoat, then he fixed his eyes on Ottershaw.

"They called us the two brilliant men of our year, do you remember?" he said. "I took all the prizes that were to be had, and you— What were you not going to do, Mark? Set the world on fire? Well, here we are—I, a self-confessed social rag, and you—"

"Leave me out of the question," said Ottershaw, shortly; "this kind of discussion hurt him. 'I am where I choose to be, you can be sure of that.'"

"No doubt," said the visitor, "no doubt. That is where we all are, if the truth is told."

"Let me know why you want money, and what you want it for," said Ottershaw, after a little pause.

"It is a long story, and it is a short one," answered James Malcolm, and there was pathos and bitterness in his voice.

"You know me as an equal at Oxford, Ottershaw, but perhaps you may have conjectured, as others did, as to where I came from, and what my family consisted of. Well, I have no family, as the word is understood by your world. I am the son of a small north-country tenant farmer, was educated at the village school, and got on, God knows how! By sheer luck, I suppose. At any rate, I passed myself through various schools till I reached Oxford. I tell you all this," said Malcolm, suddenly, "not because I expect to interest you, but because I want you to understand the circumstances. I have not seen my mother or fifteen years. My father died years ago. She—she is an old woman, and quite illiterate. She cannot even sign her own name, but she lives, poor soul! in the pride and the joy of possessing such a son as I am! For to her my glory has never grown less. My triumph at college has been followed by other triumphs, all imaginary, and to keep up this illusion I have managed to scrape together, each year, some money to send to her at Christmas time, a gift which shall make her believe in the real, steadfast position which I have made for myself. I am a living lie, but what of that? Am I the only one? And though I am dragged in the dirt, I cling to that one duty as the only thing left me in life."

At another time Ottershaw would have been instantly touched by this pathetic recital; even as it was, he felt his heart move. But another sensation had come over him as he had stood looking at his old chum, the feeling that this man who had come to him to crave help might be useful to him.

"Why don't you pull yourself up, Jim?" he said.

James Malcolm shrugged his shoulders.

"Why should I? I have no incentive to shut myself away from the one pleasure left to me," he announced. "You don't know what the drink means. But let's get to business. I am here to a man who has fallen as I have! to ask you if you can advance me some money. I cannot give you any security, but I am ready to work out the loan. Possibly there may be nothing that I can do for you, but, on the other hand, I might be of some use; one never knows."

"How much money do you want?" asked Ottershaw.

Malcolm named a certain sum. It was not large.

"I will tell you why I have come to you, Ottershaw," he said. "I have heard that my only sister is going to be wed this Christmas; they want me there, and though my mother has said nothing, I know she looks to me to help with the marriage portion. Ottershaw, I must do this! If I could have seen any other way open, I would not have come to you; but, for the sake of old days, I ask your help now. More than this," went on Malcolm, hoarsely, "I want to get away from here. I am sick of this old country. Perhaps somewhere else, where the sun shines and the world is less dingy, I might work myself out of this slough. Who knows?"

Lord Ottershaw moved to and fro. His face had a strange, set look. His eyes were full of excitement.

"Will you have a brandy and soda, Jim?" he asked, suddenly, and without pausing for an answer, he walked to an inner room and brought back a tray, on which was brandy, two bottles of soda water and glasses.

The way in which the other man poured himself out some stimulant

"They called us the two brilliant men of our year, do you remember?" he said. "I took all the prizes that were to be had, and you— What were you not going to do, Mark? Set the world on fire? Well, here we are—I, a self-confessed social rag, and you—"

My triumph at college has been followed by other triumphs, all imaginary, and to keep up this illusion I have managed to scrape together, each year, some money to send to her at Christmas time, a gift which shall make her believe in the real, steadfast position which I have made for myself. I am a living lie, but what of that? Am I the only one? And though I am dragged in the dirt, I cling to that one duty as the only thing left me in life."

At another time Ottershaw would have been instantly touched by this pathetic recital; even as it was, he felt his heart move. But another sensation had come over him as he had stood looking at his old chum, the feeling that this man who had come to him to crave help might be useful to him.

"Why don't you pull yourself up, Jim?" he said.

James Malcolm shrugged his shoulders.

"Why should I? I have no incentive to shut myself away from the one pleasure left to me," he announced. "You don't know what the drink means. But let's get to business. I am here to a man who has fallen as I have! to ask you if you can advance me some money. I cannot give you any security, but I am ready to work out the loan. Possibly there may be nothing that I can do for you, but, on the other hand, I might be of some use; one never knows."

"How much money do you want?" asked Ottershaw.

Malcolm named a certain sum. It was not large.

"I will tell you why I have come to you, Ottershaw," he said. "I have heard that my only sister is going to be wed this Christmas; they want me there, and though my mother has said nothing, I know she looks to me to help with the marriage portion. Ottershaw, I must do this! If I could have seen any other way open, I would not have come to you; but, for the sake of old days, I ask your help now. More than this," went on Malcolm, hoarsely, "I want to get away from here. I am sick of this old country. Perhaps somewhere else, where the sun shines and the world is less dingy, I might work myself out of this slough. Who knows?"

Lord Ottershaw moved to and fro. His face had a strange, set look. His eyes were full of excitement.

"Will you have a brandy and soda, Jim?" he asked, suddenly, and without pausing for an answer, he walked to an inner room and brought back a tray, on which was brandy, two bottles of soda water and glasses.

The way in which the other man poured himself out some stimulant

A BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM.
This is a condition (or disease) to which doctors give many names, but which few of them really understand. It is simply weakness—a breakdown, a weariness of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its causes (for they are almost numberless), its symptoms are much the same: the more prominent being, sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weariness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is absolutely essential in all such cases is the restoration of the system.

VITAL STRENGTH & ENERGY to throw off these morbid feelings, and experience prove that a night's repose the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of the celebrated life-restoring medicine.

THERAPION NO. 3
than by any other known combination. So sure as it is taken in accordance with the printed directions accompanying it, will the shattered health be restored.

THE EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE LIGHTED UP AGAIN.
and a new existence imparted in place of what had so lately seemed worn-out, "used up," and valueless. This wonderful medicine is purely vegetable and innocuous, is agreeable to the taste and suitable for all constitutions and conditions, in either sex; and it is difficult to imagine a case of disease or debility, which will not be speedily and permanently benefited by this never-failing restorative essence, which is destined to cast into oblivion everything that had preceded it for this world-existence and numerous lives of human ailments.

THERAPION is the principal medicine throughout the world. Price in England, 1/2 and 4/6. Purchasers should see that the word "THERAPION" appears on British Government Stamp in white letters on a red ground affixed to every package by order of His Majesty's Iron Cornet Stewards, and without which it is a forgery.

THERAPION may now also be obtained in Dragee (Tasteless) form.

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS

Cannot be cured with ordinary soothing syrups. The disease must be attacked at the root to eradicate the irritation of the lungs, heal the wounds and strengthen the respiratory organs. The composition of of Tar and Cod Liver Oil and other Medicinal Extracts marks it amongst all other remedies as the true specific for the diseases of the throat, the bronchial tubes and the lungs. Here are a few conclusive proofs:

CHURCH POINT, July 31, '08.
Blacking & Mercantile Co's, Ltd., Amherst, N.S.
Dear Sirs,—Nearly one year ago I had my first order of "Mathieu's Syrup" from you. It was not known in this country, and I gave samples to several families whom I knew would use it. After a few weeks I began to have a call for it, and trade has increased wonderfully since. I have not the least doubt but that it will soon be the best selling remedy for coughs, colds, etc., on the market. In my store here sales are good and our people ask for it. Several stores in this county now keep it in stock and report sales increasing. I have bought from you since August 16th, 1907, 4 Gross and have only three dozen or hand at this date, and which I am holding for retail trade in my store. Yours truly,
LOUIS A. McLANSON.

When the Tide Turns.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"When you get into a tight place and every thing goes against you until it seems you cannot hold on a minute longer, never give up then, for that is just the place and time that the tide will turn."
—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

"Sometimes hits a mighty good thing to be de- loved," spoke in de Wheel up Forchune; you jes' bledged to come up, no mat- ter which away de wheel turns."

Of all the proverbs that pack our language it seems to me there is none with more real meaning in it than this:

"It's always darkest just before the dawn."

Day before yesterday I had one of those days when nothing happens as it should, when one calamity follows hotly upon the heels of another, in short, "when everything goes dead wrong."

The employment bureau which had promised to send me a first class maid sent out a "latterly and brazen crea- ture who smelt unmistakably of brandy; the maid who was departing avenged herself by breaking my favor- ite vase; she also left the ice box door open and the cat stole the dinner; I went shopping and found I was just too late to avail myself of a rare bargain in a long-coveted article for which I cannot afford to pay the full price; the postman brought me a bill which was about twice what I ex- pected, and a letter from a dear friend saying that she would have to give up the visit we had planned; the drainage got stopped up; I walked two miles to interview a maid about whom I heard only to find she had taken a position an hour ago; and bitterest drop of all, I came home so tired and exasperated that I lost my temper completely and finished the day by saying disagree- able things to those I love best in the world.

I went to bed absolutely disheart- ened and wondering what there was in the world worth living for.

That was day before yesterday, and yesterday was a golden day. For, as it always does, the tide having reach- ed its lowest ebb, turned and came flooding in, bearing all sorts of bless- ings.

I have chronicled these two days so fully because I think they are typical in the lives of all of us. Into every life there comes just about once in so often one of these utterly disheartening days; but isn't it just as sure that a day like this is almost always follow- ed by a day of successes and bless- ings, of peace and happiness?

When the tide has reached its low- est ebb it simply must turn; "it's al- ways darkest just before dawn."

Nor is this true merely of separate days and of trifling annoyances. It is also true of long periods in our lives and of great sorrows.

The happiest time of my life came to me just after I had emerged from my greatest grief. My most success- ful year followed one of complete dis- couragement.

Is to-day one of those days of trial and annoyance for you?
Is this year one of your years of grief and discouragement?
Courage, comrade, try to remember "It's always darkest just before dawn."

HOW TO PRESERVE YOUTH AND BEAUTY.

One great secret of youth and beauty for the young woman or the mother is the proper understanding of her womanly system and well-being. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such for instance, as "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M.D., which can readily be procured by sending thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, addressing Dr. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y.

The womanly system is a delicate machine which can only be compared to the intricate mechanism of a beautiful watch which will keep in good running order only with good care and the proper oiling at the right time, so that the delicate mechanism may not be worn out. Very many times young women get old or run down before their time through ignorance and the improper handling of this human mechanism. Mental depression, a confused head, backache, headache, or hot flashes and many symptoms of derangement of the womanly system can be avoided by a proper understanding of what to do, in those trying times that come to all women.

Mrs. G. H. Williams, of Lynchaven, Va., wrote: "It is six years since my health gave way. I had female trouble and all the doctors I consulted failed to do me any good. I was not able to do my work, had to hire someone all the time. Finally, I read in the papers about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and decided to try it. I had not taken but one bottle until I found it had done me good. I took, in all, five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am able to do all my housework, and have gained fourteen pounds. I advise all women who suffer from female trouble to try your 'Favorite Prescription.' It is the only medicine on earth."

Mr. Isaacs a Pauper.

Hero of Marion Crawford's Novel Has Lost Most of His Money.

Readers of Marion Crawford's famous novel "Mr. Isaacs" and Kingling's "Kim" will welcome the interesting account of the remarkable life of Alexander Maleom Jakobi, the real hero of both of those notable works of fiction, given in The Book Monthly by Frederick W. Heath.

It would be difficult to find in all India, he writes, a more remarkable personality than Jakobi, or to discover in any part of the world a man who has led such an amazing life.

Born at Constantinople, he was at the early age of twelve sold as a slave at the market there, and became the property of a rich pasha. Fortunately the pasha treated him well, and instead of putting him to menial work he encouraged the young Jakobi to take an interest in Oriental litera- ture, philosophy and occultism.

For some years Jakobi stayed in the house of the pasha, and it was during these years that his keenly receptive mind gathered so much of that curious Eastern wisdom that was afterwards to make him one of the leading figures in Anglo-Indian society at Simla.

On the death of the pasha Jakobi was thrown once more upon the world and caring little what he did or where he went he decided to make the pilgrimage to Mecca.

After the pilgrimage he made his way to Bombay, and having starved there for a while he got a small ap- pointment at the Nizam's court at Hyderabad.

At Hyderabad he learned a great deal about precious stones, and after making a few thousand rupees by the sale of an emerald he boldly set out for Delhi and, established himself there as a jeweler.

At Delhi he prospered amazingly, and soon finding the city too small for him, he moved to Simla and entered the famous Mart. At Simla his real career began.

The charm of his magnetic person- ality, the strange mystery surrounding so much of his early life, his great wealth and the wonders of his famous house Belvedere, and the marvellous sciences he held all combined to make Jakobi the most eagerly sought after man in Simla.

He became the friend and adviser of viceroys and governors, and he who had carved his way from obscurity and poverty to fame and wealth found himself the leading figure in Anglo- Indian society. But the years of ac- quiescence were few, for at the very height of his fame there came the tragedy of his life.

It was caused by the sale of the famous Imperial diamond to the late Nizam of Hyderabad. After having paid $750,000 for the stone on the promise from the Nizam to pay $1,500,000 for it, the sale was stopped by the Government of India, and in ad- dition to this heavy financial loss Jakobi had to face a legal case in the High Court of Calcutta.

The trial lasted 57 days, and the expenses were so enormous that after it was over, and Jakobi had secured a triumphant verdict, he found himself practically a pauper. He retired to Bombay, where he lives to-day in badly reduced circumstances.

This, in brief, gives the story of the rise and reverse of Jakobi, one of the fullest interest.

If a good looking girl offers it no man is brave enough to refuse to buy a ticket to the concert.

A Child's Waste Clogged Bowels

Makes Them Cross, Peevish, Restless and Feverish—See If Tongue is Coated.

Your child isn't naturally cross, ir- ritable and peevish, Mother! Examine the tongue; if coated, it means the lit- tle one's stomach is disordered, liver inactive and its thirty feet of bowels clogged with foul, decaying waste.

Every mother realizes after giving delicious "Syrup of Figs" that this is the ideal laxative and physic for chil- dren! Nothing else regulates the lit- tle one's tender stomach, liver and bowels so effectively, besides they de- lightfully love its delicious fig taste.

For constipated bowels, sluggish liver, biliousness, or sour, disordered stomach, feverishness, diarrhoea, sore throat, bad breath or to break a cold, give one-half to a teaspoonful of "Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, sour bile, undigested food and contaminated matter will gently move on and out of the system without gripping or nausea, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not dragging your children, being com- posed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly print- ed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, gen- uine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

Big Blaze in Brooklyn.

Causes One Million Dollars Damage and Injury to Fifteen Persons.

New York, Nov. 26.—A $1,000,000 fire was started late yesterday with a series of explosions of chemicals on the ground floor of the five-story building of the Union Sulphur Com- pany in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn. Of 70 men at work in the building, a dozen on the main floor were hurled in every direction, suffer- ing burns, bruises and broken bones. A series of four other explosions fol- lowed in quick order and the building was soon enveloped in the weird blue flames of burning sulphur.

The explosions occurred with such force that eight firemen holding a case upon the flames were thrown into the East River. They were picked up by a police launch, five of them suf- fering severe burns from the explo- sion.

The flames swept down a large hay and grain warehouse of the Brooklyn Eastern District Terminal Company, At times the wall of blaze which the wind drove before it was 200 square feet and it licked so close to the giants of the Brooklyn Gas Com- pany, the Pratt and Standard Oil Com- pany, that a series of explosions was momentarily feared.

While the heat blistered the gas and oil tanks and firemen were turning ons of water upon them to keep them cool, employees hurriedly set to work raving off the great storage of gas. Oil and gasoline through pipes which connected with other plants in Long island city and Green Point.

Fifteen men were removed to hos- pitals suffering from burns and in- juries.

The area of three blocks was wept, though the Brooklyn firemen were aided by New York fire boats and apparatus rushed across the bridges from Manhattan.

Firemen and policemen are search- ing for bodies through the smoulder- ing ruins.

Eight men are reported missing.

One Dose Makes Indigestion Go.

Hearthburn, Gas, Dyspepsia and all Stomach distress ended with "Pape's Diapepsin."

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; it's harmless; it's certain in its action in regulat- ing sick, sour, gassy stomachs. It's millions of cures in indigestion, dys- pepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat some- thing which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nau- sea; or attacks of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin come in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disor- ders is a revelation to those who try it.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 4th, 1912.

A National Grievance.

"The serious situation created by the present price of coal is so far-reaching, touching as it does every fire-side in the colony, as well as every industry, that it has become a national grievance. . . . A means must be found for effecting a reduction in the price of coal, and, if elected, we shall take steps to bring about such a result. We also propose to set on foot a thorough scientific examination of our coal fields and peat areas, so that either, or both, may be at once developed in such a way as to provide an alternative against imported coal for the use of our people."

The words of the paragraph above are taken verbatim from the Manifesto of Sir Edward Morris, put before the Electorate four years and two months ago. Much coal has been burnt since that time. Tens of thousands of fire-sides have been touched since Sir Edward Morris described the situation a serious one. Some sixty thousand pockets have been mulcted badly since the present Prime Minister declared the situation had become a national grievance.

After four sessions of the Legislature, we are still waiting for the reduction in the price of coal which Sir Edward Morris promised, and to which the Hon. Donald Morison, the Hon. John Crosbie, the Hon. Charles Emerson, the rest of the Executive and all the Tory members of the House of Assembly were pledged.

We have heard of the interest which the Hon. Donald Morison has taken in timber limits since that time. We have seen big contracts awarded to a company in which two members of the Executive are directors. We have perused lists of applications of members and supporters of the People's Party for timber grants. But we have heard nothing of effective steps taken by the Tory Party to bring about a reduction in the price of coal.

We realize the supporters of the Morris-Morison combination have been busy, too busy, with arbitrations, looking after jobs in the Civil Service, arranging for patronage, talking about Cold Storage, and putting "the grip" on things, to grapple successfully with the means of reducing the price of coal, and to make it easier for the fishermen, the farmer, the labourer, and all who work for a living to keep a good fire in the stove on a cold winter's night.

It affords cold comfort to those who were told they would find a rallying point under the banner of the People's Party to find that the Prime Minister is 'always on the go,' buzzing around everywhere, hurrying to Boston, New York, London, the Hague, Bristol, Bonne Bay, Burin, Bell Island and La Poile, and to find that he has not found energy enough not only not to reduce the price of coal, but to prevent it soaring much higher than it was when he declared the coal situation a national grievance.

This morning, Mr. Howley, the Director of the Geological Survey, tells the people that the means taken by the Government of Sir Edward Morris have been absolutely ineffective. In a letter to the Daily News he makes this clear beyond peradventure.

Here is his opening paragraph:—"About two years ago the Government passed an enactment offering the most liberal inducements to any company who would undertake the further exploration and development of our coal areas, but so far, neither the men nor the means have been forthcoming."

Moreover this failure does not arise from any lack of coal in the country as will appear from a perusal of other parts of the letter of Mr. Howley. Here is what the Director of the Geological Survey says which has definite bearing on that question:—"I have had opportunities which others did not possess of acquiring a knowledge of our coal resources, during many years of exploration and close study, and I have no hesitation in pronouncing the opinion that the country possesses hundreds of millions of tons of coal. This is not mere guess work; it is founded upon actual investigation, and ascertained facts."

What I am most afraid of now is that the knowledge obtained during many years' labour, as to the location of the coal seams, so far discovered may die with me, and that a time will come when it may take ten times the money, so far expended to relocate them."

What an adverse commentary this affords to the pledge of Sir Edward Morris given by him in these words:—"We also propose to set on foot a thorough scientific examination of our coal fields and peat areas, so that either, or both, may be at once developed in such a way as to provide an alternative against imported coal for the use of our people." This pledge was given over four years ago. Sir Edward promised to develop our coal areas at once. He has not done so.

Why? Not because there is no coal to win, for as the Daily News states editorially this morning: "That there is coal, Mr. Howley is positive; that it is abundant, he is equally positive." And yet to-day, Dec. 4th, 1912, with coal at a higher price than it ever was, the Geological Director states over his own signature that "so far, neither men nor money have been forthcoming," either to explore or develop our coal areas.

Vanishes From Welsh Hotel.
Sheffield, England, Nov. 28.—There is an extraordinary mystery over the disappearance of Mrs. Sidney Nowill, aged 24 years, the handsome wife of a Sheffield manufacturer, from the fashionable Atlantic Hotel at New Quay, a watering place in Wales, and the subsequent suicide of James Delay aged 46, a retired solicitor and a friend of the Nowill family.
Mr. Delay arrived at the hotel on November 9. Mrs. Nowill and her mother got there four days later. Delay and Mrs. Nowill were about to take tea together on the afternoon of Saturday, November 23, when Mrs. Nowill suddenly left the hotel, and has not been seen or heard of since.
Delay was greatly distressed over the matter and searched for the woman all that night, but without avail.
On Sunday Delay was found dead in his bedroom, having hanged himself some time during the day. An inquest was held on Monday, when it developed that Delay, in September last had added a codicil to his will, which was unattested, in which he left Mrs. Nowill $150,000.
The woman's husband testified that 'she did not need money, as she had an abundance. He was completely surprised at the whole affair. He was very friendly with Delay, and never suspected, and did not now suspect, improper relations between him and Mrs. Nowill.
Large rewards have been offered for the recovery of Mrs. Nowill's body, and the whole neighborhood is engaged in the search.

Several feet of snow cover the ground on the coast and all the harbours are solidly frozen over. Heavy slob ice has also made on the outside and this prevented the ship from going further north than Cartwright.

Keen Judgment.

The judgment of all keen buying fishermen is that the FRASER ENGINE for Simplicity, strength, reliability, and endurance is the "KING OF ALL ENGINES." Any fisherman can install the FRASER, any ten year old boy can operate it. Terms easy. The FRASER is not Expensive. FRANKLIN & Co nov30,1f

Newfoundland's Great Premier.

In a few years time Motor Engines will be as popular as the Codtray is to-day, almost every fisherman is beginning to see the necessity of them. Motor Engines should be the greatest boon to the fisherman instead of a source of trouble, annoyance and worry as some are. Some Engines are made to lighten the fisherman's labor and make more pleasant his daily toil. WHILEST OTHERS ARE MADE ONLY TO SELL ON PRICE. In Nfld. there are many engines advertised, and all claiming to be the best, and it is becoming difficult for a fisherman to decide which to buy. It should be borne in mind by purchasers that the FAIRBANKS can lay more claim for their engine being better than any other engine advertised on the market. It is the biggest engine, swings a bigger propeller, horse power against horse power, than any other engine on the market. Look at the other engines for sale here, then look at the FAIRBANKS. The fact that there are more FAIRBANKS ENGINES in the Maritime Provinces than all other engines put together is the best proof of the superiority of the FAIRBANKS over all others. There are over 100,000 in satisfactory use. FAIRBANKS have been sold in many places in this island this fall and next year users of other makes will be wishing that they had purchased a FAIRBANKS. It is made by one of the Atlantic whose reputation is QUALITY and their engines are made up to a STANDARD AND NOT DOWN TO A PRICE. It will develop more power than any other engine of the same Horse Power. This superior engine is for sale and prices and terms are very attractive, so write to-day for particulars. GEO. M. True To Life in a Newspaper Office.

The "Amherst Daily News" says: It is rather astonishing, however, how many people there are who entertain the idea that a newspaper can be run on sentiment and subscriptions. It can't be done and our friends who entertain such an idea should disabuse their minds of such a misconception. A few of the actual every day experiences of life in this office may not prove uninteresting. A few weeks ago an old subscriber called at our office and asked us to publish a notice of a sale that he was having on his premises. We got out our rate card, estimated the size of the ad., and told him it would cost three dollars. Thereupon he lost his temper. He had been taking the paper for thirteen years and this was the first favor he ever asked of us. This was the way he talked to us. After his departure we looked up our subscription book and found that he was four years behind in his payments. Yet he left our office feeling disgruntled because we would not give him a yard or so of space free of charge. Some church societies are our best patrons; others are the limit. They will take all the free advertising they can get, and will not even send us a pot of beans or a loaf of brown bread to help us out in our own commissary department. We were asked this week to advertise a certain church supper, our charge would be about fifty cents. The supper was of no earthly interest to us. We took the advertisement down over the phone, and time is money; informed the telephoner that it would cost fifty cents, and was then told that if we were going to charge for it that we need not put it in. We lost our time and we lost fifty cents, and we had something else to do at the same time. Into our office walked a business man this very week. He gave us an ad. for which we charged a dollar, and then asked us to publish a local calling attention to this ad., which, if we published, should have been charged at ten cents a time, and there were twenty lines. Just imagine a man buying a pound of common soap from a grocer and asking him to throw in a pound of butter. We are asked to do this every day. We could multiply these illustrations, line on line and precept upon precept. We do not want our readers to think we are scolding or that we are sour. We are growing sweeter and mellow as we advance in age.

The Tragedy

ON BART. LAKE SIMCOE

SEAMAN JUKE, UNDER ARREST ON VESSEL FOR THE KILLING OF SEAMAN SEARS, TAKEN IN CUSTODY BY THE POLICE AND BROUGHT TO POLICE STATION — PATHETIC SCENE WITH PRISONER'S WIFE.

The town was filled with commotion to-day when it became known that the barque-Lake Simcoe, Capt. Wilson, had arrived from Pernambuco after a passage of 29 days. The cause of the excitement was that one of the vessel's seamen, John Juke, was on board a prisoner, as it was already known that Juke was charged with the killing of a shipmate named John Sears, who met his fate by being stabbed to death while the Lake Simcoe was en route to Pernambuco from this port. The facts of the case as gleaned by a Telegram reporter to-day are briefly thus: The Lake Simcoe left here on September 5th for Pernambuco fish laden from Baine Johnston & Co. On the day of sailing the crew had been "jolly" together, and little did any of the seamen think of the tragedy which was to occur on board. Everything went well until exactly a week after sailing, when seaman John Sears was killed on the deck of the vessel. This was on September 12th, at 5 o'clock in the morning, when Juke, who was asleep in the fore-cabin, awoke from his slumbers and, rushing to the deck like a madman, according to the story of his shipmates, brandishing a large seaman's knife in his right hand, ran towards Sears, who was on watch at the time, and who had just got a "mug up" from the cook. Thereupon Juke raised the weapon over the head of Sears and plunged it into his neck. Bosun Williams and seaman Power and another seaman, a Russian Finn, who were on deck at the time, witnessed the awful happening. Sears, who was stabbed, had the jugular vein severed, and ran to the cabin with the life blood flowing from him, arousing the captain and mate, who were asleep. At this juncture Juke remained in the place where he committed the deed and was apparently in a desperate state, whilst those who witnessed the stabbing became nervous and ran hastily to the cabin for the captain's gun with which to protect themselves.

The victim, John Sears, never spoke to anyone and succumbed in the course of three minutes as a result of the wound he received. Following his death the remains were prepared for burial, and at noon on the very day of the tragedy the body was consigned to the deep.

John Sears was 21 years of age, unmarried, and leaves two brothers to survive him—Patrick and Robert, his parents having predeceased him. The deceased was a fine sturdy young sailor and was well liked by Capt. Wilson and crew.

As far as can be ascertained the murder occurred without the slightest provocation whatever. John Juke, the perpetrator of the deed, has made quite a number of passages in foreign going sailing vessels, and we are told by those who know him quite well that he has always been mentally unbalanced. It is only a matter of months ago when he jumped overboard out of the same vessel when she was coming on this coast from a Brazilian port. On that occasion the weather was fine and he was rescued, only to again attempt to repeat his rash act, having to be tied down.

It is said that Juke and Sears did have a private grievance, but what ever it was will not be known until it comes out in evidence. We hear from parties who profess to know that both the accused and the victim had been fishing together in the early part of the summer at Flatrock.

A SAD SPECTACLE.

A sad spectacle was witnessed this morning when the Lake Simcoe hauled into the King's wharf at 9.30 and landed the prisoner, who had been in gross through the passage. Hundreds of people gathered around the pier eager to catch a glimpse of Juke. On reaching the shore Juke was taken into custody by Superintendent Grimes and Detective Tobin, who handcuffed him and escorted him to the police station. Before leaving the pier, Johanna Juke, wife of the prisoner, arrived on the scene crying bitterly. She grasped hold of her husband tightly by the waist. At this stage the prisoner broke down, tears flowed from his eyes, and the sight was a sad and touching one. The police arrangements were poor. There was not a cab ready to take along the prisoner, who had to walk through Water Street under police escort, followed by an immense concourse. Inspector General Sullivan and Deputy Minister of Justice Hutchings were interviewed to-day by the Evening Telegram. Asked to what time they were ready to proceed with the preliminary hearing, they stated they did not know. The prisoner is now at the police station, where his relatives are visiting him. Juke is 40 years of age.

Confiscated Issue of Vienna Paper.

Vienna, Nov. 27.—Because of the publication by the Arbeiter Zeitung of the peace manifesto, issued by the International Socialist Congress at Basel, Switzerland, yesterday's issue of the paper was confiscated. The president of the chamber refused to allow an interpellation on the subject by the Social Democrats.

Herr Seitz protested against the confiscation and the President's ruling created an uproar in the chamber. The president said that in view of the present difficult position of the State, the matter should be considered behind closed doors. Herr Seitz, amid cheers, declared that the people wished peace, but it must be peace with honor. The people were ready to defend the honor and integrity of the empire by all their guns, and with all their power. The sitting proceeded behind closed doors.

Will Breed Blue Foxes.

Attached to a fast passenger train leaving the Pacific coast recently was an express car carrying live blue foxes from the Aleutian Islands, en route to St. John's, N.B., to stock a breeding farm.

By the time the animals arrive at their home their owner will have spent a large sum in transporting them many thousand miles by land and sea, but he is convinced that in their new pasture, which has a climate quite as rigorous as that of the Aleutian Islands, he will get skins of the finest quality.

A blue fox skin of the largest grade, it is said, will bring $800 in the London market.

Life is Brief.

Men come into this world of woe and fuss a while, and then they go some where beyond the sun; a little while they work and weep, a little while they sow and reap, and then the journey's done. Men come into this vale teary and skirish round like bridled steers a few brief weary days; a little while they pace and whoop and then they all forsake the coop, and vanish in the haze. Yet in the little fleeting space the world is their abiding place, so do their work so well, that when it's done and they have died the people speak their names with pride, and of their labors tell. And others live like butterflies; they dawdle round each summer skies, content to show their wings; and when they've gone their useless ways, no weeping mourner speaks their praise, no poet of them sings. This life is brief, but it is good and you may saw a lot of wood between the morn and eve; to others you may comfort give so that they'll praise you while you live, and bless you when you leave. Man comes into this world of sighs and snoops around a while and dies, and undertakers smile; but if he does his best to cheer and comfort other pilgrims here, his journey is worth while.

The Armistice Has Been Signed

Special Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day. A protocol arranging the armistice was signed last evening by the Turkish and Bulgarian delegates, the latter representing also Serbia and Montenegro. Prior to this, there had been a long sifting of the Turkish Ministers to consider fresh proposals submitted by the allies. Apparently the Greek delegates did not sign the protocol. At present nothing is known on this point or of the terms of the armistice. The refusal of Greece to sign the armistice has been in existence for more than a week already. It is not impossible that negotiations may have served to bring about an agreement on general principles, on terms such as would promise a speedy arrangement of a peace treaty, when the conference meet as it is now expected in London. In this case the fact of Greece standing out from the armistice protocol would not be of great importance. In the second place, Greek abstention may mean a serious split among the allies arising from jealousies concerning the possession of Saloniki. The insistence of the Greek on the capitalization of Adrianople, Scutari, Janina and other points which might influence situation are to be found in the fact that Turkey recently sought to conclude a separate treaty of peace. Bulgaria is apparently not unwilling to enter into alliance with Turkey if the allies are desirous that Turkey shall enter the Balkan Customs League. There is rumor at Sofia that a suggestion has been made to substitute Roumania for Greece in the Balkan League. It seems clear from the report that Bulgaria ignores the Greek offer to land troops on the Gallipoli Peninsula and to send a fleet to attack the Dardanelles that the relations between Greece and Bulgaria are greatly strained. These signs of discussion among the allies leave the situation full of dangerous possibilities. It is reported that France is trying to persuade Greece to adopt a less unyielding attitude. It is understood financial pressure and exhaustion has forced Bulgaria and Serbia to conclude peace. In this respect Greece which secured victories with less expense is better able to continue hostilities.

Calm and peaceful will be your sleep when rocked in the cradle of the deep, with a FRASER. nov30,1f

A Governor Declares for Lynch Law.

Special Evening Telegram.

RICHMOND, To-day. In the name of the State of South Carolina, the Governor has served notice to the Governors in conference here that lynchers of Negro assailants of white women in his state would go unpunished. I have said all over the States of South Carolina and say it again now, he declared, that I will never order on the Militia to shoot down their neighbors and protect a black brute who commits a heinous crime against white women. Therefore in South Carolina let it be understood that when a Negro assaults a white woman, all that is needed is that they get the right man. They who get him will neither need or receive a trial.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 4, 1912. We are to-day getting ready for sale our stock of Christmas Perfumes. Every year, as it comes round brings an increasing demand for the fine French perfumes of Messrs. Roger & Gallet and L. T. Piver, and for the equally popular English Perfumes Without Spirit of Coiffeur. This year, too, we have added some of the goods of Young, New York, to our list, and believe that these, too, will give splendid satisfaction. On the whole we are more than ever out for business this season, and believe that we can "deliver the goods" and make our customers more delighted than ever. We would ask all interested, old friends and new, to call on us during the next couple of weeks and see the good things we are offering at prices to suit everybody.

Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. Besides beautifying the hair at once

Conductor Hurt
BY RUNAWAY HORSE.

Just before 6 p.m. yesterday a Conductor Eli Lilly, of Street Car No. 1, was standing at the foot of Adelaide Street, on Water Street, and in the act of reversing the trolley pole on a car he was run down by a runaway horse to which he had his back turned and which, of course, he did not see until it was upon him. The man was thrown to the ground, the carriage went over him and the reins becoming entangled in his legs dragged him along Water Street until opposite Mr. P. J. Shea's grocery where he became disengaged. People who witnessed the accident thought the man had been killed outright and so a crowd collected. The man who was covered with mud was unconscious and was borne by Const. Greene and others into Mr. Shea's store where stimulants were administered and where Dr. Tait attended him. The man had a nasty cut on the forehead, he was hurt about the body and one of his arms was badly sprained. He only recovered consciousness on reaching his home where Dr. Anderson attended him. Your Hair is Fluffy, Beautiful and Lustrous in a Few Moments

GIRLS! GET A 25 CENT BOTTLE OF "DANDERINE" AND TRY, THIS. ALSO STOPS FALLING HAIR; DESTROYS DANDRUFF.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

Interesting Lecture.

Rev. Father O'Callaghan delivered an interesting lecture last night at their rooms before the Holy Name Society. The subject dealt with was the life of Robert Emmett, the great Irish Patriot, and needless to say the rev. lecturer handled it in an excellent manner and frequently received hearty applause. Father O'Callaghan was introduced by President Walsh, and at the close of the discourse a hearty vote of thanks was accorded him. Several gramophone selections were given during the evening and a step dance by Mr. Stapleton.

LONDON, Dec. 3.

Adrianople was the obstacle which threatened to wreck negotiations when they first opened. The Turks refused to consider surrender of the stronghold. When the Bulgarians subsequently yielded this point, the Greek delegates demanded time in which to submit the question to Athens. The reason for this is not far to seek. It is obvious that if the Bulgarians sacrifice possession of Adrianople in the interests of peace, they will expect their allies to share their sacrifice, and this can only be done by giving Bulgaria compensation in the shape of territory conquered by Greeks, Servians and Montenegrins, which they have staked out for themselves. The Greeks anticipate that if Turkey ultimately retains Adrianople, Bulgaria will more actively dispute the Hellenic claim to Saloniki. The firm attitude of Turkey as to Adrianople is shown by a telegram from the Sultan to King Ferdinand to the effect that while he is prompted by the most peaceful motives, he will be unable to renounce Turkey's hold on Adrianople, which all Ottomans consider as a Mohammedan sanctuary. Diplomats in all European countries are anxious to see real peace negotiations begun. They consider there will then be a better chance of reaching a settlement of the Austro-Servian dispute, which is still worrying the nerves of Europe.

The annual sale of the Ladies' College Aid Society and the Young Ladies' Guild will be opened in the College Hall this afternoon at 4 o'clock by Mr. Arthur W. Mews. The ladies connected with the sale have been industriously engaged preparing for it for some time past and the result of their labours is evident in the large and varied assortment of fancy and useful articles held for sale. The central stall is replete with a large stock of fancy needlework, and the other booths about the hall are filled with all kinds of work. There is an abundant supply of candies in the candy stall; toy stalls are stocked so well that they would delight the heart of the good Santa Claus, and the hall, the scene of the sale, is beautifully decorated. Teas and general refreshments will be served and afternoon teas may be had on the platform which has been transformed into a veritable Japanese summer house. The tables are spread amongst trees, on the boughs of which are hung a number of fancy lanterns, giving the whole a very pretty and realistic appearance. The ante room at the rear of the hall has been reserved for children's teas. High teas will be served at 6 p.m., and those who work at night can be catered to when they arrive. The sale will be open to-day and tomorrow and a concert will be given Thursday night.

The Mayflower arrived at A. Goodridge & Sons this morning after a passage of 47 days from Bahia via Sydney. The ship on the run down from this port had very rough weather and also on the return run. Gales of wind from the N. to N. W. was the experience with heavy seas, and for hours at a time on several occasions the vessel was hove to. Saturday and Monday the weather was exceptionally stormy and frosty and the ship was iced up considerably.

The schr. General Laurie, Capt. W. Mathieson, also arrived to-day coal laden to Goodridge's from Sydney. She also had rough weather most of the time. Captain Mathieson's wife made the voyage with him.

 TWILLINGATE, To-day. The Twillingate District Meeting of the F. P. U. opened here at 2:30 yesterday and immediately resolved to transmit the following protest to Sir E. P. Morris:
 "The District Council of Twillingate, in session, protest against lumbering operations on the three mile limit at Hall's Bay by Edward Brown, and desires the Government to enforce the Crown Lands Act respecting same. If Brown's operations are permitted, they will ruin the only green spot of timber at Hall's Bay. The Council also wishes to have law enforced to protect all green timber on the islands in Green Bay and have the same reserved for fishery uses."

 OTTAWA, To-day. The debate on the Laurier amendment to the address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne terminated at midnight. The amendment was defeated by a majority of 48 rather more than the Government's normal superiority. Mondou's amendment that the contribution to the Naval forces of the Empire would not be justified as long as the United Kingdom controls the international policy of the Empire the name up was briefly debated. It was defeated by 183 to 4. Laurier voting with the majority. The debating through the day was noteworthy for an attack by Lemieux which drew from J. H. Rainville an emphatic denial of the assertion frequently made that he had said that Canada owes nothing to England.

Montreal Man Was Beaten To Death.
 Montreal, Nov. 27.—Joseph Landon, a fifty-two year old sewing Machine agent, died yesterday evening as the result of a vicious assault on the part of four casual acquaintances he met the previous evening in a saloon. Just before he died Landon told his mother that he had been inveigled into a barn by his new friends and there had been beaten and robbed. When he regained consciousness he found himself lying on the roadway near the mountain, whence he managed to stagger home. His injuries were not thought to be serious but he grew weaker as the day progressed, and died early in the evening. He could give no description of his assailants.

Landslide.
 By the Fogota we learn that after the heavy rain of Friday last a landslide of considerable volume occurred at the rear part of Bay de Verde. Hundreds of tons of rock and earth became loosened on one of the cliffs and came down with a crash. Walsh and other stages and flakes were completely demolished and but that Mr. Walsh had some warning when some single rocks fell preceding the big fall he would have been killed. He had to jump into the water and swim to an islet some distance away to save his life. In his stage were 60 nbs. of codfish which was covered with earth, rock and debris.

That Drowning Accident.

Passengers by the express to-day say that the two men, Hayse and Kearney, were crossing Maher's Pond on Monday when their boat, which was overloaded, sank suddenly under them. They were going off in the woods to cut firewood and the accident was witnessed by a number of friends, who were not near enough to render assistance. Kearney, who was a good swimmer, made a desperate attempt to save his life. While in the water he stripped himself of most of his clothing and swam a short distance, when he suddenly threw up his hands and sank to rise no more. Hayse sank very quietly. Both men were single. The bodies were brought to Cupids by special train and were interred this afternoon.

SOME WORKING GIRLS LOSE TOO MUCH TIME

Two Girls Tell How To 'Avoid It.'
 There is nothing that teaches more than experience. We therefore quote from the letters of two girls who suffered and were restored to health. The same remedy is within reach of all.
 Brooklyn, N. Y. — "Prior to taking the first bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered agony every month, but after your wonderful medicine had been taken a while I felt a little better, and after taking seven bottles of it I feel that I can truly say I have no more pain or inconvenience."
 "As I am out in the business world as a stenographer, I come in contact with many girls, and when the opportune moment arrives I tell them about the Vegetable Compound and I know that quite a few are taking it."—HELEN CANET, 556 Dean St.
Another Girl's Experience.
 Tishomingo, Okla. — "I am a stenographer and book-keeper, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved my life. I am enjoying the best of health now, but I was suffering from female troubles and painful periods, and would have backache, headache and fainting spells. If any woman would like to write to me, I will gladly answer her letter and tell her what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. MATTIE COPENHAVER, Tishomingo, Okla.

S. MILLEY.

Why Who's Who.
BY H. L. RANN.

On the 4th of next March "Tama Jim" Wilson, secretary of agriculture, will retire from the cabinet, after breaking several records for long-distance office holding. For sixteen years "Tama Jim" had not been either absent or tardy when the monthly vouchers were distributed, and some time ago he announced his intention of retiring. The November elections did not weaken that resolve to any extent.

Secretary Wilson was born in Scotland and still has good command of the language. He is a mild man, but when his blood is up he can disperse a large variety of astringent Scotch words which sound like a duel between a grindstone and a power saw. He came to the cabinet from Iowa, where he gained farm knowledge, political sagacity and cockle burrs in great profusion.

In his work Secretary Wilson has the advantage of being a real farmer. He learned the trade by close contact with the full-tipped Guernsey, the melodious Brahmin rooster and the soulful Duroc-Jersey pig, on his Iowa farm. Nobody can come into "Tama Jim's" office and tell him anything about the new styles in potato bugs or which side of a cow to milk on. He is one of the few men who can tell the age, antecedents and disposition of an egg before breaking it into the coffee.

In politics "Tama Jim" leans toward the standpatters at an angle of 95 degrees, but when it comes to agriculture he is brazenly progressive. He has met and conquered such public enemies as the boll weevil, the chintz bug, the cut worm and the quack grass, and has done so without calling out the band. Just now he is working on a system of Turkish baths in order to reduce hog cholera.

Whoever beats "Tama Jim's" record as a practical proposition won't be able to take any prolonged siestas during working hours. He is a sensible, sound-hearted old Scotchman who has done a great work for our greatest industry.
