MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.

The Romance of a Marriage.

CHAPTER XIX.

"Come, my dear boy," murmurs the major, "be reasonable. You know that I have your interest at heart. You know that when—and the silky voice falters—"when I go to that bourne whence no traveller returns, that I intend—or shall I say intended?—leaving you—the shall I say cross?"—he pauses, and shoots a glance up at the handsome face, so set and determined. "My dear Rick, I don't think you can afford to quarrel with me! It sounds coarse, I am aware, and I beg your pardon; but I really don't think you can afford to quarrel with me. For instance, supposing that we do quarrel—which the gods forbid!—and you consummate this ridiculous—and too utterly absurd marriage, I say—what do you intend to live upon?"

Sir Herrick smiles calmly. "I am not quite quite penniless," he says.

"Worse, a thousand times, my dear boy," retorts the major, impressively. "What are a few hundreds a year to a man in your position when he is single? Does your income suffice to purchase the flowers in your coat, the glove on your hand, your stall at the opera?"

Sir Herrick shrugs his shoulders. "I never calculated, sir," he says. "Exactly. You never have, my dear Rick, that there was—is no occasion to while you and I are friends. Well, how far would that miserable hundred or two go with a wife, and—pardon me—a large family?" pathetically. "I have always noticed that the poorer a man is the larger his family. Pray forgive me!"

Sir Herrick nods, his face darker and more set.

"I have thought of it all," he says; "but—"

"Stop," says the major, "hear me out. On the one hand is this truly absurd and too ridiculous love-affair; on the other a match, my dear Rick, which will just give you back your own. Think of it! Come, my dear boy, be sensible. You will bless me in years to come if you yield now, I assure you you will; and so will the charming little girl with the red hair. Think of it! Draw back while there is time. You will, Rick," he pleads. "Real-use this unwanted energy; but the occasion warrants it. Draw back, my dear Ric, from the precipice which, lined though it be with flowers, leads to an abyss which—which—by god! is too awful to contemplate," and the major shudders.

Sir Herrick is silent for a moment, then he looks down at the worldly face with all its little tricks of expression and feminine graces.

"I'm sorry, sir," he says. "For my soul, I'm sorry; I knew you would cut up rough, but I cannot help it. Were you ever in love?"

"Never, my dear Rick," murmurs the major, with pious horror; "never in this excessively foolish and unbecoming manner, believe me!"

"I don't think you ever were," says Sir Herrick, with a curl of the lip, "so you cannot understand. If you had ever been so, you would know that all the advice in the world is thrown away upon a man in my condition. Besides," with a gesture of relief, "it's too late."

The major gasps and turns to him, his face suddenly pale and set.

"What!"

"It is too late," says Sir Herrick, calmly, but gravely. "I have just made a formal proposal."

The major rises, his hands clenched, his keen eyes shooting angry fire.

"You—you—" he stammers, then suddenly his manner changes, and as he sinks into the seat his colour comes back and a faint copy of his sweet smile wreathes his lips. "Really too late!" he murmurs, sweetly. "Real-

And the worldly face screws itself into a pleasant, bantering laugh.

"I am more than satisfied," said Sir Herrick, his hand resting on the padded shoulder of the major's perfect frock-coat. "I am very grateful, sir. Candidly, I didn't think—well, that you would have given way, and I was prepared—"

"To be cut off with the proverbial shilling, and to marry, and bring up a large family on—two-pence a week!"

"Stupid boy! Ah, well, well, youth has its day!" with a shake of the head and a rustle of the white pocket-handkerchief. "By the way, Rick—"

"Yes," says Sir Herrick, still inwardly struggling against incredulity.

"There must be no hurry, you know, Rick; no hasty marriage. Bless my soul, of course the idea is absurd! You are both too young—both. As for her, dear me!"—pathetically—"I thought she was a school-girl home for the holidays!"

Sir Herrick laughs.

"There shall be no undue haste, sir," he says; "but I don't think Paula is so young as she looks."

The major starts with horror.

"What a fearful thing to say of a lady!" he says, with mock indignation.

"There, go to her, Rick, and tell her that you have softened the heart of the old bear, and that he has given his consent to one of the most imprudent and insane matches that—but, perhaps, you'd better not say that."

"I don't think I will," says Sir Herrick, as he turns away with a smile.

The major looks after him, until the tall, slim figure has sauntered out of sight, round to the white dress awaiting him; then the polished, veneered smile of good-natured resignation gives place to a grin of suppressed impatience and irritation.

"I never should have thought that Rick would have been such a fool," he murmurs—"never! and all over a little bit of a girl with red hair! And to think that I should have had this feared journey in the middle of the night, so to speak, for nothing! Perhaps, if I had appeared on the scene a quarter of an hour earlier, I should have been in time to stop the actual formal declaration, and so spare those foolish young people—to say nothing of myself—a considerable amount of trouble. Now, the first thing to do is to come to an understanding with Miss Alice. Now, there's a girl who was born for a great world. If I can get her on my side all the rest will be easy. Poor young people! I really feel for them, but what can one do? One can't let a young fellow of Rick's promise go to the dogs and ruin his prospects by marrying a little red-headed girl without a penny, and the hardened man of the world settled his hat upon his wig with a delicate touch of the slim finger, and quickly donned the smile as Alice's footstep was heard coming out at the door.

At sight of the major, he was for retreating again; but the major rose and raised his hat with an inviting gesture.

"One moment, my dear Miss Estcourt," he says.

"I beg your pardon," says Alice, "I saw Sir Herrick pass, and I was afraid that, your interview being over, you had gone—"

"Without taking my leave of you!" exclaims the major, horrified. "My dear young lady, what have I done that you should deem me capable of so much savagery? No, no! I was just about to seek you for that purpose."

"But you will stay and have some lunch?" says Alice, her blue eyes fixed unconsciously on the smiling face, while she wonders whether he has given his consent or not.

"Thank you very much indeed," says the major; "I shall be delighted."

"Then he has," thinks Alice; "I should scarcely have thought it."

"Will you deem me impertinent, my dear Miss Estcourt," murmurs the major, "if I entertain a few minutes' conversation with you?" and, bare-headed, he moves his hand with Old World courtesy to the bench.

"Certainly," replies Alice; and she seats herself, and looks up at him with a child-like, trustful glance, which the old cynic, who has taken Miss Alice's measure pretty accurately, is not at all deceived by.

"My dear Miss Estcourt—may I say Miss Alice? An old man's privilege," Alice smiles sweetly.

"I'm always called Alice," she murmurs. "Do, please."

The Scotchmen in Newfoundland.

Their Connection With Our Trade and Industries.

H. F. SHORTIS.

I know that I am attempting something wherein I cannot give satisfaction to all, and I am sure to omit the names of some who should be mentioned, but still I am going to do my best.

To give a complete history of the Scotchmen who have done so much to build up Newfoundland is beyond my humble efforts, but it should have been attempted long ago. The subject is an entrancing one, and the Scotchmen of Newfoundland have carried their prestige to such an eminence in so many directions, that it is almost impossible to know the best way to begin this article. We find them as Pioneers, Explorers, Sailors, Sportsmen, Scholars, Poets, Educationalists, Engineers, Doctors, Lawyers, Ministers and Bankers, not to mention Merchants and Patriots. In all these different ways they have excelled, and well may this country be proud of its illustrious Scotchmen. We find them in the very highest positions as Governors, Premiers and taking the chief seats in the Courts of Justice. Probably the one amongst the greatest wealth in Newfoundland was Sir Robert Gillespie Reid, from Cupar Angus, the original builder and operator of our railway system, with its many diversified branches in electricity and machine shops, besides his fleets of nearly twenty of the finest steamships that were all built on the Clyde, every one of which was a good Scotch name. When giving a historic sketch on any Newfoundland subject, we have to go back to the very earliest records, otherwise an article of this kind would carry weight with Newfoundland readers, so that I must start from the beginning.

EARLY HISTORY.

The very first information that we have of Newfoundland, comes from the old Norse Sagas with records of five voyages in the years 985 and 986 to Heilaland, Markland and Vinland—that is Labrador and Newfoundland. In the Sagas of Erik the Red, we have the information that Thorfinn Karlsefni had with him on his voyage TWO GAELS, whom he called Haki and Halka. In his best book on Northern Voyages, states were two Scotchmen. Their names were Haki and Halka. I must give a few words about these pioneers, as they were undoubtedly the first Scotchmen to plant their feet on this hemisphere. They were noted as two very fast runners, and were swifter than the deer. The Sagas mention that they were placed ashore, and Karlsefni remained there for three days. The Scotchmen had instructions to run to the Southward, and investigate the nature of the country and return again on the third day, which they did, one bringing some berries and the other some herbs or wild grass. Now if there anyone doubting of their being Scotchmen, please listen to the description of their dress. They were clad in a garment which they called "Kialfal" (probably the Gaelic name), there was a hood on their heads. The dress was so fashioned that it was opened at the sides and was sleeveless, and was fastened between the legs with buttons and loops, while elsewhere they were naked. There was no doubt about it that they wore a Tam-o-Shanter and the national Kilts that all Scotchmen are still as proud of. We are often greatly disappointed about the meagreness of information in those old Sagas, but it certainly is refreshing to get a few facts like these, and it shows that the old Norsemen were attracted by the handsome appearance of the Kilts, just as we are to-day; and it must have been a strange dress to them, or they would never have mentioned it so particularly. Now to make the proof of their being Scotchmen doubly sure, the Saga relates—"It was when Lief, son of Erik, was with King Olaf in Norway, and that he bade him proclaim Christianity to Greenland, that the King gave him these two Scotchmen. The King advised Lief to have recourse to these people if he should stand in need of feetness, as they were swifter than the deer." King Alfred reigned in England 880 to 901, and we know how the coasts of Scotland and England were harried by the Vikings from the North during his time, so it is really not surprising at all to realize that these events that I am relating are authentic. Now that I have mentioned the old Norsemen, I must give the facts about the voyage of Columbus in 1492.

A SCOT WITH COLUMBUS.

In the list of officers and sailors on his first voyage, the crew were most cosmopolitan—in nationality. Among them there was a Jew (Louis de Tovia), and, of course, an Irishman from Galway (William Harris), and an Englishman (Arthur Laves), Italians, Spaniards and other nationalities, though of course the Spaniards were largely in the majority. It is also related that there was a Scotchman (name not stated), but here is an interesting fact, "That after Columbus himself, this Scotchman was the first man to tread the soil of the New World." (Excerpt from translation of the early voyages of Columbus.) This brings us to the voyage of John Cabot in the "Mattheus" in the year 1497. The records of this voyage are very meagre. We know that John Cabot was an Italian, and that there was a crew of eighteen men, but with the exception of Castione, a man from Burgundy, we have no record of who the others were, but I am ready to vouch if you could find the "ship's articles," you would find that there was not only a Scotchman but an Irishman also in that crew. The next one hundred years is almost a blank in our records, but we do know that fishing operations were kept up with England, and I have no doubt that some Scotchmen came this way. In 1610 John Guy was appointed our first Governor, and we have the records of his first settlement in Conception Bay. The fishermen were then determined to live here all the year round, which was a great step forward. In 1618, John Mason, the next Governor, wrote a most interesting account on Newfoundland life, to stir up immigration. This account was sent to his friend, Sir John Scott, in Edinburgh, and was published there by Andrew Hart, in 1620. Both John Guy and John Mason were Englishmen, but Mason had charge of two British men-of-war in 1608 on a very important mission to reclaim the Hebrides, with Andrew Knox, Bishop of the Isles. (The Norsemen claimed sovereignty of the Hebrides even to the islands of the Clyde in olden times). It was probably for good services rendered here that Mason received the appointment of Governor of Newfoundland in 1615, and we see in his discourse that he was determined to get Scotchmen to emigrate to Newfoundland, as undoubtedly he recognized them as the most desirable settlers, not even excepting those buccaneers from the South of England.

NEW SCOTLAND NAMED.

John Mason, on his return to England, in 1620, became acquainted with Sir William Alexander, Earl of Stirling, and it was his efforts to enlist him in colonization that induced this hero to embark in his splendid work. In Mason's map, published in Vaughan's Golden Fleeces, in 1625, we find the present district of Burgeo and LaPoile was named Alexandria. It is quite possible that the Guy colony, which had already sold portions of their Grant to Falkland and Vaughan, claimed this western district as being between the latitude of Cape St. Mary's and Cape Bonavista, and there was a prospect of getting Sir Wm. Alexander to start his plantation in this section of our country. Perhaps he had larger ideas, for we find that in 1621 he received the princely grant of the whole peninsula of Nova Scotia from James I., to which he gave the first Scotch name that I can get any record of in America. Although Newfoundland cannot claim Sir Wm. Alexander, still it was undoubtedly by reason of Newfoundland that he was induced to start his plantation, and in his book he gives some very interesting facts about the earliest Newfoundland settlements. Before leaving John Mason, I will give a short verse of his published in the Golden Fleeces that will show what he thought of this country, and his efforts for its welfare:—

"Oh, Newfoundland Isle by Britains priz'd
dear,
That hopeful Land which Winters six
I tried
And for our profit meet at full descri'd."

"How this Land shall thrive he doth bewray Thus ships and coine increase, where at least in thought For Fish and Traine, Exchange and all unbought."

A GOOD SCOTCH NAME.

I cannot pass over Sir David Kirk, that sturdy old Loyalist, who kept the flag flying at Ferryland, and offered a new home for Charles I., should his enemies prove too much for him. It was he who assisted Sir Wm. Alexander so successfully in capturing Canada from the French. Sir David Kirk has a good Scotch name; his birthplace was in the North of England, and from his records we know that he was knighted by His Majesty in Scotland. It is a difficult matter to trace the earliest mercantile connection between Scotland and Newfoundland, but no doubt after the Jacobite wars in 1745, many Scotchmen came to Newfoundland as well as to Canada. We find the Scotchmen excelling at whatever they put their hands to, but it is remarkable that they never took kindly to fishing. It has often been remarked that a Scotchman will start out as master or shareman in a boat's crew, but it is regularly characteristic of him that inside of a year of two British men-of-war in 1608 on three boats, and his part of the work in future is to remain on shore and manage the business, while the others do the fishing.

GREENOCK TO THE FORE.

While we have representatives from every Shire in Scotland, and many claim their birthright from Berwick to Aberdeen, and from Dumfriesshire to the Hebrides, still Greenock was undoubtedly headquarters, and it was the mercantile influence from that centre that brought so many Scotchmen to Newfoundland. Two hundred years ago Greenock was a fishing village, straggling row of thatched cottages, with only six slated roofs in the town, but from that time, about 1707, its commercial activity started with America. It was principally with the West Indies at first, but about 1760 ship-building was established, fostered no doubt by its connection with Newfoundland. The vessels built in Greenock have always been held in the highest esteem, and still continue. A Graving Dock was first established in 1788, and from humble beginnings it now exceeds over 100 acres in extent, capable of docking the largest steamers at all times. Other important manufactures started at this time, sail cloth, rope-walks, also anchors and chains and cables, which have since developed into extensive and world-wide business of spinning mills and other important industries including boilers, steam engines, locomotives and other similar works. The seal and whale fisheries, once vigorously prosecuted, are now extinct. It was the foreign trade of Greenock with the West Indies and Newfoundland that first brought prosperity to that town, but their industries are now so diversified and world-wide that its trade is very different to-day. It is indeed very interesting to note that while Newfoundland benefited so much from the Scotchmen that came here, still those who remained at home prospered greatly also.

BURNS' IDEA OF NEWFOUNDLAND

You will find so many old Scotch songs and stories of the Border Chiefs that one would think there must be some interesting stories laid up in Scotland of their yearly exploits in Newfoundland one hundred years ago. Later on Dundee and Aberdeen had their whaling fleets visiting us every Spring, but it was Greenock and the Clyde that were directly interested with the codfish, and I feel sure that our Newfoundland harbors were household words in many homes. Bobbie Burns, that poet so dear to all Scotchmen, had heard of us, and possibly he often wished to visit

Newfoundland abroad,
Where sailors gang to fish for cod."
One of the sights to be seen in the old church yard at Greenock today is the tombstone of "Highland Mary," and she too, as well as her lover, could not have dwelt near the Clyde at that time without having an intimate knowledge of Newfoundland.

The trade with Newfoundland still continues, but in a modified way. I find it impossible in this article to give the consecutive historical facts of Greenock's earliest connections with Newfoundland that I would wish, and I expect that I will make some mistakes, but I shall be only too pleased to be set right, and as I said at first, I hope that some abler pen than mine will now record in writing what should have been attempted long ere this.

THE PIONEERS OF COMMERCE.

HUNTER & CO., St. John's. The firm of Hunter & Co., was a very large concern early in the past century. They were leading merchants in 1780 when Mr. Hunter was called as a witness in court to prove the existence of the Labrador Trade at that time. There was undoubtedly many firms that branched off from this establishment.

R. & J. RUTHERFORD. The partners R. & J. Rutherford, who started in St. John's in 1840, and two other brothers, George and Andrew, who started in Harbor Grace, first came to Newfoundland in connection with Hunter & Co. Rutherford's Ram and Rutherford's Penny should have a page for themselves.

Who has not heard of Andrew and Patrick Tasker, the able managers and resident partners of Hunter's firm? The Masonic Lodge has much to thank the Taskers, and their name will live while there are Masons in the country.

STUART & RENNIE. Afterwards Rennie, Stuart & Co., is another very old firm, record of which I have in 1791. Mr. Rennie came originally from Glasgow, and descendants of his ably uphold the name in St. John's to-day.

J. & W. STEWART. Is another firm still well remembered. They are said to be the first to have started our trade with Brazil, and from official returns for October, 1813, the first cargo of 2049 quintals of codfish was exported from Newfoundland to that country. In one hundred years Brazil has become the principal customer that Newfoundland has, and our best thanks should go out to this old firm. James Stewart was a clever man and took a leading place in politics, as well as mercantile pursuits. We find that about 1812 he was appointed one of the advisers to the Governor.

MURRISON & KERR. Was another important Greenock firm, better known in recent years under the name of Goodfellow & Co. Mr. Goodfellow came out as book-keeper to the old firm, and was eventually their successor. It needs no words of mine to state what esteem James Goodfellow was held in by the people of St. John's. He was a leader in every good work for the benefit of Church and State, and when a City KENNETH McLEA & SONS. The senior of this firm came from the North of Scotland. He was a relative of the great Dr. Livingstone. Carbonear was where he first landed, but after a short time he joined J. & W. Stewart at St. John's. He worked his way to manager, then partner and eventually controlled the head office at Greenock. The Newfoundland business could not get along without him, and he came back to St. John's, built "Richmond"—that beautiful residence and grounds near the Cross Roads for Topsail, and lived there for many years. When his sons grew up he started the firm of Kenneth McLea & Sons, but a few years after his death they left for Montreal, where the well known firm of J. & R. McLea still does a considerable share of Newfoundland trade with that city.

I could mention many more Scotch firms which flourished and carried on an extensive business in all its branches, Imports and Exports, Cod-fishery and Seal-fishery in all its different ways from the catching and curing of fish to the building and manning of vessels and steamers for the seal-fishery, but for one reason or another, they have gone out of business.

Promoted From the Ranks.

There recently came to light the case of a young Army officer who joined the Service as a private, and by sheer merit and bravery rose to a commissioned-officer, he was unable to meet all the numerous demands made upon him for uniforms and travelling, and had to borrow from a money-lender, whose high rate of interest for the loan quickly brought financial disaster to the young soldier. This is but one of the many cases of a man being ruined by promotion. The same thing is constantly occurring among those who hold lower ranks in both the Navy and Army, and it would cause no little surprise if actual figures could be obtained of the number of men who have had to refuse offers of promotion solely because they have been unable to bear the expenses which would follow in due course. Many seamen are every year offered promotion to the ranks of non-commissioned officers, and decline the honour because they are nearing the expiration of their term of service, and the money they would have to spend on a new uniform—which they would only require for, say, a few months—would make them the losers. Until a system is introduced by which promotion will carry with it sufficient means and allowances to keep up the position, the best men will not always be found on top.

A GOOD alarm clock puts in three 8-hour shifts every day. It must be on the dot every minute, too.

Its first job is to get you off to work on time. Then its duties have just begun. It must keep faithful time all day.

That's why we pay so much attention to timekeeping in building Westclox alarms. We want them to make good in your hands.

The patented Westclox process reduces friction. Wheels turn on needle-fine pivots of polished steel. That's why the clock keeps better time and lasts longer. Look for the mark of faithful timekeeping—Westclox—on the dial and tag.

fellow got his stomach on the brain, so when they squared up in the ring he immediately guarded it with his left forearm, leaving himself exposed to Lewis, who promptly hit him a terrible punch on the point. 'Outed by bluff!

"The one-round fight between Bombardier Wells and Carpentier has been referred to as the shortest on record. The fight between Tommy Burns and Jim Roche, the champion of Ireland, only lasted, however, about fifteen seconds. It took place in Dublin, and a ready-witted Irishman turned a joke materially to his own advantage. Rushing out of the building when the brief bout had ended he affected great distress, and shouted to the crowd around the doors:

"Does anyone want a ticket? I cannot look at this fight any longer. Roche is killing him. You can have my ticket for $10, and cheap at the money."

"He found a ready customer and quickly disappeared."

SPORT CLUB CANCELED THE WILDE CONTRACT.

New York, Jan. 9.—The opening of the International Sporting Club has been postponed until the completion of its clubhouse, which is expected to be sometimes late in the summer or in the early fall. In making the announcement Secretary Empe also stated that his contract with the "Little Englishman" will not have the honor of opening the most important club in the history of the American ring.

Wilde's contract was cancelled because of his poor showing against Jack Sharkey, who defeated the Little Britisher in a bout in Milwaukee a few weeks ago. Wilde was a disappointment and the officers of the International Sporting Club decided that he would not do for the opening attraction. A clause in the contract permits the club to cancel the match if Wilde's drawing power becomes affected.

It was originally planned to open the club in temporary quarters in the Lexington Opera House with Wilde and Joe Lynch as the headliners. Now that the match has been called off, there will be no further attempt to hold bouts until the club is located in its own clubhouse.

Applications for the position as referee have been pouring in during the past few weeks. Many of these officials will be required as bouts will be held practically every night in the week. So far there have been no appointments.

Some Fisherisms.

TALES OF KING EDWARD.

(By H. W. WILSON, in Daily Mail.)
Vivacious, unconventional, full of good stories and wise sayings, Lord Fisher's new volume "Records" (Holt and Stoughton), will be read by all and will provoke as much controversy as his career has done. He has the frank, delightful egotism of a child. But behind this is the fame of unrivalled achievements which even his severest critics will admit.

The documents which he publishes in this book contain much, though not all, of the inner history of the naval war, and are of extraordinary historical interest.

He does not disclose the reason for his resignation in May, 1915, but I can state it. He resigned because he was determined not to permit ships of the latest type, such as the Queen Elizabeth, essential for victory in the North Sea, to be risked at the Lardnells.

"The Way to Heaven."
These are some typical sayings and anecdotes from his book:

"Napoleon praised our blockade; but very justly of our diplomacy he thought but ill. Yes, alas! What a diplomacy it has been!!! If our blockade had been permitted by the diplomats to have been effective it would have finished the war at once."

"I entered the Navy penniless, friendless, and forlorn. I have always had to fight like hell, and fighting like hell has made me what I am. Hunger and thirst are to the right hand!"

"I went down to Sandringham with a great party. I slunk off to my room to write an important letter; then I took my coat off, got out my keys, unlocked my portmanteau, and began unpacking. I had a boot in each hand. I heard somebody fumbling with the door handle, and thinking it was the footman, I said, "come in, don't go humberging with that door handle!" and in walked King Edward, with a cigar about a yard long in his mouth. He said (I with a boot in each hand):

"What on earth are you doing?" "Unpacking, Sir! "Where's your servant?" "Haven't got one, Sir." "Where is he?" "Never had one, Sir; couldn't afford it." "Put those boots down; sit in that arm chair." And he went and sat in the other on the other side of the fire. I thought to myself, "This is a rum state of affairs! Here's the King of England sitting in my bedroom on one side of the fire and I'm in my shirt sleeves sitting in an arm chair on the other side."

"He would be extremely unpleasant. One night when I got the King's nurse to dress me, she put the ribbon of something over the wrong shoulder, and the King harangued me as if I'd robbed a church."

"The King and the Cook."
When, in 1904, King Edward came to stay with him:

"He had the cook (Lord Fisher's cook) up in the morning. The King gave her some decoration—I can't remember what it was. Some little time after the King had left, one night I said to the butler at dinner, "This soup was never made by Mrs. Baker (the cook in question); is she ill?" The butler replied, "No, Sir John; Mrs. Baker isn't ill, she has been invited by the King to stay at Buckingham Palace."

"There are three types of secrecy: 1. The ostrich. 2. The red box. 3. The real thing. The secrecy of the red box is that of a distinguished admiral who used to have his red despatch box carried before him as containing the most secret plans; but one day the box unfortunately capsized and burst open, the only contents that fell out were copies of La Vie Parisienne!"

"I nearly exploded with laughter at the picture on Smith's face as he looked at the 'nut' in front of him who had the nerve to speak these patronizing words."

"Tommy Burns, like Willie Lewis, was a good fellow. Don't be a quitter. I will let you stay a round or two."

"I nearly exploded with laughter at the picture on Smith's face as he looked at the 'nut' in front of him who had the nerve to speak these patronizing words."

"An amusing example, by the way of bluff, practised especially by American boxers, is told of Willie Lewis when he fought in Paris. Going into Pat O'Keefe's dressing room immediately before the contest he started chaffing him about his appearance and pointing at the big fellow's stomach he said:

"You're a ver' good fella, but you can't go into the ring with a stomach like that. If I hit you there I might kill you, and I don't feel like going on with the contest until you have trained that down a bit."

"His opponent protested that he was all right, and that he was not bulging with fat but with muscles. Lewis, however, persisted, until the

In the Prize Ring.

BOXERS ARE HUMOROUS.

Eugene Corri, the celebrated boxing referee, states that every fighting man of note has in him the elements of a "funny man." Here are a few incidents that help to prove his words: Jimmy Britt is an incorrigible wag and humorist, while Sam Langford showed himself to be both funny and farcical in conversation with me on one occasion," writes Eugene Corri, England's most famous boxing referee. "It was after a fight when I referred in London between the stocky nigger and Bill Lang, the lanky Australian. We talked about the relative value of brains and brawn in a fighting man, and I happened to remark that Bill Lang had the reputation of fighting with his head, carefully thinking out his plan of attack as he went along.

"Langford rolled his thick lips in a broad grin that revealed all the white teeth in his head, and said:

"Mister Corri, he's pretty fast on his feet, but his brains ain't fast. While he was thinking I was hitting him."

"Willie Ritchie, whose fight with Freddie Welch for the world's championship I refereed, also possessed a rare vein of humor. His name recalls a very amusing story.

"He was one day going down with his trainer to his training quarters at Brighton, and on the road they pulled up at the famous old Bayford Bridge Hotel. The manager, after lunch, was showing them over the place, and said, "This was Nelson's room."

"Ritchie replied cheerily, "Why did that train here?"

"The hotelkeeper was thinking of England's hero, and the pugilist of his namesake, Battling Nelson, the famous lightweight.

"Undoubtedly one of the quietest little fighting gentlemen in the world is Johnny Summers. Johnny is a devout Catholic, and he carries his religion to his work in a manner that is remarkable. While training he invariably keeps beside him in his quarters a pocket crucifix, to which he has recourse at frequent intervals. The crucifix may be concealed under a pillow, as was the case at Brighton when training to fight Freddie Welch at the National Sporting Club several years ago, or it may be skillfully concealed in his sock where it can be reverently touched at will.

"I am reminded of a funny story in connection with Johnny's religious observations at the National Sporting Club. On that occasion he very noticeably crossed himself at the start of a severe contest with Jimmy Britt and then characteristically crossed his opponent with his right hand. After the bout Britt came to me and said—I give his very words:

"Mr. Corri, I am satisfied with your decision."

"I had given the verdict to Summers."

"A friend of mine who spoke to Summers on one occasion about his devout practice said that the boxer took it all in good part and openly avowed that it did him good and helped him at his work.

"Fighting is my profession, said Summers, "and I'm not ashamed of it. If I introduce my religion into my daily occupation it is no more than every Christian ought to do."

"Two amusing examples of the fondness of pugilists for practical joking come to my mind.

"Willie Lewis was fighting Smith in Paris and before the contest he went to the theatre as unconcernedly as if the fight was an affair of no importance. Lewis always dressed well, and shortly before the fight was time to start walked into Jewey Smith's dressing room wearing evening dress, patent leather shoes, an opera hat, and white kid gloves, looking in Smith's eyes more of a popinjay than a pugilist.

"There sat Smith bunched up in his chair, terrible to behold, with his broad back, his rolling shoulders and bovine neck, his paws set, and his mouth clenched, like a huge mastiff impatiently chafing for a fight. He had never seen Lewis before, and scarcely more than looked around when the toff, as he took him to be, said:

"You're fighting a very good man to-night. You'll have to look out for yourself. Lewis is a pretty lofty fellow. I hope you're fit."

"When Lewis had gone out, Smith said to his manager:

"Who is that toff? The reply was: "That is the man you are going to fight."

"Smith was staggered by the toff's coolness, and Lewis proved his words later by knocking the red-headed giant "all over the shop."

"Cooler still was the conduct of Tompaz Burns when he fought Jewey Smith in London. They were to meet in the office of the Sporting Life. Smith was jabbing at something or other in the conditions, when Tommy Burns arrived, wearing a top hat and a gorgeous overcoat. Walking up to Smith he said:

"Go on, sign these articles like a good fellow. Don't be a quitter. I will let you stay a round or two."

"I nearly exploded with laughter at the picture on Smith's face as he looked at the 'nut' in front of him who had the nerve to speak these patronizing words."

"Tommy Burns, like Willie Lewis, was a good fellow. Don't be a quitter. I will let you stay a round or two."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE WORLD MOVES, TOO.

The other day I asked a friend of mine if she could come to a little informal gathering we were to have that evening. "I'd love to," she said regretfully (or politely?) "but tonight is our class reunion and I don't see some of the girls more than once a year."

There is a woman between 55 and 60, presumably her classmates are about old. And yet whenever she speaks of them, she always calls them "the girls."

You Do Not Mind the Change.

Whenever I hear a reference of a sort (as I often do) a line of young's comes into my mind. Grow old along with me.

Perhaps that line does not sound you as if it were packed with meaning, but it is to me.

For to me it means this—as you grow older, the world moves along with you, and moves so imperceptibly that you do not notice or mind change half so much as you think you are going to when you are young.

I think when one is young one has a great hate of growing older because one does not sense in the least that that process is going to happen.

You WANT To Be Stupid Things.

Some pictures or (as it is doing) things that the older folks do, and wanting all the time to do different things; one does not realize that one may want to do those same stupid things. And one sees very plainly the deprivations that the change from youth to middle age imposes, but one does not see because one cannot see until one feels them, the compensations it also brings.

I had my first lesson in the way the world moves along just after I left college. I had enjoyed the college life intensely and was very homesick for it at first. I was not going to be able to go back for over a year. How can I wait! I thought. Gradually, however, I became absorbed in my new life. The weeks and months slipped by more and more rapidly and the time came for my visit before I realized it. I started back with a high heart, but that visit was a great disappointment. The college was there, of course, but many of the faces that counted were gone, and everything seemed vaguely different. I had expected so long to be back in my old room, but I didn't at all. It seemed to me like another self who had lived there. And to tell the truth, my new self was really more interested in my present life and glad to get back to it.

Nature Looks Out For That.

Growing old is one of Nature's processes, and Nature's processes are never abrupt or painful.

I do not mean, of course, that one never regrets one's youth, but that one does regret it half so poignantly as one expects to when one is young.

At least that is the way it seems to me. But then I have not gone so very far yet. Perhaps some of my reader friends who are far beyond me on the great highway will tell me whether my guess is right.

ONE KIND OF THRIFT.

I earn six hundred bones a year, and have some fourteen aunts to feed; and now that everything is dear, it takes some figuring indeed. I'm thrifty in the higher sense, although I play in evil luck; my income covers my expense.

No man can say I owe a buck. My neighbor earns three thousand wheels while for six hundred wheels I grind; and doubtless, in his pride, he feels that I'm the selling plater kind. And creditors to his abode are wearing paths, the long year through; collectors linger in the road to touch him for some bill that's due. My aunts are always wanting things; they yearn for things no splinter needs, for furbelows and diamond rings, canary birds and widow's weeds. They say, "Your credit at the store is right side up, and three feet wide; why must we always walk the floor and weep for things that are denied?" I answer, feeling slightly bored, "It is no use to scream and pout; the silly things we can't afford are just the things we'll do without." Herein behold the soul of thrift: To pass up what we can't afford, the new fur coat, the motor swift, the trotting with a gilded horde.

The Lady Did.

A clergyman was dining in a restaurant one evening, when a woman wearing a bare back gown entered and took a seat at the next table. The padre could not help overhearing some remarks by the lady about his personal appearance. He took no notice until the waiter offered him some mayonnaise salad. Then he said in his blandest voice: "No, thanks; I don't require dressing, but I think the lady at the next table does."

THE FAMILY MOTHER.

There's always one in the family that shoulders the weight of care. There's always one with the needed strength for whatever there is to bear: She mothers us all in her gentle way, smooths many a pillow sad, And carries the load through the troubled times 'till the day when our skies grow glad; She's mother and nurse and counsel, too—an angel of faith and cheer, And it helps us all in our hours of grief, to know that she's standing near.

Her voice is sweet and her smile is bright and seldom we hear her sigh; And seldom we think she has suffered, too, in the days that have passed her by; For never she talks of the care she knows, but always she thinks of ours, And things go smoothly when she is near, for she seems to have magic powers; The dying cling to her hand at night and smile as they see her face, And the living warm to her words of faith and her comforting touch of grace.

There's always one in the family that stands to the shock and pain, And shoulders the burdens of grief and care till peace shall be ours again; Unselfish, thoughtful and always kind, on a ceaseless round she goes, Carrying cheer to the sick and wan, and lingering all our woes; If ever God sends an angel down to help us and guide us on, I am sure it's the one in the family that always we lean upon.

On Whom Was the Joke?

(From the Outlook.)
Booth Tarkington is said to tell with gusto this story concerning himself and another popular author: "I was strolling around an artist's Red Cross fair when two pretty fappers of sixteen or so came up and asked me for my autograph. 'I haven't got a fountain pen,' I said, much flattered. 'Will a pencil do?' 'Yes,' said the other 'fapper,' and so I took out my pencil and signed my name in the morocco-bound book that she had given me. The fapper staled the signature with a frown. Then she looked up and said, 'Aren't you Robert W. Chambers?' 'No,' said I. 'I'm Booth Tarkington. The 'fapper' turned to her friend with a shrug of disgust. 'Lend me your rubber, May,' she said."

MUTT AND JEFF—MUTT, OLD THING, MAKES ONE OF THOSE FOOLISH BETS. By Bud Fisher.

I JUST HEARD AT THE CLUB THAT MUTT AND SIR SIDNEY SMOKE, ORT SMOKING ON NEW YEAR'S DAY. THE ONE WHO SMOKE FIRST HAS TO PAY THE OTHER GUY TEN DOLLARS.

WHAT A FOUL I WAS TO MAKE THAT BET WITH SIR SIDNEY. I'M SIMPLY DYING FOR A SMOKE. I DON'T DARE GO WHERE MEN ARE SMOKING—THE AROMA OF TOBACCO DRIVES ME FRANTIC.

MUTT, I GOTTA HAND IT TO YOU. YOU'VE GOT SOME WILL POWER. BELIEVE ME, YOU'LL WIN THE TEN FROM SIR SIDNEY EASY AS PIE.

I KNOW THAT WHEN YOU SAID YOU WOULDN'T SMOKE, THAT SETTLED IT. YOUR WILL POWER CONQUERED YOUR TOBACCO APPETITE INSTANTLY.

BUT AFTER ALL, A GOOD CLEAR HAVANA CIGAR DOES TASTE NIFTY, MUTT.

GET AWAY FROM ME, YOU INSECT.

Supreme Confidence

No stronger indication of the political sentiment permeating the District of St. John's West was ever given than that displayed at last night's tremendously inspiring and thrilling meeting. St. John's West has at last awakened to the numerous perils, standing like lions in the path, that threaten to befall the city, should a renewal of confidence be given the men who to-day are seeking re-election on behalf of the Government. The dangers which menace the trade and commerce of the dominion are very real ones, and have not been magnified to suit a political purpose by the Opposition, because there has not been any need. They are great enough without being enlarged upon. They are real enough to compel the earnest attention of every intelligent man, who to-day can exercise his right to use the ballot as a protection to him and his against the dark future which looms ahead, under a continuation of the Coaker-Squires administration.

The issues dependent upon to-day's bye-election have been squarely placed before the electors. Without malice and with only a desire to show just where the capital of Newfoundland stands, should present conditions of Government be maintained and approved, the situation has been thoroughly and exhaustively explained, and the methods of correction expounded. There can be no denial of the facts. They are printed, as it were, in letters of flame, upon the mind of every man, woman and child in this city, for even the women and the children are interested in to-day's election, and are urging their men folk on to kill the monster of Toryism which has arisen in their midst. There can be no half measures about the process of destruction. The methods adopted need to be drastic and lasting. Scotching will not do, the killing must be, if salvation is a desideratum, done in such a manner that life can never be restored to the carcass of Toryism, and the only way to bring about the justifiable murder of oppression is by using the weapon of the ballot.

That opportunity, the last one, remember, offers to-day. The decision is between prosperity on the one hand, and stagnation on the other. By electing the candidates of the Government, the clock of progress will be put back to the old days when monopoly ruled the land, and advancement was frowned upon. Newfoundland has, by strenuous efforts, shaken herself free from those cords of bondage, but they have been again made ready to bind her in commercial thralldom. The Fish Export Regulations have been made for the sole purpose of putting the entire fish trade of the Dominion into the hands of the half dozen men who form the combine. A most dangerous and perilous undertaking. Let this combine once get control and good-by to competition. Already several of the large fish buying firms on Water Street, NOT IN THE RING, have announced that should these regulations continue, should the Coaker-Squires Government be kept in power: should St. John's West fall in its paramount duty to-day: should MARTIN and LINEGAR not be elected, they will have to curtail their operations and buy less fish, as well as cutting out the issuance of supplies to planters for the Labrador and Shore fisheries.

Is there any need to dilate upon what will happen, should it be found necessary to do this? The paralysis of trade, of labor and of industries will naturally follow, and upon St. John's particularly will fall the curse of Coakerism. Do the men of St. John's desire that this should be? They do not. The answer of many of them has already been recorded on the silent but omnipotent ballot, and that answer is in the negative. Others during the day will make a similar answer, and backed up by that overwhelming vote of Labor, which solemnly pledged itself to the candidates of the Liberal-Labor Party at last night's meeting, MARTIN and LINEGAR will roll up a solid majority, and their election will mark the beginning of a new birth of freedom for dear old Newfoundland.

How Klim is Made.

All the fresh liquid milk used in producing Klim comes from high-grade dairy farms, where the cows, stables, and milk cans are regularly inspected by our own dairy inspectors. The milk is received at our milk powder plants in the cool of the morning. It is pasteurized by the most modern methods and separated to remove most of the fat, and is then put through a process of concentration under vacuum, which removes most of the water. The resulting thick milk is forced through clean milk piping to the drying chambers, where the milk enters in a fine spray, meeting a blast of heated, filtered, pure dry air, which evaporates the rest of the water from the milk, leaving a fine dry product-powdered separated milk. At no time in the process of actually drying the milk does the temperature of it reach a higher point than 130 degrees F., which means that the milk solids are not cooked or boiled, and, therefore, the "life" of the milk and the flavor are retained in the finished powder. Klim produced in this way is practically free from bacteria and will therefore keep indefinitely, under ordinary conditions. The pasteurizing process destroys all disease bacteria so that Klim comes to you in the form of purest powdered separated milk, with the natural milk unchanged. It is packed in one pound and ten-pound tins for regular use.

Klim is sold by grocers everywhere at 55 cents per one-pound can which makes a full gallon of rich, delicious milk.

Boys Lost in Snow Storm. The following message was received from Magistrate MacDonnell, of St. George's:

"Just reported to me that two boys aged 14 and 15 years, sons of Adolph Alexander, of Matt's Point, St. George's, were lost in the storm last Sunday night near their home. One body recovered, the other not found. Sergeant Goodland goes there to-morrow to conduct a search, and will report later."

Foregone Conclusion.

Judging by the sentiment, which is very pronounced, exhibited by the voters of St. John's West, the results of to-day's election is a foregone conclusion in favor of the popular candidates MARTIN and LINEGAR. Basing this statement upon the sentiment which has grown and flourished in the West End since last night's meeting, nothing can be more assured than that MARTIN and LINEGAR will head the poll after the counting of the ballots. The statement made at last night's meeting in the Majestic Theatre, by Mr. Squires that the late Government had suborned certain questionable female characters, subsequent to their impatience from the neighboring continent, to spy upon the party doings, during the November elections, is only what could be expected from a man lost to all decency and sense of honor. Fighting for a losing cause often commits men to statements made upon the spur of the moment, but with Mr. Squires, this assertion was made, coolly, calmly and deliberately, and with malice aforethought, and it is only upon a par with the utterances of his papers the Star and the Post since the present campaign began. The electors of St. John's West, know Mr. Squires full well and have already turned him down on their ballots to-day. The illiterate vote has gone in favor of MARTIN and LINEGAR and defeat now stares the ambitious Riezist of Newfoundland in the face.

The Illiterate Vote.

- 10 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING. Ward 1. Booth 1-Linegar and Martin, one vote each. Booth 2-Brownrigg and Martin, one vote each. Booth 3-No illiterate votes. Booth 4-Martin, one vote. Ward 2. Booth 1-Martin, one vote. Booth 2-Martin and Linegar, five votes each; Squires, two. Booth 3-Linegar and Martin seven votes each. Booth 4-Linegar, four; Martin, five. Ward 3. Booth 1-Linegar and Martin, two votes each; Squires and Brownrigg, one vote each. Booth 2-Linegar and Martin, eight votes each; Squires and Brownrigg, three votes each. Booth 4-Linegar and Martin seven votes each; Squires and Brownrigg, two votes each. Ward 4. Booth 1-Linegar and Martin, four votes each; Squires and Brownrigg, one vote each. Total-Linegar and Martin together, 100 votes; Squires and Brownrigg together, 7 votes.

To-day's Messages.

ENAMOURED OF AMERICA. LONDON, Jan. 21. The Prince of Wales was the guest to-night at a large and enthusiastic dinner of the Pilgrims. More than three hundred persons were present. The Prince made a speech, partly serious, partly humorous. With some modesty he delivered personal touches as here and there, and had a clamorous reception. The Prince reaffirmed his intention to visit America, particularly the Middle West and Far West, saying it was the best proof that he had enjoyed his visit was his earnest desire to repeat it.

POWHATAN IN TOW. NEW YORK, Jan. 21. A wireless message received here to-night from Captain Randall, commander of the disabled army transport Powhattan, reported that the vessel was in tow of the United States Shipping Board steamer, Western Comet, and the Canadian Government steamer, Lady Laurier. Her position was given as two hundred miles south of Halifax, and the message said the weather was moderating.

McMurdo's Store News. THURSDAY, Jan. 22. Gall's Cod Liver Oil Compound shines as a tonic to build up rapidly tissues that have suffered as the result of acute illness of any kind, and a bottle taken during convalescence from an attack of feverish cold or bronchitis gives remarkable results. The use of this Compound cleans up the remainder of the cough, stimulates the appetite, increases the powers of resistance to fresh colds, and strengthens the system generally. On the whole we can recommend this Compound as being one of the most valuable preparations of the kind. Price $1 a bottle.

Sydney Woman Was Afraid to Sleep at Night

Mrs. O'Neil Almost Desperate From Ill Health But Tanlac Soon Restored Her.

"I am just so happy over what Tanlac has done for me that I don't find words that will express my gratitude," was the characteristic statement made recently by Mrs. John O'Neil, who lives on Victoria Street, Sydney, Nova Scotia. "For three years I have been troubled with indigestion so bad that I thought I would have to give up entirely," continued Mrs. O'Neil. "I was in such misery after nearly every meal, the pains in my stomach and across my chest would draw me double. Gas bloated me up until I simply had to fight to get my breath, and my heart palpitated something terrible. Night after night I sat up in bed afraid to go asleep, and often the choking spells were so bad that I would have to get up and walk the floor. When I got up of mornings I felt so weak and had so little energy that my house-work was a burden. Life was no pleasure and I worried so much all the time that I was almost desperate.

"When I began taking Tanlac I had already taken so many medicines that did me no good at all, that I had but little faith in anything to help me. But I quickly changed my mind, because I started to improve in almost no time after I began taking it. I took five bottles in all, and to-day I am in better health than I have been in many years. I can eat just anything I want now and digest it perfectly. The gas does not trouble me any more and I have never had a pain of any kind. As my breathing is free and easy, I am no longer afraid to go to sleep at night, and I fall asleep just as soon as I go to bed. I never once woke up till morning and when I get up I am feeling full of life and energy. At times it seems so wonderful the way Tanlac has built me up that I can hardly realize myself what perfect health I am enjoying."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative, in Harbor Street, by Thomas Warkley & Sons; in Placentia, by James Murphy & Son, and in Topsail by J. K. Bursell.-adv.

Have You Voted?

Unless a man has recorded his choice of representatives by eight o'clock to-night he has forfeited a privilege which he should prize above all other things, and to possess which has been a countless struggle and battles have been fought and waged. The both-rooms close at that hour and no one may vote. Once in every four years the people are the supreme power, and the man who does not exercise that power is not a true citizen of the country or city in which he resides. To those who have not yet voted this advice is tendered: There is but one man less patriotic and less alive to the duties which are his and that man is he who votes for Squires and Brownrigg or either of the two, and thereby throws away his last chance to "HANG 'ER DOWN!"

BISHOP, SONS & CO., LTD. are now opening six hundred pairs of Girls', Boys', Ladies' and Men's Gaiters. This will be welcome news to a great many people as there has been a great shortage of Gaiters in town.

Passed peacefully away on the 21st inst., Louis, darling child of Thomas and Amelia Moyst. Funeral on Friday, at 2.30 p.m. "Suffer the little Children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." A Passed peacefully away, after a long and painful illness, William Haggood, aged 73 years, leaving to mourn the loss of a kind and loving father, 3 sons and one daughter, also 20 grand children. Funeral on Friday at 2.30 p.m. from his late residence, 47 Cook St. R.I.P. Killed at Sydney, on Steel Plant, Jan. 15th inst., John Connelley, age 30 years, son of Simon and Elie Connelly. Killed, his remains lie far away from those who are so dear to him, but his memory will be ever in their hearts, he leaves to mourn besides his heart stricken parents, a widow and one child at Sydney, C.B. Four brothers and three sisters. "May his soul rest in peace." Amen.

FUNERAL NOTICE. The funeral of the late Mrs. A. B. Lehr, will take place from the residence of Mr. John Peet, 87 Long's Hill, on Friday, at 3 o'clock; friends and acquaintances please accept this, the only intimation.

IN LOVING MEMORY of my beloved father, John Nottall, who was lost at sea from on board the ill-fated steamer Beverley, January, 1918. Sweetly he rests while others sigh. With care and grief oppressed; Softly his head doth lie Upon his saviour's breast.

We miss him, and how sadly. Bleeding hearts alone can tell; Earth has lost him, Heaven has gained him; Jesus doth all things well. Inserted by his daughter Isabella.

IN LOVING MEMORY of my husband, Thomas White, who was lost at sea from on board the Barque, Lake Simcoe, January, 1915. Rest in peace. We miss thee from our home, dear. We miss thee from thy place; A shadow o'er our lives is cast. We miss thy smiling face. We miss thy kind and willing hand. Thy fond and earnest care; Our home is dark without thee. We miss thee everywhere. Inserted by his wife.

Prohibiting Shakespeare

It is a curious characteristic of the true reformer that he is never satisfied. One villainy discovered does not lead to the unearthing of another, just as one victory won causes a craving for fresh worlds to conquer.

All this is suggested incidentally with characteristic vigor by Mr. Watterson in his "Marse Henry," where he says:—"It looks as though the United States, having exhausted the reasonable possibilities of democracy, is beginning to turn crank. Look at woman suffrage by federal edict; look at prohibition by act of congress and constitutional amendment; tobacco next to walk the plank, and then—Lord, how glad I feel that I am nearly a hundred years old and shall not live to see it!" It is to be feared that Mr. Watterson has very old-fashioned views.

But for a fresh cause in point: The other day the proposal of an Association of Fat men to have the plays of Shakespeare in which Sir John Falstaff appears excluded from the stage and the schools as involving a serious reflection on some of the most substantial members of the community. This, of course, followed the promulgation of plans for the boycotting of Shylock the Venetian, Macbeth the Scot, and Othello the colored gentleman.

It seems that the weeding out process is not to stop there, and the latest case is of the utmost seriousness, seeing that certain of the ladies are behind it, and in their present condition of influence they are bound to have their way.

Certain heads of seminaries for young ladies and even the professors of literature at some of the woman's colleges are prepared to resist, through all the means in their power, a proposed revival of "The Taming of the Shrew," a play that is associated so notably with the old Daily Theatre—now, alas! a thing of the past as an organization—and the early careers of Mr. John Drew and Miss Ada Rehan.

It is pointed out that Petruchio of Verona, who subjected Katherine, the daughter of Baptista, to such gross indignities while he was engaged in the process of "taming her," by his very success tends to revive in the male spectator a certain respect for the rough and authoritative manners of husbands in some foreign countries and in the Dark Ages.

Besides, it is alleged by those critics of the so-called comedy that the climax is absurd. No modern woman endowed by Providence with such conversational powers as Kate had would ever have been covered by the cracking of a whip in the hands of such a boor as the one she had married. On the contrary, she would have turned the tables on her oppressor, would have given him a tongue lashing such as he never would have forgotten and would have ruled the roost from that time on.

Anyway, it is felt that that as it is bad for members of the weak masculine sex to be reminded of the evil times when they could get drunk, so it involves a reflection on the stronger race of women that the men should be reminded of the fact that their forefathers had the "right" to beat their wives provided they did it "in reason" as the old law books say.—New York Herald.

Motor Car and Motor Truck Owners.

I have a splendid equipment for general automobile work and can guarantee first class overhauling. Every engine tested under its own power before being put back in the car, thereby getting over the greatest enemy an engine can have, that is oil leaks. All oil leaks are detected and made right, consequently you can be sure of a good and lasting job. I also have a Hempy Cooper rebabbiting and reboring machine for crank shaft and connecting rods, which insures quiet running, as all bearings are in perfect line. With this equipment we can do work quickly and much more practical than heretofore.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

My Garage will be closed from March 10th until April 15th, as I am taking my entire Mechanical Staff on a visit to the Motor Factories with a view to giving first class service. Parties wishing to have their cars overhauled for the coming season would be wise to have them done immediately. For instance, parts may be found broken or worn and it may not be possible to replace them here, in which case I can get them while away, thereby saving a lot of inconvenience and disappointment when the car is wanted. One thing is sure, cars that are overhauled in the winter months are given better inspection than those done in the rush season; so just call us up and we will get your car in and have it done right away.

I have a supply of repair parts in stock. Room for about 50 more cars. Ford Trucks taken care of with despatch.

Inspiring Meeting.

300 Voters Take Solemn Pledge to Support Martin and Linegar -- Liberal-Labor Candidates Have Solid Backing of the Electorate.

Over, in the long and eventful ical history of St. John's, was such a meeting as was held in Star of the Sea Hall last evening.
gathering—there were from to 14 hundred inside the walls—been known, but never, never such a swinging, all-as-one-man, pathetic enthusiasm seen in a ting in the grand old district of John's West. Packed from wall wall with solid humanity, the hall one mass of West End voters in great and glorious cause of Labor Liberalism. In large proportions d be seen the loyal, true-blue kingmen who voted for Linegar election and from every heart from every throat, went the st, swelling cry "Linegar and tin For Us!—Hang 'Er Down!" er did a slogan take so well with electorate—never did an electorate so well to a slogan. Hang down has been emblematic of the unshakable determination of horry-handed sons of toil, and in the poll of to-day is declared ill be but an expression of that mination and grit. Such cheer-whole souled, swelling, vibratthunderous cheering—never, en-aged speakers and fighters so be-and with a following of such men, Mr. Linegar said after the meet-the greatest and most difficult could be performed with ease.
ular Jack Cadwell was the man. Suffering from a very re cold which made speaking al-impossible for him, it is a sign is pluck that he attended—and a ter sign of the personal interest as in the fortunes of the working-
The cheering he received must afforded him satisfaction that stand is appreciated.

Mr. J. R. Bennett spoke first. In a masterly speech he exposed to view the wild and insane policy of the Government. Ruin and disaster faced Newfoundland and the end was not in sight. The applause accorded Mr.
Bennett showed that he has lost none of his well-known popularity.
Mr. William Linegar, the special Labor candidate of the Opposition followed with earnestness the vast concourse of workmen hung on his words, and except for an occasional outburst of cheering and applause, nothing but his voice could be heard.
It has been a hard fight and in it none worked harder than Mr. Line-gar. Noted throughout the city as a tireless fighter he has excelled himself and the victory which awaits him has been well won.

Sir John Crosbie caught the popular fancy of the crowd and carried everything before him. In a masterly manner he drove home to the mind of every man in the hall facts which cannot fail to make the manhood and independence of St. John's sit up and look. Sir John is a very clever campaign speaker and on this, his first time to address a St. John's audience in a political campaign, this fact was evident. He was continuously cheered and on more than one occasion he had to stop and wait for the cheering and delighted applause to subside. "The Government press had announced, a few days ago," he said, "that 200,000 qds. of codfish had been sold to the Consorzio. I can tell you, however, that only 20,000 qds. had been sold and those on consignment!" A black picture of the future of this country under the fish regulations now in force was painted by this speaker and it is no exaggeration to say that a feeling of apprehension was left on the minds of his hearers.

The shipments of fish from the country to Brazil showed a shortage of 60,000 drums and 120,000 half drums, meaning a loss to the coopers of $200,000. Sir John was wildly cheered at the conclusion of his inspiring address and it was obvious that he took well with everyone.

Mr. J. T. Martin, the Liberal-Progressive candidate, followed. Popular Jimmy Martin, as he is known in the city, did not have to make a speech.
Everybody in the city knows him and the mere fact of his standing for election is sufficient. He will be returned.

Speeches by Mr. A. E. Hickman, Sir
M. P. Cashin, Mr. J. R. MacDonnell and Mr. W. J. Higgins were made and it is certain that each scored splendidly in his own effort. The fish situation was taken up by Mr. Hickman and retouched by Sir Michael Cashin. Mr.
MacDonnell handled the educational question and it was left to Mr. Higgins to end the meeting. Like everything he does, the ending was the most original one ever known. It capped the climax to a successful campaign.

As one man, simultaneously and spontaneously, the entire body of voters rose to their feet and the cheering that followed and continued and wouldn't stop could be heard for blocks. It was a most inspiring, a most thrilling scene. Description is impossible. Its like was never seen in the city before and when every man of the solid mass of voters solemnly pledged himself to vote for Linegar and Martin the enthusiasm knew no bounds. When at length the hall was emptied the body of men marched up New Gower St. and for half an hour after cheering could be heard coming from that direction, punctuated by the slogan call of

Terra Novas Win.

FIRST HOCKEY GAME.

The Terra Novas took the St. Bon's into camp last night by a score of 13 goals to 4. Mr. W. H. Herder was referee and the line up was:

Terra Nova	Goal	St. Bon's
Rawlins	Doon Power
	Left Defence
Bob Stick	Higgins
	Right Defence
Ralph Stick	Brien
	Left Wing
Trapnell	H. Kelly
	Centre
R. Herder	Murphy
	Right Wing

Canning Power
Tobin, Coullas and Mews substituted for the Terras while Crawford and Callahan were used by St. Bon's.

For the opening game, a good exhibition was put up by both sides, although after the first period play seemed to lag.

As a special request the Players ask that the spectators please stop smoking as last evening it was practically impossible to see the puck.
Now then supporters, CO-OPERATE!

New Invention

TO REVOLUTIONIZE MUSIC PRINT- ING.

A typewriter which writes music and an original system for printing orchestration are two things newly invented by Mr. P. Hans Flath, composer of Wichita, Kansas. The devices are said to be of revolutionary significance.

A minute description of the typewriter can not be given at present, as not all the facts about it have been made public. It is known, however, to have 125 characters, which can be written on the staff or below
it. The machine differs from the ordinary typewriter in that the printing surface is flat. This is necessary because of the large space to be covered in the printing of music.
Four machines were constructed of wood before the latest model, entirely of metal, was fashioned.

Flath has spent all his life working at spare moments on such a machine. He says that he has no special mechanical aptitude, but that work of this kind has always been his hobby. His machine is said to be simple and compact, and no larger in size than the ordinary typewriter.

Mr. Flath's second invention has to do with printing music on an ordinary printing press. His system of various chord combinations, which after those operating the press have learned, makes a large quantity of production of numbers possible. One music publishing firm has already purchased a press on which it will proceed in this way to print the orchestration for its latest songs.

What Time Is It?

Ingersoll watches have answered that question to 50 million people in the past quarter century.

There are almost as many Ingersolls sold in the United States and Canada as all other makes combined. People have faith in the name INGERSOLL on a watch. They know that it stands for low priced watches of quality.

Ingersoll watches are not only accurate to begin with but they stay accurate.
They are sturdy and reliable. They are built that way.

There are fifteen different Ingersoll watches, including jeweled models and Radiolites that tell time in the dark.

This advertisement is addressed to the citizens of Newfoundland with the request that they take note of the advertising of Ingersoll watches that will appear in this publication, and of the many merchants who are putting Ingersolls in stock.

Wireless in the Wild.

When motors first came into New Zealand the horses went frantic. Nowadays, however, you may bring a raw colt down from roadless country, and though he has never seen a motor car before in his life he won't be half as scared as his parents were.

Animals of all sorts—birds included
—must have some mysterious means of communication. Take, for instance, grouse and other birds which, when telegraph-wires were first put up in the Highlands of Scotland, flew into them and were killed by the hundred, yet which now have learnt to avoid the wires, and fly in perfect safety.

This brings us to a curious change in their habits on the part of partridges. In old days partridges were "dressed." The coveys was found by pointers or setters, walked up and shot. Some twenty-five years ago this form of shooting was given up in favor of "driving." The birds are driven by beaters over the heads of the shooting party.

Now, in the old days partridges remained in coveys—that is, families—

Right up to Christmas.

Then they packed in larger bands. To-day they begin to pack as early in the year as September, and fifty or sixty birds may commonly be seen together.

These packs have so many pairs of ears and eyes that the mere glint of a human voice is not likely to pass un-detected. The amazing part of it is that the whole great pack will respond to the warning of one single bird, and consequently it has become extremely difficult to get them over the guns.

These packs fly much farther than coveys ever did, and will turn and go clean out of a district when they suspect danger.

The birds have, in fact, completely changed their habits, and fields thick with partridges will now often yield a perfectly blank drive. Shooters will have to resort to some other device.
They talk of using mounted beaters
to break up the packs.

Stains from fruit juice can be removed by pouring boiling water through the stain.

Warm the raisins before adding to the cake batter, and they will be less likely to sink.

If the floor mop is washed clean each time it is used, the floors will keep much cleaner.

A hot-water heater connected with the boiler will heat water independently of the kitchen fire.

When darning a conspicuous tear in woolen garments it is best to use a travelling of the material.

All poultry should be drawn, then hung away in the cold at least twenty-four hours before cooking.

If a child is allowed always to Police Official Assassinated.

Dublin Has Another Murder -- Transport Powhattan Safe -- Bottom Out of Foreign Exchange -- Bank of Montreal Acquires New Interests.

NOTHING OFFICIAL ABOUT IT.
LONDON, Jan. 21. Officials to-day declined to comment on newspaper reports from Paris that the Supreme Council would send two hundred thousand troops to the Caucasus to oppose Bolsheviks. It is said that no official word relative to the matter had been received from the Peace Conference.

THE NUMBER REDUCED.
PARIS, Jan. 21. The final list of Germans whose extradition will be asked by the Allies is approved by the Supreme Council yesterday is supposed to contain somewhat less than 500 names out of the original 1460 accused by the different Allies.

ONLY INSTRUCTION UNITS BEING SENT.
PARIS, Jan. 21. Le Temps says that the report that an important British expedition would be sent to the Caucasus does appear correct. It is ascertained that it is only a question of sending a few instruction units, and especially material, for the people of the Caucasus whose independence has just been recognized in order to enable them to fight the menace of Bolshevik invasion.

WANT 500,000 MEN FOR S.A. WORK.
LONDON, Jan. 21. General Booth to-day issues an appeal for half a million for general extension of the Salvation Army.

RUMOUR DENIED.
OTTAWA, Jan. 21. The rumour that Canada has been asked by the Imperial Government if she could furnish 50,000 men in the event of hostilities with the Soviet Government of Russia is officially denied. Sir George Foster, Government leader, said to-day that the Canadian Government had not been asked to

"Are you always successful on baking day? Are your cakes light and spongy and your biscuits white and flaky? If not, let us help you with send troops to fight in the Caucasus or in any other theatre.

POWHATTAN IN SAFE CONDITION.
NEW YORK, Jan. 21. The transport Powhattan, disabled about 700 miles from this port, reported by wireless to-day that the attempted transfer of passengers had to be abandoned on account of heavy seas. The disabled vessel is being towed to Halifax by the freighter Western Comet. The message sent by Capt. Randall of the Powhattan to army officials here said, "Attempted transfer of passengers stopped on account of weather conditions and growing rapidly worse. Powhattan in safe condition. Please send sea-going American tug. Western Comet towed us forty-eight miles toward Halifax."

SOUND CURRENCY.
LONDON, Jan. 21. A new organization called "Sound Currency Association," has been formed here to aid in eliminating inflated currency and to resume the pound sterling to its par value and return to the gold standard. The first meeting was attended by bankers, economists and members of parliament.

OBJECT ACHIEVED.
TOKIO, Jan. 21. Japan's object in agreeing to co-operate with the United States in supporting Czech-Slovakia troops in Siberia has been attained and the withdrawal of Japanese from Siberia will follow, it was decided at a meeting of the Advisory Diplomatic Council yesterday, according to the newspapers here.

MOTOR CAR DRIVERS' FLARE UP.
DUBLIN, Jan. 21. As the British Parliament Labor delegates, who arrived here last night to study conditions in Ireland, were leaving their hotel for a meeting, a procession of 500 striking motor car drivers marched past with a banner on which was inscribed, "English labor inactivity is helping to starve Irish motor drivers." Police and soldiers with fixed bayonets dispersed them.

FREIGHT EMBARGO THREATENS CANADA.
MONTREAL, Jan. 21. Serious results for Canada shippers, both exporters and importers, are overshadowed by the announcement of an embargo on all freight moving east from Canada to the United States by way of the Niagara frontier. Bad weather conditions in the United States are given as the reason for the embargo.

DUBLIN POLICE COMMISSIONER ASSASSINATED.
DUBLIN, Jan. 21. Assistant Commissioner of Police Redmond was found dead in Harcourt Street to-night. He had been shot.

COLLAPSE IN EXCHANGE.
NEW YORK, Jan. 21. Utter collapse and demoralization overtook the foreign exchange market to-day, resulting in a new low record for British, French, Italian, and various other European remittances. The rate of British demand bills fell to three dollars, sixty and three quarter cents, or three and one-half per cent. under its previous minimum.

CARPENTIER COMING OVER.
NEW YORK, Jan. 21. Private advices from France indicate that Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight champion, will arrive in this country about the middle of February. The French pugilist, challenger for the world's title now held by Jack Dempsey, will come to America to fulfill a contract entirely outside his regular activities.

BANK OF MONTREAL EXTENDING.
LONDON, Jan. 21. Considerable interest has been aroused here by the announcement of the acquisition by the Bank of Montreal of substantial interest in the Colonial Bank. Recently the powerful Barclay's Bank acquired a leading interest in the Colonial Bank of South Africa.

Market Report From Oporto.

"Newfoundland Government established prices for No. 1 at $4½, No. 2 at $9½, Haddock at 7½, Ling at 70½. In view of the exchange rates, no one can buy fish at such prices. The Government also appointed one firm to receive here consignments and this being quite an exception, all the importers, excluding Messrs. Lind & Couto, made a telegram to the Union of Fishermen Trades, protesting against this. We think on behalf of all concerned, that this proclamation must be altered very quickly, otherwise the cargoes arriving will suffer the consequences of such a proclamation, as it happens now with those arrivals at Lixoes, which have not yet received orders, at this good time of the year.

A Soldier's Complaint.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—I think that the G. W. V. A. should be looking after the soldiers a little more closely than they are. I am a member of the Association, but the Executive is not looking out for me any. Why, it may be asked. The answer is that because I don't go and fight for my rights and demand that I get them. I have been in hospital since 1917, and most of the time at the General in St. John's. Some days ago I was discharged from the latter institution to make room, I was told, for other patients coming in, their cases being the same. I am informed that the wounds from which I am suffering were too serious to be operated upon, but yet there were not considered of sufficient importance to keep me in hospital, and I had to go out, on my own, in the night to go to Grand Hall or any other place to find quarters. I had no alternative but to leave the hospital when I was told and afterwards to do the best I could for myself. I claim that such treatment is not good enough, and that G. W. V. A. should enquire into my case.

Yours truly,
AN EX-PRIVATE

Shop Reeve on Smoking and Dresses.

Toronto, Jan. 15.—Bishop Reeve told an audience of 500 returned soldiers at the parish hall of St. Ann's Church last night that the men of Canada ought well to give up smoking as an example to the women of the country. "I have nothing to say against smoking," the bishop said, "but what is going to become of this country when the women are beginning to do as they are doing now, and when they dress as they are now doing? You will have to give up smoking because you don't want your wives smoking and also your wives' men will have to give up smoking in self-defence to set an example to the women." The majority of the men present were smoking at the time the bishop was addressing them. They listened to him in respectful silence.

Russian Runs Amuck in Halifax.

Halifax, Jan. 15.—I. Mittuk, a Russian residing at 492 Robie street, this city, and a former member of the 64th Battalion, ran amuck early this morning and armed with a revolver, held a squad of police at bay until the trigger jammed and he was felled with a blow from a baton and taken to the police station. Fortunately none of the police was hurt. The Russian's revolver effect, but the police report service calls. Mittuk returned to his boarding house late last night and stated that he had been robbed and needed to shoot up the place. When police arrived on the scene, in answer to a summons he was barricaded in his room and shooting wildly at his head that showed above an improvised parapet. Reinforcement were sent upon and in the fusillade of shots that followed their arrival the Russian's revolver jammed and the hotel was stormed. Mittuk was wounded while on overseas service had been undergoing special treatment since his return.

Widowed Eight Years, Then Jilted.

New York, Jan. 9.—The story of eight years of courtship and perennial engagement, which continued year after year and culminated with dramatic sadness when she discovered the man who so often promised to marry her had made another young man his wife, was recounted in a court yesterday by Miss Elsie Waldo. The plaintiff's identity was revealed in the complaint. Her so often Miss Waldo sat before the court taking instruction from her French and German lawyers, she says he so completely forgot her affections that she readily consented to yearly postponements when day of their wedding drew nigh.

Mysterious Disappearance of Girl.

John, Jan. 12.—The mysterious disappearance of Miss May McIntosh, arrived at Halifax on Friday, and expected to come to St. John to marry J. W. Bramley, a returned soldier of Centreville, N.B., has caused much speculation. Miss McIntosh arrived at Halifax on the steamer "Arnia," and on Friday her lover telegraphed a wire saying she would come to St. John and wait for him there. Bramley planned on being married to St. John, and then to take his bride to Centreville where he had prepared to receive her. Receiving no further word from his bride, he communicated with the migration authorities, railways and police, but no trace of the missing girl has been discovered. Miss McIntosh was about twenty years of age, five feet six inches in height, and of robust build. She has dark hair, eyes, with a fair complexion, and is neatly freckled.

Papers in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Jan. 19.—Suspension of publication on Thursday by all Winnipeg papers appears today to be a matter of fact. News from Fort Frances, Ontario, that the Fort Frances Paper and Paper Company has de-ordered of the Canadian Paper roller, by shipping all its paper to the United States and tearing up switch connecting its mill with Canadian railroads, destroying the hope of getting a supply of paper for the Winnipeg publishers. The weekly editions of the regular papers were printed to-night.

rd Leverhulme, the soap maker of Sunlight on the Mersey, found Henry J. Spooner, a mechanical engineer of London, England, knew so much about getting rid of waste that he has made Spooner his consulting friend on the subject of life, strength, time, and materials. The Englishman has made millions by his ability to utilize waste and conserve energy.

Opportunities in Long-Term
Bonds

Bonds maturing in 1919 or 1920 may now be sold advantageously, and the funds reinvested in longer term securities. The benefits of present high interest yield rates may thereby be secured for a period of ten years and longer.

We shall be glad to offer suggestions.
