Demand by the Prosecution for the Production of the Missing Books—The Investigation Adjourned for a Week.

Ottawa, Nov. 18—Inspector O'Leary of the Dominion Police arrested J. R. Arnoldi, ex-mechanical engineer of the Public Works Department, this afternoon. The charge is that of conspiracy in defrauding the Government. There are several specific charges in the warrant. The arrest was effected at 1 o'clock in the Russell House and Arnoldi was immediately taken to the police magistrate's office. He made very light, of his arrest, treating it as a matter of no importance. Bail was immediately found, his brother, Ling Arnoldi, architect, and Hon. Francis Clemow, senator, becoming his bondsmen for $2000 each and he being bound in $2000. He was then allowed to go home, but will appear, before Magistrate O'Gara to-morrow.

We know that Mr. Osler has been nominated under such auspices that the best clement among the ratepayers will support him. Queen Victoria's Old Coek. Queen Victoria's Old Coek.

One of Queen Victoria's lovable traits of character in her kindness to her servants Among those who visited her Majesty during her stay in France last spring was M. Tasteur, who for a quarter of a century filled the post of head cook at Windsor Castle. About twelve years age he resigned his office and withdrew to Colle, a little village in the vicinity of Grasse. A few his office and withdrew to Colle, a fittle village in the vicinity of Grasse. A few days after the Queen's arrival at the latter place he called at her hotel. Being informed of his presence her Majesty summoned him to her apartments and received him with the utmost kindness, going so far as to even insist on his sitting down by her side—an honor rarely conferred upon the highest nobles and dignitaries of the Empire—while she chatted with him at considerable length, referring several times to his long length, referring several times to his long and honourable career in her service. M. Tasteur is in receipt of a handsome pension from the royal civic list—a pension a irom the foyal civic list—a pension amount-ing to more than twice the amount of that granted to Generals, Admirals, or literary celebrities for distinguished services to the crown.—New York Recorder.

The Wooing Art in Portugal. The Portuguese are very conservative in their ideas of the position of women in society, and they got their ideas from their Moorish masters in bygone centuries. Consequently girls lead a very shut-in life; they sequently girls lead a very shut in life; they go regularly to mass Sunday mornings and take occasional walks during the week, always accompanied by one or two chaperons. Young men never call at the house, and, if they did, would not be admitted "except on business." This strictness leaves but one way open for an interchange of sentiments, and that is the window, and it is quite the thing to make use of it. It is not considered ill-bred to stare in Portugal; a man may stare at a girl he does not know as long appears.—Alcott.

The better part of every man's education is that which he gives himself.—James Russell Lowell.

The better part of every man's education may stare at a girl he does not know as long as he likes; he must not do so to a girl he has been introduced to unless she gives him has been introduced to unless she gives him has been introduced to the part of the man are has been introduced to unless she gives his some encouragement by returning his glances. A girl will sit at her window all the afterneon looking into the street, and her adorer from the street looks at her, and that is so much the custom that is attracts no attention from the passers by. From looks they proceed to bows, to smiles, to a no attention from the passers-by. From looks they proceed to bows, to smiles, to a few words, then he follows her to church, finds out if she is going to the theatre, and goes too, serenades her with his guitar on moonlight nights, and finally makes an offer to her father. He is then received by the family, and allowed to come to the house in a quiet way until the wedding, and afte that the young couple usually live either with her parents or with his, and the even tenor of their life continues.

Guff from Gotham, Bradstreets shows only 700,000 increase wheat on both coasts. Clearances to-day were 309,000 bush wheat a considerable is loading.

Henry Allen to J.J. Dixon & Co.: The stock market opened strong to-day and moved upware gradually, due to London buying and the sympathy of the general list with the coalers, which scored the greatest advances. It was not a bit market. The interest was not materially increased, but it was an advancing market. The favorable conditions now obtaining in the financial circles of London were reflected in its operations. Herotofore London has had need for imoney and there has been little to invest. As it money and there has been little to invest. As its ioans are being returned and as the surplus is becoming larger it is natural that its funds should in part seek this market. The market must be assured that there are no obstacles in the way and it has clear sailing before the movement will be made, as if by word of command. At present there are some important uncertainties. Paris still continues to be the centre of attention, and until Paris arises out of the clouds that obscures it the general situation will not fully reflect the light which it is now dimly casting abroad.

it the general situation will not fully reflect the light which it is now dimity casting abroad.

Gossip from Chicago.

Kennet, Hopkins & Co. to R. Cochran: Cables were rather better than expected. Liverpool has been quite strong. December sold $4560 on early curb, but when bell tapped it set loose a good many selling orders, the execution of which depressed market to $4460. Clearances showed up well and late cables were higher. Yet market continued weak until shortly before the close, when it was announced via Minneapolis that Mr. Smith, United States Minister to Russia, had cabled from St. Petersburg that the long-looked-for Russian ukase had been signed. Immediately there was an advance of nearly a cent, with shorts covering freely. The market reacted $460 when it was noised about that Minister Smith was in Philadelphia and could not have cabled an approach of the signing of the ukase. The drop in prices which followed was more rapid than had been the advance. It is quite generally believed here that the report is at least premature and probably a fake. Export engagements are unable to supply demand for cars, ware the Northwest, where it is said the railroads are unable to supply demand for cars, ware mouse and the remainder to come forward will exceed all expectations. It is feared by some that there may be some trouble in providing for the December deliveries, but there is little probability of such, when the May premium is almost full carrying charges. The elevator men would naturally prefer to hold grain in store and sell it for May.

J. Dixon & Co.'s correspondents referring to wheat say: We draw the inference that market sell it for May.

J. J. Dixon & Co.'s correspondents referring to wheat say: We draw the inference that market remains heavily oversoft, but that in absence of bullish foreign news the market is likely to remain duil and dragging, especially if receipts are large at point of consumption. Corn and oats were dull but firm, purchases for shipment were moderate but readily absorbed the offerings. Previsions opened demoralized by the unexpected large receipts of hogs, fully 58,000 were reported on sale and prices 15c lower. One rally of 15c to 20c in pork occurred on shorts covering, but the final eleging was weak at about low point. 20c in pork occurred on shorts covering, final closing was weak at about low point.
