The N.P. is a Permanent. There are a number of proverbs of the rolling stone gathers no moss variety. Men "given to change" are warned against it.

There are enterprises adding greatly to the prosperity of other cities which are not even represented here. It is mainly intended to attract these, not as competitors with existing industries, but as independent concerns, whose establishment here would be both a convenience and service to those already in operation.

When our manufacturing enterprises become established, then, it has been stated, they ought to be left without protection. Left to die, they could not survive the withdrawal of that policy which had brought them into being.

ment to make the advantages of Toronto better known as a place of residence and for manufacturing industries.

But it is incorrect to attribute the movement in question to a combination of real estate men, that is of the owners and agents of such property. The association is being energetically supported by and has the sympathy of citizens of all classes.

THE PACIFIC PARADISE.

Delights of Life on the Islands of the Hawaiian Archipelago. (Washington Dispatch to Boston Herald.)

"Life in Hawaii is ideal," said Mrs. J. Pitt Smith this morning. "One long summer in the open air is the sun and substance of it. Nobody is very poor and nobody is very rich. Every family has four things which contribute to their happiness and comfort. These are a telephone, a piano, a sewing machine and a horse and carriage. People who cannot have these luxuries are few and far between."

"The roads about the islands are unusually fine for driving, as they are made of pounded coral, which becomes very hard and firm without dust. The consequence is that riding and driving are the great amusements of a large majority of the population."

"Is a comfortable and pleasant life for American women?" "Yes, it is one of absolute freedom with all the privileges and pleasures to be had anywhere, excepting, of course, the opportunities for a higher education, for which all young people must go to foreign countries."

"Is the Queen personally agreeable and pleasing to the ladies of the island?" "Yes, she is very affable and does much for the pleasure of young people. She is a fine voice and sings annually with her own accompaniment. Three or four times a week she entertains a party of friends at a musical evening informally, and she always contributes several numbers to the program herself."

"How does the Queen dress?" "The holo, which is a loose gown something like a Mother Hubbard, is universally worn by all women, whether natives or foreigners, for daily use. European dresses are worn for state occasions."

"What do you think was the foundation for the Queen's present trouble?" "It was an old Louisiana lottery, which at this moment stirred up hostility against her. Just before we came away 75 women signed a petition, begging her to have nothing to do with it, but she refused, and probably many considerations influenced her very largely in making the decision."

"Is the Queen rich in her own right?" "Yes; she has inherited large properties from her brother, which is entirely separate and distinct from all Crown properties."

THE COUNTRY'S OF THE.

The Canadian bent on annexing the Dominion to the United States have part of their scheme laid out, and it is really very fine.

The heart of the Dominion is the two Provinces of Quebec and Ontario, having an aggregate area of 331,280 square miles. The scheme is to cut these up into three, which, when admitted into the Union as States, will each have a larger area than Oregon by more than 15,000 square miles.

The Dominion was formed July 1, 1867, and provision made for admission into it of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, and the Northwest Territories and Newfoundland. Two years later the Territories were acquired by purchase from the Hudson Bay Company and Manitoba was cut out of them, erected into a Province and admitted in July, 1870. The next July British Columbia was admitted, and in July of 1873 Prince Edward Island.

Manitoba has an area of 16,000 square miles, equal to that of a fair tier of the counties of Western Pennsylvania. It is one of the greatest wheat regions on the face of the earth. Because of contiguity it could be joined to either North Dakota or Minnesota. Joined to either the combined area would be big enough for two States.

Prince Edward Island would do to keep Rhode Island in commensure, it should not excite her envy. Prince Edward has 217.7 square miles and Rhode Island only 1368. The two islands would make a pretty pair of little states, two for a cent, in which a working population could make the acquaintance of all the voters in either in a day. Charlottetown as the capital of an American commonwealth would break up Newfoundland and has stoutly refused to enter the Dominion and has remained a self-governing Crown colony. It is about the size of Pennsylvania, having an area of 42,000 square miles, and has a population of about 200,000. Labrador is its dependency, but that may be left to the natives who like to freeze. There is little doubt that Newfoundland would come into the Union without much coaxing, if there were only to be rid of the pestiferous French fishing rights on the French shore. The United States would make the frog-eaters know their place.

Out of the two Provinces first named there might be made three States of Quebec, Ontario, and any Huron, the last having Toronto as its capital. The State of Nova Scotia, say, out of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. A fourth State would be of Prince Edward Island, which would have to bear some other name as one of the components of a republic, or fifth out of the Province of British Columbia and a sixth would be the State of Newfoundland, which would do to begin with. Other States could be formed as people were found willing to venture into the icy North.

In six States there are not a few fat offices, and doubtless the annexationists across the border are anticipating as they ponder the scheme of lugging their fellow Canucks into the Union head and shoulders, as Don Quixote said Sancho Panza, introduced his jokes into conversation. It is a fine scheme and we pay the annexationists the tribute of our admiration. And it touches our national pride. Uncle Sam will not have to take the earth, which is believed to be his inheritance. He has only to wait and the nations thereof will bring it to him.

TRY THE "HERO" CIGAR. A MOST PLEASING SMOKE.

GHOSTS RAT-TAT-TAT.

HE BEATS IT LUSTILY IN A BOARDING HOUSE.

The Shade of a Departed Drummer-Boy Who Murdered His Sweetheart Makes It Very Lively for a Washington Landlady and Her Ready-Warrior Boarders.

[Washington Cor. Chronicle Commercial.] At about daybreak yesterday morning some spoofs began to make serious and directly overt demonstrations in a well-known Washington boarding-house. The house is a semi-hotel called the Canandaigua, 809 E-street, Northwest, in a respectable location. Mrs. A. P. Kretschmar is the proprietress of the house. The first demonstration of a peculiar nature occurred about 5 o'clock yesterday, when Miss Minnie Vernon, who was passing through the dining-room, was greatly startled by having a roll of oilcloth dropped on her head, apparently from the ceiling.

She cried out, and Mrs. Kretschmar and her servants appeared and recognized the oilcloth as a piece which had previously disappeared several weeks before. There was no opening in the ceiling or wall where the oilcloth could have been secreted, and its sudden appearance was at once pronounced the work of spirits hands. Later in the morning Mrs. Kretschmar had occasion to go into the kitchen for some eggs she had left there the night before. She found over half the eggs missing, only seven being left. After scolding the servants about the loss of the eggs she had left there and carried them into the dining-room with the remark, "I will lock these up, anyway."

The dining-room was deserted at the time, and there was no nook or corner where a human being could conceal himself. She felt for the closest keys and remembered she had left them in the front room. While quickly proceeding toward the intervening doorway there was a "smash" on her back, as an egg struck her between the shoulders, scattering the contents over her garments. She turned quickly and retraced her steps to the table where she had left the seven eggs. Only six remained and the room was vacant. Again Mrs. Kretschmar started, when she went again another egg, but this time against the wall. Nor did the ghostly thrower desert until the remaining five eggs had been disposed of in a similar manner.

Upon going to the front room, finally, a strange sight greeted the lady's eyes. In the center of the floor, standing on a piece of newspaper, was what appeared to be a bag standing upright with another piece of paper on its crest. Upon examination it was found not to be a bag at all, but a large piece of cloth tied in a peculiar manner at the top and containing about a peck of apples. Mrs. Kretschmar keeps her apples at the bottom of a large chest, and upon examining this discovered that about one peck was missing. She left them there and called in some of her guests to witness this uncanny work. Shortly after she had replaced the apples in the chest and while she was in another part of the house she was again struck, but this time by an apple.

Further along in the day Mrs. Kretschmar had occasion to look for a pound cake which had been presented to her. She had put it away under lock and key. To her surprise she found the cake missing and an unavailing search was made for it. Later in the forenoon, while the chambermaid was arranging the beds, she discovered the missing cake between the sheets of a bed on the third floor, where it had appeared while the door was securely locked. She returned it to the proprietress, who placed it in a place of concealment, but in less than an hour it was gone again, and has not as yet materialized. Another mysterious happening occurred in the chamber of Miss Minnie Vernon. She had been called to breakfast, but concluded to turn over and take an early morning nap, and while in a daze she received a rather violent thump on the forehead, which quickly brought her to her feet.

A UNIQUE COLLECTION.

Seals and Seal-Proofs Which Rival British Museum Curios.

To those interested in Government and other seals, the collection of seal-proofs in the possession of Edward Stabler of Baltimore will be found quite an interesting study, for it is undoubtedly the largest in the world. These proofs were left to the possessor by his father, the late Edward Stabler, sr., of Sandy Springs, Montgomery County.

At the age of 33 years the elder Stabler was compelled, by reason of failing health, to move from Baltimore to his birthplace in Montgomery County, and there, in addition to carrying on farming on a scientific basis, he began the work, self-taught, of seal engraving and "die sinking." His soon developed great talents for the work and, in a short time orders for seals and dies, with presses for the same, were being received from all parts of the United States. The press for these seals was made by Mr. Stabler in his shop at his own home.

In addition to meeting success in this industry, he was the recipient of a number of prizes for essays on agriculture. So expert did he become in the seal and press manufacture that he was engaged by the Government to make those used in various offices and departments at Washington, and in 1831 began for Uncle Sam by making the seal of the House of Representatives. The designer of this seal is unknown, but the present device consists of a circular seal, upon the face of which stands a cut of the old National Capitol, and it was to this, as well as to all the others, that the master added the improvement—his own invention—of a counter seal.

Among the proofs in the seal's possession are many impressions which were made without the counter seal, and the difference in clearness of outline and general distinctness of the impressions is very marked. The counter seal invented by him was made by filling in the base of the press with some soft metal, which would receive the impression of the seal proper. With other noticeable specimens of his work that made for the Department of the Interior in 1830, which, by the way, was the original, is particularly distinct and well executed. It consists of the "spread eagle," such as is seen on the backs of silver quarters of to-day, and just within the margin are the words: "Department of the Interior." It is made of steel. The post office seal dates back to early times and depicts a mail-carrier on horseback with the pouches strapped behind the saddle. This was Benjamin Franklin's old wood cut, and in 1849 Mr. Stabler made the seal now in use, which is but slightly different.

The seals of the War and Navy Departments are almost identically alike, and consist of a lot of military trophies, surrounded by a Phrygian cap with coiled serpent, the whole being flanked by a musket and spear. These are also of steel and bear the inscription, "Board of War and Ordnance." In addition to the seals of the Government Edward Stabler, sr., made many for different railroad companies and corporations. The steel dies for making the gold, silver and bronze medals, which were distributed at the annual mechanics' fairs, formerly held at the Maryland Institute, were also devised by him. The seal of the Smithsonian Institution was made in 1849 of cast-steel, and consists of the profile of James Smithson, the founder.

This of the Peabody Institute of this city comprises a profile of George Peabody. This was made of ball metal, and was finished about '54 or '56. In fact, so great was the popularity of Mr. Stabler, for this class of work, became, that from various states, counties, courts, banks and private corporations came orders for seals which continued until 1863, when he retired from business. Having kept copies of the various impressions, the collection of samples of his handiwork was thus well up in the hundreds. But the son kept picking up odd specimens here and there, until the curious number 600, and outside of the British museum, it is said, this local exhibit is far ahead of any other known.

The Williams Sewing Machine. The Williams Sewing Machines have been before the public for many years and there never was a time when the popularity of these machines was as great as it is at the present, which plainly shows that this company has always made quality the leading feature of their goods.

Under the present management the Williams business in Toronto has increased most marvellously, and our sales of January of this year are 35 per cent. more than the same month in 1902, while our business for 1903 was in excess of 1901 by over 27 per cent, showing that by fair dealing with the public and honesty with our men we have risen to the first position in the sewing machine business in Toronto.

The New Williams is a Canadian production manufactured by Canadian capital and Canadian workmen. The people of Toronto are solicited to patronize a home company; by doing so you will help the prosperity of Canadian enterprise and also keep the profits among ourselves, instead of sending them to a foreign country.

Mr. Cherry is Indignant. Editor World: I have received notice that E. A. McMillan will move at the meeting of this association next Monday night to have my name removed from the membership roll on the allegation that I am an office-holder in the Continental Union Organization of this city.

I challenge the right, not alone the expediency, of the Young Men's Liberal-Conservative Association of Toronto to offer any such resolution as the above. Sir John Thompson recently, in the House, stated the well-known doctrine that leaders of a political party cannot choose who will be their supporters; they announce their policy and let all who desire unite with them in adherence to that policy. I have always in the past had confidence in and voted for the policy of the Conservative party and still, under existing circumstances, have faith in the Conservative Administration.

TWO OF THE GANG GUILTY

BUT ALL ARE REMANDED TO JAIL FOR A WEEK.

What the Detectives Have Discovered Concerning Any Number of Young Men About Town During the Past Thirty Days—Scores of Dishonest Youths on the Carpet.

The Police Court was crowded yesterday afternoon when the four young robbers, William and Edward Archer, George Bennett and William Norris, were called to answer the charge of robbery. They did not seem to be at all concerned about their position. They leaned coolly against the railing of the prisoners' dock and quietly took a look around the crowded court.

Against three three charges were read, that of robbing the establishment of Aumon Davis, of robbing F. Roberts and of attempting to rob the Home Savings and Loan Company's establishment. All elected to be tried summarily. Bennett, the leader of the gang, and his right hand supporter, Norris, pleaded guilty, but the Archers pleaded not guilty. The cases were enlarged for a week, the Crown not being prepared to go on.

The accused, with the exception of Edward Archer, are all small in stature and meagre in appearance. Edward Archer is a broad-shouldered brute of 20. He has brown hair, a square face and a broad brow. His eyes are light grey. His face is intelligent and much finer looking than that of any of his companions. He is 5 feet 9 1/2 inches in height and carries himself with an easy confidence.

George Bennett, the leader of the gang, is small and spare. His features are sharp and his eyes shifting. He has prominent cheek bones and gray eyes. His head is small and his brow narrow and sloping. He stands about 5 feet 6 inches high, and has a bulldog face. His nose is flat and turned up. His eyes are brown, he has a prominent mouth and cheekbones, and thick lips, but his chin is weak.

William Norris is of medium height and rather thin. He has dark hair and gray eyes. His mouth and chin are weak, and his appearance as a whole would lead one to conjecture that it would be easy for a stronger man to lead him into crime.

The activity of the detective force the past few weeks in consequence of the recent daring burglaries has been fraught with grief and shame to many a household, and has resulted in the exposure of a large number of skirmishers or auxiliaries, as it were, on the banks of the regular army of thieves. The result of their investigations has been to show that the thefts of articles by young clerks or salesmen from their employers have become increasingly common in the city. In several cases the thefts were brought home to the young men, but their employers declined to prosecute.

There are several causes for the increase of this particular class of crime. Beyond doubt the tastes and habits of the young men of to-day are more expensive than those of their fathers with all their means, or means at all. They dress up as "managers" and smoke choice cigars, attend theatres, concerts, balls and race meetings. If often indulges in these rather expensive luxuries, and as the supply of youths anxious for general employment is always in excess of the demand, the salaries given are in many cases low. Then firms are sometimes very lax in the oversight of their men in their employ. It seems easy to take a small article. After the first false step the descent is rapid, and many a young man fills a felon's cell, or has to fly to his country, under circumstances due to his master's carelessness as well as his own folly.

The Queen's Bench Division yesterday gave judgment in the appeal by Dr. N. Washington of Toronto from the order of the Council of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario, erasing his name from the register of the college. The Doctor was registered in 1872, and the order striking off his name was made in June last. The complaint against the appellant was chiefly that he advertised extensively in Ottawa, publishing in the newspapers certificates from persons he had cured; that he had been guilty of disrespectful conduct in connection with some patients in Kingston in the last stages of consumption, taking money from them; that he had advertised in Ottawa by means of handbills, and that he had published statements showing the symptoms of catarrh, thereby leading ignorant persons to believe that they were afflicted with that disease. The appellant contended that the complaints made against him were not proved, and that they did not come within the purview of the Medical Act.

The court dismissed the appeal with costs. Dr. Washington will appeal.
