I don't think that would be a bad investment, anyway," he added, musingly. "There's a big water power here, just above the dam."

The judge looked from one to the other,

He left the little group under the apple tree, and walked away from them through the long sweet grass toward the barn. His lips were set firmly, and there were some lines on his face which had never been there before. He thought of the old days, when he and his boys had looked proudly across the fields, and talked of the ime when they should have made enough money to buy that little woodland they had een speaking of. Then none of the trees should ever be cut down, except just enough to open a little vista through which one could get a view of the mountains. And in leading them to that place this morning, the Judge had wondered wistfully if they would remember that old ambulance which had never ceased to be an ambition with him. "Well, he saw it had been forgotten with the other associations and - Rachel must never hear of this," he murmured. "It would break her heart to know they said Old Mrs. Byrntell removed the velvet cap from her head with trembling fingers, then without another word she left the room.

Half an hour later the Judge found her sitting alone in her room. In her lap lay a time-stained box, from which came a faint scent of lavender flowers.

"We have stood a great deal these last two weeks, Rachel," said the Judge, his anger arising. "The place has been made over to suit the children's whims, without a thought of our comfort. They sent the old horse to pasture yesterday, and stowed away the carriage that we have ridden in for twenty years. But we will have them both back again to morrow. "Stop a moment, father," said Charles Byrntell, putting his hand on the slowly turned wheel. "I have your wedding present here, and perhaps I had better give it to you now, for I want you and mother to have it on your anniversary," glancing with a half smile at the large value on the floor of the chaise. "It isn't much, but I thought you would like it as well as anything. It's a deed of the forest land and south meadow we were speaking of the other day. I wanted you to know that I hadn't quite forgotten our old talks. Don't thank me, I don't deserve it. But there is one thing more I would like to say," he added, looking down with a slight flush on his face. "I know our visit has been a disappointment to you, but don't think too hard of us; it has been more thoughtlessness than anything else."

The Judge grasped his son's hand heartily, and Mrs. Bryntell leaned down to put her lips to his forehead in a parting kiss, but appeared around the bend in the road in a' cloud of dust. Grandmamma and Grandpapa Byrntell were eloping. - Christian —Those who contemplate visiting Boston this season are disappointed at learning that there is no change in the annoying treatment of passengers on the Yarmouth and Halifax steamers, who are still driven into a pen like a lot of cattle, and are compelled to stand, sometimes for an hour before being permitted to land. An earnest effort was made early in the spring, by President Baker and officials of other Boston Nova Scotis steamship lines, to have this annoyance done away with, but it was unavailing. It is certainly in vivid contrast to the reception which United States tourists meet with when they visit this province.

Satisfied with the Country.

Winnipeg, Aug. 8.—Commandant Booth, of the Salvation Army, who has been accompanying through the North-West a delegation of English Salvationists, appointed to report on suitable locations for General Booth's over-the-sea colony, returned here to-day. Commandant Booth was enthusiastic in his description of the country, and glowing in his accounts of the appearance of the crops. While the tour was eminently satisfactory and it was realized that the country was well adapted for colonization, the Commandant could not say what decision would be taken as to the selection of land in the North-West for inauguration of the colonization scheme for General Booth in connection with the work of the Salvation Army. The representatives of the Seneral were well satisfied with the country, and would return to England with a most favorable report. The visiting delegation included Colonel Stitt and Brigadier Cliborne, attached to the English headquarters, and were accompanied by Mr. Lawford, a practical farmer. This trio are now on their way to visit the agricultural districts of the Pacific province. COMMANDANT BOOTH IN THE NORTH-WEST.

Why Not You?

When thousands of people are taking Hood's Sarsaparilla to overcome the weakness and langour which are so common at this season, why are you not doing the same? When you know that Hood's Sarsaparilla has power to cure rheumatism, dyspepsia and all diseases caused by impure blood, why do you continue to suffer? Hood's cures others, why not you?

The Indian Poet Reciter.

The Celebrated Johnson-Smily Combine tion will give an entertainment in the Court House on Wednesday evening next. This troupe consists of Mies E. Pauline Johnson, "the Indian poet reciter," and Mr. Owen A. Smily, a well known Canadian elocutionist and musical entertainer.

"the Indian poet reciter," and Mr. Owen A. Smily, a well known Canadian elocationist and musical entertainer.

Miss Johnson's Indian birth combined with a thorough English education and culture have produced in her an artist in literature and without any comparison the foremost poetess at least of the English speaking world. All the fierceness, the courage, the burning love, and the no less fiery hate and jealousy, and the fathomless indignation against the whites for wrongs endured, all the wild love of nature, of mountain, stream, lake and forest, all these attributes of the Indian race have found powerful, melodious and finished expression in her poems.

Mr. Smily renders his part exceptionally well, his splendid deep, rich, bass voice always winning the plaudits of his listeners. To those who wish a rare evening's enjoyment, no better opportunity will be offered this season than the entertainment on Wednesday evening next.

Capt. R. Fleming, her experienced commander, prides himself in having made about 160 trips each year, winter and summer, without a mishap of any kind. This is a record hard to beat, and passengers can rely on having every attention for their comfort and safety.

Her officers have all proved themselves courteous and attentive, and still remain at their posts: H. H. Ring, purser; Thos. Mc-Afee, steward; W. J. Barton, engineer; G. Lawson, mate. Spend Sunday at Digby or Annapolis. Full fare for the trip and return by the City of Monticello is $1.50 to Digby, $2 to Annapolis.—St. John Telegraph.

FAIRN-JEFFERSON A very pretty wedding came off at St. John's church last Wednesday evening, when Benjamin G. Fairn was united in marriage to Gertie, youngest daughter of W. E. Jefferson, all parties belonging to Moschelle. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry D. DeBlois, rural dean. After leaving the church the bridal party drove to the residence of the bride's parents and there partock of a sumptuous repast. After the wedding tour is over the happy couple will reside at Moschelle.

—All reports which come from Manitoba tell of the most magnificent crop ever harvested in the history of the country. Throughout the entire season the conditions for the growth and maturity of the various grains have been most favorable, and this is now followed by splendid weather for the harvest time. From all sections of the province the same story is heard, —the yield this year is beating the record, and the farmers of Manitoba are expecting to astonish the world with the result of this year's operations. At the opening of the Industrial Exhibition at Winnipeg in July last, Gover. Exhibition at Winnipeg in July last, Gover-nor Shultz predicted a total yield of 60,000,-000 bushels of all kinds of grain, and it is now believed that the actual results will exceed these figures. The wheat crop alone will amount to at least half that quantity. Even at the low price of last year it can readily be seen what an immense sum of money the wheat crop alone will bring to the farmers of the prairie province. Just at present, however, the price is much better than that of last season, and there are many indications pointing to a reasonable assurance that it will remain so. But even the low price of last year did not seem to discourage the Manitoba farmer as the acreage sown this year was larger than ever before. This shows that the Manitoba farmer, who should know most about it, believes he can grow wheat at a profit even at fifty cents per bushel, no matter what scientists may attempt to prove about the cost of production. And as he can raise it on the same land year after year without fertilizer of any kind, and has to plough only to the depth of two or three inches, the secret of his belief becomes easy to understand.

It is estimated that it will take 50,000 cars to move the wheat crop alone. At twenty cars to a train this will require 2,500 trains, and no less than seventeen such trains every working day for six months will be required to bring this immense crop of wheat to the sea board were the entire yield is to be shipped. No wonder the Manitoba farmer is this year feeling quite jubilant over now believed that the actual results will exceed these figures. The wheat crop alone farmer is this year feeling quite jubilant over his prospects and politicians are finding it difficult to work up a great deal of enthusiasm over the school question. Without a doubt the prairie province will in a few years be the most prosperous part of the doabout the way the province of Quebec has been running into debt, but the experience of the city of Montreal in this respect beats the record of the province by long odds. In 1888 the net debt of Montreal was $11,520,000, and was then thought to be about all the city would stand. At the end of last year, just six years later, it had reached the sum of $25,755,342, an increase of $14,235,342 in six years. Last year the city spent over $400,000 more than its income, and this -OF late years we have heard a good deal war, just six years later, it had reached the sum of $25,755,342, an increase of $14,235,-342 in six years. Last year the deficit will probably amount to $700,000. To meet some of this, the aldermein now propose to double the water tax which already is four or five times as high as in a good many other cities. This, as might be expected, is causing some vigorous kicking among the citizens and threats are freely made of defeating every alderman now in the council at the first opportunity offered. Montreal evidently wants a vigorous shaking up-in civic matters, such as Dr. Parkhurt and his associates recently gave New York.

Notwithstanding this, however, the liberals of the county have put up a candidate and are entering into the fight with a great deal of spirit. deserves success to attempt any fight at all, especially in view of the fact that there is to be but one session before the general election. -THE newly elected parliament of Great Britain which met for the dispatch of business last week appears to have started in with a considerable amount of liveliness. On the second day of the meeting one Irish home ruler had to be named by the speaker and suspended from his seat for one week by a vote of the house. Mr. Chamberlain appears to be the object of a good deal of Irish indignation and abuse, being frequently greeted with the epithet of "Judas," across the House. This abuse however is easily understood, as no doubt Mr. Chamberlain

Annapolis County Union S. S. Convention.

To all S. S. Workers in the county, to all Members of Churches, to all who are or should be interested in Sunday-school work, and especially to all parents upon whom rests the obligations set forth in the Word of God, Duct. 11:18-21, to teach this law to their children, we respectfully appeal.

— In view of the importance of the work, the responsibilities that rest upon us as individuals, the shortness of time given for the work, and the tremendous issues that hang upon the performance or neglect of this duty, we ask that each one will do their utmost to make the coming Convention the best ever held in the county; that it may result in the quickening of those already engaged in the work and stimulate others; increase the interest in and attendance at all our Sunday-schools, and thus glorify our Father who is in Heaven. The schools need it; the churches need it; God demands it, and neglect may be criminal.

The annual Convention will be held in Providence Methodist Church, Bridgetown, on Friday, Sept. 13th. Session at 10, 2 and 7 o'clock. A full programme has been prepared and will be furnished to all schools.

Therefore we ask that full reports and a good delegation be sent from every school in the county. Come prepared to do and get good.

Very respectfully yours,

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,

Annapolis County S. S. Convention.

An Alleged First Wife of the Late Jay Gould.

New York, Aug. 4th.—Mrs. John Angell of Rouse's Point, N. Y., claims to have been married at the age of fifteen to the late Jay Gould then aged seventeen, and alleges that the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Clayton, of Champlain, N. Y. The plaintiff, Mrs. John Angell declares herself to be the first and original and only legal wife of the late millionnaire. Mrs. Angell has collected evidence to prove this surprising claim and her case is in the hands of several well-known firms of New York lawyers. Mrs. Angell's allegations, if established, upset the entire estate and throw lato inextricable tangle the vast millions of the late millionnaire. More than all this if Mrs. Angell establishes her claim every title, deed, and conveyance ever made by Jay Gould is vitiated according to the law of the state. Never in any court of this country was made a claim against an estate of such far-reaching extent. Perhaps more interesting even than this is the claim of the daughter of this first wife. This young woman, who is married, is living in a western state, and is a party in the claim against the Gould estate. She is represented by a separate law firm, one of whose members has recently been here in her interest.

An Important Tax Question.

To the Editor of the Monitor:

Now that the time for making up the assessment rolls for the surpose of levying taxes for the payment of the water supply, sewerage and street lighting is at hand, it may not be amiss to call the attention of the Commissioners to the Electric Light Act, which requires income to be added to the assessed value of all real and personal estate. Assessors will find income clearly defined in the County Assessment Act, and "there should be no reduction of $400.00," such as is the case, in making up of the county assessment. If information as to income be refused or the assessors are not satisfied with the statement made by the party to be assessed, then and in such case they can add the income, estimated and made up according to the best information they can get, and if the party assessor fare not assessors to do their duty, thereby placing the burden of the taxes upon the poor and men of moderate means and relieving the rich. The assessors should remember that ignorance of the law excuses no one, and they are sworn to do their duty. Women, married or single, having incomes should be assessed for street lighting in this water district. RATEPAYER.

Japan Swept by a Hurricane. Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 13.—Tokio advices, dated August 2, say: "Japan was visited by a terrible storm on the 24th and 25th of July. The hurricane swept across Kiushu, passed along the shores of the inland sea, crossed over the central districts of the mainland and emerged into the Pacific ocean. The track of the storm everywhere was marked by great loss of life and destruction of property, and as the catastrophe was followed by a heavy rain storm, inundations added their devastating effects to the havocwrought by the wind. It is calculated that over a thousand people were killed or drowned. Ujina, a town that served as a military basis during the recent war, felt the full force of the tempest. The place was completely swamped by the sea and over 160 boats were smashed. Among these boats were 120 belonging to the army store department. They were laden with supplies destined for the use of the troops in Liao Tung peninsula. Weather to obtain possession of the accused that justice may be meted out to him. No crime of the century, in cold-blooded atrocity or in the number of unfortunate victims, in any degree approaches this. The victims ranged in age from nine to fifty years. Many were believed to have been ordered for the sake of the insurance they carried. Others were sacrificed, fearing they knew the secret. They were made away with in divers manners. The body of one was cut up into small pieces and fed into a stove. That of another was put into a trunk and sunk in the lake. Two others were shut up in a vault and allowed to die there, the bodies being subsequently articulated and the skeletons sold to a medical veritable graveyard, but the bones of other victims are scattered all over the country. One is believed to have been murdered in Arkansas and two in Canada. The swindling of insurance compant the extent of at least $250,000.

Like most other criminals of meth Holmes was not born in criminal surround ings. His was an educated shrewdness ned and made alert by the risks he ran. It was not common, low cunning, but the development of a plan that was the life work of a daring criminal. The gain of wealth and a taste depraved were the mainsprings of his actions. He had few confidants, but the few he had at any time either fell victims to him or were bound to him by the fact that their lives were linked together so that the accusation of one was necessar ily the conviction of the other.

This man Holmes, confessed bigamist, perjurer, swindler and alleged murderer, vas born a short distance from London, in the New Hampshire hills. His real name is Mudgett. Besides Holmes he is known to have used the alias Howard. His parents were plain, homely country folk, but with mbitions for their boy. He was the prize boy in his classes always. He always managed to capture what honors there were going, and the people of the town marked the town. He was inclined to be wild. the town. He was inclined to be wild. His friends said that it was better he should of this is fixed as Christmas day, 1891. sow his tares early in life than late. His chose medicine for himself. There was a had offices in the Holmes building. He and little feeling at the house over his inclination, and this, coupled with a fracas into which he got, induced him to leave his home.

He went to Gilmartin and there taught school. He saved money enough to attend a medical college, at Burlington, Vt. While there he married. It was a boy's infatuation and a girl's love. The girl lived to regret it. He was too wild and too full of schemes for the future to bother with the gentle country lass that had listened too credulous ly to the vows he made her. He left her ind when he went to complete his medical education at Ann Arbor. He stood well in his classes, but had the reputation of ses, but had the reputation of being a wild young man, with no conscious ness or rectitude and no moral restraints. It was then, as it ever is in colleges, not par ticularly hard for a young man such as he to find a congenial companion among the

He found him. He is the physician that sand detectives are now hunting down. The pair became inseparable. They were in every brawl in town, but managed to pull through their examinations. When their term was over they were without means and without reputation save that they had talents. They worked at all sorts of things Finally an idea seized Holmes. He had read of the substitution of bodies in insurance cases. He suggested the idea to his friend and it was decided that Holmes' friend was to insure himself for as much money as they could pay the premium on, or four months after, then disappear and Holmes would identify it as the corpse of

They worked like beavers hoarding their money as misers would. In short they had enough for the purpose and went to Chicago. Holmes' friend was insured for $12,500. Then they separated. A dead body was in course of time found and put away in Connecticut. Holmes after due scruitiny and with great apparent regret, identified the planted body as that of his friend, and then went to Chicago and collected the insurance. The scamps divided the money. They had $6,000 each after paying the ex penses. Their moral senses had been blunt ed and they swung themselves into criminal life without any reproach from conscience.

It was the old story. The case with which they had made the money and the security that followed rather made them an apology for the crime. They separated for a while but eventually met again by appointment in Chicago. Their money was exhausted and in the vernacular of the profession they touched up" another insurance company for $10,000. This was repeated by them under various aliases, in various States, un til Holmes became a professional crimina His partner had left him and this absence of a confidential pulled him into the deepe He married but finding the woman unsuited and useless to him in his schemes, he cast

He drifted back to Chicago and as Mr.
Howard organized the Yates-Campbell Company, whose business professedly was to buy or sell anything. He was the entire company. Unfortunate chance brought Minnië R. Williams in contact with him. She was Kettle Falls, Wash., one day, none measured less than six inches around. a typewriter. She told him of a sister who had inherited $50,000 from an uncle in Forth Texas. He induced the Wil-iams girl to live with him at No 701 Sixty for $60,000 on the plea that it contained valuable papers. One night it went up is

Later he induced Minnie to write for her sister Anna to come and see her. Rather a letter purporting to have been written by Minnie was sent to Anna and the latter sister and Holmes, or as he was known, Howard. In about a month Anna disappeared. Holmes says that Minnie got jeal-ous of her and one day she struck Anna on the head with a stool and the blow killed her. Holmes says he got a trunk, put the body in it and sunk it in the lake. In a few days Holmes moved from the house and afterwards Minnie disappeared. Whether hers are among the bleached bones found in the cellar of Holmes' house, or an articulate skeleton, is not yet known.

Apparently he needed a man partner in his business. He had read of the forgeries of a man named Pietzel, then in the Terre He soon found that detectives were shadow: ing Pietzel, so he bundled him into a large ould hide a body, are damning evidences trunk and sent him out of the city. Pietzel next officiary curved up at Fort Worth, taking possession of certain property valued at $30,000 which Minnie Williams was alleged to have deeded to one "Bond" who was Holmes. Pietzel went under the name of Lyman. After a series of daring swindles the worthy pair with an unfortunate gir that Holmes had married in Franklin, Ind. lived for a time in St. Louis.

Here it was that Holmes met Hedgepeth the trained robber. The latter introduced him to a "useful" attorney. This is only important inasmuch as it was Hedgepeth who subsequently "peached" on Holmes. Pietzel was insured for $10,000 in the Fidelity Mutual Life Association. Then he went to Philadelphia. There he was known as B. F. Terry." He occupied an odd looking old house at No 1316 Callowhill street. One morning he was found dead. In statement made public the other day Holme said the case was suicide. At any rate Holmes was able to identify him as Pietzel and to get the money.

That the identification might be perfect he had Alice Pietzel, one of the daughters of the deceased, some from St. Louis, where the family was still living, to identify him. The little girl did so. Instead of returning the child to her mother, he left her at the Stebbins Hotel, in Indianapolis. He told Mrs. Pietzel she was with some good friends and he wanted the two other little ones Howard and Nellie, to go to Alice. Mrs. Pietzel consented. None of them have since been seen. Holmes was known afterward to be in Toronto with two of them. Bone of two children have been found in the cella of the house he occupied, and it is alleged that he left Canada without the little ones. Hedgepath, the train robber, was not sat isfied with the amount of money given him for the Pietzel case and he wrote the chief of police in St. Louis exposing the whole plot. After the arrest of Holmes on the charge, damning evidences came rushing along. The Building Department in Chicago ordered the tearing down of the home, or castle" as it was called of Holmes.

Then it was that in all its awfulness wa uncovered the fiendish use to which the place had been put. On the inside of two runks were found unmistakable evidences that they had been used for the conveyance of human bodies that had been cut up. In the vault were found bones that at one time were component parts of three men or women. Dug up from the cellar were piles of bones. On a stove that was in a secret com partment were found spots of blood. It was in this stove that it is suppose Holmes burned the body of Mrs. Julia Con nor. Chief of Police Badenoch, of Chicago, says that her murder was effected by Holm entering her room through a panel and turning on the gas. Then he carried her body tim out as a lad who would make a stir in be easily cleansed, chopped it up into small to the bath tub so that the receptacle could

among those found in the cellar. He had Holmes had been great friends. He disap peared in 1892-a peculiar faculty which nauy friends of Holmes seem to have had. Miss Emma Cigrand, who is missing, is also believed to have been a victim of Holmes. She was working for Holmes and 'Phelps." The latter is thought to have been Pietzel. Her father, Peter Cigrand, of Anderson, Neb., says she wrote that father received a letter, professedly from Emma, but which he doubts her having written, saying she was going to Europe. He did not hear of her again. And so it is all through the case. Murder and swindling stand out strongly every-where. If Holmes be innocent of everything except swindling, then the police everywhere are deceived, and the dumb accusation of the bleached bones in his cellar is without foundation. His janitor and the wife of the latter are now in custody in Chicago. In all respects the case is the most extraordinary in extent and atrocity that has ever bee

Stepped on the Czar's Corn.

I must admit, though with some hesitancy, that I am the only American-man or woman-whom the late Czar ever met upon an equal footing, says a writer in the Milwaukee Journal. Rather to be more exact, my footing was somewhat above his at that tim It may not be generally known that he had a decided antipathy to me, although such feelings were not shared by me. I was care ful to avoid (beyond this one instance which I am about to relate) putting my foot upon Russian possessions. Upon this occasion w had what might have been a serious set to or rather stand to. I have always felt that I had the better of it. Allow me to divulge a state secret. The late Czar had corns!

My knowledge of this skeleton in the im perial closet came about in this manner: One morning at the "Zoo" in London, I stood in front of the seal tank. A great sea came up to be fed. Receiving nothing from my empty hands, he was about to flop back into the water with a great splash. Mindful of my best bib and tucker, I jumped hastily backward, landing upon the foot of a fine looking gentleman, who, though evidently in pain, as indicated by his facial expression and by his raised foot, yet accepted my apology with as much courtesy and grace as could be expected. His companion, who also looked somewhat discomfited, was immediately recognized by me as the Prince of Wales, and then I learned that I had jumped upon the august corns of the autocrat all the Russias!

—An English paper says that at least one thing may be said for bicycling women. They ride infinitely better than men; they sit straight, and, in their neat blouses, snug caps and graceful drapery, which on the wheel does not betray whether it is divided or not, they make much prettier and more enticing pictures than the curious, bow-shouldered, turtle-necked animals which so often pose as wheelmen.

Is the unequalified approval of every customer. Our fence has won at every Fair or Exposition where entered. But what does a practical farmer care for that! The fighting qualities of a soldier are proven on the field of battle, not on dress parade.

Don't fail to keep it before the people that ours is the only perfectly self-regulating fence offered. Don't loose sight of the great saving in posts, as with some other fences the posts alone costs as much as our fence complete.

I believe we have the best fence for the movey on earth. I base my belief on the fact that one string of fence sells lots more. Page fence has proved itself by far the best for farmers' use, and we know from the orders already received that our business will boom with that of the farmers. M. O. Variety and Food.

Many people fall into the mistake of sup posing that, because they take a certain number of meals daily, and keep their sto was recently called in to attend upon a seam-stress who was suffering from weakness and general depression. "What kind of food have you been living upon?" asked he of his patient. "O, my food has been all right!" she replied. "I have lived mostly on bread and butter for a long time, and I am sure there is no harm in that." "My dear woman," exclaimed the doctor, "you have explained the secret of your illness. Your body has been starving on that diet, and I am surprised you are no worse." The func many and various, and the supply of food must be complex to meet its requirements. The internal organs are constantly at work, and therefore wasting; the body must be kept warm to a large extent by food. Ther there is the wear and tear of the system which an ordinary day's work involves Whether one's life be one of comparative ease or filled with arduous toil this variety of diet must be maintained, and flesh-forming, heat giving, and starchy matter must be taken in proper porportions.

A "Bed Day" for Tired Ones. It is told of Phobe Cary, who was a renarkably sunshiny and loving woman, tha whenever she used to feel "out of sorts. she would shut herself up in her room for rest until the serenity of soul was restore She was wise enough to discern the physic logical side of amiability and govern herself accordingly. A mother of two restles children acts upon the same principle by insisting upon an occasional "bed day." She has observed that "crossness" with them is nvariably the result of too much activity; that nervous force is expanded faster tha muscular strength is generated, and tries to The children understand that the measur s not a punishment, but endorsed solely for sanitary reasons, and are allowed plenty of playthings and quiet games. This mothe stifies that the next day her small brood is "bright and chipper as young robins." The experiment for either children or adults is worth trying, especially after the excitemen and irregular habits necessarily connected with a holiday season.

-It ought to be a rule in all households
