EIGHT HOURS DAY BILL IN THE SENATE

Sir Richard Scott Endorses Compulsory Eight Hour Day But Senator Beique Says It Would Be Bad For Country.

Ottawa, April 20.—In the Senate today, Sir Richard Scott resumed the debate on the bill providing an eight hour day on the construction of public buildings. He endorsed the measure declaring that eight hours of willing work was better and more profitable for the employer than nine or ten of unwilling work.

WILL FIGHT RECIPROcity COMMISSION TO THE DITTED END

Speaking in Moncton with G. H. Cowan, M. P., of Vancouver, O. S. Crocket, M. P., Says: Conservatives in Ottawa will Fight it Until People have Chance to Speak.

Special to The Standard. Moncton, April 20.—A good audience greeted Geo. H. Cowan, M. P., for Vancouver, B. C., and O. S. Crocket, M. P., for York, in the Grand Opera House this evening. Dr. F. J. White presided, and on the platform were W. E. Dickson, M. P. P.; Dr. O. B. Price, President of the Moncton Conservative club, and others.

FIGHT FIRST TALK LATER SAYS MADERO

Leader Of Mexican Insurrectors Says He Will Consider No Armistice Until After The Battle Of Juarez.

Washington, D. C., April 20.—That President Taft is more determined than ever that the United States must not intervene in Mexico became known here this afternoon following a conference between the president and secretary of state, Knox, and a committee of the house of representatives.

PEACE PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Washington, D. C., April 20.—Dr. Vasquez Gomez, head of the confidential agency of the Mexican revolutionists here, announced today that if all the preliminary details of the proposed armistice were arranged satisfactorily to both sides, he would start for Juarez, Mex., in the course of a few days to participate in the formal peace conferences that are planned to follow the armistice.

WILL FIGHT FIRST; TALK LATER

El Paso, April 20.—Francisco I. Madero refused absolutely to grant an armistice as suggested by Dr. Gomez at Washington. He sent in word that he would talk of armistice after the battle of Juarez and then only.

MADERO WARNED

Washington, D. C., April 20.—At 2.30 p. m., Dr. Gomez sent an urgent message to General Madero via El Paso cautioning him against attacking Juarez at the present moment.

COMMISSION TO THE DITTED END 865 VOTES

Final Election Returns Made Up Yesterday Show Slight Changes From First Figures—Bridge Got 895.

The official returns of the civic elections were made up yesterday and submitted at the next meeting of the Common Council. In two or three instances there are some slight changes in the figures already published. Interest naturally centres around the vote for the commission plan of government. The majority vote in favor of the new system was 1,065.

TRouble WITH BLACK TROOPS

Citizens of Kingston and Police Had Difficulty in Handling Riotous Negroes Armed with Razors.

Kingston, J. A., April 20.—Disturbances have been going on here for two days between the soldiers of the West India Regiment and civilians and the police have had serious difficulty in handling the rioters. Serious fighting occurred in various parts of Kingston last night, the soldiers using razors with deadly effect. Many persons were treated at the hospital, and one death is reported from injuries inflicted. For a time the residents in certain quarters were panic stricken. Order was restored today.

LAST NIGHT'S BAL MASQUE PROVED BRILLIANT EVENT

One Hundred and Fifty Guests Present at Masquerade in Keith's Assembly Rooms—Costumes Particularly Pretty

There was mirth and pleasure in abundance in Keith's Assembly rooms last night. After a lapse of nearly ten years the masquerade ball was revived in St. John. The event had been anticipated with pleasure for some time and the large number in attendance last night thoroughly enjoyed the ball.

The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of W. H. Golding, S. C. Young, Kenneth Bonnell, Edwin Bonnell and Percy Rising. The chaperones were Mrs. Francis I. McCafferty, Mrs. W. E. Hopper, Mrs. R. E. Price, Mrs. E. C. Young, Mrs. W. H. Golding and Mrs. W. H. Fairweather of Sussex.

Previous to the dancing a reception was held from eight o'clock until nine. The rooms were artistically decorated for the occasion with bunting, flags and trimmings of various hues and design. The ball rooms presented a most attractive appearance. The supper room and the other rooms were tastefully decorated with palms and flowers.

The scene was a brilliant one when the 150 dancers began the grand march. All were masked, and there were but few not in fancy costume. There was variety of color and originality aplenty. Many of the gentlemen wore the traditional Pierrots, but several were arrayed in the most attractive of cavaliers of days of yore.

The costumes worn by the ladies were, for the greater part, made especially for the occasion, and some of them were veritable creations of richness and beauty; others of the ladies were very quaintly garbed in costumes representative of Spain, Italy and other countries.

Enthusiasm ran high during the evening. The programme of dances of sixteen numbers was varied, consisting of waltzes, lancers, two steps by the Nickel orchestra, and a choice selection of dance music was discoursed.

One of the novelties of the evening was the confetti shower which preceded the supper.

Perhaps the most interesting moment of the evening was that when the masques were discarded.

A dainty supper was served about midnight, and the dancing resumed until an early hour. The masquerade was pronounced one of the most enjoyable events held in the city for some time.

FRANCE WILL NOT TAKE ANY PART IN MOROCCAN AFFAIR

Forces in Chaouia District Will Be Reinforced, But France Will Send No Army To Gates Of Fez.

Paris, April 20.—The situation in Morocco resulting from the rebellion against Sultan Mulai Hand, has led to talk of French intervention by sending an army to the gates of Fez. The French government, however, has not reached any decision of this nature.

Madrid, April 20.—Persistent reports of differences developed between Spain and France relative to the handling of the Moroccan situation are emphasized by various newspapers which criticize the Franco-Spanish entente regarding Morocco and foresee a rapprochement and even accord between Spain and Germany.

This is the attitude of the ministerial organ, Manana, the conservative Mundo, and the catholic Diario. On the other hand the republican El Pais expresses the opinion that an understanding with Germany would be fatal as a certain cause of reprisals on the part of Great Britain and France.

With the development of the revolt in Morocco threatening the security of the Sultan's government and the preparations of Spain and France to protect their interests in the event that order was not soon restored, have come rumors that the two countries were at odds over the measures to be taken and that Germany had intimated to Madrid that it was not in sympathy with the French plan.

Premier Camalejas of Spain has refused to enlighten the Cortes as to the exact situation between Spain and France or to say whether German influence had been brought to bear in the matter. He asserted that Spain had adopted a positive attitude but he would not reveal the intention of France as disclosed in notes exchanged.

In January, 1906, the representatives of thirteen governments met at Algiciras and subsequently adopted an international agreement concerning reforms in Morocco. These reforms included the regulation of custom duties, collection of taxes, establishment of a state bank, the organization of a police force and the sup-

PROVINCIAL PROGRESS ATTRACTS ATTENTION

"Canada", Published in London, Comments on New Brunswick's Progress as Outlined.

(Canada, London, Eng.)
New Brunswick's Progress.
Progress was the keynote of the speech of the Hon. J. K. Flemming in dealing with the finances of New Brunswick for the current fiscal year. And the advancement which is being made here, in common with the sister provinces of the Dominion, is indicated by increasing revenue and expenditure, the corollary of civic development.

The fact that the past year's increase in the net debt, which now stands at $4,462,547, was the smallest for a number of years, may be accepted as evidence of the watchful eye kept on the exchequer.

Gratifying, too, is the fact that the actual revenue exceeded by $72,507 the estimate of $1,251,392, the main contributors being territorial revenue, succession duties, and school books, the Provincial Secretary noting with satisfaction, on passing the bill for the revenue for liquor licenses was less than for many years. As with the income, so, too, with the expenditure, the estimate of $1,317,846 being exceeded by $99,796, such essential progressive departments as education and public works being responsible for this.

We note that the estimated expenditure on education was the substantial second largest sum of $274,510, an index to the Government's high appreciation of its value, while that for public works was $218,800, which was exceeded by $63,443. In dealing with the criticisms of the press and opposition of the Hon. Mr. Fleming laid stress upon the fact that there were now no suspense accounts, and would be none, although the Government had been charged by the system which they had condemned when in opposition.

The three important elements in the increase are education, public works, and interest, these having increased by $45,000, $63,000 and $100,000 since 1907, or a total of over $200,000. There is certainly irrefutable evidence that the province is making appreciable headway pari passu with the other provinces in the Dominion.

pression of the contraband trade in arms. The agreement was ratified by the Sultan.
In the year preceding the Algiciras conference Theophile Delcasse, the present French Minister of Marine, retired from the post of Minister of Foreign Affairs because of the failure of the French policy in Morocco. These plans were bitterly opposed at Berlin where it was charged that Delcasse was attempting to isolate Germany. Emperor William visited Morocco and in a speech said that French domination in that country would not be tolerated. The refusal of the Sultan to accede to the French proposals followed. The retirement of Delcasse was followed by a better understanding between France and Germany and both were parties to the Algiciras conference. If it is true that Germany is influencing Spain to oppose France in the Moroccan crisis the possibility of renewed international complications in the country of the Sultan is suggested.

Tangier, April 20.—Advices have been received from Captain Bremond, commanding the Sultan's forces, dated April 16, saying that his advance to Fez has been halted by floods which have rendered the roads impassable. His recent victory over the Cherada Tribesmen in which forty of the rebels were killed, eight taken prisoners, and the others routed, has had considerable effect on the tribesmen in general, nevertheless the "Cherada" are reported to continue to hang on the flanks of the column.

A runner reached Captain Bremond from Fez today, as reported, that the city quiet. Provisions at that time were being received by the people who had been in danger of a famine.

"THE ESTABLISHED APPEL ORCHARDS IN THEIR CARE UP TO THE TENTH YEAR"

By A. G. Turney, Provincial Horticulturist

PART I—THE COMMERCIAL ORCHARD.

Not many years ago the possession of an orchard made but little difference to the value of a property. The marked changes, however, taken place within the last twenty years that in many sections today, farms possessing good orchards have sold for from 25 to 50 per cent. increase over farms which though equally good in other respects possessed no orchards. The reason for this is that the past twenty years or so have witnessed a wider appreciation of the good in other respects possessed no orchards. The reason for this is that the past twenty years or so have witnessed a wider appreciation of the good in other respects possessed no orchards.

Placing the price of land at $30 per acre, the cost of establishing five acres of apple orchard today in New Brunswick would be $450 per acre; only one acre was planted the cost would be greater. The conditions of establishment being favorable and proper care being given to the orchard the increase in value per year up to the tenth year should average from $30 to $40 per year, making a selling value in the tenth year of from $300 to $500 per acre. In actual practice this annual increase in the value of the orchard has in many cases been exceeded, but suffice it to say that a well planted and well cared for orchard will greatly increase the value of the farm.

The Man.

Other things being equal the increase in value just referred to will be wholly dependent on the man. No man should undertake the actual operation of an orchard, if his sole object for so doing is to be measured up by the dollars and cents he hopes to get out of it. There is here a strong natural tendency for the work and an expectancy to get some enjoyment and wealth out of the investment other than mere dollars and cents.

Buying a Farm for Apple Growing.

The avowed object in this case being to specialize in apples, only those factors tending to the greatest success of this project should be considered; other considerations should be secondary. In their eagerness to handle a bearing orchard, many people will purchase a farm with a certain amount of orchard on it, rather than the bare land and wait a number of years. This step in many cases is a serious mistake. Often this bearing orchard is irregular in planting, the fruit is of many varieties, is not in the best possible position, and will before many years, begin to die out. Also it often prevents the development of the land according to the ideals of the owner and so as to procure the best results. On the other hand the advantage of starting with trees, is that there will be no portion of the orchard in a declining state, that the essentials of success can be observed from the start, and the farmer best developed according to the ideals of the orchardist. The farm must of course be adapted for apple growing as described here. The orchard should be in a good state of till and fertility. Too often this point is overlooked and the indifferent growth of the trees at the first year, is the result. The land is brought up to a good state of fertility, the expense of so doing has materially increased the initial price of the land, and the farmer best developed according to the ideals of the orchardist. The land is brought up to a good state of fertility, the expense of so doing has materially increased the initial price of the land, and the farmer best developed according to the ideals of the orchardist.

The Selection of Varieties.

The wrong selection of varieties, not only in the province, but in all countries where the fruit is grown, has occasioned enormous loss and great disappointment. In selecting the varieties for commercial apple growing, the following principles should be closely observed: 1st.—Confine your selection to a minimum of varieties, from three to five, and even four or five may be too many. 2nd.—Decide on the market you are going to cater to, and then select the varieties which that market demands, even though there are other varieties you yourself may prefer. 3rd.—These varieties must be adapted to your soil and climate. In this respect we have much to learn. For instance, Golden Russets (not advised) favor heavy soils; apples of the Fameuse type do best on soils of granitic formation. 4th.—Plant varieties that have proved to be good commercial sorts in your locality. Do not plant varieties simply because they have succeeded elsewhere. To attempt to grow such varieties as Jonathan, Newtown or Spitzenberg here would be futile. 5th.—Due regard should be paid to the difference in the blooming periods of the varieties, and to their ability to fertilize themselves. This will be explained later on.

Varieties.

For commercial apple growing, the Fameuse, Newtown, Red Blended and Bethel will find a ready sale at good prices on the local markets. For export purposes we would omit the Bishop Pippin and the Duke of Devon. Wealthy and Alexander or Wolfe River. These last five varieties sometimes sell well in the local markets, and at other times are rather over planted. The writer hardly knows enough about the Baxter to recommend it as a commercial apple. It has hardly been sufficiently well tested here, but gives promise of being useful. It is probable that for a few years yet our selection of varieties will confine to those mentioned above. A substantial reward might well be offered for any new apple of native origin that is a distinct improvement over those which we consider our best varieties.

An elevation above the surrounding land, but not so much so as to be badly wind swept is preferable. Such a site will permit of the cold air draining off to the lower parts, and in this way ensure greater freedom from frosts. Rolling or inclined land is generally preferable to level and, not only so, but the drainage is obtained, but because water drainage is apt to be better. Steep hillsides on account of the danger of soil-washing and the difficulty of cultivation will not permit of the same varieties in treatment, and are not so desirable though in certain instances they may be profitably planted to apples. The modifying factors which the soil has upon water have upon the climate for some distance from their shores are land so placed preferable though good localities are found inland.

While orchards are to be found doing well on all exposures, a northern, easterly or northeasterly slope is to be preferred in our northern climate, since such a one will give us less exposure to the strong prevailing wind from the west, and the soil is warmed from late spring frosts, since the growth starts later, and less danger from sunscald. However, in proximity to large bodies of water the exposure is probably towards the water.

Windbreaks. The natural bush lot or rising ground forms, perhaps the ideal protection from the wind, but where these are not so situated as to give this protection, some artificial windbreak of trees becomes necessary. In our northern climate and indeed not enough attention has been paid to this feature in New Brunswick. The greatest need for some such protection in the winter is to lessen winter killing which is largely caused by evaporation of moisture from the cells in the twigs and stems during the winter, and cold and frequent, and have free access to the orchard, the evaporation becomes a necessity, and the cells are broken up and the twigs die. However the protection of the trees by a windbreak, if it is well planned from the full force of the winds is far more important. The young growth in the summer is very easily bent before the force of the prevailing wind and the lack of adequate protection is all too evident in the many trees leaning in most cases to the northeast. Breakers too, at the time of the year are frequent in the unprotected orchard, and the retaining of the optimum amount of moisture in the soil is more difficult where the evaporating power of the winds remains unchecked. The greatest value of the windbreak is, however, in the protection afforded the fruit towards harvesting time. Heavy winds at this time may turn 50 per cent. of the crop into windfalls—a very serious loss. It is well worth while planning to avoid.

Where artificial windbreaks are necessary we can hardly improve here the native spruce. Trees three to five feet high may be successfully transplanted from the bush. A single row may be sufficient but a double row with ten feet between the rows, and trees planted alternately, is sometimes necessary. The trees should be set 8 to 10 feet apart, in the row. Aim to plant the windbreak at the same time as the orchard or a year or two ahead if possible and fully thirty-five feet from the apple trees. Various objections are urged against windbreaks, but if the protection due to the windbreak does not encroach on the feeding ground of the apple trees and is not set so close as to break the proper drainage, the objections are not to be compared with the advantages secured. In planting the orchard, so far as is consistent with proper drainage, it is better to plant by the windbreak with persistent fruits, on the outside.

Apple Soils.

Apple trees may be found thriving on almost all kinds of soils, provided good drainage is there. Good drainage is absolutely necessary since the apple tree is deep rooted. Avoid any soil with a hard pan or close impervious subsoil. Artificial drainage is often necessary in soils that have any other requisite. In planting out an orchard of some size, if in doubt as to the nature of the soil, it is prudent, by all means supplement with tile drains; they will repay their cost many times over before the orchard is in full bearing. We may say that as a rule the most suitable soils are those of a sandy loam and clay loam nature. Professor Waugh in his work "The American Apple Orchard," says: "A somewhat gravelly soil, or even one verging somewhat on stony, has been found by experience to be highly satisfactory for apple-growing, provided only that there is an abundance of plant food present—the gravel and small stones doubtless assist in the drainage and the porous character explains in part the superiority of such soils. As a rule we may say that gravelly loam, fairly rich in plant food is the ideal apple soil." Much of our soil of this nature, although some of it is much more stony or gravelly, and the amount of loose stone which may be present in an apple soil is only limited by the possibility of cultivation and special tools may be devised to withstand the extra wear and tear. Stony soils and therefore being warmer are likely to give better results in a northern climate.

Preparation of the Soil.

This is a very important point and a factor that is more the farmer in apple growing in the province are due to lack of thorough preparation of the soil, than is generally understood or attributed. The temptation on the part of the intending planter to get his trees in at once and thus save a year or two, though the ground may not be in the best state of preparation in the same way that it is a recognized principle in stock raising to keep the young stock growing well and doing right ahead, so is it with fruit trees; plant them in poor land, lacking in tillth and fertility, and they will receive a check which in spite of the beneficial treatment after planting, will lessen their chances of developing into strong, healthy trees. Instead of gaining time by this hasty method of planting, one often loses two or three years. The planter will be luck and money in pocket, should he if he waits a while and brings the land intended for his orchard up to a high state of tillth and fertility. The methods of doing this will be explained in the next part of the article. Land that has been well fertilized and under hoe crop the previous season, if ploughed in the fall and again in the spring, will have worked up should be in first rate condition for planting.

The Kind of Trees To Buy.

On this point a number of our people seem to get away from the real idea that size is the main essential in buying fruit trees. Don't buy any tree older than three years, and give two year old stock the preference. The longer a tree is kept in the nursery the more must it be cut back each year and the greater will be the loss in the winter when it is finally sent out for planting. Trees over three years old have been unduly held in check in the nursery row—such trees have worked up a set-back, their root system has been badly mutilated—their vitality is depreciated and they are strictly undesirable. The best system of selection should disclose the rings marking the cessation of each year's growth and in this way enable the buyer to determine the age of the tree. It would be well for us to go easy in planting one year old trees here until we can see their advantage over the two year old stock. Their slowness and susceptibility to breakage would seem to be points against them for this climate. A good tree should be clean straight for the variety which it is well formed and branches leaving the trunk so as to form no weak crochets. In this respect it must be remembered that certain varieties naturally form better heads and grow straighter than others in their early stages. The Wolfe River and Duchess will be straight looking trees from the nursery and the Fameuse and Longfield. Those varieties that are apt to be more or less crooked from the nursery should be avoided in the nursery. But apart from this, a tree should be a general thrifty appearance about the tree. The root system should contain plenty of small branches and fibrous roots, all well thrived and of a healthy color. If the tree is a serious fault, Dry, hard, shrivelled or discolored looking bark, thin table cloth, mottling, or discoloration of the pithy probably due to unnecessary exposure or poor method of storing through the winter.

PILOTS TO PROTEST AGAINST NEW BILL

The proposed amendments to the Canada Shipping Act in connection with the pilotage question as outlined in a bill to be submitted to Parliament by Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, will meet a good deal of opposition from the pilots of the Maritime Provinces and Quebec. The clause dealing with "dumb" barges is the stumbling block with the pilots, and this clause is interpreted to mean that all barges will be free from pilotage. It is also maintained that even schooners could be so manipulated as to enter port free of pilotage and that foreign barges will be on the same footing as Canadian barges.

Pilot Commissioners E. Lantalam and W. A. Adams and J. U. Thomas, secretary of the Pilot Commissioners, will proceed to Ottawa on the 27th to look after the interests of the pilots. There will also be delegations from Nova Scotia and Quebec to oppose the proposed act.

The lumbermen of the province will return to Ottawa on the same date to protest against legislation passed last winter which they claim is injurious to them.

THE COURTS.

FINANCIAL WORLD

STOCK MARKET HAD QUIET DAY

New York, N. Y., April 20.—Prices moved listlessly within a narrow range on the stock exchange today, and the volume of business fell far below that of the two preceding days. During the first hour of the session, speculation was broad and active with an upward swing following moderate declines at the opening. Trading fell off thereafter, and the market was lifeless, final figures of the day showing only a few changes of significance.

There was noted today a lessening of the demand for stocks to correct short contracts, and it was assumed that the short interests had been reduced materially. In the final hour today the bears made a vigorous effort at the market. Their attack was particularly successful in the fertilizer stocks. American Cotton Oil losing 2 points and Virginia Carolina Chemical losing 1 1/2 points.

An advance in the proportion of the Bank of England's reserve to its liabilities from 43.56 per cent. to 47.71 per cent., was shown in today's weekly statement. The figures despite this substantial recovery of the past week, are below that of the corresponding week of last year.

CLOSING STOCK LETTER. By direct private wires to J. C. Mackintosh & Co. New York, April 20.—The promise of at least moderate activity in the stock market afforded by the Mo. Pac. episode was not fulfilled and in the absence of any specific news of a character to stimulate operations on either side today's market again relapsed into dullness with a rather heavy undertone.

CLOSING COTTON LETTER. By direct private wires to J. C. Mackintosh & Co. New York, April 20.—Today's cotton market was consistently strong throughout and the fact that the strength was maintained in spite of the subsidence of fears with respect to a squeeze in the May position made the advance of about 10 points all the more impressive.

THE VALUE OF INSIDE PLAY; BY MANAGER FRANK CHANCE

FRANK CHANCE.

What is inside baseball? I will tell you—it is simply doing the right thing at the right time. If anyone tells you anything different, he is "stringing you."

Such men are anything but inside players. They may be great hitters and grand fielders, but their work does not count so much as the player who is not so good with the bat or in the field, but who can and does play the game with his teammates so the team wins games.

McClary's For Sale by Quinn & Co.

A good inside player is a man who is constantly figuring out what the other team is trying to do, and planning to checkmate them in some way. The player who is not a good inside player nowadays, is not regarded as much account in the game as played in the major leagues, and in the more important of the minor leagues, where the game is very fast.

CORONATION MARATHON FOR HOLMER

A. B. George, the well known English runner and writer, in a letter says: "Among the many sports festivals, which will be held during the coronation week will be a big Marathon Race for professionals at Douglas (isle of Man), June 29."

After the remarkable series of records created by Bouchard, of France, and Holmer of Canada, in the last Marathon at Edinburgh, everyone will hope that the pair will again be seen in opposition.

At the moment it does not look as though England had a stayer capable of beating Holmer or Bouchard. A. E. Wood might turn out a great Marathon man, but the writer rather fancies his style is hardly suited for a distance beyond twelve miles.
