Secretary's Report.
The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were very encouraging and show the association to be doing work. The following are the reports:—

Ladies and Gentlemen, I herewith submit the report of the Newcastle Y. M. C. A.

This association was organized and fairly launched about the 1st of May, 1902. The rooms have been open to the public every week evening since that time between the hours of 7 and 10 o'clock. The reading room is well supplied with a number of the best magazines among which may be mentioned, The Strand, Cosmopolitan, Canadian, Success, and Health. Also illustrated papers as the American Boy, Leslie's Weekly, Illustrated London News, Collier's Weekly, etc. Also St. John and Montreal daily papers, and our own town publication the Advocate, with some donations from the friends. It is a matter of regret that the reading room has not been as well patronized as the director of the association could wish, they would like sometimes to see some of the older members who have contributed to the funds of the association and who by that means are honorary members, help and stimulate by their presence the work of the association.

In the matter of games the rooms are somewhat deficient, as the accommodation for such is rather limited, checkers, croquet and ping pong are about all that we could hitherto offer and have barely room for these. It is the new room which it is proposed to add in a week or two we will have more accommodation and we hope then to be able to place something that will be interesting and profitable to both body and mind.

A field for athletic sports was secured in the spring, a baseball team was organized and did some good work. Several matches between our home team and others were arranged for but only one was successfully carried through and that with honor to the boys of our team. The Treasurer's report will give you the figures both Dr and Cr.

The athletic field was not such a success as we hoped it might be and it is a question whether the returns will warrant the expenditure. The social side of the question has hardly been touched at all. Early in the summer a committee of eight ladies representing the four parishes of the Town was appointed and while we feel sure that this committee stands ready and willing to do all in their power to help along the work of the association, nothing has yet been asked of them. The chief reason for this lies in the fact already stated, that our rooms were not large or convenient enough to hold or carry out anything in the way of a social or entertainment, we hope that this state of affairs will speedily be remedied.

The last and most important phase of association work I have left to the last, namely, the Christian part. When the rooms were opened in May it was decided that a afternoon meeting for men should be held each Sunday at 4 o'clock. This was afterward modified or changed so that one meeting in each month should be held in the evening. This idea has been carried out during the summer. While it is a fact that some associations suspend or give up their afternoon meeting during the summer months, we have been able quite successfully in nearly every case to hold one meeting. There were two or three occasions however when this was not done owing to our inability to secure a speaker. These meetings have been of a very interesting character. It is the general consensus of opinion of those attending these services that they must be productive of much good. There were several meetings to which ladies were invited and some of them afterward expressed themselves as delighted and very much edified. Our one regret was that the ser-

TOWN COUNCIL.

Regular Monthly Meeting of Council.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

On Progress of Installation of Water Sewerage and Electric Light System.

The regular monthly meeting of the Newcastle Town Council was held on Wednesday evening last, there being present, The Mayor and Aids, Ritchie, Hickson, Hennessy, Fish, Stables, Pedelin, and Williston.

The following report of the whole council was read.
Newcastle, N. B.
Nov. 5th, 1902.

To His Worship, the Mayor and Aldermen of the Town of Newcastle.

I beg to report that at a meeting of the Committee of the whole council held on the 21st day of October last it was agreed with the Miranichi Telephone Exchange that the latter Co. would move their telephone wire from the west to the east side of Jane street, provided the Town placed a post for them on the west side. It was also agreed by the above parties that the Telephone Company would remove their line from Prince William street and that the Town would erect a line of poles for them on Mullins lane.

It was resolved at this meeting that a 35ft pole be placed on the west side of Jane street instead of a 30 ft pole as the specifications call for.

A meeting of the committee was held on Oct. 24th, at which it was decided on votes were not more largely attended. While on some occasions there was a fairly good audience and in a few instances the room was filled, two often the audience was small. It was rather too discouraging in some instances to those who were planning for those meetings, as well as to some of the "talented speakers" who honored with their presence to find so small a number present. And here I might say that we are very much indebted as well as very grateful to a number of visiting clergymen as well as to the Pastors of our own churches for the manner in which they have responded to the call of the committee and though often in "abours abundant" these men have freely given of their time and talent, even when wearied with their regular duties.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. asked and were given permission to hold a meeting in the rooms in the interests of the anti-cigarette movement. This meeting was well attended and a very interesting service was held, the President of the W. C. T. U. presiding.

Our membership has not increased very rapidly owing perhaps to the fact that no very definite canvass has been made for members during the last four months. A canvass of that nature will be at once instituted and we hope to materially increase our membership. Our membership now stands at

We regret that a number of persons whom we expected would join this association as active members and by their presence and influence help along the good work have so far not seen fit to identify themselves with the movement.

I cannot close this report without referring to the serious loss the association has sustained so early in its history through the resignation from the association and departure from our town of Geo. K. McNaughton, our first Presiding officer. Mr. McNaughton was very largely instrumental in bringing about the organization of this association and took a deep interest in its welfare, the departure we feel to be a great loss to our association as well as to the public in general.

Respectfully submitted,

THOS. A. CLARKE,

At the meeting held on Oct. 27th, it was resolved (if feasible) to carry a 1 inch water pipe from Castle street to or near the Public slip in the rear of Doyle's new livery stable and Aids, Fish, Pedelin and Hennessy were appointed a committee to make arrangements to carry this out.

At a meeting of the committee held on Oct. 29th the Clerk was instructed to notify the Smart-Ely machine company that they were some six weeks behind in their contract and that they would be held liable for any damage the Town might sustain through their delay and copies of this notice were ordered to be delivered to the Foremen of this company at work here.

R. L. Malby was appointed Inspector of Sewer connections at the remuneration of $1.00 per inspection to be paid by the applicant.

It was also resolved at this meeting that Wm. A. McMaster be recommended to the Engineer putting up the pump as an assistant, with the understanding that if he is a suitable man and terms can be agreed upon he will be appointed Engineer and Foreman at the Power House.

The Clerk was also instructed to advertise for an Electrician.

It was resolved that the day policeman be notified that his services would not be required after first of next month.

It was decided that six inch poles would be sufficient for extension of electric lights to Lawlor's.

A committee was appointed to make arrangements with property holders to allow the placing of guy poles on their property where required.

Mayor Morrison said that a complaint had been made that the draw of the North-west bridge has been very poorly served of late and that steamer crews had to open and close it themselves. As Mr. Russell was present, the Mayor requested that he be heard.

Mr. Russell said that Capt. John Russell had been complaining about this matter for some time and for a number of trips he had been obliged to open and close the draw himself. As the tide runs very swift there, this was sometimes a dangerous task. He had spoken to Mr. John Matheson about it and said he would not again open and close it himself. Last Saturday, Nov. 1st, the boat blew for three quarters of an hour for the draw but no one responded and was forced to give the trip for that day. In Mr. Smith's time the service was good but lately, especially this season the service has been very poor.

Aid. Fish asked if this was the only reason why the boat had not made her trip to Red Bank to which Mr. Russell said it was.

Aid. Hickson moved that attention of the representatives of this county be drawn to this matter with the request that it be rectified. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned to meet on Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

Mr. Dooley on the Coal Strike.

It'll be a hard winter if we don't get coal! said Mr. Hennessy. What d'ye want with coal? said Mr. Dooley. Ye're a mos unraisable man. D'ye think ye can have all th comforts iv life an that ye mus make no sacrifice to uphold the rights iv property? Irvybody will have plenty iv fuel for this winter. The rich can burn with indignation, think iv the wrongs inflicted on captal, the middle or middlin class will be marchin with the millishy, an th poor can fight among themselves an burn the labies. I niver thought iv babies before as combustible, but they are. At wan stroke ye kin keer th babies warm an the rest iv the family comfortable. Before the winter is over I expeit to hear ye callin: 'Precky, go out in the woodshed and bring in a scuttful of little Robert Immitt. The fire is burnin low. They'll be nawthin else to burn.

Th Bible, the mantlepice, the pluntin, the bills from the butcher, the phottograft album, mother's switch and the oog will all go into the furnace. If ye say a man has money to burn, it'll mean he's too poor or too mean to get coal. As fer me with nayther babies nor money, I can keep warm be just thinkin iv the situation. I can get up the circylation iv me blood—principally in the neck—be readin what me frind the out-poken, oft-spoken, janial, tole-ant, truthful an religious Presidin Bear has to say.

There's a thrily great man, the first President we have reasy had that come up to me ide iv what a President ought to be. He's a great lithractor, a great day-finder iv the hearth agin hard coal, the p-o-t-e-i-o-r iv chilblains an croup, the inimy of prickly heat an arniechy. List, will ye, to what Baer the great Baer, Urs Major as Hogan called him, has to say iv the histry iv the wurrd an the ways iv Providence as revealed to him wan day as he was readin the Scripture on the ticket.

Years ago, says Baer, Nature decided that some day, after she'd had a long peerye iv practice an got her hand by makin the stars, the moon, the sun, the stock exchange an other divine wurruk, she'd compose me, he says. It was no asy task, an she had to make a lot iv preparations for me arrival. There mus be wurruk for me to do when I come. At that peeryod the State iv Pennsylvania, which was thin no State at all, was covered over with high thores, an through these primeval forests stalked strange animals an stranger men. Wan day Nature bumped all the three over, knocked them down with her mighty hand.

Why d'ye divastate the land? she was ast. I'm layin it bare fer Baer, says Nature with a jocos smile. Thin she shot thunder an lightning down on the population, an mingled its bones the thores. Gannin fer Baer, she says. An she piled mud an rock on the timbers an washed them with the floods an coked them with fire an left them to cool, an through long enchiries she wait from time to time an patted them an said, Aftee a while a man with whiskers will come along an claim ye. Don't laugh at him. That'll be Baer.

Thin she mannyfactured a lot iv dilute people that had to keep warm or die, an she taught them how to burn hard coal, an thin I come. I call it Nature, he says, but ye know who I mean. I am the agent of Divine Providence—Providence Coal Company, Limited.

HIMROD'S FOR CURE OF ASTHMA NEVER FAILS.

There is not another remedy known to advanced medical science which so speedily relieves the severest paroxysms of Asthma as Himrod's Asthma Cure. For sale by all chemists and druggists.

So Baer agent. It's thrue I haven't made any accountin to me principal, but that'll come later. In the meantime I stand an the ripsintative iv visited iathrests, the champagne iv order an the frind iv the rights iv property. Great in-thrests are at stake, as the Southern lyncher said at the burnin; I'm a wonderful man. An funny, too, he says.

So what are ye goin to do about it? If thim lads any got to own the coal be the same way that I own the part iv this house that ain't got a mortgage on it, an ye own ye'er hat an shoe—because a lot iv fellows come together in the ligsilachoor an decided 'twas a good thing that a man who had shoes an a hat shud keep them—'twud be different. But seen that the Lord fixed it, there's nawthin for us to do but pray. Lave us pray that Hivin will go out iv th coal business an that it won't get into the Beef Thrust. I hate to think iv walkin over to the stock yards to say me prayers.

But I'm with the rights iv property, dye mind. The sacred rights an the divine rights. A man is lucky to have five dollars; if it is ten it is his jooty to keep it if he can; if it's a hundred, his right to it is the right iv self-davine; if it's a millyon, it's a sacred right; if it's more than that it becomes ridiculous. In any case it mus be protected. Nobody mus intherfere with it or down comes' the constiuchoon, the army, a letter from Baer an the wrath iv Hivin.

If I own a house I can do what I please with it. I can set fire to it any time I want, can't I? Ye may have foolish simintims about it, Ye may say, if ye sit fire to ye'er house ye'll burn mine. But that don't mine any cool with me. 'Tis my house, give me in threst be the Lord, an here goes for a boufire. What's that freeman coming down the street for? How dare he squirt wather on me property? Down with the fire department! I've sun gun powdther in me cellar. I'll touch a match to it. I'm uncomfortable in summer. I'll take me clothes off an go for a walk. The sign above th door belongs to me. I'll loosen it so it will fall down on the top iv yer head. Ye want to go to sleep at night. I'm goin to have a brass hand surnade me. I own a gun. I think I'll shoot my property into ye. Git out iv the way fer here comes property drunk an raisin Cain.

An if I'm an Evetalin striber with a stick iv dinnymite I can explode it where an when I will. It happened to go off unther an excursion chrain full iv women an childher. So much the worse fer them, but they must be no restriction on the right iv a man to do what he will with his own. I owned th dinnymite an I wanted to hear a noise. Hurrah fer property rights. Property rights an baby in the base burner! It's a great issue to lay before the American people when the coal gives out.

TWELVE KILLED. Terrible Result of Fire-works Explosion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—With a list of twelve killed and seventy-four injured before him, Coroner Scholer has inaugurated an investigation of the explosion of fireworks in Madison Square last evening. Eight men already have been locked up, charged with criminal neglect, and the coroner has issued a warrant for the arrest of John Diminido, who is alleged to have been in charge of the fireworks.

It is a case of absolute criminal neglect, says the coroner. One of the mortars was set off, and it was pointed at a row of other mortars in a line. It leaned toward the others, which were set off by the fire thrown around them. District attorney Brome, who was not far from the scene of the explosion, hurried to the square, and after investigation ordered the arrest of the men in charge. He had the prisoners taken to police headquarters, together with the unexploded fireworks. Inspector Brooks, of the police department, also ordered the arrest of the manufacturer of the bombs, but he has not been located. The District Attorney said: "Dynamite bombs should not be allowed in a public place. I have no doubt that a permit has been issued for the exhibition, but a rigid investigation will be made. Steps will be taken to prevent anything like this occurring in the future."

Home Ties Bind Us Still.

It's all for a blue eyed girl, That I left fair Nelson's strand, It's all for a witching curl That I'er saw foreign land, My dear! That I'er saw foreign land, My dear! Yes, Aggie from her home has gone And tho'ts are fraught with pain, Though I have parted with my love! Yet O, we'll meet again, My dear! Yet O, we'll meet again.

Ye smiling lakes and verdant trees We left on Nelson's shore, Now I am waiting for the breeze To waft me home once more, My dear! To wait me home once more. Ye babbling brooks and purling streams That shimmer thro' the dell— And waken sweet, responsive dreams, Our peaceful homes, farewell My dear! Our peaceful homes, farewell

When the night winds sigh in Beaubear's glade, When the whip-poor-will's in tune, When the drowsy echo's diviner made By the blushing rosebush bloom My dear! By the blushing rosebush bloom. In wistful thoughts we shall be held As the lumps bespair the river, A million gleamlets are dispelled As the waves move on forever, My dear As the waves move on forever.

For those so dear, we'll fondly pray And they for us the same Till gladly back again some day, We're kindly welcomed home My dear, We're kindly welcomed home O, don't forget our native land, And don't forget our stream! And ne'er forget our school day band In life's swift troubles dream, My dear, In life's swift troubled dream. Though we have faltered in good bye Yet love has blessed the time, Which binds us with a sweet home tie, Brings tears of dear Lang Syne, My dear, Brings tears of dear Lang Syne. AMPHIA.

Just a Little too Late.

His knock on the door of a certain house was answered by a demure little woman, and he felt quite sure of a cold bite as he led off with: Madam, do not think me impertinent, but let me ask if it so happened that you had a son wander away from the family fireside years ago? Yes, I did, she replied, as she opened the door a little farther. He went out into the world and became a wanderer o'er the face of the earth? Yes, he did. Days and weeks and months ran into years and you heard no word of him? You knew not whether he lived or died? As you say, I knew nothing, replied the woman, as she stood in the door and looked fixedly at the tramp. Well, ma'am, he continued, I don't want to raise any false hopes but—but— But you are just a little too late, she finished, as he swallowed the lump in his throat and tried to wipe away a tear. My wandering son returned about two hours ago, and is now taking a soak in the bathtub. Had you called early this morning, you know— Then the situation is filled? It is. Just my luck, ma'am, but of course, you are not to blame, I congratulate you and your wandering son, and will bid you good day and try the family next door.

Twitching of The Nerves

Mrs. Drinkwater, 2 Water Street, Galt, Ont., states:—"My great trouble has been with my nerves. I was very nervous, had twitching of the nerves and could not get to sleep at night. I seemed quite worn out and believing that I needed some medicine began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I can truthfully say that this preparation has proven surprisingly beneficial to me. It has strengthened and steadied my nerves, made me rest and sleep well, and in fact built up the system generally."

In Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is found the ideal tonic for blood and nerves, and through these two mediums every organ in the human system is benefited. The Union Advocate, ESTABLISHED 1867. NEWCASTLE, NOVEMBER 12, 1902.

THE SLAUGHTER OF MOOSE.

The Chatham World of Saturday says that the American sportsmen who visit our game country slaughter moose until they get what they want, that they kill one for themselves, one for their guide, and another for their servant, and that many of these so-called sportsmen are nothing but pot-hunters who sell their trophies for handsome figures on their return to the United States.

In conversation with Game Warden Robinson, that gentleman informed the Advocate that there was not a particle of truth in the statements in the World. He states that in only one instance this season has a sportsman got all the law allows him. He also stated that he knew of only two cases, since he was game warden, where a guide shot a moose for a sportsman and in these two cases the guides presented the head to the gentlemen he was guiding, as a gift.

In another instance he knew of, a cook shot a moose and gave the head to the gentlemen he was with, but did not accept anything for it.

Our guides are surely not so short sighted as the World intimates. Is it not to their interest that they help preserve the game? And as to these gentlemen being pot-hunters, this is simply ridiculous as we can hardly conceive of a shrewd Yankee embarking in such an uncertain enterprise, besides it is a well-known fact that every gentleman who visits our country spends from $600 to $700, so that even if he did take home three heads he would still be out on his transaction.

In our estimation, and we have had many pleasant interviews with hunters, every sportsman who visits the Miramichi is a sportsman in the true sense of the word, and the World's article is a reflection on them which we know will be highly resented. It is also a severe reflection on the guides and wardens which they do not deserve.

The Editor's Mail.

To the Editor of the Union Advocate. Mr. Editor:—The attention of this correspondent has been called to a letter. In fact, two or three letters which lately appeared in the Campbellton Events, over the names of 'A Liberal Elector' and 'Tecumseh' and in all of which appear rather offensive remarks about your regular correspondent from Gloucester. Now Mr. Editor, as the writing of the regular Bathurst correspondent is always read with interest by many in Gloucester, and the only reason, as far as I can see, why those Events' correspondents have become wrathful with him, is because he would not allow them altogether their own way, and, though I very much think that your regular correspondent has the better of the position, I propose with your permission, taking up a few points and discussing them with the correspondents of the Events in a square way.

'Tecumseh', in his last letter, begins by saying "The very fair and manly article which appeared in the last issue of the Events dealing with the Advocate's correspondent &c.," evidently referring to the last letter in Events signed 'A Liberal Elector'.

It is for this that Tecumseh attacks your Bathurst correspondent with the following "And in his frenzy to maintain the dirge-like methods of his political friends, drops his sheep's clothing and exposes his roasting iron to the full gaze of the wondering public."

It is very evident Tecumseh does not believe in the commandment "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor" for it is well known that your Bathurst correspondent from the beginning and always has been opposed to the raising of religious feeling. This position is admitted by Tecumseh who does not question the sincerity of your Bathurst correspondent's article on this question, but because he asked the above question he is now according to Tecumseh, strayed from the path outlined in his previous letters and accuses the Liberal member of Gloucester of being a religious bigot. Nothing of the kind, for the letter of A Liberal Elector which is no doubt inspired or written by Tecumseh is an appeal to religious prejudice, and your Bathurst correspondent's question was a fair and proper one.

Since Tecumseh however has opened this matter up, I myself will repeat the question, asked by your Bathurst correspondent. How many Protestants held office in Gloucester when Mr. Turgeon received a measure of political patronage and how many hold office now? Let Tecumseh answer it if he can. Do not answer it by such silly nonsense as the following. In the onslaught made against Mr. Turgeon it is required to give a fair-mindedness in dealing with all classes in this county is too well known.

I agree with Tecumseh in some of his dealings, with some of the classes in this County are very well known and in some respects too well known. You speak of his firmness and his honesty of a majority of two years ago, May I ask him where does his firmness draw the inspiration and the right to nominate candidates for this county without consulting the electors of the county, giving them an opportunity to express their opinions.

Where did he stand in the opinion of the electors in the election of 1897? Where was his thousand of a majority then? It would be well for Tecumseh to remember that the thousand majority given by the electors of the county two years ago was not given for the personal qualities of the man, but for the principle which was at stake, and it was the friend of Messrs. Burns and Poirier who swelled the majority and whom he is now shamefully abusing and libeling. When he speaks of barrooms, it would be well for him to recollect the past record of one of your scolded candidates, and not forget himself; and at some time remember the injure done to first pluck the mote from his own eye, so that he can more clearly see the beam in his brother's.

If he desires a wash day and is sometimes better than every day, about not be Sunday, and as it is well known who Tecumseh is if he will come out in the open from behind the shield of a non de plane no doubt he can be accommodated.

When he says I refer to the above attack on Mr. Turgeon, merely for the purpose of being the electors of the county, etc., etc., no one will believe Tecumseh for since he has assumed the clothing and assumed the name of a Liberal Elector, he is a well-known fact that every gentleman who visits our country spends from $600 to $700, so that even if he did take home three heads he would still be out on his transaction.

In our estimation, and we have had many pleasant interviews with hunters, every sportsman who visits the Miramichi is a sportsman in the true sense of the word, and the World's article is a reflection on them which we know will be highly resented. It is also a severe reflection on the guides and wardens which they do not deserve.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for the space, I am yours truly, A LIBERAL ELECTOR, who voted for Mr. Turgeon once.

A CONGREGATIONAL SNARL.

Fine Points of Presbyterian Law—A Midnight Session—Peace Prevails once more.

The congregation of St. James' Church has been in something of a snarl of late, but its meetings, while not exactly harmonious have been orderly. The intimation of a local paper, that they were of the latter kind, is highly resented by the congregation.

The trouble is said to have been caused by the attempt of the elders, acting under the inspiration of the former minister, Rev. W. Atkinson, to have their favorite candidate called without giving a chance for others to be heard. They went around with a requisition for Rev. G. Gordon, and got it signed. Most persons will sign also anything when canvassed. It is alleged that the people were assured that there were no other candidates of any account, and that it was Mr. Gordon or nobody.

Then a meeting was convened for the purpose of calling Mr. Gordon, and the requisition was placed in the hands of the moderator, Rev. D. Henderson. He began to get in their perfect work. Mr. Henderson declared the procedure irregular, illegal, and refused to allow the paper to be produced at that stage. The first thing he said, was for the congregation to declare its readiness to proceed to a call which must be done before any name could be mentioned.

A motion was made to the effect that the congregation was not ready to call a minister, and its discussion brought out the fact that there was really no such unanimity of opinion as one would suppose from the long list of names on the paper that had been handed around by the elders. An adjournment for one week was moved, and the moderator declared it out of order, telling that the question before the meeting must first be determined. This was vigorously opposed but the chair adhered to it. The motion not to proceed to call, but to hear more candidates, carried by a large majority after the chairman had announced that he had several applications from ministers who wished to be heard.

The elders did not take kindly to the thwarting of their plans in this way, and gave Mr. Henderson notice that they would not deal with him any more as members of the session.

OBITUARY.

Died suddenly at home in Douglassfield on Saturday morning, Nov. 1st, Mr. John McLeod, in his usual good health and had taken his breakfast in the morning with the other members of his family, after which, while sitting on a chair by the stove he fell over and immediately expired. His death came so quickly, was a very severe shock to his family and many friends. He was a good Christian man in every way and was much esteemed and respected by all who knew him; cheerful and entertaining in company, staunch and trusty in friendship, honest and industrious in business and was ever ready to give aid where it was needed. His loss will long be felt by the people of the community in which he lived.

He leaves a wife, five sons and three daughters. The funeral took place on Tuesday morning, Nov. 4th, at nine o'clock from the residence of his family, Upper Cemetery, Newcastle, followed by a very large procession of sympathizing friends. A Requiem High Mass for the deceased was sung by the Rev. Father Power. The pall-bearers were: John O'Brien, Sylvester Bracken, Edward Hartley, John Hawke, Andrew Irving, Alex. McFarlane. May he rest in peace.

CLARKE & CO.

The Country. An Epitome of Events Gathered by ADVOCATE Reporters

BATHURST.

Another week of cold and disagreeable weather and rain at night. The roads about the country are getting very much broken up and travelling except by train is almost impossible. Everything goes to show that winter is fast approaching. The farmers are getting their fences, barns, water sheds, and all other buildings fixed up as to be ready for the grim season which few except the youngsters in this climate love. As we get older winter seems to come sooner, and we dread it more. When young we looked forward to the skating and sledding, horse races on the ice and all the exhilarating winter sports which make our Canadian winter weather loved by the young folk, but as our bones chill with the rust of years it is not at all the same and we would just as soon have summer all the year around.

Lumbering preparations are being discussed and started all over the North Shore this autumn and fall with a great deal of vigor, and it is expected the cut of spruce and pine logs will be larger than for many years. Parties from the Southern parts of the province driven out of their old workings by the scarcity of logs are moving North and gradually settling along the North Shore. We presume the good prices being paid everywhere for spruce logs has a good deal to do with that. As far as we can learn there is nothing positive about the pulp operations yet, but those who are interested are very sanguine and it is hoped the matter here at Bathurst particularly, will go through on the lines laid out.

The Ladies of Saint George's church were out to-day arranging the necessary preliminaries for their supper and sale which is to take place at the Masonic Hall on Tuesday next. We are informed that Mrs. G. Gilbert and Mrs. D. T. Johnson are to have charge of the fancy tables and Mrs. Hooper is to have the charge for the pretty young girls who induce the young men to buy candy. The ladies have made great preparations for this supper and sale which is their annual one, and a large crowd is expected.

Miss Lena Burns is visiting friends at Halifax and we are glad to learn that Mrs. Thomas Burns is fast recovering from severe injury caused by a fall a short time ago.

Miss Eliza Vail left for Shediac where she proposes spending the winter with her friend Mrs. E. J. Smith. Mrs. Samuel Bishop, who has been quite ill is considerably improved. We are sorry to learn that Rev. T. Varrily received quite a shaking up by the upsetting of his carriage the other day but was able to get out to Mass on Sunday. The many friends of Samuel (Melancon) and family sympathize with them on the loss of their son Charles, who died on Saturday. Charles Melancon was a bright young man, beloved by a large host of friends and up to a few years ago one of the best athletes and base ball players on the North Shore. It is thought, indeed, that the primary cause of his illness was a fall which he received when racing on his bicycle at Campbellton a few years ago.

Mr. Fred Dyke and R. A. Lawlor, Esq., K. C., paid Bathurst a visit last week. The many friends in Bathurst of Mr. William F. Draper, shipper for Malouin Mackay, the lumber king of St. John were glad to see him looking so well after a hard summer's work, when he visited Bathurst on Saturday last. Mr. Draper is one of the many men the North Shore is proud of.

An enjoyable goose supper was held at the home of Mr. Robert Ellis, Salmon Beach, last Wednesday evening. A large number attended from Bathurst. Mr. Wm. Wilbur on Monday night gave a large birthday party at the Wilbur House, about twenty couples danced and enjoyed an excellent supper.

And now we have been wondering if the scientist who wrote to the Campbellton "Events" over so many signatures and the combination behind him think they can wheedle your article into meeting them on their own grounds. Bar rooms and such things. Does he not remember we warned him sometime ago that everything he said recited on his own head, or came back like a boomerang to the heads of those about him and were we not sure of our position, and have too much respect for our readers, we might be tempted to put on the gloves with them for awhile. However we are certain, should we do so that there will be more than "roaring in the air", and some of his friends will get cut.

Why does not this correspondent come out in a fair and manly way and take up any argument he likes with us and at the same time acknowledge that his friends have made a mistake. We only warned them at the time, to let the "Evangelist" correspondent alone, and they refused to take our advice. Are they not sorry now? Now like any other tyro who gets cornered he is attempting to draw a herring across the trail by throwing mud at your correspondent. If he thinks this will take the attention of the editors of Gloucester away from the main issues he is mistaken. We told them before, and now say again that we have nothing whatever to do with the correspondent of the "Evangelist" and his like out of their impugne nose to insinuate that the letters are written by their correspondent, or someone else first in English and then translated. Suppose they are, what do we know about it, but at the same time we say again to the last writer that one of the best French scholars in Gloucester, so far perhaps in the Province, said the last letter in the "Evangelist" was as well written as anything he ever had read and coming direct from the eastern end of the county then he said it had created a great sensation, therefore I warn them again not to despise these matters.

As far as we are concerned when we see anything that will interest the people of this county in print or elsewhere we are going to give it to them and it will take a good deal more abuse than a writer, or writers, of this stamp to prevent that.

Sometimes ago we noticed a writer in "Evangelist" had called the attention of the people of Gloucester to the fact that Mr. Turgeon, in his newspaper the "Courier" had announced the nomination by him, of three candidates for the local legislature, and the question was very properly asked 'who invested Mr. Turgeon or anyone else with authority to nominate three men to represent this county in the local legislature, and particularly, as these men were represented to be friends of the present administration, why were not some at least of the other friends of the present administration called into consultation, or in other words why was not a convention called?

The "Evangelist" correspondent represented that no convention had been called, and furthermore said many of the former friends of Mr. Turgeon would not support any such ticket. It further said that the very personalities of the different candidates named by Mr. Turgeon gave the matter a suspicious appearance. It said if this Mr. Curran was not the same man who had got the present liberal government into trouble by inducing Mr. Turgeon to obtain for him certain contracts of a political character which owing to the way they were filled, caused a commission to be appointed to inquire into the matter and the time may come yet when Mr. Turgeon will have to explain to the electors of this county more about the same matter. It also asked some other questions about Mr. Curran, which the correspondent of the "Evangelist" afterwards went into more fully. If I remember right, the article also mentioned the fact that one of the other men on the ticket was the father-in-law of Mr. Turgeon's son, an old gentleman, we may say who has served a life time of usefulness in his native Parish and is much respected by many, but is a man not at all fitted for politics, besides being too old and would be easily led by the others.

Now because this correspondent called the attention of the English speaking people of the county who do not read the "Courier or Evangelist," he has as stated been attacked in almost venomous way by correspondent after correspondent in the "Events" and the facts are that we have not taken any attention to them because we considered them beneath our notice, as the tone and manner of their letters would have led one used to this kind of thing, to imply, but if we thought they were responsible, or were inspired by any of the leaders of the campaign, we are most confident, an angry lot just now we might give the letters themselves some attention. In one of the letters we noticed that the writer, if we forget his name at the moment, held Mr. Turgeon and his clique as good friends to the Protestant minority in the county, and we threw them a bone to bite which had pepper in it and now they accuse us of religious bigotry and all sorts of things. The fact of the matter, the publication of some letters and the fact that Miss Burns and friends have received so many more from former supporters of Mr. Turgeon, repudiating him and his clique has spoiled their little game and they are getting desperate. It is a well known fact that they thought they owned the county politically, just as a man who has once succeeded is apt to think he can always do it but Mr. Turgeon must remember he was not always on deck and when the wheel comes round again there may be a man who can turn about as quickly as he did, and be sure to be on the winning side. Why do they not answer questions and not try to call the bounds off by a false scent.

WHITNEYVILLE. Mr. John McKendrick of Chatham is the guest of his sister, Mrs. John Forsythe. Miss Annie Johnson of Redbank paid a visit to her aunt, Mrs. David Dunnett, last week. Misses Maggie and Edna Matchett, also of Redbank, visited her in this section quite recently.

Mrs. Peter A. Forsythe, and her little daughter, Minnie, are spending some time at the Renous, where Mr. Forsythe is engaged in bridge building.

Mrs. Edward Dunnett has returned from a pleasant visit to friends in Redbank.

Mrs. Moses Whitney has come to Newcastle, where she intends spending the winter.

Quite a number of the men around are actively engaged in cutting lumber for themselves this season. We wish them every success.

Miss Sophia White of Newcastle paid a visit to friends here last week.

Hallow'een passed with the usual gaiety. Mr. Will Hare, previous to his going up to the lumber woods for the winter, gave a very enjoyable party to his friends. Quite a number were present, and all joined in pronouncing it the best time of the season. Games, music, etc. were the entertaining features of the evening. Refreshments of different kinds were served, and also added to the enjoyment of all.

Mrs. D. McAllister of Redbank is on a visit to her old home here.

Mr. Clifford Bonner, who was quite ill for a few days last week, is now able to be around again.

She died of pneumonia on Oct. 29th, having been sick only a short time. A husband and four children all of whom reside in the west, an aged mother living in two brothers, Alfred of this place and Henry of Clearfield, Pa. and three sisters, Mrs. Peter Menzies also of this place, Mrs. Robert P. Russell of Tomahawk, Wis. and Miss Jeanne of Boston, Mass. survive her.

For a few years after her marriage she resided in Blackville, then in Newmosa, Canada, and in the latter part of her life, New Mexico. Four years ago she revisited the home of her youth, and since has been planning and looking forward to their permanent removal here. But death carried her off in the 40th year of her age. She was of a gentle and lovable disposition and much liked by all who knew her. Much sympathy is expressed for the sorrowing husband, family and friends.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Grand Master Thomas' Interesting Account of Recent Visitations.

To the Editor of the Sentinel: Dear Sir and Bro.,—Having just returned from visiting some of the Orange Lodges in Northumberland County, I thought I would drop you a short account of my visit.

On Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 1st, I boarded the Canada Eastern, and got off at Blackville to visit the lodge at that place. Owing to the number of the members of Blackville Lodge that have already gone to the lumber woods, and the fact that the Master of the lodge did not receive notice of my coming until the evening before, I did not meet with as large a number as I expected. Although the meeting was not large in numbers, it was quite enthusiastic, and appreciated my visit to their lodge, and I trust that the words of advice and encouragement given them will be productive of good results. I had the privilege of examining their lodge books, and found them kept in a very systematic and businesslike manner. The W. M., Bro. Wilbert Conners, expressed the pleasure he felt at my visit, and his regrets that circumstances prevented a larger number from being present. This lodge has a membership of about 75.

The next day I proceeded to Newcastle, and the day following went by steamer to Chatham. I was unable to get a special meeting of the lodge at Chatham on the date I asked for, as the hall was engaged for that night, and the Master wished me to name another date, but my time would not permit me to do so. I was, however, privileged to meet with the Master of the Chatham Lodge, Bro. Edmund Raddock, who introduced me to other members, and all were profuse in their regrets that they could not arrange a meeting for me. Chatham Lodge No. 90 has a membership of 80 or upwards.

On Friday evening, Oct. 3rd, I met with the members of No. 97, Sunderland Lodge No. 47 Newcastle. It was a hearty and enthusiastic meeting. Bro. W. J. Sutherland, W. M., of No. 47, occupied the chair, and seated upon the platform were Bro. Henry W. W. jr., Deputy Grand Master; Rev. A. F. Brown, Past Grand Chaplain; Bro. John Menzies, Hon. Member Grand Lodge, and myself. I had previously been introduced to the lodge by Bro. John Menzies, and welcomed in kind and flattering terms by the W. M. I was then called upon to address the lodge which I endeavored to do to the best of my ability and was pleased to know that my efforts were appreciated. I was followed in turn by Bro. W. W. Brown, Menzies, Williamson, Clark, Russell and others, all of whom gave interesting addresses, and expressed their sincere appreciation of this official visit from their Grand Master. No. 47 has a very active and progressive membership of 100 or upwards, and although they had short notice and a large number of their members are absent from the town, yet it was highly gratifying to me to meet with some 50 upon that occasion. They have plenty of speaking ability among their members, and I regretted that his absence from the town prevented me from making the acquaintance of Bro. Donald Morrison, whose popularity is not confined to the members of his lodge or to the members of the Order, but extends over the whole county. No. 97, Sunderland Lodge, has commenced the erection of a large and commodious Orange hall on one of the principal streets. Its foundation is of freestone, and is about completed, and the hall, when finished, will be a monument to the enterprise of the Orangemen of Newcastle.

I had not the pleasure of meeting with the members of the newly instituted lodge at Indianton, but from inquiry I learned that they were progressing favorably, that they have had several initiations since being instituted, and that they had not only good material in their lodge, but they had also good material in their locality to recruit from, and that already, with commendable energy, they had commenced the erection of a new Orange Hall. There are at present only four lodges in Northumberland County, but there is a move being made to start a fifth, and we hope to hear in the future of many others being instituted, as Northumberland has a large territory and good material to build up the Order with. If any of the brethren from Ontario should decide to visit their brethren in New Brunswick they would receive a right hearty welcome, and should not fail to visit Northumberland County, where they would be well received by the whole-hearted Orangemen of that locality, and they could not fail to be delighted with the beautiful and diversified scenery, with which their country abounds, not to speak of the delight of sailing up or down the beautiful Miramichi river, in the trim little steamers which ply upon its waters, and the many points of interest which are to be seen from their decks, and if they should be lovers of the rod and gun they would probably be nearer a hunter's paradise than ever they were before, as the rivers and tributaries are literally teeming with salmon, bass and trout, and within easy distance from various points along her rivers and tributaries, moose, caribou and deer are abundant, while further north, a few hours' ride by train brings you to the great feeding grounds of the wild geese, ducks and brant. GOODIN, NEWCASTLE. evidence of the excellence of its hunting ground for large game was well evidenced on my return trip. On Saturday, when at almost every station along the route of the Canada Eastern, English and American Sportsmen with their New Brunswick guides were continually boarding the train bringing aboard the trophies of their success, as many as 10 large moose heads, as well as several caribou heads, being brought aboard upon this one trip alone.

In conclusion, I must not fail to express my deep appreciation of the great kindness extended to me by that veteran Orangeman, Bro. John Menzies. Bro. Menzies seemed determined to leave nothing undone to make my visit a pleasant one. Not only did he point out to me all the objects of interest in and about the town, but, with his horse and carriage, drove me some 30 miles or more, first up one side of the north-west branch and down the other, pointing out to me everything of interest. The day was delightfully fine, and, apart from the beauty of the river flowing so placidly below us, the woods that crowned the hills were a thing of beauty, rich in their many hues autumn tints, while along the well kept roads over which our carriage rolled so smoothly lay the comfortable homesteads with their fertile and well cultivated fields, giving me an idea of contentment and prosperity, and leaving in me a desire to see more of Northumberland County in the summer or autumn season.

Fraternally yours, A DUNCAN THOMAS, Grand Master, Sentinel.

ONE LOVE TOO MANY Or THE FUGITIVE BRIDE By F. W. CHAPPELL

CHAPTER XVII. Acting upon the impulse, Bel domed again her hat and close veil, and went hastily down the long flights of stairs and out into the noisy street. She walked slowly along the pavement impressing carefully upon her mind the relative situations of certain signs and buildings, that she might not be lost on her return. At a short distance she found a drug store, where she purchased the cosmetics by whose aid she expected to tear herself completely away from the chance of listening ever again to the dear voice of love. She retraced her steps slowly and wearily enough, for she was faint from long fasting, having eaten nothing since her breakfast at Aunt Maria's the morning before. At first she thought she would complete her disguise at her room in the Collamore House, and then, stealing out at night, make her way to one where she had not been seen. In thinking it all over, however, she remembered, gladly, that no one in the house had seen her face, for she had only appeared with her thick veil tied tightly around her hat and head. She felt relieved that she would not be compelled to wander out in search of new quarters, for aside from the dangers she was aware of, the feet of the ignorant, she clung to the idea of her first shelter, which had begun to assume to her mind something of the character of a home. She bought some cakes at a bakery, and carrying them with her to her room, ate them ravenously, taking care first to seat herself in a position not to be seen either from the transom or keyhole. Afterward, still guarding against the possibility of observation, she prepared her cosmetics, and dried her face, hands, arms, neck, and even gave a pale yellowish hue, which gave her the appearance of a Spaniard or a Portuguese. Then adding a faint touch of rose to her cheeks, she saw herself completely metamorphosed. Her unusual thinness, the change in her complexion, and the short close curls, in place of her former straight and regal locks, gave an entirely different cast to her face, and she knew she was safe from detection. "Charley himself would not recognize me," she said with a sigh, and when the countess scolded she went boldly and confidently down to dinner. Even with her dark skin and wasted cheeks, and in spite of the coarse plainness of her dress, hers was yet a lovely and commanding presence. As she entered the dining room and walked down its length to her seat, there were those who, glancing up, saw and admired her even in the midst of that life and death business germanizing at a hotel dinner. The next day, too restless to take the repose she promised herself, she came home that day, and many following, without having secured it. She began at last to be discouraged, and scarcely knew which way to turn, for her money was going fast, with no prospect of a renewal. One day she appealed to a chambermaid, who had treated her civilly, asking if she could help her to procure employment. The woman stared at her for a moment as if surprised at the question, but seemed willing to assist her. She looked thoughtful and said: "There's my cousin, Mary, who works in the factory. Maybe she might CHAPTER XVII. Bel still struggled at her hard tasks, attending meanwhile with scrupulous exactitude to the details of her disguise. Her hair was cropped, and she went one day to a barber to have it clipped. She seated herself in the chair, and the barber arranged his towels, etc., and took up his comb and scissors. "Short clip, miss, or middling long?" "Short," said Bel. "It's a pity to cut this hair, miss. It's naturally curly." "No," she replied, "it came in so after a fever." "I thought so, miss; that's the reason I said it was a pity to cut it. Didn't you know that them sort of curls don't never last and that if you cut your hair you take out all the curl?" Bel sprang from the chair, the towels still fastened round her neck. "Oh, is it true?" she cried; then I cannot have it cut!" and hastily stripping off the towels, she placed a coin in the man's hand and walked quickly away. The barber looked at the money in his hand. "It's all right," he said, slowly; "this is what I would have earned a cuttin' of her hair, and if she's a mind to take my vallyble information instead of my services, it's no matter to me. She was a nice, lady-like lookin' gal—looked 's if she might 'a seen better days. But they're all alike, the women air. How quick she did jump when she found she was about to spoil her beauty a cuttin' off her curls!" and pocketing the small coin he sat down to await another customer. Bel was devoutly thankful for the barber's volubility, which had saved her curls, that most valuable and convenient part of her disguise, and left her hair alone after that, till by September it lay in heavy and waving masses upon her neck. She lived on her uneventful, silent and laborious life, through the winter, spring and summer, and though many times feeling that this could not last forever, that her strength must some time fail her, yet the force of her habit, she sustained her. She thought that never a ripple would come again to disturb the dead calm of her life, and shutting her eyes to future needs, paid heed only to the present. But just as she was about to be struck by an unexpected moment that the most thrilling shocks come to strike us. She was walking briskly home from her work one night, looking neither to the right nor to the left, absorbed in her own thoughts, when suddenly she was struck by a sound which arrested her steps as if she had upon the instant been turned to stone. It was only a laugh—a light, silver laugh—but it was a sound familiar to her; it was one of the last sounds she remembered on that fatal first of October, it was Dore Valine's laugh! Bel, horror-stricken, looked across the street from whence the sound seemed to proceed. At first she could not fix the locality, but again the peculiar and mocking cadence rang out over the din of the busy street. "It came from a large—red—it might have been a ribbon, or a rose; to Bel's excited imagination it was the blood she herself had shed. The light from within fell upon her bright head, dressed in puffs and curls, and a thousand compeitish little crimps and frizzes. She wore a dress of pale lavender, like that in which Bel had seen her last, and upon her breast was a blotch of red—it might have been a ribbon, or a rose; to Bel's excited imagination it was the blood she herself had shed. The lights from the opposite side of the street fell, softened by distance, upon the figure, revealing faintly, yet with sufficient distinctness, the features of the white and mocking face. It was turned upward, with the same expression of coquetish gaiety as at the instant of Bel's fatal blow. The girl below gazed a moment as if spellbound, and then, with a groan, sank half fainting to the ground. In a short time she rallied, and lifting her head, looked again; but the figure was gone, the window was in darkness. Bel was not unacquainted with superstitions, but her strength was broken by her long struggle, and the sudden horror of the sight had almost paralyzed her. Her heart seemed to stand still, and her breath came in broken gasps. She thought it was death, and fought wildly with her frightful fears. "Some man stopped near, and looked at her curiously as she sat crouched against the wall. "It's a drunk!" remarked one, sententially, and passed on. "You'd better be a movin' on," added another, "for the piece'll soon be a movin' of you." These coarse cautions aroused her, and she got up slowly, staggering alone like a dream. She recalled home, still trembling and faint, and not till after hours of terror and remorse did she find the rest her weakened mind and body so much needed. With the morning returned her better judgment. She reflected that in her utter solitude she had dwelt so constantly upon one theme—the occurrence of that fatal night—that her mind might have become morbid and misused upon that point. She remembered also that she had been thinking of Dore Valine at the very instant of the fatal separation, and at last perceived that it was imagination that had conjured it up.

CHAPTER XVIII. It was in this queer state of mental coma that she sat one day at the noon hour mechanically eating her plain luncheon. The other girls were laughing and chattering, and she read aloud an occasional extract from a paper she had brought wrapped around her sandwiches. "Here's richness!" she cried, suddenly, "here's a jolly sensation for you, girls! Here's a fellow abducting and murdering his own wife an hour after the wedding. He carries her out of a whole roomful of people, and brandishing a knife over her head, dices 'em all to interdice. They stood by, it seems, and saw the deed done, and never arrested him till several months after he did it. But they've took him up at last, and he's now a-lyin' in the county jail, awaitin' trial for his horrid crime." Bel looked up hastily at sound of the familiar name of her county. "The body has never been found," it came from the girl reading, "the circumstantial evidence is strongly against him. Her wedding dress, all covered with blood, has been found in his possession, and the old negro woman, suppose to have been his accomplice, has just been buried by him with distinguished honors, and her hut, which doubtless contained damning evidence, burned by his order. The poor girl whom he had just promised to love and cherish, was never seen after he dragged her shrieking from the altar, her marriage vows still echoing from her lips. It was a horrid and a fearful crime, and it is to be hoped its perpetrator will soon meet the fate he so richly deserves." Bel had begun to tremble—why, she could scarcely have told; but the story, for all its grotesque and impossible details, had something familiar in it. "And what was the brute's name?" asked one of the girls. "Let me see," said the reader; "yes, here it is in the heading: 'Bridal and Heartrending Crime! A Bride Murdered at the Altar. Charles Rupert Marshall, of Marshall House County, Slays—'" A wild shriek broke off the sentence, and Bel, springing forward, caught the paper from the girl's hand. She ran her eager eyes over the paragraph. "My Heaven!" she cried, "it is Charley!" She turned with a sudden glad frankness to the wondering girls. "It is my husband; I am the wife they say he has murdered!" And starting wildly forward, she rushed toward the door, crying under her breath: "Oh, Charley! my Charley! I shall see you again at last!" But the girls, now vastly interested, stopped her with eager questions, while they brought and put on her hat and veil. There was no further need for silence, and with a glad sense of relief, in a few broken sentences she told them freely some portion of her story. But all the while she was struggling toward the door, and they were faint at last to let her go. With earnest good will they bade her Godspeed, and ever thereafter looked upon her as a heroine of the first water. "What'd I thought we had one of them grand, mysterious creatures right here working alongside of us from day to day?" said one of the most imaginative. "Why, it's better than a novel. 'The Children of the Abbey' ain't no where!" And they conned the papers long after in search of the sequel to this, their own proper romance. With the remark that they were eventually rewarded for the diligence of their search we must dismiss these sympathetic daisies from our pages. (To be continued.)

Splitting Headaches

CAN BE STOPPED AND THE CONDITIONS WHICH CAUSE THEM CURED BY FERROZONE.

Poisons accumulate in the blood and spread with it every moment to all parts of the body. The brain becomes congested, the nerves irritated and the result is that awful headache so well known to the female sex.

Most of these poisons are absorbed into the blood from the waste matter that has accumulated in the intestines resulting from indigestion. Matter which should be promptly passed from the system through natural channels.

Ferrozone cleanses the entire intestinal tract, and the liver and kidneys as well. It cures constipation and its many attendant evils. It makes the body strong and the blood pure, induces natural sleep, and enables one to eat and drink anything at any time without risk of headache, nervousness or skin eruptions.

Ferrozone is nature's own remedy for headaches. It is a lasting potent tonic and the greatest health maker the world has ever seen. It masters all female derangements, and restores weak, sickly women to a healthy vigorous condition of mind and body.

No other remedy so effectually meets the requirements of a health giving tonic and regulator as Ferrozone. Every woman and growing girl can derive marvelous benefit from its regular use, and if you suffer from Chlorosis, Anæmia, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Poor Appetite, Nervousness or female disorders of any kind, you can make no mistake in selecting Ferrozone for a cure.

Every reliable druggist recommends and sells Ferrozone for 50 cents a box. Be sure you get the genuine article, and refuse a substitute. Remember the name and insist on only Ferrozone. Sent to your address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE DAY OF MIRACLES

is past, but many who are cured of iching, itching or prurient piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment look upon their recovery as next thing to miraculous. It is the standard, the world over and the only guaranteed cure for piles.

PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND

Makes Permanent Cures In Chronic and Complicated Cases of Rheumatism.

IT GIVES NEW LIFE TO HELP-LESS AND CRIPPLED MEN AND WOMEN.

Professor Edward E. Phelps, M.D., L.D., has given to his profession a positive and permanent cure for all forms of rheumatism now so common in the autumn season. To the rheumatic, this truth should prove encouraging and comforting. Men and women suffering intense agonies from a disease that frequently stiffens the joints, cripples the limbs and renders its victims helpless, can be restored to activity, vigor and health if Paine's Celery Compound be used for a few weeks. There is every reason why sufferers should pin their faith to the best of medicines. Your friends and neighbor have used it with success; the honest physician is prescribing it every day in cases where all other means have failed, and they are delighted with the grand results. It is your only hope; your safety and life depend upon its use. Mrs. M. McKillop, Campbellford, Ont., writes about her cure as follows:

"I was suffering from rheumatism for a long time and endured great pain. The course in the palms of the hands were drawn up in knots, and I despaired of getting relief. After using Paine's Celery Compound, I have banished all my pains and troubles, and find myself strengthened in every way. I think Paine's Celery Compound is the best medicine in the world for rheumatism and all nervous complaints."

My dear, said the poet sternly, I've just sold a love song, but—

Gentlemen,—In June '98 I had my hand and wrist bitten and mangled by a vicious horse. I suffered greatly for several days and the tooth cuts refused to heal until your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I began using, and the effect was magical. In five hours the pain had ceased, and in two weeks the wounds had completely healed and my hand and arm were as well as ever.

The Croup. Any of the children ever have it? Then you will never forget it, will you? Don't let it go until midnight again, but begin treatment during the evening, when that dry, hollow, barking cough first begins. Get out your Vapo-Cresolene (for you surely keep this in the house), put some Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp beneath, and let the child breathe-in the quieting, soothing, healing vapor. There will be no croup that night. If it's midnight, and the croup is on, inhaling the vapor will break the spasm and bring prompt relief. For asthma, bronchitis, sore throat, coughs and colds, it is a prompt and pleasant cure, while for whooping-cough it is a perfect specific. Your doctor knows, ask him about it. Vapo-Cresolene CURES WHILE YOU SLEEP.
