BAD NEWS FROM TURKEY. Constantinople, Nov. 11.-The news from the provinces today is decidedly bad. Advices from Sivsa tell of the massacres and pillage of Armenian villiages in that province and the need of military reinforcements is being strongly felt. Shakir Pasha has gone to Khnouss in order to arrests the Kurds' movements. A rising of the Britain Is Equal in War or Druses is reported from Damascus, in Syria, and all the redifs of the army corps stationed at Damascus and Erzingjan are being mobilized. News of like importance comes from other points, and everything tends to confirm the statement that anarchy prevails throughout Asiatic Turkey.

SHUTTING OUT SHEEP. London, Nov. 11.-Stronger pressure than ever is being brought to bear on the Government to prohibit the free importation of American and Canadian sheep on the ground of the rapid spread of scab. Interested agricultural organs assert that 1,550 Canadian sheep that were offered for sale in London on Tuesday were not allowed to enter the market, the inspectors sending the lot to Deptford to be slaughtered. At the same time 1,130 sheep from the United States were allowed to escape, though recently four cargoes from America that were landed at Livermeaning of these statements is obvious. Berthelot announced that the annual cruise of a division of the French Mediterranean fleet to the Levant will view of the situation of aflairs in Turkey. The division, therefore, will start immediately for the Levant.

London, Nov. 11.-Dispatches received tonight state that both the French and Italian Mediterranean fleets have been ordered to proceed at once to Turkish waters.

REBELLION IN CHIINA.

London, Nov. 11 .- Special dispatches received here from Shanghai say that the rebel Dungans in the northwest of China are mostly armed with rifles of Russian manufacture. It is added that their leader, maintaining iron discipline among his followers, accords foreigners benevolent protection. He has sent a sort of ultimatum to the Imperial Govadvance upon Pekin should the answer prove unfavorable.

The rebels are now said to number over 60,000 men, and the imperial forces cesses in the territory under their conare said to be littered with the corpses of men, women and children.

The other eye is affected, but hopes are entertained be called a victory, Lord Salisbury declared, because he had given the British all they wanted. There had been an impression abroad that he himself had added a demand to those made in May, requiring something in the nature of an international commission. That was a great mistake. He had never added to the demands. He did offer as substitute demands as a it may be saved.

It is said that Princess Maud of end, that, if it was preferred, the preswales, who is betrothed to Prince ent Mohammedan machinery should continue and be supervised by a mixed commission. Sultan preferred the other proposal, and this naturally fell to the ground.

The reason that he preferred to be rid of his proposal to substitute Christian for Moslem officers was his great horror of the powers appearing in these cases as partisans of one religion rather than of another. That would be exceedingly dangerous. He remarked that the Queen of Great Britain rules over more Mohammedans than the Sultan, and that the British Government would have been neglecting its duty if it allowed itself to appear as a religious partisan in governing so vast an empire.

Continuing, Lord Salisbury said: "I erty. But will they be carried out?

Business closed here Saturday and on the continent as well with every-body's thoughts turned toward the Guildhall, where by a dramatic chance Lord Salisbury made a speech in the very middle of a more critical financial and political situation than any that the old world has experienced since 1878. It can hardly be should have been glad if our proposals said that Salisbury was reassuring. should have been glad if our proposals could have divested the negotiations of any appearance of partiality, and an exceptional length, but with a could have assured our Moslem fellow subjects, who are among the most loyal and orderly subjects of the Queen, that they may rely on the Imperial Government being absolutely phrase that England was equal alike imperial. But will they be carried out?

"If the Sultan can be persuaded to give justice to the Armenians it will not signify what the exact nature of the undertaking may be. If he will not heartily resolve to do justice to the artily resolve to do justice to the more complexed than has been supposed. The Guildhall party broke up with the impression that nothing had been said to arrest the panic in the city on Monday or to alter the general conviction that The most ingenious constitution them the most ingenious constitution that can be framed will not avail to parently it is regarded by the Premier as injudicious to refer to alliances, but through the Sultan can any real, permanent blessings be conferred on his Austria and Italy are solidly with

England, and German assistance is not despaired of. The Morning Post says: It is difficult to discern that Lord Salisbury considers that the period of the Sultan's probation has expired. The patience and trust of the signers of the treaty of Berlin are exhausted. The Ottoman Empire may continue, but the doom of its present Government has beer sealed by the folly of the Sultan and his servants. The Daily News (Liberal) cordial! approves of the speech. "His words, says, "will help to alleviate the panic that on Saturday agitated the money markets of the continent He Lord James of Hereford, the Chan-cellor of the Exchequor, the president of the Board of Trade and the presi-sistent and constant mis-government evidently does not believe that there Europe are numbered. On the question of how the Ottoman dynasty will ily admit that it is quite possible that fall and what will replace it Lord Salisbury does not enlighten us.'

The Times says Lord Salisbury showed the world that the six powers ernment is generally outlined. Lord salisbury began his address by saying that when he last spoke in Lord will bring the highest one on earth to that the six powers are resolved to act together in all that the six powers are resolved to act together are resolved to act t that lies the import of the speech to the Turk."

Mr. Isaac N. Ford cables this comment on Lord Salisbury's speech at the Lord Mayor's banquet: "The natural inference from this speech would be that England and Russia are not likely to come into conflict in connection with China, and that Lord Salistendom it was necessary that she bury is straining every effort to proshould stand. The danger is that if mote harmony of action among the powers at Constantinople, and is warning the Sultan that submission to the en its territory. The naval to other nations, involving all that is preparations of England and France for strenghening their fleets in Turkish waters point to the same conclusion. Lord Salisbury's speech tends to minimize rather than to increase the European alarm. Mr. Blakely Hall cables: "Lord Salisbury spoke under an evident sense of the responsibility on him, and his manner showed more than his words that his message was not one of encouragement. His reference to the far east was brief, but ominous. He peace had now been secured, but trusted that whatever took place there it not be viewed with unneceswould sary disturbance and alarm. Whatever might happen in that region, be it in the way of war or commerce, he believed Great Britain would be equal to any competition. Many described it as the gloomiest public address ever delivered by a British Prime Minister

The papers in Paris regard Lord Salisbury's speech favorably The Journal des Debats says that in view of the reports of the dispatch of squadrons to the Levant and the holding of a European conference on the Turkish question the British Prime Minister's declarations are just what are wanted to reassure the Republic. It shows that there is no conflict of the interests of the powers. The Temps says the collective action in regard to Turkey is the only possible line of conduct. The case brought by James Payne, of Port Stanley, to abolish the tolls on London and Port Stanley gravel road, has entered upon a new phase. The solicitor for the lessees of the gravel road recently obtained leave from the court at Toronto to serve what is called a third party notice on the corporation of the county of Elgin. Mr. James M. Glenn, solicitor for the county, made an application to set aside this order and notice, and the master gave judgment dismissing Mr. Glenn's motion with costs to the defendants as between them and the third parties. The corporation of El-gin will accordingly have to defend the suit as well as the defendants.

INGERSOLL.

Ingersoll, Nov. 9.-The "geographical" social held in St. Paul's Church on Thursday evening was a decided success. A great number of young people gathered, and many and ingenious were the representations of places shown, all of which were guessed by at least person among those present before the close. Altogether, the young people enjoyed an evening they will not likely soon forget. Miss Barra-clough gave a song, and when encored returned and rendered "The Holy City" in a most pleasing manner. Miss Al-derson gave two recitations which derson gave two recitations, which were heartily received. The many friends of Mrs. M. McNeil will be pleased to learn that, after a severe illness of over a month, she is now getting around again, although not yet fully restored to health.

Chatham Man Appointed Judge, and Then Beaten Out of it-What Chapleau Demands.

It is now semi-officially announced that the "Governor-General will be back at Rideau Hall within a fortnight, the six bye-elections in Ontario and Quebec will be fixed as to their dates, the vacancies in the Senate will be filled, and Parliament will in all probability be in session within 40

(three grains) of caffein is sufficient to Unfortunately the district of Nipissing called for only one judge, and consequently both orders-in-council could not remain in force. Sir Frank Smith must have been present when the first order was passed and absent when the second one was put through."

Mr. Chapleau does not believe in the Bowell Ministry, and he would dissolve it and form another as the only chance of carrying the general elections. He has communicated his views to the Government, and in reply Sir Mackenzie Bowell went to Montreal and met Mr. Chapleau on Thursday. Mr. Chapleau insists on a reorganization of the Ministry if he has anything to do with it. Mr. Ouimet would have to go. Mr. Clarke Wallace would be required to pledge his support to remedial legislation, and in default receive his walking ticket. Premier Bowell himself must give a pledge to resign immediately after the approaching session. These are reasons why it is improbable that Mr. Chapleau will come to the rescue.

It is understood that either Mr. Angers or Mr. Perrault, advocate, of Murray Bay, will be the Liberal candidate for Charlevoix for the vacant Federal seat. The Conservative nominee is not known yet.

Are Coffee and Tea Injurious? If a vote of the physicians is to be taken, the ayes will have it. Such at least is the opinion of Modern Medicine

(August), which goes on to tell how and why they are injurious. The pepsin and the peptone are the victims in the case. We quote as follows: "There is at the present time a pretty general consensus of opinion among physicians as to the unhealthful char-

Both these substances contain tannin in abundant quantity. is well known that tannin acid precipitates both the pepsin and the peptone in the stomach fluid, and sequently is antagonistic to peptic di-It is probable, however, that few physicians are fully awake to the great prevalence of tea and coffee poisoning among chronic invalids. Not a few sufferers from chronic nervous headaches recover almost immediately when they discontinue the use of tea and coffee. The writer has demonstrated this in some hundreds of cases, and The caffein contained in portions of the tea leaf Brinton has shown that tea and coffee Mr. John Snowden and Miss Sarah the Cabinet decided to appoint the diminish the activity of the peptic Jane Bean, of McGillivary, were mar- Irish Catholic barrister from Chatham, glands. Wolff has shown that even so diminish the total acidity of the gastric juice, even when the stomach is in full activity, at the same time diminishing the secretion of hydrochloric acid and the formation of peptones.
This small amount of caffein is frequently surpassed by habitual users of coffee. Roberts has more recently shown that tea and coffee are, in the highest degree, inimical to starch digestion, completely neutralizing, when present in very small proportion, the action of the saliva upon starch, whereby starch is converted into maltose. Is it not the duty of the physician who becomes acquainted with these facts to place them before his patients in so emphatic a manner as to produce the discontinuance of tea and coffee, which must be classed with tobacco and alcohol, as among the most potent of the widely operating causes of disease which prevail in modern times among civilized people?" THE HEALTHINESS OF YAWNING.

A celebrated Belgian physician says that yawning is an exceedingly healthy function generally, besides having a very salutary effect in complaints of the pharynx and eustachian tubes. According to the results of late investigations, yawning is the most natural form of respiratory exercise, bringing into action all the respiratory muscles of the chest and neck. It is recommended ment steamer Aberdeen arrived at that every person should have a good Gaspe Saturday morning having in tow yawn, with stretching of the limbs, morning and evening, for the purpose of ventilating the lungs and tonifying the muscles of respiration. He makes his patients yawn either by suggestion, imitation, or by a series of full breaths with the lips partly closed. The yawning is repeated six or eight times, and should be followed by swallowing. By this means the air and mucus in the eustachian tubes are aspirated.

Some of the neatest and most tasteafternoon, wandering about on that most disconsolate of errands-looking for a wedding present for a very dear, very spoilt young lady, who has everything in the world her heart can desire. Fate directed my steps toward the store of Fitzgerald & Scandrett, and I just ran in a moment to see what the crowd of ladies meant, and there my eyes fell upon the chafing dish. What relief! Nothing could be more suitable or useful or picturesque. Perish the thought of butter coolers, silver waiters and five o'clock tea sets. Finding myself upon the spot, I lingered awhile to nibble doughnuts and Saratoga chips, "Cottolened," and listen to the teacher from the Baltimore Cooking School, who was preparing a delicious cream sweetbread and instructing the little crowd of ladies about into the intricactes of the wonderful chafing dish, which, after all, is only remarkable because it is so simple.

An eminent planist, having suffered much from the irrepressible conversation of drawing-room audiences, devised the other day a means of giving a lesson to the town. He arranged with his violin, his violoncello and the rest, that the music should come to a sudden stop in the midst of the loudest passage of the piece, at a given signal from him. It was done. The bawling and shouting voices were left, in the twinkling of an eye, high and dry, as it were, upon a shore of silence. Joyous, clear and distinct above them all, arose from the foremost seat, the voice of a lady. And these words were ringing upon the startled air: "We always fry ours in lard."-Exchange.

"If you have any last wish," said the clergyman to the convicted man in the electric chair, "tell me, and I will try to carry it out." "Yes," replied the poor wretch, "I want to learn to play the piano."-Boston Post.

The prettiest way to arrange your hair? Especially if it is very long, very thick, and a most beautiful color, yet cannot be worn hanging down in braids, because you are too tall for anything so childish, nor fastened up in a graceful Psyche knot at the back of the head, quite near the neck, because it is too heavy, and comes tumbling down at inconvenient seasons. Lovely hair, but an embarrassment of riches, is it not?

If it were my hair, and I were the dear young girl who finds it a bother and a burden, I would coil it on top of my head and wear it like a crown. I wouldn't mind its having the effect of making me look taller, and I would stand up very straight, and look as tall as I could. In my opinion height is a beauty, and I never care about a giri being tall, except to admire her. Tall girls must mind that they carry themselves well, and do not stoop nor crane their heads forward as if they had lost something and were perpetually looking for it. You remember Tennyson's picture, do you not, a word picture such as only a poet could paint:

"A daughter of the gods, Divinely tall, and most divinely fair.'

If the coronal effect were unbecoming, or gave a feeling of weight on top of my head, then I would braid the hair in several strands, and mass it all over the back of the head. I would simply part it in the middle, and avoid fringes, and bangs, and little curls, crimps, and other attempts at decoration in front. When hair has a natural wave or ripple it is very pretty, and should have its way, but straight hair is pretty, too, and girls should be satisfied to wear their hair in the style nature intended for them.

Over in Italy and Spain the hands and the upper lips give women their first claim to admiration and flattery. An Italian looks for a hand, large, it may be, but with long, taper fingers and a soft, rosy palm.

"Your soft hand is a woman in itself," says one of their poet painters to one he loves, and perhaps was quite content that her face seemed but passably fair. That pointed, velvet hand is subtle, soothing, sympathetic, capable of clasping a dagger or quieting great pain, and the Spaniard, a person of spirit, like the signs of hot temperament showed in the woman with down on her upper lip.

ful costumes of this season are tailor made, and for them there is a revival of two old details. One is the strap seams and the other the cunning little postilion back. The tailor suits are made alike of smooth and rough surfaced goods. The smooth materials generally used comprise cheviot, tweed, kersey, covert suitings, serge, cravanette and fine broadcloth. The smooth ones only have the lapped strap seams. The woolly goods are made with smooth pressed seams. Hussar trimming and straps with buttons are seen very often, tailor suit had a plain round skirt, not in the English language. It is as folreaching the ground by an inch. The lows: sleeves were medium gigots, with two buttons at the wrist. The basque was cut with a center piece forming the middle of the postilion. The side gores were cut separate from the rest of the postilion to insure a perfect fit. The front part had one dart each side and a centerpeice fitting the outline and narrowing to a point in The old man asked the three, front, extending below the waist in the little strap points, simulating a vest. The basque was formed by two pieces of the cloth cut to fit and neatly stitched. Across the fronts were 12 straps, six on each side, and three rows of buttons, the center row put an inch and a half below the others, both straps buttoned to the center The old man laughed and sang a song, line of buttons which brought the strap to a becoming series of points. A stylish military cape of the same material was prepared to wear with this, the same idea in strap trimming being carried out. In rough cheviot boucle, in mixture of several dull colors, there was another model costume for a tailor suit. The skirt was laid in two flat folds each side of the front breadth. This was stitched down from the outside, and at the left hip it extended out into a sharp lap, with two enormous buttons. In the back the skirt was laid in two box plaits. The sleeves were drooping leg o' mutton shape. The basque was double breasted and closed invisibly save for two buttons at the shoulder like those at the skirt. It was pointed in front and had a postilion at the back, finished with a little soutache braid and two buttons like the others, but smaller. With this gown there was a short cape of rough plaid with high boucle curls in each plaid. Four large buttons and two pointed straps held it across the chest. I think it is safe to say that 19 out of 20 tailor suits will have postilion backs. Some are like these, very small and plain; others are 10 and 12 inches long and about six wide, with rows of small buttons and loops of soutache braid. They are neat and yet very dressy.

The Louis XVI. costumes are certainly growing in favor and are as certainly pretty, but one hardly feels like taking them seriously. There is something too finicky and frivolous about them, but folk are going to wear them.

A very handsome gown after this kind was made by a leading house this week. The skirt was of ashes of roses satin rhadames, in the circular style. The bottom was scalloped and bound with velvet of the same shade—a very neat piece of work it was too. The vest was of silver gray silk mull, with a row of point lace down each side. There was a cunning little cutaway of rich satin brocade, gray ground, with superb crimson roses and A Remarkable Cure of Diabetes in foliage for pattern. On each side were three chased gold buttons, and for a collar there was a wreath of roses, shaded from pale pink to crimson. With this went a silver gray pressed plush flat hat. Around this was a wreath of large roses, and on the crown were three large black plumes. I see that rhadames is to be the leading winter silk. Its superb texture and rich appearance ought to make it popular, particularly for those gowns all of one material. It is far heavier than the grosse faille, or even satin duchesse. It is shown in all the newest colorings. It will stand alone when folded. I note that fur will be largely use to trim handsome home gowns, ivory white having brown or black fur upon it. The effect is very rich and becoming. Fashion says that there will be much ivory and mat white worn for nice occasions in silk, satin, moire and velvet. One may think white velvet until you see one edged with Alaska sable and strewn with fine cut jet beading and fringe before you express an opinion.

The stock collar with its wings, bows, loops and rosettes is back again and to stay all winter without doubt. Shoes are longer, narrower and more pointed than they were. Some are laced and some are buttoned. Slippers are too various to mention.

Photographing Under Water. The progress of photography under the sea, by means of the newly devised magnesium light-a marvel of ingenuitymay justly be described as something wonderful, though the timing of the exposure is said to still present one of the most serious difficulties yet to be overcome. It is stated with reference to this important point that thus far in the process an exposure of ten minutes at a depth of three to four feet will give good results. At a depth, however, of fifteen to eighteen feet an exposure is said to be required of not less than thirty minutes when the sun is brightest, though even at this depth it becomes necessary to apply a plate of blue glass in front of the lens in order to obtain pictures that are really clear, while in deeper regions photography would, it is declared, be impossible but for this improved device. It not only saves time and trouble, but good pictures, it is said, have been taken during storms and without appreciable light from above.—New York THE DEAD POET.

Two of the Sweetest Pieces Which Eugene Field Wrote.

To place all the representative poems of Eugene Field in the columns of a newspaper would overtax its limits, for there are scores of them that are each representative of a phase of his versatile genius. But admittedly his characteristic poems of childhood and his quaintly humorous verses are the two types which will make his exquisite fancy an everlasting heritage of the language. One of the most popular of his verses is "Little Boy Blue." The death of one of his children was the occasion for the writing of it. It is as follows:

LITTLE BOY BLUE. The little toy dog is covered with dust, But sturdy and staunch he stands; And the little toy soldier is red with

And his musket moulds in his hands. Time was when the little toy dog was And the soldier was passing fair,

And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue Kissed them and put them there.

"Now don't you go till I come," he said. "And don't you make any noise!" So toddling off to his trundle bed He dreamt of the pretty toys.

And as he was dreaming an angel song Awakened our Little Boy Blue-Oh, the years are many, the years are

But the little toy friends are true. Aye, faithful to Little Box Blue they stand,

Each in the same old place, Awaiting the touch of a little hand, The smile of a little face. And they wonder, as waiting these long years through,

In the dust of that little chair, What has become of our Little Boy Blue Since he kissed them and put them there. No less an authority than Andrew Lang has pronounced the poem, "Wynken, Blynken and Nod," one of the done in thick castle braid. A very stylish best, if not the very best, child poem

> WYNKEN, BLYNKEN AND NOD. Wynken, Blynken and Nod one night Sailed off in a wooden shoe Sailed on a river of cystal light Into a sea of dew;

Where are you going and what do you wish?"

We have come to fish for the herringfish

That live in the beautiful sea; Nets of silver and gold have we; Said Wynken, Blynken And Nod.

As they rocked in the wooden shoe, And the wind that sped them all night

Ruffled the waves of dew. The little stars were the herring-fish That lived in that beautiful sea; "Now cast your net wherever wish-Never afeared are we." So cried the stars to the fishermen three-

Wynken, And Nod.

Blynken

All night long their nets they threw To the stars in twinkling foam-Then down from the skies came the wooden shoes,

'Twas all so pretty a sail it seemed As if it could not be, And some folks thought 'twas a dream they'd dreamed Of sailing that beautiful sea; But I shall name you the fishermen Wynken,

And Nod. Wynken and Blynken are two little And Nod is a little head,

And the wooden shoes that sailed the skies Is a wee one's trundle bed;

So shut your eyes while mother sings Of wonderful sights that be, And you shall see the beautiful things you rock in the misty sea, Where the old shoe rocked the fishermen three-

Wynken, Blynken, And Nod.

Never Ill Before in His Life-Runs Down Thirty-One Pounds in Five Weeks -Is Given Up-Takes Dodd's Kidney Pills and is Cured.

The Dodds Medicine Company,

Moronto, Oct. 12, 1895. Gentlemen,-I am 62 years old, past, and up to last June had never had a day's sickness in my life. It was then I began to feel distress in my back, suffered great thirst, had ravenous appetite, a dry mouth and coated tongue. I ran down in several weeks from 149 pounds to 118. My eyewould not make an effective gown. Wait | sight began to fail and for the first time in my life I had to look for a doctor. I also had to quit work, which I was never able to resume until cured by your Dodd's Kidney

I consulted two doctors and was treated by them for diabetes. The other concurred as to the nature of my disease, also pronouncing it diabetes, and said that I was firmly in its power.

Instead of going on with doctors' treatment, however, I had read of cnres affected by Dodd's Kidney Pills in cases I considered similar to my own, and decided to try

After a few doses I experienced the first relief from the constant misery, the scalding, and the frequent desire to urinate. I kept on using from one to two pills a day until I had used two boxes, and completely recovered my health in about seven weeks. I am perfectly cured, am working as usual at my business, and have no occasion to take any more medicine.

For the sake of others and in justice to your greatenedicine, allow me to add my testimony to your list of cures, and remain, yours gratefully,

JOSHUA CLARKSON,

Revival of the Lord Mayor's Show--A Snub for Great Britain -- The Sultan's Deposition Suggested.

Dilemma of the Honorable Dudley Marjoribanks -Southampton's Shipping Interests Threatened.

THE TURKISH CRISIS. points to the fact that the affairs of ment of Turkey or the deposition of the by the Sultan's promises, which are never intended to be kept. The final stage of the diplomatic pressure was the Sultan. The next step will un-doubtedly be a conference of the representatives of the great powers, which will discuss not merely the administration of Armenia, but the fate of the Turkish Empire. The powers are in complete unison, and this fact is greeted everywhere, except at the Yildiz Klosk; for the Sultan, in appointing the Halil Rifat Cabinet, composed of puppets and reactionists, is simply courting ruin.

SNUB TO GREAT BRITAIN. It is learned from Constantinople significant. It is not only an open and ticularly, as in addition to the decoration bestowed upon Bahri Pasha, the Official Gazette publishes a long list of the names of Turkish officials in Armenia who have been decorated by the Sultan for their "good services." fact, it almost seems as if the Sultan is openly defying the powers.

KIAMIL PASHA'S DISMISSAL. It has transpired that the dismissal of Kiamil Pasha from the post of Grand Vizier was due to the Sultan objecting to his policy of conciliation colonies, cars showing the ancient rites towards Armenia. Kiamil Pasha left the Cabinet Council on Wednesday Leather Sellers, the Guild of Goldlast, before the conclusion of the meet- smiths, Mercers, Fishmongers, Grocers, ing, and the presidency was then as- Merchant Tailors, Ironmongers, Skinsumed by Hali Rifat. A GREAT STRIKE. There is still the great shipbuilding livery. strike at Belfast and on the Clyde to trouble the British mind. This struggle between capital and labor is now fairly under way. On the Clyde 4,000 engineers are idle and 1,500 are out of work at Belfast. The engineers' society reded by their band; boys from the Gordplied by calling out, on Thursday, all work in the yards, sympathizing with the Belfast masters. The result is that nine big yards on the Clyde are idle, including the Barclays, Inglis, Mayor, is immensly popular and the idle, including the Barclays, Inglis, Hendersons, J. & G. Thompson and the Fairfield company. There is little sign today on the men's side of yielding. tion in They claim that they can hold out for casion. ten years if necessary, as the society has $1,000,000 in funds, and by a levy of sixpence (12 cents) weekly on each member, the officers of the society can anger is felt towards the Sultan, due 15, when Prince Karl of Denmark, as the strike lasts.

One important feature of the struggle, however, is the fact that two yards —the Thompsons and the Fairfields—which closed in sympathy with the Belfast employes, have Government work, which they wished to expedite. This work is now at a standstill, and many of the newspapers strongly denounce the agreement which so interferes with the naval work. The St. James' Gazette vigorously protests against this stoppage of work, and says that the action of the firms in so doing out of smypathy, when they urgent national work on hand, would in certain circumstances amount to high treason, adding that the Government would do well to prohibit such agreements. The important announcement is now made that three of the Clyde firms have decided to withdraw from the combination and open their yards, and it is rumored that others will follow their example. It is also stated in Belfast that the masters there have received a forcible intimation from the Government that it is extremely desirable that their dispute with their employes should be mediated as soon as possible in order to avert a prolonged struggle.

A GHASTLY OBJECT.

The mystery of Cromwell's head supposed to have been found, transfixed by a pike-head and discolored by smoke, after having been preserved in spirits, was hidden up a chimney and exhibited in a show, is still attracting much attention, and it is probable that a committee will be appointed to investigate and report upon the authenticity of the remains of the great Protector. The Chronicle yesterday published a page history of the travels of the relic, with a careful drawing of the head, as it now appears—a ghastly object, with the dry skin still clinging to the chestnut hair of the scalp, and with a sprinkling of the same colored hair on the chin and under lip, which is regarded as additional proof of the authenticity of the head, as Cromwell refused to shave for some weeks be-fore his death. The halberd end, or pike-head, pierces the head right from the neck to the top of the skull, and close to the bridge of the nose there is a mark resembling Cromwell's historic

GUARDING THE SULTAN.

A Constantinople dispatch says: Great give the strikers £1 ($5) weekly as long to his choice of Ministers. It was thought that possibly an attempt might be made on the life of his Majesty as he went from the palace to the mosque to take part in the ceremony known as the selamik The large number of guards who keep the route when the Sultan goes to the mosque to offer his prayers, was greatly increased and a close watch was kept on every side for suspicious characters by the police and gendarmes. There is no doubt that the empire is passing through one of most critical periods that has threatened it for years. The heir to the throne has no better policy than the Sultan, so no advantage would be gained by deposing the latter in favor of the former. The Young Turkey party aim at the removal of both, and the substitution in the place of Reshad Effendi, the heir to the throne-a healthy-minded agriculturist who dislikes intrigues.

A GERMAN VIEW. The correspondent of the Tageblatt in Constantinople telegraphs to his paper that he is in a position to affirm that no warlike complications are likely to arise from the Armenian Friedrichsruhe say that Prince Behind the soothing semiofficial assertions remains a combination of unexplained facts suggesting that it is the intention of Germany to play the part of the honest broker in the matter The principal one of these facts is the action of Count Goluchowski, the Austrian Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in first making overtures to Lord Salisbury, calling attention to the fact that it would greatly strengthen the position of England if the Triple Alliance should be taken into the alliance of powers on the Turkish question, on condition that Austria would institute operations, if required, to protect the Macedonian population, Austria's geographical position enabling her to do so at a moment's notice. sent of the English Premier to this virtual proposal was obtained under Lord Salisbury's conviction that England would require a strong backing against the coalition of Russia and SOUTHAMPTON ALARMED. The announcement that the Hamburg-American steamers propose to call at Plymouth has caused a great agitation in Southampton. The people have been so busily occupied with efforts directed to the knocking out of Liverpool that they never gave a thought to the possibility of having a rival on the southern coast. The local press is relieving its feelings by comically violent abuse of Plymouth's natural inferiority, and setting forth Southampton's manifold advantages. Meanwhile the Plymouth people appear to be awakening to the fact that they have not made near enough of their position and merits as a port, and it looks as though they would soon set at work and make a bold bid for the North German Lloyds and even the American liners. They will have to fight the Southwestern Railroad, which, having spent millions on Southamp-ton, naturally do not desire a rival further south; but the Great Western also runs to Plymouth, and ought to be glad to compete with its energetic rival.

EXPENSIVE AMERICAN SHIPS. The English newspapers are circulating the report that it cost 20 per cent, or $1,000,000 more, to build the steamers St. Louis and St. Paul in America than the price of the New York and Paris, built in this country. Probably the Messrs. Camp will be able to rebut this statement.

She is now suing for damages for her blighted prospects and depreciated value in the matrimonial market. The figure at which these things are appraised is said to be $50,-000. For a time a compromise seemed probable, but the lady held out for a sum which Lord Tweedmouth regarded as exorbitant and indignantly refused to pay, although he is an enormously wealthy man.

The youthful defendant does not deny a flirtation more or less mild. Indeed, he could not well do so, seeing that for months, while the fever lasted, he pretty well lived at the Gaiety Theater, and six nights a week escort ed Birdie home to her parental nest; but he denies most emphatically that he ever promised marriage, and his lawyers, by way of additional precaution, have put in the plea that if marriage was promised it was value-less in law because made when the defendant was a minor. The case will come into court in about a fortnight.

MOVEMENTS OF ROYALTY. The court will remove from Balmoral to Windsor Castle on Nov. whose betrothal to Princess Maud, youngest daughter of the Prince of Wales, was recently announced, will visit the Queen. The Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Maud and other members of the Prince's family will be present. The Queen will then give her royal assent to the marriage of Prince Karl and Princess Maud. Her Majesty's entourage urge the necessity of another physician-in-ordinary being attached to the court while it is at Windsor. The duties of Dr. Reid, the physician-in-ordinary at present in attendance on the Queen, are irksome. He is unable to move beyond immediate call, night or day, and it is therefore desired that Dr. Ellison, of fore desired that Dr. Ellison, of Windsor, be appointed to assist him. The Queen, moreover, maintains her health, and there is no need of a second doctor being in attendance.

THE HANDICAP MATCHES. The handicap matches of the London Golf Club for the club trophy, which began on the 16th of October, have just been completed. The contests were decided by 'match" play, the competitors, of whom there were the goodly number of 26, being drawn against each other on the Bagnall-Wyld system. The matches were played over an 18-hole course and five rounds or series of matches were necessitated to decide the winner. The matches gave rise to many close and exciting contests and were followed with great interest by the members and friends of the club. The close of the contest was rendered all the more interesting by the fact that as the defeated competitors dropped out, the struggle was narrowed down to a representative of the military, Capt. Hemming, of Wolseley Barracks, and of the civilian, Mr. Robert Inglis, of the Bank of British North America. The final match between these two was played last week, when Capt. Hemming bore off the trophy with flying colors, defeating his opponent by two holes. This is the first of the annual matches for the club trophy which are to be one of the club's annual fixtures. Capt. Hemming becomes entitled to the custody of the trophy until next autumn and his name will be the first engraved upon it. The trophy must be won for three successive years before becoming the property of any individual player. The list of entrants for this year's matches, with the handicap allowance received by each, is given below: Mr. Andras and Mr. Betts, scratch; Mr. Brown, 2; Mr. Anderson, Mr. H. Cronyn and Mr. Hamilton, 5; Mr. Blackburn and Mr. Inglis, 9: Rev. Canon Dann, 12; Mr. Gillespie, Mr. Nicholson, Mr. Gates, Mr. Kilgour, Major Denison and Capt. Hemming, 20; Mr. V. Ambassadors Send a Strong Note to the Porte

Demanding to be Informed of Its Intentions Without Delay-The Sultan Deaf and Blind to Reason.

Constantinople, Nov. 11.-As a result of the exchange of numerous telegrams between the representatives of the powers and their respective Governments, lasting nearly all day Sat-urday and this morning, an important meeting of the ambassadors was held here today, and the situation was thoroughly discussed. Finally it was decided to send fresh representations to the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs, Tewfik Pasha, renewing in stronger language the demands addressed by the ambassadors to Tewfik Pasha's predecessor, Said Pasha, on Nov 5, and insisting upon being informed without further delay as to what measures the Porte contemplated taking in order to restore order in Armenia, and reminding the Turkish Government that it has already been notified on the intention of the powers, acting in concert, to take their own steps in the matter should it develop that the action of the Porte is inadequate to deal with the state of anarchy prevailing in Anatolia.

It is known that the Sultan still refuses to believe that the powers are in accord as to the action to be taken in case of the Porte's failure to re-store order in the Turkish Empire. ATROCITIES MORE TERRIBLE than any before credited to them. It is stated upon apparently good authority that whole disricts of Erzeroum and Sivas, the scenes of so much bloodshed in the past, have been devastated by the Kurds, who have wiped village after village out of existence, and that the sword and fire are sweeping over the country. The rioting and blood-shed at Erzeroum is said to have been much more serious than any reports previously made public have pictured of pleasure. it, and it is asserted that even the presence of Shakir Pasha, with his troops, failed to stop the massacre. The unresisting Armenian men, women and children were bludgeoned to death by hundreds in the streets. A traveler who arrived here recently from Trebizond says that he met between Erzeing protection, saying that their husbands were murdered, and that they

In the year 1888 the British Govern ment took formal possession of both islands, but only with the intention of continuing protection to Greig and his successors.

Fanning Island has sprung into sudden importance through the fact that it has been selected as a station for the proposed cable between Australasia and America. King George is deeply interested in the success of his scheme.

A SEA-DOG'S YARN.

How a California Skipper Amassed a Fortune in cold,

"I carried over $1,000,000 worth of gold and silver from San Francisco to China in 1864," said an old sea captain vesterday as he left the crowd which was gazing on the immense gold bricks in the C P. R. office's windows. An idea of the amount of this gold may be had from the fact that the two big lumps on exhibition are worth only

"No, sir," said the old sea dog, who was captain of a clipper ship in 1852, and is still in active service, "and my crew had no suspicion of the valuable cargo I had aboard. Not even my mate knew, and the crew did not come aboard until after the cargo was all shipped. The gold was stored in my cabin, and you can rest assured that I slent upon it every night"

This reminded the captain of a story of another master, who was not quite so scrupulous in his care of a cargo of about $500,000 of gold and silver, intrusted to his care. He sat up at nights also, but only to plan how he could become possessed of the treasure.

"That was in the days of sailing ships, you know," said the captain, "and Chinese pirates flourished in Chinese waters. There are several islands outside of Hong Kong, and one night the ship was run upon one of them. Along came the wreckers, and the master made a bargain with them to land himself and crew in Hong Kong for $10,000 worth of silver that was aboard. Nothing was heard of gold, and, of course, the captain reported that the pirates had taken everything, and circumstances seemed to support his story. A few years afterwards that captain turned up in Cali-

FIDELITY REWARDED. Yesterday afternoon the City Hall was filled by members of the Queen's Avenue Methodist Sunday school and visitors. The occasion was the celebration of the 1,000th continuous service without a break of Sexton Morgan. The superintendent (ex-Mayor Spencer) called Mr. Morgan to the platform. Then the superintendent asked how many of those present were in the school when Mr. Morgan first took up his duties, 1,000 Sundays ago. Out of the 600 present, it was LONDON DAIR! MARKET.

London, Nov. 9.—The market was very small today and an adjournment was made for two weeks. Bids ranged from 9c to 9 1-2c; 160 boxes were sold Green, Mrs. Gregsten and Miss Bell. Indeed, nearly all those present were not born then. The first four members named delivered addresses, in the course of which it was pointed out that in the twenty years of his unbroken service at church and Sunday school Mr. Morgan had traveled 12,-000 miles. To Mr. Morgan's fidelity to duty was attributed the good health which had enabled him to make such a record. Miss Pearl Jackson, a pretty little scholar, then came forward and presented Mr. Morgan with a tray on

> SUPERSTITION PAST AND PRES-ENT.

In Andrew D. White's "New Chapters in the Warfare of Science," and Prof. Evans' "Recent Recrudescence of Superstition" (Popular Science Monthly), may be found that higher thought, contrasted with the lower grade of human understanding. Supersition is born in man. When fully considered, it must have been the beginning of belief. To strip an inanimate thing of its sacredness, to look at it only as a symbol, always will be a difficult mental process. The man retains his belief in the wooden idol and its covering, because so crowded that the doors were closed you learn it is 4,000 years old, attracts and the hundreds that came after 7 attention. Involuntarily you go back o'clock were turned away, unable to to a remote period, and live for a secgain admittance. Rev. Dr. Gunsautus ond in the realms of almost the unmade a brief plea for aid to educate knowable. We are none the worse the children of the dead poet, and in when we make a systematic study of a short time $500 in money had been such objects as man has fashioned, raised and several hundred more and which he has endowed with a certain sacredness. Hence the utility of museums devoted to such paraphernalia as has been used in worship. Reverence for the belief of others is the best of human traits. Nevertheless, as Prof. Evans shows, the teaching of demonology, as permitted in Germany today, is a return to the worst superstitions of the mediaeval period. From the sublime to the ridiculous, when su perstition has its sway, the step is but short. The recently renovated German Mephisto will steal a human soul, and does not disdain to rob a hen's nest. Dr. Bischofberger has invented certain exorcisms which will prevent milk becoming sour-"contra maleficium invisibilis oblationis lactis"-but is honest enough to say that he knows of nothing which will prevent the demon from stealing fresh eggs. That's what I would do if I were in your I would not let myself be frightened or banished for any old wo-man in the world." He sighed.

'Ah! you don't know women as I do," he returned. "Nor have I told you quite all. There is another woman in the case-Mary Edwardes, Lady Asplin's orphan niece, whom I love and who loves me. If I were to do this she would turn poor Mary out of doors, and I do not know what would happen then! For the dear girl has no money, and she would be ruined. No, I dare

I confess I did not see the logical consequence which seemed so clear to my Charming Lodger, but I supposed he knew his own business best, so did not urge my side of the question. It was evidently a danger, take it how one would, and too delicate a matter for the interference of a stranger.

But I did not like the idea of those jewels given in friendship and kept in estrangement. It seemed to me as if the very elements of honor demanded their return, and for my own part I could not have slept another night with them in my possession had I been in Montgomery Somerset's place. To him, however, this seemed not only to be Quixotism, but actually criminal, in view of Mary Edwardes, and that curlous non sequietur-her probable dismissal from the house should they be

This story perplexed me a great deal. There were features in it I did not like, and it puzzled me how to make it hang together. And more than all, it seemed to take away a certain portion of the reliance I had had on my Charming Lodger-to rub off some of the glamour which he had thrown over me. Well-mannered he was, certainly, but I saw for the first time a certain artificiality in his goood breeding, as if it had been an art acquired and not inherited-a certain dash of obsequiousness in his compliance which hitherto I had taken simply as good temper and quasi-carelessness. I remembered his restlessness, his watchful anxiety when he first came, and those eager glances scanning the small world on the platform when he arrived—restlessness and anxiety which I had put down to the over-strain of London life and the nervousness resulting. But now I which was taken out to sea five or six form when he arrived-restlessness scarce knew what to think. The story, as he told it, did not explain things to my satisfaction, and this lessened glamour gave me a clearer insight. But I was in a cleft stick, and without grounds for hostile action had I even the wish to take it.

It was in the bitterest time of the winter months when Montgomery one day said to me quite suddenly: "I must go to Lancaster tomorrow. 'You'll have a cold drive," I said.

He could not drive, so I knew he would not ask for my pony.

"How can I get a trap?" he asked.

"Oh! I'll manage that," I answered;

"and I'll come with you for the sake of the outing." I thought he looked disturbed at this, but I had an uneasy feeling about this I did not want to lose sight of my Charming Lodger, who, by this time, owed me for nearly three months' board and lodging, and-I wanted to see the end of the drama. 'But I mean to stop a few days," he

"Do you?" Well I will come back before you," I continued. "At all events, the jaunt will not be unpleas ant even in this bitter weather, and we shall enjoy it better together." "All right," said Montgomery, in a tone that suggested it was all wrong. start with. Montgomery had taken an unconscionable time to dress, and by his bulky appearance had stuffed all he possessed into his pockets. This delay lost us our train, and when we got to the station there was nothing for us blankness and disappointment. There were but two trains out in the day-this at noon, which we had lost and one at four to catch the up mail train at Lancaster.

What shall we do?" I said when our fiasco was made apparent. To my surprise and indignation my lodger's only reply was a torrent of about the foulest oaths I had ever heard from human lips. "Swearing won't help us," I said gravely; "and please remember I am a clergyman. Montgomery seemed to pull himself together upon this, and made an apol-

It was at an entirely uncovenanted hour, and it meant special. It meant something more; for presently two policemen walked up cobble-paved street and turned into the Wheatsheaf, accompanied by Bob Lant. A Tragic End.

The Idol of the Hungarian People Meets With a Shocking Death.

The Vienna correspondent in Vogue Writes thus: Once again Vienna is mourning a beloved prince, and, in their touching loyalty and heartfelt sympathy for the bereaved royal house, the major portion of the population have donned sable garments, in order to show how We were lingering about the place, deeply they feel this new sorrow which Montgomery resolute to go to Lancas- has overtaken the Hapsburg family. Dearly was young Archduke Ladislaus loved, nay, almost adored, for pluck and a chivalrous manner, which were two of his most marked characteristics, and in Hungary especially he was the idol of the warm-hearted Mag-yars. His death is therefore regarded, bithe here and at Buda-Pesth, in the light of a positive calamity, and there is hardly a person, whether poor or rich, who does not feel for the unhappy mother whose fortitude and extreme devotion have been well worthy of her exalted race and rank.

To me it seems impossible that the merry young prince who was known by all under the endearing appellation of Unser Latzi has left us for ever. I will never forget the first occasion on which I saw him. It was at the marriage of his sister to Prince von Thurn-und-Taxis. He was dressed as a page, and held up the bride's long train with a grace far beyond his then tender years. So beautiful did he look that the ladies of the court went into raptures little satin-shod feet, and accorded him Since then we've missed him, and only far more attention than they did to the today come up with him. But now he's bridal couple. Winsome to a degree, safe," he added, clicking the bracelets bright and clever, Unser Latzi soon gathering, but it was not a large gathering, but it was made up of the safe," he added, clicking the bracelets sharp and firm.

So I had taken to my home as an equal and a man of honor a clever and unprincipled thief, and confounded the superficial "gentility" of a sharp butler's quick study, with the gentlehood of one of the purple-born. It was a lesson never to be forgotten nor regers, charming or otherwise. For the bargain was a bad one; and I lost by dear to all, for had he been less so, the churches, the schools, and even the and especially had he belonged to less saloons, and the concert of next Sunexalted a sphere of society, his life day night is expected to yield a good would in all probability have been sum. saved. This may at first hearing sound like a paradox, but still the fact remains that if the doctors at Arad, who first attended his case, had not felt how very precious was the existence they were to preserve by their skill, they would not have recoiled from undertaking the operation which, if attended to immediately, would have prevented the prince from dying miserably from gangrene on a hospital bed

It was in pursuing a wild cat, which he had wounded, through some tangled bushes of bracken in the fragrant Hungarian forest, where he was hunting, that the archduke allowed his loaded "Curiously enough," remarks the London Saturday Review, "Lord Dunraven has a perceptible, though subhorribly mangled and torn, and nothing can give an adequate idea of the consternation of the prince's entourage when they saw him lying torn and deluged with blood at their feet. So frightened were they, indeed, that a long time elapsed before they thought of summoning assistance, contenting themselves with sponging off the blood as best they could with their handkerchiefs; and even when the doctors appeared upon the scene they also felt the weight of their responsibility so heavily that instead of losing no time in transporting the archduke from the spot where he had lain so long, on one of these litters of pine branches upon which the Austrian Jagers are wont to carry their wounded comrades, they sent for a cart from a neighboring farm, and it was not until late in the afternoon that the unfortunate prince was conveyed into Arad.

Wonderful were the patience and calmness of the wounded man during these long hours of torture. Not a complaint escaped his white lips, and he managed to speak repeatedly in a cheerful tone to his companions, assuring them that he really did not suffer so very much, and that he would be all right very soon. An eye-witness told me yesterday that nothing could be more heart-breaking than the sight of the young archduke who so shortly before had been shouting with merriment at the good sport he had met with that day, lying in a pool of blood which had dyed the green forest grass a dull crimson, his fair head pillowed on the lap of an old Jager, who was weeping bitterly, and answering in a gentle, feeble voice to all inquiries as to his sufferings, nay, even summoning up a smile occasionally in order to rethe removal of the pellets of shot which had penetrated deeply into the flesh, and sent their imperial patient on a special train, through the bare, sun-dried pusztas of Hungary, to Buda-Pesth, where some of the most eminent physicians of Austro-Hungary could be found, and where the poor father and mother, Archduke Joseph and the Archduchess awaited their boy, to accompany him to the hospital.
All these delays, together with the heat and fatigue of the voyage and the great loss of blood sustained by the wounded man, caused gangrene to set in shortly after his arrival at Buda-Pesth, and with sorrowful faces and heavy hearts the medical men broke the hopelessness of the case to Archduke Joseph. The death was a painful one, painful beyond all description, but to the very last the brave boy thought of nothing else but of softening the blow to his parents, and it was with his head resting on his mother's breast that he breathed his last, blessing her in a whisper "for having been the best mother a boy ever had."

A LEGLESS LOVER.

Strange Story of Hypnotism and Marriage from Montreal. Montreal, Nov. 11.-A story which reads more like a novel than a statement of the actual experience of a young lady has been brought to light by the arrest of a young man named Ludger Larose, a professor at the Commercial Catholic Academy. Miss Maria Lamarre, a pretty girl of 21 summers, who has lived all her life with her parents in Longueil, was on Sept. 9 last married by the Rev. Abbe Cousineau to a man named Paileas Beaudry. Beaudry has no legs and also has a deformed back. How he came to fal. in lov. with Miss Maria is not known, but it would appear that he did, and very much so. How she was induced to marry him seems the sticker, until—the father says-the girl was so successfully mesmerized that she knew not, neither did she care what she did, or what became of her. In order to have the marriage performed by the abbe it was necessary to have the archbishops onsent, and His Grace only gave this when a supposed relative made the application. It is now claimed that Laros said he was her cousin, and in this way secured the consent and the marriage was solemnized. When Mr. Lamarre learned what had taken place, he set out to find the authors; hence the arrest of Larose. Some interesting particulars are expected.

The People Are Too Apt to Imagine Themselves Slaves to Disease.

It Is a Mistake to Pour Down Medicine for the Simple Ills of Life.

Common complaints are often the most dangerous. This is so because they are generally disregarded and ultimately become chronic, or lead to more serious complications. Take, for example, constipation of the bowels. There is no more general a complaint known to man, and yet it is lightly thought of, and passed over. The fact remains that thousands of our best men and women are slaves to supposed diseases, which baffie all skill, because the seat of the trouble is not reached. Nature needs nature's which is common sense, as all will recognize. Would our symptoms be out of order most of the time were it not for our stomachs and what we take into them? Ask your physician the most common of all foundation for the ravages of disease and from which grows languer, dizziness, nervousness, headaches, sallow and bad complexion, and in fact almost all the ills that af-flict mankind, and he will tell you, "CONSTIPATION." To cure it permanently it must be done carefully and without the use of violent drugs, and the only safe and best cure known at the present time is Karl's Clover Root which is composed entirely of herbs, nature's greatest remedies. As a spring medicine it cannot be equaled. and the words below from a well known Ohio man testify to the facts: New Vienna, O., May 12, 1894.

My doctor was astonished at the cure, and says there must be great merit in such a medicine. Karl's Clover Root Tea is marvelous in its effect, and deserves all the praise given it. MUSIC AND DRAMA.

BANCROFT TOMORROW NIGHT. The magnificent spectacular produc-tion that Frederick Bancroft, the Prince of Magicians, brings to the Grand Opera House tomorrow (Tuesday) evening, Nov. 12, is sumptuous. Nothing like it in elaboration of de-tail or completeness of ensemble has ever been attempted on the stage, it is said. He is a fascinating entertainer, and his liberality and elegance of taste in the matter of stage appointments combine in making up a per-formance of unequalled attractiveness. In conjunction with Mr. Bancroft's deft manipulations in legerdemain, several specialties of a high order divert the attention. The descriptive music is also said to be quite a feature. The performance is given in four acts and two transformation tableaux. GILMORE'S BAND.

If we take the testimony of the press as given in recent utterances upon Gilmore's Band-the new Gilmore's under Victor Herbert-we are bound to consider it the most remarkable organization of its kind the country has ver had. For instance, one noted musical writer asks pertinently: "Why does the management continue to call it 'Gilmore's Band,' when it is far more a huge orchestra?" There is more of the orchestra than of the "band" about it. He referred to the wonderful order of all things created tending to bring the great design of God, which was to lift man heavenward, and showed the nature of the kingdom of God, which was an internal one, abounding in the hearts of men. He showed how nicely everything in the world was adjusted around the center of motion, which was Calvary. Whenever an attempt was made to change

A PROSPEROUS CHURCH. Mr. Joseph Nicholson, the recording steward of the Colborne Street Methodist Church stated, during the service Sunday morning, that the envelope receipts towards minister's salary, from June 4 to Nov. 3, were $505, being about $100 in excess of the same period last year. He also read the following resolution, which had been adopted at a meeting of the quarterly official board on Friday evening: "Moved by by J. H. Swann, seconded by H. Pratt, that as a board we dealer to express our that as a board we desire to express our hearty appreciation of the services rendered by our pastor, Rev. Walter Rigsby, during his term of labor amongst us.
