

NEGOTIATIONS ARE AT END, HINTS G. T. R.; BUT FALL MAY SEE NEW CONFERENCE

Manager McGuigan intimates That Company Has Dropped Track Elevation Scheme for City—Would Not Allow Liability Clause in the Agreement.

Manager McGuigan, of the Grand Trunk Railway, passed through the city yesterday afternoon on his way from Detroit to Montreal.

While here he was interviewed, and he intimated that as far as the company is concerned, negotiations for the elevation of the tracks in the city are at an end.

He said the Grand Trunk had asked from London only the usual concessions, and London had refused. Thus the city's conduct has been different in this regard than the company had reason to expect.

Scheme Abandoned.

Mr. McGuigan repeated the statement made by General Manager Hays some time ago, that the improvements being made east and west are no part of a scheme to elevate the lines in London. The company has abandoned the plan, which was submitted to the city, and instead has gone back to a plan for relieving the steep grade, which was drafted as early as 1900.

No one in authority around the city hall saw Mr. McGuigan, and of course, the mayor and aldermen take no official notice of the manager's statements.

Nevertheless, Mr. McGuigan's statement in regard to the liability clause was discussed by several of the aldermen today. They pointed out to The Advertiser that the scheme of the company, which only provided for 55-foot openings on 66-foot streets was the stickler as regards liability.

Both the city and the company feared that the people who owned property north and south of the tracks might bring actions because of the narrowing of the streets.

Clause to Protect City.

Thus the city solicitor strove to have a clause inserted which would protect the city if any suits were entered, and the Grand Trunk solicitor refused to accept the clause.

To allow the clause to go in the agreement would be simply to invite lawsuits," Mr. McGuigan said.

Mr. McGuigan was of the opinion also that the citizen would not be as ready to sue the city as they would the company, and that damages awarded against the city would not be as heavy as against the company. And, all things considered, he felt that it was not the company's place to assume the liability.

This practically meant that the city would have to agree to recompense all persons whose property might be damaged, as it was feared that interested persons would have the city sue the company, and that damages awarded against the city would not be as heavy as against the company. And, all things considered, he felt that it was not the company's place to assume the liability.

Then it would be a clear case of somebody having to assume the liability, and the city solicitor would not consent to the clause assuming the liability.

Mr. McGuigan quoted the agreement made with the city of Detroit, in which the Grand Trunk was relieved of a liability. (Continued on Page Eight.)

BOMB TURNS CHURCH FETE INTO A JEWISH MASSACRE

Deadly Explosion in Corpus Christi Procession at Bialistok Followed by General Onslaught.

THE OUTBREAK PLANNED BY THE AUTHORITIES

Bialistok, Russia, June 14.—A Jewish anarchist threw a bomb among the Corpus Christi procession, which was in progress here today, and killed or wounded many persons. In consequence the Christians attacked and massacred the Jews and demolished their shops. Hundreds of persons were killed or wounded.

The bomb was thrown from the balcony of a house in Alexandrovskaya street. A Russian clergyman, named Fedoroff, was among the killed by the explosion. After the explosion, the Jews began to fire with revolvers from the windows of the house into the crowd.

Soldiers surrounded the house and fired two volleys into the windows. Meanwhile the exasperated Christians attacked the Jewish stores in Alexandrovskaya and Suras streets, demolishing the fixtures and windows and throwing the goods into the gutters and beating and murdering the Jews. A crowd of Jews fled to the railway station, pursued by the mob, which killed many of them there. Three Jews were thrown from second-story windows of the railway station building.

The Jews are fleeing from Bialistok to the neighboring forests, and mobs are pursuing them. Detachments of dragoons have been sent out to protect the Jews. Jews arriving here on railway trains have been dragged from the cars and many of them have been murdered. Troops have cleared the railway station. At 4 o'clock this afternoon the disturbances still continued.

St. Petersburg, June 15, 2:15 a.m.—The latest dispatches from Bialistok, which were received about midnight, report a situation of the utmost gravity.

EVERYTHING O. K. WITH ARCTIC; TORIES CHAGRINED AND WEARY

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, June 15.—The special committee inquiring into the Arctic trip was called yesterday afternoon for 4 o'clock, and did not meet. It was called again at 10:30 today, but after sitting for over half an hour adjourned because the Conservative members were not ready to proceed. Mr. Bergeron said that one or two meetings would finish the work. It was about noon. The Conservatives had only a couple of witnesses to call, and nothing would be lost by an adjournment. The committee then adjourned till 3 o'clock.

Mr. Pardee said that as the investigation was not turning out as they expected the Conservatives were chagrined and took little interest in the inquiry.

CHINESE TO HAVE DEMONSTRATION

A Big Gathering of Celestials Will Be Held Here on July 2.

The Chinese who live in London are by no means forgetful of their homeland, nor do they repudiate the responsibilities of Chinese nationality. On the contrary their minds are occupied with large thoughts of progress and reform for their native land. Residence in foreign countries has broadened their minds, and enabled them to see the narrowness of Chinese civilization and government.

Some eight years ago a body of young officials with radical plans of reform were advanced to power by the young emperor and a number of startling edicts were issued. These were too drastic for the conservative statesmen and the Empress Dowager, and the result was that by a coup d'état she regained power as regent and placed the emperor under restraint. Then followed the madness of the I-ho-Chuen or "Boxer" movement, and the consequent capture of Peking by the allied troops.

Since that time, in 1900, China has been making rapid progress and the Russo-Japanese war especially helped to open the eyes of officials and people to the possibilities of a rejuvenated China. Of late the empress has released several of the edicts—particularly relating to education—which were withdrawn after the coup d'état.

At that time six of the young officials were put to death, but their young leader, Kang-yi-wel, was helped to escape by the British consul and a British gunboat took him down to Hong Kong. He has resided for some years in Vancouver, but is now in Mexico.

The Chinese Government has lately offered him full amnesty, but he is unwilling to return unless several of the foreign powers will guarantee his safety.

About five years ago, Kang-yi-wel organized in Vancouver a society of Chinese. It was called the "Society of Chinese." It was organized in Vancouver a society of Chinese. It was organized in Vancouver a society of Chinese.

FUNERAL OF LATE GEORGE F. JEWELL

Civic Bodies and City Officials Walked—An Imposing Cortege.

The funeral of the late George F. Jewell, city auditor of London, took place this afternoon from the family residence, 261 Dundas street.

The attendance was very large, and the cortege one of the most imposing yet witnessed in London.

All the members of the different civic bodies walked, as did also the city officials, as an especial mark of respect to the honored dead. The following was the order:

Squad of police, commanded by Chief Williams. Mayor and aldermen. The board of education. The board of water commissioners. The board of health. The public library board. The L. and S. R. board. The court of revision. The civic reception committee. The city officials.

A very large number of citizens were in carriages. Large crowds viewed the funeral as it wended its way slowly down the streets to York street bridge, where special cars were in waiting to take those who were on foot to Woodland Cemetery.

The services at the house at 2:30 were conducted by Rev. Dyon Hague, rector of the Memorial Church, of which Mr. Jewell was a member. Rev. Mr. Hague spoke in feeling terms of the sterling character of the late auditor—a man who commanded the respect of his fellow men, and who had led a Christian life. In all good works Mr. Jewell had been a leader, and an inspiration to those about him.

The floral offerings were extremely beautiful. The room in which the casket rested was filled with flowers. Nearly all the institutions for which Mr. Jewell had acted as auditor were represented, and many offerings were there from friends of the family.

Mr. Jewell was a member of only one society—St. George's—and the officers sent a very beautiful wreath. Others were from the city council, city officials, the Agricultural Savings and Loan, etc.

The pallbearers were all intimate friends of the deceased. They were ex-Mayor C. T. Campbell, Mr. David Fraser, Mr. R. F. Blandford, City Treasurer John Pope, Mr. A. A. Booker, Mr. Samuel Sereaton, chairman of the hospital trust; Mr. R. R. Bland, of the public library board, and Mr. Andrew Dale, who had been associated with Mr. Jewell as auditor for years.

House Censures Cinquars on Premier's Resolution

Sir Wilfrid Points Out That Much of Article Was Justified by Mr. Foster's Conduct—Cheers for Cinquars.

Ottawa, June 14.—The House of Commons today asserted its supremacy, and, under the guidance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, passed a motion of censure on Mr. Cinquars, the correspondent of La Presse, for a portion of his article criticising Mr. Foster, of which the latter had some time ago made specific complaint. The occasion was again a fine day for the House, as if some great matter of state were to be decided. The real hearing was preceded by a long discussion, which resulted in the striking out of Mr. Foster's restriction to the present session of the House.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

SEEN FROM THE GALLERY

The General Assembly closed last night after a very hard day's work. It has been a great, and in every way, a most delightful gathering. The review of the year's work has shown the tremendous responsibilities laid upon the young and growing nation. It shows also how nobly she is measuring up her responsibility.

Now that the Presbyterian parliament of 1906 is a thing of the past your contributor would congratulate the Presbyterian Council of London, its president, secretary and committees, on the splendid way in which all the arrangements in connection with the great meeting were handled from first to last. Nothing was left undone that would minister to comfort and convenience of the guests of the city.

We came into contact continually with nearly all the commissioners, and we did not hear a single complaint of any kind. On the other hand, we heard constantly expressions of appreciation of the perfect arrangements and the generous hospitality of London Presbyterianism. The commissioners were charmed with their hosts and hostesses and the hosts and hostesses were charmed with their guests. New friendships were formed, and old friendships renewed. The assembly has every reason to cherish the most pleasant memories of the good city, and we have every reason to cherish pleasant memories of the assembly.

All the reports told the story of a successful year's work in the bringing in of the kingdom of God on earth. The home and foreign mission nights can never be forgotten. Everyone was cheered and

DOWIE SOBS AND SLEEPS IN COURT

A Pitiable Exhibition by the Former Dictator of Zion City.

Chicago, June 14.—The weak physical condition of John Alexander Dowie became apparent yesterday when, broken by the strain of the court proceedings as well as the disease which has sapped his constitution, he was wheeled into Judge Landis' chambers in the United States court.

His actions were more like those of a child than the leader who founded Zion City and gathered together the millions of dollars' worth of property, the possession of which now is in dispute.

At times perfectly alert he would launch into tirades against Voliva and the other "conspirators" who were seated in the courtroom but a few feet from him. Then, seeming to forget where he was, he would lapse into a dazed condition, talking incoherently to himself.

He appeared to blame Attorney Jacob Newman, one of the representatives of the Voliva faction, for his troubles, and endeavored to keep as far from him as possible. When he was compelled to address the attorney he exhibited rage.

"I wish you would take your seat," he shouted at the attorney once when Mr. Newman, having arisen from his chair, leaned towards him in order to hear his testimony.

Most of the afternoon hearing was taken up with a recital of the causes which led up to the appointment of Voliva as deputy overseer to take the place of the "triumvirate" which, up to the time of his appointment, had made up the city's government. The first apostle insisted on calling Voliva and his followers "conspirators" during the entire hearing.

"I thought that Voliva was the one man who, in my trouble, could be trusted," he said. "I was in Jamaica when I called to him informing him of his appointment as my personal representative in Zion City."

"He was not in Zion at the time, and I informed him that upon his arrival he would find all the necessary papers and everything necessary to place him in authority."

He then told of his surprise at his failure to receive any letter from Voliva for more than a month. The letter which he did receive, in which Voliva expressed his sincere desire that Dowie speedily recover and return to Zion City was read in court.

"Even at that time I am sure that he had conspired with other persons at Zion City to deceive me," cried Dowie, whose form now was shaking with sobs.

"Imagine that supposed affectionate letter when he was plotting to drive me from the leadership of the city."

"This is all immaterial and we cannot leave it in the records," said Judge Landis to Attorney Haley, Dowie's counsel.

"That is all right, but we cannot let that be admitted as evidence," said the attorney. Placing his hand on the shoulder of the shaking man he attempted to soothe him.

"All right, all right, I will obey you," said Dowie. "I have always endeavored to obey my advisers. My mother always said that I was a good, obedient boy. My dear dear mother—I, but here his sobs prevented further utterance, and he fell back on his wheel chair, pounding his hand upon the railing in an effort to restrain his give expression to the thoughts that he could not speak.

At last the old man was calmed. The examination was resumed, and he told of the appointment of the various overseers who later became "conspirators" against him. He told of the founding of four schools in Zion City, and how he had planned, first, that the children of Zion should be taught to pray before their other education would begin.

Then he caught sight of Voliva and some of the overseers who are opposing him in the litigation, and he began to talk, almost incoherently, of their "plotting."

"I am afraid that I will have to object to permitting this going into the records," interrupted Attorney Newman.

"Oh, Mr. Newman, can't you overlook some of the little details of the taking of evidence to permit me to make this statement?" exclaimed Dowie. "I don't care anything about the property in Zion City. I don't care anything about these things. All I want is to make this statement to show that I am an honest man. I am no thief. I have stolen nothing, and am not an immoral man. I have never committed an immoral act in my life."

In his excitement he had raised himself in his chair, pounded on Judge Landis' desk, and was sobbing so that he scarcely could be understood. Seeing that the witness was unable to proceed Judge Landis stooped over and gently explained that he would be permitted to make the desired statement tomorrow.

Dr. Dowie permitted himself to be placed in a comfortable position in his chair once more. The attorney began his arguments in low tones again, and in a few minutes it was noticed that Dowie had sunk into a peaceful sleep in his chair, while the debate continued unheard by him. Dr. Dowie will resume his testimony today.

A dispatch from Muskegon, Mich., in the evening, said Mrs. Dowie and son Gladstone are settled at Ben MacDhui, and expect Dr. Dowie to join them there after the present hearing in court is concluded.

MISSIONARY NEEDS AT OUR OWN DOOR

London Branch of W. M. S. Hears of Wants in the Great Northwest.

Chatham, June 14.—At the annual meeting of the London branch of the Woman's Missionary Society in Park Street Church today, a motion was introduced, and adopted, asking that the ladies be represented at the district meetings and the annual and general conferences. A lengthy discussion ensued on this very interesting point, during which all those who had availed themselves of their privilege to attend the quarterly board were asked to stand. About half a dozen did so, and they told of the results their attendance had brought about. The motion was finally carried.

The address of Mayor Marshall at last night's meeting is the subject of much favorable comment. His worship, in conveying the freedom of the city, and its welcome to the delegates, said:

"There is missionary work right here at home, and though it is true that missionaries must be sent abroad, it is equally a fact that there is need for them almost at our own doors. I fear that this is not being looked after as it should be. The way the Sabbath is being desecrated is an example of this need; but the greatest need of our land at the present time is in the Northwest. There are people of many nationalities growing up together, and unless they are brought under Christian influences at once, it will be almost impossible to win them in the future."

"The Northwest," concluded the mayor, "is one of the brightest jewels in the crown of Great Britain, and what we need in that country is a God-fearing people."

Mrs. Learoyd, of Windsor, replied to the mayor's speech. She hoped that the delegates would be model visitors, and that they would keep good hours. This was the 25th anniversary of the Woman's Missionary Society, and they were looking for greater things than ever before.

Mrs. Tennant, London, the corresponding secretary of the society, then gave her report.

During the year, she said, there had been eighteen new auxiliaries organized and reorganized.

Chatham district, with five new auxiliaries, headed the list. In this Mrs. W. Taylor is district organizer for Chatham.

Mrs. Tennant closed by saying, "We have not reached the summit bonum of our aspirations yet, but are looking forward to better things."

Mrs. Marlett, of St. Thomas, gave the treasurer's report, which showed a decided increase in finances for the year.

Last year $11,665.60 was raised by London branch, then being two donations of $1,000 each.

This year, without any big donations, the London conference branch raised $12,111.62, showing a decided increase in funds.

The president, Mrs. Gordon Wright, in addressing the meeting, said in part:

"I would like to tell the mayor that we try not to neglect home duties in our great zeal for foreign work. We try to keep the balance on, and keep a cheerful face when the men come home tired with the world, the flesh and the devil."

She was glad Chatham had a council who believed in keeping the Sabbath, and who would not only keep resolutions, as the Montreal Council did, putting themselves on record as saying, "Canada should have a wide open Sunday if it wants it."

Assurbanipal, alias Sardanapalus, was the "grand monarch" of ancient Assyria at the height of its power and glory, and the splendor of his apparel befitted his dazzling rank.

Your correspondent interviewed several eminent sartorial authorities on the subject of masculine dress, the opportunity for change and prospects of the "reform" movement.

Albert Lambert, jun., said, "The present style is odious, assuredly, but to go back and create a hybrid style, adapting ancient forms to modern means and life is not to be thought of. If we in France had been left to ourselves, our costume of the time of Charles X. might have evolved on its own lines to something at once graceful and suitable to the needs of the day, but at that moment in came the hideous English style, and all possibility of being graceful and manly at the same time disappeared."

It is poor consolation, but it is all that is left; let us make the most of it."

Antonio de La Gandara, the painter, declared, "I have no regrets. Every period creates a costume in accordance with its pursuits and character, and the result will be a beauty characteristic of the age. Phidias wrought in marble superb peplums falling in noble folds. But it is a Velasquez, ugly because he had to reproduce women weighted down with 50-pound skirts. No, Musketeers' hats and flying cloaks have nothing to do with the age of the motor car. Besides, the very ghastly correctness of man's costume today has a sort of sad beauty and makes an admirable foil to the fantastic robes of the women."

But Gandara's lyric exaltation was somewhat paradoxical. He was wearing in the privacy of his studio a sumptuous costume of blue velvet.

WOULD DRESS MEN IN TOGAS

Strange Costumes Being Considered for European Evening Dress.

Paris, June 14.—It is terrible to think of the evening dress of the millionaires would support for the confusion of simple folk like ourselves," exclaims a Paris editor in commenting upon the movement to make their attire more gaudy and picturesque. "J. P. Morgan, with his artistic tastes and strong in royal approval, would venture on a costume which would make the robes of Assurbanipal a poor collection of rags, and Lipton would advertise his tea by dropping pearls from his court suit."

WIZARD EDISON TALKS OF COBALT

Its Use Will Revolutionize the Electric World—Will Cheapen Automobiles.

Asheville, N. C., June 14.—The Asheville Citizen publishes an interview from Thomas A. Edison, who says that he has made cobalt discoveries in North Carolina that will revolutionize the electric world. Mr. Edison claims he will reduce thereby the weight of storage batteries in automobiles 50 per cent, and the cost of traffic in cities 55 per cent. He has been in this state some time prospecting for cobalt.

"I knew that a North Carolina trip would be successful, and, although I am satisfied now, I was well confident that I would not be disappointed. There is a streak of it running from a point just east of Asheville, Tenn., into this state, and I must add that some of the richest beds I have found have been in North Carolina. There is a large quantity of it, and my discovery means a revolution in the electric world. I can estimate the cost of city traffic 55 per cent and cut the weight of storage batteries just in half. It can be seen very readily that more automobiles and electrical vehicles will be built, because the cost will be placed within the reach of many people who cannot now afford to own them."

"I have found cobalt in Lincoln, Gaston, Shelby and Jackson counties. In Jackson County there is a large quantity of it, while the beds are valuable in other counties. I made assays of the mineral in many places, and I find the quality to be just what I was looking for."

The electric vehicles have been under development for some time, but the heavy storage batteries we are forced to put in them, and also on account of their high values. Under the present plan electric autos cannot be made without a large outlay of money, and that has kept the people, the majority of the people, I mean, from using them. An automobile is considered a luxury even by our richest citizens. When I can equip an automobile propelled by the cobalt system, the weight will be one-half, thereby giving the new machine an enviable advantage over the ones now in use, and when the price is reduced so as to place them within the reach of everybody, it means that the horse is a thing of the past. The crowded streets of the cities will be cleared, and that will mean a great thing in some of our largest towns. I have left a force of men in this state, where I found the mineral, and they will investigate the country as to the quantity to be found. Most of the cobalt now known to the scientists of the world is found in France and Austria, and American industries are hampered because of the distance it is from the manufacturers; then, too, it is not so rich value as I want. I have considered the matter for a long time, and I was confident that I would find it in the United States, and I have been at work to discover it for several months. I have forces of men in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia, besides North Carolina, and they have found it in small quantities in all of those states. In Tennessee there is more than in any other place, besides in the western part of this state, but so far we have made no valuable finds in Kentucky, Alabama or Georgia. My men will continue prospecting, however, and will not give up the hunt until we are certain that the ground has been covered fully."

The trouble with the fellow who demands fair play is that he always wants to be the judge.

Those who never have any stomach troubles and whose digestion is like that of an ostrich cannot possibly understand the sorry condition of many in London today.

Life does not seem worth the living; they bear up with nervous irritation, sleeplessness, pain and misery in the stomach, headaches, backaches, and have a constant fear that what they eat is going to disagree with them and cause still greater distress. While persons with a weakened stomach should have our sympathy, it is much better to point out the way to cure their physical troubles and make it possible for them to once more enjoy life without thought or care as to what may be eaten.

In Mi-o-na there is a remedy that restores the lost functions of the digestive system, revives flagging nutrition, and aids in the assimilation of food. This remedy soothes and heals the irritated and inflamed walls of the stomach, strengthens the nerve centers of the digestive system, and makes a permanent and positive cure in all forms of stomach trouble, excepting cancer.

Mi-o-na costs but 50c a box. If you cannot obtain Mi-o-na of your druggist, it will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. Write us for advice on your case from a leading stomach specialist, which will be sent free. The R. T. Booth Company, Ltd., N. Y.

LONDON, FRIDAY, JUNE 15.

THE SCENE IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. Foster yesterday received the coveted balm for his wounded feelings. No intelligent person will for a moment defend the language of the article in La Presse, but that is not the whole question. The writer, Mr. Cinqmars, submitted that it was not a report of proceedings of the House written from the press gallery, but a signed editorial written on a holiday, and no more a subject of censure than a composed by a journalist who was not a member of the press gallery. Mr. Cinqmars was also within the mark when he claimed that his article was no more violent than many attacks upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Ontario press.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in moving the vote of censure upon Cinqmars, questioned the judgment of Mr. Foster in bringing the matter to the attention of the House, but held that, having done so, the House was in duty bound to deal with it. He agreed that some portions of the article in La Presse passed the bounds of reasonable criticism, though some of it was justified. He took the position that it constituted a breach of the privileges of the House. Anything publicly said or written, he added, derogatory to the honor of the House, as a body, or of one of its members, was an invasion of the privileges of the House.

British precedents bear out this statement, but Sir Wilfrid pointed out that when a similar case came before the British House of Commons, Mr. Balfour admitted that the rule was an antiquated one and should be revised. No one can imagine one of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's caliber taking this means of revenge, but smaller men might seek to abuse the power of the House of Commons, just as certain journalists abuse the power of the press. However, Mr. Foster, having demanded his pound of flesh, the Premier felt that he had no alternative but to enforce an almost obsolete rule. It is to be hoped the lesson will not be lost on Mr. Foster and other members of the House, who are none too moderate in their own language.

THE LESSON OF THE EMBALMED HAM.

Appropos of the exposures made of the disgraceful methods permitted by some of the great meat packing firms of the United States, a correspondent of the London Times states that the British firm in which he is a partner bought from one of the biggest houses in the "packing combine," or "beef trust," as it is better known, a parcel of hams—called in the trade "short cuts." The goods, to all appearance, were in perfect condition, and were passed into Great Britain as sound goods. In the course of a few days they were passed through the smoking-house of this big wholesale establishment, and distributed to the retail trade. Imagine the surprise of the firm when within a week it was inundated with complaints from buyers that their customers were unable to cook the hams. Their peculiarity was that they floated on the water. They would not cook, and when cold, after boiling, it was impossible to cut them with a knife, "the texture of the meat representing as nearly as possible an india-rubber sponge."

These hams had undoubtedly undergone the "embalming" process by the use of "formaldehyde." It is evident that such goods should never have been cured, and the writer in the Times declares such a thing would not have been permitted in any English curing-house. That they were put upon the market by the United States "beef trust," and given a certificate of quality by a United States meat inspector, shows how much the buying public are at the mercy of these unscrupulous men. This exposure gives fresh emphasis to the declarations made by Mr. Upton Sinclair, in his remarkable book, "The Jungle," which moved President Roosevelt to attempt to remedy the abuse of the packing industry.

It is unfortunate that inspection of meat is so lax as has been demonstrated, and if the result of the present well-grounded indictment of the "beef lords," is that its business is, at least, for a time, much injured, the "barons" only themselves to blame. The dishonest ought to be taught that cheating the public, though it may pay temporarily, will be a losing game. There are doubtless many honest dealers in the United States, of whom it can be said that their products are always what they are labeled to be. On the other hand, there cannot be a doubt that more "bogus butter," and "doctored cheese," and "embalmed beef," are annually put on the market by United States traders, under false or misleading descriptions, than is offered for sale by any other nation in the world. It does seem to be difficult for our neighbors, with their conflicting state and national laws, to be able to effectively beat down rascalties in food production, especially when so many are interested in the swindles.

Canada's interest lies in vigilantly watching her importing points to prevent even as much as one dollar's worth of bogus or adulterated food stuffs from entering this country, and to see that by proper labeling of our products, after they have been properly prepared, they are in no way mixed up in the old world markets with products from the land of the wooden nutmeg, filled cheese and embalmed beef. Time was when it was possible for sharp Yankee dealers to label all their bad butter sent to Great Britain, as "Canadian." We had, too, doctored Yankee cheese, marketed as "Canadian," and so exposed for sale in the Dominion. We in Canada had to protect ourselves against the manufacture, sale or importation of oleomargarine, a substitute for butter, and the result has been to raise the fame, as well as the price, of Canadian butter. And just in proportion to the vigilance we show in dissociating ourselves from all such fraudulent expedients as those which have been successfully laid to the door of the "beef trust" of the United States must be our success in preserving the family good name, and in securing for our products in old world markets all the consideration that is warranted.

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier was as thick-skinned as Mr. Foster he could have a procession of journalists before the bar of the House.

Toronto journalism regains a bright and shining light in Mr. W. H. Greenwood, of the London Free Press, who becomes managing editor of the Toronto World. Mr. Greenwood had already made his mark in the Queen City before coming to London over a year ago. He is a very young man to have reached his present height in the profession, and his associates predict for him a notable career. In leaving London he carries the hearty goodwill of the local newspaper fraternity, and severs many pleasant social ties.

The town of Halleybury, which is as Tory as New Liskeard is Grit, gnashes its teeth over the slight put upon it by the touring provincial legislators—accidentally, it is claimed. There is a touching pathos in this reproach from the Halleybury Halleyburians: "Halleybury decked itself out in gorgeous array, in honor of the party for which it had suffered and bled so long, and as a just return for its loyalty, the train bearing the men who are weaving the web of provincial destiny, passed swiftly by to New Liskeard, a place evolved out of the corruption of the regime that Halleybury so materially aided in casting down."

Readers of the editorials in the Toronto News, violently denouncing Judge Prendergast, because of his decision in the Prince Albert case, should hear the other side of the case from Mr. Haultain, the Conservative leader in Saskatchewan. Mr. Haultain said recently in the Legislature:

"He knew newspaper articles had been written about Justice Prendergast, articles which he said at the time were without foundation. He believed Justice Prendergast was perfectly correct in his action with regard to the recount in Prince Albert district, and even if he had not been, the attacks made upon him would have been unjustifiable. Judge Prendergast was above reproach; there was no need to delay these election petitions in order to rehabilitate a character on which no slur could be cast and on which no worthy of notice had attempted to cast a slur."

TWO KINDS OF FRIENDS.

[Washington Star.]

"A man in politics should have lots of friends," shouldn't he?" "It depends," answered Senator Forghum, "on whether they are friends who want to do something for you or want you to do something for them."

BALAAM AND THE ASS.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Deacon Miles—"Doctor, there's a question I have been wanting to ask you. In what language did the ass speak to Balaam?" The Rev. Dr. Forthright—"In its own language. Balaam had been making an ass of himself, and he had no trouble in understanding."

FILLING THE ORDER.

[Ladies' Home Journal.]

"Hi, waiter, this meat is like leather." "Saddle of mutton, you ordered, sir."

SHE DIDN'T SLEEP WELL.

[Ladies' Home Journal.]

A woman who lives in an inland town while going to a convention in a distant city, spent one night of her journey on board of a steamboat. It was the first time she had ever traveled by water. She reached her journey's end extremely fatigued. To a friend who remarked it she replied: "Yes, I'm tired to death. I don't know as I care to travel by water again. I read the card in my state-room about how to put the life preserver on and I thought I understood it; but I guess I didn't. Somehow, I couldn't go to sleep with the thing on."

THE CHAFFER DOG.

[St. James Gazette.]

Paris dog fanciers are devoting their attention to the "chauffer dog" which is trained to watch a motor-car when left at the roadside, and to accompany his master on his journey. But it is necessary to choose a dog which takes kindly to high speeds, and to the fur coat and goggles in which he is dressed. The bulldog refuses to wear spectacles, and fox-terriers are too nervous for long trips. Collies and poodles, it is declared, make great motor-car dogs. There is a poodle in the dog show now being held in Paris which refuses to have his goggles off at all.

THRIFT THAT MAKES WEALTH.

[Washington Post.]

The public debt of France is $2,000,000,000, all held at home. In addition the French people own foreign securities to the stupendous aggregate of $15,000,000,000, and it is further estimated that an equal amount is placed in home securities. These figures may be exaggerated—all but those representing the public debt—but they illustrate the virtue there is in thrift, which is also a German usage. There is no Rockefeller, no Carnegie, in France, though there may be a lesser Russell Sage. The French people do not speculate, they save. They do not get rich at a hop, skip and jump; they accumulate by slow degrees—they economize. The crime of crimes in rural France is waste, and France would rustet on what America throws away. Within the past year there have rotted on American farms enough machinery and utensils to supply agricultural France the next quarter of a century.

KEEPING UP THE JOKE.

[Detroit Journal.]

In an English village there lived a dull-witted boy. He was a great joke to offer him the choice of a penny and a three-penny piece. A stranger one day saw him choose the penny, rather than the three-penny bit, and asked him for the reason.

"Is it because the penny is larger?" the stranger asked. "Naw," was the response, "not 'cause it is the biggest. But if I took the three-penny bit they'd soon stop offering it."

LOVEMAKING IN MODERN STYLE.

[London Graphic.]

"The maneuvering mamma" is practically extinct. The modern daughter has an almost free hand in managing her love "transactions." The mere love marriage, which was so disturbing a thought to the mother of even twenty years ago, is now a commonplace. May-fair in these altered circumstances. The new lovmaking is a subject which can not be dealt with except with the utmost discretion, for it might grievously have it hinted that the modern daughter is a shallow, frivolous, and business in such a situation that she even "the maneuvering mamma."

THE ARCTIC "SCANDAL."

[Woodstock Sentinel-Review.]

The bottom seems to have fallen out of the Arctic expedition scandal. The statistics of the supplies provided for the expedition were thrust upon an unsuspecting public all in a heap, caused something of a shock, and it did not seem a scandal to believe that there was a scandal lurking somewhere. But the more the thing has been investigated, and the more the people have had to realize what the fitting out of a ship for such an expedition means, the less astonishing the figures appear. The ship was well provided, that much appears certain, but the Opposition has not yet been able to prove from the mouth of a competent witness that the supplies were excessive, or that there was any graft in the furnishing of them. The expedition of the Arctic was exactly a holiday excursion; but even on pleasure trips people like to go well provided, and it is always wise to have something in reserve for an emergency.

WHEN YOU STAND UPRIGHT.

[Exchange.]

"Are you aware that when you stand upright you are a very good specimen of a human being?" "You are so used to the upright posture that you fail to realize what a special complex mechanism is needed to enable you to assume it. That the upright is not the body's normal position is easily shown by the fact that a man nods as he is falling asleep; for as soon as the controlling nervous force is deadened, the head drops forward by its own weight. The fact is, that when we are standing a large number of powerful muscles, both back and front, are simultaneously at work, the effect of their action being to neutralize each other. Thus the legs would fall forward were it not that they are kept vertical on the feet by the strong tendons at the back of the heel. At the same time the muscles of the thighs are tightened so as to prevent us taking a sitting position, and the muscles of the back are pulled tense so that the trunk does not stoop forward. The head is upheld by the strong ligaments at the back of the neck."

ONLY ALICE'S HUSBAND.

[Hamilton Herald.]

King Edward has been dining with Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth. Probably Nicholas was there, too, but the cable doesn't say so.

LIFE IS SAFER IN CANADA.

[Indianapolis News.]

Andrew D. White's statement that "the best use to which you can put a man sometimes is to hang him" sounds pretty severe, but when we recall that in Canada the homicide rate is three to the one million inhabitants, while in this country it is 129 to the million, the dictum seems only high common sense.

THE WESTERN FEVER.

[Hamilton Times.]

The public school inspector of East Middlesex reports 78 fewer pupils on the roll than in 1904. That kind of thing is not peculiar to Middlesex. The people have the western fever, and those who have families bent on farming seek the prairies and farms for their sons. There is, too, a tendency to seek the cities, and in two ways the rural districts are drained of their young. This is to be regretted, from a Provincial point of view, but it is not to be doubted that a liberal admixture of Ontario people in the west will prove beneficial to that part and in the end to the Dominion. But there are far worse places than Ontario.

GREAT SHIPS ON THE GREAT LAKES.

[From the New York World.]

The J. Pierpont Morgan, the first of the United States' Steel Corporation's new 600-foot boats, has gone to Escanaba to take on her maiden cargo of ore. A sister ship, the Henry H. Rogers, was launched at South Chicago Saturday. A third boat of equal dimensions is being built. Each of them will carry between 12,000 and 14,000 tons of ore. Six-hundred-foot ocean-going ships are none too numerous. The new French liner La Provence is only 24 feet longer than the J. Pierpont Morgan, which will lug ore to Ashtabula and Buffalo only and Campanella and Lucania of the Cunard line exceed the Morgan in length, and by only 20 feet. None of the American line ships is so long and only three of the Hamburg-American liners exceed it in length.

Within the last decade the marine architects of the Great Lakes have added 200 feet to the length of the freighters and have tripled the cargo capacity without materially increasing the draught. Whether they will be able to go much beyond the present maximum of 600 feet remains to be seen. The matter of draught is a constant quantity. The water at Hay Lake Channel, in the Soo River, and at the Lime Kiln Crossing, in the Detroit River, makes it unsafe to load much beyond 19 feet, although there is 21 feet of water in the Soo Canal. The narrow channel and swift currents in the Soo River make it seem also to have set a limit to the length of the ships, although it may not have been reached in the 600-foot boats.

No ships in the world are more perfectly adapted to their business than those that handled $5,000,000 tons of ore, 13,000,000 tons of coal and 143,000,000 bushels of grain, to say nothing of other freight on the Great Lakes last year. Reduced to their simplest form, they are steel shells with a double bottom. With anywhere from twelve to thirty hatchways, they can easily take on a cargo of ore in two hours when the ore is dry and runs freely in the chutes from the docks. Even the work of trimming the ship is done by adjusting the chutes. By means of the "clamshells" they can unload in eight or ten hours.

The economy of the 600-foot ship over the 400-footer hardly requires demonstration. Little more horsepower is needed to propel one than the other, for the lake freighters waste no coal in making speed records. Twelve miles an hour is satisfactory. Few more men are required on the larger boats. The increase in the size of the crew is trifling in comparison with the increase in cargo capacity, and with a rate of even 70 cents a ton on iron ore from the Great Lakes to Buffalo, the advantages of a 14,000-ton boat over a 5,000-ton rival can easily be reduced to dollars and cents.

PREPARING FOR THE FAIR

Applications for Space Coming!—The Prize List Next Week.

Secretary Hunt is working every day on the preparations for the Western Fair, which will be held this year from the 7th to the 15th of September. Applications for space are already coming in, and many inquiries as to entries and the many classes are also being received. It is expected that the prize list will be ready to go to press next week. Work on the repairs and additions to the buildings will be commenced at once.

A HUMAN OSTRICH

Surgeons Remove a Junkshop from Stomach of Patient.

Minneapolis, June 15.—Fifty-seven varieties of nails, some glassware and parts of a wire fence were taken from the stomach of E. Wallace, who was operated on at the City Hospital today. The patient is a human ostrich, Wallace says he is a human ostrich. He is satisfied to believe him. He has had a pain in his stomach for some time, and at last it compelled him to go to the hospital.

At first he attributed his malady to overindulgence in doughnuts, but on further thought he remembered that he had spent the winter and spring with a barn-storming company, guaranteeing to eat all the junk the spectators might pass to him. He had done this stunt many times before, and he was sure that his stomach agreed with him. But finally his stomach rebelled. His condition, the physician said, was critical, so he submitted to an immediate operation.

The physicians were prepared to find a few nails and possibly some glassware. They found a junkshop. There were 57 good-sized nails, nearly a dozen pieces of glass and a few long pieces of wire. They searched for a glazier, with some confidence. All the articles were removed and placed on exhibition in the office. Wallace has made his living for the last twenty years by appearing at dime museums and other places where freaks are quoted at a premium. His specialty was to swallow all kinds of hardware, from tacks to pieces of gas pipe, and he seems to have thrived on the fare until he came to Minneapolis and started in on some of the local supply of shingle nails.

Dr. E. Benjamin performed the operation. The doctor used the regular surgical instruments, but a claw-hammer and screwdriver would appear to the layman to have been the proper tools. The operation was successful. It is believed that all the hardware has been removed, and it is hoped that the man will recover. At a late hour he had not yet regained consciousness after the administration of the anesthetic, but his condition appeared to be such as to show that he had withstood the shock of the operation admirably.

WITH MILITARY HONORS.

Windsor, Ont., June 15.—The remains of Richard Yates, the Canadian veteran, who died in Detroit on Wednesday, will be interred in Windsor Grove Cemetery on Saturday afternoon. On the order of Lieut.-Col. Darlett, commanding officer of the 21st (Essex) Regiment, the honors of a military funeral will be accorded to the remains.

PROGRESS AND PUSH IN MEN AND CLOTHING

This is a progressive store for progressive people. We all like to keep ahead—to push forward—to accomplish.

That's why we sell "Progressive Clothing"—a progressive Canadian brand of ready-to-wear clothing—the go-ahead and keep-ahead kind.

Two things about Progressive Clothing to be proud of—quality and style. Other manufacturers cannot equal the Progress Brand because they haven't the same brand of progress in their ideas and methods.

See these popular blue worsteds and gray fabrics and novelty mixtures. Bring your critical eye and pass judgment upon this exhibit.

Then you'll understand why they are called "Progress Clothing—because they establish a standard that all others can only follow.

HORSE DOGGED TO DEATH

Canine Drives Equine Into River and Worries Until Latter Drowns.

Zanesville, Ohio, June 15.—Left to watch over the horses of a band of gypsies, who had been camping in Wayne Township, a dog became infuriated today and drove a horse into the river. He pounced upon the equine's back and there rode until the horse was exhausted and drowned. The dog then swam ashore. The camp is situated a short distance from the river bank, but between the camping ground and the river there is a grassy plot, where the horses had cropped. This morning the horses were turned out as usual in care of the dog. After a while there was a commotion, and on investigation it was found that the dog had become infuriated at the best animal in the pack. Before him he drove the horse toward the water, but not content with this, chased the animal into the river. When once the equine had gone beyond his depth it started to swim. At this the canine climbed on his back and continued to bite. Round and round the river the horse swam, the dog howling and biting all the while. At last the horse was exhausted and finally drowned. The dog then swam ashore, his resentment evidently appeased.

General Booth Plans to Rid London of Ten Thousand Aliens.

London, June 14.—The Financial Times says there are rumors in circulation that the Central Railway Company of Canada will shortly offer for subscription 5 per cent first mortgage bonds. So far nothing seems to be known of the company in the market. Gen. Booth is now undertaking, if money is forthcoming, to emigrate ten thousand of London's alien population to some country not in the empire. To an Irish deputation today, the Postmaster-General gave a sympathetic reply to a protest against abandoning the Moville port of call and said he had already entered an emphatic protest against the proposed abandonment. He suggested that the problem might be made easier if the Great Northern Railway were to accelerate the transit of mails from Dublin. In order to obviate the delay at present experienced at Moville by the waiting of steamers for the arrival of mails, this point may be considered. In the House of Commons Mr. Buxton said the Government would support universal penny postage.

Boy Beaten, Body Oiled and Fired and Thrown Over Cliff.

Washington, Pa., June 15.—George Crumrine, Arthur Huff and Edward Wyke, arrested this morning charged with maltreating a 17-year-old boy, Frank Morris, of Vanceville, escaped lynching through prompt work by the police. Morris' condition is serious and he was helpless until he was helped, poured oil over his body, then set it afire, causing excruciating pain.

The boy says Crumrine, Huff and Wyke yesterday lured him to a woods and, after playing him with whisky until he was helpless, poured oil over his body, then set it afire, causing excruciating pain. They beat and kicked him, then, tying a rope about his body, dragged him a half mile to a small cliff. After binding him to a beard Morris declared they threw him over, a distance of 25 feet. He says then they followed him to the foot of the cliff, and after beating him again, piled stones on him and ran away. He lay there all night and was nearly dead when found. No reason is known for the alleged abuse.

HEN ADOPTS KITTENS

Scratches Gravel for Them—Can't Fathom Their Fondness for Milk.

Danbury, Conn., June 15.—Josiah L. Day, a rural free delivery mail carrier, has a buff leghorn hen which, in lieu of chicks, is mothering a litter of five small kittens. Leghorns are known as "non-sitters." Consequently, when this hen manifested an intention to sit she had nothing but a door-knob allowed her, the expectation being that she would get tired of her job and quit in a few days. After she had been sitting two or three days, it was found that she had a brood of kittens. It is supposed that while Mrs. Leghorn was off her nest the mother cat hid there, afterward being chased away and perhaps killed by a dog. The hen ruffles her feathers and pecks at anyone who attempts to disturb her kittens. She scratches in the earth to find food for them and looks surprised while they lap up the milk fed to them by members of the family. She covers them with her wings at night and protects them at all times.

CHAPTER XXII.

Thus, so far as Helen was concerned, the die was cast. She had pledged her hand without her heart, and consented to become Hubert Alton's wife.

When they returned to the parlor, after having completed their arrangements, they found Mrs. Seymour awake, and apparently much refreshed after her nap, whereupon Hubert gently told her that he had won Helen's consent to marry him, and asked her sanction to their union.

Had not the sick woman been so weak, both in body and mind, she could not have failed to observe that it was only by the most heroic efforts that Helen managed to maintain her self-possession during this ordeal; that the hunted look in her lovely eyes betrayed a broken heart, while, at the same time, the firm, settled lines about her sweet mouth betokened a vicarious offering for the life of another.

But Mrs. Seymour appeared to be greatly pleased with the arrangement, and accepted it in a rather matter-of-fact way, which seemed to indicate that the decision was not wholly a surprise to her.

She brightened visibly while they were telling her of their plans, but vetoed decidedly their trying to get away by Tuesday.

"I shall not be strong enough," she said, "and we cannot do things in such a hurry."

"But, mamma, we made our plans for your sake; every day in this hot city is willing you more and more," Helen argued.

"Well, but, have you noticed, the wind has changed during the last hour, and I believe the next few days will be cooler; we have not yet had our long May storm, late though it is; and, if it will only come now, I shall do well enough," Mrs. Seymour persisted.

Then she added: "There are many things that we are carefully packed away, if we are going to be gone all summer; and, though I know Helen would do her best, yet I should feel better to have them done under my supervision. I think we will not try to get away before Saturday."

And she would not fear a word of objection, and Helen began to feel quite tried with her, after all her anxiety, and the sacrifice she had made on her account.

"No," she said brightly in reply to the arguments of the young people: "now that I have the prospect of the country before me, I have hope—hope means life, and already, with this cool, fresh breeze coming from the sea, I begin to feel stronger."

And so it was decided that the marriage should be delayed until Saturday noon, and Mrs. Knight was to be informed accordingly.

Hubert was disappointed, for he was eager to have the wedding, and he wanted to be sure of his bride and the ten thousand dollars.

However, he felt obliged to acquiesce in Mrs. Seymour's decision, and said that he would attend to all outside arrangements, and neither Helen nor her mother need feel any responsibility concerning them.

But, after he was gone, Mrs. Seymour grew silent and thoughtful, and when Helen had helped her to bed, and was about to take leave of her for the night, she put her arms around the girl's neck and drew her down to her.

"My darling, are you sure that you are doing what is wisest and best? Do you want to marry Hubert?" she questioned earnestly.

"Yes, mamma, I am very sure," Helen said steadily, and replying to her first query, while she bent and fondly kissed the grave face on the pillow.

"Isn't the decision very sudden?" "No, dear; we talked the matter over a long time ago, but we did not seem to be able to come to any definite decision until tonight," Helen replied, with a forced cheerfulness which wholly belied the heaviness of her heart.

Her mother appeared to be satisfied, however; for, like a tired child, she turned, with a long sigh of relief, upon her pillow, and almost immediately fell asleep.

She slept peacefully and restfully the whole night through, and appeared much refreshed and stronger in the morning, a circumstance which she attributed to the cool, easterly breeze that was sweeping in from the ocean.

Helen had decided that school must be given up entirely, and, on Monday morning, sent a note to the principal, stating that, owing to her mother's precarious condition, and a consequent fitting into the country, she would be obliged to discontinue her attendance for the remainder of the year.

This done, she set herself bravely and busily at work preparing for the change before her.

Mrs. Seymour continued to rally, for, as she had predicted, the weather continued to be cool. They had no severe storm, although there were several cloudy days, with occasionally a dash of rain; and the woman, greatly encouraged, entered into Helen's plans with all the zest which should have been shown, but not, in this case, by the bride-elect herself.

"Helen, you must be married in white," she observed, on Tuesday morning, while they were putting away winter clothing, and looking over summer apparel. "I could not think of having you wear anything else."

Poor Helen had not given a thought to what she should wear upon the occasion referred to—scarcely to the ceremony itself that must precede their fitting. In fact, her chief aim had been to forget all about it; to fill her time so full of work that she could not dwell upon the approaching sacrifice.

"Oh, dearest, it will not matter what I wear," she indifferently replied, although she had paled at the suggestion; "everything will be done so quietly, you know, and there will be no one here, save ourselves, to see what I have on. Besides, I have neither time, money, nor inclination to spend upon the preparation of wedding attire," she concluded, a spasm of pain contracting her lips.

"I know the time is limited, money we have none, and you surely do not seem very enthusiastic; but, all the same, I will not have you married in any other color," Mrs. Seymour persisted, a shade of uneasiness stealing over her face in view of Helen's apathy.

"There is that white serge that I was working upon before I had that last pull-back," she resumed; "it is all finished but putting in the binding, and the lace needs only the collar and facings. I can easily do that; I am so much better this week."

Helen at first flatly refused to allow her to take a stitch for her; but, when she saw how her heart was set upon it, how disappointed she was going to be if she was not married in white, she quietly yielded the point and gave her leave to work, a little while at a time, upon the dress.

Meantime, Hubert was jubilant, and could scarce contain himself for joy.

On leaving Helen after having secured her promise to marry him, he had hurried to a cable office, and sent the following message to Mr. Lancaster, at Paris:

"Miss Helen Seymour will become my wife at 12 o'clock on Saturday, June 15. HUBERT ALTON."

On Wednesday morning following, Hubert received this reply: "Congratulations. Have cabled Rice to deposit in First National Bank, subject to your order, stipulated sum, upon presentation of marriage license."

"H. LANCASTER."

Of course, Hubert was even more elated upon the receipt of the message, and he could scarcely wait for the moment to arrive when his hopes would be consummated, and that long-coveted little fortune safely in his possession.

That same morning, he confided to Mr. Rice that he was to be married on Saturday, and begged that he might have the entire day, promising to work extra hours afterwards to make up the lost time. He also displayed the marriage license, which he had already obtained.

Mr. Rice readily granted him the favor, and, at the same time, he had received a message from Mr. Lancaster, and should be happy to carry out his instructions; the money would be deposited before the week expired, and he could draw upon it at his convenience.

"You are a lucky fellow, Alton," he smilingly added, "to have so won your employer's favor as to prompt him to make you a wedding present like that."

Half-an-hour later, he also handed the young man a liberal check, and requested him to expend it according to his best judgment for his bride-elect, and also present to Miss Seymour his best wishes for her future happiness.

Hubert had already sent word to Mrs. Knight, at Yonkers, to make ready for her guests, who would arrive on the afternoon train, if Mrs. Seymour should be able to make the journey.

Every evening found him at the little suite in — street, where he made himself helpful, as usual, and by Friday night all trunks were packed, and everything was in readiness for the important event and fitting of the morrow.

Mrs. Seymour had completed the pretty white serge; and, this material being very much in favor for outing suits at that season, the dress would not be in the least objectionably conspicuous on their trip, and, with a jaunty sailor hat of straw, banded with a heavy white ribbon, consoled the fond woman, in a measure, for the disappointment of not being able to give her darling a more elaborate wedding outfit.

Helen had worked more and more diligently as the days slipped by; she dare not give herself time to think, lest her heart fail her before the fatal hour appointed for the forging of her fetters.

She lost flesh perceptibly, and, when she arose on Saturday morning, she looked more like a spirit than a being of flesh and blood.

But she assumed a cheerful air and look, for her mother's sake, and bustled around with even more than her accustomed energy, for there were many last things to be done.

One trunk had been left open for a few things that could not be packed the night previous, and this must be made ready to go with the others when the expressman came. She had her mother and herself to dress for the ceremony, and their journey, and lunch to prepare.

Hubert was not to come until nearly 12, when he would bring the clergyman with him; but he sent a pleasant reminder of himself about 9 o'clock, in the shape of a great box of exquisite flowers, to be used as decorations.

When the house was in order, and Helen had completed her mother's toilet, she made the weary woman get into her reclining chair, while she had drawn into the little parlor, and admonished her to rest.

Then she repaired to her own chamber, to don the simple white serge that had been prepared for her bridal.

She had hardly buttoned the beautifully fitting jacket, and fastened a dainty lace jabot at her throat, when she was startled by the ringing of the door bell.

She glanced at the little clock on her dressing case.

It was only a few minutes after 11, and not time yet for Hubert to come.

"Who can it be?" she said to herself. "Oh, the expressman, perhaps!" She ran to the speaking tube in the hall.

"No, is it, please?" she inquired.

"Are you Miss Helen Seymour?" questioned a woman's voice from below.

"Yes."

"Can I see you for a few moments?" Helen thought a moment, then returned:

"I am about leaving town; I am very busy, and must ask to be excused."

"But please, Miss Seymour; I will not detain you long, and I have a matter of great importance to speak to you about," pleaded the person at the other end of the tube.

Again Helen hesitated. She recoiled from meeting a stranger just then; but Hubert would not come for nearly three-quarters of an hour, and she had nothing to do, and she would have to spend all that time thinking, if she remained alone. So she responded:

"Very well; I will see you for a few moments," and pressed the button that controlled the lower door as she spoke.

She then opened the door of her suite, and stood waiting for the appearance of the stranger, listening wonderingly to the faltering steps that seemed to climb the two flights of stairs with difficulty.

Presently, there appeared upon the landing a pale, slim girl, who could not have been more than 18 or 19 years old, her sweet, sad face crowned with a mass of waving, golden hair, and in her arms, she bore a sleeping babe of, perhaps, five months.

"May I come in?" she inquired appealingly, and glancing meekly into Helen's wondering face.

"Yes," she said, after glancing into the parlor, and seeing that her mother, worn out with the excitement of the morning, was sound asleep, "and, if you will not mind, I will take you into my room, where we shall not disturb my mother, who is ill."

"No, I do not mind; anywhere will do," said the girl, with a weary sigh.

Helen softly closed the door, and led the way to her chamber, which was almost at the other end of the hall.

"Put the baby on the bed," she said kindly, as she also noiselessly closed the second door; "you seem very tired after coming up all those stairs."

"Thank you," said the young mother gratefully, and gently depositing the little one upon the couch.

Then she sank weakly upon a chair beside it.

"Miss Seymour, you must forgive me for coming to you this morning," she began, flushing to her brows, while she searched Helen's face with anxious eyes. "I knew you were to be married today, but—"

"You knew? How did you know?" exclaimed Helen in astonishment.

"Who are you, please? You did not tell me."

Again the girl flushed, and her head drooped like a wilted flower.

"My name is Mary Wadleigh," she said in a scarcely audible voice.

"Ah, Mrs. Wadleigh," Helen began, not liking to address her too familiarly, while she glanced from her to the tiny figure upon the bed, and thought how young she seemed to have such a responsibility.

"No," interposed her companion, with a despairing restlessness, while the bright head sank still lower; "I am not married; I—"

"Oh!" gasped Helen, appalled; "forgive me; I thought of that."

"Yes; and you had a right to," sobbed the young stranger, as she paused, feeling she was making a bad matter worse; "and—and I am so wretched! That is why I have dared to come to you today. I thought, perhaps, you were really as lovely and kind as you look, and you—might be willing to—to help me."

"I help you? What can I do for you?" queried Helen, in perplexity. "I am afraid I cannot."

"I am afraid I cannot," she went on hastily, a great pity welling up in her heart for the unfortunate girl; "I have no money. Mamma and I have lost all we had, and I go away this afternoon into the country with my mother, who, as I have told you, is very ill. But how did you happen to come to me? How did you know that I am to be married today?"

"I found it out from a—letter."

"A letter?" exclaimed her listener, more and more puzzled. "To whom was the letter written?"

The girl shivered.

"To—to the father of my baby," she moaned, in a voice of anguish.

"And—who is he?" demanded Helen, and beginning to thrill from head to foot.

"Oh, forgive me, Miss Seymour," Mary Wadleigh returned, as she lifted her heavy, tear-stained eyes appealingly to her companion. "I know that you will hate me when I tell you—but I must, must—he is Hubert Alton!"

CHAPTER XXIII.

"Oh, heavens!" panted Helen, and sank strengthless upon the bed, near which she had been standing.

For two or three minutes there was not a sound in the room.

Mary Wadleigh sat with bowed head, her face covered with tears, while Helen looked like one who had been suddenly turned into a statue frozen with horror.

At length, however, she broke the spell and sat erect, as if imbued with new life and energy; for, notwithstanding the terrible revelation and all that it involved, she felt as if a crushing burden had all at once rolled off her heart.

She was free! Oh, she was free! She need not bow her neck to the yoke of bondage which she had so feared and dreaded. She saw now with clearer vision, and knew that she had no right to do evil that good might come.

For an instant her heart quailed as she thought of her mother, and the terrible disappointment awaiting her; the next she arose above it, telling herself that God would provide a way of escape from future ills, even as he had saved her from this pitfall into which she had been about to plunge headlong.

She reached out her hand and laid it gently upon the shoulder of the stricken girl beside her.

"You poor child!" she said, in tones replete with tender sympathy, "no, indeed, I do not 'hate' you for what you have done. I am glad that you came to me—so glad! And I will help you—I will do anything in my power to lighten your burden," and she glanced sadly at the sleeping child as she concluded.

Mary looked up at her, an expression of mingled wonder and reverence in her sad blue eyes.

She lifted the hand that rested on her shoulder and kissed it softly.

"How good you are! How lovely you are to me! I—I was sure you would speak me!" she murmured, with a choking sob.

"Why should I, dear?" questioned Helen, with starting tears. "I believe you have come in time to save me from committing an even graver wrong. But all I am about you trouble, Mary—for, of course, I must hear the whole story now."

"I will not take more time than I can help," the girl began, glancing at the clock, when Helen quietly interposed, saying:

"Take all the time you need. I want to know everything, and—there will be no wedding here today."

Mary started violently, and searched the grave, beautiful face beside her with eager eyes.

"You will not marry Hubert?" "Most assuredly not," was the decided, almost stern, response.

"Oh, Miss Seymour!" exclaimed the grateful girl, "what a joy! What a relief! I have been so miserable! What can I say? How can I thank you?"

Helen's lips curled ever so slightly as she realized from what she had been saved—how grateful she was for her own escape. But she only remarked, in a friendly tone:

"I am glad if you are comforted. Now let me hear your story—at least, all that you wish to tell me."

"Well, I was born and always lived in —, a suburb of Boston. My father was a druggist in that city. I had a good mother and was carefully reared, but she died when I was fourteen years old, and after that we children—I have two younger brothers—were left to the care of a housekeeper. Two years ago this month I graduated from the high school in the town where we lived. About that time I first met Hubert Alton, who lived with his uncle, in the same place. He was a clerk in his office and went to his business in Boston every day. We liked each other from the first; he paid me a great deal of attention, took me to various places of amusement, the dancing school, in the winter—in fact, we were almost always together when we could be. When I was sixteen, he came to see me, and he did not like Hubert for some reason, and forbade me to receive him at home or go anywhere with him. But I had grown to care so much for him that I was willing to do almost anything to see him, and used to meet him in secret. We were engaged for a long time, Hubert promising to marry me just as soon as his uncle would pay him sufficient salary to warrant such a step. But Mr. Alton failed, and Hubert was thrown out of a position. He said that he would come to New York, where he felt sure he could get another situation, and would send for me just as soon as he could get well established. I never heard from him after he left Boston, sending my letters to the general delivery, as he had told me to do.

"Weeks passed, and I began to get frightened. Then I grew desperate and ran away from home, leaving no word of explanation, and came straight here, vowing that I would search the city over to find the man who had so cruelly deserted me. But, for a long time, I could get no trace of him; then one afternoon—it was a Sunday—on Labry's Dock, I accidentally ran across him in an elevated station, where you and he, with another lady, were waiting to take the train—"

Feels Like a Boy.

Mr. M. N. DAFOE, manager The Dustless Brush Co., 29 Colborne street, Toronto, is telling his friends how he found health after years of illness and pain. He says:

"I have been a great sufferer from dyspepsia for many years. I have been treated by local doctors and have found no relief. I have taken many of the advertised remedies with only temporary relief, if any at all, but since using Anti-Pill I can eat anything the same as when I was a boy. I have been taking one Anti-Pill at bedtime for the past three months, and find they regulate both stomach and bowels. My old time vigor has returned, so that my spirits are buoyant and temper normal. As a result of this experience, I am in duty bound to give all credit to this wonderful remedy, Anti-Pill."

Absolute Purity in Bread

is essential in order to give proper nourishment to the system. It is, however, dependent upon the purity of the flour. You cannot make pure bread with an impure flour.

"FIVE ROSES" FLOUR is made by a process which insures absolute purity. From the time the wheat enters the mill until the flour reaches the cook it is untouched by human hands. The grain itself is thoroughly cleansed before grinding, whilst the flour is sifted, time after time, through the finest silk cloth in order to remove the smallest impurities.

These processes render "FIVE ROSES" an easy and satisfactory flour to use, and insure better results on Baking Day than can be obtained with any ordinary brands.

Six Months in "2 in 1."

A Consulting Chemist Makes a Novel Experiment. An Unsolicited Letter that Explains Itself.

"I write to state that on account of your '2 in 1' Shoe Polish being criticised, and the charge made that it injured leather, I made this test as follows:

I mixed the contents of a box of '2 in 1' Shoe Polish, bought at a retail store from regular stock, with four ounces of water and into this mixture put a kid glove, and left the said glove in the mixture in a bottle from June 15th to December 15th, 1905—a full six months. I then took the glove out, washed it and examined it. The fine leather of the glove was not affected in the least. It was as pliable and soft as when new, and was not altered in condition, nor were the stitches affected in any way

ASPHALT REPAIRS RUN UP TO $2,327

Chairman Gerry Objects to the Manner in Which Work Was Ordered.

The bill for the repairs to the asphalt pavements was presented to No. 2 committee last night by the Warren Paving Company. It was for $2,327 30, and the city daddies only survived the shock. They have $1,299 in the estimates to pay the account. Where the other $1,028 will come from, no one knows; but Mayor Judd told the committee he knows where he can lay his hands on $800, which was not taken into account when the city's receipts were calculated.

There was some criticism of the city engineer for going ahead with the repairs when it was known that the item in the estimates would not cover the cost, but the mayor defended Mr. Graydon.

Chairman Dissatisfied.

"The engineer did what was right," he said.

"If I had been able to get out of bed this bill would not have been incurred," Chairman Gerry declared. "It wasn't fair for the mayor to go ahead and order the work to be done. That was a matter for No. 2 committee. I believe we will have to do it all over again in the fall."

"The work was done in time this year," the mayor replied. "I believe the citizens are pleased, and I would rather please the citizens than stand in with No. 2."

"That's the way to play to the gallery when a man's thinking of running for a second term," Ald. Garratt remarked.

"Well, I think it was right to go ahead with the work," said Ald. Saunders.

"What's the use of having the streets full of holes until the fall, and then having them repaired?"

Street Railway Repairs.

Mayor Judd brought up the matter of the repairs to the pavements which are being made by the London Street Railway Company. He said it was a shame the way the work is being delayed. Citizens were complaining on all sides.

City Engineer Graydon said he could do nothing with the company. His letters were unnoticed, and Manager King was simply doing as he liked.

Mr. Graydon admitted, however, that men are very impatient, and that Manager King is doing his best to get help. The company pays its laborers $1 50 a day, with Saturday afternoon off, and paid for by the company, and also free transportation on the street cars. Even at this men are complaining.

Ald. Garratt advised the committee to be reasonable. He has had trouble himself to get men.

It was finally decided to have Manager King wait on the committee this morning, with a view to patching up the difficulty.

Rowing Club's Dyke.

City Solicitor Meredith wrote that the city does not own the "reserved" lot west of Dundas street bridge, on which is located a "dump," and which is blamed by the London Rowing Club for the narrowing of the river channel, and consequent damage to the club's property.

Mr. Meredith also informed the committee that if the city is liable it has a right to pay something toward the construction of the dyke asked for. But if the city is not liable, then the council has no right to make a grant for the work. The communication from the club re the matter was laid over.

Park Avenue Pavement.

On motion of Ald. Saunders it was decided to initiate an asphalt pavement on Park avenue, between Dundas street and Queen's avenue.

Some discussion arose as to the guarantee which will be given on the macadam pavement it is proposed to put down on King street. The mayor said that if the people are to be satisfied, there must be a ten-year guarantee, but the city engineer said no contractor would give this on a macadam pavement. The matter will be taken up again when the tenders are being considered.

J. J. Carly complained of the grade of a sidewalk on the east side of Waterloo street, between South and Nelson, which he says, injures his property. The committee will investigate the matter.

LADY MARY WEDS.

London, June 14.—Lady Mary Hamilton, only daughter of the late twelfth Duke of Hamilton and Brandon, and the richest woman in Great Britain, was married today at St. George's Church, Hanover Square, to the Marquis of Graham, eldest son of the Duke of Montrose. King Edward was among those present at the ceremony. The church was filled with members of the peerage.

Wasting Process of Disease

Disease is a tearing down, wasting away and destroying of the tissues of the body and a shrivelling up of the nerve cells and blood corpuscles.

This wasting process may attack the lungs, the heart, the liver, the kidneys, the bowels, or, as is most frequently the case, result in collapse of the nervous system, prostration, paralysis or insanity.

You may rest assured that disease will search out your weak spot and gain the upper hand.

Nature demands assistance to overcome this dreadful wasting process. And such assistance is best supplied by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which is by far the most thoroughly effective tissue-builder and nerve restorative that is known to the medical profession.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food stops this wasting process, puts new life and energy into the wasted nerve cells and overcomes weakness and disease; 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2 50, at all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author on every box.

WEE ONES TAKE TO HORTICULTURE

School Children of City Order
Nearly Twelve Thousand
Packages of Seeds.

The members of the London Horticultural Society are more than pleased with the success of the move inaugurated some time ago to cultivate a love for flowers among the school children of the city.

The society offered to furnish the boys and girls with all the seeds desired at one cent a package, thus enabling all the little ones to take advantage of the opportunity to indulge in the helpful pastime of horticulture. The result exceeded expectations, nearly eleven thousand packages being necessary to supply the demand. The children's orders were not confined to flower seeds. Twelve varieties of these were listed—asters, alysium, balsam, impatiens, petunia, sweet pea, morning glory, nasturtium, phlox, China pinks, verbena and zinnia—and in addition beets, beans, lettuce, onions, radish and sweet corn could be purchased.

The children of St. George's school, who have taken part of every good scheme with a will, headed the order list with a total of 1,284 packages. Elmwood street, the largest school in the city in the number of pupils, was second with a total of 1,049 packages. Princess avenue was the only other school exceeding the thousand mark, its order totaling 1,014 packages. The orders from the other schools were as follows: Victoria, 957 packages; Talbot street, 890 packages; Colborne street, 864 packages; Rectory street, 825 packages; West London, 742 packages; Lorne avenue, 679 packages; Aberdeen, 644 packages; Chesley avenue, 506 packages; Grand avenue, 420 packages; Wortley road, 412 packages; King street, 282 packages; Quebec street, 141 packages; Richmond street, 72 packages; Empress, 15 packages.

The Horticultural Society is so greatly pleased with the success of the move that it will try and do even better for the school children next spring.

FLOWER SHOW NEXT WEEK

Horticultural Society to Hold It in the City Hall.

The London Horticultural Society has decided to hold its summer flower show in the city hall on Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

The show will doubtless attract much attention on the part of the flower-growers of London, all of whom are requested to exhibit the products of their gardens. Roses and peonies will be at their best next week, and it is anticipated that the display of them will excel previous years.

The show will continue until 10 o'clock on Thursday evening, and it will be free to the public. The choicest floral products of London's gardens will be shown.

DOESN'T PLEASE MAYOR

Action of Health Board in Regard to Isolation Hospital.

The repairs to the asphalt pavement will cost about $2,300, and only the sum of $1,000 was provided for the work in the estimates. Unless the difference is taken out of the account for streets, it looks as though Mayor Judd's chances for an overdraft this year are improving.

The city will have to foot the bill for the new small hospital, and this will mean probably another thousand.

Mayor Judd doesn't like the way the health board has handled the matter. He admits the isolation hospital was needed, but he thinks the board might have come to the council and asked for the money.

Chairman English claims, however, that the board has the power to build the hospital under the health act.

About $750 of the cost of the hospital has already been paid by the city.

TWO PRESENTATIONS

Hospital Staff Makes Them to Miss McMaster.

A very pleasant affair took place at Victoria Hospital Wednesday, when a couple of presentations to Miss McMaster, late head nurse at the institution, and who has resigned, took place.

The surgical and medical staff presented Miss McMaster with a handsome gold necklace, studded with pearls. Dr. Hogg made the presentation on behalf of the staff and Dr. Shoebottom replied on behalf of Miss McMaster.

The nurses in training also presented Miss McMaster with a beautiful gold pendant. Afterwards the graduating class held an evening in Miss McMaster's honor, at which were present several prominent citizens.

SMASHES ALL RECORDS

Empress of Britain, Land to Land, Three Days Twenty-One Hours.

Montreal, Que., June 14.—The C. P. R. royal mail steamship Empress of Britain, sailing from the landing stage at Liverpool at 9 o'clock Saturday evening, June 9, passed out to sea from Moville at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

She was in communication with Cape Race by Marconi wireless telegraph at 6 o'clock this morning, being at that time 100 miles east of that station, thus completing the run from land to land in 3 days 21 hours. This not only beats her own record, but the record of any other steamship over the same route. A westerly gale is reported at Cape Race which may delay her advance up the river. The Empress is expected in Quebec early Saturday morning. She carries 107 first-class, 412 second-class and 850 third-class passengers.

SBARETTI WILL OFFICIATE.

Montreal, June 14.—Monsignor Sbarette, apostolic delegate to Canada, will take part in the Corpus Christi procession in this city next Sunday, and will carry the blessed sacrament throughout the line of the procession. Archbishop Bruchési and Bishop Racicot also will take part.

GOOD WORK BY MEDICAL CORPS

Carling Heights Men Render Effective Service to Seriously Injured Citizen.

Wednesday evening on the way to Springbank, Mr. D. McGinnis, of this city, was seriously injured by his foot becoming entangled in the fender of a street car and being dragged face downwards for a distance of about 200 feet. His face was mutilated almost beyond recognition, and his whole body suffered a terrible shaking up. It so fortunately happened that on a following car there were four men of the Army Medical Corps of Windsor—Leo Charlton, John Charlton, Raymond Cruise and Raymond Burke—and these, assisting Dr. McQuade, of St. Joseph's Hospital, who chanced to be on the scene, the unfortunate McGinnis received all the attention that emergency work could offer. The man's wounds were carefully dressed and the four young men showed the splendid training which they had received at the camp. The officers in command of this division are Capt. Sanderson, M. D., Lieut. Cruikshank, M. D., and Lieut. Bucke, M. D. It will be remembered that Dr. Bucke is a well-known London Old Boy.

TESTS POLAR BALLOON

Wellman to Start for Arctic Regions
Within a Few Days.

Paris, June 14.—A highly-satisfactory public test was made today of the motors for the dirigible balloon, America, with which Walter Wellman is about to start on his expedition to the North Pole. The machines developed 100 horsepower, instead of the contract power of 75.

The envelope, appliances and provisions also were exhibited, and greatly interested aeronauts, military men and notable men of science representing most European countries, who had gathered at Saint Omer.

The Prince of Monaco, congratulated both Mr. Wellman and Constructor Godard, and said he means to go in his yacht to Spitzbergen in July, to carry out certain scientific work. The Prince offered to convey belated supplies or assist the expedition in any other way.

Several scientists told Mr. Wellman that the mere constructing and equipping of such an enormous airship is a great step in advance.

Members of the expedition expressed satisfaction with the results already attained and confidence in success. Every possible precaution has been taken, Mr. Wellman said, to insure the attainment of the goal aimed at. The delay caused by the recent strikes prevented an attempt at inflation of the balloon in Paris, but thorough trials will be made at Danes Island, where the airship can be tested under proper atmospheric conditions.

The visiting public showed an eagerness to secure souvenirs in the shape of portions of the material of which the airship is constructed.

Mr. Wellman intends to start north this week.

THE TORONTO METHODISTS

Would Face Church Union Problem,
But Act With Caution.

Toronto, June 14.—About 150 ministers and 100 laymen are attending the Toronto Methodist Conference, which opened in Euclid street Church this morning. The attendance is likely to be increased as conference proceeds.

The morning was given over chiefly to the election of president and secretary. Rev. R. N. Burns, of Brampton, was elected to the former position, and Rev. J. C. Speers, who had himself been second in the race in the running for the presidency, President Burns gave an appropriate address, in which he commented on the fact that doctors inside and outside their ranks were trying to prescribe for Methodism.

"The greatest need of the Methodist Church," he said, "is an overmastering spirituality."

He said he would like it settled now and for all time that we should have a Christian Sabbath. Dealing with the subject of church union, the speaker, while favoring the suggestion, said:

"I want to say that I am not at all anxious that we should take a leap in the dark, or that we should leap too far."

He was, however, desirous that they should face the difficulty, and he hoped that they would all help in the matter so far as God gave them strength.

The ex-president then handed over to the new president the staff of office, and President Burns, in responding, remarked:

"I shall lean on this staff, but I shall lean often on the confidence of my brethren."

Rev. Isaac Couch, of Woodgreen Tabernacle, was elected secretary by a large majority.

Rev. Dr. Carman, general superintendent of the Methodist Church, is presiding over the gathering.

Rev. E. W. Wallace, B.A., B.D., son of Dr. Wallace, of Victoria University, is to receive special ordination into the Methodist Church for service in China.

SNAP-SHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

The Kirkfield stable has come to the conclusion that Kamerman will never make a race-horse. Only Kamerman? There are bunches of them at Hamilton.

The Toronto Star opines that there are barnacles on that good ship, the Toronto ball team. Barnacles, my boy, why, great guns, there is not enough good stuff in that bunch for a barnacle to stick on.

Toronto runners broke some records. They ran from Hamilton to Toronto. There is nothing surprising in that. Why shouldn't they?

A $40,000 killing was made on Picaroon at Hamilton the other day. That may be right, but we opine that if a $10 bet were made on a 100 to 1 shot they would make it favorite at 1 to 10.

The auto shrieked "Honk! honk!" and roused

The farm birds wide awake;
The gander barked, "Ah, there's a sound
Like mother used to make."

E. Barrow, of Toronto, has a couple of new men in sight. His team at present sure is out of sight.

Ain't that Beef Trust sausage a regular skin game? Oh, behave, behave!

Hamilton racegoers have to figure the furlongs into parasangs ever since Williamides Sherring got back from Athens.

Someone said the Toronto ball team was to have its picture taken, and it would prove a striking likeness.
(Loud cries of LIAISON)—Telegram.

Wisdom King is in good shape already, and is going strong and true. He ought to do well in his classes down the big line.

The London races so far have been excellent, and the patronage has been better than usual. If nothing happens that would hurt the sport, there will be mighty crowds here next year.

He could tell you all the horses
That had run at all the courses,
When they ever held a meeting,
Since the racing year began.
And not only could he tell you
All the names, but he could—well, you
See, he made their form a study—
Could say exactly how they ran.

For he knew which horse was leading
At each meeting, and their breeding,
With the time for every quarter,
And the horse that won the race.
He knew which had "sulked" or faltered,
And just how it would have altered
Their positions at the finish
Had the favorite made the pace.

He knew records to a second,
Who had made them, and had reckoned
Just what other horse could do it,
When the track was fast or slow.
He remembered, too, the betting,
And the jockeys, not forgetting
To note specially the distance
Every one of them could go.

As a "plunger" he was noted,
And his "tips" were often quoted,
Be it fair or stormy weather,
He was always at the track.
He came always, too, with money,
But, although 'tis very funny—
He could tell so much about them,
He was always walking back.

COVERPOINT.

Wisdom King's Good Work
Third Day at the RacesTook Pace in Straight Heats
—Collingwood Boy Won Second Event.

There was a big, broad smile on the face of every officer of the London Trotting and Pacing Association at Queen's Park, yesterday afternoon. The reason was apparent to all. The success of the four days' meeting was from every standpoint assured. Tuesday had seen good weather, good racing and a crowd fully up to expectations for the opening day. Wednesday had seen almost a record attendance, and splendid racing, and yesterday, with the weather men still looking with a favorable eye on London, any anxiety that may have been felt on the score of the financial success of the meeting was dispelled. Today the races ended, and the close finds the promoters jubilant.

Won in Straight Heats.

There were three events on the card yesterday afternoon—a 2:16 pace, a 2:23 pace, and a 3/4-mile run. Dan McEwen, the well-known driver, of this city, got in the money in both of the harness events.

In the 2:16 pace he landed first, with that good horse owned by F. Liebler, of Tavistock-Wisdom King. The race was won in straight heats. In fact, there was nothing else to it but Wisdom King for the heavy city of the purse. Gertie Hunter, a pretty little bay mare owned by E. M. Stewart, of Guelph, was looked upon by many as standing a show to get the first money, but the horse, while willing was not in good shape, this being her first race of the season. Had she been in form, she would have made the others take notice of her, for she has a mark of 2:18 1/4.

Gertie Hunter's chief trouble yesterday lay in her liability to get off her feet. In the second heat, she was kept by Wisdom King company, coming down the stretch for the first time, with the others trailing, when she went off her feet so badly that she dropped back into last place and found it impossible to get anywhere near the front again. On the other hand, Wisdom King was steady throughout the mile.

Again, in the third heat, the little Guelph mare showed to better advantage than she did in either of the preceding miles. She got away with Wisdom King, and by avoiding anything resembling a break, she came along the entire distance on the heels of the favorite. In the last sixteenth, Fleming tried to pass Wisdom King, but the latter was not inclined to throw good things away, and he refused to allow any change of positions. The summary: 2:16 class, pacing, 3 in 5 heats, purse $300—

Four Heats in 2:23 Pace.
The 2:23 class pace went to Colling-wood Boy, a fine stepper, owned and driven by W. R. McGirr, of Meaford. Collingwood Boy could not, or would not, do better than sixth in the opening heat, but the remaining three he took without any apparent difficulty, although he was closely pursued at times.

The third and fourth were the best heats of the race. When the horses were within a stone's throw of the wire in the third, Davey E. of whom the wise ones expected considerable, was going almost neck and neck with Collingwood Boy, but the pace was too much for him, and he broke, falling back to fourth position. Again, in the fourth heat, McEwen, with Wilhelmina, cut out a beautiful race, Wilhelmina and Collingwood Boy being very chummy through the entire mile. The Meaford horse, in fact, appeared a trifle wobbly on two occasions, but it was only for a moment, and when the stretch was reached he made good and came under the wire half a length in front. The summary:

Run to Old Horseman.

The five-eighths mile run went to Chappel Boy, a chestnut gelding owned by Henry Chappel, of Sandwich, Ont., one of the oldest horsemen in Canada, and who, by the way, owned a Queen's Plate winner in the early days. Considerable feeling was aroused among the jockeys over this event, the idea being to beat Chappel Boy if it was at all possible. Murray, on the Sandwich horse, however, won in two straight heats, never being headed. It was only after considerable delay that the horses got away in the second heat, and when they did the owner of the latter threatened Starter Ferguson, who, he said, had not given his horse a fair show. A well-dressed woman also created a little scene in front of the judges' stand, after the race. Referring to one of the officials, she said she had not given one of the horses a fair deal, and if she had him on the track she could give him a severe whipping. The chastising was not administered. SOJERS WILL TACKLE
LEADERS TOMORROW

The Stars and Seventh Regiment meet tomorrow afternoon, and a great ball match will result. If the "Sojers" win they will be on "easy street" for a time. They will be Keenan's last game, as he goes east Monday to play in a fast professional team. The Rocket-Champion game will be a good one, too. The line-up:

First Game—2:30 o'clock.
Rockets—Catcher, Mines; pitcher, Wilson or McNeerney; first base, G. Arthur; second base, Heston; shortstop, Macdonald; third base, W. Arthur; center field, Gillett; center field, Rose; right field, Gatecliff.

Second Game—4 o'clock.
Stars—Catcher B. Jeffries; pitcher, W. Clark; first base, Tierney; second base, Graham; shortstop, Fleming; third base, Ward; left field, O'Rourke; center field, C. Jeffries; right field, B. Clark.

BASEBALL.

DOWNED THE TYPOS.
St. Thomas, June 14.—In the City Baseball League game at Athletic Field tonight the Wabash defeated the Typos 6 to 7. The Typos looked like winners up to the last innings, when outfield errors cost them the game.

MAPLE CITY TEAM LOSES.
Chatham, June 14.—The West Lorne nine won from the locals today by 7 to 4. The game was played before the lacrosse match at the fair grounds. The batteries for West Lorne, Jinks, Neal and Clarke; for Chatham, Dingman, Davis and O'Keefe. Umpire, Dr. Webster.

KERR'S GOOD WORK.
On Wednesday, the Orsels defeated the Hyman's in the Junior League series by the score of 7 to 0. Kerr, for Orsels, pitched right-edge ball, having ten strikeouts to his credit and no hits.

Score:
Orsels 7 7 1
Hyman's 0 0 0
The following is the league standing to date.

Base Running a Lost Art;
Some Great Feats at It

Buffalo Express: Good base-running consists in reaching the base safely, bad base-running consists in being caught. At least that is the verdict of the crowd, and even an expert has a hard time to tell whether the base-runner is good or bad. Some of the worst breaks made on bases win games and some of the best result in defeat. The expert can tell a good base-runner by the way he gets the start, the ground he gains while the pitcher is delivering the ball, the way he slides to the object base and the judgment he uses in stealing.

A good base-runner will take a chance at one stage of a game that he never would think of attempting at another; will make seemingly insane steals at unaccountable times. He is using his judgment.

Base-running has, in a sense, become a lost art. Baseball now is played by certain mathematical rules and regulations, and there is no more of the brilliant individual feats of the old days. Everyone who plays now knows just what stage the game is in, what to do in that stage, and if he does not the signals from the batter to him show him his duty. In the old days most of them ran unaided by bunt, "squeeze," hit and run, or blocking or feinting to bunt to draw the fielders out of position.

Teams still run bases, hoping to demoralize the opposition, but not to the extent that they did in the early years of the game. In those days a team would run bases at every stage, and many times would so upset the defense that it broke all to pieces, and then the victors ran at will.

When Comiskey's St. Louis gang was sweeping the boards it got against the New York Giants, and there ensued the most daring exhibition of base-running perhaps ever seen outside of the marvelous running of the old Chicago White Stockings. The association of the Giants and they started at it.

In the first inning old John Latham rapped out a hit and tore for first. He went there, yelling like a Comanche that no National Leaguer could put him out. He turned first, dashed for second, and the astounded Giants wild and he beat the ball there. Never stopping, he turned and dashed for third. By that time the Giants had recovered a bit, and Jules was called out at third, by the narrowest of margins, with a desperate twisting slide. He always vowed he never was touched. The Browns tried to sweep the Giants off their feet. They ran the bases like wild men, but they were stopped. Buck Ewing's throwing was too much for them and they actually were beaten at their own game.

Mike Kelly was perhaps the most daring of all base-runners. He never was extremely fast and in his later years grew extremely slow—but he stole almost as many bases when slow as ever he did. Indeed, the best base-runners the game has known were men of medium speed in running, and few of the really fast sprinters ever were good base-runners. Kelly ran bases with his head instead of his feet.

One of the best tricks that old team ever pulled off was against Boston in Chicago. Kelly engineered the deal, although he was on first base, with a runner—Burns, I think—on third. One was out and the worst hitter in the team up, with one run needed. Kelly was standing on first, and as the pitcher prepared to deliver the ball he was out and the worst hitter in the team up, with one run needed. Kelly was standing on first, and as the pitcher prepared to deliver the ball he was out and the worst hitter in the team up, with one run needed.

The pitcher took a glance to see if the runner had left third, and saw him standing still, and to his astonishment saw Kelly still tearing toward second.

He hesitated, expecting Kel would stop or slow up—then threw, and threw high while Kel, instead of sliding and reaching second in safety, merely touched the base and turned toward third at top speed, leaving the second baseman holding the ball in astonishment. The runner at third had moved off ten feet as Kel came tearing toward him yelling commands, and catching the drift of the play, he sprinted for home. The throw went to the plate ahead of him as he rushed homeward, and seeing himself hopelessly out, he slowed up a bit, and Kelly, coming on from third, slid around him, escaped the astonished catcher, who was tagging the other runner, and scored, evening up the game.

Kelly invented the "Chicago slide," which was one of the greatest tricks ever pulled off. It was a combination slide, twist and dodge. The runner went straight down the line at top speed and when nearing the base threw himself either inside or outside of the line, doubled the left leg under him (if sliding inside, or the right, if sliding outside), slid on the doubled-up leg around the base, and pivoted on it, stopping on the opposite side of the base.

Every player of the old Chicago team practiced and perfected that slide and got away with hundreds of stolen bases when really they should have been touched out easily. There are some modern players who make the slide something as it was done then, but Bill Dahlin, of New York, really is the only one in either big league who executes it regularly and perfectly.

Elmer Foster was a great base-runner after his style. He ran regardless of consequences, and perhaps no man that ever played in fast company ever took an extra base on a hit offener than did Elmer. He simply refused to stop at his legitimate destination, and kept right on. When he got caught he always said: "Why, I wasn't a bit tired. Why should I have stopped running?"

One day Foster was turning third, trying to score from second on a short hit, when Billy Kuehne bumped him with his hip, threw him out into the grass, and forced him to stop. Elmer was wild. He kept yelling, "I'll be around here again." The next time he made a two-base hit, and he never stopped at second, but dashed on for third at top speed. The second baseman, surprised, made a high throw to third, and Kuehne stretched to get the ball just as Foster, leaping through the air, landed on his chest with both feet and kicked him half way to the grand stand. Foster came home running backwards and yelling with delight at Kuehne—and then got sore because he was called out.

One of the funniest incidents in base-stealing I ever saw happened in Chicago one of the years that Bill Lange led the league in base running. It was a close race between Lange and Hamilton for the honors and the season was drawing to a close. The game was a close one, and Lange led off in the eighth inning with a two-bagger. Anson went to bat and laid down a perfect bunt, intending to sacrifice. He went out in a close finish at first, and looking up, discovered Lange still perched on second. He was furious, but that condition was mild compared to what he experienced an instant later when Lange stole third—and took the lead for base-running honors.

BASKETBALL.

AMONG THE JUNIORS.

The Junior Anchors beat the Bridge Street nine in a good ball game the other night, 6 to 4. The battery for the winning team was W. Heard and H. McDonald.

THE TURF.

YESTERDAY'S WINNERS.

At Gravesend—Lady Amelia 15 to 20, Benevolent 7 to 5, Logistilla 3 to 2, Adoration 7 to 10, Red Flair 5 to 1, Bat Master 11 to 5.

At Buffalo—Curtis 5 to 1, Embarrasment 3 to 5, Custer, 5 to 2, Jack Atkin 6 to 1, Silver Wedding 6 to 5, Elliott 2 to 1.

At Latonia—Stroud 5 to 1, Dainty Dame 3 to 2, Rabert 8 to 5, Devout 15 to 1, Lexington 15 to 1, Daniel C. 15 to 5, Cause 8 to 5.

STAKES TO FAVORITE.

New York, June 14.—Adoration, backed down from 8 to 5 to 7 to 10, easily won the Clover Stakes at Gravesend today. She went to the front at the start, and rounding the far turn opened a gap of five lengths, and holding her advantage to the finish, won by the same distance. Killcrankie, second choice, finished second, three lengths before Lachesis, a 40-to-1 shot, who was an added starter. W. Harry Brown today sold to James B. Brady the 3-year-old bay colt Accountant for the reported price of $40,000. He is by Filigrane-Reckon, and is considered, now that Burgomaster is retired, to be the best colt in the east. He is heavily engaged in all the 3-year-old stakes.

WON IN ROQUEUIL STAKES.

Buffalo, June 14.—Barney Schreiber's Jack Atkin won the Roqueuil stake for 2-year-olds at Kenilworth Park today. Jack Atkin outbroke his field and forced a terrific pace. Ethon, the favorite, had to go round the field to get to the leaders, being on even terms with Jack Atkin at the half. The pair fought it out to the wire, Schreiber's youngster winning by a head. Clear, last.

GOOD RACING AT MONTREAL.

COMPANY WILL PAY

Per Marquette Agrees to End Litigation in Navin Case.

It is understood that the Pere Marquette Railway Company has agreed to pay the damages and costs in the suit of Navin vs. L. E. and D. R. R., and that the matter will now be ended.

At Toronto yesterday the company asked for an extension of the period in which notice of appeal to the supreme court must be entered, but the court dismissed the motion with costs.

Gibbons, Harper & Gibbons, solicitors for the plaintiff, have now notified that the Pere Marquette has decided to settle the case.

The judgment is for $5,000, with costs amounting to about $3,000 more.

HE SERVED LONDON WELL

Late Auditor Had Plan to Save City $1,300 When Summoned.

A few days before City Auditor Jewell died, he informed Mayor Judd that he thought he could save the city about $1,300 on some local improvement debentures which were to be negotiated.

What these debentures are for, or how the money is to be saved, no one around the city hall yet knows, but of course City Treasurer Pope will be able to ascertain this in a day or so.

It was this watchfulness of the late auditor which made him such a valuable man to the city. He was always looking ahead, and with Treasurer Pope's assistance, saved the city thousands of dollars each year.

"Since he has been auditor, he has saved the city enough money to buy the Masonic Temple," said one of the officials to The Advertiser today.

The money which Mr. Jewell spoke of will come from the city's share of the council which is now about $1,100 behind on asphalt repairs and probably $1,000 on the new isolation hospital.

HARD PLACE TO FILL

Council Will Have Difficulty in Securing Successor to Mr. Jewell.

The appointment of a successor to the late Auditor Jewell is a matter which will give the city council some cause for worry.

It will be impossible to secure a man with Mr. Jewell's knowledge of civic affairs, as he was recognized as one of the first among the experts of the Province.

In all probability the matter will come before the council next Monday night.

There is one man in the city hall who is competent to fill the position, and would likely secure it if he would accept it, and that man is Major Hayes, the present collector of the city.

It is scarcely likely that the major would consent to accept the position, however, if it were offered to him. He is, however, the business public of London would be behind him if the council chose to appoint him to the position.

He is, moreover, well acquainted with the intricacies of all branches of the city service.

MRS. BUSH APPEALS

Takes Court to Set Aside Judgment Against Her for $700.

The case of Bush vs. Park, recently tried in London, has come up for review in the high court, Toronto, before Chief Justice Meredith and Justices Fetzell and Anglin. Mr. E. T. Essery, for defendant, Emily Bush, appealed from the judgment of Chancellor Boyd, upon the verdict of a jury at the London assizes, 18th of April, 1906. The plaintiff and his wife, Emily Bush, one of the defendants, had been separated for a number of years, living in two separate houses upon the same lands, and had for many years been at variance. In September, 1905, it is alleged that, on account of the feeling between the parties, the defendants conspired to have the plaintiff placed in an asylum for the insane, although they knew he was not insane. The plaintiff was on the 2nd of September, 1905, brought before a justice of the peace, who committed him to the London Jail, and thence he was sent to the London Asylum for the Insane on the 24th of October, 1905, and there was kept until the 17th of November, 1905, when he was discharged on the ground that he was not and never had been insane. The plaintiff thereupon brought action for $2,000 damages for false imprisonment, etc., and for $200 for certain things stolen during his absence from home. The defendants denied conspiracy, and pleaded that plaintiff was insane at the time of the proceedings. The action was dismissed as to the defendants, Archibald and Esther Park, with costs to be paid by plaintiff, but against Emily Bush the plaintiff recovered $700 damages and costs. J. A. Robinson (St. Thomas), for the plaintiff, the respondent, opposed appeal. Reserved.

KING'S DAUGHTERS ELECT

City Union Chooses Its Officers for the Year.

The annual meeting of the city union of King's Daughters was held last night in the Y. W. C. A. rooms, Mrs. Sage, president, in the chair. An interesting address on "Ideals of King's Daughters," was given by Mrs. J. J. Ross, and much appreciated. A solo by Mrs. Jarvis also formed a pleasant part of the evening's programme.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Miss Moran.
First Vice-President—Mrs. Sage.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. Jarvis.
Recording Secretary—Miss Brown.
Corresponding Secretary—Miss McBride.

Treasurer—Mrs. Frank Lawson.
Delegates to the convention at Guelph in October—Miss Maron and Mrs. Frank Lawson.

Encouraging reports of the year's work were submitted by the different officers.

WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Garden Party in Aid of the Church of Hosanna, Hyde Park.

Mr. Labatt's beautiful grounds on Queen's avenue, never looked more inviting than they did yesterday, when the garden party and sale in aid of the rectory for the Church of the Hosanna, Hyde Park, took place. The Columbia Graphophone contributed largely to the pleasure of all present, and was quite equal to a full band. The ladies engaged in furthering the good cause worked with unflagging energy; even the little children caught the spirit of making personal effort to help in time of need, and many of them went in and out among the people present with dainty articles for sale, and brought in a goodly sum for the same. The president and secretary of the guild at Hyde Park, could scarcely find words sufficient to express their extreme gratitude to the people of London, and especially those who had the matter more immediately in hand, for the generous help extended to the Anglicans of Hyde Park. They would take this opportunity of thanking all who contributed to making the garden party and sale such a success.

JURY DISAGREED

Case of Thomas Tull, of Caradoc, Goes Over to December Court.

The jury in the case of Thomas Tull, the Caradoc farmer charged with seriously injuring Edward Sparksman during a fight, disagreed yesterday afternoon at the June sessions. The jury was dismissed, and the defendant, Tull, bailed to appear at the December sessions.

Tull gave evidence in his own behalf. He acknowledged kicking Sparksman, but alleged he only kicked him once. He swore that Sparksman was the aggressor, and struck him first. He was afraid of Sparksman and kicked him to protect himself.

Tull's evidence was corroborated to some extent by the testimony of his brother, Robert Tull.

Sparksman is still in a very bad condition, and it will be some time before he recovers from the terrible beating. He told his story and swore that Tull was the aggressor in the fight, and had kicked him several times. He was the only witness on his own behalf who was present at the time of the row.

COST OF PUBLIC BATHS

Ald. Armstrong Says It Will Be Less Than $5,000.

No. 1 committee of the city council meets at 5 o'clock today, and No. 3 at 8 o'clock this evening.

At the meeting of No. 1, Ald. Armstrong will produce figures to show that public baths, as the committee required, can be established in this city for the sum of $4,800. He also states that if the city will rent bathing suits, at least $1,000 of an annual revenue can be realized.

Ald. Armstrong had an interview with Mr. Frank Leonard, regarding the offer made by the Leonard estate fifteen years ago, for the establishment of public baths. At the time the Leonard offered to give several thousand dollars if the city would make up the remainder. Now Mr. Leonard refuses to take up the matter, as he says the money was diverted to other uses, when the city did not take up the scheme.

Chief Justice Hands Down a Decision in the Bragg Case.

Toronto, June 15.—Louis Bragg, of London, died, leaving the care of her imbecile son, John, to the care of Ellen Bragg, her daughter-in-law. In one clause of her will she directed that $200 was to be paid to Ellen within a year of the death of the testator, for the care of John. In another clause she stated that an income of $3,000 was to be set aside for his maintenance. The question was submitted to Chief Justice Falconbridge as to whether the $200 was in addition to the income of $3,000 or in substitution thereof. Ellen Bragg claimed it was in addition, and Mary Jane Howe, a daughter, claimed that it meant in substitution. The chief justice found for the $200 was in substitution for the first year's income on the $3,000.

A very pleasant time was spent at the residence of Mrs. M. G. Gray, con. 7, London Township, recently, the occasion being a family reunion. Relatives from London, Lobo, Sylvan, Port Huron, Woodstock, Parkhill, Brantford, Toronto and Detroit were present. The afternoon was spent in games and music, and after a very enjoyable time over 60 sat down to a sumptuous repast.

ONE JOB AT A TIME

Railway Will Thus Avoid Inconvenience on Streets.

Chairman Gerry, of the board of works, met Manager King of the street railway, in the mayor's office this morning, and discussed the delays in the repairs to the pavements which are being made by the company, and also the new pavement on Dundas street east of the Edward street belt.

The outcome of the conference was that the chairman secured a promise from Mr. King to proceed as far as possible with one job at a time, so that the streets may not be torn up at different places in the city.

As soon as the gang of men at work on Richmond street finish to York street, the gang will be divided, and some will be put to work on the Dundas street east job and some on the Edward street job.

Mr. King says he is doing his best to have the Edward street belt in operation by July 1, the time stated in the agreement.

which he called "The Chinese Imperial Reform Association," and branches to the number of one hundred have already been formed in the Straits Settlements, Australia, the United States, and other countries.

The objects of the association are in the main to educate the Chinese in foreign countries in western social and government matters, and to show how these could be adapted to China's needs. Then it is expected that the mass of the Chinese nation can be instructed through the agents of the society and the forming of branches within the empire. The aim of the society is peaceful reform in the direction of a constitutional government, with a parliament under the present emperor.

A branch of the society has lately been organized in this city with Mr. Quong Wing as president and Mr. W. Lee as secretary. A large room has been secured and fitted up at the top of the building above Mr. Boyd's store on Dundas street. The opening day will be July 2, when delegates from Montreal, Toronto, and many other points will be in the city, and the citizens will have the opportunity of seeing the flag of the association flying over the building together with the Chinese dragon flag and the flag of Canada.

PACKERS WANT NEW TRIAL

Persons who were charged with having stolen goods from the United States, and who were convicted by the Federal Court, are now being held in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. The United States Attorney at Leavenworth, Kan., has asked the Federal Court to grant a new trial to the persons who were convicted. The reason for this is that the persons who were convicted were not given a fair trial, and the Federal Court has granted a new trial to the persons who were convicted.

claims for abutment damages, as a sample of the agreement which the company has made with other places. Mayor Judd refused to be interviewed on the subject today. He has received no communication of any nature from the company, and does not care to talk of the matter.

Around the city hall the feeling is, as was stated in The Advertiser some days ago, that the whole scheme will come before the city late in the fall, when an agreement may be reached whereby a bylaw to exempt the company on all assessments over, say, $500,000, will be submitted to the people in January. Thus the cost of taking a special vote would be overcome, and as it is now too late to proceed with the improvements this year, no time will be lost.

It is also said that the scheme to overcome the liability deadlock is now in sight, so that both parties can get down to business.

Baking Powder Proof

It is an easy matter to determine the relative merits of baking powders by testing them yourself. When baking use Strong's Baking Powder in half and baking soda in the other half. You can identify it afterwards. Do the same with any other good powder in the other half, and notice the results. If you don't think Strong's Baking Powder is the best now, you will have no doubt of it after putting it to a practical test. Besides, it only costs half what any other pure powder costs. 25c pound.

The C. P. R. shipyard, which adjoins the mill, was almost in the grasp of the flames.

Fortunately, about 7 o'clock, the wind changed its course, and with the help of the pumps of the C. P. R. steamer Minto, which was got under steam as quickly as possible, the fire was confined within a certain area.

The tug Columbia arrived later, and is throwing a stream of water on the fiercely raging piles. Steamer Rossland has also been hurriedly sent for to protect the company's property.

The C. P. R. has lost three box cars and one flat car, but saved several others.

The entire population is working hard to confine the flames to the mill, and make many fire-fighting efforts to save some of the lumber piles.

The mill had a capacity of 50,000 feet per day, and the loss on plant is about $20,000. The yards containing nearly 5,000,000 feet. The whole is covered by insurance, but the amount is unknown. Unless the wind changes its course during the night, all outside property is saved. The company's offices, stores and cookhouses are intact.

Between 50 and 60 men were employed at the mill.

BEWARE THE BIGHEAD

Most Dangerous Diseases for the Newly Graduated, Says Hammond.

New York, June 15.—John Hayes Hammond, the mining engineer who came into special prominence during the Jameson raid in South Africa, received the honorary degree of doctor of engineering from Stevens Institute, Hoboken, N. J., at the commencement of that institution yesterday. Seventy-six students were graduated, and Stevens with the degree of mechanical engineers. James E. Denton and David Schenck Jacobus also received the degree of doctor of engineering, besides Mr. Hammond. The members of the graduating class were cautioned not to contract the disease known as "big head" when they received the diplomas.

Mr. Hammond, who delivered the commencement day address, told them that this disease was one of the most dangerous obstacles to the success of college graduates.

KEEP RICH FROM SENATE

Wisconsin Supreme Justice Says They Should Not Be Eligible.

Ripon, Wis., June 15.—Justice-elect W. H. Timlin, of the Wisconsin supreme court, would break up the "rich men's club" of the United States Senate. In an address delivered at the commencement exercises at Ripon College today, Mr. Timlin advocated barring rich men from election as senators. He said:

"The multi-millionaire should not be eligible to a seat in the United States Senate. See to what a pitch the vulgar rich have brought this body which is supposed to be the grandest legislative body in the history of the world."

Justice Timlin did not stop here, but said some sharp things about other problems which have been brought before the legislature, and suggested some radical answers. One of the things which ought not to be done was the factor of proportion. It was useless, he said, to pass laws declaring that certain things should or should not be done. But he believed it feasible to regulate all things.

"One of the first things we must give up," said Judge Timlin, "is the notion that an individual or corporation has the right to get hold of or own as much money or property of the country as he or it can acquire. There should be a limitation written into the constitution of the United States, where the forces of repeal, which are sure to arise, cannot easily reach it, providing the maximum amount of money or property which can be held by any one person, natural or artificial. I grant that there is some danger in this, but there is not some danger in the present situation?"

Judge Timlin said there should be strong laws against bribery, and these could be made effective only by providing penalties solely against the bribe-giver. He also said that the power of petty officials, to grant valuable franchises, should be taken away, and a system substituted whereby such franchises should be granted upon condemnation and payment of their reasonable value and subject to reappraisal periodically.

LAKE STEAMER AFIRE.

Robeygon, Ont., June 15.—The steamer Manitoba, one of the Trent Valley Navigation Company's boats, was on fire, and was supposed to have originated from a spark from the boiler. The boat will be repaired and put in commission again as soon as possible. The loss is covered by insurance.
