FORMER COLLEAGUE SHOWS SIR WILFRID'S POLICY VINDICATED

Men Who Voted Against Reciprocity in 1911 Are Today Saying It Is What the Country Wants.

HON. MR. FIELDING DOES NOT WANT TO SEE ELECTION YET

[Special to The Advertiser by Canadian Press.]

OTTAWA, March 14.—Hon. W. S. Fielding, member of the "Cabinet of All the Talents," formed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1896, finance minister in the Government of the latter for fifteen years, elected by acclamation as a supporter of conscription, but on a straight Liberal nomination in the campaign of 1917, came back today among his old friends to vindicate the economic policy of his old leader, and to counsel the men who followed him to look toward an ultimately united party.

For almost two and a half hours the veteran talked, and it was a straight Liberal speech, which brought applause from Liberals on both sides of the chamber. At the conclusion the applause blended, and filled the whole of the House. For the Bordenites the speech could have no comfort; but in the breast of any man in the House imbued with Liberal principles it struck a responsive chord.

Mr. Fielding had moved down to the front benches of the Opposition, and it was Ernest Lapointe who assisted him in assembling his notes.

A Liberal Field Day.

Before him spoke Lieut.-Col. Peck, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., and Mr. P. for Skeena, burly and thick-set, jovial, but soldierly, a Liberal, and a free trader, though a Unionist follower, who complimented the leader of the Opposition, D. D. McKenzie, because his name was associated with a noble tariff which he had worn on the battlefield, and who spoke with feeling of the high character, the noble aspirations that the lofty ideals of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier. After Mr. Fielding spoke, Duncan Ross of West Middlesex, Opposition Liberal, who champions the farmer's cause, and declared his adherence to the platform of the farmers of Western Ontario. In fact, it was pretty well a Liberal day.

The speech of the soldier was a soldierly speech, not lacking in dry humor. He took advantage of his privilege in Parliament, though still a soldier on leave, to defend the commander of the Canadian corps and the men of the Canadian corps, and on this he joined sharp issue with Gen. Sir Sam Hughes, which resulted in a spirited passage-at-arms with the latter.

Borden's Trip Overseas.
Mr. Fielding opened with an effective attack upon the journey overseas of the premier and his colleagues, and before he had finished with that topic Canada's hat the great Canadian peace conference looked like a very empty thing, indeed.

"By passing some petty resolution in Paris," he declared, "and by getting some empty recognition on one committee or another, people have actually got the idea that we are adding a cubit to our stature. We are not."
The working body at the peace conference, he said, was the council of ten, on which Canada had no representation. Then there was the committee of 25, on which Canada also had no representation, but which in any case never had met. Canadians had, however, been put on some unimportant committees, and the premier had intended going to Trinitopolis.

"If the prime minister still hankers to foregather with the Bolsheviks," said Mr. Fielding, "I would say to him: 'In the name of the Parliament of Canada, don't have any truck or trade with the Bolsheviks.'"

Touches Tariff Topic.

The last time Mr. Fielding spoke on the tariff in this House was in 1911, when he was defending reciprocity. On that policy his leader had gone to the people, and on that policy he had gone down to defeat. On that occasion, Mr. Fielding said, the manufacturers had shown, not an intelligent selfishness, but a clumsy selfishness for which they were likely to suffer.

"Our western friends," he declared, "have had the benefit of not adequately appreciating the tariff reforms secured from the Laurier Government. The member for Macdonald runs his hopes on Union Government. May I be pardoned if I said to myself, 'I have not seen so great faith, no not in Israel.'"

He pointed out that during the Liberal regime a hundred millions of dollars had been saved to the people in the customs by the reforms enacted. This, he said, must be multiplied by three, because the home manufacturers tucked on two dollars for every dollar of protection. This was not insignificant.

Laurier Vindicated.
"The Laurier Government gave up its political life to give a measure of tariff reform. They devised the reciprocity agreement. Sir, I have some reason for regret that today men who voted against it are now saying that it is what the country wants. I regret, too, that the great Canadian who was with me at that time, is not here today to see the vindication of his policy."

Mr. Fielding stated that for the greater part of the farmers' program, for the general trend toward lower tariff and reciprocity, "I want to stand in the future, and help my farmer friends to get it."

To a tariff commission he was opposed.
The ex-minister described the manner in which he had come to the House, namely, through nomination by a straight Liberal convention, and by acclamation after two men nominated by the Conservatives had withdrawn. He had had a heart-to-heart talk with the Conservatives, and had told them that he differed with his leader on conscription, and would give independent support to Union (though its formation had been too long delayed), on matters of war.

Not Time For a Change.
"That is the position I take today,"

You're getting a June Style in a March Maxwell

THE MAXWELL car of today is so vastly improved in appearance that many persons believe we have produced a new model. That is not the case.

It is the same chassis, scarcely with a change, on which 300,000 Maxwells have been built.

But it is a better looking car. It is finer in finish; angular lines have been straightened out; fenders improved; bonnet simplified; cowl made flush with the top line of the body; seats thickened by three inches; circassian dash installed; gas tank slung in the rear, etc.

There are twenty-four things done to make it more beautiful.

We made the Maxwell simple to start with five years ago. Then we kept on making and making these cars all alike. We have now completed 300,000 of them.

There is logic in doing one thing and doing it well. We have followed that logic. And results tell today.

Maxwells have always been noted for their reliability. Now they will become noted for their beauty.

And today we are in a position to give you a June style in a March Maxwell, which a year ago seemed quite out of the question on account of the war.

Come and see the latest Maxwell.

Costs Less in the End

THE cost of a motor car is not its price alone. It's the price plus the running cost plus repairs divided by the miles of service.

And on this basis the Gray-Dort costs less in the end—less even than cars lower priced. Year after year this fine light car does go farther on a set of tires or a gallon of gasoline—does stay out of the repair shop.

You will enjoy owning a Gray-Dort—enjoy the comfort of its roomy, luxurious body; easy to control in traffic; quick to pick up, speedy on open stretches and powerful on hills; and you'll be proud of its real beauty.

The touring car is $1245; the Gray-Dort Special—the car with added refinements and extra equipment, is $1335 extra; there are also a coupe and a sedan. All prices are f.o.b. Chatham and are subject to change without notice.

he said, "I think the time has not yet come for a change in Government. I propose today to give independent support to the Government for such time as I conscientiously can; however long that may be I cannot tell. On the various questions that come up I hold myself free to vote as I feel, but unless a new situation arises no vote I will give will be in the direction of the turning out of power of the Government. If any amendment is moved to this address I will vote against it, for the Government is entitled to its address."

He declared that a general election was not now wanted, and that more over the Liberal party was not yet sufficiently united to insure success at the present time. "I really could not be brought about by either section of the Liberal party throwing rocks at the other, or by one section considering that it had a monopoly upon the ark of the covenant of Liberalism. Those who had voted conscientiously against conscription were as loyal as the others, who on the other hand had no apology for their attitude."

He opposed federal initiative on prohibition, delivered a slashing attack on the war time election act, which, he said, should be at once repealed, and concluded by an appeal for a free Parliament.

Hint for Mr. Carvell.

Mr. Fielding began the business portion of his speech by remarking that the overshadowing question, now that the war was over, was the tremendous burdens and how they were to be met. That they must be met intelligently and courageously all were agreed. He noted that there was little reference to these burdens and to the policies of the Government, except in the speech of the minister of public works, and one thing that struck him was that Mr. Carvell had put forward the view that the public works would be undertaken not so much for the good of the community as with regard to unemployment. He said these two things should go hand in hand. There was no need to emerge in a country like Canada in Continued on Page Twelve.

O-CORN-O HOMINY FEED

Made From White Corn

We have a supply of the highly nutritious Hominy Feed stored ready for immediate shipment from our mills at Dundas street, East London.

A study of the rations used by record-making cows shows the very common use of Hominy Feed as part of the ration. This feed is a by-product in the milling of white corn, and is one of the best and most favorably known commercial feeds on the market. The great value of O-Corn-O Hominy Feed as a feed for cows lies in the fact that it is rich in carbohydrates and fat, which go to supply the nutrients required for body maintenance.

An analysis of this feed shows that its food content is as follows:

Fat.	Protein.	Moisture.	Fibre.	Carbohydrates.
9.10	10.55	6.81	5.17	65.26

The following comparative figures show the total digestible nutrients in various common feedstuffs used for dairy cows—Hominy Feed heads the list:

Hominy Feed	81.6
Gluten Feed	80.7
Germ Oil Meal	82.5
Cracked Corn	83.8
Wheat Bran	69.9
Flour Wheat Middlings	75.2
Standard Middlings	69.1
Ice Middlings	75.1
Oats	70.4

Try a few bags. You will get results. Order either through your local miller or direct from us. The price is right.

T. ZOCCANO INTENDS TO RETIRE FROM GAME AFTER ANOTHER FIGHT

Will Meet Knockout Aegers in Springfield, Ohio, on April 10.

Tony Zoccano, the well-known local boxer, will retire from the boxing game shortly. Tony expects to have one more battle and then give up the ring. For many years he has followed the game and put up some first class fights in various cities throughout Canada and United States. He started in the game young and after being out of it for six years again entered the ring. In his second session he made a good showing, having several knockouts credited to his record. Tony made a short visit to this city yesterday and called on his friends. He is in the pink of condition, and expects to make his final battle a real one. On April 10 he will meet Knockout Aegers of New York in a ten-round fight at Springfield, Ohio. Aegers is one of the best boxers in his class, but Tony has no doubts as to his ability to win. Zoccano will return from Springfield and open a tire-repairing plant at Galt and Stratford. When his brother, who is now overseas, returns he expects to open a plant in this city. Zoccano has fought in this city several times and has promoted a number of first class fights. He is popular among the boxing fans of London.

Large Crowd of Rooters To Go From Woodstock.

WOODSTOCK, March 14.—Indications tonight are that fully four hundred local hockey fans will swoop down on Toronto tomorrow all ready to invade the arena and cheer the red and white on to the junior O. Principal Wearing of Woodstock College has been chosen chief yell leader and he is a past master at the business. The city will be officially represented by Mayor Gahagan and Aldermen Reg Stone and W. T. Mannell. Woodstock is proud of its junior team, on they will represent the city. BAY CITY, Mich., March 14.—Notice has been served on President Joseph Jackson of the Michigan-Ontario Baseball League that Saginaw and Bay City will not be permitted by the National Commission to be represented in the league until they have liquidated debts of $1,000 each, said to be due players attached to the two clubs in 1915 when the Southern Michigan League went on the rocks. DETROIT, Mich. 14.—President Jackson of the Michigan-Ontario Baseball League in a statement tonight relative to a dispatch sent out from Bay City to the effect that neither Bay City nor Saginaw can play in the new league until certain salary claims of the old Southern Michigan League are paid, declares the Bay City story is based either on misinformation or misunderstanding of the situation. "No notice of any kind has been served on me, and Saginaw has not agreed in any way in any territorial claims," said Mr. Jackson. "The National Association office has merely submitted a report of claims made against the territory. There are none at all against Saginaw so far as Secretary Farrell has reported. FACTS ABOUT Bicycles. Talk No. 3.

The price you pay for a bicycle is worth your consideration.

You Get Just What You Pay For.

A high-grade bicycle, that sells at a few dollars more than a cheap bicycle, is worth a whole lot more to you than the cheap bicycle.

You Cannot Buy Gold Dollars for Fifty Cents.

So it is with a bicycle. BRANTFORD BICYCLES are made up to a standard, not down to a price.

The fact that you can buy bicycles for a few dollars less than you pay for a Brantford is no sign that you can buy bicycles cheap. It only shows that you buy cheap bicycles. There is a difference.

Ladies' and Gents' Models $52.50, $57.50. Boys' and Girls' Models $45.00.

ARE GOOD BICYCLES.

PRELIMINARY PEACE ALMOST READY; MAY LEAVE LEAGUE CONSTITUTION UNTIL LATER

Question Is: Will President Wilson Stand For This or Will He Insist on the Incorporation of the League of Nations in Preliminary Peace Pact?

By Frank H. Simonds

Author of "The Great War," "They Shall Not Pass," (Copyright, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

PARIS, March 14.—What will President Wilson find when he resumes his attendance at the peace conference? This is the question which doubtless is being asked on the American continent at the present time. To what extent will the exposition in U. S. politics influence the future course of the peace conference? While the answer to the question involves more or less speculation, certain things are fairly plain.

In the first place, while the president will hardly receive the same spontaneous outburst which greeted him on his first coming, this will be due solely to the fact that such an ovation in the very nature of things would not be repeated; but by contrast there is no reason to suppose that the president will not be welcomed as heartily as if there had been no domestic disturbance in his country.

In fact, in a certain sense the president's welcome will be the warmer because his whole mission has undergone a sea change. He came here as the representative of the United States in Europe, and to a very considerable extent his speeches at home recently have made him seem to be the representative of Europe in America.

Attitude Unchanged.

To suppose that the representatives of the various governments in Europe will change their attitude towards the president of the United States because of the exposure made in the Senate to a mistake, is to misunderstand the political situation in Europe. Were the leaders of the various governments to change their attitude and treatment of Mr. Wilson, he would immediately become the spokesman for the republican parties in France, in England, and in Italy.

The thing that is so difficult to tell, and yet so unmistakable is the fact that for the masses of people in Europe, Mr. Wilson represents the "United States," he represents liberal ideas, and he symbolizes the almost inarticulate desire of millions of plain people for a settlement of the world which will make a new war impossible.

Accordingly, Mr. Wilson will be welcomed heartily by the governments as well as the people. His speeches in his own country have been widely approved in Europe, and the possibility that Lloyd George and Clemenceau will turn from Wilson to the Republican U. S. Senate does not exist.

Moreover—and this thing should be recognized in the United States, whatever the fact may be—there is a profound conviction in Paris that Mr. Wilson has already won his fight at home. In a real sense he is victor. How accurate or mistaken this conclusion is will be better realized in Washington than here, where all the information is fragmentary and unsatisfactory.

But having said that Mr. Wilson will be welcomed heartily, will preserve his prestige, will doubtless remain the most conspicuous figure in Paris to the end, it is essential to indicate that there has been a profound change in certain directions which will be felt in the immediate future. When Mr. Wilson first came to Europe, the world waited upon him and his wishes with respect of the future of nations. Mr. Wilson in Europe this time will find the conference at Paris in the act of completing a preliminary peace which, in all the larger aspects, will be a final peace.

In other words, to quote M. Pichon, the French minister of foreign office, "Action in the direction of a preliminary peace with Germany is likely to come sooner than anyone expects."

Work Almost Completed.

The various commissions have practically completed their work so far as the contours of Germany are concerned. The question of the disarmament of Germany approaches a solution, and at least a tentative arrangement in the matter of reparations and financial settlement is to be expected.

Sometime within the next month the conference at Paris is going to say to the Germans who will be invited to come to Versailles: "You will sign the following peace terms. These terms will fix the frontiers of Germany, they will regulate the future size of the German army and navy, they will dispose of the surplus armament, they will fix a price in warships and merchant marine to be paid, and in all important respects they will decide the conditions under which Germany must hereafter live."

These terms they will be invited to sign. If they refuse, as is possible, the Allies can put on the blockade, and Germany will face the situation that her own food supply approaches an end. If the Germans sign, there will be later another occasion on which, as in the case of the Treaty of Frankfurt, they will be permitted to put their names to a definite document, but this will be only in minor detail a modification of the preliminary peace. With the German phase disposed of, the Allies will with little delay settle the other considerable outstanding questions.

Other Boundaries About Settled.

Many of the commissions appointed to fix the boundaries of the new states of Europe have finished their work. Others are almost ready to report. In many cases provisional frontiers have already been fixed. It is a matter of relatively small effort to establish the general outline of the new frontier of Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Hungary and at least the western frontiers of Poland. Decisions are also being approached in the case of Greece, both in Europe and Asia-Minor. Except for the eastern frontiers of Poland and the various problems presented by Russia, there is no reason why the peace conference should not complete the European phase of its task by the first of May, and leave to various commissions the complex but not insoluble problems of Asia-Minor and Arabia.

Now comes the big question. What relation will the covenant of the league of nations bear to the preliminary treaty of peace? The European nations, as I have said before, are quite ready to exclude the Monroe Doctrine from the purview of the constitution of the league of nations, but they will almost any other concession, provided only the United States on its own terms will agree to finish its job in Europe, and, for the time being, at least, lend its powerful prestige to the maintenance and upbuilding of the new nations. But can these modifications be made in time to permit the covenant of the league of nations as amended to become a part of the preliminary treaty of peace? I do not think so.

Pledge for "League-To-Be."

What seems likely is that the preliminary treaty of peace will pledge all the nations signatory thereto to participate in a league of nations, later to be formed. This would constitute a declaration of principle. Conceivably, President Wilson will oppose this, and insist that the whole league of nations be tightly bound up with the preliminary treaty of peace. Only in such a case is it conceivable that there may be a difference of opinion between the American and the European representatives.

There is no mistaking the pressure among the people of Europe for peace. As I have said, the preliminary peace will be accepted everywhere as the treaty of peace, as it will be in all but the technical phases. To postpone the signing of this preliminary order, in order to amend the league of nations covenant and make it a part thereto would certainly arouse opposition and postpone. My judgment is that it is the expectation of the American commissioners now in Paris that the preliminary treaty of peace will contain only a declaration of principle concerning the league of nations.

Europe's Mind Made Up.

In sum, then, President Wilson on his return will find Europe with its mind practically made up to the new arrangement of the own affairs, both territorial and financial; he will find it a cordial, sympathetic appreciation of his fight in America, but an unwillingness to postpone the making of the

from the hon. gentleman a full report about his visit to Quebec a short time ago, as to whom he met and what was discussed." The member for Chambly suggested that the minister of immigration was "trying to clothe himself in the ivory of heaven to serve the devil."

Mr. Calder's visit to Quebec, it was alleged, occurred about the time of Sir Wilfrid's death. Gossip has it that it was Sir Lomer Gouin whom he saw, and that the question discussed was the matter of bringing French-Canadian blood to the cabinet.

Again Monkeying With Quebec.

Since then, French papers of Quebec have published a rumor to the effect that Hon. Messrs. Lemieux, Beland and Bureau were to be invited "across the floor," and two French papers, Le Soleil and L'Evenement, are now engaged in a controversy on the general subject as to whether Quebec's logical alliance is with the east or with the west.

It can safely be said that neither Lemieux, Bureau, Beland or any other

DOCTORS STAND AMAZED AT POWER OF BON-OPTO TO MAKE WEAK EYES STRONG—ACCORDING TO DR. LEWIS

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. — Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription, and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it, "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me."

A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overwork, tired eyes which induced here headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and near, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or will the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of getting glasses. Eye troubles, many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop of Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With liquid bath the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clearing perceptibly right from the start. Inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note—Another prominent physician whom the above article was submitted said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known, eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it successfully in my own practice on clients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. I can recommend it in case of weak, watering, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red eyes, blurred vision or eyes damaged from exposure to smoke, dust or wind. It is one of the very best preparations I feel should be kept handy for regular use in almost every family."

Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret formula. It is an ethical preparation. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in city by Standard Drug Co., W. T. Stro and others.

The Great Hot Spot Engine has made the Chalmers one of the few great cars of the world—

THIS great engine, which now has a record of many million miles behind it, has created a new movement in the automobile industry.

It has swung the attention from multi-cylinders, extra valves and the like to the subject of getting-the-very-last-bit-of-power-out-of-every-drop-of-gas.

For gas has gone down and down in grade; the price has gone up and up; and cars have not performed as once they did, while the public began to say "they weren't making cars as well as they used to."

The public was wrong. It was not the car. It was the low grade gas. The food for an engine had changed; a new digestive organ was needed.

Among the first to observe this condition were the Chalmers engineers. They were the first to supply the answer.

They designed a Hot Spot device and attached a new type of intake manifold now known as the famous Ram's-horn.

By means of the Hot Spot they cracked up, fine as powder, and heated the gas after it left the carburetor. This put the gas in perfect shape for combustion. Now the task was to get this "fine as powder," or as the engineers say "dry gas" into the cylinders without letting it condense on the short 18-inch but hazardous journey. Gas is tricky.

They succeeded in designing a brand new type of canal or manifold—minus angles, corners, sharp corners and the like—and this they call the Ram's-horn.

Any man who drives a Hot Spot Chalmers can tell you how wonderful these two devices work.

They have made the Chalmers now a great automobile. This is what they accomplished:

- Almost immediate starting on a cold day.
- Perfect engine running in 30 seconds on a cold day.
- More power out of gas than has ever been extracted before.
- Prevent raw gas from going past the pistons into the crank case and subsequent lubrication trouble.
- Develop a smoother, softer kind of power.
- Cause a lower upkeep cost through less vibration.
- Spin more mileage out of every gallon.
- Cause the engine to run cooler on a hot day.

There are many more. See the new Chalmers.

THEL CLAYTON AT MAJESTIC ON MONDAY AND TUESDAY IN STAR ROLE OF 'MAGGIE PEPPER'

Popular Photoplay Actress Ex-cels in Her Latest Offering; Supported by Strong Cast — "The Kiddies in the Ruins" Another Feature Film in Big Double Bill.

What O. Henry, Edna Ferber and other story writers have done for the silent store workers in literary form, Charles Klein did for the stage. "Maggie Pepper," and now Paramount has pictured the play as a silent attraction with beautiful Ethel Clayton as the star. The picture will be shown at the Majestic Theatre Monday and Tuesday. "Maggie Pepper" was prepared for the screen by Edna Ferber and directed by Walter Wittmer. Elliott Dexter plays the leading role opposite the star. It is hardly necessary to call attention to his record for endit work. He was leading man in "The Kiddies in the Ruins," and has been seen in leading roles in many of Cecil B. DeMille's elaborate Artcraft specials. He is cast for a heavy part and Raymond Hatton is an admirable New York drummer. His work is artistic to last degree. Winifred Greenwood, excellent as the wife of the crook and the mother of little Claire, Edna Wilson is seen as Claire, the child in the role. Marcia Manon, a skillful cross, has a good character part; Edna Benson is the hated manager; Elmer is a crook; Bud Duncan is a messenger; C. H. Geldart and Fay Holderness are detectives. With such a cast, "Maggie Pepper" should prove delightful as a screen attraction. A moving picture of heart-throbbing intensity is "The Kiddies in the Ruins," which helps make up the particularly fine performance at the Majestic Monday and Tuesday. It is like a magic letter from the man overseas during their triumphal march through the devastated districts. It shows them in a moment of victory and the overwhelming joy of the families they have rescued. In the picture, "The Kiddies in the Ruins," it appears the "Air" of "The Better 'Ole." An incident shown in the London production of that film has been developed into a charming story that mingles British and Frenchman in a blood brotherhood. What their heroism has meant to their children is shown in the picture. A wonderful collection of French and English artists, including some children who have been models of the great Foulbot himself. Grown-ups will revel in this great picture, but few films have been more fascinating for the kiddies. Every child in London should see it, but "The Kiddies in the Ruins" is a message that will fire them anew in hope and courage for the new era.

"THE GIRL DODGER" FEATURING CHARLES RAY AT THE MAJESTIC WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

Marguerite Clark in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" at Popular Playhouse Friday and Saturday—Excellent Comedies Will Also Be Shown.

An exceptionally fine cast has been selected for "The Girl Dodger," Charles Ray's new Paramount picture produced by Thomas H. Ince, which will be shown at the Majestic Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday. Being a college story, naturally young types were required. Doris Lee, a youthful and pretty woman, has the leading woman's part and Hal Cooley has an important role. Then there is Leota Lorraine, a charming actress, who plays the part of a chorus girl. Jack Nelson has a semi-heavy role. There is, of course, a full ensemble of extra people representing townsfolk, college students, etc.

The story of J. G. Hawks deals with the adventures of a bookish student, who agrees to help out a lively companion by taking his place as entertainer of a chorus girl and her pals. Then he makes the error of mistaking for this young woman a rich girl who is engaged to the other student. The funny thing about it, however, is that she admires him despite his quaintness and his apparent stupidity. In fact, the college is so compelling that she finally throws over the lively boy for his dreamy companion. And the dub has to lick the other before he gets through with his adventure.

IT'S A DANDY. The comedy for Wednesday and Thursday.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN at the Majestic today in "The Henpecked Spouse."

PAULINE FREDERICK FAMOUS PLAYERS-PARAMOUNT STAR

PAULINE FREDERICK COMING TO THE MAJESTIC SOON.

Thursday, "Perfectly Fiendish Flanagan," with James Montgomery Flagg, the famous artist, in the title role, is a screen from start to finish, and should not be missed by lovers of good comedy. It is the best take-off of the wild and woolly west yet filmed.

MARGUERITE CLARK. One of the outstanding features of Manager Logan's picture program this season will be the presentation at the Majestic Theatre Friday and Saturday next of Marguerite Clark's latest Paramount photoplay, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." The rights to picture this famous story were obtained by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation at great expense, but the superiority of the production attests fully to the wisdom of the selection.

The homey humor and the unusual heart interest made it one of the most successful plays in many seasons, and following its run in New York it enjoyed equal popularity on the road. Judge Carr Cook appeared in the role of Mrs. Wiggs, and Mabel Taliferro was Lovey Mary. In the picture version Miss Clark is supported by capable players, including Gareth Hughes, Mary Carr, Viva Ogden, Jack MacLean, Robert Milash, David Horsford, and others. The adaptation was made by Eve Unsell and Hugh Ford was the director.

THE MOST-TALKED-OF FILM IN CANADA, FAMOUS CANADIAN REGIMENTS IN FRANCE, WHICH IS BEING SHOWN AT THE MAJESTIC. Probably the most talked-of film ever shown in Canada has been the series of famous Canadian regiments in France, which the Majestic Theatre has been presenting every Friday and Saturday. Londoners have seen the faces of many of their friends, and the boys back from the front have seen pictures of themselves and their chums, which were taken in those never-to-be-forgotten days of the great fight. Another of the series will be shown at the Majestic today, in which people of the city will undoubtedly again have the opportunity of seeing their friends and relatives as they looked while fighting and serving on the great battlefields of France and Belgium.

FINE VEHICLE IS VIVIAN MARTIN'S NEW PHOTOPLAY "You Never Saw Such a Girl" Is Showing at Majestic Theatre Today.

That Vivian Martin, the popular Paramount star, has an exceptional vehicle in "You Never Saw Such a Girl," her latest picture, is conceded by all who have seen the picture, which is showing at the Majestic today only. The general idea of the story is the presentation of a resourceful young girl, who works her way out of a difficult situation. But the story itself is delightfully whimsical and full of comedy, but even more so, of love and romantic adventure.

Vivian Martin is cast as Mary MacKenzie, a young girl who is left parentless with an old farming couple—brother and sister. These protectors die when she is just budding into womanhood, and she takes the old farm auto, and with her only friend, an old maid school teacher, goes a-gypsying. She is really searching for her grand-niece who doesn't find her, but discovers instead, a fortune and a sweet heart, while even the old maid obtains a husband.

BIG DOUBLE SHOW AT MAJESTIC THIS AFTERNOON. Two feature comedies, travelogues, British News Films and a special vaudeville attraction will be the offerings in the big double show at the Majestic this afternoon.

For Rough, Wrinkled, Freckled, Pimpled Skin

As March winds, flying dust and dirt, are apt to injure any complexion, this information will be of special value right now. If you have any cutaneous blemish, don't use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Besides, it's much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, moth patches, sallowness, red or yellow blotches or any surface eruption. The affected cuticle is absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for one ounce of mercolized wax and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple, harmless treatment report astonishing results. If bothered with wrinkles or furrows, a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered salicylic acid in a half pint of witch hazel will prove wonderfully effective.—Advt.

EXPERT DANCING TO FEATURE GRAND OPERA HOUSE BILL MONDAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY

Albertina Rasch and Clever Ballet Will Put On Artistic Dances—Five Vaudeville Acts Are All Headliners—Bert Lytell in Heart-Gripping Photoplay, "Faith."

The feature of the five-act vaudeville bill at the Grand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be Albertina Rasch, assisted by a clever ballet, in a series of artistic dances. She is a dancer of expert grace, and has surrounded herself with an excellent organization of dancers, and presents an act which has been rehearsed to a point of beautiful uniformity. The curtain-raising dances are a typically-gowned ballet backed by dark plush curtains. Albertina Rasch and her eight delightful corymbes are certain to dance themselves into the hearts of any audience. The dances consist of eight well-selected numbers, ranging from the Hindu to the Russian movements. In all, the offering is to be the season's rarest treat; a delight in vaudeville that probably will not be equaled at any other future time. This will positively be the big event and artistic hit of the season.

Another feature will be the Melvilles, a man and a woman, in a study in electric, showing beauty, art and color. They offer a posing number, billed as "Visions of Art." Alice Melville, the poseur, is a model de luxe, who has made a life study of posing. In the present offering, Miss Melville presents a series of twenty-four pictures, each of them a study of world-wide reputation. Special scenery is shown that enhances the poses materially, and the outcome is perfect in every detail.

Madame Marion and company, playing eight female characters in "Passports," a lightning-change study in three scenes, is another big feature of this bill. Madame Marion has an up-to-the-minute vehicle in "Passports." During the run of the three scenes, Madame Marion enacts the roles of eight female characters, changing from one to the other with such lightning-like rapidity that her audience wonders at the strange art that permits her to transform costume, voice and figure in a few minutes. Hal Forrest is cast for the role of John Lawrence, an official of the passport bureau. Also on the same bill will be Hope Vernon, a songstress with a violin, who will deliver a turn that may be calculated to win her audience from the very moment of her appearance. Miss Vernon will offer a repertoire of vocal numbers par excellence and a bit of melody from her violin, on which instrument she is a finished artist. Possessed of splendid abilities and boasting a winning personality, Miss Vernon is certain to please.

Hugh McCormick and Grace Wallace, in a comedy entitled "Back at the Seaside," are an ideal couple, with wonderful entertaining ability, specializing in ventriloquial eccentricities. In their present offering, the two women who have a splendid opportunity of enjoying one of the most ludicrous acts now before the public.

The feature photoplay to be shown Wednesday will be "Faith," a Metro drama featuring the popular young dramatic star, Bert Lytell. The play tells the story of a young man who has drifted from the good influences of life and settles down to a narrow, hum-drum existence, which kills enthusiasm and ambition and leaves him content with the crumbs of life. Although he is content to exist in this manner, the two women who have an intense interest in his life decide that it is faith and love that is lacking to bring to the heights of achievement. How they accomplish this and the beauty of the romance which completes the story is beautifully told in this gripping drama of human hopes and happiness, and Mr. Lytell is seen in a role which gives him great scope for his versatile dramatic ability.

With him are seen such artists as Rosemary Theby, Edythe Chapman, Edwin Stevens and Nancy Chase. The story was written by Richard Washburn Child and adapted for the screen by George D. Baker and A. C. Konyon. The production was directed by Charles Swickard, under the supervision of George D. Baker.

SPARKLING MUSICAL COMEDY HEADLINE ATTRACTION AT GRAND LATTER END OF WEEK

Pretty Girls, Catchy Music in Song Revue—Joe Cook, "the One-Man Vaudeville Show," and Three Other High-Class Acts—Ethel Barrymore in "The Divorcee" Rounds Up Big Bill.

Another big all-star vaudeville bill has been arranged for presentation at the Grand Thursday, Friday and Saturday, daily at 2:15 and 7:30. A big musical comedy revue will be the headline attraction on this bill, pretty girls, catchy music and the most up-to-date songs are included in this sparkling revue, which is one of the most exquisite acts of its kind in vaudeville, and one that will most assuredly please and entertain. In point of costuming and scenery, this offering is sure to prove a sensation. Joe Cook, who is billed as "The One-Man Vaudeville Show," and who has been featured in the largest vaudeville theatres, will also be on this bill. He has a wide range of entertainment, from acrobats and juggling to singing and dancing. Frozini, vaudeville's premier accordionist, is another feature. Frozini is known to the man who first dignified the accordion in America. He is a young Italian musical genius, and the acknowledged peer of all accordionists. Frozini, besides being a super-artist, is a composer of many harmonious numbers.

Exceptional Gymnasts. Keno, Keys and Melrose are a trio of exceptional gymnasts, splendid comedians and clever dancers, who win immediate favor with their eccentric series of old stunts, laughable gymnastics and funny patter. The term "big-time act" is usually applied to artists and acts playing the best vaudeville theatres in the largest cities from coast to coast. In the case of Keno, Keys and Melrose one can go further, and acclaim them "A Big-Time Vaudeville Feature." Their present offering, which they call "That Fellow Don't Like Me," is a vehicle that affords them splendid opportunities to display their versatile talents. It is an act that will most assuredly amuse and entertain highly.

The same bill will be Sam Davis and Laura Walker, a team of colored artists, in a clever skit entitled, "A Lesson in Dancing." Sam Davis is a remarkably clever dancer, a comedian, some acrobat, and withal, a polished gentleman. His partner, Laura Walker, is a young Italian musical genius, and the acknowledged peer of all accordionists. Frozini, besides being a super-artist, is a composer of many harmonious numbers. Last Chance To See Galaxy of Vaudeville Stars and Thrilling Movie, "Mickey," at Popular Playhouse.

One of the most laughable of sketches to be found in vaudeville is "The Piano Movers," with Tommy Snyder, the original Bozo, and Harry Hill as the principal funmakers. Their ludicrously humorous skit is the feature of the vaudeville program showing at the Grand today for the last time. Valyda, a beautiful young woman, presents under the caption of "A Song Surprise," a delectable singing offering that embraces numbers usually offered by grand opera stars, many popular ballads and some restricted numbers. A feature of Valyda's offering is the rendition of a number in a double voice.

Fred "Broomstick" Elliott, a clever comedian, presents "Home Talent," an original conception, consisting of sundry bits of music, talk and song. He sings a number of his own songs, and plays a one-string fiddle, made from a broom-handle and a cigar box, from which he entices some exceedingly weird music. The Four Kings, sensational wire artists, are another big feature of this bill. They accomplish feats of a most hazardous nature with a rapidity and accuracy beyond description.

Kenny, Mason and Scholl are roller skating acrobats, who offer some new and startling gymnastic feats on wheels. Mabel Normand's great screen success, "Mickey," will be the photoplay presented before and after the vaudeville program. No photoplay has yet been produced so filled with adventure and thrills as "Mickey." The novelty and intensity of the thrills are, indeed, remarkable. Fatalities seemed to be avoided by a "hair's breadth"—with a reality that is tremendously convincing. There is thrill upon thrill, and each thrill in these suspense-exciting incidents is just a little bit better than the last, until at their climaxes the audience is fairly brought to its feet out of sheer enthusiasm and excitement. If you have not already seen "Mickey," do not miss the opportunity of witnessing it today.

Weekly Theatrical Letter

BY BRETT PAGE. NEW YORK, March 14.—In the midst of unprecedented theatrical prosperity the effect of the beginning of Lent upon attendance has been most carefully watched. Just what would happen this year of all years was a matter of great interest to Broadway. Many a manager who has been in the business a quarter of a century—and there are less changes in business woe now than people than among those of practically any other profession—declared in advance that Lent shouldn't be a cause for worry, even to the most timid of managers.

Several managers with whom I have talked declare that the effect of Lent upon theatre attendance has decreased with the years. A quarter of a century ago was about 40 per cent less in attendance was usual during Lent. In recent years not more than 20 per cent loss can be attributed to an increase of the season. This isn't due to a decrease of interest in religious observances so much as to an increase in population of those to whom Lent means nothing in their religious lives. The tendency among managers used to be to make some special offerings that would be specially attractive and particularly appropriate to the season. But the trend of amusement tastes has made this increasingly difficult. The only manager in New York who has something different and appropriate to offer this season is Stuart Walker. Walker is presenting "The Book of Job" and "The Tents of the Arabs," as his third bill of the Fortinault season at the Punch and Judy Theatre.

"The Book of Job" seems to be the same attention-arresting and somewhat startling innovation. It was when seen last season in special matinees at the Booth Theatre. Indeed, too much praise cannot be given to the man who received the inspiration to place upon our stage this moving drama of ancient days, together with the endearingly faithful creator that Job voices in memorable words.

As in the original production, George Kays plays the part of Job. He reads his lines with such appealing simplicity and his remarkable voice, and with such fine scorn for his weak comforters, that at times he rises to heights rarely reached on our stage. His performance alone is worth witnessing.

Job's Comforters. The Narrators—those who speak the story of Job before and after his voice is heard—are admirably done by Margaret Mower and Elizabeth Patterson. The Comforters are a whole host of men, heard as the Voice in the Whirlwind are also adequate to their difficult task. Translated to our stage without the change of a word from the Bible, "The Book of Job" is a masterpiece.

It is too bad that we cannot wax enthusiastic about the companion piece, "The Tents of the Arabs." It is the least distinguished of all Dunsany's plays. The story of "The Tents of the Arabs" isn't basically new. It tells of a king who envies his own camel-drivers, and they may go forth into the mysterious of the desert, while he must remain in the city. But at last the king goes away for a year. When he returns, he comes back with a desert maid, who saves him as he adores her. She will not remain in the palace even as queen. So when a camel-driver calmly announces that he is the king returned, the real king permits the deception to stand unchallenged, and goes back to the desert with the girl of his heart.

This is merely an interesting and undistinguished story. But Stuart Walker has done much for it by providing a very fine setting, which wins applause all its own. At the Desert Palace, the price Maude is notably attractive and effective. McKay Morris is an admirable king. The most unusual feature of the performance is the song of a street singer, rendered with striking effect by "Our Pleasant Sings."

These are the days in which performers who haven't had "luck" with earlier productions plan new ones, and when managers begin to put forth plans for spring productions to test tastes for new fare for the season soon to come. Henrietta Crossman, Conway Perle, Vincent Serrano and Pauline Lord are rehearsing a new comedy by Thomas Broadhurst, which will soon be seen under the title, "Our Pleasant Sings."

Eugene Walter has written a new play. The Selwens are to produce it early next season. The title of the play and its theme haven't yet been announced.

It was inevitable that such admirable collaborators as Guy Bolton, F. V. Woodhouse and Jerome Kern should make up whatever difference may have caused them to separate some time ago. Once more they are to work together, and their first musical comedy is to be produced by Charles Dillingham.

Mr. Dillingham has also obtained the rights to Irving Berlin's newest musical comedy, Berlin, who was recently discharged from the army, is hard at work reuniting himself to conditions that are very new to him. For the first time in many a year has he been free from the shackles of any music publishing house. Once more he is "his own man." Just what he will do after he has completed the Dillingham musical comedy he hasn't yet told anyone.

Grace George is to be seen on our stage this season, although unusually late for her. "She Would and She Did" is the title of the new comedy by Mark W. Reid, which she will appear in.

"The Luck" is the title of the new works that were valueless or of doubtful value. On glancing around the chamber, Mr. Fielding was impressed by a number of vacant seats. Five ministers of the crown were absent. The minister of marine and fisheries was, unfortunately, ill, and he extended to him his sympathy, and expressed the hope that he would soon be well again.

But what of the other absentees? He was glad to say that they were not to be in—but what Canadian business were they doing in Paris? Explanations as to their business from the Government would lead one to suppose that the Government was as much in the dark as anybody else.

Mr. Fielding contended that unless Canada had some special reason for requiring representation at the peace conference she should have been contented to be represented by the British delegates. But Canada was making territorial claims. Canada did not want expansion, and he understood that she was going to make no claim for indemnity. Even if a claim for indemnity was to be made, Mr. Fielding argued that the bill could very well be made out on this side and sent over to the British delegates. He had enough confidence in the British representatives to feel that they would give Canada her share of any indemnity which was obtained.

Canada Not Represented. There was something fascinating, said the speaker, about having representatives at this conference. For it was felt that by sending over the Dominion was adding a cubit to its stature. But this view appeared to Mr. Fielding incorrect. The "big circus" at the peace conference, he said, was the council of ten, which consisted of two representatives from each of the great powers. After this came the council of twenty-five, which was next in importance, but never held any meetings, so did not matter very much. On neither of these was Canada represented. If Great Britain so desired, she could take in one of the Canadian representatives to these two councils, but on only one occasion since the beginning of the proceedings had Sir Robert Borden been admitted to the real moving organization, the council of ten.

There was, said Mr. Fielding, one other council, the general council, with about seventy-five or eighty members, and here Canada at last found her place. She had two members. Nominally, this was the big show. Really it didn't matter. It had not been decided whether it would be again to ratify the peace treaty. But the real business was done by the ten delegates of the five great powers.

Mr. Fielding asked whether it was reasonable for Canada to demand representation as a nation. "We were told," he said, "that Premier Lloyd George had supported our claims, and that President Wilson had disputed them." He referred humorously to a discussion which he said had probably taken place between the British prime minister and the president of the United States.

Mr. Lloyd George would ask the president to allow Canadian delegates, and the president would object. But Mr. Lloyd George would tip him the wink, metaphorically speaking, and say that some of the Canadian politicians had got a "bee in their bonnet," and wouldn't hurt to let them in. Of course, they wouldn't do anything. They would have seats beside the delegates from Monaco, Liberia and Siam. They wouldn't be represented on the council of ten, of course.

Then the president of the United States would say that he hadn't quite understood at first, and of course the Canadian delegates should be allowed to consult and advise with the rest of the small nations and look on at the show. Borden's Press Agent.

Sir Robert Borden had taken over with him one of the ablest Canadian journalists to act as press agent, but as there was nothing to be said beyond the power of even John W. Dalrymple to report important progress by the Canadian delegates. He had sent a telegram after telegram, but really there had been nothing to write about. Mr. Dalrymple was a master of the art of making much ado about nothing. At last, on February 12, the great chance had come. A dispatch from Mr. Dalrymple told Sir Robert Borden that he had been admitted to a sitting of the council of ten. And what, asked the speaker, was under discussion on this momentous occasion? The matter before the council was Serbia's claim for more territory. Without casting any reflection upon our prime minister, said Mr. Fielding, "I am sure there would have been no discussion of this foreign office more qualified to deal with such a question than Sir Robert Borden."

Canadian delegates, he said, were appointed to unimportant committees, which accomplished nothing. "Come Home, Come Home." "Come home," he said, speaking of Sir Robert Borden, "come home. There is real business to be done here. There is much real work to be done at home."

If the prime minister still wished to consult with the Bolsheviks at Prinkipo, they wish to send him speeches made on the Government side regarding these people. He thought he had the right to say to the premier, "in the name of the parliament of Canada don't have any trade or truck with the Bolsheviks." Mr. Fielding said that this idea of Canada being a nation seemed to have seized the imagination of some people. He thought there was too much talk of Canada as a nation, and too much disposition to magnify Canada's position without just cause. What had been stated that Canada was to be known as a separate state, and Lord Curzon in Great Britain had said that the presence of Canadian delegates at the peace conference was a great step in the progress of Canada. The claim had been put forth that these dominions were separate states, but Mr. Fielding thought that this would make more for separation than our present state.

Sneak Plainly, Mr. Rowell. He said he wanted those who were dissatisfied with present conditions to tell what their grievances were, for, to his way of thinking, Canada had no grievance. Canadians had never such a menace that they had reason to call themselves a separate state. No doubt there was a time when Canada was not consulted on matters that affected her, but that had all passed away. Now Canada acquired the right to be consulted on everything. When Sir John Macdonald went to Washington, he did not go as representing the state, but he went as a representative of the British Empire.

Selfishness Is Rewarded. Manufacturers surprised and alarmed in regard to the tariff. Mr. Fielding would agree with the legislators of Manitoba and Saskatchewan in their unanimous passing resolutions in favor of tariff reform, with Government supporters in the House favoring tariff reductions, the manufacturers had no doubt cause for alarm. But there had been no lack of warning of the rising tide. He said he questioned the motives of the manufacturers in their attitude. But he questioned their selfishness, and, "I think our manufacturing friends indulged in a clumsy selfishness when they arranged themselves against the reciprocity agreement."

There was evidence of a deep feeling of unrest and dissatisfaction. There was evidence of a determination on the part of the West that it would no longer allow itself to be dominated by the east. What was to be the outcome? He was of the opinion that the Liberals in the West did not adequately recognize and appreciate the measure of tariff reform which they received from the Laurier government. To Mr. Henderson (Macdonald, Man.), who had expressed hope of tariff reform from the present Government, he would say, "I have not found such great faith, no not in trade."

Went Down for Tariff. It was said that the Liberal Government did nothing. Some Conservative critic had said that the Liberal government merely carried on the national policy. If Liberals made no change in the tariff, how did it happen that the leader of the Conservative party attacked the Liberal tariff so bitterly and declared that it would ruin the industries of the country? The Laurier government gave up its political life for the cause of the West, and to give a greater measure of tariff reform.

Evidently deeply affected, Mr. Fielding expressed the regret he felt that the "mole Canadian" who was associated with him in reciprocity was not here in vindication of his own policy. "You cannot do anything," Mr. Fielding declared, "under our system of government, except by supporting—I do not say slavishly, but in a manly, independent way—one or the other great parties." The farmers were going to play a lone hand. They might have some fun in trying it, but they would never take a trick.

Here Dr. Clark of Red Deer interrupted. "May I suggest," he said, "that Cobden is a case to the contrary?" Mr. Fielding: "If my honorable friend can tell me how an independent man can get any important measure through this House without the intervention and support of the Government, I will be giving me a valuable piece of information."

Mr. Fielding continued that farmers must look over the ground and make up their minds which of the two great parties came the nearest to their needs. "For the greater part of their program," Mr. Fielding added, "for its general trend toward lower taxation, towards freedom of trade and reciprocity, for everything that Liberalism has stood for in the past, I want to stand in the future and to help my former friends to get it."

Mr. Fielding said that he had noticed a movement to appoint a permanent tariff commission and he wished to disabuse the mind of a number of farmers by appointing such a commission was that the finance minister had not been dealing with this important matter. The tariff, said Mr. Fielding, should be under the control of the finance minister, and he should surround himself with all the necessary expert advice, but the responsibility must be his. So much had been said about the evils of party politics, said Mr. Fielding, that he proposed to say a little about the good of party politics. The party system, he said, was in his opinion the best existing under abnormal conditions. During the war period, such conditions had prevailed. In order that some misunderstanding with regard to his own position should be cleared up, the speaker said that he would like to devote a few minutes to defining where he stood. To begin with, he had been nominated by a straight Liberal convention. No "Unionist" convention had been called in his constituency.

At the Conservative convention, two men had been nominated, but neither of them cared to run. Finally some of the prominent Conservatives called upon him and said they would be glad to have him go to Ottawa as their representative. He had told these gentlemen that he thought he would prefer to sit as a Liberal. On the other hand, he had a heart-to-heart talk with his Liberal friends, telling them that he felt it his duty to support conscription, and would not be represented on the council of ten, of course.

Then the president of the United States would say that he hadn't quite understood at first, and of course the Canadian delegates should be allowed to consult and advise with the rest of the small nations and look on at the show.

Borden's Press Agent. Sir Robert Borden had taken over with him one of the ablest Canadian journalists to act as press agent, but as there was nothing to be said beyond the power of even John W. Dalrymple to report important progress by the Canadian delegates.

He thought he had the right to say to the premier, "in the name of the parliament of Canada don't have any trade or truck with the Bolsheviks."

But he questioned their selfishness, and, "I think our manufacturing friends indulged in a clumsy selfishness when they arranged themselves against the reciprocity agreement."

that he was disposed to give the Union government support in legislation.

Not Ready for Election. Mr. Fielding said that he felt he should continue to support the government because he thought the time had not come. At the same time, he would watch the turning out of the voters in the near future would be a good omen for the country. The contest was a bitter one, and it was necessary for the Liberals to get into power at present.

The Liberal party, he said, lacked that unity and unanimity which was necessary to a successful government. Although he felt that the only government which would meet with real success was a Liberal government, unity in the party must be secured.

This unity, said Mr. Fielding, would not be obtained by offering elements in the party assuming "a holier than thou" attitude or by throwing rocks at those who disagreed with them, neither could it be obtained by offering Christians forgiveness to sinners who strayed across the House.

The leader of the Opposition had seen that these matters were back into the fold, telling them not to go, but to come and to sin no more. These wanderers, said the speaker, were not asking for forgiveness. They had separated themselves from their party for conscience sake, and they must regard themselves as sinners. Could not the question of conscription be considered as one on which there had been an honorable difference?

The education and housing schemes of the Government met with the support of Mr. Fielding, but he expressed himself as being opposed to any interference with provincial rights in these matters. If the Government made grants to the provinces for highways, he thought that it should be assured that the money would be used for the purpose for which it was granted. He questioned the advisability of creating a new department of public health with a medical man as minister in charge. It would be better to have the deputy minister an eminent man because his position would be of a more permanent nature.

Leave Prohibition to Provinces. It was not the Federal Government's job, said Mr. Fielding, to take the initiative in regard to prohibition, but it should hold itself in readiness to supplement and assist any provincial legislation on this line. He did not think there was need for a Dominion referendum. Plebiscites should be left to the provinces, and if the provinces desired to continue prohibition, then the Dominion should enact such legislation as would make the action of the province effective.

Mr. Fielding, touching on the franchise, could not see the necessity for a list—one provincial and the other Dominion. He suggested co-operation between the Dominion and provincial governments with a view to reaching some satisfactory basis. He agreed with those who held that the restriction on the vote should be repealed as early as possible.

"It is an amusing thing," Mr. Fielding declared, "that men can stand out for such a measure." He concluded with a plea for a free Parliament.

Middle Aged Women

Women should take warning from such symptoms as heat flashes, shortness of breath, excessive nervousness, irritability, and the blues—which indicate the approach of the inevitable "Change" that comes to all women nearing middle age. We have published volumes of proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest aid women can have during this trying period.

Read About These Two Women: Fremont, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run-down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me as the best remedy for my troubles, which it surely proved to be. I feel better and stronger in every way since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared."—Mrs. M. Goddard, 925 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.

Urbana, Ill.—"During Change of Life, in addition to the annoying symptoms I had an attack of grippe which lasted all winter and left me in a weakened condition. I felt at times that I would never be well again. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for women passing through the Change of Life, so I told my doctor I would try it. I soon began to gain in strength and the annoying symptoms disappeared and your Vegetable Compound has made me a well, strong woman so I do all my own housework. I cannot recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly to women women passing through the Change of Life."—Mrs. FRANK HANSON, 1316 South Orchard Street, Urbana, Ill.
