today sent a letter to Major Pope, secretary of the hydro commission, which he puts it up to Hon. Adam Beck to explain how Hamilton came to be snubbed over the power banquet at Berlin, the day the transmission lines were formally opened. He fully exonerates Major Pope from any blame, but apparently makes it clear in the letter that he thinks there was some juggling. He refers to an apparently inspired editorial which appeared in the Herald several weeks ago to the effect that it would be safe to predict McLaren and Controller Allen would not be at Berlin. Mr. Beck insists the invitations were sent. mayor and the four controllers all declare they never received them. They think it is up to Mr. Beck to have the postal inspectors take the matter up.

The exposure of the methods by which the famous Hanna-Pyne letter became public, they say, should be an added incentive to Mr. Beck to make sure there is no trifling with correspondence in his department.

BAPTISTS ARE AFTER PROFESSOR MATTHEWS

Dr. Elmore Harris and Party Issue Pamphlet.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—"A Protest Against the Findings of the Committee of the McMaster Senate in 'The Matthews Case,' With Open Questions Regarding Professor Matthews' Teachings," is the title of a new pamphlet which has been issued by Rev. Dr. Elmore Harris, and those who sympathize with him in his effort to depose Professor I. G. Matthews, of McMaster University. author of the pamphlet is Rev. R. V. Bingham, editor of the Missionary Witness, and secretary of the Sudan Interior Mission.

The pamphlet gains a point in that last night was the opening of Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec, in Bloor Street Baptist Church. The most important matter to come before the convention will be the report on Monafternoon next of the senate of McMaster University upon the charges laid by Dr. Harris against the orthodoxy of Professor Matthews. Dr. Harris is not satisfied with the finding of the senate committee, and is determined to have the convention call for the dismissal of Professor Matthews from the staff. To this end an extensive pamphleteering campaign has been carried on. The Baptist constituency of the two provinces have been flooded with literature, purporting to ive the alleged unorthodox views Professor Matthews.

The Pamphlet. Bingham pamphlet goes over the customary ground, and submits a list of 37 questions, covering 18 pages of small type, which it calls upon Professor Matthews to answer.

It also indulges in considerable sarcasm at his expense, and charges that the professor's teaching is contrary to the Christian faith, opposed to the belief of our churches, dangerous to the welfare of our students, and dishonorable when put forth in an institution founded and endowed by those who believed that the Bible is the Word of

One new feature of the pamphlet is the statement that Professor Matthews in a recent lecture, which was attended by a member of Mr. Bingham's household, who went there confessedly with the object of catching the professor saying something unorthodox, gave utterance to the following:

"How works like Ezra and Daniel got into the canon is not known. They have been there a long time, and it will take a long time to remove them but eventually it will come to pass." This statement, it is understood, will be flatly denied at the session next Monday afternoon. Professor Matthews will declare that he never said or believed anything of the kind. Some counter charges he and others will probably make against the orthodox party will be of a rather startling na

EXCITED HUNTER SHOT GIRL DEAD

Thought She Was a Squirrel, and Fired at Her.

Buffalo, Oct. 20.-Medical Examiner Danser today instructed Justice Davidson, of Alden, to hold an inquest into the shooting of Miss Martha L. Pope, a 17-year-old girl, near that place, late yesterday afternoon

The girl was walking in the woods with Frank Lowney, 26, to whom she was engaged to be married. Seeley Conley, 27, hunting squirrels at the time, mistook the girl's brown hair for a squirrel, and fired. Rushing to the spot, he found the girl dead, shot through the head, and Lowney kneeling over her prostrate body. Conley gave himself up to the au-the proposal of a plebiscite on the ocean: navy question put forward by Messrs. Monk and Bourassa, and at one time vaguely indorsed by Mr. Borden. It is so impossible that no public man can seriously suggest it. Mr. Borden has dropped it; nothing is heard of it in his speeches or in the Opposition press. But Messrs. Monk and Bourassa are still crying out that the Government refused to consult the people, and they are making this the issue in the Drummond by-election.

Suppose the Government had consented to an ad hoc referendum. The Quebec Nationalists who are opposed to any naval expenditure, and the English-speaking electors who prefer the policy of paying tribute to Great Britain, the latest course advo-

A pleb- coming. iscite in such circumstances would afford no clue to the sentiment of the country, and would furnish no lead or mandate to the Government. This fatal objection is not met by those who are denouncing the Government on this score. It is much easier to accuse Laurier of stifling the voice of the people. The naval question as treated by Messrs. Monk and Bourassa is merely a firebrand in the hands of race in-

A UNIONIST REVOLT.

There is open rebellion in the ranks we've got of the Unionist party against Mr. Balfour's leadership. It has been smoldering for a long time, but Mr. Balfour's recent Edinburgh speech has given it flame. Before the meeting he was plainly warned that the party was crying for a strong lead on tariff reform, but as usual he obscured the subject in a cloud of generalities and fine each its motto reads, "A square deal." phrases. This was the signal for an explosion next day on the part of several of the great Unionist dailies, notably the Morning Post, the London immediately before. CHILD AND PARENT.

It is universally recognized that the Mr. Jas. P. Stansel Made Sound and last 50 years have produced a marked change in the nature of the relationship between children and parents. ents are supposed to exist for the good of their children. Surely this change of point of view is one that makes for progress, even though, like all changes, it brings its own special dangers and difficulties.

The old desire of man was to found a family, to secure his own continued existence as it were through his children, who should maintain the honor of his name. It was himself as perhis children that he thought of rather than of them and the nature of their claim upon him. The Hindoo father values a son because through the prayers of his son alone he can secure peace after death. The Kaffir values his daughter because by selling her in marriage he can obtain cattle for himself. All peoples have valued their children for the work they could get out of them. Now at last we are learning to see in the child the future of the race, and to feel that our supreme duty is the care for the next generation.

At a neighboring table a middle-aged couple were dining, the woman dignified and matronly, the man small, slight, with a curiously bloated aspect which, on analysis, seemed to arise from puffy cheeks and thick, sensual lips. He said some-thing that caused his companion to turn and look at Joan; for the woman is yet unborn who will hear another woman described as pretty and not want to decide for herself how far the statement is fustified.

So the eyes of the two met, and Joan saw a worn, kindly face, endowed with a quiet charm of expression and delicacy of contour that offered a marked contour of contour that offered a marked contast to the man's unprepossessing features. Both women were too well bred to stare, and Joan instantly brought her wits to bear on Poluski's quip; but that fleeting glance that thrilled her with subtle recognition of something grasped yet elusive, of a knowledge that trembled on the lip of discovery, like a half-remembered word murmuring in the brain but unable to make itself heard.

"Do you ever say what you really mean, Felix?" she asked.

"Far too often, ma belle. That is why Far too often, ma belle. That is why am only a copyist.

"Yes; what of them?"

"Do you know them?" Rolls

"No."
"Not even the lady?"
"She reminds me of someone—why do you ask?"
"I am surprised at you, Joan. Those charming eyes of yours should be keener. True there is nothing feminine about Alec, and he has not suffered, like his mother. Still, there is a resemblance,"
"Felix, are you in earnest?"
"Absolutely. I, at least, have not the Greek temperament. Our friends across the gangway are none other than Prince and Princess Michael Delgrado. You will discover no phophecy of Alec in his father; but he is his mother's own son, into them half a pint of flour, half a pint of milk, a pinch of soda dissolved nation." Joan was dismayed, utterly astonished; the color ebbed from her cheeks. "Are they going to Delgratz?" she almost

"I suppose so. It is one of the oddest things about our lives how they run in grooves. Just now all the tiny furrows of our separate existences are converging on the Danube. We are like ships fore-doomed to collision, that hurry remorse-lessly from the ends of the earth to the preordained crash.

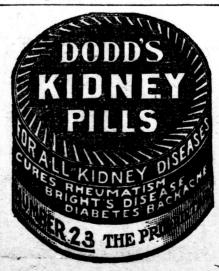

"Oh. Felix, if you knew of this why did you bring me here?"
"Who am I to resist when the gods beckon? I love you, Joan, and I hate kings; but it is decreed that you shall be a Queen, so I fold my arms and bow my head like the meekest of mortals."
"I shall quit the train at the next stopping-place."
"But why? If Alec and you are to wed, it is only fit and proper that his parents hould grace the ceremony.' "You harp on marriage when there may be no marriage. If Alec was not a King it might be different; but the world will it might be different; but the world will scoff when it hears that his chosen bride came to him from lodgings in the Place de la Sorbonne. What will Princess Delgrado think, now that she has seen me here, rushing off to Delgratz the instant I was summoned? Felix, I must return to Paris. Happily, I have some two thousand francs due within a week, and I can then refund the cost of our tickets and prepage the relivary needs tickets, and perhaps the railway people will allow something for the uncompleted

"Calm yourself, ma petite! You count like the proprietress of my favorite cafe! And to what purpose? It would be a pity to act in that foolish way. There is no compulsion on you to marry Alec, and the Byzantine Saint Peter still hangs in the cathedral. Let anyone so much as the cathedral. Let anyone so much as hint that you are throwing yourself at Alec's head, and I shall have the hinter dynamited. No, no, my Joan, we may yield to higher powers, but we do not abandon our pilgrimage because it is shared by an old scamp of a father whose sole anxiety is to fleece his son. Come, now, finish your dinner in peace, and let me explain to you why it is that Alexis III. and not Michael V. reigns in Delgratz. You don't glean many facts about monarchs from newspapers. If I brought you to a certain wineshop in the Rue Taitbout any evening after dinner Rue Taitbout any evening after dinner you would hear more truth about royalty in half an hour than you will read in half

Joan, conscious of a telltale pallor, was leaning forward with an elbow on the table and shielding her face with widespread fingers propper against cheek and forehead. In the noise and flurry of the train it was easy to tune the voice to such a note that it must be inaudible to those at the adjacent tables; but Poluski seemed to be careless whether or not he was overheard, and the girl fancied that Princess Delgrado had caught the words "Alexis," "Michael," "Delgratz." Certainly the princess turned again and look-

The two persons who were the unwitting cause of Joan's sudden misgivings rose and quitted the diningcar. No one seemed to be aware of their identity. Even the brown-liveried attendants did not give them any more attention than was bestowed on the other passengers, and the girl realized that the parents of a King, even such a newly-fledged King as Alec, did not usually travel with this pronounced lack of state.

and was game enough to make way for a younger man.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—With the close of the game, the thousands of loyal Chicagoans who had come to cheer and stayed to weep, wended their way homeward, conceding that the American League had regained its former prestige, and that the once great machine built up by Frank Seelee and Frank Chance was a thing of the past, to go down in history along with the old Anson nine, the Baltimore Orioles and the Chris Von der Ahe clan, of St. Louis.

it as a toy.

The last page in the history of a great baseball club has been written. This could be seen tonight in the care-lined face of Frank Chance.

He, hailed as the peerless leader, the great first sacker, the master of the ball field, was humiliated today. When, with the Philadelphia attack at its hottest today, he took himself from the game to let Jimmy Archer take his place, and there were those who hissed him because he admitted his own weakness

"It might have been different if Johnny Evers had been in the game. But even at that, our team does not seem to be what it was. We'll fight as hard as ever tomorrow, but, frankly, it's going to be an almost hopeless battle. My boys are game, as game a crowd as ever wore a spiked shoe; our record shows that. But so far everything has broken against us. Philadelphia has all the breaks. Our pitchers are not in shape, and we miss Johnny at second."

"After this is over, I pass," Frank Chance said, hotly, last night, according to friends of his with whom he spent the evening. "They can take their baseball and go hang. I'm going to quit and go out to California, I've got money enough

WONDER-SHINE

Cleans more silver in half-an-hour than pastes or powders in halfa-day—and cleans it better.

Madam! That's the reason why you should use WONDER-SHINE—it saves time and toil. Just figure out what this means—how WONDER-SHINE reduces that old, dusty, tiresome job of cleaning silver to a few minutes' pleasant work. Your silver and gold may be costly heirlooms and gifts money could not replace. The rubbing and scouring of pastes and powders is pretty harsh treatment-eventually wears through Counsel took up the subject of the etters and statements to Belle Elmore's friends, which the husband had made regarding her death. Crippen admitted that all were lies, and smilingly assented to the suggestion that he had to play the role of a bereaved husband. He thought that he played the part pretty well.

The witness suggested that it was possible that the humanp arts found n the cellar of his home had been placed there during a period of absence

It developed during the action that no time was lost in establishing Ethel Clare Leneve, the doctor's typist, who is now charged as an accessory after the fact in the murder of Mrs. Crip-pen, in the Hilldrop Crescent home. Crippen admitted that Miss Leneve had slept in the house on the night of Feb. 2, within 24 hours after his wife disappeared.

Witness said that he resolved to go away on July 9, after realizing that suspicion had been directed against him. He feared that he might be arrested and jailed until she was found. He wished also to spare Miss Leneve, whom he persuaded to disguise herself, and quit London, by explaining that the statement which he had made to Inspector Dew involved her as well as himself. He told the girl that there would be a scandal and if his wife was not located that there would be trouble. start a new home together abroad. were for his own preparations. He explained the purchase of hyescin the poison which the crown alleges was used to kill Belle Elmore, by saying that it was required for use in the treatment of nervous cases, and described his formula in making ur hyoscin tablets. Of the hyoscin which he purchased on Jan. 19, he said he had reduced about two-thirds.

The prisoner spoke slowly as he proceeded. He admitted that there was a scar on the body of his wife 41/2 inches in length. It was caused, he said, by an operation twelve years He had never administered hyoscin to his wife. He had no idea whose was the body unearthed in the cellar of his home. Mentioned Miller's Name. "I knew that my wife had been very friendly with Bruce Miller," he continued, "and I often upbraided her for corresponding with him. In 1904, Cora admitted to me that she was very fond of Bruce Miller. Our relations from that ttime on were strained to the breaking point. She repeatedly threatened to leave me, telling me that she could go to America to join Miller. I last saw her on Jan. 31, of this year and I believe that she fled to America. "To avoid scandal, I concocted a story that she had gone to America to attend to certain private business for me in California, and that while on her way across the American continent she had died, and had been in-cinerated there. I simply could not face my friends with an admission that my wife had deserted me. "On the Monday night before I wrote a letter, in her name, to the Music Hall Guild, resigning her position as treasurer, Mrs. and Mr. Paul Martinetti came to our house for dinner. After they left my wife abused me for not paying him more attention, and said: 'This is the finish of it. I won't stand it any longer. I shall leave you tomorrow, and you will never hear of me again.' Before this, she told me that the man she would go to was better able to support her than I was. went to business next morning, and when I went home, between 5 and 6 p.m., I found she had gone.

To Cover Up Her Absence.
"I tried to think how to cover up her absence without any scandal. I wrote to the Guild that she had gone away, and told that to all our friends. I afterwards realized that this would not be a sufficient explanation for her not coming back, and later on I told people that she was ill with pneumonia, and afterwards told them that she was dead from this ailment. I do not remember telling them there she died, except that it was in California. Afterwards they asked me where my son lived, and I gave them his

$1,300 RAISED TO AID SLAYER OF KETCHELL

D. P. Dickerson Believes Pugilist Was Victim of New York Plotters.

[Associated Press.]
Springfield, Mo., Oct. 30.—A fund of $1,300, to be used in the defense of Walter A. Dipley, who is in jail at Mansfield, Mo., charged with slaying Stanley Ketchell, a pugilist, has been raised by the slayer's relatives.

An unsigned letter received on Thursday from New York, said that the writer would be able to furnish some important information bearing on the case if desired.

The writer said that D. P. Dickerson to whom the letter was addressed, would know who wrote the letter. Mr. Dickerson believes Ketchell was the victim of a plot. He says Ketchell had enemies in New York.

FUNERAL OF KETCHELL HELD AT GRAND RAPIDS

Large Procession Headed by Band and Flower Girls Follow Body to Cemetery.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 20.—The funeral of Stanley Ketchell was held in Belmont this afternoon, and the body was at once returned to Grand Rapids, where high mass burial service was held at t. Adelbert's Roman Catholic Church. A large funeral procession, made up of the fighter's many friends, led by the Polish Military Band of Grand Rapids, and six flower girls, followed the body to the cemetery.

The pall-bearers were chosen from the Grand Rapids Lodge of Elks, of which Ketchell was a member.

DEFEAT OF CUBS IS TOO MUCH FOR JURY

Chicago Judge Had Score by Innings Read-Court Adjourned.

[Associated Press.]
Chicago, Oct. 20.—An extra territorial neident of the big game occurred in udge Scanlan's court. The judge having Judge Scanlan's court. Judge Scanlan's court. The judge having ascertained that the members of the jury were more interested in the game than in the case at bar, sought to right matters by having the score by innings read to them by a bailiff. This worked well until news of the defeat of the locals came in. Some of the jurors looked so melancholy that the court dismissed the appel for the that the court dismissed the panel for the day, explaining that in the circumstances it seemed impossible for the jury to spare enough attention from the game and its result to hear any more evidence.

CHARGE OF NEGLIGENCE FILED BY THE BOARD

mence their dances on Thursday, Oct. 27, 1910, at 8:30 p.m. sharp. Admission by invitation only of Discussion at Meeting Last Night.

The charge made by Wm. O'Brien that City Architect Nutter was negligent in his duty, failed, when considered by the board of works last even ing.

Mr. O'Brien stated that Mr. Nutter was asked on several occasions to inspect his house, under construction G. T. R. STRIKER He considered it was Mr. Nutter's duty to protect the citizens when requested to do so.

Mr. Nutter in his explanation show ed that he had summoned the contrac tor for a violation of the building bylaw, and that the case had been enable the builder to comply with law. He could not go to inspect the building at the very moment Mr. O'Brien asked him, but he had inspected it, and the law was being complied

Who Is Inspector? "What I want to know is who is to inspect buildings, Mr. Nutter or the building inspector, Mr. Graydon?" asked Ald. Tancock, "Mr. Nutter gets al the blame, while we pay Mr. Graydon for doing this work.' "Mr. Graydon is building inspector, out Mr. Nutter is working under his instructions." explained the mayor. "He gave Mr. Nutter no instruction: to inspect this building," said Ald. Tancock.

"He does not need to," answered the mayor. "He merely tells him to inspect the buildings in course of construction, and he is supposed to do 'We had better ask Mr. Nutter not to inspect any more buildings, but al-ow Mr. Graydon to do the work,' said Ald. Tancock. Communication Filed. "I move that Mr. O'Brien's communication be filed," said Ald. Saunders.

"We should exonerate Mr. Nutter," declared Ald. Tancock.

"A little criticism will not do him any harm," said Ald. Saunders. "Others have to stand it." The letter was filed. FATAL ACCIDENT.

New York, Oct. 21.-Two men were killed and three men thrown into a swamp and nearly drowned late last night in the first accident on the new electric line of the Pennsylvania Railroad between Harrison, N. J., and the new terminal on Manhattan Island. A construction locomotive ran down a handcar, and shot it 30 feet through the air into a swamp at the foot of the embankment on which it was standing with its crew.

It is the purpose to raise $11,000, if possible, to pay off the existing in-debtedness on the institution.

During the coming week the members of nearly every church in the city will receive an illustrated report of the work being done at the sanatorium and it will undoubtedly be an eloquent pleader for the institution. An attempt will be made to interest the children of the schools in the work, and a special appeal will be made to them. The methods are now under consideration. A meeting will be held on Saturday

The Glasgow Choir. A good-sized and appreciative audiice greeted the Glasgow Select Choir, who last night presented a Scottish concert in the Grand, under the auspices of St. Andrew's Society. Twenty well-trained voices sang the songs of bonny Scotland, and carried their listeners back to her heathered hills, so dear to the Scottish heart.

The opening number was the part song, Paterson's "Scot Wha Hae," inspiring and martial strains of which thrilled the audience. All these part songs were good, notably "The Barrin" of the Door," by Cullen, Patterson's "The Macgregors' Gathering," and Hume's "Afton Water." The popular favor, with which "Annie Laurie" was met, called forth "The Tickling Chorus" as an encore, which convulsed everyone with laughter. The trio, Glover's "Laughing Gypsies," given by Messrs. Wallace, Kerr and Johnson, was irresistibly funny, and their encores were even funnier. The part song, "Willie Wastle," was greeted with mirthful appreciation, and "The Wedding of Shon McLean," rendered by the male voices alone, delighted were sung with great feeling.

Of a more thoughtful nature was Elgar's pretty serenade, "Stars of the Summer Night," Macfarren's coronach, 'He Is Gone" (Lady of the Lake), and the lament, "Bonnie George Campbell,"

"Ye Banks and Braes of Bonny Doon" was given as an encore to the duet by Misses Scott and Foster. "Weel May the Keel Row." "Wi' 'a Hundred Pipers," was a stirring and well presented part-song. Miss Barbara Foster's fine contralto THE PATIENT BRAIN voice touched a responsive chord in the hearts of her listeners with her exceptional rendering of Pinsuti's "The A TIRELESS WORKER SO LONG Old Countree," and "My Ain Folk."

AS SUPPLIED WITH RICH, Miss Jeanie B. Scott, soprano, sang "The Flowers of the Forest" with a superb tone of voice, and answered to an encore with "The Blue Bells of Scotland." Miss Scott's voice also showed to advantage in the solo parts of "Now Tramp" (Roy Roy), "Smile Again, My Bonnie Lassie," an unusually pretty song, was rather well presented by Mr. Peter Kerr.
