THE DESERTER.

The discipline of our ship was harsh and se-ere, without that only quality which can ever ader it tolerable-fair and equal justice. r commander was a fiery, passionate little e; a great stickler for discipline, yet more ulant and unreasonable, than firm or judi-ss. His crew were discontented, and descretulant and unreasonable, than firm or judi-iess. His cave were discontented, and descr-ates, were panished with extreme severity, it it and cure the evil; and during our winter t Smyrna, we lost some of our best men-bur vicinity to the town, the smoothness of the rater, darkened by the high hills that sur-burd the bay, rendered it an easy feat for the bring tart to swim ashore, in spite of the redou-led viginance of the senties and the officers of the watch. Thus many succeeded in esca-ing to the city, where they found ready sym-thy, and conceanment, among the rekless urdes of adveuturers that infest the purlieur i Frankiown.

Irritated at the loss of his men, Captainion, by ameliorating the cause of such ion, by ameliorating the condition of an board, only became more unjust and mnical. In the root were one or two norrow apertures that answered the purpose of windows. Huddled round in a circle, were half a dozen fierce looking men who, by their countenances, and the red cap, we judged to be Greeks. They were playing at cards. They all looked up, and two or three sprang to their feet, and clutched the iong knives which they all wore at their girdles, as we entered. Cudget was sented at the father end of the room, with hs arms folded, and quictly smoking a cigar, looking in no manner disconcerted at the sudden appearance of his officers.

Meadows fixed his keen eye upon him, and pointing him out to me, as I did not at hist observe him, through the smoke, said, "Ach, there is the rascal we are looking for." " Yes, here he is," said Cudgel, in a calm tone; " now come and take him !!" Meadows phased a moment to look around. " Do yon speak English, " he asked, addres-sing the threatening group of desperaldes be-fore him. There was no reply, but they talked loudy and rapidly together. I drew his atten-tion to one who had not risen, and who ap-peared to be deeply engaged in studying the dirty pack of cards on the Boor. I secognised him as one who often came off to the ship in a tonce called to him, but he seemed by no means pleased with the recognition, and somewhat doubtful whether it would not be or judent to give us a decided cut. "You will never leave this place alive, if you attempt it !" should Cudgel, with a sconfui laugh.
Meadows paid him no attention, but went on talking with Jack Straw.

Take care your own is not spilt, boy !? threateningly cited the deserter, who heard what Meadvows had been saying. Jack Straw shook his head douitfully and advised us to retire, as he despaired of being able to restrain his crited associates, who, he told us, were very desjerate characters; but eviden ilw wishing to keep on good terms with way, and finding that we were determined to seize the deserter, he talked very earnestly with them for a few moments, and, by his gestures, seemed both imploring and threatening, to inc-duce them not to molest us. While we paused to observe what impres-sion his arguments made, Cudgel rose up and coming a few steps towards us, again spoke. "Mr. Meadows," said he, in a voice of deep excitement, whose hearse tones seemed to come from the very bottom of his hage chest, "Mr. Meadows, I respect you more than any officer of that Jobody slave ship, and there is not a man on board who would not go through — in you. But you see this?—taking from his breast a large Spanish clasp knife, and springing open its long rointed blade—" Pli soomer put it into my own heart, than go on board thet ship again. The moral superiority and commanding beasing of the young officer awed the desparate deserter. He was what might be called "taken aback." Habits of obedience seemed to reatin their indinence, even over his ferce nature, He cowered beneath the stern glance of Meadows, and he stood irresolute, muttering sullenly to himself." "Give me your handkerchief to tie this felsion," said Meadows, turning to me. "Wever !" should Cudgel, dashing his fat in his face, and spiringin toward one of the apentures in the root. Meadews staggered with the heavy bow, and appeared for a moment blinded. I ran towards him, thinking he had been atuck with the knife. "A rey ou but?" asked. From the Montreal Herald of Thursday last, From the Montreal Herida of Thursday last, There are some grumblers who make it a rule never to be satisfied, and who, if all they want were given to them, would invent new subjects for grumbling about. This is prea-liarly the case at present with the Volunteers of last year, who think that a good suit of win-ter clothes and half a dollar for a drill of a couple of hours one day in the week, is not enough to enduce them to attend regularly. All that was learned last winter will be forgotten, and if we are reuired to fight without more drilling, we hould cut a pretty figure before an enemy. - It is true that a feeling of dissatifaction exists regarding the apparent neglect of the Go vernment, and the hopes of pay for last yea not having been realized, but we ought to for not having been realized, but we ought to for-get the past, for we know very well that it is not the fault of Sir John Colborne, but of that shabby, contemptible, trackling ministry, which at present misgoverns the British Em-pire. Every man ought so to act and feel as if the delence of the country depended on his own evertions, and we hope to hear no more runnblings and growlings of men against their officers whom they themselves elected. flicers whom they themselves elected and of officers against their superiors. Besides it is an infringement of military discipline tending to retard the improvement of a regi-ment, and ought to be discountenanced, esecially by officers, who must be aware that he effectiveness of a corps depends much ore on its obedience to orders than on its physical forces. Mr. Kemble, one of the Vice Prei-dents of the Society, in the absence of the President, made a suitable reply, and propos-ed as a toast " Captain Pring and the officers of the Inconstant," which was drank with three times three. Lieut. Balfour returned thanks, and proposed "the Citizens of Que-bec." He then returned to the frigate, and the steamers hore up for the port, and arrived at half-past seven o'clock. The St. George's Society had provided an elegant collation on board the Canada, and af-ter the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given from the chair, of the evening several good speeches were delivered, and the whole passed off in a man-ner highly creditable to the officers and mem-bers of England's Patron Saint.

At four o'clock, p. st. on Thursday Ilis Ex-cellency Sir John Colborne was sworn in as Administrator of the Government ; and a meeting of the Executive Council, composed of the same members as under Lord Durham's administration, took place in the evening.

Sir John Colborne, left for Montreal last pight in the steamer John Bull. Col. Couper accompanied His Excell-ney.

It is stated that His Excellency the Ad-It is stated that his Excitence in which are informed a Special Legislative Council to meet at Montreal on Friday next. The heads of most of the Departments, it is expected, will leave for Montreal to-night.

Jasper Brewer, Esq., is appointed Assistant Clerk of the Executive Council.

The gentlemen of the Quelec Bar yesterday waited on the Hou. the late Chief Justice Severll with a complimentary address on his retirement from the Bench; and they subse-quently presented an address to his successor, the Hon. James Stuart.

The Canadién gives us an on dit that Mr. Cochran formerly Clerk of the Court of Es-cheats, and recently arrived from England, is to fill the situation of Civil Secretary to His • xcellency Sir John Colborne.

It is stated that J. F. Duval, Esq. has m-signed the situation which he held of Queen's Counsel, and that his resignation has been accepted.

"You have my warmest wishes for its increasing prosperity—and for the general de-velopment in this Province of that desire for mental improvement, and for the attainment of useful knowledge, which will always be found to constitute the best title to the enjoy-ment of free Institutions, and the most efficient security for the maintenance of public tran-quility. quility.

REPLY Of His Excellency the Earl of Durham to the Address from the Saint George's Society of Quebec.

Address from the Suint George's Society of Quebec. • It has afforded me true pleasure to be enabled to join your excellent Society. Its benevolent and charitable objects must be dear to the heart of every Christian, and its de-signation cassnot but rally round the ancient banner of England, all her sons. • I tender you my best thanks for the fa-vourable manner in which you allude to my administration. I entertain the firm convic-tion that had no untoward interruption occur-ed, I should have been enabled, by the bles-sing of God, to have restored peace and tran-guility to this distracted Country—even now thope my presence in England may power-fally tend to that object—and that I may predily have the happiness of seeing mea-sates adopted by the Imperial Parliament, which may ensure you that peace and hap-pines to which you are so well entitled by your loyalty, intelligence and the Fan-

The editors of the Canadien and the Fan-The editors of the Canadien and the Fan-taque, for some motives best known to them-selves, gave out that they and their establish-ments were to be devoured on Thursday night by St. George or the Dragon, or some other terrible enemy to "nos institutions, notre langue et nos loix," and they actually ap-plied to the Police for " sympathy" and pro-tection. Of course there was not the slightest grounds for the quakingy of these genilemen, at " suspicion ever haunts the guilty mind,"

- On the return of the St. George's Society on that evening, from escorting His Excel-ler.cy" the Earl of Durham down the rivery, they did not even deign to bestow on the Canadien a single hiss : and the Fantasque Canadra a binge hiss, and the Fantaque had certainly an immoderate stock of vanity if he expected they would go so far out of their way as St. Roch to extinguish his wane-ing and wavering light.

THE LITERARY TRANSCRIPT.

Thirty-four mulitary convicts,-nearly all deserters who have been captured,-were yesterday placed on board the transport Athol, which sails to-day for England.

A public notice has been issued by the In-spector and Superintendant of Police at Mont-real, enjoining all keepers of hotels, inns, taverns, and hoarding-houses, from the Ist November, to file daily, at the police office, a list containing the names and residence of any stranger which may then reside, or hereafter arrive at their respective houses.

Five Companies of the 93rd Highlainders arrived at Montreal on Wednesday last; four of which proceeded immediately to Upper Ca-nada, and are to be stationed at Hamilton, where batracks have been provided for them. Three Companies of the 73rd Regiment at Montreal, including the head quarters, are under orders for St. Johos.

An account of the circumstances attending An account of the circumstances attending the escape of Theller, Dodge and others from the citade, with which we have been favored, will appear in our next.
