Western Canada Baseball League

Medicine Hat to be in Big Circuit of All the West

Big League Almost Assured for this Summer

It is now almost certain that this summer there will be professional baseball in Canada again. The Times has been steadily working towards this end, and six months ago proposed the league which is now in formation. Ex-Mayor Cousins, on his way to Toronto the other day, stopped off in Winnipeg and met President [illegible] of the Northern League [illegible] and secretary of the Eastern, as well as several [illegible] and all interested in Canada league was talked over. The Cousins had carried with him the resolutions passed by a number of influential local baseball enthusiasts and could assure Winnipeg of Medicine Hat's position in the new league.

All those who attended the conference were in favor of the league suggested by the Times. The teams which will play [illegible] Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Calgary and Edmonton. The dates will not yet have been definitely [illegible] eastern and western divisions [illegible] pointed out that land in the Alberta and now legislature by accident [illegible] the distances in the new league will be no greater than those of the old Copper Country league, in which Winnipeg played for several years.

The only cities whose organization would be different now are Moose Jaw and Regina, but as those two cities are undoubtedly large, and have had good amateur teams for some time, there is likely to be [illegible] difficulty in getting them into the league. [illegible] with the [illegible] Medicine Hat, [illegible] as a certain [illegible] and will be well [illegible] the league.

It is predicted that at any rate there will be no difficulty in creating enthusiasm in the game. The professional league of two years ago drew good crowds here in spite of the financial depression; and as long as the amateurs last year put up good ball the attendance was satisfactory.

Everybody wants professional ball for now, and with such active local workers as are here the prospects are bright for a great summer of ball.

Hurrah for professional ball this year.

Owing to the accident the main line has blocked for sixteen hours.

The casualties were:

Killed—Charles Tandy, of Omaha, Nebraska.

Injured—L. T. Jackson, Calgary; G. W. Walker, Seattle; W. J. Rigg, Winnipeg and W. R. Donovan, the porter of the car. All the injured escaped with slight bruises.

Gull Lake is 36 miles west of Swift Current, at which it is due at 17.20, and Maple Creek, where it is due at 20.30.

Miss Dewar of Pembroke, Ont., is also reported injured.

Railway Commission Here.

The railway commissioners have set a date for sitting in this city. It will be February 15th and 16th. There are a few matters to be decided between the city and C. P. R. on which a ruling is desired by both parties.

R. T. of T. Concert

Choice Programme and Debate

The Royal Templars of Temperance gave an entertainment of a very interesting character in the trainmen's hall on Monday, the 28th ult. The main feature of which was a debate on the subject, "Total Abstinence versus Moderate Drinking." At the outset two chairmen were appointed, one for either side. Mr. Benson acting in behalf of the Abstainers and A. Jonah Williams for the Moderate Drinkers. Mr. Snowden then led for the latter side, vigorously attacking the attitude of the teetotalers, whom he decribed as a band of fanatics, vainly attempting to suppress a custom which dated back to the earliest days of man. Their proposals were antagonistic to human nature and the process of reasoning by which they arrived at their conclusions, utterly illogical. As well might they attempt to eradicate the ancient and honorable custom of marriage, because some marriages were disastrous, at to suppress drinking because, forsooth, some people drank to excess. To be consistent, teetolers should, in point of fact, abstain from marriage. Drinking was associated with all the greatest and happiest events in life—with the celebration of birthdays, of weddings. It would be a sad day for the world when alcohol, the parent of human enjoyment, should be banished from our hearths and homes. The speaker concluded with a poem in glorification of beer.

Leading off for the teetolers, Mr. Bellamy expressed regret that his opponent had advanced no arguments for his side, for it was far easier to deal with arguments than with ridicule. Drinking had been described as an ancient and time-honored custom. Its antiquity non could question, but it was not necessarily honorable on that account. Drink was responsible for the origin of slavery in the ancient world, and poverty and misery had ever followed in its train. Alcohol injured the body and endangered the soul; it brought only a passing excitement to the drinker, and the pleasure derived therefrom was not to be compared with the lasting reward of a good conscience.

Mr Frost opposed the abstinence movement on the ground that the teetotalers took up an extreme position. Temperance consisted in "moderation in all things"—eating, drinking, labor, recreation, reading. Some men were gluttons or indulged to excess in physical exercise yet it would be foolish to organise societies for the suppression of eating or athletics. The moderate drinkers were the only true temperance people. Between the burning mountain of drunkenness on the one hand and the frozen regions of teetotalism on the other, they chose the main path, recognising the he alone lived a noble life who was prepared to fight manfully and manfully overcome.

Meanwhile the toothsome edibles in the form of total abstinence, expanding industries of the previous speaker. His opponent had failed to realize that there were two distinct classes of everything—of food, good and bad; of labor socially harmful. Teetotalers did not propose to give up drinking. But they did propose, without reservation, unwholesome drink, unwholesome recreation (such as certain demoralising theatrical entertainments), and unwholesome drink.

Several [illegible] were [illegible] by Mr. Fowler in support of his motion that wine drinking was not only sanctioned but commended in Holy Writ. As against these Mr. Neff gave quotations equally emphatic in condemnation of strong drink; he took the view, moreover, that whenever wine received commendation in God's Word, the unfermented juice of the grape was referred to.

The Rev. Mr. McLaren, who was next called upon in a few brief remarks commended the noble cause in which the Templars are engaged for the uplift of the race.

The choice concert programme provided by members of the lodge was much appreciated. Mr. Sansom gave a violin solo in his usual excellent style. Miss Cooper Fowler, in the solo, "The Singer", received a hearty encore. Great appreciation was also shown for the piano solo by Miss Schram, recitation by Miss Alma Worth, [illegible] Trotter and the duet "Drink Ye Not," by Misses Gladys [illegible] and Amber Fowler. Miss [illegible] McLaren, won the hearts of the audience by her excellent little recitation "I would not be a boy", which was [illegible] The great success of the evening, Miss Worth's services as accompanist were highly appreciated. Mr. T. Evans acted as chairman of the entertainment.

Y. M. C. RACES.

GREAT INTEREST SHOWN

GOOD WORK DONE BY CONTESTANTS

The Y. M. C. races on New Years morning aroused great interest in the city and a large crowd gathered in the neighbourhood of the club and on Toronto and Main streets to witness the local Marathon and the ladies' and boys' races. The morning was not at all to [illegible] for the events.

The first was the men's race and it is there were eight "starters," to wit, G. Faber, J. Todd, T. Barefoot, Geo. Brotherton, E. Muir, H. B. Lloyd, R. K. Colter and Rodd. At the end of the first mile the order of the competitors was, Rebecca, Barefoot, and these positions were maintained practically throughout the race. The time made by Rebor, the winner was 20 minutes for a distance of [illegible] 400 yds, or an average of a mile in [illegible] minutes.

The unique, and also the most exciting of the morning's events was undoubtedly the ladies' walking race. Rumour had it that certain of the men who had been privileged to act as pacers to the fair contestants-in-training had proved utterly unequal to their task; stories were told of panting, breathless men who had been compelled to resort to break into a trot by the side of their more athletic pupils. And subsequent events gave credence to the rumour. There were nine starters in the race: Miss M. Nicholson, M. Ireland, H. Warren, M. Kennedy, J. Carle, N. Kenney, R. Patterson, M. E. Doty. Miss Nicholson assumed the lead at the start and maintained it to the end. Miss Jessie Carle and Miss Minnie Kennedy were second and third respectively over the whole course. Miss Nicholson showed splendid training and she was the most suitably dressed of the competitors. She came in a minute and ten seconds ahead of her nearest rival. Her time was 38 minutes; Miss Carle's was 39 mins. 10 seconds, Miss Kennedy's 39 mins. 15 seconds.

Eight competitors lined up for the boys' race (16 and under). They were, Earle Morris, ... Brotherton, D. McCarter, G. Trimble, M. McLeod. The winners were, 1st Earle Morris, 2nd W. Brotherton, 3rd G. Trimble. Distance, 1¼ miles.

The prizes will be presented to the successful athletes at a social evening to be held on Friday the 15th inst.

Prize List

Men's road race—1st prize, silver cup donated by club; 2nd prize, solid gold signet ring, extra heavy, with initials engraved, given by Mr. A. M. Wright.

The New Council

Mayor Milne Will Make Good

Some Great Changes Being Made

So unusually large was the amount of business transacted at last night's meeting of the council, the first under Mayor Milne's regime, that The Times is unable to do [illegible] to give a detailed report of the proceedings. The Mayor's opening address set the ball a rolling and things moved quickly during the whole evening. Next week the Mayor's address will be given verbatim, and in the issue a few of the radical steps outlined for the placing of the city's business on a basis of efficiency, are summarized.

Question of city hall staff. In accordance with Mayor's recommendation by-law, re appointment of city treasurer and clerk will be rescinded and, the two offices amalgamated.

Motion by which three offices were created by previous councils will be rescinded at the next meeting. These are superintendent of works, Meter Clerk, and City Teamster.

Committees nominated by Mayor and adopted, are as follows, the names of chairman being given first in each case.

Weddings

HAY—RAY.

The marriage of Miss Mary B. Ray, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Ray, Esplanade St., to Mr. William E. Hay, Principal of the Provincial Model School, Calgary, took place last Wednesday evening at eight o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. The bride who was unattended looked very winsome in a cream silk over taffeta and wearing cream roses. Rev. A. McLaren of Knox church performed the ceremony. The wedding was a very quiet one, only relatives and a few friends being present. Mrs. McDonald and daughter Miss Bella McDonald of Regina were the only out-of town guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hay left for Calgary, the bride wearing suit and hat of light grey.

The lowest temperature registered last night at the meteorological station was —34 degrees. The highest today is 21 degrees to going ty press. A warm wave is on its way across the continent, the barometer is falling and the next few days will be mild.

Another Race on Good Friday

LOCAL MERCHANT OFFERS VALUABLE TROPHY

THE TIMES GIVES SECOND PRIZE — MERCHANTS WILL GIVE OTHERS

A letter has been received by The Times from Mr. W. H. Turpin of Turpin Bros. which will mean another road race in April. There are several towns in the West and other parts of Canada which have annual road races including Hamilton, Guelph, the West end Y. M. C. A., Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Moose Jaw and Vancouver.

Medicine Hat should not be behind. The road race advertises a city, in addition to developing strong young men, as outlined in Mr. Turpin's letter.

Mr. Turpin's trophy, a costly gold medal will be worth winning. The Times will give a valuable silver medal as second prize. Other business men will donate a number of prizes so that there will be something for many contestants. The time of the race — Good Friday will be a holiday and should attract the whole city. The course will be about six miles.

The Editor of The Times:

Dear Sir,—

Would very much like to take up a little space in your paper to outline a project I have had in my mind for some little time. Duriug the past few years road racing has steadily gained in popularity in Canada and why shouldn't it. What other country of modern times has produced a Sherring or a Longboat. A man to win a road race must train faithfully. What does that mean? It means that he must keep control of his bodily actions to get himself in shape, and again a man to make any kind of a showing in a race of this class must possess endurance. Therefore, I contend that road racing tends to cultivate in the young man of our country two of the greatest essentials to success in any walk of life—control of the body and endurance—I would very much like to see an annual road race and with that end in view would suggest tha it be held on Good Friday I will donate a gold medal suitably engraved to the winner—one that he need in no way be ashamed of. I have no doubt but that the other men in our city will be pleased to donate prizes of a similar description, so that there will be a goodly show of prizes for competition. My idea is this, the race to be open to all amateurs in good standing who have resided in Medicine Hat for three months previous to the event. The course to be Start at the city Hall, from there to the race track once around the track, and back again to the City Hall.

I hope that this matter will be taken up properly and that the Medicine Hat road race will become an annual fixture something for our young men to look forward to every year.

Yours Respectfully

W. H. Turpin.

The Central Meat Packing Company

Great Changes in the Canneries Directorate

Now a Great Chance to be a Big Success

When the shareholders of Malcolm's Western Canneries met in Regina on Tuesday there was much doubt as to [illegible] would be the outcome. The [illegible] shareholders were very much dissatisfied with what had been done at the previous meeting, and apparently resented what looked like the attempts of a few Western shareholders and directors to utilize the Company for their own personal aggrandizement.

Previously a meeting of these eastern shareholders had been held in Toronto, at which C. A. Flour, the manager in [illegible] before them the past of the company and received their wishes as to the future. He evidently pleased them as he came west to attend the annual meeting with a great number of proxies. There was a feeling of unrest at the meeting and previously and the ready-cooked plans of the previous meetings were missing.

There was a fairly unanimous opinion that the company would be improved by the elimination of the name of Malcolm, and the name of the company was therefore changed to the Central Meat Packing Co. At one of the former meetings Malcolm had been granted 600 shares of common stock, but this was cancelled.

C. A. Flour of Winnipeg, was appointed general manager and the following directors were added: Hon. R. W. Scott Ottawa; J. T. Barrie, Toronto; Hon. Hugh John MacDonald Winnipeg.

Three thousand share were represented by about thirty shareholders. It was determined to push the plant in this city to a working basis and to commence operations as soon as preparations can be completed. Additional capital was voted for this purpose, and it now seems as if the company had got into the proper hands, with great prospects of good for Medicine Hat.

Methodist Banquet.

Classes Banquet Friends.

On the evening of New Year's Day the Sunday school classes of Mrs Geo Lane, Mr. Nelson Spencer, and Mr. C. J. Bristah gave a banquet to their friends in the Methodist church basement.

About a hundred and twenty guests sat down to and excellent repast an a pleasant and profitable evening was afterwards spent. Interspersed between the toasts were a number of musical items, Messrs Walton and Camben and Misses Worth and Muir contributed pianoforte duets, Messrs Fowler and Lampman vocal solos, and a humorous recitation was given by Miss Ruby Kennedy. The whole entertainment was of a very high order, but the farcical sketch, "A Courtship under Difficulties," presented by Miss Muir, Taylor and Messrs. V. Wilkinson [illegible] was worthy of special mention. The players had evidently given much thought to the preparation of their parts and they displayed real histrionic ability.

Replaying to the toast of "Our Church" the Rev. A. C. Farrell spoke of the motives which should actuate all who took an active interest in the work of the church.

In a humorous speech Mr. H. Williams replied to the toast of "The Ladies". Reference was made to the impending legislation in the local parliament whereby unmarried ladies over twenty-five years who fail to take advantage of their leap year opportunities will be heavily taxed, and the speaker expressed a hope that the passage of this bill will alleviate in a degree the condition of the neglected, disconsolate bachelors of the community.

"Our Classes" was responded to by Mrs. Geo Lane who eloquently voiced the hopes and aspirations of those engaged in the work of Sunday school. "You are young now—remain young, in spirit and in purity of ideals," was the substance of her advice to the scholars.

The toast of "The Strangers" was replied to by Mr. Merrill, and of "Our Gentlemen" by Miss Nesbitt.

The Evening was brought to a close by the singing of "God be with you till we meet again", and the company broke up shortly before half past ten.

Mr. C. J. Bristah made a pleasing toast master.

Sons of England Entertain.

Social and Dance.

An enjoyable social and dance was given in the opera house on New Years eve. by the local lodge of the Sons Of England. It was the first dance given by the Prairie Rose Lodge, No. 235, though last year a very seccessful social was held in Eagles Hall. Since that time the strength of the order has been largely augmented and the dance will now probably become an annual feature.

Dancing was indulged in from 9.30 to 2 to the strains of the orchestra, Messrs Hulbert pianist, Leonard and Morris violists. Mr. Hulbert also kindly accompanied the vocalists whose contributions were highly appreciated. Messrs Porter, Simmonds and Sharp were responsible for this feature of the programme.

Bank Manager Leaving.

Merchants Bank Loses Manager.

It is a matter of regret to the citizens that V. C. James, manager of the Merchants Bank here has sent in his resignation to take effect as soon as he can be relieved. [illegible] has been connected with the [illegible] for [illegible] years and has made many friends who regret to learn that he intends to take up the [illegible] science in Vancouver where he will establish a manufacturers' agency.

His successor will be Mr. H. S. Craig, now manager of the bank in Olds, Alberta. Mr. James expects to leave about January 15th.

Accident At Coleridge.

Robt McLeland of Coleridge, a car cleaner met with a nasty accident Friday morning. He was working in a heated car containing perishable freight when the stove heating the car exploded, the oil burning him severely on the face and one arm and in two or three places on the legs. Dr. Boyd was called up and after rendering assistance brought the injured man to Medicine Hat where he remains in the General Hospital.

New Orders for the Railway Men.

All Enginemen Must be Over 21 Years.

OTTAWA, Dec. 29.—After many conferences with the brotherhood of railway trainment and officials of the different railways the Railway Commission has given judgment and promulgated orders for better protection of railways employees. The orders are of interest to trainmen all over the Dominion.

All enginemen must be over 21 years of age and must have served at least one year as firemen before being appointed to such position.

Conductors must also serve at least one year as brakemen and be over 21 years of age.

Telegraph operators must be over 18 years of age, able to write a legible hand, and be able to pass necessary examination in train rules.

Every employee of the railway company engaged in operating trains shall before undertaking such duties be required to undergo colur test by competent examiner.

Train Wrecked.

On Thursday evening, at 17.35 [illegible] No 97 was wrecked four miles west of Gull Lake. The dining car and tourist car were thrown down a 25 ft. embankment into the ditch.

One passenger was killed and three others slightly injured.

The accident occurred on one of the big "fills" on the new division of the line just completed, and opened for traffic four months ago.

The cars thrown off the track were completely overturned and alighted on their sides in the dich. Many of the occupants of the wrecked coaches were badly shaken up and bruised, but were lucky in escaping as they did. The engine, mail, baggage, express, colonist and first class cars passed over the bad spot all right, so it is supposed a broken rail is responsible for the wreck. The sleeping cars remained on the track and were not damaged at all.

A POPULAR HOLIDAY NUMBER.

Among the Christmas Numbers, that have come to hand, the "Canadian Pictorial" (fifteen cents; published by the Pictorial Publishing Co., 14 St. Sacrament St., Montreal) deserves special mention. Its unique and very charming cover appeals at once to everyone, and its contents, from the bright Christmas Stories and wealth of Christmas pictures to the Sweet Old English Carols, words and music complete, are full of Christmas spirit. Yet even the Christmas number, true to the motto, "New by Views" of the "Canadian Pictorial" shows some splendid pictures dealing with the starring events of the month the world over. The "Canadian Pictorial" has won for itself an enviable place among Canadian publications for its exquisite photogravures and fine workmanship throughout stands unexcelled, and is wonderful value for the money (One Dollar a year, including all special numbers). The New Feature "Unknown Old Favorites" is meeting with hearty appreciation. This gives words and music complete each month of one or more of the old favorites that most people think they know and know they love, yet that only a few can follow right through. A rollicking and spirited old English ballad will appear in the January issue. Short stories have recently been added, the numerous departments are well sustained and further improvements are contemplated for the coming year 1909 three selected back numbers as samples, will be supplied from office of publication for ten cents in stamps. The Sad Spot.

An Irishman one day was told to put up a signboard on which were the words, "To Motorists—This Hill Is Dangerous."

Away went Mike with the signboard and placed it at the bottom of a very steep hill. A few days later his employer went to see how the board was put up and, finding it at the bottom of the hill, sought and found Mike.

"You bloomin' fool!" he cried. "Wouldn't you put that sign in the right place?"

Hardupp—Say, old fellow, lend me a hundred, will you? Riggs—A hundred what? Hardupp—A hundred dollars! Riggs—Oh, stop your joking. Hardupp (earnestly)—Joking? I was never more serious in my life. I'm broke. Riggs—My dear man, you're not broke; you're cracked!—Catholic Standard and Times.

What He Needed.

A sovereign would tempt many men, and when Plimkins, making a few purchases at the stores, saw one lying on the floor just by the counter he quivered with excitement.

Glancing around to reassure himself that none was looking, he quite accidentally dropped one of his kid gloves neatly on the coin and then dived. He got the glove all right, but still the sovereign remained.

A shopwalker approached him.

"Good morning, sir," said the man, rubbing his hands together in the approved style, "and may I show you a bottle of our celebrated liquid glue which sticks"— cured Mrs. K. E. Bright, Burnley, Ont. She writes: "I was greatly troubled, for six years, with my heart and shortness of breath. I could not walk eighty rods without resting four or five times in that short distance. I got so weak and thin I only weighed seventy-three pounds. I decided at last to take some of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking eight boxes I gained in strength and weight, and now weigh one hundred and thirteen pounds, the most I ever weighed in my life. I feel well and can work as well as ever I did, and can heartily thank Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for it all."

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Price 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Terrible Disaster in Italy

Hundreds of Thousands Perish

By an earthquake and tidal wave the south coast of Italy and the island of Sicily was visited on Wednesday, and the loss of life is estimated by some at be 300,000. Eleven earthquake shocks were felt, tumbling to ruins several large cities and towns. A tidal wave which came later, continued the destruction.

Millions of dollars are being contributed from all parts of the world to assist the sufferers, who are [illegible] and hunger.

Then I tried various remedies which were advised by friends, etc., with no better result.

Next I called in another doctor—still the disease continued to spread. It began in the form of small spots and pustules on the child's head. They increased in size and discharged. The discharge seemed to spread infection to other parts, and bit by bit [illegible] entire [illegible] the poor [illegible] face seemed to be one [illegible]

"When the second [illegible] give any relief, I was [illegible] someone who had strongly advised me [illegible] and I did so. The first few applications didn't seem to have any effect at all, but although not apparent it must have been attacking the very roots of the disease, for after persevering with the treatment for a little while we noted a marked improvement. Encouraged by this we continued with Zam-Buk and left off everything else. The disease was gradually subdued, the itching grew less acute, and the little one's suffering was relieved. Then the area of the sores grew less and less, and in the end every trace of the dreadful eczema was removed. Not only so, but there has been no scarring or marks left to disfigure the child's face.

"There is no trace of the disease which caused her such suffering, baffled one specialist and one practitioner, and defied every remedy I could obtain save Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is Nature's own healing balm, being composed of pure herbal essences. It is a sure cure for eczema, ring-worm, ulcers, cuts, burns, bruises, poisoned sores, chronic wounds, bad legs, piles, festering sores, chapped hands, cold-sores, frost-bite, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere sell at 50c. a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto; 3 boxes $1.25. You are warned against harmful imitations sometimes represented to be "just as good."

Sorrowful Bill and the Sour Grapes and Sympathetic Sep.

[Copyright, 1902, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.]

A SLICK MAN.

Once there was a long-headed Schemer who picked up his Assets and moved East. By breaking into every Good Thing that came along and nailing each Opportunity to get a stand-in with the Gentlemen who own the Universe, he was enabled to stack up something like a Million.

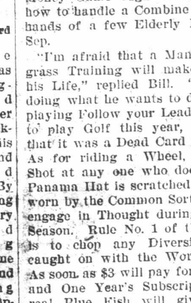
It looked big to his relations who lived out West, but in New York he was a cheap Piker. His Steam Yacht had only one Funnel and there were only seven Bath-Rooms in his House. In fact, he was a good deal of a Skate any way you looked at him.

The Second-Rater had a Cousin named Sep, who lived in one of our Middle States. In his own Baillwick his Sep was a very gallus Proposition. He owned a General Store and a Stock Farm and had Rubber Tires on his Buggy and wore Gloves when driving.

After the Corn had been laid by and the Oats thrashed, Sep had a little time for Romancing around over the Country. He bought a paper-muslin Duster, had a Lunch put up, and bought an Excursion Ticket to Morgansville.

The struggling Millionaire said he was glad to see Sep. He did not shout it through a Megaphone or hang out any Bulletins. He simply said that he was glad to see Sep, and he should have been, for Seppy had slept two nights in the Day Coach and had just bought a sack of bananas.

"Bill, it seems to me that you look kind of peaked," said Sep, as he sank into a Leather Chair and tackled Banana No. 8.



"Ah, yes. I have been under a great Strain," replied the unhappy Soul. "You see, just when we got that South-African Business all straightened out and were ready for the Coronation, then came the Operation, and it upset us dreadfully."

"What are you talking about?" asked Sep.

"The Anglo Saxon Alliance," replied Cousin Bill. "We are now One People. They don't know it, but we are."

"The Alliance cuts very few Lemons out around Peavey's Junction," replied Sep. "Our Idee of Alliance is to stay Friendly with them as long as they buy our Beef Cattle and Grain."

"Not at all," said Bill. "Our present Policy is to skin them until they are overcome with Admiration and invite us to Dinner. You may not know it, Sep, but New York is the Home of the expensive Meal-Ticket. For instance: Why have I whip-sawed the Market all these years and boned like a Turk and worn my nerves to a blithering Frazzle in this unending Wrassle for the Almighty? Is it because I wish to endow a Presbyterian College or establish Ping-Pong Parlors for plain Working Girls? Not on your Breakfast Food! Right across the Street from us there resides a large Lady who has original Knickerbocker Corpuscles moving up and down in her System. She has Blue Blood, and lots of it. We are slathering our Currency and giving her the Office every day or two in the Hope that some Day she will ask us to come over and eat on her. When that gladsome Moment arrives, it's a 50 to 1 Shot that we'll all die of Joy."

SEP.

"What seems to be your Handicap?" asked Sep. "You were invited to all the Parties when you lived at Peavey's Junction."

"Any one who comes in from the Cockle-Burr District with a Bundle is known as a Newyo Reash," replied Bill. "I don't know what it means, never having studied the Dead Languages, but it's about the same as a Slob. In other words, if you make your own Money you're an Awful Thing, but if any one slips it to you and you've never done anything with it except count it and sprinkle a little Florida Water on it, then you're a Nice Young Fellow. Now you see what I'm up against. I'm guilty of Work, and every one is on to me. The best I can hope for is that some of my Grandchildren will Doctor up my Record and finally draw the Meal-Ticket."

"What do you care?" asked Sep. "I wouldn't wear out a whole kit of Tools trying to break into a Refrigerator."

"Ah, Septimus, you do not understand," said the disconsolate Cousin. "It is the Boy who starts in Life on a Hay-Rack and opens his first Cold Bottle at the age of 35, who wants to take his whole Tribe into the Camp of the Elite and swap Visiting Cards with the Vans. Social Recognition has a high Rating because there are only a few Shares on the Market, and not because it pays Dividends."

"It seems to me that a Slick Man who can beat almost any kind of a Money Game ought to learn in time how to handle a Combine that's in the hands of a few Elderly Ladies," said Sep.

"I'm afraid that a Man with a tall-grass Training will make Breaks all his Life," replied Bill. "He's always doing what he wants to do, instead of playing Follow your Leader. I started to play Golf this year, not knowing that it was a Dead Card with the 400. As for riding a Wheel, they take a Shot at any one who does that. The Panama Hat is scratched because it is worn by the Common Sort who have to engage in Thought during the Heated Season. Rule No. 1 of the Smart Set is to chop any Diversion that has caught on with the Working Classes. As soon as $3 will pay for a Motor Car and One Year's Subscription, all the real Blue Fish will give their Machines to the Servants and fall to the Airship. Any one with an old-fashioned Hankering for Baseball and Family Rigs and Drug-Store Sody Water and all such Prairie Luxuries has about one Chance in a Million. Even if my Plebe Tastes didn't queer me, I suppose I would be disqualified by the Pedigree Clause. I have been trying to classify our Ancestral Tree, and I find that it is a Shell-Bark Hickory that has been struck by Lightning several times. It appears that one morning about 200 years ago a Ship was ready to set Sail for the New World. A large number of Foreigners who figured that they couldn't be any worse off, even among the Indians, had booked Passage. One of our Ancestors had made arrangements to sail on that Boat. The Night before the Departure he dropped into the Tavern to say Good-Bye. He became diked up and overslept himself. When he arrived at the Dock he saw the Ship, loaded down with First Families, pulling out of the Harbor. That one Jag is what put our whole Family to the Bad. I figure that if he had not missed that Boat, I would be sitting under an Awning at Newport at this very Minute, with some one fanning me. The grand Mistake our Folks made was to come in with the Bunch. Any one living anywhere on the Other Side at present is strictly in it, and those who came over in time to qualify for the Colonial Societies are now regarded as It by their distant Relations, but those who have come in during the last Century are simply unplaced."

"I can't see it in that Light at all," said Sep. "I have been reading Ridpath's History of the United States, and it says we are all Free and Equal."

"I don't believe it circulates in Our Set," said Bill. "It might, if some one in London would get out a De Luxe Edition."

"Bill," said Sep, "I think you've got the whole Works down pat. It's too bad that you can't guess the Combination."

The New Canning Co.

Medicine Hat will be glad to learn that great changes in the directorate of the Western Canneries have been made. Also the name has been changed with good effect.

It will be remembered that a couple of meetings were held last spring, one of which had a comic opera appearance. The business was transacted, and a trip made to Medicine Hat to inspect the plant. Whereupon a local lawyer showed them that their meeting had been held without a quorum. Later, in May, another meeting was held and things were changed around a little. At both those meetings everything seemed to have been arranged beforehand, and two or three men had been zealously collecting proxies for a long time beforehand. The reason for this could be guessed from the benefits handed out by the meetings.

Evidently the eastern shareholders, who appear to be a large proportion, were not exactly tickled by the outcome of the deliberations of the no-quorum or quorum meetings, and for the last meeting on Tuesday they determined to change things. They held a meeting, and the result of it was that of the general manager, managing director, and assistant managing director, only Mr. C. A. Flour, the managing director, was retained. The superfluous position of assistant was done away with. Mr. Malcolm is out in the cold entirely.

That the changes will work for the good of the industry is undoubted. Mr. Malcolm, whether rightly or wrongly, had attached to the industry a wide spread suspicion and the elimination of his name and the change of company name will restore a large part of the old time enthusiasm. Also the high-titled officials, whose presence on the salary roll would have meant no added experience or prestige, are cut off. One of the most important changes has been the adoption of a suggestion by The Times at the time of the meeting. Instead of trying corner the industry among a few men who thought they saw profit, but whose presence was of no use to the company in restoring confidence, the names of Hon. W. R. Scott and Hon. Hugh John MacDonald have been added to the directorate. The result is that instead of a coterie of unknown men attempting to dispose of 200,000 dollars worth of stock, the names of a couple of well-known men can be made use of,

The success of the Packing Co. is of personal interest to every citizen, and they will all be pleased to hear that the chances of success are now very much brighter.

The Alberta Railway Policy

Alberta has declared that it is going to have a railway policy. The Premier has vaguely said there will be something happen, but in Alberta he was too indefinite to make one believe he had any other idea at the time than to for-stall the Calgary Herald in its campaign. However, we are thankful for the promise, although no one knows whether he will profit or not.

Then when he got east, our worthy Premier spoke largely about the need of railways up in the Peace River section — and never mentioned any other part of his Province. Of course any railway into the Peace River country will run out of Edmonton—as as every other railway the Liberal governments have had anything to do with, have done. The Dominion Government has treated Alberta as if centred in Edmonton. Our worthy friend, Honest Frank, is an influence for good for Alberta—as centered in Edmonton. The only direction a railway does not start for from Edmonton is north. And now we have it that this wonderful Alberta railway policy is established to cover this deficiency.

In the meatime Southern Alberta, with its thousands of people to every hundred up Peace River way, must wait until Edmonton is satisfied. There is too much development of new country before older settled districts have reasonable service. The South does not demand a network of railways like Ontario, but it does think that a big tract of country such as is bounded by the C. and E. on the west, the main line on the C.P.R. on the south, the C.N.R. on the north, and the Regina Saskatoon line on the east—a big stretch of arable land, 450 by 200 miles—entirely surrounded by railway and farmers—should receive attention from the Alberta Government before it builds railways to an experimental territory.

Herald's policy. And then Edmonton is such a Liberal centre that of course they must be very liberal with it.

Railways in the tract mentioned would tap farms right at the start, and thousands of homesteads in there are just waiting for railways. Up north no one knows exactly what can be done, and the success, financially, of any railway would not come for years.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Remember, it's 1909.

1909 is Medicine Hat's year.

"How would you like to be the diaphone man?" has become the popular slang.

The man who can sell a $150 article for $4,800 is usually considered a mighty shrewd business man. But it means nothing when the buyer is the Government.

There isn't much danger of the United States Government enforcing the sentence of imprisonment upon Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell, and Morrison. The men were innocent of any criminal intent, however technically illegal the publication of an unfair list may be. It would not be good policy on the part of any Government to imprison leaders of large bodies of citizens like labor unions on a mere technicality. Gompers has recognized the law by ceasing to issue unfair lists.

As further figures come to hand regarding the votes cast at the Federal election, the gain of the Conservatives is most gratifying to the party. In every province but New Brunswick the Opposition increased its vote more than the Liberals. In Ontario the Conservatives gained 13,000 votes, the Liberals 4,000; in Quebec, Conservatives gained 18,000, Liberals 14,000; in Nova Scotia, Conservatives gained 1,000 Liberals lost 7,000; in New Brunswick, Conservatives lost 2,000, Liberals gained 3,000; In Prince Edward Island there was practically no change; in Manitoba, Conservatives gained 11,000, Liberals, 5,000; west of Manitoba, Conservatives gained 14,000, Liberals 10,000.

Electricity is becoming a live issue in the city. Already several buildings have their own engines and dynamos, manufacturing their own electricity. Also all the new buildings of any size are being wired ready for the electricity which everyone knows will come sooner or later. When individual buildings will go to the expense of installing their own plants it is pretty straight evidence of how much electricity is needed.

The offer of Mr. W. H. Turpin, of Turpin Bros., found on another page, should prove an incentive to the ever increasing popularity of road racing. The races on New Year's Day, given by the Y.M.C., drew big crowds. Now Mr. Turpin is offering a gold medal for an open event. The Times would make the suggestion that, while the race means the city ge...

advertising, and the event will become of more than local interest.

The Times has offered a valuable prize, which will be presented to the winner in addition to the medal.

Medicine Hat has reason to be proud of its position in the financial world. A couple of weeks ago it was offered par with interest for its debentures. The offer was turned down, as a better figure can be obtained, but is the best price offered any city in the West. For instance, Lethbridge is proud of its 102.51 for 5 per cent. deben-

By-Law No. ====

To grant lands and rights of way to M. E. Newell and Warren Overpack and to authorize the raising of money and for the purpose of establishing a sewer pipe industry near the City of Medicine Hat.

WHEREAS M. E. Newell and Warren Overpack, for the purpose of establishing a Sewer Pipe Factory, have applied to this Council for the grant to them of blocks A and B according to a plan of the Southeast quarter of Section Thirty (30), Township Twelve (12), Range Five (5), West of the Fourth, near the City of Medicine Hat, together with a Right-of-way Twenty (20) feet in width for the purpose of a Railway Track or Siding running East from said Block A to the "Railway Right-of-way," as shown on said plan, also a Right-of-way fifteen (15) feet in width, for the purpose of a Railway Track or Siding across the lands lying between the said Blocks A and B, and to secure and grant the said Newell and Overpack a Right-of-way across the Southwest quarter of Section Three (3), Township Twelve (12), Range Five (5), West of the Fourth Meridian for the purpose of constructing a track from a connection with The Canadian Pacific Railway to the clay lands of the said Newell and Overpack, and the said Newell and Overpack require the said City to sink, case, and complete ready for use, a gas well of standard size to the lowest depth gas wells are now sunk for commercial purposes in Medicine Hat, at a point in said Block A, or said Block B, to be selected by said Newell and Overpack.

AND to construct and thereafter maintain the Railway Track from the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the said property as provided in the agreement between Bennett & Hamilton and the said city and to allow Newell and Overpack the right to use the said track so constructed for the purpose of reaching the tracks of such Railway.

AND WHEREAS the said Newell and Overpack have requested the said city to exempt said property from all taxes under their control, excepting School Taxes.

AND WHEREAS the City of Medicine Hat and the citizens thereof deem it advisable in order to secure the construction and operation of said Sewer Pipe Industry that said request should be granted upon conditions that said Newell and Overpack enter into an agreement with the Council of the City of Medicine Hat.

A. To cause to be erected and operated the Sewer Pipe Manufacturing Plant on the aforesaid Blocks A and B, which will consist of the following. Amongst other buildings, Main Drying Building about 256 x 80 feet, four stories in height basement.

B. Building for clay and part machinery about 56 x 56 feet, the portion for the machinery to be one storey high and the balance three stories high. These buildings to be connected by a building about 30 x 60 feet, three stories without basement.

C. A Battery of Twelve (12) kilns 28 feet in diameter, inside measurement.

The above dimensions being approximately correct.

AND said Newell and Overpack will construct a thoroughly substantial and up-to-date Sewer Pipe Manufacturing Plant, equipped throughout with the most modern machinery, employing from sixty (60) to one hundred (100) men.

AND WHEREAS E. D. Bennett and J. W. Hamilton have heretofore agreed with the said city to transfer said Blocks A and B and said Right-of-way over and along said Southwest quarter of Section Thirty (30), on condition that the said City construct and maintain a Spur Track from the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the said property.

AND WHEREAS in order to provide for purchase of the said Rights of way and sinking of said gas well it is necessary to issue debentures of this municipality for the sum of $15,000 payable as herein provided.

AND WHEREAS it is intended that the said indebtedness shall extend over a period of Thirty (30) years from the date on which this By-law shall take effect.

AND WHEREAS it is intended that said debentures shall bear interest at the rate of Five per cent. per annum to be paid annually and that [illegible] principal sum [illegible] in each instalment [illegible] of principal and interest [illegible] in each year [illegible] interest [illegible] are to run.

AND WHEREAS the amount of assessable property of the City of Medicine Hat, according to the last revised assessment roll is $4,456,305.-90 and the rateable proportion thereof is $2,998,191 90.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the debenture debt of the said City is $374,183 15, and no principal or interest is in arrears.

THEREFORE the Council of the City of Medicine Hat enacts as follows:

1. The Mayor and City Clerk are hereby authorized to execute an agreement for the transfer of the said Blocks A and B and the said Rights-of-way, namely:

A. From said Block A to the Right-of-way shown on said plan of said property.

B. From Block A to Block B.

C. Across the Southeast quarter of Section Three (3), Township Twelve (12), Range Five (5), West of Fourth Meridian, upon the terms above set forth, upon receiving a duplicate thereof duly executed by said Newell and Overpack.

2. That the Sewer Pipe Manufacturing establishment and the premises of the said Newell and Overpack or their heirs or assigns, situate on the Southwest quarter of Section Thirty (30) aforesaid, shall be exempt from all taxes (except school taxes) which are or may hereafter come under the control of the said City for and during the period of Fifteen years next after the passing of this By-law.

3. It shall be lawful for the corporation of the said City for the purposes aforesaid to issue debentures of the said Municipality to the amount of $15,000.00 of sums not less than One Thousand Dollars ($1000.00) each. The said debentures shall have attached to each thirty coupons each of such coupons shall represent such part of the principal of the said debenture which added to the interest due on the amount of such debentures remaining unpaid at the time for payment of the last preceding coupon shall make the yearly payments or installments of the said principal and interest equal during the term of years over which the said debentures shall extend, viz., Thirty years, and the interest shall be computed at the rate of Five Dollars per centum per annum.

4. The said debentures and coupons as to principal and interest shall be payable at the office of the Bank of Montreal in the City of Medicine Hat or the principle office of the said Bank in Montreal or Toronto, and shall be in the form provided by Section 7, Title XXII. of the Medicine Hat Charter or to the like effect.

5. The said debentures shall be sealed with the corporate seal of the City and signed by the Mayor and Treasurer and said coupons shall be signed by the Clerk.

6. There shall be raised and levied by special rate on all rateable property in the said Municipality during the currency of the said debentures the sum of $975.75, during each year of the said term.

7. That this by-law shall come into effect on the First day of March, 1909.

8. The votes of the qualified electors of this city shall be taken on this By-law by the Deputy Returning Officers hereinafter named on the 15th day of January, 1909, commencing at the hour of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and continuing until 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the undermentioned places:

9. Edward Roberts the City Clerk shall be Returning Officer.

10. The Mayor shall attend at his office in the City Hall on the 14th day of January, 1909, for the purpose of appointing persons to attend at the various polling places and the persons interested in and promoting or opposing the passing of this, at the final summing up of the votes by the Returning Officer on behalf of.

11. That the City Clerk shall sum up the number of votes taken for and against this By-law at his office in the City Hall at the hour of 11 o'clock in the forenoon of the 16th day of January, 1909.

Read a first time this 22nd day of December, 1908.

A NOTORIOUS OUTLAW

Fearless "Billy the Kid," Who Reveled in Carnage.

ONLY A BOY, YET A TERROR.

This Youthful Desperado of the Southwestern Territories Was but Twenty-one When He Met Death at the Hands of Sheriff Pat Garrett.

When General Lew Wallace was governor of New Mexico and the war that raged for several years between the rival cattle companies was at its height "Billy the Kid" had reached the flood of his murderous career. He arrived in Lincoln county to take sides in the cattle warfare, known and feared in every range town and mining camp in the southwestern territories.

Pure wanton love of carnage was all that attracted him to Lincoln county. With the band of desperadoes he led he raided ranches, "shot up" towns, killed, burned houses and committed outrage after outrage with the blind recklessness of a maniac. Fear was extinct within him. He cared no more for detachments of cavalry than he did for cowering sheriffs.

Affairs in New Mexico finally came to such a pass that half the cattlemen paid the youthful desperado tribute. It was only after Pat F. Garrett was made sheriff of Lincoln county and the author of "Ben-Hur" (General Wallace) urged that fearless gun fighter and gambler to capture Billy the Kid that a determined effort was made to end his reign of terror.

The obstacles that Garrett had to encounter called for all his headlong energy and nerve. Billy had the entire countryside in a state of abject terror; friends were ready to give him timely warning of pursuit; ranchmen dared not deny him lodgment or concealment.

Pat Garrett undertook the capture in October, 1880, and on Dec. 20 he surrounded the Kid and his band in a deserted house near Stinking Springs. After a siege lasting most of the day the outlaws' ammunition was exhausted. Billy the Kid surrendered. He and his four followers, surrounded by a great force of armed men, were taken to Las Vegas and thence to Santa Fe for safe keeping.

An array of indictments charging murder confronted him. He was tried on one indictment and acquitted, then tried on another and convicted. He carried himself throughout with sneering defiance. After he had been sentenced to hang Garrett took him to Fort Stanton, near Lincoln. Two deputies armed with Winchesters were assigned to guard him in the temporary jail in the Murphy & Dolan store building.

In some mysterious fashion the Kid possessed himself of a revolver, shot down his guards, seized their weapons and appeared at the window. When another guard appeared the prisoner riddled his body with buckshot. Then he called to an old man on the plaza to bring him a file. Filing off one of his shackles, he called for a horse. One was brought, and he escaped.

For nearly three months after that Billy the Kid led a fugitive life. Garrett dogged him patiently and finally got wind of his hiding place—the ranch of Peter Maxwell, near Fort Sumner. It was nearly midnight when Garrett and two deputies quietly approached the Maxwell hacienda. Garrett crept into the room where Maxwell was sleeping. Softly awakening the sleeper, he questioned him concerning the whereabouts of the Kid.

At that moment the hunted youth sprang into the room, calling out in Spanish, "Quien va?" ("Who comes there?") It was Billy. He was unarmed, and as he reached for his rifle Garrett shot him. The body of William Bonney (Billy the Kid) was buried in the military cemetery at Fort Stanton July 15, 1881. His age at the time of his death was twenty-one years seven months. There his body is today, though in later years a corpse was exhibited throughout the west as that of the famous young outlaw.—Harper's Weekly.

None Left Alive.

"An orator," said one of our statesmen, "was addressing an assemblage of the people. He recounted the people's wrongs. Then he passionately cried:

"'Where are America's great men? Why don't they take up the cudgel in our defense? In the face of our manifold wrongs why do they remain cold, immovable, silent?'

Hazel's Two Husbands and What Became of Them.

10:30 A. M.

Once there was a Nice Girl who graduated from the High School in a White Organdie, and read an Essay, on Heliotrope Paper, entitled "Life and Its Opportunities."

The Girl's name was Hazel, and about the time she drew the Diploma she was eating Sour Pickles and just crazy to be an Authoress.

A few Months later she Debuted with a Fanfare of Trumpets, after which she was so busy straightening out her Locks and sorting over her Dance Programmes that she forgot all about her Literary Ambitions.

Hazel was built on the Gibson Plan and it looked as if a good, fresh Breeze might blow her away. Just the same, when she went to a Hop she was good for everything from the Grand March to "Home, Sweet Home." All she needed to keep her on the Jump throughout the entire Night was a dab of Chicken Salad and a Macaroon about 1 a. m.

Hazel stood in with the real Rowdy-Dows and was present at most of the full Doings, but she was a trifle shy on Wardrobe. Papa had a large Family, hitched behind his lowly Apple-Cart, and he could not provide Hazel with very many Snake Rings and Diamond Belt-Buckles.

So foxy Hazel had the Weather Eye at work. She was looking for something Kind and Easy.

Of course she liked the Boys she met at the Dances. They were lovely Chaps and kept their Hair combed nicely. Each one of them owned another Suit of Clothes and a Banjo, but Hazel was not looking for a Banjo. She was hoping for a Perfect Gentleman who would hand her a Check-Book and tell her to go as far as she liked.

Therefore, when an Elderly Bachelor with an Income of several Dollars per Minute began to hang around, she hearkened to the Voice of Reason.

Hazel found herself in a swell Shack right on the Boulevard, with 14 Vassals to do her Bidding and a Change of Jewelry for every Hour in the Day.

Husband would arise at 7:30 and pike to the Office, but Hazel would take her Coffee in Bed about 10:30 and then read the Sussiety Notes, for fear that her Name had got into the Papers. Then she would have her Hair done up and permit two or three strong Servants to lift her into her Clothes. Then she would go out for a little Ride in a Royal Equipage padded 14 inches deep

THE SLOBSTERINE.

All this time the Money-Getter would be answering the Telephone with one Hand and dictating Contracts with the Other.

At 6:30, when the Producer showed up for Dinner, he was a Faded Flower, and had about as much Gimp as a Wet Towel. But Hazel, when she began to sniff the Night Air, was just as kittenish as a Broncho and keen for a Frolic. She was for taking in a chaste and instructive Musical Comedy and then having a tasty little Supper of about 11 Courses.

If the Producer tried to lie down and claimed that it had been a Hard Day at the Office, Hazel accused him of being a Slobsterine, and intimated that he had ceased to Love. After sitting around all Day, Hazel was not hankering for any Quiet Evening in the Library. She wanted to get out and hit up the High Spots and dazzle the Public with her A1 Exhibit of Precious Stones.

Papa knew that if he did not go she would call up some of the Live Ones and leave him behind. He wanted to be game, so he would trail along and hover like a Dark Cloud at the Outskirts of the Happy Group. The only time any one paid any Attention to him was when the Check came.

Hazel had him going South most of the Time.

If he ever started to rise up and declare himself she would give him a sweet little Kiss right on the Forehead, and tell him to lie down and Behave.

There is only one Finish for the deluded Mortal who tries to work on a Day Schedule and at the same time cover the Bright-Light District with the Night Shift. He winds up as the Principal Attraction of a Daylight Function at which six of his old-time Friends wear White Gloves. Every one sends Flowers, but he does not have to acknowledge them.

Hazel looked very well in Black, but it was Hard Lines for her to stay indoors. She knew it would cause Talk if she cut loose before the Grass was Green in the Family Lot, so she was pulling for an Early Spring and plenty of Rain.

When she bought her Second Ticket for the Merry-go-Round she was determined on one Thing

"The next one I pick out will not be tied down to any Office," she told herself. "I want a Man who can keep awake all Evening. I refuse to travel with Quitters. What we need in this Country to put Ginger into our Social Affairs are Gentlemen of Leisure who begin to get Good along about Midnight."

So she picked out a handsome Wretch of Good Family who never had worked a Moment in all of his Life, and who hated the sight of a Bed.

He argued that it was Bad Form for any one to suggest going home before Daybreak.

SHE OBTAINED A DECREE.

They went traveling together as soon as she had settled the Insurance. When they arrived in a New Town he would go out to buy a Package of Cigarettes, and then he would return in three days to find out if everything was O. K. and if she was having a Nice Time.

But you could say one Word to his Credit. He never interfered with any of her Arrangements, for the Reason that when the Arrangements were being made he was Non Est. He belonged to several Clubs, at which the Members removed their Pajamas to put on Evening Clothes. Sometimes he met his Wife at Dinner-Parties, and when he did so he showed her every Consideration and asked her if she was still living at the same Place. He never forgot to be a Gentleman, even at a Dinner-Party.

Although she saw him only about once a Week, she always had this Consolation: She knew he was not working himself to Death in any Office.

When she applied for a Divorce, the Officers had to Hunt a long Time before they found him.

He was very much Pained, and said he had never used a harsh or cruel Word to her, because he always talked over the Phone, with Central listening.

She obtained a Decree, and as she was leaving the Court-Room she was met by a sympathetic Friend.

"What are you going to do next?" asked the Friend.

"I am going to buy a Dog," was the Reply.

CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA

As is well known, this troublesome complaint arises from overeating, too much rich food, rich drink, lack of exercise, bad digestion.

The food should be thoroughly masticated and never bolted or swallowed whole, stimulants must be avoided or taken if possible.

A remedy which has rarely failed to give prompt relief and effect a cure even in the most obstinate cases is

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

It acts by regulating and toning the digestive organs, removing obstructions, increasing the appetite and restoring health and vigor to the system.

Mr. Amos Sawler, Gold River, N.S., writes:—"I was greatly troubled with dyspepsia, and after trying several doctors to no effect I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters and I think it is the best medicine there is for that complaint."

Glad it Did so Much Good.

Some remarkable stories are being told about town and among the country people coming in of this simple home made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink lenty of water.

This mixture has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys; cleansing the congested pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter overcoming Rheumatism, Bladde and Urinary troubles in a short while.

A druggist here who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers last October stated that the people who once try it swear by it, especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer with Rheumatism.

All the druggists in this neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients, which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood cleansing agent or system tonic known, and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

Many Women Suffer Untold Agony From Kidney Trouble.

Very often they think it is from so-called "female disease." There is less "female trouble" than they think.

Women suffer from backache, sleepless nes, nervousness, irritability and a dragging down feeling in the loins. So do men and they do not have "female trouble."

Why, then, blame all your trouble to "female disease"?

Most of the so-called "female disorders" are no more or less than "kidney disorders, and can be easily and quickly cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs C. Dupuis, Belleview Village, N.B. writes: "I was unable to do my housework for two years on account of backache. I could not get up the stairs. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me permanently after doctors failed to even relieve the pain. I can highly recommend them to all sufferers from kidney trouble."

Price 50 cts. per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receip of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

IRVINE SEED FAIR

THE FIRST ANNUAL

The first annual seed fair of the Irvine Agricultural Society will be held on Thursday, January 14, 1909, for the exhibition, sale and exchange of farm seeds.

1. All seeds entered for competition must have been grown by the exhibitor in the year 1908.

INDIGESTION IS ENDED FOREVER.

Why not start now—today, and forever rid yourself of Stomach trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapepsin works, your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of Indigestion.

Burns Natural Gas-- Has a Fused Aluminium Oven

McClary's "Caloric" Gas Range

The "Caloric" is substantially put together. For example, the oven walls are double, and the interior covered with fused aluminium. This fused aluminium is a wonderful resistant to rust, heat and acid—gives "Caloric" the ability to outlast two of the cheaper ranges. Then, when it comes to baking and roasting, you'll find the "Caloric" supreme. The double oven bottom, with air space between, prevents oven from becoming suddenly very hot and burning the article—a fault common to ordinary gas ranges. See this superior gas range at

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dy-peptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks time the sores commenced to heal and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I can confidently recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." New Council at Its First Meeting

Without any preliminaries the business of the Council of 1909 Medicine Hat's red letter year to be, settled down to serious work at its first meeting, on Monday the 4th inst. All the newly elected aldermen were there, Alds. Huckvale and Peahale being the only absentees from the council.

Gentlemen, — Before proceeding with the business of the session there are some matters which I think it well to outline for your consideration.

At the present time there is considerable business requiring your immediate attention, in fact, the indications are for an exceptionally busy year. To expedite business in Council and at the same time give full and free discussion I shall insist on every alderman rising to his feet when speaking so that all discussion and debate shall be as full and fair as possible, and I trust, gentlemen, that you will support me in this and make your duties along this line as light as possible.

I would also suggest that the chairmen get their committees together and decide on the course to be adopted on any matter coming under their jurisdiction so as to eliminate as much as possible detail work in Council.

In regard to the waterworks no doubt the old members are aware that the chief trouble with the filter plant last season was the want of power to pump the water into the filter beds and also that the capacity of the filter plant is not sufficient for this summer's anticipated requirements. It will be the duty of the Water Commissioners to at once take this matter up and have the work completed before the spring freshets. They will also have to consider the matter of hydrants on the hill for fire protection and the extension of the water mains to Industrial Place if the bylaw to assist the sewer pipe industry carries. The question of financing and placing the department upon a better business basis will have to be considered and to this end in view I would suggest for your consideration the adoption of the frontage tax system to meet the payment of debentures and interest and to adjust the fire protection charges in accordance with the powers given in our City Charter. Then the consumers would be governed entirely by operating and maintenance expenses, which should be sufficient to meet all contingencies.

Finance. This is a committee that has the credit of the city under control and I think it could very profitably take up the whole question of the city's finances. While the city is in a good financial position, there is every reason why we should settle at now and adopt a system that will be satisfactory. For instance the gas debenture indebtedness is a reality but the duration of the loan is unknown to us, and it might be advisable to establish a sinking fund for their liability as provided for in our charter.

I have carefully considered the matter of our City Hall staff and have arrived at the conclusion that we could with advantage to the service amalgamate the offices of Secretary and Treasurer. The work could be done then with two competent men devoting all their time to the work. I would suggest that you cancel the bylaw appointing our present Treasurer and Secretary and advertise for applications for the position of Secretary Treasurer and Assistant Secretary Treasurer, who would devote their whole time to the city's work and allow no other outside work to be transacted in the city offices. I wish it to be distinctly understood that I am not casting reflections upon the present officeal. I simply wish to state that what we require is a man to fill the office and not create an office to fit a man.

I think, gentlemen, it would be money well spent and give every satisfaction to [illegible] ipal auditor to go over the books and accounts at present and submit a statement as to the [illegible] I must confess that the conception of the [illegible] tion at the present [illegible] And it is just possible his advice may be of great value to us. He would like to impress upon the various chairmen the necessity of expending the money at their disposal within the bank balance, incurring any expense as I have no intention of borrowing or using financial finance methods. And to the citizens I would say that money for permanent works will have to be voted by them before we will proceed.

The time has arrived when we should devise means to relieve the [illegible] men of all executive work which, I think, can be done by taking advantage of the powers given in the Charter and appoint a committee of works who would be responsible for all works and employees. To this end in view I would suggest that you appoint a committee of three or more to consider the question and draft a bylaw to define the powers and duties and submit it to this Council for approval.

In selecting the various committees for the year I have taken into consideration the time that you have at your disposal without encroaching too much upon your private interests together with knowledge of affairs and adaptability as they appear to me. I trust that my actions in this matter will meet with

New Council at Its First Meeting

Without any preliminaries the business of the Council of 1909 Medicine Hat's red letter year to be, settled down to serious work at its first meeting, on Monday the 4th inst. All the new aldermen were there, Alds. Huckvale and Penhale being the only absentees from the council.

In regard to the waterworks no doubt the old members are aware that the chief trouble with the filter plant last season was the want of power to pump the water into the filter bed and also that the capacity of the filter plant is not sufficient for this summer's anticipated requirements. It will be the duty of the Water Commissioners to at once take this matter up and have the work completed before the spring freshets. They will also have to consider the matter of hydrants on the hill for fire protection and the extension of the water mains to Industrial Place if the bylaw to assist the sewer pipe industry carries. Then the cost to consumers would be governed entirely by operating and maintenance expenses, which should be sufficient to meet all contingencies.

Finance. This is a committee that has the credit of the city under its control and I think it could very profitably take up the whole question of the city's finances.

While the city is in a good financial position, there is every reason why we should see to it now and adopt a system that will be satisfactory. For instance the gas debenture indebtedness is a reality but the duration of the gas is unknown to us, and it might be advisable to establish a sinking fund for their liability as provided for in our charter.

I have carefully considered the matter of our City Hall staff and have arrived at the conclusion that we could with advantages to the city amalgamate the offices of Secretary and Treasurer. The work could be done then with two competent office men devoting all their time to city work. I would suggest that you cancel the bylaw appointing our present Treasurer and Secretary and advertise for applications for the position of Secretary-Treasurer and Assistant Secretary-Treasurer, who would devote their whole time to the city's work and allow no other than city work to be transacted in the city offices. I wish it to be distinctly understood that I am not casting reflections upon the present official. I simply wish to state that what we require is a man to fill the office, and not create an office for the man.

I think, gentlemen, it would be money well spent and give everyone a good deal of satisfaction to get a qualified municipal auditor to go over the city accounts at present and give us a verified statement as to where we stand, for I must confess that I have no clear conception of the city's financial position at the present time, and it is just possible his advice will be of great value to us. Here I would like to impress upon the various chairmen the necessity of having the money at their disposal in the bank before incurring any expense, as I have no intention of worrying or using frenzied finance methods. And to the citizens I would say that money for permanent works will have to be voted by them before we will proceed.

The time has arrived when we must devise means to relieve the aldermen of all executive work. This, I think, can be done by taking advantage of the powers given in the City Charter and appoint a "commissioner of works who would be responsible for all works and employees. With this end in view I would suggest that you appoint a committee of three or more to consider this question and draft a bylaw to define the powers and duties and submit it to this Council for approval.

In selecting the various committees for the year I have taken into consideration the time that you have at your disposal, without encroaching too much upon your private interests, together with knowledge of affairs and adaptability as they appear to me. I trust that my action in this matter will meet with your hearty co-operation and approval and that your deliberations at all times will be with a view to benefiting the city as a whole.

Communications were dealt with as follows;

O. W. Kealy wrote accepting the city's offer for settlement of claim of Stewart & Tweed for damage to rig etc.

W. A. Begg wrote in further reference to his client Mr. Lowe's application for a rebate on taxes paid. After some discussion the communication was filed as the matter has been dealt with by last year's council. The secretary of the Board of Railway Commission wrote in reply to application for permission to lay spur track to Industrial Place. The letter stated that many applicants to the Board had neglected to comply with the rules of procedure, and that after the receipt of the notice no application would be received unless proof of service and all necessary plans, etc. were furnished. Filed.

A letter was also received from Superintendent Manning of the C. P. R. in regard to the proposed spur track. This stated that the Company would agree to its construction, the city to pay cost of ties and of the labour of grading, also an annual rental based on 6 per cent interest on the value of the steel, switches, and attachments used in construction. A survey would be made immediately and plans and estimate prepared at the earliest possible date.

Another communication from the Railway Commission had reference to a sitting of that body in this city on Feb. 15th and 16th next, to consider the matter of railway crossing. Referred to solicitor.

J. S. Hall wrote giving dates of annual Convention of Alberta Municipalities in Edmonton. The dates are Wednesday and Thursday, January 27th and 28th.

Dr. Boyd made application and was reappointed medical officer of health at a salary of $500 a year.

Contractor Grant wrote asking for return of marked cheque for $600, claiming that he was entitled to this as the gas boring had been completed to a depth of 2207 feet. Referred to gas committee and engineer, cheque to be returned if such be in accordance with contract.

Finance committee recommended payment of the following accounts:

Geo. A. Luno	$5.00
F. E. Batt	5.00
Clement Neff	4.00
J. H. G. Bray	2.00
H. T. W. Forster	5.00
Reynolds & Stewart	15.00
E. Roberts	4.00
Herbert Baker	3.00
F. S. Pingle	5.00
Gordon DesBrisay	3.00
J. H. G. Bray	3.00

Notices of motion were given to rescind by law by which the offices of city treasurer and city clerk were created and also to rescind the motions by which the offices of superintendents of works, meter clerk and city teamster were made.

Ald. Morrow renewed his notice of motion with regard to the granting of a site to the Southern Alberta Land Co.

Offer of Nay and James for market debentures (par with accrued interest, Medicine Hat delivery) left over by last year's council, was turned down, the Mayor having received an offer of 101, similar terms, through Mr. V. C. James. Referred to finance committee.

The questions of proposed permanent fire chief and increased pay for drivers were then brought up, and after discussion refered to fire, water and light committee, with the addition of the Mayor and Ald. Howson.

Council then took up the discussion of the agreement with the Sewer Pipe company. Mr. D. G. White, in behalf of the company, explained that the agreement had been ready to be signed before the old council went out of office, but ex-Mayor Cousins had left the city without signing. The company were desirous of getting the matter settled in order that Mr. Overpack might make arrangements to address a meeting of the ratepayers. One or two of the reasons which had led Mr. Cousins to withhold his signature were brought out by Mr. Mahaffy. One of these was conserned with the question of right-of-way across the lots dividing the two blocks purchased from Industrial Realty; This difficulty had been cleared up, however the real estate firm agreeing to sell such 50 foot lots as might be required for $150 per lot. Another to matter upon which the Mayor had not been satisfied had reference to the question of Industrial Realty's ability to give the city a clear title to the property at the present time, but in regard to this Mr. Mahaffy stated that the city was not in a position to raise the question until they had performed their part of the agreement and were prepared to take the property over. Mr. Kealy spoke in behalf of Industrial Realty. His clients, he said, would like to know what guarantee the city desired they were willing to meet requirements. Mayor and clerk were authorized to sign the agreement, subject to the city solicitor being satisfied with the settlement.

On Ald. Spencer's motion the finance committee were authorized to secure the services of a qualified municipal auditor to make a through audit of the city's books.

The clerk was instructed to advertise for applications for the positionnate of secretary-treasurer at a salary of $1,300 a year and assistant secretary-treasurer at a salary of $900 a year—applications to be received as soon as the by-law governing the appointment of treasurer and clerk shall have been rescinded.

The Mayor, and Alds. Howson, Robertson and Morrow were appointed a committee to go into the matter of the appointment of a commissioner of public works.

Mayor and treasurer authorized to look after the loan note in the way of renewing the same for one month.

Mr. Sansom has been appointed to succeed Mr. Rowe as Premier of the Mock Parliament, and Mr. C. M. Fowler as Minister of Finance, Mr. Rowe and Mr. Krauss having resigned.

Sixty Thousand Dollar Blaze

Taber Suffers Big Loss.

Taber, Jan. 9—This town thought the destruction of its business section was certain at 5 o'clock last night when a fire, which began in the basement of the Taber Trading Co.'s store provided to wipe out that part of this thriving town.

Fate and the magnificent work of the men of the town ruled otherwise and the fire was confined to the Taber Trading Co. and the Douglas stone block.

The fire originated in the basement of the Trading Co. store and the cause is believed to have been an overheated furnace. The alarm was sounded about five o'clock by some children who espied the flames in the basement. Soon the town's fire equipment and a big crowd were on hand but the engines would not work satisfactorily and by the time the volunteers were thoroughly organized, the Douglas block, which was looked upon as fireproof, had taken fire and all efforts were directed towards preventing the flames spreading to other buildings. The men used the chemical hose for a time and then formed a bucket brigade hauling the pails of water by means of a rope to the roof of adjacent buildings. The roof of the Douglas Block was forced in so as to confine the fire within the stone walls and that precaution had considerable to do with the staying of the flames progress.

The Douglas Block and the Taber Trading Co.'s store were completely destroyed, the latter with all its contents. The Taber Trading Company's store was a frame building and was the property of W. W. Douglas, mayor of the town, who also owned the stone block adjacent. The tenants of the Douglas Block, were the Post office, Eastern Townships Block, and E. F. Wallace, barrister, on the ground floor, Knights of Pythias, and Monarch Coal Co., on the second floor. Nearly every article of value, including the safe and all letters were removed from the post office. Mr. Wallace saved practically all his valuable papers and furniture. It is feared that the Eastern Townships Bank vault is not going to safeguard its contents as this morning smoke is escaping from it.

Mr. Douglas is practically the only loser as he is not only the owner of the two buildings but the Taber Trading Co. as well. He estimates his loss at $60,000 with insurance at $38,000. When seen by the Herald Mr. Douglas intimated that he would likely build in the spring if he found the contents of his safe in good condition so that he could have his insurance adjusted without delay.

The Chinese laundry, Miller's real estate office and Hannaw's real estate office were moved away from the fire zone with ropes.

An attempt was made to get a hose attached to a C. P. R. engine but it was found that the hose was not long enough.

Lethbridge attempted to send a fire engine and firemen to the fire, but could not load the engine on a car, and after trying for two hours received word that the fire was under control.

Not Yet.

Last Tuesday Lethbridge telephoned to the City to know if it was true that the gas had played out. The Lethbridge Herald treated the present low pressure in a very fair way in its next issue. There must have been a temptation to publish the rumor, but the Herald got the truth and stated it.

Inquest

An inquest on the body of Charles Tandy, who was killed in the Gull Lake wreck, was conducted by the coroner, Mr. Boast, inquest Cliff House, Medicine Hat, on the 5th day of the month.

J. Manning, civil engineer, in the employ of the C.P.R., testified as to the cause of the accident, which was the result of a broken rail, in which a pipe flaw was afterwards discovered.

H. Mannager, passengeman on the westbound train, gave evidence as to helping to recover the body, and Clarence Hutchinson, of Calgary, identified the deceased.

The jury returned a verdict to the effect that death was caused by the overturning of a car in which the deceased was a passenger, and that the cause of the car overturning was a broken rail caused by a flaw in the steel.

The C.P.R. were exonerated from all blame, as the flaw was indiscernible.

The Riders of the Plain

By Mrs. Keane

Toronto, Jan. 5th, '09

Editor of The Times

Will you kindly give a prominent place to the enclosed poem, which a number of Westerners have received permission from the author to appear in the press, with a view to calling more attention to the work of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, which, according to the last regulations regarding them, are limited to a period of somewhat less less than five years. Westerners, generally, and those having property there, seem to feel that they cannot too spare this splendid force, whose cool courage, impartial justice in their magisterial functions and general all-round helpfulnes in every emergency, have commended them to the people of the West in a greater degree than that of any other military organization. Wm. Whyte, second vice-president C.P.R., says of this force, "I have read with much pleasure Mrs Keane's poem on the Royal North West Mounted Police, I have no hesitation in giving my endorsation to it, because during the many years that I have lived in the west, I have known of many acts of bravery and courage performed by that excellent body. Their presence in the Canadian West has been a strong current on crime, and they have ensured safety to life and property."

Hoping you will "give a hand." Yours sincerely,

Riding out his lone patrol, there came a "Rider of the Plain,"
Softly humming through the distance an old love song's light refrain;
For bright skies and sunny wether brought sweet thoughts of love and home,
Though the dear old land he sang of lay across the ocean's foam.

CHORUS:

No carpet knight was he, this rider bold and free,
Though gracefuller form had ne'er by beauty been caressed;
Through fire and fiercest storm, through danger's every form,
He'd done his King's behest, he'd done his soldier's best,
Guarding well the Empire's honor in the great Canadian West.

But what sight or sound of danger breaks the current of his dream?
What alarms his dumb companion, friend by field and wood and stream?
Only gleam of tattered uniform, a comrade's friendly red,
Till a nearer view reveals that friend one of the ghastly dead.

There's no need to ask the story of that comrade's bitter fate,
'Twas no foe in equal warfare, nor cunning Indian's hate,
Dying there alone, he traced it on the papers at his breast:
"I have lost my way, my horse is dead. Good-bye! I've done my best."

And no comrade's voice had cheered him, ne'ring there that last long trail,
Where the storm-king's icy fingers seized the nobly guarded mail;
Nor for him the fond endearments of a sweetheart's last caress,
Nor the solace of a sister's prayer, a mother's holy kiss.

Yet no woman could be gentler in assuaging others' grief,
Weak and des'late sought this prairie knight to bring them sure relief;
But no plaint to death, oft cheated, would this rider here bring;
From life's angel he had chosen the red wine of suffering.

A thousand years of glory and renown by land and sea
Has produced this truest hero, the R. N. W. M. P.,
Every grace of mind and person, every mapliest quality;
Let us cheer him as we see him passing into history.

(Entered according to Act of the Parliament of Canada, in the year 1908, by Amy H. Keane, at the Department of Agriculture.)

Mr. D. Milne

Mayor of Medicine Hat

A Comparsion.

On account of the low pressure last week the Cosmopolitan Hotel took the gas burners out of its furnaces and burned coal for a short time. Lethbridge coal which cost $6 a ton was purchased and a good comparsion of cost was obtained.

A ton of Lethbridge coal lasted only 20 hours. That is it cost $6 to heat the hotel for 20 hours during a very cold day. Gas for the same period would have cost only a dollar. When the new well is completed there is not much danger of any more coal being burned in this city.

For only one day did the Cosmopolitan stick to coal. The gas coming on stronger then, it was again used and the pressure was so great a couple of the burners in the furnace had to be turned out

Spring Stallion Show.

The Secretary of the Agricultural Society, Mr. John T. Hall, is endeavoring to arrange dates for the spring stallion show, which will be held some time in March, probably near the end of the month. The Provincial government will contribute two thirds of the prize money. A meeting of the directors of the Agricultural Society will be held this evening in the Board of Trade building.

Salvation Army.

Major Plant of the Salvation Army who is on a visit to the city with Mrs. Plant, gave an interesting lecture in the Barracks. The subject was "How I was shipwrecked on the coast of Norway".

Last night his subject was "Round the world in a chariot of music and song."

Poultry Meeting.

A series of lectures on poultry matters has been arranged by the provincial government, and a corps of competent lecturers are now visiting various parts of Alberta, discussing approved methods of poultry raising from a practical standpoint—housing, feeding, hatching, rearing, fattening, killing, marketing, organizing of poultry co-operative associations and other matters of interest.

The meeting in this district will be held as follows: Irvine, Monday Jan. 11th 2 P. M., Medicine Hat Tuesday Jan 12th 2 P. M., Burdette Wednesday Jan. 13th 2 P. M., Tabor Thursday Jan. 14th 2 P. M., Lethbridge Friday Jan. 15th 2 P. M.

It is a significant fact that at the present time poultry produce to the value of almost $500,000 is annually imported into this province although Alberta is admirably adapted for the industry.

Pettipiece, who almost ran for the Dominion House in this riding, has been turned down by the labor party of Vancauver where he is a linotype operator on the World. Pettipiece edits a labor journal, the Trades Unionist, which has been turned down by the Trades and Labor Council and a new paper started.

Special Meeting

A special meeting of city council was held on Friday evening to discuss details in the agreement with the Sewer Pipe Company.

The Mayor refused to sign the agreement until more definite information was obtained, and the Aldermen supported him.

M. E. Newell, representing the company wired to Mayor Milne on Saturday that he would leave immediately for this city for the purpose of going into the matter with the Council.

THE STAR THEATRE AND VAUDEVILLE

Beginning with the first of next month the Star Theatre will give two changes of vaudeville each week. This is made possible by an arrangement between Mr J W. McDonald and Mr F. W. Brown of Lethbridge, in accordance with which the artistes engaged by the Empire Theatre, Calgary, will divide a week between the two cities, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge.

Woman's Hospital Aid.

Annual Reports Presented

The annual meeting of the Woman's Hospital Aid Society was held in the City Hall, January 7th, 1909. The following reports were read and adopted:

President's Report.

To the Officers and Members of the Woman's Hospital Aid Society

I have much pleasure in submitting to you our sixteenth annual report.

Our meetings have been more successfull as regards attendance, but there is room for many more.

The city council kindly consented to the "Woman's Hospital Aid" holding their meetings in the Council Chamber for which we extend a hearty vote of thanks.

Again, February 14th we sent out "Free will Offering" envelopes, realizing $152.35 the only money raised this year excepting by dues and small donations.

Death has entered our midst and removed three members, but "He who doeth all things wisely" will comfort the sorrowing.

Mrs McWhirter has been unable to attend most of our meetings yet has been vigilant in a good cause, having added 88 new names to our membership.

Thanking both officers and members for courtesy and hearty co-operation in our work.

J. E. Nicholson,
President

Secretary's Report.

The following is a report of the work done by this society in 1908.

On January 1st, 1908, this society started with a membership of 483. We have lost by death 3, resignation 10, members leaving town 12, total 25. 93 new members were added. We start on the year 1909 with a total membership of 546.

Ten regular meetings were held with an average attendance of 11.9.

The following articles were supplied the Hospital during the year—10 dozen large sheets, 12 dozen draw sheets, 19 dozen hand and bath towels, 8 dozen pillow cases, 121 yards tea toweling, 207 yards white cotton, 179 yards unbleached cotton, 50 yards curtain muslin, 12 yards sheeting for operating gowns, 13 yards towelling for abdominal binders, 79 yards rubber sheeting, 20 pairs blankets, 10 pillows, 12 bedspreads, 18 dressing gowns, 6½ dozen nightshirts, 4 doz. baby napkins, 3 doz. baby flannelette dresses, 3 doz. table napkins, 9 yards table linen, 6 rugs, 5 bunches tape, 11 spools, 38 yards Canton flannel.

Auditors

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year—Hon. President, Mrs Niblock, Calgary; president, Mrs Nicholson; vice-president, Mrs. H. Hardy; secretary, Miss Cunliffe; treasurer, Mrs G. Noble; auditors, Mrs. Trimble and Mrs Krauss; solicitor for new members, Mrs McWhirter; executive, Mrs Nicholson, Mrs Hardy, Mrs Finlay.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs Drinnan for her efficient work as secretary during the year 1908.

EMPIRE RESTAURANT.

Fong and Hor, have taken over the restaurant formerly known as "Mack's Restaurant," and will run it on the most approved lines. A good meal is put up for 25c. Meal tickets are $4.50 for 21 meals. Their ad appears on another page.

C. P. R. Plans.

The railway will spend $30,000,000 on new lines this year, one of which will run west from Weyburn. This line will eventually continue to Lethbridge and open up the country to the south of Medicine Hat.

It Was Cold, But—

When it was 32 here it was 45 in Calgary the other day. On Friday not a place west of Port Arthur registered higher than 14 below. Medicine Hat went up to 10 below and down to 31. On Thursday it registered 40 below here.

There is now a chance that Jeffries will get into the fighting game again and give Johnson the wolloping every white man will love to hear about. That Johnson is not in the same class with what Jeffries, Fitzsimmons and Corbett used to be is believed by everyone, but Jeffries has the most backers of the three that he can down the negro.

Taber Curlers in the City.

A rink of Taber curlers, composed of Messrs. E. R. Wright, Dr. Leach, W. W. Douglas and A. L. Mitchell visited the city on New Year's Day. They played four games, two in the morning and two in the afternoon. Taber won, with five points to the good and the team proved itself a strong one The score of the games stood as follows: Morning—Taber, 7 and 10; Medicine Hat 8 and 7. Totals—Taber 36, Medicine Hat 31.

Indoor Baseball

Two Games Last Friday.

Indoor baseball is all the rage amongst local sports. A number of enthusiasts conceived the idea, and got up a couple of games in the Opera House. Since then the ardor of local fans has been kindled, and the chances are that indoor baseball will be one of the greatest attractions of the season. It was on Friday that Medicine Hat felt the cold snap most severely, yet nothing could daunt the enthusiasm of the members of the teams picked to play in the two initial games; and, moreover, there were more spectators than the management expected to see on a "twenty-five below" evening.

The first game, between the Citizens and Ranchers, was pulled off at 8 o'clock. At the outset the Ranchers showed their superiority, many of them entering into the game like old hands. The Citizens showed a wonderful stock of energy; and what they lacked in skill they made up in youthful ardor, and the expressed determination of some of their number to persevere causes The Times to prophesy a great future on the diamond for this band of young hopefuls. The Ranchers won out by a score of 13-2. The line up was as follows:

Citizens—J. Fisher p, Edd. Johnston c, J. Fleming 1b (capt.), W. Fisher 2b, A. Grace 3b, Jas. Keelsl, A. E. Whitlin ss, F. G. Forster cf, Capt. Parker rf.

Ranchers—R. E. Starkes 3b, John Day (capt.), A. K. Walker 1b, H. Bassett 2b, J. S. Wright rsf, W. R. Penland lsf, W. Shannon lf, W. Currie rf, E. C. Craik, c.

In consideration of the fact that only two or three of their members had ever so much as seen the game before, the match between the City and the Fire Brigade, pulled off next o'clock, brought out some very good ball. The Fire Brigade proved themselves the better team from the beginning of the game, and won out by 30-13. The line up was as follows:

[illegible]—Douglas c, T. Bever p, Drake 1b, Atkinson 2b, H. Pingle 3b, H. Bray ss, W. Hamilton lsf (capt.), G. M. Johnston rf, J. Porter lf.

Fire Brigade—I. Finlay p, W. H. Buchanan c, A. Finch 2b, J. Halward 1b, W. Switzer lsf, W. M. Finlay 3b, J. Alton rsf, Ed. Johnston lb, A. Taylor rf.

For a time there was only one book of rules in the city and in consequence there was a great run on this. The rules of play are almost identical with those of outdoor ball. There are two short cuts and the rules of fouling are somewhat different. The diamond is 27 feet wide.

A meeting of those interested will be held in the American Hotel to-morrow night at 8 o'clock.

Leslie Patrick in Town

Star Edmonton Player

Leslie Patrick of the Edmonton Hockey team spent a few hours in the city on Friday while waiting for the Crow train. He was passing through to his home in Nelson, B. C. after the Stanley Cup series in the east. Interviewed by a Times representative Mr. Patrick said he was well satisfied with the showing of his team in spite of its defeat. Had a third game been played he believed the Edmontons would at any rate have come mighty near winning. The team had only one week's work together when the first match was played off and in consequence they were badly handicapped in the initial game. Under the circumstances their showing was remarkable.

In the first game they met with bad luck in losing Phillips and Macnamara, the former being laid off with a broken bone and the latter with a wrenched knee. Phillips is now recuperating at Hamilton.

Patrick played with the Wanderers in 1906-7 and of this team he was captain in '06 when they won the world's championship from Kenora at Winnipeg.

The Nelson boys are going in for hockey with enthusiasm this season. They have built a fine new ring which is one of the best in the West. Patrick had hoped that an opportunity would occur to meet the Medicine Hat team on the ice at his home town, and he was prepared to enter into negotiations while waiting here for his connection.

MANY DON'T KNOW

HEART AFFECTED.

More People Than are Aware of It Have Heart Disease.

"If examinations were made of everyone, people would be surprised at the number of persons walking about suffering from heart disease."

This startling statement was made by a doctor at a recent inquest. "I should not like to say that heart disease is as common as this would imply," said the inspector, "but I am sure that the number of persons going about with weak hearts must be very large."

"Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that kills them that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is made apparent.

"But undoubtedly heart weakness, and disease, is more prevalent nowadays. I should think that the stress of living, the wear and rush of modern business life, have a lot to do with heart trouble."

There is no doubt but that this is correct, and we would strongly advise any one suffering in any way from heart trouble to try a course of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

By-Law No. ====

To grant lands and rights of way to M. E. Newell and Warren Overpack and to authorize the raising of money and for the purpose of establishing a sewer pipe industry near the City of Medicine Hat.

WHEREAS M. E. Newell and Warren Overpack, for the purpose of establishing a Sewer Pipe Factory, have applied to this Council for the grant to them of blocks A and B, according to a plan of the Southeast quarter of Section Thirty (30), Township Twelve (12), Range Five (5), West of the Fourth, near the City of Medicine Hat, together with a Right-of-way Twenty (20) feet in width for the purpose of a Railway Track or siding, running East from said Block A to the "Railway Right-of-way," as shown on said plan, also a Right-of-way fifteen (15) feet in width, for the purpose of a Railway Track or Siding across the lands lying between the said Blocks A and B, and to secure and grant the said Newell and Overpack a Right-of-way across the Southwest quarter of Section Three (3), Township Twelve (12), Range Five (5), West of the Fourth Meridian for the purpose of constructing a track from a connection with The Canadian Pacific Railway to the clay lands of the said Newell and Overpack, and the said Newell and Overpack require the said City to sink, case, and complete ready for use, a gas well of standard size to the lowest depth gas wells are now sunk for commercial purposes in Medicine Hat, at a point in said Block A, or said Block B, to be selected by said Newell and Overpack.

AND to construct and thereafter maintain the Railway Track from the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the said property as provided in the agreement between Bennett & Hamilton and the said city and to allow Newell and Overpack the right to use the said track so constructed for the purpose of reaching the tracks of such Railway.

AND WHEREAS the said Newell and Overpack have requested the said city to exempt said property from all taxes under their control, excepting School Taxes.

AND WHEREAS the City of Medicine Hat and the citizens thereof deem it advisable in order to secure the construction and operation of said Sewer Pipe Industry that said request should be granted upon conditions that said Newell and Overpack enter into an agreement with the Council of the City of Medicine Hat.

A. To cause to be erected and operated the Sewer Pipe Manufacturing Plant on the aforesaid Blocks A and B, which will consist of the following: Amongst other buildings, Main Drying Building about 256 x 80 feet, four stories in height basement.

B. Building for clay and part machinery about 256 x 56 feet, the portion for the machinery to be one storey high and the balance three stories high. These buildings to be connected by a building about 30 x 60 feet, three stories without basement.

C. A Battery of Twelve (12) kilns 28 feet in diameter, inside measurement.

The above dimensions being approximately correct.

AND said Newell and Overpack will construct A thoroughly substantial and up-to-date Sewer Pipe Manufacturing Plant, equipped throughout with the most modern machinery, employing from sixty (60) to one hundred (100) men.

AND WHEREAS E. D. Bennett and J. W. Hamilton have heretofore agreed with the said city to transfer said Blocks A and B and said Right-of-way over and along said Southwest quarter of Section Thirty (30), on condition that the said City construct and maintain a Spur Track from the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the said property.

AND WHEREAS in order to provide for purchase of the said Rights of way and sinking of said gas well it is necessary to issue debentures of this municipality for the sum of $15,000 payable as herein provided.

AND WHEREAS it is intended that the said indebtedness shall extend over a period of Thirty (30) years from the date on which this By-law shall take effect.

AND WHEREAS it is intended that said debentures shall bear interest at the rate of Five per cent. per annum, to be paid annually and that the said principal sum of $15,000.00 shall be paid in such manner that each installment of principle and interest shall be as nearly as possible equal in each year for the period of Thirty (30) years, during which these debentures are to run.

AND WHEREAS the amount of assessable property of the City of Medicine Hat, according to the last revised assessment roll is $4,456,306.90 and the rateable proportion thereof is $3,998,391.90.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the debenture debt of the said City is $374,183.15, and no principal or interest is in arrears.

THEREFORE the Council of the City of Medicine Hat enacts as follows:

1. The Mayor and City Clerk are hereby authorized to execute an agreement for the transfer of the said Blocks A and B and the said Rights-of-way, namely:

A. From said Block A to the Right-of-way shown on said plan of said property.

B. From Block A to Block B.

C. Across the Southeast quarter of Section Three (3), Township Twelve (12), Range Five (5), West of Fourth Meridian, upon the terms above set forth, upon receiving a duplicate thereof duly executed by said Newell and Overpack.

2. That the Sewer Pipe Manufacturing establishment and the premises of the said Newell and Overpack or their heirs or assigns, situate on the Southwest quarter of Section Thirty (30) aforesaid, shall be exempt from all taxes (except school taxes) which are or may hereafter come under the control of the said City for and during the period of Fifteen years next after the passing of this By-law.

3. It shall be lawful for the corporation of the said City for the purpose aforesaid to issue debentures of the said Municipality to the amount of $15,000.00 of sums not less than one Thousand Dollars ($1000.00) each. The said debentures shall have attached to each Thirty coupons. Each of such coupons shall represent such part of the principal of the said debenture which, added to the interest due on the amount of such debenture remaining unpaid at the time for payment of the last preceding coupon shall make the yearly payments or installments of the said principal and interest equal during the term of years over which the said debentures shall extend, viz., Thirty years, and the interest shall be computed at the rate of Five Dollars per centum per annum.

4. The said debentures and coupons as to principal and interest shall be payable at the office of the Bank of Montreal in the City of Medicine Hat, or the principle office of the said Bank in Montreal or Toronto, and shall be in the form provided by Section 7, Title XXII. of the Medicine Hat Charter or to the like effect.

5. The said debentures shall be sealed with the corporate seal of the City and signed by the Mayor and Treasurer and said coupons shall be signed by the Clerk.

6. There shall be raised and levied by special rate on all rateable property in the said Municipality during the currency of the said debentures the sum of $975.75, during each year of the said term.

7. That this by-law shall come into effect on the First day of March, 1909.

8. The votes of the qualified electors of this city shall be taken on this By-law by the Deputy Returning Officers hereinafter named on the 15th day of January, 1909, commencing at the hour of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and continuing until 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the undermentioned places:

Wards I. and II., at the City Hall, Deputy Returning Office —Fred. S. Pringle.

9. Edward Roberts the City Clerk shall be Returning Officer.

10. Newell and Warren Overpack, and for the purpose of establishing a Sewer Pipe Industry first published in "The Medicine Hat which has been introduced and which may be finally passed (in the event of the assent of the burgesses being obtained thereto) one month after the 24th day of December, 1908, that being the day upon which this notice is first published in "The Medicine Hat News," Medicine Hat, and upon the 15th day of January, 1909, the voting thereon will be held between the hours of nine o'clock a.m. and five o'clock p.m. at the following places fixed for taking the votes of the burgesses: For voters residing in Wards Nos. 1 and 2 at the Council Chamber in the City Hall; for voters residing in Wards Nos. 3 and 4, at the Court House.

K. ROBERTS, City Clerk.

CONSTIPATION
IRREGULARITY OF THE BOWELS

Any irregularity of the bowels is always dangerous, and should be at once attended to and corrected.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

work on the bowels gently and naturally without weakening the body, but, on the contrary, toning it, and they will if persevered in relieve and cure the worst cases of constipation.

Mrs. James King, Cornwall, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with sick headaches, constipation and catarrh of the stomach. I could get nothing to do me any good until I got a vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They did me more good than anything else I ever tried. I have no headaches or constipation, and the catarrh of the stomach is entirely gone. I feel like a new woman, thanks to Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I used in all about half a dozen vials."

Price 25 cents a vial, 5 for $1.00, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Chapped Hands

ARE your hands chapped, cracked, or sore? Have you "cold cracks" which open and bleed when the skin is drawn tight? Have you a cold sore, frost bite, chilblains, or a "raw" place which at times makes it agony for you to go about your household duties? If so, Zam-Buk will give you relief and will heal the damaged skin. Anoint the sore places at night, and if it is the hands, wear a pair of old gloves overnight. Zam-Buk's rich healing essences will sink into the wounds, end the smarting, and will quickly heal.

Read MRS. YELLEN'S Experience.

Mrs. Yellen of Portland says:—"I consider it only my duty to tell you of the great benefit I have derived from Zam-Buk. My hands were so sore and cracked that it was agony to put them into water. When I tried to do so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I became quite unable to get relief from anything I put on them until I tried Zam-Buk, and the balm succeeded when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands completely. I would strongly recommend it to anyone suffering from chapped or cracked hands. It is a wonderful healer and should be in every home."

Father and Daughter both Cured.

Miss Hattie Bertrand, Galesburg, Ont., writes:—"Zam-Buk is the best balm we have ever used. Every year I am troubled with chapped hands and arms and nothing ever seemed to heal them until I tried Zam-Buk. It is surprising how quickly this balm has healed up the sores and cracks! My father has used it for several ailments and injuries and thinks there is nothing to equal it."

Zam-Buk is excellent for chaps, chilblains, cold sores, sore lips and lips, chapps, rashes, winter eczema, piles, ulcers, festering sores, sore heads and backs, obstinate pimples, ringworm, etc., cuts, burns, bruises, scalds, sprains. Used as an embrocation it cures rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, etc. Of all druggists and stores, or post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Price 50 c. a box. 3 for $ 1.25. You are warned against the "just as good" preparations which are sometimes offered when Zam-Buk is asked for.

FREE TRIAL BOX.

Send this coupon, name and date of this paper, and 1c. stamp (to cover postage) to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, and a Free Trial Box will be mailed you.

[Copyright, 1902, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.]

HATED TO PLAY DOMINOES.

Once there was a great big Burly who had a Wife about the size of a Grasshopper. Usually she wore a gray Tailor-Made that looked as if it would have to be let out if she gained another pound.

Any one, to look at Jessaline, would have said that she was rather frail and Weakly, while the he-end of the Sketch looked husky enough to pull a Dray.

At any rate, the cute and dainty little Jessaline, with a Waist Measurement of 11 inches, was all hooked up with the human Mastodon who went by the name of Henry and looked the Part.

Now it happened that Hen and Jess lived in a nice little Town where there were a great many lovely Old Families and a great deal of Wealth, but it was pervaded at all Hours by a Cemetery Calm. The Social Gayetics of the Place revolved slowly around a Missionary Society. Any one desiring to mix a Cocktail had to pull down all the Blinds and disconnect the Telephone, and also it was advisable to wear Masks at a Poker Party.

Jessaline would often become restless and champ at the Bit. She had attended a Select School for Girls, at which she had learned how to turn Handsprings and do other Parlor Didoes. No wonder that she hated to play Dominoes all Evening and then turn out the Lights at 9:30 P. M.

Now it chanced that Jessaline had a Chum. They had eaten Olives out of the same Bottle while attending the Select School for Girls. Chum had gone against the Matrimonial Game the same as Jessaline, only, instead of landing in Sleepy Hollow, she was up in the City, taking in the Big Show.

She wrote to Jessaline, urging her to come up and put in a busy Week. After working on the Handwriting for several Days, Jessaline succeeded in reading the whole Letter, and she began to tease Henry to knock off for a Week and take her up to the hoop-la Metropolis and let her burn a few Holes in the Track.

Large Bodies move slowly, and several Days elapsed before Henry came to her Way of Thinking, although it was a Pipe from the beginning that she would bring him around.

Jessaline got busy and put six Women to work building a new Evening Gown for her. It was a Pale-Blue Cerise, with Battenberg Insertion, yoked with Mayonnaise and Valenciennes, the Flounces being gathered in with Passementerie and the Bodice handpainted. When Henry got a Flash at the Bill he allowed that, instead of taking a Vacation, it would be better for him to stay at Home and work about twice as hard. But winsome Wifey had everything packed, so she took him in Tow and they boarded the Flyer.

"Ain't this Grand?" asked Jessaline, as they sat in the palatial Parlor-Car and watched the Scenery spin by.

"AIN'T THIS GRAND?"

"We have a whole Week in which to rest up and nobody to keep Tab on what we do and then report us to the Methodist Minister. I'm sure that you will like Clara. She is a Holy Terror. She was engaged nineteen times before she finally hooked up, and since she got Married People come for miles to get her to act as Chaperon."

"What is the Programme?" asked Henry, who was a mite Leery.

"There'll be something doing every Minute, all right, all right," said the Child-Wife. "Ask no Questions, but follow little Bright Eyes. I haven't had a touch of Real Life since I crawled down the Lightning-Rod at the Select School for Girls."

At that time Henry did not realize that a bright young Thing with a Boarding-School Education can give the stalwart Business Man any kind of a Handicap and then leave him somewhere back of the Flag.

Clara met them at the Train with a Buzz-Wagon. She had framed up a List of Engagements that made the Roosevelt Itinerary look like Open Time. Clara had arranged to give them a little of Everything except Sleep. Jessaline was tickled nearly to Death. She was waltzing all over the Track, waiting for the word "Go!"

The Getaway was a Dinner of 17 Courses, at which Jessaline tackled everything without losing any part of the Conversation. After that they went to the Opera, which was a little too high for Henry, but Jessaline threw a Conniption Fit every time Signor Dagolini climbed up and hit a Top Note. They went back to the Apartment and ate Stuff out of a Chafing-Dish until 3 a. m. When they turned in, Henry was on the point of Passing Away, but Jessaline was just beginning to warm up and be kittenish.

"We shall have Oodles of Fun tomorrow," she said. "First we have a Breakfast at the French Restaurant, then a swell Luncheon at the Club, then a Musicale, then a Dinner at the biggest Hotel on Earth, and then a Show, and then we are all going out Slumming."

"I drop out," said Henry. "One day has put me to the Bad."

"Don't be a Quitter," said Jessaline. "Stick to me and I'll give you the Time of your Life."

Next Day she took him over the Jumps, and he followed with his Tongue hanging out. He did not like to admit that he could not keep up with a 90-pound Canary who was somewhat of an Invalid. But when he sat and watched her eating her fourth Hearty Meal and chatting gayly, he tried to figure out how any one with a Waist Measurement of 11 inches could manage it, but the Problem was too much for him.

The third day of Rest included the usual number of Eats, and wound up with one of those Dancing-Parties that last until the Germans become peevish and refuse to play any more. Henry was off in a Corner eating Soda-Mint Tablets and holding on to a Chair to keep from falling off. Jessaline was right out in the center of the Mix-Up, looking as fresh as a Dollar Bunch of Russian Violets. After every Dance she would tear out and get a few Glasses of Knock-Out Punch and eat a couple of Sandwiches, after which she would be ready to do some more two-stepping. When the Orchestra finally struck and she had to pull out, she found Henry in a Comatose Condition leaning against the Hat-Rack. She aroused him and told him the Glad News that they were to get a very Early Start and go out to a nice Road-House and have something to Eat. Whereupon Henry fell in a Heap and asked to be counted out.

HENRY HOLDING ON.

All the way Home in the Carriage she toasted him and charged him with a lack of Appreciation.

"You act like a Dummy," said the indignant Jessaline. "Why don't you cut in and have a Good Time, the same as I do? I don't want People to think that I married a Rube."

"I can lift 1200 pounds in Harness and I can play 72 Holes of Golf without turning a Hair," said the fallen Giant, "but when it comes to eating little Birds and taking a new kind of Salad every twenty minutes and holding animated Conversation with Perfect Strangers, I am not in your Class. Send for a Trained Nurse. In a Week or so, I shall be able to Travel and get back to Hard Work and rest up. In the mean time, go it alone."

So Jessaline put the Weakling on the Shelf and went out and had a Happy Week.

EAT SAUSAGE OR NEW BREAD

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poisen or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangle will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by-tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

MAKE THIS UP AT YOUR HOME.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription which is said to be a positive remedy for backache or kidney or bladder derangement, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three take in teaspoonful doses after each ounces. Shake well in a bottle and meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all hermless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no season why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

The Lethbridge Council has decided not to continue the gas well. It has now cost them about fifteen thousand dollars, and is down twenty one hundred feet.

The C. P. R. has made a rate of twenty two and a half cents per hundred pounds for grain shipped from Alberta via the Pacific route.

SKIN DISEASES

These troublesome afflictions are caused wholly by bad blood and an unhealthy state of the system, and can be easily cured by the wonderful blood cleansing properties of

Burdock Blood Bitters

Many remarkable cures have been made by this remedy, and not only have the unsightly skin diseases been removed, and a bright clear complexion been produced, but the entire system has been renovated and invigorated at the same same time.

SALT RHEUM CURED.

Mrs. John O'Connor, Burlington, N.S. writes:—"For years I suffered with Salt Rheum. I tried a dozen different medicines, but most of them only made it worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and before I had taken half a dozen doses I could see a change so I continued its use and now I am completely cured. I cannot say too much for your wonderful medicine."

OLD TIME FORCEPS.

When the Thing Was Turned Something Had to Give Way.

And speaking of teeth reminds me that the country doctor had to draw them when they ached. The dentist's artistry had not attained the elevated place it occupies today, when everybody's mouth shines like the inside of a communion cup. I honestly believe the modern dentist has more different kinds of tools than even a sanitary plumber, and that's a whole lot when you come to count them up. The modern dentist hates the worst way to draw a tooth. Nevertheless if the modern dentist must draw the tooth he has a particular forceps for a particular tooth, and a cruel hearted and cold looking thing it is too. It puts you so in mind of a successful financier. When you brace yourself in the iron chair and take a tight grip on the arms of it and make up your mind you'll try to stand it and he gets that forceps well under the gum and—wait a minute; I feel so kind o' faint! Laws! Why didn't I mind my mother when she told me not to crack hickory nuts with my teeth? Well, anyway, you know he'll get the tooth out without doing more than take the whole top of your head off, and that only in a figurative sense.

Uncle Doc had one implement that did for every tooth, big and little, front and back. It wasn't a forceps; it was a turnkey. The real old folks know what that is and will say so with the cold chills running over them But you've never seen one, and many a man that you would call old has never seen one. It's something like a canthook. The loosely rivsted piece that curves slips over the tooth and catches on the inside; the solid cam bears on the outside gum; the operator turns the handle. Let's not talk about it. Something has got to give. Maybe the tooth will come out; maybe it will break off; maybe the jaw will fracture. All those are details. The main point is that if the operator twists the handle something has got to give, and that's all there is about it.—Eugene Wood in Success Magazine.

A GENTLE REPROACH.

Telling Retort of the Lamblike, Violet Eyed Beauty.

There is a certain young woman who is beautiful, with that childish, wistful, innocent looking, violet eyed beauty which reduces one-half the feminine world to tears, the other half to utterly helpless rage. We all know the type, but it is seldom given us to see it in such perfection. We usually associate it with a lamblike, appealing mentality that permits itself to be ridden upon—as soon expect a wood violet to turn and rend you.

A short time ago she was asked to a woman's luncheon and got herself up for the occasion in a way that made the result of her efforts a thing not easily forgotten. She arrived looking so lovely that there was little said among the guests for a few moments after her entry into the room. Perhaps she felt the silence. At all events, she turned to the woman standing nearest her and said in a childish voice, with ever such a little lisp and pretty southern accent:

"How well yo' are lookin' today!"

It was a well meant civility from a young woman to an older one, who seemingly was unable to accept it as such and put up her lorgnette, sweeping the speaker from top to toe. What she saw was enough to disconcert a younger and prettier woman than herself, but even so one finds it difficult to justify her next move.

"Wish I could say the same for you," she returned, closing her lorgnette with a snap.

One or two of the guests were friends of the pretty woman and almost stopped breathing in order not to miss what they felt sure would come—and it came. The pretty one raised her eyebrows slightly, then said, with an air of gentle reproach:

Drank and Remembered.

A porter in a big New York warehouse in Greenwich street was recently discharged for getting drunk and losing a valuable parcel. The discharge sobered him instantly, coming as a sudden hard shock. He said he would take the oath never to touch liquor again, but his pleadings for reinstatement were unheeded. He searched everywhere for the parcel, but could not recollect what disposition he had made of it. Of his honesty there had never been a question in twenty years. Overcome by the loss of his place, he got violently drunk and while in this condition recollected where he had left the parcel and went and recovered it.—New York Times.

The Cellar Stairs.

A man who once had a bad fall when going down his cellar stairs now has a broad strip of white painted on the floor at the end of the last step. This is easily seen, even if the cellar be dark, and many a nasty accident is avoided. If the house is rented and you do not like to paint the boards a piece of white oilcloth can be tacked to the floor at the foot of the stairs. See that the tacking is securely done or a worse fall may follow than from a misgauged step.—Philadelphia Press.

Dodged.

"I got my wife through advertising."

"Then you'll admit that advertising pays?"

"I'll admit that it brings results," was the cautious reply.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

No man can be provident of his time who is not prudent in the choice of his company.—Jeremy Taylor.

The Signs

The only signs upon which you can judge this year's Council are those that were evident in the only meeting they have held. And for this meeting THE TIMES will give the new Mayor and Council merited praise. Of course it may seem the thing to certain members of other Councils, who were anxious to be asked to run again, that they should endeavor to belittle the work of the present body by hinting that this year's Council assumes control after all the difficulties are over. This attempt to take away all credit from the present Council is not a very agreeable way of working for the much desired unity.

The fact is that this year's Council handled more difficult and delicate matters at its first meeting than any other Council ever did—and this is by no means a general censure of previous Councils. A perusal of the account of the meeting will convince any impartial reader of the fearless "straightening" undertaken by Mayor Milne and the Aldermen.

However little some of the ratepayers may agree with the great changes introduced there is no doubt that the talk on the street called for action of some kind. The hardest work of any Council is to make changes among its employees.

THE TIMES has had the tremendous advantage of being able to judge of the work of Councils from the position of an impartial onlooker. And from this position THE TIMES must commend the present Council for its willingness to tackle big questions, and for its fearless way of carrying out its beliefs. There is not in this an unqualified approval of every change suggested but a recognition of fearlessness which has not been characteristic of previous Councils.

The man who attempts to take credit from whatever work this year's Council might perform, by saying that all the difficulties are over, shows not only a lack of municipal knowledge, but also a disbelief in the future of the city. THE TIMES believes that the Council of 1909 will have just as big problems to handle as had any other Council, and if the city grows as this paper thinks it will, there will be bigger propositions to pass judgment upon.

It is not the fault of THE TIMES that an explanation of the unreadable part of last week's issue should be made. Few people make any allowance for a bad run in a newspaper but when the difficulties of last week are brought to their minds they may be more generous and THE TIMES hopes they may.

Ever since the really cold weather set in the gas pressure in THE TIMES office has been just what every one else has experienced. There was sufficient for ordinary heating as a rule but the heat in a press room must be very much greater than in an ordinary room. The weak gas pressure of last Monday and Tuesday was such as to not only make the ink too hard to run, but the ink rollers instead of being soft and pliable were almost as hard as brick. Everything that could be done was tried but the press was so cold that as soon as the rollers touched it they hardened. When only a part of the run had been completed operations had to be stopped until Wednesday. An additional heater had to be purchased and placed at the front of the press to keep it warm after which the remainder of the run was completed with the best of results. Unfortunately it was the local and district circulation that suffered as it is sent out first, and THE TIMES must ask the indulgence of those who were unable to read all of last week's issue.

The blame lies not on THE TIMES any more than the coldness of many of the houses of the city at the same period can be blamed to the occupants. Whether it is last year's Council that is to blame or who it is, one thing is certain, that it is not a good thing for The Gas City to allow the cold weather to come before the new well was completed. There has not been a well sunk for years and the wells that were sufficient three years ago cannot begin to supply the present demand in cold weather.

The new well is down more than five hundred feet, and all the gas we want will be here in a very short time, but in the meantime the people have suffered for the few very cold days, and THE TIMES has been forced to produce an unpresentable issue. The low pressure during the coldest weather has affected THE TIMES press room for a number of issues, but hereafter we can assure our readers that unless some special accident happens, future issues will be readable. If we have to place stoves all over the press room. When the new well is completed there will be pressure enough until the town again outgrows the supply of wells

Among the special numbers turned out by western papers of late, that issued by the Nelson News takes a high stand. Thirty-two pages devoted to the Kootenay District, present and future, give a most vivid and well written and illustrated account of the fruit, lumber and mining industries of that celebrated district. The Nelson News deserves the thanks of Kootenay.

The expression of popular opinion in the recent local option and license reduction movements in Ontario gives reason for much thought. The temperance forces gained undoubted victories in the large cities as well as in the rural districts. In Toronto the campaign was lost, and the result close, but 40 licenses will be cut off in May. In Owen Sound, the pioneer town for local option, the temperance people again won. All told about a hundred licenses have been cut off. Only one place adopted it and nineteen defeated it, only a few of them polling a majority vote against local option. There is no doubt that temperance principles are gaining ground.

The good price received for Alberta Telephone debentures is a matter of gratification to the province.

The Times can this week report that even better things can now be said of the standing of Medicine Hat in the financial market than appeared in these columns last week. The council of last year turned down an offer of par for debentures, and now have an offer of 101. This is a perfect criterion of the position of this city throughout Canada.

The citizens are to vote on the sewer pipe proposition on Friday. Everyone who has a vote should register it, if he has the interests of the city to heart. But everyone should study the situation and not vote blindly either way.

A repetition of The Times Bargain Day will occur on Thursday Feb. 11th. New subscribers can on that day secure the same privelege by paying up all arrears to that date.

The Times this week starts with a monoline operator after five weeks search, and is determined to wage a most active campaign to continue the lead in the newspaper line. There is no doubt in the minds of the citizens of the excellence of The Times in the news collecting line. All the news is published on Tuesday early in the week. The Times is bound by no clique, nor restrained from a frank discussion of public events by mercenary reasons. It believes that by giving the people all the news it will win out even on the financial side, since the people lose confidence in a paper that cannot say what it thinks or confines its news largely to what it makes money out of.

The Times for $1 on Feb. 11th is the best newspaper bargain offered. Watch the paper for the next month and see if it is not.

While the school trustees are repairing the Toronto St. School heating appliances, they might fitly examine into the ventilation. This is notorously imperfect, several children having been made sick by the atmosphere and the effect on the head and eyes being most damaging. A well ventilated school 199, is the easiest to heat.

If at any time whatever you visit the store that has the best ads., you will be pretty sure to visit the best store.

"Stinting space" in store advertising has the inevitable effect that "stingeness" produces in any other enterprise.

If there is any good reason why you should visit a store the store-advertisements in The Times will tell you what it is.

Alberta Musical Festival

Complete arrangements have been made for the holding of the Second Annual Music Competition Festival which takes place in Edmonton on Tuesday and Wednesday May 4th and 5th. next The success of last year's Festival held in May 1908 was most gratifying, both to the Committee in charge and also to the Contestants and visitors from all parts of the Province. The arrangements were complete and the decisions of the adjudicators (two of Winnipeg's ablest musicians) were decidedly impartial. The results were pleasing to the out-of-town contestants, they having won the majority of the Competitions for which they entered, the winners hailing from Bayaland, Crossfield, Wetaskiwin, and other places.

The First Alberta Musical Competition Festival was organised in 1907, having as its primary object the raising of the standard of, and increasing the interest in the Choir music of the various Churches in the Province.

The original scheme, which provided for Choir Competition only, was eventually enlarged to include competitions for Male Choruses, Amateur Vocalists, and Pianists, while this year additional competitions have been added for Female Choruses and Trios, Violinists and Bands.

At the first Festival held in May last, there were just over a hundred entries in the various Competitions, and the judging occupied the adjudicators two days, the Festival closing with a concert in the Thistle Rink in the evening of the second day, when the Programme was supplied by the winners in the various Competitions, and a massed chorus of a hundred and eighty voices, assisted by an orchestra of forty players.

Throughout the country and in every town in Alberta is to be found excellent musical talent, both in vocal, instrumental and band. To make the Alberta Musical Festival the success it deserves to be, every town should be well represented. Suitable railway arrangements will be made, so that any who wish may attend at small cost in transportation. A complete Syllabus of Competitions may be obtained from the Secretary of the Festival, Box 1567 Edmonton, from whom also, copies of all the Music required may be obtained.

PEOPLE SAID SHE HAD CONSUMPTION

Was in Bed for Three Months.

Read how Mrs. T. G. Rack, Bracebridge, Ont., was cured (and also her little boy) by the use of

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

She writes: "I thought I would write and let you know the benefit I have received through the use of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A few years ago I was so badly troubled with my lungs people said I had Consumption and that I would not live through the fall. I had two doctors attending me and they were very much alarmed about me. I was in bed three months and when I got up I could not walk, so had to go on my hands and knees for three weeks, and my limbs seemed of no use to me. I gave up all hopes of ever getting better when I happened to see in a B.B. Almanac that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was good for weak lungs. I thought I would try a bottle and by the time I had used it I was a lot better, so got more and it made a complete cure. My little boy was also troubled with weak lungs and it cured him. I keep it in the house all the time and would not be without it for anything."

Price 25 cents at all dealers. Beware of imitations of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Ask for it and insist on getting the original. Put up in a yellow wrapper and three pine trees the trade mark.

The City of Eternal Light

Under the above heading the editor of the Maywood (Illinois) Herald-Recorder, who recently visited Medicine Hat, gives the city the appended write-up.

"While touring Canada during the month of October, 1907, Rudyard Kipling visited the city of Medicine Hat, in the Province of Alberta, and was so impressed with the wonderful natural resources of the city that he wrote a story for Collier's Weekly in which he quoted a conversation he had some twenty years previous with a broken-down prospector from Medicine Hat who at that time was so prophetic of a great future for the struggling little town that he said: "Young feller, you'll hear of that town if you live. She's born lucky."

True to the prophecy "the town that was born lucky" has come into its own. A more ideal location for the manufacturing metropolis could not be found. Even nature has exerted herself in providing all the natural resources necessary for the promulgation of mammoth enterprises.

Situated as it is on the South Saskatchewan River at the intersection of the Crow's Nest R. R. with the mainline of the Canadian Pacific R. R., 66 miles west of Winnipeg, 320 miles east of the Rocky Mountains, 800 miles from Vancouver and 70 miles north of the State of Montana, U.S., the question of transportation facilities is easily solved.

Medicine Hat has a population of 5000 inhabitants, an electoral district of 25,000, and it is the centre of a district which is tributary to it of 100 square miles. It is a wide-awake and energetic, ambitious city that is forging ahead with gigantic strides. Its citizens are splendid specimens of courageous men and women imbued with determination to make their city the great commercial centre of Alberta, if not the centre of British North America. It is a city of splendid schools, comfortable residences and fine public buildings.

There are three imperative essentials to be considered in the selection of a manufacturing city, namely: light, power and heat. Medicine Hat has been richly endowed by Nature with these three essentials inasmuch, with her great gas wells she has a commodity that supplies light, heat and power, and at a cheaper rate than can be derived through any other source and at such a pressure—520 to 600 pounds to the square inch that points conclusively to an inexhaustible supply.

This gas is said by experts to be the finest, purest gas in British North America. It is absolutely dry and odorless. It is a well known fact conceded by scientists that where natural gas is found in great abundance it is a sure indication of oil being in the vicinity. The indications pointing so strongly to the presence of vast oil deposits, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company are at present boring for oil at Dunmore Junction, which is four miles east of Medicine Hat.

The gas wells are the property of the city, and the commodity is sold at an absurdly low figure. Imagine the finest illuminating gas at 13 cents per thousand cubic feet, and compare that price with the regular rate in Chicago of $1.10 per thousand cubic feet for an adulterated article."

Labor Man Elected

Donald McNab Represents Lethbridge

The Conservatives of Lethbridge had great fun on nomination day for the constituency of Lethbridge, at the expense of the Liberals.

Donald McNab had been nominated by the Labor party, and the Liberals didn't know whether to oppose him or not. W. C. Ives granted an interview to a Lethbridge paper in which he said he would run in the intercests of the Conservative party. The Liberals immediately called a convention which sat all one morning. Either Dr Rivers or Buchanan of the Herald was to oppose Ives and McNab. A number of Grits attended the nomination meeting with papers signed and money in hand and nervously watched proceedings. When Manwaring of the News and McLelland, two Conservatives, entered the room, and began to count out money and handle a paper in a corner of the room, the Liberals got ready for a rush. The Conservatives approached the returning officer at 30 seconds to noon and the Liberals closed in with hands outstretched ready to drop their nomination paper on the table. Then the Conservatives turned and walked out having never intended to oppose McNab

A TEMPERANCE UNION.

Members Limited to Fourteen Drinks of Liquor Daily.

"Signing the pledge" is no new thing, as is proved by researches in Italy. Interesting particulars of what would appear to be the earliest examples of written pledges to abstain from gambling and excessive drinking are given in the Turin Studi Medievali by Signor Girolamo Biscaro, who has discovered three such documents in the archives of Milan. The first of these records is an oath sworn on the gospels by Giacomo Pasquali and Armanino Duca to the effect that for two years they will abstain from gambling in Pavia or within three miles thereof and will likewise refrain from inducing others to gamble on their behalf. The penalty for any breach of this oath is fixed at 5 soldi, payable to Paolo Bovatorio.

In the second document Perano de Bono promises Uberto de Proto to abstain from gambling for a certain period, exception being made on behalf of the game of bismentiro, at which, however, he was not to lose more than 2 denari on any one day. Further, he undertakes not to visit any inn for drinking purposes before the hour of vespers on Monday. A breach of either clause of the pledge involves the payment of 5 soldi to De Proto. By the third document Bleto Ferrario expressed his willingness to pay 12 denari to his brother Lamperio should he be persuaded to play for money in any place of public resort or to spend more than 2 denari on intoxicants in any one day.

The motive for these contracts is not stated, but it is presumed that they were entered into by employees whose masters wished to keep their proclivities in check. There is nothing in the documents to suggest the existence of any organization for the promotion of temperance. The honor of being first in the field in this respect therefore still rests with Germany, where two temperance societies were founded in the sixteenth century.

Of these the Order of St. Christopher was formed by Sigismund de Diettrichstein on Jan. 18, 1517, and the Order of Temperance by the landgrave of Hesse on Dec. 25, 1600. The members of the one order were pledged to abstain from toast drinking, and the members of the other undertook not to drink more than seven glasses of liquor at a time, and that not oftener than twice a day.—Chicago News.

The Sewer Pipe Meeting

Mr. Newell Satisfactorily Handles Agreement

Very Few Objections

The most largely attended public meeting that has ever been held at Medicine Hat took place on Thursday evening, when the agreement between the city and the Alberta Clay Products Co., was discussed. The apathy which had been so marked at citizens' meetings in the past was absent on this occasion. Shortly after the hour for the opening of the meeting the council chamber was filled, and later the hall proved inadequate for the accommodation of the citizens.

Mayor Milne who was elected chairman, at the outset proceeded to read the agreement as amended by the council in consultation with Mr. Newell. It was explained that the members of the new council had not been so thoroughly satisfied with the agreement as left over by last year's body, but that the few minor points of difference had now been settled to the satisfaction of both parties. There were four other agreements hinging on that between the sewer pipe company and the city. The first related to the price to be paid for the acquirement of the right-of-way for traction purposes at Coleridge. This would be settled by arbitration, one arbitrator being appointed by the city and one by Mr Cavan, these two being empowered to appoint a third if they were unable to reach a settlement. The second agreement affected was that between the city and Bennett & Hamilton; this was satisfactory but details ought to be arranged and the agreement made in writing.

There was an excellent prospect of a settlement of the third—the agreement with the C. P. R. as to construction, operation and maintenance of the spur track. Finally, the sewer pipe company desired to have water piped to Industrial Place by August of the present year.

Mr. Newell then took the floor, and in a lucid and forceful way explained the nature of the proposition before the ratepayers.

He prepared his exposition of the agreement by a brief account of the search of himself and Mr. Overpack for a body of clay in Canada suitable for the manufacture of sewer pipe. Their attention had been drawn to this field by the large quantities of sewer pipe being exported each year from the United States to Canada, this in spite of the 35 per cent. duty. The outgrowth was that a clay man of 25 years' experience and another well known man in the financial world were induced to take an interest in the clay industry, and a tour of the Dominion was arranged. C. P. R., C. N. R., and G. T. P. officials at Winnipeg had been conferred with and from these gentlemen much knowledge about the Canadian clays was gathered. After a visit to Fort Francis, Ont., where the clay was found unsuitable for sewer pipe, the investigation was continued in the West, and every district in Alberta where good clay was to be found had been visited. Only in the neighborhood of Medicine Hat could a suitable clay be discovered, and three tons of the clay from this district was shipped to Iowa where a test was made and the crushing strength found to be above that of the product of Red Wing Minnesota which had the reputation of being the best on the continent.

Mr. Newell went on to give an account of the steps taken by the firm to acquire the land on which the clay was located, and the firm's subsequent negotiations with the city with regard to the building of the plant here.

The agreement was then taken up clause by clause, the speaker inviting discussion. The question of the lots which it would be necessary for the city to acquire from Industrial Realty [illegible] ers was raised. Ex-Mayor [illegible] ought that four lots [illegible] required. It was shown [illegible] the more recent [illegible] t-of-way, that it would be necessary to acquire a lot from Mr. Robertson. The Alderman was willing to sell this for $800; his two lots were assessed by the city at $1,600.

Mr. Andy Patterson caused considerable amusement by his reference to a rumor that "a man in South Africa owned one of those lots needed for the right-of-way. If the burgesses listened to all the stories which were put in circulation, he did not think we should even get an egg plant here.

Some discussion took place on the clause in the agreement by which the company are given the right to purchase water from the city at a reasonable price," but eventually it was decided to let this stand.

An alteration, Mr. Newell explained, had been made in the plans of the proposed buildings, on account of the fact that various other products besides sewer pipe would probably be manufactured. The company had agreed to have the plant in operation by December, 1910 this was one year later than the time at which they expected to be at work.

As to the rumor that yellow labor would be employed, the company's first thought of this was suggested by the people of Medicine Hat. No such intention had ever been theirs.

Mr. Mahaffy briefly addressed the meeting on the legal aspect of the agreement, which he regarded as thoroughly safeguarding the city's

As to the rumor that yellow labor would be employed, the company's first thought of this was suggested by the people of Medicine Hat. No such intention had ever been theirs.

Mr. Mahaffy briefly addressed the meeting on the legal aspect of the agreement, which he regarded as thoroughly safeguarding the city's interests.

Speaking of the $700 a year for interest and maintenance of the spur-track, Mr. Forster said that the saving in freight charges to the city on sewer pipe required by them would more than offset this amount. A $70,000 sewer plant was to be put in at an early date.

Mr. James Rae was averse to paying out such large sums of money as was preposed in the agreement. the only object of the expenditure was to bring a few more people into the city, and all the laboring people were worth was the profit on goods sold by the merchants.

His speech was cut short by the people walking out.

Others who took part in the discussion were: Messrs. Spencer, Becker, Brotherton, Howson and Sansom.

The School Board

W. J. Brotherton Chairman

Discuss Cold School

The yrst regular meeting of the school board for 1909 was held in the office of the secretary-treasurer on Monday the 11th inst., at 7.30. There were present: Trustees Brotherton, Kennedy, Hawthorne and Fatt. Mr. Brotherton was appointed chairman, and Mr. Edward Roberts, secretary-treasurer at a salary of $250 per annum. Mr. Brotherton briefly addressed the board on the work for the year.

Applications for positions on the schools staff were received. Miss Gladys E. Sprague asked for a share of supply work, and on Mr. Hawthorne's motion her name will be added to the supply list. Mr. Fatt thought it hardly fair to the city schools that inexperienced teachers should gain their first practical training here, while experienced teachers were available. He believed that the former should begin at the bottom, in country schools.

A communication was received inviting the city to send delegates to the Third Annual Convention of the Association of School Trustees for Alberta, to be held in Strathcona on the 22nd and 23 of the month. Messrs. Brotherton and Fatt will represent this city at the Convention.

A bylaw was carried authorizing the chairman and treasurer to borrow amounts up to the sum of $18,000 from the Merchants Bank, until such time as money from taxes is available.

A letter from Mr. S. W. Hill drew the attention of the board to an unpaid account for a window broken by one of the pupils. The view taken by the board was that such a matter could not be allowed to rest, as the parent was distinctly liable. The secretary was accordingly instructed to write asking payment of account.

Committee report showed that a room had been engaged from the Church of England, at a rental of $12 per month; this would be used for primary work as soon as the necessary seats arrived. Miss Ironsides had been engaged to teach the class vacated by Miss Conben.

Anent the recent partial closing up of Toronto Street school, report showed that on January 2nd the water pipes had broken in one of the cold rooms, and the boilers had become emptied in consequence. A test had been made and the boilers found cracked in the front section; that on the right side was badly leaking but still in use. Owing to the extreme cold it had been found impossible to hold school in some of the rooms. Report adopted and chairman and Mr. Fatt appointed a committee to investigate, to have the meter tested, and, if necessary, to make a change in the mode of heating. Mr. Brotherton thought a temporary connection should be made from the main building to the annex.

In response to a request from Mr. Hill the board gave permission for the construction of a rink in Montreal Street school grounds.

Principal's report left over by last year's board was taken off the table and discussed in detail, action being taken on a number of Mr. Sansom's recommendations. The secretary was requested to get prices on slate blackboards for the schools, in such quantities as might be required. The library committee will go into the matter of increaseing the number of book shelves. Principal Sansom will draw up a report on truancy with a view to having steps taken for the prevention of this evil.

The secretary-treasurer of the Prince Albert school district wrote asking the co-operation of the Medicine Hat board in the matter of reducing the number of school days to 200 in the year, giviog a longer summer vacation. A mistake had evidently been made in sending this communication to a board not within the province of Saskatchewan, but the Medicine Hat delegates will raise this question at the conference in Strathcona.

The provincial convention will be invited to meet in Medicine Hat next year.

On Mr. Fatt's motion the secretary was requested to write the provincial board of health, asking, firstly whether vaccination is compulsory on children attending the public schools; secondly, whether it is legal for the school board to pass a bylaw making vaccination compulsory; thirdly whether the provincial board of health would grant a supply of pure vaccine for the free use of the public schools.

Considerable discussion took place on the question of the drawing up of a limit table to prevent overlapping in school work. Mr. Sansom and Mr. Hill were consulted and expressed their views on the matter. Mr. Sansom statedithat a table was being introduced by degrees,but considerable length of time must elapse before a complete system could be established. Mr. Hill thought the solution of the difficulty lay in this direction. No province drew up a more complete curriculum than that of the board of education of Alberta, but the curriculum of course left considerable latitude.

The following accounts were recommended for payment:

A Masquerade Carnival will be held at the skating rink tomorrow night.

Misses Lottie and Ruby Carle were the hostesses of a very enjoyable evening last Wednesday. They had over twenty of their young friends present and one of the features of the evening was a cranberry frolic. The prizes were as follows. Ladies first prize, Miss Xeina McEwen consolation Miss Norma McEwen. Gents first prize. Bert Marshall, consolation Donnie Erwin. The young people broke up about 12.30, the latter part of the evening having been spent in dancing. A very nice supper was served about eleven.

The Auto-girl at the Star Theatre es proving one of the greatest attractions of the season. A large crowd gathered around Beveridge's window last evening at 6 o'clock when she made her first appearance.

A men's meeting will be held in the Baptist church next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a men's Bible class. It is is intended that the class shall be organized and conducted along the lines of the New Adult Bible Class Movement which has given such an impetus to Bible study in other pfaces.

A cleaning, pressing and repair shop has been opened on the South Railway St., next door to the Royal Hotel.

The Mock Parliament will meet at 8 o'clock on Friday evening for the first time this year. During the recess a truce has been declared beburdened with highly contentious measures, there is every prospect of a keen fight during the remainder of the session.

A petition is being signed in town calling for provincial legislation for the protection of neglected children and children whose surroundings are such as to make impossible the development of healthy character. places of refuge and permanent homes are asked for, under similar conditions to those now in existence in Ontario.

On Friday afternoon Mrs. C. F. Smith entertained with progressive whist from 4 to 7, when six tables played. The prizes went to Mrs. Noble and Mrs. Thos. McKay.

Saturday night, Mrs Beveridge entertaided in honor of Mrs Grant. Progressive whist was played, Mrs. Woodland and Mrs Hoover being the fortunate winners.

C.P.R.'s Big Flow

Record Gusher Struck at Bow Island

Gas Level Drops Towards West

That Medicine Hat is the centre of a great gas area has been felt, but how far it extended from this centre has never been discovered. Calgary and Lethbridge have striven to strike gas, but beyond little pockets that are of no value they have been unsuccessful. Pincher Creek has better prospects as it is in a gas an oil area, but here, too the gas so far found is not in paying quantities. Irvine is talking of a well, and Maple Creek and Bow Island already have sunk wells. Maple Creek has a flow that is reported to be 250 pounds pressure.

On Thursday the C. P. R., which has been sinking a well about four miles north-west of Bow Island near the Saskatchewan River struck a flow that is evidently from the same area as that made use of in this city. Being deeper the pressure is greater and the flow has been figured out to be 5,241,960 cubic feet a day. The well is down between 1900 and 2,000 feet and the volume indicates a pressure of about 800 pounds. However strong as this flow is, it is not gas the C. P. R. is after, but oil, and the drilling will continue.

The reports from most of the gas wells attempted is confusing as here at Calgary where almost every day, according to the Calgary papers "Manager Dingman expressed himself as delighted with the prospects and feels assured that a very few days will see gas in paying quantities." This never materialized, nor did it at Lethbridge where the drilling was stopped. These wells never have a test for pressure but the drillers make a guess at it and naturally exaggerate in order to encourage a continuance of the work. Up to Thursday the C. P. R. well at Bow Island had struck a pressure 127,000 cubic feet per day. Across the river about two miles north the Southern Alberta Land Co. has a well down only 642 feet and a volume of 165,000 cubic feet is flowing. This strike at Bow Island and Maple Creek would indicate that the gas area extends at least 100 miles across with Medicine Hat for the centre. No drilling north or south has been done, so that the extent in these directions is unknown.

Alberta Railway Policy

Medicine Hat Doesn't Seem to Figure Much

Everything Around Calgary and Edmonton

Edmonton, Jan. 14—The announcement in the speech from the throne on the subject of railway construction, though couched in the indirect language usual on such occasions, brings the question before the legislature and the public in a manner which now fully assures the building of new lines in Alberta during the present year.

While no official information as to the government's arrangements can yet be secured the details of the programme are being actively discussed among the legislators. From what is stated in circles close to the members of the ministry the following are regarded as the extensions that are practically assured:

C. N. R. extension of the Saskatoon branch to Calgary as rapidly as construction can be pushed.

C. N. R. line from Calgary southward in the direction of and reaching to Lethbridge. This line will split at some point northwest of Lethbridge into a Y, the other branch of which will go to Macleod.

C. N. R. will probably take over the charter for the line from Macleod to the boundary and will continue the Macleod branch to the boundary to connect with the Great Northern road.

C. N. R. will build from Macleod to the Crow's Nest Pass to tap the coal fields in that district.

C. N. R. will start construction of a line northeasterly from Edmonton in the direction of Fort Murray.

G. T. P. will build from Wainwright southwest to Calgary.

The Great Northern Railway, after building from Cut Bank Montana to meet the C. N. R. extension at the boundary, is expected to continue its line to Pincher Creek to tap the extensive coal lands which it controls in the vicinity of that place. This is a proposition entirely outside of the government programme.

The terms of the deals on which the above Canadian lines are to be built are not yet known but are believed to be practically the same as given in The Herald's report of the Winnipeg conference some days ago.

G. T. P. PLANS

Darcy Tate, solicitor for the G. T. P. has announced in Edmonton that several Alberta branches have been decided upon with a view to developing Southern Alberta.

Cattle Stealing Charge

In the Mounted Police barracks on Friday, Samuel Kalmback of Irvine, appeared before Inspector Parker on a charge of cattle stealing. Information had been laid by John Frisk, the owner of the alleged stolen animals. J. J. Mahaffy appeared for the prosecution; D. G. White for the defence. A number of witnesses were examined and the case remanded until Friday next. Kalmback was released on bail, two sureties of $500 each being given.

On Tuesday last T. R. Prout was fined $5 and costs for running a steam boiler without the necessary license.

Hit a Snow Slide

No. 97 Rolls Down Embankment

No. 97, which was made up here Wednesday night to take the place of the Pacific Express, delayed by storms in Manitoba, struck a snow slide eight miles east of Yale and the two locomotives baggage mail express and colonist cars toppled into the Fraser river, 80 feet below. The two engineers were killed and 3 passengers were injured including Richard Clark, of Lethbridge, and Miss Tena Dickson, of Swift Current. A passenger and his wife walking along the track afterwards were buried in another slide and had to be dug out.

Silver Medal Contest

The local council of the Royal Templars of Temperance is holding another of its popular and attractive contests in the St. John's Presbyterian Church at 8 p.m. Monday, January 25th. Those who attended the last contest will know the very excellent programme that is being prepared for them at this, and others will have and enjoy the same knowledge if they are in attendance when the programme is being rendered. Silver collection at the door. Everybody welcome.

WEDDING

DAZE—SHAW

At the residence of the bride's parents 12 Mill St., by the Rev. J. W. Morrow, Ethel Maud Shaw was united in marriage to Joseph Louis Daze. Mr. and Mrs. Vilac acted as groomsman and maron of honor.

It is reported that three of the families which will move into Medicine Hat as a result of the passage of the Sewer Pipe Bylaw are Roosevelt ian in their proportions. They will number thirty-six in all.

Sec. Treas. Appointed

At last night's council meeting a full report of which will be given in the next issue of The Times, Mr. J. F. Fatt was appointed secretary-treasurer. The sewer pipe by-law passed its third reading and the agreement was signed by the Mayor.

The appointments of secretary-treasurer and assistant secretary-treasurer made at last night's council meeting are said to be illegal, as the bylaw by which the offices of treasurer and clerk were created have not been rescinded. It is unlikely however that this will mean any change from last night's decisions as to the personnel of the staff.

Forged a Check

Local Merchant Out on the Deal

Man Got Off After Chase

A young man was successful in passing a check for $29 over the name of A. P. Burns, at D. Milne & Co's store last week. He made no purchases but proceeded straight to the office where checks signed by A. P. Burns have often been cashed. The cashier scarcely looked at him, but handed out the money. After the discovery of the forgery she could give no good description as she had suspected nothing.

Proceeding To Stewart & Tweed's purchases of about $40 were made, and another forged check was handed out, but the young fellow was told to go and get it passed at a bank. One of the purchases had been a new stiff hat. This the forger had placed on his head leaving his old hat to be delivered. When he left the store, presumably to cash the check at the bank, the new hat accompanied him. T. Robinson of Stewart and Tweed's happening to think of the new hat, gave chase in a few minutes. The forger was seen on South Railway Street and a lively chase took place along that street and up Toronto Street to the lane next the Alberta Hotel. Here the fugitive turned, and losing track of him Robinson returned to the store thinking the forger would be met at the train.

In the meantime the chief had been told of the bogus check and proceeded immediately to the station, as our trains were coming in within a few hours. For almost three hours in the extremely cold weather he watched every train and rode on them all to the bridge where he jumped off; but no trace of the forger was found. A mounted policeman rode to Dunmore, and another went out on the Crow train. But up to the present the man is still at large.

That he is an amateur is evident from his visit to the Merchants' Bank. There the cashier not quite certain about the cheque, telephoned the Mounted Police. Meanwhile the forger became alarmed and beat a retreat before the police had time to get across from the barracks. Both cheques are forgeries of the crudest kind. At a glance one can detect that the same hand made out and endorsed them. The one left at the Merchants' Bank had been originally made out for $10 and altered to read $70. The cheques were dated January 8th and endorsed "Ernest Dave."

There is not the slightest resemblance between Mr. Burn's signature and the one on the cheques, the latter being in an unformed uneducated hand.

SALVATION ARMY MEETING

Commissioner Elijah Cadman will conduct a meeting at the Salvation Army Barracks, Fri. Jan. 22nd at 8 P. m. He will Speak on His Life and travels.

The Commissioner is the Army's oldest Officer, and his life's Story is filled with laughnable, thrilling and wonderful incidents. Everybody welcome.

Empire Vaudeville Company

Although travelling under the same name as last week's company, the performers at the Opera House last night and tonight are not the same as last week. The performance is well worth seeing, two or three of the acts being good enough alone for the price of admission. St. Claire, the harpist is an artist on his instrument and was repeatedly recalled with his music so new to Medicine Hat. Your the human can-opener, so to speak, also does the Hondini act and gets loose from a bunch of handcuffs and shackles in a manner that draws applause. The DeComas, acrobats, do some interesting tumbling and ball-rolling. Weaver and Williams present a laughable worth seeing, the one act playlet dialogue. The other acts were having a "high moral tone," which pleases many. Churchill's impersonation of the popular conception of Rockefeller was well worked out, and the female reporter would get news anywhere. The Australian funnyman was vociferously applauded.

The body of John D. Holden southeast of Seven Persons, who was found frozen to death last evening a mile or so from his home was brought ineo the city by his uncle John E. Helden and Frank Logelin.

Rear End Collision

Nay Freight and Silk Train in Wreck

Two Local Men Killed

A disaster occurred on Wednesday night on the main line of the C. P. R. a mile and a half east of Hidewood, 96 miles east of this city when an east-bound way freight crashed into the rear end of a silk-train. Two members of the way freight were instantly killed; the engine of the way freight and five cars of the silk train were wrecked.

The silk train was stalled in a 5ft. cut where the crew were replacing a broken air hose. The car was unprotected and when Engineer Degon of the way freight rounded the sharp curve he found himself only three or four car-lengths from the rear-end of the stalled train. Quick as thought he applied the air brake, at the same time shouting to his crew to jump, and then, just in time, he himself took a leap for life. When the crash came the top of the cab fell upon him and he lay where he fell, stunned. Fireman J. D. King, and Brakeman B. S. Porter were unable to jump clear and were instantly killed. Brakeman Mount, who was on the rear of the silk train was about to jump when the collision occurred, and, the impact driving the car of the car upwards, he was hurled some twenty feet on to the bank above. He sustained a concussion, but after two or three days in the general hospital at Medicine Hat, where he was brought on Thursday afternoon he is able to get about again and yesterday he was down at Maple Creek at the resumption of the inquest. Degon escaped with two fractured ribs, a bad head wound, and injuries to arms and legs. He was able to attend the investigation at Swift Current and the inquest on the bodies of King and Porter at Maple Creek. He expects to be able to return to work in a couple of weeks.

Drs. Kerr of Swift Current and Field of Maple Creek, were wired for soon after the wreck occurred and they rendered first aid to the injured men. A wrecking crew was dispatched from the city under Caraman Taylor.

The investigation conducted by Superintendent [illegible] on Saturday afternoon there were present all the surviving members of the crews, with the exception of Mount. Each gave evidence for the space of 15 or 20 minutes.

The coroner's inquest at Maple Creek was conducted by D. Hapkins, late on Tuesday night.

In addition to the valuable silks, the freight on the five wrecked cars consisted of all kinds of Chinese goods brought through from the coast. Preserves, Molasses, sugar, tea, Chinese whisky, Chinaware, articles of Chinese clothing were thrown upon the bank mixed with the fragments of the cars.

The cause of the catastrophe appears to have lain in the neglect of the rear brakeman of the silk train to flag the on-coming way freight Conductor Bone stated that he ordered Mount to go back to give this protection, but that the latter failed to execute his orders.

The crews of the two trains were as follows:

Silk train—Engineer Howell, Fireman Barwise, Conductor Bone, Brakemen Mount and Grey.

Business College Opened

The Crown Business College has been opened in rooms in the Bell Block on Main St., by Mr. A. C. Horne, and experienced instructor. Instruction will be given in every branch of business. Full particulars will be gained from the advertisement on another page, and from the principal who will be at the rooms from 9 to 1 and 7.30 to 8.30.

TO FORM POULTRY ASSOCIATION

A meeting will be held in the board of trade building next Friday evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of forming a poultry association. A large attandance is requested of all interested in the movement whether practical poultrymen or not. There is immense scope for the development of this industry in Alberta, which imports annually $500,000 worth of poultry. There is no reason why the province should not be self-sustaining in this respect.

INDOOR BASEBALL

A number of those interested in indoor baseball met on Wednesday night in the American Hotel. Mr. Drake was put in the chair. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, J. Fleming.

Sec.-Treas., A. J. N. Terrill.

Executive Messrs. Drake, W. Hamilton, W. B. Finlay, Amy and O'Hara.

Messrs. Terrill and Amy were appointed official scorers.

It was decided to receive applications up to Friday night at 8 p.m. from teams intending to enter the league the name of which will be the Gas City Indoor Baseball League. Practises commence immediately in the afternoons at the Opera House.

There will be a game of indoor baseball on Thursday night at 8.15 between C. P. R. and Fire Brigade.

On Thursday, the 14th inst. the Maple Creek Curling Club sent up two rinks to play for the District medal and one to play the primary in the District Trophy competition, the winning club in the latter being entitled to represent the Cypress District in the Provincial Bonspiel at Calgary next week.

The single rink game was played in the afternoon between rinks skipped by O'Hara for the Hat and Chevalier for the Creek. The game was very close and exciting the rinks being tied at 8 all on the 13th end and the result being in doubt almost till the last stone was played in the 14th end, the Hat winning the end by one shot.

In the evening the games were a little one-sided, the Maple Creek rinks not playing up to their usual form, apparently missing the old ... R. Kearns and S. Cooil. The Medicine Hat rinks both excelled themselves.

The scores:

Medicine Hat	Maple Creek
J. Campbell	Stockdale
G. Pingle	Burnett
F. G. Holt	Quick
O'Hara	Chevalier
Skip, 9	Skip 8

Majority for Medicine Hat 1.

M. A. Brown	Roach

J. Robertson	Hardy
E. Diselets	Burnett
R. E. Walton	Dixon
F. S. Pingle, Skip.	Quick, Skip

Majority for Medicine Hat 29.

J. Dorando beat Percy Smallwood in St. Louis in the Marathon distance race, in the time of 2 hours 44 minutes 32 2-5 seconds, 19 seconds slower than the world's record.

J. A. Rector, champion short-distance sprinter of the American cinder path, who was beaten by J. E. Walker, the South African, at the Olympic games last summer, has received a letter from President Roosevelt expressing a wish that the young man meet Walker when the latter tours America next summer. Walker will also come to Canada and take part in the C. A. A. U. championships. If he does, he and Bobby Kerr will settle the question of supremacy. Kerr beat Walker and beat him three yards in the British 100 yard championships. He had no difficulty with him at all, but on the day of the Olympic 100 meter final the fair-haired Hamiltonian had "it" taken out of him by a hard heat in the 200 meters, and lacked the ginger and snap necessary to pull him through a really tough 100 meter battle. Billy Sherring, J. H. Crocker and all the Canucks have it stowed away in their think tanks that Kerr can beat Walker.

In the near future Longboat and Shrubb will appear against Marsh in Winnipeg.

Fred Appleby, the crack English amateur long distance runner, who holds the record for fifteen miles may appear in Canada and the United States shortly and meet some of the big runners.

A meeting of those interested in the Good Friday road race is called for tonight at 8 p.m. in the court room of the City Hall. A committee of management will be selected the course decided upon, and a report given on the probable prizes. In addition to Mr Turpin's trophy for the winner and The Times' silver medal for the second man, the Y. M. C. may donate a prize and the banks may donate another. A canvas will then be made for the other prizes needed. Everybody interested should turn out tonight.

The Edmonton hockey team beat the Maple Leafs of Winnipeg in the first game for the Fit-Reform trophy by a score of 13 to 5. In the second game the score was 3 to 2 in favor of Edmonton, and the cup comes west.

Packey McFarland of Chicago and Dick Hyland of San Franscisco fought 10 rounds in Los Angeles on Friday night, no decision. McFarland had the better of the contest.

other waste matter from the blood which causes rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the affections may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended, it is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

A druggist here at home, when asked, stated that he could either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription for our readers, also recommends it as harmless.

SHEEP INDUSTRY DECLINING IN ALBERTA

According to the report of Secretary E. L. Richardson of the Alberta Sheep Breeders' association, the sheep breeding industry in Alberta is very much on the decline, and the decline is regular and rapid.

Last year there were only 36,998 sheep compared with 129,565 in the year 1905.

About 90 per cent of the sheep of the province belong to the southern district. The figures for the central and southern district. The figures for the southern districts during the past four years are:

	1905.	1908
Southern District	123,765	33,367
Central	5,800	3,691

Much attention will be given in the future to this sheep industry, and an effort will be made to check the decline. For this purpose a live board of officers has been elected for 1909.

The Sheep Breeders' association will deliver educational books dealing with the industry and attention will be given to the wool industry, selling range mutton, lamb feeding enterprises, improvements in management, and the selection of stock.

The suitability of Alberta in climate and grasses is all in favor of the industry.

The officers of the Breeders' association for 1909 are:

President, Bryce Wright, De Winton; First Vice-President, O. E. Brown, Calgary. Second Vice-President, J. A. Turner, Calgary. Secretary, E. L. Richardson, Calgary. General Directors, James McCraig, Edmonton; W. A. Hamilton, Lethbridge; C. A. Grant, Walsh; O. M. Smith, Lacombe, and

The shrinkage of flocks has been hard to explain. Coyotes and wolves have been a drawback. As settlements are largely increasing, this trouble is decreasing by comparison.

While the sheep stock is only one-third of that of three years ago, the demand is always on the increase, and so good as to warrant the association taking hold of this industry.

Correspondence

(The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents, nor does it necessarily agree with them.)

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—I noticed in a recent issue of The Times a letter making exception to the present system of taxing leases, or indeed the holder of land, in any shape or form; perhaps more correctly speaking, the taxing of the land and not the individual. This letter was of course written by some one engaged in ranching or the raising of live stock. Very naturally he resented the fact that he who paid the government so much for leasing certain lands, should in addition to this, have to pay taxes on the same land whilst his neighbor who was not paying a cent to the government in any shape or form should get off scot free, although he perhaps owned more head of stock than the lease and tax payer, running most likely upon the latter's lease, and most likely upon everybody's land similarly situated around.

Why should not the government, instead of taxing the land and the men who make it their home and improve upon it, rather tax the live stock running at large upon the government and other lands and thus oblige those who own live stock, but have no home or location suited for live stock either from want of water or shelter, to pay so much per head. Then those men who do not at present think it worth their while to look after their live stock, might feel disposed to leave the business in the hands of those that do, and, then there would be less shivering, starving animals to be seen around in the present extremely cold weather. If this scheme of taxing the animal as it exists or did exist in the States were adopted in this country it would in all probability have the effect of improving the breed of cattle, (if not also horses), as it would eliminate the man who runs the game of chance when he found it was going to cost him some thing, apart from the chance of loss by starvation in bad years.

THIS IS SAID TO HELP MANY

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered as themost certain prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and

Water Gauge Burst

C. P. R. Fireman Badly Ccalded

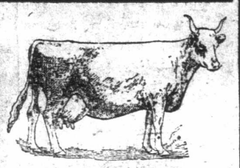
"It so happened," said Duffus to our representative, "that I had a box of Zam-Buk in my pocket, which I used for a sore on my lip, and when I recovered from the first shock of the accident, I produced the balm and had it applied freely to the scalded parts. At the time I applied it I was suffering acute agony, but within wonderfully short time Zam-Buk gave me ease. I was able to continue my journey, and upon reaching home I was able to obtain more Zam-Buk and continued the treatment. It acted wonderfully well, and in a few days had the wound nicely healing. I don't know anything so fine as a healer of burns scalds, cuts, and similar injuries which workers are so liable to; and in my opinion a box of Zam-Buk should be kept handy in every worker's home."

There is something different and superior about Zam-Buk. Time and again workers in all branches of trade have proved its vast superiority over the advertised ointments and salves of the day. No doubt the fact that Zam-Buk is made entirely from herbal essences and extracts, while ordinary ointments contain more or less animal fats and oils goes a long way to explain Zam-Buk's superiority. However this may be, the fact remains that in four continents to which it has been introduced within ten years it has become the leading household balm!



For burns, cuts, scalds, bruises, eczema, piles, ulcers, ring-worm itch, salt-rheum, bad leg, festering sores, chapped places, cold sores, frost-bites, and all skin injuries and diseases, Zam-Buk is beyond doubt a most marvellous cure.

Druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box and the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, will mail a box, post free upon receipt of price, to any of our readers who may have difficulty in obtaining a supply of the genuine Zam-Buk from their local stores.

That Railway Policy

At last we know the railway policy of the Alberta Government. Many of us will disagree with the policy but there is a satisfaction in knowing definitely that the Alberta Government has decided to guarantee the bonds of any transcontinental railway to the extent of $15,000 a mile.

There is no doubt that Primer Rutherford has gone into the matter and devised the plan that is most acceptable to himself and his cabinet. The outcome of the conferences they have had on the subject is most pleasing as regards the limitation of the guarantee to transcontinental lines only. This will prevent any of the charter-mongers and government favorities getting into the Provincial treasury. It also ensures the extension of branch lines as feeders to the main line.

But in the settlement of the guarantee per mile there appears to have been only the minds of business men and not of practical railway men. It is said, and with authority, that the cost of construction for prairie railways is only about $12,000 per mile. Then why guarantee to a greater extent? There is little extra running stock needed, and what there is should not be charged up against a branch line as the stock is useful and used on every section of the line. Five hundred miles of railwaywould require nothing like a million and a half of extra running stock.

"As a matter of fact it scarcely seems reasonable that the bonds of a company should be guaranteed to anything like the cost of construction. Any firm or person could and would undertake expenditure to any extent on the chances of making a profit, if all the expenditure was guaranteed by responsible backers. It does not seem reasonable to suppose that the railways would demand this; but they knew when to hold out and it is possible that they were more clever man than the government representatives with whom they had to deal. Many will say this is not only probable but certain.

The lack of railway development in such a rapidly growing Province as Alberta would indicate that the railways were just holding back knowing that some such munificent offer would be forthcoming from a Government, which may be fairly honest as Governments go but is assuredly not over-strong.

The guarantee of $15,000 per mile to the railways is the same as saying to a businessman: "You start a certain industry here and we will put up all the money you need and $3,000 more. You take all the profit: we take all the losses." Would any man delay in accepting such an offer did profit appear even remotely possible.

The Toronto Globe suggests that (1) the Province build the roads and run them as Ontario does; (2) that the Province build the roads and let all lines run over them; (3) call for tenders from the railways. The fatal objection to suggestion (1) is that Premier Rutherford is not in the same class as regards ability and independence with Premier Whitney, as almost everyone will admit. And it is Whitney's firm stand that has made the Temiskaming Railway pay its way. And it has only paid its way.

Suggestions (2) and (3) are worthy of consideration, except that in calling for tenders, there is not much doubt that the railways would put their heads together and do as well as they are doing now.

But certainly the present policy is going to prove a poor thing for the province, and a gold mine for the railways. There are a comparative few who believe wholly in the agreement with the Grand Trunk Pacific. And yet the Alberta Government goes further. It builds all the railways, allows $3,000 a mile more, and stands to make nothing directly and to lose all that is to be lost.

That Reduction

Albertans will be delighted to know that, probably owing to the newspaper campaign, Premier Rutherford has decided to reduce the prices on telephones in Alberta.

From the big space given the decision in the papers one would be led to conclude that the reduction would be tremendous, that after a most exhaustive enquiry the users of telephones would now get the phones for about half the old rate.

But after all the bubbles are blown off and the real liquid is arrived at, the bottom of the glass is not far off. To Medicine Hat all the reduction means is two dollars a year on business phones and nothing on residence phones. In dollars and cents this means that the Government has reduced the total tariff in this city only about $250. To offset this there is $80 a year more paid by the newspaper offices and six phones that were allowed the city by the Bell Company have been cut off.

Which means that with all the noise about reduced rates Medicine Hat has had practically no reduction whatever.

Someone interested in the Government has caused the story to be spread through all the big dailies that the reduction will equal twenty-five per cent. This story is wild. In Medicine Hat, the reduction in dollars and cents is only forty dollars this year from a total revenue of about seventy-five hundred, or the paltry amount of almost ONE HALF OF ONE PER CENT. There scarcely seems reason for big head lines or humble thankfulness. Where does the remainder of the profit of the Bell Telephone Co. go?

EDITORIAL NOTES

At last the Railway Commission has shown the express companies that the people are not in existence purely for their benefit. Almost two years ago The Times gave instances of the exorbitant rates charged. Shortly afterwards it was aonounced that an investigation would take place under the Railway Commission. Nothing further was done until the first of 1909 and the Chairman of the Commissioners was so disgusted with the high tariff that he ordered a reversion to the old rates existing before Jan. 1, 1909 But this helps little, except that Judge Mabee promised that the whole express matter would be gone into. When a wholesale house can express as much for 25 cents, as the private individual can send for 75 cents, there is room for a big reduction some place. When a box a foot square that costs in the first place only four dollars, costs $2.75 to bring from Winnipeg, there is an exorbitant profit somewhere—and it is not at the receiver's end.

The age of investigation has been a fortunate one for the United States: it will be a good thing for Canada when express companies are forced to cease bleeding the people.

It is amusing enough that Medicine Hat physicians and dentists, should consider it infra dig., to insert a card in the local papers when the same professions run cards in almost every other town in Canada. But the laugh is louder at the expense of our dignified professional men, when a Lethbridge doctor finds it wise to advertise in Medicine Hat, as will be found among the professional cards of this week's Times. And it is not that our medical profession takes any higher stand than the doctors of Lethbridge or any other town where doctors are willing to show that their sole business is not taking in the coin without attendant expenses.

In Calgary, Edmonton and other places the coal dealers boosted the price of coal when the cold weather came. In a case of this kind the proper treatment would be for the city authorities to establish municipal coal yards. Such dealers should be shown no mercy.

Medicine Hat may have suffered a little on account of the size of her as mains and insufficiency of wells. But this can be easily remedied, and serves as a profitable lesson. But thank goodness, in the words of a fairly well-known character, "We are not as other men are." Calgary, Macleod and several other western places are running short of coal That is a calamity that may happen every year to coal-using towns.

Lethbridge Herald—Edmonton has a power scheme for the future. The source is at Grand Rapids on the Athabasca, 170 miles north-west of Edmonton. Lethbridge is better favored than that. Some day, the water power going to waste in the Belly river will be used to generate electrical energy for this city.

But Medicine Hat is still better favored. She has power IN USE EVERY DAY that is unlimited.

Again the Postmaster General hands down a statement showing net surplus of over a million dollars And still scores of postoffices are kept down to one mail a week, in order to build up this surplus. Within twenty miles of Medicine Hat there are half a dozen or more postoffices with a large mailing list, that are considered by the government worth only one mail a week. If a letter arrives in Medicine Hat on Saturday afternoon it is the next Saturday before it reaches the man to whom it is directed—simply because the government considers surplus before service. There is scarcely a newspaper in the country Liberal or Conservative, which has not condemned the postal service in this respect. But Lemieux is too small a man to stand suggestion.

The Times must compliment The Lethbridge Herald on its fair reports of the gas situation in Medicine Hat.

Roosevelt, the "big stick" manipulator, is excelling himself with the cudgel of late. Anybody and everybody is being hammered, so that the President can step out of office without being charged with partiality. Unfortunately he is losing dignity by his personal attacks.

There was not much doubt as to whether the people wanted the Alberta Clay Products Company or not. There has never been such an overwhelming expression of opinion. The meeting addressed by Mr. Newell was well handled and the new agreement pleased the ratepayers who were there. The rumors that had been going around the streets were entirely unfounded.

REDUCTION IN TELEPHONE RATES

Edmonton, Jan. 14—As was indicated by Hon. W. H. Cushing at the board of trade banquet in Calgary last week, the Alberta government now announces a reduction in the telephone rates.

There is a general readjustment and re-arrangement in telephone rentals and tolls.

In reply to an inquiry by an Albertan representative today mon Mr. Cushing made the followiog statement:

"There is little to say about the matter. Four the past four months we have been considering the question of readjustment and I have gone carefully into the details. The readjustment will mean a reduction in rates, on toll lines and exchanges formerly operated by the Bell Telephones with the exception of exchanges with over 1,000 subscribers where the same rate will be maintained on business telephones. But there will be a reduction in all the exchanges upon telephones in private residences.

The government has no further statement to make just at this time It is understood that the reduction in the price of telephone service between Calgary and Edmonton will be 15 cents which means 12½ per cent. A full statement will be made in a few days.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Is A Remedy Without An Equal For COUGHS, COLDS, And All Affections Of The THROAT and LUNGS.

Coughs and Colds do not call for a minute recital of symptoms as they are known to everyone, but their dangers are not understood so well. All the most serious affections of the throat, the lungs and the bronchial tubes, are, in the beginning, but coughs and colds.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the admonition to all persons affected by the insidious earlier stages of throat and lung disease, as failure to take hold at once will cause many years of suffering, and in the end that terrible scourge of "Consumption."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is not Sold as a Cure for Consumption but for affections tributary to, and that result in, that disease. It combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognized worth, and is absolutely harmless, prompt and safe. So great has been the success of this wonderful remedy, it is only natural that numerous persons have tried to imitate it. Don't be humbugged into taking anything but "Dr. Woods." Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

The Times for Job Printing

A Modern Battle

(Canadian Courier)

All over the province of Ontario, they are saying things about the recent vote on Licence Reduction in the city of Toronto. Over all such conversation is hatred. What London is to the world, what New York is to the United States, Toronto is to Ontario. Every municipal and political move in the biggest city of the province is watched with the keenest interest. The Toronto daily paper is the medium. It carries the names and speeches and ambitions of the pettiest city politicians into every home—and distance lends enchantment to the view. When therefore the campaign to reduce the number of hotels from 100 to 100 came on, the names of Oliver and Spence, and Hales, and Bosworth and Geary and Haverson and other leaders, real or supposed, were printed many times. They became familiar to the eyes of the provincial reader. The general interest in the campaign grew keen and intense.

It was a modern battle. The two armies of seventeen thousand men and women each were drawn up in battle array under their different captains, their colonels and their generals. The preliminary skirmishes had taken place when the judge revised the voters' lists, and when the meetings for and against the By-law were held. The real battle occurred on January 1st, for Toronto is a busy town and it cannot afford an extra holiday for its municipal battle-day. The opposing armies rose early. The deadly two-horse cab and the deadlier automobile were pressed into service, and the battle of the ballots was on. The procession of "The Boy or the Barrel—Which?" a day or two before had been but an exhibition of strength by the Reduction army. The "Antis" had carefully concealed the strength of their army—they believed in silent and thoughtful preparation rather than praying, and shouting and parading.

And what was the real issue? In a vague way, the Reduction army felt that it was fighting for temperance, for the abolition of the bar, and the treating system. Just why they hated the treating system is hard to tell. Nearly every temperance voter practises it—treating his friends to dinners, drives, card-parties, refreshments of a mild type and to a free distribution of his views on moral reform generally. As to the "Bar," there is little doubt that it has grown unpopular especially with those who belong to the clubs and have learned how dignified it is to have their liquid refreshments served at a table. Up in Rosedale, and along the Top of the Hill where these new-made aristocrats live, the vote against the Bar was furiously heavy. In Ward Six, the Parkdale division, where there is but one bar-room, the majority in favor of Reduction was greater than the majority over the whole city. In a district which had less grievance against the bar than any other, they fought tigerishly for its blood. In other words, Ward Six decided the day. It was there that the Antis' army was outflanked, crushed, and beaten.

And what will be the result? About forty hotels will lose their licenses, but they would have lost them long ago if the License Board had acted up to its pretentions. They are only make-believe hotels. They are really saloons—and Toronto long ago decided against the saloon. Forty men who have been advised to improve their premises by these same license commissioners must now lose the money which they have invested. Forty men who were told to bluff at hotel-keeping, are now informed that the bluff will not be accepted. Forty men, with sore hearts, depleted pocket-books and wonder-eyed families are driven to other occupations or to engage in illicit traffic. One hundred and ten men are left to garner in whatever of the increased trade which can be gathered up from the debris of the forty destroyed businesses. That is to be the result—if the City Council pushes the victory to its logical conclusion, and the Courts do not interfere.

Was it worth while? Apparently the Temperance people throughout the province think it was. They base on it an argument that the bar must go and that provincial prohibition is in sight. They say that the effect on the subsequent municipal battles throughout the province was exhilerating and that it will mean much in future out-post fighting. They boast that the Temperance fire which has made the Southern States "dry," which has burned its way through the Maritime Provinces and Manitoba, has at last reached Ontario. They expect it to be all-consuming. They will not cease their efforts until they have cut off every license, every club privilege and even the package sale. They may go too fast as they did in the middle seventies, and a reaction may set in. That apparently is the only danger.

Undoubtedly over-indulgence in strong drink is unpopular. Whether this is due to economic or moral forces or both working in union is a question which is open to discussion. The young man who makes a habit of occasionally getting on a spree finds difficulty in obtaining advancement in his calling or profession. The drunkard once a member of the business community, is now found only in the lower strata. Further it is becoming fashionable to boast of being a teetotaller. The methodists, Presbyterians and other "non-conformist" bodies have forced the Anglican Church to join them. They are preparing to make liquor-drinking even in moderation, a mortal sin. Before they attain that success they must come in contact with the man who desires to have liquor on his table and at his club. He is a small but formidable majority.

One peculiar feature of the campaign is the utter disregard of the temperance advocate for "vested interests" and compensation. One clergyman, since the vote was over, remarked that compensation was a subtle propositian which must be tabooed, thae there "will be no vested rights in this business," and that it is "enough if we forgive them and tell them to go and sin no more." Men of this class cry down compensation by declaring that all licenses are annual, forgetting that the licencees are not annual, but have spent their lives in the business. However a province which uses public credit to fight private enterprises as in the case of the Hydro-Electric Commission, is not likely to hesitate at wiping out the capital of a few hundreds of hotel-keepers. In this respect, we are more American than British. Strangely enough, during the recent fight in Toronto, the license-holders themselves have not stuck out for compensation. It may be that they felt that such an appeal to such a public would have been useless. They perhaps felt that the sins of the general traffic were about to be visited on them and that little was to be gained by crying for mercy.

Now that the battle in Toronto and in the province generally is over it might be wise for the leaders on both sides to sit down and discuss future campaigns. If the Temperance people should refuse to attend such a conference, the public would be seriously affected by their intolerance. If the Brewers and Licensed Victuallers should refuse such a conference, then the Temperance people would occupy a better strategical position with those inclined to take a moderate view. If both sides refuse, then it will probably be necessary for the Legislature to step in and abolish local option and annual licenses and substitute some system which will prevent further investment in licensed property will safeguard or transfer that which is now invested, and which will place all questions in connection with liquor-selling under provincial rather than local control. This would mean a mild but effective form of Provincial Prohibition.

THE LAST CHANCE

Up in Red Deer the girls were getting desperate at the disappearance of leap year without a husband while such eligible young men as Earl Porter and other were hanging around loose, as it were. So they addressed the following letter to Earl and four of his friends:

Oft in admiration
And highest estimation
After long consideration
I feel the inclination
To become a near relation
To become your wife.

I really hope you will pardon me
For making quite so bold,
But this is Leap Year, as you know
At least so I've been told.

They say it is a woman's right
To court, nay evermore
To ask in marriage if she will
The man whom she adores.

Of money I have little,
Of talents I have few,
But, is all the love in vain
That throbs in me for you)

Then shall I be your wife or not
Is what I want to know.
Alas for me if you return
That fatal answer "No"

Now I must stop for words do fail
My feelings to express,
Now mark if I don't get yourself
I shall expect a dress.

Yours While Wanted.

The Western Canneries

Report of Last General Meeting

Although the shareholders who attended the general meeting of the Western Canneries held in Regina last month, publicly refused to give any detailed report, that does not mean that The Times did not get a full report of the proceeding. The same thing happened last spring but The Times believed the citizens of Medicine Hat had a right to know all that went on at a meeting of shareholders of a company to which the city was giving privileges.

There were 22 shareholders present only two of whom had been collecting proxies to any extent. These two, C. A. Flour, of Winnipeg and G. Forster of Medicine Hat, had been endeavoring to control all the votes they could. At the two meetings last spring F. H. Malcolm and F. G. Forster had, between them the control of the vote with the result that the former received 5,000 shares of common stock, and the latter the managing directorship or general manager or something like that.

But at this meeting in December all this was changed. C. A. Flour had been east and had talked to the shareholders in Ontario, with the result that he turned up at the meeting with 1610 votes, or 60 per cent of the entire 2,502 votes represented at the meeting. F. G. Forester had only 375 votes and the next highest was 178. Accordingly Mr. Flour had things his own way. That this was not used to the detriment of the company has been apparent.

The first move was to change the Articles of Association. Clause two was altered so that offices may be established in Medicine Hat, Winnipeg or elsewhere in the British Dominions. Clause 6 now allows the company to receive payment on shares in full, allowing a discount of 5 per cent on the balance due on each share after the allotment call has been paid.

A change is made making it necessary that, in future, no shareholder can be a director unless he possesses five founders or preference shares This means, according to The Times information, that only one man (a rancher) in this district can be a director, as the shares held by the former directors varied from two to five.

C. A. Flour is managing director and no other position was assigned.

Two members will constitute a quorum. The directors will meet at least every 90 days.

Clause 32, which vested 5,000 shares of common stock in F. H. Malcolm was struck out and the following substituted: "The common stock of the company shall be vested in the Board of Directors, subject, however, to any legal right of any holders thereof. Mr. Malcolm moved that the unallotted and unissued such common stock in the company's treasury be vested in the Board of Directors, but this was defeated.

Clause 33 which stipulated that for the right, title, interest and good will acquired from F. H. Malcolm the common stock fully paid should be the consideration, was repealed. All powers previously vested in Malcolm were transferred to the Board of Directors. This includes office staff, etc.

It was decided to pay a commission of 5 per cent for the sale of any of the unsubscribed preferred stock, said commission to be due only after the allotment call has been paid.

The directors are empowered to sell the necessary amount of stock up to $200,000, and if necessary can give one share of common stock for every two of preferred stock or they may give a block of stock to any firm underwriting the stock or any part thereof, or may sell it by public issue in London or elsewhere.

The directors are empowered to issue bonds, debentures or other securities of the company for sums not less than $100 each and may pledge or sell the same at such prices as shall be deemed expedient, the total issue not to exceed $100,000.

The name of the company was changed to the Central Canada Meat Packing Company. The annual meeting will be on the second Tuesday in May. The names of Hon. R. W. Scott, Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald and Mr. A. B. Barry of Toronto were added to the directorate.

The voting power at the meeting was as follows:

J. P. Miller, 104; C. D. Forbes 79; C. A. Flour, 1,610; A. G. Carter, 7; W. J. Deans, 10; F. H. Malcolm, 14; Robt. Darrach, 178; F. Young, 4; W. J. Hill, 4; C. W. Traynor, 2; James L. Ewing, 5; F. G. Forster, 375; H. S. Martin, 20; A. 14; Walter R. Scott, 1; H. W. Laird J. McPherson, 10; J. F. L. Embury 26; P. Naismith, 2; S. E. Howarth, 1; W. M. Blain, 1; Andrew Mills 36 G. H. Marsh, 4; total, 2,502.

ANOTHAR JOLLY

The Calgary Herald got in touch with Al. Bassett after he returned to Calgary from his visit here and Al. let himself loose to the poor reporter'

"Al. Bassett, a prominent citizen of Calgary who has been for years connected very actively with the Calgary fire department, returned yesterday from an extended trip to the east as far as Medicine mat. Mr Bassett tells some interesting stories of his experiences in the far east when the cold snap struck the weather-manufacturing city at the Kiplingized gates of Hades.

"Medicine Hat is at one of the main entrances to the basement which is superintended by old Beelzebub and the C. P. R., and the city itself have the keys to the basement. They let out just enough of the blue stuff to keep the residences of the citizens warm and light, but they failed this winter to a certain extent. Old Boreas from the north on the Red Deer river, came down upon the gateway where the two-headed Cerberus keeps watch and ward. He came with a cold, hard, frosty grin, and proceeded to play north pole practical jokes on the entrance to the storehouse of all future heat in excess. He froze up pipes and darkened portions of the town, also cutting off the fuel supply and making the Mad Hatters madder than ever in their efforts to escape from the frosty grasp of the hoary-whiskered and snow-crowned old jokist from the chilly north.

Mr. Bassett says that now the northern visitor has lessened his attentions somewhat, matters are more comfortable in Medicine Hat, and the pipes connected with the basement of Kipling are working all right again. But Mr. Bassett says he kind of likes to have good Bankhead, Galt, or Knee Hill around handy when the cold producer from the cold storage of the north swoops down on him again."

CONSERVATIVE WINS

Winnipeg, Jan. 11—The bye-election for the provincial Legislature held in Virden to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. J. H. Agnew, Provincial Treasurer, resulted in the return of Harvey Simpson, Conservative, by 207 majority.

HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE OF LIVING.

Heart Trouble Cured by MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. Andrew Savoy, Grattan's, N.B., writes: In the year of 1905 I was taken sick and did not think I could live any length of time. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that nothing could be done for a case like mine. I consulted the very best doctors but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly cross the floor. I had no pain, but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hopes of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

One day a friend came to see me, and calling me by name, said, 'Lizzie, if I were you I would try a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart trouble.' My husband got me a box, but for two days I was not feeling any better, but on the fourth day my husband said, 'I believe those pills are doing you good.' I was about to say 'Yes, I feel a good deal better this morning.' He said, 'Well, I will get you another box right away.' I took two boxes and three doses out of the third one, and I was perfectly well and have not been sick since then.

I will never be without them in my home for God knows if it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I would not have been alive now.

Price 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25.

MACHINERY FOR HORSES AND CATTLE.

A. P. Burns is offering to exchange any of his big stock of change any of their big stock of Frost & Wood farm machinery, including binders, mowers, rakes, seeders, discs, plows, harrows, also the famous Lorne wagons and the Brantford buggies for good horses and cattle.

C. H. Wagner, the city transfer man, can remove that furniture for you. Phone 245.

The Man on the Street

The newspapers say that the C. P. R. has bought The Winnipeg Tribune. The owner of The Tribune denies the rumor. How silly to deny a rumor the newspapers report.

B. C. has had an earthquake. But B. C. gets an earthquake every time a Hindu or Jap lands at Vancouver.

In order to set a pace for the road race, and to improve the time it is said that W. H. Turpin, J. Fleming, J. McLean, H. Yuill and W. B. Marshall are going into training.

Let's see now! If it cost Simmons $1,600 to be beaten by Magrath who spent $1,000, how much would it cost for?—but, oh, fudge, the question is too obvious.

A French scientist talks of getting at the inside of the earth to see what is causing the earthquakes. Let's settle the problem by calling it appendicitis.

Lillian Russell is to publish the love-letters she has received. Which is a sure sign that she knows that she has got past the age of receiving them. We'd rather read the ones she sent away.

Three members of the Hearst publications have been found guilty of libelling J. D. Rockfeller. What in the world will the newspapers do now that they are refused the privilege of knocking John D.?

The general manager of the Pullman Co. says, "the tipping custom is the result of the selfishness of persons who desire better service than their fellows and are willing to pay for it." To those who tip it is a debt for any service at all.

A man worth a million dollars dropped dead in the Yukon. The rest of us have to keep alive on the proverbial thirty cents.

Now we can go back to 15 cent rates. The government has reduced the business telephone rate all of $2 a year. The "limit" at the club has gone up ½ of a cent a point.

The rivalry between Calgary and Edmonton is leading to the most reckless expenditure. The former is bound it is going to beat even if it has to have two cars on its street railway.

Considering that mercury freezes at forty degrees below zero, it isn't likely the thermometer that registers 45 below will have lie enough to kick if you call it hard names.

Medicine Hat was the warmest place west of Winnipeg on Wednesday, but boating on the river was not indulged in.

They have had earthquakes within the past few days at Messina, Vancouver, Bellingham, Ottawa, New York, etc. The only earthquake Medicine Hat could stir up was Mr. Rae's objections to the Sewer Pipe Company the other night.

COULD NOT GO TO WORK BACK WAS SO WEAK.

Backache is the primary cause of kidney trouble. When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are liable to become affected.

Heed the warning; check the Backache and dispose of any chances of further trouble.

If you don't, serious complications are very apt to arise and the first thing you know you will have Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of Kidney Trouble.

Mr. James Bryant, Arichat, N.S., was troubled with his back and used Doan's Kidney Pills, he writes:—"I cannot say too much about the benefit I received after using three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was greatly troubled with an aching pain across the small of my back. I could not go to work and my back was so weak I would have to sit down. It would go away for a few days but would always return. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I must say they completely cured me."

Price 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

NO DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION

Every family here ought to keep some diapepsin in the house as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lay like a lump of lead on your stomach, or if you have heartburn that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take one triangle after supper tonight. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heart burn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness of Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseaus odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for all stomach misery, because it will take hold of your food and digest it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Actual, prompt relief for all your stomach misery is at your Pharmacist, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure a case of Dyspepsia or Indegistion.

GETS JAIL TERM

(Winnipeg Telegram)

Cyril D'Esterre Forbes, for years, branch manager of a Canadian bank and more recently manager of the Malcolm's Western Canneries, Ltd., was sentenced to serve twenty-three months in the Portage jail, for theft, forgery and uttering.

Forbes pleaded guilty to two charges of forgery and uttering and one of theft, and waited sullenly for the magistrate's sentence. He seemed to feel his position keenly and when the term was pronounced he accepted it nonchalantly, and with head lowered walked back to his cell.

Poultry Men Talk

Government Experts Give Information

The poultry meeting held under the auspices of the provincial department of Agriculture on Tuesday afternoon last proved a decided success, a large crowd of men gathering to hear the two speakers. Mr. F. J. Cook of Lethbridge, and Mr. T. O. Lechance of Edmonton. Mr. Jas. Rae presided.

Mr. Cook, the first speaker, delivered a helpful and practical address on care of poultry giving a description of the buildings required, built on strain building, and the selection of breeding stock. He also drew attention to the efforts now being put forward by the provincial department for the encouragement of the industry. A poultry farm had been established at Edmonton and in the spring a number of eggs would be for sale at a reasonable price. In this means the laying qualities of the hens of Alberta farmers would be raised. Among other plans for encouraging the raising of the best strains, the department had decided to give prize money up to $3,000 to any local organization which desires to hold a show. A valuable bulletin on poultry matters was now issued by the department and might be obtained by merely writing to the authorities at Edmonton. In the near future it was hoped that a course in poultry-keeping would be introduced at the Agricutturnal College.

Mr. Lechance devoted himself mainly to a discussion of the business side of poultry keeping. Speaking also on incubation and on fattening.

At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks to the speakers, proposed by Mr. Satterthwaite and Mr. E. S. Martin, was carried.

THE DEVIL

The greatest dramatic sensation of modern times, "The Devil," will be the offering of the Stoddart Stock at the opera house Friday night Jan. 22nd. It is a play for the thinking man and woman, as it preaches a great moral lesson. There is a fine constructive wisdom in "The Devil," a healthy wisdom and is truly a masterpiece of dramatic construction, for it is sound, is well put together, and the story grips from the start and intense interest is sustained throughout. At the opera house one night only, Friday, Jan. 22.

A travelling stock judging school has been organized by the government and two cars of live stock will be available at Lacombe during the two week's course.

LIVER COMPLAINT

Whenever the liver becomes deranged, and the bile ducts clogged, liver complaint is produced, and is manifested by the presence of constipation, pain under the right shoulder, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, slimy-coated tongue and headache, heartburn, jaundice, sour stomach, water brash, catarrh of the stomach, etc.

McClary's "Caloric" Gas Range Burns Natural Gas

Burners Easily Taken Apart

"Caloric" Gas Burners are removed by merely lifting them out of palce, and the upper part of burner rests (not screwed) on lower part. Can be instantly taken apart for cleaning.

No tools required. Notice that "cup" of lower half of burner is extra deep, so as to allow proper mixture of air and gas. Also that upper face of burner is corrugated. This causes a "current" of air to pass between corrugations, and gives a greater velocity to flame—makes a greater heat, and brings water to boiling point in less time. Your Health

Your health is dependent to a great extent upon the fit of your shoes, so the doctors say. Ill-fitting shoes make the feet uncomfortable and also force the wearer to walk unnaturally, which, by causing the weight of the body to be distributed unevenly on the foot, brings about various nervous disorders. If you feel all out of sorts perhaps your shoes are to blame. Anyway, get a pair of WALK-OVER SHOES and note the restful feeling they will give your feet.

City Council Proceeds in Legal Form

Report on Gas Question

At the adjourned meeting of the City Council on Thursday evening there were present: The Mayor, Aldermen Robertson, Morrow, Spencer, Collier and Howson.

The first business was the repeal of bylaws 111, 112 and 113, relating to the appointments of treasurer and clerk. A bylaw to accomplish this was introduced by Ald. Spencer. Ald. Morrow strongly opposed the making of a change at the present time. He understood, he said, that the auditor recently engaged by the city had expressed the opinion, (in private conversation), that the offices of secretary and treasurer were better not amalgamated. The city were paying this man $1,000 a year and it would be unwise for them to make the proposed change until they had received his advice. If after the change had been effected the auditor should bring in a report to the effect that the offices should remain as they are today, the council would be placed in a ridiculous position. It would be better to leave this matter over until a report had been received.

Ald. Howson asked the Mayor for light on the question. Had the auditor given any such advice?

In reply the Mayor stated that he had had a long discussion (official not private) with Mr. Henderson who had merely said that in some cases" it was preferable to keep the offices separate. The reason for this was that one official served as a check upon the other. But the city were supposed to be dealing with honest men. With proper regulation the work of the offices could be much more efficiently carried out under the proposed arrangement. It was for the council to take facts as they found them, and when they came to look into the present condition of things they must admit that it was far from satisfactory. During the last week, said the Mayor, he had received many complaints about accounts being rendered twice and the general feeling in this city was that a change was urgently needed. As for this "street corner talk," it was unworthy of consideration. It might be—it probably was—selfish in intention, there was possibly a desire to create a position for certain men.

Ald. Morrow stuck to his guns. He did not think any harm would be done by leaving the matter over. He understood that Mr. Henderson had recommend that the offices in Lethbridge be divided. He did not get his information regarding Mr. Henderson's attitude, in any barroom.

A protracted discussion ensued, in the course of which Ald. Collier remarked that he did not think it had been necessary to send to Winnipeg to get men to tell us how to run the city. He thought the auditor was appointed to audit the books.

The bylaw passed its first and second readings and was considered in committee.

An unanimous vote is necessary for the passage of three readings of a bylaw in one sitting, so that it will be necessary to wait until the next regular meeting to abolish the two present offices and create a secretary-treasurership. Ald Morrow was against the bylaw.

Speaking of the number of offices which had in the past been made by resolution, the solicitor said that the practice was not proper. A bylaw was necessary for the creation of each office. This raised another question. The city bylaws were in a most unsatisfactory condition. In some cases they were conflicting, in others indefinite, in others obselete. A revision was absolutely necessary and in this matter an admirable plan had been adopted by Lethbridge [illegible] bylaw in the city's book, with the exception of money bylaws and such as affected private interests had been repealed. New bylaws had then been enacted, embracing all that was desirable in the old ones.

After the matter had been thoroughly discussed the council decided to authorize the solicitor to carry out a revision. With the assistance of the chairman of committees and of the cure officials the set of new bylaws will be formulated in such a way that very little work will be entailed to the council. The sum of $300 will be paid Mr. Mahaffy for this special work.

During the discussion as to new appointments, it transpired that the action of the council in committee on Monday night was irregular. All the names in the applications should be read before the council and should be voted on separately in order in which they are brought up.

Ald. Spencer gave notice of introduction of a bylaw for the creation of the office of secretary-treasurer at the next regular meeting of the council.

The clerk reported that the committee of last year's council, (Aldermen Spencer, Penhale, Huckvale and Baker), which had been appointed to go into the matter of a site for the Southern Alberta Land Co., had gone out of office without bringing in a recommendation. As one of the old committee, Ald. Spencer, stated that no opportunity had occurred to interview Mr. McGregor. The Mayor and Aldermen Howson, Spencer and Robertson were named a committee to act in conjunction with the Board of Trade in interviewing Mr. McGregor.

It would be better to leave this matter over until a report had been received.

Ald. Howson asked the Mayor for light on the question. Had the auditor given any such advice?

In reply the Mayor stated that he had had a long discussion (official not private) with Mr. Henderson who had merely said that in some cases it was preferable to keep the offices separate. The reason for this was that one official served as a check upon the other. But the city were supposed to be dealing with honest men. With proper regulation the work of the offices could be much more efficiently carried out under the proposed arrangement. It was for the council to take facts as they found them, and when they came to look into the present condition of things they must admit that it was far from satisfactory. During the last week, said the Mayor, he had received many complaints about accounts being rendered twice and the general feeling in this city was that a change was urgently needed. As for this "street corner talk," it was unworthy of consideration. It might be—it probably was—selfish in intention, there was possibly a desire to create a position for certain men.

Ald. Morrow stuck to his guns. He did not think any harm would be done by leaving the matter over. He understood that Mr. Henderson had recommend that the offices in Lethbridge be divided. He did not get his information regarding Mr. Henderson's attitude, in any barroom.

A protracted discussion ensued, in the course of which Ald. Collier remarked that he did not think it had been necessary to send to Winnipeg to get men to tell us how to run the city. He thought the auditor was appointed to audit the books.

The bylaw passed its first and second readings and was considered in committee.

An unanimous vote is necessary for the passage of three readings of a bylaw in one sitting, so that it will be necessary to wait until the next regular meeting to abolish the two present offices and create a secretary-treasurership. Ald Morrow was against the bylaw.

Speaking of the number of offices which had in the past been made by resolution, the solicitor said that the practice was not proper. A bylaw was necessary for the creation of each office. This raised another question. The city bylaws were in a most unsatisfactory condition. In some cases they were conflicting, in others indefinite, in others obsolete. A revision was absolutely necessary, and in this matter an admirable plan had been adopted by Lethbridge. Every bylaw in the city's book, with the exception of money bylaws and such as affected private interests had been repealed. New bylaws had then been enacted, embracing all that was desirable in the old ones.

After the matter had been thoroughly discussed the council decided to authorize the solicitor to carry out a revision. With the assistance of the chairman of committees and of the cure officials the set of new bylaws will be formulated in such a way that very little work will be entailed to the council. The sum of $300 will be paid Mr. Mahaffy for this special work.

During the discussion as to new appointments, it transpired that the action of the council in committee on Monday night was irregular. All the names in the applications should be read before the council and should be voted on separately in order in which they are brought up.

Ald. Spencer gave notice of introduction of a bylaw for the creation of the office of secretary-treasurer at the next regular meeting of the council.

The clerk reported that the committee of last year's council, (Aldermen Spencer, Penhale, Huckvale and Baker), which had been appointed to go into the matter of a site for the Southern Alberta Land Co., had gone out of office without bringing in a recommendation. As one of the old committee, Ald. Spencer, stated that no opportunity had occurred to interview Mr. McGregor. The Mayor and Aldermen Howson, Spencer and Robertson were named a committee to act in conjunction with the Board of Trade in interviewing Mr. McGregor.

Ex-Ald. F. G. Forster addressed the council in behalf of the application of the Medicine Hat Printing and Publishing Co., for 5 cent rate for gas. He explained that as a member of the old council he had not desired too talk too much upon the question. Now, however, he was in a better position to do so. It appeared to him that some confusion arose as to the intention of the bylaw covering this matter from the fact that one solicitor had framed it up for one council while another interpreted it for another body of men. He would submit a definition of the term "manufacturer" as given in the most up-to-date and accredited dictionary. To manufacture was to "engage in producing something by industrial art." Mr. ... proceeded to draw an analogy between the turning out of the finished product of a lumber factory and of a printing office. Both were equally "manufactures." In the former case rough lumber was turned into valuable articles by a mechanical process; in the second paper, practically orthless in the first place was greatly enhanced in value. This company's application was made purely as a matter of principle, since the difference in the rate would mean little more than $50 a year. A newspaper did its share, for the advancement and advertising of a town. Some industries of this nature should be encouraged. Of these at the present time sufficiene appreciation was not shown.

The Mayor endorsed Mr. Forster's last remark. He pointed out that the matter might be dealt with when the bylaws came up for revision. As to capital invested Ald. Morrow said the committee were satisfied as to the company's qualifications but the question arose, was this a manufacturing concern?

Motion by which superintendent of public works and teamster were appointed (Aug. 27, '02 and Jan. 13, '02) were rescinded on motion of Ald. Howson. Also on Ald. Morrow's motion, office of meter clerk was abolished.

The following report from the engineer was read by the chairman of the gas committee, Ald. Morrow.

Alderman Morrow,

Chairman of Gas Committee.

Dear Sir,—The shortage in gas supply this winter has brought home to the necessity of having sufficient wells to meet the requirements without over loading them. Apart from the inconvenience caused by having an inadequate supply of gas a great many false impressions are spread abroad regarding our supply of gas on account of having an insufficient number of wells. In view of this fact I would strongly advise the sinking of another well this year. No doubt you are aware that the C. P. R. have measured our flow of 24 million cubic feet per day from a 6 inch well sunk to a depth of 1900 feet at Bow Island. Before striking the flow they passed through four other flows the second of which appears to be the flow which we are using here. The closed in pressure is 800 pounds. It appears reasonable that we by going deeper may get the same flow as the C. P. R. have struck and I would recommend that in our next well we go to a depth sufficient to enable us to get the same flow as the C. P. R. have got at Bow Island.

If Medicine Hat is to go ahead as indications seem to predict, it will be necessary for us to drill wells from time to time, and, in view of this fact I would consider it advisable for the city to look into the proposition of securing a rig and doing its own drilling. I would consider it good policy for the city to have sufficient wells, so that there will always be a reserve of gas on hand. In conclusion I would recommend that before going any further into the matter, that the council secure the service of a competent gas expert for consultation re drilling.

Yours Respectfully
W. P. MORRISON,
City Engineer.

As to the city's doing its own drilling, the council seemed to be in favor of this course being taken, provided a good man could be secured to do the work. This, as Ald. Howson pointed out, would be the chief difficulty. Gas drilling, moreover, was a very risky business.

Other subjects of discussion were the John McDougal Co., pump, which it is claimed, is still working unsatisfactorily, and the question of selling certain blocks of debentures. Applications will be received on Feb 15, for the sale of $15,000 and $6,500 blocks in connection with the sewer pipe proposition and the spur track.

Evidence will be collected for the purposes of evidence before the Railway Commission next month.

Public Scavenger Recommended

Arrangements for Big Convention

No Comissioner to be Appointed

The regular meeting of the council was held on Monday night the 18th inst., in the city hall. There were present: The Mayor, Aldermen McKay, Robertson, Morrow, Spencer, Collier, Howson, Penhale.

The Board of Health wrote recommending the appointment of a public scavenger and a sanitary inspector who should be engaged about the 1st of April for a period of a few months; the city to pay one half the cost of work done in each case and the landlord one half. The extension of the Main Street sewer to the outlet and the laying of a sewer from the Montreal Street school along Montreal Street to the settling tank were also advised.

Speaking on the question raised in the report Ald. Penhale took the view that it would not be right to dump the garbage on the nuisance ground out in the open prairie. Discussing the general question of the sanitary condition of the city he opined that the city water had been unfairly blamed for the typhoid epidemic during the fall of last year. It was a fact that twenty-four out of the seventy-five cases of fever were traced to a local restaurant which had a cesspool at the back of the premises. The communication was referred to the health committee.

E. J. Fewings wrote asking permission to use the city hall for the annual meeting of the Hospital Board on the 8th of February and inviting the council to appoint one of their number to the board of health. Permission granted and Ald Howson appointed.

The solicitor wrote anent the News application for manufacturers' rate for gas. There were no cases on record of an interpretation of the term "manufacturer" as applied to a newspaper publishing office, in the English court, and in the United States courts, one or two conflicting views had been taken. Under a clause quoted from a law cyclopaedia the products of a printing office were described as a manufactures only when they consisted of printed matter, such as books, blank books, bill heads, etc., but when these were auxiliary to the editing and publishing of a newspaper the establishment could not be described as a manufactory. Within the meaning of the gas bylaw, The News could not be considered as a manufacturing establishment. Some discussion took place on the report which was eventually adopted.

The deputy minister of public works wrote advising the city that the application for the construction of a spur track along the road allowance should be made by the C. P. R. when immediate consideration would be given the matter. Received and filed.

Gorman, Clancey & Grindley wrote asking to be allowed to tender on rails, etc., for the proposed spur-track. Filed.

W. D. Lighthall, honorary secretary-treasurer of the Union of Canadian Municipalities wrote as to the holding of the Convention in Medicine Hat this year. It was desired if possible to keep the expenses of each delegate down to $100 and with this object in view the government of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta were being requested to make grants of $1,000 each. The council decided to endorse this suggestion and request the Edmonton authorities to give the grants. Ald. Penhale expressed the general opinion of the council when he said that the holding of the Convention here would be one of the best advertisements this city would ever get. The council ought to get busy and make a success of it; and the citizens on their part should show hospitality and entertain the delegates to the best of their ability.

Mayor Milne and ex-Mayor Cousins were appointed Medicine Hat delegates to the Convention.

Gas commissioners reported in favor of vesting the control of the department under the city engineer.

Committee appointed to go into the matter of engaging a municipal auditor, recommended Henderson & Co., chartered accountants of Winnipeg. The auditing will cost $1,000.

Ald. Howson read the report of the committee for investigation into the question of a public works commissionership. It was not considered advisable at the present juncture to appoint a commissioner, but, as a considerable waste of time resulted under the present system, with departments under different heads, full control of construction, maintenance, etc., should be given to Engineer Morrison. If necessary the engineer should be allowed an assistant. The committee further recommended the appointment of a man to act as fitter, his duties to be the laying of all mains and the turning on and off of gas; two meter readers, who should also take charge of the repairing and changing of meters, cleaning and repairing of street lamps and attend to all regulator stations and wells. They advised the passing of a bylaw defining the duties of the engineer.

Ald. Spencer and Ald. McKay were of the opinion that the committee had not gone so deeply into the question in hand as they might have done. If the city's work were to be looked after as it should be a commission would be required. As it was, Engineer Morrison had found last summer that he was unable to give proper attention to his office work as he was so frequently compelled to be outside looking after the work of his department. It would be a mistake said Ald. Spencer, for the Council to cut down the expense too far, sacrificing efficiency. Ald. Howson pointed out that the engaging of an assistant later on would relieve the engineer of many of his present duties. He would take his instruction from the chairmen of the various committees and his appointment, the Mayor pointed out, would be at the pleasure of the council.

Committee for investigation of question of fire chief, etc., reported progress.

The Mayor reported the suspension of Superintendent Porter. The matter was afterwards gone into in committee of the whole and the Mayor's action sustained. Mr. Porter's reinstatement was advised and carried out.

The following appointments were made in committee of the whole: Secretary-treasurer, F. F. Fatt, assistant secretary-treasurer, Edward Roberts.

Notices were given by Ald. Collier of bylaws to be introduced. These will deal with, hawkers and pedlars, licensing of theatrical shows, the sale of cigarettes, the making and selling of bread, the licensing of the businesses of palmist, fortune-teller, etc., licensing of all kinds of jugglery and similar shows.

Referring to the license fee which the Salvation Army had been compelled to pay in accordance with the city's bylaw covering entertainments Ald. Collier moved that the fee ($5) be donated to the Army. This was carried. A letter was read from the officer commanding in which she stated that the fee was paid under protest. None of the Army's entertainments were given for the purposes of private gain, and no license fee had ever been demanded in any other part of the Dominion.

Ald. Howson gave notice of introduction of bylaws covering the appointment of an engineer-commissioner, and the extension of the sewer and water systems.

Sewer Pipe bylaw passed its third reading. Two slight changes had been made since the agreement was up before the ratepayers at a public meeting. The "exemption from taxation" clause was made to apply only to properties mentioned in the agreement.

At the conclusion of the council meeting the Mayor signed the agreement.

Accounts recommended for payment.

Another False Rumor

Conductor Has Not Disappeared

It has been reported that Conductor Bone of the silk train mixed up in the wreck at Sidewood disappeared the day of the accident. As a matter of fact Bone did not disappear at all, unless disappearance means not leaving his address for every minute of his existence. Far from disappearing, Bone gave evidence at the inquest as exclusive reported in last week's Times. He was in the city for a day or two after the accident, and has been here a couple of times since with no evidence of hiding himself.

Bone is a single man, most of whose time is spent in Calgary. He knew that the accident meant dismissal, and as there was nothing owing him, he had no reason for staying here. It is probable that he is available any time he is wanted.

BECOMING YOUR COMPETITOR

Every non-progressive merchant becomes your competitor when you cease to advertise aggressively. When a merchant "slows up" in his advertising, then the merchant who never had the courage or foresight to advertise adequately becomes a real competitor.

Even the merchant who never advertises at all reaps a certain amount of profit from the slowing up process of the live store. Not many merchants of course, who have at any time set the pace for progressive advertising, will be content to take a backward plunge into the company of the non-progressives of the little merchants, the easily satisfied ones, the unawakes. But that is just what the "live one" does when he cuts down his advertising appropriation.

CHARGG DISMISSED

The charge against Samuel Kalinback of Irvine, for alleged cattle stealing was [illegible] charged with fraudulently harboring a steer, the property of John Frisk, abd refusing to deliver up the same (to its proper owner. An adjournment of the hearing was made until 2 p. m. on Thursday. Meanwhile Armstrong is out on his own recognizances.

WEDDINGS

DOONAN—LEFLAR

The marriage took place on Wednesday, the 20th inst., at the home of the brides father, 207 Main St., of Mr. Christie Doonan of Swift Current, and Miss Bertha Leflar, second daughter of Mr M. Leflar of Medicine Hat. The Rev. A. C. Farrell performed the ceremony, at the close of which a wedding supper was partaken of by the number of relatives and friends present.

In the case of the happy couple left for [illegible] west. They will afterwards take up residence in Swift Current.

The many presents of which the bride was the recipient showed the great popularity gained by her during her short stay in the city. Among them was a fur-lined coat the gift of the groom.

McLEAN—NESBITT

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review) Monday, Jan. 18th—At three o'clock this afternoon at the residence of Mr. Monteith M. Nesbitt, 497 George Street, Woodstock, occurred the marriage of his only daughter, Louise, to Mr. James McLean, manager of the Merchants' Bank at Leduc, and son of Mr. Alex. McLean, Q. E., of Edmonton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. G. Wallace, rector of New St. Paul's in the presence of the bride's immediate relatives. The bride who is a great favorite, looked very sweet in her wedding gown of white satin embroidered with pearls and made in directoire style. Mr. and Mrs. McLean left on the 5.10 G. T. R. train for a short honeymoon, after which they will return to Woodstock and spend some days with her parents here before leaving for their new home in the west. Mrs. McLean's going away gown was of brown broadcloth and a mink toque and mink furs, added the finishing touch to a very smart and becoming gown. The best wishes of a host of friends follow Mr. and Mrs. McLean to their home in the West, where Mrs. McLean will be a great acquisition to the musical and social circles of their new home. The out of town guests were Mrs. and Miss Sovereign of Waterford and Mrs Waldock of Medicine Hat.

PRIZES PRESENTED

FOR Y. M. C. Races

A very successful entertainment was given in the Y. M. C. gymnasium on Thursday evening when the distribution of the prizes for the New Year's day races took place.

The chair was occupied by Mr. C. E. Neff. Interesting addresses were given by Mr. J. T. Hall on "The relation of athletics to business life," and by Mr. Benson on "The value of the principle which must be put into athletics." The musical part of the programme was furnished by Miss Eveline Rae and Mr. Sansom, and was highly appreciated.

At the close of the entertainment the prizes were presented to the successful athletes. The cup donated by the Y. M. C., was presented to Mr. Gordon Rebur, (winner of the men's road race) by Mr. M. A. Brown, President of the club. Mr. Neff presented the men's second prize, a solid gold signet ring, won by Mr. J. Todd. The ladies' prizes were presented by Mr. J. T. Hall. These were, 1st prize, locket and chain, won by Miss Marguerite Nicholson. 2nd prize, one dozen photographs, won by Miss Jessie Carle; 3rd prize, leather handbag, (given by Mr. H. Morrow), won by Miss Minnie Kennedy.

The prize for the boys' race, pair of hockey boots, won by Earle Morris, was presented by the Rev. A. C. Farrell, the donor.

Mr. A. M. Wright donated the men's second prize; Mr. J. G. Stoddart the ladies' first prize; Milne's portrait studio the ladies' second prize.

IN READINESS

...The city have obtained options on all the land required in connection with the Sewer Pipe proposition. The matter of the spur track will be brought before the Railway Commission which sits in Medicine Hat on Feb. 15th and 16th, and it is anticipated that everything will be clear for the company to go ahead when Mr. Newell returns to the city next month.

H. G. BAXTER BURIED

The funeral of Henry G. Baxter, who died here on Jan. 12 '09, was held in Minneapolis on Sunday, Jan. [illegible]. The Morton Post G. A. R. of that city had charge of the service. The beautiful and impressive service of the Grand Army was read, the Ladies of the G. A. R. also taking part. The coffin was draped with the flag of his country. National President Mrs. Annie Ayres, of Chicago, placed a wreath upon the breast of the deceased as a symbol of loyalty. Beautiful floral offerings were presented. The interment took place at Lakewood Cemetery. Mr. Baxter was 63 years of age and served his country for a term of 4 years. He leaves a wife, two daughters and a son.

NEW INSPECTOR

[illegible] Plume, has been appointed inspector of homesteads for this district. He will probably move into the city. His work will be the inspection of the manner in which homestead regulations are being filled. The Times has fought for this for more than a year and if the duties of the office are fulfilled as Mr. O'Connor can fill them, Medicine Hat will profit more than from all the industries in sight.

Thirty men turned out on Sunday afternoon to organize a men's Bible class in the Baptist church. Mr. Sleight acted as chairman of the meeting until the election of the President of the class. After the adoption of the class constitution the following officers were elected:

President—Mr. Hopper.
Vice-President—Mr. N. M. Lean.
Teacher—Mr. Sansom.
Secretary—Mr. Ware.
Treasurer—Mr. Miers.
Chairman Membership Committee—Mr. Marshall.
Chairman Entertainment Committee—Mr. Sleight.
Chairman Devotional Committee—Mr. Neff.
Chairman Visitation Committee—Mr. Lloyd.
Organist—Mr. Hulbert.
Assistant Organist—Mr. Blue.

The class will meet on Sunday afternoons at 4 o'clock.

HOMESTEADER FROZEN

In Mysterious Manner Overcome by Cold

Not Far From Several Houses

No details of the death of J. F. Holden which was announced in last week's Times, could be inserted in that issue. It appears that the deceased had gone from a homestead where he was living with his uncle, John E. Holden, and Mrs. Holden, and their family, to Frank Logelin's three miles away, about 4 in the afternoon of Thursday, Jan. 14. At 5 he left to return to his uncle's apparently in the best of health and spirits. Mrs Logelin could see him from her window for almost two miles of the distance, and during that time he stuck to the trail.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Holden were somewhat anxious later in the evening when the young man did not return, but naturally concluded that he had talked with the Logelins' until too dark to return and had remained for the night.

The weather was clear and not exceptionally cold, but at 11 p.m. a blizzard sprang up and continued all the next day. The uncle did not feel worried on Friday as he knew his nephew would not start out in the storm. However when he did not appear early on Saturday, a visit was paid to Logelin's where it was found that he had left on thursday afternoon.

Immediately search parties were formed and the prairie was thoroughly ridden and walked over for three Logelin's hired man found the young days. On Monday evening Mr. man frozen to death lying on the prairie within a mile and a half of Logelin's and off the trail.

From conditions it is thought that the young man was taken sick and had wandered from the trail and [illegible] towards the Logelin house since Mrs. Logelin had seen him beyond where he was found. In his sickness he had been unable to fight off the cold, even with the unusually heavy clothing he wore. Every evidence of the body when found pointed to sickness, and as the evening was clear, and he should have been home before it was really dark, [illegible] came out. He was [illegible] and [illegible].

The deceased was 24 years of age next month, and leaves parents and two sisters in England. He came to this district two years ago, but a year here went to the [illegible] where he accidentally met his death. a Washington State both returning here last year.

The body was interred by Rev. Mr. Clark, on Wednesday in Hillside Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. J. E. Holden of Seven Persons on behalf of himself and of the father, mother and family of the deceased, desires to express his thanks to those who so kindly assisted in the search for the body of the unfortunate J. T. Holden who was frozen to death last week.

New Industry

Messrs, Percy Yeo and L. Lowenthal of this city have gone into partnership in the manufacture of household ammonia and bluing. The new firm goes under the name of The Domestic Manufacturing Co. They have secured a contract for the general hospital. The works are at 500 South Railway St.

"THE DEVIL"

"The Devil" presented by W. L. Stewart and Leah Stoddart at the Opera House last week was a decided success. An unusual number of the best seats were taken, and lots of appreciation was shown. While not a pleasing plot, Stewart, as the Devil under the name of Dr. Miller, made such a strong part of his character that the unpleasant theme and ending were almost forgotten. The devil as a hero is a novelty, "Faust" differing considerably.

Mr. Stewart's little before-the-curtain roast to some ignorant boor who had undertaken to smoke during the performance, brought applause.

GOOD FARMERS NEEDED

In the course of his sermon on Sunday evening the Rev. J. W. Morrow made incidental reference to the crop possibilities of this district. He had, he said, recently compared the statistics of rainfall around Medicine Hat and around Lethbridge. For the former the average over a number of years was heavier by 3 inches than the Lethbridge district, where farm land had how risen in price, in some cases as high as $50 per acre. There was no reason why Medicine Hat should not accomplish even greater things. Three men who had taken up farming in a scientific manner had reaped a high average per acre, last fall. Only good farmers were needed to build up an agricultural community.

Ottawa, Jan. 20—A couple of important changes will be discussed at the annual meeting of the Dominion lifle association next month. One contemplates the making of the first range 800 yards in place of 200 which is considered too easy. A new target, recently devised in England is also contemplated as bringing the rates shooting nearer actual service conditions.

When Longboat and Shrubb meet in their much discussed Marathon race in the Garden tonight there will be a preliminary five mile event between Mike Spring and Bob Hallen. When Shrubb won a relay race in the Garden ten days ago Spring was victorious over Hallen in a five-mile handicap, although the latter vehemently declared that he had lapped Spring and was the real winner. Because of this dispute, therefore, Spring and Hallen will settle the question, the former to have a handicap of ten seconds, as in their first meeting.

Sporting men are inclined to make Shrubb a favorite over Longboat, but the latter will have a bunch of Canadian coin behind him.

The indoor baseball game announced for last Thursday night, did not come off, the C. P. R. team not showing up. The Fire Brigade boys were in force but, after a half hour's practice the game was called off.

Interest in the Good Friday road race continues unabated. Another valuable prize has been offered by a local merchant, C. Ressiter has offered a pair of his well-known running shoes. Mr. Rossiter made the shoes that Sherring wore when he won the Hamilton Road Race and another pair came in third. Who will offer the next prize.

(Calgary Albertan)

J. B. Fleming of Medicine Hat, well-known in baseball circles, was in the city yesterday. He has just been to Edmonton, and is going the rounds to inspire a little enthusiasm into the baseball fanns and organize a real baseball league. He didn't need to do much enthusing at Edmonton, and Medicine Hat is very keen to get into the game again.

Mr. Fleming does not favor the proposed Western Canada league, with Winnipeg and Brandon and the Saskatchewan cities. The jumps are too long, and the two Manitoba cities will not abide by the salary limit.

Mr. Fleming favors a four or six club league with a moderate salary limit and economic management. The league would include Lethbridge Medicine Hat, Edmonton and Calgary and possibly Wetaskiwin and Strathcona or Red Deer.

He favors a schedule which would limit the travelling and believes a better rate might be secured from the railway.

The Alberta clubs learned a lot about baseball management during their one season of baseball.

The Albertan saw several of the local baseball men yesterday on the league question, but to date most of them had not considered the proposition.

Alf. Fidler said: "If the street railway was running to the grounds there would be no question about it and a team would be a paying proposition, but without the railway it would be better to leave it over till next year and start in fresh. If a team was put in this year, and turned out a failure, it would kill the game for 1910. If someone could see the commissioners and get them to put in a line right away, so as to have it going for baseball, then the proposition would be worth considering."

Charles Traunweiser said: "I am not in baseball this year, for various reasons, and someone else will have to take my place. No doubt with Winnipeg and Brandon in an all-Canadian league, with Edmonton and Calgary, the proposition would be more profitable than last time but as I said before I am out of baseball, but if a league is started and Calgary puts in a team, I don't mind coming through with a good subscription."

P. Richardson and George Robinson have not yet considered the game for the coming year but are prepared to do so just as soon as they can get some tangible idea of what's doing.

Mr. L. Morris, the Optomelist, who is to be at Stoddart's Jewelry Store Jan. 26 to 30, is a graduate of the Northern Illinois College of Ophthalmology, Chicago, and holds the Degree of Doctor of Optics, and Bachelor of Ophthalmology and has had a long experience in the optical business.

YOUR DANGER BEGINS WHEN YOUR BACK ACHES.

It is the First and the Sure Sign of Kidney Disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills

cure the aching back by curing the aching kidneys beneath—for it is really the kidneys aching and not the back.

They act directly on the kidneys and make them healthy, thereby curing you right throughout the whole system.

Mrs. Frank Toce, Woodside, N.B., writes:—"I was a great sufferer with backache for over a year, and could get nothing to relieve me until I took two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and now I do not feel any pain whatever, and can eat and sleep well; something I could not do before.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

The School Board

At a special session of the school board held in the office of the secretary-treasurer last Tuesday evening about an hour and a half was spent in discussion of accommodation. There were present at the meeting, the chairman, Mr. W. J. Brotherton, and Messrs. Kennedy, Fatt and White.

The question of providing for the pupils now clamoring for admission to the lower rooms had become a very urgent one, said Mr. Brotherton, that day Mr. Sansom had informed him over the phone, that four new pupils were asking for admission, and it would be necessary for their accommodation to put four additional seats in a room which was already full.

Mr. Brotherton went on to outline the board's handling of the problem last year, when a temporary structure was put up to meet an emergency. The high school bylaw had been turned down by the taxpayers, and the board were again faced with a very serious situation. A room had been rented from the Anglican church and this had given a little relief for the time being. The question now arose should the new buildings be of a temporary or permanent character? The opinion of the board seemed to be that the latter would be preferrable. A temporary building was of little use, said Mr. White and it was an eyesore to the city.

Explaining his attitude on the school question, Mr. Fatt said that he objected to the construction of the new building wholly and solely for a high school. He thought that the proposed high school was far ahead of the city's needs. Mr. Sansom pointed out that, while a high school building could be used for public school purposes, the converse did not hold good. The auditorium (which Mr. Fatt had objected to in the plans) was he considered, absolutely necessary in any school. It would be used for many purposes for the holding of entertainments or the meeting of a debating society, etc. It was the lack of such room that had prevented the formation of a school debating society up to the present time. In answer to a question Mr. Sansom stated that the high school (in which Standard could practically be included) numbered 89 pupils. In Saskatchewan Standard V was now in the high school and there was talk of a similar change being made in this province.

Mr. Fatt was unable to understand why the government did not give financial aid to the high schools. The greater number of the pupils who passed through the higher standards were going in for the teaching profession. Except in such special instances, the speaker was unable to see why the state or the municipality should bear the cost of educating children above, say, Standard IX. Above that the cost of education should fall upon the parent. As it was, the taxpayers were paying the education of the masses who, as a result of over-education, became dissatisfied with their life. Especially was this tendency noticeable in England where the children were leaving the farms and flocking to the cities. They were being educated to such a standard as to render them discontented with the mode of life in which they had been brought up. However, those were merely personal opinions in the matter.

Mr. White thought the whole question worthy of thorough discussion. It was a big problem and deserved the serious consideration of the board.

Mr. Brotherton pointed out the there had been an agitation among the school board on the ground the they did not move fast enough in advancement of high school education. Mr. Sansom stated that the Lethbridge and Edmonton high schools charged no fees whatever.

A considerable amount of time was spent in school plans.

When the building bylaw is brought up it is altogether probable that a plebiscite will be taken on the initiative of the board. Mr. Fatt thought the passing of a money bylaw without a direct vote of the taxpayers was wrong in principle. No matter how the law stood, the board ought to have a power in money matters which was denied even to the council.

SWIFT CURRENT LIGHT

The prices for electric light are to be at the following monthly rates on yearly contracts for residences 1 to 5 lights, 16 candle power lamps at 70 cents per light; 6 to 12, 16 candle power, 65 cents per light; 13 to 20, 16 c.p., 60 cents per light. Offices and shops, &c., 1 to 5, 16 c.p. 65 cents per light; 6 to 12, 16 c.p., 55 cents; 13 to 20, 16 c.p., 50 cents.

The lights shall be on from 5 p.m. till 1 a.m., and from 5.30 a.m. till daylight.

Every consumer may purchase and use a meter, and the meter rates shall be as follows:

Less than 20 kilowatts per month, 18 cents per kilowatt; 20 k. or over 17 cents; 50 k. or over, 16 cents; 100 or over, 15 cents; and a proportionate reduction up to 1,000 k. when the price will be 9 cents.

The price of gas will be as follows: 50 cents per 1,000 feet until the population reaches 1,500; when the maximum rate will be reduced to 40 cents; when the population reaches 2,500 the rate shall be 35 cents; 3,000 population, 30 cents.

At the expiration of the franchise the town may purchase either the electric or gas plant or both, the price to be determined by arbitration.

Distress from Upset Stomach

Take your stomach—or may be you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmicist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangle and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your stomach misery.

The correct name of your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested and you become affected with loss of appetite pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of the stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, billiousness, sick headache, nervousness dizziness and many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or food lies like a lump on your stomach, you can make up your mind at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is really nothing wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

Seven Persons.

(Too late for last week.)

Mr. S. H. Foster was trading at the Seven Persons store. He took in the Stat before returning home.

Both the Bell and Fulton crew are here yet.

It has been a dull week here, too cold for many to get out.

Mr. A. W. Butler who underwent an operation at the Medicine Hat Hospital is still there. He has had a attack of tonsilitis.

Mrs. Geo. Murray and son are on a two weeks' visit to friends.

Mr. Cargill took home a load of cod last Monday, he thinks he will den up for the rest of the winter.

The school officials for the coming year are Mr. Tonberg, Mr. Meyers, and Mr. Nesting. We hear there is talk of a male teacher for the school.

The Fulton crew with 16 men and 16 teams, have commenced work on the Creek at this place, deepening and widening it.

O. Royer and Clifford Le Fever have the cooking job with the Fulton crew.

An agent for the Brandon Nursery was in town Saturday taking orders for trees, etc.

It is reported here that Mr. J. Robb had the misfortune to break a leg this week.

Mr. Mills of Portland, Oregon, is here trying to get up a music class by mail.

Mrs. H. H. Foster, who accidentally shot herself a short time ago passed through here to the Hat, accompanied by her mother, Mrs J. Sudersby, and brother, Mr. Rob. Sudersby. She stood the journey remarkably well.

Mr. and Mrs. David Ross, of Red Rock, were in town Friday.

Mrs. Murray and son who have been away on a visit for the last fortnight returned home Saturday.

Arrangements have just been completed with the General Hospital to have Mr. Frederick Clark and his excellent company of 10 people appear here on Feb. 23rd, in Alexander Dumas great romantic Drama "The Count of Monte Cristo" as this is the greatest romantic drama ever written, and as all special scenery light and mechanical effects are carried by this company we may look for a splendid treat.

The Agony OF PILES

ONLY those who suffer from piles know the misery it brings! It robs life of its pleasure, steals the brightness from existence, and substitutes days of dull pain and moments of acute agony. Most so called "remedies" give ease only for a time, and then—back comes the trouble and pain and misery! Zam-Buk cures Piles! And cures permanently. Proof of this lies all around you. Women and men in all stations of life have proved it—possibly some of your friends! Let it cure you!

Mrs. Wm. Hughes, of 253, Hochelaga St., Hochelaga, Montreal, says:—"I was a sufferer for years from blind, itching and protruding piles. The agony I suffered no one knows. Remedy after remedy proved useless. Day followed day and there was no relief for me—pain, loss of strength, dulness, misery, this was my experience until Zam-Buk was introduced. I know now that there is nothing on this earth like it! It cured me of piles, and once cured, I have had no return of the evil. I would like all women who suffer as I did to know that Zam-Buk will cure them!

Besides being a specific for piles Zam-Buk cures eczema, blood-poisoning, cracked or chapped hands, ulcers, cuts, burns, bruises, scalp sores, ringworm, bad leg, frost bite, cold sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50 c. box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

The Council at Work

Again at the last Council meeting the Aldermen handled some important matters, and showed their anxiety to make improvements where needed.

The matter of most vital importance to the city was the appointment of a public scavenger. This was a necessity and was commented upon some weeks ago as such by The Times. The disposal of the garbage is the most difficult part of the system to allow for. Ald. Penhale properly objected to the dumping of this on the nuisance ground. This is not a solution of the garbage question at all. The danger from the nuisance ground is only less great than when the garbage is allowed to repose in the back yards. The installation of an incinerator seems the only practical relief, unless the public scavenger is to handle nothing but dry waste.

The recommendation that the city pay half and the landlord half does not seem to The Times as satisfactory as the payment by the city of all up to a certain amount of garbage, and by the proprietor of all over that amount. For instance if the ordinary citizen would supply a barrel of garbage, let that amount be the maximum fee, after that a charge. This would mean some settled rate per barrel could be the treatment to all. The man who uses the scavenger for five barrels would pay for four.

The matter of the commissionership was handled with wisdom. Medicine Hat is not large enough to employ a paid commissioner whose work is confined to that. THE TIMES thinks there is not another case in existence where a city of this size employs a commissioner. A competent assistant to the city engineer should enable the latter to do the work.

Much criticism has come upon the Council for their secret discussion of the applications for Secretary-Treasurer. Nothing but praise has come for the wise selection, but the citizens have a right to know the names of the applicants. That the Council had only the best of motives is evident from their selection, but it is so easy to introduce these discussions in private that it is well to consider the matter at the start.

Our Winter Wheat

The Government's report on the winter wheat of Alberta places Medicine Hat district in a most enviable position. The raising of winter wheat has not been extensive here but the the experiments have shown how suitable the country was for it. Next year as announced exclusively in The Times a few weeks ago, there will be hundreds of acres producing the gilt edge wheat, that every farmer dreams of.

The official report gives an average for Alberta of 21.09 bushels of winter wheat to the acre. But the average for this district reached 26.13 bushels or twenty-five per cent above the average. Only one district (on the C. and E. line) exceeded it, and another on the same line reached the same average as Medicine Hat.

It will be well to watch the reports of the winter wheat crops for 1909. It will be a revelation in winter wheat.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Lethbridge is a great booster and as such it deserves a lot of credit. But in its anxiety to boom Lethbridge it sometimes gives impressions that are misleading, to put it mildly. Of late a number of dailies have published a despatch sent out from Lethbridge that a greater flow of gas had been struck at Bow Island than any of the Medicine Hat wells give. Naturally the headings read "gas at Lethbridge." The fact is that Bow Island is only 35 miles from Medicine Hat and was always supposed to be within the gas area. Lethbridge is 75 miles from Bow Island and can scarcely claim gas at that distance specially when that pushing little city has tried for gas twice and failed to get it.

And speaking about gas, the same city is making much of Mr. Grace's figures that gas MIGHT be found at Lethbridge at a depth of 3700 feet provided that the slope remains regular for 100 miles. This is one possible—much as it is possible that it is much steeper or takes a bit turn upward, or doesn't slope at all or changes its grade or does one the thousand things it can do. And on the same reasoning the gas should be at the surface when you get a bout 40 miles east. But it isn't.

Another woman killed in Winnipeg by using coal oil. Only an added value to natural gas.

The C. P. R. Irrigation Company has succeeded in stopping the circulars sent out by a Chicago firm slandering the Canadian West. Damages and a temporary injunction were obtained. This seems to be the only way to deal with those who, for personal reasons, start false stories about the greatest country on earth.

In this connection somebody should get after those would-be wits who always connect Medicine Hat with all the storms and cold weather. While this appears mostly in the States, there is a growing fondness in Eastern Canada to do the same possibly because the cartoonists engaged on the larger papers often come from the States. The Toronto World has the latest in a picture of a freezing man sitting on the top of a sky-scraper, with a be-furred, be-iced individual strutting up and down to represent cold weather. It is headed "Your old friend from Medicine Hat is in town again." The odd part of it is that another sky-scraper looms up in the distance; and yet Toronto has only one sky-scraper to its name.

It is interesting to note the official weather reports for the year 1907, which have just been published by the Alberta Government. That year, which included the coldest months for many years places Medicine Hat in its true position. Taking the winter, spring and fall months of the year, out of 24 places in Alberta with Government thermometers the mean for Medicine Hat was higher than than 15 others for January 16 for February, 23 for March, April and October, 22 for November and 21 for December. In May and September it was the warmest of all. During the cold winter 17 of the 24 places registered a lower maximum temperature than did Medicine Hat.

All of which shows that Medicine Hat has probably the most moderate climate in Alberta and that in ans in the West.

Sleighing is a mystery in the city. For almost a week at the time of writing, it has been warm enough for a light overcoat only and for the middle of the day no one thought of wearing an overcoat.

The writer has lived for twelve years where the Toronto World is printed and is in a position to judge of the climate of the two places. Without a doubt Medicine Hat has a more pleasant climate.

School Trustee White spoke of temporary school buildings as an eyesore. That aesthetic, old-rose summer kitchen behind the Toronto Street school is an example.

School Trustee Fatt voiced the sentiment of every ratepayer in the city when he said that the school trustees should have no right to pass money bylaws without submitting the matter to the people. Even the City Council, which is selected to handle much larger questions than the school board meets, cannot do this. It would be obviously wrong that the school board should saddle a burden of $40,000 on the people without giving them a chance to say yea or nay. The law should be changed. The school board, which is going to have a vote of the people before passing the high school bylaw.

A coal strike is expected to commence in Alberta and B. C. on April 1st. Considerable consternation is felt in every town in the West except Medicine Hat. Itwould not affect this city directly if every coal mine in the West shut down.

Fernie is having a big row about the relief funds. The new mayor is demanding that the people pay back the money, and the latter, naturally, are objecting to it. They demand an account of all expenditure and information as to what will be done with the returned money.

It has been rumored that Aylesworth will be given another office and that F. C. Robinette of Toronto will succeed him. Robinette has run unsuccessfully twice in Toronto. Were the city not so strongly Conservative he would easily be elected. He is one of the most popular lawyers in Toronto. During the past five years he has deserved his popularity. A successful young criminal lawyer where criminal lawyers make a lot of money, and where their standing must be high, he was unable to stand the strain a dozen years ago but he took hold of himself in time and is now an honor to his profession and to himself. He would not be an unworthy successor to Aylesworth.

Borden is again the unanimous choice of the party. There has yet to be heard a breath of suspicion in connection with his character. His strength has developed rapidly and in spite of the rumors spread by the Liberals concerning his replacement the Conservatives have made their own selection of an honorable, strong clever man.

The News sees fit to criticise the Council and the City Solicitor most severely for not allowing it a five cent rate on gas. It claims that it fulfils all the requirements in connection with the bylaw, and is especially severe on the Solicitor's finding that a newspaper is not a manufacturer.

This question of whether a newspaper is a manufacturer or not is as old as time almost. All newspapers claim that they are (The Times among the rest) but the legal authorities have almost uniformly agreed that they are not. The Solicitor's finding need not be his own opinion nor even his wish, but he is paid to examine the legal end of Council business, and could make no other finding. For this he deserves no criticism, and all the comment of the local newspapers will not affect the precedents quoted one iota.

But the News makes too much of the meaning of the bylaw. Under the meaning of the bylaw a manufacturer must have $20,000 invested in his busine[illegible] mean nothing else, as nothing else is under consideration. The News had not $20,000 in its business nor anything like it. Building, plant and all are assessed for $25,000 but not a quarter of the building (in value) is occupied by The News plant, and the rest might be a building a mile away, as far as it concerns the newspaper business.

The Times would be glad to see The News get the cheap rate, but it does not see the propriety of roasting the Council for doing only its duty.

The bylaw needs changing, and it does not seem out of reason that newspapers should have the five cent rate without complying with the special manufacturers' requirements. Both papers expect the greater part of their energies to booming the city for which they receive nothing from the city. This does not seem right. The city would be nothing without the papers. Every city official is paid for his time, but the newspapers spend time and money for the city and for nothing else and receive no recompense. Every issue they devote columns to what brings them no direct returns. Surely it would not be amiss for the Council to recognize this effort and expenditure in some such way as cheaper gas. It would mean, as Mr. Forster says, only $50 a year or less to each paper, but it would show that the Council recognizes the advertising it receives free.

DEMANDS OF LIQUOR MEN

Edmonton, Jan. 19—A deputation representative of the liquor interests of the province waited on the government this morning to urge remedial liquor legislation. Special disfavor was shown towards the ten-hour closing law which has been in operation throughout the province since July. A request was made that the licensing act be amended to extend the hour of closing bars to eleven o'clock.

The members of the deputation were: S. W. Stevens of Calgary, G. Fleming of Medicine Hat, A. E. Cross of the Calgary Brewing Co., and J. B. Mercer, Edmonton.

Premier Rutherford promised their representation would be given consideration.

The Year's Events

(Toronto Mail and Empire)

Taken as a whole, the year 1908 was not crowded with intensely interesting events. With the exception of the terrible earthquakes in Southern Italy, by which over one hundred thousand people were killed and millions of dollars damage caused to property, there were no startling accidents. The Italian earthquakes were the worst disasters of the year but the stringency was overcome and investments increased.

The South American Republics figured prominently in the world's news. President Nord Alexis of Hayti was deposed by the revolutionists, and Gen. Simon is now President. President Castro of Venezuela was also deposed while on a visit to Berlin, and was succeeded by Vice-President Gomez. The Kaiser talked a little too much during the year, and almost precipitated trouble in the German Empire which was deverted only by the diplomacy of Prince von Buelow. The assassination of King Carlos and the Crown Prince of Portugal startled the world. The war cloud in the Balkans was lowering, but trouble was finally averted.

In Canada several important events were watched with interest. The strike of the C. P. R. mechanics ending disastrously for the strikers. Several prominent men passed away, and elections were held throughout the Dominion and Ontario, Quebec, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland. Elections were also held in the United States, when the Republicans won a decisive victory. The discovery of foot and mouth disease led to the destruction of hundreds of cattle.

In giving a short review of the events of the year, which was a busy one, it is impossible obviously to mention every event but during the past 366 days the most important occurrings have been as follows:

On New Year's Day 1908 Joseph Oliver was elected Mayor of Toronto by a large majority, and the power bylaw was carried, as was also the case in other towns and cities in Ontario which voted on the bylaw later. Fears for the steamer Mount Royal were first expressed.

First Coins

On the 2nd the first coins to be made in Canada were made in the new mint at Ottawa by Earl Grey Governor-General. Dr. Phillip Strange died in Toronto. Count Boni de Castellaine and Prince de Sagan fought on a Paris street and commenced the bitter fight which have since been waging in the French courts. Dr. J. C. Siebel, of Chicago, claimed to have made a discovery which would prolong life.

Black Hand letters in Montreal were circulated on Jan 3rd and have continued every day since. On that day one Italian was murdered and two injured.

Maximilian Harden, editor of Die Zukunft, of Berlin, was sentenced to serve four months in jail on the 3rd for libeling Count von Moltke, and the Night Riders' raids in Kentucky commenced.

Ned Hanlan, the famous oarsman, died in his home in Toronto on the 4th, and on the 5th the Pope startled the world by saying that a government must be despotic and tyrannical in order to govern well. Slight earthquakes were felt in Jamaica. Prussia decided to raise a loan of $75,000,000.

The Mount Royal arrived at Queenstown on Jan. 7, after having been a month at sea. The Wireless Spark Telegraph Company succeeded in transmitting a message 2,290 miles without wires. Ned Hanlan was buried on that day in Toronto and thousands attended his funeral. John Lee, the Englishman, who stood thrice on the scaffold and was never hanged, was released.

On the 8th of January all Jewish butcher shops in Toronto closed on account of lack of patronage. The House of Commons resumed after the Christmas holidays. Janoff Pouren, the famous Russian brigand, was captured while digging drains in New York.

The United States not satisfied with verbal agreements demanded an agreement in writing from Japan on the 9th. J. W. T. Fairweather died in Toronto, and the new National Club building on Bay Street was opened.

On the 10th Baron Ito, admiral of the Japanese Fleet, was dismissed on account of a scandal. King Edward decided to give medals for bravery in rescuing miners. Japan agreed to restrict the number of passports issued to Japanese going to the United States. The shareholders of the Bell Telephone Company authorized the sale of the Manitoba system to the Manitoba Government.

Nineteen children were killed in Barnsley, England, in a rush for seats at an entertainment on the 11th. Next day George Manolusku, the most famous swindler in the world, died.

More than 70 people died in Boyertown, Pa., in a panic when a moving picture theatre was burned on the 13th. An act was passed at Ottawa prohibiting Italians carrying bowie knives. Hawlinson's storage warehouse in Toronto was badly damaged by fire, at a loss of over one hundred thousand dollars.

The Court of Appeal of Nova Scotia gave judgment in favor of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company in the Steel-Coal suit on the 14th.

French and Moors engaged in a ten-hour battle in Morocco on the 16th, and citizens of Johnstown, Pa., quenched a fire with snowballs. The British ship Hartfield was lost on the British Columbia coast with 18 men.

The Sovereign Bank went into liquidation on the 17th, and a holy war was proclaimed by the Sultan of Morocco. Henry H. Godfrey, the famous song writer, died in Montreal on the 18th, and on the 19th three miners were rescued in Ely after having been seven weeks underground. Fare Commissioner Chambers resigned in Toronto next day, and on the same day the first step was taken by Canada towards reciprocal trade with the West Indies.

The New Brunswick Legislature dissolved on the 23rd, and the first real blizzard of the winter struck Toronto that morning.

Ouida, the novelist, died in poverty at Rome next day, and on the following day Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy left her home in Concord.

Premier Peters of Prince Edward Island died on the 29th, and on the 30th Sir Oliver Lodge expressed his belief in spiritualism. That day was also the coldest in Toronto for four years, it being 14 below zero.

On the 1st of February the world was startled by the news of the assassination of King Carlos of Portugal and Crown Prince Luiz. The assassination was followed two days later by the resignation and flight of Premier Franco.

The Local Legislature opened on the 5th of February. On the 6th Kaid Maclean was released. Ten men were killed in an explosion in a coal mine at Port Hood, N. S., on the 7th. On the 9th King Edward attended a Roman Catholic Church, the first time such a thing was ever done by a British sovereign.

Burnt to Death

On the 10th a woman and her six children were burned to death at Gew Liskeard, and on the following day the Hon. W. J. Bryan visited Toronto. Nine men were killed by an explosion of nitro-glycerine in Montreal. Count Boni de Castellaine was fined $20 for fighting on the street in Paris.

The automobile race from New York to Paris started from New York on Feb. 12, and on the 14th scores of miners were killed in a Natal mine. On that day also it was reported that the Shah of Persia had been murdered. On the 20th Gen. Stoessel was sentenced to death by court-martial, for surrendering Port Arthur. On Sunday Feb. 23, Father Leo Heinricks was murdered by an anarchist in a church in Denver.

The British defence estimates were brought down on Feb. 24th and amounted to over $300,000,000. The Licensing Bill was introduced in the British House of Commons on Feb. 27, and on the 28th an attempt was made to assassinate the Shah by means of a bomb thrown at his carriage. Forty men were killed in a mine in Mexico on that day.

On the 4th of March 165 pupils perished in a fire in a school at Collingwood, a suburb of Cleveland.

General Stoessel's death-sentence was commuted to ten years' imprisonment on the 8th, and on the 10th King Alfonso of Spain started for Barcelona, despite warnings. Next day a bomb was thrown at his carriage, but luckily the King escaped. On the 16th an uprising was discovered by President Nord Alexis of Hayti and promptly quashed by the execution of several of the ringleaders. The Duke of Devonshire died suddenly in France on March 24, and on the next morning the Drury Lane theatre was almost totall destroyed by fire. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman was reported as seriously ill with little hope for his recovery. West Toronto was incorporated as a city.

Fire and Earthquake

Fire and earthquake wiped out the city of Chilopa, Mexico, on the 27th, and 100 people were killed. Next day two people were killed in New York by the explosion of a bomb thrown at police who attempted to break up a Socialist meeting. Sixty-five people were killed in Hanna, Wyoming, by an explosion in a mine.

The Irish Home Rule Bill was adopted by the British House of Commons on March 30.

On the last day of March the Province of Alberta purchased the system of the Bell Telephone Company in the province for $675,000.

The Royal Commission which has been investigating the Marine Department was appointed on April 1, and on that day Prof. Maclaren resigned the principalship of Knox College.

Thirty-seven men were drowned on April 2nd in a collision between the British cruiser Berwick and the torpedo boat destroyer Tiger, near Portsmouth.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman the late Prime Minister of Great Britain resigned on the 5th of April, and the Hon. H. H. Asquith was summoned to London by King Edward. John W. Cowan died in Toronto.

Sir Henry Vincent, aide-de-camp to King Edward, died suddenly at Manitone on the 7th. Next day the Hon. H. H. Asquith was appointed Prime Minister of Great Britain.

Religious riots occurred at Troia on the 9th, and on the 10th General Booth, of the Salvation Army, celebrated his 79th birthday.

Chelsea, Massachusetts, a city three miles from Boston, was totally destroyed by fire on April 12; loss ten millions. Charles Lindsay, former registrar of West Toronto, died.

Two thousand Chinese were drowned on the 13th, the unlucky day, by river floods. Captain Harbottle was captured in Cuba, after absconding from Toronto, and Senator Lovitt died at Yarmouth, N. S.

The C. P. R. steamer Mount Temple was floated on the 15th, and on the 18th Charles March, a prominent Laborite died in Montreal. Nine men were killed in a dynamite explosion near Quebec the same day.

April 9th was Easter Sunday. Jas Millar, a well-known high school teacher died that day.

Two days later Sir A. Caron died. On the 22nd Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman died. Winston Churchill was defeated in North-west Manchester on the 24th, and on April 26th the village of Notre Dame de la Solette was wiped out by a landslide and 37 people were killed. Twenty-five people were killed when the ocean liner St. Paul rammed the cruiser Gladiator off the Isle of Wight. Storms in the Southern States killed 275 and injured 1,500 people.

Hon. Dr. Willoughby died at Brighton on April 28th, and on the last day of the month scores of Japanese seamen were killed in an explosion on the Japanese cruiser Matsushima.

Stormed the Pass

May commenced quietly. On the 3rd 50,000 Afghan troops stormed the Khyber Pass, and after an all-night battle were driven back by the British troops. On the 4th Indian natives arrested confessed to a plot to kill the Viceroy and Lord Kitchener. On the 7th the new British pension scheme was introduced, and on the 8th the local plumbers strike was ended after a year's fight. The freight handlers at Owen Sound went on strike on that day.

Four men were smothered in a fire on the R. and O. steamer Brockville in the Bathurst Street slip on May 9. On the 15th a bomb was thrown in Calcutta Street and nine people were injured. It was on that day that the Kaiser decided to alter the cut of his moustache. Mrs Humph-

Afflicted for years with a Diseased Liver.

Mr. L. R. Devitt, Berlin, Ont., better known, perhaps, as "Smallpox Bob," has used

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

He has also used them for his patients when nursing them, and is a well-known fact that small-pox sufferers must keep the bowels well regulated.

Read what he says:—"I have been afflicted for years with a diseased liver, and have tried all kinds of medicine, but of no avail until about four years ago I tried your Laxa-Liver Pills, and got instant relief. More than I have nursed different patients afflicted with small-pox, and in each case I have used your valuable pills.

"My wishes are that all persons suffering with stomach or liver troubles will try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I will advertise them wherever and whenever I have an opportunity and I hope that if at any time I cannot get the pills, I will be fortunate enough to get the formula."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25 cents per vial or 5 vials for $1.00, at all dealers or will be mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NOW IS BEST TIME TO TAKE

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the following valuable, though simple and harmless, prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This plaasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

BRONCHITIS

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes.

The Symptoms are tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, and a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color. Neglected Bronchitis is one of the most general causes of Consumption.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine SYRUP

Mrs. D. D. Miller, Allandale, Ont., writes: "My husband got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my little girl who had Bron chitis. She wheezed so badly you could hear her from one room to the other, but it was not long until we could see the effect your medicine had on her. That was last winter when we lived in Toronto.

"She had a bad cold this winter, but instead of getting another bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I tried a home made receipt which I got from a neighbor he found that her cold lasted about twice as long. My husband highly praises 'Dr. Wood's,' and says he will see that a bottle of it is always kept in the house."

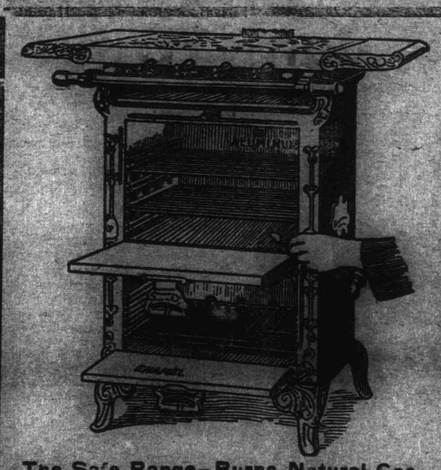
The price of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 25 cents per bottle. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, so, be sure and accept none of the many substitutes of the original "Norway Pine Syrup."

Some Current Stories

In this column will be told each week, (if the material is available), some incident, more or less amusing that has occurred locally. The Times will consider it a favor if its readers will acquaint it with any such incident. The column is purely for fun and no one must take it seriously or The Times will report the interview that results.

Tom Bassett, on his return from Calgary, gets even with his brother Al., in an interview with a Times representative Tom says (or works to this effect): "Cold! B-r-r-r etc. Say I'm glad to get back from that cold country. Why it's so cold in Calgary that a telephone message has to be thawed out before it is recognizable. It's a fact that there was only eighty tons of coal in all Calgary when the coldest snap let up, and allowed the citizens to get out and take exercise to keep warm. Say, I have a cup of tea in my room as a souvenir, that has not liquified yet it was frozen so hard. People go to bed there with their felt boots on, and instead of risking washing their faces in the morning they simply open their mouths to talk down every other town, and there's no face left. I found Al. sitting on a stove lid counting the coal lumps left and swearing to keep himself warm. He wanted to know first thing if I had any Medicine Hat gas on me. He said I was the only warm thing he'd seen since he left the Hat. You'd go along the street and hear a bang. You'd dodge and think how lucky you were it didn't hit you, whatever it was. Then you'd hear another and another and you'd do a step dance ducking and side stepping, until someone would tell you it was only the water pipes bursting. And it was so cold the plumbers couldn't make repairs. One poor fellow tried it and got frozen to the pipe and they had to break the piece off and send him down to High River to get thawed out. Calgary isn't afraid of High River, you know, or they would not have sent him there. You can just mark me down for Medicine Hat solid from October to April. I hate to go where a fur coat freezes.

Last week a prominent man of the city, whose inclinations and spare moments for many years have leaned more to booming the city and its real estate than to equestrian exercise, paid a visit to a small station on the Crow where there is nothing but railway tracks in the ordinary course of events. Finding it impossible to reach the object he was visiting that night, and as there was no Alexandra, or Cypress Club nor even a jail, to spend the night at, he visited a farm house and attempted to borrow a survey or dog-cart or any other kind of thing on wheels. Unfortunately only a horse was available to take him on to Grassy Lake where he could get a hotel to take him in.



After he had induced the farmer to put on the saddle, as he did not dare risk his own experience at it, he carefully led the beast out of sight under the plea that he wanted to examine the fauna of the region or some such production of that district. Then getting in against the C. P. R. fence, and tying the horse to the wire so the saddle came near the post he mounted from the other side and got into th? place many men occupy from choice.

In narrating his experiences on that ride, the horseman can illustrate more positions for easing the strain, more odd methods of staying on a horse without doing any fancy stunts, more groans, grunts and cuss-words, than would last a bronco-buster through a wild west performance. He can tell how a saddle hits a man and you can't dodge it, how a horse won't stop trotting just because you swear at it, how the particular saddle he had didn't fit his peculiar anatomy, how he had not gone a mile before he didn't give a cuss where he was making for, how his horse used to look back over its shoulder and try to shy only it was too lazy.

When he got to Grassy Lake because the horse wouldn't leave the trail, he walked the horse into the town and then had to walk it out again so that he could get off where he wasn't seen.

Then he'll end the story by telling you that he has taken a solemn oath never again to ride a horse or a goat. And that's why he hasn't joined the Masons.

Before the Lethbridge Council decides upon what it will do with the gas well it is waiting for further word from Mr. Grace and Mr. McGregor of the Southern Alberta Land Co.

The Safe Range—Burns Natural Gas

McClary's "Caloric" Gas Range has A "Safety" Lighter

Nine out of ten women are afraid to light the oven burners of an ordinary gas range But the owner of a "Caloric" never hesitates to light the oven burners. "Caloric" has a "Safety" Lighter, which is directly connected with oven burners. Just place lighted match at Safety Lighter, and turn on oven burners. A small flame first appears at the "Safety," and this small flame is immediately carried to the oven burners which are lighted instantly. No accumulation of gas or possibility of explosion on the "Caloric." The "Caloric" is not an ordinary range, but is "different" in many ways, as you can see for yourself by calling at TheNavy Bill introduced at the last sitting of the Mock Parliament, promises to be one of the most contentious measures of the session. A number of vainglorious and highly offensive speeches have been made by responsible ministers of the crown, since Friday's sitting, when the Hudson Bay Railway Bill passed its third reading. The Opposition on their part maintain that the Ministry have lost the confidence of the country and are now clinging to office for their own corrupt purposes. Party feeling runs high and in some cases painful scenes have only been averted by the consumate tact of Opposition members.—Contributed by an Opposition Member.

Your Health

Your health is dependent to a great extent upon the fit of your shoes, so the doctors say. Ill-fitting shoes make the feet uncomfortable and also force the wearer to walk unnaturally, which, by causing the weight of the body to be distributed unevenly on the foot, brings about various nervous disorders. If you feel all out of sorts perhaps your shoes are to blame. Anyway, get a pair of WALK-OVER SHOES and note the restful feeling they will give your feet.

Irrigation Company

Celebrated Engineer Discus

Contracts To Be Let Immediately.—Highest Work Done.—Citizens Ent

After two years of quiet but hard work the Southern Alberta Land Company is at last in a position to assure the citizens of Medicine Hat that the scheme adopted by their head engineer, Mr. A. Grace is a great success. It was to announce this fact in a formal manner to Medicine Hat, the city that will profit most from the great enterprise that Mr. J. D. McGregor, the managing director, entertained a number of prominent citizens at a banquet in the American Hotel last night.

Mr. G. G. Anderson of Denver, Colorado, the greatest expert in irrigation matters in North America, has just returned from a thorough inspection of the system, and, as consulting engineer for the company had given his opinion of the work. It was to present such a statement to the citizens, that was the reason for the banquet.

About 32 sat down to the tables to a fine menu. Music was provided by Messrs. Hulbert Morris Leonard C. Pingle and Dr. Smith, and was heartily applauded by the diners.

Mr. McGregor introduced the speaker of the evening in a few words. He explained that while it might seem late to present such an endorsation of the scheme, it had been impossible to do so before, as there had been formidable obstacles to overcome and without the best of authority he had wished to say nothing. But while it took a long time he was at last in a position to say that within 8 [illegible] is probable that contracts would be let [illegible] next 50 miles of the ditch. They had obtained the services of an irrigation engineer who was second to none, in fact, he was in a class by himself. Mr. Anderson's report had been presented and he wished the citizens of Medicine Hat to receive that report.

Mr. Anderson was applauded upon rising. After voicing his regrets that the life and training of an engineer was not along oratorical lines he explained that he had a few things to say about irrigation in general and the Southern Alberta Land Company's scheme in particular. Taking Colorado, where most of his work was done, as an example he showed how, from a crop of two [illegible] 1880 when he commenced his work the [illegible] agricultural grown until last year the crop was one hundred [illegible] instead of 10,000 acres under cultivation there was now 245,000 acres. In a certain valley and the surrounding country sugar beets, potatoes and alfalfa had become a tremendous industry. 25,000 tons per [illegible] was the output of four great sugar beet factories in a rance of 20 miles. And the river that did the irrigating was of almost the same volume as our own Saskatchewan. A great system of storage reservoirs hab done the work.

Mr. Anderson had something to say about the type of citizenship produced by irrigation. Under irrigation laziness could not exist. Advantage must be taken of every opportunity and the style of farmer under irrigation was the highest in the world.

Coming to the local scheme, the speaker said he was always glad to be in Canada and told a story of Bob Ingersoll's which created a hearty laugh. He was born under the British flag, had done his best work under it, and gave allegiance to it still. He had visited this country many years ago, and near Medicine Hat had stood one day and remarked to a friend that there lay the greatest possibilities for agriculture in Canada. Mr. Grace had got the water over it and from 200,000 to 400,000 acres of the finest land in the world lay near this city. In Canada irrigation was more difficult than in the States as the river channels were deeper and the gradients lower, but Mr. Grace had overcome this by building one of the largest reservoirs he had ever seen—the McGregor reservoir with a capacity of water to cover 360,000 acres a foot deep. Engineers were cold enthusiasts. Their work was to study all chances, but when the outcome was assured they had a right to be enthusiastic. He believed this enterprise [illegible] sound and that it would bring remuneration to its projectors. And he had never seen an irrigation company that did not deserve all the reward they could get. The Southern Alberta Land Company had done a great work and they should be compensated. Irrigation means home-building and the men at the the head of the enterprise would feel that they had done a great good by throwing into cultivation from 200,000 to 400,000 acres.

"Mr. McGregor has had a great vision," the speaker said. "He is an able business man who will see the great work carried through."

Speaking of Mr. Grace he said he had known him for many years and could say that he was a very able engineer and a worthy man. What he had done was a great thing, and he could see the results of lessons lessons they had had together.

A toast list was then carried through. The toast to Medicine Hat was responded to in a few words of hope and enthusiasm for the city by Mayor Milne. He said that Ald. Morrow, the gas commissioner, had just told him that they were considering drilling to the depth of the Bow Island well in order to prove that we had a practically inexhaustible supply of gas.

Celebrated Engineer Discusses Irrigation

Contracts To Be Let Immediately.—Highest Praise from Authority for Work Done.—Citizens Entertained

After two years of quiet but hard work the Southern Alberta Land Company is at last in a position to assure the citizens of Medicine Hat that the scheme adopted by their head engineer, Mr. A. Mr. McGregor introduced the speaker of the evening in a few words. He explained that while it might seem late to present such an endorsation of the scheme it had been impossible to do so before, as there had been formidable obstacles to overcome and without the best of authority he had wished to say nothing. Mr. Anderson was applauded upon rising. After expressing his regrets that the life and training of an engineer was not along oratorical lines he explained that he had a few things to say about irrigation in general and the Southern Alberta Land Company's scheme in particular. Taking Colorado, where most of his work was done as an example he showed how, from a crop of two [illegible] 1880 when he commenced his work there, agriculture had grown until last year the crop was one hundred million instead of 10,000 acres under cultivation there was now 245,000 acres. In a certain valley and the surrounding country sugar beets, potatoes and alfalfa had become a tremendous industry. 25,000 tons per [illegible] was the output of four great sugar beet factories in a range of 20 miles. And the river that did the irrigating was of almost the same volume as our own Saskatchewan. A great system of storage reservoirs hah done the work.

Mr. Anderson had something to say about the type of citizenship produced by irrigation. Under irrigation laziness could not exist. Advantage must be taken of every opportunity and the style of farmer under irrigation was the highest in the world.

Coming to the local scheme, the speaker said he was always glad to be in Canada, and told a story of Bob Ingersoll's which created a hearty laugh. Irrigation means home-building and the men at the the head of the enterprise would feel that they had done a great good by throwing into cultivation from 200,000 to 400,000 acres. —

"Mr. McGregor has had a great vision" the speaker said. "He is an able business man who will see the great work carried through."

Speaking of Mr. Grace, he said he had known him for many years and could say that he was a very able engineer and a worthy man. What he had done was a great thing, and he could see the results of lessons lessons they had had together.

A toast list was then carried through. The toast to Medicine Hat was responded to in a few words of hope and enthusiasm for the city by Mayor Milne. He said that Ald. Morrow, the gas commissioner, had just told him that they were considering drilling to the depth of the Bow Island well in order to prove that we had a practically inexhaustible supply of gas.

"The Ranchers" was answered by Mr. DesBrisay [illegible] it as his opinion that, until this irrigation scheme had been assured the country should have been left to the rancher.

To "The Bankers," Messrs. Martin Crawford and Craig responded each with words of confidence in the enterprise.

Messrs. [illegible] Collier and Stewart spoke for "The Merchants."

The C. P. R." was coupled with Mr Maharg's name. The speaker assured his hearers that anything that would increase the local traffic of the railway was heartily welcomed.

Mr. Cousins proposed the toast to the Southern Alberta Land Co., telling how Mr. McArthur the great railway contractor had said that he believed this district had the greatest future of any part of Alberta. Mr. Grace responded, giving much praise to the assistance of the staff of the company.

Mr. White answered "The Legal Profession." "The Press" was responded to by Messrs. Amy and Terrill.

Mr. McGregor rose to thank the Council for its assistance in their work. There had been great difficulties and great disappointments, but the city had stood by them. He desired on behalf of the directors to thank the Council and city.

Mr. N. Spencer proposed a toast to the managing director Mr. McGregor. He believed Mr. McGregor a great man with big ideas. He had been impressed with his belief in the success of the company, when, as a member of the council he had called on the managing director.

Mr. McGregor briefly replied, giving the greatest credit to Mr. Grace, the company's chief engineer.

The banquet broke up with Auld Lang Syne, and the national anthem.

Small Fire

Also a False Alarm

Shortly after 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening a fire alarm was rung in from box No. 17, near the Finlay lumber yards. The brigade turned out in a hurry but no suspicion of the cause of a fire was to be seen. Meanwhile, however, a small fire had broken out in the rear of Fawcett's Flour and Feed store, South Railway Street, at the foundation of the gas engine used for the purposes of the business. Fortunately this had been noticed in good time, and bursting through the front window of the store Mr. Vic Ready soon had the flames under control. When the firemen returned to the south side of the track the fire was extinguished.

Faulty workmanship is given as the cause of the outbreak. The engine, which was supposed to have been bolted to a solid concrete foundation was in contact with the boards of the floor.

This is the first false alarm that has not been rung in by an accident to the wires. The penalty for such an offense is very serious and no doubt will be enforced to the limit. The would-be joker who does this is either drunk or a fool—a few months in jail would prove it to him.

CONSERVATIVES SEND DELEGATES

The Conservatives met on Friday night in the Club Rooms to appoint delegates to the Conservative Convention in Red Deer. The following were selected: Messrs. Sissons, Fatt, Niblock, Jamieson, T. J. Taylor, Hawthorne, Cunliffe, Cousins, Fulton and Arey.

The Convention will be held on Friday, Feb. 12th.

Acquittal in Cattle Case

Irvine Case for Accused

The adjourned hearing in the Irvine cattle case was held before Inspector Parker, at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, when a large number of farmers and ranchers of that district were in attendance at the mounted police barracks. J. J. Mahaffy appeared for the prosecution, Mr. D. G. White, for the accused. Pete Armstrong, who was charged with fraudulently harboring a steer, the property of John Frisk and refusing to deliver up the same to the proper owner.

John Frisk testified that he was present at Armstrong's place about the 6th of October last. Armstrong had then told witness that he had a steer which belonged to the latter in his possession. He would return it when Sam Kalback from whom the animal had been purchased, refunded the cash given in payment, and not before. Witness had not at that time, or at any other time, asked the accused to return the steer. Armstrong had pointed out the animal in question amongst a bunch of cattle of his own. John Frisk, jr., witness' son, had sold a number of cattle to Kalmback, bearing the quarter circle H 9 brand. He was not prepared to swear that he had never asked Mort to pick out cattle for him. He had made such a request to men living on the north side of the track at Irvine, but never to Armstrong.

Mr. Mahaffy held that in effect the accused had refused to return the steer, while Mr. White contended that Armstrong's remarks could not be considered as a refusal.

Inspector Parker dismissed the case without costs, holding that Armstrong had bought the steer in good faith and had no fraudulent intent in holding the animal.

Poultry Meeting

Association Formed with Interest Displayed

That Medicine Hat is to come out of her trance in the poultry line and not leave it entirely in the hands of a few fanciers, was demonstrated on Tuesday night when a good crowd gathered in the Board of Trade building.

The Association which was formed will be called the Medicine Hat Poultry and Pet Stock Association, although it is not likely that it will ever get such a mouthful except in its literature.

The officers elected were:

Hon. Pres.—Hon. W. T. Finlay.
Pres.—F. S. Martin.
First Vice-Pres.—W. Worth.
Second Vice-Pres.—M. N. Satterthwaite.
Sec.-Treas.—V. Morrison.
Executive Committee—Messrs. Bareau, Lyons, G. Cunliffe, Forster, Donroe, Stone and Jamieson.
Show Committee—Messrs. Worth, Lyons and Cowburn.
Investigation and Grievance Committee—Messrs Morden, Miers and Matthews.

A special meeting was held last night and hereafter regular meetings will be held on the third Tuesday of every month, in the Board of Trade building which has been kindly offered by the Board of Trade. Anyone wishing to join should send the year's fees (one dollar) to the Secretary, V. Morrison.

Don't forget The Times Bargain day is Thursday next, 11th. This is the newspaper bargain par excellence. The Times only $1.

TWO MEMBERS

It is rumored on good authority that the redistribution in Alberta will give the City of Medicine Hat a seat, and the district another, instead of one member for the city and district.

The Liberal names prominently associated with the seats are: D. G. White for the city, and Hon. W. T. Finlay for the country.

IS IT TRUE?

Fry, a member of a contracting firm that has given evidence in the Laird vs. Scott case in Regina, claims that he gave money in Medicine Hat to influence the Council on a contract the firm wanted. Is it so?

Dobson, Jackson & Fry secured the contract five years ago for the laying of the gas mains, Hon. W. T. Finlay was Mayor.

ELECTION DATE

Victoria, B. C., Can. 28.—Nominations for the Comox-Atlin by-election will be held at Prince Rupert on Feb. 8. The election will be held on Feb. 20.

IMPORTANT PURCHASE

At last the beautiful vacancy on the corner of South Railway and Toronto Sts. is to be filled up. The P. Burns Co., has purchased 75 feet of it from W. Cousins and will commence building operations as soon as possible. A fine brick block will be erected.

Police Court News

On Saturday, John D. Simpson was sentenced on two charges: for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, 14 days; for procuring liquor while an interdicted person, 14 days.

An order for payment of wages with costs, was made out against F. M. Ginther.

Medicine Hat Deputation

Municipal Convention and Gov. Interview

A Week's Hard Work for the City

Last week a deputation consisting of Mayor Milne, ex-Mayor Cousins and Mr. J. T. Hall waited on the provincial government in regard to a number of important matters affecting the city and district. They returned on Saturday evening.

To a Times representative yesterday, the Mayor expressed satisfaction with the results of the interviews with ministers at Edmonton, and with the railway authorities at Calgary. The city's representatives were well received by General Superintendent Price, who assured them of certain changes on the Crow section which will be of a beneficial nature. The next change in the company's time table will come into effect in June next, when an extra train will be run between Medicine Hat and Cranbrook. Another train will leave Cranbrook for Medicine Hat on the same day. Mr. Price also promised to enquire into the question of the local, with a view to having this train brought into the city. In regard to the coming session of the Railway Commission in Medicine Hat, Mr. Price considered the railway crossing a fair subject to be brought up for a decision.

At Edmonton the deputation waited on the premier and asked for a donation towards the entertainment of the visitors who will be here in July, in connection with the Convention of Canadian Municipalities. A promise of $1000 was obtained, Mr. Rutherford stating that this sum would be available as soon as arrangements were completed.

Among other subjects discussed with the premier, that of increased railway facilities into the congested parts of Southern Alberta was one of the most important. The government had received a largely signed requisition from the districts west Pass and the main line of the C. P. R. A projected line from Wainwright to the south did not according to the original plans, touch this city, but the premier thought this could be diverted so as to touch Medicine Hat. Mr. Finlay said the demonstration farm would be out under way as soon as land might be available. The undertaking would be handled by the provincial government, who would place the farm under a Campbell manager in order that the Campbell principles might be strictly followed. Mr Finlay said the Mayor, was of great assistance to the delegates in many ways, and it appeared that the interests of Medicine Hat, were being thoroughly gone into by the minister.

A long distance telephone from Taber to Medicine Hat will be completed this year.

Unstinted praise is expressed for the manner in which the people of Edmonton entertained their guests. There was nothing official or formal about their reception and the hospitality of Edmonton is likely to become proverbial.

At the Municipalities Convention the following officers were elected:

Honorary President, ex-Mayor Cousins, Medicine Hat; President, Mayor Greisbach, Edmonton; First Vice-Pres. Mayor Jamieson, Calgary; Second Vice-Pres., ex-Mayor Gaetz, Red Deer; sec.-treas., John Hall, Medicine Hat; executive committee: Laurie, Cardston; Jamieson, Strathcona; Milne, Medicine Hat; Grier, Macleod; Mitchner, Red Deer; Bremacombe, Vermilion. The next place of convention is Lethbridge.

Mr. J. G. Hall was appointed permanent secretary-treasurer at a salary of $200 a year. Hitherto the appointment has been an honorary one.

Mounted Police Notes

Corporal Harper and Coostable Mollison returned on Saturday from a ten days patrol along the Red Deer River.

Special Constable Frank St. Denis left the force at the end of last month. He had been engaged in special work for the past few months St. Dennis saw service in the Mounted Police in the old days.

On Tuesday last at Eagle Butte, Geo. Zatupruski was charged before Inspector Parker under the stray animals' ordinance for neglecting to notify the owner of a stray calf which had found his way into his (Zatupruski's) herd. John Dempster, the owner of the animal in question was the complainant.

Dempster, the evidence showed had missed the calf for the past six weeks, during which time he claimed he had made a thorough search without success. Finally he sent his young son over to Zatupruski's place, where he was informed that the calf was in the Zatupruski herd. Young Dempster did not ask for its return but on reaching home made a statement to the effect Mrs. Zatupruski had said the animal would not be given up unless a payment for feed were made. His two elder brothers then went over to the Zatupruski ranche. They also failed to request the return of the calf, because, they said in evidence, a refusal had already been made.

The accused was able to produce evidence on the stand, clearly showing, that he had tried by every conceivable means to find an owner for the calf. His reading of the brand which was indistinct was, bar, reversed L, D, whereas the Dempster brand is — J D. The assistance of no less than twelve ranchers had been called in to solve the problem. The case was dismissed.

On Saturday evening Corporal Wilcox and Constable Tricker of the Mounted Police, passed through the city on their way to Edmonton. They were acting as escort to the two noted horse thieves, Millar and Nye, who have just been sentenced at Moose Jaw to five years in the pen.

It will be remembered that last fall a number of horses were stolen by this pair from ranchers in the Wood Mountain district. The work was continued at Gull Lake, and the thieves then got across the border to Miles City. Sergt. Bottley, of the Mounted Police, effected the arrests.

Aunt Jemima's Bee

Y. M. C. Concert Provides Fun

The Council Chamber was filled last Thursday night when the programme for the Y. M. C. was presented. Aunt Jemima's Paring Bee consisted of an old fashioned apple paring bee which was used as a hanger for conversation and a programme in which every member of the troop was arrayed in some old-fashioned costume except Mr. and Mrs Fluzzy the [illegible] visitors. Top boots, overalls, old frock coats, flowered vests, various styles of hirsute appendages predominated among the men; the women exhibited gimlet curls, high combs, flounces, kerchiefs.

The programme afforded no end of amusement, many of the audience laughing until the tears ran down their cheeks. Miss Worth as Aunt Jemima had the bulk of the work and handled it all excellently, besides bringing down the house in her [illegible] rendering of "Home Sweet Home" with watery variations. It would take up too much space to give [illegible] performer justice, but the [illegible] Messrs. Sansom and Cory [illegible] rambling performance was spectacular, and will be a big drawing card when the Y. M. C. puts on its next performance.

A satisfactory amount was cleared from the performance, which is gratifying as there were several other gatherings on the same night. The programme was given in The Times of two weeks ago and was followed except in the substitution of Miss Trimble's piano solo for one by Miss E. Rae.

NOT ENTERTAINING

While the delegates to the Convention of Municipalities in Edmonton speak in glowing terms of the hospitality of the people of the capital the experience of the visitors to the School Trustees Convention in Strathcona was not quite so pleasant. After an address of welcome on the first day, the citizens of Strathcona apparently forgot all about their guests. Not a delegate from that city was present at the convention until the dying hours, when they came in to invite the visitors to see the city schools. The people of the University however, made up in some measure for the lack of hospitality among the citizens generally.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

The Government have decided to refer their Women's Enfranchisement bill (to be read a first time on Friday) to a vote of the whole people without sex disqualification. In next week's issue The Times will publish the proposed measure, and a ballot blank which the electors will be requested to fill in.

On Friday the Navy bill will form the principal subject for discussion. The public are invited to attend the sittings of the House, especially on this and the following Friday. The Speaker takes the chair at 8.30.

Engineer Confesses

Howell and Bone to Blame

Bone Wanted—Howell Little Blamed

The end of the mystery of the silk-train wreck came when Engineer Howell, of the silk-train wrote a letter to the jury dated Jan. 25th. It had evidently been arranged to lay the blame on Mount, whose injuries were supposed to be fatal, but when the latter recovered and gave the correct account of the accident, Engineer Howell, rather than bring into disgrace an innocent man explained everything to the jury.

The letter was as follows:

"Medicine Hat, Jan. 25.—To jury and Coroner Hoppin: Gentlemen—When I made my statement on the eighteenth before you, I did not realize that by what I said I was swearing another man to prison, and rather than do that I would go to prison myself. I did not know at that time but what all concerned were to tell the same story. Brakeman Mount's statement is correct with this exception: We did have time on No. 7, two hours and forty-five minutes but when Conductor Bone came over the train about three miles east of Sidewood, he was quite excited and said we did not have time on No. 7. I told him we had and started to look the orders over. The orders got separated, and having a number it would take some time. Conductor Bone looked at his watch and said, "No. 7 is six minutes out of Tompkins." It being a very bad day and not being able to see around a curve ahead of us, there was not a second to be lost. I found the order I had with time on No. 8, thinking it possible that I had read No. 8 instead of No. 7, and at the same time remembering that if No. 7 was on time, 76 could not pass Sidewood. We dropped a man off to flag 7 and started to back up, because if 7 had been on time, a flagman would not have had time to get out, and if we had stood where we were and 7 had come round the curve and hit us you can imagine the terrible loss of life.

Gentlemen we took a chance and the only chance which presented itself. We had backed about a mile when I saw the local come around the curve. I threw the air and emergency brakes and had nearly stopped when the trains met. After we stopped and I saw what had taken place, I looked the orders over again and found the one [illegible] on No. 7. I hope none of you will ever experience such a feeling as crept over me when I found this order. Conductor Bone had lost his copy in some way, and could not remember whether or not he had one. Gentlemen we made an awful mistake, but we are only human. Jesus Christ was the only man who ever trod the earth who was not liable to them and if you have a law in this civilized country, that will put a man behind the bars for making such a mistake, then the Lord have mercy on the men who made them. Hoping that the public and you, gentlemen, will not be too severe on us when you get this, and know the truth, which is the truth. Yours sincerely, W. G. Howell, engineer on 586.

P.S.—I don't know whether you can read this or not for it is a poor hand and I am under a terrible strain. (Signed) W. G. H."

The finding of the jury was:

"That J. D. King and B. S. Porter met their deaths in a rear-end collission on the C. P. R. through the negligence of Conductor Bone caused by his misplacing train order No. 37.

"The only blame attached to Engineer Howell is in backing up in a case of extreme emergency after a hurried consultation with Conductor Bone on the engine in which conversation took place.

"Conductor stated that No. 7 was already 6 minutes out of Tompkins as they were on a curve and if they did not look out it would bring them into a head-on collision with said train No. 7."

The arrest of Bone was ordered, but it is thought now that Bone and Howell left the country when Howell wrote the letter.

WEEKLY HALF HOLIDAY

Another agitation is on foot to establish a half holiday, every Wednesday during the summer months. The scheme fell through last year on account of lack of co-operation, but it will probably be more seriously supported this time.

Heretofore the spasmodic holidays given for special events have been a serious interference with business, dissatisfaction has been aroused by the uncertainty of the number of merchants who would close their stores. The regular half-holiday, it is hoped, will avoid all this trouble.

THE TIMES WANT ADS.

A shoe maker's machine which was advertised in the want columns of The Times was quickly sold in spite of the small demand for such an article. Enquiries came from several towns on the Crow's Nest, but the machine had already been sold locally.

Is there not something The Times can sell or find for you? It is only through The Times want columns that you can reach all the people.

ATHLETICS

(Lethbridge Herald)

That the highly scientific game of baseball will be played professionally in Alberta this year seems very probable.

A league taking in the cities as far east as Winnipeg and as far west as Calgary is practically accepted as practicable by those who have had experience in running professional sporting aggregations of this kind. The places are too wide apart and make the jumps too expensive in railroad fare, and this is no small item in baseball club expenditure. It cost the professional teams of 1907 in the neighborhood of $1,200 apiece for railroad fares. In Lethbridge there is a strong feeling among the fans for the old league of 1907 again, this city, Medicine Hat, Calgary and Edmonton.

With the experience of two years ago a much better start is possible. Each of the four cities mentioned know just where they are at on the question. It has been proved that instead of sending the teams on expensive training trips it would answer just as well to have the players report at their respective places and work out there previous to the opening of the league.

Jas. Fleming a well-known baseball enthusiast of Medicine Hat, has been on a scouting tour the way of feeling out the pleasure of the promoters of the game in some of the other towns. It is understood that he visited Edmonton and Calgary and his propositions were favorably received in regard to reforming the league of 1907. If Mr. Fleming wishes any further encouragement he can get it in Lethbridge. The glad hand is extended to any person with a reasonable proposition for the revival of professional baseball in Lethbridge. Several influential men have promised it substantial support.

The Eastern league schedule has been lengthened to include 154 games instead of 140 the season opening a week earlier and closing a week later.

The Shamrocks hockey team have won the Winnipeg city championship and will now go after Edmonton again for the Fit-Reform cup. If successful they will challenge for the Stanley cup.

On Thursday [illegible] the curling rink the final game for the Vice-President's prize to [illegible] between Mr. A. C. Hawthorne's and Dr. Holt's rinks the former winning by 11 to 7.

Neither rinks had so far been defeated since the curling season opened and a battle royal was expected but Messrs. Hawthorne and Craig for the winners put up such a magnificent exhibition of the game that after the first few ends the game was never in doubt. Their opponents put up a hard fight but it was soon evident that it was their off-night and that they were outclassed.

Jefferies is on the vaudeville stage drawing $50,000 for the season. It is current opinion that he is testing himself with a view to meeting Johnson later on if he finds himself capable of getting into shape.

The High River District Hockey league has been formed. It includes High River, Okotoks, Nanton and Dimbow.

Dorando and Hayes meet in a fifteen-mile race on Feb. 22nd.

C. D. Hillmen of Pasadena has offered a purse of $110,000 for a fight between Jefferies and Johnson to be divided 70 and 30. Hillman says he will also wager $25,000 on Jefferies.

It is probable that Johnson and Langford the other colored pug will meet before the National Sporting Club of London on [illegible] this fight will be more like a championship fight than was the one between Burns and Johnson.

The race which was to have taken place between Shrubb and Longboat on Can. 26th. and was postponed until Feb. 5, on account of Shrubb's bad foot, continues to be the most interesting sporting event in sight. Longboat has been training in fits and starts as usual. He had the usual row with his managers and has threatened to quit but made it up again. Shrubb is such a general that he may have postponed the fight with his usual thoughtfulness and examination of the chances. Longboat has demonstrated that he cannot train long without a break. Shrubb knows this as well as anyone else and may have [illegible] the race not only on account of his foot but in order [illegible] boat a chance to break his training and ruin his wind.

As it stands now the best judges are inclined to favor Shrubb's chance Marsh and Flanagan, two men who know Longboat better than anyone else, say that Shrubb will win. Longboat was beaten by two mediocre men in a relay race in Newark last Saturday and lost money on the attendance. For the first time in his career Longboat had to dig down in his jeans. He and Power his trainer, had an arrangement whereby each [illegible] half the expenses and pockets half the receipts. The Newark race drew only $125 for Longboat and his trainer, and both had to pony up. The Indian got mad and now Powers finances the deal and takes half the receipts.

Battling Nelson and Packy McFarland will meet at the Pacific coast on March 17.

It is now said that Longboat is suffering from rehumatism and Shrubb is reported as over-trained. Flanagan later gives his opinion that Lonbboat will run away from Shrubb.

Toronto, Jan. 28—The Canadian Amateur Athletic Union Championship's committee has awarded the twenty-fifth annual track and field meeting for the Dominion to Manitoba A. A. A., to be held in Winnipeg probably during the exhibition, July 10 to 17. The Ontario meeting may be held in Toronto in the fall.

Will there be professional ball or not? Someone needs to get a large sized hustle on if there is to be.

The Canadian curlers are doing much better in Scotland than they did on their last trip. Within the past week they have defeated the Scotch curling team that visited Canada 6 years ago by 119 to 52; the Midlothians by 207 to 143; and won the first of the three international test matches against Scotland by 112 to 70.

The attendance at the Foss-McKenzie wrestling match on Thursday evening was very disappointing, owing largely to the lack of advertising, not a word of it having been given The Times for its last issue. Those who did attend however, were fortunate in seeing a good match between two good sports.

The match was in the catch-as-catch-can style, three falls out of five, the winner to agree to throw Ivan the Russian, three times in 30 minutes, Graeco-Roman style. A Foss of Swift Current and L. McKenzie, of Lethbridge were the combatants. Jim Pinkerton, of Medicine Hat acted as referee.

The first fall was made to the credit of the Lethbridge man after 12 minutes grappling on the mat with Foss on all fours. Foss was evidently the stronger man, but he lacked the agility of his young opponent. It is stated that the difference in weight between the two is only seven pounds. Foss weighing 165 pounds, and McKenzie 158 pounds, but the spectators found it difficult to credit this.

In the second struggle it began to be apparent that "The Kid," was no match in strength and endurance for the Swift Current farmer, Several times, however, he got the better of his opponent who adopted the same tactics as in the first heat. McKenzie seemed to have some difficulty in keeping on the mat and in one instance, while Foss was seeking for a leg hold, the Lethbridge man backed right off the stage. After 10 minutes grappling Foss threw his opponent, who sprained his shoulder as he fell, and lay on the stage in pain for nearly a couple of minutes. The fall of course went to Foss.

McKenzie entered luckily on the third heat and on several occasions appeared to come very near to getting another fall to his credit. This accident however, had placed him at a great disadvantage. Foss triumphed after 6 minutes by the toe-hold (beloved of Gotch) and half-Nelson.

McKenzie was unable to continue the match on account of his accident.

After a short interval Ivan, the Russian, was introduced to the company. Foss found him a fairly easy proposition, after learning his weak points. At the outset the two appeared to be fairly evenly matched, Ivan, however, was unaccustomed to the style of his opponent. He had one or two favorite holds with which he was unable to make good. He was thrown after 9 minutes.

In the second contest Ivan went down on his back like a lamb after one minute grappling. The third heat lasted five minutes, this also ending disastrously for the Russian.

Foss will probably meet George the Greek, of Calgary, in the near future. Jim Pinkerton, of this city, the referee in Thursday's match, is being urged to meet the Saskatchewan champion on the mat. At present he is out of training, but his local supporters are eager for him to win for Medicine Hat the premier place. Foss offers to give him three falls in thirty minutes.

Mr. McKenzie is only 18 years of age, and a skilled wrestler. A great future on the mat is prophesied for him.

Later—The Times learns that a match will take place between Foss and Pinkerton about the middle of this month or a little later. Foss is to give Pinkerton three falls in 30 minutes. The Swift Current man also issues a challenge to McKenzie, whom he will agree to throw three times in 20 minutes.

SILVER MEDAL CONTEST

The entertainment and silver medal contest held in the Presbyterian church on Monday evening, the 25th ult., under the auspices of the Royal Templars of Temperance is conceded to have been the most successful in the history of the order in Medicine Hat. From the point of view of attendance, all previous records were broken, the seats in the body of the church being almost entirely taken up; and the Templars more than sustained their reputation as entertainers.

In his opening remarks the chairman, Mr. C. M. Fowler briefly referred to the work and ideals of the order. The temperance forces could hope for nothing from the men of this present generation. Rather did they put their faith in the young children of today. It was to the youth of the nation that they must look for the ultimate total suppression of the liquor traffic.

Six contestants entered the lists for the coveted medal, and the evening was enjoyable scent in listening to their recitals and the excellent programme of musical numbers. Of the latter mention might be made of the vocal duet by Mrs. Morrison and Mr. Lampman and the solo by Mr. Lampman, of both of which hearty appreciation was shown. Master Sidney Sleight whose violin solo was the first item on the programme gave evidence of considerable musical ability. Another feature was the banjo and mandolin duet by Messrs Grey and Murray. This brought an encore from the auditors to which the instrumentalists graciously responded. A recitation was also demanded from the Baptist male quartett (Messrs Sleight, Lloyd, Blue and Sinclair).

As is customary in the elocutionary contests of the Royal Templars, each competitor was required to recite a piece from one of the books of temperance selections, published for the use of the order. These were handled with skill and there were in several instances real fire and eloquence in delivery. While each bearing on temperance lesson, the recitation were of widely varied subject matter "The Tramp" and The Vagabond," dealt with the story of the loss of character and of position through drink, in "A Terrible Charge," an [illegible] urderer receiving sentence makes an indictment of modern society for its acquiescence in the existence of the traffic. "The Rum Maniac," with gruesome realism describes the end of one of the victims of intemperance, while "A Modern Cain," is a fervid appeal for recognition of the moral responsibility of each member of society for the lives of his fellows. Another very effective appeal is made in the piece recited by Mr. Roy Hannington. In this a description of a gallant rescue from shipwreck on the Anglian coast use the words of the rescuer, "Save the children first," to point a moral for workers in the temperance cause. The winner of the medal was Mr. H. B. Lloyd. Mrs. Pritchard the Rev. A. C. Farrell and Mr. L. H. Hoppe acted as judges.

In announcing the decision, Mr. Farrell spoke of the twofold benefit derived from these contests. In the first place they were of value for the discipline and education they afforded the participants. The thought time and training necessary in preparation, conferred great benefits on those who took part. But further more, these contests served as means of disseminating temperance principles, so essential to the well being of the race. The presentation was made by Mr. C. E. Neff, district deputy.

At the close of the meeting the chairman announced a gold medal contest to be held in the near future and a temperance play to be given in the Opera House about the middle of March.

The programme of the entertainment is given below:

CONJUGAL BLISS IN 1950.

"My love," mentioned Mr. Sufferergette, "I wonder whether you would let me have the use of my latchkey this week?"

"Latchkey!" bellowed his wife "what the dickens do you want with a latchkey, my good man?"

"Well my love," coughed Mr. Sufferergette, "we are holding a series of fathers' foregatherings in the mission hall this week, when we hope to do a little needle work on behalf of the parish poor. Miss Nancy has kindly consented to come and talk to us about her recent Farthest North trip, and—"

"Great heavens!" roared the irate wife, banging her pipe upon the table to emphasize her words. "Do you not know your duty is at home? Besides, on Monday I've got to attend the Women's Emancipation League, Tuesday, the Sisters of Charity meeting; Wednesday, the local policewomen's concert; Thursday, the Daughter's of Toil lecture; Friday, the Women's Science Research class, and on Saturday, our football club's smoker. Now don't you forget—your duty is at home!"

And so it came to pass.—Tit-Bits.

THE NEW GAME

An article is going the rounds of the press about a new game that has cropped up. It is called "Tickle the Publisher," and is as follows: Take a sheet of ordinary writing paper, fold it nicely, enclose a bank note sufficiently large enough to pay all arrears and one year in advance, and give it to the editor, keep an eye on him and if a smile adorns his face the trick works fine. Now is the time to play the joke, it beats "Pit" and "Flinch" all hollow.

AN EIGHT HOUR DAY

A petition for an eight-hour day and no overtime is now in circulation among the operating telegraphers of the C. P. R. and C. N. R. railway systems throughout the whole of Canada and will be presented to parliament at the present sitting of the house in Ottawa.

The petition cites a number of reasons why the eight-hour day should be granted. The chief argument is to the effect that the long hours which are frequently put in by operators subjects many of the employees to a strain which physically they are unable to stand, and as a result many mistakes occur which might be avoided if a better regulation were in force.

The Meat Industry of America

(Scientific American)

America is the home of colossal industries. The American people have genius for organization which has found expression in certain aggregations of men, machinery, and capital which are among the wonders of our twentieth century civilization. Conspicuous among these is the vast meat industry, which in the range of its operations, from the multitudinous flocks on the hillside and plain, to the fresh meat or canned product as delivered to the individual householder, involves the employment of hundreds of thousands of men and the turning over of money that must be reckoned by the thousand millions.

...The latest estimate of the value of meat animals on farms and ranges, made by the Department of Agriculture, January 1, 1907, is $2,152,320,049. In 1905 the value of live-stock farms and ranges was estimated to be nearly eight billion dollars, and the capital directly related to meat animals on farms and ranges, $10,625,000,000, or five sixths as large as all capital invested in manufacturing in 1904. It is estimated that the farm value of the available slaughter of 1907 will be worth at the farm at least $730,000,000.

In the development of the great industries of the United States to which we have referred above, there is a tendency to concentration at certain cities which, by virtue of their geographical location or certain strategic advantages are particularly well placed to serve as centres of activity. Conspicuous among these is Chicago, which holds the same relation to the meat industry that Pittsburg does to steel. Sixty-four per cent of the population of the United States is east of Chicago while soventy per cent of the farm animals lie to the west of that city. The great east and west transportation lines have their terminals there, as have also the southern railways and the lake transportation lines. The pre-eminence of Chicago in the meat industry is shown by the fact that since 1900 there has been marketed and sold in Chicago a yearly average of over 16,000,000 animals, valued at over three hundred million dollars, and that this number is about half the total combined receipts of the six principal live stock markets of the United States.

The meat industry of Chicago from the purchase of the live stock to the shipment of the meat, in either the fresh or the cured condition, is carried on at the Union Stock Yards, which are located near the outskirts of the city. The yards cover exactly a square mile of ground. One half of this area is covered with cattle pens, and the other half by the huge establishments of the packing houses. The pens are surrounded by stout stockades about shoulder high, and they are laid out in blocks with streets and alleys, in much the same fashion as an ordinary American town. The whole of this area, a half mile in width, and a mile in length, is paved with red brick; and here we see the first notable evidence of the effort to maintain the stock yards in a sanitary condition. The brick paving makes it possible to thoroughly clean both pens and streets, and this is done at regular and frequent intervals. At the time of our visit, although there had been several days of drizzling rain, the yards presented conditions of cleanliness superior to those which can be found in the farm yard of the average American farm and comparable to those of a well appointed livery stable.

Whatever may have been the conditions in the past, it is a fact that today the greatest care is exercised in the shipment and handling of the stock from the time it leaves the farm until it enters the packing houses. The price that the animals will fetch in the pens deuends upon the condition they present under the eye of the buyer who represents the packing houses; and it is to the interest of the farmers and cattle-men, and the commission men to whom the cattle are consigned at the yards that they shall receive the best food and the most careful attention up to the very hour at which the sale is made. They are shipped in special stock cars, in which they are carried as expeditiously as possible to the stock yards, where they are driven to the pens. Here they are at once fed and watered, each pen containing a feeding trough and a water trough into which a stream of fresh water is kept running. The cattle men consign their stock to the various commission houses, and for receiving and selling the stock there is a charge of respectively twenty-five cents and fifty cents a head. The purchase of cattle is made by buyers of whom each of the packing houses maintains a regular staff. To enable the writer of the present article to judge of the condition of the yards and determine for himself how far the conditions of buying and selling warranted the oft repeated statement of the newspapers that the market is controlled in the interests of the packing houses, he secured a horse and took an opportunity to ride into the pens and listen to the bidding as carried on between the buyers and the commission men. It must be confessed that the observations of that two hours spent in the pens left the impression that the competition was keen, the commission men trying to get the price for the farmer and the buyers the lowest possible figure for their respective houses. This conviction is deepened by the fact that the supply of cattle seems to be less than the demand for the trade, and always less than the capacity of the packing houses; that there is natural rivalry between the houses themselves to show the largest output; and that, since the profit of the commission men is at a fixed rate of fifty cents per head, there is a natural desire on their part to sell all that they can at the highest figure; for the commission men who secure the reputation for obtaining high prices, will naturally command the confidence of the stock raisers. As regards the buyer, it may be said that the margin of profit is so small, being about two per cent. in the case of Swift & Co., whose buyer the present writer accompanied during the morning's work, that the prosperity of the house may be said to depend more upon his judgment of the condition of the cattle, and skill in securing the lowest prices, than upon the efforts of any single individual concerned in the business. It is claimed by the Stock Exchange Protective Association, which was formed to safeguard the interests of those who ship their stock to the yards, that the scale of trading morality is exceedingly high, and that an instance of "shady" work on the part either of commission men or buyers is practically unknown. The buyer, accompanied by the commission man, rides into a pen of cattle; looks them over with a rapid glance of his thoroughly practised eye, and quickly decides whether he will buy at the price demanded. In one particular case of which note was made the following laconic conversation occurred: "The buyer: "Six fifty." The commission man: "Make it seventy-five." "See you later," says the buyer, and drives out of the pen, explaining to the writer that in his judgment the market will be lower as the day wears on. We next entered a pen containing what the buyer defined as prime, corn-fed cattle. Question: "What are you asking?" Answer: "Seven seventy." "Make it seven fifty." The commission man refuses to come below his first figure but as we ride out of the pen, calls out "Sixty," and the buyer immediately calls out "Weigh 'em," explaining that this signifies that the deal is consummated and the cattle are to be driven to the scales preparatory to going to the house of Swift & Co. for killing. We had the curiosity to ask the buyer what was the sum of money involved in a transaction that took less than thirty seconds to complete, and found that it amounted to over $7,000.

Before following the stock to the packing house, it will be well to make some general observations upon the scope and purpose of the vast buildings which occupy that other half square mile of ground adjacent to the pens. The complicated organization represented by these establisments has for its object the dressing and preparation of the meat either by refrigeration or curing, in such a way that it will stand a journey to any part of the world and reach the retail dealer in a perfectly clean wholesome, and palatable condition.

Broadly speaking there are three methods of preservation, namely, refrigation, curing and canning. The present article will deal with the methods of refrigeration and curing as carried on at the establishment of Swift & Co., through whose courtesy we obtained ample opportunities to examine every detail of their plant during a recent visit to the stock yards. The art of meat preservation may be described as a process for the arresting of that law of nature by which all animal tissue as soon as life is extinct, tends to become resolved by a process of deterioration into its chemical constituents. This can be done either by lowering the temperature of the meat to a point below that which the bacteria are active, or by treating it with certain salts and substances which secure the same effect. It will be evident at once that the very first requisite in work of this character is that the animals must be absolutely healthy and in first-class condition.

One of the strongest impressions produced upon a visitor to the packing houses is that every possible precaution is being taken to insure the entrance only of healthy animals into the dressing room, and provide for the detection and removal of any that excite the slightest suspicion. This part of the work is in the hands of the United States Department of Agriculture. The inspection is divided into two kinds—the ante mortem, which takes place when the cattle where any animal which by its appearance or any animal which by its appearance or actions indicates that it is not in perfect condition is rejected or held for further examination; and the post mortem which takes place after the killing, and consists in a careful examination of the various organs. The post mortem examination is made at various points during the process of cutting up and is continued on the dressed and cured meats up to the very hour of shipment. The personnel of the inspection corps is made up of men who must have successfully completed a three years' course in veterinary medicine at a reputable veterinary college. The Civil Service Commission examines these graduates and about 50 per cent. of those examined made the desired grade of 70. The salaries are generous and the promotion of men to higher positions is dependent on anility. The force is divided into the head inspectors; the laboratory inspectors, who have to pass a civil service examination in bacteriology and chemistry; the inspectors' assistants, who examine live stock, stamp the meat, seal the cars, and superintend the removal of condemned meat; and the meat inspectors, who are experts in picking, salting, smoking, and otherwise curing themeat. We made it a point to converse with several of these men and found them to be intelligent and zealously interested in their work. They stated that the packing-house management was disposed to give hearty co-operation realizing that the more satisfied the public was of the thoroughness and unbiassed character of the work, the better it would be for the houses concerned.

The cattle after inspection and purchase in the pens, are driven along runways to the dressing floor. The animal is stunned by a blow with a large hammer and hoisted by means of a shackle attached to the hind legs onto the rail of an overhead tramway. While in an insensible condition the principal arteries in the neck are severed. It is then carried forward on the rail; and the operations of dressing follow in quick succession. First the lower joints of the legs are removed, and then the "sider" skins the animal as far down as he can without exposing the parts to contact with the floor. The animal is next opened and the viscera are removed. By means of saw and cleaver the beef is then split entirely in two through the vertebrae. The rough pieces of meat, the spinal cord and other portions are then removed by the trimmers. Next the separated parts are moved down the rail in front of long benches, where other workmen give them a thorough washing with hot water, using a stiff brush from the center of which a hose throws a stream of water against the meat, which is subsequently wiped thoroughly dry with clean cloth. By this time the beef is ready to be passed on to the chill room.

During these various processes the meat has been subjected to careful scrutiny on the part of a United States inspector. When the head is severed an inspector examines the glands which are the common seat of tubercular trouble. At the removal of the viscera another inspector is on the lookout for any indication of abnormality. If there is any evidence of disease, the inspector attaches to the animal a tag on which are the words "U. S. Retained." This tag is numbered to correspond with the number on the stub, which latter he forwards to the office of the inspector with his report. The suspected animal, with any parts which may have been already separated from it, is placed in an iron truck, wheeled away under the eye of the inspector, and locked up in what is known as the "retaining room," the keys of which never pass out of the hands of the government officials. In this room the animal undergoes a final and more thorough inspection, and upon condemnation it is removed and completely destroyed.

Returning now to the sides of beef which have been dressed, washed, and wiped, and have passed the inspection above referred to, the government inspector marks each with a metal or rubber stamp which reads "U. S. Inspected and Passed," and the sides are then wheeled along the overhead rail into a vast apartment known as the chill room, where they are held at a temperature of about 36 deg. Ft, for forty-eight hours. In the chill room, at the time of our visit, some three thousand sides of beef were hanging. Here, during the time the beef is maintained at the temperature stated, it is subjected to a continual circulation of cold air by a process known as the moist refrigeration method, which is designed not only to reduce the temperature of the air, but also to rid it of bacteria, dust, and other impurities. The cooling and cleansing of the air is done in a large chamber immediately above the refrigerating room. Here are suspended, in long rows extending entirely across the chamber, thousands of large sheets of burlap, over each of which trickles continuously a stream of cold brine. The air, drawn in from the outside, is caused to pass between the burlap, where any dust and bacteria which may be in the outer atmosphere are deposited, and the temperature is lowered to the desired point. After passing the burlap, the pure air falls by its own gravity through openings in the floor, arranged directly above the sides of beef in the room below. From the refrigerating room the beef that is to be shipped is wheeled out on overhead rails into the refrigerator cars, where it is hung in symmetrical rows on hooks suspended from the ceiling. At each end of the car is a narrow compartment walled off by boarding which extends from the floor to the ceiling, but is provided with openings at top and bottom for the circulation of the air; and in these compartments are placed tanks loaded with ice and salt. The air passes in through the vents at the top; is cooled; and falls by gravity to the bottom, whence it issues into the body of the car, a constant circulation of cold air being thus secured.

There are in various parts of the country over three hundred local Swift & Co. distributing houses, where on the arrival of cars the meat is wheeled out on overhead rails into refrigerator rooms, from which it is purchased by the various retail dealers.

Many Women Suffer Untold Agony From Kidney Trouble.

Very often they think it is from so-called "female disease." There is less "female trouble" than they think.

Women suffer from backache, sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability and a dragging down feeling in the loins. So do men, and they do not have "female trouble."

Why, then, blame all your trouble to "female disease"?

Most of the so-called "female disorders" are no more or less than "kidney disorders," and can be easily and quickly cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. C. Dupuis, Belleview Village, N. B., writes: "I was unable to do my housework for two years on account of backache. I could not get up the stairs. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me permanently after doctors failed to even relieve the pain. I can highly recommend them to all sufferers from kidney trouble."

Price 50 cts. per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

Protecting The City

There is a widespread expression of disapproval at the manner in which the bylaw concerning the payment of gas bills has been enforced. In several cases delinquents have been shut off promptly, while in other cases bills have been allowed to accumulate for many months. Why this should be it is the duty of the Council to discover. The bylaw is there and as long as it exists on the books it should be enforced irrespective of person, unless the Council itself gives orders to the contrary. And in the breaking of a bylaw the Council itself has much less power than it often assumes. As a matter of fact that body is just as much bound by its bylaws as is the ordinary citizen, but it has certain powers.

The worst of the nonenforcement of gas payment is not the extension of time and consequent loss of interest, nor is it the risk of entire loss. It rather consists in the encouragement given a few lazy, ne'er-do-wells to run up bills all over the city. Several instances are in existence in the city at the present time. One man who is just as able to work as anyone in the city, whose trade is always open to him, but who prefers an easier line of business has not paid his gas bills for six months each more.

The most serious result is not that he owes the city almost a hundred dollars, but the fact that during all that time he has been encouraged to remain in Medicine Hat running up big store-bills on premises, because it was costing him nothing to heat and light his house. At the present time this man owes hundreds of dollars in the city, running bills at every store that would trust him, changing his patronage from the store that at last refused him, to go to another that didn't know the extent of his indebtedness.

Now he is inextricably tangled up with almost every store in town, with no prospects of their receiving payment. And all because the city was allowing him to live on it. The man who can save twenty-five dollars a month by living in Medicine Hat, would just as soon sponge on the merchants here as elsewhere. Had the city enforced payment of its gas bills from the first, such men as this one would have to hustle for his living and everyone would stand a chance of a share of the money made. And he is only a sample of a score. Had a private company the collection of the bills there would be no extension of the time, and the city should run its public enterprises for the people, not for a few. The people are asking why these few are allowed to run up big bills while others must pay up to the minute.

Of course there is the question of actual hardship; and it is only in such cases where the Council should show any leniency. Actual hardship is not merely shortness of money, but inability to pay through special distressing circumstances, where there is not an able-bodied man to provide, or where it is amply proven that the man has been unable to get work after seriously trying. This is charity work, and should be considered as such by the Council. That is the Council in itself should be unable to do anything to suspend its bylaw without the recommendation of the Health and Relief Committee, and every delinquent who is unable to pay should apply directly to this committee who would make an investigation. The matter of breaking the bylaw should not rest for an instant in the hands of the city's employee who attends to this work nor to the aldermen, but to the Council only after a recommendation from the Health and Relief Committee in the ordinary way, and from them only after personal application.

This is strictly business and only in a business way should the city affairs be conducted. The non-enforcement of the bylaw means that the citizens lose the interest, very often lose the entire bill, and the merchants lose hundreds of dollars.

For Real Growth

The Rev. J. W. Morrow, of St. John's Presbyterian Church, talked good sound sense with his religious discourses. He hit the nail on the head last week when he said that good fall wheat crop would do the city as much good as its industries until the country is more thickly settled. Medicine Hat's growth in the industrial line, will never reach what we aim at. A thickly-settled district will provide the laborer, will provide the business for the merchant, which will bring the money into the city, which will boost us more than anything else.

But what great addition in numbers can be made to our district when a man looking for a homestead, has to go out of the city for fifteen or twenty miles. And in a round the city are scores of homesteads held by men who never intend to work them—men who talk loudly about making Medicine Hat grow, who even give liberally to the funds for publicity, and at the same time hold the land that would do more to make Medicine Hat grow than all their work or money. A publicity campaign amounts to very little when the profitable channels are closed up. It may seem glorious publicity and self-sacrificing work to work and shout, "Hurrah for Medicine Hat! Come everybody." But when "everybody" finds out that there should be added thereto "we've got all that's worth having, you can have the rest." the prospective settler goes elsewhere.

The Times feels keenly on this subject. A climb to the prairie and a look out over the surrounding country will show why. The newspapers and the publicity commissioner can shout themselves hoarse without avail as long as a number of citizens corner everything in sight. Is it any wonder the question is asked when ever an industrial project is in sight "Who! is it is working for this but the men who have property to sell?" The real estate man is the best advertiser a city has apart from the newspapers, it is part of his business, and nobody blames him for his work that may appear selfish. This question would not be asked if he alone were selfishly interested. But when added to his class is a big list of citizens who occupy the most important positions on public bodies that are supposed to say "Medicine Hat, first"—when so many of these citizens have corralled the close-in quarter sections, and are holding them safely against all law and justice, is it any wonder the average citizen, whose local standing may not be so prominent, but whose vote is just as good, imputes mercenary motives? Is it any wonder the much desired farmer comes to town and after visiting the land office and driving out to see the nearest homesteads, hesitates and questions. The country may be beautiful, the prospects grand, the surrounding agriculture a success, the location desirable in a general way. On his way to his homestead upon which he must build a shack, must reside upon for six months of the year, must break to the extent of ten acres a year, must fence—on his way to all these duties, he passed through miles of unbroken ground, without a sign of building or plow or fence, except here and there an honest farmer, whose property is an oasis. And he asks: "Whose land is all this? Why is all this land vacant?"

Can anyone in this city give an answer that would satisfy him. Does it encourage him to undertake all the duties of a homestead to know that all these thousands of acres are held by men who have never attempted to fulfill the obligations demanded by law, who are holding the land contrary to law, and purely for speculation, who are somehow relieved of the duties that are demanded of the honest agriculturist, who is trying to build up the country and himself?

The Times does not exaggerate as any man can prove for himself by comparing the list of available homesteads with the vast extent of unbroken land right around the city. Many citizens of Medicine Hat who read this are holding homesteads to which they have no right. They know it, but do not feel called upon to sacrifice more than is demanded of them. Why shouldn't they hold theirs when others do?

There is nothing spectacular, nothing "grand-standy" in the appeal The Times makes to these men, who consider themselves really anxious to make Medicine Hat grow. Give up your unearned homesteads to the farmer who will settle there, raise a family, cultivate the earth and directly benefit the city. Come out in a manly way, and show the city that you are more for its welfare than the sound of your voice.

Give the city A CHANCE TO GROW. Don't be a party to the thing that holds the city back.

That Railway Policy

Everybody is wondering what the railway policy of the Alberta Government is—and so is the Alberta government. About all the country knows about it is that almost every town in Alberta—Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Taber, Calgary, High River, Camrose et al—has been interviewing the cabinet to get its share of what's ever is going. They don't know what is going, but they are going to have some of it anyway.

It looks almost as if the Alberta Government is holding the bait in front of all of us and offering us a big bite if—we vote right. It is an old scheme, so old that it is a wonder any Government would attempt to fool the people with it. The Government has our money and then we've got to promise everything before we get a portion of whatever we give.

In the meantime, Robertson, one of the two Conservatives in the House, is being quoted and misquoted until the onlooker wonders how he ever got time to say as much as he is said to have said. Even the Liberal papers disagree as to what he said, the difference being the relative imagination of the papers. Any old thing is put into Robertson's mouth and it is then dubbed, "the policy of the Conservative party in Alberta." In addition to not knowing its own policy, the Liberal party of Alberta is establishing the Conservative policy. There is only one openly Conservative daily in Alberta, and there are four Liberal dailies, so that the noise of the latter drowns the former.

But the public will not be led very far astray, since the Liberal reports contradict each other. The Conservative policy will be established at the convention in Red Deer on Feb. 12th.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Taber Free Press says:—"Had the credit system been in vogue for the past year it is doubtful if a business firm in town could have stood the strain. As it is, the merchants are better off and the people are a long way better off. The cash system is a fixture in Taber."

There's something wrong when each Liberal member of the Dominion House represents only 4411 votes, while each Conservative represents 6,630 votes. It's easy to crow about 50 majority on that basis.

A most important decision was given in Edmonton when employees of the United Collieries Company sued two of the directors for wages due to them. It was a test case and the decision was that laborers or wage earners may collect wages due them from any or all of the directors of a joint stock company in the event of that company failing.

There doesn't seem to be a great dearth of city engineers. No fewer than eighty applied for the position in Calgary.

W. L. M. King, the Deputy Minister of Labor, who is slated for the new portfolio of Minister of Labor, is a young man who believes in his own ability. His annual report signed by himself is largely made up of complimentary references to Mr. King.

After all the general censure that is aimed at the C. P. R. on every possible pretext, this railway has it over the C. N. R., and G. T. P., by several points in many ways. Now when the Alberta and Saskatchewan Governments are offering the big bonuses for railway construction the C. P. R. calmly announces that it is going to expend thirty millions on railways, and no Government aid will be requested. The road that shows its belief in the country by doing its own building deserves more encouragement than the road that says: "You pay for it all, and we're willing to take the profits."

The Times for Job Printing

The value of newspaper advertising as compared with any other kind was proven recently in Calgary where the Robinson & Co sale, drew the biggest crowds that ever attended a sale there, and every cent for advertising was spent in the newspapers.

Speaking of advertising, a good example of the futility in the end of attempting to succeed without advertising has cropped up in Toronto. A millinery firm, which has been dribbling along for fifteen years went to the wall. The writer had had some experience with this firm in a newspaper way. As one of the oldest firms in the business it steadily refused to advertise, giving as a reason that it did not need to spend money in that way. It was such an old firm everybody knew it anyway. Other millinery firms opened up, advertised, and did the business, gradually encroaching on the trade of this old-fashioned firm. Still no advertising was done—and the creditors met last week.

No matter how old or well-known a firm may think itself, it is the firm that advertises—that won't let the people forget it for an instant—which is going to draw the business.

The store that does not advertise seems to lack confidence in its stock or establishes its backwardness. Advertising and up-to-date stock and business methods go hand in hand and the people know it.

WESTERN FARMERS' HANDBOOK

In the history of newspaper premiums it is questionable if ever such a valuable present has been given as that which is now being issued by the Winnipeg Telegram under the name of the "Western Farmers' Handbook." It is a volume of 208 closely printed pages, dealing with every day legal, veterinary, and household difficulties, and a perusal of its pages will save much worry and trouble in the office, the home, and on the farm.

With regard to the legal section, this is copyright and was originally published at $1.50 per copy and it is worth every cent. In addition to the copyright portion there is much which countless queries to The Telegram has shown that farmers and merchants are continually wanting to know. It is up to date, and includes the last land act passed by the Dominion Government. The various sections have been rearranged, so as to make the section more easy of reference by the busiest man. In addition to this rearrangement, an exhaustive index has been added, by means of which it is possible to turn immediately to the particular matter over which there is a difficulty.

The veterinary section is of great use to the farmer and breeder. There is a full table of remedies and antidotes, and just what has been done in an emergency with horses, cows, pigs and sheep. Particularly useful are the hints on the stable, the manger, and the breeding of pigs, a department in which the western farmer has a great scope for his energies.

The household department is replete with information for the careful housewife, giving full and explicit instructions for the preparations of all manner of dishes both fancy and homely. Some of the recipes are by the best cooks Great Britain has ever trained, and there is also one by an imperial chef. If a loaf of bread is required in a hurry, there are full directions, and the same applies to the making of a cake, the preparation of a pudding, the constituents of a succulent jelly, and the cooking of any and every joint. The newly married woman will find useful hints on etiquette, and the arrangements of parties, the duties of hostess, and numberless minor details which are apt to confuse the young wife. There are also household hints, medical recipes that our grandmothers valued, simple but efficacious remedies.

Lastly there are tables of weights and measures, tables of compounding wages, interest, values of grain at various prices per bushel, and many others that are always being found necessary in business.

The preparation of the book has involved much time and expense, and as the issue is limited those desirous of securing a copy should lose no time in forwarding to The Times $2.75, for The Times, Daily Telegram and Farmers Handbook or $2 for The Times, Weekly Telegram and Farmers' Handbook. Already the demand has so far exceeded our anticipations that the supply is rapidly becoming exhausted.

HISTORY OF CANADIAN JOURNALISM

Everyone who is interested in the history of Canada will welcome a new book, "A History of Canadian Journalism" which has just been issued. The volume, which furnishes in permanent form the first comprehensive history of the press in Canada, covers a great deal of ground not dealt with in any other extant publication. The reader, as he peruses its pages, is constantly surprised to find in it hitherto unpublished sidelights on the careers of our public men, as well as well as full and first hand information regarding our great journalists and our great newspapers. Altogether, it is one of the most valuable historical works which has appeared in Canada.

Not only is the matter fresh and interesting and important, but the style throughout is quite equal to the best. This will be better appreciated when it is stated that the contributors include Goldwin Smith, Dr. A. H. U. Colquhoun, Dep. Minister of Education for Ontario; John Reade, F. R. S. C., Montreal Gazette; Arthur Wallis, Toronto Mail and Empire; J. E. B. McCread, Charlottetown Guardian; J. P. Rob, Huntingdon Gleaner; J. K. McInnis, Regina Standard; J. W. Bengough, Toronto, and R. E. Gosnell, Vancouver.

One portion of the book presents an exceedingly interesting history of the Canadian Press Association, in honor of whose 50th birthday the book was first projected, with other sections devoted to the press in each of the Provinces.

The book includes 268 pages with over 40 half-tone portraits of prominent journalists. Typographically the book is very pleasing with its large type, heavy paper with rough edges and gilt top and the handsome cloth binding. Orders may be sent in care of John B. Bone, Secretary Canadian Press Association, Daily Star, Toronto. The Price is $2.00 a copy, postage 15 cents extra.

Great Men Who Have Proved Zam-Buk.

Scientist, Analyst, Magistrate and War Correspondent all Testify

Men and women great in point of knowledge, position and experience, say that Zam-Buk stands superior to all other healing substances. Read the opinions of the following eminent men:—

Mr. C. E. Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N. S., a magistrate, a School Commissioner, and Baptist Deacon, says: "Zam-Buk cured me of eczema on my ankle, which had defied every other remedy during twenty years. It also cured me of piles; and I take pleasure in recommending it to my fellow-men."

Mr. Frank Scudamore, the famous war correspondent, who has gone through twenty-nine battles, and whose dispatches during the Boer War were so eagerly read from coast to coast in Canada says:—

"Owing to the poisonous dye from an undergarment penetrating a slight scratch, my legs broke out into ulcers. At one time I had seventeen deep holes in my left leg, into each of which I could put my thumb; and I had fourteen similar ulcers on my right leg. Remedy after remedy failed to heal those and I was well nigh worn out with pain and lack of sleep. Zam-Buk was introduced, and I am glad to say that it gave me speedy relief. A few weeks' treatment resulted in a perfect cure of all the ulcers."

Dr. Andrew Wilson, whose reputation as a scientist is world-wide, in a book recently published ("Homely Talks on First Aid") says:— "Zam-Buk may be relied upon as an antiseptic dressing which requires no preparation and has the particular advantage of possessing unique healing properties."

Mr. W. Lascelles-Scott, the famous analyst to the Royal Commission for Victoria, says:— "I have no hesitation in certifying the entire purity of Zam-Buk. It is of great healing power for open wounds or injuries."

So one could go on quoting authority after authority, all of the opinions, based on personal tests, that Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cuts, burns, scratches, cold-sores, chapped hands, ulcers, scalp sores, ring-worm blood-poisoning, and eczema. It is also used extensively for piles, for which it is without equal. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box; 3 for $1.25; or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. You are warned against harmful imitations.

cured Mrs. K. E. Bright, Burnley, Ont. She writes: "I was greatly troubled, for six years, with my heart and shortness of breath. I could not walk eighty rods without resting four or five times in that short distance. I got so weak and thin I only weighed seventy-three pounds. I decided at last to take some of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking eight boxes I gained in strength and weight, and now weigh one hundred and thirteen pounds, the most I ever weighed in my life. I feel well and can work as well as ever I did, and can heartily thank Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for it all."

Fireless Cookers

There are few kitchens now that do not boast some kind of a fireless cooker, home-made or manufactured. Although the knowledge of fireless cookery only reached American housekeepers recently it is by no means a modern method.

It is generally conceded that Norway was the birthplace of this wonderful and easy way of cooking. Many Norwegians, peasants most cooked (even in our grandmother's day) almost all their foods by starting them over the fire, then packing them in a hay-box or even in the family bed. The women then were free to go to the fields, sure of finding a hot dinner on their return. Danish women so fond of an all day jaunt in the country remember the fireless box of their childhood days. On starting for a picnic it was filled with good things and supplied hot palatable dishes at the end of the drive.

The official entry of fireless cooking in America dates back some six years ago. An army report came to Washingtoon from Germany, stating that food for the soldiers had been cooked with great success without fire. Orders were sent from headquarters to Fort Riley, Kansas, where there is an army training school for bakers, that experiments be tried along these lines.

The fireless cooker saves money, time and fuel. It does away with odors in the kitchen, and increases the digestibility and palatableness of many foods.

The fireless cooker is a friend of all housekeepers, of the invalid, the camper-out, the summer cottager, the working woman and the woman living in rooms. The old cumbrous hay boxes have been replaced by neat, compact cookers. There are several kinds now to be had of different kinds, materials and shapes There are fireless cookers of polished wood tightly packed with non-conducting material and furnished with aluminum covers. There are fireless of shining metal, well packed between the walls with heavy covers that clamp closely. There is also a cooker that boasts a heated plate, that adds considerably to the high temperature of the foods. — The Housekeeper.

A Railway Case

Trouble Betwen Union and Non-Union Men

Great interest was evinced in a case, heard before Mr. Kealy, on Wednesday last, when George Campie was charged with assault by Henry Johannasson a workman in the C. P. R. shops. The hearing of the evidence took up the greater part of the day, and a large number of witnesses were examined. Most of the seats in the court room were occupied by C. P. R. men throughout the hearing.

Henry Johanasson, the complainant, swore that on the evening of Friday, the 22nd inst., about 22-20 o'clock, he was assaulted by George Campie, in the cabin of an engine stationed in the C. P. R. roundhouse. Wm. G. Ruggles (who it will be remembered, had himself charged Campie with assault on the previous Saturday, the case being dismissed by the magistrate, owing to conflicting evidence) testified on oath, that he had witnessed the alleged attack.

The next witness to be called was Mr. Mallinson, locomotive foreman at the C. P. R. shops, who gave evidence as to an investigation held by him on Saturday night the 23rd inst. into the cause of the trouble of the previous evening. He had examined a number of the men, including Perkins and Johannasson.

Geo. Westwood, boiler-maker foreman was then called. He had been present at the investigation and heard the conversation which took place. Shortly after Perkins' entering the room Mallinson had asked him to state what he knew about the trouble in a cabin, in which Campie had been implicated "a few nights ago." Perkins first denied all knowledge of the affair but after further questioning admitted that he had been up in the cabin for about 15 seconds. Mallinson then asked him to state who the man was who had been fighting with Johannasson. Perkins said he did not know. Mallinson then said, "You do know, and I require that man's name from you or else you quit the company's service." There was silence for two or three minutes and then Perkins said "You have named the right man, Mr Mallinson." Mallinson said. "That's all we require of you, Charlie, and this is between you and myself." As Perkins opened the door to leave the room he turned and said, "I am sorry that I have to give a fellow workman away."

Mr. Mahaffy, to witness: "Are there any non-union men employed in the shops?"

Witness: "Yes, two Ruggles boys, and Johannasson."

"How do they get along together?"

Witness added that there had been more or less trouble between the union and non-union men during the last three or four months.

C. L. Shaw, C. P. R. machinist, was the first witness called for the defense. He had known George Campie for about two years. Johannasson he had seen working around the shop. Witness was at his own home all Friday evening, when a card party was given. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Geo Campie, who did not leave the house between the hours of 9 and 11-30 or 12 o'clock midnight. Witness had not noticed any marks or scars on the face of his friend, who was in his usual good spirits. Campie did not smell of liquor nor was there anything to indicate that he had been drinking. Witness saw the accused again on Sunday morning when he merely passed the time of day. He did not notice any marks on his friend's face.

Mrs. Shaw's evidence on the stand was corroborative of that of her husband. The card party started shortly after 8 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Campie came in between 8.30 and 9, and Mr. Snowden and Mr. Kingsley came in later.

J. Snowden said that he was in town till 9 o'clock on the evening of Friday, Jan. 22. Shortly afterwards he went to Mr. Shaw's where among the guests he met Mr. and Mrs. Campie. The latter did not leave the house till about midnight. No marks were noticeable on Campie's face. Cross-examined witness stated that there had been lack of harmony between the union and non-union men working in the shops but he could say with confidence that there had been no trouble which had not been caused by the non-union men.

Mrs. Geo. Campie testified to being present with her husband at the card party at Mr. Shaw's house on the night in question.

Mr. Kealy dismissed the case, stating that as perjury had been committed he would submit the evidence to the attorney-general.

Campie was employed in the C. P. R. roundhouse before the strike and he worked there for about ten days after the settlement. He left it is said because he objected to working alongside of the non-union men.

SHEEP HUSBANDRY IN CANADA

A timely bulletin entitled "Sheep Husbandry in Canada," by Mr. J. B. Spencer, B. S. A., has been issued by the Live Stock Branch at Ottawa. Mr. Spencer has taken up the task from practically all the standpoints that concern the sheep raiser in whatever province he may dwell. After describing the ideal mutton sheep he gives a brief, though comprehensive, history and description of eleven of the popular breeds. Next he covers in a practical way the establishing of a commercial breeding flock. Mutton production as a highly specialized industry is dealt with by reviewing the methods in vogue in Great Britain. Following this are appropriate described the various systems of finishing for the market in Canada. Nor does the treatment of the subject stop when the animal is fattened for it is followed right through the butchering and curing processes until the joint is ready for the cook. Then come sections on handling dipping, weathering, feeds and feeding, housing, weed destroying, enemies, etc., each subject exhaustively treated according to the practice of the most successful shepherds.

Evidently recognizing that the industry differs in the various provinces by reason of climatic and other conditions the author treats each separately. The section devoted to diseases will appeal to thousands of sheepmen. This chapter covering upwards of twenty of the common ailments, and accidents, was personally prepared by the Live Stock Commissioner who is also Veterinary Director General. As a practical home doctor book for the flock master this work will undoubtedly become a helpful standby. A review of the wool industry concludes the text of the work of more than 125 pages of reading matter. The work is profusely illustrated by some 60 beautiful plates, illustrations printed in sepia and a number of line drawings. This attractive comprehensive and practical "Bulletin, No. 12, of the Live Stock Branch" is ready for free distribution to all those interested in the sheep or its products who care to apply for it to J. G. Rutherford Live Stock Commissioner, Ottawa.

INDIGESTION IS ENDED FOREVER

Why not start now today, and forever rid yourself of Stomach trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

Here is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapepsin works, your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be

BLOOD DISEASES
Guaranteed Cured or No Pay.

If you ever had any contracted or hereditary blood disease, you are never safe until the virus or poison has been removed from the system. You may have had some disease years ago, but now and then some symptom alarms you. Some poison still lurks in your system. Can you afford to run the risk of more serious symptoms appearing as the poison multiplies? Beware of mercury or mineral drugs used indiscriminately—they may ruin the system. Twenty years experience in the treatment of these diseases enables us to prescribe specific remedies that will positively cure all blood diseases of the worst character, leaving no bad effects on the system. Our New Method Treatment will purify and enrich the blood, heal up ulcers, clear the skin, remove bone pains, fallen out hair will grow in, and swollen glands will return to a normal condition, and the patient will feel and look like a different person. All cases we accept for treatment are guaranteed a complete cure if instructions are followed.

Reader if in doubt as to your condition, you can consult us FREE OF CHARGE. Beware of incompetent doctors who have no reputation or reliability. Drs. K. & K. have been established over 20 years.

Cranbrook Herald.—We have been going over our subscription list the past week and find quite a number who are owing us from $2 to $10. As we have a list amounting to over 1,000, it can be easily seen that the delinquent subscriptions amount to several thousand dollars. Statements have been sent to most of our subscribers and a number of them have been kind enough to respond, but there are many of them who have failed to do so. What is the best thing to do with those who refuse to pay is a question in our mind and we have about decided to make out a list of those who owe us money for the Herald and print the same. This should be a reminder and perhaps by doing this we can get what is due us on subscriptions. If we decide to do this, we will print the list some time next month, as we need the money.

CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA

As is well known, this troublesome complaint arises from over-eating, the use of too much rich food, neglected constipation, lack of exercise, bad air, etc.

The food should be thoroughly chewed, and never boiled or swallowed in haste, stimulants must be avoided and exercise taken if possible.

A remedy which has rarely failed to give prompt relief and effect permanent cures, even in the most obstinate cases, is

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

It acts by regulating and toning the digestive organs, removing acidiveness and increasing the appetite and restoring health and vigor to the system.

Mr. Amos Sawler, Gold River, N.S., writes:—"I was greatly troubled with dyspepsia, and after trying several doctors to no effect I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters and I think it is the best medicine there is for that complaint."

NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

(From our own correspondents.)

Seven Persons.

The Bell crew having completed the C. P. R. reservoir at this place moved to Brooks Friday.

Mr. A. W. Butler has returned home after a six weeks' siege of sickness at the hospital.

Mr. Reid and Major Hollinger were in town this week.

Two cars with settlers effects arrived Thursday.

Preaching service was held both morning and evening at this place Sunday.

Mrs. James Murray and niece, Miss Jean Murray, went to the Hat on Friday.

Mr. H. H. Foster and his two little daughters went to the Hat to join their mother preparatory to going to Winnipeg.

The Fulton crew are doing good work here, during this fine weather, widening and deepening the river.

Mr. J. A. Young took the train for Lethbridge last Wednesday.

Mesdames, Royer and Le Fever are conducting the millinery department of the Fulton Bros.

And now it is Mr. W. Strand who is passing around the cigars with a broad smile on his face—Mother and baby girl doing well at the Medicine Hat hospital.

Seven Persons expects a big boom this spring and is already experiencing the first effects of it.

Rev. McLaren was a Seven Persons caller this week, also visiting the towns west of us.

Mr. Frank Kraft called here Sunday.

Mr. Mullen who has taken Mr. Butler's place as operator during his sickness, expects to leave here in about a week. Mr. Mullen has made many friends here who will regret his going away.

Red Cliff

Mr. Esten Kline, Miss Kjas and Mr. and Mrs. Crouch spent Sunday evening at Rev. Brubaker's.

Mrs. Cuerhaltz was a Medicine Hat visitor one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Crouch were in Medicine Hat Thursday.

Rev. Brubaker spent a few days of this week at his farm across the river.

Mr. R. Warner was in the Hat Saturday night.

Carold Masters and Miss Cora Brubaker drove over to Bentink Saturday eve and spent Sunday with Ebner Brubaker and wife.

Everybody seems delighted at the recent change in the weather, and many wishes for a continuance of the present fine weather have been expressed.

Red Cliff is not so very far behind the times either all since we now have a local telephone and there are a great many towns larger than Red Cliffe that cannot boast as much.

The coal trade has been quite brisk here since the recent drop in the weather and it looks as though some people were getting ready for a rainy day after the rainy day has passed.

Rowell notes arrived to late for this week.

Some Current Stories

In this column will be told each week, (if the material is available), some incident, more or less amusing that has occurred locally. The Times will consider it a favor if its readers will acquaint it with any such incident. The column is purely for fun and no one must take it seriously or The Times will report the interview that results.

When the men who admire the birds that make omelets and stage fruit possible, met last week, they recognized the merits of the animal by deciding to call themselves the Medicine Hat Poultry and Pet Stock Association. Somebody suggested the more succinct and usable cognomen of Hen Club, but a member thoughtfully rebuked him as not showing appreciation for the Rooster, whose place in the feathered tribe is not confined to waking people up early or creating neighborly rows by licking the neighbors rooster. The member who proposed the name read it off a sheet of foolscap, and found it necessary to refer to the sheet ever time he had to use the euphonious and descriptive title.

In explanation of his selection of the name to include pet stock, he said that there were many people in the district who didn't keep poultry but who were interested in other small stock and had felt the necessity of an Association to protect their interests. For instance there were a few who had "snakes" off and on, and the owners had often wished to do more for their pets than could be done by themselves alone. Then there was Mr. Morrey whose stock sometimes did not include hens, but who was just as watchful for them as for cows and dogs. He would no doubt be interested in knowing how to make hens and other animals lay long enough for him to get to them. Then of course, they would want several men as members, who could qualify only on a dog or a canary. Some of the members, too considered their special birds more in the light of pet stock than as ordinary poultry. They didn't care whether their birds laid eggs or not; in fact they'd rather they didn't, and during the process of "laying" had invented schemes for fanning the bird, and for rubbing it down after the exertion.

The election brought out as Hon. Pres. Hon. W. T. Finlay, because he owns a lumber yard, and as M. P. P. might be able to reduce the grade of No. 1 Northern so that it can be used as chicken feed. E. S. Martin, was the unanimous choice as President so that a big institution can be secured to properly protect the big profits that will come from the year's work. A bank, too, can be depended upon to raise interest in any old thing. Messrs Worth and Storry were officialized because their business suggests it—they are conversant with the tailor and other part of the bird. They can also provide cheaply the short pants in hot weather, which the birds in which the members invest must have. Mr. Conroy, as agent of the Singer, will naturally represent the canary side of the pet stock part of the name. There is a remarkable absence of the board of the suggestive name of Henry, although an attempt to quell the opposition of rival animals was made in selecting Mr. Cowburn.

The Investigation and Grievance Committee is to undertake to prove that Roosters don't lay and that special inducements are necessary to collect four eggs a day from Hens. They will also investigate all eggs sold for Opera House consumption in order to verify their ripeness. "Grievances" will include complaints of hens cackling for other Hens' eggs, Roosters waking up at 2 a.m. instead of 9, the eating of fowl on the table, and the building of close board fences that prevent Hens getting at the flowers.

An interesting article on "Hens and their Voices," with photographs by Mr. Miers of different cackles will be read at the next meeting by Mr. Matthews who can't real estate the difference without the photographs.

An attempt is to be made to prohibit the use of china eggs, egg plants, bills, or anything that infringes upon a hen's perogrative.

The Times was specially requested to say nothing of the young man driving through the ice on Sunday so it omits all mention of it.

New Industry for Medicine Hat

Converting Natural Gas into Alcohol

New Industry for M. H. It

The following has been received by The Times from The Continental Natural Gas Alcohol Co., of Wheeling, U. S. A., and refers to a new industry for the city.

Various manufacturing associations of the United States are making inquiry of the Bureau of Manufactures in regard to the new method of converting natural gas into alcohol. Carl Von Hartzfelt, of No. 1204 McCulloch street, Wheeling, W. Va., a chemist, who has invented a new process, is being flooded with applications, free site propositions, bonuses from large gas producers of the Kansas field, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania. The Standard Oil Co., and others are among those who communicated with Mr. Carl Von Hartzfelt relative to his invention and the erection of reduction plants at various localities.

Natural gas contains on an average 94 per cent methane and by combining it with oxygen in the presence of heat absorbing fluid such as steam which prevents complete combustion and maintaining the temperature below the decomposing point of alcohol the oxidation is induced by passing the natural gas through an electrically heated gauze. It is converted directly into alcohol and dehydrogenated alchol known as aldehydes, and aldehyde of methane alcohol (wood alcohol) being known also as formaldehyde. The product therefore is a mixture methyl alcohol containing a small portion of formaldehyde, which can be readily separated. If the combustion is properly regulated and controlled, 5,000 feet of natural gas will produce approximately 10 gallons of alcohol. A plant demonstrating the commercial value of this process will shortly be installed in Medicine Hat.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREWS

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Edmonton Conference, Feb. 18-21, '09

The Edmonton chapters of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew are making good progress towards insuring the success of the conference to be held in their city. They are outlining a good provisional programme, and have the different sessions and list of speakers mostly completed. The following are some of the different principal speakers: The Ven. Archdeacon Lloyd of Prince Albert, Rev. Canon Webb of Calgary, Rev. C. Garruthers of Lloydminster, Mr. H. Davidson, of Moose Jaw, and several other prominent churchmen of the west.

The Western Travelling Secretary of the Brotherhood, Mr. J. A. Birmingham, was in Edmonton recently and gave the local men some valuable assistance.

The Edmonton Opera House has been secured for the Mass Meeting to be held on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 21st, and the All Saints' Church school-room, which has recently been considerably enlarged will be used for the different sessions.

The railway companies are offering liberal terms to delegates, viz.—25 or more, the return journey for single fare plus one-third; 100 or more, the return journey for single fare. It is essential that intending delegates should purchase a single ticket and also procure a standard convention certificate from the station agent before boarding the train. Failing to do this they will be unable to benefit by the reduced rates.

Delegates expecting hospitality are requested to send in their names to the Secretary, R. S. Young, Imperial Bank, Edmonton, at the earliest date.

It is hoped that the conference will prove itself a blessing to the Brotherhood in this Western country and be a great benefit to the work that is Christ's work and so should be undertaken by all men willingly and joyfully.

You May Not Need It Now

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night, painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe. Try it.

Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce; Compound Kargon one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a spoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here in town is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire kidney and urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you are not well. Save the prescription.

McClary's "Caloric" Gas Range

For Natural Gas

Adjustable Orifice Provides for All Degrees of Gas Pressure

With the aid of the little wrench shown in illustration the orifice on the "Caloric" solid air mixer can be adjusted to allow just as little or as much gas to enter the burners as best suits your requirements. This adjustable orifice thus provides for all degrees of gas pressure. And, by mixing 25 per cent. more air with the gas than is consumed by ordinary burner, the heat is greatly increased and the gas correspondingly saved. Many more big features of the "Caloric" will be explained by

Main St. Men Interview

At the adjourned meeting of the city council held on Wednesday evening there were present the Mayor, Aldermen Robertson, McKay, Morraw, Spencer, Collier, Howson, Penhale.

The Canadian Rubber Co., wrote asking order for fire department supplies. Filed.

John McDougall & Caledonian Ironworks Co., wrote asking payment of $200 deposit, and $35, for time of engineer sent to repair pumps. This matter was dealt with later when the engineer's report on the new pumps came up. It was stated that the man sent up to Medicine Hat by the McDougall Co. had spoken of having to rent the pumps supplied by the firm to Moose Jaw. Accordingly on Ald. Spencer's motion the city engineer was instructed to write to the company stating in full all that he knew and what the firm's own man has said about the pumps.

C. A. Krauss was the only applicant for the position of city auditor He was appointed at the same salary as last year, $400.

A deputation consisting of F. G. Forster, H. Stewart and Major Sissons waited on the council to urge that steps be taken to have the matter left in abeyance at the last session of the board of Railway Commissioners regarding maintenance and protection of Main St. crossing over C. P. R. tracs, finally disposed of at the coming session of the Railway Commission. Mr. Stewart who was the first to address the council, said there had been a meeting of property holders on the previous day, when all present had expressed themselves in favor of doing everything in their power to improve the crossing. Mr. Stewart then handed to the Mayor a letter drawn up at the meeting referred to. Major Sissons then spoke for a few minutes on the matter, stating that he did not think that there was any intention that the city's interests should be jeopardised Mr. Forster pointed out that the question had been long outstanding and expressed the opinion that the [illegible] obtained. Ald. Penhale's curiosity was aroused by the fact that the members of the deputation all came from the south side of the track. It appeared as though these people were all very anxious to cross to the north side. These remarks presently brought Ald. McKay to his feet, as a north side man, to state that he would like to see something permanent done in regard to Main St. The Mayor promised that the matter should receive attention. There was a bill before parliament, however, to fix responsibility on to the parties in such cases and he rather thought the decision would be reserved.

Police committee reported 11 arrests and cases of summons during the month of January. Treasurer's department reported that nothing had been received during the month of January for fires in connection with the police department.

A letter from Winnifred anent cases of smallpox was referred to health officer to take action.

Following accounts were recommended for payment.

Progress was reported by parks and markets committee on matter of market building.

Ald. McKay then brought in a report advising the appointment of a sanitary inspector and scavenger. An opportunity was thus provided for Ald. Penhale, who took up the incinerator question in earnest. He thought the city engineer could design a suitable one, which should be constructed immediately. He thought the typhoid epidemic of last year was due to the city's insanitary system of disposing of refuse. It should not have been charged up to "the purest water there is in Canada." Ald Howson thought the police ought to look after the city's sanitary inspection, even if they had to be paid a little more. Ald. Collier could understand the influence of the official cap upon a certain class of people. But a specially appointed sanitary inspector, if he carried out his duty, would be just as efficient as the police. If the spencer were in the police force and the chief asked him to take on the job of inspecting back yards he would feel inclined to refuse, as regard to the usage of pits for refuse, he believed that these were of greater danger to the health of the community than if the garbage were thrown broadcast over the lots. As a member of the police commission of 1905 Ald. Spencer explained that until some time last fall the police were supposed to attend to inspection of yards and carried out these duties at that time the question of closet inspection came up, when a committee decided that he was justified in refusing. The inspection of yards was a different matter and was not objectionable work. After further discussion the report was adopted and a sanitary inspector and scavenger will be appointed.

Ald. Pennale then moved that the board committee take steps to dispose of the city refuse. This gave rise to a general discussion of the question of garbage disposal. Ald. Howson thought it would be a good idea to compel people to have a barrel at the back of their houses. He had one at the back of his place and way by a man who used it to feed his pigs. A vigorous protest against this latter practice was made by Ald. Pennale who was amazed at the idea of bringing up pigs on such food. Sometime the hogs "would nasty get to the butcher."

In accordance with recommendation of the fire, water and light committee the Calgary fire chief will be invited down to Medicine Hat to discuss matters in connection with the department, with the local brigade. His expenses will be paid by the city.

A plan by the Revelstoke Sawmill [illegible] of [illegible] space which it was desired to [illegible]. The platform would occupy part of the street reserved for sidewalks. Referred to public works committee for a report.

The engineer submitted the following, showing estimated cost of proposed extensions to the water system 1909.

Estimated cost of new steam pumper	$4,000.00
Estimated amount to be received for old pumps	800.00
Cost of new pumps by making exchange	3,200.00
Cost of fitting up old pumps	2,000.00

Any of the above propositions will give us a steam as an auxiliary, the cheapest of which is in favor of repairing the old pumps and amounts to $2,000.

Installation of a steam pump to drive the present turbines. This will furnish auxiliary power only:

Estimated cost	$2,000.00
Countershaft belts and pulleys so that either engine will be in a position to run either pump	1,800.00
Plastering walls, putting down flooring and painting	400.00
Total estimate of improvements	$8,700.00

Messrs. Freeman and Henson waited on the council to ask that when the new set of bylaws are framed up the vendors of ice-cream and soft drinks should be exempted from payment of a license. The license was not charged anywhere else. Referred to license and police committee for a report.

Mayor Milne then addressed the council on the visit of himself and W. Cousins and John T. Hall to the Municipalities Convention at Edmonton. In regard to the right-of-way, as the city would own this it was their business to make application to the government. Action would be taken along these lines. Attention had been drawn to the necessity of compelling boards of school trustees to go through the same formalities in regard to money bylaws as were required of municipalities. In Calgary Mr. Price had been interviewed and had promised to look into the matter of improving the local train service. The report was adopted on Ald. Spencer's motion and the thanks of the council was extended to the delegates for their valuable work; their expenses to be paid.

The Mayor spoke highly of the hospitality of Edmonton to their guests. Medicine Hat, he said, was looked upon by those present at the convention as one of the foremost cities in the west.

Ald. Spencer gave notice of introduction of a bylaw to amend bylaw 107 re local improvements.

Ald. Morrow gave notice of introduction of a bylaw for the sinking of a gas well.

Alderman Howsen renewed his notice of introduction of a bylaw motion regarding the sewer system. He gave notice of an introduction of a bylaw at next regular meeting for the construction of cement sidewalks. The Alderman went on to give an account of an interview with Mr. McGregor, who had stated that at the present time the Southern Alberta Land Co. were not looking for a site, but would be glad of an opportunity later to obtain one when they were prepared to build. This company were in negotiations about the Roseries, and if they could purchase the concern they would do so and try to come to a new arrangement with the city.

Ald. Spencer had been informed that Medicine Hat would be the headquarters of the company.

The bylaw appointing treasurer and clerk was repealed and after the bylaws creating the new offices of secretary-treasurer and commissioner of works had been given two readings the council resolved itself into committee of the whole, when the following applications were considered.

For secretary-treasurer—W. F. [illegible] les, F. F. Fatt, R. W. Lampman, C. J. Bristah, E. Roberts, S. [illegible] Buehley.

Assistant secretary-treasurer—W. Pinbow, Jas. Malcolm, John Gilmerbert Baker, T. C. Blatchford, Webb, E. Roberts, C. J. Bristah.

Mr. Fatt was appointed secretary-treasurer, Mr. Roberts assistant secretary-treasurer. Mr. Morrison was appointed commissioner of public works at a salary of $150 per month. The secretary-treasurer's bond was fixed at $10,000, the city to pay the premium of $100 per annum.

The Mayor and secretary-treasurer were authorized to borrow from the bank of Montreal sums up to $25,000 for current expenses. Ald. Spencer thought they should endeavor to secure the loans at 6 per cent.

A motion was carried to request the police magistrate to hand in a monthly report of all fines, etc., in the same form as to the attorney general.

While in Edmonton the Mayor also interviewed Prof Edwards of the University of Alberta who had stated that his services would be available at any time, for public lectures in the city. On Ald. Spencer's motion the offer was accepted, a date to be fixed. Prof. Edward's travelling expenses will be paid by the University and his entertainment expenses while in Medicine Hat by the city.

THE MAIN STREET PETITION

The petition presented to the Council by a committee of Messrs. Stewart, Forster and Simsons, appointed by a few Main St. property holders read as follows:

At a meeting of the [illegible] St. property [illegible] upon a committee of Messrs. H. Stewart, F. G. Forster and P. O. Simsons was appointed to wait upon the council and request the Council to ascertain from the Railway Commissioners on their visit here next week, their decision as to the question of maintenance and protection of Main St. as a permanent, level and open crossing over the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks.

The Main St. crossing question has been before the Railway Commission for some years and at the last session the city and the railway company mutually agreed to the permanent continuation of Main St. as a railway crossing the question above being left by both parties to the Railway Commission for decision both the City and the Railway agreeing to abide by the finding of the Board of Commissioners with reference to protection and maintenance of the crossing.

We therefore ask your honorable body to ascertain the Board's finding in the matter.

The above named committee was also appointed to go before the Railway Commission on the question but considered it more advisable for the council to take the matter in hand.

SUMMER RESORT AT CYPRESS HILLS

Mr. Hesekiah Garlough who has taken a seven year lease of the Allen ranch in the Cypress Hills, will start as soon as the weather permits to erect a summer hotel. The Cypress Hills form one of the most beautiful spots in Canada, and await only the hotel and transportation to make it most popular.

Mr. Garlough has a spring on his place that sends out a large stream all the time. He will irrigate 60 acres with it this year.

BUSINESS CHANGE

Mr. C. A. Scull, formerly of Saskatoon Sask., has purchased the King Edward Billiard rooms and Bowling Alleys from Mr. W. B. Marshall. The new proprietor took over the business yesterday morning, and has inaugurated a billiard and bowling competition, particulars of which will be found in the advertisement on another page.

Mock Parliament

Navy Bill Brings Forth Eloquence

Friday night's sitting of the House was devoted to a discussion of the navy bill, which gave rise to one of the most instructive and interesting debates of the session.

For the first time since the debate on the speech from the throne imperial politics loomed large, and the speeches from both sides of the House are significant as indicating the deep thought which the political leaders of our country are giving to the problems of Canada's nationhood, her increasing power and increasing responsibilities.

In the absence of the Speaker the Minister of Militia (Hon. A. C. Fardin) took the chair as the unanimous choice of the House.

The bill passed its second reading without discussion, the principle of the measure being considered when the House went into committee of the whole.

The member for Kingston, (Mr. Aspinall) led off from the Opposition benches with a well thought out speech in which, while he commended himself to the principal of naval defence for Canada, he argued that the time had not yet arrived for the creation of a distinctively Canadian fleet. That the need of a navy existed, the speaker was willing to concede; that we could get along without it for a time he believed all would agree; that capital could be better employed in the development of our untold natural resources he would attempt to demonstrate.

In our forests, in our mines, in our fisheries, in the soil of the vast fertile plains of our Western country lay wealth untapped.

The Minister of Marines and Fisheries, (Mr. Spencer) replied to the Opposition critic with a vigorous defense of the Government policy. He was pleased to hear his honorable friend from Kingston admit the need of a navy. Had he given serious thought to the question which the Ministry had done, no doubt the result would have been an emphatic endorsation of their policy. The speaker agreed that the wealth of our Dominion was greater than any other nation had ever known. Could we but live to see the Canada of a century hence, the greatest country in the world. Its strength would be measured by the greatness of achievement. Even for this very reason it was beholden to us to develop the spirit of nationhood, to begin to share some of the responsibilities and burdens of the Empire to which we belong, no longer to appear as the weak child of a strong father. We must undertake the protection of our natural resources, which, were it not for the protection of the world's greatest power would pass out of our control. In the time of our future greatness, we should be able to point with pride to the day when we first undertook to share the burden of the Empire, to relieve in some degree, the overburdened taxpayer of the Motherland. In the lives of nations there was something higher than mere material prosperity, and today we must realize the enormous value of might allied with right.

Mr. Bryenton, (Prince Albert) after congratulating the previous speaker on his defence of the Navy bill proceeded to shower scorn upon the framers of the measure. The bill was defective in many particulars. In the first place, there was no preamble. He would ask the Premier, why this important omission? Moreover, there were several discrepancies in the wording of the measure. What, for instance, was the real meaning of the term "commission," as so ambiguously used? These queries appeared to cause the leader of the Government some momentary embarassment, and for a brief period he remained in consultation with a colleague on the front bench before a reply was vouchsafed. At length he replied that everything had been included in the bill to satisfy any rational mind. Mr. Bryenton went on to oppose the principle of a separate navy for Canada, while advocating in its place a money contribution for the upkeep of the Imperial fleet. Were Canada not part of the Empire it would be necessary for Britain to maintain the navy at its present proportions: the state of Europe and her foreign relations demanded this. The speaker was surprised that honorable members opposite could think of no other way of encouraging national sentiment than by the beating of drums and the fostering of a martial spirit. The creation of a distinctly Canadian navy moreover, might breed discord and eventually lead to Imperial disintegration. The speaker looked forward to the time when a council of the Empire would sit to decide all problems of defense in the interests of the Greater Britain.

Thanks to a motion for the continuation of the sitting to 10.30, the House was enabled to hear an excellent speech, showing keen historical insight from a new member on the Government side Mr. Pratt (West Grey). Mr. Pratt laid emphasis on the great commercial advantages to Canada which accrue from the British fleet. But for this protection Canada would years ago have been divided amongst the powers. But it was the duty of every Canadian to put the interests of his own country first. The Imperial authorities had in several instances sacrificed Canada's interests, and it was necessary that Canada on her part should have control of her own defences, that she might gain some influence in international diplomacy. Great Britain would no doubt look with favor on this step, as she had done when the British troops at Halifax, Esquimault and elsewhere were replaced by Canadians. In 1588 Little England with a population of only 5,000,000 souls had a navy of 176 ships and 15,000 sailors to oppose and ultimately, as it turned out, to annihilate the Great Armada, thus laying the foundation of the British Empire of today. Had England neglected her navy the course of modern history would have been entirely changed.

Mr. Patterson (Simcoe) in a breezy and sarcastic speech attempted to show that when "the flowers were stripped" from the oration of his friend from York, there was nothing left. For about fifteen minutes the House was kept in a state of uproarious laughter, and before the close of the sitting, party rancour was forgotten and the Government and Opposition members were drawn together in common appreciation of the Pattersonian wit.

It has been decided to continue the debate on the Navy bill next Friday. The Women's Enfranchisement bill will be given its first reading Referendum ballots will be published in next week's paper.

Obituary

MRS. WELLBAND

One of the oldest residents is lost to Medicine Hat by the death yesterday afternoon, after an illness of some months' duration, of Mrs. Jemima Wellband. The deceased lady came to this city with her husband in 1886 the year in which the C. P. R. main line to the coast was opened. Prior to taking up residence here she had spent some years in Winnipeg. She was born in England 72 years ago and was married to the late John W. Wellband, who died in this city in 1898.

Mrs. Wellband is mourned by four children and a large circle of friends. Her children are: Mrs. Potts of Brandon; Mr. Harry Wellband of this city; Mrs. Rankin of this city, at whose home she died; and Mrs. Collins, also of Medicine Hat.

The funeral takes place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the home of Mrs. Rankin, 214 Toronto Street.

SAMUEL DAY

The death is announced at his home in St. Thomas, Ont., of Alderman Samuel Day, the father of Mr. John Day of this city. The deceased gentleman had many friends in the west, which he visited in 1906, three years before his retirement from active business life. Out here he was engaged in buying grain with his son.

The Daily Times of St. Thomas devotes a couple of columns in its issue of Monday, the 1st inst. to an account of his life and work. The leading feature on the editorial page takes the form of a tribute to the career of one of the town's most respected and eminent citizens.

Mr. Day was a pioneer of his district, coming to Canada in 1830 from Exeter, Devonshire, England. At the age of eighteen he settled in St. Thomas, travelling to his new home by wagon from Port Stanley. For many years he worked for the late William Barrett, who afterwards became his brother-in-law. Prior to his marriage to Miss Eliza Fitzsimmons on Dec. 28, 1854, he went to Talbotville and with $1,500 he had saved, went into business there. Later he went into the carriage business, in which he had served his time while a lad in Devonshire. About this time also he began to take an interest in municipal affairs, as a member of the village council, and it was during the few years in which he remained on that body that he laid the foundation of an honorable public career.

Disposing of his carriage business in 1866, Mr. Day removed to the township of Yarmouth, purchasing a farm which he turned into one of the finest homesteads in the whole country. He sat in the Council for ten years and on the school board for a briefer period and for several years was reeve. As a Yarmouth town councillor he was entitled to a seat in the County Council and he had the honor of being warden of the county retiring in 1878. This occasion was marked by his being presented by the ratepayers of Yarmouth with a valuable gold watch, a gift he never tired of showing.

In 1872 Mr. Day was Conservative candidate for East Elgin in the Dominion elections. The voting lasted two days, and though on the first day the Conservative was in the lead his opponent rallied his forces and won out on the second.

On retiring from his farm in 1906, Mr. Day found that inactivity did not suit a man of his temperament and in 1907 he successfully contested an aldermanic seat. He was returned again in 1908 and was still in harness when the last call came. Despite the fact that he was close on fourscore years, he was possessed of all his faculties to the end.

In religion the deceased was an Anglican, being a member of St. Trinity church St. Thomas.

Ald. Day is survived by a widow, one daughter, Miss Lizzie Day at home, and two sons, Albert Day, merchant, and Stanley and John Day rancher, of this district.

The editorial in the Daily Times concludes:

"Mr. Day won not only success, but distinctive honors at the hands of his fellow citizens. His record is a succession of municipal honors as school trustee, reeve, warden, councilman of the village council of St. Thomas half a century ago, and twice elected alderman of that same council grown to the proportions of a city, at the head of the aldermanic poll. . . . . He was broadminded, energetic and progressive always watchful of the best interests of the people, open to conviction but not easily browbeaten. A public spirited citizen, a kindly neighbor and a thorough gentleman, the city and community have suffered a loss in the death of Alderman Day.

IN A HIGHER POSITION

Mr. E. Roberts, who has been in the civic employ here, as clerk for several years has accepted the position of Secretary-Treasurer of Wetaskiwin at a salary of $1400. Mr. Roberts will leave about the middle of February, and a new assistant Sec.-Treas., will have to be appointed.

Don't forget it—Thursday.

INWOOD—MILLAR

At St. Patrick's church on Monday February 8th, by the Rev. Father Forrench, John Inwood to Leona Millar, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Grant Millar, of Medicine Hat.

Yesterday morning, in Shelburne, Ont., a double murder was committed and a man and a woman seriously hurt by one George Ernest Stewart. Attacks were made upon other people the murderer apparently running amuck through the whole neighborhood. He was sleeping in his father's house when the police effected his arrest.

On January 19th, 1906, Stewart was charged here by the Mounted Police with insanity and appeared before Mr. Benson who was then magistrate. He was sent to Maple Creek for confinement in the guardroom pending the decision of the Lieut-Governor. The latter telegraphed Mr. Benson on January 20th authorizing the handing over of the man to his relations. While a prisoner here Stewart was very quiet and mild, but strange in his manner.

Miss Caldwell and Miss McBean were at home on Friday evening to a few of their friends when cards and dancing were indulged in.

Mr. S. F. Holmes of the Bank of Commerce leaves in a few days to take a position in the High River branch.

Mr. A. P. Dunn returned Sunday from an extended trip through the south.

Mr. J. B. Laidlaw, financial representative of the Salvation Army has been collecting in the city for the local barracks.

Laurier's majority in the first division of the House was 42.

Mr. D. Cargill of Seven Persons was in the city on Friday.

The second annual meeting of Knox church was held on Wednesday evening Feb. 3rd. There was a good representation of members and adherents and great harmony characterized the evening. The two oldest classes in the Sunday School were present by invitation. Rev. A. McLaren acted as chairman and Mr C. M. Fowler as secretary. Very encouraging reports were read of different departments of the church work, that of the Sunday School by Mr. C. M. Fowler, Superintendent; and Woman's Missionary Society by Mrs. McNeely being specially favorable. The vacancy in the managing board was filled by the appointment of Mr. Jas. Keating. A report of the finances was placed in the hands of each member and the success of the use of the duplex envelope system was demonstrated.

A big tract of land, 69,275 acres in extent, northwest of the Southern Alberta Land Co.'s land is to be irrigated.

The "only and original" Bargain Day—Thursday.

The Lethbridge miners have broken away from the Trades and Labor Congress. They also decided to admit Chinese and Japs to the union.

ICE HOUSE BURNED

On Monday evening at 9.30 a fire broke out in the ice-house rented by E. C. Cooper, some distance outside the city limits. The brigade were unable to be of service as the nearest hydrant is too far away for a stream of water to be brought into play on the building, which was in consequence completely destroyed.

It is surmised that the outbreak was the work of incendiaries. No satisfactory cause, it will be remembered could be assigned for the fire in Mr. Cooper's barn a few months ago.

The ice-house was the property of Mrs. Chas. Calkins.

Regarding Crossings

Mayor Milne and C.P.R. Confer

Mayor Milne and ex-Mayor Cousins when in Calgary on their way back from Edmonton interviewed Mr. Price of the C. P. R. regarding the crossings in this city. As Main St. crossing is in the hands of the Railway Commission nothing was done about this except to have Mr. Price's assurance that he considered it a fit matter to have adjudicated by the commission.

The overhead bridge was suggested for Ottawa street but Mr. Price thought this would cost more than the requirements of the city would warrant.

The C. P. R. objected to a subway at Toronto St. as it would have to go too deep to clear their tracks. An overhead steel footbridge was suggested as the best solution of the problem, the bridge to connect with the C. P. R. platform.

On River St., Mr. Price suggested that instead of a straight subway, the road be turned to pass the first abutment of the bridge. This could be carefully graded, planted with trees, and with seats along the water's edge would make a beautiful driveway. It could also be used in case of blockade at Main Street.

Y. M. C. NOMINATIONS

The election of officers for the Y. M. C. will be held tonight at 9 p.m. The nominations are as follows:

President—M. A. Brown, W. J. Dimmick.

Secretary—A. J. Trotman, E. S. Frost, T. H. Williams.

Treasurer—H. T. W. Forster, E. S. Muir, Wm. Stewart.

SWISS BELL RINGERS

The Swiss Bell Ringers have been engaged for a concert in the Presbyterian church on the 23rd inst. in aid of the Ladies' Aid of that church.

A concert will be given in the afternoon for children only at which the instruments will be open for examination. Admission to afternoon only 25 cents.

There'll be a rush for The Times, Bargain Day. Come and be one of us.

THE EARTHQUAKE GAG

Actually—yes, actually, there was a few people in town who are frightened at the prophecies of earthquake for Thursday. After its over they can sleep at nights they'll be the first to say I told you so, and laugh at the fears of some other poor, foolish mortal. The best thing the frightened ones can do is to come in and get the Bargain offer of The Times on that day. If the earthquake comes the money and subscription might as well be here as anywhere, and if it doesn't come, they'll want The Times afterwards.

MILITARY POSITIONS

ANOTHER RUMOR

The Times is happy to be able to announce that the rumor current some months ago and denied later by The Times, as to the violent death of John Lehr, jr., the adopted son of John Lehr of Josephburg, was "greatly exaggerated." Mr. Lehr did not take his departure from this vale of tears through the firebox of a threshing engine (assisted as the rumor had it by the brawny arm of the "God Jacob," leader of the Dreamer sect). On the contrary, John merely took a trip to Lethbridge, where he has been working for some months past. Last week he paid a visit to his respected stepfather.

It was the rumor, not John Lehr which ended in smoke.

Mr. Rowley manager of the E. B. Eddy Co., of Hull, Que, accompanied by Mr. Persse of Tees & Persse of Winnipeg, the western selling agents of Eddy's goods, visited the city last week. It will be remembered that Mr. Rowley was in the city something over two years ago and announced that his company was looking for a place to establish a western factory. Upon this visit Mr Rowley stated that he intended to open up more branches of the Tees & Persse business which is already established in Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton.

NEW LEAGUE IN SIGHT

J. M. Lamb, of Winnipeg, formerly president of the Northern Copper league, was in the city all day Thursday investigating the chances of forming a baseball league in Western Canada. Mr. Lamb is most enthusiastic regarding the prospects of a league consisting of Winnipeg, Brandon, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge Calgary and Edmonton, with possibly Regina and Moose Jaw; although the sentiment in those cities is not very strong for baseball, and their co-operation is not necessary.

The distances travelled will be practically no longer than they were in the old Copper league. From Winnipeg to Edmonton is only 35 miles further than the Winnipeg team had to travel in the old league. And the possibilities of making money are infinitely greater.

"In the old Copper league," said Mr. Lamb, laughingly, "a particularly good day might bring us $3.75 as our share, in those towns down south; and one day we made $4, but that was because it was a rainy day and the rules made such a payment necessary."

Mr. Lamb considers the feeling highly satisfactory in Winnipeg, Brandon and Medicine Hat, and was on his way west to see what the prospects were in those cities. James Fleming's suggestion was to call a general meeting in Calgary and have a representative from the four western cities meet there to talk it over.

Everybody concerned feels that if a league is to be formed it must be immediately as the players are now signing up. A salary limit of $1300 or $1400 is suggested and that it be strictly enforced. Twelve hundred dollars is felt by Mr. Lamb to be a little too small to secure the kind of teams we would want.

Winnipeg has only Geincke and Beattie left of last year's team, with a possibility of securing Piper occasionally, who is running a billiard room in Winnipeg. Last year Winnipeg dropped $2,800 although they drew immense crowds in the home city. It was the games abroad that pulled them down.

The idea would be to start the league about the middle of May. The name would probably be The Western Canada Baseball League.

Later—James Fleming went to Calgary to attend a meeting of the clubs. Edmonton had sent a representative and Fleming also acted for Lethbridge. Calgary however could not say what it would do until it had had a meeting of its own. This was held last evening. Things look bright for a league.

The High School Hockey team goes to Lethbridge on the 12th to play the High School team there.

Chippewa Falls, Wis.—A new world's record of 138 feet for ski jumping, it is said, was made at the Northwestern Ski tournament by Oscar Gunderson of Chippewa Falls.

The best previous world's record was 135 feet made by Nels. G. Jestvang, at Modam, Norway, in 1907. The best previous American ski jump record was made last year at the annual meet of the National Ski Association. At that meet John Everson of Duluth jumped 131 feet.

Nome, Alaska, Feb. 8—Nome's annual dog race, the all-Alaska sweepstakes which has risen to be known as a sporting classic all the world over, will be run this year over an 400 mile course, from Fairbanks to Nome, instead of the 400 mile route originally planned. This is the latest scheme of the sport lovers of Nome, who have offered a $10,000 prize to the winners, and $5,000 more in smaller prizes.

Last year the sweepstake was run from Nome to Candle and return, a 400 mile jaunt which occupied five days and was travelled by the racing dog-teams in a fierce blizzard. The plan to race from Fairbanks to Nome would involve a ten days trip over snow and ice, most of it on the frozen bosom of the Yukon. The trail is a good one, and barring storms the journey might be made by the racers in nine days or a little less. The Fairbanks to Nome race, say the promoters, would be a more strictly all-Alaska affair.

The new plan will also be a boon to many of the entries who have their teams in Seatele this winter, and will bring them north in the spring for the race. To reach Nome they must take the trail at Valdez and come over the ice by way of Fairbanks. If the race is started at Fairbanks they will be saved part of their long preliminary journey.

All of the big dog owners of the north will have teams in the race, and many of them are conducting regular training stables there this winter, some having scores of dogs from which to pick a team of 10 or 12 for the big race. The date of the canine derby is April 7. The winning team, in addition to the big cash prize, will leave Nome on the first boat in the summer and be exhibited at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition in Seattle.

London, Feb. 8—Jack Johnston the heavyweight champion, tonight notified the National Sporting club that he accepted their offer of a $6,000 purse for a match of twenty rounds with Sam Langford. The fight will take place during Derby week and the purse will be divided $4,000 to the winner and $2,000 to the loser. Each man is to receive $750 to cover travelling and training expenses.

Percy Cove and Billy Lauder fought 15 rounds to a draw in Calgary on Monday. Lauder gave Cove a much harder fight than did Marino and had Cove groggy a couple of times.

Cove announces that he will fill [illegible] as he has gone into partnership in the Windsor Livery Stable there, and will make Calgary his home. Calgary has also added Fitzgerald of Edmonton, to its list of athletes.

Allan McDonnell and Dan McLeod two well-known Calgary lacrosse men have purchased the Star Billiard Hall in that city, and will try to make it an athletes' resort.

Sarinac Lake, N. Y., Feb. 8—O. B. Bush, of the Edmonton Hockey club made a clean score yesterday at Sarinac Lake, in the International outdoor amateur skating championship. Bush was first in all the heats in the 220 yards, 880 yards, one mile and three miles. The second heat in these events will be held today.

Calgary is to have a big four-days bowling tournament from March 10 to 14. Teams from Winnipeg to Vancouver will be invited. Competitions will be open for five-men bowling teams, doubles and singles. A grand challenge competition open to all teams, will be the star event, for which a large cash prize will be awarded. The Brunswick-Balke-Calendar Co. trophy is offered for provincial five-men teams. It is expected that in addition to trophies there will be cash prizes of $600.

As usual many United States papers are claiming Longboat as an "American." The Indian could'nt be naturalized over there if he wanted to be.

Bowling

It is probable that two five-men teams will be sent up to Calgary from this city to take part in the bowling tournament on March 10th. The prizes will be: First, $125 and trophy; Second, $75; Third, $50.

All bowlers who intend to take part in the next series of games should attend the meeting in Dr. Holt's office at 8 o'clock this evening, when a schedule will be drawn up.

And Longboat won. Shrubb, the little Englishman made a plucky fight with head and heels, but the thing didn't work out right and he fell exhausted in the 25th mile. Longboat emerges as the greatest Marathon runner of the age.

Shrubb started off with a rush, and it didn't take the Indian long to find the pace was too fast for both of them to stand. So he fell back into his long lope, ignoring Shrubb's speed. Shrubb ran the first mile in 4.32, the first five in 27.54, the ten in 57.32 1-5, with Longboat almost a minute and a half behind. At 15 miles Shrubb's time was 1 hr. 28 min. 28 4-5 sec. and his style was as beautiful as ever. At 17 miles Shrubb was 7 laps ahead and at the 20th mile was 8 laps ahead.

But the big lead did not work out as Shrubb expected. At the 21st mile he had to stop to change his shoes and Longboat gained half a lap and a half. In the 22nd Shrubb was in distress and came down to a walk Longboat continuing along rapidly overhauling him. On the last sprint was in the 24th mile and was two lars ahead but it was no good. Longboat never faltered as he exceeded up with Shrubb in the 24th mile and drew away he looked back and grinned. Shrubb staggered on a few wards and then fell on his trainer's neck, broken hearted. Longboat finished alone in 2 hrs. 58 min 40 2-5 sec.

ALL LOOKING AHEAD

Eastern team leagues are being rapidly formed for the opening of the season, says the Newark Star. Every club is now making desperate efforts to get a winner. No team is without a manager, since Joe Kelley left the Toronto club. Casey the dumpy little third sacker, will be with Montreal next season or will be in charge of the team that will take the Canadian city's place in the Eastern league.

Reading, Pa., is considered the best spot for an Eastern league club. While the Tri-State city is going ahead with the preliminary plans for next season, it is thought that the Eastern league will break in there before the season is over. Casey will head the club if the Montreal franchise is put in there.

Dunn is back at Baltimore, and has the nucleus of a strong team again. He will have a new short-stop in Knight's place and has obtained the services of Bert Conn to play centre field in place of Chadbourne, who goes to the American association. Pete Cassidy will be on first, Dunn himself on second, Hall or Strang on third, and Pfeffer in right. A new outfield to take O'Hara's place will be secured. Ivy Wearne and Robinson will again be behind the bat.

Toronto has Mullen and Hahn for their infield, with Homer Smith at third. Smith played with Rochester a few seasons ago. He will try for first base. Joe Kelly will be in the outfield again. Kelly intends to land several pitchers and one according stop. Weidensaul will play outfield regularly this year, and Home Run Bill Phyle will be on third base.

Buffalo will stand pat with few exceptions. [illegible] star right fielder, goes to the American association, as does Billy Hogan, the hard-hitting pitcher of the Bisons. Clancy is slated foe first; Smith a manager again, on second; Nattress at short, and William Hesser, a youngster from the Virginia league, will be at third. Schirm is down to play centre, and Jack Whitwill covert again in left; Knetts, from a New England league will be behind the bat to help out Jack Ryan and Lew McAllister. The pitching staff will be made up of Rutt Kissinger, Tozer, Knapp, Vowingle and Malarky.

Gene McCann is keeping his plan for next season pretty well covered up. He expects to get some surplus material from New York Highlanders for Jersey City.

Hugh Duffy has in mind the men who will do battle for Providence in 1909. He has given up hopes of getting Abstein back, but has his eye on a first sacker who will be pretty nearly as strong. Roy Rock the brilliant shortstop will be at second base this year, and Blackburn who played such sensational ball on the champion Worcester team will be at short, Arndt will be at third again, and Izzy Hoffman will occupy a spot in the outer garden.

This is what Duffy says:

"I have a great left-fielder in view who, I think will make good, but I other clubs get wind of [illegible] get after him. Then I am sure will land a good catcher who has been described to me as a first-class man, and who will make one of the best in the league. I have lines out for a first baseman to take Abstein's place, who will fit it to everyone's satisfaction, and strengthen the team a whole lot.

"Of the players I have landed already, I have Peterson for catcher, Roy Rock who will play second next season; Bill [illegible] some outfield position; Jack Cronin, for pitcher; Joe Harris, who will make the next season his best in the league, judging from his present condition; Barberich, the former Worcester twirler; Ward, another twirler who hails from New Britain and is a great player and good sticker; Blackburn the great Worcester shortstop who is certain to make good in that position, judging from the way he played in the New England league, and one or two others. This ought to make a good combination, and it will not be long before I get them all signed up and ready for the season."

"No" said Duffy in response to a question, "I don't think that I will take the men south this spring, but will let them get their training right here, you know it costs a whole lot of money to take that trip, and never does any good except to clubs way up in Toronto or Montreal. The men will be in condition all right before the opening game."

Abe Attell beat Kelly in New Orleans on Thursday night in the 7th round.

Two rinks went down to Maple Creek on Tuesday to try conclusions with that town. The have concluded that the conclusions are not conclusive. In the afternoon a rink consisting of G. DesBrisay, Campbell, and Benson, skipped by Mr. O'Hara was taken in to the tune of 16—1 (o-r-r-r). In the evening Benson picked up a rink and won a game but it wasn't in the schedule.

S. T. Hopper's rink of B. H. Bell, W. B. Finlay and H. S. Craig did better. They met a team skipped by R. H. MacMicking of the Union Bank in Maple Creek and were beaten 7—8, 10—9, 12—7.

The train from the east was five hours late and Mr. Hopper's rink was entertained at whist until about 1.30 by Mr. and Mrs. MacMicking. Reports say that all returned home sober, but these reports are from the players themselves.

The Meat Industry of America

(Scientific American)

The reader of this article will be surprised to learn that from fifty-six to fifty-eight per cent. only of the animal, as purchased on the hoof is available for the table. In the early days of the meat industry the other forty-two or forty-four per cent. was regarded as useless and allowed to go to waste. Today, however, there is practically no part of the animal that is not turned to some useful account. It is claimed, indeed, that the profit of the packing houses is now almost exclusively made out of the by-product.

The hides are carefully stripped by a workman, especially trained to the task, who is careful not to spoil the hide by the slightest slip of his knife. After they have been inspected, they are graded according to their quality, salted and stored, and finally sold to the tanneries. The various fats from the animals are worked up into tallow, and the finer qualities, known as butter fats, are used in the manufacture of oleomargarine or butterine, for which by-product Swift & Co's plant has a capacity of fifteen tons a day. From the beef suet is made the by-product known as stearine, which is used in large quantities by the tanners and candle manufacturers. From the seven thousand skins of the sheep, which are killed in this establishment every day, there is gathered daily about ten tons of wool. The lean meat trimmings are passed through a process of preparation, from which they emerge as a good quality of sausages. Horns and hoofs, which at one time were thrown away, now find a ready market. Packing house refuse is used extensively also in the great fertilizer industry. The viscera, immediately upon their separation, are passed down a chute to a lower room, where after going through certain processes of cleansing and chemical treatment, they are made to render their tribute of useful product, the fibrous matter being dried and ground up for fertilizing matter. The bones are worked up into glue and phosphate, the latter ultimately being made up into fertilizing material by mixing it with the nitrogenous matter of the serous residue above mentioned and blood.

A most important part of the work of the government inspector consists in looking after the sanitary conditions of the various floors or rooms throughout the building, and the personal cleanliness of the large army of employees. The workmen are required to keep their working clothes clean or as clean as the conditions of work of this character will admit. Those that handle the meat must wash their hands at stated intervals. lavatories with running water and the necessary appliances are provided for this purpose. If an inspector sees a workman with clothing that is unnecessarily soiled, he orders him to go at once and change to another suit. For the disinfection and cleansing of the cleavers, scrapers, knives, saws and other tools, vats of boiling water are provided in close contiguity to the rail and the working benches; and in cases were defective animals have been detected, the inspector orders the butchers, before they proceed to another department, to at once cleanse their hands in a disinfectant solution of bichloride of mercury; he sees, also, that all tools and implements are similarly cleansed and disinfected. Sheet-iron clothes lockers are provided for the clothes of the workmen, with sheet-iron partitions between the compartments, and perforated sheet-iron doors in front to insure a free circulation of air.

Having now described in detail the various processes in the preparation of refrigerated meat for the market, we will proceed to describe the other great system of meat preservation known as curing, as carried out in cutting up, pickling, salting and smoking of ham and bacon. The hogs are driven from the stock-yards where they have already undergone a government inspection, to the dressing floor, which has a capacity of a 1,000 hogs an hour, or 10,000 per day. They are driven, a few at a time, into a pen, on one side of which revolves a hoisting wheel with short lengths of chain attached by means of hooks to its outer rim. In the pen are two boys, who quickly loop the chain around the hind legs of the hog. As the wheel revolves, it lifts the animals one by one, to the top of the wheel, at which point the chains ars automatically transferred to an inclined rail. Here the porker passes an operator, who swiftly dispatches it with a deft knife thrust; and after a short interval it is automatically released into a huge vat of scalding water of a temperature of 150 deg. F., where it remains for five minutes. The effect of the hot water is to loosen the hair and scurf and clean the hide It is then taken from the tank and drawn up through a vertical cylindrical scraping machine, which is full of downwardly-projecting steel scrapers which are pressed by springs against the body of the animal as it passes through and takes off in a few seconds time nearly all of the hair. It then passes to the scraping bench, where such portions of the hair as have not been removed by the machine are taken off by hand. The bench is arranged as a travelling table, and the hogs laid across it side by side, travel slowly past the line of operators. When the animal reaches the end of the bench, the operation of dressing is begun. Here the first government inspector examines the glands of the throat, feeling some and cutting into others in order to be sure that the animals are perfectly healthy. The animal is then held in front of what is known as the polishing machine, which consists of a rotating shaft provided with a number of flexible arms made of heavy belt leather, each arm being shod at its end with a steel strap. As the shaft revolves the animal is pressed against the rotating arm and is strongly beaten and scraped. It is then subjected to a steam jet blast, after which it is hung on the shaving rail, where the last of the hair is removed by hand. This finishes the cleaning; and at this point government inspector No. 2 looks for and identifies the mark of inspector No. 1, and places a tag upon the animal.

The animal is now ready for cutting up, and this work is done by an army of skilled workers, each one of whom, as the animals, travelling at the rate of about thirty feet a minute in a continual procession, pass before him down the overhead rail, performs his particular part of the operation with really marvelous speed and dexterity. The viscera are placed in a trough, whence, after they have been carefully examined by a government inspector, they pass to a room where they are separated and sorted, and subsequently manufactured into various by-products. The stomach, after the grease has been extracted, is made into fertilizers; the liver and heart are sold as food products, and the intestines are cleaned and made into sausage casings. The leaf lard (the fat which grows on the inside of the body) is taken out and subsequently worked into kettle-rendered lard or neutral lard, the kettle-rendered lard being the ordinary lard of household use, and neutral lard being used in the manufacture of butterine. The animal after being split in two along the vertebrae, finally reaches the end of the rail, where it passes before the fourth government inspector, who examines the inside of the pleural region as a final assurance of perfect health, and also examines the glands near the base of the backbone. The next journey is to the hanging floor, where the sides are sorted according to weight and quality, and are partially cooled by being allowed to hang in a draft of air for a period of a few hours. From the hanging floor, where the sides are carried into the chill room a huge refrigerator capable of accommodating many thousands of sides. Here they are kept for forty-eight hours at a temperature of 32 deg.

From the chill room the sides are taken to the cutting room, where the shoulders are chopped off, the hams removed, and the feet are cut from the hams by hand saws. The bacon pieces are put through rolls to flatten them out into a suitable shape for salting and packing. All the portions of the meat, as thus cut up, are carefully trimmed, and the trimmings are sent down a chute to a room below, where they are re-trimmed, the lean portions being subsequently made up into sausage meat, and the fat portions into lard. In the cutting room the "fresh-meat portions" are wrapped in paraffine paper and packed in boxes and barrels for immediate shipment to the retail butchers. After the meat has been trimmed and cut up, it is sent down a chute into the grading room where each ham, shoulder, or side is weighed and sorted according to its weight and quality.

It is probable that there is no feature of the meat industry, at least as carried on under modern conditions in the largest establishments, regarding which there has been more popular misconception than that of the curing of meat. While it is undoubtedly a fact that some meat, prepared by obscure and small dealers, occasionally may be subjected to treatment that renders it undesirable we believe that the system of curing as carried out by the large establishments under the regulation of federal laws, is perfectly wholesome, and absolutely insures the use of only such ingredients as are healthful.

As a matter of fact, the constituents of the solution or pickle used in curing meat, viz., salt, saltpeter, and sugar, are the same that have been used by the farmer, the butcher and the housewife from time immemorial; and it is certainly remarkable that, in spite of the fact that the problem of meat preservation has been made the subject of a thorough laboratory investigation for a long period of years, the chemists have been able to find nothing which gives more satisfactory results than the time-honored preservatives of our forefathers.

The supervision of the federal government of the curing of meats is carried on with the same thoroughness to which we have drawn attention in our description of the preservation of meats by the method of refrigeration. Salt, saltpeter, sugar vinegar and wood smoke are specified by law as the only preservatives that may be used. Borax of which so much has been heard lately, is expressly prohibited except in the case of meats put up for export in accordance with the directions of a foreign purchaser. In this case borax may be used, provided it is not prohibited by the country to which the meat is to be sent. England makes no objection to the use of borax, and meats sent to England may be preserved in this substance; but they must be prepared in separate rooms and marked with special labels showing that they are for export only. The greatest care is also taken by the large packing houses in the preparation of this pickle. Swift & Co., maintain an extensive labortaory, which gives steady employment to a corus of chemists and bacteriologists, a considerable portion of whose time is taken up with the analysis of the ingredients used in the curing department, and the investigation of the meats at the various stages of curing.

The size and completeness of this laboratory and the high technical qualifications of its staff, it may be remarked in passing, bear testimony to the universal sway which chemistry holds over the modern industrial arts. In the investigation of meats, such, for instance, as cured hams, a section several inches square is cut right through the body of the ham, divided into four equal portions, and separate analysis made of each portion to determine the amount of pickle in the different sections, and ascertain if the ham is uniformly cured. The section of meat is hashed, and the ingredients extracted by boiling, the dry residue being dissolved with water and further treated with chemicals.

Samples of the various fertilizers produced in the plants, are taken regularly to the laboratory, where an analysis is made to determine the amount of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash which they contain. Tests are also made of the fat, oils and soap to determine their value. Samples are taken of the materials during the progress of manufacture, in order to insure correct processes and suggest improved methods of treatment. The investigation of frozen meat is carried on along four lines, chemical, bacteriological, histological (concerned with tissues), andpractical. As showing the preservative action of refrigeration, it may be mentioned that in an investigation recently made to determine if there was any deterioration under frozen conditions, samples of frozen meat were placed in the same box with plates of gelatine, and kept there for a lengthy period, without any cultures developing upon the gelatine.

The "pickle" is prepared in a plant which the company has devised with a view to insuring absolute cleanliness and adherence to formula. After the solution has been made in the proper proportion it is thoroughly boiled with a view to its sterilization, then chilled to the desired temperature, and piped to a series of closed tanks. The object of the pickling is to put the meat in such a condition that it will remain sound and sweet. The hams, shoulders, and sides are loaded into vats, which are then entirely filled with pickle. They are left here for a period of from forty to seventy-five days, during which time, by a process of diffusion, the curing materials are distributed evenly throughout the substance of the meat. It will be understood, of course, that outside of its preservative effect, the process of curing is intended to give to the meat the characteristic flavor which distinguishes it from fresh meat; and no small part of the skill in curing consists in securing the desired flavor by careful work in the pickling and in the subsequent smoking.

In the process of dry curing, the meat is simply rubbed thoroughly

The Times has a first-class, up-to-date job printing plant, new throughout, with all the latest designs in type and is prepared to do all kinds of book or job work at the shortest notice.

Figures for Electricity

On another page will be found an article written byM. O'R. Jarvis of Winnipeg for the Western Municipal News, estimating the cost of establishing and maintaining an electric plant at Moose Jaw. From these figures a very close estimate can be made of what the cost would be in Medicine Hat.

The Times sees electricity for this city in the very near future and has spent much time in securing figures that will be of use to the aldermen when they decide that the city requires such a municipal plant, a decision which should soon be made.

On the advantages of electricity, The Times has already had a little to say, but nothing can be said that will place its advantages as they appear to those who have had experience with both gas and electricity. Not only would every house and every street in the city be wired in a very short time were electricity available, but there would be a hundred motors in place inside a few months. Four would find a place in The Times office immediately.

Taking the article referred to as a basis—Moose Jaw is a little larger than Medicine Hat, so that a plant that would be sufficiently large to install in that city would meet requirements here. We find from the article that the cost of installation of a steam plant would be $8567, set up ready to run. This does not include the power house, nor wiring, but the cost of the latter is placed at about $800 a mile. Not more than seven miles of pole line would be required, (allowing a liberal margin on the present telephone line); which would bring the total cost of plant and wiring (less the power house) to about $14,000, an insignificant sum for all the advantages of electricity.

When it comes to maintenance the figures are most interesting. From the cost of operation of a steam plant run by coal ($4834.48) must be deducted the entire cost of the coal, $2115, and the wages of the fireman $720, leaving a balance of $2,000 as the total cost of current at the power house. To this must be added the wages of a superintendent and a lineman, which in Prince Albert for instance, is $1,800. This would bring the total cost of maintenance at $3,800 a year.

These figures are verified, too, from the experience of Prince Albert. The cost of maintenance in that city is $10,760, which, with coal ($6,000) and wages of extra men deducted would leave with depreciation and interest added, practically the same amount—$3,800.

Still another set of figures are at The Times' command. Another practical engineer of Winnipeg gives figures that show the cost here at almost exactly the same figures.

Upon Mr. Jarvis' estimates the cost per kilowatt hour here would be less than 3½ cents. What this means can be judged from the fact that Edmonton's price of 7 8-5 cents net, is the lowest in Canada at the present time. Toronto has a rate of 3 cents net for residences and 12 cents for business places. From personal experience the writer can say that the expense of reasonably lighting a ten-roomed house in Toronto is only about $3 a month during the winter months. It is estimated that the ordinary consumers use at the most 50 k.w. hours per month, on the average. On this basis, and allowing the cost of power to the consumer here to be 4 cents, the expense of lighting a house per month would be only $2, or $24 a year. The cost of gas lighting and mantles can be worked out fairly closely by the householder, and the difference in cost will be found inconsiderable, so little that it does not figure in the added convenience, healthfulness and artistic possibilities.

Another concrete case is that of Orillia. In that city the flat rate per light is only 18 cents per month for a 24-hour power. And there was a great waste of money in installation, with a profit on this rate of $10,000 last year. An ordinary seven-roomed house with 15 lights, costs in Orillia only $2.70 per month on a 24-hour service. Were it not that for the unnecessary cost of installing the plant in Orillia the rate would be only 12 cents a light or $1.80 per month for a seven-roomed house.

The Orillia example is an actual experience, and is less costly than the estimates given in the article produced elsewhere. It is an example that is better to go by than any estimate. A 24-hour service would bring the estimated expenses of operation here to $4,800, another engineer being necessary. But Orillia's case shows that this price could be improved upon even in a smaller city.

With electricity in Medicine Hat, the city would be able to furnish gas for fuel and electricity for lighting at less than half the price of the same commodities elsewhere! The installation is merely a matter of time no matter how it is opposed by those who know nothing about it.

"The Wolf-Crier"

The Secret Agitator on The News whose specialty seems to be to try to create excitement while he gets behind the fence, tries to say that The Times imputed graft to Mr. Finlay when Mayor of this town, because this paper mentioned the fact that Mr. Finlay was mayor at the time Fry said that he used money here in contract work. History says that there were wars during Queen Victoria's reign, which according to our bright contemporary means that Queen Victoria was responsible for them. Of course The News knows that The Times merely mentioned the fact of Mr. Finlay's official position exactly as one would say that it was during Mr. Forster's term of mayoralty that the present frost of a filtration plant was installed without meaning that Mr. Forster was personally responsible for it.

The fact that this Secret Agitator knows what The Times meant has nothing to do with what he would say about the case—that is only a matter of experience. Perhaps it might be as well, as a parallel case, to ask the same Agitator if rumor is not correct in saying that he started the myth about Mayor Milne wanting to close Main St. crossing and what grounds he had for it; the same man started the telephone-line-to-Taber excitement, and and a number of other bits of frath.

Oh no! Secret Agitator, Mr. Finlay and Mayor Milne are too sensible men to be terribly impressed with your badly hidden schemes at self-advertisement. The effort to get the Council excited sufficiently to secure the "court stenographer's report" is most amusing, and brings the same laugh as did the underhand story-telling regarding the Main St. crossing. The Council does as it pleases this year, News, and your ability to stir it up is long ago discounted—a feeling the Secret Agitator will discover in the Main St. property holders, when he again cries "Wolf, Wolf!"

Perhaps it might be a better thing to inquire where the Secret Agitator got the right to hint that Mayor Milne was trying to close Main St. That's of more pressing interest.

As to the News statement that it didn't see the statement of Fry quoted in The Times, no one is surprised at that. There are many things The News doesn't see—for obvious reasons. The News has The Times' condolences in its failure to arouse any agitation.

Try again Secret Agitator. It's only another failure. Remember the story of the boy and the wolf.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The agitation of the Main Street delegation that waited upon the Council last Wednesday night was entirely uncalled for. It was suggested that the Aldermen hurry the Railway Commission to give a rapid decision re-Main Street crossing. The matter was dealt with most seriously by the delegation, each one of which must know that the Railway Commission has the matter under consideration, and has had it for a long time, but that the possibilities of legislation at Ottawa are holding their hands at present. The deputation was purely composed of Main Street business men and was not a city delegation by any means. While nobody blames the deputation for their selfish motives the matter was not one which the representatives of the city should urge under the present conditions when the C. P. R. has promised not to interfere with the crossing until the commission gives its ruling. This style of excitement is too much like the noise made over the telephone line to Taber, after it had all been promised by the Government—and by the same token the delegation was made up largely of the same men. Who is it suggests it all? And wasn't it one of the same men who tried to dynamite the town into giving the Southern Alberta Land Co., a site when they openly state they are not ready for it as yet?

When we want to form committees and brass-band our efforts abroad, it would be much better to keep our superfluous energy until there is a demand for it. There's enough of telling work to do without fighting windmills.

Referring again to the efforts of our contemporary to cast slurs at Mr. Finlay, we would like to ask The News why it places "the soul of honor" in quotation marks, when referring to Mr. Finlay. That gentleman has never demonstrated that this epithet should be applied to him only as a sort of indefinite quotation which makes it look like a joke. Mr. Finlay could be called the soul of honor without quotation marks. It isn't likely that Mr. Finlay will be effusively thankful to The News for putting ideas of his honor in people's minds that would never have been there. Guess Mr. Finlay knows you.

Mayor Milne was a member of the Council of that year and naturally laughs at Fry's statement. Wonder if there was anything happened during the term of office of the Secret Agitator that makes him so sensitive.

When The Times has anything to say against Mr. Finlay, it will say it openly and Mr. Finlay is a big enough man to know this, to the shame of the Secret Agitator.

But perhaps, as usual, the editor of The News, didn't write that editorial.

One of the most amusing features of the petition presented to the Council by the Main Street property-holders is the clause that it contains, showing, that this body of men actually appointed Messrs Stewart, Forster and Sissons, to wait on the Railway Commission regarding the Main Street crossing. Such a committee appointed by one special interest, would have no standing with the Commission, nor should it have. The Commission is here to consider the interests of the city and the railway or of interests that have no bearing on the city. Such a matter as the Main Street crossing should and will come from the Council not from a few citizens. It would be well to remember that the Council is supposed to work purely for the city and not for individual interests. It would not be a bad idea for this special committee to remember now as always the watchword "Help Medicine Hat Grow," and to leave the matter to a Medicine Hat city delegation. It seems almost impossible to get some men to do more than TALK helping Medicine Hat grow. When it comes to their own personal interests the city does not seem to count.

Many interested readers of Saturday Night will be sorry to know that "Mack" or "Joe" Clark, as he is known to his friends is returning to The Toronto Star. "Joe" assisted E. E. Shepherd, or "Don," as he signed himself, on Saturday Night away back in '92. Later he joined The Star editorial staff and was the life of the leading page. In 1906, when Mr. Gagnier purchased Saturday Night "Joe" was engaged as editor at a good salary under a three years' contract. That contract is just expiring and "Joe" returns to daily newspaper work. And undoubtedly that is his place. While he did excellent work on "The Front Page," he never had the chance of utilizing his peculiar ability to its utmost. He never approached "Don" in his palmiest days but as a newspaper editorial writer, there are few who are in his class.

Writing Us Up

A description of Medicine Hat as seen by Will. H. Mayes of the Brownwood (Texas) Bulletin during the Press Excursion last fall is given below. Only Medicine Hat, Calgary Edmonton, Regina and Moose Jaw were considered worthy of special mention. Lethbridge, Portage la Prairie, Red Deer, etc., are dismissed merely as "other places." The writer states that the only uncivil man on the trip was the manager of the Queen's hotel at Macleod.

MEDICINE HAT

The people of the town have gone Kipling mad. You hear "Kipling, Kipling, Kipling" from the time you get off the train till you get out of ear shot. It is all because the distinguished author on a recent visit to the place paid it the compliment of saying that it was a town that was born lucky in that it appeared to have all hell for a basement. At first one wonders why such a description as that so delighted the citizens of Medicine Hat, for while the language is picturesque and lurid enough, it doesn't sound very complimentary to be told that your town must be the trap door to hell. But Medicine Hat prides itself on its supply of natural gas, and so Kipling immortalized himself with the people when he said what he did of the town. It is the only place I ever saw where natural gas is so cheap that they burn it all day long on the streets because it is cheaper to burn the gas than to turn it off, so every day the gas street lamps can be seen burning away while the sun shines brightly. The city owns the gas wells and sells the gas at 13½ cents per thousand cubic feet, which for heating purposes is the same as coal at $2.70 a ton. To manufacturers the price is 5 cents per thousand, an equivalent of $1.00 a ton for coal. It is so abundant that the city makes enough profit on it at that seemingly ridiculously low price. It is no wonder then that the people are so proud of their

A new immigration hall is to be established at Calgary. Medicine Hat had hoped to have one, but there seems to be no immediate promise of it.

One of the men on the deputation of Provincial Premiers, which interviewed Mann in Winnipeg regarding new railways, was Malcolm Mackenzie of Macleod of political fame. It is now said that Mr. Malcolm has a charter he wants to dispose of in the south, which probably accounts for his inside position on the delegation and his anxiety to have a road run just where his charter is.

Professor Muir Edwards thinks we are paying too much attention to sewage and too little to purification of water supply. In this connection Mr. Edwards might be asked for his opinion as to whether the cess-pools near the river, above the pumping station, would have any effect on the water.

In 1907 the Intercolonial showed a surplus of $378,167. In 1908, under Graham, it showed a deficit of $37,299. Although other railways had cut down their expenditure in a business-like manner, in conformity with the earnings, the Government road increased its expenses by six per cent. Where did the extra $400,000 go, when fewer men were needed on the road? Was it election year.

The city losses a trusted employe, and Wetaskiwin gains an honest hard-working man who will look after its interests in a commendable manner, in Mr Edward Roberts, who has accepted the more lucrative position of Secretary-Treasurer of the latter city.

The Calgary Albertan within the past ten days has twice drawn attention to the average 25 per cent reduction in telephone rates said to have been made by Hon Mr. Cushing. It also speaks of a reduction of residence phones from $25 to $20 all over Alberta. The Times would like The Albertan to give one instance of a 25 per cent reduction. If that is possible (as is doubtful) it would be interesting to have proof of a total reduction of 25 per cent. In Medicine Hat the reduction amounted to one-half of one per cent all told. The residence phones have NOT been reduced from $25 to $20 except possibly in Calgary and Edmonton.

If the Alberta Government is forced to take credit for what has not been done it is in a pretty bad state.

A railway from Medicine Hat through the Cypress Hills would be a great boon to this city and the best agricultural part of the district. The finest summer resort in the west would be at our door, and the Cypress Hills would become famous, no doubt attracting summer tourists from all over the west.

Nobody in Medicine Hat would support the closing of Main St. crossing. That is where the level crossing will always be.

with a mixture of dry salt, sugar, and saltpeter, and packed carefully in boxes, in which it remains for a period of thirty days. The juices of the meat supply the necessary solvent, and the process of diffusion gradually takes place, as in the case of meats cured in liquid pickle. After the curing is completed, the meat is inspected by the government official and branded for shipment. The cured meat which is to be further treated by the process of smoking, is taken to the smoke house, where it is carefully looked over, put into vats, and covered with fresh water, in which it is left for half a day to remove the surplus salt and put it in condition for smoking. It is next washed and thoroughly scrubbed in hot water, and then hung on racks mounted on trucks and wheeled into the smoke houses. These are large square shafts, several stories in height, provided with grid-iron floors to permit of the free circulation of the smoke. At the base of the houses slow wood fires of hickory or maple are kept steadily burning for a period of thirty-six hours. The smoking of the meat serves the double purpose of improving the flavor and acting upon it with a strongly antiseptic or preservative effect, the creosote of the smoke being one of the most powerful bactericidal agents in existence. The smoke not only penetrates the substance of the meat, but it forms an outer envelope, which in itself is an effective factor in the preservation of the meat. It should be mentioned here, that in order to make sure of the thorough impregnation of the ham by the curing pickle, a certain amount of the pickle is forced into the meat at the bone by means of a hollow needle, through which the liquid is driven by a hand pump. The importance of this was set up and pointed out in an article in the Lancet of June 27 of the year 1908, by Dr. E. Klein, of London, who showed that in hams so treated, it really happens that the pickling fluid fails to reach right through the bone from the outside.

The smoked hams are now taken to the packing house, where after being tested by an expert, who thrusts a steel "trier" into the body of the meat, they are wrapped in oiled paper and wrapping paper, and placed in muslin bags. After these have been sewed up, the company's label and also the United States inspection mark are pasted on, and the hams are ready for packing. The company's labels for this and every other kind of meat must be submitted to the Agricultural Department of the government, in order that it may be determined that they accurately described the character of the contents. In the first section of the present article, published in our last issue reference was made to the fact that the profits of the large packing houses depend very largely upon the successful treatment of by-products. We will now give a brief description of the methods by which the forty-two per cent. of the animal which formerly was considered as useless refuse is manufactured into valuable commodities. The various scraps of meat, etc., consisting of odds and ends of the cutting room, are collected and placed in large digesters. There they are treated under steam at forty pounds pressure for from eight to ten hours. The fat which is separated by this process is drawn off and utilized as tallow and grease, and in various arts such as the manufacture of soap, candles, lubricant, etc. The remaining contents are placed in a hydraulic press where the liquids are squeezed out; and the solids, thus obtained, are dried and ground ready to be made into fertilizers, for which they are valuable because of their content of nitrogen and phosphoric acid. The liquid which drains from the press is evaporated to dryness and the solid residue, which is rich in nitrogen, is used in the manufacture of fertilizers.

The hides are cleared, sorted, and shipped to the tannery. The bones are first boiled to remove the meat from the fat; then dried and sorted as to size and shape, and sold to the manufacturers of buttons, combs, and similar articles. The hoofs and horns are washed, dried and sold to comb factories.

The hair of the animal is treated according to its length. Short hair, obtained in the summer is placed in the digester, dried, and ground into nitrogenous fertilizer material. The long winter hair is cooked in a vat with an alkali, to dissolve the roots and gelatinous matter, and is then washed, dried and baled for shipment to the hair spinner. It is chiefly used in the manufacture of mattresses. The sinews and hide trimmings are manufactured into glue. The material is placed in a solution of lime, where the fatty matter is saponified, and then washed to free it of lime and render it clean. It is next treated with a weak solution of sulphurous acid to neutralize it; after which it is cooked at a low temperature in large wooden tubs and formed into a glue solution, which is finally reduced in a multiple-effect vacuum machine to the sheet glue of commerce.

It would be difficult to find another of the industries of America in which the application of modern science has wrought better results than in the great meat industry. The adoption of strictly scientific methods has not only improved the quality of the meats but it has made it possible to transmute the enormous wastes of an earlier day, into a wide variety of profitable and useful articles of industry and commerce, and thereby reduce the cost of the entire output.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

She writes: "I thought I would write and tell you how thankful I am to be relieved from the use of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A few years ago I was so badly troubled with my lungs people said I had Consumption and that I would not live through the fall. I had two doctors attending me and they were very much alarmed about me. I was in bed three months and when I got up I could not walk, so had to go on my hands and knees for three weeks, and my limbs seemed of no use to me. I gave up all hopes of ever getting better. I happened to see in the C.P.R. Almanac that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was good for weak lungs. I thought I would try a bottle and by the time I had used it I was a lot better, so got more and it made a complete cure. My little boy was also troubled with weak lungs and it cured him. I keep it in the house all the time and would not be without it for anything."

RHEUMATISM & STIFF JOINTS

When you have any deep-seated pain in the joints, the back, the wrists, or elsewhere, place a liberal supply of Zam-Buk on the fingers, or on the palm of the hand, and rub it in. The penetrating power of this "embrocation-balm," kills pain and removes stiffness.

Sound rubbings of the affected parts with this wonderful balm will drive out all pain, reduce swelling, strengthen the skin and tissues (enabling them to resist cold and damp better during the winter months), and restore perfect elasticity and looseness.

MONTREAL LADY'S EXPERIENCE.

Mrs. Frances Wyatt, of 8, Guy Avenue, Montreal, says:—"I have found Zam-Buk most soothing and valuable in a very bad case of rheumatism, and also for stiffness of joints and muscles. I suffered long and acutely from rheumatism, and tried one liniment after another in vain. I also took medicines internally, but it remained for Zam-Buk to effect a cure.

"I began applying this balm whenever I felt the aches and pains of rheumatism coming on, or felt any of the stiffness.

"The result was truly wonderful. Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate to the very seat of the pains, driving them out completely, and I am now quite cured."

WHAT ICE HOUSES AND STEAM DID FOR HIM.

Mr. P. G. Wells, of 238, Ogden Street, Fort William, Ont., says:—"Following my duties in attending to passenger trains, I often get wet through with rain and steam (the latter in winter). This with hours of duty in icehouses in summer, was no doubt the cause of my contracting rheumatism in both knees, left arm, and shoulder. This got so bad that I could no longer work and was laid off on three different occasions for several weeks during which I was under the treatment of my doctor. I seemed to get little if any better, no matter what I tried, and this was my state when Zam-Buk was recommended to me. I laid in a supply and to my great joy it began to cure me. I rubbed it well in every night, and when a few boxes had been used found I was free from the pain and stiffness of rheumatism. I have had no more trouble from the disease."

Zam-Buk is a positive and certain cure for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, piles, festering sores, ulcers, scalds, blood-poisoning, eczema, scabs, chapped hands, cold cracks, chilblains, ringworm, scalp sores, bad leg, discased ankles, and all other skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well into the parts affected, it cures neuralgia, rheumatism, and sciatica. All druggists and stores sell at 50 c. box, three for $1.25 or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse the harmful imitations sometimes represented to be "just as good."

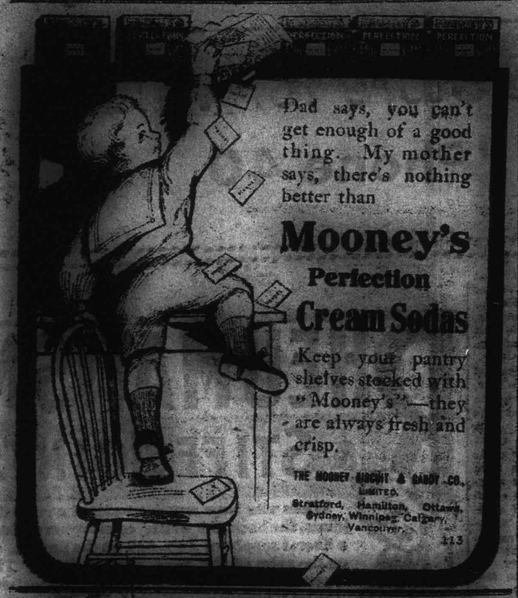
Government News

(Special Correspondent)

Edmonton, Feb. 3rd.—Little business of importance has been done in the legislature during the past week; the members seemingly having exhausted themselves in the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne. Still, however inclined, members may be to discuss legislation their inclination is restricted by the action of the government which regulates the business of the House by the manner in which it introduces its measures. Although the third week of the session has now passed the government has not yet its business in shape. On Friday five government bills were on the order paper for second reading, but not one of them was read, because not one of them was printed. Indeed, business would not have suffered had a week's vacation been taken.

There is not the slightest justification for such delay. The government's programme is not so lengthy that it could not easily have been presented before this. The truth is that the ministers have been negligent. If there was a numerically strong opposition, inclined also to adopt obstructionist tactics, it might be pleaded that the administration was being hampered. But two of an opposition cannot hamper a solid phalanx of twenty-two. Besides there has been nothing to criticise. One can only conclude that the so-called work of law making in this legislature is somewhat of a farce, the ridiculousness of which has only escaped the censure it deserved through the numerical weakness of the opposition to represent the true situation.



Next week there will probably be a rush of legislation, for it is rumored that the government expects to conclude the session about the fifteenth of February. The game is thus quite apparent. The real legislation is not considered until the fourth week of the session when it is proposed to bring it along with a rush. Two critics, which it must be remembered, are the only real critics in the House, must soon be worn out and [illegible] nature of conditions much legislation will be shoved through without proper consideration. An election bill, a redistribution bill, bills guaranteeing railway bonds for large amounts, to say nothing of the estimates, are matters which merit deliberate consideration.

In a House where the critics are numerous it would be improper to crowd such measures together, much less in a House where the critics are so few.

By the number of questions which they have placed upon the order paper Messrs. Robertson and Hiebert have given evidence that they intend to elicit full information respecting public affairs. The questions cover the purchase of the Bell Telephone system, the issue of provincial bonds the purchase of supplies, seed grain distribution and the liquor license administration. Reports received from different parts of the province indicate that the liquor business has been shamefully used for political purposes. It is stated on excellent authority that licenses have been deprived of their licenses through refusal to become political agents. It has also been altered that police have received instructions not to proceed against certain offenders against the Liquor License Act. Mr. Hiebert put the question point blank to the government; the Attorney General replied "No," promising to give a written statement later. The seed grain return asked for by Mr. Robertson will be awaited with interest by farmers. It is well-known that the governments of Alberta and Saskatchewan purchased a great deal more grain than was necessary. This it is said, has been sold at a considerable sacrifice, it being estimated that the governments have lost, the C. N. R. and G. T. P. will build many miles of branch lines during the present year. For all the good they will effect the deputations might have remained at home. The government is tied up to the C. N. R., and G. T. P., for they are the only companies that will accept a bond guarantee. They have had their systems outlined for sometime, and in building will be influenced by the prospect of business rather than by $200,000. on the business.

During the week the government has been besieged by deputations from all over the province requesting railways. These have been brought out through the announcement that on the strength of a considerable guarantee by the government political considerations or the needs of the settlers. If the example of Saskatchewan is any criterion, Alberta will pay dearly for anything it gets from these companies; for in their agreements with the neighboring province the companies are practically unbound by restrictions of importance.

The indications are that an election is not far distant. Aside from the fact that the term of the Legislature expires this year, the rallies being held in different parts of the province are evidence of important developments. Many think that the government will appeal to the country within a short time after prorogation, relying upon its railway policy to sweep the province. Such a move would be quite natural. Just how soon an election will follow will depend to some extent upon the time required to set the election machinery in operation. In the meantime all is not lovely within the cabinet. There are rumors of a disagreement between Cross and Cushing. There is a well-defined impression that whether successful or not in his appeal to the country Premier Rutherford will not long remain in active politics. His successor will be either Cushing or Cross. The latter is considered to be the politician of the Cabinet; and being younger and more energetic, to say nothing of being strong, ambitious will hardly give place to the commissioner of public works. Time alone will reveal the true state of affairs.

Municipal Power and Lighting Plant

(Western Municipal News)

The rapidly increasing number of Municipal Power or Lighting plants suggests that the officers of Municipalities contemplating such undertakings might welcome some data from which to estimate the approximate cost of installing and operating a plant suitable to the needs and the accompanying calculations and comments are offered in the desire to supply the information.

As the accompanying tables could not be made clear or complete without the assumption of some point for the delivery of material and fuel and the selection of a plant of a stated efficiency such efficiency has been placed at 100 Killowatts and Moose Jaw has been assumed as the place of erection by reason of it being about the centre of the Western field and also because the cost of "screened nut" lignite and Canadian Anthracite Pea Coal from the Bankside mines as fuel for the Producer Gas Plant is equalized by the freight somewhat west of that point.

A plant of 100 Killowatts is instanced because it would, on the ordinary calculation of 15 lamps of 16 candle power to the Killowatt supply about 1500 lights and as the number of lights actually burning at the same time is usually about one-half of the number connected, such a plant would about cover the requirements of our Western towns. The alternating current type was selected because it is equally adapted for light and transmission of power motors.

Estimates of initial cost are given for types both belted and direct connected to the generator and showing both the cost F. O. B. Moose Jaw and the approximate cost when erected on foundations and ready to run as well as the respective cost of operation and the resulting cost of current per Killowatt hour.

Such estimates however, do not include the power house or pole transmission lines because of the wide variation in the cost of building at different points and the necessary difference in the length of transmission lines at various points. Probably an estimate of $800 per mile for pole line would be approximately correct. With reference to the estimates of initial cost it should be remembered that they can only be approximate and are intended to furnish the average cost and not the prices of any particular manufacturer's product.

I am aware that it may be said that the two 72 in. x 18 ft. boilers included in the estimate of cost is perhaps somewhat more than would be installed by a contractor making close figures on supplying the plant, if allowed his discretion, but the experience and practice of the best erectors points to an ultimate economy in supplying ample power and a relief boiler, especially in lighting plants, in which a "shut down" may produce very grave inconvenience.

Estimates of fuel consumption are based on an average of the guarantees given by the builders of the most successful types and plants, and on information obtained directly from the users.

The estimate of fuel consumption is on the basis of the evaporation of seven pounds of water to steam for one pound of Pennsylvania bituminous coals and the heating efficiency of mine run Lignite coal is assumed as being sixty per cent. of that of the Pennsylvania coals, such proportion being in accord both with their respective analysis and the general experience of users here.

As between the Direct Connected and Belted types of Producer Gas Engines the writer ventures to say that from all information available gas engines with a speed not exceeding 225 revolutions per minute and a fly wheel of adequate weight have been proved in service to maintain as steady a voltage and in every way to give as good results as when direct connected, their only disadvantage being an increase in the length of floor space required and a slightly less mechanical efficiency, the latter in theory rather than as a matter actually proved by results. Against this there is the lower initial cost carrying with it a decrease in the fixed charges for interest and depreciation and a consequent reduction in the cost of producing current and also the fact that if of the horizontal type and not exceeding 150 horse power, provision can be made at very slight increase of initial cost to double the power by converting the single engine to a twin engine.

It will be noted that estimates of operating cost are based on running at half the rated efficiency of all types of engine and this is done because, as previously stated, in practice it is found that the average load on the generator is not more than half the lamps and meters connected, unless the power load bears an unusually large proportion to the lighting load.

Relative to the floor space, and consequent size of power house it may be said that the steam plant, when direct connected reqdires about 12 x 16 feet for engine and generator and when belt connected about 12 x 8 feet for the engine.

EAT SAUSAGES OR NEW BREAD

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Get the paper that gives all the news. It's only $1 on Thursday, Feb. 11th.

VARICOCELE CURED

☞ NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got their Free Prize Treatment. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $ I and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

A man who comes to his party after a hard battle, which has been lost, and finds them cheerful, faithful and even enthusiastic over his personal conduct, is the stuff out of which victors are made. Nothing more becoming has been done by the Conservative Parliamentary party in recent years than its absolute refusal to consider even the possibility of a change. The Party, throughout the country, may not be quite so unanimous, but the better elements in it are. The men who admire steadfastness, dignity and courage will approve. A political trickster might bring the Conservative party back to power a bit sooner, but there are quite enough political experts in the country without encouraging any increase. So far in his career, Mr. Borden has held his head high and has refused to be led from "the only path." The British Columbia incident is unfortunate, but Mr. Borden's word on that matter will be generally accepted.

Bowell

A most enjoyable dance took place here on Thursday evening in the new Delinks Hall, which has recently been erected by that popular young gentleman. Excellent music was provided by Messrs. L. M. Mansfield A. Lemon, and dancing was kept up till an early hour next morning. A large number of people came out from Medicine Hat and the stables of the town were taxed to their utmost to provide accommodation for the numerous equipages. Supper was served at midnight, and the aided dancers regaled themselves while the band played seductive airs. Afterwards dancing was resumed with renewed vigor and all were unanimous it declaring that it was the most successful gathering yet held. Amongst those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. and Miss Blyth, the Misses Ellis, the Misses Novinski from Sunfield, Miss Wright, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Mansfield, Mr and Mrs. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lemon, Miss Lemon, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur, Miss Wilde, Messrs. Cyril Hay, Roy Auger, Alan Carr, Dick Deadeye, Augustus Skidmore, Gilbert Morrison, Cyril Woolven, Ludwig Olsen, Albert Olsen and Bob. Louden.

Mr. Robert Louden went on a visit last week to Calgary, accompanied by Mr. Charles Blyth. He says Calgary is too near the equator for him, although the thermometer registered 40 below zero.

We wonder how much longer Bowell is to be without a school; it seems a hard proposition. Let's hope it is not so far off as the promised irrigation ditch.

Mr. Robert McCourtie has returned from the Red Deer. "This is an awful country for wind" says he.

To show how scarce water is in Bowell, Teddy Bear's cat accidently fell down a well whilst endeavoring to slake its thirst, but even the well was parched. Thanks to the timely arrival of Charlie with the fire escape, it was saved. I believe Teddy's cat is named Tony.

Gros Ventre

Fine spring like weather on the Gros Ventre after our long cold spell.

Mrs. George Lait entertained at progressive whist last week, three tables playing. The first prize was won by Mrs. R. Grayson, Mr Chas. Lait carrying off the booby.

Rev. Hector Fraser of Eagle Butte holds services at Wm. Putnam's every three weeks at 3 p.m. Episcopal services are held every other Sabbath morning by Rev. P. Jerrod of Irvine at St. Alban's church. Services and Sabbath school at the German Church every Sunday. Rev. J. C. Damm of Medicine Hat, pastor.

A party composed of Messrs. Wm. Putnam and L. C. Fleming, and families, visited Gros Ventre school last Tuesday. They report a full schoolhouse with an average attendance of 30. We understand Mrs. Tothill is a very efficient teacher. The pupils are all Germans.

Our genial mail driver, John Huston has had splendid luck as regards the weather, this year. Only once has he missed the regular mail day.

Wind nor weather,
Good roads nor mire,
Cannot stop the Gro Von flyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Putnam intend holding a debate at their home Monday night, subject: "Which is preferable, Rural or City life." Cautains Mrs. Putnam, and Mr. Huston for rural life, Mrs. Grayson and Rev. Fraser for city life. They will be assisted by others.

Chas. Putnam who took a carload of horses to Norlton, Alta., is visiting his sister, Mrs. (Rev.) Gratz. The girls in this and surrounding country are wondering if he will return with a wife.

Mr. Jack Darling, who is with Mr. John Huston this winter had the misfortune to loose a fine horse recently.

Seven Persons.

Mr. Mullen who was taking Mr. Butler's place as operator during his sickness has been assigned to Cranbrook, B. C.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Seven Persons Farmers' Association was held at their store Saturday. They elected officers and transacted other business. All are well pleased with the management and success of the enterprise.

Mr. D. Carrill went to the Hat Friday returning Saturday, to take part in the meeting.

Quite a little excitement was caused at this place by the taking fire of the Fulton Bros' sleeping car but it was subdued without any serious accident or great loss.

A. W. Butler resumes his work today as operator at this place.

Manley Miller has been seen on our streets quite often during the past week.

H. H. Foster spent Saturday and Sunday here. Mr. Foster is owner of the town site at this place.

John Jackson, one of the new settlers knows a good thing when he sees it. He stepped into the post-office and sent off a dollar for a Bargain Day year's subscription to The Times.

Mr. and Mrs. Carison, Mr. and Mrs Butler, Mr. McAskile and Mr. Babbage were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lougley, Friday afternoon and evening.

You can't make a mistake if you take advantage of The Times Bargain Day.

The lady demonstrator of Gold Standard Goods will remain at Spicer & Todd's for this week.

Some Current Stories

In this column will be told each week, (if the materials is available), some incident, more or less amusing that has occurred locally. The Times will consider it a favor if its readers will acquaint it with any such incident. The column is purely for fun and no one must take it seriously or The Times will report the interview that results.

It was a great Chance. And the Veiled Agitator jumped at it like a trout at a fly—with about as serious results. The Calgary papers had reported the Mayor Mike and ex-Mayor Cousins had interviewed Mr. Price regarding street crossings in Medicine Hat and the Veiled Agitator got busy. It didn't make any difference that nothing more than that was known; it didn't matter that the facts of the case were that the two men interested were working their hardest for the city gratuitously; it didn't matter that the Veiled Agitator knew as well as anyone else the position of Main Street crossing affairs.

What did matter was that here was a chance to make a disturbance, and it galled him to think that he had had nothing to do with these deputations since the people found him out. He must get his hand in some place or people would forget he existed.

So like Paris he rolled in the apple. He tip toed along Main Street dropped in on one of the clique whose honesty has often been used as a screen for the Veiled Agitator's hidden work, and gave dire hints with his own peculiar elaborations upon what he had heard Messrs Milne and Cousins were doing to Calgary.

And then he disappeared from view. Veiled Agitator bowed down in thought and weary-work-in-well-doing-for-the-ratepayers sort of humility and was immediately fastened to the petition, which read:

"We would ask your honorable body," (this had to be inserted although no one left like it)) "to make that Railway Commission get a hustle on. They been at it for years and ain't done nothing. Now shove 'em, shove 'em. We don't give a darn that the crossing will remain open anyway, because the C. P. R. has promised it. We want to push this thing through our own individual efforts. We've appointed much more able men than yourselves from our august body, to rub it into the Commission, but in deference to the weaker party we'll let you have first go. But go!"

Later—The Main Street merchants who were so worked up by the stories of the Veiled Agitator have left town until the laugh blows over.

After that he "was only in the hands of the people."

The match had been set to the gunpowder and there was a flare. Some Main St. property holders did not stop to think of the source of the information, but naturally became earnest to protect their interests. Main St. Crossing must be protected with their lives. An indignation meeting of a very few of the property holders was called. Naturally most of them thought the information was correct and considerable enthusiasm was displayed—at the start. And the Veiled Agitator followed his usual custom—he just sat quietly and let some other person do the shouting. By appearing unmoved he gave the impression of thought so deep that nothing but The Times Bargain Day would bring him back to mundane affairs. With index finger strikingly supporting brainy head he listened.

"It must be stopped," shouted one enthusiast. And the Veiled Agitator merely breathed thoughtfully, "Amen."

"It is a terrible thing that any Mayor of this city should attempt to interfere with our rights. It is criminal! It is ——" and words failed; but the deep sigh of the Veiled Agitator filled the space.

"Well, gentlemen, what'll we do about it?" asked one of the business men.

"Tar and feathers!" suggested the enthusiast whose words were only a reptition of a previous conversation with the Veiled Agitator. But now the V. A. raised his hands and eyes in horror. It wouldn't do for anyone to know that he was speaking through a braver man.

A number objected but the tar and feather idea had stuck, so to speak. Contributions were immediately called for to buy the external ornamentation. The Veiled Agitator promised 30 cents from his company but personally he would give nothing.

Finally when the sum of 65 cents had been promised under protest and the enthusiast had suggested that they had better tar and feather more than the Mayor's boot-soles, and the Veiled Agitator had suggested that he have something published in the organ of Hidden Motives so that the "ratepayers" could be roused to frenzy—after that the tar and feather method was dropped for the petition-to-the-council idea. The Veiled Agitator bowed down in thought and weary-work-in-well-doing-for-the-ratepayers sort of humility and was immediately fastened to the petition, which read:

"We would ask your honorable body," (this had to be inserted although no one left like it)) "to make that Railway Commission get a hustle on. They been at it for years and ain't done nothing. Now shove 'em, shove 'em. We don't give a darn that the crossing will remain open anyway, because the C. P. R. has promised it. We want to push this thing through our own individual efforts. We've appointed much more able men than yourselves from our august body, to rub it into the Commission, but in deference to the weaker party we'll let you have first go. But go!"

Later—The Main Street merchants who were so worked up by the stories of the Veiled Agitator have left town until the laugh blows over.

Cut This Out and Save It.

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy one half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find real relief in this simple home-made mixture and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple receipt is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy or active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, and it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

RECORDS OF MEDICINE HAT DISTRICT

One of the features of the Anniversary edition of the Calgary Morning Albertan, which will be published on February 27, will be a record of extraordinary crop yields The Albertan has two hundred records already, but it is difficult to get all and it is asking all who have had good crops to send in such report. They want acreage and yield and average. The Albertan has also asked the different cities and towns throughout the province to send in reports of development during the year, and has furnished a form to be filled out. If that has been done already it would be well to have it sent in at the earliest opportunity. The Albertan is offering a prize of $15 and a gold medal for the best poem on the subject "Alberta," and also a similar prize to the best story sent in, founded upon some historical incident in the province. The poem must be in the Albertan office by February 15 and the story by February 16. It is also offering a silver mug to every baby born on its birthday, that is on February 28, which is a very unique form of advertising.

MANY DON'T KNOW

HEART AFFECTED.

More People Than are Aware of It Have Heart Disease.

"If examinations were made of everyone, people would be surprised at the number of persons walking about suffering from heart disease."

This startling statement was made by a doctor at a recent inquest. "I should not like to say that heart disease is as common as this would imply," said the expert, "but I am sure that the number of persons going about with weak hearts must be very large."

"Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that kills them that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is made apparent."

"But undoubtedly heart weakness, not disease, is more prevalent nowadays. I should think that the stress of living, the wear and rush of modern business life, have a lot to do with heart trouble."

"There is no doubt but that this is correct, and we would strongly advise any one suffering in any way from heart trouble to try a course of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

FARMERS REPRESENTED AT OTTAWA

The farmers of Canada are to have a representative in the House of Commons during this session. The Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, has engaged a practical farmer to attend the session and write a weekly letter to that paper, telling the farmers of Canada how Parliament is conducted as he sees it. The man engaged is not only a practical farmer, but is well able to write such a letter. He is said to be a man absolutely free from political prejudice, and, no doubt, his weekly letter will be of great interest to all Canadian farmers.

The Family Herald and Weekly Star costs only one dollar a year, or will be sent on trial to a new subscriber for the session (about six months) for only twenty-five cents.

Forestry and S[illegible]

Two Government Le[illegible]

Valuable Pointers G[illegible] Tree Planting and[illegible]

The farmers of this district who who attended the Institute meeting on Wednesday afternoon were well rewarded by the two practical addresses on forestry and on soil cultivation. Unfortunately the weather has been cold during the days preceding the meeting and the number of farmers from outside points was small. Jas. Fleming presided.

The first speaker, A. Mitchell, of the Forestry branch, Indian Head, gave an interesting talk on tree planting and the care of trees on the farm, outlining the policy of the department and giving useful information on the growing of wind-breaks and shelter belts.

In his opening remarks Mr. Mitchell claimed that his department while it was not directly concerned with the raising of farm crops, was concerned with a side of farm life, and was equally important. He came to make a plea for the completion of the farm home, holding, as he did, that it was impossible to raise the highest quality of man unless some natural beauty something more than the bare stretches of prairie were provided for our youth during the formative period.

During the coming summer the department of the interior would distribute no less than thirteen million trees. It was for the farmers of this district to take advantage of their opportunities to create this beauty, from the purely utilitarian standpoint greatly adding to the value of their farms and providing protection for their crops. Many crops which were destroyed when the hot winds came in the summer would have been saved had a windbreak been provided. It might be said by some that trees could not be grown in the Medicine Hat district. Mr. Mitchell was convinced to the contrary. Last time he was in Medicine Hat he had seen thriving trees out on the open prairie fifteen miles from the city. Success or failure depended in the main on the way in which the trees were planted. Many men dug a square hole, planked in the tree and filled in the soil, and then waited patiently for results. It required great faith to make a tree grow under such circumstances. For successful tree planting it was necessary to have the land in good order. If new land, it should be broken and backset the year before, worked down and left solid for spring. If land previously under cultivation, it should be summer-fallowed the year before planting. It was unnecessary to water a tree, and in fact the speaker had only watered two trees since he came to the country. Farming in this country depended entirely on the amount of moisture that was conserved in the soil. It was doubtless good healthy exercise for a business man to spend his evenings with a little waterine can watering trees as such it was not to be discouraged but it was absolutely unnecessary in nine cases out of ten.

Going on to deal with the setting out of a plantation on the farm, Mr. Mitchell advised a wide belt (20 or 30 yards wide) of closely planted trees. There should be a distance of about 150 feet between the inside row of the plantation and the buildings. The trees should be planted 4 feet apart, not more. When the time came for thinning out the work could be done with an axe. Till then for the sake of moisture conservation it was better to have the trees closely planted.

Mr. Mitchell explained that all applications for trees must be made before the 1st March of this year for 1910 delivery, if an application came in late the trees could not be delivered till 1911. He asked each of his bachelor hearers to leave his name and address on his shack door when away from home. This would be a great help to the representative of the forestry branch should he chance to call around.

The most suitable varieties for planting were cottonwoods, (native of this district) the maple, (also a native of Medicine Hat) and the ash. No trouble would be found with any of these trees in this district. While hundreds of thousands of pines were being grown at Indian Head, it would be some years before these were ready for distribution.

Ornamental and fruit trees were not distributed by the department. If these were to be successfully grown however, it was absolutel essential that a shelter belt should be provided. Strawberries would thrive here. In Calgary they had been grown also at Macleod where the rainfall was below our average.

The growth of trees in large quantities did for the soil in a natural way, what the farmer accomplished in an artificial one. Humidity tests in a certain case had shown the following remarkable results: Twenty yards within a belt of trees the precipitation was found to be 50 per cent. greater than at a point one hundred yards from the belt.

The time was coming when practical teaching in horticulture, forestry etc., would form an important branch of rural education. For this reason at least four acres of land should be taken up for rural schools, that there might be ample space for plantation purposes.

For the pruning of trees, the best time was in June when the grow[illegible]

Last time he was in Medicine Hat he had seen thriving trees out on the open prairie fifteen miles from the city. Success or failure depended in the main on the way in which the trees were planted. Many men dug a square hole, planked in a tree and filled in the soil, and then waited patiently for results. It required great faith to make a tree grow under such circumstances. For successful tree planting it was necessary to have the land in good order. If new land, it should be broken and backset the year before, worked down and left solid for spring. If land previously under cultivation, it should be summer-fallowed the year before planting. It was unnecessary to water a tree, and in fact the speaker had only watered two trees since he came to the country. Farming in this country depended entirely on the amount of moisture that was conserved in the soil. It was doubtless good healthy exercise for a business man to spend his evenings with a little waterine can watering trees; as such it was not to be discouraged but it was absolutely unnecessary in nine cases out of ten.

Going on to deal with the setting out of a plantation on the farm, Mr Mitchell advised a wide belt (20 or 30 yards wide) of closely planted trees. There should be a distance of about 150 feet between the inside row of the plantation and the buildings. The trees should be planted 4 feet apart, not more. When the time came for thinning out the work could be done with an axe. Till then for the sake of moisture conservation it was better to have the trees closely planted.

Mr. Mitchell explained that all applications for trees must be made before the 1st March of this year, for 1910 delivery. If an application came in late the trees could not be delivered till 1911. He asked each of his bachelor hearers to leave his name and address on his shack door when away from home. This would be a great help to the representative of the forestry branch should he chance to call around.

The most suitable varieties for planting were cottonwoods, (natives of this district) the maple, (also a native of Medicine Hat) and the ash. No trouble would be found with any of these trees in this district. While hundreds of thousands of pines were being grown at Indian Head, it would be some years before these were ready for distribution.

Ornamental and fruit trees were not distributed by the department. If these were to be successfully grown however, it was absolutely essential that a shelter belt should be provided. Strawberries would thrive here in Calgary they had been grown and at Macleod where the rainfall came below our average.

The growth of trees in large quantities did for the soil in a natural way, what the farmer accomplished in an artificial one. Humidity tests in a certain case had shown the following remarkable results: Twenty yards within a belt of trees the precipitation was found to be 50 per cent. greater than at a point one hundred yards from the belt.

The time was coming when practical teaching in horticulture, forestry etc., would form an important branch of rural education. For this reason at least four acres of land should be taken up for rural schools, that there might be ample space for plantation purposes.

For the pruning of trees the best time was in June when the growth was rapid and the wounds healed over rapidly. Pruning however was unnecessary in the case of plantation trees. There was a great fascination about pruning to the average farmer. His primaeval instincts prompted him to get out and destroy something. The man with a pruning hook was merely the grown school-boy who found a savage joy in running amuck with a new pocket-knife.

As to the preparation of the soil, plow deep, cultivate carefully, and set the sapling firm.

D. W. Warner, of Edmonton, dealt with the subject of soil cultivation. Three years ago, he said, he had remarked that the people of this district were not paying proper attention to dry farming. He was glad to hear that this year a considerable area was under the Campbell system. Many years ago in Nebraska an exodus of the people began, hundreds of settlers leaving the country after a dry year. A few of them who had planted groves, which provided shelter from the hot winds, however, were able to raise good crops of corn. Last winter the speaker had gone back over the old ground and he had been amazed to see the change that had been brought about. Signs of prosperity were in evidence on every hand—this in a country which had been considered a wilderness, a country which was subject to hot winds far hotter than anything known in Medicine Hat, in the old days an eight or twelve bushel crop was considered good, today 30 to 60 bushels of wheat to the acre were produced. The Campbell system of scientific soil culture was mainly responsible for the change. The average rainfall in Nebraska was 12 to 13 inches; the average in Medicine Hat, 14 to 15 inches. In Utah splendid crops were produced with only a 7 inch rainfall.

Mr. Warner then explained the method by which soil moisture could be best conserved. An interesting experiment had been carried out to see the depth to which the moisture would circulate. In this case it sank 10 feet. If by means of moisture percolated to three feet below the surface sufficient would be stored to carry the country over any number of dry years.

Breaking should be carried out when the vegetation was growing fastest—in May or June. In six weeks the discs should be used, being set to a depth of 2 or 3 inches. The wheel packer should be used for packing purposes.

After a crop had been cut, the disc should be put right in behind the binder, the harrows should next be used. In the spring special care should be taken to prevent the formation of a crust.

A farmer who had failed to plow or disc his stubble fields last fall asked a question as to the best plan to be adopted. Mr. Warner replied that, first thing in the spring, he should harrow, then disc (this however was hardly necessary), then follow with the packer.

Raise on breaking first crop of winter wheat. Follow with a crop of coarse grain. Let the binder be followed up by the disc. Summer fallow the following year. In this district the farmer should be able to raise crops two years out of three. In the northern country they raise three crops out of four; in Utah, one out of two. One great advantage to the farmer who adopted the Campbell system accrued from the saving in labor which was involved.

At the close of his address Mr. Warner strongly advised against the growing of spring wheat when it was at all possible to grow the winter variety. Alberta Red, he said, was the peer of any wheat raised in the world. It would bring better prices than any other. At present, however, Alberta Red was sent east and sold along with Manitoba varieties, this province losing credit for its hard wheat. Dealers had gained one cent a bushel more for Alberta winter wheat than for Manitoba No. 1 hard. When however, the Western grain route was established, it would be possible to ship all winter through. When terminal elevators had been established ten cents a bushel more would be received by the grain growers than could be obtained under the system of eastern shipment.

Y. M. C. Election.

At the annual meeting of the Y. M. C. for the election of officers held last Tuesday evening in the basement of the Methodist church the following appointments were made:

Hon. Pres.—Rev A. C. Farrell.
President—W. J. Dinsmick.
Vice-Pres.—E. J. Frost.
Secretary—A. G. Trotman.
Treasurer—E. B. Muir.

The Rev. A. C. Farrell was in the chair.

VALENTINE SOCIAL

There will be a Valentine social tonight in the basement of the Methodist church under the auspices of the Epworth league. A good program will be given. Admission 25 cents. Everybody welcome.

Council Meeting.

The regular meeting of the council was held last night in the city hall, there being present the Mayor, Aldermen Robertson, Meany, Morrow, Spencer, Collier, Howson and Fearhaie.

As Mr. Roberts was desirous of getting away on the evening train for the west, the council took up the consideration of the bylaw relating to the appointments of secretary-treasurer and assistant secretary-treasurer. Mr. Roberts having withdrawn his application, it was necessary to amend the bylaw by the insertion of another name for the position. The applications were considered, and Messrs. Howson and Collier. The bonds were fixed at $5,000 and $2,000, for the two offices.

Communications were then dealt with, that of Professor Edwards being the first on the list. Professor Edwards will lecture on matters connected with sewerage and water purification, on the evening of the 26th inst.

Ald. Huckvale wrote from England requesting three months leave of absence which was granted on Ald. Spencer's motion.

A letter from W. McCutcheon was read in which it was stated that the son of W. G. Laidlaw had been on the writer's hands as a boarder for many months, the father, who was away from the city contributing nothing towards his support. Referred to the health and relief committee.

The mayor then made a verbal report of the visit of himself and Mr. Spence to Edmonton. This matter is dealt with in another column.

The claim of Robert Mitchell for $50 as compensation for inconvenience caused by the turning off of his water supply by a city employee, was referred to the water commissioners.

A reply was received from O. W. Ealy in reference to the turning in of lanes to the city treasurer and the tendering of a monthly account of monies received. In explanation of this matter the mayor stated that some injustice had been done Mr. Ealy, not through any intention on the part of the council. The blame he seemed to imply lay with the local newspapers for having reported the proceedings. Mr. Ealy had been in the habit of turning over all fees on the first of the month, and when the treasurer's report was presented to the council the monies had been already handed in. Ald. Spencer said that the council had no thought of wrong, but was of the opinion that the council should have monthly returns. It was decided that the secretary-treasurer should take up the matter with Mr. Ealy, and have receipt forms printed.

An application from W. H. Appleton of Winnipeg for a position as sanitary inspector was filed.

Auditor Krauss wrote submitting information regarding secretary-treasurer's bond premium ($40 a year on a $10,000 bond) and accident policies for the firemen. The first part of his report was referred to the finance committee; the second to the fire, water and light committee.

The Mayor reported that the agreement between Bennett & Hamilton and the city had been obtained during the day and also that A. P. Davis had given a guarantee to the city so that blocks A, B and C, Industrial Place, and the necessary right-of-way could be transferred as soon as the spur track was built.

The Mayor then read the offers for the two blocks of debentures $15,000 for the new gas well and $6,500 for the spur track. Altogether twelve bids were received three ranging from 100.14 to 104.39, with accrued interest, the offer of the Dominion Securities Co., which was finally accepted. This is the highest figure yet obtained for Medicine Hat debentures.

A verbal report was given by the Mayor in regard to the sitting of the Railway Commission yesterday morning. By general consent, he said, the question of the Ottawa St. right-of-way had been dismissed. Main St. had been established as a level crossing, the question of liabilities being left in abeyance for the present. The city had obtained the right to construct at their own expense a pedestrian subway on Toronto St., from South to North Railway Sts. In regard to River St., Superintendent Price of the C. P. R. had taken exception to the making of a level crossing so close to Main St., pointing out that such would not do much to relieve congestion. If Main St. were blocked, River St. would be blocked also. The city, however, obtained permission to construct a driveway between the east pier and east abutment of the Saskatchewan bridge. The Mayor had come to an agreement with Mr. Price by which this decision was agreed to in place of a crossing. A resolution of the council was passed approving of this action.

Renewal of notices of introduction of bylaws in regard to gas well and debentures for cement sidewalks and sewers was given. J. T. Hall was appointed assessor for the year at a salary of $600.

FRIDAY'S MEETING

A special meeting of the council was held on Friday night at 8 o'clock for the purpose of considering the public works to be undertaken during the year. In the absence of the mayor, Ald. McKay was elected chairman, the other members present being Aldermen Morrow, Spencer, Collier and Howson.

The estimates for sidewalks were whole and extensions were agreed first considered in committee of the whole. The total amount was $15,159.00.

The consideration of sewer extensions was then taken up and the following agreed upon. Consideration of further sewer construction was left over for a future meeting. Ald. Howson took the stand that as little as possible should be spent on permanent work this year:

Toronto St. from 6th Ave to Road Allowance	$2 375.00
Main St. from 4th Ave. to Road Allowance	3,702.00
Esplanade from 6th Ave to Herald St.	2 614.00
	$8.691.00

Ald. Spencer brought up the matter of telephone poles being erected on the streets and avenue. At Calgary, he said, the civic authorities had strongly objected to this practice and he thought we should take up a similar attitude. It was not advisable to have these eyesores on the streets. A resolution was carried, and will be forwarded to the provincial government on Ald. Spencer's motion stating that in view of the fact that it is not desirable to have telephone poles on the street the lanes be used for this and similar purposes. The local telephone manager it was stated, had been spoken to and had said the only extra work was required in making use of the lanes. The government department said Ald. Spencer were deriving a considerable amount of money from the towns, and to the present there had been no reduction in rates worth mentioning at ---- rate to the general public.

Ald. Collier drew attention to the dangerous state of the wires on the corner of Toronto and South Railway St. He had himself seen nasty accident at this corner a horse having fallen over the wire. The city would have been liable had any serious injury been caused. Ald. Morrow pointed out that the obstruction was of a temporary nature. When the poles were confined to the lanes no such a situation would not arise.

It was stated that the city engineer had stopped the erection of poles on the city streets.

The council adjourned at about 10.30.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

A most enjoyable and interesting program marked the regular meeting of the P. S. A. Bible Class on Sunday afternoon. About 40 men were present.

The growth of this class has been phenomenal, there being already about 60 members on the roll and the hundred mark is expected to be reached in a few weeks.

The selections by the orchestra were excellently rendered and were indeed a musical treat not often enjoyed in this city.

The class was privileged also to listen to Mr. Lampman, of whom a soloist of remarkable ability. Medicine Hat may well be proud. His song, "The Pilgrim" needless to say was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The class banquet will be held on Thursday evening when the members of the class in song, speech, music, and the satisfying of the inner man will come together to get acquainted and to enjoy themselves socially.

BUSINESS CHANGE

The Crystal Ice Co., of which Mr. P. Robertson is manager, have bought out the ice business formerly carried on by Williamson & Nichol. The new firm have put up a large quantity of ice, in preparation for the coming season. Orders are being received at the Medicine Hat Trading Co., and at Morrow's store. Their ad. appears in another part of the paper.

The Railway Commission

The Railway Commission in a short sitting yesterday morning disposed of all the matters outstanding between the city and the C. P. R. in a satisfactory manner to all concerned. Main St. will remain an open crossing for all time to come, the question of liability to be taken up at a later date when the need of a decision exists. The city have permission to construct at their own expense a pedestrian subway on Toronto Street, the plans to be approved by the Railway Commission, and a driveway between the east abutment and east pier of the railway bridge. The question of an Ottawa St. right-of-way is dropped.

J. J. Hahally legally represented the city, and R. B. Bennett, K. C., of Calgary, the C. P. R. Mayor Milne also appeared for the city and it was as the result of a conference between the Mayor and the company's officials that the driveway under the bridge was agreed upon. General Superintendent Price, Superintendent Matlock, F. W. Peters, assistant to the Second Vice-President were among the representatives of the railway. Mr. Heimer represented the Dominion Express Company.

SKATING PARTY

The R. T. of T. skating party on Friday evening at the rink was largely attended by the members of the order, and a most enjoyable time was spent. A hockey match was played in which the ladies as well as the gentlemen participated and a number of races were keenly contested, after which those present enjoyed a pleasant hour and a half in skating. At ten o'clock the party assembled at the lodge room and an address was presented to Mr. E. S. Frost, who finds that personal business will prevent him from continuing his duties as superintendent of the Silver Medal contests. Mr. Frost in a few well chosen words expressed his thanks for the kind words of appreciation bestowed on him. Prizes for the season presented the prizes to the winners of the races and refreshments were served by the ladies.

MORE RAILWAYS FOR MEDICINE HAT

Among the railway bills presented on Monday at Edmonton was one from Mr. Bredin, Athasasca, for the Alberta Northwestern Railway.

This railway was incorporated in 1906, and has a charter to build a line north from Edmonton to a point near the intersection of the western boundary and Peace river, touching at Athabasca Landing, Lesser Slave Lake, Peace River crossing and Dunvegan, and also to build south to the International boundary through Medicine Hat. The incorporators include Mr. Justice Beck and E. C. Emery, Edmonton. Their time limit for commencing construction expired last year, and the time limit for having the road completed expires in 1911.

Electric Railway for Medicine Hat

Southern Alberta Railway Company Obtain Charter

District Tributary to this city Will be Opened Up

On Saturday afternoon Mayor Milne and Mr. A. M. Grace returned from Edmonton, where they had been in consultation with the provincial government for several days. The object of their mission was to urge upon the government the passage of a charter for the Southern Alberta Railway Co., and before the Mayor left the capital the scheme had been approved by the railway committee of the legislature; Mr. Grace was still in the northern city when the bill passed its third reading. To a Times representative the mayor and Mr. Grace expressed great satisfaction with the results accomplished.

The new line will pass through the country between the main line of the C. P. R. and the Bow river which the Southern Alberta Land Company are about to irrigate. According to the original proposal the eastern terminus of the line was to be at Suffield, and the western terminus at Calgary. In the interests of Medicine Hat however it was considered desirable to have the line extended to this city, and the deleration made representations to that effect to the premier. When the bill came up before the railway committee of the House, the representatives of Medicine Hat and of the land company were successful in getting an amendment made, whereby the charter will be granted from a point on the C. P. R. at Medicine Hat, in a northwesterly direction through the irrigation company's lands, up to section 12, township 15, range 7 thence in a westerly direction to Suffield, southwesterly to the forks of the Bow and Belly rivers, thence northwesterly to Lake McGregor and to the western terminus in Calgary. A great part of the district covered is already filled with homesteaders; the new railway will open up a vast tract of country for settlement, and in the very near future will be employed in hauling the harvests of the irrigated lands. The power obtained from the new gas well and from other wells to be sunk by the company will be converted into electrical energy for the operation of the road.

The Hon. W. T. Finlay was interviewed in Edmonton in regard to the demonstration farm, and stated that he had been successful in securing from the Department of Interior a section of land for this purpose. Work will be started on the opening of spring, and the farm which will be under the direct supervision of the provincial department of agriculture will be placed under the care of one of Professor Campbell's men. It will be remembered that the original intention was to use only a quarter section for demonstration purposes.

The Conservative Convention

Most Enthusiastic Gathering in Red Deer

A Platform That Will Carry the Country

(Special to The Times)

The most enthusiastic gathering of Conservatives ever held in Alberta was that which concluded Saturday afternoon in Red Deer. About 200 prominent men from all parts of Alberta gathered and formulated a platform which will give the Alberta Government most uneasy moments. The sentiment of the Convention was that the Conservatives would win out this election, and the organization undertaken will make the fight one of great hopes for the present Opposition.

The Convention was opened on Friday afternoon and lasted until Saturday at 6 p.m. every delegate being in attendance every minute of the sessions, and bringing to bear upon the questions discussed the experience and ability of some of the cleverest men in the Province. The platform adopted was brought forward only after deep consideration by the entire Convention. A proposal to have a resolution committee to draw up the the platform was promptly defeated upon motion of the Leader, A. J. Robertson. The result was that the platform is made up of the expressed sentiments of the entire delegation and not of a few party leaders. Perfect unanimity prevailed throughout the Convention.

President—Dr. Brett, Banff.
Vice-Pres., (North)—J. D. Hyndman, Edmonton.
Vice-Pres., (South)—J. T. Hamilton, Calgary.
Sec.-Treas., to be appointed by the President.

The platform which was adopted is being put into shape by the committee on resolutions, and will be published in the near future.

A feature of the last meeting of the Convention was the exposure of a great number of details in connection with the financial transactions of the present government that will show up a feature of the administration that has never been suspected by the people of the Province. Every department is concerned in these financial grafts and the details will be made public in due time.

Medicine Hat was represented at the Convention by Major Sissons and Messrs. Geo. McDonald and W. L. Ing, and Victor Page. Major Sissons was a member of the committee to revise and issue to the press a Conservative platform the other members being Messrs. Walsh, Morrison, Ewing, McKinley, Hiebert, McKee and Dr. Stanley.

GENERAL HOSPITAL ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the General Hospital was held in the city hall on Friday the 5th inst.

Mr. F. G. Forster, vice-president, occupied the chair and read the annual report in the absence of the president, Mr. J. K. Drinnan.

The report showed satisfactory progress during the past year. It was adopted on motion of Messrs. E. S. Martin and S. T. Hopper.

The secretary-treasurer's report presented by Mr. R. J. Fewings, was as follows:

The auditors report was adopted, after which Dr. Smyth, medical superintendent, read his report. This showed 826 patients treated, an increase of 11 over 1907. There were 52 deaths during the year, including 3 infants who died in the maternity hospital, 5 who died of injuries within 48 hours of admission, and 6 incurables. The new wing had proved of great convenience during the year.

The directors for the year were elected as follows:

J. H. Craig, O. W. Ealy, F. G. Forster, F. L. Crawford, E. S. Martin, J. K. Drinnan, W. A. Burton, J. H. Cunliffe, S. T. Hopper, T. H. Hutchinson, Thos. McKay, R. J. Adsit, Wm. Crawford, E. J. Fewings, A. E. Wiffin and D. G. White.

Mr. Walter Crosskill was elected members' auditor.

A discussion followed on the matter of the site for the isolation hospital. This was finally left in the hands of the directors to bring before the council.

The usual votes of thanks were then passed.

The following officers for the year were elected at a meeting of the directors held later:

President—J. K. Drinnan.
Vice-Pres.—F. G. Forster.
Sec.-Treas.—E. J. Fewings.
Executive Committee—J. Cunliffe, O. W. Ealy and F. L. Crawford.

Mock Parliament

Suffrage Bill to be Introduced on F[illegible]

The Times is able to publish this week the text of the Women's Enfranchisement bill to be introduced in the Mock Parliament on Friday evening. Last week on one cabinet minister was on hand at the hour fixed for the opening of proceedings—and it is significant that he was averse to the holding of a sitting. It had been rumored that a delay in introducing the suffrage bill had kindled the ire of the suffragettes militant and the safety of cabinet front bench politicians on the Government side became a matter of serious concern. The Opposition found themselves in a majority but forbore to bring about a political crisis, because, as they, no doubt, to take office at a time when the administration of the affairs is attended by such perils to her statesmen.

This week Miss Land says that the Cabinet will be prepared to face the music, and ex-ministers, who have been urged to attend the visitors' gallery on Friday of this week and the week following, when the result of the referendum will be delivered.

Ballots will be published in next week's paper, and the people will be invited to pronounce upon this absorbing question.

A BILL FOR THE ENFRANCHISEMENT OF WOMEN

TITLE

The Title of this bill shall be a "Bill for the enfranchisement of women:"

Whereas: the consequences of the administration of the affairs of Government are borne alike by men and women,

And whereas: the intelligence of the women of this country in matters pertaining to Government is fully equal to that of the men,

And whereas the standard of intelligence is presumed to be one of the first prerequisites for the proper exercise of the right of franchise,

And whereas: the women of this country are constantly urging their demands for the right of franchise,

And whereas: in England at the present time a bitter struggle is being waged by the suffragettes to to obtain this right, thereby causing grievous turmoil and agitation,

And whereas: it has been found necessary in that country to provide a bodyguard for the protection of the person and lives of the Cabinet Ministers against the violence of the suffragette agitators,

And whereas: it can be reasonably anticipated that a like condition will presently exist in this country in the event of the franchise being further withheld from the women,

And whereas: it is deemed expedient by this government to preclude the possibility of any such violent agitation,

Therefore: His Majesty, by and with the consent of the Senate and the House of Commons, enacts as follows, to wit:

That the right of franchise be extended to all women over the age of twenty-one years, always subject however, to the same restrictions and qualifications for voting as are imposed upon men.

PLAY BY LOCAL TALENT

"Ten Nights in a Bar-room," a temperance drama in five acts, will be presented by local talent in the opera house on Friday, March 12th, and already a large number of tickets have been disposed of. There are over a dozen characters in the caste and the rehearsals are well advanced. An excellent orchestra will furnish excellent special music, and local talent will also contribute between the acts. The story is a pathetic but instructive one, with a moral which should appeal to all, and a vein of comedy runs throughout which furnishes plenty of clean humor.

start with a swing as soon as the meeting of the old Calgary baseball club has been held. This meeting has been called to be held within the next few days, the exact date to be decided by Dr. Stewart president of the old club.

This action of Calgary in deciding to have a team is the turning point toward professional baseball in the province. Edmonton, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat have been anxious to again have the game, but they have expressed themselves as willing to be guided by Calgary's actions. If Calgary went into the proposition, these cities would follow, if Calgary decided to have no team then these cities would relinquish the idea.

So Calgary's action last night has decided that there will be good baseball here this summer and all that we will have to do now will be to get a good team of champions.

Mr. Lamb goes east tonight. He will go to Winnipeg and then within the next two weeks there will be held at Regina a meeting of the delegates from the proposed cities in the league, Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw or Saskatoon, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Edmonton and Calgary. Delegates will have to be appointed in each of the above named towns to attend this meeting to take the final organization steps in the league. Within a couple of days of the old Calgary baseball club will be held and the business of electing a delegate to go to the meeting at Regina will be held. The meeting at Regina will be held. But the main point is that Calgary this year will have good baseball and so have opportunities of seeing Calgary and the Alberta cities competing with cities of Saskatchewan and Manitoba for diamond honors in the west.

At the meeting of the Calgary club which is to be held it will also be decided what salary limit the club will ask for at the meeting at Regina. Each delegate from each city will be instructed in this and the final decision will be reached at the meeting at Regina.

The baseball enthusiasts of the Montreal Street School have organized for the coming season. The following team was drawn up at a meeting on Thursday the 4th inst.

A South African exchange has reported records made by R. E. Walker at Johannesburg of December 26:

"For an ordinary athletic sports meeting to be the occasion of the establishment of a world's record is a great thing, and Walker did that when he covered the 120 yards in 11 2-5 seconds at the Wanderers Athletic and Cycling club sports at Johannesburg on Boxing day. There were two attempts on the pistol, the champion ran in marvellous fashion catching the leader, Craighead, 40 yards from home and beating him by 2½ yards at least. At the close Walker was going strongly. There were four other official timekeepers and two competent and reputable people held watches for the purpose of making an independent check. In all the cases the time agreed at 11 2-5 seconds.

"In the 100 yards first heat Walker's time was 9 2-5 sec. and again it can safely be said that he did the distance in a fraction under the 9 3-5. In the final there was trouble with the starting and he was beaten by the pistol. Nevertheless he made his average of 9 3-5. He was 2 yards short of the winner, and the time was 9 2-5 seconds."

(Calgary Albertan)

If the plans of one or two local hockey managers materialize, Calgary will have a semi-professional hockey next year, and steps have already been taken to organize a league composed of Edmonton, Calgary will have semi-professional.

From the support given professional hockey in Edmonton and Strathcona the professional league would be an assured success, from a financial standpoint, and it is felt that good games such as this league would provide, Calgary and Nelson would give good support.

Another reason why professional hockey would go in Calgary, according to those interested, is the fact that a new rink will be built right in the heart of the city. Plans are already being prepared, and the rink will be built suitable for hockey.

There are two or three good local players who could catch a place on the professional team, and, as they play in no other branches of sport, would not mind being professionalized. To complete the team arrangements would be made to import a few eastern players, and in this way a fast aggregation of players could be scraped together.

Under the old rules the Alberta Amateur Athletic association, which is a branch of the C. A. A. U., have jurisdiction over the following games: Basketball, fencing, football, gymnastics, handball, hockey, lacrosse, skating, snow-shoeing, swimming, rowing, canoeing and track events.

Under the new regulations, which will come in force next month, other events are expected to be added to this list.

New York, Feb. 9—The managers of Tom Longboat, the Indian Marathon runner, announced today that they had decided to accept the offer of a $7,500 purse for a fifteen mile race in Buffalo on Feb. 25 with Alfred Shrubb, the speed Englishman, who was defeated for the Marathon distance of 26 miles and a fraction by the Indian in Madison Square Garden last Friday night. Shrubb's seconds are sanguine that he can defeat Longboat at the shorter distance.

Bill Hatcher, the point and mainstay of the Medicine Hat lacrosse team, is in the city for a few days, and has the dope on next season's lacrosse.

When the time comes to handle the sticks, Bill says the Hat is going to be right in line, and only the Alberta championship will satisfy them this year. The Mad Hatters will have a considerably strengthened team this year. All of last season's players are available besides several new men who blew into the Hat a few months ago.

They also intend to get a line on some more material and with the material they will then have on hand it will go all the way towards making a championship team.

Bill is looking in first class shape and he was kept pretty busy yesterday shaking hands with his many Calgary friends. Mr. Hatcher is well known in Calgary having played here against New Westminster. He is a good player and a Calgary uniform would be very becoming to him this season.

The American Kid was in the city last week on his way to Moose Jaw where he has a fight on with Woolar in the near future.

Mr. Cousins in Portland

(The Portland Journal)

Portland cannot call itself its own today. Spokane possesses it. From 11 o'clock this morning, when Secretary Levi G. Munroe, of the Spokane chamber of commerce arrived with his 225 Spokane and inland empire boosters, en route to California, until late this afternoon, not so much as the peep of a Portland booster was heard. Without ostentation Spokane captured the city.

Due to arrive at 9 o'clock the special O. R. & N. train bearing the excursion did not arrive until nearly 12 o'clock. The "seeing Portland" trip planned by the Commercial club was therefore postponed until this afternoon, the excursionists taking cars at 1.30 o'clock. From the depot the party proceeded immediately to the Portland hotel where lunch was served.

Following lunch booster addresses were made by Levi G. Munroe of Spokane, H. Wittenberg and Tom Richardson of Portland, Mayor Hebert Moore of Spokane and W. Cousins of Medicine Hat, Alberta. Tom Richardson presided and managed after some difficulty to intersperse a few boosts for Portland into his brief introductory address.

At 6.30 o'clock tonight dinner will be served for the visitors at the Commercial club. Following the banquet an informal reception will be held. After the reception the members of the party will go directly to the depot and aboard the special train, which will leave for the south at 10.30 o'clock.

The itinerary includes all prominent California pleasure resorts as far south as Los Angeles, where the chamber of commerce will entertain the inland empire visitors. The party will return before May 4, 1909.

"I want to say a word about Portland's hospitality," said Secretary Munroe this afternoon. "You will remember that we made this same trip last winter, and ever since that time the Spokane people have been talking of the cordiality of Portland people and of their free hospitality. In the California cities our treatment was the best but somehow it doesn't approach that of the Portland people. I think it must be that we are all of the same people."

A prosecution was made under by-law No. 6 governing the age limit for admission into pool rooms. Jas Rice, a youth under age (under 18 years), was brought before the magistrate and allowed to go with a caution.

For refusing to pay wages Geo. Hewson was prosecuted by an ex-employee. An order was made for payment, the accused giviving notice of appeal.

On Thursday last A. B. Ansell was fined $5 for drunkness and disorderly conduct.

COULD NOT GO TO WORK BACK WAS SO WEAK.

Backache is the primary cause of kidney trouble. When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are likely to become affected.

Heed the warning; check the Backache and dispose of any chances of further trouble.

If you don't, serious complications are very apt to arise and the first thing you know you will have Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of Kidney Trouble.

Mr. James Bryant, Arichat, N.S., was troubled with his back and used Doan's Kidney Pills, he writes: "I cannot say too much about the benefit I received after using three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was greatly troubled with an aching pain across the small of my back. I could not go to work and my back was so weak I would have to sit down. It would go away for a few days but would always return. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I must say they completely cured me."

The School Board

At the regular meeting of the school board held on Monday night the 8th inst., in the secretary-treasurer's office there were present: Mr. W. J. Brotherton, chairman, Messrs. Kennedy and Fatt, trustees.

The first communication to be dealt with was from Geo. G. McBean of Regina, who submitted prices for collections of insects, etc., for use in the teaching of natural history in the schools. Mr. McBean had previously written to Mr. Sansom, and asked the latter to bring the matter to the attention of the board. A sample case which had been sent showed the life history of a moth. Mr. Sansom pointed out that although natural history was taught in every standard above Standard 2, yet at the present time there was nothing in the nature of a natural history collection to illustrate the lessons. Mr. Fatt, while agreeable to the purchase of a series, for use in all the higher forms thought an effort should be made among the pupils themselves towards the gathering of a collection of insects of the district. Such would be of great educational value. The board decided to purchase one set of specimens.

The Atlas School Supply Co. wrote regarding map cases damaged in transit. Mr. Kennedy was appointed to look into the matter.

Two resolutions were read by the chairman, one passed by the Alberta trustees in Strathcona and the other by the provincial legislature in favor of the flying of larger national flags on all schools during public holidays and the placing of the flag in prominent places in the school-rooms. A discussion ensued as to the best method of carrying out the recommendations. One plan suggested by Mr. Fatt was to have the Union Jack and the Canadian Ensign in each class room. Mr. Hill suggested that portraits of the King and Queen and Canada's public men might be obtained and hung upon the school walls the ensign and the Union Jack being placed over each portrait. The communications were laid on the table, and the matter of the flags will be taken up at a later date after further enquiries have been made.

Mr. E. Roberts sent in his resignation as secretary-treasurer. This was accepted and Friday night appointed as the date up to which applications for the position will be received.

The deputy minister of education wrote in reply to the board's enquiries in regard to vaccination. It was stated that the educational authorities had the right to refuse admission to unvaccinated pupils. As to the right of the local authorities to pass a vaccination bylaw the deputy minister of education should be consulted. No arrangements, however, had been made for the provision of pure vaccine by the province and on this account the board decided to take no further action for the present, holding that the element of danger was too great in using anything but the pure lymph.

The matter of an account against Mr. McEwen for pane of glass broken by his daughter was brought up for a second time, Mr. McEwen having objected to settling the account. The secretary-treasurer was instructed to write insisting on payment.

Principal Sansom's report called attention to the lack of punctuality in Toronto Street school. An improvement had taken place during the past few months, but especially in the higher classes, the standard was still below the mark. If the pupils should persist in abusing privilege of entering their class rooms late, it might be found in the best interests of the school to withdraw the privilege entirely.

The report of the delegates to the provincial convention of trustees was a very interesting document, and a large part of the sitting of the board was taken up in discussion. It was stated that the next convention would be held in Lethbridge, an invitation to that city having been extended by Mr. Harry Fleetwood, the father of the association. Among the resolutions passed by the convention was one in favor of the raising of the school tax on leased land from $1.50 to $3.20 an acre. This had been strongly opposed by the delegates from the ranching districts who pointed out that the adoption of such an increase in taxation would kill the grazing business. It afterwards transpired that the intention of the mover of the resolution was to make holders of land for speculative purposes pay a larger share; the conditions of the southern grazers had never been considered.

The financial statement for 1908 was adopted and will be printed in accordance with a resolution passed at the annual meeting.

Estimates for 1909 were adopted, and the secretary-treasurer instructed to write to the council asking for $21,000.

Mr. Kennedy was appointed to look into the matter of a janitor for the extra room rented from the Anglican church.

The council adjourned till Friday evening.

Crisis in British Politics

London, February 12—Prime Minister Asquith will start this year's session of Parliament with a numerically small programme. Its importance, however, is expected to exceed that of any session of recent years.

The outstanding feature will be the budget. Not for many years have any radical changes been made in the system of taxation. This year, it is predicted will see a departure. In speeches Cabinet Ministers have said that the budget will not be a radical one. "If there are no radical changes" asked the critics of the government, "how do you propose to meet the increased charges with a greatly reduced revenue?" This is the difficult question the country is waiting for Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to answer.

Experts estimate that between the necessity of financing old-age pensions; the promised additional expenditures of the navy to keep it up to the two-power standard; the certainty of a large realized deficit, likely to be repeated on the basis of taxation, and various incidental and automatic increases, the country will have to find nearly one hundred million dollars more than ordinarily for the coming financial year.

The Labor party and Radicals are demanding the removal of certain disabilities in the old-age pension scheme, which at present exclude many old people. If the demands are acceded to and consideration of them has been promised, the increased cost will make increased taxation necessary.

To provide England with a fleet ten per cent. better than the combined navies of America and Germany, as pledged in the two-power standard, the most conservative naval officers say the coming budget must provide for at least five capital ships. There are those who hold that America should be excluded from the estimate as being a most improbable enemy, but Cabinet Ministers have made no definite reservations, and even if they do the navy estimates must be greater this year than for years past.

The deficit also presents a great problem. Of six methods suggested the most likely are: Increase of payments on account of public debt, which the present government has prided itself on; taking part of the required amount from the sinking fund; a heavy super-tax on large incomes and increase of death duties. A powerful section of the Unionists are urging Lord Landsdowne, the leader of the House of Lords, to reject the budget should it be considered too radical. The result would be an appeal to the country.

Other measures likely to find place in the programme are the House and Town planning and Church Land Purchase amendment bills put off from the last session; the India Reform Bill, and a bill providing for the compulsory acquisition of land for the afforestation scheme, recommended by a commission which recently reported.

Ninety Millions for Railways

In a recent number of The Contract Record the following review is given of railway construction in 1908, and prospects for 1909:

"It is estimated that it will take no less a sum than ninety million to carr out the various Canadian projects for 1909; and this estimate is a conservative one, based upon contracts already placed, and plans confirmed.

"In 1908 railway lines in this country increased 21 per cent., or by 1,248 miles. There are at present, under construction 4,227 miles, so that the very large expenditure to which the railways are already committed will not be entirely used in 1909, although this year will mark one of the greatest periods of railway construction in the history of the country. In addition to the laying of steel, the expenditure on terminals and equipment will be very heavy, a canvass of Canadian locomotive and car shops disclosing orders for many months ahead. About 210 miles of steel of the National Transcontinental were laid during the year, and grading is well under way on nearly all of the contracts let by the commission. The total expenditure on the national railway to date has been forty-seven million dollars. The most active operations this year will be between La Tuque, Que., and Moncton, and upon the first 180 miles east of Winnipeg, upon which work of steel laying will be well advanced by the end of 1909. Terminal shops will be begun at Winnipeg and Moncton. The contracts for the last section of the road between Moncton and Winnipeg have been signed.

"Remarkable progress has been made by the Transcontinental and Grand Trunk Pacific. There is actually completed of the latter road 675 miles west from Winnipeg into Alberta. Contractors' equipment necessary for the construction of terminals at Prince Rupert and for the first 100 miles of track east of Prince Rupert are to be called at an early date and grading is finished for 120 miles west of Edmonton. Trains will be in operation from Fort William to Edmonton within a few months.

"Plans of the Grand Trunk railway provide for the active prosecution of the double-tracking of that system and for the construction of a number of new lines and bridge work. The heavy work of the past year included the filling in of a long stretch in the Ottawa division through Algonquin park and the construction of a large bridge over the Richelieu river at Beloeil.

"The Canadian Pacific railway will have over 500 miles at least, of road under construction during the coming year. One of the most important works during the past year was the completion of the Sudbury branch from Bolton Junction to Romford Junction, which gives communication between Toronto and the main Transcontinental line of the C. P. R. The C. P. R.'s construction in Ontario also included the 20-mile branch from Embro to St. Mary's making a total for this road n Ontario of some 250 miles completed in 1908. During the current year the branch line from Coldwater Junction to Peterborough, a part of the scheme for a short rail route between Montreal and Georgian Bay ports, will be in the hands of contractors. It is anticipated also, that in the next twelve months 40 additional miles will be added to the double tracking of the C. P. R. between Toronto and Montreal. The length of double-track in operation between Montreal and Smith's Falls at present is about 80 miles."

I HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE OF LIVING.

Heart Trouble Cured by MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. Andrew Savoy, Grosse's N.B., writes:—In the year of 1905 I was taken sick and for ten days I could lay on my breast of none. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that my case would be done for a sure this time. I consulted the very best doctors but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly cross the floor. I had no pain, but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hopes of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

One day a friend came to see me, and calling me by name, said, "Julia, if I were you I would try a dose of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart troubles." I promised, and for a few days I was able to eat, "Yes, I felt I was getting better this morning." He said, "Well, I will get you another box, right away." I got two boxes and these done me so much good that I was able to do my housework. I still continue them in my home for I do not know if it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I would not have been alive now."

The Trouble In Fernie

When the Fernie fire collections were being made a great many of the more important papers criticised Mayor Tuttle of Fernie for his indiscriminate appeal for aid, especially for his telegram to London, England. These comments drew forth the strongest condemnation from the Fernie Ledger.

It has developed exactly as these papers predicted that the indiscriminate appeal has led to a carelessness in division and a reckless indifference to obligation on the part of those who were advanced monies.

The receipts from cities and towns for the relief fund, omitting entirely the monies provided by churches, benevolent societies, etc., amounted to $121,668.81 in money and $17,536.35 returned drafts. The better element now feels that some repayment should be made, that it is no a good thing for the character of any people that they should receive money without any idea of obligation. Accordingly the city council decided to levy a tax on those who had been advanced money in order to get it back. This has been fought fiercely by the Ledger, and by Socialists led by Sherman.

In the meantime many samples of the dispensing of the money have come to light and reveal the fact that men who did not suffer from the fire received a portion of the relief fund! One man received $300 worth of lumber to build a house, when his house had not been touched. And as chairman of a meeting to discuss the refund question he obtained a whitewash vote from the Socialists who were present in sufficient numbers to carry their wishes.

The Fernie Free Press has come out manfully for repayment and is getting after those who fraudulently took advantage of the relief fund.

The Woollen Industry

It is most unfortunate that the woollen industry of Canada has become so largely a political question that it is almost impossible to disassociate it from party feeling. For a half dozen years the woollen manufacturers have made more than an ordinary fight against the present tariff. Every wire was pulled, and the organization even went to the extent of closing down a few of the factories as a practical protest, under the plea of inability to compete

The Liberal Government repeatedly refused to grant further protection and the Opposition demanded recognition of the claims of the woollen manufacturers. Recently Mr. Costello, who was appointed to report on British and Canadian woollen industries advised against more protection.

Leaving politics entirely out of the question, there is no doubt that the Canadian manufacturer is not entitled to increased protection under present conditions. Starting some six years ago the writer had reason to thoroughly investigate the woollen industry of Canada extending over a period of three years. The matter was not treated in connection with politics in any way, but was studied technically and commercially from the standpoint of the manufacturer, the wholesaler and the merchant. And the opinion formed then on the safest grounds was that the Canadian manufacturer has himself to blame almost entirely for the present conditions of affairs.

The patterns sent out by the woollen manufacturers this year were found to be the same in many cases as those used by the English manufacturers one or two years before or even more—designs which had been sold to the Canadian manufacturer at a mere fraction of their origina. cost, on account of their being discarded. The English factory, too, could produce much more cheaply from its volume of trade, was more up-to-date in designs and had the faculty of working more lustre and fire. These features counted large with the consumer here. The Canadian manufacturer cannot employ the expert pattern-makers and thus buy old designs.

Again the wholesale and retail houses complained very bitterly about the web not equalling the sample when goods were delivered, and no amount of protesting rectified this in many cases.

It is significant too, that a few woollen factories were doing a successful business and making no complaints. Forbes of Hespeler, Paton of Sherbrooke and a couple of other houses could be mentioned who assured the writer frequently that they had nothing to complain of. As a matter of fact even the United States has never presumed to compete with Great Britain in the matter of woollens, and the same can be said of these. There was at that time only one factory in the United States that attempted to manufacture other than the coarsest of linen fabrics, and only a couple more in which linen was combined with cotton for towelling and such fabrics. Again in linoleums no amount of expense in machinery or care in manufacture seems to produce in Canada an article equal to that produced in Scotland and England.

The position of the woollen industry in Canada seems to demonstrate not only the indifference of the manufacturer to supplying a want, but also to prove that there are certain industries which cannot be profitably carried on in certain countries and districts.

Laurier Treaty Worse

(Toronto Telegram)

Canadians, born and yet unborn, will rise up and call Lord Alverstone blessed compared to the native architects of this great international waterways foolishness.

Uncle Sam squandered his own patrimony of power on the American side of Niagara. Then he proposes a treaty by which he will help regulate Canada's patrimony.

Canada is to get the barren privilege of helping the United States to regulate American water privileges that have already been regulated to the point of extinction.

Canada is to give the priceless privilege of permitting the United States to jointly regulate Canadian water privileges that are as yet almost untouched.

And the country that produces a Laurier to propose such an abdication of Canada's sovereignty, is the home of the smart people who sneered at Lord Alverston as a stupid old Englishman.

The international waterways humbug promises to stand as one monumental example of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's international smartness. That smartness will cost Canada a million times more than the value of all the Islands that could be sacrificed by the stupidity of a Lord Alverstone.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The City Council should have the support of the people in its endeavors to enforce the bylaws regarding water and gas. It will now be impossible for those who are able to pay to take advantage of the leniency of the city. All who are unable to pay through sickness or other reasons of a like nature must apply to the Health and Relief Committee, of which Ald. McKay is the head. The matter will then be duly considered as other relief works. It will probably be proposed that water accounts be paid within fifteen days after the notice is sent out or the service will be shut off. This leaves ample time for the proper application for relief to be made.

A decision has been given in Vancouver that a real estate agent cannot receive a secret profit on a purchase. An agent was instructed to buy a certain piece of land he had listed at $220. This he obtained for $180 and put the difference in his pocket. A second bit of land was represented as demanding more than the $220 and the purchaser paid it, the agent again making the difference. The court held that the real estate man was in the position of agent to the buyer and that therefore it was his duty to acquire the lots as cheaply as possible. His commission was to have been made out of the vendor.

One of the crookedest pieces of political re... that has transpired in Alberta appears to have been served up to the people of Calgary by the Calgary Albertan, whose political opinions have lost their weight on account of their rabidness. One day last week the Albertan in its effort to bring dissension into the Conservative ranks published a supposed interview with A. J. Robertson the Conservative leader in Edmonton. This interview Mr. Robertson denies in toto, asserting that not only is the report untrue, but that he was never interviewed by an Albertan reporter at all. After that it is not hard to estimate the value of the Albertan's political news.

There are two newspaper changes of note during the past couple of weeks. The Camrose Mail, through which Capt. Thomas has made quite a name during the past two years, has gone out of business, with the usual uncertainty of newspaper returns.

Mr. T. W. Quayle, formerly news editor of the Calgary News, has bought out the Claresholm Review, which has been unsteady for sometime.

The News accuses The Times of prevarication and denies The Times' statement that the present frost of a filtration plant was "installed" during Mayor Forster's term. It says, "When the plant was installed Mr. Forster was not on the Council." This is the worst kind of prevarication as, while the plant can scarcely be said to be installed yet, the contract was left and the work started during Mr. Forster's mayoralty. Talk about "crawling back!"

It is certain that the better class of Socialists will soon begin to loose confidence in Sherman, their self-appointed leader in Alberta and Southern British Columbia. Sherman is making the natural mistake of supposing that radicalism is the big essential to lead the Socialists. His latest effusion was presented at Lethbridge, when he told a miners' union that the modern church and Sunday school were failures; that the present low state of many workingmen was due to early teaching under church supervision. Mr. Sherman's foolish reason for this when asked, was that ministers attended colleges endowed by millionaires.

Wetaskiwin is pluming itself upon the fact that it received 101 for its bonds and the papers say that "it is a much better price than any other municipality in Alberta." Wetaskiwin has a few more guesses.

One of the papers also says that the price of power in Wetaskiwin, $50 per brake horse power, "is as cheap if not cheaper than any inland municipality in Canada." Perhaps Wetaskiwin has forgotten that power in Medicine Hat with natural gas costs only $2.25 per brake horse power.

The addresses given last Wednesday to the farmers on tree-planting and soil-cultivation were of the greatest value. The place of trees on the farm as wind-breaks and moisture conservers was outlined in a way that will set the farmers to work with the trees the government is giving out. The fact is notable that upon experiment it was found that the moisture within twenty yards of a belt of trees was fifty per cent greater than within one hundred yards.

The speakers stated that two crops out of three should be a success here while in Utah and other States only one out of two could be depended upon. Our moisture is greater than in many of the States where crops of thirty to sixty bushels were the average.

Someone has argued that our filtration plant must be a good thing because Edmonton has just ordered the same kind. Apart from the fallacy of such an argument, it is a fact which wasn't brought forward with the argument that whereas our plant for a population of 6,000 cost us $80,000 and is still unfinished, the Edmonton plant bought to supply a city of 20,000 people cost only $30,000. Looks very funny for the same kind of a plant. The Edmonton plant is to purify four million gallons a day.

"Canada-West" for February opens with an article of unusual and compelling interest by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, "That Tariff Wall," in which the President of the Canadian Pacific Railway outlines his ideal of non-partisan tariff commission which shall take the same place in trade as the railroad commission does in transportation. A cover design by Louis Braunhold, bears on the article, which is further illustrated with photographs. "The Woman of Winnipeg," an article by a Winnipeg woman, presents some thirty pictures of society women of the Western metropolis. Saint Nihal Singh's second and concluding paper on the "Hindu in Canada" presents a plea for the brown man in Canada as a useful Canadian citizen-servant. "The Letters of a Remittance Man to his Mother," by W. H. P. Jarvis, is concluded. The short stories include "The Honor of a Squaw Man," by William McBride, "The Girl and the Boss," by Forrest Crissey, "The Toll of the Sea, by J. de Q. Donahoo. Other features of the magazine are varied and interesting and there are numerous illustrations.

Ever citizen of Medicine Hat with a home should keep before him the coming spring as one for lawn-making and flower planting. The year of 1908 was remarkable for the improvement in the appearance of the city due to the increased interest taken in horticulture. The year 1909 should be better still. The beauties of home are taking a firmer hold upon the Western citizen as settlement becomes older, and the results well repay any time and money that may be spent on the lawn. Lay out your plans right away as work will commence within the next month or thereabouts. There is a big Convention (the Convention of Canadian Municipalities) this year, and we must have the best looking city we can. Everybody can help.

The rumors of the establishment of the new C. P. R. shops at Bow Island are not very disconcerting to Medicine Hat. In the first place it is only a rumor, and in the second place even if it were so Bow Island is so close to Medicine Hat that next to getting it right in the city it would be best there or at Coleridge. At any rate the C. P. R. is wise enough to establish its shops where there is natural gas, and the added advantages of a city like Medicine Hat would also be considered.

Mother's Talk to Mothers

What Zam-Buk did in a Western Home

Here is just one illustration of the wisdom of keeping a box of Zam-Buk always handy. It is a true record of the various uses to which this great balm was put—with highly satisfactory results in every case—in just one family, and during a few months only. Mrs. C. J. Iriam of 907, William Avenue, Winnipeg, makes a report as follows:—

"I have found Zam-Buk so very useful as a home-healing balm that I want to speak its praise still more widely myself. Quite apart from my own private experience, which I will refer to presently, I have proved it a sterling remedy in many cases of skin disease and blood poisoning. The first case of the kind I noticed was that of my little niece, Eva Hunt, who had developed bad sores and inflammation on her hands and arms. She went to the General Hospital and sometimes a doctor. Was always poisoning to draw out the poison. This was applied, but what more was no improvement after a few days. I began applying Zam-Buk balm, leaving off poultices.

"The effect was almost magical! Zam-Buk soothed the pain, drew out the poison, and stayed all inflammation. Healing then commenced, and in a few weeks she was able to commence work.

"Six weeks ago my husband, Mr. C. J. Iriam, while returning from work quite late in the evening, was bitten by a dog, the dog's teeth penetrating the flesh on his thigh just above the knee. Directly he came home Zam-Buk was applied to the wound, and in a few days the soreness was gone and the wound thoroughly healed.

"A third instance of the healing power of Zam-Buk was provided when my little boy had a nasty fall. He is five years old and was playing one day when he fell. His head struck on a sharp stone, which cut a nasty gash. As soon as I had washed the cut I applied Zam-Buk in the usual way, and it was really wonderful how quickly it relieved the little fellow's pain. Within a week the cut—a deep one—was quite healed.

"Every mother who once proves the all-round value of Zam-Buk will never again be without it."

Zam-Buk is a pure herbal balm, and cures cuts, burns, bruises, abscesses, ulcers, eczema, scalp sores, ringworm, chapped hands, cold-sores, frost-bite, bad leg, inflamed patches, etc. It also cures piles. Used as an embrocation it will be found to remove rheumatism, sciatica, and neuralgia. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

Answer to "Libel on Medicine Hat Weather."

The poem on Medicine Hat weather published in The Times from an American paper some weeks ago has brought an answering verse from an American homesteader in this district.

There's a certain man I've heard of, in the State they call New York;
He to write some slanderous verses, set his spiteful brain to work.
That his motives were in writing, mystery o'ershadows that,
But it was a dreadful libel on our town of Medicine Hat.

And he made some far-fetched statements; told some most outlandish tales
Of our fierce Alberta weather, and its frightful winter gales,
And he talked about "cold storage" and "a semi-frozen sky,"
"Arctic winds," and bears and blizzards, "snowfalls thirty some feet high."

Still 'twould almost make you shiver just to think that men would dare
Live in such a frozen region, "many miles from anywhere."
Why, you'd think, to hear him talking, it was near the Arctic line.
When, in truth, it is not seventy miles from Uncle Sam's north line.

Why such tales are circulated is a mystery to me,
When much farther from the truth 'twere scarcely possible to be.
But the notions held down yonder, in those lines are well expressed,
For the coldest place they dream of is this city of the West.

Now you need not think the writer is a "booster" of "the Hat,"
For I, too, came from the Union—had most thirty years of that,
But to rectify these errors I would fain my efforts lend,
For the truth in any country I am willing to defend.

I have lived in Minnesota, North Dakota, and the West.
(For across the Rocky Mountains is the State I love the best.)
But of all the winter weather in the places I have been,
Medicine Hat ranks very high among the finest I have seen.

True, the Arctic winds and blizzards sometimes come, but these are rare
And to say we have them often would be anything but fair.
For the icy breath of Winter that oft tells such frightful tales,
Is more temperate to unward than it is in eastern vales.

'Tis a land of warmth and sunshine, where the Chinook winds blow free.
Almost every week we have them, es, and sometimes two or three.
'Tis a region slight in snowfall, hiding not the grass from sight;
Where the horses range all winter with no shelter day or night.

Sleds are very little used here, and they do not much abound.
For the wagon rolls unhindered all the whole long year around.
Now just think of using wagons with the snow "thrice ten feet high,"
And just think of stock unsheltered 'neath a "semi-frozen sky."

Now you take, well say, last winter—'twas the year of nineteen eight,
There was not a single blizzard, no, not one, I truly state.
And milk cows roamed the prairie everyday from morn till eve.
Only two days all that winter that the barn they did not leave.

Once a fortnight, or a month, Sir, it would snow, but as I live!
Why, the deepest snow that fell here, inches three, the depth would give
Then the storm was followed by a ravenous Chinook,
And by methods quite surprising, rapidly the snow it took.

And the bridge gang worked all winter to complete it—think of that.
Then the town turned out on Christmas for a ball game, fair and square
With the players in their shirt-sleeves, and the crowds in open air.

Then the bucking test this winter, that was held at Christmastide—
Outlaw horse and expert rider, from the country far and wide—
Some three hundred people lingered many hours to watch this sport.
Wonder why our weather critic failed these features to report.

True there are some rare exceptions, but e'en these will not compare
With the winters where our friend lives, who has talked of frozen air,
Let us buy this friend a ticket to the town of Medicine Hat—
Watch him skimming o'er the bare ground with his "snow shoes broad and flat."

Then they say we make the weather in a "factory" at the Hat,
And to please their idle fancy I will grant them even that.
But there's one thing they've not noticed, that they may not think so fine.
We don't use the kind we're making—we just send it 'cross the line.

"There's a howling blizzard coming," in our bulletins they read.
This is just a friendly warning that our eastern neighbors need.
Do they bless us for these favors? No—they blacken our fair name;
For they're sure to get the blizzard, and we're sure to get the blame.

Down in "Sunny South Alberta," where the climate's mild and fine.
And her people some five thousand, are an enterprising lot,
For a manufacturing centre is this city's destined lot.

'Tis "the town that was born lucky," as a noted writer says,
And the ones that now deride her, they will sometime sing her praises.
'Tis the place the weather howlers aim their fabrications at;
But the truth will someday conquer, so three cheers for Medicine Hat.

Week at Legislature

(Special Correspondent)

The legislature enters upon the fifth week of the session with practically nothing done. The passing of the address in reply to the speech from the throne is really the only thing to the credit of the members. The next matter of importance to be dealt with will be the Redistribution and the bill relating to the legislative assembly, the chief point of public interest in it being the lengthening of the term to five years.

There is no possible justification for the delay to which public business has been subjected. One explanation probably is that the government printers have been so busy publishing campaign material that they have not had time to print government bills. Certainly such delay would not be tolerated in a House where the Opposition was large enough to make an effectual protest. But in this House the Government can by main force do as it pleases. If the people desire good government they must see that both sides are more evenly matched than at present, when two oppose twenty-three.

This week, doubtless, all will be hurry and bustle. The government indifferent to public opinion as it is cannot afford entirely to ignore the public demands. One may then look for bills being rushed through their second readings, with little or no discussion, and rushed again through the committee of the whole House, in which the chairman, reading only the marginal notes of a section, expedites the process of law-making with greater celerity than does an auctioneer at a sale. The province will yet pay dearly for this unwarranted haste. To the most experienced law-makers criticism is essential; it is doubly so in this legislature, where the Attorney-General is as yet comparatively inexperienced, and is not surrounded by lawyers of eminence.

The government press is making much of the Calgary Grain Conference and of the importance of the Pacific route as an outlet for the grain of Alberta. This sudden development is viewed with suspicion. No doubt the time is coming when the Pacific route will become an important outlet. But it seems surprising strange that until now it should have received so little attention at the hands of a government which prides itself on being so vigilant in the farmers interests. There is reason for thinking that the conference was calculated to offset particularly the effects of the Premier's answer to the Grain Growers, in which they pleaded that the purchase of elevators and the regulation of the grain traffic was a matter beyond their jurisdiction. It is common report that the Premier's reply was not intended to be published until the assembling of the conference; but it leaked out most unexpectedly. It may also be that much is now being made of the Pacific route in order that the failure of the Dominion Government to begin immediate construction of the Hudson Bay railway may escape notice. That nothing of importance is contemplated this year on that work is evident from the fact that the estimates only call for an expenditure of $65,000 on it. The Saskatchewan government made that the chief issue in its campaign, Premier Scott going so far as to say that if he were returned wheat would be shipped via Hudson Bay within three years. The dilly-dally methods of the Dominion Government preclude the possibility of the Rutherford Government making much of the Bay railway, so something else must be found. The people are prepared to support a progressive railway policy but they look for more than promises.

The Attorney-General is making a great deal of the Workman's Compensation Act. He not only takes full credit for the act in its present form but endeavors to convey the impression that the Opposition opposed its principle. Such a representation is most unfair, as those familiar with the circumstances attending its passage through the House know well. The Opposition did not oppose the spirit of the bill, but contended and very successfully that the provisions did not go far enough and they proposed amendments several of which were accepted. In framing these amendments they were assisted by a committee of representative workingmen. This is a point which should be remembered for in their actions the Opposition were expressing the direct views of organized labor.

One hears much of railways these days. They are much needed and in making provision for their construction the Opposition will certainly not assume a hostile attitude to reasonable proposals. But there is a danger that in the consideration of railways, the matter of roads and bridges may be overlooked. Since the number of miles of railway that can be constructed within a given time is limited by reason of the magnitude of the works and the capital which it represents only a comparatively small number of persons can expect to be immediately benefitted. But bridge and road work can be regulated so as to benefit a large number of persons at a small outlay. It is well known that there are numerous sections of the province which have been neglected in the allotment of this work. This has occasioned great inconvenience and also hardships. The government boasts of the large amounts of money it has voted for public works in general, and on roads and bridges in particular; but a comparison with the amounts voted in Saskatchewan during the past two years shows that Alberta is far behind its neighbor. During the fiscal year 1907-08 Saskatchewan voted for public works $2,093,113. In 1907 Alberta voted $1,293,000. Saskatchewan's vote for roads was $225,000; Alberta's $150,000. Saskatchewan's vote for bridges was $446,00. Alberta's vote for bridges was $310,000. (The difference in the period is due to the fact that Alberta's year ends on December 31, while Saskatchewan's ends on February 28.) In 1908-09 Saskatchewan voted for public works, minus telephones, $2,416,553. Alberta for similar purposes, $1,110,500. Saskatchewan's vote for roads and bridges respectively was $547,000 and $651,500. Alberta's vote respectively was $260,000 and $278,000. No one will allege that Saskatchewan has met all demands. If it has not no wonder the expenditure for such work has been much less. If settlers cannot get railways they should at least get wagon roads.

The Dominion Government has realized over $6,000,000 from the sale of pre-emption and purchase homesteads, while 41,000 acres still remain. This is part of the land which many contend the province is better without. This land was sold for $3 per acre, while the province receives $1.50 for it, not even that at present only one per cent, while the homesteader pays five. Thus the land business, which, it was said would be unprofitable for the province is proving very profitable for the Dominion.

NOT ENTIRELY CRAZY

Orangeville, Feb. 13—George Ernest Stewart, who murdered John and James Spanhouse near Shelbourne last Sunday morning made two direct attempts to escape from jail here last night. When the two turnkeys opened the cell door to give the prisoner his evening meal Stewart sprang upon them from a corner in the cell and attempted to overpower them. The turnkeys, after a hard struggle, succeeded in forcing them back. Governor Bowles was sent for, and a second attempt was made to give him food, and no sooner was the door opened than the lunatic made another rush. He was again forced back, and attempts to supply him with supper abandoned.

BOUNTY ON COYOTES AND WOLVES RESUMED

The Government of the Province of Alberta expended twenty-six thousand seven hundred and one dollars in payment of bounty on wolves and coyotes during the year 1908 and, owing to the reduction in their numbers caused thereby, it has again been decided to pay bounty from the first day of January, 1909. Warrants in payment of bounty will be issued by the former inspectors.

Warm and Dry to Stay Well

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of the oldest eminent authority who says that rheumatism and kidney trouble is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator and almost certain remedy for all forms of rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity when shown the prescription stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they shall compound the mixture for them.

THE ALBERTA TEMPERANCE AND MORAL REFORM LEAGUE

To the Friends of Temperance and Moral Reform in the Province of Alberta:

The Third Annual Convention of the Alberta Temperance and Moral Reform League will be held in the City of Wetaskiwin on Wednesday and Thursday, March 17th and 18th 1909. The opening session of the Convention will be held at 2.30 o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, March 17.

Representation—The following organizations are entitled to representation at this Convention, on the basis of two representatives for each organization, and one additional representative for each fifty or fractional part of fifty members after the first fifty members, Local Branches of the League, Church congregations Branches of the W. C. T. U., Divisions of the S. O. T., Lodges of the I. O. G. T., Councils of the R. T. of T., Branches of the C. E. T. S., Branches of the League of the Cross, Prohibition Clubs, other prohibition or temperance organizations, Young Men's Christian Associations, other Young Men's Clubs, Salvation Army Corps, and Trades and Labor organizations that are in sympathy with the League.

Railway Rates—Arrangements are being made with the C. P. R., and the C. N. R., whereby reduced rates will be obtained by all delegates and their wives. All Delegates must purchase first class full fare one way tickets to place of Convention (or to nearest junction station, if through tickets cannot be obtained) and obtain certificates to that effect on the Standard Certificate form. When delegates have to travel over both railways (C. P. R. and C. N. R.) they will require to purchase tickets and obtain certificates as above from each railway, except where the issue of through tickets is authorized.

These Standard Certificates must be presented to the undersigned, the Secretary of the League, at the Convention for his signature. If there are 100, or more, delegates holding Standard Certificates, free return tickets will be issued. If 25, or less than 100, delegates present Standard Certificates, return tickets will be issued at one-third of the one way first-class fare.

Delegates will please note carefully the above provisions.

It is hoped that every part of our great province, every Branch League every Church and every organization interested in this movement, will be fully represented at this Convention The work of the past year will be reviewed and important matters of policy, touching the future interests of the cause of Moral Reform in Alberta, will be considered at this Convention.

Please give this matter attention at your earliest convenience.

Protesting Railway Employees

The orders which have just been issued by the board of railway commissioners for the better protection of railway employees are of deep interest to the trainmen in Canada. They are several.

1. No freight train, except work or construction traing of fifteen cars or less, now in service, shall be made up or allowed to proceed upon its journey unless at least three-quarters of the cars composing such train have air-brakes in good working order.

2. The number of cars that may be drawn in freight trains shall be left entirely to the judgment of the operating officials of such railway companies; in all cases however, in which it may be found necessary to double-head, the leading engine shall control the train.

3. Every road locomotive engine shall be equipped with a step or steps and hand-holds on both sides of and at or near the rear ends of tenders; foot-rests shall be provided on the pilots of every such engine, sufficiently wide for a man to stand on; every switching or yard engine shall be equipped with foot-boards and headlights on the front and rear ends of the engine and tender, such foot-boards to be not less than ten inches wide; the back of such foot-boards shall be protected by a board not less than four inches high, and if cut in the centre, the inner ends shall be protected in like manner; and foot-boards and headlights shall be placed on the rear end of the tender of every road locomotive engine used for switching services except in cases of emergency; in no case, however, shall any engine be used continuously for switching purposes for more than twenty-four hours without such equipment.

4. The number that shall comprise the switching engine crews shall be left entirely to the judgment of the operating officials; on main lines light engines shall not be run a distance greater than twenty-five miles without a conductor, in addition to the engineer and fireman; and on branch lines the operating officials shall determine the necessity of requiring conductors on light engines.

5. Every locomotive engineer of such companies must have at least one year's continuous experience as a fireman, pass a satisfactory examination in regard to the proper care of locomotive engines, the handling of air brakes, and train rules and regulations, be at least twenty-one years of age and undergo an eye and ear test by a competent examiner before being eligible for appointment as such engineer. Except in cases of emergency, every conductor of such companies must have at least one year's experience as brakeman or conductor, and be at least twenty-one years of age before being eligible for appointment as such.

6. The telegraph operators of such companies required to handle train orders shall be at least eighteen years of age, able to write a legible hand, to send and receive messages at the rate of not less than twenty words a minute, and be thoroughly familiar with and required to pass an examination upon train rules before a competent examiner.

7. All railway companies shall strictly conform to the rules and regulations from time to time approved by the Master Car Builders' Association governing the loading of lumber, logs and stone on open cars, and the loading and of structural material, plates, rails and girders. No material of any kind shall be carried on the roofs of cars.

8. All open drains crossing tracks in the yards of such companies shall be covered for five feet on each side of the rails, except in times of flood when temporary open drains may be provided; semaphore and signal wires, when they cross under tracks shall be carried in pipes or boxes; new buildings and semaphores and poles shall be placed not less than six feet from the rail of the main track; water stand pipes shall be fastened parallel with the main line and enginemen will be required to see that this is done after using such pipes.

9. Every person or company offending against any of the foregoing provisions shall forfeit and pay the sum of $50 for every such offence.

NO DISPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lay like a lump of lead on your stomach, or if you have heartburn that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take one triangle after supper tonight. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heart burn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness of Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseaus odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for all stomach misery, because it will take hold of your food and digest it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Actual, prompt relief for all your stomach misery is at your Pharmacist, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure a case of Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

New Secretary-Treasurer

A special meeting of the school board was held on Friday evening for the purpose of appointing a new secretary-treasurer, in place of E. Roberts who resigned to accept the secretary-treasurership of Wetaskiwin. There were present: W. J. Brotherton, chairman; A. C. Hawthorne, F. F. Fatt, D. G. White, trustees.

Applications were received from: Herbert Baker, Jas. Douglas E. J. Fewings, H. T. W. Forster, H. S. Newby, A. J. N. Terrill.

Some discussion took place on the applications, Mr. Brotherton being in favor of the appointment of Mr. Terrill, who he said was well acquainted with the work of the board as reporter of proceedings. Mr. Fatt moved that the application of Mr. Fewings be accepted. Mr. Fewings had ample time at his disposal to devote to the work of the board. The motion was carried.

It was decided to raise the secretary-treasurer's bond from $1,000 to $2,000.

The board adjourned till tonight at 8 o'clock.

Noted Cold Snaps

There is abundant evidence that the earth is becoming warmer rather than colder. In addition to the strictly scientific proof in support of that view, the record of severe cold winters in the past centuries compared with the present also lends support to that contention. The record discloses some curious freaks on the part of old Boreas, beginning with the fifth century of the Christian era, and extending down to the present day, says the Kansas City Star.

The Black Sea was completely covered with ice for a period of twenty days in 401.

The Danube river was frozen over so that an army crossed it on the ice in the year 462.

There was a frost in Constantinople which lasted from October to February in 468.

The Black Sea and the Dardanelles again were frozen over in 768.

The Danube, the Elbe and the Seine were frozen hard enough to bear up a heavy wagon traffic over them for a month in the winter of 822.

The Adriatic sea was frozen in 860.

There was a snowstorm in Europe in 874 which lasted from the beginning of November to the end of March.

Nearly all the vines in Europe were killed by frost in 891 and 893. One midsummer [illegible] 1083, in England, there was a frost so severe that it destroyed fruits.

The river Po, in Italy, was frozen from Cremona to the sea in 1188. Wine Casks burst and trees split by the action of the frost.

Loaded wagons crossed the Adriatic sea on the ice from the main land to Venice in 1284.

The Danube river was frozen to the bottom in 1236 and remained so frozen for

The Cattegat was frozen from Norway to Jutland in 1261.

The Rhine was frozen over and loaded wagons crossed it on the ice in 1299. Travellers also crossed from Jutland to Norway on the ice the same year.

All the rivers of Italy were frozen over during the winter of 1344. It was so cold in Denmark that the wolves could not stay there in 1408 and they crossed to Jutland on the ice.

Snow fell in Europe for forty days in 1434.

The wine froze in Flanders in 1468 and the soldiers to whom it was distributed had to cut it in pieces with hatchets.

The river Scheldt was frozen over sufficiently hard for three months in 1565 to bear the traffic of loaded wagons.

All the rivers of Europe were frozen over and the Venetian fleet was frozen up in the lagoons of the Adriatic at Venice in 1621 and 1622.

The winter of 1658 was a hard one in Europe. Charles X of Sweden crossed on the ice the Little Belt, the strait between Funen and the peninsula of Jutland with his army, foot, horse, baggage and artillery. The rivers in Italy bore heapy carriages.

There was a coating of ice sixty-one inches thick on the Thames in England, in 1664 and in 1684 the ice was again thick enough on the Thames to support coaches which were driven across it.

The winters of 1691 and 1693 were so severe in Austria that the wolves entered Vienna and attacked men and women in the streets.

The winter of 1709 is called by distinction "the cold winter." All the rivers and lakes of Europe were frozen to a depth of four feet in several miles from the shore. In England the ground was frozen nine feet deep. Birds and beasts perished by thousands in their houses. In the south of France the olive trees were killed and wine plantations destroyed. The Adriatic sea was frozen and even the Mediterranean about Genoa. The citron and orange groves suffered in Italy.

Fairs were held on the ice on the River Thames in the winter of 1716, and travellers crossed on the ice from Copenhagen to Sweden.

Multitudes of cattle and sheep were buried in the snow in Scotland in the winter of 1726.

In January, 1787, the ground was frozen to a depth of four feet in New England.

The winter of 1740 was scarcely less cold than that of 1709. An Ox was barbecued on the ice on the Thames and the snow lay ten feet deep in Spain and Portugal. The Zuyder Zee was frozen over and thousands of persons crossed on it. The lakes of England were also frozen. That winter an "ice-palace" was built at St. Petersburg after an elegant model in the just proportions of Augustinian architecture. This seems to have been the first of ice palaces. Snow fell to the depth of twenty-three feet on the level in Portugal in the winter of 1744, while in New England it was a summer winter.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Is A Remedy Without An Equal For COUGHS, COLDS, And All Affections Of The THROAT and LUNGS.

Coughs and Colds do not call for a minute recital of symptoms as they are known to everyone, but their dangers are not understood so well. All the most serious affections of the throat, the lungs and the bronchial tubes, are, in the beginning, but coughs and colds.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the admonition to all persons affected by the insidious earlier stages of throat and lung disease, as failure to take hold at once will cause many years of suffering, and in the end that terrible scourge of "Consumption."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is not Sold as a Cure for Consumption but for affections tributary to, and that result in, that disease. It combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognized worth, and is absolutely harmless, prompt and safe. So great has been the success of this wonderful remedy, it is only natural that numerous persons have tried to imitate it. Don't be humbugged into taking anything but "Dr. Woods." Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

(From our own correspondents.)

Red Cliff

If the weather is made at Medicine Hat as they say it is we would be pleased if they would send us out some weather with a little less wind connected with it.

David Masters is a very frequent visitor at Red Cliff—Why?

Dieten Kline left Wednesday for his former home in North Willister.

The Stoner Co. have had their ice house filled so next summer Red Cliffites can make a noise like iced tea, lemonade, etc.

Mr. Dickinson of [illegible] ed with Mr. Dodge and [illegible] day.

Albert Brubaker and Pat Crouch drove over to the Flat Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Brubaker and daughter Cora, called on Mrs. Dodge Sun.

Irvine.

The school teachers of Irvine, Miss Culp and Miss Taylor, gave a dance on Friday night in Irvine Hall. It was a decided success. The proceeds are to be devoted to a library fund.

Josephburg

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heather have moved to Lethbridge.

Corporal Harper has taken command of the Josephburg detachment of Mounted Police in place of Corporal Barschel who has left the force.

Some Current Stories

That earthquake. Sh-sh! don't say anything about it. Guess they are a number of women in the city who are confining their conversation to the weather now—and they are pretty intelligent women too.

A good story is going the rounds regarding the earthquake. A group of farmers was sitting around the store out at Seven Persons, and of course the conversation turned to the threatened earthquake.

"Now I suppose," said one man, "that if Medicine Hat has an earthquake, Seven Persons will come in for it?"

But the consensus of opinion seemed to be that Seven Persons had'nt any people who deserved it. "Well, I don't know that Medicine Hat deserves it," said the first speaker."

A farmer sitting in the corner ruminated a moment. "I don' know. There's a J— —. I think a good shaking-up would do him good."

There were really lots of women who were undoubtedly frightened. Some of them were crying for days before, and others had an air of resignation as if they couldn't help it anyway, and were prepared. Towards the last some qualifications were made. It was then said that it wasn't to be an earthquake after all but only a gas explosion and cyclone and an anxious eye was kept on the sky for cyclone indications. Our extensive experience in cyclones would of course be a great help to us in predicting the special sk appearance of an approaching cyclone.

Twenty-five Galicians working on the railway got out of town for the event. Two horses went to Winnipeg, one of them sending his wife to Calgary so that one member of the family would be left. There was serious talk of getting a special train to run out of the city Wednesday night. One family which had been in town only a short time sold its property at a loss of $400 in order to get out of town before the earthquake.

And where did it all start? There doesn't seem to be anybody who didn't just hear it from somebody else, who heard it from some other person, and so on. The most plausible foundation seems to be that it originated in the office of the Southern Alberta Land Co. J. J. McIntosh, whose business in life is to measure and compute, had a few spare minutes one day. So he took the date of the earthquake at Messina. Then he looked up the dates of the quakes at other places and by compass and rule he discovered that therefore it would arrive at Medicine Hat on February 11th, Q. E. D. Someone heard him work it out and told his wife as a special secret—with the expected results.

Another explanation is that The Times started it all simply as an advertisement of its Bargain Day. The latter seems more probable as the results were most noticeable.

At any rate no friend will ask the frightened ones what they now think of their terror. 'Twould be an awful mean thing to do. A woman can't help her superstition, so let her enjoy it.

District Court.

The district court sat in Irvine on Monday the 8th inst., His Honor Judge Mitchell presiding. The following were the cases disposed of.

C. Sturn vs. John Koenig—This action was the outcome of an agreement to sell a business, book debts etc. Koenig had sold his business to Sturn on the understanding that should any of the books be contested as not being due, the amounts would be repaid. The claim was for $370, with the addition of another claim on a promissory note in connection with the same deal. The evidence was all out in at Irvine and the case adjourned to be argued at Medicine Hat on a date to be arranged between the judge and counsel. W. A. Begg appeared for the plaintiff, J. J. Mahaffy for the defendant.

J. Bohnet vs. Hy. Vockeroth—The plaintiff sued for $50 for damages to a wagon caused by the alleged negligence of defendant's wife. Judgment for defendant. J. J. Mahaffy appeared for the plaintiff, D. G. White for defendant.

Other cases were:

Michael Bros. vs. C. Gill—Dismissed with costs.

Citizens' Lumber Co., vs Conrad Holland—Defendant ordered to pay the claim and costs.

Sam Kaimbach vs John Koenig—The plaintiff sued for balance due, ($275), on a contract to build a house. In defence it was claimed that the house in question was not completed by the plaintiff and that it was not properly constructed. The court sat till eleven o'clock on Monday night when an adjournment was made till Thursday afternoon at Medicine Hat. The evidence was recording taken on Thursday judgment being reserved. W. A. Begg for plaintiff, J. J. Mahaffy for defendant.

Marshall vs. Newburn—Interpleader action to ascertain who was the owner of $344 in the hands of the deputy sheriff, balance of monies left after selling the barber outfit, billiard and pool room and bowling alleys, and stock of cigars, tobacco and pipes of the King Edward Bowling Alleys. Marshall claimed the monies as chattel mortgages and also as execution creditor. Newburn appeared opposing his claim as mortgagee and entered a claim as execution creditor. Judgment was reserved. J. J. Mahaffy appeared for plaintiff, Mr. Carson of the firm of Walsh, McCarthy and Carson, Calgary, for defendant Newburn and O. W. Kealy for another execution creditor.

Page vs. McCaslin—On Thursday morning the plaintiff sued for $675 damages on the ground that McCaslin had not completed the plastering of two cottages in a workmanlike manner. The defence was that Page had requested McCaslin to use a patented plaster known as Hardwall plaster, and that accordingly if there were any defects in the plastering they were due to this material having been used. Judgment reserved. D. G. White appeared for plaintiff, J. J. Mahaffy for defendant.

Searcy vs. Ross and Porter—The plaintiff claimed a lien ($128) on a house on which he had worked, built by Ross for Porter. The defence claimed that Searcy and Ross were in partnership as builders of the house. Judgment for defendants. J. J. Mahaffy appeared for plaintiff, W. A. Begg for defendants.

Johnston vs. Gordon and Draudson—The plaintiff sued to enforce a mechanics' lien on a house built by Draudson for Gordon and upon which plaintiff subcontracted to do the plastering work. The defence was that the work had not been properly performed. His Honour giving, however, judgment against Gordon personally for $50. The judge found that there the price of the area wall and [illegible] should have been no mechanic's lien against Draudson for the price of the [illegible] because the owner had paid the full amount of the contract price and of the plastering. The claim for [illegible] chimney and beam filling, W. A. Begg appeared for the plaintiff, O. W. Keatly for the defendant Gordon. D. G. White for defendant Draudson.

McClary's "Caloric" Gas Range Burns Natural Gas

"Caloric" has Safety Lighter for oven burners. This eliminates gas accumulation or danger of explosion—a big advantage over common gas ranges. "Caloric" burners on top of stove are easily lifted apart with hands, and quickly cleaned. Adjustable orifice accomodates all degrees of gas pressure. Other points explained by

LIVER COMPLAINT

The chief office of the liver is the secretion of bile, which is the natural regulator of the bowels.

Whenever the liver becomes deranged and the bile ducts clogged, liver complaint is produced, and is manifested by the presence of constipation, pain under the right shoulder, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, slimy-coated tongue and headache, heartburn, jaundice, sour stomach, water brash, catarrh of the stomach, etc.

LAXA-LIVER PILLS

LIVER COMPLAINT.

Mr. Geo. Fawcett, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "Having suffered with liver complaint for years and tried all sorts of remedies, I was advised to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I must say, that after taking two vials of them, I feel quite a new man, and can strongly recommend them to anyone."

Price 25 cents per vial or 5 for $1.00, at all dealers or mailed direct by the The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MONTE CRISTO

Those who have read Dumas' wonderfully interesting story "The Count of Monte Cristo", who have been thrilled to the heart core by the exploits of its sensational characters, and felt the romance and credulity of youth again throwing their cloak over the senses, constitute a large majority of the reading world. For those friends who confess apologetically that they have never read the book they feel a sort of pity. They want them to read it at once, and their insistence that this be done is servation: "You will never lay the book down until you have finished it." There is a good reason for their invariably accompanied by the enthusiasm. Sensational and wildly improbable as it is "Monte Cristo" is a great story, marvelously constructed and ingeniously told. The book and play delight both the grey beard and the youth. The theatrical heroic in every nature is quickened and fascinated by its sublimely melodramatic incidents. In fact the French tale beats the imagination of the most prosaic, such is the wealth of its extraordinary scenes and splendid heroism of its great character "The Count of Monte Cristo." "Monte Cristo" will be presented at the Opera House one night Tuesday February 28rd, under the auspices of the General Hospital. Get your seats early. On sale at the usual plac.

ANNUAL BOARD OF TRADE

Encouraging Reports of Officers

Small Attendance---New Officers Elected

On Thursday evening the annual meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the city hall there being only about 20 in attendance. A very hopeful note was struck by all who took part in the proceedings and faith in the future of the city and the b?lief that 1909 would be a year of great progress were in evidence on every hand.

At the outset, C. S. Pingle, the retiring president, nominated as an election committee, Mayor Milne and Alds. Morrow and Spencer for the purpose of going through the nominations to discover those who had received the highest number of votes for the different offices. While this work was in progress the reports of the president and the secretary were read, as follows:

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Gentlemen—

In presenting the 8th annual report we are pleased to note that notwithstanding the business depression over the entire country and the very unsatisfactory financial conditions that have been prevalent everywhere, your Board of Trade have with a dogged persistency kept hammering away in presenting the natural advantages to outsiders, and in pushing the claims of Medicine Hat and district wherever we thought that beneficial results to the city and district could be obtained, and although we have not had as many public meetings of the board as in previous years, the work has gone steadily on, and in that connection I beg to suggest that under our present organization a multiplicity of public meetings is probably not desirable, and I would ask you to consider at this meeting, that instead of the Council meeting weekly, and holding public meetings monthly, as called for by the Constitution, that it might be advisable to amend same so as to have a Council meeting on the first Thursday in every month, and quarterly public meetings upon the first Thursday say of March, September and December. Full reports of the month's business to be laid before the Council, and of the quarterly business before the public meetings.

Composed as we are principally of men having a great many other interests to attend to, this would have a tendency to create a greater interest in the work of the Board, and would not make such a great demand upon the time of the officers and the individual members of the Board.

During the year 714 letters were written in answer to enquiries regarding the city and district and other matters pertaining to the office. About 10,000 leaflets have been distributed, and about 2,500 of the reprint of Kipling's article in "Collier's Weekly" and about 2,500 of the reprint from "Canada," "What Canada thinks about Medicine Hat," together with 4,000 of the 32 page booklet issued by the Board last year. We have also sent broadcast over 1,000 copies of the special edition of the Medicine Hat "News."

Three hundred and thirty eight visitors have registered during the year and as about only one visitor in every seven registers, and as nearly all of them took advantage of the invitation issued by the Board to use their stationary in writing letters this medium of advertising is a very important one.

Outside of this 338 visitors have called generally for information and left their cards with us.

During the year special "write-ups" in the majority of cases illustrated by photos, have been written for the following:—

"Natural Gas Journal."
"Hardware Review," New York.
"Putnams" and "The Reader," New York.
"Canada," London, England.
"Detroit Sunday News."
"Out door Canada."
"Calgary Herald."
"Calgary Albertan."
"Winnipeg Telegram."

My last address contained a reference to the public spirit of Messrs. Bennett & Hamilton and Mr. Geo. Lung, in placing at the disposal of the city certain free sites for manufacturing purposes, and the indications are that this year will see the location of the first large plant upon one of these sites, Industrial Place, and a mile and a half of spur line leading into it which will make ample provision for any large plants that may follow their lead.

As there appears to be a more hopeful spirit permeating the entire country at present, we think the time opportune for redoubling our efforts and endeavoring to inspire in to our work a spirit of enthusiasm which ultimately must bring about a more progressive and larger Medicine Hat.

The free use of the Board room is extended to citizens and Associations not having a meeting place of their own, and this has been appreciated very much by the Agricultural Society, the Poultry and Pet Stock Association, and the committee having charge of the Local Improvement District.

At a recent meeting while many of us were the guests of the Southern Alberta Land Company, Mr. J. D. McGregor, the managing director expressed very strongly his appreciation of the assistance given him by the citizens, the City Council and the Board of Trade and the Agricultural Society in procuring for him the endorsation of the Federal Government in securing certain changes which were absolutely necessary to bring their irrigation scheme to a successful issue. This we think will mean a great deal to Medicine Hat during the next few years, the establishing of a large rural population which will be tributary to our city.

As I have just finished a two year term as President I feel I can find no more opportune time than the present to thank you one and all for the loyal support both financially and in the unselfish manner you have placed at the Board's disposal your time, which to most of our members is more valuable than money, but without which the Board could not accomplish its aims. I wish also to thank our secretary, Mr. Hall. He has indeed made the position almost an honorary one and we should feel grateful at having so energetic and capable a secretary. As President I am in a position to know how hard he has worked and what he has accomplished. It was most unfortunate that the very month following Mr. Hall's arrival the bottom dropped out of everything and financial embarassment has followed up to the present time. In spite of this, Mr. Hall has kept plugging away faithfully and has succeeded in advertising our city to the very best advantage. He has also get into communication with many of the large manufacturing concerns with a view to locating here. I also feel it my duty to tell you (although Mr. Hall has asked me not to), that he has received two very attractive offers one from the Board of Trade of Ottawa, and the other from the Board of Trade of Fort William. In refusing Mr. Hall stated that Medicine Hat promised to become the manufacturing centre of Western Canada, and he would rather throw in his lot with us, than again go East. This proves Mr. Hall's faith in our future.

We understand that an effort will be made in the near future to form an organization for the purpose of creating a greater and more widespread interest in the general welfare of the City, among all classes of citizens, and the Board desires it to be distinctly understood that it will welcome with open arms, and give every encouragement and assistance to, any movement that will arouse and stir up a more active and personal interest on the part of every individual in the community, and will work in perfect harmony with all whose object is to have a greater and more prosperous Medicine Hat.

United and persistent work on the part of all is bound to produce results. We also place the Board Room at their disposal. It is the right spirit that every booster you make, makes one knocker less, and our cry for 1909 should be "Everybody Boost."

Chas. S. Pingle,
President.

SECRETARY'S REPORT

Secretary's report for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1908:

During the first two months of the year, January and February, the secretary spent six weeks endeavoring to do missionary work throughout the Province of Ontario, speaking before the Canadian Club in Hamilton, and the Canadian Club in Ottawa, also before the Empire Club in Toronto, and to many manufacturers, where we received a very cordial reception, but found all the manufacturers exceedingly sceptical as to the manufacturing possibilities of this western country.

Their line of vision does not seem to carry them beyond the western boundary of Manitoba, and we venture to say that 85 per cent. of these large manufacturers, whose travellers have been doing western Canada for the past twenty years, are firmly convinced that conditions as they exist in Manitoba are prevalent over the entire west.

As a general rule we found them very much interested in what we had to say regarding western Canada, but only as a market for their manufactured product. Talk to them of the possibilities of the future for manufacturing in western Canada, and they simply smile and ridicule the idea of west?rn Canada ever being the home of large manufacturing concerns.

Personally we are of the opinion that the Province of Alberta will eventually become the manufacturing province of the west. We base our prophesy of this upon her central location, the abundance of fuel in the form of coal from the American boundary upon our south to the furthest explored portions of the north, while in the natural gas field, of which Medicine Hat appears to be the centre, you have the cheapest light, heat and power propositions that exists anywhere at the present time, and while as Canadians we are patriotic enough to earnestly desire that this province should be developed by Canadian capital and Canadian enterprise, from the feeling we found to exist among the manufacturers of Ontario, and we presume this applies to eastern Canada generally, we must admit that we are not very hopeful of much assistance from that source, but we are of opinion that taking into consideration the ever increasing amount of agricultural capital that is flowing in from the United States, it will not be long befor that is followed by American industrial capital, a movement has already been started, and we did not hesitate to tell this to the manufacturers of the east in language that could not be mistaken.

They seem to be lulling themselves into a sleep of false security, that with the tariff conditions now existing between Canada and the United States that this market was secure to them for all time to come, and we intimated to them very forcibly that if they did not look into the actual conditions as they exist in this province today, that the day would not be very far distant when they would wake from their dream of false security, and find that American industrial capital had secured a firm footing and a strong hold upon the market and development of the Province of Alberta.

Upon our return from the east we spent a few days in Winnipeg, and having previously arranged a meeting with Mr. G. J. Bury we had quit? an extended interview with him regarding larger railway shops at this point, laying as clearly and concisely as possible before him what the City of Medicine Hat was prepared to do whenever the railway company was prepared to take the matter up.

Immediately upon arrival home we had the assessor of the City for 1908, and completed same within statutory time, not as complete and as comprehensively as we would have wished, but a fairly equitable assessment disposal. This added $600.00 to considering the limited time at our the funds of the Board.

On April the 11th we commenced the preliminary work for the Convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada, which will be referred to later.

Early in May we commenced preparations for the opening of the Finlay Bridge, which passed off very successfully on the 14th of that month, when the bridge was formally opened by the Hon. A. C. Rutherford, Premier of the Province, Hon. W. H. Cushing, Minister of Public Works, and the Hon. W. T. Finlay, Minister of Agriculture. This event was brought to a pleasant close by a banquet which was held in the City Hall.

The cost of this function was $495.77, a grant of $250.00 being made by the city, and 126 tickets being sold at $2.00 each, adding $252.00 a total of $502.00 and we returned to the City Treasurer a cheque for the balance, $6.23.

The City Council having decided to have an exhibit in the District Building at the Dominion Fair, Calgary, and having set aside the sum of $600.00 for that purpose, we commenced making preparations for the same early in June.

On June 18th, 19th and 20th the Convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada was held in the Council Chamber and passed off very successfully, the delegates leaving us well pleased, and speaking in the highest terms of the hospitality of Medicine Hat.

The entertainment provided for the members was in the nature of a gymnastic entertainment in the opera house, for which we cannot feel too grateful to Dr. C. F. Smith for his untiring efforts in making it a great success. We also witnessed a game of baseball between the C. P. R. and Fire Brigade base ball clubs. On the last evening of the convention a smoker was held in the honor of the visitors in the city hall, and was thoroughly enjoyed by them. This entertainment cost $168.05 to defray the expenses of which a subscription was taken up amongst the members and citizens amounting to $155.00, the Board issuing its check for $8.05 to close the account.

On June 20th, in company with Mr. R. S. Winters we went to Calgary to complete the arrangements for our Exhibition at the Dominion Fair which opened on Monday June 29th and closed on July 9th. Mr. Winters and myself were in attendance during the entire time of the Exhibition, and all the visitors seemed to enjoy the unique nature of our exhibition, in demonstrating with natural gas as an illuminant and a fuel, and giving a practical demonstration with modern appliances of the many uses to which it is put in the C. P. R. shops here, and everybody seemed to concede that it was an exceedingly novel method of advertising.

The Council granted for this exhibition $600.00, and owing to circumstances over which we had no control, it exceeded this amount by $25.89. The Board issued its cheque for this amount in order to close the account.

Large quantities of literature regarding Medicine Hat was put in circulation there.

On the 17th of July, Warren Overpack and M. E. Newell of the Lehigh Clay Products Company of Lehigh, Iowa, paid their first visit to the city and we look forward in the near future to seeing in Medicine Hat a substantial and practical monument of that visit.

During the week of Aug. 10th to 16th the second annual convention of the Western Canada Irrigation Association (of which we have the honor to be on the executive) met in

MARRIED LIFE A FAILURE

A WIFE--ANOTHER MAN--POLICE--RECONCILIATION?

Married life a failure

Last Tuesday afternoon as the result of investigations carried out by Officer Bruce of the city police, the household of an eloping couple who were settling down in contentment in a shack on North Ottawa St., was unceremoniously broken up and the erring spouse restored to her forgiving and infatuated husband.

On the previous Thursday evening the Chief received word from Calgary that Thorine Petree Mikkelson, the wife of a Dutchman living in that city, and John Yale, a single man, had eloped together, taking with them, it was alleged, $50 and a trunk, contents not described, belonging to Mikkelson. A warrant had been issued for their arrest on the charge of theft. On Friday morning the Chief communicated the intelligence to his staff, and a sharp look out was kept for the missing couple. It was on the following Tuesday, however, that Officer Bruce, on the way to report for duty at one o'clock in the afternoon, saw a man answering in several particulars the description given by the Calgary police, turn down a lane behind The Fair. The black pearskin overcoat which the man was wearing proved to be his undoing for it was by this that he was at first betrayed. Returning after having reported for duty, the policeman made enquiries in the neighborhood and found that the man in the black bearskin coat and a woman such as he was said to hear described, came into town on the previous Thursday evening, they han rented a shack the same night from Wm. McKay. Bruce then reported to the Chief that the Calgary couple had been located, and shortly afterwards the peace of the happy home was destroyed by the arrival at the shack door of Chief Meiklejohn and Officer Bruce. A dray was hired and the signers, with the trunk and all their belongings, were hauled ingloriously to the police station, there to spend a day and a couple of nights in the stone of the cells in reflection on the vanity of human aspiration. On Thursday Mikkelson himself came down to reclaim his wife. Mrs. Mikkelson received his advances coldly and when the Dutchman, his wife, and his wife's affinity left for Calgary, the reconciliation had not been completed.

On his arrest Yale first gave the name of Skinner, stating that the woman was his wife.

Does it Pay?

A couple of weeks ago a fur robe was advertised in The Times Want columns, and was returned to the owner the same day.

The Times' want ads, are in a class by themselves. For only 25 cents you can find anything. Everybody who loses or finds anything wants a roomer or a room, a purchaser, a position or help looks to The Times' want columns as naturally as they read the same paper for the news. Why waste money elsewhere?

Remember you can insert twenty words for 25 cents for one issue or 50 cents for a month. Look over the want ads. today—they may contain something you want.

MR. MAGRATH SPEAKS

Mr. Magrath in the House the other da- had some questions to ask regarding the granting of an extension of time to the Canadian Western Railway. He expressed the hope that established towns would not be passed and asked that as a guarantee of good faith the promoters should make a deposit of 5 per cent with the Government. Several charters had already been granted for the same territory but nothing had been done.

HORRIBLE CALAMITY

Through the films of a moving picture machine catching fire, in Acapulco, Mex., last week, over 300 lives were lost. There have been a number of moving picture fires of late and the revival of the series of disasters of last year is feared.

A meeting of all of the Conservatives of the present constituency will be held in the Conservative Club rooms on Main St., for the selection of a candidate or candidates, on Friday, March 5th, at 7.30. Every Conservative is requested to be present.

Y. M. C. PERFORMANCE

GOOD PROGRAMME OF GYMNASTIC EVENTS

The programme for the big gymnastic performance on Thursday night in the Opera House is:

PART I

1. Overture—Orchestra.
2. Address—Mayor Milne.
3. Drill—Junior B. Class.
4. Horizontal Bar—Seniors.
5. Song—Mr. R. W. Lampman.
6. Club Swinging—Miss Coral Fowler
7. Pyramid Building—Junior A Class.
8. Flying Rings—Seniors.

PART II

9. Overture—Orchestra.
10. Bag Punching—Mr. B. L. Richie.
11. Parallel Bars and Pyramids—Seniors.
12. Violin Solo—Mr. C. Sansom.
13. Club Swinging—Mr. H. Stewart.
14. Diving—Seniors.
15. Song—Miss G. Dickerson.
16. Boxing Contest—Tramps.
17. Tumbling—Cory Bros., A. DesBriay, W. White.

The performers are all well up in their parts and will provide a fine evening's amusement. Seats are on sale at Souch's and are going rapidly.

A GREAT CHANCE

You can save 40 cents on the dollar at Stoddart's Jewelry Store for the balance of the week by saying you saw it in The Times. As a line stock is carried this is an opportunity to secure at a big bargain anything you see in the store. Call around and look at things anyway. It's just opposite the post office.

SUPPORT LOCAL TALENT

The production of Ten Nights in a Bar-room, the great temperance drama, by local talent, in the Opera House, on March 12th, will be one of the best local entertainments presented here. There are over a dozen characters in the cast and the members are making most gratifying progress in the rehearsals. The orchestra which has been secured is one of the strongest organizations that could be secured in the city and the fact that Mr. C. Sansom, will have charge of the musical programme is a guarantee that something first-class will be rendered. There will be a good programme between acts by local talent, including an exhibition of fancy roller skating by Billy Williams, who has no equal in this great west, and who has won many medals for this work.

EX-MAYOR COUSINS WORKING

At a reception given by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce last Thursday, ex-Mayor Cousins who is with the Spokane part- spoke of the great resources of this district. In its report the Los Angeles Times describes Southern Alberta as "the great northland." The education of these Californians has been sadly neglected.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. L. Rankin desires through the columns of The Times to express her thanks for all the kindness and sympathy shown during her mother, Mrs Wellband's recent illness. She also wishes to thank all those friends who sent flowers.

"MONTE CRISTO"

The most thrilling of the many scenes of "Monte Cristo" at the Opera House tonight is the scene at the end of the second act where Edmond Dantes emerges from the sea and reaches the rock. The illusion of the sky and the rock from which Dantes hurls his exultant cry "The World is mine," is well nigh perfect and is a wonderful example of stage craft. As in all dramatizations liberties are taken with the original text. This is unavoidable and in the case of Monte Cristo commendable. The heroic Count does not go sailing away in a pleasure yacht with the Pilacess but stands with Mercedes and his son by his side, as everyone feels he should have done in the book. It is a more satisfactory termination and closes the play amid hearty applause. The interest naturally centres in Mr. Frederic Clarke who impersonates the Count. This eminent actor has never been more happily cast. He seems imbued with the spirit of the part and his earnest efforts, always intelligent, forceful and dignified are peculiarly effective. "Monte Cristo" will be the offering at the Opera House tonight.

A BULL'S EYE

An accident occurred at Josephburg last Friday afternoon whilst the Mounted Police were engaged in target practice. A cartridge in Corporal Jenkyn's revolver had evidently missed fire and the Corporal accidentally pulling the trigger at a time when th? muzzle was turned towards the palm of his left hand, he sustained a rather bad wound. Constable Wiedeman and who was standing near was shot through the thigh. Dr. Ferguson, of Irvine, was called and dressed th? wounds, which were fortunately not of a serious nature, and in the afternoon Inspector Parker rode over and brought the policemen back in the ambulance wagon on Saturday. The Constable will be in the hospital for a few days. Corporal Jerkyn's is up and around, but it will be some days before he can use his left hand.

Important Business Change

Today Messrs. C. Hollinger and G. R. Kennedy go into partnership in the management of the Home Goods Store, which they will continue to carry on upon the most up-to-date lines.

The growth of the business of this firm since September last has been remarkable, and a six thousand dollar stock is now carried. This includes a full line of ladies' small wear laces and e broidery, china and glassware, books and stationery and many other lines. Both Mr. Hollinger and Mr. Kennedy are well known and able business men of the city and a brilliant future for the new firm would seem to be assured.

CHIEF SMART HERE

Chief Smart of the Calgary fire department was in the city on Saturday. He inspected the system and made a number of recommendations to the fire committee in regard to the adoption of the most up-to-date methods. The appointment of a permanent fire chief is advised, and of another driver. Mr. Smart also suggests that building inspection be placed under the control of the chief.

The Scool Board

A special meeting of the school board was held last night for the discussion of school accommodation There were present, W. J. Brotherton chairman, A. C. Hawthorne, F. P. Kennedy, D. G. White, Trustees.

A couple of hours were spent in discussion, as the outcome of which two motions were carried, the first requesting Principle Sansom to find out as accurately as possible what number of pupils would seek admission at Easter, the other to the effect that a permanent school shall be built on block 19.

Mr. Kennedy pointed out that permanent accomodation could not be provided by spring, and some temporary provision would have to be made.

Principal Sansom suggested that some change be made as to the time when pupils could be admitted. Down east in some provinces pupils were admitted only once a year, and it might simplify the work of the schools if some such system were adopted here. Mr. Fatt pointed out that a parent could demand admission for his child at any time, and in some cases real hardship would be inflicted were it otherwise—as in the case of ranchers who were compelled to live away from the city during a large part of the year. The practice, however, will be discouraged, as it militates against efficiency.

Speaking of the building problem now before the board, Mr. Brotherton stated that in his six years' experience the building question had been on the carpet all the time. He prophesied that before the new school was completed Medicine Hat would have to be in preparation for the erection of another.

Mr. Fatt referred to the promise given by the provincial government of assistance for high schools. A fund had already been set apart to be used for this purpose.

After some discussion of the plans the board adjourned till today week when a decision will be reached on the school accomodation question.

A song service will be held in the Baptist church next Sunday evening.

The King Edward has made some important changes in their shaving parlors. The chairs are in charge of Al. Rodenbaugh, Victor Corbett and Cliff Church. The latter arrived on Tuesday night train from Saskatoon with the highest recommendations. The other barbers are well known locally.

Harry T. Driggs has sold out his general store and lumber business at Grassy Lake to Messrs Larsen Bros. & Haley, of Michigan City, U. S. A.

The Provincial Fat Stock show will be held in Calgary from April 5th to 9th.

The final obsequies of the Lethbridge gas well were performed the other day when the last of the pipe was withdrawn and laid mournfully on the ground. It has cost the city about $11,000 and the Electric Co., over $10,000.

P.S.A. and Girls' Own

Inauguration Banquet Last Week

Toast List and Programme

The inaugural banquet of the P. S. A. Men's Bible Class held last Thursday evening in conjunction with the Young Ladies' Class was one of the most successful and delightful events of the season.

The banquet was held in the Baptist church. About a hundred members sat down to tables loaded with palatable and dainty viands and gay with flowers. When at last the chairs were tilted back and the banquetters beamed with the satisfaction of a delicious repast there was still more to follow—the toast list and programme which left nothing to be desired as the conclusion to the evening's entertainment.

Mr. C. Sansom, the leader of the class, acted as toastmaster.

To the toast "The King" the guests responded en masse with the national anthem, "God Save the King."

Following this, the orchestra, composed of Messrs. Sansom, Murray, Blue and Sleight gave a selection in their usual unexcelled manner.

The toast to the P. S. A. was responded to by Messrs. Sansom and Hopper who explained the objects of the organization the success it has already met with and the bright outlook for the future of this organization, high in its ideal and helpful in its working out.

Mr. Hopper proved his ability as a speaker and delighted his hearers with a stirring baritone selection.

A delightful selection of Drummond's "Little Satan," full of humor and pathos, was recited by Mr. D. Rivers.

The toast to the "Girls Own" the Young Ladies' Bible Class, was responded to by Mrs. G. Lean and Miss K. Sinclair, who briefly and entertainingly showed the work being done, the aims and ideals of that class.

This toast was followed by a violin solo of a very unordinary quality by Mr. C. Sansom. As a violinist Mr. Sansom ranks as an artist of the first quality, and his selection was most thoroughly appreciated.

The toast to "The Church" was responded to by Rev. Mr. Farrell, Rev Mr. McLaren, and Rev. Mr. Bryant, representative of the three denominations each of whom looked forward to the time when denominational differences will cease and the church become one body.

[illegible] was a comic song by Mr. [illegible] who kept the audience in laughter for some time by the dilemma of the forsaken Dutchman. Mr. Darrah contained the amusement by an exceedingly humorous recitation, "The Lament of Widow Green."

The Sunday School was toasted next. Messrs. R. Kennedy, C. M. Fowler and C. E. Neff responded to this toast, lauding the world-wide and life-long influence of Bible study and commending the work and success of the class.

Miss Sinclair entertained the company with a beautiful and well rendered solo that charmed and captivated the audience.

And lastly the toast of all toasts, "The Ladies," was proposed and responded to by Mr. D. R. Ware in a brief eulogy of the position and influence of women in the world's past and her present status in modern society.

The guests then rose and joined hands and joined voices in the old familar song 'Auld Lang Syne' which brought the evening's proceedings to a close and the guests with the satisfaction of an evening well spent and with none but the best of wishes for the success of the P. S. A. and "Girls Own" Bible classes.

A STRANGE COINCIDENCE

A peculiar accident happened last Friday on the Crow train which left here Thursday night. A passenger by the name of Smith got on at Pincher Creek, to go west, and took a seat in the colonist car. When the news agent passed through, between Hosmer and Fernie, Mr. Smith purchased a Diary from him and filled out the identification page. When he finished his writing he stepped out on the platform and in some way lost his balance, falling off the platform. The snow is piled up high from the tracks and when he fell he was thrown back under the train. The man was literally cut to pieces. No one saw the accident but the news agent.

BOOZY INDIANS

On the 18th inst. it was reported to the Mounted Police that a number of Indians were drunk in the camp. Constable Capstick accordingly went down to investigate and Peeper and Stanley were arrested, and a half-breed by the name of Tanner, on the charge of supplying liq[illegible]

Brought before Inspector Rutledge the following day, the Indians were allowed to go on suspended sentence, Tanner who appeared before the Inspector and Mr. D. Milne being given three months. For assault on J. B. Cayon, Tanner was sentenced to another four months.

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—According to a decision reached tonight by the Stanley Cup trustees, Albert Kerr of the Ottawas; Joe Hall and Steve Vair of the Wanderers, and many of the players on the challenging teams will not be allowed to take part in coming matches for the Stanley Cup.

Mr. Foran will send letters to each of the challenging teams, viz: Renfrew, Shamrocks of Winnipeg, and the champions of the Temiskaming league and the Ontario provincial league, requesting them to forward at once a list of their probable players, together with information as to when they joined their present teams. The trustees intend to bar all players who figured in other leagues this season or who were not on the challenging teams on January 2nd, the date of the opening of the Eastern Canada Hockey Association. It will also effect the defenders of the trophy if they being forced to play without the men who have joined their ranks since January 2nd. It is one of the most far reaching decisions ever handed down by the Stanley Cup trustees.

Joe Gans, the negro pugilist, announces that he has agreed to meet the English boxer, Jabez White, in New York for ten rounds on March 11. The men will weigh 135 pounds.

(Winnipeg Free Press)

As so many who are interested in baseball are in the city attending the bonspiel from Regina, Moose Jaw and Saskatoon, J. M. Lamb, President of the Northern league, has decided to call the meeting at Regina on Monday March 1, at 11 a.m., to finally decide on the circuit of the All-Canadian league.

The reports are so favorable that Regina is practically assured of being a member. Mr. Lamb will go west next week to make the final arrangements as regards the eighth city.

RECORDS OF JOCKEYS

In looking over the records of the leading jockeys on the English turf for the last forty-nine years some interesting and remarkable figures have been disclosed. During that long period of English racing the honor of leading the riders for the different seasons has been won by only nineteen different jockeys.

In 1860, G. Fordham, known as "the little demon," captured the leading honors with 146 wins and repeated his success in 1861, 1862, 1863, 1865, 1867, 1868, 1869 and 1871. Fordham rode over 1,500 winners during his career on the turf, while he rode only one Derby winner, he had the honor of piloting four Oaks winners besides the winners of many other valuable stakes. Fordham ranks next to the phenomenal Archer in the jockey history of the English turf. F. Archer's name appears first in the list of winning jockeys in 1873, when he finished second with 101 wins. The following year Archer for the first time finished at the top of the jockey list and then held that coveted position for twelve more years against all opposition. Besides holding the jockeys for thirteen consecutive years, during which time he rode over 2,700 winners, Archer piloted home 5 Derby winners, 4 winners of the Oaks, and 6 winners of the St. Leger. The remarkable career of the famous jockey has never been surpassed in any country, nor is there any likelihood that the future will produce his equal, much less his superior.

Another jockey who achieved considerable fame at his chosen profession was M. Cannon who was at the head of the jockey list for six different seasons. In 1900 the American jockey, C. Reiff won first place with 153 wins, and his brother J. Reiff finished third with 124.

Among the present day jockeys O. Madden has won the leading honor four times. W. Higgins has had the honor on two different occasions, and Danny Maher, the leader of the last season, has made an enviable record during his nine years on the English turf.

Edmonton beat Calgary in Hockey by a score of 5 to 0 and could have made it a dozen.

Abe Attell was outpointed by Driscoll of England, in New York on Friday.

Hobb Kerr the great sprinter from Hamilton is reported to have Calgary in his eye as a home in the future.

Wealth on the Peace River

"The country traversed by the G. T. P. through British Columbia has not been catching the eye and the ear of the prospector, as otherwise it might have done on account of the concentration of interest in Cobalt, and the new camp of Gowganda," says a G. T. P. authority.

"In the Bad ne range of the mountains, drained by the Peace river, a great many claims have been staked and there are good indications of copper, silver and gold.

"The Peace River washes from the northwest, from the vicinity of Manson Creek, a district in which placer gold has been already found. The bed of the Peace River shows black sand giving colors quite sufficient to offer inducements to prospect for dredging and indications of placer gold through its explored length, some of the bars or steam shovel ground. Unlike most of the streams in the southern part of the province on which dredging has been attempted, the bars of the Peace River are almost entirely free from boulders, a fact which should greatly favor dredging operations and render possible the working of a deposit of a grade which might not be profitable where such conditions did not exist.

"So far very little coal has been found on the western slope of the range, but immediately we tip over and start down the Peace River, which flows eastward, coal indications are in evidence.

"Up to the present time the whole district to the east of the mountain has been under government reserve, so that no coal or other land might be staked or recorded there, which fact has prevented the district from being prospected or settled. A few prospectors, either in ignorance or in disregard of the reserve, located and staked coal lands in the vicinity of the canyon, but as a record of these claims was refused by the provincial government the prospectors and those interested are extremely reticent as to their finds, hoping to re-stake as soon as the reserve is opened, and it is felt that it is but right that the location of their discoveries be not made public.

The coal found appears to be a bituminous coal of very fair quality, in beds of workable thickness.

"Some distance east of the canyon and south of the Peace River, on Coal Creek, a tributary of the South Pine, and on the headwaters of Muddy River and other streams in that vicinity, coal has been reported as found, the latest mention of such being by Mr. J. A. MacDonald, in the report of his explorations in that district for the Dominion government, in which he mentions finding a good bituminous coal.

Canadian Clubs Work for Good.

(Toronto Mail and Empire)

That every Canadian club in the Dominion would play an important part in all questions pertaining to the British Empire, and that great good would accrue to Canada by reason of the formation of the clubs was the statement made at a Canadian Club luncheon recently by Sir James P. Whitney Prime Minister of Ontario. Owing to the fact that he did not feel well Sir James did not speak as long as he intended but his remarks were followed with the greatest interest by the enormous number present.

After a few introductory remarks, Sir James stated that Canada was now in a position of gradual development, and had been for many years, and was now becoming more experienced. Events were following each other with great rapidity, and from an Imperial point of view were rising up on the horizon of the country and calling for consideration by the people and almost jostling each other in the public view. Questions were rising of a nature which could not be dealt with hastily, and which would certainly not permit of being dismissed idly and carelessly, and if questions might in the future exist between the scattered groups which comprised the British Empire, the public in Canada would be alive to the fact that a change in those relations was imminent or at any rate near at hand, because the present system of government which existed was simply no system at all, and really of no benefit, and therefore the people were beginning to realize and understand that changes must be brought about to take the place of the present loose and indeterminate system. There were five or six or seven groups scattered over the world all determined to do what they could for the continuity and permanence of the British Empire, but at the same time the system or means of communication was not fulfilling the object, and a change must be imminent, if not very close at hand.

One of the Differences

Differences would loom up in the way of endeavoring to bring about any system of change in those relations said Sir James. Suppose tariff legislation should be had between the Old Country and Canada. That in his opinion, was one of the enormous differences which would have to be considered, but formidable as those obstacles would be found to be, the great seriousness and momentous nature of the questions, and the results they would have on the future of the British Empire, rendered it desireable that they should not stop because the difficulties seemed almost insurmountable, but should give courage in the fact, the difficulties had to be surmounted. The psychological moment at which the great questions should be launched had not yet been found, and in the meantime they must continue the policy of drift, with all the results which that policy may be said to imply.

Sir James said he desired to indicate one or two of the questions which would have to be considered when the time came, and the consideration of those questions would call for the greatest amount of ability and patriotism which would be found in Canada.

Regarding the system of Canadian clubs, Sir James said he had a strong opinion, outside of general principle, a strong conviction of the great advantages which must accrue to the community at large from a great many organizations such as the Canadian Club. Association, he said, had great advantages. He was satisfied that the results which would follow the formation of those clubs would be of great public benefit, and the discussions would be of great value. He understood the great advantages which would accrue from the submission of different opinions to the community in which they took place, and created a sort of raw material out of which wise conclusions might be evolved, and it followed as a matter of course that there could not be any influence, outside the press, which would have so far-reaching an effect on the minds of the people at large. The press was far from being infallible, but the press of Canada was having a good and beneficial effect on the people of Canada. The influence of clubs like the Canadian Club was confined to cities, towns, and large villages, and the constituency served must necessarily be much smaller than that served by the press. Twenty years ago, he continued, men were cheered because their leaders were cheered, but today if a balloon passed over the province and dropped a man at every cross road, and a wagon went along to pick them up, in nine cases out of ten those men could give an intelligent resume of what was going on in the country.

Good Influence

It seemed to Sir James that the influence of Canadian clubs must be good. In another way it was a great advantage that the men of both political parties were able to come together and discuss what you want without fear of injury.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a question of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

Alfalfa in the West

(Winnipeg Telegram)

Alfalfa grown and cured in the west I will give a little of my experience with alfalfa. First select a piece of land that is well drained, that is, a piece of land that the water does not stand on. Alfalfa is somewhat like a steer, give it all the water it will drink it will thrive, hold its head under and it will drown. Second, have a piece of land from which three or more crops have been taken so that it is well pulverized and the root fibre is worked out of it. Now the next in order is a good summer fallow plow in May or June to the depth of six or seven inches, harrow down at once to conserve the moisture; as fast as weeds appear, destroy them either by discing or harrowing, or both, during the summer. Allow no weeds to mature. If there is some well rotted barnyard manure, which there usually is, from five to ten loads per acre is not a bad thing to apply, more will do no harm. The following spring as soon as the land can be worked, put the disc and harrow to work as before, this will warm up the land, destroy weeds, and bring other weeds to the surface so that at the next cultivation these in turn would be destroyed. This should be from the middle to the last of May. Land thus treated, other things being equal, should be in the pink of condition, and even in a dry season should have enough moisture conserved to maintain and bring forth good results.

Securing Seed

The next is the seed. Seed should be secured of good germination qualities, and free from weed seeds, especially dodder seeds. It can be either sown with a seed drill or broad cast at the rate of say, from 12 to 15 pounds per acre. I prefer a drill and put it down not more than an inch. Sowing should not be done until danger of frost is over as young alfalfa plants are very tender, but very hardy when fully matured. Right here, I may say that in my opinion a great many failures are due to the lack of the necessary bacteria, which will have to be supplied either by way of nitro-culture, or soil from an established alfalfa field. If from soil, from one to two hundred pounds per acre, sown broad cast either before or at the time of sowing the alfalfa seed. If from nitro-culture, the department of agriculture will furnish the amount and instructions necessary for the area intended to be sown. The above are some of the things that, in my opinion, should be done. I will now set forth one thing that should not be done. Should all of the conditions that I have stated be complied with there is one thing if practiced to a great extent, will spell failure. That is close pasturing during fall and winter. I may say that there are in my opinion, three main causes why I failed for so many years, viz., sowing on new land, lack of inoculation, and last but by no means the least, heavy pasturing.

Whatever is done, do not sow alfalfa with a nurse crop. I think the proper name for the supposed nurse crop is murder crop. I should also emphasize the necessity of clipping off the weeds and also the young growth of alfalfa once or twice during the growing season. This will check the weeds and stimulate the growth of the clover.

Curing Alfalfa

Now let us assume that we have a crop of alfalfa to cure. We will then proceed to treat this part that your enquirers are interested in, that of curing alfalfa. This, like the other points covered is of vital importance. We may have a good crop of alfalfa, or for the lack of good weather or below handled in an improper way the crop may be rendered almost worthless for feed which is chiefly what we are raising it for. Climatic conditions have all to do, or nearly so, with the curing process although a little muscle helps out wonderfully when not quite cured with the weather cloudy and looking like a storm. I do not know of any method whereby alfalfa can be cut and put right in the stack without spoiling but I know of quite a number of men who claim that 25 or 50 pounds of salt to the ton will prevent to quite an extent alfalfa from mustiing when put together a little out of condition. I think your reader must have been thinking of silo. If this is the case, I cannot give any information on handling alfalfa for it.

I don't know any place where hay can be cured better than in Alberta, for usually in the latter part of June and the beginning of July we have good weather, the days are long and warm with a little wind which makes it ideal for haying. I think that at Airdrie, the first cutting will come off either in the first week of July than in June.

The method that I have and am following is this: If I am intending feeding it to cows, weather permitting, I cut when the first blossom appears. If for horses I leave it until it is about one-third or one-half in blossom, let it lay for a few hours in the swath, then rake into windrows. I then take my fork and put it into small cocks, or about as much as a man would want to lift upon a rack at one forkful. If for any reason the alfalfa does not cure as fast as it should, right here is where the muscle mentioned comes in to good stead. I take my fork and turn it over without tearing the cock to pieces. When handled in this way, most of the leaves remain on the stalks, and go to the stack where they belong, and if put together right it comes out green and is a tempting morsel for all kinds of cattle and horses. The leading point to guard against is rain, the weather and the way it is cured.

Every farmer owes it to himself, his posterity and the country in which he lives to prepare, plant and care for a small patch of alfalfa. If he will do this, it is my opinion that the time is not far distant when it can be sown without soil inoculation from afar, and it will grow anywhere.

Distress from Upset Stomach

Take your stomach—or may be you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmicist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 2-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your stomach misery.

The correct name of your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice, your food is only half digested and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of the stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness dizziness and many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or, you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or have a lump on the stomach you can make up your mind at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is really nothing wrong. Stop this fermentation and you can eat anything what you want without fear of distress.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a question of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

Afflicted for years with a Diseased Liver.

Mr. L. R. Devitt, Berlin, Ont., better known, perhaps, as "Smallpox Ben," has used

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

He has also used them for his patients when nursing them, and it is a well known fact that small pox sufferers must keep the bowels well regulated.

Read what he says:—"I have been afflicted for years with a diseased liver, and have tried all kinds of medicine, but of no avail until about four years ago I tried your Laxa Liver Pills, and got instant relief. Since then I have nursed several patients afflicted with small-pox, and in each case I have used your valuable pills.

"My wishes are that all persons suffering with stomach or liver troubles will try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I will advertise them wherever and whenever I have an opportunity and I hope that if at any time I cannot get the pills, I will be fortunate enough to get the formula."

Milburn's Laxa Liver Pills are 25 cents per vial or 5 vials for $1.00, at all dealers or will be mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Beyond Criticism

The Liberal subsidized organs of Alberta delight in that meaningless general applause of the Alberta Government which expresses itself in "beyond criticism." A Liberal daily even went so far recently as to say that "it is very difficult for a member of the present House who hopes for re-election to do otherwise than praise the present administration."

Of course, one must take into consideration the fact that Rutherford and his followers have not taken all these papers into their closest confidence. It may be that some of these unqualified terms of adulation are given honestly—in which case the organ guilty of such a display of ignorance, did not come in for that big payment made at the beginning of 1908 to the Liberal papers. It cannot be that it is a part of Liberalism to really think that payment honest.

However, the people of Alberta, in case they do entertain such a high opinion of the Edmonton powers, are going to be rudely shocked during the present campaign. As for the difficulty of a member being elected who does not praise the Government, a paper that says that knows nothing of the Conservative Convention in Red Deer a few days ago, where were gathered about 200 men including a great many of the most prominent and influential men in Alberta. Even the Liberals will not dery that.

Reverting to that payment to the Liberal organs for blind obedience and servility, the facts are these: In the beginning of 1908 an expenditure was brought down which read as follows: "to advance for work to be done later," and checks ranging from $300 to $700 were made out to the Liberal papers of the province. "For work to be done later" is the most palpable attempt to provide a reason for stealing thousands of dollars from the people. Is it any wonder the Liberal papers daren't say anything else than that the Rutherford Government is "above suspicion?" will the Liberal papers dare to deny this fact? As it is on the House records they know they must keep still.

What would the people of the country say if they knew that $130 had been paid to one man without the slightest value received, and that the minister concerned ordered the accountant who drew attention to the fact to keep quiet; that a minister of the Rutherford Government drew out of the public treasury $2,900 in 1907 and did not return it until just a few days before the annual accounting had to be presented; that in one department $25,000 was charged up to "unforseen and unprovided for" and no more details were given; that an employee of the Government misappropriated $700 and was not dismissed, and another one went ore better and took $2,000; that a few hours after the ministers in secret conclave had decided upon a certain property for a court-house, the property was purchased at a price, which, when it was turned over to the Government immediately afterwards netted the purchaser $10,000; that in this deal one of the ministers refused to recognize it but was forced into it by the Premier; that the same minister refused to enter the House to answer the questions of the leader of the Opposition on another big land deal and the Premier undertook to take his place; that the cheques for this deal were not make out to the name on the voucher as required by custom, but a deputy minister took the cheque to Winnipeg the same night.

If these things should be proven would it be sufficient to prove to the people that with such a limited Opposition as there has been, the Government has been able to do many things without the knowledge of the people.

The electors can expect that the Liberal subsidized papers will cry out for a campaign free from scandal etc. Naturally they don't want the people to know where their money went to. They talk glibly of a "constructive policy", forgetting that the people know that a constructive policy which includes the misuse of thousands of dollars is less effective than if those thousands of dollars were used properly.

Board of Trade Problem

Medicine Hat's Board of Trade is not alone in the lack of interest it is arousing. When boom days ceased the direct results from publicity campaigns were very little visible to the ordinary citizen of the western city. And it is unfortunate that where direct results are not apparent the average man will not bestir himself.

But while other cities have been unable to sustain the interest in their Boards of Trade, Medicine Hat has fallen off probably more than most, and this is especially remarkable when the natural and unique advantages of the city for manufacturing industries are considered. The officers of last year had the welfare of the city to heart as much as anyone in town, the officers for 1909 undoubtedly possess the same zeal and desires. But the officers of the Medicine Hat Board of Trade are handicapped by an obstacle that will nullify all their efforts just as long as it exists.

That there is a special reason for the small attendance of a score only at the annual meeting, and for only 28 ballots returned out of a membership of 110, is known to every officer and to every business man in Medicine Hat. That it is known and felt is shown even in the President's address. There is no use of the officers trying to ignore it or talk it down, there are just as strong, just as interested, men in this city who recognize its existence, and refuse to work with the Board of Trade. The only way to do, and the only thing that will make everybody boost as we all did in 1908 and even part of 1907, is to face the problem honestly and openly and deal with it in such a way that the interests of the city only will be considered.

The Times knows very well that it will meet the old argument—a knocker—but The Times believes now as it always did that disagreable questions have to be handled in just the same honesty as the more agreeable events. The man or newspaper that lays itself out to boost everything without any judgment, without any attempt to separate the good from the bad, is the man and the newspaper that is going to do very little to build up the city. A city is improved by recognizing the evils that exist and by altering them; if the city is satisfied as it is, it will remain as it is—that is only an axiom. The same conditions existed in civic administration until a fearless Council started to do things.

The Board of Trade must remember that it possess no powers of coercion. The citizen who does not like things as they are can keep away and close his purse-strings, and not the slightest blame can be attached to him. The Times is not airing any private feeling in the matter but is voicing the sentiments of business men, without whose assistance the Board of Trade might just as well shut up shop. In fact so strong has the feeling been that The Times recognizes that it has done wrong in not broaching the subject before. It was in hopes, however, that sufficient impression would be made on the officers to render a public discussion unnecessary.

Here we have the officers for a body of 110 elected by a majority of only 28 members. That is, that possibly the successful candidate received a dozen or fifteen votes. While The Times has no fault whatever to first with the successful candidates this states of affairs on the face of it, is unfair and certainly not necessarily expressive of the opinion of the Board of Trade. The score of men who have been willing to allow the obstacle to exist, who have been willing to work under the handicap form the majority of those who took enough interest to vote, and a putting together of a half dozen heads could manipulate the elections in any desired way.

The officials or supporters of present conditions might argue that the small vote is the fault of the general membership. This may be so but the falling off of interest is the condition the officers have to prevent. A great many men told their opinions to the collectors for the publicity funds, and failing to make an impression they simply dropped out. Few people care to fight when they can withdraw without any trouble. Thus it is only through the press that the fight can be continued, and it is the duty of the press to follow it up.

It is a fact, largely due to the depression the country has passed through, that there are no visible results for the thousands of dollars spent by the Board of Trade during the years 1907 and 1908. And yet, at the same time a big industry has been secured through private efforts, and to Mr. Bennett of Bennett & Hamilton the Board of Trade owes a great deal of thanks.

The present officers of the Board of Trade must work as has the present Council. There is some disagreeable work to do, but it must be done or there can be no unity in the efforts of the citizens anxious to see the city grow. They cannot ignore the problem for they know of its existence, and they know that everyone else knows they know it. If they persist in asserting that they do not know it, The Times will be glad to give them information privately that will prove to them the rankness of the obstacle and how the city suffers, provided that The Times is assured that the officers will consider only the interests of the city in their treatment of the matter.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Calgary proposes to buy $10,000 worth of stock in the company drilling for gas in that city, in the hopes of being able to reduce the price of power from $85 to $25. Whether Calgary gets gas or not (and the chances look very meagre), they will never be able to provide power through a company at $2.10 per h.p. per annum as the price is here, and Calgary seems to to know it. On its own figures a 100 h.p. plant would save about $8,300 a year in power alone by establishing here. Add to this the wages of a couple of firemen and $10,000 wouldn't cover the difference. In the years to come Calgary, even with $25 power will not stand a chance with Medicine Hat's $2 power.

It is said that Stratton will resign as soon as the session is over. The revelations which will be made at his election trial will be the last straw to the load placed on the man brought into such disgrace by the Gamey incident. While Gamey himself will never secure the confidence of his party as there are many details of his conduct yet to be explained the evidence at the attempted bribery case was too strong for Stratton, whose disappearance from the political arena of Ontario was gladly welcomed by the Liberals. So pronounced has this expression of feeling on the part of his own party been that Stratton has been ignored at Ottawa, and knows full well that there is no future for him there.

To succeed the Board of Trade must have the assistance of the entire body of citizens. To secure this assistance it must conform to their ideas. The new officers are a good lot of influential business men who will realize the value of co-operation.

Chapped Hands from Fingers to Elbows.

Boy's Agony Relieved by Zam-Buk

If you are suffering from badly chapped hands you will be able to comprehend a little of the agony which Henry Walker, of 14 Manufacturers Street, Montreal, endured, before Zam-Buk gave him relief. His mother telling of the case to a Press representative, said:—

"Henry works with his shirt sleeves rolled up above his elbows and passing from a warm room to the biting cold, as he was obliged to do, he got the worst case of chapped hands and arms I have ever seen. From his fingers to his elbows was one mass of raw flesh, with bad cracks here and there. Wherever he washed, it brought tears to his eyes, the pain was so acute. He tried several kinds of salves, but nothing relieved him really until he tried Zam-Buk. This balm seemed to take away the burning and smarting almost at once. The cracks began to heal, and a few applications of the balm cured him. His hands are now smooth and soft.

"We have also used Zam-Buk for other emergencies. I sustained a burn on one of my fingers. Zam-Buk took the fire out and healed up the sore. It really seems a wonderful household preparation.

"On one occasion my son Harry had his foot frozen. It was very swollen and discolored, but Zam-Buk both relieved the swelling and removed the discoloration. Zam-Buk is so handy and so effective that we shall always keep a supply handy."

Miss Hattie Bertrand, of Salisbury (Ont.), says:—"Every winter I suffer from chapped hands, but I have found a cure in Zam-Buk. Applied at night, it heals the cracks by morning, and takes away all the soreness."

Similar effects follow its use for eczema scalp sores, blood-poisoning ulcers, ringworm, children's sores, cuts burns, and bruises. It also cures piles. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box; or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

Week of Legislature.

(Special Correspondent)

The Conservative Convention held at Red Deer on February 12 and 13 was the largest and most representative gathering of its kind ever held in the province of Alberta. All parts of the province were represented. The delegates made their presence felt, every one seemed so inclined, having a hand in the preparation of the platform, which was as spontaneous a piece of work as was ever done by a political convention in Canada.

On motion of A. J. Robertson, leader of the opposition in the legislature, the provincial leadership was tendered to Mr. M. S. McCarthy, M. P. Mr. Robertson's unselfish and manly attitude made him the hero of the hour. In speaking of the matter he told how through force of circumstances the duties of leader had devolved upon him. What was best for the Conservative party would suit him. Mr. McCarthy had both ability and popularity, qualities essential for leadership and the party would be extremely fortunate could it prevail upon him to accept. Personally he would give Mr. McCarthy his best services. The applause that followed showed that notwithstanding the slander and misrepresentation to which he had been subjected by the Liberal press, Mr. Robertson stands today far higher in the estimation of the party than ever before.

An official statement of the resolutions has not been issued, but summarized they are as follows:

The immediate construction of a railway is a necessity, and while endorsing the principle of government Galley 3 ownership it is expedient under the present circumstances to guarantee the bonds of companies, securing in return, control of rates and power to acquire the roads when the province may so desire.

That the province should administer the public domain, i. e., the lands timber, minerals and fishing properties.

The adoption of the principle of the Initiative, Referendum and Recall.

Loans to settlers on the Australian and New Zealand plan.

The administration of the School lands by the province.

To guarantee the bonds of municipalities and school districts.

To submit a plebiscite on Prohibition, a prohibitory law to be enacted on a majority of 50 per cent. of the vote polled.

The reforestation of burned timber areas.

The appointment of a commission to enquire into the development of electrical power.

To establish an experimental farm.

The operation of the telephone system by a commission, free exchanges to be granted farmers.

To establish an agricultural college.

That the wolf and coyote bounties should be continued.

To provide adequate government hail insurance, private companies being allowed to operate.

A new election act with adequate provision for voters lists and courts of revision.

That the meat packing industry should be conducted on methods similar to the dairy industry.

Civil service reform, promotion to be made according to merit and through a system of examinations.

Government construction of leading highways, large borrowing powers to be granted to local improvement districts.

Government erection of initial elevators.

That more Land Titles offices should be established.

The amendment of the Joint Stock Companies Act to prevent swindling by promoters.

Endorsation of Borden's leadership and policy.

The enactment of legislation for the adequate protection of labor.

A comprehensive scheme of organization similar to that in vogue in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and which was explained by Dr. O. Sullivan of Calgary was adopted. By it the province is divided into two parts for purposes of organization the provincial constituency of Red Deer being the boundary line.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Dr. Brett, Banff.

Vice-Presidents—J. D. Hyndman and J. T. McDonald. The secretary will be appointed by the president.

The Liberal press has made a great deal out of an interview granted by Mr. Hiebert, M. L. A., to the Edmonton Bulletin, in which the member for Rosebud made some animadversions upon the political situation. As the article was headed in such a way as to convey the impression that he had become a government supporter, there was a natural desire among the delegates to have Mr. Hiebert's views on the matter, which he did to the entire satisfaction of all present. The applause which followed showed that the member for Rosebud has a warm place in the hearts of Alberta Conservatives.

The matter came up on Saturday morning, when it was proposed that Mr. Hiebert make his statement to a committee. He preferred to make it before the convention, which he did after the adoption of the report of the committee on resolutions. The following account of this incident is taken from the Edmonton Journal of February 15:

"He (Mr. Hiebert) said that he would take up only one of the various statements made in the interview remarking that he was responsible for them only and not for the heading, which probably had caused the most comment. Incidentally he questioned the right of any one to cross-examine him, and asked if his constituency had sent an one to interrogate him. Since no one had been sent to examine him, he would satisfy the curiosity of those present.

"He then read the first two paragraphs, from the Bulletin interview, which are as follows:

"What is going to be the business of the Conservative convention to be held at Red Deer?"

"Well," said Mr. Hiebert, thoughtfully, "just what is to be the business of the convention is hard to say. Of course it will endeavor to frame up a policy upon which the Opposition can hope to stand, but just what the policy will be cannot be determined at this time. For my part I think, after carefully considering the matter, that the Opposition has a great opportunity.

A Voice—"What about our platform?"

Mr. Hiebert—"I can say that there is not an article in that platform I can say one word against."

Mr. Mackie—"Will you tell us your main purpose in granting the interview?"

Mr. Hiebert—"Primarily it was for myself and secondly for the Conservative party. To try when we go to the country to keep slander off the platform. Are we going to tell them that at Edmonton we have a set of thieves?"

Replying to a question whether he would or would not make the statement if he had good grounds for saying so, Mr. Hiebert replied that he would if he could prove it.

Mr. Mackie asked permission to put several questions in order to expedite matters. Addressing Mr. Hiebert he said:

"Are you prepared to support the policy as enunciated in this platform?"

Mr. Hiebert—"Yes."

Great cheering.

"Are you prepared to support the Conservative party?"

Mr. Hiebert—"I think that I have answered that already."

Cries—"That'll do, you're alright," and loud cheering.

DOES NO HARM, BUT MUCH GOOD

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggist.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive kidneys, overcoming Backache, Bladder weakness and Urinary trouble or, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons.

Vessels Lost in 1908

During 1908 twenty-nine vessels were posted in Lloyd's as "missing" according to figures contained in a report issued at Lloyd's. Of these best known in these waters were the Arthur Sewell, Falklandbank, Castle Rock, Hartfield and Bangalore.

"In 1907 there were also 9 vessels posted, but the tonnage of the missing vessels in 1908 totals 33,960 net tons, which is about 3,000 tons in excess of the figures for 1907," says the report.

"This is easily accounted for seeing that since January 1, 1908 a number of big ships have been posted as 'missing.' Indeed the frequency with which sailing ships of large proportions have been lost without news is one of the notable features in the last year's returns. Of the 29 vessels included in the total for 1908 13 were steamers and 15 were sailers, the remaining unit being an American towing barge of 464 net tons. British vessels numbered 16, of which 7 were steamers and 9 sailers. The other nationalities represented were: United States, 1 steamer, 4 sailers, and 1 towing barge; Norway, 2 steamers; Japan, 1 steamer; Germany, 1 steamer; Spain, 1 steamer; Italy, 1 sailer; Russia, 1 sailer. The largest vessel was the American steel four-mast ship, Arthur Sewall, of 2,919 net tons, a splendid ship launched at Bath, Me., less than ten years ago. The British vessel of highest net tonnage was also a sailer—the Liverpool three mast ship Toxteth, of 2,678 net tons. Both these ships disappeared while outward bound on Cape Horn voyages.

"The British coasting steamer Gatesgarth was the first ship posted missing in 1908, she having been lost between Partington and Penarth. A fortnight later, on January 15th, came the Gridon Hall. Bound from Sulina with grain for Scotch distilleries, this turret-deck vessel disappeared beneath the waves before she had passed the Bosphorous. Various theories were advanced at the time as to the cause of her loss. Some months later an official inquiry was held and the report issued contained the opinion that the vessel had foundered in consequence of her instability as laden. Passing without comment the Spanish steamer, Laurak Bat, of 1,268 net tons, we come to one of the most notable missing ship of the year, the steel four-master, Arthur Sewall. Philadelphia for Puget Sound was the last voyage of this big ship, and the voyage she never completed. Laden with coal, the Arthur Sewall began her last voyage on March 30th, 1907, and after taking her final departure from Delaware breakwater was never heard of again. But we have a recollection of reading that some unscrupulous individual, who gave himself out to be one of the crew of the ship and who spun a spacious story of the loss of the vessel, managed to get his yarn believed in New York for a while, and so lined his pockets with dollars. The Neptune and the Munin, two steamers which were posted as 'missing' in February possess no special claim of attention. The former, a British vessel was lost on a coasting voyage, whilst the latter, a timber-laden Norwegian, disappeared between Kotka and Ghent.

"The only Italian vessel posted was the Pellegrina O., a sailer of 1,411 tons, which at the time of her loss was making that most usual of sailing-ship voyages—Newcastle, N. S. W., to the west coast of South America. Well over thirty years sea service had this old wind jammer seen, since, as the British ship Parthenope, she was launched on the Mersey. The first British sailing ship of any size to be posted was the Hartfield of 1,815 tons which was lost whilst going north from Valparaiso to Tacoma. Although it was as a 'missing ship' that the Hartfield ended her days, the wreckage which was washed ashore, indicated only too clearly that she has been wrecked off the Vancouver Island coast, and practically at the end of her voyage. Still in American waters but at the otherside of the continent were two vessels which a week later were declared 'missing.' These were the old American steamer Bluefields and the towing barge Grafton. The former disappeared whilst on a voyage from Jacksonville to Philadelphia, whilst the latter broke adrift from her towing vessel during a storm, was lost sight of and was never again reported.

"The Goto Maru, the largest steamer posted during the year, was as her name indicates, owned in Japan. Bound on a voyage across the North Pacific, the Goto Maru was lost somewhere between Hakodate and San Francisco. She was the only vessel which went missing during 1908, whilst making a voyage across the North Pacific. April 15th was certainly a dark day for the sailing ship, for on that date no fewer than three long voyage square-rigged vessels were declared 'missing.' Two of these the Alacrita and the Castle Rock were British vessels, the third was the Adolph Obrig, a Yankee ship built at Bath, Me., in 1881. The Alacrita, owned by the Anglo American Oil Company was bound from Delago Bay to Hong-kong. Launched so recently as 1903, she was the most modern of the big sailing ships posted missing during 1908. The Castle Rock was lost when making a passage from Sydney, N. S. W. to the North Pacific, whilst the Adolph Obrig was one of the ships that disappeared on a Cape Horn voyage. The Nova Scotia schooner Mary A. Duff, a little craft of ninety net tons, merits a line or two's notice. This little craft had only been afloat a couple of years ere she was posted as 'missing.' Laden with cargo of fish she was bound from Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, to Port of Spain, Trinidad. Beginning her last voyage in February, it may be assumed that heavy weather was the cause of her loss. Some time afterwards her storm-beaten hull was sighted in the North Atlantic by the barkentine Blanche Currie. Derelict and waterlogged, the little fish-carrier was drifting right in the track of vessels crossing the North Atlantic.

"Towards the close of June the British sailer Falklandbank was posted. She, like three other big sailers which have since shared her fate, was one of the ships lost whilst on a Cape Horn passage. The quartet thus referred to were the Falklandbank, of 1,781 net tons; the Carnedd Llewlyn, of 1,608 net tons; the Toxteth, of 2,387 net tons; and the American ship Bangalore, of 1,560 net tons. The only one of the four which was homeward bound was the Carnedd Llewlyn. The general opinion in regard to these four sailers was that they had been lost whilst in the vicinity of Cape Horn, possibly through collision with ice-bergs. Entertaining the hope that the loss of the ships might not necessarily have resulted in all hands being lost, a request was made that a steamer should be despatched to search the coast and islands at Tierra del Fuego, in anticipation that some of the shipwrecked mariners might have been fortunate enough to reach the shore. Unfortunately the quest proved vain. No castaways were discovered, and one had to face the unpleasant truth that the crews of all four ships had been swept into eternity.

"Four other vessels whose names have appeared on the 'missing vessels' board during the second half of the year were the Winnipeg, a Russian barque of 887 net tons, which failed to arrive at Buenos Ayres, from Pensacola; the steamers Europa and Ursula Bright, and the American brig John McDermot. The last mentioned was posted, on Wednesday December 30th. She was bound from New York to Fajardo (Porto Rico), The steamer Europa of 1,757 net tons, the only German vessel posted, disappeared whilst on a passage across the North Atlantic. The Ursula Bright, a British vessel of 2,114 net tons, was supposed to have foundered through encountering the hurricane which swept over the West Indies in September. She was bound north from a Cuban port to Philadelphia, and would be in the hurricane area at the beginning of her voyage."

BRONCHITIS

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes.

The Symptoms are tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, and a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color. Neglected Bronchitis is one of the most general causes of Consumption.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine SYRUP

Mrs. D. D. Miller, Allandale, Ont., writes: "My husband got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my little girl who had Bronchitis. She wheezed so badly you could hear her from one room to the other, but it was not long until we could see the effect your medicine had on her. That was last winter when we lived in Toronto.

"She had a bad cold this winter, but instead of getting another bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I tried a home made receipt which I got from a neighbor but found that her cold lasted almost twice as long. My husband highly praises 'Dr. Wood's,' and says he will use that a bottle of it is always kept in the house."

The price of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 25 cents per bottle. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, so, be sure and accept none of the many substitutes of the original "Norway Pine Syrup."

Correspondence

(The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents, nor does it necessarily agree with them.)

To the Editor of The Times:—

Having read with great interest your comments on my article on Municipal Power and Lighting Plants appearing in the Western Municipal News and being much impressed by the interested and accurate study evidenced in your application of my figures to local conditions I venture to offer the following material for consideration.

I observe that, presumably because contemplating the use of natural gas as fuel, you eliminate from my estimate of the operating cost of steam plant $720.00 for the wages of one fireman and all fuel charges and do not at all consider the propriety of installing gas engines as a motive power.

I beg to suggest the consideration of this fuel in connection with these engines and invite attention to the data given below as relevant to conditions in your city.

Gas engines being designed to use natural gas direct in the cylinder of the engine and without mechanical intermediary, except perhaps scrubbers, the thermal losses inseparable from its use in generating steam are eliminated in such engines.

The best authorities figure these losses, between boiler and engine, in a 200 H. P. plant running, condensing and in perfect condition as follows:

Chimney losses	15 p.c.
Radiation loss	5 p.c.
Condensation loss	5 p.c.
Total boiler loss	25 p.c.

This leaves the total heat value delivered to the engine as 75 per cent and the same authorities place the total loss in the plant at 88 3-4 per cent., leaving 11 1-4 per cent to be converted to useful work.

For gas engines they figure the losses as follows:

Cooling gas loss	10 p.c.
Gassification loss	8 p.c.
Radiation loss	2 p.c.
Total loss in producer	20 p.c.

This leaves the heat value delivered to the engine as 80 per cent. and the same authorities place the total loss in the plant at 80 per cent., leaving 20 per cent to be converted to useful work when coal or other fuel is used to furnish the gas.

With natural gas however the entire producer loss of 20 per cent. is eliminated and the percentage remaining to be converted to useful work is 40 per cent. and these figures are justified by the fact that well designed engines run on about 10 cubic feet of natural gas per Brake Horse Power per hour.

These figures indicate that with natural gas the fuel economy of the gas engine is proportionately even greater than with other fuels, and I should estimate its consumption as from 1-4 to 1-16 of that of the best types of steam engine, and it should be remembered that it is always desirable to husband a natural resource which elsewhere has proved far from inexhaustible.

The initial cost of erecting a producer gas engine plant of the size specified in my first article, (140 Brake H. P. at normal load) would be reduced about $2200.00 at Medicine Hat by the elimination of the Producer, with a proportionate diminution in interest and depreciation and consequent cost of current but I do not think that of a steam plant would be lessened as special apparatus for gas combustion would be required to replace the ordinary grates.

From the writer's observation of the use of natural gas in Chatham, Ontario it appeared that though the heavy labor in firing was saved no noticeable economy was effected in wages unless more than one man had been required because the regulation of steam pressure feed water supply and gas supply and pressure, required the constant attendance of one man in the boiler room.

As good gas engines regulate their own consumption automatically almost all the time required for their operation is expended in firing and operating the producer and its elimination would reduce this item of cost almost to vanishing point.

In fact it appears to the writer that natural gas in a well designed gas engine is about the nearest approach yet made to the ideal of producing electricity direct from combustion.

Trusting that the above may be of interest, I am Yours truly,

M. O'R. Jarvis.

Vernon, B. C. where we spent a very interesting week. This convention will meet in Lethbridge during this year, and we are looking forward to the Southern Alberta Company having its irrigation scheme far enough advanced to warrant us inviting this Association to hold their 1910 convention in this city.

On August 27th we entertained a number of well known Magazine editors touring Canada under the charge of Mr Herbert Vanderhoof, editor of "Canada West", among whom were the following:

Robert R. Jones, "Chicago Inter Ocean."

R. H. Little, President, Press Club Chicago.

Wm. Hard, "Everybody's Magazine."

Robt. Quick, editorial writer, "Scripps Mac Rae Press."

Geo. D. Richards, "The World Today."

Elliott Flower, "Chicago Tribune."

B. F. Barton, Editor, "The Worlds Events."

This party was entertained at luncheon at the American Hotel the expense being covered by contributions from members and friends.

In September we had a visit from the National Editorial Association, there being about 160 in the party, and through that source Medicine Hat obtained considerable publicity throughout the United States.

During the same month the Canadian Mining Institute paid us a visit and spent some hours in investigating our natural gas resources. There were about 40 in this party.

Having been appointed secretary-treasurer of the Agricultural Society although we did not officially take over the books until the 17th of September, we were kept fairly busy during the fall months with the detail work of this association up to the 17th of December when we mailed the detailed statement to Edmonton as required by the Provincial Government prior to the 28rd of December in each year.

We cannot pass from this subject without expressing our thanks and gratitude to the president of the society, Mr. Jas. Rae, for his valuable assistance in giving unsparingly of his time and experience to us, as with our lack of knowledge of matters pertaining to agricultural societies and exhibitions it would have been impossible for us to have done the work. The same can be said of Mr. Jas. Fleming and Mr. F. G. Forster who handled the racing part of the programme.

On September 29th, Mr. Jas. Oliver Curwood, a well-known magazine writer, and on the regular staff of "Putnams" and the "Readers" magazines, New York, spent a few days in the city, and was supplied with data for several articles regarding this district. It was afterwards reported that he was killed in the far north by Indians; but the January number of the above magazine stamps the report as being incorrect, and we may expect in the near future to see in its pages his opinion of our city and the district.

On Oct. 28rd we received a visit from Mrs. Geo. R. Crane, who was travelling in the interests of an English Newspaper Syndicate.

On the 20th of December a document appointing us Permanent Secretary of the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada was finally completed, and we had the satisfaction of knowing that we were the unanimous choice of the executive of that body.

During the year [illegible] meetings of the Board have been held but we do not think that the general business of the Board has suffered on that account, as this year the City Council appointed a committee to work jointly with the Board regarding various matters in connection with [illegible] and industrial problems which came up for our consideration from time to time. There were 15 meetings of this joint committee and we think that they made substantial progress in the interests of Medicine Hat. In addition to these there have been 12 regular council meetings of the Board.

As business over the entire country seems to be in a more hopeful condition we sincerely trust that in the Galley 11 coming year, Medicine Hat may see some substantial and practical results from the efforts put forth by the joint committee and the Board of Trade during the year that has passed.

In closing we may note that at a recent Convention of the Union of Alberta Municipalities held in Edmonton on the 27th and 28th January, the office of honorary secretary was abolished, and a permanent secretary and organizer appointed, and we had the honor of being the unanimous choice of the Association. Medicine Hat will be the permanent quarters of that organization for the future.

Common courtesy demands that this report should not close without expressing my appreciation of the valuable assistance given to me by the President, Officers and Council of the Board. Standing out prominently in this is the work of our President, Mr. C. S. Pingle, who has always devoted so much of his time and energy to the interests of the Board.

We also cannot refrain from especially mentioning Mr. F. G. Forster our Treasurer, Mr. Wm. Cousins and Mr. Walter Huckvale, no call has ever made upon them to which they did not heartily respond.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Jno. T. Hall.

Prior to the adoption of the latter report President Pingle made a few remarks in regard to the value of the advertising obtained through the entertaining of magazine writers and newspaper men who had visited the city. These little courtesies, he said were not forgotten and the result was that through the productions of these writers the city gained publicity which, if it had had to be paid for, would have cost thousands of dollars. The president also made reference to the two offices recently taken by Mr. Hall—the permanent secretaryship of the Alberta Municipalities, whose headquaters would hereafter be at Medicine Hat, and the secretaryship for the present year of the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada. Altogether the commissioner's office was now bringing into the board treasury $1,000 a year. Referring to the surplus of $900 to the board's credit, Mr. Pingle said that a policy of retrenchment had been adopted during 1908; in not spending the money last year, it was thought that the surplus thus obtained would go a long way toward the opening up of the vigorous campaign for 1909. There was still owing to Mr. Hall $200, which on account of the financial stringency had been allowed to stand over for the present. The money was all good, and all that was necessary was for Mr. Hall to go round and ask for a cheque when required.

The election committee then reported as follows:

Hon.-Pres.—Hon. W. T. Finlay.
Pres.—Henry Stewart.
1st Vice-Pres.—Walter Huckvale.
2nd Vice-Pres. D. G. White.
3rd Vice-Pres.—O. W. Kealy.
Treasurer—F. G. Forster.
Council—W. H. Turnin, C. S. Pingle E. S. Martin, Wm Cousins, F. L. Crawford, H. W. Ireland, Jas. Fleming.

The retiring president vacated the chair, Mr. Stewart taking his place. It was with some hesitation, he said that he accepted the honor now imposed upon him, for a year which promised so much for Medicine Hat in the coming of the Overpack people, the great undertaking of the Southern Alberta Land Company, the foundations were being well laid for a substantial city. He would do his utmost during the year to warrant the confidence expressed by the members who had elected him to office.

Mr. Pingle then brought up the matter of holding monthly instead of weekly meetings of the council, and central meetings quarterly the first Thursday in March, June, September and December for the quarterly meetings. As this change involved an amendment to the constitution, it would be necessary said Mr. Stewart to give notice of motion before any action was taken. On Mr. Pingle's motion seconded by Ald. Spencer, the president was authorized to appoint a committee to prepare the necessary amendment. The council of the board were then appointed to go into the matter. Mr. Hall remarked that under the old arrangement, the time of members was too much trespassed upon. At each quarterly meeting in the future it was proposed that printed reports of the three months work should be distributed.

A vote of thanks to the retiring officers was proposed by Mr. W. T. Williams seconded by Mr. E. S. Martin and carried unanimously. Mr. Pingle responded in behalf of the council; the council for 1909 would he believed, do everything in their power to further the interests of Medicine Hat, and it might be hoped that the year 1909 would be as far ahead of 1908, as 1908 was ahead of 1907 in regard to board matters. Mr J. T. Hall then expressed his appreciation of the pleasant relations between the old board and himself. He trusted that the new council would do as well along those lines. He must thank the old council for all their kindness and courtesy in matters pertaining to the Board of Trade.

The president enquired whether the city council had as yet appointed a committee to co-operate with the board. The mayor replied that the matter had not yet been discussed in council, but could doubtless be dealt with at an early date.

Mr. F. G. Forster spoke anent the possibilities of a sugar beet factory being located here. The Co-operation of the Southern Alberta Land Company was practically assured in this matter. He would suggest that a member of the board should be sent with Mr. McGregor to Colorado to get in touch with manufacturers there. Mr Hall stated that he was at the present time in communication with large Colorado interests, and had received a number of very favorable replies. Mr. McGregor and Mr. Grace had kindly given him the names of prominent manufacturers, and the whole matter would be laid before the board at its next meeting.

Mr. Pingle suggested that a resolution from the board should be passed urging the turning of the old court house into an immigration hall. Hon W. T. Finlay had proposed this course, saying, that he thought a strong resolution would influence the Ottawa authorities to make this change. The court house as Mr. Fatt pointed out, belonged to the province. In the near future the Alberta government would erect a more substantial structure.

Mr. F. L. Crawford thought representation should be made to the express company with a view to getting a delivery to, at least any place within the city limits. Mr. Martin said he had been in conversation Mr. Buell of the railway commission in connection with this desired change. The question will come up at the first meeting of the board.

Ald. Spencer was of the opinion that the board should request the Dominion Government to grant Police Point as an addition to the city for park purposes. They had been donating quarter sections and sections to other cities. One obstacle to the using of Police Point for park purposes at the present time was pointed out by Mr. Kealy, who referred to the danger arising from the rifle range in the vicinity. The president, however, thought this difficulty could be surmounted.

The meeting then adjourned.

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS.

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to St. Clemens for baths but received little benefit. While at St. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic. I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

Burns Natural Gas

Burners Easily Taken Apart

"Caloric" Gas Burners are removed by merely lifting them out of palce, and the upper part of burner rests (not screwed) on lower part. Can be instantly taken apart for cleaning.

No tools required. Notice that "cup" of lower half of burner is extra deep, so as to allow proper mixture of air and gas. Also that upper face of burner is corrugated. This causes a "current" of air to pass between corrugations, and gives a greater velocity to flame—makes a greater heat, and brings water to boiling point in less time. Woolchester

On Tuesday evening last, the bachelors of Woolchester gave a very much enjoyed dance in the Woolchester school house. It was very well attended, dancing being kept up until daylight. Some of the people came eighteen miles to it. The Woolchester people are wanting to have another one soon if possible.

Some Current Stories

'Twas a beautiful night in mid-February. The glassy surface of the frozen river glinted cheerily in the beams of an Alberta moon. The merry clink of skates and the swiftly moving spots brought the blood rushing in the veins of the young man. Over the cutbanks came the promising whisper of a coming chinook and already glove and overcoat were discarded for the pure joy of a free glide over the river.

After this introduction a-la-Corelli it can be said in more reasonable English that it is a story of:

A bank clerk.
A pair of skates.
A hole in the ice.
Golden Gates (almost).

It was one of his first skates this year and the excitement of the knowledge that he hadn't forgotten how to stand up without a fence lent wings to his imagination, and carelessness to his legs. Kids with sprawly legs, wobbly ankles and swinging arms scattered by with merry laugh; young women with mind intent on the swing of their hips and the slant of their hats swing along with conscious air and self-satisfied complacence; couples whose clutched arms exhibited their only means of support kept grimly right end up; others didn't.

But our hero was oblivious. He was doing a stunt that required concentration to draw the proper amount of applause. The blood thrilled through him as he realized that a number of youngsters were gazing at him spell bound (it didn't help matters to know that they were wondering how close he could go to the air hole without getting wet), when suddenly, in the middle of a wide outward sweep, the blame ice and everything but some very soft, wet water seemed to be pulled away, and with a gasp the young man who can put his hand on $10,000 any old day struck bottom.

Being light headed he soon bobbed up. The kids were gathered admiringly around the hole and one of them suggested that he come up higher till they could see what he was doing. Another wanted to know if the water was pure down there, and if he had found the intake pipe.

As befitted the dignity of his comparative position the man of millions answered nothing—he wasn't doing any talking just then. The drafts that came over the ice he couldn't realize on let alone get on, and the interest of the kids was enough for even his bankly desires. The over-draft continued and even a discount of his discomfort would have been acceptable. He tried to figure a way to get out, and checked off every chance as it came into his head. The ice was just as slippery to hold as to skate on and a great sight colder. No security had appeared since his entry, and he was beginning to fear that the river would make its current account for a permanent deposit of an able bank clerk in its shiny depths without his endorsation when one of the kids decided that he might next find the winter swimmer in his drinking water and lent a helping hand.

At last accounts the bank clerk who lost his balance hasn't decided whether it's more comfortable to stay in the water or get out where the wind blows merrily. Ask him about it and he'll give you several blankety blank forms (Bank of Commerce).

Women May Vote

Canada to Have a Navy

In anticipation of a close fight on the Navy bill last Friday a strong whip had been made on both sides of the House, and members were in attendance in larger numbers than for many weeks past. A full debate took place on this, the only first-class measure laid before Parliament since the shuffle in the Cabinet. So great had been the interest aroused in the constituencies that no member who valued his seat and had an eye to the next general election could afford to absent himself from the House while the question of national defence was on the tapis.

The Deputy-Speaker, Mr. S. W. Hill, took the chair at 8.30, when the premier rose from his seat to move that the House go into committee of the whole to discuss the Navy Bill. Immediately the leader of the Opposition sprang to his feet to protest against what he alleged to be a violation of the rules of procedure. Only the clauses of the bill, he contended, should be taken up in committee, whereas the Government persisted in discussing in general principles in committee of the whole. The speaker made a ruling adverse to the Opposition, whereupon a vote was demanded. The Speaker's ruling, however, was sustained by a small majority.

This objection by the member for Prince Albert was only the first of a series of protests by the Opposition. In the midst of an eloquent passage appealing to the patriotism and to all the noblest impulses of his hearers, no Government speaker could be sure that the effect would not be spoilt by the interruption of some mundane members on the other side, who would rise to a point of order to enter a protest against some technical breach of the rules of the House. The Opposition, in fact, seemed to have constituted themselves guardians of the decorum of the Chamber.

The Premier, (Mr. Sansom) was the first speaker of the evening. At the outset he deeply deplored the policy of the Opposition in regard to all measures for the good of the country. They had adopted a violent an unreasonable attitude, and their determination appeared to be to obstruct in every possible way the progress of the country's business. In the near future it might be necessary to introduce legislation to curb their obstructionist tendencies and facilitate the passage through Parliament of beneficent laws.

Going on to deal with the Navy Bill, the speaker asked, Shall Canada retain her self respect? The eyes of the civilized world (yea, of the uncivilized world also, for the nations of the Orient were awakening from their long slumber), were turned upon us. Our age had been an age of phenomenal growth and the time had come for the Dominion to take her proper place in the world. Today we received protection, but contributed nothing towards imperial naval defence. We were inclined to look upon this protection as a gift of the gods.

Attacking the theory of the previous speaker, that the best guarantee of peace is preparedness for war, Mr. Souch, (Truro), likened the nations of this world to—peaceful or "scrappy" dogs. The dog that sought not evil, nor the excitement of conflict, neither should be found on his neck the scars of war. Canada at this time was paying, and paying in full, for all the protection she received. Was she not furnishing homes for the people of Great Britain on her fertile acres. Were it not for the existence of Canada "these English would be crowded into the sea on all sides." (At this point there was a break in the speech of the honorable member, the Speaker having great difficulty in restoring order.) Mr. Souch went on to advocate the devoting of the $90,000,000 intended for the navy to the construction of a Georgian Bay canal, which would provide an open port for the great inland provinces, 210 days in the year. The member for East Grey had made some foolish suggestions on the previous evening, about Canada "sowing her wild oats now," while the country was yet young. Coming from Scotland only a few years ago the honorable member could not be expected to understand the question. No Scotchman could in that length of time. The bill was so preposterous and absurd that discussion by the Opposition would be idle.

The Minister of the Interior (Mr. Brown), made a strong appeal to Imperial sentiment in behalf of the bill. The South African war had shown that Canada was ever ready when the need arose, to send her best sons to the help of the Motherland. The life blood of our country would be shed, if need be, for the honor of the Union Jack. Honorable gentlemen opposite were figuring "wrong side up" when they suggested Galley 17

ed that Canada was paying for Imperial defence by taking settlers from the Old Land. Canada was paying $5 per head to get her settlers; she needed them to develop her resources. And the best brawn of Britain was being attracted here.

The leader of the Opposition in replying to the speeches on the Government side, pointed out that on the principle of Canadian assistance to Great Britain had been dealt with. With that principle the Opposition were in hearty accord. They differed however, in method. Their policy was to contribute something towards the building of the Empire's Dreadnoughts, at the same time urging the necessity of an Imperial Council. In a federated Empire the colonies would have something to say as to the disposal of the fleet and the right to declare war. Mr. Bryenton also criticised the details of the measure. The wording throughout, he considered, was very vague.

The Minister of Marines and Fisheries (Mr. Spencer) replying to a question, stated that a department would be set apart to work out the details of the scheme after the bill had been carried. The most competent men would be engaged for that purpose. Comparing the cost of the burden of defence to the British and Colonial taxpayer, the minister said that it was a standing disgrace to this country that while Great Britain was paying $4.60 per head, Canada paid only 12 cents per head—this for the upkeep of the militia.

Mr. Smith (Winnipeg) also criticised the bill and spoke in support of the Opposition policy of a Council of the Empire.

The Premier briefly replied to some of the arguments put forward shortly after which the committee rose, and the bill passed its third reading by a majority of one (?).

Mr. Ware then introduced the Woman's Suffrage Bill, the measure being received with mingled groans and ironical cheers on the Opposition side. A clause was added to the measure requiring that a poll of the people be taken before the bill becomes law. All Canadians, by birth or adoption, over eighteen years of age, will be entitled to vote The male vote only, will count, though a strong female majority in favor of the suffrage would doubtless have the effect of hastening the passage of the measure.

The ballots printed in this issue may be filled in and handed to any Mock Parliamentarian. Ballots may store at Y. M. C. and at The Times also be obtained at Souch's Drug office. The count will be declared on Friday evening after the debate.

The Speaker will take the chair this week at 8 o'clock, instead of 8.30 the usual hour.

LATER—On account of Professor Edwards' lecture on Friday evening it has been decided to prorogue Parliament until the following week. The ballots are accordingly held over.

Wash. G. Collins, Superintending Officer of the Independent Order of Foresters, for the Province of Alberta, has appointed Mr. C. M. Fowler of this city, as his special deputy to work in this city and district in the interests of the above order, and Mr Fowler is now actively at work. As the cost of taking out a policy in his excellent fraternal order is now very low, and the rates moderate, all who are thinking of insuring their lives should see Mr. Fowler at his home, 719 Princess St., who will be happy to give all needful information. 25-1

Baseball League Formed

Western Canada Baseball League Assured

EVERYBODY IS HAPPY

(Special to The Times

Delegates representing Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Calgary and Edmonton met here today to discuss the eight club professional base ball league comprising those cities. Moose Jaw has so far not given definite assurance of entering a team. After considerable discussion as to whether the league should be known as the Northern league or the Western Canadian league, the latter name was adopted. Winnipeg was in favor of the former, Lthbridge and Medicine Hat in favor of the name adopted.

In the event of Moose Jaw not entering Saskatoon will likely be taken in, having sent word that they would like to be considered. Moose Jaw telephoned later that they would likely be in a position to enter the league. A delegation of the other cities goes to Moose Jaw tomorrow to meet the promoters there. Mr. James Fleming, Medicine Hat, was elected President of the League. R. B. Ferguson, vice president; J. M. Lamb, Winnipeg, secretary-treasurer. A salary limit of $1,300 was adopted. Lethbridge and Edmonton wanted it set at $1,200 or $1,250 but were defeated. The league will open on the 12th of May and close on Labor Day. The schedule to be arranged later. Most of the holiday games are to be played in the big cities. Medicine Hat will likely open the season in Lethbridge and Calgary in Edmonton.

The following were the delegates present:

J. M. Lamb, Winnipeg; R. B. Ferguson, Regina; W. J. Kirby, Calgary A. H. Pulford, Winnipeg; C. S. Pingle, Medicine Hat; W. S. Weatherston, Brandon; H. Nicholson, Lethbridge; F. M. Gray, Edmonton; A. H. Pulford, Winnipeg; Jas. Fleming, Medicine Hat; W. Hamilton, Medicine Hat.

The Crop Reports

Fall Wheat In Good Shape

THE CROP REPORT

The fall of 1909, from all present indications will see Medicine Hat coming into her own as the fall wheat district of the West. In spring wheat Medicine Hat has always held first place, but this year the prospects are that all previous harvests will be eclipsed (spring and fall wheat included) by the yield of Alberta Red.

The farmers of the district, who last fall sowed their land with this wheat report excellent conditions. J. J. Lait, who spent the whole of last season in cultivating his land upon Campbell principles, was rewarded by knowing that while the land of many farmers of the district was parched, moisture in the large patch of scientifically cultivated land was thoroughly conserved. Last fall he sowed this 80-acre plot with Alberta Red, which is now in splendid shape.

All the fall wheat sowers report the crops excellent.

Not for many years have the prospects for a good farming season been so bright as they are this year. The rain in the fall and the snows followed by gradual thaws have resulted in the land being thoroughly permeated by the moistur and with good farming a record crop may be anticipated. The moisture has penetrated from two to three feet into the ground.

This week, if the mild weather continues, there are farmers in the district who intend to get down to work with the plow.

Railway Improvements

The following C. P. R. improvements will be carried out on the Western Division this year:

New line from Weyburn running west about 50 miles. This will eventually be extended to Lethbridge and form a second main line for traffic between the Crow's Nest Pass and Winnipeg.

Ballasting of the Weyburn-Stoughton line and the branch to Outlook.

New terminal yards at Moose Jaw.

Completion of grade division work between Medicine Hat and Swift Current.

Ballasting between Lethbridge and Coleridge.

New line north from Cheadle, Alta. In the second division between three and four hundred thousand dollars will be spent, exclusive of construction work. The total will amount to somewhere in the neighborhood of a million and a half dollars.

At Coleridge $12,000 will be spent on stock yards.

The 40 miles of line from Cheadle north, to be constructed this season will be built from Medicine Hat.

Gros Ventre Debating

Women Should Vote

On Tuesday evening the 23rd inst. Mr. John Huston entertained about 20 neighbors, at his ranch to quite an up-to-date social evening. A debate was held, the subject being "Women's Suffrage," Mr. J. Houston and the Rev. Hector Fraser taking the women's side and Mr. W. Putman and Mr. Fleming that of the sterner sex.

Great pains had been taken in writing up the subject. Mr. J. Huston was the first to speak. He thought the women should have a better chance to show their abilities, not only in politics, but as soldiers and sailors. Mr. Huston referred to the old days in Ireland, where the women took off their stockings and placed a stone in the toe. He could not imagine a worse enemy to tackle than a woman swinging a stocking, with a stone in it, (especially an Irish woman) unless it was a modern housewife with a broom handle. Others thought that it would be hardly the thing to see our women climbing the rigging of a man-of-war though it is often seen, that they can upset the rigging of a man of peace. Mr. Huston said a deal more on the subject, proving himself to be a very able defender of women's rights.

Papers were read by Mrs. W. Putram and Mrs. Fleming, which were very carefully prepared. The Rev. H. Fraser made a grand speech on behalf of the feminine order. He referred principally to Queens Elizabeth and Victoria. He thought that if women were fit to rule an empire, surely they were suited for minor offices.

Mr. Grayson caused a great deal of amusement. He said that what he thought was a woman's sphere was exemplified right here. He then took a small bottle from his pocket and by pulling the cork, produced about six miniature children dangling on a piece of string. Mr. Grayson continuing, said he thought if women were in Parliament, all kinds of funny items would be seen in the newspapers; for instance, just fancy reading in your Medicine Hat Times "The Prime Minister had twins yesterday." All are doing well."

All present had something to say on the subject. Eventually the debate was decided by a committee, who agreed that the woman's side had the most points. After the close of the debate an excellent bachelors' supper was served. Mr. Darling and Mr. Tothill were the cooks; they also did the waiting, being very ably assisted by Mr. Meredith Huston who kindly rode out from town, for the occasion. White caps and aprons were worn by the serving men. After supper music and singing were supplied by Mrs. W. Putnam, and 12 o'clock brought to a close a very well spent and enjoyable evening.

Wedding

The following account of Miss McDougall's marriage from the Edmonton News will be of interest. Miss McDougall and Mrs. Morris were very popular visitors in town last spring when they spent some time with Mrs Niblock.

"In the presence of the immediate relatives and friends, a marriage was celebrated yesterday morning at ten o'clock between Mr. Hugh Wallace Campbell of Edmonton, and Miss Rose MacDougall, youngest daughter of ex-Magistrate Allan MacDougall and Mrs MacDougall of West Fort William. The bridal party stood in the bay window which was beautifully decorated with choice flowers and smilax. The officiating clergyman was Rev. H. E. Gilpert of Gore St. Methodist church. The bride who very lovely in her gown of ivory was given away by her father. Duchess satin, the bodice being embroidered in pearls and silver, while the silver embroidered tiair and Empire panels were further ornamented with tiny buttons set with diamonds and pearls. The embroidered veil fell from a tiara of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Vale l ilies and wore a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom. The ring was carried by Master Roydon Morris, nephew of the bride, who acted prettily the part of page, wearing a Scotch kilt suit. After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left for New York en route to Bermuda. The bride travelled in a richly embroidered suit of blue cloth with hat of blue satin trimmed with long plumes of darker shade. Mrs. McDougall's dress was composed of black lace over satin, the bodice arranged with embroidery and voke of lace.

The presents were very numerous and handsome, many being sent directly to the future home of the bride, 439 13th Street, Edmonton."

Y. M. C. PERFORMANCE

Second Annual Pleases Full House

The gymnastic entertainment provided by the Y. M. C. last Thursday under the direction and training of Mr. Gawley was even an improvement over the preceding year's exhibition. The boys had developed acts that drew the most hearty applause and the variety afforded made the evening one of the most entertaining that could be spent.

The seniors, consisting of Mr. Gawley, the instructor, Dr. Smith, G. Brotherton, B. Marshall, J. Barrean, K. Colter, J. Potter, H. Parker and T. Maxwell threw a zest into their work that showed long and skilful training. The juniors went through their parts without a break and the other features rounded out a complete evening's enjoyment.

The orchestra, consisting of Miss K. Rae, and Messrs. Craig, Sansom and Murray was repeatedly encored and in their finished productions gave good reason for continuing the organization permanently.

Mayor Milne followed the overture with an address on the need and work of the Y. M. C. and as Mr. Milne has shown his belief in the good that can be done, by contributing liberally, he was in a position to present the case with vividness. He spoke of the youthfulness of many of the prominent men of the west and the necessity this meant for exceptional training. A brief but clear description of the work of the club followed.

The seniors appeared first in horizontal bar work with Noddings and Stevens as clowns in the garb of tramps. And incidentally it might be said that the two of them kept the house in continual laughter. They did not force themselves into the acts too strongly but were always funny when they appeared, and combined with their fine exercise acrobatic ability. The white nelige shirts and trousers of the seniors presented an attractive appearance.

The Junior B. boys, R. Rice, H Yuill, W. Brotherton, Ed Cooper, Earl Cooper, S. Hoit, F. Rutherford and C. Taylor appeared in a drill which they went through without a hitch and with all the soberness and precision of military cadets.

On the flying rings the seniors appeared again, assisted by the Cory brothers, whose work throughout was really spectacular.

The pyramid building by M W. Brotherton, E. a[illegible], D. McCargar, S. White, [illegible] Reeves, C. Becker and W. White [illegible] especially attractive and the [illegible] strength and stability of the young fellows was remarkable.

F. B. L. Ritchie entertained the audience to a fifteen minutes exhibition of bag-punching in which he showed several movements. This is an act little known in the city and withal most interesting. It requires a great deal of practice to arrive at the proficiency displayed by Mr. Richie. The audience wanted him back again, but he would not appear.

The seniors did several new stunts as well as many good old ones on the parallel bars and concluded with pyramid building.

Coral Fowler, a small club swinger did not once touch her clubs, and to Miss Worth's accompaniment proved what can be accomplished in this art. H. Stewart, as usual, received a lot of applause for what is one of the best club swinging acts that can be seen. Mr. Stewart is a star at this work.

Chair diving was another new act put on by Bert Marshall, George Brotherton, Jack Barreau and Milton Cory. The boys cleared five chairs two of which were occupied.

The boxing act of the tramps was as funny as ever. Both fighters knew enough about the gloves to put up an interesting contest and combine a lot of fun. When they fell across each other at the end of the bout the crowd wanted more.

The tumbling act of Mr. Gawley was the best seen in the city.

The Cory Bros. and A. Des Brisay and W. White went through tumbling that was exceptionally well done and the boys bid fair to do some strating acts with practice.

The remainder of the programme was provided by vocal solos by Miss Dickerson and Mr. Lampman, and a violin solo by Mr. Sansom which were up to the level of the rest of

On Friday night the performance will be repeated with some additions the entertainment.

On Friday night the performance will be repeated with some additions of acts and gymnasts, in the Opera House in aid of the Hospital. Everyone should be in attendance.

BIG NIGHT'S PERFORMANCE

Even to those of our citizens who are opposed to the theatre on the grounds of its tendencies, the presentation of Ten Nights in a Bar Room in the Opera House on Friday night, March 12th, will appeal, regardless of their views on the theatre in general. A large number of people who are patrons of theatrical productions are purchasing tickets for this great temperance play. The company, which is composed entirely of Medicine Hat talent are progressing nicely in their rehearsals and promise a good evening's entertainment. Aside from the play there will be many other features. The orchestra which will render several other selections is a strong organization of nine pieces and music will be furnished such as is seldom given at local talent entertainments. There will be a grand exhibition of farcy rolling skating, also an exhibition of acrobatic work. Other musicians will furnish banjo and mandolin selections and good talent will furnish vocal selections.

The plan of the hall is now open at Souch's for those who have bought advance tickets and will be open to the general public on Monday next.

The Sewage Problem

Professor Edwards Explains Different Systems

Small Attendance Hears Important Address

There was only a moderately large attendance at the City Hall on Friday night when Mr. N. M. Edwards, M. Sc. C. E., professor of applied science in the University of Alberta, lectured on "Municipal Water Supply and the Disposal of Sewage." The meeting had been well advertised, but the subject, while of great import to the citizens, was not such an one apparently as to arouse widespread interest.

The Mayor, who occupied the chair, in introducing Professor Edwards stated that the council had under consideration the question of water supply and of the sewage system. Money was required to carry out their plans and the council realized the necessity of getting the best advice available so that the city's requirements might be suited. Professor Edwards had gone over the system during the day and would deal with our local conditions during his lecture.

In a few opening remarks Professor Edwards referred to the two-fold aspect of the University founded by the people of Alberta. Not only was this institution capable of giving instruction in the arts, and pure sciences, but in applied science also. The speaker was a representative of the practical as opposed to the idealistic side of University work, but it must be realized that both were necessary for the highest development of the resources of the province.

DISPOSAL OF WASTE PRODUCTS

The disposal of waste products was first dealt with. The products had two inherent possibilities; in the first place as creating a nuisance in the second as a danger to public health. The excreta, while obnoxious in its raw condition, might be reduced to simpler, harmless compounds. Hydrogen, carbon, oxygen and nitrogen were the principal constituents, and by a change in the chemical combinations their obnoxious character was lost. There might be also harmful bacteria whose power was limited only by life.

Going on to discuss the systems of disposal of waste products, the lecturer stated that while the pit system was suitable for very small communities, for cities of any considerable size it was a positive source of danger. The chief difficulty in making the change to a more sanitary arrangement lay in the opposition of the older rural settlers who were unable to understand that the primitive arrangements to which they had been accustomed were not suitable under other conditions.

Of modern systems of sewage disposal the water carriage system was essentially the best. By this means the organic matter was quickly removed and kept from the neighborhood of human life. Other plans which might be adopted where a good supply of water for flushing purposes was not available, were the pneumatic system (in use in many parts of Europe) and the pail system.

The prompt and non-public removal of sewage was especially necessary in view of the high vitality of disease bacteria and the danger of their transference by the foot of the common house fly. The typhoid bacteria could exist in a freezing mixtureture, merely remaining inactive. Extreme heat or chemical action must be resorted to to destroy the food on which bacteria exist.

"Pits and cesspools," said Professor Edwards, "should find no place in the arrangements of a city alive to the necessity of safeguarding the public health."

The system of pipes should be laid to such a grade that the water applied to it would serve as a medium for carrying away the organic matter. Each separate division should form a part of a well-considered and carefully designed whole. The city engineer's plans had been looked over and, in the lecturer's opinion, the new system was being designed on such a basis.

There were two ways by which the organic changes in excreta might take place. The first by oxidation, was the principal and least obnoxious. If oxygen were excluded, putrefaction would take place, giving rise to marsh gas and sulphuretted hydrogen. It was obvious that the turning of raw sewag? into the drainage channel of any district should not be allowed, and it was necessary that the control in these matters should lie with an outside authority not directly interested in the locality. In some districts the dry weather flow was such that the proper dilution of waste matter was not carried out and it therefore became necessary to find artificial means of safeguarding public health. It appeared desirable that in this province a testing station should be provided to study the question under Alberta's climatic conditions. No better place could be found than in the neighborhood of the University.

Two treatments were necessary before the sewage was allowed to pass into the river. The first was by the septic tank which liquified organic matter in such a way that it was more easily treated by the second process. It had been claimed that pathogenic (disease breeding) bacteria were eliminated by this process, but this had never been established To complete purification oxygen must be supplied. This was carried out by contact beds, intermittant filters and sprinkling filters. The plans of the engineer showed a comprehensive scheme in which provision was made for future additions. It was part of a well thought out general scheme. The greatest difficulty lay in the portion of the city between the railway track and the river, and the provision of a supply of storm sewers would be very expensive. The land was flat and liable to flood in the spring of the year. The engineer had the lecturer's sincere sympathy in his efforts to cope with this situation. The sooner Mr. Morrison's arrangements were adopted the better.

Water System

In any water system stagnant water was objectionable because it gave birth to contaminating vegetable growths. Dead ends in the pipes were especially to be avoided. It was advisable to have cross connections between to longitudinal parts of the mains. A network of pipes was thus provided and in case of fire a good head of water might be obtained up to the hydrants, which might otherwise be impossible. In Mr. Morrison's scheme, such a network was planned.

Surface water was objectionable because of its turbidity. It was not necessarily dangerous on this account, but the senses of the consumer must be considered as well as his health.

FILTRATION

There were two kinds of filter in use. The slow sand filter required a large area for its instalation. It would filter two to five million gallons per acre per day. The initial outlay was very large but the cost of operation low. Little supervision was required. The mechanical filter which had been adopted in many cities in the States on account of its smaller initial cost, would filter 100 million gallons of water per acre per day. Less land was thus required. The cost of operation was high, as the addition of chemicals required scientific oversight. The efficiency was not so great. The cost of both filters, however, came to about the same, the interest charges on the capital required for the first being counterbalanced by the costs of operation in the second. $10 to $12 per million gallons filtered was the cost of both.

The Mayor, speaking at the close of the lecture, said he thought it advisable to do away as far as possible with all cesspools—especially those in the neighborhood of the intake pipe. At the lower end of the city also the "dead ends" should be done away with.

In moving a vote of thanks to Professor Edwards, Dr. Boyd referred to the difficulty of creating interest in the mind of the ordinary citizen in such subjects as sewage and water system.

In a 15-mile race at Buffalo on Tuesday last the famous English runner, Shrubb, beat Dorando, the Itnlian, smashing every American indoor record from the first to the fifteenth mile. Shrubb's time was 1:24:06 4-5; finishing two and three-quarter laps ahead of his competitor.

This is the race which Longboat was to run but he failed to put in an appearance.

Chandler, the Vancouver long distance runner won the Marathon at Seattle last week. Time 3:43:16.

Burns of Calgary had entered but being sick did not run.

Geo. Bowling of the Irish-American A. C., Troy, N. Y., broke the world's running record for five miles, last week in Troy, N. Y., doing it in 24:58 1-5.

Villers-Suer Ollon, Switzerland,—Feb. 27—The Canadian rink, captained by James McDonald today won the International curling bonspiel here. Fourteen rinks participated. The second prize was won by a home rink.

A meeting of all those willing to donate prizes to the Good Friday Road Race is called for tonight in the court-room at the City hall at 8 p.m. The prizes will be decided upon and placed. That the list will be most gratifying is assured.

There are fully a score of young men in training for the event and a good record is sure to be struck.

IN PARLIAMENT

Debate To-morrow Night

It was the original intention of the government to take up the suffrage bill at a session of the House to be held on Friday, evening. Feeling has run so high in the country, however, that it was considered desirable to reach a settlement at the earliest possible date. According to the current rumor, a truce has been patched up between the government and the Women's Social and Political Union, whereby the Ministers will be spared further molestation until the debate has been concluded. Accordingly the House will meet tomorrow instead of on Friday evening.

There are many indications of the feverish interest taken in the measure, not only here in the capital, but throughout the country. Of these the latest is from Gros Ventre where a resolution in favor of the proposed extension of the franchise was carried by a majority of one.

The referendum will be taken tomorrow, between the hours of 9 a.m and 6 p.m. at the following polling booths:

South's Drug Store.
The Assiniboia Music Co.
The Y. M. C.

Arrangements will be made whereby the booth in the Parliament building will be kept open until 8 o'clock, the hour at which Mr. Speaker takes the chair. The sitting will be continued till 10.30.

All residents of Canada, over 18 years of age of sound mind, will be eligible to vote. An unique opportunity is thus provided for obtaining an expression of opinion from the women of this country.

Cut out the ballot printed in this paper, or else one of the forms found in the polling booths.

The public are especially invited to attend the debate tomorrow night.

Have you seen the Cash Snaps in Graham & Turnbull's window?

MISSIONARY RALLY

Next Sunday will be Annual Missionary Day in Century Methodist Church. Mr. Thomas Humphries of the Post Office Inspector's department, Calgary an active worker in Knox Presbyterian Church of that city will be present to assist in the services. Mr. Humphries is much interested in and has been doing good work on behalf of the Layman's Missionary movement and will speak on that work at a "Man's Own" meeting at 3.30 p.m. in the gymnasium and again at the evening service in the Church at 7.30. The Men's Chorus will lead the singing at both of these meetings.

In the morning the Sunday school missionary rally will be held, the Girl's Chorus will lead the singing, and the pastor of the church conduct the service.

VETERANS' SMOKER

The Imperial South African Veterans are giving another Smoking Concert in the Eagles Hall, Saturday evening, March 13th, at 8 p.m.

The Association is now open to receive men who have served for three years or more either in the Imperial of Canadian service. The Association has a membership of thirty actual vetrans.

The Honorary President is Captain Davidson; President, Mr. Charles Watson; Vice-President, Mr. James Bruce; Secretary-Treasurer Mr. H. Keynes.

Any ex-soldier desirous of joining the Association is requested to communicate with the secretary-treasurer at the Alberta Stables.

BOWELL

There was a school meeting held on Friday. Those present were greatly surprised at the progress made since last meeting, which was held three months ago. We all look forward to a school between now and the next twenty years—if the trustees live.

On Wednesday evening, the 24th inst., the residents of Bowell together with a goodly number from Medicine Hat, assembled in the Bowell music hall to do honor to Miss B. Blythe who is leaving for her home in Calgary. Miss Blyth has been visiting her brother for the past couple of months, and, by her charming manner and genial personality won for herself a host of friends who took advantage of the opportunity to turn out en masse and bid good speed to the parting guest. Guests to the number of one hundred gathered early and by 9.30 p.m. dancing was in full swing. Mr. Albert Lemon handled the violin with his usual grace and ability, while our esteemed townsman, Mr. Mansfield, and his charming wife officiated at the organ.

The dance went merrily on till midnight, when refreshments were served and afterward the floor was never empty until daylight arrived to warn the merry makers that it was time to depart, which all reluctantly did satisfied that they had participated in the most enjoyable social event of the season.

Mr. Jos. Delinks is to be congratulated on his pluck and energy in supplying Bowellites with such a commodious hall in which to trip the light fantastic, and richly deserves the appreciation and encouragement of the community. It is just such go-ahead citizens as Mr. Delinks that makes a community or country happy and we heartily say "More power to your elbow Joe."

The hall is a well furnished structure, 16 x 32 feet, in size with smoking room and kitchen attached and is an ornament to the town and a great convenience to our merry makers.

Mr. Butler, general merchant is now in charge of the post office here and we look for good service now. The change is much appreciated.

A NOTORIOUS OUTLAW

Fearless "Billy the Kid," Who Reveled in Carnage.

ONLY A BOY, YET A TERROR.

This Youthful Desperado of the South-western Territories Was but Twenty-one When He Met Death at the Hands of Sheriff Pat Garrett.

When General Lew Wallace was governor of New Mexico and the war that raged for several years between the rival cattle companies was at its height "Billy the Kid" had reached the flood of his murderous career. He arrived in Lincoln county to take sides in the cattle warfare, known and feared in every range town and mining camp in the southwestern territories.

Pure wanton love of carnage was all that attracted him to Lincoln county. With the band of desperadoes he led he raided ranches, "shot up" towns, killed, burned houses and committed outrage after outrage with the blind recklessness of a maniac. Fear was extinct within him. He cared no more for detachments of cavalry than he did for cowering cowards.

Affairs in New Mexico finally came to such a pass that half the settlement paid the youthful desperado tribute. It was only after Pat F. Garrett was made sheriff of Lincoln county and the mother of "Bon-Ner" (General Wallace) urged that fearless game fighter and gambler to capture Billy the Kid that a determined effort was made to end his reign of terror.

The obstacles that Garrett had to encounter called for all his handling energy and nerve. Billy had the entire countryside in a state of abject terror. Friends were ready to give him timely warning of pursuit; murderous deeds met deep him judgment or chastisement.

Pat Garrett undertook the capture in October, 1880, and on Dec. 23 he encountered the Kid and his band in a deserted house near Stinking Springs. After a siege lasting most of the day the outlaws' ammunition was exhausted. Billy the Kid surrendered. He and his four followers, surrounded by a great force of armed men, were taken to Las Vegas and thence to Santa Fe for safe keeping.

An array of indictments charging murder confronted him. He was tried on one indictment and acquitted, then tried on another and convicted. He carried himself throughout with unswerving defiance. After he had been sentenced to hang Garrett took him to Fort Stanton, near Lincoln. Two deputies armed with Winchesters were assigned to guard him in the temporary jail in the Murphy & Dolan store building.

In some mysterious fashion the Kid possessed himself of a revolver, shot down his guards, seized their weapons and appeared at the window. When another guard appeared the prisoner riddled his body with buckshot. Then he called to an old man on the plaza to bring him a file. Filing off one of his shackles, he called for a horse. One was brought, and he escaped.

For nearly three months after that Billy the Kid led a fugitive life. Garrett dogged him patiently and finally got wind of his hiding place—the ranch of Peter Maxwell, near Fort Sumner. It was nearly midnight when Garrett and two deputies quietly approached the Maxwell hacienda. Garrett crept into the room where Maxwell was sleeping. Softly awakening the sleeper, he questioned him concerning the whereabouts of the Kid.

At that moment the hunted youth sprang into the room, calling out in Spanish, "Quien va?" ("Who comes there?") It was Billy. He was unarmed, and as he reached for his rifle Garrett shot him. The body of William Bonney (Billy the Kid) was buried in the military cemetery at Fort Stanton July 15, 1881. His age at the time of his death was twenty-one years seven months. Thus his body is today, though its later years a certain vein exhibited throughout the west as that of the famous young outlaw.—Harper's Weekly.

"Ah confess," said one of the statesmen, "was addressing an assemblage of the people. He recounted the people's wrongs. Then he passionately cried:

"Where are America's great men? Why don't they take up the cudgel in our defense? In the face of our manifold wrongs why do they remain cold, indomitable, silent?'

"Because they're all dead by heaven!' shouted a cynic in the rear."

Specific Pronoun.

"Hiram, why don't you speak to that city gal out there a-sittin' on the green with her head up agin your 'No Trespassing' sign?"

"Mandy, that young woman is beneath my notice."—Boston Transcript.

But Not the "One."

Mrs. Hoyle—My husband had $300,000 when I married him. Mrs. Doyle—How much has he now? Mrs. Hoyle—Oh, he has most of the eighteen hundred.

The Whale's Blow.

Pompous—What is the whale blowing about? Dogfish—Oh, he got so many notions for his feet in swallowing Jonah he's been blowing ever since.—Exchange.

Progress.

Progress is the real cure for an overestimate of ourselves.—Macdonald.

CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA

As is well known, this troublesome complaint arises from over-eating, the use of too much rich food, neglected constipation, lack of exercise, bad air, etc.

The food should be thoroughly chewed, and never bolted or swallowed in haste, stimulants must be avoided and exercise taken if possible.

A remedy which has surely failed to give prompt relief and effect permanent cure, even in the most obstinate cases, is

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

It acts by regulating and toning the digestive organs, removing constipation and increasing the appetite and restoring health and vigor to the system.

Mr. Amos Bowler, Gold River, N.S., writes:—"I was greatly troubled with dyspepsia, and after trying several doctors to no effect I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters and I think it is the best medicine there is for that complaint."

The February number of Outdoor Canada is the first of a new volume and an issue upon which the management may well be congratulated. Another of Arthur Heming's speaking illustrations is used as a frontispiece, illustrating an Indian story which opens the magazine. In an article, vigorous and incisive, C. G. MacNeill handles the author of a recent English book upon Canada without gloves, handing out well-merited rebuke to a man who has grossly maligned this country and its people, and picturing in colors that are as they should be, The Truth About Canada. Prof. D. M. Barton gives the first of his talks to Outdoor Canada readers on the man and Exercise. Hodder Kingsmill furnishes his usual interesting monthly budget on sporting gossip and the whole field of Canadian sport and athletics is carefully covered in this and in special articles. A new feature is the monthly Calendar of Sport, which will keep readers posted on results in every field of Canadian sport. The number contains many other articles of general interest and a wealth of seasonable illustrations, including fine pictures of Shrubb and Longboat as they appeared in their recent race in New York. The magazine may be secured from newsdealers or from the office of publication, Spectator Building, Hamilton.

Professional Baseball for Medicine Hat

Will Enter Western League

An enthusiastic meeting of prominent local fans was held in the American hotel last Thursday evening to discuss the possibilities of professional ball during the coming season. The following statement made out by Messrs. Jas Fleming and W. Hamilton was circulated among those present, Mr. Fleming explaining that an outside figure in regard to costs had been taken in every case, and the estimates of receipts were very conservative. For instance in Winnipeg, which last year (a bad year) had an average attendance of 1,200 per game, only 1,000 was counted on by Mr. Fleming:

MILEAGE

Edmonton to Calgary	192	miles
Calgary to Lethbridge	147	"

C. S. Pingle took the chair and R. W. Elliott acted as secretary on motion of Jas. Fleming and the meeting immediately got down to business. Mr. Pingle stated that the object of the meeting was to see if the people of the city were willing to put up $2,000 in order to have professional ball. About the desirability of having ball he thought there would be no two opinions. The names of a number of citizens who would guarantee a certain amount were given by Mr. Fleming.

It was pointed out that in all probability only a portion of the $2,000 would be called for; in fact $1,476 was considered ample.

Mr. Hawthorne suggested that a committee be appointed to go round the town to see how local feeling was in the matter. He thought it would be better to have the responsibility divided up, rather than as in 1907, borne by a few. A committee was according,y appointed consisting of Messrs. Fleming, W. Turpin and O'Hara to canvass the town on Friday and Saturday, in order that, if the full guarantee were forthcoming Mr. Fleming might go down to Regina on Monday.

After some discussion it was decided to issue 100, $20-shares to be put into the old company. Twenty-five shares were subscribed for before the close of the meeting. Mr. Turpin pointed out that the biggest thing in Medicine Hat's favor was in having Mr. Hamilton here to manage the team.

Speaking of the prospects for the season Mr. Hamilton said that he did not think that there would be any difficulty experienced in getting first-class clubs. He was in touch with many of the boys, but it was absolutely necessary that he should know what the city intended to do within a week or so. The boys were all stars, though a little high-priced.

The new all-Canadian Professional Baseball League will embrace the cities of Winnipeg, Brandon Regina, Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat, Calgary, Lethbridge and Edmonton.

HAD BACHACHE.

Was Unable To Do Housework For Two Years

Many Women Suffer Untold Agony From Kidney Trouble.

Very often they think it is from so-called "female disease." There is less "female trouble" than they think.

Women suffer from backache, sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability and a dragging down feeling in the kidney region, and think these are "female troubles."

What's the matter with your kidneys?

Most of the so-called "female disorders" are no more or less than "kidney disorders," and can be easily and quickly cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. C. Dupuis, Belleview Village, N.B., writes: "I was unable to do my housework for nine years on account of backache. I could not get up the stairs. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me permanently after doctors failed to even relieve the pain. I can highly recommend them to all sufferers from kidney trouble."

Price 50 cts. per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

AN EXCEPTIONAL COMPANY

The News' says of the Rowland Clifford Company which plays in the Opera House on Monday and Tuesday, March 8 and 9.

"It is not often that Calgary is visited by a really good dramatic company, but the Rowland and Clifford Co., who opened their week's engagement at Lyric theatre last night, are undoubtedly an exception to the rule. Miss Dorothy Turner filled the role of "Jane Eyre" in a manner that marked her as an actress of more than ordinary talent. She received excellent support from Edwin Scribner, as "Edward Rochester," and the portrayal of "Lieut Ingram" and "Adele Varens" by William Neff and Marion Zimmerman."

The Rowland and Clifford Company's engagement at Medicine Hat is limited to two nights on Monday March 8th they will present "Jane Eyre," and Tuesday, March 9th "Thorne and Grange Blossoms."

Where Medicine Hat Stands

At last we have that much-advertised, long-waited-for railway policy of the Alberta Government.

And the announcement of that policy should (and will) mean the banishment of all hope of a Liberal member for this city and district.

In a few words the Government guarantees the bonds of the C. N. R. and C. T. P., for a railway from Wainwright to Calgary and Coutts, a railway from Macleod to a point on this line between Calgary and Lethbridge, a railway from Strathcona to Calgary and Lethbridge, a railway from Bittern Lake to Vegreville, a railway from the Little Bow to the boundary through Macleod, a railway from this branch to Coleman; a railway from Cardston to the western boundary, a railway from Vermilion to Pulford Lake, a railway from Morinville east, a railway from Content westerly, a railway from Calgary to near Banff, a railway from Edmonton towards Peace River, a railway from Morinville to Athabasca Landing, a railway from Edmonton north to Fort McMurray.

And in all this 1,691 miles of government guaranteed railways not a foot of it comes within 100 miles of Medicine Hat. Lethbridge, Macleod, Calgary, Edmonton, Red Deer, Cardston, Cochrane, Banff, Strathcona, Coleman, Vegreville, Vermilion Athabasca Landing, Morinville — every little village and every big city in Alberta but Medicine Hat is to receive the impetus of additional railway facilities. The Government has picked Medicine Hat out to be the only town in Alberta that pays for these roads without securing a cent's profit from them.

What are you going to do about it? Is it possible that there are men such dyed-in-the-wool Grits as to vote for such a scheme? It does not seem possible.

The Alberta Government is so opposed to the C. P. R. that it will not assist that great railway in any way. It happens that the C. P. R. has selected a couple of well-known Conservative lawyers to handle its Alberta legal work, and the Alberta Government accordingly does its utmost to discredit the only railway that has done anything for Alberta. That undignified, narrow politician, Alberta's premier even goes so far as to devote a great part of his budget speech to a diatribe against a private individual—Senator Lougheed—because the latter dares oppose the Government. That's a most humiliating spectacle for the world to see.

All that Medicine Hat has received in the estimates is a $20,000 courthouse, an improvement forced upon the Government by the judges themselves. A judge actually refused to hold a sitting in the place, and every judge has called the present courthouse a disgrace. There isn't much thanks coming to the Government for doing what they were forced to do.

Now Medicine Hat is full of a lot of good boosters, to which are added a lot of apparent boosters whose boosting isn't allowed to interfere with their own private affairs. Every one of these is bound by his hope for the city, by his desire to build up a great centre, to express in no measured terms his resentment of the Government that will deliberately side-track this city while guaranteeing 1,691 miles to the extent of $25,000,000.

And to continue their disregard for the interests of Medicine Hat and district, we are shoved to one side in the redistribution. Lethbridge has a seat for the city alone, but Medicine Hat a city of the same size or larger has to be content to go in with the surrounding country. Of course in addition to the disregard the Liberal Government has for this city, it knows full well that a city seat would go to the Conservative candidate, but that the country can be used to take off the Conservative majority in the city. This is what happened at the last provincial election. Major Sissons beat Mr. Finlay by 59 in the city, but the Government always has the advantage in the country and especially among the foreign speaking population.

After these exhibitions of contempt for the City of Medicine Hat and the partiality shown by the Government to other cities any Medicine Hat who votes to return such a Government should be driven from the city. It is the city we are most interested in and politics should come last. Can any Liberal assert that this city has been treated with any fairness in the railway guarantees or the redistribution?

The Government hopes that a Cabinet Minister can keep us down, that we'll sit quiet and let an incapable Cabinet walk over us. They think they can trust the side-hounds no matter what they do, and that they can work some schemes to pull over enough of the remainder.

Can they? Remember our city!

Changes

With this issue The Times passes into the hands of Mr. C. J. Wilson, and the past proprietor can assure the many readers of the paper that there will be improvements in every issue. Mr. Wilson is a man whose ability is readily acknowledged by all who have come into contact with him. This will be proven, the past proprietor feels assured, and beyond this nothing further need be said concerning Mr. Wilson.

The publisher whose term ends with this issue desires to thank the many friends whose interest in The Times, and whose assistance in the ups and downs of newspaper life, have made the paper what it is. It is with satisfaction that we can compare the present paper with what it was two years ago, a contrast which is largely due to the support of the most influential people—those who have been striving most honestly for the advancement of the city.

The Times has made its enemies, as will any man or any paper worth reading, but as no profit can accrue from the making of enemies, even its enemies will agree that The Times has been working only for the city.

To Mr. Wilson we hand over the great work possible through the local newspaper, and through The Times in particular. That the influence of the paper will not be diminished we feel sure.

It is with considerable regret that our work in Medicine Hat ceases at this time. That the city has a great future when certain elements are eliminated we feel sure;—nothing could prevent that under the conditions that are possible. The writer would like to be in the work that will tend to the improvement of the city. Just now, too, when an election is coming on which means so much to the city there is a lot of work can be done and so important is it that the present Government be censured that we would like to do our best in this respect.

There were several other moves contemplated but these must be dropped in the hopes that others will do the work more effectively.

? ? ? ? ?

The election is called for March 22nd. This is only another instance of the Grit methods of springing an election on the public hoping to catch the Opposition unprepared. Medicine Hat is prepared to show what it thinks of the Government that expects us to look pleasant when 1691 miles of railway are guaranteed, without coming within 100 miles of this city, when cities smaller than Medicine Hat are given seats and Medicine Hat scorned.

What's the use of having a Cabinet Minister represent us, when he can't get a mile of the 1691 miles of railway to come near us? Did the Hon. Mr. Finlay object to the side-tracking of this city? Did he object to giving Lethbridge a seat while Medicine Hat was ignored? Not a word did he say in the House. Is that looking after the interests of the city he represents?

At The Legislature

Edmonton, Feb. 25.—

The end of the session is drawing near and unless the unexpected happens the House will have adjourned by the end of next week. There is an impression abroad that the elections will soon follow. What are the indications.

If one may come to a conclusion from the external evidence it would now seem that the elections are at hand, and may be on early in April. This much is certain that the government have the machinery with which to get a "snap" verdict and no one need be surprised if dissolution takes place early in March. The machinery for it is contained in the election bill, which is now being rushed through the House almost without discussion. On the whole the bill is a good one; but it contains seventeen sections which permit of the good features being suspended if the government desires to spring the elections. There is provision for the compiling of printed voters' lists. In city constituencies, cities and towns these are to be prepared by registration; in other parts they are to be prepared by enumeration. These lists are to be revised by judges or revising barristers, and two hundred copies of the revised lists are to be printed by a certain time before the elections. Heavy penalties are named for the punishment of electorial offenders. This with the other features which are very fair, apparently make the bill save the seventeen sections a good one.

To set this machinery in operation and to complete printed lists would take several months. In fact in the ordinary course of events the government could not hold an election before next summer. Politics in this province is a game, not always played fairly. It is considered good tactics to tie the opposition's hands, but it is considered a great mistake for the government to allow its hands to be tied in the matter of holding elections. So in order to hold an election whenever the government may choose, provision has been made in Sections 88 to 104. These provide for an election which may be held before the voters' lists may have been printed. The clauses set forth that in case of dissolution, lists are to be prepared by enumeration, which are to be completed within eight days of polling. Two copies are to be posted in a conspicuous place for inspection and the enumerator is to be given notice of where he may be found for six hours on the three days immediately preceding the elections. This is the only opportunity given for revision. The enumerator is given power to add or remove names to the satisfaction of his own mind. Thus all the good election machinery must, until the printed lists are published, remain in disuse.

It must also be remembered that the bill provides for the holding of elections on a date from twenty-three to twenty-seven days after dissolution, which means that all the work of preparing lists must be done in that time. It also means that the elections may be held as early as March 24. Thus the legislature would be prorogued on February 28, dissolved on March 1, and the elections could be held on March 24.

Will the government take advantage of this? It seems not improbable. They would have good precedent in Scott's action in Saskatchewan last summer when after practically assuring the Opposition that another session would be held, suddenly took advantage of these self-same sections in the Saskatchewan Election Act to secure a snap verdict. Clauses 83-104 in the new bill have been copied from the Saskatchewan act. What Scott did Rutherford may do.

Another feature of the election bill lends color to this opinion. It is quite evident that it would be almost impossible on twenty-three days notice to arrange adequately for the holding of an election in the Athabasca and Peace River constituencies. Mr. Robertson pointed this out. The reply of the attorney-general was that a bill would be introduced providing for the holding of elections at deferred dates in these parts. Thus nothing hinders the government from holding a general election early in April.

Mr. Robertson has protested against the short notice on which an election may be called, and he proposes an amendment. He might as well have spoken to a stone wall as to the unreasonable phalanx on the government side. Within two hours 280 out of the 300 sections of the bill with about 60 forms were rushed through committee. Such haste is nothing less than a public scandal.

A HARD DRY COUGH.

Mr. J. L. Purdy, Milford, N.S., writes:—"I have been troubled with a hard, dry cough for a long time, especially at night, but after having used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, for a few weeks, I find my cough has left me. To any person, suffering as I did, I can say that this remedy is well worth a trial. I would not be without it in the house."

Many Will Be Helped By It

To relieve the [illegible] of inflammation, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime:—

These harmless ingredients can be obtained from any druggist, and are easily mixed by shaking them well in a bottle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription forces the clogged, inactive kidneys to filter and purify from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which cause rheumatism.

Large or small quantities of Cloudy, painful and tardy urine, and also for [illegible] and distressed at any time proves [illegible] no doubt [illegible] within [illegible] days.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few doses a week, would never have serious kidney or urinary disorders, or Rheumatism.

Cut this out and preserve it. Good [illegible] prescription, which [illegible] relieve [illegible] soreness, [illegible] and when you need it, you want it badly.

A TEMPERANCE UNION.

Members Limited to Fourteen Drinks of Liquor Daily.

"Signing the pledge" is no new thing, as is proved by researches in Italy. Interesting particulars of what would appear to be the earliest examples of written pledges to abstain from gambling and excessive drinking are given in the Turin Stampa Modervoli by Signor Giuseppe Biscaro, who has discovered these early documents in the archives of Milan. The first of these records is an oath sworn on the gospels by Giacomo Pasquali and Armanino Duce to the effect that for two years they will abstain from gambling in Pavia or within three miles thereof and will likewise refrain from inducing others to gamble on their behalf. The penalty for any breach of this oath is fixed at 5 soldi, payable to Papio Sevenzio.

In the second document Pursus de Rosa promises Uberto de Prato to abandon [illegible] gambling for a certain period, exception being made on behalf of the game of blandusium, at which, however, he will not to lose more than 2 denari on any one day. Further, he undertakes not to visit any inn for drinking purposes before the hour of vespers on Monday. A breach of either clause of the pledge involves the payment of 5 soldi to De Prato. By the third document Biete Ferrario expressed his willingness to pay 12 denari to his brother Lamperto should he be persuaded to play for money in any place of public resort or be spend more than 2 denari on intoxicants in any one day.

The merits for these contracts is not stated, but it is presumed that they were entered into by gamblers when becoming wearied to keep their pocket-money. There is nothing in the documents to support the existence of any organization for the promotion of temperance. The honor of being first in the field in this respect therefore still rests with Germany, where two temperance societies were founded in the fifteenth century.

Of these the Order of St. Christopher was founded by Sigismund de Dalmatinus on Jan. 25, 1517, and the Order of Temperance by the landgrave of Hesse on Dec. 26, 1600. The members of the one order were pledged to abstain from toast drinking, and the members of the other undertook not to drink more than seven glasses of liquor at a time, and that not oftener than twice a day.—Chicago News.

What He Needed.

A convention would tempt many men, and when Pinkton, making a few purchases at the station, saw one lying on the floor put by the counter he quivered with excitement.

Glancing around to reassure himself that none was looking, he quite unconsciously dropped one of his kid gloves neatly on the coin and then stared. He put the glove all right, but still the suspicion remained.

A commercial traveler had him.

"Good morning, sir," said the man, adding his hands together in the approved style, "can you, I adore you a sample of our celebrated liquid glue, which sticks?"

The Golfer Show Who Was Just About to, but Never Did.

[Copyright, 1909, by Robert Howard Russell.]

HE CAME INTO HER CUBAWAY.

Once there was a Youth who [illegible] the Mercantile Career at a very high [illegible] Starting Amateur [illegible] Life was to get so far ahead of the Game that he could afford a Cabin Cruiser any time he felt like it. After [illegible] Desk for Sunday, and a Weekend De Luxe out in a motoring Coat [illegible]

He learned to [illegible] the Business Trade, and felt that [illegible] he was that in a little while he [illegible] Office from an Organization Cannon. Whenever he said he [illegible] to leave, [illegible] the House stood for an Increase.

He came into the Subway and the Elevated and then he found that he needed a Motor-Suit and a Pulling-Hat and a Cable-Coat. His Gold Ratmont carried him right into Society, and he began to meet Families that suited him, so he figured on the Probable Expense of Keeping House.

He thought that if he could annex a good-looking Tottie with legs, small feet, and take an Apartment and keep a Girl, then he would be fired for sure.

So he went out for more Salary and carried the Bank-Book next to his Heart. At last the Proud Day arrived when he had his own Flat, with a second Piano in the Front Room and Tidies on the Chairs. Before the Lease expired he discovered that the Dining-Room was too small, and began to dream. Because of a House of [illegible] in which they could Entertain. He shoveled back his Cuffs and took a fresh Grip on the World of Trade, and buckled into a Turf, making Payments on the Horse. He was inclining to look round-shouldered, but he drank plenty of Coffee and smoked fat Cigars and buckled down.

He had it all planned to take a good Rest as soon as he had Hired the Mortgage. He was so fed up he used out for Ride-Talks and look at the Pictures of Himself loafing around in Steamer Chairs enjoying the Sea Air.

He would have taken a nice long Vacation, only he saw a Chance to break into the Firm. Accordingly he went in Debt up to his Eyes. He would lie awake all Night casting up his Liabilities and computing Interest. He talked to himself on the Street, and acted glad the Joint Ad Digger. But he was determined to bring the Boat, and then, as soon as he was out of the Woods, he could take a Trip and hang around Florida.

For Years he had said that it was a Crime for any one Man to pile up more than [illegible]. As soon as he went above [illegible] was a Case of nothing to Regret to regret it. As soon as he had that Hundred Thousand [illegible] piled up and tied [illegible] Bundles, [illegible] for a Quiet Spot [illegible] hear a Body of Water and a Neighbor [illegible] Bausch and the [illegible] free, open Life of the Golf Links.

To the Second Tee Hole Fellow, 100,000 Salesmen in [illegible] Lamp looks Wise [illegible] per than the Union Station, but the Man who is being gnawed by the Mazuma Bacillus thinks he is a Pauper unless he can count up Seven Figures. He is always rising up alongside of Rockefeller and Morgan, and he feels like a Piker sitting in a stiff Poker Game with one White Seal.

Just about the time the Business Man counted up $100,000 to the Good he discovered that he needed seven Servants around the House. And the Missus could float downtown on a sunny Afternoon and make $1,000 look like a Pinch of Small Change.

He set his Mark at One Million. Then, when he had that, out to the Sylvan Dell. He was going to be a Gentleman Farmer.

Every Office Building on Earth is congested with hollow-eyed Prisoners who are planning to be Gentleman Farmers. About next Year or Year after—away from the Hurly-Burly and nothing to do except raise Chickens.

All of them have them Chicken Dreams. This Business [illegible] which we are describing even went so far as to pick out the kind of Chickens he was going to raise—Plymouth Rocks. He figured how many Eggs he could get per Hen, and sometimes, when the Pencil was working well, he estimated that he could make the Place self-supporting.

In the mean time he was humping himself and eating Pepsin Tablets and taking a little something every Night to make him Sleep.

The Business had developed so that he had fourteen Push-Buttons in front of him, and kept two Stenographers busy, and was jumping from the Long-Distance Phone to the Private Office most of the Time, and chewing up decent Cigars, and in other Ways living a correct Imitation of a Man who has a large and ambitious Family on Hand.

He began to look Wild out of the Eyes and had a severe Case of the Jumps, but he had to postpone that Rest for a little While, because no one else understood all the Details of the Business.

When the Doctor hinted about Nervous Prostration he said that he was trying to get the whole Organization down to a System, so that some one else could step in and run it after which he expected to take a Place in the Country and [illegible] Obliged the Doctor told the story so often he began to believe it himself.

In order to systematize the

WOULD BE ALL RIGHT IN A DAY OR SO.

Large Business so that he could turn it over to some one else and then have his Vacation, he began to put in 16 hours a Day, and lunched in the large Corner Room, with a Trained Nurse putting Ice on his Head and telling him he would be all right in a Day or so.

He had a Ticket put in at one gate of the Yard, and kept a Stenographer on hand up to the Afternoon that he departed this Life.

It is said that when he went to his Reward he was met by a Celestial Assistant, who proved to be the Recording Angel.

"If you're the Recording Angel, get out your Book," said the Business Man. "I want you to take a few Letters for me."

PRESTON IN JAPAN

(Canadian Courier)

A correspondent in China sends us a number of clippings from "The Japan Weekly Chronicle" dealing with the doings and sayings of Mr. W. T. R. Preston, Canadian Agent. One states that Mr. Preston is "really outrageous in his statements and insinuations against foreign merchants." Evidently Mr. Preston has stirred up the Britishers in Japan. In another, it is plainly said that "it would be well, perhaps, if his Government recalls him, before he does any further harm to his reputation." In still another, it is stated that "Mr. Preston is again busily at work endeavoring to foment a feeling of animosity amongst Japanese against the resident foreigner," and explains that the Kobe Foreign Board of Trade had forwarded a memorial to Ottawa in protest.

It appears that Mr. Preston is pursuing his ancient tactics of talking [illegible] and generally making himself disagreeable. So far as he found it necessary to deny certain statements about Canadian rates of wages and important government matters, Mr. Preston was probably justified in some of his "talk." Nevertheless, his attitude in general has been as inadvisable as might be expected from his personal history. He was never credited, even by his intimate friends, with discretion of a high order. His famous telegram "Hug the machine," is sufficient evidence of that.

Our Correspondent, a Canadian who has lived in Asia for years, speaks of Mr. Preston as a "misguided ass," and regrets his appointment. He also points out that Mr. Preston's predecessor was a man of about seventy years of age, very deaf, and so weak that since he was moved to Shanghai he has spent all his time in hospital. Our correspondent adds that these circumstances are unfortunate for Canada, and that Canadian interests are suffering. On the other hand, the Australian representatives are young men, well versed in the affairs of the East, and "not ward-heelers who have outlived their usefulness."

Whatever may be the merits of these cases, Canada should be very careful of the class of men sent abroad to represent her interests. Expeditions cannot possibly make satisfactory trade agents. Only trained business men, with some experience in public affairs, should receive these appointments.

War Correspondents' Exciting Adventures

WHAT HE OWES TO ZAM-BUK.

Mr. Frank Scudamore, the great War correspondent, who sent many of the Canadian despatches during the late Boer War, owes his health to Zam-Buk. He has passed unscathed through 29 battles, but a scratch which turned to blood-poisoning nearly ended his days. Zam-Buk saved him and he writes as follows:—

"I have proved Zam-Buk such a blessing that I want others to know of its merits. The poisonous dye in some underclothing I was wearing got into a scratch I had sustained and blood-poisoning set up. Inflammation was followed by great pain and swelling, and then ulcers broke out on my legs. For some time I could not walk a few steps nor even put my feet to the ground. On my left leg below the knee I had seventeen ulcers which caused holes, into which I could put my thumb. On the right leg I had fourteen ulcers. Medical treatment failed to relieve, [illegible] remedies were applied in vain. Week followed week and I gradually got worse, until I was worn out with pain and lack of sleep. On the advice of a friend I obtained some Zam-Buk and left off everything else while I tried it. It seemed to give me almost instant relief from the pain, and in a few days I noticed that it was healing some of the ulcers. This was cheering indeed, and gladly I persevered with the Zam-Buk treatment. Bit by bit the poisonous matter was drawn out. The ulcers were healed, and new healthy skin grew over the previously diseased places. I am now quite cured, and in gratitude, I mention these facts that other sufferers from skin disease may know of something which will cure them.

Zam-Buk differs entirely from ordinary ointments and salves in the above facts clearly prove. For all skin diseases [illegible] thrushes, scalp sores, ringworm, children's sore heads [illegible] burns, bruises, etc., it is a speedy cure. It also cures [illegible] itch, piles, blood-poisoning, face-blemishes, barber's rash, etc., cold sores, chapped hands, and frost bite. Rubbed well into the parts affected, it cures rheumatism, neuralgia, and sciatica. All druggists and stores sell at 50c a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price 4 boxes for $1.00.

Indigestion is Ended Forever

Why not start now—today, and for ever rid yourself of Stomach trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good ... then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no diapepsin or belching of Gas or fermentations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or sourthers, sick headache and Dizziness, and your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for A large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take the sour, Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangle will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapepsin works, your stomach rests, gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of indigestion.

Telling Retort of the Lambikin, Violet Eyed Beauty.

There is a certain young woman who is beautiful, with that childish, wistful, innocent looking, violet eyed beauty which reduces one-half the feminine world to tears, the other half to utterly helpless rage. We all know the type, but it is seldom given us to see it in such perfection. We usually associate it with a lambkin, appealing mentality that permits itself to be ridden upon—as soon expect a wood violet to turn and read you.

A short time ago she was asked to a woman's luncheon and got herself up for the occasion in a way that made the result of her efforts a thing not easily forgotten. She arrived looking so lovely that there was little said among the guests for a few moments after her entry into the room. Perhaps she felt the silence. At all events, she turned to the woman standing nearest her and said in a childish voice, with over such a little lisp and pretty southern accent:

"How well yo' are lookin' today!"

It was a well meant civility from a young woman to an older one, who seemingly was unable to accept it as such and put up her lorgnette, sweeping the speaker from top to toe. What she saw was enough to disconcert a younger and prettier woman than herself, but even so one finds it difficult to justify her next move.

"Wish I could say the same for you," she returned, closing her lorgnette with a snap.

One or two of the guests were friends of the pretty woman and almost stopped breathing in order not to miss what they felt sure would come—and it came. The pretty one raised her eyebrows slightly, then said, with an air of gentle reproach:

"Why don't yo' lie like a lady, like I do?"—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

When the Thing Was Turned Something Had to Give Way.

And speaking of teeth reminds me that the country doctor had to draw them when they ached. The dentist's artistry had not attained the elevated plane it occupies today, when everybody's mouth shines like the inside of a communion cup. I honestly believe the modern dentist has more different kinds of tools than even a sanitary plumber, and that's a whole lot when you come to count them up. The modern dentist hates the worst way to draw a tooth. Nevertheless if the modern dentist must draw the tooth he has a particular forceps for a particular tooth, and a cruel hearted and cold looking thing it is too. It puts you so in mind of a successful financier. When you brace yourself in the iron chair and take a tight grip on the arms of it and make up your mind you'll try to stand it and he gets that forceps well under the gum and—wait a minute; I feel so kind o' faint! Lawsy! Why didn't I mind my mother when she told me not to crack hickory nuts with my teeth? Well anyway, you know he'll get the tooth out without doing more than take the whole top of your head off, and that only in a figurative sense.

Uncle Doc had one implement that did for every tooth, like and little front and back. It wasn't a forceps; it was a turnkey. The real old folks know what that is and will say so with the cold chills running over them. But you've never seen one, and many a man that you would call old has never seen one. It's something like a canthook. The loosely riveted piece that curves slips over the tooth and catches on the inside; the solid cam bears on the outside gum; the operator turns the handle. Let's not talk about it. Something has got to give. Maybe the tooth will come out; maybe it will break off; maybe the jaw will fracture. All those are details. The main point is that if the operator twists the handle something has got to give, and that's all there is about it.—Success Magazine.

THE POULTRY REVIEW

The Editor of the Canadian Poultry Review, the people's popular paper, tells us that this paper has been greatly enlarged and is filled with all that pertains to poultry, both from a practical and a fancy standpoint.

Prof. A. G. Gilbert, Manager Dominion Government Poultry Farm, Ottawa, is still in charge of the Practical Poultry Department, while Prof. W. R. Graham, Manager of the Poultry Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, has charge of the artificial Incubation and Brooding Department. Rev J. N Williams, one of England's most noted experts, writes interestingly each month of poultry doings in the Old Land. Mr. H. S. Babcock, Providence, R. I., is another prominent writer and breeder on this paper's regular staff. Each phase of poultry breeding, poultry exhibiting, etc., is fully covered and the pages of the Review are replete with half tone reproductions from life of famous birds, plans of up-to-date houses utensils, etc.

The subscription rate is fifty cents per year, but readers of this paper can have it at three years for $1.00 and sample will be sent free on application to Canadian Poultry Review, 134 Adelaide Street, West, Toronto, Ont.

Or with The Times $1.75 a year.

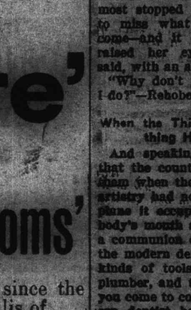
AN INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM.

Once there lived in a Jim Crow Town a glowing Intellect who was Posted on all the Issues of the Day. Some one had to keep Cases on the Government and prevent the whole Outfit from getting out of Kelter, and so the Job fell to Mordecai F. Quinsy. Mr. Quinsy found that he could give his Time to regulating the Washington Game because his Wife did Sewing and his Daughter was an Expert Stenographer. Between them they kept him supplied with good 5-cent Cigars and relieved his Mind of all Business Cares.

He had nothing to worry him except Affairs of State.



When he tackled a large International Problem he could do so with a keen, active Brain that had not been fagged out by any cheap Exertion, such as trying to locate the Winter's Supply of Coal.

Mr. Quinsy had the solemn Phiz of a professional Pall-Bearer, and much meditation had corrugated the Front of the Dome. Those who merely caught one Flash of him and never looked up his Record and checked off his Pedigree thought he was about due to break into the Senate. To tell the cold and icy Truth, Mordecai could not have been elected Constable, but just the same he knew all about John Hay's next Move, and sometimes he fretted a good deal for Fear that John would make a Miscue.

Mr. Quinsy could sit on a Kit of Mackerel, with a Bunch of Keys, a Barlow Knife, a Plug of good eating Tobacco, and about 25 cents in Currency secreted in his Jeans, and he could tell the Treasury Department just how to manage the next $100,000,000 Issue of Bonds.

One thing that worried Mr. Quinsy a lot was the possibility that Teddy would make some serious Mistake. He felt more or less responsible for Teddy, inasmuch as he had formally nominated him in front of Pilkins's Hardware Store as far back as 1880. If he could have been at Teddy's Elbow all the time to whisper Advice there would have been no Chance for the Administration to get balled up. But the Trouble was that Mr. Quinsy was out at Dewee Junction and Teddy was up at Washington, and they could not get together to frame up a Policy.

Mr. Quinsy was a man of Regular Habits and very Methodical. He had as much to do every Day that he had to work on a close Schedule.

NUMBER SIX.

In the Morning, after his Wife had arisen and started the Fire and put on the Griddle, Mr. Mordecai F. Quinsy would arise and take a few Observations of the Weather. He was a very able Prognosticator, and one of his favorite Stunts was to get up in the Morning and do a little Forecasting for the benefit of his Wife and Daughter.

After Breakfast he put on his Overcoat and Wrapped himself up in a Comforter so as not to catch Cold and lose the he of his Voice. If Mordecai F. Quinsy had lost the use of his Voice this Country would have been in a Bad Way.

Mr. Quinsy knew a Druggist who took Daily Paper, and so, the first thing every Morning, he went to the Drugstore to find out what Fool Break had been made by Congress. After reading the Paper he sat by the Stove and laid out some Work for the Ways and Means Committee.

At which he went down to the Station for Number Six to go through.

After which he went up to the Post-Office and waited until the Mail had been distributed. One day Mordecai Quinsy received a Seed Catalogue, and after that was encouraged. While waiting for his Mail Mr. Quinsy said a few plain Words about the Kaiser and stood up for the Monroe Doctrine.

About 11 o'clock every day Mr. Quinsy and as Referee in a Pool Game. And he went over to the Barber Shop to hear the Illustrated Papers containing the Pictures of Prominent Favorites, Noted Criminals. Mr. Quinsy, being blessed with an Analytical Mind, was only interested in all Murder Mysteries and for every Case he had a few Theories of his own that would become a great help to the Police.

Just at 12 o'clock Mr. Quinsy went home and ate a hearty Dinner, after which he returned to Main Street smoking a Farm-Hand Regalia and gazing thoughtfully at the Ground, trying to straighten out the Panama Canal Business.

In the Afternoon he hung around the Court-House more or less because he played a good Game of Checkers, and, besides, he liked to be on hand in case the State needed the Services of an unprejudiced Juror.

Mr. Quinsy had a Weak Back, which prevented him from splitting Wood, but he loved some kinds of Work, and the Honest Toil that suited him best was to sit on a Jury in a Case involving Assault and Battery.

If there was nothing doing at the Court-House, Mr. Quinsy usually went to a Real-Estate Office and grappled with the Trust Problem. He had given much Thought to the Matter of legislating against infamous Combines, and he was one of the first to discover that the Trusts were trying to whip-saw the Working Classes. About the time that he had solved the Trust Problem he had to go over and see the Afternoon Train go through and wait for his Mail once more.

SUFFERING.

Late in the Day he usually dropped in at an Undertaker's Shop where a Veterinary Surgeon and a retired Truck Farmer were collaborating on a Foreign Policy for the State Department. Mr. Quinsy was always able to slip in a few Suggestions. He was dead set against the Anglo-Saxon Alliance, and believed in the Annexation of Canada, even if it involved War.

At 5:30 he would purchase a Pound of Oyster Crackers and have them charged. Then he would go home to Tea, and tell Mrs. Quinsy and Daughter to fix up the Sofa for him as he was suffering from a Headache and wanted to Rest for a little while.

MORAL: What we need in America is the Gospel of Relaxation.

The Deadly Poisoned Arrows of the Lisoo Sharpshooters.

On the wild frontier between China and British Burma is a barbarous tribe which has no civilized supervision. George Forrest, an English traveler, thus describes the chief weapon of these people: "If I had to suggest a title for a book on the upper Salwin I should call it 'The Land of the Crossbow,' which is the characteristic weapon of the country and the Lisoo tribe. Every Lisoo with any pretensions to chic possesses at least two of these weapons—one for everyday use in hunting, the other for war. The little children play with miniature crossbows. The men never leave their huts for any purpose whatever without their crossbows. When they go to sleep the cross-bow is hung over their heads, and when they die it is hung over their graves. The largest crossbows have a span of fully five feet and require a pull of fully thirty-five pounds to string them. The bow is made of a species of wild mulberry of great toughness and flexibility. The stock, some four feet long in the war bows, is usually of wild plum wood. The string is of plaited hemp and the trigger of bone. The arrow, of sixteen to eighteen inches, is of split bamboo about four times the thickness of an ordinary knitting needle, hardened and pointed. The actual point is bare for a quarter to one-third of an inch, then for fully an inch the arrow is stripped to half its thickness, and on this portion poison is placed.

"The poison is invariably a decoction expressed from the tubers of a species of aconitum which grows on those ranges at an altitude of 8,000 to 10,000 feet. The poison is mixed with resin or some vegetable gum to the consistency of putty and is then smeared on the notched point. The 'feather' is supplied by a strip of bamboo leaf folded into a triangular form and tied in a notch at the end of the arrow, with the point of the angle outward. The reduction in thickness of the arrow where the poison is placed causes the point to break off in the body of any one whom it strikes, and, as each carries enough poison to kill a court horse, a wound is invariably fatal. Free and immediate incision is the usual remedy when wounded on a limb or fleshy part of the body, but at Chengka the uncle of the Laowo chief showed us a preparation which resembled opium dross and which he said was an effective antidote.

"With few exceptions the Lisoo seemed to us to be arrant cowards, but the crossbow and poisoned arrow are certainly most diabolical weapons. An arrow from a war bow will pierce a deal board an inch thick at seventy or eighty yards. Some of the Tsekou natives were so expert that they could hit a mark four inches in diameter repeatedly at sixty to eighty yards. As no one goes anywhere without his crossbow and his bearskin quiver full of poisoned arrows and as every village is at feud with every other village mutual suspicion is inevitable. In open fight the Lisoo are usually careful to keep at a respectful distance from each other and behind orbide shields which protect the whole of the body. But if battle is rare, murder and sudden death by ambush in the jungle are common."

Mo was surprised at how the sores healed—I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy (then years old) is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish."

Where Willie Was.

The professor (at the dinner table)—Oh, by the way, Mrs. Chopsticks, have you seen your little boy Willie lately?

Mrs. Chopsticks—No, professor, I have not seen him since 10 o'clock, and I can't imagine what has become of him. In fact, I am very much worried about him. Professor—Well, seeing Martha pour me out that glass of water just now reminded me of something that I had on my mind to tell you some time ago, but which unfortunately escaped my memory. It was just about 10 o'clock, I think, that I saw little Willie fall down the well.—Atlanta Constitution.

McClary's "Caloric" Gas Range has A "Safety" Lighter

Nine out of ten women are afraid to light the oven burners of an ordinary gas range But the owner of a "Caloric" never hesitates to light the oven burners. "Caloric" has a "Safety" Lighter, which is directly connected with oven burners. Just place lighted match at Safety Lighter, and turn on oven burners. A small flame first appears at the "Safety," and this small flame is immediately carried to the oven burners which are lighted instantly. No accumulation of gas or possibility of explosion on the "Caloric." The "Caloric" is not an ordinary range, but is "different" in many ways, as you can see for yourself by calling at

Mr. John Huston entertained the Debating Club at his home Tuesday evening last. Mr. Huston received his guests in his usual courteous and genial manner. He was attired in a suit of "all over franchise." The subject for debate: "Shall the franchise be extended to women," brought forth interesting papers and brilliant speeches from the following members: Mrs. Putnam, Mrs. Tothill, Mr. Huston for the affirmative; while Mrs. Lait, Mrs. Fleming, Wm. Grayson, L. C. Fleming, Geo Lait, Wm. Patterson, Mr. Ton, Rev. Fraser and Mr. Markel, and Mr. Darling supported the negative side. Mr. Putnam very ably filled the office of chairman. After a lively discussion a vote was taken which resulted in giving the affirmative side a majority of one. Then followed a pronouncing contest, the words being spelled by Mr. Fraser to which Mr. Darling, Mrs. Tothill and Wm. Putnam stood the longest. Later in the evening the visitors sat down to a sumptuous repast, none being able to sample all the menu. One gentleman was heard to say that he was sorry that he could not make himself larger, so we guess he did the "Best" he could. All the bill of fare was cooked, and served by the sterner sex. Messrs Darling and Tothill officiating, assisted by Meredith Huston of Medicine Hat. A very pleasant evening was brought to a close with music and singing of the National Anthem. The next meeting of the club will be in three weeks time.

Important Business Change

New Firm will Carry Out Many Improvements

Mr. J. H. Collier, who has found it necessary on account of ill health to retire from active business life for a time, has sold out and will leave in the course of a week or so for Banff and the coast. His vacation will be an extended one and during the summer he expects to pay a visit to Seattle during the days of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition.

The business has been purchased by Messrs. Geo. Howson and Earle Drake who now go into partnership. The new firm will carry out important alterations and improvements. A new large plate-glass show window will be put in on Toronto St., and also a corner door. Within the store will be fitted up with new fixtures and well-stocked with up-to-date men's furnishings.

The alterations will be such as to bring the Howson & Drake store into line with the best store buildings in the city and make it an ornament to the Toronto St. and Railway St. corner.

ADDITIONS TO THE C. P. R. LIBRARY

The additions made to the C. P. R. Library since the beginning of the year, by purchase, total, 150 books. Two-thirds have already been received the remaining one-third to be books published by the popular writers of the day. The following books and papers have been furnished by donation. The Hon. W. T. Finlay, the "Scientific American," with supplement for the year; Mrs. R. Twohey, "The Science of Railways," (14 vols.); The Canadian Westinghouse Co. Ltd., eleven charts in glass frames, of their air brakes.

It is the intention of the librarian as soon as the promised alterations and additions are made, to have placed in the reading room an enlarged photograph, the largest size possible, of the late Engineer Robt. Twohey, who was the founder of the library at the time when it was carried on as the Western Railwaymen's Club. There will be also a photograph of the wreaths placed upon the coffin of the late secretary of the club, sent from Winnipeg where he died. The secretary formerly held the position of C. P. R. head storekeeper here in Medicine Hat.

The Western Municipal News for March is to hand. It contains the official report of the 4th Convention of Union of Alberta Municipalities and is illustrated by excellent, half tone cuts of our fellow-townsmen, ex-Mayor Cousins and John T. Hall Hon. Pres. and Sec.-Treas., respectively of the Union.

Conservatives Nominate Candidate

Major F. O. Sissons the Unanimous Choice

The Conservatives of Medicine Hat city and district assembled on Friday evening last in the Conservative club-room, Main St., for the selection of a candidate to contest the constituency in the pending election. In fact so large was the turn-out that standing room was at a premium in the spacious hall—every corner of the constituency being represented. By actual count there were only 20 persons less at the nominating convention than attended the great (?) political meeting on Thursday night in the Opera House at which two members of the Rutherford government addressed the meeting. As there were a number of ladies present at the public meeting it is evident that the number of electors at the Conservative nominating convention (which is expected to excite the interest of only the most ardent of the party's following) was fully equal to the number in attendance, the contrast in enthusiasm displayed was much greater. Instead of the discouraging, depressing effect of Thursday night's meeting, the swing of victory was in the air. There was no question in the mind of anyone but that under the present circumstances, whoever would be the convention's choice would be the representative at Edmonton.

The meeting opened shortly after 8 o'clock with J. H. Collier, president of the Conservative Association in the chair. Before proceeding to the transaction of business, addresses were given by the following gentlemen Messrs. McDonald (Little Plume), Cousins, Zeiser (Irvine) Dawson (Irvine), and C. J. Wilson. The chairman having to retire, he called the Vice-President, Andrew Patterson, to the chair and the meeting proceeded to the selection of a candidate. The following were nominated:

F. O. Sissons, nominated by ex-Mayor Cousins.

W. G. Niblock, nominated by R. Collier.

G. H. McDonald, nominated by J. A. Trimble.

The nominations were then declared closed and the nominees called upon to address the meeting. Mr. Sissons declared his willingness to undertake the responsibility if it were the desire of the electors. G. H. McDonald expressed himself as not coveting the honor at the present time, not because he did not consider it an honor, nor because he had any doubts as to the result on March 22nd should he receive the nomination but because he was convinced that Major Sissons would make a better candidate. W. G. Niblock was unavoidably absent, and there being no one present who was qualified to speak for him there was no alternative but to put the question to a vote. When the ballots were counted, F. O. Sissons was declared to be the convention's choice. On motion of R. Collier the choice was made unanimous, and three ringing cheers rent the air on behalf of Mr. Sissons. The candidate again addressed the meeting, impressing upon those present the necessity of organization and work to win the election. The manner in which the meeting responded with cheers should leave no doubt in Mr. Sissons' mind as to his having a loyal and enthusiastic following behind him in the campaign.

During the course of the meeting reference was made to the rumors heard on the street regarding certain Conservatives who had been reported as declaring themselves in favor of Hon. W. T. Finlay. The gentlemen referred to were present and emphatically denied the rumor. Not only was in untrue but they could give the names of Liberals who had declared that they would support any Conservative candidate, on account of Mr. Finlay's indifference to the needs of the constituency. Many of these were present at the meeting.

Important Business Change

New Firm will Carry Out Many Improvements

Mr. J. H. Collier, who has found it necessary on account of ill health to retire from active business life for a time, has sold out and will leave in the course of a week or so for Banff and the coast. His vacation will be an extended one and during the summer he expects to pay a visit to Seattle during the days of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition.

The business has been purchased by Messrs. Geo. Howson and Earle Drake who now go into partnership. The new firm will carry out important alterations and improvements. A new large plate-glass show window will be put in on Toronto St., and also a corner door. Within the store will be fitted up with new fixtures and well-stocked with up-to-date men's furnishings.

The alterations will be such as to bring the Howson & Drake store into line with the best store buildings in the city and make it an ornament to the Toronto St. and Railway St. corner.

The ad. of the new firm will appear in next week's papes.

ADDITIONS TO THE C. P. R. LIBRARY

The additions made to the C. P. R. Library since the beginning of the year by purchase, total, 150 books. Two-thirds have already been received the remaining one-third to be books published by the popular writers of the day. The following books and papers have been furnished by donation. The Hon. W. T. Finlay, the "Scientific American," with supplement for the year; Mrs. R. Twohey, "The Science of Railways," (14 vols.); The Canadian Westinghouse Co. Ltd., eleven charts in glass frames, of their air brakes.

It is the intention of the librarian as soon as the promised alterations and additions are made, to have placed in the reading room an enlarged photograph, the largest size possible, of the late Engineer Robt. Twohey, who was the founder of the library at the time when it was carried on as the Western Railwaymen's Club. There will be also a photograph of the wreaths placed upon the coffin of the late secretary of the club., sent from Winnipeg where he died. The secretary formerly held the position of C. P. R. head storekeeper here in Medicine Hat.

The Western Municipal News for March is to hand. It contains the official report of the 4th Convention of Union of Alberta Municipalities and is illustrated by excellent half tone cuts of our fellow-townsman, ex-Mayor Cousins and John T. Hall Hon. Pres. and Sec. Treas., respectively of the Union.

Two grass-hoppers were picked up on the open prairie on Sunday afternoon.

The second butterfly of the season was caught by W. Woodhouse on Friday afternoon. It was of the large white species.

J. M. Cooper of Norton attended the Conservative Convention in Medicine Hat and spent a few days in the city.

Jas. Canty and Frank S. Jackson of Medicine Hat visited at the Dominion home one day last week.—Swift Current Sun.

A presentation of acase of pipes and cigar holder was made to Mr. W. N. Adsit last Saturday afternoon, by his old colleagues in the city hall, just before his retirement from the treasurership of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hopper of Newdale, Man., spent Saturday and Sunday with S. T. Hopper on their return from a two months' visit to the coast. Mr. Hopper purchased a five acre plot in Chilliwhack, B. C., and may decide to make his home there later on.

Mrs. Hopper, Sr., is visiting her son, S. T. Hopper, Mgr., Union Bank of Canada, having spent the winter in Vancouver and is on her way back to Brandon, Men.

Rev. A. C. Farrell will take the missionary anniversary at Lethbridge Methodist Church, next Sunday. The Rev. Robt. Ross of Walsh will occupy his pulpit here morning and evening.

D. Milne spent last week in Winnipeg.

The meeting of the Women's Literary Club which was to be held on Monday evening next has been postponed till Thursday evening.

Mr. H. Garlough, Sr., of Eagle Butte was in the City of Friday.

Timber wolves are attacking the cattle in the Cypress Hills district. One animal was killed last week, a rider coming upon three large wolves immediately afterwards. Four other cattle were bitten.

W. H. Turpin made a business trip to Calgary on Tuesday evening last. He was accompanied by Mrs. Turpin.

Rev. A. McLaren attended a meeting of the Presbytery in Calgary last week.

Mrs. C. J. Wilson and child arrived in the city on Wednesday and will take up residence at 211 Main St.

The surveyors of the Southern Alberta Land Co., were inthe field last week making a survey for the new electric railway to run out of the city. They find that the line can be taken up on to the bench across the river on a one per cent grade. The line will run from the C. P. R. depot along South Railway St. to the Esplanade along Fourth Ave., across the traffic bridge, thence down as far as Police Point.

Mr. J. J. Hourigan came into the city with his family last week from Minnedosa, Man. Mr. Hourigan will take charge of the grocery department of the D. Milne Co.

SPECIAL PRIZE

A trophy will be given by Mr. B. E. Souch for the first, Y. M. C. member to come in in the Rosh Race. It will take the form of a silver cup.

First Liberal Meeting

A Very Tame Affair

The attendance at the opening meeting of the Liberal campaign on Thursday last was disappointing. At 8 o'clock, the hour for which the opening had been announced, there was only a very small showing, but as the evening went on the audience increased until over one half the seats were taken up.

The chair was occupied by Dr. Boyd who, after a few remarks on the political situation, and an expression of thanks to the Y. M. C. who had been kind enough to chance the night of their entertainment, he introduced the first speaker of the evening the Hon. W. T. Finlay.

Mr. Finlay devoted himself to the discussion of local questions, such as the bridge, which he claimed he had been the means of getting for Medicine Hat, the expenditure of $25,000 to be made south of the city in the near future, in bridge work and the preparation of roads. "I am going to get an experimental farm," he continued after enumerating the public works which the government had in the past or would in the future, undertake in this district. In this city we had land on which could be grown fall wheat. The experimental farm would be started within two months and left in the hands of Professor Campbell for five years. Mr. Finlay then went on to discuss the question of mixed farming which, he believed, should be taken up in this district. Among the other works of the Government to be undertaken this year were a $50,000 pork packing plant at Edmonton and a courthouse at Medicine Hat.

Hon. C. W. Cross, the attorney-general, opened with a congratulatory reference to the wonderful growth of the town since he was last here two years ago. He was glad to have an opportunity to speak in behalf of Mr. Finlay. Going on to deal with the present political situation the speaker expressed regret that the party spirit entered into the local legislature. He believed that the government had treated Liberals and Conservatives alike in Alberta. Mr. Cross then reviewed the course of events which had led to the government's decision to build a telephone system and eventually to buy out the Bell Co., for $25,000. Manitoba he said had followed their example the following year paying however, ten times the figure. The Rutherford government built the first government owned and operated system of telephones in Canada. The principle of public ownership was confirmed by action and no two towns in the Dominion realized its value, as making for cheapness and efficiency as did Edmonton and Medicine Hat.

The taxation of C. P. R. lands was dealt with, Mr. Cross contending that the Rutherford government had compelled the company to pay over $200,000 into the provincial exchequer, and that proceedings were being instituted and would be carried to the Privy Council, to exact taxes on the lands held by the railway for over twenty years.

The Workmen's Compensation Act was next handled, the minister attempting to explain away some of its alleged defects. In regard to the 30-foot building clause, he pointed out that it was not necessary for a man to fall 30 feet to get compensation. All that was necessary was that he should be working on a building 30 feet in height at the time of his accident. Then, as to unmarried men, the government's opponents had pointed to a clause in the measure which was supposed to cause discrimination against married men. In the case of an unmarried man without dependents, being killed during the course of his employment, the payment of funeral expenses would free his employers from further liability. A "dependent" might mean a parent, grandparent, half-brother, foster father, and so on ad infinitum. Therefore the clause objected to would only apply to men with no relatives in the world. Q. E. D.

Mr. Cross in conclusion pointed out that Medicine Hat had not been at all neglected in the matter of railways. One of the new lines would positively pass within 140 miles of this city, from which point it would be a simple matter to connect up, with a branch from here. In regard to the Southern Alberta Railway scheme, he had gone into the matter since coming to the city and would make representations to Mr. Rutherford, and the government and he had no doubt, that they would deal fairly with [illegible] as they had done with other parts of the province.

The lands question had nothing to do with provincial politics, but the present settlement seemed to be a pretty good bargain on our part.

Mr. Finlay had a few words to say about the railway policy. A local paper had blamed him for not getting a part of the 1,700 miles of railway built in Medicine Hat district. It was not, he believed, the business of members or the government to build railways, but of the community. The speaker would use his influence to get a guarantee of the bonds of the Southern Alberta Railway Company.

Electors are invited to visit the Conservative Club Rooms, Main St., and examine the campaign literature. The plank of the party platform referring to initiative, referendum and recall not being generally understood electors are referred to pages 10 and 11 of pamphlet entitled "A Progressive Policy."

DON'T BE FOOLED

One of the Liberal schemes to pull votes in Medicine Hat is by spreading rumors that several well-known Conservatives are going to vote for Mr. Finlay.

This is absolutely false as has has been found in every case investigated. The fact is that several prominent Liberals are going to vote against their party on account of the discrimination against us in railways and in the re-distribution. A number of former Liberals were enthusiastic members of the Conservative [illegible] Friday night.

Special Council Meeting

A special meeting of the council was held on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, there being present, the mayor and Aldermen Robertson, McKay, Morrow, Spencer, Penhale, and Howson.

The mayor stated in opening that the meeting was called for the purpose of getting the estimates for sewer extensions passed in order that the voting might take place on this and the sidewalk bylaw, and the court of revision be held, all on the same date.

W. McF. Evans brought up the matter of a petition from South Ry. St. property owners for sewer extension, to which he had secured the necessary number of signatures. The extension was included in the estimates after the latter had been presented by the engineer. The cost will be $1,000. Engineer Morrison's report was adopted on motion of Ald. Howson.

It was pointed out by the last named alderman that immediately on the passage of the bylaws a large number of laborers would be required on city work. It was desirable that this work should be provided at as early date as possible during the present mild weather it should be possible to carry out these extensions.

Some discussion of the gas question ensued, Ald. Morrow pointing out that a great increase in the flow at Bow Island had resulted from the continuation of bore operations. A similar result would probably be obtained here.

The following motion was then carried: "That tenders be called for the labor required for drilling 2,000 feet, more or less, gas well, 6 inches diameter, the city to supply machinery and piping; and also that tenders be called for the drilling of a 2,000 feet more or less, gas well, 6 inches diameter, the contractor supplying machinery and piping.

"Tenders to be called for in accordance with specifications to be drawn up by the city engineer."

IS THERE NO SCANDAL

The Liberal Press and Cabinet Ministers are fond of saying that there has been no breath of scandal in connection with the present Government. Will the Hon. W. T. Finlay and the Government deny:

(1) That a Government accountant refused to pay $130 over to an Edmonton man who had done nothing for it, and that a Cabinet Minister ordered silence?

(2) That a Cabinet Minister drew $2,900 out of the treasury on account and only repaid it at the end of the year just before an account had to be rendered; and that his method of repayment was simply to have another advance for $3,000.

(3) That the Hon. W. T. Finlay has charged up against his department, $25,000 which is accounted for only as "unforeseen and unprovided for," and that that money is being used for campaign purposes?

(4) That from $800 to $700 has been paid to most of the Liberal papers in Alberta, "to advance for work to be done later"?

(5) That only a few hours after the Ministers had decided upon a certain site for a court house in Edmonton, this site was sold for $17,500 and then turned over to the Government for $27,000 and that Cushing and Cross almost had a split over the deal?

(6) That Mr. Cushing refused to go into the House to answer questions regarding the University site and Rutherford had to do it: that the cheques for this site were not made out to the name on the voucher?

(7) That clerks in the Government's employ misappropriated $3,000 and $700, and one of them is still in the employ of the Government.

(8) That a cheque for $100 was paid to The Bulletin on Jan. 2nd, 1908, for advertising which was said to have run in December 1906; and that Rutherford O.K'd the bill?

(9) That these are only a few of the embarassing questions that can be asked the present Government which "has no scandal to answer for?"

Auditors' Report

Winnipeg, Man., 25th Feb., 1909—

To His Worship the Mayor and Council, City of Medicine Hat.

Gentlemen,

AUDIT

In accordance with instructions received from our Finance Committee, we have made a special audit of the accounts of your City for the two years ending 31st day of December, 1908, and have prepared statements for the year 1908, viz:—

1. General Balance Sheet.
2. Revenue and Expenditure.
3. Water Works Balance Sheet.
4. Water Works, Revenue and Expenditure.
5. Gas Department, Balance Sheet.
6. Gas Department, Revenue and Expenditure.
7. Statement of Debentures outstanding.
8. Statement of Debentures, authorized but not sold.

Which are in our opinion, correct statements of the affairs of the City, as shown by the books of the City, and as such have certified to their correctness.

ACCOUNTING

We have found that while the system of accounting may have answered the requirements of the City in the past, it does not do so now. A number of changes should be made, in order that a better record can be kept of the details of the various items that make up the expenditure of this City. In making the following recommendations, we have kept changes are now made must be of in view the fact, that whatever such a nature, as will not only cover the present requirements but also allow for expansion as the City grows.

ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTOR'S ROLLS

The City is at present using a combination loose leaf Assessment and Collector's Roll. As both of these rolls are valuable records, and as the mislaying or destruction of any part of them would be a serious [illegible] we always held that they should be in bound form. The combining of the two rolls in one book has many disadvantages, the principal one being that after the assessment has been made, the Court of Revision may make additions or reductions in the Assessor's values [illegible] shown in the roll. The Collector's Roll should not have any changes or alterations appearing in it, but should be a clean copy of the Assessment Roll after it has been confirmed by the Court of Revision. The various taxes should then be worked out and the Roll signed and proved, and by the time the Council meets [illegible] to allow of debate, should go through the books in the same way as any ordinary transaction and be noted on the roll against the property affected. But no change of any kind should be Council.

We would therefore recommend that after this year the rolls should be made except on the authority of the kept separate.

At the present time the Treasurer is material and supplies, and as these can be obtained at lower prices when purchased in quantities, the proper handling of material and accounting for it, is of great importance. We need hardly point out that unless a proper check is kept upon the stores, leakages are bound to occur, and the City may loose in one year as much, if not more, than it would have cost for the salary of a good store-keeper. It is also essential that all stores should be under lock and key and that only the storekeeper should have access to them, otherwise he cannot be held responsible. We have found that there is no proper check on the stores of the City, and that the records of the purchases and issues are very incomplete.

We would recommend that all stores be kept as far as possible in one building, that a storekeeper be appointed, and a set of proper store books opened, the latter to consist of Store Journal and Ledger, that no stores be issued except upon requisitions from the man in charge of the work, and that the party receiving the material must receipt for it.

PURCHASING AGENT

Some one person should be in charge of the ordering of all supplies for the City and no other employee should be allowed to obtain goods without such official order.

We would suggest that the storekeeper be the purchasing agent for the City, and that all orders for the purchase of supplies be issued by him upon requisitions approved by the Chairman of the Committee for whom the supplies are required. An official [illegible] sheets for carbon paper copy; all orders to be numbered consecutively. The number of the order should appear on all invoices, and invoices should be checked with the order book should be kept, with duplicate copy of the order, and the date received marked on the copy. If this is done, it will be almost impossible for duplicate payments to be made, and the City will be safe guarded against improper purchases.

CASH BOOKS

Besides the General or Treasurer's Cash Book, there should be kept supplementary Cash Books, for the Water Works Department, the Gas Department, and the Tax Collector; these should be ruled and headed for the various items that make up the receipts from any one of the various sources from which the City derives its revenue.

VOUCHER REGISTER

At the present time, the Treasurer is using the Synoptic System for the distribution of the City's Expenditure. This book, outside of the objection that it is loose leaf, is not at all suited for the purpose it is.

Platform of Conservative Candidate

A Platrorm that Will Win the Electors' Votes

To the Electors of the Constituency of Medicine Hat:—

Having been tendered the nomination of the Conservative party to contest this electorial district, I hereby solicit the vote and influence of the electors. Owing to the brief time allotted by the Government for the campaign it will be impossible for me to canvass the whole constituency personally; and I will be indebted to all electors who have the interests of the constituency at heart if they will carry on the campaign on my behalf as actively as possible. If elected I will consider it my first duty to further the interests of Medicine Hat and the surrounding country. I hereby solicit your vote on the following platform:—

1. The immediate construction of railways through those settled portions of the province which do not enjoy railway facilities or competition;

2. the introduction of the initiative or the power on the part of a specified percentage of the electors to originate legislation, and the referendum or the referring to the popular vote of initiative bills or of bills passed by the legislature when such reference is petitioned for by a specified percentage of duly qualified electors and the recall of the power on the petition of a specified percentage of the duly qualified electors to compel the resignation of any person occupying an elective office;

3. the surrender to the province of the public lands, mines, forests and other domain by the Dominion Government—full provincial autonomy;

4. support of legislation which will enable government aid to be granted toward the making of loans to settlers and workers at a low rate of interest or legislation along the lines of that enacted in this respect in Australia and New Zealand;

5. the construction of a thoroughly equipped agricultural college and the establishment of an experimental farm by the provincial government also instruction on agricultural subjects in the rural schools, and encouragement of teachers of such schools taking part of their normal training in the agricultural college;

6. the establishment of co-operative meat packing institutions;

7. the erection and maintenance by the government of initial elevators at leading points throughout the province;

8. adequate hail insurance by the government at the expense of the insured, and companies for that purpose permitted to engage in the business of hail insurance under such government supervision as will protect those who deal with them.

9. the construction at the cost of the province of a system of national highways traversing the settled portions of the province and the conferring upon local improvement districts of large borrowing powers with a view to encouraging the construction by them of roads connecting with such highways;

10. the management of the government telephone system to be taken from political control and placed in the hands of a commission, and that farmers who have government telephones in their houses be given free exchange in their market town;

11. the submission to the vote of the electors of the province the question of the total prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors in this province and to pass an act for said prohibition to the full extent of the provincial power in that respect if upon taking such a plebiscite 60 per cent. of the vote cast is in favor of such act;

12. the establishment of such additional Land Titles Offices as will remove the injustice now done to those who reside a great distance from the offices at Calgary and Edmonton;

13. the enacting of labor legislation aiming at a higher standard of comfort and living for the workers, and altering or adding to the following acts as follows:

(1) the coal mining act—

providing a proper and automatic safety clutch, preventing the falling of any cage upon the breaking of a rope or the failure of a break to operate;

(2) the compensation act—

(a) compulsory insurance by the employers;

(b) in the alternative—insurance by the government;

(c) the co-ordination of insurance by the employers and the government whereby the workers may have a guarantee of compensation and whereby the employers may be protected from insolvency in the case of disastrous accidents;

(d) the removal of the clause preventing compensation for accidents in or about any building not exceeding 30 feet in height;

(e) to include in said act provision for industrial diseases.

14. power to be taken by the government to guarantee the payment of bonds issued by school districts so that money may be borrowed upon the same at a lower rate of interest than would be exacted without such guarantee;

15. protest against the government's system of taxing leased land for the support of the provincial university.

Mock Parliament

Government Narrowly Escape Defeat

Not since the opening of the session has the visitors' gallery been so well filled as it was on Wednesday evening when the debate on the Woman's Suffrage Bill took place, and the number of ladies present was especially worthy of note. The referendum had aroused wide-spread interest and both parties had made an effort to mass their full strength.

The arguments pro and con were ably presented by Mr. Ware (who introduced the bill) and Messrs. Patmore and Godden on the Government side and Messrs. Patterson, Hoffman and Frost on the Opposition benches.

The Opposition had planned to bring about a Government defeat and have since been publicly accused of buying over prominent Government members. The moment of opportunity was, however, allowed to slip by, and at the hour of adjournment the Premier was on his feet talking out a vote of want of confidence moved by his rival leader from Prince Albert.

Parliament will sit again on Thursday evening when interesting developments are impending. The speaker takes the chair at 8 o'clock.

The referendum on the suffrage bill resulted in its approval by the electors.

Police Court

On Saturday morning John Pierre appeared before Mr. Kealy on information laid against him by one, Clarke, of the Medicine Hat Hide & Fur Co.

It appeared from the evidence given that Pierre had sold 5 sacks of (supposedly) horse hair to the complainant. The latter stated that in only one sack was horse hair to be found (weight about 1 pound) and that all the rest were filled with rags. After two hours' spent in threshing out the evidence the magistrate dismissed the case.

Sarah Hanke charged with the theft of a lady's night gown and two blouses, was brought before Mr. Kealy on Saturday. She was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

ATHLETICS

THE ROAD RACE

A meeting of the donors of prizes to the Road Race was held on Tuesday, March 2, in the Court room, there being present: Messrs. W. Turpin, S. T. Hopper, W. L. Amy, N. Spencer, E. S. Martin, Phil. McKinnon, C. Rossiter, C. J. Wilson, M. A. Brown. W. Turuin was appointed chairman and M. A. Brown secretary pro tem. The chairman then explained the reason for the meeting being called together and outlined the route (about 6 miles), to be followed on Good Friday by our local athletes. Every competitor, it was decided, must be an amateur in good standing and resident in Medicine Hat during the 12 months previous to his entering the contest. All contestants must be over 16 years of age.

Entries will be received by the secretary on or before 8 o'clock in the evening of the 26th of this month. The race will commence at 3 p.m., on Friday, April the 9th.

The following appointments were made:

Permanent Secretary—M. A. Brown.
Managing committee—Messrs. Turpin, Spencer and Martin.
Committee on prizes—Messrs. Hopper, McKinnon and Amy.

Messrs Hopper, Amy and Rossiter were also appointed a committee to look into the standing of all competitors. They will report on March 26th at 8 p.m. All applications must be made to them.

THE COURSE

The course will be:—Out to Toronto St. to the top of the hill by way of flags to trail, out to race track, and round the track a sufficient number of times to bring the distance to as near 6 miles as possible.

THE SALVATION ARMY

MR. MAGRATH'S IDEA

(Toronto Saturday Night)

Canadian resources for Canadian development was the key-note of a speech recently made in the House of Commons by Mr. C. A. Magrath, of Medicine Hat, Alberta during the debate on the Ontario and Michigan Power Company Bill. Without at all going into the merits of the proposed measure, which has been sent to a standing committee for investigation, it is worth while calling attention to the principle enunciated by Mr. Magrath not on account of its novelty, but because of its importance. People are apt to forget the needs of the future, when they are invited to give of their present superabundance for the supply of a neighboring country. This is of course a wise business move, so long as the interest of the Dominion which is to be, are not imperilled. But as Mr. Magrath pointed out, it is unwise to send power abroad to develop another country before we know whether or not we have enough for our own purposes for all time. And it is not selfishness but prudence which sees to it that vested interests will have no grounds to object, when Canadians wish to use Canadian power for Canadian purposes of development.

May Wipe it off the Earth

Few people here know that you can cure that dread American disease, Rheumatism, with just common, every day drugs found in any drug store. The prescription is so simple that any one can prepare it at home at small cost. It is made up as follows: Get from any good prescription pharmacy Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. These are all simple ingredients, making an absolutely harmless home remedy at little cost.

Rheumatism, as every one knows, is symptom of deranged kidneys. It is a condition produced by the failure of the kidneys to properly filtar or strain from the blood the uric acid and other "mat ter, which, if not eradicated, either in the urine or through the skin pores, remains in the blood, decomposes and, forms about the joints and muscles, causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

This prescription is said to be a splendid healing, cleansing and invigorating tonic to the kidneys, and gives almost immediate relief in all forms of bladder and urinary troubles and backache.

City Council.

The regular meeting of the council was held on Monday evening the 1st inst., in the city hall, there being present: the Mayor, Aldermen Robertson, McKay, Morrow, Spencer, Collier, Howson, Penhale.

Fire Chief Hatcher wrote accepting the position of fire chief.

A communication was received from the secretary of the Union of Canadian Municipalities calling attention to the work of the Union and to the importance of the coming convention. Payment of the annual fee of $15 was requested, this being granted by the Council.

After a short discussion, an offer by the Canada Foundry Co., of a settlement with the city was accepted. The matter will be closed by the city paying to the company the sum of $150, a compromise arrived at after a thorough investigation by the Mayor, Alds. Howson and Collier, and City Engineer Morrison and the repcesentative of the firm.

The Dominion Securites Co. wrote regarding debentures recently bought by them. The final details of the sale are in the hands of the city's and the company's solicitors.

W. A. Henderson & Co wrote offering their services as quarterly auditors of the city's books at a salary of $600 per annum. Ald. Penhale's motion, that the council cancel their agreement with Mr. Krauss found no seconder, the mayor remarking that it would be very unfair to take this course. On Ald. Morrow's motion, seconded by Ald. Spencer, the communication was filed.

The resignation of N. O. Lott, driver in the fire brigade was accepted.

Fire Chief Hatcher wrote advising the council that A. Buchanan had been in the service of the city for twelve months and was therefore entitled to an increase in salary. Referred to fire, water and light committee.

Industrial Realty Ltd. wrote asking for an adjustment of the taxes on the land in Industrial Place held for the city under an agreement. It was suggested that the city's proportionate share was $271, that of the company $440. The original agreement with the city was made in May, 1907. Matter referred to the city solicitor.

A claim was submitted by W. G. Rowe for $5 damage sustained to property by flood from one of the hydrants. It appeared from the engineer's report that the bursting of the pipe was purely an accident. The claim was considered a reasonable one and was granted.

W. E. Porter wrote enclosing copies of testimonials and asking that a reason be given for the city's action in dispensing with his services when the changes in the management of the public works department were made. During the sever years which he had spent in the service of the city no complaint had ever been made in regard to his work; but although the other employees had been kept on he had not been offered a position. The testimonials were from F. G. Forster, T. Hutchinson, A. O. Hawthorne (ex-Mayors), and W. P. Morrison (city engineer). The Mayor pointed out that the office formerly held by Mr Porter had been abolished, the engineer taking charge of this department. Ald. Penhale rose to protest against the course taken in this matter. Seven years ago Mr. Porter had given up a good position with the C. P. R. The city authorities at that time had entertained some doubts as to the advisability of taking him from a position which presented so many opportunities for advancement but eventually they had come to the decision that he was the most suitable man they could lay their hands on. These facts the present council appeared to have lost sight of, and now they kicked a faithful servant out of doors. Mr. Porter had been very unjustly dealt with. The Mayor replied that it was "up to the city engineer." This remark brought a rejoinder from Ald. Penhale to the effect that he had asked Mr. Morrison the reason for Mr. Porter being

Our Ideals

In taking up the duties which devolve upon an editor of such an influential journal as "The Times," it is not without a deep sense of a newspaper's obligation to the public which support it. The new editor realizes his responsibility in this connection and will endeavor to present to Times readers each week the news of the day—not only local but also provincial, and national. We shall also aim to make it an influence on every question of interest to the community—political or social. The able work of our predecessor in booming Medicine Hat, we shall aim to carry on with the same earnestness as has characterized the paper in the past.

The Campaign

The attitude of the Rutherford government to Medicine Hat's interests leaves no hesitancy in our mind as to where everyone should stand in the pending provincial election. We deem it absolutely essential, if the interests of our city and the surrounding community are to receive any consideration that a Conservative member shall be returned on March 22nd. The treatment we have received in the matter of proposed railways and in representation in the House imperatively demands this, and we will be disappointed if the electors of the constituency do not so decide.

It must be confessed that the government has a genius for map making. It takes only a casual glance at the map of Alberta's new constituencies to convince one that the petty politician has been doing the gerrymander act. The district north of Red Deer gets 22 seats, while that to the south is given only 19. The full significance of this can be seen when we remember that at the last Dominion election Southern Alberta sent a Conservative deputation to Ottawa, while the north voted Liberal. It is estimated that about two-thirds of the population of the province south of Red Deer—and as someone has laconically remarked, about seven-eights of the intelligence. Yet this two-thirds gets only 19 seats, while the other third gets 22. This is discrimination with a vengeance. Electors, how are you going to answer it on March 22?

The finest product of the map maker's art is to be seen in the new electoral division of Rocky Mountain. This constituency is about 150 miles long and at one point 12 miles wide, its average width being less than 20 miles. Will any fair-minded elector deny that it was political expediency that conceived such a monstrosity as this? Evidently the intention was to make it include all the coal mining towns near the Rockies, where the doctrines of socialism find numerous adherents. Is a government capable of legislating such a freak as this constituency is, to be entrusted with greater affairs of state?

Our esteemed M. P. for this constituency—Mr. C. A. Magrath— has been doing some effective work in Parliament in connection with the Conmee Power Bill. The correspondent for the Toronto News says: "From the practical standpoint of killing the bill, the fatal blow was struck by a new Conservative member, Mr. C. A. Magrath, of Medicine Hat, Alta. Mr. Magrath's opinion carries exceptional weight on questions of this sort as he has been intimately associated with the irrigation movement near Lethbridge, and is an eminent authority on the subject of the conservation of natural resources, especially of water." Mr. Magrath objected to the policy of thus disposing of our water-powers, and drew attention to the way in which American capitalists are gaining control of the water-powers of the future. He could not see the object of sending power abroad to develop another country before we know whether we have enough for our own purposes for all time. The Dominion as a whole is thus indebted to Mr. Magrath because of the effective work done for the conservation of our natural resources."

Mr. Cross—Quibbler

It was no matter of surprise that Hon. Mr. Cross, the quibbler failed to rouse any enthusiasm in his audience on Thursday night. A gathering of only 90 at the opening of the meeting, increased to only 147 at its most, or less than half the capacity of the Opera House, is not conducive to raising the ardor of a speaker to the extent of imparting it to his hearers. It was in fact the poorest political meeting held in Medicine Hat for many years and the Liberals feel correspondingly gloomy. Never a shout, only an occasional weak hand-clap, is enough to make any party feel glum.

Cross displayed himself as the champion quibbler—but without the effect of the jollies of the notorious Duncan Marshall. Mr. Cross' prize exhibition was in connection with the Workmen's Compensation Act. By the way, it is not generally known that as first introduced this act was a big jolly on the workmen. Mr. Robertson, the leader of the Opposition drew attention to this and by his fight introduced the details that make it worth anything. Mr. Cross set out to prove that employers would not discriminate between married men as being more risky to employ, and read extracts from the act to show that there is not a possible chance of an employer escaping the $1,800 payment by paying only the $200 to single men. He read from the act to show that if a single man has a father, mother, sister, brother, grandfather, grandmother, etc., etc., etc., he draws the same as a married man. But Mr. Cross was very careful not to draw attention to the fact that, in order for a single man man to draw $1,800 indemnity by his death, some of these relations must be "dependent upon him." He elaborated very wittily (in effort) about how ridiculous it is to suppose that any single man has not such a relative. As a matter of fact not half the young men in the west have a relative "dependent upon them." Most of the young men out here have broken away from home to carve out their own fortunes, and it is safe to say that the majority of them are working their way for themselves.

As a matter of fact, if this clause in the act means nothing, why include it?

Then the Cabinet Minister undertook to laugh at the idea that a workman has to fall 30 feet to receive compensation. But he did not dwell on the fact that his accident has to occur in a 30-foot high building to draw compensation. This detail is most ridiculous when examined. Think for a moment how many 30-foot buildings there are in Medicine Hat—in Alberta, in fact. In this city there are only three or four structures which would qualify. Think of it. Why should a building be 30 feet high to protect a workman?

The English act upon which ours is supposed to be based cut out the 30-foot clause some years ago.

If a workman is injured in a 29-foot building he draws nothing. Such a bright act!

The Member's Defence

And this is the answer our member expects Medicine Hat to consider sufficient to explain his indifference to the railway needs of the city: "I do not think it is the duty of a member to get railways for his constituency unless they are asked for."

What under the sun has Medicine Hat been after for years but more railways? What did we have a special delegation wait on the Government for a couple of weeks ago but more railways? What is a member for but to determine largely for himself what his constituency requires? Was there ever such a weak defence for our member, the Cabinet Minister who did nothing to assist the delegation at Edmonton, who raised no voice in protest to the utter contempt shown the city and district by our member?

After he had made the above explanation (?) Hon. Mr. Finlay found it necessary to hedge on it. He knew that the Southern Alberta Land Company has asked for support for their railway from Medicine Hat to Calgary and had been refused. So he tried to get out of this by saying that if the plans had been so minute at Edmonton as he found them to be here he felt sure they would have considered them; that he and Mr. Cross had examined them the day of the meeting and he thought the city could depend upon guaranteed bonds for this railway next year.

Promises—always promises, and nothing more!

If it was lack of detail in the plans why did not our member tell the Land Company's representative? Did any other constitutency present detailed plans? Of course they didn't because every delegation simply wanted railways, and surely it was a matter of prudence to leave the location largely in the hands of the government who was putting up the security.

The fact is that the Hon. Mr. Finlay knows he has not a leg to stand upon in the railway matter. He knows that his fellow ministers have simply ignored him and the district, and if this district returns him again, the same contempt will be shown for us.

And then the Hon. Mr. Cross, the boss of the Cabinet, calmly tells us that there is a railway within 140 miles of us and we can build to it if we like. Surely our thanks are due him. Not a corner of the constituency gets a mile of railway and every other constituency in Alberta profits.

Note and Comment

Hon. C. W. Cross has given us the comforting assurance that the bonds have been guaranteed for a railway not more than 140 miles from us. That ought to make votes in Medicine Hat—for the other side. A line "could be" built to it, he quietly informed us. Remarkable complacency.

The level crossing fatalities continue to decrease our population—Brandon and Montreal having recently furnished their quota.

When will an indifferent government stir itself in the interests of the people? Is human life of so little value today that we can afford to thus sacrifice it? The total death list for last year in Canada by the railroads was nearly 500 people.

Tortured by Rheumatism?

Zam-Buk Will Give You Ease!

Just at this season when the cold dry winter is giving way to a milder yet more humid season, the germs of rheumatism, sciatica and allied ailments come upon their victims with renewed force.

As soon as you feel any deep-seated pain in the joints, back, wrists or elsewhere, place a liberal supply of Zam-Buk on the fingers or on the palm of the hand, and rub it well into the part affected. The penetrating power of this embrocation-balm is exceedingly great, and once having reached the seat of the pain removes it speedily. It also ends the stiffness which is so unpleasant.

Frequent rubbings of the afflicted parts with Zam-Buk will not only drive out all pain, reduce swellings, etc., but will strengthen the skin tissues and enable them to resist cold and damp. The following case will show how Zam-Buk brings ease to those tortured by rheumatism:

Mr. P. G. Wells, of 388, Ogden St., Fort William, Ont., says:—"Following my duties in attending to passenger trains I often get wet through with rain and steam (the latter in winter). This with hours of duty in icehouses in summer was no doubt the cause of my contracting rheumatism in both knees, left arm and shoulder. This got so bad that I could no longer work, and was laid off on three different occasions for several weeks, during which I was under the treatment of my doctor. I seemed to get little if any better, no matter what I tried, and this was my state when Zam-Buk was recommended to me. I laid in a supply, and to my great joy it began to cure me. I rubbed it well in every night, and when a few boxes had been used, found I was again free from pain and stiffness from rheumatism. I have had no more trouble from the disease and unhesitatingly recommend Zam-Buk to all who suffer from rheumatism, muscular stiffness, etc."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for eczema, ring-worm, ulcers, abscesses, piles, bad-leg, suppurating wounds, cuts, burns bruises, chapped hands, cold cracks, and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. per box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

Have you any heavy teaming to do, or buildings to move? If so, see A. P. BURNS.

EAT SAUSAGES OR NEW BREAD

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangle will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

allowed to go. Mr. Morrison had replied that the city could not afford the salary or something to that effect. "I said: 'There's someone behind you in this.' 'If you are going to use Mr. Morrison as a catspaw, I'm going to know about it,' continued the alderman. The Mayor asked whether these insinuations were directed against him, whereupon Ald. Penhale replied that he made no insinuations, but he believed there was someone at the back of the engineer, influencing him in the matter of the engaging of employees. Alds. McKay and Spencer thought some answer should be given to Mr. Porter. The latter had proved himself very capable in the handling of matters concerned with the water and gas systems of the city. Ald Collier did not think the testimonials submitted were intended to come before the city council. The appointments had been left in the engineer's hands and he alone was responsible. Ald. Penhale thought it would be a good plan to put a number of people under oath to find out whether influence had been brought to bear upon Mr. Morrison. He moved that some reason be given Mr. Porter by the engineer for his dismissal. Ald. McKay seconded the motion which was lost.

A motion by Ald. Spencer that the secretary-treasurer write to Mr. Porter informing him that the matter of employment was now in the hands of the city engineer, was afterwards carried.

D. G. White wrote anent the claim of Watson and Haynes for damages to horse and rig. It had been discovered that the defect in the culvert was visible some time before the occurrence of the accident. Mr. Mahaffy stated that at the time the claim was first made the full circumstances had not been given. The matter was referred to the commissioner of public works.

A petition was received from S. Fawcett and others for the construction of a sidewalk on the south side of Montreal Street from Third Avenue to East Road Allowance. The secretary treasurer had discovered that the number of qualified ratepayers whose signatures were attached were not of the required proportion. J. J. Lait and W. Baldwin had no direct interest in the property. Referred back to petitioners who will be advised to obtain the required number of signatures that the matter may be taken up next year.

A petition signed by W. McEvans and others, asking for sewer extensions was also short of the necessary number of signatures.

A report from Fire Chief Hatcher was received in which a number of recommendations based on the advice of Fire Chief Smart, of Calgary were made. The following are some of the principal recommendations: (a) hiring of three teams at fire station, public works committee to be charged up with the use of one team and one man to be employed in the work of their department; (b) four fully paid firemen. Additions to city bylaws covering the following were desired: (a) fire escapes; (b) fire scuttles; (c) doors of all public buildings to open outward; (d) all aisles in the latter to be kept clear of chairs or other obstructions; (e) regulations in regard to the operation of moving picture machines; (f) bylaw regulating duties and powers of fire chief; (g) schedule of wages for firemen, maximum and minimum; (h) set of bylaws in regard to fire matters to be drafted. Notice of introduction of these desired bylaws was given by Ald. Robertson.

In their report on the visit of Mr. Smart to the city the fire committee expressed their appreciation of the interest the Calgary fire chief had shown in every detail of the local system. The secretary-treasurer was instructed on recommendation of the committee to write to Mayor Jamieson thanking him for the courtesy extended to this city.

Health committee recommended the appointment of a sanitary inspector. Report adopted, inspector to be advertised for.

On motion of Ald. Collier the council decided to return to the Ladies' Aid of St. John's Church the $5 license fee recently paid. In connection with this matter Ald. Spencer stated that the council which passed the license bylaw had decided that churches which brought in entertainments of this kind should be charged a license on entertainments given in the opera house it was only fair that the churches when they came into competition with the regular entertainers should do the same. It appeared to Ald. Penhale that before long the opera house would close up, and the churches have all the city's amusements in their hands.

A communication from the attorney-general demanding the payment of $17, expenses of a prisoner sent to Lethbridge penetentiary under a city bylaw, was laid on the table.

Ald. Howson gave notice of introduction of a bylaw affecting water rates.

Ald. Morrow introduced bylaw for the raising of $20,000 for extensions to the natural gas system, to increase the flow in the existing plant, and for the purchase of a boring outfit. This, and a bylaw to raise $36,000 for further extensions to the waterworks system, were considered in committee of the whole and passed their second reading. The voting on these bylaws will take place on the 26th inst.

Some discussion took place on a communication from the city solicitor regarding lots 6, 7, 8 and 9, block 21, on which options had been obtained. The acquirement of these lots would make it possible for the spur track to Industrial Place to be brought in from the east. Engineer Macleod of the C. P. R. had stated that this arrangement would be better for the railway and cheaper for the city. Ald. Howson wished to know whether the city intended to purchase these lots before they knew whether the sewer pipe company would make good their part of the bargain. Personally he thought the city should have a little more assurance from the company than had hitherto been given. Ald. Morrow was of the opinion that the city should "go rather slow" with the company, while Ald. Spencer thought that a deposit should have been made when the agreement was signed. Mr. Mahaffy pointed out that the city was in duty bound and he believed also legally bound to build the spur track in accordance with the agreement with Bennett & Hamilton.

The report of the special auditors was read and adopted. This will be printed in full in the local papers.

NERVOUS DEBILITY
Thousands of young and middle aged men are annually swept to a premature grave through EARLY INDISCRETIONS, EXCESSES AND BLOOD DISEASES. If you have any of the following symptoms consult us before it is too late. Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes, with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, dreams and losses, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, weak manhood, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, sore throat etc.

BLOOD POISONS Blood Poisons are the most prevalent and most serious diseases. They sap the very life blood of the victim, and unless entirely eradicated from the system may affect the future generation. Beware of Mercury. It only suppresses the symptoms—OUR NEW METHOD cures them.

OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT alone can cure you, and make a man of you. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches, and ulcers disappear, the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency vanish, the eye becomes bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical, and vital systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. Dont let quacks and fakirs rob you of your hard earned dollars. We will cure you or no pay.

SKIN DISEASES

These troublesome afflictions are caused wholly by bad blood and an unhealthy state of the system, and can be easily cured by the wonderful blood cleansing properties of

Burdock Blood Bitters

Many remarkable cures have been made by this remedy, and not only have the unsightly skin diseases been removed, and a bright clear complexion been produced, but the entire system has been renovated and invigorated at the same same time.

SALT RHEUM CURED.

Mrs. John O'Connor, Burlington, N.S., writes:—"For years I suffered with Salt Rheum. I tried a dozen different medicines, but most of them only made it worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and before I had taken half a dozen doses I could see a change so I continued its use and now I am completely cured. I cannot say too much for your wonderful medicine."

Adjustable Orifice Provides for All Degrees of Gas Pressure

With the aid of the little wrench shown in illustration the orifice on the "Caloric" solid air mixer can be adjusted to allow just as little or as much gas to enter the burners as best suits your requirements. This adjustable orifice thus provides for all degrees of gas pressure. And, by mixing 25 per cent. more air with the gas than is consumed by ordinary burner, the heat is greatly increased and the gas correspondingly saved. Many more big features of the "Caloric" will be explained by

Inspector Parker and Constable Capstick visited the Josephburg detachment of Mounted Police on Saturday.

On Saturday afternoon, as Mr. Simon Heather was driving home from Irvine with his daughter Katie and Miss Paysant, the whiffle-tree on one side came loose, the horses took fright and ran away, running for over half a mile, dashing from the barbed-wire fence on one side of the road to that on the other. At every turn, the occupants of the democrat expected to be thrown out. The pole fell on the ground and broke in three pieces, when one of the horses began to kick. Finally, Mr. Heather gained control of the horses. The suspense had been so great and so long in duration, that it was several minutes before they could believe that the damage was no greater than the broken pole. Miss Heather and Miss Payzant were obliged to wait by the roadside until Mr. Heather walked home with the horses and returned with another conveyance.

MANY DON'T KNOW

HEART AFFECTED.

More People Than are Aware of It Have Heart Disease.

"If examinations were made of everyone, people would be surprised at the number of persons walking about suffering from heart disease."

This startling statement was made by a doctor at a recent inquest. "I should not like to say that heart disease is as common as this would imply," said the expert, "but I am sure that the number of persons going about with weak hearts must be very large."

"Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that kills them that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is made apparent."

"But nothing ordinarily heart weakness, and disease, is more prevalent nowadays. I should think that the stress of living, the wear and rush of modern business life, have a lot to do with heart trouble."

There is no doubt but that this is correct, and we would strongly advise any one suffering in any way from heart trouble to try a course of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

The School Board

At a special meeting of the school board held on Tuesday evening the plans for the new high school building were considered. Mr. W. T. Williams, the architect, who drew up the original plans was present and explained that owing to the increased price of material the cost of construction, estimated in the first instance at $36,000, would probably come to $45,000. After a long discussion of Mr. Williams' plans it was moved by Messrs. J. Kennedy and D. G. White that these be adopted.

It was decided however, that before Mr. Williams' plans are adopted Mr. Williams shall make an estimate of the cost of construction under present conditions.

PEOPLE SAID SHE HAD

CONSUMPTION

Was in Bed for Three Months.

Found here Mrs. W. G. Bunk, Beaverbridge, Ont., was cured (and also her little boy) by the use of

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

She writes: "I thought I would write and let you know the benefit I have received through the use of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A few years ago I was so badly troubled with my lungs people said I had Consumption and that I would not live through the fall. I had two doctors attending me and they were very much alarmed about me. I was in bed three months and when I got up I could not walk, so had to go on my hands and knees for three weeks, and my limbs seemed of no use to me. I gave up all hopes of ever getting better when I happened to see in R.R.R. Almanac that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was good for weak lungs. I thought I would try a bottle and by the time I had used it I was a lot better, so got more and it made a complete cure. My little boy was also troubled with weak lungs and it cured him. I keep it in the house all the time and would not be without it for anything."

Price 25 cents at all dealers. Beware of imitations of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Ask for it and insist on getting the original. Put up in a yellow wrapper and three pine trees the trade mark.

The Crisis

"The best laid schemes of mice and men
Gang aft agley."

Even over the schemes of His Majesty's Loyal Opposition there is no special providence, as that ambitious body of politicians learnt to their chagrin last Wednesday night.

The debate had been long, the discussion keen and even embittered. In mutual recrimination the parties had many times lost sight of the larger issues at stake. On both sides of the House members had shown deep concern about the mote in their brother's eye across the floor but the beam that was in their own they wot not of. As the hour for adjournment approached, jaded ministers left their seats; one by one plain members followed their example But in the serried ranks of the Opposition not a break was to be seen. The Government situation had become desperate when the member for Kootenay resumed his seat after an attack upon the principle of the Bill. It was the moment of opportunity of the Opposition coup d'etat. Simultaneously the leaders of the two great parties rose to address the chair. The Premier obtained the floor. A margin of five minutes remained before the adjournment hour. The Premier talked. The Opposition groaned in spirit. Two minutes remained when the Opposition leader rose, and in a few pithy sentences moved a vote of want of confidence in the Government. The motion was seconded by a colleague. Once more the Premier had the floor. He talked. Determined to bring about the desired division the Opposition called for a vote on the chairman's ruling. The sands were running out. Again the Premier talked, and even as he talked the hour struck. The chairman left the chair.

Then did the ministerial remnant hurl across the floor one taunting and unparliamentary epithet, as the phalanx of disappointed office-hunters broke up in confusion—"Stung."

Mr. Souch has already taken three optical courses and had six years experience in optical work and should be in a position to do as good work in this line as anyone this side of Toronto.

Special services were held in the Methodist Church on Sunday last in the interests of the Missionary Society. The congregation is aiming at $1,200 this year for missions and prospects are bright for reaching this high figure. In the morning the pastor addressed the children explaining the work of the Society. In the evening Mr. T. Humphries—a prominent Presbyterian layman of Calgary occupied the pulpit.

The Y. M. C. performance in the Opera House on Friday realized $75 for the General hospital.

The Calgary Herald of the 8th inst states that Billy Hamilton of Medicine Hat will be manager of the Calgary base-ball team this season. Interviewed by The Times this morning, Mr. Hamilton stated that he had closed no contract and does not expect to close a contract with Calgary.

Mr. John Wilson, of the Union Bank, left the city on Thursday last to take up the position of manager of the branch at Winithorst, Sask. His place as accountant here has been taken by Mr. A. N. Weatherel who has been transferred from Didsbury.

Mr. H. O. Knowles and Mrs. Knowles left the city on Friday morning for Bristol, the visit being made on account of the delicate state of Mrs. Knowles health. Mr. Knowles expects to be back in the spring.

Mr. S. Bannon has taken a position as bookkeeper in Mr. D. G. White's office. He will carry on Mr Knowles' work during the latter's absence.

The Sons of England benefit society are organizing a band.

Mrs. Hamilton Morrow will not receive on Wednesday of this week and not until 2nd Wednesday in April.

Evely-Ford Co. Sale Attracts Great Crowds

To go one better, to excel any previous effort in Furniture Selling, The Evely-Ford Sales Company plan a $4,000 selling week at Lang & Co's Furniture Store, which is stocked with the best goods that our Canadian Factories produce. No Inferior Furniture or Jobs or Seconds find a place in this stock as Lang & Co cater for the best trade in the town, and only the best and most exclusive designs are shown by this aggressive firm.

That the Sale knows no bounds is evidenced by the large crowds who throng the store daily since the inception of the Sale last Saturday morning. This week the trade from the outlying districts began to come in, and the shipping-room is overtaxed at present, trying to keep up to the orders. They're pouring in faster than is possible to get them out.

Every article of Furniture—Carpets Baby-Carriages, Carpet-Rugs and Home Furnishings are reduced in price from 25 to 50 per cent.—making buying imperative to the thrifty who have the disposition to save on their purchases.

The Sale continues throughout the week and is planned to be the biggest selling week that this store has ever known.

A Carload of Dining Room Furniture and Parlor Suites was unloaded this week as well as a large shipment of Rattani Chairs and Baby Carriages. These will all go on sale at much less than the regular prices, along with the rest of the stock.

Great activety in the Carpets and Rugs, Oilcloths and Linoleums is shown each day and the sales in this department alone are 4 times greater than the store's regular trade.

"Greater Business" is the Slogan of the Evely-Ford Sale this week at Long & Co's store, and the profits are sacrificed to this end.

MARIE HALL

Who with her concert party will appear in the Opera House on Monday, March the 15th.

Sevcik, who is perhaps the greatest musical critic in Germany says of Miss Hall; "The Greatest Woman Violinist The World Has Ever Known."

The "New York Evening World" says: "Technically she is flawless. A product of the same school as Kubelik, she here and there resembles that wizard in her mastery of all the tricks of the trade at the command of fiddlers . . . . In two minutes after the girl began to play everybody was sitting up straight and listening intently . . . At the end there was a rush of the audience to the foot of the stage and Miss Hall was recalled time and time again."

The "Montreal Gazzette":—"That wonderful little witch Marie Hall, enchanted her Fourth, Montreal audience last night."

The "Ottawa Citizen.":—"Marie Hall's name will be handed down to posterity, recorded prominently in the annals of genius. Her playing was marvelous, thrilling, soulful and tender, setting the nerves vibrating, the blood tingling. To the casual listener it appeared remarkable, to the musician wonderful, etc., etc. During her present stay in the city as on her former visit, Miss Hall was the guest of theGovernor-General and Countess Grey at Government House."

"Toronto Globe":—No solo violinist who has appeared in the City during the past twenty years has won a greater triumph than did Miss Marie Hall. The audience marveled iat wonderful performance. The measure of her success may be estimated in recording the fact that she was recalled Fourteen times."

"Winnipeg Telegram":—"The reception recorded Marie Hall—the World's One Great Woman Virtuoso of the Violin—at the Walker Theatre last night was highly flattering. She won her audience completely and the vast crowd that filled the theatre to the doors cathused in encore after encore.

With Paderewski she holds th? British Record For Phonomenal Receipts and Success.

All seats reserved at $1.50 and $1.00.

Plan of Hall opens on Wednesday the 10th, at 9 o'clock at the Assiniboia Music Co's store.

Enthusiastic Ralli...

Confident of Ma...

Will Have ...

A successful rally was held in the Conservative club-room on Wednesday night. The attendance was large, all the seating accommodation being taken up and large numbers were only able to find standing room at the rear. The enthusiasm shown throughout the evening, the faith in the Conservative cause, and the all pervading dissatisfaction with the record of Mr. Finlay as representative of Medicine Hat, all point to a sharp hard fought fight on the 22nd. This same enthusiasm combined with good work in the constituency on behalf of the candidate, will ensure beyond a shadow of doubt, the return of Major F. O. Sissons as the member for the constituency.

Interspersed throughout the evening's serious business was an excellent programme of musical numbers to which the following gentlemen contributed: Messrs. H. A. Whiffin, Collier, Hosberg, and Day, vocal solos; Mr. Morris, violin solo. An excellent recital of "The Old King's Own" was given by Mr. Currie. Mr. W. J. Fleming made a pleasing accompaniest.

The first speaker, Mr. Chas. J. Wilson, gave a brief resume of his reasons for opposing the Rutherford administration. He spoke as a newcomer in the province who had come to Alberta about the time of the Red Deer convention. To the platform there drawn up he could give his emphatic endorsement. A significant thing about the present contest is in the fact that the Rutherford government had appealed to the country for a snap verdict. This alone was sufficient to arouse suspicion. But these discreditable tactics were no new to the speaker. In Saskatchewan last year the very same plan had been adopted by the Scott government. If the contest there had been prolonged for even another couple of weeks, the result (there was no doubt of this in the speaker's mind) would have been far different. One excuse for the short period allowed before the polling day was that an election interferes with business and affected commercial stability. This was an absurd excuse. In the case of a presidential election across the line where the whole monetary system might be affected by the result, the argument might hold water. Not so in a provincial campaign. There was probably not a business man present whose business had been affected adversely by the announcement of a general election—there might be many whose returns had increased since that date.

The next speaker was Mr. Wm. Cousins who exposed the fallacy of the argument that an opposition member could not represent the city's interests. Reference was made to the work of Mr. Magrath in connection with the waterways treaty. In this matter our member had won commendation from newspapers on both sides of politics. His speech had changed the government's views on the matter, and as a result, steps would be taken to safeguard the interests of the west, and in return for Canada's concessions at Niagara, the waters of the St. Mary's river (which rises in the States) will be conserved for the irrigation of the great tract of country to the south of us. The water would in all probability be brought down Seven Persons creek, joining the Saskatchewan at this point. There could not be a shadow of doubt that the interests of the riding were receiving better attention at the hands of the government than would have been the case had a Liberal been returned.

It was generally supposed Mr. Cousins went on, that Mr. Finlay was created minister of agriculture because he agreed to vote for Edmonton as the capital, in preference to Calgary. He had betrayed, for office, the interests of Southern Alberta. As showing the flimsy foundation upon which the statements in the Liberal campaign literature have been built, the speaker quoted Mr. Rutherford's reference to the minister of agriculture as "a practical farmer—a man who had long farmed well himself." The absurdity of this description of Mr. Finlay's qualifications for the post would be patent to all who had long resided here.

Mr. Cousins went on to elucidate the inititiative, referendum and recall planks in the Red Deer platform. If the people of a constituency considered that their member was not representing their interests, they would have the right to demand his resignation. The electors would have the power, on a proportion say 15 per cent., of their number signing a petition, to compel the government to introduce a desired measure; and on dissatisfaction being expressed with any measure passed in the legislature, the electors could demand a plebiscite.

The Conservative party were pledged to an aggressive railway policy, and in the event of their coming into power would continue the policy of the Rutherford government.

Mr. Cousins in conclusion struck a very hopeful note in regard to the result of the polling on the 22nd. The last time Major Sissons had run he had polled the majority of the votes of the English speaking electoarte. This election he would also have the German votes on his side and the victory was practically assurred. In Major Sissons we had a good man, a man of sound judgment, honest, and with backbone.

Enthusiastic Rally of Conservatives

Confident of Major Sissons' return

Will Have Liberal Support

A successful rally was held in the Conservative club-room on Wednesday night. The Conservative party were pledged to an aggressive railway policy, and in the event of their coming into power would continue the policy of the Rutherford government.

Mr. Cousins in conclusion struck a very hopeful note in regard to the result of the polling on the 22nd. The last time Major Sissons had run he had polled the majority of the votes of the English speaking electoarte. This election he would also have the German votes on his side and the victory was practically assurred. In Major Sissons we had a good man, a man of sound judgment, honest, and with backbone.

A good fighting speech was made by Mr. A. Patterson, who assured his hearers that when Mr. Sissons got up to Edmonton he would have the courtesy to reply to any constituents who might write him on an important matter. That had not been the custom of Mr. Finlay. There were three or four good Liberals in the city who had come in during the day and signed the book, paying $2 each towards Major Sissons' campaign fund. Reference was made to Duncan Marshall, "The man with the Victor record," who would address delighted Liberals on the following evening. No working man who knew the man's record in connection with the "Patrons of Industry," could cast a vote for a party of which this enemy of labor was a member. Medicine Hat Conservatives did not need to go outside the constituency for speakers. They never had to pay a dollar for a hired, professional politician and his gramaphone speeches. Medicine Hat had been side-tracked by this man Finlay. The speaker had offered to vote for the minister of agriculture if he could show that Medicine Hat had been mentioned by him in the legislature five times in the last six months. But there was no danger of the challenge being taken up.

Ald. Collier, president of the association, who came in while Mr. Patterson was speaking, expressed surprise at the proportions of the crowd which had assembled. He referred to the sterling qualities of the member to be, and showed that the late member had grossly neglected this district while at Edmonton. Franklissons, in opposition or on the government side could not do less than Finlay has done. The Rutherford government had been a good government—for Edmonton—but the southern man who voted for the Liberal party was a tractor to his own interests.

Mr. Ansley gave a short speech in which he was able to show the gross negligence of Mr. Finlay in regard to the interests of his constituents. Some time ago the road surveyor to the Ansley-Pruitt coal mine suffered from a wash-out which made it unusable for heavy traffic. Mr. Ansley had tried to get Mr. Finlay interested in the matter with a view to having repairs carried out. The reply was that the government was not in the habit of aiding private parties. Mr. Ansley pointed out that the public were gainers by the shipment or coal from this point, and stated that his firm were willing to pay at least one-third of the cost. Mr. Finlay then advised the company to get up a petition, and Mr. Ansley acting on the suggection, got up a petition signed by every citizen of the town who had been asked to do so. Three months passed with no reply or acknowledgment from the minister. The company at last built a road for themselves. Just about a month ago Mr. Finlay was met in town by Mr. Ansley, who enquired whether the petition had been received. Mr. Finlay replied in the affirmative, but upon being asked why no reply was vouchsafed said in a confused manner that "it seemed to him he had replied." That was an instance of the warm place in Mr Finlay's heart, for the constituency which raised him to power.

A short bdt weighty attack on the government was made by Mr. W. G. Niblock, who showed how the best interests of the province had been betrayed by Rutherford and his colleagues for the sake of power and the emoluments of office. The speaker demonstrated that in the loss of her lands (which she had been robbed of by the Autonomy Bill) Alberta had lost the richest asset she possessed. The mines of Nova Scotia rendered nearly $600,000 annually in royalties alone. From our output, which was ten times as large, not a cent went to the provincial treasury. In their railroad policy, Messrs. Rutherford and Cross, had given the C. P. R. the cold shoulder. This road (on whose lines not one red cent of guarantee had been made) would do most of the building that was to be done in the province.

There are to be many important improvements this year in the store buildings of the city. The latest of these to be announced is that of Graham and Turnbull, the hustling firm across the track. In preparation for a large new stock of furniture which is now being shipped for this firm, the store building is to be extended back a distance of sixty feet. By the new arrangement, which will utilize all the space on the lot to the best advantage, the show-room will be made one of the most spacious in the city and in addition storage room will be provided at the rear of the premises.

The new stock is expected in the course of a few days and a full account of the same will be found in the Graham & Turnbull ad. in a forth coming issue.

The School Board

The regular meeting of the school board was held in the office of the secretary on Monday, the 8th inst., there being present: W. J. Brotherton, chairman; J. Kennedy and A. C. Hawthorne, trustees.

A communication was received from Geo. G. McBean, of Regina, in regard to natural collections; these, Principal Sansom stated, had been received and were in use in the schools.

James & Hansuld wrote asking to be allowed to put in a bid on the high school debentures when put on the market. The secretary said that he had written in reply, stating that the issue would in all probability be on the market in the very near future.

The matter of the condition of the playground of the Montreal Street school, due to the drainage of the waste water from the house of D. McEwen on to the school property, was brought to the notice of the board. It was pointed out that the state of things had become very disagreeable on the grounds. As a means of remedying the evil it was suggested that the secretary write to Mr. McEwen. Cases of this kind will be dealt with by the new sanitary inspector.

A letter from R. L. Shimmin & Co of Calgary, making inquiries as to the debenture issue had been answered by the secretary.

From the normal school, Calgary there was a communication in which it was stated that 60 teachers would be coming out of training in the spring; most of them had had previous experience.

F. F. Fatt sent in his resignation, expressing great regret that his term of office had been so short that the trouble of an election had been uselessly given the ratepayers. mThe writer had been informed by the city solicitor that it was illegal for him as secretary-treasurer to hold a seat on the board. The resignation was accepted and the secretary instructed to write to the council asking them to fill the vacancy.

The remains of the broken boiler in Toronto St. school were sold to the Canadian Hide & Fur Co., who wrote making an offer of $2.25 for the 900 pounds of scrap iron.

V. W. Harwood, of Winnipeg, architect, wrote offering to submit sketches for the proposed high school building. The letter was laid on the table.

E. L. Curtis of Brandon wrote in reply to the board's enquiries in regard to school flags. The price for bunting flags, 3 feet in length was $2, for flags 4 1.2 feet in length, $3. It was decided to purchase four 3 ft. flags for each school, two dominion ensigns and two jacks.

A number of communications were received in regard to blackboards, the matter being left in the hands of a committee consisting of Messrs. Brotherton and Hawthorne.

James Plumbley, janitor of the Montreal Street school sent in his resignation. This was accepted and the board decided to advertise the position.

Principal Sansom's report showed an attendance at the schools during February of 691 pupils, an increase over January of 22. An effort had been made to form an estimate of the number of pupils who were likely to seek admission for Easter. Fifty one names had been sent in, 32 on the north and 19 on the south side, and there would probably be more than that number. The principal thought it would be advisable in the near future to consider the construction of a new public school on the north side of the track. It was suggested that the admission of pupils to the primary class should be regulated according to some system. This question was discussed at length it being decided, that only during the first 10 days of each term will beginners be admitted. Truancy, the report stated, was still too prevalent, and at a means of coping with this evil the provision of printed forms was proposed, these to be filled in and sent to the parents of absentees, or the janitor should be sent to make enquiries. In many cases parents themselves were unaware of their children's truancy. Mr. Sansom further recommended that provision be made for the janitors to sleep on school premises. As things had been up to now, a janitor could seldom be found when he was wanted. The report was left on the table.

The principal's report on non-resident pupils gave rise to a lengthy discussion, the board eventually deciding not to enforce the law in this matter. It was pointed out that the levying of the school fee on non-resident pupils (though the amount would be inconsiderable to the board) would inflict hardship on parents in many cases.

Architect W. T. Williams was present at the meeting and about an hour and a half was spent in going over the plans and in discussing the accomodation question. Mr. Hawthorne pointed out that the new high school could scarcely be ready before next summer even if work were started immediately. The question was, how was the temporary situation to be relieved. Mr. Sansom thought it imperative that there should be permanent accomodation on the north side of the track before next winter. The board adjourned without coming to any definite conclusion, but agreed to meet again on Friday afternoon when further knowledge of the situation had been obtained.

The following accounts were dealt with:

Express charges	$ 1.50
B. F. Souch	11.65
Jas. Rae	.80
Coal, Toronto Street School, 4 tons	10.00
A. P. Burns (not O.K'd)	.95
D. Milne Co. (not O.K'd)	14.50
Finlay & Co.	1.71
Cooper (Galt coal)	13.15
Fred Scott	1.00
W. McF. Evans	3.50
Times	5.45
Montreal St. School (gas)	40.40
Plasterlene	25.00
Atlas Sch. Supply Co.	200.00

A special meeting of the schoolboard was held in the secretary's office on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There were present, Messrs. W. J. Brotherton (chairman), D. G. White and A. C. Hawthorne (trustees).

Applications for the position of janitor of the Montreal Street school were received from the following: H. Isaac, C. M. Fowler, J. T. Williams, Chas. Savage, Geo. Smithson, F. J. Appleyard, J. W. Cleocland, Peter Bell, Jas. Marberry and A. Munger. On motion of Mr. Hawthorne, H. Isaac was appointed.

The committee appointed to go into the school accomodation question of the north side of the track, reported that they had gone into the matter with Mr. W. T. Williams. They had found that the attic of the Montreal Street school might be converted into two rooms, the estimated cost of the alterations being $600. Mr. Brotherton was empowered to have plans drawn up and specifications made by Mr. Williams, and to call for tenders.

On motion of Mr. Hawthorne an order for slate for blackboard purposes was given to Mr. Geo. R. Kennedy. The slate will be of the best quality, 3½ feet wide. The blackboards will be renewed in 15 rooms, and the total quantity of slate required will be in the neighborhood of 1,100 feet.

Correspondence

Editor of The Times:—

Last week I read a lengthy editorial in The News which could have no purpose on earth except to injure Medicine Hat. As one who has money invested in this city, one whose future is largely wrapped up in Medicine Hat I protest most strenuously against a local paper giving this city the knock that The News saw fit to give it to try to defend the Alberta Government in omitting Meddicine Hat from its railway gifts.

I may say that this is not a new thing for The News to do. I have a distinct recollection of a paragraph which appeared in that paper some months ago which said that Medicine Hat residents profit nothing from natural gas. I also note in the last issue and in others knocks at Medicine Hat copie pfrom outside papers, and published in The News, I suppose, only because in knocking Medicine Hat these articles knock The Times. Either politics or personal spite is at the back of all this. I have been a close reader of both papers for several years and I cannot but contrast the stand of The Times with that The News sees fit to take. When the irrigation scheme was in preparation The Times openly supported it, even though opposition to it was almost a part of the Conservative policy at Ottawa. And all the local Conservatives did the same. Why? Because it was going to help the city. But The News places politics ahead of the city's welfare to such an extent that it will say the worst things that can be said of any city—worse than even a Lethbridge or Calgary paper would write of us—simply to toady for its Government pap and Government candidate. I can honestly see nothing else in it.

Even though what The News says is true (and it is not) can any man interested in this city imagine a local paper advertising us thus adversely. Did you ever see such a knock in papers from Calgary, or Edmonton, or Lethbridge, or Saskatoon, or Regina or anywhere? Did any paper in one of those cities dare to publish such a thing it would be boycotted. Every decent, well-wishing subscriber would cancel his subscription forthwith. The merchants to whom the prosperity of the town means everything, would stop their advertising as a protest.

While the statements of The News are not true, I am not concerned with their truth at present. But I would like to call The News attention to the fact that manufacturers are just as "hard-headed sensible" men as the railways. As everyone knows transportation facilities are the most important advantage of any manufacturing town. Assuming The News as correct we should have abundant proof of that here, where all our unique natural advantages have brought us nothing according to The News. I say manufacturers follow the railways not precede them. Give us more railways and our gas would realize its full value. Without transportation facilities gas is no more valuable than are all the distant rivers and water power of interior British Columbia. This point is too clear to be unknown even to The News.

If as The News says in justification of Mr. Finlay, railways will not go where there is not already trade, it might tell the residents of Medicine Hat why so many lines run out from Edmonton to nowhere, why the C. P. R. was ever built, why every pioneer railway (and all railways are largely pioneer) appeared on the map. Being "hard-headed sensible" men they foresaw what would come with railways.

Would The News also tell us why any guarantee of bonds is necessary for the building of railways except to induce them to build where there was not immediate trade, in order to order to bring that trade later on. If all these carloads of freight were ready to be shipped immediately the railways should have no guarantee as the quick returns would secure the construction money easily enough. The fact is that this was the sole reason given by the government for guaranteeing the bonds and rightly so.

I think that The News innocently answers itself when it says "there are times when politics do not constitute the whole thing, do not take precedence over what is the direct and plainly apparent interest of the community." Does The News deny that railways would be for the interest of the community?

How long, I would like to ask, are we to continue to spend thousands in publicity, to have it all spoiled by the thoughtlessness or political blunders of one of our local papers, the institutions that are expected to expend every energy in the building up of the community? I have heard many "intelligent and reasonable thinking men" saying things about The News knock and they all feel that if Mr. Finlay's election depends upon such arguments and such defense, it is the best evidence that he should not retain his seat.

I may have taken up too much space, Mr. Editor, but as a citizen I feel keenly on this subject and know that the election of the worst man in town would not do us as much harm as the publication of that News knock.

Yours truly,
One Who Believes
In Medicine Hat.

Another Liberal Meeting

Until quite late in the evening it appeared as though the Duncan Marshall meeting on Thursday would prove as depressing an affair as the Finlay-Cross meeting of the previous week. The hour of opening was to have been 8 o'clock, but fifteen minutes after that time the opera house was less than one-third filled. As the night wore on, however, the audience was augmented, and before the close a moderate sized crowd had assembled.

As on the previous Thursday, Dr. Boyd occupied the chair and immediately upon the entry on to the platform extended an invitation to the Conservatives to put up a speaker. This ex-mayor Cousins immediately accepted.

The first speaker was Mr. D. G. White, who had, he said, been pitchforked into the political arena greatly against his inclinations. He looked at the questions of the province strictly from a business standpoint, and was convinced that Mr. Finlay was the only common-sense member for Medicine Hat. Mr. White then referred to the government record in the sphere of legislation. The constituency had been dealt with fairly in the redistribution, if representation were to be according to population. No serious criticism of the Compensation act had been offered, and this measure was proving a boon to workingmen. As to the railway policy and Medicine Hat's position, it was not the government's fault that a guarantee of the bonds of the irrigation railway had not been made. Certain information in regard to the Southern Alberta Land Co's proposition had not been forthcoming at the time when the deputation visited Edmonton. Mr. McGregor had now been able to satisfy the authorities, and when it could be shown that the company were in a position to build at once and maintain the railway, the guarantee would be forthcoming. The speaker expected that the beginnings of the railway would be made this summer. Law reform and the legislation in regard to caviats was touched upon. Altogether Mr. White made an able defence of a weak cause. His manner was far more effective his argument far more trenchant his logic more incisive than that of the spell-binder who had been imported for the occasion. Duncan Marshall throughout his speech aimed mainly at effect, and while his cheap humor was very entertaining after a manner, as a debater Mr White proved himself far the weightier speaker, Duncan Marshall's forte being vaude ville.

On behalf of the Conservatives Mr W. Cousins took the platform. He made a telling speech the principal points of which are referred to in our report of the Conservative meeting of Wednesday night.

Duncan Marshall was then introduced to the audience and delivered a characteristic speech. At the outset he referred to the British Columbia compensation act, which he said, allowed no compensation to a man working on a building of a height of less than 40 feet. The school question in Alberta had become a dead issue and today it was admitted that the schools of Alberta were well administered, probably our public school system was the best in the civilized world. $6,882,000 had been spent in the past three years on education, and not a dollar of it had been raised by direct taxation. The subsidy received from Ottawa made such taxation unnecessary. The land question was being settled by the Ottawa authorities turning over to actual settlers the homesteads of Alberta. We thus obtained both the subsidy and the land. It was a case of casting our bread upon the waters and getting it back buttered on both sides. The possibility of provincial direct taxation had gone for ever. Over a million acres had been given away last year in homesteads and preemptions. The only tax today was an educational tax of $2 per quarter section lor lands outside of public school districts. The government has paid for the Bell system of telephones $86,716 less than was at first asked.

"Ten Nights in a Bar Room"

Moral Drama Presented with Remarkable Success by Local Talent

By far the best amateur entertainment ever presented in the city was the production of the temperance drama, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" given under the auspices of the Royal Templars, on Friday evening. The house was one of the largest of the season, almost every seat being taken up, and the crowd which gathered in the opera house was kept in a state of eager, interest and enjoyment throughout the evening.

Under the able direction of Mr. Sansom, the orchestra entertained the assembly with music of a high order, and the intervals between the scenes which might otherwise have been periods of tedium, were converted into most delightful features of the night. Of the selections given, the "Sans Souci," overture, "Sunbeam and Shadows," and the characteristic piece "Cocanut Dance," were specially prepared for the occasion. Mr. Sansom is certainly to be congratulated in having brought together such a company of talented musicians, and it is to be hoped that the orchestra will become a permanent institution in the city. The instrumentalists were: pianoforte, Mrs. C. F. Smith; violins, Miss O. Holmes and Messrs. H. S. Craig, E. S. Hodges and C. Sansom; cornets, Mr. J. W. McCulla and Mr. G. P. Murray; cello, Dr. C. F. Smith.

An excellent programme of special numbers was also given between the acts. Miss Sinclair has a voice of singular sweetness, and her solo, "Violets," gave great delight. the audience signifying its appreciation by enthusiastic applause. The novelty provided by Mr. Williams' fancy roller skating, also called forth expressions of well-deserved approval, this being one of the cleverest exhibitions of skill ever seen on the opera house stage. Mr. Gawley performed a number of acrobatic stunts showing remarkable strength and agility, while Mr. Stewart in his club swinging displayed that wonderful mastery of this art which it is ever delightful to witness.

On the programme a banjo and guitar duet by Messrs. Grey and Murray was promised, but as the latter was unavoidably out of town Mr. Grey performed alone, his banjo solos [illegible] unique [illegible].

Prior to the raising of the curtain a few introductory remarks were made by Mr. J. J. McKim, the Royal Templars' select councillor.

In the play itself the caste had been selected with admirable judgment. As the worldly-wise Simon Slade, the tavern keeper, whose qualms of conscience were so easily sacrificed to his commercial interests, Mr. E. S. Frost's acting was beyond praise. The character of Slade, the victim of contending impulses, good and bad, now perceptibly swayed the fervent pleadings of his wife, now with an oath repressing an awakening conscience, was portrayed with rare dramatic power. The self-deception by which the man convinces himself of his importance as a pillar of the community suggested Shaw's cynical passage concerning a type of Anglo-Saxon who "is never in the wrong; who does everything on principle—fights you on patriotic principles, robs you on business principles, enslaves you on imperial principles, and bullies you on manly principles." But with all his faults one could not suppress a sneaking liking for the man. He was essentially human, a type of the commercially minded man whose motives are not base, but whose eyes are blinded to the higher interests.

As the tavern keeper's wife Miss Martha Taylor had not a part giving very wide scope, but she played it with exceptional grace and penetrating tenderness in the scenes where Slade was urged to return to his mill and to save his family from the dangers of their environment.

A very different character to that of Slade's was that of Sample Switchel, the big-hearted rustic bubbling over with native wit. Mr. B. W. Bellamy had a difficult part to perform and he did it well, and Sample was in fact the soul of humor throughout. Mrs. Bellam's Methitabel was irresitible and the every appearance of the country swain and his lass was provocative of laughter. The love scenes especially were delectable fooling.

Mr. C. E. Neff played with ability the part of the traveller, in spite of the fact that the role of stage moralizer is always a thankless one, Mr. S. M. Fowler as the drunkard displayed exceptionally fine dramatic instinct. In the sick-room, especially, at the death-bed scene where little Mary obtains from her father the promise which leads, through her death, to his reclamation, there was some splendid acting. As Mary Morgan, Miss Cora Fowler proved early in the piece she won the hearts herself a capital little actress, and of all by her ingenuousness and simplicity. Miss Alma Worth's Mrs. Morgan, the drunkard's wife, was sympathically and very cleverly portrayed. The characters of Willie Hammond, the unsophisticated and noble spirited son of Judge Hammond, and of Harvey Green, the boy's assassin and the villain of the piece, were admirably represented by Mr. A. G. Trotman and Mr. Edward Forbes. Green was a villain with [illegible] glamor. He was merely, utterly repulsive scoundrel. Mr. Ernest Muir's representation of the gaol-keeper's son, Frank Slade, was good acting, especially in the scene in the last act where the final tragedy is enacted.

By Friday night's performance about $200 was realized for the Royal Templars of Temperance, clear of all expenses. The whole of this sum will be devoted to propaganda in the surrounding district. A lodge may be organized in Lethbridge where up to the present time a branch of the order has not been established, and in towns intervening between the two cities. Every contributor to Friday's programme gave his services free of charge for the benefit of the movement.

The Templars' have been requested to repeat the performance and will probably do so in the near future.

Nominations for this Constituency

The following candidates were nominated at noon yesterday to contest the Medicine Hat constituency in the provincial election:

William Thomas Finlay—proposed by W. A. Burton, seconded by Thos. Hutchinson and supported by others.

Francis Ogletree Sissons—proposed by W. R. Coursey, seconded by John Henry Collier and supported by others.

It being nomination day both candidates names were handed in at the court-house.

BOARD OF TRADE ASK FOR INCREASED GRANT

A deputation from the board of trade waited on the council last night to ask that a grant of $3,000 be made by the city this year. It was stated that the board of trade are considering the advisability of sending Mr. J. T. Hall to Denver this summer to look into the beet sugar question. A deputation from the agriculture society headeh by Mr. James Rae, asked for a guarantee of debentures to the total of $15,000, for erecting buildings on the grounds in order to carry on successful fairs. As security they would give the 80 acres owned by them. It was stated that the race horse owners of Winnipeg, Brandon and other western cities wished to send their horses to this city for the winter and for fitting for the spring races. If proper buildings could be provided this might be undertaken and a considerable revenud derived there from. Twenty-year 5 per cent. debentures were suggested. The council will consider both propositions at a later meeting. A report of last night's meeting will be given in next week's paper.

FIRE ON THURSDAY

J. H. Preston's residence now in course of construction on Montreal St., sustained serious damage by fire early Thursday morning. The fire is supposed to have originated with the stove. The back wall was burnt between the plaster and the outside sheeting.

BASEBALL

About 35 or 40 local fans assembled in the American hotel on Wednesday night for the election of officers and the settling of other matters in connection with the coming season.

A statement was presented by W. J. McLean regarding the financial position of the 1907 team. In that year the total amount of stock subscribed was $5,120; of this $4,890 had been paid up. At the present time the club was in debt to the tune of $928.84. Five hundred dollars, however, would be forthcoming from Spokane for players purchased last year from Medicine Hat. When this amount and $280 yet to be paid in by stock holders, had been received the debt would be reduced to $198.84. This expense will be borne by Messrs. McLean, Cousins and Fleming unless there is a surplus at the end of the season, in which event those gentlemen will first be reimbursed.

After thanks had been expressed for this generous offer, the officers for the year were elected, as follows:

Hon. Pres., W. Cousins.
President, C. S. Pingle.
Sec.-Treas., W. T. Finlay.

Executive Committee—W. H. Turpin, W. J. McLean, M. L. O'Hara.

Billy Hamilton was made an offer of $1,000 for the season, in which there are four playing months and one devoted to practice. This is equivalent to a salary of $200 a month, for which the club secures a playing manager. This is considered decidedly a reasonable proposition. Billy Hamilton will play 1st base, and a good first base anywhere would cost from $125 to $150 a month.

The $3,000 stock asked for by the club has now been subscribed. A 25 per cent. call will be made immediately.

On Thursday evening a social will be held in Knox Presbyterian church. An excellent programme has been arranged and refreshments will be served. Admission 50 cents.

Mrs. D. Milne, Esplanade, gave a very enjoyable whist party on Friday evening when six tables were invited. The prizes were won by Mrs. J. W. Martin, Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Thos. McKay.

ATHLETICS

HAT BEAT CALGARY

Calgary, March 11—The bowling tournament started yesterday under most promising aspects, which should auger well for the success of the tournament. Throughout the day several big scores were made. Perhaps the most interesting features of the day's play was the defeat of the Wanderers by Medicine Hat in five pins men teams, and the good score put up by Geo. Scott, who rolled 618 in three strings. This score should about win the high score prize which is being donated by D. Black.

The results in the different competitions are as follows:

MARATHON RACE OPEN TO THE WORLD

Early next month, says a New York despatch, an outdoor Marathon will be run off at the Polo grounds. It will be a professional sweepstakes and it is expected that the field will include the greatest distance men in the world—Strubb, Hayes, Dorando, Simpson, White, Svanberg, Longboat and Maloney, and possibly one or two of the crack amateurs. The purse will be one of the biggest ever offered for a foot race.

Good News for Shoppers

The Evely-Ford Co. continue the sale at Lang & Co., until Saturday night.

As will be seen by today's issue, The Evely-Ford sale will be lengthened out three days longer than the time schedule in order that everyone may participate in the great saving this sale affords.

To avoid disappointment to many Lang & Co. have acceded to the request of their customers who wished to buy good furniture at the price of the ordinary kinds, and thus save a portion of their cheques which to be banked for a rainy day. So many came last week saying if the sale was only next week we'd have our monthly cheques, and it is to meet those that we lengthened the sale another three days.

The sale must positively close Saturday night, March 20th, as it would be ruinous as well as impossible to continue selling at such prices for an indefinite period.

We have no doubt that this arrangement will meet the wishes of hundreds of enthusiastic buyers, and a large trade is expected this week at Long & Co's Store.

We know you are above giving Cheap photos to your friends, Call and See the work we are giving you, and at Reduced Prices, till the End of the Month. See our Ad.

Glad It Did So Much Good

Some remarkable stories are being told about town and among the country people coming in of this simple home-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of water.

This mixture has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys; cleansing the clogged-up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter overcoming Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short while.

A druggist here who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers last October stated that the people who once try it "swear by it," especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer with Rheumatism.

All the druggists in this neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients, which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood cleansing agent or system tonic known, and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

The cheapest photo we take is $4 and They Are Beauties for the money. Remember we are Doing High Class Work and we shall be pleased to show you the Latest Spring Styles.

HANDS COVERED WITH ECZEMA

"For three weeks I actually had to be fed like one feeds a baby, because my hands and arms were so covered with eczema that they had to be bound up all the time."

That is the experience of Miss Violet M. McCauley, of 75, Gore Street, Sault Ste. Marie. She adds: "I could not hold spoon nor fork. From finger tips to elbows the dreaded disease spread, my finger nails came off and my flesh was one raw mass. The itching and the pain were almost excruciating. I had three months of this torture and at one time amputation was discussed."

"Zam-Buk alone saved my hands and arms. I persevered with it and in the end had my reward. To-day, I am cured completely of every trace of the dreaded eczema, and I fervently hope that sufferers from skin disease may know of my case and the miracle Zam-Buk has worked."

Zam-Buk is without equal for eczema, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, piles, cracked hands, cold sores, chapped places, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for same price. You are warned against dangerous substitutes sometimes offered as "just as good."

HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE OF LIVING.

Heart Trouble Cured by MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. Andrew Savoy, Grafton's, N.B., writes: In the year of 1905 I was taken sick and did not think I could live any length of time. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that nothing could be done for a case like mine. I consulted the very best doctors but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly cross the floor. I had no pain, but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hope of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

One day a friend came to see me, and calling me by name, said: "Birdie, if I were you I would try a dose of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart trouble." My husband got me a box, but for two days I was not feeling any better, but on the fourth day my husband said, "I believe those pills are doing you good." I was able to say "Yes, I feel a good deal better this morning." He said, "Well, I will get you another box right away." I took two boxes and three doses out of the third one, and I was perfectly well and have not been sick since then.

I will never be without them in my home for I do know if it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I would not have been alive now.

Price 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25.

INSPECTOR PARKER BEST SHOT

The annual report of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police has just been issued at Ottawa. In the report of Superintendent Wilson for the Lethbridge division mention is made of the progress of the Medicine Hat district. The Dreamer case is referred to and it is stated that although it was found impossible to connect these people with the burndown of John Lehr's house the arrests have had a good effect. A mistake is made in describing the hearing as of about two weeks duration. The cases lasted three weeks.

Under the heading of "Drill and Training," Inspector Wilson says: "The Division fired the annual course of revolver practice, mounted and dismounted. The Medicine Hat subdivision under Inspector Parker, and the Milk River sub-district at the different detachments along the line under Inspector Howard.

"Inspector Parker, with over 34 years' service in the force, has the honor of being the division's best shot."

LEVEL CROSSINGS

Ottawa, March 12—The intention of the federal government to contribute to the cost of protecting level railway crossings throughout Canada is made clear in a government notice of motion, of which Hon. G. P. Graham gives notice as follows:

"That it is expedient to provide that a sum of $200,000 each year, for five years from April 1, 1909, be appropriated and set apart for the purpose of aiding in providing for the protection, safety and convenience of the public in respect of existing highway crossings of railways at rail level, and that the same be placed to the credit of a special account, to be known as the Railway Grade Crossing Fund, and be applied under the authority of railway commissioners."

NATURAL GAS AT FORT WILLIAM

Fort William, March 11—Workmen who are now taking soundings for the government surveys on the McKellar river are every day striking evidence of natural gas. They are boring down 27 feet, and yesterday a gas jet came up that when lighted burned long enough to boil a pail of water. The men made a covering for the apperture of snow and ice, and the gas follows the opening right to the surface. Many of the men are convinced that gas exists in quantities to warrant further prospecting.

A Snap Verdict Wanted

The government action in bringing on the elections some three weeks after the dissolution of the Assembly can be interpreted only as a fear of public criticism. Its majority in the last house was so large that it could, and did, force legislation through without sufficient discussion and consideration. Now it evidently fears the white light of publicity; and its deeds of maladministration, it does not want discussed. Last year the equally faulty administration in Saskatchewan adopted the same tactics and won. It is well-known that the electors are usually friendly to a government unless there are shortcomings in administration or decided lack of legislative and executive ability. To present the government's deficiencies and errors before the electors in a sparcely settled country, such as this is, requires considerable time. Six weeks would be a short enough time for the electors to come to a mature conclusion as to the government's fitness for office. In several of the constituencies there is not a mile of railway and in these the discussion of public affairs in the various settlements must be an exceedingly cumbersome task for any candidate to undertake. In these it is absolutely impossible for the Opposition candidates to put their case before any considerable number of electors, and the government has adopted the plan of an exceedingly brief campaign to save it from defeat. Let the electors understand the motive for such undue haste, and the design of the government will be frustrated.

If the government had nothing to fear from discussion ample time would have been given for the campaign. The brief time allotted is an admission that there are things behind the screen which the Rutherford administration does not wish discussed.

The Question of Railways

One would judge from the contents in the Liberal press that the only possible method of securing railways in the province of Alberta is to return to power the Rutherford administration, and that a vote against the government is a vote against additional railways. If the railway issue were the only issue in the campaign, the province as a whole would be assured of additional railways no matter which side wins—if the guaranteeing of the bonds will bring a railway. The inference that the Conservative party in Alberta is opposed to additional railways is one of those false assumptions, the untruthfulness of which lies as much in what it does not say as in what it says. The platform upon which the Conservative party is appealing to the electors has this as one of its prominent planks—"The immediate construction of railways through those settled parts of the province which do not enjoy railway facilities or competition." The need of railways is apparent to everyone the credit of the province is good, its future is assured, and it is no great evidence of constructive statesmanship for either party to propound a railway policy. But is there no difference to the electors of the constituency of Medicine Hat which party controls the reins of government at Edmonton? We think unquestionably there is and the odds lie in favor of the Conservatives. Will F. O. Sissons as M. L. A. accomplish less for the district than Hon. W. T. Finlay has done? Could he do less if he tried? It would not be a very hard task for him to do a great deal more. The experiment is well worth trying in any case. There is everything to gain and there is clearly nothing to lose. In the past it has been a case of "Blessed is he that expecteth nothing, for he shall not be disappointed." If we expect nothing, than assuredly there is no need of a change of representative. But how many electors stand in such a position as this? And if there be none—as assuredly there are none or at most very few—then why vote for a candidate whose past record does not represent us? In this sense the minister of agriculture has not represented the constituency of Medicine Hat in the last Assembly. He has occupied a seat in the Legislative Assembly; yea, he has even sat in one of the Cabinet seats, but he has not represented us. If he has occupied any relationship to the constituency which voted him into office, he has misrepresented it. We are not one of those who think the possession of the franchise a matter of small moment or a thing to be treated with indifference. But an elector might better stay at home from the polls than to vote for a man who doesn't represent him. The party veil must be drawn very tightly over the eyes of the elector of this constituency who cannot see that Hon. W. T. Finlay does not represent us. True, Mr. Finlay confesses to a small degree of conversion He tells us that he is now satisfied with the plans of the Southern Alberta Land Company's electric railway, and that he is now prepared to recommend the guarantee of the bonds. The fact is Mr. Finlay electors who were deluded into supporting him.

Full Provincial Autonomy

But the great question in the campaign is not a matter of railways—important as that may be. A larger issue is the question of public domain—the control by the province of the public lands, mines, forests, etc. The government politicians tell us that the issue is dead. We admit that it is dead so long as a Liberal government remains in power, because the government took office with the understanding that they must agree to the provisions of the Autonomy Bill. But the Conservative party does not sell itself so cheaply. If political power means the sacrifice of principles it prefers to remain in opposition. Before the Autonomy Bill was passed everyone—Liberal and Conservative alike—was in favor of full provincial autonomy. The Liberal party was willing to change its policy for the sake of power. No wonder the issue is dead from their point of view. But the day is coming when Alberta will demand that which is her right—the control of the public domain. It is not answering the Conservative contention to point out that in lieu of land we receive money and eventually the land goes to the settler anyway. What about our valuable forest areas? What about our inexhaustible mines? These would be revenue producers till, as Mr. Marshall says, "the clock of eternity strikes." Nova Scotia last year derived a revenue of about $600,000 from her coal mines. Alberta by charging only 10 cents a ton would have reaped a revenue of nearly twenty million dollars from her coal output. What does the paltry $375,000 amount to alongside of this. The issue is too big to pass into oblivion, too vital to die. It is of such vast moment that it is one of these questions which will not down.

The Hardest Knock Yet

On reading the editorial in last week's issue of our local contemporary one is constrained to ask the question "What is wrong?" Has the editor been suffering from an attack of indigestion, or has his political zeal carried him so far that he is willing to give the city the hardest rap it ever received for the sake of justifying the attitude of our representative in the Legislative Assembly during the last Parliamentary term? He plainly tells us that we have no need for more railways, that railways could not be induced to come because we have nothing for them to do, that railways are hard-headed business concerns that will not come where there is no business for them to handle. If such be the case, the application of the Southern Alberta Land Co., (for which the editor expresses great respect) for a charter and a guarantee of bonds must be a tremendous business blunder. If such be the case, then Mr. Finlay and Mr. Cross must be wrong in reconsidering the question and promising the Company their support. Evidently there are outsiders who have more faith in the future of the city than some of our own citizens. What is the use of us employing a publicity commissioner at a large salary and expending money in advertising our unquestioned advantages as a manufacturing centre because of our supply of natural gas, if the local press is to be allowed to attempt to kill every effort by discounting the city as it has done? Our city gets poor advertising when the public is told that we have driven industries away and that there is nothing here in the way of natural resources to induce any railway to come. We need not attempt to refute these contentions. They will be taken for what they are worth by every well-wisher of the city. If it be true that we are entirely dependent on the C. P. R. for what we are, and if we have nothing to offer in the way of advantages, what is it that makes Medicine Hat anything better than some other divisional pointe e.g. Broadview or Swift Current? Railways are hard headed business concerns, and there must be some reason for the difference.

Note and Comment

There is dissention in the Liberal party in High River constituency over the nomination of a candidate. When membership in the Assembly means plenty of "pull," there is plenty of competition for the nomination.

At last the government has realized that something must be done to protect the lives of the inhabitants at level crossings. Laurier does sometimes bring in good legislation—when he has to.

The Times acceeds to the request of Mr. Finlay that those who are satisfied with his work as representative of Medicine Hat should give him their support and influence in the present campaign. The question is, is there any one who is satisfied?

"The first gun of the provincial campaign" was certainly an effective one. It succeeded in keeping empty all the rear seats in the hall.

Thursday night's political meeting in the Opera House won votes for Mr. Sissons. After hearing Duncan Marshall an elector declared: "I had made up my mind not to oppose Mr. Finlay but now I am fully decided to vote for Mr. Sissons. Mr. Marshall is entertaining for those who like cheap fun, but his logic has not much weight.

Light as Mr. Marshall's speech as a whole was, his handling of the Workman's Compensation Act was much better than that of the Attorney General. There was no dodging and juggling over this question. But the best that Mr. Marshall could do was to show that Alberta has an act more favorable to the workmen than British Columbia has. In B. C. the height of a building must be forty feet before compensation is paid, and where paid is $300 less than in Alberta. The issue is not between B. C. and the Alberta acts but between the Alberta act and the Opposition platform. The plank of the Conservative party referring to this question reads. "The removal of the clause preventing compensation for accidents in or about any building not exceeding 80 feet in height." (See Mr. Sisson's platform in last week's Times. Article 13, Section (2) sub-section (d).) The Rutherford Government may have given us a better act than the B. C. government but the Conservative party proposes to do away entirely with the senseless 30 foot restriction. If by comparison as Mr. Marshall contends, the Alberta Act is now good is there any workman who would not vote to have it better? Is the loss to the family, or dependants, any less if a man is disabled or killed on a 20-foot or a 10-foot building than on a 30-foot one? Vote to do away with the sensless restriction by supporting Mr. Sissons.

If you want that trunk up from the station, at any hour of the day or night, phone 69 (after 18K) or 245 during the day. C. H. Wagner, city transfer man.

No Dyspepsia or Indigestion

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lay like a lump of lead on your stomach, or if you have heartburn that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take one triangle after supper tonight. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heart burn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness of Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseaus odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for all stomach misery, because it will take hold of your food and digest it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Actual, prompt relief for all your stomach misery is at your Pharmacist, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure a case of Dyspepsia or Indegistion.

VOUCHER REGISTER

At the present time, the Treasurer is using the Synoptic System for the distribution of the City's Expenditure. This book, outside of the objection that it is loose leaf, is not at all suited for the purpose it is being used for; a proper or full distribution of all the expenditure cannot be made in it, and as we have stated a great objection to it is, that of its being loose leaf. In our opinion, no book of this kind should be on the Loose Leaf System.

We therefore recommend the introduction of a Voucher System, that will take care of the distribution of all expenditures, and in connection therewith, a form of Voucher. In addition to this synoptic, there are kept separate books for Capital Expenditure on Water, Gas, etc., as well as accounts with the same in the General Ledger. With the system we propose, all expenditure will be distributed under the heading to which it belongs, and the keeping of separate books for each department, done away with.

GENERAL LEDGER

The General Ledger should contain all the accounts of the City but at present it does not, and in making up the General Balance Sheet, we had to amalgamate the balance sheets of the various ledgers. There is no reason that we know of why the General Ledger should not contain the whole record of the City's affairs, and should our suggestions be approved, we would take steps to have all accounts kept in the one ledger.

DEBENTURE BOOK

We have found that there is no proper method of taking care of debenture Coupons when paid, and there is danger of their being mislaid or lost. Nor can it be known what Coupons, if any, have not been returned without going through the packages. The careful keeping of matured debentures and coupons is of great importance, and the system generally adopted is that of a large book, (similar to an ordinary commercial invoice book) headed with the number of the debenture, date of issue, term to run, etc, etc., the rest of the page being ruled in squares, and the squares being numbered from one up. Each coupon as it is paid is pasted in the square corresponding to the coupon number, and when the debenture is paid, it is also pasted in the square corresponding to the page. In this way, a complete record is kept, and it can be seen at a glance what coupons are unpaid.

CUSTOMERS' LEDGER

WATER AND GAS

With regard to these ledgers, we would suggest a simple form of ruling and that bound books be used, as the ones in use are on the Loose Leaf System, the same objections that we have made to other forms on the same lines apply to these. All records of this kind should be in such a shape that there can be no tampering with them.

FORMS

Should the changes we have outlined be adopted by your honorable body, we will be pleased to supply the necessary forms, etc.

In conclusion, allow us to say, that no matter how good a system may be in itself, unless it is carried to its legitimate conclusion by competent assistants, it can never be a success.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

Important Suit

Chief Justice Sifton Decides That C. P. R. Lands Can Be Taxed Now

Edmonton, March 11—Chief Justice Sifton of the Supreme Court of Alberta, today handed out a decision against the C. P. R. He decided that the province had the right to tax the land of the Calgary and Edmonton Land Company for local improvement and school purposes.

These taxes will include arrears running as far back as 1903 in some cases. When the case was argued, R. B. Bennett of Calgary, solicitor for the Calgary and Edmonton Land company, objected that the lands could not be taxed till the patents were received. Deputy Attorney-General Woods claimed that the land was liable to taxation as soon as the order-in-council was passed allocating the lands to the company and the judge took this view of the case.

Some 196 quarter sections are affected. The Alberta government is taking steps to have all the C. P. R. lands taxed and this is taken as a good indication of success.

ALBERTA TEMPERANCE AND MORAL REFORM LEAGUE

The third annual convention of the Alberta Temperance and Moral Reform League will be held in the City of Wetaskiwin on Wednesday and Thursday, March 17th and 18th, 1909. The opening session of the convention will be held at 2.30 o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, March 17th.

The following organizations are entitled to representation at this convention on the basis of two representatives for each organization, and one additional representative for each fifty or fractional part of fifty members after the first fifty members: local branches of the League, church congregations, branches of the W. C. T. U., divisions of the S. O. T., lodges of the I. O. G. T., councils of the R. T. of T., branches of the C. E. T. S., branches of the League of the Cross, Prohibition clubs, other prohibition or temperance organizations, Young Men's Christian Associations, other Young Men's Clubs, Salvation Army Corps, and Trades and Labor organizations that are in sympathy with the League.

Arrangements are being made with the C. P. R. and the C. N. R., whereby reduced rates will be obtained by all delegates and their wives. All delegates must purchase first class full fare one way tickets to place of convention (or to nearest junction station, if through tickets cannot be obtained) and obtain certificates to that effect on the standard certificate form.

COULD NOT GO TO WORK BACK WAS SO WEAK.

Backache is the primary cause of kidney trouble. When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are liable to become affected.

Head the warning; check the Backache and dispose of any chances of further trouble.

If you don't, serious complications are very apt to arise and the first thing you know you will have Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of Kidney Trouble.

Mr. James Bryant, Arichat, N.S., was troubled with his back and used Doan's Kidney Pills, he writes:—"I cannot say too much about the benefit I received after using three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was greatly troubled with an aching pain across the small of my back. I could not go to work and my back was so weak I would have to sit down. It would go away for a few days but would always return. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I must say they completely cured me."

Price 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

Burns Natural Gas--

Has a Fused Aluminium Oven

McClary's "Caloric" Gas Range

The "Caloric" is substantially put together. For example, the oven walls are double, and the interior covered with fused aluminium. This fused aluminium is a wonderful resistant to rust, heat and acid—gives "Caloric" the ability to outlast two of the cheaper ranges. Then, when it comes to baking and roasting, you'll find the "Caloric" superior. The double oven bottom, with air space between, prevents oven from becoming suddenly very hot and burning the article—a fault common to ordinary gas ranges. See this superior gas range at

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Is A Remedy Without An Equal For COUGHS, COLDS, And All Affections Of The THROAT and LUNGS.

Coughs and Colds do not call for a minute recital of symptoms as they are known to everyone, but their dangers are not understood so well. All the most serious affections of the throat, the lungs and the bronchial tubes, are, in the beginning, but coughs and colds.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the admonition to all persons affected by the insidious earlier stages of throat and lung disease, as failure to take hold at once will cause many years of suffering, and in the end that terrible scourge of "Consumption."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is not Sold as a Cure for Consumption but, for affections tributary to, and that result in, that disease. It combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognized worth, and is absolutely harmless, prompt and safe. So great has been the success of this wonderful remedy, it is only natural that numerous persons have tried to imitate it. Don't be humbugged into taking anything but "Dr. Woods." Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

Mrs. W. G. Reid took the train for Lethbridge last night having heard that her brother was badly hurt at that place. He was thrown from his horse.

Four more land-seekers struck the town ready to buy a section of land each if they can find it to suit them.

Mrs. Brown and her son Rex returned from their visit Friday—Mr. Brown met them here and drove them to the ranch.

LIVER COMPLAINT

The chief office of the liver is the secretion of bile, which is the natural regulator of the bowels.

Whenever the liver becomes deranged, and the bile ducts clogged, liver complaint is produced, and is manifested by the presence of constipation, pain under the right shoulder, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, slimy-coated tongue and headache, heartburn, jaundice, sour stomach, water brash, catarrh of the stomach, etc.

W. T. Williams,
Architect.

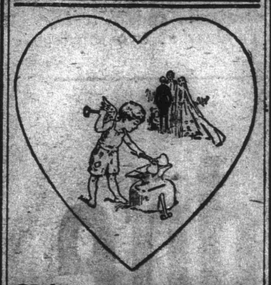
On Saturday Inspector Parker returned from Prince Albert where he has spent eight or nine days. He reports about a foot and a half of snow in the forest city, where winter conditions continue and sleighing is in full swing. Business circles are bustling and an excellent season is anticipated at Prince Albert and Saskatoon. In Prince Albert the construction of a $125,000 high school is under way. A great sight was the arrival of the Northern Express, which makes a round trip every day between the city and the Sturgeon Lake Lumber Company's place, 25 miles north. The "express" runs on a specially prepared track of frozen snow, and consists of 9 sleighs, each of which carries 2,000 feet of lumber, with a long caboose at the back. The train is drawn by a very powerful traction engine and travels at the rate of from five to six miles an hour.

Ottawa, March 12—Lieut.-Col. T. Turnbull was found dead yesterday in the bathroom due to heart failure. He was a native of Scotland where he was born 68 years ago, coming to Canada at the age of 26, when he became prominent in the promotion of the colization and development of the country. One of the last schemes in which he was interested was the Hudson Bay and Pacific railway. He is survived by three sons: Creighton of London, Eng.; E. L. Rae Turnbull of Medicine Hat, and Glen Turnbull of Alberta; one daughter living in Medicine Hat.

THE MARIE HALL CONCERT

A large audience greeted Miss Marie Hall assisted by her accompanist Miss Leonie Bosche, and Mr. Harold Bealey soloist at the Opera House here last night. While Miss Hall was undoubtedly the central figure of the programme, there was not a weak number on it, and every selection was repeatedly encored. Much credit is due to the Assiniboia Music Co., for securing such a high class concert for Medicine Hat.

IS IT TRUE?



It is stated that the enumerators have been left off the lists the names of 400 bona fide voters. Possibly this move is considered good politics on the part of the Liberals who are responsible for this work. But is it good local patriotism? The city's population is largely judged by the number of voters polled at an election, and a good poll is a good advertisement for the city. The Liberal policy seems to be, "Boost the Rutherford crowd, without knocking Medicine Hat if such a course is unnecessary, but at all costs—boost the Edmonton government."

One of the most remarkable proves of all, and one which any minister who was not utterly subjugated to his northern colleagues and a nonentity in the cabinet would have resisted, is the dismissal last week without previous warning and without any reason being given, of F. Black, a superintendent of public works in this district, in order to give the job to an Edmonton favorite.

Sir Gilbert Parker on Colonial Navies

If the cabled reports of the past week are to be relied on, there is now no "little navy" party in Great Britain. The disclosures made in reference to the two-power standard and Germany's colossal naval programme, have converted the strongest of anti-militarists and the Socialists.

The press of the anti-militarist party declares that economy must be disregarded and battleship construction furthered at a rapid pace.

In reference to the situation Sir Gilbert Parker, one of Canada's distinguished sons whose careers have been spent in the old land, says significantly:

"We must make up our minds to accept the inevitable result of the growth of naval feeling, and ourselves encourage dominions to build their small navies, so as to bring these navies into startegical co-ordination with our own."

FALSE PRETENSES

It may be remembered that early in the spring of last year a slick young Japanese, going by the name of Joe Otto, obtained a sum of money from Quon Quoy on false pretences. Otto represented himself as the owner of a pool room and bowling alleys business in Calgary. He wished, he explained, to sell out, and to set up for himself in Medicine Hat. Quon Quoy lent him $50 on the strength of the story, and Otto obtained in addition, goods to the value of $11. Shortly afterwards the Japanese disappeared and was eventually traced by the police to the British Columbia coast. There he of the Island Empire was found to be serving a gaol term, at Victoria on two different charges. Last week his 12 months in durance expired, and he was handed over to Sergt. Egan of the Lethbridge division of the Mounted Police. He was brought east and tried before Mr. Kealy on Friday and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary at Edmonton.

JACK JOHNSON PASSES THROUGH

Jack Johnson, the colored champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, passed through the city last week on his way from the coast to Galveston, Texas, where he is going to spend a quiet holiday with the old folks at home. Johnson says he will go on the stage if a sufficient inducement is offered, that is, provided he does not get a challenge to fight.

The City Gives Him a Handsome Majority

One of the surprises of the election contest has been the return of Hon. W. T. Finlay as member for the Medicine Hat District. Contrary to expectations every polling booth in the city gave Mr. Finlay a majority. His majority in the city being 396. In the country the Conservative candidate made a much better showing. The returns from this part of the constituency are very meagre, but so far as received indicate that the contest was close. The Conservative candidate spent nearly all his time in the country, and the result shows the effect of his work. It was this part of the constituency which elected Mr. Finlay at the last election, and it was thought that if this part could be redeemed, the city part was safe and Mr. Sissons would be elected. Whether there was some dark work done or whether it was due to an effective organization we cannot say, but in any case the result in the city was a surprise to all.

The following is the result of the polling-booths so far as received when we go to press:—

A Terrible Tragedy of the Montreal Wreck

The most tragic feature of the Montreal train wreck of last Wednesday was the death of Mrs. W. J. Nixon, wife of the well-known train despatcher of this city, and her two children. Mr. Nixon has been a resident of Medicine Hat for about four months and a few days before the accident he left for Montreal in order to bring his family out west. He arrived in Montreal shortly after the wreck, and finding his family away returned to the station where he identified his wife, son and daughter (aged 13 and 10) among the dead. Great sympathy will be felt for Mr. Nixon in his terrible bereavement.

Of the cau'e of the wreck a Montreal despatch says:

March 17—An express train from Boston ran into Windsor Street station, Montreal, this morning and into the waiting room. One woman and two children were killed, and about ten or twelve occupants of the rooms were injured, some slightly. None appear serious.

The driver of the train was picked up about a mile outside of the station, and is unconscious in the hospital. Authorities are investigating but are unable yet to state the cause of the engineer and fireman leaving the engine.

Investigation shows in connection with the accident at Windsor street station that a steam plug blew out of the locomotive, and that the driver and fireman jumped from the engine. The driver, who injured who injured himself in jumping, is still unconscious. One woman and two children, the family of a train dispatcher, and another child, a resident of Montreal, who were in the waiting room, were killed, and two were seriously injured. No passengers on the train were injured. The train crew realized the speed at which the train was running and applied the brakes but too late to prevent the engine over-running into the waiting room. The station has been used for over twenty years, and during that time, while about half a million trains have been handled, this is the first accident.

BUSINESS CHANGE

In the first day's inquiry into the Saskatchewan school book contract it was discovered that there was at least two middlemen in the deal. One witness swore that he got a contract from Morang & Co. and afterwards sub-let it.

FORESTRY LECTURE POSTPONED

Considerable disappointment was felt on Saturday night when the illustrated lecture on forestry, by Mr. A. Knechtel, had to be given up on account of the non-arrival of a lantern. In a couple of weeks or so, however, Mr. Knechtel expects to be in the city again and to deliver his lecture under more favorable circumstances than prevailed on the last night in an election campaign.

MORE THROUGH TRAINS TO THE EAST

Beginning March 17th (Wednesday last), train No. 2 will run east of Winnipeg to Montreal. On the 15th March, train No. 1 began to run from Montreal to Calgary. Both these trains will resume their former schedule.

CHARGED WITH RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

On Saturday the 13th inst. L. Lowenthal appeared before Mr. O. W. Kealy charged with receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen. The goods in question consisted of pieces of brass, the property of the C. P. R., and the accused was charged with receiving these during a period extending over the past two months. Lowenthal was sentenced to two months in the guard room at Lethbridge. He has appealed the case which will come up at the district court in May. He was bailed out last night by Judge Mitchell in two sureties of $500 each. The prosecution was conducted by W. A. Begg, D. G. White defending.

A couple of youths aged 12 and 14 were charged with the theft of the pieces of brass (engine parts), from the C. P. R. They were sentenced to one month's imprisonment without the option of a fine. Four other boys whose ages range from 10 to 14 were also convicted of stealing brass and allowed out on suspended sentence. The Times withholds the names for the present.

BOWLING

The prizes won at the Calgary tournament were as follows:

Five-man team—1, Medicine Hat, $125; 2, Calgary Fill-ups (Carson, captain), $50; 3, Calgary No. 1 (Minkler, captain), $10.

Senior singles—1, James Mitchell, Calgary, $30; 2, Bert Bowsee, $10; 3, Carton, $5.

Doubles—1, Henthorne and DeWitt, $40; 2, Carson and Sutherland, $20; 3, Minkler and Sanders, $10.

These prizes were not up to first intentions, and as the committee have received delayed subscriptions and money from other sources, the prizes will be supplemented in equal proportion, with an additional $100.

Mr. Gordon Parker eldest son of Inspector Parker of the Mounted Police, had a remarkable escape from permanent disablement while braking on the road near Regina on the 9th inst. In the act of coupling up two cars he slipped as the train suddenly started up and fell with one foot across the rail. His ankle was caught under the wheel, but the car immediately rebounding he was able to extricate himself from his perilous position. He was conveyed to his home at Moose Jaw (refusing to go into the hospital) at Regina) where the Inspector met him later in the week, and the two came up to Medicine Hat together on Saturday night. Mr. Parker's foot has been badly crushed but he is making excellent progress.

On Saturday last Mr. Parker returned to Moose Jaw, having almost recovered from the effects of his accident. He is now able to place his injured foot to the ground with little resulting pain.

Medicine Hat Baseball Team

Billy Hamilton Busy Securing Players

Manager Billy Hamilton has been busy during the past week signing on men for the coming baseball season. Already he has secured half a dozen good men and before the end of the week he expects to have completed the team with a number of top-notchers.

Wm. Campbell, a school teacher, of Sioux City comes highly recommended. He has had two or three chances to play as a pitcher in the Western league.

Sam. Davidson, catcher, worked out last spring with Spokane and Butte.

St. Bennet, from Duluth, Minn., Western baseball circles, as he played with Edmonton in 1907. He is fast and a good hitter and fielder.

Jimmy Wilson, a young out-fielder from Everett, Washington, is a promising player.

Wm. Godfrey, recommended to Manager Hamilton by Roberts of Spokane, is said to have lots of speed and to be a good hitter. He is now at college and will be unable to report till June. Is 3rd baseman.

F. W. Townsend, catcher, formerly played with Peoria. He has been surveying in the north country for the past year or so and comes down from Prince Albert to report for the season.

Billy Blackburn, of Victoria has never played professional ball before, but he was a star pitcher among the miners at the coast for two years. He came east to spend the winter with his brother at Gleichen, where he was spotted by Billy Hamilton. He has turned down Vancouver who was negotiating for his services, in favor of the Gas City, and he has now been in Medicine Hat for some days.

Sid Williams, of Mullan, Idaho, will probably sign only as an outfielder.

Altogether the prospects for a successful season are bright. Practice will begin about the 20th of next month out at Jas. Fleming's ranch where the boys will prepare for a strenuous summer.

WORDS FROM THE AD. PHILOSPHER

(The Commercial)

A Business Man is never too busy. "Too busy to change ad. this week Special bargains from now until March 15. Call and enquire." This is taken from a Manitoba paper, and I contend that it is poor policy. It's as bad as allowing your front window to remain empty and dusty. Your ad. in the local paper is your credentiat to the buying public and it doesn't cost you one cent more to have a good pu.ling ad. than it does to say "We are too busy to write ads., etc."

It only takes about five minutes to write out a few of the good things that will interest the public. Don't puzzle your head and chew the end off your pencil for some catch phrase. The best catcher if I might use such a word is a price. Folks want to know how much it is going to cost.

Just while we are discussing this subject, I'll tell you about a merchant in Winnipeg who is losing big business by not pricing his articles shown in the window. This man is in the haberdashery trade and the articles of wearing apparel shown, such as gloves, etc., are really beautiful in style, general appearance and quality, but the whole value of it is lost by the absence of a price ticket.

A man comes along and something catches his eye, probably something he really wants, so he stays and has a look at it, but when he has finished the inspection of it, and it has probably pleased him, he can't find a sight of the price, and not wishing to be stuck, possibly at $1.50 for a tie when he only wanted to go about 75c., he passes on, although that tie or pair of gloves, as the case may be were probably about the price he wished to pay. This happens probably fifty times a day, as he has a good location. He pays a rent that amounts to about $250 a month. This is all fact, as I have just stopped and watch this occur several times in passing, and, to tell the truth I've never seen a person going in or out, but any number stop and look at his window.

DOES IT PAY?

Two weeks ago in The Times want columns appeared an ad. for a piano for sale. As usual the advertisement drew an immediate reply and the sale was made. Advertisers are realizing that The Times covers all the ground and are using its columns alone. In Want Ads. it stands alone. Why waste money elsewhere?

The Regina board of trade has passed a resolution urging the government to grant the city free delivery of mail. They point out that 20 cities in Canada enjoy this privilege but in only 12 there is postal revenue in excess of that of Regina.

Lethbridge Herald, March 15—The audiences at Wesley Church yesterday enjoyed two incisive and thoughtful discourses by the Rev. A. C. Farrell, B. A., of Medicine Hat. Mr Farrell's line of thought makes one glad he is a man—a living one—and stimulates him to play the man.

Miners Expect Settlement

Macleod, March 21.—At the adjourned meeting to fix the scale of the agreement between the western coal operators and District 18, U. M. W. A., which opened here on Tuesday, lasting all the week, a startling occurrence took place when the Crow's Nest Pass Coal company withdrew from the western operators' association, the action being decided upon by General Manager J. D. Hurd.

This decision means affairs look hopeful for a peaceful settlement with the miners here, and will be received with satisfaction by the merchants whose business is tied up on account of the friction existing.

The company owns Coal Creek, Michel and the Charbonde mines, and the hope of a settlement will be good news to the many men employed.

The Western Canada collieries at Frank are not in the association, never having joined.

The conference adjourned on Saturday, and will not resume until Tuesday on account of the provincial elections. At the resumption on Tuesday it is expected that the miners delegates will have to ratify the agreement before it is signed.

The men positively refuse to work without an agreement and say that there is no law to compel them to. It is expected that the conference will be concluded next Thursday.

BOYS SHOULD NOT RUN MARATHONS

Everybody—even those not usually interested in sports—has been devoting more or less attention to the Marathon races, in the last few years Interest in many cases, has been followed by imitation, and there have been all sorts of Marathons. The desire for emulation in this long-distance running feat, has extended to the young boys, to whom Longboat, Dorando and Hayes are names to be mentioned with reverence and since is felt by medical men, that the factory of imitation is going to prove disastrous to the datterers.

In New York recently a boy, imbued with the craze, had gone on running day after day, until his heart gave out, and he died of collapse. The highest medical authorities in England, in response to an appeal for their opinion in this matter, write thus: "We have no hesitation in saying, that we consider cross country races, exceeding one mile in distance, are wholly unsuitable for boys under the age of nineteen, as the continued strain involved is apt to cause permanent injury to the heart and other organs."

Running in moderation, when the frame and vital organs are in good condition, is the finest kind of exercise, but growing youth cannot stand the strain of long distances, and lifelong misery and weakness, results from over-doing in this line.

Alberta Clay Products Company

Operations Will Soon Begin

Our publicity commissioner, Mr. John T. Hall has received a communication from Alberta Clay Products company explaining why operations have not already been begun in Medicine Hat for the preparation of their extensive plant. There is no question of any change of policy on the part of the company or of any failure of their plans. The details of the work which must be decided on before actual building commences, have taken a longer time than was anticipated; and it may take two months longer before they are completed. It is the intention of the company to rush the building operations as soon as possible, and officers of the company will be here as soon as all the details have been decided upon. Medicine Hat will welcome this new industry to our midst—one which we trust is only the forerunner of a long series of industries which are to follow when our unique advantages become better known.

For ice-cream or ice-cream sodas go to Doty's.

P. S. A.

The large attendance which still continues to mark the meetings of the P. S. A. Bible class shows that the interest of the men has not abated. On Sunday afternoon a most interesting discussion on the "Believability of the Bible" took place and will be continued next Sunday. Musical numbers by the orchestra and choir were thoroughly enjoyed as was also a solo by Mr. John T. Hall rendered in his usual excellent style. A membership contest is at present under way which it is hoped will result in a large increase in the attendance and membership of this class.

Rutherford Government Returned to Power

Cabinet Ministers Hold Their Seats

The elections throughout the province held yesterday (with the exception of two constituencies in which the elections are deferred) resulted, so far as reports have been received, in the return of the Rutherford Administration. The opposition however have made several gains, and will be much stronger in the new House than in the former one. R. P. Bennett, of Calgary, will add considerably to the fighting strength of the Opposition, which though not as strong as desirable, will be much more effective than formerly.

The Conservative gains are Red Deer, one seat in Calgary, Okotoks, and Lethbridge District. But they have lost Nanton which was represented by A. J. Robertson in the last Assembly. In High River and Macleod the contest is very close and nothing can be predicted regarding the result until every poll is heard from. It is likely that either one of these will retain a Conservative member. Rocky Mountain returns a Socialist member. The results at the time of going to press are Liberals elected, 24; Conservatives elected, 4; Socialists, 1; in doubt, 2; not heard from, 8; deferred elections, 2.

The following are the constituencies:

Liberals elected—Alexandra, Calgary (1), Camrose, Cardstone, Edmonton (2), Claresholm, Cochrane, Diddsbury, Gleichen, Lethbridge City, Innisfail, Medicine Hat, Nanton, Olds Pincher Creek, Sedgewick, Stettler, Stony Plains, Strathcona, Ponoka, St. Albert, Vegreville, Wetaskiwin.

Conservatives—Red Deer, Calgary (1), Okotoks, Lethbridge District.

Socialist—Rocky Mountain.

In doubt—Macleod and High River, where results are close.

Not heard from—8.

CONTRACT AWARDED

A special meeting of the school board was held in the secretary-treasurer's office for the purpose of considering tenders for the dividing of the attic in the Montreal Street school, for class room purposes. There were present: W. J. Brotherton, chairman; J. Kennedy, A. C. Hawthorne, trustees.

The following tenders were received:

Oakes & Everard	$560
M. Leffler	570
A. P. Burns	528
J. E. Lussier	395
Morton Fulton	424
A. E. Fourth	505

On motion of Mr. Hawthorne the tender of J. E. Lussier was accepted the contractor to be required to make a 10 per cent. deposit to guarantee the completion of the contract. Mr. Brotherton pointed out that the accomodation would be on-y of a temporary character: it was not intended to use the attic for class purposes permanently. On Mr. Kennedy's motion it was decided that the outside of the rooms be boarded with shiplap to the ceiling.

The City Fathers

The New Waterworks Bylaw is Carried

The adjourned meeting of the council was held on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. There were present: the mayor, and Aldermen Robertson, Morrow, Spencer, Howson, Penhale.

A deputation from the agricultural society consisting of James Rae and F. L. Crawford further waited on the council in reference to their request for a guarantee of debentures. A statement was presented showing that the society owns 80 acres of land on which are buildings and lumber to the value of $1,400, and a half-mile track. The total value of the property was estimated at $4,500. The expenditure necessary to bring the buildings into line with present requirements was itemized as follows:

Fencing 40 acres with 7-foot board fence, about	$2,000
4 stables, 36x1000	6,000
Main buildings 48 octagonal	2,500
Grand stand	2,000
Refreshment room, bunk-house, etc.	1,000
Water supply and lighting	500
	$14,000

A report from Fire Chief Hatcher was received in which the following recommendations were made:

That the telephone in the power-house be moved and bells placed in different parts of the building.

Direct pressure from the power-house for use in case of fire on the hill.

That a definite basis be established with regard to the raising of the pay of firemen after one year's service.

That the building bylaws be revised.

That more hydrants be put in, at the earliest date possible.

That more alarm boxes be put in, and 12 firemen's tap bells for houses of firemen.

The report was referred to the fire water and light committee.

J. J. Mahaffy wrote in regard to taxation of the right of way property to Industrial Place. The taxation should be borne by the city from the date of the acceptance of Bennett and Hamilton's proposition. The writer had been unable to find any record of the acceptance of the proposal by th? clerk, and the agreement would therefore date from the date of the passing of the bylaw (Dec. 16, 1907) not May, 1907.

The mayor made a verbal report in regard to the proposed auxiliary steam pump for the pump house. It was explained that a number of tenders had been received for this additional equipment, the lowest tender being that of the Canadian Foundry Co., ($4,474). On Ald. Howson's motion the engineer was instructed to draw up a contract with the Canada Foundry Co. for the acceptance of their offer, subject to the passing of the bylaw by the ratepayers.

Ald Howson asked leave to introduce a bylaw to make provision for the management of the water system. This was in accordance with the decision arrived at some time ago, to have the whole of the city bylaws reconstructed in such a way as to eliminate obsolete matter and bring the whole system under a few general heads. On passing its first and second readings the waterworks bylaw was considered in committee of the whole, the discussion continuing until almost midnight. The bylaw passed its third reading by an unanimous vote of the council. It vests the control of the waterworks department in three commissioners to be appointed by the council. Under its provitions the water rates are due on or before the 25th day of the first month in each quarter, so that the gas and water bills may conveniently be paid at one and the same time. A discount of 4 per cent. is allowed on accounts paid not later than the date named. Defaulters may be sued by the secretary-treasurer in any court of competent jurisdiction. A special water frontage tax of 5 cents per lineal foot will be levied against property past which the watermains are carried. In every case the tax will be levied on the front of a lot only. The special waterworks frontage tax was fixed at 5 cents per lineal foot. All applications for water must be made in writing to the city commissioner of works, giving full particulars. In any case where the water service is turned off on account of non-payment of rates, a fee of $1 will be charged for the cost of turning on the supply after arrears have been paid. Any person vacating premises that have been supplied with water must give ten days notice in writing to the secretary treasurer, otherwise such person will be charged up for all water used after his vacating the premises.

The hours during which water may be used for washing windows with hose, or for fountains or watering lawns, gardens, etc., are 6—9 in the forenoon, and 4—10 in the evening, an extension of 2 hours over last year's regulations.

The bylaw comes into force on the 1st of April.

A revision of the schedule of water rates was made.

Aldermen Howson, Penhale and Robertson were elected as members of the joint committee to work with the board of trade.

On motion of Aldermen Howson and Penhale, Ald. Spencer was appointed acting Mayor, to act during Mayor Milne's absence.

Tenders have been opened for about $300,000 worth of work, including intake, dams on Bow River and first division of canal from Bow River 50 miles to Lake McGregor on the Southern Alberta Land Co's irrigation ditch. Lake McGregor is the company's storage reservoir which impounds 360,000 acre feet, and is one-third as large as the great reservoir on the Nile.

SPECIAL EDITION

The Red Deer Advocate comes to hand this week in a handsome 12 page edition printed on excellent paper and beautifully illustrated. There are numerous cuts of prominent men and illustrations of business enterprises. The paper is a credit to the management.

Alfred Shrubb defeated Fred Simpson in a twelve mile race at the Armory, Saturday night, by nearly half a mile in a twelve mile race. Shrubb led all the way. For the first eight miles Shrubb broke all records in recent professional long distance races. He completed the distance in 1.06:33.

ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT OF THE Y. M. C.

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting was held in the Y. M. C. gymnasium on Tuesday evening for the purpose of considering the athletic programme for the coming summer. W. J. Dimmick, president of the Y. M. C. officiated as chairman, and B. L. Ritchie was elected as secretary pro tem.

The first business was the election of officers for the Y. M. C. athletic department nominations were submitted by the nomination committee (Messrs. T. Gawley, P. White and A. Irwin) for the following: chairman, vice-chairman, managers, executive committee, secretary-treasurer.

Prior to the voting on the names submitted, speeches of an encouraging nature were made by W. L. Amy and Mr. M. A. Brown, the retiring Y. M. C. president.

For chairman the names of C. Neff and Geo. Cochran were submitted. Mr. Cochran, however, said that he would be unable to accept the honor and Mr. Neff was declared elected by acclamation. The nominees for vice-chairman were Chas. Pratt and Geo. Cochrag, the latter being elected. J. G. Porter and H. T. W. Forster were nominated for secretary-treasurer, Mr. Porter being elected. E. D. Bennett and J. Preston were elected managers of the baseball and lacrosse teams respectively. M. A. Brown was appointed to act with the committee, the other nominees being C. Pratt and Sam Bannon.

Mr. Dimmick stated that it would be the business of the committee to select managers for any other clubs which might be formed in addition to those already named. It would be their business also to appoint a manager for the boys, who should have someone to look after their interests on the committee.

The question of the holding of an annual meet or field day was raised by Harry Williams, the suggestion receiving support from Warden Johnson and others. Mr. Johnson stated that he thought it would be a good plan to hold such a field day, when those who did not take part in the regular games, would have a chance to participate. After further discussion it was moved by Mr. Williams, seconded by E. S. Frost, that the first annual field day be held on the first of July next.

Mr. Dimmick stated that the Y. M. C. executive had been looking at some property across the bridge with a view to obtaining a permanent field for sport purposes.

It was suggested by Mr. Johnson that the club should obtain an amateur card. Mr. Amy pointed out however that it was unnecessary for an institution to obtain the Amateur Athletic Association card for open events. Only in the event of the club putting up one of its members for a championship, for instance, would it be necessary to obtain the permit.

In regard to the proposed field day Mr. South stated that he would not like this to come in conflict with the annual Y. M. C. events, in connection with which he was himself putting up a cup.

The question of what other games in addition to baseball and lacrosse, should be taken under the aegis of the club was discussed, and a number of those present seemed to favor the idea of a tennis club being formed. Mr. Dimmick referred to the park courts, which possibly the club might be able to make use of, though there was no desire to conflict with the arrangements of the other club. Probably the best plan would be to go in for new grounds.

After a few remarks by Mr. Neff, who pointed out the desirability of the devotees of various sports pulling together the meeting adjourned.

BASEBALL

And now comes the "Salome twist." The latest wrinkle in the bender line is said to be the creation of Billy Campbell, the southpaw twirler of the Cincinnati Reds. Campbell practised the curve last fall. He said nothing about it until the team went to Cuba. Then he surprised his team mates by springing it. The "Salome" is an underhand "splitter" delivered with the left hand.

Bunny Pearce, who caught Campbell when the latter introduced the twist, says that it is the hardest ball to hit he ever saw.

"Talk about your wild and wooly twists, this stunt of Campbell's has them all beaten a block," says Bunny. "It comes up to the plate in a businesslike manner, so easy that the batter gets ready to knock it a dozen miles off. He swats away like a good fellow, but he generally hits where the ball isn't, for the ball performs a sort of a Salome dance just before reaching the plate, and twists out of reach of the bat so easily that the batter gasps."

The Calgary baseball club of 1909 was formed on Thursday last.

Distress from Upset Stomach

To cure your sour stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take you stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your stomach misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring. The Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetit, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of the stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness and many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that you stomach is as good as any that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

KING EDWARD BOWLING ALLEYS

Mr. Edward Chrischilles, of Vancouver, has been in the city for the past two weeks overhauling the bowling alleys, pool and billiard tables at the King Edward. Mr. Ed. Chrischilles is an old experienced mechanic in the billiard business and the public can feel assured that everything is in first class shape.

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

On Thursday, March 25th, at 8 p.m., Brigadier Adby, the S. A. singing evangelist will begin a five days, revival campaign in the Salvation Army hall.

The Brigadier has the reputation of being both an eloquent speaker and good singer. His singing, accompanied by music, has tended largely to his success as an evangelist.

We feel confident of assuring all the fullest satisfaction.

Do not fail to come Thursday, and thus be enabled to judge for yourself, as well as aid us in extending to the Brigadier a real Medicine Hat welcome.

Brigadier Adby arrives in our city Wednesday, March 24th, via 22.30 train from the east.

Make This Up at Your Home.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the method taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription which is said to be a positive remedy for backache or kidney or bladder derangement, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing them most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

How to Make a City Beautiful

(Calgary Herald)

Wm. R. Reader delivered the following interesting lecture on the culture of perennial and bulbous plants before the Calgary Horticultural society.

In the first place though probably the majority of my audience know what is meant by the term herbaceous perennials, they may be some present who do not. For the benefit of these I will explain that we gardeners understand by the term is that class of plants that have a perennial rootstock, but whose growth above the ground dies down annually, as distinct from annuals which die out root and branch each year, and must be reproduced from seed each season. On these lines such bulbous rooted plants as tulips, hyacinths and daffodils are herbaceous perennials, but for practical purposes are spoken of as a distinct class and are called collectively bulbs or bulbous plants.

Some Perennials Become Shrubbery

Some herbaceous perennials, when removed from their native climate to warmer countries become shrubby, just as some tropical and sub-tropical shrubs become herbaceous when grown in a more temporate region. An instance of this latter change may be seen in the case of the California tree poppy, romneya coulteri, which is a tree shrubb in its native habitat, but becomes a herbaceous perennial in England, being killed to the ground level each winter except in very sheltered situations. We see instances around us of plants that are practically herbaceous on the open prairie but become shrubs in the coulee and sheltered places.

A collection of hardy perennials should find a place in every garden. The treatment of many of the most popular and useful is of the easiest description, provided due preparation is made in the first place, and ordinary attention bestowed afterwards, in watering and kepping the borders clean and the plants properly tied up to protect them from the strong winds that are so prevalent here in Alberta. They constitute a very large class in nature, and a numerous selection unsurpassed in beauty and usefulness when in flower may be obtained for garden embellishment. Some are well adapted for massing in large or small beds, and the items of fashion is, at the present time, in this direction. The majority, however, most suitable for cultivation in private gardens may be better arranged in mixed borders. Perennials have this advantage over annuals, that, in planting you are in a manner planting for all time whereas annuals must be raised and planted each year at the cost of quite a considerable amount of labor and expense. Of course I would not advise the exclusion of annuals. Each class should be represented and by a judicious arrangement they may be used in conjunction with very pleasing effect.

The Flowering Period

A general display at any particular season as with annuals is not usually the rule with hardy plants of a varied description. The following period of a mixed collection in this climate would probably extend with one or another genus from the beginning of April to the end of October.

Various select perennials grown in quantity afford an invaluable supply of cut flowers besides making the garden gay both before and after the annuals are making their full display and they will render the garden attractive and interesting before it is possible to plant the summer occupants.

Perennials are quite unsuitable from an artistic point of view for geometrically designed beds, and should be confined generally speaking to the more informed mixed borders.

Perennials From Seed

Most perennials can be propagated from seed, but by far the best and most usual method with the majority is, by division of the old roots, unless it is desired to obtain new varieties. There are some exceptions of course, as, for instance, with aquilegias. As the stocks generally spread from the centre outwards, the youngest, best and most vigorous portions are to be found on the outer edges of the clumps and these should be selected for replanting, the weaker middle parts being discarded. If seed is used this should be sown during June or July, in prepared beds in a reserve portion of the garden. Some growers recommend sowing in frames or greenhouses and it is probable that more rapid generation and growth are secured by this, but, I am disposed to think that hardy plants require hardy treatment, and better results are obtained from out of door sowing, the plants being sturdier and stockier and more likely to survive the winter. When the young plants are large enough to handle they should be pricked off into the nursery beds and transferred to their permanent quarters the following fall or spring.

Fall Planting The Best

Fall planting versus spring planting seems to be a vexed question even amongst comparatively old experienced hands in this part of the world. With little experience of this climate therefore, I do not feel qualified to offer an opinion in the Old Country it is a well known fact that planting quite early in the fall immediately after the fall of the leaf leads to the best results, both with trees, shrubs and herbaceous plants, the reason being that the roots are still active, the soil warm, and the plant or tree has time to establish itself to a certain extent before the bad weather comes on. It can also make an earlier start in the spring and soon, being thoroughly established in its new position is enabled to withstand the drying winds of spring and the heat and drought of summer better. Here the climatic conditions are altogether different. We get a dry fall, winter and early spring, and the soil is frost bound from November onwards.

Drought the Great Evil

It seems to me, that the critical time here, is the early spring, and that it is not the cold that is the great evil, so much as the drought. If such is the case, I should say that fall planting might be made successful by planting late just before the frost commences, and thoroughly watering so that the roots are frozen in tight. As the thaw set in, in the spring the moisture in the soil will be available for the use of the roots as they become active and until the early rains come or water can be applied artificially and they will not find themselves in a dust dry medium, which would be fatal to them.

On the other hand the risk of this drying out may be altogether avoided by planting in the spring when growth has become active and rains will shortly follow. These are merely ideas of my own which are founded, not on practical experience, and I should therefore like to hear some discussion on this point.

How to Prepare Borders

In preparing borders for planting it is important that the soil be deeply trenched some time previous to planting, a liberal supply of well-rotted manure being thoroughly incorporated with the soil as the operation proceeds. By trenching, I do not mean merely digging, but I mean the bringing of the subsoil, which may be of a very unsuitable nature to the surface. The proper way to trench a piece of ground is as follows: In commencing the soil for about the width of three feet should be dug out of a spit and wheeled to the opposite end of the border, where it is intended to finish. The subsoil at the bottom of the trench thus formed should be broken up but allowed to remain where it is, a good dressing of rather coarse manure being added to it. Another width of three feet should then be marked out and the top spit of soil turned over to take the place of that wheeled away—the bottom being treated in its turn, like the first and so on.

Benefits of Trenching

The objects of trenching are, the provision of a deeper rootrun for the plants, and the retention of moisture in the soil. It is a well-known scientific fact that soil in a fine state of division absorbs and retains moisture better than that which is hard, and owing to the mechanical action known as capillary attraction this store of moisture is rendered available during periods of drought. Growth is invariably more vigorous on trenched than on untrenched ground if the operation is carried out in a proper manner.

For a really good display the border should not be less than 10 or 12 feet as this width allows of a better arrangement being provided for the taller growing sorts, but of course very pretty displays can be made on much narrower borders by excluding the very tall subjects. The object in planting should be to dispose of the different colors, heights, varieties etc., of the material at command so that the whole shall prove equally interesting at all seasons without a repetition of similar effects in different parts. A knowledge of the habit, height, time of flowering, and other points in connection with the various plants employed will be requisite on the part of the cultivator or should be obtained by him from the nurseryman he purchases from to enable him to fix proper positions for each so that a gradual rise in the heights is secured at flowering time from the first line to the back. This cannot always be secured the first season on account of the nature of the soil and its effect on the growth of different plants, but any that are misplaced can be marked and the error remedied the following season. Bulbs may be inserted at intervals and allowed to take care of themselves.

Though the herbaceous border is at times, somewhat of a bugbear to the professional gardener, it is for the same reason, a continual source of interest to the enthusiastic amateur for he can invariably find something that requires attention. In this dry climate and with this porous soil, water must be very frequently and very liberally applied, then attention must be regularly paid to the staking and tying of the plants as they grow but those only of an erect growing habit should be so treated. The stakes should not exceed the height of the plants and should be inserted so as to be hidden by the foliage as much as possible.

Annual Digging Not Good

Annual digging is not to be recommended, as many of the plants are surface-rooting and are consequently much injured by the process. A slight forking over to break the surface with the addition of a light dressing of manure at the end of April is beneficial. The hoe should be used occasionally through the summer to keep down the weeds. Sufficient space should be allowed each plant without overcrowding any, and any subjects that spread beyond their limits—some of the asters, rudbeckias and hillianthus for instance—should be considerably reduced.

About once in four years herbaceous borders should be thoroughly overhauled, all the occupants removed, the borders manured, dug and replanted, and the larger clumps reduced, the outer portions of these being used, as before stated.

Most Attractive Sunflowers

Of the sunflowers, helianthus decapetalus, with its double variety multiflorous, growing to a height of five feet and flowering from August onwards; and helianthus rigidus with its chocolate disc and golden ray, are very old garden plants. Of rudbechias or coneflowers (closely allied to the sunflowers) the two most attractive are maxima and speciosa, the former sometimes reaching a height of 8 feet the latter somewhat shorter and both flowering profusely during the latter part of the summer. Monarda didyma in large colors—very white purple and scarlet—is very attractive. Height, 1½ ft. For that such considerable improvements have been made in the herbaceous genus of plants, the anuliecias or phlomises, by the hybridising of the sorts species, and chrysanths, given us those elegant long-spurred forms, such a wonderful range of colors, too much can scarcely be said of their usefulness. These are best raised from seed, though root division is the only sure way of perpetuating any particular variety withcertainty. The period of flowering is from June to August. The perennial delphiniums, or larkspur, are of an even handsomer flowers blue, purple, pink & white. They are of easy culture, in fact for liberal treatment as regards manure. The majority are tall growers, and should therefore find a placeat the back of the border. The large genus of the asters or Michaelmas daisies, so abundantly represented on the prairie, contains many handsome border plants. They belong to the section of so-called old fashioned garden flowers which are coming very much into vogue as well as great strides are being made by present day florists in their improvement. The name Michaelmas daisy is somewhat of an anachronism, as we find that many of the newer sorts flower in July, and by a judicious selection of varieties flowers of the genus alone can be had from that time till winter. Of herbaceous chrysanthemums, a Japonica, rosy carmine in color, and its white variety, Mme. are splendid border plants, height 2ft. to 3ft. As numerous kinds of gerberon grow abundantly over the prairie, the very showy varieties should certainly find a place in a collection of herbaceous plants suitable to this locality, as they are sure to succeed. Among the best of the speciosus grandiflorus violet, with yellow disc, height 2½ft.; purpurea, a much dwarfer variety, that could be placed near the front of the border; and F. gurantica, a yellow-flowered species.

Other dwarf plants that should find a place near the front of the border are pinks, in variety alyssum saxatile, Iceland poppies, and arabis alpina, with its double-flowered and variegated leaved forms. Among the genera of carrow flowers that are noticed as doing particularly well in Calgary are lychnis chalcedonica, flaageana, papaver, orientale, the large scarlet oriental poppy, and numerous varieties of phlox decussata. Bulbs as popularly understood, are some of the most useful and ornamental of plants alike for indoor and outdoor culture. A florist will tell us that many of the bulbs we call bulbs are not bulbs, but are corms or tubers, as the case may be, but as the cultural requirements are to a certain extent, similar, and the so-called roots have somewhat a family likeness, we put them in a class for practical purposes. They are amongst the first of our spring flowers. For the greenhouse conservatory bulbs are absolutely indispensible, and the fragrant white Roman hyacinths and the graceful narcissus, paper white are available, as cut flowers for winter onwards. The window garden, again, has in bulbs the most festive of all floral subjects, and height, bulbs vary greatly, from a few inches to several feet, form a

Culture of Proper Kinds

The culture of the various kinds is of the easiest, popular mistakes are in undue haste in planting time, in the using the manures, and in the depth at which the bulbs are planted. As a rule spring flowering bulbs should be planted not later than the beginning of September. Plenty of roots are then made early, and unless roots are made leaves rather than flowers are produced. The later summer flowering bulbs should be planted in the spring. Owing to the dryness of this climate, I am of the opinion that bulbs should be planted at twice or three times their own depth at least. For instance one which is 2in. in height in the dry state should be planted from 4in to 6in. deep. In planting beds or groups, care should be taken to plant at a uniform depth.

The commonest and most popular bulb, and those of easiest culture, are hyacinths, daffodils, tulips, scillas, alliums, frittilarias liliums, English and Spanish iris, gladioli, ornethogalums and tritomas. I am not sure that these will all thrive in this district, but they are all most certainly worth a trial.

As regards outdoor culture, hyacinths succeed best in light soil and a sunny position. If massed in beds they should be planted nine inches apart and the beds afterwards mulched. It is advisable to leave this mulching on throughout the spring, as it prevents the blossoms being splashed and soiled by heavy rains. The numerous and very beautiful species of narcissus or daffodils are amongst the most popular and cultivated of spring flowering bulbs. The majority are extremely accommodating but a rather deep and stiff soil generally gives the best results; and if the position is partially shaded from hot sunshine in the spring the flowers retain their beauty for a much longer time. Narcissi are well adapted for planting beside ponds and in mixed borders. They are also suitable for naturalizing in grass and in open spaces between trees and shrubs. The foliage of these, or, indeed, of any bulbs, should on no account be cut off while green, but should be allowed to die naturally. Transplanting should be done if possible, in August, for new roots are produced in September. If the operation is delayed till later in the autumn, more or less injury and check is sure to result. Narcissi are rather gross feeders, and an annual top dressing of well decayed manure will prove beneficial. Amongst the best of the old varieties are emperor and empress, horsfieldie, golden spur Sir Watkin, barri conspicuous, and cynosure. Though not so chaste and delicate in appearance as the daffodils, tulips possibly rank highest for showiness and brilliancy of coloring. It may not be without interest to my audience to hear that in the middle of the seventeenth century tulips became the object of trade such as may possibly not be met with again in the history of commerce, and by which their price rose above that of precious metals. Of course, the high price paid for the bulbs, amounting in some instances to prices equivalent to $1,200 and even $2,000, did not represent the actual value of a root, since the large sums often changed hands without any transfer of property. Bulbs were bought and sold without being seen—without being even in existance. In fact they were the subject of speculation, not unlike that of real estate during the boom on this side of the Atlantic. Tulips can with safety be planted later than most bulbs, from the middle of September to the beginning of October. They should be planted six inches apart.

Irises Succeed in Light Soil

English and Spanish Irises succeed best in light, rich, sandy soil; in a sunney position, but one protected from strong winds. The bulbs should not be disturbed more than is absolutely necessary, so should have a position on the herbaceous border.

Beautifying the City.

By way of conclusion I would like to point out that far more can be done in the direction of the beautifying this city of ours by the private individual, once he has become keen in the matter of cultivating and beautifying his own garden, than can be done by any number of city councils. No branch of horticulture, in my esthmation, is so likely to arouse and hold and arouse but sustain that keen interest desired, as the cultivation of hardy perennial and bulbous plants. Like trees, though perhaps in a less degree, they are of a permanent nature they are endless in variety. Their cultivation is easy and simple; they render the garden interesting from early spring to late autumn and last, but not least, they require no expensive greenhouses or frames, at any stage of their culture and consequently are within the reach of every individual however modest his means; who may have a plot of ground which he desires to make "a thing of beauty and a joy forever."

BRONCHITIS

"Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes.

The Symptoms are tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, and a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color. Neglected Bronchitis is one of the most general causes of Consumption.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine SYRUP

Mrs. D. S. Miller, Allandale, Ont., writes: "My husband got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my little girl who had Bronchitis. She wheezed so badly you could hear her from one room to the other, but it was not long until you could see the effect your medicine had on her. That was last winter when we lived in Toronto.

"She had a bad cold this winter, but instead of coming another bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup I tried a home remedy which I got from a neighbor when I found that her cold lasted almost twice as long. My husband highly praises Dr. Wood's," and says he will see that a bottle of it is always kept in the house."

The price of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 25 cents per bottle. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, so, be sure and accept none of the many substitutes of the original Norway Pine Syrup."

City Council.

On Monday evening the 15th inst. the regular meeting of the council was held in the city hall, there being present, the mayor, and Aldermen ... Conlee and Dowson.

Judge Mitchell wrote in regard to the shutting off of water and gas at the house formerly occupied by John Chapman. It was desired to rent the house for a new tenant and the council were requested to turn these services on again. The secretary-treasurer stated that Chapman's gas was cut on in June of last year, when a heavy bill had been run up with the gas commissioners. Ald. Dowson said there had been many other similar cases at the time when money was scarce in the city. The matter was referred to the water commissioners.

John Williams wrote asking to have his gas account reduced. On motion of Aldermen McKay and Morrow the gas commissioners were requested to have the meter tested.

A deputation from the agricultural society waited on the council, Jas. Rae acting as spokesman. He explained that the society are the owners of 80 acres of land out at the race track. They had been working at a great disadvantage owing to the want of proper buildings. The race horse people of Winnipeg and of Brandon wished to send their horses to Medicine Hat to winter and fit for the spring races. It would take $15,000 to fix up the buildings as the work should be done, and unless the council gave assistance the only way in which the society could attempt to raise the money was by begging from the merchants. All that the society could raise yearly at the present time was necessary for ordinary expenses. The speaker estimated the cost for the main exhibition building at $2,500. In addition to this, three stables would be required, 36x100. A grand-stand, with refreshment room underneath should also be provided. The matter would presumably be referred to the ratepayers before the expenditure was incurred. A guarantee of debentures was wanted, 20 year 5 per cent. debentures being suggested. Upon the mayor enquiring whether the society would be in a position to pay yearly towards the wiping out of the principal, Mr. Rae said that he thought that if interest were paid, there would be people here in the city in 20 years time, who would find it much more profitable to retain the land and buildings. It was, however, for the council to decide whether or no they wished the society to make payments towards a sinking fund. Messrs Cully and Fawcett also addressed the council in reference to this matter. The Mayor stated that the matter would be brought up in council; it required some consideration before action were taken. The public works by-laws would be submitted at an early date and probably this question could be laid before the people at the same time. In reference to the annual fair ar. Rae stated that he thought it likely that August would be the month chosen for this year, as in that month the Turf Association meet would take place.

A deputation from the Board of Trade then waited on the council, a copy of a resolution passed by that body being handed to the mayor. A grant of $3,000 for the current year was asked for, the board estimating their total expenditure at $4,500, $1,000 of which would go in entertaining. This would not include the expense of entertaining the delegates to the Association of Canadian Municipalities convention, for which purpose $1,000 was to be granted out of the provincial treasury.

In speaking before the council on this question, F. L. Crawford said it was difficult to trace the accrued benefits of the board of trade's work. Their case was similar to that of a merchant who might not trace his sales directly to his advertisements, but whose business was benefited in a large degree indirectly. Personally, the speaker thought the board of trade was worth while. In times past the president had had the pleasure of doing a large amount of entertaining at his own expense. There is no reason, said Mr. Crawford, why out of his own pockets a board of trade member should spend hundreds of dollars for the advertising of the town. Critics had stated that the board of trade should not exist merely for the benefit of real estate holders. But if real estate holders paid their share of the cost they were entitled to their share in the results. H. Stewart and E. S. Martin and W. H. Turpin spoke in support of the grant, Mr. Turpin expressing his conviction that the present year would be one of the best in the history of Medicine Hat. Ald. Spencer did not think it reasonable that the city's business men should bear the whole of the increased cost of publicity. The council will go into the matter at a later meeting.

Before the deputation left Mr. Crawford made reference to one of the possible items of expenditure which would be involved by the board during the season—J. T. Hall might be asked to go to Denver to look into the beet sugar industry.

The council then reverted to the consideration of communications, and a letter from E. J. Fewings was read. No suitable site had been obtainable for the isolation hospital, which according to law, must not be within 300 feet of the nearest building. The property which had been under consideration was less than this distance from the hospital fence. This piece of land, owned by John Hawk, was thus out of the question while block G, owned by the hospital had been twice under water during recent years. The question was referred to the health and relief committee to consult with the city engineer.

A communication from the school board anent F. F. Fatt was received and filed and a motion passed that at the next regular meeting of the council a bylaw be prepared for the election of a trustee.

The Medicine Hat Printing and Publishing Co., wrote in regard to their application for five cent rate for gas. They enclosed communications from the provincial attorney-general, who stated that under the workmen's compensation act a factory was defined as "a building, workshop or place where machinery driven by steam, water or other mechanical contrivance is used." All the employees of the establishment were entitled to compensation in case of accident, unless their remuneration exceeded the amount of $1,200 per annum. The letter from the local firm complained of the "dilatory manner" in which their application had been handled by the council. It was decided to take the matter up when the revision of the city bylaws is under consideration.

C. A. Krauss wrote resigning his position as auditor. The communication was left over until the next regular meeting of the council in order to give Mr. Krauss an opportunity to explain his reason for resigning.

W. H. Bridgeman asked to be exempted from payment of water and gas rates for January and February on house lately occupied by J. Forbitts. The latter had not paid any rent for those months and he had received support from the writer. Referred to water committee.

The solicitor wrote in regard to Ald. Robertson's proposed amendment to building and fire bylaws, that as the whole system of bylaws was under consideration and the work would probably be completed by the next meeting, it would be advisable for the chairman of the fire committee to renew his notice of motion. Action was taken accordingly along these lines.

A petition for cement sidewalk on Third Ave. between Balmoral and Princess streets was received. This was filed and the petitioners notified that a gravel walk will be made for the present year. All the estimates for cement walks had been completed.

The following amounts were recommended for payment:

H. C. Cooper	$ 11.00

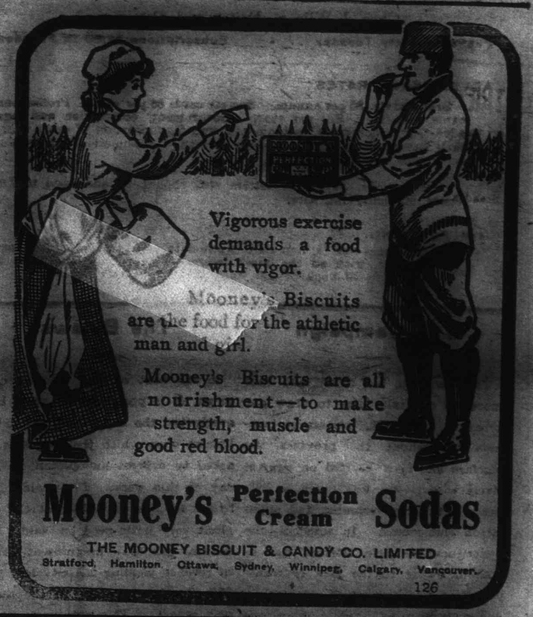
Water commissioners reported in favor of a special frontage tax for sewers. Out of a total of $55,000 to be spent on these improvements, $32,853 would be borne by the city at large and the rest by the property owners. In the case of corner lots, assessment would be made on street frontage only; in the event of an extra connection being made, a rent would be charged for the additional service. The report was adopted.



Public works committee reported that an arrangement had been made with the Revelstoke Lumber Company in regard to the scales which the firm desired to be permitted to put in with a portion of the platform on the street. Permission to use the desired space was given, the city's interests being safeguarded by a clause whereby the company agree to remove the platform if the space is at any future date required for sidewalk purposes.

Twenty-one applications were received for the position of sanitary inspector, and were referred to the board of health.

The council then adjourned until Thursday evening.

CLUBBING OFFER

The Home Journal is a rapidly improving Canadian magazine which deserves the support of all Canadian citizens. It has taken an exceptionally high stand on all moral questions; and as a home magazine is a credit to Canadian journalism. It started as a small magazine at a subscription price of 50 cents per year, but is rapidly increasing in size and influence. On June 1st it is to be increased in size and the subscription raised to $1.00. In the meantime you can get a year's subscription for 50 cents, and you will thus be getting a dollar magazine at half price. Take it in connection with The Times—both for $1.90. (The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents, nor does it necessarily agree with them.)

Dear Sir,—

Gray wolves seem to be playing terrible destruction among range cattle at present. One party on the bench has a man doing nothing else but killing them. It is said that another outfit in the Cypress Hills has had a critter killed every day for a week, that they known of. Four days ago a two year old steer was killed in Mclays pasture, but killings go on regular there. Lately several carcases have been seen north of Medicine Hat. Last week a yearling belonging to Mr. Forbes was tackled by a young wolf a short distance from Mr. Tenny's house on the north side of the river. The wolf got him down and tore some of the entrails out. Half way across the steer struggled to his feet, but was pulled to the ice once more, and five different times after reaching the south bank, on Mr. Lochier's range, his entrails dragging on the ice and ground all this time. Mr. Tenny traced the markings distinctly. Wolf trackstracks at the animal, coyote on the outside of the animal. Outside the financial loss are we going to continue to have the steel-clad hearts to allow the torture of our domestic animals to go on, for the sake of a few dollars immediate outlay, which won't be a tithe of the loss? Wolves are dining on us the year round although we don't know it, they eat at the first table seldom going back to eat cold victuals—coyotes clean up the leavings. When the wolf again gets hungry he kills another. Montana and all the country around us is filling with settlers and as grays do not like civilization we may as well make up our minds that we have to feed him at this expensive rate until he is exterminated. Which shall it be? Organize and offer sufficient bounty,—next month and May are good ones to catch them. They can be traced to their breeding dens in the snow, or after rains. Have one pay-master, and don't expect the poor hunter to earn his hard earned money twice, by going around to each member, humiliating himself by begging what he has already well earned. You would not try to make a living at it if the bounty was $100 The writer would not make his salt if it was twice that amount.

From this date until a better arrangement is made, the following parties will give $35 for each gray wolf killed and $10 for pups to the 1st of August, within this boundary —commencing north of the Saskatchewan, N. E. Township 18 keeping 15 miles west from the river till it strikes the railway fence, that to be the south boundary to Suffield.

After killing a wolf the hunter must notify, within 24 hours, one of the two nearest members of this association, who on satisfying himself, will give an order on the treasurer, Mr. S. T. Hopper, Medicine Hat, who will pay when the hide has been examined by the government inspector. We will contribute to the fund one cent and a half for each branded animal owned or run by us:

The British manufacturer is at last awakening to the immense field for enterprise in Canada.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH SCORES ANOTHER TRIUMPH

Chatham, Mass., March 11—Blanketed by a dense fog and proceeding at half speed, the well-known coastwise steamer of the Maine S. S. Co., the Horatio Hall, Portland for New York, and the H. F. Dimmock, of the Metropolitan line, New York for Boston, met in the middle of the narrow channel known as the Pollock Rip Slue today with a crash that sent the Hall to the bottom within a half hour and caused the Dimock to run ashore six hours later on Cape Cod beach, where the passengers and crew of the Dimmock were landed without loss of a single member.

A brief wireless message which the operator on the sinking Hall managed to spread broadcast announced the collision which occurred at 8 a. m. but as he failed to give details the position of the disaster did not become known until the Dimock came ashore half a mile south of Orleans life saving station, shortly after two p.m.

During the six hours' silence half a dozen wireless stations, government, professional and amateur, from Portland to New London, were vainly endeavoring to obtain some news of the wreck, while the revenue cutter, Gresham, scurried up and down the coast in an effort to render assistance. As the fog cleared away in the early afternoon the Dimock was seen heading for the beach and half an hour later a boat crew with five passengers from the Hall, including two women, landed safely on Cape Cod beach and told the story of the thrilling scene of the early morning.

The sharp nose of the Dimock went through the side of the Portland boat abreast of the mainmast and had sufficient force to penetrate fifteen or twenty feet into the Hall's body. The Dimock started to back but seeing there were lives to save went ahead full speed and held her nose into the ragged rent of the Hall as she pushed the latter towards shallow water, rescued the passengers by dragging them over the tangled mass of wreckage and aboard the Dimock. When this was finished and the Dimock backed away the Hall slowly sank until she struck bottom, her hurricane deck remaining just above the water. While sinking a greater part of the crew left her in six life-boats. Capt. Jewell, his pilot, mate and two seamen refused to leave and remained in the pilot house of the Hall. The Dimock began to list badly before going far and made slow work to the spot where she was finally beached.

WANT LAW TO PROTECT GIRL IMMIGRANTS

Halifax, March 11—Immigration chaplains stationed at piers here have resolved to petition the Canadian Moral and Social League to ask the Dominion government to enact a law for affording immediate protection to young women landing at any Canadian port. It is claimed that young women coming alone from Europe are lured to houses of ill-fame in upper and western Canada and some disappear altogether.

In a similar way, a tiny cut may be the starting point of itching and irritating eczema; and the spot your child scratches on his head, the unsuspected beginning of ringworm or some other hair-destroying scalp disease.
Zam-Buk, while such a perfect healer, is also the inveterate enemy of skin disease. A burn, scald, cut, or bruise promptly and regularly dressed with this rare and rich balm cannot "turn the wrong way": and any tendency of the skin to become itchy, inflamed, or "mattery," is speedily checked. This is because Zam-Buk not only grows new, healthy skin, but, being so refined, is absorbed by the pores, and its healing essences make perfectly healthy all the underlying tissues. Always keep a box of Zam-Buk handy, for daily mishaps make Zam-Buk a daily need.

Mrs. H. Girdlestone, of 106, Rawdon Street, Brantford, Ont., says:—"I find Zam-Buk a splendid healer of children's injuries. My little boy burned his foot very badly on the red-hot lid of the stove. The skin was completely burned off, and he had a shocking foot, the wound turning to a running sore, festering and discharging. I applied Zam-Buk, and it effectively checked the discharging and festering, drew out the inflammation, and finally healed the wound nicely."
Zam-Buk is a positive and certain cure for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, piles, festering sores, ulcers, scalds, blood-poisoning, chronic sores, scabs, chapped hands, cold-cracks, chilblains, ringworm, scalp sores, bad leg, disease of the ankles, and all other skin diseases and injuries. The Campaign

The campaign has closed and once more we can take time to draw our breath. In all the centres of business throughout the province, the warfare has been carried on aggressively. Activity was much in evidence both in government and opposition club-rooms. In some of the constituencies little interest was aroused, owing to the lack of transportation facilities which means that news concerning public questions must travel slowly. The campaign has been too brief to awaken interest in such places. It is to be hoped, that next election we will have a longer time for the consideration of public affairs so that the vote will be an expression of opinion of all the electors. So far as the centers are concerned, three weeks is perhaps sufficient and some will feel thankful that it is over. But we must remember that everyone is not so fortunately situated as the inhabitants of the towns and cities. The settler on the prairies must be considered. In the country districts owing to the comparative isolation and the magnificent distances, news travels slowly and the campaigner works under difficulties. If there has been any lack of interest, it has not been due to any indifference to public questions but because the politician could not visit all the settlements.

One feature of the campaign over which we all rejoice was the absence of the scandal-monger. The campaign, warm as it was in places, was singularly free from personalities. This is a hopeful feature. Some of the campaigns have been so malignant in this respect that honest men with a reputation to sustain have hesitated about entering public life. If our public affairs are to be administered by honorable, capable men, both parties must frown upon the scandal-monger wherever he appears. This does not mean that dishonesty and graft should not be exposed, but that the campaigner who has a nose for scandal only, shall not be countenanced. Wherever wrong has been done, it is a public duty to expose it. But false charges against public men, uttered for campaign purposes only should find no place with either party. If the low-type public agitator and election-worker is allowed free scope, we will soon all need to unite in the petition of the poet, pessimistic as it is:

"God give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands.
Men whom the lust of office cannot kill,
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy,
Men who possess opinions and a will,
Men who have honor and who will not lie,
Men who can stand before a demagogue
And scorn his treacherous flatteries without winking.
Tall men, sun-crowned who live above the fog,
In public duty and in private thinking,
For while the rabble, with their thumb-worn creeds
Their loud professions and their little deeds,
Mingle in selfish strife, lo! freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land and waiting justice sleeps."

The Bylaws

In the heat of the election campaign, it is possible that some have overlooked the importance of the two bylaws upon which the burgesses are asked to express an opinion on Friday of this week. Concerning the bylaw for the extending of the gas plant very little need be said. Our natural gas is a magnificent source of revenue yielding the city last year $33,426.45 according to the auditor's report. This surplus is exclusive of the interest paid on debentures issued for gas extension purposes which interest last year was $4,065.68. So that after paying the cost of maintenance we are deriving a revenue of $37,492.13 on a capital investment of $109,999.27, which means that our present investment in the natural gas plant is yielding us a dividend of over 34 per cent. The council's proposition is to invest $20,000 more in gas plant. Doubtless this will prove as profitable an investment in time as that which has already been expended, and the wisdom of submitting this bylaw will be apparent to all. The only circumstances under which it would not be a wise investment would be in case the present plant were sufficient for all requirements not only for the present but for years to come. In that case we would only be lowering our dividends on present investments. But who will contend that the plant fully meets present requirements, let alone the requirements of the future? The experience of all who spent the winter here testifies that we need more gas pressure. The city has grown so that the existing wells are no longer adequate. The proposition of the council is to sink a shaft to the 2,000 foot level, or lower if necessary, in order to tap the higher pressure areas as at Bow Island. All indications point to the fact that Medicine Hat is the centre of the gas area, and when we tap the high pressure level, we can demonstrate to the world that our supply of gas is practically inexhaustible. This will prove a great drawing card to manufacturers and mean much for the upbuilding of the city.

There is yet another aspect of the gas extension bylaw. The city is growing. The advent of the Alberta Clay Products Company will mean new residences in that part of the city. These new comers will be, as residents, just as much entitled to the privilege of cheap fuel and light as we are. If we supply them from our present plant we are robbing ourselves of pressure, of which we have now none too much. The wisdom of the gas extension bylaw will be patent to all.

Regarding the water-works extension bylaw some explanation is due the Burgesses. The proposition of the council is to spend $36,000 in extending the present system. Here it is not so much a question of a good paying investment as it is a question of public health. Unfortunately that department of our civic business is not on as satisfactory a basis as our gas department. Of course we cannot expect our waterworks to be a revenue producer, but it ought to be placed on such a basis as will enable it to pay its way. The new bylaw regarding water rates which comes into effect on April 1st, will we believe, meet the requirements. In any case last year's deficit of $2,385.62 should not be allowed to occur again. There are some who are now escaping the water tax, with whom the new bylaw may possibly be unpopular, and the council is to be commended for grappling with the situation and bringing about a more equitable rate which will do away with the possibility of future deficits.

But the bylaw upon which we are asked to vote on Friday next is not concerned with present water rates. These are to be readjusted whatever is the result of the vote. The proposition is to extend the present system. The question is, does it need extension? A statement of present circumstances will be a sufficient answer to this question. All buildings on the hill are at present without fire protection. Although the water-mains have been extended in that quarter of the city, no hydrants have been erected. This is not only unfair to the citizens who live there, but also dangerous to the rest of us. A conflagration which got headway there, might easily sweep the whole city. Then again there are already applications from citizens for water privileges which if granted means that two miles of water mains must be laid. Have we any right to deny to these a supply of water, when water from our water-works system is the only source of supply? Furthermore it is generally conceded that the epidemic of typhoid fever last year was due to dead ends in our present water system in which vegetable matter collected, and decaying, bred disease. Add to this the fact that we have now $27,816.87 capital tied up in a filtration plant from which we are deriving no benefit because of the inadequacy. It must not be thought that our present filtration plant is useless. It is simply inadequate; and the capital invested there needs more invested capital before we can derive any benefit from it. Anyone who heard the lecture given by Prof. Edwards in the City Hall a few weeks ago will understand the meaning of an adequate supply of pure water. At present we are using unfiltered water, but with the approach of summer the situation changes, and unless we have a filtration plant in operation we will be compelled to use the muddy water which flows past here at that season of the year. The business-like proposition of the council is to extend the present plant to make it meet our requirements. An expenditure of $36,000 is proposed which if sanctioned by the burgesses will be expended in remedying all these defects. It will give us the following improvements:—

(1) fire protection on the hill;

(2) extension of water mains to the site of the Alberta Clay Products Co.;

(3) Extension of 2 miles of mains and water connections for which application has already been made by bona-fide citizens;

(4) The connecting of all present dead ends (these being situated principally in the north end of the city) so that a complete circuit will be established;

(5) the completion of the filtration plant to give a sufficient supply of pure water;

(6) the installing of an auxiliary steam pump for use in emergencies;

(7) the installing of transmission machinery which will double the reliability of the present plant. At present we have two pumps each connected with an engine, but the two are entirely independent. A breakdown in either pump or engine means the tying up of that portion of our water supply. But if, for example, a derangement should occur in one pump and also in the engine which drives the other pump we would be without water supply at all. The installing of transmission machinery means that in such an emergency the working engine could be connected with the working pump and we would still have half the present supply. If only an engine became deranged, the auxiliary steam pump could be utilized and the whole supply maintained. This would give us an efficient system.

Whatever may be said for and against the present filtration plant, one thing is certain, we have considerable capital invested there from which we are deriving no benefit. The addition to the plant would mean that we would get the benefit of considerable of the present invested capital, and obtain an efficient filtration plant with a capacity of two million gallons in 24 hours for future needs. Looked at from these view points, the two bylaws should commend themselves to every burgess. It is a business-like proposition which ought to be endorsed.

If you are a burgess and the council's proposition appeals to your judgment, do not stay away from the polls on Friday next because you may happen to be busy, thinking that there will be enough votes cast to carry it anyway. If you take that attitude, it is possible that the bylaws might be defeated, and the good work of the council largely annulled.

It may be stated in conclusion for the information of the burgesses that the water commission has already placed an order for all the required machinery (subject of course to the passing of the bylaw) so that the work as necessary can be proceeded with, without delay. Also that a temporary arrangement has been made by which they expect to be able to supply enough pure water until the larger plant is installed. Vote for the bylaws on Friday.

Advised for years with distressed Liver, Mr. L. E. Dewitt, Berlin, Ont., writes: "Have used your MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS and find them the best pill for the liver I have ever used in my family. Have also used them for my patients while practising them, and it is a well-known fact that such pills as these must keep the liver and bowels regulated. Have also used them myself for years with a diseased liver, and have tried all kinds of medicines, but of no avail, until about four years ago I tried your Laxa-Liver Pills, and got almost relief from them. I have recommended patients afflicted with small doses, and in each case I have had your valuable pills.

"My wife and also all persons suffering with sick headache or liver complaint will say MILBURN'S Laxa-Liver Pills. I will advertise them wherever and whenever I have an opportunity and I hope that if at any time I should get the pills, I will be able to get the formula.

"Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25 cents per vial or 5 vials for $1.00, or all dealers, or mailed on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont."

There were two big dances a short time ago, the last of the season, one held at Pearl Coulee and the other at the school house. Large crowds were present both from town and country on both ocassions, and enjoyable times were spent.

James Walker who has been visiting his brother at Spring Coulie since New Year's has returned to his home near Olds more than ever convinced that there is no climate like the Chinook Belt. He returned alone.

W. S. Johnson has returned from Ontario where he wintered and it is reported that he intends buying a few more sections of land here and going into horse ranching extensively.

Rev. Mr. Fraser held service at Antelope Coulee last Sunday and we understand there was a very large turnout, as there always is, to hear this popular preacher, wherever he goes.

Mr. Morrison, from the Soo line, who bought a section of land in this district last fall, has moved out here and is settling down in good shape, having brought four carloads of outfit with him, including stock implements, steam plow, a carload of seed grain, household effects, etc. He intends going into farming on a large scale and is a welcome addition to the neighborhood.

Mr. Wm. Fenton has returned from Scotland—and he returned alone—sad indeed.

Reports reach us that there is lots of snow south and south-west of here which will make plenty of water in the creeks for the summer.

Prospects are very favorable for crops this spring, as there is more moisture in the land than there has been for six years at this time of year. The weather keeps quite cold but the farmers expect to get on the land soon.

Mock court was held Tuesday evening at the Putnam residence. Court opened by an address and presentation of bachelor's buttons from the Gros Ventre Bar to His Lordship on his promotion to the bench. His Lordship made a very appropriate reply. The case was a breach of promise one. Rev H. Fraser acted as judge. The plaintiff, Angelina Perkins, (Mrs. Grayson), was well pleaded for by Messrs. Slack and Dolittle (Darling and Huston), while the defendant Jack Jones (Wm.Grayson) was ably defended by his lawyers, Messrs. Slocum and Scallwag, (Wm. Putnam and H. Grayson). The medical adviser and heart soother was Dr. Killemquick (Geo. Lait). L. C. Fleming was clerk of the court, and besides these there were a number of witnesses for both sides and a full jury. The leading lawyers, Messrs. Putnam and Darling, pleaded their respective cases with much joviality and eloquence. The plaintiff won her case full damages being allowed. After lunch music and singing were indulged in, and all went home feeling a pleasant evening had been spent.

Messrs Link and Read of south of the Hills, returning from Medicine Hat Tuesday attended the Breach of Promise case with Mr. John Huston, and acted on the jury.

Mock Parliament

NEW MINISTRY IN POWER

The long days of plot and intrigue of the opposition in the Mock parliament have at last been crowned with success and their coveted desire achieved. The government were caught napping and awoke to find themselves out of office, and their opponents jubilant over their hard won success.

The hush of expectancy at the opening of the session, the utter placitude with which they listened to the arguments of the ministers and followers contrary to their previous practice, all tended to show that something was brewing. Confident of an easy victory on the woman suffrage bill, many of the government members had stayed away, while the opposition ranks were unbroken. The debate could not last forever. Gradually the flow of argument and oratory subsided and the government in dismay was obliged to proceed with the vote. A clamorous tumult and all was over!

The house dispersed immediately to reassemble a few minutes later in very altered circumstances. The former leader of the opposition, Mr. Bryenton, with a proud smile in the Premier's place, his followers ranged alongside him—the late government to the left.

Mr. John Benson was unanimously elected to the office of speaker and in a few brief words laid before the members some of the vital rules of parliamentary procedure which he expected them to observe.

The question of an inter-city debate between Lethbridge and Medicine Hat was suggested and will be discussed at the next meeting.

The members in accentance of an invitation from the King's Helpers of the Methodist church left their seats at 10 o'clock to partake of a banquet provided there.

A most interesting time is expected this week when the late government, bristling with indignation over their recent defeat, will attempt to make things "hot" for the present administration.

The new cabinet is as follows:

Premier—P. R. Bryenton.

Minister of Justice—S. E. McClellan.

Minister of Finance—W. N. Smith.

Minister of Railways, Canals and Public Works—Geo. Cunliffe.

Minister of Customs and Inland Revenue—H. T. W. Forster.

Minister of Agriculture—A. L. T. Hoffman.

Minister of Admiralty—E. S. Frost.

Minister of Militia—A. Patterson.

Minister of Marine and Fisheries—E. B. Asselstine.

Minister of Labor, Trade and Commerce—G. R. Kennedy.

Postmaster General—S. V. Hill.

Secretary of State—Chas. Pratt.

Minister of Interior—B. F. South.

The following address was read by the leader of the new government upon his taking his seat on the treasury benches:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:—Owing to the recent defeat of the late government on the Woman's Suffrage Bill, and to the fact that the resignation of the Prime Minister was duly tendered and accepted, the Governor General has seen fit to call upon the leader of the Opposition to form a Cabinet, which was forthwith undertaken and completed, and has subsequently received the approbation of the Governor General.

The following is a profile of the measures to be introduced by this Government for the consideration of this House during the present session thereof:

A Resolution to be sent to Great Britain and [illegible] Colonies expressing the anxiety of this Government for entering into a compact with Great Britain and the several British Colonies for the immediate establishment, control and operation of cables, to be operated at nominal charges, connecting the different Colonies more directly with each other and with the Motherland; and further expressing the willingness of this Government to bear its full proportion of the cost of establishment, operation and maintenance of such a system. This resolution will moreover embody a suggestion (which can be worked out collaterally with the operation of this system of cables) that an Imperial Intelligence Department with headquarters in Great Britain and branches in the various colonies be created for the purpose and object of disseminating among each of them information regarding the material doings and happenings in every part of the British Empire, thereby acquainting each of them with the mind and thoughts of the other.

A Resolution to be sent to Great Britain and each of her Colonies intimating, that in the opinion of this Government, a policy of Imperial Free Trade would contribute an irestimable amount toward the better consolidation of the British Empire; and announcing the agreeableness of this Government to gradually effect the changes in its tariff which would be concurrent with the promotion of such a policy.

A Bill providing for the creation of a Department of External Affairs.

A Bill providing for a graduated income tax, and for death duties.

A Bill putting in operation a comprehensive scheme of Aforestation and Reforestation which will tend to conserve and develop the forest wealth of Canada, and also those conditions of climate, etc., which are vitally related to such conservation and development; and incidentally having the further object of absorbing and utilizing surplus labor during periods of industrial depression.

A Bill providing for the payment of a cash subsidy to a company that will build and operate a line of railway from the City of Edmonton, in the Province of Alberta, to Dawson City in the Yukon Territory.

A Bill placing restrictions upon the marriage of imbeciles, degenerates and the incurably diseased, having as its primary object the raising of the standard of the mental, moral and physical life of the people of this country.

A Bill to inaugerate Proportional Representation.

A Bill to provide for our aged and infirm people who have insufficient means of support.

In order to cheapen and expedite the traffic between the East and West of this Dominion, a Bill will be brought in providing for the construction of a canal from Georgian Bay directly to the Ottawa River, large enough to admit of the passage of orean liners, and to provide also for such deepening of the Ottawa River between its junction with this canal and the City of Mootreal, as will be necessary for the efficient working of the scheme.

SALVATION ARMY ENTERTAINMENT

The musical entertainment held under the auspices of the Salvation Army in their hall, Friday night, gram consisted of selections by the brass and string bands, vocal and instrumental solos and duets, readwas a splendid success. The proings and recitations, which were highly appreciated by all, as was shown by the hearty applause accorded by th audience.

A similar entertainment will be given in about four weeks, when even a larger attendance is looked for. All who attend may be assured of a pleasant and profitable evening.

YOUR DANGER BEGINS WHEN YOUR BACK ACHES.

It is the First and the Sure Sign of Kidney Disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills

cure the aching back by curing the aching kidneys beneath—for it is really the kidneys aching and not the back.

They act directly on the kidneys and make them strong and healthy, thereby causing pure blood to circulate throughout the whole system.

Mrs. Frank Foos, Woodside, N.B., writes:—"I was a great sufferer with backache for over a year, and could get nothing to relieve me until I took two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and now I do not feel any pain whatever, and can eat and sleep well; something I could not do before.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

Miss Gertrude White gave a large tea on Monday, the 15th inst., in honor of Miss Marie Hall. Miss White received in her studio on Main Street, assisted by Mrs. White, Mrs. F. O. Sissons, Mrt. Meiklejohn and Miss Holmes. Mr. Leonard's studio was used as a tea-room, the table being centred with high cut glass vase filled with pale pink streamers and ferns were brought from the chandelier to the table. Mrs. McCarter poured tea the first four, Mrs. F. G. Forster the second, and Mrs. J. A. Carbert the third. The punch bowl was presided over by Miss Belle McLaren and Miss Ruby Patterson. Miss Ula Rae, Miss Marshall and Miss Nicoll assisted.

A small fire broke out on Sunday at the corner of Toronto street and Third avenue. The alarm was rung in at 4 o'clock and the firebuys made a remarkably quick turnout. They arrived on the scene, however, to find that their services were not required as the flames had been extinguished by a few pailfuls of water.

The loss amounted to about $25, and was principally due to damage to window blinds and fancy cushions. An overheated fire place was the cause of the outbreak.

The City

Discussion of Agri and Board of Tr

On Thursday afternoon at 3.30 a special meeting of the city council was held for the purpose of disposing of the questions raised by the Agricultural society in regard to guaranteeing of its debentures and by the board of trade in regard to an increased grant. There were present: the mayor, Aldermen Morrow, McKay, Spencer, Collier, Howson and Penhale.

Before the council went into consideration of these two matters, the plans of H. C. Cooper for market building were looked over and after a short discussion, referred back to the parks and markets committee for certain alterations to be made.

The mayor then went on to define his attitude in regard to the Agricultural society's request for a guarantee of debentures. If the council could lend their aid in any shape or form to improve the farmer's condition, he said, he was in favor of action being taken, but in the present instance the amount asked for was very high. Ald Penhale believed in municipal help for agricultural people. The cost of the present proposition, however, was too high. It was an unsatisfactory state of affairs when an outlay of at least $1.50 was necessary for a visit to the races. There was an item of $1 for transportation to and from the grounds, and in addition 50 cents charged for admission. Reference was made to the Lethbridge fair which the alderman had attended. There the day of the fair had been declared an open day and the liverymen's license regulations suspended with, as a result, cheap transportation.

Ald Howson thought that if the society was of any benefit to the town it was "up to us" to support it.

Discussion of Agricultural Society and Board of Trade Proposals

On Thursday afternoon at 3.30 a special meeting of the city council was held for the purpose of disposing of the questions raised by the Agricultural society in regard to guaranteeing of its debentures and by the board of trade in regard to an increased grant. There were present: the mayor, Aldermen Morrow, McKay, Spencer, Collier, Howson and Penhale.

Before the council went into consideration of these two matters, the plans of H. C. Cooper for market building were looked over and after a short discussion, referred back to the parks and markets committee for certain alterations to be made.

The mayor then went on to define his attitude in regard to the Agricultural society's request for a guarantee of debentures. If the council could lend their aid in any shape or form to improve the farmer's condition, he said, he was in favor of action being taken, but in the present instance the amount asked for was very high. Ald Penhale believed in municipal help for agricultural people. The cost of the present proposition, however, was too high. It was an unsatisfactory state of affairs when an outlay of at least $1.50 was necessary for a visit to the races. There was an item of $1 for transportation to and from the grounds, and in addition 50 cents charged for admission. Reference was made to the Lethbridge fair which the alderman had attended. There the day of the fair had been declared an open day and the liverymen's license regulations suspended with, as a result, cheap transportation.

Ald Howson thought that if the society was of any benefit to the town it was "up to us" to support it. Wherever the races and the annual fair were under different management and held on different dates the results were unsatisfactory. Now the two organizations were amalgamated and success more easy of accomplishment. The matter should be dealt with on a purely business basis; otherwise it should be dropped. He agreed with Ald. Penhale in regard to the excessive cost of transportation. We could not continue to hold up the town for the sake of a few license holders. Ald Spencer saw one objection to the present arrangement for the summer races; that was in the excessive distance between the city and the race-track. He believed that the council should encourage anything that would draw people to the city. Ald. Collier did not think any great benefit would accrue to the town from the expenditure of the $15,000 as proposed. Before we could have successful agricultural fairs we must first of all get the agriculturalists. Ald Morrow pointed out that if the amount were reduced the proposition would be much more likely to be passed by the rate-payers. It was all very well for the society to talk about the employment of 50 men for the purposes of looking after horses wintering here, but unless some guarantee were given little weight could be attached to such a statement. On Ald. Howson's motion, seconded by Ald Morrow, the mayor was authorized to appoint a committee to confer with the Agricultural society in regard to the matter. Aldermen Howson, Collier and Morrow were appointed.

The letter from the board of trade, asking for a grant of $3,000, was then read in council and the mayor

Mounted Police Notes

Inspector Parker was away for several days last week, inspecting detachments. He left on Tuesday for Medicine Lodge where he found Dr. Scott, who is attending to the smallpox quarantine among the half breeds of the Cypress Hills. Twenty-five families or eighty-five persons in all, are in quarantine, and among these there are eighteen cases of the disease. The epidemic has been taken well in hand by Dr. Scatt who believes there will be no more members of the quarantined colony brought down. It is of a mild type only two cases being virulent. He is constantly fumigating and has vaccinated all the half breeds in quarantine.

On Wednesday Inspector Parker visited Josephburg wherb he was egiled upon to hear the case of Mrs Jacob Reib, accused of tearing down Wm. Elfert's fence. A youngster by the name of Henry Otto was the witness for the prosecution; he told a very straight-forward story. Mrs Otto (who figured in the famous "Dreamer" case last year) denied the whole story and said that some cattle and probably a number of horses had broken through the fence. Her daughter, Katrina, corroborated the story.

The question was then put to young Otto as to whether he found the hair of cattle on the barbs of the fence at the place where it was broken down. He replied that the barbs were perfectly clean in this respect, and left little doubt of the guilt of The defence although was very weak the accused. Inspector Parker dismissed the case, however, though in future cases of this kind will be very severely punished. Constable Wiedeman acted as interpreter in the case.

Inspector West was in the city on Friday morning. He went out from here to attend to a police horse cut by barbed wire in Josephburg. It had been found impossible to secure a vet. in the district. Inspector West returned on the Flyer on Saturday afternoon.

School Board Passed Bylaw Last Night

At a special meeting of the school board held last evening in the secretary's office, the board decided to adopt the architect's original plans for the high school (or rather "public" school building as it will now be called), which will be erected in block 19. A public meeting will be called when the matter will be discussed for the benefit of the ratepayers, after which a plebiscite will be taken.

OUR DEBENTURES IN DEMAND

The city has received an offer of 105 for gas extension and 105½ for water works extension debentures—conditional on immediate acceptance—by the Dominion Securities Co. It seems to be a paying proposition to have the city audit by chartered accountants and the business conducted on the best business principles. spend fifty thousand

The committee appointed by the Mock Parliament to deal with the matter of the inter-city debate sent a challenge to the Lethbridge Y. M. C. last night. The subject for the debate to take place in the city hall on the evening of Friday, April the 23rd, will be:

"Resolved, that it would be more conducive to the best interests of the British Empire for Canada to proceed at once to create a navy of her own for the purpose of co-operating with the British navy in Imperial defence, than for Canada to contribute annually toward the support of an Imperial navy through an Imperial Council in which she would have due representation, and within whose jurisdiction would come its entire management and control."

The Y. M. C. here offer to pay first class return fares and provide hotel accomodation for three debaters and a judge from Lethbridge. The merit of the debate will be determined by three judges to be chosen, one by each of the parties concerned and a third by these two. It will be left to the Lethbridge men to decide which side they shall take in the debate.

Maurice Ryan has been found guilty of the murder of his brother about Nov. 8th last. He was sentenced to death on Tuesday last.

Hon R. Rogers and Hon. Colin Campbell, of the Manitoba Government, have returned from Ottawa where they were negotiating with the Federal authorities regarding the extension of the Manitoba boundaries. The two governments were unable to agree on the terms on which the new territory should be admitted into the province of Manitoba, and it is unlikely that any bill regarding it will be introduced this session.

STILL MORE COMING

Toronto, March 24—Two C. P. R. trains left the Union station last night with Ontario men and families numbering 500 in all, who will settle in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The Easter Road Race

Entries and Prize List

A meeting of the donors of prizes for the Good Friday Marathon was held in the city hall on Friday evening. There were present: Messrs. W. Turpin, chairman; M. A. Brown, secretary; Ald. Spencer, E. M. Cawker, S. T. Hopper, C. Rossiter, C. J. Wilson, and J. Turpin.

It was decided to extend the time for entries for one week, until 6 o'clock in the evening of Friday next. In order to obviate the sharp turn at the corner of Toronto St. and Fourth Ave., a change in the course has been made. The route to be taken by the runners is now as follows:

Starting from the city hall the competitors pass along Main St. to Crawford's corner, thence along 6th ave., across to Toronto street, along Toronto street to the top of the hill. They will then take the left hand trail all the way to the race track, circle the track three times and return over the same course.

The Marathon is being run under the rules of the Alberta Amateur Athletic association, which is affiliated with the Canadian Amateur Athletic union. The management desire to call attention to the following rules regarding Marathon road races:

1. No competitor either at the start or during the progress of the race may take or receive any drug. The breach of this rule will act as an absolute disqualification.

2. If necessary the station of each competitor at the start will be determined by lot, and in the event of competitors being too numerous to be stareed on a single line, they will be started on two or more lines.

3. Each competitor shall be allowed one attendant who shall wear on the arm the same distinctive number as the competitor.

4. The attendant shall during the race remain benind the competitor he is attending or be sufficiently in front to prevent them giving outside assistance. Non-observance of this rule will disqualify the competitor.

5. Attendant will not be permitted at the start of the contest, but must proceed to an appointed place, not less than one mile from the start, and join their competitors as they pass. No attendant will be allowed to finish with the competitors.

6. Any competitor who drops out of the race and who subsequently obstructs another competitor, or who seeks to finish the race without having run the whole course, will render himself liable to suspension by the registration committee.

7. Any competitor whose attendant abstructs another competitor will be disqualified.

8. Each competitor must provide his own attendants and required refreshments.

In regard to rule 5 it may be said that the corner of Toronto street and the trail will be the point beyond which attendants will be allowed to handle their runners on the outward trip, and the point where they must leave them on the return.

The following eighteen entries had been received up to Friday night:

Alexander Keith, Art Halward, Jas McMurrie, Jas. Halward, Tom Barefoot, Sam Taylor, Frank Colter, C. Forster, Alwyn Collier, Samuel Bannon, Percy White, John Todd, Peter Downey, Gordon Reiter, Wm. Bannon, John Mitchell, W. B. Finlay, Eagle.

Eagle, the last named competitor, is the Indian who made a name for himself as a high-jumper in last year's Labor Day sports at Police Point.

The prizes are now on view in Turpin Bros. window.

The ten prizes will not be put up unless there are at least 15 starters in the race. The boys who have already entered are training hard and during the last few weeks there has been in evidence a marked tendency to early risirg among Medicine Hat young men.

Ottawa, March 24—Shortly after opening the house Hon. R. L. Borden announced that Lord Strathcona had offered to devote $10,000 annually to the encouragement of military and physically training of both sexes in the schools. The letter stated that Lord Strathcona's conviction was that the first duty of every citizen was to be able to defend the country in the hour of need. He recommended a board composed of provincial educational ministers as vice-presidents and the minister of militia as president.

Sir Frederick Borden stated that he had cabled a grateful acceptance to the high commissioner who, in a private communication, said he would forward a cheque for a quarter of a million as soon as the acceptance was notified.

The minister also asked permission to call the fund the "Strathcona Trust." Earl Grey and the premier have consented to become patron and vice-patron respectively. Premier Laurier, in moving a vote of thanks to Lord Strathcona spoke of the commissioner's valuable services in the past and of the value of this gift to the youth of the country. R. L. Borden seconded the motion, declaring this action is in entire harmony with Lord Strathcona's wonderful and patriotic carreer.

Mock Parliament

Challenge Lethbridge to Debate

The first sitting of the house under the new government was held on Thursday evening, when, a few minutes after 8 o'clock the speaker took the chair and called the house to order. The members of the new administration, flusned with the first excitement of power mustered in large numbers, whilst the party in whose control but a week ago were the destinies of a nation were represented only by a few of the front bench politicians.

On motion of the Premier, Mr. P. H. Bryenton, the ordinary business of the House was suspended for a short time, and the question of an inter-city debate between Medicine Hat and Lethbridge, raised at the previous sitting, was gone into in detail. It was decided to issue a challenge to our sister city and the premier, the leader of the opposition (Mr. J. Sansom) and the minister of justice (Mr S. McClellan) were appointed a committee to select three debaters, and to decide upon the subject for debate.

The first action of the new government was to bring in a resolution bearing on the naval situation as recently disclosed in Imperial Parliament, and the House was requested to authorize the immediate offer of one first-class battleship of the Dreadnaught type to the Imperial authorities. In an able speech Mr. E. S. Frost, the minister of admiralty, (a portfolio created by the late government) moved the adoption of the resolution. It was shown that at the present rate of Germany's shipbuilding, in 1912 not only would the British two-power standard be lost, but the Fatherland would actually be in possession of twenty-one Dreadnaughts as compared with Britain's twenty vessels of this type. Reference was made to the outburst of patriotic sentiment which had led the New Zealand government to offer to defray the cost to the Motherland of one Dreadnaught, and of a second if it were required. It was felt that Canada must bear her share of responsibility at this crisis in the history of our race.

After the resolution had been seconded by the minister of finance (Mr W. N. Smith) the leader of the opposition rose to express his desire that active and immediate steps should be taken to relieve the naval situation. His party, however, were opposed to the contribution of a subsidy to a government over which the Canadian taxpayer had no control. Such a course would be a violation of the principles dearest to our hearts as British people. It meant taxation without representation, a policy which the opposition were prepared to fight to the death.

The premier replied to the opposition criticism, stating that negotiations were now under way with the British government for the representation of Canada on a Council of the Empire. Meanwhile immediate action was necessary.

Mr. Henderson a new member from the hypothetical constituency of East Fife, made a vigorous attack on what he described as the government "Alarmist Policy". Mr. Asquith had stated that there was no fear of British supremacy being challenged; in tonnage and in every other way the British navy in 1914 would outclass the fleets of all rivals, even as it did today.

After some further discussion the motion was put and carried by an overwhelming majority.

Mr. Bryenton then went on to expound the government address, meeting with a volley of objections from the opposite side, and the most caustic criticism.

Prior to the adjournment it was moved by Mr. Bryenton that a letter be sent to Mr. C. A. Magrath, M. P., expressing the thanks of the House for his donation of Hansard and $10 towards the work of organization. This was supported by Mr. Sansom and Mr. Smith, and carried by an unanimous vote. A letter has since been forwarded in the following terms:

HOUSE OF COMMONS
Medicine Hat, Alberta.
Office of Clerk.
March 26th, 1909

C. A. Magrath Esq., M.P.
House of Commons,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—

The following motion was unanimously passed at a Sitting of the House on the evening of Thursday, March 25th;

Moved by the Premier,

Seconded by the Minister of Finance,

"That the sincere thanks of "this House be tendered to Mr. "C. A. Magrath, M.P., now at "Ottawa, for his kindness in forwarding "Hansard" for the use "and benefit of the Members, and "also for his donation of $10 for "promoting the business of this "Parliament."

I am,
Your obedient servant,
S. G. Bannon,
Clerk of the House.

The Crisis in Imperial Defence

How the British Peace Projects were Frustrated by Germany

The sensation caused by the naval disclosures in the British house of commons was but the climax in a situation which has been growing in urgency during many months past. Even five years ago naval experts had begun to utter words of warning to advise the British nation to prepare for a struggle for race supremacy. More recently a solemn warning was uttered in the house of lords by Earl Roberts, who in the outspoken language of the soldier referred to the menace lurking on the continent. But the warnings fell on unheeding ears.

Shortly after the conclusion of the Boer war, when the martial feeling had reached high-water mark, a reaction set in. As the aftermath of war came heavy taxation, unemployment increased in volume, and the problems of the slums and of sweated labor assumed more serious proportions than had been known for many years. For the first time in history the working classes exercised the powers given them in the last Reform bill. The gospel of Socialism preached for many years at the street corners and in the trade unions, had its influence on the political plane, and the Labor party was born. In the classes immediately above a sympathetic movement became apparent. The ideals of the middle-class Socialists and neo-Socialists, which had been permeating society for many years, became predominant, and the British people turned their attention to social reform.

It was on the crest of this wave of Socialistic thought and feeling that the present Liberal government was returned to power in 1906, pledged to the traditional policy of "Peace, Retrenchment and Reform." Coupled with the pledge to economy, was another directly antagonistic to it. During the election the Liberal candidates had been profuse in their promises of Socialistic legislation, and in the commons they found a compact party of thirty-two Labor members to keep them to their word. Hence the old Age Pension bill, which will cost the nation over $40,000,000 annually. Money had to be saved in some department, and, pending the introduction of a new system of taxation which should make the rich bear a greater portion of the public burden, and relieve the poor, economy was practiced in the naval estimates. From $62,800,00 in 1906 the expenditure was reduced in one year to $55,500,000; in 1908 there was a slight increase to $56,000,000. Meanwhile the Liberal government attempted to open negotiations with Germany for the reduction of naval expenditure. This was in accordance with the spirit of the party and it was hoped by this means, and by the vigorous campaign being carried on for better Anglo-German relations, to put an end to the appalling waste of human life and energy involved in the piling up of armaments. A hatred of militarism and all that it implies, was the compelling motive. But the Kaiser and his government were unmoved. At the very moment when the Emperor penned his famous letter to Lord Tweedmouth (supposedly suggesting a better understanding between the two countries), Germany was accelerating her battleship construction and straining every nerve to bring the navy into rivalry with that of Great Britain. In the last Hague conference the proposals of theBritish delegates for the limitation of armaments were defeated through German opposition. The contrast between the British and German naval expenditures may be seen by a glance at the following table, the figures showing the total outlay for the whole upkeep of the fleets, so as to include repairs, construction and armaments:

	Britain	Germany
1906	$62,800,000	$33,800,000
1907	55,520,000	36,450,000
1908	56,000,000	47,400,000

Not until the present year did the British government give up hope of an understanding. The reductions in expenditure were the necessary accompaniment of the overtures to Germany, but they failed in their objective, and early in the year Premier Asquith and his cabinet decided to face the situation. The result was the statement by Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty a couple of weeks ago, and the patriotic wave which swept over the Empire and led to the gift of one Dreadnaught by New Zealand and the promise of a second if needed, and to the meetings of public bodies in Canada and Australia urging their governments to take action.

Nothing now remains but to demonstrate to Germany that the two-power standard (which requires that the British navy shall be equal in strength to the navies of any other two powers), will always be maintained. The other policy has failed, Germany and her people have been led to believe that Britain is fainting in the struggle and that if they make "just one more effort," they will have passed her in the race. In regard to such a belief the Spectator says: "That is the most dangerous feeling we can possibly encourage in the German people, and it is just the feeling we are encouraging by the policy of driblets. If on the other hand, we increase our pace so much as to place a very great distance between ourselves and our German competitor, and at the same time show unmistakable powers of staying then there is good ground for believing that it will be the Germans who will grow faint in the struggle, become depressed, and quit the race. Already there are signs in Germany that the people are saying: 'The game is not worth the candle. We shall never catch up with the British, and we are therefore exhausting our strength uselessly in trying to do so.' That is the feeling we want to encourage, and we can and shall encourage it if now—and now is the moment—we make a really great effort and show the whole world that we are absolutely determined no matter what the cost, not merely to keep just ahead, but to place a great and impassable interval between us and our chief competitor for the command of the sea."

Without assistance from the overseas British states such a policy imposes a well-nigh intolerable burden on the taxpayer of the old land. With that assistance the task will be possible of accomplishment. The moral effect on Germany of such action as has been taken by the New Zealand government is even greater than the material relief. At present the one great objection to any colonial contribution to the British navy is that such a payment carries with it no control of the expenditure. The present, however, is a moment of necessity, and, in the near future, signs are not wanting that Canada will be asked to take her place in a council of the Empire, where her voice will be heard in regard to all questions of Imperial defence.

London, March 27—Information has reached London, according to the Pall Mall Gazette, that the Antartic expedition under Lieut. Ernest H. Shackleton of the British navy, who left England in July, 1907 reached the South Pole.

Invercargill, New Zealand, March 25—The barquentine Nimrod, which early in 1908 took Lieut. E. H. Shackleton's Antartic expedition to the south, called here today on her return.

Lieutenant Shackleton declined to make any statement regarding his explorations. The Nimrod later left for Lyttelton, the port of Christchurch, N. Z.

The Nimrod expedition to the South Pole left England in July, 1907, after Queen Alexandria had given the vessel a flag, and King Edward had bestowed the Victorian Order on Lieutenant Ernest H. Shackelton, of the British navy, leader of the party.

The Nimrod carried a motor sledge for the use of the explorers and a number of Siberian ponies and dogs. The crew numbered 32 men all told including several scientists, and had provisions for two years after leaving New Zealand.

The landed party was to consist of 12 men. The Nimrod left the party in camp at the foot of Mount Erebus a point which was reached with considerable difficulty on account of the ice, and she left New Zealand last December to bring the expedition home.

It is possible that an appeal to the country will be made on the boundary issue by the Roblin administration in Manitoba.

BOARDING CAR FIRE

A fire broke out on Friday evening in a C. P. R. boarding car, near the C. P. R. ice house. The car was immediately uncoupled and hauled down to the crossing by the yard engine, 442, where it was blazing fiercely when the fire boys arrived. The alarm was sent in by Ed. Bentley from box 28, Mr. Wm. McNeely also telephoning a few minutes later. Some difficulty was experienced before a stream of water was obtained, the hydrant on the north side being dry, but after a connection had been made by the McNeely residence corner, the flames were soon under control.

The brigade made a smart turn-out when the alarm was received at the fire hall.

Mr. John Benson is proving an ideal speaker in the Mock Parliament. Both sides found themselves "up against" adverse rulings on Thursday. His absolute fairness was praised by all.

The monthly song service was held in the Baptist church on Sunday evening. Special anthems were rendered by the choir, and favorite hymns by the choir and congregation. The solos, "I Will Sing You a Song," by Miss K. Sinclair, and "I am Far Frae my Hame," by Mrs. Esplen were especially enjoyed.

A TEAM TO SEATTLE

Calgary, March 26—The captain of the Rambler bowling team of this city purposes to take at least one team to Seattle to enter the bowling tournament. George Scott has written the Seattle bowlers to find out just what teams have already entered and if the list is favorable an all-star Alberta team will be collected. The personnel of such a team might be Scott, of Medicine Hat, Schultz, of Edmonton, and Mitchell, Geo. Scott, Bowser, Henthorne and De Witt of Calgary. Such a combination would be a very strong one indeed and should come inside the money line at Seattle.

School Book Enquiry Closes

The enquiry into the school-book contract made jointly by Alberta and Saskatchewan governments has resulted in the clearing of the two Commissioners of Education of the charges of personal graft. It is gratifying to people of both stances of politics to find those in charge of their public affairs honest in their transactions. Incompetency on the part of a government is not nearly so serious an offence as dishonesty, we welcome the news that the ments concerned have been ac- of the charge of graft. The ing is Mr. Haultain's statement at the close of the enquiry:

"So far as this statement of graft is concerned, I acquit the Commissioner of any charge of personal graft, as I have always done; indeed, it is not necessary to acquit a man who was never charged. So far as the charge of graft which was made—which I admit was made—interpreted as allowing a contractor to make unreasonable profits, I admit, in the face of the evidence which has been given, there was no graft of that sort, because the profits were not unreasonable. At the same time I contend it was an improper contract; it was made under improper circumstances and conditions; and that an equally good book could have been obtained, at a slight reduced rate, and under better conditions, if the Commissioner of Education for this province had stuck to sound business principles, had followed up the sound principle of choice he began with, and had done his duty in getting all the information which was available to him and in making proper use of it."—F. W. G. Haultain.

"On the whole case as submitted to your Lordships, it appears that the Commissioners of Education of the two provinces could have acted in no other way than they did act. I think in the circumstances of this case, not only this province, but the province of Alberta, is to be congratulated upon the manner in which this contract has been managed from beginning to end, upon the way the negotiations respecting it have been carried out and the results which have been arrived at. The evidence has been of such a character that my learned friend (Mr. Haultain) this morning, quite gladly and quite properly, withdrew the charge which he had formally made, which he admitted he had made, that the charges were exhorbitant, were extravagant and were unreasonable, and it has been shown that the prices were, on the contrary, proper and reasonable prices; and therefore, under all circumstances of the case, the contract was one that should commend itself to the commission in its answers to the different questions that have been submitted to it, as it has no doubt already commended itself to the members of the legislature and to the electors throughout the province. I submit with a good deal of confidence to your Lordships the questions which have been put before you for reply."—J. A. Allan.

In this way the life time of western Canada gas fields will be doubled.

Outbreak of Rabies in Alberta

A most remarkable and terrible epidemic of rabies broke out in Red Deer some time ago, and since then the government has been quietly fighting the outbreak in the only known way, which is to shoot all dogs that are loose on the streets.

It has been the boast of dog fanciers that Alberta is a land where rabies are not, and this boast has been illustrated for many years. Mad dogs were things unknown until the recent outbreak in the north.

The head of an animal suspected of having died of rabies was sent to the government analyst, and he diagnosed the case as a bad case of the disease. The government immediately took steps to eradicate the outbreak, and Dr. McKay, the government veterinary, took charge of the work.

At Red Deer a large number of dogs were shot and all others kept shut up. Any dogs found running at large on the streets were promptly shot. Many were killed in this way.

The disease spread south an outbreak occurring in Innisfail, where it was thought it was carried by some affected animal from Red Deer. Here also drastic steps were taken, and the disease stamped out.

Dr. McKay states that all is now safe in the north, and there is no more danger, but the fact remains that Alberta is no longer so peculiarly exempt from this disease as was at one time thought.

Lethbridge Misrepresentation

By a policy of misrepresentation Lethbridge is endeavoring to create the impression that the gas well at Bow Island is actually a Lethbridge well. Only last month a prominent local man was in conversation in Moose Jaw when his acquaintance, a business man, mentioned the "great natural gas well at Lethbridge." As a matter of fact Bow Island is 67 miles from our sister city, which has been unsuccessful in her boring operations. Bow Island is in the Medicine Hat district, and we are here only under the necessity of boring deeper in order to obtain a similar flow to that of the big C. P. R. well.

Strike on G.T.P.

Prince Rupert, March 25—Work on the first mile of the G. T. P. from here has been at an absolute standstill for a fortnight past when the men struck for $3 in place of $2.25 which they have been receiving. It is reported this is being paid further up the Skeena.

On Jan. 1 the G. T. P. cut the transit men from $100 to $75 per month and the rodmen from $45 to $35 and with a few exceptions all the engineers and men are quitting.

When the townsite work and the land surveys were resumed cheques were made out at the reduced schedule. However, the provincial government pays this jointly, and their agent, William Manson, refused to sign the cheques for less than $100 and $45 respectively, maintaining the lesser figures were not in accord with the current wages in the district.

"DOOLITTLE VS. ADMAN."

"Do all the buyers that come to town see your goods, Mr. Doolittle?"

"I tell that second-cousin to a fool question, Mr. Adman. I'm doing well if half of them come into the store—and you know it."

"Well then how about taking your store to them?"

"I guess you've got a brain-storm, Mr. Adman, that what's the matter with you."

"No, Mr. Doolittle, that's not the matter with me—nothing like that in my family; but there's a whole lot the matter with the merchant who lets his trade paper get into the hands of all the buyers with a big display by his competitor of what he has to sell, and not a word about his own goods, or even the address of his place of business. You haven't got that brain-storm located right, Mr. Doolittle."

Indigestion is Ended Forever

Why not start now today, and forever rid yourself of Stomach trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, nor triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapepsin works, your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of indigestion.

BLOOD DISEASES

Guaranteed Cured or No Pay.

If you ever had any contracted or hereditary blood disease, you are never safe until the virus or poison has been removed from the system. You may have had some disease years ago, but now and then some symptom alarms you. Some poison still lurks in your system. Can you afford to run the risk of more serious symptoms appearing as the poison multiplies? Beware of mercury or mineral drugs used indiscriminately—they may ruin the system. Twenty years experience in the treatment of these diseases enables us to prescribe specific remedies that will positively cure all blood diseases of the worst character, leaving no bad effects on the system. Our New Method Treatment will purify and enrich the blood, heal up all ulcers, clear the skin, remove bone pains, fallen out hair will grow in, and swollen glands will return to a normal condition, and the patient will feel and look like a different person. All cases we accept for treatment are guaranteed a complete cure if instructions are followed.

This is Said to Help Many

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered as themost certain prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

A druggist here at home, when asked, stated that he could either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription for our readers, also recommends it as harmless.

Educational Experiments

Among the many projects for the accomplishment of imperial consolidation, none is more interesting than the experiment now being undertaken in educational exchanges between the various parts of Greater Britain.

For the academic year beginning September 1st, 1909, the Rev. Canon Vroom, D.D., of King's College, Windsor, N. S., will be lecturer at St. Augustine's College, Carterbury, England, while the Rev. Sub-Warden Cartwright, of St. Augustine's Canterbury, will for the same year be lecturer at Queen's College, Windsor.

"When examined," says Dr. Boulton, of King's College, "the advantages of such an exchange seem to be very great. Each respective professor will get the benefit of a year's experience in another country, under new conditions. He will note the difference in style, method and presentation of educational work. The students will have the advantage of coming into contact with men of varied experience; the Englishman will learn a good deal of the Canadian, and the Canadian will learn a good deal of the Englishman.

"To what extent the principle can be extended in other phases of the educational world—and in the professions generally, is a large question. Undoubtedly the experiment is being made under the most favorable conditions possible. Two colleges have been found of similar size—of like aims, and the matter of equating work has been comparatively light. But it would be interesting to have the opinion of the educationalists throughout the Dominion whether the principle could be extended in methodical manner.

"It would be a great thing" concludes Dr. Bouiden, "for a professor at a college, for a master at a school or for the pastor of a church to know that after seven or eight years' work, under more or less monotonous conditions, a year could be taven without much expense or anxiety—change of work for a year made under new conditions which would practically mean a great holiday."

CARMAN-JACKSON CONTROVERSY

Toronto, March 26—Yesterday was big with surprises for the Methodist church in Canada. The first was that the faculty of Victoria University decided unanimously to issue a declaration of independence of thought and freedom of speech, and to stand or fall with the much discussed views of Rev. Geo. Jackson, of Toronto, on the first chapter of Genesis.

The second was that a meeting of the board regents called last night by the chairman, Rev. Dr. Carman, general superintendent of the Methodist church and author of the virulent attack on Rev. Jackson, adopted the faculty's declaration, and ordered it published in the official organ of the church, "Methodist Guardian," a new declaration of principles and practically a new theological creed signed by the chairman himself. The meeting of the faculty last night was absolutely unanimous.

The meeting of the regents lasted nearly three hours. Dr. Carman presided, and there was a good representation of Toronto members. The Carman-Jackson controversy was amicably discussed. Chancellor Budwash presented the faculty's report, endorsing the new colleague, Rev. Jackson. Rev. Carman said the statements regarding Bro. Jackson were not intended as personal. The fervor of one member of the board was so stirred that he began sirging "Blessed be the tie that Binds," all joining in. Rev. Carman withdrew the strictures on Rev. Jackson's utterances.

City Council.

stated that "if the feeling here is that the board consists of cepable business men who are giving much of their time to the city's interests, and that the work is worth doing." then they thought that the grant should be given. If not, then "the board of trade should go out of business." That, said the mayor, did not appear to be a fair statement. The suggested grant, he went on appeared to raised therein. The writers had proceeded to discuss the questions be somewhat heavy; it was double the amount now being given to this work in Calgary. He did not wish to cast reflections, but at the present time the council were trying to reduce taxation of the working man to the lowest point. In regard to the proposal to send Mr. J. T. Hall to Denver to look into the beet sugar industry, he could not see what good that would be to Medicine Hat at the present time. He did not think money devoted to such a purpose would be well spent. Ald Howson could not see his way clear to support the request for the full amount. In his opinion the results obtained did not justify the expenditure of so much of the citizens money. Ald. Penhale was in favor of giving the same grant as last year. Ald. Collier, while he had some sympathy for the board, thought they had used a large amount of money with possibly the best intentions, though few apparent results. Mr. Hall was engaged for the purpose of bringing in manufacturerers. He did not know whether it was the intention of the board to continue Mr. Hall's salary in future years, but he felt that the organization was a good one and if the smaller grant would be acceptable, it should be given. Ald. Spencer laid emphasis on the necessity of keeping down the taxes. There had been no practical results obtained through the board's efforts that could be shown the public. Ald. McKay said that while he would not like the board of trade to drop out, he would not support a grant of $3,000. On Ald. Penhale's motion, seconded by Ald. Morrow, it was decided to make the same grant as last year, $1,200.

A communication from Malone, Malone & Long, solicitors to the Dominion Securities Co., was read, in which this firm expressed doubt as to whether the city charter gave sufficient authority to the city for the undertaking of a spur track and sinking of a gas well. They wished to be fully satisfied on these points. The bylaws, moreover, vested certain powers in the city clerk—an office which had since been abolished. They suggested that validating acts of the provincial legislature be secured to cover all the matters in question. Mr. Manally stated that he believed full authority was given in the charter. The giving of the gas well and right-of-way were in the nature of a bonus. This opinion Mr. Kealy shared. A bylaw might be passed authorizing the secretary-treasurer to act as clerk in matters pertaining to the spur track and gas well debentures. Of course no validatory act could be passed until the legislature met again, which would not be until the fall at the earliest. The letter was referred to the solicitor, the secretary-treasurer and the mayor.

Many people have been applying to the secretary for trees from the city authority be given him to deal with nurseries and Mr. Fatt asked that the matter. Ald Penhale suggested that all the trees be disposed of and the park improved by walks, etc. In reference to this Mr. Fatt stated that the trees from the nursery were for boulevard purposes as well as for the personal use of citizens. It was decided to advertise that until April 15th applications from citizens will be received.

The secretary-treasurer stated that twenty enquiries in regard to the next issue of debentures had been received.

The council decided to pay to the Rev. Mr. Damm the sum of $20 in settlement of his account for work in making water connection with his house last year.

At the next meeting of the council tenders will be opened for the roofing of the grand-stand in the athletic park. At the next meeting also the chairmen of the various committees will submit an estimate of their appropriations for the year.

Many Women Suffer Untold Agony From Kidney Trouble.

Very often they think it is from so-called "female disease." There is less "female trouble" than they think.

Women suffer from backache, sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability and a dragging down feeling in the loins. So do men, and they do not have "female trouble."

Why, then, blame all your trouble to "female disease"?

Most of the so-called "female disorders" are no more or less than "kidney disorders," and can be easily and quickly cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. O. Duguis, Belleview Village, N.B., writes: "I was unable to do my housework for two years on account of backache. I could not get up the stairs. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me permanently after doctors failed to even relieve the pain. I can highly recommend them to all sufferers from kidney trouble."

Why Christie's Biscuits are the best

GOOD BISCUITS are made by more than one or two manufacturers, and can be baked from any one of a few excellent brands of flour, but the Christie way is different.

The best millers in Canada ship us samples of their flour twice a year, or oftener. We test the samples and select the best brands for our purpose.

We blend the brands which we have proved best—keep on blending and testing by actual baking until we get a dough good enough to sustain, or better, the Christie reputation.

Every ounce of raw material is carefully analyzed before it can pass into the mixing room.

The best sugar, pure, fresh creamery butter, new sweet milk and delicious cream—these pure ingredients mixed with our blend of flour, in the Christie scientific way, yields that delightful, appetising crispness and delicate flavor which has made

Shall We Have a Public Cemetery?

The question is raised by a petition which is now being circulated and largely signed by rate-payers, asking the council to take over Hillside cemetry. This plot of ground containing 40 acres, which in the past has been practically a public cemetry under denominational control, we understand is admirably suited to the purpose for which it is being used. Whether or not it becomes a public cemetry, it will always remain a cemetry as it now possesses associations which make it a sacred spot to many of our citizens. We know of no place the size of Medicine Hat—or half the size for that matter—in western Canada, which does not possess a public cemetry. Not being acquainted with the circumstances which have prevailed in the past, The Times refrains from passing any opinion on the advisability of allowing this question to remain so long unsettled. But whatever may have been the circumstances heretofore, the time has now arrived when the city ought to own and control a cemetry. We have long passed the village stage in other respects and we ought to step past it in this. Much credit is due the congregation of St. John's Church for so long handling a proposition, the responsibility of which ought to be borne by the whole city. The enterprise has been far from a revenue producer. On the contrary, a few of our leading citizens have given their note to the Merchants Bank for $2,000 to obtain money to improve the property and make it worthy of the place.

The terms upon which the city can secure it are not yet known, so that no opinion can yet be formed as to whether Hillside cemetry should be the city cemetry. But if the said property cannot be secured on reasonable terms, which is unlikely, then the city should at once take steps to secure another plot of ground which will answer the purpose. The denomination which has borne the burden so long, should not be required any longer to give free plots, and in many cases services as well, to those who cannot afford to pay for such. This is a public duty which the city should no longer evade.

A practicable plan is for the city to issue debentures for $2,000 at least, extending over a period of about 20 years and pay off the present indebtedness on Hillside cemetry—provided of course that it can be secured on reasonable terms. The city could then proceed to extend its water system to this plot of ground so that sufficient water would be available to keep vegetation in good condition. This could be done at a small cost as the pipe would not need to be sunk very far below the surface, the water not being required during the winter months. It is to be hoped that the council will deal with this proposition with the same business insight which has characterized its past actions.

The Naval Situation

For about a century the British people have felt secure from the attacks of a foreign foe. Britain's navy has been her strength and her defence, and its supremacy has been unchallenged. Under the shadow of its protection Britain's commerce grew until it far outstripped that of any other nation. At home, manufactures flourished to load the ships which were found on every sea. Washed on all sides by the ocean wave, those in the home-land felt that an attack from an enemy was an impossibility, as no foreign army could possibly be landed on Britain's shores. It would be destroyed by Britain's navy before it could land. The benefits derived from this unquestioned supremacy have not been confined to Great Britain and Ireland. They have been shared by every colony which owes allegiance to the British crown. Because we belong to the Empire we in Canada, have needed no army, and have not been called upon to build battleships for a navy. We are British and that has been enough to guarantee us peace.

Now the comparative slumber in which we have rested so long has been rudely jolted. But we are thankful to note that the awakening has come not from without but from within. No nation has yet attempted to question Britain's naval supremacy. The time for that has has not yet arrived. The awakening has been brought about by Britain's discovery that Germany is building battleships faster than Britain, and that ere long, unless there is a change of policy, her fleet will be no match for that of the German empire. Just what the consequences would be to British commerce and British security from attack the average Briton does not care to contemplate. On every side, the attitude is that such a situation must not be allowed to arise. There are two possible ways of preventing it—war and the destruction of Germany's fleet, or the construction of sufficient battleships of the Dreadnaught class to keep ahead of Germany's rapidly increasing navy. The first alternative is very costly, and the result possibly a little uncertain as Germany's naval strength is now almost a match for Britain's. The second, and preferable one, is easier to decide upon than to carry into execution. It also is very expensive and the burden of taxation is already heavy. In fact, the British wage-earner is already groaning under its weight. But the difficulty is not one solely of finance. The construction of a battleship requires skilled labor of the highest class, and it would seem that England has not enough skilled workmen to complete the ships in the required time. Especially in gun-mounting is she outstripped by her German competitor. Small wonder then that the feeling is at high tide in England at the present time.

The policy of the present government has not been one of naval expansion. It has hesitated to add to the already heavy burden of taxation. Now there seems no alternative but to resign or bring in large estimates for naval expansion—large enough to construct battleships as fast as they can possibly be built. In England, governments are overthrown with a facility unknown here. The present one must yield to the popular demand for increased naval expenditures or give place to one that will.

But the question is not one solely confined to British politics. Britain will decide her own course without any advice from us. But the seriousness of the situation, together with New Zealand and Australia's example in contributing toward Imperial defence raises the question what should Canada do? The situation is undoubtedly an imperial one, and we as part of "the vaster empire than has been" must face it. So far we have been entirely free from the burden of militarism. It looks now as if the question is thrust upon us. Since her birth as a part of the British empire the child Canada has rested secure under the protection of the mother country. She has not needed to stretch forth her hand to that mother's assistance. But the child is developing so rapidly that it would be very proper and becoming for her to cease enjoying the protection without any responsibility. If responsibility is necessary for the making of a man, will it not also play its part in the making of a nation? Has the time arrived when we shall cease in this respect to be carried, and begin to walk alone? That there are those in Canada who think so is evidenced by the resolutions passed by the Vancouver Board of Trade and the Winnipeg Canadian Club, and the Empire Club of Toronto. The former last week after listening to addresses of a patriotic and imperial nature by its members unanimously passed and wired to Premier Laurier the following resolution: "It is the opinion of this board that the Dominion should at once offer to the imperial authorities a sufficient sum of money to build a modern Dreadnought of the strongest type." The latter recently passed a resolution affirming that the international situation is such that the Dominion of Canada should become responsible for a first class battleship at the earliest possible date. It also calls on sister Canadian Clubs to emphasize this need.

If the question were merely one as to whether we shall begin to cultivate the spirit of militarism which has so long been the curse and burden of Europe, there are few who would not give a negative answer. But the question is rather one of national manhood and patriotism, and the situation demands that we shall accept our share of a responsibility that is practically thrust upon us. That our representatives in Parliament will rise to the occasion we have no fear.

To Cure Meat.

A local authority gives the following suggestions regarding the curing of meat for summer use:

After the meat is cold, always let meat cool off thoroughly before curing, rub each piece with salt and allow to drain over night. Then pack into a barrel with hams and shoulders at the bottom, using sides and strips of bacon to fit in between and on top. Weigh out for each 100 pounds of meat, eight pounds of salt, ounces of salt peter. Dissolve in four gallons of water, and cover the meat in the brine. For long keeping and winter use, the brine should be boiled and then thoroughly cooled before using.

Bacon sides and strips should be kept in the brine from four to six weeks, hams and shoulders from six to eight weeks and then they should be hung and allowed to drain and afterwards be smoked.

The Dry Way.

After thoroughly cooling the meat and cutting up, rub the bacon well with dry salt in the bottom and see there are pretty thick layers of salt between each piece of meat, and then two pounds of brown sugar and two cover well with salt.

For a ham, say 16 pounds, take a half pound of brown sugar, one pound of salt, two ounces of saltpetre, mix the three well together, and rub the hams with the mixture every morning for say five days, leaving hams with skin side down after each rubbing. Let the hams stand ten days after last rubbing, then smoke them, say, a week or so, then dip the hams in a pan of boiling water. This will kill any insects or eggs of insects there may be on the meat. Then place the hams in sacks of some stout material, packing with oatmeal if desired. Sew up sack then dip the whole in thick lime whitewash and hang up again. Hams and shoulders cured in this way are sweet and juicy, shoulders can hardly be told from hams.

Hugh Kennedy, in the employ of the T. Eaton Co., Winnipeg, was killed in the elevator shaft on Monday last. The body was badly bruised and the unfortunate man only lived a short time.

Good Citizenship.

AN ADDRESS DELIVERED BEFORE EDMONTON CANADIAN CLUB

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Canadian Club:

I am glad to be with you to day. The last time I attended a Canadian Club luncheon was in the City of Vancouver last fall when that splendid pro-consul of the Empire, Lord Milner, spoke so wisely as to our national life and our relations to the Empire.

On the other side of the international boundary line they have a man with a big stick—a sort of incarnate conscience of the people of the United States. We also have in this country a big stick, but it is not in the hands of one man, but of many thousands of Canadian men who stand for the purity of Canadian life and the maintenance of Canadian institutions—it is called the Canadian Club. The organization and wide extension of this institution is significant of an interest on the part of Canadian men in questions that are wider than any section or party or province, but concern the nation as a whole. There is thus being created and nurtured throughout Canada a sense of national unity and of national destiny that one cannot but contemplate with feelings of satisfaction.

I am thus led to my own subject the "Imperatives of Citizenship." What it the nature of these imperatives? Are they such as appeal to men as men without regard to their political or religious affiliations. I think that you will agree with me when I say that the one thing that distinguishes the men of today from those of say, a half century ago, is that the men of today have entered into a condition of intellectual and religious freedom practically unknown to their fathers. Up to the middle of the last century the conduct and consciences of men were regulated generally by considerations of authority and of institutions. The age of authority has passed, the age of reason has come. It is true that there are men today of the highest character and some of pre-eminent intelligence who are willing to submit their thought and their conduct in some phases of life to outward authority, but the number of such is growing steadily less. So far at least as religion is concerned we live today in a world that recognizes no authority but such as appeals to reason and conscience. The religious machine no longer dominates the conduct or thought of men. For this we should be devoutly thankful.

Can the same be said of the political machine? There can be no doubt that the political machine does not hold the place in politics it did a decade ago. Both in the United States and Canada the type of public man who is winning the approval of the people is not the master-mechanic of the party machinery, who seeks to shape public policies with reference to party interests and party victory at the polls, but the man who with statesmanlike outlook works with an eye single to the public welfare. We need only think of such men as the Premier of the Dominion, the leader of the Opposition, and the Premier of our own province to realize the truth of this. But while this is true of the leaders there is still need of a charge of heart on the part of the people generally. Men today do not give evidence of the same freedom from the dominance of political authority that they do from that of ecclesiastical authority. I think we may say that it is one of the narrow standpoint of party or of the functions of the Canadian Club to assist men to take larger views, and to enable them to think not from province, but to think nationally, shall I say imperially. Perhaps this is enough upon this point for the present. I may return to it in a moment or two.

Let us keep in mind, however, that while we are escaping from the dominance of outward authority of our own inner reason and the demands of righteousness within our hearts. Kant said there were two things filled him with awe—the starry heavens above him and the moral law within the soul. To escape the dominance of this moral law which makes us men, would be to reverse the evolutionary process and go back to the savage and the animal from which we sprang. It is in this inner authority that the imperatives of citizenship are rooted and from which they draw their strength. In the first place the imperatives of citizenship demand that political rights shall be occupied by all those who possess the same. Rights when they are established at once become duties and duty must be performed. Abraham Lincoln, that great man, the hundredth anniversary of whase birth we have recently celebrated, defined democracy as "the government of the people by the people, for the people." The most important element made by this triad is the central one—it is the keystone in the arch of democracy. Other forms of government are of the people and mostly for the people, but democratic government is by the people.

It is the people that govern themselves, and they must take the matter of government seriously. Unoccupied political rights imply political indifference, and upon indifference on the part of the people it is impossible to establish a democratic form of government. Let me press this matter further. Mr. John Morley, in his essay on "Compromise," has pointed out the very evident fact that progress is not automatic. In these days when nearly all our thinking is done upon the evolutionary framework, we are in danger of coming to has sometimes that evolution is a force rather than a law, and that there is a sort of 'vis-a-tergo' that makes the world go forward without any action on the part of ourselves. We have need to remember that social energy is itself a part of the evolutionary process in society and that the world grows better, "because people wish that it should, and take steps to make it better . . . Social energy can never be superseded by evolution or anything else."

"Such considerations as these make imperative the occupation of political rights by all those who possess them. No doubt this means inconvenience, personal effort, and sometimes much personal courage. A man may be called on to vote against a party with which he has stood all his life time, because principle in him is stronger than party. But no considerations of sentiment, or of safety from criticism or personal comfort should deter a man from going to the polls when his presence is required there, and thus obeying the imperative of citizenship.

In the second place, the imperatives of citizenship demand that political purity shall be kept inviolate. It has been said with truth that bribery is to politics what forgery is to business and it should meet with like severe punishment. It is a matter for satisfaction that the public conscience is becoming educated with reference to this matter. The chief political leaders recognize the importance of keeping their hands clean from corruption. But the popular conscience will bear a little boosting yet. Bribery is considered by many if not a legitmate, at any rate a very practical method of winning elections. Politicians who would not under any circumstances offer a direct bribe will make promises to communities which they may not be able to keep.

Here again the assault is upon the keystone of the arch of democracy, for bribery seeks to substitute the desires of the few for the will of the many, and to purchase with money or preferment what should be acquired only by the free choice of the people. The man who sells his vote for money comes under social contempt, but it is doubtful whether he is as great a sinner as the man or party who offers to purchase it. It is the briber who works the temptation, and who gets the result, and upon him should fall the greater condemnation. Every self-respecting individual or community should resent every attempt to purchase political support by offers of money or local improvements. Such efforts are subversive to the principles of democracy.

The third imperative of citizenship may be summed up in the principle of loyalty. Let me make it clear what I mean. Professor Royce has lately published a book which is called — "The Philosphy of Loyalty." In this book he sets forth loyalty as the supreme principle of conduct. By loyalty he means, "the willing and practical and thorough-going devotion of a person to a cause." The duty of the citizen to be loyal has long been understood, but loyalty has implications which we are in danger of overlooking, and which the imperatives of citizenship demand that we should consider.

The principle of loyalty involves:

1. The subordination of private interests to public good. The call comes today to men of intelligence, wealth and influence to take a more active part in political affairs. In the old country men of this character are attracted to politics, and the real value of the House of Lords probably is that it is made up of men who from their boyhood have been educated with the purpose of taking upon themselves the responsibilities of government. Unfortunately this is not often the case in this country. Our public school system is at fault; we do not train our boys for citizenship. That is an indictment that President Eliot brought against the schools of the United States, they were not training the students to think, and to this he attributes our inability to solve some of the problems that confront us in this country. What sort of men do we look for when we have the business of political nominations before us? What do we consult his character and popularity? Too often men of undesirable character and of mediocre intelligence get the nomination, and when criticism is made it is met by the answer that better men are not available or cannot be elected. The result is that too many men go into politics to work

CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA
As is well known, this troublesome complaint arises from over-eating, the use of too much rich food, neglected constipation, lack of exercise, bad air, etc.
The food should be thoroughly chewed, and never bolted or swallowed in haste, stimulants must be avoided and exercise taken if possible.
A remedy which has rarely failed to give prompt relief and effect permanent cures, even in the most obstinate cases, is
BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS
It acts by regulating and toning the digestive organs, removing costiveness and increasing the appetite and restoring health and vigor to the system.
Mr. Amos Sawler, Gold River, N.S., writes:—"I was greatly troubled with dyspepsia, and after trying several doctors to no effect I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters and I think it is the best medicine there is for that complaint."

not for the public welfare, but for their own pockets, and those of their friends. Doubtless this is a condition of things hard to deal with in this country. One solution of the difficulty would be the readiness of men of outstanding influence to accept political nomination and the consequent responsibilities of government. Such men should not allow considerations of private interest to keep them from serving their country when she calls them to service.

2. The principle of loyalty involves also the subordination of the interests of party, or section or province to those of the welfare of the public generally or Canada at large. We hear a good deal of a not very complimentary character about party politics. Mr. Goldwin Smith, in an address before the Toronto Canadian Club, a few years ago reprobated strongly the party system of government for a new country. Would you choose a system that would divide the people into two factions, and set them fighting each other all the time?" But Prof. Smith puts the matter unfairly. He forgot for the moment the history of British institutions and the character of the Anglo-Saxon mind. We do not carry on government by the party system simply because we want to, but because we have to, with minds constituted as ours are. Instead of decrying the system we should seek to purge it of its attendant evils. The greatest evil of party politics is selfishness, and this is contrary to the principle of loyalty. Parties should exist, not for the sake of themselves, but for the purpose of carrying out some policy which shall promote the public welfare, or of advocating some principle. They are a means to an end. When the means usurps the end, when the party puts success at the polls first and public welfare second, it should be put out of power at once by an indignant electorate. At present in Canada the two parties stand for practically the same principles. When this is the case party loyalty is conditioned upon honest and efficient government. When this is lacking men are released from their obligation to support their party. The citizen owes his first allegiance not to an inherited creed, but to his judgment. We are to be voices and not mere echoes. A party then, will welcome an intelligent and critical opposition which shall compel it to live up to its political creed and pretensions. I mean an intelligent and honest opposition. When the opposition lives simply to oppose the government in whatever it does, it is not worthy of its position.

But not only does the principle of merely party advancement to the loyalty demand the subordination of public welfare, it involves also and no less the subordination of the interests of any particular section of the province to the welfare of the province as a whole, and those of any province to that of the Dominion. It is to be hoped that these interests will ever coincide, but should the time ever come when what seem to be the interests of any particular province of Canada are in opposition to the welfare of the nation or of its peaceful relation to other nations, then the interests of the nation as a whole must have right of way. Canada first must be our motto.

But while I point out to you these implications of the principle of loyalty, may I add that so long as the lesser interests do not conflict with the greater, the principle of loyalty demands that we shall be loyal to our own particular interests. Taking the relation of our province to the Dominion, we can best serve the Dominion, and the Empire, by making our own province the queen of all the provinces of Canada. He that is loyal to that which is least will be loyal to that which is most. This too, is an imperative of citizenship.

Will you allow me to add that the imperatives of citizenship demand that the principles of moral progress be recognized)

I will tell you what I mean. James Anthony Froude in his essay on "The Science of History," expresses a doubt whether such a science is possible till all the facts are in. But he adds: "One lesson, and only one, history may be said to repeat with distinctness; that the world is built somehow on moral foundations; that in the long run it is well with the good, in the long run it is ill with the wicked." This is a fact that I am sure we recognize as the basis upon which we must do business and keep house. When we go to the heart of things physical, we find there the fact that there is always a connection between cause and effect. In like manner we shall find at the heart of things moral another fact, namely, that there is a difference between right and wrong. Upon this principle national life must be built. A nation is made not upon its material advancement but by its ideals. It cannot exist without sentiment: it has a soul as well as a body. It is imperative then that as citizens our children the highest ideals of we should set before ourselves and conduct.

We must set before ourselves the best commercial ideals. No one can contemplate the great material resources of this province without seeing that it is destined to be enormously wealthy. The laws that underlie the production and distribution of wealth must be taught to our children, but more than that must be done. Jesus said: "We cannot serve God and Mammon." He was not stating here an arbitrary command, but was simply enunciating a psychological law. Money is not to be a master, but a servant. The cardinal error with relation to money is that it is to be used for buying service instead of for selling service. And this is conceivable true in this country, in its early development when men are making money not so much by their own exertions as by the assistance of society. The money must be used in the social welfare. I cannot go further into that.

Then there are social ideals. We hear much about Socialism in these days, and we shall doubtless hear more in the future. Well, we have no particular quarrel with Socialism; it can teach us many things. Only we need to be on our guard against the extreme principles of socialism, as we must be on our guard against the extreme principles of all "get-rich-quick" schemes, or "get-happy-quick" theories. Socialism claims to stand for justice as between man and man. Very good; but let us remember what Herbert Spencer said a quarter of a century ago, what Aristotle said more than two thousand years ago, that while one component part of justice is equality, another component part is inequality. Equality of material possession seems to be a fine ideal, but the past history of the race seems to teach that what is desirable is not so much equality of possession as equality of opportunity for obtaining material possessions. Amongst a free people what is desired is individuality as well as unity.

So much for what we must guard against, but what social ideal shall we seek? Shall it not be the highest ideal of democracy—brotherhood. How shall this be attained? Certainly by the practice of justice. Mr. Ruskin says you may not be able to love your brother, but you can be just to him. Perhaps you cannot live peaceably with him. Paul recognized the difficulty of this when he said: "If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men." It certainly doesn't lie much within some of us; we are not all angels yet. It may be that the best way to give diligent attention to justice is to mind our own business and let other men mind theirs. Let us then keep before us the ideal of brotherhood; let us work to make it prevail; let us even, as Robbie Burns exhorts us, pray for it:

Then let us pray that come it may,
As come it will for a'that,
That sense and worth o'er a'the earth,
May bear the gree and a'that.
For a'that, and a'that,
It's coming yet for a'that,
When man to man the world o'er
Shall brithers be for a'that.

Educational ideals we have, and we see the importance of them. If we had not known it before, Japan is teaching us today what can be done through education. The Prussians have a doctrine that when you want to appear in the life of a nation you must first put into its schools. We must do more than train the minds of our boys and girls, we must train their muscle and teach them the art of self-control. The chief fault with our current educational theories is that they take into consideration only the training of the smaller muscles of the body, those that wag the tongue and move the pen. Of course the farmer's boy gets the training of his larger muscles in his work upon the farm, but the city boy is not so favored, and manual training, as well organized play must have a part in the education of the future.

Again, whatever may be our opinion about the question of religion in the public schools, we are all agreed that the school is the place for the teaching of "manners, virtue, freedom, power." Children must also be taught the care of their bodies, for here a physical fact is as sacred as a moral principle. Another thing: boys should be given some instruction in the public schools to enable them to take their part nobly as citizens in the days to come. This is a thing that has been sadly neglected in the past, hence the difficulty we find in solving many of the problems of our day.

Will you permit me to say there is need that we set before us the religious ideal? I do not mean any particular religion. That is the mistake we make when we speak of religion, we think he means the tenets of some religious sect. As to what particular church you may or may not be connected with, I am not concerned, but I am concerned, as all earnest men are concerned, that the people of Alberta shall be conscious of and obedient to the religious ideal. It may be that some of you will not agree with me here. "Morals" you say, "yes; but why religion?" Because while "the decay of religion may leave the institutes of morality intact, it drains off their inward power," as Martineau has well said. Spencer has shown us that the principles of moral conduct may be the outcome of reasoned experience, but without religious belief you will find that in the end the forces that keep men moral and help them to live up to the moral ideal will be paralyzed.

I was speaking with an Edmonton friend the other day. He used to attend my church occasionally when I was here. I asked him what church he was attending now. He replied that he didn't go to church very much these days. "Well," I replied, "I shall not worry much about that if only you keep up the religious end." He said he tried to do that. You see what I mean. We must keep up the religious end. As we are constituted, it is probable that the most of us will be able to do that best if we are connected with some Christian church. The church is the greatest democratic institution in the world and stands as no other institution for the maintenance of democratic ideals. If it failed to do that it would be disloyal to its Master, the world's greatest democrat.

You will be thinking that I forget that I am not in a pulpit, but these are questions of vital importance to citizenship. Matthew Arnold said of Sophocles that he saw things steadily and saw them whole. That is the sort of vision without which the people would perish, and the great value of religion is that it gives men this steadiness and wholeness of vision. It enables us to "believe what the years and the centuries say against the hours, to resist the usurpation of particulars and penetrate to their catholic sense." It helps men to realize the ideals of democracy—that they are not mere units, but are bound up in the bundle of all the living, and that they are allies of that great Power that rules the universe.

But I must bring my remarks to a close. We have a great work to do, we men who have heard the call of the west and have obeyed. Here upon this last piece of virgin soil on God's earth we are given the task of building a nation. We must be like Browning's hero:

"One who never turned his back, marched breast forward.
Never doubted clouds would break,
Never dreamed though right were worsted, wrong would triumph,
Held we fall to rise, are vanquished to fight better,
Sleep to wake."

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

cured Mrs. K. B. Bright, Burnley, Ont. She writes: "I was greatly troubled, for six years, with my heart and shortness of breath. I could not walk eighty rods without resting four or five times in that short distance. I got so weak and thin I only weighed seventy-three pounds. I decided at last to take some of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking eight boxes I gained in strength and weight, and now weigh one hundred and thirteen pounds, the most I ever weighed in my life. I feel well and can work as well as ever I did, and can heartily thank Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for it all."

You Can Buy an Orchard Home for $10 a Month

But You must take Advantage of this Offer at Once.

We are the largest owners of First Class Fruit Land direct existing lines of Transportation in British Columbia and in order to advertise the west Kootenay District—the greatest friut country and grandest place to live in the world—we have decided that for a short time only we will sell orchard tracts in our model sub-division—FRUITVALE—for $10 down and $10 per month for 10 acres and charge no interest.

This offer will be withdrawn in a very short time, after which the terms will be one fifth cash and the balance at 6 per cent. interest You must act quickly in order to get in on the easy terms.

FRUITVALE is located 40 miles south of Nelson on the Spokane division of the Great Northern Ry.

FRUITVALE is in the southernmost and warmest walley in southern British Columbia. The railroad runs through the sub-division, and the townsite and railroad station are located in the centre, with 25 miles of wagon roads radiating therefrom. Each orchard tract fronts on one of these roads which are cut out, graded and improved with bridges culverts etc. The Provincial Government appropriated $50,000 to be expended this year in the district it which Fruitvale is located.

FRUITVALE has daily passenger and freight trains; post office with daily mail; school; church services; four general stores; meat market; two lumber yards; broom factory; hotel and 350 population. It is expected that one and probably two large sawmills will be started soon.

FRUITVALE lies in a broad and beautiful valley, watered by numerous streams of pure water. The mountains are low, and there is lots of sunshine. The soil is rich fruit loam with clay subsoil, level to gently sloping, and uniformly free from stone. There is a home, with good neighbors every few yards.

You Will Make a Mistake

If you don't send us your name and address to-day so that we may mail to you free of charge the plans, maps, photos, and specific descriptions of these grand orchard homes for sale at only $10 per month.

Write immediately or You will be Too Late.

Red Cliff

Owing to the hard times news is scarce in this place just now. Hold your breath, and one of these days you will hear all kinds of noises from Red Cliffe.

Mrs. Dodge and Miss Brubaker called on Mrs. Crouch on Sunday.

Robert and Wm. Warner entertained friends in their bachelor establishment Tuesday evening.

Some of our citizens who remained away from the polls gave excellent reasons for doing so. One young man's excuse was that he was too young and another said he looked too young but that is an affliction that Father Time will soon heal.

Miss Kjos, Mrs. Crouch and David and Chas. Masters visited Miss Brubaker Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellijson moved on to their homestead, across the river, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Brubaker and their son returned Wednesday after a few days visit at Bentinck and brought Mr. La Grippe with them.

Some people are very much displeased if their names are mentioned in print while others are kicking if their names are not in the paper. So between the two we poor reporters do not have a very enviable time trying to please everybody. You can if you are cautious—please some of the people all of the time—and all the people some of the time—but you can't possibly please all the people all the time.

Mr. Dodge drove in to the Hat Friday and brought his daughter home from school.

Seven Persons.

The Fulton crew moved to Irvine last Thursday.

Mrs. Reed and children have returned from Calgary.

Mr. Cargill and Mr. Semple spent a couple of days at this place. Mr. Cargill was resting his horses before taking them to the Medicine Hat show.

The livery barn at this place is nearing completion.

Discing, seeding and breaking are in full blast at this place.

School commences here the 1st of April with Miss Armstrong as teacher.

Mrs. A. W. Butler called on Medicine Hat friends this week.

Mr. O. A. Hoyer and wife have gone to Osage, Sask., for the summer.

Mr. Bissett, the pumpman, was in this vicinity this week.

Mr. Le Fever has moved his house on his homestead.

The spring freshet has just begun to put in its appearance at Sand Creek.

Election day passed off quietly at this place last Monday.

Mr. Manley Miller has been a Seven Persons caller two or three times this week.

A. P. Frone and son, of Winnipeg, were in town Wednesday.

Neglected Scald Caused Months of Agony.

SPENT DOLLARS IN VAIN BUT ZAM-BUK CURED HER

Following we give the testimony of a lady who if she had known of Zam-Buk earlier would have been saved nine weeks of agony:

Mrs. Frederick Bryant, of 169 Railway Avenue, Stratford, Ont., says:—"I scalded my foot while preparing supper. Next day the skin came off and my foot was in a serious condition. I could not wear my shoe and had to lay up for nine weeks. During this time I used dozens of salves but none did any good, in fact the wound developed into a running sore. I got no rest day or night from the pain. At this point a supply of Zam-Buk was obtained and a few applications had immediate effect in soothing the pain and irritation. A small supply proved sufficient to heal the scald, although I had spent dollars in other remedies. New skin has now formed over the open sore.

"Zam-Buk is the most wonderful and effective remedy I have used, and I advise others to use it."

Zam-Buk is equally effective in curing burns. Mr. Geo. Gilmore, caretaker of the E. Clements Block, Winnipeg, testifies as follows:—"I sustained a series of bad burns while attending to the large furnace which heats the buildings. One burn on my wrist was particularly bad and gave me great pain. I applied some Zam-Buk, and in forty-eight hours all that remained of the burn was a slight scar. Zam-Buk seemed to take the pain away like magic. It is a splendid balm to keep handy, its healing powers being simply marvellous."

There is nothing to equal Zam-Buk as a family balm. Its uses are wide. It has been proved to be a sure cure for eczema, ring-worm, ulcers, abscesses, piles, bad leg, suppurating wounds, cuts, bruises, chapped hands cold cracks, and all skin injuries and diseases. Rubbed well into the part affected it cures rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. per box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price.

A GRAIN ELEVATOR FOR VANCOUVER

Mr. Thos. Henshaw, of Vancouver, B. C., is in Montreal for the purpose of seeing Sir Thomas Shaughnessy. When interviewed in the city, he admitted that he was here on very important business, the nature of which he would not state. It is learned, however, from good authority that Mr. Henshaw is negotiating the sale of a valuable piece of property at Vancouver to Sir Thomas for the Canadian Pacific Railway, on which it is proposed to build a grain elevator.

Mr. Henshaw said that personally he was quite certain such an elevator should be built. Further, an official of the Canadian Pacific, very close to the president, admitted that Sir Thomas was conferring with Mr. Henshaw on "very important business."

BE WELL GROOMED

Cleanliness and careful attention to dress are good habits to form. Ella Wheeler Wilcox uses some trenchant language in speaking along these lines, language that is forceful and interesting:

"Whatever your mission in life, do not ignore the fact that your personality and your personal appearance have a great influence on your success or failure.

"It is useless to quote the cases of repulsive men and women, badly attired, unkempt and unwashed, who have achieved glory and fame, and obtained power over men and circumstances. There may be such cases, but it requires transcendental genius and hypnotic power to produce such results with such conditions.

"Very plain, even ugly people, often possess an attractive personality. But they are well groomed and well dressed. It is not physical beauty of a classical type that is under discussion as a necessary factor in success. It is a well-cared-for body and decent and tastefully worn clothing."

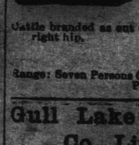
ALBERTA PROVINCIAL HORSE SHOW

The Alberta Provincial Horse show to be held at Calgary on April 6th to 8th, inclusive, promises to be one of the largest and most successful shows ever held in western Canada. There are over five hundred and fifty entries, as compared with four hundred and eighty in the Winnipeg Horse show of 1908 and four hundred and twenty in 1907.

MEDICINE HAT ATTRACTS ATTENTION ABROAD

The last number of The Standard of Empire, one of the latest and most influential of English journals, which is devoted entirely to imperial interests gives our city valuable publicity in an article entitled "Medicine Hat" which reads as follows:



"Taste as well as enterpsise characterizes a phamphlet which has been drawn up by Mr. John T. Hall, the Board of Trade Commissioner of Medicine Hat, the natural gas city of Alberta. The frontispiece bears a portrait of Rudyard Kipling, who visited it in October '07 and the letterpress contains his fascinating description of what he thought of it.

"It is interesting to note that the new natural gas well in the Medicine Hat Field has now developed a flow of 5,000,000 cubic feet per twenty-four hours by mercury test and 5,250,000 by water test. It is therefore the greatest gusher in Canada. The bye-law granting thirty-five acres of land, and providing a gas well for a sewer pipe manufacturing company plant to be installed by United States capital was recently carried. The company guarantees to expend three hundred thousand dollars (£61,648) in buildings and plant and to employ 100 men."

HAINES—WILSON

The marriage took place on the 17th inst., at the residence of the bride's uncle, James Macdonald, Overon, Man., of Anna Frederica Elizabeth Wilson, of Winnipeg, and Lindsay Ernest Haines of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. C. Court of the Presbyterian church, Overon. The bride who was given away by her uncle was gowned in a directoire costume of tan silk with trimmings of cream and gold net and cloth of gold. Her travelling dress was a tailored green cloth suit, with Dresden silk vest and hat to match. The happy couple, who were the recipients of many beautiful gifts left immediately after the wedding breakfast for this city, where they will reside at 820 Main street.

The city must be proud to have a company of the standing of the Allen players play in the city. The bills produced by this talented company are par excellence and deserve all the patronage the city can bestow on them. "In the Bishop's Carriage," will be the opening bill on March 31. A laugh from start to finish will be the order Thursday, in the great comedy "All Due to Diara." The banner bill of the Company will be presented on Friday "Zaza." And last but not least will be "The Sultan's Daughter" matinee and evening Saturday.

The company has played in the same theatre in Portland, Oregon, for 2 years; in Tacoma, Wash., for 3 years; in Vancauver, 5 months; Calgary, 6 months; and Edmonton, 4 months; this will give some idea of the drawing qualities of the company They appear here beginning Wednesday and remaining till Saturday.

A communication has been received from T. B. R. Henderson chief inspector of weeds in Alberta intimating that a institute meeting will be held in the City Hall, Medicine Hat, on Tuesday April 6th at 2.30 p.m. for the discussion of the subject of noxious weeds. The question of the extermination of the Russian thistle will be especially dealt with. All farmers should attend.

An interesting presentation was made on Sunday afternoon, when Mr and Mrs. Edgar Johnson were the recipients of a parlor suite, the gift of Mrs. R. A. Walker and the boys at 522 Ottawa St. On behalf of the donors an address was read by Mr. Arthur Finch, in which a tribute was paid to Mr. Johnson's immense popularity amongst all with whom he has come in contact.

Mrs. J. C. Beveridge will not receive on Friday.

A small informal dance was given in Doty's Hall on Wednesday evening by several of the young men of the town. Excellent music was furnished by Messrs. Morris and Fleming and a jolly evening was spent by the company which very comfortably filled the hall.

A petition has been largely signed by the ratepayers calling upon the council to enter into negotiations with a view to acquiring the Hillside cemetery for the city.

Mr. V. C. James of Vancouver was in the city last week.

Manager C. A Flower of the Central Canada Packing Co., was in the city recently, getting a valuation of the plant in this city.

Mr. A. Hulbert, tuner for Assiniboia Music Co., left the city on a business trip which will extend over April. He will be in the city during May.

The second annual banquet of the Y. M. C. will be held in the gymnasium hall on Good Friday (April 9th) at 8 p.m.

The Rev. E. Cox Clarke has recently received the appointment as rector of St. Barnabas church from the Bishop of Qu'Appelle.

J. M. Persy of Yarmouth, N. S. visited his cousins Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Patten last week. Mr. Perry has gone to the coast.

Major S. Harris returned to the Medicine Hat yesterday morning from the coast where he has spent the last five months. At Seattle he spent some weeks and he reports great doings in the exhibition town where elaborate preparations are being made for the big rush of visitors this spring. Already there is a large influx of people into the city and several millions of dollars are being spent in the erection of nine and ten store buildings for the accomodation of the visiting population. In Vancouver Major Harris reports a real estate boom greater than the Winnipeg boom of 1906. Prices are already too high, however, and the present state of things cannot continue for but a brief period.

The special "Revival Campaign" conducted by Brigadier Adby has been one of deep blessing to all who have attended his services.

The Brigadier's lecture tonight entitled "People I Have Met" will be a treat to all. Admission by ticket or at the door 10 cents.

Thursday, April 1st, in the Salvation Hall, Mr. Patmare of this city, will give an address on "Real Estate and Religion."

Police Court

During recent weeks there have been several prosecutions in the police court for attempts to recover dogs from the pound-keeper. On the 1st inst., Henry Barrage was brought before the magistrate on this charge and fined $2 and costs. A few days later four youths came up on a similar charge, and were let off with a caution.

On the 19th inst John McCutcheon was fined $10 for procuring liquor while an interdicted person. A fine of $50 was imposed upon the man who supplied the liquor, with two months imprisonment as an alternative. This was a heavy penalty but it shows that the police and the police magistrate are determined to stamp out an evil which is all too prevalent.

S. S. Stover was fined $2 on the 17th March for a breach of the health bylaw. His offence consisted in leaving the dead carcass of a horse unburied on the nuisance

Wm. Riskett, drunk and disorderly was given the alternatives of a $5 or 14 days imprisonment. He preferred the trip to Lethbridge.

SPRING COULEE FARMER BORES FOR GAS

A Spring Coulee farmer some time ago started to bore for water, Going down to a considerable distance he was still unsuccessful. Rather than have his labor entirely wasted he has decided to go right ahead until he reaches the gas "basement." He has now reached a depth of 500 feet and is still boring.

Tomorrow the first spring stallion show will be held under the auspices of the Agricultural society, in the Athletic park.

It is hoped by means of these fairs which will be held each year, that substantial help will be given to horse breeders who desire opportunities of disposing of their stock. An opportunity will also be provided for the exchange of stallions.

The total value of the prizes will be $650. Entries may be handed in to Mr. John T. Hall up to 8 o'clock this evening.

Lethbridge Take Up Challenge

Will Debate In this City on Naval Policy

At last Thursday's sitting of the Mock Parliament it was decided that the hour of adjournment should be 9.50. A critic was appointed in the person of the speaker, (Mr. John Benson), who will spend the remain- ten minutes [illegible] clock in criticism of members speeches.

Early in the sitting a resolution of condolence with the Messrs. Hoffmann in their bereavement was carried on motion of Mr. Bryenton and Mr. Sansom.

A challenge to debate was received from the Royal Templars of Temperance, the matter being left in the hands of the committee appointed to deal with the challenge to Lethbridge —the premier, (Mr Bryenton) the leader of the opposition (Mr. Sansom), and the minister of justice (Mr McClellan).

On Thursday evening Dr. O. Boyd, member for North Toronto, in the Mock Parliament, who was returned by acclamation at a recent bye-election, will introduce a bill the object of which is to bring about an improvement in the race tyne.

The challenge issued to Lethbridge last week has been accepted by the Y. M. C. in the southern city. They have not as yet decided which side to take, but definite word on this point and also as to the date, (whether April 29th or May 6th), will probably be received tomorrow.

DEATH OF MRS. M. HOFFMAN

The death occurred at her residence at Brooklyn, N. Y., on Monday, March 29th, of Mrs. Minna Hoffman, after a very brief illness. The sad news of their mother's death was received last week by Mr. A. L. T. and Mr. E. Hoffman in this city. The deceased lady who was in her 57th year had until quite recently enjoyed good health and little concern had been felt in regard to her illness. Mr. Rudolph Hoffmann, who has been in Chicago for some time, was able to reach the east in time to be present at her bedside before she died. Great sympathy is felt with the Messrs. Hoffmann in their bereavement.

ADDRESS ON NOXIOUS WEEDS

At 2.30 this afternoon an institute meeting was held in the city hall when T. B. R. Henderson, chief inspector of weeds, Edmonton, gave a talk on noxious weeds and their eradication.

DEATH OF T. E. CARBERRY

The death occurred in Toronto on Sunday the 25th. ult., of Mr. T. E. Carberry, who was for many years a resident of this city and a member of the firm of Carberry & Collier.

Mr. Carberry was a straightforward and square dealing business man who won the regard of all with whom he came in contact. Great sympathy is felt with his widow and his sister, Mrs. J. H. Collier, in their bereavement.

SPECIAL PRIZE

A special prize of a Stetson Hat is being offered this week at the King Edward Bowling alleys for the man making the highest score in ten pins.

First Spring Stallion Show

Successful Fair Held Last Wednesday

The first stallion show under the auspices of the Medicine Hat Agriculture society was held in the Athletic park on Wednesday afternoon, and from what ever point of view the fair is considered it was a great success. The stallion show is established as a permanent institution in this city.

In quality and number of entries the organizers, as well as the horsemen present from the district and outside points were surprised at the showing made. There were thirty-two entries, and of these before the close of the fair five were sold. Mr. David Cargill selling three Clydes and Messrs Hawthorne & Hamilton two percherons.

The government judge was Mr. W. D. Geddis of Calgary. The fairness of his awards was universally praised.

There were seven entries in the aged Clyde class, and the judge found considerable difficulty in making the award. It was necessary to pass over a number of the larger horses which were not quite free from blemishes. In three-year-olds there were four entries David Cargill's stallion "Carse Blende" being the winner. In two-year-olds "Baron's Secretre," owned by E. Pearson carried off the first honors. David Cargill took all the prizes in the yearling class.

The competition in Percherons was very keen. Jas Mitchell and Jas. C. Hargrave were the prize-winners over Hamilton & Hawthorne of Simcoe, Ont., who showed a number of fine imported animals.

The Drowning Ford Ranch Co. has two entries in Shires the only entries made—and the two first prizes were awarded to them.

The exhibits in Standard Breds were all by local men. "Lord Dunbar" carried off first, "Election Time," second.

The animals in the sweepstakes were not called out, as in the large shows the classing together of Clydes Shires and Percherons has been dropped.

ALBERTA TELEPHONES

Edmonton, Alta., April 3—Eight hundred miles of new telephone lines in the province of Alberta is the probable estimate of what the telephone branch of the Alberta public works department will construct this year. The mileage for last year was about 800 miles but the demands are greatly in excess of anything the telephone superintendent has known. If the demands from the four quarters of the province were granted there would be between 2,000 and 3,000 miles constructed instead of 800. At the present time nearly 500 telephone extensions have been approved of by the department. The contracts for the entire equipment have been let and distribution to the various points required is daily going on. Between 11,000 and 12,000 poles have been ordered mostly from a contractor living near Spruce Grove. Poles, however, are being secured from different places and are being bought from farmers at the same price as being paid to contractors. All the poles required have already been laid from Edmonton to Cooking Lake and for several miles out of Olds. The wire is coming from Winnipeg and Germany and at the present time a considerable quantity of it has been delivered. If conditions were favorable, the actual work of constructing lines would be going on at once, but it will probably be May 1 before an move is made.

Lumber Prices to be Boosted in West

Winnipeg, Man., April 5—Advices from the Pacific coast where the manufacturers have for some time been dissatisfied with current prices say it is understood that the cost of lumber in Winnipeg and throughout the northwest is to be raised from one dollar to three dollars per thousand feet, according to the grade, taking effect today. At a meeting of a number of Pacific coast mill men last Monday it was decided to raise the price on "finish" one dollar and later a meeting of all the manufacturers made an advance of from one to three dollars on all grades, effective last Saturday. The great demand for bridge and railway timber has caused the movement while the large number of railway cars now being built has also had an effect on the market.

FEAR REVOLUTION MAY BE REPEATED

The newspapers of Paris show general alarm at the violent character of the speeches delivered at the workmen's meeting yesterday under the auspices of the revolutionary labor organization, to formulate a plan of campaign against the government.

They refer particularly to the agreement of a large section of the state employees to take common cause with the trades unionists and the appointment of a secret committee empowered to call strikes.

The Good Friday Road Race will be one of the biggest athletic events of the year. For the last couple of months the competitors have been in training and very good time has been made on practice runs. The start will be made at 3.30 on Friday afternoon, at the City Hall.

The season in sport is to be a banner year for Medicine Hat, if present indications are to be relied on. The live athletic department of the Y. M. C. has been busy during the past week, with the result that across the river on the Anglican church property a piece of ground 160 yards by 75 yards is now being prepared for baseball purposes. The use of this land has been kindly lent by the Church of England. All day Saturday men were employed on the ground which is being converted into a splendid athletic park.

THE NIGHT

The voice of the day is a clamorous din
But the night's is a low sweet tone
The day is the wealth of a myriad men
But the night is God's alone.

For softly she comes when the sun sinks to rest
And o'er him her mantle is furled;
And she sings as she holds him close to her breast
The lullaby song of the world.

But often her voice is wild with woe
And her cheek is wan and grey,
As she hides her stars from the world below
And sobs for the sins of day.

But always her voice will soothe to rest
And shall ever her long watch keep
As I lay my head on her kindly breast
And lie in her arms asleep.

Business Change

Leslie F. Kellar Buys Out C. E. Neff

The gents' furnishing business of Chas. E. Neff has been taken over by Mr. Leslie F. Kellar, who will open the store Thursday morning. Mr. Kellar has been assistant to Mr. Neff during the past year and a half, prior to which he was for a considerable time in the employ of Mr. A. C. Hawthorne. He has been in the gents' furnishing and clothing business for the past ten years, five of which have been spent in this city. He is well known in town as a business man of ability and integrity, and the success of the business is in fact assured. The store will open on Thursday morning with a sale at lowest prices.

RIFLE ASSOCIATION ELECT OFFICERS

A very successful meeting of the Rifle Association was held last evening in the city hall. The following officers were elected.

Captain—T. J. Flegar.
Secretary-Treasurer—C. A. Krause.
Executive Committee—Rex Leigh, J. Peard, J. A. Conn, M. Fulton, G. Jenkins, W. B. Finlay, L. C. Brown.

It was decided that the association will meet for practice every Wednesday and Saturday afternoon during the season. The first meet will be on Saturday next, April 10th.

POLL ON SCHOOL BYLAW

At a special meeting of the school board held in the secretary's office last evening the date of the public meeting for the discussion of the public school building bylaw, was fixed for Tuesday, the 20th inst. The poll will take place on Tuesday the 27th inst.

FORMATION OF CANADIAN AEROPLANE CLUB

A club to be known as "The Aero Club of Canada" has been recently formed and will have its headquarters in Winnipeg. An attempt will qe made to persuade the Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition to hold an exhibition of flying machines at the annual fair in July. It aims at assisting and promoting the practical study of aerial navigation.

Bowling

MEDICINE HAT BOWLERS DEFEAT CALGARY

Space was at a kremium in the Ready bowling alleys on Saturday afternoon and evening when the 7 game rubber between this city and Calgary was played off. The excitement throughout was intense, and the finish was very close, Medicine Hat Rinning the rubber by 4 games out of 7, although the Calgarians had the greater number of pins to their credit. A few minutes after the last pins had been rolled the Calgary men had to make a dask for the westbound train.

A challenge has been issued by C. H. Sherwood and team to meet Saturday's victors on Wednesday night. The team which rolls the largest number of pins in three games will be the winners. On Friday another interesting game takes place, between the Bachelor and Benedick teams of the city.

REVIVAL WORKERS SPEND DAY IN TOWN

A number of ministers en route for the Kootenay country broke their journey in Medicine Hat on Friday last and spent several hours in the city. A series of revival services is about to be commenced in southern British Columbia by the Rev. Dr. Chapman who conducted a successful mission in Winnipeg a couple of years ago. The doctor was one of Friday's party. Another of the revival workers is the Rev. Dr. Kilpatrick of Knox College, Toronto. Dr Kilpatrick conducted the opening service at St. John's Presbyterian church in this city six years ago, and he spent a large part of his time here on Friday renewing old acquaintances. He was greatly impressed by the growth of our city since his last visit and thought our climate unsurpassed in Canada. In the east gloomy weather has prevailed for many weeks past and the contrast between Ontario and Sunny Alberta was such as to provide a delightful change. Other members of the ministerial party were: the Rev. C. W. Gordon of Winnipeg (Ralph Connor); Rev. Dr. Fraser, Portage la Prairie; Rev. Mr. Lowry of Belfast, Ireland; Revs MacAdam, Fullerton and Smith of eastern pastorates.

ONTARIO HOUSE PASSES C. N. R. SUBSIDIES

Toronto, April 1—The Ontario legislature to the Ontario and Western railway in Thunder Bay district. One thousand acres per mile for twenty miles of railway from Keewatin to Kenora.

Edmonton, April 2—The appointment of a railway engineer for the department of railways is to be created as the result of the guaranteeing of the bonds of the branch lines, and will be made at the next meeting of the cabinet within a few weeks.

A swarm of applications from all quarters have been showered upon the executive council.

Premier Rutherford states that the government will secure the best engineer available, as the position will be a most important one in the new department. He proposes himself to retain supervision of the railway department, as there is no need for the creation of a new portfolio, the work being small.

The C. P. R. baseball men meet for organization purposes this evening.

Progress is being made in the formation of the Y. M. C. baseball team.

The Marathon fever is contagious as the exploits of certain enthusiasts who spent a strenuous couple of hours yesterday afternoon bears witness.

Mr. Wetherel of the Union Bank has been on the sick list during the past week, but is now fully recovered.

The Alhambra Club will give another dance in Doty's Hall tomorrow (Wednesday) evening.

A. Patterson, of Medicine Hat, has been in town for several days on a business visit. He sold his business site and building to Messrs. Bertin & Webster, but he will occupy the premises for some time. O. B. Drever has been appointed manager of the Swift Current Trading Co., succeeding W. H. Patterson.—Swift Current Sun.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell, the visiting evangelist, though wearied with three services, gave a startling address in the S. A. Hall last night.

Mr. Mitchell has a way of engaging the attention and inspiring the thoughts of the most thoughtless.

His manner of clothing old truths in qualntest garb, by his native originality makes listening for any length of time a profound pleasure. Time alone is insufficient to record the effect of this service, though three decided to take their stand for the Master.

Go to Wetmon's, North Railway Street, for tasty confectionery and fresh fruit.

Baseball Team Signed Up

Manager Hamilton Secures Good Men

The players for the professional baseball team have practically all signed up. Manager Hamilton has completed contracts with every man mentioned below with the exception of Billy Dunn of Seattle who may be secured in the course of a few days.

Billy Hamilton himself will take 1st base during the coming season. Jack Schroder of Everett, Wash., is down for 2nd base, while Wally Childers, who hails from Le Grand, Ore., and had a good record with the Seattle team last year will be 3rd baseman. Day Ward of Portal and Sam Davidson a Spokane man, are down as catchers. For pitchers there are Frank Ardell and Dan Barker, two local men with excellent records, and Billy Campbell of Sioux City, and Billy Campbell and Pat. Welch, Seattle; and Billy Blackburn, Vancouver. Alex. Harper, of Buffalo who is now in the city, is down for short stop. Kid Williams and Geo. Mallory, both Spokane men, will probably play as outfielders, as well as Jimmy Wilson, Pat Moran and St Bennett.

At least half a dozen of these men are personally known to Manager Hamilton as professional ball players with brilliant records.

The cost of the signing up of all these men has been slightly over $3 as compared with $3,400, the initial expense incurred in 1907 in getting together a team. The advantage of having a manager who is in touch with the klayers in the best American teams is here apparent. Mr. Hamilton knows where to go for the best material and he has made a practice of "getting right after it." The managers of some of the other teams in the western league have found it necessary to go down to Chicago, thus involving an expenditure of several hundred dollars.

A committee has been appointed to coach the C. P. R. on the question of special trains during the baseball season between the depot and the athletic park. It is pointd out that the whole distance could be traversed on the siding and the regular traffic would be in no way interfered with.

Practice will begin at Fleming's ranch about the 17th of this month.

News of the week

During the last fiscal year recently ended, 1,700 immigrants have been deported by the immigration department. These during their first two years proved themselves to be undesirable citizens. Besides these 4,600 immigrants were rejected at ports of entry.

THE ALLEN PLAYERS

The Allen Players who were in the city last week left a very good impression. Five pieces in all were presented, the longest bill being on Friday night when "Zaza" was the production.

The shows were refined and the acting good. The company will be assured of a good house on their return visit later in the spring.

It is expected that navigation on Lake Superior will open this week. The C. W. Moore is ready to start from Duluth for Port Arthur and expects to make the trip on the 10th inst.

MANY DELEGATES ATTEND NATIONAL CONGRESS

Three thousand five hundred delegates attended the Canadian National Missionary Congress at Toronto last week. It was pointed out that 1,600 missionaries would fulfil Canada's missionary obligation. No one doubts our ability to send these. The evangelization of the world seems now to be within the sphere of practical politics.

The British navy authorities have decided to sell ten obsolete warships. These will be placed under the hammer during the next few months.
