Medicine Hat may look forward to a successful baseball season, both in amateur and professional ball. Manager Hamilton and W. J. Fleming believe that the professional ball will be a great help to the amateurs. There may be intervals of from on to two weeks during which time the professional team will be away from the city.

The Fire Brigade organized for the season on Thursday evening when the following officers were elected: President, W. E. Hatcher; vice-president, S. T. Hopper; sec.-treas., H. Pingle; manager, W. Switzer; executive—W. F. Finlay, W. Buchanan, T. A. Elder.

OXFORD WINS BOAT RACE

On Saturday the famous intervarsity race between crews representing Oxford and Cambridge, took place on the Thames between Putney and Mortlake and was won by Oxford by three lengths. The Cambridge crew were undoubtedly the favorites, but the dark blues, who are the heaviest crew that ever raced showed remarkable improvement during the ten days prior to the race. The time was 19 minutes 5 seconds.

ST. YVES WINS MARATHON

New York, April 3—They're off. Senator Timothy Woodruff fired his pisto, which sent the world's premier long distance runners on their way in the international derby marathon. Longboat and Maloney, the "middlers," started under lowered odds. The track is exceedingly sour. Five laps to the mile. A grinding pace was set and the runners slashed through the slushy track.

Big Crowd Out

It is estimated that 35,000 spectators were present when the race started. A slight drizzle is falling. The flags of each nation were represented, strung around the course, but they looked somewhat bedraggled in the rain.

The start was made at a point 275 feet behind the finish line which was opposite third base. At this base waved the flag of Ireland.

Before the men started off they made great boasts of what they could do. "I am going to run away from the bunch at the start," said Shrubb.

Longboat only grunted when asked how he would run. "Me run with feet," said the Indian. The Canadians were out in force to back Longboat.

The Start

The start was made at 3.10 as follows: Shrubb, first; St. Yves, second; Dorando, third; Longboat, fourth; Maloney, fifth; Hayes sixth. At the first lap Hayes dropped behind and lost half a lap. St. Yves, Shrubb and Longboat passed Hayes in a bunch with Maloney about 100 feet behind. The first mile was made in 5 minutes 14 seconds. St. Yves led by 200 feet. Shrubb second, Dorando third, Longboat fourth and Maloney fifth, 150 yards behind the leader. Hayes was nearly a lap be[hind].

Second Mile

In the second lap of the second mile Hayes was lapped by St. Yves. In the third lap of the second mile St. Yves led by a quarter of a lap with Dorando second, Shrubb third, and Longboat fourth, Maloney half a lap behind. He was apparently in fine shape and taking it easy. Dorando, Shrubb and Longboat lapped Hayes in the fourth lap of the second mile.

The official time for the first mile was 5:30; two miles, 10:44. The time for the first three miles, 16:25, St. Yves leading by a third of a lap, having gained two laps on Hayes. Dorando was second, Shrubb third, Longboat fourth, all in a bunch. Maloney was half a lap behind Longboat.

Toward the end of the fourth mile Shrubb and Longboat passed Hayes for the second time. The time for the four miles was 22:16 4-5. St. Yves caught Maloney in the fifth mile and passed him. Dorando third and Longboat fourth.

Five Miles

The time for five miles was an even 28 minutes. The positions at this stage were: St. Yves first, Shrubb second; Dorando third; Longboat fourth, Maloney fifth, one lap behind; Hayes sixth, two laps behind.

Six Miles

Dorando, Shrubb and Longboat crept up on the Frenchman beginning the seventh mile and were only 100 feet behind him. Hayes seemed hopelessly beaten. The six miles were made in 33:51 1-5.

Svanberg's Challenge

John Svanberg, through his manager, Martin Hertzberg, challenged the winner of today's marathon. Svanberg did the marathon at Celtic Park in 2 hours 35 minutes and 13 1-5 seconds.

Seven Miles

The time for seven miles was 39:42 2-5.

Dorando tried to catch St. Yves at the beginning of the eighth mile but the Frenchman sprinted away. Shrubb and Longboat followed the Italian.

The time for the first seven miles was the second best ever made in a marathon race, the record being 30:01 in the Longboat-Dorando race at Buffalo. The time for eight miles is 45:36 2-5.

Nine Miles

Hayes and Maloney were lapped again in the ninth by the leaders. The time for the ninth mile was 51:19 4-5. St. Yves still running fast. Longboat fell back into third place. Shrubb and Dorando trailing Longboat. Maloney and Hayes loafing along.

Ten Miles

In the tenth mile St. Yves led, Shrubb second, Longboat third, Dorando fourth, Maloney fifth, Hayes sixth. Time 57:16 1-5. Best previous record 56:30. Shrubb overtook St. Yves in the first lap of the 10th with Longboat a little behind. Dorando dropped back and seemed to be in distress. Hayes and Maloney were again lapped, making Hayes five laps behind and Maloney three to the lead.

Eleven Miles

The time for the eleventh mile was 1 hour 2 minutes and 7 seconds, 19 seconds behind the record. Shrubb led with St. Yves taking the pace. Longboat was nearly half a lap behind and Dorando trailing the Indian.

Twelve Miles

The time for 12 miles was 1 hour 8 minutes and 16 3-5 seconds.

Thirteen Miles

Shrubb began crawling away from St. Yves in the 13th mile and lapped Dorando. The Frenchman also lapped Dorando. Shrubb and St. Yves next lapped the Indian.

All records for marathon racing for 13 miles have been broken, the time being 1 hour 14 minutes and 30 seconds.

Fifteen Miles

Shrubb led with St. Yves taking the pace by a quarter of a lap in the 15th mile. The time for the 14th mile was 59:16 4-5. The best previous record was 1.20:34.

Shrubb led in the fifteenth mile, St. Yves second, Longboat third, Dorando fourth, Maloney fifth and Hayes sixth.

The time for the fifteen miles was 1.06:09 3-5. Best previous record 1.25:34.

Sixteenth Mile

Hayes took a spurt towards the beginning of the 16th mile and passed Dorando. Longboat and Maloney regaining a lap. Time for sixteen miles 1.32:23 1-5. Previous record, 1.32:56. Shrubb and St. Yves lapped Longboat for the second time.

Eighteenth Mile

In the eighteenth mile Longboat stopped to change his shoes. It was first thought the Longboat had collapsed but he only stopped to change his shoes. He lost two laps. The time for the eighteenth mile, 1.-45:12. Best previous record, at Buffalo, 1.46:04.

Nineteenth Mile

Longboat stopped again in the 19 mile. He wanted to quit, but his attendants urged him to go on and he started after losing another lap.

Twentieth Mile

St. Yves led in the 20th mile, Shrubb second, 1 1-2 laps behind, Dorando third, Maloney fourth and Hayes one mile behind, fifth.

Longboat Quits

Longboat said he was forced to quit because his stomach went back on him.

Twenty-third Mile

The time for the twenty-third mile was 2.17:56. Best previous record 2.28:09.

Twenty-fourth Mile

Shrubb quits. In the twenty-fourth mile St. Yves led, Shrubb second, Dorando third, Maloney fourth and Hayes fifth.

Shrubb staggered toward his quarters and had to be assisted by his attendants.

Twenty-fifth Mile.

St. Yves looked like a sure winner. He is going fine in the 25th mile.

Time for 25 miles, 2.32:11 3-5 Best previous record, 2.37:53.

St. Yves Wins.

St. Yves won. The time of the winner was 2.40:50 3-5. Dorando second. Time 2.45.

Harry St. Yves is 21 years old was born in Rouen, France. He started running [illegible] and has been in six races all of which he has won. After crossing the finishing line St. Yves was received by his friends. He said: "It was easy. I could have gone farther."

As a result of the marine enquiry conducted by Judge Cassels for the Dominion Government, 18 officials employed in various capacities in the marine department have been dismissed from service. Even a government employee cannot afford to be dishonest.

An American settler named James Scriver, en route over the Soo line to Alberta fell from the Soo-Spokane [illegible] near Weyburn, Sask., and was killed. He was under the influence of liquor when the accident occurred. Two small children who accompanied him were left in charge of the Mounted Police at Weyburn.

A wedding was solemnized in the mounted police barracks about a couple of years ago under somewhat dramatic circumstances. The union has not proved a happy one and on Friday afternoon the couple again visited the barracks and this time they are to be separated for a couple of months. It appeared that Geo. Nix, as the man in the case is named has been a victim of intemperate habits, and Mrs. Nix has been a victim of her husband's brutality. The state of things becoming at last unbearable, she preferred a charge of assault against him. No defence was offered and the accused was sentenced to two months in the guard room at Lethbridge, with hard labor.

George Ade Fables

The Sorrows of the Unemployed and the Danger of Changing From Bill to Harold.

[Copyright, 1902, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.]

SUSSIETY.

In a certain Western Town that started out with the Expectation of hurting Chicago, there was an Early Settler who tried to build a Fence around the Corporation. He cabbaged all the Corner Lots and nailed the Main Street Frontage and then held on like a Summer Cold.

He was a grisly old Badger who wore one Suit the Year round, with a Pair of box-toed Boots, a woollen Hat, and a Moss-Agate Collar-Button. While he was doing Business at 2 per cent. a Month, and holding out on the Assessor and bilking the Grangers for Railway franchises, he was regarded as a Wolf.

After he changed his address to Over There, the Heirs erected something that looked like the Bunker Hill Monument, and then they had him done in Oil by a Celebrated Artist. The Artist fixed his Hair for Him and gave him a neat Stand-Up Collar such as no one could have put on to the Old Man with a Block and Tackle. They named a School after him, and every one in Town who was related to him could butt into Sussiety without a Ticket.

The Large End of all the Scads mentioned in the last Will and Testament went to a Son named William H. Jimpson. On the way back from the Cemetery he took out a Pencil and figured to see what he was worth, and then he changed his Name to W. Harold Jimpson.

W. Harold had been compelled to fly fairly close to the Ground while the Governor was on Deck, but when there was no one to keep Tab on him he began to find $100 Bills in his Clothes when he was looking for a Card, and it seemed to Vex him a good deal.

A few Years before W. Harold became surrounded by Currency he had taken a Wife, without very much of a Struggle. Leonora was of a very Nice Family, that owed something on the House and kept a Girl part of the Time. After she began to have a Governess for Stuyvesant Jimpson and an Imported Nurse for the little Evelyn Jimpson her Memory seemed to blur in Spots and she couldn't have done up the Dishes to save her life.

When she was out in her Brougham it kept her busy not seeing her Childhood Friends who used to go to Kissing Parties and Taffy Pulls with her. That was why she wanted to Travel. She fairly ached to get to Paris, where True Social Worth is recognized right on the Jump. Her Husband, also, was getting sore on his Birthplace. His Acquaintances would not stand for the W. Harold Gag. They called him "Bill."

POLO WAS A BORE.

Then, on top of it all, the two Cases of Offspring needed the French Language. Leonora was already feeding their Legs to the Mosquitoes because some one had told her that the real Delicatessen always left the Kids partly uncovered, a la Parisienne.

W. Harold closed out all his interests, and when he got through he had his Bank-Roll in one neat Stack of Bonds. All he had to do for the remainder of his Natural was to clip the Coupons every Six Months. Between times he could enjoy himself. It looked Soft.

W. Harold and Bunch, including a Retinue of Private Secretaries, Hair-Dressers, and Maids, as well as a Keeper, sometimes known as a Valet, set out for Yurrup. As Harold sized up the Caravansary he swelled with Satisfaction and said, "Little would any one Suspect that we have been out of the Hazel Brush less than 3 Months."

Now that he was beyond the Range of the unlettered Rube, he began to do a little Landscape Gardening on the Frontispiece, laying out a very neat Set of Depews. He wore Gloves even at Night, and worked for Hours trying to get a side-hold on the Piccadilly Accent.

The joyful Jimpsons cut a 14-foot Gash right through the centre of the Continent. They saw everything mentioned in the Red Book, and finally struck Paris, with a loud, metallic Sound. There they settled down to remain forever, in the Shade of the sheltering Absinthe Frappe, with the Grisettes singing in the Trees.

But W. Harold had inherited a few restless Microbes from the parental Hustler. After he had seen all the Pictures from every Angle and had worn out two or three Chairs sitting around Cafes, he began to long for the Nasal Twang and something to do. The whole Kit and Tribe moved back to the States.

He learned that the Proper Caper for one who is out of Work and all clogged up with Funds is to build a Cottage overlooking the Sea and work up Features for the Sunday Papers. Accordingly he threw up a Shack with Onyx Foundations and Florida Water piped into every Room. It faced four different Ways. The Excursionists rode in from as far away as Swanzey to look at it and wait for the Real Things to come out and pile into the Blue Assassin and go out hunting Baby Carriages.

After the keen Pleasure of being pointed out had somewhat dulled and the Homicide Wagon had palled on them and Polo was a Bore and Ping-Pong a Misdemeanor and Golf a Crime, poor Harold and Leonora found themselves up against it, strong and plenty. She gave a few Dog Parties and one for a Prince, but even these Gayeties petered out after a while. Sometimes Leonora was afraid that in order to kill Time she would either have to mingle with her Children or else take to Reading, but she hated to cause Talk.

SHE GAVE DOG PARTIES.

She and W. Harold found themselves in the great Army of the Unemployed. And yet all the Factories were running double Shifts and Harvest Hands getting $3 a day.

At last they became so Desperate and Lonely that they fell in love with each other out of yearning Sympathy, and this gave rise to so much Scandal that they had to go back to the Other Side to live it down.

MORAL: Beware of Government Bonds.

Now is Best Time to Take

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the following valuable, though simple and harmless, prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach, while there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, so the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

AN UNPRECEDENTED RUSH

Winnipeg, March 31—Dominion government immigration officials report the rush of immigrants to Canada unprecedented. This is especially true of American immigration. Every train crossing the boundary line at Emmerson, Gretna and North Portal is crowded and there seems to be no let up. Most of the Americans coming in are well supplied with money and have their effects with them.

The Mounted Police have effected the capture of a gang of suspected horse and cattle thieves who have been operating in northern Alberta. The arrest was made near Stettler.

MANY DON'T KNOW HEART AFFECTED.

More People Than are Aware of It Have Heart Disease.

"If examinations were made of everyone, people would be surprised at the number of persons walking about suffering from heart disease."

This startling statement was made by a doctor at a recent inquest. "I should not like to say that heart disease is as common as this would imply," said the expert, "but I am sure that the number of persons going about with weak hearts must be very large."

"Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that kills them that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is made apparent."

"But undoubtedly heart weakness, not disease, is more prevalent nowadays. I should think that the stress of living, the wear and rush of modern business life, have a lot to do with heart trouble."

There is no doubt but that this is correct, and we would strongly advise any one suffering in any way from heart trouble to try a course of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

The City's Credit

The city council is to be commended on the work it has accomplished in placing the credit of the city on such a satisfactory basis. That we were offered 105½ for our bonds means that we have not by any means strained our borrowing powers and that the business of the city is being conducted in an able manner. Some of this is undoubtedly due to a more favorable money market than has prevailed the last couple of years. But a favorable money market will not guarantee a high price for bonds unless the other conditions are good. Moose Jaw thinks itself very fortunate in being offered a fraction of one cent above par for its new issue. Evidently Moose Jaw has already drawn much more extensively on its borrowing powers than we have. The attitude of the burgesses in passing the bye-laws by such a large majority was a wise one and is an indication of their confidence in the city's growth.

The G.T.P.

The situation in reference to the enterprise known as the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is one of serious moment to western Canada. It would seem that all work is suspended for the present and that a large number of contractors are leaving the G. T. P. line and heading for parts where the C. P. R. is extending its branch lines. No matter how favorably the tide may turn for the G. T. P. Co., this means that work must progress very slowly this season, for many of these will remain in the C. P. R. territory. Situated as we are on the main line of the C. P. R. this does not mean much to us at Medicine Hat, but as residents of western Canada we are vitally interested in its development; and the present situation if prolonged means that that development must be retarded.

The cause of this inactivity is the attitude of the money market toward the bonds of the company, which cannot now be sold except at sacrifice prices. This unfavorable financial condition is due to the unexpected heavy cost of the prairie section. The estimated cost of this portion of the road was $15,000 per mile, and the government has guaranteed bonds up eo $18,000 per mile which heretofore has enabled the company to sell the bonds at a favorable price. Now it is learned that the cost has reached $28,000 per mile, and the credit of the company is seriously impaired. Parliament is asked to loan the company $10,000,000 to enable them to proceed until the financial situation brightens.

It would appear that the G. T. P. has made a business blunder. Either the estimated cost was much too low or there has been mismanagement of the contracts. Is the country to shoulder the responsibility for this by loaning them $10,000,000 and trusting that the company will do better in the future? Something is undoubtedly due the new settler, who went into the pioneer portion of the west on the strength of the government's statement that railways are coming; but the remainder of our citizens must have some guarantee that their interests are safeguarded. Mr. Borden wisely asks that the circumstances be fully inquired into.

The Coming Budget

As the time draws near for the government to bring in the budget, it becomes more evident that our national expenditure is growing at an enormous rate. This is not at all surprising for the longer an extravagant government remains in power the more of the people's money it must distribute to satisfy its friends. The Liberal party was returned to power in 1896 pledged to the reduction of taxation by the lowering of custom duties. In fact the Liberal party in its opposition days even talked of "free trade as they have it in England." When the new tariff was issued, there were a few changes made, but none to materially effect the situation. Since then the tariff has been revised several times but we are no nearer tariff reduction than ever. On many articles the duty has been raised. But the increase has been not only direct; there is also an indirect increase, brought about by raising the basis of taxation. The values upon which the ad valorem duty is calculated were lifted. This was justified by the government by calling attention to the fact that prices were enhancing. But behind this there was the evident purpose of the government to get the values raised to as high a point as possible and thus increase the revenue without seeming to be levying any greater tax.

Just how rapidly our national expenditure has been increasing will be vividly presented to us by a comparison between the sums collected as taxes in 1896 when the Laurier administration assumed control, and that collected in 1908. In the former year the amount was $27,759,000. By 1908 it had risen to $73,000,000, and increase in twelve years of $45,241,000 or 166 per cent. It is admitted that some of this increase is justifiable. The country is growing, and an increased business must be run at an increased cost. A merchant cannot conduct a $40,000 business on the same expense as a $20,000 one. But he will not expect his $40,000 business to cost him any greater proportion of expense. A farmer cannot farm two sections at the same expense that he can farm one. But if his expense is more than doubled he will suspect some extravagance in the management. His expectations are that he will be able to farm both sections more economically than one.

Judged by this standard how have our affairs been managed? We can best pass judgment on it by comparing the tax rate per family or per head in 1896 and 1908. In 1896 we paid in taxes $5.46 per head. In 1908 we paid $11.75, an increase of over 100 per cent. Making all allowances for good times, in which governments as well as individuals are inclined to spend more freely, this enormous increase cannot be justified. The fact that the country has grown and demands a larger expenditure than formerly, leads us to expect a lower rate per head, just as the farmer expects to farm 2 sections more economically than one. But if he finds that his manager instead of lowering his expense ratio, doubles it, what would he do with him? He would promptly change the manager. If it cost him three times as much to farm two sections as one, he would conclude that his increased acreage is a doubtful acquisition. We, as a nation, have almost doubled in size, but it costs us three times as much to manage the affairs of this larger concern.

The difficulty is not the increased cost of managing a larger business. We want to grow larger, and will gladly pay for the necessary increase of managing our affairs. But rate per head should not materially change. The enormous increase is due largely to a series of financial blunders of which the government has been guilty. Public works of the Newmarket Canal type, which are purely election bribes, accounts for much of it. Then again the government end of the Grand Trunk Pacific seems to swallow up every cent of the government's available money, and then calls loudly for more. It looks as though the undertaking might result in a worse enterprise than the much talked of Intercolonial. Our borrowing powers are now so effected that we cannot raise money except at a high rate of interest.

The government is now seeking for new means of raising a revenue, and the probability is that the free list will be materially reduced. Just what move the government will make remains to be seen, but it is evident that we must pay a high price for the privelege of being governed by Laurier.

The Great Weather Factory

The expedition in search of the weather, like many other great undertakings, was an inspiration, an impulse, and in no sense due to any thought of profit or to any encouragement received from either government or public.

"Henry," said I to the Great Traveler one day, "do you know where the weather comes from?"

"From Medicine Hat," answered Henry with startling promptitude.

"You are an observing mortal, Henry," I commended; "you have unquestionably observed the weather reports. But do you happen to know whether Medicine Hat is a place, an article of apparel, a physician's prescription, or a summer drink?"

"I think," said Henry, "that it is the name of the Indian Chief who puts the weather up in miscellaneous packages, shuffles the packages, and then puts the joke on the weather bureau when it tries to select one."

"But you don't know?" I persisted.

Henry shook his head. "But do you know" he asked.

"No," I admitted regretfully. "I do not. Medicine Hat, to me, as to most other people, is merely a name, a mythical source of unpleasant news, a synonym for what we don't want. You never hear of Medicine Hat unless something disagreeable is going to happen—something that leads you to change quickly from outing flannels to furs or from furs to bathing trunks,—and then very likely it doesn't happen. Medicine Hat, whatever and wherever it is, ought to be reformed."

"Good idea!" cried Henry enthusiastically. "Let us locate the source of the weather and make it fit for publication."

"Meaning," I queried, "that we go in search of Medicine Hat?"

"Precisely," said Henry. "Let us find this weather factor" study the mechanism, get a few samples of weather fresh from the mill, analyze them, and make such changes as are necessary to secure a uniform brand. There is bad management somewhere or we should not have such erratic and uneven work. This is the age of system. Let us systematize the weather, and we shall be doing a service to humanity that will put us among the six best sellers; I mean among the great philanthropists of the age."

"It looks good to me," I agreed, and it was so decided.

Hunting For Clues

Of course, we first had to learn something more definite about Medicine Hat; so we tackled a passing stranger.

"The name," he said "means nothing to me but weather."

"Naturally," we agreed; "but how can we find it?"

"You can't find it," he replied. "It isn't a place; it's a symptom."

This did not sound exactly right to us; so we tried again.

"I've heard of it," said the man behind the long mahogany counter; "but I never mixed one myself. I'll try it, however, if you'll tell me how it's made."

A third trial was more successful. "Medicine Hat," said the lake captain, "is a place,—a breeding place for trouble. It sends us, among other things, the cross of navigation every year, and sometimes it sends this without warning. It is the most cantankerous place in the world You can't be sure what it will do next, even when it tells you, for very likely it won't do it. If called upon to classify it, I should say it was the one worst bet."

"But where is it?" we asked.

"Somewhere between the northern boundary of the United States and the Artic Circle," he answered.

"Such general directions as you give" we urged, "will not assist us materially in getting there."

The mariner of the unsailed seas looked at us in amazement. "You want to go there" he asked.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

She writes: "I thought I would write and let you know the benefit I have received through the use of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A few years ago I was so badly troubled with my lungs people said I had Consumption and that I would not live through the fall. I had two doctors attending me and they were very much alarmed about me. I was in bed three months and when I got up I could not walk, so had to go on my hands and knees for three weeks, and my limbs seemed of no use to me. I gave up all hopes of ever getting better when I happened to see in E.B.E. Almanac that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was good for weak lungs. I thought I would try a bottle and by the time I had used it I was a lot better, so got more and it made a complete cure. My little boy was also troubled with weak lungs and it cured him. I keep it in the house all the time and would not be without it for anything."

Price 25 cents at all dealers. Beware of imitations of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Ask for it and insist on getting the original. Put up in a yellow wrapper and three pine trees the trade mark.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only cure—but I dreaded it. Finally I consented to look upon all doctors as alike—better than money. One day I was asked why I was off work so much and I told him my troubles. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got The New Method Treatment. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $31 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment."

unlocated home of weather,—bad weather.

Finally Getting There

With our difficulties in finding it I shall not concern myself in this article, as I have space only to give results. The Great Traveller undertook to act as guide. He made elaborate preparations for the trip, laying in plentiful supplies of tobacco and an extra pipe. And it was well that he did; for we were once lost in the Rainy River country near Fort Frances, and were marooned for an equal length of time at a place called Asquith, near Saskatoon, where we could get nothing to eat or drink without asking for it. Henry was not a good guide for we discovered later that we went many miles out of our way being successively east, north and west of Medicine Hat, before we reached our destination. But we finally got there.

The inhabitants of Medicine Hat are a branch (or possibly the main stem) of the tribe of the Glad Hand. This, as is well known to explorers and students of ethnology, is the most hospitable tribe in the world. A representative of the tribe, wearing a smile that would break up a blizzard, met us with an automobile. His name was Pingle.

"Where do you want to go?" asked Pingle, after giving us a warm welcome. "Have you heard what Kipling said about Medicine Hat) What do you want to see? I am at your service."

"This expedition," explained Henry getting down to business at once, "was undertaken for the purpose of investigating the weather factory."

Pingle seemed troubled. We discovered later that reference to the weather factory always troubled residents of Medicine Hat, and seemed to have the effect of creating a thirst. We learned to take advantage of this in time.

"Let us go to the club first," said Pingle.

We went to the club. The fact that there was a club, and a well equipped club at that, was rather disconcerting; but we saw no reason for complaining. We met several other members of the tribe, each of whom asked us confidentially if we had seen what Rudyard Kipling said about Medicine Hat; and then Pingle bundled us into the automobile again.

Kipling's Trapdoor

A few minutes later he stopped before two little frame buildings.

"Not much of a weather factory," complained Henry.

"There," explained Pingle, "is the trapdoor to hell of which you have heard so much."

I could not see what the trapdoor had to do with the brand of weather that Medicine Hat turns out; but Pingle hustled us into one of the buildings before I could ask any questions.

The titular description then seemed appropriate. There were many pipes and two or three great furnaces. The engineer operated a few valves lit a match, and we could readily believe that the trapdoor had been opened.

"I don't like," grumbled Henry, "why you don't turn that on the weather in winter."

Pingle ignored his peevishness. "We have the strongest flow of natural gas on this continent," said Pingle. "We supply it at five cents a thousand for manufacturing purposes and thirteen cents per thousand cubic feet for domestic use. Can you beat that where you come from?"

I thought of my own gas bills and sighed.

"But where is the weather factory?" asked Henry.

"Let us go to the club first," suggested Pingle.

The light of comprehension was dawning in Henry's eyes; he was learning how to create a Medicine Hat thirst. I also was beginning to see how much the factory might mean to us.

"By the way," remarked the engineer, as we were departing, "did you see what Kipling said about Medicine Hat?"

We returned to the club, and then made a fresh start. This time we brought up in front of some large but low brick buildings, with many railroad tracks running into them.

"That looks something like," I commented.

"It does," agreed Henry. "I should hate to find that the weather factory is an insignificant little plant."

"The Canadian Pacific shops," explained Pingle. "I want to show you the economy there is in our natural gas."

It would have been discourteous to back out, so we invaded the shops.

The master mechanic showed us long lines of hose each with a great nozzle attached. He turned a valve lit a match, and the nozzle began to spout fire. He turned a few more valves, to give the requisite air pressure and the nozzle became a portable blast furnace.

"Formerly," he explained, "we had to bring the part of the engine needing attention to the fire; now we take the fire to the engine. For instance, locomotive tires can be reset without removing the wheel. All that is necessary is to jack up the wheel clear of the track, attach a circular burner of pipe, turn on the gas, and the job can be completed in about twenty minutes. The time that an engine with a loose tire need be out of commission has been reduced from about twenty-four hours to about one hour, and there is a similar saving in the matter of many other repairs. We are also able to get a cold engine under steam in less than half the time it formerly took, a natural gas burner taking the place of the waste and kindling we previously used. It means a saving of thousands."

"But where is the weather factory?" interrupted Henry, determined not to be diverted from the main object of our quest.

"Let us go back to the club first," suggested Pingle.

"One moment," interposed the master mechanic. "Have you seen what Kipling—"

But we hastily retreated to the automobile.

Again we returned to the club, and again we made a fresh start. This time Pingle took us to see the Irish yard, the grain elevator and the flour mill. The idea of a flour mill at the place where blizzards come from was rather startling; but we dared not suggest this lest Pingle should insist on taking us back to see the wheat fields. They have a habit of doing this in western Canada.

"It is all very fine," commended Henry diplomatically. "We now fully appreciate that you have something here besides weather. Incidentally I may mention before you start us or any more excursions, that we have noted your school buildings and realize that you have towns of the same size on our side of the line beaten to a finish in that respect. But we came here to see the weather factory."

"Let us go back to the club first," urged Pingle.

Pingle certainly knew how to create a diversion, and Henry informed me confidentially that it was becoming a matter of no moment to him whether we ever found the weather factory or not, but that he was determined to ask for it at regular intervals.

The Factory at Last

Our next stop after the club was in front of an attractive stone building, partly concealed by trees and shrubs.

"You ought to be able to turn out a neater brand of weather than we get in a place like this," I ventured.

"Hospital," I exclaimed.

"Nothing the matter with me!" expostulated Henry.

"But the weather man is under the weather," Pingle informed us.

This was so much like a joke that we laughed and entered fearlessly.

Walter Croskill, the weather man, was not at all awe inspiring. He did not look like a blizzard nor act like one. On the contrary he proved to be a very pleasant man, and the fact that he was in the hospital was due to some trouble with his eyes and not to any attack made upon him by indignant recipients of unwelcome weather. His official title, by the way, is Dominion Meteorological Agent, which is certainly a clumsy enough designation to stir up any kind of storm.

Croskill shocked us with almost his first words. "Medicine Hat has been much maligned," he said. "We do not use local the brand of weather that is so closely identified with us in the United States."

"Do you mean," cried Henry, "that you do not sample the weather before sending it out?"

"I mean" said Crosskill, "that we are usually quite comfortable, thank you, when you are wrestling with the blizzard or other storm that you attribute to Medicine Hat."

"Very careless of you" grumbled Henry, "to put an article that you have not tested on the market."

"Evidently," remarked Croskill, "you have fallen into the popular error. Your weather does not come from here at all."

"Then where does it come from?" I demanded.

"I am of the opinion," said Crosskill, "that it comes from the Gulf of Mexico."

"That won't do," objected Henry. "They don't breed that kind—the kind we are investigating—in the South. We're not looking into the cause of heat prostrations, you know."

"I mean," explained Crosskill, "that the conditions that stir up and where down in the Gulf of Mexico; but we get the first registration of them here. You see, we are about twenty-eight hundred feet above sea level."

"Are we to understand," inquired Henry, somewhat bewildered, "that this objectionable weather passes over us so high that we don't know anything about it, and then you get hold of it and shunt it back to us?"

"Something like that," admitted Croskill, "although I should hardly have stated the case that way."

"Most unkind of you," complained Henry. Why don't you let it go on and lose itself in the Artic Ocean, where it belongs?"

"I fear that you do not quite understand," said Crosskill, patiently. "We merely register conditions, the atmospheric pressure, etc. We have nothing to do with creating those conditions; it is merely that we are so located as to note them first. Our report goes to Ottawa; but your country gets it on the way, and immediately the word is passed that Medicine Hat is sending you some more weather. Why in my opinion the weather of which you complain doesn't come from either north or west of here; it isn't Pacific coast weather, and it isn't Arctic Circle weather—"

"That's where you are wrong," interrupted Henry.

"In it's origin, I mean," explained Crosskill. The conditions that we register, which develop into blizzards and cold waves for you, are usually from the Gulf of Mexico."

"I presume" remarked Henry, "that it is gulf weather acclimated."

"I should hardly say that," returned Croskill. "It is merely that the atmospheric conditions that we register and that finally result in—"

"Oh well," put in Henry, "I never could understand the theory of the weather and weather reports; but you seem to make it clear that Medicine Hat does not get the Medicine Hat weather that we get."

"Precisely," agreed Crosskill, ignoring this pertinent inquiry, "we do get some temporary extremes of temperature. I've known the thermometer to register a difference of sixty degrees in twenty-four hours."

"That's going some," commented Henry.

"But it was exceptional," said Crosskill, "and it did not mean extreme cold; merely an extreme change."

Rather dazed, we were retiring, when Crosskill called after us. "By the way," he said, "did you hear what Kipling—"

We left in such haste that we nearly fell down the stairs.

One Who Knew All About It.

The situation was now indeed serious, we had come many miles to investigate a weather factory and there was no weather factory. "But don't let Pingle know that we have discovered this," urged Henry anxiously. "We must still demand to see it. Besides there must be an observatory or something."

So we informed Pingle that the weather man was all right in his way, but that we could not accept him as a substitute for the weather factory. "Let us go there at once," insisted Henry.

"But let us go back to the club first," urged Pingle.

We let Pingle have his way, even going with him blindly after we left the club. We felt that Pingle had earned the right to take us where he pleased after each visit to the club, and it was becoming an interesting, not to say pleasurable, game.

This time we stopped before a little house.

"They could certainly turn only a mild brand of weather fram such a place as this," observed Henry.

"Dr. Calder's home," explained Pingle. "Dr. Calder probably knows more about the weather than any other man in town. He has been a student of it, I think, longer than Mr. Crosskill."

We went in and explained our mission.

"Medicine Hat's undeserved reputation as the home of the blizzard and the cold wave," said Dr. Calder "is doubtless due in a large part to the fact that it was the first meteorological station in the northwest. Consequently, all reports of storm conditions in this part of the country had a Medicine Hat date, and the public naturally reached the conclusion that the weather we reported for others was the weather we had here. As a matter of fact, Medicine Hat is in the chinook belt and gets the warm chinook winds."

"I think you might send some of those down to us," complained Henry "The stuff that we get with a Medicine Hat label certainly isn't chinooky."

"We do not send you any weather at all," explained Dr. Calder. "That is a sad mistake. We do not even get the weather that you think comes from us. We merely record the atmospheric conditions that indicate a storm, and the storm begins to develop at Swift Current, about a hundred miles south of us. Then, by the time it reaches Dakota, it is making trouble; but we have had no more to do with it than to record the fact that Dakota is going to get it."

Couldn't Find Any Weather

Henry and I walked out in a daze. Evidently there was no weather at Medicine Hat. Apparently the weather was all south of Medicine Hat, beginning about Swift Current, and getting worse as it travelled south.

"It must be awful when it gets back to the Gulf of Mexico," I ventured.

"Yes," agreed Henry, "but I can't help thinking what a balmy place the Artic Circle must be."

"Oh, we have cold weather up here," put in Pingle; "but the chinook tempers it, and we don't get the blizzards that you get to the south of us. Our occasional extreme of temperature in a day are occasioned by the chinook that raises it rather than by a storm that lowers it. We have some abnormally warm days in winter in this part of the world."

"Well," said Henry desperately, "you must have something to show for your reputation. The weather may not come from here; but the weather reports certainly do. If you can't show us a real weather factory, you can at least show us your observatory."

"But let us go back to—"

"No," declared Henry firmly. "There is some dreadful mystery here, and it must be cleared up."

I supported Henry in this; so Pingle reluctantly acquiesced. He had been rushing us about town at about thirty miles an hour; but the automobile now lost its speed and barely crept along.

"You quite understand" said Pingle "that this weather reputation is not of Medicine Hat's seeking."

"We do," I told him.

"I should hate to have you think that we have been sailing under false colors."

"No danger."

"You know, Kipling said—"

"Yes," broke in Henry irritably, "we know what Kipling said, and we're beginning to hate him for saying it!"

"What did he say?" demanded Pingle with unexpected spirit.

"He said" answered Henry, "that you have 'all hell for a basement and the trapdoor seems to be at Medicine Hat.'"

"Oh, that isn't it at all," returned Pingle. "He said that of course; but it's not the phrase we have in mind when we occasionally mention Kipling. He referred to Medicine Hat as 'the town that was born lucky.'"

"Lose again," said Henry gloomily "We don't seem to be able to guess anything right."

The Factory at Last.

Pingle stopped his machine at the river bank. "That," he said, pointing "is the Canadian Pacific bridge over the South Saskatchewan. We think we have reason to be justly proud of—"

"What's that big white board?" interrupted Henry.

Pingle sighed. "I've been trying to keep you away from that all day," he said. "It's where the weather comes from,—our observatory,—the only thing we have to show for the reports that we send out. Back of it there is a small box with slatted sides that contains a few recording instruments, and you will note there is a glass globe, like a water carafe partly tipped over, on a wooden pedestal near it. I don't just know what the various instruments are for but Mr. Crosskill looks at them twice a day and telegraphs the readings to headquarters. That's all there is to our so-called weather factory."

Henry and I looked at the board, at each other, and then at Pingle. There was a painful silence.

"Pingle," said Henry at last, "you may take us back to the club and keep us there as long as you like."

Trade Disputes

Ottawa, March 25—There were five trade disputes in Canada reported to the Labor Department during February, the same number as in the preceding month, but five less than in February, 1908. Five firms and 295 employees were affected, and the loss of time to the latter during the month is computed at 4,895 working days. There were three new disputes, two in the western provinces and one of iron moulders at Guelph, Ont.

During February, 1909, 236 industrial accidents were reported to the Department of Labor. Of these, 64 were fatal. In addition, six fatal accidents which took place in January were reported in February. In January there were 66 fatal and 164 non-fatal accidents, and in February, 1908, 88 fatal and 177 non-fatal accidents.

The number of immigrants who entered Canada during the eleven months ending Feb. 29, was 130,444 as compared with 247,056 during the corresponding period of 1907-8. There was thus a decrease of 47 per cent. In February last 4,791 immigrants entered the country as compared with 6,164 in February, 1908.

Road to Bay.

The Liberal campaign cry of the last election "Immediate construction of the Hudson's Bay railroad," is fast falling into the distance. It is farther than ever from being a reality.

Hon. G. P. Graham, admitted recently in answer to questions by R. S. Lake of Qu'Appelle, that there will be no bill this session. Last parliament, the premier announced that the work would be started at once. The bill was forecasted and $100,000 for surveys was placed in the estimates. It formed the main theme during the campaign for government orators all through the west.

The best Mr. Graham would promise, was that the government hope to go ahead as soon as the condition of the finances permitted. In reply to a query as to whether the government intended to construct the road or place it in the hands of a private corporation, Mr. Lake was informed that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had intimated that the railway would be a government undertaking.

A vote of $65,000 has been placed in the estimates again for surveys, and this is all that is to be expended this year. A survey, Mr. Graham said, has been made of the route to Fort Churchill. It is now said that a route to Fort Nelson would pass through good country and be 60 miles shorter than the Churchill line. It was proposed to get further information as to the two ports.

C. P. R. CHANGES

Several minor changes are being made in the C. P. R. station agents in the west. Geo. A. Hall, agent at Halbrite has been promoted to the agency at Osage, Sask.; Paul C. Winter, yardmaster at Swift Cdrrent is transferred to Moose Jaw, and O. L. Riches of Medicine Hat, has been appointed to the position of yardmaster at Swift Current.

Britain is Our Source of Financial Aid

A Toronto paper says: British ships keep inviolate the world's money centre, which last year loaned Canada $200,000,000 and which has supplied the funds wherewith for railways to cross the continent and developed mineral and other resources. Canada's financial dependence upon London is indicated by a sum in mental arithmetic recently done by Mr. E. R. Wood. Canada's obligations to the imperial capital are thus set down:

	Borrowed in England
Dominion government ...	$250,000,000
Provincial governments	50,000,000
Can. railways on bonds	500,000,000
Can. other purposes ...	200,000,000
Total	$1,000,000,000

In short, Canada owes the mother country no less than a billion dollars. This is a sum equal to the combined assets of all the Canadian chartered banks gathered up through all their eighteen hundred agencies. The loan of such a vast amount has rendered our remarkable material development possible.

In the next few years we shall require another billion dollars in addition to the one we already have. Where should we obtain this credit were Great Britain's position as the world's carrier, the world's marine and the world's banker, seriously disturbed? What would happen to the Dominion were England to be so crippled as to cease to be the world's financial centre?

Mrs. Brash an aged woman living at Leduc, Alta., died in the open from exposure while endeavoring to reach the home of a neighbor. It is thought that she was endeavoring to secure assistance for her son, who was found dead in the house most probably from heart failure.

Coal Strike

Macleod, Alta., April 1—The Western Coal Operators' Association met the president and officers of District No. 18 of the United Mine Workers of America here yesterday, and as a result President Sherman, of the Miners' Union, notified the association that he had instructed all miners employed in the collieries of the association to suspend work.

Coming at the conclusion of what had been thought to be successful negotiations between the operators and the employers, the news that a strike has been called is, to say the least, surprising.

It was generally understood that the new schedule was to be signed yesterday, but the whole negotiations now appear to have fallen through.

Neither side is willing to discuss the situation, but the order to suspend work is said to have been precipitated by the action of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., in withdrawing from the operators' association and granting its employees better terms than the proposed general agreement called for.

OBEY PRESIDENT' ORDER

Lethbridge, April 1—At a meeting held this afternoon the local miners decided unanimously to accept President Sherman's order to suspend work, pending a satisfactory settlement of terms. No men will therefore work tomorrow. About 700 men are affected here, in the Galt mine and in the Royal collieries.

Fernie, April 1—The agreements between the Crows Nest Pass Coal company and its employees, which was submitted to the men for ratification or rejection last Friday was after deliberations lasting till Monday, adopted by the men, and work is now going or again, all the men signing the new agreement as they go to work under it for the next two years. There are no material chances as to wages, but several matters which had been left in a rather ambiguous state by the old agreement were more definitely defined, removing the possibility of trivial frictions arising under the new bargain. Immediately upon the conclusion of the agreement, Manager Hunter left for St. Paul, Chicago and other eastern points to look after matters pertaining to the early increase of the mine outrust.

EAT SAUSAGES OR NEW BREAD

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will occasionally take a little Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Distress, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and Intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

"The Cowboy Baronet"

Sir Genille Cave-Brown-Caves Proves Zam-Buk excellent for Hurts & Sore.

Sir Genille Cave-Brown-Cave, of Stretton Hall, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Leicestershire, who is better known in Canada as "the Cowboy Baronet," has had a wide experience of the value of Zam-Buk. Writing to a friend recently, and speaking of this great balm, he says:—

"I feel it is only my duty to let you know what great benefit I have derived by keeping Zam-Buk handy, and having it in constant use. For the sprains and bruises which I have incurred in my horsemanship and in my cowboy life generally, I have found it a reliable and speedy healer. Some of the best riders in the west that I know, use Zam-Buk regularly with the greatest benefit. I may mention that upon one occasion my horse, "Bob," came down with me, rolling over my limbs, and tearing pieces of skin off my arm. By the use of Zam-Buk immediately the wounds and bruises were cleanly and quickly healed, and the raw parts covered with new healthy skin.

"When on the Mexican plains I have used Zam-Buk for poisonous insect-bites.

"Zam-Buk has yielded me far more remarkable results and generally proved more reliable than anything could have done in the way of mere ointments or embrocations, and I think it unequalled for skin injuries and diseases."

No clearer evidence than the above from this well known baronet could be needed to prove the unique merit of Zam-Buk, and to show the wisdom of always keeping handy a box of this wonderful balm.

Zam-Buk is Nature's own healing balm, being composed of pure herbal essences. It is a sure cure for eczema, ring-worm, ulcers, cuts, burns, bruises, poisoned sores, chronic wounds, bad leg, piles, festering sores and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere sell at 50c. a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co Toronto; 3 boxes $1.25. You are warned against harmful imitations, sometimes represented to be "just as good."

Mounted Police

On Friday morning, Kid Howell was arrested in the red-light district and charged before Inspector Parker with being a frequenter of houses of ill-fame. He was fined $25 and costs, with the alternative of two months' imprisonment. The fine was paid. Howell who is a Creole, has made for himself quite a name in the western ring. He has a fight on today at Maple Creek where he will meet Fletcher.

ENGLISH TEACHERS FOR ALBERTA SCHOOLS

One hundred and twenty-five letters of inquiry in three mails at the department of education tell the story of the interest which the British teachers are taking in the opening in this province of school teachers.

While D. S. MacKenzie, deputy minister of education, was gathering information in the British Isles as to the educational system in vogue there, and how it was administered, he was frequently interviewed by London papers and others as to the needs of teachers and the educational conditions in this province. This has given rise to the unprecedented inquiries that are being made.

"In two days after my return to Edmonton," said Mr. MacKenzie to a Bulletin representative "there were 76 inquiries at my office from British teachers. The British mail which arrived to day carried 49 letters of inquiry."

Mr. MacKenzie referred to the mild criticism of the Montreal Daily Star, which said in the issue of March 17, that Teachers from Alberta should come from the eastern provinces instead of from the old country. The reply of Mr. MacKenzie to this article would be that teachers cannot be secured in sufficient numbers from the east. Last year there were openings in the province for 200 qualified teachers in Alberta and the situations had to be filled to a large extent by granting permits and provisional certificates.

Mr. MacKenzie says that there are openings for 200 teachers in Alberta this year and he feels that the department is justified in extending a welcome to all teachers from across the water who possess all the necessary qualifications and probably more than are required of the teachers at home—Edmonton Bulletin.

The substance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech in the House of Commons on the naval situation is that for the present Canada will contribute nothing toward Imperial defense.

Alberta oats seem to be in demand in the U. S. Last week one of the Calgary elevators shipped 2,500 tons to the State of Washington. The grain is to be used for seeding and milling purposes. The time is coming when Alberta will produce many times the amount of grain it now does and it is a safe prophesy that most of it will go westward instead of eastward.

The Y. M. C[illegible]

Second Annual Affair

Speeches of a fi[illegible]

The second annual banquet of the Y. M. C. was held on Friday evening last in Gymnasium Hall and was a most successful affair judged from every view point. The tables were burdened with a multitude of delicacies provided and were beautifully decorated with Easter lilies. The catering was done by the "King's Helpers" and was varied enough to suit the palate of the most fastidious epicure.

About 100 guests sat down to dinner under the direction of W. J. Brotherton, who acted as toast-master for the occasion, being ably assisted by E. S. Frost, vice-president of the organization. While the guests were assembling Mr. H. S. Craig enlivened the time with a piano solo. When all had arrived the feasting began and for a tune the wants of the inner man were attended to. After this followed (as the toast-master expressed it) "the feast of reason and the flow of soul."

The first toast proposed was that of the king, to which the audience responded by the singing of the national anthem. Then followed that to our province, with which was coupled the names of Hon. W. Tf Finlay and Mr. C. S. Maharg, divisional superintendent of the C. P. R. On rising Mr. Finlay referred to the pleasure it afforded him to be present on such an occasion and to his sympathy with the work the Y. M. C. aimed to do. He had seen the development of the province since its early days. The Hudson Bay Co. owned everything at one time, but there was much progress since then. He predicted that the immigration this year into Alberta would be a surprise to many. He reviewed the days of the North West Territories and the governments which then held power. For a country only in its infancy yet, Alberta has made marvellous development. It has demonstrated what can be done. Already we have a great name throughout Canada. Our government creameries are unsurpassed in the Dominion. The farmer is to be further assisted by the establishment of a pork-packing plant. The speaker believed in a government assisting an industry if that industry helps the farmer. Mention is heard today about [illegible] ties of the Hudson's Bay [illegible] sonally he was not so sure of its success but the Panama Canal when completed would mean a great deal for Alberta. It would reduce our transportation charges on our exports and imports to about two-thirds of what they are now.

Mr. Finlay was followed by Mr. C. S. Maharg who congratulated the Y. M. C. because of the work it is doing. It had a noble aim—to make manhood. The country needs better men. Only in this way can we build up a greater Canada. He had seen little of Alberta as yet but was charmed with its climate. We have already in the province 1,400 miles of railways, and expected to add 500 more this year. These follow the parts of greatest immigration, and will mean much to the development of the country. The question of transportation is a great problem. The people want not only all the grain which is produced moved in about four months, but also their coal supply and all their other exports in about the same time. No railway could do this. There is much unwarranted criticism of railways.

At this juncture the addresses were interrupted for a time by a election from the orchestra, which under the direction of Mr. Sansom, maintained direction of Mr. Sansom, maintained "The City" was then proposed by the vice-president, Mr. E. S. Frost, and replied to by Mayor Milne and Ald. Spencer. The former rejoiced in the loyality to the city displayed in the manner in which the toast was received. We are situated he contended in the best part of the province. We can grow almost any kind of fruit here. In the development of a new country many mistakes are made which are due to ignorance. We must study the problems. The time will come when we will export fruit from here. But however the city may grow, it will not be greater than the aspirations of the inhabitants. The rising generation will remain here permanently and not be talking of returning home. We have already many good homes in this city. It is the business of the city to protect these homes. We hear much today about development due to industries. Much can be done without these by developing the surrounding country. No industry is as good as a good school. In these the rising generation are being trained to think for themselves. He recommended the organization to aim at the erection of a well-equipped Y. M. C. A.

Alderman Spencer expressed himself as being proud of the fact that he is a citizen of Medicine Hat and of serving it as an alderman. Eventually the city must come to her own, and be great. This year will see much improvement. $110,000 will be spent in improvements, which shows that this is no mean city. Lethbridge has grown with the development of the surrounding country, and the same will be true here when irrigation comes. Today (Friday) was a great day for the city. Clean sport means much to any place. It makes clean men, gives them broad views, and makes them patriotic. Great

Alderman Spencer expressed himself as being proud of the fact that he is a citizen of Medicine Hat and of serving it as an alderman. Eventually the city must come to her own, and be great. This year will see much improvement. $110,000 will be spent in improvements, which shows that this is no mean city. Lethbridge has grown with the development of the surrounding country, and the same will be true here when irrigation comes. Today (Friday) was a great day for the city. Clean sport means much to any place. It makes clean men, gives them broad views, and makes them patriotic. Great questions are now demanding consideration e. g., naval situation, Canadian Clubs, Boards of Trade and such organizations have expressed themselves which shows that the citizens of our land are thinking. The speaker was in favor of Canada doing her share.

The flow of oratory was again broken by a couple of musical numbers. The first was a duet by Mrs. McCarter and Mr. R. W. Lampmann. This was followed by a solo from Miss Sinclair. Both numbers were well rendered.

The next toast was that of "Our Future Citizens," proposed by Mr. Brotherton and replied to by Mr. E. C. Sansom. The great problem, Mr Sansom remarked, in connection with the theme is how can we so train and educate the children so that they will make good citizens. Man is master of his destiny and also the product of his environment. While these are contradictory propositions they are true of all—in different degrees, in the case of different people. Environment influences us. We must aim to improve it. To this end let us promote all organizations aiming to improve it and destroy the destructive agencies. Among the latter is the liquor traffic. He referred to the incident at Milwaukee where the mayor took the platform to oppose prohibition. The one fact which should put the question beyond debate is that the lawless, the lewd, the dissipated of both sexes stand with Milwaukee's mayor in his opposition. We should encourage such organizations as favor good citizenship. This is the aim of the Y. M. C. A. Our system of public schools is also an effective force. In Canada we have one of the best systems of education. It is the duty of the state to see that the children are in the schools. It is not always safe to leave this to the judgment of the parents. We need free education and also compulsory education. Some difference of opinion exists as to how far free education should go. The speaker did not think there was much danger of it going too far as education is not dangerous. Crime and ignorance go together. He hoped the city would soon have a building where manly education could be obtained. He also favored civics in advanced school work.

The toast to athletics was proposed by the vice-chairman and replied to by Mr. C. E. Neff and Mr. W. H. Turpin. It is natural said Mr. Neff, to love sport. It is a healthy instinct, and should be encouraged. A father should accompany his sons on their athletic tripe abroad. He should also study the science of the game so as to be able to discuss it with them intelligently. Sport should not be carried too far so as to interfere with our other development. Mr. Turpin, the next speaker, pointed out that the great leaders of the world have been sport-loving nations e. g., Greeks and Romans. Their blood is in the Anglo-Saxon veins and this nation rules the earth. In the Olympic games in London last year, Anglo-Saxons won three-quarters of the prizes.

The toast to the press was proposed by the vice-chairman and responded to by Messrs. F. G. Forster and C. J. Wilson. Mr. Forster noted that the toast to the press was usually put near the end of the list which he construed as a hint for brevity. He did not consider himself an old man, but he had seen every newspaper man in what is now Saskatchewan or Alberta come into his present position. He referred to the good work being done by the Y. M. C., and the assistance the press could give it. The latter has a great influence for good citizenship. He thought the schools might do more for this than they are doing by making the curriculum more practical, and giving the scholars some insight into the responsibilities of after life which they will be called upon to face. He favored the development of the Y. M. C. into a Y. M. C. A., and announced that there is already a deed for a site for such an institution in his keeping. This was provided by one of our citizens and the C. P. R. Mr. C. J. Wilson agreed with the previous speaker that the position of the toast was a hint for brevity, and thought the hint a wise one as the press has other opportunities of expressing itself. At present it is the great instrument for the registering of public opinion. It should not be merely a recorder of the events of the day, but also fulfil its responsibility for the moulding of this opinion. At present he thought this duty was borne too much by one man—the editor. The correspondence columns of the press should be more widely used. The press today is much more independent than formerly and this is a good indication. This is reflected in greater independence of the electorate which shows progress. There is no more reason why a man should inherit his grandfather's political opinions than that he should wear his grandfather's coat. He drew attention to the higher ethical standard of modern journalism as indicated in the censorship of its advertising columns.

The orchestra was again called on, and once more gave forth sweet strains.

"The man who hath not music in his soul,
And is not moved by concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils."

The toast "Our Club" was responded to by Rev. A. C. Farrell. The force of anything he pointed out, depends on its aim and purpose. This was illustrated in the great Missionary Congress from which he had just returned. It does not make so much difference how we make men, provided we make them. muscled men might be only muscled animals, if nothing else is considered. A gymnasium is only a means to an end. A strong body is only a foundation. Large men are always in demand and are today more in demand than ever before. Let us give the youth of our curiosity a vision of the opportunities for men—in the pulpit, the press, in business. Let them also note well the things that destroy man hood and avoid such. A great idea is the greatest uplifting power in the world. If a Y. M. C. A. means better manhood then let it come.

The last toast "The Ladies" was then called, and responded to by Mr. D. R. Ware in the wittiest speech of the evening. He noted the eccentricities of women and showed how woman has had a place in every great work of every age. Woman is now or only the inspirer of these as she has been in the past, but is also the performer of them. She is now companion in ability and accomplishment as never before. He closed with a confession that he found it difficult to fully embrace his subject.

The singing of the national anthem brought the proceedings to a close. The management are to be congratulated on the unqualified success of this their second annual banquet.

Mock Parliament

Dr. Boyd Introduces Important Bill

The regular meeting of the Mock Parliament was held on Thursday last. The following items of business were considered:

1. Petition for incorporation of Aerial Transportation Co. of Canada. Bill introduced and given a first reading.

2. Debate on resolution for construction of Georgian Bay Canal. Resolution passed.

The only public measure to be passed at Thursday's sitting was the bill introduced by the member for North Toronto for the restriction of the marriage of imbeciles, degenerates and the mentally diseased. In his opening remarks Dr. Boyd said he had given very serious consideration to the bill before the house. He was convinced that it was the business of parliament to seize every opportunity that might present itself for the uplifting of the manhood of the nation. No matter how critical we might be of the class of people landing on our shores, no matter how fine the sifting process, a percentage of the immigrants coming into the Dominion year by year would be of an undesirable type. Among our own people also, in the older-settled communities, intermarriage between consanguinous members had brought about deterioration. It was the duty of parliament to see that the reproduction of the unfit be prevented. Ninety per cent of the inmates of the hospitals (incurables), gaols and asylums, supported by the public, were sufferers from hereditary or constitutional disease—and these people were of no use to themselves and a burden to their country. There could not be the slightest doubt as to the hereditary nature of nervous and certain other specific diseases. In view of all these facts it was incumbent on the state to place some restrictions on marriage with a view to the gradual elimination of inherited disease. The bill proposed that any couple desiring to marry must procure a registered medical practitioner's certificate as to family history, soundness of mind and body and general good health, along the same lines as the certificates now demanded by insurance companies. Marriage should be a state institution rather than a religious matter.

The leader of the opposition (Mr. Sansom) while in accord with the general sentiment of the bill, thought that the words "family history," should be struck out of the measure and be moved an amendment to that effect. If in the ancestry of an individual dangerous diseases could be traced, it did not necessarily follow that they would appear in that individual. He thought that the more proof of soundness of body and mind should be sufficient. In replying to this argument Mr. J. Benson, who vacated the chair during the evening in favor of the minister of customs (Mr. H. T. W. Forster) drew attention to a certain clause in the preamble wherein it was stated that the majority of inherited nervous diseases leading to imbecility or degeneracy are masked in youth. A number of questions relative to the bill were also put by Mr. Benson, Mr. Sansom, and Mr. McCarter. These were dealt with by the doctor in a highly interesting and instructive manner before the vote was taken.

Mr. Sansom's amendment was defeated by a narrow majority after which the committee rose to report and the bill passed its third reading.

On Thursday evening the bill for the establishment of a system of Empire cables and an Imperial Intelligence department will be introduced by the premier.

The City Fathers

Board of Trade Deputation

Contracts Awarded and Estimates Considered at Adjourned Meeting

The regular meeting of the council was held on Monday evening, the 5th inst., there being present: the mayor, Aldermen Morrow, Spencer Collier and Howson.

A letter was received from Mrs. Jane Laidlaw in which the council were requested to grant the sum of $10 per month for the maintenance of her stepson, J. Laidlaw. It appeared that the boy's father had deserted his wife and stepson, the city being in consequence liable for the latter's keep. On Ald. Spencer's motion the account submitted (for one month's board) was ordered to be paid.

Geo A. Luno wrote offering the city a free site on his farm for the boring of a gas well, the only stipulation he would make being that gas should be sold at city rates to himself and all other consumers. The writer suggested the gift of a piece of land 50 or 75 feet by 125 feet. The matter was referred to the gas commissioners for a report.

John McNeely wrote calling attention to the insufficiency of the fire protection at the end of the city near the flour mill. There was only one hydrant, and one stream of water would prove inadequate in the event of a serious fire. Moreover by the time the city brigade could get out to this end of the city any fire would be almost beyond control. The writer was willing to supply a hose house and supply a volunteer brigade at his own expense if the city would furnish the hose. The communication was referred to the fire, water and light committee.

The school board wrote asking for the use of the council chamber for the taking of the vote on the school building bylaw. Permission granted.

Superintendent Maharg wrote enclosing the orders of the railway commission in regard to the city's applications for pedestrian subway at Toronto Street and subway at River Street, and asking whether it was the city's intention to undertake the work. Referred to public works committee and city engineer.

A letter from the solicitor called attention to the question of acquiring three lots in block 21 (price $400) in connection with the right of way between the lots A and B in Industrial Place. The mayor stated that the Alberta Clay Products Co. people expected to return to the city about the middle of the month, when the council would be in a better position to take action.

A note for $17,580 from the Merchants Bank, which would fall due on the 10th inst., was referred to the finance committee for adjustment. Two bills from the C. P. R., one for the time of the engineer engaged on the survey for the spur track ($60), the other for wages paid for plans and estimates in connection with the spur track to the Canneries formerly proposed ($7.50), were also left in the finance committee's hands.

J. A. Grant wrote requesting the payment of a further sum of $1,200 in connection with the gas well. A depth of 900 feet had been reached, and he was now entitled to this sum. The city had already paid $2,100. Account paid on motion of Ald. Spencer.

O. W. Kealy's account for legal work in connection with the crossing over the C. P. R. track and disputed assessments last year totalled $37.87. Mr. Fatt stated that Mr. Kealy's understanding was that the city solicitor's salary did not provide for contentious business. The items mentioned were thus in the nature of extras. Referred to finance committee.

A petition from the owners of property in block 16, fronting on Main Street and lying between Fifth and Sixth avenues, for 8-ft. concrete sidewalk, was referred to the public works committee.

A largely signed petition of property owners was also received in regard to the grading of 6th avenue, between Montreal and Braemer street and the filling in of Ottawa street to was pointed out that the best way of make a thoroughfare for residents. It access to the city for residents on the hill was here provided. Mr. Ansley spoke on the matter, contending that the city coffers were enriched by $3,500 last year from Central Park property owners. Not $5 worth of work, however, had been undertaken by the city for their benefit. Ald. Spencer stated that when this matter came up last year, the engineer estimated the cost at $1,500. Ald. Collier had not until quite recently seen the necessity of the work, but now he did. Most of the driving towards the hill was done by way of Sixth avenue where at present there was a well defined trail. The carrying out of the work would provide a long and low grade. Ald. Howson said he had spoken to Ald. McKay (chairman of last year's public works committee) and the latter assured him that the work would cost too much. The petition was referred to the public works committee for a report.

Fire Chief Hatcher wrote making certain recommendations in regard to fire safeguards. He advised the using of the 500 feet of spare hose now on hand for the equiping of a fire station near the Milling Co's plant.

The mayor was of the opinion that the fire department was "going too strong" in certain matters. An expensive desk and cabinet, and chairs had been purchased without authorization of the committee and without their ever being consulted. He believed that the solution of the difficulty lay in the appointment of a purchasing agent. Ald. Morrow as chairman of the fire, water and light committee, knew nothing about the chairs, etc., which had been purchased. Ald Howson was unable to understand why the chief had failed to consult the committee before sending in his recommendations to the council. He should have brought the matters before the committee whose place it was to present them to the council. If the department were under the public works department, the speaker, as chairman of that committee, knew nothing whatever about the expenditures which had been incurred. Ald. Morrow, while not wishing to cast reflections upon the fire-chief, thought perhaps the latter had a wrong conception of his powers. He (Ald. Morrow) was held responsible to the ratepayers for the fire department and it was his business to know what was going on. On Ald. Howson's motion the communications were referred back to the fire chief, Mr. Hatcher being notified that in future such matter must be brought to the counsel through the committee. No accounts will be paid unless they are first authorized by the chairman of the committee concerned, or by a purchasing agent.

The public works committee reported in regard to the special frontage assessment in connection with sidewalks construction for this year. The probable cost would be $16,000, the proportion which should be borne by the city at large being in the opinion of the committee $8,992.50. The estimated lifetime of the improvement 20 years. Owners of property should be assessed for one-third of the of the frontage which faces on avenues. The report was adopted.

Finance committee recommended payment of the following accounts:

Great Missionary Congress Has Closed

WHAT HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED

Toronto, April 5—The historic missionary congress is over and the commissioners, lay and clerical, are dispersing to their homes on every train bearing with them a new version of and a greater enthusiasm for the cause of missions. The first national missionary congress is now history and it will be found to have left an indelible mark upon the national life. Hundreds of ministers in attendance had to leave for their homes on Saturday, but in spite of this all the meetings on the closing day were well attended. Sunday will long be remembered in Toronto, for practically every city pulpit was occupied by a visiting pastor or layman, in addition to the inspiration of the closing session of the congress held morning, afternoon and evening.

Among those who spoke or preached at the main sessions today were Sir Andrew Fraser of Scotland, J. Campbell White, S. J. Moore, president of the Metropolitan Bank, Toronto; Dr. William Sparling and Rev. Principal Sparling both of Winnipeg and Rev John McNeil.

The practical result of the great National Missionary Congress which concluded here yesterday was the unanimous and enthusiastic adoption of a report defining a missionary policy and the responsibility of every denomination in every Protestant church throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion and Newfoundland.

"In addition to adopting this policy the delegates themselves put in promises of subscriptions to the amount of about $4,500 annually for three years to defray the expenses of the movement. One delegate who promised $200 a year said he would give as much more as was needed.

The tangible results as embodied in this report, however, by no means tells the whole story of what has been accomplished by this congress.

The great gathering has been a revelation of the power of religious belief among men in every walk of life, and it has given an immense impetus to recognition of the common brotherhood of men.

A Baptist preacher; an Anglican bishop; the head of the Canadian [illegible]

Methodist Church; a leader of the New York Bar; two wealthy philanthropists; the provost of an Anglican university; a noted Presbyterian divine; a consul general who has represented the United States in the Barbadoes and Singapore; a noted scientist; a great pro-consul of the empire, with a record of 40 years of high administrative service under the crown—and all presided over by one of the king's counsels of Toronto.

The platform was composed of different men at every meeting but there was not a single occasion on which it was not as representative as the one outlined above.

This report which is bound to rank among the most historic documents relating to the Christian church puts on record the belief of representatives of all Protestant denominations that the church in general should undertake to obey literally the command of Christ to preach the gospel to every creature.

That every layman of the church is equally responsible with every minister to work to the full capacity of his ability in this cause.

That the clear duty of the church and of Canada is to evangelize all residents in the Dominion and provide for the evangelization of 40,000 heathen.

That $1,800,000 annually must be provided for home mission work and $8,200,000 annually for foreign mission work.

That a permanent secretary be engaged to superintend the collection of the necessary money.

LECTURE ON NOXIOUS WEEDS

The lecture by T. R. R. Henderson last Tuesday should prove of great benefit to the farmers of this district. The eradication of weeds was his main theme and he especially emphasized the necessity of preventing the Russian thistle from getting a hold in this western country. The system of farming advocated by Prof. Gamkbell, it was pointed out, would if carried out, make the growth of this and other weeds a practical impossibility. T. L. Corbett had last year raised a fine crop of fall wheat by following a scientific system of moisture conservation, and the lecturer held that by the general adoption of this plan this might become one of the finest fall wheat districts in the west.

The Good Friday Road Race

A. Halward of Fire Brigade Wins First Prize

The Souch Cup and Times Trophy Won by T. Barefoot

"Today's race marks the beginning of a new era in the history of Medicine Hat." In these words at the prize distribution on Friday the mayor struck the true note. Good Friday was in truth a day to be recorded in the annals of our city as the best gala day and most successful in every way, that we have yet known. The whole town was en fete to do honor to the athletes who after a period of hard and conscientious training, gathered on the racecodrse as candidates for the honors of the day. Never before has such a large concourse of people been seen in the streets of the city.

At 3.30 the fourteen competitors lined up in front of the city hall and at the crack of the pistol, set off at a good pace along Main St. At the intersection of Fifth Ave. Art. Halward had assumed the lead, with Eagle and Barefoot close upon his heels. It was at this point that most of the rigs and automobiles (of which there was a record turnout), commenced to follow in the wake of the runners, and throughout the race the drivers had a strenuous time. At the top of the hill leading to the [illegible] three best starters were closely bunched together, while most of the others had lined up in single file in the rear. At this point also Bill Bannon was seized with cramp, and, though he kept on pluckily for several hundred yards, he was at length compelled to abandon the race. Sam Bannon had allowed himself to fall behind when he learnt of his brother's condition and he also dropped out in order to give assistance to the disabled man. Apart from these two every "starter" kept the course to the end.

On the trail the runners became widely separated and it was impossible, until the track was reached, for the onlooker to gain an adequate idea of the relative positions of the contestants. In this the men in the saddle had a decided advantage.

At the second lap in the stadium the order was: Art Halward, Barefoot, close rivals, with a good lead on the Indian; then came J. Halward and Jas. Keith, W. Finlay, J. Mitchell, P. White, C. Forster, F. Coulter. The interval between the first and last man was considerable over a quarter of a mile. At the track Tevis and Gawley was in attendance to give each runner a revivifying sold sponge. The Redskin, however, scorned such aid, and in point of fact he was the coolest member of the twelve who came in at the end of the race. On the third lap J. Halward had passed the Indian, while for the rest, the old positions were still retained. On the home run Eagle fell into fifth place, being outrun by S. Taylor. Coulter, who had shown signs of being played out early in the race still stuck to his guns, and though the last to come in he made a very good finish.

In the last mile A. Halward and Barefoot were still found almost abreast. For a brief space the Y. M. C. champion was in the lead, but in the hill descent he was outstripped, and though he gained ground on the Main St. run, Halward was six feet ahead when he hit the tape. The order in which the runners came in was: Art. Halward, Tom Barefoot, Jas. Halward, Sam Taylor, Eagle, Alex Keith, Gordon Reber, W. B. Finlay, J. Mitchell, Percy White, C. Forster, Frank Coulter. The time for the winner was 40:57, for a distance of 6 miles 176 yards.

There was a large crowd in the council chamber at five o'clock when the successful athletes received their prizes from the hands of the Mayoress (Mrs. D. Miles). Before the ceremony was performed a few well-chosen words were spoken by the Mayor who described the race as one of the most important and significant in our history. The work of the Y. M. C. for the city's welfare came in for special commendation.

As the prize-winners walked up to receive their hard won trophies of victory, cheer after cheer rent the air. It was felt that every competitor had been on his mettle and had "made good."

At the conclusion of the distribution Ald. Spencer briefly addressed the gathering, his object being, he explained to remove the false conception that the road race was a Y. M. C. affair.

While out of such a splendid bunch of sports as took part in Friday's race it is difficult to pick out individuals, the plucky work of the younger runners, is worthy of a special meed of praise. It was for several of them their first race of any considerable length and they showed remarkable grit and endurance and certainly made a very plucky finish. Art. Halward's victory was earned in magnificent style and he came out of the contest in good condition. To be beaten by six feet in a six mile race is not a disgrace to be ashamed of, and the honors of the day are almost equally divided between Halward and Barefoot. To the very last the victory hung in the balance.

As the first of the Y. M. C. men to come in Barefoot was the winner of the handsome cup put up by Mr. E. F. Souch.

Another Big Flow

New Gas Well Gives Two Million Cubic Feet per Day

Gas was struck in the new well on Saturday at a distance of 930 feet. Yesterday the flow was measured by City Engineer Morrison, and on an open flow was found to be giving 2,2000,000 cubic feet of gas per 24 hours. This is equivalent to 12,000 horse power. The drilling will be continued for another 30 or 40 feet.

Silver Medal Contest

Another of those popular Silver Medal contests under the auspices of the R. T. of T. was held last evening in the Methodist church. The large audience present testified to the interest taken in these periodic performances. Six contestants contended for the silver medal, and the judges had considerable difficulty in coming to a conclusion to whom the medal should go. The task of judging was assigned to Miss V. Simpson, Mr. M. A. Brown and Mr. C. J. Wilson. The following contested for the medal: Misses Taylor, Vance, Fowler, McNeely and Messrs. Williams and Curry. Interspersed with the elecutionary numbers were musical selections as follows—Vocal solo, Mrs. F. C. Sharpe; piano duet, Mrs. and Mr. J. M. Criswell; vocal solo, Mrs. McCarter; vocal solo, Mr. J. D. Fowler; piano duet, Misses Nesbit and Walton. After the announcement from the judges that they had decided to award the medal to Miss Fowler, the presentation of it to the winner was made by Mr. J. J. McKim. The evening's entertainment was then brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem.

SASKATCHEWAN UNIVERSITY

The board of governors of the Saskatchewanuniversity have decided to locate that institution at Saskatoon. Battleford, Prince Albert, Saskatoon Fort Qu'Appelle, Regina and Moose Jaw made strong bids for its location. So strong was the competition on the question that the government decided to save trouble for itself by shouldering the responsibility on the board of governors. While Moose Jaw would like to have had it there will be satisfaction in knowing that it didn't go to Regina.

The Coal Strike

Sensational Developments.

Developments in the situation relative to the coal miners strike now in progress, give promise of a sensational denouement. It now seems more than likely that they will lead to a break between the Canadian miners and the international body of the United Mine Workers and the organization of an independent Canadian miners organization.

The developments leading up to this situation embrace the publication of telegraphic correspondence between President Stockett of the operators association and International President Lewis of the U. M. W. A. Mr. Stockett's wire to Lewis stated the facts in relation to the negotiation of the agreement at Macleod, the reference to the local unions, that the referendum endorsed the agreement, that Sherman refused to sign and called upon Lewis to uphold the honor of his organization.

President Lewis replied stating the contract agreed upon would be signed by "our representative"; that he expected that at all times the organization would comply with agreements made and especially when ratified by referendum and that he would notify the officers of District 18 to that effect. Later, a telegram announced that J. E. Morgan of the international board had been ordered here as President Lewis' representative.

Upon the publication of this correspondence, President Sherman denied having received any order to sign and called a meeting of the district board which was held here yesterday. Nothing was given out as to the result of this meeting further than a convention of delegates from every local in District 18 was called to be held at Fernie Monday next "to consider the situation." From what may be gathered however it is altogether likely that if Mr. Morgan insists on the Macleod agreement being signed, the convention will decide to withdraw from the United Mine Workers and that a movement will be instituted to organize a Canadian miners organization in conjunction with the Canadian branch of the Western F[illegible] Miners and the miners of eastern Canada embracing a membership of about 40,000 and to be known as the Canadian Federation of Miners.

While complications arising out of the coming of Morgan may [illegible] the program it is believed that is the plan at this time. The only other alternative spoken of is that matters may so shape themselves as to result in the men being ordered back to work and application being made for an investigation board under the Lemieux act. Morgan is expected tomorrow.

President Sherman's strike order became operative Friday, the second the first having been taken as a holiday to celebrate the taking effect of the new eight hour law in Alberta. From that time all the mines affected by the operators association have been closed. Included are the Hosmer Mines Ltd., at Hosmer, B. C. the International Coal & Coke at Coleman; the West Canadian Collieries at Lille and Bellevue; the Hillcrest coal mine at Hillcrest; the Leitch Collieries at Passburg; the A. R. & I. at Lethbridge; the E. P. McNeill company at Canmore and the Pacific coal mine at Bankhead.

At all these places except Hillcrest mass meetings of the miners affected have been held to take action relative to the strike order. It is claimed that in every instance the meeting voted unanimously to uphold the action of President Sherman in refusing to sign the agreement at Macleod and in calling the strike.

During the week the local union in each of the camps affected received a telegram from Deputy Minister of Labor Ackland warning the members of the penalty attaching to the violation of the Lemieux act by striking without first applying for a board of arbitration and conciliation but the fact appears to have had no effect on the men and the indications now are that they will stand by Sherman to the end.

The Canadian-American company of Frank is not affected by the strike as it was not in the operators association and an agreement has been effected between the company and the men. The negotiations were conducted for the men by President Sherman of the district board of the mine workers and officials of the local union. The company and the men were not widely apart at any time on the question. They had agreed to continue operations under the old agreement until a new one could be reached and on the arrival of President Sherman in Frank, but little time was lost in coming to terms. The agreement was completed and signed up Friday. It runs for one year from April 1st, and is virtually a re-enactment of the old agreement except that the closed shop is conceded, the discrimination clause eliminated and some new prices made.

THE PROPOSED HUDSON BAY ROUTE

(From "Surveying the Hudson Bay Country," by Isaac Cowie, in Canada-West for April.)

Naturally the route does not find much favor with the Little Canadians in the east, who think that all western grist should pass through their mill, forgetting that a prosperous west means a prosperous east also. There are also others who sincerely doubt the availability of the route. But all these doubts must be set at rest by the splendid summary of the reports of other government experts, such as Dr. Robert Bell, the well-known scientist, and the result of his own personal experience, extending over a number of years given by Mr. A. P. Low, Director of the Geological Survey of Canada, in his interesting book, "The Cruise of the Neptune," 1906. He says:

"There is no natural difficulty in the navigation of the bay and strait so far as depth of water, presence of obstructions and width of channel are concerned, and if situated in a more southern region the route would be an ideal one for the navigator. The Hudson Strait and Hudson Bay do not freeze solid, but are so covered with masses of floating ice as to be impracticable for at least seven months in the year. The ice does not begin to melt until well into the month of June, and it is not sufficiently melted for safe navigation with ordinary steamers until the middle of July. No ice is formed in the strait and bay sufficiently heavy to obstruct ordinary navigation until the latter part of November. . . . The period of safe navigation for ordinary iron steamships through Hudson Strait and across Hudson Bay to the port of Churchill may be taken to extend from the 20th of July to the 1st of November. This period might be increased without much risk by a week in the beginning of the season and by perhaps two weeks at the close."

Admitting that the route by the bay opens two months later than that by Lake Superior, still by reason of the thousand miles of distance saved, and on account of its being on the ocean itself, on which all freight carriers can come and go, the capacity of the bay route is very much greater than that by the lakes and canals. During at least four months of the year the strait and bay can be safely navigated by all such vessels as frequent, without undue risk, the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Old-Timer is Called Home

One of the old-timers of the west passed away on Thursday last in the person of Louis Sayers who died of typhoid fever in the general hospital. For many years the deceased was a resident of Battleford and he acted in the capacity of guide and interpreter for the Mounted Police in the old days. On one occasion in '89 he guided Inspector Parker across the plains from Battleford to the mouth of the Red Deer, to effect the arrest of four Stony Indians. It was on this occasion that one of the last buffalo shot in western Canada was killed. Inspector Parker and his guide found themselves short of rations and a three-year-old bull was sacrificed to meet the needs of the commissariat department.

It was in the fall of 1882 also that a famine of a more widespread character was experienced in the Territories. At the end of September came a severe cold spell. The ice was thick upon the rivers, mid-winter conditions prevailing for almost a couple of weeks, and practically the whole potato crop of the north-west was frozen. Such settlers as had potatoes in store were able to obtain famine prices. Among these were Inspector Parker and a comrade named Price who had entered into partnership as agriculturalists that season. An acre of land had been seeded to the radicals and, by a happy inspiration Price had got to work on the plot and had every potato dug and planted before the frost came. There were 400 bushels in all and for these hard cash was obtained to the tune of $8 a bushel. Those were the days of intensive farming in the west.

Mounted Police

On Monday the 5th inst., a bunch of 23 horses were seized by the R. N. W. M. P. from John Rend of Eagle Butte who was suspected of having stolen the animals from Montana ranchers. The horses were brought into Medicine Hat on Thursday and they are now being held here awaiting developments.

Constable Dixon has been transferred from Lethbridge to Medicine Hat for the time being.

Late on Thursday night it was reported that Alex Graham, a sheep-herder of Walsh had become mentally deranged. The report being confirmed by telegram the following morning Inspector Parker sent Constable Mollison to investigate. Arriving on the spot the police learnt that the lunatic had taken his departure, and that he was supposed to be at Kinnaird, nine miles west of Maple Creek. Graham's employer, F. J. Grant, of Walsh, being an important witness in the case, left on Saturday's No. 2 for Maple Creek.

A TEMPERANCE UNION.

Members Limited to Fourteen Drinks of Liquor Daily.

"Signing the pledge" is no new thing, as is proved by researches in Italy. Interesting particulars of what would appear to be the earliest examples of written pledges to abstain from gambling and excessive drinking are given in the Turin Studi Medievali by Signor Girolamo Biscaro, who has discovered three such documents in the archives of Milan. The first of these records is an oath sworn on the gospels by Giacomo Pasquali and Armanino Duca to the effect that for two years they will abstain from gambling in Pavia or within three miles thereof and will likewise refrain from inducing others to gamble on their behalf. The penalty for any breach of this oath is fixed at 5 soldi, payable to Papio Bovatorio.

In the second document Perano de Bono promises Uberto de Proto to abstain from gambling for a certain period, exception being made on behalf of the game of bismentiro, at which, however, he was not to lose more than 2 denari on any one day. Further, he undertakes not to visit any inn for drinking purposes before the hour of vespers on Monday. A breach of either clause of the pledge involves the payment of 5 soldi to De Proto. By the third document Sileto Ferrario expressed his willingness to pay 12 denari to his brother Lamperio should he be persuaded to play for money in any place of public resort or to spend more than 2 denari on intoxicants in any one day.

The motive for these contracts is not stated, but it is presumed that they were entered into by employees whose masters wished to keep their proclivities in check. There is nothing in the documents to suggest the existence of any organization for the promotion of temperance. The honor of being first in the field in this respect therefore still rests with Germany, where two temperance societies were founded in the sixteenth century.

Of these the Order of St. Christopher was formed by Sigismund de Dietrichstein on Jan. 18, 1517, and the Order of Temperance by the landgrave of Hesse on Dec. 25, 1600. The members of the one order were pledged to abstain from toast drinking, and the members of the other undertook not to drink more than seven glasses of liquor at a time, and that not oftener than twice a day.—Chicago News.

The Deadly Poisoned Arrows of the Lissoo Sharpshooters.

On the wild frontier between China and British Burma is a barbarous tribe which has no civilized supervision. George Forrest, an English traveler, thus describes the chief weapon of these people: "If I had to suggest a title for a book on the upper Salwin I should call it 'The Land of the Crossbow,' which is the characteristic weapon of the country and the Lissoo tribe. Every Lissoo with any pretensions to chic possesses at least two of these weapons—one for everyday use in hunting, the other for war. The little children play with miniature crossbows. The men never leave their huts for any purpose whatever without their crossbows. When they go to sleep the 'nukung' is hung over their heads, and when they die it is hung over their graves. The largest crossbows have a span of fully five feet and require a pull of fully thirty-five pounds to string them. The bow is made of a species of wild mulberry of great toughness and flexibility. The stock, some four feet long in the war bows, is usually of wild plum wood. The string is of plaited hemp and the trigger of bone. The arrow, of sixteen to eighteen inches, is of split bamboo about four times the thickness of an ordinary knitting needle, hardened and pointed. The actual point is bare for a quarter to one-third of an inch, then for fully an inch the arrow is stripped to half its thickness, and on this portion poison is placed.

"The poison is invariably a decoction expressed from the tubers of a species of aconitum which grows on those ranges at an altitude of 8,000 to 10,000 feet. The poison is mixed with resin or some vegetable gum to the consistency of putty and is then smeared on the notched point. The 'feather' is supplied by a strip of bamboo leaf folded into a triangular form and tied in a notch at the end of the arrow, with the point of the angle outward. The reduction in thickness of the arrow where the poison is placed causes the point to break off in the body of any one whom it strikes, and, as each carries enough poison to kill a cart horse, a wound is invariably fatal. Free and immediate incision is the usual remedy when wounded on a limb or fleshy part of the body, but at Chengka the uncle of the Laowo chief showed us a preparation which resembled opium dross and which he said was an effective antidote.

"With few exceptions the Lissoo seemed to us to be arrant cowards, but the crossbow and poisoned arrow are certainly most diabolical weapons. An arrow from a war bow will pierce a deal board an inch thick at seventy or eighty yards. Some of the Tsekou natives were so expert that they could hit a mark four inches in diameter repeatedly at sixty to eighty yards. As no one goes anywhere without his crossbow and his bearskin quiver full of poisoned arrows and as every village is at feud with every other village mutual suspicion is inevitable. In open fight the Lissoo are usually careful to keep at a respectful distance from each other and behind oxhide shields which protect the whole of the body. But if battle is rare, murder and sudden death by ambush in the jungle are common."

RELIGIOUS ACROBATS.

Dangerous Aerial Slide Annually Performed in India.

India offers many curious things in the way of religion, and the strangest of them all is the aerial slide, which is performed annually at Kulu, in the Himalayas. At a point where there is a cliff overhanging a precipitous gorge several hundred feet in width and a hundred feet in depth a rope is made fast to the rock. The other end of this is carried across the gorge and there secured to a stake. The total length of the rope between the two points is when drawn taut 2,500 feet, and the end attached to the cliff is several hundred feet higher than that fastened on the opposite side of the ravine. Thus a slide is contrived, and it is a dangerous one to all appearance.

It is down this incline that the performer has his path. For the lofty journey a sort of saddle is provided made of wood, with holes in it, through which the rope passes. But before a start is made the whole length of the rope is wet to prevent the saddle from catching fire from the friction. The performer sits astride this seat, and to his legs are fastened bags of sand, which serve two purposes—they enable him to maintain an upright position during his lightning-like descent, and they increase the momentum. The lower end of the rope is carefully wound with bits of carpet to check the speed before the stake is reached. Without this precaution the performer would be dashed to pieces.

The terrific velocity of the descent for the first few hundred yards is shown by the stream of smoke that trails from the wake of the saddle, despite the fact that the rope has been wet. Afterward the incline diminishes somewhat, and the pace becomes correspondingly slower. By the time the goal is reached the jheri, as the performer is called, is able to come to a standstill without disaster.

This slide in the air is supposed to reveal the will of the gods as to the crops of the approaching season. If the perilous trip is accomplished in safety a plentiful harvest is assured. Naturally, therefore, every care is taken to minimize the dangers of the performance. The ceremony is of ancient origin, and those who engage in it as jheri form a small caste apart.—New York Tribune.

A MEDFORD STORY.

Legend of the Phantom Ship and Its Mad Pirate Captain.

The town of Medford, Mass., has a legend of a phantom ship beside which the Flying Dutchman is only a peaceful merchantman. The Medford story runs that a ship laden with rum and gold and silver bars put out from that place in the days when the Spanish main was infested with pirates. It was headed for a West Indian port, but got into the doldrums and was so long becalmed that water and provisions gave out, and all hands perished of thirst and starvation. When the wind came up again the ship sailed away with her ghastly crew, was seen by a buccaneer, chased and overhauled.

The pirate captain made fast to his prize without firing a single shot, and, attributing the vessel's nonresistance to fear or lack of arms, he was the first man to leap on board. But the rope with which the captured ship had been carelessly lashed to his own parted under the strain of the seaway, and he found himself rapidly borne away from his comrades on what he soon discovered to be a floating coffin. A stiff breeze filled the sails of the derelict, and before his own vessel could overtake it night descended on the ocean, and the pursuing ship lost sight of it altogether. Left alone in pitch darkness on the grewsome craft, the pirate went mad with terror and, seizing the wheel, raced away before the wind and, according to the legend, was condemned to range the seas forever thus in command of his horrible prize.

Woe to the ship that encountered it scudding along by moonlight or in the lightning's glare, manned by skeletons and steered by a shouting, gesticulating madman, and when on several occasions it was sighted in the fog off Medford it was considered as the herald of storm and disaster and the loss of many ships.—New York Press.

Jenny's Quick Method.

Jenny's uncle, who was a schoolteacher, met her on the street one beautiful May day and asked her if she was going to the Maypole dance.

"No, I ain't going."

"Oh, my little dear," said her uncle, "you must not say 'I ain't going.' You must say 'I am not going.'" And he proceeded to give her a little lesson in grammar. "You are not going. He is not going. We are not going. You are not going. They are not going. Now, can you say all that, Jenny?"

Jury at the Theater.

An unusual spectacle was witnessed at the Theater Royal, Nelson, Auckland, when the jury, who had been locked up three nights because they could not agree to a verdict in a murder case, were allowed to witness a living picture display. They had expressed a desire to attend the theater as a relief, and the judge consented.—Auckland News.

Water Commission.

Ottawa, April 6—Before the Forest and Waterways committee of the House of Commons this morning Mr. R. E. Young, superintendent of Dominion railway lands, gave a conservative estimate of the water power of the Dominion. He placed it at 25,682,907 horse power which converted in coal on a basis of 5 pounds of coal per horse power, means 551,- 137,590 tons of coal per annum.

The province of Quebec leads with 17,075,939 horse power; Ontario next with 8,129,166 and British Columbia third with two million; Alberta is fourth with one million; Northwest Territories with six hundred thousand; Manitoba and Saskatchawan five hundred thousand each; New Brunswick one hundred and fifty thousand and Nova Scotia, 54,300.

Mr. Young estimated the country's forest wealth at from 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 acres.

SPRING Skin Troubles

Mothers who have used Zam-Buk know how it cures Spring Skin Troubles in Children or Adults. Mothers who have not yet tried it should note these facts:—Zam-Buk was unknown ten years ago, yet such is its merit that to-day it has become the standard salve in the homes of four continents! Make it your family balm!

Mr. J. C. Bates, of Burks Falls (Ont.), says:—"Zam-Buk cured my three children, who were all broken out in sores to such an extent that it was pitiable to see them. These sores had defied all remedies previously applied, but I am glad to say Zam-Buk healed them."

Miss S. G. Hamilton, of Allston (Ont.), says:—"My face and hands were one mass of pimples and blotches. These would itch, and when rubbed, broke out into sores. Whenever I put water near the affected parts it caused a stinging sensation and much pain—just as if I had been scalded. Nothing that I applied seemed to do me any good until I got some Zam-Buk. That gave me relief, and a few weeks of the Zam-Buk treatment resulted in a perfect cure."

Zam-Buk cures pimples, skin eruptions, cuts, burns, bruises, foul festering sores, ulcers, blood-poisoning, eczema, ringworm, bad legs, diseased ankles, and all skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well into the parts affected, it cures neuralgia, rheumatism, and sciatica. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c. box, three for $1.25, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

The Board of Trade

The request of the Board of Trade for a grant of $3,000 by the city council is one which needs very careful consideration. As is true of almost every question, so in this case, there are two sides to it. The council rightly takes the stand that the citizens' interests must be safeguarded, and no money should be expended which does not benefit the city as a whole. Trade has been comparatively dull, work scarce, yet taxes have been increasing. That the tax rate should not be increased without good reason will be admitted by every ratepayer, and the council wisely hesitates to make a grant until the proposition is looked at from every side. Looked at from this view point the grant of $1,200 which has already been made seemed all that is warranted.

But the other side of the question is equally strong. The work of the Board of Trade cannot be carried on at a lower figure than the estimates for this year call for. The various items which make up the $4,500 are all legitimate expenditures. An inefficient organization of any kind is little better than no organization at all, and the Board of Trade rightly contends that it must either carry out a fairly adequate programme or go out of business. While apparent results from the board's efforts are none too visible, yet there are very few who would contend that the organization has not been worth while. Perhaps ten years from now we will see more clearly what has actually been accomplished. Efforts such as have been put forth do not always bring immediate results. But the city has had wide publicity—and that without advertising charges—which with our unique advantages, must in time bring results. While times may be hard, whatever money the council sees fit to grant this work, will be money well spent. The growth of the city means increase in property value and thus every ratepayer is benefited.

Perhaps a better solution of the difficulty is a larger membership in the Board of Trade. This organization ought to be, and we believe is, to every public-spirited citizen's interest. If, instead of knocking and criticizing, we all got behind the Board of Trade and gave it a boost, the situation would soon change. No organization on earth can be run to suit everybody; and the only way to get along is to fight for your own view till a decision is reached and then fall in line with the majority. What would our city be without a Board of Trade? Then, don't leave it to the other fellow to bear the burden but join in and help him.

Provincial Fire Commission

The Monetary Times calls attention to the excellent work done by fire commissioners in the various states and provinces which have employed such an officer. While the state has been very vigilant in pursuit of every criminal who makes human life dangerous, it has been lax in the punishment of the offender against property. Many fires occur, the causes of which are never ascertained. About two and a half years ago the State of Ohio appointed a fire commissioner, and during that time the convictions for incendiarism have exceeded those for the hundred years preceding. Not that Ohio has had any more fires, but that the criminal has been brought to justice. The result of this work will be that Ohio will be saved annually many times the cost of the maintenance of such a department by a decrease of the number of fires.

In Canada, Manitoba has been the first, and so far the only, province to employ such a public officer. He has not been in charge long enough to know the result of his labors, but doubtless as great a benefit will follow his appointment as in Ohio where the number of incendiary fires decreased every year after the appointment of a fire commissioner. In Ontario the Mutual Fire Underwriters' association has been considering the question, and will probably ask the legislature for the creation of such a department. We spend money freely to equip a fire department in every place of any size and importance, and receive returns in a lower rate of insurance where such an efficient department exists. A great benefit could also be reaped by having an alert officer who could take charge of a whole province and lower the insurance rate as well as make property more secure by reducing the number of fires.

So much for fires of a criminal nature. There is something we can do to reduce losses without any snub official. Last year in Winnipeg the loss of property by carelessness in handling matches, and by mice gnawing matches was 25 per cent. of the total loss by fire, amounting to about $52,500, while the losses in the whole province from such carelessness amounted to $100,000. Practically all of this could be avoided by abandoning the use of the phosphorus match. Not that we advocate a return to primitive days when fire was made by the use of the flint, but rather by the use of the safety match. In the manufacture of this match no phosphorous is used. But as we have no substance which will take its place for igniting purposes, the difficulty is overcome by putting the phorphorus on the box. The match can only be ignited by bringing it in contact with the portion of the box on which the phosphorus has been placed. Mice can then gnaw with impunity, and children can play with matches with impunity. Because they are not quite so handy to use as the match which can be ignited any where and at any time, they have not come into general use, but a law compelling their use would reduce fire from carelessness in handling matches fully fifty per cent.

A prominent eastern daily recently to hand has an account of a railway fatality at Regina, under the heading "Missing baby dead on track—mysterious case at village in Saskatchewan." It must be that because Regina and Fort Qu'Appelle both failed to get the university they necessarily belong to the "village" class.

Good Friday was undoubtedly a red letter day for amateur athletics in Medicine Hat; as was expected the race excited the keenest interest and Mr. W. H. Turpin is certainly to be congratulated as the prime mover in an event of so much importance; and one which was carried out so successfully. The citizens showed not only interest in the event but appreciation of Mr. Turpin's work in turning out en masse to witness it. Medicine Hat as a city will reap good returns from yesterday's proceedings.

Alberta Sunshine

As a Source of Health

A paper by Dr. Wm. Dixon, of Wetaskiwin, in which he dispels some illusions

Alberta, situated as it is on the eastern slope of the Rockies, presents an elevation varying from 2000 to 4500 feet above sea level. It is marked notably by great dryness of atmosphere, a large amount of sunshine and a small amount of rainfall. The seasonable variation is not very great, but in the southern portion there is often a very high daily variation of temperature, also a marked tendency for high winds.

The high altitude, the great quantity of sunshine, with low humidity and tendency for winds, causes the electrical potential to be greatly increased. The winds set up an electrical tension by their friction upon the earth, and the dry air being a poor conductor, the electrical potential set up in this way cannot neutralize itself by meeting the potential of the opposite kind in the higher regions of the atmosphere, consequently, all bodies upon the earth's surface are at a high electrical tension, and the nervous systems of animals is constantly keyed up to a more or less exlated degree. Respirations are stronger and deeper, the pulse is slightly quicker, metabolism and all physical functions are increased. The individual who has his nervous system tuned up to this high pitch is inclined to be more active in his movements, and he requires more sleep and relaxation.

Last year Rev. Chas. Huestis of Red Deer, read a paper before the medical council of Alberta, entitled "The effect of sun light on the white man—with special reference to conditions in the West." The contention of this paper was that after years of stimulation there would be a resulting depression and exhaustion. He even expressed the opinion that many diseases, whose origin is obscure may be laid in this country to lack of nervous vigor due to excessive sunlight. The adult male is able to bear the sunshine for some time, but women go down under it faster, while children suffer from it both directly and indirectly, for children begotten by parents whose nervous force has declined cannot become a vigorous race. Nature balances accounts by producing sterility in the third generation.

He also expresses doubt whether the white man will ever permanently colonize the west.

You can readily see the importance of the subject under discussion. Is our nervous vitality being exhausted? Are we degenerating? If Rev. Mr. Huestis is right, then we are only wasting our time by living here. Each year we are becoming weaker and less capable. But I think that we can prove that he is wrong, and that the climate of Alberta is rejuvenating, and invigorating, instead of depressing and degenerating.

There is a widespread impression among the laity, that this country is hard on the nerves. It remains for us to prove, or see whether this nervousness, as it is called, is a state of stimulation, or a state of depression, and whether or not it is injurious.

Medical authorities state that no nervous matter was ever too excitable, that it is its business to be excited. In over excitability the race horse differs from the jack ass.

The more excitable we are the higher and quicker our life.

Will this over excitability in time lead to exhaustion?

Dr. Lincoln of Calgary, gathered statistics from about 225 physicians practising in this province, with the result that 347 cases of nervous weakness were reported, about an average of four cases to each doctor reporting, and these men have practised in the province from one to thirteen years.

Eight reported that they had never had a case.

These figures show that a form of nerve weakness, severe enough to cause the patient to seek the aid of a physician, is a very rare disease. One man who has practised thirteen years doing a large general practise, says he has only seen two or three cases in all that time.

The causes of nerve weaknesses are hereditary tendencies and excessive work, or more correctly strain, for

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Is A Remedy Without An Equal For COUGHS, COLDS, And All Affections Of The THROAT and LUNGS.

Coughs and Colds do not call for a minute recital of symptoms as they are known to everyone, but their dangers are not understood so well. All the most serious affections of the throat, the lungs and the bronchial tubes, are, in the beginning, but coughs and colds.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the admonition to all persons affected by the insidious earlier stages of throat and lung disease, as failure to take hold at once will cause many years of suffering, and in the end that terrible scourge of, "Consumption."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is not Sold as a Cure for Consumption but for affections tributary to, and that result in, that disease. It combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognized worth, and is absolutely harmless, prompt and safe. So great has been the success of this wonderful remedy, it is only natural that numerous persons have tried to imitate it. Don't be humbugged into taking anything but "Dr. Woods." Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

The Times for Job Printing

it is doubtful if work of itself ever injured any man. But excessive work accompanied by worry and strain is what plays horse with our nervous system.

In this country where the majority worship gain, and straining every fibre in their anatomy to obtain it, at the same time depriving themselves of many of the comforts of life which they have formerly been accustomed to enjoy, one would not be surprised if he found a predominance of nervous wrecks. But we have already shown that it is a very rare disease. Does this not prove that the climate of Alberta is not degenerating in influence? Again if sunlight is the creative agent there would be more cases in the country than in the towns and cities. But in the statistics before mentioned, there were 84 from the country and 252 from the towns. Which proves that Mr. Huestis' theory is not backed by facts and that we can still rely on the old adage, "Five hours sunshine is worth a bottle of medicine."

Mr. Huestis also stated that it was doubtful whether persons of a very light complexion could attempt to live in the west. To be a true inhabitant of Alberta one needs to have the complexion of a Cree or a Stony. The statistics in this regard gave 159 brunettes and 158 blondes. When we consider the large foreign population, with their fair hair, one can readily see that the blondes instead of being more suspectible, seem to suffer less frequently than brunettes.

Thus far we have considered the effect of the climate on the healthy individual. Let us now try to find out why it is people come to Alberta for their health.

As I have already stated, we have a high altitude. This means a rarefied air. The rarefied air means we must breathe more of it to get a sufficient quantity of oxygen. To get more air we must work harder. Now we all know the greatest cause of consumption (outside of hereditary tendencies) is laziness of breathing. The upper portion of the lungs—the hardest to fill—do not get enough exercise to keep them healthy and this is where we find the commencement of fully nine-tenths of all causes of consumption. Now with the rarefied condition of the air the individual must of necessity get the amount of oxygen nature demands. In doing so he also gets the accruing benefits.

By contrasting the climate of Alberta with that of Ontario or the Eastern or middle States, we find the air here drier, and the weather is not so changeable. Consequently, there is not so great a tendency to catch colds. This is another great boon to the consumptives, because each cold he catches is a source of irritation, and tends to spread disease deeper and deeper.

Then the sunshine which is the greatest healer and the greatest germicide, is here in abundance. Very few places in the world have the amount of sunshine that we have in Alberta. I consider its influence one of the greatest curative agents we have.

Asthmatics reap probably more benefit than any other class. Very few come here who are not greatly benefited or cured. I take this to be due to the dryness of the air and the stimulative before mentioned.

In conclusion I may say that if any of you have had your minds disturbed by statements regarding the bad effects of Alberta's climate, you may set aside your fears. Up to date we have not been able to find sufficient statistics to make even the semblance of the case. Do not be afraid of the sunshine—whether you be a blonde or brunette. But I would advise the men—it would not do for me to even suggest styles for the ladies—to wear a head covering and not to follow the fad of going bare headed, even if the fashion is set by our neighbors to the south.

A GERMAN TREATY

Berlin, April 7.—The negotiations for a commercial treaty between Canada and Germany have reached a favorable stage, Canada having declared her willingness to grant reductions of high class textile products, drugs, books, soaps, artificial flowers feathers, wines, spirits, ready-made clothing and porcelain. While in return Germany would grant a reduction of duties on agricultural implements, typewriters, cattle, agricultural and horticultural produce.

I HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE OF LIVING.

Heart Trouble Cured by MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. Andrew Savoy, Grafton's, N.B., writes: In the year of 1903 I was taken sick and did not think I could live any length of time. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that nothing could be done for a case like mine. I consulted the very best doctors but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly cross the floor. I had no pain but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hopes of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

One day a friend came to see me, and calling me by name, said, 'Lizzie, if I were you I would try a dose of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart trouble.' My husband got me a box, but for two days I was not feeling any better, but on the fourth day my husband said, 'I believe those pills are doing you good.' I was able to say, 'Yes, I feel a good deal better this morning.' He said, 'Well, I will get you another box right away.' I took two boxes and three doses out of the third one, and I was perfectly well and have not been sick since then.

I will never be without them in my home for God knows if it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I would not have been alive now.

Price 50 cents per box. 3 boxes for $1.25.

AN ACCURATE CLOCK.

The Timepiece in the Observatory of Columbia University.

In the observatory of Columbia university is one of the most accurate clocks in the world. It has run for several months with a mean error of only fifteen-thousandths of a second and a maximum error of thirty-thousandths of a second per day. That means that it does not vary more than half a second a month, or six seconds a year.

Compare this with the first pocket timepiece, the "animated egg of Nuremberg," which required winding twice a day and varied an hour and a half in the same time! Compare it with some of the highest priced watches manufactured today, which often vary more than ten seconds a week, and you will have some idea of the refinements in the science of measuring time. Yet even this accuracy is surpassed by some famous timepieces, if the trade magazines are to be believed. There have been accounts in them of clocks or watches that have varied less than a second in periods as long as ten years.

The clock at the University of Columbia is an astronomical clock. It is surrounded by a glass case in which a partial vacuum is maintained, and in order that the case may not be opened or disturbed the winding is done automatically by electricity. The clock is set up in a room especially constructed to keep it free from jar or vibration. The temperature and barometric conditions are maintained practically constant, and every possible precaution is taken to minimize the errors of the running mate.—New York World.

IT CLEANS THE SHIPS.

Sailing Through a Volcano Crater in the Aegean Sea.

In the Aegean sea a vessel may sail into the top of a crater, and, though it is hard to find anchorage there, yet a mere sail through is appreciated greatly by captains, because it cleanses the bottom of the ships from marine growth.

More than 2,000 years ago the isle of Santorin was split in half by an earthquake, with the result that what was once the crater of a volcano is now a crescent shaped harbor. Two glistening white towns of Thera and St. Nicholas are perched on the summit of the steep cliffs, whose dark and dismal hue is similar to that of the top of Vesuvius. Standing out against the sky are large numbers of windmills, with many sails, arranged in a perfect circle. These are evidently employed for crushing the olives, which, along with the terraced vines, are the staple product of the island. The Santorin wine is of excellent quality and is highly appreciated in the Levant.

Between the main island on the east and the smaller, Theresia, on the west, are the three small Kaumene islands, all of which have come into existence since the original earthquake, while the largest of the three was "born from the sea" less than 200 years ago, showing that the center of the old volcano has still a certain amount of activity.

The water in the harbor into which the sulphurous streams from this volcanic island rain has a peculiar property which completely cleans off growthe of every kind from the bottom of any ship.

"Real Sporty" Woodsmen.

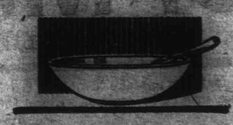
The chief recreation of the woodsmen of the Puget sound country is to go to town on Saturday nights. As a valley dweller explained: "They've got money, and they just blow it in. That there is the logger style of it. There's no places of amusement in the town. They can go to the library and sit down or go to a hotel and sit down, but that don't suit 'em. No, they either get drunk or go to church. Some take in both. I've seen 'em at church pretty well loaded. 'Bout 'leven or twelve o'clock they start for their camp. Mostly they hire a rig and go eight or ten fellers to a team. Oh, they're sporty! There's nothing too good for the loggers and, take 'em as a whole, they're the best class of men I ever run up against."—Clifton Johnson in Outing Magazine.

Etruscan Vases.

The famous Etruscan vases were wrongly named, for, though made in Etruria, they were the productions of Greek genius. They are elegant in form and enriched with bands of beautiful foliage and other ornaments, figures and similar subjects of a highly artistic character. One class has black figures and ornaments on a red ground the natural color of the clay; another has the figures of the natural color and the ground painted black. The former class belong to a date about 600 B. C., the latter date about a century later and extend over a period of some 300 or 350 years.—New York American.

Where the Cost Comes In.

"Do you find the cost of living any higher in New York than it was in the little old town?"



"No. Living doesn't cost so much more, but a fellow has to pay a big price to keep from getting lonesome."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Labor Lost.

"A man kin allus fix up arguments to quiet his conscience," said Uncle Eben, "but 'tain't no use. No matter how much you turns de clock back, sundown gwineter come jes' de same."—Washington Star.

The Ruler.

Facetious Friend (teasingly)—Well, which rules, you or your wife? Mr. Hennegwad (with hauteur)—You forget we can afford to keep a cook.—Baltimore American.

The Best of All Breakfast Foods

There's a reason behind all fads and fancies. We required light breakfast foods and the market was flooded with health foods (so-called.)

But—the best breakfast food in the world is "Zephyr Cream" Soda Biscuits crushed in cream or fresh, sweet milk.

Christie's "Zephyr Cream" Sodas have more original goodness than all other sodas manufactured on this continent. More than that, the original goodness of Christie's Biscuits is lasting. The flavor does not vary.

All big biscuit makers buy a good brand of flour. We buy all good brands. Then we blend the best brands, sift and test the blend until we find a dough that will sustain the Christie reputation.

Expensive! Yes—but we know no other way of starting to make biscuits up to our own high standards.

Every ingredient entering into our "bakes" is the purest and best we can buy.

Our "Zephyr Cream" Sodas crushed in cream, or fresh milk, certainly do make an excellent light breakfast. You test them.

A largely signed petition was received, calling upon the council to acquire the Hillside cemetery for the city. Alds. Howson, Spencer and Morrow were appointed a special committee to report on the matter.

At this point a deputation from the board of trade waited on the council in regard to their request for a $3,000 grant. H. Stewart, the first speaker, said that the $1,200 which the council proposed to give would hardly more than cover the expense of handling the legitimate correspondence which would otherwise be handled by the city's officials. He pointed out also, that a large number of citizens were giving their services gratuitously for the advancement of the city's interests through the board of trade. In reply the mayor stated that the council, in reaching their decision, had taken into consideration the fact that when the publicity commissioner was engaged a number of citizens had signed an agreement by which they had pledged themselves to subscribe the amount of Mr. Hall's salary. He himself had never signed the agreement. He did not think it would be fair to the great body of the ratepayers to saddle them with the cost of a heavy subsidy to the board of trade. At atime when it was deemed advisable to cut down expenses to the lowest point the council had not seen fit to increase the grant. The speaker, however, did not wish to see the efficiency of the board of trade impaired in any way.

F. L. Crawford thought the sum of $1,200 would be barely sufficient to cov?r the cost of answering adequately the thousand or so letters yearly which were handled by the board. It was a mistake to suppose that because $3,000 might be granted it would all be spent. The board wished to consult with a committee from the council in regard to their projects.

W. Cousins took up the point raised by the mayor in regard to the subscribers to the commissioner's salary. Mr. Hall, he said, had been appointed many of the first subscribers had left the city and the original subscription list had to be dropped. Although many citizens could not see any direct benefits coming from the work of the board of trade, they must admit that the town had been advertised very extensively. The name of no town had been better advertised than had Medicine Hat. The speaker had suggested sending Mr. Hall to Denver at the instigation of Mr. McGregor of the Southern Alberth Land Co., who thought it might be possible to induce beet sugar people to visit the district and eventually to locate here Mr. McGregor would no doubt contribute a large part if not the whole of the expenses.

C. S. Pingle did not wish the council to feel responsible for the hiring of Mr. Hall. Working in harmony with the council the board could do good work; working at variance with the council it might as well go out of business. No member of the board got anything out of it but a lot of worry. There were a great many people in town who would be benefited by its work but who contributed not a cent. ...The board did pretty well to meet one-third of the annual expenditure.

In reply to a quesrion by Ald. Morrow it was stated that Regina subsidised the board of trade to the extent of $5,000. Calgary paid $1,500, but there the board of trade was made up principally of the representatives of wholesale houses, and the Hundred Thousand club received a large grant for advertising purposs.

W. H. Turpin also spoke in support of the grant, saying that while he had the idea formerly that the board of trade was not necessary, he now felt convinced that they were not asking too high a grant.

Ald. Howson declared himself as personally not opposed to a grant. He did not sign the agreement regarding commissioner's salary and in fact did not see the necessity of contracting to pay $2,500 to bring a man here. Some of the men who had signed the agreement were not paying and had not paid their subscriptions. He thought that the burden should be largely borne by the public.

After F. G. Forster had spoken to the effect that he would rather give his board of trade money through the taxes than direct, Mr. Stewart thanked the council for their hearing of the board's case. The mayor promised further consideration of all the arguments put forth, at a subsequent meeting, after which the deputation withdrew.

Ald. Howson gave notice of an amendment to the local improvements bylaw, and also of introduct on of bylaws to raise $55,000 by debentures for sewers and $16,000 for cement sidewalks.

Ald. Morrow gave notice of an amendment to the gas bylaw and renewal was given of the motion respecting the building bylaw.

Ald. Collier gave notice of an amendment to the dog license bylaw.

The gas and waterworks extensions bylaws were given a third reading.

The 13th inst. was fixed as the day for receiving nominations for the vacancy on the board of school trustees. The poll will take place on the 20th inst.

The mayor appointed the following committee to open tenders for all the supplies for the year: Alds. Howson, Morrow, Collier, the mayor and the engineer.

On Ald. Howson's motion the secretary-treasurer was instructed to advertise for a purchasing agent, storekeeper and time-keeper at a salary of $75 per month. The council then adjourned until Wednesday afternoon.

Adjourned Meeting of City Council

At the adjourned meeting of the council held on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock there were present: the mayor, Alds. Morrow, Spencer Collier and Howson.

The question of the agricultural society grant was brought up by Ald. Howson who stated that the committee appointed to meet the society had reduced the estimate of requirements from $15,000 to $12,000. This amount the society considered really necessary.

Ald Howson, however, thought the main building could be cut down considerably. Ald Collier was of the opinion that the granting of the amount asked for would mean the tying up of money which could be spent to far greater benefit. It was proposed by Ald. Morrow that the question be left over for discussion at the next fall meeting of the council. This course was decided upon.

In regard to the letter sent to C. A. Krauss as touching his resignation the secretary-treasurer stated that no reply had been received. On Ald. Howson's motion seconded by Ald. Spencer, Mr. Krauss' resignation was accepted, and on motion of the same alderman Henderson & Co., of Winnipeg, were appointed auditors at a salary of $600 per year, a quarterly audit to be given.

The Watson & Keynes account again came up for discussion. It appeared to Ald Howson that even if the claim of this firm had been recognised, which it was not, the amount asked was excessive. A buggy had to be pretty badly smashed to bring the damage up to $45. A new one could probably be got for $65. Mr. Watson had stated that on no account would a sum less than the full claim be accepted. On Ald. Howson's motion it was decided that the account be not paid.

The recommendation of the committee for the opening of tenders were then received as follows:

MARKET BUILDING

A. E. Forester	$4,300.00
M. C. Sacrider	4,458.00
L. Kinley	4,685.00
A. P. Burns	4,465.00
J. L. Peard	4,195.00
J. E. Lussier	5,093.00
Oakes & Everard	4,255.00

The tender of J. L. Peard was accepted, the commissioner being instructed to obtain a 10 per cent deposit on the building price and fix a time for completion.

Applications for this position were received from the following:

Jas. Challen, Chas. Frost, Fred. Scott, Wm. Hall.

The offer of Fred Scott, being the lowest tender was accepted in accordance with the committee's recommendations.

Dominion Wood Pipe Co.	6,419.50

Jas. Morrison Brass Mfg. Co., tendered $952.37 and was accepted.

HARDWARE

Marshall Hardware Co.	$607.68
Jas. Rae	629.75

Marshall Hardware Co's tender accepted.

CAST IRON PIPE SPECIALS

Tenders left on the table until the council reach adecision on the question of wood pipe.

The mayor broached the question of the granustand roof, stating that tenders had been received for this work (although they had not been called for). No proper plans had been made and it would be unwise to build a roof which would not be absolutely safe. Two or three concontractors had said they would not tender on the sketch and specifications given as they said the structure would not be strong enough. Nobody in the council seemed to know anything about this grand stand roof business, and as the chairman of the parks committee was not present to shed light into the dark recesses of the aldermanic minds, the matter was left in abeyance, the tenders being unopened.

Ald. Morrow reported that Mr. Craft had applied for an increase in salary. The matter will be considered by the committee which will report to the council later.

The estimates for the year where then considered.

Public Works—Ald Howson thought the first estimate of $11,000 might be reduced; much of the work on which it was proposed to expend this money should be covered by debentures. The estimates for sprinkling was cut down from $1,890 to $1,000 it being pointed out that the block around the fire hall could be attended to by the fire department. They would sprinkle the streets with the hose at night in accordance with Chief Smart's recommendation.

Parks and Markets estimate was—Parks, $1,600; Markets, $800.

Health and Relief—$6,728.

License and Police—$4740.

Finance—$65,000.

Water maintenance was said to be in the neighborhood of $900. Fire, water and light would probably be $6,000 making a total of about $110-000. The estimates will be finally revised and passed at the next meeting of the council.

Ald. Spencer pointed out the advisability of charging up expenses in connection with the issuing of debentures to the departments concerned. Hitherto surh monies had been taken out of the general account.

The council adjourned at 6 o'clock.

A NOTORIOUS OUTLAW

Fearless "Billy the Kid," Who Reveled in Carnage.

ONLY A BOY, YET A TERROR.

This Youthful Desperado of the Southwestern Territories Was but Twenty-one When He Met Death at the Hands of Sheriff Pat Garrett.

When General Lew Wallace was governor of New Mexico and the war that raged for several years between the rival cattle companies was at its height "Billy the Kid" had reached the flood of his murderous career. He arrived in Lincoln county to take sides in the cattle warfare, known and feared in every range town and mining camp in the southwestern territories.

Pure wanton love of carnage was all that attracted him to Lincoln county. With the band of desperadoes he led he raided ranches, "shot up" towns, killed, burned houses and committed outrage after outrage with the blind recklessness of a maniac. Fear was extinct within him. He cared no more for detachments of cavalry than he did for cowering sheriffs.

Affairs in New Mexico finally came to such a pass that half the cattlemen paid the youthful desperado tribute. It was only after Pat F. Garrett was made sheriff of Lincoln county and the author of "Ben-Hur" (General Wallace) urged that fearless gun fighter and gambler to capture Billy the Kid that a determined effort was made to end his reign of terror.

The obstacles that Garrett had to encounter called for all his headlong energy and nerve. Billy had the entire countryside in a state of abject terror; friends were ready to give him timely warning of pursuit; ranchmen dared not deny him lodgment or concealment.

Pat Garrett undertook the capture in October, 1880, and on Dec. 20 he surrounded the Kid and his band in a deserted house near Stinking Springs. After a siege lasting most of the day the outlaws' ammunition was exhausted. Billy the Kid surrendered. He and his four followers, surrounded by a great force of armed men, were taken to Las Vegas and thence to Santa Fe for safe keeping.

An array of indictments charging murder confronted him. He was tried on one indictment and acquitted, then tried on another and convicted. He carried himself throughout with unswerving defiance. After he had been sentenced to hang Garrett took him to Fort Stanton, near Lincoln. Two deputies armed with Winchesters were assigned to guard him in the temporary jail in the Murphy & Dolan store building.

In some mysterious fashion the Kid possessed himself of a revolver, shot down his guards, seized their weapons and appeared at the window. When another guard appeared the prisoner riddled his body with bullets shot. Then he called to an old man on the plaza to bring him a file. Filing off one of his shackles, he called for a horse. One was brought, and he escaped.

For nearly three months after that Billy the Kid led a fugitive life. Garrett dogged him patiently and finally got wind of his hiding place at the ranch of Peter Maxwell, near Fort Sumner. It was nearly midnight when Garrett and two deputies quietly approached the Maxwell hacienda. Garrett crept into the room where Maxwell was sleeping. Softly awakening the sleeper, he questioned him concerning the whereabouts of the Kid.

At that moment the hunted youth sprang into the room, calling out in Spanish, "Quien va?" ("Who comes there?") It was Billy. He was unarmed, and as he reached for his ride Garrett shot him. The body of William Bonney (Billy the Kid) was buried in the military cemetery at Fort Stanton July 15, 1881. His age at the time of his death was twenty-one years seven months. There his body is today, though in later years a corpse was exhibited throughout the west as that of the famous young outlaw.—Harper's Weekly.

Calgary Horse Show

Hon. W. T. Finlay ran down from Edmonton to take in the Calgary Horse and Fat Cattle show last week. He was surprised at the number of entries though expecting the show to be good. There were fewer bulls entered than last year but the quality was a decided improvement. He hopes the farmer will keep on in this line—not sacrificing quality for quantity. The entries in the horse class were greatly in excess of last year and the quality exceedingly good. There were more varieties represented in this class than at any previous show. The bull sale after the show was a great success. Although entries were fewer, the price obtained was much in advance of last year when the average price was about $65. This year it is reported about $105. The great attraction of the fair was the exhibition of light horse in the auditorium in the evenings when fancy driving, riding and jumping were the program, the latter proving by far the greatest attraction. About a dozen representatives of Medicine Hat citizens were in attendance. Mr. Finlay spent a few days here and then left for Edmonton where he is at present and will return to Red Deer on Tuesday to attend the government creamery convention there. Mr. Finlay also expressed his appreciation of our local stallion show and hopes that no effort will be spared to make it even a greater success next year. In his great interest throughout the province in all shows of this nature, the minister of agriculture has not lost sight of our local agricultural affairs. He expects to return here in about two weeks accompanied by Professor Cambbell and Deputy Minister Harcourt, to select a location for the experimental dry farm.

Ontario has been swept by a terrific wind storm which caused great [illegible] property and many accidents to human life.

Adjourned Meeting Council

The adjourned meeting of the council was held in the city hall on Tuesday evening there being present the mayor, Alds. Morrow, Spencer, Hopson, Robertson, Huckvale and Parkhale.

On Mr. Mahaffy's suggestion it was decided to divide the offices of secretary and treasurer for the time being as the market debenture required to be signed by the city clerk, an office which has now been established. The necessary bylaw will be put through at the next regular meeting and Fatt appointed clerk.

Ald. Morrow gave notice of introduction of a bylaw for the acquirement of Hillside cemetery at a cost of $6,000.

Ald. Howson gave notice of introduction of a bylaw for the guaranteeing of bonds of the Agricultural society to the amount of $10,000.

Ald. Huckvale gave notice of introduction of a bylaw for the election of an alderman for Ward 1 in place of J. H. Collier, resigned.

On the solicitor's suggestion, Ald. Morrow gave notice of introduction of a bylaw regarding licenses.

Renewal was also given of the notice of introduction of a bylaw to amend the gas bylaw.

A deputation from the Medicine Hat Lawn Tennis Club waited on the council at this point. J. K. Driscoll briefly stated that in view of the proposed alterations at the Riverside park the club were desirous of knowing how they would be situated for the coming season. Ald Peel, chairman of parks committee said it was intended this year to improve the parks, laying them out to suit [illegible]. He felt that as the club had spent money at the present grounds for the purposes of grading this should prove sufficient. In view of the fact that the club now desired the use of the courts, however, they would be willing to come to some arrangement with the club if it were possible, in the way of giving them adequate notice before the courts laid out to courts should be

THE CEMETERY QUESTION

Editor of The Times:

Sir,—For some time past one heard of the council's intention to [illegible] the ratepayers approve of purchasing the cemetery known as the "Public Cemetery" and the statements are now confirmed by notice of motion given by Ald. Morrow of his intention to move that a bylaw to raise $6,000 be submitted to the people. The possibility of such a proceeding, from the sentimental standpoint, seems revolting. One understands the purchase of lots in a cemetery by individuals for the purpose of burying a grave against intrusion by other bodies, but the purchase of existing cemetery and consecration of such bodies therein as are now protected by their living relatives is horrible. The question, however, bears a different aspect, that of business and justice. The so-called "Public Cemetery" is, if I am correctly informed, the property of the Presbyterians and represents a free grant of forty acres, anciently granted by the government to any religious body asking for it. (A similar instance of such a grant is that of the Anglo Catholics on the north side of the river). So that the property purchase is really one from the Presbyterians. There are, in addition to the above named cemetery two others, one belonging to the Anglo Catholics, the other to the Roman Catholics. One has heard of no objection that arrangements should be made with either or both of these bodies for the improvement of their cemeteries by purchase or by some means of help. It is not very long ago that in consequence of the trouble in the cemetery in connection with our present mayor took the matter in hand and with the help of the Presbyterians got the cemetery into shape and then approached the city council with a proposition to buy the cemetery for the city. We are now given to understand that the $6,000 represents the actual amount expended in improvements (leaving a balance of $2,000 to make up the old figures) or $50 per lot. Surely a present from the Presbyterians is surely a wiser policy to adopt a quarter section and deal with the land in the best possible way in the direction of plotting same out into graves, etc. It must be with the knowledge of many ratepayers that such a piece of land (that is the quarter section) can be bought, lying adjacent to the present cemetery at a price very little more than the proposed $6,000. Apparently the request on of present citizens to provide for the future, in purchasing land for a cemetery. It is hard for the ordinary man to understand any reason for the proposed purchase with three cemeteries in the heart of the city, our wants are provided for for many years. As to improvements one wonders where money has been spent excepting in a house which is of no necessity as well also of no particular use in view of the suggestion to bring city water system shall be brought to the cemetery. It seems to me that the council should enquire fully into the whole matter before should not wish to expend the suggested sum of money until the necessity for same has been

Public Ownership of Utilities

Interesting Debate last Thursday Evening.

A debate took place in the Y. M. C. gymnasium on Thursday evening before a good-sized and enthusiastic audience on the subject: "Resolvedtha the public, ownership and operation of public utilities is more conducive to the welfare of the masses than private ownership and operation." The debate was undertaken in response to a challenge to the Mock Parliament issued by the Royal Templars of Temperance about a month ago. The opposing sides were:—Messrs. P. R. Bryenton, D. R. Ware and W. N. Smith, representing the Mock Parliament, for the affirmative, and Messrs C. Sansom, E. S. Frost and J. Henderson representing the Royal Templars. The judges were Mr J. Benson, Mayor Milne and Ald. Spencer. Mr. M. A. Brown occupied the chair.

At the outset it was announced by the judges that the points made and the skill with which the arguments were marshalled would be the only factors considered.

Mr. P. R. Bryenton, leader of the affirmative side then took the platform and in common with the leader of the opposite side was allowed 15 minutes in which to present his arguments. He began by expounding the term "public utilities" as interpreted by authorities on economic subjects. The distinction between a public utility and a national resource was explained, a public utility being defined as a franchise or form of public service the advantage of which does not necessarily lie in its own self, but in the fact that its customers will be the general public. Such for instance, were a traffic franchise, an electric lighting franchise, and the right to serve communities with water or power. It was hoped to prove, the speaker went on, that the public ownership of these utilities made for the financial, moral and intellectual well-being of the people. Mr. Bryenton then went on to deal with the economic aspect of the question, giving facts and figures in respect to the success of publicly owned utilities in America and in Europe Their success, he pointed out, was not to be estimated in dividends alone. The cheapening of services and the increasing of their efficience, the gaining of better working conditions and shorter hours for employees, all went to show that the interests of the masses were best served when these great services were under public control. Even from the purely commercial standpoint, however, public ownership had proved a success, and especially so in regard to municipal services. In support of this contention were cited the cases of large British cities where the consumer obtained a better and cheaper service when such utilities as gas were municipally owned than when private ownership prevailed.

In opening his attack from the negative side Mr. Sansom denied that a case could be proved by isolated instances. Primarily the issue was one of principle. The history of the new world, the history of the Empire of which we form a part, was a tribute to the success of private enterprise. All the great inventions, all the triumphs of mechanical science, were due to private enterprise and the stimulating influence of competition. The progress of the world from savagery to civilization has been brought about through private enterprise. The speaker would anticipate an argument of his opponents, which was that these public utilities were in the nature of things, monopolies. Such was not the case, for the great monopolies of today were only able to continue in existence because of the high protective tariffs which governments had created. Freedom of trade would destroy monopolies. The panic in Standard Oil circles which the announcement of a reduction in the tariff had created, went to show that monopolistic conditions could only be maintained when trade was obstructed by artificial barriers. One great evil of public ownership lay in its opening of new doors for graft. Politicians, instead of expert business or professional men, were placed in charge of great undertakings. The building of railways, especially, became dependent on political rather than business conditions. Amid much laughter the speaker referred to the bungling on the Medicine Hat waterworks as an example of the failure of municipal management.

Mr. D. R. Ware followed for the affirmative side and devoted the ten minutes allotted to him mainly to Public ownership, he said, would make forever impossible the piling up of immense fortunes and the consequent degradation and misery of the masses. It would make for the elimination of "classism," of social distinctions and barriers. A new motive for endeavor would be created; a new ideal placed before the worker; and for the spirit of gain would be substituted the spirit of service of his kind. Public ownership was but the natural outcome of economic evolution, which tended to restore to the people the powers of government and the means of life.

The next speaker was Mr. E. S. Frost, who contended that only under private ownership could operation of utilities on a sound business basis be carried on. The building of the Medicine Hat post office was an example of the hustling business methods of governments. (laughter). Under a system of private ownership the best in efficiency and in service was obtained from employees. One great factor making for inefficient management where public ownership was adopted, lay in the placing under one head many departments which were not necessarily related in any way. The managers of private corporations were specialists who were able to gain a thorough knowledge of their departments.

Supporting the affirmative side Mr. W. N. Smith gave figures to show that the best managed and most efficient railways in France and Italy and throughout Europe, were nationally owned. The rates on British roads were the highest in Europe and public opinion in England was steadily moving in the direction of nationalization. In regard to the relative advantages of publicly and privately owned waterworks it was stated that in 375 American cities, which included all but three of the 160 having a population of 25,000, the average rates for a six-roomed house were: privately owned, $20.83; publicly owned, $16.35.

Mr. J. Henderson contended that the improvement in equipment and in service which it had been said had followed the municipalization of street railways, did not necessarily prove that municipal ownership was the most successful system that could be adopted. Ours was a progressive age, and with mechanical science making greater conquests year by year, improvements were bound to be adopted, whether public or private systems were concerned. Figures in regard to the success of municipally owned street railways were liable to be misleading. The private company paid into the municipal treasury a heavy street rent, whereas the municipally owned undertaking had no such charges to meet. This was a fact which must be considered when making comparisons.

The leaders of the negative and the affirmative were allowed five and ten minutes respectively for rebuttal, after which the judges retired. The Rev. T. C. Buchanan, president of the Methodist Conference for Alberta was called upon to speak and gave an interesting address.

On their return the judges announced that the victory lay with the affirmative side. Considerable difficulty had been experienced in arriving at a decision.

The proceedings of the evening were brought to a pleasant conclusion by an address from the Mayor who met with enthusiastic applause. He explained that the decision of the judges did not necessarily reflect their personal opinion. One great danger of municipal management lay in the possibility of a man being placed in office not on account of his capabilities but because he was a good fellow." Another difficulty arose in regard to continuity of policy. At each election new men were placed in authority and there was a tendency for the new man to say that his predecessor was wrong in what he had done. Very often for this reason a good system could not be carried through. The mayor pointed out that the water rate in this city for last year ($12 with $3 for lawn service) compared very favorably with the average for American cities. He believed that the new system, although it doubtless had its imperfections, would work out on the whole for the benefit of the community, and especially of the poorer citizens. Referring to the debate of the evening he suggested that prior to the next elections another such meeting should be organized and the aldermen called upon to explain what they intended to do for the city.

H. F. Kenny, General Secretary, Alberta S. S. Association.

The newly appointed secretary of the Alberta Sunday School Association, will pay a visit to Medicine Hat on Sunday and Monday next. On Sunday morning he willpeach in the Methodist church, and in the afternoon will address a mass meeting of Surday School scholars, teachers and all interested in S. S. work in the Presbyterian church at 4 p.m. He will occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church in the evening. A tea will be served in the basement of St. John's church, at which Mr. Kenny will meet the teachers and officers of the various Sunday schools of the city, and at 8 p.m. a round table conference will be held to which everybody is invited. Mr. Stuart Muirhead who has had charge of the work since its organization in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, now becomes the general secretary af Saskatchewan and Mr. Kenny takes up the work so ably started by Mr. Muirhead in Alberta.

Missionary Meeting in St. John's Church

Rev. A. C. Farrell Gives Report

A good sized and appreciative audience listened to Rev. A. C. Farrell in St. John's Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon when he gave a report of the great Missionary Congress held in Toronto.

In well chosen words the speaker carried his audience to Massey Hall, giving a graphic description of the great auditorium filled with a vast concourse of 4,500 men, all intent in the interests of the evangilization of the world.

All churches being represented and men from many branches of the business world, the most striking feature of the congress was the unanimity of purpose which actuated the entire proceeding. Another striking feature was that men and men alone, composed the gathering, showing that the great work is receiving many business like treatment which is essential to its success.

The great key-note of the congress was simply stated in the name of Jesus Christ. All the men assembled were working for Him and the advancement of His kingdom. The time for doing the work was shown in the banner which read "This is the only generation I can reach." Systematic giving and systematic work were stated as the only successful methods to be used in advancing the work.

The Rev. Morrow presided over the meeting and Rev. Bryant closed with prayer.

The Supreme Court

Hassard Found Not Guilty.—Horse Poisoning Case—Important Decisions in Civil Actions.

In the Supreme Court last week the following criminal cases were tried before Mr. Justice Harvey. The court opened on Tuesday morning.

The King vs. Robinson—This case rose out of a charge laid by Henry Hassard of Josephburg against Jas. Robinson. It appeared that at the close of a political meeting held at the Newburg school house on the 13th of October last, Robinson stole his hat. He accordingly took one of the lamps which had been used at the meeting (not knowing that these had been supplied by Mr. Hassard), and began to make a thorough search for the missing article. Hassard, however, wanted to pack the lamp and make tracks for home so he approached his political comrade, blew out the lamp, snatched it away hastily, incidentally smashing it over Robinsan's head. A lively tussle ensued and eventually both men fell heavily to the ground. Hassard sustained a very serious injury his left hip being dislocated. Since that time he has been unable to move around without the aid of crutches. The accused pleaded that his grappling with Hassard was purely in self-defence. The judge held that Robinson had no motive in injuring Hassard, but did the act in self defence, and accordingly the accused was acquitted. The men in the quarrel are both prominent Liberals, though before the conclusion of the case the judge was almost driven to the conclusion that they were on opposite sides in politics. W. A. Begg appeared for the crown, D. G. White for the defence.

The King vs. Geo. Mitchell—The accused charged with causing the death of a horse belonging to E. G. Benwell of Irvine. The evidence went to show that on a day in December last Mitchell was engaged in hauling a load of hay from the Cypress Hills to Benwell's farm, and within two miles of his destination he got off the trail. Then arose trouble with the horses and during this time it was alleged that the teamster had clubbed a horse named Twinkle which was at the off-wheel. The horse, which subsequently died, was examined by a mounted police veterinarian who testified that the bruises and holes found in its flesh had probably been caused by blows from a stick which was produced. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, but on account of the good reputation and character of the accused he was given a more lenient sentence than would otherwise have been the case. He was sentenced to two months imprisonment in the barracks at Lethbridge. W. A. Begg appeared for the crown, D. G. White for the defendant.

The King vs. Hassard—In this case the accused Jas. Hassard was charged with wilfully damaging a horse belonging to the mounted police by strychnine poisoning. Corporal Ash had gained the ill-will of the rancher in connection with a prosecution for horse stealing. In this case the charge against Jas. Hassard had been dismissed. Ever since that time the latter had been on unfriendly terms with the policeman and had been heard to make threats that he would get even with him. He had poison in the horse's feed box and explained why he had gone into the stable on the evening in question.

After being out for the space of five minutes the jury returned a verdict of not guilty and the prisoner was discharged.

The defence of the case was conducted by D. G. White.

The King vs. Schram—F. H. Schram was charged with perjury alleged to have been committed in the case of Trimble vs. Schram tried before Judge Winter in February, 1908. As counsel for the accused D. G. White objected to the charge being proceeded with until the civil action had been finally determined. An appeal in the civil action was still pending and it would be unfair to Schram to have the criminal charge proceeded with in the mean time. The objection was upheld and the case held over until the next court.

aiding and abetting in the commission of the crime. The first named prisoner was thoroughly searched but no trace of poison could be found on his person. Subsequently a search of Hassard's home was executed, a bottle partially filled with strychnine being discovered. The presence of the poison in the house however was satisfactorily explained by the defence. Witnesses were called to prove that in the course of the half hour during which the police were absent from the stable several persons had been in the barn. In the box the prisoner testified in his own behalf. He denied having placed told Corporal Jenkyn that he bore no grudge against the mounted police "It's Ash I'm after," he had informed the witness.

Placed on the stand Corporal Ash testified that in December last he had occasion to put his horse in the general stable at Eagle Butte. At about five o'clock he fed the animal. Half an hour later, seeing Hassard and Liddell going in the direction of the stable, he followed them. The accused entered, and the corporal who went in a little later found Hassard standing directly behind regimental 290. Liddell was standing at the door of the stable. Hassard walked out of the stable without speaking. A short time after Ash entered Kettlewell's store to enquire for Hassard, who had, however, left for home. Ash and St. Dennis then returned to the stable and the half-breed found the police horse in great distress. In the feed box were the remains of a dose of strychnine mixed with a few oats. A few hours later Hassard and Liddell were arrested, the later on the charge of

Lively Discussion on New Gas Well

A special meeting of the council was held yesterday afternoon at 3.30 there being present the mayor and Aldermen Robertson, Morrow, Howson, Spencer, Huckvale and Penhale.

The question of beautifying and improving the Riverside Park was brought up by Ald. Penhale, who thought that as a considerable sum was necessary it would be unfair to meet the cost out of this year's rates. He suggested that instead of taking the money out of the appropriations for the current year it should be borrowed from the markets account. The amount required was $2,500. The money for the market debentures was lying in the bank and might as well be used for this purpose. The mayor doubted if such a course could be followed. After some further discussion in which Ald Penhale gave his ideas as to what should be done in the park and in the construction of a subway under the C. P. R. track, it was decided to refer the matter to the finance committee to report at the next meeting. In regard to the subway Ald. Howson said he understood that the stonework would be undertaken by the C. P. R. Unless this work were so carried out as to prevent the possibility of flood in the spring, it would be useless to go ahead with the work.

The greater part of the sitting was taken up by a discussion on the present state of the gas well and the finishing up the job. The question was brought up by the mayor, who stated that the resolution of the council on Monday last, that Mr. Grant should draw the 8 inch piping and finish up the well, had not been carried out. Though the gas committee had not held a meeting and had issued no instructions since Monday, he found that the 6 inch casing had been pulled, and the job which could apparently have been completed in two days was now in bad shape and it was difficult to say when it would be finished. Ald. Penhale stated that the 6 inch casing in the well was left quite loose by Mr. Grant and in such a condition that the well was not fit to close up. Ald. Morrow said he had given no instructions to have the 6 inch casing withdrawn and was unaware that it was the intention of Mr. Morrison to have this done. Engineer Morrison was then called into the council chamber. He explained that it was on his suggestion that Mr. Martin was appointed to act as expert in regard to the city wells. He (the engineer) had authorized Mr. Martin to fix up the well on Tuesday morning, because of his wide experience with the C. P. R. and under Mr Coste, one of the greatest geologists in America. The speaker was willing to stand or fall by what Mr. Coste (who would be in the city in a few days) said in the matter.

After some further discussion in which the Mayor stated that his understanding of Mr. Martin's appointment was that it only applied to the giving of advice in regard to the Industrial Place well, Mr. Martin was called in. The latter then gave a long technical explanation of the work carried out under his instructions. Tuesday morning, he stated, he found the 6 inch piping was down in the gas sand and was hanging quite loose in the well. The casing was pulled up 40 feet, in order that the packer might be put in. The packer was anchored 105 feet from the bottom. The subsequent difficulties were then explained at length. It was found that the hole had caved in and the packer would not set. The following morning an attempt was made to make a bridge for the cement, but the pipe was found to be fast. After several attemnts to jack it up the work was abandoned because it was feared that the pipe might be pulled in two as the eight inch and six inch pipes were stuck together. There were 15,000 to 20,000 feet of gas coming up between the eight inch and ten inch pipes. Mr Martin suggested two courses which might now be followed in getting out of the difficulty, but as Mr. Coste was in Winnipeg and coming west he thought it might be better to wait until his arrival. The object was to shut the well in with concrete. As the six inch pipe was left in the hole it was liable to be lifted by the pressure of the gas when the well was closed in.

The mayor thought it should be possible to anchor the casing from the top. It seemed to him that great chances were being taken when Mr. Martin undertook to draw the six inch casing. They had now been paying $25 a day to Mr. Grant since Tuesday last for the use of his rig and the expense was still going on. He could not understand why it had been necessary to work on Sunday.

Ald. Penhale made a remark about all the old wells being spoiled by drilling the casing. He went on to say that the gas from one of the well was still escaping, when—

Mr. Drinnan who was seated in the council chamber arose to his feet and asked permission to address the council. The Mayor consented. Mr. Drinnan said that it had been positively proved that the escaping gas did not come from that well. As a former member of the council he could declare what Ald Penhale had said to be a downright falsehood. It might however, be due to ignorance. An animated scene ensued, Ald. Penhale retorting with the words "Call me a d—d fool." After Mr. Drinnan had resumed his seat Ald. Penhale rose, and ignoring the chair turned to Mr. Drinnan. He (Ald Penhale) was too much of a gentleman to call Mr. Drinnan a liar, but he would say that he handled the truth very carelessly. For some minutes Ald. Penhale continued to talk after which Mr. Drinnan again spoke emphasizing what he had said before that the escaping gas came from an old abandoned well and not from the new one.

Calling the council to order the mayor stated that it was desirable to have a minute appointing Mr. Martin. Under the present arrangement Mr. Morrison had to bear the responsibility in connection with the difficulty. It was pointed out that Mr. Grant's wells had been satisfactory.

Ald. Spencer thought that a mistake was made in not allowing Mr. Grant to carry the well to completion. To upset Mr. Grant's plans by allowing another man to finish the job was very unwise. Ald. Morrow thought the best plan would be to leave the well as it is until the arrival of Mr. Coste. The mayor pointed out that the city would have to continue to pay $25 a day for Mr. Grant's rig. It was stated by Mr. Martin that this was quite unnecessary; the rig was not required for the finishing off of the well.

During the discussion Mr. Grant entered the council chamber and being asked to speak stated that the field through which the well had been drilled was the most treacherous he had known. It was a sea of mud from top to bottom. The six inch casing should have been left as it was He (Mr. Grant) had refused to pull it until he received an order in writing. The men had jammed the six and eight inch pipes together.

Eventually it was decided to refer the whole matter to the gas committee. Immediately after the adjournment the committee met and decided to leave the well in Mr. Martin's hands to carry to completion.

SAD ACCIDENT AT GLEICHEN

A fatal accident occurred on Monday last on the farm of F. E. Renaud, 10 miles north of Gleichen, whereby John Wingfield, whose parents reside at Medicine Hat, lost his life. The boy was working in a field driving a team attached to a heavy roller and got of the implement to burn off some grass. The horses took fright at the fire and started to run away. Young Wingfield attempted to stop them, and was evidently thrown to the ground, the heavy implement passing over his body. He died a few minutes afterwards.

The body was brought to Medicine Hat, where the parents now reside, having moved here from Gleichen about two years ago. The boy was 16 year and 4 months old. Interment was made in the Anglican cemetery here on Friday. Many floral offerings testified to the sympathy extended to Mr. and Mrs. Wingfield in their sad bereavement.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Miss Florence Kincade, who failed to appear at the inquest into the death of her sister. Owing to her absence the resumed inquest was adjourned till last evening.

The adoption at universal compulsory military training is being advocated in New Zealand by all classes.

THE SCHOOL BYE-LAW

Voting on the bye-law to raise $50,000 for the erection of a new school in Medicine Hat is taking place in the City Hall today. As we go to press the vote stands:

For 91
Against 18

That the bye-law will carry with a substantial majority seems assured.

President Fleming Appoints Umpires

The four umpires who will control the games for the Western league this summer have now been selected and will report at Medicine Hat to President Fleming on the 7th of May. They are: "Lefty" Nagle, an old Northern league player; A. E. Rodinbaugh who hails from the western States, and is also well known in B. C.; Wm. Donnelly, who has played with the Pacific coast league; and H. L. Voss, another old Northern league man. Altons E. Rodinbaugh has already reported and he will umpire the opening game—Amateurs vs. Pros., this afternoon.

Welch has returned from Banff where he has been taking the baths, and on Friday Barnstead and Whisman reported in the city. Every man is now on hand and the team is working out twice a week. There are 18 men, which gives nine on each side.

The grounds have been greatly improved during the past week, since the water was piped in, and the diamond is now in fairly good condition The dressing rooms are well fixed up with gas and water, and hot and cold showers for the use of the players.

While in Medicine Hat springlike conditions prevail, in all the eastern towns—Moose Jaw, Regina, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, the ten below variety is still being enjoyed and baseball is out of the question.

ASSEMBLY CLUB DANCE

The Assembly Club will give a special dance in the opera house tomorrow evening.

News of the Week

The C. P. R. have purchased a right-of-way into Edmonton and will build a high level bridge over the Saskatchewan which will give the company entrance into the capital city.

The board of governors of Saskatchewan university have purchased a site of over 1,000 acres on the Nutana side of the river at Saskatoon. The location of the buildings will be on a very commanding position overlooking the city.

The re-trial of Maximilian Harden the German editor charged with publishing a libel on Count Kuno Von Moltke was opened last week.

The Canadian Gazette, (London, Eng.) draws attention to the increasing interest being manifested by British investors and farmers in Southern Alberta's irrigated lands. Enquiries for irrigated lands for colonization purposes are being received—in some cases for hundreds of thousands of acres.

The interesting feature of last week's session of the Dominion Parliament was the presentation of the budget by Hon. W. S. Fielding, minister of finance. As usual the government claims a surplus, and the opposition claims a deficit. The revenue for the year ending March 31st, 1909 was $84,852,000—a decrease of nearly $12,000,000 from the previous year. Over $46,000,000 has been added to the public debt. The rate of interest on loans, which the government has been forced to borrow, has risen from 2½ to 3½ and in some cases 3¾ per cent. We are also paying larger sums in brokerage and commissions. Fewer changes have been made in the tariff than was anticipated. Two concessions granted to the sugar industry, are the only alterations.

Two men were killed and another seriously hurt as a result of a cave in of the waterman excavations in Calgary on Friday last.

The coal miners strike is still unsettled. President Sherman's action in calling out the men has been sustained by a vote of the miners. An early settlement is not now expected.

RECKLESS SHOOTING

Another case of reckless shooting within the city limits has just been brought to the attention of the Times. On the 16th inst., early in the morning, a large sized rifle bullet pierced the outer wall of Mr. Wm. Ansley's residence Central Park and lodged in the inner wall of the bath room. Parties practicing the use of fire-arms in such a reckless manner are in grave danger of committing manslaughter.

ATHLETICS

THE MIGHTY JAWS

Moose Jaw, April 22—The following are the players which have been signed with Moose Jaw by the manager, M. O. Taylor:

Catchers, Apslund and Steele; pitchers, Currie, Tredway, Gilchrist, Smith, Rosevear, Foley; infielders, O'Hayer, Watters, Olmstead, Taylor outfielders, Halladay, Starr, Dennis, Meyers, Culver. Mr. Taylor proposes to play Gilchrist in the outfield and pitch him one game each week as he is a heavy hitter. Foley will be unable to report before June 10 as he is attending college.

The Winnipeg Free Press has selected the pet names for the league teams and so has the Regina Leader. The Free Press selects them as follows: Winnipeg Maroons, Regina Statesmen, Edmonton Capitals, Brandon Angels, Lethbridge Miners, Moose Jaw the Jaws, the Mad Hatters and Calgary Cowboys. For the most part the names are very silly, showing too much of an inclination to copy some cheap Yankee names.

What a shocking name the Leader has given to the Calgary aggregation. I desire to inform the eastern papers that the name of the Edmonton athletes is the Esquimos. That name is applied to all the Edmonton athletic clubs. Edmonton objected for a while but have got accustomed to the name and now they like it very much. It would be unkind, even if possible to change that name now.

The Albertan believes that the names should be Winnipeg Barcoms, Brandon Lunatics, there are no angels in this league; Moose Jaw the Jaws, Regina Bonepilers, the Mad Hatters, Edmonton Esquimos, Lethbridge something or other. I do not give a name for Calgary. Doubtless for this season they will be called the Leaders. In 1907 they were called the Mavericks or some such cattle name.—Calgary Albertan.

THE SOUTHPAW STOCK

The eight American league clubs will have 28 southpaw pitchers on their rosters this spring. Of this number 11 have seen more or less service in the American league, while the other 10 are recruits, one Wolters, of Boston, having had a brief experience in the National league.

St. Louis is a little better fixed as to southpaws numerically than most of its rivals, having four left-handers in Waddell, Bailey, Graham and Swift. Waddell was one of the few American league southpaws who won more games than he lost last season his score being 19 victories and 14 defeats. Bailey won 6 out of 8 while Graham won 6 out of 13. Swift who pitched for Wilkesbarre, won 24 and lost 16.

New York also has four southpaws "Doc" Newton, Wilson, of Harvard; Schmidt, of Baltimore; and Vaughan of the Arkansas State league. Newton did not do much in the American league in 1908, but Schmidt won 5 out of 6 games in the Eastern league. Wilson won 21 and lost 12 for Hartford, while Vaughan won 9 and lost only 1 down south. He failed to distinguish himself however, with the Yankees last season being very wild.

Connie Mack has Eddie Plank, the old reliable; Krause, the California high school boy and Salve, from the South Atlantic league, as his left-handers. Plank failed to break even last year, winning 14 and losing 16, but Krause, after being farmed out by Mack to the Tri-State league won 17 and lost but 4. Salve won 14 and lost 15 in the Sally league.

Chicago has three offside flingers in Altrock, White and Sutor, the last named being from the San Francisco club of the Pacific coast league. Sutor won 26 and lost 20 games. White won 19 and lost 13, while Altrock won but 8 out of the ten games he pitched.

Boston will worry along with Burchell and Wolters. Burchell who is a Baltimore recruit of the preceding fall, won ten and lost eight games for the Red Sox last year. Wolters formerly a Red and a Cardinal, was a minor league player last season, winning 25 and losing 2 games for the San Jose team of the California State league.

Washington's trio of southpaws are Burns who won 6 and lost 11 games for the Nationals in 1908; Gray, who won 26 and lost 11 games for Los Angeles, the championship club of the Pacific coast league, and Jessie Tannehill who hopes to regain his effectiveness this year.

One veteran and one young southpaw will be one of the Detroit pitching staff, Killian being the veteran and Speer, from the Wichita club of the Western association, being the recruit. Speer pitched 56 games last season but the record books do not give his percentage of victories.

While two of the clubs have four southpaws apiece, three have three apiece and two are equipped with two apiece. Cleveland has but one lefthander and he is a semi-pro., Andreads, from Los Angeles.

B. Maloney last year with Brooklyn is making a big hit with Rochester fans, not only because of his speed in the field and on the bases, but because of his having seemingly his batting eye.

It is a question whether Houser, who will guard the first sack for the Maple Leafs this year, is a better man than Mert Whitney, whom Malachi Kittredge grabbed for his Wilkesbarre, Pa., (New York State league) team. Houser has shown up well in spring practice.

CALGARY AMATEURS MEET PROFESSIONALS

The first baseball match of the season was pulled off in Calgary on Saturday when the professionals of Calgary met the amateurs. After a long fought battle which stretched into twelve innings the game ended in a tie.

SHRUBB BEAT ST. YVES

New York, April 24—Alfred Shrubb of England, once more proved himself the greatest middle distance runner in the world by defeating Henri St Yves of France at the American Polo grounds tonight. At no time was the result in doubt. Shrubb at the outset assumed a pace that the Frenchman could not follow. When eight miles had been covered, he had a lead of two laps, and this seemed to content him for he ran the remainder of the race at St. Yves' side. During the last two miles of the race St. Yves made frantic efforts to catch his rival, but to no avail. Shrubb's time for the race was 1:26:13 over four minutes behind the professional record, and nearly six minutes behind the amateur record.

The highest score for 10 pins at the Ready Bowling alleys last week was made by Terence Finlay who scored 236. The prize was a $6 pair of boots presented by Howson & Drake.

WATER POWER

The Conmee Power Bill has at last been killed by Sir Wilfrid pursuing down. Mr. Magrath's work in calling attention to the iniquitous this bill has at length borne fruit. The bill proposed to expropriate ever the water of the Rainy, Pigeon rivers and to export power derived from them to United States. Mr. Magrath took the position that if we are going give the United States any favors this matter, he wanted concessions from them regarding the water in certain streams of southern Alberta which rise in the United States and which could be used for irrigation purposes. The opposition put such a strenuous fight that the premier decided not to press the bill.

A violent wind storm swept over the eastern States last Tuesday, in some places reaching the violence of a tornado and causing much destruction of property. The west is not the only place that can boast having an occasional wind storm.

Another case of assault by an insane person, which, but for the timely interference of help might have proved a case of murder, was committed at Harriston, Ont., on the 19th inst. Duncan McKinnon assaulted Miss Ethel Ellis while returning from town and tore a handful of hair from her head, also kicking her violently. He spent a year in the asylum about five years ago and it looks as though Canada needed closer surveillance of her weak-minded as a protection to life.

The town of Macleod has recently been holding a sale of lots and the rate at which they are being snapped up constitutes a record even for the west. On Tuesday last over 200 lots were sold in 10 minutes; and during the ten days ending with that date over 1,000 lots have been disposed of. The town site is owned by the municipality having been granted to it by the government when Hon. Clifford Sifton was minister of the Interior. Lots are selling at $125 each, corner lots bringing $150.

The adjourned inquest to discover the cause of the death of Mrs. Kent of Moose Jaw, has resulted in an open verdict as follows:—"We hereby agree that Mrs. Kent came to her death by strychnine poisoning given or sent her by some party or parties unknown with intent to kill."

Calgary ratepayers defeated the money by laws submitted to them on Tuesday last—one for a fire hall and the other for a city hall. Calgary authorities evidently desire to go faster than the people in the matter of improvements.

The annual conference of the Roman Catholic archbishops of Canada opened at Ottawa on Wednesday evening last, all the archbishops except Mgr. Langevin of Manitoba, who was incapacitated by illness, were in attendance. Mgr. Sbaretti presided.

The Ontario government has accepted the tender of the T. Eaton Co. for the supply of school text books for the next ten years. The price is 49 cents per set. 49c., or any number ending in 9 is a typical Eaton price and to certain citizens 49 looks about 16 cents less than 50. In Alberta, the government pays $1.02 1-5 per set for school books.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your NEW METHOD TREATMENT for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood mellicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the NEW METHOD TREATMENT for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. A Prophecy and its Fulfillment.

"As the auxiliary nations of Australia and Canada and South Africa increase, the present relations, comfortable and pleasant as they are, cannot remain permanently fixed. As those auxiliary nations must increase in wealth and in population, so they must increase in responsibilities, and, speaking for the Dominion of Canada, I may say that we are ready to increase the responsibilities, we are ready to join the Mother Country in her offensive and defensive league, to sacrifice our last man and our last shilling in defence of the Empire and the flag of England. And when it is known that in a quarrel and in any conflict with England account will have to be taken of the ten millions of Australia, and the ten millions of Canada, increasing year by year, other nations will think twice before going to war with her."—Sir John MacDonald's last speech in England, January 1886.

Thus did Canada's greatest statesman prophesy twenty-three years ago and today none will doubt his prescience. Germany, acting entirely within her rights in this world of conflicting national aims and ideals, has thrown down a challenge for the primacy of the seas—only thus can she realize her long-held hopes of "Deutchland uber alles"; and she finds pitted against her, not Britain alone, with her forty-two millions of people, but the whole White Empire, with its sixty-five millions of people, and potential resources incomparably greater than those of any rival within sight. After the speech of Sir Edward Grey there can be no burking of the essential facts. Germany sees that it is now or never. British supremacy must be met and conquered before the British Empire gets to itself a co-operative policy for trade and for defence, or it will be for ever too late. The response from New Zealand, Australia, Canada, and South Africa proves, as Sir John Macdonald foresaw, that it is already too late. It is proclaimed to the world in general, and to Germany in particular, that the British Empire is one and indivisible, and the duty is now laid upon every British subject to turn this proclamation into deeds.

In defence, as in trade, each state within the Empire must move towards the common end in its own way. New Zealand's, and perhaps also Australia's way is by the immediate gift of "Dreadnoughts" needed for the present crisis, and it is in her yards alone that they can be built. Canada offers no "Dreadnoughts," but she is none the less ready with her pledge of solidarity and her pledge to elaborate means whereby that solidarity can best be expressed in sea power. It is announced from Ottawa that, in pursuance of the statement made by the Canadian Prime Minister in the naval debate in the Dominion Parliament last week, Mr. Brodeur, Minister of Marine, and possibly also Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia will proceed to England after prorogation of the Dominion Parliament in order to confer with the Admiralty on a plan for the organization of Canadian naval defence. Canadian journals are reminding their readers that if Canada were a series of States in the American Republic her share in the burden of national defence would be $32,000,000 a year. Thanks in a large measure to British protection, naval and diplomatic, she has been able to carry on her work of internal development at an infinitely smaller cost of national in public men on both sides of politics pub'ic men on both sides of politics and of her journals, of French-speaking no less than English-speaking, show that now the time is ripe for co-operation in defence has come she is prepared to take her larger share of Empire responsibilities. The memoranda and speeches of Canadian Ministers at the Imperial Conferences of 1902 and 1907, following, as they did, the earlier declarations of Sir Charles Tupper, proved how ready Canada has always been to recognize her obligations in the way of self-defence and relieve British taxpayers of the heavy charges formerly laid upon them for the military protection of the Dominion, for the maintenance of Imperial interests under fisheries and other treaties made with the United States by British statesmen, for the development of wireless telegraphy and hydrographic surveys in connection with the Admiralty, and for the upkeep of the Imperial dockyards and coaling stations at Halifax and Esquimalt.

This Canada has done with alacrity, and in their forthcoming mission her ministers will give further practical evidence of their desire to expand their defence schemes in consultation with the Imperial authorities, and as may seem best fitted to strengthen the Empire in face of the new peril. The late Lord Tweedmouth, as First Lord of the Admiralty, indicated at the 1907 Conference how the overseas Dominions may most usefully co-operate. The distribution of the fleet must, as he said, be determined by strategical requirements of which the Admiralty are the judges, but "it would be of great assistance if the Colonial governments would undertake to provide for local service in the Imperial squadrons the smaller vessels that are useful for defence against possible raids, or for co-operation with a squadron, and also to equip and maintain docks and fitting establishments which can be used by his Majesty's ships. It will further be of much assistance," he added, "if coaling facilities are provided and arrangements can be made for a supple of local self-government, which, otherwise would have to be sent out specially or purchased locally." Here then, we have the direction of Canada's further contribution to Empire defence consistently with the principle of local self-government, which, as Canadian Ministers reminded the Admiralty in 1902, "has proved so great a factor in the promotion of Imperial unity." There is, moreover, the Canadian desire expressed in the same official memorandum of 1902 to form a Naval Reserve on the sea coasts of the Dominion, whereby a large body of the world's finest seafaring men may be trained at small expense and made available in time of need.

"What we really desire," said Lord Tweedmouth with a wisdom worthy of the best British statesmanship, "is that we should have the cordial help of the Colonies, and that in the most effective way—in the first place, and, in the second place, in a way most acceptable to the Colonies." Germany has done us the incalculable service of quickening in every part of the Empire the co-operative impulse which these words express, and we cannot doubt that Mr. Brodeur and Sir Frederick Borden when they come to London in a few weeks' time will in consultation with British Ministers, be able to turn this impulse to excellent use; for to them, no less than to Sir John Macdonald, the Empire is a priceless asset.

Cultivate the Soil

If You Wish to Destroy weeds

The time has arrived when the farmers are again cultivating the soil for the season's crop. In cultivating the soil it is well to handle ity of the noxious weeds in Alberta it in such a way that the weeds will be kept under control. The majority are one year plants, or annuals, and belong to the mustard family. The seeds of the mustard are of an oily nature and will live in the ground for a long time without losing their vitality, germinating when brought under the proper conditions. The only way to eradicate them is to get the seeds to germinate and kill the plants while they are young, before they mature their seed. Before these seeds will germinate they must be very near the surface of the soil, not deeper than two inches, and the soil must be firmly packed around the seed. If there were many weeds in last year's crop, it will be found advisable to harn the stubble off in the spring. This will destroy many of the seeds that are on the surface of the ground, and will render the soil more easily cultivated. If the stubble is burned care should be taken to prevent prairie fires by plowing around the field. The soil should then be disked and harrowed. This will encourage the seeds near the surface of the ground to germinate, and by successive cultivations with the disk or harrows they will be destroyed and other seeds brought under such conditions that they will germinate. If this practice of disking and harrowing is followed up till the first of June a large number of weed seeds at the surface of the ground will have been destroyed. The land can then be plowed and packed if possible and an early maturing variety of barley sown. In northern Alberta it is safe to sow beardless barley as late as the middle of June.

When the crop is about four inches high and the roots are firmly established it should be harrowed lightly with a light lover harrow with sloping tooth. This will destroy the weed seeds that have started as well as encourage the growth of the crop. The harrowing should not be done when the ground is wet, as the dirt will stick to the harrows and have a tendency to destroy some of the grain. If there are only a few weeds left they can be hand pulled, but if there is a large quantity, it will be advisable to cut the crop for green feed before it reaches maturity. Usually however, it will be found that the barley will choke out any weeds that come up afterwards.

Where fall wheat is sown the method of disking and harrowing during the summer should be continued until it is time to plow for wheat.

The above method of cultivation only pertains to very badly infested fields. It will not be necessary to carry it out where there are only a few weeds present. However, it will always be found advisable to harrow the growing crop of grain when it is from four to ten inches high as soon as the roots are firmly established in the soil. Where only a few weeds are present, they should be hand pulled. Never sow or feed to stock any grain that contains weed seeds.

GETTING PEOPLE INTERESTED

"A story is told of an indifferent actor," said a retail man recently, "who hunted up the newspaper office in the town in which he was about to play, for the purpose of insulting the editor. Asked to explain his reason for this he said he didn't mind how much he was criticised by the newspaper, but he was afraid he might be ignored altogether, and he took this method of making the editor realize that he was in town."

Now, while the method of the actor may be open to question and it may be better to have nothing said about one than to have what is spoken said in condemnation, still the retail man, if he is wise sees to it that his patrons are never permitted to forget that he is selling and has something at one time or another that will interest them.

It doesn't make very much difference what method he employs, so long as that method is effective and what would suit in one locality would be of very little use in another, but it is surely up to the retail man to keep himself and his store in the eye of the community.

No matter how good one's stock may be or how low the price asked for certain goods in it, if the people who may need these things are not informed concerning them, or if they are permitted to forget that such a store has them for sale the stock might as well be non-existent or the bargains never offered. So more important than good buying or proper pricing or system of storekeeping, is getting the people interested in your business.

Many among our subscribers have been interested i nthe wheat competition conducted during the past winter by The Nor'-West Farmer, Winnipeg. Prizes totalling $4,778.-40 in value were offered to those who submitted the nearest estimate as to the number of kernels in five pounds of No. 1 Northern wheat. The grains have just been counted by Messrs. Campbell, Campion and McCraig, who unanimously declare the number to be 82,496. The prize-winners whose names and addresses are announced in the April 20th issue of The Nor'-West Farmer, are farmers scattered all over the three prairie provinces.

What the woman who has visited the Christie Factory says to her friends—

"I NEVER realized all that the 'Christie' brand on biscuits meant until I went through the big factory in Toronto.

"The cleanliness of the whole place amazed me. I don't mean that it is clean as judged by factory standards, but clean according to any standard.

"We women control the purse-strings when it comes to buying biscuits, and it's no wonder Christie, Brown & Co. are glad to have us inspect their factory. To my mind it is the strongest advertisement they could have.

"You'd be surprised to see the staff that is kept busy, day in and day out all the year round—cleaning, cleaning, cleaning.

"The windows, floors, walls, ceilings, machinery, etc.—all speak volumes for the sanitary conditions under which Christie's Biscuits are made.

"It's a picture to see the 'Christie Girls'—over three hundred of them—in spotless white. Each girl is supplied with two complete uniforms a week from the firm's private laundry.

"At every turn I found fresh evidence of the unusual care which is taken to preserve absolute cleanliness.

"It was explained to me how every ounce of raw material is tested, and how, at each step throughout the process of mixing, baking and packing, the Christie quality is jealously guarded.

"I am convinced that if every woman in Canada could visit the Christie factory as I did, they would not think of using any but Christie's Biscuits in future."

The best Grocers everywhere in Canada have Christie's Biscuits. Sold in bulk, by the pound, or in moisture and dust-proof packages.

Shipping Grain Westward

The problem of getting the produce of any country upon the markets of the world with the minimum of expense is one of the great questions in its development. High transportation charges nearly always means smaller profits for the producer, and in many cases higher prices paid by the consumer. Where the production of any article is a monopoly the higher rate affects the consumer only, since the producer can fix his price and the consumer must pay that plus the cost of putting it on the market. The aim of government is, or ought to be, the destruction of monopolies, so that the interests of the consumer are protected. To a certain extent this ideal is realized; and, in general, high transportation charges mean smaller profits for the producer. Particularly is this true of the products of the soil. The price of grain is determined by the world's visible supply and the producer can sell at that minus the cost of handling and marketing.

In Canada we are almost entirely an agricultural country. In western Canada, it might be said, that we are exclusively so. The progress of the country is simply the progress of agriculture. The cities are merely supply centres for the wants of the settlers. It is this which makes the transportation problem of such moment to us. A few years ago the long land haul of the eastern route was the only one thought of. The getting of competing lines of railway, the building of canals and the improvement of terminals and harbors—anything which would lessen the cost of transportation over this long route—was of vital importance. The advent of the Canadian Northern Railway was welcomed because it meant in time a competing line throughout the west. The building of the Canadian locks at the Soo also marked a milestone, for it meant a stimulus to Canadian shipping. The construction of the Georgian Bay Canal was expectantly looked for since it meant a shorter route to the ocean.

But the scheme from which the west expected the most was the opening of the Hudson's Bay route. This involved the building of a railway from some present railway point to Fort Churchill or Fort Nelson. Only a measure of relief was expected from this as the water part of the route is not navigable for eight or nine months of the year on account of ice. But it meant the shortening of the route to England by about 1,000 miles and the rail part of the route reduced by hundreds of miles. With the report of the engineers entrusted with the survey came the announcement that, by the construction of a series of short canals, vessels could reach Winnipeg by way of the lake of that name; and we look forward to possessing a port practically in the middle of the continent. Any scheme which reduces the land haul even at the increase of the water haul means a decrease in the cost of transportation. The difference between the cost of constructing a ship and a railroad train of equal capacity is not a material one. But the water transportation company has no grading to do, no bridges to build, no mountains to cut through, no expensive track to keep in repair, and if the west can ship a considerable amount of its produce from Winnipeg by water it will be able to compete with the world in everything it produces.

Of late however, the eyes of Alberta have been turned in another direction. We see speedier relief coming to us from another quarter. It will matter little to us so far as getting our produce on the markets of the world is concerned whether the Hudson's Bay railroad is ever built. We have before us today a transportation problem in a paradox, i. e., in order to get our grain eastward to Europe, we will ship it westward. We can considerably reduce the land haul by shipping to Vancouver. From this ocean port near our doors, and open the year round, the route lies down the Pacific to the isthmus of Panama across it by rail, reloading again into the ships and thence to Europe. With all the present disadvantages of this route we can still place our grain on the European markets eight cents per bushel less than by the old route eastward. This saving ought to be considerably increased in the near future. At present we have no terminal facilities for handling grain at Pacific ports. The grain must be shipped in sacks and handled in this cumbersom? manner. It must be unloaded from ship to car to cross the isthmus of Panama, and again from car to ship to go forward to its destination Eventually all of these drawbacks will be overcome. The Panama canal is expected to be completed in about three years. Already the C. P. R. are preparing to build elevators at the Pacific coast. When these improvements are completed our produce west of Moose Jaw, destined for Europe, can find its cheapest outlet by way of the Pacific. This will mean much to the development of Alberta and will make it the premier agricultural province of the Dominion. Henceforth the settler who decides to locate in Saskatchewan or Manitoba, while there is still land available in Alberta, will be pursuing a short-sighted policy. Added to Alberta's climate, there is now her natural advantage of being nearer an ocean port—and a port open the year round.

We shall not be dependent however on the needs of Europe to find a market for our products. The visionary and the statesman (and in the highest type of statesmanship the two are synonymous) sees in the near future a demand for our products from the awakening Orient. Japan has already awoke, and China with her teeming millions is rapidly awakening. With the advance of these in civilization, will come a demand for the products of civilized labor. As the standard of civilization is raised man's needs increase and the Chinaman will ere long cease to subsist on rice, and demand the varied Anglo-Saxon bill of fare. This is the missionary century, and we are going to see during this generation in the Christianizing and civilizing of China a demonstration on a gigantic scale of the proposition that the missionary of the Cross is the greatest trade developer that the world has ever produced. For a long time the princes of trade and of commerce held in scorn the Christ ambassador who talked only of other themes. Now he has learned that these topics have the most intimate bearing on the problems with which he deals. Missions, to the wide awake inhabitant of the twentieth century, are intensely practical. Missionary effort is everywhere the great stimulus of trade; and the civilized world is hopelessly in debt to those who with the vision of the seer sent forth the messenger who has been the means of opening up new avenues of trade.

The Minister of Finance has brought down the annual budget. The real war will now begin between the government and the opposition as to whether or not there is a surplus. The struggle in Turkey is nothing compared with the conflict now precipated at Ottawa.

Will the council be as careful of the citizens' money in connection with the Hillside cemetery question as they have been on the Board of Trade grant?

The Intercolonial Commission

The Edmonton Bulletin speaking editorially gives the following lucid statement on the situation in reference to the Intercolonial railways—Canada's great national asset (?).

"The Intercolonial is to be put under control of a commissioner responsible to the government. The change has the advantage of being a change from a system that has never been satisfactory or successful. Be the reasons what they may, Canada's railway has been a sink-hole for public funds under all governments and in the majority of the years of its existence. A half dozen ministers have tried to make it pay and all of them have failed to get it permanently or even for any notable period on the self sustaining basis. Mr. Emmerson succeeded for a year or so and others claimed success for like brief periods. But the exceptions have only emphasized the fact that they were exceptions.

The Intercolonial is not expected to make money; perhaps it would be a reversal of its purpose in life to try to make it pay dividends; it seems unlikely that located as it is it would be possible to make it produce dividends of any noticeable dimensions. But there is a public feeling that the road should cease to be a perpetual drain on the public funds and should justify its existence by paying the cost of its operation and interest on the money put into it. If the new commision can do this they will have succeeded beyond their predecessors in the management and will have accomplished all that is generally expected of them.

The financial history of the Intercolonial is a commentary on the original error in its location. The purpose of the road was to link the Maritime provinces with "the Canadas" in accord with the pact of Confederation. No doubt the promise of its construction was the final concession that overcame the scruples of the Maritime people against the proposed union. Its business was not so much to open up any new area of country as to give a channel for through commerce between what in those days were eastern and western Canada.

Recalling this purpose, few today

CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA

As is well known, this troublesome complaint arises from over-eating, the use of too much rich food, neglected constipation, lack of exercise, bad air, etc.

The food should be thoroughly chewed, and never bolted or swallowed in haste, stimulants must be avoided and exercise taken if possible.

A remedy which has rarely failed to give prompt relief and affect permanent cures, even in the most obstinate cases, is

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

It acts by regulating and toning the digestive organs, removing costiveness and increasing the appetite and restoring health and vigor to the system.

Mr. Amos Sawlor, Gold River, N.S., writes:—"I was greatly troubled with dyspepsia, and after trying several doctors to no effect I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters and I think it is the best medicine there is for that complaint."

will justify the location of the road. The efficiency of a thorough "system" of communication depends on its length, on its directness. The Intercolonial was not built along the shortest line between its proposed terminals. It was built over the longest route that could be found without making a loop around the peninsula of Gaspe. The failure to add this five hundred miles or so to its length must stand as a radical departure from the general character of its construction.

What might have been expected happened. The demand for cheaper and quicker service induced the construction of the C. P. R. line through the State of Maine and threw on the Intercolonial the option of losing the through traffic or of hauling it six or eight hundred miles farther than the C. P. R. for the same money. The road runs along one of the finest waterways in the world and for half the year must compete with the proverbially cheap water transportation for the way traffic over half its length.

These handicaps have been millstones about the neck of the Intercolonial finances and only the strength of the Dominion has kept the enterprise above water. They are handicaps, too, which neither parliament nor commission can remove and which we must continue too bear with what patience we can command.

From a general survey from the outside the hope of the Intercolonial seems to lie in adapting it to the conditions in which it is placed by reason of the initial error in its location and the development of competing lines. Through traffic it cannot handle save at less money per mile than the C. P. R. short-line collects. The alternative seems to be to turn the Intercolonial into a local railway, to accommodate its facilities and shape its policy mainly to the handling of local business, leaving the through traffic more largely to the roads that can handle it without losing money."

Press Comment.

If doubt lingers in the minds of any of our readers, as to the reality of the Canadian business awakening, we commend to them a glance at the table of building permits in Canadian cities. The expansion in sight is widespread, and the centres in the east, such as Montreal, Toronto, Fort William, Kingston and Halifax, rival Western centres, such as Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Regina, in the haste to get ahead.—Canadian Gazette.

While Britain and Germany are competing in "Dreadnoughts," Canada and the United States are seeing who can carry grain most cheaply to the coast. Montreal captured most of the trade last season, and it is now announced that the United States Trunk lines are cutting their rates so low that the through rate from the west to New York will this spring be less than last year's rate to Montreal. Not to be outdone, the Grand Trunk has made its rate from Georgian Bay points to Montreal four cents per bushel instead of the five cent rate last season. The St. Lawrence has great natural advantages in competing for the eastboard trade, both of Western Canada and the Western States, and her railway companies will not lag behind.—Canadian Gazette.

Hon. W. S. Fielding, in his budget speech, excused the poor financial condition of the country on the ground that the Laurier government had paid hard cash for the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway. The late Conservative government, he pointed out assisted the Canadian Pacific railway with land grants and if the present government had followed the same course the country would have many million dollars more to place on the right side of its ledger.

There might be some force in this far-fetched argument if the Laurier government had assisted the Grand Trunk Pacific railway with cash and preserved the public lands for the settler. The fact is, however, that the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway company got the cash and the politicians got the lands.

The railway promoters and the politicians between them, are IN the cash and the lands, and the country is OUT both. Whatever may be said of the Canadian Pacific Railway company's contract the country was not compelled to make this double sacrifice.

Having regard to the manner in which our public lands have been administered by the Laurier government, Canada would be millions of dollars in pocket if the government in its anxiety to oblige, had satisfied the appetite of the promoters of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway company with lands instead of cash. —Winnipeg Telegram.

Prince Rupert

The long awaited announcement of the sale of the town lots at Prince Rupert has at last been made, following the arrival at Vancouver of E. J. Chamberlain, the new general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific. It has been decided to hold an auction in Vancouver from May 25th to 29th inclusive, and between 2,000 and 2,400 lots will be offered, to be taken from all parts of the townsite. Such an interest has been taken in this matter, that cables announcing the sale have been sent by the Provincial government to England and South Africa. People have been waiting in Prince Rupert for some months, and once the sale is held and lots can be obtained, business will be on a permanent basis in the new terminus. While the first sale will be held in Vancouver, others will probably be held at Victoria and Prince Rupert, but the choicest property will in all likelihood be offered the first time. A reserve price will be put on each lot, and each lot will have an indefeasible title.

Very good terms are given, namely one-quarter cash, the balance in one, two and three years at six per cent. This is different from the railway company's first proposition, which was one-third cash, balance in six, twelve, and eighteen months at eight per cent. The changes may be said to be concessions to circumstances, for during the last few months real estate has been very active in and about Vancouver, with the result that many who might have invested in Prince Rupert have taken up sub-division property here. Had the sale been held earlier the bidding might have been keener, but there may still be this advantage, that the greater values of Vancouver real estate, consequent upon brighter prospects for the future, may have an influence in determing the prices of the lots in Prince Rupert, another terminus with a future before it. An excursion is spoken of to take intending buyers from Victoria and Vancouver some time during next month.

Prince Rupert is situated 550 miles north of Vancouver, and forty miles south of the Alaskan boundary. It is in the same latitude as London, and has a climate whose mean temperature is about the same as that of the matropolis of the British Isles.

In 1905 a grant of 10,000 acres of land was obtained by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company from the Provincial Government of British Columbia, and 14,000 acres of timber reserve land has since been granted making a total of about 24,000 acres for the purpose of the townsite and the development of the port. Under the usual conditions of crown grants, one quarter of the land reverts to the Province, as also one-quarter of the water front, after the townsite has been laid out.

The title to the land acquired in the interests of the railway company has been vested in the Grand Trunk Pacific and Development Company, Limited, a holding company organized for the purpose among other things, for exploiting, developing, and disposing of townsite lands along the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, all of the stock of which is held by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company.

Probably never before has there been so much money and time expended in the planning of a new city as has been devoted to the preliminary work at Prince Rupert, not only by the railway company, but by the Dominion and provincial governments as well. This work was commenced in May 1906.

Upon the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway the fishing industry at Prince Rupert and vicinity, which is now in its infancy, will be one of the greatest in the world, and will furnish employment not only to the railway company and its employees, but to hundreds of fishermen and laborers who must necessarily establish their homes at Prince Rupert. At the present time a large company is arranging to engage in the industry, with headquarters at Prince Rupert.

A license has been granted to establish a whaling industry within a few miles of Prince Rupert, which will be an important industry and feeder to the new city, as it has been found that more whales abound and have been taken in the waters off the coast of British Columbia during the time the whaling stations have been in operation than in any other waters of the world.

The timber industry of this part of the country is also in its infancy, and within a radius of 100 miles much good spruce, hemlock and cedar are to be found. At the present time a larg? steam sawmill, costing $200,000, located at Prince Rupert, and a water-power mill some few miles distant, are supplying the local markets at most reasonable prices. It is safe to say that the forests within this radius will produce timber enough to supply twenty-five mills with all the timber they can cut and market for the next twenty years.

At Swanson Bay, about 100 miles distant, a pulp plant, estimated to cost one million dollars, is partly completed. This industry will employ at least one thousand people, and the business arising, not only in the production, but in the transportation of its manufactures, will largely pass through Prince Rupert.

There are mountain cliffs of copper in the Atlin district, in the northwest corner of British Columbia, so nearly pure copper that it must be taken out by dynamite. Here are also gold, silver, wood and coal, all of which will come in over the Yukon extension, pass by this new Pacific Gateway, and go down to the sea in ships, eventually belonging to the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Another feature in favor of Prince Rupert is the great saving of time effected by the northerly route. The distance from Liverpool to Yokohama by this route is 10,031 miles as against 10,829 miles via New York and San Francisco. Moreover ships sailing from Prince Rupert pass, with a few strokes, from the land-locked harbor to the high seas, and begin their journey across the Pacific 500 miles nearer the East than a ship would be sailing at the same time from another Pacific port.

Mr. E. J. Chamberlin, the newly appointed general manager of the road, has completed a tour of inspection through the country over which the Grand Trunk Pacific will travel. He and a party of eleven officials of the railroad have recently visited Prince Rupert.

"As to the route we will take from Fort George to Vancouver," said Mr Chamberlin, in an interview, "the public may be assured that we will decide on whichever is the shortest and easiest. The Grand Trunk Pacific fully realizes the opportunities this country has to offer, and you may rest assured we will not neglect them. I can not say when the branch line to Vancouver will be completed, but I am sure it will be very soon after the main line is running."

As the road will pass through the most productive belt, directcommunication with Vancouver is a very essential feature, as is also the necessity for elevators, etc., for the handling of that commodity. The road expects to build a series of elevators to the number of 230 along the main line this summer, so as to be ready to ship the fall harvest eastward.—Monetary Times.

The report of the Dominion agent in Calgary shows that at present there are 71,286 homesteads available in Alberta. In this summary of free homesteads it does not include the large area of lands not yet surveyed or opened for entry.

Of the number available one half is in the district at one time considered suitable for ranching only, but during the last few years has shown to be some of the best land for growing winter or spring wheat.

In the Red Deer district there are 4,418 free homesteads available, all well adapted for mixed farming.

In the Edmonton district there are still 25,332 homesteads unapplied for. Most of these are west of Edmonton, and are considered to be good wheat producing lands.

from them. The using of the park by the club appeared to the alderman to be in the nature of misappropriation of public land. It was explained by Mr. Drinnan that three or four years ago permission had been obtained from the council to lay out a portion of the park for tennis courts. A considerable amount of money had been spent in fitting the grounds for the purposes of the club and he thought that the latter were entitled to at least some notice before they were ejected from the park. The council had given substantial assistance to the clubs which played in the baseball park, but the tennis club had never asked for aid. The club was open to all citizens.

Ald. Huckvale took the same view as Mr. Drinnan. The tennis courts were the only place where the young ladies of the city could find healthy recreation. This feature of the question strongly appealed to him. He believed that the council, while encouraging the sports of the healthy young men, should not overlook the healthy young women. He pointed out that the land used for "park purposes," need not necessarily be all sown to grass and trees. Ald. Spencer was also in favor of giving the tennis club every consideration. On his motion seconded by Ald. Morrow, it was decided to allow the use of the grounds for the present season.

A bylaw introduced by Ald. Morrow in regard to the licensing of dogs passed three readings and became law. A considerable increase in the license fee is made. Henceforward the amount will be $3 for dogs, $10 for bitches.

The new building bylaw prepared by the solicitor to consolidate the old bylaws, was given a first and second reading.

The consideration of the board of trade grant was then taken up. Ald. Penhale made a motion to the effect that at the present time the council could not see its way clear to increase the grant, but that if, during the year circumstances should warrant further expenditure, they would take the matter into consideration. Ald. Spencer, while he had no doubt about the duty of the council in the direction of economy, did not think it wise to turn the board of trade down with a small grant. Every other city in Alberta was putting forth efforts to gain publicity and all were granting their boards increased help. Lethbridge had raised the grant to $3,500. One thing about the proposed arrangement which the speaker did not like was its indefinite character. The council might have to deal with additional grants later in the year. While he could not see his way clear to go the whole way in regard to the board's application, he thought $2,000 would be a reasonable figure. He moved an amendment that the the grant be fixed at that amount. Ald. Huckvale thought the previous speaker's plan of a definite sum was the most satisfactory way of dealing with the matter. It would be better than taking chances on further demands being made. Ald Howson expressed the opinion that $1250 was the right figure; a certain amount might be set aside in the estimates for contingencies. If $2,000 were given the board would never be satisfied until they had spent it all. The council would then be blamed by the city for making a large money grant. It was pointed out by Ald. Spencer that the grant of $1200 would be barely sufficient to cover the expenses of the commissioner's salary. He did not think any money placed in the hands of the board of trade would be thrown away. If the council gave them any support at all, they should see them clear. Ald. Morrow seconded Ald. Spencer's amendment, and a vote was then taken, Alds. Spencer, Morrow and Huckvale voting for the amendment, and Alds. Robertson, Howson and McKay against. There being a tie vote, it was "up to" the mayor, who rose to explain his attitude in the matter. While he appreciated the work of the board, he could not see his way to support a $3,000 grant. In Calgary the commissioner was paid $1,500 and provided his own stationery. Brandon was doing away with the commissionership altogether. It was very difficult to see any tangible results of the board's work. Probably a couple of dozen of prominent citizens had supported the council in their previous action and had expressed their approval to the speaker. Taking all these things into consideration the mayor gave his casting vote in favor of Ald Penhale's motion.

Monday the 17th of May was fixed as the day for the sitting of the court of revision in connection with the local improvement assessment.

The matter of the roofing of the grandstand was brought to the notice of the council by Ald. Penhale. The mayor stated that a number of contractors to whom sketches of the works had been shown had refused to tender. As proposed the roof would be unsafe during windy weather. It was advisable to have adequate plans drawn up to submit to the contractors. On Ald. Penhale's motion the chairman of the parks committee was authorized to get out proper plans of the work and place them before the council.

During the course of the discussion on the grandstand plans, the question arose as to whether an architect should be employed or the plans should be drafted in the engineer's office. The mayor thought that the latter course would be satisfactory and pointed out that already $50 a month was being paid for a gas expert who gave assistance to the engineer's department. Ald. Penhale stated his belief that if the gas expert were successful he would save the city in the neighborhood of $1,500 a year. The mayor pointed out out that Ald. Penhale had recently been standing out against increases in the salary list, yet he himself admitted in this instance that an additional outlay of money for a gas expert was in the end the truest economy. It appeared to the Mayor that Ald. Penhale's attitude in regard to economy at a previous meeting was inconsistent with his admission.

In regard to a recent motion of the council granting Mrs. Laidlaw $10 a month for the board of her stepson, Ald. Morrow stated that the boy had been staying for some time with another party. He had only remained with Mrs. Laidlaw for a short time. The original motion was accordingly rescinded.

Of recent weeks the accounts submitted to the finance committee have not been certified correct by the chairmen under whose departments the expenditures have been incurred, and Ald. Spencer thought it desirable to bring about an understanding with the council. Since the appointment of a public works commissioner and other changes in the management of the city's affairs, the system as adopted by last year's council did not appear workable, and the alderman wished to know whether the authorization of the chairmen of the various commitees was now necessary. On the Mayor's suggestion the matter was left in the hands of the finance committee who will bring in a report at the next regular meeting.

Until some understanding is arrived at Ald Spencer refused to recommend payment of accounts.

The council went on to consider the question of water pipe for the year's extensions. Ald. Spencer thought wooden pipe out of the question. The very best pipe that could be obtained, should be used in the water system and only iron pipe was satisfactory. Mr. Fatt pointed out that the amount of the debentures was too low to cover the cost of iron pipe. There appeared to be great divergence of opinion as to the relative merits of wooden and iron pipe, Ald. Spencer contending for the latter to the end of the discussion. The engineer it appeared, was satisfied that wooden pipe will fill the bill.

A motion was eventually carried to take the committees report from the table, and adopt their recommendation that wooden pipe be used.

The matter of the tenders for hydrants was referred to the water committee and the mayor with power to act.

Ald. Howson brought in a recommendation that the account of Chas. Whitson, for digging a water ditch in the spring of last year be paid. Mr. Whitson's account had been O. K'd by Mr. Porter. The recommendation was adopted and payment of the amount ($15) authorized.

The council then went on to consider the estimates for the year.

The estimate for parks was placed at $1,600, for markets $450, or a total for parks and markets of $2,050.

The estimate of $1,200 for work on the nuisance ground, was cut down to $600 on motion of Ald. Howson.

A discussion took place on the grant to Mrs Chapman, it being eventually decided to cut this out altogether, one month's notice being first given. The estimate for relief was then cut down from $1,000 to $750. The total for health and relief is $5,820.

At half past eleven the council adjourned.

Many Women Suffer Untold Agony From Kidney Trouble.

Very often they think it is from so-called "female disease." There is less "female trouble" than they think.

Women suffer from backache, sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability and a dragging down feeling in the loins. So do men, and they do not have "female trouble."

Why, then, blame all your trouble to "female disease"?

Most of the so-called "female disorders" are no more or less than "kidney disorders," and can be easily and quickly cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. C. Dupuis, Belleview Village, N.B., writes: "I was unable to do my housework for two years on account of backache. I could not get up the stairs. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me permanently after doctors failed to even relieve the pain. I can highly recommend them to all sufferers from kidney trouble."

Prevention of Consumption

The ninth annual meeting and convention of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Consumption and other forms of tuberculosis is to be held in Hamilton on Wednesday and Thursday, May 19 and 20 next.

The morning of the first day will be devoted to the reading of reports and the appointment of committees. In the afternoon Dr. White of Pittsburg sanatorium will deliver an address of welcome, after which Dr. Adami of Montreal will speak on a subject which ought to command attention, "How One Can Do Most Good in Arresting Tuberculosis and the Smallest Outlay."

The topic set down for general discussion during the afternoon of Thursday is "The Duty of the People Toward the movement for the Extinction of Consumption." Hon. A. Beck, Mr. Downey, M.P.P., Dr. Fagan of Victoria, B. C., Dr. Geo. D. Porter and a number of others, both physicians and laymen are expected to take part in the discussion of this subject.

On Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock the meeting will adjourn to the Mountain sanatorium to attend a reception given by the ladies of Hamilton. Not the least uninteresting part of the program is the visit to the sanatorium, when it will be seen how much can be done for the treatment and cure of consumption at a moderate cost. The success of the Mountain sanatorium should furnish an object lesson well worthy of the study of municipalities contemplating action for the reduction of tuberculosis within their own neighborhood.

PROGRESSIVE CONSTRUCTION CAMPAIGN OF G. T. P. RAILWAY

Winnipeg, Man., April 26...No time will be lost in constructing the branch line projected by the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, according to the statement made here by Edson J. Chamberlain, general manager of the company.

Between Winnipeg and the Pacific coast there remains but 260 miles of the main line to be put under contract and a portion of this will be let before the end of the year. Mr. Chamberlain is confident that trains will be running between Edmonton and the Great Lakes in time to assist in handling the crop of 1909 despite all press reports to the contrary and work will be rushed westward from Edmonton.

Active construction will be started within a few weeks on the branch line to run northwards from Melville, Sask., and the other from that town south to Regina and the international boundary and Mr. Chamberlain states a portion of the steel is to be laid this year. He also said the company has decided to build a branch line northwesterly from Melville to Prince Albert and surveys for this line are now being made. This line, it is expected, will eventually be extended from Prince Albert in a northwesterly direction, tapping the vast mineral resources of the far north and Peace River country. This will give five lines radiating out of Melville before the beginning of 1910.

Mr. Chamberlain stated that fully $10,000,000 will be spent on the actual construction by the company in western Canada this year, and every effort will be made to get as much mileage in operation this year as possible owing to the influx of American settlers requiring railroads, and the active competition of the other railroad systems now building in western Canada.

By The Fireside

"I dreamed there would be Spring no more,
That nature's ancient power was lost;
The streets were black with smoke and frost,
They chattered trifles at the door."

The saddest picture that presents itself to the mind of the sorrowing poet is a world without spring and all its accompaniments of new throbbing life and freshness. A world without Spring! Yes, it almost seemed when Easter Sunday dawned cold and frosty and those astounding wonders of the milliner's creation were laid reluctantly back in their boxes, when the succeeding days had been more or less a repetition of that one and the dumb fretful pleading of that most exquisite spring gown or that stupenduously graceful bonnet moved hard man to sympathy and anxious woman to tears—it seemed, indeed that the poet's dream had come true "that nature's ancient power was lost."

But lo! It was early this morning I heard a strange and yet familiar sound that set the heart throbbing with new life and ushered the vision of the long desire, the piping of a robin! So Spring has come. And yet when I look about I wonder if after all it really has. The same old brown desolate hills meet the blue horizon in the distance. It is true that the waters of the river are racing past its banks again free—but no singing gurgling streams are trickling down those banks to greet it—no "mist of green," that speaks the budding leaf in the forest, on these bare plains, pitiably bare, beneath the same unclouded sky so blue and bright with the glare of a sun that reigns alone up there. Winter and summer he rides his chariot across the blue dome alone. I sometimes wonder, dreaming, if he does not long for the company of those little fleecy clouds that we have seen trailing along like sheep going out to feed "in the infinite meadows of heaven," or if he ever gets tired of gazing on those big brown sunny plains, on those great racing rivers and their high rugged banks.

To those of us who have known the springtime of the East when all nature throbs with the bursting of winter's bonds, the flowers, the trees, the grass and the birds, throbbing with new life, there comes a sense of a great loss. We are impressed with the fact of the lack of a distinct change, a new season. It seems, rather, merely a passing from the cold of winter to the heat of summer change more in temperature than in the appearance of nature. We shiver in the evening and long for the spring—in the morning we wake and find the summer is here.

Now I suppose that some cynical person will glance over these rambling lines and enjoy a quiet little chuckle, anticipating the so-called "usual Spring effusion" at the close. It would only be just to insert right here one of the most effusive of these, and yet that would be giving him too much malicious pleasure and so I refrain.

I glance through the masterpieces of our master poets, Tennyson, Shelley Wordsworth, Keats, Swinbourne and others, and I find as you, perhaps, already know, the "spring effusion" and they are not ridiculous or laughable; they are the deep soulful expression of the emotions that a man must feel in common with all nature—at least that man who knows and loves God's world of flowers and get away somewhere—anywhere—I suppose it is common to many.

"I hear the whispering voice of Spring
The thrushes trill, the cat-bird's cry,
Like some poor bird with crisoned wing
That sits and sings but longs to fly.

Oh for one spot of living green—
One little spot where leaves can grow—
Where unblamed, to walk unseen,
To dream above, to sleep below!"

CIVIL CASES

Semi-Ready vs. A. C. Hawthorne—This action was brought to recover the sum of $1100, balance due on a consignment of goods shipped by the Semi-Ready Co., of Montreal, to the defendant. Mr. Hawthorne refused to accept the goods on the ground that they arrived too late for the spring trade. The plaintiffs sought to recover the full purchase price. In defence it was pleaded that the Semi-Ready Ltd., were a foreign firm carrying on business in Alberta without being registered in the province under the provisions of the Companies act, and that that in consequence the plaintiff had no legal status to sue in Alberta courts. The plaintiff contitled to the protection afforded by taking orders through its travellers only and that therefore they were entitled to the protection afforded by Subsection 3 of Section 3 of the Foreign Companies' act. His Lordship, however held that the company was a foreign one and should be registered under the act. The provisions of Subsection 3 did not therefore apply to this case. The action was dismissed with costs. D. G. White appeared for the plaintiff, W. A. Begg for defendant.

W. P. Tierney vs. J. J. Lait—In this action W. P. Tierney of Nelson, B. C., sued the defendant on an assignment of agreement of sale of what is known as the Walton quarter section. The plaintiff applied for leave to amend his pleadings by adding the vendor of the property as a co-plaintiff and allowing the defendant to amend his defence accordingly. The application was granted and the case adjourned until the next sitting of the court. D. G. White appeared for the plaintiff, W. A. Begg and O. H. Kealy for the defendant.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT

A settlement which will be of great interest to farmers and ranchers was mad? last week between L. H. Pruitt of this city and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

In August of 1907 Mr. McMullen, general livestock agent of the C. P. R. went to Mr Pruitt and asked him if he would ship his cattle via the C. P. R. instead of the G. N. R. as he had been in the habit of doing. After he had been waited on several times Mr. Pruitt consented on certain terms to accept the proposal. He arranged to go to his ranch and count his cattle and afterwards to let Mr. McMullen know how many head he had to ship and when he intended to ship them. In September the rancher wrote asking for 30 cars to be supplied on the 23rd of October and 30 cars on the 24th. The livestock agent wrote in reply that the cars would be on hand as ordered.

When Mr. Pruitt brought his cattle up for shipment, however, on the night of the 22nd October, he received a wire from Mr. McMullen to the effect the cars could not be supplied. After some further negotiations, Mr. McMullen definitely refused to supply the cars, and Mr. Pruitt was compelled to ship his cattle via Chinook, Montana.

Mr. Pruitt claimed damages for having to drive the cattle across country for depreciation in their weight, and for other damage. In the ordinary course of things the case should have been tried last week before Mr. Justice Harvey, with a jury, but the parties got together and effected a settlement whereby the company pay Mr. Pruitt the sum of $1,250 in full for all damages together with all the costs of the action. The counsel for the plaintiff was J. J. Mahaffy, R. B. Bennett, K. C., and M. B. Peacock of Calgary acted on behalf of the defendant.

Medicine Hat Winter Wheat

Prospects Good in This District

Considerable anxiety has been been felt as to the condition of winter wheat in this district. The weather for the past six weeks has been a continual punishment for the crop, but it looks as if the wheat has come out of the severe test, a winner. Out from the dead and withered leaves the fresh green shoots are coming thick and fast, showing that the plant has still plenty of vitality in its rootlets. It is very gratifying to know that the first crop of winter-wheat raised in Medicine Hat will undoubtedly be the best in Southern Alberta as no other district made so good a showing last fall or can do so this spring. M. A. Zahnizer has a field of wheat now showing beautifully green and on Dr. Barrington's farm just west of Mr. Zahnizer's there is a large field that shows the "ear marks" of a good crop. Mr. Frank Letterer of Seven Persons reports his crop in good condition and when all the returns are in it will almost certainly be shown that Medicine Hat leads Southern Alberta in winter wheat crops of 1909.

From all accounts the condition of the alfalfa crop is very promising. All the plants seem to have come through the winter in good shape.

Seeding is practically completed and much of the spring grain is showing above ground. The soil is in excellent condition and most of the moisture from last October's heavy rain and snowfall is still in the ground.

Yesterday The Times saw a number of rootlets of winter wheat which had been frozen down and were apparently lifeless. The warm sunshine of the past few days caused them to take on new life. The greater part of the winter wheat is in a similar condition and the prospects throughout the whole district are excellent.

VALUABLE PROPERTY LOST

There is a rumor current in the city that a valuable antelope head has journeyed from its usual position in one of the offices of the City Hall. The police do not seem to be able to throw any light on its mysterious disappearance, and despite a personal interest which some of them take in the affair, the solution of the mystery seems somewhat remote. An anxious look is noticeable on the chief's countenance these days, and it is said that he is very much concerned about the return of the head to the owner.

Mock Parliament

BUSINESS OF SESSION WOUND UP

On Thursday evening in the Mock Parliament the remaining government business was disposed of, and an eventful session was brought to a close. The greater part of the evening was spent in an informal discussion and the house decided to constitute a city council from among its members and to hold a meeting for the discussion of civic affairs in the near future. A committee consisting of Messrs Pratt, Brown, McClellan, Henderson and Smith was appointed to arrange details.

During the course of a discussion on the work of the past session the premier (Mr. Bryenton) expressed his sense of the personal benefits received through the experiences of the Parliamentary term, and in this he felt he voiced the sentiments of all who have taken part in the season's debates. It was interesting to note he said that almost every subject brought up by the two parties between whom the legislative duties of the session had been divided was now an issue in the practical politics of the Dominion.

The leader of the opposition (Mr. Sansom) said he had found extreme pleasure in the work of the session. The evenings he had spent in the mock parliament were among the pleasantest he had known during the winter season. He hoped to see the institution carried on next winter and to be enabled himself to take part in the proceedings.

In seconding the motion Mr. Farrell laid emphasis on the personal value of these debates. The men who took part in the discussions themselves received the greatest benefit. Many men who were helping the world to day, many men who were a power for good in national and civic life, had received their training in just such a manner as the young men who had taken part in the debates of the past winter.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Speaker (Mr. John Benson) for the efficient way in which he has presided over the business of the parliament was moved by Mr. P. R. Bryenton, who expressed in a few well chosen words the feelings of the house. The mover had learnt much in the way of partiamentary procedure from Mr. Benson, who had, both in and out of the house, shown great interest in the work of the session.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Sansom and supported by Mr. Farrell and carried with enthusiasm. Responding, Mr. Benson spoke of the pleasure which he had derived from being in a position to help the young men of the city.

Mock Parliament

BUSINESS OF SESSION WOUND UP

On Thursday evening in the Mock Parliament the remaining government business was disposed of, and an eventful session was brought to a close. The greater part of the evening was spent in an informal discussion and the house decided to constitute a city council from among its members and to hold a meeting for the discussion of civic affairs in the near future. A committee consisting of Messrs Pratt, Brown, McClellan, Henderson and Smith was appointed to arrange details.

During the course of a discussion on the work of the past session the premier (Mr. Bryenton) expressed his sense of the personal benefits received through the experiences of the Parliamentary term, and in this he felt he voiced the sentiments of all who have taken part in the season's debates. It was interesting to note he said that almost every subject brought up by the two parties between whom the legislative duties of the session had been divided, was now an issue in the practical politics of the Dominion.

The leader of the opposition (Mr. Sansom) said he had found extreme pleasure in the work of the session. The evenings he had spent in the mock parliament were among the pleasantest he had known during the winter season. He hoped to see the institution carried on next winter and to be enabled himself to take part in the proceedings.

In seconding the motion Mr. Farrell laid emphasis on the personal value of these debates. The men who took part in the discussions themselves received the greatest benefit. Many men who were helping the world to day, many men who were a power for good in national and civic life, had received their training in just such a manner as the young men who had taken part in the debates of the past winter.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Speaker (Mr. John Benson) for the efficient way in which he has presided over the business of the parliament was moved by Mr. P. R. The mover had learnt much in the way of partiamentary procedure from Mr. Benson, who had, both in and out of the house, shown great interest in the work of the session.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Sansom and supported by Mr. Farrell and carried with enthusiasm. Responding, Mr. Benson spoke of the pleasure which he had derived from being in a position to help the young men of the city.

A vote of thanks to the press for their reports was also carried on motion of Messrs Bryenton and Brown. To this Mr. Smith briefly responded.

During the period in which the house sat for regular business the two resolutions remaining on the government programme were carried. Without further discussion a division was made on the resolution calling for the construction of a Georgian Bay canal which passed by a very narrow majority. Mr. Chas. Pratt (Secretary of State) then introduced a resolution dealing with the Empire cable question. It was proposed that a copy of the resolution should be sent to Great Britain and each of the colonies, urging the necessity of establishing under the various governments a system of cables to be operated at nominal cost to the public, Canada offering to bear her full proportion of the expense incurred. The resolution also contained an expression of opinion as to the desirability of forming an Imperial Intelligence Department for the dissemination of news. Mr. Pratt likened the peoples of the British nations to a large family scattered to all corners of the world, who could only keep in touch with one another's lives through the medium of correspondence. Unless by this means the bonds of family friendship were continually strengthened, and a community of interests and of ideals maintained, the great daughter nations must inevitably drift further and further apart and the wreck of the Empire was in sight. The resolution was seconded by Mr. Bryenton, who pointed out that no loyal member of the house could vote against it. Mr. Sansom from his place on the opposition benches gave general support of the principle involved. He was fully in sympathy with the government's proposal, he did not, however, think it went far enough. Ocean cables would soon be superceded by wireless systems and it was unfortunate that the government were so far behind the times as not to have realized this. He therefore moved as an amendment that the resolution be made to refer to a wireless service. The amendment being lost, the government resolution was carried by an unanimous vote of the house.

The private bill for the incorporation of "The Aerial Transportation

CHARLES F. ROLLAND

Co. of Canada" was withdrawn, to be re-introduced when the promoters have completed a series of exhaustive experiments in aeroplane construction and the science of aviation.

At half-past ten the speaker declared the house prorogued.

Debate on Friday Evening

A keen contest is anticipated in the debate between the Y. M. C.'s of Lethbridge and this city to be held in the city hall on Friday evening. There representatives of the Lethbridge institution will meet Messrs. Sansom, Bryenton and Ware, of the Mock Parliament, to debate the following resolution:

...

"That it would be more conducive to the best interests of the British Empire for Canada to proceed at once to create a navy of her own for the purpose of co-operating with the British Navy in Imperial defence, than for Canada to contribute annually toward the support of an Imperial navy through an Imperial council in which she would have due representation, and within whose jurisdiction would come its entire management and control.

The negative side will be taken by this city.

Three judges have been appointed—Mr. O. D. Austin of the Lethbridge Herald, Mr. John Benson and Mr. C. J. Wilson who has been chosen by the first named.

At the close of the debate a light supper will be served to the guests and Mock Parliament members by the King's Helpers of the Methodist church.

Mrs. Geo. Howson, 512 Main St., will receive on the first Thursday in May for the last time this season.

J. F. Mitchell of the Winnipeg Printing and Engraving Company, publishers of Western Canada's excellent labor paper "The Voice," was one of the Winnipeg Exposition delegates.

Council Discuss Sewer Pipe Company's Demands

Market Debentures Fetch Good Figure

At the regular meeting of the council held in the city hall last evening the chair was taken by the acting mayor, Ald. Spencer, Mayor Milne being absent from the city. Alds. Robertson, Huckvale, Morrow, McKay and Howson were also present.

The secretary-treasurer announced that O'Hara and Co., the purchasers of the two blocks of debentures last sold had offered $10,049.05 for the issue of market debentures ($10,000) and that this offer had been accepted by the finance committee. The action of the committee was endorsed.

A communication from Henderson & Co. in regard to a portion of their account with the city gave rise to a question by Ald. Morrow, who thought that the total cost of the special audit was much higher than the council had been led to believe would be the case. The mayor had said that the audit would cost $500 and the books $500, making a total of $1,000. But now it was found that the audit itself would cost $1,049.05, to which must be added the cost of the books, $246. It seemed to Ald. Morrow that Messrs Henderson & Co got a commission for ordering the city's books; the city should call for tenders for its own books.

Ald. Spencer said he was unable to speak for the mayor. He had, however, stated on several occasions that the audit and the new books would cost in the neighborhood of $1,500.

A communication from D. G. White in behalf of his client Warren Overpack was then read. In this letter it was stated that the Industrial Place site, in its present state, had been found impracticable for the purposes of the Alberta Clay Products Co. A level area of at least 500 by 160 yards was required. To prove this it was only necessary to excavate the earth already in Industrial Place. If the city would undertake the work of levelling, the site could still be used—the necessary work to be done to Mr. Overpack's satisfaction. The gift by the city of Blocks 20, 21 and 22 and Block C in addition to Blocks A and B was also required or alternatively, the providing of another site covering about 40 acres. If these conditions were fulfilled the company would guarantee to commence construction by August 1st of this year. If not, they would be unable to carry out their project in this city.

Ald. Huckvale thought it desirable to leave the matter to a special committee, acting with the board of trade, who should report back to the council. It seemed remarkable to Ald. Howson that after the city had spent money in voting on the original proposition, to which Mr. Overpack was quite agreeable last winter, Mr. Overpack should now come along and want the whole business repeated. Ald. Morrow was opposed to granting the company more concessions. They had put the city to the expense of the bylaws for gas well, etc., and it was for them to come through with something, to actually do something, before the city went any further. Ald. Spencer was of the opinion that both Mr. Overpack and Mr. Newell acted in good faith in regard to the original contract. There could be no question that the property was, in its present shape, unsuitable for the erection of a plant. It would be well to give the company's proposals consideration, even though the granting of their requests was most improbable. After some further discussion a motion was carried accordance with Ald. Huckvale's suggestion and Alds. Howson and Huckvale were appointed to discuss the matter with a committee of the board of trade.

The license and police committee recommended that the application for increases in salary recently received be not considered; that a bylaw for the regulation of the police department be drawn up.

Ald. Spencer brought in a recommendation of the finance committee that a committee of two members of the council be appointed to sign all bills for supplies before they are passed by the finance committee. The idea, as explained by Ald. Spencer and Ald. Morrow is that the heads of the various departments shall each week submit their wants to the storekeeper tha latter then being required to obtain the authorization of the committee before bills are incurred. Ald. Morrow said he had understood that Mr. Shepherd was to have been the purchasing agent. If he were not, why was he appointed at a salary of $35 a month to do work which he had been doing right along for $5 a week? If this committee were appointed the committee should bring in a recommendation to rescind the bylaw appointing Mr. Shepherd. Mr. Fatt stated that under the more complete system of storekeeping now adopted Mr. Shepherd's work was greatly increased. The advertisement had called for storekeeper only—not for purchasing agent. At the conclusion of a somewhat protracted discussion on this matter, brought up by Ald. Spencer, it was decided to wait until the mayor's return before taking action. The committee appointed to go into the matter of the Roseries recommended that in the event of the land being sold to the new directors (who will be given the site at the old price) they be required to guarantee to keep running for 5 years, to install a steam heating plant, and to pay principal in arrears and interest at 8 per cent. The report was adopted.

Anent the suggestion of Ald Penhale that money should be borrowed from the markets fund for park improvements, the solicitor reported that in his opinion such a course would not be legal.

Payment was authorized of C. P. R. accounts for survey work in connection with the projected spur track to the canneries and to Industrial Place. The amounts were $61.60 and $7.50.

Fire, water and light committee reported that hose will be provided for a fire sub-station near the Milling Co's premises. A recommendation in regard to the replacing of one of the fire teams was referred back to the committee for action.

Finance committee reported that the Canadian Brick Co's gas account should be left in the hands of the solicitor for collection. Mr. Mahaffy stated in regard to this that the company were perfectly willing to pay but were not in a position to do so at the present time.

Ald. Penhale gave notice of introduction of a bylaw to amend the water rates.

Ald. Morrow gave notice of introduction of a bylaw to regulate the police department.

In regard to the present state of the city's water Ald. Huckvale said that the filter plant is in good condition. Owing to a difficulty in the power house it was impossible at present to pump sufficient water into the filters. The trouble would probably be overcome in a short time.

The C. P. R. superintendent has recently asked the solicitor for information in regard to closing of streets in connection with the construction of the spur track to Industrial Place. Ald. Howson thought that as the debentures for the spur track construction are not legal (according to the Dominion Securities Co's solicitor) the city could not be compelled to build the spur line. On Ald. Howson's motion the solicitor was instructed to write to the superintendent that the matter is in abevance.

Nominations for alderman for Ward IV take place on the 12th inst; the election will be on Wednesday the 19th inst.

The Mr. Grant's account for the balance of his contract and for 8 inch drive pipe, was referred to gas and finance committees with power to act.

Tenders for a team for street sprinkling wagon will be received up till next Monday evening when the council meets in adjourned session. In the meantime a team will be engaged by the committee of public works.

SCHOOL BYELAW CARRIES By LARGE MAJORITY

The bylaw to authorize the raising of $50,000 by debentures for the new public school was carried on Tuesday last by 119 votes to 82.

STORE EXTENSION

An addition to the rear of G. W. Elliott's jewelry store has just been completed. This will be used as a workshop and will considerably increase the store accommodation.

No changes have been made in the arrival and departure of trains from Medicine Hat under the new time-table of the C. P. R. which came into effect yesterday. East-bound Spokane flyer now leaves Coleridge at 6.15 a.m. and the west-bound leaves Coleridge at 1.30 a.m. These are the only charges affecting Medicine Hat.

The Medicine Hat Lumber and Manufacturing Co. planing mill has been bought by J. H. Prestan who has taken over the business and is making several additions to the plant. A new dry kiln and warehouse and lumber and moulding sheds are being added. Mr. Preston is now prepared to handle wholesale as well as retail trade in his lires.

St. John's Church was filled with Sunday school scholars, officers and teachers on Sunday afternoon when Mr. H. F. Kenny, the newly appointed secretary for Alberta addressed a mass meeting of all interested in Sunday school work. The chair was occupied by Rev. A. C. Farrell, president of the Medicine Hat Count Association. After singing a hymn, Rev. E. Cox Clarke led in prayer. Mr. Kenny on being introduced by the chairman referred to the bond of unity which was evidenced by the various denominations represented at the meeting. He used a lead pencil as a basis of an object lesson which he wished to teach. It consists of lead and wood, the former on the inside. This represents the heart and the body of an individual. Sometimes the wood is crooked and such pencils are not desirable. Take good care of the body and make it straight and strong. We choose a pencil in which the lead is not too hard. We do not want people with hard hearts. It is the lead of the pencil that makes the mark. So it is the inner life that counts. Some wood had to be cut away to make the pencil of use. We must cut some things from our lives—selfishness, meanness, etc. The pencil has on it the name of the maker. So should the man bear the image of the divine.

On Monday evening Mr. Kenny conducted a Round Table Conference in the same church, which was attended by a large number of Sunday school workers.

The meeting was opened by song and prayer by Rev. Morrow. Mr. Kenny took charge of the conference and endeavored to answer the questions asked relative to Sunday school work, proving himself adept in his line and well qualified for his position as Provincial Secretary.

Some of the main points brought out for good Sunday school work are as follows—obedience of children, Bible study and child study on the part of teachers, use of the Bible by the scholars, and a use of common sense in all the work keeping in mind the aim to Make Christians. Two points of special prominence were that in the work 10 per cent should be method and 90 per cent individuality also that the teachers must "Make the Bible Live."

Rev. Farrell followed the discussion with words of appreciation of the work of Mr. Kenny and Rev. Clark closed with prayer.

SUB-CONTRACTS LET TO LOCAL MEN

Sub-contracts for the last section of the work of the first division of the Southern Alberta Land Company's irrigation ditch have been secured by MacHigdon and Harry Kerr. Thirty teams will be employed on the work. The sub-contracts were let by McArthur Bros., who secured the contract for the whole of the excavation.

Board of Trade

The regular monthly meeting of the board of trade was held last evening in the court room of the city hall. President Stewart occupied the chair. After the adopeion of the minutes of last meeting, the secretary-treasurer presented the financial statement. The president referred to telephone connection between here and Seven Persons and stated that an effort had been made to get construction started from this end, but had been told that it would begin at four or five points simultaneously. The question of the delay of country merchants receiving goods purchased in Medicine Hat was the subject of considerable discussion. It was moved by C. S. Pingle, seconded by O. W. Kealy that the president appoint a committee to interview Supt. Macharg on the question, and endeavor to secure a more satisfactory service. The president appointed Messrs Bell, Forster and Hopper on the committee.

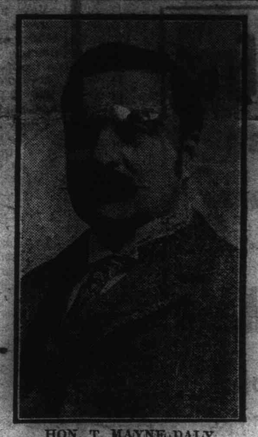
On motion of O. W. Kealy and S. T. Hopper the question of better postal service on the Crow's Nest line was referred to the council of the board of trade for action. On motion of Messrs Hopper and Cochrane the $25 fee to the Associated Boards of Trade was ordered to be paid. The president drew attention to the fact that at the next regular meeting the board would be called upon to appoint delegates to the convention of the Associated Boards.

Considerable time was occupied in an animated discussion on the need of Medicine Hat for an immigration shed. Messrs Cochrane and Bell holding different views on the erection. It was finally decided that the secretary be instructed to write J. Bruce Walker Commissioner of immigration setting forth our needs. Another matter of discussion was the finishing of the new post office. There was unanimity of opinion that the government was lax in the matter; and that if anything could be done to hasten its completion, it ought to be done. It was finally moved by Messrs Kealy and Pingle that the secretary write to the minister of Public works asking that an inspector be sent to look into the whole question. The meeting then adjourned.

If there were no other indications of the arrival of spring the color of the drinking water is ample proof.

Mr. H. K. Knowles arrived in the city last week from England.

Mrs. C. E. Mansfield, 606 Montreal Street, will receive on Wednesday, May 5th, and not again this season.



Winnipeg Visitors Invade the City

Seventy Arrived on Sunday Afternoon

A large party of visitors, composed principally of Manitoba business men, arrived in the city at 17:55 by special train on Sunday afternoon. The party is touring the west in the interests of the proposed Canadian Exposition and Selkirk Centennial to be held in 1912. They hold public meetings at all important centres with a view to awakening interest and securing co-operation in the great enterprise which will undoubtedly mean much to western Canada. Thus far the following places have been visited, and meetings held in the largest of them: Portage la Prairie, Carberry, Brandon and Virden in Manitoba; Moosomin, Broadview, Wolseley, Indian Head, Qu'Appelle, Regina, Moose Jaw, Swift Current and Maple Creek in Saskatchewan. The Alberta towns begin here, thence by way of the Crow's Nest line to Lethbridge, then by way of L. M. and C., to Calgary calling at Macleod, Claresholm and High River en route. From there the itinerary planned is north to Edmonton, then C. N. R. to Battleford, Saskatoon and Prince Albert; but it is possible that the plans may be altered and the party go through to the coast.

The advance agent of the party, Mr. Chas. F. Roland and Geo. M. Hall arrived here on Sunday as a result of their visit to Calgary where a public meeting was held in the City Hall yesterday morning at 10.30.

The observance of the Lord's Day was not lost sight of by the travelling party. They attended morning service at the various churches in Swift Current where the delegates made a break in their trip. In the evening Medicine Hat churches were favored by their presence and two of the visitors, W. Sanford Evans, Mayor of Winnipeg, and Hon. T. Mayne Daly, Police Magistrate, of the same place addressed a meeting of the Young Men's Club after the evening services. The former gave an inspiring address on national ideals taking as key-note Kipling's lines:

"The strength of the wolf is the pack,
And the strength of the pack is the wolf"

From this he showed the interaction and reaction of the individual and the nation. Mr. Daly drew some interesting and profitable lessons from his experiences in the juvenile courts of Manitoba—the only province by the way so far, to establish a juvenile court.

Monday's morning's meeting in the City Hall was a most enthusiastic affair. The citizens turned out in sufficient numbers to fill the hall, despite the unfavorable hour at which the meeting was held. The chair was occupied by Mayor Milne and on the platform with him were Mayor Evans R. M. Dennistoun and Magistrate T. M. Daly of Winnipeg, F. J. Bole, M. P.P., of Regina, Mayor Hopkins and Thos. Miller of Moose Jaw.

In his opening remarks the mayor stated that he considered this the most influential delegation which had ever visited Western Canada. He considered that while the delegation had stopped at some larger places, they had not stopped at any which have any greater interest in the development of the West than we have. Since the proposition to be placed before the meeting came from successful men he looked for Medicine Hat to endorse it.

Mayor Evans of Winnipeg was the opening speaker for the delegation. He thanked the citizens for the enthusiastic welcome which had been given them and complimented Medicine Hat on its climate. He then proceeded to explain the object of the trip. The proposed exposition is to be a national project, but particularly concerns the West. It was first suggested by the great naturalist, Ernest Seton Thompson, in an address before the Canadian Club of Winnipeg. His suggestion was to celebrate the centennial of the arrival of the Selkirk settlers of 1812. The idea grew into the exposition project. A study had been already made of former expositions. Delegations who were sceptical of the proposition were sent to Portland and St. Louis to enquire into their propositions, and had returned enthusiastic for ones. In Portland it was that the city had developed 240 per cent and the surrounding country had been developed 150 per cent. At St. Louis where the exposition was not a financial success, the benefit resulting to that part of the country were unquestioned. Winnipeg, nor Manitoba could conduct an exposition alone. Western Canada might, to make it an assured success. The but it needed the whole of Canada idea is to demonstrate what Canada can do. The Secretary of the Portland expositon who had travelled through Western Canada declared that we have what the world wants—land, and we should ask the world to come and see. The most serious problem in the west is that of financing the development. We must find new sources of capital. To do this we must demonstrate what the land can do and the capital will come. The delegation wanted support from Medicine Hat and after the various places had endorsed the proposition, thedelegation will approach the Dominion Government. They also wanted support in arranging for the exposition and suggested that a local committee be appointed to see that exhibits are sent.

F. J. Bole of Regina was the next speaker. He remembered the time when Saskatchewan shipped only a few thousand bushels of wheat. Now she ships more than Manitoba, but the present development of the west is only a garden patch on the prairie. We did not consider that the exposition would benefit Winnipeg alone, but all Canada. The various governments want to know what the people say about it before they act.

Thos. Miller, president of the Moose Jaw Board of Trade, wanted to lend his support to the proposition. Moose Jaw wanted it. It was a proposition which does not need defending, only understanding. We must not depend on Providence, for it will not do for us what we can do for ourselves. The holding of such an exposition will give us a national awakening.

R. M. Dennistoun of Winnipeg in an eloquent address traced the various steps in the development of a country and showed that now is the time when we must advertise ourselves. Japan had done this in her conflict with Russia. Germany in doing it in challenging Britain's supremacy of the sea. He did not want Canada to advertise that way, but she must advertise herself. There is another aspect also to the proposition. We want to thank the pioneers who have opened up the country and the settlement for the van in this.

Hon. T. M. Daly also delivered a very eloquent address showing that the various provinces have to contribute to such an exposition. The various states which have exhibits at Seattle have already endorsed the proposition and it will be a good advertisement for Canada throughout the U. S.

After the delegation had finished their address, speeches in favor of endorsing the proposition were made by A. Patterson, F. G. Forster, C. S. Pingle and Ald. Spencer. A motion was unanimously carried endorsing the action taken by the delegation and assuring them that we will do all in our power to assist them. The president of the Cypress Club extended an invitation to the delegation to visit its rooms. The meeting ended with the singing of "The Maple Leaf Forever."

COLD STORAGE

Work on the cold storage extension to Robt. Mitchell's store has been commenced by the contractor, H. D. Bentley. The new building, which is in the form of an addition to the rear of the store on Toronto St., will be 17 by 25, and one storey in height, with basement. The ammonia system will be adopted and valuable machinery will be required. The total cost of the extension with plant installed will be in the neighborhood of $6,000.

The Sewer Pipe Company

In last week's issue it was announced that Messrs. Overpack and Long of the Alberta Clay Products Co. had come into the city. Mr. Long is representing the financial interests behind the concern and his visit was undertaken for the purpose of looking over the whole scheme so that he may advise his friends as to the feasibility of the proposition. It has been decided that the plant will be larger than was originally intended, in order that continuous employment may be given to the men. The company now purpose to go into the baking of brick, hollow brick and copings, as well as of sewer pipe.

Mr. Long has not been very favorably impressed with the location as previously chosen, on account of the difficulty which he considers may be experienced in reaching the plant by the short route in the event of material being required for construct on purposes in the city. His idea is that heavy construction will probably be on the hill in the future and he is anxious in consequence to have his plant on the hill where all the city's interests could be served to the best advantage. On going over the ground with a view to finding access to the bench land the carrying out of Mr Long's idea was found to be feasible, but it would of course require an additional mile of railway track. It is thought that a first rate level site can be secured for the location of the sewer pipe plant, at a very reasonable price.

ATHLETICS

While Calgary has been snowed under and Lethbridge has been celebrating a return of wintry weather the Medicine Hat team have been working out almost every day. Throughout the west our city has been the least sufferer of all during the recent cold spell. But then Medicine Hat is "the place where the weather is made," and it is only human that we should retain the most high-class variety for local consumption.

A special meeting of the executive of the Rifle Association was held Tuesday evening, and the following business governing the season's shooting was passed:

Handicapping for spoon shoots to be on the same lines as last year, that is 50, 30 and 15 per cent of unearned score, old members to take their standing as they finished last season and new members to be handicapped by the committee. Spoon shoots to be held on the first and third Saturdays of each month, commencing Saturday May 1st. Shoots to be divided over the long and short ranges as evenly as possible during the season. Two spoons to be given at each shoot, a large one for first prize and a small one for second prize. A competitor shall be scores made by him on Wednesday entitled to claim the highest of two and Saturday respectively of each spoon week, but no member shall be allowed to compete more than once on each of the above named days, only the first score made each day to count.

The following motion was carried: Moved by J. A. Conn, seconded by Rex Leigh, that the Association present a gold medal to any member in good standing, who shall make a score of 100 or over on any regular practice day.

It was decided to offer a challenge to the members of the Coleridge Rifle Club to shoot a match on the Police Point range on the 24th of May, they to choose the ranges and the number of men to the teams.

KING NEARLY MADE RECORD

London, April 30—His Majesty came very close to establishing a new record by winning both the Two Thousand and One Thousand Guineas in one season today, when Princess de Galles ran L. Neumann's Electra in the finish for the fillies' classic at Newmarket this afternoon. The winner is a beautiful type of thoroughbred by Eager-Sizane, and out of 8 starts last season won 4 and finished 4 times second. She is entered in the Oaks. Perola was third, while Maid of the Mist, the famous Sceptre filly was unplaced as was Vivid.

BOWLING AS A "SOCIETY" PASTIME

Says the Illustrated London News: "Bowling is becoming exceedingly popular on the Continent, and many of the larger hotels of the Riviera and of Switzerland have a bowling alley. To this those staying in the hotels repair for matches, both men and women playing." Accompanying the article in the London paper is a cut of one of the largest fashionable European bowling alleys, where a match in which ladies take part is in progress.

12 ROUND FIGHT RESULTED IN DRAW

(Swift Current Sun)

The 12 round draw fought here Friday evening between Andy McLean and Kid Howell was a boxing bout of exceptional merit, and the large attendance were treated, the general opinion being that "it was well worth the money." Sometimes there are fake features about an exhibition of this kind, but the McLean-Howell contest was clean and fair in every respect, McLean was not in fistic condition having wrestled too much during the last month, and we believe the Kid beat him out a little during the evening and gave more punishment than received. Howell drew blood in the second round, and McLean in the fifth, and in the fourth round they mixed it some.

The sixth round was decidedly McLean's but Howell got the next and in the seventh round McLean gave the Kid a heavy jab in the mouth, which landed the honors. In the three last rounds both were aggressive and some fast work and heavy swinging Kidd Howell being in the better form when the gong sounded, and Referee Foss declared the bout a draw.

These middle weight champions, one of the east and the other of the west, will meet here again on May 24, when they will fight 15 rounds.

A great deal of credit is due to the ball boys and especially Jas. MacMillan, for arranging this interesting

RUGBY RULES

The Rugby Football clubs of Alberta have been discussing the question of the adoption of the British rules of the game. The desirability of having a uniform system is universally recognized, but the president of the Calgary league, H. Ballantyne considers the Canadian rules preferable, and points out that these are in force in Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba, only British Columbia and the Maritime provinces playing under British rules. Local Rugby players will be greatly interested in the discussion. Hitherto the British game has been played here. From the spectators point of view the Canadian game is considered the better of the two.

OLD COUNTRY FOOTBALL

Second League—Derby County 1, Tottenham Hotspurs 1; Gainsboro 2, Stockton Orient 0.

Scottish League—Celtic 5, Queen's Park 0; Hearts 1, Thistles 0; Rangers 7; Morton 0.

Last Tuesday's game between the professionals and a combination team of amateurs and professionals gave local fans an opportunity to get a line on the boys who will fight our battles during the coming season. And, incidentally it was an education to every amateur baseball player who took part. These games, like the quality of mercy are twice blessed—they encourage the amateur player and improve the class of amateur ball and they make fans for the support of the professional team. Another match has been arranged for this afternoon.

MANY DON'T KNOW

HEART AFFECTED.

More People Than are Aware of It Have Heart Disease.

"If examinations were made of everyone, people would be surprised at the number of persons walking about suffering from heart disease."

This startling statement was made by a doctor at a recent inquest. "I should not like to say that heart disease is as common as this would imply," said the expert, "but I am sure that the number of persons going about with weak hearts must be very large."

"Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that kills them that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is made apparent."

"But undoubtedly heart weakness, not disease, is more prevalent nowadays. I should think that the stress of living, the wear and rush of modern business life, have a lot to do with heart trouble."

There is no doubt but that this is correct, and we would strongly advise any one suffering in any way from heart trouble to try a course of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Balfour's Opinions

Mr. Balfour addressing a meeting at Islington on the British government's naval policy, referred to the colonial offers of help and colonial preference. On these aspects of the subject he said:

One great and magnificent result of recent events is a revolution of the imperial sentiment which animates, I believe, every great centre of the empire. I know nothing more moving, nothing more magnificent than the immediate response, the unsolicited response, made by New Zealand to the needs of our country, of our own two small islands from whom all sister states have sprung. New Zealand as you all know, as every Englishman, as every Irishman, as every Scotchman knows, has come forward when she could only have had a telegraphic summary of the protests made here, and has offered another Dreadnought to the empire. Do you realize what the population of New Zealand is? The population is about the same as five out of the 28 boroughs, which surround this hall. The contribution which she is offering to imperial needs would in capital figures relatively amount to a great deal more than the annual taxation of the country. Every man, I don't care what his opinions may be, in whose breast their beats one pulse of patriotic emotion must be deeply moved by this magnificent exhibition of imperial sentiment.

If there be a man, and I hope there is none, so despondent as to the future of the British empire as to overrate the gathering difficulties which we or our children may have to deal with, I say to him, learn the lesson of genuine evidence as to what one of our smaller sister states has done as to what British patriotism can do, and most assuredly will accomplish whether it be across the seas or in these islands. A voice—When are you going to give them preference?

Mr. Balfour—I will refer to that presently. I have to admit that while no words which I can command adequately express the sentiments with which I regard this practical and self-sacrificing tribute to the great imperial idea, I am not so satisfied at the reception with which it was met at the hands of the government. I understand that our sister state offered this Dreadnought for our immediate needs. It has been rejected from that point of view. It has been accepted, as I understand it more or less conditionally for some subsequent occasion. I do not wish to put that criticism too high, and it is not my business or my right to explain to the inhabitants of Great Britain precisely what the object of New Zealand was in making that offer. I do not deny that the tax payer in this country has had to pay and will have to pay in correspondence with the imperial obligations falling on the mother country, but I do not believe that it is beyond our power to do so. The time indeed may come when the relative population of Great Britain as compared with the sister states of the empire may have undergone some profound alterations and we shall have to look to them to help us carry the great and growing responsibilities of empire, but in my opinion the time has not yet come, and while I most gladly and joyfully accept every aid which the sister states can give us, let that aid be given in addition—let it be superadded preparation, let it be something which is to guard against the unknown, the unexpected, the incalculable, the unforseen, let it not be part of the ordinary provision of ordinary times, let us not deal with the splendid and patriotic liberality of a relatively small community like that of New Zealand merely as a subvention of our own pecuniary necessities, let us meet them in the spirit in which they have come to meet us, let us accept their magnificent offer as a nadditional guarantee that whatever happens, whatever may be the policy of this or of that great military country, the supremacy of Great Britain on the seas shall be undisputed and indisputable.

I have but one further observation to make, and that is suggested by the perfectly courteous interruption which I think I caught from the gallery opposite I think I heard a voice say: "What about preference?" Surely that interruption was not an irrelevant one. (A voice—"It was from a New Zealander," and cheers.) Here we are, accepting, and joyfully accepting, this immense boon, this gift compared with the resources of the giver of enormous magnitude—here we are accepting it, and surely with gratitude—but are we going to give nothing in return? We find the government, in their reckless financial career, making it obviously more and more impossible whatever your fiscal views may be, to collect the revenue of this country upon the old lines. More and more plainly does the necessity show itself for adopting a scheme which, be it good or bad, our fathers had not to resort to. But we shall have to resort to it. Even supposing that you are wrong, and all those who believe in the expediency of a great fiscal change expedient as I believe, as London believes—and as the country is going to believe—if it be necessary, and even those who differ from us will soon be forced to admit, then I ask you, are we not out of the new fiscal system, which must be born of our necessities if it is not born of our wishes, are we not out of that fiscal change to give our colonies that which they ask for. You are going to accept a gift from New Zealand which in the year during which it has been made amounts I believe, to more per head of the population than our whole taxation in the year amounts to per head of the inhabitants of the British islands and you are going to refuse to New Zealand, Australia, the Cape, Canada, the whole constellation of sister states have asked for steadily, persistently and patiently year after year. You cannot manage an empire on those lines. However dull your imagination, however hidebound be your economic theories, there surely are situations which will break through even the most obstinate and the most narrow tradition and if anything can bring home to the imagination of our countrymen what it is to be a leading state, a leading community in this great imperial organization, if anything can bring home to them the responsibilities which are falling upon them, surely it is New Zealand coming to us in a moment when by the admission of the government, as well as by our own contention, a new era of cost, nay, a new era of national peril and responsibility is upon us, when we have the sight of New Zealand coming before us in the crisis, with the magnificent generosity which she has displayed is there a man with a heart so cold, is there a man with imagination so hidebound in tradition who does not see, putting aside all other and all narrower, considerations, the responsibility lies now and henceforth for every government controlling this great country to see that we do meet the colonies whenever we can, not by doing what they have never demanded, namely sacrificing our own prosperity to their particular views, but by doing what they have asked, which is, that when the time comes, as come it must, whoever is in office, when we shall have vitally and fundamentally to alter the manner in which we raise the taxation of this country when that time comes we shall not forget, we shall not only remember that we are Englishmen, Irishmen, Scotchmen, not only remember that we are living in these two historic islands, but remember that we are now the centre of an empire of which all the sister states are growing, and are destined to grow and that we have duties to them as well as to ourselves.

Christie's Biscuits—How their quality is guarded—

The Butter Tester Says:

"I'M A CRANK about butter. I've got to be.

"I realize thoroughly that Quality has built up this big business, and made 'Christie' a household word from ocean to ocean—first of all, Quality in the butter, flour, milk and other raw materials.

"I've been testing butter for thirty years, and I've never heard of any other firm exercising the same care as Christie, Brown & Co. do.

"All our butter is purchased by a well-known butter authority. He buys for export from the best creameries in Canada, and sends the pick to us.

"You would be surprised if you knew what butter—good butter, according to all ordinary standards—we reject. Most of it ninety-nine people out of a hundred would taste and accept as excellent table quality.

"It's not a matter of price with us. We pay a little better than the best market price, and the butter must be in accordance.

"We have a high standard for butter, the same as for all other raw materials. Anything that doesn't measure right up to that standard is rejected.

"The basis of the delicious goodness which you enjoy in Christie's Biscuits is the unvarying goodness of the raw materials that go into them.

"When I see how our orders for butter have to be steadily increased, to keep pace with the demand for Christie's Biscuits, I have the best kind of evidence that our jealous guarding of Christie Quality brings results."

You can taste Quality in every morsel of Christie's Biscuits. Sold in bulk, by the pound, or in moisture and dust-proof packages.

Morris Murder

Milestone, Sask., April 28—Ernest Morris was arraigned for the murder of his brother, Charles J. Morris, before Magistrates Bunn and Murphy, and formally committed for trial.

Deceased remains were found in the ruins of a burned shanty on April 6th and it was first thought to have been an accident.

Medical testimony showed that the deceased probably died of a blood-clot on the brain, caused by a blow, and despite the charred condition of the remains decided hemorrhage could not have happened after death, and that it occurred before the damage done by the fire.

Several witnesses saw the deceased on the eve of his death, and said he was sober and alright. John W. Kincaid saw the accused on horseback at 8 o'clock on the evening of the tragedy. He rode off in the direction of the deceased's home.

Subsequently he traced the horse, which had lost one shoe, to within 40 rods of the deceased's shanty. He detailed the bringing of the deceased's remains to Kincaid's with subsequent preparations to ship them to the Missouri home, but they were detained for an inquest.

L. Schiefer deposed to buying a team from the accused for $100 cash and $250 notes in February, but owing to being short of stabling the horses were to remain at Morris' barn.

At a quarter to one Tuesday morning Schiefer was awakened by the accused. He let him in, and the accused went straight to bed. About 8 in the morning witness was informed by phone of the fire, and in company with the deceased rode to the scene. The accused slept at his place that night.

He told of a bottle of strychnine being found in his place by Carpenter Quayle, who was working for him. He did not keep strychnine.

The horses mentioned as being sold by the accused are understood to have belonged to the deceased, and are supposed to have a bearing on the tragedy.

Should the Mail Order House Be Supported?

One of the outstanding features of the retail trade of recent years is the development of the "mail order" or "catalogue" stores as they have been termed. That keen business principles have been at the bottom of the success of these no one will deny, but another factor which has contributed as much, if not more, to their success is the selfishness and gullibility of the public. An article is quoted at a certain figure in Toronto or Winnipeg. Generally some catchy price ending in a 9 is chosen. To the average buyer 49 cents looks from 10 to 20 per cent cheaper than 50 cents. The buyer at once compares this to the price charged in his home store, which quotes it at possibly 60 cents. He forgets all about the stamp he must buy for his letter; the commission paid for a money order, the express, mail or freight charges on the article purchased and the time he must wait before he can get it. If the local dealers were to add any extras to his selling price, the buyer would be in rebellion at once. But when practically the same thing is done by a "catalogue house," he cheerfully submits; and sometimes even thinks the latter is his benefactor.

It will be contended however by some that 49 cents and 60 cents is not a fair comparison in prices between the two classes of merchants. In many cases it is not. On up-to-date, reliable stock, which is the only kind you expect your local dealer to keep, or will knowingly buy from him, the difference is not as great as the figures taken as examples. We venture the opinion born of years of knowledge of catalogue houses and their methods, that in nine cases out of ten when an article can be laid at one's door for less money when purchased abroad, there is a decided difference in quality or style. Nothing else could account for the enormous profits reaped by the owners of these mail order businesses. Look at the private fortunes these men have built up, yet to accept their claims one would think they were public philantrophists who are selling goods below their cost.

The chief objection however to the purchaser who deals with the mail order house, is the lack of local patriotism and foresight which he displays. Supposing we all quit patronizing home trade, and send away for our supplies. What kind of town would we have? How would the value of your property be effected? If you own farm land its value is enhanced by being close to a live up-to-date town. If you own town or city property, is value is proportionate to the size and progressiveness of the place. If all its churches and schools were to lose the support they now get from local business men, in what condition would they be? Consider the advantages we now enjoy in respect to railway facilities, mail service, telegraph, telephones and such modern conveniences, which we would lack if the place we live in were a dead town. This is the condition everyone who sends away his money to a mail order house is working to bring about.

Not only does the mail order house do nothing for your town, but it will do nothing for you unless you have the cash to pay for it—and that several weeks before you get it. If you are in hard luck, your local merchant will tide you over the crisis—if you deserve it; and he supports the institutions which go to make life worth living where you are. He bears the big end of the burden of taxation which gives us our modern improvements. If you want grass to grow in the streets of your town, if you want property to depreciate in value and taxes to go up, if you want poor schools, poor hospitals and churches, or none at all; poor railway and postal facilities, then give all your business to the mail order house which doesn't care a rap for you or your town.

The Calgary papers refer to R. C. Edwards, late editor of the famous "Eye Opener," who has recently left for Toronto as the oldest working newspaper man in Alberta. Evidently the Calgary journalists have overlooked the fact that Medicine Hat possesses an editor who has seen every other occupant of an editorial chair in Alberta enter upon his present duties. We refer of course, to the veteran editor of our esteemed contemporary "The News."

The great question of the day with the scientist is the practicability of signalling to Mars. A greater question with us is how to get in touch with those who owe us money.

The thermometer registered 8 below zero at Prince Albert last week. The new penitentiary will come in useful to lock up settlers during such a cold snap to keep them from leaving that part of the country.

The British Navy and the Monroe Doctrine

(Montreal Star)

Some American papers are arguing that the Monroe doctrine will not be in peril even if the British fleet is smashed. Possibly not. The United States is a big nation; and the Monroe doctrine is a long way from German guns. But if the British fleet is smashed the United States will certainly have to prepare to defend its Doctrine. The German fleet will then be much more powerful than the American, and German ambitions in South America are notorious. If the Americans will build Dreadnoughts enough, they need dread nothing. But they will have to go down into their pockets and build them. And they might save this expense by uniting such Dreadnoughts as they have with the British Dreadnoughts and forbidding any enemy to "smash" this line of defence before both the British Isles and the Monroe Doctrine.

The Patten Swindle

Humanity revolts at the thought of a gambler or a group of gamblers literally and actually taking bread from the mouths of the destitute that he or his ring may pile up millions without giving a dollar's return therefor or in any way, shape or form to recoup either the victims or society at large.

This is the noble work to which Mr James J. Patten and his allied financiers have set their hands and in which they seem to have accomplished success. The wires that tell us of the millions this king rascal has pocketed also tell us that the New York bakers have been forced to cut down the size of the loaf sold to the poor people because they could not turn out the full loaf at the former price and because the poor could not afford to pay a cent more for their loaf.

Thrown into cold language this means that the destitute family who have been struggling through the day on a pound loaf of bread must now pull through on a fifteen or a fourteen ounce loaf. In the essentials of the matter therefore the "kings of the wheat pit" are heaping to themselves treasures through the starvation of the helpless. If the process does not really produce death the fault does not lie with them. Apparently and admittedly they have made it as impossible for the poor to live as they could by shoving the price of bread as high as they could. If the poor continue to live these men must be acquitted of any intent that they should do so. If they fail they fail through lack of ability, not through any feelings of pity or any measures of mercy.

A gamble in wheat differs essentially from a gamble in diamonds or railway stock. A woman and her hungry children can get along without diamonds and bonds, but they cannot get along without bread. To speculate in luxuries is to do so at the expense of the people who feel they can afford to buy luxuries. But to speculate in food is to do so at the expense of every person in the country—the helpless as well as the wealthy. If one must rob it is only less crime to rob the wealthy only than to take the means of subsistence from those who cannot get more.

If a wheat corner was simply a discount of the future—buying today what must be worth more money tomorrow—the evil would be confined to hastening hardship that must come in any event. But no wheat corner was ever yet engineered on this basis alone. The purpose in view and the methods employed are not merely to buy against a rise which must come from natural causes, but to create a rise which without the corner might not come at all, or which if it did come would not be so pronounced. The history of wheat gambles is that a corner always boosts the price beyond what it would in all probability have been even temporarily if the law of supply and demand alone had determined the price.

In general the public have strong and strongly pronounced resentment for the operator who enriches himself by the hunger of his fellows. But the resentment toward the system that opens the way for his doing so is by no means so marked. Men who curse Patten as an unfeeling brute themselves take a "flier" in wheat on occasion. But what is Patten more than a man who takes a larger "flier" than other people? And if there were no men ready to take "fliers" Patten would not be in the wheat business for he is there after the money of the smaller gambler.

A "flier" too works to the same end as the corner, for to be successful it must be timed to suit the trend of the market—in other words, must be in agreement with the controlling influence of the time. If the results could be totalled it might be found that Patton is cursed for the sins of other people as well as his own—that the accumulated results of the fliers have really done as much to shorten the bread supply of New York's destitute as the larger operation against which the crime is charged.

The real remedy and the one that must sooner or later be applied is the public conviction that the man who gets something for nothing is a thief whether he operates with a billy in a dark alley or with a million in the wheat pit. When society really gets hold of this conviction social ostracism will be the price of wheat pit operating, and not many men would care to sell the good opinions of everybody even for a wagon load of money. Then, too, public opinion would uphold and enforce restrictive laws which now a large portion of the public would regard as improper infringement on individual rights.—Edmonton Bulletin.

Medicine Hat's Future.

(Calgary Herald)

A district that did not receive the benefit it might fairly have expected from the provincial government's railway policy and yet has not complained is that of Medicine Hat. The people of that city took a keen and sympathetic interest in the Herald's campaign last fall. They appreciate as few other places do the need for more railway lines to open up their country. Yet they have joined heartily in supporting a policy which did not appear to be doing them any particular good but which they knew was a benefit to Alberta as a whole. Medicine Hat is all right and has shown a spirit worthy of the west.

And its time will come soon for new railways. When the G. T. P. and the C. N. R. are built from north to south according to present plans it will be necessary to connect them up with Medicine Hat by a line running northwestward from that place. There is a vast area of profitable land to be settled tributary to the Hat. The fall wheat belt is rapidly pushing its way eastward and with the development of irrigation and improvements in dry farming it may be expected that the eastern portion of Alberta will some day be the home of a prosperous and thickly-settled agricultural community.

When that day arrives Medicine Hat will come into its own. Its remarkable facilities for cheap power will be of great benefit to it and will make it a prosperous and progressive manufacturing centre. And these changes have a habit of happening quickly in this country.

Medicine Hat is a good city now, but, like many other places in western Canada, its future is bigger than its present would indicate.

Labor Conditions in Canada

Probably in no other country are labor conditions better than in Canada. Of course unskilled labor must necessarily be at a discount during a month or two in the severest part of winter, but skilled labor is always in fair demand.

There is none of that pitiful struggle for a bare existence that is the prevailing condition in the old European countries. Every employee has before him the near prospect of being an employer. Good men are in demand, to be taken as partners, managers, etc.

In Canada one does not work for an employer but with him. The man who regards his work as drudgery and his employer an enemy is soon down and out. "Get out or get in line" is the motto.

We do not wish Canadian workers to be brought into competition with Europe's starvation wages, but a comparison of conditions existing across the Atlantic and in this country should have the effect of quieting discontent. In Birmingham women set 384 hooks and eyes on cards for the small sum of one penny. By constantly keeping at it as much as 72 cents a week may be earned by this kind of labor, and little children being deft-fingered are drafted into the work. They must live somehow. Those who sew buttons on cards do much better. Their wages run up to a dollar a week. Many work from 8 o'clock in the morning until 11 or 12 o'clock at night. Sackmakers earn from 10 to 15 cents a day, baskets makers less than 18 cents a day, and tooth brush makers by working seven days a week, run the weekly income up to nearly $1.30. The average unskilled worker in England is said to rear his family upon $4 to $5 a week, which means half-starvation for his wife and children. Similar or worse conditions exist in Germany. For making painted toys a child is paid less than a cent an hour. Ribbons with religious mottoes are produced at a cost of less than two cents per hour for the labor expended upon them. There are children slaving for 37 cents a week. One authority states that Germans and Austrians perform for 20 cents what Canadians get $1 for doing.

It is ignorance of the pitiful toil and struggle for a bare existence which prevails in the older lands which causes Canadians to prize too lightly the blessings and advantages of living in a country where the worker's right to a respectable living is recognized, and where an ordinary man or woman of careful industrious habits may attain even a competency along with a living which is a luxury compared with the existence of toilers in European countries.—Regina Standard.

THE SITUATION IN TURKEY

Beirut, April 27—Delayed despatches just received here say that the carnage in Adana, where an American missionary was killed resulted in the slaughter of 10,000 persons. Advices indicate that Moslem hordes have again attacked the city.

Constantinople, April 27—The following account of the disorders in Adana has been received here by telegraph from Rev. Herbert Adams Gibbons, a missionary:

The entire village of Adana has been visited during the past five days by a terrible massacre of Armenians. The worst ever known in the history of the district. The terror has been universal and the government is powerless to check the disorders. Adana, the capital of the province has been the storm centre.

Conditions have been unsettled for some time and there has been animosity between Turks and Armenians owing to the political activity of the latter and their open purchasing of arms.

Early last Wednesday while I was in the market, I noticed that the Armenians were closing their shops and hurrying to their homes. An Armenian and a Turk had been killed during the night and the corpses were paraded through their respective quarters.

The dead inflamed the inhabitants and crowds at once began to gather in the streets armed with sticks, axes and knives. A few young Armenians assembled in the centre of the covered market and began firing revolver shots into the air. By 11 o'clock in the morning the crowd had begun the looting of shops.

The military commander of Adana was by my side when the firing commenced in the market. He had not the courage to endeavor to disarm the mob. He returned to his residence and did not venture out for two days.

"William Chambers, field secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association preceded to the Konak and found a howling mob demanding arms with which to kill the Giaours. He then went to the Turkish office to summon the British consul. On the steps of the building he saw three Armenians who had been massacred. Their bodies had been mutilated. While we were in the telegraph office a mob burst in and killed two Armenians before our eyes. The unfortunates were supplicating the protection of the Valli and they were struck down.

We managed to make our way into the next room, where we made representations to the Valli. This official said he could do nothing. He was even afraid of his own life, and he made no attempt to protect us.

Constantinople, April 27—There was a fresh outbreak of fanaticism and murder last night at Adana, accompanied by looting and incendiarism. The situation there is critical.

Some how we managed to get to the interior of the Konak where we remained by the side of the government officials for the next 48 hours. That afternoon the situation grew worse. The Armenians withdrew to their quarters of Adana which is situated on a hill and converted the houses that held advantageous positions into fortresses. Here the fighting went on for two days, during which time the Armenians succeeded in beating off their brutish assailants.

Wednesday evening Major Daughty Wylie, the British Vice-Consul in Merzina arrived in Adana and established his headquarters in the house of a dragoman of a wealthy Greek resident where many refugees had been received. The wife of the British Vice Consul, who was brought into Adana under fire on Thursday, tended personally to many wounded women and children.

"Adana was a perfect hell. The bazaars were looted and set on fire. There was continuous shooting and killing in every part of the town and fires raged in many quarters.

Moslems from the neighborhood began to pour into the city and notwithstanding our vehement protests, the Valli distributed arms to these men allowing they were Turkish reserves.

Major Daughty Wylie, at the head of troops, which he compelled the Valli to supply, went to the end of the town and was successful in preventing the villagers from coming into the town. Later while the major was endeavoring to pacify the town he was shot and disabled.

Missionaries of the central Turkish mission had assembled for a district conference in the centre of Adana on the day of the outbreak. They received and protected hundreds of refugees in the American seminary for girls and courageously endeavored to pacify the warring elements.

On Tuesday Daniel Miner Rogers, and Henry Maurier, American missionaries, were killed under treacherous circumstances.

On Friday the Armenians yielded, since then there has been little murdering. Adana is in a pitable condition. The town has been pillaged and destroyed and there are thousands of homeless people here without a means of livelihood.

It is impossible to estimate the number of killed. The corpses lie scattered through the streets. Saturday morning I counted a dozen carts of Armenians bodies being carried to the river and thrown into the water. Graves for the Turks are being dug wholesale. The conditions of the refugees is most pitiable and heartrending. Not only are there orphans and widows beyond number, but a great many babies are suffering from severe wounds.

The situation in Adana itself is unspeakable. On Friday afternoon 250 so-called Turkish reserves, without officers seized a train, and compelled the engineer to convey them to Tarsus where they took part in the complete destruction of the Armenian quarters there, which was the best part of Tarsus. This work of looting was thorough and rapid. It is said that they spread kerosene and fired the great historic Armenian church, the most important building in the city.

PEOPLE SAID SHE HAD CONSUMPTION

Was in Bed for Three Months.

Read how Mrs. T. G. Buck, Brackenridge, Ont., was cured (and also her little boy) by the use of

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

She writes: "I thought I would write and let you know the benefit I have received through the use of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A few years ago I was so badly troubled with my lungs people said I had Consumption and that I would not live through the fall. I had two doctors attending me and they were very much alarmed about me. I was in bed three months and when I got up I could not walk, so had to go on my hands and knees for three weeks, and my limbs seemed of no use to me. I gave up all hopes of ever getting better when I happened to see in B.B.B. Almanac that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was good for weak lungs. I thought I would try a bottle and by the time I had used it I was a lot better, so got more and it made a complete cure. My little boy was also troubled with weak lungs and it cured him. I keep it in the house all the time and would not be without it for anything."

Price 35 cents at all dealers. Beware of imitations of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Ask for it and insist on getting the original. Put up in a yellow wrapper and three pine trees the trade mark.

The West Faces a Forestry Problem

What a pity it is that the great forests of this continent did not grow in the interior of the country, leaving the prairies to occupy the coasts! Then the pioneers would not have had to hew farms out of bush, and by the time the prairie land had been homesteaded we should have known enough to conserve the forests in the interior. Writing in the Canadian Forestry Journal, Mr. A. Knechtel makes the foregoing reflection, and remarks that forest destruction was at first a necessity, and later became a habit. In the same journal, Mr. R. H. Campbell shows that in the west the people are realizing the importance of preserving what timber they have, and of planting more.... They do not hope to grow timber to sell, but to maintain the arability of the land, and to simplify the problems of irrigation.

In the agricultural architecture of a great part of Southern Alberta and the eastern slope of the Rockies the Cypress Hills are the keystones. In this district great things are planned for the future, for although that part of the country bordering on the foot hills of the Rockies was considered useless through aridity, it now grows forty bushels of winter wheat to the acre. On these plains several irrigation projects are under way. The Canadian Pacific Railway company is building works to water 3,000,000 acres of land from the Bow River; the Southern Alberta Company expects to irrigate between 300,00 and 400,000 acres from the same stream; and the Alberta Railway and Irrigation Company holding a million acres, hope to irrigate a great portion of it from the St. Mary's River. Both these rivers rise in the Rockies, as do also the Little Bow, the Belly, Oldman, Red Deer, Waterton and the Milk Rivers. The headwaters of the latter river are in the United States, and though the Milk river flows through two hundred miles of Canadian territory, it turns south again, and drains int., the Missouri basin. The St Mary's also rises in the United States, and its vagaries are the subject of consideration in the Waterways treaty.

These rivers water an immense tract of territory, and it is of the utmost importance that they should perform their work like properly trained Ontario farm horses, not like bronchos. We regret to report that they partake somewhat of the character of the untamed mustang. They have their beginnings in the perennial glaciers, are fed from the snowfall and rainfall in the lower foothills and along the wooded slopes, and so flow out on the plains, cutting for themselves deep grooves in the friable soil, so that they often lie from two hundred to three hundred feet below the level of the country through which they pass. Their flow is irregular, but the usual course is an increased flow from the melting of the snow on the lower levels, culminating in the highest flow in June, when the mountain drifts and glaciers yield to the sun. Then the flow tapers off till September and October when it is a mere trickle. If this usual course were followed with the punctuality of the more civilized rivers of the east, one of the greatest irrigation problems of the west would be settled. The trouble is that an extra heavy rainfall in the mountains, or a succession of hot days in May or June, melting the glaciers before their time, will turn these streams into raging torrents.

Last year the Waterton, St. Mary's and Old Man rivers flooded their banks, swept away bridges, destroyed much property, and endangered human life. The more the eastern slopes of the Rockies are denuded of their trees the greater becomes the liability of floods in May and June, and to the drying up of the rivers in autumn. Yet last year there were 31,600,000 feet, board measure, 28,037 cords of wood, 836,860 fence posts and 1,836,700 fence rails cut on these eastern slopes. It was all for local consumption; and the cutting will surely increase with a growing population, unless steps are taken to prevent it. At the present the government is employing foresters and fire rangers to see that no timber is wantonly destroyed. In the Cypress Hills much the same general conditions prevail although the streams are small and sometimes disappear altogether. Last year the ranchers in the district truly raised their eyes to the hills, whence came their help, for when the hay crop failed on the plains they were able to secure an abundant supply there.

It is of the utmost importance to successful farming that the water supply should be abundant and steady. The preservation of timber, and the reforestation of now denuded districts will tend to secure these conditions for the million farmers this part of Southern Alberta is capable of maintaining. It may be necessary to control the flow of the rivers by artificial means, namely by the building of dams and reservoirs along their course. The Assouan Dam, a mile and a quarter long, regulates the Nile; and the Volga is controlled to a great extent by reservoirs. The same experiment is being tried on the Mississippi. It is quite possible that Western Canada, besides jealously preserving every stick of timber that it is possible to save, may have to bdild dams and reservoirs too.—Mail and Empire.

The coal dealers of Calgary are now refusing orders for coal as a result of the strike. They expect to be able to meet the emergency by the use of wood and a limited amount of coal from Northern Alberta mines. In Lethbridge the schools were closed last week for want of coal.

Shipping Grain Westward

Ottawa, April 27—A delegation representing the grain interests of Alberta waited upon Sir Richard Cartwright this morning and made a number of recommendations, which had for their object the development of export trade from the port of Vancouver.

The delegation was accompanied by Premier Rutherford and Attorney General Cross of Alberta; Hon. F. Oliver, and practically all the members representing the western constituencies, also the delegation representing Saskatchewan and Manitoba grain interests, which is here to see the minister of trade and commerce in regard to the establishment of terminal elevators, were present.

The delegation pointed out that now that the Canadian Pacific railway is giving lower rates westward, it was possible for grain to be sent from Vancouver via Cape Horn to Liverpool at an advantage over shipments eastward. The delegation therefore asked for government owned terminal elevators at Vancouver and for amendments to the grain act which will make it just as easy to ship grain westward as eastward.

The proposed amendments include organization of a new grain inspection division to include Alberta and Saskatchewan under the supervision of Dominion Inspector Horne at Winnipeg.

Sir Richard Cartwright expressed himself as being in sympathy with the proposals made but he could not promise any legislation this session. In the meantime, however, whatever is to be done would be done on order in council.

$85,000,000 FOR NEW RAILROADS IN WESTERN CANADA

Winnipeg, Man., April 30th—Approximately $85,000,000 will be spent by railroads in actual construction in Western Canada during 1909, according to statements made by head officials of the various companies. The construction campaign laid out by the Canadian Pacific is the most costly and calls for the expenditure of over twenty million dollars. James J. Hill will spend fifteen million dollars on the Great Northern and subsidiary companies in Western Canada, together making a fourth trunk system across the prairies westward from this city. The Canadian Northern intends to spend eleven million dollars, part of which will be for the extension of its main line towards the Pacific coast. A like amount will be spert by the Grand Trunk Pacific on the main line between Winnipeg and the Pacific Ocean but the bulk of the money used by this company during 1909 will be on its branch lines

Correspondence

Medicine Hat, April 28th.

To the Editor of the Medicine Hat Times:—

Sir,—I desire to contradict through the medium of your paper the incorrect statements made at the council meeting held on Monday, April 26th. The statements concerned were in error in the following particulars:

(1) Ald. Penhale's statement that the six inch casing in the well was left quite loose by Mr. Grant and in such a condition that the well was not fit to close up, is incorrect.

(2) Mr. Martin's statement to the council that on Tuesday morning (20th), he found the six inch piping in the gas sand, and was hanging loose in the well, is untrue.

My opinion is that the caving in of the well was due to Mr. Martin's failure to provide a proper packer to reach the eight inch well.

I also desire to state that I requested a six inch gate valve to close the well in and was refused this by either the gas committee or the city engineer. I offered to leave this for a 24 hour test to determine whether the pipe was properly tight, but the gas committee declined to accept the offer.

(Sgd.) HUGH McPHERSON.

"WATER, WATER, WHOLLY WATER"

To the Editor of The Times.

Dear Sir,—When in Medicine Hat a few days ago I was more than surprised at the dissatisfaction expressed on all sides by the action of the City Council in regard to the new water rate.

At various places, notably street corners and hotel lobbies, were congregated small groups of rate-payers in seeming earnest discussion, and "water, water, wholy water" seems to be the subject with an occasional comment on unfair taxes. I am indirectly interested in the prosperity of Medicine Hat, and the well-being of her citizens as a whole, and of the working element in particular; and therefore I feel justified in expressing my opinion upon this much, though rather privately, discussed water question.

It seems to me but fair that those who use the most water should be taxed the most for it, and those using a lesser quantity a less amount of taxes; but all in proportion to the amount they use. I have no doubt but that this is the principle that actuated the council in its fixing the rate which seems so unpopular.

The question arises, did the council take fully into consideration the whole question or is it a case of guess-work as to the probable amount of water that will be used by each householder, based on the valuation of the property as per assessment roll? If so, the action of the council is certainly open to the gravest criticism, as it does not necessarily follow that those premises on which there are but one or two water taps will use less water than those with three or more. I myself have often seen water uselessly wasted on gardens and particularly lawns sometimes the water running out on the streets, and this is as a rule on property of a low valuation; when I have at the same time noticed a very economic use of water on much more valuable premises. To be candid I must say the council are up against a very hard proposition and if it attempts to please everybody it is likely to please nobody and lose its reputation (if it has one) into the bargain.

It is a very hard matter to dissociate property tax and water-rate, and in this connection I consider the property tax in Medicine Hat most unfair, while I do not hold the assessor responsible. What I refer to more particularly, is the system, which I take to be unfair, unjust and pernicious. To illustrate: A and B come into the city. A buys some property and he immediatly proceeds to erect a house for himself and family, say to the value of $1,000. Just as soon as said home is completed, or probably before, along comes Mr. Assessor armed with all the authority the city can give him, and he taxes, or as a friend of mine puts it, fines this home-maker, this man who has become a resident of the city, this man who is a factor in the city's growth and prosperity, he is fined for his pains; while B invests in a few lots goes back to where he came from and is let off almost scott-free. C in turn comes, buys property near A and B. He too builds and improves as A has done, and he too is taxed. How I ask in the name of all fairness is it right or just that B and C should be taxed or fined for improving their property, while B can lie back and give them the horse-laugh.

To my mind this kind of discrimination puts a premium on speculation, retards the growth of the city, increases the burden of taxes on those who have homes and the interests of the city at heart. Rather give a rebate to the man who will erect a dwelling or store or factory which is a credit and ornament to the city, than say to him as by the present system "Look out! Just build a shack for your dwelling, a shack for office or business or you'll be fined and your water rate will be in proportion to the size of your house whether you use water or not."

"Consistency thou art a jewel."

SPECTATOR.

Our correspondent is absolutely in error as to the basis on which the city water rate is made. It has no connection whatever with the assessment; but is based on the size of the building, number of taps, and whether bathroom is installed. There is good ground for making a distinction between buildings of equal size when the number of taps vary as the more taps there are in a building the greater the leakage and waste. As for lawns and gardens, there is an extra rate for those who have outside taps. We recommend that our correspondent, and all others who think the rates unfair, get the facts of the situation before them before they come to conclusions on the subject.—Editor.

A NEEDED IMPROVEMENT

The Coleman (Alta) Board of Trade have recently passed a resolution asking the post office department for an extra mail train on the Crow's Nest line. At present the towns on this line receive one mail per day from the train which leaves Medicine Hat at 10.55 p.m. A second train has been running sometime between Lethbridge and Cranbrook. The information has been given out that this train will shortly run between Medicine Hat and Cranbrook, leaving here about 9 a.m. and connecting with No. 1 which will arrive some 4 hours earlier on the new schedule. A second service on this train would be a great convenience to Medicine Hat as it would bring our merchants in much closer touch with surrounding towns. We commend the situation to the attention of the Board of Trade which might co-operate with other Boards of Trade along the Crow's Nest line to urging the postal authorities to grant this improvement.

Natural Gas Expert Here

Mr. Eugene Coste, of Toronto, consulting engineer for the C. P. R. passed through the city on the noon train on Friday. In company with Mr. J. W. Martin he is going into the question of commencing boring operations for gas at Brooks. At the depot Mr. Coste was interviewed by the Times representative and gave his expert opinion in regard to the local gas wells and especially in regard to the finishing up of the new well. He considerds that the difficulties which have been encountered may be easily overcome. To check the present leakage he recommends the putting in of a stuffing box connection between the casing where the escape of gas takes place. The 6 inch casing he said should certainly be removed and 4 inch tubing inserted. Between the six inch casing and the eight inch there is not sufficient space for the cement to run freely. Though it was quite unnecessary for the six inch casing used during the drilling operations to be tight fitting it would be a mistake to leave this in when the well is closed up. A pressure of five hundred pounds would be sufficient to raise the piping. It was advisable to use a packer in every well, though in many cases this might not be absolutely essential.

Mr. Coste is greatly impressed by the unsurpassed natural gas field of this district. He believes that the additional flow obtained from the new well will be sufficient to meet all the needs of our community for sometime to come.

A sad death occured in the city yesterday, when Mrs Sena Lister, wife of Mr. B. F. Lister of Hosmer, B. C., was seized with heart failure and passed away almost immediately. Y. M. C. Victori... Debate on ...

As a climax to the excellent work of the Mock Parliament during the past season, came the debate in the City Hall on Friday evening between the Y. M. C. representatives of Lethbridge and of this city, and the result was a victory for the local club. The event was a thoroughgoing success, not only as providing an entertainment, unique in character (and the large audience which was privileged to hear the flow of oratory was fully appreciative of this side), but on account of the vast educational benefit in the broadening of mental outlook and of sympathies, which must accrue from debates on such subjects as the one selected. The chair was occupied by Mayor Milne and, as was well said by the Rev. Mr. Farrell at the close of the debate, his presence was not a mere matter of form, but an indication of active personal interest in the intellectual welfare of the young men of the city.

The subject for debate was: Resolved: That it would be more conducive to the best interests of the British Empire for Canada to proceed at once to create a navy of her own for the purpose of co-operating with the British Navy in Imperial defence, than for Canada to contribute annually toward the support of an Imperial navy through an Imperial council in which she would have due representation, and within whose jurisdiction would come its entire management and control.

The debaters for the affirmative were Messrs. S. J. Shepherd, W. H. McLelland and R. R. Davidson, of Lethbridge; for the negative, Messrs. C. Sansom, D. R. Ware and P. R. Bryenton. The two leaders, Mr. Shepherd and Mr. Sansom were allowed twenty minutes for the presentation of their arguments, the other speakers fifteen minutes each, and the affirmative was allowed ten minutes for rebuttal. The judges were Messrs. O. D. Austin, J. Benson and C. J. Wilson.

In the introductory sentences of an able and eloquent speech, Mr. Shepherd spoke of the personal pleasure he felt in discussing one of the great questions of the day, the question of national defence, upob which depended national safety. No nation had kept its title to the free use of the sea, and failed to achieve national greatness. No land locked nation had been truly great. The time had come when it was no longer possible to deny to Canada the status of a nation. The orthodox opinion of the British admiralty was that the overseas ttates would be contributors to a nimperial navy. Centralization and strategic advantage of having the navy under one rommand were urged in favor of this view. But it was impossible to separate strategy from policy. In an Imperial council such as the negative side desired, Canada could have no real control. Our representatives would be a small minority, and the principle of autonomy, that they who paid the taxes should control expenditure would be violated. The expenditure on the British navy was today under the control of parliament. Would the British people be content to vest the powers of taxation in a council such as the one proposed? Would Canada be content that her share of the expenditure should be controlled from Whitehall? The opinion of the experienced statesmen of the empire bore out the speaker's contention, that the organic union of the states of Greater Britain could best be promoted by the building of auxiliary navies for co-operation with the Imperial fleet. Viscount Milner, in Britain; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in Canada; Mr. Deakin in Australia, all had supported the latter view. The building of a Canadian navy would strengthen our loyality to the Empire; the sending out of the money for the support of a fleet controlled from Whitehall would weaken it. Canadians fought in South Africa in the Empire's hour of need who would never have done so had they been compelled to merge themselves in the greater British army. And while in the early stages of military training in the Dominion British officers had been engaged by the department of militia, these had been gradually replaced by Canadians. What had been done in the army could be done in the navy. From the militia we had formed the nucleus of an enrolled army. From naval volunteers we might evolve a permanent naval force. In regard to the control of an Imperial campaign, British fairplay and Canadian good sense might be relied upon to adjust any questions which might arise. Canada, no doubt, would be content to leave the direction of the campaign in the hands of the British authorities.

On being called upon to speak for the negative side, Mr. Sansom wasted no time on preliminaries but, after clearly defining the scope of the resolution, entered at once upon its discussion, and his eloquent and persuasive speech was a fusillade of arguments in favor of the negative side. He was without doubt the strongest debater of the evening, with Mr. Davidson a close second. At the outset he passed over the question of the feasibility of a council of the Empire, contending that the wording of the resolution did not permit of such being called in question. Y. M. C. Victorious In Interurban Debate on Naval Defence

As a climax to the excellent work of the Mock Parliament during the past season, came the debate in the City Hall on Friday evening between the Y. M. C. representatives of Lethbridge and of this city, and the result was a victory for the local club. The event was a thoroughgoing success, not only as providing an entertainment, unique in character (and the large audience which was privileged to hear the flow of oratory was fully appreciative of this side), but on account of the vast educational benefit in the broadening of mental outlook and of sympathies, which must accrue from debates on such subjects as the one selected. The chair was occupied by Mayor Milne and, as was well said by the Rev. Mr. Farrell at the close of the debate, his presence was not a mere matter of form, but an indication of active personal interest in the intellectual welfare of the young men of the city.

The subject for debate was: Resolved: That it would be more conducive to the best interests of the British Empire for Canada to proceed at once to create a navy of her own for the purpose of co-operating with the British Navy in Imperial defence, than for Canada to contribute annually toward the support of an Imperial navy through an Imperial council in which she would have due representation, and within whose jurisdiction would come its entire management and control.

The debaters for the affirmative were Messrs. S. J. Shepherd, W. H. McLelland and R. R. Davidson, of Lethbridge; for the negative, Messrs. C. Sansom, D. R. Ware and P. R. Bryenton. The two leaders, Mr. Shepherd and Mr. Sansom were allowed twenty minutes for the presentation of their arguments, the other speakers fifteen minutes each, and the affirmative was allowed ten minutes for rebuttal. The judges were Messrs. O. D. Austin, J. Benson and C. J. Wilson.

In the introductory sentences of an able and eloquent speech, Mr. Shepherd spoke of the personal pleasure he felt in discussing one of the great questions of the day, the question of national defence, upob which depended national safety. No nation had kept its title to the free use of the sea, and failed to achieve national greatness. No land locked nation had been trult great. The time had come when it was no longer possible to deny to Canada the status of a nation. The orthodox opinion of the British admiralty was that the overseas ttates would be contributors so a nImperial navy. Centralization and strategic advantage of having the navy under one rommand were urged in favor of this view. But it was impossible to separate strategy from policy. In an Imperial council such as the negative side desired, Canada could have no real control. Our representatives would be a small minority, and the principle of autonomy, that they who paid the taxes should control expenditure would be violated. The expenditure on the British navy was today under the control of parliament. Would the British people be content to vest the powers of taxation in a council such as the one proposed? Would Canada be content that her share of the expenditure should be controlled from Whitehall? The opinion of the experienced statesmen of the empire bore out the speaker's contention, that the organic union of the states of Greater Britain could best be promoted by the building of auxiliary navies for co-operation with the Imperial fleet. Viscount Milner, in Britain; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in Canada; Mr. Deakin in Australia, all had supported the latter view. The building of a Canadian navy would strengthen our loyality to the Empire; the sending out of the money for the support of a fleet controlled from Whitehall would weaken it. Canadians fought in South Africa in the Empire's hour of need who would never have done so had they been compelled to merge themselves in the greater British army. And while in the early stages of military training in the Dominion British officers have been engaged by the department of militia, these had been gradually replaced by Canadians. What had been done in the army could be done to the navy. From the militia we had formed the nucleus of an enrolled army. From naval volunteers we might evolve a permanent naval force. In regard to the control of an Imperial campaign, British fairplay and Canadian good sense might be relied upon to adjust any questions which might arise. Canada no doubt, would be content to leave the direction of the campaign in the hards of the British authorities.

On being called upon to speak for the negative side, Mr. Sansom wasted no time on preliminaries but, after clearly defining the scope of the resolution, entered at once upon its discussion, and his eloquent and persuasive speech was a fusillade of arguments in favor of the negative side. He was without doubt the strongest debater of the evening, with Mr. Davidson a close second. At the outset he passed over the question of the feasibility of a council of the Empire, contending that the wording of the resolution did not permit of such being called in question. The p[illegible]ate was which of the two alternatives would be more conducive to the interests of the British Empire. The question was entirely an Imperial one and Canadian interests were only to be considered in so far as they were the interests, also, of the Empire as a whole. The British Empire's existence depended on the existence of Great Britain. Canada might fall, any of the Colonies might fall, and the Empire still remain in existence. But let any disaster happen in the little island across the Atlantic, the Empire's centre, and the British Empire was at an end. There could be no question that Great Britain would be more adequately protected by an Imperial fleet than by a British fleet supported by subsidiary navies in colonial waters. The danger zone of the Empire was today in Europe and it was here that protection was most needed. Owing to the peculiar constitution of the British Empire concentration was essential for adequate defence and the strategic value of one head in naval matters was incalculable. The speaker went on to give weighty diplomatic reasons for the centralization of naval power Imperial diplomats would feel greater confidence, if they knew themselves to have the support of a world state, than if they remained the representatives of the power of Britain alone. Anything which tended towards unity as the merging of British and colonial interests in one Imperial fleet would do, must inevitably strengthen the Empire. Examples of this process of strength by unification, the United States and Germany were cited. In a country such as ours the population was augmented continually by immigration from foreign lands where our traditions were not known To the new citizens of the Dominion the building of a Canadian navy might be looked upon as the first step towards disruption, towards a breaking away from Great Britain. Then, if Canada had a navy af her own she might at some time wish to refrain from participation n England's foreign wars. Such action would not be in the best interests of the British Empire.

Mr. McLelland opened his speech by congratulating the Y. M. C. of Medicine Hat on the large audience which they had brought together, on a baseball night, and especially on the large number of ladies present. The interpretation of the resolution as given by the previous speaker he could not accept. An unfeasible thing, such as the speaker believed the proposed council to be, could not be in the best interests of the Empire. Rome had fallen because she had not paid attention to the needs of her colonies. The history of Rome the history of the Ottoman empire would be repeated in the case of the Empire of Britain if the colonies needs were allowed to go unrecognized. As no chain was stronger than its weakest link, so no empire was stronger than its weakest part. It was important to defend not only the heart of the Empire but the outposts also. The speaker went on to advocate the development of Canadian resources as the surest means of strengthening the empire. From nickel and iron which we in this country possessed could be manufactured the best armor plate in the world, and this, placed at the services of Britain would be a valuable defence asset. The speaker concluded by appealing to the ladies in the audience whom, he noticed far out-numbered the men, to use their influence to bring Canada to the realization of a sense of her duty to the Empire in the building of a colonial navy.

In a speech which was well described by an opponent as "a blaze of beautiful English" Wr. Ware upheld the negative side. He laid especial emphasis on the broadening influence which the adoption of the council of the Empire and the unification of interests and ideals, would have upon the minds of men. The Canadian, loyal to his country to the last drop of blood in his veins, would not be less devoted because he merged his patriotism in the wider imperialism. The Canadian, the Australian, the New Zealander could exclaim, "We are British. We are the British Empire." Canada with a Canadian navy would not be so formidable as Canada, a joint owner of a great Imperial fleet. The allied powers of Europe would hesitate to rival such a combination. The building of separate fleets by the colonies would not deter Germany in her efforts to outrival Britain, because the great Teutonic power might hope to create discord between the motherland and her daughter states. The Imperial fleet must be one creation, the result of an united Empire. Great Britain, thus strengthened, would be able to hold in check the warring forces of Europe. The downfall of once Imperial Rome was due to lack of centralization and unity of interest. The Council of the Empire would establish that unity of interest which all the empires of the ancients had lacked.

Mr. Davidson opened with a quotation from an eastern paper: "There are still a few advocates remaining of a contribution to the Imperial navy." Reference, the speaker thought, must have been made to the columns of Medicine Hat newspapers. The giving of an annual fixed sum would create no direct interest in naval matters amongst the Canadian people. Australia, after twenty years of the contribution method, was now about to build an Australian fleet, and she was taking the first steps in response to the expressed desire of the English authorities. Most of the great empires of the past had been maintained by force. But the British Empire was founded less on war than on discovery and colonization. The various nations had been autonomous, they had developed in accordance with their individual conditions and needs. A contribution to the British navy savored of tribute, Canada's representation would be so small as to be almost worthless. Such a condition, which would fail to satisfy her national pride, which savored of taxation without representation, would tend towards imperial disruption. Negotiation might arise as to the amount of the annual grant and so friction between the British and colonial government. The policy of a colonial navy was the policy of true Canadian and of sane Imperialism. When, after the passage of years, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa had become great nations, each in control of its own navy, England still might feel secure, though all Europe went against her, living in her children and her children blest in her.

Concludin- the case for the negative side, Mr. Bryenton said that the question of economy loomed large in this mattes of Imperial defence. The question was into which of the two propositions could Canada put her money to secure for the Empire adequate protection at the lowest pos-

New Gas Well is Cause of Wordy Warfare

Mayor and Engineer Make Reports

At the adjourned meeting of the council held in the city hall last evening there were present the mayor and Aldermen Robertson, Morrow, Spencer, Howson, Huckvale and Penhale.

A joint deputation from the Y. M. C. and the fire brigade (Messrs. M. H. Brown, W. B. Finlay and C. Neff) waited on the council to request financial aid for the Athletic Meet to be held on Dominion Day. Mr. Brown pointed out that assistance had never been given to such an object before. The estimated cost was $400, an amount which it would be almost impossible to raise without the city's backing. If the city could give $100 a good field day might be held; if they would see their way to give $200 a much better day of sports might be provided. Mr. Neff said that while the delegation were not authorized by the fire brigade to ask for financial backing the fire boys had offered to arrange with the Y. M. C. for a joint meet. Mr. Finlay pointed out that much of the money required was for the laying out of a track for the foot races. After Ald. Huckvale and Penhale had spoken in commendation of the delegation's proposals the mayor pointed out that there was likely to be no opposition, and that the matter would come beforethe council at an early date. The baseball ground will be used for the purposes of the meet as the professionals will be away from home.

Ald. Howson gave notice of introduction of bylaw for the raising of $16,000 for cement sidewalks and $55,000 for sewers, by debentures.

A deputation from the school board, Messrs. Brotherton and White waited on the council to point out the desirability of having a sewer connection installed in connection with the Montreal Street school. The mayor had stated that delay had been occasioned by the changing of the outlet into the river and by the change in the frontage tax bylaw. In six weeks if the bylaw submitted to the ratepayers carried, the work would be undertaken.

H. Yuill having made a request that the sewer be continued to Fifth Avenue, from the Bank of Commerce it was decided that the work shall be carried out on Mr. Yuill putting up the money.

The date of the court of revision for the assessment was fixed for June 7th.

The greater part of the evening was taken up by the discussion of a long report brought in by the mayor in regard to the engineer's actions in connection with the work on the new gas well. The report stated that the engineer had in the first place failed to carry out the instructions of the council in regard to the finishing up of the well. At a committee meeting held later he had agreed to have the six inch casing which had raised from its seat, put back again. In this matter there had been nothing done. Mr. Morrison had stated that he would stand or fall by the opinion of Mr. Coste, and both newspapers had subsequently been informed in interviews with that gentleman that the wel, was all right. Mr. Coste had also advised capping. The value to the city of the eight inch casing which, according to the instructions issued by the council, should have been withdrawn, was $733.60. Adding to this the amount expended in wages since the well had been completed by Mr. Grant, $317.50, the total expenditure was seen to be $1101.10. The well was not yet enclosed and it appeared that the expense might yet be doubled. Under the bylaw the mayor was authorized to inspect the conduct of all civic officials and to prosecute and punish carelessness and violation of duty. Any official violating his duty became personally responsible for loss or damage incurred. Are we to allow," the report concluded, "to allow the will of the council to be subordinated to the whim of irresponsible parties." The mayor also enquired whether it was now necessary to retain the extra man in the engineer's office. Ald. Howson said that as chairman of the public works committee he did not know anything about any extra staff. He did not think there was much work going on except ditching.

Ald. Penhale thought the Mayor's report was a reflection on the gas commissioners. He went on to say that he considered it merely as an attempt to divert peoples attention from other matters. The mayor was trying to run everything. He had tried to run the water department and not made a success of it.

Ald. Morrow said the engineer had acted entirely on his own responsibility in regard to the gas well. So far as he the chairman, knew, no instructions were issued by the committee for the pulling of the six inch casing.

In the course of further discussion Ald. Penhale ascribed the trouble in the council to the work of Mr. Grant who had not considered the interests of Medicine Hat since he finished the well drilling. He had shown ill-will in everything that he had done.

Ald Spencer stated that the first thing he had known after the passing of the motion instructing Mr. Grant to pull the eight inch casing was that the six inch casing was being pulled. He did not know who instructed Mr. Martin to go ahead. Apparently it was Ald. Penhale. That alderman, however, said that he himself knew nothing about it until the evening of the day on which the six inch casing was moved.

The mayor and Ald. Robertson both expressed the opinion that Mr. Grant should have been allowed to put a gate on the well and to try it under rock pressure. He would then have been able to tell whether it was satisfactory or not. Ald. Howson also agreed with this view. If he had sunk a similar well for himself and it had turned out good and dry he would have had it left as it was, and if it turned out unsatisfactory on being capped, he would have had the man who started it finish the job.

Rising to explain his course of action, Mr. Morrison traced up the circumstances which had led to the engagement of Mr. Martin as gas expert at a salary of $600 per year payable monthly. The engineer had on March 5th been given power by the council to appoint Mr. Martin, though at the latter's request no minute had been entered in the minute book. On April 9th the secretary-treasurer was notified officially of the appointment. The morning after the meeting on April 19 the engineer had phoned Mr. Morrow to ask if he could go ahead with the work on the finishing up of the gas well. Ald. Morrow said "Yes, go ahead with the work." The engineer gave instructions to pull the six inch casing as Mr. Martin advised, but he (the engineer) did not know the motion of the council until the afternoon when work had been started. Mr. Grant then showed him the council's resolution, which was his first intimation that the eight inch casing alone was to be withdrawn. When MacPherson came in to ask for authority to pull the six inch casing the engineer had given him such and told him to follow all Mr. Martin's instructions. At a later meeting the gas commissioners gave instructions to go on with the well. On April 29 Mr Coste met the mayor and a number of others, the engineer being also present. Mr. Coste bore out what had been done; he advised against the pulling of the 8 inch casing, and said that a stuffing box casing should be used. At a meeting of the gas commissioners on May 6, the Mayor and Ald. Morrow and Penhale being present, the engineer was instructed to have the 6 inch casing put back to its seat. Later the mayor told him to get it done as cheaply as possible. Mr. Grant had been asked for a figure and had quoted $180. Mr. Martin was not in town, but he would be asked as soon as he returned to figure on the job.

"As far as I have known" the engineer concluded, "I have acted in accordance with the council's instructions and in the best interests of the city.

There was some talk during the course of further discussion of cancelling Martin's appointment and the mayor said that he would refuse to further remunerate him until there was a minute on the book confirming the appointment.

Tenders for the roofing of the grand stand were referred to parks and markets committee.

The mayor and Ald. Howson were appointed purchasing committee in accordance with the recommendation previously brought in.

The secretary-treasurer was instructed to write Mr. Maharg of the C. P. R. to the effect that the engineer is preparing plans for the new subway, but that the work will in all probability not be undertaken this year.

Ald. Spencer thought it was an unsatisfactory arrangement to have the engineer acting as commissioner. He had always been of the opinion that it was unfair to expect the engineer to discharge the duties of both positions adequately. At next regular meeting he will introduce a bylaw to rescind the bylaw appointing Mr Morrison public works commissioner.

The chief of police will be instructed to enforce the bylaw re hours for water service. The secretary-treasurer will advertise the hours, 6 to 9 a.m and 4 to 10 p.m. once in each of the local papers.

Council adjourned till Friday evening.

The Mock parliamentarians will meet on Thursday the 20th inst., for the discussion, in council, of civic affairs.

Mr. E. S. Martin, manager of the Bank of Montreal, has been transferred from this city to the management of the Portage la Prairie branch of the bank. His place will be taken by Mr. R. M. Napier of Indian Head.

SPECIAL MEETING OF SCHOOL BOARD

At a special meeting of the school board held in the secretary's office on Thursday evening, W. T. Williams submitted a pencil sketch of a proposed slight change in the front elevation of the building. This was adopted. Mr. Hawthorne was authorized to appoint Chas. Taylor as clerk of works for the building. A deposit of 2½ per cent must be put up by the contractor.

MAY "CANADA-WEST MONTHLY"

"Canada-West Monthly" for May opens with an article by Arthur Stringer, "Mr. Optimist of Calgary," which illustrates to rather an unusual degree the breezy, joyous spirit of the west. "The Romance of the Theatre in Canada," by Robson Black, dramatic editor of the Toronto "News," treats of the progress of the stage in Canada and is illustrated with photographs of old theatrical favorites. The concluding paper of "The Rural Nucleus," by Professor Charles Richmond Henderson gives a statistical account of school conditions in Western Canada, while this month's instalment of "The Sowing" presents the views of Earl Stanhope on the immigration problem. The thitd of "The Letters of Louis," by Louis Kon, appears in this month's issue and continues the recital of the experiences in Canada of the exiled Russian revolutionist. "The Story of the Play" features "Salvation Nell," Mrs. Fiske's new vehicle, and is illustrated with a portrait sketch of Mrs. Fiske, drawn from life by Hugh Stuart Campbell. Short stories, articles and verse are by Cy Warman, George H. Cushing, Arthur Hawkes, John Day, S. E. Kiser, C. L. Armstrong, S. Wellwood and Preston Willis. The cover design illustrating "Mr. Optimist of Calgary," is from the brush of a young Canadian artist, Charles A. MacLellan, and the whole number is profusely illustrated.

CANADA'S GRAIN VIA MEXICO

Mexico City, May 2—The Tehuantepec National Railroad is making arrangements for the handling of large shipments of grain. During the recent visit of P. W. Peters, assistant to the second vice-president of the C. P. R., arrangements were made for the moving of the wheat from western Canada to Europe, via the Tehuantepec National. In order to do this the company will be forced to add special facilities for loading grain on the cars at Salina Cruz and unloading at Puerto, Mexico.

This arrangement will allow wheat from western Canada to be put on the English market at the same rate as wheat from further east, which is carried by the Atlantic route.

MORE DAYLIGHT IN SIGHT

The daylighe saving bill, fathered by E. N. Lewis, member for West Huron, has made splendid progress and will become law during the present session of the Dominion parliament. The measure has been favored by the energetic championship of its promoter and by intelligent consideration on the part of the parliamentary committee which was appointed to deal with it. This committee has sent out a large number of communications to ascertain the feeling of the general public and the responses appear to have justified the introduction of this unique reform.

It is proposed the bill will go into operation from the first Sunday in April to the first Sunday in November. Briefly stated, the effect of the bill is to move the usual hours of work and leisure nearer to sunrise. It is claimed for the measure that it will promote the greater use of daylight for industrial and recreative purposes, that it will benefit the physique, general health and welfare of all classes o the community, and that it will reduce the industrial, commercial and domestic expenditure on artificial light.

The bill will not interfere with the present hours of labor. Those who go to work a 7 a.m. and work until 5 p.m. or 6 p.m. as the case may be, will still keep the same hours, only they will have more daylight after work is over.

The measure suggests the possibility that there are many ways in which the public interests can be served apart from public agitation. Our committees at Ottawa seem to be weak in their application to study of questions which are not ushered in with public clamor. E. N. Lewis has set a good example in digging up a reform which the average Canadian citizen had never thought of.

WATER RATES IN LETHBRIDGE

From a recent Lethbridge Board of Trade pamphlet, the following item is culled. Supposedly it is intended to show how low the cost of living is in the sister city:

"Water is charged for at the rate of $20 per year for asingle tap, 10 per cent discount for cash."

In Medicine Hat the rate is $12, with cash discount of 10 per cent!

LIVER COMPLAINT

Whenever the liver becomes deranged, and the bile ducts clogged, liver complaint is produced, and is manifested by the presence of constipation, pain under the right shoulder, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, slimy-coated tongue and headache, heartburn, jaundice, sour stomach, water brash, catarrh of the stomach, etc.

sible cost. Undoubtedly the centralization of an Imperial fleet would prove the cheapest. Imperial control of such a navy was preferable even to British control, because, where the interests of the Empire were at stake, British prejudice might enter in and affect, to the detriment of the Empire as a whole, the course of action. If under a system of seperate navies, the interests of Canada and of the Empire should not coincide, serious discord might be created. Today before the growth of opposing interests took place, was the time to merge into one whole the interests of Greater Britain. Just as it was not to the best interests of Canada that the provinces should have complete autonomy, so in the matter of naval defence it was not in the best interests of the Empire that the colonies should be completely autonomous.

In rebuttal Mr. Shepherd replied to many of the points raised by the opposing side, after which the judges retired. They were absent for 20 minutes before returning to announce their decision. During this interval highly interesting speeches were made by Ald. Spencer and the Rev. A. C. Farrell. To Ald. Spencer it appeared that the great question was that of the size, the broadness of the mind of the individual. If sectional interests were to be given chief consideration, then the speaker was in line with the views of the affirmative. If on the other hand wider interests were considered, he believed the negative had the better case. The speaker believed that an united British Empire, united in defence of the just rights of all peoples, would be a sure guarantee of protection for the weak and oppressed, and such massacres as had recently taken place in Turkey would forever be impossible.

Mr. Farrell, after congratulating the debaters on the manner in which their arguments had been presented, referred to the great educational value of such events. There was a great call today for leadership, for clean men who could think upon their feet and face a public audience.

A recital was given by Mr. Ware in response to repeated demands from the audience.

On the return of the judges, the chairman, Mr. C. J. Wilson, announced that the negative side were the winners, such being the unanimous decision. The Lethbridge side had been handicapped by their reading of the resolution, the judges had decided beforehand that the feasibility of the council or of the Canadian navy was not within the sphere of debate.

Mr. Sheppard congratulated the Medicine Hat Y. M. C., said that he naturally had some slight feeling of regret at the defeat of his side. He looked forward, however, with keen anticipation to the time when he should have a chance to get back at the Medicine Hat men in Lethbridge.

Mr. Sansom said he naturally experienced some slight feeling of satisfaction (laughter) at the result of the debate. He looked forward with keen anticipation to beating the opposing side in Lethbridge.

The evening was brought to a pleasant conclusion by a light supper to the guests, and Y. M. C. members and friends in the gymnasium hall. After the many good things had been partaken of, the Mayor, who officiated as master of ceremonies, called upon Mr. O. D. Austin for a speech. As one of the judges Mr. Austin said that he believed the winners had won the debate on its merits. He expressed appreciation of the hospitality shown to himself and his fellow citizens. Where local feeling was liable to run high, such events as this had a highly salutary effect. It was regrettable that sometimes there arose unfriendly rivalry between our western cities. Medicine Hat and Lethbridge were cities recognized as two centres of the province and it was all for good that if wordy warfare and in social intercourse their representatives should meet. He hoped to meet Medicine Hat debaters in Lethbridge in the near future.

Mr. Benson congratulated the speakers on the way in which they had conducted the debate, and announced that in the near future a mock council meeting would be held to which the mayor and aldermen of the city would be invited.

DANGERS OF NEGLECTING A SORE.

WORKING men and women throughout the Dominion find that Zam-Buk is the greatest boon they can have as a healer of accidental cuts, burns, and bruises, as well as skin diseases. Mr. H. G. Purchase, conductor on the Toronto Street Railway, tells how this great herbal balm benefited him when he met with his accident.

The trolley pole of his car slipped off the live wire, and the rope was caught in the slip-guard. Purchase held on to the rope until his hand was pulled up to the top of the car. There it was held, and the rope, pulled through his fingers by the force of the moving car, tore and lacerated to a shocking extent three fingers, tearing several pieces of flesh completely away. Zam-Buk was applied, and eased the pain very quickly. Writing to this effect, Mr. Purchase says:—

"I had previously had experience of the healing power of Zam-Buk, and the way it soothes cuts and injuries. I, therefore, bound the fingers in Zam-Buk, and it was most gratifying the way in which this balm soothed the pain. Two days after the accident the wounds were closed, and new skin was beginning to form over the top. Then day I dressed the wounds with Zam-Buk, and I am now back again at work with the hand as sound as ever. To look at it you would never know it had been so terribly torn and lacerated.

"I do not think there is anything to equal Zam-Buk as a healer of skin injuries and diseases."

WHAT YOU SHOULD USE ZAM-BUK FOR.

Zam-Buk cures pimples, skin eruptions, burns, cuts, piles, festering ulcers and sores, blood-poisoning, salt rheum, prairie itch, ringworm, bad leg, diseased ankles, old wounds, eczema, and all skin diseases. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c. box, 3 for $1.25, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

The negro preacher was annoyed because he had to preach the funeral sermon of Bunter Nelson, a wicked black man, who bore a bad reputation with every one. In fact, there was not one good thing that could be said in favor of Bunter. His folks were Baptists, but the preacher of that denomination refused to even attend his funeral. Finally, the Methodist minister was induced to preach the funeral sermon.

"We are here" he said, "to attend the funeral of one whom we hope is where we all think he ain't.

COULD NOT GO TO WORK BACK WAS SO WEAK.

Backache is the primary cause of kidney trouble. When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are liable to become affected.

Heed the warning; check the Backache and dispose of any chances of further trouble.

If you don't, serious complications are very apt to arise and the first thing you know you will have Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of Kidney Trouble.

Mr. James Bryant, Arichat, N.S., was troubled with his back and used Doan's Kidney Pills, he writes:—"I cannot say too much about the benefit I received after using three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was greatly troubled with an aching pain across the small of my back. I could not go to work and my back was so weak I would have to sit down. It would go away for a few days but would always return. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I must say they completely cured me."

How to Succeed With Poultry.

The well trained man in every line of work is usually the one to whom the greatest amount of success comes in all business ventures. Look about in any and all directions, study the outcome of every venture, and learn from experience or observation the greatest lessons of the present time; they teach us that success comes as the reward of diligence put forth in an intellectual manner. I have seen a thirty-acre field yield more than three thousand bushels of corn from a single crop; no fertilizer was used, and but little cultivation, as we now understand the term, was given it. During the same year, and in the same locality corn was burned for fuel and potatoes sold at fifteen cents per bushel. At that time even shiftless methods brought at least partial success, but now such methods assure failure from the start.

This is not only the day of progression, but it is the day of compulsion as well. One is compelled either to progress or fall behind in each and every walk of life. We have all been told that there is plenty of room at the top; this was true in the sixteenth century, and it is true today in every line of endeavor, and doubly true of poultry culture. In every branch of trade throughout the world the keenest competition exists. You who dwell in the colony of the King must set at the port of entry on the other side, the competition of far-off Russia for the egg and poultry trade of your own Fatherland. Well may we ponder over the words of the poet who wrote:

"New times demand new measures and new men,
The world advances and in time outgrows
The laws, that in our fathers' times were best."

Without knowledge and experience we fail. No one can fathom the jungle or sea without the line and compass, nor can any of us master the business of growing poultry at a profit unless we have the knowledge of what to do and the experience of how it should be done. Yet there are those who fail to make a success of rearing poultry from no other cause than their own ignorance, carelessness or indifference to the needs of the fowls.

The statement may be a startling one, yet I am convinced that fully one-third of all the chicks hatched do not receive food enough to grow them to maturity. Tons of chick food is wasted on the anxious ones during the first few days or weeks of the chick's existence. It seems to be the general opinion that the young chick must be disturbed every hour or oftener, to be fed. Unfortunately this opinion is not confined; in thousands of instances, the partly grown chicks are almost starved to death.

Recently examples of this have come under my observation, one being a case where over three thousand chicks were so poorly fed that they averaged scarcely two pounds each at over four months of age. Investigation proved that the chicks were fed about four bushels of grain per day; this is about four thousand ounces of grain or one and one-third ounces per day for each chick; during the same week in which we saw the half starved flock, we saw over four thousand chickens in another locality that were fed more than four times as much per day as the other lot. The profitable prices received for the well fed lot proved the advantage of good feeding. In order to succeed with poultry, the chicks must be well hatched "well fed," "well grown" and "well sold," and to accomplish all this, the parent stock must be perfectly well and those who grow the chicks must be "well informed" as to poultry culture.

If I had been asked one year ago to tell this class how to rear a thousand chicks or more upon a farm, I would have told it to rear them by artificial means; if I were myself contemplating such a proposition at this time, I would attempt to hatch and rear the greater part of the chicks with mother hens. The appalling conditions that confront us on every side in the lack of vitality in the producing stock, eggs and chicks prompts me to ask loud and strong for the cause of this quick decline of reproducing power.

Not having positive assurance as to the cause of this trouble, I can only say that it does not exist when the chicks are hatched by hens from eggs laid by hens that have continual freedom. Where the colony system has been properly applied for any length of time and the chicks are reared in the natural way, there is a most notable absence of anemic chicks, and lack of vitality is almost an unknown quantity. During the past year I have seen thousands of eggs from yarded hens fail to produce a living chick; in one instance over seven thousand eggs produced less than one thousand chicks, and not more than one half of these were living at four weeks of age. Eggs from the same hens did little better when placed under hens for hatching, showing conclusively that there was not sufficient strength and vitality in the breeding stock to produce strong healthy chicks. On the other hand more than fifty per cent. is the record of the colony system farm.

"Well hatched" has a much stronger meaning than is generally accorded to this statement. You have undoubtedly been thoroughly trained in the scientific terms as to what is lacking in the chicks that are not "well hatched," but for the quick recognition of those of us who have not been so highly favored, let me say that well hatched chicks have size, weight, strength, vigor and vitality in their general make-up, while on the other hand all of these are wanting in the chicks that are not "well hatched." A chick cannot be well hatched from eggs that do not possess the elements equal to the qualities, nor is it possible for fowls that lack vitality themselves to produce eggs that will bring into existence strong healthy chicks. This being admitted as true, the first necessity for success is, parent stock possessing marked vitality. When the real test of endurance comes to us in the way of unusual occurrences, such as heat, cold or disease, the greatest calamity occurs in the overcrowded districts; tainted surroundings have a destroying influence on vitality; overcrowding creates the cause of the loss of vitality. Tainted soil, the lack of natural exercise out in the open, overcrowding and unnatural housing, is largely responsible for the lack of vitality in the producing stock. It is quite difficult to overcome this because the seed of destruction has been sown through many generations and we must of necessity rebuild a foundation that has been undermined.

To continue without consideration the hatching and rearing of poultry by artificial means, is certain to destroy vitality because it is so extremely artificial that the product is a hot house plant that is not intended for propagation but for sale. We willingly admit the value of hatching and brooding machines of the present day; without them we could not grow poultry for market sufficient to half satisfy the people, but the producers are badly at fault when they destroy the vitality of the breeding stock by rearing them away from the mother hen.

The best poultry should be grown upon the farm; the farm is the natural home for the hen; there she can roam at will and live in a way that improves rather than depletes vitality. More poultry should be grown upon farms than has been in the past but more thought must be given to its production, or failure is assured. The cost of production each year, and the value of the best as advanced to meet this additional cost but on the other hand, poor quality has never sold at lower prices than it sells for at the present time. If you wish to succeed with poultry on the farm, remember that the way to accomplish this is to meet the requirements that demand that chicks must be "well hatched, well fed, well grown and well sold," and the parent stock must be strong in vitality and not lacking in any of the several requirements that are demanded by nature for the production of healthy offspring.

An Epoch Making Budget

For the first time a British chancellor of the exchequer has issued a challenge to the ruling classes, the aristocracy and feudalism of wealth which in England has stood for political prestige. For the first time a budget has been introduced by which it is proposed to make up a year's deficit, not by taxation of all the classes, but by the taxation of the extremely wealthy and of a trade—the liquor trade—which is of all vested interests the most strongly entrenched in British politics. And conjoined with the taxation proposals is a comprehensive scheme of social reform; a bold effort is to be made to combat the evils of poverty and unemployment, to check the race degeneracy which a notoriously bad land system and laissez faire industrial life have brought about. In regard to this scheme W. T. Stead says: "It is not a budget, it is a manifesto, a proclamation in trumpet tones to all the world that England has now definitely abandoned her precedents and has made the condition of the people the first question of the day." Essentially it is an application of the principle of taxation according to "ability to bear," propounded by the father of political economy, Adam Smith.

In common with all commercial countries, England has suffered from financial depression during the past year; and though the falling off in revenue has not been so large as in Germany, her great European rival, the chancellor has been faced with a deficit of nearly £16,000,00 sterling. In point of fact, were it not for the increased expenditure on the navy and on old age pensions Mr. Lloyd-George would have found the increase in taxation almost unnecessary. The government have shown a determination however to push forward their plans for social reform, and as these have been thwarted continually by the House of Lords in their devotion to selfish class interests, only one course of action remained. According to constitutional practice the Lords have no power to amend a money bill and the rejection of a budget has been unknown for generations. The opportunity, therefore, lay in the direction of the budget, and Mr. Lloyd George has succeeded in attaching to this financial bill most of the democratic reforms to which the government stands pledged.

The most important features of the budget are:

1. A revision in the income tax and extension of the principle of differentiation between earned and unearned incomes first introduced by Mr. Asquith in 1907. According to the new proposals, the tax on incomes under £2,000 which are in the form of salaries or received for professional services will remain as before, nine pence in the pound. The tax on incomes derived from investments (unearned) will be increased from a shilling to a shilling and two pence on the pound on earned in comes over £2,000 the tax will be raised from nine pence to one shilling. All incomes over £5,000 per annum will pay a supertax of six pence in the pound, while men with incomes of less than £500 will be allowed an abatement for each child under sixteen years of age. The estimated extra yield from the income

If you have never tasted Christie's you may say that there never is much flavor to a soda biscuit. Just you try Christie's and see!

The flavor of the pure, wholesome raw materials that go into Christie's "Zephyr Cream" Sodas is carried through to the finished product—and made lasting—by scientific methods of mixing, baking and packing. The Christie Flavor is delightful. Test it.

The Yellow Peril

One of the great problems in connection with the government of any people is the forming of adequate laws to ensure the well-being of the laborer. The Socialist claims that in the past, and to a large extent in the present laws are made in favor of the capitalist; and that in most cases the interests of the laborer are overlooked. That the contention has no ground, no unbiased student will contend. Our legislators necessarily co e more in contact with men of means who build and direct industries than with the men who work therein. Money has been a great source of influence and the opinions of the man who possess it have been listened to. But we are gradually learning the folly of our past course, and our legislators are beginning to realize that the welfare and progress of a nation is much more dependent on the well-being and prosperity of the laborer than that of the capitalist. The latter for a long time yet will remain a small minority of the population, and a government ought to aim at "the greatest good to the greatest number." Possibly the growing conviction of the scriptural precept that the strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, has had some influence on the change of objective in legislation; but the greater influence has been the recognition that since the laborer forms the vast majority of the population the betterment of his condition means the strengthening of the nation.

Various influences have contributed toward lowering the wages of the worker. The one which we have heard the most about in recent years has been the competition of yellow labor. Japanese, Chinese and to some extent our fellow British subjects the Hindus, have landed on the western shores of our country, and have proved to be a disturbing factor in the labor market. Just how strong the feeling on this theme is in the portion of the country where the Oriental has congregated, few who never visited British Columbia realized until we observed a certain candidate for parliamentary honors elected on the strength of a forged telegram which expressed sentiments unfavorable to ytellow labor. An insistent demand of the laborer has been that the competition resulting from ye,low labor shall be reduced to a minimum. A tax of $500 per head has been placed on incoming Chinamen with the hope of excluding him from the country.

In the discussion of the "yellow peril," as the problem has been called, one factor has to a large extent been lost sight of. We have been looking exclusively at our own interests in the matter and have been forgetting our obligations to the Orientalist. We ought to bear in mind that it was we who first disturbed the Chinaman and the Japanese; not they who first disturbed us. These egstern nations lived to themselves and maintained a closed door to all outsiders, until with our guns we battered a hole in the wall they had built about their national existence, and made an opening for the white man to enter. As it was tersely put by a speaker at the great Missionary Congress recently held in Toronto, "The same hole which let the white man in, let the Chinaman out." The making of the hole was not the yellow man's wish but ours. And if as a result of the making of the hole complications have arisen which we did not then forsee, we must not lose sight of the fact that we were the prime movers in the new situation. From the theoretical standpoint the Chinaman and the Japanese have just as good a right to enter our country as we have to enter theirs, and on moral grounds the day we exclude them we ought to exclude ourselves from the Orient.

But even waiving this aspect of the question and for the sake of argument granting that we have the undoubted right to exclude the yellow man from our country; it may be seriously doubted whether the exclusion, if it were accomplished, would bring the desired result. It might be a case of, if the hill will not come to Mahommet, Mahommet will go to the hill. If we will not allow the yellow man to work in Canada for whatever wages he likes, we cannot stop him from working at home for such a wage. It is merely a shifting of the scene from British Columbia to China. While tariff walls make a certain restraint on the natural channels of trade, it is doubtful if it could successfully deter the manufacturers from exporting the raw material to China and shipping it back again as a manufactured product. Already the trade world has seen illustrations of this very thing. America produces cotton which is shipped in the raw state to England where it is manufactured into the article of commerce and then shipped back again to America to the consumer. England imports steel from the continent of Europe and sends it back again in the form of machinery. The day is fast approaching when the Chinaman will become a keen competitor on the labor markets of the world without ever leaving the land of his birth. His native country has plenty of resources in the way of coal and iron; and with the awakening of the Chinaman which is rapidly taking place, China is bound to become a great factor in the industrial life of the world.

We must as a nation face these questions in a large spirit. We ought not to consider them solely from the standpoint of our own interest, but also to remember somewhat our obligations to eastern nations and the considerat[illegible] them owing to the circumstances which brought about the present situation.

A Reasonable Proposition

With respect to the $10,000,000 loan to the Grand Trunk Pacific two very reasonable propositions are made from the Conservative benches. One af these is that the railway company having the use of this large sum should pay us what it costs us to borrow it in the markets of the world. Today we are borrowing money at a rate far above 4 per cent., and are investing it in the eastern section of the Grand Trunk Pacific under contract to receive 3 per cent. only for it. This is bad business. No sensible man would have committed us to such a bargain Under the arrangement the country will lose $142,000,000 in fifty years, according to the estimates now available.

This new loan of $10,000,000 we are to make at 4 per cent. The money may cost us 4 1-2 per cent. Why should we borrow at four and a half per cent and lend to the G. T. P. or any other corporation, at four? Why should not we get for the money what it cost us? The proposition that we be protected from loss by charging what we give is a good one. The refusal of the government to adopt this idea is another proof that the ministers think more of corporations than of the people. While this proposal ought to be accepted, the second, which Mr. Borden makes is equally worthy of favorable consideration. Mr. Borden proposes that as security for the loan the company should pledge with the government a proportion of the common stock. Now the stock in this company is placed at $25,000,000. Of this $24,900,000 has been given to the Grand Trunk Railway Company for nothing, while $42,000 worth of it has been sold to certain gentlemen connected with the road; to qualify them as directors, for $5,200! The company puts $5,200 into the road; the country and the bond holders put in the balance that is needed to carry the project through. This division of the responsibilities seems to have been invented by that great financial genius, Sir Willrid Laurier, ably assisted by Finance Minister Fielding. Seeing that the country is to put up another tenmillion dollars why should it not hold a fair portion of the stock as a guarantee for the money that is loaned? A bank would require collateral. Is it not desirable that the country should be similarly secured?

The opposition of the ministers to this reasonable suggestion is absolutely without justification. Put one excuse can be found for it, and that is a desire on the part of these politicians to serve their corporation masters regardless of the interests of the people. We seem to have at Ottawa a department of the Grand Trunk running the country, instead of a government independent of companies, and representative of the people.—Mail and Empire.

There must be something in sight in the line of a general election, or perhaps the government wants some favors from Medicine Hat. At any rate something unusual is going to happen as a man was seen cleaning windows in the new post office building last week. Perhaps we are mistaken in our prognostications and it may be that it is only the intention of the government to give the passing pedestrian an opportunity to look inside and see what a fine public building the next generation will have.

We have been anxiously looking for bulletins issued from the News office reporting the condition of Prof. Campbell, who is said to have taken sick at St. Paul, on his way her? In the meantime the dry farming enthusiasts are taking it out in waiting.

The Times for Job printing

Ideal Canadians.

First Prize Oration, Delivered by Moose Jaw Collegiate Boy.

(From the Collegiate Outlook)

So e of you here tonight may not be Canadian citizens, but the majority are bound to feal more or less deeply on any subject which would tend to make Canada a truer and nobler democracy. And surely such a subject is that of the Ideal Canadian Citizen, for it is the citizen that makes the country and when those of the country have reached the ideal state we will be without an equal.

Each of you have an idea, however vague it may be, of what a Canadian citizen is. You know that, roughly speakin- he is a man who lives in Canada, but have you got the deep underlying notion of what that man's duties are, what his life ought to be, what his actions ought to be to further the progress of Canada? Have you got the idea? And then when we put in that one word ideal and make it the "Ideal Canadian Citizen" you should have the idea of a citizen of Canada, who performs his duties to the highest possible degree of perfection, whose life is pure and noble and whose actions tend to aid the advancement of Canada. That is the "Ideal Canadian Citizen" that is the sort of men who are going to make Canada greater than any one ever yet dared to dream.

Now what are the duties of this "Ideal Canadian Citizen?" The first perhaps since it effects the life of the country directly is that of his love for his home land. He must subordinate his own interests to those of country, must be unselfish when her cause is at stake, willing to give up his possessions, his friends his home, his very life if need be. In olden days the ancient chief's pride lay in the physical aid he could lend his country in the Scottish nation we find the greatest heroism even to the mother who would give up her only son to the cause of old Scotland. That is the spirit we want in our "Ideal Canadian Citizen." We do not mean to say that that spirit does not exist today, rather the contrary. If Canada were to call for men to serve her in her parliaments she would not want, and were her need so dire she must ask for our very lives, how many would withhold them? Besides this spirit we want one of honor in everything, and we want this "Ideal Canadian Citizen" to make an honorable, intelligent use of his franchise.

This side of this man's life affects the life of the country directly, there are other sides of his life and actions which affect if indirectly. These are his attitudes toward mankind in general, men in particular and his home.

What sort of a man would he be expected to be in his public life? In his daily routine of business? What sort of principles would you expect to be the governing powers of that man's life? This is the sort of man he would be. He would be a man honest to every one, honest to his friends, his colleagues, his neighbors his very enemies. He would be kind hearted and generous and loyal to every noble cause. He would be among the foremost to lend his aid to any movement for the good of mankind. If some good institution were being erected or needed aid in anyway there would be be in the midst of its helpers doing all in his power. Indeed anyone who would lend his support to such a project would be worthy of a true Canadian citizen, and would be doing his share to lift the common class to a higher level and bringing both them and himself nearer that ideal before him. A good instance of this is to be seen right today in the ardent and sympathetic support our Y. M. C. A. is receiving from the men of our city. In such cases as this the noblest traits in a man's character appear and men show their deeper truer natures.

Now, take a man who would be dishonest in matter, who would cheat his neighbor slick and clean out of a piece of land, or a sum of money or anything else; one who would steal or tell a falsehood or do an intentional injury to anyone—What would you call that man? An "Ideal Canadian Citizen?" No! most decidedly no! He would be unworthy even of the name "citizen," let alone that of ideal. He would be disgrace to Canada, and his influence would retard the development of many a more deserving man. He would be a clog on our national progress and the sooner we replaced him with a man of the truer type, the better for all. The man we would wish to see would be one, honest, truthful and unselfish in every matter, he would be more like our ideal.

Then use your imaginations to picture what sort of a man this "Ideal Canadian Citizen" would be in his home, what sort of a home he would have (if he had one at all). Would you expect this "Ideal Canadian Citizen" to become intoxicated and make a fool of himself, or to go home and make the life of his wife a torture to her with his cruelty and neglect, or abuse those little ones who depend on him for their daily bread? Would you expect that? Never! The man we have in mind would be temperate in his habits and the soul of tender care to his family. How would he spend the Lord's Day? Reading the light literature of cheap books and periodicals, looking over his business papers instead of going to church and trying to better himself spiritually? Certainly not; if he were the "Ideal Canadian Citizen," that day would be sacred to him. And besides this he would be enthusiastic and careful in all matters of education in its various forms. If he wanted to find his Bible, he would not have to hunt all over the house to find it at last in some corner among the waste paper, or on a shelf half covered with dust. No! it would be ready at hand and will be his constant friend. This would be our "Ideal Citizen" in his home life.

Now we have tried to consider a few of the qualities of a man who would in our estimation the ideal of Canadian citizenship. He would be patriotic and loyal to his country, he would be honorable in everything and would make an honorable and intelligent use of his franchise. He would be an enthusiastic helper of all movements for the good of his fellow men. His habits would be temperate; he would be affectionate to his family and careful of their welfare. Education in all its forms would be his unceasing care. His bump of religion would be well developed and his Bible and church would be sources of pleasure and instruction to him. Such a man would be the ideal of Canadian citizenship and that is the sort of man we want in Canada.

Now since these men do not exist in any other nation, we cannot import a few, and since our own citizens have not a good way to go to reach the ideal state, where are we to get these men? Right here in Canada we have the future nation—the youth of Canada, and now is the time to train the mind while it is yet young and easily impressed. How are you going to train them? Try something like this. Keep all influences of evil out of the home; care for the education and the development of mind and soul and body; foster a feeling of love for mankind in general and a spirit of sacrifice and benevolence for all good causes; teach the Christian doctrines in the home and make them a matter of principle of life for the child; eradicate all selfish and narrow motives and according as that is thoroughly and conscientiously done will the future citizens of Canada be greater their ancestors.

FOREST FIRES IN THE VALLEY AND THEIR PREVENTION.

In the Crow's Nest Valley, in southern Alberta, only thirty three square miles of unburned forest are left out of a total of two hundred and twelve square miles of possible forest area. All this area, according to the reports of early explorers and travellers was originally covered by a dense forest.

Mr. H. R. MacMillan, Asst. Inspector of Dominion forest reserves, made a preliminary investigation of this district in the autumn of 1908, and has embodied the result of his investigations in an interesting report. In the following schedule he summarizes the condition of the tract:

Sod-covered, denuded area, 85 square miles.

Dead standing timber, 32 square miles

Area covered with young growth, 60 miles.

Unburned forest, 33 square miles.

Total, 212 square miles.

Thus no less than 179 square miles out of the 212 (over 84 per cent of the area) has been cleared by fire at one time or another.

Eighteen square miles of the area is above timber line.

The area first mentioned, viz., the sod-covered, denuded area, presents one of the most difficult propositions. Before railway construction started, this area was covered by a heavy fir forest. Now it is "a poor gravelly prairie, unfit for cultivation, of very little value for grazing and which it in no way producing a crop." This is the result of repeated burnings. The first fire does not usually have this effect, but a "second or third fire rarely fails to kill all the forest reproduction" (i. e., the young trees) "to destroy the remaining seed trees, to burn off the upper layer of soil and leave a desolate waste."

Of unburned forest only thirty-three square miles (about sixteen per cent. of the area) remains, and these are situated in the places that are least easy to get at, namely, at high levels and at the heads of valleys and in draws; and this forest is consequently least valuable. It is the timber that is easy to get at that the fire here, as everywhere else, has consumed or damaged.

The most hopeful aspect of the case is presented by the sixty square miles of country covered with young growth. The land on which this young growth is found is "too high on the hillsides and is too rough, stony and gravelly to be fit for agriculture or valuable for grazing." This young stand of timber consists largely of Lodgepole Pine, with a small proportion of spruce and Douglas fir. Properly protected it will in time become of immense value.

The first step in forestry here, and everywhere else, is to preserve the forests that now exist, and so the first first thing necessary in this region is to protect the green timber and the young growth from the fires that have been so disastrous in the past. This is the first problem that is engaging the attention of the Dominion Forest Service.

Up to the present, fire protection in Canadian forests has been effected entirely by patrol of the area to be protected by rangers whose duty it is to watch for fires and put them out (and much of the value of such service is that the ranger can discover and extinguish in its first stages a fire that, left unchecked, might destroy many thousand dollars' worth of timber) and of fire. This patrol will no doubt be the basis of the system finally adopted for this region, supplemented probably by the use of "look-outs" and telephones.

Thirty minutes in South's Optical Room may remove that headache and eye strain for life.

THE STORE FOR VALUE

The Chilled Meat Industry

The report of the commission appointed by the Dominion Department of Agriculture to investigate into the possibility of developing a chilled meat industry in Canada has been published. By a chilled meat industry is meant the killing of live stock at points convenient to the districts where they are raised and the transportation of the frozen or chilled product by a proper system of cold storage to the point of consumption.

It is a fact now generally conceded that the live stock branch of western agriculture is slowly but steadily moving backward instead of forward. This is with out question due to the present system of marketing our live stock, a system which places the producer practically at the mercy of the dealer. While up to the present time grain growing has been the chief branch of agriculture developed in the west, it is quite apparent to thoughtful men that this cannot continue and that a system of mixed farming must by force of circumstances come about, in order that the fertility of the soil may be retained.

The report given as the result of the commission is well worth the close study of every intelligent farmer. The trade in chilled meats is no new thing. It has already been developed and is carried on successfully by notably the Argentine Republic in South America and Australia and New Zealand. The latter two countries are double the distance from Great Britain which is their chief market as well as ours. The meat sent in this way thousands of miles and crossing the hottest portion of the world's surface, reaches its destination in such condition that it can scarcely be distinguished from the freshly killed home article and brings to the New Zealand and Australian stock raiser a price which brings him a good margin of profit. The scheme outlined in the report is a comprehensive one, embracing the chief stock-producing provinces of the Dominion.

While the committee were not in a position to outline a method of actual operation as clearly as might be desired, they have shown that the only way it could be successfully commenced and carried on is under government control and assistance. The whole subject is a splendid one for the different Grain Growers' and stockmen's associations to take up and it is to be hoped that they will do so. No country today offers better facilities in every respect than Canada does for the development of this industry, and as the report points out we are in a position to take advantage of the experience of other countries where it has proved eminently successful. The commission deserve the thanks of every good Canadian farmer.—Grain Growers Guide.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP
Is A Remedy Without An Equal For COUGHS, COLDS, And All Affections Of The THROAT and LUNGS.

Coughs and Colds do not call for a minute recital of symptoms as they are known to everyone, but their dangers are not understood so well. All the most serious affections of the throat, the lungs and the bronchial tubes, are, in the beginning, but coughs and colds.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the admonition to all persons affected by the insidious earlier stages of throat and lung disease, as failure to take hold at once will cause many years of suffering, and in the end that terrible scourge of "Consumption."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is not Sold as a Cure for Consumption but for affections tributary to, and that result in, that disease. It combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with other absorbents, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognized worth, and is absolutely harmless, prompt and safe. So great has been the success of this wonderful remedy, it is only natural that numerous persons have tried to imitate it. Don't be humbugged into taking anything but "Dr. Woods." Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

of differentiation will receive the entax is £3,000,000. While the system dorsement of the vast majority of British taxpayers it has been pointed out that hardship must be inflicted on persons of moderate means who have been enabled to save a competency during their active career, and retire at an advanced age.

An ex-teacher writing in the Nation, the greatest Liberal weekly has offered the most cogent criticism. He points out that after teaching all his life in a position which did not permit of the saving of more than enough to provide a very modest income, he is now faced with the alternative of remaining in England under reduced circumstances or of going to live on the continent where life is cheaper. This raises a very serious question, and the opponents of differentiation contend that its effect will be to drive from the country many of that large leisured class upon whom the tax is to be levied, and that in this way the budget will defeat its own purpose. It remains to be seen whether these prophesies will be fulfilled.

2. While the maximum and minimum death and succession duties will remain as before, an increase in the intervention scale is promised. This is expected will yield £1,370,000.

3. On foreign bearer bonds the stamp duties will be increased from one-half to one per cent., while bonds issued by colonial governments will remain at one-eighth per cent. This will be of substantial benefit to the overseas states, and will undoubtedly tend to popularise investments in Canada. While adhering strictly to her Free Trade traditions, Britain will be thus enabled to give a valuable preference to her daughter states.

4. The Henry Georgian principle of taxation of unearned increment on land is introdduced. It is held that the increase in the value of land which results not from any service rendered by the owner, but simply by the development of the surrounding community belongs properly to the community and not to the owner. Many of the English "great houses," whose rentrolls have increased enormously since the growth of industrialism in England have contributed nothing by personal effort to the enhancement of the values of their estates. The evils of landlordism are most patent in a small country such as England, while in a new country they are not so keenly felt. Lloyd-George does not propose to invade existing values, but all future increases in land values will be taxed by one-fifth. This, while it promises immediate relief, opens up for the future a great new source of revenue, as the price of land is rising fast. It is not a tax on industry but a tax on idleness.

5. The liquor traffic is to be made to bear an increased share of the national burden. License duties are to be increased and a spirit tax levied while taxes on tobacco are expected to provide £2,000,000. No increase is to be made in the taxes on the necessaries of life.

Vast schemes of road improvement, afforestation and colonization are foreshadowed, and the powers of the state are to be used to develop to the fullest extent the country's resources, both in the material and intellectual spheres. A state insurance against unemployment is promised, and for the present year £1,000,000 will be set aside for the beginnings of the work. Both skilled and unskilled trades are to be included.

The radical change in the conception of justice in taxation is to be largely traced to Socialist influence. On the one hand the Fabian society, which aims at the gradual permeation of society with socialistic views and the encouragement of public ownership of utilities and of land, has succeeded in getting a large number of its members returned to parliament both as Liberals and as Labor members. The old character of the Liberal party, which believed in non-interference in the course of industrial life, has been greatly modified. Not primarily as an economic theory, but as a moral force working in and through all classes, and resulting in a greater sense of society's responsibility for her wreckage, Socialism has gained in influence. The Labor party also, as a distinctively working class force, has become a powerful factor in British politics and no government, Liberal or Conservative, will in future be able to ignore its demands.

That the taxation of the super-rich does not impair national credit is evidenced by the fact that Consols and other bilt edged securities on the London stock exchange have continued to rise in value since the presentation of the budget. And this it may be noted, is a budget which has the general support of the Socialis tsection of the House of Commons and, it introduces in milder form such innovations as would be embodied in the first budget under a moderate Socialist regime.

Seeding is in full blast here, spring is later than ever was known in this vicinity we believe. Over a foot of snow fell in April with three weeks of cold weather, but the land has dried sufficiently to work now. By the number of acres planted in potatoes in this locality and surrounding vicinity and with a fair season, we think Medicine Hat will not have to import, this coming fall and winter.

IRVINE

Weddings have been the order of the day lately. On April 26th our friend Kane joined the benedicts' rank taking as his wife Miss Mayberry. They have taken up their residence in town. On Tuesday last one of our prominent business men quietly undertook to forsake bachelor ways, and having persuaded one of Walsh's fair maidens to help him out of his difficulty, repaired to the rectory, where his wants were duly attended to. He also has taken up his residence in town. Come boys, don't be so selfish about those mirthful affairs and let us all share in the gladness of the occasion by giving us a bid to such weddings.

Another couple took a trip to Medicine Hat on Wednesday last and returned as man and wife. The parties concerned are George Mayberry and Miss Victoria Cairns. Mr. Kilton Cairns brother of the bride and Miss Jean Calkins accompanied them and acted as groomsman and bridesmaid respectively.

F. Roth & Co have just received a carload of flour from Moose Jaw and the inhabitants may now expect flour at closer prices than ever before.

Irvine is preparing to build a new $7,000 school which when completed will be a credit to the place. A system of waterworks for the town is also under consideration which if undertaken will give us quite a citified appearance.

The work on the new siding has ceased temporarily. It is to be hoped that it will soon be resumed as the siding is much needed.

On Tuesday last a carload of horses was shipped from this point by one of the ranchers of the south. Fred Weiss & Son are now buying horses with a view to shipping a couple more carloads in the near future.

The business outlook has brightened considerably and our merchants report increasing trade.

Heart Trouble Cured by MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. Andrew Savoy, Grattan's, N.B. writes: In the year of 1906 I was taken sick and did not think I could live any length of time. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that nothing could be done for a case like mine. I consulted the very best doctors but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly get to the floor. I had no pain, but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hopes of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

One day a friend came to see me, and called me by name, said, 'Laura, if I were you I would try a dose of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart trouble.' My husband got me a box, but for two days I was not feeling any better, but on the fourth day my husband said, 'I believe those pills are doing you good.' I was able to say 'Yes, I feel a good deal better this morning.' He said, 'Well, I will get you another box right away.' I took two boxes and three doses out of the third one, and I was perfectly well and have not been sick since then.

I will never be without them in my home for God knows it it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I would not have been alive now.

Council Meeting Last Evening

The Commissionership is Abolished

Consideration of Money Bylaws

At the regular meeting of the council in the city hall last evening there were present: the mayor, Aldermen Robertson, McKay, Morrow, Spencer Howson and Huckvale.

The mayor stated that Mr. Nowiski, one of the signatories of a petition for sewers, had signed the petition under a misapprehension. W. McF. Evans, who was present in the council chamber, said that he was present with another person at the time when the petition was signed. The matter had been thoroughly explained, and it then appeared that Mr. Nowiski understood the meaning of the action. Mr. Nowiski, however, held that he was unaware that he was signing for a petition for a sewer extension, he had willingly signed the petition for sidewalk. Mr. Mahaffy stated that from a legal standpoint it was too late for a complaint to be made. Mr. Nowiski had signed the petition and was responsible for his action.

Messrs O'Hara wrote anent blocks of debentures purchased by them, and suggested that these be made payable at the offices of the Bank of Montreal in Toronto and Montreal. It was also suggested that the bonds should be issued in denominations of $1,000. The matter was referred to the finance committee with power to act.

J. Leigh wrote on behalf of the city band stating that an attempt at reorganization was being made. Applicants for the position of bandmaster were asking what inducement in the way of salary and a position in the city could be offered. The band wished the council to provide a situation for a bandmaster and state the salary which would be given. Referred to parks and markets committee.

A letter was received from Mrs. Laidlaw in regard to her stepson, Jimmie Laidlaw, who had been supported by her from March 12th to May 2nd. She asked for the sum of eighteen dollars, the cost of his board during this period. Referred to health and relief committee with power to act.

A protest against the special assessment for sidewalks on Third avenue from Montreal street to Balmoral street, was signed by Cristopher Cove, Mrs. Le Blanc, Mrs. John Cooper and Richard McNeill. Filed on motion of Alds. Huckvale and McKay.

J. H. Preston wrote asking for a connection with the city's high pressure main. The low pressure main did not give a sufficient supply to properly steam the boiler. Left in the hands of the gas committee.

A committee was received from a number of owners and tenants of property immediately adjoining the buildings now in course of erection for a market, on the east side of block 23, Montreal street. The writers requested that the new building should be made absolutely fire proof, and in accordance with the building bylaw of the city. The writers further requested that the building operations now in progress should cease, unless the desired conditions are complied with. The signatures attached were those of Marshall and Hunter, The Marshall Hardware Co., John Green, F. J. Marshall, Tom Hutchinson, Standard Bottling Co., Union Bank of Canada, Alberta Hotel, W. H. Babb.

Ald. Huckvale had been in conversation with the fire chief in reference to the letter, and had been informed that so far as any bylaw of the city was concerned the building was fully up to requirements. Answering the mayor, Mr. Hatcher said that he had gone through the bylaws and found such to be the case. The letter was filed.

F. F. Fatt, the secretary-treasurer, reported on the sitting of the court of revision in connection with the assessment roll. There had been only one objection—that of Chas. Taylor, who had been assessed for 12½ instead of 12 feet the actual frontage of his property. The error involved a difference of seven cents, which was transferred so as to be against the property of W. J. Brotherton.

On behalf of Ald. Pemhale, Ald. Huckvale gave notice of introduction of a bylaw regarding the market site ...The following accounts were recommended for payment:

IN the House of Commons

Member for Medicine Hat Again to the Fore

Ottawa, May 14—In the house of commons there was a long discussion today over the waterways treaty. C. A. Magrath, of Alberta, Conservative introduced the subject and Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated that had the United States senate amendment not been attached to the treaty it would probably have been ratified ere this, but in view of the rider they should look carefully into the matter before making up their minds.

Mr. Magrath on a motion to go into supply, brought up the question of the waterways treaty with the United States. He found fault with the disinfoiness of the government in appointing Canadian representatives to the international waterways commission and then criticised the appointees, suggesting that patronage rather than fitness had played a part in their selection. While the United States had appointed six eminent engineers to represent them Canada had appointed one engineer, two lawyers, one astronomer and one journalist. Mr. Magrath commented upon the arbitrariness which the United States section of the commission had manifested in at least one instance and declared that more or less throughout the negotiations the Canadian section had allowed themselves to be dominated by the United States representatives.

As an example of this domination he pointed out to the Niagara settlement, the real authors of which he asserted were the American commissioners who had fixed the maximum amount at 18,500 second feet which could be diverted on the American side and then adjusted Canadian diversion therto. At Niagara only 14 per cent of the water flowed over the United States falls and yet the United States was given the right to manufacture 260,000 horsepower as compared with 432,000 power for Canada. In addition half of the Canadian product might be exported so that the United States might get 476,000 horsepower and Canada only 216,000 horsepower.

Mr. Magrath said the Canadian government had allowed matters to dawdle on, taking three years to appoint three commissioners and in the end it found two of them in the corridors of its own departments at Ottawa. He declared that the American government originated ideas. The colonial office in London also showed energy and despatch while the Ottawa government moved only when prodded by the colonial office. The upshot was that the American commissioners were appointed two years before the Canadian section was completed and several of the Canadian appointments showed that the patronage system had been at work, and no special technical experts were appointed. The Canadian section thereof were dominated by letter men.

He criticised the Canadian government far yielding to the Americans when they refused to include the St. Johns river. He wondered what the American attitude would be if Canadian companies supplying power to New York state were forced to desist for the purpose of furnishing the same to Canadian consumers. The Americans had ignored the subject of the transmission of electric energy which had been set for discussion. Then the American section so dominated the Canadian section as to induce it to consent to the use of waters between the two countries, on a basis of "equitable division." This should be continued, have had a rider embodying the principle of "equal benefits."

In conclusion Mr. Magrath dealt with the controversy over the St. Mary's and Milk rivers in Alberta. The former, which is much the larger rises in Montana, flows into Canada, and discharges into the Hudson Bay. The Milk river rises in Montana and discharges into the Mississipi, but has a loop about two hundred miles long in Alberta. A Canadian company has been using the St. Mary's since 1897, and has made an appropriation against the stream under the Canadian law up to 2,000 cubic feet per second. Canada has about 500,000 acres which can be irrigated by this stream. The Americans took up an irrigation scheme several years later, and to serve a tract of 200,000 acres a long distance off, proposed to divert the waters of St. Mary's river. The waterways treaty gives Canada prior right to only 500 second feet and the waters of the stream is to be equally divided between the two countries. "Canada" he said "is to give up the portion of water that has been appropriated under its law, not for the purpose of protecting vested rights in the United States, but to create rights that do not as yet exist"—and in the suggested division of the waters at Niagara." Mr. Magrath added.

The recommendations of the joint commission were made on a basis practically honoring the commitments against the stream in favor of the treaty itself there is enunciated the operative companies. Even in that treaty itself there is enunciated the principle of fully protecting vested rights."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier defended the personnel of the commission declaring it preposterous to say that men were appointed because of their political influence. The commissioners had been entrusted to make a division of the waters of the St. Lawrence basin and every one had to admit that they had made a fair division. As regards Niagara some held that they should have bot more but under a treaty it was impossible for each party to get all that was wanted. If they gave a little more than Mr. Magrath thought they should have given it was still debatable whether they had acted wisely or not. Concerning the St. Mary's and Milk rivers he pointed out that the Americans contemplated putting at reclamation works where water could the head of these streams "immense be stored and would be available during all the summer months. Mr. Magrath and his constituents would have the benefit of it. This, he said was the reason why they had agreed to the diversion of the St. Mary's river into the Milk river.

Sir Wilfrid said he would not care to express an opinion at present on the whole treaty for obvious reasons He would only remark that the senate amendment had been such as to cause delay in the ratification of it.

Two things were to be considered.

(1) What are the special conditions to be affected by it?

(2) The amendment is not as clear and as lucid as one would wish.

The premier said he had not made up his mind regarding the treaty but he was very glad to have the views of those who had spoken, though he was not prepared to say that he would share them.

In conclusion Sir Wilfrid criticized the action of the Ontario government He did not think the Ontario interference was well taken. He could understand the protest regarding the Conmee bill, but when they interfered in the Canada Life legislation they went altogether beyond their authority. The same applied to the waterways treaty. Sir James Whitney and Mr. Hanna might offer their opinions and great weight would be attached to them, but interference was a different thing.

If the amendment by the United States senate had not been put in, said the premier, he would have held strongly that the treaty should be ratified. However, they should now look carefully into the matter before making up their minds.

R. L. Borden at once took up the issue with the premier over his observations regarding the interference of Ontario. He said the premier had destroyed his own argument when he told them that the members of the commission had been instructed to consult with the members of the Ontario government.

Referring to the personnel of the commission he declared that the attitude and policy of the United States in that respect stood in splendid contrast with that of the Canadian government. Turning again to the interference of the Ontario government, he said the province was further justified because the treaty called for legislation which must be enacted by the various provinces where their rights came into question. The house then went into supply.

Correspondence

Dear Sir,—

We would like to know and would ask you to inform us if possible, whether the attack of illness which overtook Professor Campbell on his way to Medicine Hat, to establish a Dry Farm, has proven very serious or fatal. Otherwise a few days indisposition should not deter him from proceeding with this undertaking which we believe means much to us as farmers, and much to the citizens of Medicine Hat. It is getting late in the season and it is time something was being done.

Dry Farm Advocate.

(We are informed on creditable authority that the whole business is a fake, that the Government never had any transaction with Prof. Campbell and that the whole thing was an election dodge. If such be the case, those who were expecting so much from the establishment of an experimental farm on dry farming lines, had better look elsewhere for encouragement.—Editor.)

Medicine Hat,
May 17th, 09.

To The Times:—

Dear Sir,—My attention has been drawn to the editorial column of the last issue of The News, in which the editor endeavors to throw dust in the eyes of the electors of Ward 2, in order that he can proceed to carry his henchman from Ward 1 and foist him on the electors of Ward 2. Perhaps Mr. Forster has some old axes to grind, and The News could trust its old friend to turn the municipal grinding stone to his advantage better than he could Mr. Ansley, and he ingeniously raises a mist, and then complains in his paper that things look misty. As The News editor has used my name quite freely in his sheet, hoping to place me in a false slight in the eyes of the electors, to counteract this influence I am forced to this reply. The News thinks it is a small matter where the candidate resides but I am persuaded from past experience that the people of Ward 2 know better. The improvements carried out in Ward 1 by the Public Works department clearly prove where the city fathers' influence has been exerted in past years. The News article in question says: "In the municipal elections last fall Mr. Ansley was a candidate in Ward One against Ald. Howson. He did not live in Ward One, nor was his name on the voters' list as holding property in Ward One. These circumstances make the consistency of residence within the ward, at least in this election, rather misty and doubtful, in the face of such as near-at-home precedent. It is really a question of men and their attitude towards our municipal affairs, and not a question of residence."

"It is queer how things work out sometimes," I will agree with Mr. Forster in this, and I will add some examples for his consideration. Mr. Forster was alderman for Ward 1 in 1908. He did not ask any salary till some time after his election. Mr. Wm. Cousins was then mayor. They two, were not the best friends possible. Neither did Mr. Forster lend his aid to carry out the mayor's plans, but blocked him on every thing possible. But strange to say this same Forster pushed forward a resolution to pay this same mayor a salary of $1000 a year. This was strange generosity. But perhaps Mr. Forster hoped to be benefited when he became an aspirant for the office. One of the misty things is why The News quotes the assessment roll to show his friend Mr. Adsit to hold double the property Mr. Ansley does. Mr. Adsit holds two lots on speculation in Ward 2 and lives in Ward 1. I pay taxes on six lots and two houses assessed at $7,000. One is my residence and The News knows this fact by their delivery boy. This clerical error on the part of an official cannot be laid at my door.

The News quotes me at the last municipal election as running in Ward 1, having no property there, as a precedent to foist his friend on to us in Ward 2. If the precedent is fully carried out th? result of Wednesday's poll will teach Mr. Adsit the same lesson that I was taught in ward one. Its verdict was that it did not want the loan of a candidate from outside. I may say here that I strongly objected to run last year in Ward 1, as I was not a resident of the same, and I confess I made a sad mistake when I yielded to the pressure of the deputation who waited on me for my decision. My present situation is not one of my choosing, for a deputation from Ward 2 came to me with a request several days before either of the other two candidates' names were mentioned and asked me if they got a requisition signed would I accept the nomination for alderman for Ward 2. My answer was that if it was the wish of the people of the ward I would consent, but I would not work myself to secure the position. Since the third candidate jumped out to save the ward from ruination, I have gone and done some work myself.

The News in two editorials has spent its strength setting forth all Mr. Adsit's good qualities as a public man. But unfortunately it published the statement that Mr. Adsit was dismissed by the present council Was it because he discharged his duties well? In my opinion a discharged servant is not the best recommendation for another situation.

In conclusion I wish to answer the News question as to where the ninth man will stand on the readjusting of the water rates. I answer for myself that in case I am the ninth man, I will ever stand willing and ready in this matter as well as in all other questions to remedy grievances and correct errors, I assure you I have no axes to grind for myself, Neither has any fireman or waterman or any other party any string on me. I claim independence to act in all matters as my best judgment will dictate. Hoping to have your vote and influence tomorrow, I remain

Your obedient servant,

WILLIAM ANSLEY.

The District Court

The following cases were disposed of at the district court last week His Honor Judge Mitchell presiding.

Hole vs. C. P. R.—This was an action carried over from the previous sittings of the court, for damages for loss of a cow. The plantiff proved his loss and was awarded $40 the price of the animal. J. J. Mahaffy was counsel for plaintiff, R. B. Bennett, K. C., for plaintiff.

An appeal from a conviction by Inspector Parker under the stray animals ordinance was allowed and the conviction quashed.

The King vs. Lowenthal—Appeal from conviction by Magistrate Kealy for receiving stolen goods. The conviction was affirmed but the sentence reduced from two to one month's hard labor at Lethbridge. D. G. White appeared for the appellant, W. A. Begg for respondent.

Home Bank of Canada vs. H. T. Tweed. Action by the bank to recover the amount due on a promissory note given by the defendant to the Rosary Flower Co. The defendant alleged that the note had been obtained from him by the company through fraudulent misrepresentation The bank claimed that they had discounted the note for the company and that they were holders for value without notice of any fraud or defect. The decision was reserved. W. A. Begg appeared for the plaintiff, D. G. White for the defendant.

Home Bank vs. W. T. Williams—This was a similar to the above except as regards the amount involved. The decision was reserved. W. A. Begg for plaintiff, D. G. White for defendant.

On Thursday morning His Honor heard an appeal by the Coleridge Townsite Syndicate against an assessment by the Coleridge school district. The appellant claimed that the assessment was unfairly large. It was reduced by one-half by His Honor. L. M. Johnstone of Lethbridge, appeared for the Syndicate, the school district was unrepresented.

A Progressive Firm

An interesting half hour was recently spent by a Times representative in the planing mills and warehouse of J. H. Preston, on South Railway Street. Mr. Preston has recently taken over the factory from the Medicine Hat Lumben and Manufacturing Company, Ltd., and during the past couple of weeks he has been engaged in carrying out extensive alterations. In the main building the machinery has been rearranged, so as to effect the maximum economy in labor and time. At one end of the building is a new dry kiln where the lumber taken from the yard shed is piled on racks and subjected for a period of several days on a gradually rising temperature. Steam coils are used for the purpose of heating the building, the temperature being gradually increased from 80 to 180 degrees Fahrenhit. In the earlier stages a current of air is allowed to pass through the kiln, and dusing the winter season it is Mr. Preston's intention to divert the flow from the outlet for the heating of the main building.

From the kiln the lumber is taken to a heated store room over the boiler house.

In the machine room it is first handled by the 24 inch planer. Thence it passess on to the various other machines, being sawn to suitable lengths and subjected to the shaping, morticing, jointing and bevelling moulding or panel raising processes, as may be required. At the end of the factory nearest to the storeroom is the 42 inch 3 roller door and window sash sander, where the finished product is turned out, and the lath where banisters and other turnings of all sizes are completed. The large warehouse is 23 feet by 40 feet and in addition to this a shed for mouldings, 20 feet by 32 feet is under construction. A storeroom for glass is also to be built.

One of the improvements which Mr. Preston has carried out consists in the installation of a system of zinc casing connected with a large fan by which the dust and shavings from each machine are carried away. This makes the factory practically free from dust. The suction system will be connected as far as possible with every machine, and the ends of each suction pipe which fits closely over the cutting tool providing efficient protection to the workman. The waste carried away by the fan is used for steam raising purposes in the firebox of the 75 h.p. boiler. The building is electrically lighted all through.

In addition to the useful changes mentioned above, several other alterations and additions are in contemplation. At the present time a new dado and cut-off saw is being built in the factory.

Mr. Preston has been in business in the city for the past five years and has done excellent work to his credit. He is a thoroughly practical man, and the enterprise he is showing in bringing the planing mill, which has been for some years the best equipped in the large district between Calgary and Moose Jaw, into line with the most up-to-date factories, is a credit to the city and its progressive spirit.

The Earthquake

On Saturday night the inhabitants of western Canada passed through an experience which was new to most of them. A seismic disturbance was felt in all parts of the country varying in intensity in different places. No damage is reported from any place heard from up to the time of going to press, but reports indicate that the earthquake was distinctly felt in nearly all parts. In this city some houses vibrated to such an extent that everything in them shook In others the shock was scarcely noticeable. One peculiarity about the quake was that in all cases it was noticed by the women, while in some cases the attention of the men did not seem to be attracted by it. The shock occurred about 21.30 and lasted only about half a minute. Winnipeg, Regina, and Calgary all report slight disturbances.

Alberta Stock Growers Pass Important Resolutions

Repeal of University Tax is Desired

The annual meeting of the Alberta Stock Growers association was held in the city hall on Wednesday last. Keen discussion took place on the various resolutions brought before the association and the presence of the livestock commissioner for Alberta, W. F. Stevens, throughout the sittings provided a means whereby the representatives were able to get in touch with the attitude of the goverament in regard to legislation desired by the association and the effect of various conflicting interests.

There were about a score of members present.

At about 10.30 Ald. Huckvale, chairman of the association called the meeting to order. He briefly referred to the good work done during the last year. The effect of their efforts showed the wisdom of continuing through another year. The secretary, R. G. Mathews, then presented his report. The financial statement showed receipts during the past year of $3642.87 and expenditure of 2914.95 leaving a balance on hand of $707.42. A lengthy report from the board of management was read by the secretary. In this the necessity of an effective system of hide inspection was urged it being pointed out that in Saskatchewan a law safeguarding the ranchers interests had been adopted. Regret was expressed that the government had not seen fit to take any action in regard to many of last year's resolutions. A discussion on the matter of the shipment of stray cattle was raised by Geo. Lane, who stated that unless the government gave authorization for the shipment of strays found on the range and for the collection of the ten per cent. charged to non-members of the association for the service, he would cease to ship other people's cattle. The service was as a matter of fact worth more than the ten per cent. Speaking on this subject Ald. Huckvale said that of over 100 cases of stock shipped in this way only five objections had been raised to the payment of the fee. Mr. Sexton thought that all strays shipped to Winnipeg should be weighed and their full value ascertained. A. P. Day was in favor of selling each animal on its merits. As things were at present the temptation was for the rancher to pick out only the best of the stray cattle to ship along with inferior stock of his own. The best plan would be to charge the owner of cattle with the cost of shipment and deduct, say a couple of dollars, from the price obtained. Ranchers should then ship any stray steers and leave it to the inspector to get the brands and forward the money to the association. C. Saunders was desirous of an amendment to the ordinance being obtained as under the present arrangement the association had no legal right to sell strays. It was stated in reply by the president that the ordinance was quite unworkable and had never been enforced in the ranching country. There was an understanding with the government whereby it was agreed that J. C. Patterson, the agent of the association in Winnipeg, should handle the strays shipped. W. F. Stevens said the matter of estrays had been frequently discussed at Edmonton. Some districts, especially in the north where many of the farmers did not brand their cattle, strongly objected to any such act as the association desired. It was a question as to who could collect the

OLD-TIMER PASSED AWAY

One of the early residents of Medicine Hat was removed from our midst on Thursday last when death entered the home of Jas. Douglas, and claimed as its victim the head of the family. The deceased had been unwell for some days and the end was not unexpected. Mrs. Douglas has been on a trip to the East and on her return yesterday arrangements for the funeral were concluded. The interment takes place this afternoon at Hillside Cemetery. Mr Douglas was born in Cumberland County Eng 67 years ago and emigrated to Canada at an early age. He settled in Westville, N. S. from whence he moved to Medicine Hat some 22 years ago. Since coming here he followed the business of a merchant tailor, retiring from this about four years ago He was a member of the Methodist church and of the I. O. O. F., having been connected with the order about 40 years, He is survived by his wife and two sons, J. E. and J. W., both of which reside here.

CALGARY POLICE MAY GET FREE SUNDAYS

(Calgary Albertan)

A movement is on foot to petition the city council to give the policemen of Calgary at least every other Sunday.

...At the present time the men work every day in the week, the sergeants and station clerk having twelve hour shifts, and the men working on the beats from ten to eleven hours.

The Rev. G. W. Kerby, of the Central Methodist church, is strongly in favor of the men being given a day off once a week.

"Every second Sunday is a good move," he said, "and I think it could be accomplished without the protection of the city being weakened to any considerable extent, but I think we should go further and give them one day a week off. It would be a good thing if we could give them all every Sunday off, but as we cannot there should certainly be some way by which they could be given some other day."

Rev. J. A. Clark, of the Knox Presbyterian church will also support the proposed petition, and it is doubtful if any citizen in Calgary will refuse to give it their assistance.

The Maroons won an easy victory over Brandon on Wednesday before 2,000 enthusiastic Winnipeg fans. The victory is attributed to two facts the Maroons bunched their hits and outside of the first period played almost faultless ball, whereas the Angels hit in streaks and gave Watts erratic support at critical times.

Lethbridge Team Lost

(Lethbridge Herald)

Medicine Hat 5, Lethbridge 3. That is what happened. How did it happen? Well, Gebeau got a wrong vision of Taylor's position in the second and threw the ball perfectly to where he was not. That caused the first spasm. Then in the ninth Gilmore introduced himself by failing to pull through a grandstand one-handed catch of a fly. These added to a little bone-headed base running tell how the Gas Metres got their runs and how Corrigan's Corkers didn't get theirs.

There were about eleven hundred people crowded on the grandstand, the bleachers and around the grounds who paid their way in to see the fun and give the opening of the Western Canada Baseball League a good send-off. Besides there were a couple of hundred cheap guys who kept the Constable busy keeping them off the fence. He made numerous hits and they made as many runs. But unfortunately they were not on the team and the runs did not count except when the money was counted.

It was a big good-natured crowd, and they enjoyed the fun all the time except for a minute or two occasionally. They cheered as Mayor "Bill" Henderson took the box and wound up his south-paw arm to deliver an out drop in the direction of ex-Mayor "Bill" Cousins of Medicine Hat, who held the mitt and thereby opened what promises to be the best season of sport that Lethbridge has ever had. And they kep it up. Indian Taylor was a popular favorite from the start and when he biffed out the first single for the team they went wild, but when he pulled of the sensational catch in the eighth, they went crazy over him. Chesty Cox and Manager Jack Corrigan got into popular favor early in the game. And the home players were not the only favorites. That good sport Si Bennett, a favorite of two years ago was metaphorically taken into the arms of the Lethbridge public, and when he robbed Taylor of a sure two sacker by a spectacular catch while flying in the air the cheers given him were unstinted.

But the game. After Umpire Dyer had ordered Mayor Henderson out of the box because Corrigan had not his contract properly signed, Gebeau mounted the mound to deliver twisters. Si was first man up and he biffed a beauty out to Canty who took full possession. Wilson sent a sizzler about four feet over Bell's head, but he climbed up high enough to touch but not to hold. While helping Childers to get out Gebeau made a wild pitch and Wilson went to second, where he stayed. Whisman went out at first and Childers put up a foul that Lynch accepted.

Joe C. bounded on to Welch and he put it over to Townsend, retiring Joe. Taylor landed a pretty one to right field but found out the difficulty of stealing bases from Ward. Canty died in the same way after hoing his way to first.

In the second things were doing. Williams took a free ride. Harper beat out a bunt. Ward bunted one to Gebeau and he got mixed in his directions as aforesaih, and Williams scored the first run of the season. Townsend sent a long xy to Jack C. who caught it but Harper came home on the throw. Welch was presented but got no further as Bennett popped a fly to Chandler and Lynch pulled in Wilson's high foul. The Miners came right back. Cox went out on a fly to Harper, but Jack C. took one in the slats. Lynch helped him along, Chandler took a complimentary and things looked good. Bell swatted the sphere safely over short, scoring his manager, but Chandler tried to stretch himself to third on the play and got caught.

Whisman beat out a bunt but was doubled up when Childers poked a punk one to Gebeau. Williams started the fan habit. Gebeau sent a hot one to Harper who fielded it to perfection. Joe went over the pitcher-to-first route and Taylor was robbed of a double by Bennett's sensational catch.

It was one two, three with the Hatters in the fourth. Canty beat out a bunt. Cox sacrificed him along. Jack hit to shortstop who fielded a little slow. Canty was caught at the plate trying to make it on Lynch's bunt. Chandler was hit filling the bases. Bell came up and smashed one to right. Jack scored but Lynch was caught at the plate. Score 2—2

The visitors forged ahead again on a pass to Bennett and Wilson's drive to left which Canty dropped. Lethbridge went out in order.

Williams issued a grass-cutter, Harper sacrificed, Ward lined one straight at Bell who took it and doubled up Williams at second unassisted. Cox got a life on Williams' error but no one could help him past second.

Nothing was done for the Hat in the seventh. Chandler laid down and got there. Bell made his third hit, Gebeau sacrificed but Chandler was caught at third. Joe Corrigan landed a nice one in centre, but Bell was too ambitious and Bennett's throw nabbed him at the plate.

The eighth was featureless except for Taylor's grand catch, which was attended, however, by a regrettable accident. He made a long hard run for the foul, got it, but fell and burst his finger although he pluckily finished the game.

Harper shoved a little one to Gebeau who tossed it to Gilmore who had taken first when Cox took Taylor's place, and he let it fall against his mit. Harper safe. Ward sacrificed. Townsend got hit. Welch won his own game by bringing in Harper and Townsend. Nelton was sent in to pitch. Bennett was retired, pitcher to first, and Wilson fanned. After the manager and Lynch were caught out Chandler made a hit but Bell having already done nobly, could do no better than a short fly to Wilson leaving the score 5—3.

COULDN'T FIND THEM

The janitors in one of the schools has quit. When asked what was the trouble, he said: "I'm honest and I won't stand being slurred. If I find a pencil or a handkerchief 'bout the school I hang it up. Every little while the teacher of someone that is too cowardly to face me, gives me a slur." "In what way?" asked the officer. "Why, a little while ago I saw written on the board, 'Find the common multiple.' Well, I looked from cellar to garret and I wouldn't know the thing if I met it on the street. What made me quit my job? Last night in big writin' on the blackboard it said, 'Find the greatest common divisor.' Well says I to myself, both of them things are lost now, and I'll be blamed for swipin' 'em, so I'll quit."

It is to be hoped that Medicine Hat janitors are not so "touchy."

largest number of votes. Stock Inspector Saunders strongly objected to the way in which cattle are advertised in the official gazette. The brands he said are in many cases merely described. By such a system it is impossible to tell exactly what the markings are. Cuts should be made and an accurate reproduction of each brand printed in the gazette. A. E. Cross was of the opinion that all shippers should ship stray animals to Winnipeg. J. S. Patterson should be made a government agent and instructed to sell stock and credit the owners with the value obtained, making necessary deductions.

A short discussion on the question of unclaimed strays took place. The price obtained for such animals goes into the treasury of the government. Mr. Sexton created considerable amusement by a remark that he did not see how any government such as the Alberta government, "which does not own a foot of land in the province, could go to work and collect the value of what is grown on the land."

The election of officers took place at the close of the morning session. The result was the return of all last year's officers with the exception of R. E. Margesson and Frank Ward who have left the country. Mr. Pemberton and W. A. Taylor were elected to fill the vacancies. The list of representatives is as follows:

President—W. Huckvale.
First Vice-President—G. Lane.
Second Vice-President—A. E. Cross
Representatives:
Bow River—P. Burns, W. R. Hull.
Lethbridge—H. Harris, A. J. McLean.
High River—A. H. Eckford, J. H. Brown.
Lineham—J. Linehgm.
Medicine Hat—A. P. Day, W. A. Taylor.
Pincher Creek—E. H. Mannsell, H. M. Hatfield.
Willow Creek—A. B. Macdonald, J. Pemberton.
Maple Creek—A. J. Day, D. J. Wylie.

The afternoon session was devoted to the discussion of resolutions. Among these was one calling for an increase in the bounty of timber wolves. The association regards the present bounty of $10 for grown wolves and $1 for cubs as wholly inadequate, and asks for an increase to $15 and 5 respectively.

H. R. Hall and E. H. Mannsell moved a resolution asking for a compulsory hides inspection law. In the discussion which followed Mr. Stevens pointed out that the main difficulty in regard to such a law lies in the northern part of the provinces and among all the small butchers and tanners. Here again it was a case of the majority dictating the actions of the legislature. In this part of the country such legislation seemed desirable. Legislation, like battles, was won by a well directed bombardment and if the association were persistent in their demands there was no reason why a law should not be enacted providing for inspection of hides of all meat offered for sale in towns and villages. Mr. Lane said no objection to inspection would be raised by any law-abiding citizen.

In a resolution moved by F. J. Day and seconded by L. Sexton, regret was expressed that the government had not taken action in regard to a request made last year for the granting of longer and irrevocable leases. By this year's resolution the government are asked to set aside for grazing purposes a tract of land which was described by Ald. Huckvale as the last place in Alberta where there is any open range. The land is said to be totally unfitted for agriculture as the soil depth is in some cases only two or three inches This tract of country lies between the International boundary line and the northern boundary of township 5 between range 26 west of the third meridian and 27 west of the fourth meridian.

A resolution asking for the repeal of the 1½ cents per acre university tax on grazing lands was carried without discussion. The president merely pointed out that an injustice was inflicted by the taxation of a special class, who not only did not own the land, but had not even full control of the grass. There was no more reason for taxing the ranchers for the university than for merchants who paid no direct tax toward this object.

On motion of A. P. Day and G. Lane of High River a resolution was carried requesting the provincial government to publish in phamphlet form the brands of stray cattle which have been sold and for which no owners have been found. This course is already adopted in Montana.

Mr. Day suggested that the government should be asked to make the herd law inoperative south of the Red Deer river for the next couple of years. Mr. Stevens doubted whether such action would be taken, as it would be opposed to the wishes of the farmers. Something might be done, however, to make it the business of those who desired the law to petition for its enforcement. At present the law was enforced in each township unless a majority voted against it. The burden of proof should be the other way.

Shortly before the adjournment Mr Stevens announced that the Railway Commission would in the near future send their engineer through the west to enquire into various matters connected with stockyards and the facilities for the shipment of stock throughout the prairie provinces. A start will be made from Winnipeg within the next few weeks. The live-stock commissioner will himself accompany the engineer through Alberta.

The members present at this year's meeting were:

G. Lane, High River.
W. R. Hull, A. E. Cross, C. Saunders, Calgary.
A. B. MacDonald, Lyndon.
H. M. Hatfield, Yarrow.
E. H. Maunsell, R. G. Mathews, Macleod.

LETHBRIDGE ANTICIPATES ANOTHER DEFEAT

LETHBRIDGE ON OUR BALL TEAM

The Medicine Hat team is a good one too. They play ball all the time. Their infield is snappy and, in on the points of the game. The outfield does not need much more than Si Bennett. He covers acres. Lethbridge Herald.

A lawyer tells a story on another lawyer named Ames, who was retained as counsel for a man who broke his leg by stepping in a hole. Suit was brought against the city in the sum of one thousand dollars, and Ames won the case. The city appealed to the Supreme Court but here also the verdict was in favor of Ame's client.

After settling up the claim, Ames handed his client a silver dollar.

"What is this for?" asked the man

"That is what is left after taking out my fee, the cost of appeal, and other expenses."

The man regarded the dollar a moment, then looked at Ames.

"What is the matter with this?" he asked. "Is it bad?"

Bad Leg for 60 Years.

Zam-Buk Works a Complete Cure.

Mrs. J. Minett, of 192, Thurbers Avenue, Providence, Rhode Island, has been cured by Zam-Buk of a bad leg, which had defied all remedies for sixty long years. She says: "When a child of eight I was bitten on the leg by a dog. A doctor cauterized the place, but it never healed up soundly, and I have suffered with an ulcerated leg for over sixty years. This occurred in England, and many English doctors tried in vain to heal the sore. At one time I was an in-patient at the East Suffolk Hospital for a long period, and for three years I was in and out of the hospitals. I was continually in pain, and the sore would not heal, but continued to discharge. One year ago I came out here to my daughter and during the voyage I had to keep my bed. The ship's doctor examined my leg, and gave me a plaster, which I had to take off again as it made the pain so intense. When I reached my daughter's house, she sent for a medical man who said nothing could ever do it any good as although I tried other American doctors, they did me no good. They said my leg would never be well.

One day my youngest daughter brought home a box of Zam-Buk, and induced me to try it. With the first application I seemed to find ease, and further treatment did me so much good that I sent for a proper supply. I kept on with the Zam-Buk treatment, and soon saw that the wound was getting better. The discharge was reduced, and the pain was eased. I persevered with the Zam-Buk and to cut a long story short, it effected a cure. It is marvellous to think that, after suffering for sixty years, Zam-Buk has been able to make my leg perfectly sound.'

Zam-Buk is a combination of power and purity. Purely herbal, it is superior to all known remedies for chronic sores and wounds, eczema, salt-rheum, ringworm, eruptions, varicose ulcers, cuts burns, bruises, skin diseases. It also cures piles. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50 cents a box, or post-free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Three boxes for $1.25.

Why Christie's Biscuits are the best

GOOD BISCUITS are made by more than one or two manufacturers, and can be baked from any one of a few excellent brands of flour, but the Christie way is different.

The best millers in Canada ship us samples of their flour twice a year, or oftener. We test the samples and select the best brands for our purpose.

We blend the brands which we have proved best—keep on blending and testing by actual baking until we get a dough good enough to sustain, or better, the Christie reputation.

Every ounce of raw material is carefully analyzed before it can pass into the mixing room.

The best sugar, pure, fresh creamery butter, new sweet milk and delicious cream—these pure ingredients mixed with our blend of flour, in the Christie scientific way, yields that delightful, appetising crispness and delicate flavor which has made

The Water Rates Issue

Last week the citizens of Medicine Hat were treated to another disquisition on the question of the present water-rates. So far as we can learn the agitation and unrest is confined pretty much to one locality of the city viz., the corner of Main Street and Fourth Avenue. We were informed sometime ago, when we ventured to express our opinion, that a readjustment of the water-rates was a necessity and that the new rate meets the situation fairly well, that we did not know what we were talking about. The Times is willing to leave that point to the judgment of its readers. In vindication of the reputation of The News, we beg leave to admit the charge. The Times did not know at the time that the man who occupies the editorial chair in the sanctum of our esteemed contemporary was one of the water commissioners who made such a mess of managing our water system as to leave it in the unsatisfactory condition in which the present council found it. The Times did not know then, that under such management, certain users of water in the city were paying no water-rates at all. Nor was it aware that many who were behind in their payments for water service were still allowed to use water contrary to the by-law and to leave the city without ever payinb. The Times does not consider that it has particularly valuable information in the possession of these facts; but lest anyone might think the News was unfair in charging us with lack of information, we desire to justify the stand it took.

Now we have followed the arguments of the News with all deference due to an old-timer and to a man with such wide journalistic experience as its editor possesses, and we must confess that we are not yet persuaded that the new water-rates are such an outrage as The News would like the citizens to believe. The Times holds no brief for the council nor for any other body but when a public body seeks to remedy such a state of affairs as existed in the water department last year, we think it is entitled to some credit, and we believe in giving credit where credit is due. We believe The News is right in its contention that the meter rates are excessive, but that is a small issue and further more we have reason to believe that a clerical error has been made in regard to this item. The council will do well to amend that clause.

However the question of the amount of meter rental is a small issue composed with the larger one, shall the burden for maintenance of the water system fall on the water consumer or on the general tax-payer. This is the main point contended for by The News. In the past the latter has been the course adopted, and the citizens have enjoyed an extremely low water-rate. Deficits have been met out of the general taxation and every property owner bore a share of the burden whether the water mains were near his property or not. The Times is prepared to admit that the present rate need not be so high if that course were still followed out. But the council has no option in the matter. It has no authority to assess a water tax on any property further than 300 feet from a water main (City Charter, Title 35, Sec. 44). Any owner of property so situated could appeal against any such tax and refuse to pay it. The Times is no advocate of abnormally high rates. It would appreciate a reduction as much as anyone. But the situation demands a rate which will pay the running expenses of the plant as well as debenture principal and interest. Title 35, Sec. 38 says: "It is hereby provided that any public work or works constructed or acquired under this act . . . shall be held to be entirely separate from all other assets of municipality . . . and such public work or works, lands appurtenances and revenues shall and are hereby specially charged with the repayment of any sum or sums of money which may be borrowed at the credit thereof by the city for the purposes thereof and for any debentures which may be issued thereof." According to this section, last year's council were in error in putting waterworks debentures in with other debentures and raising it by a general tax. But if mistakes have been made in the past, and a lower water-rate illegally secured that is no reason why we should continue to so act in the future.

As previously stated, the new schedule doubtless has its imperfections, and the notice of motion presented to the council will possibly deal with these. But if it contains radical radical changes, such as The News contends for, we believe it will be a great mistake.

Prairie Fires

The reports of numerous prairie fires which have recently appeared in the press suggest the necessity of some action being taken by the authorities to lessen if possible the danger from this source. Not only has valuable property been destroyed but human life has been sacrificed. Year after year the same thing is repeated, and we seem to be making practically no headway in minimizing the danger. The situation is evidently looked upon as a necessary evil.

That the destrcution in nearly every case is due to carelessness seems quite evident. In the newer districts where agriculture has not yet made much headway, and where the prairie is consequently less broken, the fire does the most damage. In the older settled pasts, plowed fields and graded roadways assist materially in checking the flames. But even in such parts, when a high wind is blowing the fire will frequently overleap the roadway and pursue its destructive path. That the burning of stubble, which is the motive in the majority of cases, is a great convenience to the settler is undoubted. But look at the price we have to pay for the privilege! It would be a great convenience for us to burn paper in our back yard, but the chief says we must not do it. Our liberty is thus curtailed because such burning is regarded as a danger to the community. Does not the same argument apply to the agriculturalist? Should not his privileges be curtailed when the public welfare is at stake?

In connection with the situation two remedies are suggested. If the burning is to be permitted, it could be limited to certain seasons of the year when the danger from spreading is not so great. Also the punishment for the offence of letting a fire escape must be made much more drastic. To pay a fine of $15, which is about the maximum inflicted, can scarcely be regarded as adequate punishment for carelessly causing the loss of thousands of dollars worth of property, and in some instances human life. If the punishment fitted the crime, as all punishments must do in order to have any deterrent effect on the offender, he would be much more careful to provide the proper safeguards against the fire escaping his control. An adequate punishment for such an offence would also have a salutary effect on the tenderfoot who must needs try it to see if the grass will really burn. The situation certainly calls for some action on the part of the authorities.

Winnipeg seems to be strong on the delegation business. No sooner have the party which toured Saskatchewan and Alberta in the interests of the Centennial Exposition returned home than we read the announcement that another delegation will start in June and tour Manitoba in automobiles in the interests of the "Banish the Bar" movement. They will doubtless meet with a cordial reception as the bar hasn't much local ground to stand upon.

Press Comment.

A SIGN OF THE TIMES

(Regina Standard)

It is a hopeful sign of the times that Sir Wilfrid Laurier could not compel more than half the majority to "swallow" Pugsley or take part in the white-washing process.

Our telegraphic columns, from day to day, told the story of Minister Pugsley's relations with affairs in New Brunswick and the incriminating report made by the Commission of the Legislature.

The day is fast passing, and will yet become a matter of history, when men professing respectability will stand up and at the bidding of callously defiant leaders do violence to common decency, to say nothing of their own intelligence.

It was refreshing to see one so invariably partizan as J. G. Turiff assert a little of the independence that every true representative should jealously preserve. Under the "machine" methods that prevail at present Mr. Turiff would not dare do what he did, were it not for the fact that he has been sufficiently close to the inner circle to make him free from fear of chastisement. Knowledge is power and Turiff knows too much. They might shear his locks and politically speaking, put his eyes out, but he could still knock the props from under them. Of course he would perish with them in the debris, and the sense of self-preservation saves them all.

But getting back to the idea with which we started, it is gratifying that we do not have to depend entirely upon the quarrels of rogues to see the inner workings. The number of those who will conveniently absent themselves rather than swallow is increasing.

THE GEORGIAN BAY CANAL

(Calgary Albertan)

The Georgian Bay canal scheme as a government undertaking, is one which has never gripped the people of Canada to any great extent. It is possible that it has never been properly understood or very carefully explained. It has never been a campaign issue or discussed very thoroughly in parliament. The cost of the enterprise seems to be almost prohibitive fer in these days of economy when every person is looking anxiously to see where the money is coming from and where it is going to, $100,000,000 is an enormous sum. The estimate of the work is one hundred million dollars and the estimates seldom err in being too large. It seems too with the inception of the western grain route and the construction of the Hudson Bay railway and the opening up of the Hudson Bay route that there will be less need of the Georgian Bay canal. It is certain that the people would not approve of the government spending so much money at this time or even beginning it.

And while the people of Canada are in this frame of mind Sir Robert Perks, who has carried out gigantic and monumental works in England, South America and other parts of the world, is here with a proposition to construct this waterway himself. In fact a company has already been formed for the purpose of constructing this work and associated with Sir Robert is Mr. Walker of the great engineering firm and Sir Alexander Henderson.

The offer that Sir Robert Perks has made seems almost too good to be true. His company asks for a guarantee of 3½ per cent. on the money invested, and as far as can be learned but little more. The government can keep supervision of the tolls. The profits, if there are any shall be divided between the government and the company. The government can take over the enterprise at any time by paying the actual cost.

There may be some details which alter the entire look of the proposition, but at first sight, the offer made is a very remarkable one, and much better than any similar offer of such a nature. However much one would be inclined to favor government ownership, this proposition is most certainly worthy of consideration.

The School Board.

At the regular meeting of the school board held on Monday, the 10th inst., in the secretary-treasurer's office, an application for an increase of salary to $1,700 per annum was received from Principal C. Sansom; this was left on the table until the next regular meeting. H. Isaac was granted an increase of salary of $5 a month on account of the extra work entailed in looking after the attic in the Montreal St. school. A number of applications for positions on the staff were received and filed.

At the adjourned meeting of the board on Tuesday last, the 11th inst., there were present, Mr. W. J. Brotherton, chairman; A. C. Hawthorne and J. D. Miers, trustees. Plans and specifications for the new public school were presented by Mr. W. T. Williams, and discussed at some length, and on motion of Mr. Hawthorne, Mr. Williams was instructed to call for tenders for the excavation, to be in by Thursday the 13th inst., at 6 p.m. Messrs Miers and Hawthorne were appointed a committee to wait on the council to request the services of the city engineer in the locating of the school building on the site and the giving of levels.

Mr. Hawthorne moved that tenders for the building be called for, the same to be in by the 31st of this month. This was carried and, in addition to the local papers, advertisements will be inserted in one paper in each of the following cities: Calgary, Lethbridge, Moose Jaw. The sealed tenders must be addressed to the chairman.

The Western Coal Question

During the recent election campaign in Alberta, C. W. Cross, the provincial attorney-general, who is recognized as the most radical member of the Rutherford administration, hinted that if the policy of the provincial coal owners did not change the government would be compelled to take over coal areas and operate them in the interest of the people. Any one unfamiliar with the inequalities of coal operation in Alberta, and with an inherent dread of socialistic policy, might be disposed to gather from that utterance that the government of Alberta are on dangerous lines. But when all the circumstances of the situation are understood the need of some radical remedy for present conditions becomes obvious, even though the words of the young minister are a bit reckless.

Coal exists in unheard of quantities in Alberta. The process of mining is cheap and easy and the royalty exacted by the Dominion government has been reduced to the low price of five cents per ton. Coal mining under the existing conditions is of the nature of a public service and while there is no disposition to debrive capitalists of legitimate profits, it is due to the public that there should be no evidence of oppressive inequalities.

That such exist is only too evident, and it is equally clear that they operate against the best interests of western development. It is not easy in a new country to lay down hard and fast lines as to what policies would be so radical as to be termed extreme, for there is no doubt that in the matter of development of purely western resources the people of these provinces, while buying outside supplies at highest prices, are also paying top notch prices for home products. This is like burning the candle at both ends and cannot but have a tendency to check progressand breed discontent.

During the present winter the Phoenix has repeatedly endeavored to stimulate the interest of public bodies in the coal problem, but without gaining anything except expressions of approval from those who were feeling the weight of the burden. All through a long, tedious winter people who could not well afford it have been paying from $1 to $3 per ton more for coal than there should have been any necessity for. These figures apply to cities and towns and at most rural railway points the margin is probably higher. No effort at what might be termed serious mining is being made by the owners, and nothing is being done by the Dominion government to stimulate or compel competition. A hand to mouth policy of operation is pursued with the result that prices bear no real relationship to the cost of production. At the mines around Edmonton a coal pedlar can have his load on wagon or sleigh at the pit head for $1.50 per ton. But let a dealer from Saskatoon or elsewhere want a carload of coal the price is around $3 per ton. It matters not if the mine is linked up with the railway or not. The mine which has to freight coal six or seven miles to the car sells at the same price as the one which the latest machinery can load at the pit mouth. The city of Edmonton, we are informed, have the necessary fuel for their power plant hauled in nearly thirty miles over the C. N. R. and laid down at the power house for $1.70 per ton.

The inequalities are so glaring that no man of intelligence can fail to note them, or recognise that some remedy must be found in the public interest. There will be a general hope amongst moderate men that the remedy hinted at by Mr. Cross will not be necessary, although if local public bodies do not move in the direction of removing anomalies and pursue their objective with persistence it becomes the duty of the government to do something in the interests of a suffering community.—Saskatoon Phoenix.

Press Delegation

On Tuesday morning last the Australian and New Zealand delegation to the meeting of the International Press Association to be held in London, England, passed through the city. Interviewed at the depot by a Times representative the delegation expressed themselves as delighted with the reception accorded them by Canadian cities. Stops had been made at Victoria, Vancouver, Glacier, Field, Banff and Calgary. This gave them good opportunity to view the mountains and to form an opinion of our scenic attractions. At Banff the C. P. R. opened its magnificent hotel for the accommodation of the guests, though it will not be open to the public for a few weeks yet.

The visitors expressed regret at not being able to see Medicine Hat especially when they heard about our magnificent gas wells; and could not understand why this is not already a great manufacturing city when gas is sold at so low a rate, many of them entertained an idea of trying to visit a gas well during the time the train stopped here, but as few of them were fully attired at that early hour the idea had to be abandoned.

Australia, in the opinion of the delegates, has as great a future before it as Canada. It is almost equal to her in size and has a population of over 4,000,000. Already her exports amount to 130,000,000 pounds (sterling) The new country still quotes its figures in pounds. Evidently it has not yet learned the advantages of our decimal system in currency, but it did not appear advisable to say much on this point to the delegates lest they ask the embarrasing question why we do not use it in weights and measurements if we have found it so convenient in currency.

Spring and Housecleaning

"Spring" and "Housecleaning" mean much the same to the Housewife, and it is difficult for her to think of one without the other looming large. It is an annual or semi-annual visitation that involves inconvenience and discomforts that make it a period to be anticipated with fear and trembling by the male portion of the household at least, notwithstanding that but a small portion of the work actually falls to their share. Housecleaning time is also welcomed by the funny paper joke makers who through years and years of practice, have become adept in dressing the two or three housecleaning jokes up in new raiment to make quite a presentable appearance.

These remarks are intended to bear directly—if briefly—on the changed and improved method of housekeeping in some directions in the average household of today. Housecleaning has changed in two ways since the time of our father's father; it has become easier to accomplish and more productive of results. The housewife has many inventions and appliances that simplify the work which once was done by elbow grease and that alone. Progress and ingenuity have solved some disagreeable questions for her in the last decade or two.

Unquestionably, the most distasteful part of the housecleaning is the taking up of carpets with their multitudinous tacks, beating and relaying them. Nevertheless, sanitation requires that it be done. Nowadays the tendency is for painted or varnished floors covered with rugs and mats and their use is continually growing. It is a simple matter to clean them. Not only are finished floors more sanitary but decidedly better looking for even the most ordinary wood floor can be transformed at small expense into one having the appearance of costly hardwood by the application of one or two coats of varnish stain which are now made in imitation Cherry, Oak, Mahogany, Walnut and so on, and are so durable that they will successfully withstand a great deal of wear and tear occasioned by the constant walking and the movement of furniture over them.

Wall paper is being largely supplanted by wall paints and finishes in beautiful colors and shades that will stand scrubbing with soap and water and come out of the operation bright and fresh as the day they were put on. This avoids "messy" papering operations. Woodwork such as wainscoatings and cupboards, given one coat of paint, specially prepared for the surface, which will dry over night, enables the housewife to keep the kitchen and pantries fairly shining with cleanliness. "Last year's" fly screens after receiving a coat of enamel are as good as new again. Furniture, too, both in the kitchen and in the other rooms of the house need not remain shabby long. The process of cleaning it with polish, or refinishing it with paint or varnish is so simple and the furniture so improved thereby, that most housewives include a course of refinishing furniture in their Spring housecleaning operations. This applies not only to drawing and dining room chairs, but to the rough kitchen and laundry chairs and to those wicker and cane ones that spend a good deal of their time on the verandah or lawn and not only to the tables, bookcases and lounges of more or less expensive woods, but tothe home made things of rough lumber, and so an throughout the entire house. Whereas painting about the house was once a considerable undertaking now it is a matter of very little expense and a small inconvenience. As one thrifty dame was heard to remark "The use of paints and varnish at housecleaning time has become almost a mania with me; actua,ly I look forward to housecleaning just because it gives me an excuse to fuss with paint."

These remarks, of course, do not begin to outline the improvements and changes that have come about in the housecleaning. They are simply intended as straws to show which way the wind is blowing. For instance, there is electric light and gas where there were once lamps to clean There are the improvements in plumbing and heating arrangements, the telephone and the gas stove, and so on, until a book almost could be written on improvements along these lines.

She who has charge of the "home" has a high mission, and inventions that go to make her work less laborious and productive of greater results are as momentous as discoveries in any other branch of modern life. It can no longer be truthfully said that invention in things that pertain to domestic life is lagging behind in the march of progress.

BRONCHITIS
Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes.
The Symptoms are tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, and a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color. Neglected Bronchitis is one of the most general causes of Consumption.
Dr. Wood's Norway Pine SYRUP
Mrs. D. D. Miller, Allandale, Ont., writes: "My husband got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my little girl who had Bronchitis. She wheezed so badly you could hear her from one room to the other, but it was not long until we could see the effect your medicine had on her. That was last winter when we lived in Toronto.
"She had a bad cold this winter, but instead of getting another bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I tried a home made receipt which I got from a neighbor but found that her cold lasted about twice as long. My husband highly praises 'Dr. Wood's,' and says he will see that a bottle of it is always kept in the house."
The price of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 25 cents per bottle. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, so, be sure and accept none of the many substitutes of the original "Norway Pine Syrup."

Not only does it take longer to put poor paint on your building than good paint, but you have to do it oftener. Divide the cost of painting your building into three parts and two of them go to the painter. The third part pays for the paint. Mr. Fatt Resigns His Position.

Report on Sewer Pipe Question.--New License By-Law Introduced.

At the adjourned meeting of the council held in the city hall on Friday evening there were present: the Mayor and Aldermen Robertson, McKay, Morrow, Spencer, Howson, Huckvale, and Penhale.

F. F. Fatt tendered his resignation as secretary-treasurer. This will take effect as soon as the council are able to appoint his successor. Speaking on the situation Ald. Spencer stated that Mr. Fatt had in conversation with the finance committee placed the facts before them. It had been pointed out that owing to the inadequate help in the office the city was losing a considerable amount of money. It was advisable to make such changes in the office as are essential for the safeguarding of the best interests of the city. Ald. Penhale said he had no doubt that Mr Fatt had been overworked, because he had come back to the office night after night after closing hours. He had held that the work was too heavy when the amalgamation of the offices was under discussion, but as it had been said that two competent men would be able to handle all the work he thought it best to let it go at that.

Mr. Fatt briefly addressed the council as to the office situation. At a finance committee meeting held before the council meeting, he had discussed the matter fully, and had pointed out in reply to a question by Ald. Penhale that the difficulty lay not in the fact that it was necessary to put in extra time, so much as because important work must be allowed to slide. There was at present an overdraft with the Bank of Montreal of $15,000. Outstanding taxes amounted to nearly $20,000, which would cover the over draft and leave a subsantial balance. If the staff had time to go after defaulters, and to threaten them if need be, no doubt 40 per cent. of these arrears would be paid voluntarily. This per centage would in all probability be paid on the persons concerned being circularized, a tax sale could after-staff in the office it would be possible to proceed and in two months clean up a large proportion of the arears. The speaker and Mr. Baker had been doing work during the last two weeks that should have been done in January. This was in connection with the carrying forward of the arreas of taxes from the old assessment roll to the arrears book. It had only come to Mr. Fatt's knowledge recently when the transfering of tax arrears book from the arrears book to the current assessment roll was commenced. It was impossible to attend to the matter and at the same time look after the wicket. The speaker was not kicking in regard to the extra work which had been entailed upon himself, but for the carrying out of much of the secretary-treasurer's work undisturbed time was absolutely essential. The continual night work, could not go on indefinitely as the staff would be unable to stand it. The former secretary and clerk had been overworked and had been unable to adequately carry out their work at the beginning of the year. In the interests of his successor Mr. Fatt asked that something be done to relieve the situation. At times, when for instance the gas and water accounts were being handled, it would take more than one extra man to handle the office business.

Ald Morrow was in full agreement with what the previous speaker had said. He had always been of the opinion that there should be a special man to look after the wicket. It was unfair to expect the secretary-treasurer to get up from his work to argue with a man about his gas or water bill. Ald. Huckvale expressed himself as being in accord with what had been said. On notion of Alds. Huckvale and Morrow, the finance committee was authorized to make such additions to the office staff as may be deemed necessary. The question of increasing the salary attached to the secretary-treasurership will also be gone into by the finance committee.

The report of the special committee aupointed in connection with Mr. Overpack's demand for improvement of the site in Industrial Place, was presented by Ald. Huckvale. This read as follows:

Your committee in conjunction with a committee of the board of trade beg to report that they recommend that Mr. Warren Overpack be informed that the city of Medicine Hat are willing only to conform to the original agreement with him and are prepared to carry out the terms of that agreement.

We also recommend that before the city goes to any further expenditure in this matter, that they require Mr Overpack's company to furnish satisfactory guarantees that they will commence actual construction of their plant by the first day of August, 1909, in failure of which the city will consider the agreement null and void.

Medicine Hat, May 18th, 1909.

Ald. Huckvale thought that in view of the fact that the granting of a free gas well was worth to a company such as the Alberta Clay Products Co., at least $20,000 per year when contrasted with the expense of operation by coal, this ought in itself to have been a sufficient bonus. Any company which such a bonus with land grant in addition, would not satisfy was hardly needed in the city. The report was adopted by unanimous vote of the council.

Ald. Penhale presented a report in regard to the cost of grading and putting the market site into a suitable condition. The amount of filing required will be 400 cubic yards and this can be deposited on the site for 70 cents per cubic yard. This will make the total cost of filling equal to $280.00. It had been reported to the chairman of the markets committee that the scales on the market site are too small for some of the larger racks. An offer of $125 had been made for this machine and the installation of a new one might cost $300 in addition. Though the committee had power themselves to order the work to be done, Alderman Penhale thought it better first to get the permission of the council. The report was adopted and a motion to sell the old scales and call for tenders for new ones, was carried.

A bylaw consolidating the police and license bylaws was introduced by Ald. Morrow, given a first and second reading and considered in committee of the whole. The chief of police was called in to advise the council in certain matters which arose, and by far the greater part of the evening was devoted to the discussion of this bylaw. At a late hour the committee rose and reported progress, having still a large number of clauses to discuss.

Among the proposed license fees are the following:

Transient traders, $200.

Billiard, pool or bagatelle tables for use by the public for profit, $20 for the first table and $10 for each additional. This was last year's fee

Bowling alleys, $20 for the first two beds, $5 for each additional. This was last year's fee.

Single horse drays or similar vehicles $5 for the first, $3.50 for each additional. No change from last year.

Drays etc., using two horses. $10 for the first; $7.50 for each additional; for the half year $7.50 for the first and $5 for each additional. No change from last year.

Hacks, cabs, omnibuses, etc., for the convenience of passengers, unless used in connection with an hotel, $10 for the first, 5 for each additional. This does not apply to hacks owned by livery stables, which have their separate license fee, but only to such vehicles as are allowed to stand on the street for hire. No provision for this license has been made previously.

Automobiles or auto-bicysles, etc., kept for hire, $10 for the first and $5 for each additional. This is a new license.

Livery stables, not more than five horses, $15; not more than ten, $25; not more than fifteen, $30.
Feed or Sale stables, $5.

Retailers of cigarettes or cigarette papers, $15. This is a new license, which is being imposed to give the police control of cigarette vendors. The provincial children's bill makes the selling of cigarettes or cigarette papers to boys under 16 a penal offence and the license will place the police in a position to deal adequately with any infractions of the law.

A circus or menagerie at which an admission fee of 25 cents or more is charged $50 for the first and each additional day. If the cost of admission is less than 25 cents the license fee will be $25....

Any theatre or opera house $25 quarterly.

Every troupe not performing in an opera house, theatre or other licensed amusement hall, $5 for the first, $3 for the second performance.

Brabers chairs, for the first two chairs, $1; for each additional chair 50 cents. New license.

Butcher shops $25. The fee in Winnipeg is $100 and in Calgary $50. This is a new license in Medicine Hat.

Any insurance agent who is not a holder of a real estate license, $15. New license.

Intellegence or emuloyment agent, $10. New license.

Real estate agent, $25.

Pawnshop or junk shop, $15. New license.

Non-resident billposter, $25; resident billposters, $10. Non- resident sign-painters, and non residents engaged in distributing bills, $25.

Bicycles or tricycles let out for hire $10.

Pea-nut, ice-cream or similar stalls carried on by non-residents, $10.

Any mechanical device or exhibition, $5 per machine.

Any other performance or show, $5

Shooting gallery or swisback, to permanent residents, $15 per year; to non-residents, $25 per quarter.

The license fee for any principal, agent, trainer or promoter of a boxing contest, it is proposed shall be $50.

Palmist, hypnotist or fortune teller $25 quarterly.

Auctioneer permanent resident, $10.

per annum; non-resident, $25.

Restaurant, $25.

Liquid refreshment or ice cream parlor, $15.

The remaining clauses of the bye-law have still to be discussed.

Lake Which Heals Many Diseases.

Winnipeg, Man., May 15—The construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific rail road across western Canada has brought to light many interesting and valuable mineral deposits. In the most unexpected places these natural riches have turned up in some cases exposing to civilization ancient Indian customs which had been safely guarded by the Red Man for centuries past. One of the most interesting of these is the lake at Watrous, Sask., containing water which has cured many stubborn cases of skin diseases, asthma, consumption and rheumatism.

Watrous is situated on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, less than 400 miles west of Winnipeg and already people from all over the continent are visiting there to benefit from the waters; and a prominent New York specialist now has plans in preparation for a sanitarium to be erected there.

On the shores of this lake are to be seen Indian "sweating lodges" to which the suffering Redmen have been taken for ages past, calling it Manitou or Great Spirit. Only recently a Montreal skin specialist heard of this lake and went up to Watrous to test the healing qualities of its waters. So efficacious did they prove in curing several skin diseases of long standing that he now regularly receives barrels of this water shipped to Montreal.

On account of these healing waters a prosperous town is springing up at Watrous and, despite the fact it is less than nine months since the first building was erected there, its population is now close to the thousand mark and new settlers, mostly Americans, are arriving there by every train. That Watrous is destined to become a flourishing city in an incredibly short time is evidenced by the attention being paid it by the Grand Trunk Pacific, it being the central divisional point of that system in western Canada.

"To him who in the love of nature holds
Communion with her visible forms
She speaks a various language"

It is, I believe, an indisputable fact that man is, for the greater part at least, the product of his environment. Consciously or more often unconsciously we are affected to an astounding degree by the aspect of nature about us.

The high state of Athenian perfection in art and literature was I am sure, the direct outcome of their sunny climate, the green sloping hills and verdant valleys crowned in the blue distance by lofty Helicon. It is little wonder that they pictured in the gorgeous west, resplendent in the glories of the setting sun, a realm of infinite beauty and rest, the happy fields of Elysium, "the islands of the blest." It is little wonder that the intrepid mariners of early times turned their prows in that direction in the hope of reaching the fabled Cathay.

And I am warranted, I am certain in saying that the bright sunny skies strong winds, the great sweep of the boundless prairies and the rugged grandeur of the snow capped peaks of the Rockies have had and will have much to do in developing that vigor and untiring energy and vivacity that characterizes the people of our own province in inducing that broad mindedness of purposs and producing a strong race of men. It is true our country is as we make it, but at the same time we are largely ourselves what the country has made us. ...But in "all this mighty sum, of things forever speaking," there are voices that beat in upon our unconsciousness and shape our actions and out thoughts whether we will or not and things that only he who tunes his ear to the harmonies of the universe can catch their vibrant under tones.

Wordsworth tells us "to me, the meanest flower that blows, can give thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears," but Wordsworth was a poet.

Tennyson hears the song of the nightingale and feels that if he could understand that message aright "the glories of the sum of things would flash along the chords and go" but Tennyson was a dreamer of dreams.

Byron says that "there is society where none intrudes by the deep sea and music in its roar," but this was the idle fancy of a sensitive mind.

But perhaps we have been underrating, my friend, the real value of this under tone, that speaks only to the inner consciousness of him who listensand contemplates. Perhaps there is a world of beauty there with which we too may be familiar if we would, a strange lovely world of fancy to which we might withdraw and feel for one short hour, amid the constant activities at the commonplace, the music of the spheres "the glory of the sum of things."

Yesterday I heard the prairies ring with the clear note of the meadow lark, our own prairie bird, the child of the plains, and this is what he seemed to say:

Smiles the great sun, above;
Skies are so blue;
My song is all of love,
(Bird loves are true)

Earth is all mad with joy;
Low in the grass
My love sits listening my
Sing as I pass.

Far is the mountain height
Forests of gloom,
I love the prairie bright
Here is my home.

White is the billows crest
Far on the sea.
One in a flowery nest
Calleth for me.

Naught on earth's odious;
All, love, of you
My song melodious
(Bird loves are true).

—Le Jongler.

NO SUNDAY BALL

Vancouver, May 12—In answer to a deputation which waited upon him in this city today Premier McBride declared that Sunday baseball would not be tolerated. All other Sunday sports of a commercial nature would also be stopped. The premier was also urged to adopt the Lord's Day observance, but he declined to make any promise to that effect. Recent attempts to introduce Sunday baseball in North Vancouver are responsible for this pronouncement of the premier.

Rev. H. Bryant Preaches to Royal Templars

Large Attendance at Baptist Church

Notwithstanding the extremely inclement weather the Royal Templass turned out in large numbers and paraded to the Baptist church on Sunday evening, where Rev. Mr. Bryant delivered a most eloquent and timely discourse on the question most vitally interesting the temperance forces today.

The speaker declared that a monster such as never roamed the African thicket or jungle of Hindustan had strewn this land with mangled carcasses for generations. Seventy-five per cent. of our idiots come from intemperate parents; 80 per cent. of paupers are the result of drink; 82 per cent. of the crimes committed are due to drink; 92 per cent. of our adult crimimals are whisky made. Drink is the sum of villainies, the mother of crimes and the parent of evils. How can we afford to stand idle? Let us support those who are in the great fight. "No man but a man in sympathy with temperance will get my vote."

The whisky men organize, issue circulars, spend fabulous sums of money have their grips and passwords and strategems. We should meet them in that very thing and defeat them.

The Royal Templars of Temperance are exerting a great influence in this city which is apparent on every hand Organized eighteen years ago with a membership of twenty-five, today in this council there are almost one hundred and fifty members. "I would that every Christian man and woman would give their sympathy and time to strengthen your forces.

The speaker was certain that prohibition was coming; he would not prophesy just when, but things look brighter every day. We hear of glad tidings from the United States where a temperance wave is sweeping the land. How glad our hearts will be when we see our lands free from this great evil.

The hymns sung were all of a rousing temperance nature. Miss Sinclair's vocal solo, "Have Courage My Boy to Say No" was very sweetly rendered and Rev. Mr. Bryant and Mr. Blue gave a delightful duet while the choir rendered special music.

WILLIAMS JUBILEE SINGERS

The Williams Jubilee Singers last night presented a rare treat to the large audience which gathered to hear their performance. Every number on the programme was exceptionally good and the singers were generous with encores repeatedly demanded by the audience. Most of the songs were the old favorities of Dixie Land full of illimitable humor and pathos that (haracterize the darky songs of the South.

The blending of the voices of the male quartette was unparalleled.

Worthy of special mention was the bass solo "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep".

The Williams Jubilee Singers will receive a hearty welcome should they at any future time return to Medicine mat.

Busy Nights in the City Council

Agricultural Society Bylaw to go to People

Petition for Toronto St. Crossing

The adjourned meeting of the council was held on Tuesday evening. There were present the mayor and Aldermen McKay, Morrow, Spencer, Howson and Huckvale.

The sidewalks extensions bylaw was discussed at length in committee of the whole. The poll will take place on June 11th, the date of the plebiscite on the other maney by-laws.

The bylaw for the granting of a loan to the agricultural society was introduced by Ald. Howson, and passed throubh the committee stabe The amount of the proposed loan, which is for the purpose of extending and improving the buildings on the land owned by the society is $10,000; it is to provide for the issue of twenty year five per cent. debentures. A committee of the city council will sit permanently on the board of directors of the agricultural society, and the loan will be secured by a mortgage on the property. If the bylaw passes the debentures will be issued on September 1st.

The bylaw for the purchase of the Hillside cemetery at a price of $6000 was introduced by Ald. Morrow, who moved its first reading. Immediately Ald. Spencer rose to move that the bylaw be given a six months hoist. Ald. Huckvale said he would like to hear an explanation of the purpose of the bylaw, before further action was taken.

The mayor stated that the forty acres of land had been originally given to the Presbyterian church—by whom he did not know—and this had been controlled by the building committee in Winnipeg until about a couple of years ago. Later it had come under the control of the church in this city. Three or four citizens had put up monev to keep the ground and buildings in good repair, last year the cemetery practically paid its own way, and $400 went towards reduction of the debt. If the cemetery were taken over by the city it would, on the $6,000 basis, pay its own way. At the present time it was used by several denominations and a portion of the grounds had been set apart for paupers. The speaker did not think the trustees were very much concerned as to which way the bylaw went, but the present arrangement was certainly unsatisfactory. In three or four years time the mayor believed the cemetery would be a revenue producer. As one of the members of the Presbyterian Church who had put up money in connection with the cemetery the speaker thought that it might be a good thing to retain it as church property.

Ald. Huckvale was in sympathy with the principle of the cemetery being a public charge rather than a charge devolving on the churches. He would like to know, however, how the figure came to be fixed at $6,000. The mayor was unable to say exactly how this sum had been arrived at. The church finance committee had been met by the committee of the council and the price decided upon.

Ald Morrow thought that the only difficulty lay in the possible injustice of using the money when a larger proportion of them—the adherents of the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches were bearing the cost of their own cemeteries.

Speaking as amember of the English church Mr. Fatt stated that the bylaw would surely be opposed by the Anglicans. The majority of paupers were buried in the Anglican cemetery. There was no pauper's corner, and if people were too poor to pay no charge was made. A question suggested itself, also as to the legality of the owners selling the cemetery. The grant of land was made for a special purpose by the government, who, in the old days, used to give forty acres for cemerety purposes to any religious body who desired it. The Church of England had obtained their land in this way and they had no power to sell it. It was doubtful whether the Presbyterian church could alienate their property in this manner.

The proposition did not seem reasonable to Ald. Spencer, who thought that injustice might be done to denominations maintaing their own cemeteries.

Ald. Morrow thought there should be some arrangement made between the three churches, Presbyterian, Methodist and Bartist which at present used the Hillside cemetery.

Eventually it was decided to leave the matter over for further consideration, Ald. Spencer agreeing to withdraw his motion for a six month's hoist.

The remaining clauses of the new license bylaw were considered in committee of the whole and the bylaw finally passed. Many of the new licenses which were proposed at a previous meeting were given in last week's issue. These in almost every case went through without amendment, the only change being in the fee for the sellinb of ice-cream, soft drinks and light refreshments, which was reduced from $15 to $10.

Other licenses were decided upon as follows;

No resident of the city offering milk for sale will be required to obtain a license if only one cow be kept. If two or more cows are kept the license will be $2. Non-residents selling milk in the city must pay a fee of $5. New licenses.

Laundry, $10 semi-annually. The old fee was $25, payable annually.

Pawn broker, $2. ...ble annually. New license.

Brewer $300. New license.

Hotel, $150.

Hotel additions $150.

Wholesale liquor store, $150.

Dinning hall within 50 feet of the railway station $150. This could only apply to a dining hall on railway premises.

Bottling works, $25.

The hour of closing of bowling alleys is now extended to 11 p.m. on Saturday evenings, in place of 10 p. m. as formerly.

It was decided to increase the secretary-treasurer's salary to $1,800.

A petition had been received by Ald. Howson for the construction of a plank sidewalk along the south side of Princess avenue to Yuill St., along Yuill street to Woodman avenue. The cost of the work was estimated at from $300 to $350. The petitioners had stated that a gravel walk would not suit them. Some discussion ensued as to temporary work required in other parts of the city, and it was stated that an amount of $1000 could very easily be spent on work which should be done, at the place mentioned and on Fourth avenue and at the Flour mill. On Ald. Morrow's motion the council appropriated a sum of $500 to be used for plank and gravel sidewalks and the expenditure of the money was left in the hands of the public workscommittee. Ald. McKay expressed the opinion that if certain districts got plank sidewalks they would be content with these until such time as they should be worn out. Ald. Spencer pointed out that at the present time the people of a number of districts are contributing to the sidewalk debentures though they themselves derive little benefit from them. These people should be given every consideration.

Ald Huckvale moved that a sum of $100 be granted to the Y. M. C. and the fire brigade for the Dominion day sports. A seconder was found in Ald. Morrow and the motion was carried by an unanimous vote.

The account of Henderson & Co., of $266.75 for books was referred to the finance committee with power to act.

The Council then adjourned till Thursday evening.

These are strenuous days in the council chamber. On Thursday evening the eldest meeting of the week was held and the city fathers applied themselves industriously to the consideration of the city's business until 10.30, when an adjournment was made in spite of the secretary-treasurer's facetious protest that the hour was still an early one. It was indeed a short sitting, as sittings go these days, but as most of the aldermen had spent a strenuous afternoon on the grandstand in the baseball park, the early adjournment was perhaps excusable. Certainly the reporters felt no desire to protest. During the course of an exceeding dry discussion on the amendments in the water schedule, the chair of an alderman who was leaning back in weary mood, suddenly collapsed, and for a few moments the tense features of the careworn civic legislators were relaxed. Five minutes later the adjournment motion was carried.

The members present at Thursday's meeting were the mayor, and Aldermen McKay, Morrow, Spencer, Adsit Howson, Huckvale and Penhale. The secretary-treasurer read the report of the returning officer in the byelection. This showed the result of the poll as follows: W. N. Adsit, 44 W. Ansley, 38; I. Bullivant, 31. Wm. Adsit was therefore declared elected. Ald. Adsit was appointed on the committees on which ex-Ald. Collier formerly sat.

A deputation consisting of Messrs. T. Hutchinson and F. J. Marshall, waited on the council in connection with a petition for permission to construct a cement crossing on Toronto street, which had been handed in to the mayor. The property owners whose signatures were attached asked to be allowed to construct, at their own expense and under the supervision of the city authorities, a 6 foot cement sidewalk from near the Union Bank to a point near the Mitchell meat market. Mr. Hutchinson said the question was merely a matter of business. The property owners desired the privilege of spending their own money in the way mentioned, as the expenditure would benefit the property more than it would benefit the city.

Ald. Howson, while he had no objection to granting the petition, thought it would establish a precedent which other business people might wish to take advantage of. Mr. Hutchinson thought such precedent would be very much in the interests of the community at large.

It was moved by Ald. Penhale, seconded by Ald. Howson that the petition be granted and the work carried out under the supervision of the city engineer. In making the motion Ald. Penhale stated that he would like, in fact he would insist on a crossing being made from the old post office and continued along the land to the market. Ald. McKay thought it would be undesirable to have two crossings so close together as would be the case if the petition were granted, and in his opinion he was supported by Ald. Adsit and Ald Spencer. Mr. Hutchinson again rose to say that he believed the public would be better served by the crossing being in the centre of the block. Ald. Adsit moved as an amendment that the petition be referred to the public works committee for a report. The amendment found a seconder in Ald. Spencer. Mr. Marshall thought the latter would be the best course to take, as the petitioners did not wish to rush the matter.

After Ald. McKay had spoken, declaring that he would rather see the crossing laid from the old post office and up the lane than elsewhere, and Ald. Huckvale had referred to the undesirability of having two crossings very close together, the amendment carried by unanimous vote.

The petition was signed by the following property owners: Marshall Hardware, Marshall & Hunter, W. B. Marshall, T. Hutchinson, Aliott & Finlay, B. F. Souch, Robt. Mitchell, A. C. Hawthorne, F. J. Marshall, Union Bank of Canada.

The next business was the opening of tenders for the new gas well. The Mayor stated in reply to Ald. Penhale, that the money for the undertaking was almost to hand. The drilling of a new 2,000 feet gas well was being considered by the council, altogether apart from the sewer pipe company's proposition. There was a question as to whether it was necessary to have the drilling of the new well to be put under way at present.

Tenders were opened and considered on motion of Alds. Penhale and McKay.

The Artesian Well and Waterworks Contractors, a Chicago firm, offered to complete a 2,000 foot well, themselves supplying everything with the exception of water and fuel, at a cost of $20.00 per foot.

A. P. Phillips tendered (for labor only, his charge being $5 per foot.

The Oil Well Supply Company of Pittsburg quoted a 5 per cent reduction on their catalogue price of their drilling tools.

J. A. Grant tendered $7.50 per foot, for labor and everything in connection with the drilling of the well with the exception of fuel and water.

The Artesian Well Co of Chicago, who did not enclose a cheque for $1,000 as required, offered to undertake the work for $9 per foot, themselves to supply everything but pipe, fuel and water.

A matter in connection with the gas committee to work at with the engineer.

Mr. Mahaffy stated that the solicitor for the Rogers' liquidators had recently been in town and had consulted the mayor and the speaker in regard to a proposed draft agreement with the city. According to the terms of the agreement read in council it is proposed that the liquidators be given six months option on the land and the same terms as the original company a few new conditions also being embodied. The company will pay $941 (balance of the purchase due, plus interest), they must pay meter rate for water, and the regular 15 cent rate for gas until a steam heating plant shall have been installed. On motion of Alds. Huckvale and Spencer the agreement was accepted subject to its being found satisfactory by the mayor and solicitor.

As a matter in connection with the canneries was referred to the finance committee with power to act. The company has been organized under a new name and is reducing is liabilities. The par value of the shares will be reduced, according to the proposal, from $1 to 70 cents. In order to carry out these changes, however, it is necessary to have the consent of the council.

Ald. Huckvale introduced a bylaw to amend the water schedule. It was pointed out that according to the charter the waterworks are bound to maintain themselves, and to bear the principal and interest on all water debentures. The water users in the past had been charged at a lower rate than is now found necessary. On comparing Medicine Hat with other cities it appeared that the house rate here was higher and the business rate lower than in other places.

Under commercial rating the separate assessments, for taps, $2 and basins $3 are struck out and the assessment for basins and taps fixed at $3 for the combined services.

Under hotel rating the charge for each basin and tap in public rooms is fixed at $4.

Blacksmith's shops will pay $12 for the first one or two forges, in place of $12 for the first forge as in the original schedule.

The assessment for schools with 8 rooms or more is increased from $25 to $100 per month.

A new rate is made for tennis clubs $5.

Any special or other rates not specified in the schedule will be fixed by the water commissioners subject to the approval of the council.

Meter rates are struck off, it being considered that in view of the experience of other cities the metering of water is unsatisfactory.

The amendment to the schedule will take effect on the first of July of this year.

RETURNED FROM PARLIAMENT

Mr. C. A. Magrath, M. P., for Medicine Hat constituency was a caller at The Times office yesterday. He was paying a short visit to the electors in this city on his way home from Ottawa. He reports the session a very strenuous one owing to the late date on which the House met. The next session will begin much earlier in the season, possibly in November of this year. Mr. Magrath thinks the rumor that Sir Wilfrid will retire from public life shortly is unfounded. Our member has rendered his country valuable service by his stand on the Conmee Power Bill.

The School Board.

A special meeting of the school board was held in the secretary's office on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock There were present. W. J. Brotherton, chairman; A. C. Hawthorne, J. E. Miers, D. G. White, trustees.

A letter was received from Mr. Sansom in which the writer stated that he would be willing to be placed on a rising schedule of $160 per annum, increasing to a maximum of $1800. This was an amendment of the former letter in which an increase to $1,700 was applied for. Mr. Sansom's request was granted and his salary increased to $1,600.

Tenders for the excavation of the new school were received from the following firms:

McLagan & McKay, $195.00.

A. P. Burns, $306.00.

A. E. Forester, 22 cents per cubic yard.

J. J. Lait, 23 cents per cubic yard.

Oakes & Everard 20 cents per cubic yard.

The tender of Messrs McLaggan & McKay was accepted and the secretary instructed to notify the contractors to go ahead with the work at once.

In connection with the cesspools of the Montreal street school it was decided that the digging of two new pits should be commenced at once. These pits will be 25 feet deep and connected up with the present pits.

Mr. White reported on a visit paid by him to the new Lethbridge school, and he suggested that the board go in a body in order to gain as much information as possible to assist in the building and equipment of our new public school. It was decided that every member of the board, as far as may be possible shall go down to Lethbridge on the night of Monday the 31st inst.

A number of matters were brought up by Mr. Sansom, and arrangements were made to have these attended to. Mr. Miers was given authority to have the ventilation of the new attic of the Montreal street school adequately carried out.

The board then adjourned until Monday, the 31st inst.

ACCIDENT ON C. P. R.

Jas. C. McClung, brakeman of Medicine Hat fell from a car at Brooks on Sunday last and was killed. The body was almost severed in two by the wheels passing over it. Interment at Bindy Park.

Death of Mr. Geo. Wetmon

A death occurred yesterday morning at the general hospital which removed one of Medicine Hat's business men, in the person of George Wetmon. The deceased came to this place about 12 years ago and followed the business of ranching. About four years ago he decided to enter business life in the city and has since conducted a stationery and confectionery store on North Railway St. He was a native of England, and emigrated to Canada 15 years ago. He is survived by Mrs. Wetmon and six children' Mrs. Chas. Furmal, Mrs. G. Wight, Miss Violet of Medicine Hat, Mrs. R. G. of Lethbridge, S. J. in California and W. H. with the C. P. R. in this city. The funeral will be held tomorrow (Thursday) at 3 p.m. service being held in the Baptist church of which the deceased was a deacon.

Prof. Campbell Had No Arrangement with Government

Professor Campbell of Nebraska has spent the past few days in the city looking into the question of a suitable location for a demonstration farm with Hon. W. T. Finlay. Prof. Campbell informs The Times that there is no settlement between himself and the government, though he is given to understand that the land will be acquired when asclection has been made. A section at the very least will be required and this must be left in sole charge of Prof. Campbell's man. A piece of land owned by the C. P. R. is spoken of as a possible location.

CIVIC WORKS

Good progress is being made at the new gas well. The 8 inch casing has been withdrawn and the six inch casing put back in its proper place, resting on the rock bed. In a few days the well will be complete.

A car load of pipe for the new water extensions has arrived and work will begin immediately on the water-works extensions.

The material for the new units in the filter plant are also to hand. The citizens are requested to use as little water as possible during the next two weeks until the new units are installed.

Rev. R. H. Grant of Fernie has been named by the Department of Labor as chairman of the Conciliation board to deal with the dispute between the miners and operators of Alberta. F. H. Sherman represents the miners, and Colin MacLeod the operators.

Monday's Amateur Ball

The Victorious C. P. R.

The first amateur game was played off in the athletic park on Empire day, when the C. P. R. had an easy win over the fire brigade by 11 runs to 5. Though most of the players showed lack of practice a fairly good game was put up and as the season advances we may hope to see good amateur ball. The teams lined up as follows.

The C. P. R. showed their superiority in the field and if Switzer had been playing in his usual form with a good man on third the result might have been a very close game. There was a moderate sized crowd in the grandstand and a big bunch of enthusiastic bleachers.

In the outfield the honors of the game for the Fire Brigade lay with Geo Pingle and Taylor, each having some nice catches eo his credit. Logan played the star game in the infield having six chances and accepting five. Logan sure has a good throwing arm. For the railroaders Snowden and Biette did well in the outfield, while in the infield Lemieux, McCulla and Deane had the work, and did very well considering that they were playing their first game this year.

Squance was wild in his handling of the projectile at the beginning of the match, but after steadying down he pitched a splendid game, striking out 12 to Frilly's 6.

For the hits credit was due to Logan, Deves and Trenary who each made one for the Fire Fighters. For the C. P. R. Lemieux and Dummy each had two, while Snowdon and McCulla are credited for one each. Stolen bases were equal for both, there being 5.

The tale of the game is told by the errors list in which the Fire Brigade figure for 14 to the C. P. R.'s 6.

...Score by innings:

Fire Brigade	101,020,010— 5
C. P. R.	321.100,40x—11

The Firebovs' team would have been greatly strengthened by Buchanan's playing and it was a source of disappointment to the fans that he didn't figure in the line-up.

MILITIA NOTES

All provisional officers will in future attend the drills in the armory on Thursday evening of each week at 8 o'clock p.m., and will fall in on the right of the line for instruction.

Act. Adj., 21st A. H.

DOES IT PAY?

The day after publication last week one of The Times' large advertisers made a $100 turnover, tracing the greater proportion of the sales directly to his advertisement in the previous day's paper. Needless to say he is a confirmed believer in the value of newspaper publicity. The Times advertisers always are.

NEW UNITS FOR FILTER PLANT

The two additional units for the filter plant are expected in the city by the end of the present month. During the past couple of weeks it has been necessary to shut the plant down on one or two occasions in order to excute repairs. The foundation for the new gas engine has been completed and as the engine will be in the city in the course of a week or so the end of the troubles at the pump house would appear to be in sight.

Correspondence District News.

To the Editor of The Times,—

I would esteem it a favor if you will permit me in your columns to call attention to the following apropos of the recent aldermanic election.

The elected candidate is in a minority of 25 votes of the total vote cast. I congratulate Mr. Ansley for the splend d fight he put up for want one against such odds.

Seeing he was the foremost of the two Conservatives in the field, and was not generally known, he polled a large vote. He had no boosters to help him. Ansley has shown good legislative talent in the past, and I am confident he will make his influence felt in Medicine Hat yet.

"An Old Acquaintance."

(Our contributor takes unwarranted ground when he brings in the politics of a candidate in amunicipal contest. The fact that some of the candidates are Conservative and some Liberal should make no difference to the electors. Unfortunately we fear that politics is allowed to have a bearing on the situation and electors sometimes vote for or against a man because he is Liberal or Consetvative as the case may be. What we want in our city council is men of calibre and stamina irrespective of their politics, and those who prove themselves to be such The Times is prepared to support.—Editor.)

Editor Times, Medicine Hat.

Dear Sir:—In the last issue of your paper there appeared a letter, signed by Mr. Ansley, which he made very personal to myself. The letter no doubt was intended to do work on the eve of the Ward Two election, the roorbach containing statements which it would be too late to refute. The letter contained at least three statements which are falsehoods, Mr. Ansley says: "Neither did Mr. Forster lend his aid to carry out the Mayor's plans, but blocked him on everything possible." This statement is absolutely false. During 1908, I gave the Mayor of the City much assistance in the straightening out of the City's finances, and in the handling of the disjointed and worn-out Water Works Plant, during the process of installation of the new machinery, and on many other questions which came before the council during 1908.

On the question of the increase of the Gas Rates and one or two other questions, I held views opposite to the Mayor and did nothesitate in standing by my convictions. The statements that, "The News quotes the Assessment Roll to show his friend Mr. Adsit to hold double the property Mr. Ansley does," is also incorrect. The News did not quote the Assessment Roll, but said distinctly in two places in the article referred to by Mr. Ansley that it was the "Voters' List" which was quoted. Further down Mr. Ansley says: "Unfortunately it published the statement that Mr. Adsit was dismissed by the present Council." The News did not publish this statement, but said, "Mr. Adsit was turned out of the position in January." There is a large distinction between dismissal from a position, and being turned out of a position. A dismissal would have brought with it a letter covering the dismissal, and would also have put the matter in a position where cause might have had to be shown for the dismissal. This was not the case and I think the ratepayers of Medicine Hat before the year is out will find that the cost of the office referred to to the city of Medicine Hat will be from 40 to 60 per cent greater in 1909 than it was in 1908, and we do not think that there is any more work, and know that there are not as many to work for. Thanking you for space in your paper, to make these corrections,

I am,
Yours respectfully,
F. G. FORSTER.

Owing to Monday, May 24th being a holiday, The Times is issued on Wednesday this week.

New Industry.

An important new industry has recently been started by Messrs. A. E. Whiffin and Doty in the basement of the Pruitt block, which has been equipped as a thoroughly up to date bottling works. Modern machinery of the most approved type has been installed, and the new firm are now supplying with aerated waters a large territory, both in western Saskatchewan and Southern Alberta. Seventy five dozen bottles were shipped on Friday last to Maple Creek alone.

Theplant consists of a carbonator of the largest type, which has a capacity of 1000 dozen a day—sufficient to keep the four bottling tables in full operation. At present only one table is in use with a capacity of 200 dozen a day. An automatic rinser is used for the cleansing of the returned bottles. A valuable filter with a capacity of 250 to 300 gallons of water per 24 hours has been installed. The basement is fitted up with a large store room and a comfortable office.

The new firm, which goes by the name of the Standard Bottling Co. will secure to the city a large amount of revenue which has hitherto gone to eastern houses.

SEVEN PERSONS

News will be scarce this week as it has been raining all week and people have stayed at home.

Messrs. Pierce and Facey have moved their household effects to their homestead.

J. A. Brand who has been looking up a new location returned home this week.

H. H. Foster and D. Cargill passed through here with a man who was slightly demented, a rancher living south of here whose name we have forgotten.

Mr. George Murray came in on the train Saturday evening. Mrs. Murray met two young ladies who came on the mixed train Saturday forenoon and took them to the ranche the same day.

W. G. Reed passed through here to the Hat and returned Wednesday.

There was a nice social dance at Mr. Nesting's Friday evening last.

Miss Armstrong went home Friday evening and school will open again next Tuesday. Monday being a legal holiday.

BONNIE BRAE

Mr. Corbett has started a fair sized nursery on his farm. He evidently intends making scenic improvements sometime in the future.

Planting is the order of the day here, seeding being pretty well completed.

R. W. Marshall and family have moved from the Hat to their summer home upon the prairie.

We have had an abundance of rain here but seemingly the ground requires it all.

Mr. G. Schmelzer and sons have purchased a half section of first class grazing land near Seven Persons.

If this season is favorable for the growth of potatoes, judging from the amount being planted they will not reach such a high price next spring.

Mr. Schmelzer Jr., accompanied by his mother had a fast ride into the Hat last Saturday afternoon. Shortly after leaving their home here the horses which they were driving took fright at an umbrella and bolted. They raced for over three miles and not until they had reached the steep incline by the standpipe was Mr. Schmelzer able to get them under control. Fortunately no one was hurt, more than a severe shaking up.

Alfalfa growing in this district will be given a good test this season. City Solicitor Mahaffy has a small piece well seeded here on his homestead.

Mr. James Teale of Medicine Hat met with a painful accident near here last Tuesday. While on his way to his homestead near Seven Persons his horse took fright at an amateur cyclist and shied very suddenly throwing him heavily to the ground. Mr. Teale was confined for a couple of days but we are pleased to see him around again.

Has Mr. Campbell's illness caused th s excellent growing weather?

Mr. and Mrs. Follis Jr., spent the 24th at Irvine.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. James Douglas and family desire through the columns of The Times to express their thanks for kind help and sympathy extended to them during their recent bereavement.

Sermon to Sons of England

On Sunday morning the members of the local lodge of the Sons of England B. F., accompanied by the local Orange Lodge attended divine service in St. Barnabas church, where an eloquent and appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. E. Cox Clarke, rector of theparish. Taking as his text I Peter 2:17, "Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the King," Mr. Clarke spoke of the duties and sacrifices which membership in the orders entails, in the upnolding of exalted ideals and that standard of honor upon which our Empire has been built up and upon which its future depends. If we desire to maintain the integrity of the Empire, we must be prepared to sacrifice feelings of pride and sometimes of a so-called liberty (which may mean license) of which we are at times inclined to boast. We should be inspired by the Greater Imperialism, which seeks the realization throughout the world of those vital truths of Christianity—the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man.

HYMENEAL

A pretty wedding took place at 6 o'clock on Wednesday, May 19th, at St. Barnabas' church, when Annie E. Taylor was married to Walter Laws, of Medicine Hat. The Rev. E. Cox Clarke performed the ceremony. The bride was biven away by her brother Mr. F. E. Taylor, of Morris, Man. The bridesmaid was Miss Georgia Gordon. The groom was attended by Mr. Robert John McCullough. Miss Dorothy May Taylor, niece of the bride, prettily dressed in white, acted as maid of honor. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother at 133 Ottawa street. The presents were numerous and very pretty as well as useful.

Mr. and Mrs. Laws left on No. 97 for Vancouver where they will spend two or three weeks before returning to take up their residence at Medicine Hat.

THURSDAY'S GAME

By a score of 5 to 3, the Gas City defeated the Miners in the second game of the season in Medicine Hat, before a crowd of upwards of 750 people. A half holiday had been proclaimed by the mayor and a large crowd gathered in the athletic park to witness what was virtually the opening game. The local team showed their usual strength in the field. In the innings after the rain Medicine Hat added four runs, the Lethbridge fielders making a rather poor exhibition. Apart from this innings the play was fairly evenly divided.

The game by innings:

Lethbridge went to bat first and Joe Corrigan and Taylor were easy out, Jack Corrigan flied out to Williams. In the Hat's turn at bat Bennett took four balls, Wilson flied to Taylor, Bennett stole second, Morgan out to Taylor. Chandler hit safe to right field. Bennett came home. Williams was walked, and Harper hit to Peck and was out. One run.

In the second innings Cox hit past short, Bell laid one in front of the plate, Cox dropped the throw: Cox went to third. Chandler went out to first. Lynch flied out to Williams. Cox came home on a pass ball, Peck hit a drive to Si, who made a spectacular catch, coming in on the run and catching the ball off his toes with his left hand. One run. In the Hat's turn at bat Pich hit Ward, Townsend sacrificed. Campbell struck out and Ward was caught leading off second. No runs.

In the third Pich, Corrigan and Taylor were easy outs to the infield. Bennett walked, Wilson struck out, Morgan took one in the ribs, Childers went out to Taylor, who doubled Si at second. No runs.

Jack C. flied out to Si, Cox hit safe over third and stole second. Chandler walked, Lynch singled to right, Cox came home. Pich hit to Harper and forced Chandler. Joe C. was an easy out to Harper. One run. In the Gas Metres turn in the fourth Williams walked, Harper bunted and forced Williams, Ward hit to Taylor and doubled Williams. No runs.

Fifth—Pich was hit, Joe C. was out on a foul to Ward, Taylor fanned. Jack C. grounded to first. No runs. Townsend was an easy out, Campbel, walked, Si sacrificed and was saved. Wilson, Bell and Morgan were easy outs, and ended our good chance to score. No runs.

Chesty Cox grounded to Townsend and died, Bell took a shoot on the knee, Chandler flied out to Wilson and Lynch whiffed. Childers took three strikes for the waterpail route, Williams walked, Harper went out to Chandler and Ward went out to short. No runs.

Seventh—Pich went out to Campbell, Nelson out to Harper, Corrigan out to Campbell. It was in Medicine Hat's turn in the seventh innings that the fireworks began. Town end was hit, Campbell sacrificed and got safe. Townsend went to third on Cox's ersor. Si sacrificed and the bases were full. Whisman was sent in to bat for Wilson and hit a hot one to Chandler who fumbled, and Towns end scored. Morgan hit to short and Bell booted the ball. Campbell scored Bennett and Whisman came in on an overthrow and Morgan was caught at the plate. Williams flied out to left. Childers was out trying to make home on a throw in. Four runs

Eighth—Taylor hit safe to Si, J. C. hit to Harper, who touched second and doubled Cox at first. Bell hit for two bases, Lynch singled and Taylor scored. Corrigan was caught at the plate. One run.

Harper flied out to centre, Ward waited for four wide ones and stole second. Townsend walked Campbell went out on a fielder's choice to Jack Corrigan. Si was passed, but was caught napping off first.

Ninth—Jack C. hit to Childers and was safe. Cox was out on a foul to Childers. Canty flied out to Bennett, Lynch went out to pitcher, and all was over.

Harper got everything at short and made a nice double.

Si was playing the whole outfield himself.

The Lethbridge bunch are sure there with the bat. Their fielding was not so snappy as that of the Hat team

Pich was wild, passing no less than nine men, also hitting three.

If the rain had continued and the game been called the Gasires would have been an the wrong end of the score.

Three in a row looks pretty good.

"Signing the pledge" is no new thing, as is proved by researches in Italy. Interesting particulars of what would appear to be the earliest examples of written pledges to abstain from gambling and excessive drinking are given in the Turin Studi Medievali by Signor Girolamo Biscaro, who has discovered three such documents in the archives of Milan. The first of these records is an oath sworn on the gospels by Gisl'como Pasquali and Armanino Duca to the effect that for two years they will abstain from gambling in Pavia or within three miles thereof and will likewise refrain from inducing others to gamble on their behalf. The penalty for any breach of this oath is fixed at 5 soldi, payable to Papio Bovatorio.

In the second document Perano de Bono promises Liberto de Proto to abstain from gambling for a certain period, exception being made on behalf of the game of bismentiro, at which, however, he was not to lose more than 2 denari on any one day. Further, he undertakes not to visit any inn for drinking purposes before the hour of vespers on Monday. A breach of either clause of the pledge involves the payment of 5 soldi to De Proto. By the third document Sileto Ferrario expressed his willingness to pay 12 denari to his brother Lamperio should he be persuaded to play for money in any place of public resort or to spend more than 2 denari on intoxicants in any one day.

The motive for these contracts is not stated, but it is presumed that they were entered into by employees whose masters wished to keep their proclivities in check. There is nothing in the documents to suggest the existence of an organization for the promotion of temperance. The honor of being first in the field in this respect therefore still rests with Germany, where two temperance societies were founded in the sixteenth century.

Of these the Order of St. Christopher was formed by Sigismund de Diettrichstein on Jan. 18, 1517, and the Order of Temperance by the landgrave of Hesse on Dec. 25, 1600. The members of the one order were pledged to abstain from toast drinking, and the members of the other to refrain not [illegible] Lasses of

AN ACCURATE CLOCK.

The Timepiece in the Observatory of Columbia University.

In the observatory of Columbia university is one of the most accurate clocks in the world. It has run for several months with a mean error of only fifteen-thousandths of a second and a maximum error of thirty-thousandths of a second per day. That means that it does not vary more than half a second a month, or six seconds a year.

Compare this with the first pocket timepiece, the "animated egg of Nuremberg," which required winding twice a day and varied an hour and a half in the same time! Compare it with some of the highest priced watches manufactured today, which often vary more than ten seconds a week, and you will have some idea of the refinements in the science of measuring time. Yet even this accuracy is surpassed by some famous timepieces, if the trade magazines are to be believed. There have been accounts in them of clocks or watches that have varied less than a second in periods as long as ten years.

The clock at the University of Columbia is an astronomical clock. It is surrounded by a glass case in which a partial vacuum is maintained, and in order that the case may not be opened or disturbed the winding is done automatically by electricity. The clock is set up in a room especially constructed to keep it free from jar or vibration. The temperature and barometric conditions are maintained practically constant, and every possible precaution is taken to minimize the errors of the running mate.—New York World.

IT CLEANS THE SHIPS.

In the Aegean sea a vessel may sail into the top of a crater, and, though it is hard to find anchorage there, yet a mere sail through is appreciated greatly by captains, because it cleanses the bottom of the ships from marine growth.

More than 2,000 years ago the isle of Santorin was split in half by an earthquake, with the result that what was once the crater of a volcano is now a crescent shaped harbor. Two glistening white towns of Thera and St. Nicholas are perched on the summit of the steep cliffs, whose dark and dismal hue is similar to that of the top of Vesuvius. Standing out against the sky are large numbers of windmills, with many sails, arranged in a perfect circle. These are evidently employed for crushing the olives, which, along with the terraced vines, are the staple product of the island. The Santorin wine is of excellent quality and is highly appreciated in the Levant.

Between the main island on the east and the smaller, Theresia, on the west, are the three small Kaumene islands, all of which have come into existence since the original earthquake, while the largest of the three was "born from the sea" less than 200 years ago, showing that the center of the old volcano has still a certain amount of activity.

The water in the harbor into which the sulphurous streams from this volcanic island rain has a peculiar property which completely cleans off growths of every kind from the bottom of any ship.

"Real Sporty" Woodsmen.

The chief recreation of the woodsmen of the Puget sound country is to go to town on Saturday nights. As a valley dweller explained: "They've got money, and they just blow it in. That there is the logger style of it. There's no places of amusement in the town. They can go to the library and sit down or go to a hotel and sit down, but that don't suit 'em. No, they either get drunk or go to church. Some take in both. I've seen 'em at church pretty well loaded. 'Bout 'leven or twelve o'clock they start for their camp. Mostly they hire a rig and go eight or ten fellers to a team. Oh, they're sporty! There's nothing too good for the loggers and, take 'em as a whole, they're the best class of men I ever run up against."—Clifton Johnson in Outing Magazine.

Etruscan Vases.

The famous Etruscan vases were wrongly named, for, though made in Etruria, they were the productions of Greek genius. They are elegant in form and enriched with bands of beautiful foliage and other ornaments, figures and similar subjects of a highly artistic character. One class has black figures and ornaments on a red ground —the natural color of the clay; another has the figures of the natural color and the ground painted black. The former class belong to a date about 600 B. C., the latter date about a century later and extend over a period of some 300 or 350 years.—New York American.

Where the Cost Comes In.

"No. Living doesn't cost so much more, but a fellow has to pay a big price to keep from getting lonesome."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A NOTORIOUS OUTLAW

ONLY A BOY, YET A TERROR.

This Youthful Desperado of the Southwestern Territories Was but Twenty-one When He Met Death at the Hands of Sheriff Pat Garrett.

When General Lew Wallace was governor of New Mexico and the war that raged for several years between the rival cattle companies was at its height "Billy the Kid" had reached the flood of his murderous career. He arrived in Lincoln county to take sides in the cattle warfare, known and feared in every range town and mining camp in the southwestern territories.

Pure wanton love of carnage was all that attracted him to Lincoln county. With the band of desperadoes he led he raided ranches, "shot up" towns, killed, burned houses and committed outrage after outrage with the blind recklessness of a maniac. Fear was extinct within him. He cared no more for detachments of cavalry than he did for cowering sheriffs.

Affairs in New Mexico finally came to such a pass that half the cattlemen paid the youthful desperado tribute. It was only after Pat F. Garrett was made sheriff of Lincoln county and the author of "Ben-Hur" (General Wallace) urged that fearless gun fighter and gambler to capture Billy the Kid that a determined effort was made to end his reign of terror.

The obstacles that Garrett had to encounter called for all his headlong energy and nerve. Billy had the entire countryside in a state of abject terror; friends were ready to give him timely warning of pursuit; ranchmen dared not deny him lodgment or concealment.

Pat Garrett undertook the capture in October, 1880, and on Dec. 20 he surrounded the Kid and his band in a deserted house near Stinking Springs. After a siege lasting most of the day the outlaws' ammunition was exhausted. Billy the Kid surrendered. He and his four followers, surrounded by a great force of armed men, were taken to Las Vegas and thence to Santa Fe for safe keeping.

An array of indictments charging murder confronted him. He was tried on one indictment and acquitted, then tried on another and convicted. He carried himself throughout with sneering defiance. After he had been sentenced to hang Garrett took him to Fort Stanton, near Lincoln. Two deputies armed with Winchesters were assigned to guard him in the temporary jail in the Murphy & Dolan store building.

In some mysterious fashion the Kid possessed himself of a revolver, shot down his guards, seized their weapons and appeared at the window. When another guard appeared the prisoner riddled his body with buckshot. Then he called to an old man on the plaza to bring him a file. Filing off one of his shackles, he called for a horse. One was brought, and he escaped.

For nearly three months after that Billy the Kid led a fugitive life. Garrett dogged him patiently and finally got wind of his hiding place—the ranch of Peter Maxwell, near Fort Sumner. It was nearly midnight when Garrett and two deputies quietly approached the Maxwell hacienda. Garrett crept into the room where Maxwell was sleeping. Softly awakening the sleeper, he questioned him concerning the whereabouts of the Kid.

At that moment the hunted youth sprang into the room, calling out in Spanish, "Quien va?" ("Who comes there?") It was Billy. He was unarmed, and as he reached for his rifle Garrett shot him. The body of William Bonney (Billy the Kid) was buried in the military cemetery at Fort Stanton July 15, 1881. His age at the time of his death was twenty-one years seven months. There his body is today, though in later years a corpse was exhibited throughout the west as that of the famous young outlaw.—Harper's Weekly.

None Left Alive.

"An orator," said one of our statesmen, "was addressing an assemblage of the people. He recounted the people's wrongs. Then he passionately cried;

"'Where are America's great men? Why don't they take up the cudgel in our defense? In the face of our manifold wrongs why do they remain cold, immovable, silent?'

Bucolic Humor.

"Hiram, why don't you speak to that city gal out there a-sittin' on the grass with her back up agin your 'No Trespassing' sign?"

Forests Reserves.

The Dominion forest reserves occupy an important place in the report for the year 1908 of the Superintendent of Forestry, Mr. R. H. Campbell, which has lately been issued. The Riding Mountain reserve, the largest of these, is the most fully treated. Its topography and condition in regard to lumbering are noted and emphasis is placed on the important place it must occupy in regard to the water supply of the adjacent country, both for domestic and industrial purposes. An evidence of the latter is the granting of permission to the Minnedosa Power Co., of Minnedosa, Man., to erect a dam on Clear Lake, in the reserve, so as to render the water of the Little Saskatchewan available for the production of power. The timber survey of the reserve is practically completed. The fire ranging service on the reserve, and, in addition, on the Duck Lake and Porcupine reserves was during the year previous (1907) organized with a chief ranger in charge and six assistant rangers. The protection of game on the reserve is also being given consideration.

An important aspect of the Moose Mountain results from its use as a summer retort, especially along the shore of Fish Lake. Regulations for granting occupation of camping sites by lease or otherwise are under consideration. The main question in the management of the reserve is its protection from fire.

The setting aside of a permanent forest reserve to the north of the Saskatchewan river, opposite Prince Albert, has also been recommended.

Notice is also taken of the resolution by the Irrigation Convention in 1907 favoring a fosest reserve on the eastern slope of the Rockies.

TIMBER REGULATIONS

The amended timber regulations adopted in December, 1907, are given in full. The main principle of these is that the timber is to be sold by public auction at the office of the timber agent for the district, and that before being offered for sale each berth shall be examined and shall be surveyed by a competent cruiser. The timber cruiser then submits a sworn statement as to the quantity and value of the timber and on this report an upset price for the berth is fixed by the minister of interior.

FIRE RANGING

During the season of 1407 forty-seven fire rangers were employed patrolling the forest reserves and forested districts, distributed as follows: B. C. Railway Belt, 21; eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, (from the International bounhary to the Saskatchewan river) 7; Edmonton district 5; Prince Albert district, 7; rangers were also kept along the C. N. R. from Erwood to The Pas, two along the Athabasca and in the Lesser Slave district. Attention is called to the great risk of fire along the G. T. P. construction. Reports of extensive damage by fire to forests in the district west of Edmonton were not, however officially confirmed.

A strong plea is made for the extension of adequate fire protection to the forest country north of the Saskatchewan, stretching from Hudson Bay to the Rockies.

TREE DISTRIBUTION

The value of the work of the forestry branch in the free distribution of trees from Indian Head to farmers in the Northwest is noted, and suggestions made for improved facilities at the nursery station. The report of the chief of the tree planting division, Mr. N. M. Ross, forms an appendix to the Superintendent's report, announces a distribution of over 1,700,000 trees in the spring af 1907. In 1908 trees were sent to 1424 applicants; of these 464 were in Manitoba, 659 in Saskatchewan and 301 in Alberta. Planting on the spruce woods forest reserve, the growth of conifers at Indian Head and the permanent plantations at the Nursery station are also discussed.

The School Board.

A special meeting of the school board was held in the secretary's office on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock There were present, W. J. Brotherton, chairman; A. C. Hawthorne, J. E. Miers, D. G. White, trustees.

A letter was received from Mr. Sansom in which the writer stated that he would be willing to be placed on a rising schedule of $100 per annum, increasing to a maximum of $1800. This was an amendment of the former letter in which an increase to $1,700 was applied for. Mr. Sansom's request was granted and his salary increased to $1,600.

CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA

As is well known, this troublesome complaint arises from over-eating, the use of too much rich food, neglected constipation, lack of exercise, bad air, etc.

The food should be thoroughly chewed, and never bolted or swallowed in haste, stimulants must be avoided and exercise taken if possible.

A remedy which has rarely failed to give prompt relief and effect permanent cures, even in the most obstinate cases, is

It acts by regulating and toning the digestive organs, removing costiveness and increasing the appetite and restoring health and vigor to the system.

Mr. Amos Sawler, Gold River, N.S., writes:—"I was greatly troubled with dyspepsia, and after trying several doctors to no effect I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters and I think it is the best medicine there is for that complaint."

The Mail Order House Again

A few weeks ago we expressed in these columns our conviction that a customer could save money for himself and assist materially in the upbuilding of his own city by buying from the local merchants instead of from the mail order house. We set forth reasons why the local man should be given preference, and showed why it is to our own interests to do so even if we have to pay a little more. But we contend that, quality considered, goods can be bought cheaper here than by buying in Winnipeg or Toronto and paying transportation charges.

This week we venture into the realm of figures to demonstrate that our contention was correct. "Figures talk," it is said, and we ask your careful consideration to these. We have not chosen the article about which we wish to give you the figures; it has been chosen for us by the mail order house. The Times is in receipt of a circular from a large departmental store in a western City, giving quotations on binder twine. The prices looked tempting. Surely our local merchants who handle this article could not sell at these figures. To make the offer more attractive binder twine was quoted at different centres throughout the west, and the buyer could select the one nearest him and pay freight from there only instead of from the store.

Binder twine is graded according to the number of feet to the pound. We selected the "550 feet to the pound" variety as that is the grade most widely used. The mail order house quotes this twine at 9 2-8 cents per pound at Calgary. The local freight from Calgary here is 40 cents per hundred on this class of goods. This means that the buyer pays 10 1-5 cents per pound for twine bought from the mail order house.

On enquiry at the local stores which handle this article, we found our opinion, that goods can be bought cheaper at home, confirmed as the price asked for this grade of twine was 10 cents. Besides you don't have to pay for it several weeks before you get it, as is the case with the mail orderhouse.

This is only one illustration of the fact that goods can be bought cheaper at home, when transportation charges are considered. There may be some lines where the mail order house undersells the local merchant, but you will find that when such is the case that the quality is inferior, and the goods are known to the trade as "Seconds." If your local merchant offered you this class of goods, you would refuse to buy them, and promptly tell him that you wanted first quality. Most likely he would lose your trade if he carried this grade of goods in stock instead of the number one variety with which he supplies you.

The contention of The Times that the waterworks must be made self-supporting and bear the principal and interest of all water debentures as well as the running expenses of the plant has been endorsed by the council according to the report of Thursday night's meeting published in another column. The few minor changes made in the schedule indicate that, in the opinion of the council—which embodies fairly well the opinion of the ratepayers—The Times was correct when it said that the new water schedule adequately meets the situation.

No wonder a slight activity has been in evidence around the new post office of late. Possibly the minister of Public Works will stop off here. It is to be hoped that he will not order a discontinuance of the work until another election is in sight.

The baseball club must have given offence in some way to Mr. Probs., the weather man. We will try to induce the "weather factory" to have a better article ready when you visit us again, boys.

The Single Tax

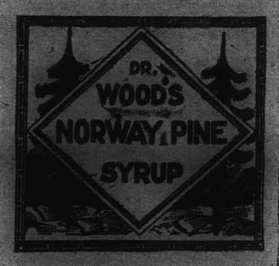
(Calgary Albertan)

The city council has decided to investigate the single tax, and during the last few days there has been more or less discussion of the merits of that system of taxation. Reference was made to it in an editorial a couple of days ago, and this was followed by a very excellent letter, which was published yesterday.

However, the subject is of such importance that the Albertan has no apologies for a further reference to it. Many books could be written of it and then the subject would not be exhausted.

The single tax is a method of taxation designed to be levied on the land values only, irrespective of any improvements. It is therefore not an area tax. For that reason land of the greatest value would pay the greatest tax; land of the least value the smallest tax. Land values are greatest where population is greatest and most centered, therefore causing the greatest demand. Land values constantly decrease as you go from this centre of greatest population towards the outer edge in regular proportion until the point of no values reached. In other words great population, great land values. London for instance. No population, no land values, the far north, for instance. The taxation of land values therefore falls justly on all land users in exact proportion to the value of the opportunity held for private use. Its advocates claim that it is unjust to tax improvements for the reason that the improvements represent the capital and labor expended therefor; that this is private property, and to take any portion for public use is confiscation; but that it is just to tax land values, this being a value created by population, therefor by all, even to the new-born babe and is not private profit; that the taxation of this value for public use is but rendering unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's.

Its advocates claim that a tax on improvements, preventing the employment of labor and the expenditure of capital, puts a premium on the holding of land (opportunities) on which to labor and create wealth out of use; in short, fines him who does good and rewards him who does evil.



Its advocates claim that as land lies out of doors, its value is well-known to all. Taxes can for that reason be levied cheaply, with a certainty that they are just. Only an expert can value improvements, and then only within an approximation; there is a constant tendency towards evasion and fraud.

Why should he who uses land and employs labor be compelled to pay more than he who holds a like area of the same value idle?

Alberta Provincial Exhibition.

A special Hunter class jumping competition will form one of the uhique and interesting features of the Alberta Provincial Exhibition at Calgary. On two different days during the progress of the exhibition, the best hunter class horses from Alberta and Saskatchewan will be put over a series of different jumps arranged so as to represent natural impediments, such as fences, stone walls farm yard enclosures, etc. The actual jumps will be as follows: Four foot bar; brush four foot six inches high sheep corral of which fences are three feet high, and twenty feet a part; imitation stone wall four feet and eighteen inches thick; two brush hurdles three feet six inches high, placed to make one jump four feet wide; gate four feet high; three bars two and a half feet high, each fourteen feet apart then over all but the last three bars a second time. There will be loose bars on the jumps excepting the brush hurdles. On the total standing of each entry for the two days the awards will be made on the following points: refusals of the jump, or the rider falling will disqualify; each refusal of any kind of jump counts one point off; knocking off loose bar, ½ point off; touching loose bar without knocking down, ¼ point off.

The horsemen and merchants of Alberta and Saskatchewan have donated of the owner of the horse winning ted a sterling silver cup, valued at $125, which will become the property this event three times. In addition they have provided $100 cash, fifty dollars to go to the second, and twenty dollars to go to the third. Messrs Linton & Hall of Calgary also have donated a special silver cup which will go to the winner in this class this year.

A HARD DRY COUGH.

Mr. J. L. Purdy, Millvale, N.S., writes:—"I have been troubled with a hard, dry cough for a long time, especially at night, but after having used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, for a few weeks, I find my cough has left me. To any person, suffering as I did, I can say that this remedy is well worth a trial. I would not be without it in the house."

RELIGIOUS ACROBATS.

Dangerous Aerial Slide Annually Performed in India.

India offers many curious things in the way of religion, and the strangest of them all is the aerial slide, which is performed annually at Kuis, in the Himalayas. At a point where there is a cliff overhanging a precipitous gorge several hundred feet in width and a hundred feet in depth a rope is made fast to the rock. The other end of this is carried across the gorge and there secured to a stake. The total length of the rope between the two points is when drawn taut 2,500 feet, and the end attached to the cliff is several hundred feet higher than that fastened on the opposite side of the ravine. Thus a slide is contrived, and it is a dangerous one to all appearance.

It is down this incline that the performer has his path. For the lofty journey a sort of saddle is provided made of wood, with holes in it, through which the rope passes. But before a start is made the whole length of the rope is wet to prevent the saddle from catching fire from the friction. The performer sits astride this seat, and to his legs are fastened bags of sand, which serve two purposes—they enable him to maintain an upright position during his lightning-like descent, and they increase the momentum. The lower end of the rope is carefully wound with bits of carpet to check the speed before the stake is reached. Without this precaution the performer would be dashed to pieces.

The terrific velocity of the descent for the first few hundred yards is shown by the stream of smoke that trails from the wake of the saddle, despite the fact that the rope has been wet. Afterward the incline diminishes somewhat, and the pace becomes correspondingly slower. By the time the goal is reached the jheri, as the performer is called, is able to come to a standstill without disaster.

This slide in the air is supposed to reveal the will of the gods as to the crops of the approaching season. If the perilous trip is accomplished in safety a plentiful harvest is assured. Naturally, therefore, every care is taken to minimize the dangers of the performance. The ceremony is of ancient origin, and those who engage in it as jheri form a small caste apart.—New York Tribune.

A MEDFORD STORY.

The town of Medford, Mass., has a legend of a phantom ship beside which the Flying Dutchman is only a peaceful merchantman. The Medford story runs that a ship laden with rum and gold and silver bars put out from that place in the days when the Spanish main was infested with pirates. It was headed for a West Indian port, but got into the doldrums and was so long becalmed that water and provisions gave out, and all hands perished of thirst and starvation. When the wind came up again the ship sailed away with her ghastly crew, was seen by a buccaneer, chased and overhauled.

The pirate captain made fast to his prize without firing a single shot, and, attributing the vessel's nonresistance to fear or lack of arms, he was the first man to leap on board. But the rope with which the captured ship had been carelessly lashed to his own parted under the strain of the seaway, and he found himself rapidly borne away from his comrades on what he soon discovered to be a floating coffin. A stiff breeze filled the sails of the derelict, and before his own vessel could overtake it night descended on the ocean, and the pursuing ship lost sight of it altogether. Left alone in pitch darkness on the grewsome craft, the pirate went mad with terror and, seizing the wheel, raced away before the wind and, according to the legend, was condemned to range the seas forever thus in command of his horrible prize.

Woe to the ship that encountered it scudding along by moonlight or in the lightning's glare, manned by skeletons and steered by a shouting, gesticulating madman, and when on several occasions it was sighted in the fog off Medford it was considered as the herald of storm and disaster and the loss of many ships.—New York Press.

Jenny's Quick Method.

Jenny's uncle, who was a schoolteacher, met her on the street one beautiful May day and asked her if she was going to the Maypole dance.

"No, I ain't going."

"Oh, my little dear," said her uncle, "you must not say 'I ain't going.' You must say 'I am not going.'" And he proceeded to give her a little lesson in grammar. "You are not going. He is not going. We are not going. You are not going. They are not going. Now, can you say all that, Jenny?"

Jury at the Theater.

An unusual spectacle was witnessed at the Theater Royal, Nelson, Auckland, when the jury, who had been locked up three nights because they could not agree to a verdict in a murder case, were allowed to witness a living picture display. They had expressed a desire to attend the theater as a relief, and the judge consented.—Auckland News.

GOLD PLENTIFUL IN PEACE RIVER

Alfred Violette, just returned from a prospecting tour, tells a story of the amazing wealth of the Peace River district. He states that there is not only gold in the creeks in paying quantities, but thousands of tons of coal in the ravines and black asphalt indicationt of petroleum. He will return north and with a party will locate a huge ranch in the Grande Prairie country, where there are 75 miles of clean level prairie of the finest grazing land, and will carry on prospecting trips into the Northern Peace River country. They will take north with them for ranching purposes 300 head of thoroughbred stock, which will be brought in from Montana next month.

A selection of 320,000 acres of the Hudson's Bay land grant north of the Saskatchewan river will be made this summer by survey parties. One party consists of A. Bayne, Winnipeg, inspector of lands for Hudson's Bay company anh E. Matheson, a surveyor of Winnipeg. They reached the city yesterday with a team and wagon and are gathering supplies for the summer to be spent in the country north west of Edmonton. They start Monday and when they reach McLeod river, will work back along the Pembina and into the Lac la Biche country.

EMPIRE DAY OBSERVANCE

Montreal St. school grounds were the scene of a very pretty and interesting ceremony on Friday afternoon the occasion of Empire Day Observance.

The pupils arranged in the school grounds in the form of a Union Jack carrying the national flag, sang in chorus the national anthem 'The Maple Leaf Forever' and other patriotic songs producing an unique and patriotic effect.

A large number of the parents and prominent citizens of the town gathered to listen to the singing and addresses which followed. Hon. Mr. Finlay and Mr. D. G. White addressed the pupils briefly in the intervals of songs after which the flag was raised and saluted.

Empire Day was observed in the Toronto Street school in the classrooms by singing of national and patriotic hymns and presentation to both of the classes of the flags of the Empire and Canada.

FOLEY'S

PREMIER SODAS

SODAS are made almost entirely of flour and lard. These are two of the principal and most valuable food-elements.

Now a perfect flour and a pure lard combined cannot be surpassed in nourishing value and you get this combination in its most satisfying and most delightful form in Foley's SODAS.

We want you to judge Foley's Sodas by the severest tests and decide for yourself whether they are BEST.

Test them for the quality of the materials used. Test them for age—are they always fresh, so crisp that you know they are not long from the oven?

Test them for flavor—was the yeast allowed to "work" properly, so that the biscuits are uniformly pleasing and satisfying to the taste?

After these tests we know you will always buy these perfect-made, western-made biscuits.

The flour used in them is specially ground and prepared for the one purpose—that of producing the lightest, creamiest, most delicious sodas that are sold in Canada. Every particle of lard that goes into Foley's Sodas is proved "choice" after rigid examination.

No material can ever be used in Foley's Sodas unless it has been proved perfect and pure. Every housewife will know what this care means. She will know that Foley's Sodas have the very highest food value and that every Foley Soda is all good.

Thousands of homes already know this fact. Does yours?

CARRIED A PAPER TELESCOPE.

One Autumn Afternoon a gray-haired Agriculturist took his youngest Olive Branch by the Hand and led him away to a Varsity. Wilbur was 18 and an Onion. He had outgrown his last year's Tunic, and his Smalls were hardly on speaking terms with his Uppers. He had large, warty Hands, which floated idly at his sides, and his Wrists resembled extra Sets of Knuckles. When he walked, his Legs gave way at the Hinge and he Interfered. On his Head was a little Wideawake with a Buckle at the Side. Mother had bobbed his Hair and rubbed in a little Goose-Grease to make it shine. The Collar that he wore was size 13, and called the Rollo Shape. It rose to a Height of a half-inch above his Neck-Band. For a Cravat he had a Piece of watered Silk Ribbon with Butterflies on it.

Wilbur had his Money tied up in a Handkerchief, and he carried a Paper Telescope loaded down with one Complete Change and a Catalogue of the Institution showing that the Necessary Expenses were not more than $3.40 per Week.

As the Train pulled away from Pewee Junction Wilbur began to Leak. The Salt Tears trickled down through the Archipelago of Freckles. He wanted to Crawfish, but Paw bought him a Box of Crackerjack and told him that if he got an Education and improved his Opportunities some day he might be County Superintendent of Schools and get his $900 a Year just like finding it. So Wilbur spunked up and said he would try to stick it out. He got out the Catalogue and read all of the copper-riveted Rules for the Moral Guidance of Students.

The Curriculum had him scared. He saw that in the next four Years he would have to soak up practically all the Knowledge on the Market. But he was cheered to think that if he persevered and got through he would be entitled to wear an Alpaca Coat and a Lawn Tie and teach in the High-School, so he took Courage and began to notice the Scenery.

Wilbur was planted in a Boarding-House guaranteed to provide Wholesome Food and a Home Influence. Father went back after making a final Discourse on the Importance of learning most everything in all of the Books.

Nine Months later they were down at the Depot to meet Wilbur. He had written several times, saying that he could not find time to come Home, as he was in pursuit of Knowledge every Minute of the Day, and if he left the Track, Knowledge might gain several Laps on him. It looked reasonable, too, for the future Superintendent of Schools had spent $400 for Books, $200 for Scientific Apparatus, and something like $60 for Chemicals to be used in the Laboratory.

When the Train suddenly checked itself, to avoid running past the Town, there came out of the Parlor Car something that looked like Fitz, on account of the Padding in the Shoulders. Just above one Ear he wore a dinky Cap about the size of a Postage Stamp. The Coat reached almost to the Hips and was buttoned below. The Trousers had enough material for a suit. They were reefed to show feverish Socks of a zigzag Pattern. The Shoes were very Bull-Doggy, and each had a wide Terrace running around it. Father held on to a Truck for Support. Never before had he seen a genuine Case of the inflammatory Rah-Rahs.

LOOKED LIKE FITZ.

Wilbur was smoking a dinky little Pipe from which the Smoke curled upward, losing itself in a copious Forelock that moved gently in the Breeze. Instead of a Collar, Wilbur was wearing a Turkish Towel. He had the Harvard Walk down pat. With both Hands in his Pockets, the one who had been pursuing Knowledge teetered towards the Author of his Being and said, "How are you, Governor?"

Father was always a Lightning Calculator, and as he stood there trying to grasp and comprehend and mentally close in, as it were, on the Burlap Suit and the Coon-Shirt and the sassy Pipe, something told him that Wilbur would have to Switch if he expected to be County Superintendent of Schools.

"Here are my Checks," said Wilbur, handing over the Brasses. "Have my Trunks and Golf Clubs, my portable Punching-Bag, the Suit-Case and Hat-Boxes sent up to the House right away. Then drive me Home by the Outside Road, because I don't want to meet all these Yaps. They annoy me."

"You'd better git out of that Rig mighty quick if you don't want to be Joshed," said his Parent. "Folks around here won't stand for any such fool Regalia, and if you walk like a frozen-toed Hen you'll get some Hot Shots or I miss my Calkulations."

"Say, Popsy, I've been eating Raw Meat and drinking Blood at the Training-Table, and I'm on Edge," said Wilbur, expanding his Chest until it bulged out like a Thornton Squash. "If any of these local Georgie Glues try to shoot their Pink Conversation at me I'll toss them up into the Trees and let them hang there. I'm the Gazabe that Puts the Shot. Any one who can trim a Policeman and chuck a Hackman right back into his own Hack and drive off with him doesn't ask for any sweeter Tapioca than one of these Gaffer Greens. The Ploughboy who is muscle-bound and full of Pastry will have a Proud Chance any time that he struts across my Pathway. In my Trunks I have eight suits a little warmer than this one and 47 pairs of passionate Hose. I'm out here to give the Cornfields a Touch of High Life. It's about time that your Chaws had a Glimpse of the Great Outside World. Any one who gets Fussy about the Color-Combinations that I spring from Day to Day will be chopped up and served for Lunch. To begin with, I'm going to teach you and Mother to play Golf. If these Mutts come and lean over the Fence and start to get off their Colored-Weekly Jokes we'll fan the Hillside with them."

A MUTT.

"What do they teach up at your School—besides Murder?" inquired Father. "I thought you wanted to be County Superintendent of Schools."

"I've outgrown all those two-by-four Ambitions," was the Reply. "I'm going to be on the Eleven next Fall. What more could you ask?"

That very week Wilbur organized a Ball Team that walloped Hickory Crick, Sand Ridge, and Sozzinsville. He had the whole Township with him. Every Cub at Pewee Junction began to wear a Turkish Towel for a Collar and practise the Harvard Walk.

A PARISIAN RUSE.

The Dressmaker's Lure That Ensnared the Americans.

Grace Margaret Gould tells in the September Woman's Home Companion some of the ways the Parisian dressmaking establishments sell their goods to American women. Here is one ruse that she saw worked in one of the biggest establishments in Paris:

There was a sudden and evident commotion among the employees. "The princess! The princess! She has arrived!" they cried.

American eyes began to bulge.

Out from a magnificent equipage stepped a regally gowned grand lady, attended by footmen and maid and received by the whole bowing establishment, to the neglect of all other customers. She was in a gracious mood this day and easy to be pleased, praising their past efforts and selecting several of their new creations without regard to cost. After she had made her departure amid like ceremonies there was no need of the saleswoman bothering her head over suggestions. Every American woman present wanted a gown copied from the one the princess had bought, and she got it after much pleading and at a price far beyond the limit she had set.

And the point of this fable is this: The princess was no princess, but an employee of the house.

Every French gown has two prices—an American price and a French price. It is needless to say which is the greater price.

Along about April the cry goes up, "The Americans are coming!" and then the prices go up too.

Along about November, when the Americans have left, you might almost say they are giving away gowns, only the Frenchman never does give away anything. Then it is that the Frenchwoman in general and the French actress in particular selects her wardrobe.

Sympathy For the Orphans.

An elephant while stamping through the jungle one day quite unintentionally stepped upon a mother bird, crushing it to death. Hearing the cries of the little brood in the bushes near by she sought out the nest and with a sympathetic sigh said: "Poor little things! I've been a mother myself. I'll keep you warm." And she then proceeded to sit upon the nest.—From George T. Lanigan's Fable, "The Kind Hearted She Elephant."

Modern Version.

"Then you will be ever at my beck and call?" inquired Aladdin.

"With the exception of Tuesday and Friday afternoons, Monday and Saturday evenings and every other Sunday," firmly replied the genie.—Washington Herald.

A MINISTER'S GRATITUDE

Zam-Buk Cued a Face Sore which Defied all other Remedies

Rev. Charles E. Stafford of Bridgeburg, Ont., says:—

"I had been much troubled for over two years with a sore on my left cheek. I tried all kinds of salves and lotions, but nothing I procured seemed to have the least bit of effect towards healing the sore. Hearing of Zam-Buk, I decided to give it a trial, and see if it would bring about a cure, as so many other things had failed. I purchased a supply and commenced with the treatment. After several applications, to my great joy Zam-Buk has effected what for two years I tried in vain to bring about—a complete cure."

Case after case could be quoted in which, as in the above instance, Zam-Buk has worked cures when everything else tried had failed. There is reason for this. Zam-Buk is the ideal remedy because of its unique ingredients for all skin injuries and diseases.

Away back in the days of the Roman gladiators, secret balms were used for the healing of cuts and injuries sustained in the arena and in battle. Then came a period in which external qualms were neglected, followed by a period in which all the salves and embrociations had as their base animal fats and oils. Zam-Buk marks a new epoch. It is absolutely devoid of all animal fats, all mineral coloring matters, and is composed of rich medicinal herbal extracts. Zam-Buk is a combination of Nature's rich healing herbal juices by the most modern scientific methods, and the result is a balm which cures when other fail.

Skin diseases, such as eczema, ringworm, salt rheum, and prairie itch, are speedily overcome by it. For piles it is fine!—easing the pain and inflamation, and hastening a cure. It also cures burns, scalds, cuts, ulcers, children's sores and eruptions, blood-poisoning, scratches, old wounds, varicose ulcers, etc. All Druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Refuse harmful and cheap imitations, sometimes represented as "Just as good".

The intermediate examinations for chartered accountants were held in the office of D. J. Fewings under Mr Fewings' supervision on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week Messrs W. G. Rowe and R. W. Lampman were the candidates.

Opening of the New High School

Interesting Ceremony on Friday Afternoon

The laying of the foundation stone of the new High school building on Friday marks an epoch in educational matters in Medicine Hat. For some years past the staff of our schools have been working under a severe handicap. Perpetually there has been a state of congestion in the schools which the makeshifts adopted from time to time have only temporarily relieved. At last, however, we are to have an institution thoroughly equipped for all modern requirements, and especially for the purposes of secondary education. The accommodation in Medicine Hat schools has always lagged behind the needs of the city and district, and it is possible that, almost the new building has been opened, the board will find it necessary to consider plans for further extensions to keep pace with the city's growth.

At half past two on Friday afternoon the pupils from both schools assembled at Toronto street school, and headed by the city band marched along the principal streets and then to the new school on the hill, where a large number of citizens had gathered to witness the ceremony. From half past two to three o'clock and after the stream of citizens hillward continued until a crowd which must have numbered in all well on to the thousand mark, had gathered on the scene. The arch at the main entrance to the school was decorated with buntine, and the flags of the Empire and of Canada were displayed in prominent places. At three o'clock proceedings commenced by the singing of "The Maple Leaf Forever," by the pupils under Mr. Fulton's able direction, the band playing in accompaniment.

The first speech of the day was given by Mr. W. J. Brotherton, chairman of the school board, who acted in an interesting manner the evolution of Medicine Hat's educational institutions.

After a selection by the band the Hon. A. C. Rutherford, premier and minister of education of the province was introduced. A very pretty ceremony was the presentation to the premier by Miss Ruth Hawthorne, of the silver trowel with which the corner stone was laid.

After congratulating the citizens on the splendid school building in course of erection Mr. Rutherford went on to say that nothing gave him greater pleasure than to take part in the ceremony of laying the corner stone of educational buildings throughout the province. The progress which was being made in Alberta in an educational way should be a cause of just pride to everyone of her citizens. The record of Medicine Hat whose population had doubled in five years was a splendid one, and in keeping with the development along those lines elsewhere in the province. Last year the total enrollment of pupils was 40,000. This year it had increased to over 48,000. There had been a 50 per cent increase in the number of students enrolled for the department examinations. The greatest difficulty with which the department had to deal was the smallness of the supply of teachers in relation to the demand. At least 300 new teachers would be required next year and in order to meet the needs of the province it was necessary to draw upon the east. Until recent years the salaries of teachers in Ontario had been so low that little difficulty was experienced in the west in meeting the supply from this source. During the last three years however, a change had been brought about and a condition which had never been very creditable to the Banner Province, was at last ended. Efforts were being put forth in England and Scotland to obtain teachers for Alberta and there was a prospect of our province staff being greatly augmentech by this means. At the normal school also, teachers were now being trained. Three years ago 26 students were enrolled. On the opening of the school this fall one hundred and twenty-five were admitted.

Commenting on Mr. Brotherton's remark chat it was now possible for a child in Medicine Hat to pass right through from the kindergarten to the attainment of matriculation, the premier went on to define the scope and purpose of the university established by the province in Strathcona. It was not intended that at the outset professional courses should be given, but the foundations of higher educations were being laid. Forey-seven students enrolled last year. Sixty to seventy-five would enroll this year in first year classes. This was an excellent start. The speaker did not agree with the criticism of those who contended that the University had bee nestablished too early in the history of the province. He believed that as far as might be possible we should retain Alberta students in Alberta.

There were evidences that the incoming settlers were alive to the supreme importance of education. In three years and four months 508 new school districts had been created, and taking into consideration the large increase in the number of rooms in the towns and cities it might be said that the number of school districts had more than daubled in that period.

The speaker had often heard the remark that our school boards were better than our town councils. Whether the perdict of the newspapers in this regard could be relied on he was unable to say, but it was a fact that our school boards came in for very little criticism. In the matter of the turning down of the high school bylaw last year he was glad to see that the citizens of Medicine Hat had repented on recognizing their mistake.

One of the greatest assets of any community lay in its school buildings upon these depended in large measure the character of the residences and stores. But the greatest and best of the country's assets were its children. All else, wealth, progress, commercial greatness, were of but minor importance as compared with the building up of character in the youth of our nation. On an occasion of this kind, said Mr. Rutherford, he felt it his duty to dwell upon the aspect of school life in the great, the supreme importance of character building.

As to the educational work which would be carried on in the new Medicine Hat institution, he had not the slightest doubt that it would have a tendency to foster the spirit of loyalty to Alberta, loyalty to Canada and loyalty to the great Empire of which we form a part.

The premier then declared the corner stone well and truly laid.

One of the most pleasing features of the afternoon's programme was the flag drill carried out by sixteen girls of the local schools, followed by the singing of Rule Brittania by over 400 lusty young voices, and the Britannia tableau. The pupils who took part in this event were trained by Mr. Meneely, and they carried out the drill without a single mistake. The part of Brittannia was filled by Miss Fellows with exceptional grace of bearing.

The Hon. W. T. Finlay, minister of agriculture, referred in a short but appropriate speech to the rapid growth of the school districts of Alberta. The time was not far distant when we in Medicine Hat should find it necessary to lay the foundation stone of another school building. In the ultimate, education was of more importance to Alberta than the mere increase of material wealth.

Calling upon Mayor Milne for a speech Mr. Brotherton referred to the great interest in educational progress which has ever been displayed by His Worship, than whom no citizen of Medicine Hat had given more attention to the discussion of the plans and details of the new building.

I am glad said his worship, to see so many of myfellow citizens here today to extend a welcome to the premier of our province and take part in the ceremony of laying the corner stone of this new school building. Whil? the school will perhaps not be the largest building of its class in the province, still, when complete there will be none more substantially constructed or modern in all its appointments and equipment. When we look around and see the many bright and intelligent faces of our boys and girls eager to take advantages of the opportunities thus placed within their reach to equip themselves for the life work they are mentally and physically fitted for it does not require a great stretch of imagination to see the time when it will be a noted seat of learning, an become one of the best publicity bureaus we could possess and at the same time be a mocument to the unbounded confidence we as citizens have in the future of our city. It is true our farming community met with discouraging results in the experimental stages of the development of this district. But it is generally considered that the crops of this year is the best that has been grown in this district and is equal to anything in the tnree propinces. This goes to show that with intelligent cultivation of the soil, mixed farming can be made not only a success here but exceedingly profitable to the farmer. While this year's crop will have a splendid money producing record its effect will not be fully reflected upon the district for some time. But I think it will have the effect of getting a great many rural school districts organized, and many of the pupils attending these will naturally look to the larger towns and cities to provide a higher education, which I think they are in duty bound to do. I am glad to see our member the honorable minister of agriculture here todayf If there is any one thing mor? than another which he nas done for the district it is the locating of a demonstration farm here. I was going to say experimental for I think it will be demonstrated before long that many fruits and grains can be grown here successfully that might be a failure elsewhere in the province. However, a practical demonstration of soil culture is what we want at the present time, for in the farm we have one of the fundamental factors for maintaining a happy and contented rural population. I might go on and show the necessity of rural telephone lines and branch railways, but my time is up. I will only say that I am pleased to see the energy displayed by the school trustees in the erection of this building and trust its future will be as true and square as the corner stone has been laid.

After the singing of "Canada" by the children and another selection by the band whose presence throughout the afternoon was greatly appreciated, the proceedings were brought to a conclusion by the singing of the national anthem.

The training of the children for Friday's event had been carried out under exceptional dimculties. The shortness of the time of preparation and the intense heat of the days between the schools reopening and the ceremony had proved a serious handicap to the teachers under whose supervision the children were placed, and the result was of great credit to the staff.

In the evening an informal dinner in honor of the premier was served at the Cosmopolitan hotel. About two dozen visitors and citizens connected in various ways with the cause of education in Medicine Hat were the guests of the school board. The dinner was served in the Cosmopolitan's best style. After ample justice had been done to the excellent repast Chairman Brotherton proposed the toast to the king which was responded to by the premier.

The honorable gentleman referred first to the great British Empire and its policy of naval defence which has of late been so prominently brought before the public. He expressed pleasure in the thought that Canada is about to assume responsibility for her share of the burden.

Continuing he referred to the part of education in making loyal citizens. In Alberta, we could now see the wisdom of the statesmen who set apart land for educational purposes. In this province about eight million acres were so set apart. Of this about 200,000 acres only had been sold; and from the revenue thus derived a grant of about $50,000 per year is being made towards education. Most of this goes toward assisting in primary education which is proper because only about ten per cent of the pupils who pass through our schools enter the high school work.

When the speaker came to this province about 14 years ago it had a population of about 20,000 people. It has since grown to a population of about 300,000. The premier then paid a tribute to our American settlers whom he stated are intensely loyal to our institutions and anxious for citizenship. We are laying foundations naw in this province and the government has much work before it.

Owing to the necessity of the premier leaving on the evening train for the west the toast list was necessarily brief, and the gathering broke up at an early hour, but not until the school board had demonstrated to a certainty its ability to act as host.

Address By W. J. Brotherton

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

We are here today to perform a very pleasant duty, that of laying the corner stone of this magnificent building which is to be used as a school building, with the special purpose of accommodating the higher standards; and perhaps at this time it might not be amiss for for me to give a short resume of the history of the Medicine Hat school district.

The first meeting called for the consideration of school matters was called during the year 1886, and in September of that year, the first school board was formed, and school trustees elected. They were: Messrs. Ed J. R. Walton, E. B. Cochran and James Hargrave.

Mr. E. J. R. Walton was elected chairman and Mr. Jsames Hargrave, secretary. The school board was really only a committee, as they did not have powers to transact business as the school boards have at the present time, all the business being transacted by the public at public meetings.

The first building used was a building owned by the Presbyterian church and used by them for church purposes, and during the year 1887, the first sch.ol site was purchased, this being four lots on the north side of Toronto street, or the corner of Sixth Avenue and Toronto Street, and arrangements were entered into for the erection of a school building on this site, three thousand dollars being raised for this purpose. This building was only finished in part, as in 1889, a further sum of fifteen hundred dollars was raised, and the building completed the same year.

In January 1890, the first board of school trustees was elected, having powers similar to the school boards of the present time, and they held their first meeting on January 13th, 1892.

This board was composed of Messrs W. Cousins (Chairman), J. H. Spencer and J. G. Waldock. At their first meeting, they advertised for a secretary-treasurer for the school district, and the honor fell to Mr. F. F. Fatt, who filled the position with credit and exactness until his resignation in the year 1904.

Up to this time (1892) only three teachers were engaged on the staff, and it was not until 1895 that a fourth teacher was added.

A very large portion of the time of the school board was taken up in the collection of taxes, but at the present time, the work is done by the city thus relieving the board of a great deal of labor.

From the years 1895 to 1897, there was apparently no change in school business, but in the year 1897 owing to overcrowding of the school, a public meeting was called to consider the question of more school accommodation. After lengthy discussion, it was decided by this public meeting that "no further accommodation be provided that year." However in the following year, the school board commenced work to increase the accommodation of the school building and entered into a contract with Mr. H. C. Yuill, for the erection of a four-roomed brick school building, as an addition to the old building, which was then upon the Toronto street school site. This building was completed about the year 1899, and a fifth teacher added to the staff. In the year 1899 the school board was increased from the number of three to five and the first school board of five members elected was composed of Messrs. Flaeger (chairman), J. H. Cunliffe, W. Cousins, F. G. Forster and Mr. Clark and it was in the next year 1900, that the first High school studies were commenced. They consisted of Standards 6 and 7, and at this time also, an eighth teachers was added to the staff.

During the year 1901, ten lots were purchased on the east side of Montreal street, north, for school purposes, and the next year, 1902, the old frame building used by the Presbyterian church was moved from its original site to these lots on Montreal street and another teacher added to the staff making a total of nine in all, one of whom was on the north side of the railway. This continued until the year 1903, when the building was divided into two rooms and a tenth teacher put on the staff making two on the north side. All rooms being now very much crowded (our attendance being about 550 pupils) in 1904, the first discussion took place in regard to the erection of the present school building on the Montreal Street site—it was felt that a permanent building should be erected here, which was done—and the site doubled by the purchase of ten lots at the rear of the original lots. Thirty thousand dollars were raised for this purpose. This is an eight room building four of which were put in use immediately on completion. In the years 1905 and 1906 steps were taken to complete the Montreal Street school building, and also to remodel the building on the Toronto street site, making it more suitable. After an examination of the old part of the building on Toronto street, the school board decided that it was absolutely unfit for school purposes, and decided to tear it down, which was done during the remodelling operations.

It was during the years 1905 and 1906 that Standard VIII. was added, thus completing our High school studies. In 1907, the schools were again found crowded, and two sites were purchased for the extension of school premises, one of them facing the recreation park on the north side of the track, the other being the site upon which we are today, on the hill—and immediate steps were taken to provide a suitable building for school purposes. After considerable labor by the board, plans were accepted and a bylaw drawn up for the raising of the money for the erection and completion of the building, and submitted to the burgesses during the year 1908, but that bylaw was defeated, hence the delay in the erection of the building. It is worthy of notice that the teaching staff has increased from 10 in 1908, to 20 in 1908, with an attendance of 720 pupils.

Early in the year 1909, the present year, the school board again submitted the proposition to the burgesses for the erection of the high school building, asking for the sum of $50,000, which bylaw was carried by a very large majority, and as you see, the building is now well under way.

Our present staff of teachers, numbering twenty, are working under difficulties until this building is finished and ready for occupancy.

The school board have every confidence that the building now being erected will be a credit to the city, a credit to the cause of education, and will stand for many a year as a tribute to the stirling business acumen of the members of the school board.

Baseball

The feeling that a benefit in behalf of the baseball boys who have by their excellent work through the season been able to capture the Western League Pennant for Medicine Hat, has lead to a practical scheme being propounded. Tomorrow or at least the afternoon and evening, are to be devoted to sports and field events. At 4 o'clock the members of our baseball team will parade through the city in painted masquerade costumes, visiting the various hotels.

The procession will be headed by our local Military Band, which will also be in attendance at the baseball park for the evening events.

The Mayor is desirous that the merchants of the city should close their stores at 5 o'clock in order that their employees may be able to take in all the events. At 6:15 the burlesque baseball game will commence in the Athletic Park, the players will be clothed in all kinds of fantastic costumes.

The hundred yards dash will be open to all and training or lack of training will be matters of no import. Every citizen should compete in the 100 yards dash. A throwing contest and other interesting gala events will make up the remainder of the programme. Admission will be 50c, inclusive of grand stand privileges. Children 15c.

EXHIBITION TOUR.

The baseball boys came into the city this morning and will probably remain here until Friday, when they will leave on a tour through Idaho and as far west as Spokane. On Sunday and Monday next they will play in San Point, Idaho, and at Mullin and Wardner in the same state later in the week, winding uy the tour at Spokane. Every member of the team will take part in this trip with the exception of Billy Campbell, the pitcher, who will stay in the Hat with the intention of taking up a homestead.

President Fleming will call a meeting of the Western Canada Baseball League probably about the middle of October, when the winding up of the year's business will take place.

The pennant will be presented to the winning team and a banquet to all the members of the league will be provided by the local club.

At the last meeting held here all the delegates seemed well satisfied with the League as it present constituted.

THE AUTO TRAIL

(With apologies to Robt. W. Service)

"The trails to the Lake be many, and most of the trails be tried;
You drive in the wake of the Automobile till you come where the way's divide;
And one lies sheer to the northward, and the other is round by Stair,
And you look aslant at the auto trail, and wonder when you'll get There."

The above is an extract from a new work foom the pen of Mr. M. A. Br—n which will shortly be out of the publishers' hands. The full title will be "The Blazing Trail or Studies in Geography."

That "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft aglee" was exemplified by the experiences of the party of picnicers who journeyed to Horseshoe Lake yesterday via the Rae ranch and Stair route.

Lack of space unfortunately prohibits the histoaian from making anything but the most cursary reference to the expedition of yesterday. Suffice it to say that the holiday makess returned to Medicine Hat in the evening after an arduous but thoroughly enjoyable outing.

Telephone Connection With South Country

Government Discrimination Against Medicine Hat

The attendance at the meeting on Thursday evening called for the purpose of urging upon the Alberta government the fulfillment of their pledges in regard to long distance telephones, was not so large as the importance of the occasion warranted. It was satisfactory in that it resulted in the attention of our representative in the legislature, the minister of agriculture, being called to the gross discrimination being shown by the department of public works, and in gaining assurance that Mr. Finlay's every effort would be devoted to the securing of justice for his constituents.

At the outset Mayor Milne was voted in the chair. His worship briefly explained the object of the meeting, reading the correspondence which had taken place between the secretary of the board of trade and the department of public works. The letters read as follows:

July 19th, 1909.

Hon. W. H. Cushing, Esq.,
Minister of Public Works
Edmonton, Alta.

Dear Sir,—

You will remember that when in Edmonton last January, a delegation waited upon you re construction of the telephone line between Lethbridge and Medicine Hat. A great many small towns are springing up between these two places whose natural trade centre would be Medicine Hat, if afforded the facilities for ordering goods by telephone. We will esteem it a great favor if you will kindly let us know at once the present position of affairs regarding the construction of this line as at the present time it has a discriminating influence against Medicine Hat and in favor of Lethbridge. We understood from you that the amount involved in the completion of this line had been placed in the estimates and that the construction of ths same would go on at once. Our board would appreciate very much an early reply to this communication. I beg to remain

Yours very sincerely
JOHN T. HALL,
Commissioner.

July 23rd, 1909.

Sir,—

I am instructed to acknowledge receipt of yours dated 19th re construction of telephone line between Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, and to state in reply that we expect to construct line from Taber east, probably as far as Bow Island this season, but that it is not likely the line will be pushed through to Medicine Hat before another year.

Your obedient servant
JOHN STOSKS.
Deputy Minister.

Mr. J. T. Hall gave a brief explanation of the correspondence, after which Mr. McNeely was called upon to speak. There were, he said, many people between our city and Lethbridge who did not even so much as know that such a place as Medicine Hat exists, and the speaker realized the urgent need of the immediate establishment of connections with the outside world. The better the communication facilities the more trade would our city draw, and, given those facilities, we should be at no disadvantage as compared with our neighboring cities of Calgary and Lethbridge. The speaker would strongly urge the minister of agriculture to intercede with the minister of public works in our behalf, so that the line might be completed to this city before the bulk of the trade has been landed this fall. The rapid growth of population and of new towns between here and Lethbridge was more than astounding, and the whole of this newly developed country within at any rate 60 or 80 miles should be tributary to Medicine Hat.

Ald Spencer gave some account of his experiences as a recent passenger on the south line local. He had been struck by the way in which the train began to fill from Seven Persons onward until, when Taber was reached, it was literally crowded. In interviewing several of the merchants of the new towns he had found that almost all their goods were purchased in Lethbridge. And the long distance telephone was a prime factor in the development of this trade. Here we were working at a great disadvantage. Homestead land was being taken up mainly through the head office at Letbbridge and in consequence many settlers who were rightfully in our own sphere of influence, did not know of our existence. The trade of the whole of that stretch of country east of Grassy Lake at least, should be coming our way. And if the merchants would increase their trade benefit would accrue to every citizen. Things were coming our way even now in spite of our disadvantages, but with a good service, we might with a little push split the trade with Lethbridge. The wholesaler here would be able to get sufficient trade by telephone to enable him to buy everything in carload lots and so vastly decrease the cost. This would also lead to the employment of more help by the C. P. R. The speaker thought that the minister of agriculture should be asked to use his influence in our behalf.

Ald. Huckvale while thoroughly in sympathy with the object of the meeting, was sorry to see that so many of our people were so apathetic as to the progress of the city to attend a meeting of such vital importance to our development. He did not know whether the board of trade had proceeded on quite proper lines. Thinking the definite promise of telephone construction was sufficient, they had perhaps taken too much for granted, and in consequence Mr. Finlay had not been properly approached in regard to the matter.

The Hon. W. T. Finlay in rising to speak, expressed agreement with Ald. Huckvale's remarks. The fact was that the speaker had never been communicated with in regard to the telephones either by the board of trade or the city council, and he felt the slight keenly. When the minister of public works was written to a copy of the letter should have been forwarded to h mself as our representative and the same in regard to all communications with the Edmonton government. The speaker had got for Medicine Hat everything which he had promised and the north road, although delayed, would be completed later. He felt that the people of Medicine Hat were not using their member right. The board of trade and the city council each had a secretary—but neither ever wrote to the city's representative. Anything he might be able to do should be done. It was always a pleasure for him to do anything he could for the benefit of his constituents.

Ald. Spencer said he believed an apology was due to Mr. Finlay. The speaker had discussed with the board of trade secretary the importance of getting the telephone extension work started from the Medicine Hat end, and he certainly thought that a request had been made to Mr. Finlay. He had waited on Mr. Hall early in the spring and learnt that the line was to be constructed at once, starting from several points simultaneously.

Hon. Mr. Finlay: "I'm sure that the members for Lethbridge have had lots of communications in reference to this matter."

Mr. J. J. Mahaffy thought that the minister of agriculture was somewhat supersensitive. He should have known, as our representative, what the needs of our constituency were, and looked after them. The board of trade secretary's letter to the department of public worvs was merely a request for information and he did not think the minister of agriculture had any just cause for complaint at the present time. Mr. Mahaffy asked whether the minister had made a promise that the telephone would be here this year.

"No," said Mr. Finlay, "the promise was made by the minister of public works." The speaker's duties had taken him away from the city to a very great extent and he did not know that the work on the line was not being proceeded with.

Mr. McNeely expressed confidence that even if the city had transgressed Mr. Finlay would do everything in his power by interceding with Mr. Cushing, to hasten construction.

Mr. Finlay: "Most decidedly. When I go up I will do whatever I can. If I represent you," he added, "I don't want you to sidetrack me."

Mr. Hall thought that Mr. Finlay had just cause for complaint. In future copies of any correspondence with the governmental authorities would be forwarded to Mr. Finlay. The error was one of the head rather than of the heart. The speaker had always met with kind and courteous treatment and prompt attention from the officials of Mr. Finlay's department with whom he had probably more correspondence than with those of any other department. Mr. Hall then suggested that the matter be left in the hands of Mr. Finlay and that no resolution be put. This course was decided upon.

Some discussions on the relations of the Southeastern Telephone Company and the government ensued, but eventually it was decided that as the meeting was called for one definite purpose, it was advisable to keep to that alone, and so avoid giving the government the impression that the meeting had a double object in view. The one imperative need, Ald Spencer pointed out, was the termination of Medicine Hat's isolation. Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, all had connections and a long distance telephone service for this city was long overdue.

IS BASKETBALL HARMFUL TO THE AVERAGE PLAYER

Is basketball a good form of exercise for the average man? Dr. S. W. Hetherington, director of athletics at the University of Missouri, says it is very doubtful.

"For the strong man, who is not of a nervous temperament," says Dr. Hetherington, "basketball is an ideal exercise, if not indulged in excessively. For the man or woman of nervous temperament, however, basketball is too strenuous.

"Why? The reason is briefly this: Basketball involves more nervous strain than any other form of exercise, not even excepting football. Now it is one of the fundamentals of the science of physical culture that nervous strain is to be avoided. An exercise should involve as little thinking and as much use of the large voluntary muscles as possible. Basketball involves too much thinking.

"It is for this reason that I abolished the women's basketball team a few years ago. After several years of experiment we found that those girls that made the varsity basketball team invariably broke down nervously before they left school or immediately afterwards. Women should not be allowed to play match games of basketball where the rivalry is at all intense. A nervous girl should not be allowed to play basketball at all."

Dr. Hetherington holds to the theory that "organic development" is the aim of exercise. "Organic development" is the development of all the functioning powers of the body especially the lungs, liver, heart and digestive organs. The development of the voluntary muscles, on which so many trainers lay stress, is of no more importance than the strengthening of involuntary muscles, Hetherington holds.

The exercises which secure the best development of all the powers of the body are those that involve the most respiration, perspiration and action of the large muscles. With regard to all these things basketball is perhaps the best form of exercise we have. But one other thing must be taken into consideration. If any form of exercise involves too much nervous expenditure it is likely to do more harm than good to a nervous individual.

"Another class of persons who should not play basketball," says Dr Hetherington, "are those with weak hearts. Every student who plays basketball in this university must first have his heart examined. It is extremely dangerous for a person with any heart trouble to take such violent exercise.

"Although it is not generally known, one of the principal values of basketball for the strong man of healthy nerves is the natural massage the player gets from jumping up in the air and stooping quickly. This natural massage is the shaking up of the external organs consequent to such an exercise. It results in a strengthening of the organs and of their connecting tissues. For this reason basketball should be encouraged among those physically able to play it without harm, as well as for its value for organic development."

The coming of J. Noner, representative of the Pennsylvania Ear Masseur to Medicine Hat, Alta., (Cosmopolitan Hotel, one day only) on Saturday, Sept. 18th, should be looked forward to with great interest. This is the instrument that has proven so valuable in the treatment of deafness, head noises and ear diseases. This masseur by reason of its scientific arrangement forces air into the external ear by compression and is so mechanically vibrated as to force the drum membrane and the paralyzed muscles of the ear into immediate action. By the continued use of this instrument, morning and evening, about five minutes each time, the function of the drum membrane, the nerve and the muscle of the ear are restored to their normal function. It is the greatest invention ever devised for the treatment of deafness. The average mind scarcely realizes the many wonderful things that can be done with compressed air.

As old as history, doctors, specialists in character, have attempted to treat ear diseases by blowing or compressing air into the internal ear, but their system proved ineffective and almost barbarous, usually leaving the patients in a worse condition than they were in the beginning.

The Pennsylvania Ear Masseur being arranged on a scientific principle forces the vibrating air into the external ear by compression and by contraction withdraws same in like quantities. No matter who may say you cannot be cured, no matter who has doctored you, or what medicine you have taken, we know you are but little better and we know if you are not already deaf you will be so in time if you permit it to run on. This instrument is comparatively new, having been used only by some of the leading specialists for the last few years. You can secure free demonstrations and be convinced, you can see at a glance and feel the wonderful effects of this wonderful instrument. Remember that this is not a appliance to be worn, it can be operated without the use of an assistant either with water, compressed air, by hand or any power.

Mr. Noner does not claim as a physician to treat you nor can he sell you these instruments direct, but he will however, after he has demonstrated to you the qualities of this instrument take your order for one, taking a small deposit from you as a guarantee of good faith, and the instrument will be shipped you direct from the factory.

Life and Labor

A series of Impressionist articles on Europe and the problems of labor and poverty in the old world is appearing from the pen of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. The veteran exponent of the old trades unionist ideal in the United States has come in contact for the first time with the labor question as it affects other countries than his own. And on this account his impressions are of peculiar interest to Americans.

Trades unionism has naturally been the main subject of his investigations, and figures have been obtained showing the remarkable growth of the organized labor bodies during the past two decades. Gompers is known as America's strongest advocate of the simon pure trades unionism, the unionism that considers politics taboo, and looks to the amelioration of the condition of the worker by action on the industrial plane alone. It is natural therefore, that he should emphasise the triumphs of non-political unionism, for it is a truism that the man ridden by a theory is ever able to square the facts of life with his own particular creed. Throughout the series of interesting letters the writer succeeds in conveying time and time again the impression that labor organization on the industrial plane has been responsible in the main for the improvement in the standard of the worker's life in Europe. One important fact is overlooked—the collateral growth of the membership and strength of unions with that of the distinctly political labor organizations. In England, especially, the greatest impetus to union membership has taken place since the workers gained political consciousness. Out of the distress which came as the aftermath of the South African war, the parliamentary Labor party emerged, pledged to the securing of justice for organized labor and to a comprehensive programme of social reforms of a far-reaching character. Mr. Gompers has little to say of the work accomplished by this body, but the fact is that during the term of the present parliament labor has secured more substantial gains than during the previous twenty years. In one great industry the shortening of the working day has been secured by legislative means. The disorganization of business which a strike in the coal trade would mean has been avoided and the eight hour day for miners is an accomplished fact. Not many years ago the engineers of Britain attempted to gain the eight hour day by means of a national strike—and as a result the funds of the union were depleted and the tradesmen suffered a severe defeat. Then it was that they began to turn their attention to parliament.

In Germany the industrial and political organizations have developed side by side. From a membership of 246,494 in 1894 the "Hirsch-Duncker" unions have increased in numbers until in 1907 over 1,865,500 dues paying members had been enrolled. During the same period the Social-Democrats (the only real reform party in Germany today) were enormously strengthened. And it is from trades union members that the Socialists derive their strength.

And it is only where a distinctly worker's party exists that political action is really effective. So long as the workers are divided in their allegiance (as under the present party system they will remain in Canada) so long their actual force in politics must be small. The sooner they can concentrate on a common political platform, the city worker and the farmer fighting shoulder to shoulder for their common advancement, the sooner will Canada be rid of her capitalistic politicians and the sooner will corporation influence in Ottawa and the provincial legislatures be overcome.

Union organization is necessary and the standard of living has been and will be enormously increased by this means. But parliamentary action is equally necessary if the liberties of Canadians are to be preserved in the days of vast commercial development that are to come. "These ought ve to have done, and not to leave the other undone."

With the exception of the sheet metal workers every craft in connection with the building trades is now organized in Saskatoon and delegates from the bricklayers, plasterers, carpenters, plumbers, painters, laborers, electricians and lathers will now be affiliated with the Saskatoon trades council. Ed. Stephenson, western organizer for the American Federation of Labor has been in the university city for some time, carrying out the work of organization.

One of the first results of the revival of labor activity in Saskatoon was seen recently in the application of the city laborers for arbitration of their differences under the Lemieux act. This was the first occasion on which the machinery of the act had been called into operation in regard to a dispute between a public body and its employees.

The decision of the executive of the Socialist party of Canada not to become affiliated with the International bureau has caused widespread dissatisfaction among the rank and file of the party. The policy of the leaders of this organization from its inception has not been in accord with the Socialistic parties in other progressive countries, where the necessity of "opportunism" is in some degree recognized. Uncritically accepting the dogmas of Marx, the party has refused to recognize as comrades in arms such reformers as would apply the light of modern science and knowledge of modern tendencies in industrialism to the interpretation of the theories of Marx. With a faith which amounts almost to fanaticism in the "verbal interpretation" of their prophet, the Marxians have perhaps been little too intolerant of those who would accomplish something in this present generation. In their meditation on the "one far-off Divine event," they have become elevated to a spiritual atmosphere in which the needs of the present day are forgotten. It is quite probable that the executive of the party consider the International bureau a heterodox organization, whom to associate with would mean defilement of the simon pure Socialism of Canada. This though the International bureau was founded by the founders of the world-wide movement and today represents the organizations of working men which have accomplished most for the amelioration of their class.

But the failings of the S. P. C. are the failings of youth. The American party until a few years ago adopted a similar doctrinaire attitude. And while it remained for a long time of little significance politically, it served a useful purpose in that it led to discussions of economic questions among the working men of America, and a devotion to the study of the problems of industrialism which is bearing good fruit today. While the S. P. C. remains ultra-conservative in regard to progress in economic science, it cannot hope to accomplish definite work on the political plane. But whatever its future may be it will go down to history as one of the great educational forces in working class politics in Canada.

Refused Repeal of Local Option

In an age like this when the dollar looms so large an all important question, is the liquor traffic. Driven by the stern logic of "things as they are" from one position to another it has taken its last stand upon the charge that Veto hurts business.

This is a matter that cannot be settled by theory, or philosphy, or by individual opinion. Much less can it be settled by the ipse dixit of a few dry travellers, or other friends of the trade.

If veto hurts business, then in the nature of the case the business men in veto towns would be the first to know it. If it kills towns, then the townspeople in the dead towns—unless they are dead too—would grasp the fact. This is too obvious to need arguing.

Now what are the facts?

Last year the liquor traffic stated—and their friends echoed—that the veto municipalities in Manitoba were dead and the people anxious, nay yearning for their day of release when at the polls they could repeal veto and bring resurrection to their cadaverous towns.

And so with a great flourish of trumpets and beating of tom-toms the trade attacked veto in the 24 places that were open for appeal. They told the people that their towns were dead and that veto had killed them. They also said that a repeal of veto would bring life and wealth and abounding good times.

Curious to relate 14 out of the 24 dead places were so pleased with their state that they refused even to submit a repeal bylaw to the vote of the electors.

In ten of the twenty-four places the traffic succeeded in bringing on a vote and in nine of the ten the veto bylaw was overwhelmingly sustained. The tenth was Kildonan, a little municipality including a portion of Winnipeg suburbs and here the repeal was carried.

The reeve of Kildonan is authority for the statement that three-fourths of the resident voters, voted against repeal. The majority was secured by imported voters from Winnipeg and many of these were personators.

And so the people in 23 out of 24 on record as highly satisfied with the places in Manitoba put themselves results of the veto. Some of these places had been dry for a good many years, others for only two or three years.

Consider one place as a sample. In the town of Birtle veto was originally carried by a majority of one and had been in force some time. When the liquor men passed their petition for repeal through this town they were only able to secure twelve signatures.

The places where the trade tried—and failed to bring on a repeal vote are:

The places were the trade succeeded in brinsing on a vote in which they were beaten are:

Rossburn, Pipestone, Edward, Argyle, Riverside, North Norfolk, Odanah, South Norfolk, Swan River Total—9.

The one lone place which they claim to have won is Kildonan.

Now who knows best whether these twenty-four Manitoba places are dead or alive, the merchants and townspeople, or the brewers, distillers, barkeepers and their friends? Manifestly the men who would know it first and best are the residents. Their emphatic and unanimous answer to the charge was given at the polls.

In Ontario 153 places were open to repeal last winter. The trade had picked 27 places and brought on a repeal vote. They picked the places in which they felt sure of victory—including Owen Sound.

In 25 of the 27 the repeal was beaten and veto sustained by a large majority. In two villages the trade seemed to gain victories. But the facts are that these two places Cartwright and Hepworth, never carried the veto in the first place—but being part of municipalities were outvoted by the surrounding country. They then became incorporated and submitted a repeal vote. The liquor majority or repeal was smaller than it was when the bylaw was carried. So even here the trade suffered defeat in this at least, that it lost ground.

As a matter of fact therefore, the trade lost in 27 out of 27 places. In these places the people said local option is good enough to keep.

This class of evidence ought to be conclusive to any fair minded man. But to it could be added the testimony of a multitude of business men. For instance:

W. H. B. Hill mayor of Hartney, Manitoba, the leading merchant who does not pose as a temperance man says "I have no hesitation in saying that business conditions are infinitely better under veto conditions than under license—Hartney most effectually disproves the statement that towns with bars draw business from veto towns. Our town commands every mile of territory due to it, and more."

Councillor A. Fry of Hartney says: "I have always worked against veto and thought that we would be better off with a license but I want to be honest and must say veto is a success. I do not believe ten men could be found to vote against it."

Could Not Sleep in the Dark
HEART AND NERVES WERE RESPONSIBLE, SO THE DOCTOR SAID.
There is many a man and woman tossing night after night upon a sleepless bed.
Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system that it cannot be quieted.
Mrs. Calvin Stark, Rossmore, Ont., writes:—"About two years ago I began to be troubled with a smothering sensation at night, when I would lie down. I got so bad I could not sleep in the dark and would have to sit up and rub my limbs, they would become so numb. My doctor said my heart and nerves were responsible. I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised and got a box to try them. I took three boxes and can now lie down and sleep without the light burning and can rest well. I can recommend them highly to all nervous and run down women.
Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Another Milestone

With this issue The Times enters on another year of its existence as a local newspaper. The Times is still an infant according to the age of journalism in Medicine Hat, but in the few years of its existence it has made a place for itself and we believe has in no small way contributed to the up-building and well-being of the community. This has been made possible by the excellent advertising patronage it has received, and it will be the aim of the publisher to merit this more and more as the journal becomes more strongly fortified.

We have no intention of resting on our oars, and enjoying the fruits of past labors. During the next few years a tremendous development will take place in this district. This will mean development in the city also, and The Times will endeavor to keep pace with it.

Telephone Connection

In order that the development referred to shall take place in the city as well as in the district, the citizens must be watchful that others do not rob us of the trade which is naturally ours. The method of telephone construction carried out by the Alberta government between here and Lethbridge is an illustration of how a city can be robbed of its legitimate trade. The Times does not suggest that the government has intentionally discriminated against us, or that our member has been careless of our interests. We know nor what pressure has been brought to bear on the department of public works from the vicinity of Lethbridge to hasten construction at that end. If such be the case we cannot blame Lethbridge for so doing. She is only looking after her own interests. Meanwhile we have been inactive. It is a case of what is everybody's business is nobody's business, and hence nothing has been done. Now we are awakened to the fact that it must be somebody's business; and the meeting on Thursday night will doubtless tend toward righting matters.

The minister of agriculture has many duties to perform pertaining to his office, and can scarcely be expected to keep a close eye on other departments of the government unless injustices to this constituency are brought to his notice. If he were but a private member of the assembly with no responsibilities of administration resting upon him, the case would be different. His sole business would then be to watch the interests of his constituency. We do not mean to suggest that because a member happens to have charge of a department that he is altogether relieved of this responsibility. But if he overlooks some things in the stress of work there is some excuse. Unless the government proceeds to remedy the situation a grave injustice will be done this place. The season is not yet so far advanced but that it can be effectually remedied.

Labor Day

Yesterday, throughout Canada and the United States, was a national holiday set apart as such in recognition of the rights and services of the laborer. In so far as the day serves to impress upon us the dignity of labor, it is of immense value as a national asset. Labor has too long been regarded as a menial thing, and the utopian dream of every laborer the day when his work would cease. The world is gradually being educated into a truer view of the value of labor. We are beginning to learn that work has been one of the greatest factors in the development of the race. A glance at the map of the world to discover the geographical location of the leading nations is instructive. We are all aware that in tropical regions nature yields her products without such strenuous labor as we are accustomed to in our latitudes. But we have perhaps failed to notice that no great nation has ever arisen in those latitudes. Persia Babylon a and Egypt, the early leaders, were all situated north of the tropic of cancer. These were in time supplanted by Greece and Rome located farther north; and when these decayed Spain, Germany, France and finally England took their place. Thus we see that the seat of power has been moving gradually northward as the nations trained by the disciplines of arduous toil are gaining supremacy over others. The world would be startled if a great nation should arise in the neighborhood of the equator. Only the sterner latitudes produce the hardier race of men. Unless trained by hard labor of some kind man is usually a moral weakling. Physical toil is a great educator and mental toil is even better. No matter in what capacity a man labors he is discipling himself in one of the best schools which this world can furnish.

We usually give most attention to the quality of the work which the workman produces, and he is classed as good or bad according to the nature of the production. But the best worth of a work is not in its material result which regulates its price on the market, but in the spirit which the workman is able to put in it. If work is skimped, not only is the finished product poor, but the worker has skimped his character. If faithfully done he has strengthened himself.

Labor is honorable because it meets a need. Man has bodily wants which must be supplied. Food he must have and clothing, dwellings to live in and articles to use. We honor the soldier who defends our homes, the physician who fights all disease and saves life. We should also honor the honest workman who helps to fill the needs of life. Labor is honorable also because it calls out our intelligence and ministers to our development. To perform useful work requires intelligence. Work is useful and valuable in proportion as it is intelligent and the workman worthy of honor in so far as he is exercising his intellectual faculties. The blunderer or the man who is a mere machine doing only routine work does not elicit our praise or admiration but he who makes the product of his handiwork bear the marks of an intelligent mind is worthy of all honor. Labor day by recognizing the worth of the laborer is a valuable national asset.

Canadian Forestry

The meeting of the Canadian Forestry association at Regina, September 3 and 4, was the first held further west than Ontario. The city council and board of trade of Regina for two years invited the association to hold a special meeting in their city to discuss features of forestry of special interest in the prairie provinces. The meeting was taken up enthusiastically by the citizens of the three provinces and the papers reflect the needs and desires of the country.

The chief papers read were the following:

"Tree planting on the prairies, eastern section," Mr. Angus MacKay Superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Indian Head.

"Tree planting on the prairies, western section," Mr. A Mitchell, assistant in tree planting division.

"Dominion forest reserves," Prof. A. H. D. Ross, M. A., F., Toronto university.

"Forest reserves in relation to game preserves," Mr. T. S. Willing, Chief Game Guardian, Saskatchewan; Mr. J. P. Turner, secretary of the Manitoba Game Protective association.

"Illustrated talks on forestry," Mr Norman Ross, chief of the tree planting division; Mr. A. Knetchel, inspector of Dominion forest reserves.

DOMINION FOREST RESERVES

Prof. A. H. D. Ross, M. A., M. F., of the university of Toronto, in his paper dealt with the Dominion Forest Reserves. He showed that in 1906 the parliament of Canada established 21 Forest Reserves, six are in Manitoba, four in Saskatchewan, three in Alberta and eight in the strip forty miles wide in British Columbia, known as the Railway Belt. These areas were set aside (1) To provide lumber, fuel, ties poles and other forest products required for the settlement of the country and the depelopment of its resources; (2) To protect the headwaters of streams and regulate the flow of water in them for irrigation, transportation and industrial purposes; (3) To afford a natural shelter for the various kinds of birds, fish and game.

These reserves embrace areas as follows: Manitoba, 3,575 square miles; Saskatchewan, 740; Alberta, 185; British Columbia, 890. Total 5,391 square miles. It would require a special act of parliament to withdraw any of the land from these reserves for settlement or other purposes, so that here is a great opportunity for the government to protect and improve this property.

In the three prairie provinces the reserves are intended to supply home steaders with building material, fuel and fencing, rather than to furnish wood for the lumber trade. In these three provinces there is now a population of almost a million, and it will not be many years before it reaches ten millions. In the meantime the consumption of wood for building and industrial purposes will be enormous, and will require all the lumber now growing on the reserves between Lake Winnipeg and the Rockies. There is not nearly enough timberland reserved to supply the needs of this great region. The obvious thing to do is to create more reserves and protect not merely the mature timber but also the young trees as carefully as if they were dollar bills. If the floor of this room were covered with dollar bills, he would be judged insane who let a fire get started amongst them, yet this is the very kind of thing of thing that is going on in the case of young tree growth. In Europe they say "It is only Turks and Americans (including Canadians) who burn the forest." In the case of the Dominion Forest Reserves, however it is the policy of the forestry branch of the department of the Interior to do everything in its power to protect the timber from fire, to lessen the amount of waste incident to lumbering operations, to stop thieving, and to so manage the reserves as to secure continuous crops of timber from them. Other nations have been able to not only secure but actually to improve both the quantity and quality of the crop—so why not Canada? So far the great difficulty has been to secure men with the necessary technical training and administrative ability to take charge of the work. In the United States the technically trained men are snapped up by the Federal and State governments and the lumber and pulp companies as soon as they graduate. With the recently established forest schools at the university of Toronto and the university of New Brunswick, it is hoped that men will soon be available for this work.

Upon Mr. R. H. Campbell, superintendent of forestry, Ottawa, falls the heavy responsibility of administering the Dominion forest reserves. Each summer he spends considerable time in the field, studing the needs of the localities in which each preserve is situated, familiarizing himself with the actual condition of the reserve itself and studying how best to improve it. In this work he is ably assisted by Inspector Knetchel and assistant inspectors Dickson and MacMillan, graduates of the Cornell, Michigan and Yale Forest schools respectively.

Mr. Ross then took up in detail the different reserves in the three provinces showing the location, size and character of each and discussing the problems connected with them. He noted, that the rainfall being only about one-third that of Ontario and the average velocity of the wind almost exactly twice as great, it is a difficult matter to fight fire in the western reserves. The only way in which they can be protected is to patrol them summer and winter; to have efficient fireguards and have roads that will enable the rangers to get quickly from a part of the reserve to another. Last year 150 miles of roads were made along the boundaries and through different parts of the reserves. This work should be continued. Last year 25 squatters were removed from the Turtle Mountain reserve in Manitoba and given land elsewhere. The same is true of Riding Mountain reserve from which 136 squatters have been removed. The removal of these required great tact on the part of the officers of the forestry branch but without their removal it would have been folly to attempt to place reserves under management. The great thing to be done now is to protect the young growth, have the dead timber removed and get tree growth started on the open spots. Citing the case of the Turtle Mountain reserve where there is a bare patch of 55 square miles, Mr. Ross points out that it would cost $264,000 to plant this with nursery stock so that it will be necessary to let nature do her own seeding or find some cheaper method than planting. Last year Mr Knetchel tried the experiment of placing tree seeds in the long grass and covering them with sand. The experiment has so far been successful.

On the Spruce Woods reserve east of Brandon, there have been planted 35,000 Scotch pine grown from seeds at Indian Head nursery station. From the swamps of this reserve thousands of young tamarack seedlings have been obtained and planted at Indian Head are making remarkable growth. Last year 40 bushels of spruce cones were collected here and used for planting on the different reserves.

The Duck Mountain and Riding Mountain reserves are important as regulators of streams in northern Manitoba and as game covers, being the home of elk, moose, black and cinnamon bears and smaller game.

Referring to Saskatchewan reserves as a whole, Mr. Ross noted that the area is only 740 square miles, poorly timbered, containing less than 60 per cent of saw timber andabout 780,000 cords of wood. This is not much for a population of 850,000. He asked if the people should not begin to agitate for the creation of more forest reserves in the southern part of the province. To create timber land by planting nursery stock will cost a million dollars for six townships. Would it not be better to reserve the timber land now existing and spend the money in increasing the planting which nature has done?

Mr. Ross called attention to the watershed known as the eastern slope of the Rockies. This contains 8,244 square miles most of which is wholly unsuited for agriculture. He quoted from a report of Inspector MacMillan who asks if common lumber costs $22 per M. in the prairies now with a million population, what will it cost when there is a population of ten millions when most of the forest land will have been cut and burned over? The coal mining industry of Alberta will require 45 billion feet of mine props, the products of nine million acres for sixty years. This says nothing of railways, settlers and other requirements. These facts along with the need of irrigation shows the need for turning the Eastern Slope into a forest reserve before it was too late.

Pimples are invariably due to bad or impoverished blood and while not attended with fatal results, are nevertheless peculiarly distressing to the average person.

Miss E. L. Lang, Esterhazy, Sask. writes:—"My face and neck were covered with pimples. I tried all kinds of remedies, but they did me no good. I went to many doctors but they could not cure me. I then tried Burdock Blood Bitters and I must say it is a wonderful remedy for the cure of pimples."

Chinese at Victoria

(The Voice, Winnipeg)

Recently there was a great gala day in the history of the Chinese residents of Victoria, B. C., it being the opening of a modern school built by themselves at a cost of $20,000. There are in the Chinese quarter of that city 384 children and it is for their education that this school has been built. The event was anticipated in by the vice-consul, Ha Ping Chon and all the Chinese notables of the city, and also by the city authorities and other English speaking peoples. All the speakers agreed that this was one of the most remarkable occurrences in the history of the Asiatics on this continent.

The speaker of the day was Ng Poon Chew, the editor of the Chung Sai Yat Pao, of San Francisco, and it is for the purpose of reproducing his speech that the event is noticed here. Those of our subscribers who read the letters of John Chinaman, published in these columns about a year ago, will especially appreciate the exquisite satire of some of the references:

The San Francisco newspaper editor said that had Solomon lived today and been present at the opening of this school he would never have said "There was nothing new under the sun." Rather he would have said, "Everything is new under the sun." In this twentieth century, the century of fearful and wonderful things, everything is new; everything is beyond the ken of calculation, and it is not safe to prophecy. What has happened more than once in this century has upset every prediction. It needs no prophet though to see what is happening in China. There all things which have seemed impossible are now possible. China has 450 millions of people. They are not dead, although they may have slept. They are now aroused thoroughly from their slumbers, though, and imbued with every desire to take their place in the world of the future.

"China was asleep" said Ng Poon Chew, "intoxicated in the glories of her past. She had cause to be proud, and she is proud. Why? Those who have studied the life and customs and history of China will agree with me that China has cause to be proud. Her history shows that for forty-five successive centuries China has had an unbroken record of human existence. Long before Romulus laid the corner stone for Rome, China was a well governed republic. Long before Abraham in response to heavenly injunction crossed the plains of Mesopotamia into the promised land, China flourished. Her glories were told of by historians when Cleopatra lived on the Nile and softened the iron heart of Mark Anthony. Naturally China is proud of her past. Where are the other nations of the past? They are gone like the leaves of yester year. They have left nothing but a memory, an empty void, of broken fragments that are but traces of their existence. China is today probably somewhat backward, but she is still. China is less a cube. No matter how placed she comes right side up, no matter how kicked or tumbled the right side is always up.

"Now China is awakened industrially, and in a military sense, too. She will have a greater military awakening, I suppose you will doubt the fighting qualities of the Chinese. To those who do so I refer them to the boxers of San Francisco. There we have a set of people who toil not neither do they spin. They carve others and let themselves be carved. If they are willing to do that, Chinese cannot be cowards. The Chinese can be made in a good fighting and killing machine—given three requisites. You must show them how to kill, and how to be killed, secondly, you must give them the means to kill and to be killed, and thirdly, a cause why they should kill or be killed. I do not glory in war. That is a relic of barbarism, and I hope the time will come when the world will abolish all war, when all men will practice the golden rule which the Saviour gave as "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," and Confucius in the negative way: "Do not unto others what you would not have them do unto you."

"China is awakening, though. She has imported men from Europe, from Germany, from Belgium, from France and other countries—followers of Christ the Prince of Peace—to teach us the western art of killing in the most Christian way. These men who were brought to China for this purpose are busily engaged in drilling our young men in all parts of China. We have arsenals, guns of all shapes and sizes, and are progressing rapidly after modern methods to equip our soldiers with the means of having something to kill and teaching them how they shall be killed. The foreign teachers are teaching us how to turn our ploughshares into spears and our pruning hooks into swords.

"As for the cause to kill or be killed if you look into the history of the last fifty years in China you will certainly agree that there have been times when China has been given that cause; at least cause to make ready so that she may protect that which is left to her. Not much is left, but that which is left China is preparing to defend. Port Arthur once was Chinese territory. Russia sent warships there, and when the admiral found how well situated the place was and what a good harbor there was there, Russia said to China "Give it to me." "To you?" said China, "yes" said Russia, "I need it." And what could China do? There was nothing China could do, and Russia was allowed to take it. Then came Germany and took Kiaochou. "You must give us this place to balance power," said she. "Why should the power of Europe be balanced in China at our expense?" said China. There was no answer, and what could China do. She had not been sufficiently civilized in killing and being killed to make objection. Then came France and settled at Tonkin in the south. Why? To balance power. It was always the same. The navies came from Europe, and seized parts of China to balance the power of Europe in China. And when they had finished where was China?

"China has found out that when a large nation is dealing with a small one, might is always right. When the western nations have been dealing with China right has been adjudicated according to might. Therefore China has learned through the bitter trials she has had that it is useless to protest until there is sufficient might to make right in her behalf. The small nation only can talk of equity when dealing with a large one. The larger nation uses a big stick, and the bigger the stick the more the right. The biggest nation of modern times is that which can kill the most men in the least time, and at the least expense. This is not a new philosophy, though; it is as old as the world.

"China has, therefore, been given reasons to provide the means to protect herself, or at least that which has been left to her. The time was when China was not in need of an army. She never had such a thing as a standing army. She might have had a running army or a sitting army, but a standing army, never. In the next ten years though there will be a standing army of at least a million men, fully equipped and capably armed with modern weapons. China will then not only be able to protect herself, but to defy aggression. China though will never seek war for the sake of fighting. She is not a warlike nation. Having tested the results of peace for so many years, she will seek peace, but the time will come when she will not seek peace at any cost—but peace with honor.

"The most promising side of modern China is, however, not the military, but what is more lasting, the intellectual awakening. The system of education, which has been in vogue for thousands of years made a finely polished educated idiot, nothing more. Now we have abolished that system, and sought out the western method. We educate our boys and girls, too, after the manner of the west. As a boy I remember how I started for school at 4.30 a.m., stopping my lessons for breakfast at 9 a.m., and continuing again morning, afternoon and night. Chinese have been said to possess more vitality than most nationalities. The reason is that this old system of education killed off the weaklings. Here was the survival of the fittest. Only the strong ones survived, and this is why the race today has vitality.

"We have to go slow in China, though. There are still many conservatives, and we must not violate their sense of etiquette. We must have separate schools for our boys and girls, or at least a partition between the classes; for the boys and girls must not be permitted to make those horrid 'goo-goo' eyes. Seriously, though, the modern schools are building up a new type of youth, and they are our pride, our hope for the future. The hope of new China is centred in our schools. The education they are receiving is eliminating all that is base, all doubt and ignorance. The boy knows what his father did not know, that China is no longer the centre of the universe, but only a small portion of the world. It is, however, the only spot in the world where Chinese may claim equal rights, and the modern Chinaman will feel more patriotism for the homeland on this account. It has been said that the Chinese lacked patriotism in the past; but they will not lack this in the future. China is not separated, no longer the happenings in one part are unknown in the other, and with the modern facilities newspapers and easy means of travel patriotism will thrive and Chinese will not only make sacrifice for their country, but they will be heroes and give their lives for their country if need arise.

"Canada and China should be great friends. There is only a small body of water dividing them, and daily the world grows smaller, and they are brought nearer. The people differ not in kind but only in degree and if we brush aside the race prejudice, the race hatred, we will see beneath the yellow skin the image of the same humanity. It may be faint, weak or dim, but if your sympathy is given it may develop until it is as perfect an image as the background humanity will permit."

DEATH IN A SCATCH

Simple Injuries with Serious Results

Morris Quatzam, an eleven years old Windsor boy, has just died as the result of a scratch on his wrist. Poison entered the wound, which was caused by falling off his bicycle, and despite the physicians the boy died. Such incidents as these—by no means infrequent—ought to make people realize the danger that may lie even in the smallest flesh wound.

Take a simple illustration. When a dirty knife, a rusty needle, a splinter of dirty wood, a barbed wire fence, or a thorn, scratches the hand the latter is inoculated with germs, of which the air about us is full. Directly these germs are introduced through the breach in the skin, a battle royal ensues between them and certain organisms in our blood.

When the invading germs are too strong for Nature's defences, in a few hours the finger will become hot and throbbing. A little later the wound may exhibit a whitish appearance in the middle of the swelling, and we have what is know as a festering or poisoned wound.

The way to avoid such serious results is to cleanse the wound and apply Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is a powerful yet painless germ killer, and when applied to the broken skin is absorbed into the tissue, instantly destroying the germs that spread disease and inflamation.

The flesh is thus soothed and purified, the wound made perfectly healthy, and all poison and cause of festering removed. Having done this Zam-Buk then proceeds to heal the wound or sore with new healthy tissue, in a quick, painless, and perfect manner.

Zam-Buk must not be confused with ordinary ointments. Zam-Buk is a unique preparation, possessing antiseptic, soothing, and healing qualities that are not to be found together in any other preparation. It is not only a unique healing balm, but it is also a skin food. For all skin diseases and injuries—cuts, burns bruises, eczema, chafing, ulcers, ringworm, etc., it is without equal. It is also used widely for piles, for which it may be regarded as specific. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

NOXIOUS WEEDS ACT IS BEING ENFORCED

Those who were under the impression that the Noxious Weeds act would not be enforced this year are being disappointed. Since the 16th of July over twenty-five cases of neglect to destroy weeds have been heard. In all these cases except two the defendant was convicted and fined. One of the latest cases heard was against the Imperial Development Company of Winnipeg for neglecting to destroy weeds on their property at Taber. The company was fined $40 and costs. On Monday the 16 a councillor for a local improvement district in the northern part of the province was fined $10 and costs for neglecting to employ men to destroy weeds on the road allowances. Six cases will be heard in Taber this week and five in Raymond on the 25th. The weed inspectors intend to see that their instructions are carried out this season.

At a meeting of the British Association for the advancement of science held in Winnipeg last week Dr. Gray of Bradfield College, England advocated the teaching of Canadian geography in English schools to give the Britisher a better idea of Canada.

An airship company has been formed at Calgary. A lease of 500 feet of the top of Cascade mountain at Banff has been obtained and it will be made a station for airships. This is the first airship station company in Canada.

¶The flour and lard used in any sodas may be good, but that is not all that is wanted in a satisfying biscuit—it is not all that Foley's Sodas give.

¶Good flavor is essential. In securing the good flavor of Foley's Sodas we recognise the importance of a perfectly-operating yeast. We take no chances with our yeast. We could buy it from outside makers at less cost, but we do not do so—all the yeast used in Foley's Sodas is made in our own Factory and by securing perfect working of that yeast, we get the delightful flavor for which Foley's Sodas are famous.

Never sour, never flat or pasty—always sweet, crisp and good all the way through.

INSURANCE ACT WANTED

(Trade Gazette)

If the present plans of the Federal government materialize, parliament will convene on Thursday, November 4th. That date is not fixed absolutely, however, and may be that unforeseen developments might delay the opening for a week or two.

Surely the business men of Alberta have reason to hope that at the earliest possible moment the Insurance Act will be finally passed. It has been discussed during several consecutive sessions, and last year was finally voted upon and adopted in the Commons. Unfortunately it did not reach the senate in time to become law.

In many ways this legislation is of great importance to the commercial interests of this province. The merchants of Alberta wish to enjoy the full benefit to be found in the Federal legislation itself. For some time they have been asking the provincial government for legislation affecting provincially incorporated insurance companies. They have been told to wait until the Dominion Insurance Act had been passed, and then provincial legislation would be enacted in keeping with its requirements. In the meantime Alberta has had no general insurance act upon its statutes. In the meantime the Alberta government has granted charters to insurance companies whose total paid up capital would not pay the loss of a second class fire. In the meantime, these provincial incorporated companies with a six-bit paid-up capital have gone on doing business, assuming risks amounting to several hundred thousand dollars. As a matter of fact, they have been permitted by the provincial government to assume risks which they are absolutely unable to pay were a serious conflagration to call upon them to do so.

If the provincial government is bound to a policy of waiting for a Dominion Insurance Act, then indeed the merchants of Alberta must meekly wait, hoping that during the coming session our venerable senate will spare a few moments to pass the insurance bill.

It is possible that an amendment to the Banking Law will figure in the programme of the coming session. The speech from the throne will undoubtedly have some official declaration upon the question of Canada's participation in the defence of the empire.

The new Franco-Canadian treaty will be another subject of the speech from the throne.

THE GOVERNMENT AND THE GAMBLERS

(Toronto Globe)

The Federal government cannot any longer evade responsibility for race-track gambling in Canada. Parliament must face the question squarely. The statute, as it now stands, according to the interpretation of the courts, is a mockery of justice. Race-track book-making is a crime in one place, but not in another. It is a crime if the bookmaker stands on a box, but not if he moves about the race grounds. The department of justice has failed, so far, to frame a statute that will do what Parliament manifestly intended should be done. For this reason Canada today stands disgraced as being the resort of race-track gamblers who have been driven out of every state in the American Republic. What is absolutely illegal in New York State, in Texas and now even in Kentucky and California, is, by the interpretations of Canadian courts, legal in Canada. Even Japan has passed a law prohibiting race-track gambling such as Canada allows. That Canada should allow it is to the shame of Canadians.

The situation in Canada is intolerable. Every great race-track in Canada is an evil and a curse. The question is under discussion, and must be fought to an issue. For these reasons it was a piece of blundering for the department of state at Ottawa to grant a charter of incorporation to a group of men whose reputation where they are known warrants the apprehension that the evils which have made Woodbine, Fort Erie and Windsor centers the agencies of gambling will, under the Federal charter, be multiplied in number and made more vicious in character.

The department was under no obligation to grant that charter. A race-track does not belong to the same category as ordinary industrial and commercial enterprises. For ages, and in all lands, it has been identified with gambling, and is a universal instrument in promoting that vice just as the bar-room, even though legal is everywhere an agent serving the vice of drunkenness. To regard either a race-track or a bar-room as an enterprise that must be promoted by the department of state of Canada is to confuse things that differ. These institutions are notoriously a menace to national welfare. Public opinion is aroused against both of them. For the Ontario government to issue liquor-club licenses as a matter of "departmental routine," even though it might be "legal," would be as unjustifiable an exercise of governmental responsibility as for the department of state at Ottawa to grant wide racing charters to men whose supreme interest in horse-racing is the betting opportunities it affords.

The defences offered by Mr. Hartley Dewart, K. C., may be regarded as professionally proper, but not even he expects that his estimate of his "client's" will be accepted in Toronto. The question is not as to the legality or the propriety of horse-racing. Neither has it to do with existing racing associations. Indeed the failure of the law officers of the crown to suppress gambling and book making in connection with the Woodbine and other Ontario tracks should have made the department of state hesitate before increasing notoriously law-breaking agencies in Canada "as a matter of departmental routine." Neither at Ottawa nor at Toronto has the department of justice proved itself equal to the task of framing and administering laws such as will suppress the gambling enterprises of alleged "reputable citizens." The question now goes to the government, —to parliament—to the people. It is something more than "departmental routine."

THE "HUSTLING" WEST

(Canadian Gazette)

The Hon. Charles Murphy, Canadian secretary of state, has just returned to Ottawa from a tour of western Canada which extended to the Pacific coast and north to Edmonton. In an interview the minister said: "The outstanding features of the west are the belief of the people in themselves and their country, disregard of the past in working for the present and planning for the future, impressive conspicuousness of schools and elevators, the fact that English, Scotch, Irish, Belgian, French, Doukhobor, German, Swede and American are all Canadians. The people are too busy with their crops and their industries for political questions. They have a great country; they have great cities; they have a great future, and they know it. Anyone who goes through the country is bound to realize it. It comes in through the eyes and ears, and everywhere you go it is the same story of progress and development, development and progress. There are hustling enterprising towns everywhere, with fine hotels, splendid stores, innumerable banks and a multitude of newspapers. All of these towns are surrounded by prosperous farming, fruit-growing, cattle-raising and mining districts. And everywhere there are splendid school buildings; they are big, they are impressive, and they are artistic. I believe I was more impressed by the schools than by anything I saw, and I heard nothing of the school question.

Parliamentary Reflections

Ottawa, Sept. 3—Everything indicates that the government intends to convene parliament at an early date, possibly on the first Thursday in November. The ministers are returning, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier—who really does about all the work anyhow—is at his desk. There is no reason why the departments should not be ready as the last fiscal year ended five months ago and the house prorogued in May. November sessions in the past have been unsatisfactory. The house has not been assembled until the last week in November with the Christmas holidays close at hand. The result has been that nothing was done until January beyond disposing of the debate upon the address. If the house meets early in November, however, there is no reason why it should not settle down to business at once and the Christmas holidays need make no more disturbance than would the Easter holidays at a later date.

The government has plenty to bring before parliament and it has some serious problems to confront. The debate upon naval defence and imperial contributions will undoubtedly command the attention of the country. Allied with those are the questions relating to the all red cable and all red steamship route. Again, the recently passed American Tariff bill has presented difficulties to the customs and finance departments and even to some of the provincial governments and it will not be surprising if a part of the session should be devoted to supplementary tariff legislation. This is more likely because the government is anxious to back out of the ridiculous trap in which it caught itself while attempting to play horse with Germany. It looks very much as though the German surtax would be abolished and the British preference virtually extended to Germany. The fact that the farmers in this country are excluded from the second largest market in the world cannot much longer escape attention.

The Grand Trunk Pacific project, will be up again for consideration. Mr. Lumsden's resignation as chief engineer under all the circumstances may well call for an inquiry by parliament. Lumsden made a great mistake in not supporting Major Hodgins when the latter made his charges about over-classification and secured a committee from the house to investigate them. No one now disputes that he was telling the exact truth and if Lumsden and the Grand Trunk engineers had come foward and supported him he would have made a case which would have cleared the atmosphere and saved the country a vast amount of money. Mr. Lumsden however, gave Hodgins no assistance and the Major was browbeaten into dismissing the case. Before long it dawned upon Lumsden that the abuses pointed out by Major Hodgins were so extensive and far-reaching that they could no longer be tolerated. Then he attempted to interfere and got sacked for his interference. The government would not have dared to have fired him had he come out boldly and told the public at the time of the Hodgins' inquiry what he will tell the public on the witness-stand at the next session.

The death of Mr. Reid, a member of the National Transcontinental railway commission, calls attention to the fundamental weakness of the whole N. T. R. organization. Mr. Reid was a paper-box manufacturer who was born and lived all his life in London, Ont., and probably knew little more about constructing a railway than he knew about constructing a flying machine. He was a good man and never pretended to be an engineer or experienced in construction work. He might just as well have been appointed to the Hydrographic survey as to the N. T. R. commission. Much the same may be said of his colleagues. One was a police court lawyer and another a corset maker. Not one of them would have been chosen by the C. P. R. or Mackenzie Mann for positions at all analagous to the ones they received from the Federal government. The Panama canal construction has not been a shining success but when one compares the personnel of the Panama construction board with the construction board of the N. T. R. a striking contrast appears not in favor of present-day Canadian methods.

Mr. Reid personally was not to blame for the system and he was justified in accepting the appointment when it came to him, but in the nature of things he and his colleagues were utterly unable to direct and control operations in the field and without any dishonesty on the part a road which should have cost not more than $90,000,000 will ultimately cost three or four times that much. It is certain that the eastern section from Winnipeg to Moncton including the Quebec bridge will not cost less than $270,000,000 or approximately $150,000 per mile.

The naval question may yet give some difficulty to the politicians. The opposition should sit tight and let the government do the experimenting. It is approaching the subject gingerly. All of our information so far has trickled to us from London, the ministry at Ottawa having nothing to say.

It will be hard for any government to bring down any scheme for naval construction which could not be attacked with considerable force and ability. If the ships are to be constructed in England, many at once will say: "Why not spend Canadian money in Canada?" On the other hand it is proposed to build warships in Canada, the objection will be made that we have not the facilities for doing so; and persons inclined to be humorous will recall the luxuriant furnishings of the "Montcalm" the expensive repairs of the "Speedy" and the wonderful trip of the "Arctic." Much is to be said however, in favor of the shipyards already established on the sea coast and on the great lakes. If they can build the ships their plea of government patronage will not be passed over lightly.

One fundamental difficulty with this whole question is that we do not agree among ourselves as to what end we have in view. Are the ships to be a part of the British navy or are they intended for coast and home defence? If we are really to build up the British navy for some expected nearby emergency, the practical way would be cash contribution No one will seriously contend that a couple of gunboats steaming from British Columbia around Cape Horn to the North Sea could cut much figure in deciding the war some people are picturing as inevitable between Britain and Germany. On the other hand if these ships are merely intended to prevent poaching and to visit our seaports or even in necessity to defend them, there seems every reason why we should patronize home industry as far as possible. It would not be surprising to find applications for aid to steel ship building from Halifax, Sydney, St. John, Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, Collingwood, Sault Ste. Marie, and Vancouver. The present government will try to placate every interest and the opposition will have to have a clean cut policy if they are to make any impression upon the country. Just now it is doubtful whether there is sufficient interest in the subject throughout the country to justify a premature declaration of policy.

The whole question is wound up and interlaced with the broader and deeper question of Imperialism. As between the two parties the Conservative party by tradition has been the party most concerned in strengthening the ties between this country and the mother land. Hon. Geo E. Foster whose speech upon naval defence in the house was notable, has taken high and advanced ground upon the obligation of Canada, her future duty and destiny. It is not likely that his view are far apart from those held by Mr. R. L. Borden. But Mr. Borden as leader of the opposition must speak always with deliberation and not commit himself and his party hastily to any propaganda. The whole naval question will be discussed in a non partisan way by parliament.

Mr. Gerald White, M. P. for North Renfrew was in Ottawa, the other day, having returned from a trip west. Mr. White entered the house in succession to his father, the late Hon. Peter White, who achieved national fame by his fairness and ability as speaker of the house. It is sometimes a handicap for a young member to bear the name of a distinguished father, but Gerald White has made good with his colleagues and the public. He has taken a very active part in forwarding the Georgian Bay canal and at the last session of the house he secured almost unanimous request from the house to the government in favor of expending this year Mr. George Gordon, who is more popular than any other ably co-operated with Mr. in pushing the Georgian Bay canal Mr. Gordon has taken a good place in the house for a member. He is not only a good man but he is a conscientious and clever politician. There is future Cabinet material some people are inclined to think, in the Nipissing.

The Fence and After

Across the fields through the golden sunshine of the Indian summer morning, strode Arthur Gray, a look of absorbed abstraction upon his intellectual brow and three heavy tomes of German philosophy beneath his arms.

Behind him on the terrace Mrs. Renwick and her husband watched his retreat. Mrs. Renwick's face was clouded by an impatient frown. Tom Renwick was grinning sardonically.

"I can't understand it," Mrs Renwick complained. "I invited all these young people solely on his account. I picked out only the deep ones of our acquaintance, the Taylor girls and Miss Frayne and Charlotte Brand.

"They know all about the ego and the subconscious self and all that sort of thing. They could talk it to him by the hour. And what does he do? Goes off every morning with his musty books and stays all day by himself. I call it downright rudeness in him."

Her big easy going, good-natured husband laughed. "My dear Agatha" said he, "this comes of harboring a genius in our midst, a genius we can never hope to understand. Now, if he could talk horse or shoot or get a bit more speed out of a road car than it was ever intended to show we could give him the time of his life. But a philospher, dropped here among our intellectual selves—dear heavens!"

He threw out his hands in a gesture of depreciation and made a wry face.

"But he is a coming man," Mrs. Renwick began.

Tom Renwick's grin broadened.

"He seems to be a going man just at present," he remarked, with a bob of his head in the direction of the stoop shouldered figure trudging across the fields. "It's desertion, pure and simple. Your intellectual maidens corralled here must evidently philosophize without your lion to inspire them.

"Come on! Let's round 'em up and give 'em a whirl in the road cars up to the top of Bald hill and back. That will take up their minds for the time being at least."

"It's the last time I'll ever try to entertain a genius," Mrs. Renwick declared flatly, "even if the said genius is my cousin and has done the family proud."

"Amen! I'm with you there," said Tom heartily as he turned from the terrace and strode off toward the garage.

In the meantime Arthur Gray quite oblivious to this criticism of his actions tramped down the field, climbed a stone wall into an orchard, where the trees were deep laden with their wealth of fruit, and, selecting a corner wealth of fruit, and, selecting a corner where the mottled shadows were most inviting settled himself comfortably on the ground, opened one of the ponderous volumes and was soon lost in the abstruse speculations of its author.

He read on in absorbed fashion, now pausing to thoroughly digest some choice morsel, now frowningly noting upon the margin his own opinion of the text at that point. It was an ideally quiet place in which to pursue his research.

But suddenly the quiet was rudely shattered. Just beyond the orchard came the pounding of rapid hoof beats. A girl's voice urging forward her mount rang through the still air. There was a swish of a hunting crop, a loud command of "Up Rajah!" Then the sound of hoofs suddenly ceased.

A masculine voice said, "He'll never take it, ma'am!" And the girl's voice replied, with a note of obstinacy in it, "He'll stay here until he does."

Gray arose. He walked to the edge of the orchard and looked afield. On the smooth turf of the adjoining field a girl—a wonderfully pretty girl—sat on a horse.

A little distance to the rear a trim, silent groom upon another horse impassively watched the proceedings.

Even as Gray watched them the girl wheeled her horse and galloped away from the fence. Then she turned him, touching him lightly with the crop, and rode full tilt for the fence again.

But, arrived at the fence, the horse refused to jump. The girl gave a little cry of annoyance.

Again she wheeled the horse and cantered away, only to turn him and ride for the fence once more.

Gray in his interest quite forgot himself. He vaulted the low wall that separated the orchard from the field and ran forward.

"Don't try it!" he cried warningly "It's too high! He'll never do it in the world!"

The girl turned to look at him coldly. Then she smiled.

"Oh, yes he will!" said she. All he needs is a little confidence."

"Don't try again," he said.

She raised her eyebrows. "I can't stop now," said she. "He must go over that fence now that he knows it is what is expected of him."

"Then let me put him to it," said he.

The girl looked surprised. "Aren't you the philospher friend if the Renwicks?" she asked.

"I am," he confessed. Involuntarily he straightened his stooping shoulders. "But even philosphers some times ride," said he. "I'd like to put him to the fence if you don't mind" Instantly the girl slid from the saddle. "Do so by all means," she suggested. "I have been trying it all the morning, and I confess I'm beginning to doubt my ultimate success with him."

Gray looked at her pretty flushed face and her sparkling eyes.

"And if I succeed what reward do I get?" he inquired boldly.

The girl laughed. "You may have a canter with me up to Bald Hill and back," said she.

Gray sprang into the saddle. A man in a sidesaddle is not a particularly graceful figure. But there was a light in his eyes and a general determination in his whole bearing that went far toward making up for his lack of grace.

Three times he put the horse to the fence, each time with no success. The fourth time he plied the crop freely.

They reached the fence and the big horse rose lightly, cleared the top bar by a good couple of feet and landed easily on the other side.

"Bravo!" cried the girl. "Splendid! Splendid! Splendid!" And even the groom ventured an involuntary "Well done Sir!"

"And now," said Gray, his eyes glowing with eager light. "I shall claim that canter with you. Shall we go now?"

He shipped from the saddle and helped her to mount.

"You will take Peter's horse," she said turning to the groom. "Come on!"

Up the field they galloped gayly together, swung into the road and headed for Bald Hill. Back in the orchard a woodpecker chased a grasshopper over the pages of a work of German philosophy.

Just as they reached the bend near the summit of the hill they encountered Renwick and his party in the two road cars coming down the road.

Mrs. Renwick stared in wonder. Her husband chuckled openly. Gray lifted his hat, utterly without embarassment, and, with the girl at his side went on up the hill.

"To think of it!" exclaimed Mrs. Renwick some two weeks later. "Arthur engaged to that Carlton girl! Why, she can't draw a breath without talking horse, and that's all she can talk!"

Renwick looked out the French window to the drive beyond, where Gray was helping a decidedly pretty young woman to her horse.

"For my part, Agatha," said he with deep conviction, "I'm mightily rejoiced. It shows that for all his intellect he has a decidedly human streak in him."

Conquering the Rockies.

Work has just been completed on the most colossal piece of tunnelling work that has ever been attempted in Canada in the finishing of the two famous spiral tunnels on the main line of the Canadian Pacific between Field and Hector, which will add several miles to the length of the track together with over a mile of tunnelling and a couple of bridges, but will so cut the "Big Hill" grade as to more than double the tractive power of the locomotives. While the work meant the excavation of nearly three-quarters of a million of cubic yards of virgin rock, the employment of a thousand men for nearly two years, the boring of about a mile and a half of tunnels, and the building of two bridges over the Kicking Horse river, it is estimated that it will prove a splendid investment for the C. P. R., as it will reduce this big grade from 4.5 to a maximum of 2.2. This will mean that the biggest obstacle to the running of trains over the Rockies has been removed, and that in the future two engines will be able to do much more work than four engines have hitherto been able to do at much less expense to the company, and with almost complete elimination of the ever-present risk to life of operating trains on a steep grade.

Mr. James A. Macdonell, head of the Vancouver firm of Macdonell, Gzowski & Co., who had the contract for constructing the big work, stated that the whole work had been completed, so far as the contractors were concerned, some time ago, and that the miles of tunnels and cutting had been turned over to the company All that now remained, said Mr. Macdonell, was to complete the ballasting and track-laying, and then this important improvement to the main line would be ready for trains.

"This improvement," said Mr. Macdonnell, "has meant 8¼ miles of work, of which 1¼ miles were tunnelled under mountains of ten thousand feet or more. While it increases the length of the line by 4¼ miles, at a cost of about 1½ million dollars, it will mean the reduction of the grade from 4.5 to 2.2 at the worst point, while the general grade will be less than 2 per cent.

"The result of this will be that where on the old track with its big grade it took four engines to handle a train, now only two engines will be required, and where the four engines used to be able to only make four or five miles an hour, the two engines on the new line will be able to make twenty-five. In this way the cost of operating a train over this difficult piece of line will be cut to about one-third of the present cost, with an improvement in the time of running, while the element of danger, inseparable from high grades has been practically eliminated. It is these factors which have induced the C. P. R. to go to such tremendous expense to cut out the famous "Big Hill" grade."

To cut out this enormous amount of rock, of which there were 500,000 cubic yards in the open cutting and 150,000 cubic yards in the tunnelling an unprecedented amount of blasting was done. During the twenty months of work Mr. Macdonell stated that no less than 75 carloads of dynamite had been used, or upwards of 1,500,000 pounds of the explosive. The cost of this almost unthinkable quantity of explosive alone came to $250,000.

The conformation of the new track said Mr. Macdonell, is most peculiar Coming from the east, the road first enters the western corkscrew tunnel of 3,200 feet, under Cathedral mountain. Emerging from the tunnel twist the track runs back east across the Kicking Horse river, and then enters the eastern spiral tunnel of 2,910 feet under Wapta mountain, and after describing an elliptic curve emerges to again cross the Kicking Horse river westward. The whole thing is a perfect maze, the railway doubling back upon itself twice in order to cut down the grade. The two tunnels alone involved an excavation of 130,000 cubic yards of rock while over 500,000 yards were blasted out in other cuttings.

During the tunnel work the contractors for the first time in Canada operated steam shovels by compressed air, one of these machines being installed at the working head in each tunnel, the cutting being worked from opposite ends. Despite the complicated work caused by the spiral shape of the tunnels, they met exactly, and the work has been completed with marvellous exactness.

This is not merely the greatest piece of tunnelling ever attempted in Canada, but the first introduction of this spiral system of tunnels on this continent. The successful completion of so vast a work is regarded with relief by the officials of the C. P. R. and the contractors have been congratulated on all sides over their work, the more so that it was executed in so short a period of time and without a single strike amongst the employees.

DR. FOWLER'S EXT. OF WILD STRAWBERRY

This wonderful bowel complaint remedy has been on the market for 64 years and it has been used in thousands of homes throughout the country during this time.

You do not experiment when you buy an old and tried remedy like this. Ask your druggist for Dr. Fowler's, and insist on getting what you ask for. Do not take some substitute which the unprincipled druggist says is "just as good." These cheap imitations are dangerous to your health.

Mrs. Jeff Flaherty, Belfountain, Ont., writes:—"In the month of September, last, my youngest child took Summer Complaint and the doctor had very little hopes for her. My neighbor told me to get Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so that night I sent my daughter to get it, and when she came home I gave the baby one dose, and in half an hour there was a change for the better, and after the third dose she was completely cured. We feel it is far and beyond any other remedy for Summer Complaint and besides it saves paying a doctor. I advise everyone to use it. Don't accept a substitute for Dr. Fowler's. The original and only Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., Price 35 cents.

He writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you concerning the great value I have received in using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for Catarrh of the Stomach, with which I have been a sufferer for thirty years. I used five bottles and made me all right. Mr. Butler is on a holiday trip and has toured Canada, stopping at Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Edmonton, Calgary, Banff, Vancouver, Victoria and on the return trip at Medicine Hat. One of the things which most impressed him regarding Canada was the vast scale of things in this country. The Englishmen has no conception of the vastness of Canada until he sees it. In Mr. Butler's opinion our Rockies easily surpass the Alps, both in massiveness and beauty and the day is coming when they will be the most frequented of any mountain scenery in the world. In Edmonton he visited the gas wells and could scarcely believe that gas could be sold so cheap as the figures at which it is sold here.

The system of irrigation employed by Ed. Taylor, gardener at Grand Forks is as interesting as it is unique. A large water-wheel of the wide paddle type is turned by the force of the water in the river alongside the garden and this wheel is geared to a force pump which sends a constant stream through a hose on to the garden land some twenty feet above the water level. Only a loose stone ridge is used to guide the water into the narrow current that passes under the wheel and supplies the power. As the water works day and night and the hose is shifted to different parts as needed, plenty is easily supplied to all the fifteen acres cultivated and the production upon the soil is amazing. Practically everything good for the table grows in abundance in this garden.

BOWELL

(Too late for last week)

Since our last letter we have had ideal weather for harvesting only about 100 acres of late sown grain remains to be harvested. Everyone is busy stacking; stacks appear in every direction, and in another week or two everyone will be ready for the threshers. The chief topic now is as to the probable yield, a heavy one undoubtedly. Many are talking about a seventy to a hundred bushel yield of oats, but the threshers will soon be around and set all minds at rest in this respect. We hope all farmers will act straight as to the amount of land sown and thereby save unpleasant remarks as to the yield, as fictitious results are of no use to any country, and if any are found out it will certainly be difficult to make intending settlers believe truthful reports.

On Tuesday evening last a dance was held in our town hall in honor of Miss Nora Ellis who is leaving for Scotland on an extended visit. Quite a number put in an appearance and all had a good time. Bowell dances are usually a success; all join in heartily to make them enjoyable as this is one of the few means we have of having a good time.

Agricultural Society Seek Grant

The regular meeting of the council was held in the city hall on Tuesday evening there being present: the mayor, Aldermen Robertson, McKay, Morrow, Spencer, Adsit, Howson, Huckvale and Penhale.

A communication was received from W. R. Martin in regard to a recent letter sent him by the council. He had been informed that they could not recognize his claim for remuneration as gas expert after July 1st of the present year. The writer stated that he held an agreement with the city as gas expert from Feb. 1st, 1908, for one year at a salary of $600 per annum. This was absolutely binding, and in the event of payment not being forthcoming action would be taken through the courts to enforce the claim for $850, being the amount owing from July 1st, 1909 to Feb. 1st 1910. The mayor stated that a letter was in the possession of the council in which Mr. Martin requested that the payment of his salary be made each month, as he could not guarantee that he would remain in Medicine Hat to the end of the year. On motion of Ald. Huckvale and Ald. Adsit the letter was referred to the solicitor.

Fire Chief Hatcher wrote in regard to several matters in connection with his department. In the first place he stated that when he was made permanent fire chief the hydrants of the city were placed under his care. The use of two hydrants for the street water carts had been temporarily allowed, pending the completion of standpipes for the purpose named. The wagon not still used the hydrants and the writer wished to know when the present unsatisfactory state of affairs would be brought to an end. It was impossible under the circumstances to keep the hydrants in a proper state of repair. The mayor stated that this matter should be attended to at once. Mr. Hatcher's second request was for a place in which to store horse feed in order that the feed might be bought at a time when market prices were the lowest. This matter was referred to the fire, water and light committee, while another request regarding storm doors for the firehall was referred to the public works committee, with power to act. Mr. Hatcher further requested that plumbing inspector forms be provided and enquired as to which committee of the council the plumbing and building inspectorship came

Observations on the Press Convention

One of the outstanding features of the convention convened last week in the capital city of the province was the fraternal aspect of it. Newspaper men are indeed a fraternity bound together by ties quite as strong as those which bind the genus hobo.

The convention made a wise choice in W. A. Buchanan as president. Mr. Buchanan has certainly made a success of newspaper work. His enterprising daily at Lethbridge is a credit to the southern city. He presided over the meetings with dignity, and as the head of the executive will doubtless see that complete arrangements are made for next year's convention which will meet in the president's home city. As a tribute to his faithful work the past secretary, D. H. Elton, also of Lethbridge was re-elected secretary.

Edmonton, the convention city has the automatic telephone and it is a municipal enterprise. Its rate is not materially different from the provincial one, and there is no reason why the province should not make as great a success of the telephone business as any particular municipality.

Wherever the automatic phone is once tried no other will be tolerated. There can be no mistake in the call unless the caller makes it, and then he has only himself to blame. If "line's busy" a buzz informs the caller to that effect. The government is at present installing it at Lethbridge and Medicine Hat should endeavor to secure the improvement also.

The most distinguished visitor to the convention was Lord Northcliffe—the biggest thing in the newspaper world. His lordship is the owner of over 70 newspapers in England, and is touring Canada to size up the situation and decide in how far to recommend through his papers investment in and emigration to Canada. He addressed the press convention and in the course of his remarks stated that Canada had not in the past secured the best kind of British immigrant. Those who proved to be worthless here were the kind England was glad to get rid of. Prospects for a better class are bright however.

Edmonton and Strathcona are to be connected by a high level bridge—some day. There is a bridge there now, of a kind, but it is not to be mentioned in the same breath with the Finlay bridge here. In some respects Edmonton is a very desirable city—that is if one has not yet seen Medicine Hat. It has no city hall worth mentioning, its post office is not yet completed, its club rooms no better than ours and withal it is the capital. Edmonton is always expect to be hewers of coal and drawers of ashes, and unlike Calgary never expect to have natural gas. By the way the Calgary Gas Co. has increased its capital stock. It will need to increase it again before the hot air the Calgary papers get off about Edmonton will burn. Edmonton loves Calgary too—in a way, and wouldn't mind seeing it transplanted to heaven—or some other place. Edmonton does her courting with Strathcona. She wants the burg of the south bank to become a suburb of the capital, but Strathconians don't want to be the tail that the dog wagged. She has the university, and who knows but that The Plaindealer will turn into a college journal some day. The biggest obstacle in the way is that The Plaindealer is Grit, and that would not suit Dr. Tory. "Right you are," says the Ponoka Herald.

As a contrast to the odor of the meat packing plant (which by the way some of the journalists couldn't contain) Lethbridge is to show us something sweet when we go there next year. It is to be a sugar making plant. This factory is at Raymond however. It is to be expected that the Bow Island gas well will also be exhibited as in Lethbridge. If we don't watch out, they will claim us as a suburb and be the biggest city in Alberta.

Edmonton will some day be a great city—unless Athanasca Landing fulfils her dreams and becomes the commercial centre of northern Alberta. Calgary stands a poor chance of being the railroad centre Edmonton is. Railroads will do much towards the upbuilding of the capital. A great factor will be the opening up of the northern half of the province now untouched. This is practically true of the whole province since only one-half of one per cent. of the land is yet under cultivation. But whatever development there is is in the southern portion. The northern half of Alberta will eventually produce more grain than the southern portion. The trade from it must pass through Edmonton. Edmonton has little sympathy with the views of those who think the capital was placed too far north. They point with pride to the fact that the city is 50 miles south of the geographical centre of the province. It is a long stroll from the international boundary to Edmonton, but 100 miles further from there to our northerly limits. What an extensive province we have! And practically all of it good productive land! Eventually the southern portion will produce fruit, the middle will be a mixed farming district and the northern the grain growing section.

Geographically the situation of Prince Albert and Edmonton is very similar, the former occupying about the same position in Saskatchewan as the latter does in Alberta. But although Alberta is not nearly so well developed as Saskatchewan, Edmonton is much ahead of Prince Albert. The fact that the former is a capital may account somewhat for this, but the chief reason is that Edmonton is the centre for the fur trade of the north. If northern Saskatchewan proves to be as great a mineral country as sometimink Prince Alberta has a great future before it.

It is not anticipated however, that the said portion of Saskatchewan will equal the corresponding part of Alberta. The term "the last west" really belongs to the northern part of our province.

At the press banquet on the evening of the first day's session of the convention the point raised by Premier Rutherford was well taken. Alberta, he declared, has no provincial paper. We have several good dailies but all are of a local character. It is up to Edmonton, the capital, to fill the bill.

Separator Burned In the Norton District

While threshing operations were in progress at Middleton's farm in the Norton district last Wednesday, the straw pile became ignited, it is believed by a stray spark from the engine. The pile quickly blazed up, and seeing the danger, the threshers prepared to draw the separator away. For the moment they were unable to find the chain by which the engine and separator are coupled when moving, and they were compelled to stand by and see the separator destroyed. The outfit belonged to Mr. Earl who has been carrying out threshing operations this fall.

LOCAL FIRM'S COAST INVESTMENT

It is understood that the firm of T. Bell & Sons have recently invested heavily with a syndicate of Pacific coast capitalists in Vancouver property. The deals were consummated by Mr. J. H. Bell during his vacation.

GREAT STATESMAN OF THE EMPIRE PASSES THROUGH THE CITY

Sir Joseph G. Ward, premier of New Zealand and Dr. Fetchett, attorney general of the new dominion, passed through the city recently on their way across the continent. They are returning home from the Imperial Defense Conference recently held in London. It was Sir Joseph who called the generous offer in behalf of his government of one or two Dreadnoughts for the strengthening of the Empire's naval position at the time when the perilous European situation was disclosed in the British house of commons.

The delegates showed great interest in our city and the great natural asset which we possess.

PROSECUTIONS UNDER THE NOXIOUS WEEDS ORDINANCE

On Thursday morning J. W. Landis of Stair appeared before Inspector Parker charged with an infraction of the noxious weeds ordinance. A fine of $5 and costs was imposed and Landis was ordered to clean up his farm at once on pain of being severely dealt with should he appear again.

E. J. R. Walton was fined $5 and costs for a similar offence on Friday morning.

Inspector Parker and the staff of the local detachment spent Thursday and Friday afternoon at Police Point in revolver target practice.

GRAIN BUYING FIRM

S. T. Fawcett has gone into the grain buying business. Last week he received his license from the warehouse commissioner at Winnipeg, and he is now prepared to buy in large or small quantities on track, or ship or commission. At Coleridge he has had scales installed, so that business may be done from both points.

DISTRICT COURT ADJOURNED

Brown occupied the pulpit of the Evangelical church at Newburg, morning and afternoon, and at Irvine in the evening. The discourses which were logical and earnest proved an inspiration to all present. The reverend gentlemen were very favorably impressed with the progress of the work.

There are certain differences in the systems and it was decided to refer the whole matter to the building committee who will report back to the board.

RESULTS OF TODAY'S RACE

Five Mile Flat Race:

1st Ross, Maple Creek.
A. Halward, Medicine Hat.
3rd E. R. Dynes, Maple Creek.

Time—31 minutes 3 seconds.

The Lee prize, donated by G. W. Elliott, was won by A. Halward.

Automobile Race:

2nd Dr. Smith.
3rd Dr. Boyd.
Time not taken.

Great interest was exhibited in the 5 mile race which was the first event pulled off on the exhibition track during the fair. There were seven starters but only five men finished the race. The track was in excellent condition and the weather favorable. It was a neck and neck race through out between Ross of Maple Creek and Art Halward of the Hat. As the two passed the judge's stand time after time it was evident that the race would be won in the last hundred yards. And so it proved to be. When the final spurt began Ross led slightly and finished about one foot ahead of Halward.

Dynes of Maple Creek made a good third and John Todd finished strong as fourth.

NEW GOLD MEDAL FOR HOSPITAL GRADUATES

At a meeting of the hospital board held yesterday afternoon a new form of gold medal for graduates was adopted. The sum of $200 was granted to the Woman's Hospital aid to assist in the splendid work of this organization.

The following were present at the meeting: the president, Mr. J. K. Drinnan, and medical superintendent, Dr. Smyth, and Messrs. Cunliffe, Hopper, Kealy, White, Adsit and Secretary-Treasurer Fewings.

ROYAL TEMPLARS' SOCIAL

(Contributed)

The Royal Templars of Temperance held a very enjoyable social in Cochran's hall last night. After closing their regular business meeting at 8.30 they made open night of it, and after a short but enjoyable program refreshments were served. One young gentleman gave a pretty good recitation on "How to Propose." Whether he has ever been through the ordeal before, or not the narrator does not know, but he certainly had that nervous fidgetiness that is supposed to take possession of a man while he is waiting in his room trying to think what he will say when he enters the presence of his chosen lady. There were also some games after supper was over, but unfortunately, a few of the young people had to leave early on account of saying farewell to a friend of their friend's who was leaving on the train.

Dry Farming Congress calls for Statistics

Secretary John T. Burns of the Dry Farming Congress, has sent 15,000 statistician's report blanks to farmers throughout the world for the purpose of gathering data on the actual results of dry farming this year. These blanks are addressed to members of the congress, directors of experiment stations, superintendents of demonstration farms, officers of state agricultural colleges and practical farmers in all the districts of the world where agriculture is being practiced under so-called dry farming systems, or where the climatic condition are such that dry farming methods could be applied. Introductory to the questions to be answered, Secretary Burns says:

"The Dry Farming Congress desires to do a practical work for the dry farming operators and students of the world. Hence, we forward this blank with the urgent appeal to every dry farmer, experiment station director, member or non-member of the congress, to assist us in assembling the facts regarding dry farming success or failure and causes thereof. If not possible to fill out this report immediately, please send it before October 1, if possible, as the statistician's report must be compiled before October 15. We wish to place before the members of the congress and the press of the world the exact facts about arid districts where dry farming is being attempted and we urge upon you the value to your community of giving us a conservative statement of facts over your signature."

The reports will be compiled and the information contained in the replies presented by the statistician in his report to the Fourth Dry Farming Congress at Billings, Montana, October 26-28.

Each person receiving one of these blanks is asked to tell the congress what is the approximate acreage of dry land under cultivation in his county; approximate possible total dry land development; average rainfall; season of maximum rainfall; if irrigation and dry farming are practiced in combination; if summer fallowing or annual cropping is followed; how long dry farming has been tested in the district and the result; what crops have been grown in the last three years and under what conditions; describe methods of cultivation; give statistics on maximum and minimum average acre yield of various crops; give personal experience and methods followed and make suggestions helpful to other farmers.

"The statistician's report proved one of the most valuable practical features of the third session of the congress," said Secretary Burns, "and the next report which will be presented at the Fourth Congress at Billings, will be far more useful because of the broader field from which the information will be obtained. Since the material for the first ranort was gathered the congress has expanded into an international movement and this year we are calling upon dry farmers in every country where dry farming is practiced or possible for information as to their methods and results. In this report we shall place before the world in concise and comprehensive form the story of the actual results of dry farming principles put in practice by practical farmers."

Considerable agitation has been aroused by the fact that there are two claimants for the discovery of the North Pole—Dr. Cook and Captain Peary. We shall have to await the decision of competent scientific critics before deciding to whom the honor belongs.

Agricultural Exhibition and Races

Large Crowds Leave for Fair Grounds

A visit was made this morning by a Times representative to the fair grounds, and an examination of conditions there reveals the fact that adequate preparations have been made to ensure a successful fair. The directors have left no stone unturned to have everything in readiness and there will be no delay to exhibitors getting their exhibits in place. All morning exhibits were pouring in and the entry list is large enough to ensure the biggest and best fair in the history of the association.

A celephone line has been constructed to the fair grounds which will add materially to the convenience of citizens and visitors. Communication can now be made between the city and grounds without the overland trip that was formerly necessary. Two new turnstiles, one at the entrance to the grounds and the other at the entrance to the grand stand will enable the management to handle the crowds to better advantage.

The buildings are of a presentable and substantial character, the new well gives abundance of water and the foundations for what will some day be a great exhibition are well and truly laid.

As we go to press there is a continuous stream of rigs and automobiles fairwards, and the prospects are that both from the standpoint of attendance and the interesting nature of the events, this season's fair and races will excel all previously held here.

Advertising the Hat

Mr. Wm Ansley has recently returned from a tour through eastern Canada, where he has been lecturing on the resources and great future of the Medicine Hat district. The burden of his addresses has been the productiveness of our soil and the suitability of our climate to mature fruits, vegetables and grain.

The old superstition regarding "the weather factory," is by no means dead in the States, and Mr. Ansley found the general opinion to be that we can produce nothing but weather here. The trip will doubtless prove to be one of the best advertisements the district has ever had, and our fellow citizen is to be commended for the public spirit he has shown in undertaking so expensive and extensive a trip.

Mr. Ansley thinks that if this district is to be adequately advertised it must adopt other and better means than have yet been adopted.

Alberta Sunday School Convention

The Sunday School convention of Alberta, which will be held in Edmonton on October 27-29, promises to be an event. Mr. Marion Lawrance, Chicago, general secretary of the International Sunday School association, will be the leading speaker and specialist. Prof. E. O. Excell of Chicago, will have charge of the music and conduct the chorus of 500 voices that will lead the music at the evening sessions. Leading Sunday School workers from all denominations will assist in the program. There will be rallies for pastors, superintendents, intermediate, adult, and primary teachers, secretaries, and librarians, and a couple of luncheons and conferences combined. The various denominations will have gatherings, at which they will discuss their denominational literature, distinctive teaching, etc.

The Song of the Thresher

For the farmers of the Medicine Hat district life at this season is one long sweet song the song of the separator threshing out its golden wealth. And prosperity is the refrain. The knocker, who might at one time be met in almost every township, is no more, but the farmer has not time to boost. By and by, when the grain has been converted into dollars, he will have a tale to tell of bushels to the acre that will come as a revelation to many. For some weeks, however, he will live in deeds not words, as the falling off in our country correspondence this week well indicates. When the season's grand hustle is over, all that will be changed, and we can look confidently forward to hearing news from the country which will cause the most brazen of knockers to hang down his head in silence or repenting and finding grace, to seek enlistment in the noble army of boosters.

MOUNTED POLICE TRACE MISSING FRENCHMAN

The young Frenchman, Rodier, who disappeared mysteriously from the vicinity of the Putnam Bros' ranch in the early part of last month, has at last been traced by the mounted police. The stallion, which had been hitched to the wagon in which Rodier was last seen, was recovered some time ago and a careful search being made the police were able to trace the missing man to Coleridge. The Frenchman it was discovered, had left for the east on the night on which he arrived in Coleridge.

Rev. Dr. Forrest, of Glasgow, preached in St. Andrew's Church, Vancouver, during his recent visit to the coast, upon the power of appreciation. One thing that was seriously lacking in modern life, he said, was a vocabulary of praise. Amateur Sport

Now that the baseball season is over there is an opportunity for local sports to get together with a view to boosting amateur sport during the remainder of the fall. So long as the professional baseball season continued amateurism has been under a cloud in Medicine Hat, though why this should be the case here when in other league towns amateur baseball, football and lacrosse have flourished, it is a little difficult to see. So far we have not heard of anything being done to fill up the gap during the fall, but surely there is sufficient sporting spirit in our city to make a couple of months of amateur games assured. It is regrettable that lacrosse, the distinctly Canadian national game has been allowed to die out in Medicine Hat. Association and Rugby football have hardly been known here during the past two years, though enthusiastic Rugby players were sanguine last year of getting together an aggregation to challenge the Calgarians. We believe that Rugby, under the British Rugby Union rules, could successfully be revived in this city if an effort were made to get the players together. The great majority of players in western Canada have always played under the British rules, and the future of the game will, we believe, largely depend on their being adopted throughout the prairie provinces.

Shooting

The members of the Medicine Hat Rifle association who attended the Ontario Rifle meet at Toronto and the Dominion Rifle meet at Ottawa, have returned and report having had a most enjoyable two week's sport, they succeeded in winning a number of prizes and made a very creditable showing for young shots competing against 650 of the best rifle shots of Canada. The Alberta team easily succeeded in holding their own with the rest of the provinces, capturing three first prizes, including the governor general's, which is ranked as the highest honor to be won in Canada. This was won by D. McInnes of Edmonton with a score of 100 on the short ranges and 98 on the long ranges, breaking the best previous record for this match by one point and winning for the second time; McInnes won it in 1906 with a score of 196. The first prize is a very valuable gold medal and $200 in cash and is well worth striving for. The shooting all through the Ottawa matches was exceptionally good, and previous records for every match were broken one by one.

In the Tyro match at 500 yards, M. Fulton of Medicine Hat, made the possible score of 32 points, but when the results were issued it showed five possible scores tied for first place.

At Toronto in the Tate Brassey match open to members of the militia only, T. A. Finlay made a fine score of 96 and captured the 11th prize. The 500 yard range was shot three times at Toronto and each time he made 34 out of 35 points.

AS A MAN THINKETH

Man may rise above his environment, but he can never rise above that to which he gives his attention. If he lives in a garret and thinks discouragement and failure and hate and gloom he will live in a garret still. But, if he, while living in the garret, employs to the full his time in improving himself, in taking care of his health, in keeping his mind free from the clouds of discouragement, and instead cultivate courage, determination and faith that he is going by his works to get better things, then he will rise above that environment. But no one may habitually think evil, meanness, hate, failure and rise to happiness.—Moose Jaw News.

University Senate

The University Senate held a most important meeting in the president's office on Tuesday when matters of importance affecting the university were discussed. At the morning session it was decided to hold a convocation at 2 o'clock in the afternoon to confer upon Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, who was present in the city, the degree of Doctor of Laws honoris causa. After the conferring of the degre upon Lord Strathcona, the meeting again resumed and proceeded to deal with the regular business for which it had been summoned.

The first question dealt with was the resignation of Dr. G. A. Kennedy from the senate board. Dr. Kennedy had tendered his resignation at the previous meeting, but on account of the lateness of the hour when the regular business had been completed, no action was taken. The resignation was accepted and the senate authorized the taking of the necessary steps to fill the vacancy by the holding of a new election in the manner prescribed by the University Act. As Dr. Kennedy had given publicity to his resignation throughout the province, basing it upon grounds which showed that he had a wholly erroneous view of the work being done by the senate, the chancellor was asked to write to Dr. Kennedy with a view of correcting this impression.

The principal business before Tuesday's meeting was the consideration of a report from Prof. Nobbs, Professor of Architecture of McGill university, regarding the grouping and locating of the university buildings on the university site and also a supplementary report from the provincial architect in the same connection. After a full discussion of the plans and after the various details connected with the buildings generally had been gone into, the senate decided to proceed at once with the construction of the first building. This building, the excavations of which will be proceeded with immediately, will be 280 by 70 feet in size, three stories in height with full sized basement, and will probably be constructed of granite and Calgary sandstone. The building is planned with a view of enlargement by the addition of wings on the north and south ends and also by the construction of a convocation hall on the west side. This first structure on the University site, which will form the centre of a well-planned group of buildings will face east occupying a commanding position and looking directly down Ninth Avenue north in Strathcona. It is hoped that the necessary excavation work will be completed before winter sets in, and in that case the building of the superstructure will begin as early as possible in the spring with a view of being ready for occupancy by the first of January, 1911.

A number of reports in connection with the police department were presented by Ald. Adsit, chairman of the committee. It was recommended that the services of E. S. Smith as constable be dispensed with on the 20th of this month, and that the chief be empowered to engage a new man, F. W. Holmes, at the same salary.

The committee recommended that the salary of the chief of police be increased to $1,500. The motion was carried on motion of Ald. Adsit and Ald. Penhale by the unanimous vote of the council and without discussion.

Ald. Huckvale stated that a water main was being installed in Columbia avenue. This will be good news to Mr. Landry who has carried on a lengthy correspondence with the council in regard to this matter.

Messrs. Jas. Rae and S. T. Fawcett were a deputation to the council from the agricultural society. Addressing the council Mr. Rae said that for some time past the society had been trying to get a permanent place for the holding of the annual exhibition. The end of the week would see the completion of and fencing of 40 acres. Thirty-two pens for horses and cattle, etc., had been constructed at a cost of in the neighborhood of $400. Altogether about $3,500 had been expended in improvement on the fair grounds. The land bought last year was mortgaged for $1,500. The speaker believed that the fair was one of the best advertisements the town could have. An effort had been made to share up the burden of the cost with the general public by requiring a fee of ten per cent. of the prize money for each entry. Not one cent of profit was expected by the directors. But the fair was undoubtedly a splendid advertisement for the city and district. The government grant of $1,200 was brought into circulation in the district. While the secretary had been put to considerable expense this year Mr. Rae did not think that much would need to be spent in 1910. Arrangements had been made for transportation at this year's fair which should be eminently satisfactory to the general public. Three section tickets would be issued at a price of 50 cents each. The first section would be good for transportation to the grounds; the second for admission (not inclusive of grandstand); the third for return transportation on the return trip. Arrangements had been made with Mr Cooper and Mr. Johnson to honor these tickets, for each of which they would receive 25 cents. Probably an agreement would also be concluded with Mr. Watson. Any passenger who neglected to secure a ticket would of course be charged 25c. each trip, the money being held by the liverymen. Meals would be served on the grounds at a cost which would not exceed 35 cents, this being the limit set by the fair directors. The society had a splendid well at the grounds, enabling them to provide for all the needs of the fair. This fall plowing would be carried out all around the forty acres, the land being placed in readiness for the planting of trees in the spring. The society thought that in view of all the circumstances the council might see fit to make a grant of $1,000. Mr. Fawcett spoke briefly in endorsement of Mr. Rae's remarks.

It was unfortunate said the mayor that the request had not come in sooner, before the tax rate for the year was struck. The matter would have to go before the finance committee before any action could be taken. There was the guarantee of $1,000 to the baseball club to consider. Mr. Rae "I have heard tonight that the baseball grant will not be required." (laughter). "If the baseball doesn't require the $1,000," replied his worship, "I think I can safely promise $1,000 for the agricultural society." Ald. Morrow moved that the matter be referred to the finance committee, the grant to be made if the state of the city's finances would permit. This was seconded by Ald. Adsit and carried.

Mr. Rae said that there was a feeling among members of the society at the time that the bylaw was turned down that the fair should be allowed to drop for this year. As it was money had been spent on the buildings which actually should have been spent in prizes. It was a great however, that it would be childish to drop the fair simply because the bylaw for which the members of the agricultural society had not properly worked, was turned down by the people.

Ald. Spencer expressed himself as being in favor of the grant. The best way of arranging the matter would be for a special meeting to be called prior to the fair.

Ald. Spencer enquired as to whether any limit were given the contractors as to the finishing up of the work on concrete sidewalks. It was getting near to the season when work of this kind must cease. There was an amount of $16,000 raised by debentures for this purpose and of this only $10,000 had as yet been spent. Ald. Howson stated that he would ask the contractors to push ahead with their present work, in order if possible to get in additional work to as near $6,000 as possible, during the present fall.

Applications for the position of poll tax collector were considered, and a bylaw was carried appointing W. R. Perry and H. Baker, who will work jointly out of regular office hours. A commission of 15 per cent. will be given on the taxes collected. Mr. W. A. Wilson was the only other applicant.

The secretary treasurer was instructed, on motion of Ald. Howson and Spencer to remit all taxes (excepting school taxes) in respect of income of all ratepayers whose assessment of real property exceeds their assessment for income.

A bylaw amending the water schedule in the following particulars affecting builders was introduced by Ald. Huckvale and carried. The rate for water for 1000 brick was reduced from 25 cents to 14 cents, the average for surrounding cities being 14½ cents. The rate for a cord of stone was reduced from 40 cents to 20 cents, the average rate for the cities of Regina, Edmonton, Lethbridge and Calgary being 17½ cents. The rate for plaster was reduced to 25 cents from 50 cents. Rate for concrete was fixed at 10 cents per cubic yard.

The question of retaining the third fire team as at present was referred to the fire water and light committee. The mayor considered that the fire department was getting too expensive, being run on the same lines as in very large cities. Ald. Huckvale's suggestion, that an automobile be purchased and all the horses done away with seemed to find general favor.

At 9.30 the council adjourned.

COMING TO CANADA

From "With the Invading Yankees" by Walter P. McGuire in Canada-West Monthly, for September.

"Guess I'm pretty much like my father," said a tall man. "His folks gave him eighty acres near their farm in Indiana in 1846, and he could have settled down there and made a living. But he didn't. He came west to the end of the railroad line—it was Iowa City then—and walked about ninety miles further, and cut down trees at the edge of the wood and built a log house. He then returned to Indiana and got mother—she was only sixteen then, and a year married—and they began farming. It was hard work and they lived on nothing but corn bread and molasses one winter—I've heard them tell about it many a time—and for four years father hauled his grain to Des Moines, that was the nearest market and that was thirty-seven miles away. But they were happy there and got pretty rich, and father always said that he was glad he left Indiana.

"Now I'm leaving old Iowa, and the old farm. Father paid $9 an acre for the place. I got $108. But I don't think I'd have moved if I hadn't got so restless on the old place, for I was making money enough to live on quite comfortable. You ever live on a farm? Well, if you didn't you ain't got any idea how hard it is to stay cooped up on 160 acres when you've got enough machinery to farm a place several times that size, and have to let it stand idle most of the time; and when you know how fine it is to stand in your doorway and look out over a strip of this old earth and can feel that its your own and nobody can take it away from you, and when you figure that if you only went out to some new part of the earth, like your father did, you could look over a strip much bigger than that, and just as good for farming—then you'd know exactly why I've started for Canada. I mean," he added, looking out of the window, "why I've come to Canada. You wouldn't think though that you was in Canada if you didn't know it, would you. The same sights over again."

Constipation

Constipation is caused by the eating of indigestible food, irregular habits, the use of stimulants, spices and astringent food, and strong drastic purgatives, which destroy the tone of the stomach and the contractile of the lower bowel; therefore, when the liver is inactive, and failing to secrete bile in sufficient quantity, constipation is sure to follow, and after constipation come piles, one of the most annoying troubles one can have.

A Triumph of Canadian Alpinism

The ascent of Mount Robson marks the greatest triumph in the history of the youthful Alpinism of Canada, and a triumph such as the most experienced of European Alpinists would not despise. Not only is Mount Robson the highest peak of a range of giants, but the ascent is of a peculiarly difficult nature on account of the ever-recurrent storms upon its slopes, and the frequent avalanches. In four previous attempts, one in 1907 and the other three occasions in 1908, the Rev George Kinney has been foiled by adverse weather conditions, fierce blizzards intervening between the intrepid mountaineer and the accomplishment of his heart's desire. This year, after many weeks of waiting for fair weather and in the face at the last of well-nigh insuperable difficulties, he has at last achieved the conquest of the goliath of the Rockies. The feat is the more remarkable as Mr. Kinney has less than four years experience as a member of the Canadian Alpine club and in his successful climb he was unaccompanied by a Swiss or other professional guide.

Apart from the interest incidental to the physical endurance which such an accomplishment required, the results from a scientific standpoint may not be inconsiderable. Inch by inch the secrets of the fastnesses of our land are being laid bare, and a wonderland, a whole empire of interest to the votary of the natural sciences opened to view. As Canadians we are coming to realize that not only in the development of our vast material resources, but in a growing appreciation of the grandeur of our national heritage, will be found the true elements of national greatness.

The Imperial Defence Conference

The result of the Imperial Conference recently held in London has not been such as to satisfy those who believe that the time has come for Canada to assume a fair share of the burden of the Empire's defence. Something however, has been conceded by a government lukewarm in the Imperial cause. At previous conferences of colonial premiers Sir Wilfrid had stood alone in his attitude of indifference to Imperial defence, but since that time Canadian public opinion has been aroused, and inaction being no longer possible, the government has consented to accept a minor degree of responsibility. If the somewhat indefinite statements emanating from Ottawa are correct Canada is to undertake the beginnings of a small navy of cruisers and destroyers and to equip the naval base at Halifax and Esquimalt. No authoritative statement has been made or will be made until parliament meets in November. One thing, however, is beyond question. Any efforts which Canada may make towards the building of a local navy cannot be of any value to the Empire for a number of years to come. Meanwhile the German shipyards are turning out fighting ships at a rate unprecedented in history. Within 3 or 4 years the crisis may come, and Britain may find it necessary to concentrate her every effort on the maintenance of sea supremacy. That Canada's local navy can be of little or no assistance is the view of the admiralty and of almost all naval experts. It was with a view to providing against the immediate menace that the Imperial conference was called and in this respect so far as Canada is concerned it has signally failed. If Britain alone can face the immediate danger, and of this there can be little doubt in the minds of any who know of the spirit of determination in which her people are facing the situation, the Canadian navy may prove a source of Imperial strength in the years that are to come.

Labor and War

In all countries the forces of organized labor are implacably opposed to war, and militarism finds its greatest enemy in the politically conscious working class. The German and French Socialists have consistently opposed increasing expenditure upon armaments, and anti-militarism has been carried to such extremes in some parts of France as to be unrecognizable from anti-patriotism. But in times when national existence is threatened, the great masses of the people forget their political creeds in their devotion to the race ideal. Whatever may have been the theorising as to universal peace, the defence of national existence assumes a paramount place. Even the poorest of the poor, who have nothing to lose and perhaps something to gain by a violent change of government, are patriots when the hour of danger comes.

The attitude of the Dominion Trades and Labor councils in their opposition to the assumption of military and naval responsibility by Canada is not surprising. And yet the working man who would support an anti-militarist resolution would be a devoted Canadian should our national integrity ever be threatened. The secret of the mistaken attitude of many well-meaning pacificists lies in their failure to recognize the law of nations as it prevails today. The law of nations is still the law of the jungle, and for any one people to neglect the essentials of defence no matter how humanitarian the motive, is to become a prey to less scrupulous powers. For the present there are only two consistent attitudes in regard to this question. One is the attitude of the Quakers and followers of Tolstoy who are opposed to all violence, even in self-defence, and the other is the attitude of those who believe in adequate steps being taken for the safeguarding of national existence.

Press Comment.

DEFENDING THE DIPLOMATIST

The Canadian Gazette some time ago devoted an editorial to the discussion of the question of British diplomacy and the extent to which Canada's interests have or had not been sacrificed on the altar of Britain's individual "foreign policy."

It says in part:

The British diplomatist is the most patient of mortals. For years he has suffered abuse at the hands of every irresponsible Canadian after-dinner orator. The world has been again and again assured that the stupidity of the British diplomatist has brought Canada humiliating losses, especially at the hands of the smart gentlemen at Washington, and the full-blooded Canadian patriot has lost no opportunity of throwing mud at his venerable head.

And now we are getting the whole tale, or something like it, and, significant to relate, we are getting it from Canadian lips. We have before us the full text of the address of Mr. Justice Longley, delivered to the Canadian club of Halifax, on April 6th on "Has Britain sacrificed Canada's interests?" and we have also a synopsis of an article by Dr. McphaII, of McGill University, on the same theme. For two hours Judge Longley traced his way through successive negotiations from the time of the treaty of 1783 to the Alaskan award of 1903, and the conclusion he comes to is summed up as follows in his own words—"In none of these important treaties and arbitrations has incompetence been displayed by the Imperial authorities, nor is there a trace of a disposition to make Canadian interests subservient to the United States or any country whatsoever." It is well that this fact should be established by authoritative Canadians in Canadian hearing.

The three compacts which are chiefly in mind when British diplomacy is charged with neglect are the Ashburton treaty of 1842, the Oregon treaty of 1846 and the Alaskan Boundary award of 1903. As to the Ashburton treaty, Dr. Macphail flatly declares that England got for Canada "900 square miles of territory more than she was entitled to." Mr. Justice Longley declares it to be a cherished illusion that Canada could in any circumstances have secured the State of Maine and an all-British line for her railway from St John to Montreal. "The disputed territory in the Aroostook Valley amounted to 12,500 square miles of land, and if every foot of it had been given to New Brunswick the State of Maine would still have projected to almost as large an extent as at present." A compromise of some kind was essential if Canada was to be spared a war which would probably have ended her separate existence, and under that compromise 5,000 square miles were apportioned to Quebec and New Brunswick, although neither "had a just claim." If every acre she had sought had gone to New Brunswick, the Short Line would still have had to pass through the United States territory, many miles from the Canadian boundary.

We come next to the Oregon treaty of 1846. England, says Dr. Macphail, did not muddle here; the United States had rights, and by the Oregon award England prevented war and saved Canada. "Foolish and hot-headed persons," as Mr. Justice Longley calls them, demanded that the United States should insist upon the 54 deg. 40 min. line, which of course would have taken all the valuable part of British Columbia, including Vancouver Island. The cry was "Fifty-four or fight." Equally impetuous persons on the British side made equally preposterous demands. "The commissioners" says Mr. Justice Longley, "did the only rational thing—extended the boundary from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Ocean on the forty-ninth parallel."

Similarly in regard to the Alaskan boundary, Mr. Longley can find no single incident from beginning to end that justifies any charge that Great Britain sacrificed Canadian interests. "The whole weight and influence of her diplomacy was freely used to secure Canadian ends. The full conduct and control of the matter was unreservedly place in Canadian hands, and if the results were unsatisfactory no blame can be attached to any department in the Imperial cabinet." Mr. Justice Longley is whole hearted in his defence of Lord Alverstone, and in the main the Lord Chief Justice was unquestionably exact in his interpretation of the treaty and settlement rights of the United States to the posts of Dyea and Skagway. We have often deplored his readiness to yield Canadian interests in respect of two of the four islands, and we did so not because of their strategic or other value, but because of the apparent validity of Canada's claim to them and the suspicion that Lord Alverstone acted in this matter as a diplomatist rather than as the rigid judicial interpreter of treaties. His bona fides we never questioned, and we can appreciate the justice of Mr. Longley's criticism of those who have cast imputations upon the integrity of England's greatest jurist.

But, when all is said, it remains a gratifying fact that British diplomacy comes well out of the survey of the century and we believe that the Canadian people, with the facts fully before them, will agree with Mr Justice Longley that, while Canada should always be ready to uphold her rights firmly and tenaciously, it is unmanly and unworthy to seek to assuage national disappointments by unfounded imputations upon the intelligence and good faith of the Imperial government—of the British diplomatists but for whose foresight and zeal Canada would today possess no heritage at all.

SUCCESS OF COMMISSION

(Calgary Albertan)

The municipal system of the Des Moines government is fully explained and very heartily approved of in the current number of the World's Work, The Des Moines plan was copied after the Galveston plan. The late James Reilly made a very careful study of it and urged it very heartily upon the ratepayers of Calgary.

But forms of government differ from that in Calgary by having no city council at all. Whether or not that would be a change that would meet with the approval of the ratepayers of Calgary is somewhat doubtful, but there is another change which could be very well introduced here to a certain extent.

Instead of all the members of the commision being made responsible for all departments of government as is pretty much the case in Calgary the city's work is divided and every member of the commission has a definite job which he could not shift to another's shoulders, and which none of the others could interfere with. There is a fiction that there is a division of the different departments among the three commissioners in Calgary, but the division is not very well marked. The commissioners act together, and there is not a systematic division into departments. The business of the city would be expedited if there was a better division of labor for the commissioners. Organized as the commission is at present, it is surprising that the members of it get along so well together, without any deadlocks at all.

More than a year ago the citizens of Des Moines headed by a group of young business men, retired the professional politicians from their city government and placed all the power in the hands of five men along with a corresponding responsibility. This is the city governed by an elected commission—the Galveston plan. One of these men had been twice elected mayor under the old regime, the second had made a good record in the office of assessor; the third was a journeyman painter; the fourth had been a coal miner and a deputy sheriff. The fifth, the mayor, had been a real estate man and a police judge.

Instead of all five being made responsible for all departments of government, the city's work was divided and every member of the commission had a definite job which he could not shift to another's shoulders and which none of the others could interfere with. The essential feature of the new system was "centralization of power with a definite responsibility." As a check under the possible abuse of power, the people retained the right of initiative, referendum and recall—a right which they have not yet had occasion to exercise.

The concrete result of the first year's experiment, as expressed by the report of the city's auditor, is the saving of nearly $200,000 in municipal expense. Moreover, every department kept its expenses within the amount designated within the budget—and this is said to be the third time in the history of Des Moines that this has happened.

However, the citizens are not making any great ado over the $200,000 saved; indeed, they would not have made any outcry if the expenses had been that much in excess of those of the previous year. What pleases them most is the increase of efficiency, the elimination of graft, the pressure applied to contractors whose work fell short of the specifications. Des Moines is a cleaner, and brighter city to live and do one's work in—and this fact far outshadows the lesser fact that its government is at the same time cheaper. In fact, everywhere this Galveston plan has had a trial it has succeeded.

Heart Would Stop.

Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is apparent. There is only one cure, and that is

MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Try Them and Be Convinced.

Mr. Paul Poull, Cascapedia, Que. writes:—"About five years ago I gave up all hope of getting better of heart trouble. I would nearly choke, and then my heart would stop beating. I could not lie on my left side and became so nervous and weak I could not work. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before the first box was taken I was almost well, and the second box completed the cure. I have advised many others to try them, and they have all been cured of the same trouble. I have offered to pay for a box for anybody they do not cure."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Parliamentary Reflections

Ottawa, Sept. 11—It is semi officially intimated that the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Reid late member of the National Transcontinental commission, may not be filled unless and until some political exigency requires it. There are so many Grit politicians and members of parliament after the place that the government feels that little would be gained by placing one supporter in a good place and disappointing many others who may have equal claims for political preferment. If the commissioners had been chosen in the first place from the limited number of men fitted by learning and experience for building a railway through an unexplored wilderness across the continent, there would be few applicants for any vacancies and the candidates would not rely upon their political services. As it is however, no politician feels himself disqualified. He probably feels that he may know as much about civil engineering, bridge building, and construction work as did any of the present commissioners at the time of their appointment. Perhaps they might feel better qualified, in some respects, when they recall Mr. Parent's attempt to build the Quebec bridge.

There seems to be no reason why three N. T. R. commissioners cannot finish the work as well as four and perhaps no good reason could be given why it is necessary to retain any commissioners. The present board has no expert knowledge whatever and can only pay the contractors as recommended by their engineers. The contractors cannot possibly get any more money than the government can raise for them, and they are not likely to be satisfied with any less.

It must be said in defense of the commission, however, that the charge made so far against their management, has been somewhat vague and indifinite. The work is so gigantic and in its nature so technical that it would be difficult for the opposition to work up a complete case unless they succeeded in getting a number of men employed by the commission and by the various contractors all along the line. So far as the contracts go they are probably fair enough having been let by public tender, but the specifications are almost meaningless to a layman and their value as graft to the contractor depends entirely upon the capacity of the government engineers in charge of the work. Perhaps it was not possible to let contracts at so much a mile, but if this had been done the country would have soon known what the maximum cost of the road would be.

Here and there some light has been let in but the public still views the construction work upon the N. T. R. as through a glass dimly. Major Hodgins undoubtedly had some facts in his possession and had the commission supported instead of antagonizing him, a general housecleaning might have resulted. The Reynolds firm, sub-contractors near the junction of the N. T. R. and the T. & N. O., were disposed to give some information to the public in 1908, but in some way they were hushed up. There are rumors of waste and improvidence at certain points which comes mainly from sub-contractors and men employed on the work. For example at La Tuque, Quebec, land was purchased for a divisional point which turned out to be full of quick-sand and unfit for use. The commission, however, proceeded at once to expend enormous sums in driving piles, cutting ditches and building causeways. At Winnipeg there were some peculiar transactions involving the purchase of land for yards, shops, etc., which are about to be aired in the courts.

If the government were well advised it would risk exposure and reorganize the whole system. By appointing a competent commission and securing high class engineers many millions of dollars might yet be saved for the country. It appears, however, that an effort will be made to prolong the work in the old dilatory, expensive fashion until after the next elections. The Grand Trunk is not anxious to take over this white elephant of a road any sooner than necessary and it will suit the government just as well to have matters drag on indefinitely. The one thing it does not want is for the country to know just what the road has cost when fully completed from Winnipeg to Moncton.

As already pointed out, the road will be unfinished when completed between these points. The transcontinental railway must extend from sea to sea and it will not be completed until it has terminal facilities at St. John, N. B., Halifax and possibly Sydney. No one seriously contends that the Intercolonial is equipped for this purpose. On the contrary the government has already made surveys for a new line from Moncton to St. John and it will cost not less than $34,000,000 to give the R. T. R. proper terminal facilities at the latter place. The present route of the I. C. R. from Moncton to Halifax will not answer for a big transcontinental railway.

Those who have recently been there say that work is almost at a stand still on the Newmarket canal. It is hard to believe that the government seriously intends to finish this work. Capt. Sam Sharpe, Major J. A. Currie and Col. Sam Hughes, Tom Wallace and others deserve the thanks of the country for the stand they took at the last session in opposition to this work. When members representing constituencies in the immediate neighborhood of a public work in course of construction oppose its completion a strong argument to the people in other parts of the country is presented. If the work was of any practicl benefit such members could not and would not oppose it.

Of the big men contributed by the Conservatives of Ontario to the present parliament no one more naturally and easily took his place than Mr. T. W. Crothers, member for West Elgin. Mr. Crothers has a strong legal mind and possesses the power of statement in an eminent degree. He presented the indictment against Dr. Pugsley with telling effect and inveigled the minister into a tight place from which he was unable to extricate himself. Mr. Crothers quite artfully made his case from the newspaper reports disclaiming any knowledge of what the official record might show. Dr. Pugsley in answer read what suited him from the official record and insisted that by it he should be judged. He was mislead into believing that the opposition did not have a copy of this record and therefore displayed considerable bravado. As it turned out Mr. Crocket, M. P. for New York, New Brunswick, had a carbon copy of all the evidence taken before the commission and was able to worst Dr. Pugsley on his own ground and to overwhelm him with extracts taken from the official record. It was Mr. Crother's skill in not showing his full hand which prepared the way for Dr. Pugsley's undoing.

Another brilliant Conservative from Ontario is Mr. Middlebro who redeemed North Grey at the last election. He took a leading part in the debate upon the proposed loan of $10,000,000 to the Grand Trunk Pacific and was assigned to important work before the Public Accounts committee. Mr. Middlebro bears considerable resemblance in personal appearance to the minister of justice and compares favorably with him in point of intellect and legal ability. He always secured respectful attention from Sir Wilfrid and the members of the government and added greatly to the fighting strength of the opposition.

The government is inclined to postpone any tariff legislation until 1911. There seems little doubt but that the U. S. maximum tariff will be levied against Canada and there is a general feeling that the Canadian government ought to retaliate. Mr. Fielding and his colleagues, however, have "jollied" the people, especially from the west, so long and so often with their professions of free trade and low tariff, that they find themselves embarrassed by the recent legislation of the American congress. Moreover they so bungled their German surtax that not unnaturally they shrink from another tariff war. A tariff war like any other requires a campaign planned by experts and the present ministers of the crown have but a superficial knowledge of the laws of trade and the conditions of commerce. Increasing the rate levied upon imports may protect home industries but it decreases revenue. The one thing that this government just now cannot stand for is less money. The public debt is increasing every week and the big bills for the N. T. R. keep rolling in.

Life and Labor

PRINTERS ORGANIZE

The organization has recently been carried out through Mr. Ed. Stephenson, western organizer for the American Federation of Labor, of Medicine Hat Typographical Union, No. 451. A couple of weeks ago the charter was received from the headquarters of the International Typographical Union at Indianapolis, signed by the president, Jas. M. Lynch, and the secretary-treasurer, J. W. Hays.

The following is a list of charter members: W. Norman Smith, Wm. E. Campbell, Edward McB. Forbes, R. Collier, B. F. Watkins, Colin C. Lamb, S. McLaughlin, Wm. J. Freeman, and Byron W. Bellamy.

It is anticipated that the agreements will be submitted to the publishers towards the end of the month After these have been signed up the eight hour day will come into force and the union label will be used on all printing carried out by the Medicine Hat firms concerned.

At a meeting of the local union held in the Eagle's Hall on Wednesday the following permanent officers were elected:

President—Bro. Collier.
Vice-Pres.—Bro. McLaughlin.
Recording Secretary—Bro. Forbes.
Secretary-Treasurer—Bro. Bellamy.
Sergt-at-Arms—Bro. Lamb.

(Springfield Republican)

Tolpuddle is not to be found in most of the books of reference. It is a remote and obscure hamlet in the agricultural district of Southern England not far from the Channel. The present significance of the place might be over-emphasized but the truth is that the history of the modern labor movement can never be written with Tolpuddle ignored. It was the scene of a historic strike. More than three-quarters of a century ago, when the right of combination among wage earners was still unrecognized by English law and any concerted quitting of work for whatever purpose was a criminal conspiracy, six farm laborers in Tolpuddle formed a union to resist a proposed reduction in wages from seven to six shillings a week. The immortal six went on strike, carrying with them whomsoever they could among the peasantry, but their following was not numerous or powerful. Their audacity was quickly rewarded by arrest and prosecution for the crime of unlawfully administering secret oath," and they were sentenced to servitude for seven years in one of the penal colonies beyond the seas. After they had been transported a popular agitation arose against the severity of the punishment, and petitions in their favor were presented in the House of Commons. When three years of the sentence had elapsed, the government pardoned the culprits and brought them back to Tolpuddle at its own expense. The incident begins to loom up across the lengthening vista of time as a historic landmark in the history of the labor movement in English-speaking countries for the old common law of England concerning conspiracy has affected all of them in dealing with trade unionism and the right to strike. A movement to erect a memorial at Tolpuddle to the six farm laborers is making pregress and several meetings have been held in various parts of Dorset to aid in the raising of funds. The local politicians of all parties show hearty approval of this proposal to immortalize the Talpuddle strike and the sufferings of those humble pioneers of trade union ism, and all now rejoice because the right of collective bargaining has been firmly established in the United Kingdom. The Tolpuddle memorial fund has a treasurer at Dorchester, Eng., and douttless the plans that have been made will be carried out successfully.

Mr. T. W. Robertson, Elm Valley, Man., writes:—"I was taken very ill with diarrhoea, and tried everything I had ever heard of, as being good for it, but, without success until I was finally advised to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I was so weak and discouraged that I didn't expect to derive much benefit from it, but I am happy to say, that, after I had taken two doses I was greatly relieved, and a few more entirely cured me. I shall always be pleased to recommend your medicine to all sufferers and I consider myself fortunate to get such a marvelous relief after expecting to die."

We wish to warn the public against being imposed on by unscrupulous dealers who substitute the so-called "Strawberry Compounds" for Dr. Fowler's.

Grain Growers' Association and the Marketing of Wheat

The following letter from the secretary of the Manitoba Grain Growers association has been sent to all the members and a copy forwarded to the press with a request for publication:

Dear Sir,—

The situation regarding the marketing of grain at country points this season has taken a sharp turn. In recent years the grain dealers charged one cent commission on all track wheat and made a difference of from 8 to 10 cents per bushel between street and track. This season they are offering to handle track wheat without commission, and take street wheat into their elevators if sold to themselves at a margin of 1 cent, below Fort William, less freight from point of shipment.

The reason for this sudden and drastic change of front on their part is quite apparent. The Grain Growers' Grain company, which was organized some three years ago, has in that time handled upwards of fourteen million bushels of grain. Last year it became a strong factor in maintaining the price of wheat, and in this way became very obnoxious to the elevator interests. But what concerned them most is the fact that if the Farmers' Agency continues the same rapid progress for the next three years as it has done in the past, they will wholly regulate the marketing of grain, and be in a position to place our grain on European markets direct from the farm.

It was known by those who keep in touch with the grain situation that the United States grain inspectors associated with Peavey and Patten were for some years gradually getting control of the storage facilities of Western Canada. They were first introduced to us as the British American Elevator Co. The next move was to lease the C. N. R. terminals at Port Arthur. About the same time the Canadian, Imperial, International, North Star and others were being organized by capital supplied by the same interests. Eighteen months ago they secured control of the Winnipeg Elevator Co., and later the Dominion, the last falling into their hands being the Northern, the strongest company in the elevator business throughout the west. The same capitalists control the C. N. R. terminal elevators at Port Arthur by lease and own the Empire and Consolidated at Fort William. They are this season building two more terminal elevators at the Lake front and doubling the capacity of the Consolidated and Empire. It will thus be seen at a glance that all the terminal elevators, with the exception of the C. P. R., and all the interior elevators, with the exception of a very small number owned privately, are under U. S. control. In other words they are held by Patten and Peavey and their associates. There only remain those owned by the large milling companies. So that we are face to face with the stern fact that the large milling firms form the only barrier to complete control of our elevator system by the men who control the grain system of the United States.

Although the elevators owned by the large milling firms are not directly connected with the U. S. control, it is well known that the Ogilvie Milling Co. has been for years one of the worst of grain speculators. During the continuance of the famous "Patten Corner" the Daily Press at intervals gave lists of some of the associates of Mr. Patten who shared in his millions, and invariably E. W. Thomson, of the Ogilvie Milling Co., appeared in the lists. So it is apparent that no relief can be expected from that quarter.

Last fall the farmers sold them wheat at from 85 to 95 cents per bushel, but during the six months from Feburary to July the same wheat sold at from 25 to 30 cents more. This year they pursued the same tactics and sold a large portion of the crop in Liverpool in June and July. It is estimated that twenty million bushels were sold in Europe before the 1st of August. Now they are trying to get it at a price that will pet them at least ten cents per bushel.

There is some misapprehension in the minds of many as to the true character of the Grain Growers' Grain Co. Not a few farmers and most business men regard the company as being similar to any other commission firm, charging for services rendered with a view of earning dividends for its shareholders. This is an erroneous idea, and does not at all express the true purpose of the undertaking.

Some two or three years after organization of the Grain Growers' association, and when its members began to understand the system under which our grain was marketed, the leaders of this movement clearly saw that no modification of the "system"—which in its operation caused so much loss to the grain producer—by legislation or government regulation, would result in permanent benefit, the only effective remedy being to provide an agency through which our grain product could be marketed by ourselves, in this way cutting out all middlemen who do not render adequate service in the distribution. They therefore conceived the idea of establishing the Grain Growers' Grain Co., which in essence is the farmers themselves placing their grain direct with the consuming miller. This can only be done by charging a fixed rate per bushel for the service, and anything over actual cost of handling goes back to the producer either in the form of a dividend or in creating conditions for better and more economical handling of grain. This fact is clearly set forth by the experience of the company.

They made the same charge as the other dealers, and in two years they increased their capital by $80,000 out of earnings. The farmers who sent their grain to the company now own that money, while if they had patronized the regular dealers they would have nothing left of the one cent per bushel commission paid.

"The Grain Combine" clearly foresaw the disaster that would result to their business by a continuance of the Grain Growers' Grain Co., and the word has gone forth that their successful career must be checked by inducing farmers not to patronize their own agency. At every shipping point there are from two to eight elevator agents with instructions not to allow any grain to be shipped to the Grain Growers' Grain Co., or to any commission house not friendly to the combine. Any and every inducement will be offered farmers, and every kind of story told to divert their grain from their own company.

An instance came to my notice a few days ago when a farmer had two cars of wheat ready to ship to our company. One elevator man got after him and convinced him that the price he offered was better than could be paid by the G. G. G. Co., while as a matter of fact had he shipped to the Farmers' Co. he would have netted 2 cents per bushel more than he realized.

The farmer should remember that no one can handle his grain for nothing and that no one can handle it cheaper than we can ourselves, and that anything paid our company over cost of handling comes back to the farmer in some form or other.

HAVE OUR OWN TERMINALS

I want to especially press on the farmers the fact, that, if the Company this year does as good business as last, they will have capital enough out of earnings to build a terminal elevator of our own for next year's crop, if the government does not in the meantime come to our aid, and thus check the manipulation that is going on there under the present system. That would be a splendid achievement.—And The Farmers Can Do It Out Of The Savings Effected In Handling Their Own Grain Through Their Own Agency. The western farmers are paying "elevator interests" for handling their track wheat each year more than it would take to build terminals.

There is a special reason why the farmers should consign their grain to their own agency this year. As already stated, the Combine sold probably over twenty million bushels of Manitoba wheat before August 1st in Europe for October and November delivery on a basis of $1.08 to 31.11 Fort William. They then pounded the market till October wheat reached 95 cents. They are now paying around $1.00 in store Fort William for cash wheat, and are after the farmer to give him that wheat at that price to fill their sales. If he refuses to deal with them, but consigns his grain to his own agency, the combine has to come to them to get their wheat or forfeit their sales, and they will make them put up the price. You can readily see how much better the position of the farmers' agency, who has several hundred cars to sell and who knows the "game" can deal with those gentlemen than the individual farmer who has perhaps one or two cars, and who knows nothing of the "tricks of the trade."

I feel assured that did the farmers understand the situation they would not be misled by the wiles of the elevator interests. Refer from the combine is in sight if our people loyally support their own agency and strengthen their own organization.

The United Farmers can defeat any combination, Patten, Peavey and Ogilvie can put up against them. They have the wheat, they now have their own agency for marketing started on a successful business basis and only needs the support of the individual farmer in order to provide an avenue to export the grain independent of the "Grain Trust."

I would suggest that you get at once as many farmers as possible together and talk this matter over. Get enthusiastic in support of our movement and we will win out.

Creation of Land Values

Realty Monopoly the Mother of Monopolies

In the course of a speech at Edinburgh in defence of the budget proposals, Mr. Winston Churchill said:

It is quite true that the land monopoly exists, but it is by far the greatest of monopolies—it is a perpetual monopoly, and it is the mother of all the other forms of monopoly. It is quite true that unearned increments in land are not the only form of unearned and undeserved profit which individuals are able to secure; but it is the principal form of unearned increment which is derived from processes which are not merely not beneficial but which are positively detrimental to the general public. Land which is a necessity to human existence, which is the original source of all wealth, which is strictly limited in extent, which is fixed in geographical position—land, I say, differs from all other forms of property in these primary and fundamental conditions. Nothing is more amusing than to watch the efforts of our monopolist opponents to prove that other forms of property and increment are exactly the same and are similar in all respects to the unearned increment in land. They talk to us of the increased profits of a doctor or a lawyer from the growth of population in the towns in which they live. They talk to us of the profits of a railway through a greater degree of wealth and activity in the district through which it runs. They tell us of the profits which are derived from a rise in stocks and shares, and even of those which are sometimes derived from the sale of pictures and work of art and they ask us—as if it were the only complaint: "Ought not all these other forms to be taxed too?"

But see how misleading and false are these analogies. The windfalls which people with artistic gifts are able from time to time to derive from the sale of a picture—from a Vandyke or a Holbein—may here and there be very considerable. But pictures do not get a anybody's way. They do not lay a toll on anybody's labor; they do not touch enterprise and production at any point; they do not effect those creative processes upon which the material well-being of millions depends; and if a rise in stocks and shares confers profits on the fortunate holders far beyond what they expect or indeed deserved, nevertheless that profit has not been reaped by withholding from the community the land which it needs, but on the contrary, apart from mere gambling, it has been reaped by supplying the country with the capital without which it could not be carried on. If the railway makes greater profits, it is usually because it carries more goods and more passengers. If a doctor or lawyer enjoys a better practice, it is because the lawyer pleads more suits in the courts and more important suits. At every stage the doctor or the lawyer is giving service in return for his fee, and if the service is too poor or the fees are too high other doctors and other lawyers can come freely into competition. There is constant service, there is constant competition; there is no monopoly, there is no injury to the public interest, there is no impediment to the general progress.

Fancy comparing these healthy processes with the enrichment which comes to the landlord—who happens to own a plot of land on the outskirts or at the centre of one of our great cities, who watches the busy population around him making the city larger, richer, more convenient, more famous every day, and all the while sits still and does nothing. Roads are made, streets are made, railway services are improved, electric light turns night into day, electric trams glide swiftly to and fro, water is brought from reservoirs a hundred miles off in the mountains, and all the while the landlord sits still. Everyone of the improvements is effected by the labor and at the cost of other people. Many of the most important are effected at the cost of the municipality and the ratepayers. To not one of those improvements does the land monopolist contribute, and yet by everyone of them the value of his land is sensibly enhanced. He renders no service to the community, he contributes nothing to the general welfare; he contributes nothing even to the process from which his own enrichment is derived. If the land were occupied by shops or dwellings the municipality would at least secure the rates upon them in aid of the general fund, but the land may be unoccupied, undeveloped, it may be what is called "ripening"—ripening to the expense of the whole city, of the whole country, for the unearned increment of its owner. Roads, perhaps, have to be diverted to avoid this forbidden area. The merchant all fours with the profit gathered by to his work, have to make a detour or pay a tram fare to avoid it. The citizens are losing their chance of developing the land, the city is losing its rates, the state is losing its taxes, which would have accrued if the natural development had taken place; and that share has to be replaced at the expense of the other rate payers and taxpayers, and the nation as a whole is losing in the competition of the world—the hard and growing competition of the world—both in time and money. And all the while the land monopolist has only to sit still and watch complacently his property multiplying in value sometimes manifold without either effort or contribution on his part; and that is justice!

But let us follow the process a little further. The population of the city grows and grows still larger year by year, the congestion in the poorer quarters becomes acute, rents and rates rise hand in hand, and thousands of the families are crowded into one-room tenements. There are 120,000 persons living in one-room tenements in Glasgow alone at the present time. At last the land becomes ripe for sale—that means that the price is too tempting to be resisted any longer. And then, and not till then, it is sold by the yard or by the inch at ten times or twenty times, or even fifty times, its agricultural value, on which alone hitherto it has been rated for the public service. The greater the population around the land the land the greater the injury which they have sustained by its protracted denial, the more inconvenience which has been caused to everybody the more serious the loss in economic strength and activity, the larger will be the profit of the landlord when the sale is finally accomplished. In fact, you may say that the unearned increment on the land is on all fours with the profit gathered by one of those American speculators who engineer a corner in corn, or meat, or cotton, or some other vital commodity and that the unearned increment in land is reaped by the land monopolist in exact proportion, not to the service, but to the disservice done.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The Maple Creek Tennis club will send a team to this city next Saturday to meet our players in an all-day tournament. Medicine Hat was defeated in the tournament at the Creek on Labor Day, but the local players are hopeful of reversing the position here this week.

Baseball

The conclusion of the baseball season was celebrated in a fitting manner last Wednesday evening at the athletic park. The first of the series of events was a burlesque baseball game between the pennant winners, garbed in costumes which in themselves were a source of never ending amusement and a team of city players. At the conclusion of this exceedingly funny game, the boys gathered round their manager, and on behalf of the team Mr. Andrew Patterson presented Mr. Hamilton with a handsomely mounted elk's tooth watch charm, in a few words congratulating him on his admirable management of the team and success in carrying them through to victory. Thanking the donors for their gift Mr. Hamilton accorded all credit for the season's successes to the players themselves, of whom he spoke in very complimentary terms.

After an ovation by the spectators who gave three hearty cheers for the manager and team a number of athletic events were pulled off with the following results:

Throwing the baseball—1st Zwicker 2nd Wilson.

Medicine Hat's Victory a Popular One.

(Brandon Sun)

The baseball season is over. The Western Canada League's first schedule is finished. Medicine Hat has won the pennant. And everybody's satisfied—excepting Winnipeg. Winnipeg has always been a poor loser, and, in this respect, "the great city of the west" is getting no better fast.

Winnipeg's population exceeds that of all the other places in the league combined, and it would be much more becoming to Winnipeg to graciously accept defeat than, as the boys say, to be "hollering their heads off about losing."

Every game the Maroons lost during the season, the umpire stole from them, according to the Winnipeg papers. And now the umpires have stolen the pennant from Winnipeg.

The game is Himmell—when Winnipeg gets the short end of the score.

As a matter of fact the Maroons never had a look in at this Western Canada League pennant, and Winnipeg may well cut out the squeal at Medicine Hat winning.

The gas town won this pennant, and why? Because one William Hamilton, the season's manager for the Hat, knows more about the pastime than the "whole shoot" from Winnipeg to Edmonton. He knows baseball as no other player has known it who ever cavoorted on a western diamond. Hamilton is so much more acquainted with the game than all the others who were drawing salary here this season that at the beginning of the season or at any stage of the proceedings during the first month of the race, he could have taken any club in the league and won out with it.

Billy Hamilton is one baseball manager who has shown the west that this game can be played clean and decently, with quite as much success and more than the rough house variety of baseball will bring. Hamilton won the pennant for Medicine Hat, and he deserved to win it.

Moose Jaw, Regina and Lethbridge had more or less rowdy aggregations as contenders.

Calgary had an ordinary ball team.

Brandon and Edmonton had a couple of bunches that were dead ones.

Winnipeg had the money.

Medicine Hat had a nice, gentlemanly ball team that played each game every inch of the way—played to win, under the capable guidance of the first manager of more than ordinary ability ever seen here, and they won.

Didn't they deserve to win—and under the circumstances, will any true friend of the game begrudge them winning? Not one. No victory could have been more popular than Medicine Hat's.

With a view to making it appear that the umpires were partly to blame for the Maroons falling down, one of the Winnipeg papers quotes Charley Traeger, manager of the Brandons, as saying that there is some ground for the assertion. Now Charley Traeger has proved himself to be such an absolutely rotten judge of ball players this season that his opinion regarding umpires will not be taken seriously. Everybody that knows anything about the game knows that umpires are, perhaps, just as liable to make mistakes as players, but that they are quite as honest as the players. This complaint about crooked umpires gets very tiresome, and it will take more testimony than the institutions of the Winnipeg papers and Charley Traeger to convince the public that umpires are any more dishonest than players. Some umpires may be incompetent, but those who are crooked are decidedly few.

As Manager Traeger has expressed his views as to why Winnipeg did not win, just a word as to why Brandon made such a poor showing this season in the league race. The main cause was Manager Traeger's incompetency. He is a nice quiet fellow, and he had been a good ball player. But as a manager, Charley Traeger was a rank failure. He was a poor guesser and a worse general, he lacked the decision a baseball manager requires nowadays, and he fell down badly everywhere. The management erred in not canning Charles when he first showed his weakness, but like the other directors they waited, hoping in vain for better results, until it was too late to make a change. With players like Thompson, Stingle, Rogers, Heinrich, Woods, Earl, Stanley and Morrell, a team good enough to finish in the first division should have been built up by replacing the dead ones with better players. It often looked as if Joe Stingle could have rounded the crowd into shape, and perhaps he could have done so, but Manager Traeger failed miserably at the task.

Pennsylvania Ear Masseur.

Free Demonstrations in Medicine Hat

Mr. J. Noner, representing the Pennsylvania Ear Masseur, a modern invention for the treatment of deafness and ear diseases. The only rational and reasonably reliable instrument ever devised for the cure of deafness. Its basic principle is scientific and its mode of operation is by air compression under vibration. The vibratory air is forced in direct contact with the drum membrane and the paralyzed muscles and nerves of the ear are forced into action by a process that would be utterly impossible by any other mechanical device, and the treatment is so effective and sure in action that the paralyzed and damaged organs are worked upon by a powerful force which is harmless, absolutely painless and of lasting effect. No matter how thick the drum membrane may be or how securely the little bones of the ear have grown together this treatment draws them loose, vibrates them to flexibility, restores the drum membrane to tenacity and renders it sensitive to sound. Its action is scientific and its effect positive in each and every case.

The Pennsylvania Ear Masseur, while practically a new invention, has been used by some of the leading eastern specialists ever since it has been on the market, but not until recently has it been convenient to demonstrate it to the suffering individual patient direct. Some remarkable cures have been made and every well selected case can be cured by it. The arrangement is so complete that any one can use it and it will not require more than about five minutes each treatment, morning and evening for a few weeks or a few months until the worst cases will be cured. The machine can be run by compressed air, by water, hand power or any other power and requires no assistance. No matter how long you have been deaf, who has doctored you nor what treatment you have had, this masseur will cure you and cure you to stayed cured.

A free demonstration by Mr. J. L. Noner at Medicine Hat, Alta., Cosmopolitan Hotel, Saturday, Sept. 18th, One Day Only—will be given to all interested and those who call on him any time on above date. You take no risk and if you are not sufficiently convinced there is no harm done and no enemies made. Mr. Noner does not represent himself as a physician, nor does he come to sell these instruments direct, his desire is to demonstrate to you the great curative results of the Pennsylvania Ear Masseur, and if you are convinced after having received the demonstration, then he will receive your order, charging you a small deposit down to assure good faith, and the instrument can be shipped to you, to be paid for when received. The charges are reasonable.

Remember the date and tell your friends or any one you know who are suffering with any form of ear disease, ringing, roaring or noise in the ears, of this valuable demonstration.

Minors must be accompanied by parents, married ladies by their husbands.

First Ascent of Mount Robson

The Rev. Geo Kinney, a foundation member of the Alpine club of Canada has succeeded in climbing Mount Robson, the highest peak of the Rockies. Last week the Calgary members of the club presented Mr. Kinney with a purse containing $100 in token of their appreciation of the work he has done for Canadian mountaineering and the Alpine club. Some of the English party including Dr. Anderson and Mr. Amery of the London Times who came out for the annual camp at Lake O'Hara are at present engaged in an assault on Mt. Robson, though the lateness of the season makes the issue doubtful.

"I was never in any danger of actually starving to death," said the distinguished divine to an interviewer, "but for a couple of weeks the members of our party had no flour, bacon, beans or anything of that sort."

"What did you eat?"

"Gophers sometimes, birds and fish. We had got away from our base of supplies and—"

"How did the gophers taste?" asked the interested scribe.

"Like chicken, but they were mountain gophers. I have never yet had to try the prairie kind. They were good eating all right, but some Boston baked beans would have added mightily to their flavor."

Rev. Mr. Kinney met the Amery party of British explorers as he was coming out. They had an elaborate equipment, but he was not very sanguine of their being able to climb to the top of the mountain. Mr. Kinney has a collection of excellent photographs to substantiate his claims, so he cannot possibly be classed with Dr. Cook and the Mount McKinley episode.

"I arrived in Edmonton the same day as Lord Strathcona, but my only luggage was what I wore, and the least said about my personal appearance the better."

"You haven't a photograph of yourself in that raiment that you could lend us to make a cut from for pub—?"

S'sh! don't mention it. Even the navvies along the right-of-way from Yellowhead Pass, which I tramped to reach Edmonton, made jests, rude and uncouth, at my appearance, and mere memory of my garb was quite sufficient for me."

The following letter accompanied the presentation made to Mr. Kinney last week:

Calgary, Alta., Sept. 10, 1909.

Rev. Geo. B. Kinney,
City

My Dear Sir,—

Herewith I enclose check for $100, which amount your Alpine friends of the city of Calgary ask you to accept as a slight token of their appreciation of what you have done for the Alpine Club of Canada. Three years ago our institution started out a mere babe and has struggled manfully through its childhood years, but it remained for you by reason of your having captured Mount Robson to usher our club from a period of adolescence into the stature of full manhood, more recognized even than before throughout the Alpine world.

You have sacrificed much in time and also in money to accomplish the feat, and we know that you were actuated largely by genuine patriotism. Yours was the work and may we be permitted to assist thus slightly in financing. We will certainly consider it an honor to have this small part in your splendid undertaking.

Wishing you every success in your labors whither you are bound to enter upon them, I beg to remain on behalf of the Calgary members of the Alpine Club of Canada,

Sincerely yours,

P. D. McTAVISH.

An eastbound freight was slowing up east of Maple Creek when Mr. Walker who was engaged in breaking, jumped to the ground. He sustained a very violent shock resulting in the fracture of his right knee cap. Immediately Maple Creek was communicated with by telephone, but it was not until he reached Medicine Hat on No. 1 that the injured man received medical aid. It is not anticipated that any permanent disablement will result from the accident.

Mr. E. N. Barker, representative in Calgary of the Edmonton Saturday News, called at the Times office this morning. Mr. Barker was one of the earliest residents of Alberta. He was ranching in what is now the Cardston district prior to 1885, when he came to Medicine Hat to serve with the Rocky Mountain Rangers at the time of the rebellion. At that time there was not a shack to be seen between his home in the south west country and Medicine Hat. Medicine Hat was a camping ground for the troops who were a cosmopolitan aggregation—old American soldiers, cowboys, mounted police, and the regulars from Halifax. The latter were given the task of digging the trenches which may now be seen above the roundhouse, as training for the serious work of the field. But there was no fighting in this neighborhood, the scene of activities being further north. The troops stationed here were largely for the safeguarding of the C. P. R. bridges in order that there might be no danger of supplies for the west being cut off.

VOL. 7. No. 4. MEDICINE HAT, ALTA., CANADA, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1909 $1.50 PER ANNUM

Great Prosperity of South West Country

Wealthy Farmers Flock to Medicine Hat District

That upon the building up of a prosperous and contented farming community depends the future progress of Medicine Hat has at last gained recognition. That it is our destiny to be the centre of the greatest grain growing district in Southern Alberta a visit to the country at this season would convince the most skeptical. The splendid results obtained on all sides in all branches of farming, the confidence of the old-timers in the country's future, the verdict of the newcomers of agricultural experience, the rapid influx of settlers of a wealthy and desirable class, all point to the inevitable conclusion. There is work for the board of trade and for every public spirited citizen in bringing these facts home. In the past we have, perhaps, in our desire to bring to the attention of manufacturers to the vast natural resources of our own city, somewhat overlooked the agricultural possibilities. In consequence of this and of the location of the land office at Lethbridge, settlers have been attracted to that district first and the development of the best land has been neglected.

Recently a tour of that portion of the newly-settled territory was made by a representative of the Times, by a representative of the Ever where was encountered the spirit of optimism, the notable thing being that the farmers who know most about our climate and soil and have gone through similar conditions across the line, show the greatest confidence in our future.

North and west of Seven Persons almost all the settlement has taken place this year. Wide stretches of open prairie, which six months ago gave free range to the ranchers stock are becoming fenced up, and shacks and houses (the more substantial types of frame houses are quite common), and barns are arising with astonishing rapidity, here and there may be seen the tent of a homesteader who has just come on; many bachelors dwellings are closed while their owners are away threshing or in the states settling up their affairs and getting stock and implements ready for shipment across the line. And the value and nature of the stock and effects being brought into the district are an index to the type of new citizens whom Canada is gaining at Uncle Sam's expense. Last week two cars were brought in containing Percherons of a valuable class, and machinery and household effects. And these pioneers are well equipped with the comforts and luxuries of life. One noticeable thing is the number of pianos which constantly arrive for transportation across the prairie to the homes of the new settlers. Most of them have done well when they decided to sell out their American claims. And they will make good farmers and good citizens on Canadian soil.

One very remarkable thing was the ignorance of our city that many of the newcomers displaced. Lethbridge is well-known to them, and much of the business which should legitimately belong to Medicine Hat is going to our hustling rival to the south. There is absolutely no reason why this state of affairs should continue if only our citizens and our publicity department could become awakened to their opportunities.

The shabby treatment which we have received at the hands of the provincial government in the matter of telephones is responsible for more serious loss than is generally realized and if our member, the Hon. W. T. Finlay, had spent a little time among the farmers of his constituency he could not have displayed such a woeful ignorance of their needs as he did at a recent citizens' meeting. He would have found, as did the Times representative, that some interest has been taken in this matter. Even yet there are some who have been deluded into the belief that this line may be carried into their immediate territory during the present fall. No doubt much pressure has been brought to bear on Mr. Cushing by the Lethbridge members, but this does not exculpate our member from blame for the total failure to get in touch with the needs of the people he is supposed to represent. A few more cases of unfair discrimination by the Edmonton authorities will be sufficient to influence a widespread feeling of resentment both against the government and the cabinet minister who appears to exercise little or no influence with his colleagues in behalf of the just claims of his constituency.

Almost all of the new settlers have taken homesteads and pre-emptions, while many have brought scrip, thus securing for themselves a full section. Those who have followed the latter course is Robert Nicholson an old Ontario farmer who has just completed his first six months. He has erected good buildings on both his homestead and his scrip, sunk a well, and carried out a considerable amount of fencing and of breaking. He expects to get his first crop next year.

But while rapid development by energetic settlers is the feature of the country west of the Seven Persons trail and on towards Writing and Wrentham between the main and the south lines of the C. P. R., it is nearer home that the actual crop results of the present season are to be noted. The threshers have by no means completed their work, and in fact it will be quite late in the fall before some of the farmers can thresh out their grain. Everywhere stacks are to be seen, and old-timers and newcomers alike are enthusiastic in regard to the season's results. In some cases a shortage of money has prevented homesteaders from putting under cultivation as large a quantity of land as they would desire. But others have not been thus handicapped, and their returns have exceeded all expectations.

Of the farms visited probably the best results in proportion to the amount of land under cultivation were on the farm of Alfred Baker, 7 miles northwest of Seven Persons. Mr Baker came across the line a little over a year ago and purchased land at a beautiful spot in the Seven Persons creek valley. Following his usual method of scientific farming he placed under cultivation a large acreage, leaving the greater portion of this fallow during the present season. Thirty acres, however, were sown to wheat, twenty-five acres to oats and fifteen to barley. A garden patch of several acres was set apart for vegetables and the results obtained without irrigation were little short of phenomenal. "We never had anything to equal it in Dakota," was the comment on the harvest of the first season in Alberta. And on the newspaper man was shown a collection of vegetables grown upon land scientifically cultivated, without irrigation. Pumpkins, marrows, water melons, tomatoes, squash, sugar beets, manzolds, all were of remarkable proportions and the best quality. The potato crop was a large and profitable one. In fact, although many of the best, as the Times was informed, had been disposed of, an exhibit equal to anything shown at the recent fair could easily have been got together. Yet the seeding had been too late in the year for the best results to be obtained.

It is to be regretted that the time of holding our annual fair has proved such an inconvenient one for the farmers. Successful as it was in some respects the exhibition lost much in respect to both exhibits and attendance on this account. Had a later date been set, there would no doubt have been keener competition in every case, and the case of Mr. Baker is typical of many others.

Since he took over the section Mr Baker has planted a large number of trees which are all in a healthy condition, and in the course of one or two seasons the prospects are that he will have one of the finest orchards in the district. Every experiment made in fruit growing seems to prove successful, and, with proper attention given to this matter, there is no reason why Medicine Hat should not become in the near future, self-sustaining so far as fruit production is concerned. Mr. Baker has planted trees from the Indian Head station which will prove an effective windbreak.

At the government experimental station under the care of Mr. Littleford, six miles from the city over 3,000 trees have been planted, 1,500 during the present year. Russian poplar, maples, ash, willow, elm, are among the varieties and all of these are in a healthy condition. The same may be said of the fruit trees, of one, two, or three years' growth, to be seen in the 14 acres plantation. Among those who have followed Hawkeye Cheney and De Soto plums; Ostheim and Lutcon cherries and of apples, Duchess, Pattens's, Greening, Wismer's Dessert, Anisette Hibernal, Charlamoff, Blushed Colville, Wealthy, Simbrisk, Whitney crab and Transcendant crab. Many of these trees will bear fruit next season. This year it was found necessary to remove the blooms to prevent premature fruit bearing. Not a drop of water has been artificially applied since the station was founded.

Mr. Littleford has just harvested one of the best crops of oats since he came into the country 25 years ago. The average he estimates before threshing at 80 bushels to the acre. His wheat he anticipates will run from 35 to 40 bushels to the acre.

Close in to town Mr. John Evans has harvested one of the finest crops in the section, a reward he claims with justification, of the application of scientific principles combined with a wide experience, to the cultivation of the soil. Mr. Evans refers with pride to the change which by his own personal industry he has wrought on his property. When many years ago in the pioneer days he picked out a homestead in the present section his friends informed him that the land wouldn't grow anything, and thought his choice a huge joke. It "was good enough for him," however, and the results he has obtained have been ample justification of his decision. The wheat yield he estimates at 35 bushels to the acre or more and the oat crop at about 60 bushels; from a patch of 6 acres sowed to potatoes, over a thousand bushels. Onions, swedes and turnips are similarly good and the total returns from vegetables alone he puts at $200. From the whole crop he will realize to nothing considerably over $2,000—"Not bad" he remarked, "for the work of one man and team during six months."

Mr. Evans follows a system similar to what is known as the Campbell system of soil culture, though he disagrees with Professor Campbell in some details. He believes in breaking to a depth of 3 inches instead of 8 inches as recommended by the professor. He recommends sowing oats on the bald-headed prairie after the grass has been removed by burning or some other means and then plowing shallow. Mr. Evans values his land at $125 an acre. "That's what its worth to me anyway," he said. But he would not care to part with his homestead now upon any conditions.

Of most of the other farms visited it must be sufficient to state that the crops were uniformly good throughout. Mr. Thomas E. Corbett has 50 acres of winter wheat sown in the early part of august and in healthy condition. Po't Lymon has 10 acres and F. Letterer 10, also in good condition but by far the best is that of Chris Zimmerman, who has 30 acres sowed.

The Follis crop is perhaps the largest so far as acreage is concerned and the yield per acre is also very high. Nearly 100 acres of wheat averaged 37 bushels per acre, oats averaged over 60 bushels per acre.

Mr. Huber has a record crop of vegetables of every description.

Throwing Stones at a Moving Train

Walsh Boys Sent up for Trial on a Serious Charge

On Friday of last week a report was brought in to the mounted police detachment in this city to the effect that on the previous evening shots had been fired at No. 97 as it passed through Walsh. On Saturday morning Corporal Harper of Irvine arrested two youths, Leo St. Denis, aged 17, and Geo. Sept, Jr., aged 14, in connection with the alleged offence. In the afternoon of the same day Inspector Parker went down to Walsh by freight and the accused appeared before him, being remanded until Monday morning. Yesterday they were again brought before the magistrate. Both of the boys acknowledged that they had thrown stones at the passing train. They denied that they had used a rifle. A third boy, Max Buechler, who had been with them, testified he had seen companions in the act of throwing stones, but neither had firearms of any kind in his possession. Buechler owned a rifle, which he stated was in his own home at the time of the trouble.

On the evidence adduced St. Denis was committed for trial, and, not being forthcoming he will remain in the custody of the police. Sept was sent up for trial and released on bail.

As the offence is of a very serious nature, no other course than that taken by the magistrate was possible. The criminal code provides for a term of life imprisonment where it can be shown that an attempt has been made to injure any persons travelling on a moving train. The code also provides for a term of five years imprisonment for the offence of shooting or throwing any missile at an engine or other railroad vehicle.

Mounted Police

A sensational arrest was made in Irvine recently while Inspector Parker was down from this city putting the members of the detachment through the annual target practice. The inspector was approached by Mr. Jas. McCaslin who directed his attention to a horse which he (McCaslin) had owned a number of years ago. The mounted police immediately seized the animal, and after it had been traced back by bills of sale to six former owners, Geo. Mayberry who possessed no bill of sale, was reached. The police thereupon took him in charge. On the 17th inst. Mayberry was sent up for trial by Inspector Parker and released on bail. A sum of $5,000 was put up by the accused and two sureties of $2,500 were provided. C. F. Harris of Lethbridge appeared at the preliminary hearing as counsel for the defence.

NEW COAL TARIFF

As a result of the negotiations carried on by the executive of the Associated Boards of Trade of which Mr. John T. Hall of this city is secretary, a new coal tariff has been issued by the C. P. R. which is a substantial reduction upon former rates.

An examination of the tariff shows the advantage Medicine Hat possesses by reason of her close proximity to the coal mining centres than any of the other coal producing districts. rates from here are 30 cents to 75 cents per ton less than from Taber according to distance of haul, while we enjoy an advantage of 50 cents to 90 cents over Lethbridge. Corresponding advantages are assessed over other coal shipping points.

This should leave considerable scope for development of the coal mining industry at this point which the local dealers will doubtless take advantage of.

MAGRATH WILL COME WEST

Mr. C. A. Magrath, M.P., who has been spending a vacation with his family at Cacouan, 175 miles east of Quebec, expects to return home next month. He will probably be here about the 20th of October.

Sunday School Workers Meet

A meeting of the Sunday School workers of the city was held last evening in the basement of Central Methodist church to consider the advisability and practicability of taking a religious census of the city during the visit of the provincial secretary, Rev. G. B. Kenny. Mr. Kenny is to visit Medicine Hat, October 7th to 10th. Religious census are to be taken in other Alberta cities as follows:—Edmonton Sept. 22nd, Calgary Sept. 29th, Lethbridge October 6th. The desirability of having the information gathered in a religious census was very evident as it would be of great assistance to the pastors and to the Laymen's Missionary association as well as to the Sunday schools. The discrepancy between the attendance at the public schools and at the various Sunday schools was pointed out and the calculation made that it would be possible to increase the attendance at the latter from 44 to 50 per cent. if a thorough canvas of the city were made.

It was the unanimous opinion of those present that such census ought to be taken; but as the meeting was not representative of all the denominations it was decided to leave the final decision to a meeting which will be held on Sunday afternoon after the mass meeting of the W. C. T. U. In the meantime the secretary, Mr. J. Nott, was instructed to communicate with the various pastors and superintendents with a view to ascertaining how many workers for the taking of the census each church could supply.

The meeting on Sunday next will also decide what disposition shall be made of Mr. Kenny's time during his visit to the city. Delegates will probably be appointed to the provincial convention at Edmonton which will be held in the latter part of October.

Corner Stone Laying of Legislative Building

Elaborate arrangements are being made for the festivities which will mark the laying of the corner-stone of Alberta's Legislative Buildings on October 1st. His Excellency Lord Grey will officiate at the ceremony and he will be surrounded, in addition to his own immediate staff, by a brilliant assemblage of public men from all parts of Canada.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the members of his cabinet have been invited. Hon. Frank Oliver is already in Edmonton and will remain in the west until after the ceremony. The members of the Dominion senate and parliament have been invited to attend, as also Hon. David Laird, the first governor of the northwest and all governors and legislators of the various provinces, and unquestionably many will avail themselves of this occasion to visit the west during the golden autumn, the most enjoyable time of the year. His Excellency will arrive here on September 30th and that night the Thistle Rink will be the scene of a brilliant reception given by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Bulyea. The decorations on this occasion will even eucimass those at the Inaugural Ball, when a wealth of furs and flags and shields with grain and lights, transformed the big hall into a fairy scene.

The laying of the corner-stone will take place on the afternoon of the 1st. An escort of R. N. W. M. police and one hundred soldiers of the 101 Regiment will form a body guard for His Excellency, and in the big procession planned to pass through the gaily decorated streets, there will be men of the Alberta Mountee Rifles, the 101st Regiment, the Edmonton Cadets and thousands of school children.

It is expected that special excursions to the celebration will be planned from various points in the province upon all railways running into Edmonton.

LECTURER ON GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES COMING

Dr. James Samson, of Windsor, lecturer-in-chief on the government annuities act, begins this week at the head of the lakes, a tour across western Canada from Fort William to Victoria. He has recently returned from delivering a series of addresses in all the leading cities of the Atlantic provinces and the very flattering references in the eastern press to both the lecturer and his subject, give promise of an interesting evening to those who may listen to this eloquent representative of a great theme. Dr. Samson's address in this city will be held on Thursday, October 7th in the city hall to which all are invited and we hespeak for this gentleman who visits our city for the first time, a flattering reception. The meeting is called for 8 p.m. The chair will be occupied by Mayor Milne.

GENERAL SIR GEORGE FRENCH VISITS CITY

General Sir Geo. A. French, the first commissioner of the Royal North West Mounted Police, made a short stay in Medicine Hat last week while on his way to Banff. On Friday Inspector Parker being notified by wire that the veteran general would come into the city on No. 97, accordingly met the train. General French stayed over until No. 1. Captain Parker showing him round the city on Saturday morning. He was very pleased with our city which has made great progress since last he was in the west.

Seven Persons Man Makes Valuable Find

Considerable excitement prevails at Seven Persons over the discovery of an ore which appears to be particularly rich in lead. A sample of the ore mixed with a mineral which resembles silver, was obtained by The Times last week Mr. Bergeron, the postmaster of Seven Persons, who made the find, has sent a sample to Edmonton to be assayed. He states that the ore was found in the creek bed, but the location he will not disclose.

An old resident of the Seven Persons district states that some years ago a freight train containing valuable ores was wrecked in the vicinity and that he himself has a number of samples in his home.

LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT

A meeting of the committee having charge of the banquet in connection with the Laymen's Missionary Movement was held Friday evening in the Presbyterian church. Tuesday Nov. 2nd has been selected as a date for the banquet. Definite arrangements have not yet been made for the speakers, but these will be provided by the Canadian council which is sending a delegation of the best speakers in Canada to tour the country on behalf of the missionary cause. The following members of the local committee were in attendance at the meeting: Jas. Wilson, chairman; C. Sansom, secretary; Revs. Morrow, Farrell, Damm, Clarke and Messrs. Geo. Fischer, J. McNeely, N. Spencer, J. H. Collier and S. G. McCormick.

A committee composed of Jas Wilson, N. Spencer, H. W. Ireland and Geo. Fischer was appointed to arrange for the catering. The city hall will be utilized for the occasion if it can be secured.

The following representatives from the various churches, together with the pastors of the same, constituted the committee:

St. John's Presbyterian—Jas. Wilson, C. Pratt, H. H. Stewart, S. T. Hopper.

Century Methodist—N. Spencer, M. M. Downey, B. F. Souch, C. Wagstaff.

Baptist—N. M. Lean, Marshall, J. E. Miers, C. Sansom.

Knox—S. G. McCormick, J. McNeely, E. D. Bentley, J. Keating.

Anglican—J. H. Collier, H. W. Ireland, W. G. Rowe.

Evangelical—Geo. Fischer, C. Schneider, G. Damm, W. Wilhelm.

The following were appointed as an advertising committee:

C. Sansom, Rev. J. W. Morrow, E. D. Bentley, W. Wilhelm, J. H. Collier, M. M. Downey.

It was decided that the representatives from each church should constitute a canvassing committee for the sale of tickets in their respective churches.

C. Sansom was appointed to make arrangements for the musical part of the programme at the night of the banquet.

The committee will meet every Friday evening in the school room of the Presbyterian church.

FITZGERALD BEATS INDIAN

"Is this the finish," said Fitz as after having completed the fifteenth mile, he was being conducted away by his manager, Jimmy McEwan, and a crowd of jostling admirers. "I thought there was another lap. Accoose, the Indian, had gained considerably in the last three laps, but Fitzgerald was still a lap to the good and a few yards over, when he finished up at the tape.

Between five and six hundred spectators were in attendance and considerable disappointment was experienced by those who looked forward to see the famous English runner, Alf. Shrubb, in his favorite fifteen mile distance.

But the Englishman's leg has been in bad shape lately and he was in no condition for a fifteen-mile race. Shrubb gave an exhibition run of five miles and a half, and finished up in good form. His leg did not bother him either as was anticipated, so the English runner will have a work out on Monday, and if the trial is successful he will have a race with Fitzgerald, either in Calgary or Edmonton for a distance of twelve miles.

Shrubb did the first mile in 4.45 and the second was made in 10.08. The third mile was completed in 15.33 and the fourth in 20.46. It took 26.49 to do the fifth mile and he finished the remaining lap in good form. Fitz got the lead of Accoose at the start and kept it all the way except for the beginning of the second lap when he lost his shoe.

At the end of four miles Fitzgerald was about fifty yards ahead and at the end of five miles he had increased his lead from 80 to 100 yards.

The Calgary runner kept steadily on until he lapped Accoose at the end of the tenth mile, Fitzgerald finished up one lap and thirty yards ahead. The ten miles were done in 57 minutes and the fifteen mile distance was completed in 1.28.

The provincial convention of Saskatchewan and Alberta Women's Christian Temperance Union will be in session in the Methodist Church here from October 1st to 4th.

Convention speakers will include Mrs. C. Spafford of Victoria, provincial president of British Columbia, W. C. T. U.; and Mrs. S. C. McKinney, president of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

On Friday evening an attractive welcome service will be held, when greetings will be tendered the convention by Local Pres. Mayor Milne and the various city pastors. Short addresses by convention speakers will be given.

On Monday evening, October 4th, a Grand Gold Medal Contest will be held.

School Sports Will be Held on October 8th

Field Day for City Schools

Preparations are now being made for a field day of sports which promises to outclass anything of the kind ever held in this city. There will be in all about twenty-five events, the competitors being divided into junior and senior, with their events to run off simultaneously. Arrangements are also being made for exhibition games of basket ball and baseball. The boys can put up a pretty good class of ball, and the girls handle the basket ball in no slow fashion.

Mayor Milne and Mr. W. J. Brotherton, chairman of the school board, are donating trophies for the Junior and Senior championships in points, and many prizes are being donated by other interested citizens.

The pupils are taking a great interest in Field Day and one may see small boys in any back lane testing their running and jumping ability; while the larger boys are out with their vaulting poles, jumping all the clothes lines they can find. It is rumored that rumblings have been heard coming from the basements of some of the houses. And the wise ones explain that they are caused by the larger girls practicing up for the nail driving contest.

The council will be asked to grant the use of the baseball grounds for Friday afternoon, October 8th.

In the baseball class, strenuous practice has already commenced and a practice match was held Friday afternoon last between the Tigers and the White Sox. The line up was as follows:

Score—Tigers 6, White Sox 8.

The following events, subject to change, will be pulled off on Field Day:

Juniors—100 yard dash; 220 yard race; 440 yard race; standing broad jump; running broad jump; running broad-jump; running broad-jump; high-jump.

Seniors—Pole vault; 100 yard dash; 220 yard race; half-mile race; standing broad-jump, running broad jump running high-jump.

Boys ten and under—50 yard dash.

Girls ten and under—50 yard dash.

Boys ten and under—100 yard sack race.

Open Events—Nail driving contest for girls, ball throwing contest for boys.

High School—Putting the shot.

The public are cordially invited. Admission free.

Medicine Hat in Early Days and Now

The following interesting description of our city, past and present, appeared in the last issue of the Edmonton Saturday News. Mr. E. N. Barker, the Calgary representative of the Edmonton Saturday News, has been visiting the fairs of the province, and while in attendance at our splendid local exhibition took time to delve into our history. After describing the development of the country between Calgary and our city, and a passing reference to the Finlay bridge, Mr. Barker proceeds to say:

Medicine Hat is conspicuous for its lighting arrangements, for it draws its supply free gratis from the bowels of the earth and can afford to indulge in plenty of light and in plenty of heat in winter, at almost a nominal cost.

Reaching Medicine Hat makes us cast back many years, taking us to the year 1885, when the Reil Rebellion was on. In April of that year the Rocky Mountain Rangers were organized in Macleod by Mayor Stewart, of Pincher Creek, and rode through to Medicine Hat intending to go north to the seat of war, but were stopped at Medicine Hat. Then a regiment of foot soldiers arrived from Halifax a few days later, both parties camping out on the south side of the Saskatchewan, just west of town. A veritable sudden meeting of extremes.

Later the Halifax boys moved their camp onto the hill just overlooking the town and intrenched themselves, for though no active fighting was indulged in, in that neighborhood, no doubt the powers that had control over them thought it might be as well to educate the youth in all that appertains to military duties. The trenches cut by the Halifax boys can still be seen on the face of the hill behind the round house. It all looks peaceful and harmless now as there are brick houses and lumber houses, water works, cement sidewalks and all the frills of civilization upon the site of the old camp, most of the present population not being aware of this previous history.

Medicine Hat in those days just hugged the railroad or lay on the bottom from the railroad bridge up alongside the track, and did not go back very far east and not even a shanty had been built upon the hill. The Hat was one of the jumping-off places for Macleod or the ranching country south, provided the traveller did not prefer to go on up to Calgary and take the stage down. There was nothing in 1884 between Medicine Hat and Macleod but Fort Kip and a few gophers, an odd coyote or a jack-rabbit who might or might not be shot.

Whilst the rebellion was in motion the railroad was started west from Dunmore to Lethbridge and finished that fall, it being part of the work of the Rangers to patrol the country and see that stray Indians did not run off the contractors' outfits, so they were strung out in all directions with Medicine Hat for a base. But it was when in town that they made things lively, and as we look back, there is little doubt but that the citizens heaved many a sigh of relief as the main body of the wild and woolly westerners rode out of town on their way back to Macleod some sitting with their faces to their horses' tails, taking flying shots at the chimney pots, or making Rome howl with distinctly peculiar language picked up at round-up, in log shacks or in the course of a devil-me-care and heedless life, but they knew the life, the country and the Indians. They were not really so bad as they tried to make themselves out to be, though being a certain proportion of them, a draft of the forward and untamable spirits of the east, come on ahead of their fellows, and moulded with western flavor, their ebullient spirits would find an outlet on most occasions, and they only required comprehension. It was lucky in their sojurn that nothing serious happened. The nearest thing to a catastrophe, possibly, was that when two or three fresh spirits were taking a final drink in a house before leaving. One let his rifle off and the bullet went through the floor close to a sick woman who was in bed in the room above, and out through the roof. But a miss is as good as a mile and they were gay days. A weapon was a daily and nightly companion and was for use not ornament.

Comparing Medicine Hat of that day and Medicine Hat of this is two different worlds, for now we have a modern city, putting on comfortable style. It is well built, well cared for and well laid out, so has spread east and west as well as south. In old days there was nothing much east of the station but Cree camps and the yards did not take up nearly so much room. It is curious to note the crowds of young children of different age going to school in the morning, quite oblivious of the fact that they were not even thought of only a few years ago, when the country was raw and in the making and the older folks and many that have gone to their long home were walking about over the same ground with totally different ideas or thoughts in their heads, also quite oblivious of what was to come on after them and could not even guess at future developments. The Medicine Hat of '85 was a village, though one of the principal places of the west, and probably the largest in point of numbers of any place west of Moose Jaw. Calgary was just growing and Edmonton, we, of the south country seldom heard of. Walsh consisted of a telegraph station which was an old passenger car just dumped off on the side track and Irvine was a section house. Dunmore started as a few tents and the only other place of any dimensions was Maple Creek, which had some pretentions to civilization though not too many.

Now Dunmore has ceased to exist as a junction and Coleridge takes its place, and as we start west over the Crow's Nest road, we immediately begin to travel through fences and wheat fields.

There has been great development along this line lately even since January, 1909, the last time I was over this road. In 1887, after coming through seemingly endless miles across the plains from the east, for even Moose Jaw, Regina, etc., were only dots on the plains in those days and there was practically nothing to relieve the eye for hundred of miles at a time. I dropped off the train at Dunmore to go south and west, and as the train stopped and let me off with two trunks on the lonely board walks, with nothing in view on the horizon, people craned their necks out of the window wondering if I was a lunatic, or no doubt pitying me from the bottom of their heart for being left alone in the vastness to go apparently no whither I would. The only thing that approached it in sensation to them, would be to drop off an ocean liner into a small boat in mid-Atlantic.

Now we drop off and nobody wonders. They all know. The trip across the plains in old days was so lonesome that many, or probably most, that had landseekers' tickets, became so weary of everlasting grass that they kept right on to the coast and a good many of these drifted down to the States. But then Alberta was said to be a semi-arid desert, only fit for cattle, and settlers were not wanted.

New towns are struggling into being, vieing with each other, all expecting to be metropolises, no doubt, and in which some are destined to be disappointed.

ROCHESTER EXPECTS EASTERN PENNANT

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 23—Rochester's baseball public is planning an event in local baseball park here, October 2 at the baseball park here. The city expects the eastern league pennant. Whether or not that comes there is to be a field day in which the entire proceeds will go to the hustlers, or the Rochester ball team. The Rochester News Writers' club is directing the affair. The town is base ball crazy. Mayor Edgerton says the team, by keeping first place since May 6, has been a great advertisement to the city.

LONGBOAT A MERCHANT

While the professional running game appears to be at a standstill just now, Tom Longboat continues to gather in a little loose change each week by running exhibitions at some of the fall fairs. Last week he ran three exhibitions in New Ontario and on Tuesday was a big drawing card at Aylmer, where he ran against a relay of local runners.

Since Sol Mintz took charge of the big Indian he has ceased to hit the high spots, and is always in good condition to run a good race. Tom has become a wise old Owl and the pennies which come so easy are being stowed away for a rainy day. Tom's latest move is to build a general store on the reserve near Caledonia, and it will be opened in a few weeks. A competent manager will be placed and the sign will read "Tom Longboat's general store."

(Regina Leader)

Western Canada baseball clubs are beginning to sum up the situation and audit books in order to find out the financial condition of the different clubs in the league. The bright prospects in the beginning seemed to have been darkened through the summer for some reason or other, and many explanations are being made in order to place the blame where it rightly belongs. The general impression is that the money began to filter away when the teams east of Moose Jaw took the western trip or vice versa.

The management of the Regina team informed the Leader recently that at present it was impossible to state any figures definitely regarding the club's finances as the books were being audited by Mr Gamble, but there is a probability that as much as $2,000 was dropped during the latter part of the season. At any rate said the president, Mr. Acaster, money was lost as soon as the team took the western trip, as the great distance intervening between Calgary and Moose Jaw made travelling altogether too expensive. The number of miles covered by the Western Canada League was greater than some of the big leagues in the United States that were not paying any too well.

Notwithstanding considerable money has been dropped by the clubs in the west they do not seem to have lost the enthusiasm prevailing from the time of the league's inception. It being recognized now where the deficiency was and will be overcome another season by forming two leagues making the division at Moose Jaw. Already steps are being taken in that direction, and other cities in the two provinces are asking for admission in the league. Saskatoon and Prince Albert in this province and Portage la Prairie in Manitoba may be in line to support a professional ball team by next season. It is reported that Regina fans turned out in support of the ball team better than any other town or city in the west and though the pennant does not belong to the Boneplliers it is hoped that the season's experience will place the executive in a better position to finance next year's league sufficiently satisfactory to warrant the paying of a handsome dividend to stockholders. These at least are the bones and expectations of the club executive.

A baseball flirtation is going on at the present time. J. M. Lamb, president of the Winnipeg club, is acting in the role of coquette, and yesterday being a dark day, partiularly well fitted for a fanning bee, he broached the subject of a new league that would include clubs on both sides of the border line, says the Duluth Herald.

The new league would be an eight club affair, according to the tentative suggestion of Mr. Lamb. For instance, Mr. Lamb suggested that Winnipeg and Brandon might want to join with clubs on the other side of the line and he further suggested that Grand Forks, Fargo, Duluth and Superior, Eau Claire and Winona might complete the circuit.

It is further suggested that E. M. Kent, of Grand Forks, be made president of the new organization. This of course, is going rather far, when you consider that the directors of the Western Canada league do not meet until the first of next month, and that the suggestion has not even been put before that august body.

However, there is a quiet rumor that the western Canada league will not be composed of the same teams nextyear, if it is continued at all. None of the men behind the various clubs have squealed, for they are very good sportsmen, but just the same, if the remarks dropped by Mr. Lamb are indicative, these men will think twice before they go into the league again.

Those who remember the old Northern league are wondering just how the big jumps from this side of the line to the Canadian clubs would be brought about. Brandon and Winnipeg would have to draw very well to pay the heavy railroad fares.

As stated some time ago, the directors of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league will soon meet to take up the question of the finances of the new league. At that time some radical action may or may not be taken. It may be that the directors of the two leagues will get together and form a new league.

But anyway Coquette Lamb is talking quietly behind the fans and hinting that some of the clubs over the boundary line would sit up and listen to any suggestion that came from some of the club-owners of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league.—Moose Jaw News.

How Windy Won Out.

(By A. C. Hilliard in Outdoor Canada)

Windy the tramp sat on a bench in the park, meditating as to the manner of the suicide he was contemplating. He was wavering between poison and the river. The latter, perhaps, was easier and quicker, but there was that package of pills in his pocket. He had compounded them himself from a rat recipe, found in an old book. The ingredients cost him twenty cents, which would be wasted if he chose the river.

Then Windy looked up and saw that he had company. A man had taken possession of the other end of the bench, and was watching him closely.

"Are you Mr. Murdock," enquired the stranger.

Windy laughed. It was a long time since he had heard the name spoken. Everybody down in Murphy's Alley called him Windy.

"I guess that's my name," he answered. "Why?"

"Well I've been looking for you for three months. Got track of you a few days ago and been following you up ever since. What was your mother's name?"

"Kenwill; Mary Kenwill. Her folks turned her off for marrying father. She didn't live long."

"You haven't many friends, I suppose) Kind of alone in the world?"

Windy laughed, looked over himself then glancing at his companion, who was well dressed and sleek looking. The look and the laugh signified his answer.

The man moved up nearer to Windy taking a paper from his pocket.

"I guess I've got good news for you. Your mother's brother, Jim Kenwell, died six months ago. He left his money to charity, but his big house on the avenue he left to his nephew and namesake, James Kenwill Murdock. That's you! Now you come with me and we will have the papers all fixed up and signed. As soon as I get this affair off my hands, and the house in your possession, I get two hundred dollars for my trouble. So you see I'm glad to find you. Come on."

Windy followed the man mechanically and an hour later found himself looking stupidly at a legal looking paper, while his strance friend was trying to dismiss him politely.

"Now, Mr. Murdock"—how funny that sounded, "Mr. Murdock!—you can take possession any time. There isn't much furniture, for your uncle sold most of his stuff at auction and the house was shut up for several years. It's a pity he d dn't leave you a little money to keep up such an establishment. You can't sell it, either. You must keep it yourself or it goes to charity. Queer man, your uncle was!"

Windy gathered his wits together and tried to understand. Then he said good-day and walked out of the dingy law office with the paper clutched tightly; the paper that had changed him from Windy, the tramp, to Mr. James K. Murdock. He felt the jingling keys in his pocket—to be sure he was not going to wake up soon in Murphy's Alley. Then he strode on toward his avenue mansion.

He let himself in and went through the house. It was a regular swell place, but that's about all. There were some clothes and other things in the closets. A fine banjo on one of the shelves made him smile.

"It would be a pity for the owner of a place like this to go hungry," he soliloquized, as he rubbed up the instrument with his old sleeve. "A good beefsteak would be more to my taste now than music, and this will furnish several good meals. So here goes!"

He put on a suit of clothes, somewhat dusty and a trifle motheaten, but better than his own; not such a bad fit either. He and his uncle Jim must have been about the same size. With the banjo under his arm, he opened the big front door and went out on the avenue. When he returned two hours later, his face clean shaven and hair neatly trimmed, he would hardly have been recognized as the suicidal tramp of the park bench.

He slept soundly on the couch until near morning when he was rudely awakened. Something jumped from the couch and ran swiftly across the floor, some animal. He had no light except a candle he had brought in with him. With the aid of that and the electric light outside, he examined the room but found nothing. He must have been dreaming of the rats in Murphy's Alley. He lay awake till morning thinking of the strange thing which had befallen him. Only twenty-four hours ago, the old woman with whom he lodged had ordered him away from her house for making love to her niece, pretty Miller Kramer. He owed her for several weeks' lodging, too and she threatened to make trouble for him if he came near Murphy's Alley again. Now he was the owner of a mansion worth forty thousand dollars. If he could only sell it. But he couldn't do that, and an empty house was better than the park bench or the river.

Making search by daylight, he discovered an immense rat hole in the corner near the old lounge. It was not a dream of Murphy's Alley, but a reality of the avenue. Then he remembered those pills he had mixed so carefully for another purpose, and he put several of them in the hole. The next night his rest was not disturbed and it was a week or more before he had any more of the midnight visitors. He put in more pills and his troubles were over.

Then Windy did some thinking. The rat pills were the thing. The animals took them and disappeared and were never heard of. Why couldn't he make more of them and pass the good thing along—for a consideration? He looked ahead into the imaginary future and saw his fortune coming in the distance—a fortune from rat pills.

Filling several small boxes with them, he went to a bookstore were he occasionally did odd jobs. Only a few days before the office boy had come from a back room with an armful of books which he threw on a table in disgust.

"Darn the rats!" the boy exclaimed; "they've chewed all the books in that closet."

Windy—Mr. Murdock—called at the store and found the proprietor ready to buy anything that promised relief from the nuisance. He bought six boxes, and some of his neighbors took the rest. Then Mr. James K. Murdock made more pills and went to the different [illegible] city hiring boys as agents. Money poured into his pockets. Then he advertised and sent his pills all over the country while he himself sat in a back room of his avenue mansion making rat pills and taking in money.

Six months after leaving Murphy's Alley, Windy was back again, standing boldly at the door of Mother Kramer's tenement, as she scowled at him, with her hands on her hips.

"I'm doin' well enough. I've come back after Milly. She promised to wait for me."

"Indeed and you're too late! Milly is going to marry Tom Barry, the saloon keeper, and a fine thing it will be, for Tom's making money hand over fist."

"Well, indeed I won't marry Tom Barry," Milly put in indignantly. "I only said I might, if Windy didn't come back."

The old woman turned on her angrily.

"Sure you'll marry Tom! Didn't I promise you to him! And a fine house Tom's fixed up for you over the store. Of course you'll marry Tom!"

Turning to Windy, she said scornfully:

"What kind of a house would you have to take a wife to, I'd like to know?"

"A fine mansion on the avenue," he coolly responded. "I'll not take my wife over [illegible] but's sure! Come, Milly dear, get on your best dress while I go and find a carriage. Come, Mother Kramer, you must go to the minister's with us, then for a ride in the park and a supper in your niece's new house on the avenue."

Mother Kramer spluttered a bit, but she was dressed in her best when he came back, though she believed it all a joke until she actually set foot in the brown stone mansion.

The rat poison is still selling and some day there will be six ciphers to the right of Windy's bank account.

THE GIRL I LOVE

Andrew McPhee's big tent show, with a well balanced company, presenting upto date melodramas, opened their performance in Regina yesterday, and played to crowded house This is McPhee's annual tour and the people of the west are always satisfied that his shows are the best of their kind, and without a time of vulgarity. The bill last night was "The Girl I love," a thrilling melodrama in four acts.

The story was that of true love and self-sacrifice of heroic manhood and the just deserts that came to a deed dyed villain. The parts bring forth the emotional and realistic side of life, and each actor and actress was an artist in the execution of the story of love. The special favorities were Lorie Ransdall, Mille Le and Tena Downie, while the hero won the hearts of the audience and received liberal applause. The specialties and vaudeville were of the best and were presented between the acts. Some excellent juggling by a king in that line, and an acrobatic stunt of exceptional nature delighted the crowded tent and altogether the show was one of the best for the money, witnessed in the west.—Regina Leader.

This big show will exhibit in Medicine Hat on Friday and Saturday; they will also give a matinee on Saturday afternoon. Admission 25c. and 50c.

Can Do Her Own Work Now.
Doctor Said She Had Heart Trouble.
Weighed 125 Pounds. Now Weighs 185.

Mrs. M. McGann, Debec Junction, N.B., writes:—"I wish to tell you what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. Three years ago I was so run down I could not do my own work. I went to a doctor, and he told me I had heart trouble and that my nerves were all unstrung. I took his medicine, as he ordered me to do, but it did me no good. I then started to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and had only taken one box before I started to feel better so I continued their use until I had taken several boxes, and I am now strong and well, and able to do my own work. When I commenced taking your pills I weighed 125 pounds, and now weigh 185 and have given birth to a lovely daughter, which was a happy thing in the family. When I commenced taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I could not go upstairs without resting before I got to the top. I can now go up without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Seattle, September 24th—After exhaustive tests the electrical jury of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition conferred on A. Frederick Collins, inventor of wireless telephony, the gold medal, the highest award for wireless telephones, on commercial utility and technical superiority. The judges were: Prof. F. E. Johnston, Washington University; F. N. Turner of the U. S. Army amd Leopold Stocker, Electrical Engineer.

Among the group of mechanisms exhibited in the booth of the Collins Wireless Telephone Co., in the Manufacturers' building, is the most powerful wireless telephone transmitter in the world, with which the inventor made the first American long distance test, talking from Newark to Philadelphia. He is now in Seattle superintending plans for the establishing of the Collins system in the northwest.

Not only the judges but laymen have been keenly interested at the exposition by Collins' rotating oscillation arc, which makes wireless telephony possible, and is easily understandable because like most great inventions it is simplicity itself. With a direct-connected motor-generator, the arc and the auto-transformer, it is possible for the instruments to stand high potential strains, even up to 100,000 volts, in the transmission of articulate wireless messages.

At private tests made in the Edison laboratory, Boston, Mass., Dr. Bell a famous consulting electrical engineer, and Prof. Kennelly, head of the department of electrical engineering, at Harvard university, pronounced the Collins instruments superior to any, ever made and stated that, as they produced the spark that was as a continuous ribbon of light, were the only mechanisms which made wireless telephony possible. Scientific publications place Collins in the class with Morse, Bell and Marconi in furthering the progress of modern electrical science.

Governor Johnson of Minnesota died on Tuesday of last week. He was expected to have been the Democratic candidate for the presidency of the United States.

MAGISTRATE'S SKIN DISEASE CURED

Magistrate F. Rasmussen, of 211, Marquette Street, Montreal, writes to the Zam Buk Co. as follows:—
"Gentlemen,—For many years I was troubled with a serious eruption of the skin, which was not only unsightly, but at times very painful. I first tried various household remedies, but all these proved altogether useless.
"I then took medical advice. Not one, but several doctors in turn were consulted, but I was unable to get any permanent relief. Some time back I noticed a report from a Justice of the Peace who had been cured of a chronic skin-disease by Zam-Buk, and I determined to give this balm a trial.
"After a thoroughly fair test, I can say I am delighted with it. I have the best reasons for this conclusion; because, while everything else I tried salves, embrocations, washes, soaps, and doctors' preparations—failed absolutely to relieve my pain and rid me of my trouble, three boxes of Zam-Buk have worked a complete cure.
"In my opinion Zam-Buk should be even more widely known than it is, and I have no objection to you publishing this letter."
For eczema, eruptions, rashes, tetter, itch, ringworm, and similar skin diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, scalds, piles, abscesses, chronic sores, blood-poisoning, etc. All druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free for price from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

A British News Service

The proposal of Lord Northcliffe to organize a British news service is one which will be welcomed as a truly patriotic action. This successful journalist tells us that Canadian newspapers do not give enough prominence to European affairs; and that when the later are chronicled they are not set forth in their true light. All our old country news comes at present through United States sources, and this distinguished Britisher declares that it is decidedly colored before it reaches us.

Under these circumstances the establishment of an independent serv ce becomes a patriotic action of the highest type. Canada and Europe have drawn much closer together during the past decade and will continue to draw closer still as thousands from across the water become settlers in this new country. More news from the Old Land will mean a greater interest by these new settlers in Canadian journalism, and this interest will tend to Canadianize them. That the despatches will be the better for being uncolored, is axiomatic, and both Great Britain and Canada will be under a lasting obligation to the great journalist if results turn out as anticipated.

A simple but effective way by which to better advertise our city would be to label each gas light as "natural gas." Many a traveller passes through our city without learning that we have natural gas here. If, in the day time he probably fails to notice that the lights are lit. If at night, he fails to distinguish them from the manufactured gas lights. It would be decidedly to our advantage to acquaint as many travellers as possible of the fact that we burn natural gas.

This being a divisional point and all trains stop from 15 to 20 minutes, nearly every traveller steps from his car and stretches himself during the stay. This gives him an opportunity to observe the gas lights There should be something to call his attention to the fact that it is natural gas which is being burned. The most artistic way to do this would be to have the words "natural gas" printed on every globe, or a display board on the post would answer the purpose.

Of course the place where this would be most effective is the depot. But the C. P. R. knows the value of effective publicity and would probably not be hard to persuade to undertake such a scheme. Or the company might permit the city to do it and the end would be gained in this way. The suggestion will bear some thought, and if tried will undoubtedly result in much valuable publicity.

With Cook and Peary both on American soil, the North Pole controversy ought to be settled soon.

"Mr. Telford Not Consistent."

Under the above heading the Red Deer News criticizes the attitude of Mr. Telford who represents the Leduc constituency in the provincial legislature. Mr. Telford has gained considerable notoriety over his good roads proposition; but he will fail to arouse much enthusiasm for his scheme if he is as inconsistent as The News article maintains. As the question is much broader than appears on the surface, we quote the article in full:

Alberta has bituminous coal enough alone, according to the British scientists who recently visited the province, to last the entire Dominion for four thousand years. Then we have four thousand million tons of anthracite and many millions of tons of lignite. Altogether it is claimed we have over eighty-four thousand million tons of available coal in this province and the quantity grows every time scientists make an estimate. And yet these vast and priceless resources of ours have been ment to be exploited for the benefit handed over to the Dominion government of the other provinces. It does not seem just. We boast of our resources to the rest of the Dominion, and yet we relinquish our claim to them without a struggle. Mr. Telford, of Leduc, has a scheme on foot whereby the Dominion is to be asked to hand over two sections in each township to the province, the proceeds to be devoted to road building The scheme sounds very nice if it can be worked out. But Mr. Telford was reminded by the Edmonton Journal that he voted in favor of handing all our lands over to the Dominion, and was not entitled to any particular sympathy in this little scheme to advertize himself. Mr. Telford brazenly replied that he not only voted to give away all our lands, but would do so again. But this scheme was different. The News contends if we are entitled to a part we are entitled to the whole. It will be remembered the provincial government asked the Dominion for the funds derived from sales of school lands just before the last election, establishing the precedent that we were entitled to a part. The fact of the matter is the average member of the local parliament has taken the responsibility of citizenship too lightly and has handed over our magnificent resources for a mess of pottage, simply being a machine at the beck and call of a few men who are looked upon as superior beings. The fact that so many are taking kindly to Mr. Telford's scheme throughout the province is a healthy sign and shows that, taken outside the realm of politics, the people feel they have been unjustly deprived of their land and resources. We are pleased to see such prominent men as Mr. Telford and the members of the provincial government, by their action, concurring in this idea.

Press Comment.

A NEWSPAPER KING

(Monetary Times)

Lord Northcliffe, on tour in Canada, is attracting more attention than a vice-regal procession in India. He has a magnetic personality — men have always liked to know others who have grown from small beginnings. Lord Northcliffe started with a pair of cissors, a paste pot and brains. He could well have done without the first two. From publishing a little weekly, he has become a czar in his own circle, a king in the newspaper world and a serio-comic dictator to the British Empire. The journals he controls change their opinions as the weather vane its direction. Lord Northcliffe's newspaper padding is too thick for him to feel the gall-tipped arrows of competitors and critics. And anyway his wealth could easily "corner" gall. Wherever dollars can be made for the firm, Northcliffe's army wend their way. Whether this British peer realizes his responsibilities in helping to mould public opinion is doubtful. If he does so, the moulding is well balanced with thought of pounds, shillings and pence. He told us the other day that his papers are able to direct millions of British capital to this country. If Canada behaved as a good boy he would see what could be done for the lad, in a monetary way Canada, though, has already earned the respect of the British investor. Lord Northcliffe is a business man, not a philanthropist. He is not here simply to become sunburned. While speeding across the country enjoying a lunch counter sight-seeing snack, he is thinking hard in percentages.

FLOREAT ALBERTA

(Canadian Gazette)

"Americans" are given to boasting occasionally to back up their assertions with more than a mere flourish of words. One such w as Colonel Bell of Laramie, Wyomin . He sublimated Wyoming to so great a height that he wagered ten thousand dollars it would produce more oats than any correspondingly sized piece of ground in Canada, and if today he is no poorer a man (for he wisely backed out of his wager when he saw what was up against him), he is at least a wiser one. Across the forty-ninth parallel his challenge was eagerly taken up by Superintendent Fairfield, of the Southern Alberta Experimental Farm; and Colonel Bell after investigating possibilities in Southern Alberta, had reluctantly to admit that Wyoming stood not a chance of competing with this district.—Floreat Alberta!

THE PRIZE OF BRUTE FORCE

(Winnipeg Telegram

The scene reported from Lethbridge where some three hundred persons battled with one another to secure priority of title to lands which have been thrown open, recalls the astounding panorama which accompanied the opening of Indian territory by the United States.

There, it was a race for the land itself. The crazy crowd was held in line and prevented from crossing the boundary by soldiers until the hour had struck on which the reserve was legally open for settlement. At Lethbridge it was a rush on the land office, priority of filing giving priority of title, but, with that difference, the spectacle was similar in the two cases, a wild and furious struggle of a mob of people for the right to settle on and cultivate the land.

It may be gratifying to Canada in a sense that land which but a few years ago was delivered over to groundhogs and coyotes should now be subject of such eager competition. But the question remains whether a method of disposal which leads to such scenes is one which should be adopted by the government of a civilized people.

When land is opened for settlement which has an immediate, and a much greater prospective value, competition for the privilege of its occupancy and ownership there must be. But why should that competition be determined by brute force and physical endurance) If that is a working principle then prizefighters should be the largest land owners. Surely some saner, not to say more equitable, system of distribution might be devised.

Troubled for Years With CONSTIPATION.

Constipation or costiveness clogs the bowels, chokes up the natural outlet of impure matter, and retains in the system the poisonous effete waste products of nature, thereby causing Biliousness, Headache, Piles, etc. Avoid this serious trouble by the use of
MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS
They act on the bowels and promote their free and regular action, thus curing constipation and all the diseases which arise from it.
Mr. Henry Pearce, 49 Standish Ave., Owen Sound, Ont., writes:—"Having been troubled for years with constipation, and trying various so-called remedies, which did me no good, whatever, I was persuaded to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I have found them most beneficial; they are, indeed, a splendid pill, and I can heartily recommend them to all those who suffer from constipation."
Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. per vial, or 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by the manufacturers. The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Parliamentary Reflections.

We in Canada are in the habit of thinking that the conduct of our public business is superior to that in vogue in the United States. We hear, for instance, a great deal about the spoils system, and it is assumed that we are free from that evil. What we do not hear so much about is the steady reform of the civil service among our neighbors. A while ago the Canadian government, twenty years behind that of the United States, applied a measure of civil service reform to the inside service, that is, to a portion of that body of servants which is maintained in Ottawa. The outside service it has steadfastly refused to subject to this reform. Census employees belong to the class described as belonging to the outside service; probably the greatest number of them will be employed throughout the country as enumerators and other field workers, and the employment of most of these who will work at the capital will be of a temporary nature. Canada will take her census in 1910. The United States government has taken steps to place 3,000 temporary clerks who will be appointed in the census bureau under the system of competitive examinations, and as for the field staff, President Taft has issued instructions to the cabinet minister responsible that these men are not to take any part in politics, under pain of summary dismissal. The united State census of 1910 will be conducted as a scientific operation and will be kept as far away from party politics as the civil service commission and a very powerful president can manage between them.

In the first week of Sepeember the announcement went out from Washington that about three thousand clerks will be needed, that they would be appointed by competitive examinations, and that the date of the first examination would be on October 23rd. All appointments are to be by probation, and not one of these clerks will be eligible for transfer into the "classified service"—the term corresponds to the "inside service" in Ottawa. This last provision is important as residents of Ottawa well know; on the eve of civil service reform coming into force the Laurier government quietly transferred scores of "outside" employees to the "inside service," thus enabling political favorities to enter the service without the slightest test beyond that of political eligibility.

Imagine Sir Wilfrid Laurier writing to Mr. Sydney Fisher, the cabinet minister who has charge of the census, a letter such as President Taft wrote to the United States Minister of Commerce and Labor. The Toronto News printed the letter by Mr. Taft with the slight revision involved by the substitution of Canadian names and terms for American. Changed in that manner, the document wears a very startling appearance. Imagine Sir Wilfrid Laurier writing the following letter: "My Dear Mr. Fisher:—The taking of the census involves some 220 supervisors who, in turn, are to appoint many times that number of enumerators. The supervisors are given complete discretion in the selection of enumerators respectively to act under them. The success of the census will depend upon the efficiency and strict attention to duty of the supervisors and upon the intelligence of the enumerators and their faithful application to the business in hand.

"Generally, there is a supervisor for each house of commons constituency. It has been found to be the quickest and best means of selecting suitable supervisors to consult the members of parliament and senators as to competent candidates from their respective districts and States.

"This system can easily be perverted to political purposes if the supervisors are not forbidden to use it as an instrument for influencing provincial and dominion selections and party conventions in the interest of particular candidates or parties. It is not an unreasonable requirement that anyone who accepts an appointment as supervisor or as enumerator shall, during the term of his employment and service avoid an active part in politics.

"I therefore order that, in the preparation of regulations for the taking of the census, and the director of the census embody therein a provision that any supervisor or enumerator who uses his influence with his subordinates or colleagues to assist any party, or any candidate in a bye-election or general election or who takes part, other than by merely casting his vote, in politics, Dominion or Provincial, either by service on a political committee, by public addresses, by the solicitation of votes or otherwise, shall be at once dismissed from the service.

"I wish to make this regulation as broad as possible, and wish it enforced without exception. It is of the highest importance that the census should be taken by men having only the single purpose of reaching a just and right result, and that the large amount of money to be expended shall not be made to serve the political purposes of any one.

Very sincerely yours.

"Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture."

(Signed) Wilfrid Laurier.

It need only be added that President Taft wrote the foregoing letter to his Minister of Commerce and Labor, explicitly and emphatically ordering the field staff of the census to keep out of politics as long as they are working for the country.

QUEBEC AND THE CENSUS

One's confidence in the impartiality of the last Canadian census is rather shaken by some considerations which were brought forward by the Ottawa Citizen. That journal has been examining the returns for the last general election and arrives at some rather curious results. Everyone knows that after each census the representation in parliament is re-arranged, Quebec being the standard; the population of Quebec is divided by sixty-five and the resulting figure is the unit of representation by which the voting strength of the other provinces in Parliament is decided. Quebec being the source of strength of the Liberal government, it becomes the object of that government to get the last ounce of value out of the voting strength of that province. It has been the standing charge ever since the taking of the last census that the pains taken to make a good showing in the matter of population compared in a remarkable manner with the much more moderate zeal shown elsewhere. It is difficult of course to produce absolute proof in matters of that sort, but the figures adduced by the Citizen can only be regarded as confirmatory of the suspicion.

A total vote of 281,282 in Quebec returned 64 members to parliament. In Ontario a total vote of 462,560 returned only 85 members. In Nova Scotia a vote of over 111,000 was required to secure a representation of 18 members, while not a great deal more than twice that number in Quebec returned four times that number as many members. Thus the average number of votes per member stands thus:

Quebec—4,400.
Ontario—5,440.
Nova Scotia—5,400.
New Brunswick—5,800.
Prince Edward Island—5,120.
British Columbia—5,340.
Alberta—6,560.
Manitoba—6,800.
Saskatchewan—6,000.

It should be stated that the proportion of voters that went to the polls seems to be as high in Quebec as in Ontario, so that this singular discrepancy cannot be explained away by the theory that the French Canadians do not go to the polls as freely as their English speaking fellow Canadians.

Other curious figures brought out by the Citizen show that Winnipeg polled 17,453 votes and has one member in the house of commons as compared with the vote of 1,881 in Soulanges; that Halifax with a population fifteen times larger than Soulanges had only two members and that the largest vote polled in any Quebec constituency was slightly over 10,000. The smallest and practically the only small vote cast in any Ontario constituency, was over 2,700, or one-third greater than in Soulanges. In the matter of area we find large tracts in northern Ontario, such as Nipissing, being accorded only one member for over 8,500 votes cast.

CANADA'A CROP PROSPECTS

The census bureau has issued an estimate of crop conditions throughout Canada, dated September 12th. Its figures for the whole of Canada show for all wheat a yield of 16,700,000 bushels, and of spring wheat 151,686,800 bushels, being 25.22 and 21.39 bushels per acre respectively. The total yield is 168,386,000 bushels, or 21.78 bushels per acre, as against 124, 690,000 bushels at the same time last year. Oats with an average yield of 38.15 bushels per acre give an aggregate of 54,919,000 bushels, and barley, with an average of 30.55 bushels, gives an aggregate of 56,975,000 bushels. Other crops compared with last year show 8,184,000 bushels of peas against 7,667,000 bushels; beans, 1,311,000 against 1,282,000; buckwheat, 8,794,000 against 7,727,000; mixed grains 19,524,000 against 19,380,000; rye, 1,708,000 against 1,711,000 bushels; and hay and clover show 10,246,300 tons against 11,128,000 tons, all field crops except hay and clover show higher averages per acre than at the same date last year.

YELLOW LABOR ON THE G. T. R.

A development of the past week has been a demand by the Grand Trunk Pacific for the privilege of using Oriental labor on its mountain section through British Columbia. The demand first came through Mr. Collingwood Schrieber, government consulting engineer for the G. T. P., an old and confidential adviser of the government. He gave an interview this week in which he said: "The mountain section of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway will never be built, at least not until you are grayheaded unless the contractors are allowed to get in other than white laborers."

"The conditions in British Columbia as regards labor are particularly bad," continued Mr Schrieber. "The white men walking about the streets of the towns say they will not go on railway construction work. They say that it is too hard. Of course it is not as agreeable as city life, but if white men will not do it some one else will have to, as the work must be done. At present there are graded the first hundred miles from the Pacific west. The rails are arriving for this section now. The contractors have been over a year engaged on this first hundred miles. They are still some seven hundred and fifty miles of mountain construction to be accomplished. The contractors for the first section are Foley Welch and Stewart, a first-class firm. They have only been able to set a couple of thousand men for the work so far and they have obtained them only by payment of three dollars a day and board. This is more than the contractors can afford to pay for navvy work. There are still four contracts to be let for mountain work and in the course of the next two years there should be at least twenty-five thousand men on the work. With all the men required it would take four years to complete the mountain section from Wolfe Creek to Prince Rupert. Under the existing labor conditions in British Columbia goodness only knows how long it will take to complete the line."

Could not white men be brought in to this work? was asked.

"They could, and they have been but after arriving they leave the work and leave the company out of pocket for the cost of their passage money."

Mr. Scrieber added that on the prairies the demands for laborers by the farmers temporarily demoralized the construction gangs. The farmers are paying three and a half dollars a day for men, the railroad contractors cannot hold them. However this is only a temporary condition.

Immediately after the forgoing interview had appeared in Liberal newspapers Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson and Mr. Hays unexpectedly visited Ottawa and had a conference with Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The impression in the city among the Liberals as well as the Conservatives, was that part of their business was to press the request to which Mr. Schrieber had already given the seal of his approval. Indeed Mr. Hays all but admitted it.

On reaching Montreal Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson paid his compliments to the government for the botch it has made of the stretch of the transcontinental from Winnipeg to Superior Junction—the district where Major Hodgins charged graft prevailed. After speaking enthusiastically of the G. T. P. line west of Winnipeg he went on—"There is only one bitter taste left in my mouth," continued Sir Charles, "and that is the condition of the portion of the road which is under government contract, east of Winnipeg to Superior Junction. On our side we have built a magnificent road from Winnipeg west to Edmonton, and have also constructed the necessary line from the head of the Great Lakes to Superior Junction, where the G. T. P. joins the National Transcontinental—and a magnificent road it is.

"All these things we have done, fairly on time, and well completed. But on this essential stretch between Winnipeg and Superior Junction the contractors under the government, after some four and a half years, have merely completed a more or less unfinished 120 miles out of 245 miles of their contract.

"This failure to complete the work on time has been a great disappointment to me and the company," said Sir Charles "and I have no doubt it will be an equal disappointment to the Dominion government, as well as the people of Canada whose interests demand that this road should be completed without delay."

Asked as to when the Grand Trunk Pacific proper, that is the company constructed portion of the Transcontinental, would be completed, Sir Charles replied:

"Well I am afraid we shall be behind the date we hoped for. We shall however, have our portion of the complete long before the government end is done, and I hope that trains will be running through from the head of the lakes to Prince Rupert by the latter part of 1912, or the spring of the following year."

"And what about the government section?" was asked.

"Well I do not care to say much about that" replied Sir Charles. "We on the Grand Trunk Pacific have plenty to do to look after our own of the road. It looks as though it would be several years before the Quebec bridge would be rebuilt and of course the government section will not be complete until then, so there is little use discussing that matter at present."

This last remark is very significant It is an explicit statement that the Grand Trunk Pacific will decline to take over the bulk of the National Transcontinental until the Quebec Bridge is finished—that is, about 1916. The G. T. P. will be sending wheat eastwards for about seven years before the government line is working.

Bread for an Empire

Canada has the largest and fastest terminal elevators in the world.

That is a statement of fact that may be listed among the accomplishments of a young country in the first decade of the twentieth century, that is to be all our own.

Canadians may brush aside sentimental generalities now and give the world cold facts instead of platitudes.

In one single day the elevators at the head of Lake Superior can unload from miles and miles of freight cars enough wheat to feed a city of a hundred thousand inhabitants for an entire year.

These same vast terminals warehouses at Fort William and Port Arthur can pour streams of grain into the holds of waiting steamers so fast that their capacity is the only limit to be considered.

The farmers of the west can crowd their prairie elevators to the point of bursting, and trains can move eastward as fast as operating conditions on the transcontinental systems will permit, but even faster the big terminal elevators can unload and load again, accelerating the movement of the Canadian wheat crop to the seaboard and to Europe.

The demand for speed is ever increasing. One elevator of the latest type today can do the work of a dozen thirty years ago. Quick despatch is one of the economic features in marketing, for the bulk of the export crop must get down the lakes before December 10, when navigation becomes impossible. After that the all-rail haul is the only alternative, and that means loss to the farmers, and curtailment of the purchasing power of the west.

Canada today is beating the United States in the handling of grain, not only because of the improved waterways of the lower lakes and the splendid terminal facilities at Montreal, but also because there are high speed elevators at the head of the lakes. Fort William and Port Arthur are the greatest strategical points in the battle for the business of carrying the grain crop of North America to the seaboard.

From now on to the close of navigation the elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur can handle 1,200,000 bushels of grain daily.

The wheat crop for 1909 has been estimated at 168,000,000 bushels and on this calculation the elevators at the head of the lakes can handle every ounce that will not be retained in the west for domestic consumption and seeding purposes.

The elevators run to their full capacity and every day 30 trains of 40 cars each—big, modern capacity cars, are unloaded.

At Port Arthur and Fort William there is today a storage capacity of 27,720,000 bushels, or sufficient to store one-third of the export wheat crop of the western provinces for this season.

The house under construction for the Grand Trunk Pacific is the first unit of a 40,000,000 bushel plant.

Western terminal	760,000
Elevator A	1,250,000
Elevator B	500,000
Elevator C	1,300,000
Elevator D	3,000,000
Elevator E	2,000,000
Empire Elevator	1,750,000
Ogilvie elevator	1,250,000
Consolidated elevator	930,000
Addition to Consolidated	800,000
G. T. P. Elevator	3,000,000
Thunder Bay elevator	1,750,000
Canadian Northern	7,000,000
Muirhead & Black	400,000
Total	27,720,000

There are 25 steamers in the carrying trade between these ports and Montreal, and there are 25 times as many steamers at the ports as 25 years ago. The "Twin Cities" are the unchallenged Liverpool of the Canadian lakes—Toronto World.

BOWELL

We have the sad news of the death of Mr. Alex. Swanson, from typhoid fever, which took place at the Calgary hospital on the 23rd inst. Mr. Swanson proceeded to the C. P. R. canal at Gleichen, during the early part of August, where he had undertaken a contract for excavating, and it was while there that he took ill and was removed to Calgary hospital. We understand the funeral will take place from his old home in Manitoba, the body having been removed there for burial.

Mr. Swanson was well known and respected. His upright dealings, sterling qualities and courteous manner endeared him to us all. To his people we offer our condolence in their sad loss.

SEVEN PERSONS ITEMS

Miss Matte Nugent left for her home in Fargo, N. D., after a visit with her brother, Thomas, who lives north of town. She expressed herself as pleased with the country.

Mr. Jackson has completed his house on his homestead. A fresh coat of paint adds considerable to its appearance.

Mr. J. J. Nicholson finished his barn Saturday.

Mr. Stanford has commenced work on his house on section 1-12-7.

The excavation for the new hall and pool room is about completed. Messrs. McGuire and Adams have the contract for building.

A number of settlers arrived last week.

The Farmers' Store report a large increase of business.

Mr. Foster and wife were lucky enough to get their choice for scrip land during the opening of land south of here.

A large number of lots were sold last week.

The town was crowded with teams Saturday.

Messrs McGuire & Adams, carpenters, have so much work on hand that they will have to run two crews.

A harnessmaker's store will be opened in the near future.

Mr. Nicholas Lux, who has obtained a claim in the Seven Persons district, will go on his homestead next month.

Russell Dickinson of Pine Island, Minnesota, came into Seven Persons on Friday from Lethbridge, where he secured a homestead in one of the new townships to the south. He rode out to view his claim, 18 miles distant, on Saturday morning.

Nathan Bentley returned to Seven Persons on Friday.

Colin McAskile has sold a driver to Liveryman Macleod.

J. C. Macleod returned to town on Friday from his eastern tour. During the trip he took in the Toronto exposition, the London and Aylmer fairs and the Bothwell races. He also visited the Shepherd & Burns repository, the largest in Toronto, where he states, horses were selling at very reasonable figures. While thoroughly pleased with his tour through the east Mr. Macleod is still firm in his conviction that Seven Persons is the one place for him. There is considerable rivalry between Mr. Murray and himself as to who shall sink a new well. Each considers that the other has greater need of exercise than the other, and as Mr. Macleod has enjoyed such a long term as a member of the leisured class, a return to the strenuous life by the pick and spade route is considered the right thing.

Robt. Nicholson purchased a new set of harness on Friday and his turnout looks very nifty.

Todd Smith, Geo Johnson and R. Hamilton, have taken up land in the Seven Persons district. Todd Smith has secured the east half of section 5-12-7. Geo Johnson has taken the east half of 6-12-17 and Russell Hamilton the south east quarter of 1-12-8.

Robert Nicholson's well in the coulee has become famous. The neighbors make frequent use of the supply of water which they claim is the purest in the district. Mr. Nicholson has just completed his six months' residence on his scrip. He and Mrs. Nicholson have moved on to the homestead.

A pool room and dance hall, 22 feet by 40 feet is being built by Mr. Vosen. The opening is planned for Thanksgiving Day, when the first of the season's dances will be held.

Mrs. Butler went up to the Hat on Friday.

Chris. Zimmerman and Claude Edwards were in Medicine Hat on Saturday.

The first carload of coal is expected by Mr. Vosen today (Friday) or tomorrow. All the coal is spoken for.

Mrs. Vosen's father, Mr. August Lux of St. Paul was a visitor in town on Friday. Mr. Lux intends to invest in Seven Persons' lots.

There is a good opening for a hardware and machinery house.

Mr. Nesting is canvassing for customers to take 10 bushel lots of potatoes at 40c., a bushel.

J. Wf Brown had a windmill shipped in on Friday afternoon.

Colin McAskile and A. W. Butler expect to make a chicken-hunting expedition on the 1st of October.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Foster returned from Lethbridge on Wednesday night after filing in one of the newly opened townships. Mr. Foster has been busy of late shipping cattle.

Last Tuesday the first carload of grain ever shipped from Seven Persons, was sent east.

J. B. Baisbidge made the Lethbridge trip on Wednesday.

Constables Dixon and La Manze went south from the city on Friday to make investigations in connection with the cutting of Duncan and Tyrrell's fences. The police are determined to pue a stop to this kind of cowardly work.

Mr. Gearhart went east last week. He will return with his family and a carload of stock and effects.

FELMAN'S LAKE

Last Friday night the school house out at Felman's Lake was the scene of a very enjoyable social, given as a farewell in honor of Mr. Sutton, the young Methodist student, who has for sometime past been preaching throughout the Felman's Lake district, and who is leaving this week to reattend college at Winnipeg where he will finish his course for the ministry. A mixed programme of recitations, readings, instrumental and vocal solos was provided and was very good indeed. Afterwards the fun-seeking crowd enjoyed a very delicious supper. About midnight the crowd began to break up and dispersed to their various homes. The evening was a great success, both financially and otherwise. The admittance was 25c. and 15c.

Had Stomach Cramps

Would Roll on the Floor in Agony.

Mr. Wm. Kranth, contractor and builder, Owen Sound, Ont., writes:—"Having read some of the testimonials of cures effected by Dr Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, I thought it advisable to say a word of praise for its merits.

Some years ago I was much troubled with stomach trouble and cramps. I used to roll on the floor in agony, and on one occasion I went into a faint after suffering intensely for four hours. A short time after this, in driving to town, I was attacked again and had to lie down in my rig, seeking relief.

"When I reached the drug store I asked the druggist for a quick remedy and laid behind the counter until relief came. The remedy I received from the druggist was Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Whenever, after that time, I felt cramps coming on, I found speedy relief in the above mentioned remedy, and I am now cured of this dreadful malady. The bottle is small, but its contents effect a marvelous cure. I can recommend it highly for the cure of cramps."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for 64 years. It is not a new and untried remedy. Ask for it and insist on getting what you ask for. Refuse substitutes. They're dangerous.

Clever Lawyer Saved Prisoner

One of the most interesting trials that ever took place in any country was that of James Stevens, in the California courts for theft. The circumstances were as follows:

There were four prospectors in the Klondyke region when the gold fever there was at its height, among whom Stevens was one. They struck it rich, divided up, and started out for the United States. Just before leaving, Stevens got into a faro game and lost everything he had. Winter was coming on, and he bid fair to starve unless something was done hor him. So the other three agreed to pay him so much to guard their dust on the ship and pay his way home to San Francisco. They each had their share of dust and nuggets accurately weighed, and then put them into a common pile, pending of course, their reapportionment on reaching port.

This they placed in a strong box, which they nailed up and sealed carefully. It was Stevens' duty to watch this by day and sleep by it by night until the destination was reached. There was exactly six hundred pound avoirdupois of the gold, sworn to by a regular weigher. It was worth a great deal of money.

Well, everything went along smooth until San Francisco was reached. Stevens' seeming to appreciate what his partners had done for him, and guarded his trust jealously. When the ship came into port the box was immediately removed, under the supervision of Stevens, to a place for reweighing, so that each could take his share again and deduct so much for Steven's pay.

It was found that instead of having six hundred pounds of gold as before, there was now only a fraction over five hundred and ninety-eight pounds. The partners were loath to distrust Stevens, and so had it reweighed twice; but with the same result each time.

Reassured as they were of his guilt and having contempt for such ingratitude, they immediately swore out a warrant for his arrest. He all the time protested his innocence; but was unable to account for the loss.

The poor fellow was thrown into prison and held for trial. Not having any money or friends, he gave up all hope of being acquitted, as the circumstantial evidence seemed absolutely against him. A young lawyer was appointed by the court to defend him. This young man, T. Wayne by name, set to work on the seemingly hopeless job with great enthusiasm, as he had few clients, anyhow, and plenty of time.

The case was soon called and all the circumstantial evidence set forth. Wayne did not question a witness.

When all the testimony was in, Wayne requested the judge to allow him to qualify Samuel Johnson, a teacher of physics in a High School as an expert witness. The judge, not seeing any relation of physics to the theft was about to refuse the young man, when a peculiar glimmer in the latter's eye persuaded him to humor the boy. Johnson was placed on the stand, and the following colloquy ensued;

"With what does physics deal?"

"With natural phenomena, or the changes in the state and condition of matter."

"Does the weight of a person change as he changes his location on the earth?"

"Yes."

"Just how does that happen, and how much does the weight change?"

"The weight of any body is greatest at the poles of the earth, as they are the nearest points to the centre. It gets less and less the farther we travel towards the equator; for we go away from the centre. This effect is enhanced by the rotation of the earth, bodies tending to fly off more at the equator than at the poles. The combination of these two makes a body weigh one two-hundred-and-eighty-ninth less at the equator than at the poles, and a proportionate amount for distances between."

"About what fraction of its weight would a body lose in going from Cape Nome, Alaska, to San Francisco?"

"I should say about one in three hundred."

"Then gold weighing six hundred pounds in Nome could not possibly weigh over five hundred and ninety-eight pounds here, could it?"

"It could not."

It is needless to say that Stevens was acquitted on this evidence. His former partners were so sorry for their recent suspicion, and so eager to make amends, that they not only paid him the salary they had promised, but set him up in business from their ample funds.

This fact is peculiar but perfectly in accord with reason. It is recognized by the United States government. Every time bullion is sent from Washington to the New Orleans mint a certain amount of weight is lost in the mere act of transit. So in order to get the same amount of metal in each coin compensating weights or those specially calibrated have to be used, or else special scales If the weights are made at Washington and sent to New Orleans, of course they will lose in weight, and will weigh true on a pair of balances but spring balances cannot be used.

Not long ago a bride and bridegroom from the country visited London during their honeymoon. Now, the young bride, as is usual at this period, thought her husband was the best looking man that ever lived. One night they started for the theatre, and as she clung fondly to his arm and gazed up into his good-looking face while they walked along the cabman began plying for hire.

"Hansom?" shouted the nearest cabby.

The bride smiled at her husband.

"Hansom, lady?" sang out the next one seductively.

She smiled at the cabby until he thought he had found a fare.

"Hansom?" he said, appealing to her directly.

She looked again at her husband and then at the cabby.

"Of course he is," she replied; and clutching his arm conclusively she exclaimed: "Oh, George, dear, isn't it lovely to be so handsome that even men in the streets pay tribute to your beauty; and you my husband, too. Oh George!"

And George said not a word to enlighten her.

Which remind us of the story of the touring company which had been doing very bad business in "the smalls."

While the proprietor and sole responsible manager was standing outside the temporary theatre (the Corn Exchange), a very small boy with a very large melon arrived and proposed to barter the fruit for a seat in the gallery. The bargain was duly concluded, and the scene now changes to the interior of the theatre after the performance:

"Boy" says the manager severely, "that melon was rotten."

"That's all right," returns the youthful critic, "so was yer show."

The department of agriculture of Saskatchewan has issued a circular calling attention to the serious shortage of coal supplies, and urging householders to lay in early supplies in order that a coal famine may be averted.

About forty lives were lost and millions of dollars worth of property destroyed by a hurricane and floods in the southern states last week.

Dr. James Samson of Windsor, Ontario, Chief Lecturer of the Government Annuities Act, has just commenced a tour of the western provinces and will include Medicine Hat in the thirty important towns and cities he hopes to visit between Fort William and Victoria. He has spent the past two months in the provinces on the Atlantic end of the Dominion, where he has enjoyed an enthusiastic reception from the press and people.

Canadians everywhere, will be interested in a discussion of this important measure and its merits, compared with those of a kindred character, adopted by other countries.

Dr. Samson is said to be one of the most popular speakers in his native province and we bespeak for him a kindly reception at the hands of our people. The government reports large sums pouring into the Annuities department from all parts of the dominion.

LOCAL PATRIOTISM

The Times commends the local patriotism of the Medicine Hat business men who threw into the waste-paper basket the circular received during the last week from the R. B. Henderson Co. referring to mail-order printing. The Times wanted to see this interesting piece of classic literature and enquired at several of the local stores. All the merchants had received it, but none could produce it as it had been consigned to the waste paper receptacle. Business men know that money kept in the city helps the city and only so far as the citizens generally take a leaf out of that book will the city make progress.

LARGE HATS EXPRESS RATES

A Toronto dispatch says that the express companies have again taken up the question of rates to be charges on millinery. It is claimed that the headgear this season is larger than last, and an effort is being made to have the charges regulated on a basis of size. A recent sample hat, shipped to the west, occupied more space in the express car than a piece of merchandise with an aggregate weight of 500 pounds. A case in which hats were shipped was considerable larger than an ordinary wash tub.

BIGGEST CROP KNOWN

Hon. W. T. Finlay, minister of agriculture, has returned from a week spent in touring the agriculture fairs in the province and sums up his observations of this year's harvest by saying that it is the "biggest and earliest that the province has ever known," says the Edmonton Bulletin.

"The spring was late" says Mr. Finlay to the Bulletin, "but as soon as it opened up there was a glorious spell of good weather and the grain did not have a day's set back from the time it sprouted until it was harvested. When the ripening stage approached the grain ripened quickly but there was sufficient moisture in the soil, due to the opportune rains, to have everything ripen well. In this respect Alberta and Saskatchewan seem to have been particularly favored."

The Council and the Alberta Clay Products Co.

At the regular meeting of the city council held in the city hall last evening there were present: the mayor, and Aldermen Robertson, McKay, Morrow, Spencer, Adsit, Howson, and Huckvale.

A communication was received from the sinking fund trustees, who reported the appointment of the mayor as chairman of the board. Two meetings had been held. At the second it was decided to deposit all monies under their care with the bank of Montreal. Meetings of the board will be held on the second and fourth Mondays in each month. The board recommends that the city's liability under the Workmen's Compensation act should be deposited to their credit on March 31, June 30, Sept. 30 and Dec. 31 of each year. Report adopted.

The Prince Albert board of trade wrote urging the Medicine Hat council to endorse a resolution in favor of the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway to be forwarded to the Dominion government. The writers regretted the childish attitude of the council which had ignored this important question, pointing out that the eastern interests were clamoring for the Georgian Bay and Welland canal schemes. Less than three-quarters of the cities of Western Canada had seen fit to endorse the Hudson Bay resolution which urged the construction of 165 miles of new road in 1910, 160 more from each end in 1911, and the completion of the line ready for operation by July 1, 1912. Ald. Morrow humorously suggested that letter be filed and discussion of the scheme reopened when the time for the next Dominion election drew near. On motion of Ald. Adsit and Howson the council endorsed the resolution.

In response to a request from Principal Sansom the use of the baseball park for the school sports on October 8th was granted.

In behalf of the Cypress Club, O. W. Kealy wrote asking that a better gas connection be made to the club buildings. Referred to the gas commissioners with power to act.

A communication in regard to the location of the isolation hospital, was read before the council. In this it was stated that the proposed site could not be used since a building erected there would be too close to other buildings. The matter was referred to the health and relief committee, to report as to a suitable site.

The City of Wainwright wrote acknowledging the arrival of the hook and ladder truck purchased by them from the Medicine Hat fire department, and stating that a cheque for $300, the cost of the appliances, had been forwarded to the secretary-treasurer.

O. Wl Kealy wrote that the lien registered by A. P. Burns against buildings in connection with the J. L. Peard contract, had been discharged.

J. T. Hall, as secretary of the Union of Alberta Municipalities, wrote advising the council that the convention had been postponed to Oct. 14 and 15, and asking that the annual fee be remitted. The mayor stated that considerable dissatisfaction had been expressed in regard to the high fee charged by the union—$10 for the first thousand population and $10 for each additional thousand. It was pointed out that the fees of the Calgary council alone were more than sufficient to pay the secretary's salary and as there was no litigation being carried on by the union it was difficult to see that any necessity existed for the accumulation of funds in the treasury. The matter will be brought up for discussion by the Medicine Hat delegates to the convention, Aldermen Morrow and Spencer and the secretary-treasurer.

A letter from W. H. Henderson & Co., who asked for remittance of $300, the cost of the half-yearly audit, was referred to the finance committee.

A request from W. T. Williams, who wrote in behalf of the provincial government asking for the construction of a sidewalk along the south side of the post office was filed. Ald. Howson stating that the work was already under way.

A letter from the Manitoba Ironworks Co., offering certain machinery to the city at a reduced price, was filed.

The finance committee, through its chairman, Ald. Spencer also recommended that a grant of $750 be made to the Agricultural society.

Ald. Spencer explained that the accounts of the gas and water departments had not been overdrawn as was at first believed. A sum which had been carried against the gas appropriation was found to be an inventory, and a similar mistake had been made in the water department. In the gas department also when the engineer was making up his estimates, a mistake of $1,000 was made in totalling up an itemized account of what he required for one year. The total which was four thousand and some odd dollars had thus been made to read over five thousand dollars. The other mistakes were easily understood in view of the frequent changes of the city treasurer during the past year.

The following report was also presented by Mr. Spencer, who moved its adoption. "We, your committee appointed to investigate the engineering department of our city, after careful consideration would recommend that the office of city engineer be abolished for the present, to take effect forthwith, W. P. Morrison, city engineer, to receive salary for the month of October." The report was signed by D. Milne, J. Howson, W. Huckvale and N. Spencer, Ald. Huckvale seconded Ald. Spencer's motion which was adopted, Ald. Adsit dissenting.

Ald Morrow brought up the question of improved lighting at the crossing. The matter was referred to the gas commissioners.

Ald. Robertson read a report of the fire, water and light committee recommending that an amendment to the building bylaw be made, to deal with the matter of fire scuttles. Ald. Robertson afterwards gave notice of introduction of a bylaw following the lines desired.

Ald. Howson moved that the secretary-treasurer be given the right to offer the property of such as are in areas with their taxes, whether municipal taxes or taxes for the school district. There was something like $16,000 owing to the city for these arrears, and a tax sale had never been held here before. Other cities followed this course and there was no reason why Medicine Hat should let its delinquents go free. Ald. Morrow reported in behalf of the gas commissioners in favor of granting the five cent rate to the Roseries.

Ald. Adsit enquired as to the construction of a sidewalk in the lane by the Alberta hotel. The matter was referred to the public works commissioners to report back to the council.

Some discussion took place on the question of the collection of arrears of income tax, in cases where assessment on property had exceeded assessment on income. The whole matter was referred to the finance committee to report back to the council. A special case was brought up by Ald. Morrow, who pointed out that Mrs. Twohey had been charged up with two years arrears on her husband's income. On motion of the council the money will be refunded.

The mayor then went on to discuss the relation of the city to the Alberta Clay Products Co., stating in opening that he had understood that the company's representatives would be present to discuss matters. Ald. Howson said he had been in conversation with Mr. Overpack, who stated that Mr. Campbell could not stay in the city later than Saturday. The mayor said that the company's representatives had distinctly stated that the site at Industrial Place was an unsuitable one, and quite unacceptable to them. They wished to locate on the flats, with the other conditions of the agreement as before. They also wanted to have the city's decision at once. The mayor had pointed out that nothing could be done within three or four weeks, as it would be necessary to refer to the people any new proposition. Mr. Campbell had said that it would be impossible for the company to wait. They had promised to be present at the council meeting. Ald Huckvale thought the company's representatives should at any rate have gone to the trouble of attending the council meeting to ask for the concessions they desired. The matter was here allowed to rest, no action being taken.

Mr. Hollingshead complained that he had called at the secretary-treasurer's office on several occasions to pay his gas bill, but had been informed by Mr. Perry that it was after hours and no money could be taken. Since then his gas had been turned off. As a railroad man who spent most of his time out of the city he objected to the treatment he had received. It was pointed out by the mayor and Alderman Spencer that after four o'clock the office is closed to enable the staff to carry out special work. If an exception were made in one case, it would soon be impossible to maintain the rule at all. Alderman Spencer promised to attend to Mr. Hollingshead's account, as the latter had to leave the city this morning. Mr. Perry pointed out that taxpayers could send their payment by mail if unable to visit the secretary-treasurer's office in person.

ALBERTA AMATEUR ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

A very important meeting of the board of governors of the Alberta Athletic Association was held in Edmonton last week with the following members present: M. S. McCarthy, Calgary, chairman; F. A. Walker, Fort Saskatchewan; W. A. Buchanan Lethbridge; J. W. Ward, Edmonton; and H. Ballantyne, Calgary.

In view of the recent agreement reached by the Canadian Athletic Union and the Athletic Federation of Canada, and the consequent new interpretation put upon the amateur definition the board have decided that all men in the province who have in the past year competed with or against professionals can apply for reinstatement and it will likely be granted, provided an affidavit is forthcoming with the application that they have received no money whatever in competition.

This will give an opportunity for some hockey, baseball and lacrosse players who took part in such games during the past year to get back but henceforth any such offence will be severely punished. It was also decided that men competing in unsanctioned meets should be suspended for thirty days. P. D. Gordon of Fort Saskatchewan is the first man to be punished under this rule.

Mounted Police

On Wednesday last Constable Dixon and Constable Reed arrested three Indians in the encampment on the Moccasin flats for drunkenness. The offenders—Sour Belly, and Jim and Mary Flyer to wit— appeared before Inspector Parker on the following morning, Sour Belly was given the alternative of a $10 fine or one month in the pen, this being the third time he has been up before the magistrate, and as the dough was not forthcoming the brave is now taking a vacation in Lethbridge. M. Flyer was fined $5, which was immediately paid, and Jim Flyer who has been up on three previous occasions was given one month without the option of a fine.

On the charge of supplying liquor to the Indians Jim the last named was sentenced to three months with hard labor, the two terms of imprisonment to run concurrently.

Young Men's Club

Organizes for Fall and Winter Work

At a meeting of the Young Men's Club on Thursday evening last Mr. M. A. Brown was appointed president in place of Mr. W. J. Dimmick who owing to pressure of other duties found it necessary to resign. Mr E. R. Muir who has been the treasurer for the past year becomes vice-president in place of E. R. Frost who has gone to Calgary. M. M. Downey takes the treasurership.

The club is getting into shape for an active autumn and winter's work. Mr. Woosey has been placed in charge of the rooms and will conduct the gymnasium classes. The classes are filling up and work will soon be under way again. Mr. Woosey has had much experience in drill and gymnasium work and holds the highest recommendations. Enquiry at the class rooms or a card dropped to Mr. A. G. Trotman, secretary of the club, will secure all information regarding the work.

The club is growing in interest and importance. The Men's Own Sunday morning, 10 o'clock class, is of increasing interest. Men's own meeting is also to be held every Sunday afternoon. The Mock Parliament, which had such a successful term last season is again talked of. An interesting series of lectures will also be arranged for.

The club's library is growing. The thanks of the club is due Mrs. Waldock for her generous contribution of books. These will at once be catalogued and made ready for circulation.

Application for membership may be made at the club's office any day. Classes will be formed at once.

Jas. M. Douglas of Strathcona was elected as the Liberal candidate for the commons, by a convention which met at Wetaskiwin. Thursday last. It took ten ballots to decide on a candidate.

The Young Mens' Club have arrang[illegible] for a lecture on "Imperialism" by HON. GEORGE E. FOSTER, Ex-Minister of Finance of Canada. The City Hall has been secured for next Friday evening, October 8th.

Rifle Association's Annual Meet

C. A. Krauss Carries off Grand Aggregate Prize

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week the ninth annual meet of the Medicine Hat Rifle Association was held at Police Point. The meet proved a thorough success. During the first two days the weather proved ideal, but Wednesday was very stormy, and the rifle men were severely handicapped by the fierce winds. The marksmanship was, nevertheless, of a high standard. Wednesday was Ladies' Day, and in spite of the inclement weather, the ladies were present in large numbers, and the splendid luncheon which they provided was fully appreciated by the marksmen after their hard morning's shooting.

There was a very close fight for the grand aggregate prize. In the first stage of the City Match, Krauss held the lead over Brown by 8 points In the Finlay match Brown gained a lead of 4. At the beginning of the last stage of the Militia match it was necessary for Krauss to make a gain of 2 in order to tie the score. He succeeded in gaining 7, thus winning the grand aggregate prize after one of the most closely fought contests in the history of the club.

J. Peard was able to get down to the range for the last day's shooting and carried off a prize in the Militia match and three prizes for the ladies. O. W. Kealy, who used to be one of the associations crack shots, took part in the shoot for the first time in six years. He carried off one of the prizes in the team matches, showing that in spite of his lack of training in recent years, he still retains some of his old-time form.

The City cup, awarded for the highest total in the first and second stages of the match, was won by C Krauss. D. Gue was a close competitor with Krauss and Brown for both Grand Aggregate and City cups and he made a good showing throughout.

Sewer Pipe Men in the City

Mr. John Campbell, president of the Alberta Clay Products Co., and Mr. Warren Overpack of the board of directors came into the city on Thursday last and have since been in negotiation with the council in regard to the location of the sewer pipe plant. Mr. Campbell was dissatisfied with the location as originally chosen and as defined in the city's agreement, on the grounds stated by Mr. Long during his visit earlier in the year. He desired to locate either on the flats or on the bench land. The city took the view that another plebiscite would be necessary before any such change could be made.

Mr. Campbell, however, said he was unable to stay in Medicine Hat longer than the end of this week, and as it would be necessary for him to pronounce on any site which might be chosen, the delay occasioned by a referendum would place the company in as bad a position for starting work as they were last fall. The company wished to break sod and proceed at once with construction and last night the position was that if the council and the company could not come to some satisfactory arrangement, the latter would probably build their plant at Coleridge where the clay is located. They would prefer however, to locate near the city, where the necessity for building houses for their workmen would not arise and where better conveniencies could be obtained.

A MISUNDERSTANDING

Interviewed this morning in regard to the non-appearance of the Alberta Clay Products Co. at last night's council meeting, Mr. Overpack stated that their absence was due to a misunderstanding. It seems that the company's representatives, not wishing to intrude on the council during the discussion of regular business requested Ald. Howson to send word by telephone to the Alberta Hotel when they were required. Mr. Campbell and Mr. Overpack spent the whole evening in the hotel waiting for the telephone message which never came. It was simply because they wished the council to have unfettered discussion that the company's representatives took the course they did. This morning the company had not come to any decision in regard to the location of their plant.

Maniac Makes Dash for Freedom

A Scotchman named McPhee, who has resided at Bow Island, was last week committed to confinement in Brandon asylum by a Lethbridge magistrate. McPhee, who is a violent maniac, was sent under escort of Sergt. Egan and Constable Sims. The policemen and their charge passed through Medicine Hat on Saturday evening. At the local depot the prisoner made a wild attempt to regain his liberty and for some moments the lives of himself and the policemen were endangered as he struggled to escape across the line.

A SAD ACCIDENT

Our readers will be sorry to learn of the sad accident which has befallen one of Medicine Hat's popular young men. Harry J. Rodd, while working about the couplings of a freight on which he was breaking at Langdon, had his left hand badly crushed, in the early hours of Saturday morning. He was at once removed to the Calgary hospital, where the hand was amputated at the wrist. This morning's reports are that although he is rather weak, he is doing well, and expects to return to the city in about a week's time.

Immense crowds of people from all over the province attended the ceremonies connected with the laying of the corner-stone of Alberta's Legislative buildings at Edmonton on Friday last. The stone was laid by Earl Grey, Governor-General of the Dominion.

The British government has taken over the Marconi wireless telegraph system in England. The company retains the long distance stations for its projected Trans-Atlantic service.

Sixty municipalities in Manitoba will vote on local option in December 21st.

Owing to the exceedingly dry fall and the consequent danger from prairie fires the department has thought it advisable to state that in addition to the special fire guardians appointed by the minister of agriculture the Prairie Fires Ordinance provides that all councillors of local improvements districts, justices of the peace, and all members of the Royal North West Mounted Police are fire guardians by virtue of their office and have the power to order out to fight fires "any grown up male person under sixty years of age (other than postmasters, railway station agents, members of the medical profession, telegraph operators, conductors, engineers, brakesmen, firemen, or trainmen) residing or then being within ten miles of a prairie fire or within fifteen miles of a bush fire to proceed at once to the locality of such fire and assist in extinguishing it; and any person neglecting or refusing without lawful excuse to obey any such order shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction thereof to a penalty not exceeding $5.00."

Women's Christian Temperance Union Meets in City

Large Attendance at Sixth Annul Convention

Inspiring Addresses on Progress of Movement

The Sixth Annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan opened in the Century Methodist Church on Friday morning. Owing to the late arrival of the train from the west, many delegates were unable to reach the city in time for the morning session and accordingly a meeting of the executive was held in the forenoon when the committees' for the following purposes were appointed: Plan of Work, Credentials, Courtesies.

Mrs. Knight, Wetaskiwin.
Mrs. Henry, Estevan.
Mrs. A. E. Jones, Milestone.

and many others who came in on the later days of the convention. In all there were about fifty delegates present.

The afternoon session opened with prayer and the reading of the scriptures, after which the convention extended courtesies to visitors. Mrs C Spofford, president of the British Columbia W. C. T. U., on being introduced to the gathering, expressed her sense of pleasure in being able to participate in the laying of the foundations of a movement destined to accomplish great things for the moral uplifting of our country. She admonished her co-workers in the great cause not to be discouraged by any apparent failures. The only real failure lay in neglecting of Christian duty. There could be no such thing as failure when men or women inspired by high purpose put forth every effort for the accomplishment of the objects they had in view. They must be satisfied to work on when progress might seem slow, confident in the ultimate triumph of righteousness. In closing, Mrs. Spofford expressed a desire to profit by the meetings of the convention and a hope that she might carry back many ideas for the furtherance of the movement in British Columbia.

Mrs. Boyd, a Saskatchewan visitor then spoke briefly in regard to the movement in the sister province.

In the absence of Mrs. T. Alexander of Moose Jaw the corresponding secretary Mrs. Burbeck presented a report on medical temperance. She deplored the prevalence today of the notion that alcohol is a medical necessity and spoke of the efforts being put forth to show that the idea was an entirely erroneous one. In response to an enquiry the speaker stated that pamphlets were distributed by the department giving safe home remedies for almost every ordinary disease.

Mrs. Taber of Regina reported on the work of the W. C. T. U. in regard to the suppression of the use of narcotics. A campaign was being waged against the cigarette habit and attention had also being given to the evil of patent medicines. The union had also taken steps to put an end to the sale of chocolates containing brandy. The speaker briefly outlined the law for the suppression of juvenile smoking passed by the dominion parliament in 1908. For selling cigarettes or cigarette papers to persons 16 years of age and under was liable to a fine of $10 for the first offence, $25 for a second and $100 for a third, and similar penalties were provided for the sale of tobacco in any other form to juveniles when there was reason to believe that the tobacco was for their own use. Any young person who purchased or had in his possession cigarettes or cigarette papers was liable to a reprimand for a first offence to a fine of $1 for a second and $4 for a third.

In the course of the discussion on this subject Mrs. Bell of Red Deer mentioned a case which had come under the notice of the local union. The police had stated that the law against the sale of cigarettes to juveniles was not yet upon the statute book and that therefore, although they were willing to take action, they were impotent in the matter. Mrs. McKinney believed that the average policeman would feel confident in prosecuting under the law.

The report presented by the corresponding secretary showed that the active members totalled 849. The honorary members (men) 155. There were 12 Loyal Temperance Legions with a total membership of 354. For the Canadian "White Ribbon Bulletin" the subscriptions were 139 in the two provinces. The total sum raised by local unions was $2,621.-82.

The report of the press work committee was then presented. The object of this department is to secure through the medium of the press, publicity for the activity of the union. Each local union had been urged to work up sentiment in favor of the movement by this means, for it was realized that through the aid of newspapers of our land some of the most effective advances might be made.

A delegate made the pertinent enquiry, "if the editor of the newspaper in your town wouldn't give you any space, what would you do about press work?" To which the president's reply was, "Be just as sweet as possible, just as good as possible, and next year he'll probably give you space." Mrs. McKenny then went on to refer to the difficulties and trials of newspaper men in a way which encouraged the belief that she had some knowledge of the matter from the inside, and when a Regina delegate expressed the opinion that perhaps the W. C. T. U. had not done its duty by the newspapers in taking advantage of their offers of space, the president remarked that probably the same was true of many other unions. "When an editor doesn't give you all the space you want" she went on, "don't under any circumstances get cross."

The report on the White Ribbon Bulletin, the journal of the W. C. T. U. was read by Mrs. McKinney, showing a moderately successful. Mrs. Spofford made a timely suggestion, to the effect that the annual subscription should be made to cover the cost of the periodical. This course had been adopted with great advantage in British Columbia, every member of the union thus being a subscriber to the paper. The question of the adoption of a similar system in the prairie provinces was referred to a committee.

At this point the Rev. Mr. Fortune secretary for the Alberta Temperance and Moral Reform league was invited to the platform and delivered a short address. Mr. Fortune referred to the intimate connection between the work of his organization and that of the W. C. T. U. Both strove towards the same goal, in the total suppression of the liquor traffic. The reverend gentleman went on to outline the work that had been accomplished in the prairie and coast provinces, remarking that British Columbia, today the wide-open province of Canada might yet lead the dominion in temperance legislation. We of the plains rejoiced in the advance of our neighbor towards a purer civilization but yet we did not wish to fall back into a second place. Saskatchewan was organizing for local option. In Alberta for the present little progress was being made in this direction; here the first step was to improve a cumbersome local option law. In the Mormon country—Magrath and Cardston—where prohibition now prevailed, the speaker had spent six days without seing a drunken man and on another occasion four days with a similar experience. The Mormon residents stated that not for 6 months had a drunken man been seen on the streets. While there was still doubtless some drinking going on in the prohibited area, Mr. Fortune was convinced that as much liquor was consumed in the Lethbridge House and another Lethbridge hotel in two days as in the whole of Magrath during a month's time.

Rifle

SMALL FIRE LAST THURSDAY

A fire broke out in Charles Whitson's stable on Balmoral street on Thursday last shortly after half-past one. A number of boys had been playing around the barn just prior to the outbreak, and it was most likely a lighted match carelessly thrown down which caused the fire.

Mr. Whitson telephoned the firehall from the Hartley Bottling works and then set to work, with others, to extinguish the flames. This was accomplished by means of a number of pails of water and when the firebays arrived on the scene they found that their services were unnecessary. The damage to the building was inconsiderable. A partition dividing the stalls was burnt out, but this was practically the only loss.

Thursday's fire was the first since the acquirement of the new fire team, which made a very good run Fire Chief Hatcher believes this will prove a very useful team. As yet they are rather young.

The Mission of Kitty Malone

It was the Tuesday before Thanksgiving Day.

"'Tis goin' out ye are, Kitty?"

There was nothing in the weak old voice to make Kitty start as she did. She hesitated in her task of pinning her rusty shawl round her thin shoulders.

"I was that same" she admitted cheerfully. "'Tis a beautiful day entirely. The—walk 'ud do, me good," she supplemented hastily.

"Faith, no doubt of that. Ye've been kep' in the house pretty close with that long pneumony of yours. Will ye be gone long alanna?"

There was apprehension in the look Mrs. Malone bent on the white head stooping towards the little sheet-iron stove. When she spoke it was in a manner at once airy and reassuring. "Sur, 'tis quite a step to market, Dennis. I think I'll be goin' to the farthest wan. They do be havin' things there more reasonable-like it," she paused, the thought of a sin to be confessed at her Christmas "duty" flashing across in her mind, "it's our Thanksgivin' dinner I'm goin' to—get!" she concluded.

"I wouldn't be after buyin' anythin' exthravagant, Kitty," counseled Dennis Malone. He sat huddled forward in the pitiful inertia of age and physical lassitude. "The docther and Medicines must have took a heap of our savin's. I—wouldn't buy what might be called luxuriant, so to spake."

"I won't, Dennis" promised Kitty. She was tying the plain little bonnet on her sleek old head. "You can thrust me for that!" she added with what seemed unnecessary fevor. "I—I won't."

She did not leave the room at once. She stood behind him, trembling, covering, irresolute, a queer agitation convulsing her worn and wrinkled countenance. She looked with blinking eyes at the stooped form in the rocker, then around the room—the barest, poorest, shabbiest, cleanest little room! The grime of a generation of objectionable tenants had been scrubbed out of the rough boards by Kitty's energetic hands. These same busy hands had polished the few chairs, and made shining the one small window, and kept immaculate the furnishings of the bed in the corner, and fashioned the bright patchwork spread thereon, and prepared the little luncheon—plain and meager enough for a convalescent—which was set forth on a little table drawn beside the old man's chair.

"It may happen," she declared, speaking hurriedly, as though the possibility had just occurred to her "that I mayn't be back for a—rale good bit, Dennis. 'Tis thinkin' I am of going over to see Nora, if 'twould be safe to lave you that long."

Then as she felt his eyes turn slowly in her direction with a sort of questioning surprise "I—I'm afther hearin' Mary Ellen ain't as well as she might be, an—"

"Not so, mention," Mrs. Malone hastened to assert. She was wishing she had not chosen his favorite grandchild to afflict. Only a little—a weeny bit quare-like." She picked up a basket near, and edged towards the door. There she paused gripping the basket until her knuckles showed white, a slow, distressed flush staining the pale saffron of her cheek. "So—you won't mind if I don't get home for a couple of hours—eh, Dennis?" She broke off. She was swallowing hard. Dennis looked up—met full the eager penetrating intensity of her gaze. He forced a valiant smile to his bloodless lips. His eyes narrowed into an expression of quizzical leniency. The unfailing courage of his race rang in the kind old voice.

"'Tis fine I'll be goin' on, plaze God. Do be steppin' along now, Kitty woman! Don't be afther givin' me airy a thought. Sur, the strength is comin' back in me to bate anythin' ye ever dreamed of. An' what with this illigant lunch—the bit o' bacon and the cheese, an' the crackers—not to talk of the tay on the stove ferninst me—why it's good enough for the President, Kitty. With the ould blanket on me shoulthers, an' all an' all, it's like I'll dhrop asleep after I've said my decade. I won't be looking for ye till past noon. Now don't stand thrifin' woman, dear. Gwan! But," his piping voice followed her out of the door, "I wouldn't be gettin' a—a luxuriant dinner, so to spake, Kitty!"

Mrs. Malone, skurrying along one of the poorer streets that lie south of Van Buren and east of Blue Island avenue, almost fell over the tattered figure of a boy who seemed to have sprung from the ground at her feet.

"Wisha, where are ye hurryin' to, Mrs. Malone? is it worse himself is?"

"No no, Patsy Heffernan. 'Tis—'tis goin' to my juty I am—"

"An' laving the church behind ye!" he cried incredulously. "Father Flynn ain't a-hearin' on the river, I'm thinkin'!" Patsy was a merciless inquisitor. Mrs. Malone withered under his frank doubt of her veracity.

St John's Church Anniversary

The anniversary services in connection with St. John's Presbyterian church were held on Sunday last. The Rev. J. Shortt of Calgary was the anniversary preacher, and attracted large audiences at both the morning and evening services. The morning anthem by the choir was "The Lord is my Shepherd" by MacFarren, which was well rendered and showed careful training. The text at the morning service was P.S 27,4: "One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to enquire in His temple." The speaker dwelt upon the way the writer of the text said he would like to dwell in the house of the Lord and how it meant that it was not in the church that the writer wanted to live, every day but by God's word, and also how the writer wished to enquire in the temple, meaning that he wished to do his duty in the church. Mr. Shortt went on to say how on the anniversary of our church we should realize more our duty towards God's church and we should also begin to awaken to the fact that we are not living by God's word nearly as much as we should. He spoke about the carelessness shown concerning children's attendance, and told of an illustration he had seen. The illustrator had a pile of nails on his desk and also a magnet. First of all he put the magnet against the tacks and great numbers clung to it, then secondly, he put the magnet against some larger nails and still numbers clung to it, but not so many as did with tacks; and he repeated this until he had come to the large spikes, and only one clung to the magnet. It is just the same with people clinging to religion. Children will cling much more easily than older people to religion. Mr. Shortt also spoke about understanding God; how that unless we go to Calvary with Christ we could not understand his love. He illustrated it by saying that we could pull up a blade of grass, and that although we know it grows from a seed, we could no more understand how it grows, than we understand God's ways. Mr. Shortt expressed his desire that we as a living community should try to awaken to our one great duty of life and not wait until the eleventh hour as so many do; that we might not let another anniversary come round without finding us a working community of people.

At the evening service the anthem "The radiant morn has passed away," which was well rendered. Miss Vere Maharg also sang "There is a green hill far away" which was noted for its clearness and distinctness. The text was I Cor. 15,11. "Therefore whether it were I or they, so we preach, and so ye believed." Mr. Shortt spoke of how Paul founded the first church in Corinth, referring to Paul's inference to the unity of the apostles' teaching. When Apollos took Paul's place (after Paul having been the minister at Corinth for 18 months) there arose among the people a small dispute as to which one of the apostles they liked best. Some liked Paul, others Apollos, and others Peter. Mr. Shortt spoke about ministers being the servants of Christ hence the text. Belief in God is the foundation of all true religion and how nature itself is evidence of God. Our souls cry unconciously after religion. The men who have done most for uplifting humanity have been religious men, e.g. Abraham, Luther, Lincoln or General Gordon. Mr. Shortt also spoke on sin and its remedy. How that although there are terrible sins we can through belief in Christ's words and teaching be cleansed from them all, no matter what they might be. He spoke on the teaching of Jesus Christ as the kernel of religion and how we should live up to our belief, e.g. how Paul before his conversion although he was very wicked still he lived up to the Jewish law in every way.

Mr. Shortt also gave a short address to the Sunday school in the afternoon, saying how he was very much pleased with the Sunday school and church. The Rev. Mr. Campbell of the Bible society also made a few remarks to the school.

A Boon to Mothers

WHEN CHILDREN ARE INJURED

Children are always sustaining cuts bruises, burns, etc., and not infrequently contract ringworm, scalp diseases and similar skin troubles at school. Mothers will find Zam-Buk without equal for all these accidents and diseases.

Mrs. Thomas Allen, 156, Water Street, St. Mary's (Ont.) says:—"My daughter Mildred, four years old, was severely burned by falling on a flat hot iron. She was burned on the heel, instep, and on the thigh very badly. I at once applied Zam-Buk, which eased the pain, and in the course of a few days the wounds were thoroughly healed."

Mrs. George Aldridge, 12 Louise street, Stratford, says:—"While playing barefooted about the yard my son Bertram, 6 years old, stepped on a broken glass bottle, which cut very deeply into his big toe. The cut was so deep that I sent for a doctor and had the foot properly dressed, the doctor leaving a lotion to be applied daily. Under this treatment, however, the wound seemed to get no better, but on the contrary inflamation set in. A kindly neighbor then recommended Zam-Buk, we obtained a supply, and after a few applications the child seemed to rest better, and the pain was very much reduced. In a few days under the Zam-Buk treatment, the wound assumed a better appearance, and from that time the healing was very rapid. Inflammation and soreness were finally and completely banished, and in ten days from the first application of Zam-Buk we took the bandages from the foot. I feel sure that but for Zam-Buk the child would have had a very bad time, and might have had to sacrifice the toe.

Not only for cuts, burns, brusies, etc., is Zam-Buk effective, but also for serious skin diseases such as eczema, ringworm, ulcers, etc. It also cures poisoned sores, chronic wounds, bad leg, piles, festering sores, frost bite and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere sell at 50c. a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co Toronto; 3 boxes for $1.25. You are warned against harmful imitations sometimes represented to be "just as good."

Mr. Fortune was emphatic in his repudiation of government control as a solution or as a step towards the solution of the liquor evil. If the government took over the traffic it would prove the most abominable source of graft in God's earth. Even today men were hired by the Alberta government as license inspectors, not on their merits but for purposes of patronage, and these men each drew twelve hundred dollars from our province. So long as the Grit or Tory parties treated these appointments as political jobs, so long at least would the province reek with corruption. That one man among the license inspectors was quite untrustworthy the speaker had not the slightest doubt. Mr. Fortune concluded by drawing the attention of his hearers to the official organ of the league "The Searchlight", and asking for support for this paper. Every person who paid one dollar or more to the league was entitled to the publication.

A most eloquent address, full of moral fervor and devotion to the cause of social progress was the deliverance of the president of the union. In beautiful language and with evident deep emotion, she spoke of the annual gathering as the harvest home of the union, after a year's onward progress under the guiding care of the All Wise Father. These meetings ever produced a feeling of mingled gladness and disappointment—gladness on account of what had been accomplished, and disappointment because of the difficulties encountered and the slow progress of the cause! But perhaps even in seeming failure was a real measure of success. Consciously or unconsciously the lives of others were being affected. Perhaps one of the greatest lessons to be learnt by the women of the union was the necessity for method in their work. Some of us perhaps, were like Elijah of old,—determined to carry on our work in our own obstinate way. His lesson we had to learn, to hear in the quietness of some retreat the voice of God.

One of the most crying needs of the movement was the infusion of new blood. Without this the movement could not live, would languish and die.

There were those who held that woman's place was in the home and in the home alone, that the fitting of her children for the duties of life was her sole work. But it was coming to be realized that not only must our children be fitted for the world, to go out and fight its battles, but the world must be made a fit place for our children to enter.

The speaker rejoiced in the world wide progress of temperance. From Australia, from New Zealand, from Japan, from India came the note of gain, of victory. But the victories of our present were but the preparation for a more mighty conflict yet to come. The advance of temperance forces had at last stirred up the liquor interests and all whose pocket books were adversely affected by the purification of society. And the enemies to be encountered had almost unlimited money at their disposal.

The moral forces of the world must prepare to fight out the fiercest battle ever fought in the modern political world. No satisfaction was to be found in the accomplishment of the easy task. Only when the cost of success was real did we value victory at its true worth.

As she travelled through Alberta the speaker's heart was torn by the great need for effort, between the two calls—the call of the home and the call of the work in the field of social endeavor. The insistent cry for reform and the suppression of evil was heard throughout our land.

Recently it had been necessary to take action to suppress certain vile books, imported through Toronto, which had been placed on sale in western Canada. Mrs. McKinney had written to the Dominion Department of Justice in regard to the matter. This department had referred her to the provincial minister of justice, who had referred her to the minister of the Interior, who said the matter was none of his business. Some of the books were of such a vile character that the local police had seen fit to take action. The Social and Moral Reform league of Canada was now taking the question up.

Mrs. McKinney spoke of the necessity of local unions contributing to the funds of the provincial organization, which depended entirely on this form of support.

In conclusion, the speaker made reference to the very useful work of the department devoted to medical temperance, which had brought educational authorities to decide to issue text books dealing with physiology, hygiene and scientific temperance.

Mrs. McKinney's address was then received on motion of Mrs. Craig of Olds and Mrs. Woodhall of Calgary. A vote of thanks was tendered to the president and the report referred to the plan of work committee, to consider the adoption of suggestions contained therein.

The report on organization was read by Mrs. McKinney, who showed that although it had been impossible to obtain an organizer for the provinces, a number of new unions had been formed. At Langdon the people had themselves organized a local. The speaker had organized unions at Millet, Sedgewick, and Camrose. At Lumsden, Sask, a union had been formed.

Mrs. C. H. Race of Edmonton and Mrs. F. J. Reynolds of Regina presented the reports on legislation and petition for their respective provinces. In Edmonton, said Mrs. Race, the local council of women quite fully covered the ground. They had brought up the question of a dower law for women and there was good promise of something being accomplished along this line. At Edmonton and Calgary and now at Olds there was a local curfew law, and in Stettler the union had petitioned against the granting of a license to a certain man.

Mrs. Reynolds' report was in the nature of a review of what the government had done during the last year in the way of legislation. They had taken what appeared to be a retrograde step in regard to certain cities, but certain concessions had been gained. Local option might be enacted by a majority vote, but Lumsden was the only town which had taken advantage of the new law. The surest way of advancing the temperance cause through legislation was to secure local option for local districts. That temperance people must look to the rural districts to take the lead in abolishing the bar was the experience of the States to the south.

Mrs. C. J. Craig of Olds read the report of the secretary treasurer. This showed receipts of $1,388.22 during the year and disbursements of $671.20 leavins a balance of $717.02 in hand.

In the discussion on the report the question was raised as to the meaning and object of a dower act. At the present time, it was stated, the women of Saskatchewan and Alberta have no interest in their husband's property. A man might if he wished will away the whole of his property from his wife or he might sell the property without her consent. What was desired was a dower law, something similar to the Ontario law, where it was impossible for a man to sell his property without first obtaining his wife's signature, and where upon his death, at least one-third of his property must revert to the widow. A number of cases of gross misconduct were cited. A Regina delegate instanced the case of a woman of her acquaintance whose husband was a drunkard. For the sake of her growing boy the wife had endeavored to keep her husband on his homestead in order that he might prove up, but as the law stood today, he might will away the whole of his land from his wife and chil. Another delegate mentioned a case which had come under her notice, where a husband after deserting his wife had willed his property to another woman. Mrs. Bell gave another instance of similar conduct on the part of a man who died in Medicine Hat some few years ago.

Mrs. Spofford said similar conditions prevailed in British Columbia, with the difference that under the homestead act the wife was a partner in her husband's homestead.

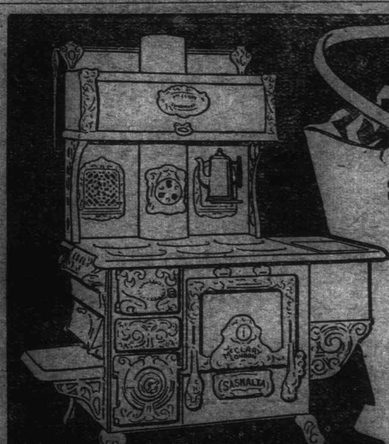
Mrs. McKinney said the government of Alberta had promised to bring forward a measure which would be better than a dowry law, during the next session of the legislature. A dowry law as originally proposed would interfere with the Torrens land titles system, which was considered undesirable.

The evening session opened with the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers" by the choir and congregation. Mrs. S. J. Craig then read the hundred and nineteenth Psalm and the Rev. Mr. Campbell led the congregation in prayer. A couple of solos by Mrs. John Fulton were rendered during the evening.

In her opening remarks the president stated that the first evening session was always devoted to the extension of courtesies.

Mrs. McKinney then called upon Mrs J. S. Damm president of the local union to present the address of the Medicine Hat organization. In a few appropriate words Mrs. Damm expressed the hearty welcome of the local workers to their co-workers in all parts of the two western provinces. She called upon the delegates to allow themselves to become channels by which enthusiasm might be spread to the local union.

In the absence of his worship the mayor, who was attending the corner stone laying at Edmonton, Alderman Spencer welcomed the convention in behalf of the city fathers. After expressing the sense of personal pleasure that he felt in welcoming the delegates, the alderman went on to say that although during the past two years many conventions of an important nature had been held in Medicine Hat, none was of greater importance to his mind than this one of the W. C. T. U. For the questions which they would discuss related to good citizenship—the greatest question of the day in this new and growing nation of ours. While the speaker was not fully convinced as to the advisability of the granting of franchise to women, yet he did believe that a great anomaly existed when foreigners who knew nothing of our traditions could obtain a voice in the government after three years' residence, while women of culture and of education were debarred. The speaker was not averse to the immigration of these people from the continent of Europe, but he did hold that when uneducated they formed a national meance. In closing Ald. Spencer expressed his hope and belief that the deliberations of the convention would be blessed by that rich wisdom which came from on high.



The addresses of welcome from the city churches were delivered by the Revs. A. C. Farrell, H. Bryant and J. S. Damm. Mr. Farrell described the spirit which actuated the members of the W. C. T. U. as the spirit of God Himself, in human form. They were trying to do a hard kind of work. It was hard because of the danger that after repeated efforts had been put forth, the people might become so accustomed to the demand of the temperance workers being put forward, as to become indifferent to them. Yet it was a work which must be done, and as God was on the side of the workers ultimate triumph was assured. "Your sisters," said Mr. Farrell, "will not always cry and die Your men will not always be indifferent and describe the movement you represent as a 'fad'". He prayed that the convention might prove a blessing not only to the members themselves, but others over a far scattered field.

Mr. Bryant said that the Baptist church, like other religious bodies, was heartily in accord with every movement and every society which had for its object the extension of Christ's Kingdom upon earth. He believed that the stamp of divine approval was borne by this great organization, the W. C. T. U. Not all the good work they desired had been realized, not without set-backs and discouragement had been their history, yet more than they themselves perhaps realized had been accomplished for the extension of Christ's kingdom upon earth. Women had ever been the most devoted servants of the Master, from the time of our Lord's worldly sojourn right down through the ages to the present day. Some of us had become sanguine enough to hope that in the near future we might see the drink traffic prohibited throughout the length and breadth of the Republic to the south. And in Canada also, we hoped to see this great end accomplished, thus bringing nearer the day when the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ.

The Rev. J. S. Damm believed that the W. C. T. U. were responsible for the great temperance wave now sweeping over the United States He was glad to state that from childhood he had been trained to abhor liquor in every form. The Evangelical church had for its foundation been opposed to the use of intoxicants. The speaker's congregation, were, however, largely composed of foreigners, Germans who had been accustomed to liquor and were still to some extent an intemperate people.

Mr. John Fulton welcomed the delegates in the name of the teachers of the city. The influence of the teacher upon the lives of his pupils was a most important one. Yet the influence of home was far more powerful, and parents should be very careful in their training of the young and the manner of conversation with children. As a lifelong abstainer he attributed to a mother's influence his early decision in this matter. One of the most heartbreaking things in the world was to see so large a number of women entering beershops in the city of London. The condition of things in Scotland was perhaps, not quite so bad, but the national beverage of Scotland was a national

HEART AND NERVES WERE RESPONSIBLE, SO THE DOCTOR SAID.

There is many a man and woman tossing night after night upon a sleepless bed.

Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system that it cannot be quieted.

Mrs. Calvin Stark, Rossmore, Ont., writes:—"About two years ago I began to be troubled with a smothering sensation at night, when I would lie down. I got so bad I could not sleep in the dark, and would have to sit up and rub my limbs, they would become so numb. My doctor said my heart and nerves were responsible. I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised and got a box to try them. I took three boxes and can now lie down and sleep without the light burning and can rest well. I can recommend them highly to all nervous and run down women.

New Liquor License Administration

The government of the province of Alberta has taken an advance step in the method of administering the Liquor License Ordinance throughout the province. Some time ago an order-in-council was issued from the attorney general's department intimating that the former boards of local license district commissioners had been replaced by a permanent commission of three members who will administer the ordinance throughout the entire province.

These commissioners are to be permanent officials paid by the government; and thus will be beyond any personal or local bias. This is the plan which has worked so admirably in the province of Saskatchewan during the past two years, and has the honor of removing many abuses from liquor license administration. Doubtless much of its integrity has depended on the integrity of the commissioners, who in our sister province have an enviable reputation. If the right kind of men are appointed in Alberta, the same improvement is likely to result. In no department of public service is the character of the man who serves as an official of such vital importance as in the department of liquor license administration. The best possible law administered by faithless and irresponsible officials will have many abuses.

Even a poor law well administered is better than that.

The government would do good service to the people of the province by exercising more care in the appointment of liquor license inspectors. The best possible board of commissioners administering the act without prejudice or personal bias will have its work largely set at nought by a poor license inspector. Men of questionable virtue in either capacity have ample opportunity for lowering the standard of law and order throughout the entire province, and to play into the hands of the lowest element among the liquor dealers.

The handsome majority given the Rutherford administration at the last provincial election was a mandate to the government that good administration will be supported in Alberta irrespective of party names. Fearless action in removing weak and unscrupulous officials will do as much towards establishing the permanency of the government as any course it can possibly take. We shall watch with interest the new state of affairs.

More Publicity Needed

The receipt last week of a circular letter by the local business men from a Vancouver firm advertising a system of gasoline lighting indicates a need of greater publicity of the fact that Medicine Hat has natural gas and plenty of it, that it is sold so cheap that no person ever considers anything else for lighting purposes—unless it be electricity manufactured from the gas. If our lamp posts were labelled in some such way as the Times suggested a short time ago, how many travellers would pass through without knowing of our natural gas and the fact would soon become universally known.

The W. C. T. U.

The meeting of the Alberta and Saskatchewan Woman's Christian Temperance Union which closed the sessions of its Sixth Annual Convention in our city last night has brought prominently before our citizens the work that this organization is doing. The fact that the W. C. T. U. is the organization which succeeded in getting temperance instruction introduced into the public schools of so many of the provinces of the Dominion makes it one which is destined to wield a mighty influence in our national life. Instruction to the youth will bear fruit in years to come and is the factor which is destined to eventually overthrow the liquor traffic.

Unfortunately the organization is tied up to the women's suffrage movement which is unlikely to realize its dreams. But then few of the members pay much attention to the suffrage aspect of it and some of them do not really agree with it, but join the movement because of its temperance work. The organization is working along the right lines and is one of the agencies which will help to eventually overthrow the liquor traffic.

AND MEDICINE HAT TOO

"We live by you and you live by us. We live by each other and that Winnipeg firm will get none of my printing" were the words of a Lethbridge business man commenting on the offer of a Winnipeg printing firm to give him stationery at prices which local printing houses could not touch. He expressed the right sentiment and one which the Herald believes will be expressed and acted upon by the great majority of the businessmen of the city.

The Herald lives by and for the city and district of Lethbridge and the people have shown their appreciation of this by the very liberal encouragement which is evidenced by the Herald's rapid growth. It has done its best to help other businesses grow also, and believes that to some extent at least it has helped along the period of prosperity the businessmen of the city have been and are enjoying.

But although it has had a full share of the development that has been going on, the Herald like the business men and professional men of the city, is not yet in a position to compete with eastern houses in prices. The Herald maintains that the business man of Lethbridge is entitled to a fair profit on the cost of his goods in Lethbridge and that the people of the city have a right to buy these goods at these prices in preference to buying outside at a reduction. Moreover, the Herald has practiced what it preached. And in return has confidence that the business men and professional men will turn down the "cheap John" offer of the Winnipeg firm that is trying to make up a "car lot" of stationery, and has flooded the city with letters making their offer.

If the local printing firms give good value for the money, it is only fair and just that the work should be given to them in preference to outside firms who pay starvation wages to girls or have big machines that require no labor at all to operate.

THE ELECTION DEPOSIT

(The Red Deer News)

At the annual convention of the Manufacturers' Association held recently a request was presented asking the association to call for the abolition of the $200 election deposit. The association not only refused to comply with the request, but called for an increase of the deposit to $500. The action might have been expected. The association represents one of the special interests which desire to limit the discussion by popular assemblies of people's questions.

The News has always contended that this deposit should be done away with. It is an infringement of the rights of the people. The poor man should not be legislated against because he is poor. The deposit is legislation against the poor. It certainly is no hardship for the man of means. Then it is to the interest of great corporations to have only two parties to deal with, because it is easier to govern representatives such as these turned out by the said two great parties than it is to control representatives, say, of farmers themselves, or other independent bodies. The legislature of Alberta, at least, could take steps along these lines and do away with the deposit, and show the east that we of the west are keeping up our record as a progressive people.

WORK YOUR OWN PULL

It is worth while to explain that under the civil service act appointments to departmental clerkship at Ottawa are not now political. They are made on the resuls of competitive examinations. The first general examination for this purpose was held last spring. Though the positions vacant included a number with salaries beginning at $800 and increasing by annual increments, the competitors were so few that all who passed got appointments and only half the places were filled. This failure to compete must have been due to a want of proper understanding of the situation.

Another chance will be offered in November to fill forty clerkships in subdivision B of the third division, fifteen of which may be taken by women. Also there are offered fifty clerkships in subdivision B of the second division. These are $800 positions and must be filled by males. Three specialists are also required for whom technical examinations will be held. These are a patent examiner, required to be a graduate in engineering; an assistant chemist for the laboratories of the experimental farm, who must also be a science graduate with knowledge of analysis; and an assistant cerealist with some training in science and laboratory work. Good salaries go with the positions.

The examinations will be held on November 9.

RUSSIAN METHODS IN CANADA

(Calgary Herald)

By what right do "the coal company's police at Glace Bay fire bullets into a crowd and wound seven men? This farce of permitting one side to a labor controversy to "own police" should never be permitted in Canada. What if there were the strikers' police" too? Canada's law should be enforced by Canada's officers, not by a coal company's officers.

Centennial Exposition

Winnipeg, Sept. 30, 1909—The exposition committee has received a very encouraging report of the publicity campaign made by the committee at the Toronto exhibition through the agency of the exposition publicity department. In this work the exposition committee joined forces with the city of Winnipeg and the Industrial Bureau of the city, thus accomplishing the desire of all three departments at a reduced cost for each, and in a manner that was highly effective for the exposition, Winnipeg and western Canada.

In a smaller way, the work done at the Toronto exhibition is a forecast of what will be accomplished for Canada by the holding of an exposition such as it is proposed to hold at Winnipeg in 1912. More than 300 000 pieces of literature, dealing with Winnipeg and the west, and Canada's exposition—including a large number of badges and exhibition leaflets—the Winnipeg booth, and personal information was furnished to a very large number of inquirers about the west. Interest in this matter was displayed in a manner highly encouraging to western people. Not only did many thousands ask for publicity literature concerning the west, but no less than eight thousand filled address postal cards in order that they may receive the publications issued by the Winnipeg Industrial Bureau from time to time.

Numerous enquiries were received concerning the Saskatchewan and British Columbia exhibits at the fair and keen regrets expressed because of the absence of an Alberta exhibit. People coming from the British Columbia and Saskatchewan exhibits were greatly pleased and interested and were not at all reluctant about putting their interest into speech.

The plain lesson to be taken from the experience of the exposition publicity department at the Toronto fair is that very great interest exists in Canada among the people of other countries and that these people and those of eastern Canada have a short interest in the west, and that nothing will serve to promote and increase this interest as a great exposition, held at a central point like Winnipeg, to which the people of all parts can come with comparative ease, and from which they may be sent about the country to see it in a thorough manner.

This experience of the publicity department of the exposition committee shows too, that there are thousands of people waiting for just such an opportunity as will be afforded by a big International Exposition, to come to Canada and see for themselves the country about which they have heard so much or little—as the case may be—and in which they have a very strong interest. It would be a pity indeed, if so excellent a chance to secure an inflow of desirable settlers, and of capital, into Canada shall fail of its fruition because of shortsightedness or by the practice of false economy.

Reports received from time to time from the Seattle fair, indicate that the Pacific Coast Exposition will be a financial success, as well as agood thing for advertising the country The daily attendance thus far is reported as having maintained the excellent average of twenty-five thousand paid admissions. One ticket office in an inconspicuous Atlantic Coast city is known to have sold one hundred and twenty-five tickets to the Seattle exposition, and this item of information sheds a deal of light upon the manner in which such an event is viewed ny the general public even when it is located so far away as the distance from the Atlantic to the Pacific. From this, it may be argued with all fairness, that an exposition of Canada's resources, held in Central Canada, may even prove to be a success financially as it cannot fail to be a means of attracting and fixing attention and capital upon the Dominion at large and the west in particular.

An Automobile Tour

A unique and important step in the gigantic task of forming a complete organization of the farmers of the Canadian northwest will be taken shortly be the executive of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' association, and the example of the Saskatchewan body may be emulated by other branches of the association.

Three of the most intelligent and forceful speakers will tour the province, arousing the farmers to a realization of the necessity for sympathetic organization, stirring up enthusiasm in old local associations and forming new local associations, where conditions warrant. Matters of vital interest to the farmers will be literally pumped into the communities.

Autos will be used to glide over the territory to be covered, and three meetings will be held each day. They have been neatly scheduled, and it is doubtful if even inclement weather will upset the plans.

In short, the campaign will be a concentrated effort to arouse the farmers of Saskatchewan, and if the step is successful it is probable that similar action will be taken in Manitoba and Alberta. The speakers will be E. N. Hopkins, president of the association; E. A. Partridge and F. W. Green, secretary. From October the 4th until the 29th they will address three meetings a day, the time and place being advertised in advance, so as to secure a large attendance of farmers.

They will begin by taking the country adjacent to the Soo line of the C. P. R., and then following up the Estevan line to the Manitoba boundary, then back to the Arcola branch to Regina. Next they will take a run up north through the Last Mountain Lake country, and thus touch Saskatoon, following down the C. N. R. to Craik. They will wind up by taking the country adjacent to the Outlook branch, and hold the last meeting at Moose Jaw.

At each of these meetings the three speakers will deliver short addresses. All three are speakers of exceptional force and intelligence. They are deeply interested in the farmers' movement, having a clear conception of the future plans. Each will discuss a different phase of the situation, and thus a single short meeting will be sufficient to lay before the farmers the entire propaganda.

AFTER TREATMENT

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and axcesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

Plenty of Wheat but None for Seed

In the hour of security when the farmers' grain is being harvested and turned into cash or stored for better prices later on, a timely note of warning is sounded to Alberta farmers by George Harcourt, deputy minister of agriculture.

There is great danger," says Mr. Harcourt, "of overlooking the fact that one tenth of the winter wheat harvested in the province this fall will be required for sowing to winter wheat next summer. With the high prices that will be offered for wheat during the winter months and the great demand which is coming from the local millers, and the foreign grain markets, the supplies of Alberta red will soon be exhausted and hundred of farmers will face the seeding time next July and August without any seed wheat. The wise farmer is the one who takes steps against such a situation when next year's seeding time is at hand."

A formal warning that some farmers realize the danger is shown by the several requests that have already come in to Mr. Harcourt, urging that the department take some steps to insure enough seed grain for next year. Mr. Harcourt feels that this is not a matter for the department to take up, but at the same time he realizes that it is of very great importance to the farmers of the provinces.

Suffered For Thirty Years With Catarrh of The Stomach.

Mr. John Raitt, 71 Coursol St., Montreal, Que., has used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and recommends them to all his friends. He writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you concerning the great value I have received in using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for Catarrh of the Stomach, with which I have been a sufferer for thirty years. I used five bottles and they made me all right. I also had a very severe attack of La Grippe, and a few doses acted so quickly that it was unnecessary to call in a doctor to cure me. For the small sum of 25 cents we have our own doctor when we have Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills."

Price 25 cents per vial, or 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Dangers of Summer.

Many dangerous and distressing diseases prevail in summer and fall, and as they occur suddenly, often terminate fatally before aid can be had.

Complaints, such as Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Cramps, Cholera, Morbus, Cholera Infantum, Summer Complaints, &c., are quickly cured.

DR. FOWLER'S EXT. OF WILD STRAWBERRY

This wonderful bowel complaint remedy has been on the market for 64 years and it has been used in thousands of homes throughout the country during this time.

You do not experiment when you buy an old and tried remedy like this. Ask your druggist for Dr. Fowler's, and insist on getting what you ask for. Do not take some substitute which the unprincipled druggist says is "just as good." These cheap imitations are dangerous to your health.

Mrs. Jeff Flaherty, Belfountain, Ont., writes:—"In the month of September, last, my youngest child took Summer Complaint and the doctor had very little hopes for her. My neighbor told me to get Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so that night I sent my daughter to get it, and when she came home I gave the baby one dose, and in half an hour there was a change for the better, and after the third dose she was completely cured. We feel it is far and beyond any other remedy for Summer Complaint and besides it saves paying a doctor. I advise everyone to use it. Don't accept a substitute for Dr. Fowler's. The original and only Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., Price 35 cents.

disgrace. In this country greater advances seemed to have been made. The drinking was largely among the new arrivals, and it was in perhaps the majority of cases the healthy desire for social enjoyment which caused these young men to resort to the bars.

Mr. McF. Evans spoke in behalf of the Royal Templars of Temperance. He remarked that as an old member of the order he could speak highly of the work of the Dominion W. C. T. U. in the territories' days. The two organizations were working along the same lines. Although the members of the W. C. T. U. were unable to directly exercise the power of the ballot, their direct influence on those who did have franchise privileges was very great. Mr. Evans believed that the temperance movement in Canada had been greatly strengthened by the large numbers of people who came across the line from the States, where great progress had been made.

Mrs. Race responded for the delegates. She explained that it had been intended that Mrs. Bulyea, the wife of the lieutenant governor, should fulfill this pleasant duty. The function of the laying of the cornerstone of the legislative building, however, had demanded her presence and she had thus been unable to carry out her original intention. Mrs. Race paid a high tribute to the character of Mrs. Bulyea, whom she described as exerting a powerful influence for good on the society at the capital. At none of the social functions at the government house was wine used.

In a short address Mrs. Boyd described the W. C. T. U. as the organized motherhood of the world. The speaker had met a few very good people who thought that the saloon was a good thing for a town. But these were a small and diminishing number. Mrs. Boyd drew a picture in vivid colors of the legions who were to be found in any great moral fight, on the one side or on the other. With certain notable exceptions the better element was invariably found on the temperance side while those who made a living from the trade of vice, thugs and lawbreakers generally, would be found ranged up on the other side.

It was an easy matter to follow the crowd, but as Christian women should be strong enough to stand alone, knowing that if God were for them, it were vain for any worldly force to oppose the onward march of moral progress.

Mrs. C. Spofford, the representative of the British Columbia union, opened by remarking that though the mountains separated the prairie and Pacific provinces, yet were their people neighbors in the truest sense. The women of the sister organizations were one in their work for God for home and for Canada. Long before she had met Mrs. McKinney in the flesh the speaker had learnt to love the president of the prairie union.

In some respects British Columbia was still much behind the rest of Canada in temperance reform. As the Rev. Mr. Fortune had said British Columbia was still a "wide open" province so far as the liquor traffic was concerned. Yet were they making some advance. Though the night had been dark at last had appeared the sign of dawn. The people now entering the country brought with them a strong temperance sentiment. Business men were coming to realize that their true interests were best served by joining hands with the temperance forces. Mrs. McKinney described how the women of British Columbia had succeeded in enlisting on their side the men of the commercial world. A few years ago an appeal was made to the British Columbia branch of the Dominion Alliance, the women believing that as non-voters they would not carry such weight in dealing with the powers that were. A twelvemonth went by and still the alliance were not heard from. At last a reply came that the question was receiving attention and consideration. "And," said the speaker, "we suppose that they are still giving it careful attention and consideration. About a year ago the W. C. T. U. succeeded in calling a citizens' convention, not, however, in the name of the W. C. T. U. On the 25th of November last the meeting took place, 125 men and women paying their own expenses to attend. A provincial local option league was organized and one of the first actions of the new organization was to circularize the public men in every walk of life—Grits, Conservatives, Trades Councils, Socialist organizations, in regard to the advisability of taking steps to suppress the great liquor evil. Three months later one hundred and fifty business men waited on the government with a petition signed by thirty-five thousand persons, asking for a local option by-law. The government would not go so far as the petitioners desired, but agreed to submit the question to a plebiscite and abide by the decision. The referendum would shortly take place.

A new and interesting light was thrown on the women's suffrage question by this speaker, who announced her desire to convert Ald. Spencer to the suffragist cause. In British Columbia women might serve on school boards and exercise the municipal franchise and their influence at the ballot box had been most salutary. Formerly every woman householder had a vote, but the liquor interests, realizing that a real menace to their business was arising, called upon the government to withdraw the privilege. And as the government was bolstered up by those interests of cause it obeyed. Today no woman, however cultured, could use the vote unless she possessed $100 worth of real estate.

Saturday morning was devoted mainly to the election of officers and to the consideration of departmental reports. Papers were read on the following subjects:

Evangelestic work—Mrs. S. Switzer, Yorkton.

Work among foreigners—Mrs. Avery Smith, Saskatoon.

President—Mrs. Louise C. McKinney, Claresholm, Alta.

Vice-President—Mrs. S. J. Craig, Olds, Alta.

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. J. J. Burbeck, Edmonton.

Treasurer—Mrs. C. G. Craig, Olds, Alta.

Y. Secretary—Mrs. A. E. Humphries, Lethbridge, Alta.

Reports of local unions were considered in the afternoon. One of the most interesting features of the session was a paper read by Mrs. C. Davy of Langdon on "The Department Superintendent, Local and Provincial." Mrs. Davy urged each superintendent of a department to become an expert in her line by keeping closely in touch with the superior superintendent of the province and the Dominion. Two things she pointed out were necessary for successful departmental work: first a sense of individual responsibility; second, unlimited enthusiasm in one's work. An ounce of enthusiasm would carry further than a pound of hesitating caution.

SUNDAY SERVICES

At the morning service in the Methodist church the president, Mrs. McKinney, addressed the congregation dwelling on the responsibility of parenthood and the opportunity parents and teachers possessed in moulding the yound minds and training them for good citizenship.

In the afternoon a rally was held in the Baptist church which crowded the building. Mrs. Boyd gave an address on the Loyal Temperance Legion which was illustrated by the exercises practised by the juveniles. Mrs. Boyd explained that the object of these bands was to create a good environment for the growing child.

Mrs. Spofford president of the British Columbia union also addressed the meeting. By using the illustration of a tree which had been bent during its growth, Mrs. Spofford showed the influence of things which tend to make "crooked" men. She dwelt on the two greatest of these viz. the liquor traffic and cigarette habit.

At the close of the evening services in the city churches a mass meeting was held in Century Methodist church at 8.30, when Mrs. Of Spofford delivered a most eloquent and inspiring address on the relation of the home to the liquor traffic in tones of deepest earnestness she portrayed sentiments of patriotism and love of home, holding her auditors spellbound for the space of considerably over half an hour, and her appeal for a great advance in the ethical attitude of men and women towards this question was one of the most effective that has ever been heard in this city.

Of the many and varied characteristics of the human family, she said, in opening, none were so common or so deep-rooted in the race as the characteristics of patriotism and of the love of home. By these the whole world was united in devotion to common ideals. Patriotism in veneration for national customs, for national traditions and for national institutions—nowhere had this sentiment a firmer grip upon the imagination than in the Orient, where the yellow man, notwithstanding the great advances that had been made, still held that no greater disgrace could fall upon his country than that it should accept the western notion of advancement. Even the little brown men, who had startled the world in recent years by their exhibition of dauntless courage and self sacrifice had been until fifty years ago among the most conservative races of the world. We found the same love of tradition among the aborigines of our own land, where the sound of an Indian drum was ever sufficient to arouse wild yearnings in the heart of these primitive people, even among those who had adopted the white man's way of life. The Anglo Saxon was not lacking in his veneration for tradition, though civilization had taught him to make these feelings subservient to the common good. Yet the older the custom or institution, the lower did the Anglo-Saxon bow in his reverence for it. The world over, love of country and the love of home formed the foundation upon which the whole superstructure of society was built. The home was an institution as old as man. Poets had sung the joys of home; warriors had from time immemorial laid down their lives in its defence.

It had formed one main spring of human action. The home, with man as its defender and the woman reigning as queen, was the one place into which the stranger could not intrude, it was the holy of holies around which centered all that was sacred, all that was high and noble and pure in human life. Apart from any sentimental regard for the home its practical value as affording the inspiration which men required for the battles and activities of life must be recognized by every patriot. It was a training school for the citizens, and the object of more legislation than any other institution in the world. Every law in the criminal code had as its object the safeguarding of the home.

And surely, whatever the sacrifice, this institution must be safeguarded from every danger, the danger which the liquor traffic constituted was the greatest. Throughout the ages the fight against the demon King Alcohol had been waged. In the days of the Old Testament it was supposedly a losing battle. Yet today the warfare continued and became more bitter and uncompromising every day. Like a hideous octopus this arch-enemy of the home was fastening and feeding and fattening itself upon the manhood and womanhood of our race.

The Anglo Saxon was ever ready to lay down his life in defence of hearth and home. But, said Mrs. Spofford, the world today did not stand so much in need of men who were prepared to die in a noble cause, as men who were prepared to live for high and noble ideals. When the clarion note of the Empire's need rang round the world, Canadians were the first to respond to the call of the motherland. And the women who made the sacrifices gave their men folk hero worship. Today the speaker believed that Canadian men would be willing to make any sacrifice for the welfare of their country. It was easy to die, it was not so easy to live for one's principles.

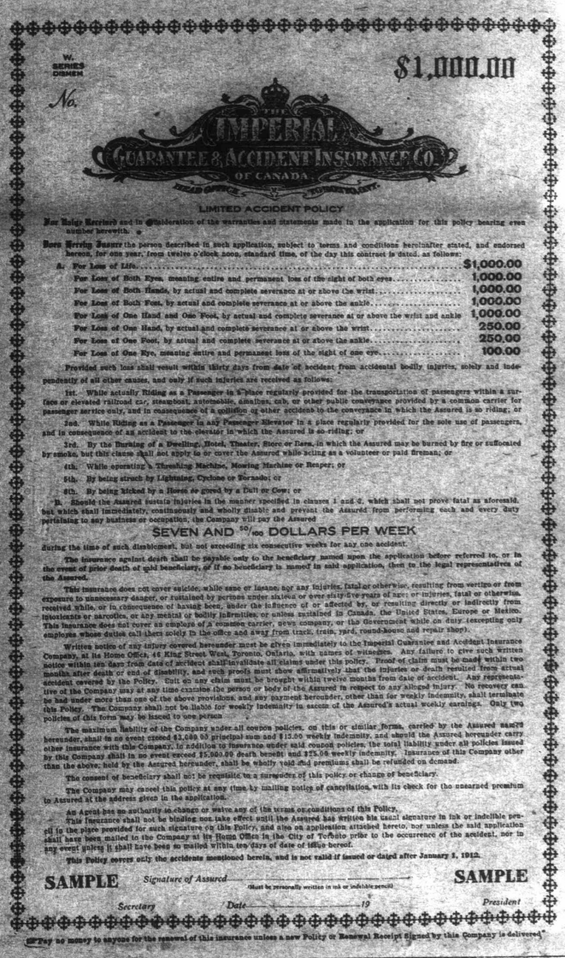
Two of the dangers threatening the whole fabric of our civilization today, we were told, were the dangers of race suicide and of race deterioration. Sir Henry Thompson, a great British authority had stated that no single habit so tended to destroy the fabric of the race as the alcohol habit, which also had an important bearing on the question of race suicide. Those who had investigated the causes of race suicide in France stated that the greatest factor in the evil was the legalized drink traffic.

Of all the divorces granted in the United States between 1887 and 1906 nineteen per cent were attributed to drink. These were official figures, and it might safely be said that at least 100 per cent more of these wrecked homes were foundered on the evil of alcololism. Every twelfth marriage in the Republic ended in divorce. In the house of lords in Great Britain it had been stated that the divorce court might almost close its doors were it not for the alcohol evil.

It might be said, "But this is the United States; this is Great Britain. How are we in Canada affected by these other countries?" No evil could exist in the United States or in Great Britain without its infection spreading to Canada.

It was with an apology, said Mrs. Spofford, that she spoke before an intelligent audience of the relation of drink to poverty, for anything which might be said today would be in the nature of a truism. Before the poor law commission in England it had been stated that the one chief cause by which paupers were driven to the workhouse was alcoholism. Of 170 men and 109 women in the Bath institution, 74 of the former and 36 of the latter had been brought there through drink.

Last year in Canada there were 29,800 arrests for drunkenness. Over 28,008 of the offenders were men, and slightly over 1,000 women. "It seems" said Mrs. Spofford, "that in Canada the men go to the saloon and the women go to church: the men worship Bacchus and the women worship God."



Mrs. Spofford closed the address by appealing to all patriotic Canadians to rid their land of the curse of drink.

Mrs. Spofford closed the address by appealing to all patriotic Canadians to rid their land of the curse of drink.

On Monday the sessions of the convention were continued. After the usual devotional exercises the consideration of local and provincial reports was taken up. These threw an interesting light on the aggressive nature of the work being carried on in the towns and cities of the west to discourage intemperance and promote temperance by providing counter-attractions to the saloon. It has been said of temperance reformers, frequently it must be admitted with justification, that their programme is of too negative a character. Critics have averred that the temperance reformer would remove the institutions which have assumed to so great an extent a social character without indicating the means by which the gap shall be filled. Merely prohibitive measures have been denounced as puritanical, as measures for the repression of the joy of life. That the W. C. T. U. is taking the first step to remove the grounds of such criticism was evident from a number of the reports presented at yesterday's sessions. Mrs. Craig of Olds told of the reading room that the union has equipped in the town from which she came. This reading room is open to the general public, and is maintained nine months out of the twelve, being closed during the warm days of summer. Other instances of a similar character were given showing the new and enlightened spirit in which the subject of temperance reform is now being approached by the women of western Canada.

In Moose Jaw and Regina drinking fountains have been erected and are being maintained by the local unions. A similar course is now being followed in other towns throughout the province. At Maple Creek and Swift Current, where modern waterworks systems are not installed, the local branches have water tanks on the streets at which the thirsty may refresh themselves. The action of the Swift Current society came in for special commendation. Here water is purchased for 25c a barrel, and 7 barrels a week are used.

In Maple Creek hospital a ward has been furnished by the local society. At Regina a wealthy member who is unable herself to give active help furnishes money which is spent in clothes for poor hospital patients, in delicacies for those who have no friends to visit them, while a number of poor people in the city are supplied with coal in the winter months.

Mrs. Sifton of Moose Jaw reported that the union had met with success in stopping the sale of brandy chocolates. Progress along this line was also reported by the Rouleau and Calgary branches.

At Olds a curfew bylaw has recently been obtained, and children under sixteen years are not allowed on the streets of the town after 8 o'clock each evening. At the annual fair this year a tent was provided by the union where drinking water might be obtained on the exhibition grounds.

The question of dower, which had arisen first at Friday's session, was more fully discussed by Mrs. McKinney who also spoke on the need of municipal franchise for women. In Calgary and Edmonton this privilege has already been granted. The suffragist element in the W. C. T. U. is by no means strong, and the convention was quite indifferent as regards the parliamentary franchise. The opinion of the majority was probably voiced by a delegate who stated that while she did not wish to gain the right to vote on general questions, she was eager to obtain the municipal suffrage simply that she might cast her vote for the extinction of the liquor traffic.

The executive of the convention were instructed to memorialize the provincial governments, asking for the extension of the municipal franchise to married women in both urban and rural districts. Widows and spinsters are already entitled to the privilege on the same terms as men.

Claresholm secured the prize for the best programme of the order of business for a local union for each month. Mrs. Spofford made the presentation, the prize was a beautiful volume of the life of Francis Willard.

A memorial service for those who have entered the great beyond since last year's convention was held at the close of the morning's session. The late Mr. Cosens, who was an honorary member, and the late Mrs. W. E. Porter are the two Medicine Hat members who have been removed by death during the year.

An encouraging report on the progress of the scientific temperance department was presented by Mrs. McKinney at the afternoon session. In response to the requests of the unions the provincial governments have promised to bring in a text book on the subject in the near future, for use in the schools.

A pretty and affecting ceremony took place during the course of this final session, when the infant son of Mrs. Burke was enrolled as a member of the union. Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Reynolds acted as sponsors for the child, who received from the president a gold Cradle Roll pin and the white badge.

Invitations for next year's convention were received from Medicine Hat Lethbridge and Maple Creek, the matter being left in the hands of the executive committee.

Proceedings were brought to a conclusion by the singing of "God be with you till we meet again," all the members of the union present joining hands during the singing of the valedictory hymn.

Last evening many of the delegates left the city to return to their own cities.

A grand gold medal contest was held in the church last evening. As the press was not provided with tickets for this interesting part of the convention, we are unable to give a report of the meeting.

The convention proper closed yesterday, but the members of the executive are still in the city, business matters in connection with the organization detaining them. All these will have been dealt with by the time of publication and a very successful gathering brought to a close.

District News.

BONNIE BRAE

Dry weather still prevails. On Wednesday last we were visited by a slight thunder shower, but it was extremely slight.

The fall wheat of the district is looking fine, it being about 5 inches in height and almost covering the ground. Mr. Corbett and Mr. MacGillivray, especially, have fine pieces.

Mr. Geo. and Wm. Culley have been threshed out by W. R. Babington's outfit. It is reported that their grain turned out very well.

Threshing is in full swing on "Sunny Slope" farm.

A garden thief was captured and killed on the John Evans' farm last week. For some time Mr. Evans was aware that his carrot bed was being visited as considerable amount of the roots were missing. On passing the garden a few evenings ago Mr. Evans was surprised to discover a large porcupine intently digging and ravenously devouring his carrots. A gun was immediately brought to bear upon the animal who is now resting peacefully. Several gardens in the neighborhood have been entertaining similar uninvited guests of late.

Mr. Seymour Follis spent a few days at Many Islands lake last week where he bagged several plump ducks

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Marshall of Syracuse, New York, who are on their wedding trip are spending a few days with the former's parents at Bonnie Brae farm. Mr. Marshall who is editor and publisher of the "Angler and Hunter" is collecting some valuable copy for his magazine in this district and vicinity. Mrs Marshall being an enthusiastic photographer is taking advantage of some of our picturesque scenery etc., We hope that our district will be well spoken of in next month's Angler and Hunter. The happy couple will visit Vancouver and Seattle before returning to their home.

SEVEN PERSONS

An effort is being made to get a post office sixty miles south of here close to the boundary line.

So much building is being done that our lumberman has been unable to supply the demand for material.

Roy Neugent has his place made comfortable for the winter.

The hotel has been taxed to its utmost, the dining room having to be used for lodging on several occasions

Settlers are now arriving on every train.

We expect our post office to be made third class in the near future.

Chris Johnson arrived with a carload of effects and started at once for his homestead fifteen miles south of here. Mr. Johnson hails from Rugby, N. D., where he has been in business for some years.

Mr. Lousley has a man digging potatoes. He reports a good yield. He has also received two car loads of fence posts.

Several cars of posts have been unloaded here.

Despatching by Telephone

Last Wednesday morning a new system of despatching trains was inaugurated on the division between Medicine Hat and Swift Current. This is the third division in the west to use this system it having been previously installed between White River and Fort William and Brandon and Winnipeg. The telegraph wires are now used only as an auxiliary system in the despatching of trains. The Gill selector is used as a calling device and the Van Akin arm telephone for the talking circuit.

Work has been progressing during the last three months on this improvement, Mr. L. A. Hutton having charge of the installation. The same despatchers will have charge of the new telephones as had charge of the former telegraph system, and it is the intention of the company to always use the telegraph as an auxiliary system. By the use of the new system a despatcher can talk to one man and call up another without interrupting his conversation. This will be a distinct advantage over the old system, and in the company's experience the innovation so far has been a decided success.

School Sports

Judging by the enthusiasm shown by the boys it is evident that Field Day this year will be an event of interest. The base-ball teams, the Tigers and the White Sox, are practicing strenuously and will put up a game which will be a surprise to those who fancy that only professionals can play fast ball. The game will be brought off at 1.30 sharp, so that it will be necessary for all who wish to see the boys play to be on the ground early. After the baseball game the usual running and jumping contests will be pulled off interspersed with various novelty events. During the sports the grounds within the ropes will be occupied exclusively by the contestants and the officials in charge All pupils not taking part in the events and all spectators will be expected to remain in the grandstand or behind the ropes. The senior and junior championship trophies donated by Mayor Milne and W. J. Brotherton respectively, will be in the form of silver shields which are to be hung in the classroom of the winning pupil and on which will be engraved the name of the winners from year to year. The donation of these shields has given a great impetus to the spirit of sport in the schools and the competition for them will be very keen.

The sports will be held in the Athletic Park on Friday next at 1.30 sharp. The band will be in attendance. No admission will be charged and the citizens are cordially invited to attend.

Mr. W. H. Marshall of Syracuse, N. Y., editor and proprietor of the "Angler and Hunter" and a member of the editorial staff of the Syracuse Daily Standard, paid a visit to The Times office, yesterday. Mr. Marshall has been deeply impressed by the great prosperity of the west and thinks our future will be one of marvellous development. He believes that when the manufacturers of the east come to realize how vast are the possibilities of this western country they will be eager to take advantages of the cheap power advantages of Medicine Hat. One thing which impressed him about western progress was the remarkable solidity of it all. The substantial character of our buildings was particularly striking.

The Bristah bible class had a farewell supper in the Y. M. C. on Sunday night for Mr. Norman Allin who has accepted a position in the Red Cross Drug and Book store at Lethbridge. After the supper was over Mr Farrell made a few remarks, and then T. H. Williams made a speech and presented Mr. Allin with a gold locket and chain from the class. Mr. Allin responded briefly, he being very nearly speechless by the unexpected surprise which the whole affair gave him. Mr. Williams also read the letters aloud from a couple of young men who were away and could not be present at the supper so sent their regrets to the class. Mr Bristah then moved that the class send their sympathy to Mr. Harry Rodd who is in the hospital at Calgary. After which Mr. Dimmock and Mr. Kennedy gave a vote of thanks and appreciation for the supper. Quite a number of the W. C. T. U. delegates were also present at the supper. After everyone had satisfied their appetites, which are usually great on such an occasion, the young men all went to church in a body.

Mr. Troy Fitzgerald will leave the city this week on a trip to Seattle where he will attend the world's fair.

Mr. W. M. Allin left for Lethbridge on the Crow train on Sunday night where he will accept a position with the Red Cross Drug and Book store. Of course there was the usual crowd down at the station to see him off. Mr. Allin has for some time past had the position of clerk in Mr. B. F. Souch's drug store in this city, and as he was always very faithful in the dispensing of his duties we feel sure that he will do well in his new position in Lethbridge.

Mr. M. A. Brown spent the early part of the week in Swift Current. He reports the crops as exceptionally good in that district. About a million bushels of wheat will be marketed there this year whereas only 200,000 were marketed last year. Swift Current has had a building boom in elevators, five being erected during the summer. A flour mill is also under course of construction there all of which indicates that Swift Current is developing into quite a grain centre.

A BIG BAG

The shooting party which motored out to Mr. F. B. Jenkinson's ranch (the M. H. R.), on Thursday evening spent a strenuous day on the glorious first. The day's bag consisted of twenty brace of prairie chicken, 8 ducks, one English snipe, a coyote and a jack-rabbit! The party, which consisted of Mr. Jenkinson and Capt Parker, Messrs. W. Penland and Geoffrey Pierson returned to Medicine Hat from the enjoyable and successful day's shoot on Friday evening.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster Speaks in City

Inspiring Address on "Imperialism"

POINTS FROM THE SPEECH

There is today no British statesman, no party, and no section of people in the Old Land who have the least desire to throw considerably greater responsibilities on the Overseas dominions. "It is illogical, as well as untrue, to raise the cry of autonomy."

"The British Empire will stand or fall according as union exists between its component parts. Its permanence depends on the triumph of the centripetal over the centrifugal forces."

"Does the striving for the realization of the Imperial ideal involve a violent wrench from present conditions? Why, we are pretty nearly there without knowing it. We have been travelling the Imperial road for the last fifty years and now, with scarcely a jolt, the finishing touch may be put on."

"From now on it will be that whenever any one part of the empire is threatened, every other part, every other branch of the British race will come to its assistance."

"Ours has been a history of almost unbroken peace, because of the prestige of the Mother Country. Our Angel of Peace has been the Angel of Might of the navy and army of Great Britain. Yet we have still to contribute the first red cent towards the upkeep of that great guardian navy."

"In the past 80 per cent of Britain's emigrating population has settled in alien lands. If this had been diverted the brawn and brain of these millions would still be a source of strength to the empire."

After hearing the instructive and inspiring address delivered by Hon. Geo. E. Foster in the city hall last Friday evening one could not but share the sorrow expressed by Ald. Huckvale in behalf of the large number of citizens who failed to avail themselves of a privilege of hearing from the lips of one who has himself spent many years in the service of the empire, of the evolution of Greater Britain. The attendance was good, thanks to the tireless efforts of the Y. M. C. members, but not so good as the importance of the occasion warranted.

Mr. Foster is not an orator, he is certainly not a sensationalist or a sentimentalist and politicians of the flag-waving school of thought could find little satisfaction in such an address as he delivered here. His style knows no flights of rhetoric. His lecture was on the subject of "Imperialism," a subject which certainly provided opportunity to rise from solid ground to less substantial ideaism. But such an opportunity Mr. Foster despised, an in plain, straight forward language he unfolded before the audience chapter after chapter in the history of the British Empire, from the formless thing of even a hundred years ago to the self-conscious World State of today.

Shortly after eight o'clock the Mayor entered the hall and was followed on to the platform by the Hon Geo. E. Foster, who was greeted with loud applause by the audience, and by a number of other gentlemen. The latter were: Ald. Huckvale and Messrs. J. H. Collier, J. K. Drinnan and T. Hutchinson. Introducing the speaker His Worship congratulated the Y. M. C. on the enterprise and good work they were doing for the young men of the city and for the betterment of civic and national life. The quest on of Imperialism, to which the lecturer would devote himself was perhaps the most live subject in Canada, today, and one in which none of his auditors could face to be deeply interested.

The Hon. Geo. E. Foster, after expressing a sense of pleasure in being enabled to visit Medicine Hat under Y. M. C. auspices and paying a tribute to the good work of young men's clubs throughout the west whether they appeared as Canadian clubs or in some other form proceeded at once to his subject. There had been a time, he said, when he used to lecture on academic questions which had no real connection with the life of the day. That period had passed and the speaker believed that to-day live and important questions were pressing for solution that all time spent in academic discussion was a useless time waste. The subject of Imperialism was as important and practical one as important as the Empire and its parts are extensive.

What, he enquired, was the definition of the term Imperialism as applied to the British Empire? Jingoism? Certainly not. The word jingo, he explained, was afraid of the word thing to the British empire as we found it today. In the first place Imperialism was not Jingoism, if by Jingoism is meant a boastful militarism which seeks for quarrels with its neighbors and invites to war. "I would like to see cultivated in our national spirit," said Mr. Foster, "manly independence, which should be as far as possible from boastfulness and aggressiveness, qualities which are equally offensive in the individual or in the nation." Ours, he hoped, would be a people ever ready to see its own defect, to eradicate those defects, to recognize and copy all the best qualities of other nations, and in this way to build up in Canada the very highest type of national character.

Hon. Frank Oliver Passes Through City

On Thursday evening the Honorable Frank Oliver, minister of the interior for the Dominion, passed through Medicine Hat on his way to Calgary. At the local depot he was met by a number of citizens who conversed with him on various matters concerning the city's interests.

One of the most important matters which came under discussion was the question of the location at Medicine Hat of a Dominion lands agency to supercede the present sub-agency. It is understood that the minister while he would not commit himself to definite action, gave promise of investigation and the members of the delegation seem confident that in the near future Medicine Hat will have an agency. The enormous extent of the unsettled country to the north was pointed out to Mr. Oliver and the injustice to this district which the present arrangement constitutes, when the people of Seven Persons, a town eighteen miles from Medicine Hat and over one hundred from Lethbridge have to go to the latter city to make their land entries.

New Store for North Railway Street

Geo Freeman has purchased from Chas. Putman a piece of property adjacent to H. S. Ireland's store on North Railway Street. The old building will be moved back a few feet and a two storey brick front put in. The building will have a 25 foot frontage on North Railway Street and be 23 feet in depth and this together with the old building, will form a large store. There will be two large plate glass windows and possibly large double doors in the centre. The interior will be completed in a thoroughly up-to-date manner, first-class in every way.

Chas Putman has purchased Mr. Freeman's brick house on Main St.

The sales of both properties were put through by the Alberta Realty and Brokerage Co.

City Schools' Annual Field Day

Successful Sports on Friday Afternoon

By far the most successful school sports that have ever been held in the city took place in the baseball park on Friday afternoon. It was a field day to which the pupils had long looked forward to with eagerness and thanks to the excellent management under which it was carried out and the whole-heartedness with which the boys and girls threw themselves into the events, the latter were pulled off without a hitch.

At half-past one the band, which was of good strength considering the fact that many of its members found the afternoon an inconvenient one, headed a procession of pupils through the city to the athletic grounds, where the great baseball match was already in progress. The grandstand was filled with the crowd of happy and enthusiastic schoolboy and school girl fans, with a goodly sprinkling of older people. The game of which a report by a schoolgirl spectator is given in another place in this report, certainly brought out a very good class of ball and was in fact an eye-opener to the majority of the fans who declared it as fascinating as professional ball, with local interest added.

In the senior events the competition was keen throughout, and great difficulty was experienced in some cases in arriving at the final results, the competitors were so evenly matched. In the pole-vault (senior) Jack Barreau carried off first honors, with a vault of 6 ft. 10 in. George Calder came a close second with a vault of 6 ft. 9 in. Barreau won first in three other events—Running hop, step and jump, 220 yards dash and running broad jump.

While in almost all cases the boys showed splendid form and training, the work of Hector Desharnais is perhaps worthy of special mention. Throughout he proved himself a brilliant young athlete and the way he cleared things at the last in the half mile was good to see. From the start until near the end of the race he was fourth or fifth, saving his wind and energy to the last, when he put on a spurt which brought him across the tape ahead of the whole bunch.

The juniors were not so evenly matched as the elder boys, as the table of points given below will show. Walter Brotherson and Fenwick Rutherford tied for the championship, with 18 points each, and it is proposed that the names of both competitors be inscribed on the shield. The next highest score was six points by E. Cooper.

The sack race, the girls egg and spoon race and the girls' nail driving contest caused endless merriment. The way in which the girls hammered big six-inch spikes would put to shame many a male tyro.

In the tug-of-war the Montreal St. school had the very important advantage of being the heavier team, but the contest was a very hard fought one, the Toronto Street boys holding their ground, in fact gaining the advantage several times before their final defeat. In both pulls the Montreal Street school were successful.

STREET IMPROVEMENT AS PERMANENT WORK

J. F. McMillan, former manager of the Royal Bank of Canada of Charlottetown, P. E. I., stopped over at the city on Friday, on his way to Edmonton. He will take charge of the branch of the bank in that city. Mr. McMillan expressed surprise at the great progress which has been made in our city since his last visit here some years ago, and especially the solid and substantial character of our buildings.

In conversation with the mayor he advocated the issuing of debentures for street improvement as permanent work as is done in many other western citiel. In Charlottetown, a city of 10,000 inhabitants, the mayor some five years ago commenced a popolicy of street improvement which met with the strenuous opposition of the old timers. $50,000 a year were set aside for the purpose and since then a wonderful improvement has been brought about and those who were formerly opposed to the mayor's progressive policy have been entirely converted to his views.

The following is the Y. M. C. gymnasium schedule for the coming season. It will come into force tomorrow:

Monday—8 to 9 p.m. Seniors.
Tuesday—4.15 to 5.15 p.m. Boys
Wednesday—8 to 9 p.m. Ladies.
Thursday—4.15 to 5.15 p.m. Boys.
Friday—Literary Evening.
Saturday—10.30 to 11.30a.m. Boys
Saturday—3 to 4, Girls.
Saturday Evening—Floor open to Men.

A meeting of the board of trade is called for this evening for the discussion of matters in connection with the proposed electric railway of the Southern Alberta Land Co. A resolution will be introduced urging on the government the guaranteeing of the bonds of the company.

Magrath Opposes Separate Navy Idea

Favors Centralized Control of Imperial Fleet

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 10—It is evident that the members of the Canadian parliament are not united upon the policy of establishing a Canadian navy. C. A. Magrath, M.P., for Medicine Hat, who is now on his way west, is determinedly opposed to to the attitude which has been adopted by the government and when the question comes up in parliament he will take issue with it, even if he stands alone.

Mr. Magrath rejoices that the principle has been laid down that Canada ought to bear her share of defence of the empire, but the manner of it should be direct contribution. His opinion is pronounced that the establishment of a new navy is a short-sighted policy. He is a man of peace and he believes that the trend of opinion throughout the entire civilized world is towards peace.

The desire for peace is so strong that in ten years the complexion of things among the powers may be vastly different from that which it is today. A Canadian navy ten years from hence might be a white elephant. Should the building of a navy be begun by Canada in ten years, the expenditure will have increased so enormously that we will not know where we are at. Besides air ships will have reached so near perfection that vessels of war may be out of date.

Mr. Magrath contends that in view of the fact that Britain can build warships and maintain them also at much less expense than Canada could hope to do, that the Dominion should offer Great Britain a contribution of perhaps ten million dollars a year with the arrangement that if Canada da changed her attitude at the end of some stated period, say ten years the British government should return to the Dominion the value of her contribution in ships or armament. And ten years hence Canada would be in a better position than today to judge what is best. Mr. Magrath has spent most of the summer in Ottawa studying the immigration question and will have some interesting matter to say before parliament next session. He is being urged to publish his views in book form.

Sewer Pipe Company Sign Agreement With Council

Plebiscite on Nov. 15

At a special meeting of the City Council held in the council chamber last evening, an agreement with the Alberta Clay Products Co. was considered and finally passed by the Council. Under the agreement the Council bind themselves to support the passage of a bylaw to be submitted to the people on November 15th (the earliest possible date) embodying most of the terms of the original agreement, with, however, several important changes. The Industrial Place site having been declared unsuitable by the company, a site on the flats has been chosen, embracing the 5 acres of the Laseball park (a new park will have to be provided for) and 17 acres of Mr. Fatt's property. The city has secured an option on the latter, which the owner agrees to sell for $1000 an acre.

The Clay Products Co. agree to erect a plant to cost $150,000, to employ from 60 to 100 men continuously. Excavation will be started immediately, and the foundations laid, and the company hope to have two kilns of bricks burned, of half a million bricks each, so that they can start building operations first thing in the spring. The plant is to be finished and in full operation by December, 1910, or, if the company can show sufficient reason why their work can not be carried through to completion by that time, an extension may be granted by the city. Next year the new gas well on the nuisance ground will be turned over to the company, but if for any reason the city's wells should be inadequate for the people's needs in the winter of 1910-11 the plant will be temporarily shut down on the city's request.

(Owing to lack of space The Times regrets that a full report of last night's proceedings cannot be given this week, but the above is in brief the substance of the new agreement, which was found satisfactory to the council and the company's representatives. If the company should not fully carry out their part of the contract, they agree to bear the expense of the plebiscite on the bylaw, $300.

The result of the canvass of burgesses recently made was that only two persons objected to signing the petition in favor of the proposition and one of these later admitted that his action was hasty.

The notable feature of last night's meeting was Ald. Penhale's lecture on the wickedness of the press and newspaper men in general. In his advocacy of Star Chamber methods the Alderman placed himself in the same category as King James I, Architect Dodd of Calgary, and the world-famed Neepawa town council.

Schools Field Day

The success of the field day was primarily due to the weeks of hard work on the part of the organizers, Mr. Sansom and Mr. Mencely, and the skill they displayed in the management of the events. With only a limited period for preparation the result was certainly a highly creditable one. The field officers carried out their work with efficiency, and interest in the events was maintained throughout. The city police were present on the grounds which were kept clear of all but actual competitors and officers. At the end of each event the athletes left the field until again called upon. The discipline thus maintained was highly appreciated by all and was an important contributing factor to the day's success.

In view of the complaints made by a number of citizens, that the band did not play so frequently as seemed desirable an explanation may not be out of place. Early in the afternoon as the result of each event were called off, the announcer found it impossible to make himself heard while the band was playing, and as there was some apprehension that the programme might become too protracted, Mr. Shuster was approached and requested to play less frequently.

The distribution of prizes to Friday's winners will take place about the end of the month. By that time it is anticipated that the certificates in connection with the departmental examinations held in July will be to hand, and the city hall will probably be secured for the commencement exercises.

The track and field officers were as follows:

Field events—N. Charlton, F. G. Forster, M. A. Brown, M. M. Downey, W. N. Smith. Scorers, S. T. Hopper, H. S. Craig.

Referees, baseball—J. E. Dickson; basketball, A. H. Mencely.

Announcer—Wm. Switzer.

The winners of the field officers' lemon, was Mr. M. M. Downey, Mr. N. Spencer and Mr. S. T. Hopper coming a close second and third. Mr. Hopper was eager to make this event a half-mile instead of a hundred yard dash, but this inhuman proposal was voted down by an overwhelming majority of field officers.

The results of the days events were as follows:

TIGERS VS. WHITE SOX

The game played between the Tigers and White Sox was very exciting The game started at 1.30 sharp and lasted till 2.15. Jack Barreau on 1st base did some good stunts, and Mert McLeod will soon be able to join the White Sox in the States. The Cory battery put up a good game.

The line up:

White Sox—E. Morns, pitcher; Lussier, catcher; J. Barreau, 1st base; M. McLeod, 2nd base; B. Trimble, ss E. McCarger, 3rd base; Anderson left J. McRae, centre and C. Gordon right fielder.

Jimme Beans made three errors and the sun affected J. Greves' eyes. Little Charlie put up a good game. E. Morris had a stiff arm but made the Tigers work hard for their money Score was 2—6 in favor of the Tigers

British Imperialism did not mean conquest. For the last fifty years Britain's whole course had been a course averse to war and entirely free from the idea of aggrandisement. For fifty or a hundred years Britain had held almost more territory than she knew what to do with. The object of her statesmen now was to consolidate the empire, not to subjugate other races. To come to the case of Canada herself no designs against her autonomy were entertained. It had become an unfortunate habit among politicians whenever a question of relations with Great Great Britain arose, to raise the cry: "Oh, we must look after our autonomy; we musn't allow our liberty to be taken away." Now Canada had been governed by good men from the time of Sir John A. McDonald down, but never had this cry been raised before. And the reason was that these strong-minded men who knew that our autonomy was not at any time threatened, who knew full-well that the object of the British statesmanship was not unalavement but a vast widening of the range of our liberties. No British statesmen and no party or section of the British people had the slightest wish to abridge Canadian liberties. The desire was rather to throw upon our shoulders greater responsibilities.

Fifty years ago the Manchester school of thought had a powerful influence over large sections of the people. This embodied the theory that the young nations should gradually be thrown off and allowed to swim for themselves. The Manchester school of thought had a powerful influence over large sections of the people. It found no support today, but in its place we found a wish for unity, concurrent action, sympathy, agreement, between the scattered people of British race.

Much of the dislike of the word imperialism was due to the studies of our youth, of the days of Imperial Rome. But between Roman and British imperialism not the least family resemblance existed. Roman Imperialism implied the triumphal cars with its captives from many lands, its treasures rifled from every nook and corner of the known world. Every trophy signified conquest, subjugation, tribute. British imperialism was typified in the Diamond Jubilee pageant, in which appeared people of every kind, tribe and tongue, none of whom were there except by their own free will, who brought gifts joyfully to present to the great British queen. Every one of these people were entitled to the same measure of British freedom as the man of London or of Edinburgh.

The ideals of British imperialism were simply these. Just as the members of one family who pulled together and grew together, mutually gained strength thereby, so should the members of the British family be united in bonds as strong as possible. Sympathy came first, and from sympathy sprang the desire for co-operation. Co-operation meant accelerated progress for all in one common path. British ideals, he contended led to the highest type of civilization, and our institutions had been copied and worked into the fabric of many nations not of British stock.

The supremacy of Greater Britain meant the most perfect possible guarantee for the continued peace of the world. To the man who wished to see the reduction of armaments and the end of war this should prove a convincing argument. British supremacy would decrease the possibilities of war, for no nation would dare to engage in an aggressive and unprovoked war. Add to the British force the fifteen or sixteen millions in the colonies, whose growth today was constant, Canada with her seven millions, which in the next thirty years might easily become thirty millions, aggregate all these scattered forces, said the speaker, and the result was a military equipment and naval force capable of demanding world-wide peace. The Empire would stand or fall according as union might exist between its different parts. The future depended upon the triumph of the centripetal over the centrifugal forces. Stability, permanence, endurance, power and peace—were the final objects of the British empire.

There were people who would say "This is an age of peace—we don't want navies, we don't want armies." But was this an age of peace? A moment's enquiry into the world's situation today would be adequate to dispel any such delusion. During the past fifty years the world had known more destructive wars, more costly wars, than in any previous period of her history. The cost of a single Dreadnaught was greater than the cost of all the navies of the Ancient Greeks. Two or three Krupp cannon were more costly than all the Grecian wars together. Within the last half century more money had been spent on war and armaments than during centuries of the ancient and medieval world. In the Crimea, in the struggle between Austria and Italy, in the Prussian and French wars, in the American civil war, in the great Franco-German conflict, in the Boer war, vast sums of money had been sunk. In the present year more was being spent on preparations for war than at any previous period in the world's history. The practical wisdom and common sense of the world recognized and acted on the assumption that however regrettable this huge expenditure might be, it was absolutely necessary to take steps to defend national heritage.

The most illuminating portion of the whole speech was that in which Mr. Foster devoted his attention to the tracing of the gradual steps which have led us thus far toward the goal and Imperial unity. There would be no violent wrench from present conditions when the end was at last achieved. We have in fact, all this and with scarcely a jolt the finishing touch might be put on.

In 1866—67, at the very birth of the Dominion, Great Britain had shown no desire to abridge our privileges, but had co-operated with us in extending our liberties and responsibilities. In those days the country was poor. It was under these circumstances that she found a powerful and valuable friend in the Old Land. Britain acted in a capacity similar to the capacity in which a friend of a struggling westerner might act today. Her action was like that of a man who said to his poorer yet aspiring friend, "I'll be your banker and enable you to get money at something less than 1% per cent." Britain's guarantee of the new Dominion's bonds had been one of the most noteworthy acts of a long series in which she had given of goodwill, sympathy and co-operation to her daughter nations. In the matter of the United States boundary, Britain invited Canada to co-operate with her, that in the negotiations the knowledge of local conditions of Canadians might be combined with the prestige and might of Great Britain. From that down to the present day the policy of the British statesmen had been to give Canada ever greater and greater powers, until the last treaty was left almost entirely in Canadian hands.

It was in the days when the speaker was minister of finance that a bill was brought down to grant aid to steamship lines on the Pacific seas. Primarily these were for the benefit of Canada and secondarily the Australasia, yet the British taxpayer contributed his quota of the expense. In the matter of the great Pacific cable, which established a great intercolonial news and business asset, the British taxpayer paid one third of the cost, while the Dominion and Australia contributed the other third.

In 1894 the first conference of colonial representatives was held at Ottawa, leading one year later to the first of the series of Imperial Conferences in London in 1897. Now these meetings for the exchange of ideas were held every four years.

Within five years' time the militia forces of the empire had been largely co-ordinated, in regard to strategy, schools and colleges. A military council of defence had been established, and throughout the empire a uniform system was gradually being worked out.

We had gone farther than theory. When the empire was threatened with disintegration through South African troubles, every outlying part was ready and eager to come to its aid. From now on it would ever be that when any portion of the empire was threatened help would be forthcoming from every part. For it was realized that if one great pillar were removed from the imperial structure, its fall was but a matter of years. An enemy could go on from the conquest. Without one dollar being paid other until every portion of the Empire were subdued.

"Canada," said the speaker "is a great country. Of that we are all agreed." The aerated Liberal was inclined to say in a spirit of boastfulness: "It's all since the Liberals came into power," while the aerated Conservative would attribute all to the work of the good old National party. The Canadian, the amalgam of the two parties, would exclaim: "We're the boys; we've made it." "They are all wrong," he went on. "There never would have been any Canada had there not first been a Great Britain with its prestige and its might. Britain's sons had fought, British blood had been shed in Canada's conquest. Without one dollar being paid by us the title deeds had been handed over and entrusted to our honor and our capability. Peace, peace had been ours simply because the aggressor dared not challenge the power of the Motherland. Our angel of peace had been the angel of might of the navy and army of Great Britain. Yet we enjoying this costly heritage had yet to contribute the first red cent towards the upkeep of the navy which safeguarded our shores. That does not set well on Canadians," said the speaker. It was a thought impalatable to a virile and independent people. The time had come when we must assume the defence of our trade routes and bear a fair share of naval responsibility. The proposals of the government, had not yet been disclosed, "but," continued Mr. Foster, "I hope and I know you hope these will be of sufficiently extensive character, of as adequate a nature as Canada is able to carry out."

One king, one flag, one defence,—what yet remained? Only the half of one thing. The colonies had granted to the Motherland trade preferences. England still remained a free trade country, and was thus unable to reciprocate. But there were signs of a great change. One of the great political parties had been committed by its leader, Mr. Balfour, to preferential trade, and ere many years had elapsed the final steps would be taken in the creation of a system of mutual development and encouragement of Imperial trade. The U. S. tariff which would come into force automatically in March of next year, penalized Canada because she granted specially favorable terms to the Mother Country. When that tariff came into effect, imposing an extra 10% of 25 per cent on this country, "some things would rock."

One very striking feature of the ex-finance minister's speech was his exposure of the common fallacy that it does not matter where one trades, the final result is the same. The Canadian firm which spent $100,000 in the United States itself gains its profit from the transaction. But since in every business deal there are two profits, the profit of the buyer and the profit of the seller, the second profit was diverted from the empire to the building up of the United States commerce. If that money were kept within the empire it would contribute towards the strengthening of the national life of our own people.

On the uncertainty of international politics, Mr. Foster gave a lucid exposition, showing how in the kaleidescope of Europe, treaties and alliances and friendships had been made and unmade within recent years, leaving the superficial student in a most bewildered frame of mind. Yet one fact remained clear. The scattered British Empire must maintain an overwhelming sea power for the protection of her trade routes. Six weeks or eight weeks of blockade of British ports would see the people of the old land reduced to the point of starvation. Then, when the heart of the empire was conquered, the outlying portions would fall easy prey.

To many of his hearers the speakers' statement that over 80 per cent of the emigration from the British Isles had in the past gone to build up, not the British Empire, but foreign nations, came as a revelation. Here, he pointed out, was an opportunity to strengthen the world state by diverting the emigrating thousands to British possessions.

Mr. Foster concluded his address with an eloquent appeal to the youth of Canada to build up a nation broad minded, honest, virile, whose sturdy robustness of charcater would be worthy of the descendants of Puritan sires. By building up a pure civic and national life the highest interests of the Empire would be promoted.

In a few brief words of appreciation the mayor expressed his gratitude to Mr. Foster whose address had caused the speaker to feel a greater pride in the fact that he was a Briton and a Canadian. The west today looked for development in the direction of Imperial Federation rather than in an approach to union with the republic to the south.

Ald. Huckvale moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer, remarking that if his address could be regarded as a specimen of what the Y. M. C. would arrange during the coming season he could prophecy for the series the very highest success. Mr. Foster was doing a very great educative work. Never before had the mover so fully realized how great and noble was the history of our race, nor how each step in the evolution of the empire had led up to the now almost completed consumation, as he did at the close of the evening's lecture. It was regretted that an even larger audience had not been present to hear his message.

Ald. Spencer from the body of the hall seconded the motion, stating as his opinion that no greater question exercised the minds of statesmen today than the question of drawing closer the bonds of the empire.

Troubled for Years With CONSTIPATION.

Constipation or costiveness clogs the bowels, chokes up the natural outlet of impure matter, and retains in the system the poisonous effete waste products of nature, thereby causing Biliousness, Headache, Piles, etc. Avoid this serious trouble by the use of

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

They act on the bowels and promote their free and regular action, thus curing constipation and all the diseases which arise from it.

Mr. Henry Pearce, 49 Standish Ave., Owen Sound, Ont., writes:—"Having been troubled for years with constipation, and trying various so-called remedies, which did me no good, whatever, I was persuaded to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I have found them most beneficial; they are, indeed, a splendid pill, and I can heartily recommend them to all those who suffer from constipation."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. per vial, or 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by the manufacturers, The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Do You Realise the Danger of a POISONED FINGER

DEATH OFTEN LURKS IN A CUT.

YOU see this danger illustrated in the case of Mr. W. C. Edwards, a well-known Friendly Society leader, of Peter Street, Toronto. He cut one of his fingers with a piece of glass, and instead of applying Zam-Buk to prevent blood poison and to heal it, he neglected the cut, and blood poison followed. He says:—"The blood-poison from the finger spread up my hand and arm and caused me terrible agony. After two months' treatment the doctor said there was no cure, and amputation would have to take place if I intended to save my arm. I left that doctor and consulted another. After a few weeks' treatment, he also told me that operation would be necessary. He said the bone had become diseased and the finger would have to be opened so that the bone could be scraped. I went away to consider when I would have the operation performed and met a friend who advised me to try Zam-Buk.

"That night I bathed the wound and put on some Zam-Buk. I got a little sleep for the first time for many nights. In the morning the wound began to bleed instead of the foul discharging as in the past. This was a healthy sign so I went on with the Zam-Buk. Well, to cut a long story short, in a few days I put away the sling, and in a few weeks the finger was healed completely. To-day that finger is as sound as a bell and I owe it to Zam-Buk. I spent over $20 in doctors fees and when I think how Zam-Buk at such a trifling cost saved me from amputation I am very grateful for the balm I can tell you."

The Question of Industries

Medicine Hat's experience with new industries has not been a particularly fortunate one, and there will be differences of opinion on the grounds of the difficulty. At the present time the cities of western Canada are all on a mad chase for industries, and unwarrantable concessions are occasionally made in order to secure the location of industries in the various places. The questions of bonuses is one which will stand considerable thought and in some cases has had to be regulated by parliament. At the present time an act forbidding a bonus of any kind would be a great safeguard to municipalities. It would remove all temptation for towns and cities to bonus unwarrantably for the sake of securing the industry rather than let it go elsewhere. At present whenever a company intends to extend its branches or start a new industry the plum is peddled from city to city and practically offered to the highest bidder. The system is vicious in the extreme.

The worst feature, however, is not the giving away of the people's money but the opportunity it gives to the mere promoter to get out his prospectus, use the municipality's offer as a bait, and sell his stock on the strength of it. Finally it is discovered that much of the stock is water, or the business is so bungled for a time that the investor is glad to sell out at a sacrifice. Many a man's hard-earned savings are lost in this way. Legislation to remedy the evil would not be out of place.

The Y. M. C. is to be commended for the public spirit it displayed in bringing to the city such an eminent public man as Hon. Geo. E. Foster. Owing to a number of counter-attractions, the executive feared that the undertaking might not prove a financial success and unfortunately their fears were realized. The Times is glad to learn that the suggestion made in its editorial columns some time ago, has begun to bear fruit, but regrets that it has brought financial loss to any organization. However, the feeling of the officers that the undertaking was "worth while" even at a small loss is a commendable spirit, and we trust that future efforts will meet with greater encouragement.

The request made to the Minister of the Interior that Medicine Hat district be constituted a land district is a most reasonable one, and if the government considers the well-being of the community it will not refuse it. Let every pressure be brought to bear to realize our desires. The Liberal organization owes a duty to the city and district, which under the circumstances only it can perform. Assistance may be given by non-political organizations, but the main pressure must come from the Liberal organization. It is in a position to do the city a great service, and it is to be hoped that no stone will be left unturned to bring about the reform.

The agricultural magazines state that dry-picked turkeys and chickens are the best. If the poultry offerings on the local market do not pick up Medicine Hat people will not be overexacting how the fowls are picked. The difficulty is to get any kind.

The Conservative press is discussing tariff reform these days. There is an opportunity for the party to do a great public service by bringing forward a genuine reform policy on tariff issues. So long as an election is purely a scrap for office neither of the parties will gain much in dignity by it, and a great majority of the citizens will fail to take it very seriously. There is evidently little to hope from the Liberals on this point. Their pre-election tariff promises now sleep peacefully in their grave. If a reform is to be brought about, it must come from the Opposition. So long as a farming implement manufactured in Canada can be bought cheaper in England than at the factory there is need for some reform. It would be a new thing to see a Conservative party advocating lower duties than the Liberals, but who cares for the traditions these days. The balance of power will soon be west of the Great Lakes, and the people here are farmers. If the party will bring forward a genuine reform policy on tariff questions it will sweep the west at the next election.

The Toronto News puts it too mildly when it says:

"There is no doubt that the mass of the Conservative party are opposed to any general increase of customs duties. They recognize that the present tariff, gives adequate protection to legitimate Canadian industries. If returned to office, therefore, the Conservative leaders would not revise the tariff upwards, and very probably would revise it downward at least as radically as the Liberal government is likely todo. Low tariff sentiment is powerful amongst Conservatives in the western provinces and the western representatives constitute a vigorous fighting element in the Conservative Parliamentary party. Moreover the Conservatives of the older provinces pretty generally recognize that the present tariff is as high as protectionists have a right to demand, if, indeed, in some cases, it is not excessive."

Government Annuities.

The following comment by the Saskatoon Phoenix sets forth the aims and purposes of the Government Annuities Act in a very fair and intelligent manner. The Phoenix has not allowed its party affiliations to color in any way its view of the act passed by a government with which it is in sympathy. Doubtless there are imperfections in it as in all legislation which time will reveal, and which cannot be fully known until proved by a trial of it. In the meantime it will fill to some extent a want among a certain class of people. We have not yet heard from the "insurance crank" who has religious scruples against all kinds of insurance. His opinion of a government which undertakes business of this kind will be interesting:

"The federal government is sending out a lecturer to explain the full scope and nature of the Dominion Annuities Act. The measure was recently put on the statute books and this is the method taken to popularize it as well as make it familiar to the people. Already the lecturer, Dr. Samson, has delivered many addresses in eastern Canada, where the press has highly commended the lucidity of his explanations of the new measure.

The act is different in kind and purpose from the British old age pension system. Its purpose is to make practicable the saving of money in as small amounts as possible and the encouragement of the saving habit. There is none of the pension idea about it at all. It is merely an attempt to encourage thrift by providing cheaply and efficiently the means of [illegible] annuities later in life by a [illegible]yments during the years of pr[illegible]ive activity. It remains to be s[illegible] how the scheme will work out. [illegible]siderable amounts have already be[illegible] invested by applicants and the [illegible]e is already beyond the sta[illegible]periment. It is a case of go[illegible]nt interference in the work of insurance companies to a certain extent. This no doubt can be defended on the ground that the aim is different, being entirely that of public benefit. Also the fact of the absolute security of the investment and the small amounts accepted ensure that the scheme will appeal to many who would not invest in insurance. Thrift in things material is an important quality in any people. France is an example. There the saving habit has made her the banker of Europe. Also largely on this account France was able to pay off in a very short time to Germany the enormous indemnity laid upon her people as a result of the Franco-Prussian war. The inculcation of a national spirit of thrift in the early life of Canada might have an important effect in making impossible the need of such a system of national pensioning as has been inaugurated in Britain.

With Moose Jaw in the throes of a "ladies' hats off in church" controversy, and Calgary unable to decide whether aldermen should have street car passes, we are lagging behind in excitement. Are there no more offices around the city hall which need to be abolished?

Press Comment.

ALBERTA LIKEWISE

(Canadian Gazette)

The expansion of many parts of Saskatchewan is almost staggering in its rapidity. Upon one small branch line of railway a handful of scattered pioneers are producing wheat this season at a rate which will shortly make the wheat production of that one little corner equal to the whole wheat crop of Ontario. Take, again, the one camparatively small district of Goose Lake. Even four years ago it was almost as untraversed as the Arctic wastes. This autumn its farmers are sending out 4,500 carloads of wheat and getting back hundreds of carloads of agricultural implements and stoves and pianos and furniture from the factories of eastern Canada and the United States—we wish we could add the United Kingdom.

GOING AFTER THE LANDS

(Calgary Herald)

The announcement from Winnipeg that the three prairie provinces provinces will unite to secure control of their own school lands is important. The fact that the three governments are not unanimous in their party views makes their co-operation in this matter all the more interesting. It is an instance of the western spirit that will not permit exterior affiliations to stand permanently in the way of western interests. If the Ottawa government only realized how independent its western supporters are at heart, how narrow a margin sometimes exist between support and revolt, it would not feel so secure of its majority.

The dominion government has nothing to do with education. It is only an anomaly that has permitted it to administer the school lands of western Canada. Nothing but the reluctance of a despotic administration to give up anything in the way of control has kept these lands in the wrong hands up to now. This country is office-ridden almost to death. The grip of Ottawa officialism on the new settler is such as to give the prevailing administration about a 75 per cent. lead in the chase of his vote. How desirable, then, that everything, even the school lands, should be used for the promotion of so worthy an object.

And now the western governments have rebelled and will ask that at least this small part of their assets be restored to them. May power go with them on their quest. Western Canada has been deprived by Ottawa of resources sufficient to make the whole dominion rich. Let us at least keep our school funds out of the maw of federal politics.

THE YOUNG MAN AND THE FARM

(Winnipeg Free Press)

While the declining percentage of rural to urban population is not any thing to be deplored, even in an agricultural country, so long as it is not accompanied by a decline in agricultural production, at the same time there is an exodus from the farm to the city that is not to the best interests of either. Two classes of boys and young men leave the farm. It is desirable from the national standpoint that one class should come to the city; it is desirable from that standpoint that the other class should stay on the farms.

The first class comprises those in whom intellect is developed to a further point than the body. They have an instinctive dislike for the physical drudgery inseparable from farm life in western Canada, while quite capable of undergoing the drudgery incident to securing a standing in commercial life or in one of the professions. They are not lazy but are temperamentally repelled by the native and social surroundings of farm life. The city needs such young men and they need the educational and social advantages which it alone affords. It is a well known fact that a canvass of those prominent in any walk of city life reveals a considerable preponderance of farm-bred and farm-raised men. Such infuse into the city's life a vigor of thought, freedom of action, and soundness of physical constitution, seldom found in the product of two or three generations of city dwellers. It would be futile and unwise to attempt to deny nature in this matter and arbitrarily declare that the boy born on the farm necessarily must be trained to regard that calling as his only future, while, on the other hand, the city-bred lad must never turn his eyes longingly to the green fields. An interchange of life and ideals is vastly to the advantage of all concerned and means much in the upbuilding of a virile national life.

But there is a second class of farm-reared young men who abandon the farm simply from lack of the strength of mind necessary to size up the whole situation and determine what is essential, what non-essential, and in what sphere their life can be made to count for most. On the farm they are in perfect harmony with all that is essential and unchangeable in their environment: they are indeed round pegs in round holes. But some of the non-essentials and conditions capable of reform or amelioration have operated to unsettle their minds. At home or in their place of service the hours of work are inordinately long, so the eight or nine hour day "looks good to them" and they overlook the relentless servitude involved in factory or shop conditions, and the monotony of the work.

While working for $30 a month and board, they see men with no better education or physical equipment earning $125 per month (without board) firing a locomotive, but they do not consider the hazards of the work nor compare the outlook on life of the railroader and the farmer when the declining years are reached.

So the glamour of the city is upon them and they are blind to the fact that most of their discontent with the farm is based upon the conditions readily controlled by a determined man. They abandon their calling—the only one for which they are really fitted and the one in which they would rise highest—and become wage-earners. A natural capacity and adaptability prevents them from exactly becoming round pegs in square holes, but they have become of less economic value to the country and much more of a loss to the farm they left than of a gain to the city they fled to.

Happily nothing can stop the interchange of blood and life between city and farm, indicated with a reference to the first class of young men, but strong efforts should be made by our educational system to hold on the farm and for the farm that second class, which experience asserts will do better for themselves and mean more to the country, than in urban surroundings.

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your NEW METHOD TREATMENT for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, pains of the hands, scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the NEW METHOD TREATMENT for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. The Mission of Kitty Malone

"Patsy," she entreated, "you run to the house—go now! I wouldn't inconvayniance ye, but it's ye's the most accomadatin' bye in the parish. If ye'd but be waitin' around kind of disthracted like to see if himself wants anythin' afore I get back—"

Patsy's freckled hatchet face looked out from its furze-bush of straight bleached hair with suddenly awakened interest. "What'll ya give me if I do" he demanded.

"Glory be!" ejected Mrs. Malone. She stood staring helplessly at the shabby young Celtic Shylock, who with his over-grown frame bent forward, his feet in the broken boots turned toes inward, his hands thrust in his pockets, and his ragged arms akimbo, awaited her answer with ravenous expectancy. "Why—Patsy, bye —" She was fumbling at the waist of her gown. Suddenly she desisted. If she had money at the bank—or anywhere else for the matter of that —would she be bent on her present mission? Would she be tramping the many weary blocks? Glory be! she said again.

There really was nothing more to say. Patsy's rapacious expression became merged in a bored frown. "Maybe it's going' to the theatre ye ar. Hope you won't be late." He cast a sharp glance at the basket. Involuntarily Mrs. Malone jerked it behind her back, but it was too big to escape notice. "I won't kape ye no longer romancin' ma'am!" With which Parthian shot young Mr. Heffernan took himself away.

Trembling, little Mrs. Malone looked after him. "Musha now, the gossoon hasn't got the heart of a berrin'! An' the way he looked at the basket. Wethen now, I wondther did he susnicion anthin'?" She bent her spare little body against the cancorous east wind and hastened on.

"Sure, if I shd make up me mind to go to Thomas—but he hasn't only all his own to kape, but his wife's auld aunt as well. Then there's Nora. But she don't know the last cent's gone an' it would scald the heart of her to think of us nadjis'—she's a that tinder the crathur! Malachi—he'd be free with his money—if he had enny. But 'twas never a dime he cud hould in his pocket no matther how much he airnt. An' Daylia, that's cook on the North Side—" she walked slower. Her head drooped meditatively. Was it possible she might let Delia know of her straits? Was it in her direction lay relief—reprieve? But as suddenly as it had come the gleam in the faded eyes flickered out. Delia had been saving to buy an automobile coat and a feather boa. Delia always had been stylish. And it was grand Delia always looked, to be sure, when she was dressed up. No it would never do to appeal to Delia! If only Rody were at home! Rody, the gay, loving hard working young fellow, who would never let her or his father suffer! But he had gone off to the Philippines this many a month back. Was he alive or dead? Sure 'twas a sad world it was! "Arrah, 'tis nothin' of the sort!" she told herself with sudden energy. "Isn't it ashamed of verself ye are to be paradin a long like a hin on a rainy day—now runnin' a bit and then stoppin' entirely! Go on wid ye!" she adjured herself sternly. "Go—" She stopped short as a massive form loomed up before her—a broad, roscate countenance beamed down upon her.

"Mrs.—Mrs. Comisky!" she murmured. She had long known Mrs. Comisky for "a dacint woman." They both belonged to the Married Ladies Society. They had been neighbors when the Malones lived in a brick house. Their children had gone to the same parochial school.

"'Tis me," corroborated Mrs. Commisky. She wore a cloth skirt an a coat of electric seal plush. From a fun collar a cataract of bushy heads and tails dangled over her capacious bosom. On her hat a long-beaked green bird perched in a groove of aspiring ostrich feathers. The vigorous hand she extended to Mrs Malone was gorgeously draped in a glove of purple kid. "'Tis a month o' Sundays since I set eyes on you," she went on. "I heard Dennis was took rale bad some weeks back. Better is he? That's good. You're not lookin' very well yourself. I've been down to visit my niece Maria. 'Tis twins—an' the christenin' is to be fit for a Roosian. But where might you be goin', Mrs. Malone? Ye're not walking down town?"

She looked down on the miserable little creature in the scant black gown, the worn black shawl, the insufficient bit of head-covering. She noticed the empty basket. She saw, too, that the old face was ghastly—that the thin lips were quite blue—that the old eyes were blinking fast. that the old eyes were blinking fast. "I—I was goin' to do some shoppin'!" faultered Kitty Malone.

Now Mrs. Comisky, for all her ponderosity and apparent obtuseness, could see through a stone-wall as well as any one. This was not the first time she had known a neighbor to slip timorously towards the city carrying an empty basket. But she had not dreamed things had come to such a pass with the once "aisy" Malones.

"An awful buisance the shoppin' one must be doin'" she remarked carelessly. She was looking over Kitty's shoulder at some object which interested her. "I spent every last dollar Tim give me except fifty cents. I'm goin' to step into his saloon on me way home. 'Tis lucky I met with ye if 'tis only half dollar I get let. This long time I've been savine to Tim I must pay you for that hin. 'Tis on me conscience when I go to confession the first Thursday of every month." Her hearty laugh sounded pleasantly. "So here 'tis—an' wishing it was five dollars I owed you—I do now!"

"What—what hin?" whispered Kitty Malone.

"Och, hear the woman now!" Mrs. Comisky was appealing to a striped pole nearby. "The black wan to be sure! The wan you let me have to make broth for Leo when you lived in the brick house. 'Tis like you to be forgettin' it!" She thrust the coin into Kitty's cold little claws of hands. "Take a car—do now! You'll find the shops most illegant. Good afternoon to you, ma'am!" Then Mrs. Comisky's gown was flopping after her in a way that she considered stylish, and Kitty Malone was shaking her head over the money in a dazed attempt to recall the debt.

"Glory be to God! What hin? I don't mind lettin' her have enny black hin—no, nor white wan! But she never looked at the basket. Sure now I'll stop stewin' myself about it!" 'Twas the saints sent it— Glory be—" She broke off in a sudden horror, the reverential rapture with which she had accepted the miracle worked in her behalf suddenly blotted out. "It were never the saints—never! What 'ud they have to do with a woman that told all the black lies I did this day? Three to Dinny! She chocked them off on her fingers. "Wan to Patsy Heffernen—an' wan to Mrs. Comisky—oh, wirrasthrue! What kind of a pennance won't Father Flynn be after layin' on me! Five decades maybe—wan for aich—or the stations it might be! Me poor sowl!"

Never loomed Bastille before a prisoner as frowned the grim gray wall of the building wherein is located the County Agent's office before the gaze of Kitty Malone. Never did feet more reluctant creep up the dirty stone steps into the dreary many-angled room, with its white-washed walls based by a deep band of slate-colored paint, its two slate-colored benches, its pillars of the same dismal hue. Never did heart sink sodden in a woman's breast as sank hers, when in obedience to a motion from the policeman on duty, to whom she had whispered her street and number, she crept to the foot of one of the waiting lines of applicants. There were three of these lines of depressed, patient people—men, women and children. Restricting and dividing each line were rails of the universal dingy, shade that emphasized the melancholy atmosphere of the place. A sign on the window to the right caught her eye:

BURIALS
Doctor Calls
No Patients sent to Dunning on Thursday

Dunning! She shuddered at the word. Surely she and Dennis need never go there! Something would turn up! Rody might come home! But if anyone were to see her here now! What if the fact that she had applied for relief were to get abroad in "the parish"! What—a voice recalled her. It was her turn at the window.

"Name?" asked the voice in a strong foreign accent.

She found herself looking up at a thin middle-aged man with penetrating eyes, a brownish mustache, and and expression of keen intelligence. Her name! She cast a terrified look around. The applicants to the rear were paying no attention to her. The greater number carried yellow cards, more or less crumpled and dirty. The man behind the window spoke again:

"Catherine," she answered huskily —"Catherine Malone."

"Ever receive aid from the county before?"

"No—oh, no sir!"

"Got help from—" He rattled off the names of half a dozen philanthropic and benevolent societies.

"Never, sir."

"Married, widow, single, deserted?"

"Married this forty-nine year to Dennis Malone, sir."

"How many children? Sex—married —employed—live at home?"

"Seven—five livin' here—two above sir. Three married, that has all they can do to care for their own. Wan workin' to kape herself, Wan in the Philippines, sir."

Would the questions never cease? A queer blackness came in fragmentary clouds before her. She had eaten no breakfast. There had been only enough to leave for Dennis. Involuntary she put out her hand—clutched at the ledge to steady herself. Suppose she were to be taken sick here, and it was put in the paper! It would kill Dennis. It would break Nora's heart. Delia could never hold up her head again! She must keep her dreadful secret! Still questions—questions! She answered them as best she could. Her age, her husband's, their nationality, the cause of their distress.

"That's all. The man looked up from his writing. "A visitor will call to investigate. That's all now."

Then Kitty found herself outside the wooden paling. A stream of people were surging across the room to another window on the opposite side —a window behind which barrels and boxes, sacks and bundles, all containing necessaries of life, rose in a mighty pile straight up to the ceiling. The portly policeman took pity on her bewilderment.

"You'll be around tomorrow," he assured her cheerfully. "Visitors will get to your place today. He'll give you a ticket. Come in tomorrow."

She did not know how she got out on Clinton Street. She was buffeting her way back, her empty basket dangling on her arm, and in her heart deep disappointment—a bitter despair. She did not know that, had she stated how immediate was their necessity for relief, she need not have waited for help until after the formal investigation. Now her only wild desire was to get back before the visitor arrived—to make sure Dennis would not grasp the import of that humiliating visitation. Surely, surely folks were prosperous this year! Surely this was to be a grand Thanksgiving! She could not remember ever having dodged so many dangling turkeys before the door of the butcher shops. And what pumpk ns—golden as the sun sinking down a yellow disc of flame behind her own Tipperary mountains! And plump ducks, and pink-fleshed loins of pork, and chickens, and all tempting viands. The smell from the bakeries turned her faint as she hastened on. There was hot bread in this one—there, that, was gingerbread!—and coffee—and tea. If there was but a wee pinch of tea at home! She had walked the whole way back —she was near their poor dwelling before she remembered that tightly clinched in her hand she held the fifty cents Mrs. Comisky had given her for the black hen of elusive memory.

"Glory be!" she cried, "an me to be complainin'! Me that's got a han'ful of silver." But suddenly she knit her brows craftily—walked more slowly. It was with much deliberation that she made some purchases. Meat was one. She knew that except to the families of old soldiers

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY
CURED HIM.

Mr. T. W. Robertson, Elm Valley, Man., writes:—"I was taken very ill with diarrhoea, and tried everything I had ever heard of, as being good for it, but without success until I was finally advised to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I was so weak and discouraged that I didn't expect to derive much benefit from it, but I am happy to say, that, after I had taken two doses, I was greatly relieved, and a few more entirely cured me. I shall always be pleased to recommend your medicine to all sufferers and I consider myself fortunate to get such a marvelous relief after expecting to die."

We wish to warn the public against being imposed on by unscrupulous dealers who substitute the so-called "Strawberry Compounds" for Dr. Fowler's.

If you want to be on the safe side, ask for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and insist on getting what you ask for.

no meat was furnished to the poor by the county. She took with her only two ounces of tea and a loaf of bread. She would come for the rest, she said, after dark. It would not do to have forty cent's worth of food in the house when the man sent to investigate should call. The ten cents would permit her to ride on the morrow. She gripped it hard as she hastened out of the store, her precious packages under her arm. She almost brushed against a young woman who was coming toward her.

"Mary Alice Ryan," she cried, "an' how is Larry?"

A pale and woe-begone face, framed in a black shawl which was held under the chin by a bony hand, looked down on her.

Bad, Mrs. Malone. He screams dreadful with the pain. The doctor says the kind of hip-disease he has can't be cured. It's hard—for a boy that's been as strong as any in the parish. If he had things to had things to play with like rich boys—" The mother's voice broke there.

"An'—an' ain't he?" The dime was burning Kitty Malone's palm.

"Some empty spools —a tin can—the cover of a picture book. That's all."

It was then that a whistle rent the air—just then that a man went by.

"Gimme a red wan!" cried Mrs. Malone. "You tie that to Larry's wrist, an' let him fly it. Wisha, woman, don't ye be for bawlin'! What's the nickles for, anyways, if the childer ain't to get the good of 'em! A bit of a b'loon, indade!" And Kitty skurried off with a gesture of magnificent scorn for that which the master called "trash." She found the fire out and Dennis asleep. He had managed to crawl over to the bed. He was still sleeping when the man sent from the County Agent's made his appearance. He looked sharply around the bare room, opened drawers and bins, scrutinized the small black heap in the coal-box, and asked a lot more questions, all of which Kitty insisted on answering outside the little ramshackle house lest "himself" should hear, and finally gave Kitty a yellow ticket which she was to present for "single rations."

It is the first step that counts. Kitty found her second deception less difficult than her first, aided with Nora the previous day. She had not gone to market. Yes, Mary Ellen was quite recovered. And now, sure she must be off if they were to have a bite of Thanksgiving dinner at all, at all!

"Ye won't be extravagant, Kitty? We can't have over much in the bank. A bit o' bacon now—"

"'Twas meself was thinkin' a bit o' bacon 'ud be rale tasty!" she agreed eagerly. "Turkey's that indigestible!"

"'Tis now. An it's never meself cud get to likin' them sour cranberries. A bited potaty an' a bit o' cabbage—"

"Sure what more could the Prince of Wales ask?"

That day she duly presented her ticket at the window marked "south west. She too received her coal-check and the "single-rations" which were her due. Could she carry them all home? The flour was unwieldy. She had made a public demand—she had asked for and received charity for the first time in all her cheerful, uncomplaining, hard-working, heroic old life. And the knowledge stung her. Her thin cheek was crimson. Her faded eyes had a strange glitter She had begged—and She saw If it were to save Dennis from suffering she would do it again. What would her children say if they knew! Thomas, who was a rail-carrier; Nora of the scant possessions and tender heart; Delia, who was a credit to the family when she came to see them, wearing her best clothes; Malachi, who would give if he had it—to any one, for the matter of that, and Rody—the baby of the family, "the best of the bunch!" as Dennis put it. She their mother—had disgraced them all! A rush of tears blinded her.

"Look out!" "Get out of there!" "Hi!" "You'll be—" "There—she's down!"

She was crossing the street when the shrill Babel of crisis assailed her. Startled, confused, she stood still. The delay was fatal. The next instant the speeding street car had caught the skirt of her gown. She fell—rolled over—over. A dense crowd gathered instantly. An angry shout went up. Kitty was helped to her feet. Rice, soap, flour, coffee—all that she had striven so hard to possess lay scattered on the half-frozen ground. But Kitty, bruised, shocked quivering with nervous fright, was not seriously hurt.

"Don't say anythin' to the man, gentlemen!" she pleaded. "'Twas me own fault. I do get romancin' when I'm alone. I wasn't looking out when I ought! 'Twas plannin' how I'd stuff the turkey for Thanksgivin' I was, when I got in the way. Sure,' as some one expressed regret for her loss, "what's the valy of a few trifles like that same!"

She would not give her name and address. She permitted herself, however, to be helped on the car she mentioned. She made home in a penniless, coalless, beanless state. And all the time, quite unconsciously, she gripped the bit of yellow pasteboard in her fingers.

The sight of a crowd gathered before her little shanty sent her reeling onward with a cry—faint, ineffective, quavering.

Dennis! Something had happened to Dennis! Dennis had learned of her deception and the truth had killed him!

It was Patsy Heffernan who reassured her—Patsey capering around, and yelling like an Indian. "There's a sojer—a sojer—a rale sojer in ther!" he screamed.

A path was made for the tottering old figure. She got to the door. It was opened. The blackness which had descended the day previous again came before her. This time it was lit by dancing flecks of flame. She staggered—fell forward.

"Mother!" The word sounded from a vast distance. "She's coming to—mother!" Strong arms were around her. A man's face bent over her—a brave, good face, brown and rugged, with straight mouth, square chin, and eyes full of loving solicitude.

"I didn't think my surprising you would give you such a turn, mother! I was wounded a while back. I got leave with some others. I wanted to be with you and father for Thanksgiving. I got most of my back pay saved. Here drink this wine Tim Comisky sent over. Mrs. Comisky is cooking supper. She came in with a basket just before I got here. I had Mary Alice Ryan buy our Thanksgiving dinner. I told her to get the like for Larry and herself while she was about it. What—what are you looking for?"

Their eyes met. "'Tis yourself is a skeleton, mother," he said. "We've got to get you good and hearty again." He had looked away. He kept his face turned from her. She put her arms about his neck—drew his head down to her breast.

"Rody, you—you know!"

"Oh, mother!" He could get no farther. He crushed a bit of cardboard in her hand. "Mother, if—if I hadn't come—"

"'Tis your mother is gettin' gay Rody!" cried Dennis, "Visitin' yesterday! Gallavantin' again today!" he cackled joyously. "I was thinkin' she'd use all our money on carfare. Then mabbe," laughing again at his own joke, "we might have to go to the county for help—Kitty an' me!"

"No fear of that," Rody laughed back at him. He was holding in his fond and faithful grasp the nervous hands which held some torn scraps of yellow paper. "No fear—eh mother?"

"No—glory be to God!" cried Kitty Malone. "Glory, an' —"

Her soldier son bowed his head—"Thanksgiving!" he said.—Western Home Monthly.

Lecture Postponed

Owing to the late arrival of his train Dr. Samson was unable to deliver the lecture on Old Age Annuities which he had planned to give in the city hall last Thursday evening. The doctor will return to Medicine Hat later in the year, however. The arrangements for the meeting are placed in the hands of the Y. M. C., under whose auspices we feel assured the lecture will be carried through to a successful issue.

From Medicine Hat Dr. Samson thence to Nanaimo, B. C. He will thence to Nanaimo, B. C. He will give a series of lectures at the principal towns along the line and will return by the Crow. He expects to be in Medicine Hat again in about twenty days time.

Dr. Samson is a scholar and a man of strong and rich personality, and any little sacrifice which our readers may make in order to attend the forthcoming lecture will, we are sure, be more than well repaid.

The following editorial reference to th doctor's lecture was recently made by the Moose Jaw News.

It bears none of the penalities of the annuity schemes of the life insurance companies, though giving every encouragement to the setting aside of a set sum to provide for old age. No less than $50 per annum and none larger than $600, the latter preventing wealthy men from setting aside annuities which would be more than a provision for comfortable old age. Should a person stop paying at any time, he merely suffers a loss of opportunity, for the money paid will always be there, and will be drawing interest at four per cent. compounded.

In commencing his very interesting talk, Dr. Samson said he quiet realized that the subject he proposed to deal with would at first sight suggest a mass of dry figures and statistics, His object was to endeavor to place before them the aims and objects of the system in a manner that would benefit the public, He did not wish to claim recognition as a lecturer. Rather, he was a doctor, who after forty years of hard work was taking a short holiday trip, and there is no gainsaying the fact that had any intimation of the doctor's ability as a speaker been received in advance a far larger audience would have been present.

He dispelled the idea that this annuity was a pension scheme. Money was not handed out by the government as a charity to old people. But by this annuity measure everyone in Canada could provide for themselves and that every man could provide for old age. An annuity was an arrangement made with a company or country by which a person paid in certain sums of money for a specified length of time, At the expiration of that length of time he ceased to pay in and commenced to draw out. The interest in the Canadian annuities system is four per cent. compounded every year. The entire expense down to the smallest item, is paid out of the general funds of the whole country as a bonus of encouragement from the people of Canada to those who may choose to make provision for old age, Once a man reaches the period of his annuity, he continues to draw every ninety days as long as he lives, and if he dies the government returns to his family, and to no one else, all the money he has paid in with interest compounded at three per cent. from the day his account was opened. The annuity is inalienable and has the whole resources of the country as a guarantee. No execution, or judgment, or tax collector can touch a dollar of it.

Life and Labor

(Canadian Courier)

In Great Britain there is today a great struggle between the idle rich and the idle poor, with the other classes trying to effect a re-adjustment. The same struggle is going on in Canada in a less acute and less pronounced form. The cities of Canada are, comparatively speaking, almost as well supplied with unfortunates as any city in Great Britain. The rich are becoming richer in Canada just as in Great Britain or the United States. Luxury and extravagance are becoming almost as common. The attitude which leads men to say that we should be thankful that affairs here are not as bad as in the motherland is a mistaken attitude. Considering the extent of our territory and the ease with which wealth is extracted from nature, our conditions are hardly less satisfactory.

Today, the public domain of Canada is being distributed with a lavish hand. The natural wealth of the people is rapidly passing into private hands. As a generation, we care little and think less of posterity, yet the welfare of posterity is the welfare of Canada as a whole. Our ideal should not be the making of millionaires, but the making of a prosperous and contented people. To create a body of idle rich will serve only to bring us in fifty years to the condition in which Great Britain now finds itself. The ideal of every legislator, and Canada possesses many hundreds of them, should be to initiate and support such legislation as will tend to conserve the natural wealth of the nation for the people as a whole, and such laws as will tend to give every citizen, present and future, equal opportunity.

BRITAIN'S INEVITABLE CONFLICT

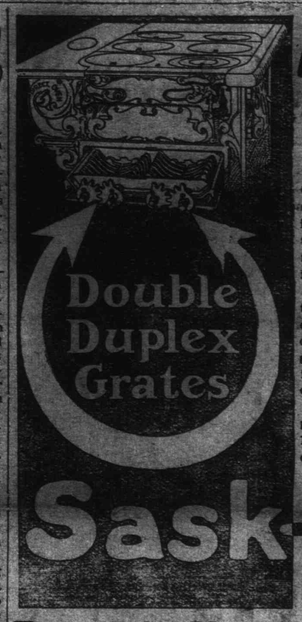
(Toronto Globe)

The Budget is only an incident. Discussion of land taxes touches only one point in the problem. Protection or free Trade is a phase of a far larger controversy. Lloyd-George the Liberals and the Labor men are not the cause of the struggle; they are merely voices giving utterance for the moment to the passion and the hope that stir in the heart of the nation. The conflict was inevitable. Its beginnings lay far back in the history of Britain's evolution into freedom. It is the agelong struggle of Privilege against equality.

And Privilege is doomed. Despite all the fine speeches about hereditary rights on the one side and the peril of Socialism on the other, things as they are cannot remain. By no desert of theirs the few have been born to idleness and luxury. By no fault of theirs the many have been born to toil and want. The idle rich at the one end and the idle poor at the other are the extremes of a civilization that cannot endure. A century ago Burns saw the tragedy of unemployment, when for the sake of wife and offspring, the haggard out-of-work only "begs a brother of the earth to give him leave to toil." That condition cannot survive. It is doomed because it is unjust. Today as never before in a thousand years the heart of Britain is moved as with a great tide and the issue of it all, if British civilization is to be saved, will be a new social order in which no man shall eat bread by the sweat of another man's brow. A nation with a million paupers hovelled and hustled together in the city slum and with a half-dozen landlords holding millions of acres of land for sheep and rabbits and deer—that nation in God's world can have not peace but a sword until justice is done and the honest man has an honest chance.

That time is at hand in Britain. The present distress may wear the guise of the day of the sword, but out of the coming confusion will emerge a new Britain. Mr. Will Crooks bears about on his body the marks of the conflict, but in his heart is the assurance of triumph. Lloyd-George, knowing by hard experience the injustice of things as they are has come into the kingdom for such time as this. Men like Asquith and Edward Grey will not turn back. If they did others would rise and reform would go on. The conflict is inevitable. The storm centre is not the Budget, but the social order. Equality will win.

GERMAN SOCIALIST CONGRESS



The annual congress of the German Socialist party, which has been taking a steady growth in the influence of what is called Revisionism, the newer school of Socialist thought, which is frankly evolutionary, conciliatory, and possibilist, as against the old Revolutionary school. For over ten years the difference between the two schools have come up at every Congress and overshadowed all other business at several. In the beginning the Revisionists made slow progress; often they seemed on the point of being driven out altogether, their position constantly was that of incriminated persons standing their trial. Although the reports of the Leipzig Congress do not, when critically examined, disclose any sort of sweeping Revisionist victory, they do indicate a remarkable change in the balance of power. It is now rather the Revolutionary wing which is on trial, blamed for the sterility of the party's action in recent years and the lack of any practical fruits corresponding to the power and organization which it has achieved. The change is mainly to be attributed to German trade unionism, which has in the last fifteen years made unexampled strides in its own field and is now making its voice heard in the political [illegible] behalf of immediate and practical reforms. The Socialist party, which has built this great trade-union movement up, cannot escape the lessons which its growth has taught the German working class—lessons by which German politics can profit.

A TEXAS BUFFALO SHOT AT BANFF PARK

Banff, October 7—The buffalo bull that was brought up from Texas at the time when the Banff herd was secured and who had the historic combat with old Sir Donald when the latter was deposed from the leadership of the herd, was shot today in the enclosure. The old fellow was seen to be sick and taught by the fate of Sir Donald who was killed by the buffalo when he was feeble and whose hide was so badly torn as to be valueless, the superintendent thought it best to secure this fine specimen for mounting. Supt. Hunter and N. K. Luxton dispatched him and the skin and the head were carefully removed and will be mounted.

ARROW LAKE, British Columbia

Mr. P. A. O'Farrell of New York, in a letter to T. P. O'Connor, the prominent editor and member of parliament in Great Britain, says in part—"Storms and tempests are utterly unknown, and as equally unknown are the extremes of heat and cold. Picture Killarney on a vast and far more beautiful scale, and free from the tempests and mists and rain, and you begin to realize the Arrow Lakes, with their beauty, grandeur and attractiveness.

"You are right in directing the attention of your readers to British Columbia. The picturesque beauty of its lakes and rivers and the sublime grandeur of its mountain scenery, find no parallel upon this globe of ours. And its climate and soil are all that are desirable for men and women who love open air life and bracing mountain air and an occasional hunt for caribou and elk. The apples grown on the shores of these lakes are the finest I have ever tasted, finer even than those I have sampled from Lord Aberdeen's wonderful orchards about fifty miles farther west. There is somothing in the sun, in the soil, in the ozone of these pure woods and in the absence of strong winds, that permits the growth and blossom and bloom of the apple in this new country as nowhere else on earth."

On Tuesday and Wednesday of last week the district court was in session, His Honor Judge Mitchell on the bench.

The following civil cases were heard:

Garlough vs. Dempster—Rekjevin action to recover possession of a quantity of building felt which Garlough had stored with Dempster. On Garlough's going to take the material out of storage, Dempster refused to restore it to him until the fees should be paid. Judgment was given for the plaintiff Garlough, for the recovery of his goods. J. J. Mahaffy appeared for the plaintiff, the defendant was not represented by counsel.

R. C. Becker vs. City of Medicine Hat—This was an appeal from the court of revision's assessment on the property of the appellant. Evidence pro and con was heard, judgment being reserved. W. A. Begg appeared for the appellant, J. J. Mahaffy for defendant.

On Wednesday two appeals against decisions of magistrates, the facts of these being as follows: In March, 1908, Gottlieb Lentz found on his place a stray heifer, which he later advertised on the instructions of the R. N. W. M. Police. No claimant appeared between March, 1908, and July of the present year, when one Fred Crewe appeared on the scene. Crewe noticed the animal in Lentz's pasture, and, believing it to be his, immediately commenced to drive it away. Lentz followed him and demanded one dollar for the keep of the heifer, which sum Crewe refused to pay. Lentz then brought action before Inspector Parker, who fined Crewe $5 and costs and also ordered him to pay the sum of $5 for keep of the animal. Then followed a counter stroke by Crewe at Irvine, where Lentz was charged before J. F. O. Barschal, J.P., with unlawfully demanding money under the stray animals' ordinance. Lentz was fined $5 and costs on this charge. Both parties appealed against the decisions of the respective magistrates who had found against them. Judge Mitchell, after spending the greater port of the day hearing the evidence, quashed both findings with costs. J. J. Mahaffy appeared for Lentz, D. G. White for Crewe.

Hole vs. C. P. R.—Action for damages for cow killed on the south line. Judgment was reserved. J. J. Mahaffy appeared for plaintiff, Mr. MacLeod of Calgary for the defendant.

Insects of the Arctic

In the midst of the row about the respective achievements of Cook and Peary comes the Announcement from San Francisco of a notable journey in the Arctic by a whaleman, W. J. Bower by name. In a gasoline schooner he and his party made their way to Prince Albert Land, 1,800 miles east of Point Barrow, the northernmost extremity of Alaska, and explored the interior of the country, whose inhabitants they describe as Indians rather than Eskimos. This difference is a contribution to ethnological science, while Captain Bower announces an equally interesting discovery in Zoology. There is a curious spider in Prince Albert Land which attains the enormous length of six inches and which is as dangerous as it is big. One of these creatures, which abound there in the springtime, bit the explorer, and the resulting wound was so serious that it destroyed the sight of one of his eyes. Most people no more think of associating spiders with the Arctic than they would think of associating white bears with the Amazon. The fact is, however, that the polar regions present some striking curiosities of climate and natural history.

We have before us the "Narrative of a Journey to the Shores of the Polar Sea in the Years 1819, '20, '21 and '22 by John Franklin, Captain R. N., F. R. S., and Commander of the Expedition", the American edition of this was published at Philadelphia in 1824. In this volume Sir John Franklin, one of the most famous of all Arctic explorers gives an account to the mouth of the Coppermine River and eastward along its mouth along the shores of the polar sea. Repeatedly in his narrative do we find mention of Arctic thunderstorms and complaint of the bitter annoyance which the travellers suffered from the Arctic mosquitoes. When actually on the sea coast he says of these pests:

"There was a sharp frost last night which formed a pretty thick crust of ice in a kettle of water that stood in the tents. Notwithstanding this state of temperature, we were tormented by swarms of mosquitoes; we had persuaded ourselves that the pests could not sustain the cold in the vicinity of the sea, but it appears they haunt every part of the country in defiance of climate."

There is entry after entry of a similar character. In the same region thunderstorms were of frequent occurrence in July. Indeed, when the explorers first endeavored to embark upon the Arctic Ocean, after their long overland journey from Hudson Bay, they "were detained by a strong northeast gale which continued the whole day with constant thunder showers."

When we add to the thunderstorms and the mosquitoes of the polar sea the newly discovered gigantic spiders of Prince Albert Land, we have an additional link of similarity between the temperate zones of the earth and the Arctic regions.

Drop into Prosser's, corner of Second Avenue and Montreal Street, and give him an order, a trial one. While there, don't forget to take a look at "the spot for bargains."

Religious Census

A goodly number of people assembled in the Y. M. C. rooms on Thursday evening, Rev. A. C. Farrell, president of the Medicine Hat Sunday school association, occupied the chair. H. F. Kenny, general secretary of the Sunday school association explained the object of the religious census. It does not make any claim to be a numerical census of the city. Its entire value lies in the fact that a large number of people are located for the churches, whose church affiliation has previously been unknown. Information is not required other than what will be useful to the churches. He explained how the city of Medicine Hat had been divided into visitors districts for the census here. There were 32 districts in all. He explained also the record card and dealt with the various matters of instruction which should be given to the visitors.

The various volunteers were then assigned to their districts and supplied with the necessary cards, etc.

The work was done on Friday. Those actually engaged in the visitation were: Rev. J. W. Morrow, Miss Libbis Hollinget, Mrs. Fleming, Miss Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Jessop Nott, Mrs. Cosens, Miss Wilson, Mr. Reynolds, Mrs. Benson, Rev. A. C. Farrell, Miss Louise Cleveland, Mrs. Beaumont, Jas. Wilson, Mrs. Curry, J. E. Miers, L. Bryenton, Lieut B. Richards, Mrs. C. Rossiter, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Damm, Rev. and Mrs. Bryant, Miss Bradley, W. Wilhelm, H. C. Fisher, Jno Henderson.

In almost every case the visitors found the work entirely congenial and the people quite willing to give the desired information.

The following is a statement of the records made. Quite a number were not at home but this information will be gathered and handed to the pastors interested. From a public point of view these figures are of no value except to show the relative strength of the denominations. It is safe to say, however that every pastor will have a list of new names that will keep him busy for a while.

The Basketball Match

As Seen by Dorothy Sightseer

Then I heard the man with the horn call out "Basket Ball match—Standard V. vs. Standard VI." now I wanted to see that basket ball match, so I asked ma if I might climb down off the grandstand and get on those things they call the bleachers, or bleachers or something. She let me go.

That Basket Ball is quite a game alright. The two sides seem to be all mixed up, and for a long time you cannot tell who's who.

I don't know what is in that ball. They all seemed to want it, but as soon as they got it they seemed awfully anxious to get rid of it again. I mean to ask one of those girls if it is hot, it seemed to be.

The grounds were divided into three parts, like fields, and the girls who are put into a field can't get out of it. I saw one step out once and the refree blew on that whistle something awful—and the other side got a free throw at their ring—and the ball went through. Then the refree held up one finger at a man with a book and a watch. I wonder what he did that for. But the girl didn't step outside the line any more.

Then I asked the girl who sat beside me the names of the girls on each side. She told me—and I'm going to tell you. Here they are:

Standard V.—Defence, Glyde McLaren, Isabella McDonald; centres, Edna Muir, Ethel Terry; forwards, Marjorie Rae, Mable Johnston.

Standard VI—Defence, Jean Nicholson, Elsie Gordon; Centres, Edith Sinclair, Erna Draudson; Forwards, Annie Wagstaff, Dorothy Wilson.

When I found out the sides that straightened me all out. Every girl had some other girl to chase, and if she chased anybody else the refree blew the whistle and the other side got a free throw. I think that's fair, too. It isn't fair for two girls to tackle one.

My, but Isabella McDonald can throw that ball! Once she threw it right accrost the field and hit a horse on the other side. I heard a man say that she was going to be a first class player if she staid with it. But she had a hard one to play agenst. That Dorothy Wilson is playing ball every inch of the time and she had quite a nack of putting the ball through that little ring, too. But talk of putting the ball through that ring. There was a girl down at the other end named Maple Johnston who couldn't seem to help putting that ball through the ring and quick too! She would have been putting it through all the time only a girl called Elsie Gordon wouldn't let her, kept bothering her all the time—and often even got it away and gave it to Jean Nicholson, who threw it and she certainly could throw, away down the field to Edith Sinclair that is, if Marjorie Rae didn't get it away from her and put it threw that ring again.

Edith Sinclair seamed to be all over at once. It kept Edna Muir awfully busy to chase her, but she did all the time, and often she got the ball first and gave it to Marjorie Rae.

There was two girls up at won end who were about the same seyes—and they both are dandy players. Annie Wagstaff had us all standing up, half the time, she came so clost to that little ring—and sometimes it went threw, but not always. The other girl would stand right in front of her and not let her aym rite. Just when Annie was bouncing the ball to get a little closer, Glyde McLaren would get it away down to Mable Johnston. My but Glyde can cach. She's the only one that could cach those swift ones of Isabel a McDonald's.

Mable Johnston and Marjorie Rae got the ball threw the ring fifteen times. It only counted twenty seven, because sometimes a score counted 1, and sometimes to, I couldn't see how they counted it Annie Wagstaff and Dorothy Wilson got it threw nine times, and it counted eleven. So the score was 27—11 in favor of Standard V. I'm glad to, because I mean to be in Standard V. next year. I mean to learn to play basket ball to, because its a good game.

Yours truly,

Dorothy Sightseer.

Baptist Church Anniversary Services

The anniversary services in connection with the Baptist church, of which Rev. H. Bryant is pastor, were held on Sunday last. In the morning the threatening weather reduced the attendance somewhat, but failed to dampen the spirits of the members of the congregation. Rev. J. E. Prosser, formerly of Port Maitland, Nova Scotia, but recently a resident of the city, was the preacher and delivered masterly addresses at both services. The choir acquitted itself very creditably, the morning anthem being "I will praise Thee O Lord," by Wilson. The lesson was taken from Gal, being the sixth chapter, the second verse of which formed the text: "Bear ye one another's burdens and so ful fil the law of Christ" The speaker referred to the fact that the day marked the eleventh anniversary of his ordination, the pastor later remarking that it also marked the anniversary of his assuming the pastorate of the church. Proceeding to elucidate his text, the preacher remarked that the world has done nearly everything that can be done with the words of Jesus except to obey them. Poets have sung praises concerning their wisdom, orators have paid glowing tributes to their remarkable insight, philosphers have recognized the truth of the precepts, but the world has not put them into practice. Christianity is believed in but not carried out. Not only so but vices, unheard of in heathenism, flourish in the midst of a Christian civilization.

In Christ's day the strangeness of his doctrine made it difficult to believe him. Now even the sceptic admits that the rejection of Christianity occasions greater doubts than its acceptance. But for all this Christ's words are not fully obeyed. The influence of Christ in the world is today greater than ever it was, and we can prove the reality of that influence by experimental religion, yet is not nearly so great as it might be—in other words, we do not obey. Jesus was a Jew by birth but he saw life from the human not the Jewish standpoint. His principles are applicable everywhere. So with that of the text. There are some burdens which must be borne alone, e.g., human pain, financial burdens, etc. Even in these Christ is a helper. By a law of his being he is constrained to help. Other burdens can be shared and the purpose of religion is to make men brothers. Nations as well as individuals need one another. God made the universe in harmony and the only schism in the world is between human beings. The law of the Christian life is helpfulness, and all who have Christ possess it. Human systems do not break down divisions, only Christ's law does that.

In answer to the question how can others' burdens be borne, Jesus Christ gives no rules. None are needed for if we have his spirit it is one of helpfulness and will find expression at every opportunity. No rules are necessary, only live out the brotherly spirit. We can trip up or lift up—which shall it be. Let us possess the spirit of helpfulness.

After the sermon the pastor briefly outlined the financial circumstances of the congregation and asked for an offering to be applied on the church debt. This was nobly responded to. A solo was exceptionally well rendered by Mrs. I. W. Moyer, entitled "Ever Near Me," by Jerome.

In the evening the text was Luke 19:10, "For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." The evening anthems were "As the Hart Panteth," (McPhail), the solo parts being taken by Mrs. N. W. Lean and J. Marshall; and "Onward Christians" (Wilson). Miss Katie Rae acted as organist for the occasion.

BOWELL

Mr. Schmelzer's threshing outfit has returned to this neighborhood after threshing McGregor's crops, and so far has completed at Sexton's, Slattery, Moffat, De Links, B. Loudon, Jas. Fleming and Geo. Grieves' and is now busy at Tom Bells.

The yields so far have been very satisfactory, Slattery and Moffat's wheat 27 bushels, oats 56 bushels, De Landis oats 50, Louden, wheat 27½, oats 40, Fleming's wheat 20, oats 63, Geo. Grieve is the top-notcher with wheat 37½, oats 65. This gentleman took 2nd prize for wheat and oats in the government competition, and his grain is certainly a very fine sample.

The thresher will have a run before it, as there is great quantity grain yet, the one truble Mr. Schmelzer has had to contend with is the scarcity of water, but thanks to the Messrs Lemons fine supply those in the immediate vicinity will have little trouble in this respect.

HON. G. E. FOSTER ON MEDICINE HAT'S FUTURE

During the visit to our city last week the Hon. Geo. E. Foster, the ex-minister and Mr. McMillan, manager of the Royal Bank at Edmonton, were driven around the city in company with Mayor Milne, by Mr. M. A. Brown, president of the Y. M. C. Both visitors were greatly pleased with the growth of the city and at the power house expressed wonder that this city had not already become a great manufacturing centre. They were surprised to find that power could be obtained at such cheap rates and predicted a great industrial future for Medicine Hat.

DISTRICT COURT

A theft case which was tried before His Honor on Wednesday evening had been handled by the Mounted Police on the same date, Inspector Parker sending the accused up for trial.

Some time ago Hugh Hassard and Josephburg took into his service a youth of 13 years named Reginald Sinclair who was sent to him by Superintendent Chadwick, part of whose duty consists of finding homes for neglected and delinquent children. Sinclair, it seems, had been an unruly lad at home and after his appearing in the police court at Lethbridge on some charge, he had been hand?d over to Mr. Chadwick, with the result as above.

Recently Sinclair surreptitiously rode away from the Hassard ranch, taking a horse, saddle and bridle which were the property of his employer. Mr. Hassard wired in to the Mounted Police immediately on learning of his loss and on Oct. 4th Corporal Harper effected the boy's arrest at Irvine. On Wednesday morning, the 6th inst., the accused appeared before Inspector Parker for preliminary hearing. Sinclair was sent up for trial and before Judge Mitchell pleaded guilty to the charge He was remanded into the custody of the police pending His Honor's decision. The juvenile delinquent's act has not yet been proclaimed and it is thus not possible to deal with this case under the act.

Mr. Morrison Enters Claim Against City

Municipailties Will Suffer by Cement Merger

At the regular meeting of the council held in the city hall last evening there were present the mayor, Aldermen McKay, Morrow, Spencer, Adsit, Howson and Huckvale.

The Medicine Hat News wrote in regard to instructions they had received to connect the water pipe from the roof of their building to the sewer. The writer stated that as there was no storm sewer the connection had been made with the existing sewer. They believed, however that the latter was inadequate in times of heavy rainstorms and stated that should damage to their stock or machinery result from flood at any future time they would hold the city liable for full compensation. The letter was referred to the public works committee with power to act.

A communication was received from the department of interior, Ottawa, in regard to the city taxation. A bill of $18.31 had been sent in, $14.56 of this being for sidewalks and $3.75 for "water frontage." This was evidently the first of a number of yearly payments to extend over a period of twenty years, but as the department always paid the full amount it would be necessary for a new account to be submitted, giving certain other particulars. The matter was referred to the finance committee with power to act.

The assistant secretary-treasurer read the following telegram, recently received by Mayor Milne: "New cement trust is raising price. Serious to all municipalities. Would suggest executive authorizing inquiry and strong but careful representations to Ottawa. After full consultation of all executive, wire your advice.—W. D. Lighthall, Sec. Union of Canadian Municipalities."

To this His Worship had replied as follows—"Your wire 11th. Advise strict enquiry into cement merger and possible combine. Will act if at all possible to Dominion authorities.—D. Milne, Mayor."

The action of the mayor was endorsed.

The Roberts Manufacturing Company submitted a statement of expenditure of one of their workmen while engaged at the pump house. The total was $287.95. Referred to water commissioners with power to act.

Mr. William Ansley wrote in reference to an account against himself for an engine purchased from the city and a counter account for the grading of the Macleod trail. The former amount was according to Mr. Ansley's calculation $80.70, the latter $65.20, leaving a balance due to the city of $15.50.

Ald. Spencer read a letter from the secretary-treasurer, Mr. Perry, referring to an account of $660 with the Canada Foundry company, being the balance due on the pumps and countershaft supplies furnished to the city by them. This account had been certified by Mr. Morrison when he was acting as engineer, but as a test of one of the pumps had not been made, the finance committee could not see their way to pass the bill. Ald. Huckvale stated, at this and at a later stage in the meeting, that a leakage in one of the suction pipes had been the cause of the delay in making the test. The difficulty

Clay Products Expert Visits City

Mr. Jas. Fulton, president of the Indiana Drain Tile Co., is spending a few days in the city with Mr. Warren Overpack, who is also a member of the above company. Mr. Fulton is on his way east after a trip to the Pacific Coast, and is looking over the city with a view toward the establishment of some industry here. Our cheap power appeals to Mr. Fulton forcibly and he is conferring with the authorities regarding our resources. He has had considerable experience with natural gas having sunk over 100 wells. He sounded a note of warning against the wasteful use of gas in communities where it is plentiful, and stated that many communities have now exhausted their wells which would have had enough to last 100 years if it had been carefully handled. Every consumer should be compelled to use the most an-to-date appliances, so that a minimum of gas and a maximum of air would be consumed. The street lamps being left burning impressed him as being a short-sighted policy. While at present it may be economy, the day will arrive when the citizens will regret that their predecessors did not practise more economy of gas rather than of money. This note of warning from an expert should be seriously taken by the civic authorities.

SCHOOL INSPECTION

Mr. D. C. McKerricher, inspector of schools, has just completed his official inspection of the Medicine Hat schools. Seen by a Times representative he expressed himself as highly pleased with the educational situation in Medicine Hat. Barring insufficient accommodation the schools were in a fine state of efficiency and this defect of course would be removed with the completion of the new school. The supervision of the work, the general discipline of the schools and the quality of the teaching were all highly satisfactory.

TWO RUNAWAYS

A runnaway occurred on Fourch avenue on Friday afternoon. A team hitched to a democrat was temporarily left by the driver, close to the traffic bridge. Finding themselves untethered, the horses started off at a trot along Fourth avenue towards the hill. At the corner of Toronto street a citizen attempted to check them, but was unsuccessful, and the animals dashed up the hill at a good pace. At the top another attempt to stop them was made, but they again broke away and had travelled a considerable distance along the beach land before they were finally stopped and returned to the care of the owner.

A runnaway which might easily have had more serious consequences occurred on Saturday forenoon. While Colter's transfer rig was standing near St. Patrick's church, the mare for some cause took fright and breaking away was soon careering down the lane which runs parallel to and between Toronto and Main streets. The animal turned toward Toronto street when the new Fatt block was reached, ran amuck along South Railway street and was finally stopped near Hewitt's Hardware on Main street by James Nichol. Luckily neither mare nor rig sustained serious injury, the former mercy sustaining a small leg wound.

SITE FOR THE NEW ATHLETIC PARK

While dissatisfaction has been expressed in some quarters with the proposal to turn the Athletic Park over to the Alberta Clay Products Co., no counter-proposition has been laid before the council and the general opinion seems to be that the proposed course is the best that could be taken. It is understood that a site may be acquired across the river at a reasonable figure, for park purposes. The property is conveniently near to the bridges and would be more central so far as the great majority of citizens are concerned, than the present location. The Y. M. C. and fire-brigade athletes would find it much more suitable for practice purposes than the old park on the flat.

Meeting of Western Canada League

Next Monday, October 25th, a meeting of the Western Canada Baseball league will be held in the American hotel, for the winding up of the business of the season. The President and secretary of each club in the league are expected to be present. Matters of great interest to baseball will be discussed and plans for next season considered.

In the evening the local club, the Pennant Winners, will entertain all the officers of the Western Canada league at a banquet in the hotel.

MASONIC TEMPLE

The construction of the new Masonic Temple on Montreal Street between Fourth and Fifth avenues is proceeding apace, and the temporary structure will before many weeks have passed through to completition. The building at present being erected is 33 x 66 feet in dimensions, of one storey, with a 15 foot dome ceiling. The lodge room will be 32 x 50 feet. The ventilating and heating arrangements will follow the most modern and efficient lines.

It is the intention of the members of the order to erect a large block in the business part of the city and this plan will later be carried out. The present building, however, will meet in a highly satisfactory manner all the needs of the order for some time to come. The plans were drawn up by John Trimble and the work is being carried out by A. P. Burns.

TWILL BE A GREAT CONVENTION

Reports from every part of Alberta go to show that there will be a bumper attendance at the big Sunday School convention in Edmonton, Oct. 27, 28 and 29. All denominations are interested and will be well represented. General Secretary Kenny, expects fully forty persons to travel 800 miles, or over, each way in order to be there. Marion Lawrence, General Secretary of the International Sunday School Association and Prof. E. O. Excell of Chicago will assist. A choir of 500 voices and a host of the most prominent workers in Alberta will also take part. The committee is certain that much over 100 delegates will attend and single fare will thus be secured on C. N. R. and C. P. R. Full convention privileges are accorded to all who attend but every school is urged to appoint official delegates who will bring a report to the school

TEACHERS' CONVENTION

The third annual convention of the teachers of both east and west divisions of the Southern Alberta Association will be held in Lethbridge on Thursday and Friday of this week. Many of the teachers of the city schools will be in attendance and the following are on the programme. Miss Wood—"Devices in number work"; Miss M. C. Sutherland "Busy Work"; J. W. Fulton—"Education in Scotland".

SHOOTING PARTY

Parties of sportsmen journeyed out to Bow Island Lake during the week-end to enjoy a few days' shooting. Dr. Hargrave left on Saturday and on Sunday Messrs. C. S. Pingle, D. G. White and A. P. Burns followed in Mr. Pingle's automobile. Messrs. J. Hawke, J. K. Drinnan and Tom Hutchinson left for the lake yesterday morning. Many of the party will remain there during the greater part of the week.

TWIN CITY WILL NOT RUN AGAIN THIS SEASON

On Sunday the Twin City Limited going west (No. 5) passed through the city for the last time this season. The eastbound train (No. 6) will pass through Medicine Hat on Friday for the last time.

The Supreme Court

Criminal and Civil Cases

The following cases were heard before Mr. Justice Beck, at the Supreme Court sittings beginning on Tuesday of last week.

Rex vs. Schram, perjury—In this case F. H. Schram was charged under five counts in connection with the action of Trimble & Co. vs. Schram heard before Judge Winter in February of last year. After the case for the prosecution had been concluded, counsel for the defence asked that the case be withdrawn from the jury as he held that no evidence of wilful perjury had been forthcoming. After a careful summing up the judge decided that no proper evidence of wilful perjury had been produced. The case was accordingly withdrawn from the jury and the prisoner acquitted. W. A. Begg prosecuted for the crown, D. G. White acted for the accused.

Rex vs. Mayberry—In this case G. Mayberry of Irvine was charged with the theft of a horse belonging to Jas. McCaslin. After the prosecution had presented its case His Lordship discharged the prisoner without the calling of witnesses for the defence. While he did not believe that the prosecution had been inspired by malice against the prisoner, he held that Mr. McCaslin's proper course was to bring a civil action, when if he could prove ownership he might obtain possession of the horse.

Rex vs. Collins—Prosecution for illegal sale of a steer. Prisoner was acquitted without evidence for the defence being called. W. A. Begg for the crown; D. G. White for the accused.

Leo St. Denis and Geo. Sept, Jr., the youths who were sent up for throwing stones at a moving train at Walsh, entered a plea of guilty, and were allowed out on suspended sentence.

Rex vs. David Weiss—In this case David Weiss of Josephburg, a man over twenty-one years of age was charged with the seduction under promise of marriage of a girl under twenty-one years. The accused was found guilty. He was afterwards bailed out on suspended sentence.

CIVIL CASES

Tierney vs. Lait—In this action William P. Tierney and Mrs. W. P. (nee Walton) were plaintiffs, and J. J. Lait and others defendants. Plaintiffs sought to recover the sum of $3,548.75, being the amount with interest alleged to be due on a certain agreement of sale made by the Plaintiff Vant with the defendants, and which was subsequently assigned by her to Tierney, for property near the city of Medicine Hat, the original purchase price being in the neighborhood of $10,000. D. G. White appeared for the Plaintiffs; W. A. Begg and C. W. Kealy for the defendants.

The defence was that the defendants were induced to enter into the agreement by misrepresentation by the agent of the plaintiff Vant, that one Smith was to have become a party to the agreement instead of the defendant Lait, that Smith did sign the agreement and, subsequent to the other defendants' signatures, that the name of Smith had been obliterated and Lait's name inserted and that the agreement was thereby rendered void.

Plaintiffs contended that the defendants not having repudiated the agreement when previous payments were made to the plaintiff Vant they thereby ratified the agreement.

Judgment: — Agreement rescinded with costs.

James S. Knight vs. R. R. Stoner Land Company, Red Cliff Realty Co. and Canadian Pacific Railway Co.—This was an action for specific performance and to recover damages for non-performance. White and Casey of Regina for plaintiff; Kealy of Medicine Hat and Ross of Regina, for the defendants. Begg for the C.P.R

The plaintiff bought land at Red Cliff from the Stoner Land Co., and Red Cliff Realty Co., who agreed to sell the mineral rights under said land, which were reserved by the Canadian Pacific Railway company when they sold the land to their co-defendants. The C. P. R. confessed plaintiffs claim so far as it effected that company. Case settled out of court.

A case in connection with the winding up of an estate is not yet settled.

Mr. Cushing and Construction of Telephones

Ald. Spencer Interviews Minister

Urges Completion during the Present Fall

While in Lethbridge last week Ald. Spencer had an interview with the Hon. W. H. Cushing, minister of public works for the province in regard to the completion this fall of the telephone construction between this city and Lethbridge. Mr Cushing stated that the reason why the department in the spring had considered the possibility of leaving the construction of this section over for another year was that it was thought settlement in this district was too small for a fair return on the outlay to be possible. Later in the year the public works department found themselves with an account overdrawn by $100,000 and for this reason they decided not to continue the line beyond Grassy Lake this fall.

The crying need for telephones in our district being brought to his notice, Mr. Cushing promised to do all in his power to have the line completed to Medicine Hat this year. It was suggested to the minister that construction might be commenced at this end as the government had originally promised to do. Mr. Cushing, however, stated that the stringing of the line between Grassy Lake and Medicine Hat would only be a matter of some twenty days' work so that it was quite immaterial at which end the start was made.

It was very noticeable, said Ald. Spencer, that from Lethbridge telephone lines radiated in every direction. The line from Lethbridge east has it seems, only been completed as far as Taber, and not to Grassy Lake, as has been stated in some quarters. This means that an additional 30 miles must be constructed before the connection with this city can be made, the distance to Grassy Lake being 40 miles and to Taber seventy miles.

The department will certainly have to be kept hustling if Medicine Hat is to enjoy inter-city telephone communication during the coming winter. It is high time that the government turned its attention from the pampered constituency in the south-west to devote a fair proportion of expenditure to improvements in this district.

Dr. Tory Speaks Here Tomorrow

Dr. Tory, president of the university of Alberta, will address a public meeting on Wednesday evening of this week at 8 p.m. in the city hall. The president will deal with university problems in general and especially the problem of the agricultural college. The aim of the university is to come in to as close contact with the people as possible, and as the university is yet in its formative stage this meeting will give the general public an opportunity of meeting the president and becoming acquainted with the university's plans. The meeting should be well attended by citizens and any within reach from the country.

There is talk of a repetition of the Y. M. C. masquerade which was such a great success last year. This will meet with the general approval of the young people of our city.

Clay Products People are at Work

Since Wednesday last the Sewer Pipe Co. have been busily at work on the new site chosen by them, upon which, if the plebiscite on Nov. 15th prove favorable, their large manufactory will be erected. In the course of a few days excavation for the concrete foundation of all the building will be complete. Yesterday a car of machinery was unloaded and this will be erected in its permanent position; a temporary frame building 16 feet wide is being put up for the purpose of preserving from exposure to the weather such machinery as cannot be used until the spring.

Meanwhile the company are calling for tenders for concrete work. Tenders for work of a minor character will be opened this evening, and the contracts let.

All being well the company hope to have commenced the manufacture of brick by the tenth of November. A large number of men will be employed on the work to be carried out this fall as Mr. Overpack wishes to carry things through to such a stage that the large brick buildings may be erected as soon as the season opens next spring.

B. Y. P. A. REORGANIZE

A meeting was held in the Baptist Church on Thursday evening last, the purpose of re-organizing the B. Y. P. A. U. which has not been meeting during the summer. A number of new names were added to the membership roll and the general outlook is very encouraging.

Pittsburg	020,203,010—8 8 0
Detroit	000,000,000—0 6 1

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 16—What is believed to be the largest crowd that ever saw a baseball game in Detroit went out to Bennett Park to witness the seventh and decisive game of the world's championship series between Pittsburg and Detroit. The weather was cold with the thermometer registering between 30 and 40 degrees above zero. The sky was clear although the weather forecast showed snow flurries. Detroit turned out en masse for the final game of one of the finest baseball battles that has ever been fought. A great majority of the crowd that went to Bennett Park was confident of a victory for the American league champions. Many wagers were made at even money and several were recorded with Detroit a slight favorite at 4 to 5 or 9 to 10.

George Mullin the hero of the series in the eyes of Detroit supporters was confidently expected to be the choice of Mannager Jennings, as the man to pitch the crucial game. The day was too cold for Donovan. Mullin warmed up in fine shape and the crowds sent up a great cheer when it was seen that he was the pitcher upon whom Jennings had decided to depend to win the world's championship.

O'Loughlin was the umpire behind the bat with Johnston on the bases, Klem and Evans on the out foul lines.

The following is the line up of the two teams:

Pittsburg	Detroit
Bryne, 3b.	D. Jones lf
Leach, c.f.	Bush, ss.
Clark, lf.	Cobb, rf.
Wagner, ss.	Crawford,c.f.
Miller, 2b.	Delehenty 2b
Abstein, 1b	Moriarity, 3b.
Wilson, r.f	T. Jones, 1b
Gibson, catcher	Schmidt, catcher
Adams, pitcher	Mullin, pitcher

Umpires: O'Loughlin, Evans, Klem and Johnstone.

The crowd which gathered at Bennett Park was something of a disappointment as while 28,000 or 24,000 were expected it was estimated that not more than 20,000 people were present. The weather has moderated a trifle but is still a bit chilly for perfect baseball. The thermometer hovered around the 50 mark and a brisk west wind blows.

Knox Church Social

On Wednesday evening last the Young People of Knox church met for a social evening in the cosy home of Mrs. McLeod, 722 Princess Ave. A most enjoyable evening was spent, some 20 young people being present. During the evening the question of organizing a Young People's club was discussed and steps were immediately taken to elect officers and outline a series of meetings for the winter. These will be held every Wednesday night and will be arranged in a way calculated to be both interesting and helpful to all young people. Judging from the enthusiasm show at this gathering the enterprise must succeed. The next meeting will be held again at Mrs. McLeod's. Miss Best will give a talk on the life of John Howard. All young people are cordially invited to attend. Don't forget the place, 722 Princess Avenue.

CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION NEXT YEAR

A masquerade social will be held in the Y. M. C. on Monday, November 1st (the day which will be celebrated this year as Hallowe'en)

AN ENJOYABLE EVENING

The members of the Epworth League had a very enjoyable evening in the basement of the Methodist church last Tuesday. They had a small but much enjoyed programme; some of the selections being: A piano duet by Misses J. Walton and S. E. Nesbitt; a vocal duet by Misses L. Nason and Gowan; a piano solo by Miss K. Rae; and they also had questions and answers on missionary work led by Miss L. Cleveland. Of course they had their usual amount of fun, introducing new members and having their usual all around hand shakes.

GORTON'S MINSTRELS COMING

Gorton's Minstrels returning from a trip to the coast, will appear at the opera house on October 25th. The Calgary Daily Herald comments on their record performance in that city as follows: "The Gorton Minstrels made a very happy variation in the form of entertainment by the applause of a packed house. The first of the evening was mostly devoted to musical numbers interspersed by many funny gags. Although each song was duly encored, interest was redoubled in the second part especially in the funny sketch "Courting on the old Swanee". Some extremely neat dancing was given in this, which, combined with a long series of neat stunts, made the audience very much pleased with the performers themselves. The hoop act is a miracle in accuracy of eye and hand, and is well worth seeing alone any day. The evening ended with some clever accrobatic feats."

Convention of Alberta Municipalities

The first session of the fifth annual convention of the Union of Alberta municipalities was opened on Thursday night in the auditorium of the central school. Pres dent Griesbach took the chair and announced the opneing of the session naming the committees of credentials and resolutions. The following gentlemen were named for the committee on credentials: Mr. John T. Hall, Medicine Hat; Mr. Elliot, of Strathcona and Mr. Dickson of Macleod. The committee on resolutions consisted of Mr. Gaetz, Red Deer; Mr. Gariepy, Edmonton; Mr. Higgs, Wetaskiwin; Mayor Henderson, Lethbridge; Mayor Jamieson, Calgary and Mr. Brown, MacLeod.

Mr. Hall, the secretary of the Union, gave the report of the credential committee, stating that all credentials were in order. The report was accepted.

President Griesbach opened the meeting proper in the following words:

Gentlemen of the Convention,—I welcome you to the fifth convention of the Union of Alberta Municipalities. During the past year the province has enjoyed that full measure of prosperity to which we have become accustomed and which we almost claim as a right. Growth and development of our municipalities has kept pace with the growth and development of our province, and everywhere municipalities are grappling with the problems which necessarily present themselves for solution in connection with municipal growth. The solution of these problems is the special work and business of this body. I regret to note that there is a feeling among some of the larger municipalities, that having solved many of these problems they have nothing to gain by their connection with this organization. To carry this view to its logical conclusion would place a bar upon all organization and co-operation. That the strong may help the weak is the highest expression of our modern civilization.

It was expected that during the present year the new municipal act would have been brought down. I have reason to believe that the government have the matter in hand, and that at a future date this very important measure should receive your earnest consideration. I regret that the government did not see fit to make us a grant for the extension of our work and the question of financing the union will be laid before you for your consideration and I trust that some solution of the difficulty may be found! I desire to draw your attention to the excellence of the work done by our energetic and capable secretary, Mr. John T. Hall of Medicine Hat, and I hope that in some manner, ways and means will be found to enable him and the officers of the union to carry out the work which we have set ourselves to do.

W. A. Griesbach,
President.

The secretary-treasurer's report was read by Secretary Hall. The report showed total collections amounting to $1,208.48, total expenditures of $901.50, leaving a balance of $364.98. The report was received and filed.

A report of the Convention of Canadian Municipalities at Medicine Hat and Calgary last July was read by President Griesbach.

The president then explained that it was the intention to answer any questions that might be asked during the meetings, and explained that these questions which anyone might care to have discussed, should be left in the president's drawer.

The first paper on the programme: "The Most Economical Fire Protection for Villages and Towns," by R. G. Davidson, chief of the Edmonton Fire Department, was read by Secretary Hall, Mr. Davidson being unable to be present.

Among other things he strongly advised the storing of water supplies in convenient places, in cement tanks if possible. The hydrants cannot always be depended upon as sometimes they are found dry when most needed, owing to the fact that something had gone wrong at the power house. The volunteer fire brigade should have at its head a chief who knows the business thoroughly and is able to train the men efficiently. The qualification of a good fireman was a sense of duty to work for the common good and a readiness to obey orders.

Practices should be enforced weekly or semi-weekly, and it was very important, he advised, that all the equipment should be kept in perfect trim and ready for service at any time.

The paper was received and filed.

Mayor R. R. Jamieson of Calgary read a paper on municipal ownership of public utilities and dealt with the various enterprises in these lines in which Alberta municipalities had embarked.

Mr. Spencer, of Medicine Hat, thought that there should be legislation enabling cities to count their revenue producing utilities on the assessment of the city which would enable them to obtain debentures to a much higher figure than was possible now, and where the city was entitled to them. This view was held by many of the gentlemen present, and it was thought advisable to bring the matter before the government and see if some legislation to this effect could not be obtained.

Hon. W. H. Cushing conveyed the regrets of Premier Rutherford who was unable to be present and also discussed municipal ownership!

On Friday morning the delegates were shown the city, after which the morning session convened at 10 o'clock. A paper by Prof. Edwards of Alberta University on "The Present State of the Septic Tank," occupied the attention of the delegates.

The big item of discussion during Friday's session was a discussion of the "Cities Bill" which will be introduced in the Alberta Legislature next session. The bill was considered clause by clause and the opinion of the convention recorded.

Mr. W. A. Buchanan gave an address on "The Newspaper and its relation to municipal affairs" after which the election of officers resulted as follows:

Honorary President, W. A. Griesbach, Edmonton.

President—H. H. Gaetz, Red Deer.

First Vice President—W. Gariepy, Edmonton.

Secretary Treasurer—John T. Hall, Medicine Hat.

Executive Committee—T. Dickson, Macleod; H. L. Higgs, Wetaskiwin; W. Laurie, Cardston; G. Hatch Lethbridge; Mayor Lee, Edmonton; Mayor Young, High River.

Calgary was selected as the place for the next convention.

In the evening the delegates were tendered a banquet. Among other toasts "The Press" was responded to by John T. Hall who said that after having had many years of intimate relations with the press he was convinced that the antagonism that often exists between the press and the council could be overcome by the councils taking the newspapers into their confidence. He has always found them honorable in withholding from publication anything that premature publicity would be against the interests of the municipality. If the councils try to withhold the news the papers will get some report of it, for said Mr. Hall: "The newspapers are the corkscrews of public life."

The delegates from this city Aldermen Spencer and Morrow, Sec.-Treas Perry and John T. Hall returned to the city Saturday.

Remarkable scenes attended the discovery of hidden wealth, including a large quantity of copper and silver coins, at Hyde Park Village, near Belfast recently. Workmen were engaged in excavating for new sewerage works when the first coins were unearthed. News of the "find" soon spread and quickly hundreds of people—young and old—flocked to the scene from various parts of the countryside. Spades shovels and a various assortment of implements, including domestic appliances, were brought into use by the hundreds who hoped to share in the discovery. Many of the diggers were successful coins to the value of several pounds being recovered from the earth. It is remarkable that most of the coins thus secured were of comparatively recent dates. No explanation has as yet been offered for their presence in the soil.

A remarkable story of a scene in an Irish jail comes from Birr, Kings County. During the night a prisoner became insane and attacked the keeper of the jail in savage fashion. The wife of the keeper hearing her husband's shouts for help, opened a neighboring cell and released another prisoner named Wall. The latter, a powerfully-built man, speedily overcame the madman and remained on guard over him until the keeper secured aid and transferred his charge to the sylum. Later, Wall, who had been arrested on a charge of theft, was complimented by the magistrate, and dealt with under the first offenders act.

A remarkable and serious incident is reported from Taungs, in the Bechuanaland Protectorate. Two natives from Maleking arrived in Moffi's territory, announcing that they were "prophets" and in spite of the efforts made by Moffi to stay their progress, they made their way south, holding meetings from time to time. At Taungs they attracted a very large crowd and while one vehemently declared he was sent as a divine emissary, the other chanted at intervals "Glory Hallelujah." Regarding this as a kind of a chorus in which they might join, the spectators assisted in the refrain with all their lung power. So far little harm was done, the affair being regarded as comic rather than otherwise. But a turn was given to the situation when the orator, worked up to a very excitable condition, turned towards the village and declared that before the sun went down not white man or woman must be left alive in it. This justified the interference of the police, who arrested the prophets and escorted them to the magistrate. A still worse part to the story follows: An angry crowd of over a thousand natives followed the small procession and behaved so insultingly and threateningly before the magistrate that nothing but the whip of the Moffi himself, plied vigorously, right and left, could effect their dispersal. The government are making full inquiry into the incident with a view to discovering what influences have been at work to provoke it.

In recent years a growing feeling of concern has been manifested in India in the fate of the tiger, and the government has even been urged to take measure for restraining the zeal of the shikari fraternity. Some districts, however, might present a very different picture of the great cat. Only recently a man-eating tigress, as crafty as she was destructive, met with her death after achieving an exceptionally evil record, extending over many seasons. Now the conservator of forests in Bengal reports that man-eating tigers are unusually busy in the Sundarban forests, where they are stated to have killed 120 men during the last year. These beasts were particularly active in the Khulna Coupe, of which the closure was only prevented by the putting down of poisoned deer. Rewards were paid during the year for killing eleven Sundarban tigers including two cubs.

From ruler of savage tribes in the Fiji Islands, back to the life of a Texas cowboy, is the remarkable experience which has befallen Joe Carr and Edward Burns, who passed through Kansas City lately on their way west. When returning from Australia some years ago their vessel was wrecked in a storm near the Fiji Islands, and they found themselves in a boat with two sailors. Two days later they made land and were received by a grotesque assembly of savages. The quartet of whites had a rifle and three revolvers and several rounds of ammunition, but they soon ascertained that the attitude of the natives was friendly. The savages hailed them as superior beings soon Carr was the king of the island and Burns was the prince. "I had a happy reign as far as absence of trouble was concerned," said Carr at the Union Depot. "The natives seemed to divine my wishes and they were as obedient as the best reared children. We had plenty of fish and game for food, but with nothing to do but watch for a sail the time certainly was lonesome. We kept a signal flying by day and for the first few months we kept beacon fires burning at night. It was almost two years though, before a tramp ship came our way. Both Burns and I by this time had been decorated with tatooing such as you see on my face, which indicated our rank. Our skins were almost black, and when the boat's crew came ashore they had to examine us closely before feeling satisfied that we were really white men. It took us several months to get back to this country, but here we are, and here we are going to stay."

Telephones

The announcement that the construction of the telephone line westward along the Crow's Nest line is out of practical politics this year is a distinct blow to the interests of Medicine Hat, and reveals a situation which under no circumstances should be allowed to exist. The city took the bait offered them at the last provincial election and elected a representative who was a member of the cabinet. It was broadly hinted at the time that the Edmonton authorities would not sorrow over their colleague's defeat. But that defeat did not come, and as a result the province possess a cabinet which is all Edmonton and Calgary—principally the former. It would seem as if Lethbridge has decidedly more influence at Edmonton than Medicine Hat has—despite its cabinet minister. If the minister of agriculture took the trouble to know the needs of his constituency, and particularly those of his own city and had any weight in government circles things would have been vastly different. It is to be hoped that the electors will make a better choice next time they are given the opportunity of choosing a representative.

In striking contrast to the attitude assumed by the local member is that of our federal representative who paid us a visit last week. At present he is spending his time going over the constituency, not with any base motive of vote catching—for the next election is a long way off—but in order that he may familiarize himself with the needs of his constituency. Mr. Magrath impresses one as being a man who takes his position seriously. So many members of parliament are mere figure-heads whose hand counts for one when it comes to a vote. They are distinctly back-benchers and vote according to the crack of the party lash. Not so with C. A. Magrath. He has already announced his stand on the naval question, and it is certainly independent of the party. On every other question he can be depended on to take an intelligent and independent stand. He is studying the problems which have to be faced, and although only one session of the house has passed he has already won recognition. Such men are a valuable national asset.

Press Comment.

WELL DONE MAGRATH

(Regina Standard)

At length there is discovered among western M.P's. one who has the courage to speak out against the mad project of a Canadian navy. C. A. Magrath, representative of the Medicine Hat constituency is the man.

Mr. Magrath was for many years an esteemed member of the Territorial legislature. He is a man of mature judgment and his forcible pronouncement upon the navy project will be heard with interest and will contribute towards the forming of a wholesome public opinion upon the subject.

Unfortunately both political parties seem to be puddling in the same mire in regard to this matter. Instead of showing their loyalty and attachement to the Empire with a reasonable contribution as did New Zealand, Sir Wilfrid proposes to saddle the people of Canada with a navy and the Conservative leaders do not seem to have the courage to say him nay!

Why cannot the great powers stand together to prevent plunder and to punish proud usurpers. They have done it before! Why should not a parliament of nations pass and enforce international laws, just as the empires and their internal divisions and sub-divisions enact and administer regulations by which the strong shall not oppress the weak?

Again, as Mr. Magrath points out, conditions are changing so rapidly that long before a navy patterned after nineteenth century models could be completed, modern methods and new inventions would render it as useless as the proverbial white elephant.

Canada has not the money and cannot afford to assume an attitude offensive. The greater victories are those of Peace. Let those be sought rather than the cruel and costly carnage of human monsters claiming divine rights. This is an age when the people rule the world over. Let the people speak.

ONE OF THE STAR CHAMBER

(Regina Leader)

Some time ago Editor Dunlop of the Press, Neepawa, Manitoba, was ejected from a meeting of the municipal council at Lansdowne. Mr. Dunlop took action against the council because of his ejectment and he not only won his case before the magistrate but on appeal before the county court judge as well. The judge held that municipal councils have no right to sit in secret without showing good cause for such procedure.

Flowers for Winter

It is of no use to select plants for winter blooming that are naturally delicate and require coaxing and careful culture even in green houses. There are few plants adapted to winter blooming, but those few will prove very satisfactory if they receive the proper care. Among these may be placed the geraniums, because there are few flowers that will lighten and brighten up a room more than they, and few that require less care; but sunshine is essential to them so would not advise them for anyone that has not an east window in which to grow them.

Geraniums do not like a wet soil; they should be kept moist but never wet. In potting them for winter blooming, it is necessary to see that the pot has proper drainage—pieces of broken crockery or bricks are excellent for this purpose. Break up fine, and put an inch or more in the bottom of the pot, acrording to size. If the pots are properly drained there will be no danger of the soil getting muddy, since the water not necessary for the use of the plant will drain off. Another important thing to remember is never to select for winter blooming a plant that has bloomed during the summer. Very few plants indeed will bloom the whole year round, and the geranium is not one of those; so see to it that all plants intended for winter blooming are prevented from blooming during the summer, by nipping off all buds as they form. Geraniums, as well as other plants, will bloom better in small pots, rather than in a large one. If the roots are some what cramped there will be more flowers than if they have too much room.

About once a week give your plant a little fertilizer, and you should have plenty of bloom. They will do well in almost any kind of soil but prefer a loamy soil with leaf mold or turf and sand mixed in. They should be bushy and compact, and this result can be obtained by persistently pinching back the unruly branches when they are inclined to go wrong.

Some of the best results in bloom can be obtained with certain varieties of begonias, especially of the fibrous-rooted. Most of these bloom winter and summer continuously with little care. They have bloomed the whole winter long in the cellar without one bit of attention except an occasional watering. One great advantage of the begonia is that it is never bothered with insects, scales or worms. Some of the best varieties of these begonias are the Vernon, Purity, Rubra and Weltoniensis. The latter has delicate pink flowers that have the sheen of frost work. The Rubra has coraled flowers, and is also a free bloomer; the flowers being borne in large loose branching panicles that contrast nicely with the dark green of the foliage.

The foliage of nearly all the begonias is pretty in itself, and usually has a sheen like satin, and often the stalks and stems are a bright red. These begonias grow in a compact, bushy manner, which makes them the more desirable for a winter plant. Begonias like more water than geraniums and less sunshine; but the pots must have good drainage—this is necessary for all pot plants. They like a spongy, turfy soil. One composed of one-half rotted sod or the soil taken from under the sod in an old pasture is good. This should be mixed with one-fourth gritty sand and one-fourth leaf mould or well-rotted manure. Do not re-pot unless overcrowded with roots.

The single varieties of petunias will bloom well in the window during the winter with little care. They bloom constantly and freely if given a window where they get plenty of sun. Do not be afraid to cut the flowers, since the more they are taken off the more freely will they bloom Plant in an ordinary rich soil, but apply fertilizer once a week. The double varieties do not make successful winter bloomers.

Nasturtiums are another flower that can be grown in the window satisfactorily if given plenty of sunshine. The seeds may be planted in late summer or early fall for this purpose, and are pretty in a hanging basket or trained up a trellis. Be they fade if you want plenty of sure to pull the blossoms off before bloom.—Country Gentleman.

Doctors Said Only Zam-Buk Could Cure Her Eczema.

In view of the numerous cures which Zam-Buk has worked when all else has failed, there is little wonder that in the end the doctor attending Mrs. J. P. St. Denis, of 305, Thompson Street, Winnipeg, should tell her there was nothing but Zam-Buk could cure her. The result showed the far-seeing wisdom of this practicioner, and having been completely cured by Zam-Buk, Mrs. St. Denis gives her experience for the benefit of other sufferers.

She says: "Eczema started on one side of my face and nose. At first my nose felt sore, similar to what one feels when having a bad cold. I paid no attention to this, thinking it would pass away in a day or so, but to my surprise it got worse. The nose then became swollen and hard, and turned a purplish red, as well as part of the cheek on that side of my face.

"As the disease developed pimples and ulcers broke out, then the skin cracked in places and peeled off in flakes, leaving my face and nose raw and sore. This condition reacted on my general health, and I became very ill. I could get no sleep at night because of the irritation and the pain and my face was in such a shocking condition that for two months I did not go out of the house. I applied remedies which were supposed to be good for skin diseases, but in vain.

"My doctor also treated me, but without effect, until one day he said that the only thing which would now be likely to cure me was Zam-Buk.

"Acting on his advice, I procured a supply and found that even the first few applications had a soothing effect on the sores. I left off everything else in favor of this balm, and applied it liberally every day to the affected parts. In a remarkably short time, considering the obstinate nature of my disease, we saw traces of improvement, which encouraged us to perserve with the Zam-Buk treatment. Zam-Buk reduced the discoloration, then the hard swelling began to show traces of leaving, the sores seemed less angry, and in about three weeks' time most of the sores were healing nicely. To cut a long story short, I continued with the Zam-Buk treatment until my face was cleared completely of all traces of the troublesome and painful eczema."

Such was the experience of Mrs St. Denis, and scores of other sufferers could tell of similar experience. Zam-Buk is Nature's own healer, being composed of pure herbal healing essences, and free from all trace of harmful animal fat or mineral poison It is a sure cure for cuts, lacerations, burns, eczema, ringworm, festering sores, poisoned wound, bad leg, and all skin injuries and diseases. Zam-Buk is also a cure for piles Druggists and stores everywhere sell at 50c. a box, or post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price. You are warned against cheap and harmful imitations sometimes represented as "just as good."

The phenomenon of a shower of fish occurred at Campbeltown, Argyllshire, a short time ago. A number of townspeople, taking a walk on the slopes of Knocksalbert Hill, were surprised to see on the grass a large number of very small fishes, varying in length from 1¼ to 2 in. The fish appeared to be the young of the herring, and their presence on the hill in considerable numbers created much speculation. In August 1894, a shower of herring fry was experienced at the head of Longrow, but there was no doubt from whence the minature fish had come, for they fell from above onto the hats and clothing of several men and at the time a small black cloud of remarkable density was directly overhead.

How to Pit Potatoes

Potatoes may be pitted for winter in several different ways with almost equal success, but a method which has been found very satisfactory in the North-West is the following: Estimating about 2,218 cubic feet for a bushel, it would require a hold about 10 feet wide, 8 1-2 feet deep and 40 feet long to nicely accommodate 1,000 bushels and leave a little margin. If it is desired to pit a less quantity, the size of the pit may be estimated accordingly. The hole is filled to the level of the ground with potatoes and as a precaution to prevent the earth falling back in the hole when filling logs are laid on the ground along the sides of the pit and the potatoes will be kept freer of soil if the sides and ends are lined inside with boards. There should be a roof over the pit with a slight elevation in the centre which will permit of a circulation of air. The roof is made of logs placed close together, after which it should be well sodded, but before putting on the sod it is well to throw a little hay over the poles to prevent the soil from the sod falling through the cracks on the potatoes. After the sod is put on it should be covered with soil, making a depth of about a foot of sod and soil. When severe weather comes on this should be covered with a foot or less of dry, well rotted horse manure. In the roof there should be three ventilators made of boards, each about 9 or 10 inches square, one in the centre and one at each end. During the cold weather these are stuffed with sacking and an empty box turned over them to prevent snow or rain getting in. When fitted in this way it has been found that a temperature of about forty degrees F. was maintained throughout the winter. There should be a hole dug at the end of the pit when it is being made so that it may be entered in late winter or early spring, but this should be kept well protected so that no frost will get in at that end.—Family Herald and Weekly Star.

STEADILY IMPROVING

It is only fitting that Canada, the greatest agricultural country in the world, should lay claim to the greatest outdoor market on the continent. It is fitting too, that this market should be located at Hamilton, the center of the wonderful Niagara fruit district, and it is eminently proper that the story of that great outdoor market, copiously illustrated, should be told in Outdoor Canada's a October issue, which is now on sale at the news stands. The issue is a notable one, containing a wonderful amount of interesting reading and a wealth of splendid illustrations, the whole printed on the finest of paper and with a handsome four-colored cover design. Among the articles of special interest are Canada's International Exposition, Mount Robson's Summit Scaled, Moose in the Cassiar District Through New Ontario and the Railroad Photographer. A Muskoka Romance by Herbert Shearer, and A Wild Boar's Skin, by Lieutenant Percival Lancaster, are short stories well worth reading, while sports and the Kennel—important regular departments—are up to their usual high mark. At the price—10 cents—Outdoor Canada is splendid value.

The Perennial Sow Thistle

(By J. W. Wheaton)

Whether it be that modern agricultural methods are at fault or farmers are more neglectful with regard to them, certain it is that the weed problem is becoming a much more serious one than it was twenty years ago. There are ten injurious weeds to be found today to one 25 years ago. The Canada thistle used to be the only weed that the farmer need bother his head about, with occasionally wild oats and mustard as a kind of side line, that required some attention. Today the list is a large one, not so large in some parts of the country as in others, but taking the Dominion as a whole, it runs up to startling proportions. It is said that in the Canadian West there is every kind of weed that will grow north of the 49th parallel.

It has come to this that the weed problem must claim the farmer's first attention, if he desires the greatest success in the yield and the quality of his crops. Just as the fruit grower must utilize every means at hand to keep insect pests in check, in order to insure a crop of fruit, so the farmer must leave no stone unturned in his efforts to eradicate the weeds or keep them under control. An energetic educational campaign on weeds and how to destroy them is something that governments should take up at once. At Farmers' Institute meetings and other gatherings the coming season, weeds should form one of the chief topics of discussion. The extent to which weeds have spread over the farms of even old Ontario in recent years is positively alarming. A drive through any part of the country in the growing season will convince one of this. The clean farm, free from weeds is a rarity and is likely to disappear altogether unless urgent measures are undertaken at once to counteract the ravages of weed pests.

The one weed more than any other that needs special attention at the present time is the Perennial Sow Thistle. It is one "foreigner" that should be rooted out stem and branch and sent back to the place from whence it came. It is by all odds the worst weed in the east at the present time. There are few localities where it may not be found if a persistent search is made. It is spreading rapidly and in some sections threatens to entirely over run the fields and drive the farmer out of business. One reason why it spreads so fast is that many farmers are unable to recognize the pest. The writer was one of those who did some judging in the field crop competitions a few weeks ago. In an oat field in Western Ontario he found one of the plants. The owner of that field did not know what it was and yet he considered himself an up-to-date farmer, and prided himself on having a farm that was free from any injurious weeds. There are hundreds of farmers in the same class. If this weed is not recognized, when it first gets into a field, it is not very long before the whole farm is infested and the work of eradication becomes an almost impossible task. It is just here where a good educational campaign on the weed question i would prove valuable. It would familiarize farmers with the nature of this and other weeds and enable them to get to work at once to eradicate them before they obtained a foothold.

The Perennial Sow Thistle is often mistaken for its two comparatively harmless cousins, the common annual sow thistle and the spiny annual sow thistle. It however, differs in a marked degree from the other two. The Perennial Sow Thistle is a taller, coarser growing plant than either of the other two. It has numerous underground rootstocks, while the annuals have only fibrous roots. The leaves of the Common Annual Sow Thistle are deeply cut and lobed and scarcely spiny. The leaves of the Spiny Annual Sow Thistle are almost entire, very prickly and often waxy. The leaves of the Perennial are deeply cut, but not lobed and slightly prickly. The flowers of the Perennial are bright orange in color, about ¾ inches across, while the flowers of the annuals are pale yellow and less than half an inch in diameter. The seeds of the three species also differ as to shape and markings.

A more detailed description of the Perennial Sow Thistle may not come amiss. It is a tall, coarse growing weed with deep roots and numerous thick underground steam. Upon these rootstocks at intervals of a few inches are borne buds, which develop into new plants. The stem is smooth and hollow and the whole plant is filled with a milky juice. The leaves are pointed, 4 to 12 inches long, deeply cut with the segments pointed backwards, slightly prickly. The flower cups or flower stems, are covered with distinct, yellow glandular bristles. The flower itself as already stated, is bright orange in color and from one to one and a half inches across. The seeds are dark reddish-brown in color, about one-12th of an inch long, somewhat spindle shaped, bears a number of very deeply wrinkled longitudinal ribs. At the top of each seed is a tuft of white, silky hairs which, when dry, act as a parachute and enables the seed to be carried long distances by the wind.

This insiduous weed has, therefore, two ways of propogating itself by seed, which spreads rapidly and widely, if allowed to ripen, and by underground rootstocks, which with wonderful quickness, spread through a field send up new shoots which soon entirely choke out all other vegetation. The rootstocks when broken up are often carried from field to field by harrow or cultivator. It has been estimated that an average plant produces annually 2,000 seeds. With thousands of these plants going to seed on neglected farms, on roadsides and in fence corners, is it any wonder that the Perennial Sow Thistle is becoming such a serious pest in this country.

Like all other weeds this one can be dealt with most effectively when it has just got a start. The plan to adopt here is to kill the weed by depriving it of light and air. Quick growing crops such as rape or buckwheat established in the land while the thistle is in a weakened condition will often do this. The same result may be obtained by covering the plants with straw, dirt, leaves, etc., to sufficient depth to prevent them from reaching the light and keeping them covered long enough to exhaust the roots. This will require at least a year.

A plan that has proven very effective in the United States in smothering Sow Thistle, if the patches are not too larg? and are not widespread, is to fasten down tight with pegs or something else, tar paper sufficient to cover the whole patch. Anything else that would keep out light and air would do as well. Where the patches are small, digging out the plant, roots and all and burning them, is effective. But care should be taken to get every bit of the root. The patch should be carefully watched and if new shoots appear they should be taken out at once and destroyed. Experience has shown that in ordinary seasons several diggings will be required to completely exterminate the patch. The smothering plan, with tar paper or something else, in the long run will be less troublesome and just as effective.

In dealing generally with Perennial Sow Thistle and weeds of like nature some sharp, short crop rotation should be adopted, which will allow of the frequent use of the cultivator the cutting of flowers before seeding, and the introduction of a smother crop or hoed crop. The farmer must select th? rotation best suited to his conditions, keeping in mind those features of rotation which will best enable him to fight this pest. Hoed crops alone do not give entire satisfaction in fighting the Perennial Sow Thistle. In cultivating and mowing the rootstocks are cut, but not all are destroyed, and in a short time begin to grow again. Hoed crops are useful in keeping this weed in check, but should not be depended on alone.

Than there is the summer fallow. It is very effective with all weeds, including this one, but the work must be well done. A neglected fallow is worse than nothing, and becomes a bed for the propogation of all kinds of weeds. To be effective a fallow should be given sufficient cultivation to prevent the pest from reproducing itself by means of seeds and roots. Many farmers are resorting to this method for checking weeds. But unless the fallowing is well done it will not bring satisfactory results and the condition of the field, so far as weeds are concerned, will be worse than before.

Several detailed methods might be given for the eradication of the Perennial Sow Thistle, were space available. Here is one recommended by Prof. Zavitz: Cultivate the field up to the middle of June, running over it frequently with the cultivator, so as to keep the tops down and thus weaken the roots. Then apply manure at the rate of twenty tons per acre, (12 good loads), Cultivate the manure in thoroughly and with a double mould board slightly ridge up the land, making the ridges about 26 inches apart. On these ridges sow pasture rape at the rate of 1½ lbs per acre. Sow the rape when the land is sufficiently moist to insure quick germination of the seed. Cultivate the rape every week or ten days until it occupies all the ground and makes further cultivation impossible. If where the rape is cut or pastured and Sow Thistles remain, the field should be ridged up the last thing in the fall and put in with a hoed crop the following year.

Here is another method recommended by Prof. Day: Immediately after harvest, gang-plow shallow and run over the field several times with the broad shared cult vator. Later, in the fall plow a little deeper, and continue cultivating every week or ten days as the season permits. Last thing before the ground freezes up, rib up the land with a double mould board plow. The following spring give frequent cultivation up to the first of July, then sow pasture rape.

Another method and it will be the last, is a short rotation recommended by several leading farmers as being very effective in checking the Sow Thistle. Clover is followed by a crop of grain, then clover again. The clover is cut in June, and the land plowed about four inches deep and given frequent and thorough cultivation during the rest of the summer. The following spring sow a grain crop, and seed down with clover. For best results the grain crop should be one which can be cut early enough to prevent the thistle from seeding.

A gallant struggle for life was made recently by one of the crew of H. M. scouting ship Adventure. The ship had just finished firing exercise off Clacton and was about to return to Sheerness. Her boat had been hauled aboard and was being secured when an able seaman named Arthur James Gibson fell overboard, and was swept astern by the tide. The ship was turning at the moment, and Gibson was drawn under by her starboard propeller. He rose again, however, and waving a hand from the water to his comrades on the ship, struck bravely out and kept himself afloat whilst a boat was being lowered. A boat was manned and quickly launched. Gibson was lifted in, and then, and then only, did his mates see to their horror that he had been swimming practically, if not literally, legless. His right leg had been cut off below the knee by a stroke of the propeller which first drew him under, and his left foot was so badly lacerated that little of the foot remained. With these terrible injuries he had waved his hand to his ship, his mates remembered, and had given no sign of the agony he endured. With all haste he was taken to the ship and the surgeon, did all that was possible for the poor fellow. But Gibson succumbed to the shock and loss of blood an hour after the accident, before the ship got to Sheerness.

ALBERTA DECLINES TO AID WINNIPEG CENTENNIAL

Edmonton, Oct. 14—A delegation consisting of Wm. Whyte, Second Vice-President of the C. P. R.; John W. Dafoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press; N. W. Hutchinson, D. S. Cameron and T. A. Anderson, representing the Winnipeg Centennial Exhibition, interviewed the members of the Alberta government this afternoon, asking for a contribution of $250,000 from Alberta towards the Selkirk Centenn al Exhibition. The answer of the government was that they could not see their way clear to grant the request.

The government answered that 1912 would be too early a stage in the development of the Canadian west for the holding of a world's fair, and that they did not consider it likely that the province would receive the returns from the standpoint of publicity which would warrant such an expenditure, and further, the province needed all the money it could get for public works, such as roads and buildings.

In all cases of headache the first thing to do is to unload the bowels and thus relieve the afflicted organs or the overfull blood vessels of the brain; and at the same time to restore tone to the system, re-establish the appetite, promote digestion and invigorate the entire body.

Board of Trade.

A well-attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the council chamber of the city hall on Tuesday evening last. The president, Mr. H. Stewart, occupied the chair. He stated that the principal business of the meeting was to consider what steps could be taken to ensure the guaranteeing of the bonds of the Southern Alberta Land Company's electric railway. The conditions laid down by the government had been complied with by the company, and it is in the interests of the city to see that the railway be built as soon as possible.

Id. Huckvale considered that the Southern Alberta Land company was one of the agencies which would eventually do the most for the upbuilding of the city. They purposed filling the land with people and these would make this a trade center. The company proposed not only to settle the land but to give it railway facilities as well. One of the terminals of the railway would be here. They were not asking anything that any bona fide company should not get. The guarantee of the bonds by the government would help the company to finance the road. If the government saw that the people here were in sympathy with the company's demands it would be more ready to give the guarantee. He moved the following resolution:—

WHEREAS the government of Alberta has recognized the principle of guaranteeing the bonds of companies constructing railroads which are distinctly for the public benefit.

AND WHEREAS the proposed railroad of the Southern Alberta Land Company will traverse a portion of the country hitherto mainly without railroad facilities,

AND WHEREAS the country into which it proposes to build is now almost all taken up by settlers outside of the company's own land,

AND WHEREAS the irrigated portion of this company's land is ultimately bound to be a thickly populated area and a railroad will be a necessity in its development.

THEREFORE this Board agrees to support in every way possible the Southern Alberta Land Company in their request to the Government of Alberta for the guaranteeing of the bonds of their railroad and requests the President to appoint a strong committee to further this purpose.

The motion was seconded by Thos. Hutchinson. He stated that the company might expect opposition from the trunk lines which would like to blanket all the territory. It would need united effort to put the matter through. He thought Calgary, as the other terminal, might be induced to present a petition also.

Mayor Milne was in favor of the resolution. The government had promised the guarantee, but some obstacle seems to have interfered. The bonds for the Great Waterways railway had been guaranteed but that district is not nearly so well populated as the one through which the new line proposes to pass. There is no possibility of the government having to pay the interest as he felt sure the road would pay from the beginning. The mayor hinted at the undue weight of Edmonton and Calgary influence which has apparently been exerted on the government, whereby bonds of railways running north and south towards these centers had been guaranteed instead of lines running east and west, the natural channels of trade.

Mr. M. Leonard and J. K. Drinan also expressed themselves as in sympathy with what had been said and favored the resolution.

At the request of the meeting the president nominated the following as a committee to deal with the matter and to see that everything possible was done to assist the company:—D. Milne, W. Huckvale, J. K. Drinnan, J. E. Howson, Thos. Hutchinson, F. G. Forster. The Mayor asked to be relieved of the responsibility of the chairmanship of the committee and the meeting added the name of H. Stewart, he to act as chairman.

The next subject to be discussed was the question of an independent land office for Medicine Hat. C. S. Pingle felt that an injustice was being done to us by the present arrangement. A separate land office is an absolute necessity.

Mr. Hutchinson stated that a committee had waited on Mr. Oliver and had been informed that two more offices would be opened in the west but he was not prepared as yet to say where. It would take a least a year to establish them on account of the clerical work involved.

Ald. Huckvale thought that the meeting had better pass a resolution as it might assist in getting the office established.

Moved by C. S. Pingle and seconded by W. H. Turpin that the same committee draft a suitable resolution and forward it to the department.

Mr. F. G. Foster stated that Mr. Oliver had informed him that no Saskatchewan land could be included in this district, nor would any north of the Red Deer be taken in. Mr. Cochrane had laid all the information available before Mr. Oliver and the latter was thoroughly acquainted with the situation.

The question of the desirability of an immigration hall was discussed but no action taken.

The board had a distinguished visitor in the person of Mr. C. A. Magrath, M.P., who arrived on the evening train. He stated that in his opinion two influences were at work which mitigated against ideal conditions. The government had pared down the expenditure and the country is developing faster than any government could keep pace with improvements. He took the opportunity of stating that it was his business to look after the interests of this constituency and no one need feel backward in demanding his time and attention in any matter of public welfare.

The attendance at the meeting was very encouraging to the officers of the board, and now that the summer months are past, a much better attendance is looked for. Meetings such as held last week will soon make the Board of Trade an influential factor in civic life.

Torpedoes Sink Battleship

For some time past Italy has made a special study of projectiles for above water attack and is now turning her attention to the improvement of projectiles for under water attack, with the result that considerable progress in this direction has been already made. Up to five years ago Italy was entirely dependent upon other nations for her supply of torpedoes, but as the value of this arm of defence became more evident it was decided to provide for their construction in the country, and a complete establishment capable of turning out one hundred torpedoes a year was established at San Bartolomeo, in the Bay of Specia, and this factory being within the breakwater is adequately protected from attack. The first lot of torpedoes have already been constructed at this establishment with good results. These are of the standard eighteen inch type, with the new air heater, but as the result of numerous experiments is has already been found impossible to increase the power of the standard type.

However, the very conflicting accounts of torpedo attacks during the Russo-Japanese war rendered necessary some definite determination as to the actual result of the explosion of a torpedo of the new standard type against the side of a vessel, and it was decided to make a practical experiment in this direction with the battleship Francesco Morosini, which has been lately struck out of the active list of the Italian navy. At the same time advantage was to be taken of the experiment to test some new theories as to the best method of construction of a vessel's under water framing and arrangement of compartments in order to best resist torpedo attack.

The Morosini with her sister ships the Andrea Doria and Ruggiero di Lauria, formed that famous trio of vessels constructed in Italy during the years 1882 to 1887, which were armed with four 105 ton guns (17 inches in bore), and had an armor belt of 171 inches, but the ends were unprotected save for an armored deck of three inches. Their dimensions were as follows: Length, 328 ft; beam, 65 feet 6 inches; draught, 30 feet; and they had a mean displacement of rather over 11,200 tons.

The attack was to be made by a standard torpedo with a normal charge, and the explosion was to be effected as far as possible under the usual conditions of an ordinary hit. A frame cradle was attached to the vessel to carry the torpedo, which was placed at right angles to the line of keel, and with its nose touching the vessel. The regulation type and quan of explosive were adopted, and the reservoir chamber was filled with compressed air of the pressure that would theoretically remain after a run of normal length. The depth below the water line was three meters.

The effect of the explosion above water was not more than had been expected, but it was very evident that considerable damage had been done to the vessel's hull, as she quietly took a list and swerving over on her side, went to the bottom, where she still remains, while every day she settles rather more.

An examination of the damage has been made as far as possible by divers, and it appears that there is a hole 50 square meters in area, which is considerable more than had been expected. It is considered that the result of this experiment will be the building by Italy of a new type of vessel, very swift and with a main armament consisting of torpedoes, torpedo tubes being fitted in a very much larger quantity than in any existing vessel. It is believed that if such a ship can get within striking distance the effect of her onslaught will be much more deadly than all the mass of metal that can be launched from the guns of any existing vessel of whatever type.

The Naples police have just arrested a woman whose life is an extraordinary romance. Maria Magliesco is a music hall singer by profession. She was born at Algiers, her father being a wealthy shipowner and her mother an Arab woman. After a vagabond existence she disguised herself in masculine attire, and became a banderilla in Spanish bull fights. One day she was badly injured and had to seek other means of livelihood. She became a lion-tamer, but was terribly mauled. While at Nice, where she was singing at the music hall, she bought for a few shillings a picture which turned out to be Giotto. She sold it for $40,000 and doubled that amount at roulette. Later she lost every penny by gambling, and she has now been arrested for attempting to pawn jewels which did not belong to her.

A remarkable performance took place at Kief, Russia, recently, whereby a man won a highly original wager. The sportive gentleman undertook to appear daily during 8 days in the street, employing each time a different mode of locomation. He commenced by running down the steps of his own dwelling and along the boulevard on his hands. The following day he hopped through the town on one leg. Stilts, a skipping rope, roller skates and a bath chair all followed in turn. One day he was conducted through the principal thoroughfares by a small boy who led him on a string. The finest of his exploits was undoubtedly the final performance, when turning successive somersaults in the air for nearly a mile, he arrived amidst enthusiastic cheers at the cafe where his friends were waiting to bestow the prize upon him.

To have his ashes scattered from the highest peak of the Alps was the express desire of a German lawyer, who recently died at Strasburg. He stipulated in his will that his body should be cremated and the ashes should be handed over to his brother. The brother was to climb with two guides to the summit of the Gross Glockner, one of the highest peaks in the Tyrolese Alps, carrying the ashes with him, and on reaching the top of the mountain was to scatter the ashes to the winds. This curious Alpine funeral has just taken place according to the wishes of the lawyer.

A man accompanied by a dog that has been trained to steel chickens, has been spreading havoc among the hen coops throughout New Jersey recently. In an automobile runabout the pair visited the farms in the neighborhood of Clinton a short time ago, and dazzled the owners with the with the big prices he offered for their fowl which he promised to come and get later and pay for on delivery. The man had with him a collie dog that roamed about every hen yard his master visited and seemed to take as much interest in the layout as did his master. The man did come later to get the birds, just as he promised but he made his other visits in the night time after the farmers had gone to bed, and he forgot that part of the agreement which called for payment on delivery. Many farmers missed their fowls, but no one suspected the dog till early one morning when the daughter of Farmer John Van Woert was awakened by a noise in front of the house. Looking out she discovered the automobile runabout and was more surprised when she saw the collie trot up to the rig with a bird in his teeth, deposit it in the rig and then run to the coops for more. She called her father, and he ran to the door with a gun; but the man in the auto heard the click and blew a whistle for his dog. Then he sped down the road followed by his four legged accomplice. Van Woert had lost seventeen hens before the alarm was given.

Sanction to sell a man's grave in order to pay his debts, was the extraordinary request made to Surrogate Cohalan, of New York recently. The application for permission to do so was made by Moses L. Roth, administrator of the estate of Simon Ratkowski, who died October 23rd, 1906. The administrator, who is also one of the heirs, set forth that there are unpaid debts to about $400 and that if he could sell the Ratkowski burial plot in the Bayside Cemetery at Brookhaven, L. I., he could wipe out the indebtedness. The Surrogate decided: "The land sought to be sold is a small burial plot in the cemetery of the superficial area of only 195 feet. The decedent is himself buried in this plot, together with some other person, presumably a member of his immediate family. It is conceded that the portion of the lot actually occupied by the remains of these two persons ought not to be sold, for the payment of the decedent's debts, and it does not appear as to just where in the plot these two interments have been made. On the papers presented I could not properly make the order.

Fearful things still happen in China for all its boasted Westernization. A certain villager from the Shun Tak district took his son named Ah Ku to find employment in the village of Kongkun. The father returned home while the son remained at work. Some time later a military officer came with an informer to arrest a desperado in the village. Not finding the culprit they consoled themselves by seizing Ah Ku. He of course protested his innocence of any crime but was not believed. He was then tortured horribly to extort confession and in the agony he was suffering he confessed himself to be the author of many crimes—all of which of course were fictitious and only invented to put a stop to the torture. Several kind hearted persons endeavored to bail him out but to no purpose. In the meantime the father had sold his only daughter to raise the money necessary to petition Admiral Li. The admiral promptly sent an official to investigate the case and found that the poor fellow was entirely innocent. The admiral reported the matter to the viceroy who at once deposed the worthless official, while the informer suffered decapitation.

Palpitation of the Heart.

One of the first danger signals that announce something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or again, there may be a most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visable pulsations of the arteries. The person may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief that no one need suffer.

Mrs. Arthur Mason, Marlbank, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart, would have severe choking spells and could scarcely lie down at all. I tried many remedies but got none to answer my case like your pills did. I can recommend them highly to all with heart or nerve trouble."

Picture Killarney on a vast and far more beautiful scale, and free from the tempests and mists and rain, and you begin to realize the Arrow Lakes, with their beauty, grandeur and attractiveness.

"You are right in directing the attention of your readers to British Columbia. The picturesque beauty of its lakes and rivers and the sublime grandeur of its mountain scenery, find no parallel upon this globe of ours. The apples grown on the shores of these lakes are the finest I have ever tasted, finer even than those I have sampled from Lord Aberdeen's wonderful orchards about fifty miles further west. PROPOSED LEGISLATION

Edmonton, Oct. 18—It is learned that at the next session of the legislature some radical changes will be made in the judicature ordinances, one of these being the doing away with the chamber summone procedure, making the practice by motion instead.

It is also understood that another piece of legislation contemplated is a collection act. As at present it is utterly useless for a creditor to proceed against a debtor unless the latter is possessed of goods and chattels sufficient to cover the claim beyond exemptions. The exemption law makes it practically impossible to collect a small debt. Wages can be garnished only to the extent of $25.

Business men who are not carrying on a strictly cash business are complaining of heavy losses through these small accounts.

In Nova Scotia there is a collection act in force under which the magistrate can make an order directing, after inquiring into a man's financial standing, to pay a certain amount per month or week, and it is suggested that the Alberta legislature might adopt some such legislation in this province.

Another change contemplated is the appointment of a Master in Chambers at Edmonton and in Calgary. The object of this is to expedite chamber proceedings as well as to relieve judges of work which is largely clerical. This latter change is being very strongly urged by members of the bar.

A curious legend surrounding a country seat in the Moon Valley, Hampshire, which has been fulfilled with painful reality, has set the whole country-side talking. The tale concerns the death at Corhampton House, Corhampton, of Mr. Campbell-Wyndham, J. P., who on the death of his mother on September 8, last year, succeeded to an estate around which a legend runs that a male heir will not live over twelve months after succession. Mr. Campbell-Wyndham was the first male heir for generations. In the last stage of his illness, Mr. Wyndham prophesied that he would die in bed twelve months to the day his mother passed away, and by a truly remarkable coincidence, he died a few minutes after midnight on that very day.

A WORD TO THE BUYER...

Advertising may sell people but, Good Goods sell themselves. No body is in business for pleasure, but for a livelihood, and to get it, goods must be sold for more than they cost. Proportionately as one article regularly approaches being sold without profit, some other must be sold at excessive profit, or advantage taken of the customer in some way. No careful thinking person believes that business can be carried on successfully by anyone who sells below a living profit. The amount of profit one must make depends upon how goods are bought and what it costs to sell them. The more it costs to sell a dollar's worth of groceries the larger the per cent. of profit must be. For this reason, I am sure, I can sell as cheap as anyone in Medicine Hat. My expenses are as low as they possibly can be made. I was able to buy my entire stock right, and on the whole can sell as cheap as the cheapest. Everything in my store is fresh and new. I am not depending on sign boards, newspaper advertisements, etc., for trade. While I must use some medium to let the public know that I am doing business, I do not depend upon the medium, only as a means to an end. The quality of the goods, and the absolute fairness of treatment to everybody is the ground upon which I expect my business to grow. I do not profess to give goods away nor even to undersell any other merchant, nor do I regulate my prices by quotations given from other stores. I am willing to trade on as small a margin as the situation warrants and have marked my goods accordingly. Call around and see me. however, had been overcome and the test would now be made. The communication was referred to the water commissioners, with power to act after the completion of the test.

Mr. Perry also wrote requesting three weeks' leave of absence in December to enable him to spend a vacation in the east. The request was granted on motion of Ald. Spencer and Ald. Huckvale.

A letter in the following terms was addressed to the mayor and council, under date of October 8th:

"Mr. W. P. Morrison has consulted me with reference to his dismissal by the city council, and has retained me to protect his interests.

"I am instructed to inform you that before the city could properly dispense with Mr. Morrison's services as city engineer he should have been given reasonable notice and that the notice which he received on Tuesday, 5th inst is entirely insufficient. I am also instructed to inform you that Mr. Morrison, as city engineer, was not an officer appointed by the city council to hold office during the pleasure of the council and that the proceeding on Monday night last was entirely irregular.

"Although Mr. Morrison's tenure of office had some six month to run from the time he was summarily dismissed and he would have been entitled to have been paid for that length of time the sum of $900, being at the rate of $150 per month, in order to avoid having any unnecessary trouble about this, he has authorized me to accept the sum of $500 provided, the payment is made to me within a few days. Unless some such settlement is arranged by the 15th inst. I am instructed to take the necessary steps in Mr. Morrison's behalf to bring this matter before the Supreme Court and claim ample damages by way of compensation.

"I would thank you to bring this to the attention of the mayor and the city council at your very earliest convenience and let me have their decision in due course.

"This letter is expressly without prejudice to my client's rights in the premises.

Yours truly,
W. A. BEGG.

A letter from Mr. Begg under date of Oct. 16 was also read. In this it was stated that owing to the fact that a regular meeting of the council would not be held until the 18th inst action would be deferred until after that date. The writer would, however, expect to receive payment in the early days of the present week.

The communication was referred to the city solicitor on motion of Ald. Huckvale and Aldf Spencer.

An account of Messrs. Whiffin & Marshall—"wages, cleaning and putting opera house in shape for banquet $20.00, music $2.00," which the finance committee had not seen their way to certify, was referred to the council. It had been understood that the figure per plate as quoted by the caterers included these incidentals. After some discussion the bill was referred back to the finance committee.

At this juncture a deputation from the Curling club, consisting of Major Sissons, Dr. Holt and Messrs Benson and Collier was received. Major Sissons first addressed the council and was followed by Mr. Benson. The matter of providing a site for the rink, said the latter, had been neglected too long by the club, and now they found it almost impossible to find a location suitable to members. A site for a curling rink might be obtained in Central park, but if they built there there would be no curlers to patronize the rink. There were no street cars into Central Park as yet. The club's present project was to induce the council to close Third Avenue from River Street to the river, to enable the club to build a rink there. The curlers were the only sporting organization in the city which had not already been provided for in some way by the council. The club only required 48 out of 66 feet of the street's width, so that an 8ft driveway might be left to give access to the owner of the property on the other side. The curlers did not ask for financial aid.

Mr. J. H. Collier and Dr. Holt also spoke in favor of the proposal. Ald. Huckvale thought the request not unreasonable. If the granting of it would not injure the city's interests he would be in favor of such action. Ald. Howson took the same view, holding, however, that as the city was already short of land it might be unwise to dispose of this site. Even at the present time we had no place to store pipe and hydrants, and if the proposal to erect a storehouse for hay and corn were to be carried out this was the only place at which the building might be erected. Ald. Morrow was in favor of the curlers' proposal, provided the city's interests would not be jeopardized. He suggested that a committee might go into the matter.

In reply to a question by the mayor, Mr. Benson said that the delegation were not in a position to state exactly what class of buildings would be erected. He made an alternative proposal, that the rink might be located close to the river bank by the Riverside Park. The permission of the C. P. R. land commissioner would, however, have to be obtained before this could be done.

The mayor pointed out that the Third Avenue site was possibly too near to the gas well. After further discussion the matter was referred to the public works committee to report back to the council.

Ald. Morrow as chairman of the gas committee read a report advising the appointment of Mr. Craft as superintendent of the gas system, to have full charge of all men required for its maintenance. Mr. Craft's salary to be $100 per month, dating from October 1st. Adopted on motion of Ald. Spencer and Huckvale.

Mr. Mahaffy reported that he had been several times approached by the C. P. R. in regard to the construction of a spur line to Industrial Place. He wished to get the council's instructions in the matter. The mayor stated that the construction of the line hinged from the first on the sewer pipe people locating at the site mentioned. Ald. Huckvale asked whether the owners of Industrial Place, if subjected to financial loss by the change from the original plans, would not be able to demand of the city that such loss be made good. The mayor thought it would be up to the property owners to prove that they had suffered financial loss. On motion of Ald Morrow the solicitor was instructed to write to the railway company advising them that the original site had been found unsuitable by the Alberta Clay Products Co., the city were unable to construct the spur and the matter of the spur-track therefore remained in abeyance.

The chairman of the finance committee recommended payment of an account of Henderson & Co., auditors, recently referred to the committee for a report.

Ald. Howson stated that no member of the public works committee had been consulted about the construction of a concrete sidewalk in the lane by the Alberta Hotel, and the work was done entirely without the committee's knowledge. Ald. Penhale had admitted that he himself gave instructions to have the sidewalk put in, payment to be made by the same out of the parks and markets permanent account. The mayor questioned whether the council or any member of the council had power to use money raised by debentures for market buildings, for any other purpose.

Ald. Morrow reported that another lamp had been put in at the crossing in accordance with the committee's decision. The members of the Baptist church had made a request for a lamp near the church building. The street was very dark at that place. After discussion it was decided to empower the gas commissioners to grant the request, and also to place a lamp at a point on the Macleod trail.

The assistant secretary-treasurer reported total receipts from poll tax to date, $1107.00; commission at 15 per cent. amounted to $166.05. This the collector's deducted from the aggregate, leaving balance due to the city—$940.95. This sum had been paid into the treasury. Report received.

Mr. Mahaffy said he had been instructed to prepare certain amendments to the building bylaw. He believed, however, that the original bylaw covered fully the matters mentioned to him, in the printed copies certain clauses had been omitted. In accordance with the solicitor statement Ald. Morrow renewed Ald. Robertson's notice of introduction of a bylaw regarding fire scuttles.

Ald. Huckvale then moved that the usual notice of motion necessary before the introduction of a bylaw be waived. This was seconded by Ald. Spencer and carried by unanimous vote of the council. Ald. Huckvale then asked leave to introduce the bylaw in regard to the purchase of land and the agreement with the Alberta Clay Products Co. This was granted, the bylaw passed two readings, and the council resolved itself into a committee of the whole with Ald. Huckvale as chairman. After the clauses had been thoroughly discussed the committee reported progress and the bylaw cannot now be advanced to any further stage until the referendum of burgesses has been taken.

The sum to be raised by debenture is $9000. $722.16 will be raised annually by special rate for the repayment of principal and interest. Interest is payable at 5 per cent on the 1st of December of each year. The mayor and secretary-treasurer are authorized to execute the transfers. Ten years' exemption is given from all taxes except school taxes, provided, however, that such exemption shall cease immediately on the company failing to carry out the terms and conditions of their agreement. The vote will be taken on Nov. 23 (one month after the first appearance of the bylaw in the press, as according to law), between the hours of 9 and 5. T. C. Blatchford is appointed deputy returning officer for wards 1 and 2 (City Hall) and J. H. G. Bury for wards 3 and 4 (Court House).

Ald Spencer made a verbal report on the visit of the Medicine Hat delegates to the Union of Alberta Municipalities Convention in Lethbridge. There had not been, he said, a very large turnout, but the discussions had nevertheless been of a very interesting nature. On the opening day, Thursday, it had been intended that the session should start at 10 a.m., but an invitation to visit Diamond City, where the new coal mines were being opened by the Lieutenant Governor had been accepted. A new spur track had just been completed to that city. Most of the day had been spent at Diamond City and the convention met in Lethbridge at 7 in the evening. A discussion had arisen on the membership fee which was regarded as excessive, and it was thought desirable to appeal to the provincial government to set aside a sum for the purposes of the union.

The most important subject discussed at the convention was the proposed new charter for municipalities. It was proposed to enact a law whereby this charter would supersede all charters at present existing in the province. It would apply to every city and town in Alberta. The charter was conceived in the most broad-minded spirit and no man could complain of any lack of scope in its provisions. The question of government by mayor and aldermen or by civic commissioners would be left entirely in the council' hands. Some difference of opinion arose at the convention in regard to payment of aldermen. Some of the delegates thought it advisable to leave this matter entirely in the hands of the councils. The consensus of opinion was, however, in favor of the Government stating whether or no aldermen should receive payment, and stating the amount of their compensation. The proposed charter would give the cities unlimited scope for self-improvement and development. The speaker believed that the city benefited by sending men to attend these municipalities conventions.

In answer to a question Ald. Morrow stated that is was proposed that an alderman should receive $3 for each meeting of the council he attended, but not more than $150 for the year. The salary of the mayor was to be set by the council. All cities and towns would be placed on the same level.
