CITY COUNCIL.

TO TAX TELEGRAPH COMPANIES.

$5,500 PASSED FOR A NEW MARKET.

An adjournment meeting of the City Council was held Tuesday night. Mayor H. R. Fraser presided, and there were present Councilors McMansy, Cate, Fortin, Gray, Herter, Olivier, Worthington and Jencks.

In attendance Mr. F. J. Griffith, assistant secretary treasurer.

His Worship stated that it was not the intention of the Council to take any further action in the petition which had been under consideration at the last meeting.

The petition of Mr. R. D. Morkill, to have the valuation on his property in East Sherbrooke reduced from $2500, was not granted.

The valuator stated that they had no report ready with regard to the Curling Club property.

TO TAX TELEGRAPH COMPANIES.

Mr. J. J. McManis moved that all telegraph companies not now assessed be included in the valuation roll.

Mr. Fortin seconded.

Mr. Cate presented a claim for damages for having sustained injuries by falling from a defective sidewalk on St. James Street. Referred to Road Committee.

Mr. Fortin moved from Mr. Skinner, that the People's Telephone Co. be assessed as they were about to be assessed.

Mr. Fortin referred to the S. & S. Co. on Commercial Street, who were to have the building put on a new line. He moved that the Legislature be notified of the loss of buildings on this street.

Mr. Fortin moved that the City should be authorized to enter into a contract with the A. S. Mutual Life Insurance Co. for insuring a building on their lot on St. James Street, and make other arrangements which their tax assessor may deem proper.

WINDSOR MILLS.

McCabe's spacious hall was well filled on Sunday evening, October 22nd, to hear a temperance address by Mr. F. S. Spence, of Toronto. An excellent service of song was rendered by a choir of more than twenty voices under the efficient leadership of Mr. W. F. Cawal, with Miss Edie Davidson as pianist.

At eight o'clock Mr. John Sampson took the chair and introduced the speaker. Mr. Spence is a fluent and original speaker and for an hour and a quarter he held the close attention of his audience as he by argument and illustration showed the evil effects of alcohol on the human system.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker and choir and the assembly was dismissed with "God Save the Queen."

The C. P. Co. are making extensive repairs and improvements on their old mill. When completed it will add very much to the appearance of the town.

The new Town Council are a progressive body of men and since assuming office have made many improvements in the town, such as newly gravelled streets, unsightly fences replaced with neatly painted railing, etc. What is wanted now is electric lights and a good system of water works for the town.

DALLEY'S PERFECT COFFEE

If you give it a trial you will be one more customer, for it is an ideal coffee, and always the same.

SHARPLES—WHITE.

Quebec, October 25.—Capt. J. J. Sharples, son of the late Charles Sharples, was married this morning at St. Matthew's Church, to Miss Florence Beatrice White, second daughter of Lieut. Colonel White, D. S.

The social position of the parties rendered the ceremony one of unusual interest, and, though the invitations were limited to the family, hundred of friends attended the ceremony. The marriage was performed by Rev. F. G. Scott, rector, assisted by Very Rev. Dean Williams and Rev. G. H. Parker Compton. After partaking of a recherche breakfast at the residence of the bride's parents, the couple left by the C. P. R. for a wedding tour in the United States. Col. White and his family lived at one time in London and Mr. Sharples was an old Bishop's College boy.

Youthful Recklessness.

The natural exuberance of youth often leads to recklessness. Young people don't take care of themselves, get over-heated, catch cold, and allow it to settle on the kidneys. They don't realize the significance of backache—think it will soon pass away—out it doesn't. Urinary Troubles come, then Diabetes, Bright's Disease and shattered health.

NEWS FROM THE CAPITAL.

From our Special Correspondent. Ottawa, October 21.—The last two weeks have done much to clear the atmosphere of a large amount of apprehension as to the real attitude of the Government in the matter of a Transvaal contingent.

ABSOLUTE UNANIMITY WAS REQUIRED. It was therefore gratifying to the Government to receive the Charles Tupper's assurance of support in the proposal to carry forward preparations for the dispatch of the Canadian contingent.

THE OFFICIAL RETIENNES WHICH IS AN inherent loyalty in all such matters, led to a certain amount of misconception of the true condition of affairs, but now that developments have unfolded at the details of organization, with the result that when the moment for definite action arrived the Canadian battalion could be organized and equipped with remarkable speed and efficiency.

THE FARM FOR SALE. A large and fine farm on the Ottawa river, known as the old Wyman place, on the bank of the Ottawa, and is one of the best in the vicinity.

FRANCHISE CANADIAN LOYALTY. Another feature of no mean importance which has cropped up incidentally in this discussion is the attitude of our French-Canadian fellow countrymen towards the Empire, and Col. Demery's remarks thereon in the course of the same speech are worthy of reproduction.

AN HISTORICAL REVISION OF NOE. In the battle of Mordenburg the loyal Canadian troops, the British and the Irish, were joined together to fight the war of 1812.

THE FARM FOR SALE. The farm of the late A. H. Irwin at Sand Hill, consisting of 300 acres in good pasture with a large and necessary building in good repair.

GENERALS YULE AND WHITE JOIN FORCES.

British Loss Heavy. LATEST NEWS. London, October 27.—The only development today in Transvaal is a rumour from Cape Town announcing the repulse of the Boers at Klamberry by Colonel Scott Turner's forces.

GENERAL YULE LEFT HIS SICK BED. London, Oct. 26.—The War Office has received the following despatch from General White: "Ladysmith, October 25, 12 40 p. m."

THE MAJORITY WILL BENEFIT. The decision of the Government to suspend for the balance of this session the operation of the counting law which forbids the renewal of foreign powers participating in the trade between Canadian ports, has called forth the usual stereotyped criticism of disloyalty to home interests.

ABSOLUTE UNANIMITY WAS REQUIRED. It was therefore gratifying to the Government to receive the Charles Tupper's assurance of support in the proposal to carry forward preparations for the dispatch of the Canadian contingent.

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Sherbrooke, October 26, 1899. Howard F. Beck, Esq. I thank you very much for the trouble and interest you have taken in collecting the sum of one hundred and eighty dollars for the Patriotic Fund.

GENERAL YULE'S RETIREMENT. The usual guesses are made by the military writers as to the reasons, and the real cause of General Yule's retirement from the command of the force at Ladysmith.

THE FIGHTING AT KIEFFENTIN. London, October 26.—An official British account of the fighting at Kieffentin, given out at Cape Town, says: "The enemy posted a battery two miles south of Kieffentin and opened with his heavy guns at long range."

LOSS HAS BEEN HEAVY. London, October 26.—The War Office returns show that the total British casualties since the beginning of hostilities reached 507, eighteen officers having been killed and 35 wounded, and 76 men killed and 435 wounded. There are thirteen unaccounted for.

ADVANTAGE SEEMS TO BE WITH BOERS. London, Oct. 26.—The despatches from the front are so diversified and contradictory that it is difficult to outline the situation with any degree of exactitude. Three or four main facts, however, stand out prominently.

LIBERALS ORGANIZING. The Liberals of Sherbrooke County are now busily engaged organizing for the forthcoming campaign, and meetings will be held at all the polling divisions of the county within the next day or two when delegates will be appointed to attend the convention for the selection of a candidate.

TO THE DEAF. A person cured of Deafness and noise in the head of 25 years standing by Simple Kennedy, will send a description of it free to any person who applies to Nicholson, 177 MacDonnell Street, New York.

TWO YEARS IN THE PENITENTIARY. In the District Magistrate's Court yesterday morning, Chas. Jackson, of Maghilton, was up for sentence charged with having passed Confederate money. Judge Mulvins in passing sentence dwelt upon the seriousness of the charge to which prisoner had pleaded guilty, and that although he had made enquiry as to his past life he could find nothing that would justify a short sentence, but in view of the fact that he was a young man the sentence would be one of two years in the penitentiary.

CONSERVATIVE MEETING TO APPOINT DELEGATES. The Conservatives of the city of Sherbrooke met in the Art Hall last night for the purpose of appointing delegates to attend the Convention to be held next week. Mr. French, president of the local association, presided, and explained the object of the meeting, after which the meeting divided into four as representing the different wards of the city when delegates were chosen. The meeting was well attended.

It is currently rumored around town that Hon. John McIntosh will be the candidate at the chosen Conservative Convention next Tuesday.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE JOHN PARKS. The funeral of the late John Parks, a prominent lumberman, took place on Monday afternoon from his residence to Union Cemetery. The funeral was under the direction of the Canadian Order of Foresters, of which deceased was a member for nearly twenty years, and the Order also sent a beautiful casket. The funeral was largely attended by friends from the city and a distance. Deceased leaves a wife and two daughters to mourn the loss of a kind husband and a loving father.

No One Need be Bald. Baldness is of two kinds - premature baldness and that which is the result of old age. However, both are curable. No man desires to be bald or to be proud of his baldness. Especially to the young men, where a greater value is laid in the prime of life. What one must endeavor to do is to prevent baldness from occurring, and that is to use the hair restorative. It is indeed a necessity, and its use will keep the hair in its natural state, and it will remain in that deplorable state, when by the use of proper remedies and the observance of the laws of health and nature, they can again become the possessors of as fine and luxuriant heads of hair as they desire by using Hunkler's Hair Tonic. L. A. BAYLEY. IRREPARABLE DEMAND FOR... Heintzman & Co. Baby Grand PIANOS.

The month of September has been a remarkable month with the old firm of Heintzman & Co., and especially marked has been the number of sales closed for their Beautiful Baby Grand Piano. Of eight of these magnificent instruments one has gone to the popular baritone, Mr. Morrison of London, and another to Miss Sweet of Stratford, one of the sweet girl graduates of the Toronto University. The Ontario Ladies' College Whitey, where the teaching of music has special attention, has selected one. Albert Armstrong, of Amprior, ranks as a purchaser, and so does Mr. C. L. Owen, of Campbellford, Toronto musicians insist in making this Piano their particular choice. Mr. A. S. Vogt is a September purchaser of one of these baby grands, and so is Mr. Humphrey Angers, Mr. J. W. F. Harrison, of the Conservatory of Music, and Mr. Cole, graduate of the Metropolitan School of Music, also count in the list. The latest styles of these beautiful instruments are always open for inspection at our Warerooms. New catalogue and prices mailed to any address.

Spotted in Transit.

"I wonder," said Cholly, as they drove along the boulevard, "why that thing in front of us is called a 'T' car? "

"Perhaps," suggested Miss Flippie, "it is because it is just ahead of 'U.' "

Which struck Cholly as being so clever that he undertook to reproduce it at the club that evening.

"I asked her," he proceeded, after giving the preliminaries, "why that thing in front of us was called a 'T' car, and she said it was because it was just ahead of me. Saw, Jove, though, I can't make it sound the way it did when she got it off, don't you know?"

When Willie Had the Measles.

"When I had the measles, year ago, my mother said, 'Now, Willie, dear, you know you've got the measles, so you must be good. An easy indoor as all sick children should.' One, I was good. The letters used to call me a poor fellow, but I wouldn't go at all. Because I had the measles, I'd look out as speckled as a turkey egg, about."

As she said, she had me on my 'berry jam. 'At we only have for company, an American, he's my brother-in-law. Cakes. An chicken pie as all good things should be. But bread an butter an ham, like Sam had. Didn't 'mean my appetite was bad. Oh, nothin was too good for me, you know, when I had the measles, year ago."

An sometime, when me said I could, I took the great big ham's Bible down to look at pictures—Measles in the rubra, for a little baby in a basket—yes, you'd think I'd chop up the girl—then there was old Daniel in the lion's den. With growling lions, roosting in the dark. You times as easy as at Lincoln park."

When I had the measles, year ago, me, I lived light! On one day Sam, 'rye know, he blubbered some 'cause he'd had 'em once. An I felt sorry. 'Pa says he's done. But I guess not, for thinkin of the jam all locked up tight. I quite agree with Sam—'Wed them pie an sarsaparilla meat is that when you've had 'em once you never get agin."

Fixed the Fire Ankers.

"The worst kind of a fool in the world is a well-meaning fool," said a detective sagely. "I was walking along one night in a neighborhood not necessary to specify, when up rushed a man in his shirt sleeves and grasped me by the arm. 'Say, officer,' he exclaimed, calling me by name, 'I just saw a fellow do something that he ought to get ten years for for a year. He was a big brute in a checkered suit, and I would know him again in China.'"

"But what did he do?" interrupted.

"Why, I was sitting on my porch. He pulled the man in shirt sleeves, and held a paper box on the corner and drop in a lighted cigar stump. 'You think of the valuable mail the scoundrel might have destroyed.'"

"Are you sure the cigar was lit?" I asked.

"Well, I'm pretty sure, he said, but you needn't to worry. He hasn't turned up anything."

"How are you, do you know he lit the cigar?" I asked.

"Why, I got a pitcher of water and poured it right in, said he. I walked off. I never did find out what those fellows looked like. 'New Orleans Times Democrat."

His Uncontrollable Laughter.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you. 'How true that is," said Mr. Higgleston. "To have written just that line was worth living for."

"Oh, I don't know about that," Mrs. Higgleston replied. "I admit that there is a good deal of philosophy in the poem from those words are taken, but it isn't always true."

"My dear," Mr. Higgleston exclaimed, "you're mistaken. It is always true. 'Laugh and the world laughs with you.' It's as true as anything that has ever been written. The whole philosophy of human existence is bound up in those few words."

"The whole philosophy of human existence may be bound up in them," the lady responded, "but I insist that it doesn't always happen that way. I've noticed that you always laugh when you try to tell a funny story, but it's very seldom that the world laughs with you."

Mr. Higgleston drew himself up with all the dignity he could command and, striding angrily from the room, exclaimed:

"As Milton says in his 'Essay on Man,' 'How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a sneering wife.'"—New York Telegram.

When Lincoln Died.

And so the hours passed without perceptible change in the president's condition and with only slight shifting of the scene around him. The testimony of those who had witnessed the murder began to be taken in an adjoining room. Occasionally the figures at the bedside changed. Mrs. Lincoln came in at intervals sobbing out her grief, and then was led away. Her maid, who was in charge of the room, was not until daylight that there came a perceptible change. Then the breathing grew quieter, the face became more calm.

The doctors at Lincoln's side knew that dissolution was near. Their bulletins of a "clock red," "false falling," that of half past 4, "Bill falling," that of 7, "Symptoms of immediate dissolution," and then at 22 minutes past 7, in the presence of his son, Secretary Stanton, Welles and Usher, Attorney General Speed, Senator Sumner, Private Secretary Hay, Dr. Gurley, his pastor, and several physicians and friends, Abraham Lincoln died.

There was a prayer, and then the solemn vote of Stanton broke the stillness. "Now he belongs to the ages."—McClure's Magazine.

Only Jar of His Kind.

Horace Waller tells a lively story of an old porcelain vander, who had an exceedingly rare and valuable jar on which he set an almost fabulous price.

One hot summer a slight volcanic shock, such as the British Isles occasionally experience, joggled his house, and his ears and split his porcelain vase. To an ordinary mind the accident would have been calamitous, but the china vase proved superior to fortune.

He doubted the price of the article immediately and advertised it as "the only jar in the world which had been cracked by an earthquake." Nothing very new about that. Whether he got his money is not added, but he certainly deserved it.

Had Left For Paris Unknown.

In a murder trial in Dallas the counsel for the defense was examining a witness regarding his qualifications to serve. The candidate admitted that he had once been a member of a jury which tried a negro for murder. It is not permissible in such cases to ask the result of the trial, so the counsel said:

"Where is that negro now?"

"I don't know," was the reply. "The sheriff hanged him at the appointed time."—Law Notes.

Moderest Appeal.

The attention of English speaking visitors to the Milan cathedral is readily attracted by the following notice which appears over an altar box:

"Appeals to Charities. The Brothers, so called, of Mercy ask slender arms for the hospital. They harbor all kinds of diseases and have no respect to religion."

If the Prussian conscription were applied in India. England would have 2,500,000 regular soldiers actually in barracks, with 800,000 recruits coming up every year.

What The War is About.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE EDITORIAL PUTS THE WHOLE MATTER IN A NUT-SHELL.

New York Tribune: Old Kaspar, in Southey's poem, could not tell what the battle of Blenheim was about nor what good it did. But we are to reckon as an indication of the wisdom of the battle but of the gross ignorance of Old Kaspar. What little Peterkin there may have been, he would not know what was going on. He would know that the British were fighting the Transvaal and we know it. But assuredly there can be no need for even the stupidest Old Kaspar to plead ignorance of its cause, nor will there be, we fancy, any doubt as to the good that will ultimately come of it. We need not trouble ourselves with its immediate provocation. It is the Transvaal, the Transvaal, the Transvaal. The Boers are the Boers, the Boers are the Boers. That no convincing evidence is apparent. But back of such technicalities stand the great general principles, the rights of the Boers, the rights of the Boers to the land which they have found. It is by them that merit are to be estimated and responsibility fixed.

That the Boers fighting for it? They are fighting for independence. But is not their independence a treaty obligation and international law. Almost the last word spoken by Great Britain in the last Boer war was a solemn renunciation and denial of all intent to infringe upon the domestic autonomy of the Transvaal and the declaration of willingness to stand upon the conditions of 1881 and 1884. That is the offer which the Boers have refused. They are fighting for an abrogation of a solemn agreement, and for the right to conduct their government in respect to their own territory without regard to the commonly accepted principles of justice among civilized races. They are fighting to deny to the Outlanders the rights of citizenship, to deny to the Boers the rights of citizenship. They are fighting to keep the American and British settlers in the Transvaal forever subject to that very condition without representation, which our forefathers revolted in 1776. They ignore the fact that domestic self-government was granted in 1881, not to the Boers, nor to the burghers, nor to the British, but to the "inhabitants" of the Transvaal, and they insist upon arrogating to a minority the powers and privileges which justly belong to all, and upon creating the majority, composed of British and American settlers, as in their president's own phrase—"white niggers." It is to maintain their "independence" that they are fighting, and their ground that the Boers have gone to war.

And it is against such an intolerable state of affairs that the British Government has set itself even to the extent of accepting the Transvaal as a sovereign state, as if the man seriously believes in the "Naboth's vineyard" talk that has recently been current, to wit, that Great Britain simply develops the Transvaal and gets gold, and has made up her mind to stand by them. That was a good enough campaign cry for jerrybuilt Anglophobe orators; but it is too contrary to known facts and too far removed from the actual conditions of the Transvaal to be taken seriously by anyone. It is to maintain their "independence" that they are fighting, and their ground that the Boers have gone to war.

THE WARNING OF MARY VINCENT.

By W. B. ROSE.

Mary warned Henry Tennis
Against making that investment,
Whereupon Henry warned Mary
Of the evils of single life.

The young girl paused at the door. Then she frowned impatiently and turned the knob. As the door opened she found herself in a plainly furnished room, the walls hung with maps. There were three long windows at the upper end and in the right hand wall an open door.

"Is that you, George?" a voice called from the inner room.

Mary Vincent did not reply. She felt all her reluctance come back to her.

"Why don't you answer me, George?"

There was the sound of a chair pushed back, and a tall young man stood in the doorway.

"—I beg pardon," he cried as he stepped forward. "I thought it was my somewhat tactful office boy. Please take a chair."

Mary Vincent bowed gravely and sat down. At the actual encounter with this formidable young man her courage seemed to return.

"You are Mr. Henry Tennis," she said, half interrogatively.

"At your service," he answered and bowed.

"My name is Mary Vincent," she murmured. If she had expected he would look surprised, she was disappointed. "There was a little party," and to what do I owe this visit?" he courteously asked.

The girl hesitated.

"For me," she said with an effort, "this is a very disagreeable mission."

She looked toward the open door of the anteroom.

"We are quite alone," said Tennis. "I have come," said Mary in a low voice, "to warn you against my father."

"Your father?"

"My father, Abner Vincent."

"Go on," said Tennis.

"He has told us, my mother and me, that you were to let him have $20,000 to advance one of his schemes. Do not give him the money. The scheme is a visionary one. My father is a romancer."

She paused and moistened her lips.

"My mother and I thought you should be warned. We felt that your youth and your inexperience appealed to us. Do not give my father the money." She paused again. "Of course this warning will be held confidentially."

"Sacred," said Tennis.

Mary arose to go.

"One moment," he added. "May I ask how your father happened to talk this matter over with you?"

"He has a habit of boasting," said Mary. "He always on the verge of some great fortune winner. He told us that with your money his latest scheme could be launched. Sometimes we feel sure he is only romancing. This time his details were too perfect to admit of doubt. He told us so many particulars about—about you."

"May I ask what he said?" inquired Tennis gravely.

"You will not feel offended? He said you were young and quite inexperienced, that you had just come into a lot of money, that you were flinging it carelessly right and left and that you would never miss the sum you had promised him."

"Are you quite sure I am the person he meant?" asked Tennis.

"Quite sure. Mr. Henry Tennis, in the Mohlean building."

"And your father looks upon me as a lamb, eh?"

"I think I understand what you mean. Yes. He said I want you to clearly appreciate the light in which he regards you—that you were, to use his own rather rude expression, "easy pickings."

Tennis laughed softly.

"Thank you very much, Miss Austin," he said and extended his hand. She placed her own a little reluctantly. "In it, I assure you I appreciate the sacrifice you have made. Your warning will not be wasted. I am sure I shall profit by it in many ways than one. Good day."

As her graceful form disappeared in the elevator cage Tennis turned back into his office.

"Well, by Jove!" he murmured. He slowly resumed his seat at his desk and pulled the directory to him. In a moment he had found this name: "Vincent, Abner, promoter, Res. 2129 Millside avenue."

He carefully copied the address on a card.

Six weeks later Abner Vincent and his wife and Mary were sitting on the porch of their modest little cottage. It was early twilight, and the shadows were deepening beneath the vines and the maples.

"I can't understand it a bit," Abner was saying in his fussy little voice. "Henry's young Tennis been coming round more a month every night or two and pumping me all about that new aerostatic company until I guess there isn't a fresh question left for him to ask me. Seems perfectly satisfied, too, but somehow he fails to put up the $20,000. By George, if he doesn't come to time pretty soon I'll give some other fellow the chance or I'll bring out one of my other schemes. But I want Henry Tennis. He's got his money laid out."

"Are you always so particular about the names of your young victims?" asked Mary with a sarcastic intonation she couldn't suppress.

"Well," said her mother in a soothing voice, "Victims!" repeated her father querulously. "Henry Tennis a victim? I guess not. Why, there isn't a sharper or more successful investor on the coast. If Henry Tennis goes into a thing, there's his money in it. And from the very start, from the very moment he sent for me to come to his office, he's seemed all wrapped up in my latest idea. But he doesn't put up the money."

"Father," said Mary, trying hard to control her voice, "what did you mean by saying that Mr. Tennis was young and inexperienced and a reckless prodigal?"

"Did I say that?" queried the old man.

"You did," replied Mary, a ring of indignation in her voice; "you said he was very picky."

"Well," that shrugged Abner, "was just a figure of speech. I must have said it before I really knew him. But hush, I think he is coming up the street."

Henry Tennis stepped lightly through the front door, but in a hand. "Good evening, all," he cried with the easy air of an old friend. "Ah, Mr. Vincent," he added, "if the ladies will excuse me, I want just a word or two on business with you."

"Certainly," cried the little man, bustling up. "This way, Mr. Vincent," and he led the caller into a lighted apartment.

It wasn't a long interview. When the men came back to the porch, Tennis did not change the chair that was offered him.

"Perhaps Miss Mary would enjoy a little stroll," he said, looking toward the dark corner of the porch where the girl's white dress faintly glimmered.

"I guess she would," said the father, and there was a nervous uneasiness in his tone that seemed quite unusual.

The girl hesitated. Then he arose and frantically she laid the two went west in the street together.

"Miss Mary," said Tennis presently, "I want to confess to you that I am an ardent fraud. I have been coming to your home on the pretense of business and frantically she laid the two went west in the street together.

Permanent Cure of Cancer.

Sixty-two years ago Mrs. Elizabeth Gilula, wife of the postmaster of Burlington, Ont., was taken ill with an obscure stomach trouble which her physicians pronounced incurable. She had consulted the best of the stomach and informed her that her case was hopeless. On the advice of friends she commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters. The results that followed were little short of marvelous. Her strength and vigor returned and in a short time she was completely cured. Mrs. Gilula is to-day in the full enjoyment of good health, and in all these years there has not been the slightest return of the trouble.

Here is the letter Mrs. Gilula wrote at the time of her cure:

"About four years ago I was taken sick with stomach trouble and consulted several of the leading physicians here, all of whom pronounced me to be incurable. I was told that it was hardly to be expected that I could live long. After a while two doctors who were attending me gave me up to die. By the advice of some of my friends, who knew of the virtues of Burdock Blood Bitters, I was induced to try it, and I was now happy to say that after using part of the first bottle I felt so much better I was able to get up. I am thankful to state that I am completely cured of the disease by the use of B. B. B., although it had baffled the doctors for a long time. I am firmly convinced that Burdock Blood Bitters saved my life."

Here is the letter received from her a short time ago:

"I am still in good health. I thank Burdock Blood Bitters for saving my life twelve years ago, and highly recommend it to other sufferers from stomach troubles of any kind. ELIZABETH GILULA."

HOIST HIGH OUR FLAG.

Hoist high our flag, and let it flourish
Forth on every breeze;
Our friends to cheer, our foes to daunt,
The flag that rules the seas.

The Flag that proudly swept the wave,
And Britain's shores won,
That soldiers true and sailors brave,
Made all our foes obey.

The Flag that chased from sunny Spain
The horde of Bonaparte,
Victorious on land and main,
Thou wast and still thou art.

Upon the plains of Waterloo
Thou didst stand firm and won,
Afore our soldiers heads it flew;
There fled Napoleon.

The flag that waved on Alma's hill,
Waved too, at Inkerman;
When British bravery sent a thrill
Through every pulse of man.

On Balaklava's blood-stained field
Thy glorious deed is fresh in our mind,
Where our gall pluck made thousands yield
When charged the Light Brigade.

That flag waved high amidst the hail
That raged in Hindooistan,
When maddest fan and soldiers fell
A prey to treacherous man.

In Egypt's mystic land 'tis now
Borne on to victory;
Before it countless hosts all bow,
And cruel tyrants flee.

Where'er that flag its brilliant folds
Cast forth unto the breeze,
The light of freedom it unfolds,
Ignorance 'fore it flees.

The British soldier's still as brave
As were those heroes old;
The British lass still rules the wave,
And Britain's right's upheld.

Then hoist aloft thy colors bright,
And keep them soaring high:
Upheld by British pluck and might,
Our Union Flag shall fly.

Bunker's Electric CORN SALVE

A safe and painless remedy for the removal of corns.

Among the large number of preparations on the market for the cure of corns, few are found that afford more than temporary relief. What is wanted is something that will remove the corn and effect a permanent cure.

BUNKER'S ELECTRIC CORN SALVE will cure hard or soft corns in less than one week, cause no set, no pain or discomfort to the tender foot.

Sold everywhere at 25c. per box, or sent post-paid by addressing:

Inside The Piano

is where an expert looks to find whether it is as represented. A showy case tells nothing of the real merits of an instrument. When you deal with us you take no chances, for we handle Pianos that have stood the test of time and have come out victorious at the bar of musical opinion. Look at the "Gerhand Heintzman," "Bell," "Whaley-Royce," or G. A. LeBaron Pianos, all made in Canada. If you want a sample of Pianos of American manufacture, look at the "McPhail," or "Chickering."

Its in your interest to see and hear these instruments before you finally decide on which Piano to buy.

Our instruments are always ready for inspection.
