Now the Prices you've been waiting for are here

The old year took away, for ever, we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working toward the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our great January Carnival of Economy.

The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store.

2nd. We have combed the markets—taking utmost advantage of the opportunities created by far sighted manufacturers who were ready to co-operate with us in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least.

We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in every department of our store, and then realize that prices are away down to the bottom, where it is a pleasure to buy things.

Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES. We shall forgo a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark-downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and

THE MOST STIRRING PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN.

No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page; but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.

Scope Of Christian Charity.

Bishop McNicholas of Duluth spoke at the High Mass which opened the conference of Catholic Charities in St. John's Cathedral, Milwaukee, on September 18. The Bishop spoke in part as follows: "When we consider the progress of the past year in social and welfare activities, we may be confident that the domain of charity in its broad Catholic sense will be rapidly developed. We can look forward to the completion of the surveys to be made, to the co-ordination and co-operation of existing forces, parochial, diocesan and national, to a greatly increased number of workers, lay and religious, in the field of charity. There is need of vast resources, but with patient and systematic efforts our appeal for charity, which will be well planned and cordially approved, is sure of a generous response. We can confidently hope that the work of education in the principles of charity will go on, for we must first settle the theory of things by study. Guided as we are by Christian principles and enlightened by an inspiring history and tradition, we have at our disposal the most effective means for knowing and meeting the conditions of our day.

"There is a hostility to the very word charity. A modern world has made it a restricted term. Its narrow meaning we cannot accept—Charity is love and love is as great and as broad as the mind and heart of the human race. It goes out to embrace God Himself. Charity in its truly Catholic domestic sense is the most sublime lesson that has ever been taught. In its historical sense it is the practice of a teaching which only a divine religion can enforce.

"Charity in its broadest acceptation implies love of God and neighbor. Every man, even an enemy, is a neighbor. Every neighbor has a soul to be saved. Every soul is worthy of love because purchased by the life and blood of Christ. The purchase price paid by Christ makes the salvation of every soul possible. Christian charity must render whatever service it can in proof of its love. Christian love of neighbor must ascend to plains high above nature. It should exercise its charity towards one's neighbor not merely for the benefit which comes to him bestowing, nor merely for the benefit which is conferred on the recipient, but principally to requite the infinite love of God which has made us neighbors, brothers of Christ and sons of God. No standard less than this comes up to the requirements of the charity of the Gospel. No pre-Christian religion ever made such demands, and no religion subsequent to Christ except the one Church possessing the plenitudes of truth, power and charity of Christ has been able to maintain such standards in practice.

"We Catholics have a duty in forming public opinion on every question of interest to the community at large. Has not aloofness kept us from contributing the same judgment of Catholic principles to many public questions? We refuse first place to any group or class of citizens in our love and service of country, whether in time of war or peace. We are exceptionally qualified to bring to conferences, to legislative halls, to administrative work, principles of Christian charity, principles not only sound in theory but tested in practice for centuries. There is surely a great need of crystallizing public Catholic opinion on charity. Those familiar with state controlled charities realize their limitations and defects. Even those who must pay taxes seem to regard the public funds of charity as inexhaustible. The state has little power to deal with motives, and it is beyond its province to develop a public conscientious judgment that is formed on supernatural motives. There is nothing stronger in a man's life than his motives, and there will ever consequently be the practical difficulty of the state controlling the causes of poverty, crime and human weakness when it is powerless to control the motives of men. The strongest motives of men are the motives of the heart. The strongest motives of men are the motives of the heart. The strongest motives of men are the motives of the heart.

"I need not tell you that the Vicar of Christ, Benedict XV, is urging as the chief object of his pontificate the revival of the charity of Christ. This is the supreme need of our day. Its realization will solve a hundred complex problems which seem insoluble. You know that in the Apostolic Church love of one for another was so great, that possessions were held in common. Ask for Minard's and take it other.

No effort was too exacting in proof of brotherly love and for one's eternal welfare. Sacrifices on the part of all were demanded for the relief of the poor and for every form of distress.

"With the freedom granted by Constantine the charity of the Church was exercised under other conditions. It became necessary to legislate that the Christians should contribute tithes of their possessions to maintain a charity system. Greater demands were, however, now made on the Church as she sought to relieve all classes of people. Brave Bishops urged the obligations of alms giving, condemned that delay of it which made provision for charity only in one's last testament, and refused dishonestly acquired money. The Bishop was the Director General of Charities, assisted by priests, deacons, subdeacons and deaconesses. The Bishop's House of Charity was an extraordinary institution. It began as an inn. Its first care was to show hospitality to the stranger, who was nursed if sick, who was housed and clothed if homeless or poor. Here the widow and orphan found refuge. The Monastic Orders soon developed similar houses to those conducted by the Bishops. But the feudalism of the middle ages, the invasions from the north, the social evils of the time, the emancipation from Christian discipline, the revolt against penitential practices weakened Christian charity. The worldly-mindedness of spiritual leaders squandered the heritage of the poor. This combination of evils caused Christians to refuse responsibility for the sick and the needy, gave to the rich the idea of proprietors rather than administrators, while the system and abuses of usurers brought about many disorders. The suppression of monasteries and the appropriation of their resources by kings, princes extortionate feudal lords, even by Catholic governments, deprived the poor of many of their sources of relief. The Reformation brought other changes in the administration of charity of which Protestant founders bitterly complained.

"We Catholics have a duty in forming public opinion on every question of interest to the community at large. Has not aloofness kept us from contributing the same judgment of Catholic principles to many public questions? We refuse first place to any group or class of citizens in our love and service of country, whether in time of war or peace. We are exceptionally qualified to bring to conferences, to legislative halls, to administrative work, principles of Christian charity, principles not only sound in theory but tested in practice for centuries. ## HEARTBURN.

This is a very common trouble, especially with those who are hearty eaters. It is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach, attended by disturbed appetite, caused by great acidity. Whenever too much food is taken it is liable to ferment and become extremely sour and vomiting often occurs, and what is shown up is sour and sometimes bitter.

Keep your liver active by using MILBURN'S LAXATIVE PILLS. Miss Agnes Cutting, Shelburne, Ont., writes: "I have had heartburn for a long time. There was a gnawing and burning pain in my stomach, and then when I vomited there was a sour and bitter taste. I used two vials of Milburn's Laxative Pills, and they have cleared me of my heartburn."

The natural order are weak in comparison with those of the supernatural. The state can be assured of our unflinching good will and of our earnest desire to co-operate. We are ever anxious to uphold the things that pertain to the political and social order as subject to the judgment of the state. The state in caring for its poor and dependent classes does not, of course, exclude any class because of religion. We as Catholics have the same claim for our poor and dependent classes as any other citizens of city, state or nation.

"Our good will and co-operation and willingness for co-ordination must never be interpreted as delegating to any other private charity, or even the public charity of the state, the care and direction of the spiritual interests of those for whom we are responsible before God.

"Are we preaching sufficiently that superfluous possessions, at least in part, should be put at the disposal of those who need them? We are not suggesting that this be brought about by legislation in this age when there is an insane desire for legislation, but rather we must try to have individuals embrace Christian principles, we must give them an opportunity to be enabled by Christian traditions, so that by their voluntary acts they will form a social conscience and assume a social responsibility. Are we preaching that the rich should invest a portion of their possessions for the welfare of the poor and needy? Are we timid in telling our Catholic people that no last will and testament should be drawn up and signed without remembering the interests of charity? In the ages of faith, Bishops fearlessly condemned the actions of kings, princes and those of the wealthy classes who deferred until their deathbed the distribution of their possessions among the poor. Many of our Catholics are failing in this duty even at the supreme moment of death. Let us remind them of it; but better, let us urge them how to be their own almoners. We Catholics can have a large share in forming the public opinion that there is a duty in life and at death of giving to the poor and to the needy sick.

"We Catholics have a duty in forming public opinion on every question of interest to the community at large. Has not aloofness kept us from contributing the same judgment of Catholic principles to many public questions? We refuse first place to any group or class of citizens in our love and service of country, whether in time of war or peace. ## Watch Your Stomach. DON'T GET DYSPEPSIA.

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure. You eat too much. Drink too much. Use too much tobacco. You make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of a short time before dyspepsia follows.

Budock Blood Bitters is the remedy you require to restore the stomach to a normal, healthy condition so that the food no longer causes distress, but is thoroughly digested and assimilated, and goes on its way making rich blood and bone, nerve and muscle. Price, $1.25 a bottle. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Crerar, Weighed in The Balance, Found Wanting

Giving Mr. Crerar every credit for good intentions and honesty of purpose, he has failed lamentably to measure up to the stature of a statesman. It is the manifest duty of any one with his pretensions to grapple with the national problems and explain clearly to the people how he would solve them or how he could and would do better than has been done. But Mr. Crerar has not even attempted to perform that duty. If he has a good case he has never tried to establish it.
He has not argued the merits of Free Trade as compared with those of protection. He contents himself with the delivery of a few moth-eaten phrases, such as,
" You cannot export unless you import," " Protection makes the rich richer and the poor poorer," " The big interests are in control," and " Where do the party funds come from?" He knows the Free Trade policy of his party would mean a loss of the major portion of the Customs revenues, which last year amounted to $179,667,683. Yet, he does not state definitely how that loss would be made up. He does not take the national financial statement in hand and tell us definitely and in detail how he would raise the necessary money to carry on the country's affairs. We get amateurish talk from him about a land tax, but he never expounds it, never shows clearly how it should be applied, what its incidence would be, or the amount of revenue that would likely be obtained therefrom. He is prepared to increase the income tax, but he is careful not to say to what extent. When challenged by the reply that if the Income Tax were much greater than in the United States, men of capital and enterprise would be driven over-there to do business, he is silent.
It should be the aim of a would-be premier to educate, inspire and convince.

Mr. Crerar has failed to accomplish either one of these objects.
It is difficult indeed to understand how he has a following at all. Those who believe in him must do so in blind faith or else they are easily pleased and satisfied. The truth perhaps is that he is only leader in name; that he is a creation of circumstances; that he is being driven forward by the force of a movement which he is powerless to control or direct—a movement largely dominated by a certain new class in the West who have not yet imbibed our true Canadian spirit and who, unconsciously, perhaps, are playing the game of Canada's neighbor, rather than of Canada itself.

Mr. Meighen At Portage

Mr. Meighen's speech at Portage La Prairie on September 22nd enables the country to get a clearer perspective of the political situation. The position, as the Premier sees it, and as it undoubtedly exists, is briefly this:
That the Government, which believes in and seeks to maintain the traditional policy of moderate protection, is being assailed by two parties and upon different grounds. In the West the assault is under the flag of Free Trade.
In the East it is upon any ground whatsoever that offers a chance of success. In 1919 a Liberal convention adopted a new platform. It was a platform designed for one purpose and for one purpose only, namely, to capture the Agrarian uprising in the West, and it went almost to the point of Free Trade. It was a bold, high bid for Western support, but the West refused to bite.

The West, with a memory of '97 said to itself, in effect: " We cannot trust Liberal leaders.
They betrayed Free Trade after '96, and they may betray it again, so we shall stand aloof and experiment with a purely class movement. When the election is over we shall be in a position to impose Free Trade upon whatever Government is formed."

This left the Liberals in dangerous water. Their platform had failed to entice the West, and it was disastrous for the East.
Only complete apostasy could save them; and apostates they became forthwith. They said to each other: " We have failed to fool the West, and we are threatened with ruin in the East; only one thing can save us. We must let the farmers run as Free Traders in the West while we run as Protectionists in the East.
Wood and Crerar can take care of the Prairies; Fielding can talk protection in Ontario and Nova Scotia; Lapointe and Bureau can shout ' Je me Sou-viens ' in Quebec. The main thing is to beat the Government; after we get in we can fix our differences with the Farmers."

And this, as Mr. Meighen so clearly shows, is precisely what is taking place today. While Mr.
Wood of Alberta, preaches Free Trade and class domination in the West, Mr. Fielding talks Protection in the East; Mr. Bureau meanwhile taking care of Quebec by fanning the old embers of race and creed.
It is a cynical game, and perilous, particularly at this time. It is perilous because Mr. King is mortgaging his party to a force it may find itself unable to control. A Liberal party in office by virtue of the parliamentary support of the ex-Populist Wood of Alberta, would be a Liberal party vastly different from that which took office after '96. Mr.
Wood, through his plant tool, Mr. Crerar, would pull the strings.
Free Trade would be his demand, and the betrayal of twenty-five years ago could not easily be repeated. It would be a choice between Mr. King striking at the tariff or being kicked out of office; and it is not difficult to guess what his choice would be.
Canada, facing the most difficult period in her economic life, cannot risk her future upon such political juggling. She cannot afford to chance the possibility of Free Trade being put into effect. She cannot trust to statesmen with cynicism and promised treason as their references. The future is too hazardous and blighted.

Let all of us try, therefore, to keep the issue clear. Let us try to keep steadily before us that in this contest there is but one challenge, a challenge to the old N.
P. There is no question of defence, no question of economy, no question of Imperial relations.
The one and single issue is the tariff. If once the country can grasp this firmly, can comprehend clearly that it is merely fighting over again the battles of 1878 and 1891 and 1911, then we may confidently abide the result.

The Fight is On!

In the words of the Prime Minister at London:—" Come let us get together and engage the battle, and show once more that Canada is resolved on her course; that she won't be turned, or bent, or demitted, that she is steadfast, strong and true."
There have been many momentous elections in Canada, but we venture to say none of them was as important or vital to the Nation as the one to be held shortly.

It is the greatest testing time in all history of Canadian character.
It is a time of most acute crisis and, according as the people may decide, will largely depend whether or we are to go forward or stay in our tracks; whether or not we are to have economic stability, which can only be ensured by political stability; whether, as a Nation, we will make a strong fresh start or muddle along in political chaos, group striving against group and class against class. The whole financial, industrial and commercial structure of the country, labouriously built up through forty years of effort, is seriously imperilled by the Farmers and Liberal Platforms and by the trade exclusion policy of the United States. Our nationality even is in jeopardy. Courage, foresight, broad national vision, determined patriotic action and the co-operation of all classes are necessary to save us from very possible calamitous happenings and set us on the road to progress again.

Ultimate Result
Of Free Trade

President Thomas Findley, of the Massey-Harris Co., Implement manufacturers, recently contributed an article to the press calling upon the leaders of the parties committed to free trade to implement to reconsider their promise, " since it is quite possible that they will be called upon to implement them within a few months' time."

Mr. Findley continues: " The putting of these industries and the resultant list of free materials upon the list is so revolutionary a change in our fiscal system that we venture to say that neither the conventions adopting these resolutions, nor anyone else, can see the ultimate result of such a policy. I appeal to the leaders that they ought, in fairness to these important industries, to withdraw their specific pledges, and be free, if the responsibility of office fell upon them, to deal justly and according to their judgment with the issue at stake.
" My opinion is that free trade in implements means the inevitable shifting of the manufacture of Western Canadian implements from Ontario and Quebec to the western mid-states. If their is to be neither tariff nor sentimental preference to offset the geographical handicap we shall be forced sooner or later to establish ourselves on equal terms with our competitors. So far as my company is concerned, we are not going to lose our Western Canadian trade, even if it to retain it we have to build another factory in the western states. Therefore, our workmen, other industries which furnish us with materials, and those generally dependent upon them, are much more vitally interested in this matter than we are."

Destructive Storms

New York, October 1.—Tremendous damage, with loss of lives, was reported from Lake Shore and other points of New York and Illinois tonight as a result of a tropical storm this afternoon off Dunkirk. Captain E. W. Klein was drowned when his boat capsized. At Watertown, N. Y., Nathaniel Wood was killed when a falling tree struck his car. The Jersey City hall park was wrecked.

Toronto, October 1.—Very few Ontario cities or towns escaped damages. Buildings, signs, trees, telephone and telegraph wires were damaged by a hurricane today, and in some places fatalities were reported.

Montreal, October 1.—A terrible rain and wind storm struck Ontario and Quebec and New York State this afternoon. Telegraph and telephone connections were disrupted for a number of hours. In Montreal wind started a word-car on St. Catherine St., blew it across the sidewalk, injuring several people and landed it through a plate glass window into a store.

Four Children
Electrocuted

Kingston, Mass., Sept. 26.— Four school children were killed here today when a trolley pole came off a car which was carrying them to their homes, broke the feed wire, and caused their elec-cution when they jumped out of the car. The car was set on fire, but other children inside escaped serious injury. Nine other children were held in the car, which was a one-man trolley of the Plymouth and Boston Street Railway Company, by the motor-man. He caught a fifth youngster as he tried to leap to the ground. All the children lived in Kingston, and were on their way home from the lower primary and Maple avenue grammar school.

The accident occurred late in the afternoon as the car approached a bridge. The trolley pole slipped off the wire and broke the feed line, carrying thousands of volts. One end of the wire fell on the roof of the car, setting it afire. The other end fell to the bridge, charging the rails. Two children screamed and rushed to the door. The motorman tried to hold them back, but four jumped out. They came in contact with the rails and were electrocuted, dying instantly. The clothes were burned from their bodies.
A fifth child had got to the door, when the motorman seized him and barred the way, keeping the rest of his little passengers within the car until the current was turned off.

Half The Force Is Bootlegging

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Federal officials today had started an exhaustive investigation of the Chicago police department as a result of an appeal last night by Charles Fitzmorris, chief of police, who declared that, in his belief, " half of the city's 5,000 policemen are bootleggers, plying their illicit liquor operations much more industriously than they watch over the city." Federal indictment of at least seven members of the force, four of them commanders, may be expected within a day or two.
Charles Clyn, United States district attorney, said tonight in a letter to Chief Fitzmorris, promising that every effort would be made to break up the alleged relationship between liquor rings and the police force.

In a statement tonight, Chief Fitzmorris declared that prohibition was a failure, not only in Chicago, but in every city of which he had knowledge.
" In Chicago there is more drunkenness than there ever was —more deaths from liquor than before prohibition—more of every evil attributable to the use of liquor than in the days before the so-called prohibition laws became ' effective,' " he declared.
" Prohibition enforcement in Chicago is a joke."

" Chicago is like a dry farm needing water, and the prohibition enforcement office is as futile as any group of men would be who tried to stop the rain and prevent the ground from soaking up the moisture. The only way to make prohibition an actuality here or any place else is to stop the liquor at its source."

The chief's statement tonight also charged that several city officials outside the Police Department were implicated in the police booze ring, and said that preparations had been made to discharge half the force if that should be necessary.

Sets Clothes Afire

Montreal, Sept. 29.—While Oscar Methot, Cartier Street, was working on Victoria Bridge today, he stumbled over a 2,500 volt wire, and his clothing caught fire. Methot's garments happened to be saturated with oil, and they blazed so fiercely that the fire was seen from the shore and the St. Lambert brigade, thinking that the bridge was afire, rushed to the scene in a body. When Methot's clothes had been extinguished he was taken to the hospital, where it is reported that he cannot survive, a severe electric shock having preceded the burns.

Australia Has Surplus

London, Sept. 29.—A Reuters cable from Melbourne says that the treasurer of the Australian Commonwealth, Sir Joseph Cook, when introducing the budget in the House of Representatives today, showed a surplus for the past year of £894,000. The revenue for the year was £85,518, 000, and it exceeded the estimate by £2,153,000. The expenditure was £84,624,000, or £4,284,000 less than the estimate. An accumulated surplus of 6,618,000 pounds was reported.

The estimated revenue for the forthcoming year is £1,787,000 pounds, and the expenditure £4, 044,000 pounds, including 3,000, 000 pounds for shipbuilding, 11,000,000 pounds for soldiers' homes and land settlement; 6, 050,000 pounds for war pensions, and 500,000 pounds for aviation development.

The gross public debt is reported as £401,720,000, of which £259,807,000 is due the Imperial Government. Sir Joseph Cook said that the Government proposed to readjust taxation with the object of giving relief to mining ventures. The taxable incomes of primary producers would also be assessed on a quinquennial basis. The Federal Government, said the Treasurer, would also adopt the British taxation scheme for the elimination of double taxation within the Empire.

The Treasurer spoke optimistically regarding the outlook, and said that the economic strain was easing. He dwelt on the necessity for the removal of the burden of armament costs.

No fresh taxation is proposed.
The sum of £250,000 will be allocated for immigration purposes.

The country party in the House of Representatives has given notice of motion demanding the abolition of the high com-missionership in London in its present form.

A fatal accident in connection with the P. E. I. Railway occurred at North Wiltshire on Thursday evening last. Emanuel Wedge of Borden, an employe of the Car Ferry, while trying to board the train going west, in some way got caught and fell under the wheels. One leg was cut off above the ankle and the other was badly smashed. He was taken to the Prince County Hospital, Summerside. On the train doctors, who were travelling, rendered what aid they could. Shortly after reaching the hospital, the unfortunate man died. He leaves a wife and four children at Borden. He belonged originally to Mount Carmel.

A very sad tragedy occurred on Glenfinnan Lake, near Johnston's River, between Charlottetown and Fort Augustus, on the South side of the Hillsborough River. Four young lads were out in a leaky boat, in about ten feet of water. When they noticed the boat was sinking they became panic-stricken and jumped out. Two of the boys reached the shore, but so exhausted that they could not give the alarm. The other two sank for the third time before assistance reached the scene. The unfortunate boys who lost their lives were James Lafferty, 17 years, and Thomas Garland, 11 years. The bodies were afterwards recovered; but life was extinct for some time.

The old year took away, for ever, we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working toward the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our greatest January Carnival of Economy.

The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store.

2nd. We have combed the markets—taking utmost advantage of the opportunities created by far sighted manufacturers who were ready to co-operate with us in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least.

We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in every department of our store, and then realize that prices are away down to the bottom, where it is a pleasure to buy things.

Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES.

We shall forgo a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark-downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and

THE MOST STIRRING PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN.

No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page; but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.

Sacrifice in Ordination

Mine be the lonely way for evermore... That winds still upward north darkening sky...

The Ring That Wandered

Where are all the wedding rings made? Nobody bothers very much about that question, imagine...

In my pilgrimage about the general hospital, I asked the nurse if there were Catholics there...

Miss Bovard, you may play possum as long as you like, but I'll be here when you wake up...

Dear God, another minister I had three yesterday, and turned them all flat...

Hard on them, I answered, but I'm a priest. You didn't belong to their churches...

I don't belong to yours, either. Aren't you a Catholic? No...

To the general reader I must explain that only Catholics use this religious insignia, two little pieces of cloth on a string about the neck, worn next to the skin...

Then she spoke brokenly: I was a Catholic twenty years ago...

Keep Minard's Lintiment in the house.

All Stuffed Up

fan's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat...

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh—It soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

ninety and nine in the desert and— I know all about it, she broke in curtly. But some sheep get so far off the track, get lost so badly, fall so deep into the thorn-crowned pits that there's no finding them...

We talked long, but I seemed to be going around in a 'carousal' of brilliant chatter, action without progress. I arose, and told her I'd be in the next morning to give her the Sacraments of the Church.

'Do come to see me,' she said sweetly, with a flash of perfect teeth. 'But forget the Sacraments.'

'I'll come every day,' I threatened, 'till you'll bribe me to stay away or to pick on some one else, I'm going to pitch my camp right here.'

She smiled again, and then dismissed me by closing her eyes wearily. Next morning I asked the nurse about Vera Bovard.

'A queer one,' quoth that matter of fact lady. 'This morning she asked me to put a white kidnap on her, as she was going to do the first decent thing she's done in twenty years.'

'It was good news to me! I found my patient in very snow-white, her oval face as pale as the soft linen, and with a youthful freshness to it now. She came back to the church.'

Then her frail strength rallied a bit, and I found her sitting up. I hardly recognized her in her rich dress, which was in the latest mode. She gave me her story.

When a young girl, she ran away with a drummer. He had promised marriage, but didn't keep his word. And I never had the courage to go back home. Perhaps if mother had lived, I might have returned, but I couldn't face my stepmother.

I wrote to her father, telling him her condition. This with Miss Bovard's permission. I got a reply on Christmas eve, but purposely stayed away from the hospital. I sent her a little token for the great feast, and visited her on the day after Christmas.

Why didn't you come Christmas eve? she asked, looking at me sharply. 'Too busy.'

'So,' she replied, 'but was that the only reason?' I didn't meet her earnest gaze. You by that time had a reply from my home. What did father say? That he hated my memory, and never wanted to see me again or hear of me!

Her father was dead two years! The letter was from her stepmother, a kindly lady, who enclosed a generous greenback. A year large and pearly, rolled down her cheek.

I think it's better, she said quietly. 'On the other side we can understand things more clearly.'

1845 to 1921 FOR 76 YEARS

HAS BEEN RELIEVING Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Cramps, Pains in the Stomach, Cholera, Cholera Infantum, Cholera Morbus, Sea Sickness, Summer Complaint and all Looseness of the Bowels.

Why say more? We wish to warn the public against being imposed upon by unscrupulous dealers who substitute the so-called Strawberry Compound for 'Dr. Fowler's.'

A WONDERFUL REMEDY. Mr. E. S. Gable, Chatham, Ont., writes: 'It is a great pleasure I write you to say that I can't speak too highly of your wonderful remedy, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I was troubled with diarrhoea and tried everything I could think of to relieve me, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was advised to try Dr. Fowler's and found it great. I would recommend it to any one suffering as I did.'

She had no vague dreams of getting well. She knew she was doomed. One morning she appeared at my rectory. I was astonished to see her. She really was hardly strong enough to be abroad.

The hospital had a tag, DISCHARGED, tied on the foot of my bed this morning. A gentleman to move out and move on, he said dispassionately. 'They have no mercy for women like me.'

I was more hurt than I cared to tell her. I prepared to send her away to a friend, a heart of charity, in the mountains where the piney breezes might prolong her life, a wealthy lady whose earthly riches were balanced by her spiritual goodness, and whose left hand wasn't curious to know what her right hand was doing. She did her generous deeds without asking too many questions.

Vera promised to write me a letter every Sunday, and did, the epistles, very short ones, coming to me regularly on Tuesdays. Before she left, she said: 'I'd love to give you something to remember me. Oh, you've been so white, so human, so, so—everything!'

I hastened to reply that I'd remember her without any gifts, but she insisted. My mother was an odd character,' she continued. 'She died when I was fourteen. She called me to her bed, removed her wedding ring, and slipped it on my finger. 'I don't believe in taking beautiful things to the grave with me, daughter, she said. 'Keep this ring till your wedding day. Let the right man put it on your hand, and then you'll always connect your husband and your mother, one love enhancing the other.'

One of the best known gullees in Nova Scotia gives this testimonial of MINARD'S LINIMENT: Have used MINARD'S LINIMENT in my home, hunting and lumber camps for years, and consider it the best white liniment on the market. I find that it gives quick relief to minor ailments, such as sprains, bruises and all kinds of wounds. Also it is a great remedy for coughs, colds, etc., which one is liable to catch when log driving and cruising during the winter and spring months. I would not be without MINARD'S LINIMENT and cannot recommend it too highly. (Signed) ELLISON GRAY.

NERVOUS HEADACHES DIZZINESS COULD NOT SLEEP.

Mrs. M. Dargand, Young's Cove Road, N.B., writes: 'I was bothered very much with my heart and nerves, had nervous headaches and dizziness, could not sleep at night, and my appetite was all gone. I was almost on a nervous breakdown when a neighbor told me to try Millburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. This I did, and before I had the second box used I was better.'

To any of those suffering in any way from derangement of the heart or nerves, such as palpitation of the heart, faint and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, smothering feeling, shortness of breath, etc., we can recommend our
