Guelph Evening Mercury

THURSDAY EVENING, MAY 14, 1874. Local and Other Items. HOME AGAIN.—Mr. W. S. Smith, after a pleasant sojourn of some months in England, has returned to Guelph hale and hearty, and looking as weather beaten as the Ancient Mariner. SODA WATER.—Messrs. E. Harvey & Co. have their superb soda water fountain in operation for the season, and thirsty wayfarers can now have a glass of delicious soda water, flavored with the choicest syrups. NEW CONFECTIONERY STORE.—Messrs. Smith & Sutton have rented the store on the corner of Wyndham and Quebec streets, and intend carrying on the confectionery business. ARREST OF HILLEN.—Benjamin Hillen, late tinker of the gait, was to-day arrested by Chief Constable Kelly and lodged in one of the cells of Castle Mercer, sufficient evidence having accumulated to implicate the prisoner in the escape on the 15th April last of Samuel McLean. Y. M. C. A.—The regular weekly meeting of the Association will be held in the rooms to-night at 8 o'clock, when an essay will be read by Mr. Robt. Shaw on "The Millennium." TEMPERANCE ENTERTAINMENT.—The L. O. G. T. intend giving a grand entertainment in the Good Templars' Hall on Monday evening next, when an excellent programme will be presented, consisting of speeches, singing, recitations, dialogues, &c. BURNING AND ACCIDENT.—This (Thursday) forenoon, as a milkman named Knowles was driving along Paisley street, his horse became obstreperous, and bolted around the corner of Cambridge street, damaging the fence in its passage, and throwing the harmless vendor of the lactical fluid from his rightful position to one less elevated. He was slightly damaged, and for a short time, milk had a "come down." POLICE COURT. James Burgess, charged with vagrancy and the use of insulting language, was sentenced to twenty-one days in goal at hard labor. Edwin Gilbert, an employee at the G. W. R. wharf, Hamilton, had a rib broken and was bruised about the head and body while making up a train on Wednesday. Mr. E. Caswell, Deputy Reeve of Ingersoll, has resigned his position, and Mr. Allan McLean will probably take his place at the Council Board. The Presbytery having charge over Erskine Church, Ingersoll, have refused the request of Chalmers' Church, Quebec, to have the Rev. Mr. Wright translated to that city. Housekeepers should know that a small piece of paper or linen moistened with spirits of turpentine and put into a bureau or wardrobe for a single day, two or three times a year, is a sufficient preservative against moths. "My dear" said the sentimental Mr. Waddler, "home, you know, is the dearest place on earth." "Well, yes," said the practical Mr. Waddler, "it costs me about twice as much as any other spot." Mr. T. M. Fairbairn, M.P.P. for West Peterboro, died on Wednesday morning at Jacksonville, Florida, where he had gone a few months ago for the benefit of his health, which had been failing for some time past. He will be buried at Peterboro. John McKewen, Esq., M.A., of the town of St. Catharines; Cassimir Stanislaus Gzowski, Esq., C.E.; and John Macdonald, Esq., of the City of Toronto, have been appointed members of the Senate of the University of Toronto. Bayard Taylor deplores the effect of civilization in Egypt. It costs twice as much as it used to get up the Nile, and there are more folks loafing about in the way. It ain't comfortable. The late Mr. Robert Freeland, of Gryffe Castle, Bridge of Weir, Scotland, cotton spinner, has bequeathed legacies to religious and charitable institutions and to his servants amounting to upwards of £40,000. A proclamation has been issued prohibiting the manufacture of or importation into the North West Territories, outside the Province, of intoxicating drinks. The Government is evidently taking active measures for the suppression of the notorious Indian whiskey trade. SCIENCE IN TORONTO.—On Wednesday evening an Englishman named Henry Young, aged about 25, shot himself through the head with a pistol, in his bedroom at No. 4 James street, where he was lodging. The bullet entered his right eye and caused death almost instantly. An inquest was held at eight o'clock, when it transpired that the unfortunate man had arrived in this country only a month ago. He appears to have become despondent through want of employment, and for some time had been indulging in strong drink. The eldest daughter of late Hon. D'Arcy McGee was married on Tuesday to Mr. F. A. Quinn, advocate, of Montreal. Mr. Samuel Capper, Dominion Emigration agent at Manchester, England, sailed by the Allan steamer "Hibernia" on the 7th inst. for this country, bringing 200 Good Templars.

The Progress of Oddfellowship.

On Monday evening, 11th inst., the weekly meeting of the Grand Encampment, I. O. G. T., Hamilton, was rendered unusually interesting by the presence of several distinguished visitors, who at the close were entertained at dinner in the Commercial Hotel by the Hamilton brethren. Among the guests were: Bro. J. Ham Perry, Grand Patriarch of Whitley; Bro. A. Purves, Past Grand Patriarch; Bro. Samuel G. Dolson, Past Grand Patriarch and Past Grand Representative; and Bro. Weir, Past Chief Patriarch, of London. In response to the toast of the "Grand Encampment" Grand Patriarch Perry made a most eloquent speech. He spoke of the progress of the order was making in Ontario, and throughout the civilized world. During the last term, tents had been planted at Ingersoll, Manilla, Niagara Falls, the oil regions and Port Hope; making five encampments that had been established during the year, and making an immense increase in membership. The prospects of the present term were quite as flattering, and by next August they could confidently look forward to an Encampment membership of at least 1,250. The books had already been sent to Manitoba for the opening of an Encampment there, and this was but the commencement of the good work in that great Lons Land. The speaker gave a most interesting sketch of the establishment of the Order in Baltimore fifty-five years ago, when five individuals met to form the foundation of the institution. They were true Britons, true British hearts, who knew the benefits such an Order was bestowing on the old land. The Order now numbered 430,000. The capital upon which the founders of the institution contributed on that memorable day was about 1832; now the annual revenue was $4,000,000. Since then 930,000 brethren had been initiated, $50,000,000 collected, and $20,000,000 paid out for the charitable purposes for which Odd-fellowship is noted. CORRUPTION AMONG ENGLISH POLITICIANS.—The revelations made during the progress of the recent contested election trials in England, while they have a most serious aspect, are at the same time rather amusing. Whether or not the direct purchase of votes by the aspirants to Parliamentary honors was something new to the English electors, we are not sure; but in many cases the voters who had been bribed acted in a manner which immediately suggested their complicity in a bargain, and put the authorities on the track for its punishment. Several outspoken electors did not hesitate to admit, and even chuckled over the fact that they had received bribes; and one of the more enterprising, with an eye to business, arranged with the agent of Mr. Green, the Conservative candidate for Wakefield, to secure four votes and receive £8 for the job. These evidences of bribery and corruption, coming to the ears of the opposing party, were made the foundation of charges of a most serious character, which threaten to deprive several English members of Parliament of their seats. One cause of this direct barter with the electors, who are only too susceptible to any approaches from a financial standpoint, is the fact that in many cases the candidates are entire strangers to the electors, and consequently require to use other than legitimate means of interesting those whose suffrages they claim. These recent exposures show that the mother-lode is not free from the corruption that has been so rampant in our own country; and although the upturning of this fruitful source of evil may not be at all pleasant or creditable, it may eventually result in an English Election Law that will have a wide influence in conserving the integrity of the nation and uprooting an evil which threatens to degrade its dignity. TRIBUTE TO A WELL-KNOWN CITIZEN OF GALT.—We heartily endorse the following from the Galt Reformer:—"We have just learned, and we chronicle the fact with extreme regret, that this town is about to sustain a severe loss, in the departure from it, shortly, of Robert McLean, Esq., who has, we understand, received an appointment in the Scottish Provincial Life Insurance Company of Toronto, similar to that which he has held for years back in the Gore Mutual, but in many respects better. There are few men in Galt whose presence would be more keenly or widely missed than Mr. McLean's. In the church and all its ramifications; in the Temperance Society; in the Council Chamber, as well as in the field of Politics, where he fought many a hard and consistent battle in the cause of Reform, he was ever first amongst the foremost, and we think it not too much to say that the country may be searched far and wide before many can be found so zealous, so energetic, so active, and withal so willing in every good cause. Whilst sorrowing at his departure, however, we cannot but admit that the regret is tinged with a certain measure of gladness at his prospects of a considerably better position. We feel sure that the people of Galt will unite with us in wishing both him and his God-speed, with long life, health, wealth and unmeasured happiness throughout their future career. Mr. McLean, we understand, tendered his resignation of his present position on Monday, and will be leaving town to settle in Toronto as soon as practicable. Prices for hay in Hamilton range from $16 to $24 a ton."

The Russian Czar and Alexis. Their Reception in England. The Virginus Butchery. London, May 13.—The Russian Imperial yacht Darsherva, with the Czar on board, went aground yesterday while leaving the harbor of Flashing and was not floated until 11 o'clock this morning. Large crowds gathered at the Railway stations by which the train bearing the Czar will pass. Flags are flying at all points. He will not reach these shores until several hours behind the time fixed in the official programs. The Czar and Grand Duke Alexis arrived at Dover at seven o'clock this evening. An immense crowd witnessed the debarkation of the party and greeted them with hearty enthusiasm. The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, the Prince of Wales and Prince Arthur were waiting to receive the Imperial visitors, and conducted them at once to Windsor castle, where they arrived at ten o'clock to-night. New York, May 13.—A Little Rock dispatch dated 10 o'clock last night, states that firing had commenced again. Baxter has received two cannon from Texas, and it is reported they will be turned upon the State House. The Speaker of the House says he will not preside over the extra session called by Baxter. New York, April 14.—A Little Rock special says, yesterday afternoon a Sheriff arose in the street between Sheriff Grayson, a Brooksite, and Mayor Henry and Lieut. Hill, of Baxter's forces, during which pistols were freely used. Several others entered into the affray, but all ceased and dispersed as soon as they saw the regulars getting ready to fire upon them. Additional forces of regulars were expected last night from St. Louis. There are four of Brook's men in the Senate, and if they do not like the action of the associates, one can draw, and another can move for a call of the House, and no quarum would then have to be declared as there is now just a quorum. John Alexander, shot in Tuesday's skirmish, died yesterday. New York, May 14.—A Madrid letter states that Gen. Barriel, of the Santiago de Cuba butchery notoriety, has written a letter to a Spanish newspaper in defence of his butchery of the Virginus captives. He states he simply obeyed the Spanish laws in relation to such captives, and as a military officer carried out the laws for which he was not responsible. The English professional accountants, sent over to examine the books of the Erie Railway, arrived yesterday, and to-day commence operations. DOMINION PARLIAMENT. Ottawa, May 13. After routine business had been disposed of, Mr. Dymond moved a resolution for an address to the Governor General, praying him to represent to the Imperial Government the desire of the House that the Act passed in 1872 permitting the reprinting of British copyright works in Canada, under certain conditions and restrictions, should receive the Royal assent. The motion was agreed to. Mr. Cameron (South Ontario) moved for a statement of moneys expended in the past four years in the militia service. He was opposed to the present rate of expenditure, and to the system of maintaining a standing army. Mr. Ross, Minister of Militia, defended our militia system as necessary in the present condition of the country. Mr. Higginbotham said he had no objection to the hon. gentleman obtaining any information he might deem necessary relative to the expenditure, nor was he going into a discussion on the militia question generally, as this was not the proper time to do so. But he rose to protest against the statement of the mover of this resolution, who said that the volunteer was demoralized by drill, that it unfitted him for the active duties of life afterwards. He characterized the statement as unjust to a large body of our most loyal people, who devoted their time and means to a necessary preparation for the defence of the country; and he expressed his conviction that where the irregularities complained of existed, the fault could be traced to want of discipline on the part of the officers. He also denied that officers were fully paid, as it was well known the Lieut. Colonel and the subaltern receive the same pittance of one or two dollars per day. The hon. gentleman might indulge in his own opinions as to peace societies, but he should not misrepresent the volunteers of the country. The motion was carried. Mr. Bowell moved for correspondence relating to the removal of Dr. Strange from the position of surgeon of A. Battery at Kingston. He attacked the Government for the removal of Dr. Strange. Mr. Mills moved the second reading of his Bill to facilitate the removal of obstructions from navigable rivers. The motion was carried. Mr. Brooks moved the second reading of the Bill from the Senate to amend the law of libel. The second reading was agreed to, and the Bill referred to a small Select Committee. Alcohol and the Nervous System.

The New York Neurological Society, which was reorganized last month, held its second meeting on Monday evening, the President, Prof. Wm. A. Hammond, M. D., in the chair. The President delivered the inaugural address, selecting for his subject "The Effects of Alcohol upon the Nervous System." After referring in general terms to the influence of alcohol, he proceeded to narrate the results of scientific investigations commenced by him in 1856 with reference to this subject. The use of alcohol as a beverage was, especially at the present time, engaging a great deal of attention; but few who participated in it considered the matter in its true light, and this was more particularly the case with the advocates of total prohibition: They seemed to indulge in invective rather than arguments, and their facts were based solely on its excessive use. He did not question the truth of the allegation that intemperance produced the most disastrous effects, and even fermented liquors led to results which were entirely abnormal in their character. That alcohol was an absolute necessity in certain cases was equally evident, when it was directed attention to the subject, he said that he never failed to recognize the presence of alcohol in the blood, brain, and stomach of dogs which he experimented upon by giving them liquids containing from eight to fifteen per cent of alcohol. The alcohol was a vital poison, which, when administered in sufficient quantity the condition known as intoxication was produced. Previous to this point the nerves become excited, the mental faculties were quickened, and the face became flushed, but these symptoms subsided with the continuation of their cause. If the potations were renewed the use of the faculties were lost, and temporary insanity was produced. He described the character and method of the formation of the organic tissue, observing that food did not furnish directly any force to the body, it being converted into brain, blood, and muscle, and its benefit to the system was then realized. In alcohol itself, under judicious use, there was an inherent element which stimulated digestion, and the general processes for conducting food to the wants of the body. The experimenter personally made a series of experiments to determine the real value of alcohol as an aliment or a substitute for it. The first was directed to the ascertainment of the influence of alcohol when the food was just sufficient for the wants of the organism; second, when it was not sufficient, and third, when it was more than sufficient. In the first instance, the effect was notably injurious; in the second, the digestion was well performed, the faculties were stimulated, and there was no nervous excitement; but in the third there was produced head-ache, oppression, sleeplessness, and a general indisposition to work. He was sure if the experiment was continued, he would have been seriously ill. Under the influence of alcohol he noticed a very perceptible increase in the weight of his body, and from these investigations he was justified in concluding that alcohol was food. He detailed the results of numerous experiments made upon dogs, rabbits, and other animals until drunkenness, paralysis of the limbs, and death finally ensued, and in the course of his investigations he discovered precisely the same symptoms which he developed themselves in human life. The progressive results of imbibing liquor were excitement, perturbation, and paralysis, and it was singular that under its influence, with varied exceptions, the victim exhibited qualities exactly the reverse of his true character. The first error happened that, when his state of intoxication increased, an individual who was high toned and generous would be anxious to take offence and engage in quarrels without any provocation. It was under these circumstances that outbreaks against the law were perpetrated and men were unable to control their animal qualities. He cited cases coming within his own knowledge, where the introduction of a considerable quantity of alcohol into the system produced immediate death, and where also an emetic administered to a drunken man produced sobriety. Examination of the brains and blood of those who died from delirium tremens or other diseases resulting from drink, showed the presence of alcohol very clearly. This point of the lecture was rendered very interesting by a variety of experiments. He was disposed to think that delirium tremens contained two disorders—one was cerebral, disease produced by alcoholic poison, and the other resulted when a system habituated to take large doses of alcohol, is deprived of the accustomed stimulant. He defined also the nature of chronic intoxication, and the general manner observed there from all these diseases, the result of drink, the moral sensibilities were entirely destroyed, and murder may be committed without any provocation. He advocated the moderate use of stimulants under certain circumstances, as indispensable to preserve health, and while he did not think a prohibition he would be in sympathy with the passage of a law restraining the sale of whiskey and rum, but he would cultivate the growth of the hop and vine. On concluding Prof. Hammond was loudly applauded. A short discussion on the subject then ensued, and the meeting adjourned. VIGOROUS OLD MEN.—The octogenarians are coming rapidly to the forefront of late years. It used to be said that old men shone most in council and young men in war. President Lincoln once said he did not much confide in any general older than himself, and he was of that age which the Germans call "in besten Jahren." But Moltke rehabilitated the old fighting men in the late war with France. Field-Marshal Wrangel recently celebrated his sixtieth birthday with great éclat in Berlin. General Concha, Marquis of Duero, who is past eighty executed last week that brilliant and rapid movement on the Nervion which resulted in the retreat of the Carlists from Bilbao. And to prove that the old men have not lost their presence in counsel, while they have been taking away from the boys their lead in war, the first party leader in Europe to-day is M. Thiers, who has just completed his seventy-seventh year, and the most energetic and industrious of American Governors is John A. Dix, who was Major and Adjutant in the war of 1812. We think the poets may as well stop wailing over these degenerate days.

The Pacific Railway.

We have already given the substance of the resolutions embodying the new scheme for the construction of the Pacific Railway, but as Mr. Mackenzie's masterly speech, giving full explanations in regard to this great enterprise, contains much which deserves to be put on record, we propose to give a synopsis of that speech. He began by a recapitulation of the history of the original scheme, showing wherein it was defective, and how it ended in utter failure. From that he went on to speak of the extraordinary proposition made by the late Government to British Columbia, that the road should be built in ten years. This promise was the less excusable inasmuch as the people of that Province never asked for such a promise, and the Government when they made it, knew well that it could not be fulfilled. Their experience in building the Intercolonial might have taught them this, for it was thought that road could be built in three years, yet seven years have elapsed since it was begun, and it will be still another year before it can be completed. That road is only 500 miles long, while the other will be over 2,500 miles, passing through a country almost uninhabited, and presenting difficulties in the construction of a railway of a most extraordinary character. In spite of all these drawbacks, the present Government, while avoiding the errors of their predecessors, still honourably pledge themselves to carry out, as far as they can, the spirit of the agreement entered into with British Columbia, although in view of the enormous expenditure which its construction will entail, we think they would be justified in delaying it for years to come. We believe it was nothing but the hope of controlling such expenditure that tempted the late Government to go so rashly into the enterprise, by which they hoped to keep themselves in power for many years; and it is a remarkable instance of retributive justice to find that the very agent by which they expected to retain that power was ultimately the cause of their defeat and ruin.

After stating the whole case without any reservation, and fully establishing the wisdom and prudence of the course which the Government have resolved to follow, Mr. Mackenzie then goes on to unfold the enterprise. Mr. Sanford Fleming's lowest estimate for the construction of the road was $100,000,000, the interest, &c., on which would increase our debt yearly by $6,000,000. The interest on our other debts already amounts to the same figure, which would entail an annual burden of twelve millions of dollars without applying a cent to the ordinary business of the country. Then, there is the estimate of Mr. Fleming that—supposing the road were built—it would not pay running expenses until a population of three millions of people inhabited that territory. The running expenses of the road are estimated at eight million dollars per annum, and this, too, independent of renewals, repairs, &c. The Premier stated that the late Government had thrown an additional difficulty in the way in agreeing to build the road not only to the Pacific coast, but to continue it to Esquimaut, in Vancouver Island, 240 miles further, where the difficulties of building a road would be enormous. The present Government desired to fulfil the obligations incurred by their predecessors, though they did not think they were absolutely bound to do so, and to this end they had commissioned Mr. Edgar, who had gone to British Columbia as their confidential agent, to offer the Local Administration to commence the road at Esquimaut and push it forward as rapidly as practicable if the British Columbians would assent to a relaxation of the original terms, and accept an agreement that the Pacific road throughout their Province should be built at the rate of an expenditure of one million and a half dollars a year. If that were refused, then they had no resource but to abide the terms, which did not compel them to enter Vancouver Island at all. Whether this reasonable proposal would be accepted or not, he could not at present say. Mr. Mackenzie went on to say that the Government did not intend at present to build the eastern section from Lake Nipissing to Lake Superior, but the section from Lake Superior to Fort Garry would have to be built as soon as possible so as to secure a good summer route from the Eastern Provinces to the Northwest. The length of this section will be 416 miles. From Fort Garry to Fort Edmonton the distance is 750 miles, but the water communication by the Saskatchewan river and the chain of lakes could be utilized for some time until the Government felt themselves in a position to go on with that section of the road. From Fort Edmonton to the Pacific Coast a railway was the only means of access left. The probable terminus on this coast would be Bute Inlet. The branch from Fort Garry to Pembina would have to be gone on with at once, so as to give the people of Manitoba railway facilities at the earliest possible period. After explaining at length the plan by which the Government proposed to build the road—which we have already given—he stated that Mr. Fleming's estimate of cost of construction per mile was $40,000. With regard to commencing the work in British Columbia, he said they might begin to grade the road at once and keep within the terms of the Union Act, but he would scorn to do anything which savoured of deception, and he held that it would be unsound in principle and practice to commence the work until they knew the precise point where it should be undertaken. He therefore strongly favoured a full and complete survey before work was commenced, which would save them many blunders similar to those which had been committed on the Intercolonial Railway because the work had been commenced before accurate surveys were made. In spite of all the difficulties before them, he said he had great faith in the future of Canada, and had a firm belief that even within his own life time the vast prairies of the West will be filled with a busy population, that the vast mineral resources of British Columbia will be developed, and her agricultural resources greatly quickened. He then compared the position of Canada, in undertaking this enterprise, with that of other States, both in Europe and America, which had commenced or completed works of a similar character, and the mode in which they had gone about the work. He also showed wherein the present scheme differed in principle and detail from that brought forward by the late Government. He then explained how the Government came to advance $250,000 to British Columbia to pay the cost of building a graving dock. He held that this was merely carrying out one of the terms of the Union with that Province—or rather a modification of one of these terms. The same argument held good with regard to the proposal to advance $900,000 to that Province for internal improvements. Coming back to the main subject he concluded his elaborate remarks by saying:—

"We must frankly confess, that we are unable to carry out the terms of Union. All engineers pronounce it a physical impossibility; and under these circumstances, all that British Columbia could fairly complain of would be an indisposition on our part to carry out the terms as far as practicable. They have seen no indisposition on the part of this Government, and they will see none on the part of this Parliament, and it would be madness for them to expect, or for us to pretend, that we were willing to do what everybody knows is a physical impossibility. It being impossible to implement our bargain to the full extent, we propose a means of access to British Columbia by the people east of the Rocky Mountains, and similar advantages to those on the west for reaching the old portions of the Dominion by connecting our inland waters by means of railways. It is quite possible, Sir, that I may, at a subsequent stage, have to make some further explanations in regard to this matter, but in the meantime I leave the resolutions in the hands of the House, confident that they will coincide in the policy we propose, and confident that the resolutions will also commend themselves to the confidence and good judgment of this country, and not only of this country and this Parliament, but of every Imperial Parliament also, and of every reasonable man."

VOLUNTEER DRILL.—In reply to a question put in the House on Monday, the Hon. Mr. Ross said that the Government intended to reduce the volunteer force during the present year to about 25,000 effective men, and it was more than probable they would go to brigade camp during the training, but it was not actually decided.
