Lordon, June 25.—A private meeting of conservative members of parliament was held to day. The presence of several conservatives from Ulster, Ireland, is regarded as an indication that the differences recently existing between the English and Irish conservatives have been adjusted. Lordon Salisbury explained his reasons for taking office, and said he had already taken counsel concerning the course to adopt for the immediate future. His lordship referring to the political situation said he felt sure that all would agree that a timor ous policy would be unwise, if not fatal. He reckoned upon the united support of his party. Sir Stafford Northcote expressed entire concurrence with the Marquis of Salisbury in the line of action taken and proposed for the future. The proceedings were humorous throughout. The meeting unanimously approved of the action taken by the Marquis of Salisbury. It was thought however that the liberals ought to have given more definite assurances.

LIMA, June 25.—The steamship Puno arrived with fifty three survivors from the wreck of the steamer Italia. There are seventy persons missing and as far as known only eight passengers were saved while only one of the crew was lost. The greatest confusion ensued immediately after the vessel struck. The shock strained the vessel struck. The shock strained the vessel so that the doors of cabins could not be opened, thus imprisoning the passengers. The captain was not on deck at the time of the accident, which was due to a wrong order given by the third officer. The latter has since committed suicide. Great credit is bestowed on the heroic offorts of the purser to save passengers, he with a boat being finally aswamped when the steamer sank.

The suffering of the French in Tonquin. PARIS, June 25.—Accounts received from Tonquin show that the ravages of disease among the French troops there are appalling. Three thousand invalided soldiers have been sent home. Three hundred soldiers are down with disease and await transportation. The deaths among the troops are from fifteen to twenty daily.

DUBLIN, Ju France and Russia are exchanging views France and Russia are exchanging views in regard to the policy to be adopted by the new cabinet of the Marquis of Salisbury. The French ambassador at London has already sounded the marquis upon the course the British government will take in Egypt. The Republique Francaise and Voltaire admit the existence of divisions in the republican party. They advise that no program should be issued, and urge that all efforts be now confined to strengthening the republic itself.

No adequate provision had been made for the gastronomical requirements of the children. Water could be got nowhere on the grounds except at a tap which was accessible only to a favored few. Refreshments in the shape of pop and indigestible cake were dispensed at fabulous prices at a booth at the north end of the field. Why not have given the children a free feed on oranges and good buns, as is done at so many Sunday school picnics with evident satisfaction to all? At the conclusion of the review the school trustees were photographed. Chairman Roden, attired in a broadcloth coat, white vest and lavender tie, taking his stand in the centre with an "I'm here, and don't you forget it" expression of countenance. The photograph was a complete success.

In the afternoon a drill competition for the Boswell banner, between one company each from the Wellesley, Ryerson and Dufferin schools, took place, and resulted in a victory for the Wellesley school company under Captain Knowlton. Simultaneously with the drilling a calisthenic competition was going on at the other end of the field. The gallant customs officials at this port are paralyzed over a recent innovation in commercial circles. Washington, June 25.—'The president ha issued an executive notice announcing a diplomatic agreement between the United State and Great Britain continuing the privilege granted by the fisheries treaty throughout the season of 1885, and will, as a part of this agreement, bring the whole question of the fisheries before congress in December and recommend the appointment of a joint commission by the governments of the United States and Great Britain to consider the guestion with when

Our contemporary, the Telegram, heads this "The Fishery Treaty Renewed." Well, the despatch itself is good, but the heading beats it all to sticks. The situation is simply this—that while the privilege of selling fish lapses on July 1, that of catching fish is by executive action extended for the rest of the present season. The president will recommend the appointment of a commission to consider the question. What question? From the context, we should say-the fishery ques. sion. It was diplomatic on Blake's Serial Speech on the C. P. R., his part to say so, because it would not be which has been running in the Globe for polite to shut the door, until we see what it is really that our neighbors have to offer. And the Montreal Gazette says that "a broad measure of reciprocity in natural products" may yet be the result. We should say—it is possible, but at the same time highly improbable.

Again we advise the public to look for this result—reciprocity in fish and fisheries call it. This will suit Ontario's book very paratus, worked from the ship's engine and light dynamos, by which a child could turn the great gun as easily as a peablower. That the English government should buy its slow-burning powder for heavy ordnance from Germany has long been a stock complaint in politics there. The course was necessary, because the Germans alone had the secret. So important was this secret deemed that it was proposed to pay $25,000 for it on the part of the British government. The inventor from Piscataquis county, Me., asked about it, and was told that the best chemists of England were completely bailled by the fact that the component part of this mysterious powder were precisely those of all other powder, neither more nor less. He got some of the powder from the Horse Guards and subjected it to a microscopic examination instead of a chemical analysis. He discovered at ence that the trick lay in regulating the size of the grains of infre, and he is prepared not only to make that particular kind of powder, but a hundred varieties, each with a separate and defined burning velecity. This has in turn suggested to him a revolution in the making of shells, which has at present progressed only to the stage of drawings, but of which the world will hear more later. We should say that the British government had better secure the exclusive service of the Maine inventor for the rest of his lifes for the Maine inventor for the rest of his lifes for the Maine inventor for the rest of his lifes the maine inventor for the rest of his lifes the maine inventor for the rest of his lifes the maine inventor for the rest of his lifes the maine inventor for the rest of his lifes for that murder I must class myself and he is prepared not only to make that he course of the Parnellites, of whom Mr. Davitt, by the way, is not one. world, may be safely trusted to administer -if he thinks it worth white-a well merited rebuke to the New York World for expressing its feigned indignation that he or any other American minister should obey Her Majesty's "commands" to dine at Windsor Castle. Mr. Lowell ought apparently to have replied that he was a citizen of a republic in which all men are free and equal, and that he had no "commands" to receive from the queen, or from any other European monarch. In that case, suggests our transatiantic contemporary, "her majesty would have been compelled to put somebody else before the plate intended for Mr. Lowell." It never seems to have occurred to this captious American censor that invitations issued from her majesty come from the lord chamberlain, who is "commanded" to send them. Eliquette prescribes that, if possible, they should be accepted by their recipients, but occasions not infrequently arise in which ill-health or the death of a relative or "urgent private affairs" of one kind or another forbid the invited guests to prefit by the royal hospitality. It would be as reasonable to demand that a citizen of the Great republic who enters the Mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople should not be required to take off his shoes or boots and to don alippers as to demar to the form of invitation which has for generations been employed by the British court. nerited rebuke to the New York World common exclamation at the Hanlan reception banquet on Wednesday night. It is cortainly to be regretted that they were not represented, but there was good reason for it. It was not that they love Hanlan less but that they love their own club more. In other words they doubtless felt that if any of them had any four-dollar bills to spare they would be put to better use paying for the expenses of their gallant crew in Ergland than in dining and wining. And they are right, It is to be regretted, but it is nevertheless true that neither the public nor their fellow rowing men have rallied round the Argonauts as they shorld have done in this matter of the expedition to England. The Argonauts have never complained, and it must not be understood that these words are inspired, for not a syllable has ever been breathed to The World on this particular point by any member of the club. Finding that the public were seemingly lakewarm regarding the undertaking, and the trip having once been projected, the club, or rather certain leading members, bravely deterning the undertaking, and the trip having once been projected, the club, or rather certain leading members, bravely deterning the undertaking, and the trip having once been projected, the club, or rather certain leading members, bravely deterning the undertaking, and the trip having once been projected, the club, or rather certain leading members, bravely deterning the undertaking, and the trip having once been projected, the club, or rather certain leading members, bravely deterning the undertaking, and the trip having once been projected, the club, or rather certain leading members, bravely deterning the undertaking, and the trip having once been projected, the club, or rather certain leading members, bravely deterning the undertaking, and the trip having once been projected, the club, or rather certain leading members, bravely deterning the undertaking and the projected the project the project the project the public were seemingly lakewarm regarding the undertaking, and ing once been projected, the club, or rather certain leading members, bravely determined that it should co on, satisfied that whose but it was a big undertaking never-theless with the odds so dead against theirs with the odds so dead against them. That English rowing men recognize the ability of the Argonauts is proved by the following extract from the London correspondence of the Globe, which manifests a strong desire to discount defeat:

It is too early yet to form any definite opinion as to their chances of gaining distinction whilst here. Still it is clear already to them that there are two or three circumstances in their favor which the Englishmen ere sure to arge in extenuation of their defeat, should it occur. In the first place, it nearly always happens at Henley that the fours who compate for the Stewards cup are composed of men who attach far greater importance to the grand challenge eight-oar contest, and who are moreover more or less stale when they go to the post for the fours. The Canadians, or the other hand, have made a specialite of four-oared rowing and are able to train especially for this contest. Secondly, and this, perhaps, is still more significant. In the opiniou of many authorities thore seems and this, perhaps, is still more significant. In the opiniou of many authorities there seems little likelihood of any of our English river clubs sending to Heulev this year a four which clearly reaches the best standard of previous years. Already I notice the prediction is made in sporting circles that should the Canadians prove able to maintain the reputation which has accompanied them here, it is by no means impossible that the English clubs may be defeated one after avoither for want of thorough organization and careful preparation. Strong appeal is consequently being made to amateur oarsmen to do their best in this matter to uphold the credit of English rowing.

By the way the happiest hit at the Hanlan banquet was Mr. King Dodds' allusion to the Argonauts of '49 and the Argonauts of '85. It was eagerly taken hold of and vooiferously applauded.

The Peorla Blackbird Tournament. The Pedria blackbird shooting tournanent promoted by John P. Moore & Co. was brought to a conclusion at Woodbine park yesterday afternoon. The first event was the shooting off the ties in the team match the previous day between the second team of the Toronto gun club and second team of the Toronto gun club and the Hamilton team. Five birds each man at 21 yards, or twenty five in all, were the terms. Another tie resulted, each team hitting only 11. When and where the second tie will be shot off has not been decided, but it will probably be within a fortnight, when more prizes will be offered and a good day's shooting take place. Hanlan sent two telegrams to Teemer at Pittsburg, one from Albany on Monday and another from this city on Wednesday, stating that he found he could not possibly get ready for the first race on August 8 and requesting a postponement for two weeks. Yesterday both messages came back saying Teemer could not be found, Hanlan's only course then was to telegraph to the If the Argonaut tour win and we are confident they will, in spite of the tricks and turns of the river at Henley, they will cover themselves and their olub wish glory. They will have accomplished more than any amateur crew from America has done. The game is therefore worth venturing, but everybody must admire the pluck of the club in going into it at such a time and under such circumstances. Of course if the four should win everything will be cookawhoep but it was a big undertaking never-ent he has no boat fit to row a race in. His request for a fortnight's delay in the premises is not unreasonable and it is to be hoped Teemer will consent in a sportsmanlike spirit. In the meantime, however, the McKeesport carsman has sent his forfeit of $1250 to the Clipper, while Hanlan has done nothing to ratify the bargain made at Buffale beyond signing the articles. The Clipper, it might be mentioned, thinks Hanlan's request not unreasonable and that Teemer should comply.

He is, therefore, glad to see that the radical changes previously mentioned as probable will not take place at least in their entirety. All of which is very well, but there are two or three things to which we would like to call our correspondent's attention, namely that men cannot play lacrosse for ever and that it is necessary to bring some young players on, that The World does not care to criticize individuals too minutely, that if for the future he wants to get anything into this journal he must write on one side into this journal he must write on one side of the paper and that his communication need not be so long.

ME QUESTIONS IN PARLIAMENT

Sir John Macdonald said the question was one that could not be answered very fully in the present state of nogotiations. He hoped to have the papers all before the couse before the next sitting on Tuesday. In the meantime he would say that after uly I Canadian fish entering the American market would be liable to duty.

On the order to go into supply Mr. Davies also adverted to the fishery question and objected to the arrangement as set forth in the press because he believed it admitted American fishermen to our waters without our receiving anything in return. He censured the government for having delayed the negotiations and for resping the people in ignorance up to the day of the expiry of the clauses of what regulations would be adopted.

Sir John said the arrangement had only been finally completed on the 22d inst, and the papers would be brought down as soon as imperial consent is obtained. It hould be remembered however that the United States government is composed of a ismocratic president and congress and a appublican senate, and under such circumstances an arrangement for regiments and an arrangement to redirect the
