SHOCKING MURDER AT HALIFAX.

Thomas S. Donaldson, Shot While Asleep on Cot in Room off Shop on Bedford Road by Young Assassin and Murdered. Cody Narrowly Escapes Death by Shooting. Probable Motive Robbery.

HALIFAX, May 30.—Thomas S. Donaldson, one of the best known men in Halifax, was murdered in his shop on the Bedford road at two o'clock this afternoon, and at eight o'clock to-night a man, who is believed to be the murderer, was arrested in Windsor, forty miles from this city.

The murder is one of the most shocking in the annals of crime at Halifax. Donaldson keeps a roadside shop, four miles out from the city. There is a back room to this shop, in which is a bed. Donaldson was reclining on this bed, and in the shop in front was an employee, whose name is Edward Cody. A young man came along, looked into the shop, and as it was raining, Cody asked him in. The newcomer talked for a few minutes about fishing, and then said: "Where is the tall fellow?" alluding to a man whom he had seen in the shop in the forenoon, and who had sold him some biscuits, for he had visited the place before eight o'clock in the morning.

"I don't know," was the reply, and Cody proceeded to enter the room. "Don't you move," said the visitor, and with that he whipped out two pistols, one in each hand. Cody did move and the stranger fired, putting a bullet into Cody's arm. Then Donaldson rose from the bed and a shot was sent into his right breast. He fell and rose again and a second shot was put in his left lung, and he soon died.

The suspected murderer was arrested to-night in Windsor on a description given by Cody. At the inquest it was found that Donaldson's till had been emptied of its contents. The police got busy and wired a description everywhere. At Windsor a man answering the description was seen. He went into a shop and bought a new suit of clothes and a pair of boots. The Windsor police found the man at the hotel with the discarded clothing on the floor. He was arrested and locked up. In his pockets were $23.40 in silver.

The man gave his name as Stanley and said he was from New Glasgow. This name proved to be fictitious. Cody will recover. The two revolvers with which the shooting was done were secured in the early hours of the morning by burglarizing Egan's shop on Water St.

The Acadia Recorder, of June 1st, states:—Many people saw the man during the day, and his movements can be pretty accurately traced. He left Halifax on the Sydney train at seven in the morning and got off at Rockingham Station. When he stepped to the platform a gust of wind blew his coat partly open and the brakeman noticed two revolvers and a sheath knife in his hip pockets. So heavily armed was he that the brakeman remarked it and several trainmen had heard of and commented on the incident long before the murder was committed. About eight o'clock he was at Donaldson's store talking to the man whom in a few hours he was to send into eternity. Purchasing some biscuits and other supplies, he left the shop just as Donaldson's nephew, Norman Dickson, entered it, and remarked that he was going fishing. Instead of keeping up the Hammond Plain road to Kearney lake, he proceeded along the Bedford road. Donaldson called out to him to take the other road if he wanted to go fishing. Without a word the man did so. A short while later he was seen by Mrs. Boutillier, who lives at the lower end of Kearney lake. Later when Mrs. Boutillier's children were returning from school they picked up the leather sheath of a seaman's knife on the roadside.

Detective Harrahan ascertained that a young man had been seen running to Rockingham to catch the outgoing D. A. R. train which left North Street Station at 3.35 o'clock.

That Stanley boarded the train at Rockingham is beyond a doubt. On the arrival of this morning's D. A. R. train from Kentville the Recorder interviewed Conductor Wm. Clark, who was in charge of the Kentville Express leaving Halifax at 3.35 o'clock. Mr. Clark gave the following account of his meeting Stanley: The young fellow got on the train at Rockingham. He did not board it from the platform, but climbed aboard from the other side. He went into a rear seat and threw himself back and breathed heavily, murmuring "Oh my, Oh my," two or three times, and placed his hands on his breast as if his breathing affected him. He then took his coat off as it was soaked with the rain and placed a cigarette in his mouth.

He was very much excited and the perspiration was rolling off him. Conductor Clarke went to his seat and asked for his ticket. He had none and offered money to pay his fare. He said he wanted to go to Truro, and the conductor charged him the fare to Windsor Junction and told him to get off there and catch the train for Truro.

On arriving at the Junction Conductor Clarke spoke to Mr. W. A. Harris, the station agent, and remarked that he thought there was something wrong in Halifax and told him to watch a young man whom he was going to put off there. The conductor then went to the car in which the youth was and told him to get off there to connect with the Truro train. He held up his hands palms outward and said "Oh my, Windsor," shaking his head also to indicate he was not going to alight at the Junction.

The conductor then collected the additional fare and the man smoked another cigarette. He seemed much excited.

Conductor Clarke told the Recorder that that was all he knew until he reached Kentville at 6.42 o'clock and heard that there had been a murder at Birch Cove. He wired to Chief of Police Rudland giving the description of the man and also that he had got off at Windsor.

Within an hour and a half the man was arrested.

The man has since been identified as Hubert Grant of Boston, and is believed to be a native of Antigonish, N. S. He was identified through a telegram sent from Halifax to his brother in Boston asking for financial assistance.

Grant is now in the County jail at Halifax awaiting trial. It was at first stated he was a "dope fiend," but this is contradicted by deputy sheriff Scriven who states:—"We have watched the prisoner closely since he was arrested, and he shows absolutely no signs of being addicted to the use of drugs. Were he a dope fiend of even the very mildest type, he would have ere this been asking for the drug. On the contrary, he does not seem to think of it."

"The accused is not kept in solitary confinement in the county jail, but is given the run of the corridor. He is with some four or five other prisoners, converses with them and seems quite contented. He displays no nervousness whatever."

A Town Official Doing His Duty

(Truro Citizen)

There are some misguided and misinformed people in Truro who make bold to say that Councillor Dunbar made a mistake when he caused papers to be served on the drivers of the automobiles who were conveying the mayor and town officials and Moncton visitors about town at a speed which he considered excessive.

Instead of condemning Councillor Dunbar the people who are saying ill of him should uphold him. Because the people of this town—the vast majority of the ratepayers and others—are behind his action to the limit.

And so they should be. May automobiles containing His Worship and town officials speed recklessly through the streets of this town, while other drivers, no more reckless, are haled to court?

Is there a halo around the brow of a town official that warns all others off? Has he more right on the public highway—the king's highway—than the most obscure law-abiding citizen?

May he ride his judgment through the streets at excessive speed and because—per chance—he kills no one, he given the right to break laws with impunity?

And we commend Doctor Dunbar, councillor and chairman of the police for his action and for the backbone he has displayed in this instance.

And we commend him for upholding the rights of the common people.

Such action is uncommon enough in this world to merit special mention.

And if Dr. Dunbar, chairman of the police, upon finding that the motor car carried such royal freight as town officials, had told the police under his control to let the matter drop, justice might well have taken a back seat, while weight and influence would ride rough shod over us more common mortals.

All honor to a man who does his duty.

All honor to the man who, in the right, turns not back.

That's why the citizens of Truro should pat Dr. Dunbar on the back, because by this very action of his, drivers of high and low degree must learn to know that reckless speed will not be tolerated. And when all have learned this lesson, the spectacle of the little empty chair will not torment so many of the good mothers of this and other towns of the province.

Duke of Connaught will Unveil Historical Tablets.

The Ven. Archdeacon Armitage, President of the Nova Scotia Historical Society, has just been officially informed that His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, will unveil the tablet marking the quarters of Sir John Moore, "the hero of Corunna," while residing in Halifax. The ceremony will take place on the occasion of His Royal Highness's visit to Halifax in August. The site is occupied by the Bank of Nova Scotia. On landing at Pictou, His Royal Highness will unveil the tablet to Sir William Dawson, the great scientist, and at Truro, the tablet marking the settlement of Truro, at Windsor the tablet marking the residence of Judge Halliburton, the creator of "Sam Slick," and at Annapolis Royal a tablet marking the birth-place of Sir Fenwick Williams.

There is nothing that will be more pleasing to Nova Scotians than this interest on the part of a Prince of the Royal Family in the history of its distinguished sons of their native Province. The tablets will thus gain an added historic interest arising from the fact that they were unveiled by a son of the good Queen Victoria. It is fitting too that one of the most distinguished soldiers in the Empire should unveil the tablets for Sir John Moore and Sir Fenwick Williams.

It is by such commendable work as this that the Historical Society is rolling away the reproach of which Dr. H. J. Morgan speaks when he says of Admiral Westphal, the hero of a hundred fights, (a native of Freetown), Inglis, the hero of Lucknow; Williams, the hero of Kara; Dunn, the hero of Balclava, and others, who distinguished themselves abroad have been ignored.

Prayer Book Revision

SUBSTANTIAL ADDRESS DELIVERED AT BRIDGETOWN ON MONDAY, MAY 27th, BY THE REV. W. DUFFIELD, D.D., OF DUNELM, N. S.

The Church of England has always had a liturgy, but in the example of the Jews and a few heathen religions.

We are the great scholars that no non-liturgical worship existed in the then it was held at the time of Christ. It is however the history and development of the liturgies of the church, and note that the compilers of the Prayer Book set themselves to revise and to translate the services already existing.

The result of their labours gave us the Prayer Book, which with slight alterations still use.

This is the uniformity—before this there were many types of service in England, and nearly every Bishop had his own Prayer Book.

It also was the intelligibility; in structure, the services were simplified, and the language, for they were translated from Latin into English.

In the Prayer Book we also gained contentment instead of several books, one and the same, and the invention of printing has made it possible for every man to possess his own.

The order of service was also made more formal and more concrete. The old and new were omitted and the new Prayer Book was introduced, and the Prayer Book gives a more intelligible worship to the people, and about 75 per cent of the people of the Bible.

It is a great pleasure to be permitted to be present at this service, and in considering this we must remember that the work of revision has gone on through all the ages.

The primitive Church retained much of the Jewish forms of prayer and worship, but she revised them, converted them into Christian worship, and enriched them with readings from the New Testament Scriptures.

So, century after century, the process went on, until in the sixteenth century the Church of England framed that order of service, of which Cranmer declared in 1549, that it was the same service the Church of England had used for 1400 years at least, but revised, purified and adapted to the new needs of the age.

The General Synod of the Church in Canada has decided on Prayer Book revision, adaptation and enrichment.

There are at least four good reasons for this.

The first is that we live in a different country from that in which the Prayer Book was framed.

We need prayers for our own Governor-General and Parliament. We require forms of service for missions and for isolated families. We need provision for our climate, especially in the shortening of the out-door part of the Burial Service.

Then we live in a different age. When the Prayer Book was compiled there were no foreign missions, no Sunday schools, practically no colonial Empire. Our needs have changed, conditions are altered, it is impossible today to obey some of the antiquated rubrics, 300 years have gone by since the English Prayer Book was first used; 200 years have elapsed since the last revision; it can scarcely be denied that modifications are required.

The third reason is that our language has changed. The Elizabethan English of the Prayer Book, though very stately and beautiful, yet contains many words and phrases hard for ordinary people to understand.

The fourth reason is that the arrangement of the Prayer Book might be simplified and rendered easier for the worshippers.

Both in England and in Ireland Prayer Book Revision is in progress, and we have the advantage of their deliberations, while the advice of the greatest scholars is freely at our disposal.

The English Prayer Book was used for the first time on Whit Sunday, as a token that its compilers had prayed for and trusted in the guidance of God the Holy Spirit.

Let us all pray that the same guidance may inspire and over-rule this important work of revision.

Rescued Just in Time

SERIOUS EXPERIENCE OF ROCKVILLE FISHERMEN.

(Yarmouth Herald)

On Tuesday morning last, Mr. Bernard Purdy, of Rockville, started in his gasoline boat from Kelley's Cove to attend his lobster traps. He returned about noon, and was met by Mr. Albert Smith, who asked Purdy to go off and assist in pulling his traps. Purdy did not want to go as he had no dinner, but finally consented and the two started.

They visited all the traps and were on their way home when their batteries gave out and they were helpless, as they had neither a sail or oars in the boat. They signalled for assistance, but all the boats fit to go out in such a sea were aground on the beach. They were over the anchor, but the heavy sea caught the rope to snap, and they were carried by the wind, sea and tide till they were off Sandford, when they caught a trap buoy, which broke the strain. They secured another and another, until they held, and they again signalled for help, it being then about 3 p. m.

They were seen from the shore, and a telephone message was sent to town and a tug went out to search for them, but in the darkness and rough sea they were not discovered, although, as the men related afterwards, the tug was only a short distance away at one time.

They were compelled to lay to the improvised anchor all night. The weather was exceedingly cold and the sea rough-breaking over the boat constantly, requiring continual bailing. In the morning they were descried from shore, but there was no boat sufficiently able to go to their assistance owing to the heavy sea. A telephone message was sent to Mr. Jean Harris, Short Beach, who has the largest and most powerful boat in the vicinity, and he at once, with commendable spirit, set out to the rescue of the men. He succeeded and the men were landed at Sandford about 1.30 p. m., almost exhausted, although Mr. Harris had thoughtfully taken provisions and drink with him before starting.

They received due care and attention, and are very grateful to all those who in any way assisted in their rescue from a watery grave. It was an exceedingly close call.

This is another instance where the necessity of motor boats should be equipped with sails, oars and provisions and it will be well in future for all the engaged in this precarious calling to so equip their boats and thus avoid another experience like that of Messrs. Purdy and Smith.

On following nights attempts were made at entrance to the houses of F. C. Crosskill, O. T. Daniels, Miss Annie Chute and others, but without success, so that the town has become thoroughly aroused and may be said to sleep with one eye open.

At Mr. Crosskill's when the attempted entrance was made Miss Crosskill happened to be awake and hearing some noise looked out of a back window in time to see the fellow crouching over the cellar doors. She had opportunity to see him quite plainly, for as she started him he looked up and as he quickly disappeared she got a general impression of his appearance. Mr. Crosskill dressed and went out to search for him, but was unsuccessful. But Mr. A. W. Kirney saw a man later standing for a moment in front of Mr. Crosskill's house as if interested in what was going on. He then moved down the street.

Suspicion attaches to one or more young men in the neighborhood of the town who have rather unsavory reputations and it is likely if anything more of a like nature occurs, they will find they are taking unjustifiable risks; and had better take warning and absent themselves while there is time, or confine themselves to their homes at night.

On the Sunday evening previous to the beginning of these depredations the store of Benj. Williams of Mochele, was broken into and fifteen dollars in cash taken, partly post office funds.

Some connect this theft with the series of burglaries attempted in this vicinity.

On Sunday evening a bold robbery occurred at Nietaux and in this case the thief got away with a large sum of cash.

Mr. Landers, of Nietaux, who lives alone was visited at night, and while he was in a sound slumber, his pockets were rifled of over $270 in cash. Awakening very early in the morning he discovered his loss and went to a neighbor's, (Mr. Crouse), whom he acquainted with his loss. Mr. Crouse was convinced that he knew who committed the deed, as he had been visited during the evening by a young man who had tried to borrow money of him, offering his watch as security, and when refused he had stated that he was going to try Mr. Landers. The young man was Walter White, of Bridgetown.

Coming to Bridgetown Mr. Landers secured the necessary papers and had a constable search the home of the young man here, but he was not to be found, as he had been absent from home some months, in consequence of warrants being issued for his apprehension in connection with another misdemeanor. Constable Anderson was despatched to Nietaux, but returned without finding any trace of the man he was after, and he is supposed to have escaped with his booty.

BURGLARS AT LARGE.

Householders and Merchants of Bridgetown Aroused to Necessity of Extra Precautions from Depredations of Midnight Marauders. Bold Robbery at Nietaux on Sunday Night.

A series of petty burglaries has taken place in Bridgetown during the past week.

On Tuesday night the house of Mr. James Quirk, South Queen street, was entered during the night through the bedrooms evidently searching for cash, of which, fortunately, he secured but little.

Mr. James Quirk, who sleeps downstairs, was not disturbed during the night but on awakening in the morning discovered somewhat to his surprise that his bedroom door which he had left closed stood open. As a strong gale had been blowing during the night he thought possibly the wind had blown it open, but on discovering his trousers lying outside the door he realized that the wind could hardly play such pranks with his clothing and he immediately felt the pockets and found them empty of change, of which, fortunately, they had only contained about three dollars.

Calling upstairs to his brother, Mr. John Quirk, and his daughter, he told them of his discovery. His brother found that his pockets had also been rifled, but here again, the burglar was disappointed, as Mr. Quirk, being somewhat of an invalid, did not carry any cash in his pockets.

Miss Quirk was the only one who had been disturbed by the visitor, but only to the extent of realizing that some one was passing through the hall during the night, and supposing it to be her uncle, had thought no more of it. There were no signs of his having entered her room, and no valuables of any kind were disturbed, though watches and other jewelry were in plain sight.

On following nights attempts were made at entrance to the houses of F. C. Crosskill, O. T. Daniels, Miss Annie Chute and others, but without success, so that the town has become thoroughly aroused and may be said to sleep with one eye open.

At Mr. Crosskill's when the attempted entrance was made Miss Crosskill happened to be awake and hearing some noise looked out of a back window in time to see the fel-

FRUIT CROP REPORT

Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, May 15, 1912.

At this date the Fruit Crop Report is confined almost exclusively to the conditions under which the tree and plantations have come through the winter, determined partly by the summer and autumn conditions of 1911, and partly by the winter and spring weather of the present year.

The early ripening was undoubtedly a good feature, as the buds and wood went into the winter in a thoroughly dormant and matured condition.

A severe frost about the middle of Nov. in British Columbia was the only adverse feature to be noted in the early part of the winter.

The snow covering from December to the first of March. Nowhere was the snow excessive nor in drifts that worked any harm.

The months of January and February were particularly cold. In the fruit districts of Eastern Canada, the thermometer frequently ranged from fifteen to thirty degrees below zero for several days at a time, and not for one period alone, but during several successive cold waves.

These months in British Columbia were relatively much milder, and no harm whatever was done to the fruit crop there.

Spring is ten days or even two weeks later than usual in the early fruit districts. In the late districts it is probably not more than a week later than usual.

The growth during the first two weeks of this month (May) has been particularly vigorous, and the weather has been quite warm but a cold wave is now passing from west to east and some damage is anticipated.

APPLES.

The report for apples is upon the whole excellent. Little bud or twig killing has been reported, and the prospects are for a favourable showing of bloom.

In Annapolis, Kings and Hants Co. the report states:—No losses from winter killing and no serious fungous diseases nor insects are reported. The tree-knot and canker worm are occasionally in evidence.

Standing the large crop of last year, fruit buds have developed well. Many new orchards are coming into bearing and good orchards methods are spreading rapidly, all of which give promise of a fair crop this year.

PEARS.

Pears there in the good conditions shown in the apple crop. In the commercial orchards of the Niagara district, all conditions are favourable. Acreage though is decreasing year by year to that the aggregate of the crop may be as great as the present conditions of the individual trees would indicate.

In British Columbia the crop promises to be a full one. No peculiarity merits the condition of plants this spring. They have come through the winter well.

PEACHES.

The extremely low temperature of January and February has seriously injured the peach bloom and in certain orchards the trees have even been injured. This is particularly true in parts of Essex and Kent and on the higher ground in the Niagara district.

CHERRIES.

Cherries have not suffered anywhere from winter and spring injuries. The bloom is appearing normally and not too early. The conditions generally may be pronounced favourable.

GRAPES.

Grapes have wintered fairly well, though some losses on exposed situations are reported. The crop is still subject to a late frost that may do serious injury.

SMALL FRUITS.

The stand for small fruits in 1911 was very poor, many plantations being so nearly a total failure that they were ploughed up and the ground devoted to other crops.

growth as there was, appeared to be well matured and healthy. Speaking generally, strawberries are now in good condition, except that they are not as robust in growth as usual.

The plants in hot beds and cold frames are in excellent condition. There has been considerable suckling during April and May, so that the growth has been steady, but not particularly rank.

INSECTS.

The tent caterpillar is reported from Eastern Ontario, New Brunswick and parts of Quebec. It is, likewise, will be rather a serious invasion of the tent caterpillar this spring.

The oyster shell bark louse, although decreasing, is still prevalent, and is doing serious harm in District 3 (Ontario).

The San Jose scale is no longer dreaded by the commercial orchardist but is rapidly destroying many of the old farm orchards in southwestern Ontario.

The Brown-Tail moth is spreading and, though the injuries in infested districts have not been serious yet, it seems likely to become a permanent and very serious pest.

FUNGUS DISEASES.

Canker is reported as serious in many orchards. Black Knot is now a disease confined to the more backward fruit districts.

SPRAYING.

Last year a very marked increase in interest was reported in the care of orchards, with special reference to spraying. This year there is an even greater advancement which promises well for the fruit crop.

FOREIGN FRUIT CROP.

GREAT BRITAIN.—The fruit conditions are on the whole favourable. The winter has not been severe. Spring has opened up warm and growth has been good.

UNITED STATES.—

The early fruit crop south of the line will be, below average in all probability, and particularly so far as peaches and small fruits are concerned.

The marked improvement in the care of orchards and the increased interest in fruit growing in Canada, are a notable feature of the last few years.

CHERRIES.

Cherries have not suffered anywhere from winter and spring injuries. The bloom is appearing normally and not too early. The conditions generally may be pronounced favourable.

GRAPES.

Grapes have wintered fairly well, though some losses on exposed situations are reported. The crop is still subject to a late frost that may do serious injury.

Warm in Boston

A Chatter of Accidents May 24th. Best n's suffering from the hottest May 24th on record at the local weather bureau office ended shortly after five o'clock in the afternoon in a disastrous and spectacular electrical storm, accompanied by torrential downpours of rain and, in many suburbs, by heavy falls of hail.

The marked contrast in weather conditions in two hours would be hard to find. At four o'clock the city was sweltering in the grip of the first real hot wave of the season. Hundreds had visited the beaches for their first dip in the ocean, and in the business section straw hats were blossoming out by thousands.

At six o'clock lightning was playing across the sky in jagged streaks, and the telephone and electric light services of many suburbs were seriously crippled. Two powder mills were blown up when hit by a bolt in Acton, a trolley car was struck in Boston, houses were hit in cities and towns on every side, and the rain drove gulls in the unpaved streets of the suburbs.

The train shed at the North Station was also struck. The most remarkable fall in temperature was recorded in Malden, where the thermometer dropped from eighty-two degrees to sixty-three degrees in less than an hour, during a violent hail storm that literally covered Glen Rock Circle with the frozen pellets.

Many serious accidents resulted from the rain and lightning. In North Saugus the street car rails were made so slippery by the rain that Motorman E. Franker was unable to bring his car to a stop in time to avoid a collision with another car which had been brought to a standstill by a blown-out fuse.

In the crash when Franker's car struck the other, twelve persons were injured, two of them seriously. Panic broke out on the ferry boat Brewster when the vessel was hit by a bolt of lightning. Many women fainted and hundreds of passengers fought wildly to get to the decks or inside the cabin.

No one was seriously injured, but few escaped without minor cuts and bruises.

THE SMALL FRUIT SUPPLY.

Very few farms are supplied with half enough small fruit. In the way of strawberries I have had all we could use for many years, but it is accomplished by setting out a new patch each alternate spring, says a correspondent of Orange Judé Farm.

Two hundred or three hundred plants will be enough to set a bed that will supply twice as many berries needed by the largest family. I always set that many because they ripen in a busy time and then we can get them picked off shares and have plenty for our own use.

Kidneys Wrong?

If they are you are in danger. When through weakness or disease the kidneys fail to filter the impurities from the blood, trouble comes at once. Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gravel, Diabetes, Gall Stones and the deadly Bright's Disease are some of the results of neglected kidneys.

"YOU'LL SUFFER ALL YOUR LIFE"

That's what the Doctor told him

"Fruit-a-lives Cured Him"

CHESTERVILLE, ONT., Jan. 25th 1912. "For over twenty years, I have been troubled with Kidney Disease, and the doctors told me they could do me no good, and that I would be a sufferer for the rest of my life."

I doctored with different medical men and tried many advertised remedies, but none of them suited my case. Nearly a year ago, I tried "Fruit-a-lives". I have been using this fruit medicine nearly all the time since, and am glad to say that I am cured.

I give "Fruit-a-lives" the credit of doing what the doctors said was impossible. I am now seventy-six years old, and in first class health!"

GEO. W. BARKLEY.

In all the world, there is no other remedy that has cured so many cases of so-called "incurable" kidney disease, as "Fruit-a-lives". This famous fruit medicine acts directly on the kidneys—beating and strengthening them—and ridding the system of the waste matter that poisons the blood.

A Porcupine Hero

The Act That Won Edward Bell His Albert Medal.

A London despatch reads: "The King has approved of the Albert Medal of the second-class being conferred upon Edward Bell of the Canadian Copper Co. for gallantry in connection with the disastrous fire in South Porcupine."

Just as many of the records of the possessors of the Victoria Cross occupy in the official records but a few lines of space, so does this laud announcement of the richly-deserved honor fail to bring before the reader any conception of the scene where Edward Bell proved his manhood, says Ben Hughes in Toronto, Globe. It is strange that, when so many appreciable dramas of narrow escape were recorded during the horrible fire at Porcupine last July, nothing was said of the escape of the little monk of people round Mr. H. C. Meek's house at the Dome.

It is a matter of record now how from one end of northern Ontario to the other the people had to flee for their lives, and equally a matter of knowledge how brave men refused to own that they were beaten, and endangered and in many cases lost their lives. At the Dome the week before the fatal July 11th they had had a tough fight with fire and had dug a reservoir in the centre of the property to supply water for the pipes that had been laid from one end of the property to the other. When therefore the fire leaped down on the Dome from the bush that hot afternoon, Mr. Meek and everyone else thought they were well prepared to meet it, and he and his staff fought it till the last gasp. He remained so long, in fact, that he did not arrive back at his own house, where his wife, his wife's mother, Mrs. Paddock, and his two children were, before the flames had leaped clear over the intervening spaces which had been cleared and at his house on fire. With him were F. Battersby, D.G. Bissett, L. H. Solomon and a man named Cooper, all of the Dome staff.

The fire raged around them, cutting off every chance of escape, and for what seemed eternities they huddled on the little grass plot near the rain-barrels. When all appeared to be over, Mr. Meek says that he can just remember seeing a face appear out of the smoke and a minute afterwards he felt a splash of water on his face. It was Edward Bell, who was lading water out of the barrels with his old soft felt hat. Then he lost consciousness. He awoke from Bill afterwards, though the foreman caretaker of the Dome does not talk much about the incident, that when he arrived, Mrs. Meek's skirt and foot were on fire, and that he first applied himself to putting it out. Then, coolly and calmly, while the fire swept all living organisms out of existence all around him and the hot air scorched the lungs, he continued to dip into the barrels, soase himself and distribute the water impartially over the prostrate figures around him.

The fire was at its height at two o'clock, at four the danger was over, and Edward Bell and a few square inches of grass had saved seven people. They had grazed death, but they were alive mainly because Edward Bell walked out of a zone of comparative safety into a whirlwind of smoke and flame and for a full hour, never knowing when he would be roasted alive, with a level head and a steady hand, threw water out of his old hat wherever he saw a spark fall or a flame burst out on the exhausted figures round the water barrels.

Edward Bell still works at the

Spectacle Lenses

Bifocals vs. Two Pairs of Glasses.

(By H.M. Harris, specialist in Optics) In all cases of artificial aids used by the human family, the more successful such aids are in restoring natural conditions, the more closely they approach the ideal.

After one has arrived at the age of forty-two or thereabouts, a slight change in the refraction of the eye for near objects becomes manifest. This is noticed at first by the necessity of holding reading matter or near work at a greater distance from the eye than has hitherto been the case, and is due to a gradual hardening or solidifying process taking place in the crystalline lens back of the pupil, which renders it less susceptible to the action of the ciliary muscle in the act of accommodating from a distant to a near point, and from which condition eyes are exempt.

In myopic conditions, however, the individual would not have the same experience, as such an eye being abnormally long in its antero-posterior diameter requires the divergent rays emanating from a near point as in reading, to cause them to focus on the retina. In such a case we need for wearing extra glasses for near would exist only in the high degrees of this defect.

The hypermetrope, however, and a very large proportion of the cases coming to the refractionists are such—not only requires glasses for distant use, not necessarily to improve their visual acuity but, through the mechanical office of the lenses, to relieve the undue tension on the delicate mechanism of the eye, but owing to the physiological change which becomes manifest as before stated at the age from forty-two to forty-five a second pair of glasses, or what is much more natural, bifocal lenses, becomes imperative.

From the days of Benjamin Franklin, who was the inventor of bifocal lenses, down to the present time, inventive genius has been employed in producing greater and greater improvements, over the crude style of lens as originated by Franklin, until, through the various evolutions has come the beautiful Kryptok bifocal lens that is not obtainable, both in the past and to-day.

It has been stated by some individuals who realize that there is more profit in selling two pairs of glasses than one, without a shadow of foundation in fact, that bifocals are injurious to the eyes.

Take the normal eye up to the presbyopic period for instance; perfect vision obtains for all distances, the near point as in reading as well as infinity. The same natural conditions exist with the presbyope when perfectly fitted bifocals are worn, and one is not subjected to the annoyance and inconvenience of hunting around for their "old-age specs," thus proclaiming to the world at large that Father Time is already getting in his work in their individual case.

The exceptions where two pairs of glasses are preferable, are excessive degrees of hypermetropia, astigmatism, and in cases of anisometropia and mixed astigmatism.

MOTOR "DEAD" ON TRACKS.

Four Persons Killed, and Youth Driving Machine Escapes.

Martinsville, Ind., May 27—Four persons were killed at Centerton, near here, late today, when their automobile "went dead" on the tracks of the Martinsville division of the Indianapolis, Terre Haute and Eastern Traction Company, and was hit by a car. The automobile was thrown into a ditch and wrecked.

The dead are Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Brown, Mrs. Bonnie Bailey, seventeen years old, and Miss Bessie Cure, seventeen. All lived in Martinsville.

Edda Brown, nineteen years old, son of the dead couple, was driving the automobile, and owes his life to the fact that he jumped when he saw he was unable to get the machine started. He was severely injured and was carried into a nearby house by passengers from the interurban car, who summoned physicians from this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown and the two girls were badly crushed when the car hit the automobile. They were thrown into a ditch under the wreck. Mr. Brown was a wealthy retired farmer. The bodies were brought here.

The accident occurred on a sharp curve near the Centerton post office. It is almost impossible to see a car approaching from either direction.

COULD NOT RAISE MY RIGHT ARM

OLD BRIDGETOWN, C. B. "For the past 41 years, I have been suffering with Rheumatism. When I read in the papers that GIN PILLS would positively cure rheumatism, I wrote you for a free sample to try. I could not raise my right arm because of the awful pain in my shoulder—was not able to drink. After taking a few GIN PILLS, I was able to lift my hand and put it on the top of my head."

I went to the Islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon and met an old fisherman named La Pape. His limbs were stiff from Rheumatism and I gave him some GIN PILLS. I met him again in a few days and he told me he could lift his arms, which he had not been able to do for ten years. ADOLPHE E. ALWAYS NEAT.

Hamstitched sheets and pillow slips are always neat, yet not all housekeepers feel they have time for the work by hand. Draw threads as you would for ordinary hemstitching, fold the hem and haste along the case of the draw space, and sew by machine, shortening the stitch and loosening the tension. When you have finished, pull out the basting thread, and draw the hem back to the edge of space. You will be surprised to see how quickly the work is done and how nice it looks.

Single Tax in Alberta

The new Towns Act, passed at the last session of the Alberta legislature contained the following clause—

"All municipal and school taxes shall be levied equally upon all rateable land in the town."

The new Rural Municipalities Act, passed at the same session, contained the following clause—

"All municipal taxes shall be levied equally upon all rateable land in the municipality according to the assessed value of such land."

Both of these acts make the following provision for the assessment of the land—

"Land shall be assessed at its actual cash value as it would be appraised in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor, exclusive of the value of any buildings erected thereon or of any other expenditure of labor or capital thereon."

It is expected that during the course of the next four years all the towns and rural municipalities in the province of Alberta will come under the operation of these two acts, and as they become operative it will be seen that no taxes will be levied from other sources than land values. The province of Alberta is to be congratulated upon this progressive legislation.

The city of Edmonton has adopted the system of raising revenue by taxing land values, and a campaign in favor of the same system is in progress in Lethbridge and Calgary. Within a very short time the prospects are that all taxes raised in Alberta will be from land values only, a man is not taxed for being industrious nor is he taxed for being lazy.

By raising all revenues from the taxation of land values the business of the land speculator will be considerably discouraged, and his schemes can well be dispensed with, without any loss to the community.

NO LIMIT TO SHIP'S SIZE.

Titanic Would Have Sunk Sooner if it Had Been Smaller.

Philadelphia, May 25—The twelfth International Congress of Navigation today declined to go on record as favoring a limit being placed on the size of ocean steamships. During the debate on the subject it was decided that the Titanic disaster was not due to the size of the ship, but on the other hand its immense proportions had kept the vessel from striking a rock. A smaller steamship having met a similar accident, it is argued, would have sunk like a stone. It was further declared that the recent great maritime tragedy would have no appreciable effect on limiting the size of vessels, and it was asserted that the time is not far off when the Panama Canal will be too small to permit the safe passage of the great ships of the future.

It is now well known that not more than one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. All that is needed is a free application of Chamberlain's Liniment and massaging the parts at each application. Try it and see how quickly it will relieve the pain and soreness. A GOOD EXAMPLE.

Just to the south of us we see that Roosevelt and LeFollette as Republican presidential candidates. There is cleavage in the party. Each one has a following. The result of the division show the people the absurdity of the party system, whether or not it places any of them in the White House. Such a division in Canada would be impossible under our party system, which is the most undemocratic in the English-speaking world. We have only two parties in Canada and they both take orders from Ottawa, while Ottawa too often takes orders or advice from other sources. As soon as the two parties at Ottawa decide what a man must believe in to be a Grit or a Tory the word goes out through the land. The provincial parties line up as they are told, on pain of losing the aid and patronage of the federal party. Thus a man claims to be a loyal Grit or a Tory is always in hot water to know just what he believes. He dares not have an opinion on any new question till his party leaders announce how he is to think. It must be humiliating to be a hidebound party man and be compelled to swallow the opinions of party leaders who are interested chiefly in getting power or holding it. The true party man cannot form an independent opinion. They are always formed for him so as not to overload his brain. To the south of us the common people are revolting against the machine rule. They are beginning to do their own thinking which makes it awkward for self-seeking politicians. This is a good example for Canadians to follow.

BE PATIENT.

Life is too short for us to spend every one day or one hour of it in bickering and strife. Love is too sacred to be lacerated and torn by the ugly briars of sharp temper. Surely we ought to learn to be patient with others, since God has to show every day such infinite patience toward us. Is not the very essence of true love the spirit that is not easily provoked (that beareth all things? Can we not, then, train our lives to sweeter gentleness? Can we not learn to be touched even a little roughly without resenting it?—Westminster Teacher.

Like the gales of the sea are the waves of Fate, As we journey along through life, 'Tis the set of the soul that determines the goal, And not the storm nor the strife.

—Good for Parrsboro!

An exchange remarks on Parrs-boro's ambitious efforts to improve its natural attractions as follows:

"Strangers visiting Parrsboro, N.S., can see the preliminary work in connection with the building of a large dam near the railway station there. The idea is to cover the flats for some distance up the crooked, narrow tidal creek that is there, which will give the town a handsome sheet of water for motor boating, canoes, and sailing boats, etc. during the summer and an ice speedway, curling rink, etc., in winter. The cost which will be some $10,000 or $12,000, is being borne by the rate-payers."

This is in line with certain suggestions the Monitor has frequently urged for the improvement of Bridge-town's water front. The carrying out of a similar scheme would make Bridgetown's charms and attractions unexcelled in the province.

Important results are looked for from the tour of British manufacturers through Canada to take place this month.

They were preceded by Mr. Knight-bridge of the London Financial News under which the party has been organized. The News expects that the tour will result in lasting material benefit to both England and Canada.

In an interview with the Monitor Times Mr. Knightbridge is reported as saying:

"Every one is either the managing director or the proprietor of a large industrial concern, and they are visiting Canada not for entertainment nor for a holiday, but strictly in the interests of business.
They represent a capitalization of two hundred and fifty million dollars, all invested in industry and manufacturing, and their prime idea in visiting Canada at this time is to see for themselves what openings this country offers for the expansion of their businesses and for the establishment of branch houses and factories in the Dominion. Besides the manufacturers, there are in the party several wealthy gentlemen looking for opportunities for investment. They will be interested not only in industrial lines, but in agriculture, fruit growing, anything that offers fair prospects of a return on investment."

Asked if any members of the party would likely be interested in the agricultural and fruit-growing prospects of New Brunswick, Mr. Knightbridge is quoted as saying that two men who will be in the party are among the largest cider and vinegar manufacturers in the British Empire, and they would unquestionably be interested in apple production.
It is a great pity that their tour does not include the Annapolis Valley, the trip through the Province being terminated at Kentville.

In a recent issue of the Baltimore Evening News there appears a half-tone photo of the two leading graduates of the University of Maryland,
Dr. Leslie T. Allen, first, and Dr.
T.H. Hoffman, second. Dr. Allen is the first Nova Scotian and the second Canadian who has ever been successful in procuring the gold medal and first award of the above university.
The doctor is expected home today
for a week's visit to his parents, Capt. and Mrs. C.O. Allen, before leaving for Lethbridge, Alta., where he has a very lucrative position awaiting him.—Kentville Advertiser.

Sydney Will Have Visit from Duke of Sutherland, Sir William McKenzie and Other
Prominent Figures
Next Month
(Sydney Record)

Toronto, May 31.—An important and influential corporation is about to be formed under the auspices of the Duke of Sutherland for the further extension of His Grace's ideas in promoting and extending the settlement of British settlers in Canada under improved conditions.

The corporation, which will be under the presidency of Sir William Whyte, is controlled by some of the most prominent business men in Canada, among them Sir William Mac-Kenzie, Sir Edmund Walker, Sir Henry Pellatt, Mr. J.A.M. Atkins, M.P., Mr. C.S. Dennis, Hon. Wallace Nesbitt and Mr. A. M. Nanton, and the Duke of Sutherland himself.

Mr. Ernest Devereux, who sails for England on the Empress of Britain is organizing the company, and has every hope that a very large and important number of prominent Britishers in the Old Country will participate in this important undertaking.

In connection with the above extract, we are informed by Mr. A. C.
Ross who met the Duke of Sutherland in Toronto last fall and almost persuaded His Grace to visit this City before returning home to look into the opportunity of pricing settlements of British farmers and market gardeners in this vicinity, a question in which His Grace is taking very great interest.

Mr. Ross also informs the Record that Sir Henry M. Pellatt, the Duke of Sutherland and Sir William Mac-Kenzie expect to visit our City early next month.

Keep the Milk Clean.

Four Simple, Inexpensive Precautions
Which Any One Can Observe.

The Virginia experiment station has found by actual experiment that the number of bacteria in milk can be greatly reduced. This is of considerable importance, because it reduces the liability of contamination from disease bacteria as well as those that cause scum, disagreeable odors, etc.

By count it was found that by sprinkling the bedding straw so as to prevent the bacteria from arising the percentage in the milk was reduced thirty-three per cent. A reduction of twenty-five per cent was made by using the closed pail in milking as compared with using the open pail.

When the flanks of the cows were moistened and sponged before milking the per cent of bacteria was reduced twenty-three per cent. By discarding the first four strippings from each that the bacteria were further reduced.

These four precautions, sprinkling the bedding, moistening the flanks of the cow, using a closed pail and discarding the first four strippings, may be practiced without appreciable expense, and they greatly reduce the liability of contamination.

Straw bedding and sawdust were compared as to sanitation, and it was found that fewer bacteria were found where sawdust was used for bedding, but as straw is an absorbent for liquid manure has some value as a fertilizer and sawdust none
it is perhaps better.

Alfalfa in New Brunswick.

The alfalfa situation in this section of the province is not altogether without encouragement. Reports reaching the Record are to the effect that many of the plots laid out under the direction of Mr. McDougall are in good shape and that their owners are satisfied with the prospects of better things in the days to come. So far the growing of alfalfa in this province is in its infancy. A number of experiments have been made and sufficient is known to justify the hope that some day alfalfa will be one of the important fodder crops of this county at least. That the faith of these behind the movement is largely justified, is proved by Mr. McDoug-all's demonstration of the feasibility of growing alfalfa seed, and good seed too, in several widely separated sections of the province. Mr. Mc-Dougall is convinced that the conservation Commission, who are giving special attention to alfalfa, cannot do better than to devote time to the development of a seed which will better withstand the rigors of our climate. Mr. McDougall has blazed the trail and his suggestion is one which will stand a lot of consideration. Alfalfa grown successfully means millions for New Brunswick and the Dominion of Canada.—Sussex

Bold Burglar Interrupted.

(St. John Telegraph, June 3rd.)

An attempt to burglarize the store of
C. & E. Everett, Ltd., in King street, was made in broad daylight yesterday afternoon by an unknown man, who held up George W. Smith, a clerk of Messrs. Everett, and J. J. Doherty, at the point of a revolver when they interrupted him in his work. Mr. Smith, accompanied by Mr. Doherty, went to the store, and was accompanied at a command to throw up their hands. Looking around they saw a man about five feet seven inches in height and very stockily built, covering them with a revolver.

They obeyed his command, and he made them walk through the shop to the rear office, then up stairs, and made them sit down while he washed his face and hands. When he had finished washing he made them crawl out through a window and into the store of W. H. Thorne Co., Ltd. He then made his escape out of the front door.

It was found that he had broken in Messrs. Thorne's store and stolen articles with which to crack the Everett safe. These were found in Messrs.
Everett's store.

The man had no boots on, and at the point of the gun made Mr. Smith find him a pair of boots. He also took a hat from the store. He is described as about five feet seven inches in height, about 100 pounds in weight, dark brown hair and moustache, regular features, dressed in black slouch hat with wide brim, brown tweed coat and darker vest and trousers, with brown wool stockings and black shoes, the property of Mr.
Smith.

During the time he had the two men covered he spoke of the murder in Halifax last week, and said, "I don't want to commit murder, but your lives are nothing to me."

It is thought he concealed himself in Messrs. Thorne & Co.'s on Saturday night, with the idea of utilizing Sunday and the holiday to-day in his work.

Three Villages Reported Wiped Out and 1000 Square Miles Timber Land Swept.

MONTREAL, May 30.—A despatch to the Star from St. John's (Nfld.) says that 1000 square miles of timber land in the interior have been ravaged by forest fires and three small villages destroyed, rendering hundreds homeless.
Further details, says the cable, are not available, owing to the interruption to telegraph service caused by the flames.

White Star to Have "Britannic."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, June 1.—It is announced here that the new 50,000 ton White Star liner which will take the place of the Titanic, in the fall of 1913, is to be named "Britannic." It will be the same length as the Olympic, 889 feet.
The White Star Line has had two vessels named the Britannic. They both carried large sums for the company, and the name is considered lucky.

Three Children of

One Family Killed

Two Were Bitten by Rattlesnake and Other Child Was Drowned.

Greenville, N. C., June 1.—Three children were killed yesterday as the result of an attack by a rattlesnake on a hen house here. Two boys, the elders, eight years old, were bitten by the snake, and a third child, one year old, was drowned in a wash tub.

The mother of the children was washing clothing in the yard, and ordered the older boy to quiet a disturbance in the hen house. He tried to throw a hen from nest and was bitten. The second boy followed him and he too was bitten. When the mother discovered that a snake had bitten the boys, she hurried to help them, and while she was busy the baby fell into the wash tub.

ed that in one case in Aylesford some live San Jose Scale had been found on the trees imported and set out a year ago. Special resolutions were passed requesting the Governor-in-Council to have Inspectors to inspect all trees imported the past two years, and infested trees destroyed.—

Mr. Leonard Phinney's fine property, will shortly take possession, and Knight. May the sunset of his life be calm, peaceful and happy.—Truro

"Blossom time" in the Valley. Mass will be celebrated at St. Alphonsus's church next Sunday at 11 a.m. Vespers at 2 p.m.

The party of British capitalists to tour the province next week will pass through the Valley just too late to see it in its beautiful blossom season.

Original poems on the Titanic disaster and on Empire Day, the Monitor is compelled to regretfully decline, as unavailable for our columns.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Wade announce the marriage of their daughter, Annie Hilda, to Mr. Harry Irwin Patterson, to take place Wednesday morning, June 19th.

The summer steamboat service between Digby and Boston has been cancelled. A double daily service by the Prince Rupert and the Yarmouth between Digby and St. John has been inaugurated.

The Outlook records with regret the death of Rev. D. H. Simpson, which took place on Friday last, after an illness of two weeks. The funeral was held on Sunday at the Baptist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Rice announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Melvina, to Mr. Charles Ernest Ewing, to take place Wednesday morning, June 19th. Mr. Ewing resides in Troy, New York.

A Scott Act case was brought before Justice Legg on Tuesday by Inspector Phillips. Mrs. Margaret Kelly was convicted of first offence and sentenced to pay $50 and costs, in default of payment to be given two months in jail.—Outlook.

Bishop Worral sailed from Quebec by the Corsican for England, and will represent King's College, Windsor, at the Congress of Universities of the Empire, which is to meet in London, in June. President Powell will attend the Congress.—Recorder.

The town watering cart made its welcome appearance on Wednesday afternoon. Rain laid the dust on several following days, but yesterday the dust was having its own sweet way. Who is responsible for the carelessness which the town receives in this respect?

Annapolis Spectator.—The first match of the after Club Trophy (shot for the season of '12) was held on the Granville range on Friday, May 24th. A heavy fog late in the afternoon made shooting very difficult. Granville took first place on a tie with Beaufort on account of having the highest score at the longest range.

Awards of the degree of Master of Arts at Acadia University.—Hendley Boland, Fitch, Clarence. Degree of Bachelor of Arts.—Roy Irving Balcom Paradise; Josephine Marshall Clark, Bear River; Minnie Victoria Schaffner South Farmington. Degree Bachelor of Science.—Fred Young, Craig, Bridgetown; Joseph William Tanch, Granville Centre. Engineering Certificate Fred Y. Craig.

The St. John Globe reports that there is a general belief that the C.P.R. interests, which now control the D. A. R., are having two new boats built for the bay route and that these will be in every respect superior to the Prince Rupert and will be boats capable of maintaining an all-year-round service. In fact the inauguration of the two-trip service on the bay may be regarded as the first of important improvements to be made in that popular route.

Mr. Burpee Ray was the victim of a serious accident while harrowing on his farm on Tuesday. When adjusting the harness the horse suddenly started, entangling him in the traces, throwing him to the ground, overturning the harrow upon him and falling beside him. Though unable to extricate himself he was able to get hold of the bridle and hold the animal's head to the ground until help arrived in response to his calls. His injuries include a broken rib.—Berwick Register.

Mr. J. W. Wade of Granville, who is recovering from an accident which has made him quite lame temporarily, made a friendly call at the Monitor office yesterday. Mr. Wade is much interested in getting free rural mail delivery for the Granville route, but things are moving in that direction rather too slowly to suit Mr. Wade, or the other residents who are generally interested. Granville is a very important and closely populated section and there would seem to be no reason why their wishes in this matter should not be given attentive consideration.

There will be a Tea Meeting at Port Lorne on July 1st. Watch for special announcements later.

Mr. Leslie R. Fair's new auto arrived last week and looks to be a nice one, says the Aylesford correspondent of the Register.

Mrs. Patterson has sold her residence on Granville street east to Mr. G. E. Banks, plumber for the Bridgetown Foundry Company.

Rev. Arthur C. Hockin, pastor of the Methodist church at Canning, has received word of the death, in China, of his son, Arthur. No particulars were given, but it is known that he volunteered to give his help in the famine district, and that he was working there at the time of his death.

The gateway of the Riverside Cemetery on the side next to Granville street is being constructed under the direction of Supt. Grace by a mason sent from Yarmouth. The gateway is to be built of cemented cobble stones with granite slabs, and an iron gate, and is designed to make a dignified entrance.

A. DeW. Foster, M.P., who has been suffering of late with throat and ear trouble, left this week for Halifax, where he will remain for a while at the Infirmary, says the Kentville Advertiser. Dr. Kirkpatrick who came from Halifax to consult with Dr. Moore on the case, found the trouble only required careful attention for a while to effect a complete recovery.

Duxton, whose condition of health last week apparently necessitated an operation for appendicitis, went to Halifax for that purpose, but fortunately nature effected a cure of his malady and he returned on Monday. The only nomination made yesterday for Councillor to succeed Mr. A. L. Anderson was Mr. Karl Freeman, consequently there will be no election. Mr. Freeman has already filled a part of a term on the Council board, resigning to contest the election for Mayor with W. J. Hoyt, who defeated him in 1910. Mr. Freeman is a successful merchant of keen business instincts and may be trusted to give his business in connection with town affairs the same conscientious consideration which characterizes his private business.

Parcels Post

It looks as if Canada would soon be the only one of the civilized countries that has no parcel system. We have heretofore always had our big neighbor to keep us in contentment in our backwardness. Now, however, it looks as if the protest that has been voiced by all the agricultural papers for years with a wearisome iteration, was about to bear fruit. Senator Jonathan Bourne of Washington, has introduced in the Senate a bill embodying the recommendations of the committee on the post offices. After much diligent work a zone system is to be established. Eleven pounds is to be established as the maximum weight of all packages. In cities the price is to be five cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound; for the free zone zone two cents is to be charged for the first pound and two cents for each additional pound; two hundred zones, seven cents and three cents added; five hundred miles, eight cents and four cents added; one thousand miles nine cents and five cents added; two thousand miles, twelve cents with twelve cents added. This looks like a most satisfactory solution. That the adoption of the zone system will demand an occasional reference to the map of the country is not altogether a drawback. The zone system has generally been spoken of as being out of the question and the assumption that it would be unworkable has prevented many from believing in the parcel post as an economic proposition. It seemed so clear that the express companies, which were on a better foundation than the adoption of a flat rate for parcels could ever put the post-office that many doubted its advisability. By the adoption of the zone system unfair competition will be prevented from the first. Had a flat rate been adopted people sending parcels would have used the post-office for the long carriage across the continent, but would have used the express company when the parcel was to go across the street. The express companies would have had all the cream and the government the skim milk. There have been two "mossbacks" among the nations in the matter of postal facilities. Now it seems there is to be only one "mossback" and it is Canada.—Globe, Toronto.

EDITOR OF PEOPLE'S COLUMN:—Kindly answer the following: What was the length, width, depth and tonnage of the Great Eastern and the Titanic? Also the same of two or three of the next largest vessels in commission?

IGNORANT.

Strong, Me.

The Great Eastern was 691 feet in length, 83 feet in width and 48 feet in depth and 18,915 gross tonnage. The Titanic was 882.6 feet in length, 92 feet in width, 94 feet in depth and 45,000 gross tonnage.

The Olympic the sister ship of the Titanic is of the same length, width, and depth and has 45,324 gross tonnage. The Mauretania and Lusitania are each 790 feet, 88 feet wide, 60.6 feet deep and have gross tonnage of 32,000.

The Aquitania now building at Glasgow for the Cunard line is 885 feet long, 95 feet wide and has gross tonnage of 50,000. The Imperator, now building at Hamburg for the Hamburg American line, is 900 feet long, 95 feet wide and gross tonnage of 50,000.—Boston Globe.

Roosevelt in the Lead.

London, May 24.—The English press insists with singular unanimity that Theodore Roosevelt is certain of the Republican nomination for the Presidency as a result of his Ohio victory.

The Daily News:—"The Republican party has been knocked to pieces by the struggle and is unlikely to come together under Roosevelt's banner. He stands for nothing higher than exhaustion and boundless ambition.

The Pall Mall Gazette:—"Mr. Taft has been beaten in his native state and the blow is mortal. This moral disaster completes the tragedy of the judicial mind in demagogic politics. In that sphere Roosevelt is the most formidable figure now living.

AUNT JERUSA'S MEDITATIONS.

"If folks could have their funerals when they are alive and well and struggling along, what a help it would be!" sighed Aunt Jerusha, folding her Paisley shawl with great care. Now there is poor Mrs. Brown she added, as she placed her Sunday bonnet into her green veil. "How encouraged she'd have been if she could have heard what the minister said today! I wouldn't wonder on my mate, she'd have got well. And Deacon a-riping his eyes, and all of them takin' on! Poor soul. She never dreamed they thought so much of her. 'Mrs. Brown got discouraged. Yer see, Deacon Brown, he'd got a way of blamin' everything onto her. I don't suppose the deacon meant it—'twas just his way—but it's awful wearin' when things wore out or broke, he acted just as if Mrs. Brown did it herself on purpose. And they all caught it like the measles or whooping cough.

"And the minister a-tellin' how the deacon brought his wife here when 'twan't nothing but a wilderness and how patiently she bore hardships, and what a good wife she had been! Now, the minister wouldn't have known anything about that if the deacon hadn't a told him. Dear, dear! If he'd only told Mrs. Brown herself what he thought, I believe he might have saved the funeral. And when the minister said how the children would miss their mother, it seemed as though they couldn't stand it, poor things.

"Well, I guess it's true enough! Mrs. Brown was always doing for some of them. When they were singin' about sweet rest in heaven, I couldn't help thinkin' that was something Mrs. Brown would have to get used to for she'd never had none of it here.

"She'd have been awful pleased with the flowers. They were pretty, and so mistake. Yer see, the deacon wan't never willing for her to have a flower-bed. He said it was enough prettier sight to see cabbages a-growin'! But Mrs. Brown always kind of hanter'd after sweet smelling things, like sweet peas, and such.

"What did you say, Levi? 'Most time for supper? Well, land sakes so it is! I must have got to meditating. I've just been a-thinkin', Levi, you needn't tell the minister anything about me. If the pancakes and pumpkin pies are good, you just say so as we go along. It ain't best to keep everything laid up for funerals."—Ward and Works.

GUILTY IS THE VERDICT OF THE JURY

In the Supreme Court yesterday only one case was finished that of the King vs. Corkum charged with manslaughter, says the Linnenburg Progress.

Last autumn a number of boys were out in the woods above Bridgewater shooting squirrels and among the number was a boy named Corkum and another named Penney. They had shot a squirrel and decided to place it on a stump to fire at. Young Alex. Penney was placing the squirrel in position for Corkum to shoot at when he (Corkum) took aim and shot him, afterwards asking the other boys present to assist him in disposing of the body, which they refused to do. As the Penney boy did not return home a search was instituted and the boy found where the shooting took place. Corkum was accused of the offence and treated the matter coolly, but Mr. Penney, the boy's father, sought justice from the Courts with the result that the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, and the prisoner will be sentenced at the close of the court.

Sir Rodolphe Forget Complains of Harsh Treatment in New York.

Sir Rodolphe Forget, M. P., and his family, Hon. P. E. Leblanc and Hon. H.B. Rainville, were among the arrivals in New York Friday evening on the French line steamship France. The new French ship kept slightly ahead of the Lusitania all the way across, but during the fog off Sandy Hook the Cunarder crept ahead. The result was that the passengers on the French liner were delayed so long that many of them missed their train connections. Sir Rodolphe Forget was particularly annoyed and voiced his disapprobation in no uncertain language. "Canadians would not tolerate at home such treatment as we received here tonight," said the financier. The autocratic democracy of the United States in this age is astounding. At quarantine a doctor stands in the saloon and all passengers have to pass him one by one, while he pulls at their eyelids and looks down their throats for some professional reason known only to himself. Then another official sits at a table and you must go before him and answer all kinds of silly questions. I had to swear that I had a sum of $50 in my possession. Just think of that, and while this procedure was going on the time for 1/2 to catch our trains was growing less and finally we missed our trains altogether and seventeen of us will have to remain in New York overnight. Can you read? Can you write? were two of the questions I had to answer. I imagine that, when the man asked them he knew that I was a member of the Canadian parliament. "As long as I live," declared Sir Rodolphe, "I will never come back from Europe by way of New York. On the other hand, I will try to discourage Canadians from using this route and will try harder than ever to make the St. Lawrence the entrance to this continent."

The stories of the North Country which Mary Synon has been contributing to Scribner's, have to do with Rail Head, or as the engineer says "The End of Steel," on the right-of-way on the new Canadian Grand Trunk Pacific Road. The type of adventurous engineers who are always to be found in these places is excellently depicted in these moving tales. In the June Number will be "Cobalt Bloom," the story of a great discovery.

CURE OF ECZEMA.

Ecze-ma is a very natural disease; a catarrhal inflammation of the skin, with a surface that exudes a tear-like fluid when it is irritated. The skin is dotted with red pustules, or papules eventually forming scabs that pale to the natural color of the skin as they shade from apex to edge. The itching and smarting is intense, and sometimes almost crazing.

In a great many localities on the earth, especially in mountainous regions of America and in Switzerland, a remedy for ecze-ma is found that comes near being a specific. It is a heavy black oil that comes to the surface through crevices in the rocks. This liquid is commonly called rock oil, but it is in reality the oil of fish that were reduced to this substance in the formation of the earth's strata centuries upon centuries ago, far beyond any suggestion of record, but fully established in its character by geology and chemistry, to which it is known as ichthyol. Purified and presented as a drug commodity it bears that name in pharmacy. Separated in the way suggested, from its irritating qualities, it is a favorite prescription for the healing of skin diseases of many kinds.

The early settlers of the south and west in the United States were first taught the value of this oil by the Indians who obtained supplies of it to use for purposes mentioned above by skimming it from the surface of mountain pools and other still waters.

In treating ecze-ma with ichthyol, or rock oil the affected parts should be thoroughly cleansed with soap and water and carefully dried. The ichthyol should then be applied on soft cloths held in place by bandages, and this should be kept up until a cure has been made. Sometimes this will be achieved in a few days. The disease is sometimes exceedingly stubborn, and then the treatment requires longer perseverance, of course. Then the healing process begins at once. When the exudations of water or weeping continue, sprinkle the surface freely with talcum powder.

During this treatment the towels should be kept open by two tablespoonful doses of olive oil daily, preferably with the dinner, and in some cases of stubborn constipation a teaspoonful of cream of tartar should also be taken in water before breakfast. This quantity is for adults. For children reduce both the olive oil and cream of tartar by one-half.

The treatment of ecze-ma by the use of this oil is absolutely safe, and the danger from mercurials and other mineral poisons is avoided. Moreover it is as reasonably a sure cure as can be obtained. Besides it is inexpensive.

Ecze-ma is contagious, and therefore all valueless cloths used in the treatment should be destroyed and the towels and valuable cloths should be thoroughly washed through a boiling process. At no time should one of these towels or cloths be left to that a child, or by accident a grown person, could come in contact with it.—Dr. Reeder, in Toronto Globe.

FRUSTRATING.
Boil two cups of sugar and two thirds cup of water ten minutes, remove from the fire, and beat until it strains; add any extract liked for flavoring.

A STIFF FROTH.
When whisking an egg be sure that your basin and knife or whisk are perfectly dry if you wish a good stiff froth.

A GOOD TONIC.
A glass of hot water before breakfast is a clear and tonic for the entire system. For an oily, greasy skin squeeze half a lemon into the water; drink without adding sugar.

A SMOOTH GRUEL.
So many persons say, when a hot drink is recommended, "Yes, I might take a hot drink if I could get anything but gruel—that I cannot take." Even gruel may be made a pleasant and tempting drink by taking extreme care in making it beautifully smooth and thin, and varying the flavoring. All such drinks should be carefully served in a nice thin-edged china mug or glass; falling these, a nice cup is very suitable.

SPOILT MEAT.
Don't allow your marketing to stand in the kitchen, especially during warm weather, put it away at once. Meats frequently become heated, and quickly spoil.

REMOVES ODOR.
A little vinegar put in the frying pan and then boiled up on the stove removes the odor of fish or onions from the utensil.

SOME SIMPLE RULES FOR LIVING.
Eishop John V. Vincent, who recently celebrated his 80th birthday, gives in the Pittsburg "Christian Advocate" some simple rules for everyday living.

Let my first thought at waking in the morning, he says, be a thought of gratitude to God for the end of the night and the beginning of another day.
Let my next thought be a thought of aspiration, becoming a prayer and passing into a resolve that I will honestly try this day not to pronounce one word that wholly centers in self, concerning success, failure, foreboding, future plans or expectations. Nor one word of adverse criticism or fault-finding about anybody or anything.
In moments of depression I will try to look to God, and to remember that the present mood, even if natural, is abnormal, and that the sun will rise tomorrow.
And I must remember that a true Christian life is, on the human side of it, a series of efforts, acts of will—a series of decisions; and that to make for one's self, and to induce in others one right decision is a good and wholesome thing.
But we may easily overstate the value of a single decision, though it settle matters beyond its own present moment. Sometimes it does, but all acts of will are not of equal value. I must remember that the most effective decision a soul can make is that which places his personality in the hands of Christ—pronouncing in that act the "I will" of a complete surrender, establishing the lifelong habit of resting in Christ and of serving him.

REMOVING STAINS FROM THE DINING TABLE.
Get a pint of linsed oil, a pint of paraffine oil, half a pound of finely-powdered rottenstone and a pint of turpentine. These materials will last you a year or more for your table or other furniture, which requires special polishing. Have a couple of pieces of an old felt hat, some pieces of chamois cloth and a large piece of well-worn soft linen; or, instead of the linen, a piece of chamois. Pour linsed oil on the marred places, then sprinkle with the powdered rottenstone, rub with a piece of felt. Let the movement be light, quick and circular. Be careful not to use pressure enough to cut the varnish. Rub until the surface of the wood becomes hot. Be careful not to let the rottenstone become dry, as it then would scratch the finish. Add oil from time to time, and if needs be, rottenstone. When the table is sufficiently polished wipe clean with a piece of chamois cloth. Then dampen a piece of chamois cloth with an equal mixture of turpentine and paraffine oil; rub the table well with this and let it stand for several hours. Then polish with chamois or old linen. In polishing furniture you can use a great deal of pressure. Get an asbestos roller for your table.

Consists by Steamboat

(Boston Evening Transcript)

Two fleets of coastal steamers ply the waters of the New England shores from Boston to the eastward—the white vessels of the Eastern Steamship Company, and the slim, black craft of the Dominion Atlantic Railway. On summer afternoons the harbor sees a stately procession of them turning bows for the ports of Maine, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and on many a tempestuous night of winter these staunch vessels are steaming across the heaving bay on their appointed errands.

That numerous public which was voyaged in them learns with mixed pleasure and regret that the yacht craft of the Dominion Atlantic Company are again to pass to the possession of the Eastern Steamship Company. It is announced that the change will bring improvements of the service. For, although Digby will probably be discontinued as a port of call for steamers to Boston in summer, the schedules to Yarmouth and St. John, including, of course, connections at Digby, may now be co-ordinated in such a manner as to involve no inconvenience. Changes in the personnel of the fleet at least for the present, may be expected to be very slight—which is well, for a more efficient body of marine officers than the men in these black hulls is hardly to be found on our coast. Furthermore, these vessels must, in the nature of things, remain under the British registry, and British registry means British officers. The probabilities include additions to the fleet as the stimulation of Nova Scotia travel by the new service shall justify the outlay, and it is intimated that the new steamers will follow the present type of vessels, high-sided vessels now in vogue with the Eastern Steamship Company, rather than the long lower lines of the Prince Arthur. But it is to be hoped that the three steamers of the Dominion Atlantic Company, the two mentioned and the Boston, will continue to plough up our harbor for many years to come, for they are almost the sole representatives on the coast of that type of staunch, graceful crafters which the British shipyarders have taught the world how to build and which adorn the waters of the English and Continental shores in such numbers. They have the proportions of the trans-atlantic liner, without her unwieldiness; properly handled they can stand almost any weather—as they have had abundant opportunity to prove in Massachusetts Bay—and in their neat, fleet lines and excellent design, black hull, white upperworks and crimson funnel, they are an ornament to any harbor.

There is reason to suspect that this transfer of ownership is the beginning of trainter travel between Nova Scotia and New England. The inducements of that peninsula were our cousins when they had not been New Englanders themselves; the fishing fleets keep up this commerce, and the boundaries between the Province and New England have been so largely erased that a large share of Nova Scotians consider themselves as Yankees, and they are often much more so. The differences between Maine and New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, for instance, are very slight; boundaries are an arbitrary affair. If the relations between the United States and Canada were as genial as those between New England and New Scotland we should have been the United States of North America years ago. At all events, even such an event as the promised quickening of the water traffic between our port and theirs is to be welcomed as an increase of a friendly intercourse from which both Commonwealth and Province have as much to gain as to give.

THREE DAYS IN A DORY.

"The Only Thing That Will Relieve Neuralgia."

The piercing pains of Neuralgia, which often follows a bad cold or La Grippe, are frequently almost unbearable and few medicines afford any relief to the sufferer.

I am a rural mail carrier and have been a user of the Dr. Miles medicines for years.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills can't be beaten. They are the only thing I have found that will relieve my neuralgia and I have tried most everything, besides medicine from the doctor. I am willing to tell anyone what the Anti-Pain Pills did for me.

CHARLES HILDBRANDT, Box 205, Woodville, Ohio

If you, like Mr. Hilderbrandt, "have tried most everything" in vain, why not do as he did, fight your aches and pains with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. Let the pills bear the brunt of the battle. No matter how stubborn the contest, they will come out victorious.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills stand on record, which is a long list of names extending back a generation.

Druggists everywhere sell them. If first package fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

A PORCUPINE HERO.

Dome, and it is safe to say that the man who worked for him and those who work with him know nothing of this story, for he is not that kind of man; he acts, he doesn't talk. But Mr. Mack did talk, and he talked to Mr. A. R. Turner, the general manager of the Canadian Cooper Co. at Cooper Cliff. Mr. Turner took the matter up wholeheartedly and laid the facts before the Carnegie Hero Fund and the British authorities. A few days ago the news despatches told of the honor Edward Bell had received at the hands of the King, and it is hard to see how it would be possible for a man to more deserve the reward and medal from Mr. Andrew Carnegie than Edward Bell.

PREHISTORIC MAN.

The discovery near Ipswich, Eng., of a human skeleton of the modern type is a triumph for those anthropologists who hold that the modern type of man was evolved at an extremely early date. Dr. Wallace, the eminent rival of Darwin in biological science and evolutionary doctrine, had not recanted already the Darwinian theory of the descent of man, of which he had been the ablest exponent, this evidence of an ancient development of modern man would have given him pause. The human remains hitherto discovered have belonged to what scientists term the Neanderthal type, which existed in Europe during the earlier and greater part of the Glacial Period—one estimated to have extended over a period of a million years. The men of this type had the receding forehead suggested by the skeleton. He was brutish perhaps in appearance, savage, no doubt, in his nature, and in every sense of the biologist—a man. But now, as a result of the latest discovery, science declares that thousands of years before the Neanderthal race flourished in South Germany, Belgium, and France, England was occupied by a race of men which in build of body and form of brain were of the distinctly modern type.

The discovery was made in the chalky boulder clay near Ipswich. Before this clay was laid down, scientists tell us, there was apparently a sandy land surface and on this lived the man whose remains have been found. The man stood five feet ten inches in height. His head was perhaps a trifle smaller and flatter than that of present day man, but there was nothing brutal or simian in his appearance. It is calculated that the skeleton is 100,000 years old.

Spraying a Greater Necessity During Wet Weather.

(Special to the MONITOR-SENTINEL)
 The weather conditions this season so far are just the opposite of the summer of 1911. Last year there was hardly any wet weather during the late spring or summer, which was an ideal season to grow apples clean and free from spot, whether sprayed or not. This season weather conditions are just the opposite and if the fruit growers are careful to keep their spray pumps going, the apple crop this year will be similar to that of 1910 when not a carload of clean greensteins could be found in the whole valley.
 The experiment carried out at Cornell, N. Y., proved that when the spores of the black spot germinate, which generally takes place about blossom time, if the weather is sufficiently wet, reproduces itself about every eight days and in order to protect the young fruit and leaves from the spores of this fungi, which is floating around by the millions, it is necessary to keep the surface of the bud, fruit and leaves covered with some spray mixture that will not allow the spores to get a foothold. Spray to be efficient must be put underneath the spot or scab, instead of on top. It is a preventive not a cure.
 Those who think they sprayed unnecessarily last year should look at the premium paid for the insurance on their buildings as a loss because they were not burned down. Who can prophesy what will happen next week or next month? Spraying is only an insurance and he who cannot afford to take the risk of losing half of his fruit crop by spot had better pay the premium of spraying.
 "A word to the wise is sufficient."

Fire Averted at Annapolis
 Between five and six o'clock Wednesday afternoon, says the Annapolis Spectator, the roof of the 1st of Barron Riley's house was discovered to be on fire. Miss Georgie Riley, who was in the chamber at the time, heard the crackling of the flames, and taking in the situation at a glance, decided on prompt and effective action. With the aid of her sister, Mrs. Hudson, a ladder was erected, and nothing daunted by the fact that the L was two stories high and the roof was a steep one, the two ladies applied several well-directed pailfuls of water and soon had the fire subdued. When the firemen arrived there was nothing left for them to do but to congratulate the ladies on the prompt and skilful manner in which they had met the danger, which, owing to the strong breeze prevailing, was very imminent. The fire caught from a spark falling from the chimney, and burned a hole several feet square.

Presentation to Mrs. Sanford
 About fifty friends surprised Mrs. Florence F. Sanford at her residence, Paradise West, on Monday evening. After a pleasant evening of music and games, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served by the ladies. Mr. Alonzo Daniels then expressed, on behalf of friends, their regret at losing Mrs. Sanford from the community and, as a slight token of their appreciation and regard, presented her with a handsome oak rocker. Mrs. Sanford expressed her surprise and pleasure in a few well-chosen words, stating how much she appreciated the thought back of the gift and that while she was sorry to leave, she hoped that the friends made during her stay with us would always remain so. Mrs. Sanford during her residence for eleven years has been esteemed by all and her pleasing manner and gracious hospitality will be long missed in the neighborhood.—COM.
