THE IRISH DOMINION LEAGUE PROPOSES TO ESTABLISH SELF GOV'T WITHIN THE EMPIRE

Under Plan Proposed in a Manifesto Ireland Would Have Same Amount of Home Rule as if She Were Independent Republic.

IRISHMEN URGED TO MAKE KNOWN WISHES

The Proposition Asks for Complete Control of Her Internal Gov't, Naval and Military Defense to Remain as at Present.

Bulletin—London, June 27.—Establishment of self-government in Ireland within the British Empire is proposed in a manifesto issued today by the "Irish Dominion League" and signed by Sir Horace Plunkett and other Irishmen.

The proposal, it declares, is a great advantage over any previous proposals for the Irish question. Except that the British connection is maintained under the plan Ireland would have virtually the same amount of home rule as if she were an independent republic. The manifesto points out the disadvantages to which Ireland would be exposed if she were a republic severed from the British Empire. Mention is made of possible hostile tariffs and it is said that such a position might lose her her force, and her share in any imperial preference which might be granted.

Irishmen are urged in the manifesto to unite and let the British parliament and people know what they desire. The manifesto then outlines what the political status of Ireland would be under the new scheme. Ireland, it is declared, would not be represented at Westminster, but would be a member of the League of Nations and of the Imperial Conference Council of parliament which may be established.

Ireland would have complete control of her internal government. The naval and military defense would remain as at present, but no authority but the Irish parliament would have the power to impose compulsory service on Irishmen. The United States would agree to make contributions to the naval, military and diplomatic services.

In referring to the manifesto, the London Standard says that the Irish Dominion League will be prepared to show that the Irish constitution as at present is not a desirable one. The manifesto is said to demand that special safeguards be given to the manifesto.

TORONTO STREET RY. STRIKE NO NEARER TO SETTLEMENT

By an Overwhelming Majority Strikers Vote Against Acceptance of an Offer Made by the Ontario Railway Board—Toronto Crowded With Jitneys and Pedestrians Are in Peril Every Time They Cross a Street.

Toronto, June 27.—Matters in connection with the street railway strike in this city remained tonight pretty much where they were at the beginning of the day. The street cars were not running, and the city was crowded with jitneys and pedestrians. The Ontario Railway Board's offer that they bore burdens that it was a case of their recalcitrance and quarters.

BOLSHEVIK TALK IS "BUNCOMBE" SAY LABOR LEADERS

Orators at Sydney Mines Claim Cry of Bolshevism in Canada is for the Purpose of Discrediting Organized Labor.

Sydney, N. S., June 27.—That there is no Bolshevism in Canada, and that the repetition of this cry, by certain people, is merely for the purpose of discrediting organized labor, was the view expressed by David Ross, organizer for the United Mine Workers of America, at a big mass meeting held in the open air at Sydney Mines, last night.

The principal speakers were, in the order named, Foreman Ways, Robert Baker and David Ross. Mr. Ways claimed for the Trade and Labor Council the credit for the deportation of the Chinese crews of the coal company's colliers. Robert Baker, newly elected president of the U. M. W., was received with enthusiasm and spoke in general of the benefits to be derived from a close organization on the part of the workers. David Ross spoke of conditions throughout the country, and held that there is too much talk about Bolshevism in Canada. There is no Bolshevism in this country now, he said, and he held that the spread of Bolshevism are, consciously or unconsciously, doing so for the purpose of discrediting the efforts of organized labor to better its wage and working conditions. The Government, he said, had been asked for an eight-hour day and had given a commission. In concluding his address he urged his hearers to confine themselves to strictly legal means of obtaining their ends.

SIR ROBERT GIVES LIE TO AN ABSURD STATEMENT

Ottawa, June 27.—On the order of the day in the House, this morning Dr. Sheard, directed attention to W. T. A. Preston's charge that "There are soldiers lying in Flanders' fields for no other reason than that they voted Liberal," and that to meet their death, fifteen years of a forestry corps had been sent to front line trenches for no other reason than that they voted Liberal. Sir Robert Borden, in reply, said that the statement was absolutely absurd. There is not a word of truth in it.

DISCORDANT NOTE STRUCK IN THE PEACE SYMPHONY BY THE CHINESE DELEGATION

ANARCHIST PLOT TO ASSASSINATE KING ALPHONSO

Its Timely Discovery Prevented Any Harm Befalling the Royal Family at Opening of Spain's Cortes.

Washington, June 27.—Humors of an anarchist plot to assassinate King Alfonso of Spain during the procession accompanying the reopening of the Cortes, Thursday, were responsible for the sudden change of the scene of the ceremony from the palace, the Senate House adjoining the palace, the State Department was informed, today, in special despatches from Madrid. The anarchist plot was said to have been to attack the King while he was en route from the palace to the Senate House.

Press despatches from Madrid, Tuesday, said that the change of the scene of the ceremony was occasioned by a desire to spare the King fatigue, as he was slightly indisposed because of the extremely hot weather.

ADMIRALTY STATEMENT ON SCUTTLING

The Fact German Ships Were Interned, Not Surrendered, Prevented the Placing of Armed Guards on Board.

Washington, June 27.—No effective measures could have been taken by the British Admiralty to prevent scuttling of the German fleet at Scapa Flow without violating the terms of the armistice, said a statement tonight issued by the British Admiralty. The facts that the ships were merely interned and not surrendered, said the statement, prevented the placing of armed guards on board. Even had this been done, it was said, it would not have been a guarantee against the sinking of the ships, because the German crews, with their expert knowledge of the complex valve machinery, would have found it comparatively easy matter to open the valves without detection. It was originally recommended to the Allied naval council by the naval adviser of the British Admiralty the statement said, that the armistice terms provide for surrender of interned German ships, but the recommendation, it was said, was overruled by the council.

PUBLIC MEETINGS STILL BANNED IN WINNIPEG

Military and Municipal Authorities Announce That Riot Act Will Remain in Force Some Days Yet.

Winnipeg, Man., June 27.—It was announced at a conference this morning of municipal and military authorities that the Riot Act will remain in effect here for some days yet. It was also announced that no parades nor large open air public meetings can be held for another week.

CONSERVATIVE PARTY LEADERS MUST BE HEARD

Hon. Robt. Rogers Thinks No Representation in Any Constituency Until the Party Forces Have Been Heard and Felt.

Ottawa, Ont., June 27.—Hon. Robert Rogers, former Minister of Public Works, in an interview here, today, commented on the movement to organize a Unionist party, which was given a start at the Government caucus, yesterday, by the adoption of a resolution declaring in favor of the principle of such a party. He declared that he appalled the feelings of loyal and faithful Conservatives everywhere when he stated that, from this time forward, no decision for representation in any constituency of Canada will be reached until the organized forces of the Conservative Party have been heard and felt. Mr. Rogers further declared that the main proposition, which the Unionist Government depended upon for its existence, were the mistakes made by the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier in connection with the war. This afforded opportunity for capitalization of war conditions, and these conditions have now been removed.

Will Not Affix Signatures to the Treaty Because They Are Not Allowed Reservations Concerning Shantung.

GERMANS ADVANCE AGAINST POLAND

An Attempt Will Be Made to Raise the "Red Flag" of Revolution in Italy About July 15.

New York, June 28.—The Associated Press tonight issues the following: Everything is in readiness for the signing Saturday afternoon by the Germans of the peace treaty at the Entente and Associated Powers. Dr. Hermann Mueller, foreign minister in the new German cabinet, and Dr. Buel, chief of the German Office, designated as German signatories to the momentous document, arrived in Versailles late Friday in order to carry out the promise of the cabinet and the National Assembly to seal the compact.

That the Germans are dissatisfied with the terms of the treaty is indicated by reports that Dr. Mueller and Dr. Buel left Berlin for Versailles secretly, fearing that attempts by an enraged populace might be made upon their lives.

An eleven hour discordant note has been struck by the Chinese delegates, who announced that they will not sign the peace treaty because China will not be allowed to make reservations concerning the Province of Shantung.

Stung by news of further German aggression against Poland. The important city of Cracow, 160 miles from Warsaw, is reported as being under heavy attack by artillery. At some points the Germans are reported to be within twenty miles of the city.

Vienna advices say Austrian, German and Italian Communists have decided to attempt to raise the red flag of revolution in Italy about July 15th.

According to a statement made in authoritative quarters, the blockade of Germany will not be lifted until the peace treaty. It is understood, however, that owing to the delay of ratification in America, the powers have agreed that President Wilson's signature shall be regarded as ratified, pending that of the American Congress.

Grown Prince Affairs. The report of the escape of the former German crown prince from Holland, where he has been interned virtually since the cessation of hostilities, was explained today as follows: The announcement was made by the American intelligence department. It was then sent to the Council of Four, which at the moment was in session, and announced to the newspaper correspondents by an American press official. No statement has been made as to the source from which the British intelligence department received the original report.

TO CLOSE MONASTERY OF THE TRAPPISTS AT ANTIGNONISH

All the Monks Have Been Ordered Back to France and Will Leave on July 19th.

Special to The Standard. Halifax, N. S., June 27.—Some time ago it was announced that the property of the Trappist Monastery at Tracadie, Antigonish, had been sold. Word comes now that the monastery will be closed and that the monks will return to France on July 19. Orders have come from the Superior of the Order in France summoning them back because of need of men there on account of losses of members of the Order in the war. Father Dominique expects that before they leave the monastery will be visited by Laube Mire Paconn, who is head of the Trappists in Canada. The members of the Order who died at the Tracadie Monastery since its institution there were all natives of France, and in accordance with the traditions of the Order, a representative thereof will come later to arrange for the disinterment of the remains of those deceased Trappists and remove their bodies to France for reinterment.

ONT. LIBERALS AFTER CONTROL OF CONVENTION

Selection of Dewar as Leader is Interpreted to Mean the Complete Capture and Domination of Nat'l Convention by Anti-Conscriptionists.

Special to The Standard. Ottawa, June 27.—The selection of H. J. Dewar to the leadership of the Ontario Liberal Party is interpreted to mean that the anti-conscriptionist wing of the party is in full control of its leadership, and are preparing to completely capture and dominate the coming National Liberal Convention. Mr. Dewar, who is notorious as a corporation lawyer and is chiefly known in parliamentary circles here as a lobbyist for certain corporations, is interpreted to mean that the anti-conscriptionist wing of the party is in full control of its leadership, and are preparing to completely capture and dominate the coming National Liberal Convention. NOSKE TO WIELD BIG STICK OVER ALL THE RIOTERS

Declares Government Will Ruthlessly Suppress Disorders by All Means at Its Disposal.

Berlin, June 26. (By The A. P.)—In view of the situation at Hamburg and the strikes and unrest in Berlin, Gustav Noske, minister of national defense, issued a proclamation today declaring that the government will ruthlessly suppress disorders by all means at its disposal, and that it reserves the right of instituting martial law wherever necessary. The government intends, the proclamation says, to employ military means against strikes interfering with public services, to guarantee freedom to work, and to maintain railway transportation of food supplies and other necessities with force if necessary.

COMMONS FURTHER CONSIDERS CONSOLIDATED RAILWAY ACT

A Deadlock Over the Measure Has Existed Some Time Between Commons and Senate—Unable to Get Together on an Amicable Working Basis—Prime Minister Introduces "Protective Legislation" Bill.

Ottawa, Ont., June 27.—There was a lot more discussion in the Commons today, of the Consolidated Railway Act, in regard to which there has been a deadlock between the Commons and the Senate for some time past. A conference, held this week, having failed at any basis of compromise, the Government decided to secure the passage of the act this session by dropping the power and telephone clauses, to which exception was taken by the Senate, and introducing another bill, which was described by the Prime Minister as "protective legislation" dealing with these matters in such a manner as to give present legislation to municipalities.

GOVERNMENT TROOPS MARCH ON HAMBURG TO SUPPRESS RIOTS AND RESTORE ORDER AND QUIET

The Cessation of Hostilities, the Release of All Prisoners and the Delivery of All Weapons Were Immediately Ordered by Troops—All Criminals Released Were Ordered Returned to Jail—Communists Threaten to Destroy Food Ships—Civil War Feared Should Troops Attack City.

Berlin, June 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—The German Government troops, ordered to Hamburg to suppress disorders there, reached the suburbs of the city this morning. The troops ordered the immediate cessation of hostilities, the release of all prisoners and the delivery of all weapons. All criminals released during the recent turbulent events were ordered returned to jail.

The Communists, it is reported, announced they would seize and destroy the ships if the food situation in Hamburg does not improve at once. The only measure the Communists leaders in Hamburg apparently have been able to agree on is opposition to the entry of Government troops. It is felt here that there is a possibility that civil war may occur in Hamburg if the Government troops should attack the city.

Government authorities express themselves as certain the Hamburg disorders were inspired. They were said to be the beginning of general chaotic conditions planned by the Spartacists and expected by them to extend throughout the country. The authorities said the Hamburg working people allowed themselves to be misled into starting this movement, and were persuaded to riot ostensibly to get better food, but actually to further Spartacist political purposes.

The authorities here said they anticipated the Spartacan element would attempt an uprising here tomorrow.

DIGBY PROPERTY SUCSUMBS TO FIRE RAVAGES

Long Building on J. E. Snow's Wharf Completely Wiped Out—Loss Placed at $12,000, With Partial Insurance.

Special to The Standard. Digby, June 27.—About 4.30 this morning the cracks of burning wood aroused some of the residents of the North End and it was found that the long building on J. E. Snow's wharf, was afire. An alarm was sent in at once, but before the firemen arrived on the scene, the whole of the property from the street to the end of the wharf was in flames. Fortunately the morning was calm and not much other property was endangered. Nothing was saved from the building but the firemen succeeded in keeping the flames from the smokehouse alongside the store. Capt. Snow places the loss at about $12,000, with insurance to cover a little less than half this amount.

Four motorbombs lying alongside the wharf were saved although the tide was low and they could not be moved.

S. S. MASKINONGE REACHES SYDNEY

Sydney, N. S., June 27.—The S. S. Maskinonge arrived in port today, showing a bad dent in her starboard bow and a broken hawser pipe as the result of her collision with an iceberg in the berg, the captain says, was about fifty feet high and one hundred feet long.

MANY STRIKERS ARE REFUSED THEIR FORMER POSITIONS

The Refusal of Winnipeg Employers to Reinstatement Old Employees May Lead to Further Walkouts in Individual Trades.

Winnipeg, Man., June 27.—Refusal to reinstate strikers may lead to further walkouts in individual trades. Labor leaders are faced by hundreds of men who find themselves without employment and charge employers with discrimination. Such cases are being considered by the executive officers of the various unions. The general strike committee is still in operation. It is learned at the Labor Temple, and will meet to receive reports on discrimination from the unions. When the strike committee is disbanded, a general committee will be formed to deal with reinstatement, according to present plans.

Reinstatement of railway strikers is being handled entirely by the instigation of the Brotherhood of Railway and Air Line men. Strikers, applying to the railways for re-employment are being referred to their international executives. If reinstated in good standing by the Brotherhood officers they are being returned to duty by the railways. Men expelled from their organizations are finding it absolutely impossible to secure employment in Winnipeg.

for the Dominion Iron and Steel Company. When about 34 hours out she ran into a dense fog and slowed down to half speed. She was just making about six knots an hour when the collision took place. The upper part of the berg, the captain says, was about fifty feet high and one hundred feet long.

The clause relating to raise agreements, which was acceptable to the Senate, was modified in such a manner that it will be effective for three years only after the act comes into force. The Government's motion to drop the power and telephone clauses were vigorously opposed by a number of members on both sides of the House, but carried by large majorities, the power clause by 101 to 54, a majority of 47, and the telephone clause by 70 to 54, a majority of 16.

At the evening sitting there was a discussion in committee of Hon. N. W. Howells' pension bill, during which Captain Woodhouse urged the Government to make some provision for the insurance of disabled men.

As this branch of the sport will require more money to properly develop it than the league can spare, ways and means of raising the necessary funds are now under consideration.

POLICE COURT

CASES YESTERDAY

Men Charged With Assaulting a Chinese; Six Boys With Creating a Disturbance; Junk Dealer for Buying Metal; Bootlegger and Speeders.

In the police court yesterday the evidence in the case against Lee Hayes and Walter Elliot, who are charged with assaulting a Chinaman in his restaurant, Brunswick street, was completed and the magistrate said he would give judgment on Thursday next.

The afternoon was taken up with two cases. A Chinaman, who was charged with assaulting a woman at the time of the alleged assault, gave evidence. An interpreter was made use of, but the magistrate found that the witness understood English almost as well as the interpreter.

W. M. Ryan presented the case of Hayes and Elliot, while E. S. Ritchie summed up the evidence for the Chinaman.

The magistrate in his remarks commended on the many people who patronized the restaurants during the night. "They think nothing of spending $5 or 10 cents," said he, "and in one case we had a man to tell us he spent eighty cents for a lunch at two o'clock in the morning."

In the morning court six boys were charged with disturbing an entertainment given in the I. O. O. T. hall, Thorne avenue, on the evening of June 26. The boys were fined $1 each and costs.

A junk dealer was charged with buying metal, and a bootlegger and speeder were also mentioned.

WOODSTOCK HIT BY SERIOUS FIRE FRIDAY MORNING

Carding Mill Destroyed, Flour Mill Badly Damaged and Sentinel Building Partially Destroyed.

Woodstock, N. B., June 27.—Fire which started in a carding mill this morning totally destroyed the building and contents. A building adjacent, formerly used as the electric light station, was also burned.

A flour mill operated by James Frigo was partially burned. A very high wind was blowing and carried burning embers over the river, starting a fire in the Sentinel building and doing an enormous lot of damage.

Hon. F. B. Carvell's offices and the offices of W. Sims and F. L. McKee were in this building and all were badly damaged. The Sentinel had not finished putting out this week's issue when the employees were compelled to vacate the premises.

CANADA PRAISED BY JOHN HOPKINS UNIV. AUTHORITIES

One Day of the University's Celebrations Was Set Aside as Special Recognition of Canada's Part in World Affairs.

CANADA THE CRUSADER PARAMOUNT.

In setting apart tomorrow as a day of special honor for distinguished Canadian guests in the elaborate program of the university celebrations this year, the Hopkins authorities have expressed the deep admiration which Canada has aroused in this country by the splendid part which her people played in the war. Before 1914 comparatively few Americans knew or cared overmuch about Canada. We thought of her rather as a foreign dominion, alien to us in many ways, in spite of her physical proximity, rather than as a neighbor whom we particularly liked and whose friendship we greatly prized. A considerable number of Americans even looked covetously across the dividing line and rather resented the independent existence next to us of this daughter of the British Empire.

Indifference and latent hostility have disappeared under the evolution of war. We know Canada now as we never saw her previously. It is not that she has been completely transformed; it is that the scales have fallen from our eyes, that vision and understanding have come to us. Such a reappraisal, such a discovery of rare qualities to which we have been blind is not unfamiliar in the case of individuals. To wake up and find some one else famous whom we had regarded as commonplace or of little importance has not been an unusual human experience. But what has been peculiarly significant in the developments of the last few years has been the apparently new values and characteristics that have been manifested by little nations or small peoples from which we had not expected the exhibition of such striking qualities. Belgium was one of the surprises of the war to distant onlookers; Canada was another, even to many of us close at hand who should have known her better.

We know, of course, that hers was mainly British blood, and that that blood, like our own, is thicker than water; but we did not know that instead of being cooled by distance and a new environment it was ready to respond to a call like that of 1914 with an ardor of love and unselfishness such as the world has never seen surpassed. No question of expediency, no question of policy, no question of logic entered into Canada's decision. It was not, in fact, a decision but an act of faith, the expression of a sublime creed. Had she been a physical section of the British Isles, the wave of divine wrath, the passion of high and noble consecration which swept over, which took possession of her on Germany's declaration of hostilities, could not have been so mighty, so pure, so free from material considerations as when, thousands of miles away, she threw into the breach her soul and body, all she had, all she hoped for, all for which she had toiled, all of which she had dreamed in her some on a distant continent. It was not the mere fact that she joined the mother country in the effort to destroy a common menace. It was the spirit in which she did it, the super-earthly spirit of absolute self-abnegation, the spirit which makes men for the moment godlike in moral stature, which, more than anything else, proves their claim to a higher than mortal origin. It was this that made the Canadian troops more than invincible; it was this that made them devouring flames upon the battle front; it was this which has crowned "Our Lady of the Snows" with a triple diadem of military glory, spiritual beauty and unflinching idealism.

We have talked much about crusades in connection with the great conflict that shook and still shakes the world. But Canada was the real Crusader of the struggle. The men who eagerly rushed to the front were crusaders one and all, to whom death and wounds in such a cause was a privilege and an honor; to men and women who were forced to remain at home were crusaders, too, in soul and sacrifice, happy beyond measure if they could suffer for righteousness, counting loss as gain if they could help even so little to keep the world safe and clean and true.

Canada, the Crusader of the nation! The elder national brethren of the world make profound obeisance to her. She has been an inspiration to all of us. She is no longer a stranger, but a sister to us; we shall be glad to think she loves us as much as we love and admire her. Baltimore will be proud to have her representatives here tomorrow to be honored by our great university and by the spokesmen of our government. We do not wish any longer to annex her; we do not mind confessing that she has answered our hearts in sincere reverence of her moral greatness.

Royal governments are passing away, but Canada has shown herself to be the mother of a race of men who are kings in the day of battle and of trial, upon whom she can lean with serene confidence and courage in the blackest hours of danger and adversity.

Looking For The Release of Fleet

Maritime Shipping Interests Looking Forward to Time When All Emergency Vessels Will be Released—Some Will be Placed on the Market.

Maritime shipping interests are looking forward to the proposed release of all emergency fleet vessels controlled by Great Britain during the war, numbering several thousand vessels. It has been pointed out that with the lessened price of chartered since armistice day and the continuously high cost of materials, the building of steamships of large tonnage is a matter which can be approached only with large capital and the surety of steadily lucrative returns.

To this problem of the ship owners comes the statement that quite a number of vessels, mostly coal-burners, and all of moderate tonnage, will be placed upon the market for public buyers, the home country and colonies being given prime consideration. These are all vessels of good average speed and staunch seaworthiness which have stood up to the unusual and grueling tests which were thrust upon them during the days when Britain's supremacy of the seas was daily challenged by murderous submarine craft. Ocean trams they may some day become, but in their present state they are fully capable of carrying on passenger steamers, inter-country freight carriers, coalers, lumber and grain transporters.

It is understood that several tentative bids have been sent to the British shipping board from Eastern Canada interests and when the official notification is given to the public it is stated that there will be a considerable surprise in the number of high-grade and well-known vessels which are included in the quota.

In the sister republic to the south Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, has opened an office in New York where he is offering an assortment of over 2,000 ships which were formerly attached to the U. S. emergency fleet. Fifty-nine of these have already been disposed of to American firms operating along the Atlantic seaboard. Most of those sold to home interests are oil burners of 5,200 to 9,400 tons as the Yankee shippers have taken a decided fancy to liquid fuel.

Members of a South American government have put in a bid for 150,000

Why You Are Paying War-Prices in Peace Times

The serious concern about the mounting cost of necessities was shown not long ago when twenty-six Democratic members of the Massachusetts legislature cabled to President Wilson that "The citizens of the United States want you home to help reduce the high cost of living which we consider far more important than the League of Nations."

A man's suit of clothes that cost $15.00 in 1914 costs $26.00 today; shoes that were $9.00 in 1914 cost $15.40 now; a woman's suit that cost $15.00 in 1914 is $24.00 today; every item in both men's and women's wearing apparel has nearly doubled in price, while food, shelter, fuel, heat, and light have soared to equally high levels. This condition prompts the Detroit News to declare that "what the eating, sleeping, and dressing world wants to know is whether the cost of necessities is justified." The consumer finds it hard to understand, according to the Buffalo Evening News, "why six months after the end of fighting, prices instead of taking a fall, are forever rising."

THE LITERARY DIGEST presents this week in its leading article a comprehensive survey of the elements affecting present living costs; comparative tables showing the difference in prices of many articles in 1914 and today, the opinions of bankers, merchants, and manufacturers as to the future outlook, and the observations of editorial writers throughout the country on the situation. This article should be of practical value to every DIGEST reader.

OUT IN THE COLD.

Now that the smoke of battle has partially cleared away, and leaders on both sides have had opportunity to express themselves with forcefulness and their accustomed verbosity, it is possible to hazard an opinion as to what political historians of New Brunswick will have to say regarding the very pretty pickle into which Hon. W. E. Foster has brought the local branch of the Liberal party. When in 1917 the organization of Union Government was contemplated, an invitation was extended to the Liberals of Canada to participate on a fifty-fifty basis. Recognizing that the good of the nation should be placed before individual political opinions many of the leading men of the Liberal party accepted that invitation, with the result that Union, comprising the best thinking men of both great political groups was formed. There remained outside the fold two groups, one consisting of party men who consistently adhered to their life-long principles of Liberalism, and the other a spineless crowd too weak to oppose Union and yet refraining from active opposition to the latter group. Hon. W. E. Foster and a few of his friends belong. If ever opportunity was given a Provincial Premier to make a name for himself that opportunity came to Mr. Foster in 1917 when he was invited to endorse the principles of Union, and his failure to accept that invitation or to declare himself in opposition to national government stamped him as a cowardly deserter of the confidence of loyal citizens. Those who, although ill-served, had stability enough to adhere to the old-time Liberal policy and who fought Union to the end, merit the respect of their opponents for their allegiance to party principles, even in defiance of an overwhelming sentiment towards Unionism. Those others, recognized everywhere as men of broader vision, who forsake party affiliations and joined in promoting the first truly national government this country has ever known, are the men who enabled Canada to carry on her share of the war and are rewarded by the realization of having performed their duty at the sacrifice of their personal sentiments. The third group represented here by Mr. Foster are his small personal following who suffer the condemnation of all. They had not sufficient backbone to oppose Union, they were too bitterly partisan to endorse it, and they were too cowardly to openly declare themselves the other way. From the staunch Liberal and broad-minded Unionists this group now finds itself cut off, ignored by the one and condemned by the other, yet imperiously demanding that it be recognized as the controlling force of reunited Liberalism.

While in Ottawa on Provincial business Mr. Foster devoted the greater part of his time to conferences with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other Liberal leaders, and by so doing secured halfhearted recognition as party leader in this province. At subsequent sessions of the national committee his name was entered as a New Brunswick representative on that committee, this being done without the approval of the Liberal party which had formed the active opposition in the Union campaign. In the natural course of events instructions respecting the choice of representatives to the National Liberal convention in August were issued from Ottawa headquarters. Properly enough these instructions were sent to the chairman of the Liberal executive for St. John, Albert, who happens to be Mr. J. E. Belyea an active worker in the fight, and to Dr. Emery and Dr. Broderick, the defeated Liberal candidates in the contest. This official recognition of their authority was accepted by them and in due time a call was published for the primary meetings of the electors in St. John-Albert for the purpose of choosing nominating delegates to select representatives to the National Convention. These meetings were held on Wednesday evening and were attended by numbers of those who regarded themselves as the only true Liberals in this constituency, the men who formed the opposition in 1917. When notice of these primaries was published, Mr. Foster believing himself slighted by the Liberal executive—as of course he was, and rightly so—endeavored by means of hasty telegrams to Ottawa to have himself exclusively designated as the one authorized to arrange such meetings, and entered his protest against any further proceedings of that nature. He succeeded in securing from the temporary leader, Mr. D. D. McKenzie, a pathetic supplication to the Liberal executive that Mr. Foster's pleadings be given consideration. This telegram from Mr. McKenzie is regarded by the Liberal Executive as undesirable partiality and Mr. Foster's endeavors to secure personal recognition are condemned most bitterly by those whose work he is now attempting to hamper. His name was greeted on Thursday evening with jeers of contempt and his unwarranted interference was scathingly rebuffed. The Liberal executive as it existed in 1917 proceeded with the selection of the nominating delegates on Wednesday evening, and on Thursday the meeting chosen, in regular conference named the St. John representatives to the National Liberal Convention. The two from the Albert section of this constituency are to be chosen later.

Hon. Mr. Foster adapts the words of the inimitable Harry Lauder, "Just let us sing any more about war, just let us sing of love." With only a few lines of his public opinion which has characterized his whole career, the nominal leader of the Provincial Government hopes to destroy the influence of those who upheld old-time Liberalism in 1917, to depose from control the men who stood by their party in defiance of overwhelming sentiment and at the same time to enroll under his own banner the leader-minded members who believed in Union as a national duty. It is inconceivable that Mr. Foster should seriously anticipate success. If his attitude in the past had been such as to win the commendation or even the respect of any group there might be some reason today for this hope, but self-seeking partisanship which prevented support of Union, and cowardly opposition but even a clear statement of his attitude, have deprived him of the respect of present and former members of the old-time Liberal party with the exception of the few whom he is pleased to regard as his personal following.

At the matter now stands, the re-nominated Liberal party of St. John-Albert has elected representatives from this constituency to the National Liberal Convention, despite the protest of Mr. Foster, and the lukewarm support which he has managed to secure from the temporary Federal leader, the support given only on Mr. Foster's urgent request and in the hope of restoring peace. The great body of Liberals, the type who place their duty to the country ahead of partisanship, realize the advantages of Union Government and are today more than ever convinced that the present form of administration is deserving of their continued endorsement. They are just as averse to following one like Mr. Foster who has shown himself lacking in stability as they are determined to remain apart from the other group from which they separated in 1917 and which still displays unwarranted partisanship.

UNION GOVERNMENT.

Whatever hopes Liberal members at Ottawa might have entertained of the disruption of Union Government have been rudely shattered by the unanimous decision of the first caucus held following the return of Premier Borden from overseas. That caucus, which was composed of practically all members of the Unionist party now in Ottawa, was marked by the absence of only that half dozen or so who have been lukewarm from the first and who have made no secret of their hostility to the administration. They are chief western Liberals who place partisan prejudice before the good of the country, and their defection from Union ranks has long ago been discounted. On the other hand the predicted defection of many other Liberal members of prominence has failed to materialize, and Union, despite the diversified sentiments of the men comprising it, faces the people stronger than ever and with every prospect of continued success. All this goes to show that underneath a political partisanship and personal sentiment there is to be found in the worthwhile man an appreciation of what is best and coupled with it a desire to do nothing which may hinder the progress of this country in matters of real importance. It is after all a really remarkable thing that men of the two great parties could come together, submerge their individual opinions, and, while respecting each other's views, work so harmoniously that after a two-year trial their enthusiasm in respect to Union is stronger and deeper than when in the heat of partisan sentiment the project first appealed to them. The expression of confidence in the leadership of Sir Robert Borden is a notable tribute to a man who has brought this country through the most serious period in its history in a manner which has won the hearty commendation of other nations, and who because of his personal worth as much as because of his exceptional ability has been recognized as one of the greatest of those assembled in conference in Paris.

More shells were fired by the British army on the day the Hindenburg line was broken than were expended during the whole South African war. Yet in South Africa in 1900 there were times when considerable noise was made and a certain amount of damage done.

Mr. Hartley Dewar and Mr. William Proudfoot have changed places. The latter recently held the job of Liberal leader in Ontario, while

Mr. Dewar has been the party. Now Mr. Dewar takes command and Mr. Proudfoot composes the rank and file.

WHAT THEY SAY

The Model for Others.
London Advertiser—Hebrew rulers of old sat at the feet of Gamaliel, the wise, and there are some rulers at Ottawa who might with great advantage to themselves and Canada sit at the feet of Gounin, the wise and the winner.

Church Jealousies.
Glasgow Herald—While the great bulk of the people of Scotland who think about the matter at all hope that this year's General Assemblies will make a big stride towards the reunion of Presbyterianism in Scotland we need not be over-optimistic as to the final achievement. Will our prophets and teachers allow the petty divisions and jealousies of the past to rob them of their opportunity?

Real Breeders of Radicalism.
Kingston Standard—The Patrons with their callousness and their indifference to the public and the interests of the public—the Patrons who put profit first and God and the Public last—are the real breeders of the Radicalism and Socialism that we now see in the land.

No Parallel.
Hamilton Herald—Toronto Methodist conference voted in favor of the land for refusing Ireland self-government until she could be certain that, when once this was granted, Ireland would be friendly to her.

Excess Profits Tax.
Toronto Star—The duty should not be so high as to allow of exorbitant profits. But it sometimes happens that excessive profits are made owing to some turn of fortune even under a moderate tariff. Let us then couple up with our tariff the excess profits tax and maintain it, as a means of automatically directing to the public treasury the excess derived from production.

Voluntary Daylight Saving.
New York World—In spite of the decision of Congress to strike from the statute books a measure adopted in time of war there will be nothing to prevent individuals or large concerns from voluntarily continuing in force the daylight saving system during certain months of the year. When they find it to their advantage they will be free to govern themselves as they please. Expedient or convenience will determine their policy.

Local conditions will vary. In many industries and occupations by general agreement the hour for starting the day's work will be advanced in the spring, while in others the practice of former years will be adhered to in force of habit. The uniformity established by law will disappear, but beyond a doubt the effect of the experiment that has been tried will be seen in a growing disposition to save daylight from personal choice.

No Longer Their Quarrel.
San Francisco Chronicle—In the condition to which Germany has been reduced the European nations are entirely competent to control and govern Germany and need no help from us. Nor are we under any obligation to give assistance. We are not in alliance with any other nation. If Germany had not sunk our ships we should not have gone to war. Since we did enter the war for that cause we naturally associate ourselves with the other enemies of Germany. We much prefer to make a joint peace with them. As Germany no longer attacks our ships this country has no further cause of quarrel with that country. How Europe may be politically divided we do not care. We are asking no indemnity or reparation for our ships actually destroyed, and that we have probably got from the ships interned in this country.

A Good Irishman's Testimony.
Chicago Tribune—Probably nobody would deny that George Russell is a good Irishman as Ryan or Dunne or Walsh. And Russell said it all two or three years ago in this paragraph: "Custom and the common sense of nations always will be behind the British government in refusing to allow Ireland to set herself up as an independent and hostile territory. No nation, no matter how high a political morality it professes, could blame England."

Quite Possible.
One day a celebrated K. C. was arguing before a very fierce old judge, who interrupted by pointing first to one and then to the other of his ears, and saying: "You see this, Mr. X? Well, it just grew in here and comes out there," and his lordship smiled with the hilarity of a judge who thinks he has actually said a good thing. "I don't doubt it, my lord," replied the K. C. "What is there to prevent the K. C.?"

Little Benny's Note Book

BY LEE PAPE.

Me and Puds Simkins took a walk to the park yesterday after school, and we passed a man setting on a bench wiping his perspiration with his handkerchief, being a grate big fat man with no vest, me saying to Puds, G. Puds, how would you like to be that fat?
How would you? sed Puds, and I sed, I wouldn't, and Puds sed, Me neither.

How much do you bet he ways I bet he ways 400 pounds, I sed. Aw go on, I bet he ways 500 if he ways a fuch, did you notice his stummick? sed Puds, and I sed, Wat do you bet, I bet you a sent he oty ways 400.

All rite, I bet you, lets go back and ask him, sed Puds. Wich we started to do, and the man was still wiping his perspiration with his hat off, and me and Puds went up to him, me saying, Mister, would you mind settling a argreement?

This is the hottest day we've had in 5 years, I saw it in this afternoon paper, O woy was I cersed with all this averdepoise, sed the fat man looking mad as anything.

All wat? sed Puds. All this excess bagidge, sed the fat man, confound it, its hot, if I was a ordinary also man I wouldn't care, but I aint hit for any sutch weather as this—wats all this about settling a argreement?

Wich we and Puds looked at each other, and I sed, Ixcuse us a minit. And we went up the path a little ways, me wispering, Maybe he mite consider it too personal, maybe we better not ask him.

But we haff to ask him sumthing, we told him we was going to, to settle a argreement, sed Puds and I sed, Lets ask him how meny pints in a barril that sounds like a argreement.

Wich we went back and did, Puds saying, The argreement is how meny pints in a barril, do you know mister? and the fat man sed, About one half as meny as five perripated today, O woy was I born fat? And me and Puds watched him wipe his perspiration a little wile longer and then we kepp on going.

He Felt Gully.
Mrs. Pickett—Sometimes I think that Darwin was right.
Mr. Pickett (stared)—Great cals! What have I done now?

The Lawyer Approved.
A young gentleman appeared before a lawyer in a great state of excitement.
"Jones called me a liar, a scoundrel and a puppy. What shall I do about it? Would you advise me to fight for that?"
"By all means," answered the lawyer, "there is nothing nobler in this world, young man, than fighting for the truth."

Change Was Forced.
O' John Burroughs advises us that we must not always look for truth from the lips of a fisherman. In support, he cites this instance:
"Mistah Johnson," asked old Ephraim, "what fob you call dat son of yobs Isaac Walton, when he was baptizid George Washington?"
"Because, sah, dat rascal's reputation for veracity made dat change imperative."

TO THE HUMMING BIRD.
Or thy light gossamer wing,
Swift as sunbeam's glancing ray,
Quaffing deep the honeyed Spring,
Of each floweret by the way.

Filled with rapturous delight,
Glide for these gay Summer's hours,
Wafted on their radiant flight
With the fragrance of sweet flowers.

Long ere chilly frost winds blow,
Or frail beauties fade and die,
And descends the feathery snow,
From a leaven, Autumn sky.

To where Summer reigns serene,
Decked in emerald verdure bright,
Smiling each enchanting scene,
Thou wilt wing thy joyous flight.

Thus, when from this world of ours,
Fade life's hopes and joys away,
May we pass to brighter bowers,
Far beyond Death's sad edway.

Peterboro, Ont. Mrs. W. F. Calder.

Yes, a woman should trust her husband, but it is not always advisable to let him know it.

He—Do you think your father would consent to our marriage?
She—He might. Father's very eccentric.

Clarice—Kitty married a man a good deal older than she is, I hear.
Penelope—Older? Why, he's twice her real age and three times the age her father says she is.

Modern Youth—A moment, miss. None of those non-union problems, please!

Board of Trade Council Meeting

Progress to Rothesay Road Improvements Reported Yesterday — Invitation to Attend Industrial Congress at Calgary Received — Other Business Discussed.

At the meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade yesterday, a letter was read from the Public Works department to the progress that was being made on the Rothesay road improvements. The average amount of work being done per day is in the vicinity of 200 feet, although there have been days when 300 feet were laid. It is expected that the completion of the work will occupy about two months.

The council expressed its satisfaction at the progress that was being made. A letter was read from Mr. Bradt, secretary for agriculture, with reference to the action taken at the stock yard meeting at Amherst. Though Amherst was chosen by the meeting the final selection of a site has not yet been made.

With respect to the letter of the Quebec Board of Trade, on the subjects of the further nationalization of railways and the adjustment of ocean freight rates, the council, while sympathizing with the Quebec viewpoint, recommended that consideration of these matters be deferred until the general situation has become more clarified.

An invitation to participate in the forthcoming Industrial Congress at Calgary was read. It was thought that some members of the board might find it convenient to attend.

A resolution was adopted disapproving of the postal order which denied the public the privilege of receiving carrier letters from the general delivery window on Saturday afternoons when the carriers would not be on their rounds.

There was a discussion on harbor commission matters, after which the council adjourned.

FIVE THOUSAND CRATES OF BERRIES

Heavy Arrival from Upriver Points Yesterday—Sold on Arrival at from 23 to 25 Cents Per Box.

Over five thousand crates of berries came down river yesterday afternoon and were quickly snapped up by the local dealers at from twenty-three to twenty-five cents per box. Of these the Majestic brought the greater number, she having over four thousand boxes. The Hampton had about five hundred boxes and the Champlain about nine hundred boxes. Quite a quantity of real came down yesterday and this sold for fifteen and sixteen cents per pound. Passengers on the steamers reported that the rain was general along the river and was expected to do a lot of good as the country was badly in need of it.

HARRY, NOT MARY.

In The Standard's account of Rothesay Consolidated School closing Mary McMackin was mentioned as having the highest standing in Grade 9. It should have read Harry McMackin as having that honor.

WEST END VETERANS ARE ORGANIZING

Second Meeting Held Last Evening—G. W. V. A. of West St. John Formed—Number of New Members Added to the List.

The second organization meeting of the war veterans residing in West St. John and vicinity was held last night in the rooms of the West Side Athletic Club. There was a good attendance and quite a number of additional names were added to the official application for a charter of the organization, which will be known as the Great War Veterans' Association of West St. John.

Peter O'Rourke and James H. Pitt were appointed the temporary officers of president and secretary, respectively, and it was stated that the following meeting, to be held next Friday night, in the same building, would furnish a sufficiently strong muster of veterans so that the work of organization would proceed without a hitch.

The main cause of organizing a West Side branch of the G. W. V. A. is stated, is the difficulty experienced by the West Side veterans in getting to the Soldiers' Home on Westington Row.

It is considered that there are enough veterans on the West Side and in Pairville to make a strong branch of the association, and the meetings can be attended without the necessity of a long journey or dependence upon street cars or ferries.
Through the kindness of Mark Burns, of the West Side Athletic Club, the veterans have been given the use of the club's hall as a meeting place until a more suitable location has been secured. A hearty vote of thanks was passed by the meeting to Mr. Burns last night.

STOCK MARKET EXPANDS AS LOAN RATES RELAXED

Chandler Motors Provided Spectacular Feature Adding Many Points—Other Motors Made Large Advances.

New York, June 27.—That speculative interests are almost wholly dependent on the movement of money was strikingly illustrated today, the stock market rallying very generally and trading expanding perceptibly as the rates for call loans relaxed.

The opening for loans was 5 to 5 1/2 per cent, those quotations being the lowest in initial rates of the week. The more significant as all loans made today were held over until the coming week. These rates compare with yesterday's highest of 8 per cent, and previous day's 15 per cent, and bespeak a favorable weekly bank statement, indicating also that next week's mid-year settlements have been largely anticipated.

There was only one noteworthy exception to the higher prices achieved, rails lagging throughout the session, with renewed weakness in Baltimore and Ohio, which experienced further liquidation on the passing of the common dividend.

Chandler motors was again the spectacular feature, after adding an advance gain of 13 points to yesterday's extreme of 22. General Motors rising 5, Studebaker 4, and other motors and kindred shares one to three points.

Among steels, equipments, shippings and tobacco overrings gains of 1 to 6 points were made, a few specialties and utilities sharing to a like extent. American Woolens and metals featured the active final hour, the former making a spirited rise of 1 1/2 points, coppers gaining 2 to 4, but other leaders, including United States Steel, retreated fractionally to almost two points out of profit taking. Sales amounted to 1,250,000 shares.

There was no letup to the gold outflow, further exports being announced to South America and Spain, with more in prospect, including Oriental demand. Aside from Liberty loans, which were irregular, steadiness marked the day's operations in bonds. Total sales, par value, aggregated $8,750,000.

Maxwell

—a car having every luxury except one

THAT luxury is brutish bigness, which means weight, which means a large gasoline tank and filled often, and large tires, and several sets a year.

Maxwell is neither a big car nor a small car. The biggest car made is less than 4 feet longer, and costs around $15,000 to buy and $7,000 a year to run.

Most cars are just a foot or a few inches longer.

And others are some smaller—shorter, lighter, less roomy, and hence lack the luxury of a Maxwell.

Nor do they cost, on the average, less to run.

Gas mileage is very nearly the same. Tire mileage is very nearly the same.

But where Maxwell earned its crowning reputation has been its ability to run and run and never quit.

That means repair bills are amazingly low.

You therefore never get mad at a Maxwell—it's the best friend your pocketbook has. And when you stop to think of all those little points of luxury in a Maxwell you're almost sure to whip out your check book and write a check for one.

The 300,000-all-alike idea behind the Maxwell thus, you see, is sound.

A PRETTY YACHT. The American yawl rigged Osprey, a beautiful craft of seven tons, which was purchased by Walter Allison, arrived in port Thursday evening from Stouffville. The yacht was commanded by Captain William Daley and owing to bad weather and being forced to make harbor a number of times, was about fifteen days on the voyage to St. John. On Thursday morning the Osprey was caught in the "rip" of Point Lepreau and proved herself an excellent boat in a heavy sea. She is a comfortable craft, well finished, a good sailer and will prove a valuable addition to the fleet of yachts on the river. She was taken through the falls yesterday.

AN AMICABLE AGREEMENT. The agreement between the New Brunswick Power Company and the Street Railwaymen's Union was signed on Thursday evening and goes into effect at once. By this agreement the men receive increases of from five to eleven cents per hour, making an average increase for all the men of nine cents per hour. They also have received a formal recognition of the union. The motormen and conductors get a nine hour day and rest seats are to be provided for the motormen and stools for the conductors. THE MILL STREET CROSSING. Work on the railway crossing in Mill street was held up yesterday on account of the rain but the rails were so arranged that the street cars and trams could use the tracks. Engineers in charge of the repairs said yesterday that the diamonds in Mill street would all have to be raised. The ground here was made and the tracks had settled. Now paving will be put down in the crossing and new ties will be placed under the rails. It is expected that the work will be completed in a few days. In the meantime, however, the torn up state of the roadway causes great inconvenience to traffic. It was suggested that the congestion would be very much relieved if more vehicles used the Wall Street bridge and Paradise Row for the next few days.

Annual Reunion Held Last Night

Pleasant Programme in Y. M. C. I. When St. Vincent's High School Alumnae Received Fourteen Graduates as Members of the Association.

The annual reunion of St. Vincent's High School Alumnae took place last evening in the Y. M. C. I., when fourteen graduates of St. Vincent's were received as members of the association. Mrs. James McMurray, president of the Alumnae, occupied the chair and in a neat speech welcomed the new members. She referred to the fine record of the school and the high standing of its graduates. She hoped all those who passed through the school would keep in touch with one another by means of the association. During the evening a fine bouquet of flowers was presented to Mrs. McMurray by members of the alumnae in recognition of her untiring efforts on behalf of the society.

An excellent banquet was served in the large hall, after which a fine programme of literary and musical numbers was carried out. In spite of disagreeable weather an extremely large number of members attended and a most pleasant time was spent. The programme was as follows: Welcome to graduates—Mrs. James McMurray. Reply—Miss M. McElwaine, who was valedictorian of the class of 1913. Solo—Miss M. McCarthy. Reading—Miss M. Condon. Piano Solo—Mrs. C. O. Morris. Solo—Miss V. Waterbury. Piano Solo—Miss G. Murray. Reading—Miss Scholly. Solo—Mrs. W. F. Duerr. Auld Lang Syne.

WANT CONSENT TO ERECT BLEACHERS

At Meeting of West End Improvement League Last Evening It Was Decided to Ask Common Council for Permission.

At a meeting of the West End Improvement League held last night a committee was appointed to interview the common council and try to obtain their consent to the erection of bleachers on the Queen Square, which a small admission fee could be charged. It is understood the objection is that these public grounds and no admission fee can be charged for anything in connection, but the league feel that if the council will pass a resolution authorizing the erection of the bleachers the action will be legal. They feel that in view of the fact that between two and three thousand persons gather there to witness the ball games they should be given the opportunity to do so with some degree of comfort. The erection of the bleachers will cost about $1,000, and unless there is some method of getting this money back the league cannot undertake the expenditure.

The league is making arrangements with Moncton to send a team here for the holiday, and games will be played on Tuesday afternoon and evening. St. John being represented by a different team in each game. A matter considered at the meeting was the baiting of the umpire and players by spectators, and the committee wish to send a team here for the holiday, and games will be played on Tuesday afternoon and evening. St. John being represented by a different team in each game.

SOME LUNATIC WAS AT LARGE

Fire Department Called Out Twice Early This Morning by Some Person Sending in False Alarms—Man With Automobile Suspected.

About 12:45 o'clock this morning some person with an ivory skull cap with a brain deranged from the excessive use of lemon extract, sent in a false alarm from box 131 on the corner of Victoria and Elgin streets and received anything but the blessing of the fire department members who were called out of their comfortable beds for needless alarm.

At 1:35 o'clock an alarm was sent in from box 135 on the corner of Sheriff street and the Strait Shore Road and on the arrival of the fire department it was found that the fool was again on the job, having no doubt travelled from one section of the North End to the other for the purpose of hearing other wheels than those in his head go round. He had only given ample time for the firemen to get comfortably back to bed and the fire horses resting in their stalls between the first and second false alarms. It would be a fortunate thing for the community if such a person was apprehended and confined in some place where he could not have the chance to perform such crazy actions.

After the first false alarm had been sent in members of the fire department were out making a search for the guilty person and were looking around when the second alarm sounded. From all appearances it was the work of some person who was driving around in an automobile as the tire tracks could be seen plainly in the soft mud leading up to the box. The police are at work and may be successful in making an arrest.

LEAVES FOR SUMMER CAMP.

Arthur M. Gregg, provincial secretary of the Maritime Boys' Work division of the Y. M. C. A. National Council, leaves this morning for the "Y" boys' summer camp at Shipman, taking along with him the supplies for the camp. A phone message from the camp last night stated that the department guard was in good spirits, despite the downpour of rain. All the tents have been pitched and everything is in readiness to accommodate the contingent which has signed on for the two weeks' outing.

Water Pressure Found Rather Low On Prince Wm. St.

Gauge Shows Only Thirty-Eight Pounds Early Wednesday Morning and Forty-Four in the Afternoon—Is Altogether Too Low for Protection.

Is there something wrong with the water system in the city, or is the downtown business section being protected as well as it might be? are questions that are being asked by a few business men and insurance agents who have taken the trouble to have some pressure tests made on Prince William street within the past few days. The result of these tests are rather startling and calls for some explanation from the Commissioner of Water and Sewerage department or those in his department who may perhaps give some reason for the results that have been found.

In the 1200 pressure tests were made on Market Square, and on that occasion it was shown that the pressure in this section of the city showed 42 pounds, and in the morning the streams of water flowing from lines of fire hose the pressure showed 63 pounds. There is no reason in the mind of fire insurance agents and other business men in the vicinity that the pressure should not be just as good today as it was in 1908, but unless something is wrong such is not the case. A gauge obtained from the Board of Fire Underwriters' office was used on Wednesday last with the following result.

At a test made in the basement of the Standard office from the tap at the end of the service pipe, and with no other water being used in the building at 2 o'clock in the morning the gauge showed just 41 pounds. Another test was made from the pipe at the front window near the sidewalk, and without any other water being used in the building the gauge showed just 38 pounds pressure at 3:30 o'clock, or one and a half hours after the first test was made. On the afternoon of the same day a similar test was made in the basement of this building which showed the pressure to be 44 pounds by the gauge, while a test made on the third floor, in the composing room, showed the pressure to be just 16 pounds.

When these facts were made known to a prominent fire insurance agent and member of the Board of Fire Underwriters that gentleman said that a pressure of only 40 pounds on Prince William street was altogether too low and was indeed dangerous when water was needed immediately on the discovery of a fire. He said that there should be about 90 pounds' pressure on Elm street near the Peterborough street and that on the largest pipe on Market Square there should be about 80 pounds or more, and on Prince William street there should not be less than 65 to 75 pounds. He further pointed out that with a section of fire hose attached to a hydrant, that for every joint of hose from the plug to the nozzle, there is a loss of six pounds pressure per joint according to new or old hose, and this would mean that where there was only 42 pounds pressure on Wednesday morning at 3:30 o'clock, and with six joints of hose being used from the hydrant it would only give about two pounds' pressure coming from the nozzle, and in any case there would not be enough pressure to place water from the street into the second story of a building. The gentleman in question could not understand the reason why the pressure was so low in this important section of the city and especially in the early hours of the morning, when the fire department is called out to fight a fire, and much water being used in the buildings as there is later in the day. Continuing, he said that if 38 or 44 pounds pressure was present on Wednesday morning, he would not be surprised if in this section, and that was all that has been in this section for some time past, the quicker something was done to remedy the matter.

Reception By High School Alumnae

That to Graduating Class Last Night Voted Best Ever—Graduating Class Numbered Ninety—Honor Roll and Honors Won by Former Members.

The annual reception given by the High School Alumnae to the graduating class last night was the best ever. The graduating class this year was the largest in the history of the school and contained the largest percentage of boys, forty of the ninety being of the senior sex. After a short programme the floor of the assembly hall was cleared and 250 young men spent in tripping the "light fantastic."

Miss Jessie L. Lawson, president of the Alumnae, presided and in her address she took up an average of 100 minutes on the ending of the war and of the honor roll on which was the names of 623 former pupils of the school who had served King and country in the line of duty. The names of the 42 were: M. M., 12; D. C. M., 3 and 1; R. C. M., 2; D. S., 3; 2; B. G., 2; R. C. C., 2; O. B. E., 2; Boigian Croix de Guerre, 3; French Croix de Guerre, 1; C. M. G., 1; Medaille des Epaves, 1.

The Alumnae memorial scholarship of $100 was given to J. Kenneth Sullivan of Grade 12 by Miss Lawson who announced that $1,000 had been subscribed toward this fund. This was followed by the presentation to Miss Greta Lingley, the leader of the graduating class of the Alumnae Pin, this carrying with it a life membership in the organization.

The next number on the programme was a solo by Audrey Thain, after which Dr. D. C. Malcolm, who acted as floor manager, took charge and the dance was on. Light refreshments were served during the evening.

The reception committee was Mr. and Mrs. W. J. S. Myles, Miss J. I. Lawson and Mrs. E. R. Taylor; while Miss Grace Boley was in charge of the refreshment committee.

Attractive suits are these of cotton gabardine or Palm Beach—white and natural shades. Coats are in modified Norfolk effect with novelty pockets and shawl collars, trimmed with contrasting materials in a light pleasing way. Pearl buttons finish the cuffs and front of coat. The skirts are narrow, but permit perfect freedom of lively action, and therefore are suitable to be worn on the tennis courts, etc. These suits will launder splendidly, and are cool and comfortable for street wear these warm days and those ahead. There are not a great range of sizes, and they will be well worth investigating early this morning.

Ready-to-wear department, Dykeman's. Special. One Hundred Wash Skirts, $2.00 value, Saturday and Monday, $1.00 each. Third Floor, Dykeman's.

FOR THE HOLIDAY.

Fine serge trousers in white and with hairline stripe; new waist-seam suits; new raincoats. Gilmour's, 63 King street.

The game of volleyball, scheduled for yesterday afternoon between the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. M. C. I. in the latter's gymnasium, did not materialize, owing to preparations being made for the High School social.

Fought in East African Campaign

H. R. McLellan, Who Left Brazil and Signed up With Imperial Army, Arrived Home With Other Heroes Last Evening.

A number of men who had been serving with the imperial troops through the war reached St. John yesterday afternoon at 5:30 and were given a warm welcome by friends. Charles Robinson, secretary of the Returned Soldiers' Commission, and representatives of the citizens' reception committee, and K. C. were on hand as well as numbers of relatives and friends to welcome back the boys.

Among the number was one who served with the East African campaign, H. R. McLellan, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. McLellan. This young soldier was in Brazil when the war broke out, and he was in the trenches where he offered his services to the imperial army and was accepted. He was among the troops sent to East Africa and did his share in trimming the Hun in that part of the world. Shortly after his enlistment he asked to be transferred to the Canadian army but was refused by medical men that after spending some two years below the equator he would be unable to stand a northern campaign.

He did not come out of the struggle unscathed, having been wounded once and compelled to spend some time in hospital.

When seen last night by The Standard Mr. McLellan expressed his pleasure on being home once more. Those who arrived were: C. Henry, 329 Princess street, St. John. H. Hamilton, 220 City Road, St. John. C. Crocker, Millerton, N. B. E. Travers, Newcasttle. C. Stevenson, St. John. C. Cook, St. John. H. R. McLellan, St. John.

For Your Garage. Preparedness is the wisest kind of economy—that is why you should put a pair of Stanley garage doors on your garage doors before it's too late. The Stanley Garage Door Holder is an arm of steel. It locks your garage doors open, preventing the wind slamming them against your car—smashing a lamp or fender. THE SUNSET

By CHARLES E. VAN LOAN

Here is the second of a short series of wholesome, thrilling out-of-door stories, written by the master of sporting stories Charles H. Van Loan. They are worth reading for the stories themselves even if it were not for the breath of fresh air and the pulse-stirring excitement that they carry.

The Apaches could play baseball, five scattered pennants bearing witness. They could also play stud and draw poker, as visiting intimates discovered. As crap shooters, they were more to be feared than "faded." All sorts of rough-and-tumble fighting they could protect themselves, but when it came to mothering a small boy who was just losing his baby teeth, the Apaches fell down and bellied.

Of course they did the best they knew how—which was not much—and consequently John Wesley Jones, aged something under ten years, knew everything which a boy of his age should not know, including the taste of pig tobacco.

Women might have pitied him, but John Wesley scorned their pity. He would not have exchanged places with the son of the President of the United States, for that young man, despite his relationship with greatness, could never sit on the bench next to Gus Bergstrom and fondle the bats with the little Swede pro. John Wesley Jones entered his league when he was five years of age. The manager of the Terrible Swede had bought a red-headed sensation in the shape of a shortstop, and when "Blick" Jones reported for spring practice, he brought with him a smudged, flame-topped youngster whose clothes bore evidence of fumbling many clothes lines.

"What's going to do with the kid?" asked Pete Carr, the Apache team captain. "Going to take him with me," answered the recruit about the bench. "Bad stuff!" said Carr. "Think of the night jumps and the travelling you've up against. It would be a whole lot better if you could send him to some good school for kids—an asylum maybe."

The new infielder glared. "See here!" said Carr. "That asylum thing runs your kids maybe; not for mine. I say the kid sticks with me, and that goes. If you don't like it, say so. I know plenty of loggers where they'll be glad to have us both."

"Oh, all right, all right!" said Carr. "I was just thinking of the inconvenience of it, that was all. No objections, none in the least!" "Good! But that Jones is a touchy about that kid of his," said Carr to "Gibraltar" Jordan, the left fielder. "Jumped all over me for just suggesting that he better leave to kid some-where during playing season."

"Huh!" said Gibraltar. "These bushers seem to think that this is a sort of infant class on the side. Where's the kid's mother?" "Died last season," said Carr. "And say, Jordie, old haws, better not let that red-head hear you call him a busher. He doesn't start often, but when he does, all waterweights better get outside the ropes!" "Wonder why he's so stuck on lug-ging a squab with around with him all the time?" asked Jordan. Gibraltar kept on wondering, for Brick Jones never told him. He did not, it might have made a difference at the beginning, for ball players, in spite of a rough exterior, are sympathetic and clanish. Brick Jones about that kid of his, said Carr to "Gibraltar" Jordan, the left fielder. "Jumped all over me for just suggesting that he better leave to kid some-where during playing season."

member of the family, a tiny, red-fac-ed little mite with golden fuzz instead of hair and the voice and lungs of an auctioneer. The mother named him John Wesley, after her uncle, who had been a Methodist minister.

When John Wesley was two years old Jonesey was still "pounding brass" in the same office at the same salary and beginning to realize that raising a family on seventy-five a month was not the simplest problem in the world. He still played baseball for the love of the game, but nobody ever thought of offering him any money for his services. Jonesey thought of asking for any. He knew, in a hazy sort of way, that professional baseball players were well paid, but that was in the days when Jonesey was modest and did not suspect himself of being a marvel.

One day a baseball scout, prowling through the waste places in search of an infielder for the Eureka team of the Sagubrough League, stopped over to see a game between the railroad men and a team of miners from a nearby town. That evening when Jonesey came down to take his night trick on the wire, he found the stranger waiting for him.

"It's a fair question," asked the stranger, "what does this wire-tickling job pay you?" "Nothing to me," said Jonesey. "But unless I'm very much mistaken, it's something to you. Do you ask the kid's mother if you did this afternoon?" "Why yes," said Jonesey, slightly puzzled. "Pretty much the same. Sometimes I hit a little better."

"How would you like to play professional ball?" "What is there in it?" asked Jonesey. "I can get you one hundred and twenty-five dollars a month. I'm looking for a shortstop for the Eureka club. Your expenses on the road will be paid, and the season lasts eight months. How does that listen to you?" "Can I get by with it?" asked Jonesey. "Get by?" repeated the man. "Like a runaway freight train!"

"Oh, all right, all right!" said Carr. "I was just thinking of the inconvenience of it, that was all. No objections, none in the least!" "Good! But that Jones is a touchy about that kid of his," said Carr to "Gibraltar" Jordan, the left fielder. "Jumped all over me for just suggesting that he better leave to kid some-where during playing season."

"We can always hope," said the doctor. "You mustn't excite her, remember." Jonesey went in and sat down on the side of the bed, taking the tiny white hand in his own brown paw. "Well, little girl," he said. "Charlie, dear," said the sick woman, "it's about the boy. You're going away off East, among strangers. You mustn't send Johnny to an asylum. I couldn't bear that. I want you to promise me that you'll take Johnny with you, wherever you go."

Jonesey slipped to his knees, his face hidden in the bed covering. "Don't talk like that!" he begged. "You mustn't give up! Why, what would I do?" The white hand found his bowed head, and began to stroke the tangled red mop. "You haven't promised," whispered the voice.

Jonesey promised. "Wherever you go—for always and always," repeated the woman. "Now, I want to see Johnny." "Don't talk like that!" he begged. "You mustn't give up! Why, what would I do?" there was a white-haired girl in Minnesota whom Bergstrom had been trying to forget for ten years without any great degree of success.

That walk brought them to a tailor shop, and Gus produced from his pocket two pieces of flannel, one grey and the other white. "I want for the kid two suits," said Gus, "and you make 'em just like a big-league uniform."

"Yes, sir; yes, sir, Mr. Bergstrom," said the tailor, flustered by near contact with so much greatness. "Your little boy?" "No," said Gus. "I kind of adopted him."

"Now, little fellow," said Gus, as they walked back to the park where the members of the team were practicing at running out bunts, "don't say a word. We surprise 'em."

John Wesley bobbed his head. He, too, knew how to hold his tongue. "Will I have a cap like yours?" he asked. "By Yimminy!" said Bergstrom, slapping his thigh with a resounding smack. "I forgot the cap, and he remembers it! Sure! You will have two caps!"

The strange couple went back to the ball park, hand in hand. "Pipe that big hook of a sword!" said "Sea Cow" Hamilton, the pitcher. "Jones, I'll bet that fellow has been filling your kid up on ice cream sods or some other fool stuff!"

"Just a little secret we have together!" said Bergstrom, grinning. "That night the Terrible Swede sent for pens, ink and paper, and laboriously sweated out an order for two caps, two pairs of stockings, and one small pair of spoked shoes and a glove, the same as you makes for me."

This done, Bergstrom addressed an envelope to the sporting goods house which supplied the Apaches with their uniforms and equipment. Slip- ping downstairs, he dropped the letter into the box.

to absorb the intricate problems of the game without an effort, and before he was seven years old, he knew every sign used by the team and could anticipate and interpret the team's method of attack, play by play.

"Born right in him!" Jones used to say proudly. "With the start he's got, what a whaling great infielder he'll make some day!"

"Judge" Kennedy, who pitched his way out of the medical profession and into big-league baseball, often tried to persuade Jones that it was his duty to send the boy to school.

"Nix," said the father. "He's learning fast enough now, ain't he? He can read a little bit already, and he studies out all the dope on the sporting pages now. He's a shark with a box score, and I'll bet he knows more'n most of the official scorers in this league. Of course he'll go to school some time, but it won't be until he's a ten or eleven, and then I'll put him in a swell boarding school on the Hudson river."

If Little Sunset knew nothing about the multiplication table, there were other things with which his little mind was stored—the things which a boy must learn by close association with careless, outspoken men. This was a pity; and often, after a close game had been lost, Bergstrom would pick the little fellow up and walk out of the clubhouse.

"Come on, kid," he would say. "We go play a little catch, hey?" There were times when Jones doubted the wisdom of the course imposed by the promise he had made to the boy's mother. The first time he thought seriously about it was when he heard his son and her rip off an easy string of cracking out.

"Here, son," said Brick quietly, "that sort of talk won't do. You'll have to cut that out." "Well, that's what I heard you say!" replied the boy. "And anyway, that was a 1-1 of a play for Potter to make!"

The men on the bench roared with laughter, and the coach the boy thought he had said a smart thing. All little boys are alike when it comes to "showing off."

of the post-season money, and instead of standing in line when the heroes received their diamond medals, the gift of a highly excited populace.

"What do you think of them stiffs?" said John Wesley bitterly, after the ceremony. "Here I ain't missed a game this season and I got a medal! Nix! You guys wouldn't have got no medals neither if I hadn't kep' that big stew of a Bergstrom up on his toes all season! I'm the feist; that made him hit over four hundred, and they don't even give me a pleasant look!"

"Some truth in that!" whispered Carr to Jordan. "The kid kept right after Bergstrom all season, jollying him along, sliding him onto pitchers and generally ribbing him up. I guess Gus is thinking too much about that property of his out in Ohio!"

When the Apaches reported at the Southern camp next spring, Bergstrom was not among the early arrivals. "The Swede will be along in a couple of days," said Jake Myers, the club manager. "He signed a new contract last fall."

For many seasons Bergstrom had been known as a thrifty baseball player. For one season he had been known as one of the richest of the stars of the diamond. This information was scattered by various paragraphs of the sporting pages, most of which bore the date line of an Ohio town where Bergstrom owned property.

Bergstrom began saving his salary in his minor-league days, putting every spare dollar into real estate. A manufacturer boom struck Bergstrom's home town, and the team watched him dredge ground into thousands almost overnight, and the Terrible Swede became independent of the bimonthly salary.

Two days passed, and the Swede did not appear. Instead there came a letter for Jake Myers which sent the busy man bustling after Pete Carr. "Read that!" said Myers.

Carr whistled as he glanced over the closely written page. "Why, the big-square-headed dog!" said Pete. "He says he's going to quit playing baseball! What are you wearing wooden overcoats! You dresser boom struck Bergstrom's home town, and the team watched him dredge ground into thousands almost overnight, and the Terrible Swede became independent of the bimonthly salary."

can't afford automobiles. I looked him up when I was in Selby, and that big stiff of a Swede is worth over two hundred thousand dollars and got more coming! It won't be like handling Potter or Appleton or some more of these fellows who haven't got a dollar and never will have. This fellow could buy and sell us all, and he doesn't have to pay baseball unless he wants to. Besides, he doesn't want to. He's like an old trucker, race horse; he's had enough. We've got to handle him with kid gloves good and severe will have. This fellow, Mr. Bergstrom! I had a Swede one on a team out in Iowa, and he—"

Myers mooned through the spring practice like a leading man walking through a "supper rehearsal, and Myers groaned as he watched his thousand-dollar beauty. Bergstrom was not exactly careless, but his heart was in Ohio, locked up in a safe-deposit vault. The old routine of practice bored him; not even the morning batting line could stir up a flutter of his enthusiasm.

Myers and Carr found some comfort in the fact that Bergstrom was still able to "bust" on the nose. Evidently he had not left his batting eye in Ohio. The veterans who had played with him season after season realized that something was lacking, and vainly endeavored to "kid" Bergstrom into the proper frame of mind. They might as well have tried to talk fire into the heart of an iceberg.

"Lay off of him!" warned Gibraltar Jordan. "He'll be all right as soon as the season opens. Ever see an old stove-pipe horse hanging around an engine house? Can't hardly walk until they ring that bell, but the minute the whistle blows, the old horse is right there, following the engine like a two-year-old. I'll be that way with the Swede."

The season opened at last, with the usual crashing of brass bands and hoisting of bunting. Little Sunset marched out on the field with the team when the new flag was sent aloft. When the band played the national anthem and thirty thousand men and women stood up to cheer, Gus Bergstrom found a smile within his own. "Pretty swell, ain't it, Gus?" whispered John Wesley. "They don't have nothing like this in Selby!"

"I guess not," said Carr. "He had assisted at several flag raisings during his long and honorable career, and the sight of a few dozen ball players in bright uniforms, banded and adorned with a few dollars worth of jewelry, was not new to him. He remembered to take off his cap at the proper time, but his action was purely mechanical. Gus was wondering whether it would be wiser to sell his Valley Sub-division outright or cut it up into town lots and open a real estate office of his own."

In the game which followed, the Terrible Swede got away to a flying start, smashing out a double and a triple and driving four runs across the plate.

"The old boy's there!" howled Jordan from the bench. "I know the old squabhead would be all right as soon as the season opened." The Apaches congratulated Bergstrom cautiously and with roars of English, after the fashion of ball players. "If you could only get a hit once in a while," they said, "you'd be a real ball player!" "Feel pretty good to hook one again, Gus?" said Carr. "That pitcher didn't ducked, he'd have been killed!" Bergstrom listened silently. It was all "old stuff" to him. He had heard it so very, very many times and for so many years.

Bergstrom was recalled from Ohio by a stunning impact.
