THE "OLD KIRK."

The Closing Services in "Old St. Paul's."

On Sunday Morning and Evening, Jan 3rd, 1886.

Rev. A. J. Mowatt's Sermon in the Evening.

A Historical Sketch of the Church

In Which Presbyterians of this City

Have Worshipped for the Past 55 Years.

Sunday being the last day that the Presbyterians would have service in the old kirk, Rev. J. A. Mowatt preached appropriate sermons on the occasion. In the morning he preached from Isaiah 52nd chap, 1st verse: "Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem." Both morning and evening services were solemn and impressive, and the preacher's words were listened to with marked attention. In the evening he gave a brief outline of the history of the church. His text was—

"Ye have dwelt long enough in this mount."—Deut. 1. 6.

This is what the Lord said to His people in the olden time. For a year or so they had tented at the foot of Sinai, the Holy Mount, enjoying special manifestations of the power and presence of Jehovah. There the law was given them amid clouds and darkness, thunders and lightnings, the peal of a trumpet waxing louder and louder and the voice of words. There too the Tabernacle was made and set up, and the various sacrifices and ceremonies and ordinances of religion appointed. There they enjoyed some of their most precious spiritual experiences. There they beheld the Divine glory and basked in the sunshine of the Divine love. There too, alas! they fell into most grievous sins and met with some of their sorest trials. They were thus drawn to the sacred place, and some of the people may have felt that they would like to stay there, and they may have wondered why they could not stay there. What more could they want than what they had there? They had the manna fresh from Heaven every week-day morning, and water from the rock. They had the mysterious cloud-pillar to shade them by day, and a light by night. They had God's law. They had His Tabernacle. They had the ark of the covenant. They had such else as they could desire. They had the ark of the covenant. They had such else as they could desire.

Through Mr Gilmore, of Glasgow, they called the Rev. John Birkmyre. He reached Fredericton on the 31st of October, 1832, accompanied by the Rev Robert Wilson, of St. John, who inducted him into the pastorate of the church on Sunday, the 4th of November. That was the beginning of days for St. Paul's. Dr. Birkmyre's pastorate was eminently successful. In his time the manse was built and the church enlarged. He is said to have been a gentleman and a scholar. After nine years of labor he returned to Scotland because of his wife's health, and from that he sent in his resignation which took effect on the 28th of March, 1842.

The church was vacant for some time, and calls were extended to different ministers without success before the Rev. John M. Brooke was chosen. Mr. Brooke arrived in Fredericton on the 30th of January, 1843, and twelve days after he was regularly inducted. The following account taken from the Halifax Guardian may be of interest to-night.

"On Saturday the 11th inst., the Rev. J. M. Brooke, from New Richmond, in Eastern Canada, was regularly inducted by the Presbytery of St. John, to the pastoral charge of the congregation of St. Paul's Church, Fredericton. The Synod of New Brunswick being then met in Fredericton almost all the clergymen in connection with the Church of Scotland in the Province were present at this solemn service. The Rev. W. T. Wishart, of St. Stephen's Church, St. John, presided on this occasion, and preached an eloquent and appropriate sermon from the Song of Solomon II, 16: 'My beloved is mine and I am his.' Dr. McLean, of St. Andrews, the Presbytery clerk, read the different documents relating to Mr. Brooke's translation: The questions in the formula appointed to be proposed on such occasions were put by the moderator to Mr. Brooke and satisfactorily answered, and he was then publicly and solemnly admitted to the pastoral charge of that congregation, and a suitable address delivered to him and to his people.

We are happy to learn that this is a very harmonious settlement. Mr. Brooke has for more than three years had considerable acquaintance with the colonial labor in his late charge in Eastern Canada. He has already proved himself, by his prudence, diligence and ability, a workman who needeth not to be ashamed, and we have no doubt that in his new and more enlarged sphere of usefulness, he will maintain and extend that high reputation which he has already acquired."

Such were some of the sentiments of the press of the day, and they were fully borne out by the long and successful pastorate that followed. Dr. Brooke labored for 25 years in the charge alone, from 1843 to 1868. In 1868 he began to feel the burden of the work, and the growing infirmities of years began to tell on him, and so he obtained help, and from that till 1874 he had a succession of assistant ministers. Their names are these: Revs. Messrs. Murray, McDonald, Melville, Moffatt and Halley. In 1876 the Rev. W. Caven, of Tilsonburg, Ontario, was called to be his colleague and successor, and labored for two years. Two years later I was sent for and came, and have continued by the appointment of God till the present. In 1882 I was called to the charge of St. Paul's, Fredericton.

owe, in a very important sense, to those faithful ones. And some of them still survive. We have Mrs. John McBeath, and perhaps Mrs. Lockhart and Mrs. Rosborough, and there may be others who are still with us. We give prizes to the children who have been faithful in attendance at Sabbath School for the year, and, at least, those faithful ones are worthy of honorable mention. I hope they will be able to occupy a front seat on the day of the opening of the new church, for some of them, I have no doubt, were at the opening of the old church.

Such is a brief historical outline of the years we have dwelt here, but there is a history we cannot write and cannot utter; there is a history of christian experience and church life behind all this that is seen, and known, and remembered—a history written in heaven, a history known only to God, who can tell us the joys that have been enjoyed here, the comfort and help found, the prayers answered, the groanings unutterable, the bliss like the bliss of the blessed, the heaven on earth? What sweet fellowship with the Lord here at His table! What felt nearness of the mighty Jehovah! What wrestlings for the blessing! What trials too, and triumphs of faith, the enemy of souls resisted and repelled! Faces have shone here as in God's light, and hearts have glowed in His love. Souls have been born here, born again, more than the session records reveal. Here prodigals have returned to their Father in heaven. Here backsliders have been reclaimed. Here men have repented of their sins, and set out to live for Jesus. Here noble purposes have been purposed, and grand schemes of good have been planned and shaped and worked out into holy results. If those pews and pillars and arches could speak what they have silently and stolidly witnessed, what they could tell us. Is it to be wondered at, then, if the older members are feeling sad to day because an end has come to all this hallowed history? Their feeling is that of the exiled captive. The new church will be like a foreign law to them, a sort of Babylon, and they will hardly feel like singing the old songs in it, and worshipping in the good old simple way.

By Babel's streams we sat and wept,
When Zion we thought on.
In midst thereof we hanged our harps
The willow-trees upon.
For then a song required they,
Who did us captive bring;
Our spoilers called for mirth, and said,
A song of Zion sing.

O! how the Lord's song shall we sing
Within a foreign land?
If thou, Jerusalem, I forget,
Skill part from my right hand.
My tongue to my mouth's roof let cleave,
If I do thee forget,
Jerusalem, and thee above
My chief joy do not set.

I come to speak, next, and I must be brief and pointed here, on the considerations and circumstances that have led to this solemn leave-taking to-night. And the hand of God is in it; the mouth of the Lord has spoken it: "Ye have dwelt long enough in this mount."

I have no doubt, there are not a few in the congregation who do not believe there is any other world. They do not.

something better. You may not be able to get the old people to say that the new is better. But it is better, and when they come to be in it and get somewhat used to the new order of things, they will like it; and, if they could, they would not want to go back to the past, good and grand as it may have been.

There is thus a sort of inevitable, and there is no resisting it. It is around us. It takes hold of us with its unseen might, and we are carried forward by it whether we will or not. There are men of old ideas, men wedded to the past, and they stand up against the progressiveness of the age, but might as well attempt to stand against the surge of the ocean as the surge of the ages. Nothing abides. We grow old, and die, and over our graves the new ideas plough and sow and reap. A generation comes that knows us not, and that new generation will have things to suit itself, and it is right. Every century must work out its own destiny, build its own churches, frame its own creed, do its own work for the world, and what are we that we should attempt to dictate for the generations to come? And God is in all these changes. You say, perhaps, it is our pride that has piled up that edifice out there, our folly. But the Lord God speaks, and in it all may be heard His voice, and it is ours to heed it: "Ye have dwelt long enough in this mount."

Now, a word to close with, and it is indeed hard to turn our back on all this, around these pillars memories cluster. Here we have wept. Here we have seen Jesus, and felt how gracious and merciful He was. Here we have been helped in days of trial, and have gone forth strong to renew the battle with evil, and overcome. But if God is telling us to leave the mount where we have seen so much of His love and power, then we will go, for He will go with us. But oh! we want Him to go with us, as Jacob clung to the angel, and refused to let Him go, so will we cling to the Lord our Redeemer.

This is a solemn moment. Fifty years ago more, rich with hallowed memories, crowded in upon us. Faces out of the dim and distant past seem to look down upon words of eloquence still echo uttered from lips now silent.

We hear them again to-night them in the long ago, we here, but we cannot, a br and it will soon be shrouded? Let one cry God, and you I see the old is and packing on after the is: "Ye have mount." So I books, the litt drop a tear, and us away to t responsibility door was shut

SOUTHAMPTON NOTES.

A Highway Road Greatly Improved—General News.

SOUTHAMPTON, Jan. 2.—Through the efforts of our recently appointed supervisor, Mr. George Brown, a heavy hill in the highway road in the upper part of the parish has been so improved by the addition of a new bridged road that the grade is much lighter and the distance shorter. This much needed work has been talked of for many years, and for this, as well as for many other times, the people of the parish well know how to appreciate the administration of affairs by the present Government.

Mr. Ebenezer Watson, an old and well known resident of Southampton, died a few days ago, after an illness of only three days. Mr. Watson was a cooper by trade and was known by nearly every one in the whole parish; and all his numerous acquaintances held him in high esteem. Deceased was 70 years of age.
