Close of the Debate on the Yukon Charges.

After an All-Night Session Sir Hibbert Tupper's Resolution Was Voted

Down-82 Nays to 32 Yeas [Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, June 30.-The debate on the Yukon charges closed at 3:45 a.m. The vote stood 32 for Tupper's resolution and 82 against it, a majority of 50 for the government. Richardson, Oliver and McInnes voted with Tupper, and Costigan, Stubbs and Rogers (who are included in the list of independents) voted for the government.

From the beginning of the debate until the end it was full of revelations, as minister after minister stood up and quoted from official documents to show that there was no truth in the charges which Sir Hibbert Tupper had framed, and upon which he had staked his future. Sir Louis Davies showed that the steamboat inspector, whom he was accused of having appointed after being dismissed by the late government for taking bribes, was not dismissed for this reason at all, but to satisfy the political animus of Col. Prior.

Mr. Paterson quoted from the record, and showed that there was no such collector in existence as Sir Hibbert Tupper said had taken a bribe at Tagish, and no such man as he stated had ever entered as going to the Klondike. Sir Hibbert Tupper

ADMITTED THAT HE HAD MADE

When arrested by Lewis at the Brush street depot, Brusch had on his person diamonds amounting in value to over $20,000.

The capture of Busch is the culmination of years of work on the part of the special treasury agents of the Niagara Falls district, who have been trying to stop the diamond smuggling business between Canada and the United States.

About one year ago Busch failed in the drygoods business in New York city, and made affidavit that he did not possess the $25 fee necessary accompany the petition for bank-ruptey. It is stated that he soon went into the diamond Musiness. Recently the government received information that an especially large consignment of cut diamonds would be brought over from Canada, and the special agents all along the border kept a close watch for the goods and the smugglers.

Special Agent Lewis went to Toronto, and while there came across a diamond agent of New York city. who had recently arrived from Europe. The man waited at Toronto for a confederate, and Lewis also waited. The man changed hotels, and Lewis also changed. The confederate, in the per-son of Louis Busch, soon afterwards arrived, and the agent saw the two in close communion. The agent telegraphed to Niagara Falls for an assistant, and one was sent. Lewis saw Busch take a train for Windsor, and suspecting that he had on his person the $20,000 worth of diamonds, follow-

Busch told the customs officers in Detroit that he had no dutiable goods. When he arrived at the Brush street depot. Busch tried to buy a ticket for Cleveland, when he was accosted by the special treasury agent, who asked him if he had any diamonds on his person. Busch said that he had not, and asked to be searched.

The search was conducted by Lewis and Special Agent Sullivan, and around Busch's ankles they found diamonds wrapped by the score, aye, the hundred. Busch declared that he did not know that they were there, on the charge of robbing the government of a large duty. The gems, about two hands full, were weighed and tested at Wright. Kay & Co.'s yesterday afternoon. It was stated that at retail the diamonds would readily sell for $20.000 as nearly all of them are of States Commissioner Graves yester-day afternoon and his case was set for July 10. He was locked up again in default of $5,000 bail. Busch says that he has a family in New York, and that he did not know that he was violating the law.

The Only Personal Charge Is Refuted.

Sir Hibbert Made a Mistake-An All Night Session.

Ottawa, June 30 .- Mr. Sifton yesterday made his reply to Sir Charles H. Tupper's charges, and it was conceded that he did it very effectively. Speaking of Mr. Ogilvie and of Sir Hibbert's frequent reference to the fact | that Mr. Ogilvie is connected with him by marriage, being the husband of his wife's aunt, he created a good deal of laughter by saying that he had never seen Mr. Ogilvie till after he had become a member of the government, that he had to be introduced to him when they happened to meet at Vancouver. He went on to state what the government had done since it first undertook to manage the Yukon, and made an exceedingly strong point by showing that whereas all the charges of corruption made by the so-called Miss Lillie Smelt was married on Miners' Association, by the Klondike Tuesday at Woodstock to Mr. J. G. Nugget, by opposition papers in East-Archibald, of the Woodstock Bicycle ern Canada, by Miss Flora Shaw, of the London Times, who, of course, spoke from hearsay, and by others, related to events which had taken place prior to August 25, 1898, the date of the miners' memorial formulating a case against the officials; yet when Mr. Ogilvie came upon the scene and opened his inquiry, neither the Miners' Association nor The Nugget editors were able to produce for investigation any charge wor- district. thy of the name, although every farm in the 3th con. of Malahide, to theless, to institute a judicial inquiry, W. H. Ashton, of the 2nd con, for $15,- if, after the receipt of Malahide, to the state of Malahide, the state of Malahide, to the state of Malahide, to the state of Malahide, opportunity was given report with the accompanying testimony, it should appear that he has not thoroughly exhausted the subject. It would be impossible, of course, for any government to order a judicial inquiry into many of the matters contained in Mrs. Brown, giving her as security what she thought was a $50 bill. She Sir Hibbert's motion. He charges, amongst other things, that the governcan neither read nor see well. It was ment was derelict in its duty, appointed unfit persons, that it followed a wrong policy with respect to this question or that. Obviously the conduct of the government cannot be passed upon by judges; that is a duty which devolves upon parliament, and which parliament could not delegate without violating the first principle of our parliamentary system.

> THE ONLY PERSONAL CHARGE. It will be remembered that the only charge of personal nature brought against the ministry my Sir Hibbert was the charge that Mr. Sifton had been "guilty of favoritism and partially in the administration of the laws and regulations of the Yukon." By way of establishing this, Sir Hibbert in his formal motion set forth that Mr. Sifton had granted a number of dredging leases, etc., to his former partners, A. E. Philp and A. D. Cameron, and proceeded to copy from a public return (No. 83) the description of the mining areas so leased. It was upon this evidence that he charged a minister of the crown with maladministration, but, as shown in these dispatches yesterday, Sir Hibbert had jumped at the conclusion that because in this public return these applications stood in the name of Mr. Sifton's for-mer partners, the minister must have granted them; whereas the return sets forth, as shown in each and every case, that the applications had been unsuccessful, and that Mr. Sifton's old partners had got nothing from him of from the department. Holding Sir Hibbert's motion in one hand, return No. 83 in the other, Mr. Sifton made a dramatic and crushing denial of this, the only charge which Sir Hibbert had leveled at the personal honor of the minister. There were loud and long cheers from the government benches.

ALL NIGHT SESSION. Mr. Sifton was followed by Mr. Foster, Sir Louis Davies, Mr. McNeill and Hon. Wm. Paterson. At 2 a.m. the house was still in session.

It was superb! beautiful! inspiring! exhilarating! that finish. There are no adjectives to describe it. It brought the grand stand to its feet and made the fans throw their hats in the air, and spoil their voices with frantic

It was the Chathams' game all the way until the last half of the ninth. The Londons did manage to get a lead of one run in the fifth inning, but a wild throw to second by Lohman, in Chatham's sixth inning, tied the score. Then in the seventh, Nordyke hit to center field, and Crawford, after Lohman had misjudged an easy high foul, sent the ball into the remote, grass-grown, corner, and Nordyke and Crawford came home, while Schwartz was hunting fourleaf clovers of Sanders' high fly to Howells in the eighth inning, gave the Reds two more runs, increasing their lead to four. The Cockneys' eighth was a blank. The Reds' ninth closed with the bases but no runs scored. At this point a number of the spectators went home, feeling certain that the game was too far gone for any material change to be made in the score. Hagerman had been strong and steady, and a hard puzzle for the Cockneys throughout. They couldn't get the ball beyond the infield.

Then came that dazzling finish. Lohman began the music with a twobagger to right field; Crow hit safely to left, Crawford dropped the ball, Mohler drove a grounder clear through Ziegler, and the bases were full. Howell was hit by a pitched ball, forcing Lohman in; with McFadden at bat Crow tried to come home on a passed ball, but was caught at the plate. Nordyke's poor throw of McFadden's grounder again filled the bases; Babbit drew a pass, and Mohler walked home, leaving the bases still full; Nordyke was very wroth, and began to say things to Umpire England. He kept on saying them until he was put out of the game, Reid coming in to third, and Cross going out to center field; Jones was at bat, and three balls and two strikes had been called on him. Charley took the next one and placed it beyond the track in left field. Those three men on bases came in and the game was won. The faithful fans went into ecstacles of delight, and the Chatham players still held their positions in the field, unable to believe that this thing could be. Even Pete Lohman had to pinch himself to make sure it wasn't only a happy dream. The score: LONDON.

With regard to the challenge issued by the Imperial Baseball Club, the Olives desire to state that they "will not accept any challenge whatever from their club until they assure the Olives that they will have their men on the grounds before 7:45 p.m., and not ask another inning at 8:45, when the umpire says it is too dark, and that they will not blame the Olives for any mismanagement of their own affairs. We play ball as it should be played, for fun only. Why should we be afraid to lose?"

FOR THE FANS. In Cleveland, when a man plays unusually well, the papers say he is playing for release. Ball players usually guard their fav-orite bats carefully, but Lajole, the greatest of sluggers, is careless. After making that heavy hit, which knock-ed the cover completely off the ball, at Cleveland, he handed his bat to a friend, who wanted it as a souvenir. President Andrew Freedman has paid into the National League treasury the $500 fine imposed on him for allowing his club to leave the field in the game with Brooklyn on June 16. Brooklyn made a request for the money. In paying it Freedman gave notice of appeal to the board of directors. No request has been received from St. Louis for the fine money, where New York forfeited a game under similar circumstances.

Cleveland Steamer Went Down and Nine Persons Drowned.

The Gale Blew 60 Miles an Hour-Fishermen's Narrow Escape.

Chicago, June 29 .- The steamer Margaret Olwill, owned by L. P. Smith, of Cleveland, went down in the storm off Lorain, Lake Erie, last night, and nine persons were lost, including Capt. John Brown, his wife and son, and Miss Baldwin, a passenger. The Olwill, of 554 tons, was bound from Keeley's Islands to Cleveland, with limestone. Her cargo, listing in the heavy sea, sent her down by the stern.

Seaman Coyle was picked up by the steamer State of Ohio. John Smith, mate, Alex. McRae, and Engineer Schenkle were picked up by the steamer Sacramento and taken to Lorain. COYLE'S STORY.

According to Coyle's story the steamer left Kelley's Island at 6 o'clock Wednesday night, bound for Cleveland, with a cargo of stone. There was little or no wind, and everything was favorable for a pleasant trip. At 8 o'clock the wind began to blow from the northwest, and the boat began to go at a lively clip. At 1 o'clock the gale commenced, and the wind blew at the rate of 50 miles an hour. Capt. Brown found that the boat was making little headway, and concluded that the only thing to do was to turn back and go with the storm. It was 2 o'clock when the captain gave the order to turn about. The vessel had turned half-way round, when the rudder chain parted, and in an instant

AT THE MERCY OF THE STORM. She was caught between two waves, and as she was borne along the top of one of them she rolled over on her side. The cabins were torn loose and floated on the water, while the rest of the ship went to the bottom. Coyle caught hold of part of the after-cabin, climbed upon it, and held on. wheelman was clinging to a part of the same cabin. Capt. Willoughby, of the steamer State of Ohio, slighted the wreckage about 5:15 in the morning directly in the course from Cleveland to Toledo. The big steamer immediately put into service her life-saving crew, and after sailing around for an hour and a half Coyle was rescued.

Heffron was thrown a line, but he was too weak to take hold of it, and went down in the presence of a large crowd on board the steamer. Coyle was more dead than alive when taken in. GALE BLEW SIXTY MILES AN HOUR.

Detroit, June 29.-The steamer City of Cleveland did not arrive in Detroit until after 8 o'clock this morning, on account of the fierce storm that prevailed on Lake Erie last night, which Capt. Archie McLachlan says was the worst he ever experienced at this season of the year. "The gale blew 60 miles an hour," said he, "and the waves almost reached the pilot house. The channel below South steamer weathered the storm all right, but we had a large crowd of passengers to look out for, so we turned tail to it and went around through the Island, to avoid the heavy seas that we would have encountered in the passage around the Dummy. This gave in the trough of the sea. This roundabout course accounted for our being so late, but it was the safer one, and

AT HAMILTON.

Hamilton, June 30.-It is a good many years since summer residents at the Beach saw such a sea as that of Wednesday on old Lake Ontario. A hurricane blew all day from the west by northeast, and towards the middle of the afternoon it became very violent. The waves broke right across the plers and the spray splashed to the top of the lighthouse. FISHERMEN'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Niagara, Ont., June 30.—Albert, John, William and Charlie Ball, Barry Patterson, Charles Bishop and Ted Bissell, all fishermen of this place, had a very narrow escape from drowning yesterday afternoon. While out in the lake picking up their nets they were suddenly struck by a heavy easterly squall. Bishop, Bissell and Patterson were unable to make the shore here, and were driven into Port Dalhousie, where, after a hard struggle, they managed to make a landing. Albert, John and William Ball succeeded in reaching here safely. The life-saving station of Fort Niagara picked up Charlie Ball, a lad of 15 years, and took his skiff in tow. While off Chautauqua Point Ball's and the life-savers' boats collided. The former sunk and the latter was stove in. The occu-pants all reached the shore safely.

Managing Director John Cameron

London, Friday, June 30, 1899.

Roosevelt Rebuked. Governor Roosevelt, ardent soul, has been preaching a gospel which cut gainst the peaceful grain of Prof. Coldwin Smith. That master of the en takes up his favorite weapon against the man of the sword and castigates him gracefully, through the columns of the Independent. He says that Governor Roosevelt's doctrine appears to be that the force of national character must suffer by prolonged peace-"swollen slothful ease"-and can be preserved only by "strenuous endeavor," which the professor takes to be a euphemism for war. The professor holds it does not appear to be true that nations, so long as their governments are good, their habits healthy, their sports manly and their feelings patriotic, have any tendency to lose their force in peace. Germany had been externally at peace, with the inconsiderable exception of the Scheswig-Holstein affair, for nearly half a century when, under Bismarck and Moltke, she put forth in her wars with Austria and France such force as the world has seldom seen. Great Britain had been at peace for nearly 40 years when she went into the Crimean war, and though, at the outset, her war department was out of gear, her military energy did not fail her on the Alma or at Inkerman. The people of the United States had been at peace, with the not very considerably exception of the Mexican war, for 45 years, before the outbreak of the war of secession, in which the military qualities shown upon both sides were as high, and the fighting was as desperate as in any war in history. On the other hand, it was after a long period of incessant tonic. The writer adds: "Governor Roosevelt tells you that unless you take to the life of strenuous endeavor "bolder and stronger people will pass you by and win for them selves the domination of the world. Why is the world to be given over to anybody's domination? Why cannot we all be content with our own and allow each other to grow in freedom Why should there not continue to be a community of nations, peacefully co-operating and vying with each other in the promotion of the general objects of Humanity? The domination of the Anglo-Saxon race is just now the prevailing aspiration. Might not the attempt to establish it provoke all the other nations to combine their forces for the liberation of the world?

wars that both Spain and Italy sank into decrepitude. Professor Smith quotes further from history to show that war is by no means a national

Who has said or thought that the American people were 'an assembly of well-to-do hucksters, sitting huddled within their borders? One onlooker at all events thought they were exg over an almost boundless territory and bidding fair, with their material advantages, to lead mankind in the march of improvement, and redress in some measure the sad inequalities of the human lot. The war of secession was at all events not 'huckstering.' Governor Roosevelt lends color to the injurious surmise that an uneasy self-consciousness and a restless desire to be on a par with the great military powers of the old world were at the bottom of this sudden transformation. Napoleon took England for a nation of shop-keepers and formed his plans on that hypothesis, with what result is well known."

Prof. Smith complains that there seems to have come over us a satiety of civilization. He points out such signs as the revival of the lust of war, of such barbarous practices as duelling, and such sports as prize-fighting and bull-fighting-the latter about to be imported into France. If we want to keep war as indispensable to national virility, and at the same time to mitigate its horrors, he jocularly suggests the old system of wager of battle as a way which cannot fail to commend itself to the burning valor of Governor Roosevelt.

"Instead of general slaughter and havoc, let each of the two nations between which the dispute has arisen, detail a certain number of champions to decide the question of combat in the lists. The United States would certainly choose as their champions Gov-ernor Roosevelt and his Rough Riders, whose triumph would be not less assured than their selection. Upon the return of the victors there would be such receptions and processions, such kissing and hugging of heroes, such complimentary dinners at $100 the plate as the world has not seen since Cain, to counteract the effects, of 'ignoble ease' and furnish the necessary tonic for his virility, made war on his brother Abel."

The Movement of Gold.

The depletion of the gold reserve of The Bank of England is puzzling British financiers. The Bank of England used to be the gold box of the world, while the United States was frequently on the ragged edge of a currency crisis, through the scarcity of the yellow metal in that country, aggravated by bad monetary laws. Now the position is reversed, and the United States is the largest gold-holding country in the world. This has been largely brought about by the revival of prosperity and the enormous trade balance last year, the excess of exports over imports being $725,000,000. A great deal of this excess was employed in reducing American debts in Europe, but the imports of gold into the United States exceeded the exports last year by at least $100,-900,000. This undoubtedly was a serious drain on the Bank of England. The tide is now turning, and the United States is shipping · gold to Europe, though not in great quantities. This is better for Europe, which needs the metal, and for the United States, which can spare it. Those who understand the delicate but vital relations of gold to the trade and commerce of the world, know that a nation may be injured by having too much of the metal. as well as too little. As the British

One beneficent result of the plethora of gold in the United States is the blow it gives the silver heresy. The principal thesis of the silverites-that the scarcity of gold and its consequent appreciation of value were the causes of low prices and hard times-has been overturned by present conditions. As a campaign issue, "Sixteen to One" is dead at this moment. Only one eventuality-hard times-will revive it before the next election, and hard times are not in sight. Bryan will probably train his heaviest guns on the trust evil instead of the "money power" in General Hutton, since leaving the London camp, has been at the Niagara camp, and is now going to the Laprairie camp. He is the most distinguished camp-follower on record.

The Free Press quotes from a number of Liberal papers, which condemn the wrong-doing in West Elgin. It is a good sign that Liberal papers do condemn corruption in the Liberal ranks. If the press of both parties would act vigorously on the same principle, there would be more hope of stamping out the evil on both sides.

Fir Charles Tupper leaves for England on July 20. The inference is that the Opposition will permit Parliament to be prorogued before that date. The last time Sir Charles left the House for a few days there was confusion worse confounded in the Opposition ranks, and the veteran leader, upon returning, had to disavow the tactics of his lieutenants. He will hardly risk leaving them alone a second time

Mr. D. S. Mitchell has exhibited a most marked civic patriotism by offering to the public library at Sydney, New South Wales, a collection of books, manuscripts, engravings, etc., valued at the lowest estimate at about half a million dollars. Is there any citizen of London willing to follow this good example? If so, let him imitate this Australian Carnegie, and thus enjoy the luxury of doing good

The Eastern Telegraph Company has begun the fight against the Pacific cable scheme by protesting against state competition with private enterprise. This is corporate cheek with a vengeance. The Eastern Company is a state monopoly of the worst kind, since the British Government is under a penalty to secure the Eastern line from competition. It is reassuring to note that the Eastern Company's protest has received a rather frigid recognition from British Cabinet Minis-

"Bye-elections unfortunately are not in this country much of a gauge as regards the trend of public opinion. The 1898 Conservatives kept winning bye-elections up to the eve of their defeat in the general election of 1896.—Ottawa Journal.

Our contemporary is not often astray in its facts, but here it undoubtedly is. The fact is that prior to the election of 1896 the Conservative Government sustained serious losses, not only in the constituencies but through defections in the House of Commons. Its majority, which ranged from 45 to over 60, in the year following the general election, fell in the last session to about 40, some times even less. It is entirely different with the present Government. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's following has been augmented in both the House and the constituencies by accessions from the ranks of his op-

Now You've Got Me.

[Christian Guardian.] It reminds us of an incident reported in class meeting last Sabbath morning. A venerable member of St. Paul's Methodist Church, Toronto, was visiting relatives in an American town in the Niagara district, near the border. On a recent Sabbath morning, while walking through the streets, he found business going on much as usual, and was somewhat surprised to be accosted by a merchant, with a request to purchase some goods. After moment's reflection, the Canadian Methodist asked: "What day of the week do you observe as Sabbath here?" To which he received the following somewhat significant reply: "Now you've got me."

THE "TIMES" ON CANADA

The Thunderer on the Prosperity of the Dominion. [From the London Times.]

The lean years have gone by, and there is reason to hope that British communities in different parts of the world are entering upon a period of fat years. This is the summary of the financial and industrial position which reaches us from the various groups of self-governing colonies.

First in the prosperous list stands Canada, where the fiscal year ends on June 30, and Mr. Fielding, the Dominion minister of finance, was able, in making his budget speech the other estimate the surplus of 1898-99 at $4,600,000, or not far short of £1,-000,000. The revenue for the year, assuming that the estimates of receipts for the last three months are well-founded, will be $46,632,398, and the expenditure will amount to $42,026,028. This is a substantial advance on the revenue of last year, which amounted to $40,555,238; and the advance in expenditure which for 1897-98 amounted to $38,832,525, though considerable, is quadrupled by the receipts. In addition to the expenditure from income in the Dominion there is every year for purposes of railways, canals and other public works and services a further expenditure from capital account. This expenditure amounted last year to $8,-666,795. Allowing for the deduction of the surplus and the outlay for sinking found estimated in the regular expenditure, the net increase to the public debt of Canada will this year be $1,-700,000. It was last year $2,417,802. In every particular the year shows a better result than last year. Yet last year was also good, and to obtain the full value of a comparison, it is well to take a longer period:

Expenditure. Net Inc. Revenue. Con. Fund. of Debt. 1894 36,374,693 37,585,025 4,501,989 38,132,005 6,891,897 36,949,142 5,422,505 33,978,129 ... 36,618,591 37,829,778 38,349,759 1899 46,632,398 42,026,028 1,700,006

The present Liberal administration came into office in the course of the fiscal year ending 1897. They reap, therefore, the full advantage of the prosperity of the last few years, and not unnaturally claim some credit for the happy state of their finances. Good harvests and the better prices ruling in the markets of the world for the staple produce of the colonies have, of course much to do with the prosperity of Canada, as well as with that of Australia, to which allusion will presently be made. But there is something to be attributed to the increase of local enterprise which has resulted from or accompanied these conditions. development of wheat-farming and cattle-breeding on the prairies, and the opening of new productive mineral districts have helped to swell the total of Canadian foreign trade, as well as to increase the demand made by one part of the Dominion upon the produce and industry of the others. In the years which have been quoted the mineral production of Canada rose, in round figures, from an annual total of $19,000,000 to $38,000,000. The actual increase of animal and agricultural products is more difficult to arrive at, but It has very greatly increased, and the number of farming homesteads taken up on government lands in Manitoba has grown from 2,406 in 1897 to 4,848 in 1898. Along the course of the rail-

GLENDOWER-" I can call spirits from the vasty deep." Hotspur-" Why, so can I, or so can any man. "But will they come when you do

call for them ?"-SHAKESPEARE. How quickly Hotspur's wise and witty retort tears the tragic mantle in which Glendower stalks, and shows beneath the seer's robe, the motley of the mountebank. Most people would have taken the Welchman at his word, and called him seer, without noting the difference between to call and to command. Certain points of comparison are suggested between Glendower's tragic claim and the comic claim made in some specious advertisements. "I am a woman, I know all about woman. I understand woman, and I can cure woman because I am a woman." The modern Mrs. Hotspur puts her finger right on the weak spot of that clamorous claim by saying:

"Why if you can cure woman simply because you are a woman, then so can I and so can any woman." Which very plainly brings out the common sense fact that the cure of diseases does not depend upon being a man or being a woman but does depend upon being a trained and experienced physician. There is, as far as is known, no qualified woman physician associated with any proprietary medicine firm. It is certain that there is no one, man or woman, who can show an experience or record equal to that of Dr. R. V. Pierce; more than thirty years of treatment of women's diseases with ninety-eight per cent. cured out of more than half-a-million women treated. way lately constructed through the Crow's Nest Pass of the Rocky Mountains into the mineral districts of Southern British Columbia, new towns are described as having "sprung up like mushrooms in a warm shower." In the Yukon district, where two and a half years ago there was a population of a few hundred persons, there are now upwards of 30,000, and the Atlin gold fields in the northern territory of British Columbia bid fair to rival the Klondike in their wealth. The eastern and Maritime Provinces contribute their share to the general total. The annual reports of the boards of trade of Toronto, Montreal, St. John and Halifax give satisfactory accounts of the condition of affairs in the provinces for which they speak. The result of the general activity, though fectly summarized by export and import returns, is yet very perceptible in the fact that in the years for which the figures of revenue and expenditure have been given, the total of Canada's foreign trade has risen from _10,000,-000 to $304,000,000. It is the first time in her history that Canada has touched or even approached a total of $300,000,-000, but Mr. Fielding, in estimating the prospects of the coming year, antici-

By an American Trust-How It Works in Montreal.

[Montreal Witness.] An incident strongly illustrative of the change in business methods caused by the establishment of trusts in the United States and the effect thereof on Canada occurred in this city within the present week. A represent-ative of the amalgamated wire trust being in town, the members of the Hardware Merchants' Association held a conference with him as to terms and prices for supplying the trade here. He gave them to understand without circumlocution that prices were fixed, without possibility of abatement, according to the company's schedule for cash at thirty days. That was all he had to say, and the hardware men had no recourse but to comply. Nor indeed have they any interest in objecting, as it is the consumer, and not they, who pays the price thus arbitrarily imposed by a foreign mo-nopoly. It is worth noting that this company is capitalized at ninety million dollars, and owns not only all the wire manufacturing plants in the United States, but also owns iron mines, makes the pig iron and converts it into steel billets. In fact, it controls the whole business from the ground up all over the continent, for Canada has no concern that can compete with it, and no hope of establishing one. Like conditions prevail in other lines of manufacture controlled by trusts, but this is the first instance where the foot of a United States monopoly has come down flat on the GROWTH OF FOREIGN MAILS. In 1840 the foreign mail from England for the United States, carried on the Great Western consisted of two sacks of mail. As late as 1873 a steamer from Europe, with 20,000 letters on board, was considered a record-breaker. Today the Cunard steamers and other transatlantic ships carrying what is called a "full European mail," usually brings some two hundred thousand letters, and an average of three hundred sacks of newspapers and printed matter for New York city, not to mention the five hundred and odd sacks for Canada, Mexico and transpacific countries, and a few United States exchange offices, which are now taken direct to the trains and not handled at the New York office.-E. The Circus.

Like some fantastic dream city, the big show has come and gone, barbaric in its splendor, meteoric in its swift passage, bewildering in its incongruous medley of all things rare and wonderful, and admirable in its perfection of system and administration. In this, the age of specialization, nothing seems to have been more highly specialized than the circus. All other forms of popular entertainment seem to "have their day and cease to be." But the time has not yet come to write the story of the passing of the circus. Year by year the crowds grow larger and year by year the indefatigable circus magnates find new and more marvelous attractions.

The attendance at both performances of the Forepaugh-Sells Show yester-day is estimated at about 12,000. The show was all that could be desired. At least it was more than any two people could see. The equestrian, aerial and acrobatic performances in progress simultaneously in three rings was calculated to keep the spectators in a delightful tremor of excitement lest they should be continually missing the best things.

The living pictures, representing classic groups of statuary, with which the performance opened were ex-quisitely done. The old reliable clowns were reinforced by fin de seicle rubes and hoboes. The burlesque band and the burlesque prize-fight made decided hits. The trained ponies, horses, elephants and bears were better than ever. But the great feature of the ring show was Capt. Woodward's collection of trained seals and sea-lions. These awkward amphibians showed an intelligence almost human. They smoked cigars, played a variety of musical instruments, showed an utter disregard of fire, the terror of all animals, and did everything but talk. Indeed, one of them made a very fair attempt at that. It was an uncanny exhibition. Some dissatisfaction was created by an excess charge in some cases for general admission tickets. Some peocomplain that though the price of admission was advertised at 50 cents the ticket seller made them pay 60 cents. Such petty impositions should be sharply dealt with by the Forepaugh-Sells management, as their success depends on a reputation for fairness and honesty.

FOR TRIAL

Cahill and McDonald To Be Tried for Assault and Robbery.

Stolen Watch Gave the Clue-Mr. Clark Dying of Paralysis-Police Court Notes.

When the police court opened this morning the case of Frank Cahill and John McDonald, charged with assaulting and robbing Charles Clark, was resumed. Annie Clark sister of Mr. Clark, who lived with him, sworn, remembered the night of the assault very well. She had left Mr. Clark at about 9 o'clock to go to bed. There was nothing the matter with him then. She did not see him again until 6 o'clock the next morning, when she found him covered with blood, lying on the floor of his room. Cross-examined by Mr. McPhillips, witness said she had missed a watch and $35. Some papers were also missed. The only person that had been at the house during that evening was an old man named Hueston, cutting wood. She found the front door unlocked in the morning.

Alb et E. Cooper, watchmaker, identiffed the watch produced in court as the one he had sold Clark. He knew it by his entry and the number of the watch. Police Constable Johnson had heard of the robbery on the Monday after the assault. He had seen Cahill and Mc-Donald on Richmond street on the night of the assault. Cross-examined, he said he had made entry of this fact. P. C. Thomson was on duty on Richmond street. He saw the prisoners on the night of the assault about 8 o'clock near the Western Hotel. He again passed them between John and Lichfield streets. He followed the prisoners to Oxford street, and saw them turn east. It was about 8:30 when he last saw them going east. Cross-examined, he did not make an attempt to arrest the two men, and he did not know that they were suspected of having committed the assault.

P. C. Smith heard of the robbery some days after it occurred. He had seen Cahill on Saturday (the night of the assault) with a young man whom he thought was the prisoner McDonald, but he could not be positive. He saw them in the vicinity of Addaide and Pall Mall streets. They were going south at the time, and would be about five blocks away from Ckirk's house. Cross-examined, he had made no entry in his book, but thought it queer that the prisoners should be going south, when he knew they lived farther north. When asked, he told Mr. McPhillips that he did not know where either of the men lived except by hearsay. It was about 10:15 when he saw them.

P. C. McDonald met the prisoners on the night of the assault in front of the Duke of York Hotel, on Dundas street, East London, about 10:30. He saw them later coming north on Rectory street, about 11 o'clock. Cahill asked him (Mc-Donald) if there would be another Pottersburg car that night. In a couple of minutes the car came along and the two prisoners got aboard and went east. This was the last he saw of them. Cross-examined, he said he had known prisoners for several years. They did not try to evade him in any way.

James C. Stewart, a nephew of Mr. Clark, identified the watch as that of his uncle. Cross-examined, he stated that he paid Mr. Clark $35 some two or three days before the assault. Mr. McPhillips-You have heard the old man speak of the assault? Witness—Yes, sir. Mr. McPhillips-Did you ever hear him accuse the prisoners? Witness-No, sir.

Mr. McPhillips-Did you hear him accuse anyone else? Witness-Yes, at times, when his mind was wandering.

Mr. McPhillips-Very often? Witness-Yes, quite often. Mr. McPhillips-Who is the man he accused? Mr. McKillop, prosecuting attorney, objected to the name or names being given, and the magistrate upheld his Mr. McPhillips-Did he say anything when in his right mind? Witness—He said he could nothing that happened that night. Witness also said that notes to the amount of $600 were missing, and had not been found. This closed the case for the prosecution. The prisoners were remanded for trial at the assizes. Clark is suffering from a paralytic stroke and is unconscious most of the time. The doctors do not think his recovery possible.

Charles Myers and Maurice Baldwin were charged with allowing their horses to run at large in the streets. They were allowed to go with a warning. C. H. Going, sign-painter, was charged with keeping his wagon and ladders inside the boulevard on the street. He was allowed to go on condition that the offense would not be repeated.

J. Smith, R. Watson and S. Burns, vagrants, were allowed to go. Burns and Watson will be escorted out of were charged with breach of the bylaw regarding putting banners across the streets. The charges were withdrawn. Patrick Tierney, charged with stealing leather from Hyman's tannery, was remanded until Tuesday.

Municipal Franchises.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Without expressing any opinion on the very valuable and feasible suggestions of Mr. B. B. Osler, Q.C., in his paper on "Municipal Franchises," in the April number of the Canada Law Journal, No. 209, I venture to disagree as a matter of law with his statement that "the great practical difficulty is the fact that nearly all the franchises are now outstanding in the hands of corporations, holding some for long terms of years, some indefinitely;" and to submit that a municipal franchise is a local law, subject to revision or repeal at the will of the council, like any other bylaw of a municipal corporation within its jurisdiction, and, therefore, that no practical difficulty exists in the adoption of his suggestions or modifications of them. The franchise of a street railway company granted by a municipal corporation, has no more legal effect or binding force against the public interests of the municipal corporation than the franchise of a bank against the public interests of the Dominion. I apprehend it cannot be disputed that it is within the power of the Dominion Parliament to revoke or revise all or any bank charters heretofore granted. The fact that municipal franchise by-laws are nominally confirmed by acts of the Provincial Legislature does not make such franchises of any greater validity. The legislature in doing so, acts ultra vires, as its jurisdiction, by the written Canadian and unwritten British constitution, is to enact laws for the whole of the province, not for any particular local municipality. The confirmation by the legislature is a nullity as legislation. Similar confirmation of a local municipal bylaw by the Dominion or Imperial Parliament would not be any more effective. The Anglo-Saxon law of free people is the will, constitutionally expressed by the representatives of the people, to governed by such law, and hence the establishment of municipal institutions or corporations in Canada and the United States, as a constitutional necessity for the enactment and enforcement of local laws, which otherwise could not be enacted by constitutional authority. If municipal laws were made other than by the local authority, such laws would be paternal or despotic, and made by an authority ir-responsible to the people, contrary to all modern Anglo-Saxon ideas of freedom. That a law made by a legislative body will not bind its successor is self-evident, and it therefore follows that a municipal council granting a franchise can only do so absolutely, if at all, for its term of office, and conditionally for a longer period, provided the terms of the franchise continue to be acceptable to the council, thus representing the municipality. The fran-chise contract is a trustee contract, on the part of the council, and if not impliedly or expressly ratified by their successors in office, may be repealed or revised by any succeeding council.

It may be that the law of the land would require a return of part of the consideration when valuable consideration had been paid to the municipality, although even that consequence does not necessarily follow, as the grantees of this franchise would have received from the council all that it could legally The logical result is that a municipal franchise is subject to repeal or revision at any time, and that the prospective profits of the corporation holding it are not assets for which any claims could be made against the municipality annulling the franchise. By constitutional law, under the distribu-DOMINION DAY. tion of powers of government in Can- about $.5, the amount being forwarded to Komoka Branch No. 109, U. B. R. T., cipality has exclusive jurisdiction to make local laws, which are of the same force locally as provincial, state or federal laws are territorially. The city of Detroit appears to be acting upon this view of the legal aspect of a franchise, indicated by Mr. Osler, in that the commission of which Gov. Pingree the commission of which Gov. Pingree the commission of Wichigan, to acquire the I. O. F. service last Sunday, was the commission of Michigan, to acquire the I. O. F. service last Sunday, was the commission of Michigan, to acquire the commission of Michigan, to acquire the commission of Michigan, to acquire the commission of the commi pect that their value be measured by what it can be reasonably determined the present owners would realize from them above operating expenses, fixed charges, etc., during the lives of existing franchises, reducing the gross amount of such net earnings by such a sum as will equal a proper discount for determining present worth." The citizens of Detroit are no more morally or legally called upon to buy back the franchises from the company than the owner in fee simple of a piece of land would be to buy up the unexpired terms of a fifty-year lease granted by the tenant for a year. A franchise, whether imperial, federal, provincial or municipal, for any term, long or short, is subject to the inherent right of the legislative body having jurisdiction over the subject matter, to revoke or revise it in the public interests, without compensation for prospective profits to be derived therefrom, which profits, in deed, would be in most conceivable cases the chief reason for interfering with the franchise.

The Detroit case may be used as a precedent in Canada, where municipal ownership appears to be coming to the front if it is not already the municipal question of the day. The legal aspect of municipal franchises must necessarily be considered as a question of constitutional law from the standpoint of principles and not of precedents, because of their absence, if for no other reason, although the principle of municipal self-government has been estab-lished by precedent on this side of the Atlantic, and appears to be recognized in Great Britain, where historical tradition and customs present seeming difficulties to the application of modern inceptions of responsible government. Whatever may be the merits of muniipal ownership, as a matter of practical politics I submit there can be no doubt but that municipal franchises are subject to municipal control as a matter of constitutional municipal law. COOK CAN'T SPOIL.

drape-Nuts Need No Cooking and the Flavor Is Assured.

People want food that has a palatable, toothsome taste, and one that will recall a pleasant taste whenever the name is mentioned. That feature is a strong one in Grape-Nuts, the new breakfast food, made by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. No cooking is required, hence the taste is not dependent upon the cook, but is just what the makers intended

"WHEN IN DOUBT TELL THE TRUTH"

Humorous Advice Given by Mark Twain to a London Club-He Learned to Speak Impromptu. London, June 30 .- Mark Twain, the celebrated American author, delivered a humorous sketch at the dinner given in his honor by the United Friars Club in the Hotel Cecil. In responding to the toast, "Our Guest, Friar Mark Twain," he said that he did not know what the vow of the friars was. He did not care what it was. He had made thousands of vows. There was no pleasure comparable to making a vow in the presence of men who appreciated it and admired one for making it. There was only one pledge higher than that, and that was to get outside and break that vow. (Laughter.) A vow was always a pledge of some kind for the protection of one's own or somebody else's morals. Hence they had pledges to make them eschew tobacco and wine, and when they were making a pledge of that kind they felt they could never be so happy in this world again until they got outside and took a drink. (Laughter.) He did not know anything so bad as having to make an after-dinner speech. If the proposer said something severe, if he would deride one or traduce one he would furnish a text, because anyone could get up and talk against that; anybody could get up and straighten out his own character-(laughter)but when a gentleman got up merely told the truth what could be said? (Laughter.) It was difficult to choose from the texts which he had furnished. He saw present his master in the art of oratory of 25 years ago, Mr. Depew, and there was also Mr. Choate. They would notice that when they three were absent there was a pleasant tranquility in America—a building up of public confidence. that the evidence of two witnesses

They were doing the best for their country. He thought they had spent their lives in serving their country, and they never served it to so good advantage as when they were out of advantage as when they were out of it. (Laughter.) The speaker then gave a humorous description of how he had learned to make "impromptu" speeches by preparing them carefully a week beforehand—writing them out, hearth and after. learning them by heart, and afterwards handing a printed copy to the press. (Laughter.) He did not want to sit down without saying something He had said nothing that would make them better than when they came there. He would, therefore, to say one serious word which they could carry home to their child-ren and the old people who were not able to come. Let them take this as a legacy from him: "When in doubt a legacy from him: "Wh tell the truth." (Cheers.)

council and the striking employes of the street railway company held a conference at the city hall this morning. It was thought better to carry on the negotiations privately, so that reporters were not present. The meeting lasted from 11:30 till 1:30. From Chairman Parnell it was learned after the meeting that the discussion had been chiefly regarding the civic committee's proposition made last night and which was in effect asking the men to forego their demands for recognition of the union, provided the company would meet a committee of its employes and discuss all grievances, past present or future, and failing satisfactory adjustment of the same, the men to have the power to refer them to arbitration, as provided by the Ontario act, the decision of the arbiters to be final. In reply the men said they were prepared to agree not to ask the company to recognize their association as a part of the Amalgamated Association of America. They were willing to strike out of clause 1 of their proposed agree-ment the words "Amalgamated Association of America." They were also willing that clause 2 should read, "All conductors and motormen employed by the said company after 30 days' said company, shall become members of the association." With regard to the proposal to take back some of the men, the strikers would not consent to anything unless all were to be taken back. PRESIDENT MAHON HERE. Mr. W. D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, arrived in the city this morning from Detroit, and was present at the conference between the strikers and the special committee of the council. Speaking of the Cleveland strike, he said the outcome was quite satisfactory to the men. They had a pile of grievances, and all were adjusted. The impression that they were striking solely for recognition of the union was incorrect, he said. A change had been made in the schedule, which reduced the number of runs. By the settlement the men got back to their old runs, and the other grievances were satisfactorily adjusted. The only men lost were those proven guilty of destruction of property. All the lines in the city are now organized. The non-union men retained by the Consolidated are leaving rapidly. Twenty-four left in a batch one day. The result is regarded as the first victory for the strikers in Cleveland in seven years. Mr. Mahon, speaking of the bearing the Cleveland settlement has on the strike here, said "No two strikes are ever settled alike. The local circumstances are different and must be considered by themselves." WANT TWENTY-FIVE CENTS AN HOUR,

Last night Mr. Mahon was up till 4 o'clock with the Street Railway Employes' Association in Detroit. the men are asking 25 cents an hour, but no strike is anticipated.

WHEELING STRIKE SETTLED. He received a telegram last night from Wheeling, W. Va., which read:
"Street car strike settled satisfactory to the men." The men there have been out twelve weeks. BAND CONCERT TONIGHT.

The Musical Society Band, under the direction of Mr. F. L. Evans, will render a programme of popular music in Victoria Park tonight. It is a complimentary benefit tendered to the striking street railway men. A silver collection will be taken at the gates.

STRIKE NOTES.

The civic committee arranged for another meeting with the directors of the street railway company at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, and with the strikers at 4:20.

The executive committee of the street railway strikers wish to thank the Knox Church and Rocket baseball teams for their generosity in turning over to the strike fund the receipts of last Saturday's game.

Every labor organization in the city will be represented by at least three members in the street railway strikers' parade to Queen's Park on Monday. During the afternoon President Mahon may speak for a few minutes about the Cleveland strike.

Mr. T. Fox addresses the following to the street railway company: "Don't you think it time to take a tumble to yourselves? What is the use to cut off your nose to spite your face? You are all getting to be the laughing stock of the city. The citizens of London will not ride in your cars, and they are all empty. Look at all the money you have lost! Why, if I owned the street railway, I would have given in the next day. It is no use to be too independent nowadays, as it is a thing of the past. And, gentlemen, take a fool's advice for once, and come down on the level and make a settlement with the men at once, and put them to work. I guarantee all will be well. From a citizen who wishes you all well. I remain, yours very respectful-

THE REAL REASON. Hamilton Herald: The St. Thomas papers are particularly bitter in their attacks upon Hamilton in relating the many difficulties which have beset their own club during the season, but in this they are just as misguided as have the workingman's home. been the club directors in the manament of their affairs. The whole story in a nutshell is that the club has not paid its debts to the league and evidently had no intention of doing so. The league became aware of this and took what it considered was the necessary step to protect itself against the alleged shrewdness of the St. Thomas adventurers.

Toronto is after Pitchers Pears and Hardy, of the St. Thomas team. St. Thomas cried last year when it lost the pennant, and now it is crying because someone won't volunteer to pay its honest debts.

The Bains are confident that they will capture at least one of Saturday's two games from the Hams. trial, if continuing in the employ of the DEPARTURE OF CROW.

As announced in Wednesday's Advertiser, Charley Crow was given his release after yesterday's game and left for Youngstown, Ohio, via the M. C. R. at 8 o'clock. The parting between Crow and the officials was of a most cordial nature. Crow desired his release having offers from Youngstown, and the management acquiesced. Crow is a good ball player and has many friends in London.

THE ST. THOMAS CLUB.

Frank Donley, of St. Thomas, who has been trying to get hold of the St. Thomas baseball club charter, this morning notified Bert Sheere that everything had been satisfactorily arranged for keeping the St. Thomas club in the league, except the matter of grounds. As far as they are concerned they are out of it, and, indeed, it is a sure thing that there will be no more Hamilton alias Canadian professional league ball in this city. Manager Taylor was seen this morning in regard to the report that the street railway company would take over the franchise. His reply was another question: 'Do the people think we are batty?' He said they did not want the franchise, and would not have anything to do with it. Mr. Taylor was in Hamilton yesterday on his way home from Toronto, and went to see the bail game. There were nineteen in attend-Mr. Thomas Donly, of the Grand Central, would take the franchise if three or four others would go in with him, but the others are coy and will stav that way. "The vast majority of lovers of baseball in the city will be heartily glad that we have seen the last of the dirty professional ball played in the Cana dian League. Now for the organization of a swift independent team.

The petitioner is Mr. Lindsay Elliot, of St. Marys, who files his protest on behalf of the defeated Reform candidate, Mr. Valentine Stock, as against the elec-tion of Mr. Nelson Monteith. The latter was elected by a majority of seven in the bye-election for the seat in the Local Legislature, held in February last. Messrs. W. R. Riddell and R. A. Grant, of Toronto, and W. C. Aylesworth, Q.C., Toronto, and Mr. F. P. Thompson, of Mitchell. Justices Street and Meredith are the trial judges. Some delay was caused in starting the trial, owing to the absence of necessary witnesses, and when com-menced the hearing dragged along very slowly. JESSAMINE.

Through the gorge worn by the creek in the mountains, one had a view of the upper valley, and the chain of hills that grew bluer and lower as the eye pursued their southerly course. Below the bridge was the church, benignant warder of the plain, fertile as was that of Sodom, loaded with corn, ripe for cutting, and already stacked for the garner, and white, here and there, as from untimely snows, with blossoming buckwheat. The whistle of the quail in the stubble, the rattling roll of empty farm wagons over the stone bridge below the mill, on their way to the field; the duller thunder of heavily laden trains creaking and swaying from side to side behind the straining oxen, and the drowsy undertone of the mill-wheel, mingled with the nearer warble of birds in the trees and the gentle wash of the waves under the willows. It was bright, benignant weather-a day that reminded one of healthy, active, happy, middle-age, for there was a whisper of autumn in the air, the mellowness of autumnal light over plain and water and hill.

There was nothing in landscape, air, or sunlight that should have reminded Jessie Kirke of the miserable February afternoon when she stood on the Hamilton bridge, staring down at the black ice below, and fought her first battle of life. But that other scene and the strife of that hour were very present to her, as she halted on the footbridge and leaned over the rail to gaze at the slow, smooth current of creek. The narrow crossing had been designed and partly built by Mr. Kirke himself. The floor was of oak plank; the railing was composed of cedar branches with the bark left on, arranged in fantastic figures, and surmounted by a slender pole of the same wood. Many stopped to examine and admire it in passing over, and it made a pleturesque feature in the view. It was familiar in every joint to Jessie, having formed a part of her favorite walk for ten years; but she chose to linger there on this morning, to hang over the parapet pick bits of bark from the an idle child might launch and watch miniature fleet.

It was a face many removes from childhood's thoughtlessness and childish glee that looked back at her from the glassy surface. A face, wild-eyed and haggard, with bent brows betoken-ing suffering and conflict of no ordinary character; a mouth telling, in piteous and patient lines, of defeat.

She had returned from Hamilton in ther and Eunice attributed her loss of bloom and liveliness to too close application to her studies, and cited her improvement in music, French and German, in proof of their theory. She did not relax her diligence when she was settled at home. Eunice, whose name was a synonym for industry, did not surpass her in strict attention to all departments of feminine work. In the kitchen and the garden, at the needle, the piano writing desk, and her books, she toiled from sunrise until bedtime, with energy Eunice silently likened to greediness for occupation of mind and body, while Mr. Kirke hardly recognized his darling in the decorous thrifty housewife and busy student. Intonations, phraseology and deportment — all were altered. She was an elegant woman in appearance and conversation, but the fond parent missed the tricksy sprite who had wrought mischief and mirth in his home; missed her teasing and her follies, her exactions and her caresses. Not that she was cold or sullen. She told long and entertainstories of her Hamilton life; gave faithful descriptions of the people and things she had seen while away from listened with apparent interest to neighborhood news and family plans; talked of art, literature and philosophy by the hour; was attentive to his every possible want, and offered regularly the morning and evening kiss she had been accustomed to bestow from her infancy. But, having already one daughter who was an exemplar to her sex, he recollected the bewitching naughtiness of the old-time Jessie, and wished fervently that he had met Mrs. Baxter's invitation by a peremptory negative, and kept his gem as it was. To his taste it had lo not gained-in the cutting and polish-

Eunice was discreet when he intimated something of the kind to her. "She is certainly more quiet and stushe replied, "but she says she is very well, and she has much to make her thoughtful in Roy's absence. The long separation must, of itself, oppress her spirits continually. And, father, our Jessie has gained new views of life and duty within the last year. She can never be a child again. Her na-ture—mind and affections—must broaden and deepen with time. We would not have it otherwise, strange as the change is to us now. I fear, though, that she works too hard, while I honor her determination to prepare herself thoroughly for her future position. She will be a wife of whom Roy may justly be proud." Again, when Mr. Kirke feared that Jessie was often depressed to despondency, although she strove bravely to conceal it, the elder sister "hoped all would be well again when Roy came

"He can reason or soothe her out of morbid fancies better and sooner than either you or I. His influence over her is wonderful and always beneficial." "I wish he were home again then," sighed the parent.

He did not guess how heartily Eunlec echoed the desire. She must be partially successful in quelling his anxieties, but the beryl-eyes saw that, so far from all being right with her young sister, something was lamentawrong. Jessie's very manner of speaking of Roy and her marriage was totally dissimilar to her former frank or bashful confession. If she had lived with him as his wife a dozen years, she could not have mentioned his name more composedly, or talked of housekeeping and other practicalities in a more matter-of-fact strain. This was exceedingly sensible, but it was not, on that account, the more like Jessie. The transformation from an enthusiastic madcap, who did and felt nothing by halves-let it be loving, laughing, sorrowing or working-into the dignified partner of Eunice's every-day cares and duties, equable in temper, reliable in judgment, and judicious in actionought, perhaps, to have elicited commendation from one who was herself a model in all these respects: but, instead of gratification, she felt only bewilderment and alarm at the completeness of the change. It had been her habit to think and say, when her sister's crudities or extravagances were more marked than her quieter taste approved, that the discipline of life, as life went on, would rectify these; that they were but the redundant growth of a noble stock. A little pruning—a few sharp experiences, and hypercritical indeed would be the judgment that should find room for blame. She was displeased with herself in recollecting this, now that the discipline had wrought upon before the interruption, while Eunice the free, wild spirit; the redundancies grew younger and prettier every day. had fallen under the pruning-knife.

Something of this external change must have manifested itself in Jessie's letters, for Roy had twice written privately to Eunice, questioning her close ly about her sister's health and spir-

"Her letters are as regular as ever, and no less beautiful than punctual," he said. "But they contain so few particulars of her daily life and feelings, while they treat freely of other subjects, that I have fancied there is something pertaining to her individual experience she desires to hide from me, lest the knowledge of it should pain My noble, generous girl! She would bear any distress or inconveni-ence rather than inflict me by revealing the extent of her suffering or perplexity. I trust in my sometimes wayward — always sweet, graceful, clinging Jessamine to you, our sister.

Eunice answered hopefully and with such reassurances as she could truth-fully impart, and wished more ardently than ever that he would return and assume the charge of his most precious treasure - the charge and the cure.

They had had a quiet summer, the most stirring event being a visit from Mrs. Baxter and Orrin Wyllys, who acted as her escort. They were do-mesticated for a week at the parsonage, and Jessie's monopoly of her cousin's society had left Orrin almost entirely to her father's and sister's care. Nobody made verbal objection to this division of hospitable duties. Mr. Wyllys held long talks with his host—scientific, theological, literary and political-during post-prandial smokes, sides driving and walking with him in his professional rounds at such seasons as Eunice was too busy to attend to her guests. When she was at liberty to devote herself to social duties, there were hours of music and reading, long rambles among the hills - Mrs. Baxter and Jessie far in advance-for the latter always outstripped her sister in pedestrian expeditions; moonlight promenades and conferences on the piazza that left Jessie all the time she desired for conversation with her late chaperone. It was generally agreed at parting that the week had passed swiftly and delightfully; farewells were linked with hopes of a repetition of the pleasure, and the household relapsed into its ordinary aspect and ways. If there were any perceptible difference In those composing it, it was that Jessie worked harder and was paler than

In Woman's Interest

The Pocketless Woman.

It is decreed that pockets are impossible in a fashionable gown, but it sems there are two ways of getting side, and fling them into the creek, as over the difficulty, one by inserting the required item in the front breadth, which is very apt to show, the other to cunningly insert one in the hem of the gown. There is a difference of opinion between the wearer and the There is a difference of maker of dress on this all-important question. The chatelaine comes to the rescue, holding notebooks, purses and other necessary impedimenta, while the pockethandkerchief is tucked up the sleeve. The words pockethandker-April, looking jaded and ill, said the chief and pocketbook will have to be Dundeeians, who shook sagacious heads changed if this goes on, for they are over her winter's dissipation. Her fadestined for anywhere but in the the pocket. Chatelaine bags do not appear to have a very great success, possibly because they are so easy a prey to the predatory classes, but dainty china silk bags, slung to the wrist by cord, are to be seen at gay gather-ings sometimes. The Japanese woman makes her pocket in her broad girdle, a Chinaman in his long sleeve, but where the future pocket of Englishwoman is to be remains to be seen.

+++ The Ramabai Association.

The annual report of the American Ramabai Association has just been received. Its president is Lyman Abbott, D.D., and its vice-president E. Winchester Donald, D.D., rector of Trinity Church in Boston. The annual meeting was held on March 24. The association is supporting two schools in India, both of which are under the management of Pundita Ramabai. The total amount needed for the year's expenses is $20,000. One school is called the Sharada Sadan. It numbers from sixty to seventy-five. The other school is Mukti. It numbers three hundred and sixty-five pupils, most of whom were gathered at a time famine, and are therefore entirely de-pendent for food and shelter. The former of these schools is intended for high-caste child widows, who could not be reached by missionaries nor by foreign teachers of any kind. To these are now added deserted wives and married women and girls for whom the effort might be called "rescue The inmates are all of the higher castes. This school is secular and does not interfere with Hindu customs and beliefs. The other school. however, with its three hundred and sixty-five inmates, is avowedly a Christian institution. The difference between the classes to be reached accounts for the difference in methods. Ramabal is working with all her oldtime enthusiasm, and never more successfully than now. She is accorded a recognition in her own country which some of her people were for a time unwilling to give her. The spirit in which all the work is carried on is finely stated in a sentence from Ramabai's report: "Our souls rejoice in our Saviour and glorify his name as we go about our daily duties."

+++ Leave-Taking as a Fine Art.

A graceful exit from a drawingroom has always been an art. There is a good old rule in letter writing about saying what you have to say and stopping when that is done-yet there are people who always leave the important part of a note for the postscript. It is said that women are worse than men in this regard. Washington society leave taking has been reduced to a fine art, Nowhere in this country are visits and visiting made so much a matter of business. When the call is at an end one who is not from long habit accustomed to formal visiting should keep in mind the point of leaving, and when she has said the last thing she wishes to say, rise quickly and easily and shake hands with her hostess, making some pleasant friendly remark as she does so, and go directly out.

It is said that American women have no repose of manner, and that they feel obliged to make conversation whether or not there is anything worth saying. Also that they do not know when or how to leave. The uncomplimentary opinions have been gathered from time to time from English and French critics. There is cause for rejoicing that the women of America have less repose than the English and the thoroughly trained society woman or man anywhere knows that a graceful leave-taking will impress upon hostess and guests a pleasant personal recollection. One who is accustomed to society may quite spoil that impression by over-anxiety to do the correct thing, when simplicity and brevity would do much better. Ease comes only with experience, but at any point affectation is ill bred and silly, and it would be better to appear abrupt and to go promptly than to make others uneasy and to be placed at a disadvantage by dawdling uncertainty.

Ribbon on the Girls' Necks.

What an ugly fashion this is of wraps! Like the stocks our grandfathers were only those were black. Girls' necks in these stocks look like bandaged legs. Seems a case of carbuncles or boils on the neck. Very ungraceful. What is prettier than a bare throat? Why is it? Why tie it up and bandage it? Why make a spool of the neck?-Washington Press. +++

Cold Meat Pie. For this pie any kind of game may be used that can be procured, partridges, wild ducks, rabbits, etc., failing in this game, use chicken or veal and a little ham. Disjoint the kind selected and parboil it, using as little water as possible. For the specified number of guests you will probably need three good-sized pies. Have ready some good pastry, about a dozen hard-boiled eggs, a pound of sausage meat or the same quantity of ham. Free the meat from all bones and boil down the stock to three pints. Cut the meat in long strips, the eggs in slices, chop the ham fine. Line three deep tins with the paste rolled thin. each with alternate layers of the prepared meat, salt, pepper, any desired spices, a few drops of onion juice, eggs, small portions of sausage or a sprinkling of the ham; a little finely chopped salt pork is also very good. When the molds are full work a spoon down so as to leave an opening down through the center and cover with a top crust. Bake for two hours in a moderate oven, covering it if the crust browns too quickly. Glaze with a little beaten egg as soon as taken from the oven. Strain the reduced stock through fine cloth, set aside until cold and remove the fat. Soak one box of gelain cold water, heat the stock, add a high seasoning and the gelatine and stir until the latter is dissolved. Put a funnel of writing paper down through the center of each pie when cold, and slowly pour in sufficient stock to fill as full as possible. In serving cut in slices with a very sharp knife so as not to break the jelly.

What Ought To Be Done.

Into every mother's flock, "however watched and tended," infectious and contagious diseases are likely to come without warning, and the sick one must at once be isolated from his fellows. Every mother knows that a sheet moistened with a disinfectant should be immediately hung at the door of the sick room. Every one does not know that two sheets are better than one in this emergency.

These sheets, according to "Health Culture," should be wrung out of a solution of Platt's chlorides diluted with four parts of water; then the inside sheet should be tacked along the top and down the side of the doorway next to the hinges, and the outside one tacked along the top and down the opposite side. This prevents the sheets being blown in and out when the windows of the room are open for ventilation, and it enables the physician and hurse to enter and leave the room without uncovering the doorway. When hung the sheets may be kept moistened by sprinkling the solution on occasionally by means of a whisk

Expensive Epots. Two mothers of large families were discussing domestic matters one day, less repose than the English and the younger of the two spoke with than the French women. And a sigh of the way in which her tablecloths were spotted through the daily mishaps of her two boys. "Perhaps you'd like to know how I have helped my boys to be careful at the table," said the older woman; "it is the plan on which my mother houseship and the plan on which my mother houseship and the plan on which my mother houseship and the plan on the plan

"The rule in our family," she proceeded, when urged by her friend to explain her method, "is this: Any one who makes a spot on the table-cloth must cover it with a piece of money, and the piece must be large enough to hide the stain entirely; no rims are allowed! The children have to provide the coins out of their own pocketmoney. The rule applies to their father and me as well as to them. The sum goes to buy new table linen.

"The first year I tried this plan we had money enough for three handsome table-cloths; but since then there has been less and less. This is the fourth year, and although none of my four boys has yet reached his fifteenth birthday, and they are by no means Tend and guard it tenderly and for unusually deft in their management of knives, forks and spoons, they have learned to serve themselves and others so well that I am inclined to think their contributions to the 'Table-cloth Fund' will be very slight."

A French Omelet.

It was my good fortune when at the Hotel Poulard, in Mont St. Michael, to see Madam Poulard prepare her famomelets. A wood fire was ing in the huge fireplace in her Normandy kitchen, and on tables near by were piles of platters, several large bowls and a large basket of eggs. Her only assistant was a boy, who broke from 12 to 20 eggs into each of these bowls, and gave them a few vigorous beats, with a sort of forward-and-back rather than an over-and-over motion, using a large wire whisk for the purpose. The madam handled her large steel omelet pan with ease and dexterity. It measured from 15 to 18 inches in diameter, and had a handle three feet long. She moved it about over the blazing wood, and occasionally rested the edge of it on the chimney-ledge. When the pan was the right heat she tossed in a great lump of butter, about a cupful, it seemed to me, and kept the pan in motion until the butter was melted, and bubbling, but without allowing it to brown. Then a signal from Madam, the boy turned his bowl of eggs into the sizzling butter. I saw nothing put into the bowl but the eggs, but judging from the taste later, a little pepper and pos-sibly some salt must have been put in, for surely there was none put in while in the pan. The salt from the generous portion of butter may have been sufficient. Madam lifted the pan from the fire, giving it something of a rolling motion that sent the edges from side to side, at the same time scraping the cooked eggs from the edge to the middle. When nearly all the egg was thickened, she gave a few stirring sweeps with the fork, mixing the thin portion with the thick, and then with a quick turn of the pan she slid part of the quivering, golden mass off into a platter, another turn and the remaining half was left on top, giving it the regulation omelet shape "Why, it is like our scrambled eggs," we exclaimed, but it was as delicious delicate, juicy, and seasoned just to

The Western Fair Ecard Decide Upon a Large Expenditure-Tribute to Retiring Secretary Browne.

The Western Fair Board met yesterday afternoon and ratified the executive's appointment of Mr. J. A. Nelles as secretary in succession to Mr. Thos. A. Browne, who will enter tomorrow upon his new duties as postmaster. Mr. Nelles' salary was fixed at $700 per year. In recognition of the interest Mr. Browne has shown in the association's welfare by hurrying as much as possible all preparations for the coming fair, the board gave Mr. Browne $600

the past six months. The executive committee and the grounds and building committee were empowered to award contracts for building two new stands at Queen's Park. The outlay will be about $5,000, it is estimated. The present open stands are to be torn down and larger ones put in their places. The seating capacity, not including the big covered stand, will be increased by 314. The new stand at the south end is to be 120 feet long, and the one at the north end 200 feet long, and each one will contain seven more rows of seats than the present stands.

The Orangemen had been granted the use of the track and stands on pay-ment of $25. In view of the fact that no charge of admission is to be made, the $25 will be refunded.

A request that a class for hen pheasants be included in the prize lists was not complied with, as the prize lists have already been issued. There was a large attendance of directors. Col. Gartshore presided.

APPEAL DISMISSED WITHOUT COSTS.

Judgment was given in the court of appeal at Toronto yesterday in the case of Fraser vs. the London Street Railway Company on cross-appeal by plaintiff from judgment of a divisional court, which, although it sustained a verdict for plaintiff in an action for negligence, reduced the amount of the verdict from $3,300 to $2,000. or directed a new trial if the plaintiff should refuse to consent to the reduction. The plaintiff, while standing on the foot-board of one of the defendants' cars, was struck by one of the side-posts of Kensington bridge, over which the car was crossing, the space between the post and the side of the car being only fourteen inches. The court below held that an invitation to the plaintiff to stand on the foot-board must be implied, and while here he was entitled to be carried safely, which the improper construction of the bridge prevented, but they found the damages to be excessive. The de-fendants appealed from the judgment also, but their appeal was dismissed at this court at the hearing. The court now dismissed the plaintiff's cross appeal, but without costs. TRY FOOT ELM DOMINION DAY.

Busy Day for the Council's Special Strike Committee.

The Conference With Representatives of the Employes' Union.

The wheels set in motion by the city council with a view to bringing the street railway strike to an end were turning all day yesterday. Chairman Parnell and his co-workers on the strike committee had a busy day. After the long talk with the company, the aldermen met Messrs. Crawford, Pennington and DeLisle, the employes' representatives, and engaged in sounding operations. It was four o'clock when the second meeting was held. Ald. Parnell (chairman), Mayor Wilson, Ald. Rumball, Douglass, Graham, Wilkey and Carrothers were present.

The chairman stated the object of the meeting. Mr. Crawford, in reply, said the agreement proposed by the men set forth exactly what the men wanted.

Ald. Graham—If we start out with the absolute necessity of recognition of the union, our negotiations will be useless. We can't get the company to argue that question at all. Ald. Rumball (to the strikers)-What would be your object in demanding recognition of the union if the company agreed to arbitration. Mr. Crawford—We've got to have a union or a non-union road. One or the other. If half the men are union, and some not, there will be friction just as there has been. We don't think we have asked anything unfair in our

proposed agreement.

Ald. Rumball—Why do you want more than was accepted in Cleveland? Mr. DeLisle-We are not asking more than they have there. A press report of the Cleveland agreement was read, and the committee contended that there was no recognition of the union in it.

The strikers maintained that the press reports gave a wrong impression. The men there had secured recognition, said Mr. DeLisle. He was asked for a correct copy of the agreement, and promised to obtain it.

It was pointed out by the aldermen that in case the question of the union was dropped, the men might still be able to deal with the company through a committee. That committee could be the properly accredited officers of the union, if they were chosen, to present the grievances to the company.

Ald. Parnell thought the company would receive them. They might not be received as officers of the union, but what difference would that make? Mr. Pennington-Would the company agree to submit the question of recognition of the union to arbitration?

The aldermen thought not. Messrs. Crawford, Pennington and DeLisle said they could answer for all the strikers without submitting the question to them, but they did not think a man would go back unless the road was unionized. Otherwise, they would be just as badly off as they had

Ald. Rumball saw little hope if the men were determined to stick to their

proposed agreement.

The chairman thought it would be possible to deal with the men if they gave up the recognition of the union. company's arbitration offer was discussed. In event of not getting satisfaction from the management, an employe could appeal to the city council, the body to whom the company's offer was to be given, and have the grievance adjusted by arbitration. The employe if he was a union man, could get the union to choose an arbiter, if he desired; the company would select one also, and in event of the two selected being unable to decide upon a

I see that my name has been dragged into the controversy. is true a man by the name of Winfield Armstrong was committed to jail on June 22, and shortly after his committal a number of alleged friends came to see him, to whom I refused admission. A brother of the prisoner came also and was refused admission, but I told him that I would carry any message to the prisoner that he wished, and suggested that I would send for any lawyer that he might desire to engage for counsel. At the brother's request I immediately interviewed the prisoner and asked him if he wished to engage a lawyer, and he replied by saying that he wanted no lawyer. Then he made an attempt to disclose to me his grievances. I told him that I did not want to know anything about his case, and the statement by Mr. Marks that I put him through an examination is entirely false and without the slightest foundation. I want the public to know that I am not at liberty to let every person that chooses to run into the jail the privilege of seeing prisoners confined therein, particularly when they are under a criminal charge. "TREASURE ISLAND."

I send you a book which (or I am mistook) will please you; it pleased me. But I do desire a book of adventure—a romance—and no man will get or write me one. Dumas I have read and re-read too often; Scott, too, and I am short. I want to hear swords olash. I want a book to begin in a good way; a book, I guess, like "Treasure Island," alas! which I have never read, and can not, though I live to ninety. I would God that some one else had written it! By all that I can learn, it is the very book for my com-plaint. I like the way I hear it opens; and they tell me John Silver is great fun. And to me it is, and must ever be, a dream unrealized, a book unwritten: O my sighings after romance, or even Skeltery, and O! the weary age which will produce me neither!—
