Asiatic Cholera in Hamburg and Havre.

Prompt Preventive Measures Adopted at Washington.

An International Peace Bureau To Be Established—The Ameer of Afghanistan Asks Help From India Against Russian Aggression.

The Peace Congress.

BERNE, Aug. 23.—The International Peace Congress continued its session today in the hall of the Swiss Parliament, It was decided to establish an international permanent peace bureau in Berne and to ask Switzerland to appeal to foreign governments to assist in defraying the cost.

Eight Dollars for Every Rebel Head.

TANGIER, Aug. 23.—The negotiations between the Sultan's officials and the leader of the Anghera tribesmen looking to the submission of the latter, have been broken off by the Sultan. The Sultan has directed that a grand attack be made upon the Anghera, and to stimulate his troops he has offered $4 for every prisoner they secure, and $8 for every head they bring into camp.

The Ameer in Hot Water.

SIMLA, Aug. 23.—The Ameer of Afghanistan is so busy endeavoring to suppress the revolt among the Hazaras that he has no time to defend the territory in the Pamirs against the Russians. Fearing that they will seize upon part of the Pamir region that belongs to Afghanistan, the Ameer has asked the Government of India to intervene to prevent Russian aggression in the Pamir country. It is believed here that the Russians mean to seize upon the Pamirs, and that the movement to take possession of the country will be timed with reference to political factors both in Central Asia and Western Europe.

British Political Gossip.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Gen. Ponsonby, the Queen's private secretary, in conveying to Mr. Gladstone her Majesty's command to form a Ministry, stipulated that Mr. Labouchere should not be selected to fill any post in the Government. Mr. Labouchere was implored to get Mr. Gladstone out of the difficulty by writing a letter declaring he would not accept office, as he wished to remain independent. This Mr. Labouchere declined to do. Overtures have since been made to him to accept the title of Baron Taunton.

Stuart Rendle, Gladstonian member of the House of Commons for Montgomeryshire, Wales, as chairman of the Welsh party, will introduce in Parliament a bill fixing the date after which no vested interest can be created in a Welsh diocese. This measure is a forerunner to a bill disestablishing the church in Wales.

The Dublin Independent (Parnellite) says the assurances given yesterday by Mr. Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, to the deputation from the Cork County Evicted Tenants' Association are not sufficient.

Cholera Coming Closer.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—U. S. Consul Johnson at Hamburg reports that he is advised officially by the Government health officer of that city of the presence of Asiatic cholera.

Consul Williams at Havre reports an epidemic of Asiatic cholera at that place with many deaths, and advises an inspection of the fast liner La Touraine. These facts have been promptly communicated to the health officers at Staten Island.

Circulars have been issued to customs officers directing the disinfection of baggage from cholera-infected ports. Assistant Secretary Spaulding was in conference today with Dr. Austin, acting surgeon-general of the marine hospital service, in regard to further precautionary steps.

HAMBURG, Aug. 22.—There were 120 cases of cholera here yesterday. Many deaths from the disease were reported. Several of the cases were truly Asiatic cholera. The ambulances are insufficient to meet the demands made upon them through the outbreak of cholera. Yesterday 70 ordinary carriages were utilized for the conveyance of cholera patients. Thirty-five persons have died from cholera. Some of these have died within an hour after being stricken with the disease and all died within six hours.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 23.—Official cholera returns show 6,806 new cases and 3,429 deaths throughout Russia yesterday. Owing to the fact that many places where the disease is prevalent are not connected with the capitals of the provinces by telegraph it is thought that the official reports are far from giving the true condition of affairs.

TEHERAN, Aug. 23.—A dispatch from Reshed, in the Province of Chilean, states that every day hundreds of persons are dying there from cholera. Reshed lies sixteen miles from Enzellee, its port on the Caspian Sea. The population of the town is about 20,000. A new disease is ravaging at Enzellee. It causes purulent swellings on the body and face, and the mortality resulting from it is very heavy. The same disease is causing many deaths at Ardabel, a town of 12,000 inhabitants in Kahara-Soo River. Both towns have been isolated.

The Nachrichten says that so far there have been 300 cases of cholera in the city and 120 deaths, 65 deaths occurring today. Several deaths have occurred at Altona.

Labby, Gladstone and the Queen.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Mr. Labouchere has in to-day's Truth a crisp account of the circumstances of his exclusion from the Government. He says he never thought of seeking office. He never asked a Minister for anything, and he does not contemplate ever doing so. Mr. Labouchere proceeds to say: "An emissary informed me—presumably as quid pro quo—that Mr. Gladstone would always be glad to consult me on public affairs." After asking why it should be suggested to him to write a letter renouncing office, he says: "I certainly understood that the Queen had in some way led Mr. Gladstone to arrive at the fact that my joining the Government would not please her." Assuming that the Queen had expressed such a sentiment, Mr. Labouchere says he thinks it is to be regretted that he may not have seen eye to eye with the Queen in all matters, but admits that he always regarded her as strictly constitutional. His interpretation of the constitution is, he says, that the Queen selects the Premier and leaves him a free hand in the choice of colleagues. He (Labouchere) might or might not have accepted office if it had been offered. As things go, he thanks heaven that come what may his head and liberty are safe under Queen Victoria. Radical approbation weighs more with him "than that of all the emperors, empresses, kings, queens, lords and lickspittles in the universe, so that the good ship Democracy sails prosperously into Joppa." He says: "I care not whether my berth is in the officers' quarters or in the forecastle." Continuing, he says that although his friends urged him not to refuse office, he liked his independence and did not like the trammels of office. With reference to the Queen's prejudice, he says: "If the matter had been a purely personal one, the slightest hint that a lady did not wish me to enjoy the privilege of kissing her hand would have been sufficient, but in this case I think there is something more involved."

On the Warpath.

TANGIER, Aug. 24.—The Sultan has given orders to the commander of the troops to be dispatched against Anghera tribesmen to raze every Anghera village and to exterminate the rebels.

A Canadian Gift to the McCarthyites.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Archbishop Cleary, of Kingston, Ont., has sent $2,000 to the McCarthyites. In a letter accompanying the subscription the archbishop writes that his people, who are chiefly of Irish origin, are eagerly looking forward to the time when they can send delegates to Dublin to take part in inaugurating an Irish Parliament. He adds that he and others will be most happy to assist at the inauguration.

Re-election Contests.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Mr. John Morley was nominated at Newcastle yesterday for re-election, and in opposition to him was nominated Mr. Pandeli Ralli, the Liberal-Unionist, who made an unsuccessful run at Gateshead in the general election, where he was beaten by Mr. W. H. James. Mr. Ralli is well-equipped with funds, and has a strong support. It is believed that Mr. Morley will have no easy task in obtaining re-election, although the opposition to him is not so confident as a few days ago.

At Derby Farmer Atkinson was nominated in opposition to Sir William Vernon Harcourt, but there is no doubt of Sir William's re-election, many of the Conservatives refusing to take part in the opposition to him.

Many of the other Ministers have been re-election without opposition.

TERSE TELEGRAMS.

The News of the Day, Culled and Condensed.

The intense heat in Europe continues unabated.

At Odessa (Russia) on Tuesday the thermometer registered 104° in the shade.

Bad weather has destroyed the hay crop in the south of Ireland and the potato crop is blighted.

Agricultural prospects in the Cork district, after 30 hours rain, are exceedingly gloomy. Much grain is rotting in the fields.

The terrible heat on the continent has caused enormous mortality among cattle, sheep and pigs, and both fodder and milk are scarce.

At Hartford, Conn., 3,500 people saw the races at Charter Oak Park Tuesday. C. J. Hamlin, of Buffalo, captured two of the races. His Nightingale won the 2:19 trotting race, and his Robert J. won the free-for-all pace. The third race, the 2:25 trot, was won by Darlington. Abdallah lowered the track's record by taking the third heat of the pacing race in 2:11.

A Train Drops Out of Sight.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 24.—While the Adirondack and St. Lawrence Railroad train was running at the usual rate of speed near Tupper Lake, the bed of the road caved, letting down the entire train. Three cars were entirely buried beneath the ground. Only a few passengers were seriously injured, while all received slight bruises.

A British Sealer Captured.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. — Commander Tanner, of the fish commission steamer Albatross, reports, under date of Sitka, Alaska, Aug. 11, that the Albatross arrived at that place with the British schooner Winnifred in tow. The Winnifred was captured by the revenue steamer Rush for illicit sealing. She was turned over to Capt. Tanner at Ounalaska.

Ferryboat Destroyed.

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 24.—The ferry steamer Christiana, running between this city and Penn's Grove, N.J., has been burned to the water's edge while moored at the New Jersey terminus. The captain and crew escaped in their night clothes. The steamer is valued at $16,000, and is a total loss. She was owned by the Wilmington and New Jersey Ferry Company, and was built at Rondout four years ago.

Three Shot and Two Dead.

LIMESTONE, Ind., Aug. 24.—A riot has taken place here, in which three men were fatally shot. A wagon load of women and men, returning to their homes, stopped in the principal street. The men got out of the wagon, created a disturbance, and resisted Constable Stulz when he attempted to arrest some of them. Three of the men were shot by the constable. The people in the wagon all belonged to one family, their names being Lentz. Two of the men who were shot are dead, and another will die.

Devoured by a Wild Beast.

SAGINAW, Mich., Aug. 24.—An awful report comes from Marion township. A child was left asleep by its mother while she was picking berries in the bushes near by. When she returned, not thinking of harm to her darling, she saw a sight that drove the blood from her heart. It was no less a spectable than the mangled foot of her baby, the rest of the body having been devoured by some wild animal. The mother is distracted with grief, and it is feared that she will lose her reason. A panther has been seen in the neighborhood, and some think that this is the animal that devoured the child. The woman's name is Greenbaum.

The Labor Troubles

Delaware & Lackawanna Switchmen Go Out.

Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Men Follow Suit.

A Striker Shot by the Troops at Buffalo.

Mr. Powderly Does Not Advocate Strikes, But Hopes the Switchmen Will Win—Other Labor Matters.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Switchmen on the D. L. and W. Railway, numbering 90 men, struck at 2:30 p.m. to-day.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The crews on all D. L. and W. trains who reside in this city were told this morning that there was no work for them to do, and they were sent back home.

MR. WEBB INTERVIEWED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—H. Walter Webb, third vice-president of the New York Central, who returned from Buffalo this morning, said to a reporter: "I do not anticipate any spread of the strike, although it is possible that Sweeney may order out the switchmen in the yards at Chicago."

ANOTHER STRIKE.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The fifteen switchmen of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg road have struck because they were asked to handle freight from roads that have new switchmen.

IN CONFLICT.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 23.—Three attacks have been made this afternoon on the military pickets and non-union switchmen. An attack made on the picket lines of the Twenty-second Regiment of New York stationed at the Tifft farm by five strikers will probably result fatally to one of them—Thomas J. Manahar. A party began throwing stones at non-union men who were working in the Tifft farm yard. Lieut. Austin, of Company "C," ordered the stone-throwers to disperse. They refused to do so and were fired upon by order of Lieut. Austin. Manahar was struck by two bullets. His condition was extremely critical. Manahar's companions were arrested by the police, charged with rioting. The private who did the shooting was also detained by the police. General Doyle ordered a company and a battalion, if needed, to release the soldier.

Allan L. Richardson, a non-union switchman, was thrown off the top of a box car by strikers about 6 o'clock this evening and badly bruised. Thos. Gable, a non-union man, while working in the Lehigh yards in Buffalo, was badly injured. The injured men are at the emergency hospital.

MR. POWDERLY'S VIEWS.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 23.—Mr. Powderly says in an interview: "While I do not advocate strikes, I hope the switchmen will win; they deserve to. Their hours are long, their work dangerous and their pay poor. The average pay is $1 88 for twelve and fourteen hours' work. I would like to ask how an American citizen is going to keep a family on such an income?

"Hungarians and other foreigners who live like cattle in shanties might be able to do it, but the American can't. I think every fair-minded man in this country will agree with me on this point; so will the wives of American workingmen. They know what it is to feed and dress a family of children for school. One dollar and eighty-eight cents a day will not do it."

THE ENGINEERS ARE NOT IN IT.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 23.—Chief Arthur has sent word to Buffalo that he will not be able to be present at the conference. He said this evening that while he felt the greatest sympathy for the strikers at Buffalo it was his personal opinion that the Brotherhood of Engineers would not interfere in it, as it had definite contracts with all the railroad companies to run their locomotives on certain conditions which have not been violated.

AT EAST ROCHESTER.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 24.—The switchmen employed in the New York Central yards at East Rochester went on strike at 4 o'clock this morning. The switchmen have no grievances and their action is prompted by sympathy for the Buffalo switchmen who struck a week ago. About 30 men went out this morning. The number of day and night men employed in the East Rochester yards is about 75. It was reported in the yards last night that Sweeny's agents had gone to Lyons to work among the men in the yard there. No violence of any kind is anticipated at the yards.

GOMPERS' VIEWS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is in Chicago. "I was in Homestead during the strike," he said, "and was there again only a few days ago. I can say truthfully that the men will come out best in the end. The Carnegie Company is making a great show of doing business, but practically it is doing nothing. The only way the end may be averted is that Carnegie may close his mighty plant, which I do not think is probable.

"In relation to the trouble in Tennessee that strike will deal the death-blow of the convict lease system just as the Homestead strike dealt the death-blow to Pinkertonism. I am heartily in sympathy with the miners. I have seen the men shot down there just like dogs.

"The strike at Buffalo I am not familiar with, though I have just come through there and stopped off a day. I am much afraid that the strike will spread all over the country. It is now the calm before the storm. No one can tell exactly what may happen, but I am afraid the storm cloud will burst over Chicago and the entire West in a few days. The firemen will cooperate with the switchmen and also the Brotherhood of Trainmen if necessary. If they do, then the railroads will be forced to give in."

Other Labor Matters.

The employing tailors of London have locked out their men to the number of 55,000. The lock-out resulted from a prolonged dispute about piece work. A strike has been threatened for a long time.

President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, who is in Chicago, says that he is confident that Carnegie will be forced to concede the demands of the men in the Pennsylvania mills.

The job printers' strike at Pittsburg, which has been going on for a year, has taken on a new phase. The strikers are to be prosecuted for conspiracy in using the boycott, and to defray the expenses of the litigation, the International Typothetæ has placed $100,000 at the disposal of its Pittsburg members. The boycott against some Pittsburg firms has been very disastrous.

At Coal Creek, Tenn., "Bud" Lindsay, Deputy United States marshal, chief conspirator in the insurrection against law and order, who placed a pistol at the head of General Anderson and commanded him to surrender the fort, was hanged by the troops Sunday night.

At Anderson, Ind., 500 hod carriers and as many bricklayers are on a strike.

ST. MARY'S FALLS CANAL.

The Matter of Tolls on Canadian Vessels.

Circular Letter to U. S. Collectors of Customs—A Dominion Cabinet Meeting—Canada's Share of the Soo Traffic.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Acting Secretary Spaulding, of the Treasury Department, has issued a letter of instructions to collectors of customs under the act relating to tolls on Canadian vessels at the St. Mary's Falls Canal. After reciting the law and the President's proclamation, he directs as follows:

On the passage through the canal at St. Mary's Falls in your district, from and after the 1st proximo, of any vessel with cargo, you will exact tolls as provided for above. But no tolls will be charged or collected as regards freight carried to and landed at Ogdensburg, or any port west of Ogdensburg and south of a line drawn from the northern boundary of the State of New York through the St. Lawrence River, the great lakes and their connecting channels to the northern boundary of the State of Minnesota.

Five hundred and eighty-three thousand tons of wheat passed through the St. Mary's Canal last year, and 254,000 tons of flour and 76,000 tons of grain other than wheat. Of iron ore there were 4,404,000 tons and coal 1,894,000 tons. The tonnage and traffic that goes through the St. Mary's Canal is greater than that passing through the Suez Canal in Egypt. Five thousand, nine hundred and four coastwise vessels and 718 foreign vessels were entered at Marquette during the year 1891.

DOMINION CABINET MEETING.

OTTAWA, Aug. 23.—The members who attended the Council meeting to-day were: Sir A. Caron, Hon. John Haggart, Hon. J. A. Ouimet, Hon. John Costigan and Hon. E. Dewdney. One of the Ministers said that while no doubt President Harrison's proclamation would be formally talked over, the Council was not called for any such purpose. It was principally to transact routine business.

It is hard to obtain figures from which to calculate the amount of extra burden which the imposition of 20 cents a ton tax at the Soo will entail upon Canadian carriers, but it is stated that it will not go over $35,000 per annum.

In a letter received by Mr. Teakles, chief of the canals revenue branch, from Mr. E. S. Wheeler, superintendent of the St. Mary's Canal, the latter stated that last year there passed through the canal in Canadian vessels 359,000 tons of freight, which of course was chiefly grain. What proportion of this was bound for Canadian ports he could not say.

ON A LONG TRAMP.

John Howard and Wife Walking from Seattle to Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—John Howard and wife, of Seattle, who are walking from that city to Chicago on a $5,000 wager, have been heard from. They have left Dewitt, Ia., and said they expected to be in Chicago on Monday, Aug. 29. The conditions of the wager are that they are to walk from Seattle to Chicago between March 10 and Sept. 1. Howard is pushing a wheelbarrow, in which there is a change of clothing and a rubber tent. Every foot of the distance must be traversed on foot and no stop made at a hotel or other public house. They were at Elk Rapids Aug. 17 and Lisbon Aug. 18. Mrs. Howard is dressed in male attire and both are said to be in excellent health. The route is along the Union Pacific and Northwestern Railroads. The Howards have registered at every railroad station along the line thus far.

Fell Two Hundred Feet.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Steele, the wife of a balloonist, has received fatal injuries while making a parachute jump. When the balloon started it was on fire in four places. It had ascended to a distance of about 300 feet when it exploded. Mrs. Steele undertook to cut the parachute loose, but it caught and the balloon turned over and carried the parachute downward. Mrs. Steele struck on the corner of a barn, after falling about 200 feet. She will die.

Twelve Thousand Knights in Line.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 23.—The grand parade of the 12,000 knights in attendance upon the encampment of uniform rank took place to-day. Just as the last division passed the reviewing stand the rain came down with a violent gust of wind. The parade was witnessed by 250,000 people.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 24.—The report of the officers of the endowment rank, Knights of Pythias, states that on July 1, 1892, there were 1,417 active sections, 29,407 members and the endowment in force was $62,925,000, showing an increase of 500 sections, 860 members and $17,000,000 endowment in the two years preceding. The resources of the rank June 30 were: Balance cash on hand, endowment rank depository, $69,138; assessments due and in process of collection, $15,457; accrued interest, $3,266; total, $87,861. The liabilities representing death losses accruing before July 1 is shown in the following statement: In litigation, $23,000; in process of adjustment, $53,000; proofs in process of completion, $111,000. While the above figures, says the report, represent the actual financial status of the rank on July 1, 1892, in which is charged the entire death loss that accrued prior to and including the month of June, the contingent income or resources are more than ample to meet all maturing claims.

THE HUMAN BODY'S GARRISON.

A Constant Conflict in it Between Two Sets of Bacilli.

The Wonderful Fight for Supremacy in Health and Disease.

Among the topics discussed by Prince Krapotkin in an article on recent science contributed to the Nineteenth Century, there is one of extraordinary interest, namely, the incessant conflict going on between the micro-organisms that invade and those which defend the living body. Of all the discoveries made of late years by biologists none is more striking than the demonstration that almost all infectious diseases may be traced to foreign bacilli, whose intrusion is resisted by a militia of resident micro-organisms known under the general name of leucocytes, the function of which is to attack, swallow, digest neutralize, or expel the alien and noxious microbes. The outcome of this ceaseless struggle within the body is on the one hand health and life, and on the other disease and dissolution.

So far we know more about our assailants than our defenders. Bacteriology, the branch of science which deals with the germ theory of disease, may be said to have been founded about the end of the fifties by Pasteur's researches into the fermentation of beer and wine, and Virchow's investigation into cellular pathology. Since then, although some alleged discoveries have been confuted, many have been verified, and we indisputably know a great number of micro-organisms which are capable under certain circumstances of producing certain specific maladies. For example, cholera, typhoid fever, and gastric affections generally; malaria and influenza; tuberculosis, leprosy and cancer; diphtheria, measles and scarlet fever; rheumatism, smallpox, rabies and tetanus have been traced to separate microscopical beings. The photograph of each separate bacillus may be found in the text books; its modes of life and very often its methods of reproduction have been carefully studied both in the animal body and in artificial cultures; subjected also to minute scrutiny have been the morbid effects which it produces when introduced into the bodies of various animals. In a word, the germ origin of infectious diseases can no longer be described as a theory; it is a fact.

Relatively backward is our knowledge of the means of combatting infectious micro-organisms. Most of the specifics which once awakened hope have proved, in the long run, as ineffective against the bacilli themselves as the specifics proposed by physicians have proved against the resultant maladies. The more the study of bacteria advances the stronger is the tendency to recognize that, as sanitary measures are the most effective precautions against the risks of infection, so a healthy body which is itself capable of checking the development of morbid micro-organisms is the best means of combating them. But what is it that permits a healthy body to resists invasion by morbid microbes? We know the invaders; but what is it that renders them highly noxious in some cases and quite inoffensive in some others? To this question cannot yet be given an answer which commands the universal assent of biologists. The broadest and most ingenious explanation of immunity thus far put forth is the theory elaborated in 1883 by Elie Menchikoff, which represents an extension of the leading principles of the struggle for life to the microscopic constituents of the animal body. There exist in the body of man and of all vertebrates, besides the cells which constitute the animal tissues, a number of free cells, the white corpuscles of blood and lymph, and the so-called wandering cells of the tissues. Four different varieties of these free cells, collectively known as leucocytes, have been described, the distinctions between them being chiefly based upon the shape and the number of their nuclei. It appears that the leucocytes of both the higher and the lower animals have all the distinctive features of simple amœbæ. They protrude pseudopodia or feelers, and they move about, and, like amœbæ, they are endowed to a high degree with the capacity of ingesting all kinds of small granules which they find in their way, including various smaller micro-organisms. In some cases the bacilli thus ingested are digested, that is, transformed into a soluble matter, which is assimilated by the protoplasm of the leucocytes. In other cases the bacteria are for some time kept alive within the leucocytes, and if the latter are placed in conditions unfavorable for themselves but favorable for the invading microbes, the invaders develop and are set free. In still other cases the leucocytes contribute to the defense of the body dy driving the hostile bacteria out of the organism through the skin. Transpiration is a familiar instance of the last-named process. Investigation has also demonstrated that the efficiency of the leucocytes varies greatly in different members of the same species of animal, their vigor being proportionate to the general health of the body. If the leucocytes are vigorous, they prevent the germination of the spores which they had ingested; but they maintain this power at a maximum only so long as they are healthy. If an animal has been submitted to cold, or has been narcotized, it loses its immunity from infectious maladies.

Such are the facts, and it seems reasonable to explain them, as does Menchikoff, on the theory that the leucocytes are the defensive agencies against infectious disease with which animal bodies have been endowed by nature. The necessities of the struggle for existence have evolved in living organisms the capacity of self-protection by dispatching armies of leucocytes to the spots attacked by noxious microbes. The struggle, as we have said, may end either in the rout of the leucocytes, in which case disease ensues, or in the repulse of the microbes, which is followed by recovery. Or, again, the outcome may be a drawn battle, which represents the state of things in various chronic diseases.

How $20,000 Went.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 24.—In the Iron Hall investigation a letter written by Supreme Justice Somerby to Supreme Accountant Walker related how the chief executive of the order had gone to Maine to work with the Legislature.

"It is expensive business," the letter stated, "but it pays in the long run."

The latter also stated that the supreme officer had "fixed" the New Hampshire body of Legislature.

Supreme Accountant Walker testified that Somerby had drawn over $20,000 for "legal and legislative expenses" in the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, Delaware, Pennsylvania and Nebraska. Over $10,000 was used in the New England States to procure the passage of favorable legislation and to prevent the passage of unsatisfactory laws.

The attorneys for the plaintiffs say they are ready to submit the case without argument or further evidence, but the defense will not consent.

YORK AND HIS FIANCEE.

A Foul Libel Refuted—No Engagement As Yet Determined Upon.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—The story of a scandal connected with the Princess May is devoid of the shadow of any foundation. The Princess is at present on a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Westminster at Cliveden, their palatial residence on the Thames. The Duke and Duchess of Teck and her brother are also staying there, in addition to Lord Rowton, Georgina, Countess of Dudley, and others. The Princess, with the rest of the company, went for a long trip on the river in a launch. A person who saw her says that she looks very well and is apparently in good spirits. Nothing has been officially announced as yet as to her betrothal, but it is believed that the Queen is raising obstacles to the Duke of York marrying her, as he desires to do.

The Queen is working heaven and earth to bring about an engagement between the Duke of York and Princess Victoria, daughter of Princess Christian. This arrangement would be as unpopular as an engagement with Princess May would be popular. The Prince of Wales is also believed to be against the Christian marriage for one reason, because they are cousins and the chances of the succession might be imperilled.

The foregoing cable dispatch is printed to contradict a slander which has been published in a New York paper in the following terms:

"A very sad and serious scandal is afloat in court circles about the young Princess May, the betrothed of the late Duke of Clarence. The rumor lacks confirmation and should not be repeated, but it is beyond a doubt that she will not be affianced to the Duke of York."

That the Duke of York is probably to marry his cousin, the Princess Victoria Schleswig-Holstein, was recently announced in Edmund Yates' World. When people were saying that the Duke would marry his late brother's fiancee, the Princess May, it was pointed out that not only was there no evidence of mutual affection, but that her Majesty's repugnance to the union under the circumstances was insurmountable.

The Queen, as is well known, is a Roman matron in her views of the sanctity of the engagement tie, and regards the Princess May as the Duchess of Clarence, and differs from the Prince of Wales in being strongly opposed to marriage with a deceased wife's sister, or what her Majesty regards as much the same thing, a marriage with a brother's betrothed bride.

The Princess, who is just two-and-twenty, is possessed of the strong cast of Guelph feature so prominent in most of the Queen's granddaughters. She is five years younger than the Duke, and should the marriage come off it will be the third between grandchildren of the Queen. Prince Henry of Prussia has married his cousin, Irene of Hesse; Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse will marry Princess Margaret of Prussia, and then the Duke of York and his cousin.

LOVE VERSUS LUCRE.

The Old Man Was a Millionaire, but the Young Suitor Won.

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 24.—Moses Bradford, aged 85 years, is a millionaire resident of Marion, Grant County. Three years ago he received a good deal of newspaper notoriety by marrying Mrs. Mackey, a young milliner, who came to this city from Dayton. Bradford's relatives objected to the wedding, saying that the woman only wanted his money. She soon deserted Bradford and a lawsuit followed, which resulted in a financial way for the woman.

For the last year the old man has been a lonely widower, and a few days ago he wrote to Mrs. Dollie Snider, in this city, offering $1,000 to any person who would furnish him a pretty and refined bride. The letter was given to another woman, and the prospected bride was selected in the person of Mrs. Indiana Danto, aged 28, the widow of a New Orleans French detective. Mrs. Danto consented to become Mrs Bradford if the old man would give her $6,000 as a wedding present. He consented, and came here prepared to be a bridegroom again last night.

He met Mrs Danto at the home of Mrs. Snider, and the wedding was about to take place when Joseph Duckworth, a prominent attorney and wealthy widower, learned of the proceedings. The result was that Bradford and his money were rejected and a day set for the wedding of Mr. Duckworth and Mrs. Danto. The latter is handsome and has borne a good reputation. She has been earning a livelihood as a domestic.

A HIGHWAYMAN IN CHICAGO.

A Prominent Man Robbed Near the World's Fair Grounds.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Joseph J. Magrady, a member of the Board of Education, was driving near the World's Fair grounds when he was stopped by a highwayman, who, with a levelled revolver, demanded his money. Magrady whipped up his horse to escape. The robber aimed at the flying horse and shot and killed the animal. Magrady jumped out of his trap and ran, but the robber sent one bullet whistling past the fugitive's ear and he quickly stopped. He then raised his hands and the thief took $150 and a gold watch. The boldness of the affair staggered the police, but after 50 men had run down many clues, Emil Horstman was arrested and identified as the robber.

THREE DROWNED, ONE ESCAPED.

The Sad End of a New Jersey Family Bathing Party.

RIVEREDGE, N. J., Aug. 24.—Albert Van Voornis, his wife, Mary, and her sister Hannah F. Wells, all young, have been drowned while bathing in the Hackensack River. Mr. Voorhis was chemist for Gideon E. Moore, No. 222 Pearl street, New York. He has been on his vacation, and went to the shore to bathe. He was accompanied by his wife, 6-year-old son, Edmund, Hannah Wells, Ida Waterbury and Edward Anderson, aged 6. The party erected a canopy on the shore, in which they disrobed. Mrs. Van Voorhis got into one of the many suckholes in which the river abounds and cried for help. Her husband went to assist her. Neither could swim. In her struggles Mrs. Van Voorhis caught Miss Wells and pulled her down. Mrs. Waterbury, who could swim, attempted to help them, but was not able to get them out. Mrs. Van Voorhis had seized the others and drawn them down with her. Mrs. Waterbury narrowly escaped.

Believed to Have Been 125 Years Old.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Aug. 23.—The oldest woman in Georgia died at the poorhouse on Sunday morning. It will sound like fiction to state Aunt Peggy Slater's age, but all her acquaintances and her old master say that her age was 125. Aunt Peggy did not date events from the civil war, as many do, but from the revolution. Aunt Peggy had outlived all her children except one, and there were quite a number of them. The one living is in her 97th year.

Homestead and Buffalo.

[From the Canada Farmers' Sun.]

There is and has been a vitally important difference between the situation at Homestead and the condition of affairs attending the Buffalo railway strike. The workingmen at Homestead, while they went beyond the law in interfering with others willing to work in their places, did not attempt to destroy the property of their employers. For the terrible scenes which attended the conflict with the Pinkerton men the Homestead workingmen cannot be held responsible.

In Buffalo the condition of affairs is very different. Property has been deliberately and wantonly destroyed, the torch has been applied to the cars of the railway companies and the merchandise which those cars contained, and there has been deliberate and lawless obstruction to the passage of railway trains. This is Anarchy. It cannot be tolerated; it cannot be compromised with; it must be suppressed.

The entire militia of New York State has been called out to suppress this strike, and directly and indirectly the costs will be enormous. Both sides are determined to win, and both have hosts of sympathizers throughout the country, who are willing to extend financial aid while the struggle continues. It is spreading daily over a larger territory, and no one can prophesy what the end may be.

So far as the Homestead strike is concerned no provision has been made for a resort to arbitration by either party. In the Buffalo affair the situation is different. The Interstate Railway Act was passed in 1888. The bill has for its foundation stone the constitutional provisions giving Congress authority over interstate commerce. It authorizes the creation of boards of arbitration or commissions for the settlement of controversies and differences between railroad corporations and other common carriers engaged in interstate transportation and their employes. If either party applies for arbitration the other side must accept the overture, and the finding of the board is binding upon both. Each side selects a disinterested arbitrator, and the two select a third, and then the conclusion the three reach must be respected. If it is necessary the full military force of the United States Government will be called out to enforce the result of the arbitration.

This board of arbitration would possess all the powers and authority in respect to administering oaths, subpœnaing witnesses, and compelling attendance, preserving order during the sittings of the board, and requiring the production of papers and writings relating alone to the subject under investigation, which belong to a United States commissioner appointed by a circuit court. It is added, however, that "in no case shall any witness be compelled to disclose the secrets or produce the record or proceedings of any labor orginization of which he may be an officer or member."

Both parties of the Buffalo controversy and struggle are culpable inasmuch as neither has manifested a belief that its claims are just. Neither party appears to be confident that the arbitrators would view their demands with approbation. Passion and pride prevent an appeal to the statute that would prevent a vast expenditure in money and the loss of many lives.

But the most lamentable feature of the case is the fact that while neither side can with propriety appeal to force, whether constabulary or military, until it has availed itself of the mode of settlement created by Congress, the entire militia of New York State has been called out, and the citizen soldiery of the United States may be called upon before these lines are read to sacrifice the lives of their fellow-citizens.

What a commentary on the freedom of the United States! Somebody in authority, the Governor of the State and others, blunder in ignorance or in defiance of the law. Members of the militia force who call themselves freemen are marshaled in battle array and compelled to murder their comrades, mayhap their brothers and sons, who like themselves are only obeying the orders of their superiors. Freedom like this is damnable even in a heathen country.

Less than half a century ago in Great Britain there was a bread riot in Bristol. Famished sailors seized bread in the face of resistance from the proprietors of stores and bakeries, and rioting prevailed throughout the town. The gallant Scotch Grays were ordered to suppress the riot, but refused to turn out, and for their offense were compelled to perform foreign service for seven years. The colonel of the regiment, who had refused to order his men to proceed to slaughter the sailors, was, at the trial, taunted with a charge of cowardice, but challenged any one to name the occasion when the Scotch Grays had not fought valiantly against every enemy of the country, and declared his readiness again to engage in battle with any foreign foe, but against the citizens of his own country—never!

The freedom of which workingmen in any country may boast is a shadow. They are slaves too frequently when they know it not. Few men fully realize their subordinate condition.

It is thought probable that a joint stock company will be formed to rebuild and operate the Great Western mills at Woodstock.

A Woodstock dispatch says that great satisfaction is expressed by the dairymen of that district over the intelligence conveyed in advance sheets of the dairy commissioners' annual report. The patrons of the Mount Elgin creamery will be paid for the butter which was manufactured to the end of February at 24 cents per pound, and for the butter manufactured during March and April at 21 cents per pound. The patrons of the Woodstock dairy station will be paid for the butter which was manufactured to the end of February at 22 cents per pound, and for the butter manufactured during March and April at 21 cents per pound. The difference in the price between the Mount Elgin and Woodstock makes of butter was mainly due to the fact that the cream only was collected at Woodstock.

Mothers Say It Is the Best!

The mothers of Canada who have used Lactated Food emphathically declare that it is far ahead of all other prepared foods for infants.

The manufacturers of Lactated Food are continually receiving the most flattering testimonials from mothers in every city and town of the Dominion; all praise Lactated Food, and give it first place after having tried all other makes.

Every physician in Canada who has had the chance of trying Lactated Food, strongly recommends it. The most weighty opinions, however, come from the thousands of mothers who daily use it. They have seen its good effects and are delighted beyond measure.

FRANKED BY A CONGRESSMAN.

And Every Voter Is to Get a Copy of Henry George's Book.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The Manhattan Single Tax Club has decided to put a copy of Henry George's "Protection or Free Trade" in the hands of every registered voter in the city before the election. This is a result of getting the book into the Congressional Record. Having been in the Record it can be sent free through the mails by a Congresaman's frank.

The Congressman who will give his frank for that purpose is the Hon. Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland. The book will cost 1 cent a copy, and as there were 300,000 registered voters at the last election the club will have to raise about $3,000 to put the scheme through. When the money has been raised the list of voters will be sent to Congressman Johnson's bureau in Washington, and thence the copies will be franked to the address in this city.

QUEBEC'S CRUMBLING WALLS.

The Gibraltar of America Gradually Falling Into Decay.

QUEBEC, Aug. 23.—The $25,000,000 fortifications of Quebec, the old walled city of the north, the Gibraltar of America, are falling into decay, and the question now uppermost in the minds of the military authorities of Canada is whether they are worth the expenditure that would be necessary to place them again in a condition of good repair and thenceforward to so maintain them, or whether they shall be allowed to crumble away of their own accord. So long as Quebec was garrisoned by British troops, the citadel and other fortifications were kept in good repair by the Royal Engineers—adetachment of whom was always stationed in Canada. Subsequently the care of the Dominion's defenses was transferred to its own Government, with the result already indicated. Major-General Herbert, commanding the Canadian forces, and Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Militia, have just terminated an official inspection of the fortifications of Quebec, and notwithstanding the reports that had already reached there expressed considerable surprise at the dilapidated condition of portions of the city walls.

The difficulty in the way of making proper repairs is the fear of the Militia Department that Parliament will refuse to vote sufficient means to defray the cost, the whole revenue of the Dominion being now required for the purposes of present and future utility, while the fortifications of Quebec are regarded as the relic only of a barbaric past.

The present fortifications of Quebec are by no means so ancient as they are generally represented. They were planned by the late Duke of Wellington, and only completed in 1832. As already indicated $25,000,000 of good money was thrown away on their construction, and, as the entire line of ramparts and bastions is two miles and three-quarters in length, it may readily be imagined how heavy would be the cost of keeping it in good repair. It should be added that these present works replaced the old French fortifications, which in their time cost, together with what was boodled by the colonial officials of the day, so immense a sum that Louis XIV. asked on one occasion if the walls of Quebec were built of gold.

ROYAL BON VIVANTS.

What the Crowned Heads of Europe Eat and Drink—Some of Them Have Plebeian Tastes.

The Czar of all the Russias has a gigantic appetite, or rather the appetite of a giant. He commences the day by breakfasting at 7 o'clock with tea, ham, eggs and cold roast beef; at 11 o'clock lunch, consisting of eggs beaten up in broth, mutton chops, cold game, chicken, fish, vegetables, sweets, all washed down by several cups of very strong coffee. The Czar is very fond of fish, and generally likes to eat the fish he himself has caught, and has it served at every meal. At 2 o'clock he will eat a plain rice pudding. It is needless to say his dinner is splendid and succulent, which does not prevent him taking tea with biscuits and cakes before going to rest. Leo XIII. is the most frugal man alive. His holiness rises early, hears mass and then takes a cup of cafe au lait; he dines at 3, his menu consisting of soup, two kinds of meat (roasted), with vegetables, fruit and a glass of claret, good Bordeaux. During lent the Pope substitutes for meat, eggs and fish. Leo XIII. never sups or dines late, but sometimes takes before going to bed a cup of milk with sponge biscuits. The Queen of Sweden adores the meat pies made in Nice, with olive oil and hard-boiled eggs, and is very fond of the Swedish national dish—salmon preserved in the ground. His imperial Majesty of Germany is very difficile, but having often been in England in his youth, has a decided taste for ham and eggs and muffins, which, on dit, he gets direct from London to eat with his tea in the morning, and prefers English to German cooking. His Majesty's favorite drinks are beer and champagne, but it must be said that in this latter he is most abstemious.

Prince Bismarck, like the Czar, is an enormous eater, but eats little in the morning, reserving himself for dinner at 7 o'clock in the evening, when he devours like an ostrich, meat fish, vegetables, sweets, fruit, etc.; he also drinks like a fish. Uno avulso, non deficit alter. The Empress of Austria occupies herself personally with her menu, and to be practical she has invented a spit where 100 fowls can be roasted at once. Both she and the Emporer eat little, but the table is the best served in Europe; and it is said her Majesty makes all the jams for her husband's eating. Louis Philippe, King of the French, was not a great eater, but his son, Duc d'Aumale, is abstinence itself, even at Chantilly, where Louis XIV.'s famous chief committed suicide. Prince Jerome Bonaparte was a great gourmand, while Napoleon III. had the worst table in France, but the best cigars, of which he was very proud. Gambetta made his best speech after a good dinner. The Sultan is most abstemious, eating only rice, mutton, and for drink, fresh water. President Carnot has the best table in France, the stomach of an ostrich, and, consequently, must have a clear conscience and good teeth.

The little King of Spain, of course, still keeps to infantile food; his mother is a simple eater, her favorite drink being soda water, and she causes many bottles to be opened to make her baby son laugh with the fizz. The King of the Belgians is a noted gourmand, that being reckoned among his other vices. The King of the Hellenes likes Danish cookery, Queen Olga likes Russian, and as these do not please everybody, French cookery is added for their guests. King Humbert of Italy eats but little, contrary to his frather, il re galantuomo, who was a bon viveur in every sense of the word; Queen Margherita is the only royal gourmand the fair sex can boast of; she is said to have a plate of strawberries served her every day during the year. Humbert drinks little or no wine, preferring water to the best wines, and gets over his dinner as soon as possible. It is said the German Emperor is quicker still, his dinner never lasting at the most over half an hour, and as he can only use one hand his chop-sticks unite a fork on one side, on the other a knife.—[San Francisco News Letter.

A MALE FLIRT ASSESSED.

Not Allowed to Toy With Tender Affections.

What should a young lady do when a gentleman in making her an offer of marriage volunteers the confession that he is "what they call a flirt," and warns her that it will be "impossible for him to give up his friends immediately, simply because he had become engaged?" If she were wise she would no doubt reply with equal frankness male flirts were not to her taste. But Mr. Frederick Brand George, of Wells, Eng., who wrote in this strain to Miss Boys, of that town, mingled these curiously frank avowals with many protestations of love, and possibly Miss Boys did not take them quite seriously. At all events, she replied accepting his suit, and declaring that she would "try to make herself worthy of him"—which perhaps was not saying much. Unfortunately, Mr. George's description of himself proved, according to Miss Boys' account of the matter, to be only too accurate. Her lover, she affirms, "slighted her very much, and behaved in a very unjust manner, and kissed other women." The discursive kissing was possibly a fulfillment of his determination not to give up his other friends immediately simply because he was engaged. But Miss Boys complained, and there were bickerings. At last the flirting wooer sent her letters back by rail, and then the lawyers were called in, and Mr. Charles Matthews was retained to champion the lady's cause in the Bristol Guildhall. Clearly Miss Boys took the business very much to heart, for she addressed her faithless suitor in the following pathetic strain: "To a man of honor, and to my thinking, we are married as surely as if the marriage knot had been tied, but men of the world evidently think differently. Why did you not propose to one of those girls you have known in your world and have left me alone? I was perfectly happy and innocent before you came to me, and should have been so still but for you. Oh! Brand, Brand, I could not have thought you would have behaved so." A Somersetshire jury, having listened to Mr. Matthew's appeal, gave a verdict for Miss Boys with £500 damages.

The Apiary.

—A tall hive is better than a shallow wide one. Almost all box and log hives are taller than their diameter. The heat is always above the bees. The combs do not shrink and break the capping, causing the honey to absorb moisture and sour, giving the bees the diarrhea.

—A box-hive or log gum is a better hive to winter bees in than one with hanging frames with narrow end bars, both to be single walled. In a log or box hive, each comb acts as a division board. In a frame hive the heat goes around the ends of the frames, and perhaps over the tops of them, compelling the bees to warm the whole hive in order to exist.

—Honey-bees haunt the flowers and blossoming trees of New York, especially the horse-chestnuts. The blossoms of this tree have a peculiar fascination for bees of all sorts, and in regions where bees are plentiful, there is a noise as of a swarm about each horse-chestnut. It is an old tradition that the horse-chestnut blossom contains an intoxicant which makes the honey seekers drunk, and causes them to drop senseless to the ground, where they become the prey of ants.

—The Scotch people are pretty hard to get ahead of in many things, and the following is but a fair sample of the proof that they are not far behind some other people who are noted for "tricks that are vain:" A speculative Scotch gentleman wanted to dispose of some bees, so to attract purchasers he printed the following placard: "Extensive sale of live stock, comprising no less than 140,000 head, with an unlimited right of pasturage." The ingenious trick succeeded to admiration, for his "stock" brought high prices.

—This is none too soon to have an eye to getting bees ready for winter. Plenty of good sealed honey, young queens and vigorous bees are the desiderata. Let all good colonies alone if they are storing surplus. It is wise to save all the honey possible while the flow of nectar lasts. On looking over an apiary of any size, colonies will be found that are not storing surplus, although they may have been a few weeks since; their case of sections may be partially filled, but they have swarmed probably more than once, and are so weak that they will not finish them during the season. One case of sealed sections is worth much more than many partially filled, and all such should be removed to colonies that are able to complete them, in lieu of giving empty ones. When the case of partially-completed sections are removed, the state of the colony can be ascertained, and if found queenless it had better be united with some colony containing a laying one.

The second summer show of the Scottish Bee-keepers' Association, which was founded in April of last year by Sir Thomas D. Gibson-Carmichael, Bart., was held recently. The exhibit was divided into two sections, one of the appliances and honey for competition for the prizes offered by the Scottish Bee-keepers' Association, and the other consisted of the very fine collection of British and foreign appliances pertaining to all branches of apiculture as at present practiced. A notable feature, and one which attracted great attention, was a huge model of a honey-bee. It showed the internal arrangement of the insect, and the uses of the various organs were explained in a popular manner at frequent intervals. The collection was greatly enhanced by the fine colored drawings showing the relations of bees to flowers, the work of Lady Gibson-Carmichael. The great distance from England somewhat interfered with the entries of appliances, but there was nevertheless a very creditable display from both amateur and professional exhibitors resident in Scotland. The appliance section included some most ingenious contrivances for the manipulation of bees and obtaining the best results of their labors. Honey, as was anticipated, was a smaller show than last year at Stirling, owing to the backward season, but the leading English apiarians sent beautiful exhibits, and the stages were well filled with comb and extracted honey.

GENERAL MANAGER SEARGEANT'S VIEWS.

When General Manager Seargeant of the Grand Trunk Railway talks about international relations, he invariably says something worthy of consideration. At New York, while meeting Sir Henry Tyler the other day, he referred to the canal tolls controversy in these terms:

"There should not be any restriction on the free transportation of commerce either way between this country and Canada. The interchange should be as free on the canals as on the railroads. The Grand Trunk road built a tunnel costing over $3,000,000 under the St. Clair River to encourage an interchange of traffic between the two countries, and the project is a great success. I should be sorry to see any restrictions placed upon the free trade passage of goods through the tunnel, as it is of great benefit to both Canadian and American shippers."

There is sound sense in this statement. The Grand Trunk general manager is seized of the immense importance of the international carrying trade to the people of Canada. He has before now expressed his belief that it is in the best interests of his road, and of its thousands of employes, that there should be the freest possible trade relations between the two countries. He knows, as we do, that without the freight of the United States, not only the St. Clair tunnel but the entire railway system of Canada would be placed at a serious disadvantage, and that the employes would suffer with the stockholders. General Manager Seargeant, representing as he does a company with vast interests on both sides of the border, can speak with authority on the necessity existing for the people of both countries taking a common sense rather than a jingo attitude in regard to international trade relations. The sensible man will discourage and not stimulate retaliatory legislation. Commerce is too valuable to all of us to be played battledore and shuttlecock with.

THE HAMILTON SPECTATOR is armed to the teeth, and may at any moment turn its batteries on the United States. It is not yet known whether Police Magistrate Denison or Sam Hughes will take command.

DOESN'T LIKE TO HEAR ABOUT IT

Our city contemporary cannot bear to be reminded of the London election outrage, and the share which it had in that disreputable transaction. It beseeches the ADVERTISER not to print anything relating to the theft of the seat to which Mr. Hyman was elected.

It gives us pleasure to save the feelings of the judicial editor of the Free Press as far as it may be consistent with our duty to do so. But there is a limit to our good nature, and we cannot suppress new facts regarding this most important subject, or fail to print contemporary views on the heinousness of the conduct of the men who aided and abetted Mr. Carling to get hold of a seat in Parliament to which he has no more claim than the page at the door.

The truth regarding this shameful transaction cannot be too often told. Until such time as the electors have a chance to show their detestation of the outrage we propose from time to time to keep their memory refreshed.

Our contemporary douhtless dislikes to hear about it, but it should have thought of all this when, by the pen of Judge Elliott, it was urging the rightfulness of the course that pitted the decision of six superior court judges—several of them good Conservatives, too — against the prejudiced views of Mr. Carling's advocate.

CENTRALIZATION CONSIDERED.

This country is too big to have its educational interests centred at Ottawa. Even in Great Britain the partial centralization of the educational interests in London is found to be a serious drawback in the management of the Scottish and Irish public schools.

There is, of course, some merit in the view that there should be an equality in the standard of teachers' certificates throughout the Dominion. But that would not compensate the people of Ontario for the disadvantages incident to the management of their public schools at Ottawa. And if centralization is objectionable from our point of view, how much more so would it be in the case of Manitoba or British Columbia?

The Dominion Parliament is now loaded up with enough of work without further advancement towards legislative union. It is constantly delegating to royal commissions the consideration of questions coming within its purview. How much greater would be the temptation to unload its work on irresponsible bodies if the schools of the country were managed at Ottawa? Moreover, the Toronto News, which is advocating the policy of centralization on the score of patriotism, appears to lose sight of the fact that the change it advocates would only be brought about by the dissolution of the Confederation, and that the right to manage their educational affairs on the compromise basis adopted, in 1867 is one of the keystones of the structure. Is our contemporary ready for the smashing of Confederation?

COL. SAUNDERSON, M.P., has been one of the most persistent opponents of Irish reform. Perhaps the result of the Irish Land Commission's investigation of the Colonel's rents will account for his desire to keep affairs as they have been. Col. Saunderson has been wont to argue that Irish discontent arises solely from unprincipled agitators. The Land Commissioners, however, show how profitable the status quo has been for this representative opponent of Mr. Gladstone. After hearing the evidence on both sides, the commissioners reduced the rent on 37 of Col. Saunderson's farms an average of 40 per cent. No wonder he was satisfied. But what of the rack-rented tenants?

THE EXODUS.

Mr. A. H. Hipple, dentist, has sold out his business in Stratford, and will settle in Omaha, Neb. He was secretary of the North Perth Reform Association, and evidently favors annexation.—[London Free Press.

Yes, he is a practical annexationist, and in that respect he resembles 1,500,000 Canadians now residing in the United States. The exodus is made up of members of both political parties, and so far as we have been able to observe the average man who has prated loudly about his determination to stand by trade restriction contributes the larger portion of his family to the adjoining republic. We deplore this state of affairs, and have endeavored to stem the tide of the outflow by advocating the removal of those shackles on the industry of the Canadian people that make them restive under existing anomalous conditions. The misfortune is that the party now in power is tied up to the combines.

We see no cause for sneering at those of our young men who change their allegiance with the object of benefiting their fortunes. When even ex-Cabinet Ministers of Conservative Governments cross the lines to increase their gains, who can blame the common people for following their example? Our chief regret is that, as a consequence of existing conditions, this fine Province, with so many natural advantages, is annually depleted of the most progressive of its sons.

The Perth dentist goes to Omaha, because in that locality he expects to find enough of expatriated old-time neighbors to enable him to make a living. "'Tis true, 'tis pity, and pity 'tis 'tis true."

HAY IN EVIDENCE.

Mr. Stevenson, M. P. for West Peterboro, asserts that hay is selling for $6 a ton in his constituency. In Syracuse, just over Lake Ontario, it brings from $8 to $14, according to quality. Trade restriction invariably prevents the Canadian farmer from making the most of his resources. We have one of the most fruitful sections of the continent in this Province of ours, and our farmers, and all who depend upon them, should not lack for prosperity, but the high tax policy prevents them from enjoying the full fruits of their earnings. Combines and unscrupulous M.P.s alone profit by this system.

TOPICS OF TO-DAY.

The estimated cost of the World's Fair at Chicago is $18,000,000, which is a reduction from the figures given the Dockery Committee of about $4,000,000. This, of course, means the cost to the corporation. The actual total cost will be somewhere in the neighbothood of $25,000,000, the owners of concessions meeting the additional expense. "The fair will be just as complete and splendid as it was ever planned to be," is the assurance of the News.

‡‡‡

The Nineteenth Century for August opens with contributions by eight prominent men, who give at some length their reasons for voting for Mr. Gladstone, to which the ADVERTISER has already referred at length. Col. Kennedy Herbert writes entertainingly on "The Art of Dining." Mr. W. Fraser Rae has a well-informed article on "The Egyptian Newspaper Press." Dr. Jean Paul Richter contributes a valuable paper on "Art Studentship of the Early Renaissance Painters." Mr. Archibald Forbes' article on "The French Empress and the German War" is alternately thrilling and pathetic. The Governor of Tasmania discusses "Lending Money to Australia." Edward Dicey discusses the results of the recent election in a paper on "The Verdict of England." There are articles by Charles F. Goss on "Muley Hassan," by Major Willoughby Vernof on "Dungeness or Dover?" a remarkable account of "A Trial by Lynch Law" by R. B. Townsend, and a most interesting series of "Notes of a Virginian Journey" by E. S. Nadal, and American gentleman whose numerous contributions to American periodicals have given him a wide reputation. New York: Leonard Scott Publication Company.

‡‡‡

"Ladies may be interested to know," says a writer to London Truth, "that a muddy complexion is often a consequence of violent clambering of hills, the blood losing, when overcharged with carbonic acid, its ruddy glow, and the skin deficacy in trying to aid in working off the poison. Soft, clear complexions are much more common in 'rolling' countries than in highlands. The Swedish women have in this respect a great advantage over the Norwegian; and, so far as I can judge from personal observation, the Ayrshire girls have more to be proud of than the Highland lassies. Those who go in for pedestrianism and lawn tennis should carefully drill their breathing organs to keep their good looks (when blessed with them), or to improve their appearance when they are not good-looking. Spirits suffer just as much as appearance from the self-poisoning process of which I have been speaking. Have you ever noticed what fearfully cross beings gentlemen become after a hard day's deer-stalking?"

FREEDOM.

[Chicago Herald.]

Freedom is sweet, freedom of trade as well as freedom of speech, and when men once get it they will not surrender it again without a protest and a struggle.

POSSIBILITIES OF ENGLISH.

[Detroit Free Press.]

A Texas newspaper tells us of a couple that were "nuptiated." The possibilities the English language have not been half exhausted.

THE WAY THE MONEY GOES.

[St. Catherines Star, Conservative.]

There are enough superintendents, deputy-superintendents and other officials on the Welland Canal to run the whole canal system of the country. There is a superintendent for almost every deputy and a deputy for nearly every locktender. There is room for a great deal of economy in the management of the Welland Canal.

SHE WAS THE PEOPLE.

[Chicago News Record.]

Take off your hat to your fair stenographer this morning. Meet your young woman typewriter with a salutation of exceeding humility. Miss Sanger, President Harrison's typewriter, is in full charge of the White House. For Private Secretary Halford is away, and the President's family is on a vacation. The typist, stenographer, typewriter, autotyper, or whatever she is called, is the first lady in the land to-day.

DENNIS WOULDE B HIS NAME.

[Windsor Record.]

The London ADVERTISER very properly draws Mr. Mowat's attention to the intemperate language indulged in by Mr. Mowat's fire-eating Col. Denison, of Toronto. For speaking his mind on the future of this country, Mr. Myers was dismissed from office. It is largely the language indulged in by men like Denison that has stirred up the retaliatory feeling of our neighbors. If Sir Oliver Mowat would do his duty Denison's name would be Dennis.

THE INTERESTS OF THE COLONIES.

[South Wales (Eng.) Daily News.]

The interests of the colonies are at present sacrificed owing to neglect by British public men. Cape Colony lost Damaraland because the Colonial Minister of the Imperial Government disallowed its annexation; Australia lost the greater portion of New Guinea by reason of a similar disallowance; the relations of Canada with the United States have to be regulated circuitously, Canada, like other parts of the Empire, having no fair share in the decision of questions which, to her, are of vital consequence, although of only secondary importance to the Old Country. The relation of Natal with Zululand was, a few years ago, the subject of frequent discussion, but the Natal colonists themselves had only an indirect way of influencing the decision. It is imperative that a change should be made, for the relations of colonies with the Mother Country are of so unsatisfactory a nature that they might not stand a strain such as would be but upon them in the event of European complications that at any moment may occur.

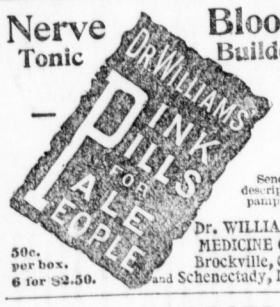

POLITICIANS, NOT PEOPLE, UNFRIENDLY.

[Canada Presbyterian.]

Whatever bad feeling exists between Canada and the United States has been caused mainly by recklesss newspapers and by politicians bidding for votes. The people of both countries never were on more friendly terms and never mingled more freely. Toronto is a favorite city with many of our neighbors. No summer passes here without meetings of American associations and societies of one kind and another. Excursionists from the other side are on the streets every day. Montreal is full of Americans every summer. American ministers are often brought over here to open churches, preach anniversary sermons, address conventions and do other special work. Canadian congregations—and very important ones too—not unfrequently call ministers from the American Church. There is not a word said about the "old flag" or British connection or anything of that kind when a minister is being called. The most conspicuous admirer of British connection will vote for a spiritual adviser from the other side in preference to a born and bred loyal Canadian if it seems to suit his purpose so to do. The most loyal congregation will bring a preacher from the other side to open a church if they can draw fifty more people or make ten more dollars by so doing. In social life, Americans and Canadians agree very much better than many Canadians agree among themselves. It is not easy to find a family that has no connections across the lines. The fact is, the people of the two countries never were more friendly that at the very time their rulers began a commercial war. The politicians are responsible for the trouble, and the people are responsible for putting the politicians in high places armed with almost infinite power to do harm.

ITCHING AND BURNING

Sores All Over Her Body. Suffering Endless. Doctor Useless. Cured in Four Weeks by Cuticura.

Your most valuable CUTICURA REMEDIES have done my little girl so much good that I feel like saying this for the benefit of those who are troubled with skin diseases. She was troubled with itching, burning sores. When I took her to the doctor the first time, he called it the Italian itch, and said he would cure her in two weeks. When the two weeks were up, he call it eczema, and in that time she was worse than before. He doctored her for three months, and she was so bad that we did not know what to do. He did not do her any good. I saw the advertisement of CUTICURA REMEDIES in the paper, and I said to my wife, "I am going to try them." Mind what I say, she was so thick with sores that we had to soak her clothes to take them off. Itch! there was no end of it. She had it all over her body, back, legs, arms, in between her fingers. She did not have it on her head. But after taking your CUTICURA REMEDIES for two weeks the itch stopped, and in four weeks the sores were all gone. I inclose her portrait. I am more than pleased with your CUTICURA REMEDIES, as they speedily cured my daughter, and if anybody asks me about your remedies, I will uphold them wherever I go.

Scrofula in the Neck

The following is from Mrs. J. W. Tillbrook, wife of the Mayor of McKeesport, Penn.:

Willie Tillbrook.

"My little boy Willie, now six years old, two years ago had a bunch under one ear which the doctor said was Scrofula. As it continued to grow he finally lanced it and it discharged for some time. We then began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla and he improved very rapidly until the sore healed up. Last winter it broke out again, followed by Erysipelas. We again gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla with most excellent results and he has had no further trouble. His cure is due to

THE TURF.

NANCY HANKS TO MAUD S.

You've had your dazzling day, my dear,
O Maud, you bonniest girl of Bonner,
But still I pass you with a tear,
Indeed I do, upon my honor;
I'm first at last, but to the end
I'll ever be your fast, fast friend!

You wish me joy? A thousand thanks,
Sweet Maud, the turf's world-famous daughter,
You have the heart of Nancy Hanks—
The time? 2:07 and ¼:
I'm sure that you will not be miffed
On finding I am rather swift?

Henceforth in every equine set
The queen of queens will I be reckoned,
And yet—don't answer neigh—and yet
You are an unexampled second;
Cheer up, 'twould vex me sore indeed
To learn that you were off your feed.

"Calm is the only joy" 'tis writ,
The line for me has no attraction;
I love to get me up and git,
I find supremest joy in action—
The time? As I remarked before,
2:07 and a trifle more.

"Time flies"—you've heard the proverb, dear?
But after this I rather fancy
You will not tempus fugit hear,
But always simply, fugit Nancy—
I'm sure you'll think me vain and silly,
A feather-headed little filly.

I'd scorn to boast, of course you know,
But naught my well-earned rapture hinders—
O Maud, if you had seen me go
And smash that record all to flinders?
The time? As I remarked before,
2:07 and a trifle more.

P. S.—
One point I quite forgot, my dear—
I really hope I do not bore you—
And that's a point 'tis very clear
I must in fairness lay before you;
I made that matchless burst of speed
(You never saw such splendid action!)
In—so the judges all agreed—
2:07 and a tiny fraction.

LONDON RACES.

The London Turf Association summer meeting is certainly a success as far as good sport is concerned. Yesterday was the opening day, and three well-contested events were on the list. The free-for-all was probably the best race ever held on Queen's Park track. Some of the fastest horses in Canada were the contestants, and the four heats already trotted were intensely exciting. Up to that day the fastest mile ever trotted or paced on this track was in 2:26½. Yesterday both Sorrel George and Florence G. lowered that record, the former by 1¼ seconds and the latter by 2¼ seconds. The 2:35 and three-minute classes for trotters were both hotly contested. Six heats were trotted in the latter before the judges could award the money. Only one accident happened, and in that neither driver nor horse was injured. The crowd was not as large as it should have been. It was ladies' day, and the members of the fair sex were well represented. The pool-seller and the Cavalry band were there. Two or three pneumatic sulkies were on the track, and apparently work well. They are claimed to be faster than the ordinary sulkies and also to be easier on the horses. It is clearly to be seen that they do not swerve on the track when turning corners. The wheels resemble those of a pneumatic bicycle in every particular. Some of the sulkies are higher in the seat than others. These are the first of the kind that have ever been on this track and they are worth seeing. This afternoon the races will commence at 1:30 sharp, and good sport is assured. Some of the fastest horses in the country will be on the track. R. J. Wheeler, of Toledo, Ohio, is starter, and J. Anderson, of Seaforth, and — Moore, of St. Thomas, are the judges.

THE THREE-MINUTE TROT.

In this race there were ten entries—Major Eddy, Jennie Leotard, Ida Brock, Maggie C., Billy Weir, Forest Girl, Tilly Wilkes, Jim Douglas and Pat. Jennie was scratched.

As usual a good deal of difficulty was experienced in getting a start. The starter, R. F. Wheeler, warned the drivers that anyone being ahead of the pole horse would be taxed $25. More care was taken after that warning had been given. Forest Girl got a good lead at the first, but was passed by Ida Brock on the home stretch. Forest Girl was a good second and Maggie C. a good third. The other horses came up fairly well, but were not in the heat to any extent. Jim Douglas was fourth, Billy Weir fifth, Major Eddy sixth, Leotard seventh, Tilly Wilkes eighth and Pat ninth. Time, 2:37½.

In the second heat the horses were all in a bunch at the half. Ida Brock won the heat, Maggie C. second, Jim Douglas third, Billy Weir fourth, Forest Girl five, Leotard sixth, Major Eddy seventh, Tilly Wilkes eighth, Pat ninth. Time, 2:38.

In the third heat Charles Ray was not allowed to drive Maggie C., and Mel Odell took his place. Ray was supposed to be holding the mare in. Ida Brock took the lead from the start, but at the half-mile Maggie C. was neck-and-neck with her. Maggie broke at the three-quarter pole and fell away behind, coming under the wire at a gallop. The mare's owner claimed that the change of drivers caused the loss of the heat to him. Ida Brock was first, Jim Douglas second, Billy Weir third, Forest Girl fourth, Major Eddy fifth, Maggie C. sixth, Tilly Wilkes seventh, Leotard eighth and Pat ninth. The race and first money were awarded to Ida Brock, second to Jim Douglas and third to Maggie C.

THE 2:35 TROT.

The entries in this event were Pete Curran, Chestnut Hill, jun., Tommy R., Brinker Sprague, Bob Rysdyck, Daisy S., Patsy D., Strogoff, Prince and Tom Burke. Tom Burke and Prince were scratched. Barney Barnes, of St. Thomas, was driving Pete Curran. Brinker Sprague was contrary and broke in each heat when scoring.

In the first heat Tommy R. was first at the half and Strogoff a good second. They retained these positions until the finish. The others came up in a bunch. Bob Rysdyck third, Patsy D. fourth, Daisy S. fifth, Pete Curran sixth, Chestnut Hill, jun., seventh and Brinker Sprague eighth. Time, 2:32.

In the second heat Tommy R. took the lead from the first with Strogoff close behind. The latter broke at the quarter pole, but retained second place until on the home stretch, when he broke again and was passed by Bob Rysdyck. Strogoff was a good third. Pete Curran was fourth, Patsy D. fifth, Prince sixth, Chestnut Hill, jun., seventh, and Brinker Sprague eighth. Time, 2:35¼.

In the third heat there was quite a change. Bob Rysdyck had a good lead until he reached the 100 yard pole, when he broke. His driver claimed that the flag man scared the horse. The flag man blamed the break on a couple of women who stepped out from behind a tree. The judges set the horse back to second place and awarded Pete Curran first, Strogoff third, Patsy D. fourth, Tommy R. fifth, Brinker Sprague sixth, Prince seventh and Chestnut Hill eighth. Time, 2:34¼.

The fourth heat was a succession of breaks. Pete Curran took the lead from the first, but broke and was passed by Strogoff, who was close behind. They both broke, and Brinker Sprague pulled up even with Strogoff. Strogoff gained and held the lead until the finish. Brinker Sprague was second, Patsy D. third, Tommy R. fourth, Chestnut Hill, jun., fifth, Pete Curran sixth and Prince seventh. Time, 2:38.

The fifth heat was characterized by the first accident of the day. Pete Curran's sulky collided with another, and collapsed about 100 yards from the wire. The driver bravely held to the horse until he stopped him. Strogoff held the lead until on the home stretch, when he broke and Bob Rysdyck passed him. Bob was a good second. Tommy R. was third, Prince fourth, Brinker Sprague fifth, Patsy D. sixth, Chestnut Hill, jun., seventh and Pete Curran eighth. Time, 2:32½.

Pete Curran, Bob Rysdyck, Tommy R. and Strogoff were the only starters in the sixth heat. At the end of the first half Tommy R was ahead, followed closely by Bob Rysdyck, Pete Curran and Strogoff in the order named. Tommy R. finished first, Bob Rysdyck second, Strogoff third and Pete Curran fourth. First money was awarded to Tommy R., second to Bob Rysdyck and third to Strogoff.

FREE-FOR-ALL TROT AND PACE.

There were seven entries for this race Sorrel George, Subscriber, Corncracker, Mechanic Girl, Prince M., Lochinvar and Florence G. Mechanic Girl was scratched. Sorrel George and Florence G. were driven in pneumatic sulkies. Corncracker drew the pole.

The first heat was an exciting one. Florence G. and Sorrel George broke on the start, and the former fell back to last place, where she remained until nearing the home stretch, when she pulled up and finished a good second. Lochinvar was first and Corncracker a good third. Sorrel George pulled up to second place at the three-quarter pole, but broke and finished fourth. Prince M. was fifth and Subscriber last. The first three horses were close together, and were going at full speed, as was also Sorrel George. The last two were almost walking. Time, 2:25¼.

In the second heat Sorrel George took the lead and kept it to the end. Prince M. made a push for second place, but broke and was passed by Florence G., who finished a good second. Corncracker was third, Lochinvar fourth, Subscriber fifth, and Prince M. last. The judges awarded Florence B. first, Corncracker second, Lochinvar third, Subscriber fourth, Prince M. fifth, and Sorrel George sixth. Time, 2:24¼.

After the horses got away in the third heat Florence G. and Sorrel George broke, and although the former had the lead she fell to last place and George to second last. Prince M. was well up until after the three-quarters pole had been passed, when he broke and fell behind. Lochinvar held the race, with Subscriber a good second. Corncracker was third, Prince M. fourth. Sorrel George fifth and Florence G. sixth, Time, 2:27.

Sorrel George broke in the second half of the fourth heat, and fell behind. At the half-mile Subscriber was first, Lochinvar second, and Sorrel George third. Prince M. won the heat, Lochinvar second, Subscriber third, Corncracker fourth, Sorrel George fifth, and Florence G. last. Time, 2:29.

His first trainer, G. W. Langs, of Simcoe, drove Alvin to his record of 2:13¼ at Chicago on Saturday, and the horse started in the name of Mr. Alvin D. Merrill, of Tilsonburg.

BASEBALL.

THE ALERTS' SIDE OF THE STORY.

The Alerts returned last night from Tilsonburg, where they were defeated by the Blues—and no wonder. The home team had gathered together all the professionals they could lay hands on, including Andrus, the well-known outfielder in the old International League. Pete Wood was put in the box. Up to the fifth inning the score stood 1 to 0 in favor of the Blues. Unluckily Quinn, the Alerts' catcher, split his finger and was unable to hold the ball, letting in a lot of runs. Johnson replaced him and did creditable work. Hiscott was not touched up to any great extent. The Blues play in this city Saturday, and the Alerts will do their best to turn the tables.

ATHLETICS.

JOHN L. ATTENDS MASS AND DROPS $50 ON THE PLATE.

CANOE PLACE INN, Aug. 23.—John L. Sullivan took it comparatively easy Sunday. He covered only ten miles and failed to punch the bag or skip the rope. In the morning he attended mass at St. Ann's Catholic Church at Southampton. Father Geiron, the pastor, made an appeal to the congregation for funds for the maintenance of the church. Sullivan put a $50-note on the plate. The champion was neatly dressed in a black cutaway coat, light trousers, and derby hat.

Life is double faced and double edged.

SOUND CANADIANISM.

St. Jean Baptiste's Celebration at Quebec.

Pointed and Pertinent Remarks by Hon. Wilfrid Laurier.

QUEBEC, Aug. 23.—The 50th anniversary of the St. Jean Baptist Society yesterday came off successfully. The demonstration was of an imposing nature. At an early hour crowds of people came pouring in from the surrounding parishes, and soon their numbers, added to the 20,000 strangers already arrived, made the crowds in the principal streets so dense that circulation was difficult and almost impossible in many places. The procession, which was the most popular features of the fete, marched through gaily decorated streets and took an hour and ten minutes to march past.

The principal event of the day was the banquet which took place in the evening at Jacques Cartier Hall. About 500 people attended. The hall was decorated with tricolor draperies, British and American flags. A number of toasts were proposed and responded to, but the enthusiasm reached its highest pitch when Mr. Laurier stepped forward to respond to the toast of "The Parliament of Canada." The whole audience rose to greet him, and it was some moments before he could make himself heard. Mr. Laurier spoke about twenty minutes, and his words and his advice will never be forgotten by those who heard them. Responding to the toast, he regretted to have to say that the health of the Parliament of Canada was not by any means as good as could be wished. Its complexion was unnatural, being rather blue than red. Hercules, exhausted, recovered his strength and vigor each time he touched the earth, but each time the Parliament of Canada came in contact with the people, it seemed to become bluer still. (Laughter.) Seriously, however, he was convinced that in spite of many faults and weaknesses, the Parliament of Canada would be faithful in its mission, which was the granting of equal protection and equal rights to Canadians of all creeds and nationalities. How was the French-Canadian branch of the Canadian people to contribute to this end? In the past might be found a guide for the future. Fifty years ago one celebrated Canadian disappeared from public life, and another took his place. Papineau counseled isolation to French-Canadians. Lafontaine believed that the duty of French-Canadians was to associate and mix with their English-speaking compatriots and become Canadians in the broadest sense of the word. He believed in the doctrine of Lafontaine. Its splendid results were everywhere apparent. Being of French origin, they must cherish the ideas and traditions of the mother country, and those ideas and traditions were not out of place under the broad and tolerant flag of Old England. The duty of French-Canadians was to enter into the spirit of modern civilization. They must learn to exercise the modern arts and industries, and in this respect he must confess that French-Canadians were behind-hand. They had emigrated beyond the frontier and learned to work for others. It was high time that they should learn to work for themselves. It was at this price that they might hope to be worthy of the traditions of the great nation from which they were descended, and of the Canadian people of whom they formed no inconsiderable portion. This speech was frequently interrupted by enthusiastic applause.

MARRIED IN A MINUTE.

A New Jersey Magistrate Breaks the Wedding Record.

NEWARK, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Justice of the Peace Pessara, of Newark, is entitled the distinction of having performed perhaps the briefest marriage ceremony on record. Perhaps its brevity was owing to the fact that he could expect and receive no fee. The justice is the leader in Newark's Italian colony.

Robert Perry, who opened another man's letter without any authority to do so is spending his vacation in the Essex county jail for that little slip. But while all the world has seemed dark to him, Lizzie Heyer's heart has proved true to him.

It doesn't matter that Lizzie is fat and fair, and of course short. And it isn't anybody's business, either, that Lizzie's description is further enhanced by the fact that she is 40 years old. She wanted to be married, and married she is.

Accompanied by Justice Pessara, Lizzie drove out to the jail a day or two ago. Prisoner Perry was called out of his cell and the ceremony began.

"You shake the hand," said the justice.

"You taka each other for life?"

"You taka him?"

"You taka her?"

The groom's wedding suit was an under shirt and trousers. No ring was used, and after Lizzie had kissed him fervently he was led back to the cell.

MUSKEGON, MICH., Aug. 15, 1892.

C. A. McBride, M.D., Medical Superintendent, Gold Cure Institute, Grimsby, Ont.:

Dear Friend,—I am here, as you see, visiting my nephew over Sunday. Well, I am still on the rock firmly, and what surprises me most is that I have been thrown in the way of the stuff every day since coming to Detroit, and can truly say I have not in one instance felt anything but a perfect disgust for the vileness of all vile things—liquor. If you did not know the workings of the Gold Cure you would hardly credit my statement, knowing as you do what I was on my first appearance in Grimsby.

It is a great blessing to poor unfortunates addicted to the drink habit, that through Providence and Dr. Kelley they are enabled to again appear as men in their right minds, take their places in the busy whirl of business, making themselves and all depending on them perfectly happy.

There are many things that make Grimsby the proper place for the institute. The citizens in and around the beautiful village seem to vie with each other in making the patients feel at home while there, and the result is they carry to their respective homes remembrances of the place that cannot be effaced.

As regards myself, I left many warm friends there, among the foremost being Mr. Sam Anderson and Grandpa and Grandma Randall. Their kindness to me is something I can never forget. I wish to be kindly remembered to all who knew me in the institute; and to all who are patients in your care please say I feel for them as for those who were with me. I cannot on paper tell you how thankful I am that I passed through your noble institution. I hope the good work will go on until you can show thousands of names of those who have been saved by this most wonderful of all treatments.

In conclusion let me say the kindness of yourself and staff is something that can never be forgotten by me. Wishing you success in your noble efforts to save humanity, I remain, gratefully yours,

TORONTO TIDINGS.

Another Rogue Advertisement Case—Anti-Masonic Lecture—The Salvation Army Schism.

TORONTO, Aug. 23.—W. D. Vanderburgh, a Teeterville hotelkeeper, was arrested in Brantford to-day and brought to Toronto to be tried with Kelly on the charge of defrauding a student of Toronto in connection with the advertisement for a school teacher, for which Crysler was convicted a couple of weeks ago at Simcoe.

Rev. Mr. Stoddard, of Boston, delivered an anti-Masonic lecture to-night before about two dozen persons. He met a most chilly reception.

The breach in the Salvation Army is daily growing wider, and the chances of settlement are more and more problematical. A few of the officers have expressed penitence, and returned, but the rank and file appear to be coming out on the revolter's side.

SHE DID IT WITH AN AXE

Probable Fatal Result of a Drunken Row—A Wife's Deadly Deed.

QUEBEC, Aug. 23.—An unfortunate affair took place last evening in Little Richmond street, in which it is feared a young man may lose his life. Daniel Sheehan, aged 23, a laborer, fought with a man named Fontaine while both were under the influence of liquor. Sheehan was arrested and was out on bail, when Fontaine met him and renewed the row of the morning. Both men fought desperately near the house of Fontaine, whose wife, seeing her husband getting worsted, attacked Sheehan with an axe, inflicting two dangerous wounds on his head and others on his shoulders. The wounded man was conveyed to the Hotel Dieu Hospital, where he lies in a critical condition. Judge Murray will this afternoon take his ante-mortem deposition. Fontaine and his wife are under arrest. The prisoners have five children.

TO PHOTOGRAPH CHINESE

The U. S. Internal Revenue Department Has Charge of the Government Kodak and the Register.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The Internal Revenue Bureau in a few days from now will enter upon its first experience in registering and photographing all the Chinese residents in this country. Commencing on Sept. 1 every Chinese in the United States, except the retinue of the Diplomatic Corps and a few recognized merchants, is required to make an application for a residence certificate to the nearest internal revenue collector, describing himself, his age and occupation, and proving his identity by presenting and filing three proof-sheet photographs of his face.

His statements of facts is to be supported by the affidavits of two creditable witnesses, and upon approval of this application the collector is authorized to issue him a certificate entitling him to continue to reside in this country. Any Chinamen who fails to provide himself with such a certificate of residence between now and May 5 next, is liable to deportation back to China.

There are 107,000 Chinese in the United States. Over 70,000 of these are in California and 9,000 in Oregon, and there the brunt of the enforcement of the Exclusion Act will fall. But there are nearly 3,000 in New York, over 1,100 in Pennsylvania and nearly 1,000 in Massachusetts, besides 700 in Chicago and nearly 500 in St. Louis.

The obligations of the law are discretionary with the Chinese. If they don't choose to get themselves photographed, and to make their applications within the time prescribed, the revenue officials have no power to compel them. The only penalty is deportation.

The anticipations of difficulty entertained by the inland revenue officials seem to be borne out by the fact that of the $100,000 appropriated in the Sundry Civil Bill to carry out the law only $30,000 has been allotted by the Secretary of the Treasury to the Inland Revenue Bureau to provide the necessary deputies to execute the law, while $70,000 has been retained by the Treasury Department and the Department of Justice to meet the cost of deporting the recalcitrants.

WHISKY WRECKED HIM!

Sad Life-History of One of Washington's Most Talented and Popular Young Men.

To-night a middle-aged man bounded into the Journal editorial rooms shouting: "I've been robbed; robbed of my shoes and of my watch and $250. There were a dozen of them, all thugs. I was with one; he signaled to the others. I knocked them down, fought like a tiger—as royal Bengal tiger. I knocked six or seven down, but they overpowered me and tried to brain me."

Then he told the way that he had gone to the old cemetery to lay flowers upon the grave of his mother, when the assault was made, and after a desperate resistance to the thugs who wanted to silence him effectually he crawled away and escaped. He was at once recognized as John W. Ray, with the saddest of life history. He is the son of James Brown Ray, thrice Governor of Indiana, filling out the unexpired term of William Hendricks in 1825, and twice elected Governor thereafter.

Gov. Ray died while John W. Ray was still a child. The latter was adopted by one of the leading families of this city. He was educated with great care, graduating with distinction at Harvard. He was Governor Morton's private secretary when Morton was in the Senate, and for ten years he ranked as one of the most popular young men in Washington. While at Washington he was betrothed to the daughter of a Cabinet Minister, but whisky wrecked him. He couldn't stand the pace, and the lady cast him adrift. He continued on the down grade under full steam until friends and money were all gone, and eventually he went to type-setting, having learned the art in his youth. The one passion of his life is love for his aged mother, and whenever money comes to him it is a question with him whether it shall be spent for flowers to decorate her grave or to drink.

Yesterday he came here from Chicago. It is barely possible he was assaulted at the cemetery, but there is little probability that he had anything of which to be robbed. When sober he is a most accomplished and refined gentleman — when drunk, the veriest of tramps. He is a distant relative of Col. John W. Ray, the well-known banker.—[Indianapolis correspondent Cincinnati Inquirer.

Scott Act Repealed.

DRUMMONDVILLE, Ont., Aug. 23.—With one poll to hear from the majority in favor of the repeal of the Scott Act is 284. The temperance people will endeavor to have the election voided on the ground of irregularities in the holding of the election. The Scott Act has been in force in Drummond since 1885, when it was carried by a majority of over 1,000. An attempt to secure its repeal three years ago was defeated at the polls by a majority up in the hundreds.

Natchez May Be an Inland Town.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 23.—River men say that Natchez, Miss., is threatened with a serious danger. The recent high water cut a new channel across the peninsula two or three miles from Natchez, and the water is still pouring through. If the cut off should prove permanent the river will empty into the lower outlet of Lake Concordia, in which case it would probably cut through back of Vidalia, Ark., leaving Natchez miles from the river. There is great alarm at Natchez, and the citizens are clamorous for work to begin to save the river to the town.

LOCAL MARKET.

Reported by A. M. Hamilton & Son.

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 24.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

The week closes to-day steady in almost all commodities. There has been a few changes during the week, but none of any special importance.

Grain receipts were fairly good, and we think will compare favorably with the same week other years.

New wheat did not offer very freely, and the demand seemed weak, consequently no change in prices occurred.

Old oats came forward sparingly, but it was as well they did, for outside of the demand from livery men, etc., there was very little inquiry. There seems to be a good many held in store, both here and elsewhere. New oats more plentiful than last week, and selling steady at 90c to 92c.

Barley, corn and peas, nothing doing, none offering.

New rye sold at $1 per cwt; there was only a moderate demand.

Beans, there was some better inquiry this week; prices nominal at $1 per bushel.

Eggs steady at 9c by the basket, and 10c and 11 in small lots.

Butter was easier, best crocks sold Tuesday at 18c to 20c per pound; pound rolls at 20c to 22c; demand lighter and the supply increased.

Poultry steady, values unchanged.

Meats quiet, beef selling by the quarter at 5c to 6c, mutton 6c to 7c and lamb 7½c to 10c.

Live hogs have been selling freely at 5c.

There was good trade done in all kinds of fruit, prices ar a rule ran high; peaches sold at 75c to $1 per basket, plums $1, pears 40c to 90c; tomatoes were scarce and higher towards close of week and sold at 7c to 8c per lb for home grown, 5c to 6c for imported. Other lines as quoted in list.

Potatoes steady at 80c per bu; onions 25c a peck.

Hay about 50c a ton higher, selling from $7 to $7 50.

Adam Graeme, of Mossgray.

By Mrs. Oliphant.

"Did you ever hear of this place, Halbert?" said Lilias, as they stood beside the great window in the gable, looking into a large, faded, melancholy room, which bore evident marks of care and order, solitary and desolate though it was.

Halbert looked a little astonished.

"I have never before been at Mossgray," he answered, "and at home—I mean in the North—these border counties were very Andinodes to us."

Lilias did not answer; she looked thoughtfully along the green, melancholy terrace, thinking of Lucy Murray in her solitude, and of Charlie Graeme the household traitor, whose honest, fresh, ingenuous son had never heard of Murrayshaugh.

The faint sound of a lifted latch aroused her attention and she looked round. A little old woman, with impatient, vivacious features and quick pattering steps, came along the grass-grown path. The had heard voices without, and had issued forth in evident wrath to avenge the intrusion on her territory.

"Oh, mem, I beg your pardon!" she exclaimed, as she made a dead stop in front of Lilias. "If I dinna think it was Robbie Carlyle's cuddie and that tinker of a callant Peter chasing him! but ye'll be the young lady of Mossgray?"

Lilias took the designation with a smile.

"This is Murrayshaugh, is it not?" she asked.

But the little woman's eyes were so busy that she lost the question. She was examining with singular curiosity the face of Halbert Graeme.

"This is Murrayshaugh?" repeated Lilias.

"Ay, it's Murrayshaugh," was the answer emphatically given, while the speaker looked wrathfully at Halbert Graeme.

Halbert was considerably astonished; but the unconscious natural prepossessing smile remained upon his truthful face. It was a very honest, straightforward countenance; what we call "sefauld," in Scotland—and the old woman gradually melted under the frank, good-humored smile.

"They ca' me Eesabell Broun," she said abruptly, "and I keep the house. I've lived here a' my days, and if ye would like to see it, I've nae objections."

"If we will not trouble you too much," said Lilias, smiling at the limited permission, "I shall be glad to gee Murrayshaugh."

Eesabell turned away at once, and went pattering round to a not very elegant back door. Her visitors followed her.

"Na—na," said the old woman, fretfully waving them back with her quick, withered hand; "we may be puir, and puir eneugh, but there shall nae gentle come this gate into Murrayshaugh; gae round to the ither side; ye'll get in by the richt door."

It was a respectable irritation, and the two young explorers turned with some amusement to obey. The great door of Murrayshaugh was somewhat heavy on its rusted hinges, the opening of it taxed all the impatient strength of Isabell Brown.

There was not much to see within; everything saleable had been removed from those cold, dreary, uninhabited walls before the armed man, Want, drove its last tenant from his father's house. So much furniture as remained was old and faded; the haughty, proud old man had studiously displayed its poverty; he professed to disdain the mean art of making shifts to hide it—it was the bitter art of unbending pride which left its forlorn nakedness so visible to every eye.

But the little, quick, irascible custodier of the lonely house had been so long used to the poverty of its scanty furniture that she was now unconscious of it; and when she carefully dusted the high-backed chairs of "Miss Lucy's parlor, and closed the shutters lest the sun should spoil the colors of the decayed and worn carpet, whose colors had been jumbled in incoherent old age when she herself was but a child, Eesabell Brown was perfectly sincere. She had a veneration of those solitary and quiet inhabitants of the house in which she had lived all her days; there were older dwellers than she; and when she thought of the "Miss Lucy," who had been the pattern and glory of her younger days returning to Murrayshaugh—and she did think of it constantly—it was still as Miss Lucy—the fair, young lady whom in her own girlhood she thought chief of women. This was the romance of the little old housekeeper of Murrayshaugh. She had known few fluctuations of fortune since the great era of their departure; somehow or other Isabell herself had grown old; but unchangeable as the high-backed chairs and the faded carpets seemed Murrayshaugh and Miss Lucy—and they would return.

They had entered "Mis Lucy's parlor," and were looking at some pictures on the wall. Before the first of these, that of a young man in an antique dress, evidently an old family portrait, Lilias paused with a sudden start. There was a vivid color and surprised animation on her face, such as Halbert had never seen her have before, and the tone of her voice struck him as she turned to ask about the picture—low, full and musical, as if the heart throbbed through it more warmly than was its wont.

"It's nae o' the auld Murrays—I dinna mind his name," said Isabell; "but Miss Lucy had a conceit that it was like Mr. Hew. They were a' like ither; the same voice came down, like the name, frae faither to son. Thae nae was a Hew too, I dinna doubt; it's a guid name; they maun a' have been fond o't."

"Hew," repeated Lilias, slowly, as if she too loved to linger on the sound; "Hew—yes, it is a pleasant name."

And she turned again with lingering looks and smiles of strange pleasure to the picture as she left the room. Halbert smiled too in wonder. He hardly could fancy an appropriate cause for such emotion in the wise, grave Lilias; and there was no such magic in any picture there for him.

CHAPTER I.

The merrie plowboy cheers his team,
Wi' joy the tentie seedsman stalks.
—Burns.

"Mosgray," said Halbert Graeme, as they sat one morning at their cheerful breakfast-table. "I wish you would come out with me to-day and see these fields at Shortrigg—they are in a very bad state; small, oddly-shaped fields, "three neukit," as Saunders calls them, with quite a super-abundance of hedges. I should like to sweep those encumbrances away, and bring them into better working order. Will you come and see them, Mossgray?"

"Halbert, my man," said Mossgray, smiling, "I am too old to learn—even your training will scarcely make a good farmer of me, I am afraid; and I give you full discretion, you know."

"But Mossgray," persisted Halbert, "I am sure you have no concern for those thriftless hedges; and good agriculture—"

"Is a very necessary, noble, and honorable art," said the laird, "perfectly so, Halbert; and I am by no means a sentimental admirer of thriftless hedges; but I am old, you know, and not a good judge; you must take it into your own hands."

Halbert was not quite satisfied.

"Still, Mossgray, if you are not engaged—"

The good Mossgray could not deny the youth his request.

"Well, Halbert, if it must be. Come then, let us see about this business of yours."

Halbert was very full of undertaking. He began to tell Mossgray what his crops were to be, and the measures he would take with obstinate land, which was not naturally obedient to the discipline of the plow. The country looked very cheerful as they passed on. Round about, skirting the horizon on every side, where ranges of low hills, some rich with fir trees and softer young spring foliage to the very top, white far-seen lines, lost themselves among the hills, and through the trees, which divided their path from the river, glimpses of the wan water, flowing on full and broad to the sea, glimmered through the soft, gay, fluttering leaves of spring. Turning back on the elevation which they had reached, the full Firth, quigering like molten silver, stretched between them and the clear creeks and villages of the English shore, over whose stillness muffled mountains watched in the background; and looming out against the pale sky in the West, his broad sides darkened here and there, as if with stationary shadows; rose the bluff Scottish hill, whose strong brow every night was crowned with the glory of the sunset. There was a hum of voices in the pleasant air, and plows were turning up the rich, dark, fragrant earth, and the "tentie seedsman" stalked about the fields. The sky and the leaves were soft and fresh, so fresh and soft as they only are in the early year, and the refreshed land seemed to open its moist breast with gladness to the kindly processes of spring.

In Camden the other night, says the Boston Globe, a policeman saw on the street a woman attired in a wrapper with hair hanging loosely down her back. She was walking slowly and when the officer approached her side he was astonished to hear her snoring, although her eyes were open. He addressed her in low tones, but received no answer. He then grabbed her by the arm. This roused her. When she was found by the officer she was nearly two miles from her home.

Scintillations.

—It cost more money, in tolls alone, to drive to Port Stanley from St. Thomas than it does to ride on the railroad. There are no fewer than three toll gates on a stretch of less than eight miles of road. If the owners were taxed as liberally as they tax others, they might be more willing to sell to the county than they are at present.

—During the past few years Port Elgin has received over $60,000 for harbor improvements, but no ship's keel plows through the waters, and not a sail is to be seen. Money is still being spent, however, in the hope that ships will some day or other call, and that the town will benefit thereby. Why floating bottoms should make this a port of entry when there is no trade for them is not explained. A few thousand dollars of public money spent almost to no purpose are surely not a sufficient solatium for departed trade and stolen political rights. The lake trade has vanished, and the bonused grist mill built at the wharf is likely to be removed up street.

—Out of more than 150 creameries in New England alone, 80 per cent. are thoroughly co-operative, owned by the farmers, managed by their directors through a superintendent employed under their supervision, and all receipts, setting aside a reserve fund and 5 or 6 per cent. on capital stock, above expenses declared in dividends on the milk or cream furnished. Some of these co-operative creameries are ten or fifteeen years old. The returns for 30 of them for the year ending Jan. 1, 1891, showed payments net to Patrons for cream taken at the farmers' doors, of 21 cents per pound of butter as the average for the year, in spite of the lowest markets known for years. In ordinary markets the best creameries pay from 24 to 27 cents net to Patrons for the whole year.

—Who wouldn't like to own land in Chicago? The owner need not do anything to increase its value, but the increase will go on all the same. Other people's effort does the business. Circumstances are favorable and a fortunate few reap a rich harvest. Ten thousand dollars per foot front, or $83 33 per square foot was paid last week for a building site. The Boston store lots in that city are valued at $15,000 a front foot, and the property across the alley, occupied by Fish, Joseph & Co., with a frontage of 64 feet, and formerly known as Pardridge's main store, is held at $1,000,000. It is owned by Edwin Pardridge, and brings in a rental of $5,000 a month, or $60,000 a year, which is 5 per cent. on $1,200,000. The improvement is worth less than the odd $200,000.

—An American paper says the natural tendency of cheap prices for goods is lower wages for labor. The declaration seems a reasonable one; and if true, the farming community is interested in having the workingmen in towns and cities, who consume three-fourths of the products of the farm, receive higher instead of lower wages.

RHEUMATISM.—COL. DAVID WYLIE, Brockville, Ont., says: "I suffered intensely with rheumatism in my ankles. Could not stand; rubbed them with ST. JACOBS OIL. In the morning I walked without pain."
NEURALGIA.—MR. JAMES BONNER, 168 Yonge St., Toronto, Ont., writes: "St. Jacobs Oil is the only remedy that relieved me of neuralgia, and it effectually cured me."

—THE—
Lumber Cutting Machine
OF THE FUTURE.
10 Band Mills sold in Canada in 1891 where one was sold in 1890. We predict an equal increase in 1892.
Our present orders indicate it, so place your orders early.
The Circular Saw 22 years ago was as much a novelty and as difficult to run as the Band Saw is to-day. With the experience gained in handling the Circular, knowledge of the Band Saw is much more readily acquired. Special improved tools also facilitate the work. We furnish an expert with each mill to instruct in the use of tools and work on saw.
The adjoining cut illustrates our NO. 1 BAND SAW MILL, capacity 10,000 to 20,000 feet in 10 hours. Our No. 2 mill is much heavier—capacity 20,000 to 40,000 feet per day.

DOWN AT NEW ORCHARD BEACH (PORT STANLEY).

Two hundred we are nicely free
From city's noise and screech,
And here we rest with breezes blest
Down at New Orchard Beach.

A jolly crew we are, and true
We care not what they preach,
Each country seat is cool and neat
Down at New Orchard Beach.

They're just the thing to comfort bring
To us both all and each,
For city's heat we never meet
Down at New New Orchard Beach.

And as a shade dame nature's made
Us trees of oak nnd peach,
'Neath which to lie, so cool and dry,
Down at New Orchard Beach.

You city folk who roast and croak
And loudly try to teach
That city strife is better life
Than at New Orchard Beach.

Come here awhile and time beguile,
We're quite within your reach,
And soon you'll find you've changed your mind
About New Orchard Beach.

And so will all, both great and small,
Of home or foreign speech,
Who've seen us there so free from care—
Down at New Orchard Beach.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—Lud K. Cameron, Queen's printer, of Toronto, called in to see us from a trout fishing expedition at Beaver River on Monday. The story he told us was: He didn't catch a fish.—[Thornbury Standard.

—The letter carriers of the city held a successful garden party last evening at Cedar Grove, the grounds of Hon. John Carling. A substantial sum was thereby added to the Postmen's Benefit Association funds, while all who attended had an enjoyable time. The grounds were illuminated by Chinese lanterns, refreshments were served and the Seventh Band played. Messrs. Short, Walsh and Dibb managed the affair.

—Henry Marshell was arrested on a charge of obstructing a constable in the discharge of his duty. He is a bartender at the Royal Hotel and after the dog catcher had captured the proprietor's dog, Marshall, it is said, cut the net from one end to the other and released the canine. At the police court this morning Marshall was bailed until Friday. Three drunks were discharged.

—George Daniels, an engine driver on the Grand Trunk Railway, who recently left Hamilton to live in Chicago, has met with a serious accident in Chicago. The unfortunate man is well known in this city.

—This from one of the telephone girls: "I don't think that I am any more vain than other girls, but I am good looking and know it, and take a good deal of pride in my beauty. One day I was called to the telephone, and being angry over something that had happened in the office, I snapped back at the party at the other end of the wire, 'Well, what is it?' in a very short manner. He replied with a low drawn whistle: 'Whe-e-e-e-w, but you must be good looking.' I can remember yet how my face burned."

Labor Day to be Celebrated.

Last night a representative meeting was held in Labor Hall, Dufferin avenue, the object being to take measures for celebrating Labor Day in London by a procession. The cigarmakers, printers, metal workers, tailors and other unions were represented, and the bricklayers and carpenters' unions will be invited to participate to make this the success it deserves to be. A committee will wait upon the mayor in order to get a half holiday, and no doubt it will be an occasion much enjoyed by the workingmen and their families.

Walter Crossland Discharged.

Walter Crossland, of London West, came up before Squire R. F. Lacey Tuesday afternoon on a charge of abduction, preferred against him by Thomas and John Taylor, sons-in-law of Mrs. Margaret Green, 655 Queen's avenue, who had adopted Crossland's 12-year-old daughter who was also her neice. Mrs. Green adopted the girl after her mother's death but there was no written agreement as stated. Crossland had heard that his daughter was being ill-treated and called at Mrs. Green's house. The result was that the girl left there with him. Squire Lacey did not consider that the case came within his jurisdiction, and he refused to hear any evidence, the prisoner being released. The girl returned with her aunt.

Dr. Antliff at Grimsby.

A Grimsby Camp correspodent writes: On Saturday afternoon Dr. Antliff, of London, gave a most excellent and commonsense lecture on the "Power of Littles." Our interest was excited when we heard of the number of atoms in a molecule, the number of corpuscles in a single drop of blood held on the point of a common sewing needle, each having its own organism and individuality; the multitude of life in a drop of water. The effects of the "Power of Littles" in economies and commerce were well illustrated, as also in the interest of communities by an anecdote of a company of soldiers, passing through a village, drinking at the village well, and then in fun taking the bucket away. In the course of events it cost thousands of lives before it was over. The same "Power of Littles" was well shown in domestics by the anecdote of the husband and wife who had words as to whether a mouse came in by the door or the sideboard, and the quarrel waxed so hot that they separated. "The tongue is a little, but it setteth on fire the whole course of nature." The deductions of the reverend gentleman in conclusion were grand, and the whole lecture was thoroughly appreciated by the fine congregation present.

THE ROBB GOLD MEDAL,

Judge Hughes Contributes Some Interesting Reminiscences.

How the Late Mr. Robb Made the Start as a Merchant.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Two valued friends of mine have each sent me a copy of your issue of Saturday last, which contains some brief incidents in the life of my old friend, Thomas B. Robb, the donor of the fund for a perpetual gold medal to awarded annually to the most progressive scholar in the London public schools.

There is one reminiscence in the early life of Mr. Robb which deserves mention, and which has been brought to my recollection by reading the article in your paper, and which deserves mention because it is alike honoring to the memory of two other persons, early inhabitants of London, as well as Mr. Robb himself, and it is this: Mr. Robb was apprenticed when about 15 years of age to Mr. Charles Coombs, then a baker on Dundas street. After serving under his indentures for some length of time, Mr. Coombs, like an honest man, appreciating the work of his apprentice, tapped him on the shoulder and said: "Tom, come along with me." The two went to the store of Mr. Lawrence Laurason, who then kept a general store on the corner of Dundas and Ridout streets. On entering inquired for Mr. Laurason (Thomas Robb, wholly ignorant of what was about to transpire). Mr. Lawrason presented himself and Mr. Coombs, addressing him, said, "Squire, this boy is apprenticed to me for five years, to learn the baking business, but he knows all I can teach him already, and he has only been with me a short time. He has got talents above my business, he is born for something better, he ought to be a merchant. Now, I feel it my duty to try and do better for him than keep him where he is, and I think you ought to do your share. It will be a loss to me to part with him, but if you will take him in your store and give him a chance, I am willing to cancel his indenture and let him go."

Mr. Lawrason saw the situation, appreciated Charles Coombs' honest, outspoken appeal and took young Robb into his employ and afterwards procured a situation for him in New York with the firm whom he afterwards served and became a partner.

I mention this incident as worthy of imitation by those who have the opportunities embraced by honest "Charley Coombs" and by the appreciative Lawrence Lawrason. I remain, yours, etc,

D. T. HUGHES.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Young David Erskine Accused of Criminally Assaulting a 13-Year-Old Girl—John Erskine and Ernest Howard Alleged to Have Been Aiders and Abettors—The Trio Under Arrest.

David Erskine, John Erskine and Ernest Howard are in the cells under a very serious charge. The person who has laid the complaint against them is Mrs. Harriet Rogers, of the Gore of London. In the information laid against them, she accuses David Erskine of criminally assaulting her 13-year-old daughter, and affirms that John Erskine and Ernest Howard aided and abetted him in the same.

David Erskine is about 17 years of age and works in the G. T. R. carshops. His brother is younger. They live near the Rogers family in the Gore just outside of the city limits. Ernest Howard is apparently 15 years of age and lives with his parents in the eastern part of the city near the Stratford track.

According to the story of the mother the girl started Saturday evening with her 10-year-old sister to walk through a small bush to look for their horse. The three boys were in the bush at the time, and, it is alleged, attacked the eldest girl then and there. The little one ran back and told her mother, who at once hastened to the spot and says she caught the prisoners in the act as set forth in the complaint. Yesterday the father of the girl returned home and the parents informed Detective Allen of the occurrence and laid the requisite charges. The detective arrested the Erskine brothers at their residence last evening. Just as he had done so Howard happened to come along and was made a prisoner too. The official marched the trio to the city. They were brought before Squire J. B. Smyth and remanded for a week.

PLENTY OF WATER.

No Scarcity of the Springbank Article—The Commissioners Do Business.

"There has been plenty of water this season," remarked Waterworks Engineer Moore at a meeting of the commissioners last evening. "At no time has there been any danger of a shortage." Engineer Findlay's report showed that the consumption for the past six days has been 14,274,450 gallons. For the period of about a week the average daily drain on the supply was 4,000,000 gallons. This speaks well for the city's water supply.

The engineer recommended that a main be laid on St. James street, from Maitland, to connect with a four-inch main between Waterloo and Colborne streets. The distance was 1,200 feet and the cost $650. He also advised that action on the petition for a main on St. James street, between William and Adelaide, be deferred. Both recommendations were adopted.

Charles Patton asked for a main on Nelson street. Granted. F. Evans, Grey street, desired a main on Grey, between Maitland and William streets. Granted.

The Sisters of St. Joseph requested an unlimited supply of water at a fixed rate. Deferred.

The engineer and chairman will report on Mr. J. R. Peel's account of $140 for the fountain in the Western Fair main building.

S. H. Cooke, clerk, asked a raise in salary. Will be considered when his first year expires.

The full board was present.

THE BODY FOUND.

George Rawlings' Remains Recovered from the River—An Inquest To Be Held.

Liver Complaint, Kidney, Debility and Female Weakness All Cured.

LONDON, June 29, 1880.

For some time I was a sufferer of liver complaint, affections of the kidneys, debility and female weakness; also with pain in the side, between the shoulders and underneath the shoulder blades, and much weakness in the back and distress across my body, and much sinking down of the system. Through persuasion I tried Williams' Royal Crown Remedy, and have derived great benefit from its use; in fact I am feeling better at present than I have for a number of years. I can with pleasure recommend it, and I would induce any one who is afflicted to get it without delay MRS. E. GREEN.

In fifteen minutes he was rewarded with success. Within a few feet of the dock at Ward's Hotel, where the unfortunate man had entered the river to swim across, and in about sixteen feet of water, the pole which Mr. Abram was dragging came in contact with the body. It was raised to the surface and conveyed to the bank. The corpse was entirely devoid of clothing, and, as it had not been in the water long, was in a natural condition. On the arm was tatooed the date of deceased's birth—1846. He was, therefore, 46 years of age. The remains were conveyed to the morgue at Hinton's undertaking establishment, where Coroner Flock and a jury will view them at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

CRIPPLED FOR LIFE.

Frank Schaill, of This City, Has His Foot Crushed

While Attempting to Board a Train—A G. T. R. Brakeman Killed at Wyoming—A Fort Erie Yardsman Loses His Hand.

Frank Schaill is an 8-year-old lad living on Bathurst street between Richmond and Talbot. He wandered into the G. T. R. yards this morning a short distance west of the Tecumseh House. At 9:30 o'clock No. 52 (mixed train), from Sarnia, came along and Frank attempted to board the front end of the rear coach and fell under the wheels. The front trucks ran across his left foot. People who noticed the accident ran immediately to his assistance and the boy was conveyed to the hospital. The foot was found to be badly crushed. Dr. English performed an operation in which he cut off some of the bones, amputating three of the toes. The remaining two may be saved; but at any rate, the unfortunate victim will be crippled for life.

W. G. Smith, a G. T. R. rakeman living at Point Edward, while coupling an engine on a train at Wyoming about 1 o'clock this morning, fell into the culvert or cattle-guard and was crushed in the abdomen by the wheels. Medical men at Wyoming did everything possible for him, and a locomotive was sent to Strathroy to bring the G. T. R. doctor there to the spot. The poor fellow died at 5:25 a.m. about fifteen minutes after the Strathroy doctor arrived. His remains were taken home for interment. Deceased's father lived at Simcoe and he had a brother at Point Edward.

A yardman named Bean, while coupling cars at Fort Erie this morning had the misfortune to lose a hand.

ADVERTISING THE CITY.

The Board of Trade to Consider the Matter—Numerous Railway Matters Under Discussion.

At a special meeting of the Board of Trade held last evening, M. Masuret (president), J. A. Nelles (secretary), J. S. Pearce, L. H. Ingram, J. S. Ashplant, J. F. Jeffers, John Bland, W. A. Gunn, A. M. Smart, Samuel Stevely, F. J. Jarvis, T. H. Smallman, J. D. Clarke, A. Neighorn, O. E. Brener, and Jas. Paul were present

Sandford Fleming, London, Eng., communicated regarding the extension of the telegraph system throughout the British Empire, and asking co-operation in doing so. Referred to the council.

A lengthy letter was read from T. Herbert Marsh, London's delegate to the annual session of the London, Eng., Chamber of Congress, explaining what business had been transacted and containing circulars with reports read. A bill for expenses incurred will be paid, and Mr. Marsh's letter will be acknowledged by the secretary.

Gilmour & Co., Trenton, asked the co-operation of the board in petitioning the Government to postpone the sale of timber lands until after the settlement of the existing differences between Canada and the United States. No action. The letter will be acknowledged.

Jas. Murray & Co., Toronto, furnished prices for printing circulars to advertise the city of London.

L. H. Ingram—Is this board in any way responsible for that stupid advertising in the Buffalo Express?

The President—No.

The committee on advertising the city reported progress and will consider numerous other similar offers from other companies.

John Marshall—Would not less than $5,000 do to accomplish the object? How would $1,000 or $2,000 do?

The President—That amount would not begin to be sufficient.

A railroad matter of great importance to London wholesale men especially was referred to the railroad committee.

A. M. Smart said that through trains from Chicago were delayed at the tunnel station for over an hour, and he wondered if that time could not be spent in this city. Referred to the railroad committee.

Mr. Paul, of the M. C. R., proposed an excursion via that road for the Board of Trade. The train would be a special one of three Pullman cars and would leave here on Saturday, Sept. 3, about noon, and go to Buffalo, Rochester and Ontario Beach. The train would arrive here about the following Monday at noon. The trip would cost about $12, and a guarantee would have to be given the company that 100 persons would take advantage of the trip. Not more than that number could be comfortably accommodated. No action was taken in the matter, and the board adjourned.
