

RUSSIANS PREPARE TO ABANDON MUKDEN GEN. KUROPATKIN'S COUNTER BLOW FAILED JAP WINGS CIRCLE AROUND RUSS REAR

St. Petersburg Gives Up All
Hope of Pulling Out a Victory.

Monday's Fighting Desperate and Continuous, Both Claiming Successes.

Tokio, March 7.—Noon.—It is reported that the Russians are preparing to abandon Mukden and Fushan and to retreat to Tie Pass.

Gen. Rennenkampf's Headquarters Oubeneppa, Monday, March 6.—Midnight.—Events took an unfavorable turn for the Russians this evening. After a day of a marked succession of attacks, the Japanese ousted the Russians from an important position on the left center of the eastern army. The Japanese are also pressing the right center hard. The Russians have been expected to retake the position at any cost.

There were heavy losses today on both sides.

St. Petersburg Gives Up Hope.

St. Petersburg, March 7, 1:55 p.m.—All hope that Gen. Kuropatkin will be able to turn defeat into victory is rapidly vanishing. The position of the Russian army has been growing increasingly desperate during the last 24 hours. The gravest danger is from the Japanese left, which has been pushed northward on the Simintin road, to a point eight miles northwest of Mukden, where it has joined a flanking column from the east.

Japan Is Confident.

Tokio, March 7.—All Japan is eagerly watching developments at the great theater of war in Manchuria. The people are confident that Field Marshal Oyama will defeat General Kuropatkin. The only question considered is the extent and severity of the blow he will inflict, and its effect upon the course of the war. It is believed the possession of Mukden and a line on the Hun River is already assured, and many predict even a greater disaster for the Russians. General Kuropatkin seems to be devoting his greatest energy to the protection of Fushan, in order to preserve a line of retreat. He has sent masses of reserves there. The positions east and south of Fushan have already been the scenes of most bloody fighting. The operations of the Japanese left and part of the center continue to be successful. It is believed that the Japanese will succeed in cutting the railway north of Mukden.

Various estimates of the losses already sustained by the opposing forces are being made, but they are unreliable on account of the meagerness of the information at hand. The Japanese spoils of war promise to be heavy.

Tokio, March 7.—The greatest concentration of the Russians defending Fushan seems to be along the line from Tita to Machuntan. Gen. Kuropatkin continues resolutely to defend the positions at Fushan. The operations in that vicinity do not indicate whether Kuropatkin intends to fight or retreat, but he must hold Fushan to protect the army on the Shikhe River.

Gaedeke on Kuropatkin.

Berlin, March 7.—Col. Gaedeke, who returned from the seat of war last December, writes to the Tageblatt today, taking a pessimistic view of Gen. Kuropatkin's situation. Basing his opinion exclusively on Russian news, Col. Gaedeke thinks it probable that the Russians are about to suffer a defeat which will prove disastrous. He expresses a very unfavorable judgment of Kuropatkin's generalship in letting the Japanese extend their flanking movement so far to the northward around the Russian right without undertaking energetic measures to check them. Col. Gaedeke says that the Japanese, in executing such a movement, immediately before the Russian army, exposed themselves to great dangers, and that if Gen. Kuropatkin had had even a tolerable degree of initiative and a strong will, he would have given the Japanese severe punishment and sundered their army. "But what," asks Col. Gaedeke in conclusion, "are mere military theories compared with psychological influences, moral factors, which sometimes sweep triumphantly over all material presuppositions onward to victory?"

Counter Attack Repulsed.

Tokio, March 7, 5 p.m.—The following dispatch was received today from headquarters of the Japanese army in the field:

In the Singking (Yenden) direction the enemy in the neighborhood of Tita made several counter attacks Monday, which were repulsed. Our attacks against Machuntan, despite the obstinate resistance, proceeded. Part of our force on Monday occupied the northeastern heights of Huanai, four miles south of Machuntan, and another force occupied a line of heights at Patukou, seven miles south of Machuntan.

In the Shikhe River direction east of the railroad Sunday night the enemy counter attacked north of Tungliafen, but were repulsed. Otherwise the situation is unchanged.

West of the railroad our force is now engaging the enemy occupying positions east of Hanchenopao and Erbitau. The enemy is resisting stubbornly.

On the right of the Hun River Monday morning one division of the enemy with 70 guns counter attacked in the vicinity of Tatchekiao, ten miles northwest of Mukden, but was repulsed.

50,000 Japs Engaged.

London, March 7.—According to a usually well-informed Japanese correspondent of the Morning Post, a large portion of Japan's fifth army, consisting of 50,000 men, is engaged in the battle now in progress under Lieut.-Gen. Kamanura, to whom has been entrusted the development of Field Marshal Oyama's plans to the northeast of Mukden, and this development may prove as astonishing to the Russians as were Gen. Nogi's operations on the northwest. The correspondent contends that numerical superiority now is with the Japanese, who have at least half a million men engaged, reinforced having left Japan continuously of late, in order that the intended operations should not fail for the lack of sufficient men.

Kuropatkin's Stroke Failed.

St. Petersburg, March 7.—Around the village of Tatchekiao the battle raged with terrible bitterness throughout yesterday, with all the reserves hurled up to block the Japanese advance on the Russian line of communications. Gen. Baron Kaubars, who is defending this wing, is only able to hold his own on account of the desperate situation there. Gen. Kuropatkin has not attempted to drive home his counterstroke at the Japanese center, and his offensive, which was abortive, has been abandoned. At the same time encouraged by the progress of the main turning movement west, Gen. Kuropatkin pressed forward from the east yesterday against Gen. Linievich, forcing the Russians to give ground.

Waited Too Long.

It is rumored that Kuropatkin has already given the order, and that he is gradually withdrawing forces from the center, but experts are inclined to believe that he has waited too long, that he must fight it out in his present position, and that it is impossible to extricate more than the remnants of his army.

The war office it is said that the Japanese siege guns from Port Arthur, with a range of eight miles, are causing terrible punishment. Nothing can stand up against them. The Russian retreat will be cut off at any moment. The public is pessimistic, as usual. The Liberals, especially, look forward to the complete defeat of Kuropatkin's army with equanimity on the theory that a Russian victory would stiffen the backbone of the reactionaries. According to the latest view, the more the Government is embarrassed, the more it will be obliged to yield.

Hand-to-Hand Fight.

New Chungang, March 6, via Tien Tsin.—Traders arriving report that last night 30,000 Japanese gained access to the gates of Mukden. Hand-to-hand fighting until daylight followed without any advantage to either side. The Russian retreat, however, was not cut off at any moment. The public is pessimistic, as usual. The Liberals, especially, look forward to the complete defeat of Kuropatkin's army with equanimity on the theory that a Russian victory would stiffen the backbone of the reactionaries. According to the latest view, the more the Government is embarrassed, the more it will be obliged to yield.

Evening Today's artillery duel lasted until sunset. The firing was fiercest at Panziatun, which was set on fire by shells. Shrapnel was responsible for nearly all the wounded. Today's fighting probably was only preliminary shelling. Night attacks on the center and left flanks were repulsed. The Japanese left 2,000 dead in front of Gao Pass.

Gen. Rennenkampf's Headquarters Oubeneppa, Monday, March 6.—Midnight.—Events took an unfavorable turn for the Russians this evening. After a day of a marked succession of attacks, the Japanese ousted the Russians from an important position on the left center of the eastern army. It Rivals Waterloo.

Mukden, Sunday, March 5.—(Delayed.)—A correspondent has just returned from spending the entire day of March 4 with the Russian vanguard on the right flank where General Nogi is attacking desperately at Machiapu, where there is a crossing of the Hun River four miles below the railroad. He says that all the Japanese attacks were repulsed but only through the most heroic fighting, which was renewed this morning. The Japanese were clearly and sumily the movements on both sides were distinctly visible. Charge followed charge, attack, retreat, and the Japanese were everywhere fighting viciously for every foot of ground and clinging like grim death to every Chinese cottage and mud wall, only to be driven back by the Russian artillery. Every village was the scene of struggles rivaling those of the famous battle of Waterloo. The village of Sanchangpu and Lanchanpu were taken and retaken several times. Lanchanpu finally passing into the hands of the Japanese. The Russian retreat will be cut off at any moment. The public is pessimistic, as usual. The Liberals, especially, look forward to the complete defeat of Kuropatkin's army with equanimity on the theory that a Russian victory would stiffen the backbone of the reactionaries. SPLICED SPINAL CORD

Physicians Operate on Man Whose Back Was Broken.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 7.—Should Edward Farrell successfully through the convalescent period of the operation performed upon his spinal cord Saturday night in the Medical-Chirurgical Hospital, the surgeons of that institution will have achieved a notable victory. The patient fell from a loft in a store on Friday night, breaking his back. As a result of the injury he was paralyzed from the waist down and was taken to the hospital where the physicians decided that the only chance to save the man's life was to operate. Portions of the spinal cord were cut out and the ends spliced. Farrell stood the operation nicely and yesterday was said to be in a most satisfactory condition. Only once before in the last five years has a similar operation been attempted. The surgeons believe that the man will recover.

MacDonnell, Lord Dunraven says, was consulted by the movement started, because he was in possession of useful information, but his responsibility was limited to that advice, and he was not to believe that he favored devolution.

The demoralization of the Conservative party, the indifference of our friends, and the unscrupulous hostility of certain party chiefs, have left us without any ambition to further consecrate ourselves to the defense of the interests of that party, for which we have suffered and

VALLEY OF DEATH IS BATTLEGROUND

Headquarters of General Rennenkampf, near Oubeneppa, Saturday, March 4, 8 a.m., via Mukden, March 6.—The road northward is crowded as the eye can reach by a continuous file of two-wheeled Chinese carts, full of Russian wounded, the best result of the valor with which the army of the east, fighting continuously for a fortnight, has defended every inch of the ground over which it has been compelled by superior numbers to retire. Each cart bears from three to five wounded men, whose exhaustion is almost too utter for them to feel pain. Scarcely a groan or cry is heard, not even the moans of the dying; only the dismal creak of rude wheels and the thud of the ponies' hoofs are audible.

Most of the wounded have their heads covered with Chinese blankets or dirty coats stiff with coagulated blood, hiding wan and dirty faces, distorted with pain, sunken eyes and expanded nostrils. Here and there is a man whose face is green and white, every joint pounds against the helpless living comrades of the man whose head is covered with a bloody bandage.

The valley in front of the Russian position has become a valley of death, as the Chinese have used to say. The ground is strewn with the dead and dying. The Russian position has become a valley of death, as the Chinese have used to say. The ground is strewn with the dead and dying.

60,000 COMING FROM THE U. S.

Paris, March 7.—The international commission assembled in Paris to pass on the respective merits of the North Sea incident has published its findings. These findings may be characterized as prudent, and they called for a "placable" French Nationalists, who are seeking political capital out of them.

In a card with the admirals evidently their Russian colleagues to have been at fault, since they declare Russia should have indemnity to the British fishermen for the damage done to the boats by the Russian fleet.

At the same time the admirals excuse the precipitation of their Russian colleagues, since they declare this same precipitation casts no suspicion on the reputation of the officers who displayed it. They would even seem to hint that armored ships have ever been used for the purpose of security, to sacrifice any ship which might happen to appear suspicious.

In order to appreciate these conclusions, which on their face appear so contradictory, one has to turn to the history of the struggle which must have been waged in the minds of these professional mariners and between their natural sense of humanity, upright and international law on the one side, and the other the profound horror inspired in every sailor by the sight of a ship being sunk, and the other the profound horror inspired in every sailor by the sight of a ship being sunk.

Alone the French Nationalists have shown dissatisfaction. Seizing upon the verdict, they have declared that it is against their own Government. France, they declare, used her influence with the commission in favor of England and against Russia. Naturally this mischievous charge fell to the ground, but it has succeeded in stirring up the wrath of the Republicans.

But whatever the lights and shadows of the case may be, one fact stands out in bold relief. That is, that the arbitration idea is now firmly established; war which in other times would have been almost inevitable has been turned aside. As for Russia, she has been rendered a first-class service. She has been saved at least one fresh complication, and that in the face of the difficulties she already confronts, a revolutionary crisis at home and victorious Japan abroad.

HUNGARY ON THE VERGE OF REVOLT

Conflict Between Crown and Hungarians Unless Differences Are Settled.

Vienna, March 7.—Judging by reports received from Budapest a conflict between the crown and the Hungarian nation appears possible, and even probable. The contending interests cannot agree on the matter of military reforms, and particularly on the use of the Hungarian language in the Hungarian army, as the language of commands declares that this reform must be instituted, and the Emperor that it is impossible. Neither side shows signs of weakening, and the question is more pregnant of danger than ever before.

It is a short clause of six or seven lines. The objectionable section in regard to Dominion lands does not appear.

LONDON, TUESDAY, MARCH 7.

Mr. Wyndham's Resignation.

The retirement of Mr. George Wyndham, Chief Secretary for Ireland, is hailed as a victory for the Ulster Unionists, but is more likely to serve the purposes of the Nationalist party. This brilliant young statesman, who made his reputation as the framer of the Irish Land Act, has been forced out of the cabinet, because he has favored reforms in the administration of Ireland, in common with many Irish Conservatives. The effect must be to widen the breach between the uncompromising wing of the Ulster party and the moderate wing of the Nationalist party. The Nationalists are pointing triumphantly to this division in the Ulster ranks as proof that Ireland still has grievances to be redressed and that the Government is in opposition to the enlightened opinion of Irish Conservatives.

The Irish Reform Association, composed exclusively of Unionists, the majority of them landlords, met last August, under the presidency of Lord Dunraven, and issued a programme which included this declaration:

"While firmly maintaining that the parliamentary union of Great Britain and Ireland is essential to the political stability of the Empire, and to the prosperity of the two islands, we believe that a remedy is compatible with the devotion to Ireland of a larger measure of local government than she now possesses. We believe that a remedy is compatible with the devotion to Ireland of a larger measure of local government than she now possesses. We believe that a remedy is compatible with the devotion to Ireland of a larger measure of local government than she now possesses."

The extreme Ulster Unionists were incensed when they learned that Lord Dunraven had been in collaboration with Sir Anthony MacDonnell, under secretary to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Lord Dudley, the Irish secretary, Mr. Wyndham, was held responsible for Sir Anthony MacDonnell's policy, but he claimed that he had misconceived Sir Anthony's proposals. The latter had spent many years in the Indian service, and it appears that he had suggested to Mr. Wyndham that certain methods adopted in India should be applied to Irish financial administration. Mr. Wyndham explained the misunderstanding as follows:

"Ignorant of Indian affairs, I did not know that a similar system exists in India, and, therefore, it never occurred to me in my conversations with MacDonnell, that he had in mind any board partially elected as part of the reforms of which I approved."

Mr. Wyndham, when the manifesto of the Irish Reform Association was issued, hastened to clear the Government of all responsibility by publishing a statement, in which he said:

"Without reserve or qualification, the Unionist Government is opposed to the multiplication of legislative bodies within the United Kingdom, whether in pursuance of the policy generally known as home rule for Ireland, or in pursuance of the policy known as home rule all round."

Lord Dunraven replied in the Times rather sharply, as this passage from his letter shows:

"The creation of a financial council partly elected and partly nominated to make proposals and supervise the expenditure of voted money and from money derived from savings effected in administration, the formation of a statutory body composed, in accordance with the Scotch model, of members of the legislature, and an extra-parliamentary panel, and empowered to deal with private bill legislation and such other business as might be referred to it, do not trench in the slightest degree upon the supremacy of Parliament."

Lord Dunraven, after denying emphatically that home rule formed any part of the programme of the Irish Reform Association, went on to say that the association did not appeal to extremists on either side, but only to moderate Unionists, to support a policy of conciliation and to justify the continuance of parliamentary union by the removal of grievances. When the matter came up in Parliament Mr. Wyndham said that the cabinet had censured Sir Anthony MacDonnell for being concerned in the promotion of the Dunraven "devolution" proposals, but that its action was taken before the Ulster Unionists were not placated and forced Mr. Wyndham's resignation by threatening to overturn the Government. While Mr. Wyndham may not go so far as Lord Dunraven in his ideas of Irish reform, he is nevertheless a martyr to the cause. The fact that the Irish Secretary in a Unionist cabinet should confess that some measure of reform is needed is a rare tid-bit for the Nationalists.

The World's Carrying Trade.

British shipping circles are exercised over the prospective legislation for the revival of the moribund United States merchant marine. The report of the United States Merchant Marine Commission, if it is embodied in law, may be a serious menace to British maritime supremacy. This supremacy was challenged by the United States before the civil war, but during the war many American vessels sought the protection of foreign flags, and since then the American ocean merchant marine, far from recovering its old position, has dwindled to almost nothing. This process has been hastened by the substitution of steel for wood in the construction of ships, but more especially by the tariff policy of the United States, which, in protecting the iron and steel interests, has raised the cost of shipbuilding in the United States to a prohibitive degree. Only about 9 per cent of American ocean trade is carried in American bottoms, and the people of the United States pay $300,000,000 annually for the carriage of American exports and imports.

This condition of things has attracted the attention of Congress for many years. The late Senator Hanna on several occasions introduced legislation to subsidize American vessels, but even the United States Senate would not countenance so flagrant a diversion of public money into private pockets. The defeat of Mr. Hanna's ship subsidy bill affords some ground for believing that Congress will refuse to act on the report of the Merchant Marine Commission, which also advocates the subsidy plan. It proposes an annual subvention of $5 per ton for every United States vessel engaged exclusively in foreign traffic the year round; to heavily subsidize six lines of vessels plying to South American ports and to the Orient; to increase the tonnage taxes on all vessels, remitting 80 per cent of them in the case of American vessels conforming to the naval reserve provisions, and to establish a naval reserve of 20,000 men, who must have six months deep sea service, with payments calculated to offset the lower wages paid by foreign ships.

The United States may make it uncomfortable for the British shipowners by pouring millions out of the public treasury, but such a policy may prove disastrous to American commerce.

The American producers and manufacturers are interested in having their products carried at the cheapest price, and it makes no difference to them whether English or German or American vessels perform this service. They want the keenest competition, and a law which will drive foreign vessels from the American carrying trade will be to their positive disadvantage, because their rivals will have the benefit of the unrestricted rivalry of foreign ships, and the lowest rates of carriage, while the American people are taxed for the support of their own ships.

The opponents to the subsidy principle point out that goods in many cases are not imported directly by the United States from the country of origin. The American woolen manufacturers, for instance, buy South African, Australian and South American wool in London, whether it is brought by British ships. The American vessels would get a bounty for bringing it from England, but there would be nothing to prevent the wool being conveyed to Halifax in British bottoms, and at that port transhipped to American vessels which would carry it to Boston or New York and collect the rebate. It would pay the American vessels to make their voyages as short as possible as they would collect the same bounty whether the voyage was short or long. If the bounty system worked out this way, foreign vessels would continue to do most of the carrying and American vessel owners would thrive on the generosity of the American taxpayers.

The United States could build up its merchant marine if it would allow free trade in ships, but the law forbids any ship built in foreign yards to fly the American flag, or be admitted to American register. This is a measure of protection for the American shipbuilder, but it is of no value to him when he is loaded down by high duties on steel and all other materials required in the building and fitting out of ships for the benefit of the steel trust and other domestic industries. Apparently the American people, in their high tariff infatuation, will take any way but the right way to regain their maritime pre-eminence. They will pay dearly for the attempt if they adopt the subsidy plan.

The License Administration.

Messrs. Wm. Yeates, John Jones and A. B. Greer are reported to be the new license commissioners. They are reputable citizens, and no fault can be found with their appointment. The Government is replacing Liberal commissioners by Conservatives in all the license districts, and no Liberal can complain. Before the election, Mr. Whitney very solemnly declared that he would take the license administration out of politics, and appoint men who would see that the law was enforced impartially. The inference was that the present system would be changed. We have been all along told that it lent itself to manipulation of the liquor trade for party purposes, and it has been the object of violent attack in the Conservative press. Our local contemporary, the Free Press, has been very severe on it, and has dilated on the amount of patronage placed in the hands of license commissioners, though we could never see what advantages the office conferred. If the criticisms of the system by the Conservative party were well-founded before the election, they are well-founded today. It will surely not be pretended the substitution of Conservative for Liberal commissioners will change the results. The local party organizations doubtless have a voice in the selection of the commissioners, who in any event will be party stalwarts. The Liberals cannot consistently object to this, but can the new Government consistently continue a policy which the members and followers denounced while in Opposition? It is altogether likely that as time goes on, the Whitney Government will admit there has been nothing seriously wrong with the methods of its predecessors, and will quietly follow them in every department.

The Dead Letter.

[Brooklyn Eagle.] Oliver Deane died after a well-spent life and was mourned sincerely by his loved ones. Three weeks after his death his niece Jennie, aged 12, was sent to the postoffice for the mail, and, returning home, she examined the letters at her leisure. One was marked "Dead Letter Office," she was heard Neighborly. [Collier's Weekly.] As years go on it will matter less if the political map shows Canada in one color and the United States in another.

The systems of government are quite similar, and the same language and identity of thought make these people an opportunity and optimism make for both nations a common cornerstone. Flag sentiment and political isms will be spurious and rather than prevailing influences. Ambition to do and be will ever draw the wholesome, energetic youth over the border line. Canadians who cross the line may not naturalize as British subjects, but wherever is found the best returns for their kinds of skill there will their best talents be given. The loyalty of these peoples is already the loyalty of best endeavor. In every industrial and professional walk of American life proud sons of Canadian soil are found, and that almost without exception every great Canadian achievement is directed by a genius of American birth show how well the good rule works both ways. We impose no injustices upon each other, we have no issues to solve hereditary, but happily the parallel forces of prosperity and progress lift us above the breach and make us one.

The whole Upper Amazon basin is subject to annual overflow, which makes it impossible to build homes on the rivers. There are only a few points in all the great stretch of river country that are above the flooding point, and these are commonly composed of rock or clay, quite unfit for cultivation.

A SURE CURE FOR HEADACHE.—Bilious headache, to which women are more subject than men, becomes so acute in some subjects that they are utterly prostrated. The stomach refuses food, and there is a constant and distressing effort to free the stomach from bile, which has become unduly secreted there. Farnell's Vegetable Pills are a speedy alternative, and in neutralizing the effects of the intruding bile relieves the pressure on the nerves, which causes the headache. Try them.

Don't Refuse Life Chips
just because you haven't used them from childhood up. That may be the best reason why you need them now. All you have guessed about this food may be wrong. Get the facts. It is a pure cereal food, so prepared as to cure the worst cases of chronic indigestion and constipation. "I breakfast every morning on Life Chips. We all like it, and the children are especially fond of it. If people troubled with constipation would take your advice and eat Life Chips they would find the results much more lasting." This is one of many such letters received daily from those who use Life Chips.

This daintiest of all ready-to-eat breakfast foods is served either alone or with cream or fruit. Price 10c a package.

A NEW STORY.
On Saturday next a new story entitled "The Puppet Crown" will be commenced in The Advertiser.
"The Puppet Crown" is by Harold McGrath, author of "The Man on the Box," and it has had a great vogue in the United States. It is a vivid romance, and will no doubt prove most acceptable.

LONDON AND DISTRICT
—Mrs. C. Holmes has returned to Michigan, after spending a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mackay, 191 Horton street.
—A number of young people from the vicinity of Dorchester enjoyed a merry sleighing party to the residence of Mr. Peter Elson, M. P., London township, the other evening.
—In noticing a recent paragraph in The Advertiser regarding the illness of Prof. James L. Eason, musical instructor for the public schools, the Winnipeg Free Press says: "Prof. Eason is well now, and is in the Moose Mountain country, making visits to the west every summer extending over the holidays."
DR. ROSS' LECTURE.
Rev. Dr. Ross, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, delivered his lecture on "Scottish Life and Character," in the First Presbyterian Sunday School last evening. Those present listened with the closest attention to the speaker's vivid descriptions of Scottish home life.
COMING FROM CINCINNATI.
Mr. John Cousins writes to Secretary McCann that the Londoners in Cincinnati intend to organize at once, and they will come to the city in August. They will probably bring 150 persons back to London.
DEPENDS ON THE RAILWAYS.
President W. A. Small, of the London Old Boys' Association, of Chicago, writes Secretary McCann, of the local association, that if fair treatment can be secured from the railways, a big crowd of London Old Boys will come home in August.

SEPARATE SCHOOL BOARD.
The regular meeting of the separate school board was held last night, Chairman McPhillips presiding. A communication was read from Mr. B. C. McCann, secretary of the Old Boys' Association, asking for portraits of the members of the board for an Old Boy souvenir, and it was decided to furnish Mr. McCann with the same at once. Other matters of a routine nature were also dealt with.

WAREHOUSE COMPLETED.
The large warehouse commenced last November for the McClary Company at the corner of Adelaide and Trafalgar streets, was completed the other day by Contractor James S. Loney, the occasion being marked by the hoisting of a flag. The building is of brick and stone, 100x200 feet, three stories high.

WILL HOLD EXCURSION.
At the last meeting of the board of directors of the East Middlesex Farm-house, a decision was made to hold two "orchard meetings"—one at Ilford and one at Wilton Grove—the dates to be announced shortly. The institute will hold its annual excursion to the experimental farm, Guelph, in June, the students of the Normal School and of the East Middlesex and city schools to be invited.

PROTESTANT HOME BOARD.
The regular monthly meeting of the Protestant Orphans' Home was held at the home yesterday. Mrs. C. McCallum (president) in the chair, Messrs. Moorhouse, Hyman, Becher, Winnett, Zeigler, Stewart and Greston were also present. Mrs. Becher opened the meeting with a Scripture reading. Mrs. Winnett visited the home and found everything very satisfactory and very clean. The proposal of Mrs. Moorhouse, that prizes be given to the scholars in the school, met with hearty approval, and it was referred to a committee to arrange. Persons wishing to encourage the children are asked to contribute prizes for this purpose. Several applications for children have been received. The home has some very nice children for adoption at present.

A CORRECTION.
Certain erroneous statements having been made regarding the death of the late Dr. Bessey in Grand Rapids (who had several relatives in this city), Dr. E. G. Edwards, of Grand Rapids, has issued the following statement: "An article has appeared in certain Canadian papers, also in Detroit papers, relating to the life and circumstances of the late Dr. William E. Bessey, of Grand Rapids, Mich., in which the writer has either drawn on his imagination or obtained his information from a very unreliable source. He states that the doctor died a city charge, whereas his wife states that the city has not paid a penny towards his expenses, nor will be called upon to do so. The doctor left an estate consisting of a small farm and personal property, estimated at about a thousand five hundred dollars, besides a life insurance of two thousand dollars. The article stated that the doctor and his wife separated, which is absolutely false. They were separated only by death." All Dr. Bessey's people are well to do and were capable of saving him from dying like a pauper, if such had been necessary. His remains were brought to Georgetown, Halton County, Ont., and were buried in the family plot in Woodland Cemetery there. Dr. Bessey was born near Georgetown, and his people came from the neighborhood of that place.

ILDEKTON APPLE RAISERS
First Year's Work of Packing and Shipping Association.
The annual meeting of the Ildektion Apple Packing and Shipping Association was held on Thursday, March 2. The meeting was fairly well attended, and the members seemed satisfied with the results of the season's operations, considering the exceptionally low state of the English market.
In varieties the A. G. Russett ranked first, bringing the highest price. In the discussion the needs for more systematic spraying was strongly emphasized.
It is the intention of the association to make two grades, viz., No. 1 and No. 2, for the coming season's crop. Requests for co-operation in shipping for coming season were received from Forest, Walkerton and other associations.
The association intends holding a public meeting for fruit growers at Ildektion during March or April, at which several experts on pruning, spraying and fruit raising have been secured.
The following were elected for executive for this year: President, A. C. Attwood; manager, Neil A. Graham; secretary-treasurer, E. T. Caverhill; members of board, A. O. Telfer and Ernest Guest.
Any fruit growers desiring to unite with the association can do so by sending their names to Secretary-Treasurer Caverhill, together with $1 as a membership fee.

DOUBLE PRESENTATION
Umbrella and Clock to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sadler.
Mr. Arthur Sadler, retiring proprietor of the Sadler House, and Mrs. Sadler were remembered in a very generous and pleasing fashion last evening by their friends at the Sadler House. A gold-headed umbrella was presented to Mrs. Sadler, and Mr. Sadler was given a handsome clock, while a kindly-worded address was also tendered to the recipients. The boards at the hotel assembled, and a very pleasant evening was spent by all, in the course of which a supper and a dance were enjoyed. Mr. Sadler made a neat reply to the kind words and presentation to Mrs. Sadler and himself.
A French firm is about to place on the market a novelty in postal cards. To an ordinary pictorial card is affixed a thin transparent gelatine disk, on which is impressed a gramophone musical record. A hole is pierced through the center of the disk, and the postcard can be placed on an ordinary "talking machine" and played in the usual way.

NEARLY $15,000 NOW SUBSCRIBED
ANOTHER SPLENDID BILL AT LONDON
St. Andrew's Collectors Meet With Ready Response to Sunday School Appeal.

Those interested in the erection of a new Sunday school for St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church have reason to be highly gratified by the liberal manner in which appeals for finances are being responded to. The collectors for the scheme met last evening and reported that $14,700 had already been pledged, which with $1,000 promised on condition that the rest of the $15,000 be raised, will make a total of $15,000. It can thus be seen that there will be no trouble in regard to the financial end of it.

The meeting decided that there should be no unnecessary delay in the erection of the new structure, and work will be begun early in the spring. The Sunday school will, in all probability, be built at the northeast angle of the church, with which its architecture will be made to harmonize. But, although the same as the church in the general scheme of its structure, the building will be constructed according to the very latest ideas, and will be fitted with all improvements and conveniences. The plans are now being prepared.

YEAR'S CONTRACTS WERE AWARDED
Tenders for Supplies Accepted by Water Commissioners—Inspection of System.

Tenders for the year's supplies were opened yesterday by the water commissioners at their regular meeting. The session was unusually long, as a large and fashionable audience at the Mayor, Chairman Darch, Commissioner Jones, Engineer Moore and Secretary Elwood were present.
The contracts for the year were let as follows: Coal, Kernohan & Webster; oils, Queen City Oil Company; pipe laying, F. Harding; electrical work, London Brass Works Company; hydraulic valves, stop-cock boxes, iron castings, Stevens Manufacturing Company; hardware, G. McLean; miscellaneous supplies, Cowan Hardware Company; printing of annual reports, Advertiser Printing Company; other printing, Southern Printing and Lithographic Company; bookbinding, H. P. Beck; repairs to bookworks, H. & C. Colerick.
Mr. Charles A. Hodgsett, secretary of the provincial board of health, wrote the board in regard to the inspection of the local water system. He stated that as soon as the snow is gone he will be willing to go over the district, in which the water supply is centered. He enclosed a copy of the report which was made on the ponds last September, in which it was recommended that a system of filtration be installed.
Punnett, Engineer Simard's report, concerning the period from Feb. 14 to 28, showed that in all 47,867,436 gallons had been pumped, the average daily output being 3,847,256 gallons, which is an unusually large amount.

COW UPSET LANTERN
Nine Cows and Farm Buildings Destroyed in Malahide.

Springfield, March 6.—Last night, about 7:30 o'clock, the barns, shed and driving barn on the farm of Mr. M. Connor, on the 9th concession of Malahide, were totally consumed by fire. Mr. Wintermute, who occupied the farm was finishing his chores and removed a young calf from its mother to the calf pen. The cow broke through a partition and dashed along the gangway, knocking down a lantern, which hung upon the wall. It alighted upon the hay, which had been prepared for this morning's feed and almost immediately the place was in flames. Nine fine cows were burned and all the implements. Mr. Wintermute and his wife were alone. They managed to save their horses. It is understood he had a small insurance on the contents.

Two Natty Sketches This Week.
Backed Up by a Number of First Class Turns.

The vaudeville bill at the London this week is again of a very high class—in fact, it has known no superior in London as yet. This week, there are two very neat sketches, "Mile, Ried" and "The Right Stocking." The first of these is put on by Emil Hoch, Jane Elton & Co., and is beyond a doubt as clever a piece of farce-comedy as has ever been seen in London. The company came direct from Shea's, where they made a great hit. Mr. Hoch and Miss Elton are a pair of artists of exceptional ability, and the sparkling wit of the sketch is done full justice by them. It is to laugh, indeed, to witness this neat little comedy.
Quite of another type is that of "The Right Stocking." It is a pretty little Santa Claus story, not by any means as clever as "Mile, Ried," but nevertheless a very entertaining little play, and the Ogden, who produce it, especially the charming juvenile actress, are deservedly popular.
A novelty in picture-making is furnished by the Trilliers, who make pictures out of rags. A couple of first class musical turns are put on by Paves and Freed, and by the Godmans. A burlesque team, Martin and Ridgeway, are also clever, the Danovos do some acrobatic work, and a couple of very catchy illustrated songs are well sung by Mr. Ed J. Piney, of this city. As usual, Prof. Stevens' orchestra renders an excellent programme of music, and the show is brought to a close with a series of very interesting moving pictures.

"SWEET LAVENDER"
GREATLY PLEASSED
Mr. Edward Terry Scores Heavily in Pinero Comedy at the Grand.

One of the most accomplished and finished portrayals of a comedy role ever presented in London was afforded a large and fashionable audience at the Grand last night, when Mr. Edward Terry, the eminent English actor, appeared in his famous character impersonation of Dick Phenyl, in "Sweet Lavender." With the consummate art which has made his name a worldwide one, an art which has ripened in the role of the bumbling Dick for twelve years or more, he is able to sink his personality in the part until the audience forgets the actor and sees only the character of the play for a great many present. It was Mr. Terry's first appearance in London, and the warmth of his reception moved him to heartily thank all present and to express the wish that sooner or later he will be able to appear before local theatregoers again.
"Sweet Lavender" is nearly 20 years old, and was written by Arthur Wing Pinero. In its first two acts, it is a masterpiece of dramatic construction, sparkling with brilliant lines and dovetailing its parts in a most finished manner. In the third act, however, Pinero homes into the most far-fetched and conventional expedients to rid himself of his characters, and the result is the play lags. In brief, the story is that of Clement Hale, adopted son of Banker Wedderburn. Hale occupies chambers in Temple Bar with Richard Phenyl, a middle-aged solicitor and a bachelor, much given to drink, but with a Cap'n Cuttle heart for his young friend, Clem falls in love with Lavender, the daughter of the housekeeper and desires to marry her. But Wedderburn has other plans. He wants Clem to wed the daughter of a sister, Miss Gwendolyn. Clem refuses, and the Gwendolyn girl takes a matter of fact view of the case. But the banker storms and fumes and is about to disown Clem, when news comes that the bank has failed. At the same time Ruth Rolt, the mother of Lavender, appears on the scene and strong her, and gives his consent to the marriage of Clement and Lavender. Later it transpires that Dick Phenyl had a $40,000 in the defunct bank, and he forgives this debt to Wedderburn and puts the banker on his feet again.
In the first two acts the play is eminently satisfactory, but as previously remarked the last act spoils it. In the first place, the doctor's action in bringing in Ruth is far-fetched; in the second place a stain remains on Ruth's character, which it is difficult to pass over, and in the third place, the manner in which the bank is saved would not reflect credit upon a dramatist of the Hal Reid or Lincoln J. Carter type.

It is, however, in the role of Dick Phenyl that the audience is most interested, and certainly Mr. Terry left nothing to be desired in his portrayal. His finished art was always displaying itself to advantage—he lived the life of Dick Phenyl, he burlesqued the stage as a matter of course, but he delivered with an enunciation which made his words distinct in all parts of the house, and his every move on the stage was natural. Pinero has drawn this character of Dick with a master hand, and the humorous eccentricities of the drunken bachelor are not without their periods of pathos, as the old man watches over the interests of Clem. Yet at all times Mr. Terry is supporting Mr. Terry gave them a fair impersonation. Mr. A. Hyton Allen made a constant though not very ardent lover, and Mr. Tom Lovell, a passable American gentleman in love with Minnie Gillfillan. Mr. George Howard, as Banker Wedderburn, was not up to the standard.
Miss Beatrice Terry (no relation to the principal) was somewhat weak as Lavender, but Miss Olive Wilton, as Minnie, was natural and clever, as was also Miss Nellie Montague, as Mrs. Gillfillan. The other members of the company were somewhat ordinary. The three acts of the play are laid in Temple Bar, London, and the settings were appropriate.
