Oriental degree of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, and was permanently injured. The amount claimed is $5,000.

In his testimony Mr. Bausman said that he and a Mr. Daugherty were being initiated. Both were ordered at the beginning of the ceremony to strip off all their clothing. Bausman refused and was allowed to keep on his underclothing. They were then told to strap skates upon their feet, Mr. Bausman alleges, though he put on only one, and they were led before a gathering of about 200 masked men. During the ceremony Mr. Bausman alleges that Mr. Daugherty slipped and fell, one of his skates striking Mr. Bausman in the cheest, since which time he has spit blood frequently and suffered internally.

MR. MARX WANTS FIGURES

And in Due Course He Will Get Them-Peoples' Eyes Will Be Opened.

To the Planet .- With more watchfulness than accuracy, The Planet persists in quoting the present prices of necessaries of life as from 25 to 35 per cent higher than a few years ago, and to crown it claims the Dominion government's fiscal policy as the sole cause, a procedure which, were it even true, is of very doubtful utility. Unfavorably high quotations discourage people from settling in our midst, which cannot be the policy or desire of The Planet. Being somewhat of a student on figures, I have made some inquiries and came to the conclusion that The Planet is insufficiently informed on the subject. I therefore beg to propose that you will kindly enumerate the comparative prices of now and then of the articles of the necessaries of life you refer to. This I trust you will do without any de-

F. MARX. Oct. 2nd, 1900.

Note—The Planet will in due course cheerfully give the comparative list Mr. Marx asks for. When it does we imagine the Liberal candidate will regret that one of his supporters was so gret that one of his supporters was so indiscreet as to suggest a proceeding which will open people's eyes. At the same time, when Mr. Marx is alleging inaccuracy against this journal he should not be inaccurate himself, which he is when he uses the words "sole cause." However, The Planet will accede to his request. — Ed, Planet. Planet.

FREE CORN

When the government was taking the duty off corn, John Charlion rose in parliament and protested. He said he had no personal objection to free corn. It might be well for the cattle raisers to have free corn from the United States to displace the coarse grain grown by the Canadian farmer. But, he added, it was a mistake to give the Americans free corn without something in return. If we left the corn on the dutiable list the Americans would cut down or remove many of their duties, such as the duty on barley, in order to get their corn free into Canada. But if we made corn free without any return the Americans would keep all their duties up and we would never sell anything in their markets. | Mr. Charlton was right. The removal of the corn duty has displaced millions of bushels of our own Canadian-grown grain, and at the same time it has shut the United States so firmly against us that our farmers sell nothing worth mentioning there. It has cost $25,000 to send a commission to Washington, to undo, if at all possible, the effects of this

Quite as serious a blunder was made by Mr. Fisher, the Minister of Agriculture, on the subject of the cattle quarantine. We want to sell all the cattle we can in the British market. In order to get the highest price we want also to be able to send our cattle anywhere in England or Scotland. A. little feeding restores the good condition of the cattle after the sea voyage, and brings a better price for them. To-day the cattle must be slaughtered immediately on arrival at Liverpool or Deptford. Our chances for the privilege of sending our live cattle anywhere in England depend upon the effectiveness of our quarantine against the cattle of the il nited States. The English people say that if we introduce the United States cattle into Canada without quarantine they will never take our live cattle into England, because they fear that disease will be brought in with them. Mr. Fisher has abolished the quarantine He went voluntarily to Washington and offered to do this if the Americans would do the same thing for us, The secretary of agriculture at Washington was delighted with Mr. Fisher's offer. Americans do not want our farmers to have privileges in the British market that are not also enjoyed by themselves. The severary of Agriculture saw at once that Mr. Fisher's proposal would prevent from getting what we want in Brining. When Mr. Fisher abolished our quarantine for American cattle he forfeited our chance to get into the British market. When the Americans abolished their quarantine on our cattle, they also doubled the tariff duties, thus neutralizing the privilege they had given us. If it had not been for Mr. Fisher's mistake we might have had the freed on of the British market for live cattle long ago.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

A despatch from Paris to the London Dally News says M. Willot, chief inspector of the French telegraphs, has communicated a paper to the Efectricians' Congress indicating a belief that other wave telegraphy, as recent'y practiced, has already or i about to become obsolete.

M. Willot, who is one of the leading scient sts of the telegraph department and telephonic devices, seems to have reached the conclusion that it is the earth, and not the air through which signals are transmitted without the use of wires. The fact that neither the roundness of the earth's surface nor intervening hills intercepts the signals suggests to him the question whether the matter te'egraphed left the masts at the top or bottom. He conjectured that it left at the bottom, especially as signalling is not affected by wind on fog, and is improved by giving the mases good electric communication with the

His theory involves communicating through the geological beds, in which the earth's electricity has the same tension, the idea being that any disturbance at one point on the same electric level creates what would naturally be called a swell in the whole level, leaving the higher and lower strata comparatively undisturbed. M. Willot proposes to tap these levels, boring shafts and measuring the electrical tensions with the electroscope. The correspondent does not make the method clear, but the inference seems to be that two points, say London and Brighton, would communicate through one level and Birmingham and Bristol through another.

The French telegraph department has appointed a committee to sink shafts to ascertain the distribution of the electric levels. When this is done M. Willot undertakes to construct an apparatus that will meet every case.

The correspondent makes no reference to the transmission of signals at Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff,

THE PENALTY OF RANK.

There is one feature in the official table of casualties which should not be overlooked-the very high proportion of rank and file who have succumbed to disease as compared with the officers, says the London Westminster Gazette. The figures are: Officers. Men. Killed in action and died

34# 1 3,183 of wounds, 141 4,836 Died of disease, That is to say, that for every one officer killed in battle, nine men die, but for every officer dying of disease, thirty-four men die. The disparity is remarkable, and shows how Tommy Atkins has to stand the racket. It may be true that the officer has to expose himself on the field of battle more recklessly than the common soldier, and that his constitution is better adapted for resisting disease, but even so, the above comparison seems to us to be very remarkable.

That sort of thing might do among politicians, but he wanted none of their practices introduced into the church. Jiggers and the Soldiers. One of the most annoying pests of the tropical countries, particularly of the West Indies, which we have '-aen into Uncle Sam's family, is the jig. ger. It was one of the afflictions of our army before Santiago, and nearly every soldier who returned from Cuba could tell fearsome tales of the ravages of the dear little thing. True to human nature, as the cynic would say, it is the female which makes trouble for man. She bores with her head into the human skin and stays there. The large quantity of eggs which she takes in with her swell her to the size of a pea, the color being white. This results in a small ulcer which inflames in the course of a few days. If the parasite isn't removed inflammation increases and in the course of it the jigger eliminates it-

At the beginning the pain is so slight that usually it is not noticed. But the festering would, if not cleaned, as in the case of all neglected wounds, cause serious inflammation, gangrene, and even general blood poisoning. As the jigger lives in the ground, it usually seeks the feet of its victim, so that the mode of prevention and the treatment are easy. Thick boots or high boots are good protection. Peru bal-sam is rubbed into the socks. As. soon as a jigger is noticed it should be removed with the greatest care. The wound should be cleaned out and if kept clean it usually heals quickly. If, in the removing of the jigger, the parasite is lacerated, blood poisoning and severe inflammation are sure to result. German soldiers in east Af-rica are afflicted with jiggers sometimes, through carelessness in not attending to the feet. This neglect is punished, because it prevents soldiers from marching, when care and attention would have kept their feet in good condition.

Mysterious Tragedy Occurs in a Winnipeg House.

Murder, Suicides and Sudden Deaths Have Previously Occurred Within Its Walls.

curred in the north end of this city on turday night, when Alice Mills, who was married on Thursday last, committed sui-cide by taking a large dose of carbolic acid. She had been living with her mother; Mrs. Pearson, on Euclid avenue, since the wed-ding. On Saturday evening she went down town to purchase supplies for the wed-ding breakfast, which was to have been held Sunday. Among the other things she pro-cured an ounce of carbolic acid, which she swallowed in the wood-shed, after first swallowed in the wood-shed, after first kissing her husband. Her screams alarmed the family, and her husband arrived only to catch her as she fell. She said she had just taken carbolic ecid, and nobody would know why. It was not on account of her hus-band, whom she loved dearly.

The house in which the tragedy occurred was one of the first ever built in this city It has the reputation of being unlucky, as one murder, two suicides, two sudder deaths, and one shooting have occurred there since its construction.

This Assassin has a Whole Province in Italy Terrorized.

He has Already Slain Jury, Jurors and Witnesses Who Convicted Him.

London, Oct. 1. - All Italy is in a state of excitement over the exploits of the brigand Mussolino, whose murder record is rapidly nearing champion figures. Some time ago he was convicted of the murder of an inoffensive peasant and was sentenced to 25 years' imprisonment. He recently escaped, and took to the open country as a brigand, with the avowed object as a brigand, with the avowed object of taking vengeance upon everybody connected with the trial.

An enterprising reporter, taking his life in his hands, obtained an interview with the prood-stained ruffian. Mus-solino put on highly virtuous frills solino put on highly virtuous frills with the newspaper man. He said:

"I harm nobody who has not injured me. I am no vulgar malefactor, but, take my lyord, I will kill every one of the scoundrels who denounced me to the law and gave evidence against me; the members of the jury who dared to find me guilty of a common crime, and the judges who had the audacity to send me to prison, all shall know what it means to be the enemy of Mussolino. But all other people need not fear. I protect them." Mussolino. But all other people need not fear. I protect them."

Such wholesale threats would be grotesque in any other country, but Mussolino is a man of his word. Murder has followed murder with incredi-ble rapidity, and, after all, the fiend runs no particular risk, as there is no capital punishment in Italy, and if aptured he will be no worse off than if he had merely hidden after escaping. He has already killed every man who gave evidence against him, and has murdered seven of the jury, while two others are awaiting their doom in a state of abject terror, although pro-tected by the police night and day. The remaining three died natural deaths, or, as some say, unnatural deaths from fright.

THESE ARE INCIDENTS. Apart from his legitimate quarry, so to speak, Mussolino has incidentally killed two carbineers. The last crime was committed on Tuesday, when he emptied the six chambers of his re-volver into Judge Zizilli, a member of the court which sentenced him. The judge is dead, of course, and his sons d brothers are now joining in tha hase of the murderer.

All these crimes have been committed in the Province of Reggio Calabria. The desperado is absolutely ter-rorizing the entire province. His courage and indomitable nerve are su-perb. He does not confine his murderous work to the country or to the night time. Several times he has en-tered towns and villages in broad daylight, killed his victim, and disappeared—this despite the fact that a price of 10,000 lire is upon his head, and that the entire provincial force of gen-darmes and militia were hunting him. Mussolino is about 28 years old, and of fine physique, like the robbers of romance. He is kind to the poor, and has a pretty way with the women, who are believed to act as willing in-who are believed to act as willing intelligence officers.

The great trial at Palermo, consequent upon the latest effort to extirpate brigandage in Sicily, was concluded this week. It lasted three months, and was full of exciting dramatic incidents, but the Italians have not taken nearly as much interest in it as in Mussolino's murderous exploits. The Palermo prisoners numbered 248. They were accused of all possible crimes from murder to housebreaking. The sentences passed aggregate the stupendous total of 16 centuries, than which there is surely nothing more remarkable outside of comic opera. omic opera.

As soon as the president of the tri# bunal had finished reading the judgment, the prisoners howled in chorus and made desperate efforts to break through the iron bars behind which they were caged. The guard of 80 gendarmes levelled their rifles at the condemned men, while the president shouted:—"If at my third word order is not restored, I will order the gendarmes to fire, Now, then, one, two—"

Before the judge could say three all Before the judge could say three all the prisoners threw themselves on their knees and begged for mercy, and, at a gesture from the bench, the gen-darmes lowered their rifles. So ended a strange trial. There is a strong suspicion that quite half the prisoners were victims of agents provocateurs.

A GOOD BROODER. Plan of a Home Made Brooder Illustra for the Poultry Raiser. nd you a plan of my home made rooder No. 2, thinking it might interest some of your many readers.

I have one of them running now with thirty chicks in it. The brooder is three feet wide by our feet long and ten inches high inside measurement.

A is glass door on top, 3 feet long by 18 inches wide. B.B. is glass door on side of brooder, and it answers two purposes, namely, making it easy to clean out brooder and allowing plenty of light for the chicks. C is the chimney which passes through the center of floor 18 inches from end of brooder and connects with the heating pipe D with a round elbow. D is made of two inch pipe, they are placed two inches from top and six inches from sides and are two feet six inches long, by allowing them to project through end one inch it will give a good draft to the lamp, L. E. is a sixinch jacket with mineral wood packed inside to prevent the wood from catching on fire.

A, 10 lb pail with a hole through top and bottom, is just the size of chimney, and makes a good jacket. Be sure that no wood touches the chimney. The lamp rests on a stool that will just slide in under the lamp when it is in place. H, is a one-inch hole in C, just level with top of burner with a piece of mica over it. This will give you a chance to see how large the blaze of the lamp is.

I use one foot legs. Hang a curtain to top of brooder and close to the pipe, allowing it almost to touch the floor.

Now your brooder is ready for the chicks .- O. L. Clark, Northampton, Gen. Buller is Likely to Succeed "Bobs' in South Africa-Cannaught is Shelved Again.

New York, Oct. 2.-Tne appointment of Roberts to succeed Wolseley as commander-in-chief of the British army had all along been-expected, says the London correspondent of the Tribune, but the official announcement, made last night, can only be regarded, in siew of the general election as a clever political move. With Roberts as commander-in-chief, the Roberts as commander-in-chief, the question of appointing a new secretary of war will be reduced in importance, as the fact of the hero of the South African Campaign being in supreme command of the military forces will be in itself a guarantee of war office reforms.

Wolseley, it is well known, could two or three years ago have had the governor-generalship of Canada, but owing to the exigencies of military affairs at the time, he did not see his way to resign the commandership-inway to resign the commandership-in-chief. Had he done so the appointment would have gone to the Duke of Connaught. Now, however, the Queen's son will have to be content with his present office as commander of the forces in Ireland.

WOMAN A BEAST OF BURDEN. Heavy Loads Carried by Italians

Through New York's Streets, It is no uncommon sight to see Itallan women walking along the streets balancing burdens on their heads that the average man would prefer to have sent home on a truck. A few days ago one of these women passed through City Hall park. On her head she was carrying what appeared to be the entire woodwork from the interior of some house. The bundle was made up of eight pieces of hard wood, the shortest being fully 12 feet in length. Each piece was six inches in width and an inch thick. The woman steadied this burden with one hand, while in the other she carried what one would consider a good load for one person in the shape of a bundle of shorter pieces of wood.

As she turned into Center street, near Chambers, the end of the load of lumber on her head came in contact with the head of a man who was going in the opposite direction. In order to prevent hitting him too bard the woman tried to turn to one side, and as she did so her burden fell to the walk. In rain she tried to replace it on her head t eich end. They found that even cient to lift up and place it on the woman's head again. When the wood was finally adjusted in a proper position the woman picked up her smaller

"How do you know? You haven't felt of it, and there is no mirror here that you could have looked into. Sometimes, Mr. Holmes, I am almost forced, in spite of your declarations that you do these wonderful things by reasonable, human processes, to believe that you must be gifted with second sight.

Now what has convinced you that your necktie is disarranged?" "I noticed a man look at my tie just now and then feel of his own," the great detective answered.

"Wonderful! Wonderful! Only your tle is all right."

To Pack Eggs For Long Keeping. The yolk of the egg spoils much quicker than the white. For this reason it is important that the yolk should be surrounded with a layer of the white. If the egg is placed on the side or large end the heavy yolk will settle to the bottom and come in contact with the shell, which admits the air. If it is placed on the small end it will always have a layer of white between it and the shell. Eggs absorb odors easily, therefore only odorless materials should be used when packing them .- Ladies' Home Journal.

GHOST DANCE TO ORDER.

tertained a Visitor at Fort Reno. "I read the other day that the Indians in the Southwest were out for ghost dances again. It made me laugh," said a man who was visiting Governor's Island.

"You have been down there?" said the officer who was doing the honors.
"Yes. It was when Colonel, now
General Wade, was in command of Fort Reno, the reservation being in Okla-homa. I had a letter to him, and in my talk I said to him that I had my talk I said to him that I had never seen a ghost dance. He smiled. Later in the talk I repeated that I would like to look at a ghost dance if I had an opportunity. After dinner he called in one of his officers and told him of my curiosity. 'If you have any entertainment of that kind this evening,' said the commandant 'please see ing, said the commandant, 'please se that our visitor is invited.'

"It was after dark when the officer and I rode out of the post and across the prairie. After a trot of nearly two hours we came to a place where the officer reined up and said 'hello' in a low voice. ficer reined up and said 'heilo' in a low voice. A man came out of the house bareheaded and without a coat. The officer spoke in Spanish, and the bareheaded man replied in the same language. Then the officer told me to dismount and go in, adding that the man would be my guide, and having done this he galloped off, having told me I would be well cared for.

"My guide spoke English. We started on foot, Indian fashion, the guide in advance. We walked in silence for in advance. We walked in silence for an hour. Not once did he look back or speak. Then we came upon an Indian tent, not a shack; you know what I mean; regular Indian tent with poles.

The guide told me to wait, and he went to the opening and spoke in Cheyenne.

"There was quite a parley. The guide talked as we talk when we get mad. Finally he went in, and then I heard several voices. A few minutes later an Indian buck came out, yawned and grunted. Then two others came out, after them two squaws, then an old man and two boys. The guide was the last to come out. "He came to me and asked me if I had any whiskey. "Well, I had. A man had to drink something in Oklahoma. The guide said if I didn't mind he would pass the bottle. Of course I complied. I knew where I could get more but you can't always see a ghost dance After the bottle was passed the guide gave a command, and then the incantation began. It didn't last long, for the dancers again demanded the bottle. It wasn't a very big bottle, but I handed it out again; and it came back empty. Of course that was to be expected. You can't expect a small bottle of whiskey to last long where there are seven Indians in the party. After the second round they groaned and made signs and chanted their weird song, if song you could call it.

"All at once the dance stopped. Ditto the sounds. They knew there was no more firewater, and they struck. My guide pulled out a revolver and levelled it on the dancers and cursed them. At first they refused to dance. Then the guide fired. I swear I saw the shot tear up a piece of ground, and one of the Indians jumped about three feet in the air. I felt guilty. I begged the guide not to force the dance, as I had seen enough. But he informed me that he never compromised with a damned Indian even in a dance. Bang went the gun again, and another Indian leaped into the air. This started up the business once more, and they got down to business in fine style. They kept it up until I asked the guide to let them go back.

"We returned to the guide's cabin, and I remained there during the night, sleeping on the floor. The next day I rode back to the fort and paid my respects to Colonel Wade. As I was leaving him I said I thought I should enloy a ghost dance where whiskey and sistols were not resorted to as the moving power. You might see one where pistols are not necessary,' he replied, 'but in my opinion a ghost dance without whiskey would be tame.'

"After that remark I never had much curiosity to see a ghost dance. The officer laughed as though he understood the necessary ingredient to make a ghost dance a success

Here's the Way to Live Long. Do you want to live to be old? Then you must sweat for it.

Says Dr. J. H. Kellogg: "The Creator understood this when He ordained that man should earn his bread by the sweat of his brow. Sweat produced by exercise is necessary as a means of removing waste products from the body, and of burning up the rub-bish which clogs the wheels of life. All persons who have lived to a great age have been characterized by active phy-

"The diseases which afflict old age are rheumatism, diabetes, gout and obesity, aside from general weakness of all the organs resulting from de-generation. All these diseases are antagonized by work. Exercise involves the expenditure of energy and the burning up of materials stored in fat and glycogen.

"Exercise prevents old age by preventing fatty changes, while idleness engenders in the body an excess of fat. engenders in the body an excess of fat. Nature, finding no use for this excess, deposits it in the blood vessels, muscless and other tissues, and by this means they undergo fatty degeneration. Activity uses up the waste matter, and keeps off old age. Idlene s is the greatest for of longerity.

keeps off old age. Idlens s is the greatest foe of longevity.

"There is another degeneration peculiar to advancing years and that is the process by which the blood vessels wither away, and thus carry off nutrition from the different organs and tissues of the body. This may be largely prevented by persistent exercise. When sufficient exercise is taken the blood is poured into the blood vessels in a torrent, and these capillaries and blood vessels, instead of contracting, are stretched to their fullest capacity and kept in activity.

stretched to their fullest capacity and kept in activity.

"The most active men and the busiest live the longest. William Culien Bryant at the age of eighty still practiced regular exercise, one of which consisted of raising himself up and down on his toes from 300 to 500 times. After some other exercise of a similar nature he took a ten or twelve mile walk. John Bricsson habitually weeked from twelve to fifteen hours a day, and then walked the streets from 10 p. in.

THE THEATRE.

The Evening Star, St. Catharines, Ont., Wednesday, Sept. 26, 1900, says concerning next Friday night's attraction at the Grand: "The Prisoner of Zenda" was presented by a capable company at the Grand Opera House last night before a splendid audience, the pit, firess circle and gallery being completely filled. There was only one verdict—that the play was one of the prettiest seen here in a long time, and that it was in good hands. From 8.30 to 11.30 intense interest was maintained in the drama, and everybody tained in the drama, and everybody was well pleased. Manager Wilson is to be congratulated upon being able to secure such high class productions for his house as "The Prisoner of Zenda," and he promises a succession of good things throughout the season.

COWSLIP FARM.

Edward Warren, who appears in the quaint character of Aunt Melinda Jane Boggs, of Juniperville, Vermont, in the four act pastoral comedy-drama, Cowslip Farm, is an artist well and favorably known throughout the country. His actual stage appearance confavorably known throughout the country. His actual stage experience covers more than twenty years. Highning his career as a humble member of a well-known western stock company, he steadily rose to his present stellar position. He has been connected in the past with such well-known companies as Fanny Davenport, Daniel Frohman, the late Augustin Daly, Mme. Rhea, Chas. T. Parsloe and many others of equal reputation. He has played every line of work from leading Shakespearean roles to low comedy, and has created more than fifty original roles in modern drama. His part in Cowsl.p Farm is a distinct revelation. He portrays to the life a New England spinster, a line made famous by Neil Burgess, but in no sense is Mr. Warren a copy; on the contrary, he has created a type of character which must be accepted as absolutely original. The costuming of the contrary detail. absolutely original. The costuming of the part is perfect in every detail, and his acting has created an impres-sion which is bound to last. At the Grand next Thursday night.

"FOOL'S GOLD."

"Steady, Tom, old boy; careful where you step! Things are bad anough as they are, without anything happening Look out for that stump

Tom and his young rider were alone on one of the Rocky mountain ranges—the "Front Range," it is called, almost in the heart of Colorado. It was late in a mid-winter afternoon and the falking snow nearly blinded them.

The horse stonged every few steps The horse stopped every few steps and looked inquiringly back, as though he had a mind to go no further; but the boy was bright and cheery, patter! Tom's neck, and talked encouragingly to him.

Yet the horse was a native of those mountains, and should have been used to such scenes, whereas the boy was a city boy, who, less than three months before had been sitting by one of the most cozy of eastern firesides.
"I really think, Rally" (the boy's name was Raleigh Sayre, but everybody called him Rally), "I really think," his father had said to him, "that it's not right for you to be fooling away your time in that school of mines, now that money is so scare, when you might be, earning some-

"It's only to learn how to earn something for us all when I'm older, father," Rally had replied, "But I'm o nearly through that I think I could earn something now, out in the min-ing country. I'll try it, if you will let me, and I can come back in a year or two and finish my course."
This was the beginning of Rally's start for Colorado; and in the more found enough small jobs to buy a horse to carry him into the mountains, where, as he knew, his chances would be better.

Ten minutes had passed. Rally had dismounted, and for some time he had been leading Tom about in the dark looking for a good place to camp, when the sweetest music startled both rider and horse. It was the bark of a

"Halloo!" Rally shouted. Instantly a door in some dwelling place was opened, far up the mountain side, and a flood of light poured

"San you give me shelter for the might?" Rally asked, out of breath with his exertion.

"Sure, lad," the man replied, "and that's about all we can give you, too. Central C. H. Gunn This is Camp Starvation. We're going to boil up our old boots to-morrow. But come in, and bring the horse with

> There was no other shelter for the horse, so Rally led Tom into the cabin, which was a cross between a dugout and a rough log cabin, but much larger than such places usually are, with a chimney of stones and mud at the end and a cheerful fire blazing under it. At this fire a second man was cooking something in an iron pot. "You're just in time, young fellow," taugh. "I'm boiling our last ham bone into soup. If you'd come to-morrow you'd had to eat candies, or boiled boot or a clies." moot, or a slice of dog meat."

"Never mind," he laughed.

"I have some cotables in my trunk; some extracts of beef, and such things. A few cats for Tom here, too. Down on your luck?"
"Just slightly!" the man by the fire answered, in his sarcastic way, "Out prospecting, and got strapped—that's all. Grub all gone, and no money; but if we'd all the money in the world, we couldn't get down to Central City to buy some grub, now this snow's come. That horse of your looks plump and "Peddin' something?" the first man asked, nodding his head toward the trunk as Rally stepped up to the fire o warm himself.

"No!" Rally laughed. "Nothing at all. I'm a workman, and carry my, tools in there. That's all."

In due time the ham bone soup was ready, and Rally produced several jars of condensed food from his trunk. after the meal they looked so much happier that Rally was encouraged to ask their names. "That's Jack Dawson," the sarcastic one replied, "and I'm Bill Nogood. That's not exactly my name, but it fits me like a glove. We're two busted prospectors; that's what we are. Now I'm Rally Sayre," the boy re-"last from Sunset, in Boulder county; on my way to Contral City, and making a little-circuit over the mountain looking for work."

"Work!" Bill Nogood, the sarcastic

"We might go down to exclaimed. "We might go down to Central City and go to work, I suppose. There's as many as four jobs vacant in Central City, I hear, and not more than 800 men, women and children fighting for each one of them. "And the mountains are full of silver and gold, too, as you can see. I don't know so much about the gold, but as for silver (that's our business, my lad, prospecting for silver), I don't believe there's enough of it in this whole mountain to make a lead quar-

"Hold on!" Jack Dawson haughingly interrupted; "don't forget my bottle of fool's gold. I believe there's enough copper in that stuff to pay for working it."

"Fool's gold?" Rally inquired.
"That's what we call iron pyrites, you know," Dawson explained, "be cause it has a reddish look and weight cause it has a reddish look and weighs heavy; greenhorn prospectors often mistake it for gold. I've got a bottle of it I panned out here, and if I over get to Cenetral City again I'm going to have it assayed for copper, for it has a coppery look to me."

Rally looked at the bottle carefully, shook it, weighed it in his hand, and held it toward the candle. Then he took out the stopper and poured some of the stuff inte the palm of his hand.

"I forgot to tell you," he said, "and OLD POSSUM'S EXPERIENCE.

work I do is assaying, and that I is tooking for minure who want that and of work dome. I have a complete mayor's tit in my truth, and I can if you whether there's any copper in our systims without your going to intent City."

Central City."

The two prospectors helped carry the trank ever near the fire, and looked on in americalment when Rally becan to lift out its contents.

The casta leaked like a chemist's shop, when all the things were laid out on the table.

"Well, you can shoot me with a popular, ladi" Jack Barwen exclaimed. "And we took you for a pedier?"

"You see," said Bally, "I pour your bottle of pyrites into this cruchle, and sidd a little borax, merely to keep it from sticking. Now I put a handful of resin into the furnace, and start my fire—a very hot fire it makes, too."

"This is only to mest it into a solid mass, instand of having it loose, like shot. I keep stirring it with this stick, because there may be several metals in it, and I want them well mixed, now it is melted and thoroughly mixed, and I pour it into this porcelain cup to cond—so...

"Mean I take this tunnamer and chisele."

"Now I take this tmamer and chisel and chip off a piece, which must weigh exactly 77-10 grains troy. Ah! (trying it on the exact) it is a trifle too heavy, so I fale a little of it away.

Now, I chip a small piece of pure silver from this new dime, and the silver must weigh avactly 22 1.10 silver must weigh exactly 23 1-10 grains, or just three times as much as the other metal.

"Next I wrip both of my little chips in this bit of lead paper, which is two mothes square, and very thin. It looks like a bullet now, doesn't it?"
"Now just watch this little cup that large going to put the bullet large. I am going to put the buffet into. It looks fike felt, but it is made of bone ashes, moistened and pressed into this It is the most curious implement I have, and I will tell you more about it presently. We call it a

In a minute or two the little "bullet" was melted into a liquid, and a good deal of the liquid seemed to disappear, still there was a considerable quantity of mosten metal left in the cup, which Rally then removed from the fire.

"I forgot to ask you," he said to Dawson, while the little lump was cooling, "whether you can get plent? cooling, "whether you can get plenty of this stuff if it proves to be worth anything?"
"Thousands of tens of it," Dawson nswered, "and right alongside of us. That bottleful was the washings from about two pailfuls of dirt and pounded rock that I got right back of the cabin here. Do you find any copper in

"I'm afraid not," Rally replied, 'but I'll tell you in a few minutes. You see my hump of metal has become amaller. I heat it a little in the fire. and pound it out with the hammer till it is like a thin wire so.

"Now I bend the wire this way, around the file, till it is shaped like a watch spring. This little spring we "Now you keep your eyes on this,

"Now you keep your eyes on this, for this is the last operation, and the one that tells the story. Do you see this tiny cup, like a thimble, with a narrow ailt in the bottem?

"It is made of platinum, and I am going to put my little spired comet into it, put them both into this porcelain cup, cover them with this nitric acid, and hold them over the fire till the acid botts. See, it botts very quickly. The allt in the bottom is to let the silver run out after the acid melts it."

The allt in the bottom is to let the silver run out after the acid melts it.

After allowing the acid to boil a few mautes, Rally poured it carefully into another cup, and leid the little platinum cup on the table. There was a tiny coil of shining metal in the bottom of it Both the men craned their necks

"Is all that pure copper what is left?" Dawson asked, eagerly.
"Not a grain of copper," Rally answered, still watching the cup, "it is pure gold!"

Gold! They sprang up and waltzed one another about the cahin, and drag-ged Rafly about, too, greatly to the danger of his instruments.

"Hold on!" Bill Nogood said, presently, suddenly quieting down. "Maybe we're going too fast. Maybe the boy don't know what he's talking about."

Raily laughed again.
"I knew there was gold in the stuff the minute I saw it," he said, "so that was what I gave my attention to. You remember I told you what a curious thing the bone ash cup is—the cupel? curious thing about it is that it absorb any metal melted in it except gold and silver.

"So when I melted the 'bullet' in it, I knew that what remained was pure gold and silver. Boiling it in nitric acid afterward merely melted away the silver, for no acid will melt gold." "About how much might that stuff that was in the bottle be worth, then?"

Jack Dawson asked. "That is easily found," Rally answered. "The stuff in the bottle we melted into a lump weighs four and one-half ounces—I have just weighed at. The little chip I cut off and assayed is a fair sample of the whole lump, as it was well mixed. This little coll of gold I got out of it weighs—let me coe just 4.62 grains. This is precisely, three fifths of the original weight—so the stuff that was in the bottle is ex-the stuff that was in the bottle is ex-actly three-fifths pure gold.

"Now the rest of the calculation is very easy," Rally went on. The orig-inal stuff weighs 4.5 ounces. Three-fifths of that is 2.7 ounces. Gold is worth $20.67 an ounce. Now 2.7 ounces

"It's only doing the fair thing," Bill Nogood answered. "You only found lron pyrites; it was the boy who found the gold. What do you say, lad?"

ell, children," said the old Father 'Possum to his family, as they were all assembled in the hollow tree which served as their home, "did I ever tell you about my closest ca:1?" "No," said the youngest, as he cud dled up more closely to his mother. "Do tell us about it," said the oldest son; "it must have been something grand." "It was," said the father, but I did not look at it in that light at the time it happened," and after boxing the ears of the eldest, who was pulling the fur out of his brothers to amuse himself, he continued:

"I was very young and inexperi-enced at the time, and in spite of my mother's warning to me to observe great caution in my rambles at night I paid no attention to her and used no discretion whatever, wandering around at my own sweet will instead of following her instructions, but I came near paying dearly for my disobedience, as you shall hear.

"It was over in the old Marsh woods, the one in which there are two or three saw mills running now. It was on account of the saw mills your mother and I moved here.

"I was the oldest of a family of six, and, therefore, thought I ought to have more privileges than some of my brothers and sisters," at which his eldest son shook his head vigorously, "and sometimes on account of my age was allowed to take a ramble by myself without the rest of the family being along. One night the weather was extra fine and I determined to take a stroll in the woods, but what was my surprise to find that we were absolutely forbidden to go out that night at all and more than that my mother refused to give me any reason why I could not go when I ventured to ask her for permission.

"This enraged me greatly. I treated like a boy, I thought, and I would not stand it, I told myself, and telling my mother I was going for a drink and would be back as soon as I had got one, I started out.

"There was a full moon and the stars were all out in the sky, making it nearly as bright as daylight. I got along nicely, not even stumbling over anything, and having covered a good deal of ground I looked around, and spying a tree full of ripe haws it was not long before I had climbed to the top of the tree and was eating the ripe fruit. I was very careful to eat the best myself, for although I intended taking some of the fruit home with me I was naturally greedy at the time, and instead of reserving the best for the family, as I should have done, I crammed myself so full of the fruit, there being such a quantity of it, that could not bear to leave off after eating my fill, and gorged until I could gorge no longer, so that I could hard-

"Then I hung my tail from one of the branches and went to sleep. I was wakened by a dog barking under the tree and then a gun went bang, and I was so surprised, and badly scared for that matter, too, that I dropped right down to the ground without thinking, and then a boy hit me a whack with a big stick, and holding me up by the tail showed me to his companions and began boasting of what a good shot he

"He thought he had killed me, but one of the others told him I had only been stunned and advised him to prick me with a knife to make sure, but he objected to that, and said he was quite certain that I was dead, and then to make sure he banged me over the head with his club again, and put me in a sack which he flung over his his shoulder and taking the ends in his hands he went on with the rest.

"Now, you see, I had learned ond thing at least from my parents and that was to always pretend to be dead if I was ever captured by any one. I could not move around in the sack for fear of disturbing the boy, but as the sack jolted a great deal I had about decided to gnaw a hole in the end and slip out, had not the dog at that moment jumped up at the sack to get at me, for I think he suspected I was not dead and this decided me not to try to escape in that way, having often heard the old saying, 'it is better to be a live 'possum in a bog than a dead one in the mouth of a dog,' and I kept quiet and tried to think of another plan. "But I soon gave it up, and then began to think of my poor parents and how they must be worrying about me and so sad did I become that I actually shed tears thinking about what they would undergo when I would never come back. But just then the dog started on again and began backing under another tree and the boy dropped me in his excitement and taking his gun he started to run under the tree. "I saw the opportunity at once and took advantage of it. The mouth of the sack had not been fastened and I slipped out and into the underbrush without being noticed. It did not take worth $20.67 an ounce. Now 2.7 ounces of gold, at $20.67 an ounce, is worth just $55.76. That is the exact value of the stuff you had in the bottle."

'"Look a here, Bill," Jack Dawson said, "we know a good thing when we see it. A gold mine's a good thing, and we've got one. But a gold mine, and we've got one. But a gold mine, with such a head as this boy's to run it is a better thing. He knows what's what, and we'll need him. I propose we take him in for a one-third partner."

without being noticed. It did not take me long to find my way home and when I arrived my parents could hardly believe that it was myself. They thought I had been captured and had given me up as dead, and when I told them my adventures it was all I could do to convince them of the events that had taken place, but after I had told them all they were so overjoyed at my escape that I did not get the good scolding I should have received.

friendship that an individual can display to another is telling him gently of a fault. If any other can excel it. it is listening to such a communication with gratitude and amending the SHEEP RAI: ING should we not raise m sheep? There are several reasons why we should raise sheep. The following four reasons will be ample to answer the question satisfactorily:

First. There are millions of the human and canine races, now in the world and millions more continually being brought into it, and all so constituted that they get hungry about three times per day, (and the dogs in the night, also.) To allay their hunger they must have at least, a portion of animal food to mix with their vegetable diet. Sheep furnishes one of the best and most healthy meats—mutton. Mutton can be raised as easily and cheaply as beef or pork, and is growing in favor. The present prospect is that there will continue to be millions, yes, thousands of millions of the human race getting hungry three times a day, and these will raise dogs that get hunrgy at any time when there are sheep in sight so that there will be great demand for mutton. Therefore we should raise sheep. Second. All these millions of the human race (not the dogs) have is have artificial coverings for their bodies, from the cradle to the grave, day and night, to protect them from the elements and accidents. Wool is one of the best, if not the best, material out of which this artificial covering must be manufactured. The sheep produces the wool, and it is a poor sheep whose fleece will not pay its board bill. Thus the sheep pays up its cost annually and the raiser has the carcass for profit. Therefore we should raise sheep. Third. The sheep is one the best animals to clean up a farm and keep it clean of weeds, brush, etc. It will eat many kinds of plants that horses and cattle will not, and thus destroy trash that would cost the farmer many dollars to hire destroyed. But the sheep will work for nothing here and board itself, or pay its board in wool. Therefore we should raise some sheep.

Fourth. Where there is thin land, or in a hilly section of the country, no stock will contribute to the fertilization of the land as well as sheep if properly managed. Their manure is one of the richest and when left to themselves they will deposit it on the lighest, driest, and most likely, the poorest places they can find. A-part of the proper management above referred to is, keeping the sheep in yards and stables during the wiuter, where they will manufacture rich fertilizer to be applied wherever the owner chooses. If confined on dry feed with good water easily accesible, they will keep full, fat and feeling well, but if allowed to run out on frozen grass they will not do as well, and they destroy more grass than would keep them through the summer. Therefore owners of hilly land, especially, should raise sheep .- Farmers'

WILLS WOMEN MAKE.

MANY REASONS WHY THEY ARE OFTEN ERRATIC.

Infamiliarity With Laws Governing the Devising of Property Is One Stumbling Block, and Their Own Changeable Minds Is Another. In making her last will and testament woman has much more to contend with than the superstition common to both sexes-that the making of one's will hastens the approach of death. It is not a subject that either party likes to talk about, and the only advice taken is that of the family lawyer, and most women are debarred from taking that step by the fear that he will tell his wife or other female relative. Another disadvan-tage under which a woman labors is her own ignorance of the law of the state in which she lives and which may forbid her devising any of her property on a technicality of age, the consent of her busband-if married-and many conflicting red tape laws that serve as materia for a long course of litigation on the part of her heirs. Finally her own changeable will offers a serious stumbling block in the way of formulating a cast iron document which shall resist the lapse of years and repose peacefully in the iron box of the safety vault until the death of the testatrix.

The natural woman would want to add a codicil to her last will and testament at least once a week. She is not to blame for this. The average woman is the real owner of anything beyond a few gowns or rings of association. She is pathetically poor in her own right, and some of the wills which these respectable paupers make are their own testimony to their state of indigence.

A woman of my acquaintance made her will, writing out on a single sheet of paper in unlegal language a disposal of her few expensive garments, such as "my new sealskin cloak," or specifying "my soltaire diamond engagement ring;" also "my watch set with diamonds," and then hid the document in her pocket and forgot all about it. But one day she saw her husband chuckling over a paper he was reading, and on asking him what it was that amused him received the answer: "Your last will and testament, my dear. I found it lying on the floor, where you must have dropped it."

He ought not to have laughed, for it left everything she possessed to him "in case he should ever need them." More pathetic still is this document, which was written in lead pencil and found among the effects of a young mother:

"To my dear son, Henry, I leave my watch set with diamonds, two diamond rings, penholder of gold and rubber and the best of my silk dresses, which in-clude new black silk grenadine with chiffon trimmings, tan striped taffeta, black satin skirt and blue corded evening dress without sleeves, to be kept for him until he shall have wife and children to whom he can give these things as curis ous, old fashioned gowns once worn by his mother; also I give to him my new canvas covered trunk, in which he can pack and keep these dresses. I have tried to teach my son the right way to live. He is a good boy, and I hope he will grow to be a good man, and if he will follow those instructions he will be.

"If your lips would keep from slips, Two things observe with care—
Of whom you speak, to whom you speak,
And how and when and where.

"These are the wishes of his moth-

I recall the making of a Quaker will where the family were assembled in council, and the eldest daughter, who was country, and a distance, sat among them and after a long silence rose and said:
"Mother, thee need not put me in thy will. I have had my share already, and I hereby renounce all rights to everything thee hast, except the black marble table in the front room." She sat down, and another long silence ensued, when her sister rose.

"Thee cannot have that table, Elizabeth. I want it for myself." Silence again and as protracted as before, and Elizabeth, the party of the first part, stood up.

"Mother, I will not be left out of thy will. Thee will please give us share and share alike. I will have my rightful A member of another family was always changing her will, as she quar-reled frequently with those whom she had named as legatees. On one occasion she appeared at the door of the family sitting room and asked excitedly how they spelled the werd "cross." She had forgotten, she said, whether it began with a "c" or a "k." They told her, and she went away. Then the members of that family looked at each other, and one of them said:

"She has quarreled with Cousin Amy, and she is going to give her diamond cross to some one else."

Women seldom make long wills. Mrs. Women seidom make long wins. Also William C. Whitney, who was Flora Payne, made a will that only covered one sheet of ordinary paper, leaving to her husband a personal fortune of $3,000,000, which was invested and everything she posthusband a personal fortune of $3,000,000, all her jewels and everything she possessed, and making him the only executor of the will. The will of Julia C. Conkling, widow of Roscoe Conkling, was even shorter than Mrs. Whitney's, yet the magnitude of the interests conveyed may be estimated by an exception. veyed may be estimated by an excepting clause bequeathing $50,000 to her son-in-

Mrs. Sarah English of Williamsburg, who died childless, left $500 for the "comfortable maintenance" of her four "comfortable maintenance" of her four pet cats, "to maintain them in the style to which they had been accustomed."

Quite often some woman will leave an elaborate will-giving in detail much personal property and real estate when she had never possessed any of the property specified. One woman added a codicil to her will that the property therein named should have been hers, but for some unknown reason it had never materialized, but it was a comfort to donate it in imagination as she would have done had it been real.

No woman could have been guilty of the idiosyncrasy of making a will containing 9,000 words and then waiting until nearly half the beneficiaries were dead before dying with the will unchanged, as the late John I. Plair did-"Does your little dog know any tricks?"

"Oh, yes," said the little girl. "Speak "I don't hear his speaking," said the visitor after the command had been re-

LITTLE CLASSICS.

The man who does immortal work, develops himself. Here have I, living in Norway, been trying to grow a palm tree because I saw that African palms were good, And each new frost cut down afresh my poor, puny sprout My wretched seedling had to contend with a great, strong, frost-defying pine that kept springing up. It has only recently dawned on me that I must grow my own pine. It is the timber for my soil. What a tree I might have had now had I realized this ten years ago! This is, then, my theory; I have omething which no one else in the world has. It may be a little thing but it is mine. It is my pine tree, and I must grow it, it will, at least, be always a living thing.-Ernest Seton-

Every good act is charity. Giving water to the thirsty is charity; remov-ing stones and thorns from the road is charity; exhorting your fellow men to virtuous deeds is charity; smiling in your brother's face is charity; putting wanderer in the right path is charity. A man's true wealth is the good he does in this world. When he dies, mortals will ask, "What property has he left behind him?" But angels will inquire, "What good deeds hast thou sent before thee?"-Mohammed.

The community has no bribe that will tempt a wise man. You may raise money enough to tunnel a mountain, but you cannot saise money enough to hire a man who is minding his own business. An efficient and valuable man does what he can. whether the community ray him for it or not. The inefficient offer their inefficiency to the highest bidger and are forever expecting to be put into office. -Henry David Thoreau.

E. & D. BICYCLES

The great reason for the goodness of E. & D. bearings lies in their fourpoint design. The load passes directly through the balls, and there is no opportunity for the balls to jam.

In E. & D. four-point bearings the weight on any one point in the bearing is never more than 1-8th of the weight of the rider. In ordinary bicycles, the immense leverage between cup and cone bearings and cone cuts the bearings and breaks the balls.

To show how little the wear on E. & D. four-point bearings is, we first guarantee them for three years, and, secondly, we oil them at the beginning of the season, and at the end, upon examination, the oil will be found-clear.

THEY DIDN'T BREAK THE LAW. Acting under instructions from Mr. Bastedo, Game Warden Timothy McQueen has been investigating the case of three citizens who the Banner said caught 100 bass at the mouth of the river. The law only permits the catching by one person in one day of twelve black bass. Mr. McQueen found that there was no evidence of these citizens having broken the law. "It was just a fish story," he says. They were counting in little perch, sunfish, and everything they hauled sunfish, and everything they haused up, and even at that I could not find enough information to justify me in doing anything." He is strongly of opinion from the inquiries he made, that the gentlemen in question did not break the law.

THEORIES ABOUT CATARRH

Peculiar Ideas Regarding a Common

Mark Twain's cure for a cold in the head was simple, but he claims very effective in his own case; his plan was to eat nothing for twenty-four hours, or presumably until the trouble had disappeared.

Although not able to speak from personal experience as to the effect-iveness of this treatment, it certainhas the merit of extreme economy, but it occurs to us that the applica-tion of it to a case of nasal catarrh might be attended with difficulties.

Catarrh, as everyone knows, i sa chronic cold in the head, and Mr. Twain's treatment, if it should beome a fad, would make us/a nation of fasters, an army, emulating the example of the immortal Tanner who achieved world wide fame, by fasting forty days.

Catarrh is certainly becoming a national disease and there is little doubt but that errors in diet, particularly over eating is a very common cause.

Most people, however, are more interested in the cure of the trouble than in the cause, and modern medical science has produced more effective and less herose remedies than Mr.

Twain's. Guaiacol is a new remedy, very effective in some forms of catarrh. Eucalyptol is another which on account of its antiseptic properties is very valuable, while many severe cases of chronic catarrh have been cases of chronic catarrh have been cured by the sanguinaria or extract of blood root alone.

Another Outbreak in Malden Township - Hogs Destroyed.

Windsor, October 2. — Hog cholera has broken out again in Malden township, Essex county, and threatens to result in serious loss to the farmers. Dr. Perdue, the Government inspector, ordered all the affected animals slaughtered. The hogs had been allowed to run on a strip of land near the lake, and it is believed the disease was caused by their eating diseased carcasses of meat, thrown diseased carcasses of meat, thrown from passing boats. The inspector visited several other farms and ordered many hogs slaughtered, quarantining others. [The disease is spreading through the township, and if not backed will mean serious loss as checked will mean serious loss, as hog raising is one of the chief industries of Essex county.

day night, commencing at 7 p.m. by A. Thomson, auctioneer. This will be a good opportunity to secure Stationery and Books at your own price. Subscribers for Papers and Magazines will please call at the Beehive for their goods, as we have arranged with Mr. Holmes to take over his list and we would be pleased to secure this branch of the business.
