The Conservatives had no meetings on Saturday night, their last big gun being fired on Friday at Ingersoll when the Hon. Harry Stevens spoke.

In the 1930 election Mr. Cayley won by 55 votes, the figures being, Cayley, 5,711, Hon. Donald Sutherland, 5,656.

From 1867 until 1911 South Oxford was Liberal. In the reciprocity campaign Mr. Sutherland won it and retained it until 1926, when Mr. Cayley defeated him by 700.

Special to The Advertiser

Guelph, Ont., April 14—Liberal policy on the liquor question will be definitely issued within the course of next week or so, Mitchell F. Hepburn, Provincial Liberal leader, declared in the course of an address at a Liberal meeting here which named D. Paul Munro, K.C., M.L.A., Liberal candidate in South Wellington in the next provincial election.

"If the Conservatives' beer bill is good why don't they put in force?" Mr. Hepburn demanded. "But, no, they dangle it before your eyes and say that if you vote for them like good boys and girls, you'll get it," he stated.

The meeting, held this afternoon, was largely attended and was marked by great enthusiasm. Hon. H. C. Nixon, Dr. L. J. Simpson, M.L.A., and Mr. Munro, expounded the Liberal cause along with Mr. Hepburn.

Alleges Whitewashing

Mr. Hepburn reviewed some of the various investigations made into alleged irregularities which concerned public utilities, and pointed out that there was too much "Whitewashing." He referred to the liquor question and said it had been claimed that there was a "toll gate" system in effect whereby British distillers have to have a friend in the Ontario Conservative party to get their goods purchased. "That needs investigation, too," he declared. "The present administration is reeking of graft and corporation and mal-administration, charged Mr. Hepburn.

"The Ontario debt has gone up steadily during the present administration," he said, and he predicted that if the present rate was continued the debt at the end of 1934 would likely be $650,000,000. "The people of Ontario are ready for a change and will get

Washington, April 15.—President Roosevelt asked House Democratic leaders tonight to clear their program for the earliest possible adjournment date and informed them he would submit this week a general relief bill calling for about $1,500,000,000.

Speaker Henry Rainey and Representative Joseph Byrns of Tennessee, the floor leader, assured Mr. Roosevelt at the three-hour White House conference that the House would be ready to quit by the middle of May.

Silver?

Rainey indicated the President was inclined to favor some kind of silver action, but there was no sign that any legislation of this kind was agreed upon tonight.

"We discussed all policies and general legislative plans," the Speaker told reporters, "and did nothing in the way of decisions."

The $1,500,000,000 relief measure comes within the budget as submitted by the President at the opening of the session. At least $500,000,000 of this fund is to be earmarked for public works to stimulate employment. The Reconstruction Corporation will get another piece.

A. S. Rennie Makes Telling Speech To Electors Of South Oxford

Special to The Advertiser

Tillsonburg, April 14—The Liberals are not opposed to the British preference—they are opposed to shadow preferences, fake preferences which give nothing and get nothing and give more promise of losing than gaining markets, said A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election, at the rally here Saturday night at which Hon. Ernest Lapointe and Mitchell F. Hepburn were the chief speakers.

Open Markets

"Once in office, Liberals will open markets, not close them, expand British trade, not restrict it. Opening markets is the natural function of Liberalism, closing them is the natural task of Toryism," said Mr. Rennie.

The text of Mr. Rennie's address follows:

"Rt. Hon. R. B Bennett in his radio talk to South Oxford electors challenged the Liberals to say where they propose to get wider markets. Here are his exact words: 'The Liberals talk of wider markets. Where are they going to get them?'

"Every Tory since the dawn of time has made that argument. How could a Conservative see a market. The Tories promised a market in 1878. Our exports in that year totalled $79,100,000. In 1896, eighteen years later, the total was $116,300,000 an increase of only $37,200,000 in 18 years.

Long On Promises

"Then the Liberals came in and remained in office 15 years with an increase of $174,000,000 in that time—six times the yearly increase of the previous Tory Government. In 1911 the Tories came back. This time they promised to give us a favorable balance of trade. In 1910 we had an unfavorable balance of $71,500,000 and in 1913 the unfavorable balance was $294,000,000.

"These boys, are long on promises and short in performance. Today the story is going around that the Government is going to give an order to the shoe factory in Tillsonburg for shoes to the amount of $22,000—shoes probably for the poor cabinet ministers! Part Of Program Of World Missionary Conference In Progress Here

The triumphs and difficulties of the wide-flung missionary endeavour of the United Church of Canada both at home and abroad were brought to the congregations of city churches yesterday as 26 distinguished leaders in missionary work dwelt on this important phase of church work in their sermons. These men are in the city attending the world missionary conference and exhibit which opened Saturday in Metropolitan Church and which will continue until Tuesday evening in a concentrated effort to awaken a deep interest in missionary work in this district and to acquaint the church members with the great work that is being accomplished.

Messages From Many Lands

Brief messages from nationals and others from many lands were given at the International Missionary Mass meeting yesterday afternoon in Metropolitan United Church before a large congregation of United Church members.

Several speakers were in costume representing Korea, Japan and the Polish people who have come to live in Canada. Rev. K. J. Beaton, associate secretary of the Home Mission Board, was chairman for the first half of the program. One of the speakers, Andrew Jamieson, an Indian, graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and who is at the reserve at Muncey, told of the 13 residential schools in Canada and deplored the fact that so many of the finest and best Indians were engaged in work elsewhere than on their own reserve. He also said that many of them migrated to the United States.

GERMANY ISSUES TRADE WARNING

Sweeping Reductions In Pay and Living Cost Decreed By Mussolini

Rent, Clothing, Food And Services Slashed In General "Deflation"

GOVERNMENT SALARIES CORRESPONDINGLY CUT

Stimulation Of Export Trade And Of Tourist Traffic Among Aims

Associated Press Cable

Rome, April 15—Every salary in Italy and every article of food, clothing, rent, meat, light and transportation was on the block today to the tune of a six to 20 percent cut in order to make the kingdom able to compete in world markets with countries having lower manufacturing costs.

The Council of Ministers, over whom Premier Benito Mussolini himself presided, yesterday decreed the sweeping, all-inclusive action as a battle of a "deflationary" country against "inflationary" nations.

So broad was the offensive that the tax on bachelors, for whom officials have no love, was doubled, and certain importations, too, came under close scrutiny.

Lower Price Level

It also is a part of Il Duce's desire to bring Italy down to a lower price level in conformity with world prices so that—for example—wheat will not cost nearly three times as much here automobiles three or four times more, and so on.

The move left no stone unturned. Salaries of government employees were slashed six to 12 percent; the ministers decided to take a 20 percent reduction in their own salaries; the decision was reached that imports of oil-less seeds, copper, wool, and coffee would be regulated.

To make the tax cut both ways, all living costs, such as those of food, transportation, and utilities, were proportionately decreased. Rentals were cut 12 and 15 percent.

A similar nation-wide deflation was ordered in October, 1930.

Three Motives

The government has been considering drastic deflation for some months, especially since it became evident that Italy's foreign trade—because of the high cost of production—was suffering to an alarming extent.

The cabinet ministers said they had three motives in the general reductions:

1—To better exports.

2—To reduce currency in circulation.

3—To induce foreign tourists to come to Italy.

The important Giornale d'Italia said yesterday's provision was a move in the direction of balancing the budget since it will save the government about 1,000,000,000 lire.

Taxes also will fall. The cabinet ordered officials in provinces and municipalities to reduce taxes to equal the saving made possible in the reduction of employees' wages.

Ginrovich Leads Kitchener Police To Vicinity But Not Exact Spot

CHIEF SUSPICIOUS

Special to the Advertiser

Kitchener, April 15.—Jacob Ginrovich, Hamilton ex-con, arrested last night led police to the vicinity of the sand hill where the skeleton of a young woman was unearthed recently, as he had promised, but po nted out a spot far removed from that where the body was found as the place where he said he had buried his poison victim.

Somewhat grandiosely he turned and said, "Now, gentlemen, I'm supposed to be insane. I've been insane for five years, and this is to show you that I am insane."

Change of View

From this statement police believe that Ginrovich may now have a better understanding of the situation and may now wish to appear as insane where formerly he is said to have insisted that he was mentally normal.

Commenting on the unexpected turn of events Police Chief Hodgson said, although his visit to Kitchener may not have turned out as he expected, "we are still convinced that he is responsible for the death of the woman whose skeleton was found. We believe that he is taking advantage of the fact that the police cannot locate his letter of 1930 in which he confessed to killing the girl and that now he has been brought to Kitchener, he may realize the seriousness of the situation."

Accompanied by Jurors

Granting a request expressed by Ginrovich, while he was being brought here from Hamilton Saturday, police had eight men, a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest, accompany Ginrovich to the burial ground. Had the visit turned out as police expected it would, the eight men would have served as jurymen at an inquest into the death of the girl.

Photographs of women missing from Winnipeg and vicinity are expected from Winnipeg and Ginrovich will be shown them when they arrive. He was brought here yesterday afternoon, made his visit to the sand hill last night and was returned to the asylum this afternoon.

PROVINCIAL COUNCIL TO HANDLE DISCIPLINE

Membership Must Be Obtained Through Political Groups Only

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—The Ontario branch of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation was reorganized and launched on a new career after a stormy 15-hour conference here. The new constitution places discipline in the hands of the provincial council and provides that membership must be obtained through political groups whose members are willing to adhere strictly to the party's program.

While verbal battles occupied the hall, the corridors outside saw physical combat. Controller James Simpson of Toronto was knocked to the floor and pummelled when he reportedly interceded as a "peace-maker" in a group argument. He re-entered the meeting room as if nothing had happened. He was not seriously hurt.

Labor Conference "Excluded"

LIBERAL RALLIES WIND UP CAMPAIGN

Overflowing Meetings Of S. Oxford Electors Hear Lapointe and King

Go To Polls Today To Elect Member Of House Of Commons

GOVERNMENT RECORD IS ISSUE, LIBERALS STRESS

All Signs Point To Imminent General Election, Mr. King Declares

Two great Liberal rallies, featured by overflow meetings when the largest halls in the riding failed to accommodate those who wanted to hear the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, and the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former minister of justice, closed the South Oxford federal by-election campaign on Saturday night. Mr. King spoke at Ingersoll and Mr. Lapointe and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., at Tillsonburg, scene of the main meetings. Another meeting was also held at Norwich.

Today the electors of South Oxford will elect either Alon Secord Rennie, Tillsonburg, Liberal, or the Hon. Donald Sutherland, Conservative, to fill the unexpired term of the late Thomas Cayley, Liberal M.P., who died in May, 1933. When the present parliament is dissolved, either this year or in 1935, South Oxford as a constituency will disappear and be merged with North Oxford.

King's Presence Big Feature

The visits of Mr. King on Wednesday and Saturday were the outstanding features of the campaign. At Norwich and Tillsonburg on Wednesday, many hundreds more than could be accommodated sought to hear the Liberal leader. The same was true Saturday night at Ingersoll. Long before eight o'clock, the hour set for meeting, the town hall and its entrance-ways were crowded. Mr. King was scheduled to speak at nine o'clock, the hour the radio broadcast started, but was delayed a few minutes when he spoke briefly to three overflow meetings in advance of the big one. These meetings were held in the council chamber, the Liberal committee rooms and the market building. Altogether well over a thousand people were in Ingersoll to hear Mr. King. Loud-speakers were installed at the overflow meetings to carry Mr. King's main address to them.

Long a Liberal Riding

The Conservatives had no meetings on Saturday night, their last big gun being fired on Friday at Ingersoll when the Hon. Harry Stevens spoke.

In the 1930 election Mr. Cayley won by 55 votes, the figures being, Cayley, 5,711, Hon. Donald Sutherland, 5,656.

From 1867 until 1911 South Oxford was Liberal. In the reciprocity campaign Mr. Sutherland won it and retained it until 1926, when Mr. Cayley defeated him by 760.

So broad was the offensive that the tax on bachelors, for whom officials have no love, was doubled, and certain importations, too, came under close scrutiny.

Lower Price Level

It also is a part of Il Duce's desire to bring Italy down to a lower price level in conformity with world prices so that—for example—wheat will not cost nearly three times as much here automobiles three or four times more, and so on.

The move left no stone unturned. Salaries of government employees were slashed six to 12 percent; the ministers decided to take a 20 percent reduction in their own salaries; the decision was reached that imports of oil-less seeds, copper, wool, and coffee would be regulated.

To make the tax cut both ways, all living costs, such as those of food, transportation, and utilities, were proportionately decreased. Rentals were cut 12 and 15 percent.

A similar nation-wide deflation was ordered in October, 1930.

Three Motives

The government has been considering drastic deflation for some months, especially since it became evident that Italy's foreign trade—because of the high cost of production—was suffering to an alarming extent.

The cabinet ministers said they had three motives in the general reductions:

1—To better exports.

2—To reduce currency in circulation.

3—To induce foreign tourists to come to Italy.

The important Giornale d'Italia said yesterday's provision was a move in the direction of balancing the budget since it will save the government about 1,000,000,000 lire.

Taxes also will fall. The cabinet ordered officials in provinces and municipalities to reduce taxes to equal the saving made possible in the reduction of employees' wages.

Champion Brazil Bigamist Dead

Associated Press Cable

Bello Horizonie, Brazil, April 15.—Mario Muller, Brazil's "champion bigamist," accused of having married some 50 times, died under an assumed name in a charity hospital four days after he had escaped from prison, where he was serving a sentence for bigamy. Injuries received in the jailbreak caused his death. Muller was accused of having contracted bigamous marriages in nearly all of Brazil's 21 states.

VIVIDLY PICTURE MISSION WORK IN MANY LANDS

Twenty-Six Distinguished Leaders Speak In London United Churches

SOME IN COSTUME

Part Of Program Of World Missionary Conference In Progress Here

The triumphs and difficulties of the wide-flung missionary endeavour of the United Church of Canada both at home and abroad were brought to the congregations of city churches yesterday as 26 distinguished leaders in missionary work dwelt on this important phase of church work in their sermons. These men are in the city attending the world missionary conference and exhibit which opened Saturday in Metropolitan Church and which will continue until Tuesday evening in a concentrated effort to awaken a deep interest in missionary work in this district and to acquaint the church members with the great work that is being accomplished.

Messages From Many Lands

Brief messages from nationals and others from many lands were given at the International Missionary Mass meeting yesterday afternoon in Metropolitan United Church before a large congregation of United Church members.

Several speakers were in costume representing Korea, Japan and the Polish people who have come to live in Canada. Rev. K. J. Beaton, associate secretary of the Home Mission Board, was chairman for the first half of the program. One of the speakers, Andrew Jamieson, an Indian, graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and who is at the reserve at Muncey, told of the 13 residential schools in Canada and deplored the fact that so many of the finest and best Indians were engaged in work elsewhere than on their own reserve. He also said that many of them migrated to the United States.

Makes Plea For Newcomers

Miss Louisa Mayowna, linguist from Poland who appeared in her native costume, asked for the sympathetic understanding of Canadians toward newcomers to the Dominion. "The people will understand if you approach them with good-will," she said as she explained that what the strangers

GERMANY ISSUES TRADE WARNING

Will Buy Imports Only From Countries taking Her Export Goods

Associated Press Cable

Hamburg, Germany, April 15.—The unequivocal warning that Germany will henceforth as far as possible buy imports only from countries to which she can export goods was before the world today.

Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, in a speech last night declared: "We must plan our importations of commodities hereafter more carefully," adding that Germany had abandoned the policy of economic self-sufficiency.

"The monetary policy of closing trade doors by many countries simply forces us by careful planning to switch our necessary imports over to such countries as are ready to accept similar values from Germany.

He expressed the opinion that such a policy could be carried out successfull only if Germany's foreign trade policy is conducted in a unified way. In other words, he hinted, by a foreign trade monopoly.

FAILS TO POINT TO GIRL'S GRAVE

Ginrovich Leads Kitchener Police To Vicinity But Not Exact Spot

CHIEF SUSPICIOUS

Special to the Advertiser

Kitchener, April 15.—Jacob Ginrovich, Hamilton ascetic, last night led police to the vicinity of the sand hill where the skeleton of a young woman was unearthed recently, as he had promised, but pointed out a spot far removed from that where the body was found as the place where he said he had buried his poison victim.

Somewhat grandiosely he turned and said, "Now, gentlemen, I'm supposed to be insane. I've been insane for five years, and this is to show you that I am insane."

Change of View

From this statement police believe that Ginrovich may now have a better understanding of the situation and may now wish to appear as insane where formerly he is said to have insisted that he was mentally normal.

Commenting on the unexpected turn of events Police Chief Hodgson said, although his visit to Kitchener may not have turned out as he expected, "we are still convinced that he is responsible for the death of the woman whose skeleton was found. We believe that he is taking advantage of the fact that the police cannot locate his letter of 1930 in which he confessed to killing the girl and that now he has been brought to Kitchener, he may realize the seriousness of the situation."

Accompanied by Jurors

Granting a request expressed by Ginrovich, while he was being brought here from Hamilton Saturday, police had eight men, a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest, accompany Ginrovich to the burial ground. Had the visit turned out as police expected it would, the eight men would have served as jurymen at an inquest into the death of the girl.

Photographs of women missing from Winnipeg and vicinity are expected from Winnipeg and Ginrovich will be shown them when they arrive. He was brought here yesterday afternoon, made his visit to the sand hill last night and was returned to the asylum this afternoon.

CONSTITUTION OUSTS "LEFT" LABOR GROUP

James Simpson Felled And Pummelled In Fistic Encounter Outside Convention Hall

PROVINCIAL COUNCIL TO HANDLE DISCIPLINE

Membership Must Be Obtained Through Political Groups Only

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—The Ontario branch of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation was reorganized and launched on a new career after a stormy 15-hour conference here. The new constitution places discipline in the hands of the provincial council and provides that membership must be obtained through political groups whose members are willing to adhere strictly to the party's program.

While verbal battles occupied the hall, the corridors outside saw physical combat. Controller James Simpson of Toronto was knocked to the floor and pummelled when he reportedly interceded as a "peacemaker" in a group argument. He re-entered the meeting room as if nothing had happened. He was not seriously hurt.

Labor Conference "Excluded"

The labor conference leftist group declared it considered itself "excluded" under the new constitution, following the lengthy conference. Proposals of this group met defeat as the new constitution approved clause by clause.

E. J. Garland, United Farmers of Alberta member in the House of Commons for Bow River, appealed to those who did not approve of the new constitution to withdraw from the convention. It was the only honorable thing to do, Mr. Garland said. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member in the House of Commons for Winnipeg North Centre and national president of the C.C.F., supported Mr. Garland as the delegates broke into applause.

Songs Booed Down

The leftist group then broke into song. They sang the "Red Flag" and the "Internationale." Finally they were drowned by boos.

DOLLFUSS TARGET FOR ROTTEN EGGS

Splash Uniforms Of Paraders But Miss Little Chancellor Himself

Associated Press Cable

Graz, Austria, April 15.—Rotten eggs were hurled at Chancellor Dollfuss and a harmless bomb exploded within 300 feet of him when he appeared here today to address a mass meeting.

The bomb was a smoke and noise variety, containing no dangerous explosives.

Spoiled eggs splashed the clothes and uniforms of Dollfuss paraders but missed the little Chancellor himself.

Paint Highway Red

Socialists had painted the whole highway red from the airport where Dollfuss landed to the city limits of Graz. Pavements were splashed with such slogans as "Down with Fascism!" and "Down with Dollfuss!"

The mass meeting proper was quiet but attempts to broadcast the Chancellor's speech were mysteriously sabotaged and only portions of it reached listeners.

Karl Dane Dead By His Own Hand

Associated Press Despatch

Hollywood, April 15.—The body of Karl Dane, one of the silent screen's outstanding comedians, who found refuge from bitter disappointment in suicide, lay in the county morgue today, unclaimed.

The actor, who skyrocketed to fame in "The Big Parade," and later was starred, shot himself to death in a modest apartment last night. He was penniless at his death, and had been living off the bounty of friends although his salary at one time was reported to have been $1,500 weekly.

The coroner, announcing no inquest would be held, said the body would be released to a private undertaker as soon as anyone came forward to claim it.

SIX DIE AS TRUCK AND BUS COLLIDE

15 Others Injured Near Elyria, Ohio—Bus Was Passing Parked Truck

Elyria, O., April 15—Six persons were injured fatally, a seventh critically hurt, and 14 others received less serious injuries when a Chicago-bound passenger bus and an east-bound truck crashed head-on early today near here.

The bus was en route from Pittsburgh to Chicago. Sheriff Clarence Dick of Lorain County said preliminary examination indicated that the driver of the bus, William Daniels, 32, of Pittsburgh, had turned out to pass a truck parked on the right side of the road when the crash occurred.

At the same moment another truck cruised into view, and Daniels was unable to retreat to his own lane in time to avoid the collision.

Raid on Mysterious French Villa Reveals Trotzky Living in Dread Of Vengeance of White Russians

Canadian Press Cable

Barbizon, France, April 15.—Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian leader and "man without a country," was found today in a police raid on a mysterious villa here, living in utmost secrecy and fearing vengeance of White Russians.

Seated at his desk with two revolvers in front of him, the former power behind the formation of the Soviet state confronted the police who burst into his room.

"I am Monsieur Sodroff," he declared.

The magistrate conducting the search looked into the lined and careworn features of the famous exile, recognized the well-known goatee, and said: "You are Trotzky."

Whereupon Trotzky replied: "Yes, it is I."

Police made the raid when the mayor and citizens of Barbizon became thoroughly mystified by the curious goings-on at the Villa Kermontique, in a secluded spot near this quiet town. Belief that it might be linked with the Stavisky riots, or a secret arming place, led the authorities to watch the house for two days before entering it.

Trotzky told them that he was authorized by the Minister of the Interior to enter France and live at Barbizon with his wife, since threats of assassination and fear of vengeance from White Russians had kept him wandering from place to place since he left Russia, after his clash with Stalin.

French Government Employees, Begin Two Days of Nation-Wide Strikes and Protests Over Cuts

Associated Press Cable

Paris, April 15—Tens of thousands of government employees, parading under red flags throughout the provinces, today began two days of nation-wide strikes and demonstrations against pay cuts.

The chant of the Internationale was heard in more than 100 cities and towns as the marchers flaunted banners inscribed with "down with the government," "down with the decree law," and "down with ruinous deflation."

But the Red Sunday passed under a warm spring sun without bloodshed.

General Strike Threats

Veiled threats of general strikes were contained in resolutions adopted at mass meetings, to which paraders carried written protestations against the government.

It was the day of provincial functionaries. Those in Paris are awaiting "National Protest Day," Monday, when public service employees plan to demonstrate at their places of work during the hour of the strike.

Manifestations of discontent are expected to be widespread, despite the government's quick punishment of leaders of a Communist strike Friday.

Employees Dismissed

Twenty-nine employees, including two women, were dismissed from the Central Telegraphic Bureau of Paris, where daily demonstrations caused an uproar last week.

The threat to the government of Premier Gaston Doumergue was caused by a cut of 10 percent on all government salaries and the dismissal of 80,000 of the 800,000 functionaries.

Doumergue took the step under decree powers granted him by parliament, contending it was necessary to save the franc from devaluation and to balance the budget.

18TH BATTALION VETERANS MEET

Canon C. E. Jeakins Chosen As Chaplain By Comrades At Reunion

LARGE GATHERING

It was a large and enthusiastic gathering of old comrades which voted unanimously for their new chaplain. Representatives were present from Toronto, Galt, Guelph, Kitchener, Chatham, Windsor, Stratford, Strathroy, Wingham, Harriston, St. Thomas and Mitchell.

The program opened with a two minute silence in tribute to the comrades who had died. A toast was recited by Sergt.-Major M. Lee.

President S. Gunn welcomed the visitors among whom were Col. L. E. Jones, Col. H. Milligan, and Major G. Ingram.

Col. Jones commented favorably upon the battalion organization and hoped for a closer relationship between the various units of it.

Cheer Col. Wigle

Fred Young said that "an overzealous" writer had reported that the 18th battalion had "turned against" Col. Wigle. He read a letter from Col. Wigle in which the Colonel explained that certain unreasonable demands had been made upon him but that local organizations in Windsor had supported him. Three cheers were given for Col. Wigle.

E. Shuttleworth introduced the speaker of the evening, Major Canon C. E. Jeakins. Canon Jeakins said that the same characteristics which were called forth to make a man a good soldier were needed now to make him a good peacetime citizen. He recalled some of the impressions he retained of the front lines, and remarked upon the vast patience exhibited by the fighting men. He pointed out that this quality was needed now.

"There is a good day before us, but it will not come without hard work on the part of everyone, said Canon Jeakins. Faith in a great cause was present at the front, and it was needed here now.

Col. Milligan congratulated the battalion and credited Col. Wigle with much of its fine background. Major Ingram expressed pleasure at the expansion of the organization. Major D. Riepman, D.S.O., brought greetings and invited the London membership to future meetings in Chatham.

Officers of the London branch are: President, S. Gunn; vice-president, W. Grey; sec-treas., P. L. Reed; executive committee, M. Noble, C. Halsal, J. Herring, A. Leach, B. Luxford; sick committee, A. Leach, J. Matthews; and auditors, E. Shuttleworth and R. L. Stephenson.

ADVISES ENDING MONTHLY LEASES

Committee Recommends Daily Rent System—Leave Some Open As Fire Precaution

A recommendation for the elimination of monthly rentals for stalls and spaces on the London market is to be made to City Council by a special committee. Where rentable stalls are not leased for yearly terms, the committee recommends that 25 cents a day be charged for stalls for which the annual rental is $15 and less and 50 cents a day for stalls for which the annual rental is more than $15. Stalls in the truckers' row will be $2 a day where they are not rented by the year.

Following charges of discrimination in that vendors were allowed the free use of unrented stalls, City Council appointed a special committee consisting of Ald. J. A. Johnston, chairman, Ald. John McLeod and Ald. Allen Towe. This committee met Friday. Also present were Market Clerk Rose, City Treasurer Bell, City Engineer Veitch Deputy Treasurer Saunders and City Clerk Crawford.

The committee's report will not be ready for Monday's council meeting. It has however already reached certain decisions including the elimination of monthly rentals.

The committee is also recommending that no one be allowed to use any rentable stall unless the rent for the day has been paid.

Want Map Prepared

City Engineer Veitch and Market Clerk Rose have been instructed to work out a plan whereby a map of the market, showing the spaces available for daily rental can be posted on the market. They will also draft a receipt form for the daily rentals.

The committee is also recommending that stalls 1 to 9 in D section and stalls 1 to 14 in F section be left unoccupied at all times. These are on the north side of the market square, immediately east of Talbot street. The fire chief has complained that in the event of a fire in the buildings fronting the market he would have a hard job to get trucks on the market. By leaving these spaces clear the way will be open.

MORBID MOB DISRUPTS FUNERAL OF LITTLE GIRL

Chicago, April 13—Through a screaming, clawing mob of 10,000 curiosity seekers, the body of 2½ year-old Dorette Zietlow, victim of a 13 year-old abductor, was carried from a flower filled chapel today, placed in a white hearse and driven away to be buried in Concordia Cemetery.

The simple last rites were disrupted by the frenzied mobs of morbid spectators.

When word was sent out that no more would be admitted to view the body, the line which extended eight abreast in orderly fashion for two blocks stormed the chapel.

The mob, mostly women and children, defied the efforts of police to maintain order. An additional 25 policemen finally cleared a path from the chapel to the hearse and Boy Scout pallbearers carried out their tiny burden.

Climbed to Roofs

While the services were in progress hundreds of persons climbed to the roof of the chapel. Thousands mounted nearby housetops and automobiles.

Legionaires who financed the funeral, attempted to transfer floral wreaths to the hearse, were caught in the jam and many wreaths were torn to pieces.

Women fought, scratched and pulled hair attempting to reach the entrance. Friends and neighbors of the dead baby's family were shoved to the rear.

Windows of automobiles were broken. Three chimneys were pushed from the chapel roof. Laughing and fighting boys rushed about the roof.

15 Governments To Act On Scheme For Raising World Price of Wheat

Canada Included In Group—Action Asked Before Committee Meets On May 4

CALLS FOR FIXING OF MINIMUM PRICE

Price To Be Based On Monthly Relation Of Export Supplies To Demands

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rome, April 14—It is up to the Canadian and 14 other represented governments to act upon the weighty scheme for raising the world price of wheat produced by the world wheat conference which has been sitting here for more than a week.

The plan which calls for fixing of a minimum price based on the relation of export supplies to the demand from month to month, tonight was being forwarded to the interested governments, who were invited to take action before the wheat committee meets again in London on May 4.

The wheat conference hopes the governments can formulate their stand in order that the London meeting can prepare the way for the institution of the scheme in June or thereabouts.

Text Kept Confidential

Meanwhile the text of the plan is being kept confidential. An official communique Saturday night explained it was supplementary to the international wheat export agreement reached at London last year and was emphatic that the spirit and letter of the export pact must continue to be observed.

The situation, as explained to The Canadian Press by John A. MacMurray of the United States, chairman of the wheat advisory commission, is that the report "is in the form of a recommendation to the governments as to the course we think should be adopted. As such we could not very well publish it before the governments have been given an opportunity to study it."

Went Through Quickly

The minimum price plan, achieved by the subcommittee after much labor, went through the main conference today with unexpected speed, an apparently stubborn Argentine resistance vanishing when, as the chief Argentine delegatee informed the Canadian Press today, the Argentines took the viewpoint that the minimum price plan covered the Argentine's claim for increased export quotas.

Dr. Thomas A. le Breton, head of the Argentine delegation, said that acceptance of the minimum price scheme linked up with the Argentine demand for a bigger wheat export quota. "In our view," said Dr. le Breton, "they are all one question."

Does Not Fix Price

It was emphasied the scheme in itself does not fix a minimum price; it merely outlines a method by which a minimum price may be maintained once it is established. It makes provision for the necessary machinery and for scaling differentials in the price for respective countries.

It did suggest, however, that the first schedule to be drawn up by the proposed London control committee should be an increase of 5 to 10 per cent. of the present price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, standard of wheat the world over.

Agreement by the conference on the price scheme marked conclusion of many months of work. It is now up to the 15 governments represented in the conference to ratify the plan and put it into operation.

Questions Of Detail

The conference will continue this afternoon with questions of detail and will then take up the question of restrictious on flour milling along with the question of denaturing wheat to make quantities of it fit only for livestock feed.

But in reaching agreement on the plan the conference had achieved its main objective—devising a scheme for raising the world price of wheat. Today the details of the scheme were still undivulged, but it was learned recommended the new system go into effect June 1.

How It May Be Done

Pending official disclosure of the minimum wheat price scheme adopted by the world wheat conference today, here's an outline of how it appears the goal will be achieved:

1. All big wheat exporters remain under strict export quota regulation.

2. A small committee in London will watch the movement of exports in relation to demand and establish a fixed price. It is suggested this be 5 or 10 percent higher on Manitoba No. 2 than at present. Minimum prices will be determined for wheat at the export point.

3. Indirect regulation of exports will be the basis on which the price will be maintained. In other words the conference drops the idea of rigid control of exports to establish a price, instead using the direct price system.

Will Be Maintained

4. The price will be maintained by fluctuating fixed prices for the wheat of respective exporters. If for instance Canada in a certain period sends more wheat than would be normal under her quota, the Canadian price would be increased with the idea of bringing the export down.

Aiding in establishment of the scheme the conference recommends

$12,374,319 SPENT ON TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY

Ottawa, April 14: Progress made in the construction of the Trans-Canada highway was outlined in the House of Commons by Premier R. B. Bennett. The amount expended so far was $12,374,319 and 3357 miles had been constructed.

The mileage was divided, Nova Scotia 59, New Brunswick 65, Quebec 35, Ontario 830, Manitoba 45½, Saskatchewan 17½, Alberta 145, British Columbia 160. The figures were given at the request of I. D. Macdougall, Conservative for Inverness.

STEEL CO. ASKS BOARD FOR RULING ON TARIFF

Ottawa, April 14.—An appear of particular interest to steel plants has been forwarded to the tariff board by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance to the request of the Stanley Steel Co. Ltd., of Hamilton, with reference to importation of "skelp."

The company wishes to have the words "cold rolled" removed from tariff item 394 which fixes the rate on "skelp of iron or steel, hot or cold rolled, etc" at free under the preferential tariff, and five per cent. intermediate and general. It is claimed that there is no such commodity as 'cold rolled" skelp and that cold rolled steel in coils is being imported under that item whereas it should come under item 382 (C) which applies a rate of 7½ pr cent, preferential and 20 per cent. intermediate and general.

KENT BEEKEEPERS ELECT

Chatham, April 15.—Clarence Stien of Becher was elected president and Rev. A. V. Walden of Raleigh township was re-elected secretary-treasurer at the annual meeting of the Kent Beekeepers Association held here. Professor Dyce, of Guelph O. A. C., gave an instructive address on the treatment of package bees from the south. During discussion, many members expressed the opinion that export of honey from Soviet Russia to Great Britain had hindered Canadian export.

Ruling Easily Sustained

During debate on the constitution, Mrs. E. Morton, secretary of the labor conference, moved an amendment to the membership clause which would permit trade unions to join the C. C. F. Chairman Angus Macinnis ruled the amendment out of order as in direct opposition to the motion.

The chairman's ruling was challenged and was sustained by a large vote. During some hectic discussion Mr. Macinnis declared the "C. C. F. program is for those who agree with it not for those who oppose it." Finally the motion to confine membership to "political" groups was carried and then the convention decided to have an appointed secretary treasurer.

Must Be Disciplined

When a delegate asked the C. C. F.'s action in the case of a membership group celebrating May Day, chairman Macinnis replied. "If you demonstrate with groups opposed to the C. C. F., then you must be disciplined."

Mr. Woodsworth declared if there had been "prompter discipline in Toronto and Ontario we wouldn't be in this mess." He believed discipline was one of the methods of the Communist party "and I believe the C. C. F. has to discipline its members if it is going to amount to anything in the Dominion of Canada."

CLEVER COMEDY AT THE CAPITOL

Jack Hulbert, Noted British Comedian Is Excellent In "Jack Ahoy"

Jack Hulbert certainly puts comedy on a high plane in his latest starring talking picture, "Jack Ahoy" which opened at the Capitol Theatre for a three-day run last Saturday. It seems that Hulbert, who is one of the aces in the Gaumont British Company's acting staff, can get more comedy out of a mediocre situation than any other comedian in pictures and he does this to perfection in "Jack Ahoy." He is ably supported by Alfred Drayton, Nancy O'Neil and Henry Peterson.

The story is quite a simple one of the exploits of a tar in the British Navy, whose ambition is to marry the daughter of the admiral. A British submarine is captured by Chinese bandits and Hulbert after endangering his and everyone else's life, manages to capture the pirates and also retrieve the submarine.

There are some catchy musical selections in the picture, and Hulbert gives the right atmosphere in singing them. Of course, he is also a dancer par excellence and he shows some of his newest steps, particularly a modernized version of the Sailor's Hornpipe.

The rest of the show is good in its own way. A Betty Boop Cartoon and a splendid comedy, with the usual newsreels complete the bill.

TWO ARE INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES

D. H. McRae, Glecoe, Hurt As Car Leaves Road—Mrs. Reid, Toronto, In Collision

A Glencoe man and a Toronto woman suffered minor injuries in two separate motor accidents over the weekend. D. H. McRae of Glencoe, received a cut over one eye and was shaken up when his car left the road east of London early Sunday morning and crashed into a tree. Mrs. Phyllis Reid of Toronto, suffered a sprained ankle when a motor car crashed with a transport truck west of the city late Saturday night.

The latter accident occurred on an "S" curve between Melbourne and Strathburn when a Direct Transport driven by Lloyd Leifso of 712 Weston road, Toronto, collided with the passenger car of Herbert Reid, 685 Manning ave., Toronto. Mrs. Reid was the only one hurt. Traffic Officer George Law investigated.

Mr. McRae was driving his coupe west on No. 2 highway in Pottersburg when it left the pavement and went out of control on the soft shoulder, hitting a tree. The machine was damaged and McRae taken to Victoria Hospital. He was released after treatment by Dr. C. C. Ross. Traffic Officer Howard Jackman was assigned by Traffic Inspector T. G. P. Lucas to the investigation.

No charges were laid immediately in connection with either accident.

PASTOR PRAISES MAYOR OF LONDON

Commends Wenige For Demanding Local Gambling Probe

FLAYS LOTTERIES

"Gambling is not far from thieving," said Rev. G. V. Crofoot in his sermon to the congregation at Adelaide Street Baptist Church last night during which he rciticised social organizations who "stooped" to forms of gambling in aid of various causes which might be worthy.

Mr. Crofoot strongly commended the Mayor of London for his stand in demanding an investigation of gambling conditions in the city.

He described gambling as little removed from thieving because in essentials the winners took something for which no adequate value had been given.

This principle the speaker condemned when encouraged by social organizations in various forms of lotteries and gambling. He went on to point out that often a large part of the funds taken out of the pocket en chaplain of the 18th Battalion at the reunion in the armories here on Saturday night. Nineteen years ago yesterday the battalion left for France.

It was a large and enthusiastic gathering of old comrades which voted unanimously for their new chaplain. Representatives were present from Toronto, Galt, Guelph, Kitchener, Chatham, Windsor, Stratford, Strathroy, Wingham, Harriston, St. Thomas and Mitchell.

The program opened with a two minute silence in tribute to the comrades who had died. A toast was recited by Sergt.-Major M. Lee.

President S. Gunn welcomed the visitors among whom were Col. L. E. Jones, Col. H. Milligan, and Major G. Ingram.

Col. Jones commented favorably upon the battalion organization and hoped for a closer relationship between the various units of it.

Cheer Col. Wigle

Fred Young said that "an overzealous" writer had reported that the 18th battalion had "turned against" Col. Wigle. He read a letter from Col. Wigle in which the Colonel explained that certain unreasonable demands had been made upon him but that local organizations in Windsor had supported him. Three cheers were given for Col. Wigle.

E. Shuttleworth introduced the speaker of the evening, Major Canon C. E. Jeakins. Canon Jeakins said that the same characteristics which were called forth to make a man a good soldier were needed now to make him a good peacetime citizen. He recalled some of the impressions he retained of the front lines, and remarked upon the vast patience exhibited by the fighting men. He pointed out that this quality was needed now.

"There is a good day before us, but it will not come without hard work on the part of everyone, said Canon Jeakins. Faith in a great cause was present at the front, and it was needed here now.

Col. Milligan congratulated the battalion and credited Col. Wigle with much of its fine background. Major Ingram expressed pleasure at the expansion of the organization. Major D Rispman, D.S.O., brought greetings and invited the London members to future meetings in Chatham.

Officers of the London branch are: President, S. Gunn; vice-president, W. Grey; sec-treas., P. L. Reed; executive committee, M. Noble, C. Halsal, J. Herring, A. Leach, B. Luxford; sick committee, A. Leach, J. Matthews; and auditors, E. Shuttleworth and R. L. Stephenson.

ADVISES ENDING MONTHLY LEASES

Committee Recommends Daily Rent System—Leave Some Open As Fire Precaution

A recommendation for the elimination of monthly rentals for stalls and spaces on the London market is to be made to City Council by a special committee. Where rentable stalls are not leased for yearly terms, the committee recommends that 25 cents a day be charged for stalls for which the annual rental is $16 and less and 50 cents a day for stalls for which the annual rental is more than $15. Stalls in the truckers' row will be $2 a day where they are not rented by the year.

Following charges of discrimination in that vendors were allowed the free use of unrented stalls, City Council appointed a special committee consisting of Ald. J. A. Johnston, chairman, Ald. John McLeod and Ald. Allen Towe. This committee met Friday. Also present were Market Clerk Rose, City Treasurer Bell, City Engineer Veitch Deputy Treasurer Saunders and City Clerk Crawford.

The committee's report will not be ready for Monday's council meeting. It has however already reached certain decisions including the elimination of monthly rentals.

The committee is also recommending that no one be allowed to use any rentable stall unless the rent for the day has been paid.

Want Map Prepared

City Engineer Veitch and Market Clerk Rose have been instructed to work out a plan whereby a map of the market, showing the spaces available for daily rental can be posted on the market. They will also draft a receipt form for the daily rentals.

The committee is also recommending that stalls 1 to 9 in D section and stalls 1 to 14 in F section be left unoccupied at all times. These are on the north side of the market square, immediately east of Talbot street. The fire chief has complained that in the event of a fire in the buildings fronting the market he would have a hard job to get trucks on the market. By leaving these spaces clear the way will be open.

Market Clerk Rose reported receiving complaints that a man who was paying his rent would have as his competitor in the next stand, one who paid no rent yet managed to be in the same space all the time.

MRS. CHARLES FREEMANTLE

Stricken with a heart attack Saturday morning, Mrs. Sarah Jane Freemantle, wife of Charles Freemantle, 537 Dorinda street, died a few hours later. Mrs. Freemantle was in her 70th year. She came from Palmerston 15 years ago to take up residence here.

Surviving her are her husband, four sons, Macknowles, David, Clarence and Brock, all of this city, three daughters, Mrs. W. C. Oliver of Hamilton, Mrs. Fred Ashelford of England, and Mrs. A. Eaton.

Rev. Dr. Harris of Chalmers Presbyterian Church will officiate at the funeral service to be conducted Monday evening at the residence at 8 o'clock. Services will also be conducted at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in Palmerston, with interment following in Palmerston cemetery.

When word was sent out that no more would be admitted to view the body, the line which extended eight abreast in orderly fashion for two blocks stormed the chapel.

The mob, mostly women and children, defied the efforts of police to maintain order. An additional 25 policemen finally cleared a path from the chapel to the hearse and Boy the jam and many wreaths were torn to pieces.

Women fought, scratched and pulled hair attempting to reach the entrance. Friends and neighbors of the dead baby's family were shoved to the rear.

Windows of automobiles were broken. Three chimneys were pushed from the chapel roof. Laughing and fighting boys rushed about the roof.

15 Governments To Act On Scheme For Raising World Price of Wheat

Canada Included In Group—Action Asked Before Committee Meets On May 4

CALLS FOR FIXING OF MINIMUM PRICE

Price To Be Based On Monthly Relation Of Export Supplies To Demands

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rome, April 14—It is up to the Canadian and 14 other represented governments to act upon the weighty scheme for raising the world price of wheat produced by the world wheat conference which has been sitting here for more than a week.

The plan which calls for fixing of a minimum price based on the relation of export supplies to the demand from month to month, tonight was being forwarded to the interested governments, who were invited to take action before the wheat committee meets again in London on May 4.

The wheat conference hopes the governments can formulate their stand in order that the London meeting can prepare the way for the institution of the scheme in June or thereabouts.

Text Kept Confidential

Meanwhile the text of the plan is being kept confidential. An official communique Saturday night explained it was supplementary to the international wheat export agreement reached at London last year and was emphatic that the spirit and letter of the export pact must continue to be observed.

The situation, as explained to The Canadian Press by John A. MacMurray of the United States, chairman of the wheat advisory commission, is that the report "is in the form of a recommendation to the governments as to the course we think should be adopted. As such we could not very well publish it before the governments have been given an opportunity to study it."

Went Through Quickly

The minimum price plan, achieved by the subcommittee after much labor, went through the main conference today with unexpected speed, an apparently stubborn Argentine resistance vanishing when, as the chief Argentine delegatee informed the Canadian Press today, the Argentines took the viewpoint that the minimum price plan covered the Argentine's claim for increased export quotas.

Dr. Thomas A. le Breton, head of the Aregentine delegation, said that acceptance of the minimum price scheme linked up with the Argentine demand for a bigger wheat export quota. "In our view," said Dr. le Breton, "they are all one question."

Does Not Fix Price

It was emphasied the scheme in itself does not fix a minimum price; it merely outlines a method by which a minimum price may be maintained once it is established. It makes provision for the necessary machinery and for scaling differentials in the price for respective countries.

It did suggest, however, that the first schedule to be drawn up by the proposed London control committee should be an increase of 5 to 10 per cent. of the present price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, standard of wheat the world over.

Agreement by the conference on the price scheme marked conclusion of many months of work. It is now up to the 15 governments represented in the conference to ratify the plan and put it into operation.

Questions Of Detail

The conference will continue this afternoon with questions of detail and will then take up the question of restrictions on flour milling along with the question of denaturing wheat to make quantities of it fit only for livestock feed.

But in reaching agreement on the plan the conference had achieved its main objective—devising a scheme for raising the world price of wheat. Today the details of the scheme were still undivulged, but it was learned the kernel of the plan was establishment of a committee of four to sit in London to supervise wheat movements of the signatory exporters and thereby maintain the minimum price which itself has yet to be established.

Further, it said the adjustments made in London must be so fixed as to keen the supply strictly in accord with demand and thus not interfere with the minimum price system.

Interesting Feature

The most interesting feature of the sub-committee's report is the proposal for creation of a price committee of four experts to sit in London and meet at least once a month to study the wheat export movement in relation to quotas and to raise or lower minimum prices of individual exporting countries should they be selling too much or too little wheat in relation to their quotas.

This is held up as a method of controlling quotas through prices.

The sub-committee also recommended that exporting countries whose domestic wheat prices are lower than the export minimum should be agreed upon raise that price to a new level partly through reducing their stocks. It was recommended the new system go into effect June 1.

How It May Be Done

Pending official disclosure of the minimum wheat price scheme adopted by the world wheat conference today, here's an outline of how it appears the goal will be achieved:

1. All big wheat exporters remain under strict export quota regulation.

2. A small committee in London will watch the movement of exports in relation to demand and establish a fixed price. It is suggested this be 5 or 10 percent higher on Manitoba No. 2 than at present. Minimum prices will be determined for wheat at the export point.

3. Indirect regulation of exports will be the basis on which the price will be maintained. In other words the conference drops the idea of rigid control of exports to establish a price, instead using the direct price system.

Will Be Maintained

4. The price will be maintained by fluctuating fixed prices for the wheat of respective exporters. If for instance Canada in a certain period sends more wheat than would be normal under her quota, the Canadian price would be increased with the idea of bringing the export down.

Aiding in establishment of the scheme the conference recommends chopping up the present yearly export quotas into shorter periods, three-months being one suggestion. These figures are being prepared. Price fixing is suggested on a basis of monthly exports.

Refrain From Barter

6. Also backing up the scheme, governments will be asked to refrain from barter dealings or other governmental transactions that would hurt the minimum price system. Flour prices will be fixed at definite percentages to corresponding wheat grades. Wheat products, such as semolina will be restricted along with wheat.

7. Wheat exporting governments further will be asked to make sure their internal prices are at least as high as the minimum export price. This is an essential safeguard against export of flour at lower than minimum wheat figures. Withdrawal of quantities by denaturing is one method.

8. It is suggested the export committee meet in London, May 4, along with the wheat conference heads to work out final details in order the scheme may go into effect about June 1.

$12,374,319 SPENT ON TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY

Ottawa, April 14: Progress made in the construction of the Trans-Canada highway was outlined in the House of Commons by Premier R. B. Bennett. The amount expended so far was $12,374,319 and 1357 miles had been constructed.

The mileage was divided, Nova Scotia 59, New Brunswick 65, Quebec 35, Ontario 830, Manitoba 45½, Saskatchewan 171½, Alberta 145, British Columbia 160. The figures were given at the request of I. D. Macdougall, Conservative for Inverness.

STEEL CO. ASKS BOARD FOR RULING ON TARIFF

Ottawa, April 14.—An appear of particular interest to steel plants has been forwarded to the tariff board by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance to the request of the Stanley Steel Co. Ltd., of Hamilton, with reference to importation of "skelp."

The company wishes to have the words "cold rolled" removed from tariff item 394 which fixes the rate on "skelp of iron or steel, hot or cold rolled, etc" at free under the preferential tariff, and five per cent. intermediate and general. It is claimed that there is no such commodity as 'cold rolled" skelp and that cold rolled steel in coils is being imported under that item whereas it should come under item 382 (C) which applies a rate of 7½ er cent, preferential and 20 per cent. intermediate and general.

KENT BEEKEEPERS ELECT

Chatham, April 15.—Clarence Stien of Becher was elected president and Rev. A. V. Walden of Raleigh township was re-elected secretary-treasurer at the annual meeting of the Kent Beekeepers Association held here. Professor Dyce, of Guelph O. A. C., gave an instructive address on the treatment of package bees from the south. During discussion, many members expressed the opinion that export of honey from Soviet Russia to Great Britain had hindered Canadian export.

Ruling Easily Sustained

During debate on the constitution, Mrs. E. Morton, secretary of the labor conference, moved an amendment to the membership clause which would permit trade unions to join the C. C. F. Chairman Angus MacInnis ruled the amendment out of order as in direct opposition to the motion.

The chairman's ruling was challenged and was sustained by a large vote. During some hectic discussion Mr. MacInnis declared the "C. C. F. program is for those who agree with it, not for those who oppose it." Finally the motion to confine membership to "political" groups was carried and then the convention decided to have an appointed secretary treasurer.

Must Be Disciplined

When a delegate asked the C. C. F.'s action in the case of a membership group celebrating May Day, chairman MacInnis replied, "If you demonstrate with groups opposed to the C. C. F., then you must be disciplined."

Mr. Woodsworth declared if there had been "prompter discipline in Toronto and Ontario we wouldn't be in this mess." He believed discipline was one of the methods of the Communist party "and I believe the C. C. F. has to discipline its members if it is going to amount to anything in the Dominion of Canada."

AT THE CAPITOL

Jack Hulbert, Noted British Comedian Is Excellent In "Jack Ahoy"

Jack Hulbert certainly puts comedy on a high plane in his latest starring talking picture, "Jack Ahoy" which opened at the Capitol Theatre for a three-day run last Saturday. It seems that Hulbert, who is one of the aces in the Gaumont British Company's acting staff, can get more comedy out of a mediocre situation than any other comedian in pictures and he does this to perfection in "Jack Ahoy." He is ably supported by Alfred Drayton, Nancy O'Neil and Henry Peterson.

The story is quite a simple one of the exploits of a tar in the British Navy, whose ambition is to marry the daughter of the admiral. A British submarine is captured by Chinese bandits and Hulbert after endangering his and everyone else's life, manages to capture the pirates and also retrieve the submarine.

There are some catchy musical selections in the picture, and Hulbert gives the right atmosphere in singing them. Of course, he is also a dancer par excellence and he shows some of his newest steps, particularly a modernized version of the Sailor's Hornpipe.

The rest of the show is good in its own way. A Betty Boop Cartoon and a splendid comedy, with the usual newsreels complete the bill.

TWO ARE INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES

D. H. McRae, Glecoe, Hurt As Car Leaves Road—Mrs. Reid, Toronto, In Collision

A Glencoe man and a Toronto woman suffered minor injuries in two separate motor accidents over the weekend. D. H. McRae of Glencoe, received a cut over one eye and was shaken up when his car left the road east of London early Sunday morning and crashed into a tree. Mrs. Phyllis Reid of Toronto, suffered a sprained ankle when a motor car crashed with a transport truck west of the city late Saturday night.

The latter accident occurred on an "S" curve between Melbourne and Strathburn when a Direct Transport driven by Lloyd Leifso of 712 Weston road, Toronto, collilded with the passenger car of Herbert Reid, 655 Manning ave., Toronto. Mrs. Reid was the only one hurt. Traffic Officer George Law investigated.

Mr. McRae was driving his coupe west on No. 2 highway in Pottersburg when it left the pavement and went out of control on the soft shoulder, hitting a tree. The machine was damaged and McRae taken to Victoria Hospital. He was released after treatment by Dr. C. C. Ross. Traffic Officer Howard Jackman was assigned by Traffic Inspector T. G. P. Lucas to the investigation.

No charges were laid immediately in connection with either accident.

PASTOR PRAISES MAYOR OF LONDON

Commends Wenige For Demanding Local Gambling Probe

FLAYS LOTTERIES

"Gambling is not far from thieving," said Rev. G. V. Crofoot in his sermon to the congregation at Adelaide Street Baptist Church last night during which he criticised social organizations who "stooped" to forms of gambling in aid of various causes which might be worthy.

Mr. Crofoot strongly commended the Mayor of London for his stand in demanding an investigation of gambling conditions in the city.

He described gambling as little removed from thieving because in essentials the winners took something for which no adequate value had been given.

This principle the speaker condemned when encouraged by social organizations in various forms of lotteries and gambling. He went on to point out that often a large part of the funds taken out of the pocket of the public went into the expenses of the gambling organization and only a small percentage reached the charitable work for which it was ostensibly directed.

What's the Difference?

"Supposing you won a car on a ticket," said Mr. Crofoot, "I don't suppose many of you would give it back, or the money it representes. What is the difference between that and putting money on a horse?"

In speaking of the recent action of Mayor Wenige in demanding a clean-up of gambling in London Mr. Crofoot said he believed there were times when the pulpit ought to support those who are breaking down the social evils.

"It is seldom a public man will come out flat-foted against social evils," said the speaker. "More power to you Mr. Mayor, and may all loyal citizens support you."

Mr. Crofoot went on to say he had no intention or desire of becoming involved in a controversy between civic officials.

"I don't think there should be any delay in carrying out the Mayor's wishes," said Mr. Crofoot and pointed out that often delays gave a chance for offenders to cover up their misdemeanors.

Natives Bow Before Idols Manufactured In Manchester Says Wesley Church Speaker

That the natives of India are seeking God in the face of Jesus Christ but that they are going about it in a "blind, groping and ignorant" manner, was the belief expressed by Rev. Donald G. Cock, guest speaker Sunday morning at Wesley United Church. Rev. Mr. Cock for many years has been engaged in missionary work among the Asiatic peoples and is in London for the world missionary conference and exhibit.

"I sometimes think," he added, "that we misunderstand the non-Christian people simply because they bow down and worship idols and images. Deep down in their hearts they are searching and longing for something better.

"I have seen consignments of these idols that were manufactured in Manchester, England, arrive at the dock for the purpose of idolatry, and I really don't know which is worst the worship of these idols or the manufacture of them.

DUTY VALUATIONS

Ottawa, April 14.—The value of duty of rose bushes, excepting dwarf polyanthas and rose stocks for budding and grafting, has been fixed at 15 cents, it is announced by the Department of National Revenue, instead of 20, for importations on and after April 12.

The value for duty of asparagus and lettuce has been fixed at an advance on the true invoice value in Canadian funds. Asparagus will be valued for duty purposes at an advance of 5 ½ cents a pound from April 22 to June 30; lettuce one cent a pound between April 20 and October 31.

MARK WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Embro, April 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Masters celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary Friday. A number of friends spent the evening with them, playing cards, and other games. The rest of evening was spent in dancing. Music was furnished by J. W. Innes, Miss Marjorie Innis, Mrs. R. Matheson, and Mrs. Goddall. Refreshments were served. The couple received some very pretty and useful gifts.

a general election on the part of private Conservative members which has enabled Mr. Bennett to hold his parliamentary majority in line.

"Would Mr. Bennett have been able to hold his followers on the titles question unless he had said to his supporters "Unless I get support there'll be a dissolution'," said Mr. King.

General Election Looms

However, the speaker continued, all signs point to a general election. The central bank, the marketing measure, amendments to the election act all would indicate that Mr. Bennett is preparing for an appeal to the country.

"If South Oxford on Monday speaks loudly there is a chance of the modification of some of these policies in a way better to serve the people, coupled with the chance that the government will give the people a chance at a general election." While in general elections the policies advanced by the parties appealing for favor might make the issue, in a by-election the only issue is the government's record, Mr. King pointed out. It is Mr. Benett's record which the electors of South Oxford will approve or condemn on Monday.

Sanderson And Taylor Speak

Dr. J. M. Rogers was chairman of the town hall meeting. Fred G. Sanderson, M.P., Ontario Liberal whip, and William Taylor, M.P., for Norfolk-Elgin, spoke before Mr. King.

Miss E. A. Seldon, president of the Ingersoll and District Women's Liberal Association, presented an address of welcome to Mr. King, while little Miss Margaret Copeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Copeland, and a niece of Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., presented Mr. King with a nicely-bound package of Ingersoll's famous cream cheese.

Mr. Sanderson read to the audience a statement from the Borden Milk Co. which showed that in 1929 the lowest summer price of milk at Ingersoll was $1.74 a cwt. and the highest winter price, $2.17. In 1933 the lowest summer price was 70 cents and the highest winter price 95 cents.

"Now which party has the best policy for the dairy industry in Oxford?" asked Mr. Sanderson.

Mr. King jocularly remarked, opening his speech, that he and Mr. Bennett differed on almost everything but "I am told if we were married we'd probably learn how to make up. I hope Mr. Bennett will be fortunate enough to achieve that end, while I haven't despaired of it myself."

Tobacco Report

Mr. King discussed the failure of the Bennett government to present the report of the Hon. Donald Sutherland on his investigation into tobacco-buying practices to parliament until last week.

"If in the Sutherland report there was found for believing that there is a combine against the public interest, that is all the more reason the report should have been made public a year ago instead of a week ago. It is not Mr. Sutherland but the government which is on trial in this election. Yet now Mr. Stevens, a minister of the crown, comes into the riding and says he wants Mr. Sutherland returned to help in the fight of the tobacco growers. I tell you it is not one person but the policies of the government which will settle the fate of the tobacco growers. If one wants to be critical one can say that Mr. Stevens' plea was a threat of no battle for the tobacco growers unless Mr. Sutherland is returned. On the other hand it might be a bribe. I am not saying Mr. Stevens intended it as either. He shouldn't have made the statement at all. Under parliamentary institutions it doesn't matter who the man is, whether he be Liberal, Conservative, Farmer or Labor, every man stands for the interests of the constituency from which he is sent."

Dr. Manion's Prediction

Mr. King made reference to the speech of the Hon. Dr. Manion in the constituency in which Dr. Manion said that he had every reason to believe the government would lower interest rates on loans and mortgages. Mr. Bennett was asked in the House concerning this and answered that the predictions of any member of the government were based on his knowledge of what the government intends to do. No direct answer was given.

"Why did Mr. Manion need to bring up the question at all unless he was trying to leave in your mind the impression that he was stating something the government was going to do? Mr. Bennett told the House of Commons a few weeks ago that this couldn't be done. Mr. Bennett will take action at the time he thinks it should be taken, and any predictions his ministers make mean nothing," said Mr. King.

The Liberal leader declared that if parliament exists for any purpose at all, it is that the people's representatives might have control of the public treasury which is filled by taxation. Yet under the blank cheque clause of the relief bill the cabinet is taking this power away from parliament and a supine Tory majority says nothing. The dangers in such a policy have been exposed by the auditor-general's report on irregularities in the spending of funds under the blank cheque clause, said Mr. King.

Disastrous Trade Policies

The economic nationalism which has featured the Bennett trade policies cannot but in the end prove disastrous to Canadian agriculture and the other basic industries, he went on to say. Negotiation of trade treaties with countries outside the empire has been made more difficult by the Imperial Economic Conference trade agreements but today the Canadian farmer faces the loss of his markets in Britain through the demand of British farmers for protection. It is not to be expected, said Mr. King that Great Britain should adopt a protectionist policy in regard to some industries and not in the end apply it to agriculture.

"Where I think the Conservative party is wrong—perhaps I shouldn't use that expression because I don't think the majority of the party agree with Mr. Bennett but rather think he has gone too far in economic nationalism and the raising of tariffs—is in the misconception of the home market as a place and not as a purchasing power. As long as our basic industries produce as they do, it follows that a great share of the purchasing power in the home market an adverse effect on living standards.

In conclusion Mr. King pointed out that in many European countries parliamentary institutions have been done away with and dictatorship of individuals or groups substituted. In the steady sapping of parliament's powers in Canada the same trend is apparent. "There is the same trend today to do away with the great guardians of the people's liberties, the House of Commons," he declared.

MR. LAPOINTE'S SPEECH

Special to The Advertiser

Tillsonburg, Ont., April 14—Declaring that the Bennett Government was bound to disappear in the near future and that we must see that it does not destroy Canada in its spasms of agony, the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice in the King Government, closed an eloquent speech here this evening in the interests of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate, on the eve of Monday's election. Duplicating the meeting of the Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, scores had to be turned away and this notable son of Quebec was given a great ovation as he was introduced by R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., for South Oxford.

Mr. Lapointe was critical of the Bennett regime but abstained from personalities. He stated he believed the Canadian people have been deceived the last few years and that the mouths of the farmers and laboring men could not be sweetened by simply yelling money.

The Benett Government has intensified the depression by false promises in 1930 and by the policies they have followed the past four years. Confidence is the mainspring of life for any government and the Canadian people in the last few months have shown the present government that they have lost the confidence of the country. All the wild statements and promises of the government made in 1930 are now coming home to roost.

It is not production that is at fault but distribution, and the trade of Canada has been strangled since the Liberals were defeated in 1930. The past four years in parliament has been a jazz or whoopee politica played to the tune of blank cheques at the expense of the people and parliament has been treated with contempt by the present administration, the speaker asserted.

"If anyone desires a title he should apply at once as the crop is low and there will not be another crop. It is freely rumored that the prime minister is to receive a peerage and I would suggest that the seven lean cows of the Scriptures be put on the coat of arms," Mr. Lapointe declared amid laughter.

"The people of Canada will judge the Bennett Government on its record and not on its prospectus and the return of the Liberal party will remove the shackles that have been forged for Canadian trade the past few years."

The Liberal candidate, A. S. Rennie, and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., also spoke briefly and urged a large Liberal majority on Monday.

PROMISES LIBERAL BEER POLICY SOON

rid of this wasteful government," he phophesied.

Promises Housecleaning

"If we get into power," promised Mr. Hepburn, "there's going to be a great housecleaning of Hydro and our first act will be to get rid of Engineer Gaby—not because he is Mr. Gaby, but because he has been getting $35,000 per year and allowing things to go on that should not occur."

Mr. Hepburn promised that other leading Hydro officials would go out with Engineer Gaby if the Liberals are elected. "We are going to take some of the supernumeraries off the backs of the burdened taxpayers, if we do nothing else. We are going to improve social conditions; have a minimum wage for men and women.

"W. G. Martin is another supernumerary, said Mr. Hepburn, "and he should go too.

Will be Hard Campaign

"This will be a hard campaign. There will be lots of campaign funds for the Conservatives and it will be a hard fight. Watch out for the Government using trick methods," warned the speaker, and went on. "The Government are in a desperate position and they know it. They are casting about for help, blowing hot and blowing cold. Mr. Henry is headed for a fall."

Dr. L. J. Simpson, Liberal financial critic, in a vigorous speech criticized the economic policy of the Government." The Conservatives will eventually land Ontario in bankruptcy," he charged, and in substantiation pointed to the fact that interest charges on the Provincial debt at present amounted to one-third of the annual revenue. Ontario's liabilities are very rapidly catching up to its assets, he declared. He charged that when the Ontario Government announced a surplus of $450,000 it was poor bookkeening and not facts. Dr. Simpson stated that while the Conservatives were trying to make out that the Liberal party was an enemy of Hydro, this was not so. The Liberals he pointed out, are in favor of operating Hydro as it was done in the time of the late Sir Adam Beck.

ROBSON CHOSEN

Canadian Press Despatch

Guelph, April 14—Winning enthusiastic acclaim from a crowd which packed the city hall auditorium to the rafters, R. Beverly Robson, eight years mayor of Guelph, this afternoon was unanimously chosen Conservative candidate for South Wellington to oppose D. Paul Munro in the impending provincial election.

The choice was warmly approved by Hon. W. H. Price, attorney-general who defended the government's action in bringing in beer and wine legislation and criticised Opposition speakers as having no platform on any issue to offer the people. Mr. Robson's nomination was moved by W. P. Gamble, defeated Conservative candidate in the 1931 by-election.

"Mayor Robson won't have much

"And here is something else: In 1929 we had Tory policies in effect—Canadian exports were $754,000,000; then came a change of policy with the election of the Liberals—by 1930 we had exports of $1,144,900,000, an increase of $390,000,000. Yet our friends the Tories ask us where we can get markets. We can get them where we got them before. There are more goods to b sold in the world than ever before. We can exchange the things we need for the tings other people need. The world has not changed—men are men with human instincts—not asses as Donald Sutherland asserts.

"Let me read you a paragraph from my very distinguished and gentlemanly opponent. He bears the title "honorable." He was a cabinet minister for a few days. He has had parliamentary experience. Note his language in a recent speech:

" 'Mr. Rennie cannot be as complete an ass as he appears to be'.

"Well, I found the other day this note upon the ass: 'An ass is used to bear people and burdens over the dangerous passages—that even an old war horse dare not venture.'

"Does my honorable friend assume that his failure to answer arguments can be met by calling names ? He ought to tell us if he hopes to 'blast' a way into foreign markets by that process.

Losing Markets

"We are now blasting our way out of markets. The gravest danger confronts the farmers of South Oxford today as a result. The arrangements of Great Britain regarding importation of meats end in June and Great Britain is likely to insist that Canadian tariffs are an impossible barrier and Britain, because she cannot sell in Canada, must raise her, barriers against Canada. We are likely to lose our dairy markets and our tobacco markets in the same way. Here is an extract from a recent government booklet published under authority of Mr. Weir, Minister of Agriculture.

" 'The large and increasing volume of butter and cheese imported into the United Kingdom has caused the British Government to enter into discussion with New Zealand and Australia with a view to the voluntary restriction of exports of these products to the United Kingdom. If any such agreements are concluded between the United Kingdom and New Zealand and Australia, Canada may be asked to take similar action.

" 'The possibility of restrictions on imports of dairy products into the United Kingdom would suggest that it would be advisable for Canadian producers to develop home consumption as much as possible.'

"What do you think will happen to us if we lose our foreign markets—our Empire markets? It will indeed be a sad day for the farmers of South Oxford.

Vital Issues

"These issues are vital—far too vital to escape immediate attention. Our friends say the election of the Liberals means the repeal of the British preference. This is nonsense of the crudest kind. We are not opposed to the preference—we are opposed to shadow preferences, fake preferences, which give nothing and get nothing and give more promise of losing than gaining markets. Once in office, Liberals will open markets, not close them—expand British trade—not restrict it. Opening markets is the natural function of Liberlaism—closing them is the natural task of Toryism.

"We near the end of the campaign. This is the final appeal. There is before you the record of the two parties. They have both explained their viewpoints. South Oxford faces an election such as it never faced before. The conflict is between repression and freedom—between restriction of markets and liberation of trade. It matters little to me what happens in this campaign but it is vital to you. Time which sifts the wheat from the chaff and tests the ultimate measure of truth in every issue will vindicate the position we have taken in South Oxford throughout the campaign and the importance of the issue we have presented tonight."

N. WATERLOO LIBERALS NOMINATE APRIL 28

Kitchener, April 15.—The North Waterloo Liberals will choose their candidate for the forthcoming Provincial campaign at Waterloo on Saturday, April 28. This was decided at a meeting of the executive held in Waterloo Saturday afternoon, the second gathering of that body within a month.

FLAMING TANKER ADRIFT IN HARBOR

Port of Spain, Trinidad, April 15.—The Trinidad leasehold tanker Pyramid and her 11,000-gallon cargo of gasoline were destroyed by fire here today. The only man on her when flames broke out leaped overboard and swam to safety, after which the ship drifted about the harbor and menaced shipping. The fire finally burned itself out.

difficulty beating out Mr. Munro at Queen's Park," said Attorney-General Price, declaring that the Liberal member was hardly in the House during 1932 and 1933. He made light of Mr. Munro's "highway funds misappropriation" charges and declaring that the Liberals had always "dodged the liquor issue" charged that Mr. Hepburn today has no definite policy on the question.

He spoke of the Liberal leader's "remote control" and charged that he was "driving tandem" with Dr. McQuibban and Mr. Nixon. He praised the splendid results which have been achieved by the Liquor Control Act and declared that the new beer legislation was only brought down after the most serious consideration. Canada has pulled ahead remarkably in the last six months, the attorney general went on, outlining the work which the government has done in relief measures.

The greatest anomaly in the world today, he charged was the statement of Mr. King that Mr. Bennett is a dictator, since in British Columbia Mr. Patullo a Liberal, has assumed virtual [illegible], he said, in concluneeded was personal evangelism. "The gift of Canadian people to the Newcomers can be the Christ of Service," she added.

Following a selection by the choir of the Indian residential school at Muncey with Mrs. Jamieson as pianist, Ross Jung, a third-year Chinese medical student from Toronto, spoke. He explained that he had been born in British Columbia and that he hoped to go to China as a medical missionary. "Christianity broadened my outlook", he said as he told of his work among Chinese boys to foster good felowship and friendship among the youths.

Pays Tribute To Londoner

Dr. S. Y. Chao of Fowchow, China, an outstanding figure in hospital work for the Chinese church referred to his association with Dr. Wallace Crawford, who is the special medical missionary sent out by Metropolitan Church and paid tribute to the work of the former Londoner. Dr. Chao declared, "if we Christians really did as Christ taught us there would be no more fighting." The remark was made as he told of his friendship with Rev. N. Shirozu of Japan. Earlier in the afternoon Mr. Shirozu spoke briefly and mentioned the bond of friendship between them. Both men are in residence at Toronto taking special courses. Rev. R. S. Longley, of West China, another outstanding missionary, spoke briefly.

Dr. A. E. Armstrong, secretary of Foreign Missions, introduced Rev. T. A. Broadfoot of South China; Dr. J. S. MacKay of Central India; Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Anderson, also of Central India; Dr. Walter Strangway, Angola, West Africa; Rev. Herbert T. Owens of Korea and two Alma College Oriental students, Miss Sada Niwase of Japan and Miss Pyugh Yong Rhu of Korea who also spoke briefly.

Speaks Optimistically of West

At the first mass rally held in Metropolitan Church on Saturday evening, Rev. Dr. George Dorey, superintendent of missions in Saskatchewan, in charge of relief work there, spoke optimistically of the conditions in the Western province where drouth and crop failures have imposed a terrific burden on the church people of the stricken area.

Dr. Dorey declared that the church has invariably flourished in the face of difficulty and told that in spite of the curtailment of funds the United Church is keeping the churches and Sunday schools open.

"The church in the West is replacing despair with hope, cynicism with faith and panic with courage," said Dr. Dorey and declared that this is being made possible by the generosity and loyalty of the people both in the East and the West.

"You pay your dues to your lodges to keep in good standing but the contributions to the missionary and maintenance are given through a love for the Church," said the speaker.

Thanks Donors of Supplies

Dr. Dorey told of the great number of cars of food and supplies which had reached the West from this part of Ontario and thanked the donors.

Following Dr. Dorey, Dr. W. E. Strangway presented an illustrated lecture on the medical and missionary work in Africa. Rev. W. A. Walden, Empress Avenue Church, was chairman of the rally.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Armstrong, secretary of the foreign mission board, was the guest preacher at First United Church in the morning. A missionary for more than 27 years, he drew on his wide experience to place before the congregation something of the spirit required in missionary work. As an example he told of the Moravian Church, which has its headquarters in Herrnhut, Germany, and which with only 60,000 members supports 290 missionaries. He pointed out that the United Church could support 3,000 missionaries instead of 500 if they had the same zealous Christian spirit.

Work In Saskatchewan

At St. Andrews Church the work in Northern Saskatchewan was explained by Rev. John Nichol, mission superintendent in that district. He stated that conditions are no better financially than they have been for the past few years and said that the troubles in the West are teaching both people of theEast and West the real values of life.

Messages along similar lines were presented by the missionaries in other city United Churches. Rev. G. A. Williams was the speaker at Colborne Street Church. Rev. F. A. Anderson of India and Rev. Manson Doyle, Toronto, were the guest speakers at Calvary United service. At Dundas Centre Rev. R. B. Layton, Western Canada and Rev. D. G. Cock of India spoke at the morning and evening services respectively.

Work of the foreign missions was outlined to the congregations at Centennial Church by Rev. Dr. J. S. McKay, India, and Rev. K. J. Beaton, Toronto. Rev. Mr. Beaton and Rev. Dr. Armstrong were the guests at Hyatt Avenue church and Rev Dr. MacKay spoke at Knox Church evening service.

Rev. Manson Doyle was the speaker at the morning service in King St. United.

Program For Today

The program of the mission conference for today is as follows:

12.00-1.00 p.m.—Staff luncheon and Round Table.

2.00-4.00 p.m.—Address: "Prayer and Missions," by Rev. D. G. Cock, D.D., followed by discussion groups on missions, Home and Foreign, led by missionaries and others. Special group for Young People's Society workers.

4.00-5.30 p.m.—Exhibit open to the public.

6.00-8.00 p.m.—Supper for Young People's Executives and Sunday School workers. Address by Rev. Manson Dovle, B.A. Round Table led by Dr. F. C. Stephenson.

8.00-9.30 p.m.—Missionary Pageant, "By Touch of Human Hand." By London Young People.

PRESIDENT ASKS SPEEDIER WORK and gaurantee bank deposit proposals should be placed on the statute books.

Opposed

It also was indicated the administration was opposed to action on the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing-inflation bill.

The President is ready to veto the general revenue bill because of the proposed tax of three cents a pound on Phillipine Oils and Senator Pat Harrison (D., Miss.), chairman of the finance committee, planned to ask the Senate tomorrow to reconsider the bill, passed Friday. It has not yet reached the House, where opposition was voiced yesterday to many of the Senate provisions increasing the total from $258,000,000 to $480,000,000.

Against Thomas Bill

Administration disapproval of legislation to release millions of dollars in closed banks was officially disclosed tonight in a letter written by Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the Treasury to Chairman Duncan Fletcher (D., Fla.) of the Senate banking committee.

Mentioning specifically the bill by Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), Morgenthau said that under the legislation "nearly half of the money to be distributed would be received by about four per centum of the depositantee of bank deposits "past, pressors"; that it would represent a guarent and future," and that it would cost the taxpayers from "$1,250,000,000 to $2,500,000,000."

SIR FREDERICK WALL TO GET $50,000 GIFT

London, April 14.—A sum of $50,000 will be presented to Sir Frederick Wall who is retiring in July as secretary of the English Football Association, which he has served for 40 years.

The council of the F. A., deciding on the gift to-day said it would be in recognition of the "untiring energy and valuable service to British football" of Sir Frederick.

TWO CHILDREN PERISH IN BURNING HOME

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 14.—Two children were burned to death today when the frame cabin of Mr. and Mrs. Riddel, settlers near Hearst, was razed by flames.

VANCOUVER CAGERS WIN

Lethbridge, Alta., April 15.—Vancouver Provinces tonight held a 48-44 victory over Lethbridge Young Liberals as they moved eastward to Winnipeg to meet Robertson Memorials in the Western Canada men's senior basketball final.

The British Columbia champions downed the Alberta runners-up in an exhibition game here last night in a fast session. With the home team giving the visitors plenty of opposition. Young Liberals lost out to Raymond Union Jacks, who were eliminated in two straight games in the interprovincial playdowns by Province. The Winnipeg series opens Tuesday night.

NEWBURY WOMAN BURNED

Singeing a chicken with a piece of blazing paper Saturday afternoon almost cost the life of Mrs. Violet Dennis, aged 41, of Newbury. Mrs. Dennis accidentally dropped the paper, the flames ignited her clothing, and she suffered painful burns to her arms and back. She was brought to Victoria Hospital here.

WINDS HALT MIGRATING GEESE

Rosser, Man., April 14.—High winds interrupted the migratory flight of huge flocks of geese here today. Thousands of the birds, unable to make headway against the 30-mile-an-hour blow halted for the week-end in this locality, about 18 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

HAMILTON TRUNDLERS SWEEP C.B.A. ALLEYS

Bust Toronto Domination—London Orange Crush 6th In Team Contest

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—Hamilton Bowlers tonight had completed the most smashing rout of Toronto Trundlers in the history of Canadian Bowling Association Tournaments. Mountain City entrants captured the doubles and singles events but were edged out of the team title by four points.

W. Wright of Hamilton Olympia No. 2 who counted a sensational 947 in the team competition had a blow on the 10th frame to see his squad place second to Toronto Olympia No. 1 who had 3,698 against Hamilton's 3,694.

H. C. McKellar of Hamilton a past-president of the C.B.A., winning the singles with 911. The Hamilton pair of W. Colville and A. Wagner scored 1,664 to take the doubles crown. J. Walsh of Toronto counted 2,477 to take the grand aggregate.

Toronto players had monopolized the victories in the previous seven tournaments and this was the first year premier prizes had left the city. A new record was made in entrants, 1,836 players participating the tourney which began last Monday.

W. Wright had the highest single game and three games scores 402 and 947 respectively, but he obtained these in the team competition.

Winipeg with 3,631 finished fifth in the team event after suffering many bad breaks.

Toronto Olympia No. 2 with 3,666 and Toronto Rangers with 3,643 were third and fourth respectively in the team contest. London Orange Crush had 3,618 for sixth.

In the doubles R. Duncan and A. Barrett of Toronto were second with 1,597. In the singles W. Adams of Toronto was second with 894, F. Melling also of Toronto third with 876 and C. Bradley of Ottawa fourth with 857.

In the team event, Waterloo Kuntz were 15th; Oshawa 17th; Montreal C.N.R.P.A. 28th; Windsor Heintzman 31st; London Maple Leaf 33rd; Ottawa Karry's 34th.

In the singles T. Huggett of Stratford was sixth; G. Udquhart of Winnipeg, eighth; and T. Martin of London, 10th.

NO PARDON FOR KID McCOY

Sacramento, Calif., April 14.—Norman Selby, once known to fistic fans as "Kid McCoy," must remain on parole from San Quentin prison.

The state advisory pardon board notified the Governor's office it had declined to recommend a pardon for McCoy, which would have returned him full citizenship. It gave no reason.

SUPREME COURT TAKES BOXER'S PURSE AWAY

Canadian Press Despatch

Halifax, April 14.—Roy Mitchell, Halifax colored scrapper, lost a decision today, but not in the squared circle. His end of the gate in a fight with Tiger Warrington last year was declared forfeited by Mr. Justice R. L. Graham in Supreme Court.

His Lordship found the Halifax fight was not an honest exhibition of boxing" and Mitchell "did not perform his contract." The negro fighter had been accused by Promoter J. M. Harris of "stalling," and the promoter withheld his share of the receipts.

Mitchell won the verdict in County Court, but His Lordship's decision today exempted Harris from payment.

Slighting South Oxford

South Oxford electors who go to the polls today may well ask why they were not permitted to exercise the right earlier.

The seat was vacated nearly a year ago by the death of Mr. Cayley. Three other seats were vacated about the same time or later for various reasons—Restigouche-Madawaska, N. B., Yamaska, Que., and Mackenzie, Saskatchewan. By-elections in these three constituencies were held last October, on the same day. Why was South Oxford excluded? Mr. King asked that question at Ingersoll Saturday night.

The fact is that the Government wished to disenfranchise South Oxford for the remainder of the present Parliament and would have succeeded but for the Liberal party. As time went on and the Government made no move to fill the seat the Liberals took matters into their own hands. Mr. King asked two Liberal members of Parliament to file the necessary papers, thus compelling the Government to fix the date of the by-election within six months. Even then the Government delayed it until the greater part of the present session of Parliament had passed. No thanks will be due the Government if South Oxford is represented for the remainder of the session. The constituency should resent the treatment it has received and today it probably will.

Might Have Been Foreseen

The London Times, discussing the conflict of interest between farmers in the United Kingdom and in the Dominions, says that at the Imperial Economic Conference it was not foreseen that Great Britain would embark upon a serious effort to restore her own agricultural industries. If so, this is a remarkable illustration of ignoring the obvious. When protection was revived in Great Britain, it was inevitable that the farmers of that country should claim a share in its benefits as well as the manufacturer. The revival of British agriculture has been a stock subject of discussion in the United Kingdom for many years. Its advocates dwelt upon the fact that enormous quantities of food were imported which might just as well have been produced at home. Some pleaded for tariff protection. Others said that too much land available for agriculture was given up to hunting. As to tariff protection, it was obvious that there would be a conflict of interest between farmers in the United Kingdom and of the Dominions. This was disclosed in inquiries made during the discussion over the Chamberlain proposals more than thirty years ago. Farmers who liked the prospect of protection against foreigners were not enthusiastic about preferences in favor of the Dominions. The Dominion imports, just like the foreign imports, came into competition with their own.

This is precisely the same as the attitude of the advocates of protection for manufacturing industry in Canada. They wanted protection against foreigners, and also against the manufacturers of Great Britain. Mr. Bennett took this ground very strongly. The Times says that the British farmer has the same right to be protected against Dominion competition as Dominion manufacturers have to be protected against British. "A prosperous agricultural population is at least as necessary for Great Britain as a prosperous textile or iron and steel industry is for Canada or Australia." It proceeds to say:

> What our correspondent urges is that, in her efforts to revive the agricultural industries, Great Britain should avoid the excessive and indiscriminate protection adopted by the principal industrial countries on the continent to the impoverishment of the agricultural countries and the ruin of world trade; that the Government should determine what foodstuffs and what quantities of them can be produced at home without too great an economic sacrifice, and what margin should be left to be supplied from the Dominions and from foreign countries.

In other words, if there are to be protective tariffs not only against the foreigner but against producers within the British Commonwealth of Nations, they must be moderate if Empire trade is to be encouraged. This is exactly where the Bennett policy fails. No one can claim with any semblance of reason that the Bennett tariffs against British imports are moderate. They have caused frequent complaints from the Dominions and are highly injurious to Canada. All we can do now is to keep our own tariffs moderate, so that we may fairly claim similar treatment from Great Britain.

Four Men to Control the World Wheat Market

A committee sitting in London has worked out a world marketing scheme on a basis naively described as one of "fluctuating fixed prices." Despatches call it complicated. A fluctuating fixture does suggest a certain degree of complexity. The plan, we are told, does not determine a minimum price but outlines a method by which minimum prices may be maintained. It is predicted that the committee will draw up a schedule which will provide for five to ten per cent. increase in the price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, which is the world's standard. Other grades will be treated correspondingly. Regulation of wheat prices will involve control of the prices and production of flour. As the quantities of wheat for export and consumption must be restricted, a certain portion of the crop in several countries will be denatured—made unfit for human consumption—so as to reserve it for live stock. It will be feed, not food.

This is what the world has come to, through the attempt of nearly all countries to become self-sufficient and deny themselves the advantages of international co-operation. Canada as the greatest exporter of wheat must be the greatest sufferer. She is punished by almost world-wide application of an economic dogma which her own Government preaches and practices. It was summed up by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, when he said: "Our idea is that nothing shall be imported into Canada which can be grown or manufactured or otherwise produced in this country." Because many wheat-producing countries are acting on that idea and growing wheat at any cost, Canada is deprived of a large part of her export market, and is told that she must cut down her production of wheat, the crop which has created the prairie West and still sustains it. Even Great Britain has been infected by the self-containment craze, and is bonusing the growth of wheat by a fixed price of $1.30 a bushel. The Canadian Government is encouraging Britain to resort to her own soil for her own food by making it difficult for her to buy Canadian products. She can only buy these products by selling her own goods, against which Canada has erected high tariffs. The Ottawa Government is today actually fighting its own Tariff Board because the Board believes the Government is not keeping faith with Great Britain.

Canada produces the best wheat in all the world, and all the world has bought it through hundreds of agencies and channels. In future if the London agreement is sanctioned, four men will sit in London and decide where it will go and in what quantities and at what prices. They will replace the law of supply and demand. To this condition has Canada's basic industry been reduced by the international adoption of the economic creed to which the Canadian Government subscribes and which it has rivetted on this country, fettering it as never before.

Note and Comment

There is no longer any talk of blasting our way into the world markets. Canada has been hoist with her own petard.

President Roosevelt is said to be losing some of his authority over Congress. But there is no sign that he is losing his popularity in the country.

Prime Minister Bennett denouncing Premier Pattullo's usurpation of legislative powers is another case of the pot reproaching the kettle for its dark complexion.

At Ingersoll Mr. King pointed out that the South Oxford by-election would be held two days before budget day. He thought this was significant and it suggested that a stiffer dose of taxation is coming which would not be good campaign material.

The British steel industry has devised a five-year plan for complete re-organization, and will ask for a five-year extension. There is room for improvement. When Sir Henry Thornton was prepared to give large orders for steel, not made in Canada, he could find no one in this country representing British steel interests.

It is announced that the Canadian budget this week will make some revisions in the British-Canadian trade agreement. It should be revised out of all recognition, so as to save the fast-closing British market for Canadian farm products before it is too late. But that means that Canada must give Britain a square deal, which she is not getting now.

Hitlerites boast that unemployment has been reduced one-half under the present regime. It has been reduced only by putting two million men to work for the Government

The Once-Over

A new deal for the Canadian farmer is being planned by the Bennett government, the last one from the same source having been apparently a misdeal.

TRUE SPORTSMANSHIP
(Sherbrooke Record)

Bobby Jones, the greatest golfer of all time, showed his good sportsmanship when his Atlantan neighbors decided to hold the first big golf tournament of the spring season. All the golfers, pro and gentlemen, on their way up north from down South, were invited to join in a week's golf at Bobby's home town, where he presently practises law and often gets into the winner's column with persuasively soft, drawling accents of the true Georgian. Though Bobby Jones did not do so well, and the prizes went to lesser lights, the Atlantan was the life of the party. Here is a man who won every crown in the golfing world, preserved his amateurism to the end, then retired gracefully so that he might not stand in the way of the up and coming.

BERMUDA'S CHARM
(Ottawa Journal)

Commercialists in Bermuda who annually ask the island legislature to permit automobiles, with the idea that there will be "money in it" for the islanders (meaning a few selfish persons) are warned against it by Sinclair Lewis, the novelist, in his usual piquant language. He pictures main streets "strewn with hot dog stands, empty cigarette cartons, and beer bottles" and "buses full of shrieking tourists waving beer bottles at you as they roar through the dust?"

Lovers of Bermuda will applaud him. Bermuda is a paradise for thousands of people because it is "different," because its lanes winding charmingly are safe for hikers, because it is a delightful relief from monoxide gas, because its quietness is unbroken save for the caroling of birds and the dull roar of breakers on coral reefs; because it is "old fashioned."

When Bermuda is unable to offer these longed-for joys in a world distraught by commercialism at its worst, Bermuda will have lost its principal charm.

(Regina Leader-Post)

The London, Ont., Adverstiser, a thoughtful newspaper, sees no value in arguments sometimes heard that war is a vitalizing thing, that we are apt to become a slothful race without it, that there is a needed excitement about the thing for humanity.

If any persons want war for purposes of excitement or for drilling a new vitality into the race, it might be suggested that the fighting be left solely to them. War furnishes excitement, it is true, for those who want that kind of excitement, but there is no helpfulness of any sort in a situation that leave long lines of dead and broken bodies and of multitudes of widows and orphans.

200 AT MEETING OF I.O.O.F. HERE

District Encampment No. 8, Stages Rally—Visitors Exemplify Degrees

Nearly 200 members of the I. O. O. F. gathered in London on Saturday night for the rally of District Encampment No. 8 which was held in the I. O. O. F. lodgerooms, Bank of Nova Scotia Building. The visitors were present from Watford, Kerrwood, Mount Brydges, Kitchener Brantford and London. The rally was held by Harmony Encampment No. 3 of this city, and proved to be one of the best gatherings that has ever been staged by the Order in this district.

The degree teams from Kitchener and Brantford were present. The Kitchener team exemplified the Patriarchal and Royal Purple degrees while the Brantford team exemplified the Golden Rule Degree.

Following the business meeting Saturday night a banquet was held at which short addresses were delivered by several of the outstanding visitors.

The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of R. G. Legg, chairman; A. Chapman, J. Sugerman, W. T. Wheeler, Percy Pawley and W. A. McRoberts.

The gathering was one of the most interesting and instructive held by the local Encampment. The visiting degree teams complimented for their work.

Among the outstanding members present were Roy Sloat, G. J. W., of Brantford, a member of the Grand Encampment of Ontario; R. E. Waltham of Kerrwood, P. G. P. and a grand representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge; August Kutoba, of Kitchener, P. G. P., who took an active part in the degree work; W. Leonard, D. D. G. I. of District No. 18; Howard McLean, D. D. G. P. of Kerrwood, of District No. 8, and several others.

On the arrival of the visitors on Saturday afternoon, a luncheon was held in a downtown restaurant.

LIGHTER EXPLODES, SETS BED ON FIRE

Maple Street Man Unhurt In Unusual Mishap—Firemen Extinguish Cellar Blaze

When the cigarette lighter he was filling is said by firemen to have exploded Sunday afternoon, A. Jackson of 92 Maple street, escaped injury but a resulting fire did considerable damage to a mattress and some bed sheets. The blaze was extinguished by firemen from King street station before it gained headway to oither parts of the house.

Firemen say that Mr. Jackson was sitting on the dege of the bed pouring fluid into his lighter when some overflowed. When he tried the lighter it ignited and a small explosion resulted. Mr. Jackson jumped to safety and in less than a minute the bed clothing was on fire.

On Saturday afternoon firemen had another run to Maple street where smoke was issuing from the basement of No. 146 Maple street. An examination revealed that some live coals had dropped from the grate to the ashpit clean-out below, and had ignited some cardboard. The small fire was extinguished before damage resulted.

Murder And Suicide Suspected—Couple Friends For Seven Years

Associated Press Despatch

Philadelphia, April 14 — The man and woman found dead in a river front hotel today were identified as Paul Benson 36, of Camden, N.J., and Pauline Skiba 28, of Philadelphia.

Police said they learned the couple had been friends for seven years. Police also said they believe that Benson killed the woman and then shot himself.

Confronted by fictitious registration, police had difficulty in identifying the bodies, whose expensive clothing and jewelry afforded sharp contrast to the dingy hotel room in which they were found shot to death.

FIRST MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR STUDENTS, GRADUATES OF UNIVERSITY OF W.O.

Faculty, Students And Administration Staff Participate In Impressive Ceremony

DR. SERWOOD FOX IS CHIEF SPEAKER

Tribute Paid To Memory Of 28 Formerly Connected With University

In respectful memory of 28 men and women who at some time before their death were connected with the University of Western Ontario, students, faculties and administration staff Sunday afternoon gathered in Convocation Hal to listen to a Memorial address given by President W. Sherwood Fox and to participate in the first annual service of this kind at Western.

As the light filtered through the stained-glass windows of Convocation Hall, the large congregation stood in silence while the strains of Chopin's Funeral March were played. With bowed heads present students thought of the reference made by Dr. Fox that it would be their duty to carry on the tasks which, taken up, had been removed from the hands of past students and graduates by the intervention of death.

Memory Honored

Those men and women whom Western, as a maternal guiding light, yesterday mourned, are as follows:

Elmer Armstrong, Arthur Barber, Dr. C. W. Brown, '06, Dr. B. F. Butler, Dr. J. A. Campbell, '12, Dr. R. M. Charlton, '06, H. J. Childs, Margaret Crawford, '26, Sir Arthur Currie, '24, Dr. L. H. Douglass, '5, Dr. W. S. Downham, '12, Dr. D. B. Fraser, '28, Archie D. Graham, Dr. R. M. Gubbins, '92, Rev. S. P. Irwin, '98, Dr. N T. Johnson, '02, Dr. K. M. Lindsay, '28, Dr. A. B. Macallum, Dr. J. E. Mason, '14, Georgina Munroe, Dr. W. J. Nesbitt, '12, Sarah Paterson, John Pringle, Frances Steer, '26, Jean Stewart, '33, Dr. W. J. Taylor, '10, Dr. C. E. Tran, '12, Rev. Geo. Vrooman, '19.

The lessons for the service were taken from Ecclesiastes, XLIV 1-15 and Hebrews XI, 13-16 and 32-40, and were read by Prof. J. A. Spenceley, of the Department of English, who also conducted the remaining service part of the program. Frank Stiles provided musical accompaniments.

Dr. Fox Main Speaker

Dr. Fox, as the main speaker, eulogised the various groups of students which death took from the various faculties and departments of the school. The list as given included those who died since January, 1933.

"Even in a small university, each year its noticeable toll from the academic circle of administration, faculties, alumni and students," Dr. Fox declared. "You will note that I include graduates in this group. As I have said on many occasions before, graduates—or, in the more affectionate Latin term, alumni—are, though living outside the college halls, just as much a part of the family circle as they were when they lived within those halls. By their Alma Mater they are always regarded as present, however great the distance that divides them from her physically. One of the penalties of the university's growth is that these grievous exactions of death become with the passing of time more numerous and hence increasingly striking and poignant. We who remain are indeed through the loss of our friends and colleagues, but we find some measure of consolation in our cherished memory of their noble characters and their unselfish lives. Our grief is assuaged when we pause to remind ourselves that the truly good in human life and thought and deed is never lost but continue for all time in some form. Indeed, it is the function of those of us who are left behind to help the good thus to continue. Our beloved friends began a task, and upon us falls the burden of carrying it on devotedly, until we in our turn are summoned to surrender it to our successors.

Represent Many Spheres

"In reviewing these names one cannot but remark the variety of spheres of activity that they represent. As a group they represent a typical cross section of our social life. Their fields of endeavor are emblematic of the contribution their university is making to the life of the nation. In them we can read in letters written large the real and vital mission of a university to any nation, for, contrary to an opinion that is all too common, a modern university touches not merely the academic phases of national life, but every phase. In a most mysterious and quiet way it permeates the whole fabric of our society.

Represent 3 Greatest Professions

"So many of those who have died belonged to three of the greatest professions—the Ministry, Teaching and Medicine. All of these are among the noblest of callings, and I know I shall not be understood as slighting the first two mentioned when for a moment I refer to the third, Medicine. I fear that this profession has not received from the world the measure of tribute that is its due. During the stress of the past five years the burden of care and duty that has been laid upon the physician and surgeon has been beyond human calculation. Always ready to give of their knowledge and skill, they have responded promptly to the countless calls that these trying times have made upon them. The vast majority have forgotten themselves in serving others and in so doing have in all too many instances concealed the fact that they themselves were in need of help and rest and comfort. Some in adhering to their vows to put service to their fellowmen above all else have brought themselves to the verge of poverty. Some have denied themselves the opportunity of further study rather than to seem to desert their home community in the time of great trouble. And I know that several of those to whose memories we pay homage today have passed from the host of the living because unselfishly they spent their health and strength before their time. It is the wish of every one of us that all due honor be paid to them. May their successors be animated by the same altruistic spirit. May their lives be spared, if God so wills, to long years of service amongst us."

PATIENTS IN PANIC AS BOILER EXPLODES

St. John's, Que., April 14—Explosion of the boiler of the heating system at the Grey Nun Hospital today threw patients into a panic. The boiler, in a building separate from the hospital building, threw bricks hundreds of yards when it exploded and broke windows for blocks around. The power house was destroyed with damages estimated at $10,000. No one was injured.

COURT SANCTIONS MONEY TRANSFER

Goderich Branch Of Bank Of Montreal To Pay Mrs. B. Jackson's Funds Into Court

Officially washing its hands of the case, Bank of Montreal sought and was grnated permission in weekly high court here Saturday to pay into court the $3,425 which it holds in its Goderich branch to the credit of 21-year-old Betty Jackson. The application was made by Huron R. Davidson, acting for the bank, while Arthur LeBel, counsel for Mrs. Jackson; and S. G. Robertson, representing Miss Lucy Taylor, consented to the order. Costs of the bank, amounting to $45, are to be paid out of the money.

The money is held under an injunction granted by County Judge Joseph Wearing until trial of the $5,500 supreme court action for alleged theft brought by Miss Lucy B. Taylor against Mrs. Jackson.

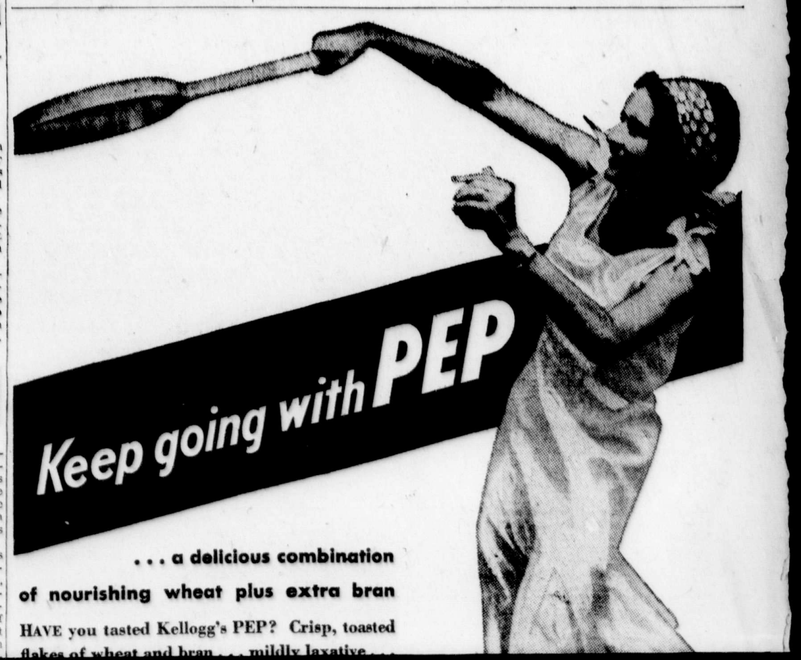
Mrs. Jackson has admitted that the $3,425 in the Goderich branch is a part of $5,000 paid to her by Miss Taylor for use in attempting to secure a governor's pardon for George Taylor, serving a ten-year-term in Kansas State Prison.

At the same time, it is announced that Mrs. Jackson is carrying her fight for possession of the money to the appeal court at Osgoode Hall. Her counsel, Arthur LeBel, has filed notice that he is appealing the decision of Judge Wearing. He will again argue that the money should be released to Mrs. Jackson. Hearing of the appeal has been set for Wednesday, April 18, at Toronto.

ALLEGE LONDONER STRUCK CONSTABLE

Ridout Street Man Charged With Assault Following Police Raid

Charged with assaulting a police constable, a Ridout street man will appear in city police court this morning, following a police raid on his apartment on Saturday night. Police say the man, his wife and four others were arrested and taken to the King street police station at 10:40 o'clock Saturday night.



The local man is alleged to have assaulted P. C. Fred Fuller, who in company with Constable Joseph Miles and Sergt. William Middaugh raided his apartment.

While the officers were in the residence, the man is alleged to have kicked P. C. Fuller in the shins and to have inflicted scratches on his face and caused several body injuries. Constable Fuller just returned to duty a few days ago after being at his home on sick leave.

With the exception of the occupant of the house, the others are charged with being disorderly.

WIFE FAINTS IN COURT AS HUSBAND SENTENCED

Windsor, Ont., April 14. — Alex Schacht, 28, learned today that the law does not forget. He returned recently to Windsor after an absence of three years and was at once arrested on a warrant charging robbery with violence which had been issued before his departure. His young wife, attending the court hearing, fainted as her husband was sentenced to two years in Kingston penientiary.

This is exactly where the Bennett policy fails. No one can claim with any semblance of reason that the Bennett tariffs against British imports are moderate. They have caused frequent complaints from manufacturers in Great Britain, and they have brought about a conflict between the Bennett Government and its own Tariff Board. The natural sequence is a demand from British farmers for more tariff protection against the Dominions, or modification of the quotas. If there is to be moderation it must be on both sides.

With the best that can be done, it is doubtful if the Canadian farmer will ever have as favorable a position in the British market as he had when Great Britain was under free trade. The best he can hope for is some advantage over the foreign producer, but in a smaller market. There was great rejoicing among extreme and fanatical protectionists in Canada when Great Britain abandoned free trade and they did all in their power to encourage the movement. Its influence on the whole is ingree of complexity. The plan, we are told, does not determine a minimum price but outlines a method by which minimum prices may be maintained. President Roosevelt is said to be losing some of his authority over Congress. But there is no sign that he is losing his popularity in the country.

Prime Minister Bennett denouncing Premier Pattullo's usurpation of legislative powers is another case of the pot reproaching the kettle for its dark complexion.

At Ingersoll Mr. King pointed out that the South Oxford by-election would be held two days before budget day. He thought this was significant and it suggested that a stiffer dose of taxation is coming which would not be good campaign material.

The British steel industry has devised a five-year plan for complete re-organization, and will ask for a five-year extension. There is room for improvement. When Sir Henry Thornton was prepared to give large orders for steel, not made in Canada, he could find no one in this country representing British steel interests.

It is announced that the Canadian budget this week will make some revisions in the British-Canadian trade agreement. It should be revised out of all recognition, so as to save the fast-closing British market for Canadian farm products before it is too late. But that means that Canada must give Britain a square deal, which she is not getting now.

Hitlerites boast that unemployment has been reduced one-half under the present regime. It has been reduced only by putting two million men to work for the Government. In the meantime the export trade has fallen rapidly and a crisis in exchange has developed. Hatred in other countries of the cruelties of Hitler rule has vastly reduced the foreign demand for German goods.

Mussolini has decreed that every unmarried man in Italy must pay 50 per cent. of his income to the State. The law is a gross interference with personal liberty. A man who marries merely to escape taxation is not likely to be a good husband. Besides, the standard of living is falling so steadily Italy that many single men must have difficulty in keeping themselves. A new ukase has just slashed wages and salarie for the third time within two years. Prices and rents are also cut, but if there is to be any reduction in profits and dividends the despatches do not mention it.

TRUE SPORTSMANSHIP
(Sherbrooke Record)

Bobby Jones, the greatest golfer of all time, showed his good sportsmanship when his Atlantan neighbors decided to hold the first big golf tournament of the spring season. All the golfers, pro and gentlemen, on their way up north from down South, were invited to join in a week's golf at Bobby's home town, where he presently practises law and often gets into the winner's column with persuasively soft, drawling accents of the true Georgian. Though Bobby Jones did not do so well, and the prizes went to lesser lights, the Atlantan was the life of the party. Here is a man who won every crown in the golfing world, preserved his amateurism to the end, then retired gracefully so that he might not stand in the way of the up and coming.

BERMUDA'S CHARM
(Ottawa Journal)

Commercialists in Bermuda who annually ask the island legislature to permit automobiles, with the idea that there will be "money in it" for the islanders (meaning a few selfish persons) are warned against it by Sinclair Lewis, the novelist, in his usual piquant language. He pictures main streets "strewn with hot dog stands, empty cigarette cartons, and beer bottles" and "buses full of shrieking tourists waving beer bottles at you as they roar through the dust?"

Lovers of Bermuda will applaud him. Bermuda is a paradise for thousands of people because it is "different," because its lanes winding charmingly are safe for hikers, because it is a delightful relief from monoxide gas, because its quietness is unbroken save for the caroling of birds and the dull roar of breakers on coral reefs; because it is "old fashioned."

When Bermuda is unable to offer these longed-for joys in a world distraught by commercialism at its worst, Bermuda will have lost its principal charm.

(Regina Leader-Post)

The London, Ont., Adverstiser, a thoughtful newspaper, sees no value in arguments sometimes heard that war is a vitalizing thing, that we are apt to become a slothful race without it, that there is a needed excitement about the thing for humanity.

If any persons want war for purposes of excitement or for drilling a new vitality into the race, it might be suggested that the fighting be left solely to them. War furnishes excitement, it is true, for those who want that kind of excitement, but there is no helpfulness of any sort in a situation that leave long lines of dead and broken bodies and of multitudes of widows and orphans.

THE TIME MUDDLE
(Kitchener Record)

The daylight saving muddle is again on the threshold. If the powers that be took this thing in hand and passed a law to have fast time in vogue for the two midsummer months from coast to coast there wouldn't be the annual confusion.

As long as the setting of dates for daylight saving is left to individual municipalities, the time confusion with its consequent inconvenience will continue. Isn't it about time that we had some semblance of uniformity in this important question?

night for the rally of District Encampment No. 8 which was held in the I. O. O. F. lodgerooms, Bank of Nova Scotia Building. The visitors were present from Watford, Kerrwood, Mount Brydges, Kitchener Brantford and London. The rally was held by Harmony Encampment No. 3 of this city, and proved to be one of the best gatherings that has ever been staged by the Order in this district.

The degree teams from Kitchener and Brantford were present. The Kitchener team exemplified the Patriarchal and Royal Purple degrees while the Brantford team exemplified the Golden Rule Degree.

Following the business meeting Saturday night a banquet was held at which short addresses were delivered by several of the outstanding visitors.

The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of R. G. Legg, chairman; A. Chapman, J. Sugerman, W. T. Wheeler, Percy Pawley and W. A. McRoberts.

The gathering was one of the most interesting and instructive held by the local Encampment. The visiting degree teams complimented for their work.

Among the outstanding members present were Roy Sloat, G. J. W., of Brantford, a member of the Grand Encampment of Ontario; R. E. Waltham of Kerrwood, P. G. P. and a grand representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge; August Kutoba, of Kitchener, P. G. P., who took an active part in the degree work; W. Leonard, D. D. G. I. of District No. 18; Howard "McLean, D. D. G. P. of Kerrwood, of District No. 8, and several others.

On the arrival of the visitors on Saturday afternoon, a luncheon was held in a downtown restaurant.

LIGHTER EXPLODES, SETS BED ON FIRE

Maple Street Man Unhurt In Unusual Mishap—Firemen Extinguish Cellar Blaze

When the cigarette lighter he was filling is said by firemen to have exploded Sunday afternoon, A. Jackson of 92 Maple street, escaped injury but a resulting fire did considerable damage to a mattress and some bed sheets. The blaze was extinguished by firemen from King street station before it gained headway to either parts of the house.

Firemen say that Mr. Jackson was sitting on the dege of the bed pouring fluid into his lighter when some overflowed. When he tried the lighter it ignited and a small explosion resulted, Mr. Jackson jumped to safety and in less than a minute the bed clothing was on fire.

On Saturday afternoon firemen had another run to Maple street where smoke was issuing from the basement of No. 146 Maple street. An examination revealed that some live coals had dropped from the grate to the ashpit clean-out below, and had ignited some cardboard. The small fire was extinguished before damage resulted.

Identify Bodies Found In Hotel

Murder And Suicide Suspected—Couple Friends For Seven Years

Associated Press Despatch

Philadelphia, April 14 — The man and woman found dead in a river front hotel today were identified as Paul Benson 36, of Camden, N.J., and Pauline Skiba 28, of Philadelphia.

Police said they learned the couple had been friends for seven years. Police also said they believe that Benson killed the woman and then shot himself.

Confronted by fictitious registration, police had difficulty in identifying the bodies, whose expensive clothing and jewelry afforded sharp contrast to the dingy hotel room in which they were found shot to death.

Letters to Editor

THE HISTORY HOWLERS

To the Editor of The Advertiser—Your story of howlers written by local collegiate institute students seems to call for comment. These lapses are often amusing but never creditable and the recurrent crops of them in history proves that there is serious blame somewhere.

Newspaper reports of the addresses at the recent O.E.A., meeting, supported by teachers who heard them, give the impression that the outstanding point of the President's address was his vigorous criticism of the Education Department's treatment of history. He quoted its prescription that the aims of the teacher of history should be to arouse interest in the subject, to give an intelligent grasp of civics, to create a love for high ideals of conduct and to teach the sequences of causes and effects. Then he read the last entrance examination paper on history set by the Education Department to show that instead of promoting these aims it actually defeated them in merely exacting memory cramming of very many barren facts.

The Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Education was on the platform and heard the applause of the criticism. In his own speech he defended his temporary holding of two or three portfolios and said that he intrusted the direction of educational affairs to what was practically a commission of three teachers. These facts will help the public to place the blame which must rest with the pupils, the teachers, the Minister, or the commission. The O.E.A. president evidently places a good deal of it at headquarters.

A HISTORY TEACHER.

DR. SERWOOD FOX IS CHIEF SPEAKER

Tribute Paid To Memory Of 28 Formerly Connected With University

In respectful memory of 28 men and women who at some time before their death were connected with the University of Western Ontario, students, faculties and administration staff Sunday afternoon gathered in Convocation Hal to listen to a Memorial address given by President W. Sherwood Fox and to participate in the first annual service of this kind at Western.

As the light filtered through the stained-glass windows of Convocation Hall, the large congregation stood in silence while the strains of Chopin's Funeral March were played. With bowed heads present students thought of the reference made by Dr. Fox that it would be their duty to carry on the tasks which, taken up, had been removed from the hands of past students and graduates by the intervention of death.

Memory Honored

Those men and women whom Western, as a maternal guiding light, yesterday mourned, are as follows:

Elmer Armstrong, Arthur Barber, Dr. C. W. Brown, '06, Dr. B. F. Butler, Dr. J. A. Campbell, '12, Dr. R. M. Charlton, '06, H. J. Childs, Margaret Crawford, '26, Sir Arthur Currie, '24, Dr. L. H. Douglass, '5, Dr. W. S. Downham, '12, Dr. D. B. Fraser, '28, Archie D. Graham, Dr. R. M. Gubbins, '92, Rev. S. P. Irwin, '98, Dr. N T. Johnson, '02, Dr. K. M. Lindsay, '28, Dr. A. B. Macallum, Dr. J. E. Mason, '14, Georgina Munroe, Dr. W. J. Nesbitt, '12, Sarah Paterson, John Pringle, Frances Steer, '26, Jean Stewart, '33, Dr. W. J. Taylor, '10, Dr. C. E. Tran, '12, Rev. Geo. Vrooman, '19.

The lessons for the service were taken from Ecclesiastes, XLIV 1-15 and Hebrews XI, 13-16 and 32-40, and were read by Prof. J. A. Spenceley, of the Department of English, who also conducted the remaining service part of the program. Frank Stiles provided musical accompaniments.

Dr. Fox Main Speaker

Dr. Fox, as the main speaker, eulogised the various groups of students which death took from the various faculties and departments of the school. The list as given included those who died since January, 1933.

"Even in a small university, each year its noticeable toll from the academic circle of administration, faculties, alumni and students," Dr. Fox declared. "You will note that I include graduates in this group. As I have said on many occasions before, graduates—or, in the more affectionate Latin term, alumni—are, though living outside the college halls, just as much a part of the family circle as they were when they lived within those halls. By their Alma Mater they are always regarded as present, however great the distance that divides them from her physically. One of the penalties of the university's growth is that these grievous exactions of death become with the passing of time more numerous and hence increasingly striking and poignant. We who remain are indeed through the loss of our friends and colleagues, but we find some measure of consolation in our cherished memory of their noble characters and their unselfish lives. Our grief is assuaged when we pause to remind ourselves that the truly good in human life and thought and deed is never lost but continue for all time in some form. Indeed, it is the function of those of us who are left behind to help the good thus to continue. Our beloved friends began a task, and upon us falls the burden of carrying it on devotedly, until we in our turn are summoned to surrender it to our successors.

Represent Many Spheres

"In reviewing these names one cannot but remark the variety of spheres of activity that they represent. As a group they represent a typical cross section of our social life. Their fields of endeavor are emblematic of the contribution their university is making to the life of the nation. In them we can read in letters written large the real and vital mission of a university to any nation, for, contrary to an opinion that is all too common, a modern university touches not merely the academic phases of national life, but every phase. In a most mysterious and quiet way it permeates the whole fabric of our society.

"So many of those who have died belonged to three of the greatest professions—the Ministry, Teaching and Medicine. All of these are among the noblest of callings, and I know I shall not be understood as slighting the first two mentioned when for a moment I refer to the third, Medicine. I fear that this profession has not received from the world the measure of tribute that is its due. During the stress of the past five years the burden of care and duty that has been laid upon the physician and surgeon has been beyond human calculation. Always ready to give of their knowledge and skill, they have responded promptly to the countless calls that these trying times have made upon them. The vast majority have forgotten themselves in serving others and in so doing have in all too many instances concealed the fact that they themselves were in need of help and rest and comfort. Some in adhering to their vows to put service to their fellowmen above all else have brought themselves to the verge of poverty. Some have denied themselves the opportunity of further study rather than to seem to desert their home community in the time of great trouble. And I know that several of those to whose memories we pay homage today have passed from the host of the living because unselfishly they spent their health and strength before their time. It is the wish of every one of us that all due honor be paid to them. May their successors be animated by the same altruistic spirit. May their lives be spared, if God so wills, to long years of service amongst us."

case, Bank of Montreal sought and was grnated permission in weekly high court here Saturday to pay into court the $3,425 which it holds in its Goderich branch to the credit of 21-year-old Betty Jackson. The application was made by Huron R. Davidson, acting for the bank, while Arthur LeBel, counsel for Mrs. Jackson; and S. G. Robertson, representing Miss Lucy Taylor, consented to the order. Costs of the bank, amounting to $45, are to be paid out of the money.

The money is held under an injunction granted by County Judge Joseph Wearing until trial of the $5,500 supreme court action for alleged theft brought by Miss Lucy B. Taylor against Mrs. Jackson.

Mrs. Jackson has admitted that the $3,425 in the Goderich branch is a part of $5,000 paid to her by Miss Taylor for use in attempting to secure a governor's pardon for George Taylor, serving a ten-year-term in Kansas State Prison.

At the same time, it is announced that Mrs. Jackson is carrying her fight for possession of the money to the appeal court at Osgoode Hall. Her counsel, Arthur LeBel, has filed notice that he is appealing the decision of Judge Wearing. He will again argue that the money should be released to Mrs. Jackson. Hearing of the appeal has been set for Wednesday, April 18, at Toronto.

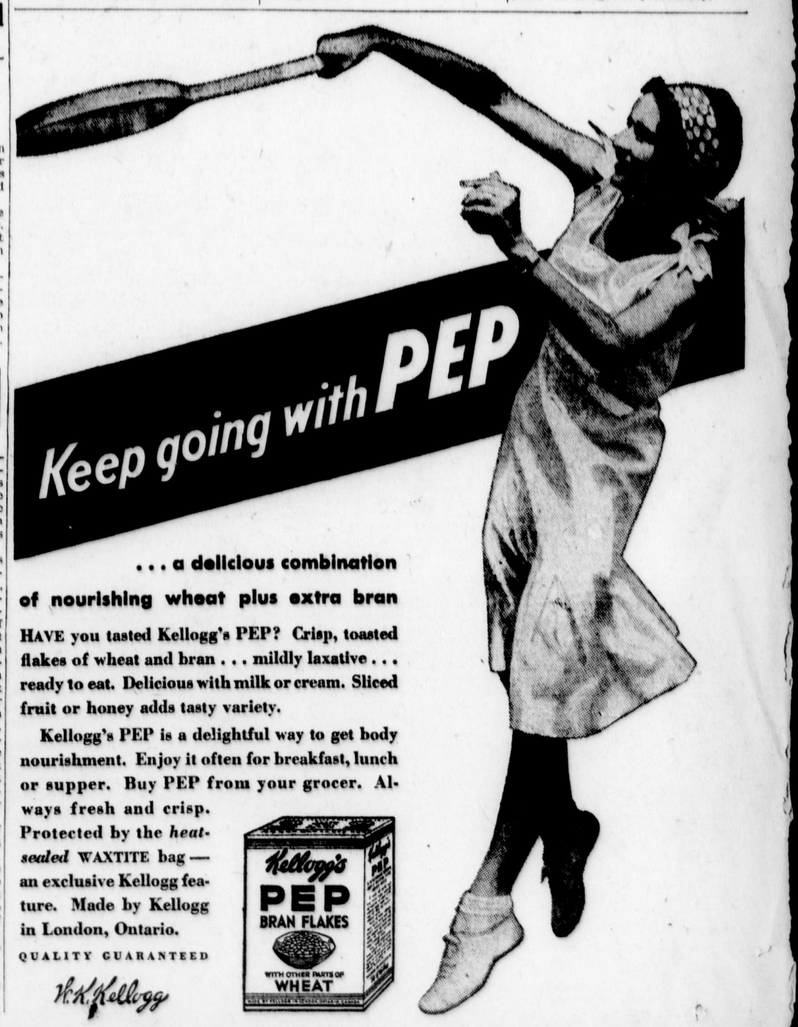
Ridout Street Man Charged With Assault Following Police Raid

Charged with assaulting a police constable, a Ridout street man will appear in city police court this morning, following a police raid on his apartment on Saturday night. Police say the man, his wife and four others were arrested and taken to the King street police station at 10:40 o'clock Saturday night.



The local man is alleged to have assaulted P. C. Fred Fuller, who in company with Constable Joseph Miles and Sergt. William Middaugh raided his apartment.

While the officers were in the residence, the man is alleged to have kicked P. C. Fuller in the shins and to have inflicted scratches on his face and caused several body injuries. Constable Fuller just returned to duty a few days ago after being at his home on sick leave.

With the exception of the tenant of the house, the others are charged with being disorderly.

MR. KING URGES SOUTH OXFORD TO DEFEND PARLIAMENTARY RIGHTS

Federal Liberal Leader Speaks To Crowded Election Meetings At Norwich and Tillsonburg

Says Cabinet Is Usurping Power At Expense Of Constitutional Liberties—Real Danger Of Dictatorship Menaces Canada—Gov't Should Go To Country This Fall If Defeated In S. Oxford

OTTAWA PACTS CLOSING MARKETS TO FARMERS; VAST SUMS SQUANDERED IN RELIEF EXPENDITURES

Wonders What Influence Kept Tobacco Report Unpublished So Long—Vigorous Speeches Made By M. F. Hepburn, M.P., Hon. J. C. Elliott, M.P., And A. S. Rennie, Liberal Candidate

The choice for Canada today is between dictatorship and democracy through Parliamentary Government, declared Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in addresses before two large meetings yesterday in the interest of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election on Monday next. Already, said Mr. King, Parliament under the domination of a Tory majority has transferred most of its powers to the Governor-in-Council, which usually means the Cabinet but today means Mr. Bennett.

"I wonder if you realize to what extent your Parliamentary institutions have been shot to pieces in this country. Today we are in the middle of a world social revolution and the problem before us is where is it going to end."

Large Meetings

The afternoon meeting was at Norwich where far more than could be accommodated sought admission to the hall. At Tillsonburg at night another thousand people heard Mr. King and accorded him a spontaneous and prolonged ovation.

Mr. King uttered a clarion call for a national unemployment policy. The $110,000,000 dollars of federal expenditures in the last four years have not touched the fundamentals while all this money was being spent the government was promoting its policy of scarcity through trade and wheat production restrictions. The home market is being destroyed along with the purchasing power of the people.

Must Go To Country

Mr. King declared that the Bennett government in the event of a defeat in South Oxford could not afford to carry on the government of the country past next fall. The last four by-elections have demonstrated, he said, that it entirely lacks the confidence of the people.

At Tillsonburg Mr. King dealt at length with the Sutherland tobacco report and declared that the government was "humbugging" the farmers again.

At Norwich Mr. King was introduced by Hon. J. C. Elliott, K. C., M. P. Other speakers were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader. Mr. Rennie and Mr. Hepburn also spoke at Tillsonburg.

By Staff Reporter

Tillsonburg, April 11—A world social revolution, which because of its extent is without parallel in history, is going on today. It will test in Canada the principle of Parliamentary government, declared Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Liberal leader, here tonight before a cheering throng in Tillsonburg town hall. Every inch of space in the auditorium, along the aisles, behind the stage, at the windows and every nook and corner was crowded as 800 people saw and heard Mr. King. Downstairs in the council chamber another 200 people heard the addresses relayed by loud speaker, and scores more gathered outside where there were more loud speakers.

Ready for Change

The Liberal party welcomes and is prepared to sponsor the changes which have become necessary in the world social and economic order, said the leader.

Changes of equal importance with the crusades, the Renaissance, the American revolution and the industrial revolution. "Today we have something which resembles them all but which instead of confining itself to one country takes in the world. We are in a world revolution.

"For my part I welcome those changes with all my heart. Not all of them. But I welcome that which will bring a more equitable distribution of wealth. I welcome the change to bring social justice. I welcome the change to bring much to many instead of most to a privileged few. I am glad to live in an age in which it is possible to bring these things about.

Needs Direction

"These changes will lead to terrible results in some parts of the world and must go farther than we expect in others. It will sweep right over us, this great onward movement of social change; it will sweep away the lives and homes of the people as well if not properly directed," he said.

Only by being true to the great principles of government which have guided British history can Canada escape chaos, he said.

"There is nothing in the world today comparable to British institutions, freedom from dictatorship and faith in the common sense of the common people. Let us hold to these institutions. Let us direct these great forces through the halls of parliament. Let us bring into parliament men of courage who will say, 'You, Mr. Banker, must give up your special rights and let the people have more credit!' Who will say that it is time for manufacturers to cease to take exorbitant profits and give instead fair wages to labor. But the place to say and do those things is in parliament," he said.

Other speakers tonight were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader.

Mr. King was given a rousing greeting as he rose. He said he came here to discuss with the people of South Oxford the problems that confront Canadians as "a fellow citizen of this Dominion."

Confidence Gone

The Liberal victories in the past four federal by-elections, he declared, "showed clearly that the people do not want the present government to continue in office.

"By electing Mr. Rennie next Monday you will be serving notice to this government that it is time it got out," Mr. King asserted, amid a burst of applause.

Mr. King said he hoped to show that the voice of the people had very little part in the present government. The public will was being thwarted on every hand; its representatives were being given no chance to express the people's will; and democracy was in peril in this Dominion.

"What appreciation has been shown to this riding of South Oxford by the Bennett administration?" Mr. King asked. "It had the opportunity of showing that appreciation at the time the Redistribution Bill was brought down and what did he do? It has wiped the constituency of South Oxford off the map altogether.

"I tell you that if Mackenzie King had been at the head of the government when the Redistribution Bill came up, South Oxford would not

BENNETT FAVORS EARLY REVISION OF B.N.A. ACT FOR SOCIAL LEGISLATION

But Does Not Intend To Make Start At It Until After Election

EULER SUGGESTS NEW COMMISSION

Former Minister Would Study Co-Ordination Of Social Legislation Under Central Authority

Canadian Press Despatch

Ottawa, April 11.—Premier R. B. Bennett favors early revision of the British North America Act, Canada's written constitution, to permit the Dominion to take wider control of social legislation, he told the House of Commons today. But he intimated he didnot intend to make a start in that direction until after the next election.

Euler Suggests Commission

Interrupting a leisurely debate on the government unemployment relief bill, Hon. W. D. Euler, former Liberal minister of national revenue, threw out a suggestion for a commission to study co-ordination of social legislation under a central authority. He proposed unemployment insurance, old age pensions, health insurance, workmen's compensation, widows' allowances and poor relief under Dominion administration.

Would Necessitate Revision

A social legislation set-up on the Euler plan would necessitate revision of the British North America Act, noted the Prime Minister, because the provinces at confederation were given this jurisdiction.

MISS LAPOINTE ASSERTS BENNETT FOUR YEARS LATE

Startling Works Program That Should Have Begun When He Took Office

PRE-ELECTION BAIT

Provincial Officers Also Address Enthusiastic Twentieth Century Club Rally Here

Liberalism's greatest task today is the accomplishment of economic liberty for the people of Canada, Miss Odette Lapointe, of Quebec, president of the women's section of the Federation of Twentieth Century Clubs of Canada told an enthusiastic and overcrowded meeting in Hyman Hall last night. The meeting was held under the auspices of the local Twentieth Century Clubs.

The talented young speaker, who is the daughter of the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice, was accompanied to London by Miss Leila O'Connell, of Brockville, secretary of the Women's section of the Ontario Twentieth Century Clubs, Mr. H. A. MacDougall, of Woodstock, president of the Men's section of the Federation of Twentieth Century Clubs of Canada, and Mr. Donald Begg, of St. Thomas, president of the Men's section, of the Twentieth Century Clubs of Ontario. Mayer Lerner, of London, provincial vice-president, acted as chairman.

Bennett Four Years Late

"Conservative leadership has not done one thing to bring about economic liberty in Canada," said Miss Lapointe, pointing to the past four years.

"Mr. Bennett did nothing for the unemployed through most of his term of office. Now in the last minute he comes forward with a program of work that should have been started four years ago. If it had been done then, men with money might have followed the government's example. Canada's workingmen might have had work, and better spending power." She placed the recent government program in the category of pre-election bait.

"Young people of Canada have all the instruments necessary for a change of order, in their hands," said Miss Lapointe, continuing. She said they could move Canada's wheat to export markets, they could open Canada's factories, they could once more guarantee Canada's workingmen work, and money with which to buy the things they need, for themselves and for their families. And they had the power in their hands with which to obtain capable government for the country, if they would but think for themselves, and decided for themselves.

Aim to Interest Young Voters

"Young men and young women should take an active interest in the affairs of their country" she said. "It was to make this possible, and to en-

Fire-Fighting Apparatus At Hunt Mill Inadequate Is Inquest Jury Verdict

Find Also That Fire Inspection Not Properly Carried Out

FIRE DEPARTMENT'S WORK COMMENDED

Long List Of Witnesses Testify At Resumed Inquest Last Night

A coroner's jury, sitting at the King street police station until after 1 o'clock this morning, returned a verdict that District Chief Stanley Scruby of the London Fire Department came to his death in the fire at the Hunt Mill on March 3 as the result of burns and suffocation sustained while in the performance of his duty as a fireman.

The jury added two riders to the verdict. "We are of the opinion that the inspection for fire preventative purposes was not adequate, and that the mill fire equipment was not in proper condition."

Praise Firemen

The jury's verdict was also to the effect that the members wished to commend the action of the London Fire Department, particularly Lieut. Robert Barnes whose presence of mind was responsible for saving his comrades' lives.

The jury had reference to the actions of Lieut. Barnes who leaped from a window, clutched the top rung of the aerial ladder and as he did so noticed some of his comrades hanging to the window sills of upper floors. He shouted to the men on the ground to spread the life nets for them to jump into. From the ground it was almost impossible to see the men on the window sills owing to the dense clouds of smoke that were issuing from the upper story windows.

8 Witnesses Called

Eight witnesses were called by Crown Attorney A. M. Judd, K.C., last night, while five others testified at the opening session a week ago. Last night's sitting commenced at 8 o'clock and the jury did not reach a verdict until 1.15 o'clock this morning.

The highlights of last night's evidence were provided by members of the London Fire Department who were in the burning mill when their two comrades lost their lives. They told of trying to reach safety through blinding smoke and of jumping from the sixth floor through a smoke screen to the life nets below. One told of leaping from a window to catch the top rung of the aerial ladder, while others told of crawling on their hands and knees through smoke filled floors of the building.

Architect Describes Plans

J. N. Watt, architect of this city, told the jury the original plans of the building were drawn-up in March, 1917 by the firm of Watt and Blackwell. He said the north section of the building had two fire doors on each floor. He said the building was of re-inforced concrete skeleton with exterior panels of brick with large wood frames and sashes. "When the building was nearly completed we were requested to send a set of blue prints to the Department of Labor," he said. As far as I know these were approved by the Department.

The first fire at the Hunt Mill occurred on December 30, 1924. Mr. Watt stated that on the fifth floor there was no fire door at the stairway and the only opening would be through the elevator providing the elevator was at that floor. On the plans, the floors were of modern construction and the only concrete sections were over the boiler-room and the vault.

Witness said he was not associated with the reconstruction of the mill after the 1924 fire.

Ambitious plans which suggest the construction of a new $100,000 draw bridge, the building of a new dock, and the further establishment of coal interests at Port Stanley, were tentatively discussed and mapped last night at the port, at a joint meeting of the L. & P. S. commission and the Port Stanley Village Council.

Building of a lift bridge to replace the present stationary structure spanning Kettle Creek near the railway station, was stressed as the key project for which the commission and council would strive. Instead of repairs to the structure now standing, for which the provincial government has already signified its willingness to share in the cost, attention will now be directed towards obtaining an entirely new bridge.

Should the plan succeed, Mayor George A. Wenige stated last night he believed the project would have a direct bearing on Western Ontario. Construction of the bridge, the mayor believed, would be followed by the building of a new dock; greater facilities for lake vessels would be created, and further inducement held out for oil and coal concerns to use the port as their base and shipping centre.

To Protect Bathers

Apart from building plans advanced with a view to placing Port Stanley "on the map" as a live lake port, the joint meeting decided upon measures of protection for swimmers this summer. Authorization was given the proposal to place life preservers at every 300 feet along the lake front. Additional plans for the employment this summer of life guards and the placing of lifeboats at strategic points along the waterfront were also mooted and held over for further consideration.

Associated Press Despatch

Washington, April 11—Arthur W. Cutten, a native of Guelph, Ont., was charged today by United States Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace with failure to file reports of short sales and making false reports to the grain futures administration to manipulate grain prices.

The Secretary cited the Chicago grain trader to appear on May 14 for a hearing at Chicago. Seth. Thomas, soliciter for the Department of Agriculture, said if the charges were substantiated an order would be issued directing all contract markets to refuse trading privileges to Cutten.

The citation said Cutten "conspired and colluded" with firms and persons on the Chicago Board of Trade "to conceal his trading and position in the market" an to so "make inaccurate, incorrect and false reports of his position in the market."

Big Dealings

During 1930 and 1931, the complaint declared, Cutten sold wheat futures in excess of 100,000,000 bushels. It is said that during 1930 he sold wheat futures short in excess of 37,000,000 bushels and in 1931 was short in excess of 56,000,000 bushels.

He had "an open position in the market on 552 trading days during the years 1930 and 1931 and he was short of these days" and during the period covered by these operations "the price of wheat futures on the board of trade declined from $1.34⅜ per bushel for the July future on Jan. 2, 1930, to 56¼ cents per bushel for the July future on Dec. 31, 1931, a decline of more than 78 cents per bushel.

The citation said that Cutten, in order to cover up his transactions "caused and procured various grain firms and persons by and through whom his trades on the Board of Trade were made, to keep false records and to make false reports to the grain futures administration.

Concealed Trades?

"Respondent caused said persons and firms to split and divide his account into several sections and to carry the same under various names and symbols and by this means concealed and covered up his trades," it added.

During the two years Cutten was declared to have "attempted to manipulate the price of grain" by means of false reports and false records kept by those handling his "dummy" accounts.

Wallace said at his weekly press conference Cutten was the man "who had articles in a weekly magazine of large circulation," arguing for unrestricted markets and complaining about regulations imposed by the Government.

He added that Cutten was "one of the great supporters of the law of supply and demand" and had "viewed with alarm the operations of the agricultural adjustment administration."

Cutten left Guelph when he was 20 and acted as a trader and bookkeeper for a grain firm for two more decades before he went into business for himself in 1904. Rarely does he verify, deny or embellish the stories of his coups in the wheat pit which float about Chicago. But in 1925 he paid the biggest income tax of any individual in the district—$540.00.

Cutten is now 64.

Federal Liberal Leader Speaks To Crowded Election Meetings At Norwich and Tillsonburg

Says Cabinet Is Usurping Power At Expense Of Constitutional Liberties—Real Danger Of Dictatorship Menaces Canada—Gov't Should Go To Country This Fall If Defeated In S. Oxford

OTTAWA PACTS CLOSING MARKETS TO FARMERS; VAST SUMS SQUANDERED IN RELIEF EXPENDITURES

Wonders What Influence Kept Tobacco Report Unpublished So Long—Vigorous Speeches Made By M. F. Hepburn, M.P., Hon. J. C. Elliott, M.P., And A. S. Rennie, Liberal Candidate

The choice for Canada today is between dictatorship and democracy through Parliamentary Government, declared Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in addresses before two large meetings yesterday in the interest of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election on Monday next. Already, said Mr. King, Parliament under the domination of a Tory majority has transferred most of its powers to the Governor-in-Council, which usually means the Cabinet but today means Mr. Bennett.

"I wonder if you realize to what extent your Parliamentary institutions have been shot to pieces in this country. Today we are in the middle of a world social revolution and the problem before us is where is it going to end."

Large Meetings

The afternoon meeting was at Norwich where far more than could be accommodated sought admission to the hall. At Tillsonburg at night another thousand people heard Mr. King and accorded him a spontaneous and prolonged ovation.

Mr. King uttered a clarion call for a national unemployment policy. The $110,000,000 dollars of federal expenditures in the last four years have not touched the fundamentals while all this money was being spent the government was promoting its policy of scarcity through trade and wheat production restrictions. The home market is being destroyed along with the purchasing power of the people.

Must Go To Country

Mr. King declared that the Bennett government in the event of a defeat in South Oxford could not afford to carry on the government of the country past next fall. The last four by-elections have demonstrated, he said, that it entirely lacks the confidence of the people.

At Tillsonburg Mr. King dealt at length with the Sutherland tobacco report and declared that the government was "humbugging" the farmers again.

At Norwich Mr. King was introduced by Hon. J. C. Elliott, K. C., M. P. Other speakers were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader. Mr. Rennie and Mr. Hepburn also spoke at Tillsonburg.

By Staff Reporter

Tillsonburg, April 11—A world social revolution, which because of its extent is without parallel in history, is going on today. It will test in Canada the principle of Parliamentary government, declared Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Liberal leader, here tonight before a cheering throng in Tillsonburg town hall. Every inch of space in the auditorium, along the aisles, behind the stage, at the windows and every nook and corner was crowded as 800 people saw and heard Mr. King. Downstairs in the council chamber another 200 people heard the addresses relayed by loud speaker, and scores more gathered outside where there were more loud speakers.

Ready for Change

The Liberal party welcomes and is prepared to sponsor the changes which have become necessary in the world social and economic order, said the leader.

Changes of equal importance with the crusades, the Renaissance, the American revolution and the industrial revolution. "Today we have something which resembles them all but which instead of confining itself to one country takes in the world. We are in a world revolution.

"For my part I welcome those changes with all my heart. Not all of them. But I welcome that which will bring a more equitable distribution of wealth. I welcome the change to bring social justice. I welcome the change to bring much to many instead of most to a privileged few. I am glad to live in an age in which it is possible to bring these things about.

Needs Direction

"These changes will lead to terrible results in some parts of the world and must go farther than we expect in others. It will sweep right over us. this great onward movement of social change; it will sweep away the lives and homes of the people as well if not properly directed," he said.

Only by being true to the great principles of government which have guided British history can Canada escape chaos, he said.

"There is nothing in the world today comparable to British institutions, freedom from dictatorship and faith in the common sense of the common people. Let us hold to these institutions. Let us direct these great forces through the halls of parliament. Let us bring into parliament men of courage who will say, 'You, Mr. Banker, must give up your special rights and let the people have more credit!' Who will say that it is time for manufacturers to cease to take exorbitant profits and give instead fair wages to labor. But the place to say and do those things is in parliament," he said.

Other speakers tonight were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader.

Mr. King was given a rousing greeting as he rose. He said he came here to discuss with the people of South Oxford the problems that confront Canadians as "a fellow citizen of this Dominion."

Confidence Gone

The Liberal victories in the past four federal by-elections, he declared, "showed clearly that the people do not want the present government to continue in office.

"By electing Mr. Rennie next Monday you will be serving notice to this government that it is time it got out," Mr. King asserted, amid a burst of applause.

Mr. King said he hoped to show that the voice of the people had very little part in the present government. The public will was being thwarted on every hand; its representatives were being given no chance to express the people's will; and democracy was in peril in this Dominion.

"What appreciation has been shown to this riding of South Oxford by the Bennett administration?" Mr. King asked. "It had the opportunity of showing that appreciation at the time the Redistribution Bill was brought down and what did he do? It has wiped the constituency of South Oxford off the map altogether.

"I tell you that if Mackenzie King had been at the head of the government when the Redistribution Bill came up, South Oxford would not have been wiped out," the speaker asserted.

Answering the question, "Why isn't South Oxford represented at this session?" Mr. King said that there was a feeling in some persons that they would rather have someone boss them than think for themselves. It was the trend toward dictatorship. The people of South Oxford now had the opportunity of saying what they thought about such a system.

A Hard-Won Privilege

"It is important that our parliaments be kept representative because we are getting farther and farther away from that ideal. It was that right of representation of the people that the pioneers and leaders of the past fought for in this country," Mr. King continued.

Turning to Mr. Bennett's pre-election promises, the Liberal chieftain declared that the two main ones on which he secured election were that he would give work, not the dole, and that he would provide markets for Canadian products. He had

BENNETT FAVORS EARLY REVISION OF B.N.A. ACT FOR SOCIAL LEGISLATION

But Does Not Intend To Make Start At It Until After Election

EULER SUGGESTS NEW COMMISSION

Former Minister Would Study Co-Ordination Of Social Legislation Under Central Authority

Canadian Press Despatch

Ottawa, April 11.—Premier R. B. Bennett favors early revision of the British North America Act, Canada's written constitution, to permit the Dominion to take wider control of social legislation, he told the House of Commons today. But he intimated he didnot intend to make a start in that direction until after the next election.

Euler Suggests Commission

Interrupting a leisurely debate on the government unemployment relief bill, Hon. W. D. Euler, former Liberal minister of national revenue, threw out a suggestion for a commission to study co-ordination of social legislation under a central authority. He proposed unemployment insurance, old age pensions, health insurance, workmen's compensation, widows' allowances and poor relief under Dominion administration.

Would Necessitate Revision

A social legislation set-up on the Euler plan would necessitate revision of the British North America Act, noted the Prime Minister, because the provinces at confederation were given this jurisdiction.

"There is not the slightest doubt in the world," continued the Prime Minister, while members discarded their newspapers and sat upright in their seats, "that unless there is a rearrangement of the powers of parliament and the legislatures of the provinces, in the very nature of things, the problem cannot be dealt with."

Says Commission Unnecessary

A commission to study co-ordination of social legislation was unnecessary, the Prime Minister said. The Government already had all the information it needed. "If I have the jurisdiction I need nothing further in the way of information. I say that very frankly because we have spent enormous efforts and considerable time and patience to see that information is available.

"All I can usefully say at this time is that I hold a very strong opinion as to the necessity of an early revision of the provisions of the B. N. A. Act. . . . I need not go further except to say that we recognize the difficulty and any steps we may take

PRE-ELECTION BAIT

Provincial Officers Also Address Enthusiastic Twentieth Century Club Rally Here

Liberalism's greatest task today is the accomplishment of economic liberty for the people of Canada, Miss Odette Lapointe, of Quebec, president of the women's section of the Federation of Twentieth Century Clubs of Canada told an enthusiastic and overcrowded meeting in Hymmn Hall last night. The meeting was held under the auspices of the local Twentieth Century Clubs.

The talented young speaker, who is the daughter of the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice, was accompanied to London by Miss Patricia O'Connell, of Brockville, secretary of the Women's section of the Ontario Twentieth Century Clubs. Mr. D. A. MacDougall, of Woodstock, president of the Men's section of the Federation of Twentieth Century Clubs of Canada, and Mr. Donald Begg, of St. Thomas, president of the Men's section, of the Twentieth Century Clubs of Ontario. Mayer Lerner, of London, provincial vice-president, acted as chairman.

Bennett Four Years Late

"Conservative leadership has not done one thing to bring about economic liberty in Canada," said Miss Lapointe, pointing to the past four years.

"Mr. Bennett did nothing for the unemployed through most of his term of office. Now in the last minute he comes forward with a program of work that should have been started four years ago. If it had been done then, men with money might have followed the government's example. Canada's workingmen might have had work, and better spending power." She placed the recent government program in the category of pre-election bait.

"Young people of Canada have all the instruments necessary for a change of order, in their hands," said Miss Lapointe, continuing. She said they could move Canada's wheat to export markets, they could open Canada's factories, they could once more guarantee Canada's workingmen work, and money with which to buy the things they need, for themselves and for their families. And they had the power in their hands with which to obtain capable government for the country, if they would but think for themselves, and decided for themselves.

Aim to Interest Young Voters

"Young men and young women should take an active interest in the affairs of their country" she said. "It was to make this possible, and to en-

Toronto Youth Found At Byron Not Abducted Father Tells Police

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 11.—Police tonight abandoned their investigation of a story by Curzon, Trinity College student, that he had been kidnapped and taken to London, after the youth's father, F. C. Clarkson, told them the story was a hoax.

Police said Mr. Clarkson told them his son was suffering from overwrought nerves, induced by worry over examinations and that he believed he had invented the story after driving to London himself and realizing he must explain his absense from homb.

Young Clarkson, 18, appeared about two o'clock this morning at Byron Sanatorium, eight miles northwest of London, and told authorities there he had been kidnapped. He was wet and cold. Police started to investigate his story that he had been seized as he sat in his car in Toronto.

They found the car in a gully about half a mile from the Sanatorium.

An X-Ray examination showed luckily that no particles of glass had become imbedded in the skull as was at first feared.

Fire-Fighting Apparatus At Hunt Mill Inadequate Is Inquest Jury Verdict

Find Also That Fire Inspection Not Properly Carried Out

FIRE DEPARTMENT'S WORK COMMENDED

Long List Of Witnesses Testify At Resumed Inquest Last Night

A coroner's jury, sitting at the King street police station until after 1 o'clock this morning, returned a verdict that District Chief Stanley Scruby of the London Fire Department came to his death in the fire at the Hunt Mill on March 3 as the result of burns and suffocation sustained while in the performance of his duty as a fireman.

The jury added two riders to the verdict, "We are of the opinion that the inspection for fire preventative purposes was not adequate, and that the mill fire equipment was not in proper condition."

Praise Firemen

The jury's verdict was also to the effect that the members wished to commend the action of the London Fire Department, particularly Lieut. Robert Barnes whose presence of mind was responsible for saving his comrades' lives.

The jury had reference to the actions of Lieut. Barnes who leaped from a window, clutched the top rung of the aerial ladder and as he did so noticed some of his comrades hanging to the window sills of upper floors. He shouted to the men on the ground to spread the life nets for them to jump into. From the ground it was almost impossible to see the men on the window sills owing to the dense clouds of smoke that were issuing from the upper story windows.

8 Witnesses Called

Eight witnesses were called by Crown Attorney A. M. Judd, K.C., last night, while five others testified at the opening session a week ago. Last night's sitting commenced at 8 o'clock and the jury did not reach a verdict until 1.15 o'clock this morning.

The highlights of last night's evidence were provided by members of the London Fire Department who were in the burning mill when their two comrades lost their lives. They told of trying to reach safety through blinding smoke and of jumping from the sixth floor through a smoke screen to the life nets below. One told of leaping from a window to catch the top rung of the aerial ladder, while others told of crawling on their hands and knees through smoke filled floors of the building.

Geneva, April 11.—The ground was reported prepared today for the admission of Russia to the League of Nations.

Nicholas Titulescu of Rumania conmerred at length with Dr. Eduoard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, and Boris Stein of Russia concerning the recognition of the Soviets by the Little Entente and during the discussions they took up the entire Russian problem, it was understood.

The impression in league circles tonight was that Russia is waiting for an invitation to join the league and hopes that additional countries will extend recognition. It was regarded likely that the Soviets will not make a decision until such recognition is forthcoming.

Tillsonburg, April 11.—Premier Bennett is going to be the first speaker in a debate Thursday night but he does not know it yet. It will take place at Brownsville though Mr. Bennett will be in Ottawa.

Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Ontario Liberal leader, who is taking an active part in the South Oxford federal by-election, announced the plan tonight The Tories have made much ado about Mr. Bennett's appeal to South Oxford electors which is to be broadcast Thursday from eight to eight forty-five.

"We want everybody to hear the Premier," says Mr. Hepburn, "so we have arranged to have a radio platform at Brownsville tomorrow night. The chairman will say a few words and then he will introduce Mr. Bennett who will speak for forty-five minutes. But the meeting won't be over then. Mr. R. J. Tillsonburg, April 11—A world social revolution, which because of its extent is without parallel in history, is going on today. It will test in Canada the principle of Parliamentary government, declared Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Liberal leader, here tonight before a cheering throng in Tillsonburg town hall. Every inch of space in the auditorium, along the aisles, behind the stage, at the windows and every nook and corner was crowded as 800 people saw and heard Mr. King. Downstairs in the council chamber another 200 people heard the addresses relayed by loud speaker, and scores more gathered outside where there were more loud speakers.

The choice for Canada today is between dictatorship and democracy through Parliamentary Government, declared Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in addresses before two large meetings yesterday in the interest of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election on Monday next. Already, said Mr. King, Parliament under the domination of a Tory majority has transferred most of its powers to the Governor-in-Council, which usually means the Cabinet but today means Mr. Bennett.

"I wonder if you realize to what extent your Parliamentary institutions have been shot to pieces in this country. Today we are in the middle of a world social revolution and the problem before us is where is it going to end."

Large Meetings

The afternoon meeting was at Norwich where far more than could be accommodated sought admission to the hall. At Tillsonburg at night another thousand people heard Mr. King and accorded him a spontaneous and prolonged ovation.

Mr. King uttered a clarion call for a national unemployment policy. The $110,000,000 dollars of federal expenditures in the last four years have not touched the fundamentals while all this money was being spent the government was promoting its policy of scarcity through trade and wheat production restrictions. The home market is being destroyed along with the purchasing power of the people.

Must Go To Country

Mr. King declared that the Bennett government in the event of a defeat in South Oxford could not afford to carry on the government of the country past next fall. The last four by-elections have demonstrated, he said, that it entirely lacks the confidence of the people.

At Tillsonburg Mr. King dealt at length with the Sutherland tobacco report and declared that the government was "humbugging" the farmers again.

At Norwich Mr. King was introduced by Hon. J. C. Elliott, K. C., M. P. Other speakers were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader. Mr. Rennie and Mr. Hepburn also spoke at Tillsonburg.

"One country takes in the world. We are in a world revolution.

"For my part I welcome those changes with all my heart. Not all of them. But I welcome that which will bring a more equitable distribution of wealth. I welcome the change to bring social justice. I welcome the change to bring much to many instead of most to a privileged few. I am glad to live in an age in which it is possible to bring these things about.

Needs Direction

"These changes will lead to terrible results in some parts of the world and must go farther than we expect in others. It will sweep right over us. this great onward movement of social change; it will sweep away the lives and homes of the people as well if not properly directed," he said.

Only by being true to the great principles of government which have guided British history can Canada escape chaos, he said.

"There is nothing in the world today comparable to British institutions, freedom from dictatorship and faith in the common sense of the common people. Let us hold to these institutions. Let us direct these great forces through the halls of parliament. Let us bring into parliament men of courage who will say, 'You, Mr. Banker, must give up your special rights and let the people have more credit!' Who will say that it is time for manufacturers to cease to take exorbitant profits and give instead fair wages to labor. But the place to say and do those things is in parliament," he said.

Other speakers tonight were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader.

Mr. King was given a rousing greeting as he rose. He said he came here to discuss with the people of South Oxford the problems that confront Canadians as "a fellow citizen of this Dominion."

Confidence Gone

The Liberal victories in the past four federal by-elections, he declared, "showed clearly that the people do not want the present government to continue in office.

"By electing Mr. Rennie next Monday you will be serving notice to this government that it is time it got out," Mr. King asserted, amid a burst of applause.

Mr. King said he hopel to show that the voice of the people had very little part in the present government. The public will was being thwarted on every hand; its representatives were being given no chance to express the people's will; and democracy was in peril in this Dominion.

"What appreciation has been shown to this riding of South Oxford by the Bennett administration?" Mr. King asked. "It had the opportunity of showing that appreciation at the time the Redistribution Bill was brought down and what did he do? It has wiped the constituency of South Oxford off the map altogether.

"I tell you that if Mackenzie King had been at the head of the government when the Redistribution Bill came up, South Oxford would not have been wiped out," the speaker asserted.

Answering the question, "Why isn't South Oxford represented at this session?" Mr. King said that there was a feeling in some persons that they would rather have someone boss them than think for themselves. It was the trend toward dictatorship. The people of South Oxford now had the opportunity of saying what they thought about such a system.

A Hard-Won Privilege

"It is important that our parliaments be kept representative because we are getting farther and farther away from that ideal. It was that right of representation of the people that the pioneers and leaders of the past fought for in this country," Mr. King continued.

Turning to Mr. Bennett's pre-election promises, the Liberal chieftain declared that the two main ones on which he secured election were that he would give work, not the dole, and that he would provide markets for Canadian products. He had

BENNETT FAVORS EARLY REVISION OF B.N.A. ACT FOR SOCIAL LEGISLATION

But Does Not Intend To Make Start At It Until After Election

EULER SUGGESTS NEW COMMISSION

Former Minister Would Study Co-Ordination Of Social Legislation Under Central Authority

Canadian Press Despatch

Ottawa, April 11.—Premier R. B. Bennett favors early revision of the British North America Act, Canada's written constitution, to permit the Dominion to take wider control of social legislation, he told the House of Commons today. But he intimated he didnot intend to make a start in that direction until after the next election.

Euler Suggests Commission

Interrupting a leisurely debate on the government unemployment relief bill, Hon. W. D. Euler, former Liberal minister of national revenue, threw out a suggestion for a commission to study co-ordination of social legislation under a central authority. He proposed unemployment insurance, old age pensions, health insurance, workmen's compensation, widows' allowances and poor relief under Dominion administration.

Would Necessitate Revision

A social legislation set-up on the Euler plan would necessitate revision of the British North America Act, noted the Prime Minister, because the provinces at confederation were given this jurisdiction.

"There is not the slightest doubt in the world," continued the Prime Minister, while members discarded their newspapers and sat upright in their seats, "that unless there is a rearrangement of the powers of parliament and the legislatures of the provinces, in the very nature of things, the problem cannot be dealt with."

Says Commission Unnecessary

A commission to study co-ordination of social legislation was unnecessary, the Prime Minister said. The Government already had all the information it needed. "If I have the jurisdiction I need nothing further in the way of information. I say that very frankly because we have spent enormous efforts and considerable time and patience to see that information is available.

"All I can usefully say at this time is that I hold a very strong opinion as to the necessity of an early revision of the provisions of the B. N. A. Act. . . . I need not go further except to say that we recognize the difficulty and any steps we may take

S. HURON PROGRESSIVE CONVENTION APRIL 16

Goderich, Ont., April 11.—Progressives of South Huron have called a convention for Monday, April 16, at Hensall, when it is expected that W. G. Medd, of Exter, Progressive member in the last legislature, will again be chosen. The Progressive Association declares its willingness, in a published advertisement to appear in the newspapers of the constituency this week, to co-operate with "all those opposed to the Henry administration."

'KIDNAPPING' HOAX CLARKSON ADMITS

Toronto Youth Found At Byron Not Abducted Father Tells Police

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 11.—Police tonight abandoned their investigation of a story by Curzon, Trinity College student, that he had been kidnapped and taken to London, after the youth's father, F. C. Clarkson, told them the story was a hoax.

Police said Mr. Clarkson told them his son was suffering from overwrought nerves, induced by worry over examinations and that he believed he had invented the story after driving to London himself and realizing he must explain his absence from homb.

Young Clarkson, 18, appeared about two o'clock this morning at Byron Sanatorium, eight miles northwest of London, and told authorities there he had been kidnapped. He was wet and cold. Police started to investigate his story that he had been seized as he sat in his car in Toronto.

They found the car in a gully about half a mile from the Sanatorium.

KITCHENER MAN INJURED BY FALLING PLATE GLASS

Kitchener, April 11.—When a piece of plate glass twenty by sixteen inches fell five feet at the Tait Glass Co. here, it struck William Pratt squarely on the top of the head, inflicting serious injuries. Examination at the Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital revealed that his scalp had been cut to the skull from one side to the other requiring many stitches to close the wound. An X-Ray examination showed luckily that no particles of glass had become imbedded in the skull as was at first feared.

Dust Storms Blot Out Sun

Associated Press Despatch

Lincoln, Neb., April 11.—Dust whipped from dry prairies by a northern gale made today a black Wednesday in a large mid-western area. Clouds of dirt and sand enveloped much of South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota and Iowa, threatening damage to winter wheat and in one locality driving highway travelers back to town. The sun was blotted out in many districts.

MISS LAPOINTE ASSERTS BENNETT FOUR YEARS LATE

Startling Works Program That Should Have Begun When He Took Office

PRE-ELECTION BAIT

Provincial Officers Also Address Enthusiastic Twentieth Century Club Rally Here

Liberalism's greatest task today is the accomplishment of economic liberty for the people of Canada, Miss Odette Lapointe, of Quebec, president of the Women's section of the Federation of Twentieth Century Clubs of Canada told an enthusiastic and overcrowded meeting in Hyman Hall last night. The meeting was held under the auspices of the local Twentieth Century Clubs.

The talented young speaker, who is the daughter of the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice, was accompanied to London by Miss Patricia O'Connell, of Brockville, secretary of the Women's section of the Ontario Twentieth Century Clubs, Mr. H. A. MacDougall, of Woodstock, president of the Men's section of the Federation of Twentieth Century Clubs of Canada, and Mr. Donald Begg, of St. Thomas, president of the Men's section, of the Twentieth Century Clubs of Ontario. Mayer Lerner, of London, provincial vice-president, acted as chairman.

Bennett Four Years Late

"Conservative leadership has not done one thing to bring about economic liberty in Canada," said Miss Lapointe, pointing to the past four years.

"Mr. Bennett did nothing for the unemployed through most of his term of office. Now in the last minute he comes forward with a program of work that should have been started four years ago. If it had been done then, men with money might have followed the government's example. Canada's workingmen might have had work, and better spending power." She placed the recent government program in the category of pre-election bait.

"Young people of Canada have all the instruments necessary for a change of order, in their hands," said Miss Lapointe, continuing. She said they could move Canada's wheat to export markets, they could open Canada's factories, they could once more guarantee Canada's workingmen work, and money with which to buy the things they need, for themselves and for their families. And they had the power in their hands with which to obtain capable government for the country, if they would but think for themselves, and decided for themselves.

Aim to Interest Young Voters

"Young men and young women should take an active interest in the affairs of their country" she said. "It was to make this possible, and to en-

Fire-Fighting Apparatus At Hunt Mill Inadequate Is Inquest Jury Verdict

Find Also That Fire Inspection Not Properly Carried Out

FIRE DEPARTMENT'S WORK COMMENDED

Long List Of Witnesses Testify At Resumed Inquest Last Night

A coroner's jury, sitting at the King street police station until after 1 o'clock this morning, returned a verdict that District Chief Stanley Scruby of the London Fire Department came to his death in the fire at the Hunt Mill on March 3 as the result of burns and suffocation sustained while in the performance of his duty as a fireman.

The jury added two riders to the verdict. "We are of the opinion that the inspection for fire preventative purposes was not adequate, and that the mill fire equipment was not in proper condition."

Praise Firemen

The jury's verdict was also to the effect that the members wished to commend the action of the London Fire Department, particularly Lieut. Robert Barnes whose presence of mind was responsible for saving his comrades' lives.

The jury had reference to the actions of Lieut. Barnes who leaped from a window, clutched the top rung of the aerial ladder and as he did so noticed some of his comrades hanging to the window sills of upper floors. He shouted to the men on the ground to spread the life nets for them to jump into. From the ground it was almost impossible to see the men on the window sills owing to the dense clouds of smoke that were issuing from the upper story windows.

8 Witnesses Called

Eight witnesses were called by Crown Attorney A. M. Judd, K.C., last night, while five others testified at the opening session a week ago. Last night's sitting commenced at 8 o'clock and the jury did not reach a verdict until 1.15 o'clock this morning.

The highlights of last night's evidence were provided by members of the London Fire Department who were in the burning mill when their two comrades lost their lives. They told of trying to reach safety through blinding smoke and of jumping from the sixth floor through a smoke screen to the life nets below. One told of leaping from a window to catch the top rung of the aerial ladder, while others told of crawling on their hands and knees through smoke filled floors of the building.

Architect Describes Plans

J. N. Watt, architect of this city, told the jury the original plans of the building were drawn-up in March, 1917 by the firm of Watt and Blackwell. He said the north section of the building had two fire doors on each floor. He said the building was of re-inforced concrete skeleton with exterior panels of brick with large wood frames and sashes. "When the building was nearly completed we were requested to send a set of blue prints to the Department of Labor," he said. As far as I know these were approved by the Department.

The first fire at the Hunt Mill occurred on December 30, 1924. Mr. Watt stated that on the fifth floor there was no fire door at the stairway and the only opening would be through the elevator providing the elevator was at that floor. On the plans, the floors were of modern construction and the only concrete sections were over the boiler-room and the vault.

Witness said he was not associated with the reconstruction of the mill after the 1924 fire.

L. & P. S. PLANS BIG IMPROVEMENT

Include Construction Of $100,000 Drawbridge And A New Dock

CONFERENCE HELD

Commission Also Discusses With Village Council Adequate Protection Of Bathers

Ambitious plans which suggest the construction of a new $100,000 draw bridge, the building of a new dock, and the further establishment of coal interests at Port Stanley, were tentatively discussed and mapped last night at the port, at a joint meeting of the L. & P. S. commission and the Port Stanley Village Council.

Building of a lift bridge to replace the present stationary structure spanning Kettle Creek near the railway station, was stressed as the key project for which the commission and council would strive. Instead of repairs to the structure now standing, for which the provincial government has already signified its willingness to share in the cost, attention will now be directed towards obtaining an entirely new bridge.

Will Help Western Ontario

Should the plan succeed, Mayor George A. Wenige stated last night he believed the project would have a direct bearing on Western Ontario. Construction of the bridge, the mayor believed, would be followed by the building of a new dock; greater facilities for lake vessels would be created, and further inducement held out for oil and coal concerns to use the port as their base and shipping centre.

To Protect Bathers

Apart from building plans advanced with a view to placing Port Stanley "on the map" as a live lake port, the joint meeting decided upon measures of protection for swimmers this summer. Authorization was given the proposal to place life preservers at every 300 feet along the lake front. Additional plans for the employment this summer of life guards and the placing of lifeboats at strategic points along the waterfront were also mooted and held over for further consideration.

The London commissioners were banquetted at the Orion Hotel last night by the village council. From

A.W. CUTTEN CITED OVER GRAIN SALES

Former Guelph Man Charged With Concealing And Falsifying Records

SECRETARY WALLACE ACTS AFTER STUDY

If Charges Prove True Markets Will Be Barred To Wealthy Operator

Associated Press Despatch

Washington, April 11—Arthur W. Cutten, a native of Guelph, Ont., was charged today by United States Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace with failure to file reports of short sales and making false reports to the grain futures administration to manipulate grain prices.

The Secretary cited the Chicago grain trader to appear on May 14 for a hearing at Chicago. Seth. Thomas, soliciter for the Department of Agriculture, said if the charges were substantiated an order would be issued directing all contract markets to refuse trading privileges to Cutten.

The citation said Cutten "conspired and colluded" with firms and persons on the Chicago Board of Trade "to conceal his trading and position in the market" an to so "make inaccurate, incorrect and false reports of his position in the market."

Big Dealings

During 1930 and 1931, the complaint declared, Cutten sold wheat futures in excess of 100,000,000 bushels. It is said that during 1930 he sold wheat futures short in excess of 37,000,000 bushels and in 1931 was short in excess of 56,000,000 bushels.

He had "an open position in the market on 482 trading days during the years 1930 and 1931 and he was short of these days" and during the period covered by these operations "the price of wheat futures on the board of trade declined from $1.34⅝ per bushel for the July future on Jan. 2, 1930, to 56¼ cents per bushel for the July future on Dec. 31, 1931, a decline of more than 78 cents per bushel.

The citation said that Cutten, in order to cover up his transactions "caused and procured various grain firms and persons by and through whom his trades on the Board of Trade were made, to keep false records and to make false reports to the grain futures administration.

Concealed Trades?

"Respondent caused said persons and firms to split and divide his account into several sections and to carry the same under various names and symbols and by this means concealed and covered up his trades," it added.

During the two years Cutten was declared to have "attempted to manipulate the price of grain" by means of false reports and false records kept by those handling his "dummy" accounts.

Wallace said at his weekly press conference Cutten was the man "who had articles in a weekly magazine of large circulation," arguing for unrestricted markets and complaining about regulations imposed by the Government.

He added that Cutten was "one of the great supporters of the law of supply and demand" and had "viewed with alarm the operations of the agricultural ajustment administration."

Cutten left Guelph when he was 20 and acted as a trader and bookkeeper for a grain firm for two more decades before he went into business for himself in 1904. Rarely does he verify, deny or embellish the stories of his coups in the wheat pit which float about Chicago. But in 1925 he paid the biggest income tax of any individual in the district—$540,00.

Cutten is now 64.

READY TO ADMIT RUSSIA TO LEAGUE

Ground Prepared At Geneva By Little Entente And Soviet Delegates

Associated Press Cable

Geneva, April 11.—The ground was reported prepared today for the admission of Russia to the League of Nations.

Nicholas Titulescu of Rumania conmerred at length with Dr. Eduoard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, and Boris Stein of Russia concerning the recognition of the Soviets by the Little Entente and during the discussions they took up the entire Russian problem, it was understood.

The impression in league circles tonight was that Russia is waiting for an invitation to join the league and hopes that additional countries will extend recognition. It was regarded likely that the Soviets will not make a decision until such recognition is forthcoming.

Mr. Bennett To Be First Speaker In Debate at Brownsville Tonight But Premier Does Not Know It Yet

Special to the Advertiser

(By Staff Reporter)

Tillsonburg, April 11.—Premier Bennett is going to be the first speaker in a debate Thursday night but he does not know it yet. It will take place at Brownsville though Mr. Bennett will be in Ottawa.

Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Ontario Liberal leader, who is taking an active part in the South Oxford federal by-election, announced the plan tonight The Tories have made much ado about Mr. Bennett's appeal to South Oxford electors which is to be broadcast Thursday from eight to eight forty-five.

"We want everybody to hear the Premier," says Mr. Hepburn, "so we have arranged to have a radio platform at Brownsville tomorrow night. The chairman will say a few words and then he will introduce Mr. Bennett who will speak for forty-five minutes. But the meeting won't be over then. Mr. R. J. Deachman and myself are then going to take Mr. Mennett's arguments and expose them. It will be some show." The Liberals have arranged the rally in Brownsville in support of A. S. Rennie.

type" windows in the building. He said they were of the steel-sash type which he thought would be harder to make an escape through than the ordinary wooden type.

T. C. McBride, city building inspector was the next witness. He said the permit for reconstruction was taken out an June 24, 1927 and the contract was given to Joseph Creighton, local contractor. He explained he did not personally keep in touch with the work but that duty was carried out by two assistants.

"The city engineer stated that the Hunt Milling Co. were going to have expert engineers on the job and we would not have to bother much in the check-up on the reconstruction job," said Mr. McBride. "The building was to be reconstructed along similar lines as prior to the fire. Unless there is anything found to be wrong the inspectors do not make a report, other than leave a memo of the date of the visit."

Would Not Investigate

"Would you not investigate if it had been reported fire doors were blocked or the mill part moved from the south to the north of the building?" asked Mr. Judd.

"Not particularly as it didn't make any difference in the construction of the building," he replied.

"Did you ever receive any report from these expert engineers?"

"No."

"Have you any report of any of the changes made in the reconstruction in 1927?"

"No."

"Do you know the names of these expert engineers?" "No."

"What does the examination by your assistants call for?"

"Structural construction."

"Were you informed by your assistants that the reconstruction plans did not correspond with the original plans as approved by the Department of Labor?" "Did your inspectors not notice that? notice that?"

No Report from Assistants

Witness then admitted there was no report from his assistants whether or not the building came within the city bylaw. He also said he had never inspected the mill.

"Is there co-operation between your department and the fire chief?"

"Yes," replied witness.

"What is the bylaw regarding fire escapes?"

"They must be placed when ordered by either the fire chief or building inspector."

"Was this ever suggested for the mill?"

"No."

Mr. McBride then explained that the closing of a fire-door is often a "betterment" to a building, but to open a fire door a permit must be secured.

"Did you ever consider, as building inspector, that fire escapes should be placed on the building?"

Work of Fire Inspectors

"That is the work of the fire inspectors. I do not go around unless the fire chief tells me about it. It is then a case for a joint decision. It did not occurr to me and no suggestion was ever made to me by the fire chief," concluded witness.

Chief Charles Scott of the London Fire Department was called to the stand at this point. He stated the fire in 1924 started in the south section of the building known as the mill end with a total loss to the building. He said he was never consulted regarding any changes of the mill end being moved from the south to the north when the building was reconstructed. "I had the late District Chief Scruby and District Chief Haylock of No. 2 station inspect the mill so they would be familiar with the building, because I knew they would be the first to reach the scene if fire broke out again."

Chief Scott stated that from records of Scruby and Haylock, dated November 17, 1932, the fire door on the sixth floor was dragging; the one on the fifth should be fixed; shavings should be cleaned from the fifth floor and the furnace room was ordered to be cleaned.

"We often discussed how we would fight another fire in the mill and that is how it was fought on March 3," he continued.

Hears Some Are Trapped

"When I arrived on the sixth floor the smoke was pretty thick, but not enough to stop the firemen from working. The firemen had used a hose line but when I arrived there the hose was on the floor with the water line turned off. We were confident the fire was under control and George Smithson asked it it would be better to let out some of the smoke. As I stepped to the fire door I noticed a little smoke coming from the "endless elevator" so I started for the fifth floor. I asked a mill hand to take me to the fire door on the fifth floor and he told me I would have to go down to the fourth floor. As I was on the stairway, two firemen rushed past me and yelled that some of the boys were trapped in the smoke on the sixth floor and they were going for gas and smoke helmets. I then ordered a water line for the fifth floor to stop any fire which might trap the men on the top floor," stated Chief Scott.

Chief Scott then told the jury of he and firemen fighting the fire on the fourth floor until they had to make their escape down an aerial ladder. "When I reached the ground I was told two of the men had been trapped," he said.

Closed Fire Doors No Hinderance

"The aerial ladders would not reach the sixth floor but only would reach the sills of the fifth floor windows," he continued. "As far as my opinion goes the closing of the fire doors was not a hindrance to the department and a closed wall is always better for a building in case of fire.

"I think the fire was conveyed from one floor to another in the conveyers of grain in the wooden boxes, which would cause light explosions when flames hit the gasses.

"I would like to say there can be no reflection on the fire department, either as to inspections or as to how they fought the flames. I was proud of the men."

All Equipment Out

"How about the equipment on the London Department?" asked Coroner Dr. Wilson.

"We had every available piece of apparatus on the scene and with the exception of longer aerial ladders, the equipment was sufficient. It is the first time they have ever been found too short and I do not think we need longer ladders. The water pressure was sufficient that night."

Was First on Scene

Alfred Leesan, a city fireman, still walking with a cane, from injuries received at the fire, a member of the late District Scruby's Company, said he was one of the first firemen on the scene. He told of seeing a little white smoke from a window on the sixth floor, and of receiving orders from Chief Scruby to take up a hand extinguisher while the others brought up a hose line. "The fire was in the ceiling at the north-west corner on the sixth floor," he said. "There did not appear to be any danger at that time.

This Blaze Was Checked

"This blaze was checked but then one of the chutes, near the ceiling, appeared to be ablaze. The smoke then became very thick and other firemen started to cough from the gasses. We couldn't see a thing. I said to Chief Scruby, "Come on Chief, we're trapped." He said, "all right." We started and I fell down the stairway and Chief Scruby fell on top of me.

After the fall to the fifth floor we found the smoke and gas first as bad as on the sixth. We started for the windows and I thought Chief Scruley was right behind me. When I found he was not there at the window with me I figured he had taken the fire door on the fifth floor.

Everything Went Black

"The aerial ladder was at the fifth floor and along with other firemen I went down the ladder. I went back into the building and as I was on the stairs at the fourth floor everything went black and I was carried out. I suffered a fractured hip and pelvis."

"Could you have followed the hose line from the sixth floor when the smoke filled the room?" asked Mr. Judd.

"No," he replied. "It was lying over bags and machinery."

Black Smoke Obscures View

Reginald Walters of No. 4 fire station said he could recognize the different firemen when he first entered the mill. "A few minutes later black smoke filled the sixth floor and I could not see anything. I crawled on my hands and kneese towards a window and I broke a pane and crawled out to the sill. I was almost overcome by the smoke. I looked down and saw Lieut. Barnes hanging on the second top rung of the aerial ladder. He saw me standing on the sill and he shouted below for a life net. I then heard the crowd shouting for me to jump so I leaped and landed in the net.

Lieut. Hartop At Window

"As I got to the window I felt a man's leg. I spoke to him and it was Lieut Hartop. He said to me "we cannot get out."

"He seemed to be trying to get out of the building but I could not see him. I knew it was Lieut. Hartop by his voice.

Crowls on Hands and Knees

"When I first reached the sixth floor the fire was pretty well out" said Fireman Norman Wight, the next witness. "When the thick smoke came into the storey I told Chief Scruley we had better go. He said he knew the way, and went ahead on hands and knees to the fire door We could not see each other. I did not see Lieut. Hartop.

I finally reached a window where I heard Lieut. Hartop. He appeared to be leaning out the transom. I got out of the window and I heard Lieut. Hartop calling for help.

"It was hard to see the life-net on the ground because of the smoke pouring from the windows. Somebody hollered to jump. I looked around, saw no person near me, so I leaped for the net."

Leaps for Ladder

Lieut. Robert Barnes of No. 1 Company said he heard Fireman Smithson shout, "We're trapped," when the smoke got so thick he could not see where he was going. "I went to the fourth floor where the smoke was thicker. I broke a window and got to the sill. I saw the aerial ladder and jumped and caught the top rung as it swung past the window. I looked up, saw other men on the upper windows and shouted to those below to get a life-net," he said.

Supervised Reconstruction

Joseph Albert Beechie, vice-president and general manager of the Hunt mill was the last witness called. He said he had seen the original set of plans. "I had charge of the reconstruction of the mill and secured the permit for the building," he said. "I did not tae any plans to the building inspector. The engineers were of the William and J. G. Gray Co., of Toronto, and I believe the boss of the job was Angus Kennedy. Mr. Creighton only had to do with the floors."

Not Submitted to Dept.

Mr. Beechie admitted the plans for the reconstruction, including tae closing of the fire walls, had not been submitted to the Dept. of Labor or the building inspector. He said the charges were made when they were found necessary for the operation of the business. He said it would only have cost $10 or $15 to open the fire door on the fifth floor. "I would have been glad of a suggestion to do so," he said.

Believed Door Working

In continuing he said he was of the opinion the fire door on the fifth floor was in working order.

"We were never asked to put the water stand pipes in operation," he continued "we had two chemical fire extinguishers with regulation water pails, etc. We were commended for the way they were kept."

"By whom"?

"Our Insurance agent."

"Did you ever make any uncomplimentary remarks to the fire department officials who went to the mill to make inspections?"

"Never."

"That is all, thank you."

The inquest opened in the city police station a week ago when five witnesses were examined by Crown Attorney Albert M. Judd, K.C. Critically Hurt In Truck Mishap

Special to The Advertiser

Woodstock, April 11.—Marie Pearson, aged 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pearson, East Zorra, is in Woodstock General Hospital in a critical condition, suffering from internal injuries caused when the wheel of a loaded milk truck passed over her body.

The girl had been in the habit of riding to school in the truck with Charles Leiford. This morning Leiford stopped for Marie, but started to go on without her. He felt one wheel pass over a bump and heard a shriek. Stopping, he found the girl on the road. Tonight her condition was reported critical.

toward the solution of the difficulty will be taken in such a way as not to strain the existing mechanism."

Have Necessary Information

A few minutes later the Prime Minister returned to the subject to repeat that the Government had all the information it needed to assume control of social legislation. "But we have not yet approached the problem of amending the B. N. A. Act. That is in the offing and I suppose that in the course of human events and when an indulgent and grateful electorate have honored us with their support, we may be able to make such changes as may be necessary."

The House devoted the half day to discussion of the unemployment relief bill without progress made. For the most part, Liberals inquired into the guarantees given industrial firms under the bill last year, particularly those to the Algoma Steel Corporation in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, Sydney, N. S. The guarantees were defended warmly by Government supporters as being necessary to reopen the plants and provide work in the two cities.

courage it that the Twentieth Century Clubs were formed. Politics is a difficult science, and it takes a great deal of study Though the Twentieth Century Clubs try to help elect members of the Liberal party, this is not the primary purpose of their being. The main purpose is to create sound public opinion, and to give expression to this opinion at our national conventions."

Miss Lapoite said that apart from criticizing politicians for the present mess Canada is in, young Canadians would blame themselves for allowing the politicians now in power to run the country.

Visiting Officers Speak

Each of the three visiting officers of the Twentieth Century Clubs also spoke. Mr. MacDougall, who preceded Miss Lapointe, gave a splendid address in which he stressed the fact that the association of Twentieth Century Clubs was started by the young people, financed by the young people, and was not a minor organization in a political machine.

"There is a newer organization—the young Conservative Association, in the field of young organizations. But we are afraid it is only an election organization. Its convention at Toronto recently was called by a cabinet minister—the Hon. Leopold Macauley I'm afraid they haven't the financial independence the Twentieth Century Clubs have. In reality the Young Conservative Association is only a minor cog in the Tory machine."

Young Conservatives Warned

He quoted from a Toronto morning conservative paper in which a report of the flaying criticism administered to the Young Conservative Association at the Newmarket "school" last summer was carried. He specially stressed the quotations setting forth that the Conservative politicians laid down the law that the Young Conservative Association were under no circumstances to interfere with "long constituted and capable authority."

"Our Twentieth Century Clubs are not along those lines. Our first aim is to foster and guide the political education of the young people of Canada; the second aim is to get young people acquainted with one another; in other words to meet social needs; the third aim is to co-operate with our senior Liberal leaders and to secure election of Liberal members to the House of Commons.

Challenge Is Refused

"We issued a challenge to the Young Conservative Association to debate," said Mr. MacDougall. "The subject was: "Resolved that Canada would make more rapid progress with Liberal policies than through Conservative policies," he said. They refused flatly. Then we suggested a debate, and asked them to pick out a single issue, for instance the tariff question, and again it was refused. They asked if a subject like the Empire Preference would be suitable, and we agreed it would be. But even that was then refused.

"Now we are getting ready to send them another invitation to debate provincial issues. If that too is refused we will know for certain that they are only a minor cog in a Tory election machine."

Have Helped Clubs in East

Miss O'Connell in a brief talk said that the Twentieth Century Clubs in the east had much for which to thank the clubs in this part of Ontario. "The basis on which you formed your clubs has been of great assistance to us in organizing ours in the East," she said.

She said youth should be made to realize its tremendous responsibility of citizenship. The Twentieth Century Clubs were doing a great deal to achieve this. "Many valuable ideas are lost because young people are afraid to come forward and give expression to them," she said. "Don't be afraid," she said.

Donald Begg, who was the first speaker said he had been reported as disagreeing with Premier Henry who said that the governments should be run the same as farms or businesses.

Did Not Disagree

"I didn't disagree. In fact I agreed heartily," he said. "What I said was that Mr. Henry should run his government that way, instead of increasing the debt. You can't keep on increasing debt on a farm or a business or a government, day after day, and not run into bankruptcy." He said Mr. Henry was claiming a surplus of $470,000 when in reality Ontario's debt had increased $38,000,000. He closed with a strong plea to that "get-together" meeting is expected to arise shortly a general conference of the councils of London, St. Thomas, and Port Stanley, and the Elgin County council. It is proposed to have the meeting in London. At it will be definitely shaped, the course to be followed in connection with the plans discussed last night.

Government to Share Cost

Speaking of the bridge project, the mayor said, "The government has already promised to share in the cost of repairing the Kettle Creek bridge to the extent of $25,000. "We all might as well spend a little more and get a new structure, repairs alone won't do."

Supplying of lifeguard and boat protection to swimmers, regarded as a certainty, arises, the mayor said, from concern evidenced following last year's triple drowning tragedy. He believed proper facilities for providing the bather with protection would encourage swimming at the port.

Pioneer Feminist Is 80 Years Old

Took Up Public Life After Family Of Seven Grew Up

Canadian Press Despatch

Montreal, April. — Mrs. John Scott, pioneer feminist and the "grand little old Lady of Quebec" has entered upon her 80th year and is still going strong. Just a week before her recent birthday she addressed two meetings in one day. In her up-to-date apartment she lives as independently and capably as a modern bachelor girl. She has not forgotten the art of cooking either, for her Scotch scones and marmalade are a treat.

The name of Isabella Scott will go down in history as one of the leaders who began the women's suffrage movement in the province of Quebec. During election campaigns she was a popular speaker.

Mrs. Scott delights in recalling the story of her Scottish father and mother and 12 brothers and sisters, of whom she was the oldest, travelling from Glasgow in 1874 and settling in Scotstown, Quebec. In this country she met a young Scotsman who strangely enough had been born within four miles of Glasgow, and eventually married him. Seven little Canadians were born to them and in those days "I had no time then for questions of suffrage," said Mrs. Scott with a twinkle in her eye as she unfolded her story to an interviewer.

"My husband was Mayor of Scotstown, chairman of the school board, ruling elder in the church, telegraph operating station agent and the keeper of a general store, and in our spare time we attended the weekly prayer meeting and the meeting of the Christian Endeavor."

Mrs. Scott and her family came to Montreal in 1905 and as time went on and her children became less dependent on her she gradually became interested in public life.

CAPITOL THEATRE ATTRACTS CROWDS

Warner Bros. "Wonder Bar" Is Really Wonderful Musical Spectacle

To write a "rave" review of "Wonder Bar," the sensational new Warner Brothers, musical now in its second half week at the Capitol Theatre, would involve simple flips of the typewriter keys. It is easy to get excited over something that's worth getting excited about, and "Wonder Bar" is just such a motion picture.

The cast is headed by Al Jolson, and includes Kay Francis, Dolores del Rio, Ricardo Cortez, Dick Powell, Hal LeRoy, Ruth Donnelly, Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert, Fifi D'Orsay, Henry Kolker, Mia Ichioka, Pat Wing, Clay Clement and many others whose names are known wherever bright lights flicker and gay throngs pay big prices for seats. The proof of the show, so they say, is in the cast and the "Wonder Bar" aggregation of famous players guarantees the quality. Add to this the fact that Warner Brothers aimed to make the picture one of the most lavish to every come out of Hollywood, the fact that Busby Berkeley arranged the dances, and the fact that the piece surpasses the past triumphs of the same producers in the musical film field—and this includes "Footlight Parade," "Gold Diggers of 1933," "42nd Street," and others, and you have the reasons why this picture is proving popular in London. The dancing chorus of 400 of Hollywood's prettiest might be listed as an additional reason. The popular songs, such as the title number "Wonder Bar," the Del Rio Tango and a half a dozen more, are other reasons.

All in all "Wonder Bar" is an unusually lavish musical picture, is sure-fire entertainment, and will chase care away from any evening. Film fans in London are advised to try it. Western thrill novelties, a news reel, and a cartoon comedy, "Popeye the Sailor" complete the excellent bill.

THRILLS, ROMANCE IN PALACE FILM

"Blind Adventure" With Superb Cast Delights Opening Day Audiences

Amazingly different in plot and as exciting as it is original, "Blind Adventure" which had its first London showing at the Palace Theatre yesterday provides entertainment of the spine-tingling variety blended with generous portions of hilarity and romance. The picture pleased a near-capacity audience yesterday.

Excellent performances from a strong cast headed by Robert Armstrong, Helen Mack and Roland Young enhance the plot of "Blind Adventure." An adventurous young American, astray in a typical London fog is involved in extraordinary adventures with a living "dead man," a British army officer and his beautiful niece, and blackmailing spies seeking information from the officer. "The "dead man" instructs the American take the girl to a certain house where they will find her real uncle. The pair flee across London roof tops and meet a timid burglar whom they enlist for his professional services. They reach the address and find themselves hostages of blackmailers who will liberate them only when they secure military information. The exciting thrills and endless laughs culminate in an ingeniously conceived climax abounding in action. Robert Armstrong is thoroughly virile and realistic in his role of the adventure seeking American. Miss Mack convincingly portrays the heroine. The supporting cast is above average and consists of John Miljan, Laura Hope Crews, Henry Stephenson, Phyllis Barry and several others.

The picture is a story of criminal daring, crowded with laughter, love and thrills. It is well worth seeing. On the same bill are Clark and McCullough in the comedy hit "Hey Nanny Nanny," and a musical comedy "The Picture Palace" and a clever cartoon "Rye."

FORMER RIDGETOWN RESIDENT

Ridgetown, April 11.—Word was received here today by Gordon Craig of the death of his uncle, William Craig in Chicago, on Monday. He was a brother of the late Thomas Craig of Ridgetown and was in business here for about ten years before moving to Chicago. He was born in Bristol, Que., 1853 and came to Ridgetown with his brother John R., 56 years ago and the two brothers operated a general store where the McIrwine garage now stands. Ten years later the business was purchased by Thomas Craig and William moved to Chicago.

He is survived by two brothers, John R. in Cleveland, Rev. David Craig at Davidson Sask. and by one contract was given to Joseph Creighton, local contractor. He explained he did not personally keep in touch with the work but that duty was carried out by two assistants.

"The city engineer stated that the Hunt Milling Co. were going to have expert engineers on the job and we would not have to bother much in the check-up on the reconstruction job," said Mr. McBride. "The building was to be reconstructed along similar lines as prior to the fire. Unless there is anything found to be wrong the inspectors do not make a report, other than leave a memo of the date of the visit."

Would Not Investigate

"Would you not investigate if it had been reported fire doors were blocked or the mill part moved from the south to the north of the building?" asked Mr. Judd.

"Not particularly as it didn't make any difference in the construction of the building," he replied.

"Did you ever receive any report from these expert engineers?"

"No."

"Have you any report of any of the changes made in the reconstruction in 1927?"

"No."

"Do you know the names of these expert engineers?" "No."

"What does the examination by your assistants call for?"

"Structural construction."

"Were you informed by your assistants that the reconstruction plans did not correspond with the original plans as approved by the Department of Labor?" "Did your inspectors not notice that?"

"Did you notice that?"

No Report from Assistants

Witness then admitted there was no report from his assistants whether or not the building came within the city bylaw. He also said he had never inspected the mill.

"Is there co-operation between your department and the fire chief?"

"Yes," replied witness.

"What is the bylaw regarding fire escapes?"

"They must be placed when ordered by either the fire chief or building inspector."

"Was this ever suggested for the mill?"

"No."

Mr. McBride then explained that the closing of a fire-door is often a "betterment" to a building, but to open a fire door a permit must be secured.

"Did you ever consider, as building inspector, that fire escapes should be placed on the building?"

Work of Fire Inspectors

"That is the work of the fire inspectors. I do not go around unless the fire chief tells me about it. It is then a case for a joint decision. It did not occurr to me and no suggestion was ever made to me by the fire chief," concluded witness.

Chief Charles Scott of the London Fire Department was called to the stand at this point. He stated the fire in 1924 started in the south section of the building known as the mill end with a total loss to the building. He said he was never consulted regarding any changes of the mill end being moved from the south to the north when the building was reconstructed. "I had the late District Chief Scruby and District Chief Haylock of No. 2 station inspect the mill so they would be familiar with the building, because I knew they would be the first to reach the scene if fire broke out again."

Chief Scott stated that from reis how it was fought on March 3," he continued.

Hears Some Are Trapped

"When I arrived on the sixth floor the smoke was pretty thick, but not enough to stop the firemen from working. The firemen had used a hose line but when I arrived there the hose was on the floor with the water line turned off. We were confident the fire was under control and George Smithson asked it it would be better to let out some of the smoke. As I stepped to the fire door I noticed a little smoke coming from the "endless elevator" so I started for the fifth floor. I asked a mill hand to take me to the fire door on the fifth floor and he told me I would have to go down to the fourth floor. As I was on the stairway, two firemen rushed past me and yelled that some of the boys were trapped in the smoke on the sixth floor and they were going for gas and smoke helmets. I then ordered a water line for the fifth floor to stop any fire which might trap the men on the top floor," stated Chief Scott.

Chief Scott then told the jury of he and firemen fighting the fire on the fourth floor until they had to make their escape down an aerial ladder. "When I reached the ground I was told four of the men had been trapped," he said.

Closed Fire Doors No Hinderance

"The aerial ladders would not reach the sixth floor but only would reach the sills of the fifth floor windows," he continued. "As far as my opinion goes the closing of the fire doors was not a hindrance to the department and a closed wall is always better for a building in case of fire.

"I think the fire was conveyed from one floor to another in the conveyers of grain in the wooden boxes, which would cause light explosions when flames hit the gasses.

"I would like to say there can be no reflection on the fire department, either as to inspections or as to how they fought the flames. I was proud of the men."

All Equipment Out

"How about the equipment on the London Department?" asked Coroner Dr. Wilson.

"We had every available piece of apparatus on the scene and with the exception of longer aerial ladders, the equipment was sufficient. It is the first time they have ever been found too short and I do not think we need longer ladders. The water pressure was sufficient that night."

Was First on Scene

Alfred Leesan, a city fireman, still walking with a cane, from injuries received at the fire, a member of the late District Scruby's Company, said he was one of the first firemen on the scene. He told of seeing a little white smoke from a window on the sixth floor, and of receiving orders from Chief Scruby to take up a hand extinguisher while the others brought up a hose line. "The fire was in the ceiling at the north-west corner on the sixth floor," he said. "There did not appear to be any danger at that time.

This Blaze Was Checked

"This blaze was checked but then one of the chutes, near the ceiling, appeared to be ablaze. The smoke then became very thick and other firemen started to cough from the gasses. We couldn't see a thing. I said to Chief Scruby, "Come on Chief, we're trapped." He said, "all right." We started and I fell down the stairway and Chief Scruby fell on top of me.

After the fall to the fifth floor we found the smoke and gas first as bad as on the sixth. We started for the windows and I thought Chief Scruley was right behind me. When I found he was not there at the window with me I figured he had taken the fire door on the fifth floor.

Everything Went Black

"The aerial ladder was at the fifth floor and along with other firemen I went down the ladder. I went back into the building and as I was on the stairs at the fourth floor everything went black and I was carried out. I suffered a fractured hip and pelvis."

"Could you have followed the hose line from the sixth floor when the smoke filled the room?" asked Mr. Judd.

"No," he replied. "It was lying over bags and machinery."

Black Smoke Obscures View

Reginald Walters of No. 4 fire station said he could recognize the different firemen when he first entered the mill. "A few minutes later black smoke filled the sixth floor and I could not see anything. I crawled on my hands and knees towards a window and I broke a pane and crawled out to the sill. I was almost overcome by the smoke. I looked down and saw Lieut. Barnes hanging on the second top rung of the aerial ladder. He saw me standing on the sill and he shouted below for a life net. I then heard the crowd shouting for me to jump so I leaped and landed in the net.

Lieut. Hartop At Window

"As I got to the window I felt a man's leg. I spoke to him and it was Lieut Hartop. He said to me "we cannot get out."

"He seemed to be trying to get out of the building but I could not see him. I knew it was Lieut. Hartop by his voice.

Crawls on Hands and Knees

"When I first reached the sixth floor the fire was pretty well out" said Fireman Norman Wight, the next witness. "When the thick smoke came into the storey I told Chief Scruley we had better go. He said he knew the way, and went ahead on hands and knees to the fire door. We could not see each other. I did not see Lieut. Hartop.

"I finally reached a window where I heard Lieut. Hartop. He appeared to be leaning out the transom. I got out of the window and I heard Lieut. Hartop calling for help.

"It was hard to see the life-net on the ground because of the smoke pouring from the windows, Somebody hollered to jump. I looked around, saw no person near me, so I leaped for the net."

"I went to the fourth floor where the smoke was thicker. I broke a window and got to the sill. I saw the aerial ladder and jumped and caught the top rung as it swung past the window. I looked up, saw other men on the upper windows and shouted to those below to get a life-net," he said.

Opened Last Week

The inquest opened in the city police station a week ago when five witnesses were examined by Crown Attorney Albert M. Judd, K.C. They were Dr. Gordon Jepson who performed the post mortem and who declared the firemen died from carbon-monoxide gas and suffocation, and received their burns after they were either dead or unconscious; Harry Privett, 459 Nightingale avenue, foreman at the Hunt Mill for the past 19 years; George DuMeresq, 180 Broughdale avenue, head miller; V. McKillop, of the City Engineer's Department who told of the water pressure on the night of the fire, and a local photographer who produced pictures of the scene of the double fatality.

After the five witnesses had been heard, Coroner Dr. J. Cameron Wilson adjourned the hearing for one week. The jury is composed of Robert Straithdee, foreman James Ross, Hugh Wills, Sidney Marsh, George Mitchell, Eugene Storey, Thomas Levett, Edward Dunn and Fred Wardle. W. B. Henderson, K.C., is acting on behalf of the owners of the Hunt Mill.

Last week it was brought out in evidence that some of the fire doors had been bricked up; that the water stand pipes on the fourth and sixth floors were out of service; that no hose line was attached to the water stand pipe on the fourth floor and the pipe had been white-washed over. It was also brought out that some of the windows on the sixth floor had been shut for the winter and two had been tied with wire for the season.

He specially stressed the quotations setting forth that the Conservative politicians laid down the law that the Young Conservative Association were under no circumstances to interfere with "long constituted and capable authority."

"Our Twentieth Century Clubs are not along those lines. Our first is to foster and guide the political education of the young people of Canada; the second aim is to let young people acquainted with one another; in other words to meet social needs; the third aim is to co-operate with our senior Liberal leaders and to secure election of Liberal members to the House of Commons.

Challenge Is Refused

"We issued a challenge to the Young Conservative Association to debate," said Mr. MacDougall. "The subject was: "Resolved that Canada would make more rapid progress with Liberal policies than through Conservative policies," he said. They refused flatly. Then we suggested a debate, and asked them to pick out a single issue, for instance the tariff question, and again it was refused. They asked if a subject like the Empire Preference would be suitable, and we agreed it would be. But even that was then refused.

"Now we are getting ready to send them another invitation to debate provincial issues. If that too is refused we will know for certain that they are only a minor cog in a Tory election machine."

Have Helped Clubs in East

Miss O'Connell in a brief talk said that the Twentieth Century Clubs in the east had much for which to thank the clubs in this part of Ontario. "The basis on which you formed your clubs has been of great assistance to us in organizing ours in the East," she said.

She said youth should be made to realize its tremendous responsibility of citizenship. The Twentieth Century Clubs were doing a great deal to achieve this. "Many valuable ideas are lost because young people are afraid to come forward and give expression to them," she said. "Don't be afraid," she said.

Donald Begg, who was the first speaker said he had been reported as disagreeing with Premier Henry who said that the governments should be run the same as farms or businesses.

Did Not Disagree

"I didn't disagree. In fact I agreed heartily," he said. "What I said was that Mr. Henry should run his government that way, instead of increasing the debt. You can't keep on increasing debt on a farm or a business or a government, day after day, and not run into bankruptcy." He said Mr. Henry was claiming a surplus of $470,000 when in reality Ontario's debt had increased $38,000,000.

He closed with a strong plea to workers in the club to continue their intelligent and enthusiastic work, and to encourage others to join.

Following the meeting a social hour and tea was held, and greatly enjoyed. During the social Miss Norma Kenney delighted the large attendance with selected violin solos, and Miss Jean Campbell gave some greatly appreciated vocal solos.

BISHOP'S WIFE WARNS AGAINST PUTTING CHILD BEFORE THE HUSBAND

Taunton, England, April (CP). — Man should be master of his home, declared Lady Florence Cecil, wife of the Bishop of Exeter, who, at a Mothers' Union Festival at Taunton, warned mothers against putting children before husbands in the home, and added:

"I am early Victorian, and believe in the headship of the husband in the home."

Among temptations that beset women Lady Florence Cecil included temper, nagging, jealousy, untidiness, vanity, conceit and pride.

that "get-together" meeting is expected to arise shortly a general conference of the councils of London, St. Thomas, and Port Stanley, and the Elgin County council. It is proposed to have the meeting in London. At it will be definitely shaped, the course to be followed in connection with the plans discussed last night.

Government to Share Cost

Speaking of the bridge project, the mayor said, "The government has already promised to share in the cost of repairing the Kettle Creek bridge to the extent of $25,000. "We all might as well spend a little more and get a new structure, repairs alone won't do."

Supplying of lifeguard and boat protection to swimmers, regarded as a certainty, arises, the mayor said, from concern evidenced following last year's triple drowning tragedy. He believed proper facilities for providing the bather with protection would encourage swimming at the port.

Pioneer Feminist Is 80 Years Old

Took Up Public Life After Family Of Seven Grew Up

Canadian Press Despatch

Montreal, April. — Mrs. John Scott, pioneer feminist and the "grand little old Lady of Quebec" has entered upon her 80th year and is still going strong. Just a week before her recent birthday she addressed two meetings in one day. In her up-to-date apartment she lives as indepenntly and capably as a modern bachelor girl. She has not forgotten the art of cooking either, for her Scotch scones and marmalade are a treat.

The name of Isabella Scott will go down in history as one of the leaders who began the women's suffrage movement in the province of Quebec. During election campaigns she was a popular speaker.

Mrs. Scott delights in recalling the story of her Scottish father and mother and 12 brothers and sisters, of whom she was the oldest, travelling from Glasgow in 1874 and settling in Scotstown, Quebec. In this country she met a young Scotsman who strangely enough had been born within four miles of Glasgow, and eventually married him. Seven little Canadians were born to them and in those days "I had no time then for questions of suffrage," said Mrs. Scott with a twinkle in her eye as she unfolded her story to an interviewer.

"My husband was Mayor of Scotstown, chairman of the school board, ruling elder in the church, telegraph operating station agent and the keeper of a general store, and in our spare time we attended the weekly prayer meeting and the meeting of the Christian Endeavor."

Mrs. Scott and her family came to Montreal in 1905 and as time went on and her children became less dependent on her she gradually became interested in public life.

ATTRACTS CROWDS

Warner Bros. "Wonder Bar" Is Really Wonderful Musical Spectacle

To write a "rave" review of "Wonder Bar," the sensational new Warner Brothers, musical now in its second half week at the Capitol Theatre, would involve simple flips of the typewriter keys. It is easy to get excited over something that's worth getting excited about, and "Wonder Bar" is just such a motion picture.

The cast is headed by Al Jolson, and includes Kay Francis, Dolores del Rio, Ricardo Cortez, Dick Powell, Hal LeRoy, Ruth Donnelly, Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert, Fifi D'Orsay, Henry O'Neill, Merna Kennedy, Henry Kolker, Mia Ichioka, Pat Wing, Clay Clement and many others whose names are known wherever bright lights flicker and gay throngs pay big prices for seats. The proof of the show, so they say, is in the cast and the "Wonder Bar" aggregation of famous players guarantees the quality. Add to this the fact that Warner Brothers aimed to make the picture one of the most lavish to every come out of Hollywood, the fact that Busby Berkeley arranged the dances, and the fact that the piece surpasses the past triumphs of the same producers in the musical film field—and this includes "Footlight Parade," "Gold Diggers of 1933," "42nd Street," and others, and you have the reasons why this picture is proving popular in London. The dancing chorus of 400 of Hollywood's prettiest might be listed as an additional reason. The popular songs, such as the title number "Wonder Bar," the Del Rio Tango and a half a dozen more, are other reasons.

All in all "Wonder Bar" is an unusually lavish musical picture, is sure-fire entertainment, and will chase care away from any evening. Film fans in London are advised to try it.

Western thrill novelties, a news reel, and a cartoon comedy, "Popeye the Sailor" complete the excellent bill.

THRILLS, ROMANCE IN PALACE FILM

"Blind Adventure" With Superb Cast Delights Opening Day Audiences

Amazingly different in plot and as exciting as it is original, "Blind Adventure" which had its first London showing at the Palace Theatre yesterday provides entertainment of the spine-tingling variety blended with generous portions of hilarity and romance. The picture pleased a near-capacity audience yesterday.

Excellent performances from a strong cast headed by Robert Armstrong, Helen Mack and Roland Young enhance the plot of "Blind Adventure." An adventurous young American, astray in a typical London fog is involved in extraordinary adventures with a living "dead man," a British army officer and his beautiful niece, and blackmailing spies seeking information from the officer.

"The "dead man" instructs the American take the girl to a certain house where they will find her real uncle. The pair flee across London roof tops and meet a timid burglar whom they enlist for his professional services. They reach the address and find themselves hostages of blackmailers who will liberate them only when they secure military information. The exciting thrills and endless laughs culminate in an ingeniously conceived climax abounding in action. Robert Armstrong is thoroughly virile and realistic in his role of the adventure seeking American. Miss Mack convincingly portrays the heroine. The supporting cast is above average and consists of John Miljan, Laura Hope Crews, Henry Stephenson, Phyllis Barry and several others.

The picture is a story of criminal daring, crowded with laughter, love and thrills. It is well worth seeing. On the same bill are Clark and McCullough in the comedy hit "Hey Nanny Nanny," and a musical comedy "The Picture Palace" and a clever cartoon "Rye."

Ridgetown, April 11.—Word was received here today by Gordon Craig of the death of his uncle, William Craig in Chicago on Monday. He was a brother of the late Thomas Craig of Ridgetown and was in business here for about ten years before moving to Chicago. He was born in Bristol, Que., 1853 and came to Ridgetown with his brother John R., 56 years ago and the two brothers operated a general store where the McIrwine garage now stands. Ten years later the business was purchased by Thomas Craig and William moved to Chicago.

He is survived by two brothers, John R. in Cleveland, Rev. David Craig at Davidson, Sask., and by one son, William.

The funeral will be held in Chicago on Thursday.

STEEL INGOT OUTPUT MAKES GAIN IN U. S.

New York, April 11 (AP).—Steel ingot output is up to 49½ per cent. of capacity this week, compared with 48½ per cent. a week ago, "Iron Age" reports, and further gains are looked for in April and May, "barring another outbreak of labor difficulties in the automobile industry."

"The general advance in iron and steel prices," says the publication, "had the effect of driving in an unusually large volume of business." If a strike of the tool and die workers is averted, "Iron Age" believes April output of motor cars will probably exceed 400,000 units.

FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

Halifax, April 11.—A verdict of guilt, with a recommendation for mercy, was returned by a Supreme Court jury this afternoon against Daniel P. Sampson, Halifax negro charged with the murder of 12-year-old Bramwell Hefferman. Sentence was postponed.

Her arms yearned to clasp her only son. But to this loyal son and gallant father, she was but a threatening shadow from a bitter past!

Broke Leg And Dislocated Ankle In Leaving Train At Goldstone

Walkerton, April 11—A jury at Supreme Court sittings of Bruce County presided over by Mr. Justice Kingstone, last night after four hours deliberation, granted $300 damages to Mrs. Mabel Stewart of Gorrie in her suit for unstated damages against the Canadian National Railways. The matter of costs was left to the court.

Mrs. Stewart claimed that on May 20, 1933, while she was travelling from Bluevale to Goldstone, the train was not stopped long enough at the latter place to allow her to alight from the platform of the car, that she was not rendered assistance in stepping on the station platform and the train was restarted without warning, causing her to break her right leg and dislocate her ankle.

promised to call a special session of Parliament to deal with unemployment but other than voting $20,000,000 for six months' relief, that session had achieved only the raising of tariffs against the rest of the world.

Dealing particularly with the $20,000,000 which Mr. Bennett had voted for unemployment relief, Mr. King recalled that during the ten years of the Liberal regime from 1920 to 1930, the entire amount spent for the same purpose was less than $2,000,000.

At the time when Mr. Bennett was obtaining this huge appropriation, Mr. King further recalled, he had urged him that the only way to end unemployment was to encourage trade; that trade could be fostered by reducing the cost of production, not by raising tariffs.

"I said in the House at that time that unemployment had become a national problem. I urged Mr. Bennett to appoint a national commission to deal with the situation. I suggested that on it should be representative of all phases of Canadian life, of labor, of industry, manufacturers, social services, and women's organizations. I suggested further that the sums that were to be paid out to the provinces should be all audited. And Mr. Bennett said that it would be an insult to the provinces to audit the accounts. At that time I said he would rue the day that the accounts were not audited. And what is the situation today?"

A recent report of the auditor-general had shown that huge sums of federal money appropriated for relief purposes have been wasted in every province, from coast to coast. It had been spent on administrative costs, for dental services, for gasoline and other things.

The Blank Cheque

In 1931 Mr. Bennett brought in his "blank cheque" legislation, giving the governor-in-council power to spend unlimited sums without consulting parliament. From 1930 to 1934, over $110,000,000 had been spent in federal money alone in this way.

"That is the thing we have been fighting against. It is being debated in the House tonight. But Mr. Bennett with his majority will carry it through," Mr. King predicted.

"The same bill went even further by giving the government power to guarantee bank loans. He cited the $90,000,000 C.P.R. loan.

"A large increase in the public debt and an increase in unemployment were the only results from the expenditure of colossal sums for relief, and the figures were only beginning to find out the shocking way in which the money had been spent," Mr. King said. Nothing had been done along the lines of making public parks and improving trade, such as the Liberals had contemplated.

Pork Barrel

"Remember that this year will probably be the year of a general election," Mr. King declared, "Under this legislation, the Conservative Administration will be able to dig into the treasury and spend what it likes on relief."

All the Opposition could do at present was to fight against these measures and to fight for democratic institutions, and the leader urged the people of South Oxford to give them a hand by electing Mr. Rennie as their member.

Mr. King declared that the home market is not the place, but the purchasing power of the people. The Tillsonburg market isn't the square on which goods are bought and sold but the purchasing power of the people who attend it. In the same way the home market of which Mr. Bennett speaks is the buying ability of the people in it.

Lack Buying Power

"Mr. Bennett can't see that. He keeps talking economic self-sufficiency and as we cut off trade with tariffs our home market withers up," he said.

The Liberal leader turned his attention to the questions raised in the report of Hon. Donald Sutherland, Conservative candidate, who in March 1933 presented to the registrar under the Combines Investigation Act his report on an investigation into an alleged combine among tobacco buyers.

"You would not know yet what was in that report had it not been for the Opposition. Mr. Eccles Gott asked for it a long while ago, but the matter was allowed to stand on the order paper for weeks. I wondered if there were something in it which the government didn't want the people to see and I queried about it in the house. Why should Mr. Gott let his question stand if the government hadn't asked him to do so? The minister of labor made a long explanation about possible prosecutions as a result of the report. We kept asking for it.

"Finally on Monday Mr. Bennett said we could have it because they were saying he was a director of the Imperial Tobacco Co. Was it in your interests or to protect Mr. Bennett that the report was brought down?

Ecuses

"I had heard the minister say the report couldn't be brought down for certain reasons so I looked at it when the house received it. It said that the evidence was not sufficient to establish a combine within the meaning of the act. Where are you going to get prosecutions out of that? How are you going to send anybody to jail when the investigator says there is no evidence?" asked Mr. King.

Mr. King noted that the letter of the registrar to the minister when he handed Mr. Sutherland's report on reminded him that if he concluded that there was no necessity for a further inquiry, he should notify those who had sought it. "The report

If they had they might have gathered further evidence or sought an inquiry through another channel."

Tariff Sweating

Mr. King said that with the tariff at the highest level in Canadian history, sweating of labor has gone on on a scale never known before. It is inevitably so. "Once trade is strangled by tariffs, then you can form monopolies and squeeze the workingman to the lowest level."

The marketing bill now before Parliament is bait for the farmers, said Mr. King. He urged them not to be humbugged again. One clause in the bill gives the Governor-in-Council, which in practice means Mr. Bennett, the power to prohibit import or export of any article.

"If that clause remains it means that you are parting entirely with the right of yourself and parliament to

In Mr. Bennett Canada has a real dictator, said Mr. King. He has the power to legislate as he pleases under the "Peace, order and good government" measure, and to spend what he will from the public treasury. Under the marketing act he can regulate trade in any manner he sees fit.

"The Liberal policy has always been to develop trade. That is a policy of plenty. But once you begin to restrict trade you have a policy of scarcity," he said, adding that in the wheat pact to restrict production and export of wheat the policy had been carried through to the logical conclusion.

"This government has done all it can to destroy trade and now it seeks to destroy production," he said. Subsidies to various pests would be a cheaper way to regulate production than an army of officials.

Mr. Rennie

Mr. Rennie declared that only the Liberal policy aims at a solution of problems of agriculture, aod until these are solved things canot be much better. His trips up and down the highways during the campaign have shown him as nothing else could, the hopelessness which is blighting the lives of young unemployed transients.

Mr. Hepburn, who introduced Mr. King, wanted to know why Mr. Bennett did not come into the riding instead of entering it from Ottawa vit the radio. Here a heckler interrupted Mr. Hepburn.

"If the gentleman has anything to say let him come to the platform and say it," said Mr. Hepburn. Whereupon Alex Reynolds, Tillsonburg, marched to the platform amid loud shouts of disapproval from the crowd. "I would like to ask Mr. Hepburn why he is not at the Ontario House defending his record," asked Mr. Reynolds.

"Very well, I will tell you. The House should have been dissolved a year ago. It carried on on borrowed time," said Mr. Hepburn as the audience roared approval, and indicated its unwillingness to tolerate further interruptions.

Mr. Hepburn Explains Again

"It was well known when I accepted the leadership of the Ontario party that I would not leave the people of West Elgin until I had finished the term for which they elected me. There is such a thing as 'loyalty.' I have not followed the line of least resistence. I might have entered the legislature through an acclamation in East Kent. I know that I have a difficult riding in Elgin now but I will stand or fil by the decision of the people in my own country," said Mr. Hepburn.

Mr. Hepburn declared that Canada under the Bennett government has drifted far from established parliamentary practices. "We have little democracy in this country today. We are nearer to a dictatorship than the people realize. We want a new deal. We want Mackenzie King as premier. We want a new government and we want Liberal prosperity," he said.

William Brown, Tillsonburg, was chairman. Mrs. L. G. Little and Mrs. Jack Climie sang solos. Flowers were presented to the singers by Misses Dorothy Daniels and Margery Stafford.

Among those on the platform were Dougald Graham, George Perry, N. J. Griffith, G. A. P. Brickenden, Dr. A. S. Duncan, Paul Gravelle, Charles Oliver and Hon. J. C. Elliott, all of London; Colin C. Hawkins, Brownsville; R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., C. E. Brown, Tillsonburg; P. M. Dewan, Woodstock; Jack Jewell, Tillsonburg; Keith M. Somers, Tillsonburg; Eric Cross, Simcoe; Vern Meek, M. G. Dean, Dr. J. M. Rogers, and H. A. Copeland, Ingersoll.

The Tillsonburg Citizens' Band under the leadership of Boyd Sylvester played before the meeting got under way.

Special to The Advertiser
(By Staff Reporter)

Norwich, April 11—"If this constituency goes Liberal on Monday next, I say the Prime Minister cannot afford to carry on the government of this country any longer without going to the people next fall," declared the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, speaking to the Liberal rally in Edison Hall here this afternoon.

Mr. King's speech this afternoon was a short one, lasting scarcely an hour, but in it he raised issues of tremendous importance. He declared that the actions of the Bennett government in transferring power to the cabinet constituted a very serious threat to constitutional and democratic forms of goverament in Canada and that it is quite conceivable in the event of a European crisis in the near future Mr. Bennett might decide to let his administration carry on indefinitely.

Opening his speech Mr. King said that a public man has no greater privilege than to come into the ridings after a battle for the people's liberties in parliament and get from the people their opinion of his stand.

Left Unrepresented

"The question now before you is whether you trust a government which does not trust you. If you approve of the fact that you have had no representation in parliament this year, then by all means vote for Mr. Sutherland. Mr. Bennett does not trust South Oxford and has let it go 'unrepresented'," said Mr. King. "The Liberal practice had been to bring on by-elections as soon as possible. Mr. Bennett had brought on three recently but left South Oxford out.

"Mr. Bennett knew that his government did not possess the confidence of the people. He hoped to carry one of the three by-elections which were called but he left out the one that will beat him the worst," he said. "Your vote won't put Mr. Bennett out but it will decide definitely if we will have a general election in the fall or if we are to have another year of Bennett rule."

Series of Defeats

Mr. King said that the Liberal party welcomed the South Oxford by-election as another opportunity to show the government that it has lost the people's confidence. Under the British parliamentary system it is an established practice for a government to go to the country when it loses a series of by-elections. The Bennett government could not hope to avoid this appeal if on top of Restigouche-Madawaska, Yamaska, Mackenzie and South Huron it loses in at this administration and telling it to get out. If on top of all this the people of South Oxford tell Mr. Bennett to get out of the way, it seems to me that he will be obliged to go to the country this fall. A big opportunity is yours," he said.

The political and economic problems facing Canada are the most important in her history, said the Liberal leader. He recalled that in the general election of 1930 he had told the people that the world was facing a great depression and that Liberal policies had been fashioned in this belief. The depression was partly because of the war and partly because of the orgy of speculation, but, said Mr. King, he believed that the Liberal policies had prevented Canada from feeling the full impact of the world depression.

Set Example To World

"The Liberal party brought Canada out of a depression in 1921. It was not a mere accident but the result of certain policies moving toward definite ends. Other nations went in for economic isolation but we resolved to extend our markets. We thought that we at least in the British Empire need not go in for the policy of economic nationalism but rather felt we should set an example to the rest of the world. The Dunning budget was directed to the lowering of tariffs in the British Empire. Our policy was met with Mr. Bennett's 'Canada first' and protectionist interests were told that tariff walls would be put up all over. If things had been left there, there might have been a different story in that election. But Mr. Bennett said he would provide work for all men. There would be no doles. His two great promises were 'Everyone will work and everyone will have markets.' He included the whole people and the people took him at his word."

The Liberal leader asked how many had work today compared with four years ago. How many have the markets they had four years ago? Those are questions for South Oxford to answer.

Mr. King declared an expansion of trade to be the only solution to this unemployment problem. Work cannot be supplied from taxes indefinitely. It must come from the wealth of the soil, forest, mine and sea.

"We must use the wealth which God has given us and until we exchange these things we can't have things running very well," he said.

Assailed for Peace Work

The League of Nations had been founded to promote the mutual interests of the nations and to prevent war, said Mr. King. Canada was a member of the League and had done her best. Yet in 1930 the Liberal party was assailed by Mr. Bennett because it had had the courage to lower tariffs in an effort to solve economic problems, problems directly related to those of peace and war. "But you ask the Conservative candidate where trade was then and where it is now," urged Mr. King.

The problem facing the world, economic isolation for the different nations or a policy of international cooperation in trade and everything else with a view to ending economic nationalism and to building a greater brotherhood of mankind is well stated in the difference between Liberal and Conservative policies in Canada today, said Mr. King.

Social Revolution Here

Leaving the trade problem Mr. King said that the times demand a change in the social order. Men, women and children demand more social justice, more to be done for the common good and greater opportunity for all. Those things which have shattered forms of government in Europe and brought the 'New Deal' to the United States are touching Canada.

"To day we are in the middle of a social revolution, a world social revolution, and the problem is where it is going to end as far as the people are concerned. Humanity is on the march. Some say we should have a planned economy. But that means a dictatorship, forces and methods that put their faith in principles and say that these have guided men and women for centuries, and that is the Liberal policy. There are principles for work, peace, and progress and the people who fashion their laws in accord with them will enjoy peace," he said.

Danger of Dictatorship

There is a danger right now of a dictatorship in Canada, Mr. King said, and it is up to the people of South Oxford to say that this country must be controlled by the parliamentary system. In Italy, Germany, Russia, Austria and other places, representative institutions have disappeared. In the United States larger powers than ever have been invested in the executive. But under the British system the executive is responsible to the people's representatives and must get his power from them.

"But Mr. Bennett started out four years ago on the theory of an emergency and demanded emergency powers. He called parliament to deal with unemployment and then raised the tariffs," said Mr. King, reviewing the factors which led to the breakdown of the 1930 session of the Imperiol economic conference. "Mr. Bennett's offer to Britain of a preferential tariff really meant a step further along the road of economic nationalism because the tariff was to be raised against all other nations."

British Market Endangered

Mr. King said that in the House of Commons he had stated that the agreements reached at the 1932 conference would endanger the British market for Canadian producers and today the British agriculturist is demanding protection against his Canadian competitors in cattle and dairy products.

"Remember where this policy started and if you approve of it vote for the Conservative candidate," he said.

Even worse than economic nationalism is economic imperialism, continued Mr. King. Every thinking man stands aghast when he thinks of an empire seeking to stand out as a unit against the rest of the world.

"Unless this sort of thing ends, economic war will give way to actual war," he predicted. "Unless some country comes along to set an example the world will face a worse situation than ever."

Parliament Being Shelved

Mr. King declared that the Bennett policy for Canada is to get rid of parliament altogether and to let the executive do what it pleases. He referred to the "Peace, order and good government" clause now before the Commons which gives the government unlimited powers. It can guarantee corporation loans, lend millions to the provinces. "The government, under one clause of that bill, is getting even the authority to prevent a general election. It might be used in the event of a European crisis. That was what was done in Cromwell's day. We cannot afford now to turn over all government to the governor in council," declared Mr. King, asserting that the Liberal party would keep up the battle to guard parliament's rights.

Vast Sums Squandered

Moneys paid out for relief under the "Peace, order and good government" clause had been improperly spent, said Mr. King. Money was wasted on the worst scale in Canada's history. To the provinces had been loaned $52,000,000 and it is doubtful if the Federal treasury will ever see it again. Bank guarantees of more than $100,000,000 have been given, including the $60,000,000 C. P. R. guarantee.

"What is worse is that the provinces are now following Mr. Bennett's example and transferring power to the cabinets from the people's representatives," the speaker continued. The British Columbia premier has taken powers like those that Mr. Bennett has. A bill to this end is under way in Alberta. Already it is in effect in Saskatchewan in respect to some things, while the same is true of Manitoba."

Bennett Set Example

"Do you think these premiers would have thought of it if Mr. Bennett had not set the example?" asked Mr. King.

The Liberal leader noted that the other day Mr. Bennett told the Commons that he needed the powers he asked so he could combat British Columbia. "It is a matter of competitive arming for legislative and executive power. How long would it be in this province until Mr. Henry took those powers if he were re-elected?"

"We have a spirit of warfare abroad, the spirit which has bedevilled European nations. Our dictators say they must have new powers. I say to you that economic war and competitive arming in whatever form it comes sooner or later results in actual war. Let it come to Europe and how long will it be until we feel it? One country needs to stand up for democratic institutions and international good will. It is this larger policy which the Liberal party is working out."

Hall Is Packed

Crowds began gathering around the hall long before the time set for the meeting. Although it was snowing, many stood in the streets and in doorways to listen-in as sound apparatus carried the music and speeches to those outside. Every available inch of space inside was taken, with the balconies packed, and spectators standing in the aisles and even in the wings of the platform.

Mr. King and the other speakers were given a rousing reception. John McKee of Norwich acted as chairman and those on the platform included M. F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader; Hon. J. C. Elliott, M. P., former minister of public works; Reeve John Armour of Norwich; Rev. James Skene, Norwich; R. A. McDougall, Dominion president, and Donald Begg, provincial president of the Twentieth Century Club; P. M. Dean, provincial Liberal candidate for Oxford, and the Liberal candidate in this by-election, A. S. Rennie.

Children's Hero

To the children of the town, Mr. King came as a popular hero. Because of his visit they were given a half holiday from school and many of them were in the audience. The platform was decorated with flowers and in places of honor were flag-draped pictures of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, William Lyon Mackenzie and other Liberal leaders.

Mr. Rennie was the first speaker, opening his address with a sincere tribute to T. M. Cayley, late Liberal member. He blamed the Conservatives for the fact that South Oxford had not had representation for the greater part of the present parliamentary session, declaring that the people of this riding had been ill treated in the government's delaying the election until this time, thus disenfranchising them for most of the session.

Policies Poles Apart

"The policies of Mr. King and Mr. Bennett are as far apart as the poles," the candidate declared. Liberal policies, he said, will bring a return of prosperity to the farmer, while a continuation of Conservative rule meant the addition of restrictions to trade and even worse conditions than those that exist today.

Referring to statements made in the riding by Hon. R. J. Manion, Mr. Rennie declared that the Conservative speaker was wrong when he informed the people that Canada stood fifth in trade in the world. He quoted from a report of Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, showing that it had dropped from fifth to ninth place since 1930. Conservative speakers were also misleading in statements that Canada's export trade had greatly increased, Mr. Rennie declared, giving a comparison with other countries which showed that while exports in Australia increased 35 per cent, in Sweden and Switzerland 23.1 per cent, Canada's exports had gone up only 7.6 per cent.

"It is about time the Pension Act is properly administered," the speaker declared, in touching on veterans' legislation. Under the present government the act was being unfairly administered, he said.

Hepburn Predicts Victory

Mr. Hepburn was greeted with cheers and he paid tribute to Mr. Rennie, predicting for him a victory on April 16. The Liberal leader also spoke words of praise for his federal leader, Mr. King, declaring that he was "probably the greatest statesman this country has ever produced."

In not coming into the riding but instead intending to speak over the radio, Mr. Bennett had shown that "the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak," Mr. Hepburn declared.

"You will either vote to perpetuate Mr. Bennett's government in office or register a protest against its record, the speaker said. Mr. Bennett was doing nothing for the farmer and working man. He did nothing but raise tariffs, granting privilege to the strong and more charity to the weak. With this policy of playing both ends against the middle the whole financial structure of the country was in danger of collapse.

Significant Election

The result of this vote will have a great effect throughout the entire Dominion. It will have an effect on the coming general election in Ontario and if Mr. Rennie is elected, it will provide a ray of hope in these dark days, the Liberal leader concluded.

Mr. Elliott introduced Mr. King in a brief speech and thunderous applause greeted the federal leader. Reeve Armour read an address of welcome and Mr. King received a lovely bouquet and a kiss from little Jean Snell as he rose to speak.

KARL K. HOMUTH GETS NOMINATION

Conservative Choice For Provincial Candidate In South Waterloo

ISSUES CHALLENGE

Special to The Advertiser

Preston, April 11—Accorded the Conservative nomination by acclamation when J. M. Willard of Galt withdrew, Karl K. Homuth, was selected to represent the party in South Waterloo in the coming provincial elections.

The challenge of Karl K. Homuth to meet Mitchell Hepburn in a platform debate in Waterloo, the large attendance, despite a snowstorm, in addition to the selection of officers and executives proved the high lights of the convention. Mitchell Hepburn has stated that he will publicly debate and defend his position in any riding in the province," Mr. Homuth stated. "I challenge Mr. Hepburn to come to South Waterloo."

Hits at Mass Buying

A. M. Edwards, of Galt, Federal representative for South Waterloo gave a resume of the Federal work under Premier Bennett, while as a member of the Stevens committee he deplored conditions existing as a result of the force brought to bear on manufacturers by large retailers and mail catalogue houses and the resultant undermining of business for small retailers. This he asserted depleted pay envelopes foremployees in the factories. James V. Jardine, of Hespeler, was returned as president of the South Waterloo Liberal-Conservative association. Officers elected were: Hon. President, R. O. McCullough, Galt; Executive, L. W. Weaver, Hespeler, Lewis Hahn, New Hamburg; F. Pattinson, Preston; A. N. W. Clare, Preston; George Bird, Ayr; F. S. Scott, Galt; M. H. Mullin, Preston; Robert Cowan, Waterloo; Wm. Alison, Dumfries; F. Debus, New Hamburg; secretary, H. A. Smith, Galt; assistant Secy. H. A. Stweart, Galt; Treasurer, C. G. Robertson, Preston.

DECREASE OF INCOMING TOURISTS AT SARNIA

Outgoing Tourist Traffic Much Heavier During Last Fiscal Year

Special to The Advertiser

Sarnia, Ont., April 11.—The tide of tourist passages at the border here definitely turned against Canada in the fiscal year closing March 31st, it was reported in the annual report of Chief Immigration Officer H. W. McCrum made public today. In the year there were 15,000 more Canadians entered the United States via train and automobile than the number of Americans entering Canada at Sarnia.

Mr. McCrum thought the world's fair at Chicago had much to do with it. Total passages through the Port were 460,000 in 1933 compared with 475,000 in the previous year. The decrease in U. S. citizens entering here was 25,000. Admissions for permanent residence in Canada were 252, a decrease of 187 compared with 1933 and Canadians returning to their native land decreased from 600 to 254 believed attributable to the NRA.

WOULD CURB TRUCKS

Say Elimination Of Hog Differentials Would Help The Price

Canadian Press Despatch

Ottawa, April 11.—Regulation of livestock truckers to eliminate direct sales to packing plants was urged today before the Stevens committee of the House of Commons by hog buyers from Winnipeg and Toronto. One of the plagues of the industry, the committee was advised, was thep ractice of packers going into the country to make their purchases, depleting competition on the open markets where prices were fixed.

Elimination of hog differentials, now set by the packers, would increase prices to producers, according to Gordon Oswin of Toronto. A buyer for the United Farmers Livestock Department. At the present time only two packers have buyers on the Toronto market and only 30 percent of the hogs shipped to that city, are sold through the stockyards.

Urges Freight Rate Revision

In another day given over to the livestock industry, Oswald Freer, a commission man on the St. Boniface market, Winnipeg, urged revision of the livestock freight rates. He suggested a market-to-market system, patterned after the American plan with reductions on through rates to the east.

Regulation of truckers was urged by both witnesses, the Winnipeg buyer suggesting trucks be used as feeder units for the railways to eliminate direct selling to packers.

The committee adjourned until tomorrow when other witnesses on the livestock industry will be heard.

The committee has investigators working on department stores, furniture industry, clothing industry, chain stores and the milling and baking industry, it was announced today by the chairman Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce. In addition, a certain amount of work has been done on the Canadian rubber footwear industry and the tobacco-growing industry.

To Give Rebuttal Evidence

Livestock packers and department stores will be represented before the committee to give rebuttal evidence. Department stores, it was announced have engaged the services of some illustrious economists and are preparing an elaborate brief on price spreads and mass buying. The packers will specialize on direct livestock buying and the hog differentials, both of which have been attacked before the committee by producers and middlemen.

When the committee opened, Mr. Stevens asked members to make their questions as pointed as possible in order to shorten the livestock phase.

J. L. Ilsley, (Lib. Hants-King), said the investigation so far had covered only one side. Witnesses so far had advocated "open markets" and abolition of fixed differentials.

Mr. Stevens said the packers and all others interested would be given the fullest facilities before the committee. Most of the witnesses so far had asked to be heard and if there were others who wished to appear he would be glad to hear them.

Hogs Monopolizing Time

Sam Factor, (Liberal, Toronto), thought a great deal of time was being devoted to hogs, although he appreciated the importance of the subect.

Mr. Stevens said there were many other things to bs considered. The committee was to investigate rubber, tobacco and other matters.

There was a hesitancy on the part of many persons in the livestock industry to come forward, said the minister. But anyone, whether packer, shipper, producer could come before the committee and present his side of the question.

H. P. Kennedy, Toronto livestock exporter, was questioned regarding the operation of the livestock marketing board which he suggested yesterday should be formed to control the price spread between consumer and producer.

The syndicate management reports that it has been encouraged by the work on No. 3 vein, and as a result work is proceeding on No. 1 vein, which, it is stated, has widened to 21 feet.

Dr. T. L. Gledhill, consulting geologist, will leave for the Michipicoten area this week to arrange a diamond drill program for the Murray Algoma property. The claims have been partly explored and three large veins located, of which two are known to be gold bearing. It is proposed to seek the extension of the veins by drilling and also to test values at depth. One of the veins is exposed on surface for 350 feet, with both ends drift-covered. Some 180 feet of the vein has been opened up and shows a width of 10 feet from which average assays of $12 per ton were obtained.

Latest word from the manager of the Sunorca Exploration Company is that diamond drilling is to be resumed on No. 2 hole on the Swayze property. The hole was drilled to an approximate depth of 200 feet, but a temporary breakdown of power equipment stopped work. It is hoped by the company that a few drill holes at depth will pick up the two veins already located on surface.

S. HURON TORIES CHOOSE ELLIOTT

Man Defeated By W. G. Medd, M.L.A. Is Given Party Nomination

MARTIN SPEAKS

Special to the Advertiser

Goderich, April 11.—South Huron Conservatives at Hensall today chose George H. Elliott, Clinton, Warden of Huron County, as their standard bearer in the forthcoming Provincial election. There were no other nominations, Mr. Elliott accepting. He was defeated by W. G. Medd, Progressive, in the 1929 election. The riding has since been redistributed, the towns of Clinton and Goderich, both of which usually return substantial Conservative majorities, now being included.

Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, was the principal speaker today. His address was a vigorous defence of the Henry Government, which, he said, would stand or fall on its record of accomplishment. He regarded the Opposition as hopelessly divided on the beer and other issues. He predicted another Conservative sweep, warning his hearers, however, against over-confidence.

Declares Surplus Exists

Answering Opposition charges of a "Phantom Surplus" the Minister of Public Welfare said: "George Henry is a clean business man, and when he says there is a half-million dollar surplus I defy any man to prove the contrary. There is no private business house in Canada handling its affairs more thoroughly and efficiently than is the Province of Ontario."

Col. Combe, of Clinton, was chairman, and the only three speakers were the candidate and E. R. Dennis, Western Ontario Conservative organizer. The weather was stormy, but over four hundred, mostly farmers, were present from all parts of the riding.

INTER. PRODUCTS LOSS

New York, April 11. — International Products—and subsidiaries report for 1933, as certified by independent auditors, net loss of $318,183, after depreciation, depletion, etc., and including $24,507 profit on foreign exchange. This compares with net loss of $672,351 in 1932.

YOU, TOO CAN WIN

There are six winners each week in The Bulletinboard Review Feature, that interesting contest page, and guide to many of Londons Leading stores, which appears in The London Leader every Thursday and The London Advertiser every Saturday.

MONCTON HAWKS CLAW AMERICAN CHAMPS 13-3 TO WIN SET

Allan Cup Holders Pour Rubber in White Star Net

Canuck's 62nd Game Of Season Turns Out To Be Easiest Win Of All

ONLY 250 SEE IT

Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, Apr. 11.—Moncton Hawks spread their tired wings for the first time in a couple of weeks here tonight and won the North American Amateur Hockey Championship with a landslide victory over Detroit White Stars, United States title holders, 13-3.

Only 250 or so spectators sat in on the big killing as the Allan Cup champions went systematically to work to see how many goals they could score against a team they had previously outclassed twice on the form sheets but beaten only once on the score card.

Stars won the first of the three game series here last Saturday night by 2-1 overtime and the Hawks evened the count by winning 4-1 on Monday night. With the title at stake, the fleet brigade from the Maritimes went into high gear at the start tonight and were seeking goal No. 14 at the finish as earnestly as they had sought No. 1 in the first stanza.

Everybody on the Moncton lineup except Goaler Jimmy Foster took a hand in the scoring and everybody scored at least once with the exception of Foster and "Nucker" Irvine, lean left winger who got his name in the scoring record with an assist.

Duke McDonald, Bill Miller, Bill Gill, Sammy McManus and Aubrey Webster scored two apiece and Bert Connolly, Dud James and Len Burrage kicked in with the others. It was just the sort of high-powered scoring Toronto fandom had expected of the Hawks in the first series game.

f the IAllan Cuppers took it easy in the first two games they worked hard tonight. There was little body checking—the idea was goals. The Hawks raced down three and four abreast in the hope of piling up the total even when they were shorthanded through penalties.

Stars Open Scoring

The luckless White Stars scored the first goal of the contest on a neat passing play, Al David shooting the puck past Foster. Then the Hawks ran in five without delay and led 5-1 starting the second period. They banged in three more in the middle stanza while the American champions were getting two.

The real fun was in the third session when the Hawks collected five more without reply. Even big Pete McMahon, brilliant Detroit goaler, had become thoroughly discouraged by this time, but he kicked out half a dozen shots that might have slipped past him.

McMahon was the lone defensive power of the Stars. His defence was riddled early in the game and the forwards were not fast enough to check back effectively. It was Moncton's 62nd game of the season and perhaps the easiest of them all.

The lineup:

Detroit: Goal, McMahon, defence, Wright and Robson; centre, Bigham; wings, Hunt and Sullivan; subs, David, Crossman, Reed, Kirwan.

Moncton: goal, Foster; defence Gill and Burrage; centre, Connolly; wings, McDonald and Irvine; subs, Webster, McManus, James, Miller.

Officials: M. J. Rodden, Toronto and Jack Tompkins, Detroit.

Summary

First period.

1—Detroit, David (Crossman, Reed) 4.32.

2—Moncton, Gill 8.31.

3—Moncton, McDonald (Connolly) 11.40

12—Moncton, James (McManus) 3.49

13—Moncton, Burrage, (Gill) 7.36.

14—Moncton, Gill (McDonald, Irvine) 10.34.

15—Moncton, McDonald 11.46.

16—Moncton, McManus, 13.21.

Penalties: Burrage, Wright, Irvine.

WAIVE TERRITORY RIGHTS TO N.H.L. IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, April 11.—The rumored transfer to St. Louis of the Ottawa club of the National Hockey League will not be opposed by the American Association if the minor circuit is compensated for the loss of territory, Thomas S. Grant, association president, said here.

Grant, who voiced opposition to the proposed move when Ottawa despatches first reported it last week, said objection would be withdrawn if compensation is paid and Frank (Doc) Wainwright, operator of the present St. Louis club, is satisfied.

A league meeting would be necessary to determine what value the American Association would place on the franchise, Grant said. Hockey, which started slowly in St. Louis six years ago, reached a peak in the season just closed, more than 200,000 persons attending 24 home games.

Junior Soccerists Have Big Confab

New Trophies Are Presented And League Schedule Is Adopted

The regular meeting of the Junior soccer organization was the largest attended this year, the rooms being filled with many unable to secure seats. Delegates from St. Thomas, Ingersoll and the four local clubs being present. While the many players present were no doubt interested in any reinstatements the applicants were rejected in most cases, only one applicant receiving the approval of the association. The new trophies which were donated by Mayor C. Wenige and the Supertest Co. of London, were presented to the association at this meeting. Secretary T. Brock was instructed to write the donors expressing the appreciation of the association.

Consideration and approval of the schedule was debated at length and the following dates and games were approved, (home teams first):

Dr. H. A. Skinner and J. R. McPhillips, (plus 10); W. J. Lancaster and W. E. Spencer, (plus 8).

Mitchell Game

(North and South)

Miss M. Clendenan and Mrs. A. W. Hayman, (plus 6); Mrs. H. Killaly and Miss J. Wilson, (plus 2); Dr. W. J. McLean and R. E. Pemberton, (plus 1½).

(East and West)

Mrs. W. Percival and Mrs. Turner, (plus 14); Mrs. H. Wilson and Mrs. R. W. Robertson, (plus 5½).

BAER IS ON WAY

Sacramento, Cal., April 11.—Max Baer was enroute to New York today and no one in the California heavyweight's entourage was more confident than Max that he would return home the heavyweight champion of the world.

"I'll knock him out, sure," Max confidently announced as he boarded the train here with his manager Ancil Hoffman, his trainer Mike Cantwell, and young brother, Buddy Baer.

Max was referring to Prima Carnera, the champion, whom he meets June 14.

Champion's Sons Learn the Game

Non-Winning Colt Is Derby Favorite

Sir Thomas Has Never Won A Race, But Is Choice In Future Book

Louisville, Ky., April 11.—For the first time in history a colt that never won a race is the future book favorite for the Kentucky Derby. He is Sir Thomas, the nominee of A. B. Gordon who has high hopes of being the first Louisvillan to own a Derby winner since Old Rosebud triumphed for H. C. Applegate 26 years ago.

The popularity of Sir Thomas is demarkable in that only two "maidens" have won the Kentucky Derby in the 59 years of its history—J. K. L. Ross' Sir Barton in 1919 and Broker's Tin last year—but there are substantial reasons for the high esteem in which Sir Thomas is held. One of them is that he was sired by Sir Gallahad 111, sire of Gallant Fox, victor in 1930 which still is the Derby winner standing highest among the turf world's leading money winners.

Sir Thomas is being trained by his owner, Mr. Gordon, who has conditioned several famed thoroughbreds in the past. Under the handling of a trainer who has proven his ability to prepare horses for distance races, the performance of Sir Thomas in workouts at Churchill Downs has made Louisville turf followers almost hysterical over his chances to win the 60th Kentucky Derby on May 5.

When the future book odds on Sir Thomas dropped to 8 to 1 last week, the Louisville railbirds prophesied his odds would drop to 6 to 1 this week, and 2 to 1 if he goes to the post in the Derby. Half of this prediction has ben fulfilled, as Tom Kearney, St. Louis Commissioner, reduced the odds on the Gordon nominee to 6 to 1 Monday, making him the favorite in his book.

Sir Thomas was working a mile around 1.45 at Douglas Park here in February, and it was not until some time later that the experts caught on and began touting the Gordon colt. His latest effort over the full Derby route of a mile and a quarter was 2.11, on a track three seconds slow.

STABLE BOY WOUNDED; RACE TRACK IS SUED

Houston, Tex., April 11.—Two Two suits for damages aggregating $117,350 were fyled in Federal Court today against the Texas Breeders and Racing Association, owners of Epsom Downs track here, as the result of a shooting March 15 in which Tommy Blanchard, a Montreal stable boy, was wounded.

One suit was by Mrs. Cyrilla Blanchard of Montreal, on the boy's behalf, and the other was by Mrs. Blanchard on her own behalf. Blanchard was an employee of A. G. Tarn, Montreal stable owner.

Mrs. Blanchard's petition alleged the boy probably had been permanently disabled as a result of being shot by L. A. Eades, special officer employed by the Epsom Downs track. The mother declared her boy would have become a jockey next year and therefore had a reasonable expectation of earning $10,000 a year.

Chicago Game Short Overtime

Four Games In Last Five Years Longer

Chicago, April 11.—Four National hockey league play-off games in the last five years were longer than the Chicago-Detroit Stanley Cup final last night which went 30 minutes and five seconds of extra time before the Black Hawks won by 1-0 and captured the trophy.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins set the world record last spring when the Leafs won the N.H.L. title after 104 minutes and 46 seconds of overtime.

Mush March, one of the small men of hockey, scored the winning goal for the Hawks. March weighs 147, and a midget gave the Leafs in their endurance test against the Bruins, 157-pound Joe Doraty bagging the deciding tally.

Until last spring, the longest game on record was played in the 1930 play-offs when Montreal Canadiens and in the same playoff campaign, Canadiens won 52 minutes overtime against Chicago.

London Skating Club Election

Col. Hill Is New President—Recent Winner One Of Best In History

Col. S. H. Hill, former president of the Minto Club in Ottawa, last night was elected president of the London Skating Club at the annual meeting.

Howard Higgins, retiring president, reviewed the past year's activities, and his report showed a considerable membership increase. The year was regarded as one of the best since the club's inception.

St. Thomas Girls To Get New Park

Floodlighting Will Let Purples Play League Softball Games At Home

A new softball diamond with floodlights for night plya is being planned for St. Thomas, Charlie Smale of St. Thomas, president of the Major Intercity Girls' Softball League announced at a meeting of the circuit held here last night.

During past seasons, St. Thomas Purples have had to play all their league games on the London diamond, but if their new field materializes they will play about 24 home games on it.

the same team as last year, according to an announcement made by C. E. Speiran. During the latter part of the schedule the furniture girls made things interesting for all comers.

Gordon Southcott will again coach the Silverwood team and he is in search of a new catcher. Otherwise the Silverwood team will be the same as last season.

Kellogg, champions of the Major Intercity League for the past three years, plan on using much the same team as last year. Kellogg's will also sponsor an intermediate team.

A league schedule meeting will be held next week.

The three London entries—Kellogg's Burroughes and Silverwoods—will again be starters in the league, and an intermediate league will also be sponsored here, the greater part of the intermediate fixtures to be played as openers on the senior bills.

During the last three years, the local senior teams have been affiliated with the Olympic League at Sunnyside in Toronto, but the Toronto Aceon League has made overtures for the coming summer.

It was decided to open the local season on or about May 15.

POLISH UP OLE' HORSE SHOES AT PETROLIA

Petrolia, April 11.—With the assurance that summer is not far off local horseshoe enthusiasts are polishing up their shoes in anticipation of a bright season this year. Already one has heard the clink of shoes this spring and the Enarco Horseshoe Club, which is a branch of the Enarco Athletic Club of the Canadian Oil Companies, Ltd., has recently held its organization meeting which resulted as follows: Manager, Russell Lennan; Assistant Manager, Charles Tobias; Grounds Committee, Chris Axscough, Chet McRitchie, and William Mowlett; Transportation Committee, Roy Smith and Hugh Whitlock.

During recent years the sport has become increasingly popular and the local club's annual competition brings large numbers from a distance to participate in the oil town's games. This year it is hoped that a large league may be formed which will include teams from Sarnia, Petrolia, Camlachie, Brigden and Rutherford.

Montreal Cagers Beat Assumption

Crack Border Cities Seniors Are Nosed Out 29-28 On Quebec Floor

PATRICK BOYS STAR

Montreal, April 11.—Assumption College of Windsor, Ontario Senior Basketball Champions, tonight lost the first game of the Ontario-Quebec Dominion playdawn by the narrowest of margins, being defeated by Nationales, Province of Quebec champions, 29-28.

The teams meet again here on Friday night and if a third game is necessary it will be played here Saturday. The winners will tackle Dalhousie University of Halifax, Maritime titlists, in the Eastern Canada semi-final.

It was regarded as the finest exhibition of the Cage game seen here in years. Nationale ran into a style of game unknown here, scientific to a degree but, in the end, the sustained speed of the Montreal team was just a little bit too much. Observers were predicting a great series, probably going three games.

The issue was in doubt to the last whistle. Murray Patrick scored the winning point with only seconds to go. He had been fouled by Des Jarlais of Windsor as he pivoted to shoot and was awarded two free shots. He missed the first but dropped the second through the hoop, breaking a 28-28 tie. As the remaining seconds ticked off Nationale warded off every thrust of the Ontario team.

Both teams felt confident of ultimate victory after the game. The Windsor coach stated by Friday he thought he could devise a defence that could stop the speedy line of Murray and Lynn Patrick, sons of Lester Patrick of New York Rangers, who flank Pat Griffin at centre. The visitors added that in almost 30 games this season they had not had to contend with such blazing speed.

Windsor—Meretsky, f, 3; Sherman, f, 2; Aitchison, f., 10; Rogin, c., 7; Byrne, g., 0; Deparalais, f., 4; Nantais, g., 2; Galnup, g., 0.

INTERMEDIATES WIN TOO

Montreal, April 11.—Smart passing forming the spearhead of their attack, Young Men's Hebrew Association of Montreal, tonight defeated Brockville Rowing Club 28-11 to win the two-game round of the Dominion Intermediate Basketball playdowns 60-50. In the first game at Brockville on Saturday the Rowers won 39-32.

Y.M.H.A. now meet the Maritime champions, Saint John Young Men's Christian Institute Trumps, in the Eastern Canada semi-final.

TRUNDLERS ADOPTING GROUP SYSTEM AGAIN

O. B. A. Decides To Use It For Tourney At Hamilton This Year

Hamilton, April 11.—At a late meeting that drew representatives from many parts of the province, members of the Ontario Bowling Association decided to adopt the group system for the 48th Annual Tournament to be held on the Roselawn Club greens will assure for all rinks four games on here again this year. This system the first day and one on the second when the eliminations for the three rink trophies will be held. The games will all be 15 ends until the finals are reached.

Times were set for the opening of the singles and doubles competitions and it was decided that one event in each case be played but that they be run as a double competition with trophies in each. The singles competition will start at two o'clock on the second day of the tournament, while the doubles will commence at seven o'clock on that date.

A committe consisting of Dr. J. J. Williams, Roy Green, Ed. Bickle and Bob Hayes was appointed to take care of all problems arising between now and the tournament.

The balance sheet was presented by auditor H. H. Blythe and adopted, and a prize committee will consist of R. H. Foster, Roy Green and Bob Hayes.

A set of four miniature trophies for the winners of the O.B.A. trophy will be presented by President James Burnett. R. M. Ogilvie, of Roselawn, was named chairman of the entertainment Committee, with power to add from members of his own club.

SAYS TRACK AND FIELD MARKS DUE FOR GRIEF

New York, April 11.—A four-minute mile, a 15-foot pole vault, a nine-second century and a 7-foot high jump are all possible, said Dan Ferris, secretary of the A.A.U., in commenting to-day on track prospects for the summer.

Ferris accurately forecast the winter spree of record breaking last fall and since he is recognized as one of the greatest track authorities in the country, his words bear weight.

"Bill Graber of Southern California has everything he needs to pole vault 15 feet, said Dan. Jesse Owens, the great colored star of Ohio state, is the type most likely to succeed in doing a nine-second century and Glenn Cunningham is the man most likely to get down to four minutes ...

LAUNCH CITY SPORTS FEDERATION TONIGHT

At a general meeting to be held in the Hotel London at 8.15 tonight, the City of London Sports Federation (what an armful of grief that is for a poor newspaper headline writer) will be launched.

The nominating committee has completed its work and a strong executive representative of every major sport in the city should be the result of the elections.

The opening of Tecumseh Park and its operation this year depends on support which would be more general than it has been in the past and that seems to be guaranteed by the launching of the Federation.

Braves Acquire Marty McManus

Veteran Of 14 A. L. Campaigns Will Replace Injured Maranville

Boston, April 11—Some pressing baseball problems were solved today when Martin Joseph McManus, 34-year-old veteran of 14 American baseball league campaigns, came to Boston Braves by purchase from Brooklyn Dodgers as a second-base replacement for the injured Rabbit Maranville.

First of all, Marty, who was made a free agent last fall after managing the Red Sox for a season and a half, was snatched from the limbo of baseball's forgotten men and given the ideal spot in which to continue his playing career.

Although he had an all-time major league batting average of .290 with St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers before coming to Boston in 1931, the Dodgers were so glutted with younger infielders that he seemed forever doomed to a bench job while he remained with Brooklyn.

With the Braves, he should be highly successful. He is probably a notch or so below the lamented Rabbit in fielding, but his superior batting punch more than makes up the difference.

The Dodgers will find the cash much more satisfactory than McManus' service, for they were long on infielders and very short in the exchequer.

OXFORD BADMINTON GETS STARTED AT WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Ont., April 11—The Oxford County Badminton tournament opened here tonight with over 270 entries. The majority of the matches tonight were between local players. The visitors will get into action tomorrow night and play will continue for the balance of the week with the consolation finals on Friday night and the championships on Saturday night.

Lack of Ballast Big Pirate Fault

Idea Prevalent Gibson Must Win Title Or It Is Outs For Him

RATED 3RD IN POLL

New York, April 10 —(UP)—Pirates Manager George Gibson, facing what may be his last major league season, will make a desperate bid for the National League pennant. He has an excellent chance to win and was rated third in the writers' poll.

Gibson is grooming a strong, dangerous club which packs more punch than any other outfit in the circuit. This punch, combined with the lively Pittsburgh its first pennant since 1927, ball, may turn the trick and give

Were the Pirates better balanced, they would appear certain winners. However, because of a weak spot at second base and no promise of championship pitching, it is doubtful if they can pound past the even-keeled Cardinals, who appear to have championship prospects. Hence, the Buccaneers seem destined to wind up in the same second place berth they occupied for the last two seasons.

In addition, the morale of the club may be affected by dressing room gossip which has Pie Traynor replacing Gibson as Manager next season if the Pirates fail.

Beat Cards in Batting

Spotted pitching was the chief cause for the Pirates' failure to come through last season. It was by far the best hitting club in the league. Even though t he Waner boys slumped, the club wound up with a batting average of .285, nine points above the Cards.

Attempting to strengthen the mound staff, Gibson made what may prove a shrewd move during the off-season. He parted with his best hitter, Second Baseman Tony Piet, to acquire Pitcher Red Lucas from Cincinnati. The exchange of Outfielders Comorosky and Roettger also figured in the deal.

Gibson figured he had sufficient strength at the plate to part with a .323 hitter for a mound workhorse who could win 16 out of 36 With a tail-end club like the Reds of 1933. Moreover, Lucas is an excellent pinch-hitter.

Other starting pitchers will be Larry French, Heine Meine, Bill Swift and probably Ralph Birkofer. Additional hold-overs are Hal Smith, Bill Harris, Waite Hoyt and Leon Chagnon. Outstanding rookie prospects are Lloyd Johnson, a southpaw from the San Francisco club, and Darrel Blanton, from St. Joseph. Outside of Lucas and French the staff looks very ordinary.

Thevenow Favored

With Piet gone from the infield, Gibson hopes that the veteran Tommy Thevenow, Floyd Young, or the promising Harry Lavagetto from the Oakland club, may hold down second base creditably. Thevenow seems to have the first call. The rest of the infield will be the same, with Pie Traynor on third, Floyd Vaughan at short, and Gus Suhr at first.

Handicapped by illness, Lloyd Waner slumped to .276, and brother Paul also fell off to .309. The Waners are expected to come through this season. Wally Roettger from the Reds and Forest Jensen are utility men.

Cather Earl Grace is a capable receiver. He hit .288 last season. He will be assisted by Hal Finney and either Tom Padden or a newcomer from the Oakland club, Art Veltman, advertised as a heavy hitter.

Easiest Win Of All

ONLY 250 SEE IT

Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, Apr. 11.—Moncton Hawks spread their tired wings for the first time in a couple of weeks here tonight and won the North American Amateur Hockey Championship with a landslide victory over Detroit White Stars, United States title holders, 13-3.

Only 250 or so spectators sat in on the big killing as the Allan Cup champions went systematically to work to see how many goals they could score against a team they had previously outclassed twice on the form sheets but beaten only once on the score card.

Stars won the first of the three game series here last Saturday night by 2-1 overtime and the Hawks evened the count by winning 4-1 on Monday night. With the title at stake, the fleet brigade from the Maritimes went into high gear at the start tonight and were seeking goal No. 14 at the finish as earnestly as they had sought No. 1 in the first stanza.

Everybody on the Moncton lineup except Goaler Jimmy Foster took a hand in the scoring and everybody scored at least once with the exception of Foster and "Nucker" Irvine, lean left winger who got his name in the scoring record with an assist.

Duke McDonald, Bill Miller, Bill Gill, Sammy McManus and Aubrey Webster scored two apiece and Bert Connolly, Dud James and Len Burrage kicked in with the others. It was just the sort of high-powered scoring Toronto fandom had expected of the Hawks in the first series game.

If the IAllan Cuppers took it easy in the first two games they worked hard tonight. There was little body checking—the idea was goals. The Hawks raced down three and four abreast in the hope of piling up the total even when they were shorthanded through penalties.

Stars Open Scoring

The luckless White Stars scored the first goal of the contest on a neat passing play, Al David shooting the puck past Foster. Then the Hawks ran in five without delay and led 5-1 starting the second period. They banged in three more in the middle stanza while the American champions were getting two.

The real fun was in the third session when the Hawks collected five more without reply. Even big Pete McMahon, brilliant Detroit goaler, had become thoroughly discouraged by this time, but he kicked out half a dozen shots that might have slipped past him.

McMahon was the lone defensive power of the Stars. His defence was riddled early in the game and the forwards were not fast enough to check back effectively. It was Moncton's 62nd game of the season and perhaps the easiest of them all.

The lineup:

Detroit: Goal, McMahon, defence, Wright and Robson; centre, Bigham; wings, Hunt and Sullivan; subs. David, Crossman, Reed, Kirwan.

Moncton: goal, Foster; defence Gill and Burrage; centre, Connolly; wings, McDonald and Irvine; subs. Webster, McManus, James, Miller.

Officials: M. J. Rodden, Toronto and Jack Tompkins, Detroit.

Summary

First period.

1—Detroit, David (Crossman, Reed) 4.32.

2—Moncton, Gill 8.31.

WAIVE TERRITORY RIGHTS TO N.H.L. IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, April 11.—The rumored transfer to St. Louis of the Ottawa club of the National Hockey League will not be opposed by the American Association if the minor circuit is compensated for the loss of territory, Governor W. Grant, association president, said here.

Grant, who voiced opposition to the proposed move when Ottawa despatches first reported it last week, said objection would be withdrawn if compensation is paid and Frank (Doc) Wainwright, operator of the present St. Louis club, is satisfied.

A league meeting would be necessary to determine what value the American Association would place on the franchise, Grant said. Hockey, which started slowly in St. Louis six years ago, reached a peak in the season just closed, more than 200,000 persons attending 24 home games.

HONOR RURAL CHAMPS

Brantford, April 11.—St. George village was en fete tonight, when the St. George Hockey club held its annual banquet, to mark the presentation of the Premier G. S. Henry cup as champions of the Ontario Rural Hockey Association. The team won the Brant county league, and then went through the playoffs, finally to defeat Blair in a great series. Plenty of bouquets were handed out during the evening, after the inner man had been supplied, and cards and dancing in the community hall followed. St. George village is proud of its team, having just about closed up to attend the hockey matches in Brantford and Galt rinks in the league and finals.

St. George is now looking forward to bowling activity, the village club being in its 20th year. Officers elected for this season are: Hon. president, Frank L. Ellis; president, Garfield Saas; vice-president James D. Malcolm; treasurer, Fred C. Garnett; representatives to Brant county doubles, G. Saas and F. C. Garnett; auditors, J. D. Malcolm, W. J. Scott.

Junior Soccerists Have Big Confab

New Trophies Are Presented And League Schedule Is Adopted

The regular meeting of the Junior soccer organization was the largest attended this year, the rooms being filled with many unable to secure seats. Delegates from St. Thomas, Ingersoll and the four local clubs being present. While the many players present were no doubt interested in any reinstatements the applicants were rejected in most cases, only one applicant receiving the approval of the association. The new trophies which were donated by Mayor C. Wenige and the Supertest Co. of London, were presented to the association at this meeting. Secretary T. Brock was instructed to write the donors expressing the appreciation of the association.

Consideration and approval of the schedule was debated at length and the following dates and games were approved, (home teams first):

RANGERS BUY LEVINSKY

New York, April 11—New York Rangers, of the National Hockey league, today announced the purchase of Alex. Levinsky from Toronto Maple Leafs.

Non-Winning Colt Is Derby Favorite

Louisville, Ky., April 11.—For the first time in history a colt that never won a race is the future book favorite for the Kentucky Derby. He is Sir Thomas, the nominee of A. B. Gordon who has high hopes of being the first Louisvillian to own a Derby winner since Old Rosebud triumphed for H. C. Applegate 20 years ago.

The popularity of Sir Thomas is demarkable in that only two "maidens" have won the Kentucky Derby in the 59 years of its history—J. K. L. Ross' Sir Barton in 1919 and Broker's Tip last year—but there are substantial reasons for the high esteem in which Sir Thomas is held. One of them is that he was sired by Sir Gallahad III, sire of Gallant Fox, victor in 1930 which still is the Derby winner standing highest among the turf world's leading money winners.

Sir Thomas is being trained by his owner, Mr. Gordon, who has conditioned several famed thoroughbreds in the past. Under the handling of a trainer who has proven his ability to prepare horses for distance races, the performance of Sir Thomas in workouts at Churchill Downs has made Louisville turf followers almost hysterical over his chances to win the 60th Kentucky Derby on May 5.

When the future book odds on Sir Thomas dropped to 8 to 1 last week, the Louisville railbirds prophesied his odds would drop to 6 to 1 this week, and 3 to 1 if he goes to the post in the Derby. Half of this prediction has ben fulfilled, as Tom Kearney, St. Louis Commissioner, reduced the odds on the Gordon nominee to 6 to 1 Monday, making him the favorite in his book.

Sir Thomas was working a mile around 1.45 at Douglas Park here in February, and it was not until some time later that the experts caught on and began touting the Gordon colt. His latest effort over the full Derby route of a mile and a quarter was 2.11, on a track three seconds slow.

DUPLICATE BRIDGE

The regular weekly meeting of the Tecumseh Duplicate Bridge Club was held in the Hotel London on Tuesday evening, April 10th., there being 34 members of the club present at this 26th game of the current season's play.

The club was divided into two sections for the night's play, there being a four table Howell game and a five table Mitchell game and the having plus scores on the evening's play are as follows:

Howell Game

Dr. H. A. Skinner and J. R. McPhillips, plus 10½; W. J. Lancaster and W. E. Spencer, (plus 8).

Mitchell Game (North and South)

Miss M. Clendenan and Mrs. A. W. Hayman, (plus 6); Mrs. H. Killaly and Miss J. Wilson, (plus 2); Dr. W. J. McLean and R. E. Pemberton, (plus 1½).

(East and West)

Mrs. W. Percival and Mrs. Turner, (plus 14); Mrs. H. Wilson and Mrs. R. W. Robertson, (plus 5½).

BAER IS ON WAY

Sacramento, Cal., April 11.—Max Baer was enroute to New York today and no one in the California heavyweight's entourage was more confident than Max that he would return home the heavyweight champion of the world.

"I'll knock him out, sure," Max confidently announced as he boarded the train here with his manager Ancil Hoffman, his trainer Mike Cantwell, and young brother, Buddy Baer.

Max was referring to Prima Carnera, the champion, whom he meets June 14.

Enroute to New York, Baer and his retinue will stop off at midwest cities for a series of exhibition bouts.

The Baer training camp will be established at Atlantic City early next month.

STABLE BOY WOUNDED; RACE TRACK IS SUED

Houston, Tex., April 11.—Two Two suits for damages aggregating $117,350 were fyled in Federal Court today against the Texas Breeders and Racing Association, owners of Epsom Downs track here, as the result of a shooting March 15 in which Tommy Blanchard, a Montreal stable boy, was wounded.

One suit was by Mrs. Cyrilla Blanchard of Montreal, on the boy's behalf, and the other was by Mrs. Blanchard on her own behalf. Blanchard was an employee of A. G. Tarn, Montreal stable owner.

Mrs. Blanchard's petition alleged the boy probably had been permanently disabled as a result of being shot by L. A. Eades, special officer employed by the Epsom Downs track. The mother declared her boy would have become a jockey next year and therefore had a reasonable expectation of earning $10,000 a year.

Chicago Game Short Overtime

Four Games In Last Five Years Longer

Chicago, April 11.—Four National hockey league play-off games in the last five years were longer than the Chicago-Detroit Stanley Cup final last night which went 30 minutes and five seconds of extra time before the Black Hawks won by 1-0 and captured the trophy.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins set the world record last spring when the Leafs won the N.H.L. title after 104 minutes and 46 seconds of overtime.

Mush March, one of the small men of hockey, scored the winning goal for the Hawks. March weighs 147, and a midget gave the Leafs in their endurance test against the Bruins, 127-pound Ken Doraty bagging the deciding tally.

Until last spring, the longest game on record was played in the 1930 playoffs when Montreal Canadiens and in the same playoff campaign, Canadiens went 52 minutes overtime against Chicago.

The women's committee follows: Miss Phyllis Butchart, Mrs. Murray Simpson, Mrs. Stuart Draper, Miss Janet Kirkpatrick, Miss Mary Boucher, Mrs. John Hutchinson, Mrs. L. G. Cargill.

Presentation of trophies was made to the year's winners: Senior championship, Graham S. Hobbs, runner-up, Mrs. C. H. Ivey; novice championship, Stuart S. Macfarlane, runner-up Miss P. Butchart; juvenile, Miss Mary Collinson, runner-up Miss Jean Wrighton.

St. Thomas Girls To Get New Park

Floodlighting Will Let Purples Play League Softball Games At Home

A new softball diamond with floodlights for night plya is being planned for St. Thomas, Charlie Smale of St. Thomas, president of the Major Intercity Girls' Softball League announced at a meeting of the circuit held he, last night.

During past seasons, St. Thomas Purples have had to play all their league games on the London diamond, but if their new field materializes they will play about 24 home games on it, the same team as last year, according to an announcement made by C. E. Speiran. During the latter part of the schedule the furniture girls made things interesting for all comers.

Gordon Southcott will again coach the Silverwood team and he is in search of a new catcher. Otherwise the Silverwood team will be the same as last season.

Kellogg, champions of the Major Intercity League for the past three years, plan on using much the same team as last year. Kelloggs will also sponsor an intermediate team.

A league schedule meeting will be held next week.

The three London entries—Kelloggs, Burroughes and Silverwoods—will again be starters in the league, and an intermediate league will also be sponsored here, the greater part of the intermediate fixtures to be played as openers on the senior bills.

During the last three years, the local senior teams have been affiliated with the Olympic League at Sunnyside in Toronto, but the Toronto Acorn League has made overtures for the coming summer.

It was decided to open the local season on or about May 15.

POLISH UP OLE' HORSE SHOES AT PETROLIA

Petrolia, April 11.—With the assurance that summer is not far off local horseshoe enthusiasts are polishing up their shoes in anticipation of a bright season this year. Already one has heard the clink of shoes this spring and the Enarco Horseshoe Club, which is a branch of the Enarco Athletic Club of the Canadian Oil Companies, Ltd., has recently held its organization meeting which resulted as follows: Manager, Russell Lennan; Assistant Manager, Charles Tobias; Grounds Committee, Chris Ayscough, Chet McRitchie, and William Mowlett; Transportation Committee, Roy Smith and Percy Whitlock.

During recent years the sport has become increasingly popular and the local club's annual competition brings large numbers from a distance to participate in the oil town's games. This year it is hoped that a large league may be formed which will include teams from Sarnia, Petrolia, Camlachie, Brigden and Rutherford.

RIDGETOWN BADMINTON

Ridgetown, April 11.—Members of the Ridgetown Badminton club enjoyed a tournament last evening, the group captained by Miss Reta Richardson won the evening's playing by one game over the group captained by Miss Katherine Bawden.

Miss Richardson's team consisted of the following: Miss Owen End, Miss Olive Clark, Miss Greta Locke, Miss G. I. Rodgers, Miss Veronica McGuire, Oscar Smith, William Beth Ward Turner, Harvey Stewart, William Shewan and Paul Jefferies. The members of Miss Bawden's team were: Miss M. K. Currie, Miss Dorothy Smith, Miss Eleanor Cruickshank, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lighthody, B. F. Harrison, Carl Martin, Maurice Jefferies, Dr. W. E. Lake and J. J. Nelson.

The members decided to continue until the end of April winding up the season with an entertainment.

PATRICK BOYS STAR

Montreal, April 11.—Assumption College of Windsor, Ontario Senior Basketball Champions, tonight lost the first game of the Ontario-Quebec Dominion playdawn by the narrowest of margins, being defeated by Nationales, Province of Quebec champions, 29-28.

The teams meet again here on Friday night and if a third game is necessary it will be played here Saturday. The winners will tackle Dalhousie University of Halifax, Maritime titlists, in the Eastern Canada semi-final.

It was regarded as the finest exhibition of the Cage game seen here in years. Nationale ran into a style of game unknown here, scientific to a degree but, in the end, the sustained speed of the Montreal team was just a little bit too much. Observers were predicting a great series, probably going three games.

The issue was in doubt to the last whistle. Murray Patrick scored the winning point with only seconds to go. He had been fouled by Des Jarlais of Windsor as he pivoted to shoot and was awarded two free shots. He missed the first but dropped the second through the hoop, breaking a 28-28 tie. As the remaining seconds ticked off Nationale warded off every thrust of the Ontario team.

Both teams felt confident of ultimate victory after the game. The Windsor coach stated by Friday he thought he could devise a defence that could stop the speedy line of Murray and Lynn Patrick, sons of Lester Patrick of New York Rangers, who flank Pat Griffin at centre. The visitors added that in almost 30 games this season they had not had to contend with such blazing speed.

Windso,—Meretsky, f, 3; Sherman, f., 2; Aitchison, f., 10; Rogin, c., 7; Byrne, g., 0; Desjaralais, f., 4; Nantais, g., 2; Galnup, g., 0.

Nationales—L. Patrick, f., 8; M. Patrick, f., 9; Griffin, c., 6; Melville, g., 6; Godsall, g., 0; Schuler, g., 0.

INTERMEDIATES WIN TOO

Montreal, April 11.—Smart passing forming the spearhead of their attack, Young Men's Hebrew Association of Montreal, tonight defeated Brockville Rowing Club 28-11 to win the twogame total round of the Dominion Intermediate Basketball playdowns 60-50. In the first game at Brockville on Saturday the Rowers won 39-32.

Y.M.H.A. now meet the Maritime champions, Saint John Young Men's Christian Institute Tynes, in the Eastern Canada semi-final.

TRUNDLERS ADOPTING GROUP SYSTEM AGAIN

O. B. A. Decides To Use It For Tourney At Hamilton This Year

Hamilton, April 11.—At a late meeting that drew representatives from many parts of the province, members of the Ontario Bowling Association decided to adopt the group system for the 46th Annual Tournament to be held on the Roselawn Club greens will assure for all rinks four games on here again this year. This system the first day and one on the second when the eliminations for the three rink trophies will be held. The games will all be 15 ends until the finals are reached.

Times were set for the opening of the singles and doubles competitions and it was decided that one event in each could be played but that they be run as a double competition with trophies in each. The singles competition will start at two o'clock on the second day of the tournament, while the doubles will commence at seven o'clock on that date.

A committe consisting of Dr. J. J. Williams, Roy Green, Ed. Bickle and Bob Hayes was appointed to take care of all problems arising between now and the tournament.

The balance sheet was presented by auditor R. H. Blythe and adopted, and a prize committee will consist of R. H. Foster, Roy Green and Bob Hayes.

A set of four miniature trophies fo the winners of the O.B.A. trophy will be presented by President James Berry. R. M. Ogilvie, of Roselawn was named chairman of the entertainment Committee, with power to add from members of his own club.

SAYS TRACK AND FIELD MARKS DUE FOR GRIEF

New York, April 11.—A four-minute mile, a 15-foot pole vault, a nine-second century and a 7-foot high jump are all possible, said Dan Ferris, secretary of the A.A.U. in commenting to-day on track prospects for the summer.

Ferris accurately forecast the winter spree of record breaking last fall and since he is recognized as one of the greatest track authorities in the country, his words bear weight.

"Bill Graber of Southern California has everything he needs to pole vault 15 feet, said Dan. Jesse Owens, the great colored star of Ohio state, is the type most likely to succeed in doing a nine-second century and Glenn Cunningham is the man most likely to get down to four minutes for the mile. Walter Marty, who has jumped 6 feet 9½ inches may be the man to add on 2½ more inches. None of them may succeed in making these records but I think Cunningham will surely do 4.06 this summer and he stands the best chance of any of hanging up an even four-minute mile.

"Cunningham and Bill Bonthron of Princeton might meet in the A.A.U. championships at Milwaukee June 30, and if they do all mile marks are sure to go overboard."

"WHAT IT TAKES" IN THIS SPORT IS COMB

New York, April 11—A pebble once cost the Giants a world series with Washington. An equally lowly marble upset Brown Berry in last year's famed Hambletonian Trotting Stakes. And every one knows what sickle pear did to Sidney Noyes in last year's National Amateur golf championships. So sports history repeated itself yesterday at the Hotel Astor when an ordinary pocket comb helped crown Solly Schiff, of New York, as national table tennis champion.

Max Rushakoff, of Chicago, the runner-up for the title, is known as the most colorful player in the game and also a "goat-getter." A good competitive temperament is considered the chief arrow in the quiver of a table tennis champion. Once a table tennis player's nerves begin to bother him his game is gone. Rushakoff had a cute trick which made his opponent explode. In the middle of a game he'd take a pocket comb from his trousers and begin to arrange his dark and lengthy locks.

This trick had its irrifating effect on Marcus Schussheim, the same "Marvellous Marcus" who won the title six times. But when Rushakoff tried it on Solly Schiff, he found a champion equal to the occasion and the trick proved a boomerang. For Solly "kept his attitude," a al Schnozzle Durante, pulled a comb out of his own pocket and stroked it through his curly red mane. It was sensational!

The crowd of 500 in the ball room of the Astor roared its approval as the two Hebrew contestants stood tense, glaring at each other, the while they performed their seemingly pleasant toilettries, Solly walked off with the match, 21—16, 21—18, 21—12. The lucky lad from Chicago blew up like a Cincinnati pitcher.

Solly is 16, small and a student at Textile High School. He hopes to study engineering at Cooper Union.

completed its work and a strong executive representative of every major sport in the city should be the result of the elections.

The opening of Tecumseh Park and its operation this year depends on support which would be more general than it has been in the past and that seems to be guaranteed by the launching of the Federation.

Braves Acquire Marty McManus

Veteran Of 14 A. L. Campaigns Will Replace Injured Maranville

Boston, April 11—Some pressing baseball problems were solved today when Martin Joseph McManus, 34-year-old veteran of 14 American baseball league campaigns, came to Boston Braves by purchase from Brooklyn Dodgers as a second-base replacement for the injured Rabbit Maranville.

First of all, Marty, who was made a free agent last fall after managing the Red Sox for a season and a half, was snatched from the limbo of baseball's forgotten men and given the ideal spot in which to continue his playing career.

Although he had an all-time major league batting average of .290 with St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers before coming to Boston in 1931, the Dodgers were so glutted with youner infielders that he seemed forever doomed to a bench job while he remained with Brooklyn.

With the Braves, he should be highly successful. He is probably a notch or so below the lamented Rabbit in fielding, but his superior batting punch more than makes up the difference.

The Dodgers will find the cash much more satisfactory than McManus' service, for they were long on infielders and very short in the exchequer.

OXFORD BADMINTON GETS STARTED AT WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Ont., April 11—The Oxford County Badminton tournament opened here tonight with over 270 entries. The majority of the matches tonight were between local players. RATED 3RD IN POLL

New York, April 10 —(UP)—Pirates Manager George Gibson, facing what may be his last major league season, will make a desperate bid for the National League pennant. He has an excellent chance to win and was rated third in the writers' poll.

Gibson is grooming a strong, dangerous club which packs more punch than any other outfit in the circuit. This punch, combined with the lively Pittsburgh its first pennant since 1927. ball, may turn the trick and give

Were the Pirates better balanced, they would appear certain winners. However, because of a weak spot at second base and no promise of shampionship pitching, it is doubtful if they can pound past the even-keeled Cardinals, who appear to have championship prospects. Hence, the Buccaneers seem destined to wind up in the same second place berth they they occupied for the last two seasons.

In addition, the morale of the club may be affected by dressing room gossip which has Pie Traynor replacing Gibson as Manager next season if the Pirates fail.

Beat Cards in Batting

Spotted pitching was the chief cause for the Pirates' failure to come through last season. It was by far the best hitting club in the league. Even though the Waner boys slumped, the club wound up with a batting average of .285, nine points above the Cards.

Attempting to strengthen the mound staff, Gibson made what may prove a shrewd move during the off-season. He parted with his best hitter, Second Baseman Tony Piet, to acquire Pitcher Red Lucas from Cincinnati. The exchange of outfielders Comorosky and Roettger also figured in the deal.

Gibson figured he had sufficient strength at the plate to part with a .333 hitter for a mound workhorse who could win 16 out of 36 with a tail-end club like the Reds of 1933. Moreover, Lucas is an excellent pinch-hitter.

Other starting pitchers will be Larry French, Heine Meine, Bill Swift and probably Ralph Birkofer. Additional hold-overs are Hal Smith, Bill Harris, Waite Hoyt and Leon Chagnon. Outstanding rookie prospects are Lloyd Johnson, a southpaw from the San Francisco club, and Darrel Blanton, from St. Joseph. Outside of Lucas and French the staff looks very ordinary.

Thevenow Favored

With Piet gone from the infield, Gibson hopes that the veteran Tommy Thevenow, Floyd Young, or the promising Harry Lavagetto from the Oakland club, may hold down second base creditably. Thevenow seems to have the first call. The rest of the infield will be the same, with Pie Traynor on third, Floyd Vaughan at short, and Gus Suhr at first.

The luh is fortiefied with one of the strongest outfields in the majors: Freddie Lindstrom in left, Lloyd Waner in centre and Paul Waner in right. Freddie hit .310 last season.

Handicapped by illness, Lloyd Waner slumped to .276 and brother Paul also fell off to .309. The Waners are expected to come through this season. Wally Roettger from the Reds and Forest Jensen are utility men.

Cather Earl Grace is a capable receiver. He hit .288 last season. He will be assisted by Hal Finney and either Tom Padden or a newcomer from the Oakland club, Art Veltman, advertised as a heavy hitter.

WALLACEBURG SOFTBALL

Wallaceburg, April 11—At least five teams are assured for the Wallaceburg Interchurch Softball league this year following a meeting of the league last evening when all the churches but the Anglican made their entries. The Presbyterians, the present holders of the Marshall Clark Trophy, may have two entries in an effort to retain possession of the cup.

Another meeting of the league is to be held on Tuesday evening of next week when all entries will be in and the officers will be elected for the year.

MR. KING URGES SOUTH OXFORD TO DEFEND PARLIAMENTARY RIGHTS

Federal Liberal Leader Speaks To Crowded Election Meetings At Norwich and Tillsonburg

Says Cabinet Is Usurping Power At Expense Of Constitutional Liberties—Real Danger Of Dictatorship Menaces Canada—Gov't Should Go To Country This Fall If Defeated In S. Oxford

Wonders What Influence Kept Tobacco Report Unpublished So Long—Vigorous Speeches Made By M. F. Hepburn, M.P., Hon. J. C. Elliott, M.P., And A. S. Rennie, Liberal Candidate

By Staff Reporter

Tillsonburg, April 11—A world social revolution, which because of its extent is without parallel in history, is going on today. It will test in Canada the principle of Parliamentary government, declared Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Liberal leader, here tonight before a cheering throng in Tillsonburg town hall. Every inch of space in the auditorium, along the aisles, behind the stage, at the windows and every nook and corner was crowded as 800 people saw and heard Mr. King. Downstairs in the council chamber another 200 people heard the addresses relayed by loud speaker, and scores more gathered outside where there were more loud speakers.

The choice for Canada today is between dictatorship and democracy through Parliamentary Government, declared Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in addresses before two large meetings yesterday in the interest of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election on Monday next. Already, said Mr. King, Parliament under the domination of a Tory majority has transferred most of its powers to the Governor-in-Council, which usually means the Cabinet but today means Mr. Bennett.

"I wonder if you realize to what extent your Parliamentary institutions have been shot to pieces in this country. Today we are in the middle of a world social revolution and the problem before us is where is it going to end."

Large Meetings

The afternoon meeting was at Norwich where far more than could be accommodated sought admision to the hall. At Tillsonburg at night another thousand people heard Mr. King and accorded him a spontaneous and prolonged ovation.

Mr. King uttered a clarion call for a national unemployment policy. The $110,000,000 dollars of federal expenditures in the last four years have not touched the fundamentals while all this money was being spent the government was promoting its policy of scarcity through trade and wheat production restrictions. The home market is being destroyed along with the purchasing power of the people.

Must Go To Country

Mr. King declared that the Bennett government in the event of a defeat in South Oxford could not afford to carry on the government of the country past next fall. The last four by-elections have demonstrated, he said, that it entirely lacks the confidence of the people.

At Tillsonburg Mr. King dealt at length with the Sutherland tobacco report and declared that the government was "humbugging" the farmers again.

At Norwich Mr. King was introduced by Hon. J. C. Elliott, K. C., M. P. Other speakers were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader. Mr. Rennie and Mr. Hepburn also spoke at Tillsonburg.

Downstairs in the council chamber another 200 people heard the addresses relayed by loud speaker, and scores more gathered outside where there were more loud speakers.

Ready for Change

The Liberal party welcomes and is prepared to sponsor the changes which have become necessary in the world social and economic order, said the leader.

Changes of equal importance with the crusades, the Renaissance, the American revolution and the industrial revolution. "Today we have something which resembles them all but which instead of confining itself to one country takes in the world. We are in a world revolution.

"For my part I welcome those changes with all my heart. Not all of them. But I welcome that which will bring a more equitable distribution of wealth. I welcome the change to bring social justice. I welcome the change to bring touch to many instead of most to a privileged few. I am glad to live in an age in which it is possible to bring these things about.

Needs Direction

"These changes will lead to terrible results in some parts of the world and must go farther than we expect in others. It will sweep right over us, this great onward movement of social change; it will sweep away the lives and homes of the people as well if not properly directed," he said.

Only by being true to the great principles of government which have guided British history can Canada escape chaos, he said.

"There is nothing in the world today comparable to British institutions, freedom from dictatorship and faith in the common sense of the common people. Let us hold to these institutions. Let us direct these great forces through the halls of parliament. Let us bring into parliament men of courage who will say, 'You, Mr. Banker, must give up your special rights and let the people have more credit! Who will say that it is time for manufacturers to cease to take exorbitant profits and give instead fair wages to labor. But the place to say and do those things is in parliament," he said.

Other speakers tonight were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader.

Mr. King was given a rousing greeting as he rose. He said he came here to discuss with the people of South Oxford the problems that confront Canadians as "a fellow citizen of this Dominion."

Confidence Gone

The Liberal victories in the past four federal by-elections, he declared, "showed clearly that the people do not want the present government to continue in office.

"By electing Mr. Rennie next Monday you will be serving notice to this government that it is time it got out," Mr. King asserted, amid a burst of applause.

Mr. King said he hoped to show that the voice of the people had very little part in the present government. The public will was being thwarted on every hand; its representatives were being given no chance to express the people's will; and democracy was in peril in this Dominion.

"What appreciation has been shown to this riding of South Oxford by the Bennett administration?" Mr. King asked. "It had the opportunity of showing that appreciation at the time the Redistribution Bill was brought down and what did he do? It has wiped the constituency of South Oxford off the map altogether.

"I tell you that if Mackenzie King had been at the head of the gov-

BENNETT FAVORS EARLY REVISION OF B.N.A. ACT FOR SOCIAL LEGISLATION

But Does Not Intend To Make Start At It Until After Election

EULER SUGGESTS NEW COMMISSION

Former Minister Would Study Co-Ordination Of Social Legislation Under Central Authority

Canadian Press Despatch

Ottawa, April 11.—Premier R. B. Bennett favors early revision of the British North America Act, Canada's written constitution, to permit the Dominion to take wider control of social legislation, he told the House of Commons today. But he intimated he didnot intend to make a start in that direction until after the next election.

Euler Suggests Commission

Interrupting a leisurely debate on the government unemployment relief bill, Hon. W. D. Euler, former Liberal minister of national revenue, threw out a suggestion for a commission to study co-ordination of social legislation under a central authority. He proposed unemployment insurance, old age pensions, health insurance, workmen's compensation, widows' allowances and poor relief under Dominion administration.

Would Necessitate Revision

A social legislation set-up on the Euler plan would necessitate revision of the British North America Act, noted the Prime Minister, because the provinces at confederation were given this jurisdiction.

Toronto, April 11.—Police tonight abandoned their investigation of a story by Curzon, Trinity College student, that he had been kidnapped and taken to London, after the youth's father, F. C. Clarkson, told them the story was a hoax.

Police said Mr. Clarkson told them his son was suffering from overwrought nerves, induced by worry over examinations and that he believed he had invented the story after driving to London himself and realizing he must explain his absence from home.

Provincial Officers Also Address Enthusiastic Twentieth Century Club Rally Here

Liberalism's greatest task today is the accomplishment of economic liberty for the people of Canada, Miss Odette Lapointe, of Quebec, president of the women's section of the Federation of Twentieth Century Clubs of Canada told an enthusiastic and overcrowded meeting in Hyman Hall last night. The meeting was held under the auspices of the local Twentieth Century Clubs.

The talented young speaker, who is the daughter of the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice, was accompanied to London by Miss Patricia O'Connell, of Brockville, secretary of the Women's section of the Ontario Twentieth Century Clubs, Mr. R. A. MacDougall, of Woodstock, president of the Men's section of the Federation of Twentieth Century Clubs of Canada, and Mr. Donald Begg, of St. Thomas, president of the Men's section, of the Twentieth Century Clubs of Ontario.. Mayer Lerner, of London, provincial vice-president, acted as chairman.

Bennett Four Years Late

"Conservative leadership has not done one thing to bring about economic liberty in Canada," said Miss Lapointe, pointing to the past four years.

"Mr. Bennett did nothing for the unemployed through most of his term of office. Now in the last minute he comes forward with a program of work that should have been started four years ago. If it had been done then, men with money might have followed the government's example. Canada's workingmen might have had work, and better spending power." She placed the recent government program in the category of pre-election bait.

"Young people of Canada have all the instruments necessary for a change of order, in their hands," said Miss Lapointe, continuing. She said they could move Canada's wheat to export markets, they could open Canada's factories, they could once more guarantee Canada's workingmen work, and money with which to buy the things they need, for themselves and for their families. And they had the power in their hands with which to obtain capable government for the country, if they would but think for themselves, and decided for themselves.

Aim to Interest Young Voters

"Young men and young women should take an active interest in the affairs of their country" she said. "It was to make this possible, and to en-

Fire-Fighting Apparatus At Hunt Mill Inadequate Is Inquest Jury Verdict

Find Also That Fire Inspection Not Properly Carried Out

FIRE DEPARTMENT'S WORK COMMENDED

Long List Of Witnesses Testify At Resumed Inquest Last Night

A coroner's jury, sitting at the King street police station until after 1 o'clock this morning, returned a verdict that District Chief Stanley Scruby of the London Fire Department came to his death in the fire at the Hunt Mill on March 3 as the result of burns and suffocation sustained while in the performance of his duty as a fireman.

The jury added two riders to the verdict. "We are of the opinion that the inspection for fire preventative purposes was not adequate, and that the mill fire equipment was not in proper condition."

Praise Firemen

The jury's verdict was also to the effect that the members wished to commend the action of the London Fire Department, particularly Lieut. Robert Barnes whose presence of mind was responsible for saving his comrades' lives.

The jury had reference to the actions of Lieut. Barnes who leaped from a window, clutched the top rung of the aerial ladder and as he did so noticed some of his comrades hanging to the window sills of upper floors. He shouted to the men on the ground to spread the life nets for them to jump into. From the ground it was almost impossible to see the men on the window sills owing to the dense clouds of smoke that were issuing from the upper story windows.

8 Witnesses Called

Eight witnesses were called by Crown Attorney A. M. Judd, K.C., last night, while five others testified at the opening session a week ago. Last night's sitting commenced at 8 o'clock and the jury did not reach a verdict until 1.15 o'clock this morning.

The highlights of last night's evidence were provided by members of the London Fire Department who were in the burning mill when their two comrades lost their lives. They told of trying to reach safety through blinding smoke and of jumping from the sixth floor through a smoke screen to the life nets below. One told of leaping from a window to catch the top rung of the aerial ladder, while others told of crawling on their hands and knees through smoke filled floors of the building.

Architect Describes Plans

J. N. Watt, architect of this city, told the jury the original plans of the building were drawn-up in March, 1917 by the firm of Watt and Blackwell. He said the north section of the building had two fire doors on each floor. He said the building was of re-inforced concrete skeleton with exterior panels of brick with large wood frames and sashes. "When the building was nearly completed we were requested to send a set of blue prints to the Department of Labor," he said. As far as I know these were approved by the Department.

The first fire at the Hunt Mill occurred on December 30, 1924. Mr. Watt stated that on the fifth floor there was no fire door at the stairway and the only opening would be through the elevator providing the elevator was at that floor. On the plans, the floors were of modern construction and the only concrete sections were over the boiler-room and the vault.

Witness said he was not associated with the reconstruction of the mill after the 1924 fire.

L. & P. S. PLANS BIG IMPROVEMENT

Include Construction Of $100,000 Drawbridge And A New Dock

CONFERENCE HELD

Commission Also Discusses With Village Council Adequate Protection Of Bathers

Ambitious plans which suggest the construction of a new $100,000 draw bridge, the building of a new dock, and the further establishment of coal interests at Port Stanley, were tentatively discussed and mapped last night at the port, at a joint meeting of the L. & P. S. commission and the Port Stanley Village Council.

Building of a lift bridge to replace the present stationary structure spanning Kettle Creek near the railway station, was stressed as the key project for which the commission and council would strive. Instead of repairs to the structure now standing, for which the provincial government has already signified its willingness to share in the cost, attention will now be directed towards obtaining an entirely new bridge.

Will Help Western Ontario

Should the plan succeed, Mayor George A. Wenige stated last night he believed the project would have a direct bearing on Western Ontario. Construction of the bridge, the mayor believed, would be followed by the building of a new dock: greater facilities for lake vessels would be created, and further inducement held out for oil and coal concerns to use the port as their base and shipping centre.

To Protect Bathers

Apart from building plans advanced with a view to placing Port Stanley "on the map" as a live lake port, the joint meeting decided upon measures of protection for swimmers this summer. Authorization was given the proposal to place life preservers at every 200 feet along the lake front. Additional plans for the employment this summer of life guards and the placing of lifeboats at strategic points along the waterfront were also mooted and held over for further consideration.

A.W. CUTTEN CITED OVER GRAIN SALES

Former Guelph Man Charged With Concealing And Falsifying Records

SECRETARY WALLACE ACTS AFTER STUDY

If Charges Prove True Markets Will Be Barred To Wealthy Operator

Associated Press Despatch

Washington, April 11—Arthur W. Cutten, a native of Guelph, Ont., was charged today by United States Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace with failure to file reports of short sales and making false reports to the grain futures administration to manipulate grain prices.

The Secretary cited the Chicago grain trader to appear on May 14 for a hearing at Chicago, Seth. Thomas, solicitor for the Department of Agriculture, said if the charges were substantiated an order would be issued directing all contract markets to refuse trading privileges to Cutten.

The citation said Cutten "conspired and colluded" with firms and persons on the Chicago Board of Trade "to conceal his trading and position in the market" as to so "make inaccurate, incorrect and false reports of his position in the market."

Big Dealings

During 1930 and 1931, the complaint declared, Cutten sold wheat futures in excess of 100,000,000 bushels. It is said that during 1930 he sold wheat futures short in excess of 37,000,000 bushels and in 1931 was short in excess of 36,000,000 bushels.

He had "an open position in the market on 582 trading days during the years 1930 and 1931 and he was short of these days" and during the period covered by these operations "the price of wheat futures on the board of trade declined from $1.34⅜ per bushel for the July future on Jan. 2, 1930, to 36¼ cents per bushel for the July future on Dec. 31, 1931, a decline of more than 78 cents per bushel.

The citation said that Cutten, in order to cover up his transactions "caused and procured various grain firms and persons by and through whom his trades on the Board of Trade were made, to keep false records and to make false reports to the grain futures administration.

Concealed Trades?

"Respondent caused said persons and firms to split and divide his account into several sections and to carry the same under various names and symbols and by this means concealed and covered up his trades," it added.

During the two years Cutten was declared to have "attempted to manipulate the price of grain" by means of false reports and false records kept by those handling his "dummy" accounts.

Wallace said at his weekly press conference Cutten was the man "who had articles in a weekly magazine of large circulation," arguing for unrestricted markets and complaining about regulations imposed by the Government.

He added that Cutten was "one of the great supporters of the law of supply and demand" and had "viewed with alarm the operations of the agricultural ajustment administration."

Cutten left Guelph when he was 20 and acted as a trader and bookkeeper for a grain firm for two more decades before he went into business for himself in 1904. Rarely does he verify, deny or embellish the stories of his coups in the wheat pit which float about Chicago. But in 1925 he paid the biggest income tax of any individual in the district—$540,00.

Cutten is now 64.

"I tell you that if Mackenzie King had been at the head of the government when the Redistribution Bill came up, South Oxford would not have been wiped out," the speaker asserted.

Answering the question, "Why isn't South Oxford represented at this session?" Mr. King said that there was a feeling in some persons that they would rather have someone boss them than think for themselves. It was the trend toward dictatorship. The people of South Oxford now had the opportunity of saying what they thought about such a system.

A Hard-Won Privilege

"It is important that our parliaments be kept representative because we are getting farther and farther away from that ideal. It was that right of representation of the people that the pioneers and leaders of the past fought for in this country," Mr. King continued.

Turning to Mr. Bennett's pre-election promises, the Liberal chieftain declared that the two main ones on which he secured election were that he would give work, not the dole, and that he would provide markets for Canadian products. He had

BENNETT FAVORS EARLY REVISION OF B.N.A. ACT FOR SOCIAL LEGISLATION

But Does Not Intend To Make Start At It Until After Election

EULER SUGGESTS NEW COMMISSION

Former Minister Would Study Co-Ordination Of Social Legislation Under Central Authority

Canadian Press Despatch

Ottawa, April 11.—Premier R. B. Bennett favors early revision of the British North America Act, Canada's written constitution, to permit the Dominion to take wider control of social legislation, he told the House of Commons today. But he intimated he didnot intend to make a start in that direction until after the next election.

Euler Suggests Commission

Interrupting a leisurely debate on the government unemployment relief bill, Hon. W. D. Euler, former Liberal minister of national revenue, threw out a suggestion for a commission to study co-ordination of social legislation under a central authority. He proposed unemployment insurance, old age pensions, health insurance, workmen's compensation, widows' allowances and poor relief under Dominion administration.

Would Necessitate Revision

A social legislation set-up on the Euler plan would necessitate revision of the British North America Act, noted the Prime Minister, because the provinces at confederation were given this jurisdiction.

"There is not the slightest doubt in the world," continued the Prime Minister, while members discarded their newspapers and sat upright in their seats, "that unless there is a rearrangement of the powers of parliament and the legislatures of the provinces, in the very nature of things, the problem cannot be dealt with."

Says Commission Unnecessary

A commission to study co-ordination of social legislation was unnecessary, the Prime Minister said. The Government already had all the information it needed. "If I have the jurisdiction I need nothing further in the way of information. I say that very frankly because we have spent enormous efforts and considerable time and patience to see that information is available.

"All I can usefully say at this time is that I hold a very strong opinion as to the necessity of an early revision of the provisions of the B. N. A. Act. . . . I need not go further except to say that we recognize the difficulty and any steps we may take

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 11.—Police tonight abandoned their investigation of a story by Curzon, Trinity College student, that he had been kidnapped and taken to London, after the youth's father, F. C. Clarkson, told them the story was a hoax.

Police said Mr. Clarkson told them his son was suffering from overwrought nerves, induced by worry over examinations and that he believed he had invented the story after driving to London himself and realizing he must explain his absense from home.

Young Clarkson, 18, appeared about two o'clock this morning at Byron Sanatorium, eight miles northwest of London, and told authorities there he had been kidnapped. He was wet and cold. Police started to investigate his story that he had been seized as he sat in his car in Toronto.

They found the car in a gully about half a mile from the Sanatorium.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the local Twentieth Century Clubs.

The talented young speaker, who is the daughter of the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice, was accompanied to London by Miss Patricia O'Connell, of Brockville, secretary of the Women's section of the Ontario Twentieth Century Clubs, Mr. R. A. MacDougall, of Woodstock, president of the Men's section of the Federation of Twentieth Century Clubs of Canada, and Mr. Donald Begg, of St. Thomas, president of the Men's section, of the Twentieth Century Clubs of Ontario.. Mayer Lerner, of London, provincial vice-president, acted as chairman.

Bennett Four Years Late

"Conservative leadership has not done one thing to bring about economic liberty in Canada," said Miss Lapointe, pointing to the past four years.

"Mr. Bennett did nothing for the unemployed through most of his term of office. Now in the last minute he comes forward with a program of work that should have been started four years ago. If it had been done then, men with money might have followed the government's example. Canada's workingmen might have had work, and better spending power." She placed the recent government program in the category of pre-election bait.

"Young people of Canada have all the instruments necessary for a change of order, in their hands," said Miss Lapointe, continuing. She said they could move Canada's wheat to export markets, they could open Canada's factories, they could once more guarantee Canada's workingmen work, and money with which to buy the things they need, for themselves and for their families. And they had the power in their hands with which to obtain capable government for the country, if they would but think for themselves, and decided for themselves.

Aim to Interest Young Voters

"Young men and young women should take an active interest in the affairs of their country" she said. "It was to make this possible, and to en-

Fire-Fighting Apparatus At Hunt Mill Inadequate Is Inquest Jury Verdict

Find Also That Fire Inspection Not Properly Carried Out

FIRE DEPARTMENT'S WORK COMMENDED

Long List Of Witnesses Testify At Resumed Inquest Last Night

A coroner's jury, sitting at the King street police station until after 1 o'clock this morning, returned a verdict that District Chief Stanley Scruby of the London Fire Department came to his death in the fire at the Hunt Mill on March 3 as the result of burns and suffocation sustained while in the performance of his duty as a fireman.

The jury added two riders to the verdict. "We are of the opinion that the inspection for fire preventative purposes was not adequate, and that the mill fire equipment was not in proper condition."

Praise Firemen

The jury's verdict was also to the effect that the members wished to commend the action of the London Fire Department, particularly Lieut. Robert Barnes whose presence of mind was responsible for saving his comrades' lives.

The jury had reference to the actions of Lieut. Barnes who leaped from a window, clutched the top rung of the aerial ladder and as he did so noticed some of his comrades hanging to the window sills of upper floors. He shouted to the men on the ground to spread the life nets for them to jump into. From the ground it was almost impossible to see the men on the window sills owing to the dense clouds of smoke that were issuing from the upper story windows.

8 Witnesses Called

Eight witnesses were called by Crown Attorney A. M. Judd, K.C., last night, while five others testified at the opening session a week ago. Last night's sitting commenced at 8 o'clock and the jury did not reach a verdict until 1.15 o'clock this morning.

The highlights of last night's evidence were provided by members of the London Fire Department who were in the burning mill when their two comrades lost their lives. They told of trying to reach safety through blinding smoke and of jumping from the sixth floor through a smoke screen to the life nets below. One told of leaping from a window to catch the top rung of the aerial ladder, while others told of crawling on their hands and knees through smoke filled floors of the building.

Architect Describes Plans

J. N. Watt, architect of this city, told the jury the original plans of the building were drawn-up in March, 1917 by the firm of Watt and Blackwell. He said the north section of the building had two fire doors on each floor. He said the building was of re-inforced concrete sketeton with exterior panels of brick with large wood frames and sashes. "When the building was nearly completed we were requested to send a set of blue prints to the Department of Labor," he said. As far as I know these were approved by the Department.

The first fire at the Hunt Mill occurred on December 20, 1924. Mr. Watt stated that on the fifth floor there was no fire door at the stairway and the only opening would be through the elevator providing the elevator was at that floor. On the plans, the floors were of modern construction and the only concrete sections were over the boiler-room and the vault.

Witness said he was not associated with the reconstruction of the mill after the 1924 fire.

L. & P. S. PLANS BIG IMPROVEMENT

Include Construction Of $100,000 Drawbridge And A New Dock

CONFERENCE HELD

Commission Also Discusses With Village Council Adequate Protection Of Bathers

Ambitious plans which suggest the construction of a new $100,000 draw bridge, the building of a new dock, and the further establishment of coal interests at Port Stanley, were tentatively discussed and mapped last night at the port, at a joint meeting of the L. & P. S. commission and the Port Stanley Village Council.

Building of a lift bridge to replace the present stationary structure spanning Kettle Creek near the railway station, was stressed as the key project for which the commission and council would strive. Instead of repairs to the structure now standing, for which the provincial government has already signified its willingness to share in the cost, attention will now be directed towards obtaining an entirely new bridge.

Will Help Western Ontario

Should the plan succeed, Mayor George A. Wenige stated last night he believed the project would have a direct bearing on Western Ontario. Construction of the bridge, the mayor believed, would be followed by the building of a new dock; greater facilities for lake vessels would be created, and further inducement held out for oil and coal concerns to use the port as their base and shipping centre.

To Protect Bathers

Apart from building plans advanced with a view to placing Port Stanley "on the map" as a live lake port, the joint meeting decided upon measures of protection for swimmers this summer. Authorization was given the proposal to place life preservers at every 300 feet along the lake front. Additional plans for the employment this summer of life guards and the placing of lifeboats at strategic points along the waterfront were also mooted and held over for further consideration.

A.W. CUTTEN CITED OVER GRAIN SALES

Former Guelph Man Charged With Concealing And Falsifying Records

SECRETARY WALLACE ACTS AFTER STUDY

If Charges Prove True Markets Will Be Barred To Wealthy Operator

Associated Press Despatch

Washington, April 11—Arthur W. Cutten, a native of Guelph, Ont., was charged today by United States Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace with failure to file reports of short sales and making false reports to the grain futures administration to manipulate grain prices.

The Secretary cited the Chicago grain trader to appear on May 14 for a hearing at Chicago. Seth. Thomas, solicitor for the Department of Agriculture, said if the charges were substantiated an order would be issued directing all contract markets to refuse trading privileges to Cutten.

The citation said Cutten "conspired and colluded" with firms and persons on the Chicago Board of Trade "to conceal his trading and position in the market" an to so "make inaccurate, incorrect and false reports of his position in the market."

Big Dealings

During 1930 and 1931, the complaint declared, Cutten sold wheat futures in excess of 100,000,000 bushels. It is said that during 1930 he sold wheat futures short in excess of 37,000,000 bushels and in 1931 was short in excess of 36,000,000 bushels.

He had "an open position in the market on 582 trading days during the years 1930 and 1931 and he was short of these days" and during the period covered by these operations "the price of wheat futures on the board of trade declined from $1.34⅝ per bushel for the July future on Jan. 2, 1930, to 56¼ cents per bushel for the July future on Dec. 31, 1931, a decline of more than 78 cents per bushel.

The citation said that Cutten, in order to cover up his transactions "caused and procured various grain firms and persons by and through whom his trades on the Board of Trade were made, to keep false records and to make false reports to the grain futures administration.

Concealed Trades?

"Respondent caused said persons and firms to split and divide his account into several sections and to carry the same under various names and symbols and by this means concealed and covered up his trades," it added.

During the two years Cutten was declared to have "attempted to manipulate the price of grain" by means of false reports and false records kept by those handling his "dummy" accounts.

Wallace said at his weekly press conference Cutten was the man "who had articles in a weekly magazine of large circulation," arguing for unrestricted markets and complaining about regulations imposed by the Government.

He added that Cutten was "one of the great supporters of the law of supply and demand" and had "viewed with alarm the operations of the agricultural ajustment administration."

Cutten left Guelph when he was 20 and acted as a trader and bookkeeper for a grain firm for two more decades before he went into business for himself in 1904. Rarely does he verify, deny or embellish the stories of his coups in the wheat pit which float about Chicago. But in 1925 he paid the biggest income tax of any individual in the district—$540,00.

Cutten is now 64.

READY TO ADMIT RUSSIA TO LEAGUE

Ground Prepared At Geneva By Little Entente And Soviet Delegates

Associated Press Cable

Geneva, April 11.—The ground was reported prepared today for the admission of Russia to the League of Nations.

Nicholas Titulescu of Rumania conmerred at length with Dr. Eduoard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, and Boris Stein of Russia concerning the recognition of the Soviets by the Little Entente and during the discussions they took up the entire Russian problem, it was understood.

The impression in league circles tonight was that Russia is waiting for an invitation to join the league and hopes that additional countries will extend recognition. It was regarded likely that the Soviets will not make a decision until such recognition is forthcoming.

CONVICT VIRGIL BROWN

Mr. Bennett To Be First Speaker In Debate at Brownsville Tonight But Premier Does Not Know It Yet

Special to the Advertiser

(By Staff Reporter)

Tillsonburg, April 11.—Premier Bennett is going to be the first speaker in a debate Thursday night but he does not know it yet. It will take place at Brownsville though Mr. Bennett will be in Ottawa.

Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Ontario Liberal leader, who is taking an active part in the South Oxford federal by-election, announced the plan tonight The Tories have made much ado about Mr. Bennett's appeal to South Oxford electors which is to be broadcast Thursday from eight to eight forty-five.

"We want everybody to hear the Premier," says Mr. Hepburn, "so we have arranged to have a radio platform at Brownsville tomorrow night. The chairman will say a few words and then he will introduce Mr. Bennett who will speak for forty-five minutes. But the meeting won't be over then. Mr. R. J. Deachman and myself are then going to take Mr. Mennett's arguments and expose them. It will be some show." The Liberals have arranged the rally in Brownsville in support of A. S. Rennie.

type" windows in the building. He said they were of the steel-sash type which he thought would be harder to make an escape through than the ordinary wooden type.

T. C. McBride, city building inspector was the next witness. He said the permit for reconstruction was taken out on June 24, 1927 and the contract was given to Joseph Creighton, local contractor. He explained he did not personally keep in touch with the work but that duty was carried out by two assistants.

"The city engineer stated that the Hunt Milling Co. were going to have expert engineers on the job and we would not have to bother much in the check-up on the reconstruction job," said Mr. McBride. "The building was to be reconstructed along similar lines as prior to the fire. Unless there is anything found to be wrong the inspectors do not make a report, other than leave a memo of the date of the visit."

Would Not Investigate

"Would you not investigate if it had been reported fire doors were blocked or the mill part moved from the south to the north of the building?" asked Mr. Judd.

"Not particularly as it didn't make any difference in the construction of the building," he replied.

"Did you ever receive any report from these expert engineers?"

"No."

"Have you any report of any of the changes made in the reconstruction in 1927?"

"No."

"Do you know the names of these expert engineers?" "No."

"What does the examination by your assistants call for?"

"Structural construction."

"Were you informed by your assistants that the reconstruction plans did not correspond with the original plans as approved by the Department of Labor?" "Did your inspectors not notice that?" "I did not notice that?"

No Report from Assistants

Witness then admitted there was no report from his assistants whether or not the building came within the city bylaw. He also said he had never inspected the mill.

"Is there co-operation between your department and the fire chief?"

"Yes," replied witness.

"What is the bylaw regarding fire escapes?"

"They must be placed when ordered by either the fire chief or building inspector."

"Was this ever suggested for the mill?"

"No."

Mr. McBride then explained that the closing of a fire-door is often a "betterment" to a building, but to open a fire door a permit must be secured.

"Did you ever consider, as building inspector, that fire escapes should be placed on the building?"

Work of Fire Inspectors

"That is the work of the fire inspectors. I do not go around unless the fire chief tells me about it. It is then a case for a joint decision. It did not occurr to me and no suggestion was ever made to me by the fire chief," concluded witness.

Chief Charles Scott of the London Fire Department was called to the stand at this point. He stated the fire in 1924 started in the south section of the building known as the mill end with a total loss to the building. He said he was never consulted regarding any changes of the mill end being moved from the south to the north when the building was reconstructed. "I had the late District Chief Scruby and District Chief Haylock of No. 2 station inspect the mill so they would be familiar with the building, because I knew they would be the first to reach the scene if fire broke out again."

Chief Scott stated that from records of Scruby and Haylock, dated November 17, 1932, the fire door on the sixth floor was dragging; the one on the fifth should be fixed; shavings should be cleaned from the fifth floor and the furnace room was ordered to be cleaned.

"We often discussed how we would fight another fire in the mill and that is how it was fought on March 3," he continued.

Hears Some Are Trapped

"When I arrived on the sixth floor the smoke was pretty thick, but not enough to stop the firemen from working. The firemen had used a hose line but when I arrived there the hose was on the floor with the water line turned off. We were confident the fire was under control and George Smithson asked it it would be better to let out some of the smoke. As I stepped to the fire door I noticed a little smoke coming from the "endless elevator" so I started for the fifth floor. I asked a mill hand to take me to the fire door on the fifth floor and he told me I would have to go down to the fourth floor. As I was on the stairway, two firemen rushed past me and yelled that some of the boys were trapped in the smoke on the sixth floor and they were going for gas and smoke helmets. I then ordered a water line for the fifth floor to stop any fire which might trap the men on the top floor," stated Chief Scott.

Chief Scott then told the jury of he and firemen fighting the fire on the fourth floor until they had to make their escape down an aerial ladder. "When I reached the ground I was told two of the men had been trapped," he said.

Closed Fire Doors No Hinderance

"The aerial ladders would not reach the sixth floor but only would reach the sills of the fifth floor windows," he continued. "As far as my opinion goes the closing of the fire doors was not a hindrance to the department and a closed wall is always better for a building in case of fire.

"I think the fire was conveyed from one floor to another in the conveyers of grain in the wooden boxes, which would cause light explosions when flames hit the gasses.

"I would like to say there can be no reflection on the fire department, either as to inspections or as to how they fought the flames. I was proud of the men."

All Equipment Out

"How about the equipment on the London Department?" asked Coroner Dr. Wilson.

"We had every available piece of apparatus on the scene and with the exception of longer aerial ladders, the equipment was sufficient. It is the first time they have ever been found too short and I do not think we need longer ladders. The water pressure was sufficient that night."

Was First on Scene

Alfred Leenan, a city fireman, still walking with a cane, from injuries received at the fire, a member of the late District Scruby's Company, said he was one of the first firemen on the scene. He told of seeing a little white smoke from a window on the sixth floor, and of receiving orders from Chief Scruby to take up a hand extinguisher while the others brought up a hose line. "The fire was in the ceiling at the north-west corner on the sixth floor," he said. "There did not appear to be any danger at that time.

This Blaze Was Checked

"This blaze was checked but then one of the chutes, near the ceiling, appeared to be ablaze. The smoke then became very thick and other firemen started to cough from the gasses. We couldn't see a thing. I said to Chief Scruby, "Come on Chief, we're trapped." He said, "all right." We started and I fell down the stairway and Chief Scruby fell on top of me.

After the fall to the fifth floor we found the smoke and gas first as bad as on the sixth. We started for the windows and I thought Chief Scruley was right behind me. When I found he was not there at the window with me I figured he had taken the fire door on the fifth floor.

Everything Went Black

"The aerial ladder was at the fifth floor and along with other firemen I went down the ladder. I went back into the building and as I was on the stairs at the fourth floor everything went black and I was carried out. I suffered a fractured hip and pelvis."

"Could you have followed the hose line from the sixth floor when the smoke filled the room?" asked Mr. Judd.

"No," he replied. "It was lying over bags and machinery."

Black Smoke Obscures View

Reginald Walters of No. 4 fire station said he could recognize the different firemen when he first entered the mill. "A few minutes later black smoke filled the sixth floor and I could not see anything. I crawled on my hands and kneese towards a window and I broke a pane and crawled out to the sill. I was almost overcome by the smoke. I looked down and saw Lieut. Barnes hanging on the second top rung of the aerial ladder. I saw he was standing on the sill and he shouted below for a life net. I then heard the crowd shouting for me to jump so I leaped and landed in the net.

Lieut. Hartop At Window

"As I got to the window I felt a man's leg. I spoke to him and it was Lieut Hartop. He said to me "we cannot get out."

"He seemed to be trying to get out of the building but I could not see him. I knew it was Lieut. Hartop by his voice.

Crowls on Hands and Knees

"When I first reached the sixth floor the fire was pretty well out" said Fireman Norman Wight, the next witness. "When the thick smoke came into the storey I told Chief Scruley we had better go. He said he knew the way, and went ahead on hands and knees to the fire door. We could not see each other, I did not see Lieut. Hartop.

I finally reached a window where I heard Lieut. Hartop. He appeared to be leaning out the transom. I got out of the window and I heard Lieut. Hartop calling for help.

"It was hard to see the life-net on the ground because of the smoke pouring from the windows. Somebody hollered to jump. I looked around, saw no person near me, so I leaped for the net."

Leaps for Ladder

Lieut. Robert Barnes (of No. 1 Company said he heard Fireman Smithson shout, "We're trapped," when the smoke got so thick he could not see where he was going. "I went to the fourth floor where the smoke was thicker. I broke a window and got to the sill. I saw the aerial ladder and jumped and caught the top rung as it swung past the window. I looked up, saw other men on the upper windows and shouted to those below to get a life-net," he said.

Supervised Reconstruction

Joseph Albert Beechie, vice-president and general manager of the Hunt mill was the last witness called. He said he had seen the original set of plans. "I had charge of the reconstruction of the mill and secured the permit for the building," he said. "I did not tae any plans to the building inspector. The engineers were of the William and J. G. Gray Co., of Toronto, and I believe the boss of the job was Angus Kennedy. Mr. Creighton only had to do with the floors.

Not Submitted to Dept.

Mr. Beechie admitted the plans for the reconstruction, including the closing of the fire walls, had not been submitted to the Dept. of Labor or the building inspector. He said the charges were made when they were found necessary for the operation of the business. He said it would only have cost $10 or $15 to open the fire door on the fifth floor. "I would have been glad of a suggestion to do so," he said.

Believed Door Working

In continuing he said he was of the opinion the fire door on the fifth floor was in working order.

"We were never asked to put the water stand pipes in operation," he continued "we had two chemical fire extinguishers with regulation water pails, etc. We were commended for the way they were kept."

"By whom"?

"Our insurance agent."

"Did you ever make any uncomplimentary remarks to the fire department officials who went to the mill to make inspections?"

"Never."

"That is all, thank you."

Opened Last Week

The inquest opened in the city police station a week ago when five witnesses were examined by Crown Attorney Albert M. Judd, K.C. They were Dr. Gordon Jepson who performed the post mortem and who declared the firemen died from carbon-monoxide gas and suffocation, and received their burns after they were either dead or unconscious; Harry Privett, 459 Nightingale avenue, foreman at the Hunt Mill for the past 15 years; George DuMeresq, 180 Broughdale avenue, head miller; V. Critically Hurt In Truck Mishap

Special to The Advertiser

Woodstock, April 11.—Marie Pearson, aged 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pearson, East Zorra, is in Woodstock General Hospital in a critical condition, suffering from internal injuries caused when the wheel of a loaded milk truck passed over her body.

The girl had been in the habit of riding to school in the truck with Charles Leiford. This morning Leiford stopped for Marie, but started to go on without her. He felt one wheel pass over a bump and heard a shriek. Stopping, he found the girl on the road. Tonight her condition was reported critical.

toward the solution of the difficulty will be taken in such a way as not to strain the existing mechanism."

Have Necessary Information

A few minutes later the Prime Minister returned to the subject to repeat that the Government had all the information it needed to assume control of social legislation. "But we have not yet approached the problem of amending the B. N. A. Act. That is in the offing and I suppose that in the course of human events and when an indulgent and grateful electorate have honored us with their support, we may be able to make such changes as may be necessary."

The House devoted the half day to discussion of the unemployment relief bill without progress made. For the most part, Liberals inquired into the guarantees given industrial firms under the bill last year, particularly those to the Algoma Steel Corporation in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, Sydney, N. S. The guarantees were defended warmly by Government supporters as being necessary to reopen the plants and provide work in the two cities.

MISS LAPOINTE ASSERTS BENNETT

courage it that the Twentieth Century Clubs were formed. Politics is a difficult science, and it takes a great deal of study Though the Twentieth Century Clubs try to help elect members of the Liberal party, this is not the primary purpose of their being. The main purpose is to create sound public opinion, and to give expression to this opinion at our national conventions."

Miss Lapoite said that apart from criticizing politicians for the present mess Canada is in, young Canadians would blame themselves for allowing the politicians now in power to run the country.

Visiting Officers Speak

Each of the three visiting officers of the Twentieth Century Clubs also spoke. Mr. MacDougall, who preceeded Miss Lapointe, gave a splendid address in which he stressed the fact that the association of Twentieth Century Clubs was started by the young people, financed by the young people, and was not a minor organization in a political machine.

"There is a newer organization—the young Conservative Association, in the field of young organizations. But we are afraid it is only an election organization. Its convention at Toronto recently was called by a cabinet minister—the Hon. Leopold Macauley. I'm afraid they haven't the financial independence the Twentieth Century Clubs have. In reality the Young Conservative Association is only a minor cog in the Tory machine"

Young Conservatives Warned

He quoted from a Toronto morning conservative paper in which a report of the flaying criticism administered to the Young Conservative Association at the Newmarket "school" last summer was carried. He specially stressed the quotations setting forth that the Conservative politicians laid down the law that the Young Conservative Association were under no circumstances to interfere with "long constituted and capable authority."

"Our Twentieth Century Clubs are not along those lines. Our first aim is to foster and guide the political education of the young people of Canada; the second aim is to get young people acquainted with one another; in other words to meet social needs; the third aim is to co-operate with our senior Liberal leaders and to secure election of Liberal members to the House of Commons.

Challenge is Refused

"We issued a challenge to the Young Conservative Association to debate," said Mr. MacDougall. "The subject was: "Resolved that Canada would make more rapid progress with Liberal policies than through Conservative policies," he said. They refused flatly. Then we suggested a debate, and asked them to pick out a single issue, for instance the tariff question, and again it was refused. They asked if a subject like the Empire Preference would be suitable, and we agreed it would be. But even that was then refused.

"Now we are getting ready to send them another invitation to debate provincial issues. If that too is refused we will know for certain that they are only a minor cog in a Tory election machine."

Have Helped Clubs in East

Miss O'Connell in a brief talk said that the Twentieth Century Clubs in the east had much for which to thank the clubs in this part of Ontario. "The basis on which you formed your clubs has been of great assistance to us in organizing ours in the East," she said.

She said youth should be made to realize its tremendous responsibility of citizenship. The Twentieth Century Clubs were doing a great deal to achieve this. "Many valuable ideas are lost because young people are afraid to come forward and give expression to them," she said. "Don't be afraid," she said.

Donald Begg, who was the first speaker said he had been reported as disagreeing with Premier Henry who said that the governments should be run the same as farms or businesses.

Did Not Disagree

"I didn't disagree. In fact I agreed heartily," he said. "What I said was that Mr. Henry should run his government that way, instead of increasing the debt. You can't keep on increasing debt on a farm or a business or a government, day after day, and not run into bankruptcy." He said Mr. Henry was claiming a surplus of $470,000 when in reality Ontario's debt had increased $38,000,000.

He closed with a strong plea to workers in the club to continue their intelligent and enthusiastic work, and to encourage others to join.

that "get-together" meeting is expected to arise shortly a general conference of the councils of London, St. Thomas, and Port Stanley, and the Elgin County council. It is proposed to have the meeting in London. At it will be definitely shaped, the course to be followed in connection with the plans discussed last night.

Government to Share Cost

Speaking of the bridge project, the mayor said, "The government has already promised to share in the cost of repairing the Ketle Creek bridge to the extent of $25,000. "We all might as well spend a little more and get a new structure. Repairs alone won't do."

Supplying of lifeguard and boat protection to swimmers, regarded as a certainty, arises, the mayor said, from concern evidenced following last year's triple drowning tragedy. He believed proper facilities for providing the bather with protection would encourage swimming at the port.

Took Up Public Life After Family Of Seven Grew Up

Canadian Press Despatch

Montreal, April. — Mrs. John Scott, pioneer feminist and the "grand little old Lady of Quebec" has entered upon her 80th year and is still going strong. Just a week before her recent birthday she addressed two meetings in one day. In her up-to-date apartment she lives as indepently and capably as a modern bachelor girl. She has not forgotten the art of cooking either, for her Scotch scones and marmalade are a treat.

The name of Isabella Scott will go down in history as one of the leaders who began the women's suffrage movement in the province of Quebec. During election campaigns she was a popular speaker.

Mrs. Scott delights in recalling the tory of her Scottish father and mother and 12 brothers and sisters, of whom she was the oldest, travelling from Glasgow in 1874 and settling in Scotstown, Quebec. In this country she met a young Scotsman who strangely enough had been born within four miles of Glasgow, and eventually married him. Seven little Canadians were born to them and in those days "I had no time then for questions of suffrage," said Mrs. Scott with a twinkle in her eye as she unfolded her story to an interviewer.

"My husband was Mayor of Scotstown, chairman of the school board, ruling elder in the church, telegraph operating station agent and the keeper of a general store, and in our spare time we attended the weekly prayer meeting and the meeting of the Christian Endeavor."

Mrs. Scott and her family came to Montreal in 1905 and as time went on and her children became less dependent on her she gradually became interested in public life.

CAPITOL THEATRE ATTRACTS CROWDS

Warner Bros. "Wonder Bar" Is Really Wonderful Musical Spectacle

To write a "rave" review of "Wonder Bar," the sensational new Warner Brothers, musical now in its second half week at the Capitol Theatre, would involve simple flips of the typewriter keys. It is easy to get excited over something that's worth getting excited about, and "Wonder Bar" is just such a motion picture.

The cast is headed by Al Jolson, and includes Kay Francis, Dolores del Rio, Ricardo Cortez, Dick Powell, Hal LeRoy, Ruth Donnelly, Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert, Fifi D'Orsay, Henry O'Neill, Merna Kennedy, Henry Kolker, Mia Ichioka, Pat Wing, Clay Clement and many others whose names are known wherever bright lights flicker and gay throngs pay big prices for seats. The proof of the show, so they say, is in the cast and "Wonder Bar" aggregation of famous players guarantees the quality. Add to this the fact that Warner Brothers aimed to make the picture one of the most lavish to every come out of Hollywood, the fact that Busby Berkeley arranged the dances, and the fact that the piece surpasses the past triumphs of the same producers in the musical film field—and this includes "Footlight Parade," "42nd Diggers of 1933," "42nd Street," and others, and you have the reasons why this picture is proving popular in London. The dancing chorus of 400 of Hollywood's prettiest might be listed as an additional reason. The popular songs, such as the title number "Wonder Bar," the Del Rio Tango and a half a dozen more, are other reasons.

All in all "Wonder Bar" is an unusually lavish musical picture, is sure-fire entertainment, and will chase care away from any evening. Film fans in London are advised to try it.

Western thrill novelties, a news reel, and a cartoon comedy, "Popeye the Sailor" complete the excellent bill.

THRILLS, ROMANCE IN PALACE FILM

"Blind Adventure" With Superb Cast Delights Opening Day Audiences

Amazingly different in plot and as exciting as it is original, "Blind Adventure" which had its first London showing at the Palace Theatre yesterday provides entertainment of the spine-tingling variety blended with generous portions of hilarity and romance. The picture pleased a near-capacity audience yesterday.

Excellent performances from a strong cast headed by Robert Armstrong, Helen Mack and Roland Young enhance the plot of "Blind Adventure." An adventurous young American, astray in a typical London fog is involved in extraordinary adventures with a living "dead man," a British army officer and his beautiful niece, and blackmailing spies seeking information from the officer.

"The "dead man" instructs the American take the girl to a certain house where they will find her real uncle. The pair flee across London roof tops and meet a timid burglar whom they enlist for his professional services. They reach the address and find themselves hostages of blackmailers who will liberate them only when they secure military information. The exciting thrills and endless laughs culminate in an ingeniously conceived climax abounding in action. Robert Armstrong is thoroughly virile and realistic in his role of the adventure seeking American. Miss Mack convincingly portrays the heroine. The supporting cast is above average and consists of John Miljan, Laura Hope Crews, Henry Stephenson, Phyllis Barry and several others.

The picture is a story of criminal daring, crowded with laughter, love and thrills. It is well worth seeing. On the same bill are Clark and McCullough in the comedy hit "Hey Nanny Nanny," and a musical comedy "The Picture Palace" and a clever cartoon "Rye."

he did not personally keep in touch with the work but that duty was carried out by two assistants.

"The city engineer stated that the Hunt Milling Co. were going to have expert engineers on the job and we would not have to bother much in the check-up on the reconstruction job," said Mr. McBride. "The building was to be reconstructed along similar lines as prior to the fire. Unless there is anything found to be wrong the inspectors do not make a report, other than leave a memo of the date of the visit."

Would Not Investigate

"Would you not investigate if it had been reported fire doors were blocked or the mill part moved from the south to the north of the building?" asked Mr. Judd.

"Not particularly as it didn't make any difference in the construction of the building," he replied.

"Did you ever receive any report from these expert engineers?"

"No."

"Have you any report of any of the changes made in the reconstruction in 1927?"

"No."

"Do you know the names of these expert engineers?" "No."

"What does the examination by your assistants call for?"

"Structural construction."

"Were you informed by your assistants that the reconstruction plans did not correspond with the original plans as approved by the Department of Labor?" "Did your inspectors not notice that?"

No Report from Assistants

Witness then admitted there was no report from his assistants whether or not the building came within the city bylaw. He also said he had never inspected the mill.

"Is there co-operation between your department and the fire chief?"

"Yes," replied witness.

"What is the bylaw regarding fire escapes?"

"They must be placed when ordered by either the fire chief or building inspector."

"Was this ever suggested for the mill?"

"No."

Mr. McBride then explained that the closing of a fire-door is often a "betterment" to a building, but to open a fire door a permit must be secured.

"Did you ever consider, as building inspector, that fire escapes should be placed on the building?"

Work of Fire Inspectors

"That is the work of the fire inspectors. I do not go around unless the fire chief tells me about it. It is then a case for a joint decision. It did not occurr to me and no suggestion was ever made to me by the fire chief," concluded witness.

Chief Charles Scott of the London Fire Department was called to the stand at this point. He stated the fire in 1924 started in the south section of the building known as the mill end with a total loss to the building. He said he was never consulted regarding any changes of the mill end being moved from the south to the north when the building was reconstructed. "I had the late District Chief Scruby and District Chief Haylock of No. 2 station inspect the mill so they would be familiar with the building, because I knew they would be the first to reach the scene if fire broke out again."

Chief Scott stated that from re-

Hears Some Are Trapped

"When I arrived on the sixth floor the smoke was pretty thick, but not enough to stop the firemen from working. The firemen had used a hose line but when I arrived there the hose was on the floor with the water line turned off. We were confident the fire was under control and George Smithson asked it it would be better to let out some of the smoke. As I stepped to the fire door I noticed a little smoke coming from the "endless elevator" so I started for the fifth floor. I asked a mill hand to take me to the fire door on the fifth floor and he told me I would have to go down to the fourth floor. As I was on the stairway, two firemen rushed past me and yelled that some of the boys were trapped in the smoke on the sixth floor and they were going for gas and smoke helmets. I then ordered a water line for the fifth floor to stop any fire which might trap the men on the top floor," stated Chief Scott.

Chief Scott then told the jury of he and firemen fighting the fire on the fourth floor until they had to make their escape down an aerial ladder. "When I reached the ground I was told two of the men had been trapped," he said.

Closed Fire Doors No Hinderance

"The aerial ladders would not reach the sixth floor but only would reach the sills of the fifth floor windows," he continued. "As far as my opinion goes the closing of the fire doors was not a hindrance to the department and a closed wall is always better for a building in case of fire.

"I think the fire was conveyed from one floor to another in the conveyers of grain in the wooden boxes, which would cause light explosions when flames hit the gasses.

"I would like to say there can be no reflection on the fire department, either as to inspections or as to how they fought the flames. I was proud of the men."

All Equipment Out

"How about the equipment on the London Department?" asked Coroner Dr. Wilson.

"We had every available piece of apparatus on the scene and with the exception of longer aerial ladders, the equipment was sufficient. It is the first time they have ever been found too short and I do not think we need longer ladders. The water pressure was sufficient that night."

Was First on Scene

Alfred Leesan, a city fireman, still walking with a cane, from injuries received at the fire, a member of the late District Scruby's Company, said he was one of the first firemen on the scene. He told of seeing a little white smoke from a window on the sixth floor, and of receiving orders from Chief Scruby to take up a hand extinguisher while the others brought up a hose line. "The fire was in the ceiling at the north-west corner on the sixth floor," he said. "There did not appear to be any danger at that time.

This Blaze Was Checked

"This blaze was checked but then one of the chutes, near the ceiling, appeared to be ablaze. The smoke then became very thick and other firemen started to cough from the gasses. We couldn't see a thing. I said to Chief Scruby, "Come on Chief, we're trapped." He said, "all right." We started and I fell down the stairway and Chief Scruby fell on top of me.

After the fall to the fifth floor we found the smoke and gas first as bad as on the sixth. We started for the windows and I thought Chief Scruley was right behind me. When I found he was not there at the window with me I figured he had taken the fire door on the fifth floor.

Everything Went Black

"The aerial ladder was at the fifth floor and along with other firemen I went down the ladder. I went back into the building and as I was on the stairs at the fourth floor everything went black and I was carried out. I suffered a fractured hip and pelvis."

"Could you have followed the hose line from the sixth floor when the smoke filled the room?" asked Mr. Judd.

"No," he replied. "It was lying over bags and machinery."

Black Smoke Obscures View

Reginald Walters of No. 4 fire station said he could recognize the different firemen when he first entered the mill. "A few minutes later black smoke filled the sixth floor and I could not see anything. I crawled on my hands and kneese towards a window and I broke a pane and crawled out to the sill. I was almost overcome by the smoke. I looked down and saw Lieut. Barnes hanging on the second top rung of the aerial ladder. He saw me standing on the sill and he shouted below for a life net. I then heard the crowd shouting for me to jump so I leaped and landed in the net.

Lieut. Hartop At Window

"As I got to the window I felt a man's leg. I spoke to him and it was Lieut Hartop. He said to me "we cannot get out."

"He seemed to be trying to get out of the building but I could not see him. I knew it was Lieut. Hartop by his voice.

Crowds on Hands and Knees

"When I first reached the sixth floor the fire was pretty well out" said Fireman Norman Wight, the next witness. "When the thick smoke came into the storey I told Chief Scrnleg we had better go. He said he knew the way, and went ahead on hands and knees to the fire door. We could not see each other. I did not see Lieut. Hartop.

I finally reached a window where I heard Lieut. Hartop. He appeared to be leaning out the transom. I got out of the window and I heard Lieut. Hartop calling for help.

"It was hard to see the life-net on the ground because of the smoke pouring from the windows. Somebody hollered to jump. I looked around, saw no person near me, so I leaped for the net."

Leaps for Ladder

Lieut. Robert Barnes of No. 1 Company said he heard Fireman Smithson shout, "We're trapped," when the smoke got so thick he could not see where he was going. "I went to the fourth floor where the smoke was thicker. I broke a window and got to the sill. I saw the aerial ladder and jumped and caught the top rung as it swung past the window. I looked up, saw other men on the upper windows and shouted to those below to get a life-net," he said.

Supervised Reconstruction

Joseph Albert Beechie, vice-president and general manager of the Hunt mill was the last witness called. He said he had seen the original set of plans. "I had charge of the reconstruction of the mill and secured the permit for the building," he said. "I did not tae any plans to the building inspector. The engineers were of the William and J. G. Gray Co., of Toronto, and I believe the boss of the job was Angus Kennedy. Mr. Creighton only had to do with the floors.

Not Submitted to Dept.

Mr. Beechie admitted the plans for the reconstruction, including the closing of the fire walls, had not been submitted to the Dept. of Labor or the building Inspector. He said the changes were made when they were found necessary for the operation of the business. He said it would only have cost $10 or $15 to open the fire door on the fifth floor. "I would have been glad of a suggestion to do so," he said.

Believed Door Working

In continuing he said he was of the opinion the fire door on the fifth floor was in working order.

"We were never asked to put the water stand pipes in operation," he continued "we had two chemical fire extinguishers with regulation water pails, etc. We were commended for the way they were kept."

"By whom"?

"Our Insurance agent."

"Did you ever make any uncomplimentary remarks to the fire department officials who went to the mill to make inspections?"

"Never."

"That is all, thank you."

Opened Last Week

The inquest opened in the city police station a week ago when five witnesses were examined by Crown Attorney Albert M. Judd, K.C. They were Dr. Gordon Jepson who performed the post mortem and who declared the firemen died from carbon-monoxide gas and suffocation, and received their burns after they were either dead or unconscious; Harry Privett, 459 Nightingale avenue, foreman at the Hunt Mill for the past 19 years; George DuMeresq, 180 Broughdale avenue, head miller; V. McKillop, of the City Engineer's Department who told of the water pressure on the night of the fire, and a local photographer who produced pictures of the scene of the double fatality.

After the five witnesses had been heard, Coroner Dr. J. Cameron Wilson adjourned the hearing for one week. The jury is composed of Robert Strathdee, foreman James Ross, Hugh Wills, Sidney Marsh, George Mitchell, Eugene Storey, Thomas Levett, Edward Dunn and Fred Wardle. W. B. Henderson, K.C., is acting on behalf of the owners of the Hunt Mill.

Last week it was brought out in evidence that some of the fire doors had been bricked up; that the water stand pipes on the fourth and sixth floors were out of service; that no hose line was attached to the water stand pipe on the fourth floor and the pipe had been white-washed over. It was also brought out that some of the windows on the sixth floor had been shut for the winter and two had been tied with wire for the season.

courage it that the Twentieth Century Clubs were formed. Politics is a difficult science, and it takes a great deal of study Though the Twentieth Century Clubs try to help elect members of the Liberal party, this is not the primary purpose of their being. The main purpose is to create sound public opinion, and to give expression to this opinion at our national conventions."

Miss Lapoite said that apart from criticizing politicians for the present mess Canada is in, young Canadians would blame themselves for allowing the politicians now in power to run the country.

Visiting Officers Speak

Each of the three visiting officers of the Twentieth Century Clubs also spoke. Mr. MacDougall, who preceeded Miss Lapointe, gave a splendid address in which he stressed the fact that the association of Twentieth Century Clubs was started by the young people, financed by the young people, and was not a minor organization in a political machine.

"There is a newer organization—the young Conservative Association, in the field of young organizations. But we are afraid it is only an election organization. Its convention at Toronto recently was called by a cabinet minister—the Hon. Leopold Macauley. I'm afraid they haven't the financial independence the Twentieth Century Clubs have. In reality the Young Conservative Association is only a minor cog in the Tory machine"

Young Conservatives Warned

He quoted from a Toronto morning conservative paper in which a report of the flaying criticism administered to the Young Conservative Association at the Newmarket "school" last summer was carried. He specially stressed the quotations setting forth that the Conservative politicians laid down the law that the Young Conservative Association were under no circumstances to interfere with "long constituted and capable authority."

"Our Twentieth Century Clubs are not along those lines. Our first aim is to foster and guide the political education of the young people of Canada; the second aim is to get young people acquainted with one another; in other words to meet social needs; the third aim is to co-operate with our senior Liberal leaders and to secure election of Liberal members to the House of Commons.

Challenge is Refused

"We issued a challenge to the Young Conservative Association to debate," said Mr. MacDougall. "The subject was: "Resolved that Canada would make more rapid progress with Liberal policies than through Conservative policies," he said. They refused flatly. Then we suggested a debate, and asked them to pick out a single issue, for instance the tariff question, and again it was refused. They asked if a subject like the Empire Preference would be suitable, and we agreed it would be. But even that was then refused.

"Now we are getting ready to send them another invitation to debate provincial issues. If that too is refused we will know for certain that they are only a minor cog in a Tory election machine."

Have Helped Clubs in East

Miss O'Connell in a brief talk said that the Twentieth Century Clubs in the east had much for which to thank the clubs in this part of Ontario. "The basis on which you formed your clubs has been of great assistance to us in organizing ours in the East," she said.

She said youth should be made to realize its tremendous responsibility of citizenship. The Twentieth Century Clubs were doing a great deal to achieve this. "Many valuable ideas are lost because young people are afraid to come forward and give expression to them," she said. "Don't be afraid," she said.

Donald Begg, who was the first speaker said he had been reported as disagreeing with Premier Henry who said that the governments should be run the same as farms or businesses.

Did Not Disagree

"I didn't disagree. In fact I agreed heartily," he said. "What I said was that Mr. Henry should run his government that way, instead of increasing the debt. You can't keep on increasing the debt. You can't keep on increasing debt on a farm or a business or a government, day after day, and not run into bankruptcy." He said Mr. Henry was claiming a surplus of $470,000 when in reality Ontario's debt had increased $38,000,000. He closed with a strong plea to workers in the club to continue their intelligent and enthusiastic work, and to encourage others to join.

Following the meeting a social hour and tea was held, and greatly enjoyed. During the social Miss Norma Kenney delighted the large attendance with selected violin solos, and Miss Jean Campbell gave some greatly appreciated vocal solos.

BISHOP'S WIFE WARNS AGAINST PUTTING CHILD BEFORE THE HUSBAND

Taunton, England, April (CP). — Man should be master of his home, declared Lady Florence Cecil, wife of the Bishop of Exeter, who, at a Mothers' Union Festival at Taunton, warned mothers against putting children before husbands in the nome, and added:

"I am early Victorian, and believe in the headship of the husband in the home."

Among temptations that beset women Lady Florence Cecil included temper, nagging, jealousy, untidiness, vanity, conceit and pride.

It is proposed to have the meeting in London. At it will be definitely shaped, the course to be followed in connection with the plans discussed last night.

Government to Share Cost

Speaking of the bridge project, the mayor said, "The government has already promised to share in the cost of repairing the Kettle Creek bridge to the extent of $25,000. "We all might as well spend a little more and get a new structure. Repairs alone won't do."

Supplying of lifeguard and boat protection to swimmers, regarded as a certainty, arises, the mayor said, from concern evidenced following last year's triple drowning tragedy. He believed proper facilities for providing the bather with protection would encourage swimming at the port.

STEEL INGOT OUTPUT MAKES GAIN IN U. S.

New York, April 11 (AP).—Steel ingot output is up to 49½ per cent. of capacity this week, compared with 48½ per cent. a week ago, "Iron Age" reports, and further gains are looked for in April and May, "barring another outbreak of labor difficulties in the automobile industry."

"The general advance in iron and steel prices," says the publication, "had the effect of driving in an unusually large volume of business." If a strike of the tool and die workers is averted, "Iron Age" believes April output of motor cars will probably exceed 400,000 units.

FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

Walkerton, April 11—A jury at Supreme Court sittings of Bruce County presided over by Mr. Justice Kingstone, last night after four hours deliberation, granted $300 damages to Mrs. Mabel Stewart of Gorrie in her suit for unstated damages against the Canadian National Railways. The matter of costs was left to the court.

Mrs. Stewart claimed that on May 30, 1933, while she was travelling from Bluevale to Goldstone, the train was not stopped long enough at the latter place to allow her to alight from the platform of the car, that she was not rendered assistance in stepping on the station platform and the train was restaried without warning, causing her to break her right leg and dislocate her ankle.

DISMISSED AT CHATHAM

Chatham, April 11—Lee Kin Nun, surrounded by Oriental friends, walked joyfully from city police court this morning following a judgment delivered by Magistrate Arnold in which the properitor of a King street restaurant was dismissed on a charge alleging illegal possession of opium.

promised to call a special session of Parliament to deal with unemployment but other than voting $20,000,000 for six months' relief, that session had achieved only the raising of tariffs against the rest of the world.

Dealing particularly with the $20,000,000 which Mr. Bennett had voted for unemployment relief, Mr. King recalled that during the ten years of the Liberal regime from 1920 to 1930, the entire amount spent for the same purpose was less than $2,000,000.

At the time when Mr. Bennett was obtaining this huge appropriation, Mr. King further recalled, he had urged him that the only way to end unemployment was to encourage trade; that trade could be fostered by reducing the cost of production, not by raising tariffs.

"I said in the House at that time that unemployment had become a national problem. I urged Mr. Bennett to appoint a national commission to deal with the situation. I suggested that on it should be representative of all phases of Canadian life, of labor, of industry, manufacturers, social services, and women's organizations. I suggested further that the sums that were to be paid out to the provinces should be all audited. And Mr. Bennett said that it would be an insult to the provinces to audit the accounts. At that time I said he would rue the day that the accounts were not audited. And what is the situation today?"

A recent report of the auditor-general had shown that huge sums of federal money appropriated for relief purposes have been wasted in every province, from coast to coast. It had been spent on administrative costs, for dental services, for gasoline and other things.

The Blank Cheque

In 1931 Mr. Bennett brought in his "blank cheque" legislation, giving the governor-in-council power to spend unlimited sums without consulting parliament. From 1930 to 1934, over $110,000,000 had been spent in federal money alone in this way.

"That is the thing we have been fighting against. It is being debated in the House tonight. But Mr. Bennett, with his majority will carry it through," Mr. King predicted.

The same bill went even further by giving the government power to guarantee bank loans. He cited the $60,000,000 C.P.R. loan.

A large increase in the public debt and an increase in unemployment were the only results from the expenditure of colossal sums for relief, and the people were only beginning to find out "the shocking way in which the money had been spent," Mr. King said. Nothing had been done along the lines of making public parks and improving roads, such as the Liberals had contemplated.

Pork Barrel

"Remember that this year will probably be the year of a general election," Mr. King declared. "Under this legislation, the Conservative Administration will be able to dig into the treasury and spend what it likes on relief."

All the Opposition could do at present was to fight against these measures and to fight for democratic institutions, and the leader urged the people of South Oxford to give them a hand by electing Mr. Rennie as their member.

Mr. King declared that the home market is not the place, but the purchasing power of the people. The Tillsonburg market isn't the square on which goods are bought and sold but the purchasing power of the people who attend it. In the same way the home market of which Mr. Bennett speaks is the buying ability of the people in it.

Lack Buying Power

"Mr. Bennett can't see that. He keeps talking economic self-sufficiency and as we cut off trade with tariffs our home market withers up," he said.

The Liberal leader turned his attention to the questions raised in the report of Hon. Donald Sutherland, Conservative candidate, who in March 1933 presented to the registrar under the Combines Investigation Act his report on an investigation into an alleged combine among tobacco buyers.

"You would not know yet what was in that report had it not been for the Opposition. Mr. Eccles Gott asked for it a long while ago, but the matter was allowed to stand on the order paper for weeks. I wondered if there were something in it which the government didn't want the people to see and I queried about it in the house. Why should Mr. Gott let his uestion stand if the government hadn't asked him to do so? The minister of labor made a long explanation about possible prosecutions as a result of the report. We kept asking for it.

"Finally on Monday Mr. Bennett said we could have it because they were saying he was a director of the Imperial Tobacco Co. Was it in your interests or to protect Mr. Bennett that the report was brought down?

Ecuses

"I had heard the minister say the report couldn't be brought down for certain reasons so I looked at it when the house received it. It said that the evidence was not sufficient to establish a combine within the meaning of the act. Where are you going to get prosecutions out of that? How are you going to send anybody to jail when the investigator says there is no evidence?" asked Mr. King.

Mr. King noted that the letter of the registrar to the minister when he handed Mr. Sutherland's report on reminded him that if he concluded that there was no necessity for a control trade," he said.

Dictatorship

In Mr. Bennett Canada has a real dictator, said Mr. King. He has the power to legislate as he pleases under the "Peace, order and good government" measure, and to spend what he will from the public treasury. Under the marketing act he can regulate trade in any manner he sees fit.

"The Liberal policy has always been to develop trade. That is a policy of plenty. But once you begin to restrict trade you have a policy of scarcity," he said, adding that in the wheat pact to restrict production and export of wheat the policy had been carried through to the logical conclusion.

"This government has done all it can to destroy trade and now it seeks to destroy production," he said. Subsidies to various pests would be a cheaper way to regulate production than an army of officials.

Mr. Rennie

Mr. Rennie declared that only the Liberal policy aims at a solution of problems of agriculture, and until these are solved things canot be much better. His trips up and down the highways during the campaign have shown him as nothing else could, the hopelessness which is blighting the lives of young unemployed transients.

Mr. Hepburn, who introduced Mr. King, wanted to know why Mr. Bennett did not come into the riding instead of entering it from Ottawa vit the radio. Here a heckler interrupted Mr. Hepburn.

"If the gentleman has anything to say let him come to the platform and say it," said Mr. Hepburn. Whereupon Alex Reynolds, Tillsonburg, marched to the platform amid loud shouts of disapproval from the crowd. "I would like to ask Mr. Hepburn why he is not at the Ontario House defending his record," asked Mr. Reynolds.

"Very well, I will tell you. The House should have been dissolved a year ago. It carried on on borrowed time," said Mr. Hepburn as the audience roared approval, and indicated its unwillingness to tolerate further interruptions.

Mr. Hepburn Explains Again

"It was well known when I accepted the leadership of the Ontario party that I would not leave the people of West Elgin until I had finished the term for which they elected me. There is such a thing as loyalty. I have not followed the line of least resistence. I might have entered the legislature through an acclamation in East Kent. I know that I have a difficult riding in Elgin now but I will stand or fal by the decision of the people in my own country," said Mr. Hepburn.

Mr. Hepburn declared that Canada under the Bennett government has drifted far from established parliamentary practices. "We have little democracy in this country today. We are nearer to a dictatorship than the people realize. We want a new deal. We want Mackenzie King as premier. We want a new government and we want Liberal prosperity," he said.

William Brown, Tillsonburg, was chairman. Mrs. L. G. Little and Mrs. Jack Climie sang solos. Flowers were presented to the singers by Misses Dorothy Daniels and Margery Stafford.

Among those on the platform were Dougald Graham, George Perry, N. J. Griffith, G. A. P. Brickenden, Dr. A. S. Duncan, Paul Gravelle, Charles Oliver and Hon. J. C. Elliott, all of London; Colin C. Hawkins, Brownsville; R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., C. E. Brown, Tillsonburg; P. M. Dewan, Woodstock; Jack Jewell, Tillsonburg; Keith M. Somers, Tillsonburg; Eric Cross, Simcoe; Vern Meek, M. G. Dean, Dr. J. M. Rogers, and H. A. Copeland, Ingersoll.

The Tillsonburg Citizens' Band under the leadership of Boyd Sylvester played before the meeting got under way.

Special to The Advertiser
(By Staff Reporter)

Norwich, April 11—"If this constituency goes Liberal on Monday next, I say the Prime Minister cannot afford to carry on the government of this country any longer without going to the people next fall," declared the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, speaking to the Liberal rally in Edison Hall here this afternoon.

Mr. King's speech this afternoon was a short one, lasting scarcely an hour, but in it he raised issues of tremendous importance. He declared that the actions of the Bennett government in transferring power to the cabinet constituted a very serious threat to constitutional and democratic forms of government in Canada and that it is quite conceivable in the event of a European crisis in the near future Mr. Bennett might decide to let his administration carry on indefinitely.

Opening his speech Mr. King said that a public man has no greater privilege than to come into the ridings after a battle for the people's liberties in parliament and get from the people their opinion of his stand.

Left Unrepresented

"The question now before you is whether you trust a government which does not trust you. If you approve of the fact that you have had no representation in parliament this year, then by all means vote for Mr. Sutherland. Mr. Bennett does not trust South Oxford and has let it go unrepresented", said Mr. King. The South Oxford as well.

"All parts of Canada are striking in at this administration and telling it to get out. If on top of all this the people of South Oxford tell Mr. Bennett to get out of the way, it seems to me that he will be obliged to go to the country this fall. A big opportunity is yours," he said.

The political and economic problems facing Canada are the most important in her history, said the Liberal leader. He recalled that in the general election of 1930 he had told the people that the world was facing a great depression and that Liberal policies had been fashioned in this belief. The depression was partly because of the war and partly because of the orgy of speculation, but, said Mr. King, he believed that the Liberal policies had prevented Canada from feeling the full impact of the world depression.

Set Example To World

"The Liberal party brought Canada out of a depression in 1921. It was not a mere accident but the result of certain policies moving toward definite ends. Other nations went in for economic isolation but we resolved to extend our markets. We thought that we at least in the British Empire need not go in for the policy of economic nationalism but rather felt we should set an example to the rest of the world. The Dunning budget was directed to the lowering of tariffs in the British Empire. Our policy was met with Mr. Bennett's 'Canada first' and protectionist interests were told that tariff wall would be put up all over. If things had been left there, there might have been a different story in that election. But Mr. Bennett said he would provide work for all men. There would be no doles. His two great promises were 'Everyone will work and everyone will have markets.' He included the whole people and the people took him at his word."

The Liberal leader asked how many had work today compared with four years ago. How many have the markets they had four years ago? Those are questions for South Oxford to answer.

Mr. King declared an expansion of trade to be the only solution to this unemployment problem. Work cannot be supplied from taxes indefinitely. It must come from the wealth of the soil, forest, mine and sea.

"We must use the wealth which God has given us and until we exchange these things we can't have things running very well," he said.

Assailed for Peace Work

The League of Nations had been founded to promote the mutual interests of the nations and to prevent war, said Mr. King. Canada was a member of the League and had done her best. Yet in 1930 the Liberal party was assailed by Mr. Bennett because it had had the courage to lower tariffs in an effort to solve economic problems, problems directly related to those of peace and war. "But you ask the Conservative candidate where trade was then and where it is now," urged Mr. King.

The problem facing the world, economic isolation for the different nations or a policy of international cooperation in trade and everything else with a view to ending economic nationalism and to building a greater brotherhood of mankind is well stated in the difference between Liberal and Conservative policies in Canada today, said Mr. King.

Social Revolution Here

Leaving the trade problem Mr. King said that the times demand a change in the social order. Men, women and children demand more social justice, more to be done for the common good and greater opportunity for all. Those things which have shattered forms of government to Europe and brought the 'New Deal' to the United States are touching Canada.

"To day we are in the middle of a social revolution, a world social revolution, and the problem is where it is going to end as far as the people are concerned. Humanity is on the march. Some say we should have a planned economy. But that means a dictatorship, force and power. Others put their faith in principles and say that these have guided men and women for centuries, and that is the Liberal policy. There are principles for work, peace, and progress and the people who fashion their laws in accord with them will enjoy peace," he said.

Danger of Dictatorship

There is a danger right now of a dictatorship in Canada, Mr. King said, and it is up to the people of South Oxford to say that this country must be controlled by the parliamentary system. In Italy, Germany, Russia, Austria and other places, representative institutions have disappeared. In the United States larger powers than ever have been invested in the executive. But under the British system the executive is responsible to the people's representatives and must get his power from them.

"But Mr. Bennett started out four

Where Nearly 1,000 Japs Died

DESTRUCTION OF HAKODATE

Two-thirds of the city of Hakodate, in northern Japan, was wiped out, nearly 1,000 lives were lost, 400 more were critically burned, and 2,000 were injured, when a raging fire, fanned by a strong gale, swept through that city, destroying 23,000 homes and causing property damage amounting to $30,000,000. Photo shows the scene of the fire.

years ago on the theory of an emergency and demanded emergency powers. He called parliament to deal with unemployment and then raised the tariffs," said Mr. King, reviewing the factors which led to the breakdown of the 1930 session of the Imperiol economic conference. "Mr. Bennett's offer to Britain of a preferential tariff really meant a step further along the road of economic nationalism because the tariff was to be raised against all other nations."

British Market Endangered

Mr. King said that in the House of Commons he had stated that the agreements reached at the 1932 conference would endanger the British market for Canadian producers and today the British agriculturist is demanding protection against his Canadian competitors in cattle and dairy products.

"Remember where this policy started and if you approve of it vote for the Bennett candidate," he said.

Even worse than economic nationalism is economic imperialism, continued Mr. King. Every thinking man stands aghast when he thinks of an empire seeking to stand out as a unit against the rest of the world.

"Unless this sort of thing ends, economic war will give way to actual war," he predicted. "Unless some country comes along to set an example the world will face a worse situation than ever."

Parliament Being Shelved

Mr. King declared that the Bennett policy for Canada is to get rid of parliament altogether and to let the executive do what it pleases. He referred to the "Peace, order and good government" clause now before the Commons which gives the government unlimited powers. It can guarantee corporation loans, lend millions to the provinces. "The government, under one clause of that bill, is getting even the authority to prevent a general election. It might be used in the event of a European crisis. That was what was done in Cromwell's day. We cannot afford now to turn over all government to the governor in council," declared Mr. King, asserting that the Liberal party would keep up the battle to guard parliament's rights.

Vast Sums Squandered

Moneys paid out for relief under the "Peace, order and good government" clause had been improperly spent, said Mr. King. Money was wasted on the worst scale in Canada's history, while provinces had been loaned $52,000,000 and it is doubtful if the Federal treasury will ever see it again. Bank guarantees of more than $100,000,000 have been given, including the $60,000,000 C. P.-R. guarantee.

"What is worse is that the provinces are now following Mr. Bennett's example and transferring power to the cabinets from the people's representatives," the speaker continued. The British Columbia premier has taken powers like those that Mr. Bennett has. A bill to this end is under way in Alberta. Already it is in effect in Saskatchewan in respect to some things, while the same is true of Manitoba."

Bennett Set Example

"Do you think these premiers would have thought of it if Mr. Bennett had not set the example?" asked Mr. King.

The Liberal leader noted that the other day Mr. Bennett told the Commons that he needed the powers he asked so he could combat British Columbia. "It is a matter of competitive arming for legislative and executive power. How long would it be in this province until Mr. Henry took those powers if he were re-elected?"

"We have a spirit of warfare abroad, the spirit which has bedevilled European nations. Our dictators say they must have new powers. I say to you that economic war and competitive arming in whatever form it comes sooner or later results in actual war. Let it come to Europe and how long will it be until we feel it? One country needs to stand up for democratic Liberal candidate in this by-election, A. S. Rennie.

Children's Hero

To the children of the town, Mr. King came as a popular hero. Because of his visit they were given a half holiday from school and many of them were in the audience. The platform was decorated with flowers and in places of honor were flag-draped pictures of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, William Lyon Mackenzie and other Liberal leaders.

Mr. Rennie was the first speaker, opening his address with a sincere tribute to T. M. Cayley, late Liberal member. He blamed the Conservatives for the fact that South Oxford had not had representation for the greater part of the present parliamentary session, declaring that the people of this riding had been ill treated in the government's delaying the election until this time, thus disenfranchising them for most of the session.

Policies Poles Apart

"The policies of Mr. King and Mr. Bennett are as far apart as the poles," the candidate declared. Liberal policies, he said, will bring a return of prosperity to the farmer, while a continuation of Conservative rule meant the addition of restrictions to trade and even worse conditions than those that exist today.

Referring to statements made in the riding by Hon. R. J. Manion, Mr. Rennie declared that the Conservative speaker was wrong when he informed the people that Canada stood fifth in trade in the world. He quoted from a report of Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, showing that it had dropped from fifth to ninth place since 1930. Conservative speakers were also misleading in statements that Canada's export trade had greatly increased, Mr. Rennie declared, giving a comparison with other countries which showed that while exports in Australia increased 35 per cent, in Sweden and Switzerland 29.1 per cent, Canada's exports had gone up only 7.6 per cent.

"It is about time the Pension Act is properly administered," the speaker declared, in touching on veterans' legislation. Under the present government the act was being unfairly administered, he said.

Hepburn Predicts Victory

Mr. Hepburn was greeted with cheers and he paid tribute to Mr. Rennie, predicting for him a victory on April 16. The Liberal leader also spoke words of praise for his federal leader, Mr. King, declaring that he was "probably the greatest statesman this country has ever produced."

In not coming into the riding but instead intending to speak over the radio, Mr. Bennett had shown that "the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak," Mr. Hepburn declared.

You will either vote to perpetuate Mr. Bennett's government in office or register a protest against its record, the speaker said. Mr. Bennett was doing nothing for the farmer and working man. He did nothing but raise tariffs, granting privilege to the strong and more charity to the weak. With this policy of playing both ends against the middle the whole financial structure of the country was in danger of collapse.

Significant Election

The result of this vote will have a great effect throughout the entire Dominion. It will have an effect on the coming general election in Ontario and if Mr. Rennie is elected, it will provide a ray of hope in these dark days, the Liberal leader concluded.

Mr. Elliott introduced Mr. King in a brief speech and thunderous applause greeted the federal leader. Reeve Armour read an address of welcome and Mr. King received a lovely bouquet and a kiss from little Jean Snell as he rose to speak.

KARL K. HOMUTH GETS NOMINATION

Conservative Choice For Provincial Candidate In South Waterloo

ISSUES CHALLENGE

Special to The Advertiser

Preston, April 11—Accorded the Conservative nomination by acclamation when J. M. Willard of Galt withdrew, Karl K. Homuth, was selected to represent the party in South Waterloo in the coming provincial elections.

The challenge of Karl K. Homuth to meet Mitchell Hepburn in a platform debate in Waterloo, the large attendance, despite a snowstorm, in addition to the selection of officers and executives proved the high lights of the convention. Mitchell Hepburn has stated that he will publicly debate and defend his position in any riding in the province," Mr. Homuth stated. "I challenge Mr. Hepburn to come to South Waterloo."

Hits at Mass Buying

A. M. Edwards, of Galt, Federal representative for South Waterloo gave a resume of the Federal work under Premier Bennett, while as a member of the Stevens committee he deplored conditions existing as a result of the force brought to bear on manufacturers by large retailers and mail catalogue houses and the resultant undermining of business for small retailers. This he asserted depleted pay envelopes foremployees in the factories. James Y. Jardine, of Hespeler, was returned as president of the South Waterloo Liberal-Conservative association. Officers elected were: Hon. President, R. O. McCullough, Galt; Executive, L. W. Weaver, Hespeler, Lewis Hahn, New Hamburg; F. Pattinson, Preston; A. N. W. Clare, Preston; George Bird, Ayr; F. S. Scott, Galt; M. H. Mullin, Preston; Robert Cowan, Waterloo; Wm. Alison, Dumfries; F. Debus, New Hamburg; secretary, H. A. Smith, Galt; assistant Secy. H. A. Stweart, Galt; Treasurer, C. G. Robertson, Preston.

DECREASE OF INCOMING TOURISTS AT SARNIA

Outgoing Tourist Traffic Much Heavier During Last Fiscal Year

Special to The Advertiser

Sarnia, Ont., April 11.—The tide of tourist passages at the border here definitely turned against Canada in the fiscal year closing March 31st, it was reported in the annual report of Chief Immigration Officer H. W. McCrum made public today. In the year there were 15,000 more Canadians entered the United States via train and automobile than the number of Americans entering Canada at Sarnia.

Mr. McCrum thought the world's fair at Chicago had much to do with it. Total passages through the Port were 460,000 in 1933 compared with 475,000 in the previous year. The decrease in U. S. citizens entering here was 25,000. Admissions for permanent residence in Canada were 252, a decrease of 187 compared with 1933 and Canadians returning to their native land decreased from 600 to 254 believed attributable to the NRA.

CLAIM PACKERS' PRIVATE BUYING HURTS INDUSTRY

Hog Buyers Testifying Before Stevens Committee Condemn Direct Sales

WOULD CURB TRUCKS

Say Elimination Of Hog Differentials Would Help The Price

Canadian Press Despatch

Ottawa, April 11.—Regulation of livestock truckers to eliminate direct sales to packing plants was urged today before the Stevens committee of the House of Commons by hog buyers from Winnipeg and Toronto. One of the plagues of the industry, the committee was advised, was they ractice of packers going into the country to make their purchases, depleting competition on the open markets where prices were fixed.

Elimination of hog differentials, now set by the packers, would increase prices to producers, according to Gordon Oswin of Toronto. A buyer for the United Farmers Livestock Department. At the present time only two packers have buyers on the Toronto market and only 30 percent of the hogs shipped to that city, are sold through the stockyards.

Urges Freight Rate Revision

In another day given over to the livestock industry, Oswald Freer, a commission man on the St. Boniface market, Winnipeg, urged revision of the livestock freight rates. He suggested a market-to-market system, patterned after the American plan with reductions on through rates to the east.

Regulation of truckers was urged by both witnesses, the Winnipeg buyer suggesting trucks be used as feeder units for the railways to eliminate direct selling to packers.

The committee adjourned until tomorrow when other witnesses on the livestock industry will be heard.

The committee has investigators working on department stores, furniture industry, clothing industry, chain stores and the milling and baking industry, it was announced today by the chairman Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce. In addition, a certain amount of work has been done on the Canadian rubber footwear industry and the tobacco-growing industry.

To Give Rebuttal Evidence

Livestock packers and department stores will be represented before the committee to give rebuttal evidence. Department stores, it was announced have engaged the services of some illustrious economists and are preparing an elaborate brief on price spreads and mass buying. The packers will specialize on direct livestock buying and the hog differentials, both of which have been attacked before the committee by producers and middlemen.

When the committee opened, Mr. Stevens asked members to make their questions as pointed as possible in order to shorten the livestock phase.

J. L. Ilsley, (Lib. Hants-King), said the investigation so far had covered only one side. Witnesses so far had advocated "open markets" and abolition of fixed differentials.

Mr. Stevens said the packers and all others interested would be given the fullest facilities before the committee. Most of the witnesses so far had asked to be heard and if there were others who wished to appear he would be glad to hear them.

Hogs Monopolizing Time

Sam Factor, (Liberal, Toronto), thought a great deal of time was being devoted to hogs, although he appreciated the importance of the subect.

Mr. Stevens said there were many other things to be considered. The committee was to investigate rubber, tobacco and other matters.

There was a hesitancy on the part of many persons in the livestock industry to come forward, said the minister. But anyone, whether packer, shipper, producer could come before the committee and present his side of the question.

H. P. Kennedy, Toronto livestock exporter, was questioned regarding the operation of the livestock marketing board which he suggested yesterday should be formed to control the price spread between consumer and producer.

A. D. BRAITHWAITE DEAD

Montreal, April 11.—Formerly one of Canada's leading bankers, A. D. Braithwaite, 78, died here today. Mr Braithwaite was for many years connected with the Bank of Montreal and for some years was superintendent of Ontario branches.

Mining and Oils

Total March production from three dredges of Bulolo Gold Dredging, Ltd., was 7,274 ounces of fine gold. Estimated working profit was 4,915 ounces, representing at $35 per ounce, a working profit of $172,025 in Canadian dollars. Dredges 1 and 2 in March were operating outside the originally contemplated dredging area ends.

—o—

According to official statement by Ed. Chaput, manager of Tiblemont Extension Syndicate, some high-grade gold assays have been obtained as a result of blasting on the No. 3 vein. On March 23 an assay was taken at $26.20. Early in April, further assays were taken, according to official report, from $83.60 to $95.20 per ton, without free gold included. The width of the vein is not mentioned.

The syndicate management reports that it has been encouraged by the work on No. 3 vein, and as a result work is proceeding on No. 1 vein, which, it is stated, has widened to 21 feet.

—o—

It is rumored that Central Canada Mines has taken an option on properties in the Sapawa Lake area, held by Joseph Errington, and on which drilling was done last year.

—o—

Dr. T. L. Gledhill, consulting geologist, will leave for the Michipicoten area this week to arrange a diamond drill program for the Murray Algoma property. The claims have been partly explored and three large veins located, of which two are known to be gold bearing. It is proposed to seek the extension of the veins by drilling and also to test values at depth. One of the veins is exposed on surface for 350 feet, with both ends drift-covered. Some 180 feet of the vein has been opened up and shows a width of 10 feet from which averaze assays of $12 per ton were obtained.

—o—

Latest word from the manager of the Sunorca Exploration Company is that diamond drilling is to be resumed on No. 2 hole on the Swayze property. The hole was drilled to an approximate depth of 200 feet, but a temporary breakdown of power equipment stopped work. It is hoped by the company that a few drill holes at depth will pick up the two veins already located on surface.

S. HURON TORIES CHOOSE ELLIOTT

MARTIN SPEAKS

Special to the Advertiser

Goderich, April 11.—South Huron Conservatives at Hensall today chose George H. Elliott, Clinton, Warden of Huron County, as their standard bearer in the forthcoming Provincial election. There were no other nominations, Mr. Elliott accepting. He was defeated by W. G. Medd, Progressive, in the 1929 election. The riding has since been redistributed, the towns of Clinton and Goderich, both of which usually return substantial Conservative majorities, now being included.

Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, was the principal speaker today. His address was a vigorous defence of the Henry Government, which, he said, would stand or fall on its record of accomplishment. He regarded the Opposition as hopelessly divided on the beer and other issues. He predicted another Conservative sweep, warning his hearers, however, against over-confidence.

Declares Surplus Exists

Answering Opposition charges of a "Phantom Surplus" the Minister of Public Welfare said; "George Henry is a clean business man, and when he says there is a half-million dollar surplus I defy any man to prove the contrary. There is no private business house in Canada handling its affairs more thoroughly and efficiently than is the Province of Ontario."

Col. Combe, of Clinton, was chairman, and the only three speakers were the candidate and E. R. Dennis, Western Ontario Conservative organizer. The weather was stormy, but over four hundred, mostly farmers, were present from all parts of the riding.

INTER. PRODUCTS LOSS

New York, April 11. — International Products—and subsidiaries report for 1933, as certified by independent auditors, net loss of $318,188, after depreciation, depletion, etc., and including $24,507 profit on foreign exchange. This compares with net loss of $672,351 in 1932.

ment but other than voting $20,000,000 for six months' relief, that session had achieved only the raising of tariffs against the rest of the world.

Dealing particularly with the $20,000,000 which Mr. Bennett had voted for unemployment relief, Mr. King recalled that during the ten years of the Liberal regime from 1920 to 1930, the entire amount spent for the same purpose was less than $2,000,000.

At the time when Mr. Bennett was obtaining this huge appropriation, Mr. King further recalled, he had urged him that the only way to end unemployment was to encourage trade; that trade could be fostered by reducing the cost of production, not by raising tariffs.

"I said in the House at that time that unemployment had become a national problem. I urged Mr. Bennett to appoint a national commission to deal with the situation. I suggested that on it should be representative of all phases of Canadian life, of labor, of industry, manufacturers, social services, and women's organizations. I suggested further that the sums that were to be paid out to the provinces should be all audited. And Mr. Bennett said that it would be an insult to the provinces to audit the accounts. At that time I said he would rue the day that the accounts were not audited. And what is the situation today?"

A recent report of the auditor-general had shown that huge sums of federal money appropriated for relief purposes have been wasted in every province, from coast to coast. It had been spent on administrative costs, for dental services, for gasoline and other things.

The Blank Cheque

In 1931 Mr. Bennett brought in his "blank cheque" legislation, giving the governor-in-council power to spend unlimited sums without consulting parliament. From 1930 to 1934, over $110,000,000 had been spent in federal money alone in this way.

"That is the thing we have been fighting against. It is being debated in the House tonight. But Mr. Bennett with his majority will carry it through," Mr. King predicted.

The same bill went even further by giving the government power to guarantee bank loans. He cited the $60,000,000 C.P.R. loan.

A large increase in the public debt and an increase in unemployment were the only results from the expenditure of colossal sums for relief, and the people were only beginning to find out "the shocking way in which the money had been spent," Mr. King said. Nothing had been done along the lines of making public parks and improving roads, such as the Liberals had contemplated.

Pork Barrel

"Remember that this year will probably be the year of a general election," Mr. King declared. "Under this legislation, the Conservative Administration will be able to dig into the treasury and spend what it likes on relief."

All the Opposition could do at present was to fight against these measures and to fight for democratic institutions, and the leader urged the people of South Oxford to give them a hand by electing Mr. Rennie as their member.

Mr. King declared that the home market is not the place, but the purchasing power of the people. The Tillsonburg market isn't the square on which goods are bought and sold but the purchasing power of the people who attend it. In the same way the home market of which Mr. Bennett speaks is the buying ability of the people in it.

Lack Buying Power

"Mr. Bennett can't see that. He keeps talking economic self-sufficiency and as we cut off trade with tariffs our home market withers up," he said.

The Liberal leader turned his attention to the questions raised in the report of Hon. Donald Sutherland, Conservative candidate, who in March 1933 presented to the registrar under the Combines Investigation Act his report on an investigation into an alleged combine among tobacco buyers.

"You would not know yet what was in that report had it not been for the Opposition. Mr. Eccles Gott asked for it a long while ago, but the matter was allowed to stand on the order paper for weeks. I wondered if there were something in it which the government didn't want the people to see and I queried about it in the house. Why should Mr. Gott let his uestion stand if the government hadn't asked him to do so? The minister of labor made a long explanation about possible prosecutions as a result of the report. We kept asking for it.

"Finally on Monday Mr. Bennett said we could have it because they were saying he was a director of the Imperial Tobacco Co. Was it in your interests or to protect Mr. Bennett that the report was brought down?

Ecuses

"I had heard the minister say the report couldn't be brought down for certain reasons so I looked at it when the house received it. It said that the evidence was not sufficient to establish a combine within the meaning of the act. Where are you going to get prosecutions out of that? How are you going to send anybody to jail when the investigator says there is no evidence?" asked Mr. King.

Mr. King noted that the letter of the registrar to the minister when he handed Mr. Sutherland's report on reminded him that if he concluded that there was no necessity for a further inquiry, he should notify those who had sought it. "The report was made in March, 1933. Nothing has been done about it, but those who asked for the investigation have never been notified. If they had they might have gathered further evidence or sought an inquiry through another channel."

Tariff Sweating

Mr. King said that with the tariff at the highest level in Canadian history, sweating of labor has gone on on a scale never known before. It is inevitably so. "Once trade is strangled by tariffs, then you can form monopolies and squeeze the workingman to the lowest level."

The marketing bill now before Parliament is bait for the farmers, said Mr. King. He urged them not to be humbugged again. One clause in the bill gives the Governor-in-Council, which in practice means Mr. Bennett, the power to prohibit import or export of any article.

"If that clause remains it means that you are parting entirely with the right of yourself and parliament to dictator, said Mr. King. He has the power to legislate as he pleases under the "Peace, order and good government" measure, and to spend what he will from the public treasury. Under the marketing act he can regulate trade in any manner he sees fit.

"The Liberal policy has always been to develop trade. That is a policy of plenty. But once you begin to restrict trade you have a policy of scarcity," he said, adding that in the wheat pact to restrict production and export of wheat the policy had been carried through to the logical conclusion.

"This government has done all it can to destroy trade and now it seeks to destroy production," he said. Subsidies to various pests would be a cheaper way to regulate production than an army of officials.

Mr. Rennie

Mr. Rennie declared that only the Liberal policy aims at a solution of problems of agriculture, and until these are solved things canot be much better. His trips up and down the highways during the campaign have shown him as nothing else could, the hopelessness which is blighting the lives of young unemployed transients.

Mr. Hepburn, who introduced Mr. King, wanted to know why Mr. Bennett did not come into the riding instead of entering it from Ottawa vit the radio. Here a heckler interrupted Mr. Hepburn.

"If the gentleman has anything to say let him come to the platform and say it," said Mr. Hepburn. Whereupon Alex Reynolds, Tillsonburg, marched to the platform amid loud shouts of disapproval from the crowd. "I would like to ask Mr. Hepburn why he is not at the Ontario House defending his record," asked Mr. Reynolds.

"Very well, I will tell you. The House should have been dissolved a year ago. It carried on on borrowed time," said Mr. Hepburn as the audience roared approval, and indicated its unwillingness to tolerate further interruptions.

Mr. Hepburn Explains Again

"It was well known when I accepted the leadership of the Ontario party that I would not leave the people of West Elgin until I had finished the term for which they elected me. There is such a thing as loyalty. I have not followed the line of least resistence. I might have entered the legislature through an acclamation in East Kent. I know that I have a difficult riding in Elgin now but I will stand or fal by the decision of the people in my own country," said Mr. Hepburn.

Mr. Hepburn declared that Canada under the Bennett government has drifted far from established parliamentary practices. "We have little democracy in this country today. We are nearer to a dictatorship than the people realize. We want a new deal. We want Mackenzie King as premier. We want a new government and we want Liberal prosperity," he said.

William Brown, Tillsonburg, was chairman. Mrs. L. G. Little and Mrs. Jack Climie sang solos. Flowers were presented to the singers by Misses Dorothy Daniels and Margery Stafford.

Among those on the platform were Dougald Graham, George Perry, N. J. Griffith, G. A. P. Brickenden, Dr. A. S. Duncan, Paul Gravelle, Charles Oliver and Hon. J. C. Elliott, all of London; Colin C. Hawkins, Brownsville; R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., C. E. Brown, Tillsonburg; P. M. Dewan, Woodstock; Jack Jewell, Tillsonburg; Keith M. Somers, Tillsonburg; Eric Cross, Simcoe; Vern Meek, M. G. Dean, Dr. J. M. Rogers, and H. A. Copeland, Ingersoll.

The Tillsonburg Citizens' Band under the leadership of Boyd Sylvester played before the meeting got under way.

Special to The Advertiser

(By Staff Reporter)

Norwich, April 11—"If this constituency goes Liberal on Monday next, I say the Prime Minister cannot afford to carry on the government of this country any longer without going to the people next fall," declared the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, speaking to the Liberal rally in Edison Hall here this afternoon.

Mr. King's speech this afternoon was a short one, lasting scarcely an hour, but in it he raised issues of tremendous importance. He declared that the actions of the Bennett government in transferring power to the cabinet constituted a very serious threat to constitutional and democratic forms of government in Canada and that it is quite conceivable in the event of a European crisis in the near future Mr. Bennett might decide to let his administration carry on indefinitely.

Opening his speech Mr. King said that a public man has no greater privilege than to come into the ridings after a battle for the people's liberties in parliament and get from the people their opinion of his stand.

Left Unrepresented

"The question now before you is whether you trust a government which does not trust you. If you approve of the fact that you have had no representation in parliament this year, then by all means vote for Mr. Sutherland. Mr. Bennett does not trust South Oxford and has let it go unrepresented", said Mr. King. The Liberal practice had been to bring on by-elections as soon as possible. Mr. Bennett had brought on three recently but left South Oxford out.

"Mr. Bennett knew that his government did not possess the confidence of the people. He hoped to carry one of the three by-elections which were called but he left out the one that will beat him the worst," he said. "Your vote won't put Mr. Bennett out but it will decide definitely if we will have a general election in the fall or if we are to have another year of Bennett rule."

Series of Defeats

Mr. King said that the Liberal party welcomed the South Oxford by-election as another opportunity to show the government that it has lost the people's confidence. Under the British parliamentary system it is an established practice for a government to go to the country when it loses a series of by-elections. The Bennett government could not hope to avoid this appeal if on top of Restigouche-Madawaska, Yamaska, [illegible] and South Huron it loses the people of South Oxford tell Mr. Bennett to get out of the way, it seems to me that he will be obliged to go to the country this fall. A big opportunity is yours," he said.

The political and economic problems facing Canada are the most important in her history, said the Liberal leader. He recalled that in the general election of 1930 he had told the people that the world was facing a great depression and that Liberal policies had been fashioned in this belief. The depression was partly because of the war and partly because of the orgy of speculation, but, said Mr. King, he believed that the Liberal policies had prevented Canada from feeling the full impact of the world depression.

Set Example To World

"The Liberal party brought Canada out of a depression in 1921. It was not a mere accident but the result of certain policies moving toward definite ends. Other nations went in for economic isolation but we resolved to extend our markets. We thought that we at least in the British Empire need not go in for the policy of economic nationalism but rather felt we should set an example to the rest of the world. The Dunning budget was directed to the lowering of tariffs in the British Empire. Our policy was met with Mr. Bennett's 'Canada first' and protectionist interests were told that tariff walls would be put up all over. If things had been left there, there might have been a different story but we would provide work for all men. There would be no doles. His two great promises were 'Everyone will work and everyone will have markets.' He included the whole people and the people took him at his word."

The Liberal leader asked how many had work today compared with four years ago. How many have the markets they had four years ago? Those are questions for South Oxford to answer.

Mr. King declared an expansion of trade to be the only solution to this unemployment problem. Work cannot be supplied from taxes indefinitely. It must come from the wealth of the soil, forest, mine and sea.

"We must use the wealth which God has given us and until we exchange these things we can't have things running very well," he said.

Assailed for Peace Work

The League of Nations had been founded to promote the mutual interests of the nations and to prevent war, said Mr. King. Canada was a member of the League and had done her best. Yet in 1930 the Liberal party was assailed by Mr. Bennett because it had had the courage to lower tariffs in an effort to solve economic problems, problems directly related to those of peace and war. "But you ask the Conservative candidate where trade was then and where it is now," urged Mr. King.

The problem facing the world, economic isolation for the different nations or a policy of international cooperation in trade and everything else with a view to ending economic nationalism and to building a greater brotherhood of mankind is well stated in the difference between Liberal and Conservative policies in Canada today, said Mr. King.

Social Revolution Here

Leaving the trade problem Mr. King said that the times demand a change in the social order. Men, women and children demand more social justice, more to be done for the common good and greater opportunity for all. Those things which have shattered forms of government to Europe and brought the 'New Deal' to the United States are touching Canada.

"To day we are in the middle of a social revolution, a world social revolution, and the problem is where it is going to end as far as the people are concerned. Humanity is on the march. Some say we should have a planned economy. But that means a dictatorship, force and power. Others put their faith in principles and say that these have guided men and women for centuries, and that is the Liberal policy. There are principles for work, peace, and progress and the people who fashion their laws in accord with them will enjoy peace," he said.

Danger of Dictatorship

There is a danger right now of a dictatorship in Canada, Mr. King said, and it is up to the people of South Oxford to say that this country must be controlled by the parliamentary system. In Italy, Germany, Russia, Austria and other places, representative institutions have disappeared. In the United States larger powers than ever have been invested in the executive. But under the British system the executive is responsible to the people's representatives and must get his power from them.

"But Mr. Bennett started out four years ago on the theory of an emergency and demanded emergency powers. He called parliament to deal with unemployment and then raised the tariffs," said Mr. King, reviewing the factors which led to the breakdown of the 1930 session of the Imperiol economic conference. "Mr. Bennett's offer to Britain of a preferential tariff really meant a step further along the road of economic nationalism because the tariff was to be raised against all other nations."

British Market Endangered

Mr. King said that in the House of Commons he had stated that the agreements reached at the 1932 conference would endanger the British market for Canadian producers and today the British agriculturist is demanding protection against his Canadian competitors in cattle and dairy products.

"Remember where this policy started and if you approve of it vote for the Bennett candidate," he said.

Even worse than economic nationalism is economic imperialism, continued Mr. King. Every thinking man stands aghast when he thinks of an empire seeking to stand out as a unit against the rest of the world.

"Unless this sort of thing ends, economic war will give way to actual war," he predicted. "Unless some country comes along to set an example the world will face a worse situation than ever."

Parliament Being Shelved

Mr. King declared that the Bennett policy for Canada is to get rid of parliament altogether and to let the executive do what it pleases. He referred to the "Peace, order and good government" clause now before the Commons which gives the government unlimited powers. It can guarantee corporation loans, lend millions to the provinces. "The government, under one clause of that bill, is getting even the authority to prevent a general election. It might be used in the event of a European crisis. That was what was done in Cromwell's day. We cannot afford now to turn over all government to the governor in council," declared Mr. King, asserting that the Liberal party would keep up the battle to guard parliament's rights.

Vast Sums Squandered

Moneys paid out for relief under the "Peace, order and good government" clause had been improperly spent, said Mr. King. Money was wasted on the worst scale in Canada's history. To the provinces had been loaned $52,000,000 and it is doubtful if the Federal treasury will ever see it again. Bank guarantees of more than $100,000,000 have been given, including the $60,000,000 C. P. R. guarantee.

"What is worse is that the provinces are now following Mr. Bennett's example and transferring power to the cabinets from the people's representatives," the speaker continued. The British Columbia premier has taken powers like those that Mr. Bennett has. A bill to this end is under way in Alberta. Already it is in effect in Saskatchewan in respect to some things, while the same is true of Manitoba."

Bennett Set Example

"Do you think these premiers would have thought of it if Mr. Bennett had not set the example?" asked Mr. King.

The Liberal leader noted that the other day Mr. Bennett told the Commons that he needed the powers he asked so he could combat British Columbia. "It is a matter of competitive arming for legislative and executive power. How long would it be in this province until Mr. Henry took those powers if he were re-elected?"

"We have a spirit of warfare abroad, the spirit which has bedevilled European nations. Our dictators say they must have new powers. I say to you that economic war and competitive arming in whatever form it comes sooner or later results in actual war. Let it come to Europe and how long will it be until we feel it? One country needs to stand up for democratic institutions and international good will. It is this larger policy which the Liberal party is working out."

Hall is Packed

Crowds began gathering around the hall long before the time set for the meeting. Although it was snowing, many stood in the streets and in doorways to listen-in as sound apparatus carried the music and speeches to those outside. Every available inch of space inside was taken, with the balconies packed, and spectators standing in the aisles and even in the wings of the platform.

Mr. King and the other speakers were given a rousing reception. John McKee of Norwich acted as chairman and those on the platform included M. F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader; Hon. J. C. Elliott, M. P., former minister of public works; Reeve John Armour of Norwich; Rev. James Skene, Norwich; R. A. McDougall, Dominion president, and Donald Begg, provincial president of the Twentieth Century Club; P. M. Dean, provincial Liberal candidate for Oxford, and the Liberal candidate in this by-election, A. S. Rennie.

Children's Hero

To the children of the town, Mr. King came as a popular hero. Because of his visit they were given a half holiday from school and many of them were in the audience. The platform was decorated with flowers and in places of honor were flag-draped pictures of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, William Lyon Mackenzie and other Liberal leaders.

Mr. Rennie was the first speaker, opening his address with a sincere tribute to T. M. Cayley, late Liberal member. He blamed the Conservatives for the fact that South Oxford had not had representation for the greater part of the present parliamentary session, declaring that the people of this riding had been ill treated in the government's delaying the election until this time, thus disenfranchising them for most of the session.

Policies Poles Apart

"The policies of Mr. King and Mr. Bennett are as far apart as the poles," the candidate declared. Liberal policies, he said, will bring a return of prosperity to the farmer, while a continuation of Conservative rule meant the addition of restrictions to trade and even worse conditions than those that exist today.

Referring to statements made in the riding by Hon. R. J. Manion, Mr. Rennie declared that the Conservative speaker was wrong when he informed the people that Canada stood fifth in trade in the world. He quoted from a report of Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, showing that it had dropped from fifth to ninth place since 1930. Conservative speakers were also misleading in statements that Canada's export trade had greatly increased, Mr. Rennie declared, giving a comparison with other countries which showed that while exports in Australia increased 35 per cent, in Sweden and Switzerland 29.1 per cent, Canada's exports had gone up only 7.6 per cent.

"It is about time the Pension Act is properly administered," the speaker declared, in touching on veterans' legislation. Under the present government the act was being unfairly administered, he said.

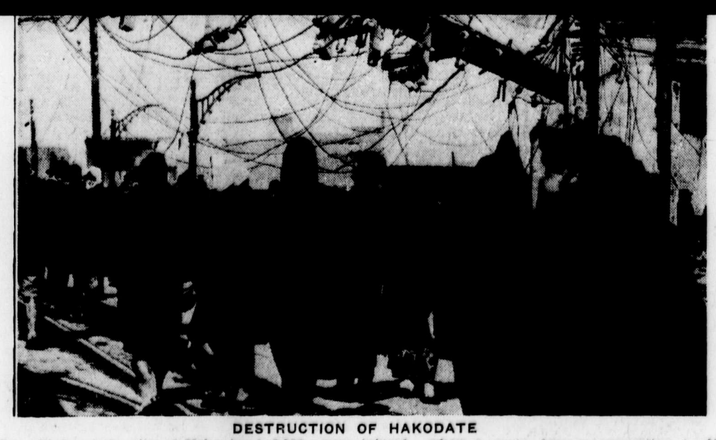
Hepburn Predicts Victory

Mr. Hepburn was greeted with cheers and he paid tribute to Mr. Rennie, predicting for him a victory on April 16. The Liberal leader also spoke words of praise for his federal leader, Mr. King, declaring that he was "probably the greatest statesman this country has ever produced."

In not coming into the riding but instead intending to speak over the radio, Mr. Bennett had shown that "the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak," Mr. Hepburn declared.

You will either vote to perpetuate Mr. Bennett's government in office or register a protest against its record, the speaker said. Mr. Bennett was doing nothing for the farmer and working man. He did nothing but raise tariffs, granting privileges to the strong and more charity to the weak. With this policy of playing both ends against the middle the whole financial structure of the country was in danger of collapse.

Significant Election



The result of this vote will have a great effect throughout the entire Dominion. It will have an effect on the coming general election in Ontario and if Mr. Rennie is elected, it will provide a ray of hope in these dark days, the Liberal leader concluded.

Mr. Elliott introduced Mr. King in a brief speech and thunderous applause greeted the federal leader. Reeve Armour read an address of welcome and Mr. King received a lovely bouquet and a kiss from little Jean Snell as he rose to speak.

KARL K. HOMUTH GETS NOMINATION

Conservative Choice For Provincial Candidate In South Waterloo

ISSUES CHALLENGE

Special to The Advertiser

Preston, April 11—Accorded the Conservative nomination by acclamation when J. M. Willard of Galt withdrew, Karl K. Homuth, was selected to represent the party in South Waterloo in the coming provincial elections.

The challenge of Karl K. Homuth to meet Mitchell Hepburn in a platform debate in Waterloo, the large attendance, despite a snowstorm, in addition to the selection of officers and executives proved the high lights of the convention. Mitchell Hepburn has stated that he will publicly debate and defend his position in any riding in the province," Mr. Homuth stated. "I challenge Mr. Hepburn to come to South Waterloo."

Hits at Mass Buying

A. M. Edwards, of Galt, Federal representative for South Waterloo gave a resume of the Federal work under Premier Bennett, while as a member of the Stevens committee he deplored conditions existing as a result of the force brought to bear on manufacturers by large retailers and mail catalogue houses and the resultant undermining of business for small retailers. This he asserted depleted pay envelopes foremployees in the factories. James V. Jardine, of Hespeler, was returned as president of the South Waterloo Liberal-Conservative association. Officers elected were: Hon. President, R. O. McCullough, Galt; Executive, L. W. Weaver, Hespeler, Lewis Hahn, New Hamburg; F. Pattinson, Preston; A. N. W. Clare, Preston; George Bird, Ayr; F. S. Scott, Galt; M. H. Mullin, Preston; Robert Cowan, Waterloo; Wm. Alison, Dumfries; F. Debus, New Hamburg; secretary, H. A. Smith, Galt; assistant Secy. H. A. Stweart, Galt; Treasurer, C. G. Robertson, Preston.

DECREASE OF INCOMING TOURISTS AT SARNIA

Outgoing Tourist Traffic Much Heavier During Last Fiscal Year

Special to The Advertiser

Sarnia, Ont., April 11.—The tide of tourist passages at the border here definitely turned against Canada in the fiscal year closing March 31st, it was reported in the annual report of Chief Immigration Officer H. W. McCrum made public today. In the year there were 15,000 more Canadians entered the United States via train and automobile than the number of Americans entering Canada at Sarnia.

Mr. McCrum thought the world's fair at Chicago had much to do with it. Total passages through the Port were 460,000 in 1933 compared with 475,000 in the previous year. The decrease in U. S. citizens entering here was 25,000. Admissions for permanent residence in Canada were 252, a decrease of 187 compared with 1933 and Canadians returning to their native land decreased from 600 to 254 believed attributable to the NRA.

WOULD CURB TRUCKS

Say Elimination Of Hog Differentials Would Help The Price

Canadian Press Despatch

Ottawa, April 11.—Regulation of livestock truckers to eliminate direct sales to packing plants was urged today before the Stevens committee of the House of Commons by hog buyers from Winnipeg and Toronto. One of the plagues of the industry, the committee was advised, was thep ractice of packers going into the country to make their purchases, depleting competition on the open markets where prices were fixed.

Elimination of hog differentials, now set by the packers, would increase prices to producers, according to Gordon Oswin of Toronto. A buyer for the United Farmers Livestock Department, At the present time only two packers have buyers on the Toronto market and only 30 percent of the hogs shipped to that city, are sold through the stockyards.

Urges Freight Rate Revision

In another day given over to the livestock industry, Oswald Freer, a commission man on the St. Boniface market, Winnipeg, urged revision of the livestock freight rates. He suggested a market-to-market system, patterned after the American plan with reductions on through rates to the east.

Regulation of truckers was urged by both witnesses, the Winnipeg buyer suggesting trucks be used as feeder units for the railways to eliminate direct selling to packers.

The committee adjourned until tomorrow when other witnesses on the livestock industry will be heard.

The committee has investigators working on department stores, furniture industry, clothing industry, chain stores and the milling and baking industry, it was announced today by the chairman Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce. In addition, a certain amount of work has been done on the Canadian rubber footwear industry and the tobacco-growing industry.

To Give Rebuttal Evidence

Livestock packers and department stores will be represented before the committee to give rebuttal evidence. Department stores, it was announced have engaged the services of some illustrious economists and are preparing an elaborate brief on price spreads and mass buying. The packers will specialize on direct livestock buying and the hog differentials, both of which have been attacked before the committee by producers and middlemen.

When the committee opened, Mr. Stevens asked members to make their questions as pointed as possible in order to shorten the livestock phase.

J. L. Ilsley, (Lib. Hants-King), said the investigation so far had covered only one side. Witnesses so far had advocated "open markets" and abolition of fixed differentials.

Mr. Stevens said the packers and all others interested would be given the fullest facilities before the committee. Most of the witnesses so far had asked to be heard and if there were others who wished to appear he would be glad to hear them.

Hogs Monopolizing Time

Sam Factor, (Liberal, Toronto), thought a great deal of time was being devoted to hogs although he appreciated the importance of the subect.

Mr. Stevens said there were many other things to be considered. The committee was to investigate rubber, tobacco and other matters.

There was a hesitancy on the part of many persons in the livestock industry to come forward, said the minister. But anyone, whether packer, shipper, producer could come before the committee and present his side of the question.

H. P. Kennedy, Toronto livestock exporter, was questioned regarding the operation of the livestock marketing board which he suggested yesterday should be formed to control the price spread between consumer and producer.

A. D. BRAITHWAITE DEAD

Montreal, April 11.—Formerly one of Canada's leading bankers, A. D. Braithwaite, 78, died here today. Mr Braithwaite was for many years connected with the Bank of Montreal and for some years was superintendent of Ontario branches.

On March 23 an assay was taken at $26.20. Early in April, further assays were taken, according to official report, from $83.60 to $95.20 per ton, without free gold included. The width of the vein is not mentioned.

The syndicate management reports that it has been encouraged by the work on No. 3 vein, and as a result work is proceeding on No. 1 vein, which, it is stated, has widened to 21 feet.

—o—

It is rumored that Central Canada Mines has taken an option on properties in the Sapawa Lake area, held by Joseph Errington, and on which drilling was done last year.

—o—

Dr. T. L. Gledhill, consulting geologist, will leave for the Michipicoten area this week to arrange a diamond drill program for the Murray Algoma property. The claims have been partly explored and three large veins located, of which two are known to be gold bearing. It is proposed to seek the extension of the veins by drilling and also to test values at depth. One of the veins is exposed on surface for 350 feet, with both ends drift-covered. Some 180 feet of the vein has been opened up and shows a width of 10 feet from which average assays of $12 per ton were obtained.

—o—

Latest word from the manager of the Sunorca Exploration Company is that diamond drilling is to be resumed on No. 2 hole on the Swayze property. The hole was drilled to an approximate depth of 200 feet, but a temporary breakdown of power equipment stopped work. It is hoped by the company that a few drill holes at depth will pick up the two veins already located on surface.

S. HURON TORIES CHOOSE ELLIOTT

MARTIN SPEAKS

Special to the Advertiser

Goderich, April 11.—South Huron Conservatives at Hensall today chose George H. Elliott, Clinton, Warden of Huron County, as their standard bearer in the forthcoming Provincial election. There were no other nominations, Mr. Elliott accepting. He was defeated by W. G. Medd, Progressive, in the 1929 election. The riding has since been redistributed, the towns of Clinton and Goderich, both of which usually return substantial Conservative majorities, now being included.

Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, was the principal speaker today. His address was a vigorous defence of the Henry Government, which, he said, would stand or fall on its record of accomplishment. He regarded the Opposition as hopelessly divided on the beer and other issues. He predicted another Conservative sweep, warning his hearers, however, against over-confidence.

Declares Surplus Exists

Answering Opposition charges of a "Phantom Surplus" the Minister of Public Welfare said; "George Henry is a clean business man, and when he says there is a half-million dollar surplus I defy any man to prove the contrary. There is no private business house in Canada handling its affairs more thoroughly and efficiently than is the Province of Ontario."

Col. Combe, of Clinton, was chairman, and the only three speakers were the candidate and E. R. Dennis, Western Ontario Conservative organizer. The weather was stormy, but over four hundred, mostly farmers, were present from all parts of the riding.

INTER. PRODUCTS LOSS

New York, April 11. — International Products—and subsidiaries report for 1933, as certified by independent auditors, net loss of $318,188, after depreciation, depletion, etc., and including $24,507 profit on foreign exchange. This compares with net loss of $672,351 in 1932.

YOU, TOO CAN WIN

There are six winners each week in The Bulletinboard Review Feature, that interesting contest page, and guide to many of Londons Leading stores, which appears in The London Leader every Thursday and The London Advertiser every Saturday.

Possibly among the winners' names which are announced each week you have noticed the name of one of your neighbors or friends. They have been successful—and they may be successful again next week, as everyone sending in a reply has an equal chance of winning. Read the rules carefully, then send in a reply, maybe you will be included in next week's winners.

MONCTON HAWKS CLAW AMERICAN CHAMPS 13-3 TO WIN SET

Allan Cup Holders Pour Rubber in White Star Net

Canuck's 62nd Game Of Season Turns Out To Be Easiest Win Of All

ONLY 250 SEE IT

Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, Apr. 11.—Moncton Hawks spread their tired wings for the first time in a couple of weeks here tonight and won the North American Amateur Hockey Championship with a landslide victory over Detroit White Stars, United States title holders, 13-3.

Only 250 or so spectators sat in on the big killing as the Allan Cup champions went systematically to work to see how many goals they could score against a team they had previously outclassed twice on the form sheets but beaten only once on the score card.

Stars won the first of the three game series here last Saturday night by 2-1 overtime and the Hawks evened the count by winning 4-1 on Monday night. With the title at stake, the fleet brigade from the Maritimes went into high gear at the start tonight and were seeking goal No. 14 at the finish as earnestly as they had sought No. 1 in the first stanza.

Everybody on the Moncton lineup except Goaler Jimmy Foster took a hand in the scoring and everybody scored at least once with the exception of Foster and "Nucker" Irvine, lean left winger who got his name in the scoring record with an assist.

Duke McDonald, Bill Miller, Bill Gill, Sammy McManus and Aubrey Webster scored two apiece and Bert Connolly, Dud James and Len Burrage kicked in with the others. It was just the sort of high-powered scoring Toronto fandom had expected of the Hawks in the first series game.

f the IAllan Cuppers took it easy in the first two games they worked hard tonight. There was little body checking—the idea was goals. The Hawks raced down three and four abreast in the hope of piling up the total even when they were shorthanded through penalties.

Stars Open Scoring

The luckless White Stars scored the first goal of the contest on a neat passing play, Al David shooting the puck past Foster. Then the Hawks ran in five without delay and led 5-1 starting the second period. They banged in three more in the middle stanza while the American champions were getting two.

The real fun was in the third session when the Hawks collected five more without reply. Even big Pete McMahon, brilliant Detroit goaler, had become thoroughly discouraged by this time, but he kicked out half a dozen shots that might have slipped past him.

McMahon was the lone defensive power of the Stars. His defence was riddled early in the game and the rid[illegible] were not fast enough to [illegible] effectively. It was Moncton's 62nd game of the season and perhaps the easiest of them all.

The lineup:

Detroit: Goal, McMahon, defence, Wright and Robson; centre, Bigham; wings, Hunt and Sullivan; subs. David, Crossman, Reed, Kirwan.

Moncton: goal, Foster; defence Gill and Burrage; centre, Connolly; wings, McDonald and Irvine; subs. Webster, McManus, James, Miller.

Officials: M. J. Rodden, Toronto and Jack Tompkins, Detroit.

Junior Soccerists Have Big Confab

New Trophies Are Presented And League Schedule Is Adopted

The regular meeting of the Junior soccer organization was the largest attended this year, the rooms being filled with many unable to secure seats. Delegates from St. Thomas, Ingersoll and the four local clubs being present. While the many players present were no doubt interested in any reinstatements the applicants were rejected in most cases, only one applicant receiving the approval of the association. The new trophies which were donated by Mayor C. Wenige and the Supertest Co. of London, were presented to the association at this meeting. Secretary T. Brock was instructed to write the donors expressing the appreciation of the association.

Consideration and approval of the schedule was debated at length and the following dates and games were approved, (home teams first):

WAIVE TERRITORY RIGHTS TO N.H.L. IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, April 11.—The rumored transfer to St. Louis of the Ottawa club of the National Hockey League will not be opposed by the American Association if the minor circuit is compensated for the loss of territory, [illegible] C. Grant, association president, said here.

Grant, who voiced opposition to the proposed move when Ottawa despatches first reported it last week, said objection would be withdrawn if compensation is paid and Frank (Doc) Wainwright, operator of the present St. Louis club, is satisfied.

A league meeting would be necessary to determine what value the American Association would place on the franchise, Grant said. Hockey, which started slowly in St. Louis six years ago, reached a peak in the season just closed, more than 200,000 persons attending 24 home games.

Non-Winning Colt Is Derby Favorite

Sir Thomas Has Never Won A Race, But Is Choice In Future Book

Louisville, Ky., April 11.—For the first time in history a colt that never won a race is the future book favorite for the Kentucky Derby. He is Sir Thomas, the nominee of A. B. Gordon who has high hopes of being the first Louisvillan to own a Derby winner since Old Rosebud triumphed for H. C. Applegate 20 years ago.

The popularity of Sir Thomas is demarkable in that only two "maidens" have won the Kentucky Derby in the 59 years of its history—J. K. L. Ross' Sir Barton in 1919 and Broker's Tip last year—but there are substantial reasons for the high esteem in which Sir Thomas is held. One of them is that he was sired by Sir Gallahad III, sire of Gallant Fox victor in 1930 which still is the Derby winner standing highest among the turf world's leading money winners.

Sir Thomas is being trained by his owner, Mr. Gordon, who has conditioned several famed thoroughbreds in the past. Under the handling of a trainer who has proven his ability to prepare horses for distance races the performance of Sir Thomas in workouts at Churchill Downs has made Louisville turf followers almost hysterical over his chances to win the 60th Kentucky Derby on May 5.

When the future book odds on Sir Thomas dropped to 8 to 1 last week, the Louisville railbirds prophesied his odds would drop to 6 to 1 this week, and 2 to 1 if he goes to the post in the Derby. Half of this prediction has ben fulfilled, as Tom Kearney, St. Louis Commissioner, reduced the odds on the Gordon nominee to 6 to 1 Monday, making him the favorite in his book.

Sir Thomas was working a mile around 1.45 at Douglas Park here in February, and it was not until some time later that the experts caught on and began touting the Gordon colt. His latest effort over the full Derby route of a mile and a quarter was 2.11, on a track three seconds slow.

DUPLICATE BRIDGE

The regular weekly meeting of the Tecumseh Duplicate Bridge Club was held in the Hotel London on Tuesday evening, April 10th, there being 34 members of the club present at this 26th game of the current season's play.

The club was divided into two sections for the night's play, there being a four table Howell game and a five table Mitchell game and the having plus scores on the evening's play are as follows:

Howell Game

Dr. H. A. Skinner and J. R. McPhillips, (plus 10); W. J. Lancaster and W. E. Spencer, (plus 8).

Mitchell Game

(North and South)

Miss M. Clendenan and Mrs. A. W. Hayman, (plus 6); Mrs. H. Killaly and Miss J. Wilson, (plus 2); Dr. W. J. McLean and R. E. Pemberton, (plus 1½).

(East and West)

Mrs. W. Percival and Mrs. Turner, (plus 14); Mrs. H. Wilson and Mrs. R. W. Robertson, (plus 5½).

BAER IS ON WAY

Sacramento, Cal., April 11.—Max Baer was enroute to New York today and no one in the California heavyweight's entourage was more confident than Max that he would return home the heavyweight champion of the world.

"I'll knock him out, sure," Max confidently announced as he boarded the train here with his manager Ancil Hoffman, his trainer Mike Cantwell, and young brother Buddy Baer.

STABLE BOY WOUNDED; RACE TRACK IS SUED

Houston, Tex., April 11.—Two Two suits for damages aggregating $117,350 were fyled in Federal Court today against the Texas Breeders and Racing Association, owners of Epsom Downs track here, as the result of a shooting March 15 in which Tommy Blanchard, a Montreal stable boy, was wounded.

One suit was by Mrs. Cyrilla Blanchard of Montreal, on the boy's behalf, and the other was by Mrs. Blanchard on her own behalf. Blanchard was an employee of A. G. Tarn, Montreal stable owner.

Mrs. Blanchard's petition alleged the boy probably had been permanently disabled as a result of being shot by L. A. Eades, special officer employed by the Epsom Downs track. The mother declared her boy would have become a jockey next year and therefore had a reasonable expectation of earning $10,000 a year.

Chicago Game Short Overtime

Four Games In Last Five Years Longer

Chicago, April 11.—Four National hockey league play-off games in the last five years were longer than the Chicago-Detroit Stanley Cup final last night which went 30 minutes and five seconds of extra time before the Black Hawks won by 1-0 and captured the trophy.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins set the world record last spring when the Leafs won the N.H.L. title after 104 minutes and 46 seconds of overtime.

Mush March, one of the small men of hockey, scored the winning goal for the Hawks. March weighs 147, and a midget gave the Leafs in their endurance test against the Bruins, 127-pound Ken Doraty bagging the deciding tally.

Until last spring, the longest game on record was played in the 1930 playoffs when Montreal Canadiens and in the same playoff campaign, Canadiens went 52 minutes overtime against Chicago.

London Skating Club Election

Col. Hill Is New President—Recent Winter One Of Best In History

Col. S. H. Hill, former president of the Minto Club in Ottawa, last night was elected president of the London Skating Club at the annual meeting. Howard Higgins, retiring president, reviewed the past year's activities, and his report showed a considerable membership increase. The year was regarded as one of the best since the club's inception.

The new officers follow:—hon. pres., Col. I. Leonard; hon. vice pres., Ray Lawson, A. E. Silverwood, Mrs. F. J. White, John Labatt; president, Col. S. H. Hill; vice pres., J. St. Thomas Girls To Get New Park

Floodlighting Will Let Purples Play League Softball Games At Home

A new softball diamond with floodlights for night plya is being planned for St. Thomas, Charlie Smale of St. Thomas, president of the Major Intercity Girls' Softball League announced at a meeting of the circuit held he,e last night.

During past seasons, St. Thomas Purples have had to play all their league games on the London llamond, but if their new field materializes they will play anout 24 home games on it, the same team as last year, according to an announcement made by C. E. Speiran. During the latter part of the schedule the furniture girls made things interesting for all comers.

Gordon Southcott will again coach the Silverwood team and he is in search of a new catcher. Otherwise the Silverwood team will be the same as last season.

Kelloggs, champions of the Major Intercity League for the past three years, plan on using much the same team as last year. Kelloggs will also sponsor an intermediate team.

A league schedule meeting will be held next week.

The three London entries—Kelloggs, Burroughes and Silverwoods—will again be starters in the league, and an intermediate league will also be sponsored here, the greater part of the intermediate fixtures to be played as openers on the senior bills.

During the last three years, the local senior teams have been affiliated with the Olympic League at Sunnyside in Toronto, but the Toronto Acorn League has made overtures for the coming summer.

It was decided to open the local season on or about May 15.

POLISH UP OLE' HORSE SHOES AT PETROLIA

Petrolia, April 11.—With the assurance that summer is not far off local horseshoe enthusiasts are polishing up their shoes in anticipation of a bright season this year. Already one has heard the clink of shoes this spring and the Enarco Horseshoe Club, which is a branch of the Enarco Athletic Club of the Canadian Oil Companies, Ltd., has recently held its organization meeting which resulted as follows: Manager, Russell Lennan; Assistant Manager, Charles Tobias; Grounds Committee, Chris Avsecuth, Chet McRitchie, and William Mowlett; Transportation Committee, Roy Smith and Hugh Whitlock.

During recent years the sport has become increasingly popular and the local club's annual competition brings out members from a distance to participate in the oil town's games. This year it is hoped that a large league may be formed which will include teams from Sarnia, Petrolia, Camlachie, Brigden and Rutherford.

RIDGETOWN BADMINTON

Ridgetown, April 11.—Members of the Ridgetown Badminton club enjoyed a tournament last evening. The group captained by Miss Reta Richardson won the evening's playing by one game over the group captained by Miss Katherine Bawden.

Miss Richardson's team consisted of the following: Miss Owen Ead, Miss Olive Clark, Miss Greta Locke, Miss G. I. Rodgers, Miss Veronica McGuire, Oscar Smith, William Roth, Ward Turner, Harvey Stewart, William Shewan and Paul Jefferies. The members of Miss Bawden's team

Montreal, April 11.—Assumption College of Windsor, Ontario Senior Basketball Champions, tonight lost the first game of the Ontario-Quebec Dominion playdawn by the narrowest of margins, being defeated by Nationales, Province of Quebec champions, 29-28.

The teams meet again here on Friday night and if a third game is necessary it will be played here Saturday. The winners will tackle Dalhousie University of Halifax, Maritime titlists, in the Eastern Canada semi-final.

It was regarded as the finest exhibition of the Cage game seen here in years. Nationale ran into a style of game unknown here, scientific to a degree but, in the end, the sustained speed of the Montreal team was just a little bit too much. Observers were predicting a great series, probably going three games.

The issue was in doubt to the last whistle. Murray Patrick scored the winning point with only seconds to go. He had been fouled by Des Jarlais of Windsor as he pivoted to shoot and was awarded two free shots. He missed the first but dropped the second through the hoop, breaking a 28-28 tie. As the remaining seconds ticked off Nationale warded off every thrust of the Ontario team.

Both teams felt confident of ultimate victory after the game. The Windsor coach stated by Friday he thought he could devise a defence that could stop the speedy line of Murray and Lynn Patrick, sons of Lester Patrick of New York Rangers, who flank Pat Griffin at centre. The visitors added that in almost 30 games this season they had not had to contend with such blazing speed.

INTERMEDIATES WIN TOO

Montreal, April 11.—Smart passing forming the spearhead of their attack, Young Men's Hebrew Association of Montreal, tonight defeated Brockville Rowing Club 28-11 to win the two-game round of the Dominion Intermediate Basketball playdowns 60-50. In the first game at Brockville on Saturday the Rowers won 39-32.

Y.M.H.A. now meet the Maritime champions, Saint John Young Men's Christian Institute Trumps, in the Eastern Canada semi-final.

TRUNDLERS ADOPTING GROUP SYSTEM AGAIN

O. B. A. Decides To Use It For Tourney At Hamilton This Year

Hamilton, April 11.—At a late meeting that drew representatives from many parts of the province, members of the Ontario Bowling Association decided to adopt the group system for the 45th Annual Tournament to be held on the Roselawn Club greens will assure for all rinks four games on here again this year. This system the first day and one on the second when the eliminations for the three rink trophies will be held. The games will all be 15 ends until the finals are reached.

Times were set for the opening of the singles and doubles competitions and it was decided that one event in each case be played but that they be run as a double competition with trophies in each. The singles competition will start at two o'clock on the second day of the tournament, while the doubles will commence at seven o'clock on that date.

A committe consisting of Dr. J. J. Williams, Roy Green, Ed. Bickle and Bob Hayes was appointed to take care of all problems arising between now and the tournament.

The balance sheet was presented by auditor H. H. Blythe and adopted, and a prize committee will consist of R. H. Foster, Roy Green and Bob Hayes.

A set of four miniature trophies fo the winners of the O.B.A. trophy will be presented by President James Burnett. R. M. Ogilvie, of Roselawn, was named chairman of the entertainment Committee, with power to add from members of his own club.

SAYS TRACK AND FIELD MARKS DUE FOR GRIEF

New York, April 11.—A four-minute mile, a 15-foot pole vault, a nine-second century and a 7-foot high jump are all possible, said Dan Ferris, secretary of the A.A.U. in commenting to-day on track prospects for the summer.

Ferris accurately forecast the winter spree of record breaking last fall and since he is recognized as one of the greatest track authorities in the country, his words bear weight.

"Bill Graber of Southern California has everything he needs to pole vault 15 feet, said Dan. Jesse Owens, the great colored star of Ohio state, is

LAUNCH CITY SPORTS FEDERATION TONIGHT

At a general meeting to be held in the Hotel London at 8.15 tonight, the City of London Sports Federation (what an armful of grief that is for a poor newspaper headline writer) will be launched.

The nominating committee has completed its work and a strong executive representative of every major sport in the city should be the result of the elections.

The opening of Tecumseh Park and its operation this year depends on support which would be more general than it has been in the past and that seems to be guaranteed by the launching of the Federation.

Braves Acquire Marty McManus

Veteran Of 14 A. L. Campaigns Will Replace Injured Maranville

Boston, April 11—Some pressing baseball problems were solved today when Martin Joseph McManus, 34-year-old veteran of 14 American baseball league campaigns, came to Boston Braves by purchase from Brooklyn Dodgers as a second-base replacement for the injured Rabbit Maranville.

First of all, Marty, who was made a free agent last fall after managing the Red Sox for a season and a half, was snatched from the limbo of baseball's forgotten men and given the ideal spot in which to continue his playing career.

Although he had an all-time major league batting average of .290 with St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers before coming to Boston in 1931, the Dodgers were so glutted with younger infielders that he seemed forever doomed to a bench job while he remained with Brooklyn.

With the Braves, he should be highly successful. He is probably a notch or so below the lamented Rabbit in fielding, but his superior batting punch more than makes up the difference.

The Dodgers will find the cash much more satisfactory than McManus' service, for they were long on infielders and very short in the exchequer.

OXFORD BADMINTON GETS STARTED AT WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Ont., April 11—The Oxford County Badminton tournament opened here tonight with over 270 entries. The majority of the matches tonight were between local players. The visitors will get into action tomorrow night and play will continue for the balance of the week with the consolation finals on Friday night and thee hampionships on Saturday night.

Results of tonight's matches follow:

Men's singles—J. Sibbald defeated J. H. Wilson 15-3, 15-5; M. Bernath defeated P. Woodroffe 15-2, 15-2; J. Dent defeated C. Wallace 10-15, 15-8 15-4; J. Yarker defeated H. Dotzenroth 15-5 15-4; P. Lack of Ballast Big Pirate Fault

Idea Prevalent Gibson Must Win Title Or It Is Outs For Him

RATED 3RD IN POLL

New York, April 10 —(UP)—Pirates Manager George Gibson, facing what may be his last major league season, will make a desperate bid for the National League pennant. He has an excellent chance to win and was rated third in the writers' poll.

Gibson is grooming a strong, dangerous club which packs more punch than any other outfit in the circuit. This punch, combined with the lively Pittsburgh its first pennant since 1927, ball, may turn the trick and give

Were the Pirates better balanced, they would appear certain winners. However, because of a weak spot at second base and no promise of championship pitching, it is doubtful if they can pound past the even-keeled Cardinals, who appear to have championship prospects. Hence, the Buccaneers seem destined to wind up in the same second place berth they they occupied for the last two seasons.

In addition, the morale of the club may be affected by dressing room gossip which has Pie Traynor replacing Gibson as Manager next season if the Pirates fail.

Beat Cards in Batting

Spotted pitching was the chief cause for the Pirates' failure to come through last season. It was by far the best hitting club in the league. Even though t he Waner boys slumped, the club wound up with a batting average of .285, nine points above the Cards.

Attempting to strengthen the mound staff, Gibson made what may prove a shrewd move during the off-season. He parted with his best hitter, Second Baseman Tony Piet, to acquire Pitcher Red Lucas from Cincinnati. The exchange of Outfielders Comoroksky and Roettger also figured in the deal.

Gibson figured he had sufficient strength at the plate to part with a .323 hitter for a mound workhorse who could win 16 out of 36 WIth a tail-end club like the Reds of 1933. Moreover, Lucas is an excellent pinch-hitter.

Other starting pitchers will be Larry French, Heine Meine, Bill Swift and probably Ralph Birkofer. Additional hold-overs are Hal Smith, Bill Harris, Waite Hoyt and Leon Chagnon. Outstanding rookie prospects are Lloyd Johnson, a southpaw from the San Francisco club, and Darrel Blanton, from St. Joseph, Outside of Lucas and French the staff looks very ordinary.

Thevenow Favored

With Piet gone from the infield, Gibson hopes that the veteran Tommy Thevenow, Floyd Young, or the promising Harry Lavagetto from the Oakland club, may hold down second base creditably. Thevenow seems to have the first call. The rest of the infield will be the same, with Pie Traynor on third, Floyd Vaughan at short, and Gus Suhr at first.

Thec lub is fortiefied with one of the strongest outfields in the majors: Freddie Lindstrom in left, Lloyd Waner in centre and Paul Waner in rigat. Freddie hit .310 last season.

Handicapped by illness, Lloyd Waner slumped to .276, and brother Paul also fell off to .309. The Waners are expected to come through this season. Wally Roettger from the Reds and Forest Jonsen are utility men.

Cather Earl Grace is a capable receiver. He hit .283 last season. He will be assisted by Hal Finney and either Tom Padden or a newcomer from the Oakland club, Art Veitman, advertised as a heavy hitter.

ONLY 250 SEE IT

Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, Apr. 11.—Moncton Hawks spread their tired wings for the first time in a couple of weeks here tonight and won the North American Amateur Hockey Championship with a landslide victory over Detroit White Stars, United States title holders, 13-3.

Only 250 or so spectators sat in on the big killing as the Allan Cup champions went systematically to work to see how many goals they could score against a team they had previously outclassed twice on the form sheets but beaten only once on the score card.

Stars won the first of the three game series here last Saturday night by 2-1 overtime and the Hawks evened the count by winning 4-1 on Monday night. With the title at stake, the fleet brigade from the Maritimes went into high gear at the start tonight and were seeking goal No. 14 at the finish as earnestly as they had sought No. 1 in the first stanza.

Everybody on the Moncton lineup except Goaler Jimmy Foster took a hand in the scoring and everybody scored at least once with the exception of Foster and "Nucker" Irvine, lean left winger who got his name in the scoring record with an assist.

Duke McDonald, Bill Miller, Bill Gill, Sammy McManus and Aubrey Webster scored two apiece and Bert Connolly, Dud James and Len Burrage kicked in with the others. It was just the sort of high-powered scoring Toronto fandom had expected of the Hawks in the first series game.

f the IAllan Cuppers took it easy in the first two games they worked hard tonight. There was little body checking—the idea was goals. The Hawks raced down three and four abreast in the hope of piling up the total even when they were shorthanded through penalties.

Stars Open Scoring

The luckless White Stars scored the first goal of the contest on a neat passing play, Al David shooting the puck past Foster. Then the Hawks ran in five without delay and led 5-1 starting the second period. They hanged in three more in the middle stanza while the American champions were getting two.

The real fun was in the third session when the Hawks collected five more without reply. Even big Pete McMahon, brilliant Detroit goaler, had become thoroughly discouraged by this time, but he kicked out half a dozen shots that might have slipped past him.

McMahon was the lone defensive power of the Stars. His defence was riddled early in the game and the rookie's mates were not fast enough to [illegible] effectively. It was Moncton's 32nd game of the season and perhaps the easiest of them all.

The lineup:

Detroit: Goal, McMahon, defence, Wright and Robson; centre, Bigham; wings, Hunt and Sullivan; subs. David, Crossman, Reed, Kirwan.

Moncton: goal, Foster; defence Gill and Burrage; centre, Connolly; wings, McDonald and Irvine; subs. Webster, McManus, James, Miller.

Officials: M. J. Rodden, Toronto and Jack Tompkins, Detroit.

Summary

First period.

1—Detroit, David (Crossman, Reed) 4.32.

WAIVE TERRITORY RIGHTS TO N.H.L. IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, April 11.—The rumored transfer to St. Louis of the Ottawa club of the National Hockey League will not be opposed by the American Association if the minor circuit is compensated for the loss of territory, [illegible] Grant, association president, said here.

Grant, who voiced opposition to the proposed move when Ottawa despatches first reported it last week, said objection would be withdrawn if compensation is paid and Frank (Doc) Wainwright, operator of the present St. Louis club, is satisfied.

A league meeting would be necessary to determine what value the American Association would place on the franchise, Grant said. Hockey, which started slowly in St. Louis six years ago, reached a peak in the season just closed, more than 200,000 persons attending 24 home games.

HONOR RURAL CHAMPS

Brantford, April 11.—St. George village was en fete tonight, when the St. George Hockey club held its annual banquet, to mark the presentation of the Premier G. S. Henry cup as champions of the Ontario Rural Hockey Association. The team won the Brant county league, and then went through the playoffs, finally to defeat Blair in a great series. Plenty of bouquets were handed out during the evening, after the inner man had been supplied, and cards and dancing in the community hall followed. St. George village is proud of its team, having just about closed up to attend the hockey matches in Brantford and Galt rinks in the league and finals.

St. George is now looking forward to bowling activity, the village club being in its 20th year. Officers elected for this season are: Hon. president, Frank L. Ellis; president, Garfield Saas; vice-president James D. Malcolm; treasurer, Fred C. Garnett; representatives to Brant county doubles, G. Saas and F. C. Garnett; auditors, J. D. Malcolm, W. J. Scott.

Junior Soccerists Have Big Confab

The regular meeting of the Junior soccer organization was the largest attended this year, the rooms being filled with many unable to secure seats. Delegates from St. Thomas, Ingersoll and the four local clubs being present. While the many players present were no doubt interested in any reinstatements the applicants were rejected in most cases, only one applicant receiving the approval of the association. The new trophies which were donated by Mayor C. Wenige and the Supertest Co. of London, were presented to the association at this meeting. Secretary T. Brock was instructed to write the donors expressing the appreciation of the association.

Non-Winning Colt Is Derby Favorite

Louisville, Ky., April 11.—For the first time in history a colt that never won a race is the future book favorite for the Kentucky Derby. He is Sir Thomas, the nominee of A. B. Gordon who has high hopes of being the first Louisvillian to own a Derby winner since Old Rosebud triumphed for H. C. Applegate 20 years ago.

The popularity of Sir Thomas is demarkable in that only two "maidens" have won the Kentucky Derby in the 59 years of its history—J. K. L. Ross' Sir Barton in 1919 and Broker's Tip last year—but there are substantial reasons for the high esteem in which Sir Thomas is held. One of them is that he was sired by Sir Gallahad 111, sire of Gallant Fox, victor in 1930 which still is the Derby winner standing highest among the turf world's leading money winners.

Sir Thomas is being trained by his owner, Mr. Gordon, who has conditioned several famed thoroughbreds in the past. Under the handling of the trainer who has proven his ability to prepare horses for distance races, the performance of Sir Thomas in workouts at Churchill Downs has made Louisville turf followers almost hysterical over his chances to win the 60th Kentucky Derby on May 5.

When the future book odds on Sir Thomas dropped to 8 to 1 last week, the Louisville railbirds prophesied his odds would drop to 6 to 1 this week, and 3 to 1 if he goes to the post in the Derby. Half of this prediction has ben fulfilled, as Tom Kearney, St. Louis Commissioner, reduced the odds on the Gordon nominee to 6 to 1 Monday, making him the favorite in his book.

Sir Thomas was working a mile around 1.45 at Douglas Park here in February, and it was not until some time later that the experts caught on and began touting the Gordon colt. His latest effort over the full Derby route of a mile and a quarter was 2.11, on a track three seconds slow.

DUPLICATE BRIDGE

The regular weekly meeting of the Tecumseh Duplicate Bridge Club was held in the Hotel London on Tuesday evening, April 10th., there being 34 members of the club present at this 26th game of the current season's play.

The club was divided into two sections for the night's play, there being a four table Howell game and a five table Mitchell game and the having plus scores on the evening's play are as follows:

Howell Game

Dr. H. A. Skinner and J. R. McPhillips, (plus 10); W. J. Lancaster and W. E. Spencer, (plus 8).

Mitchell Game

(North and South)

Miss M. Clendenan and Mrs. A. W. Haynan, (plus 6); Mrs. H. Killaly and Miss J. Wilson, (plus 2); Dr. W. J. McLean and R. E. Pemberton, (plus 1½).

(East and West)

Mrs. W. Percival and Mrs. Turner, (plus 14); Mrs. H. Wilson and Mrs. R. W. Robertson, (plus 5½).

BAER IS ON WAY

Sacramento, Cal., April 11.—Max Baer was enroute to New York today and no one in the California heavyweight's entourage was more confident than Max that he would return home the heavyweight champion of the world.

"I'll knock him out, sure," Max confidently announced as he boarded the train here with his manager Ancil Hoffman, his trainer Mike Cantwell, and young brother, Buddy Baer.

Max was referring to Prima Carnera, the champion, whom he meets June 14.

Enroute to New York, Baer and his retinue will stop off at midwest cities for a series of exhibition bouts.

The Baer training camp will be established at Atlantic City early next month.

STABLE BOY WOUNDED; RACE TRACK IS SUED

Houston, Tex., April 11.—Two Two suits for damages aggregating $117,350 were fyled in Federal Court today against the Texas Breeders and Racing Association, owners of Epsom Downs track here, as the result of a shooting March 15 in which Tommy Blanchard, a Montreal stable boy, was wounded.

One suit was by Mrs. Cyrilla Blanchard of Montreal, on the boy's behalf, and the other was by Mrs. Blanchard on her own behalf. Blanchard was an employee of A. G. Tarn, Montreal stable owner.

Mrs. Blanchard's petition alleged the boy probably had been permanently disabled as a result of being shot by L. A. Eades, special officer employed by the Epsom Downs track. The mother declared her boy would have become a jockey next year and therefore had a reasonable expectation of earning $10,000 a year.

Chicago Game Short Overtime

Four Games In Last Five Years Longer

Chicago, April 11.—Four National hockey league play-off games in the last five years were longer than the Chicago-Detroit Stanley Cup final last night which went 30 minutes and five seconds of extra time before the Black Hawks won by 1-0 and captured the trophy.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins set the world record last spring when the Leafs won the N.H.L. title after 104 minutes and 46 seconds of overtime.

Mush March, one of the small men of hockey, scored the winning goal for the Hawks. March weighs 147, and a midget gave the Leafs in their endurance test against the Bruins, 127-pound Ken Doraty bagging the deciding tally.

Until last spring, the longest game on record was played in the 1930 playoffs when Montreal Canadiens and in the same playoff campaign, Canadiens went 52 minutes overtime against Chicago.

Presentation of trophies was made to the year's winners: Senior championship, Graham S. Hobbs, runner-up, Mrs. C. H. Ivey; novice championship, Stuart S. Macfarlane, runner-up Miss P. Butchart; juvenile, Miss Mary Collinson, runner-up Miss Jean Wrighton.

St. Thomas Girls To Get New Park

Floodlighting Will Let Purples Play League Softball Games At Home

A new softball diamond with floodlights for night plya is being planned for St. Thomas, Charlie Smale of St. Thomas, president of the Major Intercity Girls' Softball League announced at a meeting of the circuit held he,e last night.

During past seasons, St. Thomas Purples have had to play all their league games on the London diamond, but if their new field materializes they will play aoout 24 home games on it.

the same team as last year, according to an announcement made by C. E. Speiran. During the latter part of the schedule the furniture girls made things interesting for all comers.

Gordon Southcott will again coach the Silverwood team and he is in search of a new catcher. Otherwise the Silverwood team will be the same as last season.

Kellogs, champions of the Major Intercity League for the past three years, plan on using much the same team as last year. Kellogs will also sponsor an intermediate team.

A league schedule meeting will be held next week.

The three London entries—Kellogs, Burroughes and Silverwoods—will again be starters in the league, and an intermediate league will also be sponsored here, the greater part of the intermediate fixtures to be played as openers on the senior bills.

During the last three years, the local senior teams have been affiliated with the Olympic League at Sunnyside in Toronto, but the Toronto Acorn League has made overtures for the coming summer.

It was decided to open the local season on or about May 15.

POLISH UP OLE' HORSE SHOES AT PETROLIA

Petrolia, April 11.—With the assurance that summer is not far off local horseshoe enthusiasts are polishing up their shoes in anticipation of a bright season this year. Already one has heard the clink of shoes this spring and the Enarco Horseshoe Club, which is a branch of the Enarco Athletic Club of the Canadian Oil Companies, Ltd., has recently held its organization meeting which resulted as follows: Manager, Russell Lennan; Assistant Manager, Charles Tobias; Grounds Committee, Chris Avscough, Chet McRitchie, and William Mowlett; Transportation Committee, Roy Smith and Hugh Whitlock.

During recent years the sport has become increasingly popular and the local club's annual competition brings large numbers from a distance to participate in the oil town's games. This year it is hoped that a large league may be formed which will include teams from Sarnia, Petrolia, Camlachie, Brigden and Rutherford.

RIDGETOWN BADMINTON

Ridgetown, April 11.—Members of the Ridgetown Badminton club enjoyed a tournament last evening. The group captained by Miss Reta Richardson won the evening's playing by one game over the group captained by Miss Katherine Bawden.

Miss Richardson's team consisted of the following: Miss Owen End, Miss Olive Clark, Miss Greta Locke, Miss G. I. Rodgers, Miss Veronica McGuire, Oscar Smith, William Roth, Ward Turner, Harvey Stewart, William Shewan and Paul Jefferies. The members of Miss Bawden's team were: Miss M. K. Currie, Miss Dorothy Smith, Miss Eleanor Crulckshank, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lightbody, B. F. Harrison, Carl Martin, Maurice Jefferies, Dr. W. E. Lake and J. J. Neilson.

The members decided to continue until the end of April winding up the season with an entertainment.

"WHAT IT TAKES" IN THIS SPORT IS COMB

New York, April 11—A pebble once cost the Giants a world series with Washington. An equally lowly marble upset Brown Berry in last year's famed Hambletonian Trotting Stakes. And every one knows what sickle pear did to Sidney Noyes in last year's National Amateur golf championships. So sports history repeated itself yesterday at the Hotel Astor when an ordinary pocket comb helped crown Solly Schiff, of New York, as national table tennis champion.

Max Rushakoff, of Chicago, the runner-up for the title, is known as the most colorful player in the game and also a "goat-getter." A good competitive temperament is considered the chief arrow in the quiver of a table tennis champion. Once a table tennis player's nerves begin to bother him his game is gone. Rushakoff had a cute trick which made his opponent explode. In the middle of a game he'd take a pocket comb from his trousers and begin to arrange his dark and lengthy locks.

This trick had its irritating effect on Marcus Schussheim, the same "Marvellous Marcus" who won the title six times. But when Rushakoff tried it on Solly Schiff, he found a champion equal to the occasion and the trick proved a boomerang. For Solly "kept his attitude," a al Schnozzle Durante, pulled a comb out of his own pocket and stroked it through his curly red mane. It was sensational!

The crowd of 500 in the ball room of the Astor roared its approval as the two Hebrew contestants stood tense, glaring at each other, the while they performed their seemingly pleasant toilettries, Solly walked off with the match, 21—16, 21—19, 21—12. The lucky lad from Chicago blew up like a Cincinnati pitcher.

Solly is 16, small and a student at Textile High School. He hopes to study engineering at Cooper Union.

PATRICK BOYS STAR

Montreal, April 11. — Assumption College of Windsor, Ontario Senior Basketball Champions, tonight lost the first game of the Ontario-Quebec Dominion playdawn by the narrowest of margins, being defeated by Natlonales, Province of Quebec champions, 29-28.

The teams meet again here on Friday night and if a third game is necessary it will be played here Saturday. The winners will tackle Dalhousie University of Halifax, Maritime titlists, in the Eastern Canada semi-final.

It was regarded as the finest exhibition of the Cage game seen here in years. Nationale ran into a style of game unknown here, scientific to a degree but, in the end, the sustained speed of the Montreal team was just a little bit too much. Observers were predicting a great series, probably going three games.

The issue was in doubt to the last whistle. Murray Patrick scored the winning point with only seconds to go. He had been fouled by Des Jarlais of Windsor as he pivoted to shoot and was awarded two free shots. He missed the first but dropped the second through the hoop, breaking a 28-28 tie. As the remaining seconds ticked off Nationale warded off every thrust of the Ontario team.

Both teams felt confident of ultimate victory after the game. The Windsor coach stated by Friday he thought he could devise a defence that could stop the speedy line of Murray and Lynn Patrick, sons of Lester Patrick of New York Rangers, who flank Pat Griffin at centre. The visitors added that in almost 30 games this season they had not had to contend with such blazing speed.

TRUNDLERS ADOPTING GROUP SYSTEM AGAIN

O. B. A. Decides To Use It For Tourney At Hamilton This Year

Hamilton, April 11.—At a late meeting that drew representatives from many parts of the province, members of the Ontario Bowling Association decided to adopt the group system for the 46th Annual Tournament to be held on the Roselawn Club greens will assure for all rinks four games on the first day here again this year. This system the first day and one on the second when the eliminations for the three rink trophies will be held. The games will all be 15 ends until the finals are reached.

Times were set for the opening of the singles and doubles competitions and it was decided that one event in each case be played but that they be run as a double competition with trophies in each. The singles competiton will start at two o'clock on the second day of the tournament, while the doubles will commence at seven o'clock on that date.

A committe consisting of Dr. J. J. Williams, Roy Green, Ed. Bickle and Bob Hayes was appointed to take care of all problems arising between now and the tournament.

The balance sheet was presented by auditor H. H. Blythe and adopted, and a prize committee will consist of R. H. Foster, Roy Green and Bob Hayes.

A set of four miniature trophies fo the winners of the O.B.A. trophy will be presented by President James Burnett. R. M. Ogilvie, of Roselawn, was named chairman of the entertainment Committee, with power to add from members of his own club.

SAYS TRACK AND FIELD MARKS DUE FOR GRIEF

New York, April 11.—A four-minute mile, a 15-foot pole vault, a nine-second century and a 7-foot high jump are all possible, said Dan Ferris, secretary of the A.A.U., in commenting to-day on track prospects for the summer.

Ferris accurately forecast the winter spree of record breaking last fall and since he is recognized as one of the greatest track authorities in the country, his words bear weight.

"Bill Graber of Southern California has everything he needs to pole vault 15 feet, said Dan. Jesse Owens, the great colored star of Ohio state, is the type most likely to succeed in doing a nine-second century and Glenn Cunningham is the man most likely to get down to four minutes for the mile. Walter Marty, who has jumped 6 feet 9½ inches may be the man to add on 2½ more inches. None of them may succeed in making these records but I think Cunningham will surely do 4:06 this summer and he stands the best chance of any of hanging up an even four-minute mile.

"Cunningham and Bill Bonthron of Princeton might meet in the A.A.U. championships at Milwaukee June 30, and if they do all mile marks are sure to go overboard."

Braves Acquire Marty McManus

Veteran Of 14 A. L. Campaigns Will Replace Injured Maranville

Boston. April 11—Some pressing baseball problems were solved today when Martin Joseph McManus, 34-year-old veteran of 14 American baseball league campaigns, came to Boston Braves by purchase from Brooklyn Dodgers as a second-base replacement for the injured Rabbit Maranville.

First of all, Marty, who was made a free agent last fall after managing the Red Sox for a season and a half, was snatched from the limbo of baseball's forgotten men and given the ideal spot in which to continue his playing career.

Although he had an all-time major league batting average of .290 with St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers before coming to Boston in 1931, the Dodgers were so glutted with younger infielders that he seemed forever doomed to a bench job while he remained with Brooklyn.

With the Braves, he should be highly successful. He is probably a notch or so below the lamented Rabbit in fielding, but his superior batting punch more than makes up the difference.

The Dodgers will find the cash much more satisfactory than McManus' service, for they were long on infielders and very short in the exchequer.

RATED 3RD IN POLL

New York, April 10 —(UP)—Pirates Manager George Gibson, facing what may be his last major league season, will make a desperate bid for the National League pennant. He has an excellent chance to win and was rated third in the writers' poll.

Gibson is grooming a strong, dangerous club which packs more punch than any other outfit in the circuit. This punch, combined with the lively Pittsburgh its first pennant since 1927, ball, may turn the trick and give

Were the Pirates better balanced, they would appear certain winners. However, because of a weak spot at second base and no promise of shampionship pitching, it is doubtful if they can pound past the even-keeled Cardinals, who appear to have championship prospects. Hence, the Buccaneers seem destined to wind up in the same second place berth they they occupied for the last two seasons.

In addition, the morale of the club may be affected by dressing room gossip which has Pie Traynor replacing Gibson as Manager next season if the Pirates fail.

Beat Cards in Batting

Spotted pitching was the chief cause for the Pirates' failure to come through last season. It was by far the best hitting club in the league. Even though t he Waner boys slumped, the club wound up with a batting average of .285, nine points above the Cards.

Attempting to strengthen the mound staff, Gibson made what may prove a shrewd move during the off-season. He parted with his best hitter, Second Baseman Tony Piet, to acquire Pitcher Red Lucas from Cincinnati. The exchange of Outfielders Comorosky and Roettger also figured in the deal.

Gibson figured he had sufficient strength at the plate to part with a .323 hitter for a mound workhorse who could win 16 out of 36 With a tail-end club like the Reds of 1933. Moreover, Lucas is an excellent pinch-hitter.

Other starting pitchers will be Larry French, Heine Meine, Bill Swift and probably Ralph Birkofer. Additional hold-overs are Hal Smith, Bill Harris, Waite Hoyt and Leon Chagnon. Outstanding rookie prospects are Lloyd Johnson, a southpaw from the San Francisco club, and Darrel Blanton, from St. Joseph. Outside of Lucas and French the staff looks very ordinary.

Thevenow Favored

With Piet gone from the infield, Gibson hopes that the veteran Tommy Thevenow, Floyd Young, or the promising Harry Lavagetto from the Oakland club, may hold down second base creditably. Thevenow seems to have the first call. The rest of the infield will be the same, with Pie Traynor on third, Floyd Vaughan at short, and Gus Suhr at first.

Handicapped by illness, Lloyd Waner slumped to .276, and brother Paul also fell off to .309. The Waners are expected to come through this season. Wally Roettger from the Reds and Forest Jensen are utility men.

Cather Earl Grace is a capable receiver. He hit .288 last season. He will be assisted by Hal Finney and either Tom Padden or a newcomer from the Oakland club, Art Veitman, advertised as a heavy hitter.

Mr. King Urges South Oxford To Defend Parliamentary Rights

Federal Liberal Leader Speaks To Crowded Election Meetings At Norwich and Tillsonburg

Says Cabinet Is Usurping Power At Expense Of Constitutional Liberties—Real Danger Of Dictatorship Menaces Canada—Gov't Should Go To Country This Fall If Defeated In S. Oxford

OTTAWA PACTS CLOSING MARKETS TO FARMERS; VAST SUMS SQUANDERED IN RELIEF EXPENDITURES

Wonders What Influence Kept Tobacco Report Unpublished So Long—Vigorous Speeches Made By M. F. Hepburn, M.P., Hon. J. C. Elliott, M.P., And A. S. Rennie, Liberal Candidate

The choice for Canada today is between dictatorship and democracy through Parliamentary Government, declared Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in addresses before two large meetings yesterday in the interest of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election on Monday next. Already, said Mr. King, Parliament under the domination of a Tory majority has transferred most of its powers to the Governor-in-Council, which usually means the Cabinet but today means Mr. Bennett.

"I wonder if you realize to what extent your Parliamentary institutions have been shot to pieces in this country. Today we are in the middle of a world social revolution and the problem before us is where is it going to end."

RT. HON. WILLIAM LYON MACKENZIE KING

Large Meetings

The afternoon meeting was at Norwich where far more than could be accommodated sought admission to the hall. At Tillsonburg at night another thousand people heard Mr. King and accorded him a spontaneous and prolonged ovation.

Mr. King uttered a clarion call for a national unemployment policy. The $110,000,000 dollars of federal expenditures in the last four years have not touched the fundamentals while all this money was being spent the government was promoting its policy of scarcity through trade and wheat production restrictions. The home market is being destroyed along with the purchasing power of the people.

Must Go To Country

Mr. King declared that the Bennett government in the event of a defeat in South Oxford could not afford to carry on the government of the country past next fall. The last four by-elections have demonstrated, he said, that it entirely lacks the confidence of the people.

At Tillsonburg Mr. King dealt at length with the Sutherland tobacco report and declared that the government was "humbugging" the farmers

At Norwich Mr. King was introduced by Hon. J. C. Elliott, K. C., M. P. Other speakers were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader. Mr. Rennie and Mr. Hepburn also spoke at Tillsonburg.

By Staff Reporter

Tillsonburg, April 11—A world social revolution, which because of its extent is without parallel in history, is going on today. It will test in Canada the principle of Parliamentary government, declared Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Liberal leader, here tonight before a cheering throng in Tillsonburg town hall. Every inch of space in the auditorium, along the aisles, behind the stage, at the windows and every nook and corner was crowded as 800 people saw and heard Mr. King. Downstairs in the council chamber another 200 people heard the addresses relayed by loud speaker, and scores more gathered outside where there were more loud speakers.

Ready for Change

The Liberal party welcomes and is prepared to sponsor the changes which have become necessary in the world social and economic order, said the leader.

"Changes of equal importance with the crusades, the Renaissance, the American revolution and the industrial revolution. "Today we have something which resembles them all but which instead of confining itself to one country takes in the world. We are in a world revolution.

"For my part I welcome those changes with all my heart. Not all of them. But I welcome that which will bring a more equitable distribution of wealth. I welcome the change to bring social justice. I welcome the change to bring much to many instead of most to a privileged few. I am glad to live in an age in which it is possible to bring these things about.

Needs Direction

"These changes will lead to terrible results in some parts of the world and must go farther than we expect in others. It will sweep right over us, this great onward movement of social change; it will sweep away the lives and homes of the people as well if not properly directed," he said.

"Only by being true to the great principles of government which have guided British history can Canada escape chaos, he said.

"There is nothing in the world today comparable to British institutions, freedom from dictatorship and faith in the common sense of the common people. Let us hold to these institugovernment that it is time it got out," Mr. King asserted, amid a burst of applause.

Mr. King said he hoped to show that the voice of the people had very little part in the present government. The public will was being thwarted on every hand; its representatives were being given no chance to express the people's will; and democracy was in peril in this Dominion.

"What appreciation has been shown to this riding of South Oxford by the Bennett administration?" Mr. King asked. "It had the opportunity of showing that appreciation at the time the Redistribution Bill was brought down and what did he do? It has wiped the constituency of South Oxford off the map altogether.

"I tell you that if Mackenzie King had been at the head of the government when the Redistribution Bill came up, South Oxford would not have been wiped out," the speaker asserted.

Answering the question, "Why isn't South Oxford represented at this session?" Mr. King said that there was a feeling in some persons that they would rather have someone boss them than think for themselves. It was the trend toward dictatorship. The people of South Oxford now had the opportunity of saying what they thought about such a system.

A Hard-Won Privilege

"It is important that our parliaments be kept representative because we are getting farther and farther away from that ideal. It was that right of representation of the people that the pioneers and leaders of the past fought for in this country," Mr. King continued.

Turning to Mr. Bennett's pre-election promises, the Liberal chieftain declared that the two main ones on which he secured election were that he would give work, not the dole, and that he would provide markets for Canadian products. He had promised to call a special session of Parliament to deal with unemployment but other than voting $20,000,000 for six months' relief, that session had achieved only the raising of tariffs against the rest of the world.

Dealing particularly with the $20,000,000 which Mr. Bennett had voted for unemployment relief, Mr. King recalled that during the ten years of the Liberal regime from 1920 to 1930, the entire amount spent for the same purpose was less than $2,000,000.

At the time when Mr. Bennett was obtaining this huge appropriation, Mr. King further recalled, he had urged him that the only way to end unemployment was to encourage trade; that trade could be fostered by reducing the cost of production, not by raising tariffs.

"I said in the House at that time that unemployment had become a national problem. I urged Mr. Bennett to appoint a national commission to deal with the situation. I suggested that on it should be representative of all phases of Canadian life, of labor, of industry, manufacturers, social services, and women's organizations. I suggested further that the sums that were to be paid out to the provinces should be all audited. And Mr. Bennett said that it would be an insult to the provinces to audit the accounts. At that time I said he would rue the day that the accounts were not audited. And what is the situation today?"

A recent report of the auditor-general had shown that huge sums of federal money appropriated for relief purposes have been wasted in every province, from coast to coast. It had been spent on administrative costs, for dental services, for gasoline and other things.

The Blank Cheque

In 1931 Mr. Bennett brought in his "blank cheque" legislation, giving the governor-in-council power to spend unlimited sums without consulting parliament. From 1930 to 1934, over $110,000,000 had been spent in federal money alone in this way.

"That is the thing we have been fighting against. It is being debated in the House tonight. But Mr. Bennett with his majority will carry it through," Mr. King predicted.

The same bill went even further by giving the government power to guarantee bank loans. He cited the $60,000,000 C.P.R. loan.

A large increase in the public debt and an increase in unemployment were the only results from the expenditure of colossal sums for relief, and the people were only beginning to find out "the shocking way in which the money had been spent," Mr. King said. Nothing had been done along the lines of making public parks and improving roads, such as the Liberals had contemplated.

Pork Barrel

"Remember that this year will probably be the year of a general election," Mr. King declared. "Under this legislation, the Conservative Administration will be able to dig into the treasury and spend what it likes on relief."

All the Opposition could do at present was to fight against these measures and to fight for democratic institutions, and the leader urged the people of South Oxford to give them a hand by electing Mr. Rennie as their member.

Mr. King declared that the home market is not the place, but the purchasing power of the people. The Tillsonburg market isn't the square on which goods are bought and sold but the purchasing power of the people who attend it. In the same way the home market of which Mr. Bennett speaks is the buying ability of the people in it.

Lack Buying Power

"Mr. Bennett can't see that. He keeps talking economic self-sufficiency and as we cut off trade with tariffs our home market withers up," he said.

The Liberal leader turned his attention to the questions raised in the report of Hon. Donald Sutherland, Conservative candidate, who in March 1933 presented to the registrar under the Combines Investigation Act his report on an investigation into an alleged combine among tobacco buyers.

"You would not know yet what was in that report had it not been for the Opposition. Mr. Eccles Gott asked for it a long while ago, but the matter was allowed to stand on the order paper for weeks. I wondered if there were something in it which the government didn't want the people to see and I queried about it in the house. Why should Mr. Gott let his question stand if the government hadn't asked him to do so? The minister of labor made a long explanation about possible prosecutions as a result of the report. We kept asking for it.

"Finally on Monday Mr. Bennett said we could have it because they were saying he was a director of the Imperial Tobacco Co. Was it in your interests or to protect Mr. Bennett that the report was brought down?

Ecuses

"I had heard the minister say the report couldn't be brought down for certain reasons so I looked at it when the house received it. It said that the evidence was not sufficient to establish a combine within the meaning of the act. Where are you going to get prosecutions out of that? How are you going to send anybody to jail when the investigator says there is no evidence?" asked Mr. King.

Mr. King noted that the letter of the registrar to the minister when he handed Mr. Sutherland's report on reminded him that if he concluded that there was no necessity for a further inquiry, he should notify those who had sought it. "The report was made in March, 1933. Nothing has been done about it, but those who asked for the investigation have never been notified. If they had they might have gathered further evidence or sought an inquiry through another channel."

Tariff Sweating

Mr. King said that with the tariff at the highest level in Canadian history, sweating of labor has gone on on a scale never known before. It is inevitably so. "Once trade is strangled by tariffs, then you can form monopolies and squeeze the workingman to the lowest level."

The marketing bill now before Parliament is bait for the farmers, said Mr. King. He urged them not to be humbugged again. One clause in the bill gives the Governor-in-Council, which in practice means Mr. Bennett, the power to prohibit import or export of any article.

"If that clause remains it means that you are parting entirely with the right of yourself and parliament to control trade," he said.

Dictatorship

In Mr. Bennett Canada has a real dictator, said Mr. King. He has the power to legislate as he pleases under the "Peace, order and good government" measure, and to spend what he will from the public treasury. Under the marketing act he can regulate trade in any manner he sees fit.

"The Liberal policy has always been to develop trade. That is a policy of plenty. But once you begin to restrict trade you have a policy of scarcity," he said, adding that in the wheat pact to restrict production and export of wheat the policy had been carried through to the logical conclusion.

"This government has done all it can to destroy trade and now it seeks to destroy production," he said. Subsidies to various pests would be a cheaper way to regulate production than an army of officials.

Mr. Rennie

Mr. Rennie declared that only the Liberal policy aims at a solution of problems of agriculture, and until these are solved things cannot be much better. His trips up and down the highways during the campaign have shown him as nothing else could, the hopelessness which is blighting the lives of young unemployed transients.

Mr. Hepburn, who introduced Mr. King, wanted to know why Mr. Bennett did not come into the riding instead of entering it from Ottawa via the radio. Here a heckler interrupted Mr. Hepburn.

"If the gentleman has anything to say let him come to the platform and say it," said Mr. Hepburn. Whereupon Alex Reynolds, Tillsonburg, marched to the platform amid loud shouts of disapproval from the crowd. "I would like to ask Mr. Hepburn why he is not at the Ontario House defending his record," asked Mr. Reynolds.

"Very well. I will tell you. The House should have been dissolved a year ago. It carried on on borrowed time," said Mr. Hepburn as the audience roared approval, and indicated its unwillingness to tolerate further interruptions.

Mr. Hepburn Explains Again

"It was well known when I accepted the leadership of the Ontario party that I would not leave the people of West Elgin until I had finished the term for which they elected me. There is such a thing as loyalty. I have not followed the line of least resistence. I might have entered the legislature through an acclamation in East Kent. I know that I have a difficult riding in Elgin now but I will stand or fall by the decision of the people in my own country," said Mr. Hepburn.

Mr. Hepburn declared that Canada under the Bennett government has drifted far from established parliamentary practices. "We have little democracy in this country today. We are nearer to a dictatorship than the people realize. We want a new deal. We want Mackenzie King as premier. We want a new government and we want Liberal prosperity," he said.

William Brown, Tillsonburg, was chairman. Mrs. L. G. Little and Mrs. Jack Climie sang solos. Flowers were presented to the singers by Misses Dorothy Daniels and Margery Stafford.

Among those on the platform were Dougald Graham, George Perry, N. J. Griffith, G. A. P. Brickenden, Dr. A. S. Duncan, Paul Gravelle, Charles Oliver and Hon. J. C. Elliott, all of London; Colin C. Hawkins, Brownsville; R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., C. E. Brown, Tillsonburg; P. M. Dewan, Woodstock; Jack Jewell, Tillsonburg; Keith M. Somers, Tillsonburg; Eric Cross, Simcoe; Vern Meek, M. G. Dean, Dr. J. M. Rogers, and H. A. Copeland, Ingersoll.

The Tillsonburg Citizens' Band under the leadership of Boyd Sylvester played before the meeting got under way.

Special to The Advertiser
(By Staff Reporter)

Norwich, April 11—"If this constituency goes Liberal on Monday next, I say the Prime Minister cannot afford to carry on the government of this country any longer without going to the people next fall," declared the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, speaking to the Liberal rally in Edison Hall here this afternoon.

Mr. King's speech this afternoon was a short one, lasting scarcely an hour, but in it he raised issues of tremendous importance. He declared that the actions of the Bennett government in transferring power to the cabinet constituted a very serious threat to constitutional and democratic forms of government in Canada and that it is quite conceivable in the event of a European crisis in the near future Mr. Bennett might decide to let his administration carry on indefinitely.

Opening his speech Mr. King said that a public man has no greater privilege than to come into the ridings after a battle for the people's liberties in parliament and get from the people their opinion of his stand.

Left Unrepresented

"The question now before you is whether you trust a government which does not trust you. If you approve of the fact that you have had no representation in parliament this year, then by all means vote for Mr. Sutherland. Mr. Bennett does not trust South Oxford and has let it go unrepresented", said Mr. King. The

Says Cabinet Is Usurping Power At Expense Of Constitutional Liberties—Real Danger Of Dictatorship Menaces Canada—Gov't Should Go To Country This Fall If Defeated In S. Oxford

OTTAWA PACTS CLOSING MARKETS TO FARMERS; VAST SUMS SQUANDERED IN RELIEF EXPENDITURES

Wonders What Influence Kept Tobacco Report Unpublished So Long—Vigorous Speeches Made By M. F. Hepburn, M.P., Hon. J. C. Elliott, M.P., And A. S. Rennie, Liberal Candidate

The choice for Canada today is between dictatorship and democracy through Parliamentary Government, declared Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in addresses before two large meetings yesterday in the interest of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election on Monday next. Already, said Mr. King, Parliament under the domination of a Tory majority has transferred most of its powers to the Governor-in-Council, which usually means the Cabinet but today means Mr. Bennett.

"I wonder if you realize to what extent your Parliamentary institutions have been shot to pieces in this country. Today we are in the middle of a world social revolution and the problem before us is where is it going to end."

Large Meetings

The afternoon meeting was at Norwich where far more than could be accommodated sought admision to the hall. At Tillsonburg at night another thousand people heard Mr. King and accorded him a spontaneous and prolonged ovation.

Mr. King uttered a clarion call for a national unemployment policy. The $110,000,000 dollars of federal expenditures in the last four years have not touched the fundamentals while all this money was being spent the government was promoting its policy of scarcity through trade and wheat production restrictions. The home market is being destroyed along with the purchasing power of the people.

Must Go To Country

Mr. King declared that the Bennett government in the event of a defeat in South Oxford could not afford to carry on the government of the country past next fall. The last four by-elections have demonstrated, he said, that it entirely lacks the confidence of the people.

At Tillsonburg Mr. King dealt at length with the Sutherland tobacco report and declared that the government was "humbugging" the farmers

At Norwich Mr. King was introduced by Hon. J. C. Elliott, K. C., M. P. Other speakers were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader. Mr. Rennie and Mr. Hepburn also spoke at Tillsonburg.

Tillsonburg, April 11—A world social revolution, which because of its extent is without parallel in history, is going on today, it will test in Canada the principle of Parliamentary government, declared Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Liberal leader, here tonight before a cheering throng in Tillsonburg town hall. Every inch of space in the auditorium, along the aisles, behind the stage, at the windows and every nook and corner was crowded as 800 people saw and heard Mr. King. Downstairs in the council chamber another 200 people heard the addresses relayed by loud speaker, and scores more gathered outside where there were more loud speakers.

Ready for Change

The Liberal party welcomes and is prepared to sponsor the changes which have become necessary in the world social and economic order, said the leader.

Changes of equal importance with the crusades, the Renaissance, the American revolution and the industrial revolution. "Today we have something which resembles them all but which instead of confining itself to one country takes in the world. We are in a world revolution.

"For my part I welcome those changes with all my heart. Not all of them. But I welcome that which will bring a more equitable distribution of wealth. I welcome the change to bring social justice. I welcome the change to bring much to many instead of most to a privileged few. I am glad to live in an age in which it is possible to bring these things about.

Needs Direction

"These changes will lead to terrible results in some parts of the world and must go farther than we expect in others. It will sweep right over us, this great onward movement of social change; it will sweep away the lives and homes of the people as well if not properly directed," he said.

Only by being true to the great principles of government which have guided British history can Canada escape chaos, he said.

"There is nothing in the world today comparable to British institutions, freedom from dictatorship and faith in the common sense of the common people. Let us hold to these institutions. Let us direct these great forces through the halls of parliament. Let us bring into parliament men of courage who will say, 'You, Mr. Banker, must give up your special rights and let the people have more credit!' Who will say that it is time for manufacturers to cease to take exorbitant profits and give instead fair wages to labor. But the place to say and do those things is in parliament," he said.

Other speakers tonight were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader.

Mr. King was given a rousing greeting as he rose. He said he came here to discuss with the people of South Oxford the problems that confront Canadians as "a fellow citizen of this Dominion."

Confidence Gone

The Liberal victories in the past four federal by-elections, he declared, showed clearly that the people do not want the present government to continue in office.

"By electing Mr. Rennie next Monday you will be serving notice to this government that it is time it got out," Mr. King asserted, amid a burst of applause.

Mr. King said he hoped to show that the voice of the people had very little part in the present government. The public will was being thwarted on every hand; its representatives were being given no chance to express the people's will; and democracy was in peril in this Dominion.

"What appreciation has been shown to this riding of South Oxford by the Bennett administration?" Mr. King asked. "It had the opportunity of showing that appreciation at the time the Redistribution Bill was brought down and what did he do? It has wiped the constituency of South Oxford off the map altogether.

"I tell you that if Mackenzie King had been at the head of the government when the Redistribution Bill came up, South Oxford would not have been wiped out," the speaker asserted.

Answering the question, "Why isn't South Oxford represented at this session?" Mr. King said that there was a feeling in some persons that they would rather have someone boss them than think for themselves. It was the trend toward dictatorship. The people of South Oxford now had the opportunity of saying what they thought about such a system.

A Hard-Won Privilege

"It is important that our parliaments be kept representative because we are getting farther and farther away from that ideal. It was that right of representation of the people that the pioneers and leaders of the past fought for in this country," Mr. King continued.

Turning to Mr. Bennett's pre-election promises, the Liberal chieftain declared that the two main ones on which he secured election were that he would give work, not the dole, and that he would provide markets for Canadian products. He had promised to call a special session of Parliament to deal with unemployment but other than voting $20,000,000 for six months' relief, that session had achieved only the raising of tariffs against the rest of the world.

Dealing particularly with the $20,000,000 which Mr. Bennett had voted for unemployment relief, Mr. King recalled that during the ten years of the Liberal regime from 1920 to 1930, the entire amount spent for the same purpose was less than $2,000,000.

At the time when Mr. Bennett was obtaining this huge appropriation, Mr. King further recalled, he had urged him that the only way to end unemployment was to encourage trade; that trade could be fostered by reducing the cost of production, not by raising tariffs.

"I said in the House at that time that unemployment had become a national problem. I urged Mr. Bennett to appoint a national commission to deal with the situation. I suggested that on it should be representative of all phases of Canadian life, of labor, of industry, manufacturers, social services, and women's organizations. I suggested further that the sums that were to be paid out to the provinces should be all audited. And Mr. Bennett said that it would be an insult to the provinces to audit the accounts. At that time I said he would rue the day that the accounts were not audited. And what is the situation today?"

A recent report of the auditor-general had shown that huge sums of federal money appropriated for relief purposes have been wasted in every province, from coast to coast. It had been spent on administrative costs, for dental services, for gasoline and other things.

RT. HON. WILLIAM LYON MACKENZIE KING

The Blank Cheque

In 1931 Mr. Bennett brought in his "blank cheque" legislation, giving the governor-in-council power to spend unlimited sums without consulting parliament. From 1930 to 1934, over $110,000,000 had been spent in federal money alone in this way.

"That is the thing we have been fighting against. It is being debated in the House tonight. But Mr. Bennett with his majority will carry it through," Mr. King predicted.

The same bill went even further by giving the government power to guarantee bank loans. He cited the $60,000,000 C.P.R. loan.

A large increase in the public debt and an increase in unemployment were the only results from the expenditure of colossal sums for relief, and the people were only beginning to find out "the shocking way in which the money had been spent," Mr. King said. Nothing had been done along the lines of making public parks and improving roads, such as the Liberals had contemplated.

Pork Barrel

"Remember that this year will probably be the year of a general election," Mr. King declared. "Under this legislation, the Conservative Administration will be able to dig into the treasury and spend what it likes on relief."

All the Opposition could do at present was to fight against these measures and to fight for democratic institutions, and the leader urged the people of South Oxford to give them a hand by electing Mr. Rennie as their member.

Mr. King declared that the home market is not the place, but the purchasing power of the people. The Tillsonburg market isn't the square on which goods are bought and sold but the purchasing power of the people who attend it. In the same way the home market of which Mr. Bennett speaks is the buying ability of the people in it.

Lack Buying Power

"Mr. Bennett can't see that. He keeps talking economic self-sufficiency and as we cut off trade with tariffs our home market withers up," he said.

The Liberal leader turned his attention to the questions raised in the report of Hon. Donald Sutherland, Conservative candidate, who in March 1933 presented to the registrar under the Combines Investigation Act his report on an investigation into an alleged combine among tobacco buyers.

"You would not know yet what was in that report had it not been for the Opposition. Mr. Eccles Gott asked for it a long while ago, but the matter was allowed to stand on the order paper for weeks. I wondered if there were something in it which the government didn't want the people to see and I queried about it in the house. Why should Mr. Gott let his question stand if the government hadn't asked him to do so? The minister of labor made a long explanation about possible prosecutions as a result of the report. We kept asking for it.

"Finally on Monday Mr. Bennett said we could have it because they were saying he was a director of the Imperial Tobacco Co. Was it in your interests or to protect Mr. Bennett no evidence?" asked Mr. King.

Mr. King noted that the letter of the registrar to the minister when he handed Mr. Sutherland's report on reminded him that if he concluded that there was no necessity for a further inquiry, he should notify those who had sought it. "The report was made in March, 1933. Nothing has been done about it, but those who asked for the investigation have never been notified. If they had they might have gathered further evidence or sought an inquiry through another channel."

Tariff Sweating

Mr. King said that with the tariff at the highest level in Canadian history, sweating of labor has gone on on a scale never known before. It is inevitably so. "Once trade is strangled by tariffs, then you can form monopolies and squeeze the workingman to the lowest level."

The marketing bill now before Parliament is bait for the farmers, said Mr. King. He urged them not to be humbugged again. One clause in the bill gives the Governor-in-Council, which in practice means Mr. Bennett, the power to prohibit import or export of any article.

"If that clause remains it means that you are parting entirely with the right of yourself and parliament to control trade," he said.

Dictatorship

In Mr. Bennett Canada has a real dictator, said Mr. King. He has the power to legislate as he pleases under the "Peace, order and good government" measure, and to spend what he will from the public treasury. Under the marketing act he can regulate trade in any manner he sees fit.

"The Liberal policy has always been to develop trade. That is a policy of plenty. But once you begin to restrict trade you have a policy of scarcity," he said, adding that in the wheat pact to restrict production and export of wheat the policy had been carried through to the logical conclusion.

"This government has done all it can to destroy trade and now it seeks to destroy production," he said. Subsidies to various pests would be a cheaper way to regulate production than an army of officials.

Mr. Rennie

Mr. Rennie declared that only the Liberal policy aims at a solution of problems of agriculture, and until these are solved things cannot be much better. His trips up and down the highways during the campaign have shown him as nothing else could, the hopelessness which is blighting the lives of young unemployed transients.

Mr. Hepburn, who introduced Mr. King, wanted to know why Mr. Bennett did not come into the riding instead of entering it from Ottawa via the radio. Here a heckler interrupted Mr. Hepburn.

"If the gentleman has anything to say let him come to the platform and say it," said Mr. Hepburn. Whereupon Alex Reynolds, Tillsonburg, marched to the platform amid loud shouts of disapproval from the crowd. "I would like to ask Mr. Hepburn why he is not at the Ontario House defending his record," asked Mr. Reynolds.

"Very well. I will tell you. The House should have been dissolved a year ago. It carried on on borrowed time," said Mr. Hepburn as the audience roared approval, and indicated its unwillingness to tolerate further interruptions.

Mr. Hepburn Explains Again

"It was well known when I accepted the leadership of the Ontario party that I would not leave the people of West Elgin until I had finished the term for which they elected me. There is such a thing as 'loyalty.' I have not followed the line of least resistence. I might have entered the legislature through an acclamation in East Kent. I know that I have a difficult riding in Elgin now but I will stand or fall by the decision of want Liberal prosperity," he said.

William Brown, Tillsonburg, was chairman. Mrs. L. G. Little and Mrs. Jack Climie sang solos. Flowers were presented to the singers by Misses Dorothy Daniels and Margery Stafford.

Among those on the platform were Dougald Graham, George Perry, N. J. Griffith, G. A. P. Brickenden, Dr. A. S. Duncan, Paul Gravelle, Charles Oliver and Hon. J. C. Elliott, all of London; Colin C. Hawkins, Brownsville; R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., C. E. Brown, Tillsonburg; P. M. Dewan, Woodstock; Jack Jewell, Tillsonburg; Keith M. Somers, Tillsonburg; Eric Cross, Simcoe; Vern Meek, M. G. Dean, Dr. J. M. Rogers, and H. A. Copeland, Ingersoll.

The Tillsonburg Citizens' Band under the leadership of Boyd Sylvester played before the meeting got under way.

Norwich, April 11—"If this constituency goes Liberal on Monday next, I say the Prime Minister cannot afford to carry on the government of this country any longer without going to the people next fall," declared the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, speaking to the Liberal rally in Edison Hall here this afternoon.

Mr. King's speech this afternoon was a short one, lasting scarcely an hour, but in it he raised issues of tremendous importance. He declared that the actions of the Bennett government in transferring power to the cabinet constituted a very serious threat to constitutional and democratic forms of government in Canada and that it is quite conceivable in the event of a European crisis in the near future Mr. Bennett might decide to let his administration carry on indefinitely.

Opening his speech Mr. King said that a public man has no greater privilege than to come into the ridings after a battle for the people's liberties in parliament and get from the people their opinion of his stand.

Left Unrepresented

"The question now before you is whether you trust a government which does not trust you. If you approve of the fact that you have had no representation in parliament this year, then by all means vote for Mr. Sutherland. Mr. Bennett does not trust South Oxford and has let it go unrepresented", said Mr. King. The

A Shocking Story

The Bennett Government has felt the force of Mr. King's attack upon its irregular method of handling the relief problem, and its "blank cheque" substitute for a constructive policy. Mr. Bennett tries to shift the blame to the Auditor-General, who he says failed in his duty, but Mr. King places the responsibility squarely upon the Government. Its "easy-money" slipshod practice of pouring out millions year after year with no effective check has a sorry sequel. The Dominion Treasury, Mr. King charges, has been looted. Detailed audits of federal relief expenditures, he asserts, will disclose "one of the most shocking stories this country has ever heard."

The Government, under pressure, has consented to an investigation by the public accounts committee of the House of Commons, but it would not have been in such a plight if it had followed ordinary business principles. Up to March 22 last it had paid $110,198,273 out of the Treasury for relief purposes, and had made loans and advances of $59,927,267 to aid provinces and corporations in meeting their difficulties. Yet, as Mr. King shows, it has even now no information as to the number of unemployed, and it has left Parliament in the dark. At the very first session of the present Parliament, in 1930, Mr. King urged that all federal moneys expended should be properly audited by federal officials, but the Prime Minister described this as an insult to the provinces and the municipalities. What has happened? In the interval the waste of public moneys has been so great that the Government has been compelled to retrace its steps and do the very thing which Mr. Bennett characterized as an insult. After the money has been spent and the vouchers can no longer be recovered, the Government has passed an order-in-council directing the Auditor-General to conduct an audit of provincial and municipal relief accounts "to safeguard the interests of the Dominion Treasury." It is another case of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen.

Mr. King in the House produced a startling array of cases cited by the Auditor-General as a result of a few tests made in several provinces. These cases show shocking laxity in the administration of public money. The Dominion Government was improperly charged for many items, and there were no adequate provincial and municipal audits to prevent abuses. Here is what was found in one province alone:

Gasoline tax paid to the province submitted in accounts for federal contribution.

No inventory available of material and tools remaining after relief work on projects completed, the cost of which equipment had been shared by the federal Government.

Department of roads did not take advantage of cash discounts offered by merchants.

Excess charges made for rental of machinery.

Duplications of charges took place.

Certain overseers paid at rates in excess of those prescribed by provincial Government.

Sixty-two paylists, amounting to $96,000, could not be verified because vouchers not available.

Pay of laborers signed irregularly by persons other than the laborer.

Pay of as many as 25 persons signed by one person.

Many signatures on paylist appear in same handwriting.

In one case signatures of 29 laborers did not appear an paylist.

Irregularities in paylists revealed that some of the men did not receive amounts for which they signed.

In some cases wages and travelling expenses paid twice to supervisors.

These are but a few of the instances taken by Mr. King from the Auditor-General's report, which in turn touches only the surface of the scandal. Enough has already been disclosed in official documents to prove that the federal Government baled out the federal Treasury with the utmost recklessness, although impressively warned in 1930 that it should follow its own money to its destination and control the flow of it, in the absence of any federal relief program. As Mr. King points out, there has been no national policy of any kind with respect to relief—no national recovery plan. There has been nothing but huge expenditure, and the vast waste which is now tends to degrade the individual. The neglect of popular education—early days doomed millions of people to ignorance and prevented the growth of faculties which might have enriched the world. This was the theme of Grey's Elegy in a Country Churchyard. Grey had not the reforming temperament. His tone was not indignant but pensive; he wrote as if the condition he described was fixed and inevitable. The same tone runs through most of the writings of the eighteenth century until near its close. The awakening came in the closing nineteenth century. Writers and statesmen then arose who did not merely lament the wrongs suffered by a large part of the human race, but burned with indigation and zeal for reform.

That mood still prevails, and it is well for the human race that it does. It may carry eager-hearted reformers too far, and may produce unworkable proposals. But it is better than stagnation and smug satisfaction. The present depression and unemployment have given rise to a ferment of thought on political and economic institutions. It has helped to bring about communism, fascism, and nazism in continental Europe. In British countries and in the United States, the manifestations have been less violent, but even there men and women are restless and perplexed. Their comparative moderation is due partly to racial and other elements of character, and partly to free institutions which give scope to originality and desire for physical violence. On the other hand the violent manifestations in Russia, Italy and Germany are due partly to racial characteristics and partly to inability to work free institutions. The people there rush to extremes. The new environment will radically influence individual character. The war declared against thought and freedom in Germany for instance, will profoundly affect the individual, whether he confirms or resists.

It is sometimes said that international war is the inevitable tendency of the human race because "man is a fighting animal." But institutions also play their part. Laws and institutions have ended private war in civilized countries—not wholly, as the gang fights in the United States prove—but as to the general, normal relations of citizens. The League of Nations represents an effort to substitute law for chaos and barbarism. Its methods may not have been of the best, and may be capable of improvement, but its aim is right, and offers the only alternative to the destruction of civilization. Here again it is said that the individual must be reformed in order to insure international peace. That is part of the truth. There must be good-will to drive the machinery of the League of Nations or any organization having the same purpose. There must be steady education to remove international prejudice. But there must also be institutional changes. Ill-will toward other nations is not the sole cause, often not the main cause of war. The war-makers sometimes find it necessary to breed ill-will as part of the munitions of war. The manufacture of hatred is as systematically and skilfully carried on as the manufacture of guns, explosives and gases—sometimes by the same persons. For these reasons the League of Nations ought to be supported, while, of course, it is open to criticism and suggestions for improvement.

"Whither Canada?"

A warning and alarming article appears in this week's Maclean's, entitled "Whither Canada?" in which the writer, G. R. Stevens, a Canadian trade commissioner, implores his countrymen to awaken before it is too late to the dangers which threaten their export trade. He points to the self-evident truth that 10,000,000 Canadians can produce much more than they need in this bountiful land, and depend upon overseas customers to yield them an income from their great surplus of primary products in their treated and untreated state.

Mr. Stevens says he sees in Canadian newspapers very little interest in the very serious development in Great Britain—the inauguration of a new policy, directed by the dynamic Walter Elliott, of supplying Britain's table from her own soil. That is because many Canadian newspapers are reluctant to admit that the Ottawa Conference, which they lauded to the skies, has failed to settle anything. Mr. Stevens is certain that in 1935 Mr. Elliott will propose tariffs, with a measure of preference retained, on Empire supplies which are now admitted duty-free. He will begin with pig products; thence to dairy produce, to mutton and lamb, and on through beef to cereals, fruits, vegetables and fish. Mr. Stevens suggests that "we may be witnessing a turn in the tide of our affairs which foreshadows tragedy and disaster." His conclusion is that every British Dominion should make a supreme endeavor to preserve at any reasonable cost the British market in its present magnitude.

The Dominion delegates at the Ottawa Conference in 1932 thought they had the whip hand and they tried to lash the British delegates into surrender. Mr. Bennett in particular bullied and scolded Chamberlain, Baldwin, Runciman and Hailsham, and once he actually wept, a secret guarded by correspondents until A. J. Cummings of the London News-Chronicle revealed it the other day. The British plenipotentiaries went home enraged, and the most extravagant municipal government—in Montreal.

General managers of three great Canadian banks testified at Ottawa that a great cause of the world depression had been the erection of tariff barriers to trade among the big importing nations. They are right, and it is to be hoped they can convert their directors to that view.

Even Hon. Dr. Manion weeps over high tariffs. When Canada had a moderate sensible tariff, Dr. Manion was in full cry against it and demanded "red-blooded" action in raising it. The Dr. Manions in nearly all trading countries had their way, and see what happened!

Edward Johnson Sponsors Special Course in Singing At Western Summer Term

Noted Tenor Will Attend Opening Ceremonies On July 9

EDGAR SCHOFIELD TO BE DIRECTOR

New Course In Dancing Under Mrs. Schofield Also Announced

The inauguration of a special course in vocal music for the University of Western Ontario Summer School, to begin during the forthcoming semester and which will be under the honorary direction of Edward Johnson, noted Canadian-born tenor, is announced today by Dr. Sherwood Fox, president of the university. Mr. Johnson will attend the opening ceremonies for the inauguration of the course which are scheduled for July 9. The course will continue until August 18. A new course in dancing instruction is also announced.

Direction of the special music class will be taken over by Edgar Schofield, of New York, a distinguished vocal teacher and popular bass baritone, also well known to Canadian audiences. Mr. Schofield has sung in London on several occasions, and is the personal choice of Mr. Johnson for the position of professor of the new department at Western's summer shcool.

Favors Class Method

For many years Mr. Johnson has endeavored to introduce into Canada the class method of instruction in vocal music that has proved to be so great a success in great universities like California, Michigan, Rochester, and Syracuse," Dr. Fox said, in making his announcement. "Not until the present time, however, has it seemed feasible to undertake the project.

"Under Mr. Schofield the summer school offers classes of three kinds: for beginners, for singers, for teachers. The tuition fees for these classes are so reasonable that they offer a unique opportunity for people of very limited resources to obtain instruction under an acknowledged master teacher. This type of music instruction is known under the general heading of master classes. The university is gratified that through the generous co-operation and enthusiastic effort of Mr. Johnson, it is in a position to introduce into Canada an educational innovation in music that is bound to be a great stimulus to music among our people."

Dancing Courses

The university administration also announces that during the same summer session it is offering under the department of physical education special courses in dancing. These courses are of the type that are said to be of value to teachers in schools who are in charge of departments of physical education and also to young women of high school and university age who seek some sound form of physical development. The courses will be under the direction of Mrs. Edgar Schofield, the former Miss Alice Marvin of Berkeley, California, and of New York City. Mrs. Schofield was a pupil of Fokine and Mordkin and other well known artists in Europe and America, and has had wide experience as a teacher and artist. Three courses will be offered: a beginner's course which is designed to give bodily fredom, rhythm, plastique and a few simple dance routines; an advanced class in which special attention will be paid to dance repetoires (Spanish ballet, character, etc.); a course in tap and musical comedy.

These courses will run concurrently with the regular courses of the summer school from July 9 to August 18. Three lessons per week in each course will be given. An intensive course for teachers will also be given if registration warrants it.

Limited To Women

Mr. Johnson strongly advocates students of vocal music taking some courses of the above type for the purpose of developing poise and rhythmic movement of the body. The courses in dancing are limited to women. The tuition fees are on the same reasonable scale as those for the vocal music.

The university is making provision that students who desire private lessons with Mr. and Mrs. Schofield may arrange for such lessons through the registrar.

Authorities of the university expect that in a week or two all details in connection with these courses will be compiled in such a form that they may be available in the form of literature for all who are interested.

"It is gratifying that these new departments of summer school work, like all the departments already established, carry themselves financially without being a charge on the university," the president said.

St. Thomas, April 11—Harold Chapman, 20-year-old Port Stanley youth who admits being an accomplice of Arthur Smith, in the breaking and entering of Ezra Fahner's office at the village of Port Stanley, was sentenced this afternoon to a year in the Reformatory with an additional year indeterminate.

His Worship informed Chapman, that although he was only a look-out for Smith, he was there to assist in the robbery and knew what was going on.

Smith is serving two years in Portsmouth Penitentiary for the same offence. There was this difference between the two cases, Smith had entered the premises three different times, a week apart, and Chapman had only been with him once. H. C. Cameron, K.C., pleaded for Chapman.

The Record of the Government

A government must be judged by its record.

On its performance the present government must stand or fall.

The first of the Bennett promises was to cure unemployment; "work, not doles," was the slogan of the campaign of 1930.

Has the promise been kept?

A report submitted to the House of Commons on March 22nd last contains this statement:

	Heads of families receiving relief
Jan. 1933	258,298
Feb. 1933	276,468

One year later the record stood:

Jan. 1934	260,159
Feb. 1934	267,853

There are over 1,250,000 on all classes receiving relief.

Despite the fact that world conditions, according to the League of Nations have improved, the change in Canada has been scarcely noticeable.

The index number of employment in manufacturing stood at 113.8 in July, 1930, the date of the election—it fell to 84.9 the following July—stood at only 82.6 in July of the next year and for the year averaged only 81.4— 32.1 points lower than the average of 1930. And yet the government of Canada is spending millions to provide employment.

"Blasting"

The government promised markets for the farmers and total exports of agricultural products fell from $368,700,000 in 1930 to $202,900,000 in 1933.

Prices have fallen—fallen sharply. The index number of farm prices at 100 in 1926 dropped to 53.3 in December last—prices were almost cut in two.

But the price of manufactured products did not fall by an equivalent amount — manufactured products dropped only 28.1% while price[illegible] farm products fell 46.3% [illegible] wonder the purchasing power of the farmer fell.

Debts

Debt of Canada Under Two Governments

Debt Reduction Under Liberals

Fiscal Year
1928	$50,900,000
1929	71,300,000

Debt Increased Under Conservatives

1931	$ 83,800,000
1932	114,200,000
1933	223,200,000

In three years a debt increase of $421, 200,000 under the Conservatives.

A debt decrease of $169,900,000 in three years under the Liberals.

Tax Burdens

This means heavier tax burdens imposed on an already over-taxed people.

The situation demands a new deal for the people of South Oxford—for the people of Canada.

Trade has been strangled by the Conservative policy — Trade will be liberated by the Liberals.

Export of Canadian products fell from $1,209,000,000 in 1929 to $537,000,000 in 1933 (Calendar years in both cases).

Freedom is needed to expand trade—trade can be and will be expanded under the Liberals.

THURSDAY, APRIL 12, 1934

A Shocking Story

The Bennett Government has felt the force of Mr. King's attack upon its irregular method of handling the relief problem, and its "blank cheque" substitute for a constructive policy. Mr. Bennett tries to shift the blame to the Auditor-General, who he says failed in his duty, but Mr. King places the responsibility squarely upon the Government. Its "easy-money" slipshod practice of pouring out millions year after year with no effective check has a sorry sequel. The Dominion Treasury, Mr. King charges, has been looted. Detailed audits of federal relief expenditures, he asserts, will disclose "one of the most shocking stories this country has ever heard."

The Government, under pressure, has consented to an investigation by the public accounts committee of the House of Commons, but it would not have been in such a plight if it had followed ordinary business principles. Up to March 22 last it had paid $110,198,273 out of the Treasury for relief purposes, and had made loans and advances of $59,927,267 to aid provinces and corporations in meeting their difficulties. Yet, as Mr. King shows, it has even now no information as to the number of unemployed, and it has left Parliament in the dark. At the very first session of the present Parliament, in 1930, Mr. King urged that all federal moneys expended should be properly audited by federal officials, but the Prime Minister described this as an insult to the provinces and the municipalities. What has happened? In the interval the waste of public moneys has been so great that the Government has been compelled to retrace its steps and do the very thing which Mr. Bennett characterized as an insult. After the money has been spent and the vouchers can no longer be recovered, the Government has passed an order-in-council directing the Auditor-General to conduct an audit of provincial and municipal relief accounts "to safeguard the interests of the Dominion Treasury." It is another case of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen.

Mr. King in the House produced a startling array of cases cited by the Auditor-General as a result of a few tests made in several provinces. These cases show shocking laxity in the administration of public money. The Dominion Government was improperly charged for many items, and there were no adequate provincial and municipal audits to prevent abuses. Here is what was found in one province alone:

Gasoline tax paid to the province submitted in accounts for federal contribution.

No inventory available of material and tools remaining after relief work on projects completed, the cost of which equipment had been shared by the federal Government.

Department of roads did not take advantage of cash discounts offered by merchants.

Excess charges made for rental of machinery.

Duplications of charges took place.

Certain overseers paid at rates in excess of those prescribed by provincial Government.

Sixty-two paylists, amounting to $96,000, could not be verified because vouchers not available.

Pay of laborers signed irregularly by persons other than the laborer.

Pay of as many as 25 persons signed by one person.

Many signatures on paylist appear in same handwriting.

In one case signatures of 29 laborers did not appear an paylist.

Irregularities in paylists revealed that some of the men did not receive amounts for which they signed.

In some cases wages and travelling expenses paid twice to supervisors.

These are but a few of the instances taken by Mr. King from the Auditor-General's report, which in turn touches only the surface of the scandal. Enough has already been disclosed in official documents to prove that the federal Government baled out the federal Treasury with the utmost recklessness, although impressively warned in 1930 that it should follow its own money to its destination and control the flow of it, in the absence of any federal relief program. As Mr. King points out, there has been no national policy of any kind with respect to relief—no national recovery plan. There has been nothing but huge expenditure, and the vast waste which is now admitted, too late to repair the injury. And even yet the Dominion Government offers nothing but a continuance of the dole in its worst form.

Man And His Environment

There is a controversy between those who would better the condition of the human race by reforming the individual, and those who would achieve that end by reforming laws and institutions. The truth when stated is so self-evident as to seem like a truism or a platitude. The two approaches are not contradictory but complementary. Both kinds of reform are needed. The better the environment, the better the individual. The better the individual, the more earnestly he will strive to improve the environment. The greed or stupidity of the individual is to blame for slums. The slum wrongs suffered by a large part of the human race, but burned with indigation and zeal for reform.

That mood still prevails, and it is well for the human race that it does. It may carry eager-hearted reformers too far, and may produce unworkable proposals. But it is better than stagnation and smug satisfaction. The present depression and unemployment have given rise to a ferment of thought on political and economic institutions. It has helped to bring about communism, fascism, and nazism in continental Europe. In British countries and in the United States, the manifestations have been less violent, but even there men and women are restless and perplexed. Their comparative moderation is due partly to racial and other elements of character, and partly to free institutions which give scope to originality and desire for physical violence. On the other hand the violent manifestations in Russia, Italy and Germany are due partly to racial characteristics and partly to inability to work free institutions. The people there rush to extremes. The new environment will radically influence individual character. The war declared against thought and freedom in Germany for instance, will profoundly affect the individual, whether he confirms or resists.

It is sometimes said that international war is the inevitable tendency of the human race because "man is a fighting animal." But institutions also play their part. Laws and institutions have ended private war in civilized countries—not wholly, as the gang fights in the United States prove—but as to the general, normal relations of citizens. The League of Nations represents an effort to substitute law for chaos and barbarism. Its methods may not have been of the best, and may be capable of improvement, but its aim is right, and offers the only alternative to the destruction of civilization. Here again it is said that the individual must be reformed in order to insure international peace. That is part of the truth. There must be good-will to drive the machinery of the League of Nations or any organization having the same purpose. There must be steady education to remove international prejudice. But there must also be institutional changes. Ill-will toward other nations is not the sole cause, often not the main cause of war. The war-makers sometimes find it necessary to breed ill-will as part of the munitions of war. The manufacture of hatred is as systematically and skilfully carried on as the manufacture of guns, explosives and gases—sometimes by the same persons. For these reasons the League of Nations ought to be supported, while, of course, it is open to criticism and suggestions for improvement.

"Whither Canada?"

A warning and alarming article appears in this week's Maclean's, entitled "Whither Canada?" in which the writer, G. R. Stevens, a Canadian trade commissioner, implores his countrymen to awaken before it is too late to the dangers which threaten their export trade. He points to the self-evident truth that 10,000,000 Canadians can produce much more than they need in this bountiful land, and depend upon overseas customers to yield them an income from their great surplus of primary products in their treated and untreated state.

Mr. Stevens says he sees in Canadian newspapers very little interest in the very serious development in Great Britain—the inauguration of a new policy, directed by the dynamic Walter Elliott, of supplying Britain's table from her own soil. That is because many Canadian newspapers are reluctant to admit that the Ottawa Conference, which they lauded to the skies, has failed to settle anything. Mr. Stevens is certain that in 1935 Mr. Elliott will propose tariffs, with a measure of preference retained, on Empire supplies which are now admitted duty-free. He will begin with pig products; thence to dairy produce, to mutton and lamb, and on through beef to cereals, fruits, vegetables and fish. Mr. Stevens suggests that "we may be witnessing a turn in the tide of our affairs which foreshadows tragedy and disaster." His conclusion is that every British Dominion should make a supreme endeavor to preserve at any reasonable cost the British market in its present magnitude.

The Dominion delegates at the Ottawa Conference in 1932 thought they had the whip hand and they tried to lash the British delegates into surrender. Mr. Bennett in particular bullied and scolded Chamberlain, Baldwin, Runciman and Hailsham, and once he actually wept, a secret guarded by correspondents until A. J. Cummings of the London News-Chronicle revealed it the other day. The British plenipotentiaries went home enraged, but they are now turning the tables by steadily crowding the Dominions out of the British market. Canada offered them nothing substantial and still maintains her high barriers against British goods despite promises to lower them two years ago. Britain has joined the mad rush for national self-sufficiency, and is using against Canada already—e. g., the restrictions on exports of Canadian cattle and oats—the weapon which Canada employs against British exporters.

Note and Comment

Mr. Sutherland is the high tariff candidate in South Oxford, and he cannot rub out that label, much as the electors dislike it.

It is a paradox that Quebec has the most economical provincial government in Canada, and demanded "red-blooded" action in raising it. The Dr. Manions in nearly all trading countries had their way, and see what happened!

A Cabinet Minister goes to South Oxford on the eve of the by-election to announce that Mr. Bennett will bring about a reduction of mortgage interest rates. An elector who would be influenced by a last-minute promise of this kind is much below the average intelligence in the constituency. He should first read the list of unfulfilled promises made by Mr. Bennett in 1930.

Lloyd George has completed 44 years of unbroken service in the British House of Commons. For 30 years he has been its most vivid personality. THE EARTH'S BIGGEST JOB
(Vancouver Sun)

Statesmen and economists may build up the economic machine that will govern the material lives of our children.

But it is the teachers who will share and mold the human material that must go through that machine.

Teaching is the biggest job on earth today because we are emerging into an age of psychology—an age wherein the processes of mind and the perfection of understanding are the all-important factors.

Life has become too complex and too difficult to turn the child loose with a mechanized smattering of knowledge and no real understanding of himself or of the world he lives in.

Education is no longer a mere feat of memory nor a painting on of superficial culture. It is the development in our young people of the ability to meet, understand and conquer life in all its changing phases.

While awaiting sentence, the man worked around the jail, he told counsel.

"Fixing fires," was the answer.

"You don't mean the police have been turning you loose to burn down more buildings?"

"No, I've been stoking the furnace. "I'm pretty good at it."

NO CONCRETE SCHEME FOR AIR SERVICE YET

Trans-Atlantic Service To Canada Not Under Discussion British Commons Told

Canadian Press Cable

London, April 11—No concrete scheme for a Trans-Atlantic air service to and from Canada has yet been put forth, Sir Philip Sassoon, under secretary for air, declared this afternoon in the House of Commons when questioned as regards the development of Empire aviation.

"As regards services to and across Canada," Sir Philip said, "no concrete scheme for Trans-Atlantic air service is at present under discussion. At the same time I understand that considerable progress has been made in the establishment of a chain of landing grounds across the Dominion.

"I am not in a position to give any more detailed information at this stage."

BIG TRUCKS MIRED ON COCKSHUTT ROAD

Brantford, April 11—Service trucks of this city were at a premium this afternoon, with their attentions needed on the Cockshutt road, south of the city. Between the city and the road leading to the Six Nations' Indian reserve, half a dozen big trucks were mired or ditched, the worst spot being the new cutoff constructed in connection with the new Cockshutt bridge.

Traffic is warned to stay off this road for some time.

JUDGMENT IS RESERVED IN CLAIM FOLLOWING FALL

After hearing argument, County Judge Joseph Wearing reserved judgment in the county court claim of Mrs. Margaret Patterson, city, against Premier Trust Company for $500 damages for injuries allegedly suffered in a fall in the company's Richmond street office building. Jared Vining, K. C., acted for the defence; N. F. Newton for Mrs. Patterson.

Who admits being an accomplice of Arthur Smith, in the breaking and entering of Ezra Fahner's office at the village of Port Stanley, was sentenced this afternoon to a year in the Reformatory with an additional year indeterminate.

His Worship informed Chapman, that although he was only a look-out for Smith, he was there to assist in the robbery and knew what was going on.

Smith is serving two years in Portsmouth Penitentiary for the same offence. There was this difference between the two cases, Smith had entered the premises three different times, a week apart, and Chapman had only been with him once. H. C. Cameron, K.C., pleaded for Chapman.

was the slogan of the campaign of 1930.

Has the promise been kept?

A report submitted to the House of Commons on March 22nd last contains this statement:

	Heads of families receiving relief
Jan. 1933	258,298
Feb. 1933	276,468

One year later the record stood:

Jan. 1934	260,159
Feb. 1934	267,853

There are over 1,250,000 on all classes receiving relief.

Despite the fact that world conditions, according to the League of Nations have improved, the change in Canada has been scarcely noticeable.

The index number of employment in manufacturing stood at 113.8 in July, 1930, the date of the election—it fell to 84.9 the following July—stood at only 82.6 in July of the next year and for the year averaged only 81.4— 32.4 points lower than the average of 1930. And yet the government of Canada is spending millions to provide employment.

"Blasting"

The government promised markets for the farmers and total exports of agricultural products fell from $368,700,000 in 1930 to $202,900,000 in 1933.

Prices have fallen—fallen sharply. The index number of farm prices at 100 in 1926 dropped to 53.3 in December last—prices were almost cut in two.

But the price of manufactured products did not fall by an equivalent amount — manufactured products dropped only 28.1% while prices of farm products fell 46.3%. [illegible] wonder the purchasing power of the farmer fell.

Debts

Debt of Canada Under Two Governments

Debt Reduction Under Liberals

Fiscal Year
1928	$50,900,000
1929	71,300,000
1930	47,700,000

Debt Increased Under Conservatives

1931	$ 83,800,000
1932	114,200,000
1933	223,200,000

In three years a debt increase of $421, 200,000 under the Conservatives.

A debt decrease of $169,900,000 in three years under the Liberals.

Tax Burdens

This means heavier tax burdens imposed on an already over-taxed people.

The situation demands a new deal for the people of South Oxford—for the people of Canada.

Trade has been strangled by the Conservative policy — Trade will be liberated by the Liberals.

Export of Canadian products fell from $1,209,000,000 in 1929 to $537,000,000 in 1933 (Calendar years in both cases).

Freedom is needed to expand trade—trade can be and will be expanded under the Liberals.

Drawbridge Included In Construction Program For Port Stanley

L. & P. S. PLANS BIG IMPROVEMENT

Include Construction Of $100,000 Drawbridge And A New Dock

CONFERENCE HELD

Commission Also Discusses With Village Council Adequate Protection Of Bathers

Ambitious plans which suggest the construction of a new $100,000 draw bridge, the building of a new dock, and the further establishment of coal interests at Port Stanley, were tentatively discussed and mapped last night at the port, at a joint meeting of the L. & P. S. commission and the Port Stanley Village Council.

Building of a lift bridge to replace the present stationary structure spanning Kettle Creek near the railway station, was stressed as the key project for which the commission and council would strive. Instead of repairs to the structure now standing, for which the provincial government has already signified its willingness to share in the cost, attention will now be directed towards obtaining an entirely new bridge.

Will Help Western Ontario

Should the plan succeed, Mayor George A. Wenige stated last night he believed the project would have a direct bearing on Western Ontario. Construction of the bridge, the mayor believed, would be followed by the building of a new dock; greater facilities for lake vessels would be created, and further inducement held out for oil and coal concerns to use the port as their base and shipping centre.

To Protect Bathers

Apart from building plans advanced with a view to placing Port Stanley "on the map" as a live lake port, the joint meeting decided upon measures of protection for swimmers this summer. Authorization was given the proposal to place life preservers at every 300 feet along the lake front. Additional plans for the employment this summer of life guards and the placing of lifeboats at strategic points along the waterfront were also mooted and held over for further consideration.

Get-Together Meeting

The London commissioners were banquetted at the Orion Hotel last night by the village council. From that "get-together" meeting is expected to arise shortly a general conference of the councils of London, St. Thomas, and Port Stanley, and the Elgin County council. It is proposed to have the meeting in London. At it will be definitely shaped, the course to be followed in connection with the plans discussed last night.

Government to Share Cost

Speaking of the bridge project, the mayor said, "The government has already promised to share in the cost of repairing the Kettle Creek bridge to the extent of $35,000. "We all might as well spend a little more and get a new structure. Repairs alone won't do."

Supplying of lifeguard and boat protection to swimmers, regarded as a certainty, arises, the mayor said, from concern evidenced following last year's triple drowning tragedy. He believed proper facilities for providing the bather with protection would encourage swimming at the port.

New York, April 11. — International Products—and subsidiaries report for 1933, as certified by independent auditors, net loss of $318,188, after depreciation, depletion, etc., and including $24,507 profit on foreign exchange. This compares with net loss of $672,351 in 1932.

Federal Liberal Leader Speaks At Two Meetings

Liberal practice had been to bring on by-elections as soon as possible. Mr. Bennett had brought on three recently but left South Oxford out.

"Mr. Bennett knew that his government did not possess the confidence of the people. He hoped to carry one of the three by-elections which were called but he left out the one that will beat him the worst," he said. "Your vote won't put Mr. Bennett out but it will decide definitely if we will have a general election in the fall or if we are to have another year of Bennett rule."

Series of Defeats

Mr. King said that the Liberal party welcomed the South Oxford by-election as another opportunity to show the government that it has lost the people's confidence. Under the British parliamentary system it is an established practice for a government to go to the country when it loses a series of by-elections. The Bennett government could not hope to avoid this appeal if on top of Restigouche-Madawaska, Yamaska, Mackenzie and South Huron it loses South Oxford as well.

"All parts of Canada are striking in at this administration and telling it to get out. If on top of all this the people of South Oxford tell Mr. Bennett to get out of the way, it seems to me that he will be obliged to go to the country this fall. A big opportunity is yours," he said.

The political and economic problems facing Canada are the most important in her history, said the Liberal leader. He recalled that in the general election of 1930 he had told the people that the world was facing a great depression and that Liberal policies had been fashioned in this belief. The depression was partly because of the war and partly because of the orgy of speculation, but, said Mr. King, he believed that the Liberal policies had prevented Canada from feeling the full impact of the world depression.

Set Example To World

"The Liberal party brought Canada out of a depression in 1921. It was not a mere accident but the result of certain policies moving toward definite ends. Other nations went in for economic isolation but we resolved to extend our markets. We thought that we at least in the British Empire need not go in for the policy of economic nationalism but rather felt we should set an example to the rest of the world. The Dunning budget was directed to the lowering of tariffs in the British Empire. Our policy was met with Mr. Bennett's 'Canada first' and protectionist interests were told that tariff we would be put up all over. If things had been left there, there might have been a different story in that election. But Mr. Bennett said he would provide work for all men. There would be no doles. His two great promises were 'Everyone will work and everyone will have markets.' He included the whole people and the people took him at his word."

The Liberal leader asked how many had work today compared with four years ago. How many have the markets they had four years ago? Those are questions for South Oxford to answer.

Mr. King declared an expansion of trade to be the only solution to this unemployment problem. Work cannot be supplied from taxes indefinitely. It must come from the wealth of the soil, forest, mine and sea.

"We must use the wealth which God has given us and until we exchange these things we cant' have things running very well," he said.

Assailed for Peace Work

The League of Nations had been founded to promote the mutual interests of the nations and to prevent war, said Mr. King. Canada was a member of the League and had done her best. Yet in 1930 the Liberal party was assailed by Mr. Bennett because it had had the courage to lower tariffs in an effort to solve economic problems, problems directly related to those of peace and war. "But you ask the Conservative candidate where trade was then and where it is now," urged Mr. King.

The problem facing the world, economic isolation for the different nations or a policy of international cooperation in trade and everything else with a view to ending economic nationalism and to building a greater brotherhood of mankind is well stated in the difference between Liberal and Conservative policies in Canada today, said Mr. King.

Social Revolution Here

Leaving the trade problem Mr. King said that the times demand a change in the social order. Men, women and children demand more social justice, more to be done for the common good and greater opportunity for all. Those things which have shattered forms of government to Europe and brought the 'New Deal' to the United States are touching Canada.

"To day we are in the middle of a social revolution, a world social revolution, and the problem is where it is going to end as far as the people are concerned. Humanity is on the march. Some say we should have a planned economy. But that means a dictatorship, force and power. Others put their faith in principles and say that these have guided men and women for centuries, and that is the Liberal policy. There are principles for work, peace, and progress and the people who fashion their laws in accord with them will enjoy peace," he said.

nationalism because the tariff was to be raised against all other nations."

British Market Endangered

Mr. King said that in the House of Commons he had stated that the agreements reached at the 1932 conference would endanger the British market for Canadian producers and today the British agriculturist is demanding protection against his Canadian competitors in cattle and dairy products.

"Remember where this policy started and if you approve of it vote for the Bennett candidate," he said.

Even worse than economic nationalism is economic imperialism, continued Mr. King. Every thinking man stands aghast when he thinks of an empire seeking to stand out as a unit against the rest of the world.

"Unless this sort of thing ends, economic war will give way to actual war," he predicted. "Unless some country comes along to set an example the world will face a worse situation than ever."

Parliament Being Shelved

Mr. King declared that the Bennett policy for Canada is to get rid of parliament altogether and to let the executive do what it pleases. He referred to the "Peace, order and good government" clause now before the Commons which gives the government unlimited powers. It can guarantee corporation loans, lend millions to the provinces. "The government, under one clause of that bill, is getting even the authority to prevent a general election. It might be used in the event of a European crisis. That was what was done in Cromwell's day. We cannot afford now to turn over all government to the governor in council," declared Mr. King, asserting that the Liberal party would keep up the battle to guard parliament's rights.

Vast Sums Squandered

Moneys paid out for relief under the "Peace, order and good government" clause had been improperly spent, said Mr. King. Money was wasted on the worst scale in Canada's history. To the provinces had been loaned $52,000,000 and it is doubtful if the Federal treasury will ever see it again. Bank guarantees of more than $100,000,000 have been given, including the $60,000,000 C. P. R. guarantee.

"What is worse is that the provinces are now following Mr. Bennett's example and transferring power to the cabinets from the people's representatives," the speaker continued. The British Columbia premier has taken powers like those that Mr. Bennett has. A bill to this end is under way in Alberta. Already it is in effect in Saskatchewan in respect to some things, while the same is true of Manitoba."

Bennett Set Example

"Do you think these premiers would have thought of it if Mr. Bennett had not set the example?" asked Mr. King.

The Liberal leader noted that the other day Mr. Bennett told the Commons that he needed the powers he asked so he could combat British Columbia. "It is a matter of competitive arming for legislative and executive power. How long would it be in this province until Mr. Henry took those powers if he were re-elected?"

"We have a spirit of warfare abroad, the spirit which has bedevilled European nations. Our dictators say they must have new powers. I say to you that economic war and competitive arming in whatever form it comes sooner or later results in actual war. Let it come to Europe and how long will it be until we feel it? One country needs to stand up for democratic institutions and international good will. It is this larger policy which the Liberal party is working out."

Hall Is Packed

Crowds began gathering around the hall long before the time set for the meeting. Although it was snowing, many stood in the streets and in doorways to listen-in as sound apparatus carried the music and speeches to those outside. Every available inch of space inside was taken, with the balconies packed, and spectators standing in the aisles and even in the wings of the platform.

Mr. King and the other speakers were given a rousing reception. John McKee of Norwich acted as chairman and those on the platform included M. F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader; Hon. J. C. Elliott, M. P., former minister of public works; Reeve John Armour of Norwich; Rev. James Skene, Norwich; R. A. McDougall, Dominion president, and Donald Begg, provincial president of the Twentieth Century Club; P. M. Dean, provincial Liberal candidate for Oxford, and the Liberal candidate in this by-election, A. S. Rennie.

Children's Hero

To the children of the town, Mr. King came as a popular hero. Because of his visit they were given a half holiday from school and many of them were in the audience. The platform was decorated with flowers and in places of honor were flag-draped pictures of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, William Lyon Mackenzie and other Liberal leaders.

Mr. Rennie was the first speaker, opening his address with a sincere tribute to T. M. Cayley, late Liberal member. He blamed the Conservatives for the fact that South Oxford had not had representation for the greater part of the present parliamentary session, declaring that the people of this riding had been ill treated in the government's delaying the election until this time, thus disenfranchising

Abbey To Echo With Re-union

London, April 11.—Methodsit, Congregational and Presbyterian clergymen are among those announced to give a series of lectures in Westminster Abbey during April and May. The series has been arranged by the Friends of Reunion. The Dean and Chapter of the Abbey have given their permission for the lectures. The subject of the course will be "The Road to Reunion."

The lecturers will e the Right Rev. N. S. Talbot, a former Bishop of Pretoria; the Rev. H. Maldwyn Hughes of Welley Lodge, Cambridge; the Rev. Nathanial Micklem, principal of Mansfield College, Oxford; the Rev. James Reid of Eastbourne; the Rev. H. N. Bate, Dean of York and the Very Rev. W. R. Matthews, Dean of Exeter.

exports had gone up only 7.6 per cent.

"It is about time the Pension Act is properly administered," the speaker declared, in touching on veterans' legislation. Under the present government the act was being unfairly administered, he said.

Hepburn Predicts Victory

Mr. Hepburn was greeted with cheers and he paid tribute to Mr. Rennie, predicting for him a victory on April 16. The Liberal leader also spoke words of praise for his federal leader, Mr. King, declaring that he was "probably the greatest statesman this country has ever produced."

In not coming into the riding but instead intending to speak over the radio, Mr. Bennett had shown that "the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak," Mr. Hepburn declared.

You will either vote to perpetuate Mr. Bennett's government in office or register a protest against its record, the speaker said. Mr. Bennett was doing nothing for the farmer and working man. He did nothing but raise tariffs, granting privilege to the strong and more charity to the weak. With this policy of playing both ends against the middle the whole financial structure of the country was in danger of collapse.

Significant Election

The result of this vote will have a great effect throughout the entire Dominion. It will have an effect on the coming general election in Ontario and if Mr. Rennie is elected, it will provide a ray of hope in these dark days, the Liberal leader concluded.

Mr. Elliott introduced Mr. King in a brief speech and thunderous applause greeted the federal leader. Reeve Armour read an address of welcome and Mr. King received a lovely bouquet and a kiss from little Jean Snell as he rose to speak.

'KIDNAPPING' HOAX CLARKSON ADMITS

Toronto Youth Found At Byron Not Abducted Father Tells Police

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 11.—Police tonight abandoned their investigation of a story by Curzon, Trinity College student, that he had been kidnapped and taken to London, after the youth's father, F. C. Clarkson, told them the story was a hoax.

Police said Mr. Clarkson told them his son was suffering from overwrought nerves, induced by worry over examinations and that he believed he had invented the story after driving to London himself and realizing he must explain his absense from home.

Young Clarkson, 18, appeared about two o'clock this morning at Byron Sanatorium, eight miles northwest of London, and told authorities there he had been kidnapped. He was wet and cold. Police started to investigate his story that he had been seized as he sat in his car in Toronto.

They found the car in a gully about half a mile from the Sanatorium.

BISHOP'S WIFE WARNS AGAINST PUTTING CHILD BEFORE THE HUSBAND

Taunton, England, April (CP). — Man should be master of his home, declared Lady Florence Cecil, wife of the Bishop of Exeter, who, at a Mothers' Union Festival at Taunton, warned mothers against putting children before husbands in the home, and added:

"I am early Victorian, and believe in the headship of the husband in the home."

Among temptations that beset women Lady Florence Cecil included temper, nagging, jealousy, untidiness, vanity, conceit and pride.

L.&P.S. TO INAUGURATE REDUCED FARES TO PORT

To Make Rate 35 Cents Round Trip Two Days In Week

DECIDE ON REVIVAL OF BAND CONCERTS

Three Local Military Bands Are To Furnish The Music

Definitely deciding to inaugurate a 35-cent return fare to Port Stanley on Mondays and Fridays after the dance hall opening and during the months of May and June, the L. and P. S. Railway commission meeting yesterday agreed to commence an extensive newspaper, radio and billboard campaign to acquaint the public with the new low fare.

The suggestion that combination tickets which would include two street car tickets with the L. and P. S. tickets at 50 cents to be used during July and August was made by Commissioner D. C. McNaughton and this will be considered later.

Revive Sunday Band Concerts

Sunday evening band concerts on the hill at Port Stanley will be revived as an attraction. One concert was authorized with further concerts depending on the success attained. Bands considered for this purpose were the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Fusiliers Regiment and the First Hussars Regiment, all local military bands.

"Why not bring in an outside band? It would not cost any more," asked Commissioner McNaughton.

Must Employ Local Bands

"We must employ local bands if any," replied Mayor Wenige, chairman of the commission.

The Mayor was of the opinion that the band concerts would materially increase the revenue from the incline railway which has fallen off badly from previous years. The revenue from this source was $2,000 last year Manager Richards informed the commission.

"We can easily double that," said said the Mayor. The Mayor was authorized to draft a tentative agreement with the Shell Oil Company regarding an oil truck to be operated by the L. and P. S. Some doubt was expressed whether the bridges at Port Stanley would take as heavy a load as the proposed truck will carry.

The Mayor, Manager Richards, Commissioners Wright and McNaughton were appointed a committee to carry out plans for billboard advertising. The Mayor will conduct a series of 10 minute radio talks on Port Stanley and the L. and P. S. during April and May.

Following the card playing refreshments were served, after which, two hours dancing was enjoyed, with Arthurs Radio orchestra furnishing the music.

Pioneer Feminist Is 80 Years Old

Took Up Public Life After Family Of Seven Grew Up

Canadian Press Despatch

Montreal, April 11.—Mrs. John Scott, pioneer feminist and the "grand little old Lady of Quebec" has entered upon her 80th year and is still going strong. Just a week before her recent birthday she addressed two meetings in one day. In her up-to-date apartment she lives as indepently and capably as a modern bachelor girl. She has not forgotten the art of cooking either, for her Scotch scones and marmalade are a treat.

The name of Isabella Scott will go down in history as one of the leaders who began the women's suffrage movement in the province of Quebec. During election campaigns she was a popular speaker.

Mrs. Scott delights in recalling the tory of her Scottish father and mother and 12 brothers and sisters, of whom she was the oldest, travelling from Glasgow in 1874 and settling in Scotstown, Quebec. In this country she met a young Scotsman who strangely enough had been born within four miles of Glasgow, and eventually married him. Seven little Canadians were born to them and in those days "I had no time then for questions of suffrage," said Mrs. Scott with a twinkle in her eye as she unfolded her story to an interviewer.

"My husband was Mayor of Scotstown, chairman of the school board, ruling elder in the church, telegraph operating station agent and the keeper of a general store, and in our spare time we attended the weekly prayer meeting and the meeting of the Christian Endeavor."

Mrs. Scott and her family came to Montreal in 1905 and as time went on and her children became less dependent on her she gradually became interested in public life.

FLEISCHMANN'S SWEPT BY DISASTROUS BLAZE

Kingston, N.Y., April 11—Seven buildings in the heart of the business section of Fleischmann's, a Delaware county village 50 miles northwest of here, were burned to the ground and several other structures were damaged early today by a fire which caused an estimated loss of $150,000.

NO EXPERIMENTS in the New Ford V-8

THERE are no experiments in the New Ford V-8 for 1934. No little things blown up big to make sales. No fancy coined names. Just solid substantial value.

That is why we say you buy Proved Performance when you buy a Ford V-8. The reliability and dependability of its V-8 engine, clutch, transmission, torque-tube drive, rear axle, frame, spring suspension and every other vital part have been proved by millions of miles of use by hundreds of thousands of owners.

Keep those points in mind when you are deciding which car to buy in 1934. You're always more sure of 100% satisfaction when you buy a car that has proved its worth and withstood the test of time.

Series of Defeats

Mr. King said that the Liberal party welcomed the South Oxford by-election as another opportunity to show the government that it has lost the people's confidence. Under the British parliamentary system it is an established practice for a government to go to the country when it loses a series of by-elections. The Bennett government could not hope to avoid this appeal if on top of Restigouche-Madawaska, Yamaska, Mackenzie and South Huron it loses South Oxford as well.

"All parts of Canada are striking in at this administration and telling it to get out. If on top of all this the people of South Oxford tell Mr. Bennett to get out of the way, it seems to me that he will be obliged to go to the country this fall. A big opportunity is yours," he said.

The political and economic problems facing Canada are the most important in her history, said the Liberal leader. He recalled that in the general election of 1930 he had told the people that the world was facing a great depression and that Liberal policies had been fashioned in this belief. The depression was partly because of the war and partly because of the orgy of speculation, but, said Mr. King, he believed that the Liberal policies had prevented Canada from feeling the full impact of the world depression.

Set Example To World

"The Liberal party brought Canada out of a depression in 1921. It was not a mere accident but the result of certain policies moving toward definite ends. Other nations went in for economic isolation but we resolved to extend our markets. We thought that we at least in the British Empire need not go in for the policy of economic nationalism but rather felt we should set an example to the rest of the world. The Dunning budget was directed to the lowering of tariffs in the British Empire. Our policy was met with Mr. Bennett's 'Canada first' and protectionist interests were told that tariff walls would be put up all over. If things had been left there, there might have been a different story in that election. But Mr. Bennett said he would provide work for all men. There would be no doles. His two great promises were 'Everyone will work and everyone will have markets.' He included the whole people and the people took him at his word."

The Liberal leader asked how many had work today compared with four years ago. How many have the markets they had four years ago? Those are questions for South Oxford to answer.

Mr. King declared an expansion of trade to be the only solution to this unemployment problem. Work cannot be supplied from taxes indefinitely. It must come from the wealth of the soil, forest, mine and sea.

"We must use the wealth which God has given us and until we exchange these things we can't have things running very well," he said.

Assailed for Peace Work

The League of Nations had been founded to promote the mutual interests of the nations and to prevent war, said Mr. King. Canada was a member of the League and had done her best. Yet in 1930 the Liberal party was assailed by Mr. Bennett because it had had the courage to lower tariffs in an effort to solve economic problems, problems directly related to those of peace and war. "But you ask the Conservative candidate where trade was then and where it is now," urged Mr. King.

The problem facing the world, economic isolation for the different nations or a policy of international cooperation in trade and everything else with a view to ending economic nationalism and to building a greater brotherhood of mankind is well stated in the difference between Liberal and Conservative policies in Canada today, said Mr. King.

Social Revolution Here

Leaving the trade problem Mr. King said that the times demand a change in the social order. Men, women and children demand more social justice, more to be done for the common good and greater opportunity for all. Those things which have shattered forms of government to Europe and brought the 'New Deal' to the United States are touching Canada.

"To day we are in the middle of a social revolution, a world social revolution, and the problem is where it is going to end as far as the people are concerned. Humanity is on the march. Some say we should have a planned economy. But that means a dictatorship, force and power. Others put their faith in principles and say that these have guided men and women for centuries, and that is the Liberal policy. There are principles for work, peace, and progress and the people who fashion their laws in accord with them will enjoy peace," he said.

Danger of Dictatorship

There is a danger right now of a dictatorship in Canada, Mr. King said, and it is up to the people of South Oxford to say that this country must be controlled by the parliamentary system. In Italy, Germany, Russia, Austria and other places, representative institutions have disappeared. In the United States larger powers than ever have been invested in the executive. But under the British system the executive is responsible to the people's representatives and must get his power from them.

"But Mr. Bennett started out four years ago on the theory of an emergency and demanded emergency powers. He called parliament to deal with unemployment and then raised the tariffs," said Mr. King, reviewing the factors which led to the breakdown of the 1930 session of the Imperiol economic conference. "Mr. Bennett's offer to Britain of a preferential tariff really meant a step further along the road of economic exports had gone up only 7.6 per cent.

"It is about time the Pension Act is properly administered," the speaker declared, in touching on veterans' legislation. Under the present government the act was being unfairly administered, he said.

Hepburn Predicts Victory

Mr. Hepburn was greeted with cheers and he paid tribute to Mr. Rennie, predicting for him a victory on April 16. The Liberal leader also spoke words of praise for his federal leader, Mr. King, declaring that he was "probably the greatest statesman this country has ever produced."

In not coming into the riding but instead intending to speak over the radio, Mr. Bennett had shown that "the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak," Mr. Hepburn declared.

You will either vote to perpetuate Mr. Bennett's government in office or register a protest against its record, the speaker said. Mr. Bennett was doing nothing for the farmer and working man. He did nothing but raise tariffs, granting privileges to the strong and more charity to the weak. With this policy of playing both ends against the middle the whole financial structure of the country was in danger of collapse.

Significant Election

The result of this vote will have a great effect throughout the entire Dominion. It will have an effect on the coming general election in Ontario and if Mr. Rennie is elected, it will provide a ray of hope in these dark days, the Liberal leader concluded.

Mr. Elliott introduced Mr. King in a brief speech and thunderous applause greeted the federal leader. Reeve Armour read an address of welcome and Mr. King received a lovely bouquet and a kiss from little Jean Snell as he rose to speak.

Hall Is Packed

Crowds began gathering around the hall long before the time set for the meeting. Although it was snowing, many stood in the streets and in doorways to listen-in as sound apparatus carried the music and speeches to those outside. Every available inch of space inside was taken, with the balconies packed, and spectators standing in the aisles and even in the wings of the platform.

Mr. King and the other speakers were given a rousing reception. John McKee of Norwich acted as chairman and those on the platform included M. F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader; Hon. J. C. Elliott, M. P., former minister of public works; Reeve John Armour of Norwich; Rev. James Skene, Norwich; R. A. McDougall, Dominion president, and Donald Begg, provincial president of the Twentieth Century Club; P. M. Dean, provincial Liberal candidate for Oxford, and the Liberal candidate in this by-election, A. S. Rennie.

Children's Hero

To the children of the town, Mr. King came as a popular hero. Because of his visit they were given a half holiday from school and many of them were in the audience. The platform was decorated with flowers and in places of honor were flag-draped pictures of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, William Lyon Mackenzie and other Liberal leaders.

Mr. Rennie was the first speaker, opening his address with a sincere tribute to T. M. Cayley, late Liberal member. He blamed the Conservatives for the fact that South Oxford had not had representation for the greater part of the present parliamentary session, declaring that the people of this riding had been ill treated in the government's delaying the election until this time, thus disenfranchising them for most of the session.

Policies Poles Apart

"The policies of Mr. King and Mr. Bennett are as far apart as the poles," the candidate declared. Liberal policies, he said, will bring a return of prosperity to the farmer, while a continuation of Conservative rule meant the addition of restrictions to trade and even worse conditions than those that exist today.

Referring to statements made in the riding by Hon. R. J. Manion, Mr. Rennie declared that the Conservative speaker was wrong when he informed the people that Canada stood fifth in trade in the world. He quoted from a report of Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, showing that it had dropped from fifth to ninth place since 1930. Conservative speakers were also misleading in statements that Canada's export trade had greatly increased, Mr. Rennie declared, giving a comparison with other countries which showed that while exports in Australia increased 35 per cent, in Sweden and Switzerland 29.1 per cent, Canada's

er Tells Police

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 11.—Police tonight abandoned their investigation of a story by Curzon, Trinity College student, that he had been kidnapped and taken to London, after the youth's father, F. C. Clarkson, told them the story was a hoax.

Police said Mr. Clarkson told them his son was suffering from overwrought nerves, induced by worry over examinations and that he believed he had invented the story after driving to London himself and realizing he must explain his absence from home.

Young Clarkson, 18, appeared about two o'clock this morning at Byron Sanatorium, eight miles northwest of London, and told authorities there he had been kidnapped. He was wet and cold. Police started to investigate his story that he had been seized as he sat in his car in Toronto.

They found the car in a gully about half a mile from the Sanatorium.

BISHOP'S WIFE WARNS AGAINST PUTTING CHILD BEFORE THE HUSBAND

Taunton, England, April (CP). — Man should be master of his home, declared Lady Florence Cecil, wife of the Bishop of Exeter, who, at a Mothers' Union Festival at Taunton, warned mothers against putting children before husbands in the nome, and added:

"I am early Victorian, and believe in the headship of the husband in the home."

Among temptations that beset women Lady Florence Cecil included temper, nagging, jealousy, untidiness, vanity, conceit and pride.

A. D. BRAITHWAITE DEAD

Montreal, April 11.—Formerly one of Canada's leading bankers, A. D. Braithwaite, 78, died here today. Mr. Braithwaite was for many years connected with the Bank of Montreal and for some years was superintendent of Ontario branches.

DECIDE ON REVIVAL OF BAND CONCERTS

Three Local Military Bands Are To Furnish The Music

Definitely deciding to inaugurate a 35-cent return fare to Port Stanley on Mondays and Fridays after the dance hall opening and during the months of May and June, the L. and P. S. Railway commission meeting yesterday agreed to commence an extensive newspaper, radio and billboard campaign to acquaint the public with the new low fare.

The suggestion that combination tickets which would include two street car tickets with the L. and P. S. tickets at 50 cents to be used during July and August was made by Commissioner D. C. McNaughton and this will be considered later.

Revive Sunday Band Concerts

Sunday evening band concerts on the hill at Port Stanley will be revived as an attraction. One concert was authorized with further concerts depending on the success attained. Bands considered for this purpose were the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Fusiliers Regiment and the First Hussars Regiment, all local military bands.

"Why not bring in an outside band? It would not cost any more," asked Commissioner McNaughton.

Must Employ Local Bands

"We must employ local bands if any," replied Mayor Wenige, chairman of the commission.

The Mayor was of the opinion that the band concerts would materially increase the revenue from the incline railway which has fallen off badly from previous years. The revenue from this source was $2,000 last year Manager Richards informed the commission.

"We can easily double that," said said the Mayor. The Mayor was authorized to draft a tentative agreement with the Shell Oil Company regarding an oil truck to be operated by the L. and P. S. Some doubt was expressed whether the bridges at Port Stanley would take as heavy a load as the proposed truck will carry.

The Mayor, Manager Richards, Commissioners Wright and McNaughton were appointed a committee to carry out plans for billboard advertising. The Mayor will conduct a series of 10 minute radio talks on Port Stanley and the L. and P. S. during April and May.

WINGHAM DANCE AND EUCHRE

Wingham, April 11.—A very successful euchre and dance was held in the council chamber on Tuesday evening, by the Hospital Auxiliary. Mrs. F. Sell was awarded the prize for the highest number of points, Mrs. Harry Brown Jr., for lone hands; for men, Harry Diamond for points, and Clayton Fryfogle for lone hands. Following the card playing refreshments were served, after which, two hours dancing was enjoyed, with Arthurs Radio orchestra furnishing the music.

Canadian Press Despatch

Montreal, April 11.—Mrs. John Scott, pioneer feminist and the "grand little old Lady of Quebec" has entered upon her 80th year and is still going strong. Just a week before her recent birthday she addressed two meetings in one day. In her up-to-date apartment she lives as indepently and capably as a modern bachelor girl. She has not forgotten the art of cooking either, for her Scotch scones and marmalade are a treat.

The name of Isabella Scott will go down in history as one of the leaders who began the women's suffrage movement in the province of Quebec. During election campaigns she was a popular speaker.

Mrs. Scott delights in recalling the tory of her Scottish father and mother and 12 brothers and sisters, of whom she was the oldest, travelling from Glasgow in 1874 and settling in Scotstown, Quebec. In this country she met a young Scotsman who strangely enough had been born within four miles of Glasgow, and eventually married him. Seven little Canadians were born to them and in those days "I had no time then for questions of suffrage," said Mrs. Scott with a twinkle in her eye as she unfolded her story to an interviewer.

"My husband was Mayor of Scotstown, chairman of the school board, ruling elder in the church, telegraph operating station agent and the keeper of a general store, and in our spare time we attended the weekly prayer neeting and the meeting of the Christian Endeavor."

Mrs. Scott and her family came to Montreal in 1905 and as time went on and her children became less dependent on her she gradually became interested in public life.

FLEISCHMANN'S SWEPT BY DISASTROUS BLAZE

Kingston, N.Y., April 11—Seven buildings in the heart of the business section of Fleischmann's, a Delaware county village 50 miles northwest of here, were burned to the ground and several other structures were damaged early today by a fire which caused an estimated loss of $150,000.

NO EXPERIMENTS in the New Ford V·8

THERE are no experiments in the New Ford V·8 for 1934. No little things blown up big to make sales. No fancy coined names. Just solid substantial value.

That is why we say you buy Proved Performance when you buy a Ford V·8. The reliability and dependability of its V·8 engine, clutch, transmission, torque-tube drive, rear axle, frame, spring suspension and every other vital part have been proved by millions of miles of use by hundreds of thousands of owners.

Keep those points in mind when you are deciding which car to buy in 1934. You're always more sure of 100% satisfaction when you buy a car that has proved its worth and withstood the test of time.

The Most Economical Ford Ever Built

THE HOUSEWIFE

By MARY HASTINGS

A STRIP OF BLUE

I DO not own an inch of land,
But all I see is mine—
The orchard and the mowing fields,
The lawns and gardens fine.
The winds, my tax-collectors are,
They bring me tithes divine—
Wild scents—and subtle essences,
A tribute rare and free;
And more magnificent than all
My window keeps for me
A glimpse of blue immensity—
A little strip of sea.

—Lucy Larcon.

LOST PLANTS

Dear Mary:— We are here and alive after all the cold weather and oh my oh my! It was 33 below one morning. Sure I lost all my house plants, but the rest of us came through fine. We didn't have so many colds this winter, and I believe it was because we had a more even temperature all winter. Our oldest boy is selling seeds from a firm in Toronto, and they are selling fast. He made over three dollars in two afternoons after school.

My family seems financially minded this spring. The next two in age have been dickering with a neighbor, and have earned quite a little between them this week. It's awfully interesting to listen to them plan what to do with their money and see how they lay it out.

Could I have a package of Hollyhocks seeds and a package of Regal Lilies seeds, please? This sounds very hogish, but I hope to be able to return the favor in the near future. My, but I do wish I could contribute to the new homesteaders. But here's hoping, we are starting on a new summer, and who knows what it will bring forth. Work for the farmer and work aplenty for us as we are going it alone this year. We have let our man go. I cannot say I'm sorry, as every penny counts. Of course we had the help in return, but we are just going to give it a trial and see how it goes.

My "column" baby, as I call our Shirley Anne, is doing famously and says thank you to the column folks for helping her to laugh at the cold weather this winter. She weighs 18 lbs. Isn't that dandy? I'm strutty!

Stirlingshire Lass you didn't have very nice weather, did you? But a mighty nice Christmas present for yourself. I hope you both are well.

Mary, you seem to have a lot of folk from Wandsworth, I am too. Let's have a picnic and go to Wimbledon Common. I remember going when I was about four, and just before we used to start for home, my two brothers and my sister who were then in their early teens used to scamper off to some spot and in a few minutes return with arms full of bluebells. I remember getting awfully angry, because they wouldn't take me, but found out later that these bluebells were cultivated by a florist who had acres and acres of them and had them all fenced in. Being an "infant" and not being versed in the ways of fences, I would have been more a hindrance than help. My oldest brother's best friend had a house in Chippendale or at least Earnie's people did, and of course the two families visited back and forth. My greatest delight was to go in primrose time. They had four husky boys, a lot older than I, but did they spoil me! They had a strawberry patch, about the size of a good sized farm kitchen, all covered with netting to keep out the birds. It seems funny to think of that, and the acres of them here.

87 Years Young, you now have a companion in your puzzle compartment. I am into one up to my eyebrows. I had no intentions of it at first, but started it out of curiosity, and now I have gone the whole way. There sure is fun and fascination in it. Suppose I could find something better to do with my time, but one has to have a certain amount of recreation of some sort. That is mine for the present.

Please excuse my collection of stationery, Mary, but seemed I was all out.

—"ZOE."

Nice to hear from you, Zoe, and such a decidedly cheerful letter is especially welcome. I have sent the seeds.

BETTER UNDERSTANDING

Dear Mary Hastings and Housewife friends:

I can not begin to tell how I enjoy the letters in the page. I know I can never write like most of them do, I always read the page and so does my husband. He will be reading away and call to me, "Say this recipe sounds good, why don't you try it"—and up he jumps and cuts it right out. He is one man who enjoys the page any way. My what a wonderful work some of the housewives are doing sending the bales and boxes up North. Also Just Reilly. I certainly think she deserves a hearty vote of thanks. How I would like to have helped but what I could spare had many places near home. Our W.I. is just now making a layette for a needy mother. My, I think it is just whose name I do not know — for clothes. Particulars on request.

Dear Mary Hastings, — Will you kindly forward enclosed letter on to Utah Trail, as she wishes me to write to her? Now the spring is here I will have some very nice shrubs to offer for exchange, as I expect to move this month some time as the place is sold. I will have three rose bushes (I gave $1.50 per root for these two years ago), two bridal wreath shrubs, and two other shrubs with a red bloom. Would exchange for anything useful. Thanking you for the past favors. Yours as ever,

Mama's Pal.

Dear Mary,—Will you please send me double sunflower seed and regal lily seed. You will find enclosed a stamped envelope. Thanking you very kindly. Kathryn.

Hope you received the seeds safely, Kathryn.

Dear Mary Hastings,—I am returning patterns, and many thanks for them. Sorry to have kept them so long; but the housewives will soon be more interested in gardening than quilt-making. Best of luck to all.

Tansy Patch.

Quite all right, Tansy Patch.

MR. AND MRS. TAYLOR MARRIED 55 YEARS

Life-Long Liberal And Wife Are Honored

Belmont, April 11—Mr. and Mrs. Angus Taylor, Talbot Road, Elgin County, former residents of South Dorchester township were banqueted at the home of their granddaughter, Mrs. Angus Cameron and Mr. Cameron, West Elgin, yesterday. Guests numbering 30 were served with a chicken dinner at 1 o'clock. Florence Shackleton and Angus Taylor were married at Mount Salem, April 9th, 1879.

Mr. Taylor is a pioneer stockman of the County and has been a lifelong Liberal in politics. Both are enjoying comparatively good health at the ages of 82 and 72 respectively. They have one son, Frank, at home, two daughters, Cora, R.N. of Hamilton; Mrs. Mary Malone of Dutton; two grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Many beautiful gifts were received by the couple from the guests in attendance, those from Belmont including, Mr. and Mrs. Archie A. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Taylor and family. During the afternoon, Rev. and Mrs. Brown of Dutton called, when photos were taken of the family gathering and of the bride and groom of fifty-five years ago.

Hungarians Wed In Lovely Double Service

Grooms Are Brothers—Leamington Church Scene Of Ceremony

A double wedding of interest to a host of friends in two countries was solemnized on Sunday in the Leamington United Church, when Miss Margaret Irene Bonyal of Leamington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Bonyal, formerly of Hungary, became the bride of John Kuli, and Miss Mary Sepejak of Harrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aleck Sepejak, also of Hungary, became the bride of Mr. Steve Bernie Kuli. John and Steve Berni Kuli are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kuli of Hungary. Rev. T. W. Hazlewood officiated at the double ceremony before the church altar.

The youthful brides were charming in the latest of Canadian bridal attire, with some added touches from the home land, and the wedding service was carried out according to Canadian custom. The official witnesses of the ceremonies were Betrik Dobsi, Gabor Petrik, Joseph Kuli and Mike Yianek, while a number of friends of the bridal parties along with their new friends of this land were present. The bridal couples, after the honeymoon, will reside in Leamington.

CHOIR AND ORCHESTRA

OVER 300 ATTEND UNITED GATHERING

Peace Is Topic On 17th Anniversary Of Vimy Ridge Battle

Kincardine, April 11. — The last of a series of inter-church young people's meetigs was held in Knox Presbyterian Church, with over three hundred present from the local Anglican, United and Presbyterian Churches and from Knox Church, Tiverton. Orville Taylor presided over the meeting, a feature of which was three excellent papers by members of the Anglican society, who with the United group provided the program.

The gathering was welcomed by Angus MacLeod of Knox Church, and Harold Peterson of the Anglican group conducted devotional exercises. Mrs. E. Rowe taking the topic spoke on the subject of peace, stressing the need for it. The topic was timely as it was the 17th anniversary of the Battle of Vimy ridge.

Requirements of a good Canadian were outlined by Miss Mabel Stringer in an interesting paper. She listed knowledge of the country, respect of the flag, energy in good causes and tolerance to others as the outstanding needs.

Floyd Weick gave a paper on hockey, dealing with the game from its earliest history up to the present and pointed out that Canada had never been bested in this sport.

Addresses were given by Rev. A. McIvor and John McFayden, Tiverton; Rev. W. H. Hartley and Rev. W. B. Craw. Other numbers included violin selections by C. V. Henry, Mrs. Henry accompanist; piano duet, Doris Ellenton, Dorothy Peterson; guitar duet, Jessie Bowers, Marjorie Leask, reading, Mrs. A. Wright; piano solos, Mrs. Ted Johnston; skit by United ycung people, games by Harold Barrager and refreshments served by the Knox group.

AYLMER CLUB

Aylmer, April 11—The regular monthly meeting of the Aylmer School and Home Club was held in the Kindergarten room at the Public School last night and was well attended. Mrs. J. D. Leeson, the president, presided. The speaker for the evening was Dr. J. B. Clark who gave a most interesting address on "The Health and Care of the Teeth During the Public School age. Community singing was also enjoyed. The president, Mrs. Leeson, will give a report of the O. E. A. held in Toronto last week, and to which she was a delegate, at the meeting next month.

Entre Nous

By M. L. S.

SOMEONE tells us in great glee that their crocuses are out. Of course we hate to be the "that's nothing" type, but our own were showing their golden heads as long ago as last Saturday. We've seen very few others however, so we feel quite smart.

In the window of quite a fashionable establishment in town the other evening, was a gorgeous green chapeau. It was just the sort Milady could wear with the very smartest of costumes. It was trimmed with wide wing spread ornament across the front. But save us. . . . closer examination, so we are told, revealed that the 'ornament' was nothing else but a real live BAT. Yes indeed!

A certain boy in town we are told beats everything for consistency. He goes around as a rule with a girl named Jean (not really of course) but 'Jean' is as good a name as any other for this purpose. If this young woman is previously engaged, he looks up his little black book and calls Jean No 2, and as we're alive it's perfectly true that his third choice also has 'Jean' for a first name. He certainly won't be caught calling one girl by another's name at any rate. The height of wisdom, we call it.

Novel Program Held At Lambeth

Lambeth, April 11.—An Old Boys' and Girls' reunion held in the form of a day at school, constituted the program of the Lambeth Y. P. S. held in the schoolroom last evening, with Henry Edgar as the schoolmaster in charge.

Opening devotional exercises were conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Smale who read the story of "Christ and the Rich Young Ruler" and gave a talk on "Seeking Life". Lessons for the morning session consisted of hygiene and spelling which were conducted by Annie Sadler in a novel manner. Recess and noon periods were occupied with games under the direction of Miss Sadler. A history period was conducted by Henry Edgar who called for recitations in ancient, mediaeval and modern history. Those responding were former presidents in the society, John Currie, Aaron Sadler, Mrs. W.L. Pack, Mrs. B. Holtby, Miss F. Mickleborough and the present president Miss Annie Swiston. Mrs. H. Thornicroft wearing a pirate costume sang "The Spanish Main" and Mrs. W. L. Pack also sang a solo. Accompanists were Miss Bessie Dunbar and Miss F. Mickleborough. A round of games and refreshments brought the evening to a close.

NEEDS OF CRIPPLED CHILDREN DISCUSSED

Seaforth, April 11—An interesting meeting of the Home and School Association was held, in connection with the Ontario Crippled Children's Week, in the Seaforth Collegiate Institute. Mrs. F. J. Bechely presided. A special feature of the evening was an address by Dr. F. J. Burrows, president of the Seaforth Lion's Club, which has been doing a splendid work among crippled children in this district. Dr. F. J. Bechely, chairman of the Lion's crippled children's activities reviewed the work done by the Seaforth club. Miss Marion Bell, of the Seaforth Collegiate Staff, also gave a delightful

"Rumpelstitzkin" Appears In Cathedral Marionette Show

Beloved Grimms Fairy Tale Dramatized By Junior Club

AT CRONYN HALL

Woman's Association Sponsors First Showing Of Latest Play

"Rumpelstitzkin," one of the best loved stories of childhood and one of the fantastic creations of Grimm, was presented for the first time yesterday afternoon by the Junior Club Marionettes before the admiring eyes of a large number of children and adults in Cronyn Hall. The "show" was given under the auspices of the Woman's Association of St. Paul's Cathedral of which Mrs. John A. Ross is president.

The story was dramatized by the Junior Club members into three fascinating acts under the direction of Miss Margaret Glass whose dramatic abilities are well-known to Londoners. Miss Kay Givins, convener of marionettes for the Junior Club, was in charge of the general arrangements for the production.

Besides the writing of the play from several versions of the old story by Miss Glass and Miss Kathleen Wilson the players, their costumes and scenery were made by the other members of the club.

Tower Room

The first act was set in the tower room where the miller's beautiful daughter had been placed by her captor to spin straw into gold. Rumpelstitzkin, the grotesque little dwarf, appeared and in return for a very ambiguous promise, assisted her, by magic, to accomplish the task which made her queen. In the second act the royal christening took place and Rumpelstitzkin appeared to demand his reward, the royal baby. However he agreed to waive the promise if the queen could discover his name. The final act was in two scenes, the first in the wood where Feste, the queen's messenger, found out Rumpelstitzkin's secret and the second, in the queen's boudoir.

The part of the king was played by Mrs. Lloyd Sipherd; the maiden and queen, Mrs. Harold Smith; Rumpelstitzkin, Miss Betty Evans; the court jester, Feste, Miss K. Givins.

Clowns Perform

Following the play Mrs. Sipherd's clowns did some clever stunts, with the assistance of Miss Evans and Miss Givins and the story, "The Fairy and the Doll" was also presented by Mrs. Sipherd and Mrs. Smith.

Miss Margaret Glass made Feste; Miss K. Givins, the queen; Miss Kitty Gillespie, the miller's daughter; Miss Kathleen Wilson, the king and Miss Ruth Wilson, "Rumpelstitzkin".

Between acts Miss Audrey Braden favored with piano numbers.

Before the "show" the Woman's Association served tea and held a sale of "white elephants" and home-cooking. Mrs. Beatrice Boucher, Mrs. Charles Hunt, Mrs. John Hunt, Mrs. Arthur Gleason, Mrs. A. R. Douglas and Miss Macbeth were in charge of the tea-room. The tea-table was centred with spring flowers in a silver bowl and lighted with variegated candles. Those pouring included Mrs. J. D. Isaacs, Mrs. John Hunt, Mrs. McCracken, Miss Macbeth and Mrs. C. A. Seager.

The treasurers at the doors were Mrs. T. H. Carling, Miss Emily Knott and Mrs. McClary Moore. The "white elephant" sale was conducted by Mrs. W. J. Brown, Mrs. A. B. Greer, Mrs. W. R. Sproule and Mrs. George Leishman was convened by Mrs. F. W. Farmbridge. The table of home-cooking combe, Mrs. Lionel Eliot and Mrs. Fitzgerald.

A STRIP OF BLUE

I DO not own an inch of land,
But all I see is mine—
The orchard and the mowing fields,
The lawns and gardens fine.
The winds, my tax-collectors are,
They bring me tithes divine—
Wild scents—and subtle essences,
A tribute rare and free;
And more magnificent than all
My window keeps for me
A glimpse of blue immensity—
A little strip of sea.

—Lucy Larcon.

LOST PLANTS

Dear Mary:— We are here and alive after all the cold weather and oh my oh my! It was 33 below one morning. Sure I lost all my house plants, but the rest of us came through fine. We didn't have so many colds this winter, and I believe it was because we had a more even temperature all winter. Our oldest boy is selling seeds from a firm in Toronto, and they are selling fast. He made over three dollars in two afternoons after school.

My family seems financially minded this spring. The next two in age have been dickering with a neighbor, and have earned quite a little between them this week. It's awfully interesting to listen to them plan what to do with their money and see how they lay it out.

Could I have a package of Hollyhocks seeds and a package of Regal Lilies seeds, please? This sounds very hogish, but I hope to be able to return the favor in the near future. My, but I do wish I could contribute to the new homesteaders. But here's hoping, we are starting on a new summer, and who knows what it will bring forth. Work for the farmer and work aplenty for us as we are going it alone this year. We have let our man go. I cannot say I'm sorry, as every penny counts. Of course we had the help in return, but we are just going to give it a trial and see how it goes.

My "column" baby, as I call our Shirley Anne, is doing famously and says thank you to the column folks for helping her to laugh at the cold weather this winter. She weighs 18 lbs. Isn't that dandy? I'm struts!y!

Stirlingshire Lass you didn't have very nice weather, did you? But a mighty nice Christmas present for yourself. I hope you both are well.

Mary, you seem to have a lot of folk from Wandsworth, I am too. Let's have a picnic and go to Wimbledon Common. I remember going when I was about four, and just before we used to start for home, my two brothers and my sister who were then in their early teens used to scamper off to some spot and in a few minutes return with arms full of bluebells. I remember getting awfully angry, because they wouldn't take me, but found out later that these bluebells were cultivated by a florist who had acres and acres of them and had them all fenced in. Being an "infant" and not being versed in the ways of fences, I would have been more a hindrance than help. My oldest brother's best friend had a house in Chippendale or at least Earnie's people did, and of course the two families visited back and forth. My greatest delight was to go in primrose time. They had four husky boys, a lot older than I, but did they spoil me! They had a strawberry patch, about the size of a good sized farm kitchen, all covered with netting to keep out the birds. It seems funny to think of that, and the acres of them here.

87 Years Young, you now have a companion in your puzzle compartment. I am into one up to my eyebrows. I had no intentions of it at first, but started it out of curiosity, and now I have gone the whole way. There sure is fun and fascination in it. Suppose I could find something better to do with my time, but one has to have a certain amount of recreation of some sort. That is mine for the present.

Please excuse my collection of stationery, Mary, but seemed I was all out.

—"ZOE."

Nice to hear from you, Zoe, and such a decidedly cheerful letter is especially welcome. I have sent the seeds.

BETTER UNDERSTANDING

Dear Mary Hastings and Housewife friends:

I can not begin to tell how I enjoy the letters in the page. I know I can never write like most of them do, I always read the page and so does my husband. He will be reading away and call to me, "Say this recipe sounds good, why don't you try it"—and up he jumps and cuts it right out. He is one man who enjoys the page any way. My what a wonderful work some of the housewives are doing sending the bales and boxes up North. Also Just Reilly. I certainly think she deserves a hearty vote of thanks. How I would like to have helped but what I could spare had many places near home. Our W.I. is just now making a layette for a needy mother. My, I think it is just wonderful how everyone tries to help each other. It seems to me that the hard times have brought a better understanding and a kindlier spirit to so many. I don't know that I have any help to offer this time. I intended to write where help on bread making was asked but see so many good letters sent in, I bake for a family of 8 so I get plenty of practice. How did everyone like the snow storm? Just now its mostly mud and water around there.

As it will soon be house cleaning and garden time, wonder could I make some exchanges? I have lots of shrubs and know where clothing is needed and everyone will soon be going through closets to houseclean I must close or Mary will say, "Never come again." I will use as a pen-name what one sister-in-law used to call me when I had taken her favorite brother away from home. We lived just across the road. She would come running in and call "Mary Sunshine." Now she is living almost across the continent from me.

Mary Sushine.

Exchanges

Shrubs of Japonica, Syringa, white and purple lilacs, also some others whose name I do not know — for clothes. Particulars on request.

Dear Mary Hastings, — Will you kindly forward enclosed letter on to Utah Trail, as she wishes me to write to her? Now the spring is here I will have some very nice shrubs to offer for exchange, as I expect to move this month some time as the place is sold. I will have three rose bushes (I gave $1.50 per root for these two years ago), two bridal wreath shrubs, and two other shrubs with a red bloom. Would exchange for anything useful. Thanking you for the past favors. Yours as ever,

Mama's Pal.

Dear Mary,—Will you please send me double sunflower seed and regal lily seed. You will find enclosed a stamped envelope. Thanking you very kindly. Kathryn.

Hope you received the seeds safely, Kathryn.

Dear Mary Hastings,—I am returning patterns, and many thanks for them. Sorry to have kept them so long; but the housewives will soon be more interested in gardening than quilt-making. Best of luck to all.

Tansy Patch.

Quite all right, Tansy Patch.

MR. AND MRS. TAYLOR MARRIED 55 YEARS

Life-Long Liberal And Wife Are Honored

Belmont, April 11—Mr. and Mrs. Angus Taylor, Talbot Road, Elgin County, former residents of South Dorchester township were banqueted at the home of their granddaughter, Mrs. Angus Cameron and Mr. Cameron, West Elgin, yesterday. Guests numbering 30 were served with a chicken dinner at 1 o'clock. Florence Shackleton and Angus Taylor were married at Mount Salem, April 9th, 1879.

Mr. Taylor is a pioneer stockman of the County and has been a lifelong Liberal in politics. Both are enjoying comparatively good health at the ages of 82 and 72 respectively. They have one son, Frank, at home, two daughters, Cora, R.N. of Hamilton; Mrs. Mary Malone of Dutton; two grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Many beautiful gifts were received by the couple from the guests in attendance, those from Belmont including, Mr. and Mrs. Archie A. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Taylor and family. During the afternoon, Rev. and Mrs. Brown of Dutton called, when photos were taken of the family gathering and of the bride and groom of Fifty-five years ago.

Hungarians Wed In Lovely Double Service

Grooms Are Brothers—Leamington Church Scene Of Ceremony

A double wedding of interest to a host of friends in two countries was solemnized on Sunday in the Leamington United Church, when Miss Margaret Irene Bonyai of Leamington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Bonyai, formerly of Hungary, became the bride of John Kuli; and Miss Mary Sepejak of Harrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aleck Sepejak, also of Hungary, became the bride of Mr. Steve Bernie Kuli. John and Steve Berni Kuli are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kuli of Hungary. Rev. T. W. Hazlewood officiated at the double ceremony before the church altar.

The youthful brides were charming in the latest of Canadian bridal attire, with some added touches from the home land, and the wedding service was carried out according to Canadian custom. The official witnesses of the ceremonies were Betrik Dobsi, Gabor Petrik, Joseph Kuli and Mike Yianek, while a number of friends of the bridal parties along with their new friends of this land were present. The bridal couples, after the honeymoon, will reside in Leamington.

CHOIR AND ORCHESTRA HEARD IN CONCERT

The choir and orchestra of Elmwood avenue Presbyterian church were heard last night and Tuesday evening in an interesting concert program given under the direction of Luther Jackson, A.T.C.M., the organist.

Miss Hazel Taylor and Clifford Hall, readers assisted and the program also included a harp solo by Leonard Allen.

Choir and orchestra numbers included King Cotton March, Sousa, Garibaldi March by Costa; two old English chorales and the Gloria from Mozart's 12th Mass Schubert's serenade and many others.

LUTHERAN L. A.

Hanover, April 11.—Mrs. Theodore Weichman very cordially greeted members of the Brant Lutheran Ladies' Aid for their April meeting. Mrs. H. Wedow presided ,with scripture and prayer conducted by Mrs. Ed. Hasse and Rev. E. Howald. Readings were presented by Mrs. F. Zimmerman and Mrs. A. Hasse. "What Would I Do If I Were a Millionaire" proved a stirring contest subject.

niversary Of Vimy Ridge Battle

Kincardine, April 11. — The last of a series of inter-church young people's meetigs was held in Knox Presbyterian Church, with over three hundred present from the local Anglican, United and Presbyterian Churches and from Knox Church, Tiverton. Orville Taylor presided over the meeting, a feature of which was three excellent papers by members of the Anglican society, who with the United group provided the program.

The gathering was welcomed by Angus MacLeod of Knox Church, and Harold Peterson of the Anglican group conducted devotional exercises. Mrs. E. Rowe taking the topic spoke on the subject of peace, stressing the need for it. The topic was timely as it was the 17th anniversary of the Battle of Vimy Ridge.

Requirements of a good Canadian were outlined by Miss Mabel Stringer in an interesting paper. She listed knowledge of the country, respect of the flag, energy in good causes and tolerance to others as the outstanding needs.

Floyd Weick gave a paper on hockey, dealing with the game from its earliest history up to the present and pointed out that Canada had never been bested in this sport.

Addresses were given by Rev. A. McIvor and John McFayden, Tiverton; Rev. W. H. Hartley and Rev. W. B. Craw. Other numbers included violin selections by C. V. Henry, Mrs. Henry accompanist; piano duet, Doris Ellenton, Dorothy Peterson; guitar duet, Jessie Bowers, Marjorie Leask, reading, Mrs. A. Wright; piano solos, Mrs. Ted Johnston; skit by United ycung people, games by Harold Barranger and refreshments served by the Knox group.

AYLMER CLUB

Aylmer, April 11—The regular monthly meeting of the Aylmer School and Home Club was held in the Kindergarten room at the Public School last night and was well attended. Mrs. J. D. Leeson, the president, presided. The speaker for the evening was Dr. J. B. Clark who gave a most interesting address on "The Health and Care of the Teeth During the Public School age. Community singing was also enjoyed. The president, Mrs. Leeson, will give a report of the O. E. A. held in Toronto last week, and to which she was a delegate, at the meeting next month.

Entre Nous

By M. L. S.

SOMEONE tells us in great glee that their crocuses are out. Of course we hate to be the "that's nothing" type, but our own were showing their golden heads as long ago as last Saturday. We've seen very few others however, so we feel quite smart.

In the window of quite a fashionable establishment in town the other evening, was a gorgeous green chapeau. It was just the sort Milady could wear with the very smartest of costumes. It was trimmed with wide wing spread ornament across the front. But save us. . . . closer examination, so we are told, revealed that the 'ornament' was nothing else but a real live BAT. Yes indeed!

A certain boy in town we are told beats everything for consistency. He goes around as a rule with a girl named Jean (not really of course) but 'Jean' is as good a name as any other for this purpose, if this young woman is previously engaged, he looks up his little black book and calls Jean No 2, and as we're alive it's perfectly true that his third choice also has 'Jean' for a first name. He certainly won't be caught calling one girl by another's name at any rate. The height of wisdom, we call it.

Branch Arranges Summer Meeting

Courtright And Moore Centre Groups To Join For May 10

Mooretown, April 11. — The April meeting of the Moore Centre Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. Johnston with an attendance of 18 members and 21 visitors. Miss Jennie Finlayson, presided assisted by Miss Tena Long, Secretary.

The Moore Centre Branch will meet with the Courtright Branch on May 10th at Courtright when the summer departmental speaker will address the meeting.

Money was advanced to the relief committee for work and chairs are eing purchased for the Township Hall, where the Institute hold occasional meetings and entertainments. The allocation of 10c per member was voted for the Federation fund.

Miss Marie Gray read a splendid paper prepared by Mrs. Ed. Curran on "Institute work in the north". Small Branches not only keep up the work in their locality but assist materially in other places by donations to Churches for relief work.

Misses Mabel Boothe and Geraldine Arnold sang several selections, accompanied with their violin music. Mrs. Garbutt told amusing stories and community singing was enjoyed. At the close of the meeting tea was served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. Green, when the election of officers will be held.

HARRIET NEWKIRK I.O.D.E.

Lambeth, April 11:—Chocolate bars and candy composed the articles of a shower held by the Harriet Newkirk Chapter I.O.D.E. last evening for the Northern School car. The event was held at the home of Miss Alice Colwell and supper was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. E. Hicks.

Patrick Bartholomew Kellenhen, eighteen months old, of New York, pictured aboard the S. S. Washington a few days ago after visiting his grandparents in Ireland. He was cared for by a stewardess.

Novel Program Held At Lambeth

Lambeth, April 11.—An Old Boys' and Girls' reunion held in the form of a day at school, constituted the program of the Lambeth Y. P. S. held in the schoolroom last evening, with Henry Edgar as the schoolmaster in charge.

Opening devotional exercises were conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Smale who read the story of "Christ and the Rich Young Ruler" and gave a talk on "Seeking Life". Lessons for the morning session consisted of hygiene and spelling which were conducted by Annie Sadler in a novel manner. Recess and noon periods were occupied with games under the direction of Miss Sadler. A history period was conducted by Henry Edgar who called for recitations in ancient, mediaeval and modern history. Those responding were former presidents in the society, John Currie, Aaron Sadler, Mrs. W.L. Pack, Mrs. B. Holtby, Miss F. Mickleborough and the present president Miss Annie Swiston. Mrs. H. Thornicroft wearing a pirate costume sang "The Spanish Main" and Mrs. W. L. Pack also sang a solo. Accompanists were Miss Bessie Dunbar and Miss F. Mickleborough. A round of games and refreshments brought the evening to a close.

NEEDS OF CRIPPLED CHILDREN DISCUSSED

Seaforth, April 11—An interesting meeting of the Home and School Association was held, in connection with the Ontario Crippled Children's Week, in the Seaforth Collegiate Institute. Mrs. F. J. Bechely presided. A special feature of the evening was an address by Dr. F. J. Burrows, president of the Seaforth Lion's Club, which has been doing a splendid work among crippled children in this district. Dr. F. J. Bechely, chairman of the Lion's crippled children's activities reviewed the work done by the Seaforth club. Miss Marion Bell, of the Seaforth Collegiate Staff, also gave a delightful talk on the Cathedrals of England and Miss Roy Anderson favored with a piano solo.

LIBERAL RALLIES WIND UP CAMPAIGN

Overflowing Meetings Of S. Oxford Electors Hear Lapointe and King

Go To Polls Today To Elect Member Of House Of Commons

GOVERNMENT RECORD IS ISSUE, LIBERALS STRESS

All Signs Point To Imminent General Election, Mr. King Declares

Two great Liberal rallies, featured by overflow meetings when the largest halls in the riding failed to accommodate those who wanted to hear the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, and the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former minister of justice, closed the South Oxford federal by-election campaign on Saturday night. Mr. King spoke at Ingersoll and Mr. Lapointe and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., at Tillsonburg, scene of the main meetings. Another meeting was also held at Norwich.

Today the electors of South Oxford will elect either Alon Secord Rennie, Tillsonburg, Liberal, or the Hon. Donald Sutherland, Conservative, to fill the unexpired term of the late Thomas Cayley, Liberal M.P., who died in May, 1933. When the present parliament is dissolved, either this year or in 1935, South Oxford as a constituency will disappear and be merged with North Oxford.

King's Presence Big Feature

The visits of Mr. King on Wednesday and Saturday were the outstanding features of the campaign. At Norwich and Tillsonburg on Wednesday, many hundreds more than could be accommodated sought to hear the Liberal leader. The same was true Saturday night at Ingersoll. Long before eight o'clock, the hour set for meeting, the town hall and its entrance-ways were crowded. Mr. King was scheduled to speak at nine o'clock, the hour the radio broadcast started, but was delayed a few minutes when he spoke briefly to three overflow meetings in advance of the big one. These meetings were held in the council chamber, the Liberal committee rooms and the market building. Altogether well over a thousand people were in Ingersoll to hear Mr. King. Loud-speakers were installed at the overflow meetings to carry Mr. King's main address to them.

Long a Liberal Riding

The Conservatives had no meetings on Saturday night, their last big gun being fired on Friday at Ingersoll when the Hon. Harry Stevens spoke.

In the 1930 election Mr. Cayley won by 55 votes, the figures being, Cayley, 5,711, Hon. Donald Sutherland, 5,656.

From 1867 until 1911 South Oxford was Liberal. In the reciprocity campaign Mr. Sutherland won it and retained it until 1926, when Mr. Cayley defeated him by 700.

Guelph, Ont., April 14—Liberal policy on the liquor question will be definitely issued within the course of next week or so, Mitchell F. Hepburn, Provincial Liberal leader, declared in the course of an address at a Liberal meeting here which named D. Paul Munro, K.C., M.L.A., Liberal candidate in South Wellington in the next provincial election.

"If the Conservatives' beer bill is good why don't they put in force?" Mr. Hepburn demanded. "But, no, they dangle it before your eyes and say that if you vote for them like good boys and girls, you'll get it," he stated.

The meeting, held this afternoon, was largely attended and was marked by great enthusiasm. Hon. H. C. Nixon, Dr. L. J. Simpson, M.L.A., and Mr. Munro, expounded the Liberal cause along with Mr. Hepburn.

Alleges Whitewashing

Mr. Hepburn reviewed some of the various investigations made into alleged irregularities which concerned public utilities, and pointed out that there was too much "Whitewashing." He referred to the liquor question and said it had been claimed that there was a "toll gate" system in effect whereby British distillers have to have a friend in the Ontario Conservative party to get their goods purchased. "That needs investigation, too," he declared. "The present administration is reeking of graft and corporation and mal-administration, charged Mr. Hepurn.

"The Ontario debt has gone up steadily during the present administration," he said, and he predicted that if the present rate was continued the debt at the end of 1934 would likely be $650,000,000. "The people of Ontario are ready for a change and will get

Washington, April 15.—President Roosevelt asked House Democratic leaders tonight to clear their program for the earliest possible adjournment date and informed them he would submit this week a general relief bill calling for about $1,500,000,000.

Speaker Henry Rainey and Representative Joseph Byrns of Tennessee, the floor leader, assured Mr. Roosevelt at the three-hour White House conference that the House would be ready to quit by the middle of May.

Silver?

Rainey indicated the President was inclined to favor some kind of silver action, but there was no sign that any legislation of this kind was agreed upon tonight.

"We discussed all policies and general legislative plans," the Speaker told reporters, "and did nothing in the way of decisions."

The $1,500,000,000 relief measure comes within the budget as submitted by the President at the opening of the session. At least $500,000,000 of this fund is to be earmarked for public works to stimulate employment. The Reconstruction Corporation will get another piece.

McLeod Bill Not Discussed

It was said the MyLeod bill, providing for payments to depositors in closed banks was not discussed. The party leaders were uncertain what would happen in a vote of this measure.

Taking hold of the reins of the legislative branch—which had been kicking over the traces—the President emphasized in another series of White House conferences that the stock market regulation bill, reciprocal tariff bill, the municipal bankruptcy

Two Brothers Die In Death Compact

Suicide Of Notorious Speculator Quickly Followed By That Of Brother

Paris, April 15 — The sensational courtroom suicide of Henri Rochette, notorious French speculator, was matched today with news that his brother, Gaston, had also killed himself, apparently in compliance with a fraternal death compact.

Henri's death yesterday ended one of the most famous financial scandals in the country's history. His activities before the war caused as much furore as the Stavisky case this year. He ended his life with a razor as judges sentenced him to three years in prison for fraud.

The body of his brother was found with a bullet in his temple at Lieusaint, near Paris, on Friday. It was some time before identification was established.

OPENING MARKETS LIBERALS' POLICY RENNIE ASSERTS

Candidate Points To Record Of Two Parties In Fostering Trade

'BLASTING' FAILS

A. S. Rennie Makes Telling Speech To Electors Of South Oxford

Special to The Advertiser

Tillsonburg, April 14—The Liberals are not opposed to the British preference—they are opposed to shadow preferences, fake preferences which give nothing and get nothing and give more promise of losing than gaining markets, said A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election, at the rally here Saturday night at which Hon. Ernest Lapointe and Mitchell F. Hepburn were the chief speakers.

Open Markets

"Once in office, Liberals will open markets, not close them, expand British trade, not restrict it. Opening markets is the natural function of Liberalism, closing them is the natural task of Toryism," said Mr. Rennie.

The text of Mr. Rennie's address follows:

"Rt. Hon. R. B Bennett in his radio talk to South Oxford electors challenged the Liberals to say where they propose to get wider markets. Here are his exact words: 'The Liberals talk of wider markets. Where are they going to get them?'

"Every Tory since the dawn of time has made that argument. How could a Conservative see a market! The Tories promised a market in 1878. Our exports in that year totalled $79,100,000. In 1896, eighteen years later, the total was $116,300,000 an increase of only $37,200,000 in 18 years.

Long On Promises

"Then the Liberals came in and remained in office 15 years with an increase of $174,000,000 in that time—six times the yearly increase of the previous Tory Government. In 1911 the Tories came back. This time they promised to give us a favorable balance of trade. In 1910 we had an unfavorable balance of $71,300,000 and in 1913 the unfavorable balance was $294,000,000.

"These boys, are long on promises and short in performance. Today the story is going around that the Government is going to give an order to the shoe factory in Tillsonburg for shoes to the amount of $22,000—shoes probably for the poor cabinet ministers" What do the Tories think of the people of Tillsonburg? Judas sold out for 30 pieces of silver—we are asked to trade our birthright as British citizens and free men for an opportunity to make a pair of shoes. Why?

"Making a pair of shoes or making anything else in Canada since the

An officer and three enlisted men were placed on duty in each of the 11 counties — Stephens, Garfield, Blaine, Cotton, Bryan, Choctaw, Washington, McCurtain, Craig, Beaver and Major.

Sweeping Reductions In Pay and Living Cost Decreed By Mussolini

Rent, Clothing, Food And Services Slashed In General "Deflation"

GOVERNMENT SALARIES CORRESPONDINGLY CUT

Stimulation Of Export Trade And Of Tourist Traffic Among Aims

Associated Press Cable

Rome, April 15—Every salary in Italy and every article of food, clothing, rent, meat, light and transportation was on the block today to the tune of a six to 20 percent cut in order to make the kingdom able to compete in world markets with countries having lower, manufacturing costs.

The Council of Ministers, over whom Premier Benito Mussolini himself presided, yesterday decreed the sweeping, all-inclusive action as a battle of a "deflationary" country against "inflationary" nations.

So broad was the offensive that the tax on bachelors, for whom officials have no love, was doubled, and certain importations, too, came under close scrutiny.

Lower Price Level

It also is a part of Il Duce's desire to bring Italy down to a lower price level in conformity with world prices so that—for example—wheat will not cost nearly three times as much here as automobiles three or four times more, and so on.

The move left no stone unturned. Salaries of government employees were slashed six to 12 percent; the ministers decided to take a 20 percent reduction in their own salaries; the decision was reached that imports of oil-less seeds, copper, wool, and coffee would be regulated.

To make the tax cut both ways, all living costs, such as those of food, transportation, and utilities, were proportionately decreased. Rentals were cut 12 and 15 percent.

A similar nation-wide deflation was ordered in October, 1930.

Three Motives

The government has been considering drastic deflation for some months, especially since it became evident that Italy's foreign trade—because of the high cost of production—was suffering to an alarming extent.

The cabinet ministers said they had three motives in the general reductions:

1—To better exports.

2—To reduce currency in circulation.

3—To induce foreign tourists to come to Italy.

...The important Giornale d'Italia said yesterday's provision was a move in the direction of balancing the budget since it will save the government about 1,000,000,000 lire.

Taxes also will fall. The cabinet ordered officials in provinces and municipalities to reduce taxes to equal the saving made possible in the reduction of employees' wages.

Part Of Program Of World Missionary Conference In Progress Here

The triumphs and difficulties of the wide-flung missionary endeavour of the United Church of Canada both at home and abroad were brought to the congregations of city churches yesterday as 26 distinguished leaders in missionary work dwelt on this important phase of church work in their sermons. These men are in the city attending the world missionary conference and exhibit which opened Saturday in Metropolitan Church and which will continue until Tuesday evening in a concentrated effort to awaken a deep interest in missionary work in this district and to acquaint the church members with the great work that is being accomplished.

Messages From Many Lands

Brief messages from nationals and others from many lands were given at the International Missionary Mass meeting yesterday afternoon in Metropolitan United Church before a large congregation of United Church members.

Several speakers were in costume representing Korea, Japan and the Polish people who have come to live in Canada. Rev. K. J. Beaton, associate secretary of the Home Mission Board, was chairman for the first half of the program. One of the speakers, Andrew Jamieson, an Indian, graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and who is at the reserve at Muncey, told of the 13 residential schools in Canada and deplored the fact that so many of the finest and best Indians were engaged in work elsewhere than on their own reserve. He also said that many of them migrated to the United States.

FAILS TO POINT TO GIRL'S GRAVE

Ginrovich Leads Kitchener Police To Vicinity But Not Exact Spot

CHIEF SUSPICIOUS

Special to the Advertiser

Kitchener, April 15.—Jacob Ginrovich, Hamilton asylum inmate, last night led police to the vicinity of the sand hill where the skeleton of a young woman was unearthed recently, as he had promised, but pointed out a spot far removed from that where the body was found as the place where he said he had buried his poison victim.

Somewhat grandiosely he turned and said, "Now, gentlemen, I'm supposed to be insane. I've been insane for five years, and this is to show you that I am insane."

Change of View

From this statement police believe that Ginrovich may now have a better understanding of the situation and may now wish to appear as insane where formerly he is said to have insisted that he was mentally normal.

Commenting on the unexpected turn of events Police Chief Hodgson said, although his visit to Kitchener may not have turned out as he expected, "we are still convinced that he is responsible for the death of the woman whose skeleton was found. We believe that he is taking advantage of the fact that the police cannot locate his letter of 1930 in which he confessed to killing the girl and that now he has been brought to Kitchener, he may realize the seriousness of the situation."

Accompanied by Jurors

Granting a request expressed by Ginrovich, while he was being brought here from Hamliton Saturday, police had eight men, a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest, accompany Ginrovich to the burial ground. Had the visit turned out as police expected it would, the eight men would have served as jurymen at an inquest into the death of the girl.

Photographs of women missing from Winnipeg and vicinity are expected from Winnipeg and Ginrovich will be shown them when they arrive. He was brought here yesterday afternoon, made his visit to the sand hill last night and was returned to the asylum this afternoon.

PROVINCIAL COUNCIL TO HANDLE DISCIPLINE

Membership Must Be Obtained Through Political Groups Only

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—The Ontario branch of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation was reorganized and launched on a new career after a stormy 15-hour conference here. The new constitution places discipline in the hands of the provincial council and provides that membership must be obtained through political groups whose members are willing to adhere strictly to the party's program.

While verbal battles occupied the hall, the corridors outside saw physical combat. Controller James Simpson of Toronto was knocked to the floor and pummelled when he reportedly interceded as a "peacemaker" in a group argument. He re-entered the meeting room as if nothing had happened. He was not seriously hurt.

Labor Conference "Excluded"

The labor conference leftist group declared it considered itself "excluded" under the new constitution, following the lengthy conference. Proposals of this group met defeat as the new constitution was approved clause by clause.

E. J. Garland, United Farmers of Alberta member in the House of Commons for Bow River, appealed to those who did not approve of the new constitution to withdraw from the convention. It was the only honorable thing to do, Mr. Garland said. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member in the House of Commons for Winnipeg North Centre and national president of the C.C.F., supported Mr. Garland as the delegates broke into applause.

Songs Booed Down

The leftist group then broke into song. They sang the "Red Flag" and the "Internationale." Finally they were drowned by boos.

Alderman John Mitchell of Hamilton was elected president of the new On-

Silver?

Rainey indicated the President was inclined to favor some kind of silver action, but there was no sign that any legislation of this kind was agreed upon tonight.

"We discussed all policies and general legislative plans," the Speaker told reporters, "and did nothing in the way of decisions."

The $1,500,000,000 relief measure comes within the budget as submitted by the President at the opening of the session. At least $500,000,000 of this fund is to be earmarked for public works to stimulate employment. The Reconstruction Corporation will get another piece.

McLeod Bill Not Discussed

It was said the MvLeod bill, providing for payments to depositors in closed banks was not discussed. The party leaders were uncertain what would happen in a vote of this measure.

Taking hold of the reins of the legislative branch—which had been kicking over the traces—the President emphasized in another series of White House conferences that the stock market regulation bill, reciprocal tariff bill, the municipal bankruptcy

NO IRISH ELECTIONS BEFORE SENATE GOES

Dublin, Irish Free State, April 15—Hope of opposition politicians that the government might call a general election over its bill to abolish the senate, were dampened today when President Eamon De Valera, speaking at Clonmel, Tipperary, told an audience that the administration would remain in power for its full term.

Raid on Mysterious French Villa Reveals Trotzky Living in Dread Of Vengeance of White Russians

Canadian Press Cable

Barbizon, France, April 15.—Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian leader and "man without a country," was found today in a police raid on a mysterious villa here, living in utmost secrecy and fearing vengeance of White Russians.

Seated at his desk with two revolvers in front of him, the former power behind the formation of the Soviet state confronted the police who burst into his room.

"I am Monsieur Sodroff," he declared.

The magistrate conducting the search looked into the lined and careworn features of the famous exile, recognized the well-known goatee, and said: "You are Trotzky."

Whereupon Trotzky replied: "Yes, it is I."

Police made the raid when the mayor and citizens of Barbizon became thoroughly mystified by the curious goings-on at the Villa Kermontique, in a secluded spot near this quiet town. Belief that it might be linked with the Stavisky riots, or a secret arming place, led the authorities to watch the house for two days before entering it.

Trotzky told them that he was authorized by the Minister of the Interior to enter France and live at Barbizon with his wife, since threats of assassination and fear of vengeance from White Russians had kept him wandering from place to place since he left Russia, after his clash with Stalin.

OPENING MARKETS LIBERALS' POLICY RENNIE ASSERTS

Candidate Points To Record Of Two Parties In Fostering Trade

'BLASTING' FAILS

A. S. Rennie Makes Telling Speech To Electors Of South Oxford

Special to The Advertiser

Tillsonburg, April 14—The Liberals are not opposed to the British preference—they are opposed to shadow preferences, fake preferences which give nothing and get nothing and give more promise of losing than gaining markets, said A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election, at the rally here Saturday night at which Hon. Ernest Lapointe and Mitchell F. Hepburn were the chief speakers.

Open Markets

"Once in office, Liberals will open markets, not close them, expand British trade, not restrict it. Opening markets is the natural function of Liberalism, closing them is the natural task of Toryism," said Mr. Rennie.

The text of Mr. Rennie's address follows:

"Rt. Hon. R. B Bennett in his radio talk to South Oxford electors challenged the Liberals to say where they propose to get wider markets. Here are his exact words: 'The Liberals talk of wider markets. Where are they going to get them?'

"Every Tory since the dawn of time has made that argument. How could a Conservative see a market. The Tories promised a market in 1878. Our exports in that year totalled $79,100,000. In 1896, eighteen years later, the total was $116,300,000 an increase of only $37,200,000 in 18 years.

Long On Promises

"Then the Liberals came in and remained in office 15 years with an increase of $174,000,000 in that time—six times the yearly increase of the previous Tory Government. In 1911 the Tories came back. This time they promised to give us a favorable balance of trade. In 1910 we had an unfavorable balance of $71,500,000 and in 1911 the unfavorable balance was $204,000,000.

"These boys, are long on promises and short in performance. Today the story is going around that the Government is going to give an order to the shoe factory in Tillsonburg for shoes to the amount of $22,000—shoes probably for the poor cabinet ministers" What do the Tories think of the people of Tillsonburg? Judas sold out for 30 pieces of silver—we are asked to trade our birthright as British citizens and free men for an opportunity to make a pair of shoes. Why?

"Making a pair of shoes or making anything else in Canada since the

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray Orders Oklahoma Guardsmen To Arrest Officials If Necessary

Associated Press Despatch

Oklahoma City, April 14 — National Guardsmen were ordered on duty by Gov. W. H. Murray today in 11 counties to prevent the sale of property for delinquent taxes, advertised for Monday.

The guardsmen were directed to arrest and confine "as a military prisoner" the county treasurer or any officer who interferes, or any person of any pretended authority who interferes with this order, stopping the sale as aforesaid."

An officer and three enlisted men were placed on duty in each of the 11 counties — Stephens, Garfield, Blaine, Cotton, Bryan, Choctaw, Washington, McCurtain, Craig, Beaver and Major.

Three Candidates To Speak Friday

Liberal Provincial Nominees For London And Middlesex At Hyman Hall Rally

With the three provincial candidates in London and Middlesex scheduled to speak, Friday night will be "Liberal-Progressive night" at Hyman Hall here. It will be the occasion of a big Liberal and Progressive rally to which the general public is invited. In addition to the three candidates, Hon. Peter Heenan, former minister of labor, will also address the gathering.

The three candidates are Dr. Archie S. Duncan for London; J. W. Freeborn, Ex-M.L.A., Progressive-Liberal candidate for North Middlesex, and Charles Macfie, Liberal-Progressive candidate for South Middlesex.

Sweeping Reductions In Pay and Living Cost Decreed By Mussolini

Rent, Clothing, Food And Services Slashed In General "Deflation"

GOVERNMENT SALARIES CORRESPONDINGLY CUT

Stimulation Of Export Trade And Of Tourist Traffic Among Aims

Associated Press Cable

Rome, April 15—Every salary in Italy and every article of food, clothing, rent, meat, light and transportation was on the block today to the tune of a six to 20 percent cut in order to make the kingdom able to compete in world markets with countries having lower manufacturing costs.

The Council of Ministers, over whom Premier Benito Mussolini himself presided, yesterday decreed the sweeping, all-inclusive action as a battle of a "deflationary" country against "inflationary" nations.

So broad was the offensive that the tax on bachelors, for whom officials have no love, was doubled, and certain importations, too, came under close scrutiny.

Lower Price Level

It also is a part of Il Duce's desire to bring Italy down to a lower price level in conformity with world prices so that—for example—wheat will not cost nearly three times as much here automobiles three or four times more, and so on.

The move left no stone unturned. Salaries of government employees were slashed six to 12 percent; the ministers decided to take a 20 percent reduction in their own salaries; the decision was reached that imports of oil-less seeds, copper, wool, and coffee would be regulated.

To make the tax cut both ways, all living costs, such as those of food, transportation, and utilities, were proportionately decreased. Rentals were cut 12 and 15 percent.

A similar nation-wide deflation was ordered in October, 1930.

Three Motives

The government has been considering drastic deflation for some months, especially since it became evident that Italy's foreign trade because of the high cost of production—was suffering to an alarming extent.

The cabinet ministers said they had three motives in the general reductions:

1—To better exports.

2—To reduce currency in circulation.

3—To induce foreign tourists to come to Italy.

The important Giornale d'Italia said yesterday's provision was a move in the direction of balancing the budget since it will save the government about 1,000,000,000 lire.

Taxes also will fall. The cabinet ordered officials in provinces and municipalities to reduce taxes to equal the saving made possible in the reduction of employees' wages.

Champion Brazil Bigamist Dead

Bello Horizonie, Brazil, April 15.—Mario Muller, Brazil's "champion bigamist," accused of having married some 50 times, died under an assumed name in a charity hospital four days after he had escaped from prison, where he was serving a sentence for bigamy. Injuries received in the jailbreak caused his death. Muller was accused of having contracted bigamous marriages in nearly all of Brazil's 21 states.

Part Of Program Of World Missionary Conference In Progress Here

The triumphs and difficulties of the wide-flung missionary endeavour of the United Church of Canada both at home and abroad were brought to the congregations of city churches yesterday as 26 distinguished leaders in missionary work dwelt on this important phase of church work in their sermons. These men are in the city attending the world missionary conference and exhibit which opened Saturday in Metropolitan Church and which will continue until Tuesday evening in a concentrated effort to awaken a deep interest in missionary work in this district and to acquaint the church members with the great work that is being accomplished.

Messages From Many Lands

Brief messages from nationals and others from many lands were given at the International Missionary Mass meeting yesterday afternoon in Metropolitan United Church before a large congregation of United Church members.

Several speakers were in costume representing Korea, Japan and the Polish people who have come to live in Canada. Rev. K. J. Beaton, associate secretary of the Home Mission Board, was chairman for the first half of the program. One of the speakers, Andrew Jamieson, an Indian, graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and who is at the reserve at Muncey, told of the 13 residential schools in Canada and deplored the fact that so many of the finest and best Indians were engaged in work elsewhere than on their own reserve. He also said that many of them migrated to the United States.

GERMANY ISSUES TRADE WARNING

Will Buy Imports Only From Countries taking Her Export Goods

Associated Press Cable

Hamburg, Germany, April 15.—The unequivocal warning that Germany will henceforth as far as possible buy imports only from countries to which she can export goods was before the world today.

Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, in a speech last night declared: "We must plan our importations of commodities hereafter more carefully," adding that Germany had abandoned the policy of economic self-sufficiency.

"The monetary policy of closing trade doors by many countries simply forces us by careful planning to switch our necessary imports over to such countries as are ready to accept similar values from Germany.

He expressed the opinion that such a policy could be carried out successfull only if Germany's foreign trade policy is conducted in a unified way. In other words, he hinted, by a foreign trade monopoly.

FAILS TO POINT TO GIRL'S GRAVE

Ginrovich Leads Kitchener Police To Vicinity But Not Exact Spot

CHIEF SUSPICIOUS

Special to the Advertiser

Kitchener, April 15.—Jacob Ginrovich, Hamilton asylum inmate, last night led police to the vicinity of the sand hill where the skeleton of a young woman was unearthed recently, as he had promised, but pointed out a spot far removed from that where the body was found as the place where he said he had buried his poison victim.

Somewhat grandioselv he turned and said, "Now, gentlemen, I'm supposed to be insane. I've been insane for five years, and this is to show you that I am insane."

Change of View

From this statement police believe that Ginrovich may now have a better understanding of the situation and may now wish to appear as insane where formerly he is said to have insisted that he was mentally normal.

Commenting on the unexpected turn of events Police Chief Hodgson said, although his visit to Kitchener may not have turned out as he expected, "we are still convinced that he is responsible for the death of the woman whose skeleton was found. We believe that he is taking advantage of the fact that the police cannot locate his letter of 1930 in which he confessed to killing the girl and that now he has been brought to Kitchener, he may realize the seriousness of the situation."

Accompanied by Jurors

Granting a request expressed by Ginrovich, while he was being brought here from Hamilton Saturday, police had eight men, a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest, accompany Ginrovich to the burial ground. Had the visit turned out as police expected it would, the eight men would have served as jurymen at an inquest into the death of the girl.

Photographs of women missing from Winnipeg and vicinity are expected from Winnipeg and Ginrovich will be shown them when they arrive. He was brought here yesterday afternoon, made his visit to the sand hill last night and was returned to the asylum this afternoon.

SIX DIE AS TRUCK AND BUS COLLIDE

15 Others Injured Near Elyria, Ohio—Bus Was Passing Parked Truck

Elyria, O., April 15—Six persons were injured fatally, a seventh critically hurt, and 14 others received less serious injuries when a Chicago-bound passenger bus and an east-bound truck crashed head-on early today near here.

The bus was en route from Pittsburgh to Chicago. Sheriff Clarence Dick of Lorain County said preliminary examination indicated that the driver of the bus, William Daniels, 32, of Pittsburgh, had turned out to pass a truck parked on the right side of the road when the crash occurred.

At the same moment another truck cruised into view, and Daniels was unable to retreat to his own lane in time to avoid the collision.

Karl Dane Dead By His Own Hand

Hollywood, April 15.—The body of Karl Dane, one of the silent screen's outstanding comedians, who found refuge from bitter disappointment in suicide, lay in the county morgue today, unclaimed.

The actor, who skyrocketed to fame in "The Big Parade," and later was starred, shot himself to death in a modest apartment last night. He was penniless at his death, and had been living off the bounty of friends although his salary at one time was reported to have been $1,500 weekly.

The coroner, announcing no inquest would be held, said the body would be released to a private undertaker as soon as anyone came forward to claim it.

CONSTITUTION OUSTS "LEFT" LABOR GROUP

James Simpson Felled And Pummelled In Fistic Encounter Outside Convention Hall

PROVINCIAL COUNCIL TO HANDLE DISCIPLINE

Membership Must Be Obtained Through Political Groups Only

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—The Ontario branch of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation was reorganized and launched on a new career after a stormy 15-hour conference here. The new constitution places discipline in the hands of the provincial council and provides that membership must be obtained through political groups whose members are willing to adhere strictly to the party's program.

While verbal battles occupied the hall, the corridors outside saw physical combat. Controller James Simpson of Toronto was knocked to the floor and pummelled when he reportedly interceded as a "peacemaker" in a group argument. He re-entered the meeting room as if nothing had happened. He was not seriously hurt.

Labor Conference "Excluded"

The labor conference leftist group declared it considered itself "excluded" under the new constitution, following the lengthy conference. Proposals of this group met defeat as the new constitution was approved clause by clause.

E. J. Garland, United Farmers of Alberta member in the House of Commons for Bow River, appealed to those who did not approve of the new constitution to withdraw from the convention. It was the only honorable thing to do, Mr. Garland said. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member in the House of Commons for Winnipeg North Centre and national president of the C.C.F., supported Mr. Garland as the delegates broke into applause.

Songs Booed Down

The leftist group then broke into song. They sang the "Red Flag" and the "Internationale." Finally they were drowned by boos.

Alderman John Mitchell of Hamilton was elected president of the new On-

DOLLFUSS TARGET FOR ROTTEN EGGS

Splash Uniforms Of Paraders But Miss Little Chancellor Himself

Associated Press Cable

Graz, Austria, April 15.—Rotten eggs were hurled at Chancellor Dollfuss and a harmless bomb exploded within 300 feet of him when he appeared here today to address a mass meeting.

The bomb was a smoke and noise variety, containing no dangerous explosives.

Spoiled eggs splashed the clothes and uniforms of Dollfuss paraders but missed the little Chancellor himself.

Paint Highway Red

Socialists had painted the whole highway red from the airport where Dollfuss landed to the city limits of Graz. Pavements were splashed with such slogans as "Down with Fascism!" and "Down with Dollfuss!"

The mass meeting proper was quiet but attempts to broadcast the Chancellor's speech were mysteriously sabotaged and only portions of it reached listeners.

French Government Employees, Begin Two Days of Nation-Wide Strikes and Protests Over Cuts

Associated Press Cable

Paris, April 15—Tens of thousands of government employees, parading under red flags throughout the provinces, today began two days of nation-wide strikes and demonstrations against pay cuts.

The chant of the Internationale was heard in more than 100 cities and towns as the marchers flaunted banners inscribed with "down with the government," "down with the decree law," and "down with ruinous deflation."

But the Red Sunday passed under a warm spring sun without bloodshed.

General Strike Threats

Veiled threats of general strikes were contained in resolutions adopted at mass meetings, to which paraders carried written protestations against the government.

It was the day of provincial functionaries. Those in Paris are awaiting "National Protest Day," Monday, when public service employees plan to demonstrate at their places of work during the hour of the strike.

Manifestations of discontent are expected to be widespread, despite the government's quick punishment of leaders of a Communist strike Friday.

Employees Dismissed

Twenty-nine employees, including two women, were dismissed from the Central Telegraphic Bureau of Paris, where daily demonstrations caused an uproar last week.

The threat to the government of Premier Gaston Doumergue was caused by a cut of 10 percent on all government salaries and the dismissal of 80,000 of the 800,000 functionaries.

Doumergue took the step under decree powers granted him by parliament, contending it was necessary to save the franc from devaluation and to balance the budget.

18TH BATTALION VETERANS MEET

Canon C. E. Jeakins Chosen As Chaplain By Comrades At Reunion

LARGE GATHERING

Major Canon C. E. Jeakins was chosen chaplain of the 18th Battalion at the reunion in the armories here on Saturday night. Nineteen years ago yesterday the battalion left for France.

It was a large and enthusiastic gathering of old comrades which voted unanimously for their new chaplain. Representatives were present from Toronto, Galt, Guelph, Kitchener, Chatham, Windsor, Stratford, Strathroy, Wingham, Harriston, St. Thomas and Mitchell.

The program opened with a two minute silence in tribute to the comrades who had died. A toast was recited by Sergt.-Major M. Lee.

President S. Gunn welcomed the visitors among whom were Col. L. E. Jones, Col. H. Milligan, and Major G. Ingram.

Col. Jones commented favorably upon the battalion organization and hoped for a closer relationship between the various units of it.

Cheer Col. Wigle

Fred Young said that "an overzealous" writer had reported that the 18th battalion had "turned against" Col. Wigle. He read a letter from Col. Wigle in which the Colonel explained that certain unreasonable demands had been made upon him but that local organizations in Windsor had supported him. Three cheers were given for Col. Wigle.

E. Shuttleworth introduced the speaker of the evening, Major Canon C. E. Jeakins. Canon Jeakins said that the same characteristics which were called forth to make a man a good soldier were needed now to make him a good peacetime citizen. He recalled some of the impressions he retained of the front lines, and remarked upon the vast patience exhibited by the fighting men. He pointed out that this quality was needed now.

"There is a good day before us, but it will not come without hard work on the part of everyone," said Canon Jeakins. Faith in a great cause was present at the front, and it was needed here now.

Col. Milligan congratulated the battalion and credited Col. Wigle with much of its fine background. Major Ingram expressed pleasure at the expansion of the organization. Major D. Ripman, D.S.O., brought greetings and invited the London membership to future meetings in Chatham.

Officers of the London branch are: President, S. Gunn; vice-president, W. Grey; sec-treas., P. L. Reed; executive committee, M. Noble, C. Halsal, J. Herring, G. Leach, B. Tuxford; sick committee, G. Leach, J. Matthews; and auditors, E. Shuttleworth and R. L. Stephenson.

ADVISES ENDING MONTHLY LEASES

Committee Recommends Daily Rent System—Leave Some Open As Fire Precaution

A recommendation for the elimination of monthly rentals for stalls and spaces on the London market is to be made to City Council by a special committee. Where rentable stalls are not leased for yearly terms, the committee recommends that 25 cents a day be charged for stalls for which the annual rental is $15 and less and 50 cents a day for stalls for which the annual rental is more than $15. Stalls in the truckers' row will be $2 a day where they are not rented by the year.

Following charges of discrimination in that vendors were allowed the free use of unrented stalls, City Council appointed a special committee consisting of Ald. J. A. Johnston, chairman, Ald. John McLeod and Ald. Allen Towe. This committee met Friday. Also present were Market Clerk Rose, City Treasurer Bell, City Engineer Veitch, Deputy Treasurer Saunders and City Clerk Crawford.

The committee's report will not be ready for Monday's council meeting. It has however already reached certain decisions including the elimination of monthly rentals.

The committee is also recommending that no one be allowed to use any rentable stall unless the rent for the day has been paid.

Want Map Prepared

City Engineer Veitch and Market Clerk Rose have been instructed to work out a plan whereby a map of the market, showing the spaces available for daily rental can be posted on the market. They will also draft a receipt form for the daily rentals.

The committee is also recommending that stalls 1 to 9 in D section and stalls 1 to 14 in F section be left unoccupied at all times. These are on the north side of the market square, immediately east of Talbot street. The fire chief has complained that in the event of a fire in the buildings fronting the market he would have

MORBID MOB DISRUPTS FUNERAL OF LITTLE GIRL

Chicago, April 13—Through a screaming, clawing mob of 10,000 curiosity seekers, the body of 2½ year-old Dorette Zietlow, victim of a 12 year-old abductor, was carried from a flower filled chapel today, placed in a white hearse and driven away to be buried in Concordia Cemetery.

The simple last rites were disrupted by the frenzied mobs of morbid spectators.

When word was sent out that no more would be admitted to view the body, the line which extended eight abreast in orderly fashion for two blocks stormed the chapel.

The mob, mostly women and children, defied the efforts of police to maintain order. An additional 25 policemen finally cleared a path from the chapel to the hearse and Boy Scout pallbearers carried out their tiny burden.

Climbed to Roofs

While the services were in progress hundreds of persons climbed to the roof of the chapel. Thousands mounted nearby housetops and automobiles.

Legionaires who financed the funeral, attempted to transfer floral wreaths to the hearse, were caught in the jam and many wreaths were torn to pieces.

Women fought, scratched and pulled hair attempting to reach the entrance. Friends and neighbors of the dead baby's family were shoved to the rear.

Windows of automobiles were broken. Three chimneys were pushed from the chapel roof. Laughing and fighting boys rushed about the roof.

15 Governments To Act On Scheme For Raising World Price of Wheat

Canada Included In Group—Action Asked Before Committee Meets On May 4

CALLS FOR FIXING OF MINIMUM PRICE

Price To Be Based On Monthly Relation Of Export Supplies To Demands

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rome, April 14—It is up to the Canadian and 14 other represented governments to act upon the weighty scheme for raising the world price of wheat produced by the world wheat conference which has been sitting here for more than a week.

The plan which calls for fixing of a minimum price based on the relation of export supplies to the demand from month to month, tonight was being forwarded to the interested governments, who were invited to take action before the wheat committee meets again in London on May 4.

The wheat conference hopes the governments can formulate their stand in order that the London meeting can prepare the way for the institution of the scheme in June or thereabouts.

Text Kept Confidential

Meanwhile the text of the plan is being kept confidential. An official communique Saturday night explained it was supplementary to the international wheat export agreement reached at London last year and was emphatic that the spirit and letter of the export pact must continue to be observed.

The situation, as explained to The Canadian Press by John A. MacMurray of the United States, chairman of the wheat advisory commission, is that the report "is in the form of a recommendation to the governments as to the course we think should be adopted. As such we could not very well publish it before the governments have been given an opportunity to study it."

Went Through Quickly

The minimum price plan, achieved by the subcommittee after much labor, went through the main conference today with unexpected speed, an apparently stubborn Argentine resistance vanishing when, as the chief Argentine delegatee informed the Canadian Press today, the Argentines took the viewpoint that the minimum price plan covered the Argentine's claim for increased export quotas.

Dr. Thomas A. le Breton, head of the Argentine delegation, said that acceptance of the minimum price scheme linked up with the Argentine demand for a bigger wheat export quota. "In our view," said Dr. le Breton, "they are all one question."

Does Not Fix Price

It was emphasied the scheme in itself does not fix a minimum price; it merely outlines a method by which a minimum price may be maintained once it is established. It makes provision for the necessary machinery and for scaling differentials in the price for respective countries.

It did suggest, however, that the first schedule to be drawn up by the proposed London control committee should be an increase of 5 to 10 per cent. of the present price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, standard of wheat the world over.

Agreement by the conference on the price scheme marked conclusion of many months of work. It is now up to the 15 governments represented in the conference to ratify the plan and put it into operation.

Questions Of Detail

The conference will continue this afternoon with questions of detail and will then take up the question of restrictions on flour milling along with the question of denaturing wheat to make quantities of it fit only for livestock feed.

But in reaching agreement on the plan the conference had achieved its main objective—devising a scheme for

Ottawa, April 14: Progress made in the construction of the Trans-Canada highway was outlined in the House of Commons by Premier R. B. Bennett. The amount expended so far was $12,374,319 and 1357 miles had been constructed.

The mileage was divided, Nova Scotia 59, New Brunswick 65, Quebec 35, Ontario 320, Manitoba 45½, Saskatchewan 171½, Alberta 145, British Columbia 160. The figures were given at the request of I. D. Macdougall, Conservative for Inverness.

STEEL CO. ASKS BOARD FOR RULING ON TARIFF

Ottawa, April 14.—An appear of particular interest to steel plants has been forwarded to the tariff board by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance to the request of the Stanley Steel Co. Ltd., of Hamilton, with reference to importation of "skelp."

The company wishes to have the words "cold rolled" removed from tariff item 394 which fixes the rate on "skelp of iron or steel, hot or cold rolled, etc" at free under the preferential tariff, and five per cent. intermediate and general. It is claimed that there is no such commodity as 'cold rolled' skelp and that cold rolled steel in coils is being imported under that item whereas it should come under item 382 (C) which applies a rate of 7½ er cent, preferential and 20 per cent, intermediate and general.

Chatham, April 15.—Clarence Stien of Becher was elected president and Rev. A. V. Walden of Raleigh township was re-elected secretary-treasurer at the annual meeting of the Kent Beekeepers Association held here. Professor Dyce, of Guelph O. A. During discussion, many members expressed the opinion that export of honey from Soviet Russia to Great Britain had hindered Canadian export.

NURSE DANGEROUSLY ILL FROM AN INFECTED HAND

With poison from an infected hand imperilling her life, Miss Mary L. Turnbull, a graduate nurse of St. Joseph's Hospital, lies dangerously ill in the institution. Miss Turnbull, whose home is just outside of London, was listed as a patient at the hospital on March 22. Since that time she has been constantly treated by several doctors but the pernicious infection continues to spread.

recommended the new system go into effect June 1.

How It May Be Done

Pending official disclosure of the minimum wheat price scheme adopted by the world wheat conference today, here's an outline of how it appears the goal will be achieved:

1. All big wheat exporters remain under strict export quota regulation.

2. A small committee in London will watch the movement of exports in relation to demand and establish a fixed price. It is suggested this be 5 or 10 percent higher on Manitoba No. 2 than at present. Minimum prices will be determined for wheat at the export point.

3. Indirect regulation of exports will be the basis on which the price will be maintained. In other words the conference drops the idea of rigid control of exports to establisn a price, instead using the direct price system.

Will Be Maintained

4. The price will be maintained by fluctuating fixed prices for the wheat of respective exporters. If for instance Canada in a certain period sends more wheat than would be normal under her quota, the Canadian price would be increased with the idea of bringing

The executive council will include: Dr. Lorna Cotton, Toronto; Tom Cruden, Toronto; Ben Levert, Sandwich; Jack O'Hanley, Hamilton; Arthur Williams, East York; J. F. McKevitt, Schreiber; Rev. J. Sutherland, Peterborough; Harold Crane, Windsor; John Walter, Kitchener; D. M. LeBourdais, Mimico; Dr. Luke Teskey, Forest Hill; W. O. Hill, North Cobalt; Sam Innis, Otterville.

Ruling Easily Sustained

During debate on the constitution, Mrs. E. Morton, secretary of the labor conference, moved an amendment to the membership clause which would permit trade unions to join the C. C. F. Chairman Angus MacInnis ruled the amendment out of order as in direct opposition to the motion.

The chairman's ruling was challenged and was sustained by a large vote. During some hectic discussion Mr. MacInnis declared the "C. C. F. program is for those who agree with it, not for those who oppose it." Finally the motion to confine membership to "political" groups was carried and then the convention decided to have an appointed secretary treasurer.

Must Be Disciplined

When a delegate asked the C. C. F.'s action in the case of a membership group celebrating May Day, chairman MacInnis replied, "If you demonstrate with groups opposed to the C. C. F., then you must be disciplined."

Mr. Woodsworth declared if there had been "prompter discipline in Toronto and Ontario We wouldn't be in this mess." He believed discipline was one of the methods of the Communist party "and I believe the C. C. F. has to discipline its members if it is going to amount to anything in the Dominion of Canada."

CLEVER COMEDY AT THE CAPITOL

Jack Hulbert, Noted British Comedian Is Excellent In "Jack Ahoy"

Jack Hulbert certainly puts comedy on a high plane in his latest starring talking picture, "Jack Ahoy" which opened at the Capitol Theatre for a three-day run last Saturday. It seems that Hulbert, who is one of the aces in the Gaumont British Company's acting staff, can get more comedy out of a mediocre situation than any other comedian in pictures and he does this to perfection in "Jack Ahoy." He is ably supported by Alfred Drayton, Nancy O'Neil and Henry Peterson.

The story is quite a simple one of the exploits of a tar in the British Navy, whose ambition is to marry the daughter of the admiral. A British submarine is captured by Chinese bandits and Hulbert after endangering his and everyone else's life, manages to capture the pirates and also retrieve the submarine.

There are some catchy musical selections in the picture, and Hulbert gives the right atmosphere in singing them. Of course, he is also a dancer par excellence and he shows some of his newest steps, particularly a modernized version of the Sailor's Hornpipe.

The rest of the show is good in its own way. A Betty Boop Cartoon and a splendid comedy, with the usual newsreels complete the bill.

A Glencoe man and a Toronto woman suffered minor injuries in two separate motor accidents over the weekend. D. H. McRae of Glencoe, received a cut over one eye and was shaken up when his car left the road east of London early Sunday morning and crashed into a tree. Mrs. Phyllis Reid of Toronto, suffered a sprained ankle when a motor car crashed with a transport truck west of the city late Saturday night.

The latter accident occurred on an "S" curve between Melbourne and Strathburn when a Direct Transport driven by Lloyd Leifso of 712 Weston road, Toronto, collided with the passenger car of Herbert Reid, 655 Manning ave., Toronto, Mrs. Reid was the only one hurt. Traffic Officer George Law investigated.

Mr. McRae was driving his coupe west on No. 2 highway in Pottersburg when it left the pavement and went out of control on the soft shoulder, hitting a tree. The machine was damaged and McRae taken to Victoria Hospital. He was released after treatment by Dr. C. C. Ross. Traffic Officer Howard Jackman was assigned by Traffic Inspector T. G. F. Lucas to the investigation.

No charges were laid immediately in connection with either accident.

PASTOR PRAISES MAYOR OF LONDON

Commends Wenige For Demanding Local Gambling Probe

FLAYS LOTTERIES

"Gambling is not far from thieving," said Rev. G. V. Crofoot in his sermon to the congregation at Adelaide Street Baptist Church last night during which he criticised social organizations who "stooped" to forms of gambling in aid of various causes which might be worthy.

Mr. Crofoot strongly commended the Mayor of London for his stand in demanding an investigation of gambling conditions in the city.

He described gambling as little removed from thieving because in essentials the winners took something for which no adequate value had been given.

This principle the speaker condemned when encouraged by social organizations in various forms of out that often delays gave a chance for offenders to cover up their misdemeanors.

the regimen in the armories here on Saturday night. Nineteen years ago yesterday the battalion left for France.

It was a large and enthusiastic gathering of old comrades which voted unanimously for their new chaplain. Representatives were present from Toronto, Galt, Guelph, Kitchener, Chatham, Windsor, Stratford, Strathroy, Wingham, Harriston, St. Thomas and Mitchell.

The program opened with a two minute silence in tribute to the comrades who had died. A toast was recited by Sergt.-Major M. Lee.

President S. Gunn welcomed the visitors among whom were Col. L. E. Jones, Col. H. Milligan, and Major G. Ingram.

Col. Jones commented favorably upon the battalion organization and hoped for a closer relationship between the various units of it.

Cheer Col. Wigle

Fred Young said that "an overzealous" writer had reported that the 18th battalion had "turned against" Col. Wigle. He read a letter from Col. Wigle in which the Colonel explained that certain unreasonable demands had been made upon him but that local organizations in Windsor had supported him. Three cheers were given for Col. Wigle.

E. Shuttleworth introduced the speaker of the evening, Major Canon C. E. Jeakins. Canon Jeakins said that the same characteristics which were called forth to make a man a good soldier were needed now to make him a good peacetime citizen. He recalled some of the impressions he retained of the front lines, and remarked upon the vast patience exhibited by the fighting men. He pointed out that this quality was needed now.

"There is a good day before us, but it will not come without hard work on the part of everyone," said Canon Jeakins. Faith in a great cause was present at the front, and it was needed here now.

Col. Milligan congratulated the battalion and credited Col. Wigle with much of its fine background. Major Ingram expressed pleasure at the expansion of the organization. Major D. Rispman, D.S.O., brought greetings and invited the London membership to future meetings in Chatham.

Officers of the London branch are: President, S. Gunn; vice-president, W. Grey; sec-treas., P. L. Reed; executive committee, M. Noble, C. Halsal, J. Herring, G. Leach, B. Tuxford; sick committee, G. Leach, J. Matthews; and auditors, E. Shuttleworth and R. L. Stephenson.

ADVISES ENDING MONTHLY LEASES

Committee Recommends Daily Rent System—Leave Some Open As Fire Precaution

A recommendation for the elimination of monthly rentals for stalls and spaces on the London market is to be made to City Council by a special committee. Where rentable stalls are not leased for yearly terms, the committee recommends that 25 cents a day be charged for stalls for which the annual rental is $15 and less and 50 cents a day for stalls for which the annual rental is more than $15. Stalls in the truckers' row will be $2 a day where they are not rented by the year.

Following charges of discrimination in that vendors were allowed the free use of unrented stalls, City Council appointed a special committee consisting of Ald. J. A. Johnston, chairman, Ald. John McLeod and Ald. Allen Towe. This committee met Friday. Also present were Market Clerk Rose, City Treasurer Bell, City Engineer Veitch, Deputy Treasurer Saunders and City Clerk Crawford.

The committee's report will not be ready for Monday's council meeting. It has however already reached certain decisions including the elimination of monthly rentals.

The committee is also recommending that no one be allowed to use any rentable stall unless the rent for the day has been paid.

Want Map Prepared

City Engineer Veitch and Market Clerk Rose have been instructed to work out a plan whereby a map of the market, showing the spaces available for daily rental can be posted on the market. They will also draft a receipt form for the daily rentals.

The committee is also recommending that stalls 1 to 9 in D section and stalls 1 to 14 in F section be left unoccupied at all times. These are on the north side of the market square, immediately east of Talbot street. The fire chief has complained that in the event of a fire in the buildings fronting the market he would have a hard job to get trucks on the market. By leaving these spaces clear the way will be open.

Market Clerk Rose reported receiving complaints that a man who was paying his rent would have as his competitor in the next stand, one who paid no rent yet managed to be in the same space all the time.

MRS. CHARLES FREEMANTLE

Stricken with a heart attack Saturday morning, Mrs. Sarah Jane Freemantle, wife of Charles Freemantle, 537 Dorinda street, died a few hours later. Mrs. Freemantle was in her 70th year. She came from Palmerston 15 years ago to take up residence here.

Surviving her are her husband, four sons, Macknowles, David, Clarence and Brock, all of this city, three daughters, Mrs. W. C. Oliver of Hamilton, Mrs. Fred Ashelford of England, and Mrs. A. Eaton.

Rev. Dr. Harris of Chalmers Presbyterian Church will officiate at the funeral service to be conducted Monday evening at the residence at 8 o'clock. Services will also be conducted at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in Palmerston, with interment following in Palmerston cemetery.

When word was sent out that no more would be admitted to view the body, the line which extended eight abreast in orderly fashion for two blocks stormed the chapel.

The mob, mostly women and children, defied the efforts of police to maintain order. An additional 25 policemen finally cleared a path from the chapel to the hearse and Boy to pieces.

Women fought, scratched and pulled hair attempting to reach the entrance. Friends and neighbors of the dead baby's family were shoved to the rear.

Windows of automobiles were broken. Three chimneys were pushed from the chapel roof. Laughing and fighting boys rushed about the roof.

15 Governments To Act On Scheme For Raising World Price of Wheat

Canada Included In Group—Action Asked Before Committee Meets On May 4

CALLS FOR FIXING OF MINIMUM PRICE

Price To Be Based On Monthly Relation Of Export Supplies To Demands

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rome, April 14—It is up to the Canadian and 14 other represented governments to act upon the weighty scheme for raising the world price of wheat produced by the world wheat conference which has been sitting here for more than a week.

The plan which calls for fixing of a minimum price based on the relation of export supplies to the demand from month to month, tonight was being forwarded to the interested governments, who were invited to take action before the wheat committee meets again in London on May 4.

The wheat conference hopes the governments can formulate their stand in order that the London meeting can prepare the way for the institution of the scheme in June or thereabouts.

Text Kept Confidential

Meanwhile the text of the plan is being kept confidential. An official communique Saturday night explained it was supplementary to the international wheat export agreement reached at London last year and was emphatic that the spirit and letter of the export pact must continue to be observed.

The situation, as explained to The Canadian Press by John A. MacMurray of the United States, chairman of the wheat advisory commission, is that the report "is in the form of a recommendation to the governments as to the course we think should be adopted. As such we could not very well publish it before the governments have been given an opportunity to study it."

Went Through Quickly

The minimum price plan, achieved by the subcommittee after much labor, went through the main conference today with unexpected speed, an apparently stubborn Argentine resistance vanishing when, as the chief Argentine delegatee informed the Canadian Press today, the Argentines took the viewpoint that the minimum price plan covered the Argentine's claim for increased export quotas.

Dr. Thomas A. le Breton, head of the Aregentine delegation, said that acceptance of the minimum price scheme linked up with the Argentine demand for a bigger wheat export quota. "In our view," said Dr. le Breton, "they are all one question."

Does Not Fix Price

It was emphasied the scheme in itself does not fix a minimum price; it merely outlines a method by which a minimum price may be maintained once it is established. It makes provision for the necessary machinery and for scaling differentials in the price for respective countries.

It did suggest, however, that the first schedule to be drawn up by the proposed London control committee should be an increase of 5 to 10 per cent. of the present price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, standard of wheat the world over.

Agreement by the conference on the price scheme marked conclusion of many months of work. It is now up to the 15 governments represented in the conference to ratify the plan and put it into operation.

Questions Of Detail

The conference will continue this afternoon with questions of detail and will then take up the question of restrictions on flour milling along with the question of denaturing wheat to make quantities of it fit only for livestock feed.

But in reaching agreement on the plan the conference had achieved its main objective—devising a scheme for raising the world price of wheat. Today the details of the scheme were still undivulged, but it was learned the kernel of the plan was establishment of a committee of four to sit in London to supervise wheat movements of the signatory exporters and thereby maintain the minimum price which itself has yet to be established.

Further, it said the adjustments made in London must be so fixed as to keep the supply strictly in accord with demand and thus not interfere with the minimum price system.

Interesting Feature

The most interesting feature of the sub-committee's report is the proposal for creation of a price committee of four experts to sit in London and meet at least once a month to study the wheat export movement in relation to quotas and to raise or lower minimum prices of individual exporting countries should they be selling too much or too little wheat in relation to their quotas.

This is held up as a method of controlling quotas through prices.

The sub-committee also recommended that exporting countries whose domestic wheat price is lower than the export minimum to be agreed upon raise that price to a new level partly through reducing their stocks. It was recommended the new system go into effect June 1.

How it May Be Done

Pending official disclosure of the minimum wheat price scheme adopted by the world wheat conference today, here's an outline of how it appears the goal will be achieved:

1. All big wheat exporters remain under strict export quota regulation.

2. A small committee in London will watch the movement of exports in relation to demand and establish a fixed price. It is suggested this be 5 or 10 percent higher on Manitoba No. 2 than at present. Minimum prices will be determined for wheat at the export point.

3. Indirect regulation of exports will be the basis on which the price will be maintained. In other words the conference drops the idea of rigid control of exports to establisn a price, instead using the direct price system.

Will Be Maintained

4. The price will be maintained by fluctuating fixed prices for the wheat of respective exporters. If for instance Canada in a certain period sends more wheat than would be normal under her quota, the Canadian price would be increased with the idea of bringing the export down.

Aiding in establishment of the scheme the conference recommends chopping up the present yearly export quotas into shorter periods, three-months being one suggestion. These figures are being prepared. Price fixing is suggested on a basis of monthly exports.

Refrain From Barter

6. Also backing up the scheme, governments will be asked to refrain from barter dealings or other governmental transactions that would hurt the minimum price system. Flour prices will be fixed at definite percentages to corresponding wheat grades. Wheat products, such as semolina will be restricted along with wheat.

7. Wheat exporting governments further will be asked to make sure their internal prices are at least as high as the minimum export price. This is an essential safeguard against export of flour at lower than minimum wheat figures. Withdrawal of quantities by denaturing is one method.

8. It is suggested the export committee meet in London, May 4, along with the wheat conference heads to work out final details in order the scheme may go into effect about June 1.

Ottawa, April 14: Progress made in the construction of the Trans-Canada highway was outlined in the House of Commons by Premier R. B. Bennett. The amount expended so far was $12,374,319 and 1357 miles had been constructed.

The mileage was divided, Nova Scotia 59, New Brunswick 65, Quebec 35, Ontario 320, Manitoba 45½, Saskatchewan 175, Alberta 145, British Columbia 160. The figures were given at the request of I. D. Macdougall, Conservative for Inverness.

STEEL CO. ASKS BOARD FOR RULING ON TARIFF

Ottawa, April 14.—An appear of particular interest to steel plants has been forwarded to the tariff board by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance to the request of the Stanley Steel Co. Ltd., of Hamilton, with reference to importation of "skelp."

The company wishes to have the words "cold rolled" removed from tariff item 294 which fixes the rate on "skelp of iron or steel, hot or cold rolled, etc" at free under the preferential tariff, and five per cent. intermediate and general. It is claimed that there is no such commodity as 'cold rolled" skelp and that cold rolled steel in coils is being imported under that item whereas it should come under item 382 (C) which applies a rate of 7½ er cent, preferential and 20 per cent, intermediate and general.

KENT BEEKEEPERS ELECT

Chatham, April 15.—Clarence Stien of Becher was elected president and Rev. A. V. Walden of Raleigh township was re-elected secretary-treasurer at the annual meeting of the Kent Beekeepers Association held here. Professor Dyce, of Guelph O. A. C., gave an instructive address on the treatment of package bees from the south. During discussion, many members expressed the opinion that export of honey from Soviet Russia to Great Britain had hindered Canadian export.

Ruling Easily Sustained

During debate on the constitution, Mrs. E. Morton, secretary of the labor conference, moved an amendment to the membership clause which would permit trade unions to join the C. C. F. Chairman Angus MacInnis ruled the amendment out of order as in direct opposition to the motion.

The chairman's ruling was challenged and was sustained by a large vote. During some hectic discussion Mr. MacInnis declared the "C. C. F. program is for those who agree with it, not for those who oppose it." Finally the motion to confine membership to "political" groups was carried and then the convention decided to have an appointed secretary treasurer.

Must Be Disciplined

When a delegate asked the C. C. F.'s action in the case of a membership group celebrating May Day, chairman MacInnis replied, "If you demonstrate with groups opposed to the C. C. F., then you must be disciplined."

Mr. Woodsworth declared if there had been "prompter discipline in Toronto and Ontario we wouldn't be in this mess." He believed discipline was one of the methods of the Communist party "and I believe the C. C. F. has to discipline its members if it is going to amount to anything in the Dominion of Canada."

PASTOR PRAISES MAYOR OF LONDON

Commends Wenige For Demanding Local Gambling Probe

FLAYS LOTTERIES

"Gambling is not far from thieving," said Rev. G. V. Crofoot in his sermon to the congregation at Adelaide Street Baptist Church last night during which he rcitiicised social organizations who "stooped" to forms of gambling in aid of various causes which might be worthy.

Mr. Crofoot strongly commended the Mayor of London for his stand in demanding an investigation of gambling conditions in the city.

He described gambling as little removed from thieving because in essentials the winners took something for which no adequate value had been given.

This principle the speaker condemned when encouraged by social organizations in various forms of lotteries and gambling. He went on to point out that often a large part of the funds taken out of the pocket of the public went into the expenses of the gambling organization and anly a small percentage reached the charitable work for which it was ostensibly directed.

What's the Difference?

"Supposing you won a car on a ticket," said Mr. Crofoot, "I don't suppose many of you would give it back, or the money it representes. What is the difference between that and putting money on a horse?"

In speaking of the recent action of Mayor Wenige in demanding a clean-up of gambling in London Mr. Crofoot said he believed there were times when the pulpit ought to support those who are breaking down the social evils.

"It is seldom a public man will come out flat-foted against social evils," said the speaker. "More power to you Mr. Mayor, and may all loyal citizens support you."

Mr. Crofoot went on to say he had no intention of desire of becoming involved in a controversy between civic officials.

"I don't think there should be any delay in carrying out the Mayor's wishes," said Mr. Crofoot and pointed out that often delays gave a chance for offenders to cover up their misdemeanors.

WORSHIP IN INDIA IS SERMON TOPIC

Natives Bow Before Idols Manufactured In Manchester Says Wesley Church Speaker

That the natives of India are seeking God in the face of Jesus Christ but that they are going about it in a "blind, groping and ignorant" manner, was the belief expressed by Rev. Donald G. Cock, guest speaker Sunday morning at Wesley United Church. Rev. Mr. Cock for many years has been engaged in missionary work among the Asiatic peoples and is in London for the world missionary conference and exhibit.

"I sometimes think," he added, "that we misunderstand the non-Christian people simply because they bow down and worship idols and images. Deep down in their hearts they are searching and longing for something better.

"I have seen consignments of these idols that were manufactured in Manchester, England, arrive at the dock for the purpose of idolatry, and I really don't know which is worst the worship of these idols or the manufacture of them.

DUTY VALUATIONS

Ottawa, April 14.—The value of duty of rose bushes, excepting dwarf polyanthas and rose stocks for budding and grafting, has been fixed at 15 cents, it is announced by the Department of National Revenue, instead of 20, for importations on and after April 15.

The value for duty of asparagus and lettuce has been fixed at an advance on the true invoice value in Canadian funds. Asparagus will be valued for duty purposes at an advance of 5 ½ cents a pound from April 22 to June 20; lettuce one cent a pound between April 20 and October 31.

MARK WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Embro, April 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Masters celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary Friday. A number of friends spent the evening with them, playing cards, and other games. The rest of evening was spent in dancing. Music was furnished by J. W. Innes, Miss Marjorie Innis, Mrs. R. Matheson, and Mrs. Goddall. Refreshments were served. The couple received some very pretty and useful gifts.

Overflowing Meetings Of S. Oxford Electors

saying 'I wish we could have a general election to express our feelings in respect to federal policies at the present time'," declared the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in his address in the town hall here Saturday night. Bute said Mr. King, it is just this fear of a general election on the part of private Conservative members which has enabled Mr. Bennett to hold his parliamentary majority in line.

"Would Mr. Bennett have been able to hold his followers on the titles question unless he had said to his supporters "Unless I get support there'll be a dissolution'," said Mr. King.

General Election Looms

However, the speaker continued, all signs point to a general election. The central bank, the marketing measure, amendments to the election act all would indicate that Mr. Bennett is preparing for an appeal to the country.

"If South Oxford on Monday speaks loudly there is a chance of the modification of some of these policies in a way better to serve the people, coupled with the chance that the government will give the people a chance at a general election." While in general elections the policies advanced by the parties appealing for favor might make the issue, in a by-election the only issue is the government's record, Mr. King pointed out. It is Mr. Benett's record which the electors of South Oxford will approve or condemn on Monday.

Sanderson And Taylor Speak

Dr. J. M. Rogers was chairman of the town hall meeting. Fred G. Sanderson, M.P., Ontario Liberal whip, and William Taylor, M.P., for Norfolk-Elgin, spoke before Mr. King.

Miss E. A. Seldon, president of the Ingersoll and District Women's Liberal Association, presented an address of welcome to Mr. King, while little Miss Margaret Copeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Copeland, and a niece of Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., presented Mr. King with a nicely-bound package of Ingersoll's famous cream cheese.

Mr. Sanderson read to the audience a statement from the Borden Milk Co. which showed that in 1929 the lowest summer price of milk at Ingersoll was $1.74 a cwt. and the highest winter price, $2.17. In 1933 the lowest summer price was 70 cents and the highest winter price 95 cents.

"Now which party has the best policy for the dairy industry in Oxford?" asked Mr. Sanderson.

Mr. King jocularly remarked, opening his speech, that he and Mr. Bennett differed on almost everything but "I am told if we were married we'd probably learn how to make up. I hope Mr. Bennett will be fortunate enough to achieve that end, while I haven't despaired of it myself."

Tobacco Report

Mr. King discussed the failure of the Bennett government to present the report of the Hon. Donald Sutherland on his investigation into tobacco-buying practices to parliament until last week.

"If in the Sutherland report there was ground for believing that there is a combine against the public interest, that is all the more reason the report should have been made public a year ago instead of a week ago. It is not Mr. Sutherland but the government which is on trial in this election. Yet now Mr. Stevens, a minister of the crown, comes into the riding and says he wants Mr. Sutherland returned to help in the fight of the tobacco growers. I tell you it is not one person but the policies of the government which will settle the fate of the tobacco growers. If one wants to be critical one can say that Mr. Stevens' plea was a threat of no battle for the tobacco growers unless Mr. Sutherland is returned. On the other hand it might be a bribe. I am not saying Mr. Stevens intended it as either. He shouldn't have made the statement at all. Under parliamentary institutions it doesn't matter who the man is, whether he be Liberal, Conservative, Farmer or Labor, every man stands for the interests of the constituency from which he is sent."

Dr. Manion's Prediction

Mr. King made reference to the speech of the Hon. Dr. Manion in the constituency in which Dr. Manion said that he had every reason to believe the government would lower interest rates on loans and mortgages. Mr. Bennett was asked in the House concerning this and answered that the predictions of any member of the government were based on his knowledge of what the government intends to do. No direct answer was given.

"Why did Mr. Manion need to bring up the question at all unless he was trying to leave in your mind the impression that he was stating something the government was going to do? Mr. Bennett told the House of Commons a few weeks ago that this couldn't be done. Mr. Bennett will take action at the time he thinks it should be taken, and any predictions his ministers make mean nothing," said Mr. King.

The Liberal leader declared that if parliament exists for any purpose at all, it is that the people's representatives might have control of the public treasury which is filled by taxation. Yet under the blank cheque clause of the relief bill the cabinet is taking this power away from parliament and a supine Tory majority says nothing. The dangers in such a policy have been exposed by the auditor-general's report on irregularities in the spending of funds under the blank cheque clause, said Mr. King.

Disastrous Trade Policies

The economic nationalism which has featured the Bennett trade policies cannot but in the end prove disastrous to Canada, Mr. King declared. Canada's export trade must come from the markets of the world," he said.

Menace Of Dictatorship

Mr. King said that the Liberal policy did not favor free trade but did stand for the keeping of those restrictions necessary to retain the standards of living in this country. But the Bennett policy has gone far beyond this and has, in fact, had an adverse effect on living standards.

In conclusion Mr. King pointed out that in many European countries parliamentary institutions have been done away with and dictatorship of individuals or groups substituted. In the steady sapping of parliament's powers in Canada the same trend is apparent. "There is the same trend today to do away with the great guardians of the people's liberties, the House of Commons," he declared.

MR. LAPOINTE'S SPEECH

Special to The Advertiser

Tillsonburg, Ont., April 14—Declaring that the Bennett Government was bound to disappear in the near future and that we must see that it does not destroy Canada in its spasms of agony, the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice in the King Government, closed an eloquent speech here this evening in the interests of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate, on the eve of Monday's election. Duplicating the meeting of the Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, scores had to be turned away and this notable son of Quebec was given a great ovation as he was introduced by R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., for South Oxford.

Mr. Lapointe was critical of the Bennett regime but abstained from personalities. He stated he believed the Canadian people have been deceived in the last few years and that the mouths of the farmers and laboring men could not be sweetened by simply yelling money.

The Benett Government has intensified the depression by false promises in 1930 and by the policies they have followed the past four years. Confidence is the mainspring of life for any government and the Canadian people in the last few months have shown the present government that they have lost the confidence of the country. All the wild statements and promises of the government made in 1930 are now coming home to roost.

"It is not production that is at fault but distribution, and the trade of Canada has been strangled since the Liberals were defeated in 1930. The past four years in parliament have been jazz or whoopee politics played to the tune of blank cheques at the expense of the people and parliament has been treated with contempt by the present administration, the speaker asserted.

"If anyone desires a title he should apply at once as the crop is low and there will not be another crop. It is freely rumored that the prime minister is to receive a peerage and I would suggest that the seven lean cows of the Scriptures be put on the coat of arms," Mr. Lapointe declared amid laughter.

"The people of Canada will judge the Bennett Government on its record and not on its prospectus and the return of the Liberal party will remove the shackles that have been forged for Canadian trade the past few years."

The Liberal candidate, A. S. Rennie, and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., also spoke briefly and urged a large Liberal majority on Monday.

PROMISES LIBERAL BEER POLICY SOON

rid of this wasteful government," he phophesied.

Promises Housecleaning

"If we get into power," promised Mr. Hepburn, "there's going to be a great housecleaning of Hydro and our first act will be to get rid of Engineer Gaby—not because he is Mr. Gaby, but because he has been getting $35,600 per year and allowing things to go on that should not occur."

Mr. Hepburn promised that other leading Hydro officials would go out with Engineer Gaby if the Liberals are elected. "We are going to take some of the superannuaries off the backs of the burdened taxpayers, if we do nothing else. We are going to improve social conditions; have a minimum wage for men and women.

"W. G. Martin is another supernumerary, said Mr. Hepburn, "and he should go too.

Will be Hard Campaign

"This will be a hard campaign. There will be lots of campaign funds for the Conservatibes and it will be a hard fight. Watch out for the Government using trick methods," warned the speaker, and went on. "The Government are in a desperate position and they know it. They are casting about for help, blowing hot and blowing cold. Mr. Henry is headed for a fall."

Dr. L. J. Simpson, Liberal financial critic, in a vigorous speech criticized the economic policy of the Government." The Conservatives will eventually land Ontario in bankruptcy," he charged, and in substantiation pointed to the fact that interest charges on the Provincial debt at present amounted to one-third of the annual revenue. Ontario's liabilities are very rapidly catching un to its assets, he declared. He charged that when the Ontario Government announced a surplus of $450,000 it was poor bookkeeping and not facts. Dr. Simpson stated that while the Conservatives were trying to make out that the Liberal party difficulty beating out Mr. Munro at Queen's Park," said Attorney-General Price, declaring that the Liberal members at the morning service in King St. United.

OPENING MARKETS LIBERALS' POLICY,

Tories came in is a bit of a novelty. In 1929 Canadian production of manufactured products totalled $4,000,000,000—in 1933 it was down to $2,000,000,000. Now the men who brought about this condition ask us to vote for them if they hand out an order for $22,000 worth of shoes.

A Matter of Exchange

"And here is something else: In 1929 we had Tory policies in effect—Canadian exports were $754,000,000; then came a change of policy with the election of the Liberals—by 1930 we had exports of $1,144,960,000, an increase of $390,000,000. Yet our friends the Tories ask us where we can get markets. We can get them where we got them before. There are more goods to b sold in the world than ever before. We can exchange the things we need for the tings other people need. The world has not changed—men are men with human instincts—not asses as Donald Sutherland asserts.

"Let me read you a paragraph from my very distinguished and gentlemanly opponent. He bears the title "honorable." He was a cabinet minister for a few days. He has had parliamentary experience. Note his language in a recent speech:

"'Mr. Rennie cannot be as complete an ass as he appears to be'.

"Well, I found the other day this note upon the ass: 'An ass is used to bear people and burdens and in dangerous passages—that even an old war horse dare not venture.'

"Does my honorable friend assume that his failure to answer arguments can be met by calling names ? He ought to tell us if he hopes to 'blast' a way into foreign markets by that process.

Losing Markets

"We are now blasting our way out of markets. The gravest danger confronts the farmers of South Oxford today as a result. The arrangements of Great Britain regarding importation of meats end in June and Great Britain is likely to insist that Canadian tariffs are an impossible barrier and that Britain, because she cannot sell in Canada, must raise her barriers against Canada. We are likely to lose our dairy markets and our tobacco markets in the same way. Here is an extract from a recent government booklet published under authority of Mr. Weir, Minister of Agriculture.

"'The large and increasing volume of butter and cheese imported into the United Kingdom has caused the British Government to enter into discussion with New Zealand and Australia with a view to the voluntary restriction of exports of these products to the United Kingdom. If any such agreements are concluded between the United Kingdom and New Zealand and Australia, Canada may be asked to take similar action,

"'The possibility of restrictions on imports of dairy products into the United Kingdom would suggest that it would be advisable for Canadian producers to develop home consumption as much as possible.'

"What do you think will happen to us if we lose our foreign markets—our Empire markets? It will indeed be a sad day for the farmers of South Oxford.

Vital Issues

"These issues are vital—far too vital to escape immediate attention. Our friends say the election of the Liberals means the repeal of the British preference. This is nonsense of the crudest kind. We are not opposed to the preference—we are opposed to shadow preferences, fake preferences, which give nothing and get nothing and give more promise of losing than gaining markets. Once in office, Liberals will open markets, not close them—expand British trade—not restrict it. Opening markets is the natural function of Liberliasm—closing them is the natural task of Toryism.

"We near the end of the campaign. This is the final appeal. There is before you the record of the two parties. They have both explained their viewpoints. South Oxford faces an election such as it never faced before. The conflict is between repression and freedom—between restriction of markets and liberation of trade. It matters little to me what happens in this campaign but it is vital to you. Time which sifts the wheat from the chaff and tests the ultimate measure of truth in every issue will vindicate the position we have taken in South Oxford throughout the campaign and the importance of the issue we have presented tonight."

N. WATERLOO LIBERALS NOMINATE APRIL 28

Kitchener, April 15.—The North Waterloo Liberals will choose their candidate for the forthcoming Provincial campaign at Waterloo on Saturday, April 28. This was decided at a meeting of the executive held in Waterloo Saturday afternoon, the second gathering of that body within a month.

FLAMING TANKER ADRIFT IN HARBOR

Port of Spain, Trinidad, April 15.—The Trinidad leasehold tanker Pyramid and her 11,000-gallon cargo of gasoline were destroyed by fire here today. The only man on her when flames broke out leaped overboard and swam to safety, after which the ship drifted about the harbor and menaced shipping. The fire finally burned itself out.

needed was personal evangelism. "The gift of Canadian people to the Newcomers can be the Christ of Service," she added.

Following a selection by the choir of the Indian residential school at Muncey with Mrs. Jamieson as pianist, Ross Jung, a third-year Chinese medical student from Toronto, spoke. He explained that he had been born in British Columbia and that he hoped to go to China as a medical missionary. "Christianity broadened my outlook", he said as he told of his work among Chinese boys to foster good felowship and friendship among the youths.'

Pays Tribute To Londoner

Dr. S. Y. Chao of Fowchow, China, an outstanding figure in hospital work for the Chinese church referred to his association with Dr. Wallace Crawford, who is the special medical missionary sent out by Metropolitan Church and paid tribute to the work of the former Londoner. Dr. Chao declared, "if we Christians really did as Christ taught us there would be no more fighting." The remark was made as he told of his friendship with Rev. N. Shirozu of Japan. Later in the afternoon Mr. Shirozu spoke briefly and mentioned the bond of friendship between them. Both men are in residence at Toronto taking special courses. Rev. R. S. Longley, of West China, another outstanding missionary, spoke briefly.

Dr. E. E. Armstrong, secretary Foreign Missions, introduced Rev. A. Broadfoot of South China; Dr. J. S. MacKay of Central India; Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Anderson, also of Central India; Dr. Walter Strangway, Angola, West Africa; Rev. Herbert T. Owens of Korea and two Alma College Oriental students, Miss Sada Niwase of Japan and Miss Pyugh Yong Rhu of Korea who also spoke briefly.

Speaks Optimistically of West

At the first mass rally held in Metropolitan Church on Saturday evening, Rev. Dr. George Dorey, superintendent of missions in Saskatchewan, in charge of relief work there, spoke optimistically of the conditions in the Western province where drouth and crop failures have imposed a terrific burden on the church people of the stricken area.

Dr. Dorey declared that the church has invariably flourished in the face of difficulty and told that in spite of the curtailment of funds the United Church is keeping the churches and Sunday schools open.

"The church in the West is replacing despair with hope, cynicism with faith and panic with courage," said Dr. Dorey and declared that this is being made possible by the generosity and loyalty of the people both in the East and the West.

"You pay your dues to your lodges to keep in good standing but the contributions to the missionary and maintenance are given through a love for the Church," said the speaker.

Thanks Donors of Supplies

Dr. Dorey told of the great number of cars of food and supplies which had reached the West from this part of Ontario and thanked the donors.

Following Dr. Dorey, Dr. W. E. Strangway presented an illustrated lecture on the medical and missionary work in Africa. Rev. W. A. Walden, Empress Avenue Church, was chairman of the rally.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Armstrong, secretary of the foreign mission board, was the guest preacher at First United Church in the morning. A missionary for more than 27 years, he drew on his wide experience to place before the congregation something of the spirit required in missionary work. As an example he told of the Moravian Church, which has its headquarters in Herrnhut, Germany, and which with only 60,000 members supports 290 missionaries. He pointed out that the United Church could support 3,000 missionaries instead of 500 if they had the same zealous Christian spirit.

Work In Saskatchewan

At St. Andrews Church the work in Northern Saskatchewan was explained by Rev. John Nichol, mission superintendent in that district. He stated and gaurantee bank deposit proposals should be placed on the statute books.

Opposed

It also was indicated the administration was opposed to action on the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing-inflation bill.

The President is ready to veto the general revenue bill because of the proposed tax of three cents a pound on Phillipine Oils and Senator Pat Harrison (D., Miss.), chairman of the finance committee, planned to ask the Senate tomorrow to reconsider the bill, passed Friday. It has not yet reached the House, where opposition was voiced yesterday to many of the Senate provisions increasing the total from $258,000,000 to $480,000,000.

Against Thomas Bill

Aministration disapproval of legislation to release millions of dollars in closed banks was officially disclosed tonight in a letter written by Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the Treasury to Chairman Duncan Fletcher (D., Fla.) of the Senate banking committee.

Mentioning specifically the bill by Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), Morgenthau said that under the legislation "nearly half of the money to be distributed would be received by about four per centum of the depositantee of bank deposits "past, pressors"; that it would represent a guarent and future," and that it would cost the taxpayers from "$1,250,000,000 to $2,500,000,000."

SIR FREDERICK WALL TO GET $50,000 GIFT

London, April 14.—A sum of $50,000 will be presented to Sir Frederick Wall who is retiring in July as secretary of the English Football Association, which he has served for 40 years.

The council of the F. A., deciding on the gift to-day said it would be in recognition of the "untiring energy and valuable service to British football" of Sir Frederick.

HAMILTON TRUNDLERS SWEEP C.B.A. ALLEYS

Bust Toronto Domination—London Orange Crush 6th In Team Contest

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—Hamilton Bowlers tonight had completed the most smashing rout of Toronto Trundlers in the history of Canadian Bowling Association Tournaments. Mountain City entrants captured the doubles and singles events but were edged out of the team title by four points. W. Wright of Hamilton Olympia No. 2 who counted a sensational 947 in the team competition had a blow on the 10th frame to see his squad place second to Toronto Olympia No. 1 who had 3,698 against Hamilton's 3,694.

H. C. McKellar of Hamilton a past-president of the C.B.A., winning the singles with 911. The Hamilton pair of V. Colville and A. Wagner scored 1,664 to take the doubles crown; J. Walsh of Toronto counted 2,477 to take the grand aggregate.

Toronto players had monopolized the victories in the previous seven tournaments and this was the first year premier prizes had left the city. A new record was made in entrants, 1,836 players participating the tourney which began last Monday.

W. Wright had the highest single game and three game scores 402 and 947 respectively, but he obtained these in the team competition.

Winipeg with 3,631 finished fifth in the team event after suffering many bad breaks.

Toronto Olympia No. 2 with 3,666 and Toronto Rangers with 3,643 were third and fourth respectively in the team contest. London Orange Crush had 3,618 for sixth.

In the doubles R. Duncan and A. Barrett of Toronto were second with 1,597. In the singles W. Adams of Toronto was second with 894. F. Melling also of Toronto third with 876 and C. Bradley of Ottawa fourth with 857.

In the team event, Waterloo Kuntz were 12th; Oshawa 17th; Montreal C.N.R.F.A. 28th; Windsor Heintzman 31st; London Maple Leaf 33rd; Ottawa Karry's 34th.

In the singles T. Huggett of Stratford was sixth; G. Udouhart of Winnipeg, eighth; and T. Martin of London, 10th.

SUPREME COURT TAKES BOXER'S PURSE AWAY

Canadian Press Despatch

Halifax, April 14.—Roy Mitchell, Halifax colored scrapper, lost a decision today, but not in the squared circle. His end of the gate in a fight with Tiger Warrington last year was declared forfeited by Mr. Justice R. H. Graham in Supreme Court.

His Lordship found the Halifax fight was "not an honest exhibition of boxing" and Mitchell "did not perform his contract." The negro fighter had been accused by Promoter J. M. Harris of "stalling," and the promoter withheld his share of the receipts.

Mitchell won the verdict in County Court, but His Lordship's decision today exempted Harris from payment.

said Mr. King, it is just this fear of a general election on the part of private Conservative members which has enabled Mr. Bennett to hold his parliamentary majority in line.

"Would Mr. Bennett have been able to hold his followers on the titles question unless he had said to his supporters "Unless I get support there'll be a dissolution'," said Mr. King.

General Election Looms

However, the speaker continued, all signs point to a general election. The central bank, the marketing measure, amendments to the election act all would indicate that Mr. Bennett is preparing for an appeal to the country.

"If South Oxford on Monday speaks loudly there is a chance of the modification of some of these policies in a way better to serve the people, coupled with the chance that the government will give the people a chance at a general election." While in general elections the policies advanced by the parties appealing for favor might make the issue, in a by-election the only issue is the government's record, Mr. King pointed out. It is Mr. Benett's record which the electors of South Oxford will approve or condemn on Monday.

Sanderson And Taylor Speak

Dr. J. M. Rogers was chairman of the town hall meeting. Fred G. Sanderson, M.P., Ontario Liberal whip, and William Taylor, M.P., for Norfolk-Elgin, spoke before Mr. King.

Miss E. A. Seldon, president of the Ingersoll and District Women's Liberal Association, presented an address of welcome to Mr. King, while little Miss Margaret Copeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Copeland, and a niece of Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., presented Mr. King with a nicely-bound package of Ingersoll's famous cream cheese.

Mr. Sanderson read to the audience a statement from the Borden Milk Co. which showed that in 1929 the lowest summer price of milk at Ingersoll was $1.74 a cwt. and the highest winter price, $2.17. In 1933 the lowest summer price was 70 cents and the highest winter price 95 cents.

"Now which party has the best policy for the dairy industry in Oxford?" asked Mr. Sanderson.

Mr. King jocularly remarked, opening his speech, that he and Mr. Bennett differed on almost everything but "I am told if we were married we'd probably learn how to make up. I hope Mr. Bennett will be fortunate enough to achieve that end, while I haven't despaired of it myself."

Tobacco Report

Mr. King discussed the failure of the Bennett government to present the report of the Hon. Donald Sutherland on his investigation into tobacco-buying practices to parliament until last week.

"If in the Sutherland report there was ground for believing that there is a combine against the public interest, that is all the more reason the report should have been made public a year ago instead of a week ago. It is not Mr. Sutherland but the government which is on trial in this election. Yet now Mr. Stevens, a minister of the crown, comes into the riding and says he wants Mr. Sutherland returned to help in the fight of the tobacco growers. I tell you it is not one person but the policies of the government which will settle the fate of the tobacco growers. If one wants to be critical one can say that Mr. Stevens' plea was a threat of no battle for the tobacco growers unless Mr. Sutherland is returned. On the other hand it might be a bribe. I am not saying Mr. Stevens intended it as either. He shouldn't have made the statement at all. Under parliamentary institutions it doesn't matter who the man is, whether he be Liberal, Conservative, Farmer or Labor, every man stands for the interests of the constituency from which he is sent."

Dr. Manion's Prediction

Mr. King made reference to the speech of the Hon. Dr. Manion in the constituency in which Dr. Manion said that he had every reason to believe the government would lower interest rates on loans and mortgages. Mr. Bennett was asked in the House concerning this and answered that the predictions of any member of the government were based on his knowledge of what the government intends to do. No direct answer was given.

"Why did Mr. Manion need to bring up the question at all unless he was trying to leave in your mind the impression that he was stating something the government was going to do? Mr. Bennett told the House of Commons a few weeks ago that this couldn't be done. Mr. Bennett will take action at the time he thinks it should be taken, and any predictions his ministers make mean nothing," said Mr. King.

The Liberal leader declared that if parliament exists for any purpose at all, it is that the people's representatives might have control of the public treasury which is filled by taxation. Yet under the blank cheque clause of the relief bill the cabinet is taking this power away from parliament and a supine Tory majority says nothing. The dangers in such a policy have been exposed by the auditor-general's report on irregularities in the spending of funds under the blank cheque clause, said Mr. King.

Disastrous Trade Policies

The economic nationalism which has featured the Bennett trade policies cannot but in the end prove disastrous to Canadian agriculture and the other basic industries, he went on to say. Negotiation of trade treaties with countries outside the empire has been made more difficult by the Imperial Economic Conference trade agreements but today the Canadian farmer faces the loss of his markets in Britain through the demand of British farmers for protection. It is not to be expected, said Mr. King that Great Britain should adopt a protectionist policy in regard to some industries and not in the end apply it to agriculture.

"Where I think the Conservative party is wrong—perhaps I shouldn't use that expression because I don't think the majority of the party agree with Mr. Bennett but rather think he has gone too far in economic nationalism and the raising of tariffs—is in the misconception of the home market as a place and not as a purchasing power. As long as our basic industries produce as they do, it follows that a great share of the purchasing power in the home markets [illegible] far beyond this and has, in fact, had an adverse effect on living standards.

In conclusion Mr. King pointed out that in many European countries parliamentary institutions have been done away with and dictatorship of individuals or groups substituted. In the steady sapping of parliament's powers in Canada the same trend is apparent. "There is the same trend today to do away with the great guardians of the people's liberties, the House of Commons," he declared.

MR. LAPOINTE'S SPEECH

Special to The Advertiser

Tillsonburg, Ont., April 14—Declaring that the Bennett Government was bound to disappear in the near future and that we must see that it does not destroy Canada in its spasms of agony, the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice in the King Government, closed an eloquent speech here this evening in the interests of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate, on the eve of Monday's election. Duplicating the meeting of the Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, scores had to be turned away and this notable son of Quebec was given a great ovation as he was introduced by R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., for South Oxford.

Mr. Lapointe was critical of the Bennett regime but abstained from personalities. He stated he believed the Canadian people have been deceived the last few years and that the mouths of the farmers and laboring men could not be sweetened by simply yelling money.

"The Bennett Government has intensified the depression by false promises in 1930 and by the policies they have followed the past four years. Confidence is the mainspring of life for any government and the Canadian people in the last few months have shown the present government that they have lost the confidence of the country. All the wild statements and promises of the government made in 1930 are now coming home to roost.

"It is not production that is at fault but distribution, and the trade of Canada has been strangled since the Liberals were defeated in 1930. The [illegible] four years in parliament has been jazz or whoopee politics played to the tune of blank cheques at the expense of the people and parliament has been treated with contempt by the present administration, the speaker asserted.

"If anyone desires a title he should apply at once as the crop is low and there will not be another crop. It is freely rumored that the prime minister is to receive a peerage and I would suggest that the seven lean cows of the Scriptures be put on the coat of arms," Mr. Lapointe declared amid laughter.

"The people of Canada will judge the Bennett Government on its record and not on its prospectus and the return of the Liberal party will remove the shackles that have been forged for Canadian trade the past few years."

The Liberal candidate, A. S. Rennie, and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., also spoke briefly and urged a large Liberal majority on Monday.

PROMISES LIBERAL BEER POLICY SOON

rid of this wasteful government," he phophesied.

Promises Housecleaning

"If we get into power," promised Mr. Hepburn, "there's going to be a great housecleaning of Hydro and our first act will be to get rid of Engineer Gaby—not because he is Mr. Gaby, but because he has been getting $35,000 per year and allowing things to go on that should not occur."

Mr. Hepburn promised that other leading Hydro officials would go out with Engineer Gaby if the Liberals are elected. "We are going to take some of the supernumeraries off the backs of the burdened taxpayers, if we do nothing else. We are going to improve social conditions; have a minimum wage for men and women.

"W. G. Martin is another supernumerary, said Mr. Hepburn, "and he should go too.

Will be Hard Campaign

"This will be a hard campaign. There will be lots of campaign funds for the Conservatibes and it will be a hard fight. Watch out for the Government using trick methods," warned the speaker, and went on. "The Government are in a desperate position and they know it. They are casting about for help, blowing hot and blowing cold. Mr. Henry is headed for a fall."

Dr. L. J. Simpson, Liberal financial critic, in a vigorous speech criticized the economic policy of the Government. "The Conservatives will eventually land Ontario in bankruptcy," he charged, and in substantiation pointed to the fact that interest charges on the Provincial debt at present amounted to one-third of the annual revenue. Ontario's liabilities are very rapidly catching up to its assets, he declared. He charged that when the Ontario Government announced a surplus of $450,000 it was poor bookkeeping and not facts. Dr. Simpson stated that while the Conservatives were trying to make out that the Liberal party was an enemy of Hydro, this was not so. The Liberals he pointed out, are in favor of operating Hydro as it was done in the time of the late Sir Adam Beck.

ROBSON CHOSEN

Canadian Press Despatch

Guelph, April 14—Winning enthusiastic acclaim from a crowd which packed the city hall auditorium to the rafters, R. Beverly Robson, eight years mayor of Guelph, this afternoon was unanimously chosen Conservative candidate for South Wellington to oppose D. Paul Munro in the impending provincial election.

The choice was warmly approved by Hon. W. H. Price, attorney-general who defended the government's action in bringing in beer and wine legislation and criticised Opposition speakers as having no platform on any issue to offer the people. Mr. Robson's nomination was moved by W. P. Gamble, defeated Conservative candidate in the 1931 by-election.

"Mayor Robson won't have much difficulty beating out Mr. Munro at Queen's Park," said Attorney-General Price, declaring that the Liberal member was hardly in the House during 1932 and 1933. He made light of Mr. Munro's "highway funds misappropriation" charges and declaring that the Liberals had always "dodged the liquor issue" charged that Mr. Hepburn today has no definite policy on the question.

He spoke of the Liberal leader's "remote control" and charged that he was "driving tandem" with Dr. McQuibban and Mr. Nixon. He praised the splendid results which have been achieved by the Liquor Control Act and declared that the new beer legislation was only brought down after the most serious consideration. Canada has pulled ahead remarkably in the last six months, the attorney general went on, outlining the work which the government has done in relief measures.

The greatest anomaly in the world today, he charged was the statement of Mr. King that Mr. Bennett is a dictator, since in British Columbia Mr. Patullo a Liberal, has assumed virtual [illegible] he said, in conclusion.

A Matter of Exchange

"And here is something else: In 1929 we had Tory policies in effect—Canadian exports were $754,000,000; then came a change of policy with the election of the Liberals—by 1930 we had exports of $1,144,900,000, an increase of $390,000,000. Yet our friends the Tories ask us where we can get markets. We can get them where we got them before. There are more goods to b sold in the world than ever before. We can exchange the things we need for the tings other people need. The world has not changed—men are men with human instincts—not asses as Donald Sutherland asserts.

"Let me read you a paragraph from my very distinguished and gentlemanly opponent. He bears the title "honorable." He was a cabinet minister for a few days. He has had parliamentary experience. Note his language in a recent speech:

" 'Mr. Rennie cannot be as complete an ass as he appears to be'.

"Well, I found the other day this note upon the ass: 'An ass is used to bear people and burdens over the dangerous passages—that even an old war horse dare not venture.'

"Does my honorable friend assume that his failure to answer arguments can be met by calling names ? He ought to tell us if he hopes to 'blast' a way into foreign markets by that process.

Losing Markets

"We are now blasting our way out of markets. The gravest danger confronts the farmers of South Oxford today as a result. The arrangements of Great Britain regarding importation of meats end in June and Great Britain is likely to insist that Canadian tariffs are an impossible barrier and that Britain, because she cannot sell in Canada, must raise her barriers against Canada. We are likely to lose our dairy markets and our tobacco markets in the same way. Here is an extract from a recent government booklet published under authority of Mr. Weir, Minister of Agriculture.

" 'The large and increasing volume of butter and cheese imported into the United Kingdom has caused the British Government to enter into discussion with New Zealand and Australia with a view to the voluntary restriction of exports of these products to the United Kingdom. If any such agreements are concluded between the United Kingdom and New Zealand and Australia, Canada may be asked to take similar action.

" 'The possibility of restrictions on imports of dairy products into the United Kingdom would suggest that it would be advisable for Canadian producers to develop home consumption as much as possible.'

"What do you think will happen to us if we lose our foreign markets—our Empire markets? It will indeed be a sad day for the farmers of South Oxford.

Vital Issues

"These issues are vital—far too vital to escape immediate attention. Our friends say the election of the Liberals means the repeal of the British preference. This is nonsense of the crudest kind. We are not opposed to the preference—we are opposed to shadow preferences, fake preferences, which give nothing and get nothing and give more promise of losing than gaining markets. Once in office, Liberals will open markets, not close them—expand British trade—not restrict it. Opening markets is the natural function of Liberlism—closing them is the natural task of Toryism.

"We near the end of the campaign. This is the final appeal. There is before you the record of the two parties. They have both explained their viewpoints. South Oxford faces an election such as it never faced before. The conflict is between repression and freedom—between restriction of markets and liberation of trade. It matters little to me what happens in this campaign but it is vital to you. Time which sifts the wheat from the chaff and tests the ultimate measure of truth in every issue will vindicate the position we have taken in South Oxford throughout the campaign and the importance of the issue we have presented tonight."

N. WATERLOO LIBERALS NOMINATE APRIL 28

Kitchener, April 15.—The North Waterloo Liberals will choose their candidate for the forthcoming Provincial campaign at Waterloo on Saturday, April 28. This was decided at a meeting of the executive held in Waterloo Saturday afternoon, the second gathering of that body within a month.

FLAMING TANKER ADRIFT IN HARBOR

Port of Spain, Trinidad, April 15.—The Trinidad leasehold tanker Pyramid and her 11,000-gallon cargo of gasoline were destroyed by fire here today. The only man on her when flames broke out leaped overboard and swam to safety, after which the ship drifted about the harbor and menaced shipping. The fire finally burned itself out.

A scene in Pahiatua Wairarapa, where heaviest damage occurred during a recent earthquake. Heavy rain, following, added to the misery of the homeless. The town will have to be rebuilt.

needed was personal evangelism. "The gift of Canadian people to the Newcomers can be the Christ of Service," she added.

Following a selection by the choir of the Indian residential school at Muncey with Mrs. Jamieson as pianist, Ross Jung, a third-year Chinese medical student from Toronto, spoke. He explained that he had been born in British Columbia and that he hoped to go to China as a medical missionary. "Christianity broadened my outlook", he said as he told of his work among Chinese boys to foster good felowship and friendship among the youths.

Pays Tribute To Londoner

Dr. S. Y. Chao of Fowchow, China, an outstanding figure in hospital work for the Chinese church referred to his association with Dr. Wallace Crawford, who is the special medical missionary sent out by Metropolitan Church and paid tribute to the work of the former Londoner. Dr. Chao declared, "if we Christians really did as Christ taught us there would be no more fighting." The remark was made as he told of his friendship with Rev. N. Shirozu of Japan. Later in the afternoon Mr. Shirozu spoke briefly and mentioned the bond of friendship between them. Both men are in residence at Toronto taking special courses. Rev. R. S. Longley, of West China, another outstanding missionary, spoke briefly.

Dr. A. E. Armstrong, secretary Foreign Missions, introduced Rev. A. Broadfoot of South China; Dr. J. S. MacKay of Central India; Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Anderson, also of Central India; Dr. Walter Strangway, Angola, West Africa; Rev. Herbert T. Owens of Korea and two Alma College Oriental students, Miss Sada Niwase of Japan and Miss Pyugh Yong Rhu of Korea who also spoke briefly.

Speaks Optimistically of West

At the first mass rally held in Metropolitan Church on Saturday evening, Rev. Dr. George Dorey, superintendent of missions in Saskatchewan, in charge of relief work there, spoke optimistically of the conditions in the Western province where drouth and crop failures have imposed a terrific burden on the church people of the stricken area.

Dr. Dorey declared that the church has invariably flourished in the face of difficulty and told that in spite of the curtailment of funds the United Church is keeping the churches and Sunday schools open.

"The church in the West is replacing despair with hope, cynicism with faith and panic with courage," said Dr. Dorey and declared that this is being made possible by the generosity and loyalty of the people both in the East and the West.

"You pay your dues to your lodges to keep in good standing but the contributions to the missionary and maintenance are given through a love for the Church," said the speaker.

Thanks Donors of Supplies

Dr. Dorey told of the great number of cars of food and supplies which had reached the West from this part of Ontario and thanked the donors.

Following Dr. Dorey, Dr. W. E. Strangway presented an illustrated lecture on the medical and missionary work in Africa. Rev. W. A. Walden, Empress Avenue Church, was chairman of the rally.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Armstrong, secretary of the foreign mission board, was the guest preacher at First United Church in the morning. A missionary for more than 27 years, he drew on his wide experience to place before the congregation something of the spirit required in missionary work. As an example he told of the Moravian Church, which has its headquarters in Herrnhut, Germany, and which with only 60,000 members supports 290 missionaries. He pointed out that the United Church could support 3,000 missionaries instead of 500 if they had the same zealous Christian spirit.

Work In Saskatchewan

At St. Andrews Church the work in Northern Saskatchewan was explained by Rev. John Nichol, mission superintendent in that district. He stated that conditions are no better financially than they have been for the past few years and said that the troubles in the West are teaching both people of theEast and West the real values of life.

Messages along similar lines were presented by the missionaries in other city United Churches. Rev. G. A. Williams was the speaker at Colborne Street Church. Rev. F. A. Anderson of India and Rev. Manson Doyle, Toronto, were the guest speakers at Calvary United service. At Dundas Centre Rev. R. B. Layton, Western Canada and Rev. D. G. Cock of India spoke at the morning and evening services respectively.

Work of the foreign missions was outlined to the congregations at Centennial Church by Rev. Dr. J. S. McKay, India, and Rev. K. J. Beaton, Toronto. Rev. Mr. Beaton and Rev. Dr. Armstrong were the guests at Hyatt Avenue church and Rev. Dr. MacKay spoke at Knox Church evening service.

Rev. Manson Doyle was the [illegible] er at the morning service in King St. United.

Program For Today

The program of the mission conference for today is as follows:

10.00-12.00 a.m.—Round Table Conference for Ministers and Lay Workers. Theme: "Home Missions," conducted by Home Missions Superintendents.

and gaurantee bank deposit proposals should be placed on the statute books.

Opposed

It also was indicated the administration was opposed to action on the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing-inflation bill.

The President is ready to veto the general revenue bill because of the proposed tax of three cents a pound on Phillipine Oils and Senator Pat Harrison (D., Miss.), chairman of the finance committee, planned to ask the Senate tomorrow to reconsider the bill, passed Friday. It has not yet reached the House, where opposition was voiced yesterday to many of the Senate provisions increasing the total from $258,000,000 to $480,000,000.

Against Thomas Bill

Aministration disapproval of legislation to release millions of dollars in closed banks was officially disclosed tonight in a letter written by Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the Treasury to Chairman Duncan Fletcher (D., Fla.) of the Senate banking committee.

Mentioning specifically the bill by Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), Morgenthau said that under the legislation "nearly half of the money to be distributed would be received by about four per centum of the depositantee of bank deposits "past, presors"; that it would represent a guarent and future," and that it would cost the taxpayers from "$1,250,000,000 to $2,500,000,000."

SIR FREDERICK WALL TO GET $50,000 GIFT

London, April 14.—A sum of $50,000 will be presented to Sir Frederick Wall who is retiring in July as secretary of the English Football Association, which he has served for 40 years.

The council of the F. A., deciding on the gift to-day said it would be in recognition of the "untiring energy and valuable service to British football" of Sir Frederick.

TWO CHILDREN PERISH IN BURNING HOME

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 14.—Two children were burned to death today when the frame cabin of Mr. and Mrs. Riddel, settlers near Hearst, was razed by flames.

VANCOUVER CAGERS WIN

Lethbridge, Alta., April 15.—Vancouver Provinces tonight held a 48-41 victory over Lethbridge Young Liberals as they moved eastward to Winnipeg to meet Robertson Memorials in the Western Canada men's senior basketball final.

The British Columbia champions downed the Alberta runners-up in an exhibition game here last night in a fast session. With the home team giving the visitors plenty of opposition, Young Liberals lost out to Raymond Union Jacks, who were eliminated in two straight games in the interprovincial playdowns by Province. The Winnipeg series opens Tuesday night.

NEWBURY WOMAN BURNED

Singeing a chicken with a piece of blazing paper Saturday afternoon almost cost the life of Mrs. Violet Dennis, aged 41, of Newbury. Mrs. Dennis accidentally dropped the paper, the flames ignited her clothing, and she suffered painful burns to her arms and back. She was brought to Victoria Hospital here.

WINDS HALT MIGRATING GEESE

Rosser, Man., April 14.—High winds interrupted the migratory flight of huge flocks of geese here today. Thousands of the birds, unable to make headway against the 30-mile-an-hour blow halted for the week-end in this locality, about 18 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

Club. In the men's singles, Chowen defeated George Burton in two straight games, 15-9, 15-9, to cop the title, while Mrs. Adamson was disposing of Miss Dorothy Mason in the ladies singles by scores of 5-11, 11-5, 11-3. In the men's doubles Chowen and Herbert Hason disposed of Nichols and Nethercott to the tune of 15-10, 15-3, while Mrs. Adamson and Miss Mason teamed up in the ladies doubles to defeat Mrs. L. J. Salter and Miss Ross, 15-1, 15-11. To round out their triple victories Mrs. Adamson and Chowen paired up to defeat Miss Mary Doherty and Jack Binning by scores of 15-6, 12-15, 15-8.

Results of the semi final and final matches on Saturday were:

Men's Singles

Semi finals, Burton defeated Nichols, 17-14, 6-15, 15-13; Chowen defeated Grice, 18-13, 15-4; Finals, Chowen defeated Burton, 15-10, 15-9.

Ladies Singles

Semi finals, Mrs. Adamson defeated Mrs. R. A. Reid, 11-0, 11-5; Miss Dorothy Mason defeated Mrs. Harry Kastner, 11-2, 11-9; Finals, Mrs. Adamson defeated Miss Mason 5-11, 11-5, 11-3.

Mixed Doubles

Semi finals, Mrs. Adamson and Chowen defeated Miss Humber and Boyles, 15-5, 15-5; Miss Doherty and Binning defeated Miss Mason and H. Mason, 18-15, 18-13. Finals, Mrs. Adamson and Chowen defeated Miss Doherty and Binning, 15-6, 12-15, 15-8.

Men's Doubles

Semi finals, Chowen and Mason defeated Grice and McKinnon, 15-8,15-10; Nichols and Nethercott defeated Forster and Burton 15-10, 15-9. Finals, Chowen and Mason defeated Nichols and Nethercott, 15-0, 15-3.

Ladies Doubles

Semi finals, Mrs. Adamson and Miss Mason defeated Mrs. Kastner and Mrs. Reid, 15-5, 15-5; Mrs. Salter and Miss Ross defeated Mrs. Nethercott and Miss Easson, 13-15, 15-4, 15-8. Finals, Mrs. Adamson and Miss Mason defeated Mrs. Salter and Miss Ross, 15-1, 15-11.

Bust Toronto Domination—London Orange Crush 6th In Team Contest

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—Hamilton Bowlers tonight had completed the most smashing rout of Toronto Trundlers in the history of Canadian Bowling Association Tournaments. Mountain City entrants captured the doubles and singles events but were edged out of the team title by four points.

W. Wright of Hamilton Olympia No. 2 who counted a sensational 947 in the team competition had a blow on the 10th frame to see his squad place second to Toronto Olympia No. 1 who had 3,698 against Hamilton's 3,694.

H. C. McKellar of Hamilton a past-president of the C.B.A., winning the singles with 911. The Hamilton pair of V. Colville and A. Wagner scored 1,664 to take the doubles crown. J. Walsh of Toronto counted 2,477 to take the grand aggregate.

Toronto players had monopolized the victories in the previous seven tournaments and this was the first year premier prizes had left the city. A new record was made in entrants, 1,836 players participating the tourney which began last Monday.

W. Wright had the highest single game and three games scores 402 and 947 respectively, but he obtained these in the team competition.

Winipeg with 3,631 finished fifth in the team event after suffering many bad breaks.

Toronto Olympia No. 2 with 3,666 and Toronto Rangers with 3,643 were third and fourth respectively in the team contest. London Orange Crush had 3,618 for sixth.

In the doubles R. Duncan and A. Barrett of Toronto were second with 1,597. In the singles W. Adams of Toronto was second with 894. F. Melling also of Toronto third with 876 and C. Bradley of Ottawa fourth with 857.

In the team event, Waterloo Kuntz were 12th; Oshawa 17th; Montreal C.N.R.E.A. 28th; Windsor Heintzman 31st; London Maple Leaf 33rd; Ottawa Karry's 34th.

In the singles T. Huggett of Stratford was sixth; G. Urquhart of Winnipeg, eighth; and T. Martin of London, 10th.

NO PARDON FOR KID McCOY

Sacramento, Calif., April 14.—Norman Selby, once known to fistic fans as "Kid McCoy," must remain on parole from San Quentin prison.

The state advisory pardon board notified the Governor's office it had declined to recommend a pardon for McCoy, which would have returned him full citizenship. It gave no reason.

SUPREME COURT TAKES BOXER'S PURSE AWAY

Canadian Press Despatch

Halifax, April 14.—Roy Mitchell, Halifax colored scrapper, lost a decision today, but not in the squared circle. His end of the gate in a fight with Tiger Warrington last year was declared forfeited by Mr. Justice R. H. Graham in Supreme Court.

His Lordship found the Halifax fight was "not an honest exhibition of boxing" and Mitchell "did not perform his contract." The negro fighter had been accused by Promoter J. M. Harris of "stalling," and the promoter withheld his share of the receipts.

Mitchell won the verdict in County Court, but His Lordship's decision today exempted Harris from payment.

Slighting South Oxford

South Oxford electors who go to the polls today may well ask why they were not permitted to exercise the right earlier.

The seat was vacated nearly a year ago by the death of Mr. Cayley. Three other seats were vacated about the same time or later for various reasons—Restigouche-Madawaska, N. B., Yamaska, Que., and Mackenzie, Saskatchewan. By-elections in these three constituencies were held last October, on the same day. Why was South Oxford excluded? Mr. King asked that question at Ingersoll Saturday night.

The fact is that the Government wished to disenfranchise South Oxford for the remainder of the present Parliament and would have succeeded but for the Liberal party. As time went on and the Government made no move to fill the seat the Liberals took matters into their own hands. Mr. King asked two Liberal members of Parliament to file the necessary papers, thus compelling the Government to fix the date of the by-election within six months. Even then the Government delayed it until the greater part of the present session of Parliament had passed. No thanks will be due the Government if South Oxford is represented for the remainder of the session. The constituency should resent the treatment it has received and today it probably will.

Might Have Been Foreseen

The London Times, discussing the conflict of interest between farmers in the United Kingdom and in the Dominions, says that at the Imperial Economic Conference it was not foreseen that Great Britain would embark upon a serious effort to restore her own agricultural industries. If so, this is a remarkable illustration of ignoring the obvious. When protection was revived in Great Britain, it was inevitable that the farmers of that country should claim a share in its benefits as well as the manufacturer. The revival of British agriculture has been a stock subject of discussion in the United Kingdom for many years. Its advocates dwelt upon the fact that enormous quantities of food were imported which might just as well have been produced at home. Some pleaded for tariff protection. Others said that too much land available for agriculture was given up to hunting. As to tariff protection, it was obvious that there would be a conflict of interest between farmers in the United Kingdom and of the Dominions. This was disclosed in inquiries made during the discussion over the Chamberlain proposals more than thirty years ago. Farmers who liked the prospect of protection against foreigners were not enthusiastic about preferences in favor of the Dominions. The Dominion imports, just like the foreign imports, came into competition with their own.

This is precisely the same as the attitude of the advocates of protection for manufacturing industry in Canada. They wanted protection against foreigners, and also against the manufacturers of Great Britain. Mr. Bennett took this ground very strongly. The Times says that the British farmer has the same right to be protected against Dominion competition as Dominion manufacturers have to be protected against British. "A prosperous agricultural population is at least as necessary for Great Britain as a prosperous textile or iron and steel industry is for Canada or Australia." It proceeds to say:

> What our correspondent urges is that, in her efforts to revive the agricultural industries, Great Britain should avoid the excessive and indiscriminate protection adopted by the principal industrial countries on the continent to the impoverishment of the agricultural countries and the ruin of world trade; that the Government should determine what foodstuffs and what quantities of them can be produced at home without too great an economic sacrifice, and what margin should be left to be supplied from the Dominions and from foreign countries.

In other words, if there are to be protective tariffs not only against the foreigner but against producers within the British Commonwealth of Nations, they must be moderate if Empire trade is to be encouraged. This is exactly where the Bennett policy fails. No one jurious to Canada. All we can do now is to keep our own tariffs moderate, so that we may fairly claim similar treatment from Great Britain.

Four Men to Control the World Wheat Market

A committee sitting in London has worked out a world marketing scheme on a basis naively described as one of "fluctuating fixed prices." Despatches call it complicated. A fluctuating fixture does suggest a certain degree of complexity. The plan, we are told, does not determine a minimum price but outlines a method by which minimum prices may be maintained. It is predicted that the committee will draw up a schedule which will provide for five to ten per cent. increase in the price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, which is the world's standard. Other grades will be treated correspondingly. Regulation of wheat prices will involve control of the prices and production of flour. As the quantities of wheat for export and consumption must be restricted, a certain portion of the crop in several countries will be denatured—made unfit for human consumption—so as to reserve it for live stock. It will be feed, not food.

This is what the world has come to, through the attempt of nearly all countries to become self-sufficient and deny themselves the advantages of international co-operation. Canada as the greatest exporter of wheat must be the greatest sufferer. She is punished by almost world-wide application of an economic dogma which her own Government preaches and practices. It was summed up by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, when he said: "Our idea is that nothing shall be imported into Canada which can be grown or manufactured or otherwise produced in this country." Because many wheat-producing countries are acting on that idea and growing wheat at any cost, Canada is deprived of a large part of her export market, and is told that she must cut down her production of wheat, the crop which has created the prairie West and still sustains it. Even Great Britain has been infected by the self-containment craze, and is bonusing the growth of wheat by a fixed price of $1.30 a bushel. The Canadian Government is encouraging Britain to resort to her own soil for her own food by making it difficult for her to buy Canadian products. She can only buy these products by selling her own goods, against which Canada has erected high tariffs. The Ottawa Government is today actually fighting its own Tariff Board because the Board believes the Government is not keeping faith with Great Britain.

Canada produces the best wheat in all the world, and all the world has bought it through hundreds of agencies and channels. In future if the London agreement is sanctioned, four men will sit in London and decide where it will go and in what quantities and at what prices. They will replace the law of supply and demand. To this condition has Canada's basic industry been reduced by the international adoption of the economic creed to which the Canadian Government subscribes and which it has rivetted on this country, fettering it as never before.

Note and Comment

There is no longer any talk of blasting our way into the world markets. Canada has been hoist with her own petard.

President Roosevelt is said to be losing some of his authority over Congress. But there is no sign that he is losing his popularity in the country.

Prime Minister Bennett denouncing Premier Pattullo's usurpation of legislative powers is another case of the pot reproaching the kettle for its dark complexion.

At Ingersoll Mr. King pointed out that the South Oxford by-election would be held two days before budget day. He thought this was significant and it suggested that a stiffer dose of taxation is coming which would not be good campaign material.

The British steel industry has devised a five-year plan for complete re-organization, and will ask for a five-year extension. There is room for improvement. When Sir Henry Thornton was prepared to give large orders for steel, not made in Canada, he could find no one in this country representing British steel interests.

It is announced that the Canadian budget this week will make some revisions in the British-Canadian trade agreement. It should be revised out of all recognition, so as to save the fast-closing British market for Canadian farm products before it is too late. But that means that Canada must give Britain a square deal, which she is not getting now.

TRUE SPORTSMANSHIP
(Sherbrooke Record)

Bobby Jones, the greatest golfer of all time, showed his good sportsmanship when his Atlantan neighbors decided to hold the first big golf tournament of the spring season. All the golfers, pro and gentlemen, on their way up north from down South, were invited to join in a week's golf at Bobby's home town, where he presently practises law and often gets into the winner's column with persuasively soft, drawling accents of the true Georgian. Though Bobby Jones did not do so well, and the prizes went to lesser lights, the Atlantan was the life of the party. Here is a man who won every crown in the golfing world, preserved his amateurism to the end, then retired gracefully so that he might not stand in the way of the up and coming.

BERMUDA'S CHARM
(Ottawa Journal)

Commercialists in Bermuda who annually ask the island legislature to permit automobiles, with the idea that there will be "money in it" for the islanders (meaning a few selfish persons) are warned against it by Sinclair Lewis, the novelist, in his usual piquant language. He pictures main streets "strewn with hot dog stands, empty cigarette cartons, and beer bottles" and "buses full of shrieking tourists waving beer bottles at you as they roar through the dust?"

Lovers of Bermuda will applaud him. Bermuda is a paradise for thousands of people because it is "different," because its lanes winding charmingly are safe for hikers, because it is a delightful relief from monoxide gas, because its quietness is unbroken save for the caroling of birds and the dull roar of breakers on coral reefs; because it is "old fashioned."

When Bermuda is unable to offer these longed-for joys in a world distraught by commercialism at its worst, Bermuda will have lost its principal charm.

200 AT MEETING OF I.O.O.F. HERE

District Encampment No. 8, Stages Rally—Visitors Exemplify Degrees

Nearly 200 members of the I. O. O. F. gathered in London on Saturday night for the rally of District Encampment No. 8 which was held in the I. O. O. F. lodgerooms, Bank of Nova Scotia Building. The visitors were present from Watford, Kerrwood, Mount Brydges, Kitchener Brantford and London. The rally was held by Harmony Encampment No. 3 of this city, and proved to be one of the best gatherings that has ever been staged by the Order in this district.

The degree teams from Kitchener and Brantford were present. The Kitchener team exemplified the Patriarchal and Royal Purple degrees while the Brantford team exemplified the Golden Rule Degree.

Following the business meeting Saturday night a banquet was held at which short addresses were delivered by several of the outstanding visitors.

The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of R. G. Legg, chairman; A. Chapman, J. Sugerman, W. T. Wheeler, Percy Pawley and W. A. McRoberts.

The gathering was one of the most interesting and instructive held by the local Encampment. The visiting degree teams complimented for their work.

Among the outstanding members present were Roy Sloat, G. J. W., of Brantford, a member of the Grand Encampment of Ontario; R. E. Waltham of Kerrwood, P. G. P. and a grand representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge; August Kutoba, of Kitchener, P. G. P., who took an active part in the degree work; W. Leonard, D. D. G. I. of District No. 18; Howard McLean, D. D. G. P. of Kerrwood, of District No. 8, and several others.

On the arrival of the visitors on Saturday afternoon, a luncheon was held in a downtown restaurant.

LIGHTER EXPLODES, SETS BED ON FIRE

Maple Street Man Unhurt In Unusual Mishap—Firemen Extinguish Cellar Blaze

When the cigarette lighter he was filling is said by firemen to have exploded Sunday afternoon, A. Jackson of 92 Maple street, escaped injury but a resulting fire did considerable damage to a mattress and some bed sheets. The blaze was extinguished by firemen from King street station before it gained headway to other parts of the house.

Firemen say that Mr. Jackson was sitting on the dege of the bed pouring fluid into his lighter when some overflowed. When he tried the lighter it ignited and a small explosion resulted. Mr. Jackson jumped to safety and in less than a minute the bed clothing was on fire.

On Saturday afternoon firemen had another run to Maple street where smoke was issuing from the basement of No. 146 Maple street. An examination revealed that some live coals had dropped from the grate to the ashpit clean-out below, and had ignited some cardboard. The small fire was extinguished before damage resulted.

Murder And Suicide Suspected—Couple Friends For Seven Years

Associated Press Despatch

Philadelphia, April 14 — The man and woman found dead in a river front hotel today were identified as Paul Benson 36, of Camden, N.J., and Pauline Skiba 28, of Philadelphia.

Police said they learned the couple had been friends for seven years. Police also said they believe that Benson killed the woman and then shot himself.

Confronted by fictitious registration, police had difficulty in identifying the bodies, whose expensive clothing and jewelry afforded sharp contrast to the dingy hotel room in which they were found shot to death.

FIRST MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR STUDENTS, GRADUATES OF UNIVERSITY OF W.O.

Faculty, Students And Administration Staff Participate In Impressive Ceremony

DR. SERWOOD FOX IS CHIEF SPEAKER

Tribute Paid To Memory Of 28 Formerly Connected With University

In respectful memory of 28 men and women who at some time before their death were connected with the University of Western Ontario, students, faculties and administration staff Sunday afternoon gathered in Convocation Hal to listen to a Memorial address given by President W. Sherwood Fox and to participate in the first annual service of this kind at Western.

As the light filtered through the stained-glass windows of Convocation Hall, the large congregation stood in silence while the strains of Chopin's Funeral March were played. With bowed heads present students thought of the reference made by Dr. Fox that it would be their duty to carry on the tasks which, taken up, had been removed from the hands of past students and graduates by the intervention of death.

Memory Honored

Those men and women whom Western, as a maternal guiding light, yesterday mourned, are as follows:

Elmer Armstrong, Arthur Barber, Dr. C. W. Brown, '06, Dr. B. F. Butler, Dr. J. A. Campbell, '12, Dr. R. M. Charlton, '06, H. J. Childs, Margaret Crawford, '26, Sir Arthur Currie, '24, Dr. L. H. Douglass, '5, Dr. W. S. Downham, '12, Dr. D. B. Fraser, '28, Archie D. Graham, Dr. R. M. Gubbins, '92, Rev. S. P. Irwin, '98, Dr. N T. Johnson, '02, Dr. K. M. Lindsay, '28, Dr. A. B. Macallum, Dr. J. E. Mason, '14, Georgina Munroe, Dr. W. J. Nesbitt, '12, Sarah Paterson, John Pringle, Frances Steer, '26, Jean Stewart, '33, Dr. W. J. Taylor, '10, Dr. C. E. Tran, '12, Rev. Geo. Vrooman, '19.

The lessons for the service were taken from Ecclesiastes, XLIV 1-15 and Hebrews XI, 13-16 and 32-40, and were read by Prof. J. A. Spenceley, of the Department of English, who also conducted the remaining service part of the program. Frank Stiles provided musical accompaniments.

Dr. Fox Main Speaker

Dr. Fox, as the main speaker, eulogised the various groups of students which death took from the various faculties and departments of the school. The list as given included those who died since January, 1933.

"Even in a small university, each year its noticeable toll from the academic circle of administration, faculties, alumni and students," Dr. Fox declared. "You will note that I include graduates in this group. As I have said on many occasions before, graduates—or, in the more affectionate Latin term, alumni—are, though living outside the college halls, just as much a part of the family circle as they were when they lived within those halls. By their Alma Mater they are always regarded as present, however great the distance that divides them from her physically. One of the penalties of the university's growth is that these grievous exactions of death become with the passing of time more numerous and hence increasingly striking and poignant. We who remain are indeed through the loss of our friends and colleagues, but we find some measure of consolation in our cherished memory of their noble characters and their unselfish lives. Our grief is assuaged when we pause to remind ourselves that the truly good in human life and thought and deed is never lost but continue for all time in some form. Indeed, it is the function of those of us who are left behind to help the good thus to continue. Our beloved friends began a task, and upon us falls the burden of carrying it on devotedly, until we in our turn are summoned to surrender it to our successors.

Represent Many Spheres

"In reviewing these names one cannot but remark the variety of spheres of activity that they represent. As a group they represent a typical cross section of our social life. Their fields of endeavor are emblematic of the contribution their university is making to the life of the nation. In them we can read in letters written large the real and vital mission of a university to any nation, for, contrary to an opinion that is all too common, a modern university touches not merely the academic phases of national life, but every phase. In a most mysterious and quiet way it permeates the whole fabric of our society.

Represent 3 Greatest Professions

"So many of those who have died belonged to three of the greatest professions—the Ministry, Teaching and Medicine. All of these are among the noblest of callings, and I know I shall not be understood as slighting the first two mentioned when for a moment I refer to the third, Medicine. I fear that this profession has not received from the world the measure of tribute that is its due. During the stress of the past five years the burden of care and duty that has been laid upon the physician and surgeon has been beyond human calculation. Always ready to give of their knowledge and skill, they have responded promptly to the countless calls that these trying times have made upon them. The vast majority have forgotten themselves in serving others and in so doing have in all too many instances concealed the fact that they themselves were in need of help and rest and comfort. Some in adhering to their vows to put service to their fellowmen above all else have brought themselves to the verge of poverty. Some have denied themselves the opportunity of further study rather than to seem to desert their home community in the time of great trouble. And I know that several of those to whose memories we pay homage today have passed from the host of the living because unselfishly they spent their health and strength before their time. It is the wish of every one of us that all due honor be paid to them. May their successors be animated by the same altruistic spirit. May their lives be spared, if God so wills, to long years of service amongst us."

The power house was destroyed with damages estimated at $10,000. No one was injured.

COURT SANCTIONS MONEY TRANSFER

Goderich Branch Of Bank Of Montreal To Pay Mrs. B. Jackson's Funds Into Court

Officially washing its hands of the case, Bank of Montreal sought and was granted permission in weekly high court here Saturday to pay into court the $3,425 which it holds in its Goderich branch to the credit of 21-year-old Betty Jackson. The application was made by Huron R. Davidson, acting for the bank, while Arthur LeBel, counsel for Mrs. Jackson; and S. G. Robertson, representing Miss Lucy Taylor, consented to the order. Costs of the bank, amounting to $45, are to be paid out of the money.

The money is held under an injunction granted by County Judge Joseph Wearing until trial of the $5,500 supreme court action for alleged theft brought by Miss Lucy B. Taylor against Mrs. Jackson.

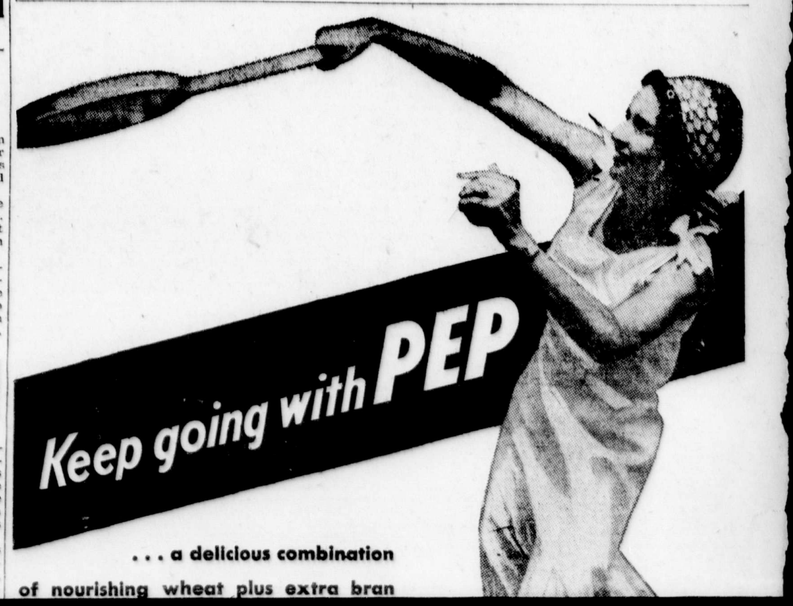
Mrs. Jackson has admitted that the $3,425 in the Goderich branch is a part of $5,000 paid to her by Miss Taylor for use in attempting to secure a governor's pardon for George Taylor, serving a ten-year-term in Kansas State Prison.

At the same time, it is announced that Mrs. Jackson is carrying her fight for possession of the money to the appeal court at Osgoode Hall. Her counsel, Arthur LeBel, has filed notice that he is appealing the decision of Judge Wearing. He will again argue that the money should be released to Mrs. Jackson. Hearing of the appeal has been set for Wednesday, April 18, at Toronto.

ALLEGE LONDONER STRUCK CONSTABLE

Ridout Street Man Charged With Assault Following Police Raid

Charged with assaulting a police constable, a Ridout street man will appear in city police court this morning, following a police raid on his apartment on Saturday night. Police say the man, his wife and four others were arrested and taken to the King street police station at 10:40 o'clock Saturday night.



The local man is alleged to have assaulted P. C. Fred Fuller, who in company with Constable Joseph Miles and Sergt. William Middaugh raided his apartment.

While the officers were in the residence, the man is alleged to have kicked P. C. Fuller in the shins and to have inflicted scratches on his face and caused several body injuries. Constable Fuller just returned to duty a few days ago after being at his home on sick leave.

With the exception of the occupant of the house, the others are charged with being disorderly.

WIFE FAINTS IN COURT AS HUSBAND SENTENCED

Windsor, Ont., April 14. — Alex Schacht, 28, learned today that the law does not forget. He returned recently to Windsor after an absence of three years and was at once arrested on a warrant charging robbery with violence which had been issued before his departure. His young wife, attending the court hearing, fainted as her husband was sentenced to two years in Kingston penitentiary.

When protection was revived in Great Britain, it was inevitable that the farmers of that country should claim a share in its benefits as well as the manufacturer. The revival of British agriculture has been a stock subject of discussion in the United Kingdom for many years. Its advocates dwelt upon the fact that enormous quantities of food were imported which might just as well have been produced at home. Some pleaded for tariff protection. Others said that too much land available for agriculture was given up to hunting. As to tariff protection, it was obvious that there would be a conflict of interest between farmers in the United Kingdom and of the Dominions. This was disclosed in inquiries made during the discussion over the Chamberlain proposals more than thirty years ago. Farmers who liked the prospect of protection against foreigners were not enthusiastic about preferences in favor of the Dominions. The Dominion imports, just like the foreign imports, came into competition with their own.

This is precisely the same as the attitude of the advocates of protection for manufacturing industry in Canada. They wanted protection against foreigners, and also against the manufacturers of Great Britain. Mr. Bennett took this ground very strongly. The Times says that the British farmer has the same right to be protected against Dominion competition as Dominion manufacturers have to be protected against British. "A prosperous agricultural population is at least as necessary for Great Britain as a prosperous textile or iron and steel industry is for Canada or Australia." It proceeds to say:

> What our correspondent urges is that, in her efforts to revive the agricultural industries, Great Britain should avoid the excessive and indiscriminate protection adopted by the principal industrial countries on the continent to the impoverishment of the agricultural countries and the ruin of world trade; that the Government should determine what foodstuffs and what quantities of them can be produced at home without too great an economic sacrifice, and what margin should be left to be supplied from the Dominions and from foreign countries.

In other words, if there are to be protective tariffs not only against the foreigner but against producers within the British Commonwealth of Nations, they must be moderate if Empire trade is to be encouraged. This is exactly where the Bennett policy fails. No one can claim with any semblance of reason that the Bennett tariffs against British imports are moderate. They have caused frequent complaints from manufacturers in Great Britain, and they have brought about a conflict between the Bennett Government and its own Tariff Board. The natural sequence is a demand from British farmers for more tariff protection against the Dominions, or modification of the quotas. If there is to be moderation it must be on both sides.

With the best that can be done, it is doubtful if the Canadian farmer will ever have as favorable a position in the British market as he had when Great Britain was under free trade. The best he can hope for is some advantage over the foreign producer, but in a smaller market. There was great rejoicing among extreme and fanatical protectionists in Canada when Great Britain abandoned free trade and they did all in their power to encourage the movement. Its influence on the whole is in-

[illegible] minimum price but outlines a method by which minimum prices may be maintained. It is predicted that the committee will draw up a schedule which will provide for five to ten per cent. increase in the price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, which is the world's standard. Other grades will be treated correspondingly. Regulation of wheat prices will involve control of the prices and production of flour. As the quantities of wheat for export and consumption must be restricted, a certain portion of the crop in several countries will be denatured—made unfit for human consumption—so as to reserve it for live stock. It will be feed, not food.

This is what the world has come to, through the attempt of nearly all countries to become self-sufficient and deny themselves the advantages of international co-operation. Canada as the greatest exporter of wheat must be the greatest sufferer. She is punished by almost world-wide application of an economic dogma which her own Government preaches and practices. It was summed up by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, when he said: "Our idea is that nothing shall be imported into Canada which can be grown or manufactured or otherwise produced in this country." Because many wheat-producing countries are acting on that idea and growing wheat at any cost, Canada is deprived of a large part of her export market, and is told that she must cut down her production of wheat, the crop which has created the prairie West and still sustains it. Even Great Britain has been infected by the self-containment craze, and is bonusing the growth of wheat by a fixed price of $1.30 a bushel. The Canadian Government is encouraging Britain to resort to her own soil for her own food by making it difficult for her to buy Canadian products. She can only buy these products by selling her own goods, against which Canada has erected high tariffs. The Ottawa Government is today actually fighting its own Tariff Board because the Board believes the Government is not keeping faith with Great Britain.

Canada produces the best wheat in all the world, and all the world has bought it through hundreds of agencies and channels. In future if the London agreement is sanctioned, four men will sit in London and decide where it will go and in what quantities and at what prices. They will replace the law of supply and demand. To this condition has Canada's basic industry been reduced by the international adoption of the economic creed to which the Canadian Government subscribes and which it has rivetted on this country, fettering it as never before.

Note and Comment

There is no longer any talk of blasting our way into the world markets. Canada has been hoist with her own petard.

President Roosevelt is said to be losing some of his authority over Congress. But there is no sign that he is losing his popularity in the country.

Prime Minister Bennett denouncing Premier Pattullo's usurpation of legislative powers is another case of the pot reproaching the kettle for its dark complexion.

At Ingersoll Mr. King pointed out that the South Oxford by-election would be held two days before budget day. He thought this was significant and it suggested that a stiffer dose of taxation is coming which would not be good campaign material.

The British steel industry has devised a five-year plan for complete re-organization, and will ask for a five-year extension. There is room for improvement. When Sir Henry Thornton was prepared to give large orders for steel, not made in Canada, he could find no one in this country representing British steel interests.

It is announced that the Canadian budget this week will make some revisions in the British-Canadian trade agreement. It should be revised out of all recognition, so as to save the fast-closing British market for Canadian farm products before it is too late. But that means that Canada must give Britain a square deal, which she is not getting now.

Hitlerites boast that unemployment has been reduced one-half under the present regime. It has been reduced only by putting two million men to work for the Government. In the meantime the export trade has fallen rapidly and a crisis in exchange has developed. Hatred in other countries of the cruelties of Hitler rule has vastly reduced the foreign demand for German goods.

Mussolini has decreed that every unmarried man in Italy must pay 50 per cent. of his income to the State. The law is a gross interference with personal liberty. A man who marries merely to escape taxation is not likely to be a good husband. Besides, the standard of living is falling so steadily Italy that many single men must have difficulty in keeping themselves. A new ukase has just slashed wages and salarie for the third time within two years. Prices and rents are also cut, but if there is to be any reduction in profits and dividends the despatches do not mention it.

TRUE SPORTSMANSHIP
(Sherbrooke Record)

Bobby Jones, the greatest golfer of all time, showed his good sportsmanship when his Atlantan neighbors decided to hold the first big golf tournament of the spring season. All the golfers, pro and gentlemen, on their way up north from down South, were invited to join in a week's golf at Bobby's home town, where he presently practises law and often gets into the winner's column with persuasively soft, drawling accents of the true Georgian. Though Bobby Jones did not do so well, and the prizes went to lesser lights, the Atlantan was the life of the party. Here is a man who won every crown in the golfing world, preserved his amateurism to the end, then retired gracefully so that he might not stand in the way of the up and coming.

BERMUDA'S CHARM
(Ottawa Journal)

Commercialists in Bermuda who annually ask the island legislature to permit automobiles, with the idea that there will be "money in it" for the islanders (meaning a few selfish persons) are warned against it by Sinclair Lewis, the novelist, in his usual piquant language. He pictures main streets "strewn with hot dog stands, empty cigarette cartons, and beer bottles" and "buses full of shrieking tourists waving beer bottles at you as they roar through the dust?"

Lovers of Bermuda will applaud him. Bermuda is a paradise for thousands of people because it is "different," because its lanes winding charmingly are safe for hikers, because it is a delightful relief from monoxide gas, because its quietness is unbroken save for the caroling of birds and the dull roar of breakers on coral reefs; because it is "old fashioned."

When Bermuda is unable to offer these longed-for joys in a world distraught by commercialism at its worst, Bermuda will have lost its principal charm.

The London, Ont., Adverstiser, a thoughtful newspaper, sees no value in arguments sometimes heard that war is a vitalizing thing, that we are apt to become a slothful race without it, that there is a needed excitement about the thing for humanity.

If any persons want war for purposes of excitement or for drilling a new vitality into the race, it might be suggested that the fighting be left solely to them. War furnishes excitement, it is true, for those who want that kind of excitement, but there is no helpfulness of any sort in a situation that leave long lines of dead and broken bodies and of multitudes of widows and orphans.

THE TIME MUDDLE
(Kitchener Record)

The daylight saving muddle is again on the threshold. If the powers that be took this thing in hand and passed a law to have fast time in vogue for the two midsummer months from coast to coast there wouldn't be the annual confusion.

As long as the setting of dates for daylight saving is left to individual municipalities, the time confusion with its consequent inconvenience will continue. Isn't it about time that we had some semblance of uniformity in this important question?

The rally was held by Harmony Encampment No. 3 of this city, and proved to be one of the best gatherings that has ever been staged by the Order in this district.

The degree teams from Kitchener and Brantford were present. The Kitchener team exemplified the Patriarchal and Royal Purple degrees while the Brantford team exemplified the Golden Rule Degree.

Following the business meeting Saturday night a banquet was held at which short addresses were delivered by several of the outstanding visitors.

The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of R. G. Legg, chairman; A. Chapman, J. Sugerman, W. T. Wheeler, Percy Pawley and W. A. McRoberts.

The gathering was one of the most interesting and instructive held by the local Encampment. The visiting degree teams complimented for their work.

Among the outstanding members present were Roy Sloat, G. J. W., of Brantford, a member of the Grand Encampment of Ontario; R. E. Waltham of Kerrwood, P. G. P. and a grand representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge; August Kutoba, of Kitchener, P. G. P., who took an active part in the degree work; W. Leonard, D. D. G. I. of District No. 18; Howard McLean, D. D. G. P. of Kerrwood, of District No. 8, and several others.

On the arrival of the visitors on Saturday afternoon, a luncheon was held in a downtown restaurant.

LIGHTER EXPLODES, SETS BED ON FIRE

Maple Street Man Unhurt In Unusual Mishap—Firemen Extinguish Cellar Blaze

When the cigarette lighter he was filling is said by firemen to have exploded Sunday afternoon, A. Jackson of 92 Maple street, escaped injury but a resulting fire did considerable damage to a mattress and some bed sheets. The blaze was extinguished by firemen from King street station before it gained headway to either parts of the house.

Firemen say that Mr. Jackson was sitting on the dege of the bed pouring fluid into his lighter when some overflowed. When he tried the lighter it ignited and a small explosion resulted, Mr. Jackson jumped to safety and in less than a minute the bed clothing was on fire.

On Saturday afternoon firemen had another run to Maple street where smoke was issuing from the basement of No. 146 Maple street. An examination revealed that some live coals had dropped from the grate to the ashpit clean-out below, and had ignited some cardboard. The small fire was extinguished before damage resulted.

Murder And Suicide Suspected—Couple Friends For Seven Years

Associated Press Despatch

Philadelphia, April 14 — The man and woman found dead in a river front hotel today were identified as Paul Benson 36, of Camden, N.J., and Pauline Skiba 28, of Philadelphia.

Police said they learned the couple had been friends for seven years. Police also said they believe that Benson killed the woman and then shot himself.

Confronted by fictitious registration, police had difficulty in identifying the bodies, whose expensive clothing and jewelry afforded sharp contrast to the dingy hotel room in which they were found shot to death.

Letters to Editor

THE HISTORY HOWLERS

To the Editor of The Advertiser—Your story of howlers written by local collegiate institute students seems to call for comment. These lapses are often amusing but never creditable and the recurrent crops of them in history proves that there is serious blame somewhere.

Newspaper reports of the addresses at the recent O.E.A., meeting, supported by teachers who heard them, give the impression that the outstanding point of the President's address was his vigorous criticism of the Education Department's treatment of history. He quoted its prescription that the aims of the teacher of history should be to arouse interest in the subject, to give an intelligent grasp of civics, to create a love for high ideals of conduct and to teach the sequences of causes and effects. Then he read the last entrance examination paper on history set by the Education Department to show that instead of promoting these aims it actually defeated them in merely exacting memory cramming of very many barren facts.

The Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Education was on the platform and heard the applause of the criticism. In his own speech he defended his temporary holding of two or three portfolios and said that he intrusted the direction of educational affairs to what was practically a commission of three teachers. These facts will help the public to place the blame which must rest with the pupils, the teachers, the Minister, or the commission. The O.E.A. president evidently places a good deal of it at headquarters.

Tribute Paid To Memory Of 28 Formerly Connected With University

In respectful memory of 28 men and women who at some time before their death were connected with the University of Western Ontario, students, faculties and administration staff Sunday afternoon gathered in Convocation Hal to listen to a Memorial address given by President W. Sherwood Fox and to participate in the first annual service of this kind at Western.

As the light filtered through the stained-glass windows of Convocation Hall, the large congregation stood in silence while the strains of Chopin's Funeral March were played. With bowed heads present students thought of the reference made by Dr. Fox that it would be their duty to carry on the tasks which, taken up, had been removed from the hands of past students and graduates by the intervention of death.

Memory Honored

Those men and women whom Western, as a maternal guiding light, yesterday mourned, are as follows:

Elmer Armstrong, Arthur Barber, Dr. C. W. Brown, '06, Dr. B. F. Butler, Dr. J. A. Campbell, '12, Dr. R. M. Charlton, '06, H. J. Childs, Margaret Crawford, '26, Sir Arthur Currie, '24, Dr. L. H. Douglass, '3, Dr. W. S. Downham, '12, Dr. D. B. Fraser, '28, Archie D. Graham, Dr. R. M. Gubbins, '92, Rev. S. P. Irwin, '98, Dr. N T. Johnson, '02, Dr. K. M. Lindsay, '28, Dr. A. B. Macallum, Dr. J. E. Mason, '14, Georgina Munroe, Dr. W. J. Nesbitt, '12, Sarah Paterson, John Pringle, Frances Steer, '26, Jean Stewart, '33, Dr. W. J. Taylor, '10, Dr. C. E. Tran, '12, Rev. Geo. Vrooman, '19.

The lessons for the service were taken from Ecclesiastes, XLIV 1-15 and Hebrews XI, 13-16 and 32-40, and were read by Prof. J. A. Spenceley, of the Department of English, who also conducted the remaining service part of the program. Frank Stiles provided musical accompaniments.

Dr. Fox Main Speaker

Dr. Fox, as the main speaker, eulogised the various groups of students which death took from the various faculties and departments of the school. The list as given included those who died since January, 1933.

"Even in a small university, each year its noticeable toll from the academic circle of administration, faculties, alumni and students," Dr. Fox declared. "You will note that I include graduates in this group. As I have said on many occasions before, graduates—or, in the more affectionate Latin term, alumni—are, though living outside the college halls, just as much a part of the family circle as they were when they lived within those halls. By their Alma Mater they are always regarded as present, however great the distance that divides them from her physically. One of the penalties of the university's growth is that these grievous exactions of death become with the passing of time more numerous and hence increasingly striking and poignant. We who remain are indeed through the loss of our friends and colleagues, but we find some measure of consolation in our cherished memory of their noble characters and their unselfish lives. Our grief is assuaged when we pause to remind ourselves that the truly good in human life and thought and deed is never lost but continue for all time in some form. Indeed, it is the function of those of us who are left behind to help the good thus to continue. Our beloved friends began a task, and upon us falls the burden of carrying it on devotedly, until we in our turn are summoned to surrender it to our successors.

Represent Many Spheres

"In reviewing these names one cannot but remark the variety of spheres of activity that they represent. As a group they represent a typical cross section of our social life. Their fields of endeavor are emblematic of the contribution their university is making to the life of the nation. In them we can read in letters written large the real and vital mission of a university to any nation, for, contrary to an opinion that is all too common, a modern university touches not merely the academic phases of national life, but every phase. In a most mysterious and quiet way it permeates the whole fabric of our society.

Represent 3 Greatest Professions

"So many of those who have died belonged to three of the greatest professions—the Ministry, Teaching and Medicine. All of these are among the noblest of callings, and I know I shall not be understood as slighting the first two mentioned when for a moment I refer to the third, Medicine. I fear that this profession has not received from the world the measure of tribute that is its due. During the stress of the past five years the burden of care and duty that has been laid upon the physician and surgeon has been beyond human calculation. Always ready to give of their knowledge and skill, they have responded promptly to the countless calls that these trying times have made upon them. The vast majority have forgotten themselves in serving others and in so doing have in all too many instances concealed the fact that they themselves were in need of help and rest and comfort. Some in adhering to their vows to put service to their fellowmen above all else have brought themselves to the verge of poverty. Some have denied themselves the opportunity of further study rather than to seem to desert their home community in the time of great trouble. And I know that several of those to whose memories we pay homage today have passed from the host of the living because unselfishly they spent their health and strength before their time. It is the wish of every one of us that all due honor be paid to them. May their successors be animated by the same altruistic spirit. May their lives be spared, if God so wills, to long years of service amongst us."

case, Bank of Montreal sought and was grnated permission in weekly high court here Saturday to pay into court the $3,425 which it holds in its Goderich branch to the credit of 21-year-old Betty Jackson. The application was made by Huron R. Davidson, acting for the bank, while Arthur LeBel, counsel for Mrs. Jackson; and S. G. Robertson, representing Miss Lucy Taylor, consented to the order. Costs of the bank, amounting to $45, are to be paid out of the money.

The money is held under an injunction granted by County Judge Joseph Wearing until trial of the $5,500 supreme court action for alleged theft brought by Miss Lucy B. Taylor against Mrs. Jackson.

Mrs. Jackson has admitted that the $3,425 in the Goderich branch is a part of $5,000 paid to her by Miss Taylor for use in attempting to secure a governor's pardon for George Taylor, serving a ten-year-term in Kansas State Prison.

At the same time, it is announced that Mrs. Jackson is carrying her fight for possession of the money to the appeal court at Osgoode Hall. Her counsel, Arthur LeBel, has filed notice that he is appealing the decision of Judge Wearing. He will again argue that the money should be released to Mrs. Jackson. Hearing of the appeal has been set for Wednesday, April 18, at Toronto.

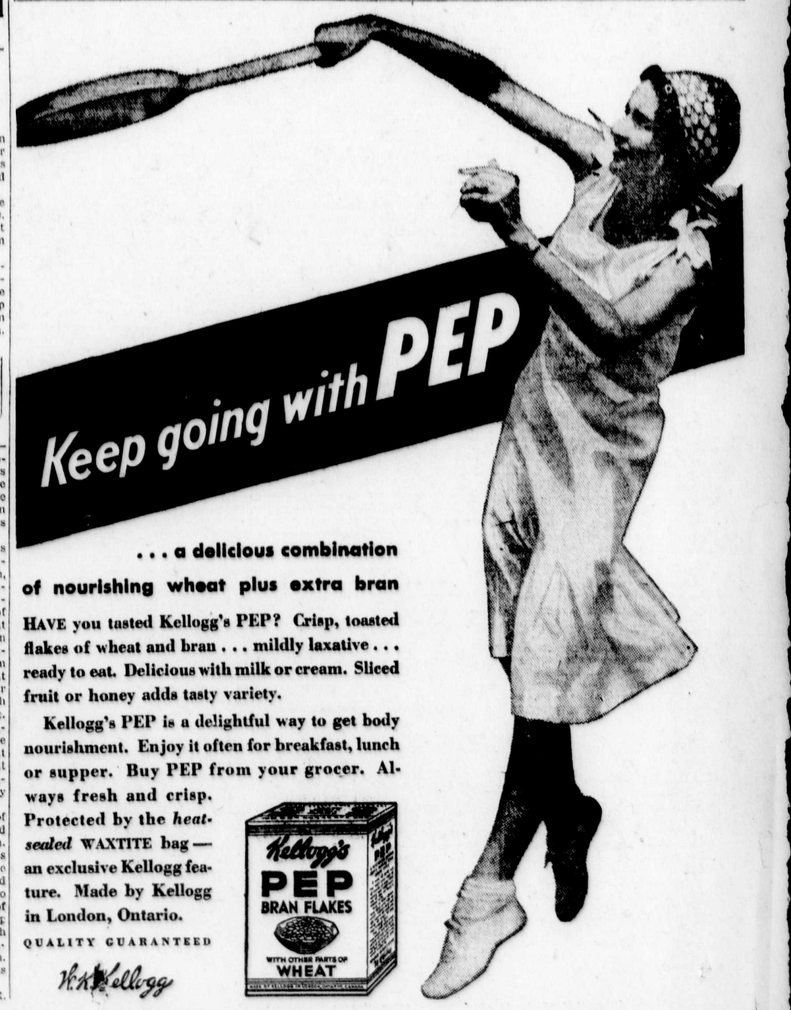
Ridout Street Man Charged With Assault Following Police Raid

Charged with assaulting a police constable, a Ridout street man will appear in city police court this morning, following a police raid on his apartment on Saturday night. Police say the man, his wife and four others were arrested and taken to the King street police station at 10:40 o'clock Saturday night.



The local man is alleged to have assaulted P. C. Fred Fuller, who in company with Constable Joseph Miles and Sergt. William Middaugh raided his apartment.

While the officers were in the residence, the man is alleged to have kicked P. C. Fuller in the shins and to have inflicted scratches on his face and caused several body injuries. Constable Fuller just returned to duty a few days ago after being at his home on sick leave.

With the exception of the occupant of the house, the others are charged with being disorderly.

LIBERAL RALLIES WIND UP CAMPAIGN

Overflowing Meetings Of S. Oxford Electors Hear Lapointe and King

Go To Polls Today To Elect Member Of House Of Commons

GOVERNMENT RECORD IS ISSUE, LIBERALS STRESS

All Signs Point To Imminent General Election, Mr. King Declares

Two great Liberal rallies, featured by overflow meetings when the largest halls in the riding failed to accommodate those who wanted to hear the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, and the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former minister of justice, closed the South Oxford federal by-election campaign on Saturday night. Mr. King spoke at Ingersoll and Mr. Lapointe and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., at Tillsonburg, scene of the main meetings. Another meeting was also held at Norwich.

Today the electors of South Oxford will elect either Alon Secord Rennie, Tillsonburg, Liberal, or the Hon. Donald Sutherland, Conservative, to fill the unexpired term of the late Thomas Cayley, Liberal M.P., who died in May, 1933. When the present parliament is dissolved, either this year or in 1935, South Oxford as a constituency will disappear and be merged with North Oxford.

King's Presence Big Feature

The visits of Mr. King on Wednesday and Saturday were the outstanding features of the campaign. At Norwich and Tillsonburg on Wednesday, many hundreds more than could be accommodated sought to hear the Liberal leader. The same was true Saturday night at Ingersoll. Long before eight o'clock, the hour set for meeting, the town hall and its entrance-ways were crowded. Mr. King was scheduled to speak at nine o'clock, the hour the radio broadcast started, but was delayed a few minutes when he spoke briefly to three overflow meetings in advance of the big one. These meetings were held in the council chamber, the Liberal committee rooms and the market building. Altogether well over a thousand people were in Ingersoll to hear Mr. King. Loud-speakers were installed at the overflow meetings to carry Mr. King's main address to them.

Long a Liberal Riding

The Conservatives had no meetings on Saturday night, their last big gun being fired on Friday at Ingersoll when the Hon. Harry Stevens spoke.

In the 1930 election Mr. Cayley won by 55 votes, the figures being, Cayley, 5,711, Hon. Donald Sutherland, 5,656.

From 1867 until 1911 South Oxford was Liberal. In the reciprocity campaign Mr. Sutherland won it and retained it until 1926, when Mr. Cayley defeated him by 700.

Choose R .B. Robson, Many Times Mayor Of Guelph, To Oppose Munro

Special to The Advertiser

Guelph, Ont., April 14—Liberal policy on the liquor question will be definitely issued within the course of next week or so, Mitchell F. Hepburn, Provincial Liberal leader, declared in the course of an address at a Liberal meeting here which named D. Paul Munro, K.C., M.L.A., Liberal candidate in South Wellington in the next provincial election.

"If the Conservatives' beer bill is good why don't they put in force?" Mr. Hepburn demanded. "But, no, they dangle it before your eyes and say that if you vote for them like good boys and girls, you'll get it," he stated.

The meeting, held this afternoon, was largely attended and was marked by great enthusiasm. Hon. H. C. Nixon, Dr. L. J. Simpson, M.L.A., and Mr. Munro, expounded the Liberal cause along with Mr. Hepburn.

Alleges Whitewashing

Mr. Hepburn reviewed some of the various investigations made into alleged irregularities which concerned public utilities, and pointed out that there was too much "Whitewashing." He referred to the liquor question and said it had been claimed that there was a "toll gate" system in effect whereby British distillers have to have a friend in the Ontario Conservative party to get their goods purchased. "That needs investigation, too," he declared. "The present administration is reeking of graft and corporation and mal-administration, charged Mr. Hepurn.

"The Ontario debt has gone up steadily during the present administration," he said, and he predicted that if the present rate was continued the debt at the end of 1934 would likely be $650,000,000. "The people of Ontario are ready for a change and will get

Action On Silver Forecast—Thomas Bank Deposit Bill Opposed

Associated Press Despatch

Washington, April 15.—President Roosevelt asked House Democratic leaders tonight to clear their program for the earliest possible adjournment date and informed them he would submit this week a general relief bill calling for about $1,500,000,000.

Speaker Henry Rainey and Representative Joseph Byrns of Tennessee, the floor leader, assured Mr. Roosevelt at the three-hour White House conference that the House would be ready to quit by the middle of May.

Silver?

Rainey indicated the President was inclined to favor some kind of silver action, but there was no sign that any legislation of this kind was agreed upon tonight.

"We discussed all policies and general legislative plans," the Speaker told reporters, "and did nothing in the way of decisions."

The $1,500,000,000 relief measure comes within the budget as submitted by the President at the opening of the session. At least $500,000,000 of this fund is to be earmarked for public works to stimulate employment. The Reconstruction Corporation will get another piece.

It was said the MvLeod bill, providing for payments to depositors in closed banks was not discussed. The party leaders were uncertain what would happen in a vote of this measure.

Suicide Of Notorious Speculator Quickly Followed By That Of Brother

Paris, April 15 — The sensational courtroom suicide of Henri Rochette, notorious French speculator, was matched today with news that his brother, Gaston, had also killed himself, apparently in compliance with a fraternal death compact.

Henri's death yesterday ended one of the most famous financial scandals in the country's history. His activities before the war caused as much furore as the Stavisky case this year. He ended his life with a razor as judges sentenced him to three years in prison for fraud.

The body of his brother was found with a bullet in his temple at Lieusaint, near Paris, on Friday. It was some time before identification was established.

Tillsonburg, April 14—The Liberals are not opposed to the British preference—they are opposed to shadow preferences, fake preferences which give nothing and get nothing and give more promise of losing than gaining markets, said A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election, at the rally here Saturday night at which Hon. Ernest Lapointe and Mitchell F. Hepburn were the chief speakers.

Open Markets

"Once in office, Liberals will open markets, not close them, expand British trade, not restrict it. Opening markets is the natural function of Liberalism, closing them is the natural task of Toryism," said Mr. Rennie.

The text of Mr. Rennie's address follows:

"Rt. Hon. R. B Bennett in his radio talk to South Oxford electors challenged the Liberals to say where they propose to get wider markets. Here are his exact words: 'The Liberals talk of wider markets. Where are they going to get them?'

"Every Tory since the dawn of time has made that argument. How could a Conservative see a market. The Tories promised a market in 1878. Our exports in that year totalled $79,100,000. In 1896, eighteen years later, the total was $116,300,000 an increase of only $37,200,000 in 18 years.

Long On Promises

"Then the Liberals came in and remained in office 15 years with an increase of $174,000,000 in that time—six times the yearly increase of the previous Tory Government. In 1911 the Tories came back. This time they promised to give us a favorable balance of trade. In 1910 we had an unfavorable balance of $71,500,000 and in 1913 the unfavorable balance was $294,000,000.

"These boys, are long on promises and short in performance. Sweeping Reductions In Pay and Living Cost Decreed By Mussolini

Rent, Clothing, Food And Services Slashed In General "Deflation"

GOVERNMENT SALARIES CORRESPONDINGLY CUT

Stimulation Of Export Trade And Of Tourist Traffic Among Aims

Associated Press Cable

Rome, April 15—Every salary in Italy and every article of food, clothing, rent, meat, light and transportation was on the block today to the tune of a six to 20 percent cut in order to make the kingdom able to compete in world markets with countries having lower, manufacturing costs.

The Council of Ministers, over whom Premier Benito Mussolini himself presided, yesterday decreed the sweeping, all-inclusive action as a battle of a "deflationary" country against "inflationary" nations.

So broad was the offensive that the tax on bachelors, for whom officials have no love, was doubled, and certain importations, too, came under close scrutiny.

Lower Price Level

It also is a part of Il Duce's desire to bring Italy down to a lower price level in conformity with world prices so that—for example—wheat will not cost nearly three times as much here automobiles three or four times more, and so on.

The move left no stone unturned. Salaries of government employees were slashed six to 12 percent; the ministers decided to take a 20 percent reduction in their own salaries; the decision was reached that imports of oil-less seeds, copper, wool, and coffee would be regulated.

To make the tax cut both ways, all living costs, such as those of food, transportation, and utilities, were proportionately decreased. Rentals were cut 12 and 15 percent.

A similar nation-wide deflation was ordered in October, 1930.

Three Motives

The government has been considering drastic deflation for some months, especially since it became evident that Italy's foreign trade—because of the high cost of production—was suffering to an alarming extent.

The cabinet ministers said they had three motives in the general reductions:

1—To better exports.

2—To reduce currency in circulation.

3—To induce foreign tourists to come to Italy.

The important Giornale d'Italia said yesterday's provision was a move in the direction of balancing the budget since it will save the government about 1,000,000,000 lire.

Taxes also will fall. The cabinet ordered officials in provinces and municipalities to reduce taxes to equal the saving made possible in the reduction of employees' wages.

The triumphs and difficulties of the wide-flung missionary endeavour of the United Church of Canada both at home and abroad were brought to the congregations of city churches yesterday as 26 distinguished leaders in missionary work dwelt on this important phase of church work in their sermons. These men are in the city attending the world missionary conference and exhibit which opened Saturday in Metropolitan Church and which will continue until Tuesday evening in a concentrated effort to awaken a deep interest in missionary work in this district and to acquaint the church members with the great work that is being accomplished.

Messages From Many Lands

Brief messages from nationals and others from many lands were given at the International Missionary Mass meeting yesterday afternoon in Metropolitan United Church before a large congregation of United Church members.

Several speakers were in costume representing Korea, Japan and the Polish people who have come to live in Canada. Rev. K. J. Beaton, associate secretary of the Home Mission Board, was chairman for the first half of the program. One of the speakers, Andrew Jamieson, an Indian, graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and who is at the reserve at Muncey, told of the 13 residential schools in Canada and deplored the fact that so many of the finest and best Indians were engaged in work elsewhere than on their own reserve. He also said that many of them migrated to the United States.

CHIEF SUSPICIOUS

Special to the Advertiser

Kitchener, April 15.—Jacob Ginrovich, Hamilton asylum inmate, last night led police to the vicinity of the sand hill where the skeleton of a young woman was unearthed recently, as he had promised, but pointed out a spot far removed from that where the body was found as the place where he said he had buried his poison victim.

Somewhat grandiosely he turned and said, "Now, gentlemen, I'm supposed to be insane. I've been insane for five years, and this is to show you that I am insane."

Change of View

From this statement police believe that Ginrovich may now have a better understanding of the situation and may now wish to appear as insane where formerly he is said to have insisted that he was mentally normal.

Commenting on the unexpected turn of events Police Chief Hodgson said, although his visit to Kitchener may not have turned out as he expected, "we are still convinced that he is responsible for the death of the woman whose skeleton was found. We believe that he is taking advantage of the fact that the police cannot locate his letter of 1930 in which he confessed to killing the girl and that now he has been brought to Kitchener, he may realize the seriousness of the situation."

Accompanied by Jurors

Granting a request expressed by Ginrovich, while he was being brought here from Hamilton Saturday, police had eight men, a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest, accompany Ginrovich to the burial ground. Had the visit turned out as police expected it would, the eight men would have served as jurymen at an inquest into the death of the girl.

Photographs of women missing from Winnipeg and vicinity are expected from Winnipeg and Ginrovich will be shown them when they arrive. He was brought here yesterday afternoon, made his visit to the sand hill last night and was returned to the asylum this afternoon.

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—The Ontario branch of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation was reorganized and launched on a new career after a stormy 15-hour conference here. The new constitution places discipline in the hands of the provincial council and provides that membership must be obtained through political groups whose members are willing to adhere strictly to the party's program.

While verbal battles occupied the hall, the corridors outside saw physical combat. Controller James Simpson of Toronto was knocked to the floor and pummelled when he reportedly interceded as a "peace-maker" in a group argument. He re-entered the meeting room as if nothing had happened. He was not seriously hurt.

Labor Conference "Excluded"

The labor conference leftist group declared it considered itself "excluded" under the new constitution, following the lengthy conference. Proposals of this group met defeat as the new constitution was approved clause by clause.

E. J. Garland, United Farmers of Alberta member in the House of Commons for Bow River, appealed to those who did not approve of the new constitution to withdraw from the convention. It was the only honorable thing to do, Mr. Garland said. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member in the House of Commons for Winnipeg North Centre and national president of the C.C.F., supported Mr. Garland as the delegates broke into applause.

The leftist group then broke into song. They sang the "Red Flag" and the "Internationale." Finally they were drowned by boos.

Special to The Advertiser

Guelph, Ont., April 14—Liberal policy on the liquor question will be definitely issued within the course of next week or so, Mitchell F. Hepburn, Provincial Liberal leader, declared in the course of an address at a Liberal meeting here which named D. Paul Munro, K.C., M.L.A., Liberal candidate in South Wellington in the next provincial election.

"If the Conservatives' beer bill is good why don't they put in force?" Mr. Hepburn demanded. "But, no, they dangle it before your eyes and say that if you vote for them like good boys and girls, you'll get it," he stated.

The meeting, held this afternoon, was largely attended and was marked by great enthusiasm. Hon. H. C. Nixon, Dr. L. J. Simpson, M.L.A., and Mr. Munro, expounded the Liberal cause along with Mr. Hepburn.

Alleges Whitewashing

Mr. Hepburn reviewed some of the various investigations made into alleged irregularities which concerned public utilities, and pointed out that there was too much "Whitewashing." He referred to the liquor question and said it had been claimed that there was a "toll gate' system in effect whereby British distillers have to have a friend in the Ontario Conservative party to get their goods purchased. "That needs investigation, too," he declared. "The present administration is reeking of graft and corporation and mal-administration, charged Mr. Hepurn.

"The Ontario debt has gone up steadily during the present administration," he said, and he predicted that if the present rate was continued the debt at the end of 1934 would likely be $650,000,000. "The people of Ontario are ready for a change and will get

Go To Polls Today To Elect Member Of House Of Commons

GOVERNMENT RECORD IS ISSUE, LIBERALS STRESS

All Signs Point To Imminent General Election, Mr. King Declares

Two great Liberal rallies, featured by overflow meetings when the largest halls in the riding failed to accommodate those who wanted to hear the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, and the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former minister of justice, closed the South Oxford federal by-election campaign on Saturday night. Mr. King spoke at Ingersoll and Mr. Lapointe and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., at Tillsonburg, scene of the main meetings. Another meeting was also held at Norwich.

Today the electors of South Oxford will elect either Alon Secord Rennie, Tillsonburg, Liberal, or the Hon. Donald Sutherland, Conservative, to fill the unexpired term of the late Thomas Cayley, Liberal M.P., who died in May, 1933. When the present parliament is dissolved, either this year or in 1935, South Oxford as a constituency will disappear and be merged with North Oxford.

King's Presence Big Feature

The visits of Mr. King on Wednesday and Saturday were the outstanding features of the campaign. At Norwich and Tillsonburg on Wednesday, many hundreds more than could be accommodated sought to hear the Liberal leader. The same was true Saturday night at Ingersoll. Long before eight o'clock, the hour set for meeting, the town hall and its entrance-ways were crowded. Mr. King was scheduled to speak at nine o'clock, the hour the radio broadcast started, but was delayed a few minutes when he spoke briefly to three overflow meetings in advance of the big one. These meetings were held in the council chamber, the Liberal committee rooms and the market building. Altogether well over a thousand people were in Ingersoll to hear Mr. King. Loud-speakers were installed at the overflow meetings to carry Mr. King's main address to them.

Long a Liberal Riding

The Conservatives had no meetings on Saturday night, their last big gun being fired on Friday at Ingersoll when the Hon. Harry Stevens spoke.

In the 1930 election Mr. Cayley won by 55 votes, the figures being, Cayley, 5,711, Hon. Donald Sutherland, 5,656.

From 1867 until 1911 South Oxford was Liberal. In the reciprocity campaign Mr. Sutherland won it and retained it until 1926, when Mr. Cayley defeated him by 700.

Associated Press Despatch

Washington, April 15.—President Roosevelt asked House Democratic leaders tonight to clear their program for the earliest possible adjournment date and informed them he would submit this week a general relief bill calling for about $1,500,000,000.

Speaker Henry Rainey and Representative Joseph Byrns of Tennessee, the floor leader, assured Mr. Roosevelt at the three-hour White House conference that the House would be ready to quit by the middle of May.

Silver?

Rainey indicated the President was inclined to favor some kind of silver action, but there was no sign that any legislation of this kind was agreed upon tonight.

"We discussed all policies and general legislative plans," the Speaker told reporters, "and did nothing in the way of decisions."

The $1,500,000,000 relief measure comes within the budget as submitted by the President at the opening of the session. At least $500,000,000 of this fund is to be earmarked for public works to stimulate employment. The Reconstruction Corporation will get another piece.

McLeod Bill Not Discussed

It was said the McLeod bill, providing for payments to depositors in closed banks was not discussed. The party leaders were uncertain what would happen in a vote of this measure.

Raid on Mysterious French Villa Reveals Trotzky Living in Dread Of Vengeance of White Russians

Canadian Press Cable

Barbizon, France, April 15.—Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian leader and "man without a country," was found today in a police raid on a mysterious villa here, living in utmost secrecy and fearing vengeance of White Russians.

Seated at his desk with two revolvers in front of him, the former power behind the formation of the Soviet state confronted the police who burst into his room.

"I am Monsieur Sodroff," he declared.

The magistrate conducting the search looked into the lined and careworn features of the famous exile, recognized the well-known goatee, and said: "You are Trotzky."

Whereupon Trotzky replied: "Yes, it is I."

Police made the raid when the mayor and citizens of Barbizon became thoroughly mystified by the curious goings-on at the Villa Kermontique, in a secluded spot near this quiet town. Belief that it might be linked with the Stavisky riots, or a secret arming place, led the authorities to watch the house for two days before entering it.

Trotzky told them that he was authorized by the Minister of the Interior to enter France and live at Barbizon with his wife, since threats of assassination and fear of vengeance from White Russians had kept him wandering from place to place since he left Russia after his clash with Stalin.

Associated Press Cable

Hamburg, Germany, April 15.—The unequivocal warning that Germany will henceforth as far as possible buy imports only from countries to which she can export goods was before the world today.

Baron Konstantin Von Neuräth, German Foreign Minister, in a speech last night declared: "We must plan our importations of commodities hereafter more carefully," adding that Germany had abandoned the policy of economic self-sufficiency.

"The monetary policy of closing trade doors by many countries simply forces us by careful planning to switch our necessary imports over to such countries as are ready to accept similar values from Germany.

He expressed the opinion that such a policy could be carried out successfull only if Germany's foreign trade policy is conducted in a unified way. In other words, he hinted, by a forcign trade monopoly.

Ginrovich Leads Kitchener Police To Vicinity But Not Exact Spot

CHIEF SUSPICIOUS

Special to the Advertiser

Kitchener, April 15.—Jacob Ginrovich, Hamilton asylum inmate, last night led police to the vicinity of the sand hill where the skeleton of a young woman was unearthed recently, as he had promised, but pointed out a spot far removed from that where the body was found as the place where he said he had buried his poison victim.

Somewhat grandiosely he turned and said, "Now, gentlemen, I'm supposed to be insane. I've been insane for five years, and this is to show you that I am insane."

Change of View

From this statement police believe that Ginrovich may now have a better understanding of the situation and may now wish to appear as insane where formerly he is said to have insisted that he was mentally normal.

Commenting on the unexpected turn of events Police Chief Hodgson said, although his visit to Kitchener may not have turned out as he expected, "we are still convinced that he is responsible for the death of the woman whose skeleton was found. We believe that he is taking advantage of the fact that the police cannot locate his letter of 1930 in which he confessed to killing the girl and that now he has been brought to Kitchener, he may realize the seriousness of the situation."

Accompanied by Jurors

Granting a request expressed by Ginrovich, while he was being brought here from Hamilton Saturday, police had eight men, a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest, accompany Ginrovich to the burial ground. Had the visit turned out as police expected it would, the eight men would have served as jurymen at an inquest into the death of the girl.

Photographs of women missing from Winnipeg and vicinity are expected from Winnipeg and Ginrovich will be shown them when they arrive. He was brought here yesterday afternoon, made his visit to the sand hill last night and was returned to the asylum this afternoon.

HITLER CARICATURES WITHDRAWN

Praha, April 14.—Several sketches at the International Salon of Caricatures here, considered offensive to Chancellor Adolf Hitler, have been withdrawn at the request of Dr. Walter Koch, German minister to Czechoslovakia.

SIX DIE AS TRUCK AND BUS COLLIDE

15 Others Injured Near Elyria, Ohio—Bus Was Passing Parked Truck

Elyria, O., April 15—Six persons were injured fatally, a seventh critically hurt, and 14 others received less serious injuries when a Chicago-bound passenger bus and an east-bound truck crashed head-on early today near here.

The bus was en route from Pittsburgh to Chicago. Sheriff Clarence Dick of Lorain County said preliminary examination indicated that the driver of the bus, William Daniels, 32, of Pittsburgh, had turned out to pass a truck parked on the right side of the road when the crash occurred.

At the same moment another truck cruised into view, and Daniels was unable to retreat to his own lane in time to avoid the collision.

Karl Dane Dead By His Own Hand

Associated Press Despatch

Hollywood, April 15.—The body of Karl Dane, one of the silent screen's outstanding comedians, who found refuge from bitter disappointment in suicide, lay in the county morgue today, unclaimed.

The actor, who skyrocketed to fame in "The Big Parade," and later was starred, shot himself to death in a modest apartment last night. He was penniless at his death, and had been living off the bounty of friends although his salary at one time was reported to have been $1,500 weekly.

The coroner, announcing no inquest would be held, said the body would be released to a private undertaker as soon as anyone came forward to claim it.

CONSTITUTION OUSTS "LEFT" LABOR GROUP

James Simpson Felled And Pummelled In Fistic Encounter Outside Convention Hall

PROVINCIAL COUNCIL TO HANDLE DISCIPLINE

Membership Must Be Obtained Through Political Groups Only

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—The Ontario branch of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation was reorganized and launched on a new career after a stormy 15-hour conference here. The new constitution places discipline in the hands of the provincial council and provides that membership must be obtained through political groups whose members are willing to adhere strictly to the party's program.

While verbal battles occupied the hall, the corridors outside saw physical combat. Controller James Simpson of Toronto was knocked to the floor and pummelled when he reportedly interceded as a "peace-maker" in a group argument. He re-entered the meeting room as if nothing had happened. He was not seriously hurt.

Labor Conference "Excluded"

The labor conference leftist group declared it considered itself "excluded" under the new constitution, following the lengthy conference. Proposals of this group met defeat as the new constitution was approved clause by clause.

E. J. Garland, United Farmers of Alberta member in the House of Commons for Bow River, appealed to those who did not approve of the new constitution to withdraw from the convention. It was the only honorable thing to do, Mr. Garland said. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member in the House of Commons for Winnipeg North Centre and national president of the C.C.F., supported Mr. Garland as the delegates broke into applause.

Songs Booed Down

The leftist group then broke into song. They sang the "Red Flag" and the "Internationale." Finally they were drowned by boos.

Alderman John Mitchell of Hamilton was elected president of the new On-

DOLLFUSS TARGET FOR ROTTEN EGGS

Splash Uniforms Of Paraders But Miss Little Chancellor Himself

Associated Press Cable

Graz, Austria, April 15.—Rotten eggs were hurled at Chancellor Dollfuss and a harmless bomb exploded within 300 feet of him when he appeared here today to address a mass meeting.

The bomb was a smoke and noise variety, containing no dangerous explosives.

Spoiled eggs splashed the clothes and uniforms of Dollfuss paraders but missed the little Chancellor himself.

Paint Highway Red

Socialists had painted the whole highway red from the airport where Dollfuss landed to the city limits of Graz. Pavements were splashed with such slogans as "Down with Fascism!" and "Down with Dollfuss!"

The mass meeting proper was quiet but attempts to broadcast the Chancellor's speech were mysteriously sabotaged and only portions of it reached listeners.

French Government Employees, Begin Two Days of Nation-Wide Strikes and Protests Over Cuts

Associated Press Cable

Paris, April 15—Tens of thousands of government employees, paradins under red flags throughout the provinces, today began two days of nation-wide strikes and demonstrations against pay cuts.

The chant of the Internationale was heard in more than 100 cities and towns as the marchers flaunted banners inscribed with "down with the government," "down with the decree law," and "down with ruinous deflation."

But the Red Sunday passed under a warm spring sun without bloodshed.

General Strike Threats

Veiled threats of general strikes were contained in resolutions adopted at mass meetings, to which paraders carried written protestations against the government.

It was the day of provincial functionaries. Those in Paris are awaiting "National Protest Day," Monday, when public service employees plan to demonstrate at their places of work during the hour of the strike.

Manifestations of discontent are expected to be widespread, despite the government's quick punishment of leaders of a Communist strike Friday.

Employees Dismissed

Twenty-nine employees, including two women, were dismissed from the Central Telegraphic Bureau of Paris, where daily demonstrations caused an uproar last week.

The threat to the government of Premier Gaston Doumergue was caused by a cut of 10 percent on all government salaries and the dismissal of 80,000 of the 800,000 functionaries.

Doumergue took the step under decree powers granted him by parliament, contending it was necessary to save the franc from devaluation and to balance the budget.

18TH BATTALION VETERANS MEET

Canon C. E. Jeakins Chosen As Chaplain By Comrades At Reunion

LARGE GATHERING

Major Canon C. E. Jeakins was chosen chaplain of the 18th Battalion at the reunion in the armories here on Saturday night. Nineteen years ago yesterday the battalion left for France.

It was a large and enthusiastic gathering of old comrades which voted unanimously for their new chaplain. Representatives were present from Toronto, Galt, Guelph, Kitchener, Chatham, Windsor, Stratford, Strathroy, Wingham, Harriston, St. Thomas and Mitchell.

The program opened with a two minute silence in tribute to the comrades who had died. A toast was recited by Sergt.-Major M. Lee.

President S. Gunn welcomed the visitors among whom were Col. L. G. Jones, Col. H. Milligan, and Major G. Ingram.

Col. Jones commented favorably upon the battalion organization and hoped for a closer relationship between the various units of it.

Cheer Col. Wigle

Fred Young said that "an overzealous" writer had reported that the 18th battalion had "turned against" Col. Wigle. He read a letter from Col. Wigle in which the Colonel explained that certain unreasonable demands had been made upon him but that local organizations in Windsor had supported him. Three cheers were given for Col. Wigle.

E. Shuttleworth introduced the speaker of the evening, Major Canon C. E. Jeakins. Canon Jeakins said that the same characteristics which were called forth to make a man a good soldier were needed now to make him a good peacetime citizen. He recalled some of the impressions he retained of the front lines, and remarked upon the vast patience exhibited by the fighting men. He pointed out that this quality was needed now.

"There is a good day before us, but it will not come without hard work on the part of everyone," said Canon Jeakins. Faith in a great cause was present at the front, and it was needed here now.

Col. Milligan congratulated the battalion and credited Col. Wigle with much of its fine background. Major Ingram expressed pleasure at the expansion of the organization. Major D. Rispman, D.S.O., brought greetings and invited the London membership to future meetings in Chatham.

Officers of the London branch are: President, S. Gunn; vice-president, W. Grey; sec-treas., P. L. Reed; executive committee, M. Noble, C. Halsal, J. Herring, G. Leach, B. Tuxford; sick committee, S. French, J. Matthews; and auditors, E. Shuttleworth and R. L. Stephenson.

ADVISES ENDING MONTHLY LEASES

Committee Recommends Daily Rent System—Leave Some Open As Fire Precaution

A recommendation for the elimination of monthly rentals for stalls and spaces on the London market is to be made to City Council by a special committee. Where rentable stalls are not leased for yearly terms, the committee recommends that 25 cents a day be charged for stalls for which the annual rental is $15 and less and 50 cents a day for stalls for which the annual rental is more than $15. Stalls in the truckers' row will be $2 a day where they are not rented by the year.

Following charges of discrimination in that vendors were allowed the free use of unrented stalls, City Council appointed a special committee consisting of Ald. J. A. Johnston, chairman, Ald. John McLeod and Ald. Allen Towe. This committee met Friday. Also present were Market Clerk Rose, City Treasurer Bell, City Engineer Veitch Deputy Treasurer Saunders and City Clerk Crawford.

The committee's report will not be ready for Monday's council meeting. It has however already reached certain decisions including the elimination of monthly rentals.

The committee is also recommending that no one be allowed to use any rentable stall unless the rent for the day has been paid.

Want Map Prepared

City Engineer Veitch and Market Clerk Rose have been instructed to work out a plan whereby a map of the market, showing the spaces available for daily rental can be posted on the market. They will also draft a receipt form for the daily rentals.

The committee is also recommending that stalls 1 to 9 in D section and stalls 1 to 14 in F section be left unoccupied at all times. These are on the north side of the market square, immediately east of Talbot street. The fire chief has complained that in the event of a fire in the buildings fronting the market he would have

MORBID MOB DISRUPTS FUNERAL OF LITTLE GIRL

Chicago, April 13—Through a screaming, clawing mob of 10,000 curiosity seekers, the body of 2½ year-old Dorette Zietlow, victim of a 13 year-old abductor, was carried from a flower filled chapel today, placed in a white hearse and driven away to be buried in Concordia Cemetery.

The simple last rites were disrupted by the frenzied mobs of morbid spectators.

When word was sent out that no more would be admitted to view the body, the line which extended eight abreast in orderly fashion for two blocks stormed the chapel.

The mob, mostly women and children, defied the efforts of police to maintain order. An additional 25 policemen finally cleared a path from the chapel to the hearse and Boy Scout pallbearers carried out their tiny burden.

Climbed to Roofs

While the services were in progress hundreds of persons climbed to the roof of the chapel. Thousands mounted nearby housetops and automobiles.

Legionaires who financed the funeral, attempted to transfer floral wreaths to the hearse, were caught in the jam and many wreaths were torn to pieces.

Women fought, scratched and pulled hair attempting to reach the entrance. Friends and neighbors of the dead baby's family were shoved to the rear.

Windows of automobiles were broken. Three chimneys were pushed from the chapel roof. Laughing and fighting boys rushed about the roof.

15 Governments To Act On Scheme For Raising World Price of Wheat

Canada Included In Group—Action Asked Before Committee Meets On May 4

CALLS FOR FIXING OF MINIMUM PRICE

Price To Be Based On Monthly Relation Of Export Supplies To Demands

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rome, April 14—It is up to the Canadian and 14 other represented governments to act upon the weighty scheme for raising the world price of wheat produced by the world wheat conference which has been sitting here for more than a week.

The plan which calls for fixing of a minimum price based on the relation of export supplies to the demand from month to month, tonight was being forwarded to the interested governments, who were invited to take action before the wheat committee meets again in London on May 4.

The wheat conference hopes the governments can formulate their stand in order that the London meeting can prepare the way for the institution of the scheme in June or thereabouts.

Text Kept Confidential

Meanwhile the text of the plan is being kept confidential. An official communique Saturday night explained it was supplementary to the international wheat export agreement reached at London last year and was emphatic that the spirit and letter of the export pact must continue to be observed.

The situation, as explained to The Canadian Press by John A. MacMurray of the United States, chairman of the wheat advisory commission, is that the report "is in the form of a recommendation to the governments as to the course we think should be adopted. As such we could not very well publish it before the governments have been given an opportunity to study it."

Went Through Quickly

The minimum price plan, achieved by the subcommittee after much labor, went through the main conference today with unexpected speed, an apparently stubborn Argentine resistance vanishing when, as the chief Argentine delegatee informed the Canadian Press today, the Argentines took the viewpoint that the minimum price plan covered the Argentine's claim for increased export quotas.

Dr. Thomas A. le Breton, head of the Aregentine delegation, said that acceptance of the minimum price scheme linked up with the Argentine demand for a bigger wheat export quota. "In our view," said Dr. le Breton, "they are all one question."

Does Not Fix Price

It was emphasied the scheme in itself does not fix a minimum price; it merely outlines a method by which a minimum price may be maintained once it is established. It makes provision for the necessary machinery and for scaling differentials in the price for respective countries.

It did suggest, however, that the first schedule to be drawn up by the proposed London control committee should be an increase of 5 to 10 per cent. of the present price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, standard of wheat the world over.

Agreement by the conference on the price scheme marked conclusion of many months of work. It is now up to the 15 governments represented in the conference to ratify the plan and put it into operation.

Questions Of Detail

The conference will continue this afternoon with questions of detail and will then take up the question of restrictions on flour milling along with the question of denaturing wheat to make quantities of it fit only for livestock feed.

But in reaching agreement on the plan the conference had achieved its main objective—devising a scheme for raising the world price of wheat. To-

$12,374,319 SPENT ON TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY

Ottawa, April 14: Progress made in the construction of the Trans-Canada highway was outlined in the House of Commons by Premier R. B. Bennett. The amount expended so far was $12,374,519 and 1357 miles had been constructed.

The mileage was divided, Nova Scotia 59, New Brunswick 65, Quebec 35, Ontario 830, Manitoba 45½, Saskatchewan 171½, Alberta 145, British Columbia 160. The figures were given at the request of I. D. MacGougall, Conservative for Inverness.

STEEL CO. ASKS BOARD FOR RULING ON TARIFF

Ottawa, April 14.—An appear of particular interest to steel plants has been forwarded to the tariff board by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance to the request of the Stanley Steel Co. Ltd., of Hamilton, with reference to importation of "skelp."

The company wishes to have the words "cold rolled" removed from tariff item 391 which fixes the rate on "skelp of iron or steel, hot or cold rolled, etc" at free under the preferential tariff, and five per cent. intermediate and general. It is claimed that there is no such commodity as "cold rolled" skelp and that cold rolled steel in coils is being imported under that item whereas it should come under item 382 (C) which applies a rate of 7½ er cent, preferential and 20 per cent, intermediate and general.

KENT BEEKEEPERS ELECT

Chatham, April 15.—Clarence Silen of Becher was elected president and Rev. A. V. Walden of Raleigh township was re-elected secretary-treasurer at the annual meeting of the Kent Beekeepers Association held here. Professor Dyce, of Guelph O. A. C., gave an instructive address on the treatment of package bees from the south. During discussion, many members expressed the opinion that export of honey from Soviet Russia to Great Britain had hindered Canadian export.

NURSE DANGEROUSLY ILL FROM AN INFECTED HAND

With poison from an infected hand imperilling her life, Miss Mary L. Turnbull, a graduate nurse of St. Joseph's Hospital, lies dangerously ill in the institution. Miss Turnbull, whose home is just outside of London, was listed as a patient at the hospital on March 22. Since that time she has been constantly treated by several doctors but the pernicious infection continues to spread.

recommended the new system go into effect June 1.

How It May Be Done

Pending official disclosure of the minimum wheat price scneme adopted by the world wheat conference today, here's an outline of how it appears the goal will be achieved:

1. All big wheat exporters remain under strict export quota regulation.

2. A small committee in London will watch the movement of exports in relation to demand and establish a fixed price. It is suggested this be 5 or 10 percent higher on Manitoba No. 2 than at present. Minimum prices will be determined for wheat at the export point.

3. Indirect regulation of exports will be the basis on which the price will be maintained. In other words the conference drops the idea of rigid control of exports to establisn a price, instead using the direct price system.

Will Be Maintained

4. The price will be maintained by fluctuating fixed prices for the wheat of respective exporters. If for instance Canada in a certain period sends more wheat than would be normal under her quota, the Canadian price would be increased with the idea of bringing the export down.

The executive council will include: Dr. Lorna Cotton, Toronto; Tom Cruden, Toronto; Ben Levert, Sandwich; Jack O'Hanley, Hamilton; Arthur Williams, East York; J. F. McKevitt, Schreiber; Rev. J. Sutherland, Peterborough; Harold Crane, Windsor; John Walter, Kitchener; D. M. LeBourdais, Mimico; Dr. Luke Teskey, Forest Hill; W. O. Hill, North Cobalt; Sam Innis, Otterville.

Ruling Easily Sustained

During debate on the constitution, Mrs. R. Morton, secretary of the labor conference, moved an amendment to the membership clause which would permit trade unions to join the C. C. F. Chairman Angus MacInnis ruled the amendment out of order as in direct opposition to the motion.

The chairman's ruling was challenged and was sustained by a large vote. During some hectic discussion Mr. MacInnis declared the "C. C. F. program is for those who agree with it, not for those who oppose it." Finally the motion to confine membership to "political" groups was carried and then the convention decided to have an appointed secretary treasurer.

Must Be Disciplined

When a delegate asked the C. C. F.'s action in the case of a membership group celebrating May Day, chairman MacInnis replied, "If you demonstrate with groups opposed to the C. C. F., then you must be disciplined."

Mr. Woodsworth declared if there had been "prompter discipline in Toronto and Ontario we wouldn't be in this mess." He believed discipline was one of the methods of the Communist party "and I believe the C. C. F. has to discipline its members if it is going to amount to anything in the Dominion of Canada."

CLEVER COMEDY AT THE CAPITOL

Jack Hulbert, Noted British Comedian Is Excellent In "Jack Ahoy"

Jack Hulbert certainly puts comedy on a high plane in his latest starring talking picture, "Jack Ahoy" which opened at the Capitol Theatre for a three-day run last Saturday. It seems that Hulbert, who is one of the aces in the Gaumont British Company's acting staff, can get more comedy out of a mediocre situation than any other comedian in pictures and he does this to perfection in "Jack Ahoy." He is ably supported by Alfred Drayton, Nancy O'Neil and Henry Peterson.

The story is quite a simple one of the exploits of a tar in the British Navy, whose ambition is to marry the daughter of the admiral. A British submarine is captured by Chinese bandits and Hulbert after endangering his and everyone else's life, manages to capture the pirates and also retrieve the submarine.

There are some catchy musical selections in the picture, and Hulbert gives the right atmosphere in singing them. Of course, he is also a dancer par excellence and he shows some of his newest steps, particularly a modernized version of the Sailor's Hornpipe.

The rest of the show is good in its own way. A Betty Boon Cartoon and a splendid comedy, with the usual newsreels complete the bill.

TWO ARE INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES

D. H. McRae, Glecoe, Hurt As Car Leaves Road—Mrs. Reid, Toronto, In Collision

A Glencoe man and a Toronto woman suffered minor injuries in two separate motor accidents over the weekend. D. H. McRae of Glencoe, received a cut over one eye and was shaken up when his car left the road east of London early Sunday morning and crashed into a tree. Mrs. Phyllis Reid of Toronto, suffered a sprained ankle when a motor car crashed with a transport truck west of the city late Saturday night.

The latter accident occurred on an "S" curve between Melbourne and Strathburn when a Direct Transport driven by Lloyd Leifso of 712 Weston road, Toronto, collided with the passenger car of Herbert Reid, 685 Manning ave., Toronto. Mrs. Reid was the only one hurt. Traffic Officer George Law investigated.

Mr. McRae was driving his coupe west on No. 2 highway in Pottersburg when it left the pavement and went out of control on the soft shoulder, hitting a tree. The machine was damaged and McRae taken to Victoria Hospital. He was released after treatment by Dr. C. C. Ross. Traffic Officer Howard Jackman was assigned by Traffic Inspector T. G. P. Lucas to the investigation.

No charges were laid immediately in connection with either accident.

PASTOR PRAISES MAYOR OF LONDON

Commends Wenige For Demanding Local Gambling Probe

FLAYS LOTTERIES

"Gambling is not far from thieving," said Rev. G. V. Crofoot in his sermon to the congregation at Adelaide Street Baptist Church last night during which he criticised social organizations who "stooped" to forms of gambling in aid of various causes which might be worthy.

Mr. Crofoot strongly commended the Mayor of London for his stand in demanding an investigation of gambling conditions in the city.

He described gambling as little removed from thieving because in essentials the winners took something for which no adequate value had been given.

This principle the speaker condemned when encouraged by social organizations in various forms of lotteries and gambling. He went on to point out that often a large part out that often delays gave a chance for offenders to cover up their misdemeanors.

"There is a good day before us, but it will not come without hard work on the part of everyone," said Canon Jeakins. "Faith in a great cause was present at the front, and it was needed here now."

Col. Milligan congratulated the battalion and credited Col. Wigle with much of its fine background. Major Ingram expressed pleasure at the expansion of the organization. Major D. Ridpman, D.S.O., brought greetings and invited the London membership to future meetings in Chatham.

Officers of the London branch are: President, S. Gunn; vice-president, W. Grey; sec-treas., P. L. Reed; executive committee, M. Noble, C. Halsal, J. Herring, G. Leach, B. Tuxford; sick committee, G. Leach, J. Matthews; and auditors, E. Shuttleworth and R. L. Stephenson.

ADVISES ENDING MONTHLY LEASES

Committee Recommends Daily Rent System—Leave Some Open As Fire Precaution

A recommendation for the elimination of monthly rentals for stalls and spaces on the London market is to be made to City Council by a special committee. Where rentable stalls are not leased for yearly terms, the committee recommends that 25 cents a day be charged for stalls for which the annual rental is $15 and less and 50 cents a day for stalls for which the annual rental is more than $15. Stalls in the truckers' row will be $2 a day where they are not rented by the year.

Following charges of discrimination in that vendors were allowed the free use of unrented stalls, City Council appointed a special committee consisting of Ald. J. A. Johnston, chairman, Ald. John McLeod and Ald. Allen Towe. This committee met Friday. Also present were Market Clerk Rose, City Treasurer Bell, City Engineer Veitch Deputy Treasurer Saunders and City Clerk Crawford.

The committee's report will not be ready for Monday's council meeting. It has however already reached certain decisions including the elimination of monthly rentals.

The committee is also recommending that no one be allowed to use any rentable stall unless the rent for the day has been paid.

Want Map Prepared

City Engineer Veitch and Market Clerk Rose have been instructed to work out a plan whereby a map of the market, showing the spaces available for daily rental can be posted on the market. They will also draft a receipt form for the daily rentals.

The committee is also recommending that stalls 1 to 9 in D section and stalls 1 to 14 in F section be left unoccupied at all times. These are on the north side of the market square, immediately east of Talbot street. The fire chief has complained that in the event of a fire in the buildings fronting the market he would have a hard job to get trucks on the market. By leaving these spaces clear the way will be open.

Market Clerk Rose reported receiving complaints that a man who was paying his rent would have as his competitor in the next stand, one who paid no rent yet managed to be in the same space all the time.

MRS. CHARLES FREEMANTLE

Stricken with a heart attack Saturday morning, Mrs. Sarah Jane Freemantle, wife of Charles Freemantle, 537 Dorinda street, died a few hours later. Mrs. Freemantle was in her 70th year. She came from Palmerston 15 years ago to take up residence here.

Surviving her are her husband, four sons, Macknowles, David, Clarence and Brock, all of this city, three daughters, Mrs. W. C. Oliver of Hamilton, Mrs. Fred Ashelford of England, and Mrs. A. Eaton.

Rev. Dr. Harris of Chalmers Presbyterian Church will officiate at the funeral service to be conducted Monday evening at the residence at 8 o'clock. Services will also be conducted at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in Palmerston, with interment following in Palmerston cemetery.

ed by the frenzied mobs of morbid spectators.

When word was sent out that no more would be admitted to view the body, the line which extended eight abreast in orderly fashion for two blocks stormed the chapel.

The mob, mostly women and children, defied the efforts of police to maintain order. An additional 25 policemen finally cleared a path from the chapel to the hearse and Boy wreaths to the hearse, were caught in the jam and many wreaths were torn to pieces.

Women fought, scratched and pulled hair attempting to reach the entrance. Friends and neighbors of the dead baby's family were shoved to the rear.

Windows of automobiles were broken. Three chimneys were pushed from the chapel roof. Laughing and fighting boys rushed about the roof.

15 Governments To Act On Scheme For Raising World Price of Wheat

Canada Included In Group—Action Asked Before Committee Meets On May 4

CALLS FOR FIXING OF MINIMUM PRICE

Price To Be Based On Monthly Relation Of Export Supplies To Demands

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rome, April 14—It is up to the Canadian and 14 other represented governments to act upon the weighty scheme for raising the world price of wheat produced by the world wheat conference which has been sitting here for more than a week.

The plan which calls for fixing of a minimum price based on the relation of export supplies to the demand from month to month, tonight was being forwarded to the interested governments, who were invited to take action before the wheat committee meets again in London on May 4.

The wheat conference hopes the governments can formulate their stand in order that the London meeting can prepare the way for the insistution of the scheme in June or thereabouts.

Text Kept Confidential

Meanwhile the text of the plan is being kept confidential. An official communique Saturday night explained it was supplementary to the international wheat export agreement reached at London last year and was emphatic that the spirit and letter of the export pact must continue to be observed.

The situation, as explained to The Canadian Press by John A. MacMurray of the United States, chairman of the wheat advisory commission, is that the report "is in the form of a recommendation to the governments as to the course we think should be adopted. As such we could not very well publish it before the governments have been given an opportunity to study it."

Went Through Quickly

The minimum price plan, achieved by the subcommittee after much labor, went through the main conference today with unexpected speed, an apparently stubborn Argentine resistance vanishing when, as the chief Argentine delegatee informed the Canadian Press today, the Argentines took the viewpoint that the minimum price plan covered the Argentine's claim for increased export quotas.

Dr. Thomas A. le Breton, head of the Argentine delegation, said that acceptance of the minimum price scheme linked up with the Argentine demand for a bigger wheat export quota. "In our view," said Dr. le Breton, "they are all one question."

Does Not Fix Price

It was emphasied the scheme in itself does not fix a minimum price; it merely outlines a method by which a minimum price may be maintained once it is established. It makes provision for the necessary machinery and for scaling differentials in the price for respective countries.

It did suggest, however, that the first schedule to be drawn up by the proposed London control committee should be an increase of 5 to 10 per cent. of the present price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, standard of wheat the world over.

Agreement by the conference on the price scheme marked conclusion of many months of work. It is now up to the 15 governments represented in the conference to ratify the plan and put it into operation.

Questions Of Detail

The conference will continue this afternoon with questions of detail and will then take up the question of restrictions on flour milling along with the question of denaturing wheat to make quantities of it fit only for livestock feed.

But in reaching agreement on the plan the conference had achieved its main objective—devising a scheme for raising the world price of wheat. Today the details of the scheme were still undivulged, but it was learned the kernel of the plan was establishment of a committee of four to sit in London to supervise wheat movements of the signatory exporters and thereby maintain the minimum price which itself has yet to be established.

Further, it said the adjustments made in London must be so fixed as to keep the supply strictly in accord with demand and thus not interfere with the minimum price system.

Interesting Feature

The most interesting feature of the sub-committee's report is the proposal for creation of a price committee of four experts to sit in London and meet at least once a month to study the wheat export movement in relation to quotas and to raise or lower minimum prices of individual exporting countries should they be selling too much or too little wheat in relation to their quotas.

This is held up as a method of controlling quotas through prices.

The sub-committee also recommended that exporting countries whose domestic wheat prices are lower than the export minimum to be agreed upon raise that price to a new level partly through reducing their stocks. It was recommended the new system go into effect June 1.

How It May Be Done

Pending official disclosure of the minimum wheat price scheme adopted by the world wheat conference today, here's an outline of how it appears the goal will be achieved:

1. All big wheat exporters remain under strict export quota regulation.

2. A small committee in London will watch the movement of exports in relation to demand and establish a fixed price. It is suggested this be 5 or 10 percent higher on Manitoba No. 2 than at present. Minimum prices will be determined for wheat at the export point.

3. Indirect regulation of exports will be the basis on which the price will be maintained. In other words the conference drops the idea of rigid control of exports to establisn a price, instead using the direct price system.

Will Be Maintained

4. The price will be maintained by fluctuating fixed prices for the wheat of respective exporters. If for instance Canada in a certain period sends more wheat than would be normal under her quota, the Canadian price would be increased with the idea of bringing the export down.

5. Aiding in establishment of the scheme the conference recommends chopping up the present yearly export quotas into shorter periods, three-months being one suggestion. These figures are being prepared. Price fixing is suggested on a basis of monthly exports.

Refrain From Barter

6. Also backing up the scheme, governments will be asked to refrain from barter dealings or other governmental transactions that would hurt the minimum price system. Flour prices will be fixed at definite percentages to corresponding wheat grades. Wheat products, such as semolina will be restricted along with wheat.

7. Wheat exporting governments further will be asked to make sure their internal prices are at least as high as the minimum export price. This is an essential safeguard against export of flour at lower than minimum wheat figures. Withdrawal of quantities by denaturing is one method.

8. It is suggested the export committee meet in London, May 4, along with the wheat conference heads to work out final details in order the scheme may go into effect about June 1.

$12,374,319 SPENT ON TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY

Ottawa, April 14: Progress made in the construction of the Trans-Canada highway was outlined in the House of Commons by Premier R. B. Bennett. The amount expended so far was $12,374,319 and 1357 miles had been constructed.

The mileage was divided, Nova Scotia 59, New Brunswick 65, Quebec 35, Ontario 830, Manitoba 45½, Saskatchewan 171½, Alberta 145, British Columbia 160. The figures were given at the request of I. D. Macdougall, Conservative for Inverness.

STEEL CO. ASKS BOARD FOR RULING ON TARIFF

Ottawa, April 14.—An appear of particular interest to steel plants has been forwarded to the tariff board by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance to the request of the Stanley Steel Co. Ltd., of Hamilton, with reference to importation of "skelp."

The company wishes to have the words "cold rolled" removed from tariff item 394 which fixes the rate on "skelp of iron or steel, hot or cold rolled, etc" at free under the preferential tariff, and five per cent. intermediate and general. It is claimed that there is no such commodity as 'cold rolled" skelp and that cold rolled steel in coils is being imported under that item whereas it should come under item 382 (C) which applies a rate of 7½ er cent, preferential and 20 per cent, intermediate and general.

KENT BEEKEEPERS ELECT

Chatham, April 15.—Clarence Stien of Becher was elected president and Rev. A. V. Walden of Raleigh township was re-elected secretary-treasurer at the annual meeting of the Kent Beekeepers Association held here. Professor Dyce, of Guelph O. A. C., gave an instructive address on the treatment of package bees from the south. During discussion, many members expressed the opinion that export of honey from Soviet Russia to Great Britain had hindered Canadian export.

NURSE DANGEROUSLY ILL FROM AN INFECTED HAND

With poison from an infected hand imperilling her life, Miss Mary L. Turnbull, a graduate nurse of St. Joseph's Hospital, lies dangerously ill in the institution. Miss Turnbull, whose home is just outside of London, was listed as a patient at the hospital on March 22. Since that time she has been constantly treated by several doctors but the pernicious infection continues to spread.

The executive council will include: Dr. Lorna Cotton, Toronto; Tom Cruden, Toronto; Ben Levert, Sandwich; Jack O'Hanley, Hamilton; Arthur Williams, East York; J. F. McKevitt, Schreiber; Rev. J. Sutherland, Peterborough; Harold Crane, Windsor; John Walter, Kitchener; D. M. LeBourdais, Mimico; Dr. Luke Teskey, Forest Hill; W. O. Hill, North Cobalt; Sam Innis, Otterville.

Ruling Easily Sustained

During debate on the constitution, Mrs. E. Morton, secretary of the labor conference, moved an amendment to the membership clause which would permit trade unions to join the C. C. F. Chairman Angus MacInnis ruled the amendment out of order as in direct opposition to the motion.

The chairman's ruling was challenged and was sustained by a large vote. During some hectic discussion Mr. MacInnis declared the "C. C. F. program is for those who agree with it, not for those who oppose it." Finally the motion to confine membership to "political" groups was carried and then the convention decided to have an appointed secretary treasurer.

Must Be Disciplined

When a delegate asked the C. C. F.'s action in the case of a membership group celebrating May Day, chairman MacInnis replied, "If you demonstrate with groups opposed to the C. C. F., then you must be disciplined."

Mr. Woodsworth declared if there had been "prompter discipline in Toronto and Ontario we wouldn't be in this mess." He believed discipline was one of the methods of the Communist party "and I believe the C. C. F. has to discipline its members if it is going to amount to anything in the Dominion of Canada."

AT THE CAPITOL

Jack Hulbert, Noted British Comedian Is Excellent In "Jack Ahoy"

Jack Hulbert certainly puts comedy on a high plane in his latest starring talking picture, "Jack Ahoy" which opened at the Capitol Theatre for a three-day run last Saturday. It seems that Hulbert, who is one of the aces in the Gaumont British Company's acting staff, can get more comedy out of a mediocre situation than any other comedian in pictures and he does this to perfection in "Jack Ahoy." He is ably supported by Alfred Drayton, Nancy O'Neil and Henry Peterson.

The story is quite a simple one of the exploits of a tar in the British Navy, whose ambition is to marry the daughter of the admiral. A British submarine is captured by Chinese bandits and Hulbert after endangering his and everyone else's life, manages to capture the pirates and also retrieve the submarine.

There are some catchy musical selections in the picture, and Hulbert gives the right atmosphere in singing them. Of course, he is also a dancer par excellence and he shows some of his newest steps, particularly a modernized version of the Sailor's Hornpipe.

The rest of the show is good in its own way. A Betty Boon Cartoon and a splendid comedy, with the usual newsreels complete the bill.

TWO ARE INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES

D. H. McRae, Glecoe, Hurt As Car Leaves Road—Mrs. Reid, Toronto, In Collision

A Glencoe man and a Toronto woman suffered minor injuries in two separate motor accidents over the weekend. D. H. McRae of Glencoe, received a cut over one eye and was shaken up when his car left the road east of London early Sunday morning and crashed into a tree. Mrs. Phyllis Reid of Toronto, suffered a sprained ankle when a motor car crashed with a transport truck west of the city late Saturday night.

The latter accident occurred on an "S" curve between Melbourne and Strathburn when a Direct Transport driven by Lloyd Leifso of 712 Weston road, Toronto, collided with the passenger car of Herbert Reid, 685 Manning ave., Toronto. Mrs. Reid was the only one hurt. Traffic Officer George Law investigated.

Mr. McRae was driving his coupe west on No. 2 highway in Pottersburg when it left the pavement and went out of control on the soft shoulder, hitting a tree. The machine was damaged and McRae taken to Victoria Hospital. He was released after treatment by Dr. C. C. Ross. Traffic Officer Howard Jackman was assigned by Traffic Inspector T. G. P. Lucas to the investigation.

No charges were laid immediately in connection with either accident.

PASTOR PRAISES MAYOR OF LONDON

Commends Wenige For Demanding Local Gambling Probe

FLAYS LOTTERIES

"Gambling is not far from thieving," said Rev. G. V. Crofoot in his sermon to the congregation at Adelaide Street Baptist Church last night during which he criticised social organizations who "stooped" to forms of gambling in aid of various causes which might be worthy.

Mr. Crofoot strongly commended the Mayor of London for his stand in demanding an investigation of gambling conditions in the city.

He described gambling as little removed from thieving because in essentials the winners took something for which no adequate value had been given.

This principle the speaker condemned when encouraged by social organizations in various forms of lotteries and gambling. He went on to point out that often a large part of the funds taken out of the pocket of the public went into the expenses of the gambling organization and anly a small percentage reached the charitable work for which it was ostensibly directed.

What's the Difference?

"Supposing you won a car on a ticket," said Mr. Crofoot, "I don't suppose many of you would give it back, or the money it representes. What is the difference between that and putting money on a horse?"

In speaking of the recent action of Mayor Wenige in demanding a clean-up of gambling in London Mr. Crofoot said he believed there were times when the pulpit ought to support those who are breaking down the social evils.

"It is seldom a public man will come out flat-foted against social evils," said the speaker. "More power to you Mr. Mayor, and may all loyal citizens support you."

Mr. Crofoot went on to say he had no intention or desire of becoming involved in a controversy between civic officials.

"I don't think there should be any delay in carrying out the Mayor's wishes," said Mr. Crofoot and pointed out that often delays gave a chance for offenders to cover up their misdemeanors.

WORSHIP IN INDIA IS SERMON TOPIC

Natives Bow Before Idols Manufactured In Manchester Says Wesley Church Speaker

That the natives of India are seeking God in the face of Jesus Christ but that they are going about it in a "blind, groping and ignorant" manner, was the belief expressed by Rev. Donald G. Cock, guest speaker Sunday morning at Wesley United Church. Rev. Mr. Cock for many years has been engaged in missionary work among the Asiatic peoples and is in London for the world missionary conference and exhibit.

"I sometimes think," he added, "that we misunderstand the non-Christian people simply because they how down and worship idols and images. Deep down in their hearts they are searching and longing for something better.

"I have seen consignments of these idols that were manufactured in Manchester, England, arrive at the dock for the purpose of idolatry, and I really don't know which is worst the worship of these idols or the manufacture of them.

DUTY VALUATIONS

Ottawa, April 14.—The value of duty of rose bushes, excepting dwarf polyanthas and rose stocks for budding and grafting, has been fixed at 15 cents, it is announced by the Department of National Revenue, instead of 20, for importations on and after April 12.

The value for duty of asparagus and lettuce has been fixed at an advance on the true invoice value in Canadian funds. Asparagus will be valued for duty purposes at an advance of 5 ½ cents a pound from April 22 to June 30; lettuce one cent a poind between April 20 and October 31.

MARK WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

saying 'I wish we could have a general election to express our feelings in respect to federal policies at the present time'," declared the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in his address in the town hall here Saturday night. But he said Mr. King, it is just this fear of a general election on the part of private Conservative members which has enabled Mr. Bennett to hold his parliamentary majority in line.

"Would Mr. Bennett have been able to hold his followers on the titles question unless he had said to his supporters "Unless I get support there'll be a dissolution'," said Mr. King.

General Election Looms

However, the speaker continued, all signs point to a general election. The central bank, the marketing measure, amendments to the election act all would indicate that Mr. Bennett is preparing for an appeal to the country.

"If South Oxford on Monday speaks loudly there is a chance of the modification of some of these policies in a way better to serve the people, coupled with the chance that the government will give the people a chance at a general election." While in general elections the policies advanced by the parties appealing for favor might make the issue, in a by-election the only issue is the government's record, Mr. King pointed out. It is Mr. Bennett's record which the electors of South Oxford will approve or condemn on Monday.

Sanderson And Taylor Speak

Dr. J. M. Rogers was chairman of the town hall meeting. Fred G. Sanderson, M.P., Ontario Liberal whip, and William Taylor, M.P., for Norfolk-Elgin, spoke before Mr. King.

Miss E. A. Seldon, president of the Ingersoll and District Women's Liberal Association, presented an address of welcome to Mr. King, while little Miss Margaret Copeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Copeland, and a niece of Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., presented Mr. King with a nicely-bound package of Ingersoll's famous cream cheese.

Mr. Sanderson read to the audience a statement from the Borden Mill Co. which showed that in 1929 the lowest summer price of milk at Ingersoll was $1.74 a cwt. and the highest winter price, $2.17. In 1933 the lowest summer price was 70 cents and the highest winter price 95 cents.

"Now which party has the best policy for the dairy industry in Oxford?" asked Mr. Sanderson.

Mr. King jocularly remarked, opening his speech, that he and Mr. Bennett differed on almost everything but "I am told if we were married we'd probably learn how to make up. I hope Mr. Bennett will be fortunate enough to achieve that end, while I haven't despaired of it myself."

Tobacco Report

Mr. King discussed the failure of the Bennett government to present the report of the Hon. Donald Sutherland on his investigation into tobacco-buying practices to parliament until last week.

"If in the Sutherland report there was ground for believing that there is a combine against the public interest, that is all the more reason the report should have been made public a year ago instead of a week ago. It is not Mr. Sutherland but the government which is on trial in this election. Yet now Mr. Stevens, a minister of the crown, comes into the riding and says he wants Mr. Sutherland returned to help in the fight of the tobacco growers. I tell you it is not one person but the policies of the government which will settle the fate of the tobacco growers. If one wants to be critical one can say that Mr. Stevens' plea was a threat of no battle for the tobacco growers unless Mr. Sutherland is returned. On the other hand it might be a bribe. I am not saying Mr. Stevens intended it as either. He shouldn't have made the statement at all. Under parliamentary institutions it doesn't matter who the man is, whether he be Liberal, Conservative, Farmer or Labor, every man stands for the interests of the constituency from which he is sent."

Dr. Manion's Prediction

Mr. King made reference to the speech of the Hon. Dr. Manion in the constituency in which Dr. Manion said that he had every reason to believe the government would lower interest rates on loans and mortgages. Mr. Bennett was asked in the House concerning this and answered that the predictions of any member of the government were based on his knowledge of what the government intends to do. No direct answer was given.

"Why did Mr. Manion need to bring up the question at all unless he was trying to leave in your mind the impression that he was stating something the government was going to do? Mr. Bennett told the House of Commons a few weeks ago that this couldn't be done. Mr. Bennett will take action at the time he thinks it should be taken, and any predictions his ministers make mean nothing," said Mr. King.

The Liberal leader declared that if parliament exists for any purpose at all, it is that the people's representatives might have control of the public treasury which is filled by taxation. Yet under the blank cheque clause of the relief bill the cabinet is taking this power away from parliament and a supine Tory majority says nothing. The dangers in such a policy have been exposed by the auditor-general's report on irregularities in the spending of funds under the blank cheque clause, said Mr. King.

Disastrous Trade Policies

The economic nationalism which has featured the Bennett trade policies must come from the markets of the world," he said.

Menace Of Dictatorship

Mr. King said that the Liberal policy did not favor free trade but did stand for the keeping of those restrictions necessary to retain the standards of living in this country. But the Bennett policy has gone far beyond this and has, in fact, had an adverse effect on living standards.

In conclusion Mr. King pointed out that in many European countries parliamentary institutions have been done away with and dictatorship of individuals or groups substituted. In the steady sapping of parliament's powers in Canada the same trend is apparent. "There is the same trend today to do away with the great guardians of the people's liberties, the House of Commons," he declared.

MR. LAPOINTE'S SPEECH

Special to The Advertiser

Tillsonburg, Ont., April 14—Declaring that the Bennett Government was bound to disappear in the near future and that we must see that it does not destroy Canada in its spasms of agony, the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice in the King Government, closed an eloquent speech here this evening in the interests of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate, on the eve of Monday's election. Duplicating the meeting of the Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, scores had to be turned away and this notable son of Quebec was given a great ovation as he was introduced by R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., for South Oxford.

Mr. Lapointe was critical of the Bennett regime but abstained from personalities. He stated he believed the Canadian people have been deceived the last few years and that the mouths of the farmers and laboring men could not be sweetened by simply yelling money.

The Benett Government has intensified the depression by false promises in 1930 and by the policies they have followed the past four years. Confidence is the mainspring of life for any government and the Canadian people in the last few months have shown the present government that they have lost the confidence of the country. All the wild statements and promises of the government made in 1930 are now coming home to roost.

It is not production that is at fault but distribution, and the trade of Canada has been strangled since the Liberals were defeated in 1930. The past four years in parliament has been jazz or whoopee politics played to the tune of blank cheques at the expense of the people and parliament has been treated with contempt by the present administration, the speaker asserted.

"If anyone desires a title he should apply at once as the crop is low and there will not be another crop. It is freely rumored that the prime minister is to receive a peerage and I would suggest that the seven lean cows of the Scriptures be put on the coat of arms," Mr. Lapointe declared amid laughter.

"The people of Canada will judge the Bennett Government on its record and not on its prospectus and the return of the Liberal party will remove the shackles that have been forged for Canadian trade the past few years."

The Liberal candidate, A. S. Rennie, and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., also spoke briefly and urged a large Liberal majority on Menday.

PROMISES LIBERAL BEER POLICY SOON

rid of this wasteful government," he phophesied.

Promises Housecleaning

"If we get into power," promised Mr. Hepburn, "there's going to be a great housecleaning of Hydro and our first act will be to get rid of Engineer Gaby—not because he is Mr. Gaby, but because he has been getting $35,000 per year and allowing things to go on that should not occur."

Mr. Hepburn promised that other leading Hydro officials would go out with Engineer Gaby if the Liberals are elected. "We are going to take some of the supernumeraries off the backs of the burdened taxpayers, if we do nothing else. We are going to improve social conditions; have a minimum wage for men and women.

"W. G. Martin is another supernumerary, said Mr. Hepburn, "and he should go too.

Will be Hard Campaign

"This will be a hard campaign. There will be lots of campaign funds for the Conservatives and it will be a hard fight. Watch out for the Government using trick methods," warned the speaker, and went on. "The Government are in a desperate position and they know it. They are casting about for help, blowing hot and blowing cold. Mr. Henry is headed for a fall."

Dr. L. J. Simpson, Liberal financial critic, in a vigorous speech criticized the economic policy of the Government." The Conservatives will eventually land Ontario in bankruptcy," he charged, and in substantiation pointed to the fact that interest charges on the Provincial debt at present amounted to one-third of the annual revenue. Ontario's liabilities are very rapidly catching up to its assets, he declared. He charged that when the Ontario Government announced a surplus of $450,000 it was poor bookkeeping and not facts. Dr. Simpson stated that while the Conservatives were trying out Mr. Munro at Queen's Park," said Attorney-General Price, declaring that the

OPENING MARKETS LIBERALS' POLICY,

Tories came in is a bit of a novelty. In 1929 Canadian production of manufactured products totalled $4,000,000,000—in 1933 it was down to $2,000,000,000. Now the men who brought about this condition ask us to vote for them if they hand out an order for $22,000 worth of snoes.

A Matter of Exchange

"And here is something else: In 1929 we had Tory policies in effect—Canadian exports were $734,000,000; then came a change of policy with the election of the Liberals—by 1930 we had exports of $1,144,900,000, an increase of $390,000,000. Yet our friends the Tories ask us where we can get markets. We can get them where we got them before. There are more goods to b sold in the world than ever before. We can exchange the things we need for the tings other people need. The world has not changed—men are men with human instincts—not asses as Donald Sutherland asserts.

"Let me read you a paragraph from my very distinguished and gentlemanly opponent. He bears the title "honorable." He was a cabinet minister for a few days. He has had parliamentary experience. Note his language in a recent speech:

" 'Mr. Rennie cannot be as complete an ass as he appears to be'.

"Well, I found the other day this note upon the ass: 'An ass is used to bear people and burdens over the dangerous passages—that even an old war horse dare not venture.'

"Does my honorable friend assume that his failure to answer arguments can be met by calling names ? He ought to tell us if he hopes to 'blast' a way into foreign markets by that process.

Losing Markets

"We are now blasting our way out of markets. The gravest danger confronts the farmers of South Oxford today as a result. The arrangements of Great Britain regarding importation of meats end in June and Great Britain is likely to insist that Canadian tariffs are an impossible barrier and that Britain, because she cannot sell in Canada, must raise her barriers against Canada. We are likely to lose our dairy markets and our tobacco markets in the same way. Here is an extract from a recent government booklet published under authority of Mr. Weir, Minister of Agriculture.

" 'The large and increasing volume of butter and cheese imported into the United Kingdom has caused the British Government to enter into with New Zealand and Australia with a view to the voluntary restriction of exports of these products to the United Kingdom. If any such agreements are concluded between the United Kingdom and New Zealand and Australia, Canada may be asked to take similar action.

" 'The possibility of restrictions on imports of dairy products into the United Kingdom would suggest that it would be advisable for Canadian producers to develop home consumption as much as possible.'

"What do you think will happen to us if we lose our foreign markets—our Empire markets? It will indeed be a sad day for the farmers of South Oxford.

Vital Issues

"These issues are vital—far too vital to escape immediate attention. Our friends say the election of the Liberals means the repeal of the British preference. This is nonsense of the crudest kind. We are not opposed to the preference—we are opposed to shadow preferences, fake preferences, which give nothing and get nothing and give more promise of losing than gaining markets. Once in office, Liberals will open markets, not close them—expand British trade—not restrict it. Opening markets is the natural function of Liberlaism—closing them is the natural task of Toryism.

"We near the end of the campaign. This is the final appeal. There is before you the record of the two parties. They have both explained their viewpoints. South Oxford faces an election such as it never faced before. The conflict is between repression and freedom—between restriction of markets and liberation of trade. It matters little to me what happens in this campaign but it is vital to you. Time which sifts the wheat from the chaff and tests the ultimate measure of truth in every issue will vindicate the position we have taken in South Oxford throughout the campaign and the importance of the issue we have presented tonight."

N. WATERLOO LIBERALS NOMINATE APRIL 28

Kitchener, April 15.—The North Waterloo Liberals will choose their candidate for the forthcoming Provincial campaign at Waterloo on Saturday, April 28. This was decided at a meeting of the executive held in Waterloo Saturday afternoon, the second gathering of that body within a month.

FLAMING TANKER ADRIFT IN HARBOR

Port of Spain, Trinidad, April 15.—The Trinidad leasehold tanker Pyramid and her 11,000-gallon cargo of gasoline were destroyed by fire here today. The only man on her when flames broke out leaped overboard and swam to safety, after which the ship drifted about the harbor and menaced shipping. The fire finally burned itself out.

needed was personal evangelism. "The gift of Canadian people to the Newcomers can be the Christ of Service," she added.

Following a selection by the choir of the Indian residential school at Muncey with Mrs. Jamieson as pianist, Ross Jung, a third-year Chinese medical student from Toronto, spoke. He explained that he had been born in British Columbia and that he hoped to go to China as a medical missionary. "Christianity broadened my outlook", he said as he told of his work among Chinese boys to foster good fellowship and friendship among the youths.

Pays Tribute To Londoner

Dr. S. Y. Chao of Fowchow, China, an outstanding figure in hospital work for the Chinese church referred to his association with Dr. Wallace Crawford, who is the special medical missionary sent out by Metropolitan Church and paid tribute to the work of the former Londoner. Dr. Chao declared, "if we Christians really did as Christ taught us there would be no more fighting." The remark was made as he told of his friendship with Rev. N. Shirozu of Japan. Later in the afternoon Mr. Shirozu spoke briefly and mentioned the bond of friendship between them. Both men are in residence at Toronto taking special courses. Rev. R. S. Longley, of West China, another outstanding missionary, spoke briefly.

Dr. A. E. Armstrong, secretary of Foreign Missions, introduced Rev. T. A. Broadfoot of South China; Dr. J. S. MacKay of Central India; Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Anderson, also of Central India; Dr. Walter Strangway, Angola, West Africa; Rev. Herbert T. Owens of Korea and two Alma College Oriental students, Miss Sada Niwase of Japan and Miss Pyugh Yong Rhu of Korea who also spoke briefly.

Speaks Optimistically of West

At the first mass rally held in Metropolitan Church on Saturday evening, Rev. Dr. George Dorey, superintendent of missions in Saskatchewan, in charge of relief work there, spoke optimistically of the conditions in the Western province where drouth and crop failures have imposed a terrific burden on the church people of the stricken area.

Dr. Dorey declared that the church has invariably flourished in the face of difficulty and told that in spite of the curtailment of funds the United Church is keeping the churches and Sunday schools open.

"The church in the West is replacing despair with hope, cynicism with faith and panic with courage," said Dr. Dorey and declared that this is being made possible by the generosity and loyalty of the people both in the East and the West.

"You pay your dues to your lodges to keep in good standing but the contributions to the missionary and maintenance are given through a love for the Church," said the speaker.

Thanks Donors of Supplies

Dr. Dorey told of the great number of cars of food and supplies which had reached the West from this part of Ontario and thanked the donors.

Following Dr. Dorey, Dr. W. E. Strangway presented an illustrated lecture on the medical and missionary work in Africa. Rev. W. A. Walden, Empress Avenue Church, was chairman of the rally.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Armstrong, secretary of the foreign mission board, was the guest preacher at First United Church in the morning. A missionary for more than 27 years, he drew on his wide experience to place before the congregation something of the spirit required in missionary work. As an example he told of the Moravian Church, which has its headquarters in Herrnhut, Germany, and which with only 60,000 members supports 290 missionaries. He pointed out that the United Church could support 3,000 missionaries instead of 500 if they had the same zealous Christian spirit.

Work In Saskatchewan

At St. Andrews Church the work in Northern Saskatchewan was explained by Rev. John Nichol, mission superintendent at the morning service in King St. United.

and gaurantee bank deposit proposals should be placed on the statute books.

Opposed

It also was indicated the administration was opposed to action on the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing-Inflation bill.

The President is ready to veto the general revenue bill because of the proposed tax of three cents a pound on Phillipine Oils and Senator Pat Harrison (D., Miss.), chairman of the finance committee, planned to ask the Senate tomorrow to reconsider the bill, passed Friday. It has not yet reached the House, where opposition was voiced yesterday to many of the Senate provisions increasing the total from $258,000,000 to $480,000,000.

Against Thomas Bill

Aministration disapproval of legislation to release millions of dollars in closed banks was officially disclosed tonight in a letter written by Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the Treasury to Chairman Duncan Fletcher (D., Fla.) of the Senate banking committee.

Mentioning specifically the bill by Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), Morgenthau said that under the legislation "nearly half" of the money to be distributed would be received by about four per centum of the depositantee of bank deposits "past, pressors"; that it would represent a guarent and future," and that it would cost the taxpayers from "$1,250,000,000 to $2,500,000,000."

Bust Toronto Domination—London Orange Crush 6th In Team Contest

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—Hamilton Bowlers tonight had completed the most smashing rout of Toronto Trundlers in the history of Canadian Bowling Association Tournaments. Mountain City entrants captured the doubles and singles events but were edged out of the team title by four points.

W. Wright of Hamilton Olympia No. 2 who counted a sensational 947 in the team competition had a blow on the 10th frame to see his squad place second to Toronto Olympia No. 1 who had 3,698 against Hamilton's 3,694.

H. C. McKellar of Hamilton a past-president of the C.B.A., winning the singles with 911. The Hamilton pair of V. Colville and A. Wagner scored 1,664 to take the doubles crown. J. Walsh of Toronto counted 2,477 to take the grand aggregate.

Toronto players had monopolized the victories in the previous seven tournaments and this was the first year premier prizes had left the city. A new record was made in 64 entrants, 1,836 players participating the tourney which began last Monday.

W. Wright had the highest single game and three games scores 402 and 947 respectively, but he obtained these in the team competition.

Winipeg with 3,631 finished fifth in the team event after suffering many bad breaks.

Toronto Olympia No. 2 with 3,666 and Toronto Rangers with 3,643 were third and fourth respectively in the team contest. London Orange Crush had 3,618 for sixth.

In the doubles R. Duncan and A. Barrett of Toronto were second with 1,597. In the singles W. Adams of Toronto was second with 894, F. Melling also of Toronto third with 876 and C. Bradley of Ottawa fourth with 857.

In the team event, Waterloo Kuntz were 15th; Oshawa 17th; Montreal (C.N.R.F.A. 28th; Windsor Heintzman 31st; London Maple Leaf 33rd; Ottawa Karry's 37th.

In the singles T. Huggett of Stratford was sixth; G. Udquhart of Winipeg, eighth; and T. Martin of London, 10th.

SUPREME COURT TAKES BOXER'S PURSE AWAY

Canadian Press Despatch

Halifax, April 14.—Roy Mitchell, Halifax colored scrapper, lost a decision today, but not in the squared circle. His end of the gate in a fight with Tiger Warrington last year was declared forfeited by Mr. Justice R. H Graham in Supreme Court.

His Lordship found the Halifax fight was "not an honest exhibition of boxing" and Mitchell "did not perform his contract." The negro fighter had been accused by Promoter J. M. Harris of "stalling," and the promoter withheld his share of the receipts.

Mitchell won the verdict in County Court, but His Lordship's decision today exempted Harris from payment.

W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in his address in the town hall here Saturday night. Bute said Mr. King, it is just this fear of a general election on the part of private Conservative members which has enabled Mr. Bennett to hold his parliamentary majority in line.

"Would Mr. Bennett have been able to hold his followers on the titles question unless he had said to his supporters "Unless I get support there'll be a dissolution'," said Mr. King.

General Election Looms

However, the speaker continued, all signs point to a general election. The central bank, the marketing measure, amendments to the election act all would indicate that Mr. Bennett is preparing for an appeal to the country.

"If South Oxford on Monday speaks loudly there is a chance of the modification of some of these policies in a way better to serve the people, coupled with the chance that the government will give the people a chance at a general election." While in general elections the policies advanced by the parties appealing for favor might make the issue, in a by-election the only issue is the government's record, Mr. King pointed out. It is Mr. Benett's record which the electors of South Oxford will approve or condemn on Monday.

Sanderson And Taylor Speak

Dr. J. M. Rogers was chairman of the town hall meeting. Fred G. Sanderson, M.P., Ontario Liberal whip, and William Taylor, M.P., for Norfolk-Elgin, spoke before Mr. King.

Miss E. A. Seldon, president of the Ingersoll and District Women's Liberal Association, presented an address of welcome to Mr. King, while little Miss Margaret Copeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Copeland, and a niece of Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., presented Mr. King with a nicely-bound package of Ingersoll's famous cream cheese.

Mr. Sanderson read to the audience a statement from the Borden Milk Co. which showed that in 1929 the lowest summer price of milk at Ingersoll was $1.74 a cwt. and the highest winter price, $2.17. In 1933 the lowest summer price was 70 cents and the highest winter price 95 cents.

"Now which party has the best policy for the dairy industry in Oxford?" asked Mr. Sanderson.

Mr. King jocularly remarked, opening his speech, that he and Mr. Bennett differed on almost everything but "I am told if we were married we'd probably learn how to make up. I hope Mr. Bennett will be fortunate enough to achieve that end, while I haven't despaired of it myself."

Tobacco Report

Mr. King discussed the failure of the Bennett government to present the report of the Hon. Donald Sutherland on his investigation into tobacco-buying practices to parliament until last week.

"If in the Sutherland report there was ground for believing that there is a combine against the public interest, that is all the more reason the report should have been made public a year ago instead of a week ago. It is not Mr. Sutherland but the government which is on trial in this election. Yet now Mr. Stevens, a minister of the crown, comes into the riding and says he wants Mr. Sutherland returned to help in the fight of the tobacco growers. I tell you it is not one person but the policies of the government which will settle the fate of the tobacco growers. If one wants to be critical one can say that Mr. Stevens' plea was a threat of no battle for the tobacco growers unless Mr. Sutherland is returned. On the other hand it might be a bribe. I am not saying Mr. Stevens intended it as either. He shouldn't have made the statement at all. Under parliamentary institutions it doesn't matter who the man is, whether he be Liberal, Conservative, Farmer or Labor, every man stands for the interests of the constituency from which he is sent."

Dr. Manion's Prediction

Mr. King made reference to the speech of the Hon. Dr. Manion in the constituency in which Dr. Manion said that he had every reason to believe the government would lower interest rates on loans and mortgages. Mr. Bennett was asked in the House concerning this and answered that the predictions of any member of the government were based on his knowledge of what the government intends to do. No direct answer was given.

"Why did Mr. Manion need to bring up the question at all unless he was trying to leave in your mind the impression that he was stating something the government was going to do? Mr. Bennett told the House of Commons a few weeks ago that this couldn't be done. Mr. Bennett will take action at the time he thinks it should be taken, and any predictions his ministers make mean nothing," said Mr. King.

The Liberal leader declared that if parliament exists for any purpose at all, it is that the people's representatives might have control of the public treasury which is filled by taxation. Yet under the blank cheque clause of the relief bill the cabinet is taking this power away from parliament and a supine Tory majority says nothing. The dangers in such a policy have been exposed by the auditor-general's report on irregularities in the spending of funds under the blank cheque clause, said Mr. King.

Disastrous Trade Policies

The economic nationalism which has featured the Bennett trade policies cannot but in the end prove disastrous to Canadian agriculture and the other basic industries, he went on to say. Negotiation of trade treaties with countries outside the empire has been made more difficult by the Imperial Economic Conference trade agreements but today the Canadian farmer faces the loss of his markets in Britain through the demand of British farmers for protection. It is not to be expected, said Mr. King that Great Britain should adopt a protectionist policy in regard to some industries and not in the end apply it to agriculture.

"Where I think the Conservative party is wrong—perhaps I shouldn't use that expression because I don't think the majority of the party agree with Mr. Bennett but rather think he has gone too far in economic nationalism and the raising of tariffs—is in the misconception of the home market as a place and not as a purchasing power. As long as our basic industries produce as they do, it follows that a great share of the purchasing power in the home market stand for the keeping of those restrictions necessary to retain the standards of living in this country. But the Bennett policy has gone far beyond this and has, in fact, had an adverse effect on living standards.

In conclusion Mr. King pointed out that in many European countries parliamentary institutions have been done away with and dictatorship of individuals or groups substituted. In the steady sapping of parliament's powers in Canada the same trend is apparent. "There is the same trend today to do away with the great guardians of the people's liberties, the House of Commons," he declared.

MR. LAPOINTE'S SPEECH

Special to The Advertiser

Tillsonburg, Ont., April 14—Declaring that the Bennett Government was bound to disappear in the near future and that we must see that it does not destroy Canada in its spasms of agony, the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice in the King Government, closed an eloquent speech here this evening in the interests of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate, on the eve of Monday's election. Duplicating the meeting of the Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, scores had to be turned away and this notable son of Quebec was given a great ovation as he was introduced by R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., for South Oxford.

Mr. Lapointe was critical of the Bennett regime but abstained from personalities. He stated he believed the Canadian people have been deceived the last few years and that the mouths of the farmers and laboring men could not be sweetened by simply yelling money.

The Benett Government has intensified the depression by false promises in 1930 and by the policies they have followed the past four years. Confidence is the mainspring of life for any government and the Canadian people in the last few months have shown the present government that they have lost the confidence of the country. All the wild statements and promises of the government made in 1930 are now coming home to roost.

It is not production that is at fault but distribution, and the trade of Canada has been strangled since the Liberals were defeated in 1930. The past four years in parliament has been jazz or whoopee politics played to the tune of blank cheques at the expense of the people and parliament has been treated with contempt by the present administration, the speaker asserted.

"If anyone desires a title he should apply at once as the crop is low and there will not be another crop. It is freely rumored that the prime minister is to receive a peerage and I would suggest that the seven lean cows of the Scriptures be put on the coat of arms," Mr. Lapointe declared amid laughter.

"The people of Canada will judge the Bennett Government on its record and not on its prospectus and the return of the Liberal party will remove the shackles that have been forged for Canadian trade the past few years."

The Liberal candidate, A. S. Rennie, and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., also spoke briefly and urged a large Liberal majority on Monday.

PROMISES LIBERAL BEER POLICY SOON

rid of this wasteful government," he phophesied.

Promises Housecleaning

"If we get into power," promised Mr. Hepburn, "there's going to be a great housecleaning of Hydro and our first act will be to get rid of Engineer Gaby—not because he is Mr. Gaby, but because he has been getting $35,000 per year and allowing things to go on that should not occur."

Mr. Hepburn promised that other leading Hydro officials would go out with Engineer Gaby if the Liberals are elected. "We are going to take some of the supernumeraries off the backs of the burdened taxpayers, if we do nothing else. We are going to improve social conditions; have a minimum wage for men and women.

"W. G. Martin is another supernumerary, said Mr. Hepburn, "and he should go too.

Will be Hard Campaign

"This will be a hard campaign. There will be lots of campaign funds for the Conservatibes and it will be a hard fight. Watch out for the Government using trick methods," warned the speaker, and went on. "The Government are in a desperate position and they know it. They are casting about for help, blowing hot and blowing cold. Mr. Henry is headed for a fall."

Dr. L. J. Simpson, Liberal financial critic, in a vigorous speech criticized the economic policy of the Government." The Conservatives will eventually land Ontario in bankruptcy," he charged, and in substantiation pointed to the fact that interest charges on the Provincial debt at present amounted to one-third of the annual revenue. Ontario's liabilities are very rapidly catching up to its assets, he declared. He charged that when the Ontario Government announced a surplus of $450,000 it was poor bookkeeping and not facts. Dr. Simpson stated that while the Conservatives were trying to make out that the Liberal party was an enemy of Hydro, this was not so. The Liberals he pointed out, are in favor of operating Hydro as it was done in the time of the late Sir Adam Beck.

ROBSON CHOSEN

Canadian Press Despatch

Guelph, April 14—Winning enthusiastic acclaim from a crowd which packed the city hall auditorium to the rafters, R. Beverly Robson, eight years mayor of Guelph, this afternoon was unanimously chosen Conservative candidate for South Wellington to oppose D. Paul Munro in the impending provincial election.

The choice was warmly approved by Hon. W. H. Price, attorney-general who defended the government's action in bringing in beer and wine legislation and criticised Opposition speakers as having no platform on any issue to offer the people. Mr. Robson's nomination was moved by W. P. Gamble, defeated Conservative candidate in the 1931 by-election.

"Mayor Robson won't have much difficulty beating out Mr. Munro at Queen's Park," said Attorney-General Price, declaring that the Liberal member was hardly in the House during 1932 and 1933. He made light of Mr. Munro's "highway funds misappropriation" charges and declaring that the Liberals had always "dodged the liquor issue" charged that Mr. Hepburn today has no definite policy on the question.

He spoke of the Liberal leader's "remote control" and charged that he was "driving tandem" with Dr. McQuibban and Mr. Nixon. He praised the splendid results which have been achieved by the Liquor Control Act and declared that the new beer legislation was only brought down after the most serious consideration. Canada has pulled ahead remarkably in the last six months, the attorney general went on, outlining the work which the government has done in relief measures.

The greatest anomaly in the world today, he charged was the statement of Mr. King that Mr. Bennett is a dictator, since in British Columbia Mr. Patullo a Liberal, has assumed virtua[illegible], he said, in con-needed was personal evangelism. "The gift of Canadian people to the Newcomers can be the Christ of Service," she added.

Following a selection by the choir of the Indian residential school at Muncey with Mrs. Jamieson as pianist, Ross Jung, a third-year Chinese medical student from Toronto, spoke. He explained that he had been born in British Columbia and that he hoped to go to China as a medical missionary. "Christianity broadened my outlook", he said as he told of his work among Chinese boys to foster good felowship and friendship among the youths.

Pays Tribute To Londoner

Dr. S. Y. Chao of Fowchow, China, an outstanding figure in hospital work for the Chinese church referred to his association with Dr. Wallace Crossford, who is the special medical missionary sent out by Metropolitan Church and paid tribute to the work of the former Londoner. Dr. Chao declared, "if we Christians really did as Christ taught us there would be no more fighting." The remark was made as he told of his friendship with Rev. N. Shirozu of Japan. Later in the afternoon Mr. Shirozu spoke briefly and mentioned the bond of friendship between them. Both men are in residence at Toronto taking special courses. Rev. R. S. Longley, of West China, another outstanding missionary, spoke briefly.

Dr. A. E. Armstrong, secretary of Foreign Missions, introduced Rev. T. A. Broadfoot of South China; Dr. J. S. MacKay of Central India; Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Anderson, also of Central India; Dr. Walter Strangway, Angola, West Africa; Rev. Herbert T. Owens of Korea and two Alma College Oriental students, Miss Sada Niwase of Japan and Miss Pyugh Yong Rhu of Korea who also spoke briefly.

Speaks Optimistically of West

At the first mass rally held in Metropolitan Church on Saturday evening, Rev. Dr. George Dorey, superintendent of missions in Saskatchewan, in charge of relief work there, spoke optimistically of the conditions in the Western province where drouth and crop failures have imposed a terrific burden on the church people of the stricken area.

Dr. Dorey declared that the church has invariably flourished in the face of difficulty and told that in spite of the curtailment of funds the United Church is keeping the churches and Sunday schools open.

"The church in the West is replacing despair with hope, cynicism with faith and panic with courage," said Dr. Dorey and declared that this is being made possible by the generosity and loyalty of the people both in the East and the West.

"You pay your dues to your lodges to keep in good standing but the contributions to the missionary and maintenance are given through a love for the Church," said the speaker.

Thanks Donors of Supplies

Dr. Dorey told of the great number of cars of food and supplies which had reached the West from this part of Ontario and thanked the donors.

Following Dr. Dorey, Dr. W. E. Strangway presented an illustrated lecture on the medical and missionary work in Africa. Rev. W. A. Walden, Empress Avenue Church, was chairman of the rally.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Armstrong, secretary of the foreign mission board, was the guest preacher at First United Church in the morning. A missionary for more than 27 years, he drew on his wide experience to place before the congregation something of the spirit required in missionary work. As an example he told of the Moravian Church, which has its headquarters in Herrnhut, Germany, and which with only 60,000 members supports 290 missionaries. He pointed out that the United Church could support 3,000 missionaries instead of 500 if they had the same zealous Christian spirit.

Work In Saskatchewan

At St. Andrews Church the work in Northern Saskatchewan was explained by Rev. John Nichol, mission superintendent in that district. He stated that conditions are no better financially than they have been for the past few years and said that the troubles in the West are teaching both people of theEast and West the real values of life.

Messages along similar lines were presented by the missionaries in other city United Churches. Rev. G. A. Williams was the speaker at Colborne Street Church. Rev. F. A. Anderson of India and Rev. Manson Doyle, Toronto, were the guest speakers at Calvary United service. At Dundas Centre Rev. R. B. Layton, Western Canada and Rev. D. G. Cock of India spoke at the morning and evening services respectively.

Work of the foreign missions was outlined to the congregations at Centennial Church by Rev. Dr. J. S. McKay, India, and Rev. K. J. Beaton, Toronto. Rev. Mr. Beaton and Rev. Dr. Armstrong were the guests at Hyatt Avenue church and Rev. Dr. MacKay spoke at Knox Church evening service.

Rev. Manson Doyle was the speaker at the morning service in King St. United.

Program For Today

The program of the mission conference for today is as follows:

and gaurantee bank deposit proposals should be placed on the statute books.

Opposed

It also was indicated the administration was opposed to action on the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing-inflation bill.

The President is ready to veto the general revenue bill because of the proposed tax of three cents a pound on Phillipine Oils and Senator Pat Harrison (D., Miss.), chairman of the finance committee, planned to ask the Senate tomorrow to reconsider the bill, passed Friday. It has not yet reached the House, where opposition was voiced yesterday to many of the Senate provisions increasing the total from $238,000,000 to $480,000,000.

Against Thomas Bill

Administration disapproval of legislation to release millions of dollars in closed banks was officially disclosed tonight in a letter written by Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the Treasury to Chairman Duncan Fletcher (D., Fla.) of the Senate banking committee.

Mentioning specifically the bill by Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), Morgenthau said that under the legislation "nearly half of the money to be distributed would be received by about four per centum of the depositanee of bank deposits "past, presors"; that it would represent a guarent and future," and that it would cost the taxpayers from "$1,250,000,000 to $2,500,000,000."

SIR FREDERICK WALL TO GET $50,000 GIFT

London, April 14.—A sum of $50,000 will be presented to Sir Frederick Wall who is retiring in July as secretary of the English Football Association, which he has served for 40 years.

The council of the F. A., deciding on the gift to-day said it would be in recognition of the "untiring energy and valuable service to British football" of Sir Frederick.

TWO CHILDREN PERISH IN BURNING HOME

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 14.—Two children were burned to death today when the frame cabin of Mr. and Mrs. Riddel, settlers near Hearst, was razed by flames.

VANCOUVER CAGERS WIN

Lethbridge, Alta., April 15.—Vancouver Provinces tonight held a 48-44 victory over Lethbridge Young Liberals as they moved eastward to Winnipeg to meet Robertson Memorials in the Western Canada men's senior basketball final.

The British Columbia champions downed the Alberta runners-up in an exhibition game here last night in a fast session. With the home team giving the visitors plenty of opposition. Young Liberals lost out to Raymond Union Jacks, who were eliminated in two straight games in the interprovincial playdowns by Province. The Winnipeg series opens Tuesday night.

NEWBURY WOMAN BURNED

Singeing a chicken with a piece of blazing paper Saturday afternoon almost cost the life of Mrs. Violet Dennis, aged 41, of Newbury. Mrs. Dennis accidentally dropped the paper, the flames ignited her clothing, and she suffered painful burns to her arms and back. She was brought to Victoria Hospital here.

WINDS HALT MIGRATING GEESE

Rosser, Man., April 14.—High winds interrupted the migratory flight of huge flocks of geese here today. Thousands of the birds, unable to make headway against the 30-mile-an-hour blow halted for the week-end in this locality, about 18 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

N. WATERLOO LIBERALS NOMINATE APRIL 28

Kitchener, April 15.—The North Waterloo Liberals will choose their candidate for the forthcoming Provincial campaign at Waterloo on Saturday, April 28. This was decided at a meeting of the executive held in Waterloo Saturday afternoon, the second gathering of that body within a month.

FLAMING TANKER ADRIFT IN HARBOR

Port of Spain, Trinidad, April 15.—The Trinidad leasehold tanker Pyramid and her 11,000-gallon cargo of gasoline were destroyed by fire here today. The only man on her when flames broke out leaped overboard and swam to safety, after which the ship drifted about the harbor and menaced shipping. The fire finally burned itself out.

HAMILTON TRUNDLERS SWEEP C.B.A. ALLEYS

Bust Toronto Domination—London Orange Crush 6th In Team Contest

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 15.—Hamilton Bowlers tonight had completed the most smashing rout of Toronto Trundlers in the history of Canadian Bowling Association Tournaments. Mountain City entrants captured the doubles and singles events but were edged out of the team title by four points.

W. Wright of Hamilton Olympia No. 2 who counted a sensational 947 in the team competition had a blow on the 10th frame to see his squad place second to Toronto Olympia No. 1 who had 3,698 against Hamilton's 3,694.

H. C. McKellar of Hamilton a past-president of the C.B.A., winning the singles with 911. The Hamilton pair of V. Colville and A. Wagner scored 1,664 to take the doubles crown. J. Walsh of Toronto counted 2,477 to take the grand aggregate.

Toronto players had monopolized the victories in the previous seven tournaments and this was the first year premier prizes had left the city. A new record was made in entrants, 1,836 players participating the tourney which began last Monday.

W. Wright had the highest single game and three games scores 402 and 947 respectively, but he obtained these in the team competition.

Winipeg with 3,631 finished fifth in the team event after suffering many bad breaks.

Toronto Olympia No. 2 with 3,666 and Toronto Rangers with 3,643 were third and fourth respectively in the team contest. London Orange Crush had 3,618 for sixth.

In the doubles R. Duncan and A. Barrett of Toronto were second with 1,557. In the singles W. Adams of Toronto was second with 894. F. Melling also of Toronto third with 876 and C. Bradley of Ottawa fourth with 857.

In the team event, Waterloo Kunts were 15th; Oshawa 17th; Montreal C.N.R.E.A. 28th; Windsor Heintzman 31st; London Maple Leaf 33rd; Ottawa Karry's 34th.

In the singles T. Huggett of Stratford was sixth; G. Urquhart of Winnipeg, eighth; and T. Martin of London, 10th.

NO PARDON FOR KID McCOY

Sacramento, Calif., April 14.—Norman Selby, once known to fistic fans as "Kid McCoy," must remain on parole from San Quentin prison.

The state advisory pardon board notified the Governor's office it had declined to recommend a pardon for McCoy, which would have returned him full citizenship. It gave no reason.

SUPREME COURT TAKES BOXER'S PURSE AWAY

Canadian Press Despatch

Halifax, April 14.—Roy Mitchell, Halifax colored scrapper, lost a decision today, but not in the squared circle. His end of the gate in a fight with Tiger Warrington last year was declared forfeited by Mr. Justice R. H. Graham in Supreme Court.

His Lordship found the Halifax fight was "not an honest exhibition of boxing" and Mitchell "did not perform his contract." The negro fighter had been accused by Promoter J. M. Harris of "stalling," and the promoter withheld his share of the receipts.

Mitchell won the verdict in County Court, but His Lordship's decision today exempted Harris from payment.

Slighting South Oxford

South Oxford electors who go to the polls today may well ask why they were not permitted to exercise the right earlier.

The seat was vacated nearly a year ago by the death of Mr. Cayley. Three other seats were vacated about the same time or later for various reasons—Restigouche-Madawaska, N. B., Yamaska, Que., and Mackenzie, Saskatchewan. By-elections in these three constituencies were held last October, on the same day. Why was South Oxford excluded? Mr. King asked that question at Ingersoll Saturday night.

The fact is that the Government wished to disenfranchise South Oxford for the remainder of the present Parliament and would have succeeded but for the Liberal party. As time went on and the Government made no move to fill the seat the Liberals took matters into their own hands. Mr. King asked two Liberal members of Parliament to file the necessary papers, thus compelling the Government to fix the date of the by-election within six months. Even then the Government delayed it until the greater part of the present session of Parliament had passed. No thanks will be due the Government if South Oxford is represented for the remainder of the session. The constituency should resent the treatment it has received and today it probably will.

Might Have Been Foreseen

The London Times, discussing the conflict of interest between farmers in the United Kingdom and in the Dominions, says that at the Imperial Economic Conference it was not foreseen that Great Britain would embark upon a serious effort to restore her own agricultural industries. If so, this is a remarkable illustration of ignoring the obvious. When protection was revived in Great Britain, it was inevitable that the farmers of that country should claim [illegible] its benefits as well as the manufacturer. The revival of British agriculture has been a stock subject of discussion in the United Kingdom for many years. Its advocates dwelt upon the fact that enormous quantities of food were imported which might just as well have been produced at home. Some pleaded for tariff protection. Others said that too much land available for agriculture was given up to hunting. As to tariff protection, it was obvious that there would be a conflict of interest between farmers in the United Kingdom and of the Dominions. This was disclosed in inquiries made during the discussion over the Chamberlain proposals more than thirty years ago. Farmers who liked the prospect of protection against foreigners were not enthusiastic about preferences in favor of the Dominions. The Dominion imports, just like the foreign imports, came into competition with their own.

This is precisely the same as the attitude of the advocates of protection for manufacturing industry in Canada. They wanted protection against foreigners, and also against the manufacturers of Great Britain. Mr. Bennett took this ground very strongly. The Times says that the British farmer has the same right to be protected against Dominion competition as Dominion manufacturers have to be protected against British. "A prosperous agricultural population is at least as necessary for Great Britain as a prosperous textile or iron and steel industry is for Canada or Australia." It proceeds to say:

> What our correspondent urges is that, in her efforts to revive the agricultural industries, Great Britain should avoid the excessive and indiscriminate protection adopted by the principal industrial countries on the continent to the impoverishment of the agricultural countries and the ruin of world trade; that the Government should determine what foodstuffs and what quantities of them can be produced at home without too great an economic sacrifice, and what margin should be left to be supplied from the Dominions and from foreign countries.

In other words, if there are to be protective tariffs not only against the foreigner but against producers within the British Commonwealth of Nations, they must be moderate if Empire trade is to be encouraged. This is exactly where the Bennett policy fails. No one can claim with any semblance of reason that [illegible] injurious to Canada. All we can do now is to keep our own tariffs moderate, so that we may fairly claim similar treatment from Great Britain.

Four Men to Control the World Wheat Market

A committee sitting in London has worked out a world marketing scheme on a basis naively described as one of "fluctuating fixed prices." Despatches call it complicated. A fluctuating fixture does suggest a certain degree of complexity. The plan, we are told, does not determine a minimum price but outlines a method by which minimum prices may be maintained. It is predicted that the committee will draw up a schedule which will provide for five to ten per cent. increase in the price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, which is the world's standard. Other grades will be treated correspondingly. Regulation of wheat prices will involve control of the prices and production of flour. As the quantities of wheat for export and consumption must be restricted, a certain portion of the crop in several countries will be denatured—made unfit for human consumption—so as to reserve it for live stock. It will be feed, not food.

This is what the world has come to, through the attempt of nearly all countries to become self-sufficient and deny themselves the advantages of international co-operation. Canada as the greatest exporter of wheat must be the greatest sufferer. She is punished by almost world-wide application of an economic dogma which her own Government preaches and practices. It was summed up by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, when he said: "Our idea is that nothing shall be imported into Canada which can be grown or manufactured or otherwise produced in this country." Because many wheat-producing countries are acting on that idea and growing wheat at any cost, Canada is deprived of a large part of her export market, and is told that she must cut down her production of wheat, the crop which has created the prairie West and still sustains it. Even Great Britain has been infected by the self-containment craze, and is bonusing the growth of wheat by a fixed price of $1.30 a bushel. The Canadian Government is encouraging Britain to resort to her own soil for her own food by making it difficult for her to buy Canadian products. She can only buy these products by selling her own goods, against which Canada has erected high tariffs. The Ottawa Government is today actually fighting its own Tariff Board because the Board believes the Government is not keeping faith with Great Britain.

Canada produces the best wheat in all the world, and all the world has bought it through hundreds of agencies and channels. In future if the London agreement is sanctioned, four men will sit in London and decide where it will go and in what quantities and at what prices. They will replace the law of supply and demand. To this condition has Canada's basic industry been reduced by the international adoption of the economic creed to which the Canadian Government subscribes and which it has rivetted on this country, fettering it as never before.

Note and Comment

There is no longer any talk of blasting our way into the world markets. Canada has been hoist with her own petard.

President Roosevelt is said to be losing some of his authority over Congress. But there is no sign that he is losing his popularity in the country.

Prime Minister Bennett denouncing Premier Pattullo's usurpation of legislative powers is another case of the pot reproaching the kettle for its dark complexion.

At Ingersoll Mr. King pointed out that the South Oxford by-election would be held two days before budget day. He thought this was significant and it suggested that a stiffer dose of taxation is coming which would not be good campaign material.

The British steel industry has devised a five-year plan for complete re-organization, and will ask for a five-year extension. There is room for improvement. When Sir Henry Thornton was prepared to give large orders for steel, not made in Canada, he could find no one in this country representing British steel interests.

It is announced that the Canadian budget this week will make some revisions in the British-Canadian trade agreement. It should be revised out of all recognition, so as to save the fast-closing British market for Canadian farm products before it is too late. But that means that Canada must give Britain a square deal, which she is not getting now.

200 AT MEETING OF I.O.O.F. HERE

District Encampment No. 8, Stages Rally—Visitors Exemplify Degrees

Nearly 200 members of the I. O. O. F. gathered in London on Saturday night for the rally of District Encampment No. 8 which was held in the I. O. O. F. lodgerooms, Bank of Nova Scotia Building. The visitors were present from Watford, Kerrwood, Mount Brydges, Kitchener Brantford and London. The rally was held by Harmony Encampment No. 3 of this city, and proved to be one of the best gatherings that has ever been staged by the Order in this district.

The degree teams from Kitchener and Brantford were present. The Kitchener team exemplified the Patriarchal and Royal Purple degrees while the Brantford team exemplified the Golden Rule Degree.

Following the business meeting Saturday night a banquet was held at which short addresses were delivered by several of the outstanding visitors.

The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of R. G. Legg, chairman; A. Chapman, J. Sugerman, W. T. Wheeler, Percy Pawley and W. A. McRoberts.

The gathering was one of the most interesting and instructive held by the local Encampment. The visiting degree teams complimented for their work.

Among the outstanding members present were Roy Sloat, G. J. W., of Brantford, a member of the Grand Encampment of Ontario; R. E. Waltham of Kerrwood, P. G. P. and a grand representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge; August Kutoba, of Kitchener, P. G. P., who took an active part in the degree work; W. Leonard, D. D. G. I. of District No. 18; Howard McLean, D. D. G. P. of Kerrwood, of District No. 8, and several others.

On the arrival of the visitors on Saturday afternoon, a luncheon was held in a downtown restaurant.

LIGHTER EXPLODES, SETS BED ON FIRE

Maple Street Man Unhurt In Unusual Mishap—Firemen Extinguish Cellar Blaze

When the cigarette lighter he was filling is said by firemen to have exploded Sunday afternoon, A. Jackson of 92 Maple street, escaped injury but a resulting fire did considerable damage to a mattress and some bed sheets. The blaze was extinguished by firemen from King street station before it gained headway to other parts of the house.

Firemen say that Mr. Jackson was sitting on the dege of the bed pouring fluid into his lighter when some overflowed. When he tried the lighter it ignited and a small explosion resulted. Mr. Jackson jumped to safety and in less than a minute the bed clothing was on fire.

On Saturday afternoon firemen had another run to Maple street where smoke was issuing from the basement of No. 146 Maple street. An examination revealed that some live coals had dropped from the grate to the ashpit clean-out below, and had ignited some cardboard. The small fire was extinguished before damage resulted.

Murder And Suicide Suspected—Couple Friends For Seven Years

Associated Press Despatch

Philadelphia, April 14 — The man and woman found dead in a river front hotel today were identified as Paul Benson 36, of Camden, N.J., and Pauline Skiba 28, of Philadelphia.

Police said they learned the couple had been friends for seven years. Police also said they believe that Benson killed the woman and then shot himself.

Confronted by fictitious registration, police had difficulty in identifying the bodies, whose expensive clothing and jewelry afforded sharp contrast to the dingy hotel room in which they were found shot to death.

FIRST MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR STUDENTS, GRADUATES OF UNIVERSITY OF W.O.

Faculty, Students And Administration Staff Participate In Impressive Ceremony

DR. SERWOOD FOX IS CHIEF SPEAKER

Tribute Paid To Memory Of 28 Formerly Connected With University

In respectful memory of 28 men and women who at some time before their death were connected with the University of Western Ontario, students, faculties and administration staff Sunday afternoon gathered in Convocation Hal to listen to a Memorial address given by President W. Sherwood Fox and to participate in the first annual service of this kind at Western.

As the light filtered through the stained-glass windows of Convocation Hall, the large congregation stood in silence while the strains of Chopin's Funeral March were played. With bowed heads present students thought of the reference made by Dr. Fox that it would be their duty to carry on the tasks which, taken up, had been removed from the hands of past students and graduates by the intervention of death.

Memory Honored

Those men and women whom Western, as a maternal guiding light, yesterday mourned, are as follows:

Elmer Armstrong, Arthur Barber, Dr. C. W. Brown, '06, Dr. B. F. Butler, Dr. J. A. Campbell, '12, Dr. R. M. Chariton, '06, H. J. Childs, Margaret Crawford, '26, Sir Arthur Currie, '24, Dr. L. H. Douglass, '5, Dr. W. S. Downham, '12, Dr. D. B. Fraser, '28, Archie D. Graham, Dr. R. M. Gubbins, '92, Rev. S. P. Irwin, '98, Dr. N T. Johnson, '02, Dr. K. M. Lindsay, '28, Dr. A. B. Macallum, Dr. J. E. Mason, '14, Georgina Munroe, Dr. W. J. Nesbitt, '12, Sarah Paterson, John Pringle, Frances Steer, '26, Jean Stewart, '33, Dr. W. J. Taylor, '10, Dr. C. E. Tran, '12, Rev. Geo. Vrooman, '19.

The lessons for the service were taken from Ecclesiastes, XLIV 1-15 and Hebrews XI, 13-16 and 32-40, and were read by Prof. J. A. Spenceley, of the Department of English, who also conducted the remaining service part of the program. Frank Stiles provided musical accompaniments.

Dr. Fox Main Speaker

Dr. Fox, as the main speaker, eulogised the various groups of students which death took from the various faculties and departments of the school. The list as given included those who died since January, 1933.

"Even in a small university, each year its noticeable toll from the academic circle of administration, faculties, alumni and students," Dr. Fox declared. "You will note that I include graduates in this group. As I have said on many occasions before, graduates—or, in the more affectionate Latin term, alumni—are, though living outside the college halls, just as much a part of the family circle as they were when they lived within those halls. By their Alma Mater they are always regarded as present, however great the distance that divides them from her physically. One of the penalties of the university's growth is that these grievous exactions of death become with the passing of time more numerous and hence increasingly striking and poignant. We who remain are indeed through the loss of our friends and colleagues, but we find some measure of consolation in our cherished memory of their noble characters and their unselfish lives. Our grief is assuaged when we pause to remind ourselves that the truly good in human life and thought and deed is never lost but continue for all time in some form. Indeed, it is the function of those of us who are left behind to help the good thus to continue. Our beloved friends began a task, and upon us falls the burden of carrying it on devotedly, until we in our turn are summoned to surrender it to our successors.

Represent Many Spheres

"In reviewing these names one cannot but remark the variety of spheres of activity that they represent. As a group they represent a typical cross section of our social life. Their fields of endeavor are emblematic of the contribution their university is making to the life of the nation. In them we can read in letters written large the real and vital mission of a university to any nation, for, contrary to an opinion that is all too common, a modern university touches not merely the academic phases of national life, but every phase. In a most mysterious and quiet way it permeates the whole fabric of our society.

Represent 3 Greatest Professions

"So many of those who have died belonged to three of the greatest professions—the Ministry, Teaching and Medicine. All of these are among the noblest of callings, and I know I shall not be understood as slighting the first two mentioned when for a moment I refer to the third, Medicine. I fear that this profession has not received from the world the measure of tribute that is its due. During the stress of the past five years the burden of care and duty that has been laid upon the physician and surgeon has been beyond human calculation. Always ready to give of their knowledge and skill, they have responded promptly to the countless calls that these trying times have made upon them. The vast majority have forgotten themselves in serving others and in so doing have in all too many instances concealed the fact that they themselves were in need of help and rest and comfort. Some in adhering to their vows to put service to their fellowmen above all else have brought themselves to the verge of poverty. Some have denied themselves the opportunity of further study rather than to seem to desert their home community in the time of great trouble.. And I know that several of those to whose memories we pay homage today have passed from the heat of the living because unselfishly they spent their health and strength before their time. It is the wish of every one of us that all due honor be paid to them. May their successors be animated by the same altruistic spirit. May their lives be spared, if God so wills, to long years of service amongst us."

PATIENTS IN PANIC AS BOILER EXPLODES

St. John's, Que., April 14—Explosion of the boiler of the heating system at the Grey Nun Hospital today threw patients into a panic. The power house was destroyed with damages estimated at $10,000. No one was injured.

COURT SANCTIONS MONEY TRANSFER

Goderich Branch Of Bank Of Montreal To Pay Mrs. B. Jackson's Funds Into Court

Officially washing its hands of the case, Bank of Montreal sought and was grnated permission in weekly high court here Saturday to pay into court the $3,425 which it holds in its Goderich branch to the credit of 21-year-old Betty Jackson. The application was made by Huron R. Davidson, acting for the bank, while Arthur LeBel, counsel for Mrs. Jackson; and S. G. Robertson, representing Miss Lucy Taylor, consented to the order. Costs of the bank, amounting to $45, are to be paid out of the money.

The money is held under an injunction granted by County Judge Joseph Wearing until trial of the $5,500 supreme court action for alleged theft brought by Miss Lucy B. Taylor against Mrs. Jackson.

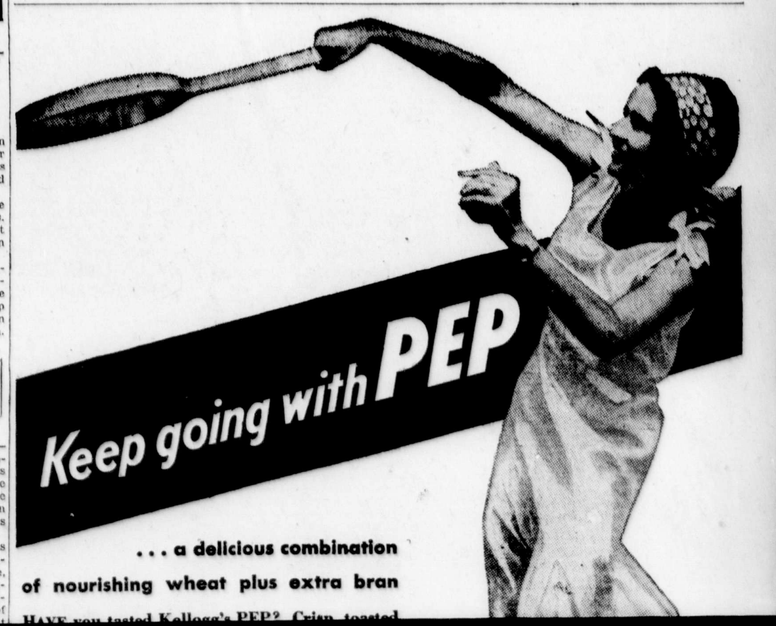
Mrs. Jackson has admitted that the $3,425 in the Goderich branch is a part of $5,000 paid to her by Miss Taylor for use in attempting to secure a governor's pardon for George Taylor, serving a ten-year-term in Kansas State Prison.

At the same time, it is announced that Mrs. Jackson is carrying her fight for possession of the money to the appeal court at Osgoode Hall. Her counsel, Arthur LeBel, has filed notice that he is appealing the decision of Judge Wearing. He will again argue that the money should be released to Mrs. Jackson. Hearing of the appeal has been set for Wednesday, April 18, at Toronto.

ALLEGE LONDONER STRUCK CONSTABLE

Ridout Street Man Charged With Assault Following Police Raid

Charged with assaulting a police constable, a Ridout street man will appear in city police court this morning, following a police raid on his apartment on Saturday night. Police say the man, his wife and four others were arrested and taken to the King street police station at 10:40 o'clock Saturday night.



The local man is alleged to have assaulted P. C. Fred Fuller, who in company with Constable Joseph Miles and Sergt. William Middaugh raided his apartment.

While the officers were in the residence, the man is alleged to have kicked P. C. Fuller in the shins and to have inflicted scratches on his face and caused several body injuries. Constable Fuller just returned to duty a few days ago after being at his home on sick leave.

With the exception of the occupant of the house, the others are charged with being disorderly.

WIFE FAINTS IN COURT AS HUSBAND SENTENCED

Windsor, Ont., April 14. — Alex Schacht, 28, learned today that the law does not forget. He returned recently to Windsor after an absence of three years and was at once arrested on a warrant charging robbery with violence which had been issued before his departure. His young wife, attending the court hearing, fainted as her husband was sentenced to two years in Kingston penientiary.

Slighting South Oxford

South Oxford electors who go to the polls today may well ask why they were not permitted to exercise the right earlier.

The seat was vacated nearly a year ago by the death of Mr. Cayley. Three other seats were vacated about the same time or later for various reasons—Restigouche-Madawaska, N. B., Yamaska, Que., and Mackenzie, Saskatchewan. By-elections in these three constituencies were held last October, on the same day. Why was South Oxford excluded? Mr. King asked that question at Ingersoll Saturday night.

The fact is that the Government wished to disenfranchise South Oxford for the remainder of the present Parliament and would have succeeded but for the Liberal party. As time went on and the Government made no move to fill the seat the Liberals took matters into their own hands. Mr. King asked two Liberal members of Parliament to file the necessary papers, thus compelling the Government to fix the date of the by-election within six months. Even then the Government delayed it until the greater part of the present session of Parliament had passed. No thanks will be due the Government if South Oxford is represented for the remainder of the session. The constituency should resent the treatment it has received and today it probably will.

Might Have Been Foreseen

The London Times, discussing the conflict of interest between farmers in the United Kingdom and in the Dominions, says that at the Imperial Economic Conference it was not foreseen that Great Britain would embark upon a serious effort to restore her own agricultural industries. If so, this is a remarkable illustration of ignoring the obvious. When protection was revived in Great Britain, it was inevitable that the farmers of that country should claim [illegible] its benefits as well as the manufacturer. The revival of British agriculture has been a stock subject of discussion in the United Kingdom for many years. Its advocates dwelt upon the fact that enormous quantities of food were imported which might just as well have been produced at home. Some pleaded for tariff protection. Others said that too much land available for agriculture was given up to hunting. As to tariff protection, it was obvious that there would be a conflict of interest between farmers in the United Kingdom and of the Dominions. This was disclosed in inquiries made during the discussion over the Chamberlain proposals more than thirty years ago. Farmers who liked the prospect of protection against foreigners were not enthusiastic about preferences in favor of the Dominions. The Dominion imports, just like the foreign imports, came into competition with their own.

This is precisely the same as the attitude of the advocates of protection for manufacturing industry in Canada. They wanted protection against foreigners, and also against the manufacturers of Great Britain. Mr. Bennett took this ground very strongly. The Times says that the British farmer has the same right to be protected against Dominion competition as Dominion manufacturers have to be protected against British. "A prosperous agricultural population is at least as necessary for Great Britain as a prosperous textile or iron and steel industry is for Canada or Australia." It proceeds to say:

> What our correspondent urges is that, in her efforts to revive the agricultural industries, Great Britain should avoid the excessive and indiscriminate protection adopted by the principal industrial countries on the continent to the impoverishment of the agricultural countries and the ruin of world trade; that the Government should determine what foodstuffs and what quantities of them can be produced at home without too great an economic sacrifice, and what margin should be left to be supplied from the Dominions and from foreign countries.

In other words, if there are to be protective tariffs not only against the foreigner but against producers within the British Commonwealth of Nations, they must be moderate if Empire trade is to be encouraged. This is exactly where the Bennett policy fails. No one can claim with any semblance of reason that the Bennett tariffs against British imports are moderate. They have caused frequent complaints from manufacturers in Great Britain, and they have brought about a conflict between the Bennett Government and its own Tariff Board. The natural sequence is a demand from British farmers for more tariff protection against the Dominions, or modification of the quotas. If there is to be moderation it must be on both sides.

With the best that can be done, it is doubtful if the Canadian farmer will ever have as favorable a position in the British market as he had when Great Britain was under free trade. The best he can hope for is some advantage over the foreign producer, but in a smaller market. There was great rejoicing among extreme and fanatical protectionists in Canada when Great Britain abandoned free trade and they did all in their power to encourage the movement. Its influence on the whole is indoes not determine a minimum price but outlines a method by which minimum prices may be maintained. It is predicted that the committee will draw up a schedule which will provide for five to ten per cent. increase in the price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat, which is the world's standard. Other grades will be treated correspondingly. Regulation of wheat prices will involve control of the prices and production of flour. As the quantities of wheat for export and consumption must be restricted, a certain portion of the crop in several countries will be denatured—made unfit for human consumption—so as to reserve it for live stock. It will be feed, not food.

This is what the world has come to, through the attempt of nearly all countries to become self-sufficient and deny themselves the advantages of international co-operation. Canada as the greatest exporter of wheat must be the greatest sufferer. She is punished by almost world-wide application of an economic dogma which her own Government preaches and practices. It was summed up by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, when he said: "Our idea is that nothing shall be imported into Canada which can be grown or manufactured or otherwise produced in this country." Because many wheat-producing countries are acting on that idea and growing wheat at any cost, Canada is deprived of a large part of her export market, and is told that she must cut down her production of wheat, the crop which has created the prairie West and still sustains it. Even Great Britain has been infected by the self-containment craze, and is bonusing the growth of wheat by a fixed price of $1.30 a bushel. The Canadian Government is encouraging Britain to resort to her own soil for her own food by making it difficult for her to buy Canadian products. She can only buy these products by selling her own goods, against which Canada has erected high tariffs. The Ottawa Government is today actually fighting its own Tariff Board because the Board believes the Government is not keeping faith with Great Britain.

Canada produces the best wheat in all the world, and all the world has bought it through hundreds of agencies and channels. In future if the London agreement is sanctioned, four men will sit in London and decide where it will go and in what quantities and at what prices. They will replace the law of supply and demand. To this condition has Canada's basic industry been reduced by the international adoption of the economic creed to which the Canadian Government subscribes and which it has rivetted on this country, fettering it as never before.

Note and Comment

There is no longer any talk of blasting our way into the world markets. Canada has been hoist with her own petard.

President Roosevelt is said to be losing some of his authority over Congress. But there is no sign that he is losing his popularity in the country.

Prime Minister Bennett denouncing Premier Pattullo's usurpation of legislative powers is another case of the pot reproaching the kettle for its dark complexion.

At Ingersoll Mr. King pointed out that the South Oxford by-election would be held two days before budget day. He thought this was significant and it suggested that a stiffer dose of taxation is coming which would not be good campaign material.

But that means that Canada must give Britain a square deal, which she is not getting now.

Hitlerites boast that unemployment has been reduced one-half under the present regime. It has been reduced only by putting two million men to work for the Government. In the meantime the export trade has fallen rapidly and a crisis in exchange has developed. Hatred in other countries of the cruelties of Hitler rule has vastly reduced the foreign demand for German goods.

Mussolini has decreed that every unmarried man in Italy must pay 50 per cent. of his income to the State. The law is a gross interference with personal liberty. A man who marries merely to escape taxation is not likely to be a good husband. Besides, the standard of living is falling so steadily Italy that many single men must have difficulty in keeping themselves. A new ukase has just slashed wages and salarie for the third time within two years. Prices and rents are also cut, but if there is to be any reduction in profits and dividends the despatches do not mention it.

Possibly the Chowder Club members fail to realize that in wars more powder than chowder is dished out to the troops, who are often left in the soup.

As long as the setting of dates for daylight saving is left to individual municipalities, the time confusion with its consequent inconvenience will continue. Isn't it about time that we had some semblance of uniformity in this important question?

LIGHTER EXPLODES, SETS BED ON FIRE

Maple Street Man Unhurt In Unusual Mishap—Firemen Extinguish Cellar Blaze

When the cigarette lighter he was filling is said by firemen to have exploded Sunday afternoon, A. Jackson of 92 Maple street, escaped injury but a resulting fire did considerable damage to a mattress and some bed sheets. The blaze was extinguished by firemen from King street station before it gained headway to oither parts of the house.

Firemen say that Mr. Jackson was sitting on the dege of the bed pouring fluid into his lighter when some overflowed. When he tried the lighter it ignited and a small explosion resulted. Mr. Jackson jumped to safety and in less than a minute the bed clothing was on fire.

On Saturday afternoon firemen had another run to Maple street where smoke was issuing from the basement of No. 146 Maple street. An examination revealed that some live coals had dropped from the grate to the ashpit clean-out below, and had ignited some cardboard. The small fire was extinguished before damage resulted.

Identify Bodies Found In Hotel

Murder And Suicide Suspected—Couple Friends For Seven Years

Associated Press Despatch

Philadelphia, April 14 — The man and woman found dead in a river front hotel today were identified as Paul Benson 36, of Camden, N.J., and Pauline Skiba 28, of Philadelphia.

Police said they learned the couple had been friends for seven years. Police also said they believe that Benson killed the woman and then shot himself.

Confronted by fictitious registration, police had difficulty in identifying the bodies, whose expensive clothing and jewelry afforded sharp contrast to the dingy hotel room in which they were found shot to death.

Letters to Editor

THE HISTORY HOWLERS

To the Editor of The Advertiser—Your story of howlers written by local collegiate institute students seems to call for comment. These lapses are often amusing but never creditable and the recurrent crops of them in history proves that there is serious blame somewhere.

Newspaper reports of the addresses at the recent O.E.A., meeting, supported by teachers who heard them, give the impression that the outstanding point of the President's address was his vigorous criticism of the Education Department's treatment of history. He quoted its prescription that the aims of the teacher of history should be to arouse interest in the subject, to give an intelligent grasp of civics, to create a love for high ideals of conduct and to teach the sequences of causes and effects. Then he read the last entrance examination paper on history set by the Education Department to show that instead of promoting these aims it actually defeated them in merely exacting memory cramming of very many barren facts.

The Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Education was on the platform and heard the applause of the criticism. In his own speech he defended his temporary holding of two or three portfolios and said that he intrusted the direction of educational affairs to what was practically a commission of three teachers. These facts will help the public to place the blame which must rest with the pupils, the teachers, the Minister, or the commission. The O.E.A. president evidently places a good deal of it at headquarters.

A HISTORY TEACHER.

DR. SHERWOOD FOX IS CHIEF SPEAKER

Tribute Paid To Memory Of 28 Formerly Connected With University

In respectful memory of 28 men and women who at some time before their death were connected with the University of Western Ontario, students, faculties and administration staff Sunday afternoon gathered in Convocation Hall to listen to a Memorial address given by President W. Sherwood Fox and to participate in the first annual service of this kind at Western.

As the light filtered through the stained-glass windows of Convocation Hall, the large congregation stood in silence while the strains of Chopin's Funeral March were played. With bowed heads present students thought of the reference made by Dr. Fox that it would be their duty to carry on the tasks which, taken up, had been removed from the hands of past students and graduates by the intervention of death.

Memory Honored

Those men and women whom Western, as a maternal guiding light, yesterday mourned, are as follows:

Elmer Armstrong, Arthur Barber, Dr. C. W. Brown, '06, Dr. B. F. Butler, Dr. J. A. Campbell, '12, Dr. R. M. Charlton, '06, H. J. Childs, Margaret Crawford, '26, Sir Arthur Currie, '24, Dr. L. H. Douglass, '5, Dr. W. S. Downham, '12, Dr. D. B. Fraser, '28, Archie D. Graham, Dr. R. M. Gubbins, '92, Rev. S. P. Irwin, '98, Dr. N T. Johnson, '02, Dr. K. M. Lindsay, '28, Dr. A. B. Macallum, Dr. J. E. Mason, '14, Georgina Munroe, Dr. W. J. Nesbitt, '12, Sarah Paterson, John Pringle, Frances Steer, '26, Jean Stewart, '33, Dr. W. J. Taylor, '16, Dr. C. E. Tran, '12, Rev. Geo. Vrooman, '19.

The lessons for the service were taken from Ecclesiastes, XLIV 1-15 and Hebrews XI, 13-16 and 32-40, and were read by Prof. J. A. Spenceley, of the Department of English, who also conducted the remaining service part of the program. Frank Stiles provided musical accompaniments.

Dr. Fox Main Speaker

Dr. Fox, as the main speaker, eulogised the various groups of students which death took from the various faculties and departments of the school. The list as given included those who died since January, 1933.

"Even in a small university, each year its noticeable toll from the academic circle of administration, faculties, alumni and students," Dr. Fox declared. "You will note that I include graduates in this group. As I have said on many occasions before, graduates—or, in the more affectionate Latin term, alumni—are, though living outside the college halls, just as much a part of the family circle as they were when they lived within those halls. By their Alma Mater they are always regarded as present, however great the distance that divides them from her physically. One of the penalties of the university's growth is that these grievous exactions of death become with the passing of time more numerous and hence increasingly striking and poignant. We who remain are indeed through the loss of our friends and colleagues, but we find some measure of consolation in our cherished memory of their noble characters and their unselfish lives. Our grief is assuaged when we pause to remind ourselves that the truly good in human life and thought and deed is never lost but continue for all time in some form. Indeed, it is the function of those of us who are left behind to help the good thus to continue. Our beloved friends began a task, and upon us falls the burden of carrying it on devotedly, until we in our turn are summoned to surrender it to our successors.

Represent Many Spheres

"In reviewing these names one cannot but remark the variety of spheres of activity that they represent. As a group they represent a typical cross section of our social life. Their fields of endeavor are emblematic of the contribution their university is making to the life of the nation. In them we can read in letters written large the real and vital mission of a university to any nation, for, contrary to an opinion that is all too common, a modern university touches not merely the academic phases of national life, but every phase. In a most mysterious and quiet way it permeates the whole fabric of our society.

Represent 3 Greatest Professions

"So many of those who have died belonged to three of the greatest professions—the Ministry, Teaching and Medicine. All of these are among the noblest of callings, and I know I shall not be understood as slighting the first two mentioned when for a moment I refer to the third, Medicine. I fear that this profession has not received from the world the measure of tribute that is its due. During the stress of the past five years the burden of care and duty that has been laid upon the physician and surgeon has been beyond human calculation. Always ready to give of their knowledge and skill, they have responded promptly to the countless calls that these trying times have made upon them. The vast majority have forgotten themselves in serving others and in so doing have in all too many instances concealed the fact that they themselves were in need of help and rest and comfort. Some in adhering to their vows to put service to their fellowmen above all else have brought themselves to the verge of poverty. Some have denied themselves the opportunity of further study rather than to seem to desert their home community in the time of great trouble. And I know that several of those to whose memories we pay homage today have passed from the host of the living because unselfishly they spent their health and strength before their time. It is the wish of every one of us that all due honor be paid to them. May their successors be animated by the same altruistic spirit. May their lives be spared, if God so wills, to long years of service amongst us."

fire at the Grey Nun Hospital today threw patients into a panic. The boiler, in a building separate from the hospital building, threw bricks hundreds of yards when it exploded and broke windows for blocks around. The power house was destroyed with damages estimated at $10,000. No one was injured.

The money is held under an injunction granted by County Judge Joseph Wearing until trial of the $5,500 supreme court action for alleged theft brought by Miss Lucy B. Taylor against Mrs. Jackson.

Mrs. Jackson has admitted that the $3,425 in the Goderich branch is a part of $5,000 paid to her by Miss Taylor for use in attempting to secure a governor's pardon for George Taylor, serving a ten-year-term in Kansas State Prison.

At the same time, it is announced that Mrs. Jackson is carrying her fight for possession of the money to the appeal court at Osgoode Hall. Her counsel, Arthur LeBel, has filed notice that he is appealing the decision of Judge Wearing. He will again argue that the money should be released to Mrs. Jackson. Hearing of the appeal has been set for Wednesday, April 18, at Toronto.

ALLEGE LONDONER STRUCK CONSTABLE

Ridout Street Man Charged With Assault Following Police Raid

Charged with assaulting a police constable, a Ridout street man will appear in city police court this morning, following a police raid on his apartment on Saturday night. Police say the man, his wife and four others were arrested and taken to the King street police station at 10:40 o'clock Saturday night.

The local man is alleged to have assaulted P. C. Fred Fuller, who in company with Constable Joseph Miles and Sergt. William Middaugh raided his apartment.

While the officers were in the residence, the man is alleged to have kicked P. C. Fuller in the shins and to have inflicted scratches on his face and caused several body injuries. Constable Fuller just returned to duty a few days ago after being at his home on sick leave.

With the exception of the occupant of the house, the others are charged with being disorderly.

WIFE FAINTS IN COURT AS HUSBAND SENTENCED

Windsor, Ont., April 14. — Alex Schacht, 28, learned today that the law does not forget. He returned recently to Windsor after an absence of three years and was at once arrested on a warrant charging robbery with violence which had been issued before his departure. His young wife, attending the court hearing, fainted as her husband was sentenced to two years in Kingston penientiary.

case, Bank of Montreal sought and was grnated permission in weekly high court here Saturday to pay into court the $3,425 which it holds in its Goderich branch to the credit of 21-year-old Betty Jackson. The application was made by Huron R. Davidson, acting for the bank, while Arthur LeBel, counsel for Mrs. Jackson; and S. G. Robertson, representing Miss Lucy Taylor, consented to the order. Costs of the bank, amounting to $45, are to be paid out of the money.

Mr. King Urges South Oxford To Defend Parliamentary Rights

Federal Liberal Leader Speaks To Crowded Election Meetings At Norwich and Tillsonburg

Says Cabinet Is Usurping Power At Expense Of Constitutional Liberties—Real Danger Of Dictatorship Menaces Canada—Gov't Should Go To Country This Fall If Defeated In S. Oxford

OTTAWA PACTS CLOSING MARKETS TO FARMERS; VAST SUMS SQUANDERED IN RELIEF EXPENDITURES

Wonders What Influence Kept Tobacco Report Unpublished So Long—Vigorous Speeches Made By M. F. Hepburn, M.P., Hon. J. C. Elliott, M.P., And A. S. Rennie, Liberal Candidate

The choice for Canada today is between dictatorship and democracy through Parliamentary Government, declared Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in addresses before two large meetings yesterday in the interest of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election on Monday next. Already, said Mr. King, Parliament under the domination of a Tory majority has transferred most of its powers to the Governor-in-Council, which usually means the Cabinet but today means Mr. Bennett.

"I wonder if you realize to what extent your Parliamentary institutions have been shot to pieces in this country. Today we are in the middle of a world social revolution and the problem before us is where is it going to end."

RT. HON. WILLIAM LYON MACKENZIE KING

Large Meetings

The afternoon meeting was at Norwich where far more than could be accommodated sought admision to the hall. At Tillsonburg at night another thousand people heard Mr. King and accorded him a spontaneous and prolonged ovation.

Mr. King uttered a clarion call for a national unemployment policy. The $110,000,000 dollars of federal expenditures in the last four years have not touched the fundamentals while all this money was being spent the government was promoting its policy of scarcity through trade and wheat production restrictions. The home market is being destroyed along with the purchasing power of the people.

Must Go To Country

Mr. King declared that the Bennett government in the event of a defeat in South Oxford could not afford to carry on the government of the country past next fall. The last four by-elections have demonstrated, he said, that it entirely lacks the confidence of the people.

At Tillsonburg Mr. King dealt at length with the Sutherland tobacco report and declared that the government was "humbugging" the farmers again.

At Norwich Mr. King was introduced by Hon. J. C. Elliott, K. C., M. P. Other speakers were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader. Mr. Rennie and Mr. Hepburn also spoke at Tillsonburg.

By Staff Reporter

Tillsonburg, April 11—A world social revolution, which because of its extent is without parallel in history, is going on today, it will test in Canada the principle of Parliamentary government, declared Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Liberal leader, here tonight before a cheering throng in Tillsonburg town hall. Every inch of space in the auditorium, along the aisles, behind the stage, at the windows and every nook and corner was crowded as 800 people saw and heard Mr. King. Downstairs in the council chamber another 200 people heard the addresses relayed by loud speaker, and scores more gathered outside where there were more loud speakers.

Ready for Change

The Liberal party welcomes and is prepared to sponsor the changes which have become necessary in the world social and economic order, said the leader.

Changes of equal importance with the crusades, the Renaissance, the American revolution and the industrial revolution. "Today we have something which resembles them all but which instead of confining itself to one country takes in the world. We are in a world revolution.

"For my part I welcome those changes with all my heart. Not all of them. But I welcome that which will bring a more equitable distribution of wealth. I welcome the change to bring social justice. I welcome the change to bring much to many instead of most to a privileged few. I am glad to live in an age in which it is possible to bring these things about.

Needs Direction

"These changes will lead to terrible results in some parts of the world and must go farther than we expect in others. It will sweep right over us, this great onward movement of social change; it will sweep away the lives and homes of the people as well if not properly directed," he said.

Only by being true to the great principles of government which have guided British history can Canada escape chaos, he said.

"There is nothing in the world today comparable to British institutions, freedom from dictatorship and faith in the common sense of the common people in my own country," said Mr. Hepburn.

Mr. Hepburn declared that Canada under the Bennett government has drifted far from established parliamentary practices. "We have little democracy in this country today. We are nearer to a dictatorship than the people realize. We want a new deal. We want Mackenzie King as premier. We want a new government and we want Liberal prosperity," he said.

William Brown, Tillsonburg, was chairman. Mrs. L. G. Little and Mrs. Jack Climie sang solos. Flowers were presented to the singers by Misses Dorothy Daniels and Margery Stafford.

Among those on the platform were Dougald Graham, George Perry, N. J. Griffith, G. A. P. Brickenden, Dr. A. S. Duncan, Paul Gravelle, Charles Oliver and Hon. J. C. Elliott, all of London; Colin C. Hawkins, Brownsville; R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., C. E. Brown, Tillsonburg; P. M. Dewan, Woodstock; Jack Jewell, Tillsonburg; Keith M. Somers, Tillsonburg; Eric Cross, Simcoe; Vern Meek, M. G. Dean, Dr. J. M. Rogers, and H. A. Copeland, Ingersoll.

The Tillsonburg Citizens' Band under the leadership of Boyd Sylvester played before the meeting got under way.

Special to The Advertiser
(By Staff Reporter)

Norwich, April 11—"If this constituency goes Liberal on Monday next, I say the Prime Minister cannot afford to carry on the government of this country any longer without going to the people next fall," declared the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, speaking to the Liberal rally in Edison Hall here this afternoon.

Mr. King's speech this afternoon was a short one, lasting scarcely an hour, but in it he raised issues of tremendous importance. He declared that the actions of the Bennett government in transferring power to the cabinet constituted a very serious threat to constitutional and democratic forms of government in Canada and that it is quite conceivable in the event of a European crisis in the near future Mr. Bennett might decide to let his administration carry on indefinitely.

Opening his speech Mr. King said that a public man has no greater privilege than to come into the ridings after a battle for the people's liberties in parliament and get from the people their opinion of his stand.

Left Unrepresented

"The question now before you is whether you trust a government which does not trust you. If you approve of the fact that you have had no representation in parliament this year, then by all means vote for Mr. Sutherland. Mr. Bennett does not trust South Oxford and has let it go unrepresented", said Mr. King. The government that it is time it got out," Mr. King asserted, amid a burst of applause.

Mr. King said he hoped to show that the voice of the people had very little part in the present government. The public will was being thwarted on every hand; its representatives were being given no chance to express the people's will; and democracy was in peril in this Dominion.

"What appreciation has been shown to this riding of South Oxford by the Bennett administration?" Mr. King asked. "It had the opportunity of showing that appreciation at the time the Redistribution Bill was brought down and what did he do? It has wiped the constituency of South Oxford off the map altogether.

"I tell you that if Mackenzie King had been at the head of the government when the Redistribution Bill came up, South Oxford would not have been wiped out," the speaker asserted.

Answering the question, "Why isn't South Oxford represented at this session?" Mr. King said that there was a feeling in some persons that they would rather have someone boss them than think for themselves. It was the trend toward dictatorship. The people of South Oxford now had the opportunity of saying what they thought about such a system.

A Hard-Won Privilege

"It is important that our parliaments be kept representative because we are getting farther and farther away from that ideal. It was that right of representation of the people that the pioneers and leaders of the past fought for in this country," Mr. King continued.

Turning to Mr. Bennett's pre-election promises, the Liberal chieftain declared that the two main ones on which he secured election were that he would give work, not the dole, and that he would provide markets for Canadian products. He had promised to call a special session of Parliament to deal with unemployment but other than voting $20,000,000 for six months' relief, that session had achieved only the raising of tariffs against the rest of the world.

Dealing particularly with the $20,000,000 which Mr. Bennett had voted for unemployment relief, Mr. King recalled that during the ten years of the Liberal regime from 1920 to 1930, the entire amount spent for the same purpose was less than $2,000,000.

At the time when Mr. Bennett was obtaining this huge appropriation, Mr. King further recalled, he had urged him that the only way to end unemployment was to encourage trade: that trade could be fostered by reducing the cost of production, not by raising tariffs.

"I said in the House at that time that unemployment had become a national problem. I urged Mr. Bennett to appoint a national commission to deal with the situation. I suggested that on it should be representative of all phases of Canadian life, of labor, of industry, manufacturers, social services, and women's organizations. I suggested further that the sums that were to be paid out to the provinces should be all audited. And Mr. Bennett said that it would be an insult to the provinces to audit the accounts. At that time I said he would rue the day that the accounts were not audited. And what is the situation today?"

A recent report of the auditor-general had shown that huge sums of federal money appropriated for relief purposes have been wasted in every province, from coast to coast. It had been spent on administrative costs, for dental services, for gasoline and other things.

The Blank Cheque

In 1931 Mr. Bennett brought in his "blank cheque" legislation, giving the governor-in-council power to spend unlimited sums without consulting parliament. From 1920 to 1934, over $110,000,000 had been spent in federal money alone in this way.

"That is the thing we have been fighting against. It is being debated in the House tonight. But Mr. Bennett with his majority will carry it through," Mr. King predicted.

The same bill went even further by giving the government power to guarantee bank loans. He cited the $60,000,000 C.P.R. loan.

A large increase in the public debt and an increase in unemployment were the only results from the expenditure of colossal sums for relief, and the people were only beginning to find out that the report was brought down?

Ecuses

"I had heard the minister say the report couldn't be brought down for certain reasons so I looked at it when the house received it. It said that the evidence was not sufficient to establish a combine within the meaning of the act. Where are you going to get prosecutions out of that? How are you going to send anybody to jail when the investigator says there is no evidence?" asked Mr. King.

Mr. King noted that the letter of the registrar to the minister when he handed Mr. Sutherland's report on reminded him that if he concluded that there was no necessity for a further inquiry, he should notify those who had sought it. "The report was made in March, 1933. Nothing has been done about it, but those who asked for the investigation have never been notified. If they had they might have gathered further evidence or sought an inquiry through another channel."

Tariff Sweating

Mr. King said that with the tariff at the highest level in Canadian history, sweating of labor has gone on on a scale never known before. It is inevitably so. "Once trade is strangled by tariffs, then you can form monopolies and squeeze the workingman to the lowest level."

The marketing bill now before Parliament is bait for the farmers, said Mr. King. He urged them not to be humbugged again. One clause in the bill gives the Governor-in-Council, which in practice means Mr. Bennett, the power to prohibit import or export of any article.

"If that clause remains it means that you are parting entirely with the right of yourself and parliament to control trade," he said.

Dictatorship

In Mr. Bennett Canada has a real dictator, said Mr. King. He has the power to legislate as he pleases under the "Peace, order and good government" measure, and to spend what he will from the public treasury. Under the marketing act he can regulate trade in any manner he sees fit.

"The Liberal policy has always been to develop trade. That is a policy of plenty. But once you begin to restrict trade you have a policy of scarcity," he said, adding that in the wheat pact to restrict production and export of wheat the policy had been carried through to the logical conclusion.

"This government has done all it can to destroy trade and now it seeks to destroy production," he said. Subsidies to various pests would be a cheaper way to regulate production than an army of officials.

Mr. Rennie

Mr. Rennie declared that only the Liberal policy aims at a solution of problems of agriculture, and until these are solved things cannot be much better. His trips up and down the highways during the campaign have shown him as nothing else could, the hopelessness which is blighting the lives of young unemployed transients.

Mr. Hepburn, who introduced Mr. King, wanted to know why Mr. Bennett did not come into the riding instead of entering it from Ottawa via the radio. Here a heckler interrupted Mr. Hepburn.

"If the gentleman has anything to say let him come to the platform and say it," said Mr. Hepburn. Whereupon Alex Reynolds, Tillsonburg, marched to the platform amid loud shouts of disapproval from the crowd. "I would like to ask Mr. Hepburn why he is not at the Ontario House defending his record," asked Mr. Reynolds.

"Very well. I will tell you. The House should have been dissolved a year ago. It carried on on borrowed time," said Mr. Hepburn as the audience roared approval, and indicated its unwillingness to tolerate further interruptions.

Mr. Hepburn Explains Again

"It was well known when I accepted the leadership of the Ontario party that I would not leave the people of West Elgin until I had finished the term for which they elected me. There is such a thing as loyalty. I have not followed the line of least resistance. I might have entered the legislature through an acclamation in East Kent. Says Cabinet Is Usurping Power At Expense Of Constitutional Liberties—Real Danger Of Dictatorship Menaces Canada—Gov't Should Go To Country This Fall If Defeated In S. Oxford

OTTAWA FACTS CLOSING MARKETS TO FARMERS; VAST SUMS SQUANDERED IN RELIEF EXPENDITURES

Wonders What Influence Kept Tobacco Report Unpublished So Long—Vigorous Speeches Made By M. F. Hepburn, M.P., Hon. J. C. Elliott, M.P., And A. S. Rennie, Liberal Candidate

The choice for Canada today is between dictatorship and democracy through Parliamentary Government, declared Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, in addresses before two large meetings yesterday in the interest of A. S. Rennie, Liberal candidate in the South Oxford federal by-election on Monday next. Already, said Mr. King, Parliament under the domination of a Tory majority has transferred most of its powers to the Governor-in-Council, which usually means the Cabinet but today means Mr. Bennett.

"I wonder if you realize to what extent your Parliamentary institutions have been shot to pieces in this country. Today we are in the middle of a world social revolution and the problem before us is where is it going to end."

RT. HON. WILLIAM LYON MACKENZIE KING

Large Meetings

The afternoon meeting was at Norwich where far more than could be accommodated sought admision to the hall. At Tillsonburg at night another thousand people heard Mr. King and accorded him a spontaneous and prolonged ovation.

Mr. King uttered a clarion call for a national unemployment policy. The $110,000,000 dollars of federal expenditures in the last four years have not touched the fundamentals while all this money was being spent the government was promoting its policy of scarcity through trade and wheat production restrictions. The home market is being destroyed along with the purchasing power of the people.

Must Go To Country

Mr. King declared that the Bennett government in the event of a defeat in South Oxford could not afford to carry on the government of the country past next fall. The last four by-elections have demonstrated, he said, that it entirely lacks the confidence of the people.

At Tillsonburg Mr. King dealt at length with the Sutherland tobacco report and declared that the government was "humbugging" the farmers again.

At Norwich Mr. King was introduced by Hon. J. C. Elliott, K. C., M. P. Other speakers were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader. Mr. Rennie and Mr. Hepburn also spoke at Tillsonburg.

By Staff Reporter

Tillsonburg, April 11—A world social revolution, which because of its extent is without parallel in history, is going on today. It will test in Canada the principle of Parliamentary government, declared Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Liberal leader, here tonight before a cheering throng in Tillsonburg town hall. Every inch of space in the auditorium, along the aisles, behind the stage, at the windows and every nook and corner was crowded as 800 people saw and heard Mr. King. Downstairs in the council chamber another 200 people heard the addresses relayed by loud speaker, and scores more gathered outside where there were more loud speakers.

Ready for Change

The Liberal party welcomes and is prepared to sponsor the changes which have become necessary in the world social and economic order, said the leader.

Changes of equal importance with the crusades, the Renaissance, the American revolution and the industrial revolution. "Today we have something which resembles them all but which instead of confining itself to one country takes in the world. We are in a world revolution.

"For my part I welcome those changes with all my heart. Not all of them. But I welcome that which will bring a more equitable distribution of wealth. I welcome the change to bring social justice. I welcome the change to bring much to many instead of most to a privileged few. I am glad to live in an age in which it is possible to bring these things about.

Needs Direction

"These changes will lead to terrible results in some parts of the world and must go farther than we expect in others. It will sweep right over us, this great onward movement of social change; it will sweep away the lives and homes of the people as well if not properly directed," he said.

Only by being true to the great principles of government which have guided British history can Canada escape chaos, he said.

"There is nothing in the world today comparable to British institutions, freedom from dictatorship and faith in the common sense of the common people. Let us hold to these institutions. Let us direct these great forces through the halls of parliament. Let us bring into parliament men of courage who will say, 'You, Mr. Banker, must give up your special rights and let the people have more criedit! Who will say that it is time for manufacturers to cease to take exorbitant profits and give instead fair wages to labor. But the place to say and do those things is in parliament," he said.

Other speakers tonight were Mr. Rennie and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M. P., Ontario Liberal leader.

Mr. King was given a rousing greeting as he rose. He said he came here to discuss with the people of South Oxford the problems that confront Canadians as "a fellow citizen of this Dominion."

Confidence Gone

The Liberal victories in the past four federal by-elections, he declared, "showed clearly that the people do not want the present government to continue in office.

"By electing Mr. Rennie next Monday you will be serving notice to this government that it is time it got out," Mr. King asserted, amid a burst of applause.

Mr. King said he hoped to show that the voice of the people had very little part in the present government. The public will was being thwarted on every hand; its representatives were being given no chance to express the people's will; and democracy was in peril in this Dominion.

"What appreciation has been shown to this riding of South Oxford by the Bennett administration?" Mr. King asked. "It had the opportunity of showing that appreciation at the time the Redistribution Bill was brought down and what did he do? It has wiped the constituency of South Oxford off the map altogether.

"I tell you that if Mackenzie King had been at the head of the government when the Redistribution Bill came up, South Oxford would not have been wiped out," the speaker asserted.

Answering the question, "Why isn't South Oxford represented at this session?" Mr. King said that there was a feeling in some persons that they would rather have someone boss them than think for themselves. It was the trend toward dictatorship. The people of South Oxford now had the opportunity of saying what they thought about such a system.

A Hard-Won Privilege

"It is important that our parliaments be kept representative because we are getting farther and farther away from that ideal. It was that right of representation of the people that the pioneers and leaders of the past fought for in this country," Mr. King continued.

Turning to Mr. Bennett's pre-election promises, the Liberal chieftain declared that the two main ones on which he secured election were that he would give work, not the dole, and that he would provide markets for Canadian products. He had promised to call a special session of Parliament to deal with unemployment but other than voting $20,000,000 for six months' relief, that session had achieved only the raising of tariffs against the rest of the world.

Dealing particularly with the $20,000,000 which Mr. Bennett had voted for unemployment relief, Mr. King recalled that during the ten years of the Liberal regime from 1920 to 1930, the entire amount spent for the same purpose was less than $2,000,000.

At the time when Mr. Bennett was obtaining this huge appropriation, Mr. King further recalled, he had urged him that the only way to end unemployment was to encourage trade: that trade could be fostered by reducing the cost of production, not by raising tariffs.

"I said in the House at that time that unemployment had become a national problem. I urged Mr. Bennett to appoint a national commission to deal with the situation. I suggested that on it should be representative of all phases of Canadian life, of labor, of industry, manufacturers, social services, and women's organizations. I suggested further that the sums that were to be paid out to the provinces should be all audited. And Mr. Bennett said that it would be an insult to the provinces to audit the accounts. At that time I said he would rue the day that the accounts were not audited. And what is the situation today?"

A recent report of the auditor-general had shown that huge sums of federal money appropriated for relief purposes have been wasted in every province, from coast to coast. It had been spent on administrative costs, for dental services, for gasoline and other things.

The Blank Cheque

In 1931 Mr. Bennett brought in his "blank cheque" legislation, giving the governor-in-council power to spend unlimited sums without consulting parliament. From 1930 to 1934, over $110,000,000 had been spent in federal money alone in this way.

"That is the thing we have been fighting against. It is being debated in the House tonight. But Mr. Bennett with his majority will carry it through," Mr. King predicted.

The same bill went even further by giving the government power to guarantee bank loans. He cited the $60,000,000 C.P.R. loan.

A large increase in the public debt and an increase in unemployment were the only results from the expenditure of colossal sums for relief, and the people were only beginning to find out "the shocking way in which the money had been spent," Mr. King said. Nothing had been done along the lines of making public parks and improving roads, such as the Liberals had contemplated.

Pork Barrel

"Remember that this year will probably be the year of a general election," Mr. King declared. "Under this legislation, the Conservative Administration will be able to dig into the treasury and spend what it likes on relief."

All the Opposition could do at present was to fight against these measures and to fight for democratic institutions, and the leader urged the people of South Oxford to give them a hand by electing Mr. Rennie as their member.

Mr. King declared that the home market is not the place, but the purchasing power of the people. The Tillsonburg market isn't the square on which goods are bought and sold but it is the purchasing power of the people who attend it. In the same way the home market of which Mr. Bennett speaks is the buying ability of the people in it.

Lack Buying Power

"Mr. Bennett can't see that. He keeps talking economic self-sufficiency and as we cut off trade with tariffs our home market withers up," he said.

The Liberal leader turned his attention to the questions raised in the report of Hon. Donald Sutherland, Conservative candidate, who in March 1933 presented to the registrar under the Combines Investigation Act his report on an investigation into an alleged combine among tobacco buyers.

"You would not know yet what was in that report had it not been for the Opposition. Mr. Eccles Gott asked for it a long while ago, but the matter was allowed to stand on the order paper for weeks. I wondered if there were something in it which the government didn't want the people to see and I queried about it in the house. Why should Mr. Gott let his question stand if the government hadn't asked him to do so? The minister of labor made a long explanation about possible prosecutions as a result of the report. We kept asking for it.

"Finally on Monday Mr. Bennett said we could have it because they were saying he was a director of the Imperial Tobacco Co. Was it in your interests or to protect Mr. Bennett when the investigator says there is no evidence?" asked Mr. King.

Mr. King noted that the letter of the registrar to the minister when he handed Mr. Sutherland's report on reminded him that if he concluded that there was no necessity for a further inquiry, he should notify those who had sought it. "The report was made in March, 1933. Nothing has been done about it, but those who asked for the investigation have never been notified. If they had they might have gathered further evidence or sought an inquiry through another channel."

Tariff Sweating

Mr. King said that with the tariff at the highest level in Canadian history, sweating of labor has gone on on a scale never known before. It is inevitably so. "Once trade is strangled by tariffs, then you can form monopolies and squeeze the workingman to the lowest level."

The marketing bill now before Parliament is bait for the farmers, said Mr. King. He urged them not to be humbugged again. One clause in the bill gives the Governor-in-Council, which in practice means Mr. Bennett, the power to prohibit import or export of any article.

"If that clause remains it means that you are parting entirely with the right of yourself and parliament to control trade," he said.

Dictatorship

In Mr. Bennett Canada has a real dictator, said Mr. King. He has the power to legislate as he pleases under the "Peace, order and good government" measure, and to spend what he will from the public treasury. Under the marketing act he can regulate trade in any manner he sees fit.

"The Liberal policy has always been to develop trade. That is a policy of plenty. But once you begin to restrict trade you have a policy of scarcity," he said, adding that in the wheat pact to restrict production and export of wheat the policy had been carried through to the logical conclusion.

"This government has done all it can to destroy trade and now it seeks to destroy production," he said. Subsidies to various pests would be a cheaper way to regulate production than an army of officials.

Mr. Rennie

Mr. Rennie declared that only the Liberal policy aims at a solution of problems of agriculture, and until these are solved things cannot be much better. His trips up and down the highways during the campaign have shown him as nothing else could, the hopelessness which is blighting the lives of young unemployed transients.

Mr. Hepburn, who introduced Mr. King, wanted to know why Mr. Bennett did not come into the riding instead of entering it from Ottawa via the radio. Here a heckler interrupted Mr. Hepburn.

"If the gentleman has anything to say let him come to the platform and say it," said Mr. Hepburn. Whereupon Alex Reynolds, Tillsonburg, marched to the platform amid loud shouts of disapproval from the crowd. "I would like to ask Mr. Hepburn why he is not at the Ontario House defending his record," asked Mr. Reynolds.

"Very well. I will tell you. The House should have been dissolved a year ago. It carried on on borrowed time," said Mr. Hepburn as the audience roared approval, and indicated its unwillingness to tolerate further interruptions.

Mr. Hepburn Explains Again

"It was well known when I accepted the leadership of the Ontario party that I would not leave the people of West Elgin until I had finished the term for which they elected me. There is such a thing as 'loyalty.' I have not followed the line of least resistence. I might have entered the legislature through an acclamation in East Kent. I know that I have a difficult riding in Elgin now but I will stand or fall by the decision of the people their opinion of his stand.

Left Unrepresented

"The question now before you is whether you trust a government which does not trust you. If you approve of the fact that you have had no representation in parliament this year, then by all means vote for Mr. Sutherland. Mr. Bennett does not trust South Oxford and has let it go unrepresented", said Mr. King. The

Norwich, April 11—"If this constituency goes Liberal on Monday next, I say the Prime Minister cannot afford to carry on the government of this country any longer without going to the people next fall," declared the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, speaking to the Liberal rally in Edison Hall here this afternoon.

Mr. King's speech this afternoon was a short one, lasting scarcely an hour, but in it he raised issues of tremendous importance. He declared that the actions of the Bennett government in transferring power to the cabinet constituted a very serious threat to constitutional and democratic forms of government in Canada and that it is quite conceivable in the event of a European crisis in the near future Mr. Bennett might decide to let his administration carry on indefinitely.

Opening his speech Mr. King said that a public man has no greater privilege than to come into the ridings after a battle for the people's liberties in parliament and get from

A Shocking Story

The Bennett Government has felt the force of Mr. King's attack upon its irregular method of handling the relief problem, and its "blank cheque" substitute for a constructive policy. Mr. Bennett tries to shift the blame to the Auditor-General, who he says failed in his duty, but Mr. King places the responsibility squarely upon the Government. Its "easy-money" slipshod practice of pouring out millions year after year with no effective check has a sorry sequel. The Dominion Treasury, Mr. King charges, has been looted. Detailed audits of federal relief expenditures, he asserts, will disclose "one of the most shocking stories this country has ever heard."

The Government, under pressure, has consented to an investigation by the public accounts committee of the House of Commons, but it would not have been in such a plight if it had followed ordinary business principles. Up to March 22 last it had paid $110,198,273 out of the Treasury for relief purposes, and had made loans and advances of $59,927,267 to aid provinces and corporations in meeting their difficulties. Yet, as Mr. King shows, it has even now no information as to the number of unemployed, and it has left Parliament in the dark. At the very first session of the present Parliament, in 1930, Mr. King urged that all federal moneys expended should be properly audited by federal officials, but the Prime Minister described this as an insult to the provinces and the municipalities. What has happened? In the interval the waste of public moneys has been so great that the Government has been compelled to retrace its steps and do the very thing which Mr. Bennett characterized as an insult. After the money has been spent and the vouchers can no longer be recovered, the Government has passed an order-in-council directing the Auditor-General to conduct an audit of provincial and municipal relief accounts "to safeguard the interests of the Dominion Treasury." It is another case of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen.

Mr. King in the House produced a startling array of cases cited by the Auditor-General as a result of a few tests made in several provinces. These cases show shocking laxity in the administration of public money. The Dominion Government was improperly charged for many items, and there were no adequate provincial and municipal audits to prevent abuses. Here is what was found in one province alone:

Gasoline tax paid to the province submitted in accounts for federal contribution.

No inventory available of material and tools remaining after relief work on projects completed, the cost of which equipment had been shared by the federal Government.

Department of roads did not take advantage of cash discounts offered by merchants.

Excess charges made for rental of machinery.

Duplications of charges took place.

Certain overseers paid at rates in excess of those prescribed by provincial Government.

Sixty-two paylists, amounting to $96,000, could not be verified because vouchers not available.

Pay of laborers signed irregularly by persons other than the laborer.

Pay of as many as 25 persons signed by one person.

Many signatures on paylist appear in same handwriting.

In one case signatures of 29 laborers did not appear an paylist.

Irregularities in paylists revealed that some of the men did not receive amounts for which they signed.

In some cases wages and travelling expenses paid twice to supervisors.

These are but a few of the instances taken by Mr. King from the Auditor-General's report, which in turn touches only the surface of the scandal. Enough has already been disclosed in official documents to prove that the federal Government baled out the federal Treasury with the utmost recklessness, although impressively warned in 1930 that it should follow its own money to its destination and control the flow of it, in the absence of any federal relief program. As Mr. King points out, there has been no national policy of any kind with respect to relief—no national recovery plan. There has been nothing but huge expenditure, and the vast waste which is now tends to degrade the individual. The neglect of popular education—early days doomed millions of people to ignorance and prevented the growth of faculties which might have enriched the world. This was the theme of Grey's Elegy in a Country Churchyard. Grey had not the reforming temperament. His tone was not indignant but pensive; he wrote as if the condition he described was fixed and inevitable. The same tone runs through most of the writings of the eighteenth century until near its close. The awakening came in the closing nineteenth century. Writers and statesmen then arose who did not merely lament the wrongs suffered by a large part of the human race, but burned with indigation and zeal for reform.

That mood still prevails, and it is well for the human race that it does. It may carry eager-hearted reformers too far, and may produce unworkable proposals. But it is better than stagnation and smug satisfaction. The present depression and unemployment have given rise to a ferment of thought on political and economic institutions. It has helped to bring about communism, fascism, and nazism in continental Europe. In British countries and in the United States, the manifestations have been less violent, but even there men and women are restless and perplexed. Their comparative moderation is due partly to racial and other elements of character, and partly to free institutions which give scope to originality and desire for physical violence. On the other hand the violent manifestations in Russia, Italy and Germany are due partly to racial characteristics and partly to inability to work free institutions. The people there rush to extremes. The new environment will radically influence individual character. The war declared against thought and freedom in Germany for instance, will profoundly affect the individual, whether he confirms or resists.

It is sometimes said that international war is the inevitable tendency of the human race because "man is a fighting animal." But institutions also play their part. Laws and institutions have ended private war in civilized countries—not wholly, as the gang fights in the United States prove—but as to the general, normal relations of citizens. The League of Nations represents an effort to substitute law for chaos and barbarism. Its methods may not have been of the best, and may be capable of improvement, but its aim is right, and offers the only alternative to the destruction of civilization. Here again it is said that the individual must be reformed in order to insure international peace. That is part of the truth. There must be good-will to drive the machinery of the League of Nations or any organization having the same purpose. There must be steady education to remove international prejudice. But there must also be institutional changes. Ill-will toward other nations is not the sole cause, often not the main cause of war. The war-makers sometimes find it necessary to breed ill-will as part of the munitions of war. The manufacture of hatred is as systematically and skilfully carried on as the manufacture of guns, explosives and gases—sometimes by the same persons. For these reasons the League of Nations ought to be supported, while, of course, it is open to criticism and suggestions for improvement.

"Whither Canada?"

A warning and alarming article appears in this week's Maclean's, entitled "Whither Canada?" in which the writer, G. R. Stevens, a Canadian trade commissioner, implores his countrymen to awaken before it is too late to the dangers which threaten their export trade. He points to the self-evident truth that 10,000,000 Canadians can produce much more than they need in this bountiful land, and depend upon overseas customers to yield them an income from their great surplus of primary products in their treated and untreated state.

Mr. Stevens says he sees in Canadian newspapers very little interest in the very serious development in Great Britain—the inauguration of a new policy, directed by the dynamic Walter Elliott, of supplying Britain's table from her own soil. That is because many Canadian newspapers are reluctant to admit that the Ottawa Conference, which they lauded to the skies, has failed to settle anything. Mr. Stevens is certain that in 1935 Mr. Elliott will propose tariffs, with a measure of preference retained, on Empire supplies which are now admitted duty-free. He will begin with pig products; thence to dairy produce, to mutton and lamb, and on through beef to cereals, fruits, vegetables and fish. Mr. Stevens suggests that "we may be witnessing a turn in the tide of our affairs which foreshadows tragedy and disaster." His conclusion is that every British Dominion should make a supreme endeavor to preserve at any reasonable cost the British market in its present magnitude.

The Dominion delegates at the Ottawa Conference in 1932 thought they had the whip hand and they tried to lash the British delegates into surrender. Mr. Bennett in particular bullied and scolded Chamberlain, Baldwin, Runciman and Hailsham, and once he actually wept, a secret guarded by correspondents until A. J. Cummings of the London News-Chronicle revealed it the other day. The British plenipotentiaries went home enraged, but they are now turning the tables by steadily and the most extravagant municipal government—in Montreal.

General managers of three great Canadian banks testified at Ottawa that a great cause of the world depression had been the erection of tariff barriers to trade among the big importing nations. They are right, and it is to be hoped they can convert their directors to that view.

Even Hon. Dr. Manion weeps over high tariffs. When Canada had a moderate sensible tariff, Dr. Manion was in full cry against it and demanded "red-blooded" action in raising it. The Dr. Manions in nearly all trading countries had their way, and see what happened!

A Cabinet Minister goes to South Oxford on the eve of the by-election to announce that Mr. Bennett will bring about a reduction of mortgage interest rates. An elector who would be influenced by a last-minute promise of this kind is much below the average intelligence in the constituency. He should first read the list of unfulfilled promises made by Mr. Bennett in 1930.

Lloyd George has completed 44 years of unbroken service in the British House of Commons. For 30 years he has been its most vivid personality. For a long period he was its most influential figure as well. The contrast between his former position and his present one, in which he has only two or three followers, is almost tragic. Even today, when he is almost powerless in Parliament, he can make a better speech and can attract more listeners than any other member.

Trebitch Lincoln has arrived in Victoria, B. C., and will cross Canada on his way to establish a Buddhist monastery in Europe. He has a retinue of four Buddhist monks and six Buddhist nuns in this, his latest stunt. His career could hardly be matched in the modern world. Edward Johnson Sponsors Special Course in Singing At Western Summer Term

Noted Tenor Will Attend Opening Ceremonies On July 9

EDGAR SCHOFIELD TO BE DIRECTOR

New Course In Dancing Under Mrs. Schofield Also Announced

The inauguration of a special course in vocal music for the University of Western Ontario Summer School, to begin during the forthcoming semester and which will be under the honorary direction of Edward Johnson, noted Canadian-born tenor, is announced today by Dr. Sherwood Fox, president of the university. Mr. Johnson will attend the opening ceremonies for the inauguration of the course which are scheduled for July 9. The course will continue until August 18. A new course in dancing instruction is also announced.

Direction of the special music class will be taken over by Edgar Schofield, of New York, a distinguished vocal teacher and popular bass baritone, also well known to Canadian audiences. Mr. Schofield has sung in London on several occasions, and is the personal choice of Mr. Johnson for the position of professor of the new department at Western's summer shcool.

Favors Class Method

For many years Mr. Johnson has endeavored to introduce into Canada the class method of instruction in vocal music that has proved to be so great a success in great universities like California, Michigan, Rochester, and Syracuse," Dr. Fox said, in making his announcement. "Not until the present time, however, has it seemed feasible to undertake the project.

"Under Mr. Schofield the summer school offers classes of three kinds: for beginners, for singers, for teachers. The tuition fees for these classes are so reasonable that they offer a unique opportunity for people of very limited resources to obtain instruction under an acknowledged master teacher. This type of music instruction is known under the general heading of master classes. The university is gratified that through the generous co-operation and enthusiastic effort of Mr. Johnson, it is in a position to introduce into Canada an educational innovation in music that is bound to be a great stimulus to music among our people."

Dancing Courses

The university administration also announces that during the same summer session it is offering under the department of physical education special courses in dancing. These courses are of the type that are said to be of value to teachers in schools who are in charge of departments of physical education and also to young women of high school and university age who seek some sound form of physical development. The courses will be under the direction of Mrs. Edgar Schofield, the former Miss Alice Marvin of Berkeley, California, and of New York City. Mrs. Schofield was a pupil of Fokine and Mordkin and other well known artists in Europe and America, and has had wide experience as a teacher and artist. Three courses will be offered: a beginner's course which is designed to give bodily freedom, rhythm, plastique and a few simple dance routines; an advanced class in which special attention will be paid to dance repetoires (Spanish ballet, character, etc.); a course in tap and musical comedy.

These courses will run concurrently with the regular courses of the summer school from July 9 to August 18. Three lessons per week in each course will be given. An intensive course for teachers will also be given if registration warrants it.

Limited To Women

Mr. Johnson strongly advocates students of vocal music taking some courses of the above type for the purpose of developing poise and rhythmic movement of the body. The courses in dancing are limited to women. The tuition fees are on the same reasonable scale as those for the vocal music.

The university is making provision that students who desire private lessons with Mr. and Mrs. Schofield may arrange for such lessons through the registrar.

Authorities of the university expect that in a week or two all details in connection with these courses will be compiled in such a form that they may be available in the form of literature for all who are interested.

"It is gratifying that these new departments of summer school work, like all the departments already established, carry themselves financially without being a charge on the university," the president said.

The Record of the Government

A government must be judged by its record.

On its performance the present government must stand or fall.

The first of the Bennett promises was to cure unemployment; "work, not doles," was the slogan of the campaign of 1930.

Has the promise been kept?

A report submitted to the House of Commons on March 22nd last contains this statement:

	Heads of families receiving relief
Jan. 1933	258,298
Feb. 1933	276,468

One year later the record stood:

Jan. 1934	260,159
Feb. 1934	267,853

There are over 1,250,000 on all classes receiving relief.

Despite the fact that world conditions, according to the League of Nations have improved, the change in Canada has been scarcely noticeable.

The index number of employment in manufacturing stood at 113.8 in July, 1930, the date of the election—it fell to 84.9 the following July—stood at only 82.6 in July of the next year and for the year averaged only 81.4— 32.4 points lower than the average of 1930. And yet the government of Canada is spending millions to provide employment.

"Blasting"

The government promised markets for the farmers and total exports of agricultural products fell from $368,700,000 in 1930 to $202,900,000 in 1933.

Prices have fallen—fallen sharply. The index number of farm prices at 100 in 1926 dropped to 53.3 in December last—prices were almost cut in two.

But the price of manufactured products did not fall by an equivalent amount — manufactured products dropped only 28.1% while prices of farm products fell 46.3%. No wonder the purchasing power of the farmer fell.

Debts

Debt of Canada Under Two Governments

Debt Reduction Under Liberals

Fiscal Year
1928	$50,900,000
1929	71,300,000
1930	47,700,000

Debt Increased Under Conservatives

1931	$ 83,800,000
1932	114,200,000
1933	223,200,000

In three years a debt increase of $421, 200,000 under the Conservatives.

A debt decrease of $169,900,000 in three years under the Liberals.

Tax Burdens

This means heavier tax burdens imposed on an already over-taxed people.

The situation demands a new deal for the people of South Oxford—for the people of Canada.

Trade has been strangled by the Conservative policy — Trade will be liberated by the Liberals.

Export of Canadian products fell from $1,209,000,000 in 1929 to $537,000,000 in 1933 (Calendar years in both cases).

Freedom is needed to expand trade—trade can be and will be expanded under the Liberals.

A vote for A. S. Rennie is a vote for a new deal for the farmers and increased prosperity in the towns.

THURSDAY, APRIL 12, 1934

A Shocking Story

The Bennett Government has felt the force of Mr. King's attack upon its irregular method of handling the relief problem, and its "blank cheque" substitute for a constructive policy. Mr. Bennett tries to shift the blame to the Auditor-General, who he says failed in his duty, but Mr. King places the responsibility squarely upon the Government. Its "easy-money" slipshod practice of pouring out millions year after year with no effective check has a sorry sequel. The Dominion Treasury, Mr. King charges, has been looted. Detailed audits of federal relief expenditures, he asserts, will disclose "one of the most shocking stories this country has ever heard."

The Government, under pressure, has consented to an investigation by the public accounts committee of the House of Commons, but it would not have been in such a plight if it had followed ordinary business principles. Up to March 22 last it had paid $110,198,273 out of the Treasury for relief purposes, and had made loans and advances of $59,927,267 to aid provinces and corporations in meeting their difficulties. Yet, as Mr. King shows, it has even now no information as to the number of unemployed, and it has left Parliament in the dark. At the very first session of the present Parliament, in 1930, Mr. King urged that all federal moneys expended should be properly audited by federal officials, but the Prime Minister described this as an insult to the provinces and the municipalities. What has happened? In the interval the waste of public moneys has been so great that the Government has been compelled to retrace its steps and do the very thing which Mr. Bennett characterized as an insult. After the money has been spent and the vouchers can no longer be recovered, the Government has passed an order-in-council directing the Auditor-General to conduct an audit of provincial and municipal relief accounts "to safeguard the interests of the Dominion Treasury." It is another case of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen.

Mr. King in the House produced a startling array of cases cited by the Auditor-General as a result of a few tests made in several provinces. These cases show shocking laxity in the administration of public money. The Dominion Government was improperly charged for many items, and there were no adequate provincial and municipal audits to prevent abuses. Here is what was found in one province alone:

Gasoline tax paid to the province submitted in accounts for federal contribution.

No inventory available of material and tools remaining after relief work on projects completed, the cost of which equipment had been shared by the federal Government.

Department of roads did not take advantage of cash discounts offered by merchants.

Excess charges made for rental of machinery.

Duplications of charges took place.

Certain overseers paid at rates in excess of those prescribed by provincial Government.

Sixty-two paylists, amounting to $96,000, could not be verified because vouchers not available.

Pay of laborers signed irregularly by persons other than the laborer.

Pay of as many as 25 persons signed by one person.

Many signatures on paylist appear in same handwriting.

In one case signatures of 29 laborers did not appear an paylist.

Irregularities in paylists revealed that some of the men did not receive amounts for which they signed.

In some cases wages and travelling expenses paid twice to supervisors.

These are but a few of the instances taken by Mr. King from the Auditor-General's report, which in turn touches only the surface of the scandal. Enough has already been disclosed in official documents to prove that the federal Government baled out the federal Treasury with the utmost recklessness, although impressively warned in 1930 that it should follow its own money to its destination and control the flow of it, in the absence of any federal relief program. As Mr. King points out, there has been no national policy of any kind with respect to relief—no national recovery plan. There has been nothing but huge expenditure, and the vast waste which is now admitted, too late to repair the injury. And even yet the Dominion Government offers nothing but a continuance of the dole in its worst form.

Man And His Environment

There is a controversy between those who would better the condition of the human race by reforming the individual, and those who would achieve that end by reforming laws and institutions. The truth when stated is so self-evident as to seem like a truism or a platitude. The two approaches are not contradictory but complementary. Both kinds of reform are needed. The better the environment, the better the individual. The better the individual, the more earnestly he will strive to improve the environment. The greed or stupidity of the individual is to blame for slums. The slum wrongs suffered by a large part of the human race, but burned with indigation and zeal for reform.

That mood still prevails, and it is well for the human race that it does. It may carry eager-hearted reformers too far, and may produce unworkable proposals. But it is better than stagnation and smug satisfaction. The present depression and unemployment have given rise to a ferment of thought on political and economic institutions. It has helped to bring about communism, fascism, and nazism in continental Europe. In British countries and in the United States, the manifestations have been less violent, but even there men and women are restless and perplexed. Their comparative moderation is due partly to racial and other elements of character, and partly to free institutions which give scope to originality and desire for physical violence. On the other hand the violent manifestations in Russia, Italy and Germany are due partly to racial characteristics and partly to inability to work free institutions. The people there rush to extremes. The new environment will radically influence individual character. The war declared against thought and freedom in Germany for instance, will profoundly affect the individual, whether he confirms or resists.

It is sometimes said that international war is the inevitable tendency of the human race because "man is a fighting animal." But institutions also play their part. Laws and institutions have ended private war in civilized countries—not wholly, as the gang fights in the United States prove—but as to the general, normal relations of citizens. The League of Nations represents an effort to substitute law for chaos and barbarism. Its methods may not have been of the best, and may be capable of improvement, but its aim is right, and offers the only alternative to the destruction of civilization. Here again it is said that the individual must be reformed in order to insure international peace. That is part of the truth. There must be good-will to drive the machinery of the League of Nations or any organization having the same purpose. There must be steady education to remove international prejudice. But there must also be institutional changes. Ill-will toward other nations is not the sole cause, often not the main cause of war. The war-makers sometimes find it necessary to breed ill-will as part of the munitions of war. The manufacture of hatred is as systematically and skilfully carried on as the manufacture of guns, explosives and gases—sometimes by the same persons. For these reasons the League of Nations ought to be supported, while, of course, it is open to criticism and suggestions for improvement.

"Whither Canada?"

A warning and alarming article appears in this week's Maclean's, entitled "Whither Canada?" in which the writer, G. R. Stevens, a Canadian trade commissioner, implores his countrymen to awaken before it is too late to the dangers which threaten their export trade. He points to the self-evident truth that 10,000,000 Canadians can produce much more than they need in this bountiful land, and depend upon overseas customers to yield them an income from their great surplus of primary products in their treated and untreated state.

Mr. Stevens says he sees in Canadian newspapers very little interest in the very serious development in Great Britain—the inauguration of a new policy, directed by the dynamic Walter Elliott, of supplying Britain's table from her own soil. That is because many Canadian newspapers are reluctant to admit that the Ottawa Conference, which they lauded to the skies, has failed to settle anything. Mr. Stevens is certain that in 1935 Mr. Elliott will propose tariffs, with a measure of preference retained, on Empire supplies which are now admitted duty-free. He will begin with pig products; thence to dairy produce, to mutton and lamb, and on through beef to cereals, fruits, vegetables and fish. Mr. Stevens suggests that "we may be witnessing a turn in the tide of our affairs which foreshadows tragedy and disaster." His conclusion is that every British Dominion should make a supreme endeavor to preserve at any reasonable cost the British market in its present magnitude.

The Dominion delegates at the Ottawa Conference in 1932 thought they had the whip hand and they tried to lash the British delegates into surrender. Mr. Bennett in particular bullied and scolded Chamberlain, Baldwin, Runciman and Hailsham, and once he actually wept, a secret guarded by correspondents until A. J. Cummings of the London News-Chronicle revealed it the other day. The British plenipotentiaries went home enraged, but they are now turning the tables by steadily crowding the Dominions out of the British market. Canada offered them nothing substantial and still maintains her high barriers against British goods despite promises to lower them two years ago. Britain has joined the mad rush for national self-sufficiency, and is using against Canada already—e. g., the restrictions on exports of Canadian cattle and oats—the weapon which Canada employs against British exporters.

Note and Comment

Mr. Sutherland is the high tariff candidate in South Oxford, and he cannot rub out that label, much as the electors dislike it.

It is a paradox that Quebec has the most economical provincial government in Canada, it and demanded "red-blooded" action in raising it. The Dr. Manions in nearly all trading countries had their way, and see what happened!

A Cabinet Minister goes to South Oxford on the eve of the by-election to announce that Mr. Bennett will bring about a reduction of mortgage interest rates. An elector who would be influenced by a last-minute promise of this kind is much below the average intelligence in the constituency. He should first read the list of unfulfilled promises made by Mr. Bennett in 1930.

Lloyd George has completed 44 years of unbroken service in the British House of Commons. For 30 years he has been its most vivid personality. For a long period he was its most influential figure as well. The contrast between his former position and his present one, in which he has only two or three followers, is almost tragic. Even today, when he is almost powerless in Parliament, he can make a better speech and can attract more listeners than any other member.

Trebitch Lincoln has arrived in Victoria, B. C., and will cross Canada on his way to establish a Buddhist monastery in Europe. He has a retinue of four Buddhist monks and six Buddhist nuns in this, his latest stunt. His career could hardly be matched in the modern world. He went to England before the war, a foreigner and a stranger—his nationality is still a mystery—and he actually won a seat in the British House of Commons. In the war he acted as a German spy and underwent imprisonment. After wandering to and fro on the face of the earth he is next heard from in mid-Asia as a Buddhist priest or novitiate. Now he will reappear on the European scene in a role that will win him publicity if nothing else.

THE EARTH'S BIGGEST JOB
(Vancouver Sun)

Statesmen and economists may build up the economic machine that will govern the material lives of our children.

But it is the teachers who will share and mold the human material that must go through that machine.

Teaching is the biggest job on earth today because we are emerging into an age of psychology—an age wherein the processes of mind and the perfection of understanding are the all-important factors.

Life has become too complex and too difficult to turn the child loose with a mechanized smattering of knowledge and no real understanding of himself or of the world he lives in.

Education is no longer a mere feat of memory nor a painting on of superficial culture. It is the development in our young people of the ability to meet, understand and conquer life in all its changing phases.

BIG TRUCKS MIRED ON COCKSHUTT ROAD

Brantford, April 11—Service trucks of this city were at a premium this afternoon, with their attentions needed on the Cockshutt road, south of the city. Between the city and the road leading to the Six Nations' Indian reserve, half a dozen big trucks were mired or ditched, the worst spot being the new cutoff constructed in connection with the new Cockshutt bridge.

Traffic is warned to stay off this road for some time.

BRANTFORD MAN IS SENTENCED

Canadian Press Despatch

Drumheller, Alta., April 11.—Experience pays, so a self-confessed "fire bug" found while in jail at Drumheller.

While awaiting sentence, the man worked around the jail, he told counsel.

"Fixing fires," was the answer.

"You don't mean the police have been turning you loose to burn down more buildings?"

"No. I've been stoking the furnace. "I'm pretty good at it."

NO CONCRETE SCHEME FOR AIR SERVICE YET

Trans-Atlantic Service To Canada Not Under Discussion British Commons Told

Canadian Press Cable

London, April 11—No concrete scheme for a Trans-Atlantic air service to and from Canada has yet been put forth, Sir Philip Sassoon, under secretary for air, declared this afternoon in the House of Commons when questioned as regards the development of Empire aviation.

"As regards services to and across Canada," Sir Philip said, "no concrete scheme for Trans-Atlantic air service is at present under discussion. At the same time I understand that considerable progress has been made in the establishment of a chain of landing grounds across the Dominion.

"I am not in a position to give any more detailed information at this stage."

ployment; "work, not doles," was the slogan of the campaign of 1930.

Has the promise been kept?

A report submitted to the House of Commons on March 22nd last contains this statement:

	Heads of families receiving relief
Jan. 1933	258,298
Feb. 1933	276,468

One year later the record stood:

Jan. 1934	260,159
Feb. 1934	267,853

There are over 1,250,000 on all classes receiving relief.

Despite the fact that world conditions, according to the League of Nations have improved, the change in Canada has been scarcely noticeable.

The index number of employment in manufacturing stood at 113.8 in July, 1930, the date of the election—it fell to 84.9 the following July—stood at only 82.6 in July of the next year and for the year averaged only 81.4— 32.1 points lower than the average of 1930. And yet the government of Canada is spending millions to provide employment.

"Blasting"

The government promised markets for the farmers and total exports of agricultural products fell from $368,700,000 in 1930 to $202,900,000 in 1933.

Prices have fallen—fallen sharply. The index number of farm prices at 100 in 1926 dropped to 53.3 in December last—prices were almost cut in two.

But the price of manufactured products did not fall by an equivalent amount — manufactured products dropped only 28.1% while prices of farm products fell 46.3%. No wonder the purchasing power of the farmer fell.

Debts

Debt of Canada Under Two Governments

Debt Reduction Under Liberals

Fiscal Year
1928	$50,900,000
1929	71,300,000
1930	47,700,000

Debt Increased Under Conservatives

1931	$ 83,800,000
1932	114,200,000
1933	223,200,000

In three years a debt increase of $421, 200,000 under the Conservatives.

A debt decrease of $169,900,000 in three years under the Liberals.

Tax Burdens

This means heavier tax burdens imposed on an already over-taxed people.

The situation demands a new deal for the people of South Oxford—for the people of Canada.

Trade has been strangled by the Conservative policy — Trade will be liberated by the Liberals.

Export of Canadian products fell from $1,209,000,000 in 1929 to $537,000,000 in 1933 (Calendar years in both cases).

Freedom is needed to expand trade—trade can be and will be expanded under the Liberals.

A vote for A. S. Rennie is a vote for a new deal for the farmers and increased prosperity in the towns.

Drawbridge Included In Construction Program For Port Stanley

L. & P. S. PLANS BIG IMPROVEMENT

Include Construction Of $100,000 Drawbridge And A New Dock

CONFERENCE HELD

Commission Also Discusses With Village Council Adequate Protection Of Bathers

Ambitious plans which suggest the construction of a new $100,000 draw bridge, the building of a new dock, and the further establishment of coal interests at Port Stanley, were tentatively discussed and mapped last night at the port, at a joint meeting of the L. & P. S. commission and the Port Stanley Village Council.

Building of a lift bridge to replace the present stationary structure spanning Kettle Creek near the railway station, was stressed as the key project for which the commission and council would strive. Instead of repairs to the structure now standing, for which the provincial government has already signified its willingness to share in the cost, attention will now be directed towards obtaining an entirely new bridge.

Will Help Western Ontario

Should the plan succeed, Mayor George A. Wenige stated last night he believed the project would have a direct bearing on Western Ontario. Construction of the bridge, the mayor believed, would be followed by the building of a new dock; greater facilities for lake vessels would be created, and further inducement held out for oil and coal concerns to use the port as their base and shipping centre.

To Protect Bathers

Apart from building plans advanced with a view to placing Port Stanley "on the map" as a live lake port, the joint meeting decided upon measures of protection for swimmers this summer. Authorization was given the proposal to place life preservers at every 300 feet along the lake front. Additional plans for the employment this summer of life guards and the placing of lifeboats at strategic points along the waterfront were also mooted and held over for further consideration.

Get-Together Meeting

The London commissioners were banquetted at the Orion Hotel last night by the village council. From that "get-together" meeting is expected to arise shortly a general conference of the councils of London, St. Thomas, and Port Stanley, and the Elgin County council. It is proposed to have the meeting in London. At it will be definitely shaped, the course to be followed in connection with the plans discussed last night.

Government to Share Cost

Speaking of the bridge project, the mayor said, "The government has already promised to share in the cost of repairing the Kettle Creek bridge to the extent of $25,000. "We all might as well spend a little more and get a new structure. Repairs alone won't do."

Supplying of lifeguard and boat protection to swimmers, regarded as a certainty, arises, the mayor said, from concern evidenced following last year's triple drowning tragedy. He believed proper facilities for providing the bather with protection would encourage swimming at the port.

INTER. PRODUCTS LOSS

New York, April 11. — International Products—and subsidiaries report for 1933, as certified by independent auditors, net loss of $318,188, after depreciation, depletion, etc., and including $24,507 profit on foreign exchange. This compares with net loss of $672,351 in 1932.

Federal Liberal Leader Speaks At Two Meetings

Liberal practice had been to bring on by-elections as soon as possible. Mr. Bennett had brought on three recently but left South Oxford out.

"Mr. Bennett knew that his government did not possess the confidence of the people. He hoped to carry one of the three by-elections which were called but he left out the one that will beat him the worst," he said. "Your vote won't put Mr. Bennett out but it will decide definitely if we will have a general election in the fall or if we are to have another year of Bennett rule."

Series of Defeats

Mr. King said that the Liberal party welcomed the South Oxford by-election as another opportunity to show the government that it has lost the people's confidence. Under the British parliamentary system it is an established practice for a government to go to the country when it loses a series of by-elections. The Bennett government could not hope to avoid this appeal if on top of Restigouche-Madawaska, Yamaska, Mackenzie and South Huron it loses South Oxford as well.

"All parts of Canada are striking in at this administration and telling it to get out. If on top of all this the people of South Oxford tell Mr. Bennett to get out of the way, it seems to me that he will be obliged to go to the country this fall. A big opportunity is yours," he said.

The political and economic problems facing Canada are the most important in her history, said the Liberal leader. He recalled that in the general election of 1930 he had told the people that the world was facing a great depression and that Liberal policies had been fashioned in this belief. The depression was partly because of the war and partly because of the orgy of speculation, but, said Mr. King, he believed that the Liberal policies had prevented Canada from feeling the full impact of the world depression.

Set Example To World

"The Liberal party brought Canada out of a depression in 1921. It was not a mere accident but the result of certain policies moving toward definite ends. Other nations went in for economic isolation but we resolved to extend our markets. We thought that we at least in the British Empire need not go in for the policy of economic nationalism but rather felt we should set an example to the rest of the world. The Dunning budget was directed to the lowering of tariffs in the British Empire. Our policy was met with Mr. Bennett's 'Canada first' and protectionist interests were told that tariff wa's would be put up all over. If things had been left there, there might have been a different story in that election. But Mr. Bennett said he would provide work for all men. There would be no doles. His two great promises were 'Everyone will work and everyone will have markets.' He included the whole people and the people took him at his word."

The Liberal leader asked how many had work today compared with four years ago. How many have the markets they had four years ago? Those are questions for South Oxford to answer.

Mr. King declared an expansion of trade to be the only solution to this unemployment problem. Work cannot be supplied from taxes indefinitely. It must come from the wealth of the soil, forest, mine and sea.

"We must use the wealth which God has given us and until we exchange these things we can't have things running very well," he said.

Assailed for Peace Work

The League of Nations had been founded to promote the mutual interests of the nations and to prevent war, said Mr. King. Canada was a member of the League and had done her best. Yet in 1930 the Liberal party was assailed by Mr. Bennett because it had had the courage to lower tariffs in an effort to solve economic problems, problems directly related to those of peace and war. "But you ask the Conservative candidate where trade was then and where it is now," urged Mr. King.

The problem facing the world, economic isolation for the different nations or a policy of international cooperation in trade and everything else with a view to ending economic nationalism and to building a greater brotherhood of mankind is well stated in the difference between Liberal and Conservative policies in Canada today, said Mr. King.

Social Revolution Here

Leaving the trade problem Mr. King said that the times demand a change in the social order. Men, women and children demand more social justice, more to be done for the common good and greater opportunity for all. Those things which have shattered forms of government to Europe and brought the 'New Deal' to the United States are touching Canada.

"To day we are in the middle of a social revolution, a world social revolution, and the problem is where it is going to end as far as the people are concerned. Humanity is on the march. Some say we should have a planned economy. But that means a dictatorship, force and power. Others put their faith in principles and say that these have guided men and women for centuries, and that is the Liberal policy. There are principles for work, peace, and progress and the people who fashion their laws in accord with them will enjoy peace," he said.

nationalism because the tariff was to be raised against all other nations."

British Market Endangered

Mr. King said that in the House of Commons he had stated that the agreements reached at the 1932 conference would endanger the British market for Canadian producers and today the British agriculturist is demanding protection against his Canadian competitors in cattle and dairy products.

"Remember where this policy started and if you approve of it vote for the Bennett candidate," he said.

Even worse than economic nationalism is economic imperialism, continued Mr. King. Every thinking man stands aghast when he thinks of an empire seeking to stand out as a unit against the rest of the world.

"Unless this sort of thing ends, economic war will give way to actual war," he predicted. "Unless some country comes along to set an example the world will face a worse situation than ever."

Parliament Being Shelved

Mr. King declared that the Bennett policy for Canada is to get rid of parliament altogether and rule the executive do what it pleases. He referred to the "Peace, order and good government" clause now before the Commons which gives the government unlimited powers. It can guarantee corporation loans, lend millions to the provinces. "The government, under one clause of that bill, is getting even the authority to prevent a general election. It might be used in the event of a European crisis. That was what was done in Cromwell's day. We cannot afford now to turn over all government to the governor in council," declared Mr. King, asserting that the Liberal party would keep up the battle to guard parliament's rights.

Vast Sums Squandered

Moneys paid out for relief under the "Peace, order and good government" clause had been improperly spent, said Mr. King. Money was wasted on the worst scale in Canada's history. To the provinces had been loaned $52,000,000 and it is doubtful if the Federal treasury will ever see it again. Bank guarantees of more than $100,000,000 have been given, including the $60,000,000 C. P. R. guarantee.

"What is worse is that the provinces are now following Mr. Bennett's example and transferring power to the cabinets from the people's representatives," the speaker continued. The British Columbia premier has taken powers like those that Mr. Bennett has. A bill to this end is under way in Alberta. Already it is in effect in Saskatchewan in respect to some things, while the same is true of Manitoba."

Bennett Set Example

"Do you think these premiers would have thought of it if Mr. Bennett had not set the example?" asked Mr. King.

The Liberal leader noted that the other day Mr. Bennett told the Commons that he needed the powers he asked so he could combat British Columbia. "It is a matter of competitive arming for legislative and executive power. How long would it be in this province until Mr. Henry took those powers if he were re-elected?"

"We have a spirit of warfare abroad, the spirit which has bedevilled European nations. Our dictators say they must have new powers. I say to you that economic war and competitive arming in whatever form it comes sooner or later results in actual war. Let it come to Europe and how long will it be until we feel it? One country needs to stand up for democratic institutions and international good will. It is this larger policy which the Liberal party is working out."

Hall Is Packed

Crowds began gathering around the hall long before the time set for the meeting. Although it was snowing, many stood in the streets and in doorways to listen-in as sound apparatus carried the music and speeches to those outside. Every available inch of space inside was taken, with the balconies packed, and spectators standing in the aisles and even in the wings of the platform.

Mr. King and the other speakers were given a rousing reception. John McKee of Norwich acted as chairman and those on the platform included M. F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader; Hon. J. C. Elliott, M. P., former minister of public works; Reeve John Armour of Norwich; Rev. James Skene, Norwich; R. A. McDougall, Dominion president, and Donald Begg, provincial president of the Twentieth Century Club; P. M. Dean, provincial Liberal candidate for Oxford, and the Liberal candidate in this by-election, A. S. Rennie.

Children's Hero

To the children of the town, Mr. King came as a popular hero. Because of his visit they were given a half holiday from school and many of them were in the audience. The platform was decorated with flowers and in places of honor were flag-draped pictures of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, William Lyon Mackenzie and other Liberal leaders.

Mr. Rennie was the first speaker, opening his address with a sincere tribute to T. M. Cayley, late Liberal member. He blamed the Conservatives for the fact that South Oxford had not had representation for the greater part of the present parliamentary session, declaring that the people of this riding had been ill treated in the government's delaying the election until this time, thus disenfranchising them for most of the session.

Abbey To Echo With Re-union

London, April 11.—Methodsit, Congregational and Presbyterian clergymen are among those announced to give a series of lectures in Westminster Abbey during April and May. The series has been arranged by the Friends of Reunion. The Dean and Chapter of the Abbey have given their permission for the lectures. The subject of the course will be "The Road to Reunion."

The lecturers will e the Right Rev. N. S. Talbot, a former Bishop of Pretoria; the Rev. H. Maldwyn Hughes of Welley Lodge, Cambridge; the Rev. Nathanial Micklem, principal of Mansfield College, Oxford; the Rev. James Reid of Eastbourne; the Rev. H. N. Bate, Dean of York and the Very Rev. W. R. Matthews, Dean of Exeter.

exports had gone up only 7.6 per cent.

"It is about time the Pension Act is properly administered," the speaker declared, in touching on veterans' legislation. Under the present government the act was being unfairly administered, he said.

Hepburn Predicts Victory

Mr. Hepburn was greeted with cheers and he paid tribute to Mr. Rennie, predicting for him a victory on April 16. The Liberal leader also spoke words of praise for his federal leader, Mr. King, declaring that he was "probably the greatest statesman this country has ever produced."

In not coming into the riding but instead intending to speak over the radio, Mr. Bennett had shown that "the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak," Mr. Hepburn declared.

You will either vote to perpetuate Mr. Bennett's government in office or register a protest against its record, the speaker said. Mr. Bennett was doing nothing for the farmer and working man. He did nothing but raise tariffs, granting privilege to the strong and more charity to the weak. With this policy of playing both ends against the middle the whole financial structure of the country was in danger of collapse.

Significant Election

The result of this vote will have a great effect throughout the entire Dominion. It will have an effect on the coming general election in Ontario and if Mr. Rennie is elected, it will provide a ray of hope in these dark days, the Liberal leader concluded.

Mr. Elliott introduced Mr. King in a brief speech and thunderous applause greeted the federal leader. Reeve Armour read an address of welcome and Mr. King received a lovely bouquet and a kiss from little Jean Snell as he rose to speak.

'KIDNAPPING' HOAX CLARKSON ADMITS

Toronto Youth Found At Byron Not Abducted Father Tells Police

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 11.—Police tonight abandoned their investigation of a story by Curzon, Trinity College student, that he had been kidnapped and taken to London, after the youth's father, F. C. Clarkson, told them the story was a hoax.

Police said Mr. Clarkson told them his son was suffering from overwrought nerves, induced by worry over examinations and that he believed he had invented the story after driving to London himself and realizing he must explain his absense from home.

Young Clarkson, 18, appeared about two o'clock this morning at Byron Sanatorium, eight miles northwest of London, and told authorities there he had been kidnapped. He was wet and cold. Police started to investigate his story that he had been seized as he sat in his car in Toronto.

They found the car in a gully about half a mile from the Sanatorium.

BISHOP'S WIFE WARNS AGAINST PUTTING CHILD BEFORE THE HUSBAND

Taunton, England, April (CP). — Man should be master of his home, declared Lady Florence Cecil, wife of the Bishop of Exeter, who, at a Mothers' Union Festival at Taunton, warned mothers against putting children before husbands in the nome, and added:

"I am early Victorian, and believe in the headship of the husband in the home."

Among temptations that beset women Lady Florence Cecil included temper, nagging, jealousy, untidiness, vanity, conceit and pride.

L.&P.S. TO INAUGURATE REDUCED FARES TO PORT

DECIDE ON REVIVAL OF BAND CONCERTS

Three Local Military Bands Are To Furnish The Music

Definitely deciding to inaugurate a 35-cent return fare to Port Stanley on Mondays and Fridays after the dance hall opening and during the months of May and June, the L. and P. S. Railway commission meeting yesterday agreed to commence an extensive newspaper, radio and billboard campaign to acquaint the public with the new low fare.

The suggestion that combination tickets which would include two street car tickets with the L. and P. S. tickets at 50 cents to be used during July and August was made by Commissioner D. C. McNaughton and this will be considered later.

Revive Sunday Band Concerts

Sunday evening band concerts on the hill at Port Stanley will be revived as an attraction. One concert was authorized with further concerts depending on the success attained. Bands considered for this purpose were the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Fusiliers Regiment and the First Hussars Regiment, all local military bands.

"Why not bring in an outside band? It would not cost any more," asked Commissioner McNaughton.

Must Employ Local Bands

"We must employ local bands if any," replied Mayor Wenige, chairman of the commission.

The Mayor was of the opinion that the band concerts would materially increase the revenue from the incline railway which has fallen off badly from previous years. The revenue from this source was $2,000 last year Manager Richards informed the commission.

"We can easily double that," said said the Mayor. The Mayor was authorized to draft a tentative agreement with the Shell Oil Company regarding an oil truck to be operated by the L. and P. S. Some doubt was expressed whether the bridges at Port Stanley would take as heavy a load as the proposed truck will carry.

The Mayor, Manager Richards, Commissioners Wright and McNaughton were appointed a committee to carry out plans for billboard advertising. The Mayor will conduct a series of 10 minute radio talks on Port Stanley and the L. and P. S. during April and May.

Following the card playing refreshments were served, after which, two hours dancing was enjoyed, with Arthurs Radio orchestra furnishing the music.

Pioneer Feminist Is 80 Years Old

Took Up Public Life After Family Of Seven Grew Up

Canadian Press Despatch

Montreal, April 11.—Mrs. John Scott, pioneer feminist and the "grand little old Lady of Quebec" has entered upon her 80th year and is still going strong. Just a week before her recent birthday she addressed two meetings in one day. In her up-to-date apartment she lives as indepently and capably as a modern bachelor girl. She has not forgotten the art of cooking either, for her Scotch scones and marmalade are a treat.

The name of Isabella Scott will go down in history as one of the leaders who began the women's suffrage movement in the province of Quebec. During election campaigns she was a popular speaker.

Mrs. Scott delights in recalling the tory of her Scottish father and mother and 12 brothers and sisters, of whom she was the oldest, travelling from Glasgow in 1874 and settling in Scotstown, Quebec. In this country she met a young Scotsman who strangely enough had been born within four miles of Glasgow, and eventually married him. Seven little Canadians were born to them and in those days "I had no time then for questions of suffrage," said Mrs. Scott with a twinkle in her eye as she unfolded her story to an interviewer.

"My husband was Mayor of Scotstown, chairman of the school board, ruling elder in the church, telegraph operating station agent and the keeper of a general store, and in our spare time we attended the weekly prayer meeting and the meeting of the Christian Endeavor."

Mrs. Scott and her family came to Montreal in 1905 and as time went on and her children became less dependent on her she gradually became interested in public life.

FLEISCHMANN'S SWEPT BY DISASTROUS BLAZE

Kingston, N.Y., April 11—Seven buildings in the heart of the business section of Fleischmann's, a Delaware county village 50 miles northwest of here, were burned to the ground and several other structures were damaged early today by a fire which caused an estimated loss of $150,000.

influence of the people. He hoped to carry one of the three by-elections which were called but he left out the one that will beat him the worst," he said. "Your vote won't put Mr. Bennett out but it will decide definitely if we will have a general election in the fall or if we are to have another year of Bennett rule."

Series of Defeats

Mr. King said that the Liberal party welcomed the South Oxford by-election as another opportunity to show the government that it has lost the people's confidence. Under the British parliamentary system it is an established practice for a government to go to the country when it loses a series of by-elections. The Bennett government could not hope to avoid this appeal if on top of Restigouche-Madawaska, Yamaska, Mackenzie and South Huron it loses South Oxford as well.

"All parts of Canada are striking in at this administration and telling it to get out. If on top of all this the people of South Oxford tell Mr. Bennett to get out of the way, it seems to me that he will be obliged to go to the country this fall. A big opportunity is yours," he said.

The political and economic problems facing Canada are the most important in her history, said the Liberal leader. He recalled that in the general election of 1930 he had told the people that the world was facing a great depression and that Liberal policies had been fashioned in this belief. The depression was partly because of the war and partly because of the orgy of speculation, but, said Mr. King, he believed that the Liberal policies had prevented Canada from feeling the full impact of the world depression.

Set Example To World

"The Liberal party brought Canada out of a depression in 1921. It was not a mere accident but the result of certain policies moving toward definite ends. Other nations went in for economic isolation but we resolved to extend our markets. We thought that we at least in the British Empire need not go in for the policy of economic nationalism but rather felt we should set an example to the rest of the world. The Dunning budget was directed to the lowering of tariffs in the British Empire. Our policy was met with Mr. Bennett's 'Canada first' and protectionist interests were told that tariff we'' would be put up all over. If things had been left there, there might have been a different story in that election. But Mr. Bennett said he would provide work for all men. There would be no doles. His two great promises were 'Everyone will work and everyone will have markets.' He included the whole people and the people took him at his word."

The Liberal leader asked how many had work today compared with four years ago. How many have the markets they had four years ago? Those are questions for South Oxford to answer.

Mr. King declared an expansion of trade to be the only solution to this unemployment problem. Work cannot be supplied from taxes indefinitely. It must come from the wealth of the soil, forest, mine and sea.

"We must use the wealth which God has given us and until we exchange these things we can't have things running very well," he said.

Assailed for Peace Work

The League of Nations had been founded to promote the mutual interests of the nations and to prevent war, said Mr. King. Canada was a member of the League and had done her best. Yet in 1930 the Liberal party was assailed by Mr. Bennett because it had had the courage to lower tariffs in an effort to solve economic problems, problems directly related to those of peace and war. "But you ask the Conservative candidate where trade was then and where it is now," urged Mr. King.

The problem, facing the world, economic isolation for the different nations or a policy of international cooperation in trade and everything else with a view to ending economic nationalism and to building a greater brotherhood of mankind is well stated in the difference between Liberal and Conservative policies in Canada today, said Mr. King.

Social Revolution Here

Leaving the trade problem Mr. King said that the times demand a change in the social order. Men, women and children demand more social justice, more to be done for the common good and greater opportunity for all. Those things which have shattered forms of government to Europe and brought the 'New Deal' to the United States are touching Canada.

"To day we are in the middle of a social revolution, a world social revolution, and the problem is where it is going to end as far as the people are concerned. Humanity is on the march. Some say we should have a planned economy. But that means a dictatorship, force and power. Others put their faith in principles and say that these have guided men and women for centuries, and that is the Liberal policy. There are principles for work, peace, and progress and the people who fashion their laws in accord with them will enjoy peace," he said.

Danger of Dictatorship

There is a danger right now of a dictatorship in Canada, Mr. King said, and it is up to the people of South Oxford to say that this country must be controlled by the parliamentary system. In Italy, Germany, Russia, Austria and other places, representative institutions have disappeared. In the United States larger powers than ever have been invested in the executive. But under the British system the executive is responsible to the people's representatives and must get his power from them.

"But Mr. Bennett started out four years ago on the theory of an emergency and demanded emergency powers. He called parliament to deal with unemployment and then raised the tariffs," said Mr. King, reviewing the factors which led to the breakdown of the 1930 session of the imperial economic conference. "Mr. Bennett's offer to Britain of a preferential tariff really meant a step further along the road of economic market for Canadian producers and today the British agriculturist is demanding protection against his Canadian competitors in cattle and dairy products.

"Remember where this policy started and if you approve of it vote for the Bennett candidate," he said.

Even worse than economic nationalism is economic imperialism, continued Mr. King. Every thinking man stands aghast when he thinks of an empire seeking to stand out as a unit against the rest of the world.

"Unless this sort of thing ends, economic war will give way to actual war," he predicted. "Unless some country comes along to set an example the world will face a worse situation than ever."

Parliament Being Shelved

Mr. King declared that the Bennett policy for Canada is to get rid of parliament altogether and to let the executive do what it pleases. He referred to the "Peace, order and good government" clause now before the Commons which gives the government unlimited powers. It can guarantee corporation loans, lend millions to the provinces. "The government, under one clause of that bill, is getting even the authority to prevent a general election. It might be used in the event of a European crisis. That was what was done in Cromwell's day. We cannot afford now to turn over all government to the governor in council," declared Mr. King, asserting that the Liberal party would keep up the battle to guard parliament's rights.

Vast Sums Squandered

Moneys paid out for relief under the "Peace, order and good government" clause had been improperly spent, said Mr. King. Money was wasted on the worst scale in Canada's history. To the provinces had been loaned $52,000,000 and it is doubtful if the Federal treasury will ever see it again. Bank guarantees of more than $100,000,000 have been given, including the $60,000,000 C. P. R. guarantee.

"What is worse is that the provinces are now following Mr. Bennett's example and transferring power to the cabinets from the people's representatives," the speaker continued. The British Columbia premier has taken powers like those that Mr. Bennett has. A bill to this end is under way in Alberta. Already it is in effect in Saskatchewan in respect to some things, while the same is true of Manitoba."

Bennett Set Example

"Do you think these premiers would have thought of it if Mr. Bennett had not set the example?" asked Mr. King.

The Liberal leader noted that the other day Mr. Bennett told the Commons that he needed the powers he asked so he could combat British Columbia. "It is a matter of competitive arming for legislative and executive power. How long would it be in this province until Mr. Henry took those powers if he were re-elected?"

"We have a spirit of warfare abroad, the spirit which has bedevilled European nations. Our dictators say they must have new powers. I say to you that economic war and competitive arming in whatever form it comes sooner or later results in actual war. Let it come to Europe and how long will it be until we feel it? One country needs to stand up for democratic institutions and international good will. It is this larger policy which the Liberal party is working out."

Hall is Packed

Crowds began gathering around the hall long before the time set for the meeting. Although it was snowing, many stood in the streets and in doorways to listen-in as sound apparatus carried the music and speeches to those outside. Every available inch of space inside was taken, with the balconies packed, and spectators standing in the aisles and even in the wings of the platform.

Mr. King and the other speakers were given a rousing reception. John McKee of Norwich acted as chairman and those on the platform included M. F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader; Hon. J. C. Elliott, M. P., former minister of public works; Reeve John Armour of Norwich; Rev. James Skene, Norwich; R. A. McDougall, Dominion president, and Donald Begg, provincial president of the Twentieth Century Club; P. M. Dean, provincial Liberal candidate for Oxford, and the Liberal candidate in this by-election, A. S. Rennie.

Children's Hero

To the children of the town, Mr. King came as a popular hero. Because of his visit they were given a half holiday from school and many of them were in the audience. The platform was decorated with flowers and in places of honor were flag-draped pictures of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, William Lyon Mackenzie and other Liberal leaders.

Mr. Rennie was the first speaker, opening his address with a sincere tribute to T. M. Cayley, late Liberal member. He blamed the Conservatives for the fact that South Oxford had not had representation for the greater part of the present parliamentary session, declaring that the people of this riding had been ill treated in the government's delaying the election until this time, thus disenfranchising them for most of the session.

Policies Poles Apart

"The policies of Mr. King and Mr. Bennett are as far apart as the poles," the candidate declared. Liberal policies, he said, will bring a return of prosperity to the farmer, while a continuation of Conservative rule meant the addition of restrictions to trade and even worse conditions than those that exist today.

Referring to statements made in the riding by Hon. R. J. Manion, Mr. Rennie declared that the Conservative speaker was wrong when he informed the people that Canada stood fifth in trade in the world. He quoted from a report of Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, showing that it had dropped from fifth to ninth place since 1930. Conservative speakers were also misleading in statements that Canada's export trade had greatly increased, Mr. Rennie declared, giving a comparison with other countries which showed that while exports in Australia increased 35 per cent, in Sweden and Switzerland, 29.1 per cent, Canada's exports had gone up only 7.6 per cent.

"It is about time the Pension Act is properly administered," the speaker declared, in touching on veterans' legislation. Under the present government the act was being unfairly administered, he said.

Hepburn Predicts Victory

Mr. Hepburn was greeted with cheers and he paid tribute to Mr. Rennie, predicting for him a victory on April 16. The Liberal leader also spoke words of praise for his federal leader, Mr. King, declaring that he was "probably the greatest statesman this country has ever produced."

In not coming into the riding but instead intending to speak over the radio, Mr. Bennett had shown that "the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak," Mr. Hepburn declared.

You will either vote to perpetuate Mr. Bennett's government in office or register a protest against its record, the speaker said. Mr. Bennett was doing nothing for the farmer and working man. He did nothing but raise tariffs, granting privilege to the strong and more charity to the weak. With this policy of playing both ends against the middle the whole financial structure of the country was in danger of collapse.

Significant Election

The result of this vote will have a great effect throughout the entire Dominion. It will have an effect on the coming general election in Ontario and if Mr. Rennie is elected, it will provide a ray of hope in these dark days, the Liberal leader concluded.

Mr. Elliott introduced Mr. King in a brief speech and thunderous applause greeted the federal leader. Reeve Armour read an address of welcome and Mr. King received a lovely bouquet and a kiss from little Jean Snell as he rose to speak.

Canadian Press Despatch

Toronto, April 11.—Police tonight abandoned their investigation of a story by Curzon, Trinity College student, that he had been kidnapped and taken to London, after the youth's father, F. C. Clarkson, told them the story was a hoax.

Police said Mr. Clarkson told them his son was suffering from overwrought nerves, induced by worry over examinations and that he believed he had invented the story after driving to London himself and realizing he must explain his absense from home.

Young Clarkson, 18, appeared about two o'clock this morning at Byron Sanatorium, eight miles northwest of London, and told authorities there he had been kidnapped. He was wet and cold. Police started to investigate his story that he had been seized as he sat in his car in Toronto.

They found the car in a gully about half a mile from the Sanatorium.

BISHOP'S WIFE WARNS AGAINST PUTTING CHILD BEFORE THE HUSBAND

Taunton, England, April (CP). — Man should be master of his home, declared Lady Florence Cecil, wife of the Bishop of Exeter, who, at a Mothers' Union Festival at Taunton, warned mothers against putting children before husbands in the nome, and added:

"I am early Victorian, and believe in the headship of the husband in the home."

Among temptations that beset women Lady Florence Cecil included temper, nagging, jealousy, untidiness, vanity, conceit and pride.

A. D. BRAITHWAITE DEAD

Montreal, April 11.—Formerly one of Canada's leading bankers, A. D Braithwaite, 78, died here today. Mr Braithwaite was for many years connected with the Bank of Montreal and for some years was superintendent of Ontario branches.

OF BAND CONCERTS

Three Local Military Bands Are To Furnish The Music

Definitely deciding to inaugurate a 35-cent return fare to Port Stanley on Mondays and Fridays after the dance hall opening and during the months of May and June, the L. and P. S. Railway commission meeting yesterday agreed to commence an extensive newspaper, radio and billboard campaign to acquaint the public with the new low fare.

The suggestion that combination tickets which would include two street car tickets with the L. and P. S. tickets at 50 cents to be used during July and August was made by Commissioner D. C. McNaughton and this will be considered later.

Revive Sunday Band Concerts

Sunday evening band concerts on the hill at Port Stanley will be revived as an attraction. One concert was authorized with further concerts depending on the success attained. Bands considered for this purpose were the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Fusiliers Regiment and the First Hussars Regiment, all local military bands.

"Why not bring in an outside band? It would not cost any more," asked Commissioner McNaughton.

Must Employ Local Bands

"We must employ local bands if any," replied Mayor Wenige, chairman of the commission.

The Mayor was of the opinion that the band concerts would materially increase the revenue from the incline railway which has fallen off badly from previous years. The revenue from this source was $2,000 last year Manager Richards informed the commission.

"We can easily double that," said said the Mayor. The Mayor was authorized to draft a tentative agreement with the Shell Oil Company regarding an oil truck to be operated by the L. and P. S. Some doubt was expressed whether the bridges at Port Stanley would take as heavy a load as the proposed truck will carry.

The Mayor, Manager Richards, Commissioners Wright and McNaughton were appointed a committee to carry out plans for billboard advertising. The Mayor will conduct a series of 10 minute radio talks on Port Stanley and the L. and P. S. during April and May.

WINGHAM DANCE AND EUCHRE

Wingham, April 11.—A very successful euchre and dance was held in the council chamber on Tuesday evening, by the Hospital Auxiliary. Mrs. F. Sell was awarded the prize for the highest number of points, Mrs. Harry Brown Jr., for lone hands; for men, Harry Diamond for points, and Clayton Frytogle for lone hands. Following the card playing refreshments were served, after which, two hours dancing was enjoyed, with Arthurs Radio orchestra furnishing the music.

"My husband was Mayor of Scotstown, chairman of the school board, ruling elder in the church, telegraph operating station agent and the keeper of a general store, and in our spare time we attended the weekly prayer meeting and the meeting of the Christian Endeavor."

Mrs. Scott and her family came to Montreal in 1905 and as time went on and her children became less dependent on her she gradually became interested in public life.

FLEISCHMANN'S SWEPT BY DISASTROUS BLAZE

Kingston, N.Y., April 11—Seven buildings in the heart of the business section of Fleischmann's, a Delaware county village 50 miles northwest of here, were burned to the ground and several other structures were damaged early today by a fire which caused an estimated loss of $150,000.

NO EXPERIMENTS in the New Ford V-8

THERE are no experiments in the New Ford V-8 for 1934. No little things blown up big to make sales. No fancy coined names. Just solid substantial value.

That is why we say you buy Proved Performance when you buy a Ford V-8. The reliability and dependability of its V-8 engine, clutch, transmission, torque-tube drive, rear axle, frame, spring suspension and every other vital part have been proved by millions of miles of use by hundreds of thousands of owners.

Keep those points in mind when you are deciding which car to buy in 1934. You're always more sure of 100% satisfaction when you buy a car that has proved its worth and withstood the test of time.

The Most Economical Ford Ever Built

You get proved economy as well as proved performance when you buy a New Ford V-8. It gives exceptional gasoline and oil mileage and saves you many dollars because of its reliability and freedom from repairs. Scientific dynamometer tests show that the Ford V-8 engine delivers more horsepower per gallon of fuel than any Ford engine ever built.

THE HOUSEWIFE

By MARY HASTINGS

A STRIP OF BLUE

I DO not own an inch of land,
But all I see is mine—
The orchard and the mowing fields,
The lawns and gardens fine.
The winds, my tax-collectors are,
They bring me tithes divine—
Wild scents—and subtle essences,
A tribute rare and free;
And more magnificent than all
My window keeps for me
A glimpse of blue immensity—
A little strip of sea.

LOST PLANTS

Dear Mary:— We are here and alive after all the cold weather and oh my oh my! It was 33 below one morning. Sure I lost all my house plants, but the rest of us came through fine. We didn't have so many colds this winter, and I believe it was because we had a more even temperature all winter. Our oldest boy is selling seeds from a firm in Toronto, and they are selling fast. He made over three dollars in two afternoons after school.

My family seems financially minded this spring. The next two in age have been dickering with a neighbor, and have earned quite a little between them this week. It's awfully interesting to listen to them plan what to do with their money and see how they lay it out.

Could I have a package of Hollyhocks seeds and a package of Regal Lilies seeds, please? This sounds very hogish, but I hope to be able to return the favor in the near future. My, but I do wish I could contribute to the new homesteaders. But here's hoping, we are starting on a new summer, and who knows what it will bring forth. Work for the farmer and work aplenty for us as we are going it alone this year. We have let our man go. I cannot say I'm sorry, as every penny counts. Of course we had the help in return, but we are just going to give it a trial and see how it goes.

My "column" baby, as I call our Shirley Anne, is doing famously and says thank you to the column folks for helping her to laugh at the cold weather this winter. She weighs 18 lbs. Isn't that dandy? I'm strutty!

Stirlingshire Lass you didn't have very nice weather, did you? But a mighty nice Christmas present for yourself. I hope you both are well.

Mary, you seem to have a lot of folk from Wandsworth, I am too. Let's have a picnic and go to Wimbledon Common. I remember going when I was about four, and just before we used to start for home, my two brothers and my sister who were then in their early teens used to scamper off to some spot and in a few minutes return with arms full of bluebells. I remember getting awfully angry, because they wouldn't take me, but found out later that these bluebells were cultivated by a florist who had acres and acres of them and had them all fenced in. Being an "infant" and not being versed in the ways of fences, I would have been more a hindrance than help. My oldest brother's best friend had a house in Chippendale or at least Barnie's people did, and of course the two families visited back and forth. My greatest delight was to go in primrose time. They had four husky boys, a lot older than I, but did they spoil me! They had a strawberry patch, about the size of a good sized farm kitchen, all covered with netting to keep out the birds. It seems funny to think of that, and the acres of them here.

87 Years Young, you now have a companion in your puzzle compartment. I am into one up to my eyebrows. I had no intentions of it at first, but started it out of curiosity, and now I have gone the whole way. There sure is fun and fascination in it. Suppose I could find something better to do with my time, but one has to have a certain amount of recreation of some sort. That is mine for the present.

Please excuse my collection of stationery, Mary, but seemed I was all out.

—"ZOE."

Nice to hear from you, Zoe, and such a decidedly cheerful letter is especially welcome. I have sent the seeds.

BETTER UNDERSTANDING

Dear Mary Hastings and Housewife friends:

I can not begin to tell how I enjoy the letters in the page. I know I can never write like most of them do. I always read the page and so does my husband. He will be reading away and call to me, "Say this recipe sounds good, why don't you try it"—and up he jumps and cuts it right out. He is one man who enjoys the page any way. My what a wonderful work some of the housewives are doing sending the bales and boxes up North. Also Just Reilly. I certainly think she deserves a hearty vote of thanks. How I would like to have helped but what I could spare had many places near home. Our W.I. is just now making a layette for a needy mother. My, I think it is just wonderful how everyone tries to help each other. It seems to me that the

Dear Mary Hastings, — Will you kindly forward enclosed letter on to Utah Trail, as she wishes me to write to her? Now the spring is here I will have some very nice shrubs to offer for exchange, as I expect to move this month some time as the place is sold. I will have three rose bushes (I gave $1.50 per root for these two years ago), two bridal wreath shrubs, and two other shrubs with a red bloom. Would exchange for anything useful. Thanking you for the past favors. Yours as ever,

Mama's Pal.

Dear Mary,—Will you please send me double sunflower seed and regal lily seed. You will find enclosed a stamped envelope. Thanking you very kindly. Kathryn.

Hope you received the seeds safely, Kathryn.

Dear Mary Hastings,—I am returning patterns, and many thanks for them. Sorry to have kept them so long; but the housewives will soon be more interested in gardening than quilt-making. Best of luck to all.

MR. AND MRS. TAYLOR MARRIED 55 YEARS

Life-Long Liberal And Wife Are Honored

Belmont, April 11—Mr. and Mrs. Angus Taylor, Talbot Road, Elgin County, former residents of South Dorchester township were banqueted at the home of their granddaughter, Mrs. Angus Cameron and Mr. Cameron, West Elgin, yesterday. Guests numbering 30 were served with a chicken dinner at 1 o'clock. Florence Shackleton and Angus Taylor were married at Mount Salem, April 9th, 1879.

Mr. Taylor is a pioneer stockman of the County and has been a lifelong Liberal in politics. Both are enjoying comparatively good health at the ages of 82 and 72 respectively. They have one son, Frank, at home, two daughters, Cora, R.N. of Hamilton; Mrs. Mary Malone of Dutton; two grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Many beautiful gifts were received by the couple from the guests in attendance, those from Belmont including, Mr. and Mrs. Archie A. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Taylor and family. During the afternoon, Rev. and Mrs. Brown of Dutton called, when photos were taken of the family gathering and of the bride and groom of fifty-five years ago.

Hungarians Wed In Lovely Double Service

Grooms Are Brothers—Leamington Church Scene Of Ceremony

A double wedding of interest to a host of friends in two countries was solemnized on Sunday in the Leamington United Church, when Miss Margaret Irene Bonyal of Leamington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Bonyal, formerly of Hungary, became the bride of John Kuli; and Miss Mary Sepejak of Harrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aleck Sepejak, also of Hungary, became the bride of Mr. Steve Bernie Kuli. John and Steve Berni Kuli are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kuli of Hungary. Rev. T. W. Hazlewood officiated at the double ceremony before the church altar.

The youthful brides were charming in the latest of Canadian bridal attire, with some added touches from the home land, and the wedding service was carried out according to Canadian custom. The official witnesses of the ceremonies were Betrik Dobsi, Gabor Petrik, Joseph Kuli and Mike Yianek, while a number of friends of the bridal parties along with their new friends of this land were present. The bridal couples, after the honeymoon, will reside in Leamington.

CHOIR AND ORCHESTRA HEARD IN CONCERT

OVER 300 ATTEND UNITED GATHERING

Peace Is Topic On 17th Anniversary Of Vimy Ridge Battle

Kincardine, April 11. — The last of a series of inter-church young people's meetigs was held in Knox Presbyterian Church, with over three hundred present from the local Anglican, United and Presbyterian Churches and from Knox Church, Tiverton. Orville Taylor presided over the meeting, a feature of which was three excellent papers by members of the Anglican society, who with the United group provided the program.

The gathering was welcomed by Angus MacLeod of Knox Church, and Harold Peterson of the Anglican group conducted devotional exercises. Mrs. E. Rowe taking the topic spoke on the subject of peace, stressing the need for it. The topic was timely as it was the 17th anniversary of the Battle of Vimy Ridge.

Requirements of a good Canadian were outlined by Miss Mabel Stringer in an interesting paper. She listed knowledge of the country, respect of the flag, energy in good causes and tolerance to others as the outstanding needs.

Floyd Welck gave a paper on hockey, dealing with the game from its earliest history up to the present and pointed out that Canada had never been bested in this sport.

Addresses were given by Rev. A. McIvor and John McFayden, Tiverton; Rev. W. H. Hartley and Rev. W. B. Craw. Other numbers included violin selections by C. V. Henry, Mrs. Henry accompanist; piano duet, Doris Ellenton, Dorothy Peterson; guitar duet, Jessie Bowers, Marjorie Leask, reading, Mrs. A. Wright; piano solos, Mrs. Ted Johnston; skit by United young people, games by Harold Barringer and refreshments served by the Knox group.

AYLMER CLUB

Aylmer, April 11—The regular monthly meeting of the Aylmer School and Home Club was held in the Kindergarten room at the Public School last night and was well attended. Mrs. J. D. Leeson, the president, presided. The speaker for the evening was Dr. J. B. Clark who gave a most interesting address on "The Health and Care of the Teeth During the Public School age. Community singing was also enjoyed. The president, Mrs. Leeson, will give a report of the O. E. A. held in Toronto last week, and to which she was a delegate, at the meeting next month.

Entre Nous

By M. L. S.

SOMEONE tells us in great glee that their crocuses are out. Of course we hate to be the "that's nothing" type, but our own were showing their golden heads as long ago as last Saturday. We've seen very few others however, so we feel quite smart.

In the window of quite a fashionable establishment in town the other evening, was a gorgeous green chapeau. It was just the sort Milady could wear with the very smartest of costumes. It was trimmed with wide wing spread ornament across the front. But save us. . . . closer examination, so we are told, revealed that the 'ornament' was nothing else but a real live BAT. Yes indeed!

A certain boy in town we are told beats everything for consistency. He goes around as a rule with a girl named Jean (not really of course) but 'Jean' is as good a name as any other for this purpose. If this young woman is previously engaged, he looks up his little black book and calls Jean No 2, and as we're alive it's perfectly true that his third choice also has 'Jean' for a first name. He certainly won't be caught calling one girl by another's name at any rate. The height of wisdom, we call it.

Branch Arranges Summer Meeting

Courtright And Moore Centre Groups To Join For May 10

Mooretown, April 11. — The April meeting of the Moore Centre Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. Johnston with an attendance of 18 members and 21 visitors. Miss Jennie Finlayson, presided assisted by Miss Tena Long, Secretary.

The Moore Centre Branch will meet with the Courtright Branch on May 10th at Courtright when the summer departmental speaker will address the meeting.

Money was advanced to the relief committee for work and chairs are being purchased for the Township Hall, where the Institute hold occasional meetings and entertainments. The

NILESTOWN Y. P. S. STAGES POPULAR PLAY

A three act comedy, "Silas Smidge From Turnip Ridge," was presented in Glanworth I. O. O. F. Hall by the Nilestown Young People recently. The cast consisted of Misses Kae Rose, Gertrude Hume, Doris Wright, Edna Rawlings, Edith Webster and Margaret Jackson, Mrs. J. H. Fishback, and Messrs. Max McFarlan, George Wright, Joe Kernohan, Joe Webster, Earl Knott and Harley Roulston.

By popular demand the play is being repeated in Nilestown Masonic Hall on Friday evening, April 13th, and will be followed by a dance.

Novel Program Held At Lambeth

Lambeth, April 11.—An Old Boys' and Girls' reunion held in the form of a day at school, constituted the program of the Lambeth Y. P. S. held in the schoolroom last evening, with Henry Edgar as the schoolmaster in charge.

Opening devotional exercises were conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Smale who read the story of "Christ and the Rich Young Ruler" and gave a talk on "Seeking Life". Lessons for the morning session consisted of hygiene and spelling which were conducted by Annie Sadler in a novel manner. Recess and noon periods were occupied with games under the direction of Miss Sadler. A history period was conducted by Henry Edgar who called for recitations in ancient, mediaeval and modern history. Those responding were former presidents in the society, John Currie, Aaron Sadler, Mrs. W. L. Pack, Mrs. B. Holtby, Miss F. Mickleborough and the present president Miss Annie Swiston. Mrs. H. Thornicroft wearing a pirate costume sang "The Spanish Main" and Mrs. W. L. Pack also sang a solo. Accompanists were Miss Bessie Dunbar and Miss F. Mickleborough. A round of games and refreshments brought the evening to a close.

NEEDS OF CRIPPLED CHILDREN DISCUSSED

Seaforth, April 11—An interesting meeting of the Home and School Association was held, in connection with the Ontario Crippled Children's Week, in the Seaforth Collegiate Institute. Mrs. F. J. Bechely presided. A special feature of the evening was an address by Dr. F. J. Burrows, president of the Seaforth Lion's Club, which has been doing a splendid work among crippled children in this district. Dr. F. J. Bechely, chairman of the Lion's crippled children's activities reviewed the work done by the Seaforth club. Miss Marion Bell, of the Seaforth Collegiate Staff, also gave a delightful talk on the Cathedrals of England and Miss Roy Anderson favored with a

"Rumpelstitzkin" Appears In Cathedral Marionette Show

Beloved Grimms Fairy Tale Dramatized By Junior Club

AT CRONYN HALL

Woman's Association Sponsors First Showing Of Latest Play

"Rumpelstitzkin," one of the best loved stories of childhood and one of the fantastic creations of Grimm, was presented for the first time yesterday afternoon by the Junior Club Marionettes before the admiring eyes of a large number of children and adults in Cronyn Hall. The "show" was given under the auspices of the Woman's Association of St. Paul's Cathedral of which Mrs. John A. Ross is president.

The story was dramatized by the Junior Club members into three fascinating acts under the direction of Miss Margaret Glass whose dramatic abilities are well-known to Londoners. Miss Kay Givins, convener of marionettes for the Junior Club, was in charge of the general arrangements for the production.

Besides the writing of the play from several versions of the old story by Miss Glass and Miss Kathleen Wilson the players, their costumes and scenery were made by the other members of the club.

Tower Room

The first act was set in the tower room where the miller's beautiful daughter had been placed by her captor to spin straw into gold. Rumpelstitzkin, the grotesque little dwarf, appeared and in return for a very ambiguous promise, assisted her, by magic, to accomplish the task which made her queen. In the second act the royal christening took place and Rumpelstitzkin appeared to demand his reward, the royal baby. However he agreed to waive the promise if the queen could discover his name. The final act was in two scenes, the first in the wood where Feste, the queen's messenger, found out Rumpelstitzkin's secret and the second, in the queen's boudoir.

The part of the king was played by Mrs. Lloyd Sipherd; the maiden and queen, Mrs. Harold Smith; Rumpelstitzkin, Miss Betty Evans; the court jester, Feste, Miss K. Givins.

Clowns Perform

Following the play Mrs. Sipherd's clowns did some clever stunts, with the assistance of Miss Evans and Miss Givins and the story, "The Fairy and the Doll" was also presented by Mrs. Sipherd and Mrs. Smith.

Miss Margaret Glass made Feste; Miss K. Givins, the queen; Miss Kitty Gillespie, the miller's daughter; Miss Kathleen Wilson, the King and Miss Ruth Wilson, "Rumpelstitzkin".

Between acts Miss Audrey Braden favored with piano numbers.

Before the "show" the Woman's Association served tea and held a sale of "white elephants" and home-cooking. Mrs. Beatrice Boucher, Mrs. Charles Hunt, Mrs. John Hunt, Mrs. Arthur Gleason, Mrs. A. R. Douglas and Miss Macbeth were in charge of the tea-room. The tea-table was centred with spring flowers in a silver bowl and lighted with variegated candles. Those pouring included Mrs. J. D. Isaacs, Mrs. John Hunt, Mrs. McCracken, Miss Macbeth and Mrs. C. A. Seager.

The treasurers at the doors were Mrs. T. H. Carling, Miss Emily Knott and Mrs. McClary Moore. The "white elephant" sale was conducted by Mrs. W. J. Brown, Mrs. A. B. Greer, Mrs. W. R. Sproule and Mrs. George Leithwas convened by Mrs. F. W. Farnbridge. The table of home-cooking combe, Mrs. Lionel Eliot and Mrs. Fitzgerald.

A STRIP OF BLUE

I DO not own an inch of land,
But all I see is mine—
The orchard and the mowing fields,
The lawns and gardens fine.
The winds, my tax-collectors are,
They bring me tithes divine—
Wild scents—and subtle essences,
A tribute rare and free;
And more magnificent than all
My window keeps for me
A glimpse of blue immensity—
A little strip of sea.

—Lucy Larcon.

LOST PLANTS

Dear Mary:— We are here and alive after all the cold weather and oh my oh my! It was 33 below one morning. Sure I lost all my house plants, but the rest of us came through fine. We didn't have so many colds this winter, and I believe it was because we had a more even temperature all winter. Our oldest boy is selling seeds from a firm in Toronto, and they are selling fast. He made over three dollars in two afternoons after school.

My family seems financially minded this spring. The next two in age have been dickering with a neighbor, and have earned quite a little between them this week. It's awfully interesting to listen to them plan what to do with their money and see how they lay it out.

Could I have a package of Hollyhocks seeds and a package of Regal Lilies seeds, please? This sounds very hogish, but I hope to be able to return the favor in the near future. My, but I do wish I could contribute to the new homesteaders. But here's hoping, we are starting on a new summer, and who knows what it will bring forth. Work for the farmer and work aplenty for us as we are going it alone this year. We have let our man go. I cannot say I'm sorry, as every penny counts. Of course we had the help in return, but we are just going to give it a trial and see how it goes.

My "column" baby, as I call our Shirley Anne, is doing famously and says thank you to the column folks for helping her to laugh at the cold weather this winter. She weighs 18 lbs. Isn't that dandy? I'm strutty!

Stirlingshire Lass you didn't have very nice weather, did you? But a mighty nice Christmas present for yourself. I hope you both are well.

Mary, you seem to have a lot of folk from Wandsworth, I am too. Let's have a picnic and go to Wimbledon Common. I remember going when I was about four, and just before we used to start for home, my two brothers and my sister who were then in their early teens used to scamper off to some spot and in a few minutes return with arms full of bluebells. I remember getting awfully angry, because they wouldn't take me, but found out later that these bluebells were cultivated by a florist who had acres and acres of them and had them all fenced in. Being an "infant" and not being versed in the ways of fences, I would have been more a hindrance than help. My oldest brother's best friend had a house in Chippendale or at least Earnle's people did, and of course the two families visited back and forth. My greatest delight was to go in primrose time. They had four husky boys, a lot older than I, but did they spoil me! They had a strawberry patch, about the size of a good sized farm kitchen, all covered with netting to keep out the birds. It seems funny to think of that, and the acres of them here.

87 Years Young, you now have a companion in your puzzle compartment. I am into one up to my eyebrows. I had no intentions of it at first, but started it out of curiosity, and now I have gone the whole way. There sure is fun and fascination in it. Suppose I could find something better to do with my time, but one has to have a certain amount of recreation of some sort. That is mine for the present.

Please excuse my collection of stationery, Mary, but seemed I was all out.

—"ZOE."

Nice to hear from you, Zoe, and such a decidedly cheerful letter is especially welcome. I have sent the seeds.

BETTER UNDERSTANDING

Dear Mary Hastings and Housewife friends:

I can not begin to tell how I enjoy the letters in the page. I know I can never write like most of them do. I always read the page and so does my husband. He will be reading away and call to me, "Say this recipe sounds good, why don't you try it"—and up he jumps and cuts it right out. He is one man who enjoys the page any way. My what a wonderful work some of the housewives are doing sending the bales and boxes up North. Also Just Reilly. I certainly think she deserves a hearty vote of thanks. How I would like to have helped but what I could spare had many places near home. Our W.I. is just now making a layette for a needy mother. My, I think it is just wonderful how everyone tries to help each other. It seems to me that the hard times have brought a better understanding and a kindlier spirit to so many. I don't know that I have any help to offer this time. I intended to write where help on bread making was asked but see so many good letters sent in. I bake for a family of 8 so I get plenty of practice. How did everyone like the snow storm? Just now its mostly mud and water around there.

As it will soon be house cleaning and garden time, wonder could I make some exchanges? I have lots of shrubs and know where clothing is needed and everyone will soon be going through closets to housecleaning I must close or Mary will say, "Never come again." I will use as a pen-name what one sister-in-law used to call me when I had taken her favorite brother away from home. We lived just across the road. She would come running in and call "Mary Sunshine." Now she is living almost across the continent from me.

Mary Sushine.

Exchanges

Shrubs of Japonica, Syringa, white and purple lilacs, also some others whose name I do not know — for clothes. Particulars on request.

Dear Mary Hastings, — Will you kindly forward enclosed letter on to Utah Trail, as she wishes me to write to her? Now the spring is here I will have some very nice shrubs to offer for exchange, as I expect to move this month some time as the place is sold. I will have three rose bushes (I gave $1.50 per root for these two years ago), two bridal wreath shrubs, and two ogher shrubs with a red bloom. Would exchange for anything useful. Thanking you for the past favors. Yours as ever,

Mama's Pal.

Dear Mary,—Will you please send me double sunflower seed and regal lily seed. You will find enclosed a stamped envelope. Thanking you very kindly. Kathryn.

Hope you received the seeds safely, Kathryn.

Dear Mary Hastings,—I am returning patterns, and maps thanks for them. Sorry to have kept them so long; but the housewives will soon be more interested in gardening than quilt-making. Best of luck to all.

Tansy Patch.

Quite all right, Tansy Patch.

THE RECIPE BOX

MR. AND MRS. TAYLOR MARRIED 55 YEARS

Life-Long Liberal And Wife Are Honored

Belmont, April 11—Mr. and Mrs. Angus Taylor, Talbot Road, Elgin County, former residents of South Dorchester township were banqueted at the home of their granddaughter, Mrs. Angus Cameron and Mr. Cameron, West Elgin, yesterday. Guests numbering 30 were served with a chicken dinner at 1 o'clock, Florence Shackleton and Angus Taylor were married at Mount Salem, April 9th, 1879.

Mr. Taylor is a pioneer stockman of the County and has been a lifelong Liberal in politics. Both are enjoying comparatively good health at the ages of 82 and 72 respectively. They have one son, Frank, at home, two daughters, Cora, R.N. of Hamilton; Mrs. Mary Malone of Dutton; two grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Many beautiful gifts were received by the couple from the guests in attendance, those from Belmont including, Mr. and Mrs. Archie A. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Taylor and family. During the afternoon, Rev. and Mrs. Brown of Dutton called, when photos were taken of the family gathering and of the bride and groom of fifty-five years ago.

Hungarians Wed In Lovely Double Service

Grooms Are Brothers—Leamington Church Scene Of Ceremony

A double wedding of interest to a host of friends in two countries was solemnized on Sunday in the Leamington United Church, when Miss Margaret Irene Bonyal of Leamington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Bonyal, formerly of Hungary, became the bride of John Kuli; and Miss Mary Sepejak of Harrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aleck Sepejak, also of Hungary, became the bride of Mr. Steve Bernie Kuli. John and Steve Berni Kuli are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kuli of Hungary. Rev. T. W. Hazlewood officiated at the double ceremony before the church altar.

The youthful brides were charming in the latest of Canadian bridal attire, with some added touches from the home land, and the wedding service was carried out according to Canadian custom. The official witnesses of the ceremonies were Betrik Dobsi, Gabor Petrik, Joseph Kuli and Mike Yianek, while a number of friends of the bridal parties along with their new friends of this land were present. The bridal couples, after the honeymoon, will reside in Leamington.

CHOIR AND ORCHESTRA HEARD IN CONCERT

The choir and orchestra of Elmwood avenue Presbyterian church were heard last night and Tuesday evening in an interesting concert program given under the direction of Luther Jackson, A.T.C.M., the organist.

Miss Hazel Taylor and Clifford Hall, readers assisted and the program also included a harp solo by Leonard Allen.

Choir and orchestra numbers included King Cotton March, Sousa, Garibaldi March by Costa; two old English chorales and the Gloria from Mozart's 12th Mass Schubert's serenade and many others.

LUTHERAN L. A.

Hanover, April 11.—Mrs. Theodore Weichman very cordially greeted members of the Brant Lutheran Ladies' Aid for their April meeting. Mrs. H. Wedow presided ,with scripture and prayer conducted by Mrs. Ed. Hasse and Rev. E. Howald. Readings were presented by Mrs. F. Zimmerman and Mrs. A. Hasse. "What Would I Do If I Were a Millionaire" proved a stirring contest subject.

Battle

Kincardine, April 11. — The last of a series of inter-church young people's meetigs was held in Knox Presbyterian Church, with over three hundred present from the local Anglican, United and Presbyterian Churches and from Knox Church, Tiverton. Orville Taylor presided over the meeting, a feature of which was three excellent papers by members of the Anglican society, who with the United group provided the program.

The gathering was welcomed by Angus MacLeod of Knox Church, and Harold Peterson of the Anglican group conducted devottional exercises. Mrs. E. Rowe taking the topic spoke on the subject of peace, stressing the need for it. The topic was timely as it was the 17th anniversary of the Battle of Vimy Ridge.

Requirements of a good Canadian were outlined by Miss Mabel Stringer in an interesting paper. She listed knowledge of the country, respect of the flag, energy in good causes and tolerance to others as the outstanding needs.

Floyd Weick gave a paper on hockey, dealing with the game from its earliest history up to the present and pointed out that Canada had never been bested in this sport.

Addresses were given by Rev. A. McIvor and John McFayden, Tiverton; Rev. W. H. Hartley and Rev. W. B. Craw. Other numbers included violin selections by C. V. Henry, Mrs. Henry accompanist; piano duet, Doris Ellenton, Dorothy Peterson; guitar duet, Jessie Bowers, Marjorie Leask, reading, Mrs. A. Wright; piano solos, Mrs. Ted Johnston; skit by United ycung people, games by Harold Barranger and refreshments served by the Knox group.

AYLMER CLUB

Aylmer, April 11—The regular monthly meeting of the Aylmer School and Home Club was held in the Kindergarten room at the Public School last night and was well attended, Mrs. J. D. Leeson, the president, presided. The speaker for the evening was Dr. J. B. Clark who gave a most interesting Address on "The Health and Care of the Teeth During the Public School age. Community singing was also enjoyed. The president, Mrs. Leeson, will give a report of the O. E. A. held in Toronto last week, and to which she was a delegate, at the meeting next month.

Entre Nous

By M. L. S.

SOMEONE tells us in great glee that their crocuses are out. Of course we hate to be the "that's nothing" type, but our own were showing their golden heads as long ago as last Saturday. We've seen very few others however, so we feel quite smart.

In the window of quite a fashionable establishment in town the other evening, was a gorgeous green chapeau. It was just the sort Milady could wear with the very smartest of costumes. It was trimmed with wide wing spread ornament across the front. But save us, . . . closer examination, so we are told, revealed that the 'ornament' was nothing else but a real live BAT. Yes indeed!

* * *

A certain boy in town we are told beats everything for consistency. He goes around as a rule with a girl named Jean (not really of course) but 'Jean' is as good a name as any other for this purpose. If this young woman is previously engaged, he looks up his little black book and calls Jean No 2, and as we're alive it's perfectly true that his third choice also has 'Jean' for a first name. He certainly won't be caught calling one girl by another's name at any rate. The height of wisdom, we call it.

Branch Arranges Summer Meeting

Courtright And Moore Centre Groups To Join For May 10

Mooretown, April 11. — The April meeting of the Moore Centre Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. Johnston with an attendance of 18 members and 21 visitors. Miss Jennie Finlayson, presided assisted by Miss Tena Long, Secretary. The Moore Centre Branch will meet with the Courtright Branch on May 10th at Courtright when the summer departmental speaker will address the meeting.

Money was advanced to the relief committee for work and chairs are being purchased for the Township Hall, where the Institute hold occasional meetings and entertainments. The allocation of 10c per member was voted for the Federation fund.

Miss Marie Gray read a splendid paper prepared by Mrs. Ed. Curran on "Institute work in the north", Small Branches not only keep up the work in their locality but assist materially in other places by donations to Churches for relief work.

Misses Mabel Boothe and Geraldine Arnold sang several selections, accompanied with their violin music. Mrs. Garbutt told amusing stories and community singing was enjoyed. At the close of the meeting tea was served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. Green, when the election of officers will be held.

HARRIET NEWKIRK I.O.D.E.

Lambeth, April 11:—Chocolate bars and candy composed the articles of a shower held by the Harriet Newkirk Chapter I.O.D.E. last evening for the Northern School car. The event was held at the home of Miss Alice Colwell and supper was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. E. Hicks.

Patrick Bartholomew Kellenhen, eighteen months old, of New York, pictured aboard the S. S. Washington a few days ago after visiting his grandparents in Ireland. He was cared for by a stewardess.

NILESTOWN Y. P. S. STAGES POPULAR PLAY

A three act comedy, "Silas Smidge From Turnip Ridge," was presented in Glanworth I. O. O. F. Hall by the Nilestown Young People recently. The cast consisted of Misses Kae Rose, Gertrude Hume, Doris Wright, Edna Rawlings, Edith Webster and Margaret Jackson, Mrs. J. H. Fishback, and Messrs. Max McFarlan, George Wright, Joe Kernohan, Joe Webster, Earl Knott and Harley Roulston.

By popular demand the play is being repeated in Nilestown Masonic Hall on Friday evening, April 13th, and will be followed by a dance.

Novel Program Held At Lambeth

Lambeth, April 11.—An Old Boys' and Girls' reunion held in the form of a day at school, constituted the program of the Lambeth Y. P. S. held in the schoolroom last evening, with Henry Edgar as the schoolmaster in charge.

Opening devotional exercises were conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Smale who read the story of "Christ and the Rich Young Ruler" and gave a talk on "Seeking Life". Lessons for the morning session consisted of hygiene and spelling which were conducted by Annie Sadler in a novel manner. Recess and noon periods were occupied with games under the direction of Miss Sadler. A history period was conducted by Henry Edgar who called for recitations in ancient, mediaeval and modern history. Those responding were former presidents in the society, John Currie, Aaron Sadler, Mrs. W.L. Pack, Mrs. B. Holtby, Miss F. Mickleborough and the present president Miss Annie Swiston. Mrs. H. Thornlcroft wearing a pirate costume sang "The Spanish Main" and Mrs. W. L. Pack also sang a solo. Accompanists were Miss Bessie Dunbar and Miss F. Mickleborough. A round of games and refreshments brought the evening to a close.

NEEDS OF CRIPPLED CHILDREN DISCUSSED

Seaforth, April 11—An interesting meeting of the Home and School Association was held, in connection with the Ontario Crippled Children's Week, in the Seaforth Collegiate Institute. Mrs. F. J. Bechely presided. A special feature of the evening was an address by Dr. F. J. Burrows, president of the Seaforth Lion's Club, which has been doing a splendid work among crippled children in this district. Dr. F. J. Bechely, chairman of the Lion's crippled children's activities reviewed the work done by the Seaforth club. Miss Marion Bell, of the Seaforth Collegiate Staff, also gave a delightful talk on the Cathedrals of England and Miss Roy Anderson favored with a piano solo.

Club

AT CRONYN HALL

Woman's Association Sponsors First Showing Of Latest Play

"Rumpelstitzkin," one of the best loved stories of childhood and one of the fantastic creations of Grimm, was presented for the first time yesterday afternoon by the Junior Club Marionettes before the admiring eyes of a large number of children and adults in Cronyn Hall. The "show" was given under the auspices of the Woman's Association of St. Paul's Cathedral of which Mrs. John A. Ross is president.

The story was dramatized by the Junior Club members into three fascinating acts under the direction of Miss Margaret Glass whose dramatic abilities are well-known to Londoners. Miss Kay Givins, convener of marionettes for the Junior Club, was in charge of the general arrangements for the production.

Besides the writing of the play from several versions of the old story by Miss Glass and Miss Kathleen Wilson the players, their costumes and scenery were made by the other members of the club.

Tower Room

The first act was set in the tower room where the miller's beautiful daughter had been placed by her captor to spin straw into gold. Rumpelstitzkin, the grotesque little dwarf, appeared and in return for a very ambiguous promise, assisted her, by magic, to accomplish the task which made her queen. In the second act the royal christening took place and Rumpelstitzkin appeared to demand his reward, the royal baby. However he agreed to waive the promise if the queen could discover his name. The final act was in two scenes, the first in the wood where Feste, the queen's messenger, found out Rumpelstitzkin's secret and the second, in the queen's boudoir.

The part of the king was played by Mrs. Lloyd Sipherd; the maiden and queen, Mrs. Harold Smith; Rumpelstitzkin, Miss Betty Evans; the court jester, Feste, Miss K. Givins.

Clowns Perform

Following the play Mrs. Sipherd's clowns did some clever stunts, with the assistance of Miss Evans and Miss Givins and the story, "The Fairy and the Doll" was also presented by Mrs. Sipherd and Mrs. Smith.

AT TILLBURY A SUCCESS

Tilbury, April 11.—The newly organized Laurier Club launched its activities Monday evening with a highly successful dance in the Mulcahy Block, attracting an attendance of nearly 200. An appreciable number were visitors from outside points, who were affiliated with other Laurier Clubs and Twentieth Century Clubs. Among the distinguished guests was Miss Odette Lapointe of Quebec, president of the Women's Twentieth Century Club, who was introduced to the gathering by E. G. Odette of this town.

Miss Margaret Glass made Feste; Miss K. Givins, the queen; Miss Kitty Gillespie, the miller's daughter; Miss Kathleen Wilson, the king and Miss Ruth Wilson, "Rumpelstitzkin".

Between acts Miss Audrey Braden favored with piano numbers.

Before the "show" the Woman's Association served tea and held a sale of "white elephants" and home-cooking. Mrs. Beatrice Boucher, Mrs. Charles Hunt, Mrs. John Hunt, Mrs. Arthur Gleason, Mrs. A. R. Douglas and Miss Macbeth were in charge of the tea-room. The tea-table was centred with spring flowers in a silver bowl and lighted with variegated candles. Those pouring included Mrs. J. D. Isaacs, Mrs. John Hunt, Mrs. McCracken, Miss Macbeth and Mrs. C. A. Seager.

The treasurers at the doors were Mrs. T. H. Carling, Miss Emily Knott and Mrs. McClary Moore. The "white elephant" sale was conducted by Mrs. W. J. Brown, Mrs. A. B. Greer, Mrs. W. R. Sproule and Mrs. George Leith was convened by Mrs. F. W. Fairbridge. The table of home-cooking combe, Mrs. Lionel Eliot and Mrs. Fitzgerald.

MRS. J. J. MCWILLIAM SPEAKS AT DORCHESTER

The Easter Thankoffering meeting of the Dorchester United Church was held in the Church Parlours on Tuesday afternoon the President Mrs. R. W. Craw in charge. Mrs. Dr. James read the devotional leaflet and an Easter reading was given by Mrs. Vivian Woods. Miss Nellie Perinegar favoured with a vocal solo. Mrs. Craw introduced the guest speaker Mrs. J. J. McWilliam, Presbyterial President of the W.M.S. of London who gave a very inspirational Easter message. The meeting closed with praying after which Mrs. Bowlby and her group served refreshments.

MR. KING'S LEAD

Mackenzie King's interest in national artistic development is well known to his fellow-citizens of Ottawa. They will therefore not be surprised at his advocacy of the building of a national theater in Ottawa as part of the public works program about to be embarked upon. Those from outside the city who heard him speak at the Little Theater on Friday may have thought that Mr. King's words were designed merely to suit the occasion, but they can be assured that a national theater as part of a greater Ottawa has long been close to his heart.

Of course, a national theater in Canada will eventually come. How soon, depends largely upon public opinion and the education of those, as Mr. King put it, who have been educated as well as those who have not. If successive governments have failed to lend financial support to a playhouse of the people, it is not wholly because they have been composed of statesmen who believed art is the least essential element in public life. Partly, it is because the public itself has been so unfailingly apathetic.

But the drama festival movement, so vigorous and promising after only a brief year's existence, has come to put a new complexion upon the matter. Today, in scores of centers, amateur and community theatricals are being pursued with unbounded hope and earnestness. Make no mistake—it will be a long time yet before there is a spontaneous demand for an organized national theater. But the beginnings are here, and they are expanding swiftly. In the meantime, it can be said that the prime minister who initiates a national theater will earn the gratitude of those who come immediately after this generation if not of the generation of today.

ABOUT A NATIONAL THEATRE.

In a very happy little speech before the Dominion Drama Festival, Mr. MACKENZIE KING again broached the idea of a national theatre. What he has in mind, of course, is a theatre subsidized and encouraged by the state, the idea being to nurture and develop that cultural side of the nation which is represented by the drama.

In a day when we seem to be subsidizing everything else, we might go a lot farther and fare worse. Moreover, this is not a bad time to have it emphasized that while economics are important there are other things in life that are important, too. So while the present may not be the precise moment—the treasury being somewhat bare—to launch out with a national theatre, the idea should not be put away. In the Irish Free State—not to go outside the British Empire—they subsidize the Abbey Theatre in Dublin, and what the Abbey Theatre has meant to Ireland and to the Irish Renaissance can hardly be over-estimated. Those who have seen the Abbey Players must realize what it has meant to the Irish drama.

So we trust Mr. KING will keep up his good work. Mr. BENNETT, we feel sure, must agree with him, his views but qualified by the fact that he happens to be sitting on the treasury benches.

KING IN FAVOR NATIONAL SEAT FOR THEATRE

Vancouver Presentation Drama Festival Feature Last Evening.

TWO OTHER PLAYS ALSO GIVEN PRAISE

Fifth Session Is One of Most Interesting So Far.

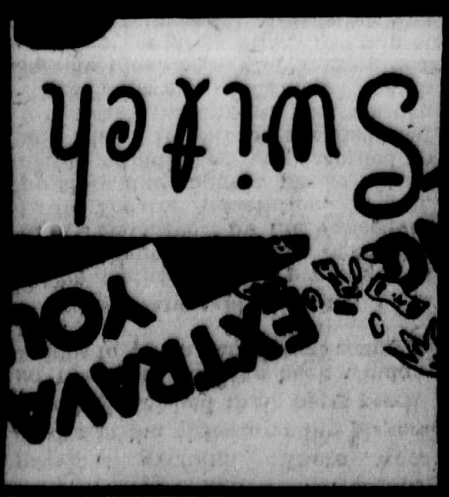
Last night's session, the fifth of the Dominion Drama Festival, was one of the most interesting so far witnessed. There was an air of cumulative interest as the competition neared its final stages.

The theatre was again crowded, in fact more crowded than on any previous evening. There were chairs in the aisles and the players who had finished their parts perched themselves on the back window ledges to watch their rival competitors.

Is Feature of Evening.

The feature of the evening was the brilliant presentation of "Elizabeth The Queen," by the Vancouver Little Theatre Association. It won, possibly, the highest praise of the astute adjudicator yet accorded to any play. It will be recalled that last year's playing of the "Garden of Eden," scene of Bernard Shaw's famous play, by a Vancouver group won not only mention by Rupert Harvey in the final awards but also the enthusiastic endorsation of all those who saw it. Last night's effort was almost as brilliant and brought the instant and continuous appreciation of the big audience.

The two other plays presented, both of which won the adjudicator's good-will, tempered by that gentle and acute criticism which has come to be associated with Mr. Grein, were J. M. Barrie's brilliant social and psychological curtain-raiser, "Half An Hour," excellently presented by the London Drama League, and "Submerged," another tense one-act effort in the melodramatic metier, which received fine treatment by the Queen's University Dramatic Guild.



Favors National Theatre.

Something beyond the ordinary polite compliments of the nightly speaker selected to introduce Mr. Grein each session of the festival came from Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, who was greeted with applause. He said he was very much in favor of a national theatre as something of extraordinary value for the people of Canada.

Mr. King caused a laugh when he advised the audience to take advantage of the appearance of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett at the festival tonight to impress upon him the desirability for making some such provision. In this way both the unemployed and the fine arts might be assisted.

"I might add," remarked the Liberal leader, amid applause, "that if the Prime Minister does something along these lines, he will have

Sunday playing by children on playgrounds of Ottawa Public Schools having become a serious nuisance in some areas, action to stop the practice is being considered by the school board.

Mrs. W. Cowling Gullock, chairman of the board, introduced the matter at last night's meeting of the finance committee. She said that complaints were being received with regard to playgrounds like Osgoode and York streets. In the former case the playground was being used by children not in attendance at the school, though another playground nearby was not used by them on Sundays.

Attention of the police likely will be called to the matter, in order to stop complaints of adjoining residents.

which he suffered at the time of the fire in his home on Delaware avenue last Winter.

While most of his time will be devoted to private affairs in the future, Mr. Gleeson will still be interested in the paving business. Recently in association with J. F. Driscoll, of Buffalo, N.Y., he acquired sole control of Standard Paving, Incorporated, a New York State company.

the very hearty support of the Leader of the Opposition."

"SUBMERGED."

The first play was "Submerged," by H. Stuart Cottman and Le Vergne Shaw, presented by the Queen's University Dramatic Guild and directed by Elsie Reed and W. P. Wilgar, Jr.

Scene: The fore compartment in a wrecked and submerged submarine.

The cast was as follows: Dunn, by John Sutherland; Shaw, by Lorne Green; Brice, by Arthur Sutherland; MacAndrews, by Donald Lapp; Nabb, by George Ault; Jorgson, by Gerald Chernoff.

This intensely thrilling episode of the menace of the seas faced by those who "go down to the sea in ships" in the form of submarines shows the crew gathered together in the fore control and told by their commander that they face certain death. The commander says he will shoot himself to the surface in a submarine tube, although it means certain death, and his dead body, with a bottle strapped to it containing the location of the submarine will mean rescue for his comrades. These associates refuse to let him undertake the sacrifice, and the decision is made to draw cards to see which one must take the torpedo route.

The man who draws the highest card and who has shown most apparent terror from the beginning, reveals himself a craven, and refuses to go. His place is taken by one of the other members of the crew, the craven is locked in one of the compartments (the one on which the scene is shown) the others go out and the story concludes with the hopeless screaming and despair of the man who could not face death.

To this play Mr. Grein had a fairly favorable reaction, but he stated the audibility of some of the characters was not good and it handicapped the story as a whole. They did not quite express enough the sense of utter hopelessness and certain death, but there was manifest in all a strong desire to lose their identities in the roles portrayed. Mr. Grein paid a special tribute to the actor taking the part of the craven, and he said that he made the audience think how they would individually face such a situation.

"HALF AN HOUR."

The second offering of the evening was "Half an Hour," by Sir James M. Barrie. It was presented by the London Drama League and directed by Catherine McC. Brickenden and Philip Morris.

Scene I: A room in Garson's house.

Scene II: Hugh Paton's lodgings.

Scene III: Same as Scene I.

The cast was as follows: Richard Garson, by Philip Morris; Lady Lillian, his wife, by Catherine McC. Brickenden; Hugh Paton, by J. B. Humphrey; Susie, by Jean Barbour; Dr. Brody, by H. W. Auden; Withers, by H. C. Lecky; Mrs. Redding, by Lorraine M. Smith; Mr. Redding, by Arthur Leggatt.

This is another tragedy, but a human story of what may happen in any of a hundred homes. It is the story of Lady Lillian, the wife of Richard Garson, a materialistic bully, who has, as he informs her, purchased his wife for £20,000. She is unhappy, and after a violent scene, decides to leave him for a man whom she loves. She does so, but the man whom she turns to is killed a few minutes after their meeting when he goes out to call a cab to take her to the station. The final scene shows her return to the home of her husband, who has not discovered her departure.

"ELIZABETH THE QUEEN."

The concluding contribution was "Elizabeth The Queen," by Maxwell Anderson, Act III.

It was presented by the Vancouver Little Theatre Association and directed by Frank Johnstone.

Scene: The Queen's apartment in the Tower of London, where Essex awaits his execution for treason.

The cast was as follows: The court Jester, by Guy Glover; Penelope Gray by Mona Brown; Queen Elizabeth by Joan Miller; Sir Robert Cecil by G. F. Scott; Lord Essex by Bill Buckingham.

The story of this play takes place shortly before the execution of Essex, reputed to be the Queen's lover. Elizabeth seeks consolation as the hour approaches from a faithful lady-in-waiting, who tells her that Essex loves her for herself alone, and not for the power he achieved by his association with the Sovereign. Overcome by her real love for the doomed nobleman, she orders Cecil to bring the prisoner from the Tower. In a splendid episode both confess their love, but Essex convinces the Sovereign that his pardon at this stage will mean revolution, her own downfall, and the possible ruin of the state. Placing duty before love, she lets him go to his doom.

The adjudicator's heart was won, as was very apparent to the audience, by this moving little tragedy. It was, he said, the success of the evening, and the playing of the role of Queen Elizabeth was "a wonderful performance." This actress did an extraordinary thing in lifting the love scene with a man about to have his head shaved off to the sublime. She showed the real woman behind the Queen and at the same time never lost that grim responsibility which makes "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

The part of Essex also deeply impressed the adjudicator, and he characterized it as "so simply noble." The other characters were also adequately and sympathetically undertaken. The whole performance reflected particular credit to those who had crossed a continent to take part in the Dominion Drama Festival.

Two Performances Today.

Today, the final day of the festival, there will be two performances. The plays will be as follows:

Matinee: "All on a Summer's Day," by Martha Allan, presented by the Montreal Repertory Theatre; "Lonesome-Like," by Harold Brighouse, the Selkirk Little Theatre, Manitoba; "Waterloo," by Conan Doyle, the Saint John Players' Club, N.B.

Evening: "Michael," by Miles Malleson, Toronto Hart House Theatre, group number three; "Derelict," by E. J. Thorlakson, the University of Alberta Dramatic Club; "The Devil Among the Skins," by Ernest Goodwin, the Toronto Masquers.

Mr. Grein stated that he would give his decisions on the final awards tonight.

Today, the final day of the festival, there will be two performances. The plays will be as follows:

Matinee: "All on a Summer's Day," by Martha Allan, presented by the Montreal Repertory Theatre; "Lonesome-Like," by Harold Brighouse, the Selkirk Little Theatre, Manitoba; "Waterloo," by Conan Doyle, the Saint John Players' Club, N.B.

Evening: "Michael," by Miles Malleson, Toronto Hart House Theatre, group number three; "Derelict," by E. J. Thorlakson, the University of Alberta Dramatic Club; "The Devil Among the Skins," by Ernest Goodwin, the Toronto Masquers.

Mr. Grein stated that he would give his decisions on the final awards tonight. R.B.F.

Build National Theater As One Relief Project

Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King Suggests Building to House National Theater, Opera and Art Gallery.

Would Support Such Move If Made By Govt.

Enthusiastic Applause For This Proposal Advanced At Drama Festival.

That provision be made by the government of the day for the erection of a building to house a national theater, opera and art gallery, was the suggestion of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, who was the guest speaker at the Dominion Drama Festival last evening.

"I suggest that you take advantage of the appearance of the Prime Minister here tomorrow night and impress upon him the desirability of including such a building in the government's program of public works for the relief of unemployment," said Mr. King.

Mr. King, who was introduced by Col. Henry Osborne, said that he wished to express a word of approval to His Excellency for having made the Dominion Drama Festival possible. Great changes were taking place in the social order and social justice and the guarantee of peace would have to be the result of education on the part of those who had it or believed they had it.

Best Use of Leisure.

It was inevitable, he said, with the development of machinery that the hours of labor would become shorter and there must be provision for filling the hours of leisure or unemployment. How better could the hours of leisure be filled than by recreation of the true kind, which would bring out latent talents. Drama furnished a fine medium for bringing out what was best and finest in the community.

"I hope," said Mr. King, "that drama will not only be national but international. Art is the common teacher and heritage of mankind."

Such competition, he thought, would develop a greater understanding between the nations competing. That, however, was for the future. At present the development of national drama was the end to be attained. To assist this and fine arts generally, Canada should have a national theater and national opera.

Mr. King was applauded with enthusiasm.

While he might not agree with Mr. Bennett on matters of national policy, said Mr. King, the Prime Minister, if he did something along those lines, would be assured of the very hearty support and co-operation of the leader of the opposition.

Why I think Little Theatre Movement Should be Supported, and Our Thanks Due to His Excellency for promoting Competition:

(1) Social Order of World Undergoing Change -

We all trust that out of it will come more in way of social justice and wider and surer guarantee of world peace. If that is to be, there is need of education to meet present day problems

Drama holds up a mirror to life, and gives us all a chance to see the problems which present themselves to all classes.

"The Play's the thing to touch the conscience of the King" it is conscience of society that needs touching today; whether society in narrow sense of privileged, softer, petted members of the community, or large meaning of the community broadly considered.

If to be recovered, and forces that are working for disorder rather than peace held in check, it will be by portraying these forces and the retribution and nemesis which follow wrong conduct whether of individuals or nations.

(2) Uneducated Need Educating, Problem of Leisure, of Unemployment, of shorter working hours -

How is spare time to be employed - not always with work, but with recreation that will be re-creation;

Those employed in industry dealing with machines and material forces need this kind of recreation more than those whose occupations relate to the things of the mind and the spirit - professional classes, leisure classes, etc.

Social settlements have given lead in this. I recall when living at Hull House in Chicago - nearly 40 years ago - the part the stage played in my parties, and also when a year or two later on at the Passmore Edwards Settlement in London, England; how largely the drama was used to entertain, but also to educate, bring out the latent talents and abilities of all classes - contributions to culture which flow from other lands, and bring with them what has survived of all that is best in the traditions of other civilizations.

In Canada we have many sources from which to draw for a fuller national life.

(3) Should like to see Competition which is now National become International:

Burke said "Justice is the common concern of mankind";

It ought to be said "art is the common heritage and teacher";

An international drama would be a real factor for world peace.

(4) Hope that its National Value will continue to find full Recognition as well as Expression - Department of Fine Arts:

Believe time has come in Canada in these days when so much is being said of extension of state functions and powers, that we might consider adding to our departments of state, federal or provincial, that of a Department of the Fine Arts, to manage art on its many sides, sculpture, painting, music, literature, opera, the drama.

A National Art Gallery we already have, though it needs a more appropriate home. A national opera and a National Theatre we ought also to have, and I hope some day we will have, with an appropriate home of its own.

The Prime Minister is planning an extensive programme of public works as a means of providing work for the unemployed. He is to speak here tomorrow night.

Might I suggest that it might be an opportune moment for you to prefer a request for consideration of the programme including one or more of the projects named. Should you do so, you may assure him in advance that, in any such step, he will have the cordial support of the official opposition in the House of Commons, ~~not~~particularly if the project is so conceived as to add a note of further advancement to the capital of Canada.

Government Seen Emulating Fascism By Mackenzie King

D50145

More Than a Thousand Followers Hear Leader at 21st Anniversary Banquet of Toronto Women's Liberal Association --- Leader Sees Gradual Development Toward Dictatorship in Ottawa

POWERS ASSUMED IN GUISE OF NEED

That there is a strong tendency on the part of the Conservative Government at Ottawa to emulate the acts of Fascist Governments in certain countries in Europe; that there has been a gradual development at Ottawa toward a dictatorship; that, by the taking on by the Government of blanket powers of finance and legislation, the public mind has for over four years been trained to accept principles of socialism, and that, by the acts of the Government, economic and political foundations have been rudely shaken, were but some of the statements flung out last night by Right Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, speaking before over 1,000 staunch Liberals, gathered at the Royal York Hotel, last night, at the twenty-first anniversary banquet staged to mark the birthday of the Toronto Women's Liberal Association.

The taking on of the wide powers Mr. King asserted, started under the guise of emergency measures required by virtue of the depression. They were taken on over four years ago and are still in force—measures which would never have been permitted had not the public mind been under a process of training.

Marketing Act Rapped.

After declaring that the act of the Government in securing blank cheque rights for unemployment expenditures had been one of the most flagrant examples of the principles of Fascism, Mr. King drew attention to the proposed Marketing Act. This, he maintained, if sanctioned by Parliament, would make the laws of the land not some statute sanctioned by Parliament, but laws drawn up by disinterested groups of producers and marketers. He referred to a clause in the proposed act which gave the right to certain groups in various localities to set prices and regulate production and marketing and to make a violation of these proposed regulations subject to fine or imprisonment—a direct contradiction, he said, to an edict of the Magna Carta, whereby no freeman could be imprisoned unless he violated a statute of Parliament.

Communism Outlined.

Mr. Kinig spent some time outlining his version of Communism as it exists in Russia and Fascism as existing in Italy and other European countries. He declared that the C.C.F. Party in the House of Commons advocated some of the very fundamentals of Fascism.

The speaker declared that since the Government had voted itself the right to dip into the public Treasury to any extent for unemployment matters, $110,000,000 has been spent in cash; loans of $50,000,000 made to Provinces and private corporations; guarantees of $110,000,000 to banks and other huge amounts guaranteed to the C.P.R. and Newfoundland.

"All we have asked," declared Mr. King, "is that the principles of responsible government be preserved; that the Government present its requirements of finance and legislation."

Mr. King struck hard at the action of the Government in making the unemployment expenditures without having such expenditures audited by the Auditor-General. He declared that the latter has now presented a report pointing out that thousands of dollars have been wasted. "I wonder," said Mr. King, "if the money is being used to relieve unemployment or used to further the political ends of the party."

The Federal Liberal Leader then reiterated a former statement that, if the Liberal Party is returned to power at Ottawa in the next general election, he pledges that matters of unemployment relief will be placed under a National Commission composed of authorities of all branches of activity, whose duty it will be to study the matter and administer the funds—all under the sanction of Parliament and with every expenditure audited by the Auditor-General.

The chair was occupied by the President, Mrs. Daniel Strachan. Senator Cairine Wilson and Mrs. Mitchell Hepburn addressed the banqueters briefly, both stressing the important place women can play in the political life of the country.

Liberal Women Close Sessions at Toronto

Dominion-wide Card Party On Leader's Birthday.

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, April 25.—Toronto was chosen as the scene of next year's annual convention when the Ontario Women's Liberal Association concluded its sessions here today.

Mrs. G. G. Sutherland of Guelph was chosen social convener, and Miss F. Sexton of St. Catharines, convener of legislation. Miss Annabelle Cameron of Stouffville was named corresponding secretary, and Mrs. M. MacPherson of Brantford was selected as her assistant.

Mrs. Mitchell F. Hepburn, wife of the Ontario Liberal leader, is honorary president of the association, and Miss G. Rankin of Stratford, honorary vice-president. A resolution was passed today favoring a Dominion-wide card party to celebrate the birthday on December 17 of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion Liberal leader.

MOUSE INTERRUPTS KING AND REDUCES AUDIENCE

Liberal Women Scream and Some Make Hurried Exits, While Liberal Leader Sees Start of "Reign of Terror"

No one could ever believe that the dignified silence which prevailed in a downtown hotel last night could be rudely broken as more than 1,000 staunch Liberals, attending the twenty-first anniversary party of the Toronto Women's Liberal Association, listened intently to a scholarly address by the Right Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King.

But it happened. At first there was a ruffle of excitement among the many ladies at the head table. This quieted down, with Mr. King merely giving a sidelong glance and wondering if he had made a "faux pas."

Then from the main body of the banquet hall came a scream. Mr. King looked a bit bewildered. More muffled screams broke out, and several ladies gathered their skirts and made a hasty exit.

A tiny mouse was the sole cause for the excitement—a harmless little rodent, who apparently got his signals mixed, and made a wrong turn through the countless corridors. He climbed up tthe heavy curtains at the rear of the head table first and then on to the banquet floor, trying vainly to seek the exit.

Mrs. Mitchell Hepburn whispered the trouble to Mr. King. He smiled and said: "Maybe the reign of terror is already here."

When last seen the mouse came dangerously near running up the trouser leg of Sam Factor, M.P.

The great gathering closed with the singing of the Maple Leaf, and it is not known yet whether or not the mouse survived the surge for the door.

KING SEES FASCISM POSSIBLE FATE HERE

Bennett Rule Condoned by C.C.F., Threatens Canada's Institutions, He Claims

COMMONS IGNORED

Large Gathering Attends Birthday of Women's Liberal Association

Canada in the throes of a political revolution, with Fascist developments beginning to manifest themselves in many quarters as a direct result of the efforts of the Bennett government, condoned by the C.C.F., was pictured by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in an address last night at the twenty-first birthday celebration of the Toronto Women's Liberal association in the Royal York hotel.

Mr. King expressed fear that unless steps are taken to check this tide of revolution, or at least turn it in the right direction, the people will become so accustomed to delegating powers of government to only a few that a Fascist state will be the ultimate fate of Canada.

C.C.F. Like Communism

Mr. King reviewed the growth of Communism in Russia and Fascism in other European countries. Both of these political movements, he stated, depend on force for their existence. He then turned to movements of a similar nature in Canada, first the C.C.F., which, he said, proposes that the state should take over and manage those natural resources, the development of which to a large extent has been left in the hands of private industry.

"If it has so much in its favor, why have we had to wait until 1934 before we get an expression of it?" asked Mr. King. "It would substitute political managers for industrial managers. It must back up its power by force and that is where socialism tends towards Communism.

"There is a tendency in the Conservative party, as it exists under its present leader, toward that form of government which exists in Fascist countries. We are gradually developing a dictatorship in this country. We are getting away from parliamentary institutions and placing power in the hands of one man. The measures that have been introduced under the score of an emergency are still on the statute books, because the public mind is being educated to such a form of government.

"So far as unemployment is concerned, all that has been done in the way of solving the problem is to spend public money. There has been no great, ordered, systematic scheme. Between 1920 and 1930 the amount spent on unemployment did not come to $2,000,000. In the first session of the present parliament, Mr. Bennett asked for $20,000,000 to spend in six months. In the next session he asked for a blank cheque," he said.

"The public mind is becoming accustomed to taking these vast sums out of the public treasury even though there have been no parliamentary appropriations," he said. "The government has taken into its hands the right to legislate under the guise of peace, order and good government. Do you see how close that comes to Fascism?"

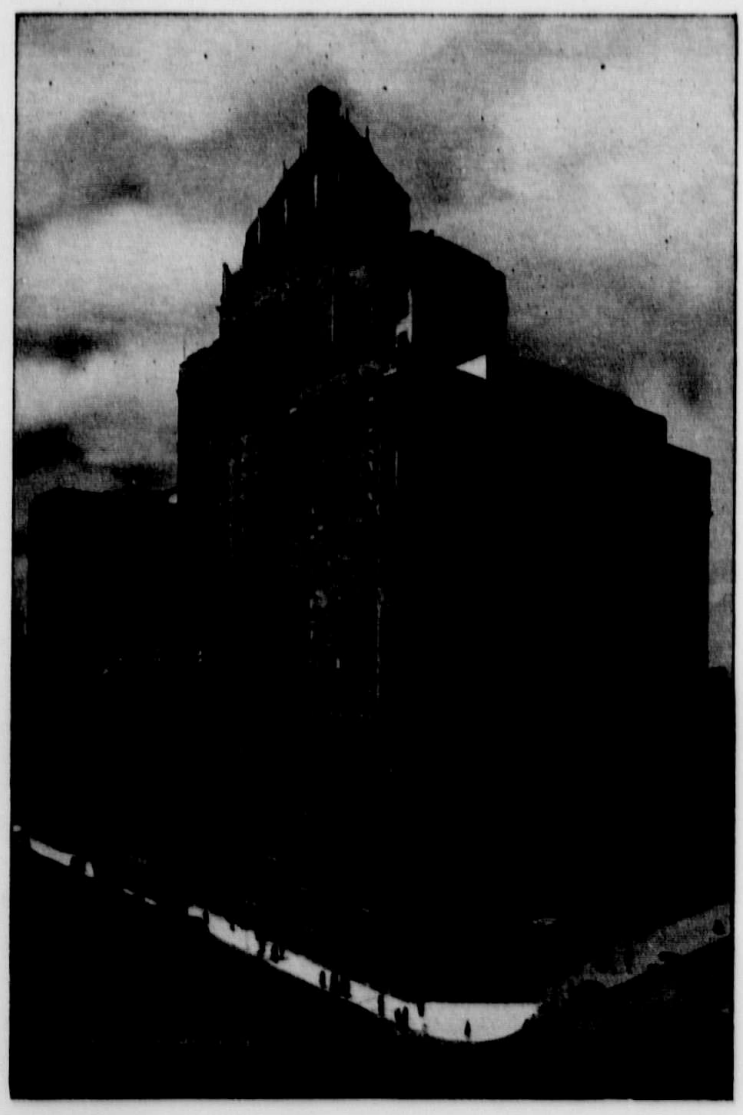
Questions Government Loan

He told of the government's guarantee of loans by banks. One, he said, was a guarantee of loans to Newfoundland. Another a loan to the C.P.R. "Why wasn't parliament told that the C.P.R. needed money?" he demanded. "All we ask is that the old parliamentary system of government be preserved. Do you see what is happening? A political revolution is taking place."

At the very beginning of the depression, stated Mr. King, the Liberal party took the stand that the unemployment problem was one that was liable to be present for some time. It proposed, he said, that a national, representative commission be established to deal with the matter, because it believed that no single department of government was capable of it.

Audit Would Be Insult

"Already $110,000,000 has been spent. Not a mention was made in the original act of an audit. Indeed when I suggested it, the prime minister said that it was an insult to the provinces. And what has happened? Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been wasted and payrolls have been padded. Has the money been used to relieve unemployment or has it been used to serve political ends and party purposes?"



"The Liberal party welcomes changes, provided the changes are in the right direction," concluded the Liberal chieftain, "and do not undermine the social and political institutions of the country. It believes in directing these changes through the halls of parliament."

Women for Social Problems

Senator Wilson expressed the opinion there is more scope for women in the provincial fields because it is there they come in closer contact with social problems with which, she said, women are well able to cope."

Mrs. Wilson said she has recently returned from Europe where she found great interest centred around the coming Canadian elections. "It is expected," she said, "that we will show the world what Liberalism really means. The hope of the future certainly lies in an enlightened and educated electorate."

Parallel of Conditions 100 Years Ago (Reigns Geo. IV and William IV) and Today.

Both periods preceded by Wars -

Napoleonic Wars 1793-1815; War with America 1812-1814;

Great War 1914-1918;

1815 to 1834 - 19 years intervening.

1918 to 1934 - 16 years intervening.

War involved vast expenditures;

increased public debt;
" taxation;
" administration costs;

extension of state functions.

War witnessed -

stimulation of industry for time being;

increase of wealth;

abnormal prosperity;

inflation of prices of farm products, food, wheat, etc.

all followed by period of depression.

Era of Poverty and Scarcity - possibility of increase of wealth side by side with great poverty;

pauperization of labouring classes - due to scarcity of food;

poor rate rose 50% - crime increased;

land owning classes, especially rich, sought to create monopoly to keep up prices;

- from this period dates the war of classes.

Demand for regulation of industry - conflict of views re laissez-faire and state control;

attempt to raise prices by prohibition of imports;

Industrial Revolution Under Way - (result of work of Watt, Compton, Arkwright) industrial innovation begins on large scale;

due to application of power to industry;

regime of machines succeeds regime of tools;

machine looked upon as enemy of working classes -

gives rise to destruction of machines and riots;

"In the winter of 1811, the terrible pressure of the transition from handicraft to machinery was seen in the Ludite or machine-breaking riots which broke out over the northern and midland counties and which were only suppressed by military force". (Greene).

- See Ottawa Evening Journal, May 9, 1934.

movement against machinery revived later in formidable riots.

"Overproduction" of Goods - rapid development of English industry of times ran ahead of world's demands; markets at home and abroad were glutted with unsaleable goods, and mills and factories were brought to a standstill.

Renewal of progressive movement in politics -

during this period there came renewal of progressive moment in politics which had been suspended during the war;

Edinburgh Review marked revival of constitutional and administrative progress which had been abandonned by Pitt;

Bentham gave his definition of aim of political action as "greatest good of greatest number";

men were brought to front whose demands of radical reform in English institutions won them name of "Radicals", and drove more violent agitators into treasonable disaffection and silly plots; danger to public order lay in blind opposition to all political change, which confused wise and moderate projects of reform with revolutionary measures.

reform began when with the entry of Mr. Huskisson into office in 1823, after Canning had asserted the principle of non-interference in the affairs of foreign states, and the commercial policy based on the recognition of the benefits of greater freedom of trade, and which brought about at a later time the repeal of the Corn Laws.

Parliamentary Reform and Grey's Administration -

First Reform Bill - 1832;

Lord Grey's Administration -

No Ministry has ever instituted greater or more beneficial changes than that of Lord Grey and Lord Melbourne during its ten years of rule.

Removal of Trade Restrictions -

Corn Laws were enacted in 1815 were protection to agricultural industry; placed tax on consumer for benefit of producer; those opposed advocated entire freedom of trade with world.

Anti-Corn Law League formed 1839.

1846 - failure of potato crop in Ireland and harvest in England forced Peel, who had entered parliament pledged to protective measures, to introduce bill for repeal of Corn Laws.

Peel Driven from Office - Russell Ministry came in - first work of Ministry was to carry out policy of free trade into every department of British commerce; from that time maxim of British commercial policy was to buy in cheapest and sell in dearest market.

Host of useless and oppressive duties gradually removed during reign of Queen Victoria.

D 30164

Re: American War

The war with the United States, 1812-14, was brought on through nationalistic policies of confining trade to British ships.

"The orders in council with which Canning had attempted to prevent the transfer of the carrying trade from English to neutral ships, by compelling all vessels on their way to ports under blockade to touch at British harbours, had at once created serious embarrassment with America. The orders in council and the Milan decree forced her (America) into action, and she at once answered them by an embargo of trade. After a year's trial, America found it impossible to maintain the embargo, and she exchanged the embargo with an act of non-intercourse with England and France alone."

(Greene)

Napoleon repealed the Milan decree, and the United States renounced all intercourse with Britain. England's exports in that year (1811) declined by one-third.

D 30165

Greene - Re: Magna Charta.

"~~All vagueness ceases when the Charter passes on to deal with~~ the rights of Englishmen at large, ~~their rights~~ to justice, to certainty of person and property, to good government, 'No freeman', ~~runs the memorable article, that lies at the base of British freedom,~~ 'shall be seized, or imprisoned, or dispossessed, or outlawed, or in any way brought to ruin: we will not go against any man, nor send against him, save by legal judgment of his Peers, or by the law of the land..... Joins Hepburn In Forecast Of Huge Landslide

Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King Confidently Predicts Big Liberal Victory on June 19.

Enthusiastic predictions of a sweeping Liberal victory in Ontario on June 19 were made by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader, and by Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, at a complimentary luncheon tendered Mr. Hepburn by his colleagues in the House of Commons and the Senate at the Chateau yesterday Both leaders were accorded flattering receptions. Nearly 200 attended the luncheon.

Mr. King declared that he thought it perfectly marvellous the acumen, sagacity and wisdom shown by Mr. Hepburn as Ontario Liberal leader during the past four years. No man in the public life of Canada, Mr. King said, had given himself more completely or wholeheartedly to the service of his party than has Mr. Hepburn throughout his leadership.

Admire Hepburn's Services

"All of us of the federal Liberal party in the Commons and the Senate have the utmost admiration and appreciation of your services as leader thus far," Mr. King declared, "and we have entire confidence in your ability to lead the party to victory on election day and carry on the administration later."

Mr. Hepburn, voicing his appreciation of the luncheon as demonstrating the loyalty and affection of his former colleagues in the federal house, said it would give him great encouragement to drive on to greater effort in the provincial fight. "We are going to win in Ontario and by the Liberal landslide on June 19 we are going to be able to make just that much greater contribution toward a federal Liberal victory later on," Mr. Hepburn asserted.

"I am genuine and sincere in my desire to improve the social and economic lot of the people of Ontario," Mr. Hepburn continued. "Our problem is purely economic, because we have privation in the midst of plenty. Our troubles are man made and as I see the determination of the people of Ontario it is to turn out the reactionary Conservative government and place the Liberal party in power as the party which will apply policies applicable to the best interests of the masses of the people.

On Third Parties

"We are leading the battle of the Reform forces and we are going to win. The people of Ontario are not taking third parties seriously. They are determined to register the strongest possible disapproval of the Tory government.

"I have been subjected to a great campaign of ridicule, belittlement and villification, but I want to say I am glad that I was trained in Mr. King's school of political thought," Mr. Hepburn stated. "I was trained under a great statesman; Mr. Henry was trained under Mr. Ferguson, a politician. Mr. King as prime minister reduced debt and taxation, he expanded our trade and improved the standard of living of our people, whereas Mr. Ferguson did just the opposite when he was in office in Ontario. Canada has never produced a greater statesman than Mr. King and probably never will.

"We intend to give the government of the province back to the people of the province and to give value for the monies disbursed," Mr. Hepburn concluded. "Toryism is on its way out and after the flag of Liberalism flies over Queen's Park I invite you all to come up and see me."

A Loyal Supporter.

Introduced by Rt. Hon. Senator George P. Graham, one time Ontario leader, as the respected and honored leader of the federal Liberal party, Mr. King spoke of the luncheon as a family party in honor of a leader of whom the Liberals are very proud. "From the moment that Mr. Hepburn was named Ontario Liberal leader he has had no more loyal, enthusiastic supporter than myself and greater admirer and I have followed his course as leader with increasing admiration," Mr. King declared.

Mr. King explained that he had not participated in the present Ontario election because he had made it a rule never to take part in provincial campaigns. "I would have liked to participate in this Ontario election because I think the Henry government is deserving of defeat but also because I would like to do all in my power to see Mr. Hepburn returned as premier," Mr. King continued.

Regrets Federal Angle.

Referring to the many difficulties facing Mr. Hepburn as Ontario Liberal leader, Mr. King said he had marvelled at his strength and endurance in the performance of his task. While he had regretted seeing Mr. Hepburn leave the federal field, Mr. King said that already Mr. Hepburn's leadership had vindicated his prophecy that a new era of Liberalism has arrived in Ontario. "We are on the eve of another period of Liberalism in Ontario," Mr. King affirmed.

Among those at the head table in addition to those already mentioned were Senators J. H. Spence, James Murdock, E. S. Little, H. H. Horsey, John Lewis, W. H. McGuire, Cairine Wilson, A. C. Hardy and Sir Allen Aylesworth; members of parliament, Hon. Charles Stewart, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Hon. Peter Veniot, Hon. J. C. Elliott, Hon. W. D. Euler, J. L. Ralston, Ian Mackenzie and Fernand Rinfret; and Arthur G. Slaght, K.C., Toronto.

Thomas Reid, M.P., New Westminister, B.C., piped Mr. Hepburn into the luncheon room. Percy D. Wilson and Paul Leduc, official Liberal candidates in the two Ottawa seats, together with prominent Liberal workers of the Capital, including several ladies, attended the luncheon.

Liberals throughout Canada will share the enthusiasm of the Ontario Liberals in the selection of Mr. Mitchell F. Hepburn as provincial leader in this province. Mr. Hepburn's own personality was, without question, the determining factor in his selection as leader. Members of the convention were well aware of his exceptional ability as a speaker and debator, his courage and tenacity in advocating policies and causes, as well as of many other personal characteristics which eminently qualify him for a position of leadership.

The fact that Mr. Hepburn possesses youth and enthusiasm, that he has an intimate personal knowledge of rural problems and conditions, as well as of commercial and industrial problems, and that he possesses qualifications in other particulars, all combine admirably to fit him for the important task of leader of the party in the province.

Both political parties in the province are resuming their respective tasks under new leadership. Under the vigorous and democratic direction which Mr. Hepburn will give, it will be surprising if Liberalism in Ontario does not within the very near future come again into its own.

Ottawa, December 18, 1930

Mitchell F. Hepburn, Esq.,
Ontario Liberal Association,
Reford Building,
Toronto, Ontario.

My dear Hepburn:

I should like to supplement the telegram which I sent you last night by a further word of congratulation upon your selection as leader of the Liberal party in Ontario.

For many reasons I am pleased that you reversed your previous decision and allowed your name to go before the convention: first of all, because it is obvious that, from the outset, you were the one person whom the Liberals of the province wished to have as their leader; secondly, because of your youth, ability and enthusiasm, you have qualities which should make you a successful leader; and, thirdly, because I believe that, with the co-operation which you will be able to effect between the Liberals, alike in the federal and provincial fields, you will be able materially to aid the party in winning its way back to power, alike at Ottawa and at Toronto.

As you know, I have not hesitated to say to you and to a few of our intimate friends, but wholly in a confidential way, that, as the leader of the party for the Dominion, I would have preferred to have you remain exclusively in the federal field, and this not less for your own sake than that of the party. I see a real danger of our losing your seat when the time comes to vacate it, and I see with what peril your own position may be frought, should you by any chance fail to secure a seat in the provincial house when you first seek election there. I cannot but believe that the Tories will try in every way to prevent your getting in, and their attitude towards you meanwhile may be more vindicitive than it otherwise would be. What I would have preferred would have been to see you one of a committee of management of the party's affairs, pending the first of the contests we may have, and meanwhile taking a part in an active way throughout the province. Quite clearly, the convention would not entertain anything of the kind, and, in the circumstances, you have undoubtedly been prepared for the party's sake to risk the chances and make the sacrifices which leadership of the party without a seat in the house may involve.

You have, at least, the satisfaction of knowing that your position in this respect is, perhaps, better than my own was at the time I was chosen the federal leader. I did not have at the time a seat either in parliament or in a provincial legislature, and a seat had, as you know, to be found. I have no doubt that, at the right moment, your position in this particular can me made perfectly safe.

I need not say to you how completely any co-operation with yourself in any manner which may be at all helpful will be assured so far as I am concerned. I know enough of the difficulties and problems of a political leader to be able to enter very sympathetically into your feelings at this time, and into your feelings as they may come to be from time to time.

If there is one word of counsel and advice which I might give you, it would be to repeat what I said when we talked together at Laurier House, that you immediately secure from those around you the guarantees of co-operation in a financial way which will be necessary to effect what is required for purposes of organization. You can obtain that kind of support at the moment. If you do not make hay while the sun shines, you may come to find it increasingly difficult to get what is needed even for the most elementary kind of organization work.

I shall wait until I see you to talk more intimately with you of many phases of the work you have before you. Meanwhile, may I say how pleased I am that, in taking on the leadership in the province, you have caused it to be known that you did not intend to leave the federal field for some little time at least. Everything incidental to that change will have to be made with the utmost care.

With my best of wishes for a political career which will continue to reflect great honour upon your friends, the party, and yourself,

Believe me, my dear Hepburn, as always,

Yours very sincerely,

Allow me to extend to you my heartfelt congratulations upon your selection as leader of the Liberals of Ontario. The convention just held marks a place of new beginning in Liberalism in the province. In the arduous and responsible duties which you are today assuming you have my most sympathetic understanding and will always have my heartiest cooperation. To my own congratulations and good wishes may I add those of the Liberal party from one end of Canada to another. Your selection as Liberal leader for Ontario does honour to us all.

D 30213

Election Mr. Hepburn Leader of Liberal Party of Ontario, December 17, 1930 -

In message of congratulations extended at time of his selection,

I ventured to say to him:

"The Convention just held marks a place of new beginning in Liberalism and of augury of his success

- as might not unsuitably be made example justification memorable as that of a great historic Liberal victory of 1896 press at that time, I predicted that

"Under the vigorous and democratic direction which Mr. Hepburn will give, it will be surprising if Liberalism in Ontario does not within the very near future come again into its own";

- this too seems likely of complete fulfillment ere long.

From beginning have been more than confident of Mr. Hepburn's success;

- more particularly in view of coincidence that day he was chosen leader happened to be my birthday anniversary - Dec. 17.
- if anything more in way of augury of his success desired, might point out he was born in a year memorable as that of a great historic Liberal victory - 1896.

Characteristics -

Courage - always willing to fight for his convictions and beliefs;

ready to carry the fight into enemy's territory;

courage shown by willingness to assume leadership year after tremendous Conservative victory of 1929 -

Cons. secured 91 seats in Legislature and also in face of great political machine built up by Tory party in Ontario in campaigns of 1929, 1930; difficulties besetting path of Liberal leadership in province of Ontario indicated by fact that Mr. Hepburn was 8th leader selected since party went out of office in 1905.

Libs. " 14.

Loyalty -

never failing loyalty to myself as leader and friend;

" " " " Liberal principles and policies.

Understanding of People - knowledge of problems of the people - farmer himself; knows problems of rural life, of consumers;

- greatly to be desired in leader of today when needs of rural community and consumer being overlooked on every hand.

Attractive Personality - enthusiasm of youth combined with affable disposition; sense of humour - all important quality in politics if man hopes to survive; ability to discuss problems and present policies in simple, popular manner.

D 30215

Difficulties of Leadership -

Assumption of leadership always involves problems and difficulties;
this much more the case where leader happens to be young man;
at time of his electionas leader, Mr. Hepburn was only 34;
" he was youngest member H.ofC.
" he was youngest ever to be made leader of the Liberal party in Ontario; in problems and perplexities of his new task, he was assured from outset of my understanding sympathy and willing co-operation;
- few persons could understand better than myself the difficulties of his task.
while, in common with his other colleagues in H. of C., I regretted the inevitable transfer of his energies and time to provincial field, I gladly gave him free hand, so far as federal obligations concerned, to devote all his time to Ontario.
In early stages at any rate, had to carry multitudinous burdens of political leadership pretty much himself; received but little in way of assistance;
he experienced all too prevalent tendency of people and parties to leave work of political organisation and leadership to one man.
Carried on in spite of ill health - serious illness summer of 1931.
His place in party today and strength of party in province,

Accomplishments -

Succeeded in uniting greater part of forces in province opposed to Toryism;

Obtained loyalty and enthusiastic cooperation of young men and women of province, so essential to continued success of a political party, particularly Liberal party;

- his own selection as leader at age of 34 and the support he has received from 20th Century Liberal Clubs, etc., reveals part which youth can play in public life of country.

In less than four years his ability as a speaker and the vigour of his leadership have made him one of the outstanding figures on the political stage of Canada.

Liberals in Ontario today are an aggressive fighting force - could hardly be said previously.

Provincial by-elections, like federal, have shown progress of Liberalism.

Mr. Hepburn's personal contribution to federal victory in South Oxford a considerable one.

Liberalism has undoubtedly made great gains throughout province as a whole.

Accomplishments -

Great Liberal tradition in province of Ontario re-asserting itself under Mr. Hepburn's leadership - in 67 years since Confederation, 34 under Liberal governments of Blake, Mowat, Hardy, Ross;

only 29 under Conservative;

Has aroused Liberalism to the great possibilities in Ontario, alike in provincial and federal fields.

Best Wishes -

Vigour and persistence of his fight against great odds has long before this won our admiration;

We congratulate him upon the achievements of his leadership;

Good-will and good wishes of Liberal members of House of Commons go with him as he enters final phase of campaign;

Confident of his success on the 19th of June.

STUDENTS ADVISED BY MACKENZIE KING

Graduating Class Urged to Seek Fruit of Their Ideals

"Out of the associations of the university and the ideals you will take with you today will come the opportunities that open up along your paths," Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King told the graduating class of University College at the annual dinner of the Alumni Association of that school in Hart House last night.

Relating some of his early associations with the Chancellor, Sir William Mulock, who proposed the toast to Mr. King as the guest-speaker, the former Prime Minister asserted that it was to these and similar associations born within University [illegible] that he owed the course of his [illegible]. Sir William, in his toast,, made reference to his early associations with Mr. King, and related how, while forming the new Department of Labor, he had selected him to fill a post with that department at $1,500 a year. Mr. King was at the time at Harvard University receiving a much larger salary.

Mr. King read to the large assembly, which overflowed the Great Hall, excerpts of a speech delivered by his father, then a member of the University Senate, to a body of graduating students prior to Confederation. That speech, which charged the students with the duty of working out the problems of "a coming Dominion," the problems of Empire and of the world, was just as applicable to the present time.

It was a natural conflict with men that each should long for the other's task and means of expression, Mr. King declared, but to both was assigned the duty of seeking truth and spreading truth and knowledge for the betterment of mankind.

At the beginning of the evening, Dr. A. T. DeLury, retiring Dean of the Faculty of Arts, as toastmaster, proposed a silent toast to Colonel W. C. Michell, former President of the Alumni Association. The toast to the University was proposed by F. C. Carter, succeeding President, and responded to by President H. J. Cody, who paid tribute to Dr. DeLury, retiring this year. Seated at the head table with the various speakers was Senator Arthur Meighen, a classmate of Mr. King.

W. L. M. KING WILL SPEAK AT UNIVERSITY DINNER

Prof. A. T. DeLury, Who Is Retiring, Will Be Guest of Honor

BIG DANCE PLANNED

Old acquaintances will be renewed and strengthened when hundreds of former class mates at University College, University of Toronto, turn out for the annual dinner and dance which the Alumni Association will hold on the evening of Friday, June 8, as a happy climax to the convocation in arts and the garden party.

This year's gathering is of special significance as one of the guests of honor will be Professor A. T. DeLury, for many years beloved dean of the Faculty of Arts, who is severing his active connection with the university. He is to act as toastmaster at the dinner.

Practically every class will be present in large parties, while the presence of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, '95, grandson of Toronto's first mayor and himself former prime minister of Canada, as speaker of the evening, will lend the affair a distinct centennial flavor. Mr. King will be introduced by Rt. Hon. Sir William Mulock, K.C.M.G., chancellor of University of Toronto, and the toast to the university will be responded to by President H. J. Cody.

The dance promises to eclipse in brilliance the one of last year. Members of the graduating classes of the entire university have been invited to attend what is to be certainly one of the gala events of the season. The whole of Hart House has been reserved for the happy occasion.

Colorful dance music will be provided by five orchestras, while guests will be received in the artistically lighted quadrangle by the chancellor, Sir William Mulock, President Cody and Mr. King, together with the deans of faculties and heads of colleges.

The evening's entertainment will conclude following a supper to be served in Great Hall of Hart House.

The active committee in charge of arrangements is composed of Donald B. Mulholland, chairman; Fred C. Carter, John MacBeth, D. Bruce Murray, N. H. Shaw and F. A. MacDonald.

Dean DeLury May Receive Political Offer, King Hints

D-30225

Liberal Leader Urges His Entrance into "Public Affairs."

A hint was thrown out that Dean A. T. DeLury, retiring dean of the faculty of arts at the University of Toronto, might go into politics, by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King last night. Mr. King who was guest-speaker at the reunion dinner at Hart House for graduates and undergraduates of University College, and students and graduates in the teachers' course, told the large gathering in the great hall that he had been discussing public affairs with Dean DeLury.

"I hope the years before him give him leisure during which he may use his great talent and genius in the country at large. I'm prepared to offer him a large field of influence if he will enter into it at once. I think he would be the type of man who could be of great service to his country," said the leader of the federal opposition.

According to the expressed wish of the late president of the Alumni Association, Col. W. C. Michell, made just prior to his death and following a first meeting of the alumni committee, Dean DeLury presided. And the final act of the alumni last night at the close of the university's activities of the year, was the drinking of a toast to Dean DeLury proposed by Principal M. W. Wallace.

During his address Mr. King made reference to President Cody's former relationship with the Conservative party. He felt Dr. Cody's chief task as head of the university was to keep together the right relationship between things of the past and new movements. "And in that task I think he can better perform it by alternating the phraseology so as to be a Conservative Liberal," said Mr. King.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Dear Fellow Graduate of University College:-

Mark in your diary Friday, June 8th, 1934. This is the night of University College Commencement Dinner and Dance, which this year will be outstanding.

The guest of honour at the dinner will be the Right Honourable W. L. Mackenzie King, of the Class of '95, former Prime Minister of Canada. This announcement speaks for itself. Loud speakers will be installed so that everyone may hear. The dinner is for graduates and their wives and husbands, and will follow the University Garden Party beginning sharp at 7 p.m. Dean A. T. DeLury will preside. Tables will be reserved for classes or parties if requested. Everywhere about you will be old friends whose acquaintance you will renew.

Following dinner the Dance for graduates and the graduating classes of the University will be held. The whole of Hart House has been reserved for the occasion, and the Quadrangle will be lighted. Sir William Mulock, Dr Cody and the Right Honourable W. L. Mackenzie King will receive in the Quadrangle at 9 p.m. Among added features will be a supper served in the Great Hall starting at 11.00 p.m. Special rooms have been reserved for classes holding reunions.

In planning so large a party it is necessary for the Committee to know what attendance to expect, and for this reason we earnestly request that you get your tickets early. Will you give the Committee your co-operation? Tell your fellow-graduates about this event. Advise them to get their tickets without delay. Information will be gladly supplied by E. A. Macdonald, Esq., Midway 6221, Hart House, Toronto, Secretary-Treasurer of the Association. On receipt of your cheque, tickets will be forwarded immediately. Prices this year are: combined dinner and dance tickets - $1.50, dinner tickets alone - $1.00, dance tickets, including supper - $1.00. These may be secured from the Alumni Office, 43 St George Street, or from any member of the Committee.

On behalf of the Committee in charge, I am

Yours very truly,

Donald B Mulholland

THE PASSING OF COLONEL MICHELL

THE alumni of University College were deeply grieved and shocked at the sudden passing of their beloved President on Friday, March 9. Immersed as ever in the affairs of our Association Colonel Michell had entertained the members of the June reunion dinner and dance committee at dinner at the Military Institute that evening, following which he proceeded to a meeting of the Senate of the University of which he was a valued member. After the senate meeting while driving the President home, as they discussed the reunion plans, he suddenly slumped over the driving wheel and before aid could be summoned he had passed to the great beyond. On Monday, March 12, the executive assembled with a large gathering of distinguished citizens in the auditorium of Jarvis Collegiate to pay their last tribute of respect and affection to one who had endeared himself to all who knew him.

From his graduation in 1890 William Michell occupied a prominent part in the educational system of Ontario. For thirty-four years he had been with the Board of Education of Toronto as teacher, principal, and, for the last six years, as supervising principal of Toronto Collegiates, a post he vacated in August 1931. His pedagogical career carried him through Waterdown High School, Whitby Collegiate and Ridley College. In 1897 he came to Toronto as Classical Master of the old Grammar School and in 1910 he was made principal of Riverdale Collegiate where he remained until his appointment as supervising principal. As an educator he exercised a wide and wholesome influence on teachers and pupils alike.

W. C. Michell's war record was also outstanding. He went overseas as Second in Command of the 95th Battalion with the rank of Major. He reverted to the rank of Captain to get to France where he joined the 18th Battalion. He got his Company Command at Hill 70, was wounded the following summer at Amiens, in which battle he was awarded the Military Cross for gallantry. He was wounded a second time and before returning from overseas had been elevated to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. He remained actively interested in military affairs.

His interest in his Alma Mater was deep and genuine. At the time of his death he was a member of the senate, of the advisory committee of the Athletic Directorate, President of University College Alumni Association and an honorary member of the U.C. Lit.

May we endorse the words of Dr Cody at his funeral. "He was genuine. He was straightforward. He was kindly." He will be greatly missed, not only by his brother and sister who survive him and to whom our deepest sympathy is extended, but by his wide circle of friends.

MR JUSTICE ARMOUR SUDDENLY STRICKEN

THE sudden passing on Sunday, March 11, of the Honourable Eric Armour united in death two who had been closely associated in life. Mr. Justice Armour and Colonel Michell were together in war days. They both went overseas with the 95th Battalion with the rank of Major and were members of the same Masonic Lodge.

Eric Armour was elevated to the bench of the Supreme Court of Ontario on March 17, 1933, following a distinguished career at the bar closely parallelling that of his notable father, the Honourable John Douglas Armour, Chief Justice of the Ontario Supreme Court. Born in Cobourg fifty-eight years ago, he was educated in the Public School and Collegiate there, continuing at Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto. He was the first to be appointed to the dual office of Crown Attorney for the City of Toronto and County of York combined in 1921, which position he held until his elevation to the bench. As a Crown Attorney he was noted for his fairness and common sense, which characteristics he carried with him to the bench.

Interested in politics he contested West Northumberland in 1904. The same year he joined the Cobourg Garrison Artillery. Shortly after proceeding overseas he was appointed Court Martial Officer with the Canadian Corp in France retaining the office until the evacuation of Germany in 1919.

He held many distinguished positions. He was a governor of the University, a Bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada, President of the Champlain Society, a member of the University Club and a Past Master of Ionic Lodge. His passing at such an early age came as a great shock to a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Our sincere sympathy is extended to his wife and family.

The March meeting of the Alumni Association was held as usual on the second Monday of the month but the meeting place this time was the Lecture Hall in Emmanuel College. Frank N. Stapleford, 1T2, General Secretary of the Neighbourhood Workers' Association, who was introduced by Harold E. Manning, 1T2, spoke on the subject "Social Work Then and Now" and described the far reaching changes that have taken place in the methods and scope of social work during the last twenty years. The speaker emphasized the need for trained specialists in welfare work. Indicating the proportions to which the relief situation had grown, he stressed the fact that relief measures were still "emergency" in character and advanced the idea that a whole new basis should be found for allocating the financial responsibility and for dealing with the great problems of relief and welfare work.

Professor A. Lacey, '17, in a brief talk described the changes that have recently taken place in the form of government in Newfoundland together with a brief analysis of the underlying reasons that made this change necessary.

The programme of the Vocational Guidance Committee for this session concluded on March 20th with a meeting that was addressed by Dr G. E. Reaman, '11, on the subject "How To Size Up Yourself" and by Mr Jno. T. Kirkwood, well-known advertising man and writer, who spoke on the very helpful topic "How To Get A Job".

Earlier in the month groups were held under respective leaders as follows:

Advertising: S. Stockwell '30, G. E. Beavers '30, H. Martyn '30; Industrial Research Life Insurance: Prof J. B. Ferguson '12, C. Lear White '16, M. G. Wyatt '30; Merchandizing: Morley Smith '14.

In the late fall the Victoria College team won the interfaculty volley ball championship. As there was no trophy for this sport, the members of the Victoria College staff, interested in volley ball are donating to the University of Toronto a cup to be known as the Victoria Staff Cup which will be the permanent trophy for interfaculty volley ball.

For the second year in succession, the Jennings Cup comes to Victoria. After winning their group easily, in the playoffs the Victoria team disposed of Ontario College of Education, Senior S.P.S. and the O.A.C. Freshmen in succession with the splendid record of the season of eleven games won and one tied of which the last five games were shut-outs. Congratulations are extended to the members of the team and to the painstaking and efficient coach, Murray Graham '25.

The Annual Founders' Dinner of Victoria University will be held in Burwash Hall on Monday, April 16th. At this dinner the three alumni associations—the Emmanuel College Alumni Association, the Victoria College Alumnae Association and the Victoria College Alumni Association—are cooperating. Notices will be sent out shortly giving full particulars. The Committee announces that the speaker of the evening will be Professor Gilbert E. Jackson and that his subject will be "The Morals of Democracy".

H. J. Sheridan, '07—has been appointed Dean of the College of Liberal Arts at Ohio Wesleyan University. W. A. Irwin, '12—of the Department of Orientals in the University of Chicago, is leaving early in April for a nine months' visit to Palestine and the Near East. F. J. Reed, '17—is now located at Tzeliutsing, West China, where he and E. W. Edmonds, also of '17, are United Church missionaries.

K. S. Bernhardt, '26—member of the staff of the Department of Psychology of the University of Toronto has become an author having recently published "An Introduction to Psychology".

M. W. McCutcheon, '26—has been appointed Assistant to the President of the National Life Assurance Company.

E. B. Jolliffe, '31—Rhodes scholar from the University of Toronto and now a graduate of Oxford University has been awarded the Arden Open scholarship in Law by Gray's Inn, London, England, providing $750 per annum for three years to enable him to begin practice. The scholarship is tenable in any country, but it is understood Jolliffe plans to return to Toronto this summer.

Dr J. F. Danielli recently addressed the Toronto Chemical Association on the subject, "Monomolecular Surface Films". Colonel W. E. Phillips, of the Duplate Safety Glass Company, Oshawa, spoke to the same organization on "The Manufacture of Laminated Safety Glass".

D 30235

THE ANNUAL CONVOCATION DINNER AND DANCE

THIS year, 1934, promises to be particularly outstanding. It marks the Centenary of the City of Toronto. Therefore it is most appropriate that your Association will have the honour of entertaining at the annual reunion dinner on Friday, June 8, the grandson of Toronto's first mayor, the Right Honourable W. L. Mackenzie King, '95, former Prime Minister of Canada. The committee in charge has been successful in completing arrangements for his attendance at the dinner, at which he will deliver the address of the evening.

This year, moreover, terminates the active connection with the University of the well known and much loved Dean of the Faculty of Arts, Professor A. T. DeLury, '90, who will act as toast master at the dinner.

Mr King, the guest of honour, will be introduced by Sir William Mulock, '63, and the toast to the University will be responded to by President H. J. Cody, '89.

From what has been said, it may be well understood that the night of Friday, June 8, 1934, will be a most memorable one in the history of University College. The dinner, following as it does the Convocation in Arts and the Garden Party, will be a happy climax for graduates who will be returning to the University in June in unprecedented numbers. Many classes have already arranged reunions and will be seated at special tables. Your own table will be clearly indicated and you will have the opportunity of meeting your old classmates and renewing acquaintances.

After dinner comes the dance, which this year already promises to eclipse the brilliant affair of last year. Again the members of the graduating classes of the entire University will join with us to make this the gala event of the year.

In the quadrangle, which will be beautifully lighted, the Chancellor, the President and Mr King, together with the deans of faculties and heads of Colleges, will receive the new graduates.

Five orchestras will supply the music for the dancing which will commence at 9.30. Supper will be served at 11.30.

For such a large function, the Committee in charge must, of necessity, know well in advance the number who plan to attend. Classes who intend to hold reunions should arrange accommodation at once by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer of the Alumni Federation, 43 St George St., Toronto. Complete information may be obtained by writing the Chairman of the Committee, Donald B. Mulholland, 330 Bay St., or by phoning the secretary-treasurer of the Association, E. A. Macdonald, Midway 6221.

The price of tickets for dinner and dance is $1.50 per person and they may be procured from any of the members of the Committee: Donald B. Mulholland, Chairman; F. C. Carter, D. Bruce Murray, H. Gordon Skilling, N. H. Shaw, John Macbeth, E. A. Macdonald.

U.C. Graduates Head Empire Club of Toronto

AT the annual meeting of the Empire Club held in the Royal York on Thursday, April 12, Dana H. Porter, '21, was elected President and Main Johnson, '11, First Vice-President. We look forward to a splendid year for the Empire Club under these two able and energetic graduates. Principal Wallace is a member of the committee.

Honeywell of Ottawa Appointed York County Judge

ALBERT EDWIN HONEYWELL, '03, K.C., of Ottawa, has been appointed a Judge of the County Court of the County of York, to succeed Judge Tytler who has retired. After an active career at the bar and in politics Judge Honeywell returns to Toronto where he received his education at University College and Osgoode Hall. U.C. graduates have played a very distinguished part in the legal administration of Ontario and we are confident Judge Honeywell will ably carry on this long tradition.

New French Scholarship

THE University College French Society has established a prize of $25 to be awarded annually for the next five years to a student in the first year who has not received a higher award or a scholarship. The College greatly needs such awards and appreciates the interest of the donors.

Class of '95 Annual Easter Reunion

LUNCH hour on Wednesday, April 4th, found fourteen members of the class gathered at the University Women's Club, St George Street, to renew acquaintance and swap the gossip of the past year. A report on the Class of 1895 Loan Fund which is doing so much to assist students to complete their courses was presented. It will be remembered that this fund was set up some years ago by the Class and is administered by the Alumni Federation. Several of the regulars were absent, some alas having passed on. The permanent executive is to be congratulated on its zeal and interest.

3T3 U.C. Women

3T3 U.C. women held a luncheon in Eaton's Round Room on Saturday, March 17, at which 38 turned out. That's where all this news came out.

O.C.E. has attracted a big crowd; Marion Bradley, Catherine Campbell (doing M.A. work as well), Fran. Clark, Agnes Hackett, Evelyn Hall, Muriel Atkin, Constance Hardy, Eugenia Haylow, Ann Hodge, Madeliene Lane, Marg. McNiven, Marg. McMartin, Gertrude Maycock, Helen Niemi, Vemma Orok, Mern Parker, Enid Peacey, Marion Stuart, Kay Stewart, Marjorie West, Marion Walker, and Eileen Woodhouse.

Those who are back gathering a little more knowledge include Beth Bertram, Helen Christilaw, Isabel Jordan, Louise Lockhart, Helen McKee, Merle Storey and Fay Wong. Elsie Murray is taking her M.A. at Columbia. Maureen Macoun is working on her M.A. in Ottawa. Marg Stirling and Norah Bowers are at the St George School for Child Study.

Lorraine Harvey, Marg. Hogarth, Kay McIntyre and Edith Waring are at the Manufacturers' Life. Elsie Owram is with the Confederation Life.

Mary Watterworth has gone into advertising at Eaton's, and Marion Laird is doing secretarial work there.

Betty Lang is at the London School of Economics.

Lil Kribs and Marg. Robb are at art college.

Ann Delury and Connie McNeill are at business college here, and Primrose Maclean and Isabel Dickson do the same in Ottawa.

At Library School are Grace Farwell and Helen Stubbs.

Ev. Cowan is in the main branch of the Toronto Public Library.

Anna Cross is doing field work at the Vancouver General Hospital.

Among those "just resting" are: Helen Clark, Ruth Payne, Marg Conboy, Ruth Kennedy, Helen Treadgold, Peg. Winter and Helen McGibbon. And also there are: Mrs (Lois Tedman) Stockdale, Mrs (Evelyn Hancock) D. Carlisle, Mrs (Marg. Dunham) J. F. Vanderploegh.

Dean C. H. Mitchell spoke before the technical school section of the O.E.A. Genéral Mitchell in his address made a plea for better all-round education of students in technical subjects.

Canon Charles V. Pilcher, of Wycliffe College, is the author of the theme song for the Centennial celebrations of the City of Toronto.

HOUSING

IN view of the revived interest in the question of slum clearance in Canada, and of the growing recognition of the right of every family to live in a decent dwelling, attention may well be given to the manner in which other nations have attacked the problem of providing adequate housing for the low wage earner.

The policy of Great Britain should be of special value to us, as many of our citizens, now living under conditions of appalling squalor and overcrowding, are British by birth or extraction, and consequently have the same racial psychology which, in the Old Country, has resulted in a demand for individual houses, and in a definite swing away from the tenement type of dwelling. Re-housing in Britain has followed two main courses, the first being that of the multiple-family dwelling, made necessary in certain congested sections of London and elsewhere. The second, and by far the most favoured course is that of the garden-village, and wherever one goes in England and Scotland to-day one sees the new estates, springing up on the outskirts of the cities, successfully populated by one-time slum dwellers.

The movement had its origin in the 19th century, when Mr George Cadbury, having decided to move the famous chocolate works from the heart of industrial Birmingham to a healthier location out of the city, was faced with the realization that, left to casual growth, the surrounding dwellings would again become slums similar to those from which he was determined to extricate his employees. The result of Mr Cadbury's interest was the development of the model village of Bournville, which is symbolic of British housing ideals, and has profoundly influenced European standards of living. Bournville comprises some 1500 houses, magnificent schools, playgrounds and recreation centre, an adult school of art which has an international reputation, churches, shopping district, and community hall. Everything to enrich community life has been provided.

The British Government, through acts of parliament, has put upon the municipalities the responsibility of providing adequate housing. The result has been a vast slum clearance scheme, now nearing completion, whereby 254,000 dwellings are being demolished and the dispossessed population is being re-housed on model estates patterned after the village of Bournville. The London County Council, for example, owns and manages 69 estates and five groups of multiple dwellings.

We in Canada, unhampered by limitations of space, and having the knowledge that slums harbour dirt, disease and degeneracy, have an unparalleled opportunity to exercise the technique of modern housing.

Dean De Lury is Honoured

Retiring Dean of Arts Given Dinner

"This is the happy warrior, this is he Whom every man in arms would wish to be."

IN these well-known words the Hon Arthur Meighen expressed the feelings of himself and the graduates he represented in seconding the toast to Alfred Tennyson De Lury at the dinner given by his former students, teachers and colleagues in Hart House April 5th, 1934, on the occasion of his retirement from the active staff of the University of Toronto.

An informal snapshop of Dean De Lury taken recently by W. M. Hugill, University of Manitoba.

Over four hundred present and former associates of Dean De Lury assembled for the dinner. After a brief musical programme by the Conservatory String Quartet, the President called on Provost Cosgrave to propose the toast to the guest of honour. The Provost after a brief sketch of the Dean's Irish ancestory paid tribute to his outstanding qualities as a humorous and humane teacher and arbitrator, a skilful diplomat, a great organizor and the University's most loyal supporter of traditions—with the confidence of both student and staff for the forty-two years of his connection with the University.

Dean De Lury in replying to the toast just expressed his gratitude to and appreciation of his former teachers, particularly Dr A. Baker, Professors Louden, Keys, Hutton, Dale and the late Prof Young for their guidance and example of his student and staff days. In briefly summarizing the University of his time he emphasized particularly the great forward steps (in many of which he played so large a part)—the Federation of the Arts Colleges; the founding of the professional and graduate schools; the opening of Hart House and the formation of the Students Council. With an expression of hope that the progress would continue, Dean De Lury in closing once more tendered his appreciation to those who had made the dinner possible and to those present who had gathered to do him honour.

Provost Cosgrave then passed on to the University the portrait of Dean De Lury by Alan Barr, presented to the committee in charge by Prof J. C. McLennan and the late Mrs McLennan. Dr Cody in accepting the portrait for the University referred to forthcoming Honorary Degrees and scholarships and reiterated the sentiment of former speakers in thanking for himself and the staff, present and former, Dean De Lury for his long and outstanding years of faithful and generous service to the University.

In addition to the speakers others at the Head Table included: His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs Bruce, Mrs Cody, Sir Robert and Lady Falconer, the Chancellor, Mrs Cosgrave, Dr A. Baker, Hon Mr Robert Weir, Dr W. D. Haggard of Vanderbilt University.

New York Grads Meet

THE Fraternities Club, Thirty-Eighth Street at Madison Avenue, was the scene, on Thursday, April 26, of the annual dinner of the New York Club of the University of Toronto. A good attendance was on hand and enjoyed the meeting, which was under the chairmanship of the Reverend W. E. Dickenson, '18 W, acting president. Mr Dickenson has a son who is almost ready to enter S.P.S. Manfred Barber, '25 C, president of the Club, sent his resignation, as he was unable to be present owing to having been moved to Philadelphia. "Barb" is with the Du Pont Company. Ken Bell, the dynamic secretary, announced a most successful year, with a comfortable balance in the bank. Ken is of course a vice-president of Chase National Bank. Freddy Keffer, '23 V, who used to teach in Buffalo, is now secretary of Intercontinent Travel Service, with headquarters at 274 Madison Avenue. Doug McFadyen, '31 M, is doing medical research at Rockefeller, and playing bridge in his odd moments. George Scythes, '33 S, is brewing in Newark, N.J. T. K. Thompson, '92 S, is continuing his important engineering plans for New York City, and gave the writer a copy of his latest. John Deacon, '29 S, was the lusty chairman of entertainment. A report of the newly-elected officers will be included in the next issue of the Monthly.

and then discover, too late, that we do not like the work for which we have got ourselves trained.

What we need is a system of experimental apprenticeships.

One can learn a lot about a job without actually doing it. An intelligent window-cleaner or floor-sweeper can get a good idea of what life is like in a hospital; and as cabin boy one can estimate one's chances of liking the sea as a career.

Child labour has been exploited, and is now being abolished. This is a pity. We exploited the child for the sake of the labour; we ought to have exploited the labour for the sake of the child. We ought to insist on every employer keeping open a certain number of "tasting apprenticeships"—to which the young can come and see for themselves whether they will like that sort of work. And an employer whose apprenticeships are unpleasant or exploited is going to find it very difficult to recruit his workers later on.

Technical Training

Having decided what he really wants to learn, the youth will go back to learn it. At about 18 years of age technical or professional training might begin. We are speaking here purely of technical teaching, not of the hotch-potch of technical, liberal, and social subjects which at present confuse our curriculum.

We are presuming that Liberal leisure subjects have throughout been pursued as leisure—in the Club, the "Hart House" in every ward of the city.

Social subjects we shall discuss in a moment.

This being so, technical training, except in the case of the learned professions, need not be a very long affair. In many cases it could be done in a school joined on to the industry or occupation. One can learn to be a farmer better on a farm-school than in a city classroom.

Civics

We now come to the most important aspect of this subject.

Mr H. G. Wells has said that "civilization is a race between education and catastrophe".

Man, during the last century, has vastly increased his material resources and his powers—both of construction and destruction.

Morally he has not advanced at all. A moral revolution as great as Christianity would hardly have been adequate to keep pace with these material developments, to guide men's souls and conscience in using this vast accession of power wisely and socially. But there has been no great religious revival, rather a falling away; no new morality, rather a growing moral chaos.

What is wrong with the world? Mr Wells answers:

(1) Nationalism—Improved communications have shrivelled our globe into a little pellet—circumnavigable in scarcely over a week. World trade has integrated wealth and industry into a vast and delicate complexity. But men's minds have not risen above local patriotisms; and the tariff walls have grown steadily higher and higher. And our history books still teach of wars across these artificial boundaries invisible from an aeroplane, still teach "My country over others".

(2) Economic Ignorance—The other thing that is wrong with the world is Economic Ignorance. The big business man has the mentality of a peasant; he thinks that he "owns" his business as a peasant owns his savings; he does not realize that he is only a trustee. He thinks he can benefit by screwing down wages, by smashing some rival, by driving out a competing nation, by cutting prices; he does not realize that this modern world of finance and industry is one delicate and complex whole, as much a whole as his own factory, that every selfish wound inflicted upon it is a wound inflicted upon himself.

But our schools teach no Economics or Civics; nothing about banking or industry, or the New Deal, or Russia's great experiment. They just sit by fiddling about with algebra and geography and the Battle of Waterloo, while the world hurries forward to catastrophe.

Not everywhere.

In America educators, "educationists", and "educationalists" were stirred by this challenge of Mr Wells. (See Mr Peffer's article in Harper's Monthly, January, '34.) They leapt into the saddle and rode off in all directions at once.

Civics and Sociology are booming over the border, so much so that teachers of ordinary subjects like Modern Languages are getting seriously alarmed at the desertions from their classes.

"The schools should herald in the new era; they shall reform the world", is the cry of the Educationalists.

"The Schoolmasters", says Mr Peffer, "are suffering from an Omnipotence Complex".

And so they are.

How can the Schoolmasters prepare their pupils to take part in a plan of social reconstruction which will not begin for them until ten years from now? We do not know what the world will be like in ten years' time. All that we are teaching now may be out of date and all wrong in emphasis by then. If we teach anything beyond the broadest generalities (already to be found well expressed in The Sermon on the Mount), we shall be anticipating the policy of a government which will not come into office until 1944.

It is a big job to teach people how to reform the world as it is now; but to predict what the world will be, and what will be wrong with it, and how to set it right ten years ahead—this is indeed no small undertaking even for Omnipotence.

What is the conclusion? Not that we should go on teaching Napoleonic wars while the economic structure of the world crashes into ruin; not that schools should give up the teaching of a New Deal or a Five Year Plan—but that they should teach it in the right place.

What is the use of teaching civics to people who are not even citizens yet, nor will be for a long time?—and citizens then, we hope, of a far better and different world from ours.

CONANT STATES HIS CREED FOR HARVARD

To Inspire the Undergraduate With an Enthusiasm for Creative Scholarship Is the President's Ambition

By H. I. BROCK

THIS is an age of dictators. As a rule the dictators upon whom the eyes of the world are fixed have seized the power they wield within the last few years or months. Either they have been lifted to the top by a revolution, as in Russia, or they have pushed aside the monarch or other constituted authority by a controlled revolution, as was done by Mussolini in Italy.

But at Harvard, in liberty-proclaiming Massachusetts, it is different. At Harvard for three long generations the president of the university has been czar. He is still czar. No matter that his vast power is, in a fashion, extra-legal—that it derives principally from his position as head of a small self-perpetuating corporation in which is lodged complete financial control and final, if not quite so unlimited, responsibility for the conduct of the institution otherwise.

What counts most, therefore, at Harvard is who is president. For twoscore years Charles W. Eliot ruled and set the mold of the Harvard man. For a score and odd years more Abbott Lawrence Lowell controlled the stamping mill. Now there is a new president; therefore a new Harvard, though the new man has been in harness only a few months. Everybody feels it, notwithstanding that the difference discoverable to the eye is principally that, instead of the familiar figure of Mr. Lowell, moving unobtrusively about the yard, there is the no-longer-strange, but very different figure of James Bryant Conant, moving about the yard, just as unobtrusively.

The path from the president's house to the president's office leads right through the Yard and the normal course of the president's peregrinations is along this path. But, never mind: wherever he goes he goes unobtrusively. Other members of the university, whether professors of the faculty or undergraduates, pay no more attention to his goings and comings than they pay to the goings and comings of any other familiar local figure. Or they seem not to.

NONE the less, there is a new Harvard since June of last year. And everybody at Harvard knows it. The recent announcement of freshman fellowships for "students of rare ability and promise"—fellowships covering on a modest scale full college expenses, and though for the present limited to young men "living and attending school" in six Middle Western States, designed eventually to bring together at Harvard "outstanding students from every section" of the country—is the strongest indication so far that the new era is taking practical shape.

Among the prodigious accomplishments of Mr. Lowell's twenty-three years of command was the creation of the elaborate modern plant of the university of which Dr. Eliot was the spiritual father, the practical rebuilding of the old college into seven units, each bigger than the old college used to be, and the distribution into these units called "houses" of the "amorphous mass" of undergraduates. Incidentally, in that twenty-three years a hundred million dollars was added to the endowment.

These things have been done. The big job of Mr. Lowell's successor is not to be builder but operator; to see that the best material and the best workmanship go into the educational product. The sense that he means to do just this thing is what is in the air and makes the new Harvard. Lowell, in fact, was neglectful neither of educational material nor of educational workmanship, but he had the shop to build first. Conant can concentrate on the product. And he is equipped to do it.

The twenty-third president of America's oldest and best-known institution dedicated to the advancement and perpetuation of learning was translated to his post of high command from the chemical laboratory, where his researches had won him world-wide recognition as a first-rate productive scientist. Yet he is just short of 41 years old and looks a deal younger.

Times Wide World.

"His Outstanding Characteristics Are Simplicity, Frankness and a Mind Trained to Face Facts."

Outstanding characteristics of the man are simplicity, a frankness which takes on at times the quality of downright boyish candor, and a mind trained to face facts and habituated to direct and courageous but unhurried action. The distinction is important. An effect of not being hurried at all is one of the strongest impressions received in his presence. There is also the impression of a clear vision of what essentially needs doing and a strong will to do it, brooking no fruitless delay—yet with an open, alert and considerate mind about the means of getting it done.

Oliver Cromwell is one of the world's strong men that Conant particularly admires—as is proper and natural in a descendant of the excellent Puritan, Roger Conant, who came to Massachusetts in the early days of the liberal stir which eventually made Cromwell master of England and lost King Charles his head. Cromwell had his aims—high ones—his iron will to achieve those aims, but so fluid was his mind in regard to the real significance of passing events and current causes—determining which side he stood on at one time and another—that he has been roundly abused for inconsistency or worse.

TAKING this as parable, it may well be that Conant, too, in the means he adopts, will be opportunist or strategist—as you will. He learned in the laboratory to deal with facts and deal with them patiently, with the single object of producing results. It is results that he is after as president of Harvard.

The particular results he is after are determined by ideals of education—which in this mild-mannered man (with the blue eyes that not infrequently indulge in a gaminlike twinkle behind his steel-rimmed spectacles) are cherished with almost religious intensity. Since the advancement and perpetuation of learning are things so linked together that they are inseparable; since the whole structure of civilization depends on the cultivation of knowledge—which has created civilization and enabled it to progress; since, also, the institutions of higher learning are the trustees in whose hands lies the future of human knowledge, a heavy responsibility to the nation and the race rests upon our universities, rests more heavily, perhaps, upon the privately endowed universities, equipped with costly facilities for study and research, often unmatched anywhere else.

Conant's official utterances since he assumed office have emphasized this responsibility especially in regard to Harvard. But his doctrine, in general, holds that, in order to achieve their appointed destiny, the universities must accept responsibility for the fullest use of the opportunity which is theirs toward saving the substance of democracy. This is the more important in the face of the present eclipse of an old simple faith in democracy—a faith so strong that the mere word was one to conjure with.

That faith held rule of, by and for the people a sovereign panacea for sick civilization. If Conant like other practical men of our time, is no believer in panaceas, he does, nevertheless, stand firmly for the maintenance of the ultimate basis of democracy in the intellectual world—prime agent and custodian of civilization. There must be equal access to the educational ladder as a means of climbing to the top. At the same time, since the educational ladder is rightly designed to lead to the top only those who really do advance and perpetuate knowledge, there must also be effective, and therefore more or less merciless, elimination of the unfit as the process of mounting the rungs proves them so.

Here Conant resembles all the thoroughgoing idealists in the hard-boiled act of making their dreams come true. The changes in things as they are which that act involves may, and often do, require a degree of ruthlessness in the removal of cherished clutter—institutions, practices, and even amiable individuals entrenched in the clutter.

NO official massacres or wholesale decapitations are planned for Harvard. That is certain. Suaviter in modo is Conant's way. Though an idealist, he is a considerate and very human person. But Harvard also has its cherished clutter. What Conant is going to do with the clutter can only, for the present, be guessed at.

He has been on the job less than a twelvemonth. But he has already stopped the 7 o'clock morning bell, which was a venerable and sacrosanct institution—and anachronism—in Harvard Yard. And those new freshman fellowships—a draught of selected fresh blood from the Middle West—are earnest of his intention to carry out the policy of more widely distributed opportunity to get into Harvard (which does not mean that Harvard will take in more men; quality not quantity is what is desired) and a stricter rule of the survival of the fittest among those admitted to the university's privileges. At the same time, the large body of men in the college who seek only a liberal education will not be too much discouraged. Conant by no means underrates the value of this basic element toward the continued usefulness of Harvard.

Though it is likely that his modesty would charge it to haste under pressure of multiple tasks within strict time limits, it seems a fair index of the new president's simplicity, in the best sense of the word—since he is using the economy of a scientific mind in stating accurately conclusions arrived at by factual analysis—that in all his public and semi-public expressions certain things are set forth in words almost identical.

One of these things is his idea of what a university is and what it is for. The essence of the idea goes back to the medieval pattern. A university is a community of scholars and students. A university exists, in the exact words used by the founders of Harvard 300 years ago, "to advance learning and perpetuate it to posterity." But "education and theology were by Harvard's founders conceived as inseparable. Today learning has become secular." Wherefore, "the universities are now the residuary legatees of many of the spiritual values which used to be guarded by the churches."

These spiritual values are so fundamental that, unless the elaborate machinery of modern education is informed by them, they labor in vain that build libraries, laboratories, museums, gymnasiums, lecture halls, and all the houses with which the House Plan has dotted the low banks of the Charles River at Cambridge.

HERE is Conant's creed in his own words compacted into a nutshell: "It is only by advancing learning that it is possible to perpetuate learning. When knowledge ceases to expand and develop it becomes devitalized and degraded. It is not sufficient to train investigators and scholars, no matter how brilliant they may be; a large body of influential citizens must have a passionate interest in the growth of human knowledge. It is our ambition to inspire the

AGAIN THE RUSSIAN BEAR WALKS ABROAD

With the Period of Hibernation at an End, the Soviet Begins to Move on the World Scene as a Great Power

By ANNE O'HARE McCORMICK

Moscow.

THE talk that evening, like most conversations in Moscow when Americans are present, turned on the still lively subject of the Soviet-American accord, and from that point drifted into the wider field of Russia's changing attitude toward the world. For notwithstanding Stalin's speech at the Communist Party Congress on the familiar theme of the decay of capitalism as a result of the universal economic crisis and the possibility of a revolution of the world proletariat following a threatening imperialist war, a review of Soviet diplomacy during the year just ended makes it clear as the flood lights in the Red Square that Russia, moving to collaborate with capitalist States to prevent war, begins to exert her old weight, and more, in the trembling international balance.

The period of hibernation is definitely over. Once more the Great Bear walks abroad not as a revolutionary force or an opposition system but as a great power in the most traditional sense.

It was an evening at the turn of the year, following Mr. Litvinoff's bold survey of the world before the attentive delegates of the All-Union Central Executive Committee. We had trooped to the Kremlin for a night session. We had been challenged four times in the few hundred feet between the outer gate and the entrance to the hall by long-coated Red guards, heavily armed and expressionless. Once we shivered in the glittering cold, far brighter under the high-power lamps than the Moscow daylight, while our passes were verified by telephone.

These relays of soldiers; the intense immobility of the assembly, listening as no congress ever listens, least of all those multiplying congresses which, like this, are not Parliaments but audiences; the steady, shadowless blaze of illumination, like the glare of a Hollywood studio during a "take"—all this had reminded us, if reminder were needed, that the C. E. C. is not just another House of Representatives.

Neither was this just another session of a Soviet Congress. None before, it was remarked by old-timers, had devoted so much attention to foreign affairs. During one speech an official of the Narkomindel leaned over to whisper that we were listening to the first "positive" reference to the League of Nations ever made publicly and officially in Russia. Some one else noted that President Roosevelt was the first foreign statesman whose name had received a salvo of cheers in a Soviet assembly. Unusual, too, were the tributes to Litvinoff, only since his return from Washington looming as large at home as he does abroad. Stalin is glorified by speaker after speaker, day after day, in an endless litany, but a commissar is seldom singled out for praise.

MOST unusual of all was the general tone of the references to capitalist powers. Save for broadsides against Japan and Germany and pained but hopeful allusions to Great Britain, the note struck was conciliatory, almost mellow, as different from the rude challenge of the past as are the present diplomatic manners of Mr. Litvinoff from the "brutal Bolshevist frankness" of his first lecture to the world at Geneva.

There was no doubt of the interest of the breathless listeners in the reports on international affairs; it was keener, if anything, than the interest in the long thesis on the reorganization of the party and the government, a vitally important change, or the overpowering estimates for the second year of the second Five-Year Plan. Something like nostalgia for the society of other peoples, the desire of the nation for the world which constantly fights the contrary tendency toward isolation, stirred here as it stirs countries less completely segregated, or immured for shorter terms—countries like Germany, Italy, Rumania. For the first time, educated though it is to believe that everybody else is wrong, one sensed in young Russia a reaching out beyond the frontiers for something other than converts. The face it turns toward foreigners is not quite the stony, suspicious, closed face of the first revolutionary decade.

THESE "firsts" mean something. While the red Caucasian wine circulated and the Americans grumbled about the Russian cigarettes, we surveyed the world as it looks from Moscow and agreed that the prospect clears and widens. The American Ambassador, as pleased with the members of the Soviet Government as they were with him, had been greeted and speeded homeward like a long-lost friend. In the French Midi, M. Herriot was making speeches that echoed pleasantly in Moscow, and the new trade agreement with France was ready to be signed. Recent exchanges with Warsaw had been almost genial, and Poland had firmly closed her doors to refugees from the Ukraine.

From the Baltic to the Black Sea the Western border was protected by mutual pacts of non-aggression. The Black Sea itself was safe as a lake, for the new Russia controls the Straits more subtly but as surely as imperial Russia dreamed of doing.

Voroshiloff, Commissar of War, had returned with his generals from a ceremonial visit to Moscow's closest ally to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the Turkish Republic. "Look hard at these men," said Mustapha Kemal in introducing the Russians to his officers. "They may one day be your leaders in war."

Somewhere, in the get-together meetings in the Balkans, by no means the least important of contemporary developments, the hand of Russia moved as it moved in the past to block the German push eastward. Japan sputtered in the distance, following a verbal barrage of the sort one government does not usually turn on another except as a prelude to a declaration of war, but under Tokyo's indignant denials of Litvinoff's charges appeared a new offer to reopen negotiations over the Chinese Eastern Railway.

CONTRAST this picture with the political map of only a year before. During the now historic International Decade, which perished on the Manchurian steppes and was buried with military honors in Germany, "Europe" may be said to have stopped at the Russian frontier. The Soviet Union exerted a palpable influence, like that of the moon on the tides, in the oscillations of international policy, but took no active or positive part in shaping it. One reason for the failure of the epoch was the abnormal separation, political, social and economic, between the eastern and western halves of an unbalanced continent. Russia was Asia, and remoter than Asia, an emigrant from civilization as understood by allies and enemies.

Only with Germany were her relations in any degree friendly, and between the two countries exchanges of goods and services continued in bulk after international commerce everywhere else had been reduced to a thin, a very acid trickle. The "menace" of yesterday, it is difficult now to recall, was a Russo-German combination, swamping Europe!

Then came Hitler, and the misplaced European frontier moved as quickly as if he had released a spring. The triumph of National Socialism in the middle of Europe has resulted in more realignments than any event since the war. It has drawn the Balkans together on one side, the Baltic States and Scandinavia on the other, and forced England, France and Italy into a sort of permanent committee meeting, very rasping to the nerves of all. It has created dangers and problems so pressing that one wonders what everybody was worrying about before it happened.

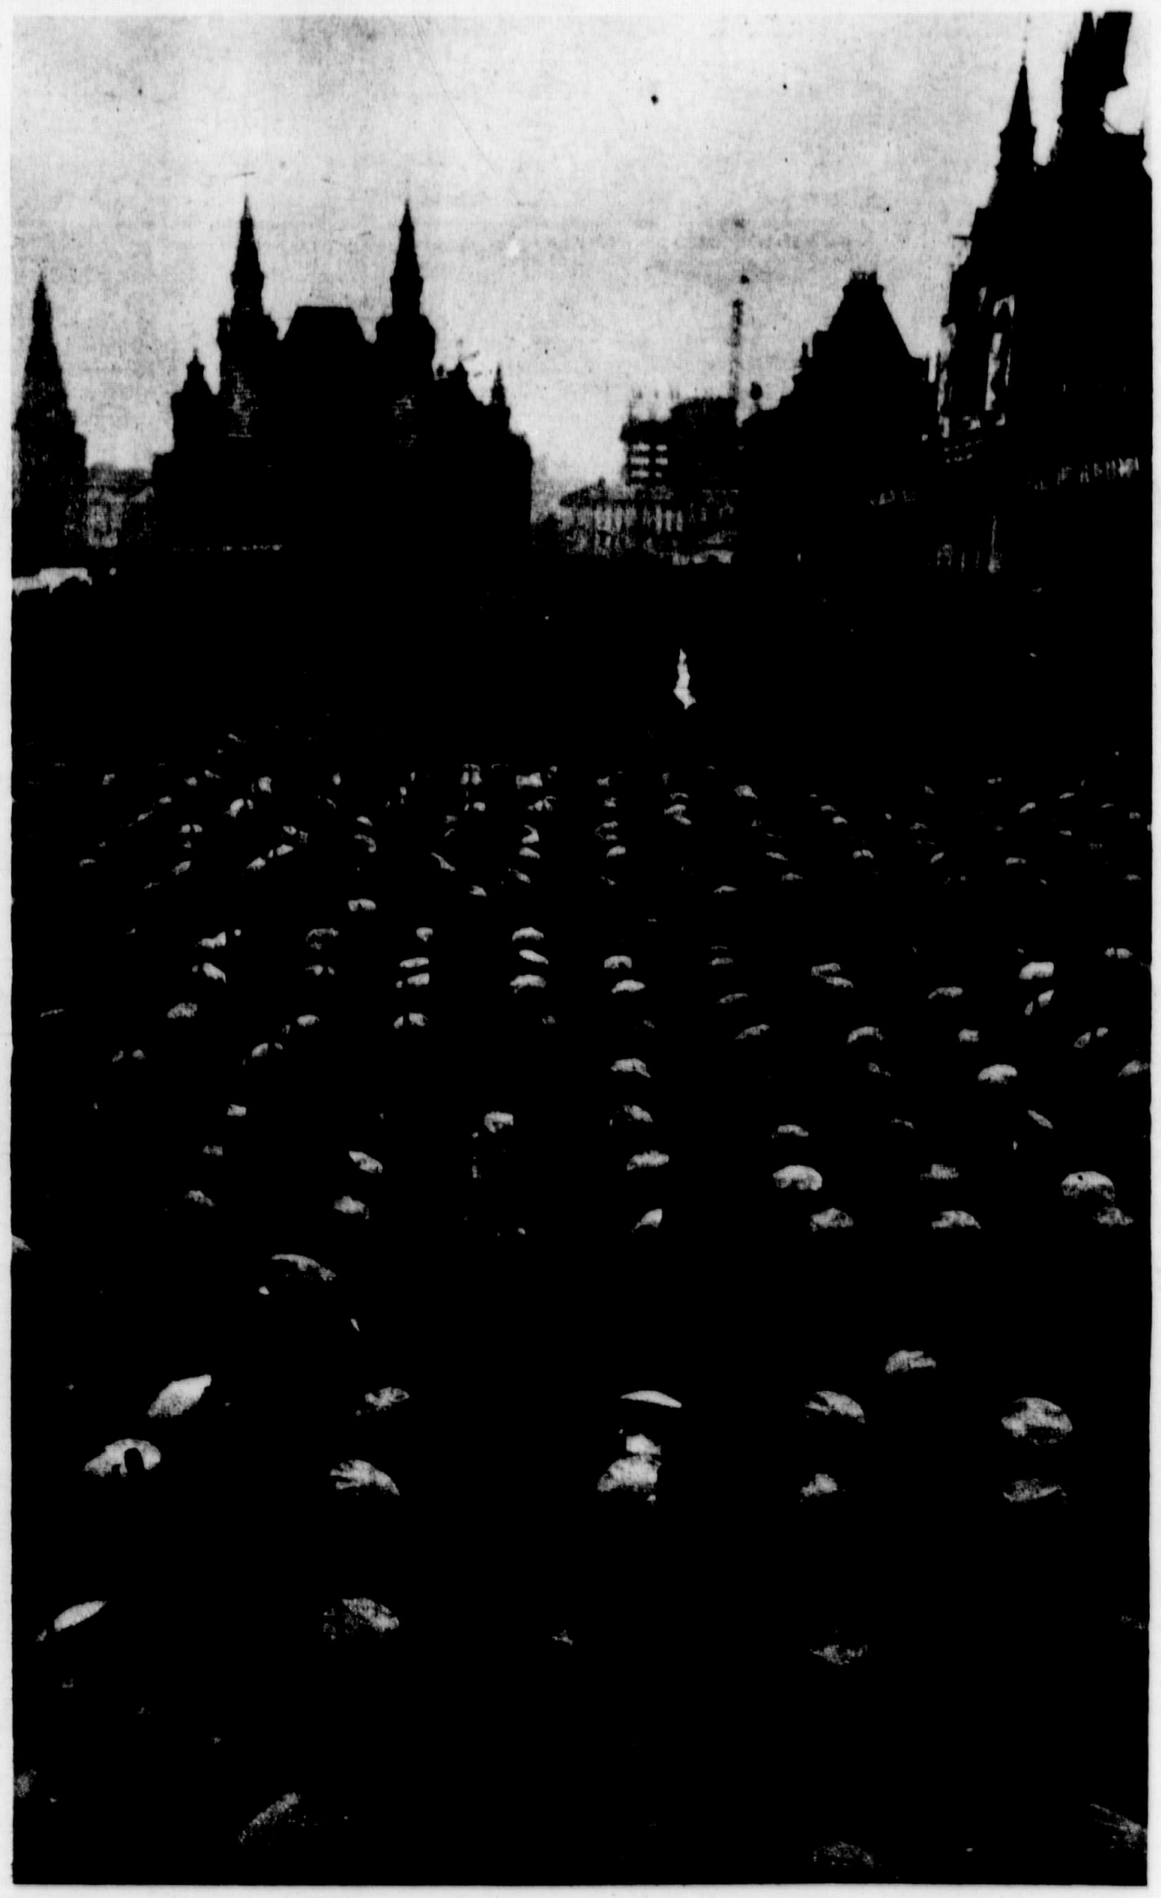
THE most important consequence, however, perhaps the most upsetting in the long run on both sides of the blockade, was to bring Russia post-haste into the councils of Europe. A revolution which claims to have saved Germany, Europe itself, from communism has had the effect of elevating the one Communist State to a position of authority and weight in world affairs it had not occupied in a generation.

The Kremlin immediately began to negotiate treaties all along the border, unabashed by the alacrity with which all the Western neighbors, represented for years as only waiting to spring on the Soviet Union, rushed to sign on the dotted line. It reconsidered its long-contemptuous attitude toward the League, now deserted by the belligerents.



A dictatorship knows best the potentialities and dangers of dictatorships, and the activity of Soviet diplomacy following the rise of Hitler is unquestionably an effort to prevent war. No observer in Russia can doubt that the government wants peace, needs peace, for a variety of internal reasons cannot afford war—certainly not on two fronts.

EVEN the rapprochement with the United States, helped along by events in the Far East, was not uninfluenced by movements in Europe. Whatever the reasons, however, and whatever the effects may be, in credits, trade or international equilibrium, to the U. S. S. R., American recognition is the high climax of a successful diplomatic year. "This recognition means more to us than any other," the Soviet official admitted to the Americans, and went on to explain just what it meant: chiefly, we gathered, taken in connection with American policies at home, the capitulation of the last stubborn defender of capitalism.

Naturally we looked long at the United States, whose struggle to construct a new order within the old serves as spectacle and drama for all the world today. Even Moscow watches, a little disconcerted, I think, because America has stolen the spotlight, and because the Roosevelt experiment exhibits a development of or away from capitalism and a method of revolution quite unforeseen by Marx or Lenin and hardly covered by Stalin's explanation that the dying sometimes display deceptive appearances of vitality.

It was strange and suggestive to look at Washington from a revolutionary capital as far away as this, in space and time. Not only are the two in different stages of development; they are in different centuries. Until you see the NRA in this perspective you do not realize how many revolutions we have forgotten, how many Five-Year Plans we have overfulfilled to reach a Fifteen-Billion-Dollar Crisis, a crisis of surplus. Here you are far back in the good old times of shortage.

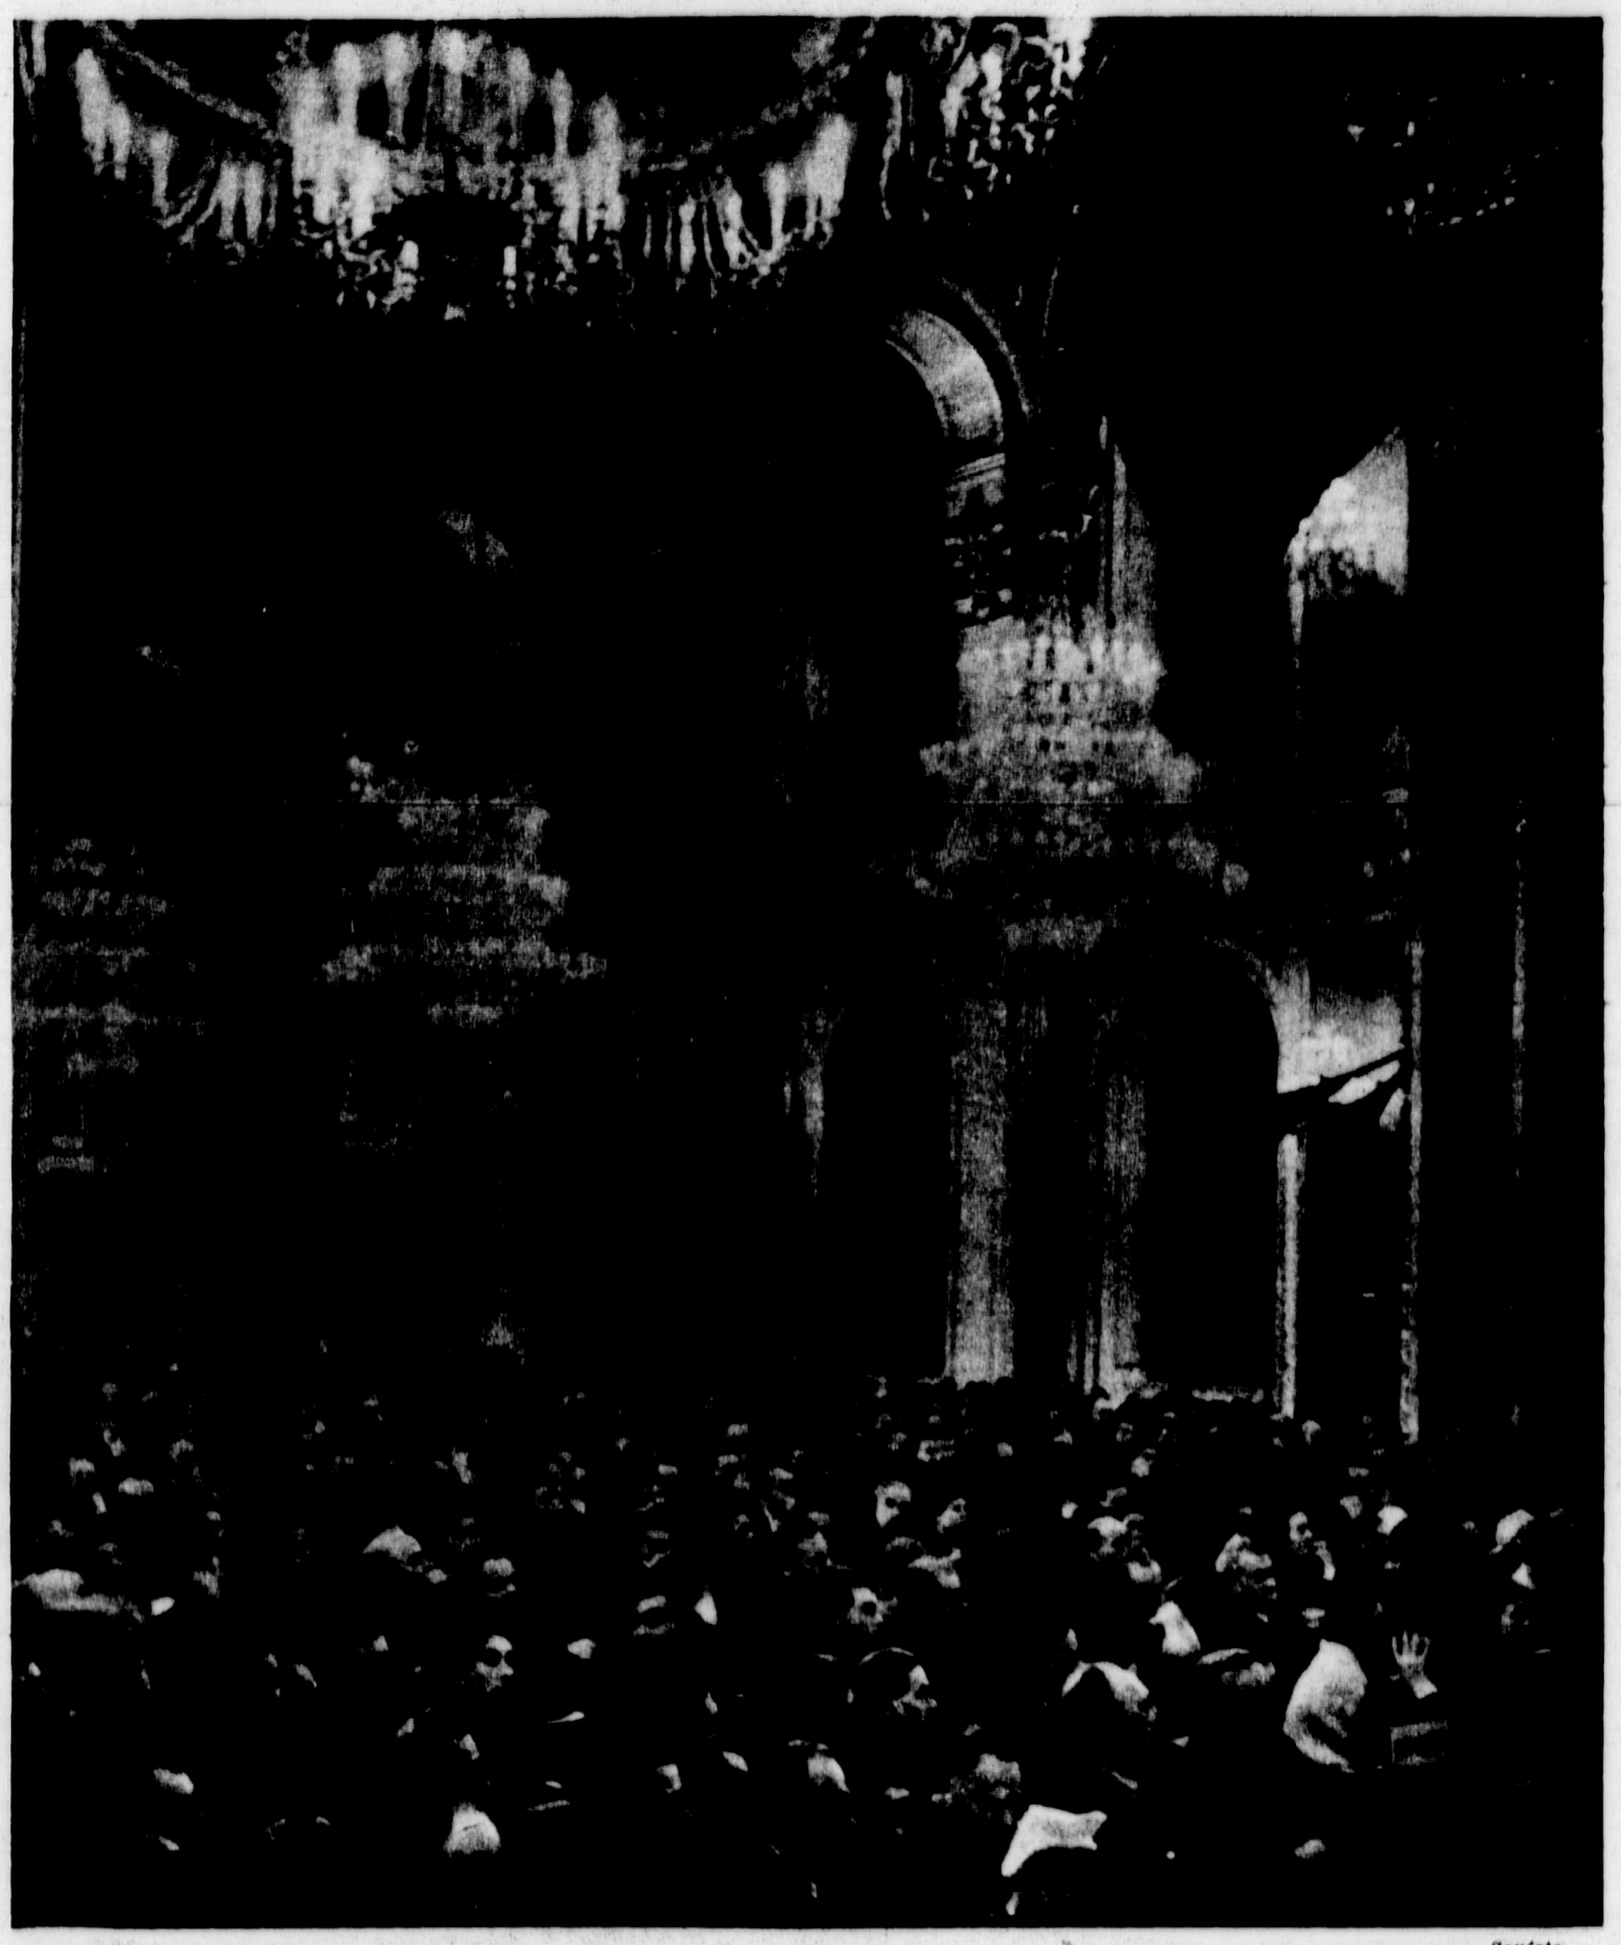
ONE of the Americans said something like this to the Russian: "Call American recognition a triumph of realism if you like," he conceded. "Say we're the last to face a fact; we usually are. But don't interpret what you call the general acquiescence of the American people as a sign that they're sold on your system. As a matter of fact they aren't paying much attention to your revolution; they're too interested in their own. Has it occurred to you that they are acquiescent because they are no longer afraid of bolshevism?"

The Russian did not make the obvious retort. He did not quote Senator Glass or echo the jeers and wise-cracks an American could not have resisted. This would be a cheerier scene if the comrades were not so earnest, if any Bolshevik since Lenin had ever laughed at himself or his revolution. No Communist will ever see the humor of it, but there is truth in the paradox that as the U. S. S. R. looms larger as a nation she becomes less frightening as a revolutionary force.

Indications multiply that communism, at least as worked out in Russia, is weakening as a world threat. It is unfortunate for the Marxist theory that it was first applied in a backward country by revolutionaries whose idea of government is police government, learned under the Czars.

This is not to say that the Russion Revolution has not had enormous influence; it has acted like a ferment everywhere. All nations have moved so fast toward socialism since the war that the "world revolution" is actually in progress. But the fact cannot be ignored, in Moscow or elsewhere, that the important revolutionary upheavals since 1917 have been against bolshevism; not a single country has followed the Russian lead.



More, while socialization spreads, socialism in the old political sense seems to have shot its bolt. All the movements of today, however blindly led and stupidly followed, have one thing in common: they tend consciously toward a new social synthesis and away from the idea of class war.

GERMANY is the most suggestive example. The German revolution probably will be the last in the West in which the "Communist danger" will be potent enough to use as a scarecrow. No competent observer believes that communism was a real danger in Germany, but at least it was stronger there than anywhere in Europe, and if it could not win where it was best organized, if in fact it could be employed to whip up the mightiest nationalist reaction in modern times, where will it succeed?

Nor is this to say that the Bolsheviki will not succeed in building socialism in Russia. All signs indicate that they are well on their way. Here is one of the most powerful reasons for the Kremlin's new line in foreign policy. This line is not the famous "party line"—the plank all Soviet citizens must walk—but it is the path of "realpolitik," and the signposts along that road are nowhere more shrewdly followed than in Moscow.

The sharp swing away from any sort of internationalism, Communist especially, is not ignored here; wherefore, Russian communism, absurd as this sounds, is itself becoming strongly nationalist. You have only to attend a mass meeting or listen to a radio speech to hear all the familiar appeals to patriotism. "Our socialist fatherland" is a fatherland, after all, like any other, and invocations of "our great country," "our unconquerable Red Army, armed with all modern weapons," are intended to rouse the same sentiments as such slogans inspire everywhere.

Sovfoto.

Delegates to the Soviet Congress—"There Was No Doubt of Their Interest in the Reports on International Affairs."

Russia, in short, is a nation in a world of nations. The first concern of the Soviet Government is to defend its power and to consolidate and perpetuate the Soviet system within its own wide territory. Not for any cause, even the cause of socialism, does it desire a disturbance which would interfere with that purpose. Obviously, it has sewed up the western border in order to have a free hand for the East, where danger is greater. Quite as obviously, though 250,000 Red soldiers are on guard on the eastern frontier, though the Transsiberian Railway is choked with arms, supplies and men moving in that direction, though Litvinoff has declared that the U. S. S. R. will protect by force even "the approaches" to her territory and though the "strong arm" has been shaken vigorously since American recognition and the record grain collections, Russia does not want war with Japan.

THE Red Army is the largest and to the inexpert eye the most formidable-looking in the world. Watching the troops stamping by day after day in the Winter haze, indifferent as fate, I know they are the last soldiers I'd care to argue with. Yet nobody thinks of them as an aggressive force. It should not be forgotten that Russia is still fighting an internal war; that is the aspect of the situation that most impresses the observer here. She seeks no external adventure that would interrupt the heavy battle for Socialist construction—and this is a battle, make no mistake, fought in the atmosphere and with the slogans, the intensity and the methods of military organization—or slow up the completion of the strategetically placed "giants" of heavy industry designed to make her independent of outside equipment.

Still less does she seek any disturbance that might entail outside interference. This is the cornerstone of Soviet foreign policy. The struggle with the peasants over the collectivization of the land has been a long and costly conflict, of which the casualties will never be counted nor the full story told. The war is won now; all but a fraction of the farms have been socialized and the results of the collective harvests have exceeded estimates.

Nevertheless, the pressure against the "class enemy" has been felt by the masses as never before, for while the industrial population is nearly trebled, and more millions of kulaks have been liquidated than anybody knew existed, Russia is still preponderantly peasant. Anything that divides and demoralizes the peasants affects the cities, affects the army, composed largely of sons of peasants. It will take time to restore morale in regions where the struggle was hardest, and at least an interval of success before it is safe to risk a test of whether people coerced into line can be relied on to fight for their collectives as they fight for their farms.

That the nervousness in regard to the eastern front is not altogether caused by fear of Japanese militarism is proved by the extraordinary exceptions to all rules made in favor of Soviet citizens living beyond the Ural Mountains. To keep the inhabitants of the Russian Far East satisfied, they are exempted from grain requisitions, restrictions on private trade, pressure to collectivize, from most of the conditions peasants in less exposed districts have resisted in vain. And one reason given for this virtual suspension of socialism is to tempt people from the more socialized parts of the country to settle there!

It is nearly impossible to know what goes on in this vast, little-traveled and tightly controlled empire—where the reporter is constantly confused by contradictions, all equally true—but enough leaks out of the party congress and appears in shifts of policy and changes of personnel to reveal that in the Far East, Tadjikistan, the Ukraine, the Caucasus, the Volga Republics, the inner struggle still goes on.

FOR all these reasons, and others, the Soviet foreign policy is a policy of peace. It is no exaggeration to say that the immense satisfaction of the government in the resumption of normal relations with the United States goes beyond the question of trade and credit, vitally important as this question is at the present stage of Russian development. Soviet-American cooperation is regarded primarily as a strong combination for peace; a delayed but for that reason more significant acknowledgment that Soviet power is firmly established and cannot be shaken, either at home or abroad.

It should be added that the popular view of foreign relations, especially of American recognition, is much simpler than the official attitude. Russians in general are an eager, friendly and to the American—more at home with young nations than old—a congenial and somehow touching people. To put over the first Five-Year Plan they have gone through a period of tension and privation which would have exhausted

PARIS AND PROVINCES: THE DUEL GOES ON

The Country Still Clings to the Fear That the Capital May Be Harboring The Friends of a Dictatorship

Paris—"The Wave of Anti-Parliamentary Feeling Is Principally a Parisian Phenomenon."

By HAROLD CALLENDER

PARIS.

FEW foreigners fully realize, and Parisians sometimes are prone to forget, that Paris is far from being typical of France. The stubborn democratic republicanism of the peasant and small tradesman and official which dominates the politics of the country is not dominant in the capital, and a Parisian salon may be very deceptive as a gauge of the political sentiments of France.

The wave of anti-parliamentary feeling—adroitly utilized to the point of riotousness by conservative groups who profess to stand for law and order—is principally a Parisian phenomenon. The Parisians of the "Right," who speak of their respectable, bourgeois insurrection as a patriotic outburst having what one writer called "moral beauty," have now become concerned at the "terrible misunderstanding" between Paris and the provinces which it revealed. "The provinces will never quite understand," said one Parisian commentator, "that a 'Left' government backed by a huge majority should be overthrown by a clamor from the street."

The provinces, or most of them, still retain pronounced preferences for parliamentary and democratic methods—old-fashioned as such convictions may seem in a time when it has become a sort of fad to regard liberalism, both political and economic, as a lifeless relic of the past. It is arguable that the kind of Parliament they seem to favor is one that does nothing very bold or remarkable, and that their democracy serves chiefly as a defense against concentration of power and what they call reaction.

One often has the impression that loyalty to the republic rests largely upon the fear, inherited from the Revolution, of a revival of the old régime which might bring the former ruling classes back into power and deprive the peasant and worker of their numerous rights and privileges; that French democracy, like French individualism, is in a sense a negative thing, a system of safeguards to protect the average man against the powerful and thus assure for him and his descendants a fuller life and wider opportunities.

At any rate there persists in the provinces a deeply rooted, traditionalist, almost dogmatic, republicanism, closely associated with a doctrine much like that which in America used to be called "rugged individualism"; and Paris is looked upon, at least by the provincial radicals, as a community that has never been fully converted to republicanism, as a centre where the reactionary forces which threaten the republic are most highly concentrated and organized. To the provinces Paris represents the wealth and power of the upper middle class and the remnants of the aristocracy, the groups and interests against which democracy must be defended. It represents, too, a kind of urbane and cosmopolitan cynicism which ill accords with the simple republican faith of the provinces.

"Paris is republican, but with Boulangist (dictatorial) leanings," said a distinguished Frenchman recently, "and does not understand the more earnest republicanism of the provinces."

Hence the abiding fear of a dictator—of some new Bonaparte or Boulanger, perhaps next time equipped with a fascist-like doctrine—takes the form of suspicion of Paris, where he would be most likely to make his appearance and would find the greatest sympathy.

The anti-parliamentarism of Paris has arisen chiefly among the intellectuals and the propertied class, who consider that their wealth is threatened by high taxation and the costly privileges of the trade unions; while the republicanism of the provinces, whose supporters, even when well-to-do, like to regard themselves as "advanced," derives its strength principally from the farmers, the small proprietors, the tradesmen and the professional people of modest means.

PARIS is the political, financial, social and intellectual capital of France; much of the activity of the country is centred here; Paris is so articulate and has absorbed so many of the diversified elements of the nation that it seems that in Paris may be heard the authentic voice of France. Foreigners read the Paris newspapers, magazines, plays and novels and accept them as representative of France. Rarely do they see provincial newspapers—though some of them are excellent. Rarely do travelers come into contact with many of the 33,000,000 Frenchmen living outside of Paris, save at Cannes or Deauville or Vichy, which live by the tourist trade. All the world knows Paris, but few, even among Parisians, know Lille, Roubaix, Nantes, Montpelier, Aix, Bordeaux, Périgueux, or Besançon. Yet is it in the provincial towns and villages, rather than in Paris, that the course of French politics is determined.

Paris is a centre of luxury, of amusement, of learning, of trade, finance and cosmopolitanism. Whether one is interested chiefly in art or study or business or good food and drink or entertainment, life in Paris may be exciting and satisfying. But precisely because Paris has so much to offer, because it is one of the most fascinating of the great capitals and in many ways a community unto itself, it is remote from and out of touch with the life of the peasant, the worker, the small proprietor, the tradesman, the local functionary, who comprise the mass of the French population.

For centuries Paris has drawn immigrants both from foreign countries and from the French provinces. It was a hospitable refuge for poliitcal exiles, an alluring place for shopping or play, a perpetual field of opportunity for the youth from the small town or village. Paris became a melting pot, its population constantly augmented by aliens from many parts of Europe and by provincials from every corner of France.

These newcomers have influenced Paris less than they have been influenced by it. Many retain for a time their foreign characteristics and lend to some parts of Paris a polyglot air, but for the most part the immigrants, alien and provincial, are assimilated and become Parisian. For many provincials, as for the foreigners, this means the adoption of a new language and a new manner of life. The Parisians who have come from Alsace, Provence, Gascony or Brittany often form clubs on a provincial basis, just as Scots have formed Caledonian Societies in all parts of the world; but they rarely return to their native countryside, their local dialects give way to the Parisian speech and their children become as Parisian as the descendants of families that have dwelt in Paris for generations.

The Provinces—"They Still Prefer Democracy."

REFLECTING though it does the regional and racial diversity of the population of France, Paris is in many respects a world of its own. To the average provincial it is a city of which—since it represents different interests and a different point of view—he is suspicious and distrustful. In the provinces Paris is regarded as frivolous and mercurial and its upper middle class is suspected of hostility to the republican régime; while Paris, on its side, is impatient of the stubborn and somewhat negative radicalism predominant in the rest of the country.

In Germany the nationalism represented by the Nazis began in the provinces, gradually swept the country with remarkable completeness and finally captured even Socialist and Communist Berlin;

CONANT SETS FORTH HIS CREED FOR HARVARD

The Ambition of the New President Is to Inspire in the Student Respect for Knowledge and Zest for Creative Scholarship undergraduates of Harvard College with an enthusiasm for creative scholarship and a respect for the accumulated treasures of the past. A zest for intellectual adventure must be characteristic of every university. The teachers must be scholars who are extending the frontiers of knowledge in every direction."

The compelling reason is that "able young men enlist only in an enterprise to which they are persuaded they, too, may contribute creative work." If there is no such challenge in the intellectual field tended by the universities the young men will find the challenge elsewhere. The hold on youth is thus broken and the community at large loses interest. After all, of what permanent value is a community of scholars and students which fails to keep alive a "high regard for the achievements of the human mind"—the thing upon which the structure of civilization is built—and which does not, therefore, "nurture true reverence for learning in the community"?

Of this community the loyal body of scholastically undistinguished alumni—what the English call "passmen"—is an influential part. It is these men who furnish universities not only their endowment but a powerful backing of which pride in the universities' achievements is the mainstay.

Characterize as platitudes, if you have a mind, the quotations above. They are not platitudes to Conant. They represent the practical religion or philosophy—name it how you will—which is the inspiration and the guide to action of a man brought up in a laboratory who confesses that he is partly armed for the conflict with life by Marcus Aurelius and Montaigne. These are moralists pragmatic enough, one might fancy, even for the modern empirical-minded youth.

HARVARD, Conant holds, having no right to waste exceptional advantages, "should endeavor to draw to its staff the ablest investigators and teachers [emphatically he wants no division between the two] in the world," and should "provide every opportunity for the ambitious, brilliant young scholar to come to Harvard"—alike for the scholar's own benefit and Harvard's credit. Though, basically, it remains a New England college, or a college largely recruited from a now widely scattered "Harvard community," based on New England origins or traditional associations, "Harvard, as a truly national university, should even more in the future than in the past attract to its student body the most promising young men throughout the whole nation."

This does not assume that Harvard is so superior that she is entitled to hog all the best. Rather, as a member of the big league of universities, the team from Cambridge on the Charles must enter into the keen competition for the best team, made up of the best men, which Conant conceives to be the ideal healthy condition of a big league of universities, as of a big league of baseball players. It was this condition which existed in the German universities during the three-quarters of a century when German scholarship won such prodigious prestige throughout the world.

Essential in Conant's view is this: "That any man with remarkable talents may get his education at Harvard, whether he be rich or penniless, whether he come from Boston or San Francisco." In such cases distance and penury should be eliminated as factors of exclusion. Adequate scholarships should be provided to make this possible. As we have seen, the process of extending the provision of scholarships in this direction has begun.

Thus the picked crew of the engine of instruction is a prime concern of the new administration. But hardly less in the mind of the head of that administration bulks the "community of scholars and students" as a social body.

"More souls are saved around the dinner table than through courses", is a saying that sums up this side of Conant's educational program. In his address to his first class of freshmen, he said: "All through your four years you will have the privilege of dining with a group of your friends, and, of course, will be thrown into a variety of human relationships by your mere presence in an active student body. With a little discrimination on your part you can hardly fail to have a group of friends who are interested in almost the whole range of human activities. By talking with them and understanding their hobbies you will lay the basis for a truly liberal education. One can afford to be something of a specialist, even in one's undergraduate days, provided one has, as friends and companions, those who are interested in entirely different things."

This is a leaf torn from Conant's own book of life. He began being a specialist in chemistry in the Roxbury Latin School which prepared him for Harvard. But neither at school nor at college were his friends picked only or mainly from the laboratory.

WHEN the choice for president of Harvard fell upon a man who had made his reputation in a scientific laboratory, his fellow-workers cried out that it was a shame to make a mere executive of a chemist who had made important discoveries — discoveries, too, in that borderland between chemistry and the mystery of life where lies the most adventurous hope, perhaps, of the further significant advance of human knowledge. Conant had been working on the green coloring matter of plants, called chlorophyll and the hemoglobin in the blood. What he achieved (in his own modest words) included the "elucidation" of the probable nature of the second, and the "partial elucidation" of the structure of the first. It is not a subject that we can even partially elucidate.

As a boy, in Dorchester, Mass., where he was born, Jim, or Bryant Conant, as he was variously tagged by his familiars, had rigged up a laboratory for himself in his father's house, that father, James Scott Conant, being an inventive wood-engraver who went on to photo-engraving and made for a time a considerable success of the business, after serving both in the army and in the navy during the Civil War. The son was (they say) a bad speller but sufficiently diligent in diversified studies to get into Harvard before he was 18, and, with chemistry for stroke oar, to arrive at his degree with high honors three years later. After a Summer spent in the laboratories of the Midvale Steel Company in Philadelphia, he was back at Cambridge to take his Ph. D. in 1916. Hard on that came his war service.

As part of the task of beating the Germans, our army was trying to better the German chemists' lethal inventions. Actually it was the mild-mannered man with the blue eyes behind the steel-rimmed spectacles, now president of Harvard, who, while on military duty as lieutenant and then as captain in Washington, worked out a method for the production of the gas, more powerful than mustard gas, that came to be called "lewisite." As Major Conant, he was sent to a commandeered motor-car plant at Willoughby, Ohio, where, with a score of other officers and some 500 men, his concern was the quantity production of lewisite.

As extreme precaution toward guarding a prime military secret, he and his companions found themselves confined for the duration of the war within the high wire fence which enclosed the plant. It was called "the Mousetrap." The armistice found the gas-making going on full speed ahead (though no shipment had yet been made overseas) and Conant very much on the job as technical expert in charge. His executive ability, his technique of handling men, were each tried, proved and tempered in the Mousetrap. There, too, no doubt, his happy gift for the unhurried, efficient dispatch of business was considerably cultivated and perfected. From the Mousetrap he went back to Harvard and his more peaceful chemical occupations, becoming full professor in 1927 and head of his department in 1931.

IT is an arresting fact that the man who sits in the president's chair of the university, which is interwoven with all the traditions of culture in Massachusetts and New England has no direct ancestor among Harvard graduates or, for that matter, among the graduates of any college—so far as the record has been uncovered. This notwithstanding that the Conant family, which has been seated in New England for 300 years, has furnished in collateral lines seventeen Harvard graduates within that period.

In May, 1636, the name of the ancestor of them all, Roger Conant, who had come from English Devonshire thirteen years before, appears in connection with a plan to devote to the use of a college for the Colony of Massachusetts Bay a large tract of land at Salem, a town of which this Roger was the rightful founder. Not Salem which history has linked with trials for witchcraft, but Cambridge, close to upstart Boston, got the college. But the record of Roger Conant's activity precedes by some months the official act which created the institution that we now know as Harvard. And thus his name leads all the rest that the written word preserves of the promoters of the seat of learning over which his six-times great-grandson rules.

Roger, though a member of the Worshipful Company of Salterers of London town — Massachusetts was deep in the salt fish business in those days—had his academic background, too. His nephew, John Conant, was Rector of Exeter College, Oxford, and Vice Chancellor of the university. James Bryant Conant's ancestral lines also lead back to Governor Bradford and John Alden of the Plymouth Colony.

Of such sound New England stock is the man who has in his hands the destiny of New England's oldest college, which many also count America's most distinguished university—at least when there are no Yale, Columbia, Princeton or Virginia men within hearing.

BEHIND THE GREAT RECORD OF SCOTLAND YARD

The Sturdy English Habit of Siding With the Police Against the Criminal Has Helped Build Up the Lore of Unerring Detection

LONDON.

SCOTLAND YARD again! News from Washington indicates the increase in racketeering has led the President to consider the advisability of creating a Federal police and detective force of a character described as "somewhat akin to Scotland Yard." Such news as this must make the eyes of racketeers get bigger and bigger. True, it might be pointed out that such a force would be even more chastening in its effect on racketeers if the President were to create along with it a population "somewhat akin" to the English population. Racketeering would then cease of its own accord. But the inculcation of a sense of law in the general populace is necessarily a long and rocky road.

It may be that talk about this proposal to beat racketeering should only be indulged in by people with perfectly steady heads, for it skirts the brink of a deep and wide chasm—the chasm which yawns between fact and fiction at Scotland Yard. In fiction Scotland Yard is far in advance of all other official detective bodies, so much so that its name has become almost synonymous with the swift and sure punishment of crime.

But in fact, as distinct from fiction, there is no mysterious secret hidden away in the big red and white building overlooking the Thames. As far as technical methods go, Scotland Yard can only do what every other front-rank detective service does, and vice versa. It can and does hit upon its own congenial combination of methods. Between the enormous card indexes of the Berlin detective and the brilliant guesswork of the Paris detective, Scotland Yard strikes a middle point.

But this is not its secret. The one thing which makes it the most famous detective force in the world is the character of the population, for in criminal matters the English are always on the side of the police and against the criminal. They give the police a degree of cooperation which makes it easier to catch criminals in England than in any other country.

HOW does Scotland Yard work? By the usual detective methods but with perhaps a slightly different emphasis. It uses informers, as everybody else does. It also makes quick and effective use of the public by appealing for information, and this is more typical of Scotland Yard than of most other detective services. A questionnaire is drawn up for the use of everybody who can give information of any sort. The answers which this questionnaire brings in are sent to the men who sit with luke-warm cups of tea beside them in the roomful after roomful of large quarto volumes which make up the criminal records at Scotland Yard. These studious men sort out the answers and search their classified volumes for the likely man.

Suppose that a youngster of 21 has been interrupted in a burglary and has accidentally killed a man in making his getaway. In twenty-four hours Scotland Yard has so much information about him that a detective goes straight to a down-river pub, finds his man sitting behind a stove and taps him on the shoulder. He comes quietly and a few weeks later he is hanged. It is all done on information received from outsiders, mostly from members of the general public whose only motive is the respect for law which makes them rally instantly to the police. Such cases have nothing to do with the spectacular Scotland Yard of fiction, yet they comprise from 90 to 95 per cent of all the arrests which the Yard makes.

But suppose that the information which pours into Scotland Yard cannot be made to fit any known criminal. More than a thousand statements, perhaps, are taken from the public. Every one of them is individually followed up as far as it leads. For the moment all of them lead nowhere, for they seem to refer to a man who is unknown to Scotland Yard.

In this case, Scotland Yard is up a tree. It does not give up—it never gives up—but its hope now lies in another direction, for new criminals usually arrest themselves by their clumsiness in leaving clues behind them. They may be no more than microscopic clues, but they are not beyond the reach of the little black "murder bags" which are always packed and waiting at

The Hunt Begins—Examining Fingerprints at Scotland Yard.

Scotland Yard. These contain the complete tools of the modern detective's trade.

From this beginning there arise the more spectacular cases of detection in which arrests are made on evidence built up from the burnt matchstick which the criminal left behind him. In such cases the Scotland Yard of fact begins to approach that of fiction. And such cases account for less than 5 per cent of all the arrests that Scotland Yard makes.

OF course, if a new criminal leaves no clue behind him, Scotland Yard remains where it is—up a tree. In fact, it remains up a tree at times when other detective forces would certainly find means of coming down to earth and making an arrest; for while in criminal matters the English are always on the side of the police, as against the State, they are always on the side of the individual citizen.

These two traits in the English character have results which may seem to be mutually contradictory but in reality are not. One result, as has already been noted, is that England is the easiest of all countries in which to catch a criminal. At the same time the English insistence on the rights of the individual makes the legal process of arrest a more difficult one in England than in any other country in the world.

Thus, Scotland Yard works under the peculiar conditions which its population imposes on it. It is as wonderfully organized as all metropolitan forces are—more so than most, because it is not a municipal force but a government force administered by the Home Office and with a national status in one or two very limited respects. There are, for example, 400,000 "dabs" in its finger-print bureau. They cover all the convictions for felonies and for some misdemeanors in England and Wales during the last thirty years. Its habitual convicts' registry covers the same territory for the last seventy years. Its register of laundry marks is also national.

It publishes a national twice-a-week police newspaper copiously illustrated with profile and full-face photographs, as well as a London evening paper, also for police use only, with four daily and two Sunday editions. You can buy none of these newspapers on the bookstalls, and none of their various editors is ever worried by the libel laws. It has a "black museum" stored with relics of bygone London crimes, and in this Grand Guignol the prosaic Scotland Yard of fact suddenly leaps the chasm which divides it from the macabre Scotland Yard of fiction.

AS the headquarters of the metropolitan police force, it is responsible for the peace of 8,000,000 Londoners living and working within a radius of fifteen miles from Charing Cross, excepting those of the central square mile of the City, who have an independent police force of their own.

The uniformed London Bobby is a famous lad, but his plainclothes brother of the C. I. D.—the Criminal Investigation Department—is perhaps more famous still, for it is on him that the Scotland Yard of fiction sheds its most lurid light. There are 20,000 men in the uniformed force and 1,000 in the C. I. D. Only 300 of these are attached to the headquarters staff at Scotland Yard; half of them are in the so-called Special Branch, which is the nearest thing to a political police force that England has.

The London Bobby is so universally venerated that he ceases to be a human being and becomes a monument of impersonal courtesy perched on a pedestal all his own. Perhaps it is less easy to discover this attitude toward the ordinary detective, for his plain clothes make him less easy to identify; but it exists in connection with the inspectors of the C. I. D. at Scotland Yard. These men are known to every Londoner by their photographs, and they are viewed with something very like awe. There is some streak in the English character which gathers even the hangman into the scope of this national veneration.

All these are factors which have to be taken into consideration when you attempt to separate the Scotland Yard of fact from the Scotland Yard of fiction. It is a strikingly successful police headquarters, but it has a population of exceptional character with which to deal.

Deafened Here Are Enthusiastic Over New, Easy Hearing Method

New hope has come to scores of deafened people who, last week, received a demonstration of an entirely new type of hearing aid by Acousticon.

For the first time since their hearing was impaired, these people took part in group conversation from all angles and at considerable distance. They heard sounds they had not been able to hear for years. Their new hearing was clear, natural, strong. And general delight was expressed at its inconspicuousness.

Even those whose middle ear mechanism is completely destroyed can hear with this device—the New Amplified Bone Conduction Acousticon—since it uses a new auditory path—bone conduction.

Free demonstrations given at Acousticon, 580 Fifth Ave., also at authorized consultants. In Westchester County, Mrs. J. H. Vidal, 76 Mamaroneck Ave., White Plains; in Newark, Willard S. Mears, 671 Broad St.; in East Orange, Leon Berg and Adele Spaeth, 50 Brick Church Plaza—or in your home or office, by appointment. Booklet "Defeating Deafness" on request, write Dept. 7TM.

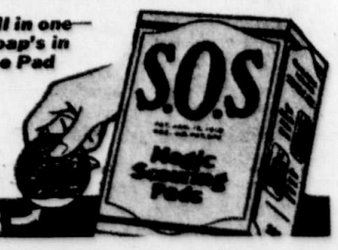
Buy the Handy, New 4-Pad Package

Don't let this happen in your home! Free your cooking utensils from yesterday's odors by Micro-cleaning them with magic S.O.S.

S.O.S. is entirely different. Soap and pad are all in one. Cuts heaviest "grease film" in no time. Keeps dirtiest, greasiest pans, skillets, stoves, baking tins, Pyrex, "Micro-clean"*—entirely removes "coffee crust" from inside of coffee pots.



Things no old-style cleaner can do, S.O.S. does with half the work and in one-third the time. You can dry any "Micro-clean"* surface with your best tea towel without soiling.

No messy rags and wasteful powders. Nothing to get under nails and roughen hands. No extra soap. S. O. S. is perfectly smooth. Pad and special cleansing compound are all in one.

S.O.S. "Micro-cleans"* and polishes at one time. Keeps over 40 metal surfaces bright as new. No waste. Economical, too. One little S.O.S. pad often lasts a week. Order from your grocer at once. Try half at our risk. If not satisfied, return the remaining pads and get all your money back. The S.O.S. Company, Chicago.

*"Micro-clean" means microscopically clean

ADMISSION TO DEGREES

The graduating classes will enter Convocation Hall in procession under the guidance of their Marshals, will occupy the places reserved for them, and will remain standing until the Chancellor, the President, the Senate, the Governors, and the Staff have entered the Hall and have taken their seats upon the platform. The audience is requested to rise when the Chancellor and the Procession enter the Hall.

The President will request the members of the graduating classes to rise in their places, and when they have done so, will address the Chancellor as follows:

> "Insignissime Cancellarie:
> Praesento tibi hosce scholares in Facultate Artium ut admittantur in gradum Baccalaurei in Artibus, testorque eos quoad omnia quae statuta requirunt aptos et idoneos esse."

The Chancellor will reply as follows:

> "Ad profectum Britannici Imperii Provinciaeque ego auctoritate mea et totius Universitatis admitto vos ad gradum Baccalaurei in Artibus, licentiamque vobis do omnia ea faciendi quae ad illum gradum pertinent."

The President will, on behalf of the University, extend greetings and congratulations to the members of the graduating classes, who will then resume their seats.

The presenters, in the order indicated in the programme, will call forward the various groups and when each group is in place will read the names one by one in order that each candidate may advance and receive his degree at the hands of the Chancellor.

As soon as a candidate hears his name called by the presenter he will mount the steps of the platform and kneel upon the stool in front of the Chancellor; he will place his hands together in such a position that they may be clasped by the Chancellor, who will admit him to the degree with the words, "Admitto te ad gradum"; at the same instant the bedel will place the appropriate hood upon his shoulders. The candidate will then rise, the hood being removed by the bedel, will retire to his left to make way for the next candidate, and will return to his seat in the Hall.

If a candidate has his own hood he will carry it in his left hand, holding it by the narrow part, and will give it to the bedel when he reaches the platform.

After degrees have been conferred upon all candidates present, the President will address the Chancellor as follows:

> "Insignissime Cancellarie:
> Praesento tibi Registrarium nostrum, Arturum Fennell, procuratorem ut pro candidatis absentibus gradum Baccalaurei in Artibus accipiat quem illi meruerunt testorque eos quoad omnia quae statuta requirunt aptos et idoneos esse."

The Chancellor will confer appropriate degrees upon all absent candidates through the Registrar of the University, who will act as their proxy.

The Chancellor will bring the proceedings to a close by saying "Convocatio dimissa est".

"God Save the King" will be sung.

Candidates will sign the Roll of Convocation in the Registrar's Office.

Prayer

THE PROVOST OF TRINITY COLLEGE

Almighty God, of Whose only gift come wisdom and understanding, we beseech Thee to bless the Universities and Colleges of our land and those who teach and those who learn therein. More especially do we ask Thee to behold with Thy favour this honourable foundation to which we belong, and these who to-day pledge it their fealty and go forth from it to serve their country, their kind, and their God. Grant that from all institutions of sound learning the light of Truth, Beauty and Goodness may shine with growing brightness on all men, so that knowledge, wisdom and righteousness may be the stability of our times.

All this we beg through Him who is the Way, the Truth and the Life. Amen.

Mr. Chairman, Mr. Chancellor, Mr. President,
Ladies and Gentlemen:

You will, I am sure, not be surprised that the associations awakened and the memories revived by my presence within the halls of my Alma Mater tonight and by the faces of those with whom I have the honour of being seated at this head table, and by the kindly words of the Chancellor in introducing me to this distinguished gathering, should be so many and significant as to make it very difficult to know just where I should begin to attempt to express appreciation of the courtesy of the University College Alumni Association in inviting me to be its guest upon this occasion, and any adequate acknowledgment of this high honour. In my thoughts of the moment, there is bound up the most cherished of the associations and memories of pretty much the whole of my life.

In extending the Association's invitation, Mr. Macdonald, the Secretary-Treasurer, while saying the committee would wish to leave me free in the selection of any subject for my remarks, were of the opinion that, if I would indulge in some reminiscences of the past, and particularly of my undergraduate days at University College, he believed that would prove a more acceptable theme for the occasion than any other. Whether this suggestion was made in the light of the knowledge that I belong to the class of '95, some of the movements of which were not unlike phases of the present day unrest, or whether it was to remind me that the years are fleeting all too rapidly by, I am unable to say. If the reason were the former one, I should just like to say that time has not served to alter my sympathies with those movements which seek a new and better order of things, nor has it placed me in a position of public life at the moment where opposition to the government of the day has become any less imperative. Dr. Cody, in so far as it would be fair to regard him in university circles as a Twentieth Century representative of Bishop Strachan of the Nineteenth, would say that I come naturally by my rebel proclivities. If the reason relates to the wisdom which comes with years, rather than to the impetuosities of youth, I have only to look at the venerable Chancellor, for whom I have so great affection, and who has introduced me in such kindly terms this evening, to assure this gathering that I have still a long way to go before laying any claim to the right to reminisce.

However, being anxious above all else to meet the wishes of those whose hospitality I have the privilege of enjoying this evening, I shall gladly forego the temptation to touch upon some of the weightier problems to which I have been devoting attention in our House of Commons, and which, in times like the present, might appear within the halls of a university to be a more appropriate theme, and forego as well another temptation, namely, that of speaking at too great length, and permit myself a moment of retrospect, bound up, as you should wish it to be, with some relationship to the present and the future.

Mackenzie's interest in University - on establishing provincial university he contended for adoption of a principle which would have prevented good deal of subsequent difficulty. University based on proposal of Dr. Strachan, he predicted, would attract but few students, if tied down by tests and oaths to support particular dogmas. In these days of challenge to institutions of government, of learning, of the home, the church, of great social, political and economic unrest, our institutions and men of learning have a great responsibility in seeing that thought, rather than feeling, should be applied to the problems of our age.

The great economic and political upheavals which we have witnessed within the last few years are the result more of blind passion, directed in a negative way, than the result of constructive thinking.

Only by the application of severe and rigorous thinking will we be able to discern between what can relieve, and what can only aggravate, the great problems with which mankind is today confronted.

The University, and those associated with it, should, as the result of study of the history of human progress, realize, above all others, that the line of progress has been an uneven one, that there are periods of recession, as well as advance. In periods like the present, when the great onward sweep of improvement is halted, and the movement seems actually backward in the wrong direction, those who have American Speeches by J. Ramsay MacDonald.

Guest of the Canadian Government
October 17th, 1929.

"Mr. Prime Minister, if in these early days in London, which you painfully remind me are thirty-two, thirty-three, thirty-four years distant, I had addressed you as 'Mr. Prime Minister'; if I had addressed Mr. Sidney Webb as 'Lord Passfield', and if you had addressed me as 'The Right Honourable', we should have been inclined to go to Clarkson, the theatrical wig-maker, in order that we might adorn ourselves appropriately for the fancy-dress ball that then would have been in our minds. But there is nothing more surprising than the decrees of fate, and here we are, you Prime Minister of Canada, I, Prime Minister of Great Britain, Sidney Webb a member of the House of Lords. What it amounts to is this: We have all to make our own roads, and not only our roads, but the homes which we inhabit at the end of our roads. It was a great generation, that of ours. It was a generation when old things were passing away and everything was becoming new. It was a generation which was closing a magnificent series of chapters of our national history, and you and I and our friends and colleagues who met at 3 Lincoln's Inn Fields and elsewhere, just over a generation ago in London, happened to be born as the beginnings, as the forerunners of the new generation that is now in authority over the nations of the world."

Congratulations to Lord Duncannon -

Occasion in celebration of 21st birthday anniversary;

Congratulations and good wishes none the less spontaneous and sincere in that 3 months have elapsed since March 29.

Host of his friends, in both younger and older circles, join in wishing him many happy returns of his birthday anniversary.

Congratulations to Lord and Lady Bessborough -

Must be source of pride to them to see their son and heir attain his majority with so much of attainment of mind and personality to his credit.

His charm of manner and attainments a tribute to his distinguished parents, from whom it is so easy to discern they have been derived.

With his father of an ancient Irish family and his mother of French, he combines in his person, like Canada herself, many of the best ditural characteristics of Britain and France.

Variety of Lord Duncannon's Interests and Studies -

Interest in Canada -

Evinced by his trip across Canada within short time of his arrival;

D 30299
~~30300~~

Interest in Theatre -

His early aptitude for theatre encouraged by father;

His performances constitute a fine series of achievements for one his years, and give promise of great career should he decide to pursue it as such;

His interest along with that of Their Excellencies has done much to vitalize the theatre in Canada;

- great and important place the theatre can play in life of nation as well as individual.

Interest in Problems of Day -

Evinced by his selection of economics as field of special study;

Most of problems of our day are related in one way or another to economics - without some knowledge in this department, clear grasp of them hardly possible;

In choice of department, as in choice of University, following tradition set by his father - financier, his work in City.

Lord Duncannon to be congratulated upon combining his interest in economics, which deals with activities of man's working hours, with his interest in theatre, which deals with activities of man's leisure.

Good Wishes -

His first 21 years have given every promise that he will maintain and develop the fine traditions of his family;

Our best wishes for the remainder of his career at Cambridge and for all that the years may bring.

Your Excellencies, Lord Duncannon, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I feel much honoured in having been invited to join the Prime Minister in the toast he has just proposed to the one in whose honour this dinner is being given by Their Excellencies and who this year, among other distinctions, has achieved that of reaching his majority.

If, as Wordsworth has said, it be true that "The Child is father of the Man"", we shall have little difficulty in discerning from what we know of his years of the past what we may expect in the career which we fervently hope and believe will be his in the future.

It was our good fortune to come to know Lord Duncannon just about the time he had completed his public school course and was about to enter upon his undergraduate studies at Cambridge. I am sure the young ladies present will feel Fortune has not favoured them as greatly as they doubtless wish when, during these impressionable years, she took him so large a part of the time away from Rideau Hall in Canada to college halls in the Old Lands. If there be any such feeling in the hearts of those who are present this evening, let me remind them that everything looks at its brightest and best in the vacation period, and wherever the future may take him, there is little doubt, I think, that Lord Duncannon will be counting the hours when the ship may bring him again to the shores of Canada and afford him the opportunity of renewing the friendships and possibly realising some of the hopes which he may have secretly cherished when participating in the enjoyments such as the one I understand is to follow this dinner.

In the few years during which we have known him and the all too fleeting glimpses we have had of him in that period, two interests there appear to be which have held an uppermost place in Lord Duncannon's mind. Each of these, like the prologue of a play, would seem to give a key to the sequence of events in Lord Duncannon's life to which we shall all look forward with so great sympathy and interest.

The first of these is the particular field of studies on which in his university course, he has chosen to specialize. As, no doubt, all here are already aware, it has been to the study of economics that Lord Duncannon has given his chief attention, and that at a university which enjoys enviable distinction in this particular field of learning.

I hope Lord Duncannon will not take exception to my reminding him of a conversation which we had together one evening in this very room, in the course of which he permitted me to see something of the object he had in view in the selection of this particular course. It was the one which the traditions of the Old World, the distinguished families of the Old World, and the public schools and universities of the Old World have so largely helped to instil into the minds and breasts of those to whom the world has a right to look for leadership in its larger affairs. In a word, it was the idea of public service. Lord Duncannon has realised that the problems of his day are largely those which concern themselves with man's working hours and the wellbeing of the people at large, and he has wisely chosen to take early advantage of the quiet of the study to become acquainted with the fundamental principles of a great science by way of preparation for their application in the world of business, finance, and active politics, into which, all too soon, he may find himself immersed.

It is hardly necessary for me to make mention of the other absorbing interesting of Lord Duncannon's present years. It is one which he has shared with many who are here this evening, and which has served to educate as well as delight his fellow citizens of the British Empire in this Dominion, as well as in Britain itself. If his working hours and th working hours of others are concerned with the study of economics, he has, with equal wisdom, selected for the leisure hours of himself and the leisure hours of others, the stage and all that the drama reveals of human nature and the problems of human life. There, too, he has sought to be an interpreter of principles underlying human conduct and of those contrary forces which serve the arouse the passions and inspire the ideals which make for havoc or serenity in the human heart, and for cowardice or greatness in the human soul.

A man who, at the age of twenty-one, is able to depict with consummate skill equally the character of a Romeo and a Hamlet, already possesses a knowledge of life which to the greatest of authors and actors has come only with the experience of many years.

In extending our congratulations to Lord Duncannon, we would do so, therefore, not with less pride in his present attainments than with conviction in the useful and colourful and honourable career which we believe awaits him.

May I be permitted to add one word in conclusion. It is not Lord Duncannon alone to whom our congratulations should be extended this evening. I quoted at the outset those familiar lines of Wordsworth's, "The Child is father of the Man". Lord Duncannon would, I am sure, be the first to wish that this evening our congratulations should be extended not only to him but to Their Excellencies. If public service is already a watchword in his career, if it is founded on high and honourable traditions, if the drama ~~gkngx~~ appeals to his heart and he gives promise in that field of playing a part second to none, we have only to look to Their Excellencies to discover the secret of inspiration. It is easy to discover whence comes not only Lord Duncannon's charm of manner but also his desire to serve. To him and to us it will always be a happy thought that, with his father of an ancient Irish family and his mother a daughter of France, Lord Duncannon's outstanding characteristics have been born of what is highest and best in the traditions and culture of the races which have combined to make our young Canada what she is alike in her youth and beauty.

With our congratulations upon his twenty-first birthday anniversary, we extend to Lord Duncannon our sincerest and best of wishes for many very happy anniversaries through years to come.

Congratulations to Lord Duncannon -

Occasion in celebration of 21st birthday anniversary;

Congratulations and good wishes none the less spontaneous and sincere in that 3 months have elapsed since March 29.

Host of his friends, in both younger and older circles, join in wishing him many happy returns of his birthday anniversary.

Congratulations to Lord and Lady Bessborough -

Must be source of pride to them to see their son and heir attain his majority with so much of attainment of mind and personality to his credit.

His charm of manner and attainments a tribute to his distinguished parents, from whom it is so easy to discern they have been derived.

With his father of an ancient Irish family and his mother of French, he combines in his person, like Canada herself, many of the best cltural characteristics of Britain and France.

Variety of Lord Duncannon's Interests and Studies -

Interest in Canada -

Evinced by his trip across Canada within short time of his arrival;

Interest in Theatre -

His early aptitude for theatre encouraged by father;

His performances constitute a fine series of achievements for one his years, and give promise of great career should he decide to pursue it as such;

His interest along with that of Their Excellencies has done much to vitalise the theatre in Canada;

- great and important place the theatre can play in life of nation as well as individual.

Interest in Problems of Day -

Evinced by his selection of economics as field of special study;

Most of problems of our day are related in one way or another to economics - without some knowledge in this department, clear grasp of them hardly possible;

In choice of department, as in choice of University, following tradition set by his father - financier, his work in City.

Lord Duncannon to be congratulated upon combining his interest in economics, which deals with activities of man's working hours, with his interest in theatre, which deals with activities of man's leisure.

Good Wishes -

His first 21 years have given every promise that he will maintain and develop the fine traditions of his family;

Our best wishes for the remainder of his career at Cambridge

Flowers Fulfill Human Necessity

MacKenzie King Addresses Canadian Florists—Mayor Voices Welcome.

Flowers were a necessity in the lives of people in order to offset so much that was sordid and unpleasant in life, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King told the members of the Canadian Florists and Gardeners' Association at the official opening of their convention last night, at the Chateau Laurier.

Mr. King, in a few informal remarks of welcome to the approximately 300 delegates in attendance, referred to the work of beautification that had been carried on in Ottawa in past years, stating that it was the desire of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to make Ottawa "the Washington of the North" and that this idea had been fostered by successive governments.

Incidentally Mr. King referred to his own efforts to grow flowers, with varying degrees of success. He paid tribute to the contributions which the Canadian Florists and Gardeners' Association were making to the advancement of the community in their respective fields. Mr. King's speech was given an ovation.

Mayor P. J. Nolan, in his usual witty manner officially extended the freedom of the city to the delegates and handed them the key to the city of Ottawa. He hoped their convention would result in renewed inspiration for those attending and that their sojourn in the Capital would be one of pleasing memories.

When the convention opened invocation exercises were conducted by Canon Robert Jefferson of St. Matthew's Anglican church. Charles Craig, well known Ottawa horticulturist, and chairman of the Ottawa committee was in the chair. The reply to the address of welcome was delivered by J. C. Armour who introduced the president, P. E. Angle of Richmond Hill, Ont.

There was a private meeting of the directors at 9.30. During the opening ceremonies, vocal numbers were contributed in excellent voice by Miss Evelyn Cuthbert.

This morning the delegates get down to the real business of the convention as they have a crowded agenda which includes many papers on subjects of vital interest to florists and gardeners. At 7 o'clock tonight the annual association banquet will be held, while on Thursday there will be election of officers.

FLOREAT OTTAWA

The Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association would naturally be expected to take an informed interest in plans for the beautifying of the towns and cities in which their individual branches are active. As gardeners and Canadian citizens they should, of course, also have a cause for pride in their country's capital and a lively curiosity in any plans for its further beautification.

It was particularly suitable therefore that the principal speaker at the opening of the convention in Ottawa should have been the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King who has so clear a conception of how worthy a capital this city of Ottawa could be, and who told the convention a little of his hopes of its further development.

To those members who have travelled abroad it would be especially apparent that fine buildings alone do not make a worthy capital. The buildings must have their proper setting and proper complement of parks and gardens. In this Ottawa has made a good beginning, partly assisted by Nature. But, in comparison with what has been done elsewhere, it is, obviously for reasons which time and determination alone can remove, only a small beginning.

In welcoming the members of the association to the capital, Mayor Nolan performed the time-honored rite of presenting the visiting florists and gardeners with the keys to the city. Whatever other privileges this may confer on them, it surely gives them leave to speak—as an association also of public-spirited Canadians—on the place and value of the open space in the modern city, with particular application to Ottawa, the capital city of the Dominion; even to the extent of endorsing the hopes of Mr. Mackenzie King in this regard. They need not fear that such an expression of views would be looked upon by any national association of town planners as an unwarranted usurpation of professional territory.

Canadian Florists And Gardeners Are Welcomed to City

Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King And Mayor P. J. Nolan Greet Delegates to Convention in Ottawa.

Featured by addresses of welcome from Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the opposition, and Mayor P. J. Nolan of Ottawa, the 37th annual convention of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association opened last night at the Chateau Laurier.

Charles Craig of Ottawa, chairman of the convention, presided, and introduced the speakers. J. C. Armour replied to the addresses of welcome; and an address from the president, P. E. Angle of Richmond Hill, Ont., concluded the opening session of the convention. The invocation was given by Rev. Canon Robert Jefferson, rector of St. Matthew's Anglican church.

One Of Finer Things.

Speaking to the 300 representatives of the florist trade as an amateur but enthusiastic gardener himself, the Liberal leader emphasized the importance of the florist trade and the necessity to mankind of flowers and love of beautiful gardens as one of the finer things of life.

Quoting the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier in his desire to "make Ottawa the Washington of the North," Mr. King outlined the work that successive governments had done in bringing about this end, and the important part that flowers and floral decorations played in making the city more beautiful.

The florists' convention for the purpose of comparing and learning the latest ways of making floral decorations more beautiful was not only of commercial interest but in itself a contribution in a national way, declared Mr. King.

Mayor Nolan, in one of his characteristically witty speeches, welcomed the delegates to the Capital, and presented the chairman, Mr. Craig, with the keys of the city. The Mayor left as soon as his address was concluded to attend last night's meeting of City Council.

The board of directors of the association held a meeting following the inauguration of the convention; and the two day school of the Canadian Floral Telegraph Delivery, Inc., concluded last night to make way for the opening of the convention's program today.

This morning the convention will hear the president's address; the report of the board of directors, and two instructive addresses. At noon the delegates will visit and have luncheon at the Central Experimental Farm, returning later for a tour of the Parliament Buildings. The annual banquet will be held at seven o'clock at the Chateau.

Thursday morning will see nomination of officers and in the afternoon the reports of the committees will be read. The election of officers will take place Friday morning and the convention will conclude.

Throwing Down Of Gauntlet by Liberal Leader

Mackenzie King Demands General Election on the Ground Government Has Lost Country's Faith.

STEVENS PAMPHLETS

Incident Severely Criticized —Mr. King Takes Part in By-election Campaign at Kenora.

KENORA, Sept. 15—(CP)—At the outset of his "miniature general election" campaign, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion Liberal leader, here threw down the gauntlet to the Government. Forcibly he demanded a general election on the triple ground that the Government lacked the confidence of the country, of itself, and finally other nations with which Canada must trade if it is to exist and prosper.

Stevens' Pamphlet

Coupled with this demand was a caustic criticism of the Stevens' pamphlet incident, which Mr. King declared must have brought the Prime Minister and the Minister of Trade and Commerce either into direct opposition or "collusion." If the former, Mr. Stevens' resignation should have been demanded, he said, and should have been tendered. The British system held no place for a divided Cabinet. If the latter, it was just another "humbug," were the people prepared to support another humbug? he queried.

Today the Liberal leader was speeding eastward to Ottawa after travelling 1,000 miles to fire his opening shot in the constituency formerly held by Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor in the King Administration. The seat became vacant when Mr. Heenan accepted a portfolio in the Government of Premier Mitchell Hepburn. It is now being contested in the Liberal interests by another railwayman, Hugh B. McKinnon, who like Mr. Heenan, is an engine driver. Mr. McKinnon spoke briefly at the meeting last night.

Next week Mr. King continues his campaign with meetings at Enterprise, in the constituency of Frontenac-Addington, Markham in North York, St. Thomas, in West Elgin, and East Toronto. He will conclude with a meeting in the city of Montreal.

Element of "Intrigue"

Mr. Stevens had not offered his resignation, Mr. King said with reference to the pamphlet episode. He referred to the fact that when an administration retained power after it had lost the confidence of the people, abuses were likely to creep in. There was an element of "intrigue" in the Stevens matter, he felt, which was partly attributable to the Government's retention of office after it had losts its position in the country.

Had Mr. Stevens taken his prime minister or colleagues into his confidence when he issued the pamphlet? He had issued it and then gone out to Vancouver, and Mr. Bennett had suppressed it and gone to Geneva. That was the way the matter stood now. "I think the people of Canada will believe that Mr. Stevens thought Mr. Bennett was done as a leader, and he saw as a leader the man whom he regards as the champion of the people," remarked Mr. King.

Objects to Conference

He protested forcibly against the Government holding a conference with the provinces on social and constitutional questions. Such a conference should only be held, he maintained, by an administration with the full confidence of the people.

He did not believe, Mr. King asserted, that the present Government could negotiate trade agreements with other countries. He referred to this in connection with the recent resolution of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce advocating reciprocity with the United States. If the country waited too long before choosing a government which could negotiate with other countries, it might be too late, he warned. As for the Liberal party, it advocated trade with all countries which would trade with Canada on a fair basis.

KING DECLARES STEVENS SHOULD DEFY HIS LEADER

States He Did Not Have Courage—Thinks It's Collusion or Collision

"HUMBUG GOES ON"

By ROBERT LIPSETT

Kenora, Sept. 15.—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King took the hide off the ball at Kenora last night with the declaration that the Hon. H. H. Stevens did not have the courage of his convictions when he accepted the confiscation of his now noted pamphlet at the hands of Rt. Hon R. B. Bennett.

In the miniature general election which is now being fought out in five constituencies of Ontario Mr. King, last night, made his maiden address. Apart from his reference to the Stevens pamphlet, his speech was chiefly remarkable for its assault on the unfulfilled promises of Premier Bennett in 1930. Mr. King held that the entire trade policy of the Conservative government since 1930 had been such as to preclude any trade agreement with foreign countries. He was not at all hopeful that the reciprocity resolution passed this week by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at Winnipeg could be implemented.

Why, he asked, had not the chamber of commerce passed the resolution long ago. "They didn't do it because Mr. Bennett's policies were not designed in that direction. His policies were designed to strangle trade."

Have Common Interest

Mr. King probably laid down the high policy of the Liberal party in the next general election when he devoted the greater part of his speech to the common interest of labor and Liberalism. The two, he held, were inseparable. Mr. King, it will be recalled, was the first deputy minister of labor in Canada and the first minister of labor.

In discussion of the breach between Mr. Bennett and Mr. Stevens, Mr. King was most emphatic. "None of us know," he said, "the extent to which this collision has progressed, but I do know that if a similar situation had arisen in any government of which I was either prime minister or a member, that only one course would have been left open to the minister; that was his resignation. We have not seen Mr. Stevens' resignation, nor are we likely to see it."

Discussing British trade agreements as effected by the 1932 conference in Ottawa, Mr. King held that Canada was precluded from entering into profitable agreements with other nations.

Will Be Decisive

Mr. King was emphatic on the point that the issue in the five by-elections which will be fought out on Sept. 24 should be a decisive factor in the Bennett government seeking a new lease of life, but he was not so clear in the light of the new Franchise Act as to how this lease would be sought before next April.

"Are you supporting Mr. Bennett, or are you supporting Mr. Stevens?" Mr. King inquired at the outset of his speech. Mr. Stevens had issued a booklet, Mr. Bennett has ordered it destroyed. They were, said Mr. King, either in collusion, or in opposition. It was either an impossible situation or one of plain humbug. "There is only one other acceptable version and it is that Mr. Stevens thought Mr. Bennett was done as the party leader and expressed himself as the new hope," he said.

Humbug Goes On

"If I were Mr. Stevens," went on the Liberal leader, "I would defy Mr. Bennett and stand up and fight for the principles in which I believe. But no, Mr. Stevens is going to be the chairman of the commission. He is going on with the humbug." He was not discussing the work of the commission nor the matters involved in the investigation. He was dealing with the proceedings of the chairman. He would, he said, have further remarks to make on this matter at later meetings.

Mr. King spoke to a capacity audience in support of the candidature of Hugh B. McKinnon, Liberal-Labor candidate in Kenora-Rainy River. For at least a hundred and fifty yards every parking space was occupied and the Liberal leader's words reached a much larger audience over the broadcast arrangements than that to which he spoke within the confines of the theatre.

Will Affect History

At luncheon Mr. King was the guest of the Liberal organization in the federal constituency, and there he expressed views which were only casually alluded to in his evening speech. They had in large effect to do with the future of Canada and Canadians. Mr. King gave it as his opinion that the vote on Sept. 24 will go a long way in dictating the political history, not only of Canada but of foreign countries. It was the first occasion upon which the Liberal leader has subscribed to a long-born conviction of Premier Bennett, that the coming six months will see a very definite crisis in the public affairs of Canada. The November elections in the United States evidently represent zero hour to both Canada's leading statesmen.

Started Labor Department

Mr. McKinnon said that Mr. King had started the labor department in Canada. He believed, said Mr. McKinnon, the future of the working classes of Canada lay with the Liberal party.

"I believe the future of the railroads and the future of Canada are one," said Mr. McKinnon. "We must have railway competition — never amalgamation. I am unalterably opposed to amalgamation."

General Election Soon, Is Demand

Confidence in Government Gone, Liberal Leader States.

Canadian Press by Direct Wire.

KENORA, Ont., Sept. 14.—Demand for a general election as soon as possible because the Bennett Government "has lost the confidence of the country, of itself and of other nations" formed the keynote of a fighting speech here tonight by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader.

"Overwhelming evidence the Government had lost the confidence of the country was found everywhere," he asserted. It was to be found in the results of provincial elections, in the verdict of the voters in Dominion byelections. After some of the former, "you couldn't find the Conservative party." And in all of them an issue was "Mr. Bennett," and in some of them the Prime Minister was the predominant issue.

Coupled with his determined challenge to the Government to go to the country at once was Mr. King's biting reference to the pamphlet issued by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, in connection with the investigation into price spreads and mass buying.

"Are you supporting Mr. Stevens, or are you supporting Mr. Bennett?" he queried at the outset of his reference to this pamphlet. Mr. Stevens had issued a pamphlet. Mr. Bennett had ordered it destroyed. There were only two possible relationships as between the two. Either they were in opposition or they were in collusion. If the former, said Mr. King, who was to be supported? If the latter, the whole thing was just another "humbug."

The minute coal spores, from one-thousandth to two-thousandth of an inch in diameter, and perfectly preserved in their original design, afford conclusive proof that trees in the carboniferous age, when the great coal forests of the world were laid down, differed vastly from trees as we know them today. They were in the main giant clumps of rank, flowerless plants of the horse-tail or fern variety. An idea of their immensity may be gained from the fact that to produce a seam of coal two feet thick, the vegetation itself when laid down could not have been less than sixty feet thick. An occasional seam is found fifty feet deep, the product of a murky, matted forest too dense to permit animal life, which must have been a quarter of a mile high. Nowhere does vegetation today attain such monstrous proportions. This is due to the gradual cooling of the earth.

Kenora, Sept. 17th. 1934

Editor Miner and News—I was unable to attend Mr. King's meeting last Friday night, but I secured a copy of the press report. The leader of the opposition gets away to a good start with a little nonsense. He gives way quite often to those weak arguments, and appears to lay considerable stress on them. Recently, in the house, Mr. Bennett told him that he didn't know what he was talking about—my source of information at all times being the Winnipeg Free Press.

He expressed regret that any opposition to the election of the Liberal-Labor candidate had cropped up. He thought there should have been an acclamation. He instanced the action of the Liberal party allowing Hon. H. H. Stevens and Hon. E. N. Rhodes to return unopposed. "It was unfair to oppose the Liberal candidate at this time. The seat is a Liberal one," etc. There is no parallel in the two instances that he cites. The two gentlemen were appointed to cabinet posts, but it is customary to accord them an acclamation just as the Hon. Peter Heenan was twice returned here to cabinet positions without a contest. It would be absurd for a government to allow an opposition candidate, a private member, to be elected by acclamation. I have never heard of it happening, but it may have occurred in the province of Quebec when the late Sir Wilfred Laurier was in opposition. Three of the by-elections in the east are to fill vacancies caused by deaths of government supporters. I do not claim that Mr. Bennett's candidates should be elected by acclamation, which is more reasonable than Mr. King's contention. There should be opposition, as the case is at present. The will of the people should decide. "The Bennett government has lost the confidence of the country." There is a great danger of jumping out of the frying-pan into the fire. We, the people are most fortunate to have Mr. Bennett to guide us through this depression.

"All my life," said Mr. King, "I have interested myself in labor matters and the cause of the masses has always been near to my heart." This is a fine spirit, but it will not be taken in exchange by merchants for groceries, clothing and fuel to unemployed and people living in dried-out areas. Mr. King cannot do anything for the welfare of this country that Mr. Bennett has not done. He can do nothing, but is eager for power. Mr. King: "Judging by recent reports in the press, there will be no attempt by the President of the United States to make a trade treaty with Canada until there is a change of government in Canada." This is just a little more "hooey". Mr. Bennett called at Washington a year ago and he is not missing any opportunities down there. There is a heavy volume of trade flowing between Canada and the United States. The exchange on the Canadian dollar is 3 per cent. above par at New York. All nations of the world have adopted high tariffs and are more or less self-sustaining. To lower our tariff Canada would become a dumping ground for the other countries. The appearance of the lady on the platform. "There were more than a million people on direct relief; unemployment was not decreasing." I am glad that she did not take in any more territory and blame Mr. Bennett for the plight of 25 million destitutes in the United States.

Mr. McKinnon said: "Under the Liberal regime there had nearly always been good times in Canada and he felt sure that only under Liberal policies should the country be brought back to more happier times." The times in Canada are governed or reflected by conditions in the United States. When they have good times or hard times we experience the same during that period. You never saw Canada enjoying prosperity when the United States was suffering under a depression, and you never will. There have been good times under Liberal-Conservative administration. In 1915 there were 16 train crews working out of Kenora, the record high. There were good times and hard times under Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald.

What has the Liberal-Conservative party ever done for Canada? Confederated Canada from coast to coast and built the Canadian Pacific, the pioneer line across Canada. When the Great War was in progress all the railways in the United States and Canada fell under government management, except the Canadian Pacific. The Dominion was under Liberal-Conservative rule and the Canadian Pacific stood out alone! What has the Liberal party ever done for Canada. Built the Grand Trunk Pacific, which, since date of opening has been operated at a loss of 140 millions per year and has given our statesmen a gigantic problem that nobody can handle. During the construction of this road we had good times, but reaction followed. Mr. King's advice prior to last federal election was as quoted "Do not elect to office a party which is in power in a majority of the provinces. It would create a monopoly." He is careful not to repeat that statement at the present time, for it would mean that his straight party nominees and his lone Liberal-Labor candidate would be left at home.

Kindly consider the record of achievement of the two parties—you will be well advised at this time to support Mr. Derry, a business man who will represent us very nicely at Ottawa. Sincerely yours,

E. F. WAYNE.

Mr. King's advice prior to last federal election was as quoted "Do not elect to office a party which is in power in a majority of the provinces. It would create a monopoly." He is careful not to repeat that statement at the present time, for it would mean that his straight party nominees and his lone Liberal-Labor candidate would be left at home.

lege hopes to correlate the seams of the Northern coalfields, and thus relieve collieries of expenditure incurred in mining comparatively barren fields.

The minute coal spores, from one-thousandth to two-thousandth of an inch in diameter, and perfectly preserved in their original design, afford conclusive proof that trees in the carboniferous age, when the great coal forests of the world were laid down, differed vastly from trees as we know them today. They were in the main giant clumps of rank, flowerless plants of the horse-tail or fern variety. An idea of their immensity may be gained from the fact that to produce a seam of coal two feet thick, the vegetation itself when laid down could not have been less than sixty feet thick. An occasional seam is found fifty feet deep, the product of a murky, matted forest too dense to permit animal life, which must have been a quarter of a mile high. Nowhere does vegetation today attain such monstrous proportions. This is due to the gradual cooling of the earth.

Editor Miner and News—I was unable to attend Mr. King's meeting last Friday night, but I secured a copy of the press report. The leader of the opposition gets away to a good start with a little nonsense. He gives way quite often to those weak arguments, and appears to lay considerable stress on them. Recently, in the house, Mr. Bennett told him that he didn't know what he was talking about—my source of information at all times being the Winnipeg Free Press.

He expressed regret that any opposition to the election of the Liberal-Labor candidate had cropped up. He thought there should have been an acclamation. He instanced the action of the Liberal party allowing Hon. H. H. Stevens and Hon. E. N. Rhodes to return unopposed. "It was unfair to oppose the Liberal candidate at this time. The seat is a Liberal one," etc. There is no parallel in the two instances that he cites. The two gentlemen were appointed to cabinet posts, but it is customary to accord them an acclamation just as the Hon. Peter Heenan was twice returned here to cabinet positions without a contest. It would be absurd for a government to allow an opposition candidate, a private member, to be elected by acclamation. I have never heard of it happening, but it may have occurred in the province of Quebec when the late Sir Wilfred Laurier was in opposition. Three of the by-elections in the east are to fill vacancies caused by deaths of government supporters. I do not claim that Mr. Bennett's candidates should be elected by acclamation, which is more reasonable than Mr. King's contention. There should be opposition, as the case is at present. The will of the people should decide. "The Bennett government has lost the confidence of the country." There is a great danger of jumping out of the frying-pan into the fire. We, the people are most fortunate to have Mr. Bennett to guide us through this depression.

"All my life," said Mr. King, "I have interested myself in labor matters and the cause of the masses has always been near to my heart." This is a fine spirit, but it will not be taken in exchange by merchants for groceries, clothing and fuel to unemployed and people living in dried-out areas. Mr. King cannot do anything for the welfare of this country that Mr. Bennett has not done. He can do nothing, but is eager for power. Mr. King: "Judging by recent reports in the press, there will be no attempt by the President of the United States to make a trade treaty with Canada until there is a change of government in Canada." This is just a little more "hooey". Mr. Bennett called at Washington a year ago and he is not missing any opportunities down there. There is a heavy volume of trade flowing between Canada and the United States. The exchange on the Canadian dollar is 3 per cent. above par at New York. All nations of the world have adopted high tariffs and are more or less self-sustaining. To lower our tariff Canada would become a dumping ground for the other countries. The appearance of the lady on the platform. "There were more than a million people on direct relief; unemployment was not decreasing." I am glad that she did not take in any more territory and blame Mr. Bennett for the plight of 25 million destitutes in the United States.

Mr. McKinnon said: "Under the Liberal regime there had nearly always been good times in Canada and he felt sure that only under Liberal policies should the country be brought back to more happier times." The times in Canada are governed or reflected by conditions in the United States. When they have good times or hard times we experience the same during that period. You never saw Canada enjoying prosperity when the United States was suffering under a depression, and you never will. There have been good times under Liberal-Conservative administration. In 1915 there were 16 train crews working out of Kenora, the record high. There were good times and hard times under Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald.

What has the Liberal-Conservative party ever done for Canada? Confederated Canada from coast to coast and built the Canadian Pacific, the pioneer line across Canada. When the Great War was in progress all the railways in the United States and Canada fell under government management, except the Canadian Pacific. The Dominion was under Liberal-Conservative rule and the Canadian Pacific stood out alone! What has the Liberal party ever done for Canada. Built the Grand Trunk Pacific, which, since date of opening has been operated at a loss of 140 millions per year and has given our statesmen a gigantic problem that nobody can handle. During the construction of this road we had good times, but reaction followed. Mr. King's advice prior to last federal election was as quoted "Do not elect to office a party which is in power in a majority of the provinces. It would create a monopoly." PRESENT GOVERNMENT HAS LOST CONFIDENCE OF THE COUNTRY STATED RT. HON. MACKENZIE-KING

Liberal Leader Addressed Large Meeting on Behalf of H. B. McKinnon, Liberal-Labor Candidate, on Friday Evening "Many Important Issues Demand a Government Fresh From the People," He Declared.

Charging that the present Government has lost the confidence of the country, of itself, and of other nations, and exhorting a large audience to send H. B. McKinnon, Liberal-Labor candidate to Ottawa as one versed in labor problems, Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, leader of the Liberal party in the Dominion parliament, addressed a public meeting in Derry's Theatre Friday evening in the interests of Mr. McKinnon's candidature.

Covering a wide range of subjects in his address, Mr. King spoke on the significance of bye-elections, expressed surprise that any opposition had been offered to the candidature of the Liberal-Labor nominee, dealt briefly with the Stevens pamphlet, the present Government's record, declared a failure of its policies, outlined results of bye-elections and elections in the various provinces, and spoke of important new issues that had arisen, which he stated, demanded a government fresh from the people. D. M. Campbell, president of the Kenora-Rainy River Liberal Association, was chairman, and other speakers were Mrs. James Ronan, and Hugh B. McKinnon, the candidate, both speaking briefly prior to Mr. King's address.

In opening his address, Mr. King said that in making the long trip from Ottawa it had not been prompted by any doubt as to how the bye-election would go. He felt, however, that there were very large questions which all should better understand, especially the rights of the voters of this riding in helping to improve conditions.

Outlining the various causes that contributed to bye-election vacancies Mr. King said that they afforded the electors an opportunity to express their views, to pronounce their feelings on how the government had carried on, and how they felt as to the policies of the Bennett Government. Mr. King expressed himself as being surprised that there should be opposition to the Liberal-Labor candidate in Kenora. Mr. Heenan had been elected for five years, Mr. Hutchinson had won the riding, and it had been a great honor to Mr. Heenan and to the constituency that Mr. Heenan had been invited into the Provincial Cabinet. The Liberal candidate had been definitely endorsed here, and he could see no reason for opposition.

Pointing out in comparison the Liberal attitude, Mr. King told of how he had refused to permit opposition to the bye-elections of Mr. Stevens and Mr. Rhodes, when, following the election of 1930, Mr. Bennett had wanted them in his cabinet. He, Mr. King, had felt that the people had spoken, and Mr. Bennett should be given a chance to formulate his policies. He asked the audience to contrast the Liberal attitude, to the "sort of unfair play" of the Conservative party.

Speaking briefly of the Stevens pamphlet, Mr. King asked his audience "are you supporting Mr. Stevens or Mr. Bennett?" Find out what the relations of these men are, he advised. They either hold opposite views, or they are working together. If they differ, you have a divided cabinet, where solidarity is essential, if you maintain the traditions of British public life. If they are together, you are simply supporting more humbug."

The constitution fixes five years as the life of a Parliament, but it does not mean that every parliament should last the full period. The idea stated Mr. King, is to have a parliament that is a mirror of the people's will. We've had a good many bye-elections, said the speaker, and the people have expressed their views in no uncertain manner.

There were legal rights, and public and moral obligations, and once a Government has lost the confidence of the people, that Government has no right to carry on for one more day. The time has come for a general election, said Mr. King, and asked, "Is there any doubt whatever that this Government does not represent the people."

"Mr. Bennett took office on certain definite promises. He would end unemployment, and blast his way into the markets of the world. He had failed on all policies. No Prime Minister had a freer hand than Mr. Bennett in the last four years, he had had five sessions of Parliament, had freedom from opposition, freedom in expenditures of money, and freedom in legislation, but his policies are wrong, and conditions are not improving.

Another feature which demanded an election, said Mr. King, was that large and important new issues had arisen, on which the people have had no chance to express their views.

Mr. Bennett had now sent a letter to the Provinces in which he asked them to a conference to discuss social legislation, amendments to the British North America Act, and matters relating to taxation and revenues. Mr. Bennett was too late, stated the speaker, for the Government has lost the confidence of the country, of itself and of other nations.

Mr. King outlined results of Provincial elections. In Quebec, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Ontario, and in each and every case Federal issues, and Mr. Bennett and his policies, were the main issues, and the Conservatives were everywhere overwhelmingly defeated. To deal with Unemployment Insurance, taxation, and revenue or amendments to the B. N. A., let us get a Government fresh from the people.

Speaking of the Empire Trade agreements, Mr. King said that he wanted to see trade developed more Government falls into contempt, and this is bound to have a lowering effect on the whole trend of public life. A new session of Parliament means intrigue, the Stevens pamphlet means intrigue. "Who's going to be the next leader of the party" asked Mr. King. "If I had been a member of a Government in which the Prime Minister sent to the flames any statement made by me and signed by me, I would defy him and resign, and go out and fight for my principles," stated Mr. King.

The time had come for some party to give the lead in good will, ending economic nationalism. "I say we can do everything," said Mr. King. "I would go out and sit down with the other nations and talk with them in the spirit of genuine good-will. "We need a new social order. We need any number of men representing labor organizations, not as a class, but as members of a party of goodwill to help to serve the people. We must have social insurance to remove the fears of sweatshop conditions, unemployment, sickness, and of old age. We need national insurance of unemployment to deevlop it into a great social insurance scheme, in which the four parties, labor, capital, management, and consumers, should sit down together to determine the policies that are to govern. It can't all be done in a day, said the speaker, but it can be done rapidly.

Mr. King paid tributes to Mr Heenan, and to Mr. McKinnon, whom he characterized as the logical successor of Mr. Heenan.

In concluding, Mr. King asked the audience to show the Government of the day, the will of the people, to show them that the desire was for Governments liberally-minded.

Speaking of the Empire Trade agreements, Mr. King said that he wanted to see trade developed more with Great Britain, but also wanted to see trade developed with other countries. We should have gone out to those other countries of the world seeking trade, instead of developing a policy of economic nationalism. The Liberals are prepared to trade with every country that is prepared to trade in a fair way with us. The tendency today, said Mr. King, was to get away from Parliament, from the House of Commons, away from the will of the people, and when a Government does this, they were heading in the direction of a dictatorship, where the will of a few men will be enforced by power.

"This tendency was developing in Europe, where they were getting away from the true democratic system, and we must not encourage that tendency in our country. Where a Government hangs on to office, a Government falls into contempt, and this is bound to have a lowering effect on the whole trend of public life. A new session of Parliament means intrigue, the Stevens pamphlet means intrigue. "Who's going to be the next leader of the party" asked Mr. King. McKinnon, the candidate, both speaking briefly prior to Mr. King's address.

In opening his address, Mr. King said that in making the long trip from Ottawa it had not been prompted by any doubt as to how the bye-election would go. He felt, however, that there were very large questions which all should better understand, especially the rights of the voters of this riding in helping to improve conditions.

Outlining the various causes that contributed to bye-election vacancies Mr. King said that they afforded the electors an opportunity to express their views, to pronounce their feelings on how the government had carried on, and how they felt as to the policies of the Bennett Government. Mr. King expressed himself as being surprised that there should be opposition to the Liberal-Labor candidate in Kenora. Mr. Heenan had been elected for five years, Mr. Hutchinson had won the riding, and it had been a great honor to Mr. Heenan and to the constituency that Mr. Heenan had been invited into the Provincial Cabinet. The Liberal candidate had been definitely endorsed here, and he could see no reason for opposition.

Pointing out in comparison the Liberal attitude, Mr. King told of how he had refused to permit opposition to the bye-elections of Mr. Stevens and Mr. Rhodes, when, following the election of 1930, Mr. Bennett had wanted them in his cabinet. He, Mr. King, had felt that the people had spoken, and Mr. Bennett should be given a chance to formulate his policies. He asked the audience to contrast the Liberal attitude, to the "sort of unfair play" of the Conservative party.

Speaking briefly of the Stevens pamphlet, Mr. King asked his audience "are you supporting Mr. Stevens or Mr. Bennett?" Find out what the relations of these men are, he advised. They either hold opposite views, or they are working together. If they differ, you have a divided cabinet, where solidarity is essential, if you maintain the traditions of British public life. If they are together, you are simply supporting more humbug."

The constitution fixes five years as the life of a Parliament, but it does not mean that every parliament should last the full period. The idea stated Mr. King, is to have a parliament that is a mirror of the people's will. We've had a good many bye-elections, said the speaker, and the people have expressed their views in no uncertain manner.

There were legal rights, and public and moral obligations, and once a Government has lost the confidence of the people, that Government has no right to carry on for one more day. The time has come for a general election, said Mr. King, and asked, "Is there any doubt whatever that this Government does not represent the people."

"Mr. Bennett took office on certain definite promises. He would end unemployment, and blast his way into the markets of the world. He had failed on all policies. No Prime Minister had a freer hand than Mr. Bennett in the last four years, he had had five sessions of Parliament, had freedom from opposition, freedom in expenditures of money, and freedom in legislation, but his policies are wrong, and conditions are not improving.

Another feature which demanded an election, said Mr. King, was that large and important new issues had arisen, on which the people have had no chance to express their views.

Mr. Bennett had now sent a letter to the Provinces in which he asked them to a conference to discuss social legislation, amendments to the British North America Act, and matters relating to taxation and revenues. Mr. Bennett was too late, stated the speaker, for the Government has lost the confidence of the country, of itself and of other nations.

Mr. King outlined results of Provincial elections. In Quebec, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Ontario, and in each and every case Federal issues, and Mr. Bennett and his policies, were the main issues, and the Conservatives were everywhere overwhelmingly defeated. To deal with Unemployment Insurance, taxation, and revenue or amendments to the B. N. A., let us get a Government fresh from the people.

Speaking of the Empire Trade agreements, Mr. King said that he wanted to see trade developed more with Great Britain, but also wanted to see trade developed with other Government falls into contempt, and this is bound to have a lowering effect on the whole trend of public life. A new session of Parliament means intrigue, the Stevens pamphlet means intrigue. "Who's going to be the next leader of the party" asked Mr. King. "If I had been a member of a Government in which the Prime Minister sent to the flames any statement made by me and signed by me, I would defy him and resign, and go out and fight for my principles," stated Mr. King.

The time had come for some party to give the lead in good will, ending economic nationalism. "I say we can do everything," said Mr. King. "I would go out and sit down with the other nations and talk with them in the spirit of genuine good-will. "We need a new social order. We need any number of men representing labor organizations, not as a class, but as members of a party of goodwill to help to serve the people. We must have social insurance to remove the fears of sweatshop conditions, unemployment, sickness, and of old age. We need national insurance of unemployment to deevlop it into a great social insurance scheme, in which the four parties, labor, capital, management, and consumers, should sit down together to determine the policies that are to govern. It can't all be done in a day, said the speaker, but it can be done rapidly.

Mr. King paid tributes to Mr. Heenan, and to Mr. McKinnon, whom he characterized as the logical successor of Mr. Heenan.

In concluding, Mr. King asked the audience to show the Government of the day, the will of the people, to show them that the desire was for Governments liberally-minded.

Fresh From the People, He Declared

Charging that the present Government has lost the confidence of the country, of itself, and of other nations, and exhorting a large audience to send H. B. McKinnon, Liberal-Labor candidate to Ottawa as one versed in labor problems, Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, leader of the Liberal party in the Dominion parliament, addressed a public meeting in Derry's Theatre Friday evening in the interests of Mr. McKinnon's candidature.

Covering a wide range of subjects in his address, Mr. King spoke on the significance of bye-elections, expressed surprise that any opposition had been offered to the candidature of the Liberal-Labor nominee, dealt briefly with the Stevens pamphlet, the present Government's record, declared a failure of its policies, outlined results of bye-elections and elections in the various provinces, and spoke of important new issues that had arisen, which he stated, demanded a government fresh from the people. D. M. Campbell, president of the Kenora-Rainy River Liberal Association, was chairman, and other speakers were Mrs. James Ronan, and Hugh B. McKinnon, the candidate, both speaking briefly prior to Mr. King's address.

In opening his address, Mr. King said that in making the long trip from Ottawa it had not been prompted by any doubt as to how the bye-election would go. We should have gone out to those other countries of the world seeking trade, instead of developing a policy of economic nationalism. The Liberals are prepared to trade with every country that is prepared to trade in a fair way with us. The tendency today, said Mr. King, was to get away from Parliament, from the House of Commons, away from the will of the people, and when a Government does this, they were heading in the direction of a dictatorship, where the will of a few men will be enforced by power.

"This tendency was developing in Europe, where they were getting away from the true democratic system, and we must not encourage that tendency in our country. Where a Government hangs on to office, a Government falls into contempt, and this is bound to have a lowering effect on the whole trend of public life. A new session of Parliament means intrigue, the Stevens pamphlet means intrigue. "Who's going to be the next leader of the party" asked Mr. King. McKinnon, Liberal-Labor candidate to Ottawa as one versed in labor problems, Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, leader of the Liberal party in the Dominion parliament, addressed a public meeting in Derry's Theatre Friday evening in the interests of Mr. McKinnon's candidature.

Covering a wide range of subjects in his address, Mr. King spoke on the significance of bye-elections, expressed surprise that any opposition had been offered to the candidature of the Liberal-Labor nominee, dealt briefly with the Stevens pamphlet, the present Government's record, declared a failure of its policies, outlined results of bye-elections and elections in the various provinces, and spoke of important new issues that had arisen, which he stated, demanded a government fresh from the people. D. M. Campbell, president of the Kenora-Rainy River Liberal Association, was chairman, and other speakers were Mrs. James Ronan, and Hugh B. McKinnon, the candidate, both speaking briefly prior to Mr. King's address.

In opening his address, Mr. King said that in making the long trip from Ottawa it had not been prompted by any doubt as to how the bye-election would go. He felt, however, that there were very large questions which all should better understand, especially the rights of the voters of this riding in helping to improve conditions.

Outlining the various causes that contributed to bye-election vacancies Mr. King said that they afforded the electors an opportunity to express their views, to pronounce their feelings on how the government had carried on, and how they felt as to the policies of the Bennett Government. Mr. King expressed himself as being surprised that there should be opposition to the Liberal-Labor candidate in Kenora. Mr. Heenan had been elected for five years, Mr. Hutchinson had won the riding, and it had been a great honor to Mr. Heenan and to the constituency that Mr. Heenan had been invited into the Provincial Cabinet. The Liberal candidate had been definitely endorsed here, and he could see no reason for opposition.

Pointing out in comparison the Liberal attitude, Mr. King told of how he had refused to permit opposition to the bye-elections of Mr. Stevens and Mr. Rhodes, when, following the election of 1930, Mr. Bennett had wanted them in his cabinet. He, Mr. King, had felt that the people had spoken, and Mr. Bennett should be given a chance to formulate his policies. He asked the audience to contrast the Liberal attitude, to the "sort of unfair play" of the Conservative party.

Speaking briefly of the Stevens pamphlet, Mr. King asked his audience "are you supporting Mr. Stevens or Mr. Bennett?" Find out what the relations of these men are, he advised. They either hold opposite views, or they are working together. If they differ, you have a divided cabinet, where solidarity is essential, if you maintain the traditions of British public life. If they are together, you are simply supporting more humbug."

The constitution fixes five years as the life of a Parliament, but it does not mean that every parliament should last the full period. The idea stated Mr. King, is to have a parliament that is a mirror of the people's will. We've had a good many bye-elections, said the speaker, and the people have expressed their views in no uncertain manner.

There were legal rights, and public and moral obligations, and once a Government has lost the confidence of the people, that Government has no right to carry on for one more day. The time has come for a general election, said Mr. King, and asked, "Is there any doubt whatever that this Government does not represent the people."

"Mr. Bennett took office on certain definite promises. He would end unemployment, and blast his way into the markets of the world. He had failed on all policies. No Prime Minister had a freer hand than Mr. Bennett in the last four yeafs, he had had five sessions of Parliament, had freedom from opposition, freedom in expenditures of money, and freedom in legislation, but his policies are wrong, and conditions are not improving.

Another feature which demanded an election, said Mr. King, was that large and important new issues had arisen, on which the people have had no chance to express their views.

Mr. Bennett had now sent a letter to the Provinces in which he asked them to a conference to discuss social legislation, amendments to the British North America Act, and matters relating to taxation and revenues. Mr. Bennett was too late, stated the speaker, for the Government has lost the confidence of the country, of itself and of other nations.

Mr. King outlined results of Provincial elections. In Quebec, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Ontario, and in each and every case Federal issues, and Mr. Bennett and his policies, were the main issues, and the Conservatives were everywhere overwhelmingly defeated. To deal with Unemployment Insurance, taxation, and revenue or amendments to the B. N. A., let us get a Government fresh from the people.

Speaking of the Empire Trade agreements, Mr. King said that he wanted to see trade developed more with Great Britain, but also wanted to see trade developed with other countries. We should have gone out to those other countries of the world seeking trade, instead of developing a policy of economic nationalism. The Liberals are prepared to trade with every country that is prepared to trade in a fair way with us. The tendency today, said Mr. King, was to get away from Parliament, from the House of Commons, away from the will of the people, and when a Government does this, they were heading in the direction of a dictatorship, where the will of a few men will be enforced by power.

"This tendency was developing in Europe, where they were getting away from the true democratic system, and we must not encourage that tendency in our country. Where a Government hangs on to office, a Government falls into contempt, and this is bound to have a lowering effect on the whole trend of public life. A new session of Parliament means intrigue, the Stevens pamphlet means intrigue. "Who's going to be the next leader of the party" asked Mr. King. "If I had been a member of a Government in which the Prime Minister sent to the flames any statement made by me and signed by me, I would defy him and resign, and go out and fight for my principles," stated Mr. King.

The time had come for some party to give the lead in good will, ending economic nationalism. "I say we can do everything," said Mr. King. "I would go out and sit down with the other nations and talk with them in the spirit of genuine good-will. "We need a new social order. We need any number of men representing labor organizations, not as a class, but as members of a party of goodwill to help to serve the people. We must have social insurance to remove the fears of sweatshop conditions, unemployment, sickness, and of old age. We need national insurance of unemployment to deevlop it into a great social insurance scheme, in which the four parties, labor, capital, management, and consumers, should sit down together to determine the policies that are to govern. It can't all be done in a day, said the speaker, but it can be done rapidly.

Mr. King paid tributes to Mr. Heenan, and to Mr. McKinnon, whom he characterized as the logical successor of Mr. Heenan.

In concluding, Mr. King asked the audience to show the Government of the day, the will of the people, to show them that the desire was for Governments liberally-minded.

Liberal Leader Defies Bennett To Call Ballot

Govt. "Has Lost Confidence of Country, Of Itself, of Other Nations," Says Mackenzie King.

Biting Reference to Pamphlet of Stevens

Trade Minister "Going to Go On With Humbug," He Declares at Kenora.

(Canadian Press)

KENORA, Ont., Sept. 14—Demand for a general election as soon as possible because the Bennett government "has lost the confidence of the country, of itself and of other nations" formed the keynote of a fighting speech here tonight by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion Liberal leader.

"Overwhelming evidence the government had lost the confidence of the country was found everywhere," he asserted. It was to be found in the results of provincial elections, in the verdict of the voters in federal by-elections. After some of the former, "you couldn't find the Conservative party," he asserted. And in all of them an issue was "Mr. Bennett," and in some of them the federal prime minister was the predominant issue, said Mr. King.

Dwells on Pamphlet

Coupled with his determined challenge to the government to go to the country at once was Mr. King's biting reference to the pamphlet issued by Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, in connection with the investigation into price spreads and mass buying.

"Are you supporting Mr. Stevens, or are you supporting Mr. Bennett?" he queried at the outset of his reference to this pamphlet. Mr. Stevens had issued a pamphlet. Mr. Bennett had ordered it destroyed. There were only two possible relationships as between the two. Either they were in opposition or they were in collusion. If the former, said Mr. King, who was to be supported? If the latter, the whole thing was just another "humbug."

Element of Intrigue

But there was another angle to the pamphlet incident that Mr. King stressed. There was an element of "intrigue" in the matter, he asserted. "Did Mr. Stevens speak to his colleagues about it?" he asked. "Not Mr. Stevens. I think the people of Canada will believe that Mr. Stevens thought Mr. Bennett was done as a leader, and he saw as a leader the man whom he regards as the champion of the people."

He had no hesitation in reiterating the trade position of the Liberal party, he told his audience. The Liberal party in the past, now and in the future desired to trade with all countries of the world which desired to trade with Canada on a fair basis. That was his position.

"If I Was Stevens"

"If I was Mr. Stevens," went on the Liberal leader forcibly "I would defy Mr. Bennett, leave his cabinet and stand up and fight for the principles in which I believed. But no—Mr. Stevens is going to be chairman of the commission. He is going to go on with the humbug." He was not discussing the work of the commission nor the matters involved in the investigation. He was dealing with the proceedings of the chairman. He would, he said, have further remarks to make on this matter at later meetings.

The Liberal leader spoke to a capacity audience in the theater here in support of the candidature of Hugh B. McKinnon who seeks to succeed Hon. Peter Heenan as federal member for Kenora-Rainy River. After speaking, he boarded a train to return to Ottawa.

Chamber Resolution

An arresting statement made by Mr. King had reference to the recent action of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in passing a resolution favoring reciprocity with the United States.

Why, he asked, had not the Chamber of Commerce passed that resolution long ago. "They didn't do it because Mr. Bennett's policies were not designed in that direction. His policies were designed to strangle trade."

CHARGES STEVENS UPHOLDS POLICIES CAUSING EVILS

People Servants, Not Masters, of Present Government, Says King

SCORES NEW LAWS

Special to The Star

Enterprise, Sept. 18.—Coming by car and even by democrat from 80 miles around, 3,000 people, 2,500 of whom stood in the cold night air outside the village community hall in this traditional centre of Conservatism, listened to Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King last night warn that continuation of Bennett government policies threatened democracy and parliamentary institution in Canada. He was speaking in support of Colin Campbell, Liberal candidate in the Frontenac-Addington by-election.

Mr. King, who had to climb in a rear window—so large was his audience—charged that the Stevens' commission on price spreads and mass-buying was necessitated by the very policies supported by the minister of trade and commerce.

"With wages and prices lowered as a result of the Bennett government's actions, you have had these conditions of sweating," he declared before the audience, composed mainly of farmers with their wives and children, who packed the hall so tight it seemed to bulge, listening intently and cheering his earnest appeal for the principles of Liberalism."

"The Stevens' commission proved two things" stated Mr. King. "First that high tariffs don't mean high wages; and second that high tariffs don't mean high prices to farmers."

The former prime minister castigated Mr. Bennett for attempting to remain in power for the whole five-year term of office, pointing out it was contrary to traditional practice and said the present government had no right to remain in power if the five Ontario by-elections went Liberal. He added this was further manifestation of the Bennett government's dictatorial tendencies.

"I wish to say something about Dr. Manion's speech in this riding on September 15, when he used the expression that it would make no difference to the life of the present government if all these by-elections went Liberal," added Mr. King.

Since Dr. Manion was speaking as a minister of the crown the Liberal leader held the minister of railways was speaking for the government.

"You're the servants, not the masters of the government in office at the present time," he stated.

"That's what it means. They are saying in effect: 'We don't care what the will of the people is'."

A serious issue was raised by Dr. Manion's stand, insisted Mr. King.

Making his second appearance in this federal by-election campaign in Ontario, Mr. King showed he had lost none of his vigor by having to climb up a ten-foot ladder and crawl through a window three feet square, with the crowd outside cheering him on, to receive a tremendous ovation in the hall.

Not since the days of Oliver Mowat has Liberalism seen such an enthusiastic and demonstrative gathering in this Conservative stronghold, which has sent so many Conservatives to Ottawa, said observers.

Stand in Cold Till 12.30 A.M.

Loud speakers had been installed for the overflow listeners, who stood in the cold till half an hour after midnight to have their patience rewarded by Mr. King appearing at that hour, just after he had finished his address, to say a few words to them too.

His speech lasted for more than an hour and a half and was frequently punctuated with cheers, which re-echoed to the platform from the assemblage out in the dark.

On the platform were Premier J. G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan, Anson Aylesworth, chairman, brother of Sir Allen Aylesworth; Miss E. L. Mowat, niece of Sir Oliver; Joseph Haycock, 92-year-old former leader of the Patrons of Industry; William Fraser, M.P., Northumberland, and the candidate, Colin Campbell, all of whom were praised by Mr. King.

Mr. King looked to be in the best of health and is said to have lost 40 pounds in weight through dieting. He was very fresh after his speech.

He had a few carefully typewritten notes with him on the platform, but did not refer to them when speaking in his usual facile manner.

He began slowly, but soon warmed to his subject and when he came to his peroration his appeal to Canadians to show the way brought him applause that lasted for several minutes despite the late hour.

Before he spoke he watched his audience and when reference was made by one of the speakers to his grandfather, William Lyon Mackenzie, which brought forth cheers, he scanned his hearers with a careful look.

When another of the speakers said the only payment of public life was the worth-while friendships one made Mr. King nodded his head.

In his speech Mr. King said he wished to emphasize what the Bennett government had done with regard to labor, fiscal and monetary policies.

In this regard and in the light of the recent growth of dictatorships in Europe Mr. King referred to certain aspects of the Bennett marketing bill and the new central bank.

Can Stop All Foreign Trade

"Under that marketing bill the government may have the right to stop all imports and exports," he pointed out. "There's the law.

"Mr. Bennett and his cabinet have this power and the power to limit production; to require licenses before you go into your ordinary business."

Mr. King warned about the Bennett government's statement it wouldn't use this power, but he pointed out it used $60,000,000 of the money set aside to deal with unemployment.

"They took a step they had no right to whatever when they signed an agreement on the tariff and fixed it for five years," he charged.

"Take the Banking Act," he went on. "As Liberals we advocated government control in monetary affairs. "How much control have they left to the people?" he demanded.

More Powerful Than Nation

"It not only takes away all control but actually creates an institution that will be more powerful than the nation itself."

He pointed out that the Conservative government had given the central bank the gold reserves and the power to issue money when its administration remained in private hands.

"The stockholders will appoint the directors; the Canadian government doesn't appoint a single director.

"The government has appointed the president of the board for seven years, but he can't be changed by any other government except by the consent of Senate and parliament," Mr. King explained.

Mr. King said parliament was told the ownership of the bank was open to discussion, but found otherwise in committee.

"Mr. Bennett informed us then that monetary policy ought to be continuous and uniform, from the point of view of the great financial institutions."

Mr. King said he asked Mr. Bennett why the people of Canada should not have some control of social credit.

Could Frustrate Policies

"If the Liberals wanted to trade with the rest of the world the central bank could by manipulation of exchange make it impossible for our trade policies to function," he stated.

"I cannot recall any greater thrill than when I saw the huge overflow crowd about the hall on a night none too warm," said Mr. King, at the start of his address.

"It shows that in these difficult, strenuous times, the people have come to realize that government belongs to the people. I feel in my heart that the people of Canada at last have said: 'We are going to settle the questions of the country ourselves, and are determined under the right of self-government to assert ourselves and see that our demands are carried out.'

"That is the important point—whether the people have the right to govern themselves or whether they will remain under the will of a small group of people who are holding on to office for the fruits they can get from office, after having been elected by lavish promises, not one of which has been carried out.

Would Restore Prosperity

"I feel a great sense of satisfaction with Liberal policies. Under Laurier we had 15 years of golden prosperity, and when I took a hand, nine of the 15 years I have been leader have been in power. In 1921 times were much as they are now, but when the Liberals were put into power, they lowered tariffs, increased trade, and the country once more became prosperous. If we had the opportunity now our policies would have the same effect and would bring in a new era of prosperity.

"I must express regret for the occasion for this by-election. The late member, Dr. Spankie, was well known and respected by me. He was on the other side, but he was broader than party politics.

"This by-election reminds us that these are exceptional times. At no period except during the Great War has the world been faced with a more serious situation.

"Europe is in unrest. The United States has problems that are unprecedented since the civil war and Canada, too, has been seriously affected. Be the cause what it may, the present is a critical time and therefore men and women should have the widest possible opportunity to express their wishes regarding the government in power.

"There are two ways of doing this. One is a general election and the other is a by-election. We have five by-elections now and I maintain that the vote cast will be fairly representative of the feeling of the whole of Canada, and no government can ignore the voices in this province on Monday next.

People Have Shown Dissent

"Without knowing the results I say this: If five Conservatives are returned Mr. Bennett is entitled to stay in office as long as the constitution permits with a new mandate, but if the ridings go Liberal Mr. Bennett has not the right to remain the leader of the country for one hour beyond that time.

"This is not the only occasion on which the people have expressed themselves. After the Ottawa agreements were signed and tariffs raised the first by-election contested gave the Liberal candidate a majority of nearly 2,000 in Huron. A Liberal candidate in Quebec increased his majority by 80 per cent. and in New Brunswick a majority of nearly 6,000 was rolled up for the Liberals. In Oxford another small Liberal majority was turned into one of 1,600. That is the voice of the people of Canada.

"There were also the provincial elections and, while the issues were partly provincial, federal issues were largely to the fore and were fought on Bennett policies, because trade is necessary to keep the wheels of industry turning and to supply purchasing power and prosperity. The federal government's policy has been to strangle trade and that is why federal issues have been prominent in provincial elections."

"You are not being asked to decide whether you want a Liberal, Conservative or C.C.F. government in power for the next year. It is a question of whether you people are to be given the right to say what government and what policies you want, whether you can express yourselves anew.

Cites Provincial Elections

"What happened in Quebec?" asked Mr. King. "Mr. Taschereau's government came back stronger than before.

"What happened in Manitoba? Mr. Bennett had begun to interfere with the finances of that province, so that people began to discuss federal issues again, and Mr. Bracken came back stronger than before."

He said trade policies brought Liberal governments back in Nova Scotia and in British columbia. His mention of the fact that not a Conservative was returned in British Columbia brought cheers. He said the same result came about in Saskatchewan because its election, like the others, was fought on federal issues. Then he came to Ontario.

"Was it not true that the Henry government had hung on to office longer than they should have and had not their Tory associations carried the odium of the government in Ottawa with it?" he asked.

He said the people were sound in their judgment in electing Liberal governments, because the people of the provinces realized that trade policies affected them.

"Canada is the only country in the world that hasn't had a general election since 1930," pointed out the Liberal leader. "All the different parts of the British empire and the United States have had elections."

He said there has been no elections in China, Venezuela, Czechoslovakia, Italy and Russia. They hadn't had elections because of special policies.

"We are in that category, ladies and gentlemen," he declared.

Mr. King said in face of the Liberal trend in Canada if in those five by-elections the Conservatives lost, it was up to Mr. Bennett to give the people a chance to choose the government they wished.

Departs From Old Policies

"I can understand a Conservative saying that he will support a Conservative government if it were a little different, if it came into line with a little Canadian feeling. The Conservative might feel that the time had come where he should 'check up' on his party when it gets far from where it should be in national affairs. I would ask this Conservative to think of Macdonald, Borden and Meighen, and consider whether any of them ever thought of raising a tariff from 10 or 15 per cent. to 100, 300 or 400 per cent.—yet the present government has done that. There is no limit to what it has done to try to keep out trade.

"The old Conservatives did not believe in too-high tariffs, such as might create monopolies. You have a chance now to rebuke the government, and if they plan to sit for another session, it may make them modify their policies in the last year. I don't know what will happen if we have another year with this government.

"Frontenac-Addington riding, a Conservative stronghold, might bring the government to its senses if it voted Liberal.

"The will of the people alone controls the length of time a government is in power. The five-year limit is to prevent governments staying in power for longer than that time. If not, the Bennett government might stay in until they all went to the other side. The average life of governments has been four years. Previous prime ministers have dissolved parliament and given the people a chance to express their views. If Mr. Bennett is so sure of the people's confidence, why doesn't he go before them now and ask for their endorsation?"

"Mr. Bennett has held five special sessions of parliament, more than ever before."

The only previous government that remained in power the full length of time (except the war period), he said, was that in office when Sir John A. Macdonald passed away.

"Those were the days when knighthood was in flower and this government didn't see power again for 15 years," he added.

Mr. King predicted if Mr. Bennett did not heed the temper of the people he and his associates would never see power again in their lifetime. (Cheers).

Failed in Promises

Mr. King pointed out Mr. Bennett had failed in his election promises.

"Were there not broadly two issues?" he recalled. "One related to the working men in the towns, in relation to which Mr. Bennett said: 'I'll see that you get work by raising tariffs.'

"The other appeal was to the farmer, to whom he said he would get them markets by 'blasting' a way into them," said Mr. King with a laugh.

"There were 116,000 unemployed when Mr. Bennett came into power, and now," he added, "500,000 are unemployed, with 1,000,000 on relief, according to Mr. Bennett's own figures.

"Has he found you markets in other parts of the world?" he asked, referring to Mr. Bennett's second promise.

Mr. King pointed out that Mr. Bennett had a free hand to deal with this situation, "even to the point of violating the spirit of the constitution to do it."

"Mr. Bennett asked for a blank cheque—asked for the right to take out of the public treasury all the money he needed. He spent over $11,000,000 on unemployment insurance, and other amounts which bring the total he has spent to date to $270,000,000.

"The truth is that Mr. Bennett has the wrong idea about the basis of trade and prosperity. He believes in a home market, and believes the way to get it is to put a wall around the country to keep other countries' goods out. He believes that with high tariffs, Canadians will have to buy at home, but where will they get the money?

"The spending of huge sums will never save the situation.

Money Must Flow In

"Let us apply this high tariff principle in this particular community," explained the former prime minister. "Our friends in office regard the home market—Canada—as place or locality. That, in my conception, is strictly wrong. My idea of the home market is a quantity of purchasing power—an effective demand."

Mr. King said a market without exchange was merely a market-place, adding "this was the effect of Mr. Bennett's policy."

"If this happened here, how much money would circulate in this town of Enterprise?" he asked. "What is true of this community is equally true of the nation, and bound to injure a country of great national wealth.

"The only way we can hope to prosper is to have our national products sold in other markets," he declared. "When money flowed into the people's pockets, you had a real home market." (Cheers.)

"In explaining its high tariff policy the government claims that other governments are doing the same. It admits it is wrong, but says it has to do it.

"Have they tried to go to other countries to see whether Canada could exchange her products and commodities with those of the other countries to mutual advantage? Have they tried the effect of lower tariffs on trade with England, France and other countries?

Big Profits for Few

"Look at the Bennett government's record. At its first special session up went the tariffs against British goods. They told Britain that she would have to put up her tariffs too, if she wanted to trade with Canada. Later Mr. Baldwin came to Canada and in the course of discussion said he hoped that Canada would reduce tariffs, but the reply was that Canada was going to increase her tariffs. The result is that a few industrialists have been able to make mergers and large profits while the vast majority of the people have suffered."

When Mr. King threatened to stop his speech, looking at his watch, which showed five minutes to midnight, the crowd shouted as one voice: "Go on." "There is a great battle going on in the world between democracy and dictatorship," continued the Liberal leader. "The only way in which democracy can function is through the vote of the will of the people. That we have had until the last few years but opposed to this will of the people you have this other side—when a group of men, if they have gained power, will exercise it as long as they can."

This was evidenced by recent history in Europe, stated the speaker, where the oppressed have risen in revolt and overthrown oppresso

"In Russia they have had a revolt and a new Soviet system has been established," he said. "It was run by men of a particular class who lay down rules as to how men and women should live and act. It is power of force and might."

The same was true of Italy, he added, where the leader got followers and held power to-day as an expression of his own will, not that of the people. It was a counter-revolution arising out of fear of the Russian revolution.

"They looked to a strong leader and got a dictatorship," he summed up.

Similarly in Germany there was a counter-revolution.

"We saw its effects the other day when 60 men were shot down in cold blood," he commented.

With regard to religion — "which many of us regard as the most sacred thing in life," he said, it had been swept away with dictatorship.

Only Guard Against Dictator

The people holding to their parliamentary institutions provided the only bulwark against dictatorship, he thought.

Mr. King warned what the Bennett government would do in the direction of concentrating power in its hands if given one more year in office, "and that a desperate year."

"Show Mr. Bennett the real government of the country isn't Mr. Bennett, but the people of Canada, when you vote on Monday next," he exhorted his hearers, adding that Colin Campbell was a native of the country, a farmer and engineer, and one who would do great credit to the stock from which he came. "None the worse, for being of Scotch Presbyterian stock, like myself," he added. Mr. King said the candidate's youth was a great asset in times like these, which so much concerned the youth of the day.

He told his hearers a Liberal vote would protect against economic nationalism, with its attendant threat of war in this new land.

This would be a Liberal outlook in the true sense of the word "that looks beyond itself," he added.

A Liberal victory here would send up a great rejoicing throughout the world, showing that Canada was taking a lead for the salvation of humanity, he concluded.

Gardiner Scores Nationalism

"Whenever you have narrow nationalism in the world you have a desire to trade less and less with one another, and you have hard times," declared Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan.

"And there goes hand in hand with narrow nationalism those governments that wish to live unto themselves."

Start Bennett on Way Out

Mr. Campbell in his speech contended that under the Bennett regime Canadian trade had fallen 25 per cent. below the loss of the world and tha $100,000,000 less in wages was paid to the railway employees last year because of the trade tie-up brought about by the Conservatives.

"You have the privilege of starting R. B. Bennett on his way out," he declared.

...I have married the girl and never had the slightest notion there could be anything really wrong in her relations with Robertson or anybody," he said. "Had you any difficulties about going out to parties?" "My wife is a party girl and I'm a party man. My business demands that I am out a good deal."

Questioned regarding Aubrey Timmins, witness said he first met him at the door of his cottage at Jackson's Point when his wife said, "This is Timmins." He stated he didn't like the idea of Timmins being wanted to stay in the house.

"To drive 280 miles in one day, I couldn't have been much intoxicated," he said, referring to his trip to Cache Bay to greet his wife on his return from England.

remain in power for the whole five-year term of office, pointing out it was contrary to traditional practice and said the present government had no right to remain in power if the five Ontario by-elections went Liberal. He added this was further manifestation of the Bennett government's dictatorial tendencies.

"I wish to say something about Dr. Manion's speech in this riding on September 15, when he used the expression that it would make no difference to the life of the present government if all these by-elections went Liberal," added Mr. King.

Since Dr. Manion was speaking as a minister of the crown the Liberal leader held the minister of railways was speaking for the government.

"You're the servants, not the masters of the government in office at the present time," he stated.

"That's what it means. They are saying in effect: 'We don't care what the will of the people is'."

A serious issue was raised by Dr. Manion's stand, insisted Mr. King.

Making his second appearance in this federal by-election campaign in Ontario, Mr. King showed he had lost none of his vigor by having to climb up a ten-foot ladder and crawl through a window three feet square, with the crowd outside cheering him on, to receive a tremendous ovation in the hall.

Not since the days of Oliver Mowat has Liberalism seen such an enthusiastic and demonstrative gathering in this Conservative stronghold, which has sent so many Conservatives to Ottawa, said observers.

Stand in Cold Till 12.30 A.M.

Loud speakers had been installed for the overflow listeners, who stood in the cold till half an hour after midnight to have their patience rewarded by Mr. King appearing at that hour, just after he had finished his address, to say a few words to them too.

His speech lasted for more than an hour and a half and was frequently punctuated with cheers, which re-echoed to the platform from the assemblage out in the dark.

On the platform were Premier J. G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan, Anson Aylesworth, chairman, brother of Sir Allen Aylesworth; Miss E. L. Mowat, niece of Sir Oliver; Joseph Haycock, 92-year-old former leader of the Patrons of Industry; William Fraser, M.P., Northumberland, and the candidate, Colin Campbell, all of whom were praised by Mr. King.

Mr. King looked to be in the best of health and is said to have lost 40 pounds in weight through dieting. He was very fresh after his speech.

He had a few carefully typewritten notes with him on the platform, but did not refer to them when speaking in his usual facile manner.

He began slowly, but soon warmed to his subject and when he came to his peroration his appeal to Canadians to show the way brought him applause that lasted for several minutes despite the late hour.

Before he spoke he watched his audience and when reference was made by one of the speakers to his grandfather, William Lyon Mackenzie, which brought forth cheers, he scanned his hearers with a careful look.

When another of the speakers said the only payment of public life was the worth-while friendships one made Mr. King nodded his head.

In his speech Mr. King said he wished to emphasize what the Bennett government had done with regard to labor, fiscal and monetary policies.

In this regard and in the light of the recent growth of dictatorships in Europe Mr. King referred to certain aspects of the Bennett marketing bill and the new central bank.

Can Stop All Foreign Trade

"Under that marketing bill the government may have the right to stop all imports and exports," he pointed out. "There's the law.

"Mr. Bennett and his cabinet have this power and the power to limit production; to require licenses before you go into your ordinary business."

Mr. King warned about the Bennett government's statement it wouldn't use this power, but he pointed out it used $60,000,000 of the money set aside to deal with unemployment.

"They took a step they had no right to whatever when they signed an agreement on the tariff and fixed it for five years," he charged.

"Take the Banking Act," he went on. "As Liberals we advocated government control in monetary affairs. "How much control have they left to the people?" he demanded.

More Powerful Than Nation

"It not only takes away all control but actually creates an institution that will be more powerful than the nation itself."

He pointed out that the Conservative government had given the central bank the gold reserves and the power to issue money when its administration remained in private hands.

"The stockholders will appoint the directors; the Canadian government doesn't appoint a single director.

"The government has appointed the president of the board for seven years, but he can't be changed by any other government except by the consent of Senate and parliament," Mr. King explained.

Mr. King said parliament was told the ownership of the bank was open to discussion, but found otherwise in committee.

"Mr. Bennett informed us then that monetary policy ought to be continuous and uniform, from the point of view of the great financial institutions."

Mr. King said he asked Mr. Bennett why the people of Canada should not have some control of social credit.

Could Frustrate Policies

"If the Liberals wanted to trade with the rest of the world the central bank could by manipulation of exchange make it impossible for our trade policies to function," he stated.

"I cannot recall any greater thrill than when I saw the huge overflow crowd about the hall on a night none too warm," said Mr. King, at the start of his address.

"It shows that in these difficult, strenuous times, the people have come to realize that government belongs to the people. I feel in my heart that the people of Canada at last have said: 'We are going to settle the questions of the country ourselves, and are determined under the right of self-government to assert ourselves and see that our demands are carried out.'

"That is the important point—whether the people have the right to govern themselves or whether they will remain under the will of a small group of people who are holding on to office for the fruits they can get from office, after having been elected by lavish promises, not one of which has been carried out.

Would Restore Prosperity

"I feel a great sense of satisfaction with Liberal policies. Under Laurier we had 15 years of golden prosperity, and when I took a hand, nine of the 15 years I have been leader have been in power. In 1921 times were much as they are now, but when the Liberals were put into power, they lowered tariffs, increased trade, and the country once more became prosperous. If we had the opportunity now our policies would have the same effect and would bring in a new era of prosperity.

"I must express regret for the occasion for this by-election. The late member, Dr. Spankie, was well known and respected by me. He was on the other side, but he was broader than party politics.

"This by-election reminds us that these are exceptional times. At no period except during the Great War has the world been faced with a more serious situation.

"Europe is in unrest. The United States has problems that are unprecedented since the civil war and Canada, too, has been seriously affected. Be the cause what it may, the present is a critical time and therefore men and women should have the widest possible opportunity to express their wishes regarding the government in power.

"There are two ways of doing this. One is a general election and the other is a by-election. We have five by-elections now and I maintain that the vote cast will be fairly representative of the feeling of the whole of Canada, and no government can ignore the voices in this province on Monday next.

People Have Shown Dissent

"Without knowing the results I say this: If five Conservatives are returned Mr. Bennett is entitled to stay in office as long as the constitution permits with a new mandate, but if the ridings go Liberal Mr. Bennett has not the right to remain the leader of the country for one hour beyond that time.

"This is not the only occasion on which the people have expressed themselves. After the Ottawa agreements were signed and tariffs raised the first by-election contested gave the Liberal candidate a majority of nearly 2,000 in Huron. A Liberal candidate in Quebec increased his majority by 80 per cent. and in New Brunswick a majority of nearly 6,000 was rolled up for the Liberals. In Oxford another small Liberal majority was turned into one of 1,600. That is the voice of the people of Canada.

"There were also the provincial elections and, while the issues were partly provincial, federal issues were largely to the fore and were fought on Bennett policies, because trade is necessary to keep the wheels of industry turning and to supply purchasing power and prosperity. The federal government's policy has been to strangle trade and that is why federal issues have been prominent in provincial elections."

"You are not being asked to decide whether you want a Liberal, Conservative or C.C.F. government in power for the next year. It is a question of whether you people are to be given the right to say what government and what policies you want, whether you can express yourselves anew.

Cites Provincial Elections

"What happened in Quebec?" asked Mr. King. "Mr. Taschereau's government came back stronger than before.

"What happened in Manitoba? Mr. Bennett had begun to interfere with the finances of that province, so that people began to discuss federal issues again, and Mr. Bracken came back stronger than before."

He said trade policies brought Liberal governments back in Nova Scotia and in British columbia. His mention of the fact that not a Conservative was returned in British Columbia brought cheers. He said the same result came about in Saskatchewan because its election, like the others, was fought on federal issues. Then he came to Ontario.

"Was it not true that the Henry government had hung on to office longer than they should have and had not their Tory associations carried the odium of the government in Ottawa with it?" he asked.

He said the people were sound in their judgment in electing Liberal governments, because the people of the provinces realized that trade policies affected them.

"Canada is the only country in the world that hasn't had a general election since 1930," pointed out the Liberal leader. "All the different parts of the British empire and the United States have had elections."

He said there has been no elections in China, Venezuela, Czechoslovakia, Italy and Russia. They hadn't had elections because of special policies.

"We are in that category, ladies and gentlemen," he declared.

Mr. King said in face of the Liberal trend in Canada if in those five by-elections the Conservatives lost, it was up to Mr. Bennett to give the people a chance to choose the government they wished.

Departs From Old Policies

"I can understand a Conservative saying that he will support a Conservative government if it were a little different, if it came into line with a little Canadian feeling. The Conservative might feel that the time had come where he should 'check up' on his party when it gets far from where it should be in national affairs. I would ask this Conservative to think of Macdonald, Borden and Meighen, and consider whether any of them ever thought of raising a tariff from 10 or 15 per cent. to 100, 300 or 400 per cent.—yet the present government has done that. There is no limit to what it has done to try to keep out trade.

"The old Conservatives did not believe in too-high tariffs, such as might create monopolies. You have a chance now to rebuke the government, and if they plan to sit for another session, it may make them modify their policies in the last year. I don't know what will happen if we have another year with this government.

"Frontenac-Addington riding, a Conservative stronghold, might bring the government to its senses if it voted Liberal.

"The will of the people alone controls the length of time a government is in power. The five-year limit is to prevent governments staying in power for longer than that time. If not, the Bennett government might stay in until they all went to the other side. The average life of governments has been four years. Previous prime ministers have dissolved parliament and given the people a chance to express their views. If Mr. Bennett is so sure of the people's confidence, why doesn't he go before them now and ask for their endorsation?"

"Mr. Bennett has held five special sessions of parliament, more than ever before."

The only previous government that remained in power the full length of time (except the war period), he said, was that in office when Sir John A. Macdonald passed away.

"Those were the days when knighthood was in flower and this government didn't see power again for 15 years," he added.

Mr. King predicted if Mr. Bennett did not heed the temper of the people he and his associates would never see power again in their lifetime. (Cheers).

Failed in Promises

Mr. King pointed out Mr. Bennett had failed in his election promises.

"Were there not broadly two issues?" he recalled. "One related to the working men in the towns, in relation to which Mr. Bennett said: 'I'll see that you get work by raising tariffs.'

"The other appeal was to the farmer, to whom he said he would get them markets by 'blasting' a way into them," said Mr. King with a laugh.

"There were 116,000 unemployed when Mr. Bennett came into power, and now," he added, "500,000 are unemployed, with 1,000,000 on relief, according to Mr. Bennett's own figures.

"Has he found you markets in other parts of the world?" he asked, referring to Mr. Bennett's second promise.

Mr. King pointed out that Mr. Bennett had a free hand to deal with this situation, "even to the point of violating the spirit of the constitution to do it."

"Mr. Bennett asked for a blank cheque—asked for the right to take out of the public treasury all the money he needed. He spent over $11,000,000 on unemployment insurance, and other amounts which bring the total he has spent to date to $270,000,000.

"The truth is that Mr. Bennett has the wrong idea about the basis of trade and prosperity. He believes in a home market, and believes the way to get it is to put a wall around the country to keep other countries' goods out. He believes that with high tariffs, Canadians will have to buy at home, but where will they get the money?

"The spending of huge sums will never save the situation.

Money Must Flow In

"Let us apply this high tariff principle in this particular community," explained the former prime minister. "Our friends in office regard the home market—Canada—as place or locality. That, in my conception, is strictly wrong. My idea of the home market is a quantity of purchasing power—an effective demand."

Mr. King said a market without exchange was merely a market-place, adding "this was the effect of Mr. Bennett's policy."

"If this happened here, how much money would circulate in this town of Enterprise?" he asked. "What is true of this community is equally true of the nation, and bound to injure a country of great national wealth.

"The only way we can hope to prosper is to have our national products sold in other markets," he declared. "When money flowed into the people's pockets, you had a real home market." (Cheers.)

"In explaining its high tariff policy the government claims that other governments are doing the same. It admits it is wrong, but says it has to do it.

"Have they tried to go to other countries to see whether Canada could exchange her products and commodities with those of the other countries to mutual advantage? Have they tried the effect of lower tariffs on trade with England, France and other countries?

Big Profits for Few

"Look at the Bennett government's record. At its first special session up went the tariffs against British goods. They told Britain that she would have to put up her tariffs too, if she wanted to trade with Canada. Later Mr. Baldwin came to Canada and in the course of discussion said he hoped that Canada would reduce tariffs, but the reply was that Canada was going to increase her tariffs. The result is that a few industrialists have been able to make mergers and large profits while the vast majority of the people have suffered."

When Mr. King threatened to stop his speech, looking at his watch, which showed five minutes to midnight, the crowd shouted as one voice: "Go on." "There is a great battle going on in the world between democracy and dictatorship," continued the Liberal leader. "The only way in which democracy can function is through the vote of the will of the people. That we have had until the last few years but opposed to this will of the people you have this other side—when a group of men, if they have gained power, will exercise it as long as they can."

This was evidenced by recent history in Europe, stated the speaker, where the oppressed have risen in revolt and overthrown oppresso

"In Russia they have had a revolt and a new Soviet system has been established," he said. "It was run by men of a particular class who lay down rules as to how men and women should live and act. It is power of force and might."

The same was true of Italy, he added, where the leader got followers and held power to-day as an expression of his own will, not that of the people. It was a counter-revolution arising out of fear of the Russian revolution.

"They looked to a strong leader and got a dictatorship," he summed up.

Similarly in Germany there was a counter-revolution.

"We saw its effects the other day when 60 men were shot down in cold blood," he commented.

With regard to religion—"which many of us regard as the most sacred thing in life," he said, it had been swept away with dictatorship.

Only Guard Against Dictator

The people holding to their parliamentary institutions provided the only bulwark against dictatorship, he thought.

Mr. King warned what the Bennett government would do in the direction of concentrating power in its hands if given one more year in office, "and that a desperate year."

"Show Mr. Bennett the real government of the country isn't Mr. Bennett, but the people of Canada, when you vote on Monday next," he exhorted his hearers, adding that Colin Campbell was a native of the country, a farmer and engineer, and one who would do great credit to the stock from which he came. "None the worse, for being of Scotch Presbyterian stock, like myself," he added. Mr. King said the candidate's youth was a great asset in times like these, which so much concerned the youth of the day.

He told his hearers a Liberal vote would protect against economic nationalism, with its attendant threat of war in this new land.

This would be a Liberal outlook in the true sense of the word "that looks beyond itself," he added.

A Liberal victory here would send up a great rejoicing throughout the world, showing that Canada was taking a lead for the salvation of humanity, he concluded.

Gardiner Scores Nationalism

"Whenever you have narrow nationalism in the world you have a desire to trade less and less with one another, and you have hard times," declared Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan.

"And there goes hand in hand with narrow nationalism those governments that wish to live unto themselves."

Start Bennett on Way Out

Mr. Campbell in his speech contended that under the Bennett regime Canadian trade had fallen 25 per cent. below the loss of the world and tha $100,000,000 less in wages was paid to the railway employees last year because of the trade tie-up brought about by the Conservatives.

"You have the privilege of starting R. B. Bennett on his way out," he declared.

DISTINGUISHED JURISTS ATTEND "RED" MASS

St. Michael's Cathedral was filled to-day when members of the bench and bar attended the "Red" Mass celebrated for members of the legal fraternity. Among the notables photographed leaving the cathedral were: (1) Mr. Justice Kelly; (2) Chief Justice Latchford; (3) Judge Lee, Toronto police commissioner; and (4) Charles McCrea, who was minister of mines in the Henry government.

Loch Ness Monster Filmed; to Be Seen In Movie Theaters

(Canadian Press via Havas.)

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The Loch Ness sea monster will soon be seen in motion picture theaters. A British film group of 20 persons, by means of telescopic lenses attached to a camera was reported today to have obtained several views of the creature from a distance of half a mile.

Captain Fraser headed the expedition which was financed by Sir Edward Mountain. The films were said to be sufficiently clear to permit a distinct view of the elusive monster in the Scottish loch.

Liberal Leader Gets In Jammed Hall by Window

Conditions Uncovered By Mass Buying Probe Laid To Bennett Govt. Policies By Mackenzie King.

Says Manion Remark Raises Grave Issue

Asserts Minister Stated By-election Results Would Not Affect Term of Office

(Canadian Press)

ENTERPRISE, Ont., Sept. 17—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King climbed through a back window in a jammed hall here tonight and hurled at the government the charge that conditions uncovered by the mass buying parliamentary committee developed largely as a result of Bennett administration policies.

"These conditions," he asserted, "have come about largely during the period of the present government." The result of the investigation thus far had been to show policies of the government lowered wages, encouraged sweat shops and reduced prices, he said.

The Liberal leader also directed a broadside at Hon. R. J. Manion, minister of railways and canals, on the ground that the latter had said the results of five Ontario by-elections would make no difference to the length of the government's term of office.

Raises Grave Issue

"In other words you are the servants, not the masters of the government," he said. Dr. Manion's remark raised a grave issue. It was that, nothwithstanding what the will of the people might be, a government could go on and retain power. He charged that certain acts of the government savored of a dictatorship, and warned that it might be dangerous to permit the government to remain in power for another year, because of harm it might do.

Mr. King was supported by the Liberal candidate, Colin Campbell, who said that "President Roosevelt invited this country to change its government so that he could do business with it."

The speech was made to a great gathering from miles around, testifying to the interest felt in the by-election.

Although loud speakers carried the main speech to the larger crowd outside the building, Mr. King gave a second brief address to the overflow.

Gets In By Ladder

So great was the crowd that Mr. King had to make his entrance to the hall by a step ladder placed up against one of the rear windows. When he finally reached the stage and appeared, a burst of shouting, cheering and handclapping rocked the building.

Oust Bennett Liberal Aim, Says Leader

Mackenzie King Is Given Great Ovation at Enterprise

CLIMBS IN WINDOW

Crowd So Great He Cannot Get Through to Doorway

(By WILLIAM MARCHINGTON.)
(Staff Correspondent of The Globe.)

Enterprise, Sept. 17.—To the Conservative stronghold of Frontenac-Addington today came Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King to place before the electors the issues to be decided in Monday's by-election.

The Liberal chieftain was greeted by a tremendous throng. The hall was jammed to the doors an hour before the meeting commenced, and a great overflow was accommodated on the village green, where loudspeakers had been installed. So great was the multitude that the Leader and other distinguished Liberals had to climb to the platform by a stepladder and through a window.

Mr. King was tendered a magnifficent ovation. He was supported on the platform by Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan, Joseph Haycock, former atron Leader; Hon. Nelson Parliament, William A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland; and Colin Campbell, the Liberal candidate for the House of Commons in Frontenac-Addington. G. Anson Aylesworth of Newburgh, a brother of Sir Allen Aylesworth, presided.

The Liberal Leader delivered a devastating attack on the Government, concentrating particularly on the trade and tariff policies, which he maintained were strangling Canada. The only way Canada could hope to prosperr was by selling her wheat, lumber, fruit and manufactured goods abroad as well as in the home market.

He urged the people to express disapproval of Benentt Government policies in the by-elections and thus make it impossible for the administration longer to cling to office.

Those on the platform were: Miss E. L. Mowat, Vice-President O.W.L.A.; Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King; J. L. Haycock; Miss Floretta Pritchard, Recording Secretary O.W.L.A.; Premier Gardiner; Mr. and Mrs. Colin Campbell (candidate); W. A. Fraser, M.P.; J. J. Duffus, Peterboro', President Central O.L.A.; Hon. Nelson Parliament; George Anson Rylesworth; A. R. Black, President Frontenac-Addington Liberal Association; James B. Garvin, Secretary Frontenac-Addington Liberal Association; Vice-President Dr. F. D. O'Connor; William O. Both, James E. Davidson, Angus McCallum, Nelson McAdoo, Dr. T. W. Warner, Dr. Northmore, Ed Payne; Chairman Samuel Shuickcombe, J. A. Newton, Ed Morilev, J. W. Smith, James B. Scanlon, Robert McFadden, Percy Henderson, J. O. Ellerbeck, Lloyd Thompson, Robert Campbell, Henry Young, Thomas Kring, David Gemmill, James Fair, Dr. A. R. E. Mounce, Charles S. Clark, Alfred Franklin, Stuart Simmons, Jim O'Shea, John Pickett, Robert Long, Jack German and G. L. Hawley.

Candidate Speaks.

Colin Campbell, the Liberal candidate, was introduced by Joseph Haycock, former Patron Leader. He condemned the "Canada first" policy, contending it had proved the undoing of Canada. He criticized the policy of building the trans-Canada highway, and adding to the tax burden. The tariff increases enacted by the Bennett Government also were sharply condemned, on the ground they had curtailed trade by hundreds of millions of dollars annually. Canada's farmers had lost their markets and prices of primary products had shrunk. On the other hand, duties had been increased on mowers, binders, cultivators, harrows and other machinery the farmers must have.

Butter prices had dropped from 40 cents to 20 cents per pound, due to the unwise policy of the Government, but the cost of cream separators had gone up, due to the tariff.

Consumers of woollen goods also had been exploited. The Imperial Conference agreements had been made to hoodwink the farmers, he said, and the Marketing Act also would be a failure.

The farmers, he declared, had been exploited with respect to gasoline. The oil companies were taking advantage of the tariff. They were making profits of millions. The same applied to other manufacturers.

Alluding to the local situation in Frontenac-Addington, he expressed resentment concerning the criticism of Conservatives that he was not a native of the county. He pointed out that Sir George Perley, Acting Dominion Prime Minister, was born in the United States.

Personal attacks on him and other Liberals, he said, were the "last desperate kick of a dying Government." He challenged the Conservatives to meet him at a joint meeting.

He favored a trade agreement with the United States, but said none would be possible with the Conservatives in power at Ottawa.

He urged them on Sept. 24 to "start R. B. Bennett on his way out," so that a Government of the people may be elected at Ottawa.

Calls Stevens Hypocrite.

Right Hon. Mr. King was introduced by William A. Fraser, Liberal M.P. for Northumberland. Mr. Fraser denounced Hon. H. H. Stevens as a "political hypocrite." He said Stevens had voted for an increase of 100 per cent. in the tariff on goods consumed by the wage-earners he now professes to protect.

Mr. King was tendered an ovation on rising. Lillian Wagar, a charming little girl dressed in chiffon, presented him with a bouquet of red roses. The Liberal Leader said his party was going to insist on the people themselves asserting the right of self-government. They were determined that the Bennett Government was not going to be allowed to cling to office for another year simply to enjoy the sweets of office.

He recalled the years of Liberal rule, reminding the audience how Canada had been brought out of a period of depression in 1921 into a period of prosperity. The present times were quite exceptional. Europe was in a state of unrest. In Canada men and women were feeling intensely the serious economic situation. Therefore they should all turn out and vote on Monday.

"The vote cast in these five by-elections will be fairly representative of the voice of the people as a whole, and there is no Government that can afford to ignore it," he proceeded.

"If as a result of the voting on Monday five constituencies go against Mr. Bennett, he cannot properly remain in office another day," exclaimed Mr. King, amid cheers.

He reviewed the results of recent Federal by-elections and Provincial general elections, claiming the results were an expression of the voice of the people.

The Henry Government in Ontario had been wiped out, partly because of the odium attaching to it by reason of its association with the Bennett Government, he said.

Tory Governments throughout Canada had been swept from office because the high-tariff policy of the Federal Government had strangled trade, said Mr. King.

Same as Russia.

Canada was on the same category as Russia and other autocratic countries, in which the people had had no opportunity for expressing themselves.

He said the question to be decided in the by-elections was whether the people should have a chance to say what Government they wanted to rule Canada, and what policy should be in force during the next four years.

There had been no limit, he said, to the high protective tariffs of the Bennett Government, and the people had an opportunity to rebuke them on Monday. A protest from Frontenac-Addington, a strong Conservative seat, might bring them to their senses. If that didn't nothing else would.

The Stevens inquiry had shown that high prices charged to consumers did not necessarily mean high wages to the workers, or high prices to producers.

Mr. King quoted Hon. Dr. Manion as having said it made no difference to the Government who won the by-elections. The Government would not resign if all the by-elections went against them. That meant the Government regarded the people as servants, not masters.

There was a great battle going on between democracy and autocracy, said Mr. King. Autocracy could only be downed by the people holding firm to Parliamentary institutions. By the provisions of the Marketing Act the Government had power to stop exports and imports and to limit production.

Criticizes C.P.R. Loan.

The Government had taken advantage of extraordinary powers to guarantee the C.P.R. loan without consulting Parliament. They had also bound Canada for five years by the Imperial Conference agreements, and Parliament had been obliged to ratify them.

The Central Bank had been given control of monetary policy, and they had not only deprived Parliament of control, but had created an institution that would be more powerful than Parliament itself.

The Central Bank was privately owned, and none of the directors would be appointed by the Government, but by the shareholders. Liberals had made a fight to have the bank Government-owned and Government-controlled. But Mr. Bennett had contended the policy of the bank should be continuous and uniform.

There was danger that the bank might be stronger than the Government itself, and that it would be operated in the interests of the banks. By manipulation of exchange and other devices the Central Bank could frustrate the trade policy of the country.

"Let me urge you on Monday to join with those in other parts of the Province, and register a vote that will remind the present Government that the real ruler is not Mr. Bennett, but the people themselves," said Mr. King, in conclusion.

He strongly commended to them Colin Campbell, a mining engineer, graduate of Queen's University, and one who knows and appreciates the needs of the farmer.

Indicate Desires.

"The time has come," said Mr. King, "when people should, by their votes, show that they are sick and tired of economic nationalism and are beginning to dread economic Imperialism. The people by their vates on Monday can say they want to see peace and good-will established, that they don't want to see the menace of war sweep over to this continent. We in this new land of Canada appreciate the freedom for which our forefathers fought, and we are prepared to say that what the world wants is a Liberal outlook, an outlook broad enough that it looks beyond itself. If the five constituencies voting in the present by-elections go Liberal it will be an effective answer to the question, 'Shall economic nationalism end or shall it continue?'"

"I venture to say that not only in Canada, but in other parts of the world there will go up a chorus of rejoicing that at least one nation has started forward toward freedom not only for Canada, but for the world as well."

Hon. Nelson Parliament, former Speaker of the Legislature, described the contest in Frontenac-Addington as a battle of principles. He said the Liberals were fighting to better the lot o fthe primary producers. "It is your bounden duty to see that you do not endorse the trade policy of the Bennett Government which has strangled trade," said Mr. Parliament.

Says Government Policies Result In Lower Wages

Liberal Leader Climbs Through Back Window At Enterprise Meeting.

Canadian Press by Direct Wire.

ENTERPRISE, Ont., Sept. 17.—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King climbed through a back window in a jammed hall here tonight and hurled at the Government the charge that conditions uncovered by the mass buying parliamentary committee developed largely as a result of Bennett administration policies.

"These conditions," he asserted, "have come about largely during the period of the present Government." The result of the investigation thus far had been to show policies of the Government lowered wages, encouraged sweat shops and reduced prices.

Assails Manion.

The Liberal leader also directed a broadside at Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, on the ground that the latter had said the results of five Ontario byelections would make no difference to the length of the Government's term of office.

"In other words, you are the servants, not the masters of the Government," he said. Dr. Manion's remark raised a grave issue. It was that notwithstanding what the will of the people might be, a Government could go on and retain power. He charged that certain acts of the Government savored of a dictatorship, and warned that it might be dangerous to permit the Government to remain in power for another year, because of harm it might do.

Roosevelt's Invitation.

Mr. King was supported by the Liberal candidate, Colin Campbell, who said that "President Roosevelt invited this country to change its Government so that he could do business with it."

The speech was made to a great gathering from miles around, testifying to the interest felt in the by-election.

Although loud speakers carried the main speech to the larger crowd outside the building, Mr. King gave a second brief address to the overflow gathering.

HON. MACKENZIE KING SPEAKS AT ENTERPRISE

B30340

Enterprise witnessed the largest crowd ever congregated in the village when the whole countryside turned out to hear Hon. Mackenzie King speak on behalf of Mr. Colin Campbell, Liberal candidate. Cars were parked a mile out on every road leading into the village and there were five times as many people outside as the hall would hold, who heard the addresses from a loud speaker. So great was the crowd that some of the speakers had to enter the building through a window in order to reach the platform.

Mr. King was tendered a magnificant ovation. He was supported on the platform by Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan; Joseph Haycock, former Patron Leader; Hon. Nelson Parliament; William A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland; and Colin Campbell, the Liberal candidate for the House of Commons in Frontenac-Addington. G. Anson Aylesworth, of Newburgh, a brother of Sir Allan Aylesworth, presided.

The Liberal Leader delivered a devastating attack on the Government, concentrating particularly on the trade and tariff policies, which he maintained were strangling Canada. The only way Canada could hope to prosper was by selling her wheat, lumber, fruit and manufactured goods abroad as well as in the home market.

He urged the people to express disapproval of Bennett Government policies in the by-elections and thus make it impossible for the administration longer to cling to office.

Frontenac-Addington's Greatest Meeting

(BY "BOB" LONG)

D30341

'Twas a Great and Glorious Meeting—And will long be talked of by the Citizens of Enterprise.

'Twas a great and glorious meeting—and will long be talked of by the citizens of Enterprise.

Long before seven o'clock the hall was a packed mass of electors—thousands (since it is estimated that more than 4000 people were present) crowded every available foot of space for many yards in every direction—who listened earnestly and eagerly to the addresses which were punctuated with rounds of applause.

True ,the speaker of the evening was Canada's most illustrious son, Right Hon. Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King, who held his hearers spellbound — but "Cole" Campbell electrified that great throng with a masterly presentation of the issues, as they effected the welfare of the farmers, dairymen, business men, artisans and laborers of the constituency.

Electors of Frontenac-Addington learned with pride that the Liberals have a candidate that the overburdened populace of every faith, political and otherwise, can cheer for—a young man whose knowledge of the social and economic problems warrant them and encouraged them to rally to his support that he may, as he will, devote his energies and his talents to the task of solving these problems—rather than sit on a back bench in the commons as a mere voting machine, as the majority of elected members in the Commons do.

"Colie" Campbell is not only the follower of the greatest statesman of Canada and one of the leading statesmen of the world, but he demonstrated that he will be an asset to that leader—to the electors of the County and to Canadians as a whole.

Few men at his age have demonstrated ability as rare as his, and from the manner in which he is received in every part of the riding, it is evident that the riding of Frontenac-Addington will overwhelmingly acclaim him as its adopted son on Sept. 24th.

Opposition speakers have been sniping at his candidature, claiming him to be an "outsider" in a vain effort to demean his strength—if that were possible, but this will not affect his candidature. Born in Elgin, one of the true British Counties of the Province, "Colie" graduated, with his Scotch blood, from Queen's University after spending his life on the farm, he came to Northbrook in the north part of the riding, in 1930 and has resided there during these four years.

He was chosen Standard Bearer for the Liberal party to contest the riding in the Provincial contest, which gave Premier Hepburn such an overwhelming landslide in June. "Colie" went down to defeat through despicable tactics, with the largest vote ever polled by a Liberal candidate, cutting the opposition majority by nearly two-thirds—and at Sydenham received the unanimous endorsation of the largest political convention ever held in the County. No other name was mentioned—"Campbell, Campbell" was the cry, and Campbell it was without even a thought of a contest for the honor and the battle that is on.

Contrasted with the Tory convention at which six names were placed forward and fought out on, it is indeed a tribute to the strength and popularity of this young men, who will go far in the public life of his country—who will shed a lustre upon the county that sends him to Ottawa as its representative—and who will shed lustre upon his native land—Canada.

In their effort to discount his strength by the false statement that he is not a resident of the riding, Tory speakers do not remind their hearers of the fact that their Acting Leader, Sir George Perley, was not even born in Canada, or that their great former chieftain, the late Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, was not Canadian born; that their leader, the present Prime Minister Bennett, was born in Nova Scotia, though sitting as the member for Calgary. These facts do not condemn these famous Tory leaders, but while on the subject let me also remind them that Dr. Ross, sitting member for Kingston, was born outside the riding and was not—is not "a native son." The facts are mentioned merely to remind electors of the means to which Tory speakers go to detract them from the Big issues so ably "tackled" by "Colie' 'Campbell and voided by the Tory speakers—who are now pretty well silenced on the "garbage" they were handing to their listeners.

Only a few days remain till the polls close. Many attempts may be made in an effort to "cheat" the riding of the services of this brilliant candidate—who as Premier Hepburn stated on several occasions, would have been a member of his cabinet—which would have been of tremendous value to the riding. That he will, if elected, and when the Right Hon. Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King is again placed in charge of National affairs as the head of a government of, by and for the people—be chosen as a cabinet minister in that government, is the prediction of the leaders of Liberalism—thus it is your opportunity, Ladies' and Gentlemen, to give to your riding a representative possessed of such qualifications that you and yours may share in the better conditions that a King victory will bring to Canada and Canadians.

Forget not that your interests transcend the interests of any political party or candidate—this is a battle to decide whether a few millionaires, banded together in Oil, Coal, Packing, Industrial and Financial combines shall continue to hoard up millions, while you sweat and toil and become more impoverished through their exploitation. You cannot serve these interests and serve you own—and your interests are the Real issue. Your hope is in "Colie" Campbell's candidature and in his election on Monday, therefore let every man and woman, true to their own personal interests, that day do their duty.

Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King at Enterprise Greeted By More Than 4000 People

Greatest Political Rally ever held in Frontenac-Addington---Will Long be Remembered by the Populace

Warns Bennett He Has Lost Confidence of People

Rising amidst thunderous applause, Mr. King lost no time in presenting his never to be forgotten address.

"First of all," said he, "I must thank Mr. Fraser very warmly for the manner in which he has spoken and the kind words with which he has introduced me to this gathering. I feel very deeply at seeing all these people gathered together here, and I appreciate very much the beautiful gift and what went with it.

"I have had the pleasure of addressing a very large number of meetings in Canada during the course of my public life, but I do not recollect any greater thrill than I had when we were trying to get here tonight. I have experienced a thrill the like of which I have never had before in my life.

"We are living in times that are very trying, very difficult. Times which the people are looking over something that goes to hold them up.

"As I look here at this great gathering at this moment, I feel in my heart that the people of Canada have at last said to themselves that we are going to settle the question of this country ourselves and we are determined to have self Government carried out.

"My Campbell spoke tonight about the history of the County of Frontenac. It is the finest in the history of Canada. I recollect at this minute fifteen years ago, Sir Allan Aylesworth, our oldest statesman in the Government of Canada, sitting at the right of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and it was Sir Allan Aylesworth who nominated me as Sir Wilfrid Laurier's successor to the head of the Liberal party, and I recollect over twenty-five years ago, I had the privilege of being taken into the Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurer, and Sir Allan Aylesworth was sitting close to him.

"I feel with a sense of satisfaction and pride the policies of the Liberal party, and as a result they had fifteen years of golden prosperity. I have been Prime Minister of Canada for nine years. When you think back over these nine years and the situation that exists today, it is hard to understand. Our National debts were lowered, we lowered the taxes of the people, and we brought increased prosperity. When you think of these facts, do you not believe that a similar policy would bring about the same results? I want also so say that I am glad to see Mr. Haycock still on the platform. I have known him for a long time and he has always had the interests of the people of rural communities in his mind.

"It is always the Liberal Government the people look to when they want a restoration of better times and greater prosperity throughout Canada.

"I want to say what a pleasure it is to see Mr. Gardiner on the platform tonight. He is a representative of the church to which he belongs at the Conference in Kingston, and I say it is a fortunate thing that we have him with us tonight at this gathering, and particularly to be able to congratulate him on the magnificent victory which he and his followers had in the Province of Saskatchewan.

"There is one regret I have. I regret deeply the occasion of this by-election. I knew Dr. Spankie and he was one of my real friends. It is true he was on the opposite side of the House, but just the same we were very dear friends. He was one who was always ready to do his bit. I wish to express to this constituency my deepest sympathy at his passing.

"As I said a moment ago, these times are quite exceptional times. At no period have there been more serious issues than at present. The result of the five by-elections in this Province of Ontario will, I venture to say, be fairly representative of the feeling of the people of Canada. No Government can afford to ignore the voice of the people in this Province as Government ,which was going to be defeated. Mr. Bennett got into the fray, with the result that Mr. Taschereau's Government came back into power.

"Take the situation in Manitoba, Mr. Bracken's Government had been in office. Judging by the way of the depression, it was due to pass out. Mr. Bennett had begun to interfere in their finances and with other matters that had occurred and with the result that the people began to discuss election issues, and Mr. Bracken's Government came back into power. Then Nova Scotia—the issues discussed against the Government was set out and the Liberal Government, under Mr. Macdonald, was put in office.

"Take our friend, Mr. Gardiner's Government. I am sure Mr. Gardiner will bear be out when I say it was fought on the Federal issue and he is returned to power with a huge majority.

"I come down to the Province of Ontario, a Province that could never be wrested from the Conservative party. Was it not true that the Henry Government went down to defeat? Mr. Hepburn, in the course of that campaign, went into the matter very thoroughly.:

"You have had Tory Governments swept out of office. New Brounswick is the only one left. Canada is the only country almost in the world that has not had an election since August 1930, when the present administration was elected. In Great Britain, they have had an election, in Australia, New Zealand as well, and in different parts of the British Empire they have had their elections. In the United States, they have had a general election. In China they have not had a Government. In Venzuela they settle their differences by actions of civil war. In Italy they have not had an election because they have a Dictator there that takes away that right. In Germany they have a dictatorship and in Austria, which is another autocratic country. In Russia they have not had an election. We are not in that category. These are the countries that have not had a chance. Now I wish to take all these facts under consideration. There is the fact that the people throughout the world generally feel that Canada will express the voice of the people in the five by-elctions this month, and if Liberals are returned, it will be an indicatons that the people are opposed to this present administration, and it is Mr. Bennett's duty to listen to the voice of the people, who will return whatever Government they wish.

"May I point this out to you—you are not being asked to decide this question. What is before you is the question as to whether the people should be given a right to choose which policy they wish. We can express our opinion as to the policies which will govern us.

I am quite prepared to support the Conservative Government if it is a real Government and if they will change its policy somewhat. We do not inherit our party feeling without wishing to show our party ideals.

"The voice of the people at this time will serve notice on the Government. I ask you to think back to the days of Sir John A. Macdonald, then to the days of Sir Robert Borden, and ask yourself if any of these old Conservatives ever thought of putting up a tariff something like from 300 to 400 per cent. Did any of them ever think of putting duty on goods?

"There has been no limit to what this Government has done, which are not the views of Sir John A. Macdonald or Sir Robert Borden. While we believe in protectve tariff, we do not believe that industries should be allowed to create monoplies, and that trade should be strangled. You have by mutual consent of the parties. I might also mention the time of Sir John A. Macdonald, in 1891, when he was succeeded by Sir John Thompson, and then by Sir George Abbott. Those were the days when Knighthood was in Flower.

That is the story coming to us with the Tory party. They have not attempted to use their office to further the people's needs. I do not think this Government will ever see power again as long as they are alive.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I should say that the average length of time that a parliament has lasted in Canada is about three years. You remember when Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in office and the Reciprocity was under discussion. What did he do? He said, "It is perfectly true I have five years and I could perhaps force this thing through." But he did not, he wanted the will of the people, and so at the end of three years, Sir Wilfrid asked the Governor-General for a dissolution. That was carrying along the Government according to the will of the people.

The questions that came up at the time this present Government came into power were to be dealt with satisfactorily, if they were capable of dealing with them. The two problems were work, and trade. Mr. Bennett said, "If you return me to power, I will see that you all get work." He thought he could do it by means of the tariffs. He thought that it could be possible that there would be plenty of employment in a short time.

The other problem was for the farmers. He said: "I will get you markets." How did he propose to get them? He also said, "I will place your goods in the markets of the world." How far has he succeeded in getting them?

116,000 unemployed when he came into office, according to his own figures. Over 1,000,000 on relief at present.

As far as markets are concerned, you know the extent of such. You had the markets in the Provinces. You have the markets in other parts of the world. He introduced policies that he thought were sartisfactory. He has had a chance to throw away his policies, as they would not be carried out.

In dealing with unemployment, he asked for a blank cheque and the right to take out of the Public Treasury. All the money he wanted, he has drawn for four years in succession, and he has the right to take out whatever money he wants for that purpose of unemployment. There has been spent on unemployment over $110,000,000. There has been, in addition to that, three loans to different Provinces, and guarantees to different concerns, amounts which bring the total to something like $270,000,000.

With the Prime Minister using money to provide work, do you think instead of these high tariffs, we had had a reasonable amount of trade taking place between other countries, and the Government had an unemployment scheme, that we would not have had greater prosperity than we have at the present time. The Government have an entirely wrong idea. The best prosperity can be brought about by trade. I think I am right when I say Mr. Bennett's policy was not a sound one. Mr. Bennett believed in a Home Market when he put a high tariff wall around the country so as to prevent any commodities coming in. What are we going to do when there are no people to get money from?

Let me assume for a moment. We are in the Village of Enterprise. Let us suppose that this high tariff would be taking in Enterprise and see how it would work. This place is a locality where nothing can come in. My idea of a home market is a place that adds to her purchasing power, which means the money that is available for purchasing. That would not be a market

High tariffs do not mean high wages and high tariffs do not mean high prices for the farmers. It is true that wages during this four years, and prices were lower than the four years previous. These conditions largely come about through the Government being in power.

Dr. Manion speaking in Toronto on the 15th September, said that it would not make any difference to the life or length of the present Government whether Liberals or Conservatives were returned in the coming five by-elections. Dr. Manion, as a Minister of the Government, is speaking for the Prime Minister, so that they are gong to hold to the Government as long as they can.

I want to say this to you about the situation today. If you study the employment of the nations of the world, you will find that there is a great upheavel going on between democracy on the one hand and autocracy on the other, democracy being the will of the people, and autocracy the will of the few. By responsible Government is meant being responsible to the people and not to just a few. It is their Parliament. On the other hand, the will of the people is expressed in by-elections. In Russia they have not the Institutions we have. They have been for the most part poor people and have risen in revolt.

In Germany, you have a leader today who takes a position, the result of which you saw the other day when sixty men were shot down in cold blood, without being questioned.

The Marketing Bill, I might also mention, was put through. One clause gives the government the right to stop all imports or exports, and not Parliament. Parliament has nothing to do with it, and this authority is given for the purpose of meeting any situations as they arise. Mr. Bennett and his Government have the power to limit production and to require all people to have licenses before they sell any of their produce or go on with their business.

You say a Government may never make use of that authority. We were told they were never going to use this unemployment.

They used $60,000,000 of it to guarguarantee the banks for the C. P. R. loan, and the fact that they got that power means that they can make agreements and sign other agreements for the trade of the country without any consent of Parliament.

It would have been perfectly proper to have appeared before Parliament, but this Government did not do that. They told the Parliament that they had to take it for five years.

Take the Banking Act, do you realize the position you are in as regards Monetary Policy. The people were in favor of the appointment of a Central Bank controlled by the Government, but the Bennett Government have framed a measure that creates an Institution more powerful than the Government itself, and Canada is not to have a director. It is to be a privately owned Institution and bonds are to be put on the market. In addition to that, this Government has appointed a President of the Board for seven years. This President of the Board cannot be changed except by the authority of both parties.

As a result of this, Canada will have to send to Parliament representatives who will have a certain policy so that their interests may be protected and we will not be facing the problems which occurred in the last session. I do not thing that this Government can be trusted to stay in office any longer. We know how far they have gone in taking away from Parliament and keeping themselves in office. What they would do if they had just one more year is pretty hard to say. I

Leader of the Liberal Party in Canada

Right-Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King was born in the City of Kitchener in 1874. Editor of Labour Gazette 1900-08, Deputy Minister of Labour 1909, elected to House of Commons for N. Waterloo 1908; re-elected in 1909, has sat as member for North York and Prince Albert, Leader of Opposition 1919-21, Prime Minister of Canada 1921-1930, Member of Imperial Privy Council, represented Canada at Imperial Conferences, London 1923 and 1926, and at signing of the Kellogg Peace Treaty, Paris, 1928, Fellow Royal Society of Canada, 1910, Author of "The Secret of Heroism" 1906, "Industry and Humanity," 1918, "The Message of the Carillion," 1927. Religion, Presbyterian. Was Vice-President League of Nations, 1928. Under his Regime as Premier of Canada, Canadians shared the benefits of lowered taxation, annual surpluses, and a very substantial reduction in the National Debt.

The Review of Reviews—One of the world's most accredited magazines, has this to say of Mr. King:

More than once we have expressed the view in this periodical that the world position of Canada is pivotal, wth Mackenzie King a statesman of the first rank. He has had no superior—perhaps no equal—during the past decade among all the political leaders within the realms of the "British commonwealth of nations." In his make-up are found some of the best qualities of three British premiers and present-day party leaders, Baldwin, Macdonald and Lloyd George. He is better trained in economics and history than any of these three, and also has a broader understandng of the world at large."

Colin Campbell's Great Speech

Delivered at Enterprise Meeting

Greeted by Frequent Outbursts of Applause, Liberal Candidate Makes Tremendous Hit

Rarely has a candidate been given a greater reception than that tendered "Colie" Campbell as he rose to address the thousands in and around the hall. He proceeded:

Mr. Chairman, My Honoured Leader, Ladies' and Gentlemen:—

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I rise before you this evening, especially am I very pleased to have here on this occasion the Ex-Prime Minister of Canada, who will be the next one after the General Election.

We are also glad to have with us on the plaform, Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan.

This gathering tonight takes us back to a good deal of history connected with the riding of Frontenac-Addington. We have a representative of the oldest family of United Empire Loyalists, and I am glad to see that my opponent's name happens to be Aylesworth. I have fighting on my side the majority of the Aylesworth family. We have also on this platform tonight the grand-daughter of the late Sir Oliver Mowat. We have also the privilege of having with us tonight, my good friend, Mr. Geo. W. Dawson, who represented the northern portion of this riding some 43 years ago in the Federal House. It was a stronge coincidence that he came out of the North to defeat the Conservatives at that time. I do not know whether history will repeat itself. From the crowd I see tonight, it augurs well.

You did not come here tonight to hear me, you came here to listen to the next Prime Minister, however, I cannot let tonight pass without saying something of my good old friend from the old riding of Frontenac-Addington. I realize at this time that it is necessary to finish out the term of our friend, the late Dr. Spankie. It was my pleasure during last summer to have travelled throughout this riding with him at non-political gatherings. The good old Doctor, unfortunately, has passed on, so that we must fill his seat. The people who elected Dr. Spankie at that time voted to support the Right Hon. R. B. Bennett and his colleagues, who had stated their policy, and you expected in four years' time that Dr. Spankie would give you an account of his stewardship. Unfortunately, we find that he is not here to do that.

The Leader of the Government has put the sea between you and he so that you cannot hear anything from him.

I want to draw your attention to the fact that the speeches which are being made in this campaign, by our opponents, are not what might be expected, and it grieves me considerably that Dr. Ross and others have made attacks upon myself that are not in keeping with one another as graduates of

The first year of the Bennett Government, the people paid 40 per cent. of the road charge, 50 per cent. the next year. This year it is 50 cents per day per man. The rest was paid for by you taxpayers of Ontario.

In the matter of Old Age Pensions you voted to get rid of this as a local tax, yet you were taxed 15 per cent. after having promised it would all be accepted by the Federal Government.

I note there are men going about this riding at the present time that take great credit for the Old Age Pensions. It was the King Government that passed this Act in 1927 in spite of opposition.

General Ross and others, who are speaking in this riding say this is not so. They put into effect the "Canada First" Policy. Dairy farmers felt it was a good thing to get higher prices. So in the year 1930, they placed a duty on every article entering Canada. That meant some articles on the free list had a duty.

During the regime of our Leader, Right Hon. Mr. King, export trade had risen to $2,800,000,000.

You were told that Canada was on the verge of bankruptcy, and so after the first application of high protection, the trade had dropped to $1,700,000,000 in one year.

Not satisfied with that, Mr. Bennett and his colleagues increased the duties on three successive occasions, with the result that trade dwindled until it is practically 40 per cent. of what it was in 1930.

Yet you people were told that this country was suffering from lack of markets.

The agriculturists in this country are producing about the same amount of produce as they were in 1930, nor is it as easy to get the prices that you had in 1930.

I want to point out something more and that is the fact that you were told that you as farmers were not benefitting under the policy of the old King Government in that it failed to enlarge the scope of the primary producer.

You farmers who bought binders or mowers only had to pay duty at 6%. This was increased to 28.75 per cent.

Practically every man I see before me is a dairyman. Under the King Government, you had the privilege of buying separators in the country, duty free, and this was increased to 28.75 per cent.

The large Separators at the milk factory in 1930 cost $950.00. This year it went to $1250, a $300.00 increase.

You all know that the price of your butter has gone down. You are being exploited to that extent just because of an economic policy of a man who does not know the conditions of the people of Canada.

You are paying more for your cream separators and there is a 25 per cent. 12% of the entire nation being fed by the people who are working away trying to keep their business going in the hope that they will get some of their money back. So we can go along and show the conditions which places this large number out of employment When they had to use up their life savings to live, naturally they asked for relief. It means that they cannot pay as much money for food or products as in the year 1930, when this country was prosperous. You are just as hungry as you were in 1930, but only eating 60 per cent. of the amount. The reason you were not buying more is that you have not got the money to buy it. The reason they are unemployed is that you have no markets; trade is not moving.

It is the result of this that you farmers are in the position you are today.

The miners of this country are in a specially privileged position. When copper goes to a low price, they can close the mines. The steel mills can also close down. The lumberman can leave the lumber in the bush, and so can the fishermen leave the fish in the lake. The farmer has to till his land, keep his fences up, and repair his barns. So the farmer in this country is still trying to keep his business going. He finds he is producing too much produce. They cannot do that—instead they have to keep on producing—even at a loss.

Mr. Bennett claims that the Home Market is the best market in the world. You were told that if you elected R. B. Bennett, a duty would be placed on New Zealand butter, but you were not told of the products we were selling to New Zealand.You were told that with the duty on butter, you would be that much richer. The next year after this tariff was put on, butter dropped to 21 cents, and at present it is 19¾c.

You all know what your cream cheque is.

The Honourable Harry Stevens, Head of the Department of Trade and Commerce, issues a statement of butter stored in the Dominion the first of each year. There was about 35,000,000 lbs. average for the last four years, and 48,000,000 lbs this year.

Let us point out this fact. The protection of butter was supposed to be a benefit to the trade, yet we find an increase of 36 per cent. in storage of butter and lower production.

You know that the people of Canada cannot buy, and you wonder why you cannot sell them. They refuse to buy goods in other countries. They have trade barriers up to such an extent that we cannot do business with them.

You were told that after these agreements, that this country was going to prosper, yet prosperity has not taken place.

I would like at this time to just explain to you the way in which tariffs of this Government has allowed you to be exploited. You, as drivers of motor cars, all buy gasoline. The people of Canada have been exploited six cents per gallon. The Oil Companies receive their crude oil in this country, duty free. We find that Oil Companies annually pay in wages $8,000,000. It does not take many men to run a large refinery. And so we find that most of our large manufacturers are exploiting you people.

Now I have been accused of being a terrible man, because I was born in Elgin County. I still think it is part and parcel of the Dominion of Canada. I want to point out something further, that since the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett has taken to flight and gone across the pond, that the man who is Acting Prime Minister of Canada, is Sir George Perley, and he does not happen to have been born in Canada. I do not hold that against him. Because Sir George Perley has given freely to his Country.

When I came to reside in this County four years ago, I certainly would not have picked out the riding of Frontenac-Addington as an easy place to get elected in, if I had had political ambitions. I feel sure that I have many friends now and I hope I can hold them because the only payment you get out of this life is the true friendships you make. I am very pleased with the men who fought with me, and are beside me at this time. I am also pleased to have with me the supporters of the late Dr. Spankie. I appreciate the fact that these men voted for me in the late Provincial Election, as they felt that the Government of that day was not governing in the best interest of the people, and to relieve the taxpayer in this province. I appreciate the fact that all these men are still with me. They are not voting for me because I am a Grit, but because the Government of this country is liable to become endangered, through lack of responsibility to the people.

A week from today you are called upon to vote on who is to fill the seat of the late Dr. Spankie. The farmers all want to receive some value for their products. You are not going to have any increase in farm products until a new Government is ushered into office at Ottawa. I have been told by my opponents I am wrong because I made this statement. I am again telling you that if you have any products to sell and that if you had a market to the south of us you would be receiving a lot more. Pork was selling in Toronto last week from $8.75 to $8.90, and in Chicago from $8.95 to $9.50. Our present cattle are selling at three cents more in Chicago than in Toronto. Beef is higher: In Toronto, $4.25 to $4.75; In Chicago, $6.50 to $9.50. Lambs $1.00 a hundred more in Chicago than in Toronto. You can sell it in the States. We in this country suffer because we have no market. The unemployed are on our backs be-

Colin Campbell's Great Speech

Delivered at Enterprise Meeting

Greeted by Frequent Outbursts of Applause, Liberal Candidate Makes Tremendous Hit

Rarely has a candidate been given a greater reception than that tendered "Colie" Campbell as he rose to address the thousands in and around the hall. He proceeded :

Mr. Chairman, My Honoured Leader, Ladies' and Gentlemen:—

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I rise before you this evening, especially am I very pleased to have here on this occasion the Ex-Prime Minister of Canada, who will be the next one after the General Election.

We are also glad to have with us on the plaform, Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan.

This gathering tonight takes us back to a good deal of history connected with the riding of Frontenac-Addington. We have a representative of the oldest family of United Empire Loyalists, and I am glad to see that my opponent's name happens to be Aylesworth. I have fighting on my side the majority of the Aylesworth family. We have also on this platform tonight the grand-daughter of the late Sir Oliver Mowat. We have also the privilege of having with us tonight, my good friend, Mr. Geo. W. Dawson, who represented the northern portion of this riding some 43 years ago in the Federal House. It was a stronge coincidence that he came out of the North to defeat the Conservatives at that time. I do not know whether history will repeat itself. From the crowd I see tonight, it augurs well.

You did not come here tonight to hear me, you came here to listen to the next Prime Minister, however, I cannot let tonight pass without saying something of my good old friend from the old riding of Frontenac-Addington. I realize at this time that it is necessary to finish out the term of our friend, the late Dr. Spankie. It was my pleasure during last summer to have travelled throughout this riding with him at non-political gatherings. The good old Doctor, unfortunately, has passed on, so that we must fill his seat. The people who elected Dr. Spankie at that time voted to support the Right Hon. R. B. Bennett and his colleagues, who had stated their policy, and you expected in four years' time that Dr. Spankie would give you an account of his stewardship. Unfortunately, we find that he is not here to do that.

The Leader of the Government has put the sea between you and he so that you cannot hear anything from him.

I want to draw your attention to the fact that the speeches which are being made in this campaign, by our opponents, are not what might be expected, and it grieves me considerably that Dr. Ross and others have made attacks upon myself that are not in keeping with one another as graduates of Queen's University.

There is one thing I did notice that when different speakers are questioned, they resort to the tactics that they have gone into during the last few days.

I will not attempt to deny any of the remarks made by Dr. Ross. I do not wish to lower myself to this sort of thing.

If Bennett takes a chance, we know that Mr. King will be retruned to power.

When the Bennett Government came into power four years ago, on that occasion we were told that this Dominion of Canada was strong and virile. You people were told that a terrible situation existed in Canada and a coat of black was painted across the whole business structure carried on in Canada at that time.

It was pointedout to you that we had 140,000 people on relief. It was a condition that should not exist in Canada.

You were told that if you elected R. B. Bennett they would erect a highway across Canada.

You were told all about the Old Age Pensions.

He told you that he was going to institute a "Canada First" policy.

He made certain selfish statements the people of this country fell for and I will show you in a few minutes what they were. The people felt that these promises were made in all sincerity, and they voted the Bennett government into power.

The first year of the Bennett Government, the people paid 40 per cent. of the road charge, 50 per cent. the next year. This year it is 50 cents per day per man. The rest was paid for by you taxpayers of Ontario.

In the matter of Old Age Pensions, you voted to get rid of this as a local tax, yet you were taxed 15 per cent. after having promised it would all be accepted by the Federal Government.

I note there are men going about this riding at the present time that take great credit for the Old Age Pensions. It was the King Government that passed this Act in 1927 in spite of opposition.

General Ross and others, who are speaking in this riding say this is not so. They put into effect the "Canada First" Policy. Dairy farmers felt it was a good thing to get higher prices. So in the year 1930, they placed a duty on every article entering Canada. That meant some articles on the free list had a duty.

During the regime of our Leader, Right Hon. Mr. King, export trade had risen to $2,800,000,000.

You were told that Canada was on the verge of bankruptcy, and so after the first application of high protection, the trade had dropped to $1,700,000,000 in one year.

Not satisfied with that, Mr. Bennett and his colleagues increased the duties on three successive occasions, with the result that trade dwindled until it is practically 40 per cent. of what it was in 1930.

Yet you people were told that this country was suffering from lack of markets.

The agriculturists in this country are producing about the same amount of produce as they were in 1930, nor is it as easy to get the prices that you had in 1930.

I want to point out something more and that is the fact that you were told that you as farmers were not benefiting under the policy of the old King Government in that it failed to enlarge the scope of the primary producer.

You farmers who bought binders or mowers only had to pay duty at 6%. This was increased to 28.75 per cent.

Practically every man I see before me is a dairyman. Under the King Government, you had the privilege of buying separators in the country, duty free, and this was increased to 28.75 per cent.

The large Separators at the milk factory in 1930 cost $950.00. This year it went to $1250, a $300.00 increase.

You all know that the price of your butter has gone down. You are being exploited to that extent just because of an economic policy of a man who does not know the conditions of the people of Canada.

You are paying more for your cream separators and there is a 25 per cent. reduction in the United States.

Labor men, farmers, lumberman fishermen and all are exploited to the extent of the tariff which is against these articles. I want to point out this fact that certain tariffs are made for revenue.

Trade went down from $200,000,000 to $65,000,000 as the result of restriction of trade.

Regarding butter, according to the Bureau of Statistics, this had dwindled from 38.9 per cent. to, at the present time, 34.1 per cent., a loss in trade.

My opponent spoke to you about the great increase in bacon which has been sold to the British Empire, and tells you of the Imperial Trade Agreements. A quota of $270,000,000 was given, whereas we only supplied $71,000,000. If this quota was lived up to, we would have to raise four times as many hogs, and they would have to be all first class at that to be shipped.

These agreements were just made to hoodwink the people, but unfortunately for the Bennett Government they have turned out to be the Uneconomic Policy.

Owing to this reductoin in trade, it has meant that the Railway Companies, and other transportation companies, steamships, have found it necessary ot lay off a number of employees.

The payment of $100,000,000 by relief funds was not an economy. We find in 1930, 140,000 people on relief, and in 1934, over 1,000,000 on relief.

told of the products we were selling to New Zealand. You were told that with the duty on butter, you would be that much richer. The next year after this tariff was put on, butter dropped to 21 cents, and at present it is 18¾c.

You all know what your cream cheque is .

The Honourable Harry Stevens, Head of the Department of Trade and Commerce, issues a statement of butter stored in the Dominion the first of each year. There was about 35,000,000 lbs. average for the last four years, and 48,000,000 lbs this year.

Let us point out this fact. The protection of butter was supposed to be a benefit to the trade, yet we find an increase of 36 per cent. in storage of butter and lower production.

You know that the people of Canada cannot buy, and you wonder why you cannot sell them. They refuse to buy goods in other countries. They have trade barriers up to such an extent that we cannot do business with them.

You were told that after these agreements, that this country was going to prosper, yet prosperity has not taken place.

I would like at this time to just explain to you the way in which tariffs of this Government has allowed you to be exploited. You, as drivers of motor cars, all buy gasoline. The people of Canada have been exploited six cents per gallon. The Oil Companies receive their crude oil in this country, duty free. We find that Oil Companies annually pay in wages $8,000,000. It does not take many men to run a large refinery. And so we find that most of our large manufacturers are exploiting you people.

Now I have been accused of being a terrible man, because I was born in Elgin County. I still think it is part and parcel of the Dominion of Canada. I want to point out something further, that since the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett has taken to flight and gone across the pond, that the man who is Acting Prime Minister of Canada, is Sir George Perley, and he does not happen to have been born in Canada. I do not hold that against him, because Sir George Perley has given freely to his Country.

When I came to reside in this County four years ago, I certainly would not have picked out the riding of Frontenac-Addington as an easy place to get elected in, if I had had political ambitions. I feel sure that I have many friends now and I hope I can hold them because the only payment you get out of this life is the true friendships you make. I am very pleased with the men who fought with me, and are beside me at this time. I am also pleased to have with me the supporters of the late Dr. Spankie. I appreciate the fact that these men voted for me in the late Provincial Election, as they felt that the Government of that day was not governing in the best interest of the people, and to relieve the taxpayer in this province. I appreciate the fact that all these men are still with me. They are not voting for me because I am a Grit, but because the Government of this country is liable to become endangered, through lack of responsibility to the people.

A week from today you are called upon to vote on who is to fill the seat of the late Dr. Spankie. The farmers all want to receive some value for their products. You are not going to have any increase in farm products until a new Government is ushered into office at Ottawa. I have been told by my opponents I am wrong because I made this statement. I am again telling you that if you have any products to sell and that if you had a market to the south of us you would be receiving a lot more. Pork was selling in Toronto last week from $8.75 to $8.90, and in Chicago from $8.95 to $9.50. Our present cattle are selling at three cents more in Chicago than in Toronto. Beef is higher : In Toronto, $4.25 to $4.75 ; In Chicago, $6.50 to $9.50. Lambs $1.00 a hundred more in Chicago than in Toronto. You can sell it in the States. We in this country suffer because we have no market. The unemployed are on our backs because we have no trade moving. The only way you are going to get back prosperity is to have a new Government.

We can start to do that on September 24th. The people in these five ridings have the privilege of telling R. B. Bennett that his policies are uneconomical. You have a chance getting new trade. At the present time you are receiving only 40 per cent. of what you received in 1930 for the same goods.

Sales Tax has been increased to six per cent., instead of one.

You have to pay an increase in postage, all because R. B. Bennett has put into force an uneconomical policy. You have a chance of starting R. B. Bennett on his way out. The farmers of this riding know that they are still going broke. They realize that they are working at a loss. They know that their standard of living is being lowered, and your chance of responsible government is being endangered. I want to point out a similarty of events before. There was a group of men who were governing this country, from 1830 to 1835. They refused to go to the country, and there was an illustrious man of that time who rose up and led a group of reformers and that man was William Lyon Mackenzie.

Now at the present time, instead of having William Lyon Mackenze, we have his grandson, Willam Lyon Mackenzie King. Let us, on September 24th, usher into power a new Government so that your standard of living can be raised.

ing a very large number of meetings in Canada during the course of my public life, but I do not recollect any greater thrill than I had when we were trying to get here tonight. I have experienced a thrill the like of which I have never had before in my life.

"We are living in times that are very trying, very difficult. Times which the people are looking over something that goes to hold them up.

"As I look here at this great gathering at this moment, I feel in my heart that the people of Canada have at last said to themselves that we are going to settle the question of this country ourselves and we are determined to have self Government carried out.

"My Campbell spoke tonight about the history of the County of Frontenac. It is the finest in the history of Canada. I recollect at this minute fifteen years ago, Sir Allan Aylesworth, our oldest statesman in the Government of Canada, sitting at the right of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and it was Sir Allan Aylesworth who nominated me as Sir Wilfrid Laurier's successor to the head of the Liberal party, and I recollect over twenty-five years ago, I had the privilege of being taken into the Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurer, and Sir Allan Aylesworth was sitting close to him.

"I feel with a sense of satisfaction and pride the policies of the Liberal party, and as a result they had fifteen years of golden prosperity. I have been Prime Minister of Canada for nine years. When you think back over these nine years and the situation that exists today, it is hard to understand. Our National debts were lowered, we lowered the taxes of the people, and we brought increased prosperity. When you think of these facts, do you not believe that a similar policy would bring about the same results ? I want also so say that I am glad to see Mr. Haycock still on the platform. I have known him for a long time and he has always had the interests of the people of rural communities in his mind.

"It is always the Liberal Government the people look to when they want a restoration of better times and greater prosperity throughout Canada.

"I want to say what a pleasure it is to see Mr. Gardiner on the platform tonight. He is a representative of the church to which he belongs at the Conference in Kingston, and I say it is a fortunate thing that we have him with us tonight at this gathering, and particularly to be able to congratulate him on the magnificent victory which he and his followers had in the Province of Saskatchewan .

"There is one regret I have. I regret deeply the occasion of this by-election. I knew Dr. Spankie and he was one of my real friends. It is true he was on the opposite side of the House, but just the same we were very dear friends. He was one who was always ready to do his bit. I wish to express to this constituency my deepest sympathy at his passing.

"As I said a moment ago, these times are quite exceptional times. At no period have there been more serious issues than at present. The result of the five by-elections in this Province of Ontario will, I venture to say, be fairly representative of the feeling of the people of Canada. No Government can afford to ignore the voice of the people in this Province as it will be shown on Monday next. I do not know what the voice of the people will be. If there are five Conservatives returned to Parliament, it will be an evidence that the people have confidence in the Bennett policy, but if, as a result of the voting, five constituencies go against him, he has not the right to stay as a leader of the government beyond that time. There have been several occasions in which the people have expressed themselves.

"We have had a number of by-elections since 1930. The first was in the County of Huron, with a majority of 2,000 for a Liberal. One in the Province of Quebec. The Liberal candidate increased his majority by 84%. Out in Mackenzie, in the Province of Saskatchewan, the Tory candidate lost his deposit. There was also a C.C.F. candidate, and the Liberal majority rolled up. It was a direct indication of the policies against the present admnistration.

"We have also had elections in the different Provinces. They have been voting down the policies of the Bennett administraton. All the Government's policies strangle trade. The people are not going to endorse it.

"In Quebec we had Mr. Taschereau's tion issues, and Mr. Bracken's Government came back into power. Then Nova Scotia — the issues discussed against the Government was set out and the Liberal Government, under Mr. Macdonald, was put in office.

"Take our friend, Mr. Gardiner's Government. I am sure Mr. Gardiner will bear be out when I say it was fought on the Federal issue and he is returned to power with a huge majority.

"I come down to the Province of Ontario, a Province that could never be wrested from the Conservative party. Was it not true that the Henry Government went down to defeat ? Mr. Hepburn, in the course of that campaign, went into the matter very thoroughly.:

"You have had Tory Governments swept out of office. New Brounswick is the only one left. Canada is the only country almost in the world that has not had an election since August 1930, when the present administration was elected. In Great Britain, they have had an election, in Australia, New Zealand as well, and in different parts of the British Empire they have had their elections. In the United States, they have had a general election. In China they have not had a Government. In Venzuela they settle their differences by actions of civil war. In Italy they have not had an election because they have a Dictator there that takes away that right. In Germany they have a dictatorship and in Austria, which is another autocratic country. In Russia they have not had an election. We are not in that category. These are the countries that have not had a chance. Now I wish to take all these facts under consideration. There is the fact that the people throughout the world generally feel that Canada will express the voice of the people in the five by-elctions this month, and if Liberals are returned, it will be an indicatons that the people are opposed to this present administration, and it is Mr. Bennett's duty to listen to the voice of the people, who will return whatever Government they wish.

"May I point this out to you—you are not being asked to decide this question. What is before you is the question as to whether the people should be given a right to choose which policy they wish. We can express our opinion as to the policies which will govern us.

I am quite prepared to support the Conservative Government if it is a real Government and if they will change its policy somewhat. We do not inherit our party feeling without wishing to show our party ideals.

"The voice of the people at this time will serve notice on the Government. I ask you to think back to the days of Sir John A. Macdonald, then to the days of Sir Robert Borden, and ask yourself if any of these old Conservatives ever thought of putting up a tariff something like from 300 to 400 per cent. Did any of them ever think of putting duty on goods ?

"There has been no limit to what this Government has done, which are not the views of Sir John A. Macdonald or Sir Robert Borden. While we believe in protectve tariff, we do not believe that industries should be allowed to create monoplies, and that trade should be strangled. You have a chance to decide for yourselves, which you want. Perhaps the voice from Frontenac-Addington would add very materially to bringing them to their senses. I do not know what will happen to us if we have this Government in office another year.

Let me ask you this question - Have you asked yourself what is the best manner in which to choose ? Is it not the choice of the people to speak to you in terms of parliamentary proceedure. It is perfectly true that in our statutes no Government can stay in longer than five years. Imagine if there was no limit, and you had Mr. Bennett in office. They would not get out until they went to the other shore.

If there is any evidence of the people to that effect, a Prime Minister with a sense of responsibility will resign, or will ask for a dissolution of parliament. We are supposed to have one session of parliament each year. He called a special session the first year and that session put through more legislation than any other session of parliament. In Canada we have never had a parliament that had more than five sessions, except one parliament during the period of the war that was held [illegible] as long as they are alive.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I should say that the average length of time that a parliament has lasted in Canada is about three years. You remember when Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in office and the Reciprocity was under discussion. What did he do? He said, "It is perfectly true I have five years and I could perhaps force this thing through." But he did not, he wanted the will of the people, and so at the end of three years, Sir Wilfrid asked the Governor-General for a dissolution. That was carrying along the Government according to the will of the people.

The questions that came up at the time this present Government came into power were to be dealt with satisfactorily, if they were capable of dealing with them. The two problems were work, and trade. Mr. Bennett said, "If you return me to power, I will see that you all get work." He thought he could do it by means of the tariffs. He thought that it could be possible that there would be plenty of employment in a short time.

The other problem was for the farmers. He said : "I will get you markets." How did he propose to get them? He also said, "I will place your goods in the markets of the world." How far has he succeeded in getting them ?

116.000 unemployed when he came into office, according to his own figures. Over 1,000,000 on relief at present.

As far as markets are concerned, you know the extent of such. You had the markets in the Provinces. You have the markets in other parts of the world. He introduced policies that he thought were sartisfactory. He has had a chance to throw away his policies, as they would not be carried out.

In dealing with unemployment, he asked for a blank cheque and the right to take out of the Public Treasury. All the money he wanted, he has drawn for four years in succession, and he has the right to take out whatever money he wants for that purpose of unemployment. There has been spent on unemployment over $110,000,000. There has been, in addition to that, three loans to different Provinces, and guarantees to different concerns, amounts which bring the total to something like $270,000,000.

With the Prime Minister using money to provide work, do you think instead of these high tariffs, we had had a reasonable amount of trade taking place between other countries, and the Government had an unemployment scheme, that we would not have had greater prosperity than we have at the present time. The Government have an entirely wrong idea. The best prosperity can be brought about by trade. I think I am right when I say Mr. Bennett's policy was not a sound one. Mr. Bennett believed in a Home Market when he put a high tariff wall around the country so as to prevent any commodities coming in. What are we going to do when there are no people to get money from ?

Let me assume for a moment. We are in the Village of Enterprise. Let us suppose that this high tariff would be taking in Enterprise and see how it would work. This place is a locality where nothing can come in. My idea of a home market is a place that adds to her purchasing power, which means the money that is available for purchasing. That would not be a market in any true sense of the word, but it would not be a market worthy of the name of the community. The merchants of Enterprise were depending on this to sell their commodities and how much money would go into the shops.

This country of Canada is one of great national resources, and we cannot use them within the Dominion of Canada to any great extent. The only way we can hope to get results through these resources are from different markets.

Does the present Government want some people to realize that we are having a hard time of it. They say that other markets are doing the same thing, and they will tell you it is wrong and other countries are doing it, and we have had to do it ourselves.

If they had gone to the country to the south of us, we could have got bids on some of our goods and we could take some of theirs in return. They could have gone to Europe. We have got a grand country of reserves, which they would be glad to have at a much less rate. In this they changed their tariff policy. England then became a Protectionist country.

whether Liberals or Conservatives were returned in the coming five by-elections. Dr. Manion, as a Minister of the Government, is speaking for the Prime Minister, so that they are gong to hold to the Government as long as they can.

I want to say this to you about the situation today. If you study the employment of the nations of the world, you will find that there is a great upheavel going on between democracy on the one hand and autocracy on the other, democracy being the will of the people, and autocracy the will of the few. By responsible Government is meant being responsible to the people and not to just a few. It is their Parliament. On the other hand, the will of the people is expressed in by-elections. In Russia they have not the Institutions we have. They have been for the most part poor people and have risen in revolt.

In Germany, you have a leader today who takes a position, the result of which you saw the other day when sixty men were shot down in cold blood, without being questioned.

The Marketing Bill, I might also mention, was put through. One clause gives the government the right to stop all imports or exports, and not Parliament. Parliament has nothing to do with it, and this authority is given for the purpose of meeting any situations as they arise. Mr. Bennett and his Government have the power to limit production and to require all people to have licenses before they sell any of their produce or go on with their business.

You say a Government may never make use of that authority. We were told they were never going to use this unemployment.

They used $60,000,000 of it to guarguarantee the banks for the C. P. R. loan, and the fact that they got that power means that they can make agreements and sign other agreements for the trade of the country without any consent of Parliament.

It would have been perfectly proper to have appeared before Parliament, but this Government did not do that. They told the Parliament that they had to take it for five years.

Take the Banking Act, do you realize the position you are in as regards Monetary Policy. The people were in favor of the appointment of a Central Bank controlled by the Government, but the Bennett Government have framed a measure that creates an Institution more powerful than the Government itself, and Canada is not to have a director. It is to be a privately owned Institution and bonds are to be put on the market. In addition to that, this Government has appointed a President of the Board for seven years. This President of the Board cannot be changed except by the authority of both parties.

As a result of this, Canada will have to send to Parliament representatives who will have a certain policy so that their interests may be protected and we will not be facing the problems which occurred in the last session. I do not thing that this Government can be trusted to stay in office any longer. We know how far they have gone in taking away from Parliament and keeping themselves in office. What they would do if they had just one more year is pretty hard to say. I think when Monday next comes along, you should have no uncertainty as to who you should send to Ottawa and join in expressing your views as to the rights of the people. I urge you to elect a Liberal that will assist us to get the country back to prosperity. You have heard Mr. Campbell speak to you tonight, and as I told you before, it is the young men we need at Ottawa. He has been educated at a University and he understands the problems of the farmer. He is a mining man with a constructive mind and he has lived on farms.

I am glad to see so many young people interested in this election, they are the ones we want.

The people of Canada are tired of this narrow nationalism and the Liberals party believed in internationalism and were desirous of having peace and good will to all men. We do not want a dictatorship here. We are prepared to say to the world that what is wanted is a Liberal outlook. Not only in Canada would the five by-elections be watched, but by other nations who wanted to trade with Canada and would decide on these results what was going to happen in the future.

world's most accredited magazines, has this to say of Mr. King :

More than once we have expressed the view in this periodical that the world position of Canada is pivotal, wth Mackenzie King a statesman of the first rank. He has had no superior—perhaps no equal—during the past decade among all the political leaders within the realms of the "British commonwealth of nations." In his make-up are found some of the best qualities of three British premiers and present-day party leaders, Baldwin, Macdonald and Lloyd George. He is better trained in economics and history than any of these three, and also has a broader understandng of the world at large."

Cheese Board.

At the regular meeting of the Napanee Cheese Board, held in the Agricultural Rooms on Saturday afternoon, 604 white and 169 colored cheese were boarded. The colored cheese sold for 10c. and 201 white cheese sold for 9½., the balance being refused. The prices indicated a slight increase over last week. The Napanee Cheese Factory ceased operations for the season on Saturday.

Presentation.

On Friday evening, Miss Doris Knapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Knapp, was presented with a lovely fountain pen and pencil set by the members of Grace church choir, of which organization she has been a faithful member for the past few years. Miss Knapp will reside with her parents in Kingston, her father having recently accepted a position with Abramskys.

Market.

The threatening weather on Saturday morning did not prevent the usual large market and practically every space on the market was taken. There was an abundance of garden produce, with prices about the same as last market. Tomatoes were very reasonable and potatoes sold from 20c. to 25c. peck. Eggs sold from 22c. up. Grapes and peaches were plentiful in the fruit stores, selling at various prices.

Election of Officers.

At the annual election of officers of Argyll Lodge No. 212, I.O.O.F., held on Thursday night, Leslie Richardson was elected Noble Grand, Cecil Joynt was elected vice-grand and the remaining elective officers were all re-elected, namely, E. J. Walters, Recording Secretary, Dr. Harry Loucks, Financial Secretary and F. S. Scott, Treasurer. James S. Douglas is the retiring Noble Grand. The installation of officers will be held in the near future and will be in charge of Matt. Taylor, who was elected District Deputy Grand Master a few months ago.

Crashed Into Bridge.

A car containing Mr. Ben. Cook and his son and two other men, of Toronto, while trying to make the turn at the railroad bridge at the eastern entrance of the town, crashed head on into the stone abutment about 11 o'clock on Thursday morning and the impact was so hard that the car was so badly damaged that its valuation is practically nil. Mr. Cook, Sr., received injuries to such an extent that he was taken to Dr. Hall's office, where fifteen stitches were found necessary to close the wounds. The son had a cut ear and other minor injuries. They were able later to proceed to Toronto. The car was brought to a local garage.

Church Services.

On Sunday morning the pulpits of the three United churches were occupied by ministers who are attending the General Council in Kingston, and the heavy showers somewhat interfered with the usual attendance. Rev. C. G. Mackenzie, M.A.,D.D., of Victoria, B.C., was at Trinity Church, the Rev. J. Y. Mackinnon, M.A., B.D., of Brantford, was at St. Andrew's church; and the service in Grace Church was conducted by Rev. Maxwell Allan, of Pembroke. In the evening ,the congregations of the three churches united to hear Rev. T. Ferrier Hulme, M.A., L.L.D., fraternal delegate to the General Council from the newly United Methodist Churches of England. Mr. Hulme is a noted church statesman, author and preacher, and his discourse was heard by a splendid congregation. On Sunday,

Kidd-Doyle.

The Church of the Assumption, Erinsville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Monday, Sept. 3rd, at 9 o'clock a.m., when Rev. Father J. A. Powell united in matrimony Elizabeth Agnes, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kidd, to John Francis Doyle, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Doyle, of Richmond township.

Transport Burned.

Word was received in town on Saturday afternoon, stating that a Smith Transport had been completely burned and that the driver received painful burns, necessitating his removal to the Kingston Hospital. When the transport left the highway it plunged into the ditch snapping off a hydro pole, and immediately flames came through the floor board.

Funeral of the Late W. J. Jewell.

Rev. R. T. Richards, of Grace United Church, conducted the funeral of the late W. J. Jewell which was held from the family residence on Thursday afternoon. The home was filled with relatives and friends and a very comforting sermon was given by Mr. Richards. The Worshipful Master of Union Lodge No. 9, A.F. & A.M., with a goodly number of brethren were in attendance, and following the committal service at the graveside, the Masonic burial service was read. Those taking part were W. Bro Taylor, V. Wor. Bro. Wilfred Wilson, and Bro. C. E. Hendricks, Senior Warden. There was a wealth of floral tributes evidencing the high regard in which Mr. Jewel was held, these coming from relatives, from fraternal organizations and from his friends. The pall bearers were from Union Lodge, and were : J. W. Thompson, F. S. Scott, Geo. D. Robson, E. J. Walters, O. S. Reddick and Harry Roney. Interment took place in Riverview cemetery.

Transferred.

Mr. E. O. Rawlins, who has been Traffic Officer for the district during the past two or three years, has been transferred to Ingersoll and left for his new home the latter part of the week. There has been no successor appointed as yet, and on Saturday the Traffic Officer residing in Belleville was in Napanee on official duties. It is expected that the route for the new appointee will be in excess of that which has prevailed for the past few years and will possibly extend from Kingston to Belleville, instead of from Cataraqui to Deseronto as heretofore.

Anniversary Service.

Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, who had a most successful ministry on the Bay circuit several years ago, was selected as the special preacher for the anniversary service at the Anderson church on Sunday evening, and his profitable discourse was heard by a splendid congregation. The musical portion of the service was exceptionally fine and was given by the Crossman male choir, with Mrs. James Robson as accompanist. The choir contributed several numbers, which were greatly enjoyed and tonight will assist in the program for the annual fowl supper. The minister, Rev. J. E. Beckel, was at Newburgh on Sunday night, supplying for Mr. Anderson.

EXPORT EGG PROSPECTS GOOD

Canadian egg export prospects continue to command considerable attention and the first export shipment of current year consisting of 1,000 cases, left Winnipeg on September 8th. This shipment is a little early and it is probable that the bulk of the exports will not start to move until the month of October. With the prospects for a substantial export trade this year and with the storage stocks apparently less than a year ago, the outlook for the egg market during the winter continues quite favorable. On the first of September, storage stocks at Montreal were above last year but at both Toronto and Winnipeg the holdings were lighter than in 1933.—Egg and Poultry Market Review.

The lodges are from Gananoque, Kingston, Harrowsmith, Yarker and Napanee. Miss Edna Hull accompanied the local delegates.

Fall and Winter Meetings.

The initial meeting of Napanee Chapter No. 151, O.E.S., for the fall and winter months was held in the rooms of Argyll Lodge on Tuesday evening of last week, and despite the fact that the Fair was in progress, there was a splendid attendance of the officers and members. During the course of the Chapter session, the Worthy Matron, Mrs. T. M. Asselstine, gave a very interesting synopsis of the proceedings of Grand Chapter session held at Hamilton several weeks ago. At the Grand Chapter sessions Mrs. C. Milton Stratton of the local Chapter had the honor of being selected one of the pages. For her splendid report Mrs. Asselstine was tendered a hearty vote of thanks. Arrangements are being completed for the anniversary of the Chapter which will be held on Tuesday evening, September 25th, and the officers and members intend to make it a memorable and delightful event.

Romanelli at Beaver Lake.

Luigi Romanelli's Orchestra, under the direction of L. Romanelli, appears at Beaver Lake on Friday, Sept. 21st. The management of the Pavillion has arranged with this very popular orchestra to give a program of five hours continuous dancing, from 9 o'clock until 2. This is the first time that this orchestra has appeared out of the Toronto district, and is an opportunity for which the up-to-date dance crowd have been long waiting for. Arrangements have been made to conduct the dance so that every one that participates in the evening's entertainment will enjoy it to the full extent. We only ask you to co-operate with us in regards to parking your cars and over-crowding in the dance hall. With the continuous hours of dancing there will be no need to jam. Admission to the grounds is 25 cents, to the dance floor 95 cents. Anyone with the admission ticket to the grounds will be charged 75 cents, including tax. Take advantage of the early hours and avoid the rush.

Present—Reeve Hughson and Councillors Morden, Topping, Cowling, Exley and Luffman.

The minutes of the previous meeting and a subsequent meeting were read and approved, with a clause added to the adjournment motion that the council adjourn until further information regarding the proposed hospital be laid on the table.

A communication was read from Mr. Ellis, re school supplies furnished pupils whose parents are on relief ,advising Relief Committee that such expenditure was in order. Referred to Relief Committee.

The Streets Committee reported:

Net expenditure to date	$5873 18
Cost of repairing Dairy Ave., including patching from Acme-Farmers Dairy to Selby Road	130 00
Available for resurfacing Thomas St	200 00

Residences on Robert St. south of Dundas St. have for a considerable time been troubled with vapour of gasoline escaping into the cellars through the connections with the old stone drain on Robert St. It has been discovered that one of the pipes from a gasoline pump of the Imperial Oil Service Station was broken and gasoline for some time has been escaping into the ground. The pipe line has been repaired. The connection between the old stone drain and the Howitt residence occupied by Mr. Nicol has been closed. No further trouble has been noted.

Permission is requested by Mr. Lucas to cut the curb in front of part of his property to allow cars to get to and from his service pumps without jumping the curb.

Lewis Vanvolkenburg has asked the Streets Committee to open a driveway to his property on York St. so that he may have access to it on the west.

With reference to the drainage of the property of Mr. Edw. Plane on the north side of Anne St. the Committee desires to know if Robert St. has been opened north of Anne St.

Report adopted.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee reported requesting Mr. C. A. Walters to address council re new lights required.

Mr. Walters recommended replacing one 1000 candle power lamp on Market by two 300 candle power lamps. Report adopted.

Mr. Walters stated that property owners on certain streets could help the situation by trimming low hanging trees.

The Printing Committee reported, advising no action in reference to the Midmer proposition. Report adopted.

Messrs. W. Wiggins and G. F. Smith addressed Council in reference to Chautauqua and the amount requested by the town for rental. The rent was fixed at $40.00.

The Lennox and Addington Teachers' Association asked the price of the hall for their convention. The teachers were granted a remittance of the rent.

The recommendations of the Streets Committee in their report were approved, provided the Streets Committee have funds to their credit.

The hotel operators of Napanee asked the council to petition the Liquor Commission to close all beverage rooms in Napanee at 11 p.m.

Death of Mrs. B. Frink.

In failing health for some time, there passed away at her home in North Fredericksburg on Wednesday, Mrs. Frink, widow of the late Mr. Ben. Frink, at the ripe old age of 83 years. Her passing was particularly sad, it occurring on the same day as the funeral of her sister, Mrs. George Brown, whose funeral was held at Sandhill. Mrs. Frink was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Serenus McCabe, and had resided all her life in North Fredericksburg, her earlier years at Hay Bay, and for many years near Anderson. For the past number of years she had made her home just south of the town. Her husband predeceased her many years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss, two sons, J. W. Frink, of Napanee and Roy Frink of Hawley, five daughters, Mrs. Damon Perry, North Fredericksburg, Mrs. John Doyle, Belleville Road, Mrs. Robert Blackadder, Toronto, Mrs. Archie Howie, Deseronto, and Mrs. Blakely, Oshawa, two brothers, Simeon McCabe, Sandhill, and Myro McCabe, North Fredericksburg, and one sister, Mrs. George Butcher, Deseronto.

HON. MACKENZIE KING SPEAKS AT ENTERPRISE

D30343

Enterprise witnessed the largest crowd ever congregated in the village when the whole countryside turned out to hear Hon. Mackenzie King speak on behalf of Mr. Colin Campbell, Liberal candidate. Cars were parked a mile out on every road leading into the village and there were five times as many people outside as the hall would hold, who heard the addresses from a loud speaker. So great was the crowd that some of the speakers had to enter the building through a window in order to reach the platform.

Mr. King was tendered a magnificant ovation. He was supported on the platform by Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan; Joseph Haycock, former Patron Leader; Hon. Nelson Parliament; William A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland; and Colin Campbell, the Liberal candidate for the House of Commons in Frontenac-Addington. G. Anson Aylesworth, of Newburgh, a brother of Sir Allan Aylesworth, presided.

The Liberal Leader delivered a devastating attack on the Government, concentrating particularly on the trade and tariff policies, which he maintained were strangling Canada. The only way Canada could hope to prosper was by selling her wheat, lumber, fruit and manufactured goods abroad as well as in the home market.

He urged the people to express disapproval of Bennett Government policies in the by-elections and thus make it impossible for the administration longer to cling to office.

Those on the platform were: Miss E. L. Mowat, Vice-President O.W.L.A.; Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King; J. L. Haycock; Miss Florence Pritchard, Recording Secretary O.W.L.A.; Premier Gardiner; Mr. and Mrs. Colin Campbell (candidate); W. A. Fraser, M.P.; J. J. Duffus, Peterboro', President Central O.L.A.; Hon. Nelson Parliament; George Anson Aylesworth; A. R. Black, President Frontenac-Addington Liberal Association; James B. Garvin, Secretary Frontenac-Addington Liberal Association; Vice-President Dr. F. D. O'Connor; William O. Both, James E. Davidson, Angus McCallum, Nelson McAdoo, Dr. T. W. Warner, Dr. Northmore, Ed. Payne; Chairman Samuel Shuickcombe, J. A. Newton, Ed. Morley, J. W. Smith, Jas. B. Scanlon, Robert McFadden, Percy Henderson, J. O. Ellerbeck, Lloyd Thompson, Robert Campbell, Henry Young, Thomas Kring, David Gemmill, James Fair, Dr. A. R. E. Mounce, Charles S. Frontenac-Addington's Greatest Meeting

(BY "BOB" LONG)

'Twas a Great and Glorious Meeting—And will long be talked of by the Citizens of Enterprise.

D 30344

'Twas a great and glorious meeting —and will long be talked of by the citizens of Enterprise.

Long before seven o'clock the hall was a packed mass of electors—thousands (since it is estimated that more than 4000 people were present) crowded every available foot of space for many yards in every direction—who listened earnestly and eagerly to the addresses which were punctuated with rounds of applause.

True ,the speaker of the evening was Canada's most illustrious son, Right Hon. Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King, who held his hearers spellbound — but "Cole" Campbell electrified that great throng with a masterly presentation of the issues, as they effected the welfare of the farmers, dairymen, business men, artisans and laborers of the constituency.

Electors of Frontenac-Addington learned with pride that the Liberals have a candidate that the overburdened populace of every faith, political and otherwise, can cheer for—a young man whose knowledge of the social and economic problems warrant them and encouraged them to rally to his support that he may, as he will, devote his energies and his talents to the task of solving these problems—rather than sit on a back bench in the commons as a mere voting machine, as the majority of elected members in the Commons do.

"Colie" Campbell is not only the follower of the greatest statesman of Canada and one of the leading statesmen of the world, but he demonstrated that he will be an asset to that leader —to the electors of the County and to Canadians as a whole.

Few men at his age have demonstrated ability as rare as his, and from the manner in which he is received in every part of the riding, it is evident that the riding of Frontenac-Addington will overwhelmingly acclaim him as its adopted son on Sept. 24th.

Opposition speakers have been sniping at his candidature, claiming him to be an "outsider" in a vain effort to demean his strength—if that were possible, but this will not affect his candidature. Born in Elgin, one of the true British Counties of the Province, "Colie" graduated, with his Scotch blood, from Queen's University after spending his life on the farm, he came to Northbrook in the north part of the riding, in 1930 and has resided there during these four years.

He was chosen Standard Bearer for the Liberal party to contest the riding in the Provincial contest, which gave Premier Hepburn such an overwhelming landslide in June. "Colie" went down to defeat through despicable tactics, with the largest vote ever polled by a Liberal candidate, cutting the opposition majority by nearly two-thirds —and at Sydenham received the unanimous endorsation of the largest political convention ever held in the County. No other name was mentioned—"Campbell, Campbell" wa s the cry, and Campbell it was without even a thought of a contest for the honor and the battle that is on.

Contrasted with the Tory convention at which six names were placed forward and fought out on, it is indeed a tribute to the strength and popularity of this young men, who will go far in the public life of his country—who will shed a lustre upon the county that sends him to Ottawa as its representative—and who will shed lustre upon his native land—Canada.

In their effort to discount his strength by the false statement that he is not a resident of the riding, Tory speakers do not remind their hearers of the fact that their Acting Leader, Sir George Perley, was not even born in Canada, or that their great former chieftain, the late Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, was not Canadian born; that their leader, the present Prime Minister Bennett, was born in Nova Scotia, though sitting as the member for Calgary. These facts do not condemn these famous Tory leaders, but while on the subject let me also remind them that Dr. Ross, sitting member for Kingston, was born outside the riding and was not—is not "a native son." The facts are mentioned merely to remind electors of the means to which Tory speakers go to detract them from the Big issues so ably "tackled" by "Colie' 'Campbell and voided by the Tory speakers—who are now pretty well silenced on the "garbage" they were handing to their listeners.

Only a few days remain till the polls close. Many attempts may be made in an effort to "cheat" the riding of the services of this brilliant candidate—who as Premier Hepburn stated on several occasions, would have been a member of his cabinet—which would have been of tremendous value to the riding. That he will, if elected, and when the Right Hon. Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King is again placed in charge of National affairs as the head of a government of, by and for the people —be chosen as a cabinet minister in that government, is the prediction of the leaders of Liberalism—thus it is your opportunity, Ladies' and Gentlemen, to give to your riding a representative possessed of such qualifications that you and yours may share in the better conditions that a King victory will bring to Canada and Canadians.

Forget not that your interests transcend the interests of any political party or candidate—this is a battle to decide whether a few millionaires, banded together in Oil, Coal, Packing, Industrial and Financial combines shall continue to hoard up millions, while you sweat and toil and become more impoverished through their exploitation. You cannot serve these interests and serve you own—and your interests are the Real issue. Your hope is in "Colie" Campbell's candidature and in his election on Monday, therefore let every man and woman, true to their own personal interests, that day do their duty.

Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King at Enterprise Greeted By More Than 4000 People

Greatest Political Rally ever held in Frontenac-Addington---Will Long be Remembered by the Populace

Warns Bennett He Has Lost Confidence of People

Rising amidst thunderous applause, Mr. King lost no time in presenting his never to be forgotten address.

"First of all," said he, "I must thank Mr. Fraser very warmly for the manner in which he has spoken and the kind words with which he has introduced me to this gathering. I feel very deeply at seeing all these people gathered together here, and I appreciate very much the beautiful gift and what went with it.

"I have had the pleasure of addressing a very large number of meetings in Canada during the course of my public life, but I do not recollect any greater thrill than I had when we were trying to get here tonight. I have experienced a thrill the like of which I have never had before in my life.

"We are living in times that are very trying, very difficult. Times which the people are looking over something that goes to hold them up.

"As I look here at this great gathering at this moment, I feel in my heart that the people of Canada have at last said to themselves that we are going to settle the question of this country ourselves and we are determined to have self Government carried out.

"My Campbell spoke tonight about the history of the County of Frontenac. It is the finest in the history of Canada. I recollect at this minute fifteen years ago, Sir Allan Aylesworth, our oldest statesman in the Government of Canada, sitting at the right of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and it was Sir Allan Aylesworth who nominated me as Sir Wilfrid Laurier's successor to the head of the Liberal party, and I recollect over twenty-five years ago, I had the privilege of being taken into the Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurer, and Sir Allan Aylesworth was sitting close to him.

"I feel with a sense of satisfaction and pride the policies of the Liberal party, and as a result they had fifteen years of golden prosperity. I have been Prime Minister of Canada for nine years. When you think back over these nine years and the situation that exists today, it is hard to understand. Our National debts were lowered, we lowered the taxes of the people, and we brought increased prosperity. When you think of these facts, do you not believe that a similar policy would bring about the same results? I want also so say that I am glad to see Mr. Haycock still on the platform. I have known him for a long time and he has always had the interests of the people of rural communities in his mind.

"It is always the Liberal Government the people look to when they want a restoration of better times and greater prosperity throughout Canada.

"I want to say what a pleasure it is to see Mr. Gardiner on the platform tonight. He is a representative of the church to which he belongs at the Conference in Kingston, and I say it is a fortunate thing that we have him with us tonight at this gathering, and particularly to be able to congratulate him on the magnificent victory which he and his followers had in the Province of Saskatchewan .

"There is one regret I have. I regret deeply the occasion of this by-election. I knew Dr. Spankie and he was one of my real friends. It is true he was on the opposite side of the House, but just the same we were very dear friends. He was one who was always ready to do his bit. I wish to express to this constituency my deepest sympathy at his passing.

"As I said a moment ago, these times are quite exceptional times. At no period have there been more serious issues than at present. The result of the five by-elections in this Province of Ontario will, I venture to Government ,which was going to be defeated. Mr. Bennett got into the fray, with the result that Mr. Taschereau's Government came back into power.

"Take the situation in Manitoba, Mr. Bracken's Government had been in office. Judging by the way of the depression, it was due to pass out. Mr. Bennett had begun to interfere in their finances and with other matters that had occurred and with the result that the people began to discuss election issues, and Mr. Bracken's Government came back into power. Then Nova Scotia — the issues discussed against the Government was set out and the Liberal Government, under Mr. Macdonald, was put in office.

"Take our friend, Mr. Gardiner's Government. I am sure Mr. Gardiner will bear be out when I say it was fought on the Federal issue and he is returned to power with a huge majority.

"I come down to the Province of Ontario, a Province that could never be wrested from the Conservative party. Was it not true that the Henry Government went down to defeat? Mr. Hepburn, in the course of that campaign, went into the matter very thoroughly.:

"You have had Tory Governments swept out of office. New Brounswick is the only one left. Canada is the only country almost in the world that has not had an election since August 1930, when the present administration was elected. In Great Britain, they have had an election, in Australia, New Zealand as well, and in different parts of the British Empire they have had their elections. In the United States, they have had a general election. In China they have not had a Government. In Venzuela they settle their differences by actions of civil war. In Italy they have not had an election because they have a Dictator there that takes away that right. In Germany they have a dictatorship and in Austria, which is another autocratic country. In Russia they have not had an election. We are not in that category. These are the countries that have not had a chance. Now I wish to take all these facts under consideration. There is the fact that the people throughout the world generally feel that Canada will express the voice of the people in the five by-elctions this month, and if Liberals are returned, it will be an indicatons that the people are opposed to this present administration, and it is Mr. Bennett's duty to listen to the voice of the people, who will return whatever Government they wish.

"May I point this out to you—you are not being asked to decide this question. What is before you is the question as to whether the people should be given a right to choose which policy they wish. We can express our opinion as to the policies which will govern us.

I am quite prepared to support the Conservative Government if it is a real Government and if they will change its policy somewhat. We do not inherit our party feeling without wishing to show our party ideals.

"The voice of the people at this time will serve notice on the Government. I ask you to think back to the days of Sir John A. Macdonald, then to the days of Sir Robert Borden, and ask yourself if any of these old Conservatives ever thought of putting up a tariff something like from 300 to 400 per cent. Did any of them ever think of putting duty on goods?

"There has been no limit to what this Government has done, which are not the views of Sir John A. Macdonald or Sir Robert Borden. While we by mutual consent of the parties. I might also mention the time of Sir John A. Macdonald, in 1891, when he was succeeded by Sir John Thompson, and then by Sir George Abbott. Those were the days when Knighthood was in Flower.

That is the story coming to us with the Tory party. They have not attempted to use their office to further the people's needs. I do not think this Government will ever see power again as long as they are alive.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I should say that the average length of time that a parliament has lasted in Canada is about three years. You remember when Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in office and the Reciprocity was under discussion. What did he do? He said, "It is perfectly true I have five years and I could perhaps force this thing through." But he did not, he wanted the will of the people, and so at the end of three years, Sir Wilfrid asked the Governor-General for a dissolution. That was carrying along the Government according to the will of the people.

The questions that came up at the time this present Government came into power were to be dealt with satisfactorily, if they were capable of dealing with them. The two problems were work, and trade. Mr. Bennett said, "If you return me to power, I will see that you all get work." He thought he could do it by means of the tariffs. He thought that it could be possible that there would be plenty of employment in a short time.

The other problem was for the farmers. He said: "I will get you markets." How did he propose to get them? He also said, "I will place your goods in the markets of the world." How far has he succeeded in getting them?

116,000 unemployed when he came into office, according to his own figures. Over 1,000,000 on relief at present.

As far as markets are concerned, you know the extent of such. You had the markets in the Provinces. You have the markets in other parts of the world. He introduced policies that he thought were sartisfactory. He has had a chance to throw away his policies, as they would not be carried out.

In dealing with unemployment, he asked for a blank cheque and the right to take out of the Public Treasury. All the money he wanted, he has drawn for four years in succession, and he has the right to take out whatever money he wants for that purpose of unemployment. There has been spent on unemployment over $110,000,000. There has been, in addition to that, three loans to different Provinces, and guarantees to different concerns, amounts which bring the total to something like $270,000,000.

With the Prime Minister using money to provide work, do you think instead of these high tariffs, we had had a reasonable amount of trade taking place between other countries, and the Government had an unemployment scheme, that we would not have had greater prosperity than we have at the present time. The Government have an entirely wrong idea. The best prosperity can be brought about by trade. I think I am right when I say Mr. Bennett's policy was not a sound one. Mr. Bennett believed in a Home Market when he put a high tariff wall around the country so as to prevent any commodities coming in. What are we going to do when there are no people to get money from?

Let me assume for a moment. We are in the Village of Enterprise. Let us suppose that this high tariff would be taking in Enterprise and see how it would work. This place is a locality where nothing can come in. My idea

High tariffs do not mean high wages and high tariffs do not mean high prices for the farmers. It is true that wages during this four years, and prices were lower than the four years previous. These conditions largely come about through the Government being in power.

Dr. Manion speaking in Toronto on the 15th September, said that it would not make any difference to the life or length of the present Government whether Liberals or Conservatives were returned in the coming five by-elections. Dr. Manion, as a Minister of the Government, is speaking for the Prime Minister, so that they are gong to hold to the Government as long as they can.

I want to say this to you about the situation today. If you study the employment of the nations of the world, you will find that there is a great upheavel going on between democracy on the one hand and autocracy on the other, democracy being the will of the people, and autocracy the will of the few. By responsible Government is meant being responsible to the people and not to just a few. It is their Parliament. On the other hand, the will of the people is expressed in by-elections. In Russia they have not the Institutions we have. They have been for the most part poor people and have risen in revolt.

In Germany, you have a leader today who takes a position, the result of which you saw the other day when sixty men were shot down in cold blood, without being questioned.

The Marketing Bill, I might also mention, was put through. One clause gives the government the right to stop all imports or exports, and not Parliament. Parliament has nothing to do with it, and this authority is given for the purpose of meeting any situations as they arise. Mr. Bennett and his Government have the power to limit production and to require all people to have licenses before they sell any of their produce or go on with their business.

You say a Government may never make use of that authority. We were told they were never going to use this unemployment.

They used $60,000,000 of it to guarguarantee the banks for the C. P. R. loan, and the fact that they got that power means that they can make agreements and sign other agreements for the trade of the country without any consent of Parliament.

It would have been perfectly proper to have appeared before Parliament, but this Government did not do that. They told the Parliament that they had to take it for five years.

Take the Banking Act, do you realize the position you are in as regards Monetary Policy. The people were in favor of the appointment of a Central Bank controlled by the Government, but the Bennett Government have framed a measure that creates an Institution more powerful than the Government itself, and Canada is not to have a director. It is to be a privately owned Institution and bonds are to be put on the market. In addition to that, this Government has appointed a President of the Board for seven years. This President of the Board cannot be changed except by the authority of both parties.

As a result of this, Canada will have to send to Parliament representatives who will have a certain policy so that their interests may be protected and we will not be facing the problems which occurred in the last session. I do not thing that this Government can be trusted to stay in office any longer. We know how far they have gone in

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King was born in the City of Kitchener in 1874. Editor of Labour Gazette 1900-08, Deputy Minister of Labour 1909, elected to House of Commons for N. Waterloo 1908; re-elected in 1909, has sat as member for North York and Prince Albert, Leader of Opposition 1919-21, Prime Minister of Canada 1921-1930, Member of Imperial Privy Council, represented Canada at Imperial Conferences, London 1923 and 1926, and at signing of the Kellogg Peace Treaty, Paris, 1928, Fellow Royal Society of Canada, 1910, Author of "The Secret of Heroism" 1906, "Industry and Humanity," 1918, "The Message of the Carillion," 1927. Religion, Presbyterian. Was Vice-President League of Nations, 1928. Under his Regime as Premier of Canada, Canadians shared the benefits of lowered taxation, annual surpluses, and a very substantial reduction in the National Debt.

The Review of Reviews—One of the world's most accredited magazines, has this to say of Mr. King:

More than once we have expressed the view in this periodical that the world position of Canada is pivotal, wth Mackenzie King a statesman of the first rank. He has had no superior—perhaps no equal—during the past decade among all the political leaders within the realms of the "British commonwealth of nations." In his make-up are found some of the best qualities of three British premiers and present-day party leaders, Baldwin, Macdonald and Lloyd George. He is better trained in economics and history than any of these three, and also has a broader understandng of the world at large."

Colin Campbell's Great Speech Delivered at Enterprise Meeting

Greeted by Frequent Outbursts of Applause, Liberal Candidate Makes Tremendous Hit

Rarely has a candidate been given a greater reception than that tendered "Colie" Campbell as he rose to address the thousands in and around the hall. He proceeded:

Mr. Chairman, My Honoured Leader, Ladies' and Gentlemen:—

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I rise before you this evening, especially am I very pleased to have here on this occasion the Ex-Prime Minister of Canada, who will be the next one after the General Election.

We are also glad to have with us on the plaform, Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan.

This gathering tonight takes us back to a good deal of history connected with the riding of Frontenac-Addington. We have a representative of the oldest family of United Empire Loyalists, and I am glad to see that my opponent's name happens to be Aylesworth. I have fighting on my side the majority of the Aylesworth family. We have also on this platform tonight the grand-daughter of the late Sir Oliver Mowat. We have also the privilege of having with us tonight, my good friend, Mr. Geo. W. Dawson, who represented the northern portion of this riding some 43 years ago in the Federal House. It was a stronge coincidence that he came out of the North to defeat the Conservatives at that time. I do not know whether history will repeat itself. From the crowd I see tonight, it augurs well.

You did not come here tonight to hear me, you came here to listen to the next Prime Minister, however, I cannot let tonight pass without saying something of my good old friend from the old riding of Frontenac-Addington. I realize at this time that it is necessary to finish out the term of our friend, the late Dr. Spankie. It was my pleasure during last summer to have travelled throughout this riding with him at non-political gatherings. The good old Doctor, unfortunately, has passed on, so that we must fill his seat. The people who elected Dr. Spankie at that time voted to support the Right Hon. R. B. Bennett and his colleagues, who had stated their policy, and you expected in four years' time that Dr. Spankie would give you an account of his stewardship. Unfortunately, we find that he is not here to do that.

The Leader of the Government has put the sea between you and he so that you cannot hear anything from him.

I want to draw your attention to the fact that the speeches which are being made in this campaign, by our opponent, the first year of the Bennett Government, the people paid 40 per cent of the road charge, 50 per cent. the next year. This year it is 50 cents per day per man. The rest was paid for by you taxpayers of Ontario.

In the matter of Old Age Pensions you voted to get rid of this as a local tax, yet you were taxed 15 per cent. after having promised it would all be accepted by the Federal Government.

I note there are men going about this riding at the present time that take great credit for the Old Age Pensions. It was the King Government that passed this Act in 1927 in spite of opposition.

General Ross and others, who are speaking in this riding say this is not so. They put into effect the "Canada First" Policy. Dairy farmers felt it was a good thing to get higher prices. So in the year 1930, they placed a duty on every article entering Canada. That meant some articles on the free list had a duty.

During the regime of our Leader, Right Hon. Mr. King, export trade had risen to $2,800,000,000.

You were told that Canada was on the verge of bankruptcy, and so after the first application of high protection, the trade had dropped to $1,700,000,000 in one year.

Not satisfied with that, Mr. Bennett and his colleagues increased the duties on three successive occasions, with the result that trade dwindled until it is practically 40 per cent. of what it was in 1930.

Yet you people were told that this country was suffering from lack of markets.

The agriculturists in this country are producing about the same amount of produce as they were in 1930, nor is it as easy to get the prices that you had in 1930.

I want to point out something more and that is the fact that you were told that you as farmers were not benefiting under the policy of the old King Government in that it failed to enlarge the scope of the primary producer.

You farmers who bought binders or mowers only had to pay duty at 6%. This was increased to 28.75 per cent.

Practically every man I see before me is a dairyman. Under the King Government, you had the privilege of buying separators in the country, duty free, and this was increased to 28.75 per cent.

The large Separators at the milk factory in 1930 cost $950.00. This year it went to $1250, a $300.00 increase.

You all know that the price of your butter has gone down. You are being 12% of the entire nation being fed by the people who are working away trying to keep their business going in the hope that they will get some of their money back. So we can go along and show the conditions which places this large number out of employment When they had to use up their life savings to live, naturally they asked for relief. It means that they cannot pay as much money for food or products as in the year 1930, when this country was prosperous. You are just as hungry as you were in 1930, but only eating 60 per cent. of the amount. The reason you were not buying more is that you have not got the money to buy it. The reason they are unemployed is that you have no markets; trade is not moving.

It is the result of this that you farmers are in the position you are today.

The miners of this country are in a specially privileged position. When copper goes to a low price, they can close the mines. The steel mills can also close down. The lumberman can leave the lumber in the bush, and so can the fishermen leave the fish in the lake. The farmer has to till his land, keep his fences up, and repair his barns. So the farmer in this country is still trying to keep his business going. He finds he is producing too much produce. They cannot do that—instead they have to keep on producing—even at a loss.

Mr. Bennett claims that the Home Market is the best market in the world. You were told that if you elected R. B. Bennett, a duty would be placed on New Zealand butter, but you were not told of the products we were selling to New Zealand. You were told that with the duty on butter, you would be that much richer. The next year after this tariff was put on, butter dropped to 21 cents, and at present it is 18¾c.

You all know what your cream cheque is .

The Honourable Harry Stevens, Head of the Department of Trade and Commerce, issues a statement of butter stored in the Dominion the first of each year. There was about 35,000,000 lbs. average for the last four years, and 48,000,000 lbs this year.

Let us point out this fact. The protection of butter was supposed to be a benefit to the trade, yet we find an increase of 36 per cent. in storage of butter and lower production.

You know that the people of Canada cannot buy, and you wonder why you cannot sell them. They refuse to buy goods in other countries. They have trade barriers up to such an extent that we cannot do business with them.

You were told that after these agreements, that this country was going to prosper, yet prosperity has not taken place.

I would like at this time to just explain to you the way in which tariffs of this Government has allowed you to be exploited. You, as drivers of motor cars, all buy gasoline. The people of Canada have been exploited six cents per gallon. The Oil Companies receive their crude oil in this country, duty free. We find that Oil Companies annually pay in wages $8,000,000. It does not take many men to run a large refinery. And so we find that most of our large manufacturers are exploiting you people.

Now I have been accused of being a terrible man, because I was born in Elgin County. I still think it is part and parcel of the Dominion of Canada. I want to point out something further, that since the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett has taken to flight and gone across the pond, that the man who is Acting Prime Minister of Canada, is Sir George Perley, and he does not happen to have been born in Canada. I do not hold that against him, because Sir George Perley has given freely to his Country.

When I came to reside in this County four years ago, I certainly would not have picked out the riding of Frontenac-Addington as an easy place to get elected in, if I had had political ambitions. I feel sure that I have many friends now and I hope I can hold them because the only payment you get out of this life is the true friendships you make. I am very pleased with the men who fought with me, and are beside me at this time. I am also pleased to have with me the supporters of the late Dr. Spankie. I appreciate the fact that these men voted for me in the late Provincial Election, as they felt that the Government of that day was not governing in the best interest of the people, and to relieve the taxpayer in this province. I appreciate the fact that all these men are still with me. They are not voting for me because I am a Grit, but through lack of responsibility to the people.

A week from today you are called upon to vote on who is to fill the seat of the late Dr. Spankie. The farmers all want to receive some value for their products. You are not going to have any increase in farm products until a new Government is ushered into office at Ottawa. I have been told by my opponents I am wrong because I made this statement. I am again telling you that if you have any products to sell and that if you had a market to the south of us you would be receiving a lot more. Pork was selling in Toronto last week from $8.75 to $8.90, and in Chicago from $8.95 to $9.50. Our present cattle are selling at three cents more in Chicago than in Toronto. Beef is higher: In Toronto,

Colin Campbell's Great Speech

Delivered at Enterprise Meeting

Greeted by Frequent Outbursts of Applause, Liberal Candidate Makes Tremendous Hit

Rarely has a candidate been given a greater reception than that tendered "Colie" Campbell as he rose to address the thousands in and around the hall. He proceeded :

Mr. Chairman, My Honoured Leader, Ladies' and Gentlemen:—

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I stand before you this evening, especially am I very pleased to have here on this occasion the Ex-Prime Minister of Canada, who will be the next one after the General Election.

We are also glad to have with us on the plaform, Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan.

This gathering tonight takes us back to a good deal of history connected with the riding of Frontenac-Addington. We have a representative of the oldest family of United Empire Loyalists, and I am glad to see that my opponent's name happens to be Aylesworth. I have fighting on my side the majority of the Aylesworth family. We have also on this platform tonight the grand-daughter of the late Sir Oliver Mowat. We have also the privilege of having with us tonight, my good friend, Mr. Geo. W. Dawson, who represented the northern portion of this riding some 43 years ago in the Federal House. It was a stronge coincidence that he came out of the North to defeat the Conservatives at that time. I do not know whether history will repeat itself. From the crowd I see tonight, it augurs well.

You did not come here tonight to hear me, you came here to listen to the next Prime Minister, however, I cannot let tonight pass without saying something of my good old friend from the old riding of Frontenac-Addington. I realize at this time that it is necessary to finish out the term of our friend, the late Dr. Spankie. It was my pleasure during last summer to have travelled throughout this riding with him at non-political gatherings. The good old Doctor, unfortunately, has passed on, so that we must fill his seat. The people who elected Dr. Spankie at that time voted to support the Right Hon. R. B. Bennett and his colleagues, who had stated their policy, and you expected in four years' time that Dr. Spankie would give you an account of his stewardship. Unfortunately, we find that he is not here to do that.

The Leader of the Government has put the sea between you and he so that you cannot hear anything from him.

I want to draw your attention to the fact that the speeches which are being made in this campaign, by our opponents, are not what might be expected, and it grieves me considerably that Dr. Ross and others have made attacks upon myself that are not in keeping with one another as graduates of Queen's University.

There is one thing I did notice that when different speakers are questioned, they resort to the tactics that they have gone into during the last few days.

I will not attempt to deny any of the remarks made by Dr. Ross. I do not wish to lower myself to this sort of thing.

If Bennett takes a chance, we know that Mr. King will be retruned to power.

When the Bennett Government came into power four years ago, on that occasion we were told that this Dominion of Canada was strong and virile. You people were told that a terrible situation existed in Canada and a coat of black was painted across the whole business structure carried on in Canada at that time.

It was pointedout to you that we had 140,000 people on relief. It was a condition that should not exist in Canada.

You were told that if you elected R. B. Bennett they would erect a highway across Canada.

You were told all about the Old Age Pensions.

He told you that he was going to institute a "Canada First" policy.

He made certain selfish statements the people of this country fell for and I will show you in a few minutes what they were. The people felt that these promises were made in all sincerity, and they voted the Bennett government into power.

The first year of the Bennett Government, the people paid 40 per cent. of the road charge, 50 per cent. the next year. This year it is 50 cents per day per man. The rest was paid for by you taxpayers of Ontario.

In the matter of Old Age Pensions you voted to get rid of this as a local tax, yet you were taxed 15 per cent. after having promised it would all be accepted by the Federal Government.

I note there are men going about this riding at the present time that take great credit for the Old Age Pensions. It was the King Government that passed this Act in 1927 in spite of opposition.

General Ross and others, who are speaking in this riding say this is not so. They put into effect the "Canada First" Policy. Dairy farmers felt it was a good thing to get higher prices. So in the year 1930, they placed a duty on every article entering Canada. That meant some articles on the free list had a duty.

During the regime of our Leader, Right Hon. Mr. King, export trade had risen to $2,800,000,000.

You were told that Canada was on the verge of bankruptcy, and so after the first application of high protection, the trade had dropped to $1,700,000,000 in one year.

Not satisfied with that, Mr. Bennett and his colleagues increased the duties on three successive occasions, with the result that trade dwindled until it is practically 40 per cent. of what it was in 1930.

Yet you people were told that this country was suffering from lack of markets.

The agriculturists in this country are producing about the same amount of produce as they were in 1930, nor is it as easy to get the prices that you had in 1930.

I want to point out something more and that is the fact that you were told that you as farmers were not benefiting under the policy of the old King Government in that it failed to enlarge the scope of the primary producer.

You farmers who bought binders or mowers only had to pay duty at 6%. This was increased to 28.75 per cent.

Practically every man I see before me is a dairyman. Under the King Government, you had the privilege of buying separators in the country, duty free, and this was increased to 28.75 per cent.

The large Separators at the milk factory in 1930 cost $950.00. This year it went to $1250, a $300.00 increase.

You all know that the price of your butter has gone down. You are being exploited to that extent just because of an economic policy of a man who does not know the conditions of the people of Canada.

You are paying more for your cream separators and there is a 25 per cent. reduction in the United States.

Labor men, farmers, lumberman fishermen and all are exploited to the extent of the tariff which is against these articles. I want to point out this fact that certain tariffs are made for revenue.

Trade went down from $200,000,000 to $65,000,000 as the result of restriction of trade.

Regarding butter, according to the Bureau of Statistics, this had dwindled from 38.9 per cent. to, at the present time, 34.1 per cent., a loss in trade.

My opponent spoke to you about the great increase in bacon which has been sold to the British Empire, and tells you of the Imperial Trade Agreements. A quota of $270,000,000 was given, whereas we only supplied $71,000,000. If this quota was lived up to, we would have to raise four times as many hogs, and they would have to be all first class at that to be shipped.

These agreements were just made to hoodwink the people, but unfortunately for the Bennett Government they have turned out to be the Uneconomic Policy.

Owing to this reductoin in trade, it has meant that the Railway Companies, and other transportation companies, steamships, have found it necessary ot lay off a number of employees.

The payment of $100,000,000 by relief funds was not an economy. We find in 1930, 140,000 people on relief, and in 1934, over 1,000,000 on relief.

I have had the pleasure of addressing a very large number of meetings in Canada during the course of my public life, but I do not recollect any greater thrill than I had when we were trying to get here tonight. I have experienced a thrill the like of which I have never had before in my life.

"We are living in times that are very trying, very difficult. Times which the people are looking over something that goes to hold them up.

"As I look here at this great gathering at this moment, I feel in my heart that the people of Canada have at last said to themselves that we are going to settle the question of this country ourselves and we are determined to have self Government carried out.

"My Campbell spoke tonight about the history of the County of Frontenac. It is the finest in the history of Canada. I recollect at this minute fifteen years ago, Sir Allan Aylesworth, our oldest statesman in the Government of Canada, sitting at the right of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and it was Sir Allan Aylesworth who nominated me as Sir Wilfrid Laurier's successor to the head of the Liberal party, and I recollect over twenty-five years ago, I had the privilege of being taken into the Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurer, and Sir Allan Aylesworth was sitting close to him.

"I feel with a sense of satisfaction and pride the policies of the Liberal party, and as a result they had fifteen years of golden prosperity. I have been Prime Minister of Canada for nine years. When you think back over these nine years and the situation that exists today, it is hard to understand. Our National debts were lowered, we lowered the taxes of the people, and we brought increased prosperity. When you think of these facts, do you not believe that a similar policy would bring about the same results? I want also so say that I am glad to see Mr. Haycock still on the platform. I have known him for a long time and he has always had the interests of the people of rural communities in his mind.

"It is always the Liberal Government the people look to when they want a restoration of better times and greater prosperity throughout Canada.

"I want to say what a pleasure it is to see Mr. Gardiner on the platform tonight. He is a representative of the church to which he belongs at the Conference in Kingston, and I say it is a fortunate thing that we have him with us tonight at this gathering, and particularly to be able to congratulate him on the magnificent victory which he and his followers had in the Province of Saskatchewan .

"There is one regret I have. I regret deeply the occasion of this by-election. I knew Dr. Spankie and he was one of my real friends. It is true he was on the opposite side of the House, but just the same we were very dear friends. He was one who was always ready to do his bit. I wish to express to this constituency my deepest sympathy at his passing.

"As I said a moment ago, these times are quite exceptional times. At no period have there been more serious issues than at present. The result of the five by-elections in this Province of Ontario will, I venture to say, be fairly representative of the feeling of the people of Canada. No Government can afford to ignore the voice of the people in this Province as it will be shown on Monday next. I do not know what the voice of the people will be. If there are five Conservatives returned to Parliament, it will be an evidence that the people have confidence in the Bennett policy, but if, as a result of the voting, five constituencies go against him, he has not the right to stay as a leader of the government beyond that time. There have been several occasions in which the people have expressed themselves.

"We have had a number of by-elections since 1930. The first was in the County of Huron, with a majority of 2,000 for a Liberal. One in the Province of Quebec. The Liberal candidate increased his majority by 84%. Out in Mackenzie, in the Province of Saskatchewan, the Tory candidate lost his deposit. There was also a C.C.F. candidate, and the Liberal majority rolled up. It was a direct indication of the policies against the present admnistration.

"We have also had elections in the different Provinces. They have been voting down the policies of the Bennett administraton. All the Government's policies strangle trade. The people are not going to endorse it.

"In Quebec we had Mr. Taschereau's name and the situation that the people began to discuss election issues, and Mr. Bracken's Government came back into power. Then Nova Scotia—the issues discussed against the Government was set out and the Liberal Government, under Mr. Macdonald, was put in office.

"Take our friend, Mr. Gardiner's Government. I am sure Mr. Gardiner will bear be out when I say it was fought on the Federal issue and he is returned to power with a huge majority.

"I come down to the Province of Ontario, a Province that could never be wrested from the Conservative party. Was it not true that the Henry Government went down to defeat? Mr. Hepburn, in the course of that campaign, went into the matter very thoroughly.:

"You have had Tory Governments swept out of office. New Brounswick is the only one left. Canada is the only country almost in the world that has not had an election since August 1930, when the present administration was elected. In Great Britain, they have had an election, in Australia, New Zealand as well, and in different parts of the British Empire they have had their elections. In the United States, they have had a general election. In China they have not had a Government. In Venzuela they settle their differences by actions of civil war. In Italy they have not had an election because they have a Dictator there that takes away that right. In Germany they have a dictatorship and in Austria, which is another autocratic country. In Russia they have not had an election. We are not in that category. These are the countries that have not had a chance. Now I wish to take all these facts under consideration. There is the fact that the people throughout the world generally feel that Canada will express the voice of the people in the five by-elctions this month, and if Liberals are returned, it will be an indicatons that the people are opposed to this present administration, and it is Mr. Bennett's duty to listen to the voice of the people, who will return whatever Government they wish.

"May I point this out to you—you are not being asked to decide this question. What is before you is the question as to whether the people should be given a right to choose which policy they wish. We can express our opinion as to the policies which will govern us.

I am quite prepared to support the Conservative Government if it is a real Government and if they will change its policy somewhat. We do not inherit our party feeling without wishing to show our party ideals.

"The voice of the people at this time will serve notice on the Government. I ask you to think back to the days of Sir John A. Macdonald, then to the days of Sir Robert Borden, and ask yourself if any of these old Conservatives ever thought of putting up a tariff something like from 300 to 400 per cent. Did any of them ever think of putting duty on goods?

"There has been no limit to what this Government has done, which are not the views of Sir John A. Macdonald or Sir Robert Borden. While we believe in protectve tariff, we do not believe that industries should be allowed to create monoplies, and that trade should be strangled. You have a chance to decide for yourselves, which you want. Perhaps the voice from Frontenac-Addington would add very materially to bringing them to their senses. I do not know what will happen to us if we have this Government in office another year.

Let me ask you this question - Have you asked yourself what is the best manner in which to choose? Is it not the choice of the people to speak to you in terms of parliamentary proceedure. It is perfectly true that in our statutes no Government can stay in longer than five years. Imagine if there was no limit, and you had Mr. Bennett in office. They would not get out until they went to the other shore.

If there is any evidence of the people to that effect, a Prime Minister with a sense of responsibility will resign, or will ask for a dissolution of parliament. We are supposed to have one session of parliament each year. He called a special session the first year and that session put through more legislation than any other session of parliament. In Canada we have never had a parliament that had more than five sessions, except one parliament during the period of the war that was held again as long as they are alive.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I should say that the average length of time that a parliament has lasted in Canada is about three years. You remember when Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in office and the Reciprocity was under discussion. What did he do? He said, "It is perfectly true I have five years and I could perhaps force this thing through." But he did not, he wanted the will of the people, and so at the end of three years, Sir Wilfrid asked the Governor-General for a dissolution. That was carrying along the Government according to the will of the people.

The questions that came up at the time this present Government came into power were to be dealt with satisfactorily, if they were capable of dealing with them. The two problems were work, and trade. Mr. Bennett said, "If you return me to power, I will see that you all get work." He thought he could do it by means of the tariffs. He thought that it could be possible that there would be plenty of employment in a short time.

The other problem was for the farmers. He said : "I will get you markets." How did he propose to get them? He also said, "I will place your goods in the markets of the world." How far has he succeeded in getting them?

116,000 unemployed when he came into office, according to his own figures. Over 1,000,000 on relief at present.

As far as markets are concerned, you know the extent of such. You had the markets in the Provinces. You have the markets in other parts of the world. He introduced policies that he thought were sartisfactory. He has had a chance to throw away his policies, as they would not be carried out.

In dealing with unemployment, he asked for a blank cheque and the right to take out of the Public Treasury. All the money he wanted, he has drawn for four years in succession, and he has the right to take out whatever money he wants for that purpose of unemployment. There has been spent on unemployment over $110,000,000. There has been, in addition to that, three loans to different Provinces, and guarantees to different concerns, amounts which bring the total to something like $270,000,000.

With the Prime Minister using money to provide work, do you think instead of these high tariffs, we had had a reasonable amount of trade taking place between other countries, and the Government had an unemployment scheme, that we would not have had greater prosperity than we have at the present time. The Government have an entirely wrong idea. The best prosperity can be brought about by trade. I think I am right when I say Mr. Bennett's policy was not a sound one. Mr. Bennett believed in a Home Market when he put a high tariff wall around the country so as to prevent any commodities coming in. What are we going to do when there are no people to get money from?

Let me assume for a moment. We are in the Village of Enterprise. Let us suppose that this high tariff would be taking in Enterprise and see how it would work. This place is a locality where nothing can come in. My idea of a home market is a place that adds to her purchasing power, which means the money that is available for purchasing. That would not be a market in any true sense of the word, but it would not be a market worthy of the name of the community. The merchants of Enterprise were depending on this to sell their commodities and how much money would go into the shops.

This country of Canada is one of great national resources, and we cannot use them within the Dominion of Canada to any great extent. The only way we can hope to get results through these resources are from different markets.

Does the present Government want some people to realize that we are having a hard time of it. They say that other markets are doing the same thing, and they will tell you it is wrong and other countries are doing it, and we have had to do it ourselves.

If they had gone to the country to the south of us, we could have got bids on some of our goods and we could take some of theirs in return. They could have gone to Europe. We have got a grand country of reserves, which they would be glad to have at a much less rate. In this they changed their tariff policy. England then became a Protectionist country.

whether Liberals or Conservatives were returned in the coming five by-elections. Dr. Manion, as a Minister of the Government, is speaking for the Prime Minister, so that they are gong to hold to the Government as long as they can.

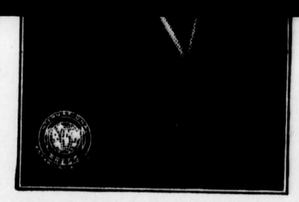
I want to say this to you about the situation today. If you study the employment of the nations of the world, you will find that there is a great upheavel going on between democracy on the one hand and autocracy on the other, democracy being the will of the people, and autocracy the will of the few. By responsible Government is meant being responsible to the people and not to just a few. It is their Parliament. On the other hand, the will of the people is expressed in by-elections. In Russia they have not the Institutions we have. They have been for the most part poor people and have risen in revolt.

In Germany, you have a leader today who takes a position, the result of which you saw the other day when sixty men were shot down in cold blood, without being questioned.

The Marketing Bill, I might also mention, was put through. One clause gives the government the right to stop all imports or exports, and not Parliament. Parliament has nothing to do with it, and this authority is given for the purpose of meeting any situations as they arise. Mr. Bennett and his Government have the power to limit production and to require all people to have licenses before they sell any of their produce or go on with their business.

You say a Government may never make use of that authority. We were told they were never going to use this unemployment.

They used $60,000,000 of it to guarguarantee the banks for the C. P. R. loan, and the fact that they got that power means that they can make agreements and sign other agreements for the trade of the country without any consent of Parliament.



It would have been perfectly proper to have appeared before Parliament, but this Government did not do that. They told the Parliament that they had to take it for five years.

Take the Banking Act, do you realize the position you are in as regards Monetary Policy. The people were in favor of the appointment of a Central Bank controlled by the Government, but the Bennett Government have framed a measure that creates an Institution more powerful than the Government itself, and Canada is not to have a director. It is to be a privately owned Institution and bonds are to be put on the market. In addition to that, this Government has appointed a President of the Board for seven years. This President of the Board cannot be changed except by the authority of both parties.

As a result of this, Canada will have to send to Parliament representatives who will have a certain policy so that their interests may be protected and we will not be facing the problems which occurred in the last session. I do not thing that this Government can be trusted to stay in office any longer. We know how far they have gone in taking away from Parliament and keeping themselves in office. What they would do if they had just one more year is pretty hard to say. I think when Monday next comes along, you should have no uncertainty as to who you should send to Ottawa and join in expressing your views as to the rights of the people. I urge you to elect a Liberal that will assist us to get the country back to prosperity. You have heard Mr. Campbell speak to you tonight, and as I told you before, it is the young men we need at Ottawa. He has been educated at a University and he understands the problems of the farmer. He is a mining man with a constructive mind and he has lived on farms.

I am glad to see so many young people interested in this election, they are the ones we want.

The people of Canada are tired of this narrow nationalism and the Liberals party believed in internationalism and were desirous of having peace and good will to all men. We do not want a dictatorship here. We are prepared to say to the world that what is wanted is a Liberal outlook. Not only in Canada would the five by-elections be watched, but by other nations who wanted to trade with Canada and would decide on these results what was going to happen in the future.

world's most accredited magazines, has this to say of Mr. King :

More than once we have expressed the view in this periodical that the world position of Canada is pivotal, wth Mackenzie King a statesman of the first rank. He has had no superior—perhaps no equal—during the past decade among all the political leaders within the realms of the "British commonwealth of nations." In his make-up are found some of the best qualities of three British premiers and present-day party leaders, Baldwin, Macdonald and Lloyd George. He is better trained in economics and history than any of these three, and also has a broader understandng of the world at large."

New Zealand Butter, but you were told of the products we were selling to New Zealand. You were told that with the duty on butter, you would be that much richer. The next year after this tariff was put on, butter dropped to 21 cents, and at present it is 18¾c.

You all know what your cream cheque is .

The Honourable Harry Stevens, Head of the Department of Trade and Commerce, issues a statement of butter stored in the Dominion the first of each year. There was about 35,000,000 lbs. average for the last four years, and 48,000,000 lbs this year.

Let us point out this fact. The protection of butter was supposed to be a benefit to the trade, yet we find an increase of 36 per cent. in storage of butter and lower production.

You know that the people of Canada cannot buy, and you wonder why you cannot sell them. They refuse to buy goods in other countries. They have trade barriers up to such an extent that we cannot do business with them.

You were told that after these agreements, that this country was going to prosper, yet prosperity has not taken place.

I would like at this time to just explain to you the way in which tariffs of this Government has allowed you to be exploited. You, as drivers of motor cars, all buy gasoline. The people of Canada have been exploited six cents per gallon. The Oil Companies receive their crude oil in this country, duty free. We find that Oil Companies annually pay in wages $8,000,000. It does not take many men to run a large refinery. And so we find that most of our large manufacturers are exploiting you people.

Now I have been accused of being a terrible man, because I was born in Elgin County. I still think it is part and parcel of the Dominion of Canada. I want to point out something further, that since the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett has taken to flight and gone across the pond, that the man who is Acting Prime Minister of Canada, is Sir George Perley, and he does not happen to have been born in Canada. I do not hold that against him, because Sir George Perley has given freely to his Country.

When I came to reside in this County four years ago, I certainly would not have picked out the riding of Frontenac-Addington as an easy place to get elected in, if I had had political ambitions. I feel sure that I have many friends now and I hope I can hold them because the only payment you get out of this life is the true friendships you make. I am very pleased with the men who fought with me, and are beside me at this time. I am also pleased to have with me the supporters of the late Dr. Spankie. I appreciate the fact that these men voted for me in the late Provincial Election, as they felt that the Government of that day was not governing in the best interest of the people, and to relieve the taxpayer in this province. I appreciate the fact that all these men are still with me. They are not voting for me because I am a Grit, but because the Government of this country is liable to become endangered through lack of responsibility to the people.

A week from today you are called upon to vote on who is to fill the seat of the late Dr. Spankie. The farmers all want to receive some value for their products. You are not going to have any increase in farm products until a new Government is ushered into office at Ottawa. I have been told by my opponents I am wrong because I made this statement. I am again telling you that if you have any products to sell and that if you had a market to the south of us you would be receiving a lot more. Pork was selling in Toronto last week from $8.75 to $8.90, and in Chicago from $8.95 to $9.50. Our present cattle are selling at three cents more in Chicago than in Toronto. Beef is higher : In Toronto, $4.25 to $4.75 ; In Chicago, $6.50 to $9.50. Lambs $1.00 a hundred more in Chicago than in Toronto. You can sell it in the States. We in this country suffer because we have no market. The unemployed are on our backs because we have no trade moving. The only way you are going to get back prosperity is to have a new Government.

We can start to do that on September 24th. The people in these five ridings have the privilege of telling R. B. Bennett that his policies are uneconomical. You have a chance getting new trade. At the present time you are receiving only 40 per cent. of what you received in 1930 for the same goods.

Sales Tax has been increased to six per cent., instead of one.

You have to pay an increase in postage, all because R. B. Bennett has put into force an uneconomical policy. You have a chance of starting R. B. Bennett on his way out. The farmers of this riding know that they are still going broke. They realize that they are working at a loss. They know that their standard of living is being lowered, and your chance of responsible government is being endangered. I want to point out a similarty of events before. There was a group of men who were governing this country, from 1830 to 1835. They refused to go to the country, and there was an illustrious man of that time who rose up and led a group of reformers and that man was William Lyon Mackenzie.

Now at the present time, instead of having William Lyon Mackenze, we have his grandson, Willam Lyon Mackenzie King. Let us, on September 24th, usher into power a new Government so that your standard of living can be raised.

MOUNTAIN GROVE

A number from here attended the Liberal meeting in the Town Hall, Ar-

Left For England.

Mr. Arthur Hankins left for England the past week and before his departure a dinner was held in his honor at the Superior Restaurant, which was attended by twelve of his chums, and all wished for him a very enjoyable trip.

Like An Arabian Night's Adventure.

Lady Dorothy Mills, distinguished traveler, explorer and novelist, relates a remarkable experience while visiting the castle stronghold of a mountain Prince in Morocco. Read the article in The American Weekly with Sunday's Detroit Times.

Cheese Board.

At the regular meeting of the Napanee Cheese Board, held in the Agricultural Rooms on Saturday afternoon, 604 white and 169 colored cheese were boarded. The colored cheese sold for 10c. and 201 white cheese sold for 9½., the balance being refused. The prices indicated a slight increase over last week. The Napanee Cheese Factory ceased operations for the season on Saturday.

Presentation.

On Friday evening, Miss Doris Knapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Knapp, was presented with a lovely fountain pen and pencil set by the members of Grace church choir, of which organization she has been a faithful member for the past few years. Miss Knapp will reside with her parents in Kingston, her father having recently accepted a position with Abramskys.

Market.

The threatening weather on Saturday morning did not prevent the usual large market and practically every space on the market was taken. There was an abundance of garden produce, with prices about the same as last market. Tomatoes were very reasonable and potatoes sold from 20c. to 25c. peck. Eggs sold from 22c. up. Grapes and peaches were plentiful in the fruit stores, selling at various prices.

Election of Officers.

At the annual election of officers of Argyll Lodge No. 212, I.O.O.F., held on Thursday night, Leslie Richardson was elected Noble Grand, Cecil Joynt was elected vice-grand and the remaining elective officers were all re-elected, namely, E. J. Walters, Recording Secretary, Dr. Harry Loucks, Financial Secretary and F. S. Scott, Treasurer. James S. Douglas is the retiring Noble Grand. The installation of officers will be held in the near future and will be in charge of Matt. Taylor, who was elected District Deputy Grand Master a few months ago.

Crashed Into Bridge.

A car containing Mr. Ben. Cook and his son and two other men, of Toronto, while trying to make the turn at the railroad bridge at the eastern entrance of the town, crashed head on into the stone abutment about 11 o'clock on Thursday morning and the impact was so hard that the car was so badly damaged that its valuation is practically nil. Mr. Cook, Sr., received injuries to such an extent that he was taken to Dr. Hall's office, where fifteen stitches were found necessary to close the wounds. The son had a cut ear and other minor injuries. They were able later to proceed to Toronto. The car was brought to a local garage.

Church Services.

On Sunday morning the pulpits of the three United churches were occupied by ministers who are attending the General Council in Kingston, and the heavy showers somewhat interfered with the usual attendance. Rev. C. G. Mackenzie, M.A.,D.D., of Victoria, B.C., was at Trinity Church, the Rev. J. Y. Mackinnon, M.A., B.D., of Brantford, was at St. Andrew's church, and the service in Grace Church was conducted by Rev. Maxwell Allan, of Pembroke. In the evening ,the congregations of the three churches united to hear Rev. T. Ferrier Hulme, M.A., L.L.D., fraternal delegate to the General Council from the newly United Methodist Churches of England. Mr. Hulme is a noted

The finance committee of the V.O.N. wishes to thank all, who in any way, helped to make tag day a success. A handsome sum was handed to the treasurer.

Won Mattress.

Mrs. Howard, who resides at Napanee R.R., had the honor of winning the lovely mattress in the drawing which was held by the Canadian Department Stores during Fair days.

Auction Sale.

S. W. Clark, Auctioneer, will sell for Simon Leween, on Slash Road, one mile from Marysville, all his farm stock, implements and crop. 9 cows, 4 horses, 19 tons hay, and other farm produce. Terms, cash. Date of sale, Monday, October 1st, at 12 o'clock noon.

Kidd-Doyle.

The Church of the Assumption, Erinsville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Monday, Sept. 3rd, at 9 o'clock a.m., when Rev. Father J. A. Powell united in matrimony Elizabeth Agnes, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kidd, to John Francis Doyle, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Doyle, of Richmond township.

Transport Burned.

Word was received in town on Saturday afternoon, stating that a Smith Transport had been completely burned and that the driver received painful burns, necessitating his removal to the Kingston Hospital. When the transport left the highway it plunged into the ditch snapping off a hydro pole, and immediately flames came through the floor board.

Funeral of the Late W. J. Jewell.

Rev. R. T. Richards, of Grace United Church, conducted the funeral of the late W. J. Jewell which was held from the family residence on Thursday afternoon. The home was filled with relatives and friends and a very comforting sermon was given by Mr. Richards. The Worshipful Master of Union Lodge No. 9, A.F. & A.M., with a goodly number of brethren were in attendance, and following the committal service at the graveside, the Masonic burial service was read. Those taking part were W. Bro Taylor, V. Wor. Bro. Wilfred Wilson, and Bro. C. E. Hendricks, Senior Warden. There was a wealth of floral tributes evidencing the high regard in which Mr. Jewel was held, these coming from relatives, from fraternal organizations and from his friends. The pall bearers were from Union Lodge, and were : J. W. Thompson, F. S. Scott, Geo. D. Robson, E. J. Walters, O. S. Reddick and Harry Roney. Interment took place in Riverview cemetery.

The Officers and Directors of Lennox Fair wish to express their appreciation to the judges and all those who assisted in arranging and caring for the exhibits and assisted the judges in their duties.

Private Sale.

The private sale at the home of Rev. P. A. Scott will continue for another week. Good or excellent bargains in the following: Buffet, dining room table, book case, stand, iron bed and springs, 3-piece parlor suite, dresser, all the above articles are new. Many other articles in first class condition will also be sold. 46-a Transferred.

Mr. E. O. Rawlins, who has been Traffic Officer for the district during the past two or three years, has been transferred to Ingersoll and left for his new home the latter part of the week. There has been no successor appointed as yet, and on Saturday the Traffic Officer residing in Belleville was in Napanee on official duties. It is expected that the route for the new appointee will be in excess of that which has prevailed for the past few years and will possibly extend from Kingston to Belleville, instead of from Cataraqui to Deseronto as heretofore.

Anniversary Service.

Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, who had a most successful ministry on the Bay circuit several years ago, was selected as the special preacher for the anniversary service at the Anderson church on Sunday evening, and his profitable discourse was heard by a splendid congregation. The musical portion of the service was exceptionally fine and was given by the Crossman male choir, with Mrs. James Robson as accompanist. The choir contributed several numbers, which were greatly enjoyed and tonight will assist in the program for the annual fowl supper. The minister, Rev. J. E. Beckel, was at Newburgh on Sunday night, supplying for Mr. Anderson.

EXPORT EGG PROSPECTS GOOD

Canadian egg export prospects continue to command considerable attention and the first export shipment of current year consisting of 1,000 cases, left Winnipeg on September 8th. This shipment is a little early and it is probable that the bulk of the exports will not start to move until the month of October. With the prospects for a substantial export trade this year and with the storage stocks apparently less than a year ago, the outlook for the egg market during the winter continues quite favorable. On the first of September, storage stocks at Montreal were above last year but at both Toronto and Winnipeg the holdings were lighter than in 1933.—Egg and Poultry Market Review.

Coming.

Mr. Lionel Scott, of Toronto, noted authority on Home and Interior decorations, under auspices of the Napanee Women's Institute, Town Hall, Monday, October 1st, at 2.30 p.m.

Attended District Meeting.

Mrs. Marshall Hudson and Mrs. R. S. Wales, official delegates from Queen of Sheba Rebekah Lodge, attended the District meeting which was held at Harrowsmith last week and every lodge in the district was represented. The lodges are from Gananoque, Kingston, Harrowsmith, Yarker and Napanee. Miss Edna Hull accompanied the local delegates.

Fall and Winter Meetings.

The initial meeting of Napanee Chapter No. 151, O.E.S., for the fall and winter months was held in the rooms of Argyll Lodge on Tuesday evening of last week, and despite the fact that the Fair was in progress, there was a splendid attendance of the officers and members. During the course of the Chapter session, the Worthy Matron, Mrs. T. M. Asselstine, gave a very interesting synopsis of the proceedings of Grand Chapter session held at Hamilton several weeks ago. At the Grand Chapter sessions Mrs. C. Milton Stratton of the local Chapter had the honor of being selected one of the pages. For her splendid report Mrs. Asselstine was tendered a hearty vote of thanks. Arrangements are being completed for the anniversary of the Chapter which will be held on Tuesday evening, September 25th, and the officers and members intend to make it a memorable and delightful event.

Romanelli at Beaver Lake.

Luigi Romanelli's Orchestra, under the direction of L. Romanelli, appears at Beaver Lake on Friday, Sept. 21st. The management of the Pavillion has arranged with this very popular orchestra to give a program of five hours continuous dancing, from 9 o'clock until 2. This is the first time that this orchestra has appeared out of the Toronto district, and is an opportunity for which the up-to-date dance crowd have been long waiting for. Arrangements have been made to conduct the dance so that every one that participates in the evening's entertainment will enjoy it to the full extent. We only ask you to co-operate with us in regards to parking your cars and overcrowding in the dance hall. With the continuous hours of dancing there will be no need to jam. Admission to the grounds is 25 cents, to the dance floor 95 cents. Anyone with the admission ticket to the grounds will be charged 75 cents, including tax. Take advantage of the early hours and avoid the rush.

PARLIAMENT TO RUN FIVE YEARS

By-elections Will Not Affect This Decision

MAJORITY A LARGE ONE

Status In House of Commons Would Be the Same

BY C. L. BISHOP
Free Press Special Correspondent

OTTAWA, Sept. 18.—The theory of Mr. Mackenzie King, expounded at Enterprise last night and previously, that if the Government party lose the by-elections next Monday, it will be the duty of Premier Bennett forthwith to recommend the dissolution of Parliament and bring on a general election, was completely rejected in Government circles at Ottawa today. One spokesman of the Government was very definite in saying: "We are here and we will dissolve Parliament when we think it fit and proper. Parliament represents the people and, so long as the Government commands a majority there, it is entitled to remain for the full five years of its term."

The argument which Mr. King has put forth was previously advanced by himself and Mr. Lapointe. Briefly, the contention is that at the end of five years a general election must be held but that it is due any time, meanwhile that there is evidence of the Government "losing the confidence of the people."

Many years ago, this principle was affirmed in the British Parliament by Mr. Gladstone who, having lost several by-elections recommended the dissolution of Parliament. At the general election he was defeated.

It is the contention of Conservatives, that Mr. Gladstone was actuated by a desire to head off charges against a minister of his cabinet, more than being influenced by the adverse results of by-elections.

In any event, whatever the outcome of Monday's election.—and Conservatives hope to hold their own—it is quite clear that the purpose of going on to the end of the term will not be frustrated. Even if all the seats were lost, the majority would be adequate and, as stated, so long as such losses do not mean loss of the essential dominance of the House, any adversity of sentiment in the by-elections is not regarded by the Government as compelling dissolution.

Ottawa shows some signs of marking time till the by-elections are over. Several cabinet ministers are away attending to them, but owing to a rheumatic affection of the eye, Hon. R. J. Manion has had to cancel several speaking engagements. Sir George Perley and Hon. E. N. Rhodes contemplate a fishing trip.

Hepburn Speaks On Wolfe Island

Says Liberal Sweep in By-election Would Hasten Federal Ballot.

(Canadian Press)

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 12—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn today urged the electors to return Liberals to the House of Commons in the five by-elections in Ontario Sept. 24 and thus empower Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Dominion Liberal leader, with the right to inform Prime Minister R. B. Bennett he no longer holds the people's confidence. "Defeat R. B. Bennett in these by-elections Sept. 24 and you will hasten the day of election," he declared.

"You will hasten the establishment of a stable government and the return of prosperity. You will be working in your own interests and in the interests of your neighbor and of posterity."

Mr. Hepburn addressed a political gathering on Wolfe Island in support of Colin Campbell, Liberal candidate in the Frontenac-Addington by-election. He called on the voters to throw their support behind Mr. Campbell, who was defeated by a Conservative in the recent Ontario provincial elections.

Only by turning the Conservative government out of power and placing the Liberals in control would the people of Canada obtain lower interest rates, reduction in excessive tariffs and removal of the unemployment evil.

"George S. Henry said that it was impossible to effect any greater economies than he was attempting but I am doing it," Mr. Hepburn said. "And the only people I am hurting are those supernumeraries who were never needed in the first place."

THE ELECTION REVIEW

VOL. 1—NO. 1 | Published by The Frontenac-Addington Liberal Association | THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1934 | "Supporting the Interests of the People"

BEAT BENNETT AND BAD TIMES ELECT CAMPBELL ON MONDAY

Is Well Qualified To Serve Frontenac-Addington

Business Experience And Farm Background Are Valuable Assets

Colin A. Campbell, Born and Raised on Farm, Has Played an Important Part in the Development of Canada's Natural Resources—Has Lived in Riding Since 1930.

A son of the soil, born and raised on an Ontario farm, with a broad education at Queen's University, Kingston, wide experience in the business world and in the development of Canada's natural resources, Colin A. Campbell is eminently qualified to represent a riding such as Frontenac-Addington in the House of Commons. His early life impressed on him the problems and difficulties of the farmers in a manner which only those raised on the farm can understand. Thus he is no stranger to the life which the farmers of this riding have to live, and is fully conversant with the many problems which they have to meet under the conditions which have been imposed on them by the policies of the Bennett government.

Colin A. Campbell was born on the farm, in Elgin County, in 1901, and spent his boyhood on a farm in that county. He knew what it meant to tramp the mud roads to school in Southwold Township, where he attended public school, and to Dutton High School. Leaving high school, he entered Queen's University, Kingston, where he was educated in science, and took up the profession of mining engineer, which he now practices, with his home and office at Northbrook.

After leaving Queen's University, Mr. Campbell spent several years of his life in Northern Ontario, taking his part in the development of the natural resources of the province. He is keenly interested in the lumbering industry, and has valuable knowledge of this branch of Canadian development. For several years he was associated, as an engineer, with the Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines and the McIntyre Porcupine Mines, two of the greatest mining properties on the North American continent. Since 1928 he has been manager and consulting engineer for several mining companies, including the Dunkin Gold Mines in the Patricia district and the Bey Mines at Northbrook. He was also manager of one of Ontario's great gold-producing mines, the Barry Hollinger. At the present time, he is consulting engineer for the Federated Mining Corporation and other mining companies. This experience in the practical operation of mines has given him an intensive knowledge of Canada's mining problems, and if elected, he would be one of the few members of parliament with first-hand knowledge of the development of Canada's natural mineral resources.

Mr. Campbell comes of good old Liberal stock. His father, A. C. Campbell, was active in municipal and political life in his native county of Elgin, and at some time or another during his life held all the important municipal positions in the county. He was for thirty years treasurer of the township of Southwold. He was an active Liberal all his life, and was identified with the Liberal executive for over thirty years, part of that time being president of the Liberal association.

His son, Colin A. Campbell, the Liberal standard-bearer for Frontenac-Addington, has been just as active as a Liberal worker. He was Liberal organizer in the rural section of West Elgin in the federal election of 1921. Since boyhood, he has been a close personal friend of the Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, on whose behalf he took an active part

Conservatives Are Shrouded in Gloom of the Depression

Hon. Robert J. Manion once said that the Liberals hid behind the shrouds of dead men. But, speaking recently in Hamilton, Premier R. B. Bennett advised his audience to seek inspiration from the graveyards. But, if he wished his followers to be shrouded in gloom to find their inspiration, they did not need to go to the graveyards. All they need to do is look around them, in the towns and cities and on the farms of Canada, and see the hardships, the suffering, the misery and the degredation which have been inflicted upon hundreds of thousands of Canadian farmers and

A Death-Bed Repentance?

Have the Hon. Harry H. Steves and the Hon. R. B. Bennett suffered a death-bed repentance? This seems to be the only explanation for the rush to appoint a commission to inquire into the business and industrial exploitation which have sprung up under four years of Bennett and Stevens rule in Canada. If ever men were condemned out of their own mouths, the members of the Bennett government are being condemned out of the mouth of the Hon. Harry H. Stevens, Bennett's minister of trade and commerce.

Here is what the Hon. Harry H. Stevens has to say in August, 1934, after the application for four years of the policies enacted by Mr. Stevens and Mr. Bennett:—

"For beef, when you find a western producer of first class steers, high grade, well-finished steers, getting, as some of them did, as low as a cent and a half a pound on the ranch, and two and a quarter cents and so on in the Winnipeg market, the thing is outrag-

Mackenzie King Appeals To Electors To Demand Responsible Government And Force General Federal Election

Highlights of Speeches Delivered in Present Federal Election Campaigns Declare Bennett Government is Usurping the Rights of the People of Canada.

In his speeches in the present federal by-elections, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, is placing the issues fairly and squarely before the people of Canada. Here are some of the highlights of his speeches, delivered at Enterprise, in the riding of Frontenac-Addington, and at Markham, in North York, in support of the Liberal candidates. They form a scathing indictment of the Bennett government, and provide definite reasons why the Liberal candidate, Colin A. Campbell, should be elected in Frontenac-Addington.

"The great question is whether the people have the right of governing themselves, or for another year the government will carry out, not the will of the people, but of a few gentlemen who, after failing to fulfill their promises to you, still cling to office for their own interests."

"The Liberal party contributed fifteen years of golden prosperity to Canada under Laurier. In the last 15 years, there have been nine years of prosperity, during which I was Prime Minister. I ask you to consider the record since 1921. There was a depression then. In the succeeding nine years, as a result of Liberal policies, there was increased trade, reduction of debt, lowered taxes and bright prospects. Today, the same policies will produce the same results."

"At the present time, there are five by-elections in Ontario, and the vote will be fairly representative of the feelings of the people of Canada as a whole. No government can afford to ignore the will of the people as it will be expressed at the polls next Monday, no matter what it may be. If these five constituencies go against the government, Mr. Bennett will not have the right to remain at the head of the government of this country for one hour beyond that time."

"The trouble is that the government has an entirely wrong idea as to the basis on which trade can be brought about. Mr. Bennett thinks the way to get the home market is to build a wall around this country, so that the people will have to buy home products, but he forgets that the people have to get the money to buy. He has been spending public money freely to try to help them farmers. Wages and prices are lower, bad conditions of sweating have been revealed, the cattle men of the west have been suffering greviously, and the developments of the last four years have made it clear that the policies of the government have been of such a character as to lower wages and prices of farm products, and to produce sweatshop conditions."

"The marketing bill is an iniquitous measure. Under it, one clause says that the government may, as regards regulated products, have the right to stop all imports and exports. They say they will not do it, but there is the law, and Bennett and his cabinet, with no voice of the people behind them, have the power to stop all exports and imports, the power to limit production, to require you to secure licenses before you can go on with your business. They say they will never make use of it, but they said they would never use the unemployment emergency powers save to help the unemployed. Yet they used them to give a $60,000,000 guarantee to the Canadian Pacific Railway, they used many millions for purposes for which they never secured the consent of parliament. When it took to itself the right to sign agreements at the Empire conference, without the consent of parliament, this government took to itself powers it had no right to take."

"In the last two or three years, every by-election in Canada has gone against the government. The voice of the people, at every opportunity, has been expressed as being against the present administration."

George W. Dawson Endorses Campbell

Speaking at Enterprise on Monday evening of this week, G. W. Dawson, member of parliament for Addington constituency from 1891 to 1896, expressed his warm support of Colin A. Campbell.

"I am glad," said Mr. Dawson, "to have an opportunity of saying a word regarding so splendid a candidate as Mr. Campbell. Mr. Campbell was the unanimous choice of the Liberal convention, and was demanded as the candidate by the whole gathering. If ever a man was nominated by the people of this riding, it was Mr. Campbell, and I feel sure that the electors will give him a large majority in next Monday's election."

WHY THE FARMER SUFFERS TODAY

Prices of Farm Products Drop 30%, While Costs of Production Higher

Mr. R. B. Bennett, in 1930, promised that he would improve the condition of agriculture or perish in the attempt. Let us see how he did it.

In 1930, when he came into power, the index number of the price of farm products was 80. It now stands at 57. In other words, you now receive $57 for farm products for which you received $80 in 1930. This is a decline of 23 points, or approximately 30 per cent.

The index of the price of manufactured products, in the same time, dropped from 85 to 72, a decline of only 13 points, or approximately 15 per cent.

For every dollar of farm produce you sold in 1930 you now receive only 70 cents. But your 70 cents will not buy nearly as much as the same sum would in 1930, because the decrease in the prices of manufactured products has been only one half of the decrease in price of farm products, while your taxes and fixed charges have gone up, and the ever-increasing burden of federal, provincial and municipal taxation is putting you in a worse and worse position, day after day, week after week, month after month.

What is the cause of all this? Simply that Mr. Bennett raised the tariff to the highest point in Canadian history. Tariffs restrict imports. Imports are payments which

J. L. HAYCOCK HEARTILY IN FAVOR OF COLIN CAMPBELL

Joseph L. Haycock, of Adolphustown, formerly head of the Patrons of Industry, and member of the legislative assembly for Frontenac County for four years, is a strong supporter of Colin A. Campbell, Liberal candidate in the federal by-election in Frontenac-Addington.

"I have been personally acquainted with every representative of Frontenac County for the last 65 years," said Mr. Haycock, "and of all the representatives we have ever had, I would choose Colin A. Campbell one hundred per cent ahead of all of them to represent the farmers of the county.

"It is a strange thing," said Mr. Haycock, "that the Conservatives have never, in the last 142 years, nominated a farmer in Frontenac County. Now, when they see the handwriting on the wall, they rush into the field with a candidate whom they call a farmer, but who is ninety per cent drover and ten per cent farmer. And they are only nominating him because there is but one session left, and they want to try him out to see if it is safe to nominate a farmer or not.

"I am supporting Mr. Campbell because he is the best man, because I believe in the policies he is supporting, and I hope the electors of Frontenac-Addington will give him a substantial majority next Monday."

Popular Liberal Candidate

COLIN A. CAMPBELL
Liberal Candidate for Frontenac-Addington

Conservatives Are Shrouded in Gloom of the Depression

Hon. Robert J. Manion once said that the Liberals hid behind the shrouds of dead men. But, speaking recently in Hamilton, Premier R. B. Bennett advised his audience to seek inspiration from the graveyards. But, if he wished his followers to be shrouded in gloom to find their inspiration, they did not need to go to the graveyards. All they need to do is look around them, in the towns and cities and on the farms of Canada, and see the hardships, the suffering, the misery and the degredation which have been inflicted upon hundreds of thousands of Canadian farmers and working men by four years of the Bennett government's policies. If they will do that, then they will indeed be shrouded in a greater gloom than the country ever knew in the happier days of Liberal governments.

Banish the gloom from Canadian farms and homes by voting for Liberal policies and principles and for Colin A. Campbell.

Bennett's tariffs have increased the cost of your implements and your cost of living.

If Bennett's policy of protection will cure troubles, why not give us more of it? But the people of Canada know that his high tariffs have been the cause of our troubles.

Under Bennett policies, the producer of basic commodities gets pinched between high tariffs and high money rates, increasing the interest rates on your farm and your cost of living.

A Death-Bed Repentance?

Have the Hon. Harry H. Stevens and the Hon. R. B. Bennett suffered a death-bed repentance? That seems to be the only explanation for the rush to appoint a commission to inquire into the business and industrial exploitation which have sprung up under four years of Bennett and Stevens rule in Canada. If ever men were condemned out of their own mouths, the members of the Bennett government are being condemned out of the mouth of the Hon. Harry H. Stevens, Bennett's minister of trade and commerce.

Here is what the Hon. Harry H. Stevens has to say in August, 1934, after the application for four years of the policies enacted by Mr. Stevens and Mr. Bennett:—

"For beef, when you find a western producer of first class steers, high grade, well-finished steers, getting, as some of them did, as low as a cent and a half a pound on the ranch, and two and a quarter cents and so on in the Winnipeg market, the thing is outrageous."

And this outrageous condition is after four years of the government of which Mr. Stevens himself was a member.

Here is another Stevens' statement, showing what Mr. Stevens thinks regarding conditions in the textile industry:—

"At first I did not realize the magnitude of it, the extent of it, and I may illustrate it in this way. There are about 60,000 people, chiefly in Ontario and Quebec, engaged in what is known as the needle trade, and I think I am well within the mark in saying that out of the 60,000 I should judge 40,000 were living under wage conditions and labor conditions below anything that could be or should be tolerated in this country, and in a vast number of instances down to wages as low as $3.00 and $4.00 per week."

Remember, you voters of Frontenac-Addington, that this is the statement of the Hon. Harry H. Stevens after four years of the Bennett government. Mr. Stevens even goes further than that, for in August, 1934, he stated that he had found conditions in Canada which he described in the following words:

"I realized that such conditions might be common to cities of Central Europe, but in Canada, NO."

Further, Mr. Stevens sat in the House of Commons and voted for the imposition of a duty of four cents a pound on cotton goods used in the trade which employs these $3. and $4. a week workers. And he voted to double the duty on woollen goods which were being pur-

Mackenzie King Appeals To Electors To Demand Responsible Government And Force General Federal Election

Highlights of Speeches Delivered in Present Federal Election Campaigns Declare Bennett Government is Usurping the Rights of the People of Canada.

In his speeches in the present federal by-elections, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, is placing the issues fairly and squarely before the people of Canada. Here are some of the highlights of his speeches, delivered at Enterprise, in the riding of Frontenac-Addington, and at Markham, in North York, in support of the Liberal candidates. They form a scathing indictment of the Bennett government, and provide definite reasons why the Liberal candidate, Colin A. Campbell, should be elected in Frontenac-Addington.

"The great question is whether the people have the right of governing themselves, or for another year the government will carry out, not the will of the people, but of a few gentlemen who, after failing to fulfill their promises to you, still cling to office for their own interests."

"The Liberal party contributed fifteen years of golden prosperity to Canada under Laurier. In the last 15 years, there have been nine years of prosperity, during which I was Prime Minister. I ask you to consider the record since 1921. There was a depression then. In the succeeding nine years, as a result of Liberal policies, there was increased trade, reduction of debt, lowered taxes and bright prospects. Today, the same policies will produce the same results."

"At the present time, there are five by-elections in Ontario, and the vote will be fairly representative of the feelings of the people of Canada as a whole. No government can afford to ignore the will of the people as it will be expressed at the polls next Monday, no matter what it may be. If these five constituencies go against the government, Mr. Bennett will not have the right to remain at the head of the government of this country for one hour beyond that time."

"The trouble is that the government has an entirely wrong idea as to the basis on which trade can be brought about. Mr. Bennett thinks the way to get the home market is to build a wall around this country, so that the people will have to buy home products, but he forgets that the people have to get the money to buy. He has been spending public money freely to try to help them buy, but it is impossible to spend it in sufficient volume, and that will never save the situation. They regard the home market as a place. I regard the home market as a purchasing power. If there is no trade it is not a market, only a market place. The only way to prosperity is to sell our products in other markets, and when the money flows in from other countries for these products, there will be a real home market, a purchasing power that will create a demand for the goods of the factories and the produce of the farms. Because the government has not realized that, we have had hard times."

"The result of the government's policies is that few are making profits while the masses of the people are suffering. The Stevens commission has shown that high tariffs do not mean high wages for the workers or high prices for the farmers. Wages and prices are lower, bad conditions of sweating have been revealed, the cattle men of the west have been suffering greviously, and the developments of the last four years have made it clear that the policies of the government have been of such a character as to lower wages and prices of farm products, and to produce sweatshop conditions."

"The marketing bill is an iniquitous measure. Under it, one clause says that the government may, as regards regulated products, have the right to stop all imports and exports. They say they will not do it, but there is the law, and Bennett and his cabinet, with no voice of the people behind them, have the power to stop all exports and imports, the power to limit production, to require you to secure licenses before you can go on with your business. They say they will never make use of it, but they said they would never use the unemployment emergency powers save to help the unemployed. Yet they used them to give a $60,000,000 guarantee to the Canadian Pacific Railway, they used many millions for purposes for which they never secured the consent of parliament. When it took to itself the right to sign agreements at the Empire conference, without the consent of parliament, this government took to itself powers it had no right to take."

"In the last two or three years, every by-election in Canada has gone against the government. The voice of the people, at every opportunity, has been expressed as being against the present administration."

"For these reasons, I say the government has no right to stay in power any longer, because it is taking the power out of the hands of the people, and putting it into the control of a small executive."

Campbell's Views On Conditions Now

Here is how Colin A. Campbell sums up the conditions which have prevailed under the Bennett government.

"Canada's trade has dropped from over $2,400,000,000 in 1930 to about $800,000,000 in 1933. Your products are harder to sell, your prices are lower, the duties you have to pay are higher and your implements of production cost you more. Mr. Bennett has lowered revenues by restriction of trade, and you are taxed more heavily. Restriction of trade has meant less business for the railways, less business for industry, less buying power for the products of the farmer, because of unemployment, and less demand for the farmer's products."

You farmers of Frontenac-Addington know from your own experience that every word of that is true. Vote for Colin A. Campbell and a new and better deal.

George W. Dawson Endorses Campbell

Speaking at Enterprise on Monday evening of this week, G. W. Dawson, member of parliament for Addington constituency from 1891 to 1896, expressed his warm support of Colin A. Campbell.

"I am glad," said Mr. Dawson, "to have an opportunity of saying a word regarding so splendid a candidate as Mr. Campbell. Mr. Campbell was the unanimous choice of the Liberal convention, and was demanded as the candidate by the whole gathering. If ever a man was nominated by the people of this riding, it was Mr. Campbell, and I feel sure that the electors will give him a large majority in next Monday's election."

WHY THE FARMER SUFFERS TODAY

Prices of Farm Products Drop 30%, While Costs of Production Higher

Mr. R. B. Bennett, in 1930, promised that he would improve the condition of agriculture or perish in the attempt. Let us see how he did it.

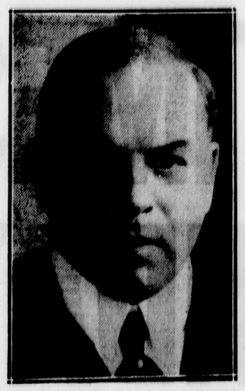
In 1930, when he came into power, the index number of the price of farm products was 80. It now stands at 57. In other words, you now receive $57 for farm products for which you received $80 in 1930. This is a decline of 23 points, or approximately 30 per cent.

The index of the price of manufactured products, in the same time, dropped from 85 to 72, a decline of only 13 points, or approximately 15 per cent.

For every dollar of farm produce you sold in 1930 you now receive only 70 cents. But your 70 cents will not buy nearly as much as the same sum would in 1930, because the decrease in the prices of manufactured products has been only one half of the decrease in price of farm products, while your taxes and fixed charges have gone up, and the ever-increasing burden of federal, provincial and municipal taxation is putting you in a worse and worse position, day after day, week after week, month after month.

What is the cause of all this? Simply that Mr. Bennett raised the tariff to the highest point in Canadian history. Tariffs restrict imports. Imports are payments which we receive for exports. When we restrict imports we refuse to accept payments for our exports. Thus trade is strangled.

Vote for Colin A. Campbell and the Liberal policy of opening up wider markets for Canadian products, and thus creating prosperity for the farmers who are the country's greatest exporters.



The Bennett government has given you a four cent tax on tea, a tax on sugar, and a six per cent. sales tax. These direct taxes were imposed because Bennett's tariffs killed trade.

A farmer at Kingston gets $1.35 for a horse-hide—yet pays $1.50 a pound for a belt-lace made from this hide. Thus the farmer is being bled under the Bennett government.

W. L. Mackenzie King Endorses Colin A. Campbell

To the Electors of Frontenac-Addington:

In the election of Monday next, you have a grave responsibility and a great opportunity. You will be speaking not only for yourselves, but on behalf of the people of Canada, with respect to the rights of citizens and the duties of governments. You will have the opportunity of declaring that the people are not the servants but the masters of any and every administration, and of telling the government at Ottawa that it is the right of the people at any and all times to say who shall govern them, who shall conduct their affairs. It is yours to make clear that Canada will not tolerate dictatorship, or any trend towards dictatorship, but that in our country the principle of responsible government must be preserved.

You are fortunate that, in the Liberal candidate, Colin A. Campbell, you have a man of high qualities, who is capable of rendering the greatest possible service, not only to you, but to the Dominion. He has the ability and the qualifications to represent you worthily in the House of Commons, and his interests, as are yours, are tied up with Canada's present and future.

I appeal to you to elect him, and thereby, to take the only means which at the moment you have, to tell to the present administration that it is not a sixth session of the present parliament and another year of the Bennett government which the citizens of Canada desire, but an immediate general election in which the great issues of the present day may be fully and freely discussed, and a government returned to power which will possess the confidence of the people.

in the federal elections of 1926 and 1930. Coming to Addington, he continued his activities on behalf of the Liberal party, and in the provincial general election he was chosen as the Liberal candidate, polling a record Liberal vote of 6,198. This splendid showing was the result of his earnestness in setting forth policies for the benefit of the people of his riding, and when the federal general election was called, he was chosen once again to carry the Liberal banner. His supporters in the riding of Frontenac-Addington are satisfied that he will be a worthy representative of their interests in the House of Commons, and they are determined to put forth every effort to elect him on Monday next.

Mr. Campbell has found time to take a keen interest in various fraternal and engineering associations. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge at Arden, and of the Royal Arch Masons of West Lorne, Ontario. He was for three years secretary of the Mine Managers' Association of the District of Patricia, and is a member of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, and the Association of Professional Engineers.

In 1923, Mr. Campbell was married to Miss Vera M. Smith of Dutton, Ontario, and they now have four children. Their home is at Northbrook, Ontario, where they have resided since coming to this constituency in Aug. 1930. During the last four years, Mr. Campbell has taken a leading part in many of the activities of his community. He has been particularly active in organizing rural sports. At school and college, he was an active athlete, playing hockey, rugby and baseball. On coming to Northbrook, his interest in sports made itself felt for the benefit of the community, and he organized and was president of the North Frontenac-Addington Softball league, which position he has held for the last three years, as well as being an active player on the Northbrook team.

This, then, is the man who is seeking your support as Liberal candidate in the federal by-election in Frontenac-Addington. That he is well qualified to give splendid service to the electors of this riding is amply borne out by his wide experience in an important industry and his boyhood life on an Ontario farm. As a Liberal, anxious to serve you and to bring back better times to the farmers of this constituency, Colin A. Campbell appeals to you for your support, your influence and your votes in the election on Monday, September 24.

Bennett Blocks Way To Opening up of Profitable Markets

You are being told that the farmers of Canada, as a result of the Imperial trade agreements, are receiving higher prices for their hogs and other products than the farmers of the United States. This contention today is absolutely false. Here are some figures to prove it, the quotations being those from official Canadian and United States sources:

	Canada	U. S.
Hogs ..	$8.75 to $8.90	$8.95 to $9.85
Choice Steers	$4.25 to $4.75	$6.75 to $9.75
Top Yearlings	$9.50 to 10.60	$5.70
Lambs .	$6.00 to $6.25	$6.75 to $7.00
Butter ..	18¼ to 19½	23 to 26½

Wheat futures in the United States average 19 cents a bushel higher than in Canada. Yet, because of the trade restrictions imposed by the Bennett government on Canadian trade with the United States, this market across the border, with much higher prices than in Canada, is closed to the farmers of this country.

Vote for Colin A. Campbell and the opening up of wider and more profitable markets for your farm products.

Campbell Sorry He Cannot Visit All Constituents

In so large a constituency as Frontenac-Addington, it is physically impossible for any candidate to make a personal call on every elector. Much as Colin A. Campbell would like to meet you all, to shake you by the hand and discuss your problems with you individually, it is not possible, in the time which is available, for him to do so. He hopes, however, that those who can will make sure of attending the remaining meetings of his election campaign, so that he can meet them and greet them personally.

To those whom he cannot possibly visit, this newspaper is intended to introduce Colin Campbell to you, and help you to know him better, and to appreciate the qualifications of the man who is the Liberal standard-bearer in Frontenac-Addington. In it, you will find his views and policies on the subjects in which you are vitally interested. They are commended to your serious study, because Colin Campbell firmly believes that they will appeal to you, and are worthy of your support.

No matter what your previous political affiliation may have been,

Campbell Supports Policy To Widen Farmers' Markets

The greatest problem which Canadians have had to face during the last four years has been that of lack of adequate markets for the products of Canada, which has been responsible, first, for depriving the farmer of an opportunity of disposing of his products at prices which would ensure him a fair standard of living, and secondly, for increasing the amount of unemployment in Canada. Thus the farmer has lost, not only to a very large extent, his export market, but has been deprived of his home market because of the lowered purchasing power of the people of the Dominion. Hundreds of thousands of Canadians, unable to find work, have had no money to buy the necessities of life, and government effort to solve this problem, under the Bennett government, has been so weak, haphazard and ineffectual that it has absolutely failed to deal with the problem.

In condemning the Bennett government for its failure to grapple with the problems of the farmers and the working men in an intelligent way, Colin A. Campbell, Liberal candidate for Frontenac-Addington, has a constructive policy to offer. It is the Liberal policy, which recognizes that while relief measures are necessary, these are only temporary expedients, palliatives applied to keep the patient alive, but doing nothing to effect a cure of his condition. And even these temporary remedies have been badly mismanaged and mishandled by the Bennett government.

The only real cure, Mr. Campbell says, is to bring about better conditions for farmers and workers alike by an extension of Canadian trade. The trouble of the last four years has been largely due to a world-wide violation of economic laws, and Canada has been among the leaders in taking the wrong course. Mr. Campbell's policy, and that of the Liberal party, is to encourage the opening of new and wider markets for Canadian products. As this affects both the export market and the domestic market for the products of the farms of Frontenac-Addington, the electors are asked to consider the following statement of Mr. Campbell's policy, and that of the Liberal party:

"Trace the record of Canadian trade. When the total volume is large, unemployment is at a minimum. When trade shrinks, the volume of unemployment increases. This is just as clear and simple a statement as if we were to say, 'the number of employees in a great store must be less when business is less.'

"The world during the past few years has striven to solve the problem by restricting the volume of business. Liberal policies in Can-

Senator A. C. Hardy Endorses Campbell

Brockville, Ont., Sept. 20, 1934.

To the Electors of Frontenac-Addington:

I am delighted to give my fullest endorsation to the candidature of Colin Campbell as the Liberal standard-bearer in the riding of Frontenac - Addington. As a staunch Liberal, and one who has kept in close touch with the problems of the Dominion of Canada, he is eminently qualified to serve you as your representative in the House of Commons at Ottawa. At the present time, when Canada is suffering as a result of the inertia of the Bennett government in dealing with the serious problems of Canada during the last four years, it is essential, for your own welfare, that you elect Mr. Campbell as your representative. Canada today needs Liberal policies to hasten the return of prosperity and to stabilize business and industrial conditions, and by electing Mr. Campbell you will serve notice on the present government that it has lost the confidence of the people. I trust you will give him an overwhelming majority in next Monday's election.

Yours very sincerely,

to introduce policies which will serve to provide wider markets and better prices for farm products by reviving trade and industry, and thus building up the home market as well as the export market."

That is the policy on which Colin A. Campbell appeals to his fellow-citizens of Frontenac-Addington for their support in the election of September 24. If you are interested in your own welfare, in bringing about better times for the farmers of Canada, your vote and influence should go in favor of Colin A. Campbell.

In appealing for your support for his election as member of the House of Commons for Frontenac-Addington Colin A. Campbell, is making no extravagant promises

MARKETING BILL IS DICTATORIAL AND AUTOCRATIC

British Economists Attack Similar Measure Passed In Great Britain

One of the most autocratic and dictatorial pieces of legislation ever passed by a Canadian parliament is the Marketing Bill, against which the fruit growers of Eastern and Central Ontario are almost unanimous in their protests. It is interesting to note that in Great Britain an Agricultural Marketing Bill of a similar type, but not nearly so drastic in its provisions, was passed last year. In connection with this bill, the comments made in "The Economist" an authoritative British publication, can be taken as a guide to the farmers of Canada. It says:

"The attempt to raise differentially the prices of agricultural produce by creating separate artificial scarcities here, there and everywhere in the body economic can only impoverish still further some nine-tenths of the population of this country. Moreover, the quota method, as all economic experts have long since recognized, is disproportionately destructive of international (and for that matter of the most economical domestic) trade, and will therefore affect still further our depressed basic export industries, if only by raising the cost of living."

"Passing now to the second object of the Bill, namely, the control of the domestic production of agricultural commodities, the various schemes which have so far been contemplated, (e.g. bacon and milk) suffer from several serious defects. The attempt to fix producers' prices, leaving the secondary manufacturer and the consumer to stand the racket, is fundamentally unsound. It completely neglects the important consideration of the price system in ensuring continuous equilibrium between production and consumption, as well as between the demand for, and supply of, the various factors of production."

"It is, indeed, strange that a measure which would seek to impose on agriculture a degree of regulation to which no other industry in the country has been subjected should have met with little or no protest from the farmers themselves."

That is the comment of the world's outstanding economists on a Marketing Bill which is not nearly so drastic as that which has been imposed on the farmers of Canada by the Bennett government. Register your protest against this unfair legislation and make it effective by electing Colin A. Campbell in next Mon-

Public Opinion Is Swinging Rapidly in Favor of Liberal Candidate, Colin A. Campbell

As Monday next, September 24, voting day in the Frontenac-Addington by-election approaches, the swing of popular opinion in favor of Colin A. Campbell, Liberal candidate in this election, gains in momentum. Wherever he goes throughout the riding, he is being met with the warmest enthusiasm, and his meetings have been attended by interested crowds, anxious to listen with keen attention to his clear-cut presentations on the issues of the election, and to give him their assurance of support. Many who have formerly been listed as Conservatives have cast in their lot with Colin Campbell, because they see no hope of any relief from the conditions which are retarding recovery under the Conservative government, and are genuinely desirous of having a change.

There are, of course, definite reasons for the swing of public opinion in favor of Colin Campbell. One is a realization that the Bennett government has failed to bring about the betterment in conditions which it promised in 1930. The people of Frontenac-Addington cannot be fooled. They remember the Bennett promises, and they are comparing them with the Bennett performance. The farmers of Frontenac-Addington know what they have suffered during the four years of the Bennett regime, and they are determined to put an end to it just as quickly as they can. They are eager for the opportunity to serve notice on the Bennett government that its days are numbered, and that the people of this riding, at least, have no further confidence in it.

There is another great reason for the swing to Colin Campbell, and that is the growing personal popularity of the Liberal candidate. The electors are warming up to his clear-cut, intelligent and decisive pronouncements on the solution of their problems, and the policies he is advocating in his campaign. They realize that he is a true son of the farm, one who, in his boyhood days, did the chores, followed the plough, and shared in the difficulties and trials of farm life. They know that in him they have a sympathetic friend, who is keenly alive to the necessity of making agriculture more profitable to the farmers, and not to the packers and those associated with them. The farmers realize that in the policies advocated by Mr. Campbell there is a real hope for wider markets and better prices for their products.

And so one could go on, giving reasons why the tide of public opinion is running strongly in favor of Colin Campbell, the Liberal standard-bearer in next Monday's election. They are turning to him because he inspires confidence that he will do his very best to lighten their burdens and improve their condition. They are turning to him because they realize he has a policy that will work, that will be effective in righting the wrongs from which the electors of Frontenac-Addington are suffering.

Climb on the band-wagon of success. Vote and work for Colin Campbell, and make him the choice of the people of Frontenac-Addington as their next representative in the House of Commons.

To the Electors of Frontenac-Addington:

I have the honor of representing a constituency that is mainly rural.

I am a farmer and fruit-grower and am familiar with the problems of agriculture.

It is in the interest of the farmers of Frontenac-Addington to elect Mr. Colin Campbell on Sept. 24., because:

He is a capable, experienced young Canadian who understands the needs of the people of this Dominion.

He is opposed to the policies of the Bennett government which are economically unsound and detrimental to the progress and prosperity of Canada. Conditions, under which you have lived for the past four years, are your proof of this fact.

He is opposed to the natural products marketing act which is a direct attempt to socialize agriculture to take away your freedom of action in production and selling and to pool the products of your farms. The fruit-growers of Ontario are fighting this act as being opposed to their interest.

If you elect Colin Campbell it will hasten the return to responsible government in Canada, cut the barb-wire entanglements of trade, and give you an opportunity of exchanging what you have to sell for those things you require to buy on a more equal basis of value.

The eyes of Canada are on you, electors of Frontenac-Addington. It is your opportunity to get a new deal for yourselves and all Canadians to extend your trade within the Empire and to open markets in foreign countries.

Vote Campbell next Monday.

Yours faithfully,
W. A. FRASER,
M.P. for Northumberland.

He hopes, however, that those who can will make sure of attending the remaining meetings of his election campaign, so that he can meet them and greet them personally.

To those whom he cannot possibly visit, this newspaper is intended to introduce Colin Campbell to you, and help you to know him better, and to appreciate the qualifications of the man who is the Liberal standard-bearer in Frontenac-Addington. In it, you will find his views and policies on the subjects in which you are vitally interested. They are commended to your serious study, because Colin Campbell firmly believes that they will appeal to you, and are worthy of your support.

No matter what your previous political affiliation may have been, you are asked to read this newspaper thoroughly, and, having done so, to go to the polls and cast your ballot conscientiously in the way which you believe to be in the best interests of Frontenac-Addington and the Dominion of Canada as a whole. Colin Campbell believes the Liberal way is the best way, and in that belief appeals for your votes and influence on Monday next.

If high protection is a good thing for you, Mr. Farmer, why do you get a cent a quart for your milk, three cents a pound for your wool, 18 3-4 cents a pound for your butter, two cents a pound for your cow-hides, 35 cents each for your sheep-skins, 25 cents a bushel for your oats, one-tenth of a cent a pound for your plow points. The banks refuse to lend you money, and you pay an increased price for everything you buy. How can you be prosperous under these conditions.

The Bennett barbed wire entanglements of trade resulted in a two cent tax on your sugar and a four cent tax on your tea.

Campbell Supports Policy To Widen Farmers' Markets

The greatest problem which Canadians have had to face during the last four years has been that of lack of adequate markets for the products of Canada, which has been responsible, first, for depriving the farmer of an opportunity of disposing of his products at prices which would ensure him a fair standard of living, and secondly, for increasing the amount of unemployment in Canada. Thus the farmer has lost, not only to a very large extent, his export market, but has been deprived of his home market because of the lowered purchasing power of the people of the Dominion. Hundreds of thousands of Canadians, unable to find work, have had no money to buy the necessities of life, and government effort to solve this problem, under the Bennett government, has been so weak, haphazard and ineffectual that it has absolutely failed to deal with the problem.

In condemning the Bennett government for its failure to grapple with the problems of the farmers and the working men in an intelligent way, Colin A. Campbell, Liberal candidate for Frontenac-Addington, has a constructive policy to offer. It is the Liberal policy, which recognizes that while relief measures are necessary, these are only temporary expedients, palliatives applied to keep the patient alive, but doing nothing to effect a cure of his condition. And even these temporary remedies have been badly mismanaged and mishandled by the Bennett government.

The only real cure, Mr. Campbell says, is to bring about better conditions for farmers and workers alike by an extension of Canadian trade. The trouble of the last four years has been largely due to a world-wide violation of economic laws, and Canada has been among the leaders in taking the wrong course. Mr. Campbell's policy, and that of the Liberal party, is to encourage the opening of new and wider markets for Canadian products. As this affects both the export market and the domestic market for the products of the farms of Frontenac-Addington, the electors are asked to consider the following statement of Mr. Campbell's policy, and that of the Liberal party:

"Trace the record of Canadian trade. When the total volume is large, unemployment is at a minimum. When trade shrinks, the volume of unemployment increases. This is just as clear and simple a statement as if we were to say, 'the number of employees in a great store must be less when business is less.'

"The world during the past few years has striven to solve the problem by restricting the volume of business. Liberal policies in Canada, consistent with Liberal policies throughout the world, have protested against this attitude. The policy of restriction can now be tested by its fruits, by the condition in which the farmers of Canada find themselves today. Only by the Liberal approach to the problem can this situation be improved.

"Not only does the restriction of imports lead to a reduction of exports, but the reduction of imports tends to increase the load of taxation, and this, in turn, increases the burdens of the farmers and adds to the cost of their implements of production. Every farmer knows that this has been true under the Bennett government. We have watched, since that fatal month of June, 1930, when Bennett came into office, the application of a policy which cannot be defined in better words than to state that it constitutes 'plain insanity.' Since 1930, the farmers have suffered loss of their markets, reduction of the returns for their products, because trade has been less and less under Bennett policies. It is indeed time for a change.

"The Liberal party, which I represent in this election, is pledged to introduce policies which will serve to provide wider markets and better prices for farm products by reviving trade and industry, and thus building up the home market as well as the export market."

That is the policy on which Colin A. Campbell appeals to his fellow-citizens of Frontenac-Addington for their support in the election of September 24. If you are interested in your own welfare, in bringing about better times for the farmers of Canada, your vote and influence should go in favor of Colin A. Campbell.

Senator A. C. Hardy Endorses Campbell

Brockville, Ont.,
Sept. 20, 1934.

To the Electors of Frontenac-Addington:

I am delighted to give my fullest endorsation to the candidature of Colin Campbell as the Liberal standard-bearer in the riding of Frontenac - Addington. As a staunch Liberal, and one who has kept in close touch with the problems of the Dominion of Canada, he is eminently qualified to serve you as your representative in the House of Commons at Ottawa. At the present time, when Canada is suffering as a result of the inertia of the Bennett government in dealing with the serious problems of Canada during the last four years, it is essential, for your own welfare, that you elect Mr. Campbell as your representative. Canada today needs Liberal policies to hasten the return of prosperity and to stabilize business and industrial conditions, and by electing Mr. Campbell you will serve notice on the present government that it has lost the confidence of the people. I trust you will give him an overwhelming majority in next Monday's election.

Yours very sincerely,
A. C. HARDY.

No Extravagant Promises Made By C. Campbell

In appealing for your support for his election as member of the House of Commons for Frontenac-Addington Colin A. Campbell, is making no extravagant promises. He is appealing for your support on a common-sense basis, realizing that one of the strongest points in the condemnation of Premier Bennett is that, in the 1930 election, he made too many promises that he could not fulfil.

In the Election Review, however, Mr. Campbell places before the people of this Riding the Liberal platform and policies, and the reasons why he believes these to provide the solution of most of Canada's difficulties of the present day. If, after studying Mr. Campbell's record and the Liberal statements of policy, as contained in this newspaper, you believe that they merit your support, go out and vote to elect him as your member of parliament on September 24.

Only the votes which are placed in the ballot box are counted, so be sure to cast your ballot on Monday next.

MARKETING BILL IS DICTATORIAL AND AUTOCRATIC

British Economists Attack Similar Measure Passed In Great Britain

One of the most autocratic and dictatorial pieces of legislation ever passed by a Canadian parliament is the Marketing Bill, against which the fruit growers of Eastern and Central Ontario are almost unanimous in their protests. It is interesting to note that in Great Britain an Agricultural Marketing Bill of a similar type, but not nearly so drastic in its provisions, was passed last year. In connection with this bill, the comments made in "The Economist" an authoritative British publication, can be taken as a guide to the farmers of Canada. It says:

"The attempt to raise differentially the prices of agricultural produce by creating separate artificial scarcities here, there and everywhere in the body economic can only impoverish still further some nine-tenths of the population of this country. Moreover, the quota method, as all economic experts have long since recognized, is disproportionately destructive of international (and for that matter of the most economical domestic) trade, and will therefore affect still further our depressed basic export industries, if only by raising the cost of living."

"Passing now to the second object of the Bill, namely, the control of the domestic production of agricultural commodities, the various schemes which have so far been contemplated, (e.g. bacon and milk) suffer from several serious defects. The attempt to fix producers' prices, leaving the secondary manufacturer and the consumer to stand the racket, is fundamentally unsound. It completely neglects the important consideration of the price system in ensuring continuous equilibrium between production and consumption, as well as between the demand for, and supply of, the various factors of production."

"It is, indeed, strange that a measure which would seek to impose on agriculture a degree of regulation to which no other industry in the country has been subjected should have met with little or no protest from the farmers themselves."

That is the comment of the world's outstanding economists on a Marketing Bill which is not nearly so drastic as that which has been imposed on the farmers of Canada by the Bennett government. Register your protest against this unfair legislation and make it effective by electing Colin A. Campbell in next Monday's election.

AN OPPORTUNITY WAITING

Canada today has a splendid opportunity to gain an entry into the great market of 120,000,000 people in the United States. A low tariff party is in power under President Roosevelt, and it is willing to enter into a reciprocity agreement with Canada.

BUT, and mark this well, President Roosevelt has declined to enter into negotiations with Canada for a reciprocity agreement until there has been a general election in this country. He does not want to negotiate with the present government, because he knows that it is a high tariff government, committed to policies which restrict trade.

There can be no reciprocity treaty with the United States until a new government is in power.

This newspaper is published by the Frontenac-Addington Liberal Association election campaign organization which is responsible for its contents.

Public Opinion Is Swinging Rapidly in Favor of Liberal Candidate, Colin A. Campbell

As Monday next, September 24, voting day in the Frontenac-Addington by-election approaches, the swing of popular opinion in favor of Colin A. Campbell, Liberal candidate in this election, gains in momentum. Wherever he goes throughout the riding, he is being met with the warmest enthusiasm, and his meetings have been attended by interested crowds, anxious to listen with keen attention to his clear-cut presentations on the issues of the election, and to give him their assurance of support. Many who have formerly been listed as Conservatives have cast in their lot with Colin Campbell, because they see no hope of any relief from the conditions which are retarding recovery under the Conservative government, and are genuinely desirous of having a change.

There are, of course, definite reasons for the swing of public opinion in favor of Colin Campbell. One is a realization that the Bennett government has failed to bring about the betterment in conditions which it promised in 1930. The people of Frontenac-Addington cannot be fooled. They remember the Bennett promises, and they are comparing them with the Bennett performance. The farmers of Frontenac-Addington know what they have suffered during the four years of the Bennett regime, and they are determined to put an end to it just as quickly as they can. They are eager for the opportunity to serve notice on the Bennett government that its days are numbered, and that the people of this riding, at least, have no further confidence in it.

There is another great reason for the swing to Colin Campbell, and that is the growing personal popularity of the Liberal candidate. The electors are warming up to his clear-cut, intelligent and decisive pronouncements on the solution of their problems, and the policies he is advocating in his campaign. They realize that he is a true son of the farm, one who, in his boyhood days, did the chores, followed the plough, and shared in the difficulties and trials of farm life. They know that in him they have a sympathetic friend, who is keenly alive to the necessity of making agriculture more profitable to the farmers, and not to the packers and those associated with them. The farmers realize that in the policies advocated by Mr. Campbell there is a real hope for wider markets and better prices for their products.

And so one could go on, giving reasons why the tide of public opinion is running strongly in favor of Colin Campbell, the Liberal standard-bearer in next Monday's election. They are turning to him because he inspires confidence that he will do his very best to lighten their burdens and improve their condition. They are turning to him because they realize he has a policy that will work, that will be effective in righting the wrongs from which the electors of Frontenac-Addington are suffering.

Climb on the band-wagon of success. Vote and work for Colin Campbell, and make him the choice of the people of Frontenac-Addington as their next representative in the House of Commons.

A Death-Bed Repentance

chased by the industry which employed $3, and $4, a week labor.

Today, in September, 1934, Hon. Harry Stevens is shedding crocodile tears about the terrible actions of combines in Canada, combines which arose as the result of the policies of the Bennett government of which he is a member. Yet, rising in the House of Commons in 1923, to oppose the legislation of the Liberal government to control combines, this same Harry H. Stevens said:

"Now, Mr. Speaker, I desire to sum up very briefly what I have said, not to weary the House with further details. I oppose the bill. First, because a combine is usually prompted by efforts for efficiency and economy and generally results in better service, the stabilizing of prices and the uniformity of supply."

In 1923, Hon. Harry H. Stevens stood up in the House of Commons as the champion and friend of the combines. Today, in September, 1934, he swallows what he said then, and, because a general election is in sight, poses as the friend of the people and the enemy of the combines which have been created by Stevens and Bennett policies. Where has his consistency gone?

His present attitude is only a red herring dragged across the trail. Has the Hon. Harry H. Stevens become a Socialist? Has he become so alarmed over the results of the policies of the government of which he is a member that he has been forced to turn on those who were formerly his friends, and of whom he was, in 1923, the champion? Is his conscience bothering him? He knows now that the policies of the Bennett government have been all wrong, and he should resign from his office and refrain from contradictig himself on the public platform.

Electors of Frontenac-Addington, do not be misled by the last-minute desperate efforts of the Hon. Harry H. Stevens to cover up the terrible results of four years of Bennett misrule. Serve notice on Premier Bennett and the Hon. Harry H. Stevens that the country wants a change by electing Colin A. Campbell to represent you in the House of Commons.

The Liberal Party's Position on Some of the Important Issues of the Day---

The policies of the Liberal Party of Canada in relation to some immediate oustanding problems were set forth by its leader, the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, in the House of Commons.

Control of Investments

The Liberal Party believes the financial mismanagement of industry is largely responsible for many conditions obtaining today.

To prevent exploitation of the public through the sale of watered stocks and worthless securities, it believes AN INVESTMENT CONTROL BOARD should be established, with supervision of issues of securities by companies incorporated under federal charters.

Development of Primary Industries

The Liberal Party, by its policies, will continue to further the development of agriculture, lumbering, mining and fisheries by effecting REDUCTIONS IN THE COSTS OF PRODUCTION of Canada's basic products and by obtaining WIDER MARKETS therefor, by encouraging export trade, and by state assistance in the marketing of natural products.

Unemployment of First Concern

The Liberal party believes unemployment is Canada's most urgent national problem. It would deal with the present emergency conditions through A REPRESENTATIVE NATIONAL COMMISSION, which would co-operate with the provinces and municipalities in the administration of unemployment relief and in an adequate endeavour to provide work for the unemployed.

As permanent measures the Liberal Party is pledged to introduce policies which will serve to provide employment by reviving industry and trade; and to introduce A NATIONAL SYSTEM OF UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE.

Liberation of Internal Trade

The Liberal party will seek to END ARTIFICIAL PRICE CONTROL and agreements in restraint of trade. Price fixing by agreements restrict and hamper trade internally. The internal trade of our country has become honeycombed and enmeshed by secret understandings and agreements.

Electoral Reform

The Liberal Party stands for the electoral laws which will ensure A TRUE PARLIAMENTARY REPRESENTATION of the Canadian people and such legislation as may help to REDUCE THE COST OF ELECTION CAMPAIGNS.

A Balanced Budget

The Liberal Party believes the aim of every government should be the balancing of its budget.

It would seek to effect that end by RETRENCHMENT OF PUBLIC EXPENDITURES, by REDUCTION OF PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ON THE PUBLIC DEBT by a REDUCTION IN TAXATION and by INCREASING REVENUES through the encouragement of trade.

It will seek to effect a REDUCTION OF THE COST OF GOVERNMENT in Canada by a careful inquiry into federal, provincial and municipal costs.

International Relations

The Liberal party will seek to further wherever possible those courses in international relations which make for PEACE and GOODWILL among nations, and promote friendly intercourse between them. It will seek to further the work of the League of Nations.

Control of Credit

The Liberal Party believes that credit is a public matter, not of interest to bankers only, but of direct concern to the average citizen. It stands for the immediate establishment of a properly constituted NATIONAL CENTRAL BANK to perform the functions of rediscount, and the control of currency issue, considered in terms of public need. A Central Bank is necessary to determine the supply of currency in relation to the domestic, social and industrial requirements of the Canadian people; and also to deal with problems of international commerce and exchange.

Re-Assertion of Personal Liability

The Liberal Party believes that under the excuse of the present crisis, the rights of the individual have been violated. Liberalism stands, as always, for the British principle of FREE SPEECH and FREE ASSOCIATION, and to this end will repeal section 98 of the Criminal Code, and end the present practice of arbitrary deportation.

Liberation of External Trade

The Liberal party believes that trade is the basis of industrial and commercial development, and that Canada needs trade.

It will promote TRADE WITH ALL NATIONS and negotiate trade agreements with any countries willing to trade with Canada on a reciprocal basis.

It will ABOLISH the extravagant INCREASES IN THE TARIFF made by the present administration, which have had the effect of strangling trade, exploiting consumers and robbing railways of business.

It will ABOLISH ALL UNWARRANTED EXTRA TAXES on imports, such as the exchange

BENNETT'S BROKEN PROMISES A DEADLY PARALLEL

BENNETT IN 1930

July 14, 1930. "I do not want place and power over broken promises."

June 18, 1930. "After I am Prime Minister on July 26, I will see that my promises are carried out, or the government will go out of power trying to do so."

July 11, 1930. "Mr. King promises conferences. I promise you action. He promises you consideration of the problem of unemployment. I promise to end unemployment.

July 10, 1930. "Conservative party is going to find work for all who are willing to work, or perish in the attempt. It is going to take such steps as will end this tragic condition of unemployment and bring prosperity to the country as a whole."

July 11, 1930. "I propose to have enacted such measures as will give Canadians fair competition and equal opportunities with the nations of the world. Then the bogey of unemployment will be destroyed."

June 13, 1930. "I will not permit this country with my voice or vote to ever become committed to the dole system."

June 9, 1930. "We pledge ourselves to foster and develop agriculture, and the live stock and dairy industries, now so sadly neglected."

June 9, 1930. "You say tariffs are only for the manufacturers. I will make them fight for you as well. I will use them to blast a way into the markets that have been closed to you."

June 13, 1930. "We will look over the top of the hill and beyond the horizon to make provision for the Canadian Agriculturist and secure for him markets."

June 17, 1930. "It is true we must have foreign markets, and as I said the other evening we will blast a way into these markets on a world-wide basis with any exportable surplus."

June 13, 1930. "Men and women of Canada, the policy of the Conservative party today is to establish stability of markets, the establishment of permanent channels of trade."

June 27, 1930. "I will enact such tariff measures to give Canadians an even chance or perish in the attempt. At the same time we will protect labor as well as consumers. There will be no exploitation."

June 26, 1930. "The United States trouble is over-production. Our trouble is under-production.

BENNETT IN 1934

Here are the actual conditions prevailing in Canada today. Compare them with the promises given in the parallel column, and you will see how Mr. Bennett has utterly failed to carry out his promises, and why he should resign as Prime Minister of Canada.

Unemployment: In 1930 there were 116,000 unemployed in Canada. Today there are over 500,000 unemployed in this country. Has he ended unemployment?

The Dole: Today there are over one million people in Canada receiving the dole in the form of direct relief. What of Bennett's pledge of June 13, 1930?

Canada's Trade: In 1929, Canada's exports were $1,388,000,000, and imports $1,265,000,000. In 1933, Canada's exports were $480,000,000 and imports were $406,000,000. Has Mr. Bennett been able to blast a way into the markets of the world?

Dairy Products: In 1930, butter brought the farmers as high as 40 cents a pound. Today it is bringing 18¾ to 19½ cents a pound. Is that building up the dairy industry?

Markets: Today, farmers are suffering because of lack of markets for their products. Live stock men and dairy farmers alike cannot secure profitable prices for their products because Mr. Bennett has strangled the channels of trade. Is this using tariffs to help farmers?

Production Costs: As a result of Bennett's high tariffs, as every farmer knows, the price of farm implements, particularly implements and machines used in dairying, have increased tremendously, thus benefitting the manufacturers at the expense of the farmers.

Killing Exports: Mr. Bennett cancelled the New Zealand trade treaty, which he claimed was killing the Canadian butter industry. Yet butter prices have dropped from 40 cents a pound to 18¾ cents a pound, while Canada's exports have dropped from $19,166,000 in 1930 to $4,480,000 in 1934. Mr. Bennett has killed Canada's profitable export trade with New Zealand.

Cheese Exports: Canada, in 1930, exported cheese to the value of $16,224,000. In 1934, cheese exports dropped to $7,710,000. Is this finding a market for Canadian agricultural products?

Over-production: In 1930, Mr. Bennett said Canada's trouble was under-production. In 1934, he signed a treaty with other wheat growing countries to curtail Canada's production of wheat. Mr. Bennett's policy is to do away with plenty. Mr. King's policy is to do away with poverty.

Restoration of Responsible Government

The Liberal Party believes that the present crisis has been made an excuse for the usurpation of the rights of parliament and the assumption of autocratic powers by the executive. Liberalism stands, as always, for the principle of A FREE PARLIAMENT, and for the supremacy of parliament. To this end it would repeal the legislation enacted by the present administration, which deprives parliament of its control over expenditures and taxation, and invests the executive with unwarranted arbitrary powers, as for example:

(1) legislation permitting the executive to enact measures by order-in-council for peace, order and good government, and

(2) legislation providing the executive with a "blank cheque" for expenditures of any kind.

Safeguarding of National Railways

The Liberal Party stands for the maintenance of the integrity of the Canadian National Railways as A PUBLICLY OWNED AND PUBLICLY CONTROLLED SERVICE.

Democratization of Industry

The Liberal Party believes that INDUSTRIAL RECONSTRUCTION is the problem of the future. It will seek in industrial relations as opportunity offers, to give to workers and consumers a larger share in the Government of industry.

It will end the making and altering of tariffs by executive action.

It will continue the Liberal policy of BRITISH PREFERENCE by a percentage reduction in existing tariffs rather than by a percentage increase against foreign countries in existing tariffs.

It will grant to British imports a real preference.

BENNETT IN 1934

Here are the actual conditions prevailing in Canada today. Compare them with the promises given in the parallel column, and you will see how Mr. Bennett has utterly failed to carry out his promises, and why he should resign as Prime Minister of Canada.

Unemployment: In 1930 there were 116,000 unemployed in Canada. Today there are over 500,000 unemployed in this country. Has he ended unemployment?

Mr. Bennett has killed Canada's profitable export trade with New Zealand.

Protecting Labor: In 1934, we find the Stevens commission revealing thousands of glaring instances of the exploitation of labor, of wage conditions and working conditions which Hon. H. H. Stevens has described as outrageous. Has the Bennett policy protected labor, as promised on June 27, 1930?

Above are the Bennett promises of 1930, compared with the Bennett performance of 1934. Was there ever so great a failure to live up to promises, solemnly given to the people of Canada, in an effort to seize the reins of government? The electors of Frontenac-Addington should demand that Mr. Bennett carry out, at least, his promise of June 18, 1930, — "I will see that my promises are carried out, or the government will go out of power."

Restoration of Responsible Government

The Liberal Party believes that the present crisis has been made an excuse for the usurpation of the rights of parliament and the assumption of autocratic powers by the executive. Liberalism stands, as always, for the principle of A FREE PARLIAMENT, and for the supremacy of parliament. To this end it would repeal the legislation enacted by the present administration, which deprives parliament of its control over expenditures and taxation, and invests the executive with unwarranted arbitrary powers, as for example:

(1) legislation permitting the executive to enact measures by order-in-council for peace, order and good government, and

(2) legislation providing the executive with a "blank cheque" for expenditures of any kind.

Safeguarding of National Railways

The Liberal Party stands for the maintenance of the integrity of the Canadian National Railways as A PUBLICLY OWNED AND PUBLICLY CONTROLLED SERVICE.

Democratization of Industry

The Liberal Party believes that INDUSTRIAL RECONSTRUCTION is the problem of the future. It will seek in industrial relations as opportunity offers, to give to workers and consumers a larger share in the Government of industry.

More Equitable Distribution of Wealth

The Liberal Party recognizes that the problem of distribution has become more important than that of production, and believes that personality is more sacred than property. It will devote itself to finding ways and means of effecting a fair and just distribution of wealth with increasing regard to HUMAN NEEDS, to the furtherance of SOCIAL JUSTICE, and to the promotion of THE COMMON GOOD.

To The Electors of FRONTENAC-ADDINGTON!

COLIN A. CAMPBELL

Liberal Candidate in the Federal By-Election for the Riding of Frontenac-Addington on Monday, September 24.

Colin A. Campbell Stands For New and Better Deal

You are tired of the Bennett Government's lack of constructive policy and action. You are tired of its failure to bring you relief from the trials, difficulties and hardships of the last

In the by-election of Monday, September 24, you are called upon to make a decision which will have a vital effect on your own future welfare, and that of the whole Dominion of Canada. For the last four years you have suffered from the complete failure of the Bennett government to live up to the promises made to you in 1930. You have seen your markets for farm products dwindle away and disappear. You have seen the prices for your farm products drop far below profitable levels. You have seen your home market ruined by unemployment and lack of purchasing power of hundreds of thousands of your fellow-Canadians. These have been the inevitable results of the misrule of the Bennett government, and it rests with you to decide whether you desire a return to better conditions.

You, the electors of Frontenac-Addington, know from your own experiences what the Bennett government has meant to you in misery, suffering and financial burdens. You know just how bad conditions have been. In the election of Monday next, you have an opportunity to take a decisive step towards righting these conditions.

The Liberal party, of which I am candidate, definitely pledges itself to policies which will serve to create wider markets for Canada's farm products, to re-establish the home market by reviving industry and trade and providing employment for Canada's workers, and further, to reduce the cost of production to the farmers of Canada by lowering the cost of their implements of production. With these policies I am heartily in accord, and it will be my aim, if I am elected as your representative in the House of Commons, to further them to the best of my ability.

In the election of Monday, September 24, the eyes of Canada will be on you the electors of Frontenac-Addington. By electing me, you will serve notice on the Bennett government that it no longer has the confidence of the people, and that a change to a new and better era is wanted.

In asking for your support, my only thought is that I can be of service to you, my fellow citizens of Frontenac-Addington. As a son of the soil, raised on an Ontario farm, I believe I understand your problems and difficulties and can advocate constructive policies for their solution. Your interests are my interests; your welfare is my welfare. I pledge myself to serve you whole-heartedly, striving always to bring nearer to realization those Liberal policies which I believe can alone better conditions for you.

If you are agreed that the time has come for a change, that you want improved

FRONTENAC-ADDINGTON.

COLIN A. CAMPBELL

Liberal Candidate in the Federal By-Election for the Riding of Frontenac-Addington on Monday, September 24.

Colin A. Campbell Stands For New and Better Deal

You are tired of the Bennett Government's lack of constructive policy and action. You are tired of its failure to bring you relief from the trials, difficulties and hardships of the last four years. Colin A. Campbell stands for the Liberal policies which will bring you better times, will widen Canada's export markets for your farm products, will re-create the home market for farm products by providing work for the unemployed. Your only hope for future prosperity lies in electing Colin Campbell, and thus serving notice on the Bennett government that it no longer has the confidence of the people of Canada.

In the by-election of Monday, September 24, you are called upon to make a decision which will have a vital effect on your own future welfare, and that of the whole Dominion of Canada. BEAT BENNETT AND BAD TIMES
ELECT CAMPBELL ON MONDAY

Is Well Qualified To Serve Frontenac-Addington

Business Experience And Farm Background Are Valuable Assets

Colin A. Campbell, Born and Raised on Farm, Has Played an Important Part in the Development of Canada's Natural Resources—Has Lived in Riding Since 1930.

A son of the soil, born and raised on an Ontario farm, with a broad education at Queen's University, Kingston, wide experience in the business world and in the development of Canada's natural resources, Colin A. Campbell is eminently qualified to represent a riding such as Frontenac-Addington in the House of Commons. His early life impressed on him the problems and difficulties of the farmers in a manner which only those raised on the farm can understand. Thus he is no stranger to the life which the farmers of this riding have to live, and is fully conversant with the many problems which they have to meet under the conditions which have been imposed on them by the policies of the Bennett government.

Colin A. Campbell was born on the farm, in Elgin County, in 1901, and spent his boyhood on a farm in that county. He knew what it meant to tramp the mud roads to school in Southwold Township, where he attended public school, and to Dutton High School. Leaving high school, he entered Queen's University, Kingston, where he was educated in science, and took up the profession of mining engineer, which he now practices, with his home and office at Northbrook.

After leaving Queen's University, Mr. Campbell spent several years of his life in Northern Ontario, taking his part in the development of the natural resources of the province. He is keenly interested in the lumbering industry, and has valuable knowledge of this branch of Canadian development. For several years he was associated, as an engineer, with the Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines and the McIntyre Porcupine Mines, two of the greatest mining properties on the North American continent. Since 1928 he has been manager and consulting engineer for several mining companies, including the Dunkin Gold Mines in the Patricia district and the Bey Mines at Northbrook. He was also manager of one of Ontario's great gold-producing mines, the Barry Hollinger. At the present time, he is consulting engineer for the Federated Mining Corporation and other mining companies. This experience in the practical operation of mines has given him an intensive knowledge of Canada's mining problems, and if elected, he would be one of the few members of parliament with first-hand knowledge of the development of Canada's natural mineral resources.

Mr. Campbell comes of good old Liberal stock. His father, A. C. Campbell, was active in municipal and political life in his native county of Elgin, and at some time or another during his life held all the important municipal positions in the county. He was for thirty years treasurer of the township of Southwold. He was an active Liberal all his life, and was identified with the Liberal executive for over thirty years, part of that time being president of the Liberal association.

His son, Colin A. Campbell, the Liberal standard-bearer for Frontenac-Addington, has been just as active as a Liberal worker. He was Liberal organizer in the rural section of West Elgin in the federal election of 1921. Since boyhood, he has been a close personal friend of the Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, on whose behalf he took an active part

Hon. Robert J. Manion once said that the Liberals hid behind the shrouds of dead men. But, speaking recently in Hamilton, Premier R. B. Bennett advised his audience to seek inspiration from the graveyards. But, if he wished his followers to be shrouded in gloom to find their inspiration, they did not need to go to the graveyards. All they need to do is look around them, in the towns and cities and on the farms of Canada, and see the hardships, the suffering, the misery and the degradation which have been

A Death-Bed Repentance?

Have the Hon. Harry H. Stevens and the Hon. R. B. Bennett suffered a death-bed repentance? That seems to be the only explanation for the rush to appoint a commission to inquire into the business and industrial exploitation which have sprung up under four years of Bennett and Stevens rule in Canada. If ever men were condemned out of their own mouths, the members of the Bennett government are being condemned out of the mouth of the Hon. Harry H. Stevens, Bennett's minister of trade and commerce.

Here is what the Hon. Harry H. Stevens has to say in August, 1934, after the application for four years of the policies enacted by Mr. Stevens and Mr. Bennett:—

"For beef, when you find a western producer of first class steers, high grade, well-finished steers, getting, as some of them did, as low as a cent and a half a pound on the ranch and two and a quar-

Mackenzie King Appeals To Electors To Demand Responsible Government And Force General Federal Election

Highlights of Speeches Delivered in Present Federal Election Campaigns Declare Bennett Government is Usurping the Rights of the People of Canada.

In his speeches in the present federal by-elections, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, is placing the issues fairly and squarely before the people of Canada. Here are some of the highlights of his speeches, delivered at Enterprise, in the riding of Frontenac-Addington, and at Markham, in North York, in support of the Liberal candidates. They form a scathing indictment of the Bennett government, and provide definite reasons why the Liberal candidate, Colin A. Campbell, should be elected in Frontenac-Addington.

"The great question is whether the people have the right of governing themselves, or for another year the government will carry out, not the will of the people, but of a few gentlemen who, after failing to fulfill their promises to you, still cling to office for their own interests."

"The Liberal party contributed fifteen years of golden prosperity to Canada under Laurier. In the last 15 years, there have been nine years of prosperity, during which I was Prime Minister. I ask you to consider the record since 1921. There was a depression then. In the succeeding nine years, as a result of Liberal policies, there was increased trade, reduction of debt, lowered taxes and bright prospects. Today, the same policies will produce the same results."

"At the present time, there are five by-elections in Ontario, and the vote will be fairly representative of the feelings of the people of Canada as a whole. No government can afford to ignore the will of the people as it will be expressed at the polls next Monday, no matter what it may be. If these five constituencies go against the government, Mr. Bennett will not have the right to remain at the head of the government of this country for one hour beyond that time."

"The trouble is that the government has an entirely wrong idea as to the basis on which trade can be brought about. Mr. Bennett thinks the way to get the home market is to build a wall around this country, so that the people will have to buy home products, but he forgets that the people have to get the money farmers. Wages and prices are lower, bad conditions of sweating have been revealed, the cattle men of the west have been suffering greviously, and the developments of the last four years have made it clear that the policies of the government have been of such a character as to lower wages and prices of farm products, and to produce sweatshop conditions."

"The marketing bill is an iniquitous measure. Under it, one clause says that the government may, as regards regulated products, have the right to stop all imports and exports. They say they will not do it, but there is the law, and Bennett and his cabinet, with no voice of the people behind them, have the power to stop all exports and imports, the power to limit production, to require you to secure licenses before you can go on with your business. They say they will never make use of it, but they said they would never use the unemployment emergency powers save to help the unemployed. Yet they used them to give a $60,000,000 guarantee to the Canadian Pacific Railway, they used many millions for purposes for which they never secured the consent of parliament. When it took to itself the right to sign agreements at the Empire conference, without the consent of parliament, this government took to itself powers it had no right to take."

"In the last two or three years, every by-election in Canada has gone against the government. The voice of the people, at every opportunity, has been expressed as being against the present adminis-

George W. Dawson Endorses Campbell

Speaking at Enterprise on Monday evening of this week, G. W. Dawson, member of parliament for Addington constituency from 1891 to 1896, expressed his warm support of Colin A. Campbell.

"I am glad," said Mr. Dawson, "to have an opportunity of saying a word regarding so splendid a candidate as Mr. Campbell. Mr. Campbell was the unanimous choice of the Liberal convention, and was demanded as the candidate by the whole gathering. If ever a man was nominated by the people of this riding, it was Mr. Campbell, and I feel sure that the electors will give him a large majority in next Monday's election."

WHY THE FARMER SUFFERS TODAY

Prices of Farm Products Drop 30%, While Costs of Production Higher

Mr. R. B. Bennett, in 1930, promised that he would improve the condition of agriculture or perish in the attempt. Let us see how he did it.

In 1930, when he came into power, the index number of the price of farm products was 80. It now stands at 57. In other words, you now receive 857 for farm products for which you received $80 in 1930. This is a decline of 23 points, or approximately 30 per cent.

The index of the price of manufactured products, in the same time, dropped from 85 to 72, a decline of only 13 points, or approximately 15 per cent.

For every dollar of farm produce you sold in 1930 you now receive only 70 cents. But your 70 cents will not buy nearly as much as the same sum would in 1930, because the decrease in the prices of manufactured products has been only one half of the decrease in price of farm products, while your taxes and fixed charges have gone up, and the ever-increasing burden of federal, provincial and municipal taxation is putting you in a worse and worse position, day after day, week after week, month after month.

What is the cause of all this? Simply that Mr. Bennett raised the tariff to the highest point in Canadian history. Tariffs restrict im-

J. L. HAYCOCK HEARTILY IN FAVOR OF COLIN CAMPBELL

Joseph L. Haycock, of Adolphustown, formerly head of the Patrons of Industry, and member of the legislative assembly for Frontenac County for four years, is a strong supporter of Colin A. Campbell, Liberal candidate in the federal by-election in Frontenac-Addington.

"I have been personally acquainted with every representative of Frontenac County for the last 65 years," said Mr. Haycock, "and of all the representatives we have ever had, I would choose Colin A. Campbell one hundred per cent ahead of all of them to represent the farmers of the county.

"It is a strange thing," said Mr. Haycock, "that the Conservatives have never, in the last 142 years, nominated a farmer in Frontenac County. Now, when they see the handwriting on the wall, they rush into the field with a candidate whom they call a farmer, but who is ninety per cent drover and ten per cent farmer. And they are only nominating him because there is but one session left, and they want to try him out to see if it is safe to nominate a farmer or not.

"I am supporting Mr. Campbell because he is the best man, because I believe in the policies he is supporting, and I hope the electors of Frontenac-Addington will give him a substantial majority next Monday."

Conservatives Are Shrouded in Gloom of the Depression

Hon. Robert J. Manion once said that the Liberals hid behind the shrouds of dead men. But, speaking recently in Hamilton, Premier R. B. Bennett advised his audience to seek inspiration from the graveyards. But, if he wished his followers to be shrouded in gloom to find their inspiration, they did not need to go to the graveyards. All they need to do is look around them, in the towns and cities and on the farms of Canada, and see the hardships, the suffering, the misery and the degredation which have been inflicted upon hundreds of thousands of Canadian farmers and working men by four years of the Bennett government's policies. If they will do that, then they will indeed be shrouded in a greater gloom than the country ever knew in the happier days of Liberal governments.

Banish the gloom from Canadian farms and homes by voting for Liberal policies and principles and for Colin A. Campbell.

Bennett's tariffs have increased the cost of your implements and your cost of living.

If Bennett's policy of protection will cure troubles, why not give us more of it? But the people of Canada know that his high tariffs have been the cause of our troubles.

Under Bennett policies, the producer of basic commodities gets pinched between high tariffs and high money rates, increasing the interest rates on your farm and your cost of living.

A Death-Bed Repentance?

Have the Hon. Harry H. Stevens and the Hon. R. B. Bennett suffered a death-bed repentance? That seems to be the only explanation for the rush to appoint a commission to inquire into the business and industrial exploitation which have sprung up under four years of Bennett and Stevens rule in Canada. If ever men were condemned out of their own mouths, the members of the Bennett government are being condemned out of the mouth of the Hon. Harry H. Stevens, Bennett's minister of trade and commerce.

Here is what the Hon. Harry H. Stevens has to say in August, 1934, after the application for four years of the policies enacted by Mr. Stevens and Mr. Bennett:—

"For beef, when you find a western producer of first class steers, high grade, well-finished steers, getting, as some of them did, as low as a cent and a half a pound on the ranch, and two and a quarter cents and so on in the Winnipeg market, the thing is outrageous."

And this outrageous condition is after four years of the government of which Mr. Stevens himself was a member.

Here is another Stevens' statement, showing what Mr. Stevens thinks regarding conditions in the textile industry:—

"At first I did not realize the magnitude of it, the extent of it, and I may illustrate it in this way. There are about 60,000 people, chiefly in Ontario and Quebec, engaged in what is known as the needle trade, and I think I am well within the mark in saying that out of the 60,000 I should judge 40,000 were living under wage conditions and labor conditions below anything that could be or should be tolerated in this country, and in a vast number of instances down to wages as low as $3.00 and $4.00 per week."

Remember, you voters of Frontenac-Addington, that this is the statement of the Hon. Harry H. Stevens after four years of the Bennett government. Mr. Stevens even goes further than that, for in August, 1934, he stated that he had found conditions in Canada which he described in the following words:

"I realized that such conditions might be common to cities of Central Europe, but in Canada, NO."

Further, Mr. Stevens sat in the House of Commons and voted for the imposition of a duty of four cents a pound on cotton goods used in the trade which employs these $3. and $4. a week workers. And he voted to double the duty on woollen goods which were being pur-

Mr. Bennett thinks the way to get the home market is to build a wall around this country, so that the people will have to buy home products, but he forgets that the people have to get the money to buy. He has been spending public money freely to try to help them buy, but it is impossible to spend it in sufficient volume, and that will never save the situation. They regard the home market as a place. I regard the home market as a purchasing power. If there is no trade it is not a market, only a market place. The only way to prosperity is to sell our products in other markets, and when the money flows in from other countries for these products, there will be a real home market, a purchasing power that will create a demand for the goods of the factories and the produce of the farms. Because the government has not realized that, we have had hard times."

"The result of the government's policies is that few are making profits while the masses of the people are suffering. The Stevens commission has shown that high tariffs do not mean high wages for the workers or high prices for the farmers. Wages and prices are lower, bad conditions of sweating have been revealed, the cattle men of the west have been suffering greviously, and the developments of the last four years have made it clear that the policies of the government have been of such a character as to lower wages and prices of farm products, and to produce sweatshop conditions."

"In the last two or three years, every by-election in Canada has gone against the government. The voice of the people, at every opportunity, has been expressed as being against the present administration."

"For these reasons, I say the government has no right to stay in power any longer, because it is taking the power out of the hands of the people, and putting it into the control of a small executive."

Campbell's Views On Conditions Now

Here is how Colin A. Campbell sums up the conditions which have prevailed under the Bennett government.

"Canada's trade has dropped from over $2,400,000,000 in 1930 to about $800,000,000 in 1933. Your products are harder to sell, your prices are lower, the duties you have to pay are higher and your implements of production cost you more. Mr. Bennett has lowered revenues by restriction of trade, and you are taxed more heavily. Restriction of trade has meant less business for the railways, less business for industry, less buying power for the products of the farmer, because of unemployment, and less demand for the farmer's products."

You farmers of Frontenac-Addington know from your own experience that every word of that is true. Vote for Colin A. Campbell and a new and better deal.

George W. Dawson Endorses Campbell

Speaking at Enterprise on Monday evening of this week, G. W. Dawson, member of parliament for Addington constituency from 1891 to 1896, expressed his warm support of Colin A. Campbell.

"I am glad," said Mr. Dawson, "to have an opportunity of saying a word regarding so splendid a candidate as Mr. Campbell. Mr. Campbell was the unanimous choice of the Liberal convention, and was demanded as the candidate by the whole gathering. Prices of Farm Products Drop 30%, While Costs of Production Higher

Mr. R. B. Bennett, in 1930, promised that he would improve the condition of agriculture or perish in the attempt. Let us see how he did it.

In 1930, when he came into power, the index number of the price of farm products was 80. It now stands at 57. In other words, you now receive $57 for farm products for which you received $80 in 1930. This is a decline of 23 points, or approximately 30 per cent.

For every dollar of farm produce you sold in 1930 you now receive only 70 cents. But your 70 cents will not buy nearly as much as the same sum would in 1930, because the decrease in the prices of manufactured products has been only one half of the decrease in price of farm products, while your taxes and fixed charges have gone up, and the ever-increasing burden of federal, provincial and municipal taxation is putting you in a worse and worse position, day after day, week after week, month after month.

What is the cause of all this? Simply that Mr. Bennett raised the tariff to the highest point in Canadian history. Tariffs restrict imports. Imports are payments which we receive for exports. When we restrict imports we refuse to accept payments for our exports. Thus trade is strangled.

Vote for Colin A. Campbell and the Liberal policy of opening up wider markets for Canadian products, and thus creating prosperity for the farmers who are the country's greatest exporters.

The Bennett government has given you a four cent tax on tea, a tax on sugar, and a six per cent. sales tax. These direct taxes were imposed because Bennett's tariffs killed trade.

A farmer at Kingston gets $1.35 for a horse-hide—yet pays $1.50 a pound for a belt-lace made from this hide. Thus the farmer is being bled under the Bennett government.

W. L. Mackenzie King Endorses Colin A. Campbell

To the Electors of Frontenac-Addington:

In the election of Monday next, you have a grave responsibility and a great opportunity. You will be speaking not only for yourselves, but on behalf of the people of Canada, with respect to the rights of citizens and the duties of governments. You will have the opportunity of declaring that the people are not the servants but the masters of any and every administration, and of telling the government at Ottawa that it is the right of the people at any and all times to say who shall govern them, who shall conduct their affairs. It is yours to make clear that Canada will not tolerate dictatorship, or any trend towards dictatorship, but that in our country the principle of responsible government must be preserved.

You are fortunate that, in the Liberal candidate, Colin A. Campbell, you have a man of high qualities, who is capable of rendering the greatest possible service, not only to you, but to the Dominion. He has the ability and the qualifications to represent you worthily in the House of Commons, and his interests, as are yours, are tied up with Canada's present and future.

I appeal to you to elect him, and thereby, to take the only means which at the moment you have, to tell to the present administration that it is not a sixth session of the present parliament and another year of the Bennett government which the citizens of Canada desire, but an immediate general election in which the great issues of the present day may be fully and freely discussed, and a government returned to power which will possess the confidence of the people.

in the federal elections of 1926 and 1930. Coming to Addington, he continued his activities on behalf of the Liberal party, and in the provincial general election he was chosen as the Liberal candidate, polling a record Liberal vote of 6,198. This splendid showing was the result of his earnestness in setting forth policies for the benefit of the people of his riding, and when the federal general election was called, he was chosen once again to carry the Liberal banner. His supporters in the riding of Frontenac-Addington are satisfied that he will be a worthy representative of their interests in the House of Commons, and they are determined to put forth every effort to elect him on Monday next.

Mr. Campbell has found time to take a keen interest in various fraternal and engineering associations. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge at Arden, and of the Royal Arch Masons of West Lorne, Ontario. He was for three years secretary of the Mine Managers' Association of the District of Patricia, and is a member of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, and the Association of Professional Engineers.

In 1923, Mr. Campbell was married to Miss Vera M. Smith of Dutton, Ontario, and they now have four children. Their home is at Northbrook, Ontario, where they have resided since coming to this constituency in Aug. 1930. During the last four years, Mr. Campbell has taken a leading part in many of the activities of his community. He has been particularly active in organizing rural sports. At school and college, he was an active athlete, playing hockey, rugby and baseball. On coming to Northbrook, his interest in sports made itself felt for the benefit of the community, and he organized and was president of the North Frontenac-Addington Softball league, which position he has held for the last three years, as well as being an active player on the Northbrook team.

This, then, is the man who is seeking your support as Liberal candidate in the federal by-election in Frontenac-Addington. That he is well qualified to give splendid service to the electors of this riding is amply borne out by his wide experience in an important industry and his boyhood life on an Ontario farm. As a Liberal, anxious to serve you and to bring back better times to the farmers of this constituency, Colin A. Campbell appeals to you for your support, your influence and your votes in the election on Monday, September 24.

W. A. Fraser, M.P. Northumberland Advises Electors to Vote Campbell

To the Electors of Frontenac-Addington:

I am a farmer and fruit-grower and am familiar with the problems of agriculture.

CANADIAN AND UNITED STATES PRICES COMPARED

Bennett Blocks Way To Opening up of Profitable Markets

You are being told that the farmers of Canada, as a result of the Imperial trade agreements, are receiving higher prices for their hogs and other products than the farmers of the United States. This contention today is absolutely false. Here are some figures to prove it, the quotations being those from official Canadian and United States sources:

	Canada	U. S.
Hogs .. Choice	$8.75 to $8.90	$8.95 to $9.85
Steers	$4.25 to $4.75	$6.75 to $9.75
Top Yearlings	$9.50 to 10.60	$5.70
Lambs .	$6.00 to $6.25	$6.75 to $7.00
Butter ..	18¾ to 19½	23 to 26½

Wheat futures in the United States average 19 cents a bushel higher than in Canada. Yet, because of the trade restrictions imposed by the Bennett government on Canadian trade with the United States, this market across the border, with much higher prices than in Canada, is closed to the farmers of this country.

Vote for Colin A. Campbell and the opening up of wider and more profitable markets for your farm products.

Campbell Sorry He Cannot Visit All Constituents

In so large a constituency as Frontenac-Addington, it is physically impossible for any candidate to make a personal call on every elector. Much as Colin A. Campbell would like to meet you all, to shake you by the hand and discuss your problems with you individually, it is not possible, in the time which is available, for him to do so. He hopes, however, that those who can will make sure of attending the remaining meetings of his election campaign, so that he can meet them and greet them personally.

To those whom he cannot possibly visit, this newspaper is intended to introduce Colin Campbell to you, and help you to know him better, and to appreciate the qualifications of the man who is the Liberal standard-bearer in Frontenac-Addington. In it, you will find his views and policies on the subjects in which you are vitally interested. They are commended to your serious study, because Colin Campbell firmly believes that they will appeal to you, and are worthy of your support.

No matter what your previous political affiliation may have been,

Campbell Supports Policy To Widen Farmers' Markets

The greatest problem which Canadians have had to face during the last four years has been that of lack of adequate markets for the products of Canada, which has been responsible, first, for depriving the farmer of an opportunity of disposing of his products at prices which would ensure him a fair standard of living, and secondly, for increasing the amount of unemployment in Canada. Thus the farmer has lost, not only to a very large extent, his export market, but has been deprived of his home market because of the lowered purchasing power of the people of the Dominion. Hundreds of thousands of Canadians, unable to find work, have had no money to buy the necessities of life, and government effort to solve this problem, under the Bennett government, has been so weak, haphazard and ineffectual that it has absolutely failed to deal with the problem.

In condemning the Bennett government for its failure to grapple with the problems of the farmers and the working men in an intelligent way, Colin A. Campbell, Liberal candidate for Frontenac-Addington, has a constructive policy to offer. It is the Liberal policy, which recognizes that while relief measures are necessary, these are only temporary expedients, palliatives applied to keep the patient alive, but doing nothing to effect a cure of his condition. And even these temporary remedies have been badly mismanaged and mishandled by the Bennett government.

The only real cure, Mr. Campbell says, is to bring about better conditions for farmers and workers alike by an extension of Canadian trade. The trouble of the last four years has been largely due to a world-wide violation of economic laws, and Canada has been among the leaders in taking the wrong course. Mr. Campbell's policy, and that of the Liberal party, is to encourage the opening of new and wider markets for Canadian products. As this affects both the export market and the domestic market for the products of the farms of Frontenac-Addington, the electors are asked to consider the following statement of Mr. Campbell's policy, and that of the Liberal party:

"Trace the record of Canadian trade. When the total volume is large, unemployment is at a minimum. When trade shrinks, the volume of unemployment increases. This is just as clear and simple a statement as if we were to say, 'the number of employees in a great store must be less when business is less.'

"The world during the past few years has striven to solve the problem by restricting the volume of business. Liberal policies in Canada to introduce policies which will serve to provide wider markets and better prices for farm products by reviving trade and industry, and thus building up the home market as well as the export market."

That is the policy on which Colin A. Campbell appeals to his fellow-citizens of Frontenac-Addington for their support in the election of September 24. If you are interested in your own welfare, in bringing about better times for the farmers of Canada, your vote and influence should go in favor of Colin A. Campbell.

Senator A. C. Hardy Endorses Campbell

Brockville, Ont., Sept. 20, 1934.

To the Electors of Frontenac-Addington:

I am delighted to give my fullest endorsation to the candidature of Colin Campbell as the Liberal standard-bearer in the riding of Frontenac - Addington. As a staunch Liberal, and one who has kept in close touch with the problems of the Dominion of Canada, he is eminently qualified to serve you as your representative in the House of Commons at Ottawa. At the present time, when Canada is suffering as a result of the inertia of the Bennett government in dealing with the serious problems of Canada during the last four years, it is essential, for your own welfare, that you elect Mr. Campbell as your representative. Canada today needs Liberal policies to hasten the return of prosperity and to stabilize business and industrial conditions, and by electing Mr. Campbell you will serve notice on the present government that it has lost the confidence of the people. I trust you will give him an overwhelming majority in next Monday's election.

MARKETING BILL IS DICTATORIAL AND AUTOCRATIC

British Economists Attack Similar Measure Passed In Great Britain

One of the most autocratic and dictatorial pieces of legislation ever passed by a Canadian parliament is the Marketing Bill, against which the fruit growers of Eastern and Central Ontario are almost unanimous in their protests. It is interesting to note that in Great Britain an Agricultural Marketing Bill of a similar type, but not nearly so drastic in its provisions, was passed last year. In connection with this bill, the comments made in "The Economist" an authoritative British publication, can be taken as a guide to the farmers of Canada. It says:

"The attempt to raise differentially the prices of agricultural produce by creating separate artificial scarcities here, there and everywhere in the body economic can only impoverish still further some nine-tenths of the population of this country. Moreover, the quota method, as all economic experts have long since recognized, is disproportionately destructive of international (and for that matter of the most economical domestic) trade, and will therefore affect still further our depressed basic export industries, if only by raising the cost of living."

"Passing now to the second object of the Bill, namely, the control of the domestic production of agricultural commodities, the various schemes which have so far been contemplated, (e.g. bacon and milk) suffer from several serious defects. The attempt to fix producers' prices, leaving the secondary manufacturer and the consumer to stand the racket, is fundamentally unsound. It completely neglects the important consideration of the price system in ensuring continuous equilibrium between production and consumption, as well as between the demand for, and supply of, the various factors of production."

"It is, indeed, strange that a measure which would seek to impose on agriculture a degree of regulation to which no other industry in the country has been subjected should have met with little or no protest from the farmers themselves."

That is the comment of the world's outstanding economists on a Marketing Bill which is not nearly so drastic as that which has been imposed on the farmers of Canada by the Bennett government. Public Opinion Is Swinging Rapidly in Favor of Liberal Candidate, Colin A. Campbell

As Monday next, September 24, voting day in the Frontenac-Addington by-election approaches, the swing of popular opinion in favor of Colin A. Campbell, Liberal candidate in this election, gains in momentum. Wherever he goes throughout the riding, he is being met with the warmest enthusiasm, and his meetings have been attended by interested crowds, anxious to listen with keen attention to his clear-cut presentations on the issues of the election, and to give him their assurance of support. Many who have formerly been listed as Conservatives have cast in their lot with Colin Campbell, because they see no hope of any relief from the conditions which are retarding recovery under the Conservative government, and are genuinely desirous of having a change.

There are, of course, definite reasons for the swing of public opinion in favor of Colin Campbell. One is a realization that the Bennett government has failed to bring about the betterment in conditions which it promised in 1930. The people of Frontenac-Addington cannot be fooled. They remember the Bennett promises, and they are comparing them with the Bennett performance. The farmers of Frontenac-Addington know what they have suffered during the four years of the Bennett regime, and they are determined to put an end to it just as quickly as they can. They are eager for the opportunity to serve notice on the Bennett government that its days are numbered, and that the people of this riding, at least, have no further confidence in it.

There is another great reason for the swing to Colin Campbell, and that is the growing personal popularity of the Liberal candidate. The electors are warming up to his clear-cut, intelligent and decisive pronouncements on the solution of their problems, and the policies he is advocating in his campaign. They realize that he is a true son of the farm, one who, in his boyhood days, did the chores, followed the plough, and shared in the difficulties and trials of farm life. They know that in him they have a sympathetic friend, who is keenly alive to the necessity of making agriculture more profitable to the farmers, and not to the packers and those associated with them. The farmers realize that in the policies advocated by Mr. Campbell there is a real hope for wider markets and better prices for their products.

And so one could go on, giving reasons why the tide of public opinion is running strongly in favor of Colin Campbell, the Liberal standard-bearer in next Monday's election. They are turning to him because he inspires confidence that he will do his very best to lighten their burdens and improve their condition. They are turning to him because they realize he has a policy that will work, that will be effective in righting the wrongs from which the electors of Frontenac-Addington are suffering.

Climb on the band-wagon of success. Vote and work for Colin Campbell, and make him the choice of the people of Frontenac-Addington as their next representative in the House of Commons.

To the Electors of Frontenac-Addington:

I have the honor of representing a constituency that is mainly rural.

I am a farmer and fruit-grower and am familiar with the problems of agriculture.

It is in the interest of the farmers of Frontenac-Addington to elect Mr. Colin Campbell on Sept. 24., because:

He is a capable, experienced young Canadian who understands the needs of the people of this Dominion.

He is opposed to the policies of the Bennett government which are economically unsound and detrimental to the progress and prosperity of Canada. Conditions, under which you have lived for the past four years, are your proof of this fact.

He is opposed to the natural products marketing act which is a direct attempt to socialize agriculture to take away your freedom of action in production and selling and to pool the products of your farms. The fruit-growers of Ontario are fighting this act as being opposed to their interest.

If you elect Colin Campbell it will hasten the return to responsible government in Canada, cut the barb-wire entanglements of trade, and give you an opportunity of exchanging what you have to sell for those things you require to buy on a more equal basis of value.

The eyes of Canada are on you, electors of Frontenac-Addington. It is your opportunity to get a new deal for yourselves and all Canadians to extend your trade within the Empire and to open markets in foreign countries.

Vote Campbell next Monday.

Yours faithfully,
W. A. FRASER,
M.P. for Northumberland.

Colin Campbell believes the Liberal way is the best way, and in that belief appeals for your votes and influence on Monday next.

If high protection is a good thing for you, Mr. Farmer, why do you get a cent a quart for your milk, three cents a pound for your wool, 18 3-4 cents a pound for your butter, two cents a pound for your cow-hides, 35 cents each for your sheep-skins, 25 cents a bushel for your oats, one-tenth of a cent a pound for your plow points. The banks refuse to lend you money, and you pay an increased price for everything you buy. How can you be prosperous under these conditions.

The Bennett barbed wire entanglements of trade resulted in a two cent tax on your sugar and a four cent tax on your tea.

The greatest problem which Canadians have had to face during the last four years has been that of lack of adequate markets for the products of Canada, which has been responsible, first, for depriving the farmer of an opportunity of disposing of his products at prices which would ensure him a fair standard of living, and secondly, for increasing the amount of unemployment in Canada. "The world during the past few years has striven to solve the problem by restricting the volume of business. Liberal policies in Canada, consistent with Liberal policies throughout the world, have protested against this attitude. The policy of restriction can now be tested by its fruits, by the condition in which the farmers of Canada find themselves today. Only by the Liberal approach to the problem can this situation be improved.

"Not only does the restriction of imports lead to a reduction of exports, but the reduction of imports tends to increase the load of taxation, and this, in turn, increases the burdens of the farmers and adds to the cost of their implements of production. Every farmer knows that this has been true under the Bennett government. We have watched, since that fatal month of June, 1930, when Bennett came into office, the application of a policy which cannot be defined in better words than to state that it constitutes 'plain insanity.' Since 1930, the farmers have suffered loss of their markets, reduction of the returns for their products, because trade has been less and less under Bennett policies. It is indeed time for a change.

"The Liberal party, which I represent in this election, is pledged to introduce policies which will serve to provide wider markets and better prices for farm products by reviving trade and industry, and thus building up the home market as well as the export market."

That is the policy on which Colin A. Campbell appeals to his fellow-citizens of Frontenac-Addington for their support in the election of September 24. No Extravagant Promises Made By C. Campbell

In appealing for your support for his election as member of the House of Commons for Frontenac-Addington Colin A. Campbell, is making no extravagant promises. He is appealing for your support on a common-sense basis, realizing that one of the strongest points in the condemnation of Premier Bennett is that, in the 1930 election, he made too many promises that he could not fulfil.

In the Election Review, however, Mr. Campbell places before the people of this Riding the Liberal platform and policies, and the reasons why he believes these to provide the solution of most of Canada's difficulties of the present day. If, after studying Mr. Campbell's record and the Liberal statements of policy, as contained in this newspaper, you believe that they merit your support, go out and vote to elect him as your member of parliament on September 24.

Only the votes which are placed in the ballot box are counted, so be sure to cast your ballot on Monday next.

AN OPPORTUNITY WAITING

Canada today has a splendid opportunity to gain an entry into the great market of 120,000,000 people in the United States. A low tariff party is in power under President Roosevelt, and it is willing to enter into a reciprocity agreement with Canada.

BUT, and mark this well, President Roosevelt has declined to enter into negotiations with Canada for a reciprocity agreement until there has been a general election in this country. He does not want to negotiate with the present government, because he knows that it is a high tariff government, committed to policies which restrict trade.

There can be no reciprocity treaty with the United States until a new government is in power.

The farmers realize that in the policies advocated by Mr. Campbell there is a real hope for wider markets and better prices for their products.

And so one could go on, giving reasons why the tide of public opinion is running strongly in favor of Colin Campbell, the Liberal standard-bearer in next Monday's election. They are turning to him because he inspires confidence that he will do his very best to lighten their burdens and improve their condition. They are turning to him because they realize he has a policy that will work, that will be effective in righting the wrongs from which the electors of Frontenac-Addington are suffering.

Climb on the band-wagon of success. Vote and work for Colin Campbell, and make him the choice of the people of Frontenac-Addington as their next representative in the House of Commons.

A Death-Bed Repentance

chased by the industry which employed $3. and $4. a week labor.

Today, in September, 1934, Hon. Harry Stevens is shedding crocodile tears about the terrible actions of combines in Canada, combines which arose as the result of the policies of the Bennett government of which he is a member. Yet, rising in the House of Commons in 1923, to oppose the legislation of the Liberal government to control combines, this same Harry H. Stevens said:

"Now, Mr. Speaker, I desire to sum up very briefly what I have said, not to weary the House with further details. I oppose the bill. First, because a combine is usually prompted by efforts for efficiency and economy and generally results in better service, the stabilizing of prices and the uniformity of supply."

In 1923, Hon. Harry H. Stevens stood up in the House of Commons as the champion and friend of the combines. Today, in September, 1934, he swallows what he said then, and, because a general election is in sight, poses as the friend of the people and the enemy of the combines which have been created by Stevens and Bennett policies. Where has his consistency gone?

His present attitude is only a red herring dragged across the trail. Has the Hon. Harry H. Stevens become a Socialist? Has he become so alarmed over the results of the policies of the government of which he is a member that he has been forced to turn on those who were formerly his friends, and of whom he was, in 1923, the champion? Is his conscience bothering him? He knows now that the policies of the Bennett government have been all wrong, and he should resign from his office and refrain from contradictig himself on the public platform.

Electors of Frontenac-Addington, do not be misled by the last-minute desperate efforts of the Hon. Harry H. Stevens to cover up the terrible results of four years of Bennett misrule. Serve notice on Premier Bennett and the Hon. Harry H. Stevens that the country wants a change by electing Colin A. Campbell to represent you in the House of Commons.

The Liberal Party's Position on Some of the Important Issues of the Day---

The policies of the Liberal Party of Canada in relation to some immediate oustanding problems were set forth by its leader, the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, in the House of Commons.

Control of Credit

The Liberal Party believes that credit is a public matter, not of interest to bankers only, but of direct concern to the average citizen. It stands for the immediate establishment of a properly constituted NATIONAL CENTRAL BANK to perform the functions of rediscount, and the control of currency issue, considered in terms of public need. A Central Bank is necessary to determine the supply of currency in relation to the domestic, social and industrial requirements of the Canadian people; and also to deal with problems of international commerce and exchange.

Re-Assertion of Personal Liability

The Liberal Party believes that under the excuse of the present crisis, the rights of the individual have been violated. Liberalism stands, as always, for the British principle of FREE SPEECH and FREE ASSOCIATION, and to this end will repeal section 98 of the Criminal Code, and end the present practice of arbitrary deportation.

Liberation of External Trade

The Liberal party believes that trade is the basis of industrial and commercial development, and that Canada needs trade.

It will promote TRADE WITH ALL NATIONS and negotiate trade agreements with any countries willing to trade with Canada on a reciprocal basis.

It will ABOLISH the extravagant INCREASES IN THE TARIFF made by the present administration, which have had the effect of strangling trade, exploiting consumers and robbing railways of business.

It will ABOLISH ALL UNWARRANTED EXTRA TAXES on imports such as the exchange

Control of Investments

The Liberal Party believes the financial mismanagement of industry is largely responsible for many conditions obtaining today.

To prevent exploitation of the public through the sale of watered stocks and worthless securities, it believes AN INVESTMENT CONTROL BOARD should be established, with supervision of issues of securities by companies incorporated under federal charters.

Development of Primary Industries

The Liberal Party, by its policies, will continue to further the development of agriculture, lumbering, mining and fisheries by effecting REDUCTIONS IN THE COSTS OF PRODUCTION of Canada's basic products and by obtaining WIDER MARKETS therefor, by encouraging export trade, and by state assistance in the marketing of natural products.

Unemployment of First Concern

The Liberal party believes unemployment is Canada's most urgent national problem. It would deal with the present emergency conditions through A REPRESENTATIVE NATIONAL COMMISSION, which would co-operate with the provinces and municipalities in the administration of unemployment relief and in an adequate endeavour to provide work for the unemployed.

As permanent measures the Liberal Party is pledged to introduce policies which will serve to provide employment by reviving industry and trade; and to introduce A NATIONAL SYSTEM OF UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE.

Liberation of Internal Trade

The Liberal party will seek to END ARTIFICIAL PRICE CONTROL and agreements in restraint of trade. Price fixing by agreements restrict and hamper trade internally. The internal trade of our country has become honeycombed and enmeshed by secret understandings and agreements.

Electoral Reform

The Liberal Party stands for the electoral laws which will ensure A TRUE PARLIAMENTARY REPRESENTATION of the Canadian people and such legislation as may help to REDUCE THE COST OF ELECTION CAMPAIGNS.

A Balanced Budget

The Liberal Party believes the aim of every government should be the balancing of its budget.

It would seek to effect that end by RETRENCHMENT OF PUBLIC EXPENDITURES, by REDUCTION OF PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ON THE PUBLIC DEBT by a REDUCTION IN TAXATION and by INCREASING REVENUES through the encouragement of trade.

It will seek to effect a REDUCTION OF THE COST OF GOVERNMENT in Canada by a careful inquiry into federal, provincial and municipal costs.

International Relations

The Liberal party will seek to further wherever possible those courses in international relations which make for PEACE and GOODWILL among nations, and promote friendly intercourse between them. It will seek to further the work of the League of Nations.

Restoration of Responsible Government

The Liberal Party believes that the present crisis has been made an excuse for the usurpation of the rights of parliament and the assumption of autocratic powers by the executive. Liberalism stands, as always, for the principle of A FREE PARLIAMENT, and for the supremacy of parliament. To this end it would repeal the legislation enacted by the present administration, which deprives parliament of its control over expenditures and taxation, and invests the executive with unwarranted arbitrary powers, as for example:

(1) legislation permitting the executive to enact measures by order-in-council for peace, order and good government, and

(2) legislation providing the executive with a "blank cheque" for expenditures of any kind.

Safeguarding of National Railways

The Liberal Party stands for the maintenance of the integrity of the Canadian National Railways as A PUBLICLY OWNED AND PUBLICLY CONTROLLED SERVICE.

Democratization of Industry

The Liberal Party believes that INDUSTRIAL RECONSTRUCTION is the problem of the future. It will seek in industrial relations as opportunity offers, to give to workers and consumers a larger share in the Government of industry.

BENNETT'S BROKEN PROMISES A DEADLY PARALLEL

BENNETT IN 1930

July 14, 1930. "I do not want place and power over broken promises."

June 18, 1930. "After I am Prime Minister on July 26, I will see that my promises are carried out, or the government will go out of power trying to do so."

July 11, 1930. "Mr. King promises conferences. I promise you action. He promises you consideration of the problem of unemployment. I promise to end unemployment.

July 10, 1930. "Conservative party is going to find work for all who are willing to work, or perish in the attempt. It is going to take such steps as will end this tragic condition of unemployment and bring prosperity to the country as a whole."

July 11, 1930. "I propose to have enacted such measures as will give Canadians fair competition and equal opportunities with the nations of the world. Then the bogey of unemployment will be destroyed."

BENNETT IN 1934

Here are the actual conditions prevailing in Canada today. Compare them with the promises given in the parallel column, and you will see how Mr. Bennett has utterly failed to carry out his promises, and why he should resign as Prime Minister of Canada.

Unemployment: In 1930 there were 116,000 unemployed in Canada. Today there are over 500,000 unemployed in this country. Has he ended unemployment?

The Dole: Today there are over one million people in Canada receiving the dole in the form of direct relief. What of Bennett's pledge of June 13, 1930?

Canada's Trade: In 1929, Canada's exports were $1,388,000,000, and imports $1,265,000,000. In 1933, Canada's exports were $480,000,000 and imports were $406,000,000. Has Mr. Bennett been able to blast a way into the markets of the world?

Dairy Products: In 1930, butter brought the farmers as high as 40 cents a pound. Today it is bringing 18¾ to 19½ cents a pound. Is that building up the dairy industry?

Markets: Today, farmers are suffering because of lack of markets for their products. Live stock men and dairy farmers alike cannot secure profitable prices for their products because Mr. Bennett has strangled the channels of trade. Is this using tariffs to help farmers?

Production Costs: As a result of Bennett's high tariffs, as every farmer knows, the price of farm implements, particularly implements and machines used in dairying, have increased tremendously, thus benefitting the manufacturers at the expense of the farmers.

Killing Exports: Mr. Bennett cancelled the New Zealand trade treaty, which he claimed was killing the Canadian butter industry. Yet butter prices have dropped from 40 cents a pound to 18¾ cents a pound, while Canada's exports have dropped from $19,166,000 in 1930 to $4,480,000 in 1934. Mr. Bennett has killed Canada's profitable export trade with New Zealand.

Cheese Exports: Canada, in 1930, exported cheese to the value of $16,224,000. In 1934, cheese exports dropped to $7,710,000. Is this finding a market for Canadian agricultural products?

Over-production: In 1930, Mr. Bennett said Canada's trouble was under-production. In 1934, he signed a treaty with other wheat growing countries to curtail Canada's production of wheat. Mr. Bennett's policy is to do away with plenty. Mr. King's policy is to do away

Protecting Labor: In 1934, we find the Stevens commission revealing thousands of glaring instances of the exploitation of labor, of wage conditions and working conditions which Hon. H. H. Stevens has described as outrageous. Has the Bennett policy protected labor, as promised on June 27, 1930?

Above are the Bennett promises of 1930, compared with the Bennett performance of 1934. Was there ever so great a failure to live up to promises, solemnly given to the people of Canada, in an effort to seize the reins of government? The electors of Frontenac-Addington should demand that Mr. Bennett carry out, at least, his promise of June 18, 1930, — "I will see that my promises are carried out, or the government will go out of power."

A Balanced Budget

The Liberal Party believes the aim of every government should be the balancing of its budget.

More Equitable Distribution of Wealth

The Liberal Party recognizes that the problem of distribution has become more important than that of production, and believes that personality is more sacred than property. It will devote itself to finding ways and means of effecting a fair and just distribution of wealth with increasing regard to HUMAN NEEDS, to the furtherance of SOCIAL JUSTICE, and to the promotion of THE COMMON GOOD.

VOTE AND ELECT COLIN A. CAMPBELL

To The Electors of FRONTENAC-ADDINGTON!

COLIN A. CAMPBELL

Liberal Candidate in the Federal By-Election for the Riding of Frontenac-Addington on Monday, September 24.

In the by-election of Monday, September 24, you are called upon to make a decision which will have a vital effect on your own future welfare, and that of the whole Dominion of Canada. For the last four years you have suffered from the complete failure of the Bennett government to live up to the promises made to you in 1930. You have seen your markets for farm products dwindle away and disappear. You have seen the prices for your farm products drop far below profitable levels. You have seen your home market ruined by unemployment and lack of purchasing power of hundreds of thousands of your fellow-Canadians. These have been the inevitable results of the misrule of the Bennett government, and it rests with you to decide whether you desire a return to better conditions.

You, the electors of Frontenac-Addington, know from your own experiences what the Bennett government has meant to you in misery, suffering and financial burdens. You know just how bad conditions have been. In the election of Monday next, you have an opportunity to take a decisive step towards righting these conditions.

The Liberal party, of which I am candidate, definitely pledges itself to policies which will serve to create wider markets for Canada's farm products, to re-establish the home market by reviving industry and trade and providing employment for Canada's workers, and further, to reduce the cost of production to the farmers of Canada by lowering the cost of their implements of production. With these policies I am heartily in accord, and it will be my aim, if I am elected as your representative in the House of Commons, to further them to the best of my ability.

In the election of Monday, September 24, the eyes of Canada will be on you the electors of Frontenac-Addington. By electing me, you will serve notice on the Bennett government that it no longer has the confidence of the people, and that a change to a new and better era is wanted.

In asking for your support, my only thought is that I can be of service to you, my fellow citizens of Frontenac-Addington. As a son of the soil, raised on an Ontario farm, I believe I understand your problems and difficulties and can advocate constructive policies for their solution. Your interests are my interests; your welfare is my welfare. I pledge myself to serve you whole-heartedly, striving always to bring nearer to realization those Liberal policies which I believe can alone better conditions for you.

COLIN A. CAMPBELL

Liberal Candidate in the Federal By-Election for the Riding of Frontenac-Addington on Monday, September 24.

Colin A. Campbell Stands For New and Better Deal

You are tired of the Bennett Government's lack of constructive policy and action. You are tired of its failure to bring you relief from the trials, difficulties and hardships of the last four years. Colin A. Campbell stands for the Liberal policies which will bring you better times, will widen Canada's export markets for your farm products, will re-create the home market for farm products by providing work for the unemployed. Your only hope for future prosperity lies in electing Colin Campbell, and thus serving notice on the Bennett government that it no longer has the confidence of the people of Canada.

THE KINGSTON WHIG - STANDARD Sept 18/54 D30356

No Confidence in the Government, Says King

Liberal Leader at Great Meeting at Enterprise, Delivers Attack on Present Administration.

Delivering an attack on the Bennett Government at Ottawa and declaring that the time has come when the people of the country have a right to say what they want, Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, leader of the Liberal party in Canada, addressed a rousing meeting at Enterprise on Monday night in the interests of Colin Campbell, Liberal candidate in Frontenac-Addington. The provincial elections and the by-elections, all within the space of a year, have shown the Government, said Mr. King, that the people have lost confidence in the administration.

The meeting was one of the largest held in the present campaign and one of the greatest ever held in the village of Enterprise. The hall was not large enough to accommodate all the people, it being estimated that between 2,500 and 3,000 people were in enterprise to hear the Liberal leader. Loud speakers were placed at vantage points so that hundreds unable to get into the hall, were able to hear the addresses from the street.

Mr. King was accorded a rousing reception as he approached the vicinity of the village hall and he was forced to make his entrance into the hall by means of a ladder and through a window, it being impossible for him to even get near it any other way.

Anson Aylesworth, brother of Sir Alan Aylesworth, former Minister of Justice, acted as chairman and before Mr. King's arrival speeches were delivered by various speakers, including Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Premier of Saskatchewan. Mr. King was introduced by W. A. Fraser, M.P., of Northumberland and as the former Prime Minister rose to speak, he was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses by little Miss Wagar. Mr. King was touched by the presentation of the flowers and implanted a kiss on the little maid amidst great applause.

In opening his address he stated that in his public life he had experienced hundreds of thrills, but none as impressive as at the present meeting with hundreds sitting or standing outside. It was not a personal tribute to him, he said, but was indicative that in these times of difficulties and stress that the people were looking for the hand to help them and the people have come to believe that the government belongs to them and must help them. The people of Canada are saying that they will settle this matter for themselves and they are determined to assert their rights; whether Canada is to have the government carried on according to the will of the people or according to the will of a few who cling to office in which they had failed in their promises to the people.

Golden Years

Mr. King recalled that the brother of the chairman, Sir Alan Aylesworth, had nominated him (Mr. King) for the leadership of the Liberal party. Sir Alan had been Minister of Justice in the Laurier Cabinet. The speaker referred to the fifteen years of golden prosperity under the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and contrasted it to the fifteen years of which he himself had been leader of the Liberal party, nine years of which he had been prime minister of this country. Under the rule of the Conservative party there was depression and hard times, while under the regime of the Liberal administration the policies of lowered taxes had brought about prosperity and if the Liberal party had the opportunity now would bring about those same conditions.

Mr. King also referred to the presence on the platform of Joseph L. Haycock, who had told the farmers that they owed to themselves as farmers to vote for the Liberal party. Mr. King pointed out that Mr. Haycock knew the farmers and the problems of the farmers perhaps as no other man knew them. He also referred to the presence of Miss E. L. Mowat, of the family of Sir Oliver Mowat, who gave such service to this Dominion of Canada. Mr. King also paid a glowing tribute to the late Dr. W. M. Spankie as a worthy public servant and a sincere member of the Parliament of Canada.

Exceptional Times

"These are exceptional times," said Hon. Mr. King, "and at no time, except during the war, has the world faced a more serious situation than that which exists at present." The speaker referred to the conditions existing all over Europe and in the United States and stated that the people in Canada were faced with the effects of those conditions and the effects of the policies in force in Canada. The present was a critical time, he said, and in these circumstances the people should have an opportunity to express their wishes with respect to government in Canada. There were two ways of doing this, one chance was in a general election and the other chance lay in the by-elections. The vote cast in the by-elections, Mr. King asserted, would be representative of the feeling in Canada and no government could ignore the voice of the people in those by-elections, no matter what the result. If five Conservatives were elected in the by-elections next Monday, Mr. King said, he would say to Mr. Bennett to stay in power by all means, because those by-elections if they went that way, would express confidence in the Government. But if Liberals were elected, Mr. Bennett hasn't the right to stay in power an hour.

Mr. King declared that the results of the by-elections already held and the result of the vote in the provincial elections in Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Quebec, Manitoba and Ontario indicated the feeling of the people of this country towards the present Conservative Government. He referred to the by-elections in Huron County and the County of Oxford where the voice of the people was against the policies of the Bennett Government. While the elctions in the provinces were on provincial issues, yet they were affected by trade, because the people of the provinces were strangled by restrictions. The Taschereau Government in Quebec was returned, as was the Bracken Government in Manitoba. In the Maritimes there had been a Tory Government, but it was swept out of office and again in British Columbia where Federal issues were discussed not a Tory was left. In Saskatchewan Premier Gardiner's government was swept into office and former Premier Anderson defeated. Federal issues were again to the fore. Then in Ontario, where it had been the cry that Ontario could never be wrested from Toryism, a Liberal government had gone into office with an overwhelming majority. Beneath it all was the feeling on the part of the people that the government was theirs and they were going to express their feelings. Tories were swept out of office all across the country. People have shown that they believe that as long as this country had high tariffs that it will not be prosperous.

Should Have Election

Canada, said Mr. King, is the only country in which there has not been a general election since 1930, with the exception of China, Venezula and Czecho-Slovakia and Italy, in which there is a dictatorship and the people have no voice. Great Britain has had two elections, Australia has had an election and so have South Africa and Newfoundland, all since the Bennett Government went into office. Even in Germany there has been an election and also in Austria. There has been no election in Russia. Mr. King asked if Canada was to be placed in the same category as Russia and China. By the results of what has taken place in Canada, Mr. Bennett and his Government have been served with notice to get out, then Mr. Bennet's duty is to listen to the voice of the people.

"You are not being asked at this time to have a government C.C.F. or Liberal but to show that you shall have a chance to express your desire as to what government you want for the next four or five years," he said.

Mr. King criticized Mr. Bennett's Government for its high tariffs and stated that no other Conservative leader had even thought of putting up a tariff to 200 per cent and 300 per cent, as this Government has done. There has been no limit to the ruin of trade of this country. Other Conservative leaders believed in protection, but they said they didn't believe in high protection.

The Bennett Government, he pointed out, had already held five sessions. In Canada there never was a government that went the full period of five years, with the exception of the government during which Sir John A. Macdonald passed away. They were badly beaten when they did go to the country.

"I tell Mr. Bennett if he stays in," declared Mr. King, "that he or his cabinet will never see power again. Though the constitution allows five years, the average is three years." Mr. King pointed out that Sir Wilfrid Laurier went to the country on reciprocity with the United States in three years and though reciprocity was turned down and the government defeated it was statesmanship that prompted Sir Wilfrid to go to the country.

Were Two Issues

In the last election there were two issues, Mr. King said. Mr. Bennett said he would relieve the conditions of the working men in the cities and towns of the country and the other appeal was to the farmers. He said that he would blast his way into the markets of the world. Mr. King stated that there were 116,000 unemployed when Mr. Bennett went into office and now there were over half a million and over a million on relief. The speaker referred to the markets and declared that Mr. Bennett had not found them but had introduced legislation which made it impossible for markets to be secured. He stated that Mr. Bennett has the opportunity that no other government had ever had. He had a free hand, even to violating the constitution and had asked for a blank cheque for unemployment relief. He has had that power for four or five years without the consent of Parliament. He has spent on unemployment $110,000,000 and in addition to that through loans and guarantees has brought the total to $270,000,000. The Government, he said, had the wrong idea of the basis on which trade operates.

Mr. Bennett and his party believed in the home market and in putting a wall around it and saying to the people that they must buy in their home markets.

Mr. King applied the principle of high tariff to the village of Enterprise and declared that if the people of Enterprise confined their buying and selling to the village alone that they could not bet along. If purchasing was confined to Canada alone, Hon. Mr. King said, Canadians could not begin to use all the products that Canada had. The present government can't seem to realize that and offer in excuse that other countries are doing it.

"Have they ever made any effort to change other countries by going to them, to the United States or to Europe to develop trade?" asked Mr. King. "Has this Government tried to democracies and declared that democracy could function only under parliamentary institutions. It took a great many years to get the freedom of today and that freedom has been enjoyed until four years ago. The will of the people must be heeded. Against that freedom there was a group of a few who wanted to hang on to power.

Mr. King criticized what he termed the so-called marketing bill and decried the clause which stated that the Government had the right to stop all imports and exports and not Parliament. He emphasized that it was the government in council, not the voice of Parliament. Power to limit production was also held by the government without the voice of Parliament.

Mr. King also roundly condemned the Banking Act, declaring that the Liberals advocated the appointment of a Central Bank controlled by the government, but the Bennett Government framed the Central Bank as more powerful than the government itself with no voice from the people. He stated that it was to be a privately owned institution and bonds are to be put on the market and directors elected but, it was significant,, that Canada is not to have a director. This Government, he said, could not be trusted to handle the affairs of this country. For these and other reasons he urged his audience and the people of Frontenac-Addington to leave no stone unturned, in their own interests as citizens of Canada, to elect a Liberal, and to the people of Canada in the other by-elections to elect Liberals so that by doing so they could say to the Bennett Government the time has gone for it to continue in office.

In closing his address, Mr. King referred to the Liberal candidate in Frontenac-Addington and declared that he was of the type needed in Parliament. He was young, knew the problems of the country and would be valuable because of his experience. By electing him to Parliament, Mr. King said, the people would not merely be voting for a representative of Frontenac-Addington, but for a representative of the best interests of Canada. The people were tired of this narrow nationalism and the Liberal partly believed in internationalism and was desirous of seeing peace and goodwill among the nations. No dictatorship was wanted here. The Liberal party was prepared to say to the world that it needed a liberal outlook. Not only in Canada would the five by-elections be watched, but by other countries as well, who desired to trade with Canada and who would see by the results of those by-elections whether that was to come about.

Premier Gardiner

Premier J. G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan during a brief address deplored that the results of by-elections would have a great effect on the general election. Other countries were adopting governments prepared to trade with other countries. The results here would be felt on the railways, in industry and in employment if a Liberal Government was returned to power with the policies which would mean trade among the nations of the world.

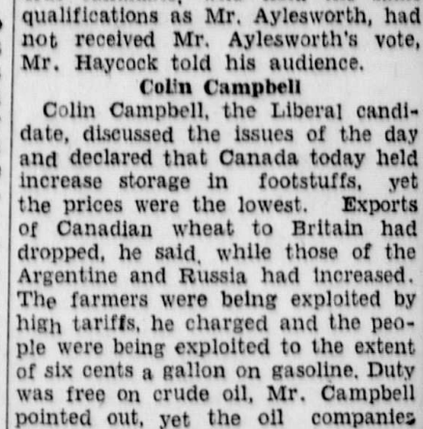
Hon. Nelson Parliament stressed the importance of the coming b-election and declared that not parties nor individuals were involved, but principles.

J. L. Haycock criticized the reasons set forth by W. R. Aylesworth as to why he should be elected and stated that he was not consistent. A Liberal candidate, who held the same qualifications as Mr. Aylesworth, had not received Mr. Aylesworth's vote, Mr. Haycock told his audience.

Colin Campbell

Colin Campbell, the Liberal candidate, discussed the issues of the day and declared that Canada today held increase storage in footstuffs, yet the prices were the lowest. Exports of Canadian wheat to Britain had dropped, he said, while those of the Argentine and Russia had increased. The farmers were being exploited by high tariffs, he charged and the people were being exploited to the extent of six cents a gallon on gasoline. Duty was free on crude oil, Mr. Campbell pointed out, yet the oil companies spent only $8,000,000 a year on salaries. He said that the Imperial Oil Company was controlled to the extent of 69% by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Large manufacturing concerns, he charged were exploiting the people and were controlled by foreign companies.

Referring to the statements made that he was not a native of the riding, Mr. Campbell stated that Sir George Perley was not even born in Canada at all. He repeated the challenge issued a short time ago to have the Conservative candidate, W. R. Aylesworth and Dr. A. E. Ross or any cabinet minister he may select meet him and W. A. Fraser, M.P., in debate providing both cancelled all their remaining meetings. So far the challenge had not been accepted. Mr. Campbell said. He also told of the higher prices being paid for products in the United States as compared with the prices being quoted for the same products in Canada.



He stated that the people would on September 24th have the opportunity of telling Premier Bennett that he had no mandate from the people and declared that Canada had not now a Conservative Government but a Bennett Government.

W. A. Fraser

W. A. Fraser, M.P., of Northumberland, who introduced Hon. Mr. King, declared that the Liberal party was not hiding behind any shroud, but was leading the vanguard against the shroud of depression. He declared Hon. H. H. Stevens to be "a political hypocrite" and was trying to hoodwink the people of Canada. The Tories were on rear-guard action and the Liberals were determined to see that the attention of the electorate will not be diverted from the affairs of the day.

The last speakers of the evening was George W. Dawson, ex-M.P., who recalled a few memoirs out of the past political history in an interesting manner.

The platform, was tastefully decorated in honor of the visit of Mr. King and during the early part of the evening Elgin Vannest and Freda Wagar, rendered enjoyable solos, accompanied by Mrs. William Jackson while the Plezall orchestra of Enterprise rendered a number of selections.

The meeting was one of the largest held in the present campaign and one of the greatest ever held in the village of Enterprise. The hall was not large enough to accommodate all the people, it being estimated that between 2,500 and 3,000 people were in enterprise to hear the Liberal leader. Loud speakers were placed at vantage points so that hundreds unable to get into the hall, were able to hear the addresses from the street.

Mr. King was accorded a rousing reception as he approached the vicinity of the village hall and he was forced to make his entrance into the hall by means of a ladder and through a window, it being impossible for him to even get near it any other way.

Anson Aylesworth, brother of Sir Alan Aylesworth, former Minister of ...ple were looking for the hand to help them and the people have come to believe that the government belongs to them and must help them. The people of Canada are saying that they will settle this matter for themselves and they are determined to assert their rights; whether Canada is to have the government carried on according to the will of the people or according to the will of a few who cling to office in which they had failed in their promises to the people.

Golden Years

Mr. King recalled that the brother of the chairman, Sir Alan Aylesworth, had nominated him (Mr. King) for the leadership of the Liberal party. Sir Alan had been Minister of Justice in the Laurier Cabinet. The speaker referred to the fifteen years of golden prosperity under the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and contrasted it to the fifteen years of which he himself had been leader of the Liberal party, nine years of which he had been prime minister of this country. Under the rule of the Conservative party there was depression and hard times, while under the regime of the Liberal administration the policies of lowered taxes h..d brought about prosperity and if the Liberal party had the opportunity now would bring about those same conditions.

Mr. King also referred to the presence on the platform of Joseph L. Haycock, who had told the farmers that they owed to themselves as farmers to vote for the Liberal party. Mr. King pointed out that Mr. Haycock knew the farmers and the problems of the farmers perhaps as no other man knew them. He also referred to the presence of Miss E. L. Mowat, of the family of Sir Oliver Mowat, who gave such service to this Dominion of Canada. Mr. King also paid a glowing tribute to the late Dr. W. M. Spankie as a worthy public servant and a sincere member of the Parliament of Canada.

Exceptional Times

"These are exceptional times," said Hon. Mr. King, "and at no time, except during the war, has the world faced a more serious situation than that which exists at present." The speaker referred to the conditions existing all over Europe and in the United States and stated that the people in Canada were faced with the effects of those conditions and the effects of the policies in force in Canada. The present was a critical time, he said, and in these circumstances the people should have an opportunity to express their wishes with respect to government in Canada. There were two ways of doing this, one chance was in a general election and the other chance lay in the by-elections. The vote cast in the by-elections, Mr. King asserted, would be representative of the feeling in Canada and no government could ignore the voice of the people in those by-elections, no matter what the result. If five Conservatives were elected in the by-elections next Monday, Mr. King said, he would say to Mr. Bennett to stay in power by all means, because those by-elections if they went that way, would express confidence in the Government. But if Liberals were elected, Mr. Bennett hasn't the right to stay in power an hour.

Mr. King declared that the results of the by-elections already held and the result of the vote in the provincial elections in Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Quebec, Manitoba and Ontario indicated the feeling of the people of this country towards the present Conservative Government. He referred to the by-elections in Huron County and the County of Oxford where the voice of the people was against the policies of the Ben... not be prosperous.

Mr. King criticized Mr. Bennett's Government for its high tariffs and stated that no other Conservative leader had even thought of putting up a tariff to 200 per cent and 300 per cent. as this Government has done. There has been no limit to the ruin of trade of this country. Other Conservative leaders believed in protection, but they said they didn't believe in high protection.

The Bennett Government, he pointed out, had already held five sessions. In Canada there never was a government that went the full period of five years, with the exception of the government during which Sir J..hn A. Macdonald passed away. They were badly beaten when they did go to the country.

Mr. King pointed out that Sir Wilfrid Laurier went to the country on reciprocity with the United States in three years and though reciprocity was turned down and the government defeated it was statesmanship that prompted Sir Wilfrid to go to the country.

In the last election there were two issues, Mr. King said. Mr. Bennett said he would relieve the conditions of the working men in the cities and towns of the country and the other appeal was to the farmers. He said that he would blast his way into the markets of the world. Mr. King stated that there were 116,000 unemployed when Mr. Bennett went into office and now there were over half a million and over a million on relief. He stated that Mr. Bennett has the opportunity that no other government had ever had. He had a free hand, even to violating the constitution and had asked for a blank cheque for unemployment relief. He has had that power for four or five years without the consent of Parliament. He has spent on unemployment $110,000,000 and in addition to that through loans and guarantees has brought the total to $270,000,000. The present government can't seem to realize that and offer in excuse that other countries are doing it.

"Have they ever made any effort to change other countries by going to them, to the United States or to Europe to develop trade?" asked Mr. King. "Has this Government tried to improve trade?" Mr. King stated that at a special session tariffs were set up against Britain by the Bennett Government at the Imperial Conference. It was Mr. Stanley Baldwin who said that he hoped that the Imperial conference would mean the lowering of the trade barriers. High tariffs did not mean high wages for workers nor high prices for farmers as brought out in the Stevens inquiry. These conditions were nearly all under the present Government and the big tobacco condition with which the people of this country were familiar, was prevalent since 1930, during which were exposed the sweating conditions and low wages.

Assailed Manion

Mr. King assailed Hon. R. J. Manion for his statement that even if all the by-elections went against the Government that it would make no difference. As a minister of the Crown Dr. Manion spoke for his Government, which meant that the Government didn't care what the voice of the people was. That raised an issue in itself, Mr. King declared, if the people are the servants of the government or the government the servants of the people.

The speaker referred to the battle going on between dictatorships and ...owned institution and bonds are to be put on the market and directors elected but, it was significant,, that Canada is not to have a director. This Government, he said, could not be trusted to handle the affairs of this country. No Confidence in the Government, Says King

Liberal Leader at Great Meeting at Enterprise, Delivers Attack on Present Administration.

Delivering an attack on the Bennett Government at Ottawa and declaring that the time has come when the people of the country have a right to say what they want, Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, leader of the Liberal party in Canada, addressed a rousing meeting at Enterprise on Monday night in the interests of Colin Campbell, Liberal candidate in Frontenac-Addington. The provincial elections and the by-elections, all within the space of a year, have shown the Government, said Mr. King, that the people have lost confidence in the administration.

The meeting was one of the largest held in the present campaign and one of the greatest ever held in the village of Enterprise. The hall was not large enough to accommodate all the people, it being estimated that between 2,500 and 3,000 people were in enterprise to hear the Liberal leader. Loud speakers were placed at vantage points so that hundreds unable to get into the hall, were able to hear the addresses from the street.

Mr. King was accorded a rousing reception as he approached the vicinity of the village hall and he was forced to make his entrance into the hall by means of a ladder and through a window, it being impossible for him to even get near it any other way.

Anson Aylesworth, brother of Sir Alan Aylesworth, former Minister of Justice, acted as chairman and before Mr. King's arrival speeches were delivered by various speakers, including Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Premier of Saskatchewan. Mr. King was introduced by W. A. Fraser, M.P., of Northumberland and as the former Prime Minister rose to speak, he was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses by little Miss Wagar. Mr. King was touched by the presentation of the flowers and implanted a kiss on the little maid amidst great applause.

In opening his address he stated that in his public life he had experienced hundreds of thrills, but none as impressive as at the present meeting with hundreds sitting or standing outside. It was not a personal tribute to him, he said, but was indicative that in these times of difficulties and stress that the people were looking for the hand to help them and the people have come to believe that the government belongs to them and must help them. The people of Canada are saying that they will settle this matter for themselves and they are determined to assert their rights; whether Canada is to have the government carried on according to the will of the people or according to the will of a few who cling to office in which they had failed in their promises to the people.

Golden Years

Mr. King recalled that the brother of the chairman, Sir Alan Aylesworth, had nominated him (Mr. King) for the leadership of the Liberal party. Sir Alan had been Minister of Justice in the Laurier Cabinet. The speaker referred to the fifteen years of golden prosperity under the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and contrasted it to the fifteen years of which he himself had been leader of the Liberal party, nine years of which he had been prime minister of this country. Mr. King pointed out that Mr. Haycock knew the farmers and the problems of the farmers perhaps as no other man knew them. He also referred to the presence of Miss E. L. Mr. King criticized Mr. Bennett's Government for its high tariffs and stated that no other Conservative leader had even thought of putting up a tariff to 200 per cent and 300 per cent, as this Government has done. He emphasized that it was the government in council, not the voice of Parliament. Power to limit production was also held by the government without the voice of Parliament.

Mr. King also roundly condemned the Banking Act, declaring that the Liberals advocated the appointment of a Central Bank controlled by the government, but the Bennett Government framed the Central Bank as more powerful than the government itself with no voice from the people. He stated that it was to be a privately owned institution and bonds are to be put on the market and directors elected but, it was significant., that Canada is not to have a director. This Government, he said, could not be trusted to handle the affairs of this country. For these and other reasons he urged his audience and the people of Frontenac-Addington to leave no stone unturned, in their own interests as citizens of Canada, to elect a Liberal, and to the people of Canada in the other by-elections to elect Liberals so that by doing so they could say to the Bennett Government that the time has gone for it to continue in office.

In closing his address, Mr. King referred to the Liberal candidate in Frontenac-Addington and declared that he was of the type needed in Parliament. He was young, knew the problems of the country and would be valuable because of his experience. By electing him to Parliament, Mr. King said, the people would not merely be voting for a representative of Frontenac-Addington, but for a representative of the best interests of Canada. The people were tired of this narrow nationalism and the Liberal partly believed in internationalism and was desirous of seeing peace and goodwill among the nations. No dictatorship was wanted here. The Liberal party was prepared to say to the world that it needed a liberal outlook. Not only in Canada would the five by-elections be watched, but by other countries as well, who desired to trade with Canada and who would see by the results of those by-elections whether that was to come about.

Premier Gardiner

Premier J. G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan during a brief address deplored that the results of by-elections would have a great effect on the general election. Other countries were adopting governments prepared to trade with other countries. The results here would be felt on the railways, in industry and in employment if a Liberal Government was returned to power with the policies which would mean trade among the nations of the world.

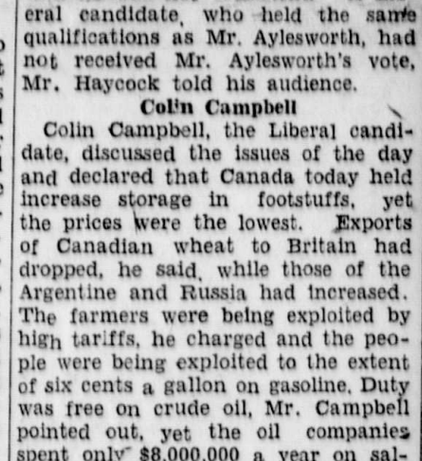
Hon. Nelson Parliament stressed the importance of the coming b-election and declared that not parties nor individuals were involved, but principles.

J. L. Haycock criticized the reasons set forth by W. R. Aylesworth as to why he should be elected and stated that he was not consistent. A Liberal candidate, who held the same qualifications as Mr. Aylesworth, had not received Mr. Aylesworth's vote, Mr. Haycock told his audience.

Colin Campbell

Colin Campbell, the Liberal candidate, discussed the issues of the day and declared that Canada today held increase storage in footstuffs, yet the prices were the lowest. Exports of Canadian wheat to Britain had dropped, he said, while those of the Argentine and Russia had increased. The farmers were being exploited by high tariffs, he charged and the people were being exploited to the extent of six cents a gallon on gasoline. Duty was free on crude oil, Mr. Campbell pointed out, yet the oil companies spent only $8,000,000 a year on salaries. He said that the Imperial Oil Company was controlled to the extent of 69% by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Large manufacturing concerns, he charged were exploiting the people and were controlled by foreign companies.

Referring to the statements made that he was not a native of the riding, Mr. Campbell stated that Sir George Perley was not even born in Canada at all. He repeated the challenge issued a short time ago to have the Conservative candidate, W. R. Aylesworth and Dr. A. E. Ross or any cabinet minister he may select meet him and W. A. Fraser, M.P., in debate providing both cancelled all their remaining meetings. So far the challenge had not been accepted. Mr. Campbell said. He also told of the higher prices being paid for products in the United States as compared with the prices being quoted for the same products in Canada.



He stated that the people would on September 24th have the opportunity of telling Premier Bennett that he had no mandate from the people and declared that Canada had not now a Conservative Government but a Bennett Government.

W. A. Fraser

W. A. Fraser, M.P., of Northumberland, who introduced Hon. Mr. King, declared that the Liberal party was not hiding behind any shroud, but was leading the vanguard against the shroud of depression. He declared Hon. H. H. Stevens to be "a political hypocrite" and was trying to hoodwink the people of Canada. The Tories were on rear-guard action and the Liberals were determined to see that the attention of the electorate will not be diverted from the affairs of the day.

The last speakers of the evening was George W. Dawson, ex-M.P., who recalled a few memoirs out of the past political history in an interesting manner.

shown the Government, said Mr. King, that the people have lost confidence in the administration.

The meeting was one of the largest held in the present campaign and one of the greatest ever held in the village of Enterprise. The hall was not large enough to accommodate all the people, it being estimated that between 2,500 and 3,000 people were in enterprise to hear the Liberal leader. Loud speakers were placed at vantage points so that hundreds unable to get into the hall, were able to hear the addresses from the street.

Mr. King was accorded a rousing reception as he approached the vicinity of the village hall and he was forced to make his entrance into the hall by means of a ladder and through a window, it being impossible for him to even get near it any other way.

Anson Aylesworth, brother of Sir Alan Aylesworth, former Minister of ple were looking for the hand to help them and the people have come to believe that the government belongs to them and must help them. The people of Canada are saying that they will settle this matter for themselves and they are determined to assert their rights; whether Canada is to have the government carried on according to the will of the people or according to the will of a few who cling to office in which they had failed in their promises to the people.

Golden Years

Mr. King recalled that the brother of the chairman, Sir Alan Aylesworth, had nominated him (Mr. King) for the leadership of the Liberal party. Sir Alan had been Minister of Justice in the Laurier Cabinet. The speaker referred to the fifteen years of golden prosperity under the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and contrasted it to the fifteen years of which he himself had been leader of the Liberal party, nine years of which he had been prime minister of this country. Under the rule of the Conservative party there was depression and hard times, while under the regime of the Liberal administration the policies of lowered taxes had brought about prosperity and if the Liberal party had the opportunity now would bring about those same conditions.

Mr. King also referred to the presence on the platform of Joseph L. Haycock, who had told the farmers that they owed to themselves as farmers to vote for the Liberal party. Mr. King pointed out that Mr. Haycock knew the farmers and the problems of the farmers perhaps as no other man knew them. He also referred to the presence of Miss E. L. Mowat, of the family of Sir Oliver Mowat, who gave such service to this Dominion of Canada. Mr. King also paid a glowing tribute to the late Dr. W. M. Spankie as a worthy public servant and a sincere member of the Parliament of Canada.

Exceptional Times

"These are exceptional times," said Hon. Mr. King, "and at no time, except during the war, has the world faced a more serious situation than that which exists at present." The speaker referred to the conditions existing all over Europe and in the United States and stated that the people in Canada were faced with the effects of those conditions and the effects of the policies in force in Canada. The present was a critical time, he said, and in these circumstances the people should have an opportunity to express their wishes with respect to government in Canada. There were two ways of doing this, one chance was in a general election and the other chance lay in the by-elections. The vote cast in the by-elections, Mr. King asserted, would be representative of the feeling in Canada and no government could ignore the voice of the people in those by-elections, no matter what the result. If five Conservatives were elected in the by-elections next Monday, Mr. King said, he would say to Mr. Bennett to stay in power by all means, because those by-elections if they went that way, would express confidence in the Government. But if Liberals were elected, Mr. Bennett hasn't the right to stay in power an hour.

Mr. King declared that the results of the by-elections already held and the result of the vote in the provincial elections in Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Quebec, Manitoba and Ontario indicated the feeling of the people of this country towards the present Conservative Government. He referred to the by-elections in Huron County and the County of Oxford where the voice of the people was against the policies of the Ben-country had high tariffs that it will not be prosperous.

Should Have Election

Canada, said Mr. King, is the only country in which there has not been a general election since 1930, with the exception of China, Venezula and Czecho-Slovakia and Italy, in which there is a dictatorship and the people have no voice. Great Britain has had two elections, Australia has had an election and so have South Africa and Newfoundland, all since the Bennett Government went into office. Even in Germany there has been an election and also in Austria. There has been no election in Russia. Mr. King asked if Canada was to be placed in the same category as Russia and China. By the results of what has taken place in Canada, Mr. Bennett and his Government have been served with notice to get out, then Mr. Bennet's duty is to listen to the voice of the people.

"You are not being asked at this time to have a government C.C.F. or Liberal but to show that you shall have a chance to express your desire as to what government you want for the next four or five years," he said.

Mr. King criticized Mr. Bennett's Government for its high tariffs and stated that no other Conservative leader had even thought of putting up a tariff to 200 per cent and 300 per cent. as this Government has done. There has been no limit to the ruin of trade of this country. Other Conservative leaders believed in protection, but they said they didn't believe in high protection.

The Bennett Government, he pointed out, had already held five sessions. In Canada there never was a government that went the full period of five years, with the exception of the government during which Sir John A. Macdonald passed away. They were badly beaten when they did go to the country.

"I tell Mr. Bennett if he stays in," declared Mr. King, "that he or his cabinet will never see power again. Though the constitution allows five years, the average is three years." Mr. King pointed out that Sir Wilfrid Laurier went to the country on reciprocity with the United States in three years and though reciprocity was turned down and the government defeated it was statesmanship that prompted Sir Wilfrid to go to the country.

Were Two Issues

In the last election there were two issues, Mr. King said. Mr. Bennett said he would relieve the conditions of the working men in the cities and towns of the country and the other appeal was to the farmers. He said that he would blast his way into the markets of the world. Mr. King stated that there were 116,000 unemployed when Mr. Bennett went into office and now there were over half a million and over a million on relief. The speaker referred to the markets and declared that Mr. Bennett had not found them but had introduced legislation which made it impossible for markets to be secured. He stated that Mr. Bennett has the opportunity that no other government had ever had. He had a free hand, even to violating the constitution and had asked for a blank cheque for unemployment relief. He has had that power for four or five years without the consent of Parliament. He has spent on unemployment $110,000,000 and in addition to that through loans and guarantees has brought the total to $270,000,000. The Government, he said, had the wrong idea of the basis on which trade operates.

Mr. Bennett and his party believed in the home market and in putting a wall around it and saying to the people that they must buy in their home markets.

Mr. King applied the principle of high tariff to the village of Enterprise and declared that if the people of Enterprise confined their buying and selling to the village alone that they could not bet along. If purchasing was confined to Canada alone, Hon. Mr. King said, Canadians could not begin to use all the products that Canada had. The present government can't seem to realize that and offer in excuse that other countries are doing it.

"Have they ever made any effort to change other countries by going to them, to the United States or to Europe to develop trade?" asked Mr. King. "Has this Government tried to improve trade?" Mr. King stated that at a special session tariffs were set up against Britain by the Bennett Government at the Imperial Conference. It was Mr. Stanley Baldwin who said that he hoped that the Imperial conference would mean the lowering of the trade barriers. High tariffs did not mean high wages for workers nor high prices for farmers as brought out in the Stevens inquiry. These conditions were nearly all under the present Government and the big tobacco condition with which the people of this country were familiar, was prevalent since 1930, during which were exposed the sweating conditions and low wages.

Assailed Manion

Mr. King assailed Hon. R. J. Manion for his statement that even if all the by-elections went against the Government that it would make no difference. As a minister of the Crown Dr. Manion spoke for his Government, which meant that the Government didn't care what the voice of the people was. That raised an issue in itself, Mr. King declared, if the people are the servants of the government or the government the servants of the people.

The speaker referred to the battle going on between dictatorships and owned institution and bonds are to be put on the market and directors elected but, it was significant,, that Canada is not to have a director. This Government, he said, could not be trusted to handle the affairs of this country. For these and other reasons he urged his audience and the people of Frontenac-Addington to leave no stone unturned, in their own interests as citizens of Canada, to elect a Liberal, and to the people of Canada in the other by-elections to elect Liberals so that by doing so they could say to the Bennett Government that the time has gone for it to continue in office.

No Confidence in the Government, Says King

Liberal Leader at Great Meeting at Enterprise, Delivers Attack on Present Administration.

Delivering an attack on the Bennett Government at Ottawa and declaring that the time has come when the people of the country have a right to say what they want, Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, leader of the Liberal party in Canada, addressed a rousing meeting at Enterprise on Monday night in the interests of Colin Campbell, Liberal candidate in Frontenac-Addington. The provincial elections and the by-elections, all within the space of a year, have shown the Government, said Mr. King, that the people have lost confidence in the administration.

The meeting was one of the largest held in the present campaign and one of the greatest ever held in the village of Enterprise. The hall was not large enough to accommodate all the people, it being estimated that between 2,500 and 3,000 people were in enterprise to hear the Liberal leader. Loud speakers were placed at vantage points so that hundreds unable to get into the hall, were able to hear the addresses from the street.

Mr. King was accorded a rousing reception as he approached the vicinity of the village hall and he was forced to make his entrance into the hall by means of a ladder and through a window, it being impossible for him to even get near it any other way.

Anson Aylesworth, brother of Sir Alan Aylesworth, former Minister of Justice, acted as chairman and before Mr. King's arrival speeches were delivered by various speakers, including Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Premier of Saskatchewan. Mr. King was introduced by W. A. Fraser, M.P., of Northumberland and as the former Prime Minister rose to speak, he was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses by little Miss Wagar. Mr. King was touched by the presentation of the flowers and implanted a kiss on the little maid amidst great applause.

In opening his address he stated that in his public life he had experienced hundreds of thrills, but none as impressive as at the present meeting with hundreds sitting or standing outside. It was not a personal tribute to him, he said, but was indicative that in these times of difficulties and stress that the people were looking for the hand to help them and the people have come to believe that the government belongs to them and must help them. The people of Canada are saying that they will settle this matter for themselves and they are determined to assert their rights; whether Canada is to have the government carried on according to the will of the people or according to the will of a few who cling to office in which they had failed in their promises to the people.

Golden Years

Mr. King recalled that the brother of the chairman, Sir Alan Aylesworth, had nominated him (Mr. King) for the leadership of the Liberal party. Sir Alan had been Minister of Justice in the Laurier Cabinet. The speaker referred to the fifteen years of golden prosperity under the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and contrasted it to the fifteen years of which he himself had been leader of the Liberal party, nine years of which he had been prime minister of this country. Under the rule of the Conservative party there was depression and hard times, while under the regime of the Liberal administration the policies of lowered taxes had brought about prosperity and if the Liberal party had the opportunity now would bring about those same conditions.

Mr. King also referred to the presence on the platform of Joseph L. Haycock, who had told the farmers that they owed to themselves as farmers to vote for the Liberal party. Mr. King pointed out that Mr. Haycock knew the farmers and the problems of the farmers perhaps as no other man knew them. He also referred to the presence of Miss E. L. Mowat, of the family of Sir Oliver Mowat, who gave such service to this Dominion of Canada. Mr. King also paid a glowing tribute to the late Dr. W. M. Spankie as a worthy public servant and a sincere member of the Parliament of Canada.

Exceptional Times

"These are exceptional times," said Hon. Mr. King, "and at no time, except during the war, has the world faced a more serious situation than that which exists at present." The speaker referred to the conditions existing all over Europe and in the United States and stated that the people in Canada were faced with the effects of those conditions and the effects of the policies in force in Canada. If five Conservatives were elected in the by-elections next Monday, Mr. King said, he would say to Mr. Bennett to stay in power by all means, because those by-elections if they went that way, would express confidence in the Government. But if Liberals were elected, Mr. Bennett hasn't the right to stay in power an hour.

Mr. King declared that the results of the by-elections already held and the result of the vote in the provincial elections in Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Quebec, Manitoba and Ontario indicated the feeling of the people of this country towards the present Conservative Government. He referred to the by-elections in Huron County and the County of Oxford where the voice of the people was against the policies of the Bennett Government. While the elctions in the provinces were on provincial issues, yet they were affected by trade, because the people of the provinces were strangled by restrictions. The Taschereau Government in Quebec was returned, as was the Bracken Government in Manitoba. In the Maritimes there had been a Tory Government, but it was swept out of office and again in British Columbia where Federal issues were discussed not a Tory was left. In Saskatchewan Premier Gardiner's government was swept into office and former Premier Anderson defeated. Federal issues were again to the fore. Then in Ontario, where it had been the cry that Ontario could never be wrested from Toryism, a Liberal government had gone into office with an overwhelming majority. Beneath it all was the feeling on the part of the people that the government was theirs and they were going to express their feelings. Tories were swept out of office all across the country. People have shown that they believe that as long as this country had high tariffs that it will not be prosperous.

Should Have Election

Canada, said Mr. King, is the only country in which there has not been a general election since 1930, with the exception of China, Venezula and Czecho-Slovakia and Italy, in which there is a dictatorship and the people have no voice. Mr. King stated that at a special session tariffs were set up against Britain by the Bennett Government at the Imperial Conference. It was Mr. Stanley Baldwin who said that he hoped that the Imdemocracies and declared that democracy could function only under parliamentary institutions. It took a great many years to get the freedom of today and that freedom has been enjoyed until four years ago. The will of the people must be heeded. Against that freedom there was a group of a few who wanted to hang on to power.

Mr. King criticized what he termed the so-called marketing bill and decried the clause which stated that the Government had the right to stop all imports and exports and not Parliament. He emphasized that it was the government in council, not the voice of Parliament. Power to limit production was also held by the government without the voice of Parliament.

Mr. King also roundly condemned the Banking Act, declaring that the Liberals advocated the appointment of a Central Bank controlled by the government, but the Bennett Government framed the Central Bank as more powerful than the government itself with no voice from the people. He stated that it was to be a privately owned institution and bonds are to be put on the market and directors elected but, it was significant,, that Canada is not to have a director. Fraser, M.P., in debate providing both cancelled all their remaining meetings. So far the challenge had not been accepted. Mr. Campbell said. He also told of the higher prices being paid for products in the United States as compared with the prices being quoted for the same products in Canada.

He stated that the people would on September 24th have the opportunity of telling Premier Bennett that he had no mandate from the people and declared that Canada had not now a Conservative Government but a Bennett Government.

Anson Aylesworth, brother of Sir Alan Aylesworth, former Minister of

to believe that the government belongs to them and must help them. The people of Canada are saying that they will settle this matter for themselves and they are determined to assert their rights; whether Canada is to have the government carried on according to the will of the people or according to the will of a few who cling to office in which they had failed in their promises to the people.

Golden Years

Mr. King recalled that the brother of the chairman, Sir Alan Aylesworth, had nominated him (Mr. King) for the leadership of the Liberal party. Sir Alan had been Minister of Justice in the Laurier Cabinet. The speaker referred to the fifteen years of golden prosperity under the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and contrasted it to the fifteen years of which he himself had been leader of the Liberal party, nine years of which he had been prime minister of this country. Under the rule of the Conservative party there was depression and hard times, while under the regime of the Liberal administration the policies of lowered taxes had brought about prosperity and if the Liberal party had the opportunity now would bring about those same conditions.

Mr. King also referred to the presence on the platform of Joseph L. Haycock, who had told the farmers that they owed to themselves as farmers to vote for the Liberal party. Mr. King pointed out that Mr. Haycock knew the farmers and the problems of the farmers perhaps as no other man knew them. He also referred to the presence of Miss E. L. Mowat, of the family of Sir Oliver Mowat, who gave such service to this Dominion of Canada. Mr. King also paid a glowing tribute to the late Dr. W. M. Spankie as a worthy public servant and a sincere member of the Parliament of Canada.

Exceptional Times

"These are exceptional times," said Hon. Mr. King, "and at no time, except during the war, has the world faced a more serious situation than that which exists at present." The speaker referred to the conditions existing all over Europe and in the United States and stated that the people in Canada were faced with the effects of those conditions and the effects of the policies in force in Canada. The present was a critical time, he said, and in these circumstances the people should have an opportunity to express their wishes with respect to government in Canada. There were two ways of doing this, one chance was in a general election and the other chance lay in the by-elections. The vote cast in the by-elections, Mr. King asserted, would be representative of the feeling in Canada and no government could ignore the voice of the people in those by-elections, no matter what the result. If five Conservatives were elected in the by-elections next Monday, Mr. King said, he would say to Mr. Bennett to stay in power by all means, because those by-elections if they went that way, would express confidence in the Government. But if Liberals were elected, Mr. Bennett hasn't the right to stay in power an hour.

Mr. King declared that the results of the by-elections already held and the result of the vote in the provincial elections in Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Quebec, Manitoba and Ontario indicated the feeling of the people of this country towards the present Conservative Government. He referred to the by-elections in Huron County and the County of Oxford where the voice of the people was against the policies of the Ben-

Canada, said Mr. King, is the only country in which there has not been a general election since 1930, with the exception of China, Venezula and Czecho-Slovakia and Italy, in which there is a dictatorship and the people have no voice. Great Britain has had two elections, Australia has had an election and so have South Africa and Newfoundland, all since the Bennett Government went into office. Even in Germany there has been an election and also in Austria. There has been no election in Russia. Mr. King asked if Canada was to be placed in the same category as Russia and China. By the results of what has taken place in Canada, Mr. Bennett and his Government have been served with notice to get out, then Mr. Bennet's duty is to listen to the voice of the people.

"You are not being asked at this time to have a government C.C.F. or Liberal but to show that you shall have a chance to express your desire as to what government you want for the next four or five years," he said.

Mr. King criticized Mr. Bennett's Government for its high tariffs and stated that no other Conservative leader had even thought of putting up a tariff to 200 per cent and 300 per cent. as this Government has done. There has been no limit to the ruin of trade of this country. Other Conservative leaders believed in protection, but they said they didn't believe in high protection.

The Bennett Government, he pointed out, had already held five sessions. In Canada there never was a government that went the full period of five years, with the exception of the government during which Sir John A. Macdonald passed away. They were badly beaten when they did go to the country.

"I tell Mr. Bennett if he stays in," declared Mr. King, "that he or his cabinet will never see power again. Though the constitution allows five years, the average is three years." Mr. King pointed out that Sir Wilfrid Laurier went to the country on reciprocity with the United States in three years and though reciprocity was turned down and the government defeated it was statesmanship that prompted Sir Wilfrid to go to the country.

Were Two Issues

In the last election there were two issues, Mr. King said. Mr. Bennett said he would relieve the conditions of the working men in the cities and towns of the country and the other appeal was to the farmers. He said that he would blast his way into the markets of the world. Mr. King stated that there were 116,000 unemployed when Mr. Bennett went into office and now there were over half a million and over a million on relief. The speaker referred to the markets and declared that Mr. Bennett had not found them but had introduced legislation which made it impossible for markets to be secured. He stated that Mr. Bennett has the opportunity that no other government had ever had. He had a free hand, even to violating the constitution and had asked for a blank cheque for unemployment relief. He has had that power for four or five years without the consent of Parliament. He has spent on unemployment $110,000,000 and in addition to that through loans and guarantees has brought the total to $270,000,000. The Government, he said, had the wrong idea of the basis on which trade operates.

Mr. Bennett and his party believed in the home market and in putting a wall around it and saying to the people that they must buy in their home markets.

Mr. King applied the principle of high tariff to the village of Enterprise and declared that if the people of Enterprise confined their buying and selling to the village alone that they could not bet along. If purchasing was confined to Canada alone, Hon. Mr. King said, Canadians could not begin to use all the products that Canada had. The present government can't seem to realize that and offer in excuse that other countries are doing it.

"Have they ever made any effort to change other countries by going to them, to the United States or to Europe to develop trade?" asked Mr. King. "Has this Government tried to improve trade?" Mr. King stated that at a special session tariffs were set up against Britain by the Bennett Government at the Imperial Conference. It was Mr. Stanley Baldwin who said that he hoped that the Imperial conference would mean the lowering of the trade barriers. High tariffs did not mean high wages for workers nor high prices for farmers as brought out in the Stevens inquiry. These conditions were nearly all under the present Government and the big tobacco condition with which the people of this country were familiar, was prevalent since 1930, during which were exposed the sweating conditions and low wages.

Assailed Manion

Mr. King assailed Hon. R. J. Manion for his statement that even if all the by-elections went against the Government that it would make no difference. As a minister of the Crown Dr. Manion spoke for his Government, which meant that the Government didn't care what the voice of the people was. That raised an issue in itself, Mr. King declared, if the people are the servants of the government or the government the servants of the people.

The speaker referred to the battle going on between dictatorships and ed but, it was significant, that Canada is not to have a director. This Government, he said, could not be trusted to handle the affairs of this country. For these and other reasons he urged his audience and the people of Frontenac-Addington to leave no stone unturned, in their own interests as citizens of Canada, to elect a Liberal, and to the people of Canada in the other by-elections to elect Liberals so that by doing so they could say to the Bennett Government that the time has gone for it to continue in office.

In closing his address, Mr. King referred to the Liberal candidate in Frontenac-Addington and declared that he was of the type needed in Parliament. He was young, knew the problems of the country and would be valuable because of his experience. By electing him to Parliament, Mr. King said, the people would not merely be voting for a representative of Frontenac-Addington, but for a representative of the best interests of Canada. The people were tired of this narrow nationalism and the Liberal partly believed in internationalism and was desirous of seeing peace and goodwill among the nations. No dictatorship was wanted here. The Liberal party was prepared to say to the world that it needed a liberal outlook. Not only in Canada would the five by-elections be watched, but by other countries as well, who desired to trade with Canada and who would see by the results of those by-elections whether that was to come about.

Premier Gardiner

Premier J. G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan during a brief address deplored that the results of by-elections would have a great effect on the general election. Other countries were adopting governments prepared to trade with other countries. The results here would be felt on the railways, in industry and in employment if a Liberal Government was returned to power with the policies which would mean trade among the nations of the world.

Hon. Nelson Parliament stressed the importance of the coming b-election and declared that not parties nor individuals were involved, but principles.

J. L. Haycock criticized the reasons set forth by W. R. Aylesworth as to why he should be elected and stated that he was not consistent. A Liberal candidate, who held the same qualifications as Mr. Aylesworth, had not received Mr. Aylesworth's vote, Mr. Haycock told his audience.

Colin Campbell

Colin Campbell, the Liberal candidate, discussed the issues of the day and declared that Canada today held increase storage in footstuffs, yet the prices were the lowest. Exports of Canadian wheat to Britain had dropped, he said, while those of the Argentine and Russia had increased. The farmers were being exploited by high tariffs, he charged and the people were being exploited to the extent of six cents a gallon on gasoline. Duty was free on crude oil, Mr. Campbell pointed out, yet the oil companies spent only $8,000,000 a year on salaries. He said that the Imperial Oil Company was controlled to the extent of 69% by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Large manufacturing concerns he charged were exploiting the people and were controlled by foreign companies.

Referring to the statements made that he was not a native of the riding, Mr. Campbell stated that Sir George Perley was not even born in Canada at all. He repeated the challenge issued a short time ago to have the Conservative candidate, W. R. Aylesworth and Dr. A. E. Ross or any cabinet minister he may select meet him and W. A. Fraser, M.P., in the past political history in an interesting manner.

The platform, was tastefully decorated in honor of the visit of Mr. King and during the early part of the evening Elgin Vannest and Freda Wagar, rendered enjoyable solos, accompanied by Mrs. William Jackson while the Plezall orchestra of Enterprise rendered a number of selections.

HON. MACKENZIE KING SPEAKS AT ENTERPRISE

Enterprise witnessed the largest crowd ever congregated in the village when the whole countryside turned out to hear Hon. Mackenzie King speak on behalf of Mr. Colin Campbell, Liberal candidate. Cars were parked a mile out on every road leading into the village and there were five times as many people outside as the hall would hold, who heard the addresses from a loud speaker. So great was the crowd that some of the speakers had to enter the building through a window in order to reach the platform.

Mr. King was tendered a magnificant ovation. He was supported on the platform by Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan; Joseph Haycock, former Patron Leader; Hon. Nelson Parliament; William A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland; and Colin Campbell, the Liberal candidate for the House of Commons in Frontenac-Addington. G. Anson Aylesworth, of Newburgh, a brother of Sir Allan Aylesworth, presided.

The Liberal Leader delivered a devastating attack on the Government, concentrating particularly on the trade and tariff policies, which he maintained were strangling Canada. The only way Canada could hope to prosper was by selling her wheat, lumber, fruit and manufactured goods abroad as well as in the home market.

He urged the people to express disapproval of Bennett Government policies in the by-elections and thus make it impossible for the administration longer to cling to office.

Those on the platform were: Miss E. L. Mowat, Vice-President O.W.L.A.; Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King; J. L. Haycock; Miss Florence Pritchard, Recording Secretary O.W.L.A.; Premier Gardiner; Mr. and Mrs. Colin Campbell (candidate); W. A. Fraser, M.P.; J. J. Duffus, Peterboro', President Central O.L.A.; Hon. Nelson Parliament; George Anson Aylesworth; A. R. Black, President Frontenac-Addington Liberal Association; James B. Garvin, Secretary Frontenac-Addington Liberal Association; Vice-President Dr. F. D. O'Connor; William O. Both, James E. Davidson, Angus McCallum, Nelson McAdoo, Dr. T. W. Warner, Dr. Northmore, Ed. Payne; Chairman Samuel Shuickcombe, J. A. Newton, Ed. Moriley, J. W. Smith, Jas. B. Scanlon, Robert McFadden, Percy Henderson, J. O. Ellerbeck, Lloyd Thompson, Robert Campbell, Henry Young, Thomas Kring, David Gemmill, James Fair, Dr. A. R. E. Mounce, Charles S. Clark, Alfred Franklin, Stuart Simmons, Jim O'Shea, John Pickett, Robert Long, Jack German and G. L. Hawley.

Frontenac-Addington's Greatest Meeting

D30360

(BY "BOB" LONG)

'Twas a Great and Glorious Meeting—And will long be talked of by the Citizens of Enterprise.

'Twas a great and glorious meeting —and will long be talked of by the citizens of Enterprise.

Long before seven o'clock the hall was a packed mass of electors—thousands (since it is estimated that more than 4000 people were present) crowded every available foot of space for many yards in every direction—who listened earnestly and eagerly to the addresses which were punctuated with rounds of applause.

True ,the speaker of the evening was Canada's most illustrious son, Right Hon. Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King, who held his hearers spellbound—but "Cole" Campbell electrified that great throng with a masterly presentation of the issues, as they effected the welfare of the farmers, dairymen, business men, artisans and laborers of the constituency.

Electors of Frontenac-Addington learned with pride that the Liberals have a candidate that the overburdened populace of every faith, political and otherwise, can cheer for—a young man whose knowledge of the social and economic problems warrant them and encouraged them to rally to his support that he may, as he will, devote his energies and his talents to the task of solving these problems—rather than sit on a back bench in the commons as a mere voting machine, as the majority of elected members in the Commons do.

"Colie" Campbell is not only the follower of the greatest statesman of Canada and one of the leading statesmen of the world, but he demonstrated that he will be an asset to that leader —to the electors of the County and to Canadians as a whole.

Few men at his age have demonstrated ability as rare as his, and from the manner in which he is received in every part of the riding, it is evident that the riding of Frontenac-Addington will overwhelmingly acclaim him as its adopted son on Sept. 24th.

Opposition speakers have been sniping at his candidature, claiming him to be an "outsider" in a vain effort to demean his strength—if that were possible, but this will not affect his candidature. Born in Elgin, one of the true British Counties of the Province, "Colie" graduated, with his Scotch blood, from Queen's University after spending his life on the farm, he came to Northbrook in the north part of the riding, in 1930 and has resided there during these four years.

He was chosen Standard Bearer for the Liberal party to contest the riding in the Provincial contest, which gave Premier Hepburn such an overwhelming landslide in June. "Colie" went down to defeat through despicable tactics, with the largest vote ever polled by a Liberal candidate, cutting the opposition majority by nearly two-thirds —and at Sydenham received the unanimous endorsation of the largest political convention ever held in the County. No other name was mentioned—"Campbell, Campbell" wa s the cry, and Campbell it was without even a thought of a contest for the honor and the battle that is on.

Contrasted with the Tory convention at which six names were placed forward and fought out on, it is indeed a tribute to the strength and popularity of this young men, who will go far in the public life of his country—who will shed a lustre upon the county that sends him to Ottawa as its representative—and who will shed lustre upon his native land—Canada.

In their effort to discount his strength by the false statement that he is not a resident of the riding, Tory speakers do not remind their hearers of the fact that their Acting Leader, Sir George Perley, was not even born in Canada, or that their great former chieftain, the late Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, was not Canadian born; that their leader, the present Prime Minister Bennett, was born in Nova Scotia, though sitting as the member for Calgary. These facts do not condemn these famous Tory leaders, but while on the subject let me also remind them that Dr. Ross, sitting member for Kingston, was born outside the riding and was not—is not "a native son." The facts are mentioned merely to remind electors of the means to which Tory speakers go to detract them from the Big issues so ably "tackled" by "Colie' 'Campbell and voided by the Tory speakers—who are now pretty well silenced on the "garbage" they were handing to their listeners.

Only a few days remain till the polls close. Many attempts may be made in an effort to "cheat" the riding of the services of this brilliant candidate—who as Premier Hepburn stated on several occasions, would have been a member of his cabinet—which would have been of tremendous value to the riding. That he will, if elected, and when the Right Hon. Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King is again placed in charge of National affairs as the head of a government of, by and for the people —be chosen as a cabinet minister in that government, is the prediction of the leaders of Liberalism—thus it is your opportunity, Ladies' and Gentlemen, to give to your riding a representative possessed of such qualifications that you and yours may share in the better conditions that a King victory will bring to Canada and Canadians.

Forget not that your interests transcend the interests of any political party or candidate—this is a battle to decide whether a few millionaires, banded together in Oil, Coal, Packing, Industrial and Financial combines shall continue to hoard up millions, while you sweat and toil and become more impoverished through their exploitation. You cannot serve these interests and serve you own—and your interests are the Real issue. Your hope is in "Colie" Campbell's candidature and in his election on Monday, therefore let every man and woman, true to their own personal interests, that day do their duty.
