PROGRESS OF THE WAR

[March 8 to March 14]
WHILE published details of hostilities during the period under review were meagre, substantial progress was made by the Entente Allies; and the Central Powers appear to have made no gain, with the exception of a small success in Rumania.

In the Western campaign the British attacked south of Arras and took some trenches and prisoners, and also lost a few men by German counter attacks. On the Ancre sector the British made a further very considerable advance towards Beaulieu, which was occupied by the British, the Germans offered comparatively little resistance, and were retiring for the purpose of shortening their front. It was thought not unlikely that the British would capture the town of Arras, and the even Peronne, which would be evacuated by the Germans, which would mean the abandonment of the Noyon salient and positions on the Oise. The French were on the offensive in the Champagne sector at all points in the matter of reconnoitering and capturing prisoners. Practically no other changes were made on this front.

There was very little news indeed during the week concerning the Eastern campaign. The Teutons took some mountain heights in Rumania and captured a few prisoners, but nothing else of importance transpired. In the Caucasian campaign the Russians made progress to the northwest of Erzincan in the direction of Sivras; and Persia following the Turks back to Kermanshah, which they took at the week's close.

The British operations in Mesopotamia for the second week in succession showed the greatest success. The British forces taking Baghdad and advancing seventy-five miles further to the northwest. The capture of Baghdad by the British is one of the most important events of the war, and the result thereof may be more far-reaching than it is possible to conjecture at present.

The week was without news of the Egyptian and East African campaigns, and only minor events were reported in the Balkan and the Austro-Italian campaigns. The German submarine campaign of ruthlessness prevailed throughout the week, but it was evident that its power of destruction was being further diminished. Under the heading of "News of the Sea" will be found mention of all the marine disasters reported in available daily papers during the week, together with the British official summary of the movements of shipping during the week ending March 11. It was noted that the German submarines have been captured or destroyed since the beginning of the war.

The British Parliament has had weighty war measures under discussion during the week reviewed. The measure to permit India to levy duty on imports of manufactured cotton goods is one of deep significance, as Mr. Chamberlain declared, when the Indian archives are revealed. The illness of President Wilson may have been the reason that no important developments were manifest in the United States during the week in regard to the situation vis-a-vis Germany. Several overt acts have been perpetrated by Germany, sufficient under ordinary circumstances to call for an immediate declaration of war; but the President sets his own pace; Mr. Gerard, the late Ambassador to Germany, who has just reached Washington, has to be consulted; and it may be that a special session of Congress must be called, before definite action will be taken. Meanwhile preparations are going on; merchant vessels are being equipped with defensive arms; and recruiting for the army and navy being prosecuted energetically. When the United States does declare war she will be more ready than may be generally believed.

That China has at last severed diplomatic relations with Germany is an incident of more than passing interest, and it would appear to be something of a triumph of British diplomacy to have assisted in its accomplishment. According to latest accounts Sir John Jordan, the British Minister to Peking, who has just returned, is not quite sure who is British chargé d'affaires in Peking during his absence. To someone credit is due, and he will receive it when his identity and his acts are revealed.

At the time of going to press we do not have sufficient information of the political changes being effected in Russia to make any comment thereon. This much seems absolutely certain, that the changes will lead to a more vigorous prosecution of the war and a strengthening of the bonds of the Entente Alliance.

The people of Canada have learned with deep regret of the serious illness of the serious illness of the former Governor-General, Earl Grey, at his residence, Howick House, Leabury, Northumberland, England.

During the week Sir Robert Borden, Hon. J. D. Hazen, and Hon. Robert Rogers returned to London after a visit to the battle front in northern France and Flanders. During their visit a review of the Canadian troops was held. Hon. Mr. Hazen visited the cemetery in the Ypres salient to see the grave of his son who was killed in battle.

The death was announced last week of Count von Zeppelin, the inventor of the dirigible balloons that bear his name. He was born in Baden in 1838, and had a most distinguished military career, attaining the rank of general at the age of 45. He was killed in action in 1902, and devoted the remainder of his life to aeronautics. His airships have not accomplished in the present war all their inventor anticipated.

Chief Justice, Hon. Ezekiel McLeod, of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, has been receiving congratulations on his being created Knight Bachelor by His Majesty King George V. The honor was conferred early in February, but the official confirmation was only received by mail this week. Never has this distinction been more worthily bestowed than in this instance, the distinguished recipient being held in the highest esteem in his native Province and throughout the Dominion.

We would call the attention of our readers to the Naval Service recruiting advertisement appearing in this issue. Although Charlotte County has done not at all badly in the matter of furnishing recruits for service in the war, there must be yet many men available and eligible for service who should at once enlist in one or other of the contingents now being raised. In a maritime county like this, the call for men to defend our coasts should meet with the promptest and complete response. The Government is exceptionally favorable to the recruits. Let patriotism prevail in the hour of our country's need.

Dear Mary —
I think that the Orientals are entitled to a prominent place in the Hall of Fame. They, in creating their luxurious rugs, have given the world ideas both of comfort and beauty.
I was down at Buchanan and Co's. yesterday and seeing their charming rugs was like going through a picture gallery. Their oriental designs were enchanting and the French and domestic patterns surprisingly harmonious—and the prices so low. You ought to see them.

DO YOU KNOW—
that the rapidly rising price of food stuffs

DO YOU KNOW—

DO YOU KNOW—that a "food famine" would be a worse

YOU CAN—

The news of the death of Mrs. Harry Gambel, from heart trouble, which occurred early this month at her home in Toronto, came as a great shock to her many friends. Mrs. Gambel was the only sister of Mrs. William Hope, and visited Mrs. Hope at her summer home, "Dalmeny," on the Bar Road, for many successive years. She had a large circle of friends amongst the summer residents who will sincerely mourn her loss. Deep sympathy is felt for her bereaved relatives.

The Red Cross Society, through its President, Mrs. G. H. Stickney, has received the extremely generous gift of $116.75 from an anonymous donor. The funds of the Society had reached a very low ebb and means of raising money were being discussed, so it will be evident that the gift could not have been more timely. The Society wishes to tender its most hearty thanks to its unknown benefactor.

OBITUARY. MISS IDA GRAHAM. The news of the death of Miss Ida Graham, which took place at 7.30 o'clock yesterday (Friday) morning at her home here, after an illness of only six days, with pneumonia, has cast a gloom over the entire community.

On Saturday of last week she was out around as usual, but was taken to her bed that evening with a cold which was thought at first to be serious. It however developed into pneumonia early in the week, and although everything possible was done to alleviate her condition she never rallied, and passed away on Friday morning.

Deceased was a daughter of the late David and Margaret Graham, and leaves to mourn her loss, one sister, Mes. E. M. Hewitt, of this town, and three brothers, William W., and Ernest W. Graham, who reside here, and Fred M., of Melrose, Mass.

She was a devoted member of the Methodist Church, and an untiring worker in furthering each branch of that Church and one that will be greatly missed.

Possessing literary attainments of note, she has been the promoter of many plays put on by local talent, which through her energy and management, were always a great success. She was also a fluent writer and had for some time been the local correspondent of the St. John Telegraph.

The news of her death has been heard with very great regret by the people of the entire community, who held her in very high esteem, and who will greatly miss her genial and cheery nature, which she possessed at all times.

Much sympathy is extended to the relatives in their sad and sudden bereavement.

SOLVEIG'S SONG. (Translated by F. E. Garrett.) MAYBE both the snowtime and the springtime will go. And summer after that, and the whole year so; But some day thou art coming, full sure I know, And I shall be waiting, for I promised thee so.

God strengthen thee faring by sea or land— God gladden thee if at His footstool thou stand. While thou art coming I shall wait for thee here; And waitest thou in heaven, I'll meet thee there, my Dear.

From Peer Gynt, Act IV, by Henrik Ibsen. (Born March 20, 1828; died 1906.)
