News From Soccer Satisfaction With

Referee Lost Head. A friendly match between the Duffs and S. O. E. on Saturday was a good game till the referee lost his head. I don't see why the league should have a man like that, as he was manager of the club last year. It was the time when they went to Paris. My word and I got disgusted with game and left the field. There are good Scotchmen and Irishmen around that know more about football than the referees they've got. Why not give them a chance. I'll bet half a million and ten times over. I hope the league will look this as there was two off side and the referee said it's alright to the centre of the field. If it was the Englishmen, I would prosecute that sort of sport, as I'm a professional myself. I go to the game. I saw Mr. VanLanre and I think he will agree with me in my note.

GOOD SPORTSMEN. Appetite is commonly gradual. The first indications that the system is giving trouble, therefore, are nothing to be alarmed for as How's Sarsaparilla is of all times.

While longer before I sign up, I'm no real hurry. The story was given out to-day from a source that is very close to Brooklyn Federal League Club, which Johnson was to have signed in 1915 had he signed up. The club officials are said to have signed contract in their office. Contract called for three years, salary of $1,000 a year, not as has been reported. Johnson offered the federal agents that he offered him a five year contract for $10,000 a year. Johnson and federal finally hit on $13,000 a year for three years contract. Johnson got a bonus of $5,000 a year on signing.

NO CANDIDATE FOR LIBERALS IN NORTH WATERLOO

Pres. Sims Unable to Agree With Mr. N. W. Rowell's Policy.

WATERLOO, June 10.—The Liberals of North Waterloo, at the convention held here yesterday afternoon, failed to nominate a candidate to contest the riding against C. H. Sims, the Conservative nominee, who at the last election, was elected by a majority of 1,385 votes over the independent and Socialist candidates. The convention was of the opinion that with Dr. E. D. Heist also in the field there could be no hope of making a good showing against the popular Conservative candidate. It was deemed, therefore, more advisable not to nominate a Liberal candidate, but to give the Liberal support to the temperance nominee, Dr. E. D. Heist, who is a Liberal.

The convention was presided over by the president, H. J. Sims, who, in addressing the 100 delegates, said that although he would not go so far as Mr. Rowell in the matter of temperance legislation, he thought the Liberal leader was sincere.

In North Grey. OWEN SOUND, June 10.—After the nomination at the Liberal convention here yesterday had been refused by no less than five Liberal stalwarts, it was finally accepted, after much persuasion, by Rev. T. A. Roger, pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church, who first refused it and made a little speech in which he withdrew his name from the convention, but who a few minutes later reconsidered his resolution and announced that he would be a candidate, running on the Liberal-temperance policy.

The convention was probably the smallest in point of numbers that has ever been held by the Liberals in the past 15 years, and when the nomination was made, it was by more than 50 percent. On the first call for nominees Mayor McQuaker, Dr. Hershey, Messrs. C. A. Fleming, E. Creper and J. C. McDonald were nominated, but all hastened to withdraw, none apparently being desirous of filling the part of the lamb at the slaughter.

Redistribution Is Agreed Upon

OTTAWA, Ont., June 10.—The redistribution bill has been agreed upon by both sides of the House and will be passed before parliament adjourns on Friday. Russell County will remain on the political map, but in its stead Stormont will be wiped out and added to Dundas and Gengary; Richmond, N. S., the other difficult point in the negotiations, will be added to South Cape Breton.

Under the bill east and west Kent will be united, but the Elgins will remain as they are now. Other Ontario seats wiped out are North Lanark, Brockville and West Northumberland. The Greys, Hurons and Middlesex will have two instead of three seats. Nipissing will have two seats and so will Thunder Bay and Rainy River. The city of Hull will be made a separate seat.

Police Made Arrest

Numerous complaints of the conduct of the occupants of 187 Darling street resulted in a police visit yesterday, and the scene presented to the constables justified an arrest, and the police sergeant returned heavier than it had left the station. P.C.'s Blanchard and Golden effected the capture, but one man who was in the house managed to escape. On Monday the case will be up before the bench, when Wm. Howe, Mrs. Howe, Mrs. Peacock and Josie McKenzie will be charged with being concerned in a disorderly house.

BRANDON'S NOMINEE. BRANDON, Man., June 10.—Hon. R. Caldwell, minister of education, has been unanimously re-nominated by Brandon Conservatives as their candidate for the legislature.

Death List May Reach 125

CHATHAM, N.B., June 10.—Conflicting reports made it impossible to-day to determine definitely how many fishing smacks and lives have been lost in the storm which swept the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Chaleurs Bay and the Straits of Northumberland Friday. One report received this forenoon placed the number of dead at 125. Advances from Caraquez said that 19 lives were known to have been lost, one vessel was missing, and nothing was known of the fate of the crews of two vessels reported ashore on Pokesudie Island.

Captain Samuel Breau of the schooner Warren P., which arrived here last night, said that when he left Shipigan on Sunday he heard that more than 100 persons had perished, but he believed this was a great exaggeration.

ROYALTY HAS HELPED CAUSE OF MILITANTS

That is Said to Have Been Result of Police Raid on Headquarters.

LONDON, June 10.—Police raids on the suffragette headquarters yesterday resulted in the discovery that several of the Royal Family, including the Prince of Wales, have been regular contributors to the militant funds, while the Queen tried to contribute, but her offer was refused. These contributions do not mean that Royalty favors the militants. On the contrary, the militants are paying for immunity for the persons and property of the Royal Family from militant attacks. When the raids were made and the list of subscribers found, the government hastily announced that it would immediately begin prosecution on the charge of supporting a criminal organization but the minute examination disclosed among the subscribers several royalalties, including Duchess of Teck, Christian and Royal, and still further investigation showed immunity payments made in the name of the Prince of Wales. He so frequently argued with his father and mother in favor of suffrage, that there was uncertainty as to what category his contribution came under. It was also learned that the Queen offered a subscription of $5,000 if the militants would agree to stop annoying their majesties, but this subscription was refused, the militants being unwilling to lose their most valuable advertising privilege. Among the others in the list are the Duchess of Portland and Westminster, and the Duchess of Marlborough, the Countess of Essex and Lady Cunard. A certain class of hostesses in London have been left conspicuously alone by the militants. Detective agencies which since the season began, have had female detectives at every society function to guard against militant outrages, told the police that they were never called by American hostesses. When the Royal names were found on the list, the government had to give up the idea of prosecuting subscribers, but it is now considering prosecution of the militants for blackmail. The Royal and noble subscribers, however, seem unwilling to be complainants and witnesses, and without their aid nothing can be done. Of course many subscribers are strong supporters of militancy, but they also are safe, as the government cannot prosecute them and refrain from prosecuting the others. So the militants seemed to have scored on the government once again.

Elusive Emmeline. LONDON, June 10.—The elusive Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, again succeeded

HAM THROWS SNEER AT ABILITY OF THE LABOR MEN ON PUBLIC PLATFORM--ATTACKS BREWSTER

In Effort to Create Sympathy--Personal Onslaught On Conservative Candidate Who Has Made Good--Mr. Brewster Received K. C. From Liberal Government on Merit.

"Are you going to accept Mr. Brewster's challenge for a debate on the public platform?" Mr. Ham was asked by the Expositor. "It struck me," said Mr. Ham, laughing, "as a very brave act for a King's Counsel, with a college education and years of practice as a public speaker, to issue a challenge to a workman who has never had an opportunity to get anything more than a public school education, to a debate on the public platform, but my hands are clean and my record an open book, and I have nothing to fear from such a meeting. Most assuredly I will be glad to meet Mr. Brewster on the platform at a time and place to be mutually agreed on, and discuss with him the issues of the day. I am the son of a workman, and a workman myself, and have never had the opportunity of the educational advantages Mr. Brewster has had, and there is no doubt but that he is a more finished speaker than I am, but I believe that it is facts rather than flowery language that the people are interested in in the present campaign, and I am prepared to give facts to them. All that is necessary is to arrange a time and place for the debate which is suitable to both of us, and I will be there to tell the people just where I stand, and to answer any charges Mr. Brewster has to make."--Expositor.

Mr. Ham's insinuation that workmen as such do not make effective platform speakers is totally unwarranted, so also is his sneer at his opponent because he had ability enough in his profession to become a K.C.—an honor, by the bye, bestowed upon him by a Liberal Government when Hon. A. S. Hardy was the Provincial Premier.

Would Mr. Ham regard it as a decent thing for a yone to jibe at him because he has become wealthy? If not, why should he attempt to throw a slur upon Mr. Brewster because his intellectual equipment in his calling rightly earned for him the recognition of a Cabinet and a Premier to whom he had always been actively opposed. But to return to the slap at the oratorical equipment of those who labor. Many instances could be given of men going from the workshop to the platform and acquitting themselves with the best, but two will suffice:

The Right Hon. John Burns, President of the Local Government Board in the Asquith Cabinet—a post, by the way, for which he gets $25,000 a year, and earns it—started life when a young boy as an engine wiper; and Mr. Stidholme, M.P.P. for East Hamilton, during many years, was working at his trade as a moulder when he first accepted a nomination. There is no better speaker in the Ontario House than he. Mr. Ham makes the plea that he has never had "anything more than a public school education." Well, most of us can say that.

If Mr. Ham voluntarily considers that he is not the equal of Mr. Brewster in debate, and that allowance must be made for his ineffectiveness by comparison, how on earth does he expect, if elected (which he won't be), that he could begin to cut the figure, or have the power, of Mr. Brewster in the Ontario Legislature? Where would he have been, for instance, in the matter of framing and securing legislation to abate the gas nuisance, or in helping to frame the Workmen's Compensation Act—two among many other measures with which Mr. Brewster was prominently identified.

SPLENDID SESSIONS AT THE OPENING OF BIG CONVENTION

Women's Missionary Society at Colborne Street Church--Reports of the Work Shows Good Progress During the Year--Convention Notes.

Colborne street Methodist church was a busy circle yesterday morning when over two hundred ladies gathered from all quarters to celebrate the twentieth annual meeting of the Hamilton Branch of the Women's Missionary Society. It was a splendid rally in a noble cause and the members have reason to be proud of the magnificent representation of the society present. For three days this convention continues and it is an already assured success. The morning session was not heavy, being composed of the executive meeting at 9.30 and the Organizers' conference at 10.30, both of which were formally conducted. The afternoon session was very well attended and a good deal of business got through. Devotional exercises were conducted by the vice-president of the branch and twenty-three officers responded to the roll call and 125 members. Mrs. Terryberry and Mrs. Whiting, Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Coulson were appointed on the Courtesy committee, while Mrs. Hockey was delegated to the position of press reporter. Mrs. Riddolls gave a splendid address of welcome which was replied to by Mrs. Hardy of Hamilton. The reception of memorials followed. The pioneer Missionary, Miss N. J. Cartmell, Miss Mary T. Smith of China and Miss Staples of Princeton, Mrs. Chapman Hill and Mrs. Birse were given seats or honor on the platform.

Time For City To Stake Out Bathing Spot For Its Boys

Yesterday's Fatality Brings Up Same Old Question Re Swimming in the Grand River--Protection is Not Afforded.

The death of John Howarth, son of Fireman Fred Howarth, by drowning yesterday afternoon, has once again aroused the city officials and many of the business men to a need of a swimming ground staked out in the river where protected by a slab fence net, and possibly with a super-vision in charge, the boys of the city could swim and learn to swim, which is much more important.

Fire Chief Lewis, who directed the life saving crew from the Central fire hall yesterday in their efforts to rescue young Howarth, when seen this morning was strongly of the opinion that a swimming ground should be cleared off in the river just below the G. T. R. bridge perhaps as a good location, and a palisade fence sunk in the river at a safe depth, beyond which no one could go, and within which, provided there was a man in charge, all would be safe. The chief did not think that a lifeboat stationed permanently on Kerby Island and another one below the dam would be of much use, as when one was put there before it had not been there two weeks before some one broke it to pieces for firewood.

It is certain some action should be taken, and that right soon before the city homes are in mourning for the loss of dear ones. Boys will swim in the river so long as the river is there, and four or five companions went down to Jubilee Terrace and waded across to Kerby Island, where they undressed and went in swimming. John could only take a few strokes at swimming, and the boys kept at first to shallow water, but unnoticed by his companions, Jack slipped down into deep water and disappeared. One of the boys immediately ran over to the Terrace, where he warned some men who telephoned an alarm into the fire station, but the boys name was not mentioned and when Captain Kingswell, with four men on the truck, the boys father one of them, arrived, they were told it was Mr. Howarth's boy. By this time a large crowd had gathered and many, including Engineer Kellett of the L. E. and N. Railway had set out in canoes. So sooner had the firemen arrived and were preparing to launch the lifeboat than a boy ran up and said to Mr. Howarth, "It's John." The poor father was frantic, but was persuaded to remain on shore while the men under Captain Kingswell set out in the lifeboat. Chief Lewis arrived almost at the same moment and was paddled up to the scene of the accident by Harry Bloomer. For almost an hour the men assisted by many others in canoes, searched with tackle for the body, but no trace of him could be found. Harry Bloomer left in his canoe to return and get over half an hour the men worked the body floating down stream, fully quarter of a mile from where he went in. Calling to the party on the Island, the firemen went to his assistance and the body was lifted out and carried onto the island, where for over half an hour the men worked with the lungmotor, but it was of no use, the lad had been in the water too long. Dr. Fissette was called and ordered the body removed to H. S. Pierce's undertaking establishment.

Besides a sorrowing father and mother, the young lad is survived by one younger brother and two sisters. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from the parental home, 133 Charlotte street. The Coroner Dr. Fissette decided after hearing the circumstances of the case, that an inquest was unnecessary.

THE RAILWAY BOARD RESERVES DECISION IN BRANTFORD CASES

HAMILTON, June 10.—The Dominion Railway board in session here this morning reserved its decision in two applications made by the Lake Erie and Northern Railway, in regard to the railway's station and right of way in Brantford. The city, through its solicitor W. T. Henderson, Mayor Spence, City Engineer Jones, and G. S. Matthews of the Board of Park Commissioners, put up a stiff fight against the company's proposals. Mr. W. S. Brewster appeared for the Lake Erie and Northern Railway.

The first application of the railway was for approval of the plans to locate its terminal station in the Holmedale and approval of the station plans. The decision of the commissioners was reserved in this connection. The second application was for a change in the order of the board whereby part of the land now filled in above Jubilee Terrace was to have been conveyed to the city in exchange for land taken at Jubilee Terrace. In this connection the city asked that the railway be forced to widen the street through Jubilee Terrace to 50 feet and make a real thoroughfare out of it as Jubilee Terrace had been greatly injured.

The session was a brief one and Chairman Drayton insisted in his usual way upon expediting business. It was not announced when the board's decision will be given out. (Continued on Page Six)

SUPPLY OF NATURAL GAS PROMISED TO SEVERAL CITIES

Representatives From Brantford, Stratford and Waterloo Visit Oil Springs.

OIL SPRINGS, June 10.—Representatives of three cities were here yesterday looking over the property of the Oil Springs Oil and Gas Company with a view to ascertaining the chance of being supplied with natural gas from the mammoth gusher recently struck here. From Three Cities. A delegation composed of Mayor Severson of Stratford, Ald. McLennan, of Stratford, W. D. Henderson and Mayor Spence, of Brantford; Mayor Kaufmann and the publicity commissioner of Waterloo looked over the ground and were surprised at the enormous flow of the gusher, which is estimated can supply 40 million feet of gas a day. The Oil Springs Oil and Gas Company informed the visitors that they were prepared to supply all the gas that would be required. W. H. Aiken, of Brantford, is the head of the syndicate. Several attempts have been made to confine the immense flow of gas, but the terrific pressure has made it impossible and the escaping gas amounts to about 15 million feet a day. Efforts to Hold It. To-morrow an endeavor will be made to complete the job by putting in a packing of four-inch pipe, then cement the casing, so that if the casing doesn't hold, the gas will be confined anyway. The union gas well on the Donnelly farm is good for about a million and a half feet a day. It is situated about 150 rods from the big pressure, but is not at nearly the same depth.

JOHN HOWARTH AGED FOURTEEN WAS DROWNED

Stepped Into Hole in Grand River Yesterday Afternoon Above the Terrace.

One of the saddest drowning accidents that has occurred in Brantford in many a day and one that had thrown a happy home into sorrow and mourning, happened yesterday afternoon shortly after 4.30 when John, the 14 year old son of Fred Howarth of the Central Fire Station staff was drowned while learning to swim in the Grand River just off the west bank of Slater Island. The lad had attended his class at the Central school all day and after 4 o'clock he and four or five companions went down to Jubilee Terrace and waded across to Kerby Island, where they undressed and went in swimming. John could only take a few strokes at swimming, and the boys kept at first to shallow water, but unnoticed by his companions, Jack slipped down into deep water and disappeared. One of the boys immediately ran over to the Terrace, where he warned some men who telephoned an alarm into the fire station, but the boys name was not mentioned and when Captain Kingswell, with four men on the truck, the boys father one of them, arrived, they were told it was Mr. Howarth's boy. Registration Is Proceeding Very Briskly

At the six registration booths in the city this morning, the names of 113 voters were added to the list. The number includes those who registered up until 1 o'clock, and it is considered exceedingly good for the start.

At the Conservative headquarters to-day at noon, the report was given out that the registration was proving excellent, and the organization never was in better fighting trim. The registration is as follows: At 20 Colborne street, 26. At Court House, Registrar, Judgeistrate Livingston, 12. At Court House, Registrar, Judge Hardy, 24. At 223 Murray street, 17. At 417 Colborne street, Registrar Graham, 16. At Port and Superior streets, Registrar, McArthur, 18. Total, 113.

Farmers Bank Bill Not Dead

TORONTO, June 10.—That the bill for the recouping of the Farmers Bank depositors, whereby the Depositors would pay them some $1,120,000 and thus banish the double liability bogey for the shareholders, is not dead, but that it will be brought up again and again till it is passed, is alleged by a Toronto man who was discussing the matter this morning.

There has been a meeting of the members at Ottawa at which Premier Borden was present, and it is expected he will make some announcement in the House. I understand that he will go so far as to say that he will introduce the bill every year he is premier till it is passed."

Y.M.C.A. DIRECTORS

Held Meeting Yesterday--Will Teach Boys to Swim, Regardless of Time.

The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. held their usual monthly meeting in the secretary's office last night. The business was expeditiously conducted and various reports and resolutions were received.

The membership committee reported their resolution with regard to arrangements made for the membership campaign at the close of September, and this was approved by the board. All the minor details of the program for the close of the current year were included in this report. The physical committee reported upon the success of the swimming instruction to all city boys. The erroneous impression exists that four lessons are to be given to each boy. The "Y. M. C. A." are going to teach the boys to swim, irrespective of the number of lessons required. The report was approved. All schools are to be put on the same basis for swimming instructions, and special schools will enjoy the same advantage as the public schools.

Secretary G. L. Goodwin was authorized to attend the conference of employed officers of the Y. M. C. A. of North America, held at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin from June 25 to 28. He will represent officially the Brantford Y. M. C. A. The theme of thought of the conference will be the responsibility of the association for the upbuilding of Christian character in young men.

Sympathetic reference was made to the tragedy of the death of Jack Howarth, who was in the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool on Monday with a batch of boys from the Central school and took his first lesson. The moral of the sad affair will be pointed out to all boys visiting the "Y" tank, and they will be warned not to bathe in the river until they are proficient swimmers.

Miss' Rene Crooks and Mrs. R. W. Crooks are in Niagara Falls to-day attending the marriage of their niece, Miss Lillian W. Bean.

Miss Biscoe and Miss Van Norman will shortly leave the city for a visit to the Isle across the sea. Their sojourn in England will be brief, but some sightseeing will be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Art. Pitcher and son and Mrs. S. P. Pitcher returned from a three weeks' trip through Southern Ohio, where they visited different cities, stopping for several days at Cincinnati.

Last evening the "Willing Workers Class" of Balfour St. Presbyterian Church, pleasantly surprised their teacher, Mrs. S. Danby, in honor of her birthday. Games and music were indulged in, after which they were called upon to partake of the dainty luncheon prepared by the "Willing Workers." A very enjoyable evening was spent by all, and the members of the class left at an early hour, wishing their teacher, many happy returns of the day.

A very enjoyable time was spent on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Erb, Charlotte street, when a number of girl friends of Miss Lydia Hoistetter, gathered and gave her a shower. The evening was spent in games music and singing, after which a dainty luncheon was served. The gathering broke up shortly before midnight after wishing Miss Hoistetter much joy and happiness in her future wedded life.

THE FAMOUS PAREPA-ROSA AND FLOTOW'S 'AH SO PURE' FROM MARTHA

Almost within sight of Holyrood Castle in Edinburgh, Euphrosyne Parepa-Rosa was born. She was the daughter of a Wallachian gentleman and in her walks down Princess street she could not resist singing the ballads of her native land. She made her debut as Amina in "La Sonnambula" in the Island of Malta. Then she assumed the name of Parepa. No one has been able to understand just why. She married a Captain Carroll in 1863, but was left a widow two years later and obliged to return to the operatic stage. She made several notable tours of the United States and later married Carl Rosa, the celebrated violinist, and took the hyphenated name which she has made famous. She was one of the first to organize the English opera company in the United States, although she sang for many years in Italian opera. While she sang in Cairo, Egypt, and three continents, she always felt that the most genuine appreciation of her talents was in the United States. To hear Parepa sing, "Ah So Pure" from the opera "Martha," the veteran opera-goer of today delights to tell about.

This famous classic, from "Martha," with many others equally celebrated, is to be had in the great collection of "Heart Songs" now offered by the Courier at a cost so small as to really constitute a gift.

Mr. Arthur Reyner
The many friends of Mr. Arthur Reyner, will learn with deep regret of the passing away last evening at General Hospital, having succumbed to an attack of pneumonia. There survives him a sister, and step-sisters and stepbrothers in Leeds, Yorkshire, England. He was a faithful, esteemed employee as a machinist's helper at Goold, Shapley and Muir. He was an adherent of Colborne St. Methodist church.

Mr. Reyner was identified as a member of the Independent Order of Foresters, Court Brantford, 503, and held the office of Senior Beadle.

Mr. Reyner was also an active member of Salisbury Lodge, No. 42, S. O. E. He was known largely by his kindness of heart and willingness at all times. He made his home with Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lee for a long time, at 347 Dalhousie street from whose residence the funeral will take place on Saturday 10th inst. at 2:30 p. m.

Mrs. Reginald Turnbull
The very sad news of the death of Mrs. Reginald Turnbull of London, was received in Brantford yesterday morning. The deceased, who is a sister-in-law of Mr. Walter Turnbull of this city, has visited in Brantford frequently and has a large number of friends here. It is reported that Ms. Turnbull had been ill for some time and the death, though not unexpected, comes as a great shock to a large circle of relatives and friends.

The funeral was held at the residence of Mr. Walter Turnbull, in London, Mrs. Turnbull lived in Paris, the daughter of Mr. R. L. Murphy. A goodly number of friends in Brantford and Paris will join in their sympathy for Mr. Turnbull in the loss of his wife. The body will be brought to the home of her father, in Paris, when interment will be made on Thursday afternoon.

The Late John Legacy
The death occurred this morning of Mr. John Legacy at his residence, 247 Grey St. The deceased was for many years foreman of the civic sewer department and was a highly esteemed resident of the city. He had been ill only a short time, the cause of death being anaemia. The late Mr. Legacy was 58 years of age and has always been strong and vigorous in health. He leaves to mourn his loss two sons, German and Elgin and three daughters, Mrs. Reid of this city, Mrs. Faskin of Detroit and Mrs. Beal of Hamilton. The funeral will take place from the late residence 231 Grey street on Friday afternoon.

Mr. Henry E. White and Claude White left this morning for a trip down the St. Lawrence to Montreal.

BALDEUF-VAN WESTRUM
The wedding was celebrated at Langley Park last evening, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Leo, Van Westrum, when their sister Annie Schade Van Westrum, became the wife of Mr. Frederick Baldeuf, formerly of Germany, but now of California. The bride was attended by her nieces as maids of honor and flower girls, the offices being filled respectively by Miss Mabel Lotchin, Winnie and Margaret, and Elizabeth, Venerable Archdeacon Mackenzie, assisted by Mr. Cooper Ellis, an intimate friend of the family, performed the ceremony. The bride's gown was of rich white satin, veiled in tulle and a lovely real lace veil caught in place by orange blossoms. An informal reception was held following the ceremony, some 40 guests being present. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Arton Van Westrum while Mr. Appleton of the Bank of Montreal officiated as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Baldeuf left after the ceremony on their honeymoon trip and later will take up their residence on their orange farm in California.

MATTICE-HISKEY.
An exceedingly pretty wedding took place this morning at St. Mary's Church when Mary Ellen (May) Hickey eldest daughter of Mrs. Jno. Hickey, became the bride of Bert S. Mattice of this city, Rev. P. J. Padden officiating.

The bride, who entered the church with her brother, Mr. J. J. Hickey, looked extremely handsome in her beautiful wedding gown of ivory charmeuse, simply trimmed with shadow lace, wearing a veil caught with orange blossoms and carrying a shower bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Kathleen Hickey was her sister's maid-of-honor and looked sweet in a gown of pale blue voile, caught with pink rose buds, leghorne hat trimmed with rose buds and velvet steamers, and carrying pink roses. The officers of the Young Ladies' Sodality, of which the bride was a faithful member, formed a guard of honor at the church and afterwards served at the wedding breakfast, which was partaken of at the home of the bride's mother, Brock street. Mr. Oliver Mattice, the groom's brother, was best man.

The number of lovely gifts received showed the popularity of the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Mattice left about noon on an extended trip down the St. Lawrence to Montreal and Quebec, and on their return will take up their residence at 151 1/2 Rawdon St.

TACKETT-MCDONALD.
A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's church yesterday morning when Florence Anna, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Macdonald, was united in marriage to Chas. E. Tackett of St. Louis, Mo. The bride entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Edna Phillips. The brides gown was of white crepe de chine, with tunic of shadow lace and veil with wreath of orange blossoms. Mrs. W. J. Locke, sister of the bride was maid of honor, while Mr. W. J. Locke supported the groom. The honeymoon couple left in the 6:35 train for Detroit, Chicago and New York, at which they will reside in St. Louis, Mo.

CANADA FAILS, BUT ENGLAND BEARS THE BURDEN

Premier Borden Refers to the Defeat of Naval Bill by the Senate.

OTTAWA, June 10.—"As for the truth, accuracy and sincerity of the statements which were furnished to us from official sources, and upon which were based our proposals, I have only this to say that since our proposals failed in this Parliament, for reasons upon which I shall not dwell, it has been found necessary in the mother country to make certain provision by reason of our failure to bring that assistance which we had proposed to bring. According to my apprehension that is perhaps as good justification of the action which we proposed to take at the time as anyone in this House or in this country ought to desire."

In this statement the premier last evening brought to a head a debate on the naval question which had suddenly broken out of a quiet day in the House of Commons.

Starts Over Estimates. The debate arose over the estimates for the naval service department, which Sir Wilfrid Laurier opened by a persistent but playful questioning of the Hon. J. D. Hazen, Mr. Hazen told him that there were now 40 cadets taking the course at the naval college and that eight of these were in training on H. M. S. Berwick.

Sir Wilfrid went on to discuss the plans for the naval volunteers, for which there was a vote of $200,000. He expressed doubt of the wisdom of having training stations on the Great Lakes, and remarked that although there were training ships on the south shore, they belonged to the various states and not to the federal authorities.

Mr. Hazen interposed that the federal authorities had taken them over this spring.

Still Sir Wilfrid thought it unwise to establish training stations on the side of the lakes. It would be better to expostulate with the United States. Hon Mr. Lemieux made a long review of the naval debates of the past and declared that the premier was now reverting to the naval policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Premier Borden wanted to know whether Mr. Lemieux was opposed to the present proposals of the government or not.

Mr. Lemieux—"I am against the Government."

Mr. Borden—"That's the explanation. The honorable gentleman is against the government no matter what the government does."

EIGHTEEN LIBERAL SENATORS VOTE TO AID C. N. R.

Support for the Government Bill Ratifying Agreement With Railroad.

OTTAWA, June 10.—The Canadian Northern bill, the most contentious measure of the session, was given a second and third reading by the Senate yesterday after some warm discussion, and the measure now only awaits the royal assent to become law.

There were two division, one on the second and one on the third reading, when Senator Choquette moved an amendment that the bill should be sent to the railway committee of the Senate and that the committee be given power to carry on an investigation into the affairs of MacKenzie and Mann.

18 Liberals Support It. There were no breaks in the Conservative ranks on the first division, while 18 Liberals, including Senator Bostock, the Liberal leader, voted with the Government.

On the second vote Senator Choquette's amendment was defeated by 20 to 35. This time 13 Liberals voted against the amendment and in favor of the third reading as follows: Senators Bostock, David Mitchell, Ross, McHugh, Frost, Thibodeau, Edwards, Derbyshire, Deviser, Young, Watson and Talbot. Senator Montplaisir (Conservative) voted against the bill, being the only Conservative to break from the ranks. Four Liberals shifted, voting for the second reading, but against the third reading. They were: Senators Beith, Fiset, Dessault and Ratz. Sir Lyman Melvin Jones voted Conservative, as he has done since his break with the Liberals.

The position of Senator Bostock and the Liberals who followed him was that it was bad legislation, because of the financial emergency, it was better to pass the measure, the Government taking the responsibility.

Choquette Angry. No sooner was the third reading moved, when Senator Choquette, plainly angry, at once moved his amendment to ratify the agreement. The Liberal of the Senate, who said that it was improper legislation, and pointed out that last year the Liberal majority in the Senate was not afraid to take the responsibility of voting down $25,000,000 for the British navy, and yet this year would not take the responsibility of refusing aid to MacKenzie and Mann.

Sensor Choquette emphasised the fact that the Liberals of the Senate last week passed a resolution on motion of Senator Bostock declaring, in fact, that MacKenzie and Mann were thieves and rascals with whom negotiations could not be safely held, and yet these very men today were voting for the agreement.

He intimated that possibly they entertained the hope that if they voted this morning for assistance to the C. N. R. they might share in later.

Under the circumstances, he declared, Liberal opposition to the proposals could not be taken seriously.

Taking Up Residence. Mr. H. P. Cara Mrs. Cara and family arrived in Brantford last evening. Mr. Cara, who has been in Europe for some years, managing the European business of a big United States manufacturing concern, intends to again take up his residence permanently in this country. His intention is to buy a farm in the vicinity of this city. Many Brantford friends will be glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Cara back to Brantford again, where they formerly resided.

Piano Bargains!

During the hot weather we propose to make it well worth your while to read our advertisements about pianos. We have a number of slightly used pianos in our warehouse, which we will offer at remarkably low prices.

The first instrument to which we would draw your attention is now on view in our window. This is a large-sized piano, made by Hay & Co. of Woodstock. It is a full 7-13 octave in handsome walnut case, regular price $350. This piano was new from the factory when rented to a very careful family, and has recently been returned to us in perfect condition. There is not a mark on it. We will include a walnut bench with music compartment, and a fine drape for $215.

You have shown your interest by reading this advertisement, and if you have any intention of buying a piano at any time, it will pay you to do it now. Terms—$25.00 cash, and $5 a month, or for all cash a further discount of 6%. Call early to secure this bargain.

and impair the moral quality of their environment, but no one seems to appreciate that a bill has been enacted at the instance of Provincial Secretary Hanna, whereby municipal credit might also be charged, if sufficient social spirit were developed, to provide adequate housing of working people at a price well within their means, by the elimination of the profit element therefrom. "Moral reformers" capitalists, however, decline to make their moral pretensions by constructive efforts, for the reason that there is "no money in it" for them. Driving the element of profit, and the opportunity of exploitation, out of the homes of the people is the antithesis of their ambitions.

Over thirty years before any moral reformer, Christian minister, or politician saw any harm in the liquor business, or even thought it necessary for moral reasons to be an abstainer. Robert Owen pointed out that the growing passion for possession of the produce of other people's labor was developing drunken habits, and generally reducing the moral character of mankind. Cannot some of our moral reformers imitate Owen, develop sufficient social conscience to attack the vice of intemperance at its roots, by doing something to extirpate the social conditions which, during the last century have made the liquor bar a menace? "Moral reformers" have, by their well sustained propaganda and organization of public sentiment succeeded in making barabara of erstwhile pillars of the Christian Church engaged in the liquor business. Do they intend to wait until an awakened and socially enlightened democracy upon these "moral reformers" the brand of Cain?

I hope, although I do not expect, the by-law will be voted down. Working men struggling with mortgaged homes, should resist attempts to their cupidity. If the capital value of a working man's home should increase by the artificial stimulation of population, it gives no substantial advantage to him as, if he sold a new home would have to be purchased at a similarly inflated price. No man can make a profit out of a commodity which he needs for his own use and accommodation. Profit is only available for the exploitation of "the other fellow."

Again Elected.
At the Methodist conference just closed in St. Catharines, in addition to Rev. Mr. Lavell and Mr. F. Mann, Mr. Albert Scruton, also of this city, has been elected a delegate to the general conference which convenes in Ottawa in September. This general assembly meets only once in four years and it is recognized as a great honor to be one of the delegates. Mr. Scruton was also re-elected secretary-treasurer of the Laymen's Association, which position he held last year.

A Sad Case.
Charles Tansley, of Paris, who went to Rimouski, Quebec, in an effort to try and recover the body of his cousin, James Kelly, who perished on the Empress of Ireland, returned home yesterday, and was seen at the T. He stated that the most heartrending scenes were seen on all sides at the improvised morgues, where the bodies lay, and the suffering among the relatives and friends looking for their lost dear ones, was enough to turn some of their minds.

T. F. Best as Evangelist.
An arrangement has been made by the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association of Canada to set aside Mr. T. F. Best, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Hamilton, as a special secretary for the promotion of personal evangelism among the Young Men's Christian Associations of Canada. Mr. Best has been secretary of the Hamilton Association for upwards of 10 years, and has had a large and unique experience as a leader in religious work among young men that gives him special qualifications for the new work he has undertaken. He was Y. M. C. A. secretary in the Canadian contingent to South Africa in the Boer War. His new appointment takes effect on September 1st, and in the meantime he remains with the Hamilton Association.

SPLENDID SESSION

address before the executive of the General Board and W.M.S. in Toronto she told how the cause of christianity had gone forward with a great bound through the continuation committee appointed at the great Edinburgh convention, and how the cause of missionary education had also received a great impetus. That the leaders in missionary work are more and more taking into their counsels the native workers; how more have volunteered for the foreign field in the last three years than in the last three hundred. A university for women, Mrs. Baker believes, is even more urgently needed than a university for men; a woman's college should be affiliated with the university.
Miss Robertson at the board meeting made an eloquent plea for a university for women in Japan. If Japan is to become a great nation her women must be great. Their girls must have the educational advantages that are provided for the boys.
Missionaries have been thinking along the line of a university for women for three years, but nothing definite has as yet been done. It is desirable that every denomination should unite for this purpose. Two million dollars is necessary for its equipment and endowment.
An evangelistic campaign of three years has been arranged to deepen the spiritual life in the hearts of believers and to extend it to others.
At the executive last April eight young ladies were accepted and appointed to different fields.
The Canadian Methodist church is responsible for 14,000,000 people of the non-Christian world. Then on a basis of one missionary to 25,000 people, we need 550 missionaries for our foreign work. We have only 130 as yet, therefore, 421 are required still to be sent. A great many of their missionaries are employed among the Oriental, immigrant and settlers in our own land.
They had in 1910 352 churches in Canada and Newfoundland with 1,455 additional preaching places. That means that one church in 8 or 9 must supply one missionary to meet the need. There is immediate need of a great army of workers to press the new centres. The choice and best of their young womanhood is needed to guide and mould the character of women and children in non-christian lands. No less impera-

the need of workers in the homeland. It will require just as lofty consecration, and high courage to keep the flame of missionary zeal burning and still consuming on the altar of sacrifice at home. She closed with them to ask God to open their eyes to their opportunities.
Memorial Service.
An impressive memorial service to the forty-three members who had passed away during the last year was held.
The various societies were heartily thanked for their help in the success of the session, after which all adjourned to the basement where a splendid repast was furnished and served by the ladies of the church.
Evening Session.
The ladies reassembled for the evening business, stronger numerically because of additional arrivals, and stronger spiritually because of the splendid services of the day. Mrs. J. E. Baker, the president presided in a very able manner. Rev. T. E. Hodling took charge of the devotional exercises, which were very reverently performed after which the reports of treasurer and secretary were heard.
The treasurer, Mrs. J. B. Detwiler of this city, in her report, showed a very satisfactory state of affairs, the total income amounting to $20,252.75, and the disbursements $20,222.75, including a generous remittance to the general treasurer. The income for 1914 also showed an increase over the previous year of $731.07, besides which over $304 had been sent in after the books had been closed.
Mrs. E. J. Moore, the secretary, showed that membership had increased very favorably in her report. Life membership stood at 1,023, an increase of 99, while ordinary members totalled 5,473, and increase of 326. The cradle roll was 1,979. General observations upon the satisfactory nature of all members were made in all cases were given.
Miss Mary T. Smith of China, was introduced and gave a reminiscent address upon missionary work in China. She has recently returned from that distant land and her remarks were full of the sympathy and feeling which actual experience provokes. It was four years since she had left Canada for the foreign field and in that short time she had learned much of Chinese ways and customs. Her work there was in the first place spiritual, but secondly her work was medical. There was a great deal of prejudice against the classes in the Orient against things medical and it was looked upon as a degradation for a girl to become a nurse. This prejudice, once overcome gave no difficulties to the missionary who found that Chinese girls made very efficient nurses. They possessed excellent qualities which made them sympathetic and responsive. They became anxious for the work and it had progressed so rapidly in some sections that teachers could not be found for all the girls desirous of becoming nurses. The life of a nurse appealed to them, and it was a useful method of bringing the higher ideals of life into the lives of the girls. The speaker then dealt with the social problems as they confronted the Chinese girl, how they were to be overcome and how prevented. The various methods used to teach the gospel and the many ways in which conversions to Christianity were made, were also part of the theme of Miss Smith. There was a great call in this wide and vast field for co-operation in work. Workers should have experience of Eastern life, for in this empire of 400,000,000 souls there was a vast field for scope. The great need was money to carry on the good work and prayer for divine guidance and workers. If a daughter was called to the service, her mother should give her willingly to this cause. Many who helped the work to great success, never left home, because they gave generously to the funds and that was one way in which all could help. The speaker closed her inspiring address with a reference to the worthiness of the cause.

A slight change upon the program has been effected for to-day and it means that organizers reports will be read in the morning and a Modern Auxiliary discussed in the afternoon.
The music of the evening was provided by the choir, the Colborne St. quartette and by Mr. George White, the organist of the church. Hande's Hallelujah Chorus was sweetly rendered by the quartette was an admirable example of harmony, and Mr. George White displayed his customary skill and execution on a splendid organ voluntary.
This Morning's Session.
This morning the session was again opened with the President, Mrs. Baker. The principal business was the reception of organizer's reports. The minutes of Tuesday's work were read and approved.
The next branch meeting will be held in Woodstock in the Central church, which issued an invitation to the convention, which was gladly accepted.
There were some minor alterations to the constitution carried through, but a proposal to reduce the delegates by moving that each delegate represent 3,000 instead of 2,000 members as at present was lost. Other routine matters affecting the awarding of banners to largest representation present were dealt with.

Much satisfaction was felt in the organizers' reports which showed improvement and advancement in all directions. They showed that Guelph had increased funds of $112. Ten new life members and 27 annual. Galt district, 310 increase, 18 life members and 40 annual. Funds increased by $27.00.
Hamilton, increase members 1,152, increase 119, 243 life members, funds increase $20.52.
Mount Forest, members 144, increase 23; amount raised $68.82.
Norwich reported a new revived circle and an increase in funds of $107.12.
St. Catharines reported their best in 20 years; membership 593; 7 new life members; funds increased $183.72. Simcoe had an encouraging report and increase all round, while Warton reported members 132 and amount sent to treasurer $185.29.
Walkerton showed 196 annual members and $469.86, an increase of $14.79 sent to branch treasurer. Brantford and Woodstock will be heard this afternoon.

THE PROBS

TORONTO, June 10.—The disturbance which was in Northern Ontario yesterday has passed to Eastern Quebec. Showers have again occurred in the western provinces. The heat wave which has prevailed during the past two days in Ontario, is now spreading eastward.

Forecasts. Moderate westerly winds. Thursday: Fair and warm.

Temperature. To-day's official temperature at Mohawk Institute was 86. The highest mercury reached yesterday was 92.

City News Items.

Motorists Slacking Up. The motorists of the city are taking note of the Chief's activities with regard to excessive speeding, for upon a recent investigation on Colborne street only one motorist was found to be going at a dangerous rate. The road under survey was much used at the time.

S. O. E. Protest. The Sons of England Football Club will lay a protest against Saturday's game before the Football executive to-night. They claim that two of the Duffs goals were offside and that this fact escaped the referee's notice. They were beaten by the Duffs by the score of three goals to two.

A Firmer Hope. Robert Curran, the young laborer, who fell off the new Post Office building on Saturday afternoon last, was reported at noon to-day to be improving very slowly and is conscious now at times. He was able to take a little food and nourishment this morning, and there is now a firmer hope for his recovery.

Schools Taking Lessons. Ninety boys from the Alexandra School will take swimming lessons to-day at the Y. M. C. A. tank. They will be arranged in groups of fifteen boys and take their lessons successively. To-morrow Victoria school will be represented by 76 sturdy youths and a Friday 91 boys from King Edward school will take the water.

Peace Centenary Here. E. H. Scammell of the Canada Peace Confederation, has written 100 years of peace between Canada and the United States have decided on Brantford as one of the 100 Canadian cities and towns where the anniversary will be celebrated and requested the City Council to form a strong committee to make arrangements. The letter has been forwarded to Mr. Frank Cockshutt of the Parks board.

Leave for Quebec. Mr. Van Somerin, high secretary of the C. O. F., Dr. Stanley, Mr. Strong, Mr. Elliott, Mr. Belmont and other high court officers of the C. O. F. are leaving for Quebec this week to be present at the meeting of the High Court in that city. Mr. Van Somerin's annual report will show the order to be in splendid shape. There has been an increase all along the line, notwithstanding the financial stringency throughout the country, which has effected so adversely many fraternal societies. The C. O. F. was never in a sounder condition.

RAILWAY BOARD RESERVES DECISION

(Continued from Page 1) A UNION DEPOT. The city representatives put up a strong argument that instead of having a station in the Holmedale, the L. E. & N. should use the T. H. & B. depot. There was no necessity of having railway depots all over the city.

The city's point was also strongly emphasized that if a park was not to be built above Jubilee, the street to Colborne street should be widened.

The only point agreed upon at the conference was that a subway instead of an overhead bridge should be constructed to the boat house. It looked as if the city would be protected in this regard.

Mayor Spence expressed satisfaction with the case as accepted by the commissioners.

HOT WEATHER TIPS FROM THE HEALTH OFFICE

Dr. Pearson Tells How to Avoid Extreme Discomfort. Overeating Source of Most of the Trouble. Keeping well in the summer and avoiding extreme discomfort from the temperature is not so much a matter of the kind of food eaten or avoided, according to Dr. Pearson, medical health officer, as it is of the quantity of food consumed and its quality and freshness.

"Much is said about avoiding meat in summer," said Dr. Pearson, "but so far as lean meat is concerned, provided it is fresh and in as good condition as in winter there is not much support for this theory." The trouble with meat in summer is that it is likely to spoil unless care is taken, and then, of course, it becomes unwholesome.

"Again, one should not get the idea that it is safe to eat all the vegetables, cereals and other food that he can. Overeating is really the source of most of the trouble with persons who feel oppressed by the heat, rather than the eating or avoidance of particular foods.

"Of course the body does not require so much heat-producing food in summer as in winter. The appetite takes care of that to a large extent. Moderation is really the important thing. The man who eats moderately and within bounds of reason as to selection of foods, and who lives temperately otherwise, can follow his usual regime with but little change."

Dr. Pearson emphasizes the value of moderation in habits and some of his pertinent hot weather suggestions are:

"Don't overeat. A furnace is not started in summer the way it is in winter.

"Avoid alcoholic drinks. Alcohol never yet made any one any cooler.

"Be sparing in the use of ice water. Water cooled in the bottles placed next to the ice is preferable to water containing ice.

"Wear loose clothes of a light color. "Take just enough exercise to keep physically fit.

"Keep in the air and in the shade. "If possible sleep in the open.

"Take cool baths rather than cold ones.

"If you can avoid it don't fret or worry."

Citizens More Careful.

Only one door was found open last night by the city police. The Chief is satisfied with the great improvement in this regard, as only a few weeks ago doors were found left unbolts frequently.

PETERBORO BEATS TORONTO OTTAWA AND ERIE WIN

Results of Canadian League Games Played Yesterday—"Wild Bill" Baker Beaten.

PETERBORO, June 10.—The Beavers took another defeat at the hands of the Petes yesterday when the local's won out by a score of 4 to 3 in a second to ninth inning battle.

HAMILTON, June 10.—Ottawa came from behind in yesterday's game and scored eight runs in the seventh, which clinched the game for them. When they went in in the 7th the score was 2 to 0 against them.

ST. THOMAS, June 10.—Eric took the game of the series from here yesterday by bunching his Baker for three runs sufficient to win, as the secured one run off Brown relieved Baker with two, kept the visitors hits, that they did not threaten as Baker's frame of hardship, as he was going good up to that time.

The work of Brown in the box for the Yankees, was on the high order, as the Saints found it exceptionally difficult to connect with men on the paths. The lone run garnered by the locals was the result of a walk to Kopp. The usual order of procedure in producing a run was started when Kopp stole second and scored when McNellis provided, what he is known to have done before, a timely single, scoring Kopp. The only time the Saints had two men on came in the seventh, but this time it was unlucky, as the side retired without any difficulty by grand pitching on Brown's part.

In the third, which brought about the downfall of the Saints and the dericking of "Bill" Baker, started with one man out. Gygli beat out a ball, which was too hard for Baker to handle. Scott fouled out to Kading; but with Dunn just escaping being struck out, when he foul-tipped; the next ball Baker pitched went for a two-base hit, scoring Gygli. Harris singled to centre and Dunn scored. Beaman went to second on a Texas leaguer, over which McNellis and Craven did the Alphonse and Gaston and with it Harris romped home. Baker walked Wise and then to the bench, as Reilly was beckoned to do the relieving. McNeal forced Behan at third and nothing further in the scoring line occurred. Score Eric 3; St. Thomas 1.

What You Don't Read On The Score Boards

Well, they've gone and done it again.

And rain won't even help us today until we bolster up.

Bring on the big league pitcher, Rube. We need 'em all.

Taylor pitched good enough to win. With the boots behind him, he had to pitch two games.

Hamilton fared worse than Brantford at the hands of the Senators, while the Saints also took a fall.

Brantford goes on the road to-night for seven games, stopping off at Ottawa for four, and at Toronto for three.

Deneau was robbed of a hit by Whitcraft in the eighth. The London short stop displayed rare form.

The Red Sox must proceed to win a few games before there will be a great deal of cheering done locally.

London's first two runs were positive gifts. Honeck gave Linneborn a life in the first place, and Linneborn got to second on a passed ball. Bierbauer's scratch single was a case where theumps might have called the runner out. Then to make matters worse, Ivers dropped an easy fly, allowing Bierbauer to score.

Yesterday was tough on Pete Cancelli. It cost him two dollars for those two home runs.

Infielder Barney is due to replace Wagner at second base to-day. Barney is said to be a much superior hitter than Wagner.

Taylor's smash over the fence was a clean healthy wallop.

Gobby Ivers had a fluke home run, the ball going into a hole and out of sight. Bet that not once again this year will any player find that hole.

The Red Sox need strengthening.

Wagner got two hits but both were scratch.

The hitting of Dolan, Burns, Honeck and Wagner has been lamentably weak.

The club lacks hitting strength. This man, Dolan, has had two hits in the last five games, and about as many in the five games previous.

HERE'S WHERE YOU'LL SIT ON RINGLING DAY

Interior and Exterior Views of Ringling Bros. Mammoth Main Tent.

According to railroad officials the Ringling Brothers' circus is this season carrying the heaviest equipment, the largest zoo and the greatest number of people ever brought together by a travelling enterprise. Eighty-nine cars, divided into five trains, are required to accommodate approximately 1,370 people, 735 horses, 41 elephants, elephants, caravans of camels and more than 1,000 wild animals. One entire section is used to transport the mammoth stage, scenery, costumes and electrical effects used in the new spectacle of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba with its gigantic cast and ballet of 300 dancing girls. The spectacle is but an added feature to two hours of aerial display in which more than 400 artists exhibit from the aerial rigging, the inter stages, three rings and hippodrome track of the largest main tent ever built. Fully 90 per cent. of these performers are making their first appearance in America. These include five troupes of Norwegian equilibrists who present the highest perch acts in circusdom; a band of native Balkan riders in special scenic settings; families of acrobats frequently presenting as many as fifty performers upon the trapeze and bars at one time; a vast company of equestrians headed by Charles Augustus Clark, the world's greatest bareback rider; five herds of gyck elephants and an entire department of trained animals including boxing and wrestling kangaroos and trick bears; fifty famous clowns, a magnificent horse fair, speed tournaments and many other features of novelty and daring. Ringling Brothers will exhibit here Friday, June 12.

WALLOPED THE RED SOX AGAIN

London Played Superior Ball and Made It Two Straight.

Reising's Cockneys from London got after the Red Sox again yesterday and made it two in a row in their series here with the locals, by clinching the game through errors by the Sox and winning out 6-4.

Reising, the manager of the Tecumsehs, pitched for London, and Eddie Taylor for the Sox. Taylor, for the locals, pitched good ball, and in addition brought the first run in for the Sox, which was a homer, after Honeck had struck out and LaCroix had been caught at first. The other three runs by the Sox were garnered in by Ivers' home run in the 6th, when Wagner having hit a single, and Rube having been walked, Gabby hit a mighty crack under the fence through right centre, and brought Wag, Rube and himself safely home, while the fans yelled: But never again could the Red Sox score. London, as yesterday, started out in the run-getting. In the first Linneborn reached first on Honeck's boot, was sacrificed by Whitcraft, and scored on Bierbauer's single. Bierbauer scored when Ivers let fall the high drive that Reidy lifted out. Two more were landed in the third. Whitcraft doubled and Lamy singled. Bierbauer drove a hot one through the pitcher's box scoring Whitcraft and Lamy. Another for the Cockneys came in the sixth, when Snyder and Reising were driven in by hits from Linneborn and Whitcraft. One must hand the plum to Whitcraft, who played a splendid game for the visitors at short stop, having three hits and a sacrifice to his credit. It was only sharp fielding on the part of the Tecumsehs that stopped the Sox from getting a run in the 8th innings, when Whitcraft picked up a hit that had been deflected by Reising over the second sack and caught Deneau by inches on what appeared to be a safe drive. Eddie Taylor got the only sacrifice hit for the Sox when in the seventh LaCroix, having walked, he sacrificed, but nothing was gained, as Burns and Wagner following were both out at first. In All The Big Leagues

Wheat's Feat Saves Defeat

BROOKLYN, June 10.—Wheat's wonderful running catch and sensational throw to the plate, doubling up Johnston, saved the game for Brooklyn yesterday, the score being 2 to 1 after an exciting battle. Pfeffer pitched brilliantly up to the 8th, when Chicago brought out its reserves, Williams batting for Brennan, walked, and Johnson was sent in to run for him. Corriden, hitting for Zabel, doubled, putting men on third and second with nobody out. Leach sent a short fly back of third which Wheat caught on the run and he repeated on a similar fly from Good. Johnston essayed to score from third and was doubled up in sensational style.

Stallings Shakeys Win

BOSTON, June 10.—Boston shifted the batting order yesterday and defeated Cincinnati 3 to 2, making it an even break for the series of four games. Boston scored the winning run in the fifth on Gowdy's single, an infield out and Evers' two base hit.

Hans Wagner Gets His 3000th Hit, But Pirates Lose.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—After Conzelman fanned Reid and Becker in the sixth inning yesterday, Philadelphia scored the runs, which won the game from Pittsburg by 3 to 1 on Lober's single, a pass to Magee, Cravath's single, and Luderus' double. Mayer pitched in excellent style, the visitors not getting a man past second base until the ninth inning. Then Wagner led off with a drive which bounded over Becker's head for a double and he scored on two outs. Wagner's hit was his 3,000th during his National League career.

FIVE TEAM LEAGUE

GALT, June 10.—At a meeting of the executive of the "Wobbly" league here last evening, presided over by President Humber, of Stratford, it was decided to continue the outside umpire system which went in vogue last Saturday and proved satisfactory. All the dates of the Brantford club defunct, have been cancelled and the league will continue for the rest of the season as a five club organization.

Asks Fair Play For the Referee

Another Interesting Football Letter Received at This Office To-day.

Sporting Editor, Courier:

Sir,—in reply to "Enthusiast" and "Good Sportsman," I take it they are both S.O.E. supporters and can only see one team on the field. Here the referee was the Duffs old manager. There we have the whole thing in a nutshell, and I would suggest that in writing to the press they stick to the truth and prove they can take a defeat; but I am a little afraid they cannot. In the opinion of the majority he refereed in an impartial manner. As to being played over time, it certainly was not; neither were the goals offside. I never saw better ones. As for "Mr. Good Sportsman," thank goodness he is not an "Englishman," or rather one of them; and it is so nice to know (he goes to a of them). Why did he not go up to Paris and see the game for himself? As to Mr. Van-eman agreeing with him, that gentleman admits he knows as much about football as the common or ordinary cat does about its ancestors, so his opinion really is not worth much. As for the referee losing his head, I think from his letter that "Mr. Good Sportsman" has lost his own head and found a donkey's.

I also think it would interest "Mr. Enthusiast" and "Mr. Good Sportsman" to know that the S.O.E. captain congratulated the "ref." on the way he handled the game,—but the overtime if you have against him is that he was connected with the Duffs last year, so please let me repeat an old saying and a true one, "Never make a statement that you cannot substantiate," and in so refraining become really good sportsman, not look at one side only, but at both.

Yours truly,

THE RETURN OF TARZAN

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright 1913 by W. G. Chapman.

Tarzan had placed the finest markers of the tribe in the surrounding trees, with directions never to reveal themselves while the enemy was faced in their direction. As a black released his messenger of death he would sink back behind the sheltering stem of the tree he had selected, nor would he again aim until a watchful eye told him that none was looking toward his tree.

Three times the Arabs started across the clearing in the direction from which they thought the arrows came, but each time another arrow would come from behind to take its toll from among their number. Then they would turn and charge in a new direction. Finally they set out upon a determined search of the forest, but the blacks melted before them so that they saw no sign of an enemy.

But above them lurked a grim figure in the dense foliage of the mighty trees—it was Tarzan of the Apes, hovering over them as if he had been the abow of death. Presently a Manyema forged ahead of his companions; there was done to see from what direction death came, and so it came quickly, and a moment later these heeled savages did one long behind he never again was seen alive; did one stumble to one side even for a bare moment from the sight of his fellows he did not return, and always when they came upon the bodies of their dead they found those terrible arrows driven with the accuracy of supernatural power straight through the victim's heart. But worse than all else was the hideous fact that not once during the morning had they seen or heard the slightest sign of an enemy, other than the pitiless arrows.

When finally they returned to the village it was no better. Every now and then at varying intervals that were then in the terrible suspense they caused a man would plunge forward dead. The blacks besought their white masters to leave this terrible place, but the Arabs feared to take up the march through the grim and hostile forest beset with this new and terrible enemy while laden with the great store of ivory they had found within the village, but woe was theirs that they had to leave the ivory behind.

Finally the entire expedition took refuge within the thatched huts. Here, at least, they would be free from the arrows. Tarzan, from the tree above the village, had marked the hut into which the chief Arabs had gone, and balancing himself upon an overhanging limb, he drove his heavy spear with all the force of his giant muscles through the thatched roof. A howl of pain told him that it had found a mark. Then Tarzan returned to the forest, collected his warriors and withdrew a mile to the south to rest and eat.

An inspection of his force showed not a single casualty—not even a minor wound, while rough estimates of the enemies' loss convinced the blacks that no fewer than twenty had fallen before their arrows. They were wild with elation and were for finishing the day in one glorious rush upon the village, during which they would slaughter the last of their foes.

"You are crazy," Tarzan cried. "I have shown you the only way to fight these people. You will fight just as I tell you to fight or I shall leave you and go back to my own country."

They were frightened when he threatened this and promised to obey him scrupulously if he would but promise not to desert them.

"Very well," he said. "We shall return to the elephant boma for the night. I have a plan to give the Arabs a little taste of what they may expect if they remain in our country, but I shall need no help."

So they marched back to their camp of the previous night and, lighting great fires, ate and recounted the adventures of the day until long after dark. Tarzan slept until midnight, then he arose and crept into the Cimmerian blackness of the forest. An hour later he came to the edge of the clearing before the village. There was a camp fire burning within the palisade. The ape-man crept across the clearing until he stood before the barred gates of the village, and he saw a lone sentry sitting before the fire.

Quietly Tarzan went to the tree at the end of the village street. He climbed softly to his place and fitted an arrow to his bow. For several minutes he tried to sight fairly upon the sentry, but the waving branches and flickering firelight convinced him that the danger of a miss was too great. He must touch the heart full in the center to bring the quiet and sudden death his plan required.

He had brought beside his bow, arrows and rope the gun he had taken the previous day from the other sentry he had killed. Crouching all these in a convenient crotch of the tree, he dropped lightly to the ground within the palisade, armed only with his long knife. The sentry's back was toward him. Like a cat Tarzan crept upon the dozing man.

Tarzan crouched for a spring, for that is ever the quickest and surest attack of the jungle beast, when the man, warned by some subtle sense, sprang to his feet and faced the ape-man.

CHAPTER XIX.

Victory For the Waziri.

WHEN the eyes of the black Manyema savage fell upon the strange apparition that confronted him with menace, his knife went wide in horror. He forgot the gun within his hands. He even forgot to cry out. His one thought was to escape this fearsome looking white savage, this giant of a man upon whose massive rolling muscles and mighty chest the flickering firelight played.

But before he could turn Tarzan was upon him, and then the sentry thought to scream for aid, but it was too late. A great hand was upon his windpipe, and he was being borne to the earth. He battled furiously, but futilely. With the grim tenacity of a bulldog those awful fingers were clinging to his throat. Swiftly and surely life was being ebbed from him. His eyes bulged, his tongue protruded, his face turned to a ghastly, purplish hue. There was a convulsive tremor of the stiffening muscles, and the Manyema sentry lay quite still.

First he stripped the body across one of his broad shoulders and, gathering up the fellow's gun, trotted silently up the sleeping village street toward the tree that gave him such easy ingress to the palisaded village. He bore the dead sentry into the midst of the leafy maze above.

Then he stripped the body of cartridge belt and such ornaments as he craved, wedging it into a convenient crotch while his nimble fingers ran over it in search of the loot he could not plainly see in the dark. When he had finished he took the gun that had belonged to the man and walked far out upon a limb, from the end of which he could obtain a better view of the huts. Drawing a careful bead on the beehive structure in which he knew the Arabs to be, he pulled the trigger. Almost instantly there was an answering groan—Tarzan smiled; he had made another lucky hit.

Following the shot there was a moment's silence in the camp, and then Manyema and Arab came pouring from the huts like a swarm of angry hornets; but, if the truth were known, they were even more frightened than they were angry.

When they discovered that their sentry had disappeared their fears were in no way allayed, and as though to bolster their courage by warlike actions they began to fire rapidly at the barred gates of the village, although no enemy was in sight. Tarzan took advantage of the deafening roar of this fusillade to fire into the mob beneath him.

No one heard his shot above the din of rattling musketry in the street, but some, who were standing close, saw one of their number crumple suddenly to the earth. When they leaned over him he was dead. They were panic stricken, and it took all the brutal authority of the Arabs to keep the Manyema from rushing helter skelter into the jungle—anywhere to escape from this terrible village.

After a time they commenced to quiet down, and as no further mysterious deaths occurred among them they took heart again. But it was a short lived respite, for just as they had concluded that they would not be disturbed again Tarzan gave voice to a weird moan, and as the raiders looked up in the direction from which the sound seemed to come, the ape-man, who stood swinging the dead body of the sentry gently to and fro, suddenly shot the corpse far out above their heads.

MAJORS NEGOTIATE FOR BOBBY HECK

London Considers Offers From Mack and Somers, of Athletics and Cleveland.

Negotiations are under way for the purchase of Pitcher Bobby Heck, the best southpaw in the Canadian League.

For some weeks, his work has been watched very closely by big league scouts, and it is understood that two very flattering offers have been made for him.

The Cleveland team and the Champion Athletics are badly in need of twirlers. The former particularly need good pitching, and are scouring the county for promising material. Little information could be obtained as to what price would be paid, but it is understood that a large sum in cash or a smaller amount with a couple of pitchers and outfielders figure in the deal.

Of course, they want immediate delivery. It is figured that the lad is going at top speed at this minute, and on the form shown is ripe for the big show.

The directors held a meeting last night. Doc Reising left Brantford last night to take part in the deliberations. He wants to protect the team as much as possible, but he does not want to stand in the way of Heck's promotion. If the London club can get a couple of good twirlers, good enough to hold their own in Canadian League Company, Heck will go to the majors. They are in rather a bad position as the Reds are fitting with good men, and they might lose him without a chance to make a sou on his services. It could not be learned what action the club took on the matter.

Some big league scouts will look over the Eric-London series. Several good men have been tipped off, particularly Hammond and Beebe, of the pitching staff of the London club. Both are the right stamp, and will be taken away. Lamy, Whitecraft and Snyder had been mentioned in the dispatches also, and their work will be watched.

I have already told of the gr which the Black Hand raised fo fence of the counterfeiter. It a to at least $20,000, but the a money' actually spent in efforts about the acquittal of the Black members is a matter for gu The sum was enormous.

One of the best lawyers in the man once Governor of one of the States in the Union, was approv Black Hand agents. He was $10,000 to defend the counterfeite refused on the grounds that he them to go guilty.

The agents made every effort vice him that the Black Hand victims of a plot laid by the Sec vice to bring to the bar men wh be made the scapegoats for the counterfeiter. When the law fused again to take the case he ferred $20,000, but feeling that he be defending men he was certa criminals and not serving the interests of the government he ste decided to have anything to do

Agents of the Black Hand offered a member of the New Y loe force a generous sum of m allow Morello to escape while being transferred from the Prison to the court house, but liceman was honest and would listen to his tempters. The bri doubled, but still it was not as and Morello went to jail. BAKING POWDER

"Digestible!"

Cakes and pastry made with White Powder are not only whiter and they are much more digestible than with the common baking powders. Purity and excellence. White Swan powder has led them all for 17 years.

"Wins success for you."

Order it from your grocer in 10c. or 25c. tins.

Scientific Reasons

White Swan Baking Powder is a phosphate—not an Alum Baking Powder. Whenever alum is used in the kitchen, it is changed chemically and becomes Sulphate of Soda, which is injurious to the health, producing indigestion and other internal irritations. That is why many people cannot eat hot biscuits without ill effects.

White Swan Baking Powder contains a bone-building substance, highly recommended by physicians.

Justice George W. Ray, Who Presided at the Black Hand Trial

Fac-Simile of Threatening Letter Sent to Judge Ray

Salvatore Saitto, Who Was Kidnaped

The First Man to Pass the Doorway Staggered Back, Pale and Trembling.

THE grip of the Black Hand was not broken by the arrest of Lupo, Morello and six of their aids. The vicious fingers of the society which were striving furiously to throttle the law were loosed in their hold, but they did not let go. Perhaps the most difficult phase of the long battle against the lawless Sicilians was to convict them. Morello and Lupo had kept themselves so well guarded in the background throughout the operations of the counterfeiters that it was difficult to connect them with the making or passing of the spurious money. Morello was the hardest to reach. He was the brains of the organization and Lupo was his personal representative.

Morello was imaginative. Lupo was practical and carried out Morello's ideas. Between them and the men who printed the bogus notes and "pushers of the queer," or those who put the money into circulation, were a dozen different agents. How the Black Hand crimped with justice gives a clear idea of the power and organization of the society and the length to which its members will go to defeat the ends of justice.

January 23, 1910, the trial of the Black Handers opened in the United States Court for the Southern District of New York, before Judge George W. Ray, in the Federal Building, New York city.

ing calling Abel I. Smith many things which would not look well in print and promising him that if the prisoners were convicted he would be killed before they had been transferred to the federal prison. At the bottom was a similar attack on Judge Ray and at the other side threats and curses against me. A facsimile of the letter is reproduced on this page, but the attacks against us have been obliterated because it would not be decent to reproduce them.

In view of the threats which were made against the witnesses and officials of the government, the court room during the trial of the Black Handers was well guarded by armed Secret Service men and policemen in plain clothes. Every known Black Hand in the court room was under surveillance. Violence was forestalled, but even the large force of armed officers in the room could not effectively stamp out the dreaded "omertà," or Sicilian death sign. This is one of the forces for evil most dreaded by the police and the Secret Service, for it will induce an eye witness while on the stand to swear that he knows nothing whatever about a crime.

When a witness takes the stand he may see this sign from a score of different points in the court room, and there is no effective way to battle against it. Even though a Secret Service man sees a person in the court room make the sign and evicts him, the damage has already been done. Witnesses have been known to falter, stammer in their speech. Feel and faint from apparently no cause whatever. When revived they have appeared dazed and, no matter what their testimony before, have sworn that they were ignorant of the facts surrounding the case.

Comito, the man who worked the presses for the counterfeiters in the stone house at Highland, was the star witness for the government in the trial of Lupo, Morello and the other Black Handers. He it was who confessed to me the entire plot of the counterfeiters, gave me all their names and supplied facts which enabled me to arrest the leaders, with a fair certainty of convicting them. I have told in a previous article how the Black Hand tried to wreak vengeance on Comito when they learned that he had confessed to me and how I had him carefully guarded every hour of the day and night.

At the date set for the opening of the trial approached, Comito showed signs of worry. I found him lapsing into fits of dreaming from which he would avenge himself with a start. His face became haggard and peaked. He stammered little and I knew what was on his mind.

The shadow of the Black Hand was menacing him. The vengeance of the men with whom he had lived in the little stone house was very real to him and

The Eight Prisoners Gazed Tranquilly but Grimly at "Comito the Sheep."

"IT IS THE SIGN OF DEATH!"

Then she became hysterical and was carried out.

The witness paled, tottered to his feet and sank to the floor, a huddled mass of senseless humanity. When he was revived he swore that he knew nothing of the crime and that he could tell absolutely nothing which would throw light on the kidnapping of the boy or the movements of the two other accused men.

The trial was purposely allowed to drag for a few days until the excitement subsided and the other witnesses became reassured and recovered from the fright produced by the dramatic episode.

Rosina Martinese, the woman who had really caused Leonardo's proposed confession, was escorted to the court by a number of policemen. Every effort was made to give her a feeling of safety and security. The last statement she made before taking the stand was that she did not fear the Black Hand and that she would tell her story from start to finish.

The first part of the testimony involved only minor details and referred to unimportant members of the band who were not guilty of the actual kidnapping. At last in answering questions she told of a man, whom she did not name, who had literally stolen the child, Salvatore Saitto.

"Who was this man?" asked Assistant District Attorney O'Connor.

A name was on the lips of Rosina Martinese. Suddenly her eyes bulged. Mimi San Filippo had leaned forward and drawn his fingers across his throat. Rosina Martinese faltered. Her voice died away in a feeble quaver.

With an effort she collected herself. One hand wildly clutched her throat. Her breath came in shaken sobs, but it was too late to recede, she thought. Her one hope now was to send to prison the men who sought to take her life.

As she was about to proceed with her testimony there was a loud hissing sound from the middle of the court room. All eyes turned for an instant toward the point from which the sound seemed to come. In that moment Secret Service men saw a Sicilian among the spectators make the dreaded sign which spelled death to those who knew it.

Rosina's knees smote together. She staggered backward and would have fallen but court attendants supported her and led her away.

"By the merciful God in heaven!" she shrieked, "I swear I do not know about this man. By the sacred grave of my mother I vow I know nothing of the matter. I know nothing and can tell nothing. I swear it! I swear it!"

Women in the court room became hysterical. Men turned pale, and there was a dramatic silence, which seemed the more deathlike after the violent scene which had just been enacted.

As for Rosina Martinese, she was in a stupor of terror. At the slightest sound she cowered and started about wildly. To all questions, entreaties, threats, she replied, dazedly:

"I do not know. I do not know. By the sacred grave of my mother I swear it! I do not know."

Her valuable testimony was lost to the State because of the dreaded omertà, one of the most powerful weapons of the Black Hand.

Many letters had been received threatening the lives not only of the judge, the prosecuting attorney and myself, but of many of the witnesses. Of course, these letters were regarded for the most part as mere threats which would never be carried out, and which were sent with

THE DREADED SICILIAN DEATH SIGN WHICH FRIGHTENED COMITO.

It was the dreaded Sicilian death sign. The tongue of Comito the Sheep clung to the roof of his mouth. His eyes fell, his voice faltered. The blood surged into his temples, then receded, leaving him pale and shaken. I feared the man would collapse, but he was made of sterner stuff than I had given him credit for. He fought down the fear he could not be blamed for feeling and continued his testimony in a calm voice.

Comito's courageous act was a deadly blow to the hopes of the Black Hand, for they had counted on intimidating him.

All witnesses are not so hard to frighten. There were others on whose testimony we had built hopes, but who failed us. Some could not even brave the hateful glaring of the sixteen eyes from the prisoners' box.

New York police courts have seen many other cases of the omertà. In the winter of 1907 Salvatore Saitto, a boy eleven years old, was kidnaped and his father was told to pay a certain amount of money by a stated time or the child would be killed. Secret Service men who had gained admittance to the councils of the Black Hand—some of those men whose names I must so sedulously guard—furnished evidence which resulted in the arrest of Pietro Panpaniella, Ignazio Leonardo and Mimi San Filippo.

Rosina Martinese, a woman close to the leaders of the band, was led into making a confession which implicated all three of the prisoners.

Leonardo was told of this and to save his own skin consented to turn State's evidence, confess his own share in the kidnapping and send his companions to prison. While Leonardo was on the witness stand, Panpaniella sat leaning slightly forward, his hands clasped, elbows resting on a table and chin propped in hands. Scarcely had the witness uttered the first words of his testimony when Judge O'Sullivan and Assistant District Attorney O'Connor saw Panpaniella, without change of facial expression and without unnecessary motion, crook the index finger of his right hand and for scarcely a fraction of a second grip it between his teeth. Few in the court room saw the action. Those who did probably gave it no thought. It was as though the strand of a cobweb had blown across his line, and he was brushing it away. Only those who chanced to be looking into Panpaniella's eyes caught there an expression of ferocity.

A woman somewhere in the room screamed:

I have already told of the great fund which the Black Hand raised for the defense of the counterfeiters. It amounted to at least $500,000, but the amount of money actually spent in efforts to bring about the acquittal of the Black Hand members is a matter for guesswork. The sum was enormous.

One of the best lawyers in the city, a man once Governor of one of the largest States in the Union, was approached by Black Hand agents. He was offered $100,000 to defend the counterfeiters, but refused on the grounds that he believed them to be guilty.

The agents made every effort to convince him that the Black Handers were victims of a plot laid by the Secret Service to bring to the bar men who could make the scapegoats for the failure of the government to apprehend the real counterfeiters. When the lawyer refused again to take the case he was offered $250,000, but feeling that he would be deceiving men he was certain were criminals and not serving the best interests of the government he steadfastly declined to have anything to do with the case.

Agents of the Black Hand society offered a member of the New York press a generous sum of money to allow Morello to escape while he was being transferred from the Tombs Prison to the court house, but the politician was honest and would not listen to his tempters. The bribe was doubled, but still it was not accepted, and Morello went to trial. The man who was offered this bribe will be very much surprised to read that I knew of it.

Letters threatening death and worse were sent to many of those connected with the trial. One went to Judge Ray.

"If Lupo, Morello and their companions are not liberated you will die like a dog. We have killed better men than you or Smith or Flynn."

Abel I. Smith was the Assistant District Attorney who prosecuted the counterfeiters.

Another letter mailed to Judge Ray was even more typical of the Black Hand methods of attack. The address was: "The Court, Post Office, New York, U. S. Post Office, New York."

The envelope was a sheet of paper which was drawn in ink a large X which was pierced by a stiletto. At each end of the sheet was a revolver. Dotted lines from the muzzles of these weapons traced the course of the bullets which would pierce the heart at either side.

Through the heart was a skull and bones and beneath that a black hand. At one side was a strip of writ-very terrible. He knew of stronger men than himself who had been struck down. He knew the authors of a dozen murders which were hidden to the police of New York or of Italy and he quivered with fear under the menace of the Black Hand.

Every ounce of force and energy I had at my command I threw into the effort to make Comito feel that with Uncle Sam as his protector he had nothing to fear. The Sheep assured me that he would testify at the trial, but I knew the anguish it cost him and the fright he was having to overcome his natural fears. It is to his credit that his courage won out.

He was escorted to and from the court room by a squad of men and he knew that before the hand of an assassin could reach him a dozen pairs of hands would be raised in his defence.

When Comito was called as a witness I sat near him, never more than a couple of feet away.

It was not that he thought my person any protection, but to him I represented a force for law and order stronger than the Black Hand, a force before which the powerful society quailed and ran to cover.

When Comito was called there were eight counterfeiters in the prisoners' box—Lupo the Wolf, Giuseppe Morello, Giuseppe Callicchio, Giuseppe Palermo, Antonio Ceccia, Salvatore Cina, Nicola Spivestre and Vincenzo Giglio.

As the Sheep took the witness chair eight pairs of eyes glared at him from the prisoners' box. Calm were the prisoners, but their eyes burned into his and never wandered from his face. At first Comito did not seem to mind, but as counsel asked him question after question and, no matter what the answer, eight pairs of eyes continued to stare fiercely into his face, he began to become fascinated. He could not let his own eyes wander from those of the men who gazed so ceaselessly at him. Each face was tranquil but grim, and Comito knew what it meant.

A man in the middle of the room, seated among the spectators, leaned forward, his right elbow on his right knee. Long and hard he stared at Comito. It may be he was trying to attract the witness' attention by staring at him, it may be he was only waiting until Comito should turn his way. At any rate the eyes of the Sheep wandered from the prisoners and rested on the dark visage of the man among the spectators. Quick as a flash his hand flew to his face. He doubled his fist, bending the index finger outward and gripping it in his teeth. A look of indescribable ferocity came into his eyes, accentuated by the almost grotesque lines about the mouth caused by inserting the crooked index finger.

the intent of sealing in fright the lips of the emotional Italians, but my men—again those invaluable men of mystery who are enrolled in the highest councils of the Black Hand—brought the news of serious attempts to murder witnesses.

Officials of the government and of the police were offered large sums of money to connive matters so that Comito would be for only a few minutes accessible to the agents of the society. I myself could have made a comfortable sum by letting the case be won by the defence.

One night when the court room was cleared of principals and spectators a score or more of ball cartridges were found scattered over the floor under the seats occupied by spectators and witnesses. This was, of course, a warning that death awaited those who testified against the prisoners. It frightened many of them, but it did not seriously affect the case.

On certain days the witnesses went to the Marshal's office for their fee when court was adjourned. In this office was a large divan for the comfort of witnesses fatigued from a trying ordeal on the stand. This room was as carefully guarded as all the others which were used in any capacity in connection with the trial.

One evening a witness, a man whose name I do not recall, stepped into the room ahead of the others. Suddenly he uttered an exclamation of fright in Italian. Involuntarily throwing up his hands he started back against those behind him. Several pushed by him to enter the room, muttering against his strange action. The next man to pass through the doorway staggered back, pale and trembling. Those who could not see into the room pressed forward for a time, but as the terror of those in front took hold of them they fell into a panic and rushed into the corridor.

Secret Service men pushed their way into the marshal's office. On the divan lay a glittering stiletto. Its keen, highly polished blade, double edged, was seven inches long. The handle was ivory, inlaid with gold.

There it lay, an inanimate object, placed on the divan by the hand of man, yet the most terrible of supernatural phenomena could not have struck more terror to the hearts of our Italian witnesses.

When all the testimony was in the jury brought in a verdict of guilty on two of the six charges made against the counterfeiters. The case was appealed, but the Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the verdict of Judge Ray's court. The nature of the case is very briefly summarized in a brief sent to the Circuit Court of Appeals. It reads in part:—

"The record presents a counterfeiting scheme of very large magnitude. It is a fact, of which this Court will take judicial note, that in this case we have the most extensive criminal enterprise that has been before the Court for years. The pursuit of such an enterprise involves stealth and the utmost discretion; it also necessarily involves the participation of a number of co-workers. Of course, the different participants perform different functions. Some must do the mechanical work of engraving and printing, others must market the illicit money and be behind these are the guiding leaders in the enterprise. By the very fact of their leadership they are most removed from the mere physical acts of counterfeiting and thus safeguard themselves from immediate contact therewith."

Giuseppe Morello was sentenced to twenty-five years imprisonment and fined $500; Ignazio Lupo, the Wolf, was sentenced to thirty years and fined $500; Giuseppe Callicchio must serve seventeen years in prison and he was fined $800; Giuseppe Palermo's sentence was eighteen years and his fine $1,000; Antonio Ceccia was fined $1,000 and sent to prison for fifteen years; Salvatore Cina was sent to prison for fifteen years and fined $1,000; Vincenzo Giglio was sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment and fined $1,000.

Will Be No Monopoly Of Temperance For Rowell Is View Of Methodists

London Methodists in Conference at Sarnia Resent Efforts Made By Rowellites—A Stormy Session Was Held.

SARNIA, June 9—By what was approximately a "three-fifths" majority, London Methodists conference passed the clause of the temperance committee report, which gave endorsement to the Rowell policy. That point was only reached after a two-hours' debate that at times was of the warmest character and after several amendments had been proposed, discussed and voted down. It was evident throughout the debate that there was a strong feeling against mixing the conference with party politics, and the number voting against the report was large.

The temperance report was divided into three clauses. The first gave praise to "new temperance legislation which while conservative enough, is still in the right direction." This was carried without discussion.

The second clause declared against the licensing system and the bar generally and urged all Methodists regardless of party affiliations to cast their ballots in favor of closing the bar. Had this closed the recommendations of the committee there would have been little debate, but the third clause was no sooner read than objections began to come. The third clause was as follows: "That, inasmuch as the temperance people of the province have for many years been asking for the abolition of the bar, and inasmuch as Mr. Rowell, leader of the Opposition, has, by asking the abolition of the bar, completely estranged the whole liquor interests from his banner and thrown upon us the responsibility of its continuance, we deem it the duty of all Methodists and all Christians and all temperance people to support this policy which is undoubtedly the most far reaching temperance legislation that has yet been offered us."

A Strong Objection. As soon as this clause had been read Mr. W. S. Dingman of Stratford, one of the most prominent laymen, arose to his feet.

"I desire to protest," he said, "against any resolution being passed in this conference, which classes one of our parties as opposed to the elimination of the liquor traffic. I do that because I have some standing on that side and speak in all good conscience. In the Conservative party there is a large and influential element—the predominant element—that is no friend of the liquor traffic, desires no identity with it, and repudiates the suggestion that it is allied with the liquor traffic although that implication is practically conveyed in this resolution. And that implication is conveyed by Mr. Rowell and his friends when they make use of expressions like 'Whitney and whisky.'"

"The Conservative party includes many good Methodist laymen and I know from my own personal knowledge that the Conservative party is not going to be driven into being the whisky party. That has been the endeavor of Mr. Rowell and his friends, but it is not good statesmanship.

Refuses Liquor Advertisements. "For myself, I might say I have decided upon the exclusion of liquor advertisements from the columns of my newspaper, but in the columns of my contemporary supporting Rowell's policy I see the very advertising contracts which I have refused and others with them. I say that no Methodist conference has a right to interfere as this resolution does. If you look over the recent nominations you will see men on Mr. Rowell's side who are not Tories in spirit and you will see Tories in spirit on a program of advanced legislation in this regard. I am among those pushing for an advanced stand. We are no friends of the liquor interests. I would ask you whether Mr. Rowell is able to deliver the goods or if he will deliver the goods. There is too much evidence of insincerity behind Mr. Rowell. Mr. Rowell himself may be sincere though he might have displayed more zeal in the days of Ross.

A Big Question. In my belief the abolition of the bar is a question that will not be settled off-hand and it is better to progress along the lines on which we are now proceeding with amendments that I and other Conservatives are ready to urge upon the Government."

Mr. Dingman concluded by moving the elimination of clause three of the report and the substitution of the following to supplement clause two: "Provided, however, that this conference does not judge the conscience of individuals as to choice of Methodists to attain this end. Respect must be paid to varying opinions of honest men on a difficult question so long as pursuit of the objective is sincere, hearty and sustained."

Mr. Dingman further moved that the resolution passed by the laymen be adopted as the position of the whole conference.

This motion was seconded by Rev. J. E. Ford, of Goderich, who expressed the opinion that the temperance committee was going out of its way to create campaign literature for a political party. He thought it was possible to present a report which would state the attitude and position of the conference clearly without committing the conference and people to a certain party.

"Surely we have conscience enough to weigh this matter," he said, "without passing resolutions that appear like campaign literature."

Mr. Manning's View. Rev. Dr. Manning, of Stratford, also criticized the position taken by the report.

"We are all agreed," he said, upon getting rid of the drinking as quickly as possible, but we are not all agreed as to the best way and this resolution throws right before us the methods of the two parties. This expresses pleasure at what one party has done and then tells our people to support the other. We should leave this question to every man. This whole thing is unwise."

Rev. W. H. Harvey, of London, said that while united on the end there was much difference of opinion on methods to reach that end. The abolition of the bar was not the aim of the Methodist church, but rather the complete wiping out of the drink traffic. He questioned if the clause was wise, thought the amendment was better, but doubted if either were satisfactory.

Mr. Malott Agrees. Rev. F. E. Malott, of St. Marys, expressed the view that clause two was all that was necessary, and felt that nothing said in clause three could drive one man from his party to another.

Rev. C. W. Edwards, of Highgate, and Rev. W. E. Pescott, of Windsor, both supported the clause in the report. Mr. Edwards said that resolutions had been passed in other years, and it was not right to be silent now because an election was imminent. He thought it was time the church lined up and did business. Mr. Pescott said that the temperance people had turned down Ross because the dice were loaded. He said the dice were loaded again to-day, and in the interests of the liquor people. He believed that Mr. Rowell would do what he had promised if he were given the men, but he could only get them by getting right support from temperance people.

"Some of these addresses are intended to divide these conferences on political lines," was the opening statement of Rev. W. H. Graham, of Sarnia. "I submit that this is a serious position to take in a problem so vital to the interests of the people of Canada."

Not the Church's Policy. "I say the position enunciated in

SUNSHINE FURNACE Call and see the Gas Heating Combination. Instantaneous effect, perfect results, no gas fitting required when once installed, thereby saving from 5 to 10 dollars each season changing rates. Practical demonstration cheerfully given by Richard Feely 48 Market St. - Phone 708 Sheet Metal Works clause three is not the policy of our church. The position of the Methodist church is the abolition of the liquor traffic, and it would be wise for this conference to stop at clause two. I approve the moderate nature and sanity of Dingman's resolution, and if we properly realize the nature of the position we should take to-day it is not the side of any political party."

Rev. C. P. Wells of Comber believed that the position taken by the Dominion Alliance, was the safer, namely, to refuse to be cast into the arms of any political party. Rev. E. G. Powell, of Exeter, defended the clause and charged that at the South Huron Conservative convention he had been told by the chairman that no Methodist preacher and no fanatic would be allowed to create dissensions there.

An amendment to eliminate clause three entirely was proposed and lost. Mr. Dingman's amendment was next proposed and defeated. Then Rev. J. E. Ford, of Goderich, proposed that clause three be referred back to the committee with instructions to eliminate the names of party leaders and all party slogans. He said he believed a strong pronouncement could be made, emphasizing the principles for which Methodism stands, but he doubted of Mr. Rowell carrying the banner of Methodism.

A Slur. Mr. Ford expressed particular objection to the portion of the clause which intimated that the liquor interests had left the Liberal party and allied themselves entirely with the Conservatives.

"That is a slur that should not be given out by this conference," he said. "If the committee was moved that the liquor party has been rounded up by the Conservatives."

Rev. W. H. Graham of Sarnia also pressed the point.

"Who gave this committee authority to say that Mr. Rowell's policy had completely estranged the liquor interests," he said. "They cannot prove that. If they could prove it, I would vote for the clause."

Mr. C. W. Austin of Catham, a prominent layman, held that it was impossible for the conference to direct how men should vote. He challenged the statement that the Conservative party was allied with the liquor interests. As also the claim that Mr. Rowell was the only man who had taken his life in his hands on the liquor question. It was a matter upon which men might honestly differ, but the temperance committee proposed that no man should think for himself.

Mr. Austin remarked on the fact that the Liberal candidate at Chatham on Saturday had pledged himself only to follow Mr. Rowell if the latter were elected to power. He thought the whole report should be sent back to the committee for reconstruction.

A Big Mistake. Mr. F. Buchanan of Wingham, was also opposed to the clause. "What do you take the people for?" he asked. "Do you think you are going to wheedle them into line with this resolution. We are making a big mistake if we let this clause go through. I know what I am talking about."

The proposal to refer the clause back to the committee was lost. Rev. C. W. Edwards then proposed that the portion of the clause relating to the estrangement of the liquor interests from the Rowell forces be eliminated. This was also defeated. The original motion to adopt the clause in full was then put and was declared carried.

The debate was the liveliest that has been seen in ondon Conference for a long while. President Hazen had his hands full maintaining the order and dignity of the debate, but succeeded admirably. There was an amusing incident during the debate, one in particular creating much laughter, when during a sudden pause in the debate, this dialogue floated from a front seat: Calls it Independent

First voice—"That is an independent resolution." Second voice—"I tell you it's a Grit statement."

There was considerable discussion after adjournment as to the wisdom of the course taken. The opposition thus developed during the debate represented a large element of the conference, both lay and clerical.

Boy Knight Notes

Last week was a record one for Boy Knight work in this city, 14 new members were added to the enrollment, renewed activity being shown all along the lines. The Imperial Shield competition will be shot off on June 22nd, an officer of the 25th Dragoons supervising it. Athletic work of all kinds is in preparation for the carnival under various leaders. The ladies are also taking an important part in this event.

On Monday evening, a senior branch was instituted at the armories, to be known as the Knights of St. Luke, which will be open to men of all ages who wish to become members. The membership will consist of three classes, active, associate and honorary. All honorary members must be 30 years old or over, and will be eligible to serve on trustee board or assist in work as they desire.

A number of members were advanced to the second degree, and at parade Tuesday evening, H. Cook-shutt, N. Row, A. W. Barham and others received the third degree, that of faithfulness.

Plans are under way for completing the present building so as to be in shape for the coming season's work. An addition of 40 feet by 25 feet will be added on, in which bath, store room, kitchen and other conveniences will be included. The boys are looking forward to camp, which will be held the last of July and first week in August. It is expected that there will be 80 Boy Knights at camp.

PASTOR ALDRICH

Delivered an Impressive Address at Colonial Theatre Last Sunday.

You could have heard a pin drop Sunday afternoon in the Colonial theatre while Pastor Aldrich of New York was pointing out the Bible significance of the present-day inventions and discoveries. He views the marvelous influx of light during the past few years as a precursor of the wonderful blessings soon to be extended to mankind in general. Acts 3:19-21 was quoted: "Times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord, and He shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you, whom the heavens must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began."

Who can fail to see that times of refreshing are already present? It would be almost an endless task to enumerate the means of refreshment that have been developed within the last 50 years. Many working men to-day live in more grandeur and enjoy more convenience than did the wealthy of a century ago. In fulfillment of bible prophecy, "the desert shall bloom as a rose," we see irrigation accomplishing this very thing, transforming the hot sands into luxuriant gardens. There is much talk of flooding even the Great Sahara and of thus transforming it into a fertile Nile. "They shall say this land is become like the Garden of Eden."
