Saturday's Race Called Off.

Lack of Wind Saves Shamrock IV From Defeat—Lipton Disappointed in Burton—German Prince Suicides—South African Wins King's Prize.

RACE CALLED OFF—NO WIND, SANDY HOOK, July 17. After having left Shamrock Four, challenger for America's cup, about 10 miles behind in to-day's international cup race, the Defender failed because of lack of wind to finish within the six hour time limit and the race was called off after about twenty miles had been covered.

DEFENDER WELL AHEAD—LIPTON TO CHANGE CAPTAINS, SANDY HOOK, July 18.

The expiring of the sailing time limited the Lipton challenger Shamrock from apparent defeat at the hands of the cup defender Resolute in the second meet yesterday of the regatta for America's cup. The defender put more than a half hour's sailing between her and the challenger, and was breezing home under main, club topsail and balloon jib, when the race was officially declared off at 10 o'clock. Under the rules the forty mile triangular course had to be covered within six hours by the leading yacht. Sir Thomas Lipton plans to take Captain Wm. Burton from the helm of the cup challenger Resolute.

A HOHENZOLLERN SUICIDE. BERLIN, July 18. Prince Joachim of Hohenzollern, youngest son of the former Emperor William, committed suicide to-day at Potsdam.

WINNER OF KING'S PRIZE. BISLEY CAMP, July 17. The winner of the King's Prize, Sgt. Morgan, is a South African and belongs to the Witwaters Rand Rifles. He visited Bisley as a cadet in 1903. South Africa he is employed in the mines as an electrician. He served during the war first in West Africa, and under General Smuts in East Africa. His aggregate of twenty-eight points was better than Lovessay of New Zealand, last year's prizeman, secured.

Fisherman Was Forced to Give Up Work Altogether

Lidstone Says Tanlac Restored His Health And He is Now Back On Job Feeling Fine.

"Well, sir, I never dreamed there was a medicine that could make me feel as well and strong as this Tanlac has," said Arch Lidstone, a well known fisherman living at 23 Young Street, St. John's, Newfoundland. "For more than six years I suffered from chronic indigestion and stomach trouble, and lost my appetite almost completely. Even what little I did manage to eat caused me such intense pains that they nearly doubled me up, and after almost every meal I became so nauseated I couldn't retain a thing I had eaten. I was troubled a lot with constipation, had severe pains in the small of my back, and suffered constantly from dizziness. There were black spots floating before my eyes nearly all the time, and I couldn't even walk up hill without having to stop and rest. I always felt weak and worn out, and finally had to give up my work altogether.

"I read where Tanlac was helping so many others in a similar condition to myself that I could see no reason why it shouldn't help me also, so I got a bottle and found it to be the very thing I needed. My appetite picked right up, and I haven't been nauseated or had a bit of trouble in retaining my food since I first started on the medicine. My stomach no longer troubles me, I'm free from those dizzy attacks, and never have a pain of any kind. I'm feeling so strong and full of energy that I'm back on the job again, and I give Tanlac all the credit for putting me in such good health."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleoram; John Morey, Fermeuse; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renewe.—adv.

Will Greece Get Cyprus?

(Boston Sunday Herald.)

The famous Island of Cyprus will certainly be ceded to Greece if the Cypriotes themselves are allowed to decide the question. Representatives of the Greek Christian population, headed by their archbishop, are in London at present petitioning the British Government to reunite Cyprus with their mother country. The relationship is ancient. Long before the Christian era Cyprus was colonized by the Greeks, and unless the little Mediterranean land that became sacred to the worship of Aphrodite is truly Greek there is nothing Hellenic in Hellas. Wars and invasions were many, but the Greek race survived in the home of the Paphian Venus. Not even three centuries (1570-1878) of Turkey's barbarous tyranny could exterminate Greek nationalism, and in the latter year a better time began with the cession of Cyprus to Britain for administrative purposes, the Sultan receiving an annual tribute of $464,000.

When Turkey entered the world war in November, 1914, the British formally annexed the island by proclamation, but in October, 1915, they offered to cede it to Greece if she would join the allies for the defence of Serbia. The Zaimis cabinet, controlled by King Constantine, declined the offer, but when that treacherous monarch lost his throne 15,000 Cypriotes hurried to join Venizelos and the allies at Salonica. And now a great majority of the islanders, the Greek Christians, plead for union with Greece. The census of 1911 gave their number as 214,490, and that of the Turks as 56,428. Though the British have greatly improved Cyprus by reforestation and by the construction of roads, railways and the excellent harbor at Famagusta, possession of it does not pay, and an annual grant of $250,000 is made for its administration and development. But if Greece is willing to bear the cost, in consideration of being able to count the Cypriotes among her people and to raise her flag on the third largest island of the Levant, there does not appear to be any reason why the British Government should deny the islanders their wish.

Hot July.

"Then came hot July, boiling like to fire,
That all his garments he had cast away;
Upon a lawn raging yet with ire
He bellowed, 'Ho, you make him obey!'"
So wrote the poet Spencer more than three hundred years ago. His description still holds good, not only of July in England, but of July in Canada as well, of which, of course, he knew nothing. "July boiling like to fire" is undoubtedly strong, but many a man, "pitching on" in the hayfield or "mowing back" the last load that just fits in under the barn-roof, will not think it a bit too strong or in any way exaggerated. July gives us heat and it is well that it does so, for without that heat how could the hay be made, or the grain crops ripened, or the Indian corn forced ahead?

To the heat of July we owe an old tradition which still had a place in the household calendar. It is the tradition of "Dog Days," when, as some believe, dogs are more liable to go mad than at any other time, and when many diseases are prevalent and unusually virulent. For that whimsical notion we must thank the ancient Romans.

Their city, Rome, with their country, Italy, experience great heat in July. Near ancient Rome were extensive marshes, and the hot winds blowing over them into the city were not conducive to public health. The unhealthy summer they connected with the fact that at that season the star Canicula—the Little Dog—rose and set at about the same time as did the sun. They accordingly gave the name Dog Days to the period between July 3 and August 11. However, as years passed the movement of the stars threw Canicula and the sun out of phase. The time of their rising and setting no longer coincided, but Dog Days continued just the same and have come down to us with much of the meaning attached to them by the Romans more than two thousand years ago.

Our name of the month we also derive from the Romans. Originally it was the fifth month in the Roman calendar and, therefore, called Quintilis. It contained 30 days until the

Freeman's English Foods

A complete supply for your larder.

Custard Like Cream
Freeman's Custard, made according to directions, provides a creamy dish that softens the tartness of fruits. It is ideal for trifles, and as a hot sauce with puddings it is delicious.

Making Better Cakes.
There is nothing better for making cakes than Freeman's Egg Powder. It is an improvement upon eggs rather than a substitute for them; making cakes lighter and more digestible, and never "dry".

A Clear, Light Jelly.
The delightful cleanness and colour of Freeman's Jellies is the next best thing to their taste. There is absolutely no heavy sediment in a jelly made with Freeman's Jelly Crystals, and the flavours are true to the fruit.

A Comforting Drink.
There is no more comforting drink on a cold day than Freeman's Glass Lemon and hot water—as hot as you can drink it. Freeman's Glass Lemon is sweetened sufficiently for the average taste; it is made with real lemons by an entirely new process—a great advance on the old lemon crystal.

time of Julius Caesar, who felt a personal interest in it because it contained the anniversary of his birth which occurred on July 12, 100 B.C. He added a day to the month in the reformed calendar, and after his death, when his faithful general, Mark Antony, and his grand-nephew, Octavius, later known as Emperor Augustus, were pulling the Roman world, the name of the month was changed from Quintilis to Julius which we have slightly altered to July. And so our month of summer at its height is named after the Roman soldier, statesman and writer, who for strength of intellect and force of character stands out as one of the great men of ancient history.

Our Saxon ancestors in England had for the month a name of their own which meant something to them and corresponded to the place the month occupied in the life of the farm. They called it Hey Month, or hay month, "because therein they usually mowed and made their hay-harvest." The name would suit us now in Canada, Quintilis to Julius which we have slightly altered to July. And so our month of summer at its height is named after the Roman soldier, statesman and writer, who for strength of intellect and force of character stands out as one of the great men of ancient history.

What About the High Cost Of Living?

(Family Herald and Weekly Star.)

High prices are a result of the wastage of the war! Primarily speaking, that is a truism all will assent to. In a secondary sense there were, and are, other causes also.

The lowered production rate during and since the War was to blame to a considerable extent.

The misplacing of labor—employing labor elsewhere than on the land, or at other productive work, must also be reckoned in among the causes.

But no one can really doubt that the ex-Kaiser who made the War is responsible for the worry and inconvenience of the present, high cost of living.

The one fact that the War actually cost $210,000,000,000 shows how money was misplaced and values lost. Until that money is replaced, and the world's actual losses made up, we must expect financial troubles and anxieties.

How, for instance, can bread be cheap when, even before the war, the nations never had eight months' supply on hand, and we are producing millions upon millions less bushels of wheat than in 1913?

Russia used to export from 224,400,000 bushels in 1910, to double that in good years. She has exported none since that memorable August in 1914.

Hungary, Roumania and Bulgaria, from whence used mainly to come long strings of vessels laden with Danubian wheat, have not even yet been able to raise enough bread to keep their own people from starvation.

Central Europe, Italy and ravished France did not grow much more than one-third of their regular wheat supply last year.

How can bread become cheaper until the world produces enough for everyone to receive a full share, as it certainly did not last year—and, on account of a general shortage of farm labor, is unlikely to this year.

Why Sugar is Dear.

Sugar is tremendously dear and is becoming dearer, to the dismay of canners and of thrifty housewives who lay up fruit for the winter in their jars and bottles. How can we expect to have it otherwise?

It is rather fashionable to blame the refiner for the price, as well as for the shortage, although neither can properly be said to be his charges. The shortage is, in all probability due to the abstinence of certain jobbers, who, slipping in ahead of the wholesalers, or in the name of wholesalers, secure stocks, which are stored by in expectation of reaping a big profit out of consumers' needs.

According to the unchangeable laws of supply and demand, sugar will be dear until we produce as much raw sugar as we did in 1913, when

Children Like Grape-Nuts

The flavor appeals and the food builds.

Needs No Sugar

Give the youngsters Grape-Nuts at least once each day.

"There's a Reason"

retail prices of fine sugar were down to five and six cents a pound.

That year Germany exported 1,110,073 tons of sugar made from beets. She has given none since then to the world. Russia, exported some 1,600,000 tons.—Belgium, France and Holland together almost as much. None of these lands have sent us sugar since the war began. And no new sources of raw sugar have been discovered.

Similar statements may be made regarding iron and steel. Only in these cases the situation is aggravated by the fact that during the war no repairs to speak of were made upon the railroads, leaving immense arrears to be made up afterwards, and that tremendous quantities of metal were sent to the bottom of the sea, about all of which has now to be made up again.

Germany used to turn out 20,000,000 tons of steel ingots and France 5,000,000 tons, but has produced none for export since 1914.

What is going to bring down the prices of iron and steel, from locomotives to horseshoes, until we get back to the productive stage of early in 1914?

Cattle were killed off in prodigious numbers to feed the fighters, as well as by the fighters. To-day in Canada a good milch cow which before the war was worth say $40 to $60, brings from $90 to $125. The hay to feed them has risen from $10 to $25 or $30 a ton. Bran is worth $65 a ton instead of from $18. to $24. Farm labor is bringing rather more than three times its pre-war price when it can be had. Cans and pails are four times the old prices. And people wonder why milk and butter prices have advanced, and when they will go down!

Raw wool brings 35 cents, and over a pound, instead of fifteen to twenty-five.

Raw cotton used to sell at from 7 cents up, and has been selling up to over twenty, with the worst crop prospects ever, this spring, to make matters worse.

And wages have to be high to enable families to live at all.

What is to Be Done About It?

Can anything at all be done to bring down prices?

Just two things we can do to help! We can all help to produce more useful things. Grow something on every inch of ground there is. Make speculators cultivate the land they hold for building lots. Compel landowners to do something worth while with all they own. But can you do that without raising something like a civil war over the question of individual rights to do as one pleases?

Whether or no we shall have to grow more if we are to reduce prices! There is no getting over that!

We have to produce more in the factories, have less strikes and slack times, and get up a stronger community feeling, which insists upon contracts being filled, and bargains being kept up to.

Labor holds one of the keys to the situation; there can be no substantial reduction in the cost of living without the co-operation of labor. That is as clear as that the farmer must also be a great factor in solving the same situation.

If agriculture and labor do not cooperate to help us, prices cannot fall. That much is certain! Hon. Mr. Clynnes, in England, and Mr. Gompers in the United States, agree upon that.

And people must buy less extravagantly, as the single-handed Mr. Hoover reminds us, if they want to hurry on an era of lower prices. With a national candy-bill sixty per cent. higher than in 1913, how can we hope to get down sugar prices, with raw supplies short at any rate.

Or how can we hope to make up quickly the shortage of wool and cotton, if people insist upon having new spring suits, summer suits, fall suits and winter suits no matter how scarce and expensive the goods are?

High prices are parts of Nature's machinery for checking automatically the customary use of articles which have become scarce. If we are not deterred from purchasing by these prices, we pay the penalty in their continuance, or in still higher prices.

There can be no drop in prices which will be lasting and helpful unless it comes about naturally and in concordance with the laws of demand and supply.

Sane Opinion from U. S.

As an important metropolitan newspaper truly said:

"The public is pathetically willing to believe that price-cutting by a few department stores, accompanied by the contraction of loans and a selling movement in stocks and bonds, indicate that the peak of high prices has been passed. These surface symptoms, unhappily, prove nothing of the kind. Beyond doubt, there is a certain slack in prices which can be taken up. Manufacturers, middlemen, and retailers may have been receiving unnecessarily large profits, and the recent rebellion of a part of the buying public may have made it necessary to cut profits in order to sell at all. There has been a slight drop in the wholesale price of clothing. Certain wise merchants have realized that they would gain more on a quick turn over by keeping prices than they would save by keeping prices up with a slower turnover. If all retail merchants cut prices this advantage will disappear, and if price-cutting wars follow, the weaker merchants are likely to be ruined, with no permanent advantage to the consumer.

"Our thinking about prices is constantly bedeviled by the necessity of expressing them in terms of currency. The present wave of high costs, which is world-wide, is due to the loss of material wealth in the war, both directly and through the ordinary wastage which was not made good in wartime. This wastage must be made good before civilization can produce as large an annual income in the necessities of life as it did before the war. Until it is made good there will not be enough of the necessities and luxuries of life to meet the normal needs of this or any other country. The cost of living is not a money problem, it is a production problem."

Our own Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Dr. Tilmie, has said practically the same thing, over and over again. The Canadian Board of Commerce exists to demonstrate the truth that along with enlarged production must go an increased and fair economy if the desired end of low price is to be helped to advance.

Improvement Bound to Come.

For it need not be doubted that in time human industry and nature's resources will fill up the devastated corners, and the empty storages of the world. There will be bread enough to feed all cheaply when all the lands are again under full cultivation. Cattle and sheep, pigs and horses will be bred up to their former numbers after a time. Mines and fisheries will be in full productivity again beyond a doubt. We may have to pay somewhat higher rates than before, for probably wages needed to be raised in some cases in the interests of broader humanitarianism.

But the high cost of living is a temporary abnormal difficulty, caused by an abnormal, abominable war, for permitting which to develop the whole world has to pay. We have to guard against the recurrence of such an abomination, by cultivating a finer brand of Christian humanitarianism. Lower prices will come again to us, when they can represent positive standards of values."

If we want to hurry them along we can do so by speeding up production in all lines; by avoiding extravagant expenditure and practicing economy in all things; by paying honest wages; and by honestly earning wages.

But you cannot bring down prices by a conjuring trick, nor by process of law, any more than you can bring down the stars by throwing stones.

High prices result from a natural law of supply and demand, which is altogether beyond the reach of our skill or power. The nearer you can get to the equilibrium of these two—supply and demand—the closer you will get to fair prices. If supply is

Be a Jolly Tar.

A life on the ocean wave has many attractions for British youths. Boys between the ages of 15 and 17 are wanted in the Royal Navy. The lowest rating is sure of more than a pound a week pension when he has completed his service.

His food at the training school is liberal—biscuits and cocoa on turning out; for breakfast, coffee or tea—porridge on alternate days in winter months—butter and bread, fish, eggs, or some hot dish.

For dinner, fresh beef, mutton, pork, pickled beef, rabbit, or gammon, potatoes and either cabbage, carrots, turnips, onions, or parsnips, and a variety of puddings, tarts, and stewed fruits in the way of sweets.

Tea, with cake or bread with either jam, butter or marmalade, and supper of cocoa and bread, or biscuits, cheese and butter complete the daily menu.

Facilities are given for recreation both on board and ashore. Each training school has a band, while such games as bagatelle, chess, dominoes, cricket, hockey, rounders, football, and quoits are provided at the recreation ground on shore.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DON'T DO IT TWICE.

"Don't you dread packing?" I said to a new friend of mine, who was to make the move to her summer home in a few weeks. She has four children and each year she has to pack seven, eight or nine trunks besides a lot of other paraphernalia.

"No," she said. "I should think you would," I said. "There's nothing I detest more than packing."

Fairy Tales About Alleged Centenarians.

Latterly there have been a great many stories in the daily press concerning people who have lived to a remarkable age. For the most part these may be taken with a grain of salt. It is really marvellous how many old people get very old all of a sudden, and how very few centenarians can, by documentary or other real evidence, prove that they are as old as they claim to be. An excellent instance of this was that of Thomas Morris, a resident of New York, who is said to have died in his 117th year.

This statement in the press interested Mr. Arthur Hunter, the chief actuary of the New York Life, he being by his very profession naturally interested in knowing just how long people can really live. Mr. Hunter took the matter up with the Census Department and ascertained that Morris in 1910 gave the date of his birth as 1825 and his age as 75, yet ten years later he gave his age to the census man as 116, or an increase of 41 years over the period of ten calendar years.

Another well-known case is that of "Dad" Shell, of Kentucky, who all at once sprang into prominence as being 124 years old, the idea being to exploit him as a sort of a side show. However, he did not prove profitable as "the oldest living human being," and his son finally acknowledged that "Dad" was probably 95, but no older.

Another celebrated case is that of Old Parr, who, on account of his extreme old age, was given final resting place in Westminster Abbey. It was claimed that when he died in 1635 he had attained an age of 152 years. Now it so happens that there is no evidence whatever, except his own unsupported assertions that he had attained such an age.

Back in my reporter days I remember writing a story of an old Montreal Irishman who claimed to be in

THE PACIFIC.

The great Pacific ocean enjoys a well-earned fame; avoiding vain commotion, she plays her placid game. Day after day her waters roll by with dove like roar, while I and other squatters lie dreaming on the shore. No wild and angry breakers assail the brown-stone cliffs; no busy undertakers search on the beach for stiffs; for there's no wreck or ruin beside these gentle waves, and there is nothing doing in storms and sailors' graves. The woody old Atlantic that sways the eastern coast is nearly always frantic, a rough house is its boast. It rears around and thunders, and throws an hourly fit, until a voter wonders just what is eating it. Its rages are terrific, and boisterous its fun, unlike the mild Pacific that slumbers in the sun. I am a judge of oceans, I've studied them for long; they fill me with emotions that find their vent in song. And these Pacific waters my wearied soul enchant; they please my wife and daughters, likewise my maiden aunt.

SPEAKING ABOUT THE HIGH COST OF LIVING.

By Bud Fisher.

IN FREEDOM'S CAUSE.

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
C. T. JAMES, Editor

Monday, July 19, 1920.

Ample Details.

With the second race for America's Cup on Saturday called off because of lack of wind, and no possibility of either yacht finishing within the six-hour time limit, greater interest than ever now centres in the four possibilities which may have to be sailed. With the first win to the challenger's credit, Lipton's boat has to carry off two out of the four, while Resolute the defender has to cross the finish line ahead in three. It is possible, though not probable, that the New York Yacht Club's craft may win the three straight. The details of Saturday's contest showed all the advantages in favor of Resolute, which judging by the bulletins from Sandy Hook had Shamrock hopelessly outclassed, but such expressions may be the outcome of bias in favor of the Herreshoff construction. That something is wrong with the sailing of Shamrock is evident from the determination of Sir Thomas Lipton to make a change in his wheelman. In the start of Thursday's race yachtsmen said that Burton made the worst attempt to cross the line ever witnessed, and if the bulletins published to-day are any criterion, then with him at the wheel, Shamrock has no chance whatever of a decisive win.

One feature of the second race attempt is that there is no cause for complaint in the quantity of cabled particulars. In fact more attention is given to furnishing the press with a most minute description of an uncompleted race than was given out when Shamrock practically sailed the course alone on Thursday, on account of an accident to Resolute. Lack of wind on Saturday may have prevented a win for the defender. In any case it still leaves Shamrock one to the good, and who knows but that with a new hand at the wheel, it may make all the difference in the world. Here's still hoping that the green yacht will foam across the finish line in the next two races.

Symbolic Statue for Bowring Park.

We learn that Sir Edgar Bowring, with that devotion to Newfoundland, so characteristic of him, has had moulded a bronze statue symbolic of the Regiment. The statue which is seven feet, six inches in height, represents a Newfoundland soldier in full equipment, and is intended to be placed in Bowring Park as a memorial to the sons of Terra Nova, who gave their lives at the call of King and Country in the great war. The statue will be set upon a boulder of native stone and when erected will present a truly imposing appearance. Sir Edgar, who has so largely interested himself in securing for our Museum and city parks, so many trophies of the war, is to be highly congratulated on this most recent contribution to the heroism, patriotism and self-sacrifice of the men of the immortal Royal Newfoundland Regiment.

Prominent Divine Visits Museum.

Rev. Dr. MacKinnon, on Saturday, visited the Museum, and was deeply interested in everything that he saw, showing particular animation over the geological and other specimens exhibited, demonstrating and proving the wealth of Newfoundland, developed and undeveloped. Nothing escaped the keen eye of the reverend gentleman, who expressed himself well pleased with his visit and thanked the Museum officials who showed him around. The records, compiled by the historiographer, Mr. H. F. Shortis, interested him, and he spent some time in consulting their contents, and was so delighted that some day during the week, he proposes to pay another visit, accompanied by Mrs. MacKinnon. Such an examination and scrutiny by one who is so competent to make known from the platform and through the press the natural resources of Newfoundland as seen by himself, will have no small effect in making the outside world better acquainted with the Ancient and Loyal Colony.

Two Books.

The Story of Newfoundland, by Lord Birkenhead (Horace Marshall & Son, London.) When twenty-two years ago Messrs. Horace Marshall & Son were producing "The Story of the Empire Series" of small hand books, Lord Birkenhead, then Mr. F. E. Smith, contributed "The Story of Newfoundland" to the series, which gave in clear and concise detail the principal facts about Newfoundland up to 1898. Being long out of print and feeling that too little had been known of the Ancient Colony, notwithstanding all the histories and text books that had, subsequently as well as previously, been published, the author at the request of friends in the dominion and elsewhere and with the consent of the original publishers, has prepared a new and enlarged edition, bringing "The Story of Newfoundland" down to date. The present volume contains ten chapters, with maps and index, the former dealing with physical and political history, the latter the French Shore Question, Modern Newfoundland, the results of the English Colonial System, and much other information of benefit to the student, especially having the advantage of quick reference. The book is well bound and clearly printed and altogether possesses a value peculiarly its own. The price is five shillings ($1.25) net.

Looking Forward, by Rev. Hugh Pedley, B.A., D.D. (William Briggs, Toronto; retail S. E. Garland, St. John's). This novel for the Times should possess a particular interest for Newfoundlanders, because its author is so well known to them, being at present Pastor in charge of the Congregational Church of this city. The story relates the strange experience of Rev. Fergus McCheyne, a Presbyterian Minister brought up in a home where a very narrow and intolerant view of religion, other than that taught by the Presbyterian theology prevailed, but who afterwards saw the broader vision. The motif of the book is that of Church Union in Canada, and its title "Looking Forward" visualises the day when there shall be a united church in Canada. The story itself as the preface states, "is imaginative in its structure" and has a purpose which has been in the mind of the author for several years. Three books are comprised within the contents. (1) The Old Order, (2) The New Order, (3) Review and Result. Throughout the theme runs the thread of a very interesting love episode happily ending. The experiment by which the Rev. Fergus McCheyne projected himself ahead twenty-five years, is very skillfully particularised, and the dramatic force of the story will not fail to appeal to book lovers; apart from the attraction it will hold for those, who like the author, are advocates of church union for the greater glory of God and the extension of His Kingdom on Earth. "Looking Forward" is a book which should meet with a phenomenal demand, its style, diction and interest being calculated to grip and hold the reader from start to finish. Handsomely bound in green and gold lettering with a frontispiece from the original painting by G. Horne Russell, bibliophiles will find in it something far different from the usual type of semi-religious novels, and a study of its contents will be well worth the outlay involved. "Looking Forward" is a book with a mission.

On Two Counts.

A native of Harbor Grace, who recently returned from a foreign voyage, created a shindy at his home in the East End yesterday. It appears he does not like living in the Capital city, and in order to make a move got drunk and deposited all his furniture, including a sewing machine and stove out of doors. He was arrested by the police on a drunk and disorderly charge and to-day had to pay $2.00 for the offence, and for having liquor in his possession he was fined $100.00.

Do You Like Guest's Daily Poem?

We wonder if the thousands of Telegram readers who read the Just Folks poem by Edgar A. Guest, would not like the poet to know just how much they think of him? We believe they would. Suppose we give him a shower to show him our appreciation? He reaches the cookies of your heart—why not reach his? You can. It is simple. Here is the plan: Edgar A. Guest has a birthday on August 10, and we feel pretty sure that it will give him a lot of pleasure if every one of his readers sent him a little birthday greeting—either on a post-card or in a note mailed under a 2-cent stamp. Mail to Edgar A. Guest, care of the Telegram, so the notes can be packed all in one bundle and sent to the poet's home in time for his anniversary.

Police Court.

A drunk was fined $2.
A watchmaker of Water Street for driving his motor car on the wrong side of the road was fined $2 or 7 days.
A motorist for not having a tail light was fined $5 or 7 days.

Premises Taken Over.

Newman's premises in the West End, lately used by Baine Johnston & Co., and J. Taylor have been taken over by A. E. Hickman, Ltd., and will be used by them in their ever expanding business. It is not unlikely that the Company will engage in the coal trade, for which the premises are most suitable.

The Tower Enquiry.

The commission of enquiry into the Woodford A.M. charges held a session in the tower room of the Court House this forenoon when Mr. Woodford gave additional evidence and Mr. Howley, K.C., was also heard. The session adjourned till Thursday morning next, at 11 o'clock.

The Shore Fishery.

The Marine and Fisheries Department received the following message from Lunenburg:—"Weather calm and foggy; some traps at Lunenburg proper made good catches to-day; Last week most of the traps did well, but at Lord's Cove and Lorie's little for trawls. Approximate total catch to date 10,900 qts. Caplin plentiful in traps; none on shore. Traps at Point aux Gauls made good catches yesterday, the first for the season. Traps at Bonavista proper averaged 8 qts. each for this morning's haul. Hook and liners find fish scarce."

Susu Arrives.

S. S. Susu, Capt. Roberts, arrived from the Fogo mail service at 5 a.m. yesterday. The weather was fine during the entire trip and exceptionally warm, particularly on Wednesday and Thursday last. Capt. Roberts reports very little improvement in the fishery since last trip and that the trap voyage is far short of last year's at the date. Hook and liners are doing a little daily but at no place is there any great quantity of fish. The Susu brought the following passengers:—Miss Rendell, Mrs. Lorenzen, Rev. and Mrs. Baggs, K. Atwood, Mrs. Parsons, G. Way, H. Harnett, Mrs. A. Wolter, Miss E. Rideout, Miss L. Mews, Miss M. Miller and 3 in steerage.

Vice Royalty at Port aux Basques.

Magistrate Square wired the Game and Inland Fisheries Board from Port aux Basques this morning as follows:—"Governor General of Canada and suite of four here on salmon fishing tour."

"Digby's" Outward Passengers.

Digby sailed Sunday morning at 8 a.m. for Sydney, taking the following passengers:—Mrs. C. H. Emerson, Mrs. E. Scott, Mr. W. A. Tucker, Mr. L. B. Cronk, Mr. J. B. Drew, Mr. A. H. Neilson, Mr. J. W. Dewling, Mr. H. E. Wolfe, Mr. C. S. Williams, Mr. G. D. Scarborough, Mr. N. W. Laud, Mr. J. A. Basha, Mr. W. H. Parsons, Mr. J. F. Tobin, Mr. A. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. LeMessurier, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bartlett, Mr. L. M. Trask, Capt. E. Burke.

Personal.

Miss Alice Farnaux, graduate of the Boston School of Domestic Science, arrived by the S.S. Sable Island this morning on a vacation.
Mr. A. G. King of "Oura," who has been studying at Oxford, and arrived here by Digby, is leaving by the Prospero for New Bonaventure, T.E., to spend a vacation with his folks.
Mr. H. W. LeMessurier accompanied by his wife left by the Digby on a vacation to Chicago and other United States cities.

Schooner Sordello arrived at Botwood this morning.

No "Diamond Dust."

The Editor of the Baseball Column, being indisposed, suffering it is said from a nervous attack induced by the strain of adjudging last week's Limerick Competition, has not been able to sweep up any "Diamond Dust" for to-day's issue. We trust, however, that his illness will neither prove serious nor lengthy.

Sable I. Passengers.

The S. S. Sable Island arrived in port at 6 a.m. to-day, bringing the following passengers:—D. Bryan, A. Butt, Mrs. A. Butt, G. Buchanan, E. Elliott, Mrs. E. Elliott, Miss E. Furbux, Miss F. Guest, W. Henderson, W. Johnston, Robt. Kennedy, E. Mason, Nell S. Matherson, Mrs. M. Oka, Miss M. Oka, Ralph Parsons, J. F. Smith, Mrs. J. F. Smith, Sister Aidan, Sister Lionel, R. E. ## To-day's Messages.

SATURDAY'S RACE.

SANDY HOOK, July 17.
At one fifteen, the committee hoisted signals for a triangular course, the first leg of which was south east; second west by south; third north by east half east.

The signal was shown at one thirty for a start at one forty.

Resolute crossed the starting line at one forty five and Shamrock one forty six, five, unofficial time.

Range finders on board the destroyer Goldsboro, official press boat, places Shamrock's lead at four hundred yards at two thirty five.

Official starting time of Resolute one, forty six, twenty three, Shamrock one, forty six, thirty seven.

At three o'clock the Resolute was half a mile to windward of Shamrock, and less than half that distance astern. Wind has increased to five knots and it looks now like completed race, but with late finish. At three ten wind increased to six knots.

Range finders on Goldsboro showed Resolute four hundred yards ahead to windward at three fifty.

There is a possibility that the race will not be completed in the time limit on account of light winds.

At five fifteen Shamrock was five miles astern. After turning first mark to win, Resolute will have to finish approximately fifteen miles, in two and half hours.

Shamrock coming up fast at five forty five, and less than two miles astern. Race declared off.

NO ROOM FOR HIM.

LONDON, July 18.
Sante Ri Noorteva, who recently arrived in England as an emissary of C. K. Martens, Russian Bolshevik representative in the United States, has been ordered deported, according to the Evening Standard and is now en route to Russia.

MURDERED IN HIS CLUB.

BELFAST, July 18.
Commissioner Smythe of the Royal

Irish Constabulary was shot dead in the county club at Cork last night, by fourteen armed men, who forced their way past the doorman, Smythe was found by the intruders sitting with friends, one of them being District Inspector Craig. Several of the men fired point blank at Commissioner Smythe, who rose, but fell dead while endeavoring to reach the door. Craig was wounded during the fusillade. Smythe was Divisional Commissioner for the Munster Royal Irish Constabulary, and his name had figured prominently in the House of Commons during the past week in connection with a speech he made to the police at Listowel, County Kerry, in which it was declared he ordered his men not to be afraid to shoot with effect. He had just returned to Ireland, from London, where he gave the Irish office an explanation of affairs in Ireland.

INTERFERING WITH MAILS.

BELFAST, July 18.
One of the most significant holdups of a mail train occurred after Friday, midnight, when a hundred men stopped and ransacked, at Donaghmore, a mail train running from Dublin and Belfast to Londonderry. The trainmen were lined up on the right of the way and covered with pistols, while the mails were rifled. While these holdups are being common in the South of Ireland, they are less frequent in the North where the loyalist population appears more interested in assisting the military and police in arresting the perpetrators of hold-ups.

SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT.

QUEBEC, July 18.
A brief bulletin received here tonight from Roberval, Lake St. John, stated that the two Hydro-Airplanes which left Halifax on Saturday morning had arrived at Lake St. John at five o'clock this afternoon.

ANGLO-JAP ALLIANCE.

HONOLULU, July 18.
Great Britain and Japan have decided to renew the Alliance between the two Nations, according to an announcement from the Foreign Office in Tokyo, which has been received here. The Foreign Office declared that

PAID BIG PRICE.

BERLIN, July 19.
"We saved the Ruhr from invasion, but we paid a big price for it," is the way Dr. Walter Simons, Minister of Foreign Affairs, epitomized the result of the meeting at Spa last week, between Germans and Allies, according to a News Agency report.

UPON THE ROOF.

NEW YORK, July 19.
An airplane landing stage will be constructed on the roof of the Hotel Astor, it is announced here.

The Kodak Store.

The new store of Mr. Anthony Tooton, 309 Water Street, opposite his old stand, was the centre of attraction to the hundreds of people who passed there on Saturday night. The store with its diffused lighting, new stock, white ceilings and walls, presented a very pretty appearance. Mr. Tooton is the possessor of one of the most up-to-date photographic establishments in the city. He has recently arrived from the States and Canada, and while there procured the most up to the minute ideas in the photographic line. He has installed a new system for developing films, and also a modern drying device, the only one of its kind in Newfoundland. Both these devices are operated by electricity. Mr. Tooton, who has been in the country for the past eighteen years, has made hosts of friends, and we bespeak for him in his new establishment a liberal share of the public patronage which his courteousness and progressiveness deserves.

A War Time Ship and Captain.

S.S. Wabana, Captain Reside, which arrived in port Saturday for repairs, will go on dock after the Hartside comes off. The Wabana at the commencement of the war, was commandeered by the Govt. and served through the Dardanelles campaign, carrying coals to the fleet, afterward doing service from Chatham and Portsmouth to Dunkirk. Capt. Reside, M.B.E., for his valuable services rendered in this connection, was decorated by His Majesty the King.

Treasures of a Lost Civilization.

A wonderful collection of golden treasure has recently reached New York, and has created a great deal of interest.

The treasure was taken from the graves of long dead Chibchas, an ancient race which once occupied the territory where the Republic of Colombia is now situated. The Chibchas were highly civilized, and much resembled the Incas, Aztecs, Mayas and Toltecs, but the race died out soon after the arrival of the Spaniards in America, and only a few remnants remain in Colombia. The treasure is very valuable, and is the result of five years' excavation by natives at Ayapala, their employer entrusting it to a South American banker, who took it to New York to be disposed of.

A New York paper thus describes the treasure, which is of solid gold: Most gorgeous of all are the breastplates, eight of them. Some are thirty inches across, great blazing yellow suns, ornately embossed with designs of crocodiles and serpents. Others are sixteen inches in diameter, with beautiful work in repousse. More exquisite in taste and infinitely more difficult of execution are the filigree earrings. Wonderful things from tip to tip, across the diameter of a semicircle. At first glance, the design seems to be made of seven strips of gold lace, fairy-like in delicacy. But lift one! No modern stamping of material in these pieces. The ancient artisan has used at least $100 worth of the virgin metal for this single piece. The meshes of the lace are not gold wire, skillfully soldered. The whole ornament is one integral chunk of metal, the filigree painfully cut out by sharp tools.

"The thing is amazing. It is not simply interesting, but like so many relics of the past, it is beautiful."

Dainty Filigree Work.

So with the strings of gold beads, where a dainty filigree ball alternates with a plain bead; or where a heavy little cross like a child's packstone alternates with a plain bead. Or where twenty-six tiny bells of beautiful, faint tone, each a little larger than a BB shot, are spaced with beads of coiled gold wire.

Then two strings of bells of solid, polished gold; heavy to the hand; the bells are an inch long each and three-quarters of an inch in diameter, eleven in number on one string, thirteen on the other, spaced with little tubes of gold. These went round the thighs and chimed as the wearer moved. It is believed. Incidentally, a 24-carat gold bell is as sweet in tone as a silver bell, which is a thing few of us knew, or were likely to find out.

Then there's an amusing little monkey, sitting in a chair—a perfect little chair, no different from the ones we use to-day; wearing a sort of broad-brimmed hat and holding the half of a coconut shell beneath his chin, while his elbows rest on his knees. The whole thing is an inch or so high and an inch and a half long. It fitted on the end of a staff or sceptre.

Exquisite Animals.

Other staff tips are fashioned like birds with long and crooked bills. Some of them are perfectly recognizable as species still to be found in Colombia. There is a filigree Jaguar, an inch long; it also was a sceptre tip. There are frogs or buckles of gold heavy as any two signet rings you ever "hailed." One earring, and only one, is ornamented with bangles that tinkle charmingly. Above the row of bangles are two rows of the exquisite gold lace which isn't lace at all, but a lattice cut from the solid piece of metal, and held in a frame of elaborate scroll work.

There's an opulent nose piece, like a crescent moon with the tips incurved so they almost touch. There is not a scroll or a scratch or an ornament upon it. It was intended, doubtless, to flash in the rays of the sun like a mirror, when the wearer's lips moved. Like everything else, it is twice as thick as it needs to be to get the effect; economy of the metal was no part of the Chibchas' concern.

Finally, there are rolls of sheet gold; many square feet of it. In the grave it lay about one skeleton as though it had been a robe. A shroud of gold!

"Fini."

With the death of Eugenie de Montijo, ex-Empress of France, there passes from the world stage the perfect figure of romance. The years of tranquil obscurity that have closed the circle of her existence have largely dimmed the wonderful picture of her career. To the rising generation she was nothing but a name, but it was a name which even to them stood for the embodiment of adventure. Merriman or Oppenheim might have written the story which is to be found instead in the sober pages of history and which now at last is closed. What her rightful place may be in the tremendous drama of '70-71 and the years immediately preceding it must ever remain unknown. There are those who believe that, mated with a worthier companion, she might have risen to the dizzy heights of a Josephine or a Marie Louise. On the other hand, the cataclysm that befell her adopted country under the rule of the frigid weakling to whom her destiny was linked was hastened and made the more complete by her unbridled ambition. Perhaps the justest view of Eugenie is that she was only a pawn in the world-shaking tragedy which irrevocable Fate had prepared and in which individuals counted after all for very little. Whatever may be the verdict of the future upon her and upon her career the "fatal fever" is over and the tired old woman who, once upon a time, dazzled the world with her beauty and threatened it with her power, has passed into the great silence. She played for mighty stakes and lost. The wheel has swung full circle.—Montreal Daily Star.

My First Big Fish. A Waltonian Epic.

It is not easy to forget one's first salmon. The sensations are too new and varied and vivid to be lightly thrown off, or soon forgotten. But if you happen to be alone without gaff or net, and are held six long hours in mortal suspense between hope and fear, naturally the impression sinks deeper. Though years have passed, I can still recall distinctly the eventful day on which I struck my first big salmon.

I had been often there before. It was my favorite pool for trout, those big two and three pound gamey fellows that give a novice all the fun he wants. But I was not aware, in fact no one had ever told me, that it was also a choice salmon pool, and certainly on that morning I had not even thought of salmon. If I mistake not it was the Queen's Jubilee, a beautiful Friday in August, 1897, and my sole object—plus the sport—was to secure a royal dish for breakfast. I had risen early and fished down stream. By the time I reached the Forks I must have taken at least a dozen speckled beauties. A sumptuous breakfast, you will say! No doubt, Sir, a big breakfast, dinner and supper for the whole family. But my bloodthirsty instinct for more slaughter was not yet satiated. I had more of the Kaiser in me than I was then aware of. So with the first rays of the sun just peeping down over the bank, and that shaded pool looking so still and inviting, the temptation to have another cast took hold of me. In fact became irresistible. One more, the biggest of the lot, I thought, then I shall reel up and go home.

But to my great surprise my first cast was a complete blank. Not a sign, not a stir, not a ripple. What could it mean! Never before had my old haunt gone back on me. Then I looked at my fly, my dusty miller. Poor dusty miller, no doubt it had seen better days, but surely it could yet decoy, if not otherwise take in, another three pound dandy. So, hit or miss, here goes—one more try, then I'll be off. But if my first cast had been a surprise, my second gave me a shock. It sent a thrill of hope and fear through my whole vertebrae. For, from the depths of that pool, in less than an instant and without warning, came what seemed to me the biggest fish I had ever seen. He rose completely out of water, and recklessly threw himself on my poor old dusty miller. It was very sudden, quite unexpected, but, instinctively I suppose, I struck home. Then, Sir, I heard my reel spin! There was a rush, a rise and a dash. Was all over, or could it be possible? Yes, I still held him. And as I cautiously reeled him back to where I had struck him, hope rose within me—the hope of capture, the hope of success. My first big fish! What a moment of delight! Great Caesar, if I could only land him!

But would my tackle stand it? Already that tackle had done me yeoman service. Weeks before I had landed a six pound grilse and a goodly number of trout with that self-same fly. But then the cast and fly were good and new and could be counted on. Now I was alone without guide or gaff, with only an ordinary rod and presumably worn-out tackle. My first impulse was to call for help. Surely old man Benoit—the river king—would hear me. His house was not far distant. So I called my loudest. I roared my best, but only to get back the discordant echo of an unearthly, half-wild, half-triumphant yell. The poacher-in-chief with all his family, as I learned later, had gone to the farm at Noel's Lake, to mow and make his hay, and I was left helpless.

In the meantime what had become of my fish? The stubborn rascal had sought the bottom, and would not move or budge an inch for me. There he lay immovable, apparently as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar. I could not see him, but at the end of my rod I could feel him panting. Evidently there was nothing for it but to bide his pleasure and mine. Then, Sir, I made ready for the fray. It might be a fight to the finish, and Mr. Wilson to the contrary, notwithstanding, my motto is preparedness. So cautiously disengaging first one arm, then the other, I slipped off my coat and quietly let it fall behind me. Some six hours later I found that coat, but I regret to say, it was partially unrecognizable. During the engagement I had despised it, trampled it under foot, in fact completely forgotten I ever had a coat. For the first hour and a half that fish tested all my patience. He literally kept me on the qui vive. No chance of fair fight, no hope of parley; he seemed securely anchored in his Kiel Canal. At last, however, I became desperate, and opened fire on him. He saw the stone coming and barely gave me time to lower the rod. Then like a flash went that wild torpedo, and during the next two hours or more—with intervals of from five to ten minutes' rest—he kept that pool boiling, rush, rise, sometimes several feet, then madly fling himself down again! Was there ever the like? Such excitement! And when I could breathe freely again, I found I had him yet.

After that came a lull in the storm, and for another good hour that fish sulked worse than any spoiled youngster I ever met. At last, however, he began to show signs of uneasiness, and a presently turning tall rushed down stream. Was this his chance? I thought so, and followed, hoping to get him to shallow water below. I was not disappointed. There again he showed his big rainbow shape, but I could see his rush and jump were weakening. Now and then his tail would come above water and my hopes of saving him were rising, too. I had waited patiently six hours with nothing to eat but a scrap of tobacco. At times I had thought there must be something uncanny about the brute, but now I began to see him distinctly rolling and floundering like a huge porpoise, evidently finding himself felled in every move and getting sick of the battle. And soon he gave notice of what I knew was to be a last desperate struggle. Now or never, I must curb all impatience. Freedom, he wanted, freedom for the last mad dash, and I let the reel rattle away. Up the stream again he rushed, taking about sixty feet of line, then a wild rise and splash and all was silent. Was he gone? With fear and trembling I wound up my reel, but to my great joy, what before seemed a ton weight, came quietly down to within six feet of where I stood.

Then I knew the prize was mine, and waited patiently for the end. It soon came. Once or twice he turned over, there was a slight splash but no further resistance till at last I dragged him ashore, seized him in my arms, and with my loudest war-whoop flung him in on terra firma. That salmon tipped the balance at 24 1/2 lbs., nothing much after all to boast of. But, please remember, I had no help, no guide, no gaff; my rod and line were poor and my cast and fly practically worn out. And now after the lapse of years, when all jealous feeling has subsided, is it too much to claim at least the pleasure of giving my Waltonian friends the true, simple unvarnished tale of my first big capture. Thank goodness, however, it's no fish-story.

Produce and Provisions.

(From Saturday's Trade Review).
CODFISH.—The quantity of dried salt codfish shipped this week was 13,756 qts. all from St. John's. Of this total 11,168 quintals were sent to Pernambuco and Martique, the balance by the s.s. Rosalind for transhipment to the West Indies. There is very little doing in fish transactions these days in St. John's. Conditions are improving every week in Spain and Portugal as regards consumption of fish in the country. There is not much fish left in St. John's or in the ports, and the markets give promise of being in good condition when the new fish comes in. Prices of old fish now are only nominal and that for new is not yet named.
CODLIVER OIL.—The prospects for refiners are looking all right provided that they do not pay too much for their livers. It is reported that there have been some enquiries lately from abroad and sales are here at $1.50 per gallon. The shipments for this week amounted to 2,925 gals., all for ports this side of the Atlantic.
COMMON COD OIL.—There has been a slump in the price of Lined and all kinds of Vegetable oil recently, so that all animal oil and fish oil is in a weak condition. There is so little cod oil to be had that it is difficult to give reliable quotations. The export this week was 13,171 gallons nearly all to New York.
LOBSTERS.—Packers are holding for better price on the West Coast. A few lots brought in from Placentia Bay this week were sold at $25.00 per case of 48 one-pound tins on account. The fishery so far has been good all along the South and West Coasts, and the total, it is estimated, will nearly double that of last year. There is a poor demand in the United States for canned lobsters owing to the fact that there is no prospect of big orders from European countries.
CANNED SALMON.—The depletion of the British Columbia Rivers is now extending to those of Alaska. The American Government has already closed many areas of fishing and many others are restricted to a decrease of 25 per cent. of the quantity formerly allowed, as the extermination of this valuable fish in some rivers has already occurred and in others the fish is in sight. The high grade canned salmon will be $3.00 per case higher than that of last year.
SALT.—There is an ample supply of fishery salt now in port, but it will be needed if the fishery improves the next week. There is already a scarcity reported from Labrador, and salt will have to be rushed there soon. The s.s. Digby arrived here this week from Liverpool bringing 520 tons salt in her general cargo.
BEEF.—The imports of barrelled beef this week are 928 packages from North Sydney by the s.s. Coruna, and s.s. Sable I, and by the s.s. Rosalind from New York. The import to St. John's since New Year is to-day about 5,700 barrels as against 10,500 same date last year, showing a gain of 5,000 barrels. Wholesale prices are as follows:
 Best Grade . . . . . $35.00 to $38.00
 Second Grade . . . . . 32.00 to 34.00
 Boneless . . . . . 27.00 to 29.00
PORK.—The effect of the falling off in export demand the past few months is resulting in accumulation of stocks of Pork in Chicago and other Western packing centres which is giving a favorable result in prices from the consumers' view point. Prices are easier in all meat products and the coming autumn we shall probably see the cheapest barrelled meat since 1914. The quotations here for to-day are very favorable towards this end, viz:
 Ham Butt . . . . . $56.00
 Short Mess . . . . . 57.00
 Family . . . . . 55.00
 Fat Back . . . . . 46.00
FLOUR.—The report of the Canadian Government published last week shows a great improvement in the growing and all the conditions indicate that flour will be cheaper in September when the new product comes in. The imports for this week amounted to 3,221 barrels, which makes the total roundly 95,000 barrels for St. John's since January 1st, 1920, as compared with 75,000 this date last year. Freight rates on flour from Montreal have advanced twenty-five cents per barrel this week, so that high grade patents are now $18.00; others $17.25 to $17.50.

MOLASSES.—This week the Admiral Drake arrived from Barbados with 600 puncheons, 600 barrels, and 300 tierces molasses. The Gaspe also arrived from same port with 611 puncheons, 45 tierces and 81 barrels, which gives a total for St. John's to date of 5,064 puncheons, 661 barrels and 345 tierces. The additional cargoes secured to come forward, will, it is estimated, make the total about 7,500 puncheons which is 5,000 short of our normal supply. The molasses therefore, will be scarce and dear. The local price continues at $1.85 for Fancy, and $1.75 for Grocery molasses.

SUGAR.—The shortage in the World's Supply this year as compared with 1914 will be, according to experts 5,143,702 tons, and compared with last year, it will be 1,200,000 tons less. It is reported also that the crops are deteriorating as the season advances. It will be ten years at least, before the production can reach the pre-war standard as regards the supply. The consumption of sugar in England is now limited to 26 pounds per capita per annum. Last year the consumption in Canada was 94 pounds for every man, woman, and child. Our Government Food Control Board is now controlling all sugar transactions in Newfoundland with price 2 1/2 wholesale and 30 cents retail per lb.

POTATOES.—There were no potatoes imported this week and it looks as if all the 1919 crop has been absorbed. There is an ample supply in the city and the price is weakening every week in accordance with the desire of holders to unload before the new potatoes arrive, which will be in a week or two. The quotations to-day are $12.00 to $12.50 per barrel for P. E. Island's. There are some new potatoes selling in New York and Halifax this week at a price which means $13.00 per barrel landed here. The local crop has made great progress the past two weeks wherever Government imported seed were not used.

THE "GRUB" PEST.

To prevent damage to plants and shrubs a simple remedy is a weak solution of Sulphate of Ammonia. Use 1/4 oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water. On no account use a stronger solution or you may "burn" the plants.

We have a limited quantity of Sulphate of Ammonia at our Showroom, Oke Building. Full instructions given with each package.

The Comedies and Tragedies of Russian Life.

With all its horror and tragedy the Russian situation has its ludicrous as well as its lugubrious side. John A. Gade, who during the war was American naval attaché at Christiania, afterwards serving on the American Commission in the Russian Empire, and who is still on the borders of Russia, has written some most interesting facts in connection with Russia. It will be remembered that some months ago the United States Government gathered up a ship load of Anarchists and other "ists" and shipped them to Russia. Their reception, it would appear, was not such as to make a very favorable impression upon the Soviet cargo. Krassin, who is the business end of the present Russian Government, if one may call it such, and who is now making a faithful if hopeless attempt to set the wheels of business going, looked over this ship load of undesirables, and picked out eighty of the likeliest whom he set to work.

It was then the trouble started. First they chafed under the strict discipline of the Bolshevik leaders. They grumbled at the food and general living conditions. Finally Krassin finding them utterly useless gave them up in despair, all of which led Lenin to remark, "America should realize that she cannot employ Russia as a dumping ground for her Anarchists."

General conditions in Russia at the present time are, according to Mr. Gade, almost beyond description. For instance, such centres as Moscow and Petrograd have not had their streets cleaned in years, nor has the filth from the houses been taken away for the same space of time. The sewage systems in both cities are out of working order. Some time since Krassin, who appears to be the one live wire, inaugurated a campaign of street cleaning. Everything on wheels was brought into commission, but the thing was a fizzle, for there were no tools, particularly shovels, with which to handle the stuff. Tens of thousands of people in Petrograd and Moscow froze to death last winter and the winter before owing to the lack of fuel or the transportation to bring it in from the mines. There is practically no clothing in the country, and corpses are stripped to supply the wants of the living, while a Russian counts himself lucky who has sufficient carpet in which to bind up his feet.

The Government Mr. Gade describes as being the most autocratic in the world, and that not over ten per cent. of the entire population of Russia are in reality Bolsheviks and supporters of the present regime. But Lenin and Trotsky have so organized matters, employing thousands of informers and spies, that it appears to be most difficult to get out of their clutches. Then, again, the Red army, led by old Imperial officers who have been given the choice between serving the Bolshevik cause of starving to death, and having their families prosecuted and brutalized, is a formidable body, kept together by reason of the fact that they are well clothed and well fed. In this connection Mr. Gade notes the interesting fact that the Red army is not in point of fact a really Bolshevik force, only a very small percentage of its personnel being communistic. Some day a real leader will arise in Russia who will blow the present regime to atoms. Let us hope it be soon.—Saturday night.

Britain's Latest Act of Perfidy.

Poor old Britannia! No matter what she does, there is always someone to come forward and say that she is conspiring against the rest of the world. And any American concern which desires to "put something over" seems to find the cry "perfidious Albion" the best cloak for his designs. In London the British Government has been criticized for trying to sell in the United States her vast supply of surplus airplanes, and so stripping herself bare in case of another war. But when you get over to Washington you learn that it is just Britain's guile—that it is the United States that is stripping herself bare by permitting British machines to enter that country.

At a recent sitting of the House of Representatives Committee on Ways and Means, Gen. Mitchell, of the U. S. Army Air Service, as well as a number of gentlemen interested in the manufacture of airplanes and keeping out foreign models, testified. From their evidence we gather that Great Britain's conspiracy against the United States in the matter of air service began away back in 1917, when the latter country entered the war. It will be remembered that the U. S. Government wasted hundreds of millions of dollars ostensibly in establishing an airplane industry, and never succeeded in making any decent or serviceable machines. Then Great Britain came forward with her Satahic wiles. Instead of letting the American army carry on without air protection so that the Germans could come over and bomb it into submission, Great Britain was glib enough to turn over to Perfidious Albion vast numbers of planes of British design that had been made for her on both sides of the water.

Perhaps the reader does not see the plot yet! Well, here it is. Britain, under the pretext of saving the American army from destruction, was really impressing on them the idea that British planes and British designs were the best and so laying the foundations for her own supremacy as the standard producer in commercial aeronautics after the war. Now she is ready to sell 10,000 planes and 30,000 engines to the United States at scrap prices, and thus "blast" and "strangle" the budding American airplane industry. Thus, if another war comes, the United States will be dependent on a foreign power for its planes, because Americans by that time will be thoroughly wedded to English models, and the ability of Americans to build planes will be as extinct as the dodo. There is another phase of the alleged conspiracy that hardly dovetails with the latter information. It is said that these surplus machines are unsafe. Consequently, every time one is used a good American will be killed, and civilian flying discouraged, so that in the event of war, no persons ready to take the air will be found. All clear as mud, is it not?

Yet a committee of Representatives solemnly listened to this drivel and passed an exclusion bill which got lost at the obsequies when the last Congress died. The tale of woe issued by the Manufacturers' Aircraft Association, Inc., which recites the above facts, concludes: "And as a result, as General Mitchell testified, the key to our front door was thrown away for the benefit of another nation." Britannia in the eyes of the gullible is an old rip as bad as the witch that used to pop little children into her oven.—Saturday Night.

Have You Experienced Its Wonderful Help?

NO matter how soiled or lifeless a piece of furniture may be, it will take on a new-like appearance when O-Cedar is used. Simply wet a cloth with water and put a few drops of O-Cedar on it. Rub this over the surface—it will remove the dust and grime—it cleans as it polishes. A light rubbing with a dry cloth gives a dry, hard, lasting luster.

Army Purchase Abolished.

On Thursday, July 20, 1871, a Royal Warrant, abolishing the appointment to the position of officers in the British Army of those for whom they had been purchased by themselves or families, was signed and issued by Queen Victoria. An Act of Parliament for this purpose, introduced and advocated by the late William Ewart Gladstone, then Prime Minister, had been accepted by the Houses of Commons and Lords. This Royal Warrant declared that "On and after the first day of November in this present year, all regulations made by us or any of our Royal predecessors, or any officers acting under our authority, regulating or fixing the prices at which any Commission in Our Forces may be purchased, sold, or exchanged, or in any way authorizing the purchase or sale or exchange for money of any such Commissions, shall be cancelled and determined," for which last word we now in modern English would say "terminated." When this Act of Parliament thus became law, it was a time of British peace, but the importance of it has surely been proved during the late European war. Men have occupied the position of officers in the British Army who had obtained it not by money but by merit. And while an immense number of these have lost their valuable lives by fighting, a very great many private soldiers have for their brave and efficient services been raised to commissioned rank.

Mount Cashel Garden Party.

It will be learned with pleasure that a splendid new course has been prepared for the Pony Race at Mount Cashel Garden Party, which takes place on July 28th. The work was completed on Saturday evening, so that those desiring to practice on the new track may begin to-day. The course is such that the race will be run in full view of all who attend the Garden Party, and at the same time the field in which the track is located will be absolutely clear. Already sufficient entries have been intimated to ensure a record number of competitors, and the thousands who annually attend the festival may confidently look forward to a magnificent series of races. The Sports Programme has not yet been finally arranged, but it will include (1) Baseball Match (Junior teams); (2) Boys' Race; (3) Football Pives; (4) Baseball final for H. D. Reid Cup; (5) Pony Race.

A Splendid Schooner.

The splendid schooner Olive Moore, belonging to the firm of J. and F. Moore of St. Anthony, which arrived here last week with a cargo of salt from La Have, is amongst the best vessels built in Nova Scotia in several years. She is 189 tons gross, 158 tons net, 150 feet over all, 28 feet beam and 11 feet deep. She is now loading freight for the French Shore and will be used in the export trade later in the season. Messrs. Moore have another schooner of like dimensions under construction at Liverpool, which will probably be launched next month.

Annual Meeting St. Bon's Old Boys.

The Annual Meeting of St. Bon's Old Boys' Association was held in the Aula Maxima, St. Bon's College yesterday morning. The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were read and adopted and it was decided to place on record the sorrow of the Association on the death of certain members, particularly of His Lordship Bishop Power, to whose memory the President, Sir M. P. Cashin, W. R. Howley, K.C., Judge Morris and Mr. J. Browne eloquently referred, and also of Rev. Dean Dounney and Thos. Thorburn who had been valued members of the Association. The election of officers for the ensuing year was conducted by Rev. Bro. Strapp, resulting as follows:

President—Sir M. P. Cashin, re-elected.
1st. V.P.—W. R. Howley, K.C.
2nd V.P.—Lt.-Col. G. T. Carty.
Treas.—T. S. McGrath.
Sec.—F. K. Devine.

The Councils for the various periods will meet shortly to elect their representatives. It was announced that a mural tablet, to serve as a record of what the College did in the Great War and to perpetuate the names of the ex-pupils who volunteered in "Ours" or other regiments, had been donated by Sir M. P. Cashin to whom the Association passed a hearty vote of thanks. This tablet which is to be of solid bronze will be placed in the main hall of the College and the erection and unveiling will take place in the near future. The officers expressed thanks for their election, and Rev. Bro. Strapp was tendered a vote of thanks for his services in conducting the election. The Annual Re-Union was also commented on and a photo of the gathering on that occasion exhibited. These are now on sale at Holloway's Studio. Before the close of the meeting, Rev. Bro. Strapp announced that Cecil Wiley, of the Newfoundland Regiment who had been missing had now been found.

Men who are not yet wearing BISHOP'S SHANTUNG SILK SHIRTS with soft collars to match have not experienced all the possible comfort within their grasp. All sizes in stock from 13½ to 18, with and without collars to match.

Lone Fisherman Strayed From Vessel.

A WEEK ADRIPT WITHOUT FOOD OR WATER.

Yarmouth, July 13.—The Lockport schooner Alcyon, Capt. William McNair, arrived here this morning with Trueman Crowell, a native of Doctor's Cove, Shelburne Co. on board, who tells one of the hardest stories of hunger and privation heard for some time. He was one of the crew of the Boston fishing schooner Fannie Belle Atwood, Capt. Douglas Malone, which a week ago was single dory hand line fishing on the northern edge of Georges. Immediately after breakfast on last Tuesday, Crowell in his dory left the schooner to attend his trawls, and shortly afterwards was lost in the fog. Despite his efforts to locate his vessel he failed to do so, and he was adrift in a heavy fog. He had a small sail and this he set, and sailed or rowed in hopes of locating one of the fleet, but all in vain. From that time until picked up last evening he had not tasted of food or drink. All the time the fog was thick, and the first sound or tidings of land that he received was about five o'clock yesterday afternoon when he heard in the distance the whistle on Yarmouth Cape. He had no idea of his location consequently he thought that the whistle was one on the United States coast, and when he heard the steamer Prince Arthur from Yarmouth to Boston in the fog about two miles distant to the northward he supposed she was the Nantucket lightship.

Shortly after, however, the Alcyon sighted him a short distance off and ran down to him, and took him on board. Crowell was well cared for and given some light food with a little water, and later more rations of a little greater extent was allowed him. He is somewhat weak, but apparently suffered none the worse for his experience.

MISS MAY KENNEDY.

There passed peacefully away at the General Hospital, this morning, May, youngest daughter of R. J. Kennedy, Railroad Inspector of Holyrood. Miss Kennedy had been suffering for sometime and although her demise was not unexpected, the loss is a crushing one to her parents. Miss Kennedy was a popular young lady of Holyrood and her smiling face will be greatly missed in her native settlement. To the sorrowing parents the Telegram offers its sympathy.

The Pacific's Island of Mystery.

One of the almost mysterious spots in the world is Easter Island, in the Pacific Ocean, 2,100 miles west of the South American coast and close to the Tropic of Capricorn.

It was discovered on Easter Sunday, 1722, by a Dutch navigator Roggeveen. He called it Easter Island, and sailed around it, but did not attempt a landing, although much struck by an extraordinary spectacle that met his gaze.

At intervals along the shore he beheld great platforms, on which huge stone giants stood in rows, facing the sea. He saw them first and was last to see them, for Easter Island thereupon became "lost" again to navigation for more than half a century, and when it was rediscovered all the giants had been thrown down.

What had happened? Nobody will ever know. The history of the island—wholly volcanic, thrown up out of the depths of the sea and 1,100 miles from the nearest land—is lost; the population it had when Roggeveen saw it had wholly disappeared at the time of its rediscovery.

But the stone giants remain; also the platforms of cut stone (more or less intact) on which they stood. One of these platforms was 540 feet long, and on it were placed fifteen of the huge images, varying in stature from forty to sixty feet.

Most of the images wore crowns, weighing two or three tons apiece, of reddish volcanic tufa. Some of them represented females apparently, and each one was modeled in the likeness of the upper half of a human being, the head disproportionately large. They are carved out of gray lava, and it is surmised that they were designed as portraits of royal or otherwise distinguished personages.

Origin of the Giants.

The origin of the giants is no puzzle. They are found to-day on the island in all stages of the making, the quarry from which they came being located at an elevation of 1,327 feet above the sea. There some of them may be seen merely sketched out upon the rocky walls, while others are in a state of partial completion and yet others stand or lie where they were left while in process of transportation to the coast.

In all, 555 of the statues have been found. The largest, seventy feet high, remains unfinished in the crater. The crater is cup-shaped, perfectly circular, half a mile in diameter, and contains a small lake that is alleged to be "bottomless" sounding lines 300 feet long having failed to reach bottom.

The rim of the crater is broken at one point, where a stream of lava formerly poured through on its way to the sea. It was through this gap that stone images carved inside the crater were dragged. Their transportation down the mountain and to the coast seems a miraculous performance. In the absence of steam-hoists and other machinery, but the supposition is that they were lowered by chocks and wedges, and drawn by hundreds of men along roads covered with seaweed. On reaching the seashore, they were probably rolled up inclined planes of earth to the tops of the platforms, where they were placed erect.

Images in the Crater.

In the crater are ninety-three images, forty of them finished and ready for removal. They weigh from twelve to forty tons apiece. Outside the crater is another quarry, in which there are 150 stone giants in various stages. The rock is soft and easily carved; and the final step was to cut the back of the statue away from the matrix.

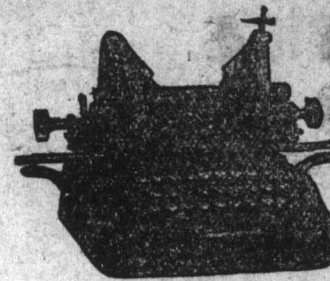

It is manifest that the island in the days of the image-makers had a large population relatively to its size, its length being only thirteen miles and its width seven. Chambers beneath the stone platforms are crowded with human skeletons, wrapped in grass and laid with their heads toward the sea. One subterranean vault of great size is filled with skulls.

Apparently some sort of calamity overwhelmed the island, wiping out its entire population. It may have been an epidemic of disease. But how about the overthrown images? That suggests an earthquake, which may have been coincident with an eruption of the volcano. All surmises on the subject are mere guesswork.

There are now on the island about 150 people of Polynesian stock. But they do not seem to be descendants of the image-makers, and in regard to the latter they have not even any traditions.

For all time to come Easter Island and its stone giants are likely to remain an unsolved mystery.

"Meigles" Resentful.

North Sydney, July 14.—The S. S. Meigle's football team is naturally inclined to resent the aspersion cast upon it by the team of the S. S. Kyle, insinuating that it is not in the same class as the aggregation of the latter vessel, and in rebuttal of this instance that of the matches played thus far they trimmed the Kyle 4 to 1 in the first, the second being a draw, 3 to 3, and the last 3 to 2 in favor of the Kyle. The men of the Kyle have been rather coming up on their opponents, but the Meigle team is anxious to try conclusions again while waiting a chance to secure cargo. The next game will be a hummer, for the Meigle men are right on their mettle and out to win by a smashing majority.

New Canadian Ministry.

Premier Meighen has completed his Cabinet as follows:—

Personal.

Mr. C. L. Hayward, who has been visiting his parents for the past five weeks, leaves on the Rosalind on the 24th inst. for Calgary, Alberta.
Mr. Jonas Barter, while superintending some work a few days ago at the Signal Hill quarry in connection with the repairs to the R. C. Cathedral, had his collar bone broken by a blow from the handle of the derrick winch. Although the injury is painful, Mr. Barter is at work.
Mrs. M. Mooney, sister of Messrs. N. J. and James Vinnicombe, is at present visiting the city after an absence of 27 years, all of which time she spent in Chicago. Mrs. Mooney will remain here for a couple of months.
Hon. F. McNamara and Mr. T. H. ... after spending a week salmon fishing on the Gander River, returned to town by Saturday's express. They had excellent sport and landed several fine fish.
Miss Elleen Crowell, daughter of James Crowell, will leave here shortly for Boston, and will spend some time with relatives at Sydney, en route.
Dr. J. C. McDonald's many friends will regret to learn that he is dangerously ill at his home.
The Rev. Dr. Bond, Newfoundland's representative to the Ecumenical Council, which meets in London next year, will have amongst his colleagues a near-Newfoundlander in the person of the Rev. A. S. Rogers, B.A., B.D., of Amherst, son of the late Rev. Dr. James Rogers, a native of Harbor Grace and brother of Mr. Rogers of Dicks & Co. Mr. Rogers has occupied the pulpit at Gower St. on several occasions and is held in high esteem by the Methodists of this city, as well as by his brethren of the Nova Scotia Conference, who have honoured themselves in honouring him with their votes and confidence.

Senator Dennis was a man of unusual energy, and equal persistence. He had courage and shrewdness, and a faculty

Jews Thank Britain.

LONDON, July 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—Ten thousand Jews in a demonstration in Albert Hall on the occasion of Great Britain's acceptance of the mandate for Palestine, last night unanimously adopted resolutions expressive of appreciation of "the illustrious services rendered the Jewish nation by the statesmen and peoples of the Allied and Associated Powers, particularly Great Britain."
The resolutions pledged the Jews "to spare no effort or sacrifice for the rebuilding of Palestine as a Jewish national home, in collaboration with the inhabitants of the country."
Arthur J. Balfour, Lord President of the Council, who was accorded an ovation lasting several minutes, said he hoped the Arabs in Palestine would remember that Great Britain freed them, and make no trouble. He said he anticipated the greatest difficulty would be the inability of the Jews to work together and obey their leaders.
