NEWFOUNDLAND.

The most ancient possession of the British crown in America, which lies its rocky form from the bed of the Atlantic to form a bulwark to the vast gulf which receives the waters of the great river St. Lawrence, and which stands like an ever watchful sentinel to guard it from the approach of evil from the east, while the coasts of Labrador, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia perform the like office on the north and west, is just recovering from the loss of a general election, and is very excited on that account. Political parties in the Island do not move on the same lines that they do with us, nor are they distinguished by similar names. Local issues which generally determine the people's selection of representatives, and this being the case we have little interest in the battles they fight.

It had not been that some party journals in this province have misrepresented the issues which were tried out at the polls the other day we should probably not have made further reference to the results, but as truth deserves publicity and always best serves the public welfare we deem it our duty to notice this attempt to deceive the people of this province.

The Pictou News says: "One of the chief planks of the ministerialists was confederation." The Recorder, of Halifax, and some few other papers have affirmed the same thing with a persistence worthy of a better cause. In direct contradiction to these statements, Messrs Harvey, one of the finest writers of the island, and a man who takes no stock in party squabbles, is now at the Montreal Gazette, asserts that the confederation question was not a party cry, on either side, at the late election, and he was in a position to know whereof he speaks. Besides, if what the Recorder and News say is true, how do they account for the fact that the most openly pronounced confederationalist among all the candidates, and a ministerialist to boot, was returned at the head of the poll in Bonaville?

The facts appear to lead to the conclusion that the people have become tired of the domination of the merchants of the capital, to whom they have been in a chronic state of indebtedness for two or three generations. The extension of the franchise under a recent law, in which the ballot was provided for, gave the masses, for the first time, a chance to vote the classes and strike a blow at the "ring" system of politics, which has hitherto been the rule. To this cause more than any other may be traced the results of the late contest.

Nova Scotia's Prosperity.

The Province of Nova Scotia has made rapid strides in the march of progress during the past year and apparently extends her arms of advancement which will place her in the foreground of the other provinces. Possessing as she does such an inexhaustible store of mineral wealth, such as gold, copper and iron, her future is bright. At present there are under construction in our little province nine different lines of railways, making a total of 360 miles, at a cost of about $1,000,000. The expenditure of one and a half million dollars for railways may have a lasting effect upon trade. Our mines are also contributing their share to the progress of the province. The gold mines alone yielded last year $450,000 worth of gold. Every town in the province is being built up with more or less rapidity. Manufacturing enterprises are being established and are fairly successful. On the whole Nova Scotia is in a flourishing condition, notwithstanding the pessimists who continually preach "blue rain" and it is our own belief that the progress of the past year is but the dawn of a brighter era for Nova Scotia. -Advertiser Press.

A NEW GOLD FIELD. - Gold was washed from the sands of Middle river, in Cape Breton, several years ago, but all attempts to find the leads from which it came were unsuccessful until a few weeks ago, when gentlemen of the Dominion Geological Survey made a discovery which bids fair to yield wonderful results in the near future. Three leads, one of them 10 feet wide, have been found to contain free gold, and a company has been formed at Ottawa to develop the find. It is said to be the largest abundance of gold bearing rocks in Nova Scotia.

The writer, in speaking of this sermon, says that "it was Baptist to the fullest extent," that it was "two hours in length" and that he spoke on "the things that are coming upon the earth, as predicted in the Bible." Would not the gospel of the New Testament have formed a better subject?

—The W. C. T. U. meeting in the Court House on last Thursday evening was so far at least as members were concerned, a complete success. Seats had to be introduced into the aisles to accommodate the late comers. Speeches were delivered, addresses and circulars were read, and very good vocal music occupied the interstices. We had the program of the proceedings, but by some neglect or oversight it was not sent out, and we have thus been prevented from laying it before our readers.

WOMAN NEAR AT HAND.—When has science failed to supply a felt want? We have seen in the past a failure to be yet recorded, and thus it is that we predict it will not be many years before some discoverer will find a method for the extraction of the impurities of various substances—notably clay, with which it is generally combined—at so cheap a rate as to be used in the arts. The following is a new method of producing it, which is now being used in a native or free state, but which is always in combination. It is scattered throughout the whole earth and is a constituent of every clay bed. Aluminium is a white metal with a metallic lustre when polished, is hard, stiff, strong and so ductile that it can be drawn out into the finest wire, and is also the finest of all metals, resists the action of the air whether dry or wet, and is as light as glass or china, being only about two and a half times heavier than water. It is a wonderful combination of useful qualities, and it will readily be seen that it is one of the most valuable metals known to man. It is used in a great variety of ways, and is a constituent of every clay bed. A GIRL SAVED.—The St. Andrews Beacon says that the village of Letete has been thrown into a terrible state of excitement by a suicide which occurred there on Saturday last. Finding that she was growing fat and that her employer desired to send her back to her home at Letete. THE MURDER OF A YARMOUTH MAN.—A late despatch from Tacoma says: A confession has been gotten out of one of the men confined in the jail for the murder of young Enoch Crosby. The correspondent got it upon good authority that a good sign of the name of Curley was used, the suspects, on some frivolous charge, and that through his persuasion power Stove peached on his pals. It is not known yet how he accomplished it, but that he secured a confession from Stove is certain. It is thought that Stove was promised a part of the reward, which amounts to $2,700, and release from punishment, if he would speak. The story of the confession is a long one. Briefly, it is said to be this: Hoyt and Stove were directly concerned in the murder. They were in the room when the murder was committed. They wanted money, and were determined to get it at the point of the revolver. There was no intention of committing murder. Hoyt had the revolver and was to cover the man whom they intended to rob, while Stove searched the person for money and valuables. They mistook young Crosby in the darkness for a much richer man, and they proceeded to carry valuables on his person. They confronted him and Hoyt ordered him to throw up his hands. Crosby made a motion, his hands were seized, and he was bound. He was not fired upon, and he was not killed. He was taken to the jail, and he was held there for some time. He was then released, and he was allowed to go home. He was then arrested again, and he was held in the jail for some time. He was then released, and he was allowed to go home. He was then arrested again, and he was held in the jail for some time. He was then released, and he was allowed to go home.

On Tuesday morning she left the house, and she was seen with the other women, ostensibly to see them off, but to the surprise of good natured Mrs. Watson, she did not return, and the baby was left on the street.
