NO. 1 VOL XXVIII MONTREAL, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1877.

CITY AGENT.

Mr. P. J. Gleeson, of No. 22 St. Urbain, is our duly authorized Agent for the City and vicinity.

A NICE STATE OF THINGS.

Between nine and ten o'clock on Saturday night forty or fifty young Britons marched in a body (semi militaire) from Victoria Square to the Bonaventure Depot. They occupied the whole sidewalk and shoved off every person with whom they came in contact, never respecting class, age, nor sex. They amused themselves singing the most insulting party tunes and frightening the citizens en route with the hideous noise they made. We are anxious to know if this thing is to continue or if there are two kind of laws in Montreal one for Catholics and one for everybody else. No arrests are reported.

RESOLUTIONS OF IRISH SOCIETIES.

One by one the resolutions of the Irish Catholic Societies come in, all having the same spirit. We beg to call the Revd. Father Stafford's attention to the following :---

IRISH CATHOLIC BENEFIT SOCIETY, MONTREAL.

At the regular monthly meeting of this Society, held in the Hall, Toupins' Block, on Wednesday evening, it was moved and unanimously Resolved: 1st. That this Society deprecates in the strongest manner possible the efforts made by a portion of the Protestant press to fasten the responsibility for the late disturbances on the Irish Catholics of this city; 2nd. That His Worship the Mayor, in refusing to heighten the already existing excitement by calling out a partizan and largely Orange volunteer to heighten the aireauy existing excitement by calling out a partizan and largely Orange volunteer force exhibited the calm, dispassionate judgment of a true statesman, and is deserving of the hearty thanks and congratulations of all law-abiding citi-30DS:

3rd. subsequent bringing out of the citizen soldiery, as cesters. Now gliding back into a parity of arguan act totally uncalled for and unwarranted under the circumstances, and calculated to increase the distrust and uneasy feeling previously formed in the minds of Roman Catholics in relation to that force.

It was forther Resolved-That this Society hearti-Catholics of Montreal against domestic and outside Orange aggression; and further, that this journal, instead of condemnation for the course it is a strangely consued since the burning of the Oka church by Orange incendiaries, is deserving of the patronage and support of every Catholic in the land.

on the attitude and relations of the Orange society towards Catholics-Father McNamara in the United States and Father Stafford in Canada. The humiliation to Catholics loth lay and cleric which the sickly and drivelling overtures of friendship made to Orangemen in the name of Catholics, and embodied in Father McNamara's address we all felt keenly. But the pang vas relieved by the reflec-tion that it was just what might be expected from a man who had debarred himself from that standing or position, which yould give any weight to his words. But that the Rev. Mr. Stafford should allow vanity or the unholy thirst for a "big" name to betray him itto insulting his Catholic fellow-countrymen, and into compromising that sagacity which characterizes the actions of the Catholie priesthood in this country, admits of no palliation or explanation and casnot be reetified save by an apology pure and ample to his Catholic brethren, both lay and ceric.

Upon again glancing over the Rev. Gentleman's speech the indignation I at first felt has in a measure given way to feelings comically amusing, for the speech would be worthy of Sir Boyle Roche in his palmiest days. He tells his audience and the outside public, for it clearly was studiously meant for them, that "we Catholics cannot free ourselves from responsibility with regard to the conduct of those who are nominally Catholic." Therefore every good gious practical Catholic in Lindsay, nay in all Canida would in a measure be responsible for the bad conduct of every recalcitrant ruffian who choose to call himself a Catholic. How do the good Consolics of Lindsay swallow this? But I dare-say Lindsay is such a paragon of a place that conclusion here drawn would not apply there

But let me apply it in another way, Father Stafford's bent when he takes to the stump is inclined to strong expressions, sometimes he lapses into a style of oratory that is at once a happy mixture of the random, the slip-shod, and the sledge nammer. It was in some such vein as this that in a letter of his published some time ago in the Wexford People be clumsily insinuated that the mothers of the "Irish Priests," if they were not drunkards, were something not very unlike it, and in his large-hearted sympathy treated his readers to ment to the men and the country whose hospitality he was after enjoying, somewhat in the same way That this Society cannot but deplore the as the English Philosopher gave us apes for our anment, would the Rev. Mr. Stafford hold every Catholic priest in Canada responsible for such a silly random, not to say unjust, utterance as the above. The priests and bishops of Ontario are no doubt "hurt" by the gentleman's late oratorical escapade, but if he imagines that any man outside the priest of Lindsay was. But I venture to say there is not one of them who would not spurn even the shadow of sympathy with Father Stafford's pronouncement. For the present as the only additional remark I wish to add is, that those who have real experience of Orangeism not only here in Canada but in its very cradle and hot-bed, know but too well that Orangeism never yet appreciated a concession from Catholics to prejudices and that if the Rev. Mr. Stafford went on spouting what Sam Slick called "softsauder" until dooms day, and was aided in this by a host of collabrations after his own heart, he would never change the leopard's spots or make Orangeism any thing but what it is, a savage murderous thing to be muzzlled.

Coroner did not inform the jury that he had received severely rebuked by Mr. Butt. Other excellent from the Government of the Province of Quebec in- speeches followed, but the result was a foregone year to give published utterance to their opinion structions to discontinue the inquest nor any other instructions relative to this affair.

These are the facts as they happened without changing or altering anything. The opinion of the jurors before giving their vardiet was that the method suggested by the Coroner would be the best and most efficacious for dispovening the culprit or culprits. That opinion was concurred in by all the (Signed) iurors.

THE HACKETT VERDICT.

The following communication relative to the Hackett Inquest has been received by Mr. Rothwell from the Quebec Government :--

CROWN LAW OFFICES, Quebec, 9th Aug., 1877. }

Edmund E. J. S. Rothwell Big., and others, Montreal

Sin,-On my return to town this morning, after a few days' absence, I find your petition praying that the Attorney General and the Solicitor-Genfor the Province of Quebec may take such proceedings, or may cause such proceedings to be taken, as will result in the quashing and setting aside of the inquisition held upon the body of the late Thomas Lett Hackett by Joseph Jones, Esq., Coroner for the district of Montreal. That a fresh enquiry may be instituted thereon, either before a coroner duly organized with a fresh jury, or before a commissioner authorized to commit for trial and to send for persons or papers, and that such other proceedingmay be taken on behalf of the Crown to assert the dignity of law and order as to justice may appertain."

I beg to inform you that before your petition had reached the Law Department, seeing that the jury had found an open verdict, instructions were sent (on the 4th August instant) to Mr. Desnoyers, who is a magistrate having rower to commit for trial, and to Mr. Schiller, the Clerk of the Peace at Montreal, to proceed with the investigation in this case if any further evidence was offered or could be found, and to give to the matter their best attention

I have the honor to be, Gentlemen, Your obedient servant, (Signed,) A. R. ANGERS.

REGALIA AT LUNERALS.

The following Toronth Telegram explains itself :---

At the funeral of a young man named Warner this afterncon, an occurrence happened, the last of which has not yet been heard. It appears that deceased was a member of the 'Prentice Boys' Lodge and also a corporal in the Toronto Field Battery, and con sequently loth these organizations proceeded to his fathers hours to attend the funeral. Major Gray, who is in command of the Battery, objected to the 'Prentice Boys' walking with their regalia on, and said if they insisted on doing so, he would not allow his corps to march. Thereupon the 'Prentice Boys' held a short consultation, the result of which was that they returned to their hall, declaring that if they could not wear their regalia they would not march at all. The funeral was then proceeded with, the Battery Band heading the procession. It is understood that the 'Prentice Boys' will hold a special meeting regarding the affair.

conclusion. The Conservatives not only voted against the motion, but repeatedly interrupted the supporters of it to show their contempt for it.

A LAUGHING STOCK.

An Irish Exchange says :---

"The week in Parliament has been one of the most remarkable in the long history of the British House of Commons. It has also been one of the most troublesome a British Ministry has ever faced. "The first assembly" has engaged in a battle, or rather in a series of battles, with the advanced sec-tion of the Home Rule party, and the result is that it has become a laughing-stock in the face of Eu-O'Loghlen, M. P., which took place on board the Holyhead mail boat early on Sunday morning. Sir Colman's body was taken to his brother's house in Dublin. A medicine bottle in his possession was inscribed on the outside "A tablespoonful three times a day after meals." The vessel was about three miles from Holyhead when the deceased called the steward, and in ten minutes he had expired. He was exactly fifty-eight years old. Sir Colman was returning to Ireland for the Clare Assizes. His death is lamented by all classes, so high was his character and conspicuous his abilities."

THE CLARE ELECTION.

There is very little doubt but that another Home Ruler-an obstructionist at least will be elected for Clare in the place of the lamented Sir ('.

The writ for Clare was moved for and granted on Saturday, and on this day the nomination takes place in Ennis. As we write, three candidates are before the electors-Mr. F. N. V. Burton, J. P., D.-L; Mr. Studdert Gibson, who is we believe, a tenant farmer; and The O'Gorman Mahon. The two last mentioned gentlemen stand on the popular platform ; the address of the first named would lead us to presume that he is of the same politics, but it is utterly unsatisfactory.

THE O'GORMAN MAHON.

Says the Nation of the 4th of August in speaking of the Candidates for Clare :---

"For the rest the O'Gorman Mahon appears to be the favourite, and on his arrival in the country on Wednesday the gallant veteran met with an enthusiastic reception. We hope that wheever is selected as the popular candidates, one thing will be insisted on by the people, and that is, he cited over the late proceedings of their favorite representatives in Parliament, in the matter of obstruction. Those proceedings are entiusiastically endorsed and, except by a few castle hacks, and extreme Orangemen numerically as well. The Nation has the following :---

The obstruction question is reported to have been again taken into consideration by the Home Rule again taken into consideration by the nome Kule party. There is no very definite statement as to the result, but one or two accounts concur in re-presenting Mr. Butt to have gone to very extra-ordinally lengths in opposition to the course pur-sued by Messrs. Parnell, Biggar, O'Donnell, and O'Connor Power in the House of Commons. A threat of resignation seems to have been made by him, and it is said that he intends issning a manifesto to the Irish people. He ought to be careful that he does not break up the party.

THE APOSTOLIC DELEGATE.

The following, paragraph, which is going the rounds of the press may be taken for what it is worth :---

"A contemporary stated Tuesday that Mgr. Conroy the Papal Ablegate, endorsed the views of the Rev. Father Staffard in regard to the Orange question. A leading Irish Catholic Citizen denies this in toto. and says that Bishop Couroy has not as yet express-ed any opinien publicly, and that privately he intimated that he did not endorse the views of Rev. Mr. Stafford. Bishop Conroy will arrive in this city from Quebec shortly and will spend several months here, having leased a house on Sherbrooke street in which to reside."- Witness.

A NEW PLAGUE.

The Dublin correspondent of the New York Tablet of August 4th, writes :----

It appears that there is a plague more to be dreaded in Ireland than the Colorado beetle. Speaking at an Orange gathering in Dublin, on 12th inst. "Brother Thompson, Grand Master of Trinity College, Orange Lodge," said this plague is the spread of "Popery" in the Established Church in England and in the Protestant Church in Ireland. He charged the commander-in-chief of the forces-that is to say, the Duke of Cambridge-British army. The terrible consequences of this Brother Thompson depicts thus: "Once this takes root, wherever a British soldier is stationed we will having the onfersional amongst the soldiers; and onc wi have that, give up the British army^m Th, advice which this bleeding Orangeman offered to all brethren, their wives and children, was that "wherever they eaw a priest they should turn their backs upon him." It was supposed that the genuine time blue Orangemen was nearly extinct in

SIR COLMAN O'LOGHLEN, M. P. The Catholic Times says :---"We regret to announce the death of Sir Colman

Then we have an encouraging report from Kingston, and we can assure our friends that the Irish Catholics of Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa, und Belleville, entertain the same opinion as those expressed in the resolutions we publish:

IRISH SOCIETIES, KINGSTON.

After the disposal of business relating to the pic-nic, the representatives of the Irish Societies of this city passed the following Resolutions at a large meeting held in St. Patrick's Hall :---

Resolved -- 1st. That we have road with extreme regret portions of an address said to have been delivered by Father Stafford at Lindsay. 2nd. That while we sincerely regret the unfortunate occurrence in Montreal which resulted in the death of Mr. T. L. Hackett, we indignantly deny the absurd, foolish and uncharitable allegation of the reverend gentleman that the Catholics of Upper Canada or Catholics generally, are in any way responsible for that lamentable event.

That we also dissent most strongly from Father Stafford's opinion that but for the absence of Father Dowd the event referred to would not have bappened. but on the contrary we believe that it was a sudden and unpremeditated act, for which no one is responsible but the parties actually engaged in it.

That we desire to express our emphatic censure of any person, whatever be his station, endeavouring to gain, as we believe, a little personal popularity in violation of truth, and at the expense of the Catholics of this country."

THE REVEREND FATHER STAFFORD KINGSTON, August 12th, 1877.

To the Editor of the TRUE WITNESS.

DEAR SIR,-Allow me to thank you for inserting my communication of last week in reference to the Rev. Mr. Stafford. I hazard an opinion that there is scarcely one of your readers who will not appreciate the commiscrating mildness with which you dealt with his remarks. It is sure to recieve due appreciation, this desire of yours, to spare, after gross provocation, for the sake of the order to which he belongs a man who inconsiderately, nay wantonly turned his altar into a "stump" he better fulfilled in proceeding alone, with the aid from which to fulminate an unmerited at of Mr. Mousseau and Mr. McMaster; that the pubtack upon his fellow. Catholics and attempted at elicity given to the enquiry laid before the jury, was one fell swoop to annihilate the mouth-piece of of a nature to militate to the prejudice of justice Catholic opinion in Montreal,

But Sir if you have been mild in animadverting upon his vagaries, there are others more intimately concerned with the utterances of Catholic priests, who feel personally aggrieved when a Catholic otherwise than gain. He further said that to dispriest commits himself, and who though they are not responsible for, yet keenly feel the disgrace sent of the jury. While we were deliberating witwhen a father is the author of it. In such a contingency it becomes a duty to adminsterisuch.

THE HACKETT INQUEST.

We doubt if the following from part of the jury in the Hackett enquiry will obtain the amount of publicity given to the document emanating from those who differed from them:-

The following petition has been sent to the Attorney-General of the Province :--

Memorial to the Honorable the Attorney-General of the Province of Quebec :--

The undersigned members of the jury charged to enquire into the circumstances of the death of the late Thomas Lett Hackett, killed on the 12th July last, desire in the interests of justice to place before you the evidence which gave rise to the verdict which was rendered by witnesses and understood by them.

At the opening of the meeting of the 20th of July last; Mr. Coroner Jones desiring to consult with the jury, requested the audience present to retire ; and being seated with closed doors, he submitted to the jury the verdict as itwas finally rendered, requesting them to consider the propriety of adopting it. He made known to the jury motives which induced him to submit this verdict. These motives, as explained by him, were as follows :-That his powers as coroner authorized him, after such a verdict, to continue the enquiry alone; that he had been assured of this after taking the opinion of Mr. Mousseau, Counsel for the Crown ; that the and of the jurors, and might even prevent the dis-covery of the real culprit; that in a few days the passions of the people would become more calm, and that in thus doing the truth could not do nessing hesitation on the part of some of the

The Lodges have taken the Star under their patronage as well as its confreres the Witness and Toronto, Patriot, wherever and whatever that is :--

At the semi-annual meeting of Union, No. 1, District Lodge, held on the 24th ult., at Prince Edward Lodge room, Pownal, P. E. THE POLITICAL PRISONERS.

Nothing makes the English House of Commons lose its temper so much as the Amnesty Question. It is then the Country gentlemen following Mr. Hardy shew their teeth. We clip the following extract from the Cork Eaaminer : —

"There was a very creditable attendance of the Liberal Irish members on the 20th July, when Mr. O'Connor Power brought forward his motion in fayour of the political prisoners. Mr. Pease, the member for Durham, made an excellent speech in jurors, he went a couple of times to the door of support of the motion, as did Major O'Gorman; the room for the purpose of calling in the public but Mr. Secretary Hardy delivered a violent and fraternal correction as a lay man nowever disposed the room for the purpose of calling in the public out mr. secretary hardy derivered a violent and derivered and derivered a violent and derivered a violent and derivered and derivere and derivered and derivered and derivered and shall come up to the requirements of the time, and pledge himself, if elected, to pursue a bold and vigorous course of action in the House of Commons. Mr. Gibson already promises to thwart and obstruct any ministry that ignores the just rights of Ireland; we feel assured The O'Gorman Mahon, who has long been known as "a fighting man," also means to adopt a combative policy. But the people should see to it that he expresses himself p'ainly on this subject.

THE ELCHO SHIELD.

An Irish exchange says :---

"A brilliant assembly witnessed the Lords and Commons match, which was won by the peers. At the close of the match the company joined the immense crowd watching the final stage in the international match for the Elcho Shield This Ireland won with a score which the adjutant of the English Eight declared unprecedented at Wimble-ron. Round after round af cheering greated the Irish victors. A blue incket won the Army and Navy Cup, and the English team beat the Canadians for the Kolapore Cup. Oxford beat the Cambridge for the Chancellor's. Plate, and Cheltenham won the Ashburton Shield. The camp has been thronged with visitors Weather lowering, but there was ex-cellent unvarying light for shooting."

This is the third time Ireland captured the Elcho Shield.

IRISH DISCONTENT.

'The following extract from L. H Jennings's London Letter a very impartial writer and deep thinker is enough to set serious people cogitating :---

This brings me to the question of Irish discontent. There can be no doubt that it is quite as deep and passionate as ever. Of course it ought not to be if Mr. Gladstone's predictions were worth anything at the time he disestablished the Protestant Church in Ireland. Thenceforth, he assured the world, the Irish would be contented and happy. What are the facts? An Irish landlord, of the greatest influence in his own country, assured me the other day that never had he known the country to be in so disturbed and dangerous a condition. " Everywhere," said he, 'the peasautry are being drilled with the utmost care and regularity, and they are now well armed. The police dare not interfere. The people hope that England will get to war with Russia, and then then they expect to give her some trouble, and they will do it, too.". It would be of ittle use to tell this to the majority of Englishmen, for they would only laugh at it. Yet it may turn out to be anything but a laughing matter. In the event of a foreign war there would not be many troops to spare for the suppression of insurrection in Ireland. a dia serva

OBSTRUCTION.

Ireland. Brother Thompson is evidently a genuine specimen of the real article, and it is satisfactory to know that he is in a good state of preservation.

JUDGE KEOGH.

Of all the Irish Judges, Mr. Justice Keegh has the knack of making himself and his acts the subject of public comment. When the judge finds himself on the bench in the full-blown dignity of wig and ermino, we betide the unfortunate wight who conflicts with his "nobility." At the late Kerry Assizes, he imprisoned an unfortunate countryman for twenty-four hours for only showing a little anxiety to secure a place in court. His treatment of Joshua Jacob, a Quaker, at the Limerick Summer Assizes of 1876, for wearing his hat in court, has recently been brought by the latter before the members of the English Parliament. Mr. Jacob alleges that his hat was forcibly removed from his head, and he himself twice expelled from the court by Judge Keogh's orders, though he meant no disrespect, but only "that as the uncovering of the head is an act of reverence offered to God in worship, it therefore should not be offered to men." Mr. Jacobs concludes by asking "whether such as are put into the responsible position o administrators of the law of the land, should not be so careful and tender of the conscience of all. that no intelerance or forcing of the conscience should be found with them?" A very reasonable inquiry when we find the administration of justice in the hands of the man who, a few years previously, could incite the peasantry to agrarian outrage by reminding them that "the long nights would come again." · SA

CARDINAL MANNING ON INTEMPERANCE.

Cardinal Manning, writing to a friend in Dublin on intemperance, says: "Half the missery of homes arising from had teuper, sloth, squandering, selfish-ness, debt, neglect of all duty, is caused by indulg-ence in wine and the like. The sure and best cure of this is to bring up children in simple habits, and to goard them against acquiring the liking for intoxicating drinks. When a liking for the taste is acquired, the temptation is at once in existence. Common sense as well as faith says-Train up children not to know the taste and they will not be tempted. I urge this on parents whenever I can, and I have before me many happy homes in which children have grown up without so much as having. ever tested anything but water."

The Countess of Cardigan, who, as Miss De Horsey, scandalized London twenty years sgo by eloping with the "black bottle" Earl of Balaklava fame, and who married him after his wife's death, has first and manifed man, not ins viles death, has first got into a queer mess with her second, spouse, ford Cardigan died some years ago, and his daahing, widow manied a nephew of the Portu-guese Duke de, Salianba, the Count de Lancastre. She has now announced in the papers that she will "pay no debts of his contracting." But for all the the noble pair seem to be on the best of terms for the Court Circular of July 21 records them as enterthe Cont Circular, of July 21 records them againer-taining at dinner a large and distinguished circle, including Maria, Marchioness of Ailsbury Viscount Newry, Lady Sebright, and other leading members of what may be called the "socially liveral" section.

THE TRUE WITNESS AND CATHOLIC CHRONICLE.

THE GIFT OF FAITH.

PBBACHED BY THE REV. FATHER HENNING OF THE REDEMPTORIST ORDER, AT ST. PATRIOK'S CHURCH, QUEBEC, SUNDAY, 30TH JULY, 1877.

(Reported for the TRUE WITNBES.)

"Blessed are the eyes that see the things which you see, and the cars that hear the things which you hear."

And what, I ask you, my dearly beloved brethren, had the disciples of Jesus Christ seen, and what had they heard, that our dear Lord should make them these congratulations? They had seen His miracles. they had been the witnesses of His humilistions, they had seen how He was persecuted by men. they had heard His doctrine, but they had not seen His triumphs, not even His resurrection from the dead. They had seen only the beginnings of Christianity-they had seen the child in its cradle. What could our dear Lord say to us, were he to appear amongst us on this day-now that 1800 years have expanded our views; now that we see Christjanity, not any longer an infant but a full grown man; now that the gospel is spread all over the grace can assist us to practice this virtue. Thereworld? would He not pronounce us thrice, aye, a hundred times happy for seeing the things which we see, and hearing the things which we hear. And why is this happiness ours? Because we have received from God the gift of Faith. It is the greatest gift that God can bestow upon man, and, my can enter into the kindom of God. If Faith is the dear brethren, we can never be thankful enough to means by which our soul is purified, by which the God for having bestowed it upon us.

What do we understand by the gift of Faith? Faith, on the part of God, is a supernatural gift | Faith and the foundation of man's happinees crumbbestowed gratuitously upon man, in order that by les into the dust; take away Faith and all his hope this gift, man may be enabled to submit, willing by and cheerfully, to the teachings of God's revelation. | withering sentimentalism ; take away Faith, and On the part of man, it is the virtue by which he believes all things that God has revealed. I say it is a supernatural gift. It cannot be the object of science. The object of science is the natural world. Science can investigate the course of the stars, the layers of which the surface of the earth, is composed, the nature of plants, the nature and conduct of the animal creation-all that belongs to the abode of man. I can go farther still-it can investigate the ideas of reason; but further than this it cannot go. It cannot overstep its own boundaries; it cannot transcend its limits; it cannot rise from the natural to the supernatural. Now, the objects of Faith are not natural. They are above the comprehension of reason. And, because they are above man's comprehension, above the sphere of reason-it follows that science cannot make them the subject of its investigation. Therefore, if you have Faith, it is not because science has given it to you. It is because it is the gift of gratuitously bestowed by Him upon you. God, Faith is not the result of investigation, not the result of study, not the result of reading. Investigation, study, reading, may be necessary, and are necessary, to bring before us the facts of revelation. They are necessary to remove the obstacles in the way of belief, but they cannot confer upon you Faith; they cannot give you the strength to believe what God has revealed; they cannot be-stow upon you that moral power which accepts the truths of revelation without the least hesitation. Faith is not the consequence, not the result, not the reward of natural virtue. A reward must always be proportionate to the action of which it is the reward, and the reason of this is simply the justice of God. Because God is just he is bound to reward all virtue, but He is bound to reward it in its own sphere. Natural virtue, He rewards by giving a natural reward; and supernatural virtue. by giving a supernatural reward. Now, as Faith is something supernatural, and natural virtue does not transcend the sphere of the natural ; it follows that Faith cannot be the reward of natural virtue. No matter how good a man may be, how just towards his neighbors, how faithful to his wife and children, how honest in all his dealings; he cannot claim, as the reward of these natural virtues, the gift of Faith from God. Hence we see often enough that men who lead good lives, are good citizens, good fathers of families, good husbands, honest in business transactions with their neighbors. We see that these men live in infidelity, die in infidelity, and we know that they must be lost in their infidelity. On the other hand, we see men whose whole lives are steeped in crime, whose vices and sins have grown over their heads-we see these by God's grace, and humat once, touch bly seeking admission to the Holy Catholic Church. Why is this? It is simply because Faith cannot be the reward of natural virtue. Faith is a gift of God, and it is a gratuitous gift and is bestowed upon us, not because we have deserved it, but because God wishes and chooses to give it to us. It is a gift which enables us to accept all those truths which He has revealed, without any exception or limitation, which enables us to believe that which our reason can never comprehend. For tell me, can you comprehend by reason that in God there are three persons, that each of these three persons is God, and yet that these three persons are only one and not three Gods? Can you comprehend by reason that in Jesus Christ there are two distinct natures, the nature of God and the nature of man, united hypostatically, i.e. in one and the same person? That the Blessed Virgin is a Virgin and yet a mother; a mother without the loss of her virginity; a Virgin before the birth of Christ, in the birth of Christ, and before the birth of Ohrist? That by the pronouncing of a few words by the priest at the altar, the substance of the bread and wine is changed in the body and blood of Jesus Christ? That by the pronouncing of a few word to the penitent, all his sins are washed away, and his soul made whiter than the driven snow? Reason cannot comprehend those truths. It requires a powerful effort to accept them as true. This power is given by the gift of Faith. Is not, evidently, the gift of Faith the greatest gift that God can give us? Faith is the source of all our happiness. It is the source of our happiness in this world, and the source of our happiness in the next world. No creature can be happy unless it be in the element for which God has created it. Now God did not create man to drink, to sleep, to work like a mule, and then to rot. He made him for a higher design, a nobler aim. He made man that he might know Him and serve Him, and in this knowledge, this service, he might work out his design and make out happiness in Heaven. Therefore, man cannot be happy unless he is in that supernatural element. He cannot be happy unless his desire for knowledge is satisfied. Can a man be happy when his mind is always in doubt? when this doubt concerns his own salvation, the end for which he exists? He cannot; neither wealth, nor pleasure, nor the amusements of life, will make him happy as long as his mind is deprived of that certainty which he naturally seeks. Hence we read of men who, although they wallow in wealth, are surrounded by all the luxuries, have a good wife and happy children around them-we read of such men putting an end to their existence. And why is this? Because they are not happy. They are not happy because there is the desire-their longings are not satisfied. They have not that certainty which alone can make a man happy. Faith, on the other hand, gives that certainty. When you believe, you know that you are standing on a solid rock. The winds and waves of doubt have no influence on you. You know that you are God's child, that He is your Father, that he provides for all your wants. If he sends you affliction, you know that it is not because he does not, but young men and young women, but also from mar-ried men and women. All are bound to lead a mesistance, Mr. William E. Foster declaring that, chaste life, each one according to his condition. though sizty years of age, he would sit it out and chaste life, each one according to his condition.

Now, I ask you, is it possible for fallen human nature to lead a chaste life such as is required by Christianity? I say it is not-to be chaste in our words, in our thoughts, in our actions. Our actions might be controlled by human considerations; but who can control our thoughts? who can enter into our hearts and control four desires 7. The super-natural faith of God slope. Therefore, I say that without faith it is impossible to lead a supernatural life-to practice virtue, and not virtue of the natural order. Does not Ohristianity require of each and every one that he should even love his enemies? now, I ask you, is the love of our enemies something that can be required of unassisted, nature? And yet it is law and we must perform it This is a supernatural virtue and only supernatural fore, again I say without faith it is impossible to lead a supernatural life. Faith is the basis of our happiness in heaven. Holy Scripture tells us that without faith it is impossible to please God. Does not Holy Scripture, also say that nothing defiled stain of sin is removed, then it follows that Faith is the basis of our happiness in heaven. Take away of the future is gone; and his life dwindles into a you deprive him of his happiness; and you have made man a savage-worse than a savage, a brute with no hopes, no aspirations beyond the hopes and aspirations of his belly. Take away Faith and you have robbed him of everything that ennobles him; of everything that makes him worthy of the tittle of manhood; of that signature which God gave him when he created him, that is to say, the image and likeness of God.

Therefore do not expose your Faith to danger Do not read Protestant or infidel works, you must drive from your minds all doubts concerning Faith tor to harbor a doubt, to entertain it willfully, is already an act of treason ; it is doubting the veracity of Jesus Christ. Avoid all unnecessary associations with those outside the Catholic Church. If you do not, you expose your Faith to danger of being lost. Children should not be sent to Protestant schools. Young men and young women should not be allowed to associate unnecessarily with Protestants for it exposes their precious Faith to danger of apostacy. How many Catholics will says to the priest, "Father, I may convert such and such a man?" Let me tell you one little piece of truth : I am an old missionary though young in years. I have travelled all over the world. I have given sermons in every large city of the United States, in England, Ireland, and in Scotland, and I tell you here that for every Protestant who is gained to the Catholic Church by a mixed marriage, ten Catholics are lost to the Faith. The work of conversion God has given to the Apostles. Your duty is to give a good example of ot Faith and submission to the laws. We must be Catholics, not only here in Church ; we must be Catholics in our home, in the counting house, in the work shop, in the streets, in our edu cation, in our politics, in our inner life. The Church needs our consolation in her struggle against infidelity. Let our lives, then, be in accordance with our Faith, so that we may live good Catholics, die good Catholics, and earn in Heaven the reward of our good lives here below.

SEVEN HOME RULERS' WORK.

A TWENTY-EIX HOURS' SESSION IN THE ENGLISH PABLIA-MENT.

A climax was reached on Tuesday night and yesterday in the obstruction of busines in the Imperial Parliament by the handful of Irish Home Rulers, led by Messrs Parnell, member for County Meath; Riggar, member for County Cavan; and O'Connor Power, member for County Mayo. On numberless occasions during the present session have these enfants terribles of Irish discontent driven Sir Stafford Northcote, Chancellor of the Exchequer. to despair, goaded Mr. Gathorn Hardy, Secretary of War, to the verge of madness, and irritated Mr. Cross, the Home Secretary, to a state of mind of which his name givts only the faintest idea. All this has been done by making use of the rules of the House to make the House as unruly as possible. Never were six hundred engineers more conspicuously hoist with their own petards than the 'noble lords," "right honorable," "honorable and gallant," "honorable and learned," and plain "honorable" gentlemen of the Imperial Parliament. You would call it filibustering in America, but it is called by every name which irritation would bounce to the lips of the profane or studied depreciation could suggest. In addition to the three members already named the obstructionists count in their slim but determined band Mr. Francis Hugh O'Donnell, the lately returned member for Dungarvan, whose fierce and vehement oratory has been poured out like witches oil upon the already troubled waters of the House. and who at a thetorical bound leaped into the illwill of old England. Captain Nolan, of the artillery, member for County Galway, has also efficiently helped to scatter the obstruction grape-shot. Mr. Harley Kirk, the member for Louth, a farmer who has little to say but is ever ready to vote when the Government is to be harrowed, is also one of the band, which finally includes Mr. Edward Dwyer Gray, member for County Tipperary, son of the late Sir John Gray and proprietor of the Dublin afterward, Sir Stafford Northcote having been in-Freeman's Journal, having succeeded his father in vited by Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen, Liberal mem-Freeman's Journal, having successes in later in the arti-the directorship of that influential paper. North Hamptonshire. A month ago the obstructionists held the House for fifteen hours on one pretext after another, but the session which began at four o'clock on Tuesday afternoon and ended at ten minutes past six last evening, a continuous session of twenty-six hours, was the longest ever passed through by the British Parliament. Throughout the greater portion of the time scenes of the wildest excitement were enacted. The seven obstructionists who pitted themselves | relieved four times, and there were in all twentyagainst the six hundred were beaten at last, and the air will echo with the story thereof for weeks. Almost anything in the shape of Government business has been good enough for Messrs Parnell and Biggar to attack; but the South African Confederation Bill, which provides for the absorption nolens volens of the Transvaal Republic, founded by the Dutch Boers, into a federation with the Cape Colonies, was especially objectionable to them. The annexation is strenuously opposed by the Boers themselves, and hence, giving the Irish Home Rulers a parallel case to that of their own country, the bill was attacked tooth and nail. The halfdozen or so obstructionists could not hope to pre- country is one of exasperation against them. vent the bill ultimately from becoming a law, but Through the long twenty-six hours' session the they were resolved to oppose it at every clause, and scenes throughout were animated and sometimes are haply in adversity and in prosperity, when you ready enumerated. are slok and in good health, in the state of grave. It was arranged that the House repentance can be built. Faith is the basis of all bould be attended pight and day by relays of fresh supernatural virtue. You are required to lead a members, who were to carry on the fight until ex-life of chastity, and this is required, not only from the index of the Doubsettion chastfully cave their stick until the end.

By six o'clock on Tuesday evening the House went into Committee of the Whole on the South African bill. At once the trouble began. Every device in the shape of amendments on which the House could be divided was resorted to. At an early stage the motion, now terrible to English ears, that "progress be reported, was made. It simply means that no more business can be done on that measure. Out filed the members to the lobby for the division, and back they prooped again, fresh and active at first. Motion deleated by an enormous majority. No matter, To it again. More amend-ments are offered and more divisions follow. It at last becomes like a walk of Weston and O'Leary. No sooner are the honorables in than they are out again. It becomes very wearying.

Many of the English members left the House at nine o'clock to return at midnight. A fresh relay arrived at four o'clock. The obstructionists now found the work telling on them," and adopted " the tactics of their opponents and rested in turn."

Whoever rose to speak was greeted with the most deafening howls, and hence, when a fresh amendment was offered or the terrible "that progress be reported" was presented, the divisions took place in solemn silence, the greatest bitterness was exhibited by the majority, who were kept moving in and out during the slow processof counting the "ayes" and "noes." The Irish members kept up a ghastly good humor. Fresh doorkeepers and policemen were provided to relieve the wearied officials.

At four o'clock Mr. High C. Childers, a member of the Gladstone Cabinet, took the chair in place of the of the ordinery chairman. At five o'clock Mr. W. H. Smith, the member for Westminster, succeeded Mr. Childers in the chair. Daylight gradually came in. The gaslight was extinguished and the sun shone on a very haggard assemblage.

In the course of the night Mr. Parnell proposed an amendment which was simple nonsense, saying he did not intend to make sense. The amendment was refused by the chair after a scene bordering on violence.

Another incident of the night occurred when Sir Stafford Northcote, the leader of the House, in one of the momentary pauses, declared that the Government intended to pass the bill if they had to sit through the vacation. Upon this Mr. O'Connor Power, who had been made aware of the Government tactics, charged the Government with having organized a conspiracy to crush the Irish members Immediately the House was in a tumult. The chairman demanded the withdrawal of the word "conspiracy." Mr. Power tried to explain, but the cries of "withdraw" drowned his voice. He finally withdrew the expression.

Mr. O'Donnell having tried to justify the conduct of the obstructionists, Mr. Butt, the Home-Ruler, declared the Irish party repudiated Mr. O'Donnell, and said that if he thought Mr. O'Donnell did represent the Irish party he (Mr. Butt) would retire as from an Irish brawl.

Sir Andrew Lusk, liberal member for Finsbury, said the proceedings cut at the foundation of constitutional government.

Messis. Monk, Liberal member for Gloucester City, and Anderson, Liberal member for Glasgow, urged action by the Government and suggested the censure of the obstructionists.

Mr. Gray, of the obstructionists, said the responsibility for the demoralization of the House rested on Sir Stafford Northcote, Chaucellor of the Exchequer. Strong measures should have been taken at first.

Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, Liberal member for the city of Oxford, said the reason that stronger action was not taken was not on account of the weakness of the House, but to show the character of the contumaciousness to the country and give the obstructionists rope enough.

Mr. Grav cried. "Hear, hear," sneeringly. Sir Patrick O'Brien, a Home-Rule member tor King's County, objected to this, and intimated that Mr. Gray was a "humbig" and a "damned fool," which expression he had to withdraw as unparliamentary. At seven o'clock new relays of English members began to arrive, and were received with frantic cheers by the members whom they would relieve. The necessity of keeping the Parliamentary quorum of forty prevented many from leaving even when uttarly worn out. The Chancellor of the Exchequer again appealed to the terrible seven to abandon the honeless contest. It was in vain. The offer was rejected, and the amendments and motions to report progress were offered, and the filing in and out went wearily on. At ten o'clock yesterday morning the Irish seven, after their eighteen hours' combat, were much exhausted. Farmer Kirk was so weak that it was necessary to support him in his tramps in and out. O'Donnell was greatly distressed. Parnell was white as a corpse, and had great black rings about his eyes. Gray and O'Connor Power remained fresh. Biggar was asleep. Shortly after he returned to the House and took the opportunity, on a motion to 'report progress," to say that he had had a good sleep and a good breakfast, and was now ready for any amount of legislation. Messrs. Parnell and O'Connor Power then went out to rest, relieved by Mr. Biggar and others. Just before noon the Chancellor of the Exchequer intimated that he would move the suspension of the obstructionists, and a messenger was sent privately to bring the Marquis of Harrington, the leader of the Liberals, to second the motion. This measure, however, was not resorted to. Shortly vited by Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen, Liberal mem-ber for Sandwich, to take swift and strong action Mr. O'Donnell affected to regard this as a threat of coercion, and said that under the altered circumstances he would retire from the contest. As long as it was a question of physical endurance he and his friends were prepared to go on. This practically ended the fight on the African bill, which was then pushed forward in committee and completed at ten minutes past two amid thunders of applause. During the contest the chairman of the committee was two divisions in as many hours. The House then proceeded to take up other bills. A violent scene followed in the discussion of the Judicature (Ireland) bill again caused by Mr. Parnell This, bill, which involves and changes the constitu-tion of the Irish law courts in several ways, and rakes up the question of patronage in the court offices, has been bitterly contested by the Irish members, and they have succeeded in making many important amendments. Mr. Parnell has been very active in this. So the obstructionists retired exhausted after their bitter fight. The feeling throughout the because he loves you. When you have faith, you to it they went. There were seven of them, as al- stormy. Within recent history there has been no slon. When the House has sat from a quarter the chorus with solemn carnestness the parallel to this sitting. THE GREAT TURKISH VICTORY. GRAPHIC PICTURE OF THE FIGHT AT PLEVNA.

LONDON, Aug. 3rd.-The Daily News' correspondent sends from Parsdin, near Plevna, a graphic account of Tuesday's battle, the substan. tial facts of which are as already telegraphed to the United States. The following closing scenes give a vivid idea of the extent of the Russian disaster : The correspondent is with Prince Schackoskvy's command, and does not purport to give any account of the condition or losses of General Krudener's corps, and that now all hope of success 'anywhere was dead. Prince Schackoskvy had not a man left to cover the retreat, and the Turks struck without a stint. They had the upper hand for once, and were determined to make the most of it." They advanced in swarms, through the dusk; on their first original position, and captured the Russian cannons before the batteries could be withdrawn. The Turkish shells began once more to whistle over the bridge above Radishova, and fall into the village behind, now crimmed with wounded. The streams of wounded, wending their painful way over the bridge were incessant. The badly wounded mostly lay where they fell. Later, in the dark-ness, the Bashi-Bazonks swarmed over the battlefield and spared not Lingering there on the ridge till the moon rose, the staff-could hear from below the cries of pain and entreaties for mercy, and the yells of the blood thirsty fanatical triumph.

The Turks had our tange before dark, and we could watch the flash of flame over against us, and then listen to the scream of the shell as it tore by us. The sound of the nife bullets was incessant, aud the escort and retreating wounded were struck. A detachment at length began to come straggling up. But to give some idea of disorganization, up. when a company was told off to cover somewhat the wounded in Radishove, it had to be made up of men of several regiments. About nine o'clock the staff quitted the bridge, leaving it littered with groaning men. General Erudener sent word in the morning that he had lost isverely, and could make no headway, and had resolved to fall back on the line of the river Osma. There had been talk of his troops being fresh, of reniwing the attack to-day with his co-operation, but we have no troops to sttack with. The moderate stimate is, that we have lost two regiments, say 5,010 men out of our three brigades, a ghastly number, beating Eylau and This takes to account of General Friedland. Krudener's losses. We, to, retire on the Osma river, about Bulgareni, and to the best of our weak strength, cover the bridge at Sistova. Not a Russian soldier stands between Tirnova and the victorious Turkish army in Loveca and Plevna, and only a weak division of the eleventh corps stands between Tirnova and the Shumla army. I look on Prince Schackoskvy's force as no longer for this campaign to be counted as a fighting integer.

So, on this side of the Balkans, there remains but the ninth corps, already roughly handled, --once at Nicopolis and once at Plevra; one division of the eleventh corps, and the Eustchuk army. If the Rustchuk army is marched to the west against Plevna, then the Turkish army of Rustchuk is let loose on the Russian communications to Tirnova. The advance over the Balkans is seriously com-The Russian strait is so bad that promised scattered detachments have been cailed up from out of Roumania, and the Roumania division, commanded by Ueneral Mann, which crossed a day or two ago, at Nicopolis, has been called up to the line of the Osma River. We are falling back on Bul-garia with all speed, leaving the Bulgarian villages to the tender mercles of the Tarks. On our left General Skobeloff was very severely handled, having lost 300 men out of his single infantry battalion.

THE RETREAT.

The same correspondent, telegraphing from Simnitza, under date of August 1st, gives an account of the retreat. He says :-" The road from Poredin to Bulgareni, was cumbered with broken and retreating troops, wholly destitute of order, officers without soldiers, soldiers without officers, without cohesion, and mostly without arms. At the narrow bridge, near Bulgareni, there was wild confusion, and a complete block of tumbrils, ambulance wag gons, provision waggons, officers' caleches, led horses, and carts filled with wounded, all jummed in describable chaos. There had been wounded all along the road, but the bulk of the wounded began a little way beyond Bulgareni, and extended in an unbroken line to Sistova. They were mostly carried in ox carts, the severer cases in ambulances, and large numbers tramped on foot. Immense numbers of wounded had tramped the whole way from the battle-field, and were already entering Sistova at six o'clock vesterday evening. They have walked nearly forty miles in twenty-four hours, wounded as they were. Nearly all those wounded, however, managed to walk out of the battle. The bad cases were mostly left where they fell. The staff officer, with whose estimate I am inclined to agree, thinks the whole force lost between 6,000 and 7,000 men in killed and wounded. A brigade of the thirty-second division suffered most heavily. Besides the terrible loss of men, it sacrificed the imperial banner of one of its regiments. The whole of thirtieth division have been smitten sorely. All the three brigades of Prince Schackoskvy's command are for a time in a state of disorganization.

Correspondent-What has been the effect of your action?

ction ? Mr. Parnell-The effect has been startling. This session we have prevented the Government from getting through at least three fourths of the work which they had laid out for themselves at the beginning of the session. The remaining fourth represents about the capacity for work of the Imperial Parliament.

Correspondent-Your action has subjected you to a great deal of ridicule and vituperation in the English press.

Mr. Parnell-I don't consider it the duty of an rish national member to regulate his action by the comments of English journals. An Irishman who thus allows himself to be influenced by English opinion becomes a snob and a flunkey.

Correspondent-Pardon me for the remark, but is there not some resemblance between your line of conduct and that of the fillibusters in the United States Congress ?

Mr. Parnell--Oh, by no means. We cannot in any justice be called fillibusters. Fillibustering, as I understand it, was an attempt, by making dilatory motions, to waste time and so prevent the Presidential count being obtained by a certain day. We, on the contrary, never make purely dilatory motions... Our success depends not on our waste of time, but on the fact that the English Parliament has more work than it can do Correspondent-Your action has met with some disapproval from other members of the home rale party?

Mr. Parnell-Oh, yes.

Correspondent-Their objaction, I understand, is that you only irritate your opponents, that it would be better to try a policy of argument and conciliation?

Mr. Parnell-The policy of argument and conciliation has been tried and found wanting; we never did get anything, we never will get anything by soft speeches and an humble demeanor."

Correspondent-Will not the inconveniences to English business caused by your action produce a strong feeling against you in England?

Mr. Parnell-Be it so; that will be all the better for the Irish cause. It is only by bringing the inconvenience home to their own doors that we can make the English government clearly understand the evils of the present system. When they have suffered at our hands a little of the inconvenience we have been so long suffering at theirs they will begin to see our demand for a change of legislative arrangement in a very different light.

Correspondent-Do you think you have lost any votes for the Home Rule cause by the course you have adopted?

Mr. Parnell-As yet cetainly not. On that point I am quite certain.

Correspondent-But in time you surely are certain to lose the sympathy of the liberal party, on which the Irish cause has had principally to rely. Will they not be forced by the violence of public feeling in England against you to cast you off, and refuse all alliance with you, even on points they were formerly willing to concede?

Mr. Parneli-Our action may produce an estrangement from us of the liberal party for a time. But this feeling will, I have no doubt, pass away. They will see in the end that it is we who are following a truly liberal policy. Decentralization, the in-crease of local power, is the guiding principle not only of the Irish Home Rule party, but rightly un. derstood of the English liberal party also.

Correspondent-Can you point to any other result of your action?

Mr. Parnell-Yes. It has always been asserted by Englishmen that they would be only too glad if we took part in the discussion of English, as they do in that of Irish affairs. Well, we have taken the hint, and you see the reception we have met. We always believed that this professed anxiety of Englishmen for our intervention was a pretence. We have now proved it to be so.

Correspondent-What will you do in case the half-past twelve rule is not passed next session? Mr. Parnell-Well, we must only adopt other means. I have no doubt we shall find some quite as effective as those we have adopted up to this. Correspondent-Do you anticipate good results for the Irish cause for your line of action ?-Mr. Parnell-You see what two men have been able to do. If for two we had twenty, what results might we not hope for ? We could make all business absolutely impossible.

THE IRISH "OBSTRUCTIONISTS."

We take the following extracts from the N.Y. Herald correspondent regarding the obstructionists:---

Twelve months ago the names of these gentlemen were scarcely known beyond the circles of their immediate friends and those who read daily every word of the parliamentary reports. To-day they are better known, are more frequently spoken about and, to a certain extent, are more powerful than many of the gentlemen who are supposed to rule English destinies. There is scarcely a debate in which they do not figure; there is not an English newspaper in which they are not mentioned in terms of abuse. The Times passes judicial sentence on them; the Daily Telegraph bursts into tears over their obstinacy; the Daily News is decorously vicious, and the Standard is in a white rage. The funny journals of course, follow suit, and Punch, Fun, Judy and others crack jokes at the expense of the pair, sometimes witty and nearly always coarse.

I will now let Mr. Parnell himself speak in ex planation and defence of his policy Having written to him respecting an interview I received a courteous reply in the course of a few hours. Mr. Parnell invited me down to the House of Commons, and there I met him in one of the lobbles.

"I am pleased to find," said the member from Meath, "that your paper takes an interest in our proceedings. You wish to present my views to the American people ?"

1 bowed assent.

"Let us take a walk, then, on the Terrace, and have a talk on the subject."

The Terrace is a long walk which looks on the Thames, rolling by. It is a deliciously cool spot in hot weather, and, in the long evenings, it is here and there white tents. The Russian army was much affected by the youthful members given to cigars, gin cobblers, and the wearing of white which is always sung at sundown. The soldiers walstcoats Correspondent-You have endeavored to remedy this state of things?

orrespondent-And then ?

Mr. Parnell-Why, then, the English Parliament would be compelled to yield and to offer a compromise. You may be perfectly sure that, whether we succeed so thoroughly, we, at all events, will do something. Up to the present with our soft talk and gentle ways, we have done nothing-absolutely nothing.

A TALK WITH MR. BIGGAR.

My conversation with Mr. Biggar was one of short duration, for he is a sharp, brusque speaker. Correspondent-You are not wholly satisfied with the present Home Rule party?

Mr. Biggar-No; some of the members rarely attend; others are lukewarm, but the great thing I blame is the tendency of so many of our members to become absorbed in one of the English parties. This may suit the vanity of some talented gentlemen, anxious for oratorical fame, and therefore desirous of cultivating popularity in the House. But it is utterly opposed to my idea of our duties. We ought to keep ourselves completely apart, distinct and independent.

Correspondent-You disbelieve in the policy of conciliation ?

Mr. Power-When the English Parliament is reconciliatory to us we ought to be polite to them; but it is equally our duty as men and as representatives of a nation to return insolence for insolence, blow for blow.

Correspondent-You are not one of those, then, who care for the opinion of the English Parliament,

Mr Power-The opinion of the English Parliament is nothing to us. It is our Irish constituents we ought to solely think of.

Such is the obstruction policy. It has created as much enthusiasm in Ireland as anger in England. At the next general election there is certain to be a distinct Parnell and Biggar party, and there can be little doubt that they will find many supporters. With a body of twenty or thirty Home Rulers, determined in character and pledged to obstruct all business, the English Parliament will, indeed, present a spectacle to make angels weep.

AN EVENING SCENE IN THE RUS-SIAN CAMP.

A correspondent of the London News who accompanied the Fourteenth Corps in its march through the Dobrudja, sketches an early evening scene near Trajan's Wall. Along the road, perhaps half a mile away were some Turkish horsemen on the slope of the next hill, and beyond this rise was a long unbroken ridge, with the Turkish camp extended along the summit in an irregular black line, with drawn up in the foreground for the evening hymn stood there in parade with their white caps under their arms, singing in chorus the sweet vesper hymn, with an interlude from the bands and bugles. The long lines of men without their acoutrements standing in roverential silence while the bands played a strain, and then joining in PUSSEY .- Dr. Harrison having sent to the members of both Houses of Parlisment his pamphlet entitled " Letter to the Rev. E. B. Pussey, D. D., on his unfair treatment of the Fathers concerning the Doctrine of the Real Preseace, with a refutation of that doctrine, Sir. George Bowyer, M. P., has addressed to Dr. Harrison the following letter: "TEMPLE, July 17, 1877. "Sir: 1 have received a copy of your letter to Dr. Pussey, though perhaps it was not intended to send to Catholic members. In the first place you bring a charge of heresy against the Churches of the East and West, against all Christians except Protestants; against about four hundred millions cf souls, with their bishops and clergy. I may also mention the learned and exemplary men who constitute the High-Church school of your own body. They are autres, he himself spoke for four hours, supported all to fall down and submit to the view of the Low-Church, and the Broad Church portions of the indulgeth not in the cup that inebriates But this Anglican body in all their phases, and the innumerable sects of dissenters and foreign Protestants striving against each other. As for the real sub-stanc) and merits of the case, all has been thoroughly speaking, especially about persons in high position. thrashed out in the controversy between Cardinal Wiseman and Dr. Turton. You can add nothing material to that controversy. I am of opinion that you have not substantiated your very grave charge of dishonesty and dishonour against Dr. Pussey, a man of profound learning and the highest character who is a conspicuous ornament of your own Church. No doubt, there are more or less obscure passages in the Fathers regarding the Real Presence. But this is to be accounted for by the fact that when they wrote the doctrine was not in dispute. And you must be aware that Origen is not a safe authority. The testimony and the authority of the Fathers respecting the doctrine of the Real Presence, are, no doubt, valuable ; but the doetrine is sufficiently proved by the words of Scripture, including the lixth chapter of St. John, which Dr. Turton in vain aftempted to weaken and explain away. Cardinal Wiseman's argument on this part of the subject has was most of his life a member of the Presbyterian never been refuted, and never will, be. Your obedient servant. "GRORGE BOWYER."

ORSTRUCTION .- The Belfast Examiner approves of obstruction, and says :- Three of the great centres of Irish population in Great Britain have declared with no uncertain voice in favor of the vigorous Parliamentary policy which, for want of a better name, is called a policy of obstruction. Glasgow, with Mr John Ferguson at its head, had the honor of leading the van. And now Manchester and Liverpool have echoed the voice of the Irish of Glasgow and the Home Rule plan, which had its birth in gentle Ircland, is born again in the midst of the sturdy life of the greatest of British cities. On Saturday last three members of Parliament, two of whom have almost given their names to the policy, and the third of whom is one of its most energetic supporters, addressed two mass meetings of their countrymen-one in Manchester in the middle of the day, and the other in Liverpool in the evening."

DEATH OF SIR COLMAN O'LOGHLEN, M.P.-Sir Col-4:30 in the morning he complained of being unwell missionary force in Hindostan of 1,700. In Eastern Tong-King, China, the Catholics have forty-five missionaries and native priests, with 332 Christian medicine from a bottle which he had a short of the bottle which he had and died in less than ten minutes. The bottle is believed to have contained a simple tonic. Sir Coleman was returning to Ireland for the Clare Assizes. He was exactly fifty-eight years old, and was a great favorite in the House of Commons, not only because of his amiability of temper, but because of the willingness with which he imparted to all inquiries his stores of information on legal, political historic and literary subjects. Sir Colman was the eldest son of the late Sir Michael O'Loghlen, Master of the Bolls in Ireland. He was educated at University College, London, and graduated B.A. at London University, in 1840. In the same year he was called to the bar in Ircland, was made a Queen's Counsellor in 1852, and a Sergeant-in-Law in 1865 He had represented the county of Clare since July, 1863, and from the formation of Mr. Gladstone's Ministry until December, 1870, filled the office of Judge-Advocate General. His official career was brought to a sudden close under Mr. Gladstone's administration by an act of imprudence, which, however, involved no stain upon his character. He was present in the House of Commons on the 20th ult., and was one of the members who voted in favor of Mr. O'Connor Power's defeated motion for the release of the Fenian prisoners.

man, with a face and manner of the utmost tranquility. His features are delicate, his voice usually gentle and even-toned, and whatever the storm around him, his temper remains equable and unruffled, Indeed, at first sight and without close observation, Mr. Parnell would pass for a more than unusually quiet Englishman, who was fond, of a cigar, spoke little, had no strong emotions and chiefly desired to be allowed to keep his hands in his pockets. Nor in accent any more than in face or manner, has he anything distinctly Irish, or anything indicative of his character. Trained, I believe in an English school, and Cambridge University, he speaks with something of an English accent, occasionally, per-haps, dashed with the slightest soupcon of American WHOLESOME PROHIBITIONS.— The Roman Catholic nasalism. But underneath all this calmess there Bishop of the Diocese of Cleveland, Ohio, has is. must be an intense and obstinate enthusiasm; that lasting-celm, cold, apparently under complete subplete, nowadays, without some observation on his surtorial envelopment. Let me say then, that Mr. of age, he has not, naturally enough, many great incidents to mark his career. Owner of large landmost young and wealthy aristocrats do. That is to say he was made the High Sheriff of his County. part of their lives, types of the worst form of snob-bery; discard all Irish sympathies, affect an English accent, and feel profoundly ashamed of their pationality. Mr. Parnell is made of different mettle. Inheriting strong national feeling, he, at the very outset of his career, threw himself heart and soul into the national ranks. While quite a stripling, he stood for County Dublin in the popular interest. He was defeated. When the death of John Martin left a vacancy in the County of Meath, he again sought election, and this time was successful. Finally, Mr. Parnell does not belong to the same reis a Protestant. MR. BIGGAR, M.P -- Mr. Biggar is much less tertible than his reputation. He is a small, delicate looking man, with blue eyes, of almost childlike mildness; a manner not entirely free from bashful ness, and in conversation, listens deferentially to the wagging of other tongues. Mr. Biggar, though a middle aged man, has but lately taken an active part in politics. He had devoted most of his life to business, and has amassed a large fortune. He has large business relations with America An Ulsterman by birth, he speaks with comething of a Scotch accent and with a certain abruptness. Within his small body Mr. Biggar bas a mind of indomitable pluck. The House of Commons, or many members of it, hate the sight of his face or the mention of his name; but quite undisturbed by hostility secret or expressed, he says his generally disagreeable say Numberless are his exploits. On one occasion the Ministry endeavored to pass a tyrannical Irish bill through the House of Commons at express speed, but they counted without Mr. Biggar. He organized opposition, and, pour encourager les only by a small ocean of cold water, for Mr. Biggar offence was mild in comparison with many others If there be any distinguishing characteristic But if there be one thing above another Mr. Biggar likes it is plain speaking, and the higher the individual the plainer he speaks. Thus, on one occasion he called the Duke of Cambridge incompetent. Now, everybody in England knows that his Royal Highness is a thorough dullard, and that his appointment to the office of English commander-inchief is one of those farcical and, it may turn out, fatal absurdities which the blessings of a monarchy bring along with it. But, then, to say so-it is shocking ! Again, everybody knows that Benjamin Disraell, Lord Beaconsfield, is a Jew and the descendant of Jews. He has said so himself scores of times But when Mr. Biggar called him an alien Premier a shudder ran through "respectable" Eng. lish society, and many sober-minded Saxons were probably astonished on waking the next morning to find that the sky had not yet fallen. Mr. Biggar has become a Catholic .-- Cor. of New York Herald.

MIETING .- A Vienna correspondent telegraphs that at the meeting of the Emperors William and Francis, at Ischl, the question of Russia's extending the seat of war to Servia was never touched upon, The question is likely to be dropped altogether. Russian military reports from Biela now unexpectedly declare that Servian co-operation is unnecessary. THE PULSE.-The beats of the pulse can be measured with great accuracy by a photographic apparatus recently invented. By the use of this instrument the apparently single stroke of the pulse has been found to consist of three, or even four, beats in succession.

SPERD OF CARRIER PIGEONS .- A trial of the speed with which carrier-pigeons fly was made recently, the starting point being Magnolia, on the Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Battimore Railroad, and the place of destination Peiladelphia. The distance is 79 miles, and one of the pigeons made it in one hour and 45 minutes.

FERNS IN THE FIJI ISLANDS .--- In the British Isands there are only thirty-nine specie of native ferns; but in Fiji Islands more than two hundred specie have been collected. The potato ferm (Polypodium spectrum) is peculiar to Hawaii (Owyhee), one of the Society Islands. Another of the forns found there is called the Pulu fern; its stems is clothed with a soft downy matarial which is much used for stuffing mattresses.

AMERICAN FISH .--- A firm who have a large canning establishment on the Fraser River have shipped a parcel of this year's salmon in oue and two pound tins to England. This is earlier than the Columbia River in Oregon, which is 200 miles further south. A sturgeon weighing 520 lbs. was captured the other day in the Fraser. These royal fish abound in this river. It is a common thing for them to be brought to market, by the Indians, weighing 100 lbs. They are sometimescaught in the salmon nets, but more frequently with hook and line.

A GRASSHOPPER EXTERMINATOR .--- Yankoe ingennity is equal to almost any emergency, and we are not at all surprised to hear that a machine for the extermination of grasshoppers has been invented. How FISH ARE FORMED IN LAKES AND PONDS .----It is generally well known that birds are very active agents in the extension of vegetation, and that fruit and flowers are rendered prolific by the insects which visit their blossoms; but few people are aware of the means by which fish are formed in lakes and ponds which are not connected with other waters. Here an insect is the principal agent The large water beetle which is in the habit of feedhave been issued for the Lieutenant-Governor's ing upon the spawn of fish, occasionally, in the ball. the water, sufficiently high to enable it to take wing. In these circumstances it has been caught, and, on putting it into water, has been found to give out the spawn with which it had gorged itself previous to taking flight, both in a digested and undigested state; so that, on trial, it has been found that it produced fish of various kinds.

A New GROVE OF GIANT TREES,-A New grove giant trees, recently discovered, 100 miles south of the famous giant trees of Yosemite, is just anplored and described. It is on a line with the other grove, 6,000 feet in altitude Instead of a small cluster of 30 or 40 there are 10,000 trees, covering six miles square. Besides several thousands of old fellows, whose age is estimated at from a 1,200 to 4,000 years, there are thousands of young chaps from a hundred to a thousand years old, and full of vigour. The older trees being decapitated by storms and by weight of winter snows on their bushy tops, are mostly overtopped by the juniors. Some of the fallen trees, 3,000 to 4,000 years old, have revealed underneath the buried bodies of ancestoral sequeros of smaller size which grow there 8,000 years ago-say 30 feet diameter. Large lakes and waterfalls are found along the route. The are so much superior to the Yosemite that it is contemplated to extend the route of travel to embrace this interesting circuit. THE BANAAN TREE AND THE TEMPLE OF JUGGER-NAUT .--- The power of the pendant root of the Banyan has been lately exhibited in the celebrated Temple of Juggernaut. The edifice, which for seven centuries defied the elements and encroachment of age, is now found to be on the brink of destruction. The seeds of the Banyan tree have got under the foundations, and the whole fabric has been loosened. The ruin was first indicated by the falling of some large stones just after the idol had left the temple on the last car festival This catastrophe has, as may be imagined, caused great consternation, and is likely to have a disastrous effect on the prestige of the Juggernaut. It is a curious coincidence that the most celebrated Hindoo temple should have thus been undermined by trees held sacred, if not divine, by the whole Hindoo nation. In the ruins of Palenway, Copan, and Uzmal (in Central America) many travellers have seen, and the pencil of Catherwood has pourtrayed the havoc wrought by the huge trees which have established themselves among the ledges and cornices of temples and pyramids raised by races which aro now extinct. LUMINOUS APPEABANCE OF THE RED SEA .--- All who have frequented the Red Sea have observed the luminous appearance, or phosphorescence of its waters. "It was beautiful," says a writer who sailed from Mocha to Cosseir, "to look down into this brightly transparent sea, and mark the coral, here in large masses of honeycomb reck, there in light branches of a pale red, here the beds of green seaweed, the golden sand, the shells, the fish sporting around the vessel and making colours of a beauty to the eye which is not their own. Twice or thrice we ran on after dark for an hour or two, and, although we we were all familiar with the sparkling of the sea reund the boat at night, never have I seen it. in other waters so superlatively spleudid. A rope dipped in it and drawn forth came up as a string of gems, but with a life and light and motion the diamond does not know. These sea lights have been explained by a diversity of causes; but the singular brilliancy of the Red Sea, seem to be owing to fish spawn and animal cular -a conjecture which receives corroboration from the circumstances that travellers who mention it visited the gulf during the spawning period-that is, between the latter end of December and the end of February. The coral banks are less numerous in the southern part."

likely to lead to any practical results just now. Bussia is far too strong and too jealous of her re-putation to acquiesce in the Turkish propositions, after one or two rebuffs Austria and Germany, knowing Russia is resolved on continuing the war. and if necessary, going into winter quarters in Bulnatia or Roumania, hesitate to recommend to Prince Gortschakoff the message of the Grand Vizier.

PREMATURE REPORTS .- No information has been received at the British embassy of any battle at Plevna during the last two days. It is believed recent reports were premature. Mehemet Ali telegraphs from Ragues, August the 9th, that ten companies of Russian infantry and six squadrons of cavalry attacked Yaillok, near Osman-Bazar, and were repulsed with the loss of 60 killed and 120 wounded. The Turkish commander on the northeastern frontier of Montenegro claims to have repulsed an attack on Koloashin on August the 7th, after ten hours' fighting.

CHANGING BASE .-- A Biela decpatch says the defeat at Plevna has altered the whole plan of the campaign for this year. The Russians have virtually abandoned the expectations of pressing the war successfully across the Balkans. It will suffice them if, during the the three months still available for fighting, they can sweep Bulgaria north of the Balkans clear of the Turkish armies. The orders are to withdraw from all trans-Balkan positions. Two hundred thousand more men are wanted, and are forthcoming, but will have to be waited for The first brigade of the reinforcements is expected to cross the Danube in a day or two.

EXTERMINATION --- The Constantinople correspondent telegraphs, via Syra, as follows :- A civil war of extermination is being carried on at present at Eski-Saghra. All male Christians of the native population have been sentenced to death by the Turkish General. This news has been brought by two American missionaries, who were protected by Turkish friends. They lost everything they possessed. This news is also confirmed by Consular despatches. Every male Bulgarian is accused of being either a spy or open enemy. Karabnnar is crowded with fugitives. There is only one well in the place, and there are 16,000 troops there. Wounded, sick and fugitives are perishing from thirst.

RUSSIANS SUFFERING .- The Russians are beginning to suffer in health, some corps from hard marching, heat, and irregular rations. The principal cause, however, is the neglect of sanitary preclutions, resulting in a general tainting of the air. At Biela the air is thick and heavy with emanations from filth and rotting offal. General Ignatieff is stitl confined to his room with gustric fever. Prince Galatz is also abed with the same complaint. Four out of five adjutant-generals in attendance on the Czar are ill. Nearly everybody is more or less sick. It is definitely resolved to bridge the Danube at Piergos. The first brigade reinforcements of four Battallons, now at Simultza, will cross to-mor row en route' to Plevna. The Borrespondent with the Dobrudschagarmy telegraphs that malarial fever is doing its work. Hundreds of sick arrive at Tchernavada daily, the majority from the neighpersuasion; within the last couple of menths he borhood of Mejidjie. Dysentery also counts many victims.

still but sparely inhabited, but I trust are destined to become the home of prosperous millions before the century is finished. Of that army of civillzation Canada is, as it were, the right wing. We feel towards you, therefore, gentlemen, as one half of a regiment may feel towards the other half, knowing well that upon your side you are faithfully discharging your duties and are alike trampling down the physical impediments offered to your progress, as we upon our side are endeavoring to advance the banner of civilization into the heart of the West. and so friendly is the feeling that I assure you, should it ever happen that your own rich territories come to be furnished forth to a more complete degree than it is capable of sustaining, there are in our North-West vast tracts of country where, if you choose to assist us in settling them, you will find a hearty welcome, and, I trust, institutions under which you will be able to live as contentedly as under those where you have now the happiness of residing. All that you have to do is to take ground to your right always provided that you do so metaphorically and not in a material sense.

THE FRENCH ELECTION CAMPAIEN-PRESS MUZZL-ING.-LONDON, Aug. 10 .- The electoral campaign on the part of the French Government daily becomes more active and oppressive. Yesterday's news includes the following items :- Hawkers of newspapers at Complegne were recently required to furnish lists of newspapers they served to customers in the arrondissements. Officials then suppressed the delivery of the XIX. sicle, Presse, Republique, Francuse, National, Bien Public, Petite Republique Francaise, and Petit Journal, all Republican Journals. Union Liberale, of Versailles, was sentenced to 3.000 francs fine, and the Manager imprisoned three months for insulting Fresident MacMahon. The Ninetcenth Century and Petit J'arisien were prosecuted for publishing a colored map of France showing the political complexion of the departments. The offence declared against them being the unauthorized publication of drawing. The Court convicted them, but passed a nominal sentence of 50 francs each. Two clubs at Arles have been closed, charged with being political assemblages. The Depeche, a newspaper at Toulouse, has been fined 100 france for refusing to print the speech of President MacMahon. The Minister of Agriculture has asked the prefects in a circular letter to remind the employees of the Department of Agriculture that it is their duty not to attempt to thwart the action of the Cabinet, or place at the service of hostile parties the influence they derive from their offices. The Paris police have forbidden the sale of the photographs of Thiers. The papers announce that 80,000 copies of equestrian portraits of MacMahon are to be distributed in the provinces. The offence of speaking insultingly of McMahon in the streets is now becoming the subject of daily action before the courts. Lefevre Deruphe, who may be said to have orginated this offence, was condemned to two months imprisonment, but succeeded on appeal in reducing the term to fifteen days. He is a son of a former Bonapartist Senator. The Court of Bordeaux has reversed the decision of an inferior tribunal, and fined a bookseller, who sold newspapers with special authorization. On the other hand, the tribunals of Nevers and Carcassonne have declared themselves campetent to try actions by newspapers against the prefects for preventing the street sale thereof.

ARRIVAL OF THE PILGRIMS.

AN ENTHUSIABTIC RECEPTION-FATHER DOWD RECEIVES AN OVATION-THE IRISH SOCIETIES.

On Tuesday evening Bonaventure station was literally packed with Catholic citizens who had assembled to give a real Irish welcome to their be. loved pastor and other pilgrims, who were but then returning from their extended tour. It will be remembered that the respected Parish Priest of St. Patricks, with a number of our Irish Catholic citizens left New York on the 18th of April, in order to make a pilgrimage to Rome. It is needless to refer to the anxiety felt, not only by Catholics but by Protestants, and the people generally for the safely of the Rev. Clergy and others who had undertaken of the Rev. Clergy and others who had undertaken a voyage which would bring them to the feet of Christ's successor on earth. Prayers, heartfelt and earnest, were offered up that they might accomplish their desires in safety, and after a most lengthy yoyage they succeeded in reaching land, having constituted their calf-imposed task they once more refulfilled their self-imposed task they once more returned to their homes. The regular hour for the arrival of the train on which the pilgrims were returning was half past ten o'clock, but long before that hour the station and vicinity were crowded to excess. All classes of society were represented, the rich and poor, old and young, male and female, in fact the whole Irish Catholic population seemed to have assembled in order to do honor to those who were their representatives at the Vatican. A few minutes before eleven o'clock a cheer from the extreme end of the platform gave information to those inside the station that the train was at hand. The presidents of the various societies (who with their members had assembled in large numbers) proceeded on board the train and welcomed in right royal style the Rev. Father Dowd and the other pilgrins, After a few moments delay Father Dowd with Fathers Leclair, Hogan and Brown were escorted to a carriage drawn by four horses, which was in waiting to receive them. A procession was then formed in the following order :-

Grand Marshal, Alderman Kennedy, The Independent Brass Band The Irish Catholic Usion, headed by Mr. J. E. McEvenue, President, according to their Branches, with their respective Presidents St. Ann's Total Abstinence Society, St. Ann's Benevolent Society, St. Patrick's Benevolent Society, St. Patrick's Society. St. Patrick's National Association, A CARRIAGE DRAWN BY FOUR HORSES containing : Rev. Fathers Dowd, Hogan Leclair and Brown.

Young Irishmen's Literary and Benefit Society,

Catholic Young Men's Society, St. Patrick's Temperance Society, The Emerald Brass Band.

After the line of march had been decided, the procession moved in the above named order for the station, by way of Chaboillez Square, St. Joseph McGill Craig and St. Alexander streets, to the Priests' House, where the Rev. Father Dowd ad-dressed the assemblage in a few words. He said that there were periods in a man's life when his feelings prevented him from expressing his feelings, and the present occasion was one. He thanked them heartily for the magnificient demonstration and cordial welcoms, after which he retired, and the crowd then reformed and proceeded to Craig street where a halt was made in front of the Tansey House, where speeches were made by Messrs. B. Tansey, Captain Kirwan, J. E. McEvenue President of the Irish Catholic Union, and Mr. Murney, after which the assemblage dispersed. The L'nion House, and the St. Patrick's Society's and Irish Catholic Union Halls were illuminated, as also the Tansey House.

Throughout the line of the procession the appearance of the carriage containing Father Dowd and the other priests was the signal for the most demonstrative signs of approbation. Cheer after cheer were given, dying out in one locality only to be again taken up with renewed vigor by others who later on, gazed upon the well-known features of their beloved pastor. The procession was one of the largest which has been witnessed in the city for a long time, and the enthusiasm manifested broughout gave evidence, America better, than Anthony Trollope. He the veneration and esteem which the Irish Catho lics of this city have for their respected and beloved pastor.

A CAUTION.

We ask our friends to notice the penchant the Star has taken to everybody, few though they be, who are opposed to the project of starting a new Catholic Daily under our management. It is very sad to notice the Star showing its hostility so plalnly.

THE PILGRIMS.

We have only space to chronicle the arrival of Father Dowd and about eighteen of the Irish Canadian pilgrims in Montreal. Their reception, got up in three or four hours notice, was a brilliant affair, and the joy of the people appeared to be complete. Next week we hope to be able to give interesting details of the experience of the Pilgrims while going to and returning from Rome.

SIR FRANCIS HINCKS.

We publish another admirable letter from Sir Francis Hincks to-day. Like its predecessors the present letter grasps the situation, and places before the public the logical reasonings of a great mind. The testimony of such men as Sir Francis Hincks is worth a host of friends, and it must make our enemies pause in their mad hostility to our faith.

THE MEETING OF THE COUNCIL.

The Freach Canadian and Irish alliance is cemented. In the Council the French Canadians and Irish are now, with one or two exceptions, working well together. The report we publish of the meeting of the City Council will be read with satisfaction by all the friends of the New Alliance. This fight interests all Catholics, French Canadians and Irish alike, and most cordially do we congratulate the Catholics of Montreal in having so soon overcome the prejudices of many years, and in a few months learn the great lesson that Union is strength. We predicted some time ago that "French Canadians and Irish would carry the day" we repeat it now again, and we hail the NEW ALLIANCE with joy.

by what "print" were those "deliberate" is no harm, says the Globe, "do not mind it." threats made ?. The Herald says "it is no If our saintly nuns are annoyed in the public torious" that such threats were made, and if so thoroughfare, never mind, says the Globe, never mind. Whenever the Host is made the sub- it will have no difficulty in placing them once more before the public. If it cannot produce ject of blasphemous ridicule, we are not to them, then upon its own shoulders will fall the notice it-not at all, not at all. We must suffer calumny of the charge. But it is so every and speak not. We must lick the hand that where. Men appeared to be amazed that Engspurns us. In fact the Globe gently suggests lish speaking Catholics should speak out with that we should be "croppies lie down." Then boldness. They are surprised at the audacity we have the Star applying the lash again. In the first place we have noticed three false reports about the "editor" of the TRUE WIT-NESS in the Star for the last fortnight. Has the new Catholic daily project anything to do with these false reports ? Three false reports in two weeks! We shall pause for a reply. Like its contemporaries the Star states that the "editor" of the TRUE WITNESS is in the dark. It has a bad case and as usual the Star applies itself to individually abusing the opponent's attorney. It writes of the "warm hearted people" and the speculators looking to openings in the field of personal and political gain." It writes too of others as "strangers without an atom of interest at stake in the country," whoever that may mean. Its vituperation carries it into a quagmire. What does the Star mean by those insinuations? No man ever yet came before the public who had not " motives" attributed to him. It is an old trick of the enemy. But could not we retaliate if we liked? Could we not attribute "motives," aye, and plenty of them if we descended to use the weapon of defeat-insinuation and calumny. The Star had at one time the partial confidence of the Irish people of Montreal, but it has it no longer. Like the rest of the papers in Montreal, it betrayed them in the hour of trial. The false reports it, with the rest of the press, published about the Oka business, shattered the bonds which secured for it some sympathy from our people, while the part it has taken in supporting Orangeism, severed that sympathy for ever. Henceforth we shall regard it as our foe. We welcome the open ed upon us as an "Irish representative." He and the honest antagonist. We rejoice to has done without us in the past, and we can do measure weapons with a champion flying his without him now. He shall have none of us own colours, but we shrink from the subtle | at all. We want no more political impositions. and pretended friend. We can take the hand | It the Government wish to pay a compliment of a generous for either before or after the fight, but we can take the hand of a slanderous friend-never. Like the Globe, the Star advises our people to be "Croppies lie down." It says that we wax warm "over matters of sentiment which are in their actual value below the attention of intelligent beings." This is a communistic sentiment. What ! an insult to the Host itself-an insult to the living and Ominpotent God-an outrage on, what we at least believe to be, the body and blood of the Saviour, " below the attention of intelligent beings." Why the teachings of Rochfort were never worse than this. Our faith insulted, our priests outraged, God himself

of the mere "Papists" and they are attempting to hound us down, because we tell them that we shall never consent to lie under the heel of Orange Ascendency. But let them howl on Their howling cannot alter our determination. We will continue to resent insult no matter whence it comes. All the papers in the Dominion shall not make us yield one inch of the ground we hold. Let them denounce, caluminate, belie, insinuate motives, and resort to all the tricks of the lower grade of journalism, still in the face of all we shall continue to be just what we were. We repeat, all we want is to be allowed to go our way in peace. We respect every man who conscientiously differs from us. We insult no one. The interest of all is peace and order. But the articles of that peace will never be signed by us until Orange fanatics cease to insult us, and conduct themselves as Christian men. DR. O'LEARY.

It is rumored that Dr. O'Leary is about to be appointed to the vacant seat in the Senate. What is the meaning of this rumour? If it is intended to "blind" our Irish friends it will fail. We repudiate Dr. O'Leary as an Irishman at all. Mr. Cassidy was bad, but Dr. O'Leary is worse. We speak of him now as a public man, and we say that the Irish Catholics of Montreal do not know him at all. He is not one of us. He belongs to none of our Societies, has never been identified with our movements, and we shall not have him imposto the Irish people, let them appoint an Irish Catholic to the Senate. Let them take a man who will represent the people. Dr. O'Leary may be an excellent gentleman, but he is not an Irish Catholic, and if the members of the Government think that he will be accepted as such, they are very much mistaken.

"THE MANIA FOR ARMS."

It is somewhat amusing to note the tone of the opposition press on the "mania for arms" question of late. Until the last year or so no one ever thought that there was a "mania for arms" amongst our Canadian youths. Up to that time the "mania for arms" was confined to Orangemen and their sympathisers, and every gallant who sported the colours of the Dutch usurper, carried his "shooter" without creating alarm in the public mind. No one ever questioned their right to go about with murderous weapons on their persons. The public and the press appeared to think that it was the special privilege of the Orange Organization to arm. It was notorious that on the 12th of July, '76, the Orangemen of Montreal carried revolvers during the mimic promenade they had through St. James' street yet the press never discovered the "mania for arms." But in '77, it appeared that the Catholics were arming, and then the sun shone upon the iniquitious "mania for arms," and with a shout of alarm the press of Montreal made known to the world the dire calamity. In review of this question we beg to draw the attention of our readers to our report on the Blake Act published in another column. Here were three men arrested with arms in their possession-they were three Young Britons-and yet they were allowed to go their way in peace. Now how is this? They were drunk and disorderly-so we have been informed-had arms in their possession, and yet nothing was done to them ! And still we are expected to utter no protest, to say no word, but to accept the "logic of facts" just as they are. It is the "mania for list." arms" over again. But we shall see if these gross outrages against the law of the land are to pass unnoticed by the authoritics. How is it that Mr. Brehaut allowed these men to be discharged without a fine ? Unless this subject is satisfactorily explained it must do much to create mistrust in the impartial administration of justice.

committed to their charge. Mr. J. J. Curran, O.C. and Mr. Maison, of the Law Department, have been appointed Joint Secretaries of the Committee. We are pleased at Mr. Curran's appointment, which we understand, will not materially interfere with the practice of his profession. Otherwise we should regret his removal from the active scene where his abilities are now so requisite to his fellow countrymen in this city. The De Boucherville Government in appointing Mr. Curran, have this time choosen a representative Irish Canadian Catholic.

THE ' WITNESS" ON THE VOLUN-TEERS.

It is not on all occasions we can agree with the Witness, but when we can it gives us much satisfaction. We cordially endorse the following remarks taken from one of its editorials of Monday the 13th instant.

" Our volunteers have been accused of swaggering. Although it is very likely that such charges are made with exaggeration, it is as likely that there is some foundation of truth in the charge. It would be indeed surprising if there were not. In one case at least the conduct of three volunteers was outrageous. Most of our volunteers are Protestant, and the whole force has gradually assumed a Protestant complexion. This in a population in large majority Roman Catholic is a notable, and we may add, re-grettable phenomenon. We shall not speculate as to how this fact is to be accounted for. How much better was it before when Roman Catholic and Protestant officers and men marched in comparatively equal numbers, orange and green side by side, ready to defend their common country from a common foel We hope that the Militia Department will devote thought to removing as much as possible this character of sectionalism from this force, for patriotism and sectionalism cannot healthily dwell together."

HEROIC WOMEN OF THE BIBLE AND THE CHURCH, with Art Illustration : J. B. Ford & Co., New York .- This work is coming out in numbers, two of which have already appeared. The price of each number is 50c. It is a "narrative of the biographies of grand female characters of the Old and New Testaments, and of saintly women of the Christian Church, both in earlier and later ages, by the Rev. Bernard O'Reilly." It is to have "twenty-five plates in oil colors, after paintings by Raphael Dominichino, and others, executed by the best German and French Art painters." The two numbers now to hand are executed with singular good taste. They commence with 'Eve, the mother of all the living." This work should prove a great success, and the Rev. author merits the support his efforts entitle him to expect.

THE SITUATION.

The TRUE WITNESS continues to be the best abused paper in Canada. We are denounced all over the land. Wherever Orangeism exists the TRUE WITNESS is a thing accursed. Our cnemies still harp upon the "editor." It is "Kirwan" here and "Kirwan" there. One paper calls the editor "the latest importation," another heroically attempts to frown us down by threatning us with a "stern duty." This implies the "gagging" process again. Another yells anathema, another sneers "adventurer" and all appear to think that we are only fit for the stormy regions of Bedlam. The Globe seriously assures us that we have no right to feel angry at the "vulgar and ungrammatical melodies" which we printed two weeks ago. We are wrong, very wrong to notice them at all. They ought to be beneath our attention. We are after all only "Papists" and why should we pay the slightest attention to the insults flung into our teeth. We should be accustomed to that kind of thing. If we are not then it is a great shame for us, for we have been long enough subjected to it. What a "Papist," a mere "Papist," expressing dissent and showing annoyance at the coarse and sacrilegious epithets flung at him! What an absurdity! When our foes sing of "Gods of bread" what harm, we are only "Papists" and we should not mind it. What if they ridicule the Pope, who is to us the most revered being on this earthyet what matter, we are only "Papists," and we should pass it by. It is no insult, not at in blood," all. It is all play we are assured-vulgar play, perhaps, but it is only play for all that. Nay, like Oliver Twist, we even should call for to name where the "threats" were "de- reason to believe that the Commissioners are ion of intellectual beings." Does the Star know that we worship the Host? Let the Star call that worship what it willidolatry or what it likes-yet it is our worship, it is our Christ, the living God in flesh and blood. All this we believe with a fervour which centuries of persecution has not shaken, and which neither hell nor the Canadian press can alter. To a man we would die for the faith that is in us. All we want is to be allowed to practice that faith in peace. All we require is that we should not be insulted. We shall never be the first to throw a stone. We have never vet been the first to assail any man's belief. We have never yet insulted any man's religion. But we shall defend our own with what vigour God has given us, and we do not think it " below the attention of intelligent beings." But the most singular piece of reasoning we have yet seen about this question is that put forward in the Witness. It seriously, nay, almost solemnly, assumes that Catholics have no right to differ at all upon such questions as Orange displays. Referring to our difference with Father Stafford it says: "It appears then that opinions in the Church, in regard to the self-same question, must differ, according to the geographical location of its mouth-pieces." We answer yes "opinions in the church" have the right to differ anywhere upon questions which may become local in their character, and which in no way assail the Truth, or Church discipline. For instance the regulations with reference to Church discipline, the laws of fasting, &c., are always regulated by "geographical location," and like Orangeism, "what may answer one place may not answer another." But we must take our rounds and come to what the Herald says. That paper in the issue of the 9th says :---

"Yet it is perfectly notorious that threats were deliherately made in print, and that preparations corresponding to them took place, not to resent an insult forced upon the notice of the injured party, but carefully to seek out an insult and to revenge it

Unlike the casual visitor who takes a few hurried jottings by the way, and who perhaps never remains long enough to overcome his prejudices, Anthony Trollope understands the Americans, and is never shocked at the idioyncracies of a people who, like the rest of the world, merely have social customs somewhat different from our own. In the book now before us "The American Senator," Anthony Trollope does not caricature the American but he faithfully reflects him. It is an index of American character. THE PILGRIMS IN NEW YORK

(From the New York Herald.)

Not long since the whole country was alarmed for the fate of the Canadian pilgrims, who undertook a journey to Rome to lay at the feet of Pius IX. testimonials of their love and devotion. The City of Chester, of the Inman line, carried these men back to our shores, and, fortuitously, a quick passage was made, as if in compensation for the delay of their outward trip. Mr. M. C. Mullarky, the president of the St. Patrick's National Association of Montreal, was the head of a delegation appointed to receive the distinguished pilgrims, and about forty gentleman and ladies left Montreal on Saturday morning, the programmee being to arrive in New York on Sunday in time to charter a steamer to proceed down the bay and meet the Chester, but the steamer made a quick trip, arrived in the offing a little after midnight, and soon rfter daylight was moored opposite her pier, the pilgrims getting on terra firma jast about the time the enthusiastic Canada committee arrived at the company's docks. An adjournment was in order to the Grand Central Hotel, in Brondway, and there conbreakfast a number of the pilgrims started out to see their friends and acquaintances on Manhattan Island, and not a few went up to Munhattanville to make a visit to the Convent of the Sacred Heart. A Montreal; Rev. J. T. Dowling, of Hamilton; David Battle, of Thorold, Ont., J. J. Milloy, Montreal; M. C. Mullarky, wife and two daughters, Montreal; Rev. P. Dowd, Montreal; F. H. McKenna and wife, Rev. James Callaghan, B. Tansey, Joseph Cloran and wife, Miss A. Mabon, of Montreal, and W. H. Walker of Ottawa.

FATHER DOWD'S SUPERIENOE.

Father Dowd was the leader of the pilgrims in their eventful journey. He said :-" It is true we heard of the accident to our good ship on the outward voyage, but more so, I think, for the feelings of our friends on shore than for any danger we apprehended ourselves."

"Did you have no fear of starvation?" "No, not a bit. We are good beggars, you know, on sea as well as on land. The Russia, Abyssinia and City of Richmond gave us food."

"But you missed the feast in Rome?" "Yes, but only the feast. We lost no time in Europe, but proceeded directly to Rome. It was a rule with us that all of our body should remain together until the audience was over."

"How did the Pope look ?"

"Much better than any man of eighty-eight years of age that I know of And, besides, has been paralyzed from Rheumatism for three years, and is generally carried about in his chair; but the day appointed for our audience he stood up to respond to our address, and remained on his feet for fully three minutes. His eyes were as clear as those of

THE RECEPTION TO THE PILGRINS.

In the evening at the hotel a large number of ladies and gentlemen assembled in the parlors isones and Broadway; in the centre of the groups of routing groups of the groups of the groups of the groups of the canadian pilgrims seemed unusually prominent. Shortly before eight o'clock the address of welcome of the St. Patrick's National Association of Montreal was delivered to Father Dowd. It read as follows :---

BELOVED PASTOR,-In the expressive language of our native land we wish you a "hundred thousand welcomes" back to your anxious and expectant fock. We thank God that He has suffered us once more to proclaim the love we hear you and to lay the humble offering of our reverence at your fest. We approach you with all the recollection of thirty years of happy associations reviving in our memories, and we hail you as our Pastor, our father and our friend. Our joy to-day is only measured by our incapacity to express it. We are glad for many ressons. During the earlier days of your voyage the faithful and loving Irish Catholics of Montreal were paralized with anxiety for your safety. Not until then did we, perhaps, fully realize how dear you were to us all. We almost mourned your loss and in the first burst of our affliction we feared we would never look upon your like again. The cup of our bitterness appeared to be full indeed. All classes and all creeds shared in our prayers for your safety, and God mercifully heard our suplications. He saved you to lead the Irish Canadian pilgrims to the throne of St. Peter, and enabled you to proclaim their unalterable allegiance to his successor, Pius IX. You returned after fulfilling your eventful aud pious mission, and we all wait with keen anxiety to hear from your own lips the record of anxiety to hear from your own lips the record of next morning, when, as it may appear one of the your pilgrimage. Meanwhile rest satisfied with a accused was placed in the witness box, and allowed welcome back to a people who reverence you, and in whose affections you have secured an imperishable love.

Signed on behalf of the association. M. C. MULLARKY, President.

RESPONSE OF FATHER DOWD.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT-I will not try to disguise the grateful pleasure, your truly Irish welcome gives me at this moment. Landing here in New York after our long voyage, I am pleased indeed at this demonstration. I cannot tell you how happy it makes me to see even a few of my dear friends once more. That happiness is increased a hundred fold a right to know something about this matter, and in witnessing, as I now do, the joyous reunion of it is time that the Government should take the all of the members of these families who through necessary action for the impartial administration of a strong and generons sentiment of religion, consented to the separation demanded by the obligations of our pilgrimage. God has brought us all safe to land. The accidents and perils of our voyage now are all past and they serve to enhance the pleasure of this moment and to intensity our gratitude to our good God, who so lovingly watched over haps McCulloch was rejoicing in anticipation of the ES. I can well understand the anxiety felt in Montreal still more than elsewhere during our protracted voyage. You had among you husbands and wives whose dear partners and children were exposed to the perils of the ocean and were for a time supposed to have perished. This cruel anxiety, the thought of which was ever present to our minds made us, too, suffer. It was, indeed our chief, if not our only, cause of unhappiness. But, thank God, the peril is over for you and for us and may be easily forgotten in the happiness of this glad meeting. The sympathy evinced everywhere for us has been a real consolation; for it we are more grateful than words can express. The accident to the City of Brussels was not in vain, since it has so plainly established the fact that a spirit of heamust have. venly charity abides among us all, which makes us feel for one another and aci toward one another as brethren.

As you expect to hear more of our travels at a later period I shall say no more just now. I can only say I thank you for this new proof of your generous kindness, and pray that God may bless you and your dear families abundantly.

THE BLAKE ACT.

the Hackett shooting case) stated to the doctor, in the presence of Sergeant Donohue, that he had shot himselfaccidentally, his revolver having discharged while at full-cock in his pants pocket. This would seem to be a deliberate falsehood as both the doctor and police officer examined the pocket in which he stated the revolver had been kept, and found no aperture or hole through which a bullet could have passed .- The presumption, therefore, is that while the young men, who were more or less under the influence of liquor, were amusing themselves, in some way only known to themselves, one of them succeeded in shooting McCulloch, accident ally, in all probability, as they were all bosomfriends, in fact all young Britons .-- The statement made by Thos Kemp, one of the accused, to the police is to the effect that he and his three friends had on the evening in question escorted a brother Briton to his home in Hochelega. They had delayed on the road at several places for the purpose of partaking of refreshments in the shape of liquor (except himself who is a testotaler.) On reaching the canal, the other three : the wounded man, Mc-Culloch with Robt, McMahon, and Arthur Halliday, playing and making a noise, when Kemp left them and started away saying he was going home. He had not gone more than fifty or sixty yards when he heard the intonation of a pistol shot, and on retracing his steps, found that McCulloch had been wounded. When the three prisoners were brought to the station, Halliday and McMahon each had a revolver, one of the chambers of one of them having been recently discharged. They stated that the arms did not belong to them, but that they had received them from McCulloch after the accident. McCulloch also made the same statement to Sergeant Donohue, in the hospital. The three men were brought before Police Magistrate Brehaut the to testify on his own behalf an on that of his fellow prisoners. Stranger still, that witness was Kemp, who stated most distinctly that he was a considerable distance in front of his friends when the occurrence took place, and consequently could know nothing whatever of the affair. The question now suggests itself, why did Mr. Brehaut, discharge the accused without first having taken the deposition of the wounded man? Why again did he not invoke the Blake act against these persons, who, illegally and in face of repeated warnings, carried deadly weapons on their person ? The public have the law. Had these men been members of the Catholic Union they would probably have been, at the instigation of men of the Sergeant Richardson type, condemned to the full penalty of the law Why these Orangemen, who are all Grand Trunk employees, carried revolvers is not known. Perreward he hopes to receive for his evidence in the Hackett case, and it may be that his friends constituted themselves his escort, and were giving demonstration of how they would act in case of attack by " Papists," when the shooting took place.

Be this as it may the citizens are thoroughly disgusted with the manner in which Mr. Brehaut interprets Blake's Act, and Catholics demand that the working of the act should be general, or that it should be repealed. There is considerable indignation against Police Magistaate Brehaut for having proceeded ex parte in the case, without even calling upon the police officers or others who might have been able to testify in the matter. All that Catholics ask is "fair play and no favor" and this they with menace to the citizens, and disgrace to a country ? We will not be surprised to see Irish Catholics opposed to their oppressors or to those who remind them of the souvenir of their defeat, of their harms, of their sufferings, and of their exile. Will we recall the barbarous acts of the gloomy past? If your aim is this tell it to us-better to know it to-day than to-morrow. Look at the speech of Mr. Robinson, at those of Dr. Sweetland, and the remarks of the Mail which said that the Orangeman would march next year, whatever may happen. Then, what happen if we will pay? Any citizen could bring an action to recover the amount from aldermen personally, and they should be right in doing so, because it would en-croach upon the prerogatives of the people and tress-pass upon the charter of our city. I will go further more and say that we cannot pay to have military to protect a Society which is not recognised by the law of the land-and am ready to show that Orangemen are not recognised neither in this Country nor in England. It was for that reason that the Prince of Wales refused to pass under the arch at Kingston. There may be bonest citizens who believe in Orangeism but unfortunately for them they are not recognised. Was it necessary to call the troops on the 16th

July last? I say no; and the best proof for it lies In the fact that those froops who went out of the city to accompany the funeral of the poor unfortunate young Hackett. Have we to pay for a military show around a funeral.

Our brave militia cheered all along; it was an ovation, not a mourning.

1. They have violated the Ch. 10 Cons. Statues of L. Canada against all secret societies except freemasous,

2. They have violated the law passed in 1872 against illicit oaths.

3. They have violated the law passed at the last Session (the Blake law) against those who carry fire arms, revolvers, etc.

Who will say that the pretended Orangemen coming from Kingston Toronto or elsewhere on the above named occasion were armed at that time? No one ! Then they were outlaws or indictable for that offense and now we would pay to protect an illegal assembly of men come for the purpose of disturbing the everlasting peace and concord of all the citizens of our great city. No, I say no. (Great applause.)

Ald. Laurent moved in amendment, seconded by Ald Robert, that the discussion on the adoption of the report be deferred until the next meeting of Council.

Ald. Robert said he did not wish his name to appear as seconder; his name had been used without his consent.

Ald. Rivard seconded the motion in place of Ald. Robert.

Ald. Grenier said it was no use referring the matter back to the committee for they were in favour of it.

Ald. Holland-Those who have fought this battle over before know it is the wisest thing to do to settle this matter without going into court. We were in court before, as your Honour knows, and I don't think there is any use going there again now, and I will explain why it will be wise to settle the claim before it is taken into court. Suppose a row was to commence in the city ; suppose we had an uprising of the working classes this winter, and our police were insufficient to quell the riot, what other resort have we then-

Ald. Grenier-I maintain you are out of order, as you are not speaking to the question. The Mayor-I think it would be better to vote on this question without discussion. Ald, Grenier-Then postpone.

The Mayor said that as a question of order had been raised he was bound to sustain it.

Ald. Donovan-I would not pay one cent. I am rather sacrifice $50,000 than pay for escorting blackguards coming into this city.

Cries of order ! order ! Ald. Donovan-That is what I say. I would not pay a cent for escorting blackguards and ruffians. Cries of order ! order ! from the floor of the house and demonstrations of approval from the gallery. The Mayor-Men who come here will have to observe order. They can look on and hear, but not make any demonstration. Ald Mercer-Mr. Mayor, he used very unparlia-we don't put our foot down on these demonstrations in this Catholic city of Montreal its peace and welfare will be ruined. I have lived here many years and have many Protestant friends and I know that it is only a faction that brings trouble amongst us. I know it was not the respectable Protestant party that was the occasion of it for they were opposed to such trouble and turmoil. If we begin to set a precedent such as we never had before, it will be fatal to the peace of the city, and I for one will regret it the longest day I live. I want to put an end to it, therefore I say this Council should repudiate such a bill for such a purpose. In concluding Ald, Donovan called upon the Mayor, in case the money was ordered to be paid to veto it, and, notwithstanding the opluion of the Attorney whom he respected very highly, would contribute his share in testing the matter in Court.

The Mayor reminded the Council that the argument was not upon the main motion, but upon the amendment to the amendment.

Ald. Mercer had hoped that the report would have been received, without any discussion at all, and certainly never expected such violent language would have been used. His remarks would not be addressed to the main motion or the amendment, but to the violent remarks of Ald. Donovan with reference to the volunteers. When he calls them ruftians, cut-throats, and blackguards-(cries of order.)

Ald. Donovan-I rise to a point of order. I did not call the volunteers blackguards. I called those blackguards who came from Ottawa and Kingston.

Ald Laberge-Hear, hear.

Ald. Thibault-Out, out.

Ald. Donovan-I call those men ruffians-

Ald. Mercer-But he said the volunteers were ruflians and blackguards.

Ald. Donovan—No, sir; I did not. Ald. Mercer—I certainly understood him 80.

The Mayor-I think, Alderman Mercer, the explanation of Alderman Donovau, that he did not call the volunteers blackguards, or ruffians, should be accepted.

Ald. Mercer was glad to accept Ald. Donovan's explanation, for there was not a finer body of men than their volunteers, who came from all ranks, creeds and nationalities, and were a body which the city had reason to be proud of. With reference to the magistrates he was glad to have the opportunity of saying that when they called out the volunteers after the Mayor had refused, they were not actuated by nationality or creed. (Hear, hear,) but for the benefit of the city of Montreal. In certain portion of the press they had been charged with being "intolerant" and "fanatics" but nothing said in the press was so strong as the words that had fallen from Ald. Donovan. Speaking of the intolerant character of the men (Magistrates) he would ask who were they? There was Mr. A. W. Ogilvie, the local member whose big heart, generous sympathies, and his liberal feelings had obtained for him, not only a local but provincial reputation, and no one envied the influence he had in the provincial legislature. Then there was Mr. Henshaw, a gentleman who had lived in their midst, and who had never been accused of intolerance before. Then there was their friend Ald. Stephens, whose absence he regretted. He had too much chaff in this room to be called intolerant, and too much liberal feeling to allow of fanaticism. As regards himself, he would not say one word. He had his record for the past, for the future his friends would say whether he was ever actuated by a spirit of intolerance. He desired the Council, and the city at large, to understand that the magistrates, in calling out the volunteers did not consider what the religion of the men in the procession was, but, on the contrary, looked only to what would be of advantage to the city. They knew that the city was responsible for any damage that might be done. Let determined to oppose it to the bitter end. 1 would them look at of Pittsburg where a mob had charge of the city for 24 hours, and in that time did $6,000,000 damage, and that place was only about the same size as Montreal. There were in the vaults of the banks of Montreal millions of dollars, the warehouses were stocked with goods from every clime, and the stores were filled from basement to cellar. Were they to leave these to the mercy of a mob? If they were, it was like throwing a spark into a barrel of gunpowder. This payment of $4,-000 to the Volunteers he considered should be looked upon in the light of insurance. Alderman Laberce said :- He never was present at a discussion, before the Council, which required more delicate handling than that which at present occupied their attention. He was well aware that it was only sufficient for a Catholic to open his mouth on this question in order to be accused of fanaticism, but he rested his conduct on the past, and he would certainly be credited when he said his greatest fault was not fanaticism. He had been taught by his father to speak the truth and that which he thought was just, no matter on what question. In his opinion there had not been the slightest reason for calling out the Volunteers on the 16th July. A certain number of individuals with ditty faces, and with whom no respectable person could shake hand, had come from Ottawa and other places armed to the teeth to assist at the funeral of Thomas L. Hackette. As foreman of the Jury charged to enquire into the circumstances which had led to the death of Hackett, he had during seven days done all that in him lay to discover the perpetrators of the deed, and when the Jury had had decided to render their verdict they could only fined one guilty and that one was Thomas Lett Hackett, who left his place in the morning with 60 rounds of ammunition, and a revolver loaded in the seven chambers in his pocket, and having taken care before his departure to leave his property in the keeping of his friends. It had been repeatedly stated during the inquest that deceased had fired the first shot. He (Ald. Laberge) could not do otherwise than approve of the conduct of his Worship the Mayor on the 12th July in not, unneces-sarily, calling out the Volunteers (applause.) He could not understand how it was that intelligent men could endorse the calling out of the Military on the 16th, to assist at the funeral of Hackett. He was aware that the Military had been called out at times, but it was on different occasions and at far different demonstrations from that of the 16th July. He remembered that when the late Sir George Cartier was interred, who though he had a great many political enemies he had, all along the route taken by the funeral cortege friends and enemies, partizans though they might have been, respectfully saluted the remains of the great citizen, the great patriot. But at the funeral of Hackett the persons at the crossings of the streets through which the cortage passed remained silent for Hackett, it was the horde imported from Ontario who shouted hurra ! I can well believe that Hackett was not the subject of those acclamations and hurrahs, but that there was something behind the curtain, they were evoked by the temporary triumph of the pitiful Orange party who merit the contempt of well disposed Protestants as well as Catholics. People are wrong in accusing the Catholics of fanaticism, above all after the Oka affairs, in which fourteen apostate Indians feloniously burned down the Catholic Church and Presbytery, although the Protestant journais had the audacity to contend it was the work of the priests of the Seminary. I am a Catholic, I am not ashamed to say it even as a Protestant glories in being what he is. Why did they not ask that the Mount Royals (65th battalion) should escort Hackett's funeral? They preferred to have it escorted by two battalians of volunteers, composed almost exclusively of Orangemen, which voluteers on returning from the cemetery sang "Croppies lie down." He considered that such Hospital in a carriage, having proviously given in- | oaths, who marched in arms in our peaceful cities | peace and welfare of this city in the future, I say if | conduct was an insult flung in the faces of three | · · · · · .

fourth of the population of Montreal which is composed mainly of Irish and French Canadian Catholics. Alderman Laberge concluded his eloquent speech as follows :-- " I shall never consent to the payment of the sum of $4,168 recommended by the Finance Committee to pay the volunteers who ag-sisted at the functal of Hackett, even when I am convinced that the law is against us. If the corporation is sued for payment of said sum, and condemned to pay the costs incurred by the council, it shall be as a protest against the conduct of those who, without cause, are responsible for calling out the troops on the 16th July. (Loud and prolonged applause in the galleries.)

Ð

Ald. Kennedy-Mr. Mayor, I regret that this question has waxed as warm as it has. I thought it would pass off quieter, and, I think, the sooner it is let drop the better. (Hear, hear.) I don't object to the calling out of the volunteers, but I do object to the men that came into the city and conducted themselves as they did. I say it, and I don't fear contradiction, it was not for the love of Hackett they came. If it was, why did they cheer at the funeral in the streets? The cheering was done, no man can deny it, and it was done out of the windows at Morgan's store; every window was occupied and they cheered. The Orangemen thought they had gain a great victory, but I tell you they did not gain a great victory. And there is another mfn whom I cannot call less than a firebrand—this Robinson from Kingston. He said if he thad come again it be "woo to Montreal." Had I been in the streets of Montreal and heard him say it I would have challenged him single-handed on the street if I were to have been killed, and I hope I shall never die until I come before this Robinson face to face, and I will test his met-tle. I don't say one word to the Orangemen of Montreal, but these ruflians that they brought here who gave us such gross insults I abhor. They say the French Canadians were not insulted. Why, there are men in Montreal who sympathise with wild Indians in the bush who burned the church at Oka, and the priest's house. There is no denying it, this thing is not over. I may say if they think of coming to wipe our the Irish and French Cananians of Montreal, they are mistaken, for I tell them the French Canadians are not made of blocks of wood. Alderman Grenter spoke once more in favor of the motion.

It was now six o'clock, and Ald Taylor moved that the Council adjourn.

Amidst much disorder the votes were taken on the motion to adjourn as follows : Yeas - Messrs. Laurent, Mercer, Clendinneng, Childs, Taylor, Genereux, Holland, Rivard and Grenier-9.

Nays-Messrs, Chausse. Laberge, Thibault, Kennedy, Robert, Wilson, Gauthier, McCambridge and Donovan-9.

The Mayor gave his casting vote in favour of the uljournment.

THE RECENT TROUBLES IN THE CITY.

(To the Editor of the Gazette.)

Sm,-1f 1 had no other reason for trespassing once more on your columns, I should be induced to do so from finding that the Toronto Mail has arrived at the conclusion, from my last letter, that I have 'reconsidered the question," and as it is possible that others may draw a similar inference, 1 am desirous that it should be clearly understood that I have not in the least modified the opinion that I formed on the subject of Orange demonstrations at very early period of my life and that I have retained to the present day. I have, however, in my late letters contended simply that such demonstrations are inexpedient in the city of Montreal. I was induced to publish my views, because I thought that there was a leaning on the part of many to attempt to remedy the evil by legislation, which in my opinion would be an aggravation of the evil; and further, because many of those who had written on the subject seemed to be unaware of the cause which lends Irish Roman Catholics to view Orange demonstrations with feelings of bitter hostility. It has at all events been satisfactory to me to find that many Canadian Protestants were unaware, until the publication of my first letter, of the severity of the Irish penal laws against Roman Catholics. I have been assailed by more than one writer for insinuating that Canadian Orangemen of he present day are persoentors but in truth 1 have been more inclined to charge them with being irrational, inasmuch as they have adopted the name and the oaths and the signs and symbols of persecutors while claiming that they are sincere friends of civil and religious liberty. I do not believe that fair discussion can injure a good cause, and although it is true, as the Herald justly observes, that we are "too near to the events" " for either parties to listen patiently to any discussion of it," yet the great mass of the citizens of Montreal who, in my opinion, are deeply interested in the subject, will reflect on the consequences of the recent attempts to institute Orange demonstrations among them, and will, moreover, arrive at the conclusion that, even if I had not written a line, the "parties militant" would not have been less bitter. I cannot forbear offering a few observations on a very courteous criticism on my letters in the H-rabl of the 9th inst. There is much in that article in which I entirely concur; but like a great many others who have written on the subject, the writer appears to me to think that I have been inclined to pulliate the conduct of these who have been disturbers of the peace. There is no one in the community more ready than myself to condemn a resort to violence or to maintain that the peace must be kept at all hazards. Surely it is not inconsistent with such an opinion to contend that it is inexpedient to make demonstrations which experiences teaches us will inevitably lead to bitterness of feeling in the community and which, even if no calamity should oc-cur, must put the citizens at large to a serious annual expense, to say nothing of the in-convenience to our volunteers. I cannot concur with the Herald in thinking that "a very important part of the res gestine of this affair attaches to those publications which Sir Francis considers merely as the exposition of Irish Catholic feelings, but which were unfortunately also passionate incitements and exhortations addressed to the most excitable part of the Irish Catholic people." 1 think that such a charge should not be made without proof. I will not affirm positively that it cannot be proved, but I have not seen any violent language of the kind, and, moreover, all the attacks that I have seen on the Tage Wirsess are founded on articles written after the Orange procession on the 16th July, which consisted in a considerable degree of strangers armed with revolvers, and after an announcement that 20,000 strangers were required next year. An anonymous writer in the Herald over the non de plume CONTINUED ON EIGHT PAGE.

ONE LAW FOR CATHOLICS, ANOTHER FOR PRO-TESTANTS,

Ever since the rumor of anticipated trouble on the 12th of July was circulated in Montreal the citizens were forcibly reminded of the existence of Blake's Act. To the great majority of the people this piece of legislative enactment was unknown, until it was finally intimated to them that the act in question was passed for the purpose of preventing the carrying of fire arms and other unlawful weapons, Law-abiding citizens were highly pleased with this information, and men of all classes could be heard loudly sounding the praises of the gentleman who was the framer of such a protective law. It was, of course, thought that in the enforcement of the provisions of the Statute creed and country would be alike ignored, and justice evenly, dealt out to all, according to their acts. In their fond expectation of equal rights and fair play, the Catholics have been sadly disappointed. That the act is a salutory one, no person will deny, but it was certainly not to be expected that the interpre-tation of the law would be altogether one-sided, and that Catholics should be the only people dealt with under the Blake law. That such is a fact, however, can be seen from the accounts given by the city papers for some days succcediag the funeral of the Orangeman Hackett wherein particulars are given of the arrest, without warrant or other authority, of a number of Catho-lics who had revolvers in their possession, the authorities well-knowing at the time that self-protection was necessary on the part of the Catholic citizens owing to insane threats made by "Bully Robinson" and his demonstrative followers.

On the arrest of these Catholics (Roughs according to the Protestant Press) they were brought before the Recorder, and obliged to furnish sufficient security to keep the peace, failing in which they would be obliged to undergo various terms of im-prisonment. In addition to this, a man named Shechan, against whom the act was brought to bear, was septenced $50 or 3 months. Certain circumstances have more recently come to light, which show even more partiality than in the preceding instance. Shortly before one o'clock on the morning of the 9th instant, Constable Hettin of the units police force was a Constable Hottin, of the water police force, was on duty on the canal, and, when near Black's bridge, heard the report of a shot proceeding from the locality .-- He immediately went in the direction indicated by the sound, and passed over the bridge to Mill street, until near the foundry of Messes W. P. Bartley & Co. when he discovered a young man lying on the ground, with two others leaning over him .- A short distance further the constable espied another man who was approaching the spot .- The constable immediately perceived that the man who was lying on the ground was wounded, and with all haste proceeded to the station, not for distant, to notify the sergeant of the occurrence, at the same time taking one of the parties with him and leaving the others in charge of private watchman Furlong and another person who happened to be present. The case having been reported to Sergeant Donohue he proceeded to the spot, and taking in the situation in an instant, conveyed the injured man to the interest was manifested in the proceedings throughout, and frequently marks of approval and disapproval expressed.

After other business had been disposed of, the Mayor read the report of the Finance Committee, to which was appended the opinion of Mr Roy, relative to the Volunteer claim for services on the 16th of July. The report approved of the claim and requested an appropriation of $4,167.98 from the Reserve fund.

Ald. Grennier supported the report and moved, seconded by Ald. Childs that it be adopted. Alds. Laberge and Thibault-No, no.

Ald. Thibault moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Kennedy that the report be not adopted and that the claim for $4,167.98 be rejected.

In support of his amendment Ald. Thibeault made an able speech, out of which we regret we can only give a small portion. After giving a history of the life of the Prince of Orange, Mr. Thibeault said-Now, where is the Hero in all this? Where is the great man ? the half-God of Orangeism? Where is the reason to perpetuate in this free land of America the bloody souvenir of the Battle of the Boyne near Drogheda? No, sir, no reason can we find, except hatred, fanatism, revenge and the vilest passions of human nature, stirred up by men without honor, without faith, without brains those fire-brands of discord, who are the servile instruments of hell upon earth.

What have the Orangemen to complain here? Are you not free in the land, of our hopes, of our wealth, of our love and of our honor?

When did the Roman Catholics of this country (or of any country) encroach upon the rights of their fellow-citizens? When and where have we been aggressive in any way? Nay, more, do we not tolerate every day all the insults of fire brand finatics? Have we not suffered silently the violation of the sacred land of our cemetery by the shameful funeral of the unhappy and excommuni-cated Guibord ? Have we not granted in our province every liberty required and asked for by the Protestants ? Have we not supported Protestants in all their just claims? Yes, sir, no one would dare, here or elsewhere, if he not a liar, to deny our liberality, our justice and our love of peace, of concord, and conciliation : concord and conciliation which went so far as to tolerate, nay more, as to pardon the insane ravings of a Doudier in his sermon of the 12th July last?

Do you want any more ?

Take all the advantages you like, but leave us our rights, either civil or religious. We will not allow that you encroach upon them. Bear this in mind-The profanator who dars lay his hand over the arch of the convenant even to protect her, was stricken to death. If after all we desire to have peace, the Orangemen of this country wish to raise the axe of war, we are ready to resist it by all legal means which are at our disposal, by the very con-stitution of our country, by the very laws which were framed, either in England or Canada against traitors and disturbers of the peace, against viola-tors of the laws of the land, who take unlawful you that if such is the intention it will imperil the mentary words—very unparliamentary words and uncalled for-uncalled for, sir.

Ald. Donovan-There was no occasion to call upon the volunteers to escort that procession of blackguards, and those gentlemen who called upon them usurped their powers. (Uries of order !) And for what? Was there any riot? or street row? There was no riot, sir. There was, unfortunately, a life lost on the 12th July through the indiscretion of the unfortunate young man himself, who went out in the morning with murder in his heart, for he was loaded with bullets and fire arms, and if he got into a muss in the excitement which for months had been maturing through the open insults, and every kind of abuse heaped upon the large majority of citizens, upon their faith, upon what was prized higher, dearer even than life, what have we to do with it if he got into a muss with these excited people. They made a grand display on the 16th. If they had shown what sympathy and sorrow was in their hearts, instead of displaying their regalia and blood stained banners through the streets of our city, and inviting cut throats from other cities, who came down with arms in their hands to murder our citizens, it would have been better. (Cries of order.) After a few remarks that were inaudible to the reporters, the speaker continued-The volunteers it is said were called out to protect them. Protect them! In what? To protect them in insulting and trampling upon our feelings. I say, Mr. Mayor, the citizens of Montreal showed great forbearance. I say further it is a credit that they allowed those scamps-(cries of order) to go out of the city again; it redounds to their credit. But, sir, there was no occasion for a military display, because it had been resolved to let them bury him (Hackett.) I for one regret the occurrence. I took no part nor mixed myself in the matter, but I know the feeling was to let him bury him because it was an unfortu nate occurrence. The military, they were not called out by your authority, and we recognize no one but you whilst Chief Magistrate and the citizens agree that you acted wisely in refusing to call out the military. You had enough of police-the city police and water police-and, therefore there was no occasion for a military display. But the occasion was offered them to make on the 16th they intended to make on the 12th, and consequently the military was wanted to protect-whom? the men with murder in their hands, and not to protect the peace of the city, therefore I object to one single dollar being paid. I acknowledge no authority but the chief magistrate, and whenever he deems it expedient or necessary to call out the military to preserve the order of the city, I will, pay any bill that may ofterwards be presented for that service. I say it is a bad precedent to establish, and a bad precedent for the finance committee to entertain bills before coming to this council. I say that bill should have come before this council before we were in any way committed, but I hope we have not been committed by the committee. I hope the majority of this council will oppose it, for I say it is a bad precedent to establish for future action, for if it is entertained similar bills will be presented from this time out. If this Council will so far forget itself you will find the military will be

WELCOME TO OUR PASTOR REVER-END FATHER DOWD.

Rejoice ! Oh rejoice ! Let our glad voices swelling

A sense of delight in each bosom is dwelling,

Our heartfelt thanks giving to God is ascending;

While age's weak voice and youth's clear notes are

To welcome our Pastor, our Father, and Friend.

Our joy is the purest that Heaven can send,

With mirth and with music resound on the air?

There are smiles on each lip as it murmurs a

Our statesmen (if we have any) and our philanthropists (we have some) have in this question to untie the Gordian knot of our present commercial distress. Keep the labouring man well employed and well paid, and the rest of his countrymen will bask in the sunshine of his happiness. The secret of the commercial success of any young country lies in the employment of its productive working classes. Find employment and good pay for our idle and destitute fellow-countrymen and there will be no complaining among merchants and bankers. THE RECENT TROOBLES IN THE CITY. (Continued from Fifth Page.)

of "Anti Humbug," declares that "it is false that the Orangemen ever made such a demand or called for foreign aid," and again, but, he says so have the Orangemen who have named 20,000 men as the contingent required; sir, his stalement as to the latter is an unmitigated falsehood. They have done nothing of the kind." I am an old controversalist, and do not much mind hard hits, especially if I am afforded an opportunity of defending myself. Now, if I have stated "an unmitigated falsehood," I had at least what I thought good authority for it. The Rev. Mr. Potts is reported in the Globe of 13th July as having made a speech at the Orange meeting on the 12th, from which I take the following passage: "They had just heard a teleg-ram read from Montreal, asking that 20,000 Orange-men be sent to that city next 12th July. How will those Frenchmen look then? Wont they quickly get into a corner ? (hear, hear, cheers and laughter.) He could bring 500 boys from Armsgh who would sweep them from one end of the city to the (loud cheers.) The forcgoing is the langother." uage of an Orange clergyman. It deserves a place beside Mr. Scribble's letter in the Leader and the article in the Gleaner, announcing a determination on the part of the Protestant minority even at the risk of "loss of property and life," to endeaver to suppress the Legislature of Quebec. I would not have referred personally to the Rov. Mr. Potts, but for the serious charge of " unmitigated falsehood " made against me for having stated a fact on his authority. The telegram from Montrcal was entrusted to a foreigner from Buffalo to read to the Orange meeting, and that foreigner had the audacity in the presence of men professing to be loval beyond all others, he himself having, it may be pre-sumed, renounced his allegiance to the Crown of England, to state that he would bring a contingent from Buffalo to form part of the 20,000 invaders of Montreal next year. Will "Anti Humbug" condescend to support, or will he recant his charge against me? Now, it was after, and not before the violent speeches at Toronto and elsewhere, that the articles in the TEUE WITNESS that have been so severely censured, appeared. The Herald seems to be of opinion that I have ignored the violent proceedings on the 12th, and have rather made them "the subject of "apology" I cannot admit that this is a correct charge. I announced, in language that admitted of no misconception, that "I have preferred dealing with the question of Orange celebrations in a city chiefly inhabited by Roman Catholics on its own merits, and free from the complication of a casualty which ought not in my judgment to influ-ence the decsion " Am I to be told seriously that, even although the great majority of the Protestants of Montreal, including the clergy, should arrive at the conclusion that it is inexpedient to have Orange demonstrations here, yet that out of revenge for th over the discussion of the policy which is most de-writing again, I must notice another statement in the Herald's very courteous correspondent "Anti Humbug," who reminds me of the warnings of the appraoch of death viz : "deafness and blindness."

He says with charming naivele," The reason fof the Orangemen's disobedience of the old law is plain.

It was a law aimed solely at them." Just what I stated. These exclusively loyal Orangemen have no hesitation whatever in disobeying the law of the land if they don't like it. I have always imagined that the duty of a loyal subject was to obey the law even if bad while on the statute book.

and to agitate to procure its repeal. Orangemen, however, have peculiar ideas, and I am inclined to think that "Anti-Humbug" must be one himself.

This same writer, whose loyalty, by his own admission, consists in obeying such laws only as he likes, imputes "disloyalty" to the parties who called the Durham meeting in the County of York nearly 40 years ago. The object of those disloval parties

Catholics of Montreal, but, unfortunately, our people have not been accustomed to those demonstrations. They are of recent introduction here, and have produced results which might have been anticipated. I must reassert that it is most unjust to charge the late riot on the Catholics of Montreal, who have nevertheless had their feelings outraged by the procession of armed Orangemen occupying the principal streets of the city. I am well aware that the feelings of Orangemen have been excited against their Roman Catholics fellow-citizens, bnt without adequate cause and all should desire a restoration of that harmony which existed in Montreal before Orange demonstrations were introduced. There are not two parties in this matter. It is simple a ques-A full programme of games has been prepared tion whether one party will continue to exercise what they call their right to outrage the feeling of the vast majority of the population of the city. I have been honored by a criticism in the Daily Witness. I infer that the writer hardly concurs in my opinion the Catholic Church is an ally of order. I cannot, however, admit that he would establish a case against me by proving that the Society of Jesus had been hostile to "Constitutional Government. There may be "order" without constitutional Government, although I should regret as much as the Witness that any Constitutional Government should should be overthrown either by the Jesuits or by the Communists. The Society of Jesus is a religious order of the Catholic Church, and my impression is, that whether the established Government of a country were what is termed despotic, or that of a constitutional monarchy or s republic, as in the United States, the Society of Jesus, like other orders of the Catholic Church, would be found in the ranks of the supporters of order. At the time of the revolutionary war Canada was preserved to Great Britain in a great measure by the influence of the Catholic clergy, which was likewise employed in 1837 against the revolution-ary party. I am not disposed at present to enter into a discussion of Manitoba or Oka affairs, but I may observe that I am unaware that the 'Eeminary of St. Sulpice was released from "onerous conditions" by the ordinance confirming their titles, enacted about 1839 or 1840. I have always been under the impression that the Seminary yielded some of their claims in order to obtain what was equivalent to what is termed a Parliamentary title I have never seen any statement, to the best of my recollection, of the "onerous conditions" from which they were relieved. Surcly the Witness does not mean by his describing me as "plus arabe q'un arabe" to charge me with advocating civil war. I am opposed to threats of all kinds, come from whence they may, but I fearlessly assert that as re-gards "Threats" the Orange party are the aggressors. What Catholic priests has used language like the Rev. John Potts? I am by no means sure that I agree with the Witness on the subject of protecting processions. I can't admit that on the representation of the Secretary of an Orange or any other association that he apprehends that a procession may be attacked, the Mayor is bound to call out the Volunteers at the expense of the city. His duty is to use his best efforts to keep the peace, but not to send a force to protect a procession and to accom-pany it in its march. I am sorry that the Witness should be of opinion that I have no desire "to allay the ill-feeling." There would have been no ill-feeling whatever if the Orangemen had acted in accordance with their long established policy. I have ventured to tell them a little truth, and I have no doubt they are all very angry thereat. I am sorry that the Witness which, on the whole, has not on encouraged the Orangemen in their vagaries should have any doubts as to my "being a friend to order." I console myself, however, with the reflection that no language of mine can be quoted to justify such a doubt.
