ENCOURAGE HOME MANUFACTURE

AND USE

Dominion Copper Paint.

The very great success which has attended the sale of the Dominion Copper Paint, since its introduction into this market, has induced the makers to commence the manufacture in this city, by which they are now in a position to compete in price as well as quality. To protect themselves against spurious imitations, they have registered their Trade Mark, and every can of the original and genuine article will be labelled as follows:—

DOMINION COPPER PAINT

Patented in the United States January, 1871,

For BOTTOMS OF VESSELS AND BO

A SURE PREVENTIVE FROM WORMS, GRASS, &C.

Directions for Use.—Apply with a brush as you would any other Two coats should be used in all cases, stirring thoroughly while using.

THIS PAINT IS WARRANTED SUPERIOR TO ANY OTHE SHIPS' BOTTOMS.

SEVENTY YEARS OF SUCCESS HAVE PROVED BEYOND QUESTION THAT

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL

Possesses extraordinary properties for promoting the Growth and improving and Beautifying the Human Hair.

It prevents Hair from falling off or turning Grey, strengthens weak Hair, cleanses it from Scurf and Dandriff, and makes it beautifully Soft, Pliable, and Glossy. For children, it is especially recommended as forming the basis of a beautiful Head of Hair.—Price 3s. 6d. and 7s. Family bottles (equal to 4 small), 10s. 6d., and double that size, 21s.

ROWLANDS' KALYDOR

Exerts the most soothing, cooling, and purifying action on the Skin ; eradicates Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Spoots, Discolourations, and other Cutaneous Visitations, and renders.

THE SKIN SOFT, CLEAR, AND BLOOMING.

During the Heat and Dust of Summer, the Frost and Bleak Winds of Winter, and in cases of Sanburn, Stings of Insects, or incidental Inflammation, its virtues are universally acknowledged. —Price 4s. 6d. and 8s. 6d. per bottle.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO,

Or Pearl Dentifrice, compounded of Oriental Ingredients, is of inestimable value in Improving and Beautifying the Teeth Strengthening the Gums, and in rendering the Breath Pure and Fragrant. It eradicates Tartar from the Teeth, removes spots of incipient decay, and polishes and preserves the Enamel, to which it imparts a pearl-like whiteness.—Price 2s. 9d. per box.

Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers everywhere.

Pleasant and unfailing Remedy for Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Lung Complaints, &c.

No failure in 50,000 cases. $1,000 for a case it will not cure.

The following are a few of the names of those who have used this remedy;—Mrs. Gov. Cony, Mrs. Hon James W. Branbury, Anson P. Morrill, ex-Governor of Maine, Mrs. Col. Thomas Lambard, Mrs. Col. Thos. Lang, Hon. J. J. Eveleth, Mayor of Augusta, Rev. Dr. Ricker, Rev. E. E. Martin, Rev. C. F. Penney, Rev. Wm. A. Drew, Rev. H. F. Wood, Col. F. M. Drew, Secretary of State; Hon. J. T. Wood, State Librarian; Col. George W. Stanley, President First National Bank; S. W. Lane, Secretary of Senate; Warren L. Alden, Bangor; Charles C. Nutter, Esq., 27 Tremont Street, Boston; William H. Taylor, Beacon Street, Boston; Wm. F. Morrill, Esq,, Portland, and 50,000 other too numerous to mention.

F. W. KINSMAN, Augusta, Me.,

Dear Sir—I have had a troublesome cough for more than five years, and have had advice of those of the most skillful physicians, but I found nothing to relieve and cure me till I used Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. Yours, respectfully,

MRS. GEO. A. ROBBINS, Riverside, Me.

Remarkable Cure of Consumption.

From Lieut. John W. Sanborn, Overseer in A. & W. Sprague's Manufactory, Augusta, Me.

I desire to add my testimonial to the over-large list in favor of the Adamson's Cough Balsam. Immediately after my retirement from service in the army during the late war a troublesome cough attacked me, and in vain I tried every remedy recommended by friends or prescribed by the most eminent physicians whom I consulted. My case was pronounced incurable by several physicians, and my friends generally gave me over to die of consumption. About this time I discarded Schenk's Syrup, of which I had taken dozens of bottles, and all the other patent medicines recommended, and quit the advice of the doctors, and began taking Adamson's Botanic Balsam, with good effects from the ccommencement. After taking three or four bottles I found myself, to my great joy and the utter surprise of my friends, entirely cured. This was some six months ago, and the cough has not returned, which leads to the hope that I am permanently cured. I keep it constantly by me for use in case of colds. I have taken pleasure in recommending its use to many of my friends, with good results in every instance.

April 7, 1873. JOHN W. SANBORN.

DROPSY & GRAVEL CURED!!!

MARGESON'S CALCULIFUGE,

A MOST EFFECTUAL CURE FOR

Gravel, Stone in the Bladder, Dropsy, Incontinence (Weakness) of Urine, and all diseases of the Kidneys.

Persons suffering from any of the above complaints may rely upon a speedy recovery by using this Remedy. It has, in hundreds of cases, effected cures where the skill of eminent Physicians was baffled—in proof of which we beg to submit the following certificates:

TESTIMONIALS.

MONTREAL, July 29th, 1873.

MR. RICHMOND SPENCER,

DEAR SIR,

My wife has been troubled for a long time with Dropsy, and it has cost me a great deal of money to defray the expenses of Doctor's Bills; she also had been treated at the Montreal Hospital, but all to no purpose. At last, on your recommendation, I took home a bottle of MARGESON'S CALCULIFUGE, and I can honestly say that she commenced improving from its use at once; she is now quite well, which I attribute only to the use of the CALCULIFUGE. I gladly recommend it to those troubled with a similar complaint.

(Signed,) THOMAS BAYLEY.

MONTREAL, Sept. 8th, 1873.

MR. RICHMOND SPENCER,

DEAR SIR,

During last winter and last spring I was very much afflicted from diseased Kidneys (Gravel, &c.,) and I could not obtain any relief from the use of any Medicine, of which I had previously taken, until I commenced using "Margeson's Calculifuge."

It proved effectual after I had used two bottles, and I am glad to say that I am now quite restored to health.

(Signed,) J. L. HANVER,
Ottawa Hotel.

THE GREAT ORIENTAL TEA CO., Importers of Teas, Coffees, Cocoas and Chocolates, Montreal.

PREFACE.

In presenting this his first edition of the DOMINION CLASSIFIED BUSINESS DIRECTORY, the publisher feels confident it will give universal satisfaction. Such a work has long been wanted, and its publication frequently urged by leading business men. The city and other directories, they argued, were very good in a general way, but what they required was a DIRECTORY containing only the business and professional men of the Dominion of Canada,—a work that could be easily handled, and one wherein they could readily find the information they desired respecting any particular profession or branch of trade. The magnitude of such an undertaking and, the consequent great expense necessary to be incurred, deterred the publisher from attempting it, until during the past summer he received such hearty encouragement and promises of support that he was induced to make the venture. The result is now before his numerous patrons.

No pains or expense have been spared to make this DIRECTORY as complete as possible. Experienced and trustworthy canvassers—men thoroughly trained to their work—collected the information from authentic sources, and the publisher himself and numerous assistants devoted the utmost care and attention to its propor classification. Of course, it is almost impossible for a work embracing such a vast area to be entirely free from faults, but, whatever faults there are (and the publisher has every reason to believe they are few), are mainly due to the obstinacy of some people who, through ignorance, persistently refuse to give information to canvassers.

In the work now offered will be found, alphabetically arranged, the various branches of trade and professions in the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec,

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Manitoba and Newfoundland, and the names of those engaged therein. British Columbia is the only Province omitted. This, the publisher regrets to say, was unavoidable owing to the great expense he would have had to incur in sending canvassers to collect information there, and his inability to get any one there to undertake the work for him.

In addition to the Directory of Business and Professional men, the work contains a vast amount of interesting miscellaneous matter. Each city has a complete local miscellany, and at the end of the work there is much of a general character regarding British North America.

A glance at the contents of this DIRECTORY will readily prove that its publication has been attended with great anxiety, and involved a heavy expenditure. The publisher trusts, in return for his exertions to place a work of such value before the public, that it will meet with the generous support that it deserves, and that his next edition, in 1875, will give still greater satisfaction and prove,—(which he fears this one will not,)— a financial success.

The publisher would here return his sincere thanks to his advertisers and subscribers for their liberal support, and hopes those who have not subscribed will do so, because no business man should be without a copy of

MONTREAL HOUSE,

Custom House Square,

The MONTREAL HOUSE is well worthy the attention and patronage of the first-class Travelling and Commercial Public. It has a frontage of 180 feet on Custom House Square, commanding the most interesting and picturesque view of the River for miles above and below the Victoria Bridge. Being situated near to the Custom House, Post Office, Banks, &c., renders it the most desirably located Hotel in Montreal.

The long experience of Mr. DECKER in Hotel life is a sufficient guarantee—at least to his numerous acquaintances and friends—that the Hotel will be kept in a manner to secure the comfort of its guests and the patronage of the travelling Public.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

(Abbreviated in part from an unpublished History of the Dominion of Canada, in course of preparation, by P. S. Hamilton.)

Canada, was, a few years since, spoken of by an eminent official personage as a "new nationality," an expression which called forth much comment, seeing that Canada had not, and did not pretend to have any distinct and independent nationality. Still, the world seems to have agreed of late, to recognize in the Dominion of Canada a semi-nationality. Almost every day we see it ranked and compared with the avowedly independent nations of the world, as if it were one of them, although its relation, as a dependency, to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland never seems to be lost sight of. Among what we may call the young nations with which Canada is often so ranked, few have—to speak in common place parlance—so much of a history as this Dominion. There are few the history of which, although as yet but little known to the world at large so abounds with stirring incidents, with periods which, when faithfully described will read, as the common but graphic enough expression was it, "like chapters of a romance," as that of the aggregation of British Provinces and Territories which now make up the Dominion of Canada.

The origin of the name of Canada, it may here be observed, has been variously derived and has been a source of some controversy. The derivation given by the old French navigator Charlevoix, one of the most conscientious and reliable writers upon such subjects of the period in which he lived, is the one to which posterity has been most disposed to trust. Charlevoix derives the name from the Iroquois word Kanvata, a village or collection of cabins. The early navigators, on entering "the great river of Canada" and falling in with the nations, whose language they did not understand but endeavoured to learn, heard frequent mention made of the Kanneta, or place where these nations resided in communities. More frequently would they hear such reference made in the case of what were considered the larger and more important villages,—as for instance Stadacona (Quebec) concerning which there seems to have been much talk. These early navigators naturally thought that Kannata was the name of the place. Hence the name CANADA, first given only a local application; then applied to the whole country drained by the St. Lawrence; and eventually extended by Act of Parliament to the whole of British North America.

The history of Canada naturally divides itself into certain clearly marked eras. First, and without going beyond the bounds of the strictly historical, there is the pre-Columbian period. We believe we are safe in saying that no person who has given his study to the subject has now any doubt that the Northmen were well acquainted with the east coast of North America nearly five hundred years before the first celebrated voyage of Columbus. It was accidently discovered by an Icelandic navigator whilst endeavoring to make the coast of Greenland, in 1001. From that time for about three hundred and fifty years, the intercourse of the Icelandic Normans with Helluland (now Newfoundland), Markland (Nova Scotia), and Vinland (New England), was frequent and intimate. No European people have been so scrupulously correct in keeping their records, as these Scandinavians. The accounts of these early voyages which have been handed down from the period in which they were made, are most particular and circumstantial—more so indeed than those of the Spanish adventurers who followed Columbus. All intercourse of these Northmen with what is now America, seems to have ceased about the middle of the fourteenth century. This fact is as extraordinary and inexplicable as that, about the same time, or soon after, they disappeared in like manner from the West coast of Greenland. There the monuments which they left behind abound to this day.

Nearly a century and a half after the last we hear, by any authentic accounts, of the Icelandic Normans in America, Christopher Columbus made his great discovery. Here begins the second period in the authentic history of Canada. During one hundred and twelve years, immediately subsequent to the arrival of Columbus in one of the Bahama Islands, in 1492, that history consists of a series of narrations of numerous exploratory voyages to these coasts. Even a catalogue of these would require more space than we could afford to it in this brief sketch. The news that Columbus had discovered a new world, seems to have, almost instantly, flashed over Europe; and England first, and then France, hastened forward to compete with the Spaniards, in the great unknown West. The first English expedition was fitted out under John Cabot, who appears to have been accompanied by his youthful sons, Sebastian Cabot, was, so far as we know the first European, after the Norman expeditions, who ever set foot upon the continent of America. In 1497, he discovered the coast of Labrador, with the island of Newfoundland, some little time before Columbus had ever seen the mainland of South America; and, the following year, his son, Sebastian, explored the East coast of this continent North to the fifty-eighth degree of latitude, and South to about the month of Chesapeake Bay.

Of the many exploratory voyages which ensued, fitted out and conducted by English, French, Spanish, and Porteguese, during the period we are now considering, among the most noteworthy were those of Jacques Cartier, who, under the direction of Francis I., of France, made his first voyage across the Atlantic early in 1534. In the course of this and subsequent voyages, Cartier explored the shores of what are now called the Gulf of St. Lawrence, discovered the inlets of Bay de Chaleurs and Gaspe, the island of Anticosti; and discovered the great River of Canada and explored it from its mouth up as far as Hochelaga (now Montreal) During his second voyage, he, on the 10th of August 1535, discovered, northward of Anticosti, a bay filled with beautiful islands, to which he gave the name of St. Lawrence. This name has since come to be applied to all of the neighboring gulf and to the vast river that empties into it. On this second voyage, too, Cartier wintered for the first time in Canada, laying up his vessels in the mouth of the little river St. Charles over which now frown the walls of Quebec.

There are extant but few accounts of the voyages of these early adventurers; yet, during the period that we now refer to, the coast of Canada—particularly of Newfoundland and Nova Scotia,—must have been known to many thousands of Europeans; for we have authentic information that numerous vessels, particularly Basque and Breton, were in the habit of resorting yearly to those shores, to take fish and to trade with the natives for furs, but with no such object as that of permanent settlement.

We come to a third period in the history of Canada, when the work of colonization actually commenced. And this was a period in which for, say a century and a half, from 1604 to 1759, men's souls were tried as they have never elsewhere been on the continent of America. In mexico and Peru, the Spaniards maintained, in the sixteenth centuary, a fierce and terrible contest, and against frightful odds as to numbers, with the Aborigines. But, with all their cultivation, those Aborigines were an inferior race to the Spanish invaders, and they were consequently conquered.

In North America, and mainly upon the soil of what is now Canada, a very different contest took place, during the seventeenth and about the first half of the eighteenth centuries. Here, during the greater part of that time, England and France contended for the domination of a continent; and when England and France did not, Englishmen and Frenchmen did,—battling upon the soil of Canada, under the flags of their respective countries, and in the interest of the nation to which they professed to belong. Those who have not dived into the sea caverns of the history of that period, over which the waters now flow so smoothly, do not know that the best blood of England and France was freely shed upon the soil of Canada, during that century and a half. It was. What brought an additional element of ferocity into this long contest, was that the Aborigines—Indians as they were called—took a prominent part in it. They were divided, some tribes, or nations taking the English side; and others, the French; yet all, there seems reason to believe, at heart hating the white men. This period comprises some of the darkest pages in the history of this country, and also some of the brightest. Fiendish ferocity, chivalrous heroism, and patient, agonized, long-suffering fortitude, all have their records profusely intercommingled upon those pages.

It is difficult, within the scope of the few pages accorded to this brief sketch, even to outline the leading events of this interesting period of the history of Canada; but we shall endeavour to produce its most salient points.

Still in Jacques Cartier's time one M. de la Roque, Lord of Roberval, had, in 1540, obtained from the King of France a comprehensive and roving sort of commission, as was customary those times, constituting him Lieutenant General and Viceroy over many loosely described countries, but which in the main, comprised what we call Canada. Cartier was made his second in command, and made his last voyage as Roberval's subordinate. Cartier and Roberval seem to have differed in opinion, and after the return of the former to France, in 1542, we hear of him no more.

Roberval seems to have made nothing of his chances. He, as the favored Vicegerent of the King of France, was succeeded, in 1598, by the Marquis de la Roche. To La Roche's patent succeeded one M. Chauvin; and the successor of M. Chauvin was one M. de Chatte. The two last named individuals had Court favor which enabled them to get their patents as Viceroy &c.; but their wire-puller seems to have been a M. Pontgrave, a thrifty fur and fish trader, who, for a long time, had been in the habit of making yearly voyages to the St Lawrence, where Tadousac was his head quarters. He was only too glad to be associated, upon Canadian coasts with somebody who possessed royal authority.

To Chauvin succeeded Pierre du Guast, Sieur de Monts,—still as the friend of Pontgrave. To De Monts is due the credit of having commenced the work of colonization in Canada. An unwonted degree of éclat seems to have attended this venture of De Monts. In 1604, having prepared himself for the serious work of colonization, he sailed for what was then called Acadie now Nova Scotia; coasted that country for some hundreds of miles, and eventually entered what he then named Port Royal, and which is now called Annapolis Basin. All were charmed with the appearance of the place, but particularly one M. Poutrincourt, one of several gentlemen of independent means who accompanied the expedition as volunteers. Poutrincourt, in his enthusiasm, solicited from De Monts a grant of the land around Port Royal which was conceded. This was afterwards confirmed by the King of France, and is believed to be the first royal grant of lands upon the continent of America.

In another respect, Annapolis has a peculiar historical record. De Monts and his party, after cruising about the Bay of Fundy, made a land fall upon an island in the river St Croix, now part of the boundary between Canada and the United States. They wintered there and, in the course of the winter, a large proportion of them having died of scurvy, they abandoned the island in the spring and made a settlement at Port Royal. It consequently happens that this settlement, made on the shore of Annapolis Basin, in 1605, was the first permanent European settlement made any where in North America north of the Spanish settlement of St Augustine, in Florida. This first lodgment was made upon the Grenville shore, nearly opposite what is now called Goat Island. Nine years after it was founded, it was sacked by Sir Samuel Argal, at the head of an expedition from the English and newer colony of Virginia; but the Port Royal colony appears never to have been entirely obliterated from the time it was founded in 1605. This raid upon Port Royal by Sir Samuel Argal, was about the beginning of that long struggle of a century and a half, already referred to, which terminated, in 1759, on the plains of Abraham.

Among those who accompanied De Monts, in this his first expedition, was one whose name should fill a large space in the written history of Canada. Many of Nature's noblemen figured in these early days of that history; but none are entitled to a loftier place in the esteem of posterity than Samuel Champlain. To the chivalrous bravery of a paladin he added the kindliness, the charity, and the devotion of a true Christian. In him ambition, if he really was moved by any such motive as ambition, was identical with patriotism. Yet dearly as he loved France, he seems to have been still more attached to this new land in which we now find him. To his writings, descriptive of the scenes and adventures through which he passed in America, and to those of Marc Lescarbot, who also accompanied Poutrincourt on a subsequent voyage to Port Royal, we are indebted for the most lucid and trustworthy narratives extant illustrative of that period of Canadian history in which they lived, and descriptive of the regions which they had visited.

Champlain had previously visited America—had coasted about many of the West Indian islands; had made a short sojourn in Mexico; and had made a trip up the "Great River of Canada." In 1608, he, accompanied by the pertinacious adventurer, Pontgrave, was, by De Monts and his associates, sent out from France in command of a small expedition to the St. Lawrence, with the view of commencing a colony. He selected Quebec as the nucleus of his colony. Hence the history of Quebec, as such, thus founded by Champlain, dates from the summer of 1608. For the remainder of his days, the life of this indomitable man, Champlain, was identified with the progress of Canada as a French colony. Whether enacting the courtier in France, soliciting patronage and support for the young colony; or, upon this continent, exploring remote wilds never previously trodden by the white man; or fearlessly fighting, or craftily negotiating with the ferocious and wily savages; or untiringly striving to direct the efforts of the colonists to adapt themselves to their new home; or toiling to strengthen his little Capitol and open up new settlements in the wilderness;—Champlain whilst he lived, was the soul of the colony. He died about the close of 1635; and his remains were interred in his own beloved Quebec. Previous to this time, however, Quebec, with other settlements on the St. Lawrence, had met with the same disaster which had previously befallen Port Royal. In 1629, it was seized by an English force under command of the brothers, David, Louis, and Thomas Kertk; but it was three years afterwards along with Acadie and Isle Royal (Cape Breton), restored to France by the treaty of St Germain.

It is impossible, in so brief a sketch as this, to give any but the faintest sketch of the struggle between England and France for supremacy, upon this continent. Although during this period, from the commencement of the seventeenth century until the year 1759, those two nations were not always avowedly at war with each other, here in America, there was, between those peoples who acknowledged their respective flags, no such thing as peace. Here, between the English and French and their respective Indian allies, there was a state of chronic hostilities, restricted and intermitted only through their inability at times, through weakness and paucity of numbers, to seriously injure each other. Did either party complain of having been treacherously molested by the other during a time of acknowledged peace, nothing was more easy than to charge the injury complained of to the irrepressible Indians and to certain white "free lances" who led a life similar to theirs and who, it was pretended, were beyond the control of their own country's Government. These Indians always did take a conspicuous part in the contest, and of course their doing so added much to its ferocious character.

With the exception of the brief period during which Quebec was held by the English after it was taken by the brothers Kertk, as already mentioned, that post as well as Hochelaga (Montreal) and other settlements on the river St. Lawrence, remained uninterruptedly in the possession of the French until the final close of the struggle in 1759. the contrary, Acadie, or Acadia, comprising what are now the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and part of the state of Maine, frequently changed hands.

Acadia was repeatedly acquired by the English by conquest, but was never retained by them long, being always, until its final acquisition in 1710, restored to France on the conclusion of a treaty of peace. From this it followed that in the settled population even of Nova Scotia, down to as late as 1755, the French element largely predominated.

About this last mentioned date—1755—the English prospects in North America appeared gloomy in the extreme. For some time previously the French arms had an almost uninterrupted series of successes and were daily becoming more menacing and aggressive. The French now had command of the valley of the St. Lawrence, the great lakes, and the Mississippi throughout the whole course, thus nearly surrounding the English colonies. Then came the crowning disaster to the English arms of the utter rout and ruin, on the Ohio, of a force commanded by General Braddock, of which great hopes had been cherished. Nova Scotia had been wrested from the French in 1710; and its conquerors, determined to retain possession this time, had commenced the work of colonization in earnest. Halifax was founded in 1749, and the seat of Government immediately removed thither from Port Royal, now called Annapolis Still, the English population in that Provinc. were but a handful as to numbers comparee with the resident French. At the conquest of the country in 1710, it had been stipulated that these French colonists should either take the oath of allegiance to the British crown, or remove from the country. Under various pretexts, they had refused to do either the one or the other, but expressed a wish to be considered "Neutrals". Neither threats, remonstrances, nor entreaties, from the British authorities, availed aught with them. Meantime, a close intercourse was kept up between them and the Government of Quebec. The Indians, with whom they were intimately associated, continued incessantly to molest the young English settlements at Halifax, Lunenburg, and elsewhere, and were believed to receive aid and encouragement from them, if they did not even share in these bloody, marauding expeditions. This alarming behaviour, occurring at a time when the French seemed to be gradually, but surely, gaining the ascendancy all over the continent, and when England's prospects throughout the world at large, were darker than they had been for many generations, caused the most anxious forebodings on the part of the British colonists. The time seemed to have arrived when it was no longer with them a question of fighting for supremacy, or conquest, but of maintaining existence. Serious apprehensions forced themselves upon the minds of the British colonists that, on the first particularly favourable opportunity, the so-called French "Neutrals," in Nova Scotia, would rise in their superior might, extinguish the new and struggling British settlements already named, and carry the country once more beneath the flag of France.

In this time of sore perplexity for the British colonists, a novel scheme was resolved upon.

It was to forcibly seize upon the French habitants of Nova Scotia, and transport them bodily out of the country. Considering the great superiority of the latter in numbers, it was deemed necessary to observe the strictest secrecy as to this design, as to take the French by surprise when the plans were all matured. This was accomplished successfully, in the Autumn of 1755. An armed force was sent simultaneously, or nearly so, to each of the principal French settlements of Port Royal (Annapolis), Minas (Horton and Cornwallis), Piséquid (Windsor), Cobequid (Truro, Onslow, and Londonderry), and Chignecto (Cumberland and Westmoreland). The persons of the able-bodied men, were imprisoned before they were aware of the designs of their captors, and conveyed on board transport ships which were in readiness. The old and decrepit, the women, and children, were fain to follow; and thus the whole of the French habitants, with some inconsiderable exceptions, and unresistingly except as to some small attempts at Chignecto, were secured and conveyed out of the Province of Nova Scotia. They were distributed among the other colonies from New England to Georgia. Owing to the paucity of the means of transport and to the numerical weakness of the British force and the consequent fear which caused them to hasten through their operations, members of the same family were, in some instances, separated, and many cases of exceptionally keen and heart-rending distress occurred. It was a sad business to all concerned; but the victors in this strange contest seem to have done every thing they could consistent with what they believed to be their own safety, to render the condition of the vanquished as little painful as possible.

Much sentiment has been expended upon this expulsion of the Acadian French, and much obloquy has been unjustly heaped upon the British Colonists of North America therefor. When we look back to it now, from a time subsequent to that of the complete triumph which attended the British arms in the more vigorous contest between England and France, which immediately followed that expulsion, that act may, upon a superficial view, appear to have been a needlessly cruel one. But to the reader who can imagine himself a British Colonist of 1755, surrounded with difficulties on every side, with a dark record of the past and the gloomiest prospects ahead, whilst those French Acadians formed ostensibly one of the most dangerous elements among the causes of their dismal apprehensions, the conduct of the British colonial authorities will appear neither unwise, nor unjust.—We say "British Colonial" in a somewhat general sense; for in the matter of this expulsion, the Government authorities of Nova Scotia were entirely in accord with those of the colonies farther west, especially of New England.—If the French Acadians were guilty of the bad faith and double-dealing with which they were charged, they had no right to complain of the treatment which they received. If they were innocent, they had only to blame those of their own race, in France and at Quebec, who practically made of them a perpetual menace to the British colonists of the Eastern section of this continent.

Shortly after the event to which reference has just been made, a new spirit entered into the councils of the British nation. For years previously British influence had been languishing, all the world over; British prowess had become, among foreigners, a subject of scoffs; and even among many eminent British subjects themselves, the nation was supposed to have become effete. There were weak and incompetent ministers at home, who had sent out weak and incompetent commanders abroad, until the reputation of the nation seemed on the eve of irretrievable ruin. Nowhere was this incapacity more observable than in North America. For years past, whatever successes had attended the British arms there, had been mainly owing to the efforts of the colonists themselves. As eminent examples of the men sent out, in command, to North America about this time, we may mention the Earl of Loudon, military commander in chief, Admiral Lord Holborn, General Abercrombie, and General Braddock. Lord Louden, with ample powers, fluttered up and down the colonies, from Cape Breton to the Carolinas, for years, and accomplished nothing; whilst, all the time, the French, with less resources at their disposal, were, almost daily pushing their aggressions into what was claimed as British territory. General Braddock, as we have seen, had, with most insane-like obstinacy and in defiance of repeated and solemn remonstrances, thrown away an army and—it must be added, as so much to his honor—his own life, at Fort du Quene (now Pittsburg), at the head of the Ohio. General Abercromby, with a very fine army, as armies were then estimated, was afterwards launched towards Canada by way of the Hudson river and Lake Champlain. The difference between him and Braddock was that he, whilst saving his own life, managed to get his army ruined piece-meal, although never opposed by a French force nearly equal to his own. In 1757, a powerful military and naval armament was sent out under Lord Louden and Admiral Holborn, for the express purpose of reducing the French strongholds of Louisburg, in Cape Breton. This armament spent all the season maundering up and down the coast, from Cape Breton to New York, with Halifax as a place of general rendezvous; losing some ships without any assistance from the enemy, and endangering them all by purposelessly coasting about; disembarking and re-embarking the troops, for the most part without any ostensible object; and did nothing. The expedition more than once approached within sight of Louisburg; but when Admiral Holborn returned with the fleet to England at the close of the season, he gave as his reason for not having struck a single blow at the enemy, that he found the French had, at Louisburg, two ships more than he had.

But as already intimated, a new inspiration entered into the British Councils. About this time William Pitt, a genius and a patriot, became virtually the helmsman of the ship of state. His touch electrified every branch of the British services with a new life. He seemed suddenly to infuse his dauntless, dashing spirit into the whole British nation, which for some years previously, had appeared to be in a hopeless lethargy. He knew whom to select to carry out his designs; and, in 1758, a new expedition was fitted out against Louisburg, under the command of Admiral Boscawen and General Amherst, the latter having subordinate to him Brigadier General Whitmore, Lawrence (Governor of Nova Scotia), and Wolfe. Louisburg was speedily taken after a gallant defence, and the whole island of Cape Breton and also that of St John's (now Prince Edward) immediately submitted to British authority. Louisburg had previously, in 1745, been taken from the French by a New England force under Mr. (afterwards Sir) William Pepperel, after a siege in many respects most remarkable; but, to the infinite disgust of the colonists, it had, almost immediately afterwards, been restored to France. Soon after its surrender to General Amherst, this fortress and town, which had cost France immense sums of money, were razed to the ground, and the site occupied by them is now a picture of desolation.

The fall of Louisburg was a heavy blow to France, but it was to be soon followed by a worse one. Early in 1759, Pitt—the indomitable, the unswerving, the man of grand designs—had another expedition afloat, to be hurled against Quebec, the French heart of America. Wolfe, now a Major General, who had distinguished himself at Louisburg and in many a previous well fought field, was put in supreme command on this occasion. He had been in the army ever since he was fifteen years of age, was a Lieut. Colonel at twenty-two, and, at the time of assuming this important command, scarcely exceeded the years of youth, being but thirty-two years of age. He was opposed by the Marquis de Montcalm, the French military commander. He too was a comparatively young man; but among the many truly brilliant men whom France had given to Canada, he had already proved himself the ablest military leader, the shrewdest administrator, and the most far-seeing statesmen of them all. Wolfe had a glorious prospect before him in being pitted against such a man as Montcalm, even in one of his many capacities, that of a military leader.

The story of the siege of Quebec has been often told; and it is one to commemorate which the poet, the painter, and the historian, have alike exerted themselves to the utmost of their abilities. It is one to which no brief sketch could do justice, and a particular account is incompatable with the brevity of this paper. Young Wolfe, after bringing into play a vast amount of energy and activity; after devising and endeavouring to put in execution various carefully matured plans; after the men under his command had repeatedly proved that they still had the dash and the daring of the British troops of former times; he still found himself virtually foiled by Montcalm. He seemed as far from the conquest of Quebec as ever. Older heads who were under his command, sneered at the young man's tactics, and many were the letters sent nome traducing him; but perhaps he never knew of that. At length one morning, Montcalm found nearly the whole British force drawn up on the Plains of Abraham, just outside the western walls of Quebec. In the darkness of night and the grey light of early morning, they had climbed, and taken guns with them too, up a lofty and steep bank—an almost vertical cliff—which was supposed to be inaccessible, especially to equipped soldiery. Wolfe had, at length, made a really successful move—one which nobody before him seemed to have supposed possible—and Montcalm saw and appreciated it. Giving way at once to that daring impetuosity which was even more a characteristic of him than prudence was, al, though he possessed both in a high degree, he threw himself at once, with all his available force, upon Wolfe and his little army.

Of course, it was a fight of desperation. To conquer, or die, was what both commanders and both armies saw was the alternative before them. Both Wolfe and Montcalm did die, like true heroes, as they both were. The British became the victors in that hard fought field; Quebec surrendered to them; and all of French Canada soon followed.

The battle of the Plains of Abraham has been called one of the decisive battles of the world; and so it was. That reputation for an engagement does not depend upon the number of men who are brought into the field; it depends upon the result of the engagement and what was staked upon it. For a century and a half, England and France had been contending for supremacy upon this North American continent. Only five years ago, France seemed advancing with giant strides to the consummation of her wishes. Now,—Sep. 13th, 1759,—a decisive battle outside the walls of Quebec changes the whole aspect of affairs. The power of France was crushed in North America, and, so far as we yet know, crushed forever.

Almost from the outset, the French colonists cheerfully accepted their new position. This may be accounted for from the fact that, notwithstanding their patriotic self-devotion, they had long been cruelly treated by old France and by many of the officials sent out by France. Commercially and socially, the body of the people had, for a long time, really been oppressed. They soon found their condition ameliorated under British rule; and this fact went far to make them content with a change of fealty. The French habitants became uncomplaining, if not thoroughly loyal, British subjects.

With the conquest and pacification of the French islands of Cape Breton and St John's, and of the greater Colony of new France, or Canada proper, we enter upon another very distinctly marked period in the history of the country under consideration. We allude to that of the American Revolutionary war.

We cannot here enter into the particulars as to what were the causes of the revolt of the thirteen "old colonies" against British rule. It has been usual to account for that outbreak by the simple statement that the British Government persisted in taxing the American colonists without conceeding them representation in parliament, an imposition which the colonists resented and against which they contended to the bitter end. A closer enquiry will show that the main causes of this revolt, whilst more superficial than those usually alleged, had yet produced a deeper impression upon the feelings of the colonists, than any mere question of taxation was likely to produce. Whilst the dispute upon the taxation question was that which plunged the ostensibly colonists into a war with the mother country, it was, with the former, rather a pretext than a cause. The real cause had long been acting upon the American mind. It was to be found in an indifference to and a disregard—an almost scornful disregard, of the interests, feelings, and—we must add—of the prejudices of the colonies which had long been manifested by the authorities and people of England. To this must be added what to the more spirited of the former was still more rankling,—an habitual superciliousness of demeanor, on the part of their fellow subjects of "the old country," which when it did not evince itself in contemning the colonist as an inferior creature, manifested itself in the scarcely less irritating way of patronising him. This demeanor a portion of the colonists were only too ready, not only to resent but even to anticipate.

Whilst the French maintained a foothold upon the continent and were regarded as a dangerous enemy by Englishmen and colonists alike, the inveterate antipathy which both of the latter cherished towards the common enemy, caused them to keep under restraint those mutual feelings of subdued hostility, of which the political, and still more the social, history of many previous years affords us numerous evidences, and which probably dated from the earliest settlement of the colonies. When, however, the French power ceased to be any longer a source of dread, or even of serious concern to the English-speaking population, that restraint to which we have referred, seems to have been, in a great measure, thrown off. Disputes upon questions of administration arose between the British Government and the colonies; and these were conducted with an acrimony that could not have been manifested had there not already existed some under current of animosity between the two.

At length, the thirteen "Old colonies"—so called in contradistinction to those which, at a comparatively recent period had been won from France—drifted into open revolt against British authority. The first blood was spilled between the English troops and the now insurgent colonists in what is known as "the battle of Lexington," near Boston, Massachusetts, on the 19th of April, 1775. Thus commenced the American Revelutionory war which it took eight years to bring to a conclusion.

There still remained, throughout the revolted Colonies, a class of people, considerable as to numbers, who continued true to their allegiance to the British Crown. Those Loyalists, to whom we shall have to again refer, eventually and for the most part, made their escape, or were driven, or under some condition removed to what were then the Provinces of Nova Scotia and Quebec. Many of them did so only after they had borne arms in His Britannic Majesty's Service throughout the contest; and many others left their bones on the American battle fields, martyrs to their loyalty.

Early in the contest, appeals had been made to the Nova-Scotians and Québecois to make common cause with their fellow colonists. The latter, to a man, so far as we can learn, would have nothing to do with the insurgents. An honorable regard for the allegiance which they had so recently accepted, the practical freedom and increase of physical comfort which they enjoyed under British rule, and a lingering antipathy towards the people of the "Old Colonies," with whom they and their fathers had so long waged war and whom they had always regarded as more their enemies than the English proper, combined to keep the French of the then recently constructed "Province of Quebec," true to their British allegiance. With the exception of its garrisons and officials of the English-speaking race, it may be said to have had no population yet, save what was French, or of French origin.

In Nova-Scotia, during the first two years of the war, some slight demonstrations of disaffection were exhibited at Cobequid (Colchester and Chignecto (Cumberland and Westmoreland). The scintillations of rebellion scarcely lasted long enough, however, to permit the governing authorities an opportunity of snuffing them out. The fact is that most of the people in those districts were born, or had previously resided in the "Old Colonies," and had near relations there in arms against Britain. As for the mass of the resident population, they were either French Acadians, returned from their expulsion of twenty years agone, or nations of Europe who were comparative new comers in America. Neither class could at all appreciate the feelings of the insurgent colonists.

The period of the Revolutionary War was, of course, one of much excitement in the two still loyal Provinces of Quebec and Nova Scotia. The former, it must be recollected, comprised what soon afterwards became the two Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada; the latter comprised what are now Nova-Scotia and New Brunswick. Owing to its geographical position and to the immediately subsequent important operations during the "French War," which virtually terminated on this continent with the conquest of Quebec, Halifax became, almost from the time it was founded, the British naval and military head quarters in North America. What was at first accidental and promised to be only temporary, this Revolutionary War made continuous; and Halifax has in effect held that position ever since.

A good deal of immediate discomfort and more anxiety were suffered upon the coasts of Nova Scotia and St John's (afterwards Prince Edward Island,) by predatory expeditions from what we must now call the United States. On the 4th of July 1776, the revolting colonies had declared their independence and assumed the somewhat incongruous, and very inconvenient name of "United States of America." It must be admitted that these predatory excursions were, for the most part, the ventures of privateers and were discouraged by those in authority in the newly constituted republic. It must be admitted too, that the Nova-Scotians were not slow in making reprisals.

The Province of Quebec suffered more severely. Then one of the most gallant attacks upon British power that the whole history of the Revolutionary War can show, was made—and failed. A combined movement was planned. One force, under Montgomery, was to penetrate Canada by the upper St Lawrence; another under dare-devil Arnold, was to enter the same Province by way of the Kennebec and Chaudière rivers, through the then frightful wildernesses of what is now the State of Maine. Both Montgomery and Arnold had been officers in the British army. Both expeditions performed prodigies, Montgomery, for a time, carried all before him,—took Montreal and swept down towards Quebec, the conquest of which was the main object of the combined movement. Arnold's successful march through hundreds of miles of Nature's impediments, was still more wonderful. He effected a junction with Montgomery, near Quebec. That fortress town was assaulted by the combined force, on a wild December night but with most disastrous results to the assailants. Montgomery was killed and Arnold severely wounded in the desperate assault; and the whole expedition proved, as to its main object, an utter failure.

Much has been written about this American Revolutionary War and a great interest taken in the subject; for from it there has grown an unquestionably great nation. Regarded from a military point of view, however, the history of that war is rather uninteresting than otherwise. Considering the length of its continuance, it is wonderful how few achievements its records show to challenge our admiration. In truth as to the British army, never from the time that Britain had a standing army down to the present day, was that army so near a state of utter effeteness, as it was at the outbreak of this war. Among those who held important commands in it, we may look in vain for any one who showed even mediocré abilities. With the United States insurgents, it was not very much better. Washington, indeed, who had been appointed commander in chief, was undoubtedly above mediocrity as a military leader, as were some of the officers under him; but he had a vast proportion of—at best—indifferent material to handle. The war was carried on in a languishing kind of way; little vigor was put forth on either side; and, until near the termination of the contest, it seems to have been a matter of doubt with a large proportion of the United States people whether they had not better give in their submission. The imbecility of British military commanders and the incapacity of British statesmen to comprehend the position, saved them the trouble. The independence of the United States was acknowledged and a peace with the young republic concluded, at Paris, provisionally, on the 30th of November, 1782, and fully and formally confirmed, at London, Nov 19th 1794

Another period—very marked—in the history of Canada, originated from about the time of the conclusion of this Revolutionary War. The Royalist Refugees who, during and at the close of that war, came and settled down in the provinces of Nova Scotia and Quebec, sufficed to more than double the previous population of those remaining British dependencies of North America. The island colonies of Newfoundland and Prince Edward, do not seem, thus far, to have been held of much account by the British Government.

From these so-called "Royalist Refugees," there grew up, in what remained of British North America, a new party, a new class, and a new power. The largest portion of these Loyalists made their first land-fall in Nova Scotia, where they were popularly known as "American Refugees;" but many of these "Refugees" subsequently left the Province for various other parts of the world. Another large section settled down along, or near, the shores of the Upper St Lawrence and the lakes which feed that mighty river, in the country which subsequently became known as "Upper Canada." There they assumed the title of "United Empire Loyalists" by which, for generations afterwards, they were known.

Thus began, or at least was defined, the political lines between the Republican United States and what is now called the Monarchical "Dominion of Canada." Both the Republic and the Monarchical Dominion claim the additional surname of America.

With the close of the Revolutionary War, there commenced an entirely new era, for which still remained British North America. As we have seen, the number of Royalist Refugees who removed to and settled in the Provinces of Nova Scotia and Quebec, rather more than doubled their previous population. Of course, after the acknowledgment by Great Britain of the independence of the thirteen revolted colonies, the status by Nova Scotia and Quebec became very much changed. They had previously been regarded as mere appendages of the old thirteen colonies. Now that the latter had become an independent nation, the former necessarily assumed a more important position as almost the sole representative of British dominion upon the North American continent.

About this time there was commenced, by the British Government, a work of dissolution or disintegration, of British North America, of which, of late years, the folly has been practically acknowledged and has been attempted to be cured. In 1770, an island of St John's in the Gulf of St Lawrence,—the name of which was subsequently, in 1799, changed to Prince Edward, out of compliment to the Duke of Kent when holding military command in the Provinces,—was set apart from Nova Scotia as a separate Province, with an organised Government. There were reported but one hundred and fifty familes upon the island at the time! In 1784, New Brunswick and Cape Breton were, in like manner, set apart from Nova Scotia and distinct Provincial Governments organised for them. As to the latter, it had, seven years after its conquest from the French, been made a county of Nova Scotia, with the privilege of sending two members to the Provincial House of Assembly. In 1770, it had been annexed to the county of Halifax, "because it had not a sufficient number of free holders to make an election." Now, fourteen years afterwards, it was set off under a separate Government, although it must, at the time, have been almost depopulated. After thirty-six years of this species of independence, Cape Breton was re-annexed to Nova Scotia as a county thereof, entitled still to but two representatives in the Provincial Assembly.

In 1791, the Province of Quebec was divided into two provinces, for many subsequent years respectively known as Lower Canada, and Upper Canada. A large proportion of the Royalist Refugees from the revolted colonies had settled in the wilderness along the Northern shores of the Upper St Lawrence and the great lakes which it connects, in what was afterwards known as Upper Canada. The great extent of the old Province of Quebec as a whole; the difficulties, about the time now under consideration, in communicating between its remoter settlements; and the supposed wide difference in sympathy between the newly arrived English-speaking Royalists and their French-speaking fellow-subjects of the Lower St Lawrence, owing to differences of race, language, and religion; were considered sufficient reasons for determining upon the division of the Province and its being placed under two distinct Governments.

The period, extending for many years after the close of the Revolutionary War, was one of great depression, and much of even downright physical distress, both in the Provinces and in the New Independent States. As to the case of the latter, there were divers causes for this state of affairs, besides the general and inevitable reactionary depression which is experienced by every country when just emerging from a long and severe war, and still more when it has itself been the theatre of that war. Our sketch has not, however, to deal with the inner life of that country. In the older settled portions of the Provinces, there was a like general depression. The staples which the country produced for the markets of the time, consisted almost solely of the products of agriculture and the fisheries. During the war, the prices of these had been enormous and money had been sown through the land with a lavish hand. No sooner was the war over than everything was changed. The previously inflated prices for every thing purchasable, sank to those that were nominal, if they could be obtained at all.

With the new arrivals—the Royalists Refugees and the disbanded soldiers, whom the termination of the war had brought to settle in the Provinces, and who as we, have already said, about doubled their population—the case was far worse. The greater number of them settled down in the wilderness, to live a life for which their previous experience did not at all fit them. As to a large proportion of the former, they had, in the Old Colonies and before the insurrection, lived in camparative affluence. They had left everything to attach themselves to the fortunes of the British Crown and,now found themselves under the necessity of going out into the wilderness to begin life anew. Almost innumerable family traditions tell us of the toil, privation, and hardship, which were endured by these Royalists, or Loyalists—for they were both, and may be indifferently called either.

The two countries—the British North American Provinces collectively, and the United States—but especially the former—had scarcely found themselves emerging from this period of depression into one of comparative prosperity, when in 1812, war again broke out between Great Britain and the United States. Whatever the alleged causes of this contest, there is no doubt that the former power was surprised into it; and that the real object which the United States had in view in declaring war, was the acquisition of Canada by conquest. Britain was then engaged in a desperate struggle with France,—or rather with Napoleon the Emperor of France, who then had nearly the whole continent of Europe at his feet,—and was in anything but a position to have another hostile nation thrown upon her hands. Never before, or since,have her energies been so severely taxed as they were about that time. To all appearances the American Republic had an easy conquest before it. The British military force of "regulars," scattered through the Provinces, small and weak. The same may be said still more emphatically of the British naval force in North American waters, or available for use there, especially when compared with that which the United States had, for some time previously, been cautiously, vigorously getting up, in probable anticipation of this contest. The population of the Provinces was but a handful compared with that of the United States.

One can scarcely speak in too high terms of praise the gallant conduct of the British North American Militia during this war of 1812-14. A large proportion of the English-speaking section of it consisted of the immediate descendants of those American Refugees, already mentioned, who, through motives of loyalty to the British Crown, had abandoned property and home during the Revolutionary War. Many of them had been born in the Old Thirteen Colonies, and had a vivid recollection of the early hardships which their emigration had cost them. All were staunch in their loyalty to the British Crown and most of them held their republican neighbours—now their openly avowed foes—beyond the border, with strong aversion not unmixed with scorn. Nor did the French-speaking population evince much less of attachment to the Crown to which they owed fealty. Although the events then taking place in Europe might have led one to expect that they would have shown different proclivities, they remained staunch in their loyalty, and proved their sincerity by spending their blood upon more than one well fought field.

During all the earlier part, comprising nearly the whole period of this three years' war, it is no exaggeration to say that the Canadian Militia almost alone sustained the contest against all the force that the United States could bring against them. And, not one alone, but several of those armaments, were most formidable, and might, when being launched against Canada, have been called overwhelming when compared with the weaker local forces with which they had to contend. Again, and again, and again, the soil of Canada was invaded by a force far superior in strength, to anything which, by the most energetic scouring of the country, could be got together to oppose it. Those invasions all proved failures—most of them signal failures. In most instances, they were immediately and promptly repelled; in no case did the enemy maintain a prolonged foothold upon the soil of Canada; and, when open hostilities ceased, we may say in effect that he had no foothold upon that soil at all.

As already intimated in this sketch, we should not estimate the value of a victory by the number of lives it has cost, nor the importance of a war by the magnitude of the armies which it brings into the field. We must look at the courage, the endurance and the military ability exhibited;—but, above all things, we are to look at the results. Considering the numbers of the belligerents engaged in most of the contests of the war to which we now refer, those "battles," would be called—possibly—"mere skirmishes," by historians of other wars where hosts are brought into the campaign. There were, however, during that war, battles in every sense of the word—gallantly, bitterly contested battles—the detailed accounts of which the descendants of the Canadians of 1812-13-14 may well read with pride. When we consider the peculiar and precarious political position of the people of British North America at the period to which we now refer; when we think of their paucity of numbers, and of the immense length of frontier which they unhesitatingly roused themselves up to defend against an immensely superior force; when we recall the celerity and audacity with which they—always ill armed and accoutred, seldom half clad, and often halt starved—flung themselves, from point to point, along that wide and wild frontier to meet the threatening enemy; and when we see it on record that they always did, soon or late, repel him, and through their own prowess, found at the last, the soil of their country unpolluted by the footstep of a known foe;—when all this is recalled to mind it must be admitted that, although these British North Americans were not a host led by a Timour or a Zinghis, they were men whose history must challenge admiration, and of whose memory their descendants and fellow countrymen may not unreasonably feel proud.

We have referred, as yet, only to the results of this war on land. Upon water, both upon the ocean and the Canadian great lakes, until near the close of the war, the United States had for the most part the advantage. For years previously their ruling men had been studying up naval architecture, naval armament, and naval tactics, to an extent which the British Admiralty little knew of. Not only this, but they had put their studies into practice. The British Government seem to have held the United States naval power in as small estimation, at the outset of this war, as the United States seem to have held the Canadian military local force—and for some time, with very similar results. Eventually Britain come to appreciate the position; and her heavy metal began to tell upon the deep in a way which, at least, promised to put an entirely new aspect upon affairs, so far as the naval conflict was to be considered.

The affairs of Europe wore an entirely different aspect towards the close of 1814 from what they had done three years before. So, the United States were not indisposed to enter into a peace; and accordingly, on Christmas eve, 1814 a Treaty of Peace was signed, at Ghent, between Great Britain and the United States.—Thus ended one of the most futile wars on record. It proved however, that Canadians—of that day at least—were not to be trifled with.

After the conclusion of the war just referred to, in which the United States effected nothing in way of conquest and at the termination of which Britain exacted nothing by way of reprisals, then ensues, in the history of British North America, another long period during which these Provinces sank almost into oblivion, so far as the notice of the outside world has to be considered. The eyes of the world, even inclusive of Britain herself, had gradually become riveted upon "the great American Republic," and seemed to have become dazzled with its supposed glories. Poets sang ecstatically of those glories; politicians crossed the Atlantic to study and philosophise upon its institutions; narrators set forth to describe in the most glowing colors its achievements. The young republic "woke and found itself famous." It somehow become the fashion. One result of this was the setting in of a large tide of emigration from Europe to the United States, a tide which has been very naturally cumulative, and which many naturally adverse causes have not, even to this day, sufficed to arrest.

Meantime, immigration to what is now Canada was going on with vigor. Immediately after this war, as after that of the American Revolution, there was a vast amount of commercial depression, owing to the causes we have already named in speaking of the results of the earlier event. Still, the attraction of family connections already in the North American colonies, in some instances; the devotion to British institutions entertained by intending emigrants, in others; and, in still others, the shere spirit of speculation; these collectively led a very considerable stream of immigration into the British North American Provinces. Scotland—especially its highlands and islands—was in the first instance, and Ireland, secondly, the sources whence the greater part of this immigration came; Upper Canada, first, then New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, were the regions into which it settled down.

From 1814 to about 1837, an account of the social and inner life of the British North American Provinces would be such a one as does not usually fill a large space on the page of history. It is marked by few special incidents which could excite general interest. It is, for the most part, the simple and often painful story of toilsome industry expended, hardships borne, and privations suffered, by those who had set themselves to the task of wresting a livelihood, or mayhap of winning fortunes, out of this new land which was still an almost unbroken wilderness. But during that period, the natural industrial resources of the country were being vigorously developed; its population rapidly increased; and it made great strides forward in material prosperity.

The political history of the same period, judging from the acception which ordinarily written history usually receives, may be considered more interesting; for it is that of a series of events which, in course of time, led to a revolution in the British North American Provinces and more especially so in those of Upper and Lower Canada.

Nova Scotia was the first of the Provinces now comprising the Dominion of Canada, wherein there was a Legislature in which the people were represented—wherein according to the English sense of the term, there was a House of Commons. On the second day of October, A.D. 1758—a little more than two months after Louisburg, and with it the islands of Cape Breton and St John's, had fallen, for the last time into British hands, and a little less than a year before the conquest of Quebec, to be immediately followed by that of all New France, subsequently Canada, as known until a few years since—the first Parliament of what is now the Dominion of Canada met at Halifax. Previously to this, Nova Scotia had been ruled by a Governor representing the English Crown, assisted by a council of life members appointed by the Crown. The novel House of Assembly, elected by the people, consisted of twenty-two members. At least, so many were to have been elected, but we know not that even so many assembled.—Subsequently, each of the other Provinces now composing the Dominion of Canada, were, upon their organization, accorded an elective branch of a Legislature corresponding, as was supposed, to the English House of Commons.

From the very first sessions of this first House of Assembly of Nova Scotia, it was obvious that the people's representatives, although doing things in a very crude way, were animated very much as the representatives in the earliest Parliaments of England were—going back even to a time beyond the Norman Conquest—to the old Saxon Wittenagemote. They exercised a most jealous vigilance over the rights, and a keen disposition to extend the privileges, of the people who had elected them as their representatives. On the other hand the Executive power, represented by the Governor for the time being, was a sort of political antithesis of this "newfangled" English Parliament outside of England. It must be admitted that where collisions did occur between the House of Assembly and the Governor, it was usually rather between the former and the Governor's Council, by whose advice he was supposed to, and often did act. This Council was a sort of nondescript body, with both Executive and Legislative functions, which, previous to the summoning of the first House of Assembly, had ruled the Provinces—subject, of course, to the pre-eminent influence of the Governor. Where glaring differences did occur between "the House" and "the Council," there is reason to believe that jealousy of each other had oftentimes quite as much to do with it as any deep considerations of political principle. Still it ensued that, from an early period in the history of Parliamentary representive institutions in these Provinces, there was a contest between the populace proper, as represented by the several Provincial Houses of Assembly, and the ostensible Executive Power.

We cannot, with any justice to the subject, trace the progress of this contest in so brief a sketch as this must be. The acting Governor—the representative of his sovereign—had, as a rule, a difficult part to act. This may be better understood when we recall the fact that, even until this day, it is a question often debated with virulence, what the precise functions of the Governor General of Canada, or of any Provincial Lieut.-Governor in the Dominion really are.

This prolonged contest never led to any excesses in what are now known as the Maritime Provinces. This was owing in part to the fact that they were, for the most part, presided over by Governors who were endowed with a good deal of tact and towards whom the personal affection, or esteem of the people went far to ameliorate partisan animosity; it was due in part to what would seem to have been a more temperate disposition on the part of the people of all classes.

In the Canadas—Upper and Lower—this contest brought much more fiery and hostile elements into collision. The contest may be briefly described as, in its essence, one between Royal Prerogative and Popular Representation. A large class of the people there, descendants of the American Refugees of the Revolutionary days, of those who had fought through the War of 1812 and who still rejoiced in the name of the "United Empire Loyalists," were sticklers for the rights of the Crown. They were doubtless very loyal to the Crown; had proved it in a thousand ways; but unfortunately they, as a class, claimed a monopoly of the loyalty of the country and, generally speaking, of the substantial rewards which loyalty may reasonably claim. They were too apt to denounce all who differed with them upon political questions as disloyal. On the other hand were men who contended that the popular branch of Parliament, in Canada, should enjoy the same rights, privileges, and immensities, that it did in England. To the latter party belonged nearly all of the French-speaking population as well as many of British descent. The distinction of race and religious creed between those who formed the predominent element of the respective antagonistic parties, eventually added to the virulence of this contest.

The contest between the rival parties was long and arduous, waxing more fierce with the lapse of time. The eventual predominance in strength of the Reform, Liberal, or Popular Party, as they were variously called, and the bold and determined stand taken by them, for securing what they claimed to be their rights, at length caused numerous concessions to be made by the Crown to their demands. These concessions came, however, but slowly and with apparent reluctance. Each of such triumphs won by the popular party become the signal for them to make new demands. At length these became so unreasonably exacting and some of them so inconsistent with the spirit of British Constitutionalism, that the British Government determined to go no farther in the way of making concessions, and signified its firmness in a way that could not be misunderstood.

At this stage of proceedings, many who had hitherto adhered to the leaders of the Popular Party, severed that connection and ceased to follow those leaders any longer. At the same time, those who remained staunch to their party, became more violent than they had ever been. The country was violently agitated and open resistance to British rule was, in impassioned terms, urged by the agitators upon the people. The commotion was scarcely less amongst those who were determined to uphold obedience to that British rule. The openly evinced animosity between the two parties, was intense. The prospects of the country were gloomy in the extreme; for it seemed upon the brink of a civil war, attended with all the atrocities which usually attend such a contest. At length the day of open insurrection actually arrived.

We are under the necessity of disposing of the leading events of this painful period in a very few lines. What is called the Canadian Rebellion was of short duration. In the Autumn, 1857, armod bands of insurgents assembled, with mischievous intent, at various points on the northern shore of the Lake of Two Mountains and that vicinity, at other points South of the St. Lawrence and near the river Richelieu, and, later, in the immediate vicinity of Toronto, and elsewhere. These ill advised insurgents were speedily overcome by detachments of Regulars and Local Forces sent against them; but they were not dispersed without bloodshed, and in some instances, not without a bitter resistance. Many prisoners were taken, some executions were made; and the greater number of those who had been most active in the agitation which had immediately led to the armed rising, fled the country. Virtually the Rebellion was suppressed almost as soon as it broke out; but the country continued in a state of great commotion for the next two ensuing years, during which time some unimportant outbreaks occurred; some blood was spilled; a large number of suspected persons were arrested by Government executive officers backed by Government troops; and the greater part of both Upper and Lower Canada became a sort of vast hunting field over which diligent pursuit was made for those supposed to be disaffected to the Crown. The excitement and mystery experienced by all classes throughout British North America during this period, were both intensified and prolonged through the persistent and eager meddling of what were called "Sympathisers" in the United States, men who were most desirous that Canada should be irreparably lost to Great Britain.

The émeute in Canada seems to have startled the British, or Imperial, Government into an intense consciousness that something unusual had to be done, and done quickly too. The consequence was a sort of "suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act" as far as the Canadian Provinces were concerned. The operation of the heretofore Canadian Provincial Constabulary was held in abeyance for a time. Lord Durham was sent out in the capacity of Governor General, but with powers somewhat similar to those of a Dictator in the days of old Rome. He or those who, in his name and under his direction, collected the material and put it into shape—got up an elaborate Report, setting forth the condition of British North America, and urging certain radical reforms as to its future Constitution. This document known as "Lord Durham's Report," is one of the most remarkable of State Papers; and, although now that almost a generation has passed since it was penned, and we, looking back with our subsequent experiences, may detect some defects in it; we feel constrained to say that it is, not only one of the most remarkable, but one of the ablest State Papers on record.

We feel confident that the Earl of Durham's suggestions would have been peaceably if not even cheerfully, acquiesced in by all of British North America; but that is an individual opinion which cannot, within the scope of this sketch, be corroborated by other testimony. The Imperial Government acquiesced only in part in the suggestions of the "Durham Report".

Upper and Lower Canada, after a brief dictatorial interregnum, became united, legislatively, as a single Province. Still, there was a strange indefiniteness—to some extent, a strange incongruity as to the terms upon which they were united. Were these two quondam Provinces one and indivisible? Were they to be relatively represented in Parliament by population? According to the principles of Responsible Representative Government as recognised in Great Britain, was it sufficient for the Canadian Ministry to be sustained by a majority of the whole Parliament? or was it necessary that it should be always sustained by a Parliamentary majority of the representatives of both Upper and Lower—or as they were called West and East—Canada? These were questions which continued to "crop up," oftentimes with a volcano-like violence; from the time of the union of Upper and Lower Canada, until 1867.

During all this time, there was a vagueness as to what the constitution of British North America, or any province in it, really was. All was confusion, and seemed to depend very much upon whatever freak happened to seize the nobleman, or gentleman, who at the time any important question came before him, happened to be Secretary of State for the Colonies.

The truth was, that the Colonists, whilst honored with the show of a Representative Government, were entirely subject to an Autocracy, the head of which had his being in the Colonial office in Downing Street. It is not much of a question as to how far the British Colonies, one and all, are not still subject to that—to them—irresponsible Autocracy.

From an early date during this period now under particular consideration the earnest attention, first, of certain political writers in the Provinces, and eventually of some of the more prominent of their practical statesmen, had been drawn to the anomalous and unsatisfactory relations of those Provinces to each other separated as they were without being naturally independent; each of them habitually, and often, unconciously thwarting, or embarrassing, the political and commercial action of the other; all of them, in their disconnected states and consequent comparatively helpless condition, being a source of weakness, rather than of strength to the Mother Country. A movement was thus commenced to repair the mischievous and needless disintegration which had been carried on during the previous century, when the territory subject to the Nova Scotian Government was divided into four Provinces, while Canada was divided into two, instead of consolidating the whole of British North America under a single Provincial Government.

The "agitation" in favor of this now new and sweeping measure was presistenly kept up in certain quarters until at length the cause of British American Union became a popular one. It was urged upon the attention of the Imperial Government by several ministerial delegations from Nova Scotia and Canada as well as by repeated private communications. Still, nothing practical and direct was done to bring about the proposed change until the Autumn of 1864. Then a conference of delegates from all of the Provinces of Eastern British America—Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, and Prince Edward Island—was held at Charlottetown, in the last named Colony, to discuss the great question of Union. From Charlottetown the conference adjourned to Quebec. There was elaborated a plan—since much canvassed as the "Quebec Scheme," for a Union of all these Colonies upon a Federal basis.

When the terms of the Quebec Scheme became known to the general public, they were met with hostility by some of the people immediately concerned. In Canada, the opposition was not formidable. In New-Brunswick, the Local Administration dissolved the Legislature and appealed to the country on the question. As a consequence, the Administration and the cause of Union were equally defeated at the polls. This decision was, however, entirely reversed, a year afterwards, by popular vote. In Nova Scotia, the Local Administration did not venture either to appeal to the country on the question, or to risk a vote upon it in the existing Legislature. Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island declined to accept the terms of the Quebec Scheme.

At length, early in 1866, the Legislations of Canada, New-Brunswick, and Nova Scotia then in session, authorized their respective Governments to send delegations to England; there to confer with each other and with the Imperial Goverment upon some measure for a Colonial Union. The statesmen of Great Britain, of all political parties, had, within the previous two or three years, evinced a lively interest in this subject of British North American Union which had never been observable before.

What resulted from this London conference is probably familiar to the remembrance of every British North American of discretion. A new Union measure was agreed upon, substantially the same as the Quebec Scheme, although differing from it in some particulars. Its terms were embodied in the Imperial Parliament with scarcely a show of opposition. It only remained for this Act, which was the proposed constitution of the new Union, to be ratified by the several Provincial Legislations. This was done early in 1867. On the first day of July of that year, the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec (formerly Upper and Lower Canada), New-Brunswick, and Nova Scotia, were formerly declared united under a Federal constitution, by the name of the "Dominion of Canada." A Goverment was organized by the formation of a cabinet under instructions from the Imperial Ministry; the Imperial Government formally nominated the members of the first Senate, and the elections for the first Canadian House of Commons and of the second Provincial House of Assembly, were held as soon as could be made convenient. The "British North America Act" provided for the admission into the Dominion of Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, and British Columbia, whenever the terms of their admission could be arranged between them and the already United Canada; and for the acquisition by the Dominion of the great North West Territory, so soon as the terms of its purchase could be negotiated with the Hudson's Bay Company who claimed to be its owners. Any historial sketch like this, however brief, would be very incomplete without some special referance to this great North West Territory.

In the year 1669, Charles II granted a charter to a London Company, under the name of "the Governor and Company of Adventurers trading into Hudson's Bay," conferring upon it the sole right of trading in all the country watered by rivers flowing into Hudson's Bay. This company was originally under the direction of the celebrated Prince Rupert: hence the whole territory referred to has often been called "Rupert's Land." The Adventurers commenced operations by constructing a trading fort on the shore of James' Bay, the southern prolongation of Hudson's Bay; but they very soon had other similar forts scattered over the surrounding wilderness. Great activity characterized their operations from a very early period of their history. They had great inducements to activity; for the profits of the fur trade prosecuted by them were enormous. They soon ceased to restrict their operations to the territory named in their original charter. In process of time, these daring adventurers had penetrated into every part of Northern and Western America, from the coast of Labrador to that of Vancouver; and from the Mexican territory of California to the Arctic Sea. Scattered over this immense tract, the Company have, even now, although their occupation is in some measure gone, over a hundred so-called forts or house, which serve as trading posts and depots for the goods in which they traffic, each with its factor or trader, clerks, and band of voyageurs and other dependents. In many instances the fort is surrounded by a small village, or settlement, containing a mixed population of some Whites but a much larger proportion of Half-breeds, and semi-civilized Indians; and where the soil and climate are favorable the surrounding country is to some extent cultivated.

From an early period, one of the most important and extensive, and the most attractive from an agricultural point of view, of those settlements, was that at the confluence of the Assiniboine and Red Rivers around Fort Garry. At that spot, in the very heart of the North American continent, and apparently cut off from all the rest of the world, there was a thriving little civilized community settled upon the great valley drained by the Mississippi and its numerous tributaries, now teeming with population, was as yet an almost unbroken wilderness. It was not until 1811, however, that this Red River settlement came to assume the proportions of a colony proper. Then it was that Lord Selkirk having effected certain arrangements with the Hudson's Bay Company, and with the Aborigines of the country, by virtue of which he claimed to be owner in fee of a tract of country along the Red and Assiniboine rivers, brought out a number of colonists, principally from Orkney, the Hebrides and the mainland of Scotland. Considerable additions to the population of the infant colony were, within a few years, made from Canada, mainly by people of French origin. This Red River colony has a history teeming with events calculated to try the souls of the people who composed it. Like most of the early settlers in the wilderness of America, these people endured many and great hardships. What with tremendous floods from the Red river sweeping over their lands, with visitations of hosts of wild beasts, devouring every green thing that grew there, and with a small but obstinate war, with which their country was ravaged, they had, for a long period a severe struggle for existence.

The war originated thus.—The young colony at Red River was supposed to be associated with the Hudson's Bay Company. But for some time previous to its formation, that Company had a rival in the fur producing wilds of North America. The rival association was the "North West Company," having its head quarters at Montreal. Fierce was the contest between the rival companies. Numerous and ingenious were the schemes by which they strove to circumvent each other in order to secure the best of the fur trade. Blood was freely shed, and many lives were sacrificed in this little warfare. The Red River colony suffered not a little at the hands of the "North Western" people; and, through this and the other causes already named, it held only a pining sort of existence until when in 1821, the two rival fur trading companies coalesced, assuming conjointly the traffic of the "Hudson's Bay Company." After that event, the Red River colony throve steadily, although, by reason of its extreme isolation and comparative inaccessibility, not very rapidly.

In course of time, another colony, on the Pacific side of the Rocky Mountains, grew up under the nursing of the Hudson's Bay Company. Eventually its headquarters came to be what is now called Victoria in the island of Vancouver. About the years 1857-58 and 59, discoveries of exceedingly rich gold deposits were made on the Mainland near Vancouver, along the banks of the Fraser River and its tributaries. From this fact it happened that all that tract of mainland west of the ridge of the Rocky Mountains, and from the United States boundary to Russian America, was made a colony under the name of "British Columbia." Vancouver and British Columbia afterwards, by their own joint act and with the concurrence of the Imperial Government, annexed themselves to each other and became British Columbia indivisible, with a three-branch Parliament and all the political paraphernalia of Representative Government.

Soon after the Union which made the Dominion of Canada, measures were taken by the Dominion Government to buy out the interests of the Hudson's Bay Company on this continent. That was virtually effected and confirmed by Parliament, the Company retaining certain property which seemed to be requisite to enable them to carry on their trading business. This the Company can continue to do, but without retaining any monopoly.

Closely following this transfer of the Hudson's Bay Company's territorial rights to the Dominion of Canada, a new Province, comprising the Red River Settlement, was derived out of the Hudson's Bay Territory, to be added to the Canadian Confederacy, and to be called the Province of Manitoba. After some painful misunderstandings with the residents of that isolated country, Manitoba, in 1870, came formally into the Confederated Dominion of Canada. In 1872, British Columbia became a member of the Confederacy. In 1873, Prince Edward Island cast in her lot with the Continental Provinces and became a part of Canada. Thus with the exception of Newfoundland which, as yet, remains aloof, all which the advocates of British North American Union ever expected to achieve has been accomplished. The Dominion of Canada, taken alone, comprises a territory inferior in extent only to those of the independent empires of Russia and Brazil; and it is quite equal to sustaining a population as large as either of those empires ever can sustain.—There are truisms that may bear repetition. There are platitudes that may be held endurable for the sake of the truth they embody.—The prosperity, the happiness, the glory of this Dominion of Canada, for ages to come depend upon the brain and muscle, the energetic morality and the moral energy, of the Canadians of to-day. May Canadians never forget what depends upon them.

SPENCER'S
Rheumatic Liniment

Does not profess to be a specific for all diseases; articles that do, are generally good for none.

Keep the Bottle Corked.

For Rheumatic Affections in the Limbs, Stomach or Back, Spinal Diseases and Stitches in the Back or Sides, make a thorough external application of the Rheumatic Liniment, rubbing it in well. If the Bowels are constipated, take 2 or 3 of Ayer's Pills.

Neuralgic Pains are dissipated at once by the use of this Liniment. For toothache, wet a piece of cotton and put it in the tooth, also apply outwardly. For the Sore Throat, either from cold or bronchitis, wet a flannel with the Liniment and bind it around the neck. This Liniment will be found invaluable—families that once use it will never be without it. ☞ Sold by all Druggists.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

For the relief and cure of all derangements in the Stomach, Liver and Bowels. They are a mild aperient, and an excellent purgative. Being purely vegetable, they contain no mercury or mineral whatever. Much serious sickness and suffering is prevented by their timely use; and every family should have them on hand for their protection and relief, when required. Long experience has proved them to be safest, PILLS with which the market abounds. By their occasional use surest and best of all the the blood is purified, the corruptions of the system expelled, obstructions removed, and the whole machinery of life restored to its healthy activity internal organs which become clogged and sluggish, are cleansed by AYER'S PILLS, and stimuled into action. Thus incipient disease is changed into health, the value of which change, when reckoned on the vast multitudes who enjoy it, can hardly be computed. Their sugar costing makes them pleasant to take, and preserves their virtues unimpaired for any length of time so that they are ever fresh, and perfectly reliable. Although searching, they are mild, and operate without disturbance to the constitution, or diet, or occupation.

Full directions are given on the wrapper to each box, how to use them as a Family Physic, and for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:

For Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Listlessness, Langour, and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach, and restore its healthy tone and action. For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it. For Dysentery or Diarrhœa but one mild dose is generally required. For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear. For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge. For Suppression, a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

The Book for every Canadian.

The History of Canada,

From its First Discovery down to Dominion Day, 1867,

By J. McMULLEN, Esq.

640 pages 8vo., beautifully printed on superfine paper. Price $2 in bevelled cloth, $3 in elegant half calf, or $4 in antique morocco, gilt edges, making a most elegant gift or prize book.

Extracts from Notices of the Press.

Mr. McMullen's work is a model of perspicuous writing and judicious condensation of material.—Glasgow, (Scotland) Daily Herald.

Mr. McMullen's work is evidently that of a truth-seeking and truth-loving historian. He is ardently patriotic, but his patriotism is that of a Canadian loyal to his sovereign and a lover of constitutional liberty.—Edinburgh, (Scotland) Evening Courant.

Another interesting and useful volume, the first complete work of the kind—the first that has dealt with the whole of the period during which the Dominion has been the home of European settlers.—London Saturday Review.

By far the best English Canadian History.—Montreal Gazette.

Such a work must be welcomed by all classes of Canadian readers at the present time.—Ottawa Daily Times.

The author has treated public events, especially those of the last twenty years, in a singularly impartial way.—Ottawa Daily Citizen.

No English History of this country can, in our opinion, compare with the work under notice. • • •

The Author possesses the happy art of presenting his facts, whatever may be the nature of the subject, in a style which cannot fail to captivate the reader.—Quebec Daily Gazette.

The composition is of a character to render the subject fascinating to the young as well as to the more advanced reader.—Montreal Daily Witness.

All orders addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention.

TORONTO FIRE ALARM TELEGRAPH.

DIRECTIONS TO KEYHOLDERS.

Upon positive information of a fire near your signal box, unlock the door and pull the hook all the way down, once only, and let it go; then wait a few minutes, and if you hear no ticking in the box, or alarm on the bells, go to the next nearest box to the fire, and pull the hook in that box.

Never open the box or touch the hook except in case of fire

Never give an alarm except from the box nearest the fire.

If you hear the bell in the box striking, it indicates that an alarm is being sounded from some other box. In such cases do not pull the hook until the alarm is entirely finished.

Be sure the box is locked before leaving it.

Never let the key go out of your possession, unless to some responsible person for the purpose of giving an alarm, or when called for by the Superintendent or Chief Engineer of the Fire Department.

Complaints concerning wires, &c., should in all cases be made at the Fire Alarm Office, Bay and Temperance sts.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

COURT OF ERROR AND APPEAL.

Constituted for the hearing of Appeals in Civil cases from the courts of Queen's Bench, Chancery and Common Pleas, and Appeals in Criminal cases from the Courts of Queen's Bench and Common Pleas. From the judgment of this court an appeal lies to Her Majesty in Privy Council in cases over £1,000, or where annual rent, fee, or future rights of any amount are affected. The court sits twice a year, in January and June, on such days as the court may appoint.

Judges—Hon William H Draper, CB, president, and the several judges of the Courts of Queen's Bench, Chancery and Common Pleas. Alexander Grant, clerk and reporter.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

The jurisdiction of this court extends to all manner of actions, causes and suits, criminal and civil, real, personal and mixed, within Ontario, and it may proceed in such, by such process and course as are provided by law, and as shall tend with justice and despatch to determine the same, and may hear and determine all issues of law, and also with the inquest of twelve good and lawful men (except in cases otherwise provided for) try all issues of fact and give judgment and award execution thereon, and also in matters which relate to the Queen's revenue, including the condemnation of contraband or smuggled goods, as may be done by Her Majesty's Superior courts of law in England.

Hon Wm B Richards, chief justice; hon Joseph Curran Morrison and hon Adam Wilson, puisné judges; R G Dalton, clerk of the crown and pleas; Christopher Robinson, QC, reporter; Wm G Heward, clerk in Chambers and Practice court; Alan Cameron, clerk of the process; John Small, senior clerk; Alexander Macdonell, junior or docketing clerk; Andrew Fleming, crier and usher; James Alexander, housekeeper.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

This court has the same powers and jurisdiction as a court of record, as the Court of Queen's Bench. Writs of summons and Capias issue alternately from either Court.

Hon John Hawkins Hagarty, chief DCL justice; hon John W Gwynne and hon Thos Galt, puisné judges; M B Jackson, clerk of the Crown and pleas; George F Harman, reporter; Alan Cameron, clerk of process; S B Clark, senior clerk and taxing officer; B T Jackson, junior or docketing clerk; Patrick Connell, crier and usher.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

This court has the like jurisdiction as the court of Chancery in England, in cases of frauds, accident, trusts, executors, administrators, co-partnerships, account, mortgages, awards, dower, infants, idiots

Accountant's office in Chancery—A N Buell, accountant.

PRACTICE COURT AND CHAMBERS.

One of the Common Law Judges holds a court during each term called the Practice Court, for hearing matters relating to the adding or justifying bail, discharging insolvent debtors, administering oaths, hearing and determining matters on motion, and making rules and orders in causes and business depending in either of said law courts. Chambers are held each day in Common Law and Chancery by one of the judges of the said courts for such business relating to suits therein as may be transacted by a single judge out of court. Routine business in Chancery chambers by a recent order, is also taken before T W Taylor, the judges' secretary.

Common Law Chambers—W B Heward, clerk.

HEIR AND DEVISEE COURT.

Commissioners—The judges of the Superior courts, and such other persons as may be appointed by commission under the Great Seal. Their duties are to determine claims to lands in Ontario, for which no patent has issued from the Crown in favor of the proper claimants, whether as heirs, devisees or assignees.

Sittings at Toronto, first Monday in January and July in each year, W B Heward, clerk of commissions.

COUNTY COURTS.

Presided over by a resident judge in each county assisted in some by a junior judge. Their jurisdiction extends to all personal actions where the debt or damages claimed do not exceed $200; and to all suits relating to debt, covenant or contract, where the amount is ascertained by the acts of the parties or signature of the defendant to $400; and to all bail bonds and recognizances of bail given in the County court to any amount: but not to cases involving the title to lands, validity of wills, or actions for libel, slander, crim. con., or seduction. County court terms six a year, except York which has three terms. An appeal lies to either of the Superior courts of law.

SURROGATE COURT.

The jurisdiction of these courts relates to all testamentary matters and causes, and to the granting or revoking of probate of wills, and letters of administration of the effects of deceased persons having estate or effects in Upper Canada, and all matters arising out of or connected with the grant or revocation of probate or administration, subject to an appeal in the Court of Chancery. The county judges are also judges of the Surrogate courts. Sir J L Robinson, bart., Surrogate clerk.

COURTS OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Chairman the county judge in each county, who with one or more justices of the peace, holds a court of General sessions in his county three times a year for trials by jury in cases of felony and misdemeanor, but treason and capital felonies are exempted from their jurisdiction. Terms same as county courts.

INSOLVENT DEBTORS COURT.

By the Insolvent Acts of 1869, 32 and 33 Vict. cap. xvi., and 34 Vict., cap. xxv., provision is made for the settlement of the estates of insolvent debtors, for the realization and distribution of their assets, and for the punishment of fraud. This enactment applies to traders only. In these courts the County court judge in each county presides. The appointments of official assignees are made in pursuance of this act, and are to be nominated by the Board of Trade at any place, or the council thereof within the county or district in which such Board of Trade exists, or in any county or district adjacent thereto in which there is no Board of Trade, or by the judge of the County court in any county.

COUNTY JUDGES CRIMINAL COURTS.

By a valuable addition to the administration of criminal law in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec under an act of the Dominion of 32 and 33 Vict., cap. 34, any person charged with an offence for which he might be tried at a court of General Sessions of the Peace, may, with consent, obtain a speedy trial out of sessions before the judge alone.

DIVISION COURTS.

For the summary disposal of cases by a judge; but a jury of five persons may be demanded in certain cases. Their jurisdiction extends to actions of debt or contract amounting to $100; injuries or torts to personal chattels amounting to $40; and personal actions to that amount, if not excepted from their jurisdiction, but not to actions for gambling, debt, liquors drunk in a tavern, or notes of hand given therefor, ejectment, title to land, &c., or any toll, custom or franchise, will or settlement, malicious prosecution, libel, slander, crim. con., seduction or breach of promise, or actions against a justice of the peace, for anything done by him in the execution of his office, if he objects to it. The jurisdiction of this court has lately been extended to enable parties to garnish debts up to $100 and to replevy goods up to $40. Each judicial district is divided into court divisions, and courts are held once in two months in each division, or of ener at the discretion of the judge. The divisions are established by the courts of Quarter sessions.

OFFICERS OF THE COURTS.

Clerks of Assize—The deputy clerks of the crown are ex-officio clerks of assize and marshals in their respective counties, except in county of York. The clerks of the crown act alternately.

Deputy Clerks of the Crown—The clerks of the County courts will be ex-officio deputy clerks of the Crown and Pleas of their several counties as the present incumbents vacate by death or otherwise except in the county of York.

Clerks of the Process—For sealing and issuing writs of summons and other writs in the Queen's Bench and Common Pleas (alternately), Alan Cameron; assistant clerk, C A Stewart. The deputy clerks of the crown in the several counties are supplied with writs from Toronto, and re-issue the same in their respective counties.

CROWN LAW OFFICERS.

Hon Sir John Alex Macdonald, KCB, QC, minister of justice and attorney general for the Dominion of Canada.

Hon Oliver Mowat, QC, attorney general for the Province of Ontario.

TERMS OF THE COURTS.

APPEAL TERMS commence on the second Thursday next after Hilary, Easter and Michaelmas terms.

LAW TERMS.—Hilary begins first Monday in February, and ends on Saturday of the ensuing week; Easter begins third Monday in May, and ends on Saturday of the second week thereafter; Michaelmas begins third Monday in November and ends on Saturday of the second week thereafter. By the Act 29 and 30 Vict, cap 40, Trinity term, hitherto commencing on the Monday after 21st August, is abolished; but the same statute gives power to the courts of Queen's Bench and Common Pleas, at their discretion, to hold sittings in banc in time of vacation (except long vacation), by virtue of a rule or order of the court, respectively to be made in or out of term, for the hearing of such special cases or rules for new trials as shall be named in a list to be attached to any such rule or order, and for giving of judgments in cases previously argued, and for disposing of such other business as the court in its discretion shall see fit. Notice of such rules to be given in form and manner prescribed by the Act, six clear days before the day appointed. Long vacation extends from 1st July to 21st August.

CHANCERY TERMS.—The Court sits regularly every Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, throughout the year, and on the remaining days of each week when necessary to dispose of the business, except during the regular vacations when the court only hears motions for or to dissolve injunctions. There are also two regular sittings (Spring and Autumn) for the examination of witnesses and hearing of causes in each year.

COUNTY COURT TERMS commence on the first Monday in January and July, and end on the following Saturday.

CIRCUITS OF THE COURTS.

LAW CIRCUITS.—Courts of Assize and Nisi Prius and of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery shall be held twice a year in each county or Union of counties, in the vacation between Hilary and Easter terms, and between that period of the vacation after the 21st of August and Michaelmas term, except in the county of the city of Toronto and the county of York, in each of which counties there shall be a third such court in every year in the vacation between Michaelmas and Hilary terms. There are six circuits, as follows, viz;—

Eastern—Brockville, Cornwall, Kingston, L'Orignal, Ottawa, Pembroke, Perth.

Midland—Belleville, Cobourg, Lindsay, Napanee, Peterborough, Picton, Whitby.

Niagara—Barrie, Hamilton, Milton, Owen Sound, St Catharines, Welland.

Oxford—Berlin, Brantford, Cayuga, Guelph, Simcoe, Stratford, Woodstock.

Western—Chatham, Goderich, London, Sandwich, Sarnia, St Thomas, Walkerton.

Home—Brampton, city of Toronto, county of York, at Toronto.

The courts in each circuit shall be presided over by one of the chief justices or judges of the Superior courts, or in their absence, by some one judge of a county court, or some one of Her Majesty's counsel learned in the law, requested by any one of the chief justices or judges of the Superior courts to act in that behalf.

CHANCERY CIRCUITS.—For the examination of witnesses and hearing causes are held in the Spring and fall of each year as follows:—

Toronto—Toronto.

Eastern—Belleville, Brockville, Cornwall, Kingston, Lindsay, Ottawa, Peterborough, Cobourg, Perth.

Western—Chatham, Goderich, London, Sandwich, Sarnia, Stratford, Woodstock, Walkerton.

Home—Barrie, Brantford, Simcoe, Guelph, Hamilton, Owen Sound, St Catharines, Whitby.

The courts in each circuit are presided over by the chancellor or one of the vice-chancellors, or by any one of Her Majesty's counsel learned in the law requested by the chancellor or one of the vice-chancellors to act in that behalf.

COUNTY COURT AND QUARTER SESSIONS SITTINGS.

For the trial of issues of fact, and the assessment of damages, on the second Tuesday in June, and December in each year, except the county of York which holds three terms in each year on the first Monday in January and April, and the last Monday in August; and in the city of Toronto on the Second Tuesday in March, July and December.

C. W. MITCHELL. WM. CARRIER.

THE

OTTAWA FREE PRESS PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

The Daily Free Press

Is Published Every Evening at the Office,

POST OFFICE BLOCK, ELGIN STREET.

TERMS—$6.00 per annum in advance. FIFTEEN Cents per week, supplied by Carriers.

This is the acknowledged leading Paper in the Ottawa Valley, indeed of Central Canada, having a bona fide Daily Circulation of over 3,000! It is therefore, as its Columns Show, the BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM!!

The Weekly Free Press

Is published EVERY THURSDAY MORNING, and mailed to the subscribers by the earliest mails. It contains 64 Columns of Reading Matter, and it is the largest paper in Canada, with but one exception, and comprises a large quantity of reading matter, embracing the News of the Day, interesting Tables, Poetry, Editorials on popular subjects, Articles on Agriculture, the Markets, &c., &c. TERMS—TWO DOLLARS per annum in advance.

Any person sending five subscribers, with the cash, will receive one copy FREE.

In the year each subscriber receives for TWO DOLLARS the reading matter contained in 3,328 Columns!

This paper, unaided by any of the extraneous exertions made use of by the Proprietors of more pretentious sheets, in the shape of fabulous prizes, has obtained a circulation in the Ottawa region alone EXCEEDING 2,000 COPIES! and its increase is steady.

BOOK AND JOB PRINTING!

In this branch of the art we excel.—Our Office is replete with all that is modern and novel in Presses and Type; and under the supervision of a thorough practical Foreman; there is no such word as FAIL in our efforts to please the public in printing from a Sheet Streamer, or Mammoth Poster of 16 Sheets, down to the most diminutive Card or Label.

ENLARGEMENT OF PREMISES.

THE undersigned has greatly enlarged and otherwise improved his premises, which he has adapted, in every respect, for carrying on an extensive Book and Job Printing and Blank Book Manufacturing business. The Compositors' Rooms are well stocked with a large variety of Plain and Fancy Types, embracing the newest designs. The Establishment is furnished with twelve Steam Printing Presses, nine Steam Smashing, Sawing, Cutting, Stamping and Hoisting Machines, six Hydraulic and Hand Presses, together with Ruling, Backing and Paging Machines, all in thorough working order, which enables him to turn out large quantities of work at very short notice. 200 persons are employed in this Establishment.

Country Orders for Printing and Blank Books carefully attended to, and work despatched by the safest and cheapest modes of conveyance.
