BOY'S CONVENTION HERE NEXT WEEK

Delegates Looked for from all Parts of the Four Counties

A Taxic Boys' Training Conference will be held at Hartland on Oct. 24-26. The members are the C.S.B.T. boys of ages 15 to 20. Groups of boys, two or three or more, are invited from every district in Carleton, York, Victoria and Madawaska counties. It makes no difference whether the boys or leaders have hitherto been interested in C.S.B.T. work. This is the opportunity to begin. Every Sunday school class of teen-age boys over 15 should come, and their teacher should in every case come with them. It is very necessary that all who intend coming should register with C. D. Dickson, Hartland, at least four days before opening of convention. A registration fee of $1 must accompany each individual application. ### No Chance for the Germs Disease germs cannot live in rich, red blood. It is people in low vitality that fall victims to germ diseases. By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you enrich the blood, increase vitality and prevent disease germs from finding lodgment in your body. There's wisdom in prevention. It's easier to keep well than to get well.

Wedding at Greenfield

On October 8 at 1:30 o'clock a pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Kilpatrick of Greenfield when their eldest daughter, Mary Eliza, became the bride of Herbert Linton Smiley of Riverview. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. The room was supported by Charles E. Kilpatrick, brother of the bride, while Miss Doris Tompkins of Bath acted as bridesmaid.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. H. Mannel. After the wedding feast Mr. and Mrs. Smiley left by train for a short honeymoon, going as far as Fredericton that evening. They will reside in Upper Woodstock where Mr. Smiley has purchased a farm.

FORD CAR IN ROLE OF MOOSE

Badly Riddled by Party of Hunters—Arrests Made in Connection With the Affair

The latest escapade of a Ford auto was on Friday night when the car was fired upon with the usual excuse—"thought it was a moose." Allan and Otto Grey and Jack Lipsett of Waterville, went hunting and left the car in a field while they slept in a nearby barn. It is alleged that Wm. Fisher, Wm. Lindsay and others of a hunting party, "probably returning home," in the darkness saw the car and immediately opened fire. After a bombardment of several minutes they cautiously approached the "animal" to find it was still on its feet though badly riddled. The owners were aroused from their slumbers by the firing party and on investigation learned what had happened. It was their intention to have slept in the car but the night being cold they went to the barn as stated. The Ford came out of the scrap "under its own steam" and proceeded to Woodstock where the car attracted much attention and would easily pass as a souvenir from battle-scarred France. Warrants were sworn out and the suspected parties arrested and remanded until Friday.—Sentinel.

To Subscribers

A year ago the subscription price of the The Observer was increased to $1.50 when sent to Canadian subscribers and $2 when sent to the United States. At the time of this increase, made necessary by the largely increased costs of doing business, the manager agreed to accept subscriptions if paid strictly in advance, at the rate of $1 per year for Canadian and $1.50 per year for United States subscribers. This offer still holds good. This month many hundreds of subscriptions expire. On Oct. 20 all these will be charged up at $1.50 and $2 unless remittances are forthcoming before that time. The thing for each new subscriber to do—and to do it NOW—is to remit a dollar on subscription account. Each Canadian subscriber so remitting will be credited a full year's United States subscription. Subscribers are asked to remit $1.50. Receipts will be sent for each remittance. Do it NOW!

Mrs. Frank Brooks

Mrs. Frank Brooks of Bristol died on Sept. 19, in the 33rd year of her age. She was taken sick just three months ago and was taken to Fisher Memorial Hospital where doctors and nurses did all they could for her restoration. When they failed to benefit she was taken back to her home in Bristol where she died. Mrs. Brooks was the daughter of the late Chas. Lockhart and leaves to mourn their loss, a husband, five small children, besides her mother, three brothers and one sister. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. P. J. Quigg, assisted by Revs. H. V. Bragdon, E. H. Giberson and Lie. Clifford Gray, and was held at the Primitive Baptist church, Bristol, where a very large congregation gathered to pay the last tribute of respect to the departed one. Several remarked that it was one of the largest funerals ever held in that community. Much sympathy is felt for the family in their sad bereavement.

COULDN'T WORK FOR 8 MONTHS

Spent Four Hundred Dollars Seeking Health—Tanlac Restores Him

"I consider my first bottle of Tanlac has been worth all of one hundred dollars to me," declared Dan McLean, of 355 Esplanade street, Sydney, Nova Scotia, while in Turnbull's Drug store for more of the medicine, recently. Mr. McLean has been following the carpenter's trade for the past forty years. He has lived in Sydney for twenty years and is well known.

"On the 15th of last September," he continued, "I was taken down with the 'flu' and was never able to get anything to put me on my feet until I found Tanlac. I was left so weak that I could not hit a lick of work for more than eight months and this meant a loss of from $120 to $180 a month to me, for that is what I was making before getting down. I also paid out $400 for treatment and medicine trying to get my health back, so you can see what that spell of 'flu' cost me. I could not walk from town to my room without stopping several times on the way to rest and after the trip I would puff like a steam engine.

"Seeing by the papers that Tanlac was helping so many others who were in a run down condition, and thinking it might help me to get on my feet, I bought a bottle. Well, it may sound exaggerated but it's the truth, after taking my fourth dose of Tanlac I could tell it was what I needed and was going to do the work, and I have been gaining ground ever since. Why, I never ate more than fifty cents worth of food a week before I got Tanlac, but now I want to eat all the time and no matter what kind of food is set before me, I enjoy it. I have just finished my first bottle of Tanlac and I am feeling well enough already to go back to work. Tanlac beats anything I have ever seen or heard about; it is no more like other medicines I have used than day is like night. Before taking it my nerves were so shattered that I could never get a good night's sleep, but now I sleep like a log. I also had the worst kind of headaches, but they have been broken up entirely. Tanlac is simply making a new man of me and I honestly believe it's the best medicine in the world, and anyone who gives it a trial will be convinced."

Tanlac is sold in Hartland by Estey & Curtis Co., in Bristol by Dr. G. W. Somerville, in Centre-

Neptune and Heligoland

WHETHER the joke may be on in the proposed destruction of Heligoland, the Gibraltar of the North, it is not on old Father Neptune. What the council of four would now like to do in wiping out forever this important stronghold of the Germans is in line with the destructive work which the ocean had been carrying on slowly and relentlessly for hundreds of years, when it was stopped by the hand of man in the form of a great wall built since Germany's acquisition of the island from Great Britain twenty-nine years ago.

In the time of Charlemagne Heligoland was more than five times its present size. There is still in existence a remarkable chart of the island, showing that within the memory of man it was watered by several small rivers and that it could boast of no less than four different and excellent harbors. A dozen churches, monasteries and convents flourished there when the chart was made, more than 1,000 years ago, in the time of Charlemagne. Intimate friends of that monarch, namely, Bishop Adam, of Bremen, and the learned Alcuin, referred, in documents still in existence, to the character of the island as indicated in the chart. They also emphasized its religious character, whence its name of Heligoland, or Holy Land, and it is a matter of tradition that in the days of the old vikings the Goddess Hertha had her temple on the island, to which people from all parts of Scandinavia and Frisia made pilgrimages; while St. Willibrod first preached Christianity there toward the close of the seventh century.

By the beginning of the fourteenth century the island had lost two-thirds of its area through the inroads of the stormy seas, which continued their ravages until in 1714 the size of the island had dwindled to 175 acres. Seventy years later the sea tore the island asunder, dividing it into the so-called Island and the Dune, and by the time Germany had taken possession, in 1890, the islands had still further shrunk to their present size of one-fifth of a square mile.

Father Neptune, peering out of the waves which dashed upon this bit of rock, then a bathing resort under the dominion of Great Britain, must have thought his work nearly done, for the Holy Land of medieval days was fast dwindling to nothingness. Then the Kaiser appeared and protected his newly acquired property from the invasion of the ocean at an enormous expense. He had all the fissures and caverns filled in with a particularly durable form of concrete. The cliffs, which rose to a height of about 200 feet, were faced with a tremendous strong granite and in part armor-plated wall, the masonry being yards in depth. The artificial barriers had power to withstand the power of the ocean, by which the natural walls of rock were being undermined. Moreover, by means of breakwaters the stretch of sea between the two islands was converted into a large and wonderfully protected harbor, later to serve as a base for the light cruisers and submarines of the German navy.

The cliffs were surmounted with disappearing forts of the most modern type. The island was now a fortress by Stevens Bros., in Woodstock by E. W. Mair, in Benton by W. E. Porter, in River de Chute by Daniel B. Baird, and in Florenceville by A. B. Lovely, and in Bath by Bath Drug Co.

PAINFUL NEURALGIA

Is Caused by Thin, Watery Blood and Cured by Enriching the Blood

Most people think of neuralgia as a pain in the head or in the face, but neuralgia may affect any nerve in the body. Different names are given to it when it affects certain nerves. This neuralgia of the sciatic nerve is called sciatica, but the character of the pain and the nature of the disease are the same. The cause being the same, the cure to be effective must be the same. The pain is neuralgia is caused by starved nerves. The blood which carries nourishment to the nerves has become thin and impure and no longer does so, and the pain you feel is the cry of the nerves for their natural food. You may ease the pains of neuralgia with hot applications, but you can only cure the trouble by enriching and purifying the blood. For this purpose we know of no medicine that can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood and thus act as the most efficient of nerve tonics. If you are suffering from this most dreaded of troubles, or any form of nerve trouble, give these pills a fair trial, and see how speedily you will be restored to good health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brookville, Ont.

ern description, armed with immense Krupp guns. Equipped with sheds and hangars for Zeppelins and airplanes, Heligoland formed an ideal harbor for boats of the air as well as of the sea. The whole rock was pierced in every direction, like Gibraltar, with galleries and tunnels to admit of the handling of the concealed guns, which literally bristled from every point of the island.

What had happened next to this fifth of a square mile, upon which Germany spent $50,000,000 in preparation for the great war? Although it has probably played a more important part during the events of the last five years than any other fifth of a square mile on the face of the earth, still to any country save Germany it would be a white elephant. For what is the use of such a rock, no matter how wonderfully it be fortified, if remote from all bases of supplies belonging to the same nation and within twenty-eight miles of an enemy country? Its fate might have been solved if the sea had been allowed to make its way into the island, which succeeded in blowing up the island during the war. Certain it is that had it remained in Great Britain's possession its value would have been negative rather than positive. Germany could not then have completely fortified it before the outbreak of the war, but, on the other hand, Great Britain would unquestionably have lost it soon after the outbreak of hostilities and it would have been of little actual use.

The fact that Britain of her own free will gave over Heligoland to Germany a quarter of a century ago is interesting as indicating the lack of fear then existing in Great Britain of the empire across the sea. It was Lord Salisbury, Premier and Foreign Minister, who made the transaction without the knowledge of Parliament. It was generally felt at the time that Great Britain was getting decidedly the best of the bargain in the North Sea for African territories, including the spice lands and fruitful soils of Zanzibar, Wituland and Uganda. Much weight was given to the opinion of Sir Henry M. Stanley, then the eminent authority on all questions relating to the dark continent. He had been consulted by Lord Salisbury about the transaction and publicly declared that Great Britain had secured an entire suit of clothes, in return for "a mere trouser button."

No Argument.
"Do you ever argue with your wife?"
"Never," replied Mr. Meekton.
"When Henrietta is saying something interrupting her merely gives her a new topic on which to base a long and impressive discourse."

The Ostrich.
"They say they need to wear leopard skins as part of the uniform in the British army."
"I should think such uniforms would be too easily spotted."

No Harmony.
"I cannot understand why my Armenian costume at the ball seemed to have no effect."
"I know. The Turkish rug on the floor killed it."

On the Way.
Mrs. Heckle—"Is your husband over-sea?"
Mrs. Sheld (glancing at a wabbly man across the room)—"No, I should say about half seas over."—Cartoon.

Thrown Down.
New Drummer—Hello, Coney! Is the buyer in?
Ribbon-Counter Mary—No, Coney, but the collar is downstairs.

A Test.
"Do you believe in metempsychosis, Bellinda?"
"An't never tried it, ma'am. Is it good for the rheumatism?"

RULING PASSION.
Floor Walker—Hurry out, Madam. The store's afire.
Mrs. Bergain—Oh, is it? Then I'll just wait for the fire sale.

A Fear.
If earth were peaceful and polite
And all serenely say
Some pugilist would start a fight
To pass the time away.

His Status.
"What do you think they did to my Willie at the hospital, ma'am? They cut out all his asteroids."
"Then I suppose he is now their star patient."

Explained.
The man you see going yonder is a man of low life and dark deeds.
"Is he a crook?"
"No; he cleans cellars and shovels coal for a living."

His Job.
"What position do you occupy in the matrimonial firm? Manager?"
"No; she's that. I was the cash boy, but since the baby came I am only the floorwalker."

The thought of being dependent some day, when illness or old age takes away one's ability to earn, is rightly distasteful to the Canadian mind.

Grading of Pure Bred Rams in New Brunswick

The services of professor Sackville of Ontario Agricultural College, have been secured to visit each pure bred breeder in the province and classify the rams offered for sale into three grades, superior—average and common. By purchasing your rams in the province, farmers can write any breeder of pure bred sheep and be sure of getting the class of ram he supplies for. New Brunswick is the first province to adopt this classification system. Breeders and Purchasers stand to gain by it. The number of rams for sale together with the price and grade will be listed with the local Live Stock Division.

Boys and Girls Sheep Clubs

In order to create a deeper interest among our farm boys and girls in the business of sheep raising, arrangements have been completed to organize Sheep Clubs in the province. Members must be between ages of ten to eighteen years. Ten members will constitute a Club. Two grade Shearling ewes will be the number allotted to each. Members can get credit from any bank for purchase price of sheep for one year at 6 per cent interest. The Department will arrange a fair at which prizes will be given. The Department will loan a pure bred ram to any Club with twenty ewes.

For information on any of the above policies, write Live Stock Division, Department of Agriculture, Fredericton, N. B. Hon. J. F. Tweeddale, Minister.

Everyone Who Bought Canada's Victory Bonds Made Money . . . . .

EVERY one of the million and a half subscribers to Canada's Victory Bonds knows that he can sell them today for more than he paid for them.

Every one who bought Canada's Victory Bonds has received  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. interest per annum—paid twice a year.

Over half a million Canadians who bought Canada's Victory Bonds on the installment plan saved money that they would not otherwise have saved.

The guarantee back of Canada's Victory Bonds is the same as the guarantee back of a One Dollar or a Two Dollar bill. There is this difference, however, that you get interest on the Victory Bonds and you don't on the One or Two Dollar bill.

Canada's Victory Bonds will always be accepted as security for a loan.

Banks are ready to loan money on Canada's Victory Bonds.

Canada's Victory Bonds may be turned into cash at any time.

There is no other way in which you can invest your money with such absolute security—paying such a good rate of interest.

Canada will soon give her citizens an opportunity to buy Victory Bonds 1919. It will probably be the last chance to buy Canada's Victory Bonds on such favorable terms.

Prepare to buy as many Victory Bonds this time as you now wish you had been able to buy the last time

McClary's Kootenay

SURELY it is every woman's right to have a range like the Kootenay!—a range that she can depend on—a range that is a real joy to work with—a range easy to keep clean—a range that "keeps the oven hot" with a small fire.

The cooking-top is burnished brighter than steel; it never needs blacked. The oven wall of nickel-plated steel is easily cleaned. The duplex grates clean down the fire with a single swing of the lever. See this famous range.

HOW TO AVOID BACKACHE AND NERVOUSNESS

Told by Mrs. Lynch From Own Experience.

Providence, R. I.—"I was all run down in health, was nervous, had headaches, my back ached all the time. I was tired and had no ambition for anything. I had taken a number of medicines which did me no good. One day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for women, so I tried it. My nervousness and backache and headaches disappeared. I gained in weight and feel fine, so I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is suffering as I was."—Mrs. ADELINE B. LYNCH, 100 Plain St., Providence, R. I.

Backache and nervousness are symptoms or nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment.

Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Lynch's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

HARTLAND, N. B., OCT. 16, 1919

THE ELECTION

The political pot is bilin today. It is said Liberals will meet at Andover this afternoon and decide as to whether they will or will not place a man in the field. Tonight at Woodstock the Conservatives, disguised as "Unionists," will meet in conclave for the definite purpose of placing a man in the contest. Hon. B. F. Smith is the most probable choice.

A week ago it was announced that Dr. W. D. Rankine had agreed to run as an "Independent" Conservative. Whatever arrangement may have been entered into fell through in a few hours after the announcement came out, and the Doctor will not be a candidate. He is one of the best known and most universally esteemed men in the constituency, and there is little doubt that if he desired to enter politics that the people would elect him. But Dr. Rankine has no liking for politics with himself as the central figure. His sphere of usefulness in his profession is immeasurably greater than small-bore politics, and he will, it is quite safe to assert, never be a candidate, either in this or any other election. It is quite inconceivable that politics as they are in Carleton-Victoria could have any real attraction for him.

The Observer submits the prophecy that T. W. Caldwell and Hon. B. F. Smith will be the only candidates nominated on Monday. Conservative newspapers claim that Mr. Caldwell is really the Liberal nominee disguised as a Farmers' candidate. This assertion is of course an absurdity. The actual similarity between the Farmers' and the Liberal platform makes the Liberal leaders feel that the Farmers have stolen their thunder, and the rank and file of the old guard know that to place a second low tariff candidate in the field would be a waste of effort.

All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Election Card

To the Electors of the Federal Constituency of Carleton-Victoria:

Having been nominated by a Convention of the UNITED FARMERS OF NEW BRUNSWICK, which was held in Woodstock on September 2nd, to contest the coming By-Election in the above Constituency to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the Dominion Minister of Public Works, and as the Election is to be held on October 27th and the time being so short, it will be impossible for me to personally call on all the Electors in the two Counties. I therefore, take this opportunity to state to you what the aims of the UNITED FARMERS are.

They are, in brief, as follows: THE UNITED FARMERS are strictly independent of both the old Political Parties, and their representatives will be perfectly free to support any measure that is for the best interests of the Farmers of Canada, and just as free to oppose any measure that they feel is not in the interests of the Farmers.

And, Canada, being an Agricultural Country, we believe that any legislation that is beneficial to Agriculture is indirectly beneficial to every citizen of Canada.

THE UNITED FARMERS also stand for PURITY in elections, as they believe that the lack of this is the starting point of all the Political Graft and Corruption which is so much in evidence in Canada to-day.

We would therefore appeal to every loyal citizen of Canada to support the FARMER'S PARTY, and to the Electors of Carleton-Victoria, to support me as the UNITED FARMERS' Candidate in the coming By-Elections.

His Death Expected New Brunswick Man Saved

Mr. Isidore Thomas, of Tilley's Head, Gloucester County, N.B., while expecting death, availed himself of help that was offered at random. Here is part of a letter he wrote to us:

"I beg you to publish my letter, so that people may know what Gln Pills did for me. My case was very serious. I was so sick everybody expected my death any day. Finally, on advice from friends, I tried Gln Pills, and in a short time was well again, and soon had gained 20 pounds."

Kidney and bladder troubles, very often, work in secret ways. A bad condition may exist, with only a backache to indicate it. That is why the slightest pains in back or sides should be investigated. These pains, along with sciatic neuralgia, rheumatism, dizziness, constipation, headache, lumbago, highly-colored urine, backache, floating specks before the eyes, gravel, indicate kidney trouble. A course of Gln Pills, taken at once, will give relief, and prevent the progress of the disease, enabling the organs to right themselves and restore good health. Gln Pills are the sure, safe, quick remedy. Get a box from your druggist or dealer—50c. Money refunded if no relief found. Send for free sample.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try It! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glimmers with beauty and is radiant with life, has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its life, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

Identified.

"He was a Swedish-looking chap, and had light hair."

BAD CUT HEALED

Mr. S. R. McClure, of Ballinacree, Ont., writing to the proprietors of Zam-Buk, says: "I cut my hand very badly between my thumb and first finger, with a saw. The place became very painful and swollen, and before I realized it blood-poisoning had set in. Having heard that Zam-Buk is the best thing for blood-poisoning, I got some at once, and it was really wonderful how the first few applications stopped the pain. Soon the poison was all drawn out and confined use of Zam-Buk entirely healed the cut."

Zam-Buk should be kept handy by everyone, and applied immediately an injury is sustained. It is not only can pain and soreness be almost immediately ended, and healing effected in the shortest time possible, but Zam-Buk being antiseptic prevents any danger of festering or blood-poisoning. Get a box to-day and be ready for emergencies. Owing to its herbal composition Zam-Buk will keep for an indefinite period and still retain its strength and purity. It is best for cuts, burns, scalds, eczema, salt rheum, boils, pimples, ulcers, abscesses, blood-poisoning and piles. 50c. all dealers.

As Man to Man

By STEVE M'HEENRY

(Copyright)

While the north-bound limited was allying the thirteenth of its panting engine at the sun-baked depot that morning, the Wells-Fargo guard said something to one of my deputies about Indians being on a rampage. He was trying to get details when the sound of an automatic conductor cut short his efforts and started the long train northward.

Later in the day, old Jim Carmichael, who runs several herds under his own brand in the foothills of the Ties Hermans, dropped into my office and regaled me with a harrowing tale of pillage and murder. It was conveyed to him, he said, over the long-distance telephone, by one of his line riders.

Jim declared that, judging from the man's choice of comparatively moderate words, he must have gone to the telephone booth before going to the Oriental, to be refreshed with that particular brand which his thrifty proprietor is wont to keep on tap for the cowmen of the region. Thus he placed some credence in the report.

He said that some half-dozen savages, drunk with temporary freedom, and led by a half-breed more cunning than his followers, were traveling in this direction, avoiding towns, but swooping down on isolated ranches, ready to murder their occupants and drive off their stock. Having heard nothing from neighboring sheriffs, I took little stock in the story.

"Probably one harmless red-skin, filled with firewater, strayed from the reservation, and is whooping things up until somebody corals him," I told my deputies.

At any rate, because a show of official interest was desirable, I promised the old man to let him know if anything happened, and I asked the boys to stay around the office that night.

Shortly before ten o'clock, I turned up a vastly promising poker hand, when the telephone bell rang.

"Hallo! Sheriff's office!" bawled a nervous voice at the other end. "There's been a shooting scrape here. One man's dead—both drunk. I reckon—want you to come out, you know. The other fellow got away, but he ain't got much of a start on you, if—"

I interrupted the man's incoherent account by roaring into the receiver: "Stop talking long enough to tell me who, and where you are!"

"This is Maloney's—just across the ditch. It was One-Eye Pete—"

"All right!" I yelled back. "I'll be out right away. Leave things as they are."

Hanging up the instrument, I told the boys about it, adding: "You fellows stick around. Should anything turn up, Montgomery here will take charge. So long!"

Indicating the undersheriff, I left the room.

Near the edge of town, I crossed the white stretch of road which leads straight to my ranch. I was tempted for a moment to turn off and run in on the wife and little one before attending to the business on hand. Five minutes more brought me to the saloon, which I entered through the rear door.

In the far corner, covered with a horse blanket, lay a form.

Removing the covering, I saw that the right hand still held a pistol. Its barrel was pointed in an indifferent way, toward the mirror behind the bar.

On looking closer, I discovered that the weapon was fully loaded and cocked.

So I gently let down the hammer, reflecting that it was but a small margin that fate had decided which one should die.

"The undertaker will take care of this," I said, stepping to the bar. "I've got other work to do. Who saw this shooting?"

Two or three men shifted uneasily, for it is not Western wisdom to tell tales of killings. So, looking at the proprietor, I casually remarked:

"Come on, Maloney, you might as well now as later. Who did this?"

"Him they call One-Eye Pete," he replied; "and he ought to hang for it!"

Come butting into the talk here when the other fellow began some kind of a yarn about a girl what pounds the piano in a dance hall down in Tucson."

"I'm not so sure about that neither," drawled a tall Texan.

"This tried to fill his hand on him, but he wasn't quick enough. I seen it an even break for being guilty, with Pete a shade the better of it. Didn't you all notice how the sheriff here had to let down the hammer of Tim's gun?"

It may teach some of you shorthorns to go kind of slow and easy like when women is the subject of your conversation."

At that I turned to the Southerner, and asked:

"Did you happen to notice which way this Pete went?"

"Sheriff," he replied, "this Pete, which ain't his name nohow, started for Bear Creek, where he's got friends. You'll know him if you come up with him, by his one eye and the limp in his walk, being one leg is two inches shorter than his mate. He's got almost three-quarters of an hour the start of you, but his cayuse is played out. I'm telling you this, because I voted for you; but I don't hope you'll catch your man, and I don't reckon none you will."

With that honest wish in my mind, I left the place and started for the fringe of trees which mark Bear Creek. As for the man I wanted, I had never seen him, but his reputation was familiar to me. Its burden was that, with all his black record, he had neither harmed a woman nor fought unfairly.

Straight ahead, I saw the dark line hugging the water. To the right, only the endless plain; to the left, the same thing. No, there was a light, away in the distance in a spot where no light had business to be.

It alternately grew brighter and dimmer, and, at times, it leaped high into the black air. Straining my eyes, I imagined that I could see the sinuous movement of fiery tongues. I concluded that some poor sinner's barn was going up in smoke. Then I struck spurs to my pony.

A minute later a fearful thought gripped me. My own home was due west, right where that fire—but, my God! it could not be!

I stared for an instant, as if fascinated. Then came action. The fugitive and his crime were forgotten; so was the fact that I wore a sheriff's shield. I settled myself in the saddle, the reins bit deep, and I was off like the wind across gulches and sudden arroyos, through bog-wallows, filled with the powdery dust of seasons over treacherous towns of prairie dogs, whose fatal burrows my pony missed as if by instinct, straight for that baleful glow which seemed to grow more distant with every leap.

At length I clearly saw the flames cutting hungrily over the roof of my barn. Then I saw the smoking ruins of the shed.

I could hear the roar of the fire. I began to strain my ears for some human sound—even cries of distress. I yelled to let them know I was coming, before I realized that I was too far away to be heard over the din.

The next instant a sound reached me. Worse than the hiss of the flames or the groans of tortured timbers, this hideous scream almost froze my blood.

It was the yell of Indians, born of the blood lust. Baston's glib warning flashed through my mind.

While still within the fire's cone of blackness, and just outside of the flames' glow, I jumped from my horse and ran toward the house. In the space between the smoldering building and the blazing barn, I saw several savages, their paint-bedecked faces distorted with the hideous signs of the beast in human guise. Beyond them, undamaged because of its thick adobe walls, stood the squat smoke house.

To have crossed this open space would have meant death. Knowing this, I made for the shadow near the side door.

Just as I reached the door, I stopped, for there came to me, faint and muffled, the unmistakable cry of a child. It came from the direction of the smokehouse. Then dawned on me the reason for the apparent lack of Indian war wisdom. It showed the cunning of their leader. He knew that no mother will flee while her child is in danger.

I made up my mind to enter the house, secure my rifle, and pick off these valiant savages one at a time; but I was destined to take no hand in this fight.

The door of the smokehouse suddenly flew open. From the inner darkness stepped a man. He was hatless. His face and neck were black with grime. Each hand held a pistol.

Hardly had he cleared the door, when he jumped to one side, then bringing the house out of range. As he leaped, I saw, clinging to his shoulders, with her arms held tightly around his neck, my little girl. He looked toward the house, and realizing what might happen, shouted above the din:

"Stay where you are! I'll bring her to you!"

At the first word the savages wheeled and made as if to charge him, but those level muzzles blazed forth such a steady stream of hot lead that they scattered.

It seemed as if the man's weapons were linked to the scattering Indians by a vivid line of flame. As he shot, he came closer to the house.

Spellbound I watched every move he made. In my admiration of his splendid courage I forgot for the moment, all else. Leaving dead and wounded Indians in his wake, the stranger reached the house, from which my wife with outstretched arms ran to meet him. With infinite gentleness he lifted the child from his back and handed her to her mother, while the Indians who could ride were making tracks for the hills.

Five minutes later, my wife told me, between sobs, how the little girl had run to the smokehouse for meat for breakfast, and how, almost at the same time, she had seen this stranger ride up out of the darkness. Then, as if by magic, the Indians appeared.

I prepared to thank the man, who walked slowly toward us leading a horse. He took my hand. Looking him in the face, I said: "You are the sheriff of this county, are you not?"

"I can pay you for this night's work, I will."

"You have," he answered quietly, as he mounted his horse and rode away. As I saw him head straight for the nearest county line, I muttered: "Thank God!"

"Why, Jack?" asked my wife.

"Because, dear," I replied, "when he came up to us just now, I saw that he limped; and when I shook his hand, I noticed that he had but one eye."

"Then I told her what had kept me away from home."

Just said.
What is this stuff that trickles through your fingers as you lie on the beach and idly pay the material thereof?

You call it sand and let it go at that. But of what is it composed? It is made up of innumerable multitudes of tiny bits of quartz which, originally contributing to the composition of rocks far inland, have been brought down to the sea by rivers and deposited along the shore.

The particles are heavy, therefore they soon fall to the bottom and were not carried far out into the ocean like the finely divided silt fetched from inland by the same agency. They are extremely hard, therefore they have withstood the constant grinding to which they have been subjected.

This quartz sand makes admirable material for building purposes. Glass can be made out of it, though it contains too many impurities to be first-rate for such use.

Pick up a handful and examine it in the light of the above remarks. More interesting yet when you learn that 58 per cent of it is oxygenated. More than half of the sea beach on which you lie is oxygen! The remaining 47 per cent is silicon.

Silicon is a metal—some scientists call it a "metalloid" or "metallike substance"—and is quite black. When cut it shows brightness, as lead does.

Nobody ever saw silicon up to a few years ago. Only by means of the electric furnace can it be separated from the oxygen with which in sand it is found combined.

Its chief use is to make "ferrosilicon" (in combination with iron) for the production of high-grade steel.

Well, hardly ever.
Edith—So that's Mr. Black. That's your ideal!

Heleen—Dear me, no! Merely my fiancé. One doesn't meet one's ideal in real life, you know.

Reason enough.
Gotrox—What! Marry my daughter! Why, you must be destitute of reason!

Jack Moore—I admit I am destitute, but that very fact is my reason.

Mind on something else.

"Mother"

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union.

"Hush! out there—we've no room for tramps!" shouted James Tull, proprietor of the leading haberdashery store of Milton.

"I am looking for work," spoke the peevish-looking individual who had crossed the threshold.

"Hurry up, Barlow," came the order to a clerk, who made a dive for the intruder and gave him a rough push. His recipient resembled a convalescent just out of the hospital, and he went heading across the sidewalk. His hat fell off. The clerk gave it a kick. His foot went through the worn-out headpiece, which fell in the gutter. A stray dog seized it, scampered away with it, and Ben Dalton arose to his feet weakly but with glowing eyes of indignation.

A crowd had gathered, laughing, at his discomfort. Ben rubbed his bare head disconsolately, and observed to a policeman who had approached him:

"I sort of want to remember that mean old yonder. Somehow I feel as if the chance to get even with him is going to come along some fine day."

"Well, you move along," commanded the officer and Ben, hatless, turned down an alley to get free from his deriders of the public street. Homeless, he did not know of a relative in the world. The storekeeper had called him a tramp, but this was a misnomer. Ben had never associated with the genus hobo. Until two years previous he had worked as a farm. Its owner sold out and Ben took to the road. He worked just enough to keep him in pocket money. Then he got sick, was two months in a hospital and was now just regaining his strength.

Ben scanned ash piles and rubbish heaps vainly for a substitute hat. Finally, passing the rear yard of a little cottage with quite some ground about it, his eyes brightened.

An old lady, frail and bent, had built a fire to get rid of a lot of house rubbish. She had just emptied beside her a clothes basket filled with rags, old paper and the like. As she tipped its contents over the smoking cinders Ben noticed among them a derby hat. He started the lady by a sudden spring forward.

"Excuse me, ma'am," he spoke, rescuing the hat from the blaze, "but if you don't mind, I'll take this."

"Why, surely, answered Mrs. Warden, "if you can use it. My husband used to wear it, but now he is dead," and she wiped the tears from her faded eyes with the corner of her apron.

"I lost my hat," explained Ben, "and I'm truly grateful for this one."

Mrs. Warden became garrulous. "I'm cleaning out all the old rubbish," she said, "because I've got to move. We owned the house, but there was an eight hundred dollar mortgage on it. It's due and I've got to give up my home. The day my husband died he gave fifteen hundred dollars we had saved up from the bank. He talked about a great investment he was going to make and went downtown. It was a boiling hot day, June 10th—how well I recall it, just a year ago. He must have got overcome by the heat, for just as he got home he collapsed, and died before morning. From that time to this we haven't been able to find a single trace of the money."

"Maybe he lost it, or was robbed, or maybe he invested it," suggested Ben. "It's too bad, anyway. Now, ma'am, let me cart out and burn the stuff as pay for the hat. Wish you were going to stay here; wish I could camp right down and help you, for I've got no home and you remind me of my dear old mother."

Ben worked about the place for two hours and his kind-hearted hostess gave him a famous meal and a quarter of a dollar for his help. She became interested in his story and told him he could come back and sleep in the kitchen and have his meals until he found work.

The day was warm and as Ben went on his way he removed his hat and wiped his perspiring brow. The headpiece was too small for him, a trifle, and he turned out the inner band to remove it for the sake of room. As he did so a slip of paper fell out. Ben picked it up, glanced at its written contents and uttered a startled and then a gleesome cry.

"I don't want revenge on that storekeeper who smashed my hat, but I do justice for the dear old soul back in yonder cottage!" he uttered.

"What does it all mean?" asked Mrs. Warden in amazement as Ben an hour later informed her that he had traced "CASABRETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP the missing fifteen hundred dollars.

"You and I are too merciful to want to down even a bad, scheming man," replied Ben, "so let us say nothing in public. The investment your husband made was a partnership with James Tull. He gave him fifteen hundred dollars. The receipt for it I found in that old hat, where your husband had placed it. Tull will hand you over the money soon as the bank opens in the morning."

"You kind, noble, helpful man!" cried Mrs. Warden, overwhelmed with joy. "What can I do to reward you?"

"Just let me stay around here and make your life easy and happy," responded Ben—"just let me call you Mother!"

Spasmodic Sermon.

HENRY T. SCHOLEY IS DEAD!

The many friends of Henry T. Scholey heard with regret the news of his decease at an early hour on Sunday. Death was due to a cardiac affection to which he had been subject for several years, though his last illness lasted but a brief week. The late Mr. Scholey was a native of England, having been born at Eastoft in the county of Yorkshire, on June 6, 1833. Coming to America as a young man, he first settled in New York. With the spirit of an adventurer, however, he landed in Woodstock in the early sixties where he spent three or four years. Coming to Centreville in 1866 he has spent all the intervening years in this place, and been a close and interested observer as it grew from a tiny hamlet to the thriving and prosperous community we are now all glad to own.

For many years Mr. Scholey was customs official at this port, but of late years he has devoted the greater part of his attention to magisterial work. His life-long hobby was the cultivation and improvement of fruit trees, and two large orchards remain as monuments to his energy along these lines.

A member of Woodstock Lodge No. 11, E. and A. M., for 36 years he was probably one of the very oldest Masons in the province in regard to years of membership.

Besides his wife, who survives him, he leaves to mourn, four sons and five daughters. The sons are Charles of Washington, Herriek of Dawson City, Foster of Calgary and Donald of Mars Hill. The daughters are Mrs. Juthie of Boston, Mrs. Hamm and Mrs. Sharbet of Washington, Mrs. John Barter of New Westminster and Mrs. John MacKenzie, who was at home with her father during his last illness.

The funeral was held from his late home on Tuesday afternoon under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL ITEMS

The early fall rains come most untimely for a number of our farmers and have caused a great deal of disaster to the potatoes remaining unharvested. The grain crops were all gathered nicely between showers, but a good many were caught napping with the potatoes. All varieties are reported as an abundant crop, but reports vary greatly as to condition and quality. The early crops were generally all marketable with no signs of rot, but in many instances the later kinds are more than making up. If the rot shows itself or progresses after the potatoes are housed they are liable to prove a very expensive luxury before spring.
