COPP BROS.' FAILURE

Hamilton Times: Yesterday (Friday) afternoon, Mr. Joseph McAdam, of St. Thomas, went into the office of Copp Bros., stove founders, as liquidator, under an order obtained at Osgoode Hall at the instance of the Merchants' Bank, and it is feared that there is little hope of saving the business-one experience in fruit-growing, thinks oth-

The financial position of the company was vastly improved during the year, in fact, much better than it had been for ten. years. Stock was taken on Jan. 31, 1901 which showed net assets over $160,000, and liabilities to the bank and other creditors under $56,000, and hence it will be seen the assets amount to almost three times as much as the llabilities. The business earned for the year 11 per cent on the capital stock, which left net assets of about $104,000 over and above all lia-

When Londoners May Fish Without Fear of Violating the Law.

Now that the fishing season is here, it would be well for anglers to familiarize themselves with the laws of On tario. Bass shall not be caught, sold or had in the possession of anyone from April 15 to June 15; maskinonge from April 15 to June 15; pickerel (dore), from April 15 to May 15; speckled trout, from Sept. 15 to May 1; salmon trout from Nov.10 to 30; whitefish, from Nov. Some fishery regulations which anglers should observe are: Fishing by means of any kind of net seine, snare, rack, trap, weir, night line, set line, spear, grapnel, negog or apparaturs whatever, or by any other means or apparatus, without a fishing lease, license or permit from the commissioner of fisheries having been first obtained, is prohibited; but ho-thing in this section shall prevent angling without a license for any fish except sturgeon. No sturgeon shall be caught, taken or killed by any means whatever without a license first had and obtained.

No person shal ltake, catch or kill in any of the water of this province in one day by angling, or shall carry away a greater number than twelve black or Oswego or large-mouthed bass, twenty green bass, twenty pickerel or four maskinonge.

No person shall take, catch or kill in one day by angling a greater number of speckled or brook trout that in the aggregate shall weigh more than fifteen pounds, and no greater number than 50 speckled or brook trout, though said number weighs less than fifteen pounds. No bass less than ten inches in length, no speckled trout less than six inches in length, no pickerel less than twelve inches in length, and no mas-kinonge less than fifteen inches in length shall be retained or kept out of the water, sold, offered, or exposed for sale, or had in possession; but every person who takes or catches any of the fish mentioned of less than the minimum measurement named shall immediately return such undersized fish to

For the Men That They Bicycles Marry ?

'Dorothy Dix' Discusses the Question in the Pittsburg Dispatch.

The case of the New York man with a wooden leg, who is advertising for a wife afflicted with a cork foot, so that neither party will be able to kick about the other's misfortune, is deserving of more than a passing notice. Indeed, it is hardly too much to say that it is a matter of the greatest importance, since it is the first intimation man has ever given of recognizing woman's rights to look for reciprocity in the marrying business. reciprocity in the marrying business. Heretofore suitors have gone upon the cheerful assumption that the best woman was none too good for them, no matter what sort of physical, moral or mental wrecks they might be. The mere idea that a woman is entitled to as much as a limp, or a past, as the man she marries, is startlingly new, while the suggestion that she has a right to match looks, or records or manners with him and in a never wastes a single moment contemplating his own imperfections, or how little he has to offer the girl. Instead, he devotes himself to thinking how much she ought to give him, and goes to work compiling a list of all the graces and virtues he demands in a wife, and the less of a man he is, invariably the more does he expect of the woman. Did you ever listen to one of these little sap-headed manikins talk on the subject? "Um'm'm," he says, "the woman I marry must be pretty, for I could never the says at a purely woman at heads at a purely woman. stand to look at an ugly woman at break-fast the balance of my days. She must be sweet-tempered, yet have plenty of spirit. She must be good, of course, for I would never dream of marrying a woman who had been gossiped about. She must be bright and intelligent, but heaven preserve me from a wife who thinks she knows it all, and contradicts her husband. She must adore me, but not be silly and She must adore me, but not be shiy and jealous when I pay attention to another woman. She must be a good house-keeper, and thrifty and economical, and know how to make a proper show, and have some money of her own," and he never once asks himself what a paragon who was rich, and clever, and beautiful would want with him.

WOMEN MORE HUMBLE THAN MEN.

Of course, not every man marries a woman who is a combination Venus and Minerva, but when he doesn't it is because he does not care for female pulchritude and wit, not because he didn't consider himself worthy of them.

Women are much more humble in affairs of the heart than men. Not only do they demand much less, to begin with, but they are always afraid of losing the little they have. Every married woman is haunted by a dread that the time may come when she will be less attractive to her husband, and that he will cease to love her. It is this, far more than vanity, that makes the middle-aged woman's life one frantic struggle against wrinkles and her waist measure.

It never occurs to a man that he is that she has a right to match looks, or records, or manners with him, and in a fair trade get as good as she gives, is nothing short of revolutionary.

It has never been deemed expedient for women to be too particular in the choice of a husband, and when occasionally one has shown a disposition to investigate into what sort of a bargain she was getting, it has been sternly discouraged as being as indiscreet and ungracious as looking a gift-horse in the mouth.

LESS MANLY, LESS EXACTING.

It is nothing but sober truth that when a man thinks about getting married he never wastes a single moment content. think of it, there is no more reason why a man should expect his wife to keep per-petually young and good-looking than that she should expect him to.

WOMEN SHOULD DEMAND EQUAL RIGHTS. In the matter of good conduct surely women have a right to ask for reciprocity too. Probably there are just as many women with a love of liquor and a taste for dissipation as there are men. It is because women as a sex know that it they were to come rolling home in the small hours of the morning, drunk and disgusting, they would be met by a summons to the police court, and not by a weeping but forgiving husband, that keeps them straight. There are no fathers slaying fatted calves to celebrate the return of prodigal daughters. Men have made women good by demanding goodness and purity of them. It is up to women now to repay the debt in kind.

Let's have more reciprocity. When a man is as good as he expects his wife to be, the millennium will be in hailing distance. for dissipation as there are men.

WILD GEESE A PEST

An Oregon Law Makes it Unlawful to Kill her husband pay for them if we can. Them and They Do Much Harm.

Portland, Ore., April 20.-Wild geese, nonkers, and yellow legs are arriving on Sauvie's Island by the thousands on their way north, and some of the farmers there are using bad language ecause the law passed by the late legislature forbids them to shoot these geese. They allege that the geese are destroying their crops and devastating their pastures, and demand protection. One irate rancher was assured that he could not be harmed for protecting his property, and told to take a club and sail in and kill as many of them as he could. He had no idea of undertaking any such "wild goose chase" as that, but made threats of trying powder and shot on the web-footed birds. Probably he might be allowed to kill geese to protect his crops, and might be allowed to give away those killed, but if he undertakes to sell them the game wardens will be after him. A thousand or two wild geese, hungry from a long flight, can soon play havoc with a grain field or a pas-In California the farmers shoot the wild geese which come on their farms, by the wagon load. It is the opinion of most sportsmen that the legislature overdid the matter of protecting game when they made it unlawful to shoot wild geese at this sea-

CRAZY CAT IN A CAFE

Does Flip-Flaps, Bites the Cook and Scares Women-Eagged and Shot.

New York, April 20 .- A cat caused a big rumpus in Joseph Hennesy's restaurant on Third avenue last night, and took away the appetite of many of his patrons. The cat was discovered in an alleyway next to the restaurant. When scared by a policeman's club it did flip-flaps on the street for a few seconds, and then made a bee line for the restaurant, the door of which stood invitingly open. Inside the place were about twenty women and a few men. When the cat, tail in the air, bounced in with a crowd behind her yelling that the animal was mad, most of the women sought safety among the dishes on the tables and shrieked. The cat didn't have it in for them, though. She spied a radiator on which a waiter had left his dishes in his haste to get away from the cat, and with an unerring spring landed on top of the pile. Cat dishes and remnants of several repasts mingled on the floor, most of the dishes in fragments.

After this performance the cat made a few more circles under the tables and chairs that had been deserted by their occupants, and then ran against the fat calf of John Barrett, the restaurant's chef, who had come in to see what the trouble was. The cat promptly bit Barrett's leg and then described more circles. The chef, in his fright, did the same in the other direction. Just then a bright-witted person brought in a potato bag. Policeman ally corraled and put in. The bag was damage was in broken dishes and lost

Girl Put a Pea in Her Lover's Ear and Will Die an Old Maid.

New York, April 20.-Valiski Pulaski is a Polish girl who expected to be led to the hymeneal altar shortly by Orsloff Columpia, but now the match is off owing to the young woman's penchant for practical joking. When lumpia called on his sweetheart the other evening, and, as was his custom, embraced her, she giggled, and, pretending to whisper a secret to him, stuck a pea in his ear. Columpia, whose sailor career had given to him the nickname of "the gem of the ocean," spent the evening with his sweetheart, and went home with his head buzzing. He was unable to sleep, and the next morning showed symptoms of temporary insanity.

It took a council of surgeons to extract the pea. Columpia's physical condition was improved by night, but

TOBACCO CULTURE IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX.

Farmers There Can Grow Enough to Supply

Windsor, April 22.-Many of the farmers of Essex county, particularly those residing in the southern portion of the county, will go extensively into raising tobacon this year. Already thousands of acres have been prepared for the plants, and if the season is a this year. good one, there will be sufficient tobacco grown in the county to supply the wants of every person in the counlearned a good many lessons and they are now in a position to reap the benefit of the experiments already made. In some cases in former years the land was not properly prepared for the plants, with the result that the grower lost money on the venture. Then, again, others had no proper place to store the tobacco and lost thousands of pounds by not having it properly cured. Capitalists from outside places and nfluential men of South Essex have taken the matter up, with the result that they have carefully matured plans whereby it is expected that most of the tobacco used in Canada will be manufactured from the leaf grown in Essex. A syndicate from Pontiac, Mich., has commenced the erection of six-story warehouse at Leamington, where the tobacco can be properly cured and prepared for the manufacturers. Besides this large warehouse, there are several tobacco factories in Kingsville and Leamington where large quantities of the tobacco may be

Woodstock Express: There is a rather good joke on the West Zorra delegation, who addressed the license commissioners in support of the petition against the granting of a license to the Youngsville hotel. One of the arguments against the presence of a hotel at that point was its close proximity to the school. This proximity, it was argued, tended towards a bad effect on the morals of the young. Some inquiries by the commissioners revealed the fact that the school was without a well, and the children went to the tavern pump to quench their thirst. The commissioners say that there is one school in West Zorra that needs a well.

Mr. Madore's Bill Provides for Compulsory Refunding of Excessive Interest.

The banking and commerce committee at Ottawa last week discussed Mr. Madore's bill which proposes to protect borrowers from being compelled to pay excessive rates of interest, and provide that if excessive interest has been collected, the lender may be forced to refund, on proceedings being taken, the amount in excess of what the court may deem reasonable interest. The bill does not apply to pawn-

Mr. W. J. Tremear, barrister, Toronto, appeared in opposition to the bill on behalf of the Toronto money lenders. There was not the least need for the bill in Ontario, only moderate and small rates being charged. Five per cent was the average, and on chattle mortgages 2½ per cent a month. The charges on a $200 loan were $8 to $9 expenses and 2½ per cent. On a $30 loan the charges would be $4 85 and 5 per cent a month. If the sale of furniture on weekly installments were stopped, a large portion of the borrowers would disappear. If this bill passes a new species of money sharks would arise n the shape of indorsers and furniture warehouses. Mr. Heyd opposed the bill as being paternal legislation.

VICTIMS WERE YOUNG MEN. Mr. Tarte said it was not the people who bought furniture that were the victims of the money lenders. The principal victims were young men, students, often, who came from the country, were inexperienced, and fell easy victims. He quoted the instance of a young man, a barrister of great promise, and who was an exile in New York because he fell into the hands of these money lenders. He knew young men, workmen in Montreal today, who had been ruined by these money lenders, and had known of instances where an original loan of $25 was increased to $200 in a short time, and ruined the borrower.

Mr. Day, money lender, of Toronto, said there were no sharks in Toronto. They were not found so far from the salt water. He had been 21 years in the business, and assured them that lending in dives and brokers' offices. The basis of his money lending was 21/2 per cent a month, but this was not 30 per cent per annum. He protested against the amended bill, but said he would be content with it. Mr. Clancy opposed the bill, as did

Mr. Brock. Mr. Edwards objected to legislation which enabled men to break contracts. Mr. Russell contended that all legislation regarding money lending recognized the principle throughout that borrowers needed protection. He saw nothing against the bill which could be moulded to fit the necessities of the

Wonders of the Nerves

Unmistakable Proof That Many Serious Ills Begin With Derangement of the Nervous System-The Astonishing Success of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is only in recent years that physicians have come to understand the nervous system, and to recognize that many diseases which affect the head. heart, lungs, stomach and other organs are due to an impoverished and exhausted condition of the nerves. Overwork, worry, care, anxiety and severe mental strain are sure to be followed by headache, neuralgia, dizziness, sleeplessness, heart trouble, indigestion and serious functional disor-ders. Gradually the symptoms grow worse; pains and aches increase and one organ after another gives evidence of derangement, until finally there comes collapse of the nerves and prostration or paralysis.

The family physician seldom gets at the cause of these ailments. He gives a powder for headache, some form of oplum to cause sleep, or a stimulant to whip up the debilitated system. Such treatment is only of temporary benefit and the trouble soon returns in an aggravated form. The tired brain, the worn-out nerves, the wasted strength, must be nourished and built up before nature can have power to drive out disease. No prescription was ever filled that can do this so thoroughly as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is only a few years since Dr. Chase's Nerve Food first became known in Canada, and now it is universally ac knowledged by doctors, as well as others, to be of unsurpassed value as thorough restorative for weakened and run-down systems and nerve-shattered podies. It is possible that you have a wrong treatment. If you would be healthy and strong use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food regularly and persistently, and it will make you so; 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates

A Mayor's Threat.

Ottawa has a mayor who gets a good will refuse to sign all checks for civic expenditure until such time as nity, but that many causes have been the taxes for the year are collected. The custom in Ottawa, as it was wont to be in this city, has been to meet all leadership as one of the chief causes.

account. Britain and Russia May Become Friendly.

Under this title Sir Rowland Blennerhassett. Bart., in the March number of the National Review, discusses the foreign relations of the empire. He regards the removal of the Queen at this time as a great loss, and the problems in the foreign field, at the opening of the new reign, as of firstclass importance. We ought to have friendship with Germany, but at the present time must take account of the strong anti-English feeling. As to France, he thinks the people are coming to see that the "Fashoda incident" was largely due to the folly and weakness of their own statesmen. But it is of supreme importance that Britain should have clear and distinct relations with Russia. As England is the center of a federation of English-speaking people, so Russia has the leadership of the Slav race, hence the two countries should come to an understanding as to their international affairs. If Russia has been slack in some of her obligations. Britain has not been able to keep all her engagements. There are two great causes of Russian expansion, her want of access to the sea and her proximity, In many regions, to rude, lawless tribes. By the latter cause Britain has herself often been forced to enlarge her territory when she had no desire to do so. For Russia to attack India is next to impossible, and we ought to make it actually so by securing outposts in Afghanistan. But there is no need to oppose Russia elsewhere. It is not specially England's interest to keep Russia out of Constantinople; and we ought to be able to come to an agreement with regard

It is notorious that in the highest quarters in Russia feelings of the greatest friendship for Great Britain are entertained. It seems, then, that the time is rapidly coming, if indeed, It has not already arrived, when the two countries should approach each other with a view of entering into a carefully thought out arrangement, based on common interests of such magnitude that each country would have the strongest motive possible for rigidly adhering to its promises. This is a bare summary of a carefully written article from one who is a student of foreign politics; it may not be the whole case, but it is worthy of consideration.

Salisbury, Balfour, Chamberlain.

Sir Wemyss Reid, discussing the Briish political situation of the past month, inquires whether the House of commons is really declining in popularity and influence. Referring to the ther of free parliaments" was placed at the mercy of a posse of constables, he says, "That both the members themselves and the country at large should have accepted the incident almost as a Accident to a British Ship-$150,matter of course, shows how great is for the moment the decline in popularity and influence of a representative chamber, which was once regarded by the whole civilized world with unfeigned reverence. Nor is it to the action of the Irish members only that this de-

He thinks that the House is quite willing to give the necessary force to uphold order and maintain its own digco-operating to this decline of influence, and that many on both sides of the House openly speak of errors of ecessary present expenditure, after "Mr.Balfour has many admirable qualhe taxes of last year have been ex- ities, and no one will dispute ended, by borrowing from the bank, his claim to be considered one paying back the money, with interest, of the foremost personalities in our owards the close of the year, when the public life. outline of what was wanted, and wrote an article that was a scorcher. "That's splendid," exclaimed the friend, delightedly, when the article was read to him. "That's right; that'il make his old hair crinkle!" "All right," said the editor, "let me see-what are your initials?" "Good heavens," said the citizen, "you are not going to sign my name to that!"
"Why not?" asked the editor. "I wouldn't have anyone know I had anything to do with that for the world. I cannot afford to get into a scrap with my neighbors." The editor smil-ed benevolently and said, "Why should mix up in a scrap that does not concern me? Why should you expect ne to assume the blame for the pubcation of an article to which you are afraid to sign your name?" The man stopped his paper and went away

Port Huron Woman Wept Herself to Death Over Her Husband's Grave.

Port Huron, Mich., April 21.-Weary of Fort Huron, Mich., April 21.—Weary of life, and disconsolate over her husband's death, Mrs. Charles Moak, who was found unconscious on her husband's grave on Friday morning, died during the after-German commercial treaty, and Italy's inability to assist Germany in her late inaugurated world policy, which the emperor earnestly pushed. The Post says the efforts to disrupt the harmony of the Driebund powers are futile. The Vossische Zeitung points out the number of faults committed in the German foreign policy lately, leading almost to isolation, and mentions in this connection Great Britain's coquetting with Russia, Italy's coquetting

The constant strain weakened the sorrowing woman both mentally and physically. She has been boarding with Mrs. McKay, on Tenth street, and although it was known that she was grief-stricken, no watch was kept over her. On Thursday afternoon she called on one of her boys, and talked with him some time and bade him good-bye. That was the last time she was seen in a conscious condition.

time she was seen in a conscious condition.

It is presumed that she went directly to the cemetery and cried herself to sleep on her husband's grave. The chilling weather soon benumbed her, and she lapsed into unconsciousness. All the night the woman remained on the grave of her husband, with her hands clasped over his tombstone and her tears mingling with the night-dew.

In the early morning Sexton Penny went out to dig a grave, and saw the form of a woman reclining against the monument. Nothing was thought of it at first, but when, an hour later, the woman still remained in the same position, an investigation was made.

At first it was thought she was dead, and a coroner was summoned. He saw and a coroner was summoned. He saw London, April 21.—The Duke of Mariborough, after traveling for a

VALUABLE DUTCH BIBLE

Found by a British Soldier in a Kaffir Hut in South Africa.

Windsor, April 22.—Dr. S. A. King, manager of the United Gas and Oil Company, has received a number of interesting Boer relics from his son, Capt. Arthur King, who has command Capt. Arthur King, who has command have warm, dry, comfortable feet, of a troop of imperial mounted infantry in South Africa. One of the articles 25 cents at druggists, or sent by mail, which the doctor prizes very highly is postage free, from Stott & Jury, Bowan old Dutch Bible. This ancient book manville was found by a British soldier in a Kaffir hut, and the soldier afterwards disposed of his find to Capt. King, who, realizing the value of the old book, forwarded it to his father.

The book is about eighteen inches long and twelve inches wide, bound in a peculiar kind of leather, with brass trimmings. The cover is somewhat worn and stained from the effects of water, but the printing in the book is about as clean as the day the leaves left the hands of the printer. It is printed in the Dutch language, and on the first page appears the following: "Dordrecht, by Peter en Jacob Keur, 1729." The volume is about four inches thick. There are a number of engravings, and although printed so many years ago the plates show fully as well as if of recent date. They have the appearance of fine half-tone engravings and are printed on paper similar to that used in the printed leaves.

A dispatch from Cape Town announces that Col. Howard Vincent had picked up an exact counterpart of Captain King's volume and had paid $1,500 for it. These are the only ones known n existence. Col. Vincent succeeded in tracing his volume to the time when the Boers trekked into the Transvas! which was in the early part of the eighteenth century, and it is suppose that the book now in Dr. King's possession was the property of some Boen pioneer who took it with him when he started on his journey to his new home on the lonely African veldt.

Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy-Hood's Sarsaparilla.

By thoroughly purifying the blood, this great medicine reduces the inflammation of the mucous membrane and stops all catarrhal discharges of the nose, throat, stomach, bowels, bladder and generative organs.

Catarrh is especially dangerous in persons who inherit or have acquired a predisposition to consumption.

In these and all other catarrhal cases, Hood's Sarsaparilla so thoroughly renovates the blood and restores strength and vigor that it permanently cures.

In fact, because of the character of the disease, and the peculiar merit of the remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the common-sense treatment for catarrh.

ALBERTA GALLATIN IN "NELL

GWYNNE." Probably the most intensely interesting, and certainly the most roman-tic, period in English history, was during the restoration Stuarts to the throne of England, when Charles II. fell madly in love with Nell Gwynne at the Drury Lane The-

The king's infatuation for this hoyen created amazement throughout all England, and the saucy madcap, the veritable cause of all this disturbance, ruled the devil-may-care king, and, in fact, all "Merry England." She was not only a capable actress, but a beauty as well, whose wit, repartee, generosity and unselfish devotion to the king became of historical interest.

Alberta Gallatin, the youngest, prettiest and probably the most capable American leading woman, appears here in her own version of "Nell Gwynne. This play is replete with wit and comedy, and still embraces romantic situations in abundance. Miss Gallatin and her more than excellent company are to appear at the London Opera House on Monday night.

LONDON CLUB IN THE FINAL.

The extraordinary interest annually shown in the contest is heightened by the fact that not only is today's battle between the north and the south, but that it is twenty years since a London club figured in the final.

It is safe to say that 60,000 provincials of all sorts and conditions arrived in the metropolis this morning and proceeded in a steady stream toward the Crystal Palace. With London's quota, 100,000 is a moderate estimate of the number, of spectators who will witness the game.

GREATEST GALE

Cincinnati, O., April 21.—There has been more alarm throughout the Ohio Valley today on account of the floods than at any period since February, 1884, when the Ohio River reached its highest stage at 71 feet 9 inches at this city. Most of the inhabitants of the valley spent the night in anticipation of the worst flood ever known in the valley; but now it is generally believed that the river will not exceed the floods of February, 1897, and of March, 1898, when it reached 61 feet at Cincinnati. The present flood is the worst ever known so late in the spring. The flood will do much more damage now than it would have done one or two months ago.

AT WHEELING. W. VA. ALARM AT CINCINNATI.

AT WHEELING. W. VA.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 21.—At 9 p.m. the river was 41 feet 4 inches and rising two inches on hour. This stage shuts Wheeling entirely out of outside communication by rail, and only the big Cincinnati liners are able to run now, and irate residents along the river banks are firing frequently at the boats, because the swell from them is washing foundations away from their houses. In Wheeling Bellaire, Bridgeport, Benwood and Martin's Ferry about 500 houses have been entered by the water, most of the families moving to upper floors. Nearly every manufacturing establishment in the Wheeling district is shut down and cannot resume until Tuesday.

The Ohio River Railroad has a number of landslides, and considerable washed out track below Wheeling, involving a big loss and suspension of traffic for several days, On the B. and O., Wheeling-Pittsburg division, there is a landslide at Claysville, preventing through traffic between the two cities. TO MAKE RIFLES

Talk of a National Factory for Manufacture of Militia Arms.

From some remarks made by the minister of militia last night it is inferred that negotiations are on foot which may lead to the establishment of a factory for the manufacture of rifles for the militia in Canada. Six months ago a proposition was received from an English firm looking to this result, but nothing came out of it. The probability is, although Dr. Borden regards it as premature to say anything just now, that the firm referred to is seeking to have the matter reopened. Last year when the minister of militia-was in England he left an order for Lee-Enfield rifles with the war office, but the execution of the order has been deferred until certain improvements in the breech block, which the imperial authorities are considering, have been The ice is decided upon.

COOK INQUIRY

Mysterious Rumors About Startling New Evidence Not Credited.

Ottawa, April 21. - Two events of more than ordinary interest in parliamentary circles are promised this week. On Tuesday the Manitoba railway contract comes before the railway committee for ratification, and on the same day the Cook investigation will be either resumed or closed. With respect to the former matter, there appears to be considerable uncertainty as the re-sult of the Northern Pacific system falling under the control of Mr. Hill. The great railway magnate is reputed to be averse to the carrying out of the bargain made between the Northern Pacific and the Manitoba Government. and there may be developments which may cause the Canadian Northern to withdraw from the arrangement for which ratification is asked. Under the circumstances there is an unusual amount of eagerness to reach the bill in committee, in the hope that some clear and definite statement may be made concerning the present aspect of affairs, and the probable outlook for the future. In regard to the Cook inquiry, mysterious rumors emanating from Conservative sources have been circulated, forecasting a reopening of the investigation and the production of evidence to support the charges made. No responsible Conservative is willing to father these rumors, and the phesumption is that there is either ground for the statements, or that the opposition wish to spring a surprise when the committee meets.

THEY ARE NOT VIOLENT IN AC-THEY ARE NOT VIOLENT IN ACTION.—Some persons, when they wish to cleanse the stomach, resort to Epsom and other purgative salts. These are speedy in their action, but serve no permanent good. Their use produces incipient chills, and if persisted in they injure the stomach. Nor do they act upon the intestines in a beneficial way. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills answer all purposes in this respect, and have no superior.

WALDERSEE BLAMED.

Berlin, April 22.-Prince Hohenlohe, since his return to Berlin, has told several leading personages that it was Field Marshal Count von Waldersee, who more than Count von Buelow, had urged the emperor to take an uncompromising atitude against China and who had especially advised these phases of the Germany-China policy which harmed the entente with the other powers, namely, insisting upon the severest punishment to be meted out against the Chinese Government advisors.

CHINA'S TRADE.

The Associated Press interviewed King Inthai Tautai, who for the last 25 years has been the first secretary of the Chiness legation at Berlin. Answering questions, King Inthai Tautai said: "China's trade, both foreign and domestic, will revive in twelve months. The Chinese quickly forget the deed, but not the doer." MAJOR BROWNING KILLED.

MAJOR BROWNING KILLED.

Pekin, April 21.—It is officially reported that Gen. Reid, commanding at Shan Hai Kwan, sent Major Browning and a company of Punjab infantry to disperse a band of robbers between Ching Wan Tao and Funing Fu. A combined force of Boxers and robbers, numbering 1,000 men, attacked the expedition, killing Major Browning and one of the soldiers, and wounding several. The company retreated to Funing Fu, and reinforcements have been sent to them from Shan Hai Kwan. Kwan.

COREA TO BUILD A RAILROAD. Yokohama, April 21.—The Corean Gov-ernment, according to advice just received from Seoul, capital of Corea, has decided to borrow from France 5,000,000 yeu for the purpose of constructing the Northern Railway from Seoul to Wiju. The Seoul correspondent adds that Russia is attempting to secure a lease of Chin Hai Bay.

ATTACKED THE RAILWAY. London, April 22.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from St. Petersburg says that private reports state that Chinese rebels have again attacked the Manchylle Pally and a private of the state of the st ese rebeis have again attacked the Man-churian Railway, destroyed 150 versts of track, stolen the rails, and smashed the rolling stock. Nearly the whole detach-ment of railway guards defending the section were killed. Troops are being sent from Amur.

THE STRATFORD FIRE.

Stratford, Ont., April 22.—The loss by the burning of Hodd and Cullen's flour mill and elevator is $40,000; insurance $25,000. Only the walls are left standing. About 11,000 bushels of wheat, oats, peas and barley, in the elevator, were destroyed, and the whole milling plant wrecked. Among the insurance companies involved are Perth Mutual, 2,500; Millers' and Manufacturers', $7,500; Millers' Mutual, 2,500; Northern, 2,000, Commercial Union, $3,000; Economical, $2,000. Mr. der a bush for the past thirty odd Stephens has received a communication from relatives in Cleveland, Ohio, stating that a suit, involving millions of dollars' worth of property, and rentals and profits acrued since 1880, amounting to $1,500,000, has been decided in favor of the plaintiffs, of whom Mr. Stephens was one. AGAINST CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. Atlanta, Ga., April 22.-Judge Lamkin, of the superior court denied the application for a charter for "the Atlanta Institution of Christian Science.' The effect of his decision is that Christian Scientists cannot practice their treatment of diseases in the State of Georgia without regularly graduated in medicine or passed an examination before the medical examining board, the same as other physicians.

WOMEN FIGHT A TARANTULA. Greenwich., Conn., April 20.-Mrs. Elkanah Mead, of Millbank avenue, had a fight with a tarantula at her home yesterday. She purchased two dozen bananas and took them to her home, placing them in her pantry. Subsequently she opened the paper bag in which they were inclosed and out came the spider, just grazing her hand. She was startled for a moment, but called to her maid, who came to her aid armed with a coal shovel and a broom. The two women then drove the tarantula into a corner, and a blow of the shovel killed it. It was nearly as large as a tea saucer, black in color with hair on the body. Two more tarantulas were found in the store subsequently, but not so large as that Mrs. Mead killed.

A MODERN ROBIN HOOD

Epping Forest Yields a Surprise to a Census durable and makes exceedingly pretty Taker-A Hermit for Forty Years.

The census takers made a remarkable discovery in Epping Forest, where an old man who had been living under a bush for nearly 40 years was for the first time reckoned among the population of England. On the borders of the forest a wreath of smoke issuing from a holly bush gave the first indications a modern Robin Hood's whereabouts. Under the bush they found a $7 50. weazened old man, gnarled and crabbed as the bush itself. A layer of leaves a foot deep formed the bed on which this wild man of the woods reposed. A few sticks set upright formed the

Sir James Wilson Says Catarrh is the commonest of all disorders

Catarrh is the commonest of all disorders and not one person in ten thousand passes the winter without having a Catarrhal attack of some sort. It is dangerous, owing to its tendency to develop consumption. Can be cured, and completely eradicated from the system, if proper methods are employed. Being generally established in remote parts of the nasal passages, bronchial tubes and lungs, to cure it a remedy must be employed that can be carried direct to these parts. Catarrhozone goes wherever the air breathed will go, and is sure to reach the trouble. It is inhaled into every air cell of the lungs, the throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. It kills the germs, heals the membranes and cures the disease. Doctors recommend it as the most successful remedy. Catarrhozone never fails; never harms; always cures permanently. When madame went down to dinner that day she found a tiny vase of cut glass beside her plate, and in it a few stalks of fragrant mignonette with three or four lovely rosebuds. She appeared not to notice this dainty addition to the table, but it was not in human nature to wholly ignore the delicate perfume, and several times before the meal was over Shirley caught the woman's eyes resting appreciatively upon her little offering. She imagined that she was just obstinate enough not to speak of it at all; but while they were waiting for the servant to bring in the dessert, she abruptly inquired: "Where did you get that vase? It's real cut glass!" "It belonged to my mother." Shirley

Among her things she had several choice bits of bric-a-brac which she had brought away from her old home in Colorado—little mementoes around which so many sacred associations clustered that she could not make up her mind to part with them—and these she arranged upon the mantel, table and bureau. There were also in one of her trunks There were also in one of her trunks a few studies, both in oil and water colors, which she had painted during her art course, and these she laid out upon the bed, hoping that madame would allow her to hang them upon the

"I do not know as I do," was the rather ungracious reply. It's something I haven't been used to, though."

"I would like to put a vase of flowers on the table every morning if you are willing," Shirley remarked, lifting an appealing glance to her companion. "It will make it seem more home-like to me, and I should like to do it for you as I used for mamma."

The sweet voice broke over that last word, and one glittering drop fell into her napkin. Madame would not have had the heart to refuse her request after that, even if she had wanted to, which, strange to say, she did not, for the sake of the flowers themselves.

But it never had been in the nature of the woman to be gracious or to give free expression to the better feelings of her heart; so she merely returned, without even glancing up:

"I'm willing." wails.

A nice towel spread upon the bureau, and her handsome toilet set tastefully arranged on it, gave an entirely different appearance to the lumbering piece of furnitutre, while already the fair girl's face began to assume a brighter look in view of these simple changes. While she was returning some of her winter clothing to her trunk she had come upon an old India shawl, and a sudden inspiration seized her.

"It was my grandmother's," she murmered, as she stood holding it in her hnads and regarding it affectionately. "I wonder if it would injure it if I should spread it upon this great bare place in the middle of the floor for a sort of rug. I would be very careful of it. I would never step upon it, and I would shake the dust from it every morning. The colors are still warm and bright, if it is old, and it would add much to this gloomy room."

She unfolded it and spread it down to try the effect, and as the sun shone upon it, bringing out the rich hues, the somber chamber really seemed like a different place to her.

"What a lovely lawn!" Shirley exclaimed, as her eyes swept over the nicely mown greensward. Then she added, prompted by her artist love of color: "How pretty some of those little beds of landscape gardening, such as you see in Central Park, would look laid out here and there."

"Humph!" ejaculated madame, a frown contracting her brow, as if the thought of such an innovation was displeasing to her, "and soil my fine lawn with your new-fangled notions."

But as they continued their walk, she would stop, every now and then, turn back and sweep her sharp eyes over the broad expanse, as if the suggestion had fastened itself in her mind and kept itself intruding upon her.

They went to the stable to take a look at the horses and carriages, and where madame peered into every nook and

From there they proceeded to the kitchen garden, where the gardener had everything in the finest order, and where, as if to make up for the dearth of flowers in other places, he had sown quantities of many varieties among his vegetables.

"Humph! where would you have them. pray?" the woman demanded, with a contemptuous sniff.

"Oh, I would put them everywhere—in pretty little beds, you know. To me a flower bed on a lawn is like a beautiful pictutre on a wall." said the young girl, bending to inhale the perfume of a rose that was just coming into bloom.

"Well, that is a new idea," said madame, turning to search the eager, flower-like face of her companion, while she did not fail to notice how caressingly she touched the blossoms about her.

ingly she touched the blossoms about her.

The gardener was delighted with her admiration of his pets, for his mistress had no sympathy with his love for flowers, and he had hard work to gain her permission to grow them even among his corn and potatoes.

They were nothing but trash in her estimation, and of no earthly use. They were not good to eat—they were fit for nothing but to look at.

She would not have them upon the lawn for they interfered with the use of the lawn mower. She would not have them in pets on the veranda, for they were "dirty things" and would require the servants' time to care for them; and she was not a woman to pay out money for what would bring her no return. Apparently she had never realized until this morning that the pleasure they gave to others amounted to anything.

But Shirley's unfelgred delight, upon

But Shirley's unfelgned delight, upon discovering such a wealth of them among the vegetables had somehow appealed to a soft spot in her nature.

"Cut some and give them to her," she curtly commanded of her man, while he obeyed her—Shirley standing by chatting socially about the different varieties—she walked away to inspect the corn, potatoes and cabbages.

"Humph!" maybe the bright things do her as much good, cheer her up, perhaps.

"Humph!" maybe the bright things up her as much good, cheer her up, perhaps, as it does me to have her sunny face in the house," she muttered, reflectively. When she returned to Shirley she found her hands full of fragrant blossome and her face radiant with pleasure, and her cold practicality showed itself area in

"Well, well, child, do as you like." madame responded indulgently, while the gardener winked significantly to the girl, as if to say "come for more when you want them." and they returned to the house.

The remainder of the morning was spent in Madame Marton's sitting-room upstairs, looking over and reading extracts from the numerous periodicals which had been collecting during her visit to New York.

It was evident that Madame was fast learning to appreciate her charming companion, for she had toned down considerably since that morning when she so sharply interviewed her in Mr. Norwood's library.

Shirley was naturally of a merry, happy disposition; although at first she could not feel as free and unrestrained with one of Madame Marton's psculiar pretty nose among her aromatic treas-

New York, April 22.—After a fierce battle, which lasted two days, the chess players representing the United States and the United Kingdom broke even in the sixth international match by cable. The Englishmen scored two games and kept the lead until Saturday evening, when victories by Newman and Pillsbury offset their advantage. Two games were agreed upon as drawn, so when the twelfth hour, London time, approached there were still four games going, which by the rule should have been submitted to the referee for adjudication. By mutual consent, however, two more games were called a draw, and each side scored one game. The result follows:

Lady Dufferin christened the new challenger. The new boat looked spick and span in its coat of white paint, rimmed with green, while the manganese bottom shone like a mirror. OLD LONDON'S GREAT MATCH. London, April 22 .- It is estimated that London, April 22.—It is estimated that 100,000 persons witnessed the football match between the Sheffleld United and the Tottenham Hotspurs for the Association cup on Saturday. Sheffleld won the toss and kicked off promptly at 3:30 p.m., and after eleven minutes' warm play scored the first goal. Shortly after the Hotspurs were awarded a free kick for a foul, which evened matter. The result was a draw two all. "What a pity?" demanded madame sharply. "Out with it."
"I was thinking it was a great pity to have so much beauty wasted," Shirley said with a flush. "I am sure I should want them about the house, where I could see them."
"Humph! it is a foolish waste of time to keep them dusted," was the curt reply. "I'd either have to do it myself, or run the risk of having the servants smash them." a foul, which evened matter. The result was a draw, two all.

Though the game waxed fast, the score had not changed at half-time. Several hot shots marked the beginning of the second half, but without result. The play continued to be very swift. The attack and defense on both sides was splendid. Then the Hotspurs scored a second goal, and half a minute later Sheffield scrimmaged the ball through, again equalizing. Eight minutes after half time the local team pressed hard, but the visitors' goal keeper kept them out until both sides were obliged to slow down and take a breather. Several fruitless attempts followed, and a lively game ended in a draw, amidst intense excitement. "Well, maybe they meant well enough; but I haven't much faith in friendship," replied the woman bitterly. "No doubt they have wondered, when they have been here, what has become of their tokens. I sometimes feel." she went on with a frown, "that it is all nonsense for people to have so many goods and chattels; and if I could see my way clear to it, I'd reduce my belongings to what I could put in one trunk and go and live in one room somewhere. People fritter away lots of time and money on fashions and follies, and the thousand and one things with which they fill their houses."

"It is both pleasant and refining to be surrounded by lovely objects; besides, it is interesting to learn the history of them." Shirley replied.

"The money would do far more good if it were given to the poor," sniffed madame, contemptuously.

"It would not do them one-half as much good," the fair girl answered spiritedly.

Fishing in the Thames.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: Excitement runs high on the fish eries question on the River Thames. So much has been said that it is not necessary to refer to how the feeling is amongst all classes with the exception of the few who net and prevent the fish coming up the stream, but in justice to Col. Leys, who is nobly defend-ing our rights, I merely mentioned the fact in conversation with a prominent gentleman of Bothwell who is inter-ested in about one thousand acres of lands in that vicinity. He states, withfear of contradiction, that there is no one resident in Bothwell outside of the netting people but are most anxious to have the abominable practices stopped—not only the netting at Cashmere and other places, but the spearing of bass on the fishways; and he further states that the dam at Cashmere be removed, as there is n

Adair, of Byron, while Miss Aggle Colvin, sister of the bride, made a very charming bridesmaid. The bride was becomingly attired in white organdie, trimmed with silk chiffon and lace, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The bridesmaid was prettily dressed in white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Little Cora Merrill, niece of the bride, carrying a basket of white flowers and bearing the wedding ring, made a very pretty maid of honor. After congratulations about 40 guests partook of a very dainty wedding breakfast. The bride was the recipient of many costly presents showing the high esteem in which the young couple were held. The way-freight from Woodstock had been shunting in the yards, and while i was backing into a siding the boy at tempted to board one of the rear cars He lost his hold and fell under the wheels. His cries were heard by Conductor Major, who stopped the train and had Sweet carried to the station, where Dr. Graydon did all that was possible to save him. Both legs had been cut off near the body, and though he was conscious until he had told his father how the accident occurred, he died within half an hour. HIS BRAVE ACT

How Sarnia's Prospective Chief of Police Stopped a Tramp's Bullet.

Detective Charles Mahony, whom s reported will be appointed provincial detective at Sarnia to succeed the late Detective Yorrell, is well known in News. The transfer will be a promo tion for Mahony.

Detective Mahony is one of the most popular officers in the province. He served on the Windsor police force for over six years, and was appointed provincial detective four years ago last September. As assistant to Detective Campeau, he has earned the reputation of being a courageous and efficient officer.

Three years ago this month Mahony was shot by a desperado at Belle River. and carries the bullet in his breast to this day. A colored man named Brown and a white man named Moore com-mitted a most daring robbery here. They entered the grocery of John McConnell, Park street, and held up the pro prietor at the point of a revolver, and robbed him of a sum of money.

Campeau and Mahony cornered both men in a box car at Belle River next morning, but took desperate chances in attempting to arrest them. Brown fired at close range upon Mahony and was in the act of discharging his weapon again when he was brought down by Campeau. Brown was given life imprisonment and Moore received 20 The Only Trace of Cheapness is the Pricemark.

shone like a mirror. Lord and Lady Dufferin, Sir Thomas Lipton, and others, who came from Glasgow on a special train, stood upon a raised platform decorated with Union Jacks, the Stars and Stripes, and the Irish flag, and with Venetian masts in green and white, which were the prevailing colors.

The weather could not have been oetter, and all Dumbarton was en fete. Lady Dufferin broke the bottle over the curiously snub-nose of the new boat. There is no disguising the fact that British experts here today are very confident about the new boat, and think her the best that ever challenged for the cup.

"But if you don't win," said the correspondent of the Associated Press to Sir Thomas Lipton, "will you try it again?" "I expect next year to build a defender, not a challenger," was the answer. In this connection, the manager of Denny's yard said: "When Mr. James Gordon Bennett saw the Shamrock II. a few weeks ago, he 'Well, if she wins I am prepared to build a challenger.'
