[Special London Cable Letter to The Advertiser.] London, March 26 .- Next to the probabilities of wars, the public is most keenly interested in the condition of Mr. Gladstone, though not permitted to know how ill he is. Perhaps it should be said that he is not so much ill as that his powers are failing and that he is apparently sinking under the weight of years and vital exhaustion. The best informed people admit that amendment of his ailment is impossible, and that his physicians only hope to aleviate the pain he is suffering. The Lancet says, on the subject of the surgical advice called in: "This can scarcely be interpreted otherwise than that there is serious cause for the symptoms for which he has suffered for nine months. At his great age, the gravity of any surgical ailment and the exhaustion, in consequence, is prolonged. The severe neuralgia is in itself an unfavorable feature. His vitality, however, is wonderful and ihs general health is good.'

An examination of the patient with the use of the Roentgen rays disclosed inflamed cartilage, but there was no sign of cancer. Although inquiries for press paragraphs are strictly kept from Mr. Cladstone, it is said he has bid farewell to several old friends and knows his end is approaching. Referring to his ill ness Mr. Gladstone said to a friend:
"A final lesson—a final trial." The old statesman has been sensibly happier at

Sanitarium for

Its Necessity Set Forth by the Ontario Board of Health-Plan of Campaign Against Tuberculosis.

Toronto, March 26.-The next annual report of the Provincial Board of Health will have much of the contents devoted to a discussion of tuberculosis, details of the ravages of consumption, and a comprehensive plan for combat-

Municipal sanitation, says Dr.Bryce, has cut in two the mortality from typhoid, and has banished small-pox during the past fifteen years. Shall it be said that Ontario will not during the next fifteen years have done as much with consumption?

This then seems to be the very commendable undertaking for Dr. Bryce, and he has a strong scheme for accomplishing this. There are two objects in view: an attempt at healing those who have contracted the disease and an effort to save those who are in danger of contracting it.

There are but three plain lines of action for us," says Dr. Bryce. 1. Fight by all our combined energy to prevent, by education of the people and by legal enactment, every cause inducing to illhealth and thereby consumption. 2. Remove the sources of immediate infection from the small and poorly equipped homes and the factories and work rooms of our working people. 3. Then build in every county homes for consumptives, to which in the early stages of the disease they may go, and by exact treatment, abundance of food and fresh air, of sunshine, of exercise, of rest, maintain the fight against the destructive forces of the disease, have a fair chance of saving their lives to their families and the state, and at the same time remove the danger threatening those they love. In plainer words, there must be a union among the various benevolent ocieties, counties and the Province of Ontario to have placed in every county a sanitarium. "The work of fighting the great White Plague' holds the first place in the work of every sanitary and benevolent association whose operation is within the great industrial counties of Northern America and of Europe, where the ravages have been described from the earliest history till now," continues the report. In dealing with the disease itself Dr. Bryce arrives at these conclusions: 1. That the disease is rather one of the city than of the country.

2. It is a disease directly associated with the density of population. 3. That it is a disease essentially of house life, and that it attaches itself houses and naturally to particular famllies who occupy them year after year. 4. That in our older settled counties cities the number of infected houses slowly increases. 5. That other cases are found in many instances to follow a first case in a house within a year or two. 6. That in the center of the worst infected districts of large cities some mington. Prof. Orr, the superintendent which are among the largest and finest in the west, have been thronged with admiring ladies, enthusiastic over the really brilliant display of millinery, which is so tastefully exhibited and so representative of the latest fashions. The styles are directly from Paristhe products of Mme. Pouyanne, Mme. Josse, Mons. Virot (Worth's successor), Lynn Faulkner, and the other celebrated modistes, who direct the aesthetics of millinery the world over. They have decreed this year that hats shall be large, with abundance of flowers. The reporter realized this at a giance, as he entered the show rooms yesterday and was met by a bewitching array of headgear that realized to perfection the Parisian ideals. There were so many exquisite creations that to single out one superior to the others fire Wednesday morning. There was nothing in the building, which was male one. The Shepherdess hat, deframe, and it was evidently set alight signed by Virot, is a rare conception, and has created a furore among the ladies. It is already a supreme favorite. The Pneumatic Tire, distinguished by its roll rim, is another charming fancy. It is trimmed with ospray wings and violets, with foliage. The "Fleet" is also a thing of beauty—a black hat trimmed with burnt orange flowers and turquoise blue, with jet ornaments and ospray. A handsome novelty is the black shredded wheat hat, which is unique for mourning. There were other designs and shapes so numerous that they could not be catalogued in a newspaper paragraph. The rooms were so filled with ladies that the reporter could not get a prolonged interview with the head milliner, but managed to snatch the information that the popular shades this beautiful colors. But this is not surprising. The general display was never before so lovely. The show room, which occupies a large space on the second flat, is a veritable flower-garden. The glorious promise of budding spring is there realized with amazing truthfulness to nature. And in such profusion! The spacious apartment is nothing short of a fairy bower in which all the delightful shades of Nature's garden at each season of the year mingle in en-trancing harmony. The tables, stands, cases and shelves are luxuriant with flowers, and here and there the brilliancy of bright-colored birds or wings strikes the eye. Beauty shines forth on every hand. It would be impossible to describe and do justice to any one of the endless variety of hats and bonnets on view. The artistic arrangement as to color and form can only be properly appreciated when Some are masses of chiffon, and there are others that look almost like floral designs. Two very strong colors are burnt orange and turquoise. Aigrettes are largely used in the trimmings, and so, too, are fancy birds; wings and quills; and in some hats the wings or quills are spangled. Straw dry in morning, pain webbling is a very pleasing trimming in back of head—any and is much used. The designs in ribbons that most abound are delicately tinted plaids or checks. Favorite Hymns Of Great Men.

The Times, New York, gives an interesting summary of the opinions of a number of prominent men upon hymns "Being a man with no doubts of his own competency to decide any con-ceivable question, W. T. Stead had an answer ready the other day when somebody-perhaps himself-asked him what hymn, of all that have written in the English language, is at once the most helpful and the most popular. Mr. Stead's verdict was that 'Rock of Ages,' written by the Calvinistic vicar of a parish in Devonshire, merited this description. His decision has started a wide controversy on the subject, and opinions have been colcted from many eminent divines. Washington Gladden, who differs from Mr. Stead by more than the distance from London to Columbus. Ohio, declares that the problem is insoluble. 'I have no means,' he writes, 'of knowing which is the most helpful and popular hymn. The most helpful might not be the most popular: some that are yery popular are hurtful rather than helpful. London, March 23. - In the House of Commons, Mr. George N. Curzon said the government had no confirmation of the news contained in a Pekin dispatch to the London Times to the effect that China has agreed to all the Russian demands. There was another hastily-summoned cabinet meeting yesterday. The Pekin correspondent of the Times explains that his statement of Thursday, as to the concession to Russia of a 25-year lease of Talien Wan as an open port should have read as an ice-free port. He adds: "At the Tsung Li Yamen (Chinese foreign office) further conditions were agreed upon respecting the Talien Wan lease, Russia agrees that the port shall be open to ships and the commerce of the whole world, with a ministration and collection will be the same as at any other Russian port. Views of Leading Methodists Presented to the Government.

Ottawa, March 26. - Rev. Dr. Carman, Rev. Dr. Potts, Rev. Dr. Saunders, Rev. Dr. Sutherland and J. T. Moore, on behalf of the Methodis Church, waited on the premier and the Hon. Messrs. Fisher and Fielding to ask that the question on the prohibition plebiscite should be one to which a direct yes or no answer could be given. In reply the premier said he was still open to conviction on the question. He had great respect for the views of the Methodist Church, representing, as it did, a large part of the people. He was not prepared to take the ground that direct taxation must follow prohibition. He had never said, however, on a public platform, that the question would be divorced from its natural consequences and matters thereto. Everything incident to the issue must go in. Mr. Fielding asked if the delegates desired to conceal the consequences from the electorate? He feared that in that case the measure might meet with defeat. What was there that the delegates did not wish to have in-

The evening will long be remembered as a most done by the members to make everyone feer heartny "at home." Un entering, each visitor was given into the hands of a reception committee, and ushered to the cloak room. The school room was decorated most appropriately for the occasion with flags, punting and Chinese fans, parasois and lan terns. The platform was bedecked with flowers, plants and foliage, presenting a very pretty scene. Two huge flegs-a Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes-were hung over the platform. A large Japanese parasol some twenty feet square was suspended in the center of the room, and formed a very pretty canopy. There was no formal gramme, the evening being spent in social intercourse. Each person was presented with a card for exchange of name, and was requested to stop only five minutes with the same party. Great interest and amusement was caused by the filling of the cards. Kev. Robert Johnston was elected to the chair, and spoke a few words of welcome. "I assure you all a hearty welcome," he said, "in the name of St. Andrew's Literary Society, and hope you all may have an enjoyable evening. Let everybody do his or her best to make everyone feel at home. This is our second annual 'at home,' and I hope it may be only one of a long series to come from year to year." Mr. Johnstan also announced that refreshments would be served continuously during the evening, just whenever appetite called for them. The young men were required to take the ladies in, which they did with good grace. The music furnished by the Harpers left nothing to be desired in this respect. They played sweetly at intervals throughout the evening. Too much praise canot be given the committees in charge, or to the members for the work they accomplished in providing such an enjoyable evening. On Feb. 3 we sailed away from Liverpool in the most delightful kind of weather. The sea was smooth, the weather fine, and I was not a bit seasick. I had brought a great many books with me, and I delighted to sit on the deck in my steamer chair and read. So the time passed pleasantly until Sunday morning, the 13th, I was always suspicious about the thirteenth of months, and this time my suspicions were veri-

About 4 o'clock on that morning I was awakened by the sound of loud trampling on the deck, excited voices, and what sounded like a fusillade of

"Surely we are boarded by pirates!" I thought. My husband ran out on deck, took a look around, and then came running back, crying out that the ship was on fire. I knew that the ship was loaded with explosives, and althought my heart was in my throat, and the full horror of the situation dawned upon me, I tried to be as brave as possible. I threw some clothes over my night robe, and we ran out on the deck. The scene was terrible. The whole mighty ship seemed to be a mass of coiling flames. The sea was glaring with red and crawling reflections. Forward of the smokestack there was a continual clatter of exploding cartridges. You should see them popping through the deck like firecrackers. saw Captain Tennant near the bridge. He seemed to be considerably burned. Several men were in the water screaming shrilly for help. God knows how they had fallen overboard, but there they were, black dots that struggled and crawled and screamed and sank The ship had stopped in order to keep down the draught. Mr. Bateman, the second mate, and the fireman lowered the gig and started to rescue the drowning men. Oh, how I prayed for them as they went over the side! I saw them get down into the boat, and push away. The sea was very high. Before they could get the prow of the known. boat to the lift of the waves it was Mr. Paddon's case was a very severe overturned, and before my very eyes I saw the poor fireman swept away and

Mr. Bateman clutched a rope, but then one of the men who had been screaming for help jumped on him and carried him under. He never came up again. The carpenter was saved. Two men, I think their names were Martin and Gaffney, the latter the ship's steward, managed to get into the waist of the ship, and to lower one of the two lifeboats. Like the gig, it, too, was swept away on the slope of a great sea; that flashed out of the dark and vanished so quickly that it seemed the work of a demon. None of the boats could live in that sea, and so the men gave it up. We decided to stick to the ship. It was a desperate decision, but there was nothing else to do under the circumstances. The worst of it was that the fire was spreading rapidly and prevented the engineers from getting into the engine Consequently the engine was pounding wildly all the time, and the ship was dashing aimlessly through the ossing sea. We did not know what was going to occur, whether we were going to be blown up or meet death drowning. It was not until 11 the boilers went out for lack of fuel. and are adapted to fit over the worn The sight was something awful, especi- parts and be sewed in position. ally at night. One poor fireman was killed outright and burned to a cinder. We thought one of the other firemen would die, but e survived and we brought him to the hospital here. Another poor fellow, tortured to madness by his burns, leaped into the sea. If we had been struck by a heavy wave we would surely have gone down. Nothing could have saved

Those of the crew who had reached the quarter deck at the first alarm were ordered by the captain to pour water upon the fire. As it was impos sible, on account of the fire, to reach the steam pumps, the crew seized buckets, and drawing water from the ocean, proceeded to pour it into the fire amidships. Such a small quantity, of course had little effect. It caused a great volume of smoke to arise and almost enveloped the ship.

All these events had passed as in dream, or the moving of a ranorama. My lips were dry and parched. Somebody brought me a glass of water. It was hot from the fire. My husband was bruised and blackened from the heat. He was working with the rest, but his inexperience as a sailor was against him. I cheered the men on as well as I could, and whenever any of them was burned I bound their wounds as well as possible in strips of cloth torn from my skirts. Once a gale blew the veil of smoke that hung over the forward part of the vessel. There on the quarter deck we saw a dozen men huddled together like a flock of sheep. The fire was all around them. Then for the first time I wept and seemed for a time to lose hope. They were entirely cut off from communication with the after deck and were crying frantically for help. To save them seemed an impossibility, but the captain de-cided to make the attempt. The boat on the after davits was lowered and I saw five brave volunteers tumble into it was flung upward like a chip and the men had all they could do to keep it away from the ship's iron sides. broken up into a number of points. Newest Wonder Of the Age.

Herr Szczepanik's Invention of the Telelectroscope.

Description of the Device by Which Actual Scenes May be Made Visible to Persons Hundreds of Miles Away.

Theory of Its Operation-One or Two Weaknesses Pointed Out.

A London correspondent writes: One of the most interesting features of the Paris Exhibition of 1900 should be Herr Szczepanik's apparatus, by means of which actual scenes are made visible to people hundreds of miles away from the spot. The objects are to be reproduced in all their varieties of color, light, and shade, and every phase of movement is to be represented. Such is the promise of the inventor, and the fact that he has received nearly a million and a quarter of dollars for the exhibition and French rights of his patent would seem to prove that this poor Galician schoolmaster has really solved the problem on which so many people have been working.

Herr Szczepanik calls his apparatus the "telelectroscope," because it renders objects visible in their natural colors at a distance by means of electricity. The manner in which this is effected is somewhat difficult of clear explanait with a reckless heroism that was intion. From the inventor's representahave been gathered as to the method of transmission: struggled to get the boat forward to the reflected ray of light is converted where their comrades had made their last retreat to the very rail. I saw transmitted any distance. At the rethem lowered into the boat where the ceiving end the current is again transheroic first mate was stowing them away. When they were dropping back light. This ray of light is reflected in the boat was boarded and half filled by mirrors and the reflection thrown upon a sea. Then as they were getting ready a screen. Now, it follows that if all to drag the men on deck a huge, wicked the points of a picture are taken in very wave lifted the little craft and flung rapid succession the resultant reflection on the screen will be the entire picture. Those on deck threw ropes to the floating men and of the mirror. The mirror (the first one in which the object is reflected) is fixed on a pivot, by means of which (with the aid of an electro-magnet) it is continually oscillating, so that the lines of the object under observation are continually changing.

Each of these single line pictures is broken up into points by means of the second oscillating mirror, which is placed at right angles to the first, so that its reflecting line is at right angles to the reflecting line of the first. As two lines intersect each other in a point. corresponds to this point will be reflected in the second mirror. The two

A blue ray, say, will have a very powerful effect upon it, while a red ray will set up a very weak current. This electric battery is connected by wires with an electro-magnet at the receiving end, where the electric currents are to be reconverted into rays of light. The electro-magnet will accomplish this by moving in sympathy with the electric current sent out from the transmitting apparatus, and its movements will necessarily correspond to the nature of the ray reflected. A blue ray, for instance, would move it a considerable distance, while a red ray would only slightly deflect it. Now this magnet is made to move a prism, which is placed in front of a strong white light-either the light of the sun or an electric light. The action of the prism will break the white light up into its seven prismatic colors. These colors are spread out in a spectrum. The prism being moved by the electro-magnet, it will necessarily revolve just so far as to bring the required color into view. This color will now be reflected in one of the two oscillating mirrors at the receiving end. And just as the action of the other two mirrors was analytic, so Dodd's Kidney Pills and Their Faith Is Justified.

The action of these two is. Each point of the picture is reflected on to a screen, and as the points follow one another in very rapid succession indeed, the eye of the observer will take in the its points were all presented to it simultaneously. The picture can be made to last as long as may be desired by constantly reproducing the effect, and at such a speed that the observer is unconscious of any break in the process. It is no more difficult to reproduce a moving picture than a still one, for the inventor explains that "it is the actual picture which is reproduced, and not a mere record, as in the case of the cinematograph. Another point claimed is that there is practically no limit to the distance within which the apparatus can be used. With the possibility of a tele-phone wire 1,000 miles long, such as that between Chicago and New York, the inventor thinks that the telelectroscope wires might be of any length.

Such an instrument, of course, opens up a wide field of possibilities. Scenes of foreign travel, battlefields during action, and the eclipse of the sun, are only a few of the things we might have seen recently, while sitting comfortably at home, had Herr Szczepanik had his machine well established a little earlier. As it is, the question arises, has not this Galician genius done away with the necessity of visitors actually going to Paris in 1900?

As I wrote these last words I re-ceived from Vienna a description of this wonderful invention which tallies with the above, but inasmuch as it is from omeone who has no interest in the concern, it admits one or two weaknesses. In my correspondent's own quaint English, "The invention seems to have been inspirited by the kinematograph, and it is said that the images resemble to the kinematograph images, d are shivering like these." Again, Fashions in Havana Are Up-To-Date. How the Large Hotels Are Managed-Few Bicycles There.

[From a Havana Letter.]

A causual observer would say there was very little difference between the gowns and costumes of the Havanese ladies and those seen in the large cities of the United States or Europe. They catch on to the prevailing fashions without much delay, and adopt them to the extent of their purses. One does not see seal cloaks or other furs on the streets even in the winter months; when the temperature is between 70 and 80, although I saw a fur cape for sale in one of the shops. If a sale of them ever occurs, the purchaser is, undoubtedly one who contemplates a trip north. Most of the women who appear on the streets in the day time hood their faces with black lace scarfs and use fans to protect their faces from the sun. Frequently you see young women walking together dressed exactly alike. This is so frequent as to be noticeable to strangers. On a Sunday afternoon I noticed in front of a fashionable residence five women, probably members of the same family, all gowned precisely alike in a heliotrope colored fabric. It was suggested that the head of the family was pleased with the goods and bought a whole piece. Very few of the women are pretty according to the American standard of beauty. They age early and rapidly, and resort to cosmetics and powders to continue their youthful looks long after their beauty, if they ever had any, has passed

One might imagine that everybody in Havana was rich, as there is an utter absence of dogs, which cannot be accounted for by lack of poverty. Without asking for an explanation, one may conclude that they have gone with the reconcentradoes. The bicycle fad doesn't seem to have taken hold of the Havanese. I saw but two bicycles on the streets, and those were on the outskirts of the city, where there was a little patch of concrete pavement. There are very few streets in Havana where it would be a pleas- quite a number of able-bodied men, ure to ride a wheel. The business portion is paved with block granite, in Nearly all the lots in the cemetery are very good condition. The roads in the inclosed with iron fences, and almost ago. There is an appearance of neglect noticeable road is so full of ruts and depressions throughout the cemetery, but that carriage springs are severely tested. The condition of the streets and the almost entire absence of country roads is probably the excuse for not indulging in bicycling.

HOTEL LIFE. The Hotel Inglaterra is considered a fine hotel for Cuba. You would not be satisfied with the cooking and general satisfied with the cooking and general conduct of the dining-room if in the United States. It is printed in both Spanish and English but as the waiters cannot understand the English part of it you are hopelessly lost. lish part of it you are hopelessly lost if you undertake to give them an order. THE CEMETERY.

There is a commendable absence of drunkenness in Havana. I saw but one person intoxicated, and he was hanging aroud the American consulate, asking assistance. He was an American, I am ashamed to say. His story was that he had been stranded here, and, being an American sailor, had been abused by the Spanish, to prove which he showed me the cuts on his head. He apparently deserved all he got.

The cemetery is an interesting place to visit and one is repaid for the trouble of a two or three-mile drive to see some of the fine monuments there, especially one erected by the city to the memory of 36 firemen who perished in a conflagration several years ago. It is of Italian marble, grand in proportions and elaborate in workmanship. Medallions in life aze of the dead firemen are cut in relief on one of the supporting blocks of marble, nine on each side. The main shaft is surmounted with a figure of an angle holding the dead body of a fireman in its arms, and on each side, and angle some beautifully-worked design commemorating the occasion.

whole structure must be about 75 feet high and posibly 30 feet square at the base. It was made in Italy and must have cost several hundred thousand of dollars. The Havana funerals all occur at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and soon after that time you see processions coming into the cemetery from all directions. The carriages remain at the entrance while the bearers carry the casket to the grave, followed by the mourners. I saw several funeral processions wending their way slowly up the hill without hearse or carriages. These were of families too poor to have anything but a plain coffin. This was being carried on the shoulders of men, and as the distance is sometimes several miles, it requires who relieve one another frequently.

seems to be characteristic of the THE MILITARY. The one predominating element in Havana at the present time is the soldiery. The streets are literally filled with uniformed men and youth. The average Spanish officer or soldier would not impress an American favorably. The officers are paid, and, apparently, enjoy themselves.

NO KODAKS ALLOWED. It is the policy of the Spanish authorities to suppress everything that illustrates the condition of affairs in Cuba. A careful search to obtain photographs of the people or of any event connected with the war was fruitless. The use of kodaks is restricted, if permitted at all. Views of the tomb of Columbus and the monument erected on the spot where he landed are freely offered for sale. Odd Stories

About Birds.

[New York Sun.] An amateur naturalist, who returned from a trip south the other day, in relating his experiences to a reporter, said that two of his observations seemed to be of a nature to interest read-

"One was a new, or rather a hybrid breed of quails," he said. "In the southern part of South Carolina and about 40 miles north of Savannah, lies an unfenced tract of land 50,000 acres in extent, that has been turned into a game preserve by a lot of sportsmen, of whom the majority are citizens of New York. They found there a breed of birds known as the Florida quails. They were a a smallish bird, that would get up before the dog to a height of six or eight feet and then fly away in a line as straight as a stretched string. It was as easy to kill them right and left as to pot a chicken. They were a very nice bird on the table-all that anyone could ask for, in fact; but the ease and certainty with which they were killed made them undesirable in the eyes of the club men. "Now the Virginia quail, as all gun-especially in the older parts of the state, where they are shot regularly every season. When they get up they may rise fifteen feet, and it may be thirty, and then away they go like bullet from a rifle. To knock down a couple of them-that's sport. So the club men determined to stock their preserve with the Virginia quails, and some hundreds, perhaps thousands, were brought down and turned loose. one—in fact, married her and raised a family. And you will have to travel far to find a race to beat those hybrids. The Florida mother was, as said, unsurpassed on the table, and the hybrids have inherited her good qualities. The Virginia father bird was a bullet in the air, and the hybrids have inherited his wings, and even improved on them. They are not so large as the Virginia bird, but where he fled with a whir they disappear with a zip. "Next to the hybrid quails in interest are some of the waterfowl of Port Tam-Port Tampa is a collection of piers, but there is a hotel built on piles that are dressed in sewer-pipe trousers to keep the teredo away. No shooting is allowed around the grounds or the piers, and, of course, not a little stuff is thrown from the hotel that is good food for ducks, pelicans and gulls. Accordingly these birds come about the hotel in flocks, and not only are they without fear of the people there, but they have learned to come for food when anyone whistles for them as if

"At first it seems as if the birds come as readily to the call of one person as of another, but the fact is that two or three people about the hotel are on speaking terms with them. The birds know their voices, and are plainly very friendly with them. At an old boat-landing stage the pelicans gather a dozen at a time, and sitting there in the sun preen their feathers and scratch their ribs with their long, ungainly looking bills. The fact that a lot of people are standing six feet away is in no way disturbing to them unless some unmannerly fellow pokes them with a cane. In that event the bird gives the intruder a white-eyed look of astonishment and utters a protest in a voice so gentle and delicate as to make one wonder where in the world such an ungainly bird got it Then it flops its way to safety beyond the piers. If undisturbed the pelicans often pillow their heads on their backs and take a nap, but in that position they are quickly observed by the tourist, who thinks it is fun to make trouble for quiet folks, and they are quickly snared by a cane-crook and sent flapping to the water.

"Only the smaller ducks come about the hotel, but they are exceedingly beautiful and graceful in their movements, while the gulls in their dancing flight are of endless interest. No one has tried to teach the birds come to hand for food, it is said, but it is plain that any one with knowledge and tact and love might establish an acquaintance there that would enable him to write a most interesting story about our feathered brothers afloat."

BEST CUSTOMER, BEST FRIEND. [Scottish-American Journal, New York.] Great Britain and her colonies absorb nearly 60 per cent of this country's total exports. No other nation can be said to make even a good second. There can therefore be no question about Great Britain being this country's best customer, and there is as little reason to doubt that she is at the same time its best friend.

Held His Place on a Ten-Mile Run, When the Train Stopped and the Town Gave Chase.

[Boston Transcript.] Not long ago as a railroad train was passing through Wilder's Cut, near Olcut Run, Pa., the engineer was astonished to see a black bear coming round a sharp curve. The cut is so narrow that there is hardly room for a man to stand aside and allow an engine to pass without striking him. Bruin was more amazed than the engineer. Instead of stepping aside he reared on his haunches and awaited events. The locomotive was running less than twenty miles an hour, for the place is a dangerous one. Upon seeing the bear the engineer shut off steam and applied the brakes, but the distance was too short to escape an accident. The cowcatcher slid under the hind legs of the brute and lifted him off the ground. Thinking all trouble was over, the engineer put on steam once more, while the fireman climbed out of the cab window and stole along the guard rail to find out what had become of the bear, He was there, clasping the cowcatcher, the lower part of his body just grazing the ground, and his head almost reaching the bottom of the headlight. He seemed to understand that the only thing he could do was to hold fast, and he did so during the run to the next station, ten miles distant. The station agent was standing at the depot door as the train approached. The sight of a full-grown bear on the cowcatcher fairly took away his breath. As soon as the engine came to a standstill bruin slipped from his perch and made a break for freedom. This took him straight toward the agent, who dashed through the door, slammed it shut, leaped through the rear door, and went up the street at a furious rate, calling out: "Bear! Bear! Some-body get a gun!" Soon the town was in a turmoil, a of the bear, some of the boys pelting him with stones. Suddenly a big shepherd dog bounced out of a yard and dashed after the bear. Bruin paused but a minute or two, but when he passners know, is a different sort of bird, ed on the rash dog had no future interest in the proceedings. At the street corner a lawyer carrying a double-barreled gun came face to face with the bear, but the latter turned down the nearest alley. The crowd in-creased and encircled the frightened animal, making escape impossible. Finding himself at bay, bruin backed up against a barn, rearing on his haunches. The lawyer sent two bullets into the bear, whereupon the wounded animal charged the crowd. One urchin fell, was trampled upon and had a leg broken. The lawyer slipped another bullet into his gun and sent the shot through bruin's head and finished him. By this time the engineer and fireman recalled the fact that a train-load of passengers were waiting at the station, and hurried back and resumed their official duties after a bear hunt of about twenty minutes.

A PHRENOLOGIST'S EXPERIENCE.

Prof. J. W. Crouter Strongly Recommends Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for Severe Palpitation.

Anyone who has ever used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for such diseases as arise from Disordered Nerves, Weak Heart, or Watery Blood, is so thankful for a cure that he desires to let all sufferers know of their sterling merits.

Prof. J. W. Crouter, the well-known Phrenologist, and author of several advanced scientific works, writes from Penetanguishene, as follows:-"Last October I had an attack of palpitation of the heart, which grew so bad that I was induced to take medicine for it. Occasionally I obtained relief, but was not cured, and the beatings of my heart became more and more intermittent and violent, till I feared the valves of my heart would burst. Incidentally I read of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in the Globe, and with a feeling bordering on despair I determined to try them. I went to Mr. Nettleton's drug store and got a box. I took them regularly for about three days, when the beatings of my heart became quite regular. I continued to use them for about three day's more, and by that time my heart was beating naturally and has continued to do so since.

"You are at liberty to publish this letter as it may direct others similarly afflicted to the right remedy.' Yours truly, J. W. CROUTER.

women who have inherited or acquired a tendency to pulmonary weakness should guard well against the first approaches of consumption. They should, above all things, keep their general health up to the normal standard by keeping the digestive system in good order, because consumption is a disorder of mal-nutrition. Such persons should beware of colds, for no cough is unimportant. They should avoid dampness; dress in pure wool, and have plenty of sleep. A cough shows either the lodgment of matter in the bronchial tubes, or else an irritated condition of the lungs and air passages. Do not neglect digestive symptoms! I have before me the portrait of a lovely young girl. When I first knew her she was but seventeen; at nineteen I saw her lying in the coffin, white and pure as the roses clasped in her attenuated fingers. Her first symptoms pointed to stomac trouble; but they were neglected. She grew frail and slender as a lily. Her lover—for she was engaged to be married—urged her to wed and go South with him; but she gently refused. Her family did not realize that the doom was upon her. Mothers, do not neglect such symptoms in your dear ones, or you may see them drifting from you, as did my dear young friend from her heart-broken mother. Stomach troubles are the initial symptoms of that fatal form of consumption which attacks the whole system, but does its most deadly work in the bowels. Tone up the stomach by means of some good preparation of herbs and break up the cough with Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure. A grand remedy, pure, harmless, healing, tonic and expectorant. Dreadful Fruit Pest Which Has Caused Great Destruction.

In Almost Every One of the Neighboring States.

The Measures for Protecting Canadian Orchards Taken by the Governments of Canada and Ontario.

Twenty-five years ago a minute insect appeared upon the fruit trees in the San Jose Valley, California. It was so small, requiring a magnifying glass to detect it at first, that it es- or trifled with. Fruit-growers and excaped observation for a time. It spread rapidly, and its destruction of fruit trees and injury to fruit in that state can be reckoned only by millions of dollars. The following description is taken from the bulletin of the Ontario Department of .Agriculture: "The nearly full-grown insect passes the winter beneath its wax-like scale. About June the young begin to appear as exceedingly minute, six-legged insects, like yellowish, specks moving about. They creep about only for a few hours, at most a day or two, then settle but a few inches from their birth place and become attached to the spot, from which the fernales never move. During their sedentary life the females lose their feelers and legs, and have 10 per cent, to an average of $2.75 per neither eyes hor wings. The males, however, have leg;s, feelers (antennae), eyes and wings in the adult condition. The scale of the female is circular, with small nippie in the center. This scale from a twelft h to one-twentieth of n inch in diameter, and may be of a ight or dark gray color, and usually is much the same color as the bark; the nipple in the ceriter may be a pale yelor blackish color. The scale of ne male is oblo ag, with the nipple near he end, and is thus readily disting-ished from that of the female. The oes not lay eggs, as is usually the ase with scale insects, such as the The origin of the name San Jose ale is thus explained by its nature and the place of American origin. Its chnical name is Aspidiotus perniciis, which means the "pernicious nield or scale bearer." The appropri-

A single female that has wintered over may be the progenitor of llions in a single season; some have mputed that her progeny may reach incredible number of 3,000,000,000. there may be four generations in a son, the adult females of each givng birth to living young for five or ix weeks, the progeny of these bearing oung when about thirty days old. ch female brings into existence 100,insects during her lifetime. Thus it vill be seen that a great confusion of erations will exist, as there may be

The Chicago Times-Herald says that there will be no strike of any kind in the coal industry in this country for at least a year. The last chance for disagreement between miners and operators was removed by a conference held in Columbus last week, in which five states participated. A uniform day wage scale for inside work was adopted, which will be in effect until April 1, 1899, and as it was agreed upon unanimously there seems to be no possibility for any general disturbance to occur while it remains in force. Even the Hocking Valley mines, where trouble is usually looked for first, apentirely satisfied with the cents. new arrangement. There is room for congratulation in the fact that the general labor world will not be disturbed this year by a strike in the coal industry, but there is further cause for rejoicing in the fact that the workmen engaged in that industry are to receive a substantial increase in wages all along the line. There is a noticeable improvement in all lines of business, and the coal operators, recognizing the justice of the miners' better wages, have granted substantially all the demands that have been made by the men. It is a gratifying sign of better times.

Spring

During the colder season impure humors accumulate in the blood.

The surface of the body being chilled, the pores are closed and clogged, and impurities which might pass off in perspiration are forced back into the blood. Besides this, winter's hearty food, fats and sweets, contribute more impurities.

This briefly explains the existence of Spring Humors - those unsightly eruptions, painful boils, annoying pimples and other affections, which make the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla absolutely necessary at this season.

But with some people, impurities in the blood cause very different symptoms. The kidneys, liver and bowels are overmatched in their efforts to relieve the clogged system. Dizzy headaches, bilious attacks, failure of appetite, coated tongue, lame back, indigestion or that tired feeling are some of the results.

From the same cause may also come scrofula, neuralgia sciatica or rheumatism.

All these troubles and more may properly be called "Spring Humors," and just as there is one cause, a cure is found in just one remedy, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the impure blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla enriches that which is weak and thin. Hood's Sarsaparilla vitalizes that which lacks vitality.

LONDON LIVE HOG MARKET. Friday's quotations: Paid drovers off cars, lean, long singers, $4 80 per cwt.; light, fat and heavy, $4 40 per cwt. Long, lean white half Yorkshire hogs in great demand. Short, light and fat hogs, nearly unsaleable. Hogs should always be fed with oats, barley and peameal, the last six weeks before delivery; never with shorts, milldust, corn or cornmeal, as this feed is sure to spoil the quality of Canadian hogs and the reputation of our bacon in England and only makes it just as good as American bacon, which means the lowest price in the world. Farmers should never deliver hogs under 160 pounds, because a hog gives the best profit on feed given while between 100 and 170 pounds, and every undersized hog takes room up for a real singer in any packing house.

▲ Detroit Man Killed - 21 Persons Inljured, Including a Number of Ontario People

[G. N. W. Special to The Advertiser.] Winnipeg, Man., March 28.-A bad accident occurred yesterday morning on the C. P. R., three and a half miles east of English River, near Winnipeg. The accident was caused by a broken rail. The engine and three cars of baggage passed safely, but FOUR COLONIST CARS WERE

DERAILED. One of the cars remained upright, but the other three, one first-class and two second-class were overturned. One passenger was killed and 21 were injured. The following is a list of the wounded:

Social Reformers.

They Met at Labor Hall Last Evening.

g to promote the interests of the "social reform movement" was held at Labor Hall last evening. Albout eighty persons were present including representatives of the Industrial Brotherhood, Patrons of Industry, Canadian Co-Operative Commonwealth, Christian Citizenship League, and the Socialist Labor Party. Dr. Swann, or the C. C. C., was called to the chair, and briefly stated that the objects of the meeting was to bring about a union of all social reformers. Then Mr. Joseph T. Marks, of the Industrial Brotherhood, and Mr. Fred Daly, of the Christian Citizenship League, who, together with Dr. Swann, were the promoters of the movement in the city, addressed the meeting. They pointed out that though there were many grounds upon which social reformers might disagree, yet there were planks, such as the initiative and referendum, proportional representation, tax reform, municipal ownership of municipal franchises, and the government control of natural monopolies, which found fa-yor with all. The work, as undertaken at Hamilton, where a Social Reform League has been formed, was out-Mr. H. B. Ashplant, Socialist Labor candidate at the provincial election, said he was an unbending champion of his party principles. They had the platform which would be able to emancipate not only the workingmen, but also the merchants and manufacturers, from the commercial chaos which threatened them. The proposed league, he thought, would increase, instead of lessen the trouble. The S. L. P. knew the disease, and had the remedy. Mr. C. B. Keenleyside sarcastically remarked that evidently the S. L. P. had all the brains, and other people question possibly as much as Mr. Ashplanks in the platform of Mr. Ashplant's party.

Mr. Barter, a Socialist adherent, was more favorably disposed to the union initiative and referendum and proportional representation. The Chairman-In the event of league being formed, Mr. Barter, would Mr. Ashplant interposed as Mr. Barter was about to reply, and said that as organizer of the party he could speak with authority. He would not commit the party without referring the matter back to the section. Mr. F. W. Daly objected to the Socialist platform, because it did not include the prohibition plank. Mr. J. Stiling did not like the idea of a foreign platform being forced up-

Manager Carr, of the street railway company, has notified City Engineer Graydon that the company will enforce a new timetable on April 1. The service will meet, as far as possible, the city council's wishes, as embodied in the schedule drafted by the city engineer. It calls for a 5-minute service on the belt line and Dundas street, and a 10-minute service for the others.

West Huron Election Appeal Decided in Favor of the Government.

[G. N. W. Telegram to The Advertiser.] Toronto, March 26.—Judge Osler gave judgment this morning in regard to the reserved ballots in the election appeal in West Huron. In this case Beck (Conservative) was declared elected on the recount by 2 majority over Garrow (Liberal). There were a number of ballots disputed, on which an appeal was entered. Judgment was reserved in respect to four votes, of which one was marked for Garrow and had been disallowed. The three others were marked for Beck, of which one had been counted for Beck by the returning officer, and two had been disallowed. Judge Osler counted for Garrow the one vote disallowed by the county judge, because it bore the initials of the poll clerk instead of the deputy returning officer, and threw out the other three. This makes the vote a tie, and leaves the election in the hands of the returning officer, who will presumably vote for Garrow (Liberal). This means the gain of a seat by the Liberals on the recounts.

CHAPTER XXV.

I was returning from the village one morning when I saw a stylish brougham, not the doctor's, standing at the Priory gates. I hastened my steps, for this was a most unusual sight, as I believed it was not generally known that I was at the Priory. I met Rebecca, who told me, in almost a frightened voice, that Mrs. Blandford was into a nest of faratics. t I had no come, and she had put her into the re- idea of fanaticish like th" fectory, as Mr. Felix was in the Prior's

I had answered Mrs. Blandford's pleasantly as I could, but I had intimated that the old relationship could not possibly be resumed. I shrank from an interview with her, but it could not be avoided, and, nerving myself for the encounter, I went to it at once.

The refectory was the most distinctly man. The last time he hateft us he monastic and picturesque room in the old Priory, my favorite room. My parents were, of course, in great distress, and I knew by the looks and actions of my friends who called to see me, that they thought I was doomed to an early doubth. Shortly often this an aunt of death. Shortly after this an aunt of mine, Mrs. Wm. Henderson, of Toronto, came to visit at our place. My condition troubled her very much, and she insisted on my trying Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. To please her I consented, but with little hope of any good result. The effect, however, was wonderful and a pleasing surprise to me. I soon began to feel more cheerful and seemed to feel stronger. Then my appetite began to improve and the color return to my cheeks and lips. From that hour I steadily gained strength and was soon enjoying my former excellent health, and I am sincere in expressing my belief that to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do I owe my

The facilities for handling traffic on the C. P. R. are being heavily taxed these days. In addition to thousands rushing westward from other points, it is estimated that fully five hundred people have left the Ottawa Valley for the far west within two weeks. About twenty-five came down the Pontiac line from Portage du Fort on Saturday. A number were left over at Carleton Place on Thursday for lack of train accommodation. From Charlton Junction the Winnipeg train was run in five sections of eight cars each making it all a total of 40 cars, carrying 2,400 passengers. About 500 of these were bound for the Klondike, with the regulation outfit. The people who are going west from Western Ontario are all apparently well-to-do and intelligent people

The Tunisian is 500 feet long, with 60 feet beam. The tonnage of the new vessel will be about 10,000, and the contract calls for a speed of 16 knots per hour. She will be built for both passenger and freight traffic, and will have all the latest appliances in cold storage. She will not be ready for this season's

A PRISONER'S PLEA.

Montreal, March 26.-In the Court of Queen's Bench yesterday Thomas Forrest, a prisoner, harangued the court for an hour and ten minutes previous to having sentence passed upon him by Judge Wurtele. In the course of his remarks Forrest alluded to his long record as a soldier. He was accused of robbing a companion of $200, and stoutly denied the charge. He had been found guilty, however, by the jury, and the judge sentenced him to five years in the penitentiary.

"He's rather timid, is he not?" "Very. Why, he's so timid that he's scared by war-scares."

EASTER.

Was Not Corrected Until 1752. The observance of Easter dates back to about the year 68, at which time there was more contention among the eastern and western enurches as to what day the festival should be ob-Christian world on the same day. This decision settled that Easter rule and some another. This diversity of usage was put an end to, and the Roman rule making Easter the first Sunday after the fourteenth day of the calendar moon was established in England in 669. After nine centuries a discrepancy in the keeping of Easter was caused by the authorities of the English Church declining to adopt the reformation of the Gregorian Calendar in 1582. The difference was settled in 1752 by the adoption of the rule which makes Easter Day always the first Sunday after the full moon twenty-first day of March. If the full moon happens upon a Sunday, Easter is the Sunday after. A RECENT STREET COLLISION. To the Editor of The Advertiser: I see an article in your paper of yes-
