"We hand out civic relief with a club, but salary increases on a silver platter," Mayor Wenige declared at the city hall today, with the assurance that at tonight's session of the council he will move that $10,000 be set aside for relief and charity purposes

Ald. William A. Wilson, who was present at the time, entertained the view that the $10,000 proposal was certainly worthy of favorable consideration, and from present indications he will lend his support to the move if the mayor adheres to his

Lovely Children From London ONE IS KILLED. Intelligent Chorus Girls Supplant 'The Gold Diggers' Says Former London Actor

Lloyd Neal, Known Here in Old Springbank Park Company, Again in City.

TALKS OF STAGE

Says Modern Chorus Girl Nearest to Physical Perfection of All Types of Women.

Chorus girls are higher mentally, better morally, and nearer perfection physically than any other type in the world, according to Lloyd Neal, former Londoner, who is a member of the Theatre Guild Repertory Com-pany, now playing in the city. Mr. Neal has a host of friends here who will recall the genial little actor when he belonged to the old Princess Theatre and played stock roles with the Stoddard Stock Company in Springbank Park years ago.

Mr. Neal returned to the old home town yesterday for the first time in eight years. Since his departure he has played in numerous New York productions and traveled all over the continent. That mellow amiability, which endeared him to many Londoners, is as marked as ever, and he is enjoying every moment of his brief visit to the city.

The veteran theatrical man stated the thing which impressed him most during the past years is the new type of men and women who are now the backbone of theatre life. The old "ham" actor of ten years ago and the chorus girl of ten years ago are no longer ornaments of the theatrical profession. The average footlight maiden nowadays is intelligent, am-bitious and conscientious. She is far ahead of her sister of past decades.

Mayor and Ald. Wilson Unite in Case of Garbage Department Employee.

HE WILL GO BACK

Mayor Wenige and Ald. William A. Wilson united today in a common cause-to investigate the case of a married returned soldier "fired" by Garbage Superintendent Walter

After hearing the case in the city clerk's office, the mayor promised the man a job by nightfall, and an order ws immediately made out for the Liberals had amply vindicated coal and certain other necessities, and Relief Inspector J. W. McCallum directed to carry out the same.

The matter was braought to the attention of the city council the other evening by Ald. William Wilson, who had interested himself in the question, although it is understood that a similar complaint recently registered was passed by.

It was, indeed, remarkable to witness how two consistent opponents the mayor and Ald. Wilson, tackled the question today, and both were inclined to think that Superintendent Dodd had been "petty" in his dealings in this instance.

New Section to School Will Cost in Neighborhood of $80,000.

The six-room addition to the Technical School, now in course of construction, will be opened at the beginning of January, according to Principal H. B. Beal, who this morning stated that the work was progressing rapidly and favorably.

The addition, which is badly needed, consists of six teaching rooms, although a big need of this school is a gymnasium and auditorium. No provision is being made for this phase of school activities, and Mr. Beal has, on more than one occasion, expressed himself very strongly in the matter of having these two departments added. It is expected that one of the matters that will be discussed early in the new year by the board of educa-tion will be the addition of an auditorium and gym. The students at present have no place in which to conduct or hold entertainments or sports, and as there are more than 800 on the register of the school, it is felt that something should be done The addition, it is estimated would cost in the neighborhood of $80,000. GRAND OLD MAN OF LONDON DIES AT 'ELDON HOUSE

George B. Harris, 87, Was Formerly Noted Lawyer and Athlete.

DEATH UNEXPECTED

George B. Harris, 87, one of London's grand old men, died at his home, "Eldon House," 481 Ridout Street, at one o'clock this morning.

Mr. Harris had been in feeble health for six months, but his death was unexpected.

The life of Mr. Harris has been intimately associated with the growth and progress of this city. He was born in "Eldon House," where he died, and had lived there nearly all his long life. It was built by all his long life. It was built by John Harris of the Royal Navy when he settled in London, and is one of London's oldest and best known beauty spots.

Mr. Harris was universally known among old-time lawyers, real estate men and amateur athletes. He was born in 1836, received his education at the old Bayley school, and prac-tised law in the city. He was a noted cricketer and horseman, taking at all times a keen interest in out-door sports. He and the late T. H Purdom were friends and contem-

Purdom were friends and contemporaries.

At an early age Mr. Harris studied law with the late Judge Wilson. He was a director of the London and Western Trusts Company and was one of the original members of the Long Point Company. His father, John Harris, who came here to be county court treasurer with Colonel Burwell, was identified with the affairs of Western Ontario and Middlesex in early pioneer days, and George Harris, his son, was known as an authority on London's early history.

More than $10,000 has already been advanced to depositors. Although the arrangement with The Home Bank was actually to take care of the needy and destitute, at least 500 took advantage of the privilege offered by The Standard.

London Ahead.

Thus, it will be seen that through the initiative of the local depositors' association, citizens with savings accounts are more than a month ahead of depositors in other towns. ahead of depositors in other towns and cities. Not one depositor outside of London has realized a dollar on his or her account.

It may be six months, and it may be more than a year, before the second dividend is declared, according to local opinion. A lengthy interval between the first and second payments is inevitable, owing to the space of time required before Home Bank assets can be sold. "The interim liquidator, Mr. Clark-

In the meantime, The Standard Bank stands to lose interest on the money advanced by them to local depositors. This loss will be negligible when it is considered how much good will have been obtained through The Standard's Action.

Premier Baldwin Outlines Part of His Tariff Plans: Tells Reason of Election

States He Will Exclude Wheat, Flour and Meat From Taxation.

ACTION CRITICIZED

Lloyd George Declares Step Is Foolish-Labor Heckles Speakers.

Associated Press Despatch. London, Eng., Nov. 15. - Premier Baldwin today told the House of Commons something about his tariff plans and the reason for precipitating general election. He was specific regarding only what he proposed to lude from taxation, that is, wheat four and meat, including mutton and bacon, cheese, butter and eggs. For everything else the prime minister reserves "a perfectly free hand" swaits the advice of a committee appointed to consider the subject.

His plea of necessity for protection was based largely on the argument that in the matter of tariffs and foolish. every nation's hand is against Great Britain. All other governments, especially the United States, Italy and spain, had greatly increased tariffs power.

The debate was started by J.

Ramsay MacDonald leader of the opposition, who offered a vote of censure of the government. Mr. MacDonald said that over a third of the unemsaid that over a third of the unemployed were from the engineering and other trades, and shipbuilding, cotton and distributing trades. The engineering and iron and steel trades in the first nine months of 1923 had imported goods to the value of f19,000,000 and exported to the amount of £94,000,000. Tariff reform in such conditions offered no help for the

Are Women Overworked? Yes, hundreds of thousands of them are. This applies to the house-wife and mother who struggles on a all income to make both ends mee by doing all the washing, ironing, cooking, making and, mending for a large family. It is surely a healthy sign and augurs well for the future of religious life in Canada that these three denominations have decided to throw aside rivalries. prejudice and sentiment and endeavor to face honestly their great national and world task. At a meeting of the union committees of the three churches, held in Toronto re-cently, it was decided that joint conferences should be held from coast to coast to set forth the spiritual realities involved in union and to call the united Church to her task. "At present these meetings are being held east and west, and on Nov. 27 a similar conference will be held in London in St. Andrew's Church, when three distinguished church leaders and speakers will be present representing the three denomina-tions. Dr. Clarence MacKinnon of Halifax, Dr. Trevor Davis of To-ronto and Dr. Ritchie of Montreal are expected to be present. These are men of exceptional abilities and kindly spirit, and this city should show its appreciation of their coming by crowding the great auditorium to capacity."

Force Caliph To Abdicate

Associated Press Despatch. Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 16.—The Angora government is bent on forcing the abdication of the Caliph, says the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. The purpose, according to the writer, is to bring about the election by a pan-Islamic congress of a non-Turk caliph, who, therefore, would not resent the loss of temporal power and who might even reside abroad, thereby facilitating the elevation of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, president of the new Turkish republic, to a purely secular position.

SHOWS PERSONS VARY IN COLOR PERCEPTION

Interesting Lecture and Demonstration Given by Dr. R. C. Dearle of Western.

That the perception of color is a matter in which individuals vary, was one of the features demonstrated by Dr. R. C. Dearle in his lecture on "Color and Color Blindness" on Thursday evening in the oid medical school building. The sensation of color is produced by the reflection of light rays of certain wave length to the retina of the eye, said Dr. Dearle, and if the construction of the retinal is such that it is sensitive to only certain wave lengths the person is unable to perceive the corresponding colors, and is said to be color blind. The deficiency may be exhibited toward red, green and violet colors, and is determined by the use of color comparison charts, Dr. Dearle asserted.

The speaker also demonstrated that ordinary white light is composed of seven constituents into which it may be broken by passing a beam through a prism. These are red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet, and in various combinations they make up, the innumerable tinits with which we are familiar. Certain colors, such as red and green were shown to be complementary colors to each other, for when they were superimposed upon each other, the additive effect approaches that of white light. The result is quite unlike that obtained when pigments of these two colors were mixed, for the resulting color in the latter case was brown.

The individuals in the audience were given an opportunity to determine, their sensitivity to various shades and combinations of colors. The physics department of the plenomena connected with light.

Well-Balanced Bill With Good Vaudeville Is Pre-

NORTHLAND STORY

A foreword to "Where the North Begins," the feature picture now at oew's, tells the interesting story of Loew's, tells the interesting story of its star, the champion police dog, "Rin-Tin-Tin." It is interesting to note that the name signifies "good luck," because for a canine, "Rin-Tin-Tin" has a spectacular run of luck, leaping from puppydom spent in the trenches to stardom and what promises to be a comfortable old age in Hollywood.

"Where the North Begins" is but another of the countless stories born of the lonely romance of Northern achievement in the way of scenic beauty.

There is a first-rate cast, who are even better because of the fact that they are not familiar. Naturally, however, the chief point of interest is the dog. It manages quite marvelously to convey the impression of the generations of dog ancestry, fighting with the savage training received with a pack of wolves. The conveying of this struggle of instinct is a delicate procedure, and "Rin-Tin-Tin" captures the imagination much more readily than countless stars of a different breed.

The Worden Brothers are an unusual feature of the vaudeville program. Their particular line is more often than not associated with Japanese acrobats. Their stunts with barrel and balls took splendidly at the performances yesterday.

From "Let the Public Decide," the headline act, one draws the conclusion that the old songs are still the best beloved. The applause was neither slow nor scane in greeting the rendering of a group of old songs, not the real old songs, but those of just fifteen or sixteen years ago, which latterly have been completely swept into oblivion by avalanches of bananas and other things. The younger girl with her modern dance ing was clever, but the public decided on the old songs.

The third turn presented a number of dances, in an interesting manner, claiming a fair share of the applause.

Boswell, his biographer, drank cup after cup of tea as if it had been the Hellconian Spring. Hazlet, like Johnson, was a prodigious tea drinker, while Bulwer's breakfast was never complete without it, and DeQuincey states that he invariably drank tea from 8 o'clock at night until 4 in the morning, when engaged in his literary labors.

A Questionable Utterance.

Hon. Arthur Meighen, speaking at amilton, devoted some of his time to a review of political platforms in the British election, and his remarks mean one thing only, that he is very ouch in favor of the return of Premier Baldwin.

It may be that in years to come ve shall regard it as quite right and roper for political leaders in Canda to take a hand at discussing the olitical issues in the various domins, and expressing the view that the Liberals or Conservatives should el returned to power.

That time may come, but it is not e yet, and it is not certain that it will come easily and without a

Reverse the tables, and see how it orks out. Mr. Meighen is leader of official Conservative opposition in the Canadian parliament, and as such he expresses opinions favoring one side in the British election. Following the British election it may that Lloyd George might find himself the leader of the opposition in the British parliament. When the next Canadian election comes, would Mr. Meighen appreciate Lloyd George delivering an address in Britain telling the people there why he thought it advisable that

Mr. Meighen should not be returned? That is, perhaps, to some extent a suppositious case, but it is not far removed from being a parallel one We do not hold that the time will come when, with the strengthening of inter-empire understandings and relations, there will not be discussion in one part of the policies and plans of another, but in the present stage of development, it is a matter that ought to be thoughtfully considered because Canadians have not yet reached the stage where they would care to sit still and listen to British statesmen as to how we

Churches and Taxation.

"No doubt the churches will be the next thing to be taxed." That line is taken from a letter written to this with joy. paper, commenting on the tendency

The argument about taxing churches is not a new one, and developments in recent years make the question a more debatable one than ever.

A church is exempt from taxation because it is a place of worship: it. is a concession granted by the state to the church for a certain reason, and some churches that believe strictly in the complete separation of church and state refuse to be exempt from taxation.

If the churches were used all the time for that one purpose only, and that purpose being worship, there might be little heard about the matter of taxation, but many of the churches have in recent years adopted a policy of making of their edifices places that compete with concert halls and other similar heavily-taxed places.

If a large concert is put on in a church there is no tax by the municipality, and yet that concert is in direct opposition with the places of entertainment in the city that are paying taxes to the city.

When the various organizations connected with churches put on sales and bazaars they at once reach out and take their share of the trade that would otherwise go to the stores that are paying a very heavy business and government and municipal tax.

Were churches to use their buildings on the basis on which tax exemption was first granted, viz., that they should be places of worship. there would be little talk of taxation, but the tendency of more and more making churches places of paid admission, competing with heavily taxed premises, is bound to have the effect of drawing fire sconer or later from the assessment departments of the various cities.

lar issue in sight, people feel that there is no headliner in the civic ntest, and accordingly do not take the trouble to vote. That is one of the weaknesses that has been felt in other places. Guelph felt the tug of an old mayoralty contest to such an extent that it went back to the old way of selecting the chief magistrate.

Care should be taken, in making the changes that are talked of in London and elsewhere, not to make an election such a colorless affair that people will not vote.

A voting community is the only force that can create a strong public opinion in any given direction, and a good way to get people to vote is to give them something to vote on.

Driving Them Crazy.

German shopkeepers show symp toms of insanity, and the reason given is that the task of calculating in millions, trillions and quadrillions is too great.

The foreigner no longer has his money changed to German currency, so the German merchant has also to recken the value of the dollar. pound, Swiss francs, Swedish crowns and other money that has a stable

The wonder is not that a fer shopkeepers have gone crazy, but that the whole nation is not clean, stark, staring mad.

The debacle is past the scope of a human mind, and a German merchant might just as well take handful of marks as a shovelful. A man with $5.500,000 today could buy the whole currency ground out so feverishly in recent months by the Gérman Reichbank.

Just how many marks that repre sents, you can figure out for your self. One dollar will buy 1,260,000,000 Now multiply that by five and a half million and you have the answer omewhat like this:

6,930,000,000,000,000 Now you see why German shopceepers are going crazy.

$1 For 65 Cents.

Men who juggle and balance figures say a dollar today is just a 65-cent piece compared to 1914.

It is hard to see what use these figures are, except to make us do a lot of sighing for the good old days. East End Voter Thinks Mayor Wenige Why not put this 65-cent scale to work if it is an absolute fact.

You have a mortgage of $1,000 on your property, put there ten years ago when a dollar was a bang-up publicly-expressed opinions from whole dollar, 100 cents, 20 nickels, ten dimes, four quarters or two 50ought or ought not to vote in Canada. | cent pieces. It measured up full six feet in the army of currency.

Well, suppose you pay off that mortgage today with dollars that are only 65-cent pieces. Wouldn't it be accepted? Certainly, and perhaps

If we are to believe the wise men of all sorts of governments to reach and their theory of sunken values, out now for new forms of taxation, it would mean discharging a $1,000 ebt with $650.

The 65-cent dollar is one of the sweetest little playmates we have when it comes to paying off debts.

His running mate in this regard Mr. McCausland, expressed similar views, stating he had every confidence in Premier Ferguson's political sagacity, adding "everyone knows that the O. T. A. is a disgrace to the legislature of Ontario."

that has made it possible for Ontario to bring up her children without them knowing what a bar-room looks like.

In the second place Mr. McCaus-land's statement that the O. T. A. is a disgrace to the legislature of On-tario is a direct insult to the people tario is a direct insult to the people of the province who voted to put be shall soon get all the additional that law in force.

Best of All for the Cough

Best of All for the Cough

He wrote to the address Clyde That Sticks.

Make It Yourself In Two Minutes

The coughing season is on, and every home should have a supply of the best cough remedy to be had, and as you can make this supremely excellent. excellent cough mixture yourself why pay high prices for the common kind?

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength) — to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one-half pint that's all there is to it.

Then when a member of the family starts coughing or catches cold in the chest or head, or has acute catarrh, you are prepared as you And the children love to take it. With speed almost beyond belief this home-made cough mixture stops the toughest hang-on cough, and all (too costly for ordinary cough syrups) that immediately covers the

A STORY OF COURAGE By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XIX.

"I will not! I'm going. You have to take me. Oh, I'll just die—I'll die, The impulsive youth of him, raw, tender, clashed with the polished ease I'll die! If you say I can't! After of Clyde Dunstan, Denny's hand, gripped in his pocket, shook. The other saw him coming, turned his head with a laugh to the girl. But Denny stepped to his side. bay.

Old Mr. Traynor shook his head over his bread dipped in grayy:
"Place won't seem the same with you children gone. What'll we two old uns do, Nora?" "Good evening, Mr Dunstan." At the dry, breathless tone, Dunstan's face stained to the temples, but he spoke with ready charm: "They'll come often to see us and what's to prevent spry folks like us from going over to see them?"

There were ham sandwiches and a cream chocolate cake for the last night's feast. When it came to singing the hymn, Mr. Traynor started out bravely stoned executive with "Why, how do you do, Denny? I swear I wouldn't have known youyou've grown so." "I heard you were in Los Angeles."

Denny answered grimly. The color sank from Dunstan's cheeks. "Yes, so I was, Pretty warm down there, now, Well-glad to have seen ing the hymn, Mr. Traynor started out bravely, stopped abruptly with a long-drawn quaver; the old lady's fingers loitered on the keys. Denny and Katy finished it out alone.

In the morning when they were leaving, Mrs. Traynor gave them a basket filled with all kinds of cookies and cold meats. In Katy's hands she put a bulky nackage the you again, Denny." appraising his bulky suit, his big shoulders. As he didn't move, she glanced with disdainful question to Dunstan. Denny rested his hand on the table: she put a bulky package — the splendid crazy quilt Katy so admired splendid crazy quilt Katy so admired.
"God bless you children," she held Denny's hand, "and give you success.
Your mother would be a proud wo-

"You saw Violet in Los Angeles?" Dunstan's soft eyes flashed, he numbled something to the girl, stood

It was a warm August night, the place crowded. Half a dozen of the curious were already staring. a blase man of the world, naming off the islands to the enrapt Katy and laughing when she insisted on

"Looking for trouble?".

"You saw Violet in Los Angeles," Denny repeated harshly, young eyes steadfast. Dunstan recovered.

"Yes, I saw her. She's looking fine."

"Did you marry her?" An uneasy pause. Dunstan laughed discordantly.

"Marry her! Hump! She wouldn't have me. Violet's particular." have me. Violet's particular."

"You needn't lie to me You're a big coward and a fake, but you can't stuff lies down me." He held Dunstan's coat twisted in one hand:
"Where is she?"

"Here don't twist that coat. Just had it pressed Don't get excited."

had it pressed. Don't get excited."
But Denny saw the moist pallor of his face. "How do I know where she is? What have I to do with where se: What have I to do with where she is? Sure, I saw her in Los Angeles. Suppose I did?"

He was regaining his pose, speaking with indolent audacity, shoving Denny uncomfortably on the de-

There was a patronizing of his own uncouth helplessness. He "You know where she is, Mr. Dun-stan. That's all I want to know. I'll thank you to tell me."

"How do I know where she is?" Dunstan pulled from him. "I met your cousin by chance in Los An-geles, and took her out once. I tell you, I don't know where she is, or anything about her. I'm sorry if you have lost track of her."

He would have swung back to the store; Denny caught his arm. In-wardly his confidence was gone, but he clung on with childish persisting, half crying. "I think I'm going to die, Denny. It's the beautifulest to the window. Then she did cry for pure joy of the beauty of the hills and water and leaves windward when you were there. Where was she living when you took her out?"

"Somewhere out on Fremont street. I doubt if I could find the place again. I think it was Fremont, near Third, but I'll not swear to it. Well—good evening."

Denny felt small, whipped. He went melted. Katy, white with excitement tan passed, returning to the girl. "Katy, we can get along!"

"It was a mistake? Lizzie made a mistake, didn't she? They aren't married? "Course not." Denny was almost running, the joy gone from his night of-festivity. His pride squirmed before the memory of Dunstan's easy superiority; he felt the man's cheapness and this made more humiliating his own defeat. Why hadn't he swung on him? "What did he say, swung on him? "What did he say, Denny," Katy insisted, so he had to tell her.

"He said Vee wouldn't marry "She would so have married him.

"She would so have married him. She told me she loved him ever and ever so much. I bet he didn't tell you the truth, Denny."
"Violet's lucky she didn't marry him, Katy. He's a low brow. Vee's better off. I'm going to write her. She's all right and has a good job. of a satisfied, independent Violet that Dunstan had given him—waited rest-lessly, yet confidently. Violet would surely answer, for he had asked a favor she wouldn't deny. Denny was to enter college. He and Katy would move to Berkeley.

Yet he was afraid to take Katy from Old Lady Traynor's home where she was so happy and leave her alone all day. He asked Violet to come and live with them.

On Sunday he went across the bay to find rooms. They must be cheap, yet nice. They weren't going to live in any place like Aunt Josie's. Not much! With the sublime and pathetic trust of ignorance Denny figured it would be easy enough to work his way through. He'd get jobs easy, pooh! It was three days before he found a place. Then he came home, bursting with excitement.

"Gee, Katy, wait till you see it.
Say, wait till I swing å mean brush over the walls. You'll just double oig room. You'd never know it was

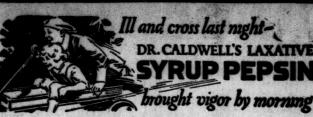

"A barn, Denny!"
"You wait! I tell you it's going to be great. You'll see."
For the next week he was gone from morning till night. Old Lady Traynor gave him furniture from her basement and she bought splashy cretonne that Katy, with fluttering fingers, turned into drapes for the windows. Katy was more excited windows. Katy was more excited than a bride.

"Suppose Violet doesn't answer, Katy? Will you be afraid to come? You'll be alone all day."

"But she's going to answer, Denny. I just know it and know it."

Toward the end of the week the letter Denny had written was returned unclaimed. "No such person at this address," was stamped in three places. Denny's bright plans three places. Denny's bright plans were dashed.

How to Keep a Child Healthy

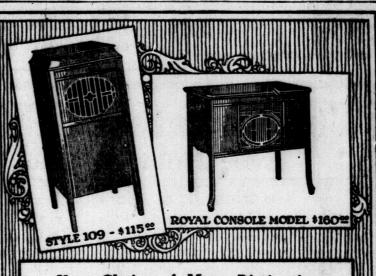

A GENERATION ago parents thought that sickness was a part of a child's life, but we know that are now. The scoret is in the part of a child's life, but we know better now. The secret is in the food the mother allows the child to eat, and in watching that elim-ination occurs regularly two or three times a day. Mrs. W. E. Mar-geson, Centreville, N. S., and Mrs. Pratt, 45 Gillson Ave., Run-nymede, Toronto, always because nymede, Toronto, always keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin in the house, ready for use, and avoid many of the ills to which children are subject.

A Substitute for Physics Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is a scientific compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and suitable aromatics. The formula is on every package. You will find you do not have to force children to take it, and it is much better for them than castoroil, calo-

The Players' Workshop To Present Pretty Masque

Miss Topley Thomas Will Produce Play by London Writer.

One of the prettiest dramatic productions of the year will be the "Masque of All Souls Eve," to be presented by the Players' Workshop, ander the direction of Miss Topley Phomas, in the Central Collegiate auditorium on Thursday, Interest is added to the coming presentation when it is known that the masque was written by a London writer, Miss Beatrice Taylor, and abounds with delightful lines of poetry. It is the aim of the Players' Workshop to produce for the public something which has been created in London, and thus encourage home talent.

The masque, which is a mediaeval form of play, in which qualities, such as love, romance, folly, and so forth, become characters in the drama, adapts itself admirably to a picturesque presentation and to poetic lines.
The theme of the "Masque of All Souls Eve" concerns the lovers of story book, history and fairy tale, who are brought to earth to prove to the new woman the great power of

A very clever cast will present the play, Miss Leona Kirkwood taking the role of Romance; Miss Ruth Tanner of Folly; Miss Sara Laurence, Memory; Miss Ema Thirsk, the New Woman; Miss Kathleen England, Titania; Miss Margaret Griffiths, the Maid Marion; Miss Arkell, Elaine; Miss Mary Maynard, Cleopatra; Miss Agnes England, Priscilla; Miss Eula Kennedy, Madame Butterfly, and Miss Hilda Hook, Love. The ancient theory that if a guest pasts a cup of coffee or a glass of rine on the tablecloth the perfect cotes will follow suit is, of course, lightly extravagant, and such a procedure is decidedly unnecessary. But he idea in back of it is an admirable that at all costs the guest must laced at his ease. So, if the pie urnt or the meat cooked to a de burnt or the meat cooked to a crisp, do not force your guests into the false position of axtolling the ruined food, but make a joke of it yourself or else do not notice it at all. Your guests may feel a few panes of hunger, 'tis true, but at least they will have been spared an embarrassment the memory of which is not soon forgotten, while the memory of a crispy rosst or a soggy pie is of a crispy roast or a soggy pie is soon lost if one is having an amus-ing and entertaining evening.

The Practical Side.

The Practical Side.

The practical side of entertaining is really very easy if one is willing to give a little time and thought to it. This applies just as truly to the woman who is head of a large household with many servants as it does to the woman with but one maid—whose problem, by the way, I shall discussions. Whatever the case, the personal supervision and direction of the mistress of the house are essential. We cannot expect paid employees to take an interest in the management of our houses and the success of our entertainments unless we do so ourselves, for it is to be expected that they will soon become itself of a careless under the discretion of a careless under the d and careless under the The woman with servants should saturally see to it that they are so well organized and trained in their cities that after the first week in her cuties that after the first week in her employ she should not find it neces-sery to direct them in the regular details of the house. This is best exhibited. I find, by becoming familia. With all superiments of the household system without the duties which fall be each maid may be thoroughly ex-periment of her. Servants should speem not only their daily duties but that may be expected of their last what may be expected of their last what may be expected of their last granisation in a large househo is as fatal to its smooth-runningness it is to any house of business. If possible, correct the error yourself or else quietly order it corrected. Danny Tries To Coax Nanny To Pay a Visit To the Man-Bird

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS. The great bird-man, which of course was nothing but an aeroplane was still resting on the Green Meadows, near the edge of Farmer Brown's cornfield, the day after Danny's return. It happened that the aviator, the man who flew that machine, was cousin to Farmer Brown's Boy, and was staying at Farmer Brown's. That is why he had landed down there on the Green Meadows.

The night of his return Danny Meadow Mouse was too happy to give a thought to the bird-man. But when early the next morning he peeped out he saw at once that the great bird-man was still there. Right away he thought of the good things to eat which he had had during his wonderful journey. He knew that there were some of those good things still in that man-bird. Of course, he wasn't the least bit afraid of it any

"Come with me. Nanny, and we'll have a feast!" cried Danny.
"Where?" asked Nanny, suspiciously.

"Over in the man-bird," replied Danny. "There are some of the best Danny. "There are some of the best things to eat you ever dreamed of. Come on!" Danny began to scramble down from the old scarecrow.

But Nanny shook her head. She shook it in a decided way. "Are you crazy, Danny Meadow Mouse?" she demanded sharply. "Haven't you learned a lesson yet? Nothing in the world will term to me to so near that."

But there won't be any next time, "Danny insisted. "It can't fly of itself. It can only fly when there is a man in it, and there isn't a man anywhere in sight now. We can go over there and get the most wonderful breakfast and be back here before that man comes."

But time won't be any next time," world will tempt me to go near that to it. She wouldn't even let Danny

"Are you crazy, Danny Meadov ouse?" she demanded, sharply.

"But didn't it bring me back? Nanny had to admit that it did.

have got to fly. Come on, Nanny. let's do it just this ence."

But though Danny teased and begged, Nanny wouldn't go, and she wouldn't liet him go. So finally, with a little sigh of disappointment, Danny tried to forget the good things to eat that he knew were in the man-bird. But just the same, Nanny didn't allow him to get out of her sight once all that day.

So obsessed are women by the idea that the only thing men care for in a woman is beauty, that it has come to be the standard alibi for every deserted wife.

We continually hear it said that after Mrs. X. got fat and grizzle-headed Mr. X. forsook her for a younger and prettier woman, wheresympathy on Mrs. X's breast, and anathematize X. for his faithlessness to one who had given him her youth-f course, the insistence of women upon men's blind worship of beauty, and the belief that a man's love is wholly and entirely dependent upon a woman's good looks, is a grand and gorgeous excuse for wives not keeping the love they have won. It saves their faces, as the Chinese say, for it makes preserving a husband's affections a matter of pure luck, beyond their control, instead of being a matter of art, and subtlety, and work, and self-control, that lies entirely within their own volition.

For no woman is responsible for losing her beauty. As a matter of fact, she is bound to lose it because time takes toll of even the peachiest. Figures grow more meagre or stouter. Hair loses its sheen, eyes their lustre. The roses fade out of the cheeks, and life etches its story of pain and sorrow on every face. Every woman at forty is a chromo reproduc tion of the living picture she was at twenty. And if love, as women think, is hung on a hair, or is only skin deep, then there isn't a woman in the vorld, but who is foredoomed to lose out. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Guthrie, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. McLachlan, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Perry, Mr. E. G. Young, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Calrncross, Mr. and Mrs. H. Livermore, Mr. and Mrs. O. Roy

But, fortunately for women, this notion that their husbands love them merely for their beauty, and will cease to care for them when they lose it, is a false doctrine. In the first place, men don't marry women for their looks, or else there would be many more old maids than now exist, for if you will observe any crow matrons, you will perceive that not many of them would have taken a blue ribbon in a beauty show. Men admire a pretty face, yes. They rave over a beauty, but they are generally content to let some

When a man marries a woman she looks good to him, or else he would not have picked her out for a wife, and he continues to see her as she appeared to him on her wedding day just as long as she doesn't do something that wakes him out of his trance, and makes him give her the cold

I doubt extremely if any man ever quit loving his wife because she had lost her figure or her complexion. I doubt if he ever even perceived that she had lost her figure or her complexion, and some day her nagging or her whining or her temper passed the en-durable point, and then he saw her as she really was-jat, sallowcheeked, ugly and unlovely-but most of all spiritually unlovely

Meadow Mice should fly. It makes me shiver all over just to think of such a thing. And I don't intend to run any risk of having to fly."

"Pooh!" said Danny. "Flying is great fun. You can have no idea how big the Great World is until you fly. But going over there to get breakfast doesn't mean that you have got to fly. Come on, Nanny:

In proof of this, take the fact that among the most adored wives of our acquaintance are women who have no earthly claim to good looks—women who are frankly as homely as nature made them; women who do not even attempt to palliate their appearance by artifices of the toilet; women who have no taste in dress, but who are so jolly and good-natured, women who have no taste in dress, but who are so jolly and good-natured, women who have no taste in dress, but who are so jolly and good-natured, breakfast doesn't mean that you have got to fly. Come on, Nanny:

Let's do it just this once."

No, the way women lose their husbands is not through their looks, but their ways.

Among my acquaintances, for instance, is a young woman who is married to a very delightful and charming man, who is at present very much in love with her. The husband smokes, not excessively, but he likes his in love with her. The husband smokes, not excessively, but he likes his after-dinner cigar, and an occasional cigarette. The wife objects to tobacco. She does not permit her husband to smoke in the house. There is a cease-less argument on the subject, and after dinner the poor man has to go and sit on the steps, or seek the garage, or take a stroll with his cigar.

It humiliates him that he cannot do as he pleases in his own home. Every argument on the subject leaves a little bitterness behind it. The wife's prejudice is killing all the chumminess between them, and I prophecy that in five years' time the man will have ceased to care for his phesy that in five years' time the man will have ceased to care for his wife, and probably will have found some other woman with broader views toward tobacco. The wife will attribute it to her fading looks, but it won't be that. It will have been her disposition

This is only one of a thousand other causes of why women lose their husbands' love. Extravagance, bad housekeeping, lack of ap-preciation, discontent, perpetual criticism, all drive a husband away rom his wife often enough. But when a wife is affectionate to her husban and fusses over him, and tells him he is the greatest thing on ear h, he doesn't care whether she is fat or thin, or whether her hair is gray or black, or whether her teeth are her own, or hers

An Absolutely Reliable Statement Important to Every Woman

Remarkable Results Shown by a Nation Wide Canvass of Women Purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. ____ 50,000 Women Answer ____

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 50,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it-only two women out of 100 received no benefit-98 successes out of a possible 100. Did you ever hear of anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments-not a cure all-one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

It's reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world-leading all others.

Such evidence should induce every woman suffering from any ailment peculiar to her sex to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and see if she can't be one of the 98

At least twelve teams and cobably fourteen will be drawn in the various series of the London and District Basketball Association Monday night at the Y., when the schedules are drawn up.

Buzz Wetzel hove to here this morning and cast anchor for a few hours without much rattling of chains. It is presumed the former London ball manager will clear for Hamilton from here. If London-had any ball players to trade it might be suspected that Buzz has any designs on them this is about the time of year who would justify some looking over, and if Buzz has any designs on the thing of over, and if Buzz has any designs on the thing of over, and if Buzz has any designs on the thing of over, and if Buzz has any designs on the thing is about the time of year he starts his ball season.

The fact that Churry was the only Minter to go into the majors this year is another feather in the cap of Wetzel. He discovered Churry and developed him, and the peppery youth did the rest himself. Discovering similar material in the Ontario bushes would be well worth Wetzel's time, especially if he ties up with Hamilton team with three Ontario-bred rookies are drawn up.

Toronto Star: Some people wise in rugby matters declare that Hamilto Rowing Club hasn't a chance against Hamilton Tigers in the eastern Canada semi-finals, and that Queen's will make the Tigers look like something stuffed and set up in a museum. Well! take it from Casey-Hamilton Rowing Club has a chance against anything that doesn't wear armor. If they go at Tiger halves like they went at Parkdale halves there will be more than Bert Gibbs' pants on Tigers' back field Saturday appealing for first aid. Parkdale halves say that Rowing Club tacklers had more knees, albows and fists than a herd of octopuses. Babe Bradfield says that he was never hit so often "accidentally" in his life. The squabble Saturday should be as merciless as a battle between two brothers.

As suggested in these columns a few days ago, it is likely that Granites, Canada's hockey representatives at the Olympic, will be invited to open the new arena here, billed against a Western Ontario all-star hockey team.

It is believed that no objection would be raised by the O. H. A., and the Granites, who have three weeks' idleness before sailing, will need the workout such a game would give them.

A team composed of Dad Ashley, Kelterbourne and Carson from Strat-ford, King of Woodstock, probably McAllister from Sarnia in goal, a St. Thomas player or two, and London players should be able to give the Western Ontario stage their annual rugby classic on Saturday afternoon at Tecumseh Park Arts are determined this year to revenge their defeat in the last annual, although the loss was by a narrow margin and brought little disgrace.

Arts had an aesthetic aerial attack last year, which was a combination of the American forward pass and La Savotte, and with greater perfection it should constitute an awful threat this season.

Meds will stick to their scalpel formation, which made such deep incisions into the Arts' line last year. Arts claim they have a counter-line play which will rattle the bones of the medicos.

Both teams are imbued with the gladiatorial spirit. It's been hinted that the spirit of the Meds is even stronger than that. The animosity of the two factions is most intense. The battle will be a sanguinary affair. Red Cross sections are being formed amongst the co-eds.

One must hand it to Judge Landis in the matter of sand. When he is attacked, instead of running away, he turns and fights back. His latest move demonstrates this beyond dis-move demonstrates this beyond dispute or cavil.

Just now there is agitation among a considerable element of major leaguers to curtail the activities of the baseball commissioner or do away with them entirely. It has been said by several leaders, though usually anonymous, that the conditions which made the appointment of Judge Landids desirable three years ago, no longer exist, and that organized baseball would do better without him.

As indicating that, he is not disposed to become panicky over the propaganda that is being circulated, Judge Landis answers these insidious workings by announcing that at the forthcoming joint meetings of the American and National Leagues, to be held in Chicago Dec. 12, he will ask that his powers be broadened instead of curtailed.

Big-hearted Jawn McGraw! Who

Big-hearted Jawn McGraw! Who would have dreamed that his pompous and gruff exterior hid such a perfect jewel of a heart, such a gem of purest ray serene? Jawn explains the transfer of Shortstop Bancroft, Casey Stengel and Bill Cunningham to the Boston Braves as being actuated by purely altruistic motives. Muggsy says, in effect, that he had a two-fold motive. First, he intimates, he was anxious to see Christy Mathewson, president of the Braves, get a good start. Also he let Bancroft go so that Banny could achieve his ambition to become a manager.

Nothing could be finer than this! He didn't say, however, what motive, altruistic or otherwise, caused him to send poor old Casey Stengel away from the glory of the Polo Grounds. Could it be that he relegated Casey to the desert Boston as reward for his having won by home runs the only two games the Giants won in the recent world series?

And if it was his overwhelming desire to see Matty win and Banny become a successful manager, why did he exact in return for his second rate outfielders and his cracking infielder, the hard-hitting Billy Southworth and Joe Oeschger, one of the best of Midget Filipino's Contract Calls For $5,000 Purse and Option.

POSTS FORFEIT

Special to The Advertiser. Toronto, Nov. 15.—When it was that Pancho Villa, the world's flyweight champion, would defend his title against Frankie Genaro, the merican champion, Dec. 17, in Iadison Square Garden, a lot of local stic Solomons said that the Inter-ational A. C. of Toronto, who wanted him as a headliner here on Dec. 5, would never get him. The club match-maker made a flying trip to the city of bunk, and today Villa's contract was filed with the athletic commission, accompanied by a $500 appearance forfeit. The little flat-faced Filipino is getting plenty, even if he is champion. He isn't risking his title here, but the contract calls for 5,000 iron men, plus $300 for railroad transportation, and gives him the option of 40 per cent of the gross Some soft dough!

That is the largest purse ever offered in Ontario, bar the purse for Jimmie Wilde, the little Englishman, from whom Villa won the title in June. Wilde got $7,500 for boxing Patsy Wallace. It will cost the International well over $6,000 before they get through with Villa, for they spent seven or eight hundred on phone calls and trips to New York negotiating for him during the past year.

Once Villa got his price he was reasonable. He told the International A. C. to get anybody they liked for his opponent, as long as he could weigh 118 pounds at two o'clock. He suggested Carl Tremaine or Bobby Eber, but Tremaine is under contract that week, and Eber is sewed up by the Queensberry A. C. Either Eddie Pinchot, Donnie Mack or Howard Mayberry will be Villa's opponent, and any one of that trio will be "soft like granite" for the tawny-complected lad from the mid-Pacific isles.

Deposed Pacific Slope Baseball Head Will Attend General Meeting.

ALLEGES SYNDICATE

New York, Nov. 15.—The Pacific Coast League will come east to the general baseball meeting at Chicago in December with two presidents—W. H. McCarthy, who held the post in 1922-23, and Harry Williams, who was elected president at a recent meeting held at Avalon by members of the faction opposed to McCarthy's stand in regard to the ownership of the Seattle club.

The controversy hinges upon McCarthy's contention that the Los Angeles and Seattle clubs are owned by the same person, the inference being that the person is William Wrigley, Jun., of the Chicago Nationals. McCarthy insists that this is sydicate baseball, and illegal under baseball law. There is no doubt that syndicate baseball where is exists is obnoxious, and has always ben eradicated whenever proved.

But the Seattle club takes issue with McCarthy, insisting that it is properly owned and managed, and with McCarthy, insisting that it is properly owned and managed, and that is representatives can legally vote in any meeting.

handle players freely. Under the rule in vogue in 1923, the National club could not send players to Los Angeles unless they were subject to the draft. The Pacific Coast League would not accept players who were subject to draft, so that made a deadlock.

If Chicago were interested in Seattle, as alleged, it would have not only Los Angeles, but Seattle to combine with—but that would be a deplorable condition for the Pacific Coast League.

Sees Crashes.

The farming arrangement which was thought to be eliminated from baseball by the agreements which were passed some years ago in reality has come back in another form, and indirectly there is as much disposition to farm as ever. except that players are shifted from club to club under the same ownership.

Minor leagues which prefer to subsist on major league cast-offs, instead of developing young players, are the leagues which clamor for the draft. There are clubs in all the leagues which feel this way, though they ultimately will crash, as two or three already have done.

If the National Association goes into the California controversy it will have to determine whether there is syndicate baseball in the Pacific Coast League, and whether it has the right to review an election held by a member league. If it sidesteps, McCarthy will be left to fight by himself, and the Pacific Coast League situation will be the same again until it gets peace.

May Meet Landia.

The two presidents will lay their cases before the National Association at Chicago, and possibly before Commissioner Landis. It will make a red-hot issue, as McCarthy has many friends who admire his executive ability, whether they agree with all his baseball theories or not.

Behind this controversy there is something else—the draft. There are club-owners in that part of the country who do not wish to develop baseball talent, but are willing to take the major league cast-offs. The Chicago Nationals, who are in common with the Los Angeles club, wish a condition whereby they may use the California club to develop and

It was not until young Abner Doubleday, of Cooperstown, N. Y., in 1839, drew a diamond, that the pres-

But surely Cartwright didn't invent the game on the spur of the moment. Where did he get the idea of the diamond? We would rather believe that he had seen the game played before. But if Doubleday is to be given credit for the diamond, let us make sure credit be given Cartwright for the organi-

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Trading was again light on the Standard mining exchange this morning and fluctuations were narrow. The market, although not exceptionally firm, had few losses to show, and fractional advances were widespread. Two sizeable gains were registered in Argonaut, up 2 at 64, and Crown Reserve. Jp 1½ at 63. Clifton led in activity, and drew at noon 10½. Con. W. D. Lake lost ¼ at 25½.

WAGONLOAD OF SILK STOLEN BY BANDITS

Associated Press Despatch. Associated Fress Despatch.

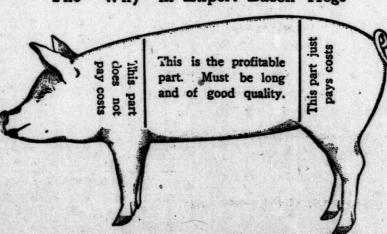

New York, Nov. 16.—Four armed men entered a livery stable in West 26th street early today, bound and gagged John Gillen, the night hostler, after beating him into unconsciousness, and escaped with a wagonload

Several hours after the robbery Gillen worked the gag from his mouth and shouted for help. A passerby, hearing his cries, called policemen. They found the hostler tied with chains and suffering from severe scalp wounds inflicted with a gun butt. He was taken to a hospital. Four truckloads of silk, stored for the night on an upper floor of the stable, were untouched. This shipment, police believe, was the loo sought by the robbers. The small load which they took was on the first

Everything the Farmer Trades In

Local Market

The Friday market provided a dull and uninteresting appearance to the few householders who turned out to do their shopping there. A few growers, anxious to steal a march in the disposal of their apples, stood under the shelter of the market shed, and apart from one or two loads of hay, which sold at unchanged prices, there was little else to justify the name of market.

The Saturday market, however, will be a different affair, for the season is advancing to a point where marketing becomes an unpleasant business, and, for the next few Saturdays it is expected that the farmers will attend in large numbers to dispose of their surplus chickens and vegetables.

1. That the foregoing is a synopsis of a proposed bylaw of the Corporation of the City of London, to be submitted to the votes of the electors at the same time, and at the same places, as the annual election for the municipal council, and the deputy returning officers appointed to hold the said election shall take the vote.

2. And that the 28th day of November, A.D., 1923, at 7:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the City Hall in the said municipality, has been fixed for the appointment of persons to attend at the polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the clerk.

And that, if the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed bylaw, it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said Corporation at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice, and that such first publication was made on the 9th day of November, A.D., 1923.

TAKE NOTICE FURTHER that tenant who desires to vote upon the said proposed bylaw must deliver to the clerk not later than the 10th day before the day appointed for taking the votes, a declaration, under the Canada Evidence Act, that he is intenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt or liability is to be created, or in which the money to be raised by the proposed bylaw is payable or for at least 21 years, and that he has, by the lease, covenanted to pay all municipal taxes in respect of the property of which he is tenant, other than the local improvement rates.

s a Civic Institution This Store Feels a Great Responsibility

> We believe that the place we fill in the life of this city is as important as that held by the fire department or the waterworks commission; that the needs we fill are as vital. We believe that the responsibility of practicing the virtues of square dealing, courtesy and respect of the law rests on us as surely as the preaching of them rests on the teachers and ministers. And all this instead of giving us an exalted opinion of our own importance, fills us with a watchfulness and caution that is your best guarantee of being finely, fatrly treated at the counters of this store.
